The court may also order the probation department to financially assist a parent's travel to and from visitation when necessary to promote the goal of returning the minor to parental custody. This does not mean that parents are entitled to transportation costs as a matter of constitutional right. It does, however, mean that the broad statutory powers conferred upon the court to make "any and all reasonable orders for the care, supervision, custody, conduct, maintenance, and support of the minor ..." includes the ability to order the payment of travel costs for a parent, so long as "appropriated funds are reasonably available" [In re L.M. (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 645, 650-651 , 99 Cal. Rptr. 33d 350].

[b] Foster Care

[i] In General

Although infrequently utilized as a dispositional alternative, the court may place a minor in foster care under certain limited circumstances. This placement cannot be made as a "punishment" for the purposes of juvenile court law [Welf. & Inst. Code § 202]. Specific detailed procedures must be followed for placement, case planning, review, and termination of parental rights for minors in foster care once they have been declared wards of the court pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 601 or 602 [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 726.4, 727.2, 727.3, 727.31, 727.4].

Generally, the notice of hearing to terminate parental rights [Welf. & Inst. Code § 366.23] and the hearing requirements to terminate parental rights [Welf. & Inst. Code § 366.26] are the same for dependent children and minors in foster care who have been declared delinquent wards. However, particular steps must be taken by the probation officer [Welf. & Inst. Code § 628] and the court before a ward considered for foster care may be detained pending further hearings [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 635, 636]. Specifically, a probation officer who believes a minor is at risk of entering foster care placement is required to make reasonable efforts to prevent or eliminate the need for the removal of the minor from their home [Welf. & Inst. Code § 628].

Upon a finding by the court that continuance in the home is contrary to a minor's welfare, the probation officer shall, within 30 calendar days of removal or by the date of the disposition hearing, whichever occurs first, complete a case plan that identifies the strengths and needs of the minor and his or her family, and the services that will be provided to the minor and his or her family in order to reduce or eliminate the need for foster care [Welf. & Inst. Code § 636.1]. If the probation officer believes that foster care placement is the most appropriate disposition, the case plan must include all of the information required by Welf. & Inst. Code § 706.6.

The probation officer shall when it is determined to be appropriate, make referrals for services to a minor's family in order to prevent or eliminate the need for removal of a minor from his or her home [Welf. & Inst. Code § 653.5]. It is also the duty of the probation officer to determine whether reasonable efforts, as described in Welf. & Inst. Code § 727.4(d)(5), have been made to prevent or eliminate the need for removal of a minor from his or her home [Welf. & Inst. Code § 652].

If the court has ordered the care of the minor to be under the supervision of the probation officer for foster-care placement, pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 727(a), the court clerk is to issue and serve notice of any hearing on the petition to any foster parents, preadoptive parents, legal guardians, or relatives caring for the minor [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 658, 660].

When foster-care placement is being considered, the probation officer is required to provide a social study which includes material described in Welf. & Inst. Code § 727.4 and comments from appropriate local education agencies. The social study must include a case plan, and information about the continuing necessity for and appropriateness of the placement, the extent of the probation department's compliance with the case plan in making reasonable efforts to safety return the minor home, and the educational services the minor is receiving [Welf. & Inst. Code § 706.5]. The case plan must either be attached to the social study or be incorporated as a separate section within the social study. If the minor, parent or legal guardian did not participate in the development of the case plan or sign the plan, there must be an explanation about the failure to participate or sign included in the plan [Welf. & Inst. Code § 706.6].

When a court orders a minor to be placed under the supervision of the probation officer for foster care placement, the order of priority for placement is "placement with relatives, tribal members, foster family, group care, and residential treatment pursuant to Section 7950 of the Family Code." The placement must be a safe setting that is the least restrictive or most family like, in close proximity to the parent's home, and suited to the minor's special needs and interests [Welf. & Inst. Code § 727.1]. Once a minor has been declared a ward of the court and placed in foster care, the procedures for review hearings and reunification are set forth in Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 727.2, 727.3.

PRACTICE TIP:

Educational Surrogates. Whenever a social study regarding foster care placement of a juvenile ward is submitted to the court, it must address whether the right of a parent or guardian to make educational decisions for the child should be limited. If so, the study must identify whether there is a responsible adult available to make educational decisions for the minor [Welf. & Inst. Code § 706.5]. When the court limits the rights of a parent or guardian to make educational decisions, it must appoint a responsible adult to make those decisions [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 726, 727.2]. Such an appointment is to remain in effect until one of the following occurs: (1) the minor reaches the age of 18 and is competent; (2) another responsible adult is appointed; (3) the right of the parent or guardian to make educational decisions is fully restored; (4) a successor guardian or conservator is appointed; or (5) the minor is place into long-term foster care.

[ii] Psychotropic Medication

Effective in 2008, if a ward of the delinquency court is removed from the physical custody of their parent and placed into foster care, only the juvenile court has the authority to make orders regarding the administration of psychotropic medication to the minor. This authority may be delegated to the parent of the minor if the court finds that the parent poses no danger to the minor and has the capacity to administerpsychotropic medications. The court's authority for these orders must be based upon a request from a physician that includes the reasons for the request, a description of the minor's diagnosis and behavior, the expected results of the medication, and a description of the side effects [Welf. & Inst. Code § 739.5].

Section 739.5 is virtually identical to Welf. & Inst. Code § 369.5, which deals with the administration of psychotropic medication to dependent children who are removed from the physical custody of their parent(s). The procedures are now uniform, regardless of the status of a minor.

[iii] Termination of Parental Rights

In any case where a minor has been declared a ward of the court and has been in foster care for 15 of the most recent 22 months, the probation department must follow the procedures in Welf. & Inst. Code § 727.31 to terminate parental rights unless the department has documented in its file that termination is not in the minor's best interest or the minor's family has not been provided with reasonable efforts necessary to achieve reunification [Welf. & Inst. Code § 727.32]. When the court orders a hearing to terminate parental rights, the agency supervising the minor must prepare an assessment that includes information about any current search for an absentee parent, the amount and nature of any contact between the minor and his or her family members since out-of-home placement, an evaluation of the minor's medical, developmental, scholastic, mental, and emotional status, and a preliminary assessment of the eligibility and commitment of any prospective adoptive parent or guardian [Welf. & Inst. Code § 727.31].

[4] Placement in Secure Facility

[a] Time Limits

In any case in which the minor is removed from the physical custody of the parent or guardian as a result of an order of wardship under Welf. & Inst. Code § 602, the order must specify and note in the minutes the maximum period of confinement under Welf. & Inst. Code § 726 [Cal. Rule of Ct., Rule 5.795(b)]. "Physical confinement" means placement in a juvenile home, ranch, camp, or forestry camp, or in any institution run by the Department of Juvenile Facilities. The court may retain the minor on probationary status for the period in which it retains jurisdiction [Welf. & Inst. Code § 726].

Minors who are placed in group or foster homes, or other nonsecure placements are not considered "confined" within the meaning of Welf. & Inst. Code § 726, and therefore may remain there beyond the maximum term of confinement, up until the termination of juvenile court jurisdiction [Welf. & Inst. Code § 726; In re Randy J. (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1497, 1506, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 152] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Escape From Group Home Facilities. Privately run group home facilities and institutional placements are not listed within the county facilities from which a minor's escape can result in a violation of Welf. & Inst. Code § 871. Minors leaving these facilities may face consequences such as placement or probation failures but should not, without additional conduct, face a new delinquency petition [In re Jason G. (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1017, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 255] .

[b] Required Review Hearing

The case of a ward removed from custody of a parent and placed in a nonsecure facility pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 727 must be set for a review hearing within six months after the date of the order removing custody, and within six months after each review so long as the child remains out of the custody of the parent or guardian. There must be a permanency planning hearing within 18 months of the order removing custody and periodically, but no less frequently than every 18 months during the period of placement. The hearings may be nonappearance [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.810(a), (b)].

[5] Commitment to Juvenile Home, Ranch, Camp, Forestry Camp, or Juvenile Hall

The court may commit the minor to a juvenile home, ranch, camp, or forestry camp. If there is no juvenile home, ranch, camp, or forestry camp within the county, the court may commit the minor to the county juvenile hall [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 730(a), 881; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.790(f)(4)]. These facilities are run by the county and vary in the length of their program. Welfare and Institutions Code § 730 gives courts broad discretion to make orders and conditions relative to dispositions made to these facilities, including the imposition of specific durations and minimum commitments [In re Ronny P. (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 1204, 1207-1208, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 675] . The minor may not be committed to such a facility for longer than the maximum period of confinement [Welf. & Inst. Code § 727]. See discussion in § 329.96.

PRACTICE TIP:

Escape from a County Ranch, Camp, or Forestry Camp. While Welf. & Inst. Code § 871 describes an offense for minors who escape from certain facilities, or while they are being transported to those facilities, it does not apply to minors who escape from off-site work crews, field trips or activities held outside of the enumerated institutions. While such conduct may be subject to a violation of probation pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 777, it cannot be the basis for a 602 petition absent statutory modification [In re Antonio F. (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 1227 ; 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 325] .

[6] Division of Juvenile Facilities (Formerly the Department of the Youth Authority)

[a] Background

While many of the laws governing a commitment to the Department of the Youth Authority still exist, as do the institutions themselves, the agency formerly known as CYA is now the Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation's Division of Juvenile Facilities [Gov. Code §§ 12838-12838.13]. This change was the first in a series of proposed changes that came about as a result of a state taxpayer lawsuit, Farrell v. Hickman, which identified significant deficiencies throughout the California Youth Authority. These deficiencies subsequently became the subject of extensive legislative and media scrutiny, as well as reports from the Office of the Inspector General, and resulted in a requirement that the Department submit quarterly status reports on Juvenile Justice Reform throughout the 2005-06 fiscal year.

In January 2005, the State and the plaintiffs agreed to a Stipulated Agreement resolving the Farrell lawsuit. This agreement commits the state to reforming California's juvenile system to a rehabilitative model, as required by Welf. & Inst. Code § 1700. At that time, the State was given until November 30, 2005, to file in court its remedial plans for this new model.

On September 1, 2005, the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation (CDCR) submitted the first of the mandated quarterly status reports. This report addressed the question posed by the Legislature, whether California needed a state level juvenile corrections entity. The question was answered affirmatively, based on input from juvenile justice experts and professionals at the state and local level, that a state level juvenile corrections system is essential to provide effective rehabilitative treatment for the higher risk/higher need youthful offenders in California.

On December 1, 2005, CDCR submitted the second quarterly status report which is far more comprehensive in scope. In this report, the Division of Juvenile Justice (DJJ) outlined a set of core principles for reforming the state system:

- Safe and secure facilities;
- Effective rehabilitative treatment to reduce recidivism;
- Youth prepared for re-entry to the community and provided opportunities to address personal, social, physical, educational, and vocational needs;
- Victims adequately heard, served, and protected by the juvenile justice system;
- A strengthened juvenile justice continuum, through collaboration with stakeholders, communities, and families;
- Evaluation of program quality, outcomes, and effectiveness.

[b] Promised Reform

[i] In General

According to the CDCR Status Report on Juvenile Justice Reform, submitted on December 1, 2005, four primary areas related to system reform have been addressed with significant changes proposed. Generally, they can be identified as "Gap Analysis," a "Remedial Plan" prepared in response to the Farrell v. Hickman lawsuit, a preliminary "Facilities Master Plan," and Parole Reform.

[ii] Gap Analysis

As the result of a DJJ survey of various probation departments from around the state, over 70 gaps in the statewide juvenile justice continuum were identified. Generally, these gaps exist in six major categories:

- Mental Health: Mental health treatment, facilities, staff, and appropriate jurisdiction comprised the single most critical gap in juvenile justice services.

- Programs: This second largest category of gaps included aftercare, assessment, services for older youth, wraparound, vocational services and probation officers in schools among other programs identified as needing enhancement in the statewide continuum.

- Facilities: The kinds of gaps in this category were juvenile halls, commitment facilities and multipurpose residential placement-like treatment facilities.

- Statewide Consistency: These reflected gaps in the statewide continuum and/or in the ability to develop an actual continuum of coordinated juvenile justice sanctions and services statewide, and were in the areas of assessment, caseload resources, studying alternatives to residential treatment/placement, and gathering strategic information in a deliberate and thoughtful way.

- Staff: Sufficient staff and staff training across the continuum.

- Funding: Absence of stable, ongoing funding for probation.

[iii] Remedial Plan

Pursuant to the Farrell v. Hickman lawsuit, the State was required to file six remedial plans addressing deficiencies at the Youth Authority. These plans address education, health care, disabilities, sex behavior treatment, safety and welfare, and mental health. At this time, CDCR's Division of Juvenile Facilities has agreed to make the following changes to the institution as a result of these plans:

- Elimination of the "general population." Every youthful offender committed to DJF requires and will be provided the opportunity for rehabilitative treatment to reduce his/her risk to re-offend.

- Reduction in the living unit size on core program units in existing facilities to no more than 38 (current facilities have units with over 60-80 youth). New facility design/construction could reduce size to 20-30.

- Reduction in the living unit size on mental health treatment programs to no more than 30, with enhanced staffing and the use of licensed mental health professionals.

- Gender specific services, including the possibility of contracting services outside of the Department's facilities for female offenders committed to DJF.

- Enhanced staffing coverage for custody/behavior management functions to ensure a safe environment and promote a "normative culture" with restorative justice principles.

- Contracts for specific treatment interventions in the short term.

- Development of new treatment-oriented classifications in the long term.

- Several additional residential mental health programs over several years.

- Improved services to youth on suicide watch and those requiring acute care to national standards.

- Re-entry planning incorporated into youthful offenders' individual plans from the time of arrival at DJF.

- Dedicated positions to address the needs of victims and to ensure that victim impact is included in youthful offender programming.

- Intensive and continuous staff training, support and monitoring.

- Recording, tracking and reporting performance and outcome measures using nationally recognized measures.

It is estimated by the State that implementation of this new program model will require phasing in over a four year period. In addition, the department has published specific time lines for certain items, including:

Within the first 18 months:

- Bring in national experts, as described in the stipulated agreement filed November 30, 2005, to assist with continued planning and implementation phases, as well as to develop interim strategies to address some of the most immediate and pressing concerns.

- Develop a contract for a Risk/Needs Assessment tool and processes to identify offender risk, needs and strengths, allowing for safe and appropriate placement into living units as well as individualized treatment plans designed to reduce offenders' risks to re-offend.

- Establish objective criteria to identify and separate the most violently disruptive offenders and develop Behavior Treatment Programs to specifically address their violent behavior.

- Convert the use of N.A. Chaderjian (Chad) to a specialized treatment facility. The long term use of all juvenile facilities will be reconsidered as the Facilities Master Plan is phased in.

- Consider contracting for safe and effective programming for female offenders committed to DJF outside of DJF's facilities.

- Begin phasing in the enhanced treatment model in approximately 25% of the living units every year. All existing living units will be converted to the new model within four fiscal years.

- Eliminate Temporary Detention Units by establishing Conflict Resolution Teams, Behavior Treatment Programs and training staff in additional behavior management techniques.

- Implement changes to the disciplinary system to increase the ability for youthful offenders to earn back disciplinary time with good behavior.

- Begin phasing in Victim Services & Restitution Specialists at each facility to address victims concerns, ensure victim notification, and incorporate victim input into individual treatment plans.

- Begin phasing in Juvenile Court/County Liaisons to facilitate communication with the courts and counties and improve coordination of services statewide.

- Ensure full implementation of Substance Abuse Treatment Programs on existing units.

- Begin construction and renovation of facilities, as approved and authorized by the Legislature.

Within the next five years:

- Statewide risk/needs criteria will be used to determine appropriate commitments to DJF.

- Youthful offenders will be placed into living units that address their level of risk and treatment needs. Gang affiliation will no longer be the primary placement criteria.

- Treatment interventions specifically designed for DJF's population, e.g., long-term violence reduction programs for young adults will be implemented by dedicated treatment staff or contract providers.

- All staff and youthful offenders will promote and maintain a "normative culture."

- As youthful offenders demonstrate a reduction in risk level, they will be moved to lower risk units.

- Certain living units will be designated as re-entry units for offenders who are preparing to return to their communities.

- Certain living units will be designated for parole violators in order to provide shorter-term programming specifically designed to address the reasons they were returned to custody.

[iv] Facilities Master Plan

In addition to the promised changes to the programming and philosophical orientation of the institution, the state has proposed changes to the actual facilities. These changes would convert the existing structures, most of which are over 40 years old, to "state-of-the-art juvenile corrections facilities." This would include:

- Facilities for 150-350 youthful offenders (current facilities were designed for 400 to over 1,000).

- Living units housing 20-30 youth (current facilities have units with over 60-80 youth).

- Living units with appropriate treatment space so youth can receive adequate treatment, instead of being locked in their rooms.

- Eventually, all of the single room living units across the state will need to be replaced or renovated to provide safer, more effective program alternatives. In the interim, enhanced staff will address existing facility deficiencies.

To this end, DJF has proposed an ongoing schedule to replace or significantly renovate most, if not all, of its eight existing facilities, dependent upon legislative authority.

[v] Parole Reform

The final area addressed in the December 1, 2005 Status Report on Juvenile Justice Reform is parole services. Perhaps the most significant proposal in this area is the decision by the state not to attempt a transfer of parole services to the county level. although this transfer was originally proposed by the Governor's Juvenile Justice Working Group in 2004, the state has decided to retain responsibility for parole and aftercare services, for the time being. Nonetheless, the following changes have been proposed by DJJ for parole and aftercare services:

- The development of an assessment tool to assist in determining appropriate sanctions for parolees who violate parole conditions based upon their risk to public safety.

- The introduction of "Re-entry Specialists" to establish re-entry programs and step-down units at each facility to better prepare youthful offenders prior to release.

- Expanded contract aftercare services.

- Developing a "sanction grid" that includes alternative interventions which appropriately address risks and needs of violation behaviors, focusing on the least restrictive alternatives, public safety and increased parolee success.

[c] Realignment

Realizing the state could not afford to comply with the Farrell consent decree, in 2007, policymakers acted to reduce the number of youth offenders housed in state facilities by enacting realignment legislation that shifted responsibility to the counties for all but the most serious youth offenders. The counties have long supervised the vast majority of youth involved in the juvenile justice system, with less than two percent of children coming within the provisions and descriptions of Welf. & Inst. Code § 602 confined in state facilities. However, under realignment, the state has codified which offenders are even eligible for confinement in facilities. In addition, attempts at funding the creation and expansion of county programs that have assumed responsibility for the shifting youth offender population continue as the result of realignment [Little Hoover Commission, Juvenile Justice Reform: Realigning Responsibilities (July 2008)].

In January 2009, the State Commission on Juvenile Justice published a Juvenile Justice Operational Master Plan, which articulated specific recommendations for the implementation of the reforms required by the Farrell consent decree and mandated by 2007 realignment legislation.

[d] Terminology and Purpose

All prior references to the Department of the Youth Authority are now references to the Division of Juvenile Facilities within the Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 1000, 1703].

The purpose of the Division of Juvenile Facilities is to protect society from the consequences of criminal activity by providing for the secure custody of wards, and to effectively and efficiently operate and manage facilities housing youthful offenders. The purpose of the Division of Juvenile Programs is to provide to youthful offenders comprehensive training, treatment, and rehabilitative services to youthful offenders and is designed to promote community restoration, accountability to victims, and to produce youth who become law-abiding and productive members of society. The purpose of the Division of Parole Operations is to monitor and supervise the re-entry into society of youthful offenders and to promote the successful reintegration of youthful offends into society, in order to reduce the rate of recidivism, thereby increasing public safety [Welf. & Inst. Code § 1710].

[e] In General

[i] Commitments

The court may commit the minor to the Department of the Youth Authority Division of Juvenile Facilities (DJF) [Welf. & Inst. Code § 731]. No ward of the juvenile court may be committed to the Youth Authority DJF unless the judge of the court is fully satisfied that the mental and physical condition and qualifications of the ward are such as to render it probable that the ward will benefit by the reformatory educational discipline or other treatment provided by the Youth Authority institution [Welf. & Inst. Code § 734].

As part of the ongoing reformation at DJF, minors can no longer be committed to the institution unless they have committed an offense described in Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(b) or a sex offense specified in Penal Code § 290(d)(3), which has been renumbered to Penal Code § 290.008(c) [Welf. & Inst. Code § 731]. Minors who have previously been adjudged wards of the court many not be committed to DJF unless the most recent offense admitted or found true is one enumerated in Welf. & Inst. Code 707(b) or Penal Code § 290.008(c) [Welf. & Inst. Code § 733]. Children under the age of 11 and those with contagious or infectious diseases are also ineligible for DJF commitments [Welf. & Inst. Code § 733]. If a minor is ineligible pursuant to § 733, DJF is not required to accept them for commitment [Welf. & Inst. Code § 736].

Although well intentioned, and clearly effective in reducing the number of minors committed to DJF, the restrictions of Welf. & Inst. Code § 733 are occasionally problematic for courts faced with limited dispositional options for minors who have committed a § 707(b) offense for which they were not committed to DJF and subsequently reoffend. As noted in a recent case discussing the dilemma, "It is unlikely that the Legislature intended always to bar DJF commitments for juveniles who commit DJF-eligible offenses, who are given a second chance via probation, and who fail to make good on that second chance. ... [T]he purpose of ... Section 733 was to reduce the cost and increase the effectiveness of juvenile confinement by shifting all but the most serious juvenile offenders to county facilities. [cites] This purpose does not support the view that those who commit the offenses the Legislature deemed serious enough for DJF must not be confined there if they first get probation but then violate its terms" [In re M.B. (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1472, 1478, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 359] .

Whether or not this interpretation is universally held, it appears that courts continue to struggle with the issue. While it is well established that violations of probation filed pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 777 are "notices" and not "petitions," Welf. & Inst. Code § 777(a)(2) covers all probation violations, including those that are criminal in fact [In re Eddie M. (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 480, 502, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 119] . Still, conflicts arise when petitions filed pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 602 appear to "block" or prohibit a DJF commitment where a § 707(b) offense has been previously sustained.

The Court of Appeal has upheld DJF commitments in instances where a "freestanding" notice under § 777 was filed even when a 602 petition was subsequently filed and dismissed prior to disposition pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 782 in the "interests of justice and the welfare of the minor" [In re J.L. (2008) 168 Cal, App. 4th 43, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 35] . However, a DJF commitment based upon a 777 notice when a 602 petition was filed, sustained, and dismissed after the minor had a negotiated disposition imposed on that petition, was considered an abuse of discretion under § 782 [V.C. v. Superior Court of Sacramento County (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 1455, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 851] . In either case, it appears that where a non-707(b) petition has been sustained and disposition imposed between a sustained 707(b) petition and a 777 notice, a DJF commitment violates the statutory mandates of Welf. & Inst. Code § 733.

A variation of these scenarios was recently addressed where a probation violation was not alleged in a freestanding 777 notice but in a pleading titled "JUVENILE WARDSHIP PETITION WELF. & INST. CODE 602/777," in which the probation violation was alleged along with an allegation of a "criminal offense." Although the 602 allegation was later dismissed, the probation violation was still alleged in a "petition" and the nature of the allegation related only to conduct that would have amounted to a crime if committed by an adult. In this situation, the DJF commitment based upon that allegation was upheld on appeal [In re M.B. (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1472, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 359] .

PRACTICE TIP:

DJF Commitments on Violations of Probation. Welf. & Inst. Code § 733(c) prohibits a commitment to DJF where "the most recent offense alleged in any petition and admitted or found to be true by the court is not described in subdivision (b) of Section 707." The plain language of this section does not preclude a commitment for a violation of probation pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 777(a)(2) when the most recently sustained offense preceding the violation is one described under § 707(b). This is because violations under § 777(a)(2) are, by definition, for conduct "not amounting to a crime," and, as such do not constitute offenses. Further, they are filed in court by way of notice, as opposed to petition.

From a practical standpoint, this has advantages and disadvantages. Ideally, it allows the juvenile court to place youth in alternative placements, in cases where a DJF commitment is a viable option, without fear that the minor would have to commit another § 707(b) offense if the placement is otherwise unsuccessful. This is consistentwith the purpose and intent of recent efforts to limit DJF commitments and encourage alternative placement.

On the other hand, it seems illogical that a commitment to DJF could be made for conduct not amounting to a crime, and proved with reliable hearsay and by a preponderance of the evidence [Welf. & Inst. Code § 777(c); In re Eddie M. (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 480, 491, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 119] when it is prohibited for certain felony offenses, including some that would qualify as strikes under the "Three Strikes" law if committed by an adult.

The situation is complicated further if this incongruity is resolved by the use of Welf. & Inst. Code § 782, if there are intervening § 602 petitions for non-§ 707(b) offenses, which authorizes the juvenile court to set aside findings and dismiss a petition "if the court finds that the interests of justice and the welfare of the minor require such dismissal." Child advocates will generally take issue with the notion that the welfare of the minor would ever benefit from a DJF commitment. However, as described above, in situations where a minor is not committed to DJF upon the commission of a § 707(b) offense and alternative placement is attempted, perhaps repeatedly, it would seem that those efforts, taken in context, would support the use of § 782 in this fashion both in the interests of justice and for the minor's welfare.

The limitation of DJF commitments to Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(b) and Penal Code § 290.008(c) offenders also applies to individuals who are found unfit for juvenile court. In order for an unfit minor to be committed to DJF, he or she must be convicted of an offense described in Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(b) or Penal Code § 290.008(c) [Welf. & Inst. Code § 1731.5].

Although the primary purpose of Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(b) originally related to the determination of fitness for minors over the age of 16, it is well established that the list of enumerated offenses has multiple purposes. Among those purposes is the designation of certain offenses, committed by minors of any age, a § 707(b) offense pursuant to a commitment to the California Youth Authority DJF. Consequently, repeated challenges to such commitments made by minors under 16 years of age have not been successful on appeal [In re Veronique P. (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 195, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 125 ; In re Tino V, (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 510, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 312 ; In re Julian O. (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 847, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 193] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Findings re: 707(b) Offenses. While § 707(b) enumerates a list of specific crimes and circumstances that are predicated upon sustained charges, it appears that the facts underlying the offense, as determined by the court, as opposed to the sustained charge, may determine whether or not a 707(b) finding can be made [In re Gary B. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 844, 846-849, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 824] . In fact, the juvenile court is entitled to base its 707(b) determination on facts presented during the trial or at the disposition hearing as established by a preponderance of the evidence [In re Emilio C. (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 1058, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 85 ; In re Gary B., above, 61 Cal. App. 4th at p. 850]. Consequently, serious consideration should be given to the factual basis stipulated to in support of an admission or material received into evidence for the purpose of determining disposition.

[ii] Time of Confinement

The court may not commit a minor to the Youth Authority DJF if sentenced to imprisonment for 90 days or less, or to the payment of a fine, or is subject to imprisonment for more than 90 days for defaulting on paying a fine that has been ordered [Welf. & Inst. Code § 1731.5; see also Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 1732.4, 1735]. A minor may not be held in physical confinement at DJF for a period of time in excess of the maximum period of imprisonment that could be imposed on an adult convicted of the offense that brought the minor under the jurisdiction of the juvenile court [Welf. & Inst. Code § 731; see Welf. & Inst. Code § 726; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.795(b)]. For discussion of how the maximum term is calculated, see § 329.97.

Welf. & Inst. Code § 731 was recently amended to further limit the time a minor may be held in physical confinement to a period of time not in excess of "the maximum term of physical confinement set by the court based upon the facts and circumstances of the matter or matters which brought or continued the minor under the jurisdiction of the juvenile court, which may not exceed the maximum period of adult confinement as determined pursuant to this section" [Welf. & Inst. Code § 731(b)]. This new language appears to authorize requires the court to set the maximum time of confinement based on the offense and the minor's history, in much the same way that the court in an adult criminal case would weigh aggravating and mitigating factors in selecting the low-, middle-, or high-term of a crime that had a range of possible sentences. This authority, which gives the juvenile court the discretion to set the maximum confinement time at less than the lengthiest term an adult would serve for the same offense, does not allow for the imposition of a term less than the minimum adult term [In re Joseph M. (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 889, 896, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 756]. The court's discretion to set a term of physical confinement to a term less than the maximum imposable term is not limited to the options available under the determinate sentencing law "triad" set by Penal Code § 1170. The juvenile court operates under an indeterminate disposition scheme in which the minor's release date and term of confinement are determined by the Board of Parole Hearings, subject to the "ceiling" imposed by the committing court. This means, at a minimum, that the court may impose any maximum time within the range of statutory options available for the offense committed [In re H.D. (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 768, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 627 ; In re R.O. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1493, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 738] .

The amendment to Welf. & Inst. Code § 731 requires the court to tailor the commitment term to the facts and circumstances of the case before it. Consequently, there is now less likelihood of arbitrary treatment in DJF cases than there was before the amendment [In re Sean W. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1177, 1188, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 248] . Recent decisions, stressing the importance of a committing court's interest in, and particularized knowledge of, the minors receiving a commitment to the Division of Juvenile Facilities require that a specific term be set and that the record reflect that the court has considered facts and circumstances related to the case in setting that term [In re Jacob J. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 429, 437-438, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 255 ; In re Carlos E. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1529, 1542-1543, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 551] .

Welf. & Inst. Code § 726(c) and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.795(b) require that the court "specify" the maximum period of confinement. Nothing in either the statute or rule requires that the pronouncement be done orally by the court. Unlike adult criminal sentencing proceedings, an oral pronouncement of the maximum period of confinement accompanied by a statement of reasons is not required. A written statement of the maximum period of confinement, accomplished through the completion of Judicial Council form JV-732 is sufficient. Further, where the record is silent as to whether the court considered the relevant facts and circumstances when setting the minor's confinement period, it is presumed that the court performed its statutory duty and was aware of the discretion provided pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 731(c) [In re Julian R. (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 487, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 790] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Cunningham* Does Not Apply. Cunningham v. California (2007) 549 U.S. 270, 127 S. Ct. 856 , determined that California's determinate sentencing law violates a defendant's right to trial by jury safeguarded by the Sixth and Fourteenth Amendments insofar as it permits a court to impose an upper term sentence based on facts found by the court and established only by a preponderance of the evidence. While Welf. & Inst. Code § 731(c) directs that a minor's theoretical maximum time of confinement cannot exceed an adult's for the same offense, there is nothing in the section that requires the court to follow adult sentencing procedures in imposing a maximum term. To the contrary, adult sentencing law provides for determinate terms for punishment while juvenile law provides for indeterminate terms to rehabilitate. To this end, juvenile "max time" is simply an outside time limit on a DJF commitment and not a specific term of confinement. Thus considered, neither the aggravating/mitigating circumstance scheme nor the restrictions enumerated in Cunningham, which are applicable to the sentencing of adult felons, are directly applicable to setting "max time" in juvenile cases [In re Christian G. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 708, 715, 63 Cal.].

Recent cases have been even more strident in emphasizing the differences between adult sentencing and juvenile disposition proceedings. Reaffirming the inapplicability of Cunningham to delinquency proceedings, the court in In re Alex U. (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 259, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 695 , stated, "[T]he commitment of the youth, processed through juvenile court, to the [DJJ] for the maximum period under Welfare and Institutions Code section 731 is in no way the equivalent of the commitment of the adult to prison for the same crime for the upper term based upon aggravation factors. ... The commission of a crime is the only point in common between a ward committed to the DJJ and an adult sentenced to prison [citations]. Since the statutory scheme and case authority 'not only justify but demand a different treatment approach for youths' [there is] no denial of equal protection" [In re Alex U. (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 259, 266] .

Any minor adjudged a ward of the court for commission of a sexually violent offense, as defined in Welf. & Inst. Code § 6600, must be given sexual offender treatment [Welf. & Inst. Code § 727.2]. The Department of the Youth Authority Division of Juvenile Facilities must also ensure that each ward who has not attained a high school diploma or the equivalent be enrolled in an appropriate educational program and develop a high school graduation plan [Welf. & Inst. Code § 1120.1].

No ward of the juvenile court who is under age 11 or who is suffering from any contagious, infectious, or other disease that would probably endanger the lives or health of other inmates of any state school may be committed to the Youth Authority DJF [Welf. & Inst. Code § 733]. The court also may not commit the person to the Youth Authority DJF if the person has been granted probation, unless the probation is revoked and terminated [Welf. & Inst. Code § 1731.5(a)(3), (4)].

When the juvenile court commits a minor with exceptional educational needs to the Youth Authority DJF, the court must not order the minor conveyed to the physical custody of the Youth Authority institution until the minor's individualized education program for his or her special needs has been furnished to the Youth Authority DJF [Welf. & Inst. § 1742; see Educ. Code §§ 56026, 56340 et seq.]. To facilitate this process, the juvenile court must ensure that the probation officer communicates with appropriate staff at the juvenile court school, county office of education, or special education local planning area [Welf. & Inst. § 1742]. Failure of the trial court to make specific findings related to a minor's special education requirements, whether the minor has "exceptional needs," prior to a commitment to CYA is reversible error [In re Angela M. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 1392, 1397-1399, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 809] .

Under certain circumstances, a minor who is committed to the jurisdiction of the Youth Authority Division of Juvenile Facilities will be required to undergo AIDS testing [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 1768.9]. Similarly, a minor committed to the Youth Authority DJF may be required to undergo examination, testing, or treatment for tuberculosis [Welf. & Inst.

Code § 1768.10].

The Youth Authority Parole Board has been abolished and replaced by the Youth Authority Board within the Department of the Youth Authority [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 1716-1723]. The Youth Authority Board is responsible for discharges of commitment, orders to parole and conditions thereof, revocation or suspension of parole, and disciplinary appeals [Welf. & Inst. Code § 1719(a)]. The Department of the Youth authority is responsible for the return of persons to the court of commitment for redisposition, determination of offense category, setting parole consideration dates, conducting annual reviews, treatment program orders, institution placements, return of nonresident persons to the jurisdiction of the state of legal residence, disciplinary decision making, and extension of Youth Authority commitments pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 1800 [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 1719-1729]. Institutional misconduct by wards is now addressed by a system of graduated sanctions, as implemented the Department of the Youth Authority, distinguishing between minor, intermediate and serious misconduct. Serious misconduct may delay a ward's parole date by up to 12 months and may be appealed to a panel of at least two Youth Authority Board members [Welf. & Inst. Code § 1719(d)].

The Department of the Youth Authority Division of Juvenile Facilities must review the case of each ward within 45 days of the ward's arrival and that review must be in writing [Welf. & Inst. Code § 1720]. Within 60 days of the commitment to the Youth Authority institution, an initial parole consideration date must be set and notification of that date is to be given to both the probation department and committing juvenile court [Welf. & Inst. Code § 1731.8]. In addition, the Department of the Youth Authority DJF is to provide the court and probation department with a treatment plan for each ward within 60 days of intake [Welf. & Inst. Code § 1766].

PRACTICE TIP:

Exclusive Authority Over Rehabilitation. Once a minor is committed to the CYA, regulation and supervision of the ward's rehabilitation is a function solely in the hands of the Youth Authority [In re E. (1979) 23 Cal.3d 398, 400-401, 154 Cal. Rptr. 204, 592 P.2d 720 ; In re Allen N. (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 513, 515, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 902] . This transfer of authority specifically prohibits the court from imposing probation terms and conditions on such minors once a CYA commitment is made [In re Allen N. (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 513, 515-516, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 902] .

[iii] Mandatory Parole Release

All wards committed to DJF must be placed on supervised parole within the period of 120 to 90 days prior to the date of their release from custody pursuant to discharge, or prior to the completion of their maximum period of confinement imposed pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 1766.2(a)]. This "mandatory parole release" does not apply when a petition for extended commitment pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 1800 has been requested by DJF or the Juvenile Parole Board [Welf. & Inst. Code § 1766.2(b)]. If parole is revoked pursuant to § 1766.2(a), any term of reconfinement is subject to the limits of Sections 731, 1769, 1770, or 1771 [Welf. & Inst. Code § 1766.2(c)].

[iv] Recall of Commitment

Effective September 1, 2007, the court committing a ward to the Division of Juvenile Facilities may, upon the recommendation of the chief probation officer of the county, recall the commitment if the committing offense is not one listed in Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(b) or a sex offense described in Penal Code § 290.008(c) [Welf. & Inst. Code § 731.1]. Upon recall of the ward, the court shall set and convene a recall disposition hearing for the purpose of ordering an alternative disposition for the ward that is appropriate under all of the circumstances prevailing in the case. The specific details related to notice, timing, and procedure of the recall hearing, as well as transportation, delivery, and housing of the ward pending the hearing are set forth in Welf. & Inst. Code § 731.1 [see also In re Carl N. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 423, 436-437, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 823] .

The recall procedure established by Welf. & Inst. Code § 731.1 is the appropriate mechanism through which minors who have been committed to DJF, for offenses that would now prohibit such a commitment, may be recalled. Minors are not automatically entitled to new disposition hearing and the restrictions on commitments as specified under Welf. & Inst. Code § 731.1 and § 733 are not retroactive [In re Brandon G. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 1076, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 273 ; In re Carl N. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 423, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 823] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Probation Supervision of Recall Cases. When a minor is recalled from the Division of Juvenile Facilities pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 731.1, a question may arise as to the length of physical confinement time remaining in the case. This is especially important if the committing court established a time of commitment, pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 731, which represents a significant reduction from the previously established maximum time of confinement pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 726.

While it could be argued that in cases where minors are recalled pursuant to § 731.1 probation is essentially assuming the function previously reserved for DJF parole, in which case the maximum time established by Welf. & Inst. Code § 731 would correctly represent the remaining confinement time, this position in neither legally sound nor appropriate from a practical standpoint. The recall procedure clearly articulates the need for a new disposition hearing, suggesting that the minor is coming back to court in a position similar to that prior to the DJF commitment, and not as a DJF parolee. Further, a minor recalled from DJF is not paroled from the facility. Finally, restricting the court to disposition options based upon commitment time that assumed placement in DJF would deprive the court of the widest range of appropriate options assisting in the minor's rehabilitation and community safety. Therefore, it would appear that upon the completion of the disposition hearing held pursuant to § 731.1, the court should reestablish the appropriate maximum time of confinement pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 726, which may of course take into account the entirety of the minor's conduct and custody credits.

[f] Authority to Stay or Suspend Youth Authority State Commitment

There is a split of authority on whether the juvenile court may impose a "stayed" or "suspended" Youth Authority commitment. Some appellate courts have held or implied that a stayed or suspended sentence is unauthorized in juvenile court [In re Babak S. (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 1077, 1084, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 893 ; In re Ronnie P. (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1079, 1086-1090, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 875] . Other appellate courts have held that the juvenile court may impose a stayed or suspended Youth Authority sentence, as long as it does not determine in advance that if a lesser alternative fails, a Youth Authority commitment will become the optimal disposition. Rather, if a particular disposition fails, the court on a supplemental petition, as discussed in § 329.90 et seq., must reassess the dispositional issues in light of then-prevailing circumstances [In re Domanic B. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 366, 371, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 439 ; In re Kazuo G. (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1, 5, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155] .

[g] Civil Commitment Under Welf. & Inst. Code § 1800

The juvenile Extended Detention Act (EDA) allows the state to extend the detention of a ward beyond the date the Division of Juvenile Facilities' (formerly the California Youth Authority) jurisdiction would normally expire when the ward is determined, beyond a reasonable doubt, to be physically dangerous to the public because of a mental or physical deficiency, disorder, or abnormality that causes the person to have serious difficulty controlling his or her behavior [Welf. & Inst. Code § 1801.5]. To initiate a commitment under the EDA, the Division of Juvenile Facilities (DJF) must request, and the prosecuting attorney may file, a petition requesting that the ward's detention be extended [Welf. & Inst. Code § 1800 (emphasis added)].

The petition must be filed at least 90 days before the time of discharge otherwise required [Welf. & Inst. Code § 1800]. If the court determines that the petition, on its face, supports a finding of probable cause that the discharge of the CYA ward would be physically dangerous to the public because of the ward's mental or physical deficiency, disorder, or abnormality, the court must order that a probable cause hearing be held. The probable cause hearing is an evidentiary hearing that must be held with ten calendar days of the court's probable cause finding, unless the ward waives time [Welf. & Inst. Code § 1801]. If the court finds there is not a sufficient probable cause showing, the petition is dismissed and discharge of the ward must occur within the time allowed by statute. Upon a finding of probable cause, the ward has a right to a trial by jury. The standard of proof at trial remains beyond a reasonable doubt [Welf. & Inst. Code § 1801.5].

In any case where the Division of Juvenile Facilities has not made a request of the prosecuting attorney for an extension of commitment pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 1800, the Youth Authority Board may request the Director of the Youth Authority to review the matter. If the mental health professional designated by the Director to review the case disagrees that the Authority's control over the ward should be extended, the Board may a request may be made of the prosecutor to petition the court for an order directing that the ward remain subject to the control of the Youth Authority institution [Welf. & Inst. Code § 1800.5].

Welf. & Inst. Code § 1801.5 unambiguously affords all federal and state constitutional rights to juveniles facing an extended commitment pursuant to § 1800 that apply to adult criminal proceedings [Joshua D. v. Superior Court (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 549, 556, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 715] . Specifically, the right of a defendant not to be called as a witness, and the mandatory jury instruction advising that no adverse inference may be drawn from the exercise of that right, are as applicable to the civil commitments as they are to adult criminal trials. It should be noted that, for all of their similarities, the two jury proceedings are not identical and perceptions as to their differences, particularly related to standard of "dangerousness," may make made § 1800 commitments vulnerable to constitutional challenge on due process grounds [In re Luis C. (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 1399-1403 , 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 429] . Nonetheless, the EDA has repeatedly been found to have a demonstrably civil purpose and that confinement, in furtherance of that purpose, is imposed only for treatment [In re Brian J. (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 97, 135, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 246 ; In re Gary W. (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 296, 301, 96 Cal. Rptr. 1]. To that end, if a person confined under the EDA does not receive treatment, they may seek relief through habeas corpus procedures [In re Gary W. (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 296, 303, 96 Cal. Rptr. 1, 486 P.2d 1201].

The California Supreme Court addressed the extended detention scheme and determined that it was constitutional through an interpretation that requires not only that a person is physically dangerous to the public because of his or her mental deficiency, disorder, or abnormality, but also that the mental deficiency, disorder, or abnormality causes serious difficulty controlling his or her dangerous behavior [In re Howard N. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 117, 135, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 866] . The Howard N. court further held that these requirements be alleged in the petition for extended commitment, demonstrated at the probable cause hearing, and provided at any ensuing trial [In re Howard N. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 117, 135, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 866, 106 P.2d 305 ; In re Michael H. (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 1074, 1091, 27 Cal. Rptr. 627].

The required finding that a ward's mental deficiency, disorder, or abnormality causes him or her to have serious difficulty controlling his or her behavior has since been codified in an amended statutory scheme for extended commitment petitions [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 1800, 1800.5, 1801, 1801.5]. This current version of the EDA, amended in light of Howard N., has been found to be constitutional by the California Supreme Court [In re Lemanuel C. (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 33, 43-49, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 597]. Moreover, recent appellate court interpretation of the section, implying that the EDA has an added requirement that an individual's difficulty in controlling their dangerous behavior must result in a serious and well-founded risk of reoffense, is incorrect. The "serious and well-founded risk of reoffense" language, which is found in some cases discussing the adult civil commitment statutes for sexually violent predators and reflected in CALCRIM No. 3454, is not a required finding for an extended commitment [In re Lemanuel C. (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 33, 46 , disapproving In re Michael H. (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 1074, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 627].

When an extended commitment order resulting from a trial held pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 1801.5 is reversed on appeal for failure of proof, retrial is barred by Welf. & Inst. Code § 1803. If the principles of double jeopardy were not applicable under these circumstances, the state could theoretically keep a person confined indefinitely without ever proving that the defendant is unable to control their dangerousness [In re Anthony C. (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 1493, 1517, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 370] .

A person committed under Welf. & Inst. Code § 1800 is not subject to release on parole by the Division of Juvenile Parole (DJP). However, DJP is authorized to conditionally release an individual during the extended commitment period pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 1766 [In re Donald Schmidt (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 694, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 477] .

[h] Remand by Adult Court for Diagnostic Evaluation

If the minor is eligible for a Youth Authority commitment to the Division of Juvenile Facilities, the court may remand the minor to the custody of the Youth Authority institution for a period of up to 90 days for an evaluation and report concerning his or her amenability to the training and treatment offered by the Youth Authority. If, after considering the recommendation of the probation department, the adult court decides not to remand for a report and evaluation of the minor's amenability to the Youth Authority DJF, specific findings must be made. However, a remand to the Youth Authority institution for an evaluation and report regarding amenability to their treatment and training is mandatory prior to imposing a prison sentence for any minor who was under the age of 16 when he or she committed the offense [Welf. & Inst. Code § 707.2].

[i] Transfer to the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation

Any person over the age of 18 who is scheduled to be returned, or has been returned, from the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation (CDCR) after serving a sentence imposed for committing a felony while in the custody of the Youth Authority Division of Juvenile Facilities may be transferred back to CDCR, if that person consents in writing to the transfer. This applies specifically to those offenders who remain under the jurisdiction of the Youth Authority DJF after they have served a CDCR sentence for offenses committed after their 18th birthday [Welf. & Inst. Code § 1732.8].

[7] Commitment to Facility for Emotionally Disturbed

If a minor between the ages of 12 and 18 is determined to be seriously emotionally disturbed, has been adjudged a ward of the court pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 602, and has been placed on probation under the supervision of a probation officer, he or she may alternatively be placed in a regional facility for the emotional disturbed [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5696(a); see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 5695-5697.5; see also Welf. & Inst. Code § 727 (probation)]. To be eligible, the minor should be found to be so seriously emotionally disturbed that he or she is a danger to the community or himself or herself, has severe and frequent symptoms, and has persistent inappropriate behavior [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5696(b)].

No minor will be eligible for placement in a regional facility if he or she has aprimary substance abuse problem, a primary developmental disability, requires an acute psychiatric hospital setting, can benefit from or requires a level of treatment or confinement not provided at the facility, suffers from a medical condition requiring ongoing nursing and medical care beyond the level that the program can provide, or is under conservatorship [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5696.2]. In any event, no minor may be committed to the facility for more than 18 months [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5695.2].

[8] County Jail

There is significant disagreement as to whether a juvenile court may commit a ward to county jail, or house them in county jail pursuant to a juvenile hall commitment. Some jurisdictions have held that such commitments are strictly prohibited as they are not authorized as a dispositional option pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 202(e). This prohibition has been held to be specifically applicable to wards who have reached the age of 18 years prior to the disposition

Recent case law has disagreed with this reasoning by finding that Welf. & Inst. Code § 727 authorizes housing certain wards in juvenile hall and then transferring them to county jail upon the recommendation of the probation officer. Specifically, by authorizing the court to punish a delinquent minor "subject to further order of the court" and to make appropriate orders pursuant to section 727 "for the period permitted by Section 607" (§ 726), i.e., until the ward "attains the age of 21 years" or, in some cases, "until that person attains the age of 25 years if the person was committed to the Department of the Youth Authority" (§ 607, subds. (a) & (b)), the Legislature has expressed an intention to authorize a juvenile court to impose a new order of punishment when a ward who has become an adult violates a condition of probation [In re Charles G. (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 608, 615, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 503] .

While the court in Charles G. was dealing with a 20-year-old ward and, as such, relied upon Welf. & Inst. Code § 208.5 which specifically mandates the transfer of wards 19 and older to the custody of the sheriff, upon the recommendation of the probation officer, for the remainder of the time they remain in custody, the application of the court's reasoning would seem to apply to 18-year-olds as well [Id. at pp. 613-614]. At a minimum, by disagreeing with the Sixth Appellate District decisions in Jose H. and Kenny A., the Third Appellate District has created a bright line division on the issue of housing juvenile wards in county jail once they have attained the age of 19.

At this time, it appears well settled that the statutes do not allow the court to commit an 18-year-old ward directly to county jail. Detention in county jail is appropriate only until disposition, and the ability of the court to order pre-disposition detention in the facility does not expand the range of disposition alternatives set forth in Welf. & Inst. Code § 202. However, the proper procedure for detention in county jail must begin with an initial placement in a juvenile facility, after which probation may seek an order to allow for housing in county jail pending disposition [In re Ramon M. (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 665, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 158] .

[1] In General

When the minor is removed from the physical custody of his parent or guardian as the result of an order of wardship made pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 602 (criminal violations), the disposition order must specify the maximum period of confinement determined in accordance with Welf. & Inst. Code § 726 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.795(b)]. "Maximum term of imprisonment" is calculated by using the upper term for both the substantive offense and any enhancement that has been found true [In re George M. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 376, 381-382, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29] . Penal Code § 12022.1, which increases the period of imprisonment for a felony committed while an adult offender is free on bail or his or her own recognizance (O.R.) applies to extend the maximum period of "physical confinement" of a juvenile ward [In re Jovan B. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 801, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 428, 863 P.2d 673 ("maximum term of imprisonment" under Welf. & Inst. Code § 726 incorporates the determinate sentencing law for adult offenders, including Penal Code § 12022.1; minor's pretrial "house arrest" release is functional equivalent of O.R. release in adult proceeding)]. Full, consecutive terms also are included in the calculation, if they would be applicable to an adult offense [In re Prentiss C. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1484, 1488, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 541 (court properly considered full, consecutive terms for sex crimes under Penal Code § 667.6, as is done in adult cases)]. Penal Code § 12022.1, which increases the period of imprisonment for a felony committed while an adult offender is free on bail or his or her own recognizance (O.R.) may be applied to extend the maximum period of "physical confinement" of a juvenile ward [In re Jovan B. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 801, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 428, 863 P.2d 673] .

Welf. & Inst. Code § 726 specifically defines "physical confinement" as excluding time not spent in a secure facility [In re Lorenzo L. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1076, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 150] . Consequently, time spent in a nonsecure institution under Welf. & Inst. Code § 727, such as a private institutional placement or group home, is not to be counted in determining how long a minor has been or may be held in physical confinement [In re Randy J. (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1497, 1506, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 152 ; In re Harm R. (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 438, 441-442, 152 Cal. Rptr. 167] .

Similarly, time spent on "house arrest" or electronic monitoring does not entitle a minor to receive custody credits for the purposes of calculating maximum time of confinement [In re Lorenzo L. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1076, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 150] .

Because minors and adults are not similarly situated with respect to their interest in liberty, and because minors adjudged wards of the juvenile courts and committed to the Youth Authority and adults convicted in criminal court and sentenced to prison are not confined for the same purposes, Welf. & Inst. Code § 726 does not deny minors equal protection of the law by providing that the maximum term of confinement for a juvenile is the longest term that could be imposed imposable on an adult for the same offense, without the necessity of finding circumstances in aggravation of the crime justifying imposition of the upper term as is required in adult criminal procedure [In re J. (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 522, 532-533, 159 Cal. Rptr. 317, 601 P.2d 549] .

To carry out the mandate of Welf. & Inst. Code § 726(c) that a juvenile not be held in physical confinement for a period in excess of the maximum term of imprisonment that could be imposed on an adult convicted of the same offenses, a minor is entitled to pre-commitment credit for time spent in juvenile hall pending resolution of the charges against him or her [In re J. (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 522, 536, 159 Cal. Rptr. 317, 601 P.2d 549] .

This time is legally distinguishable from "presentence custody credit time," which adult offenders are entitled to, inasmuch as they are not "sentenced" [In re Pedro M. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 550, 556, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 839] . For this reason, Penal Code§ 1237.1 does not apply to juvenile proceedings [In re Antwon R. (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 348, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 473] .

Welf. & Inst. Code § 726 incorporates the limitations of Penal Code § 1170.1(a) regarding subordinate terms, but not those of Penal Code § 1170.1(g) limiting confinement to a double-base term. Thus, the maximum term for a juvenile may exceed a double-base term [In re Luis H. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 546, 549-550, 231 Cal. Rptr. 722] . In order to calculate the maximum term, the court may proceed under a supplemental 602 petition and consider prior offenses to aggregate time under Welf. & Inst. Code § 726 provided that there is adequate notice of the intention to do so and the minor is given a meaningful opportunity to rebut any derogatory material within his or her prior record [In re Adrian R. (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 448, 454, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 173 ; In re Edwardo L. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 470, 478, 265 Cal. Rptr. 188] . When aggregating multiple counts and previously sustained petitions, the maximum confinement term is calculated by adding the upper term for the principal offense, plus one third of the middle term for each of the remaining subordinate felonies or misdemeanors [In re J. (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 522, 535-538, 159 Cal. Rptr. 317, 601 P.2d 549 ; In re Deborah C. (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 125, 140, 177 Cal. Rptr. 852] .

When the court elects to aggregate the period of physical confinement on multiple petitions, including previously sustained petitions, it may choose to aggregate time on only some, as opposed to all, of those petitions. This may be an option when a minor has exhausted all of their available confinement time on one or more or the previously sustained petitions [In re Bryant R., Jr. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1230, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 734] . However, once the maximum time of confinement has been determined on a particular petition, subsequent redeterminations of time on that petition are prohibited [In re David H. (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 1131, 1135-1137, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 330] .

Although a court must exercise its discretion in confining a juvenile for consecutive terms, it need not state its reasons for exercising that discretion [In re Jesse F. (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 164, 168-170, 186 Cal. Rptr. 841] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Determination of Maximum Time of Confinement. In the event that a party believes that the previously imposed maximum time of confinement was calculated incorrectly, the appropriate remedy appears to come by way of modification pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 775 This should be done through a formal notice of an application for modification under this section setting forth the basis for the recalculation.

Welf. & Inst. Code § 726(c) provides that if a minor is removed from the physical custody of his or her parent or guardian as the result of an order of wardship made pursuant to section 602, the order shall specify that the minor may not be held in physical confinement for a period in excess of the maximum term of imprisonment which could be imposed upon an adult convicted of the offense or offenses which brought or continued the minor under the jurisdiction of the juvenile court. This section deals with the maximum term of confinement generally, and is applicable to placement in a juvenile hall, ranch, camp, forestry camp, or secure juvenile home pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 730, or in any institution operated by the Division of Juvenile Facilities. Maximum terms specified under this section do not determine the duration of the commitment as much as they place a limit on their potential duration [In re Ali A. (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 569, 573, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 846] .

Welf. & Inst. Code § 731(b) is applicable only to minors committed to the Division of Juvenile Facilities and vests the juvenile court with discretion to commit a minor to DJF for a term less than the maximum term to which an adult offender could be sentenced, based upon the facts and circumstances of the case [In re Geneva C. (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 754, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 264] .

In the context of calculating maximum time pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 731(b), it has been noted that the juvenile court operates under an indeterminate disposition scheme that is not limited to the options available under the adult criminal sentencing triad set forth in Penal Code § 1170. Therefore, at least pursuant to DJF commitment, the court may impose any maximum time of confinement within the range of statutory options available for the offense committed [In re H.D. (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 768, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 627 ; In re R.O. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1493, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 738] .

Neither § 726(c) nor § 731(b) is applicable when a minor is not removed from the physical custody of his or her parents, including instances in which the minor is subject to probation supervision [In re Ali A. (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 569, 573, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 846] . Historically, courts have ignored the fact that there is no authority for setting "max time" in all cases, regardless of the non-custodial nature of the disposition, despite repeated warnings of appellate courts to correct the practice. As a result, a recent published opinion ordered the modification of a dispositional order to strike the max time calculation where the minor was placed home on probation [In re Matthew A. (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 537, 541, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 119] .

[3] No Oral Pronouncement Required

While California Rule of Court Rule 5.795(b) requires that the court "specify and note in the minutes the maximum period of confinement under [Welf. & Inst. Code] section 726," it does not require an explicit declaration of that finding. This distinction is not a trivial one. The California Supreme Court has determined that such an oral pronouncement is required when finding an offense to be a felony or misdemeanor, as the language of Welf. & Inst. Code § 702 and Rule of Court Rule 5.795(a) requires that the court "expressly declare on the record that it has made such consideration and must state its determination ..." [In re Manzy W. (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1199, 1204, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 889] . Neither Welf. & Inst. Code § 726 nor Rule 5.795(b) has such a requirement.

§ 329.98 Detention Prior to Disposition

Whenever a person has been adjudged a ward of the juvenile court, the court may order the ward detained in the detention home or, in the case of a ward of 18 years of age or more, in the county jail or otherwise, as the court deems fit, until the execution of the order of commitment or other disposition [Welf. & Inst. Code § 737(a)].

In any case in which a minor is detained for more than 15 days pending the execution of the order of commitment or any other disposition, the court must periodically review the case to determine whether the delay is reasonable. The periodic review must be held every 15 days, commencing from the time the minor was initially detained. During the course of each review, the court will inquire regarding the action taken by the probation department to carry out its order, the reasons for the delay andthe effect of the delay on the minor [Welf. & Inst. Code § 737(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.790(h)].

§ 329.99 Determination Regarding Degree of Offense

Unless determined previously, the court is required to find, and note in the minutes, the degree of the offense committed by the child, and whether it would be a felony or a misdemeanor had it been committed by an adult [Welf. & Inst. Code § 702; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.795(a)]. The requirement that the court make a finding of the degree of the offense can be satisfied by use of a descriptive label as well as by a numerical degree [In re Andrew I. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 572, 580-581, 281 Cal. Rptr. 570 (court designated degree of offense with statement that offense was "residential burglary"); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.780(e)(5)].

The juvenile court is permitted to fix the degree of an offense at the disposition hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.780(e)(5)]. This allows the court to take all the dispositional information into account when setting the degree of the crime and to exercise leniency by declaring the offense to be of the lesser degree, despite the fact that the circumstances of the offense alone might justify sustaining the petition for a higher degree [In re Dorothy B. (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 509, 520-521, 227 Cal. Rptr. 472 (construing former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1355; now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.780); see also In re Raymond M. (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1508, 1513, 279 Cal. Rptr. 566 (remand for determination of degree of offense when record did not reflect court's recognition or exercise of its discretion to grant leniency in fixing degree); but see In re Manzy W. (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1199, 1209, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 889, 930 P.2d 1255 (no need to automatically remand where the record as a whole establishes that the juvenile court was aware of its discretion to treat the offense as a misdemeanor when the minor admitted the offense as a felony and the court accepted the admission as a felony)]. Nevertheless, the juvenile court lacks authority to reduce the degree when evidence establishes that the offense could only be one of the higher degree [In re Andrew I. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 572, 582-583, 281 Cal. Rptr. 570] .

Even a felony offense is reduced to a misdemeanor for all purposes at the time that a minor is honorably discharged from the Youth Authority [see Penal Code § 17(c)]. Penal Code § 667(d)(1) appears to provide that an adult felony conviction is considered a felony thereafter, for "strike" purposes, despite a subsequent disposition, unless it was reduced to a misdemeanor at the time of sentencing.

[1] In General

Since a juvenile court proceeding is not a criminal proceeding, generally, an order adjudging a minor to be a ward of the court will not be considered a criminal conviction in subsequent adult criminal proceedings [Welf. & Inst. Code § 203]. Historically, juvenile adjudications have not been considered convictions for any purpose. For this reason, Cal. Const., art. I, § 28(f), which provides that a prior felony conviction of any person in any criminal proceeding, whether adult or juvenile, may be used without limitation for impeachment or sentence enhancement purposes in any subsequent criminal proceeding, has been construed narrowly to only apply to convictions of juveniles in adult criminal courts after finding that the juvenile was unfit for treatment in juvenile court [People v. West (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 100, 106-110, 201 Cal. Rptr. 63 ; In re Anthony R. (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 772, 774-778, 201 Cal. Rptr. 299] . However, the voters approval of Proposition 184 in November of 1994 put into effect Penal Code § 1170.12, which provides that the juvenile adjudication of a minor who was 16 years or older at the time he or she committed a felony offense listed in Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(b) on June 30, 1993, may constitute a prior serious or violent felony conviction for the purpose of enhanced sentencing for a subsequent felony conviction under the "Three Strikes You're Out" legislation [Penal Code § 1170.12 replaced Penal Code § 667 (effective March 7, 1994); see Ch. 328, Juvenile Courts: Dependency Proceedings, §§ 328.116, 328.122; see also Erwin, Millman, Monroe, Sevilla, Tarlow, California Criminal Defense Practice, Ch. 91 (Matthew Bender)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Plea Bargains. Since the enactment of the "Three Strikes Law" attorneys must be much more careful in arriving at plea bargains in juvenile court. Admissions to offenses that could later be used as a "strike" should be avoided if at all possible. If the offense is a wobbler, the attorney should request that the court set the level at a misdemeanor at disposition.

[2] Subsequent Use and Disclosure

In addition to the consequences of particular juvenile adjudications under the "three strikes" law, a court must consider a minor's arrest history for the purpose of determining whether prior adjudications warrant a finding that there are circumstances in aggravation pursuant to Pen. Code § 1170 or to deny probation. However, this information does not apply to juvenile records that have been sealed [Welf. & Inst. Code § 828(a); see also discussion in § 329.123]. Also, the name of any minor who is 14 years of age or older may be disclosed to the public once there is a finding that the minor has been declared a ward as the result of a sustained petition for the commission of an offense listed in Pen. Code § 667.5 or Pen. Code § 1192.7-1192.7(c) [Welf. & Inst. Code § 204.5].

§ 329.110 Proceedings to Modify or Set Aside Order

[1] Availability

Any order made by the court may at any time be changed, modified, or set aside, as the judge deems just and proper [Welf. & Inst. Code § 775].

[2] Application for Modification of Order Under Welf. & Inst. Code § 778

[a] In General

Any parent or other person having an interest in a child who is a ward of the juvenile court or the child himself or herself through a properly appointed guardian may, on ground of change of circumstance or new evidence, petition the court in the same action in which the child was found to be a ward for a hearing to change, modify, or set aside any order of the court previously made or to terminate the jurisdiction of the court. The petition must be verified and, if made by a person other than the child, must state the petitioner's relationship to or interest in the child. The petition must also set forth in concise language any change of circumstance or new evidence that is alleged to require the change of order or termination of jurisdiction [Welf. & Inst. Code § 778; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 5.560(d), 5.570(a); see also form set out in Ch. 328, Juvenile Courts: Dependency Proceedings, § 328.370].

[b] Modification of Prior Placement Orders

A violation of probation, pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 777 is the exclusive statutory mechanism for a juvenile court to modify a prior placement order by committing a ward of the court to the Division of Juvenile Facilities. Where the previous order removes a minor from the physical custody of the parents, but does not place the child with a guardian, relative, or friend, Welf. & Inst. Code § 778 can be used to change or modify the order to a more restrictive placement, as long as it is not a commitment to DJF [In re Brent F. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1124, 1130 n.3, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d

[3] Notice of Hearing

If it appears that the best interests of the child may be promoted by the proposed change or termination of jurisdiction, the court will order a hearing to be held and will give prior notice to the interested parties [Welf. & Inst. Code § 778; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.570(c), (d)].

[4] Motion to Modify or Terminate Jurisdiction of Court Upon Finding of Unfitness

If a minor is found unfit to be dealt with under the juvenile court law in a subsequent proceeding, any parent or other person having an interest in the minor, the probation officer, prosecuting attorney or the minor through a properly appointed guardian may petition the court to terminate or modify the jurisdiction of the court as to any wardship that did not result in a Youth Authority commitment. The petition must be verified and state why jurisdiction shall be terminated or modified. The court shall order that a hearing be held and that notice be given [Welf. & Inst. Code § 785].

[1] Historical Background

Juvenile probation transgressions have traditionally fallen into two categories: In probation violations pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 777(e) and probation failures pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 777(a). The probation violation procedure did not require the filing of a supplemental petition and was proved by a showing that a minor failed one or more conditions of probation. As the result of a violation, the court could impose up to 30 days confinement time which had been previously stayed.

A probation failure pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 777(a) required the filing of a supplemental petition with the court and a formal hearing. Hearsay was inadmissible and the standard of proof was beyond a reasonable doubt [In re Arthur N. (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 226, 127 Cal. Rptr. 641, 545 P.2d 1345] . To sustain a supplemental petition under this section, the court had to conclude that the previous level of disposition had not been effective in the rehabilitation of the minor. If such finding was made, the court could impose a more restrictive level of placement.

Effective March 8, 2000, there is no distinction between failures and violations of probation, supplemental petitions no longer exist and reliable hearsay evidence is admissible. The burden of proof necessary to make a finding upon the alleged facts is a preponderance of the evidence. The provisions of Welf. & Inst. Code § 777(b) and (e) have been deleted.

[2] Probation Violations

Notice of a hearing is made by the probation officer if wardship or probation status is the result of a Welf. & Inst. Code § 601 petition [Welf. & Inst. Code § 777(a)(1)] or by the probation officer or prosecutor if wardship or probation status is the result of a Welf. & Inst. Code § 602 petition [Welf. & Inst. Code § 777(a)(2)].

The notice must contain a concise statement of facts sufficient to support the conclusion that an order of the court [Welf. & Inst. Code § 777(a)(1) or that a condition of probation [Welf. & Inst. Code § 777(a)(2)] had been violated.

Upon filing such notice the matter must be set for a hearing within 30 days, with service to be made by the probation officer in the manner prescribed by Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 658 and 660 [Welf. & Inst. Code § 777(b)].

The facts alleged in the notice are established by a preponderance of the evidence at a hearing to change, modify, or set aside a previous order. Reliable hearsay evidence is admissible at the hearing to the same extent that it is admissible in an adult probation revocation hearing [Welf. & Inst. Code § 777(c)]. Testimonial evidence presented through hearsay is only admissible after the court takes into account a number of factors including the unavailability of the declarant under Evidence Code § 240, the degree of difficulty or expense in securing the declarant to testify at the hearing, whether there existed any risk of physical or emotional harm to the witness if required to appear, and the significance of the particular evidence to the court's determination [People v. Arreola (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1144, 875 P.2d 736] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Conduct Not Amounting to a Crime. Notwithstanding the language of Welf. & Inst. Code § 777(a)(2) that an alleged probation violation describe conduct "not amounting to a crime," violations may describe any misconduct, criminal or noncriminal, so long as it is alleged only as a probation violation and not as a newjuvenile crime [In re Eddie M. (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 480, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 119 ; In re Emiliano M. (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 510, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 140] . The contrary result, reached in In re Marcus A. (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 423, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 919 , has been disapproved [In re Eddie M. (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 480, 502, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 119] . Consequently, certain conduct which may be subject of a 602 petition may be alleged in a 777 violation, if the prosecutor elects to proceed in that manner. While it may seem advantageous to have a minor subject to a 777 violation, as opposed to a 602 petition, this may not always be the case. Given the reduced burden of proof and more lenient evidentiary requirements which accompany a probation violation hearing, a minor's opportunity to prevail in a contested matter is significantly better when the conduct in question is alleged in a 602 petition. Moreover, the decisions in Eddie M. and Emiliano M. will have significant impact on individuals over 18 years of age who are still on juvenile probation. Such individuals may now have certain misdemeanor conduct, which would otherwise have little consequence in adult court, alleged in a 777 petition with a far more severe disposition imposed.

If established, a violation of probation may result in the court placing a child in a more restrictive placement [Welf. & Inst. Code § 777]. While Welf. & Inst. Code § 777 does not by itself authorize the imposition of fines, the language of the statute providing for modification of prior orders has been interpreted as authorizing the court to levy additional fines where the original disposition included a fine [In re Brian K. (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 39, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 580] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Admissible Hearsay. Notwithstanding the changes in admissible evidence in post-Proposition 21 Welf. & Inst. Code § 777 hearings, it appears that most hearsay evidence is still inadmissible in such hearings. Nonetheless, documents such as laboratory reports, invoices, receipts and school attendance records seem to fall within the scope of admissible hearsay while "hearsay which takes the place of live testimony" is inadmissible [In re Kentron D. (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 1381, 1389, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 260] . In addition, the exception for witnesses who are unavailable, at risk of harm, or unable to testify without significant difficulty or expense while not well defined, would appear to apply to witnesses from out of state placements or group homes who would have to be brought in to prove a probation violation at such a facility. In most other cases it appears that "live testimony" is till required for probation violation hearings.

The changes in Welf. & Inst. Code § 777 created by Proposition 21 eased the admissibility of certain evidence and lessened the burden of proof necessary to establish a violation of probation, and escalate the dispositional consequences, against a minor. The changes effect the conduct of § 777 proceedings commencing after the passage of Proposition 21 and not the proceedings, including the original wardship proceedings, which may have occurred prior to March 8, 2000. Thus considered, the California Supreme Court has rejected claims that the changes violate the Ex Post Facto Clause of the United States and California Constitutions, where wardship is established on a minor before, but a violation of probation occurs after, the passage of Proposition 21 [John L. v. Superior Court (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 158, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 261] .

Effective September 29, 2007, the court is authorized, upon the recommendation of the chief probation officer of the county, to recall the commitment of a ward to the Division of Juvenile Facilities (DJF) if the commitment was not for an offense specified in Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(b) or Penal Code § 290.008(c), formerly § 290(d)(3). After recalling the ward, the court must hold a recall disposition hearing and order an alternative disposition for the ward "that is appropriate under all of the circumstances prevailing in the case." When such a hearing is held, the court must provide notice to DJF at least 15 days prior to the hearing and the ward must be delivered to the committing county at least five days before the hearing [Welf. & Inst. Code § 731.1].

For all other wards, committing a ward to the DJF may thereafter change, modify, or set aside the order of commitment. Ten days notice of the hearing of the application for such an order must be served by mail on the Director of the DJF. In changing, modifying, or setting aside the order of commitment, the court must give due consideration to the effect thereof upon the discipline and parole system of the DJF or of the correctional school in which the ward may have been placed. However, this does not mean that the court may interfere with the parole and discharge system of the DJF, the management of any school, institution, or facility under the jurisdiction of the DJF, or the system of transfer between institutions and facilities under the jurisdiction of the DJF. On the other hand, the court is specifically authorized to change, modify, or set aside an order of commitment after a notice hearing and upon a showing of good cause that the DJF is unable to, or failing to, provide treatment consistent with Welf. & Inst. Code § 734 [Welf. & Inst. Code § 779].

Moreover, before any inmate of a correctional school may be transferred to a state hospital, the inmate must first be returned to a court of competent jurisdiction and, after hearing, may be committed to a state hospital for the insane [Welf. & Inst. Code § 779].

If any person who has been committed to the Department of Juvenile Facilities appears to be an improper person to be received by or retained in any institution or facility under the jurisdiction of the department or to be so incorrigible or so incapable of reformation under the discipline of any institution or facility under the jurisdiction of the department as to render his or her retention detrimental to the interests of the department, the Parole Board may return that person to the committing court. The return of the minor does not relieve the Department of Juvenile Facitlities of any of its duties of responsibilities under the original commitment; the commitment continues in full force and effect until it is vacated, modified, or set aside by order of the court [Welf. & Inst. Code § 780; see also Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 1737, 1737.1; People v. Arnold (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 88, 91, 253 Cal. Rptr. 468 (court must state reasonsfor denying probation when resentencing defendant who is rejected by Youth Authority)]. The judge may recall a commitment on the recommendation of the Director, or the Parole Board may order a recall [People v. Najera (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1507, 1514, 272 Cal. Rptr. 413] .

Effective March 8, 2000, certain wards have become subject to the provisions of Penal Code § 186.30 which requires registration with a local law enforcement agency, within 10 days from their release from custody, or arrival in their city and county of residence [Penal Code § 186.20(a)] when a petition has been sustained for any of the following offenses:

- Penal Code Section 186.22(a).
- Any crime where the enhancement specified in Penal Code Section 186.22(b) is found to be true.
- Any crime that the court finds is gang related at the time of sentencing or disposition [Penal Code § 186.30(b)].

It is important to note that the registration requirement is based upon the offense that is before the court as opposed to non-offense related factors that may portray the minor as gang involved. For minors that are gang-related but whose offenses do not fall within the description of Penal Code § 186.30(b), as shown by substantial evidence, registration is not appropriate. In those instances, the court may impose gang-related conditions during the minor's probation [In re Eduardo C. (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 937, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 924] . For the purpose of determining whether an offense is "gang-related," the gang must fall within the statutory definition of a criminal street gang as defined by Penal Code § 186.30(e) and (f).

While registration based upon a petition sustained for a violation of Penal Code § 186.22(a) or a true finding that an offense is enhanced by Penal Code § 186.22(b) is mandatory, a finding by the court that an offense is "gang-related" is discretionary. Nevertheless, exercising that discretion in order to compel a minor to register is difficult. As both the required findings that conduct is "gang-related" and that a group is a "criminal street gang" are tantamount to the elements required to enhance a crime pursuant to Penal Code § 186.22(b), it is difficult to distinguish between the mandatory and discretionary sections of Penal Code § 186.30 except as they relate to the presence of the gang charges in the petition [In re Jorge G. (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 931, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 193] .

Though the plain language of Penal Code § 186.22(a), (b) and (d) suggest that it is only applicable to adult proceedings in that the paragraphs speak in terms of convictions or do not refer to juvenile adjudications in any way, it has been held that they are each a creation of Proposition 21 and, as such, intended to apply to adult and juvenile conduct and proceedings [In re Damien V. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 16, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 107 ; In re Jose P. (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 458, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Proof of a "Criminal Street Gang." In order to prove the criminal street gang component of a gang charge or allegation, three elements must be established beyond a reasonable doubt: (1) that there be an ongoing association involving three or more participants, having a common name or common identifying sign or symbol; (2) that the group has as one of its "primary activities" the commission of one or more specified crimes; and (3) the group's members either separately or as a group have engaged in a pattern of criminal gang activity [People v. Vy (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1209, 1222, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 402]. This requires evidence that the group's members consistently and repeatedly committed criminal activity listed in the gang statute [People v. Sengpadychith (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 316, 324, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 851]. In juvenile court proceedings, the aforementioned elements are frequently presented through expert testimony with insufficient foundation as to the underlying criminal activity. To the extent that proof of such activity must be based upon reliable sources, such as court records of convictions, in order to sustain a petition or allegation pursuant to Penal Code § 186.22, it is also required before a court may order gang registration under Jorge G. [see also In re Alexander L. (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 605, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 226].

Any person who, on or after January 1, 1986, is discharged or paroled from the Division of Juvenile Facilities, to whose custody he or she was committed after having been adjudicated a ward of the court pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 602 because of the commission or attempted commission of the following offenses is subject to registration under the procedures set forth in Penal Code § 290.008; see In re Bernardino S. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 613, 620-621, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 746 (registration as sex offender is not discretionary probation condition for juveniles or adults, and therefore cannot be required in absence of statutory authority)]:

- Assault with intent to commit rape, sodomy, or oral copulation, or any violation of Penal Code § 264.1, 288, or 289 under Penal Code § 220.

- Any offense defined in Penal Code § 207(b), 208(d), 288, 286(b)(1), 286(c), 286(d), 288.5, 288a(b)(1), 288a(c), 288a(d), 261(a)(2), or 289(a).

- Any offense under Penal Code § 264.1 involving rape in concert with force or fear of bodily injury or penetration by any foreign object in concert with force or fear of bodily injury.

Any person who is discharged or paroled from the DJF following his or her commitment to its custody after having been adjudicated a ward of the court pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 602 because of the commission or attempted commission of the offense set forth in Penal Code § 647.6, occurring on or after January 1, 1988, is also subject to the registration procedures of Penal Code § 290.008 [Penal Code § 290.008(b)(2)].

Mandatory registration is tied to the offense for which the minor is adjudicated, not the conduct underlying the charge or characterized in dismissed charges [In re J.P. (2009) 170 Cal. app. 4th 1292, 1299, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 17] . Because discretionary sex offender registration does not apply to juvenile adjudications as it does to adult offenders, an order for registration based solely upon facts and circumstances of the conduct, as opposed to the offense sustained, is not lawful [In re Derrick B. (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 535, 537-540, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 13] .

Prior to discharge or parole from DJF, all persons subject to registration must be informed of the duty to register, and DJF officials must transmit the required forms andinformation to the Department of Justice [Penal Code § 290.017]. Any person required to register who violates any of the provisions of Penal Code § 290.008 is guilty of either a felony or a misdemeanor [Penal Code § 290.018]; if the person has a prior conviction for failing to register and subsequently and willfully commits that offense, the offense is punishable by 16 months, two years, or three years in state prison [Penal Code § 290.018].

PRACTICE TIP:

Registration Limitations. Registration of juveniles as sex offenders is limited to minors committed to the Division of Juvenile Facilities for offenses listed in Penal Code § 290(d)(3), an offense list that excludes all statutory references to terms "conviction" and "sentencing," which are used exclusively for adult offenders [In re Derrick B. (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 535, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 13] . Other registration requirements, applicable to adult offenders, are not applicable to juveniles without a commitment to DJF. This is the case with narcotic offender registration as described in Health & Safety Code §§ 11590(a) and 11594. Such registration is prohibited for juvenile offenders [In re Luisa Z. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 978, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 231] .

Moreover, the court has the discretion under Welf. & Inst. Code § 726(c) to commit a minor to the DJF solely on the current allegations, instead of aggregating all of the previously sustained petitions against him. The exercise of this discretion may well result in a commitment to the state institution without the sex offender registration requirement, even though the minor may have committed an offense which would otherwise require registration [In re Alex N. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 18, 22-23, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 172] . This discretion does not allow the court to disregard the minor's most recently sustained petition when deciding upon an appropriate disposition, including the mandatory registration requirements of Penal Code § 290.008 [In re G.C. (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 405, 411, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 523] .

§ 329.117 Notification to Schools

Juvenile court records are considered confidential, with access generally limited to individuals actively participating in criminal or juvenile proceedings involving the minor [Welf. & Inst. Code § 827(a)]. However, written notice that a minor, enrolled in a public school, has committed certain offenses is to be provided by the court to the superintendent of the school district of attendance within seven days of the jurisdictional finding. These offenses include any felony of misdemeanor involving curfew, gambling, alcohol, drugs, tobacco products, carrying of weapons, sex offenses listed in § 290 of the Penal Code, assault or battery, larceny, vandalism, and graffiti [Welf. & Inst. Code § 827(b)(2)].

The written notice given to the superintendent is to include only the offense committed and disposition of the case. This information is to be disseminated to the principal at the school attended by the minor, to counselors directly supervising or reporting on the behavior or progress of the minor, and to certain teachers and administrators [Welf. & Inst. Code § 827(b)(2)]. All information transmitted as a result of this section shall be destroyed when the minor graduates from high school, is released from juvenile court jurisdiction, or reaches the age of 18, whichever occurs first [Welf. & Inst. Code § 827(d)].

§ 329.118 Notification of Law Enforcement

When a minor has been found to have committed a felony pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 602, written notice is to be provided within seven days by the court to the sheriff of the county in which the offense was committed and to the sheriff of the county in which the minor resides. This notice is limited to information regarding the felony offense found to have been committed, the case disposition, and subsequent dispositional modifications. A sheriff receiving this notice may disseminate the information to law enforcement personnel upon request when it is relevant to the prevention or control of juvenile crime [Welf. & Inst. Code § 827.1].

In the written notice provided in this section, a court may authorize a sheriff who receives information to disclose the information where disclosure is imperative for the protection of the public and the offense is a violent felony as defined in Penal Code § 667.5(c) [Welf. & Inst. Code § 827.7].

When a minor has been adjudged a ward of the court for felony offense, the juvenile court is required to report the complete criminal history of the minor to the Department of Justice. The information is to be retained and made available in the same manner as information gathered pursuant to Penal Code §§ 13100-13326 [Welf. & Inst. Code § 602.5].

§ 329.119 Notification to Victims

The Chief Deputy Secretary for Juvenile Justice must release information regarding offenders committed to DJF for offenses listed in Welf. & Inst. Code § 676(a) and Penal Code §§ 273.5, 288, and 646.9, 273.5, 288, and 646.9 to victims upon request [Welf. & Inst. Code § 1764.2]. The information to be released includes the offender's name, age, offense, confinement location, scheduled release date, parole date, and circumstances of any escape [Welf. & Inst. Code § 1764]. For minors committed to DJF for the offenses listed above, the Chief Deputy Secretary must also inform victims of their right to request and receive 30 day advance written notice of parole hearings [*Welf. & Inst. § 329.120 Sealing Juvenile Court Records

[1] In General

Under certain circumstances, the court may be petitioned to seal the juvenile court record of a minor. Such action may be taken in the following cases [Welf. & Inst. Code § 781(a)]:

- In any case in which a petition has been filed with a juvenile court to commence proceedings to adjudge a person a ward of the court.

- In any case in which a person is cited to appear before a probation officer or is taken before a probation officer by a peace officer.

- In any case in which a minor is taken before any officer of a law enforcement agency.

Five years later or at any time after the person reaches the age of 18, the person or the probation officer may petition the court to seal the records, including records of arrest, relating to the person's case, in the custody of the juvenile court and probation officer and any other agencies, including law enforcement agencies and public officials as petitioner alleges to have custody of the records [Welf. & Inst. Code § 781(a)]. Determinations under Welf. & Inst. Code § 781 with respect to former wards of the court must be made by the court in the county in which wardship was last terminated [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.830(a)].

An application for a petition to seal records filed by a former ward of the court must be submitted to the probation department in the county in which wardship was last terminated. If the probation officer determines that the former ward is eligible to petition for sealing, he or she will prepare and file the petition, conduct an investigation pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 781, prepare a report for the court, set the matter for hearing, and notify the prosecuting attorney of the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.830(a)(1), (2)]. If the applicant is not a former ward, the application may be submitted to the probation department in any county in which there is a juvenile record concerning the petitioner, and the probation officer will follow the same procedures as described above for an application filed by a former ward [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.830(b)].

The court will review the petition and the probation officer's report, and an order will be issued if the court is satisfied that the minor has not been convicted of a felony or of any misdemeanor involving moral turpitude and that rehabilitation has been attained.

The court must also find that there is no civil litigation currently pending that directly relates to or arises from the offense that caused the records to be created. In any case in which a ward of the juvenile court is subject to the registration requirements for certain sex offenders set forth in Penal Code § 290.008, the court must also provide in the order that the person is relieved from the registration requirement and for the destruction of all registration information in the custody of the Department of Justice and other agencies and officials [Welf. & Inst. Code § 781(a)].

After the order is issued, the person who is the subject of the records sealed may petition the superior court to permit inspection of the records by persons named in the petition, and the superior court may so order. Otherwise, except as provided in Welf. & Inst. Code § 781(b) for defamation actions, the records are not open to inspection [Welf. & Inst. Code § 781(a)]. The order applies in the county of the court hearing the petition and in all other counties in which there are juvenile records concerning the petitioner [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.830(d)]. These provisions do not apply to Department of Motor Vehicle records of any convictions or offenses under the Vehicle Code [Welf. & Inst. Code § 781(c)]. A court must not seal records in any case in which a person was found to have committed an offense listed in Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(b), (d), or (e), until at least three years have elapsed since the commission of that offense [Welf. & Inst. Code § 781(a)].

When the person who is the subject of juvenile court records sealed pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 781(a) reaches the age of 38, the court must order the destruction of the sealed juvenile court record unless, for good cause, the court determines that the juvenile court record must be retained. Any other agency in possession of sealed records may destroy its records five years after the record was ordered sealed [Welf. & Inst. Code § 781(d)].

Records lawfully sealed pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 781 by a court order, upon a probation officer's recommendation may not be disclosed to a third party unless the "defamation" exception under subdivision (b) or the "insurance eligibility" exception under subdivision (c) applies. This includes prohibiting the release of records to the Board of Parole Hearings for use in proceedings to declare an individual a sexually violent predator under Welf. & Inst. Code § 6600 et seq. [In re James H. (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 1078].

In any case where a minor has been found to have committed an offense described in Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(b) when he or she was 14 years of age or older, the court shall not seal the juvenile record [Welf. & Inst. Code § 781(a)]. This prohibition applies to all minors described in Welf. & Inst. Code section 781(a), even if the Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(b) offense was sustained prior to the date that the law went into effect [Proposition 21, effective March 8, 2000]. The retroactive application of the statute has been determined not to be in violation of the constitutional prohibition against ex post facto laws because it is not punitive in nature [People v. Superior Court (Manuel G.) (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 915, 927-933, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 794] .

The purpose of this prohibition is to eliminate confidentiality in some juvenile court proceedings in order to hold offenders more accountable for their actions. Consequently, the fact that such an offender may have been rehabilitated at any time after the petition was sustained is of no consequence when considering the prohibition against record sealing [In re Jeffrey T. (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 1015, 1018-1021, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 861] .

In the event that a trial court improperly orders the sealing of a record in violation of Welf. & Inst. Code § 781(a) such an order is not appealable under Welf. & Inst. Code § 800(b)(2) but may be challenged pursuant to a petition for writ of mandate [People v. Superior Court (Manuel G.) (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 915, 922-926, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 794] .

A judge of the juvenile court may dismiss the petition or set aside the findings and dismiss the petition at any time before the minor reaches the age of 21. Such action may be taken if the court finds that the interests of justice and the welfare of the minor require the dismissal, or if it finds that the minor is not in need of treatment or rehabilitation. The court has jurisdiction to order the dismissal or setting aside of the findings regardless of whether or not the minor is, at the time of the order, a ward of the court [Welf. & Inst. Code § 782].

§ 329.122 Appeals

A judgment in a proceeding under Welf. & Inst. Code § 601 (habitually disobedient or truant) or § 602 (criminal violations) may be appealed from in the same manner as any final judgment, and any subsequent order may be appealed from as from an order after judgment [Welf. & Inst. Code § 800(a); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.585(a)]. A minor who admits a wardship petition that alleges the commission of a crime may perfect an appeal without first securing a certificate of probable cause [In re Joseph B. (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 952, 955-960, 196 Cal. Rptr. 348, 671 P.2d 852 ; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.400 (rules on appeal)]. Pending appeal of the order or judgment, the granting or refusal to order release rests in the discretion of the juvenile court. Such an appeal has precedence over all other cases in the court to which the appeal is taken [Welf. & Inst. Code § 800; see In re Mitchell G. (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 66, 72, 276 Cal. Rptr. 245 (jeopardy attached when suppression motion was heard simultaneously with wardship petition, precluding People from appealing dismissal that resulted from grant of motion) and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.400 et seq.].

The rules governing appeals from the superior court in criminal cases are applicable in all appeals from the juvenile court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.585(g)], except when otherwise expressly provided by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.400 et. seq. or Rule 39.1 (not applicable to wardship appeals), or when the application of a particular rule would be clearly impracticable or inappropriate. However, Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.400 et seq., does not apply to any action or proceeding heard by a traffic hearing officer, or to any rehearing, or to an appeal from a denial of a rehearing following an order by a traffic hearing officer [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.400 et seq.].

In the appeal, the minor may seek review of a ruling on a motion to suppress [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 700.1], but may not seek review of a ruling on the voluntariness of a confession [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 800; In re John H. B. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 477, 484, 263 Cal. Rptr. 607] .

A judgment or subsequent order entered by a referee becomes appealable whenever proceedings pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 252, 253, or 254 have become completed or, if such proceedings are not initiated, when the time for initiating the proceedings has expired [Welf. & Inst. Code § 800(a)].

The People may appeal any of the following [Welf. & Inst. Code § 800(b)]:

- A ruling on a motion to suppress [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 700.1], even if the judgment is a dismissal of the petition or any count or counts of the petition, except that the People may not appeal any count that, if the People are successful, will be the basis for further proceedings subjecting any person to double jeopardy. However, a motion under Welf. & Inst. Code § 775, or § 778, tantamount to a motion for a new trial, made by a minor is an implicit agreement to readjudication if necessary and, as such, constitutes a waiver of jeopardy [In re Kenneth S. (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 54, 61-63, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 430] .

- An order after a judgment made on a supplemental petition to change or modify a previous order relating to the disposition of a minor or the jurisdiction of the court [see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 777, 785].

- An order modifying the jurisdictional finding by reducing the degree of the offense or modifying the offense to a lesser offense.

- An order or judgment dismissing or otherwise terminating the action before the minor has been placed in jeopardy, or when the minor has waived jeopardy. This includes a demurrer to one of several allegations sustained in a juvenile wardship petition [In re Rottanak K. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 260, 272, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 543] , and a pretrial order excluding a statement as fruit of the poisonous tree of another statement illegally obtained and resulting in dismissal of the wardship petition [In re Ricardo C. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 431, 435-437, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 585] .

- The imposition of an unlawful order at a dispositional hearing (see discussion in § 329.93), whether or not the court suspends the execution of the disposition.

If the People prosecute an appeal or other review of a decision dismissing or terminating an action before the minor has been placed in jeopardy, it will be binding on the People, and they will be prohibited from refiling the case that was appealed [Welf. & Inst. Code § 800(b)(4)].

Welf. & Inst. Code § 800 expressly does not authorize an appeal from an order granting probation. Instead, the People may seek appellate review of any grant of probation, whether or not the court imposes disposition, by means of a petition for writ or mandate or prohibition filed within 60 days after probation is granted. The review of any grant of probation will include review of any order underlying the grant of probation [Welf. & Inst. Code § 800(c)].

Neither an order of informal supervision, pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 654.2, nor an order placing a minor on deferred entry of judgment, under Welf. & Inst. Code § 790 et seq., are appealable orders. They are not appealable judgments or orders after judgment. Consequently, appellate courts have held that they do not have jurisdiction over either informal supervision [Ricki J. v. Superior Court (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 783, 787-791, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 494] or deferred entry of judgment [In re Mario C. (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 1303, 1307-1309, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 891] . In both cases, review by extraordinary writ may be available if a sufficient basis otherwise exists.

An appellant unable to afford counsel must be provided a free copy of the transcript in any appeal [Welf. & Inst. Code § 800(d)]. The record must be prepared and transmitted immediately after filing of the notice of appeal, without advance payment of fees. If the appellant is able to afford counsel, the county may seek reimbursement for the cost of the transcripts under Gov. Code § 68511.3 as though the appellant had been granted permission to proceed in forma pauperis [Welf. & Inst. Code § 800(e); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.585(d)(4)].

All appeals must be initiated by the filing of notice of appeal in conformity with the requirements of Penal Code § 1240.1 [Welf. & Inst. Code § 800(f)]. A notice ofappeal must be filed within 60 days after the making of an appealable order or, if the matter was heard by a referee who was not sitting as a temporary judge, within 60 days after the order becomes final under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.540(c) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.585(f); see also form set out in Ch. 328, Juvenile Courts: Dependency Proceedings, § 328.420].

As amended effective January 1, 1992, Welf. & Inst. Code § 800 affords no right of appeal to parents in juvenile delinquency matters. Prior to this amendment the statute contained nonrestrictive language that had been interpreted by the appellate courts as giving parents standing to appeal certain judgments and orders. This right to appeal can no longer be judicially implied as the current incarnation of the statute specifically limits this right to minors [In re Almalik S. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 851, 854, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 619] .

[2] Waiver of Appellate Rights

There are two statutory recognitions that a minor can waive their constitutional right to counsel [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 634, 700] and two rule recognitions that they may waive additional constitutional rights and admit the allegations of a petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 5.774(e), 5.778(c)]. Consequently, the courts have determined that a person, juvenile or adult, deemed intelligent enough to appreciate the consequences of admitting a law violation can also make an intelligent appreciation of the decision to forego review of that admission [In re Uriah R. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1152, 1158] .

If there is no specified disposition at the time the appellate rights are waived, it appears that the right to appeal the disposition is not waived [In re Uriah R. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1152, 1159] .

[3] Right to Appointed Counsel

While juvenile delinquency matters are classified as civil proceedings, a juvenile adjudged a delinquent in California has a state-created right to appeal from that determination [Welf. & Inst. Code § 800(a)] and to appointed counsel in connection with that appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.585(a)]. Delinquency proceedings are sufficiently similar in substance and import to criminal prosecutions that minors are entitled to appointed counsel on a first appeal as of right, and effective counsel, pursuant to the Fourteenth Amendment of the United States Constitution [In re Kevin S. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 97] .

When appointed appellate counsel finds no arguable issues, an indigent appellant is still entitled to a review of the entire record to determine whether the appeal is in fact frivolous [People v. Wende (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 436, 441-442, 158 Cal. Rptr. 839] . This process, while specifically inapplicable to dependency proceedings has recently been held to apply to minors relative to delinquency appeals [In re Kevin S, (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 97, 107 , distinguishing In re Sade C. (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 952, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 771] .

§ 329.123 Sentencing in Subsequent Adult Felony Conviction

[1] Application of the "Three Strikes" Law

[a] In General

It is well established that 16- and 17-year-olds have criminal sentencing exposure under the "Three Strikes Law" when they commit certain offenses. The requirements for juvenile "strikes" are listed pursuant to Penal Code § 667(d)(3) which provides that juvenile adjudications may be used as prior felony convictions if:

> (A) The juvenile was 16 years of age or older at the time he or she committed the prior offense.
> (B) The prior offense is listed in Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(b) or described in paragraph (1) [California prior serious or violent felony convictions] or (2) [other jurisdiction prior serious or violent felony convictions] as a felony.
> (C) The juvenile was found to be a fit and proper subject to be dealt with under the juvenile court law.
> (D) The juvenile was adjudged a ward of the juvenile court within the meaning of Welf. & Inst. Code § 602 because the person committed an offense listed in Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(b).

The Supreme Court has held that an implied finding of fitness is sufficient to satisfy Penal Code § 667(d)(3)(C). Such an implied finding essentially occurs every time the juvenile court retains jurisdiction over a minor [People v. Davis (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 1096, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 879] .

Unfortunately, the offenses listed in Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(b) are not identical to those listed in either Penal Code § 667.5 as "violent" felonies, or in Penal Code § 1192.7(c) as "serious" felonies. As a result, some offenses would seem to be strikes only if committed by 16- or 17-year-olds--assault by means of force likely to produce great bodily injury, discharge of a firearm into an inhabited building, and escape from a juvenile facility by use of force with great bodily injury inflicted on staff. Conversely, certain crimes which are strikes when committed by adults are not offenses enumerated in Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(b)--rape which is not accompanied by force or violence or threat of great bodily harm, kidnapping a child under 14, felonies in which defendant inflicts great bodily injury, and residential burglary.

Subsequent court decisions have clarified this situation. A prior juvenile adjudication for an offense that would qualify as a strike if it were the subject of an adult conviction qualifies as a strike only if, in the prior juvenile proceeding, the minor was adjudged a ward of the court for an offense listed in Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(b), whether or not that offense is the same as the offense currently alleged to be a strike [People v. Garcia (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1, 6, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 114] .

In order to prove prior conduct, the sealing of the records of a Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(b) offense relating to a juvenile who was age 14 or older at the time of the conduct is now prohibited [Welf. & Inst. Code § 781(a)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Proof of Wardship Required. In order to prove that prior juvenile conduct constitutes a strike under the "Three Strikes Law" many prosecutors have established a practice of introducing a certified copy of a delinquency petition and a copy of a minute order showing the court's finding on the relevant offense. Recent case law suggests that this practice is insufficient to support a strike allegation. Specifically, the prosecution must prove that the prior juvenile adjudication resulted in a declaration of wardship--a finding which may not be reflected in the documents submitted in support of the strike allegation.

Nonetheless, the California Supreme Court has held that it is permissible to retry a strike allegation after an appellate court has found the evidence insufficient to support a jury's true finding. Since the enhancement or sentencing penalty is not an offense, the retrial does not constitute a violation of the Double Jeopardy clause [People v. Barragan (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 236, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 76] .

The issue of whether prior juvenile adjudications may be considered strikes notwithstanding the fact that they do not afford minors the right to a jury trial has been the source of some dispute. The claim that juvenile adjudications cannot be used as a "strike" due to the absence of a jury was originally rejected in People v. Fowler (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 581, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 874 , but was subsequently called into question by the United States v. Tighe (9th Cir. 2001) 266 F.3d 1187 .

In Tighe, the court considered whether the defendant's prior juvenile adjudication could qualify as a prior conviction under a federal sentencing statute for repeat offenders which did not provide for the right to have a jury find the prior conviction beyond a reasonable doubt. In declaring the statute unconstitutional, the court held that a prior conviction must be obtained through proceedings that included the right to a jury trial and a beyond-a-reasonable-doubt burden of proof [U.S. v. Tighe (9th Cir. 2001) 266 F.3d 1187, 1193-1194] .

The reasoning of Tighe was rejected in two subsequent federal cases considering the question [U.S. v. Smalley (8th Cir. 2002) 294 F.3d 1030 ; U.S. v. Jones (3d Cir. 2003) 332 F.3d 688] . The ultimate issue is whether nonjury juvenile adjudications have sufficient procedural safeguards to meet constitutional due process standards to enhance a sentence [U.S. v. Smalley (8th Cir. 2002) 294 F.3d 1030, 1032] . Given that juveniles have the right to notice, right to counsel, the right to confront and cross-examine witnesses, the privilege against self-incrimination and require a finding of guilt beyond a reasonable doubt, these safeguards were found to be more than sufficient [U.S. v. Smalley (8th Cir. 2002) 294 F.3d 1030 ; U.S. v. Jones (3d Cir. 2003) 332 F.3d 688] . Consequently, a prior nonjury juvenile adjudication afforded all constitutionally required procedural safeguards can properly be characterized as a prior conviction [U.S. v.

Subsequent California cases have similarly disagreed with the Tighe opinion as it applies to the Three Strikes law [People v. Bowden (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 387, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 513 ; People v. Lee (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 1310, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 642 ; People v. Buchanan (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 139, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 137] . In addition to agreeing with Smalley and Jones that juvenile adjudications provide sufficient procedural safeguards to satisfy due process concerns, California's Three Strikes law requires that a prior conviction (including a prior juvenile adjudication) be proved beyond a reasonable doubt, and provides for the right to a jury trial on the question whether a defendant has suffered a prior conviction [People v. Superior Court (Andrades) (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 817, 834, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 74 ; People v. Lee (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 1310, 1316, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 642] .

Most recently, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals has acknowledged widespread disagreement with the Tighe decision. Although falling short of suggesting that Tighe was incorrectly decided, the court stated that the opinion does not represent clearly established federal law "as determined by the Supreme Court of the United States" (citations). In the face of authority directly contrary to Tighe, the California courts' use of juvenile adjudications as sentencing enhancements is neither contrary to, nor an unreasonable application of, Supreme Court precedent [Boyd v. Newland (2004) 393 F.3d 1008, 1017] .

The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals has subsequently acknowledged widespread disagreement with the Tighe decision. Although falling short of suggesting that Tighe was incorrectly decided, the court stated that the opinion does not represent clearly established federal law "as determined by the Supreme Court of the United States" (citations). In the face of authority directly contrary to Tighe, the California courts' use of juvenile adjudications as sentencing enhancements is neither contrary to, nor an unreasonable application of, Supreme Court precedent [Boyd v. Newland (2004) 393 F.3d 1008, 1017] .

Consistent with overwhelming case law in support of the practice, as well as widespread use of juvenile adjudications as strikes in criminal courts, the California Supreme Court has held that the Constitution does not preclude use of sentence enhancements against adult felons who had "prior valid, fair, and reliable [juvenile] adjudications[s] ... where the juvenile proceeding included all the constitutional protections applicable to such matters, even though these protections did not include the right to a jury trial" [People v. Nguyen (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 1007, 1019, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 615] .

Citing McKeiver v. Pennsylvania (1971) 403 U.S. 528, 91 S. Ct. 1976 , the court in Nguyen noted that, "the imposition of the jury trial on the juvenile court system would not strengthen greatly, if at all, the fact-finding function [cite] ... [and] although the function of the jury is to find facts, that body is not necessarily or even probably better at the job than the conscientious judge" [cite] [People v. Nguyen (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 1007, 1020, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 615] . Thus framed, the issue of reliability and validity of juvenile strike priors appears settled. Still, practitioners with experience in both juvenile and criminal court cannot help but notice the disparity in issuing and proof standards in the two systems that contribute to the perception that "strikes" are more easily obtained in juvenile court, procedural safeguards notwithstanding.

PRACTICE TIP:

Plea Bargains. Since the enactment of the "Three Strikes Law," attorneys must be careful when negotiating settlements in juvenile court. Admissions to any offense that could later be used as a "strike" should not be made without full consideration of the potential lifetime consequence. This is especially true in light of the fact that it is the sustained offense, as opposed to the facts upon which that offense is based, that determines whether the adjudication may be considered a "strike prior" [In re Mark Anthony Jensen (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 262, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 751] .

For the purposes of the Three Strikes Laws, where present offenses are committed after March 7, 2000, the relevant list of Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(b) offenses [i.e. those that may be considered as strikes if they are also listed in Penal Code § 667.5 or Penal Code § 1192.7(c)] are those included by Proposition 21, including "simple" robbery and voluntary manslaughter [People v. Bowden (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 387, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 513] . Conversely, if the adult offense occurred prior to March 8, 2000, the applicable Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(b) list does not include those offenses added by Proposition 21 [In re Mark Anthony Jensen (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 262, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 751] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Going Behind the Adjudication Prohibited. Prosecutors may not prove juvenile strikes by showing that the conduct behind the sustained charge constituted a strike offense, where the sustained charge was not a Welf. & Inst. Code Section 707(b) offense. In order for strike offenses to apply to juvenile conduct, the minor must have been adjudged a ward of the juvenile court within the meaning of Welf. & Inst. Code Section 602 because of a 707(b) offense. A showing of conduct including elements of such an offense is not adequate [In re Mark Anthony Jensen (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 262, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 751] .

[3] Use to Impose Aggravated Term

Under California's determinate sentencing system, the existence of a single aggravating circumstance is legally sufficient to make a defendant eligible for an upper term of imprisonment. While facts supporting an aggravating circumstance must be established within the Sixth Amendment guarantees of notice and a right to a jury trial, a defendant does not have a right to a jury trial for an aggravating circumstance based upon "prior convictions ... [that are] numerous or of increasing seriousness" pursuant to Cal. Rule of Court 4.421(b)(2) [People v. Black (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 799, 813-819 ; 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 569].

While many of the issues relating to the applicability of juvenile adjudications to the "Three Strikes Law," and the controversy surrounding the sufficiency of procedural safeguards in juvenile court proceedings, apply to the analysis, a recent appellate court decision found that prior juvenile adjudications are encompassed within the prior conviction exception for imposing an upper term pursuant to Rule 4.421(b)(2) [People v. Tu (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 735]. Siding with the majority of federal and state cases that have grappled with the issue, the court in Tu held that the panoply of rights and protections extended to juveniles in this state infuse sufficient reliability into the juvenile adjudicative process to allow sustained petitions to serve as sentence enhancers despite the absence of the right to a jury trial].

Following the decision in People v. Nguyen (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 1007, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 615 , which held that using prior juvenile adjudications to enhance an adult offender's sentence under the Three Strikes Law was constitutional, appellate courts have found the rationale applicable to use as an aggravating factor under Cal. Rule of Court, Rule 4.421(b)(2) [People v. Quiles (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 612, 620-621, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 378] .

In October 2009, the Legislature repealed the existing Interstate Compact for Juveniles (ICJ) and enacted a new ICJ which, unless extended, will sunset on January 1, 2012. A newly created Interstate Commission for Juveniles will develop rules and regulations, which have the force of statutory law, to govern the supervision and return of juvenile offenders between the states. The purpose of the ICJ, as stated in Welf. & Inst. Code § 1400, art. I, is to facilitate the joint and cooperative action of member states "to ensure that the adjudicated juveniles and status offenders subject to this compact are provided adequate supervision and services ... and that the public safety interests of the citizens, including the victims of juvenile offenders, in both the sending and receiving states are adequately protected ... ."

The express terms of the former ICJ as previously codified in Welf. & Inst. Code § 1300 prohibited California authorities from exercising ICJ supervision powers under standards that are different from those they apply to their own delinquent juveniles released on probation. This prohibition has been determined to apply in cases requiring registration, such as sex offender registration, where the requirement could not be imposed on a juvenile adjudicated by a California court under the same facts and circumstances. This means that a minor required to register as a sex offender in another state is neither required to register in California, nor can he have his probation violated for failing to register, if the underlying facts and circumstances behind the out-of-state requirement would not mandate registration under California law. This is true even if the minor agreed to register pursuant to ICJ transfer conditions [In re Lee Dale Crockett (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 751, 761-762, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 632] .

Despite numerous pronouncements recognizing the extreme importance of an education in our society, the United States Supreme Court has concluded that education is not "explicitly or implicitly guaranteed by the Constitution" and there is not a "fundamental right." [San Antonio School Dist. v. Rodriguez (1973) 411 U.S. 1, 33, 93 S. Ct. 1278]. Consequently the creation of a right to an education is dependent on state constitutions and statutes. In California, a "system of common schools" providing for free schools to be operated at least six months a year is mandated by the State Constitution [Cal. Const. Art. 9 § 5].

In addition to guaranteeing a free public education, California also has a compulsory attendance statute that requires children between the ages of 6 and 18 years, who are not otherwise exempt, be subject to full-time education [Cal. Ed. Code § 48200].

The nexus between education and child welfare has gained increased attention in recent years as best practices recognize that juvenile courts must include educational plans in dispositional orders. To this end, to the extent the information is available, the court must consider the following at the initial or detention hearing:

- Who holds the child's educational rights [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.651(b)(1)(A)];

- If the child was enrolled in, and is attending, the child's school of origin as defined in Ed. Code § 48853.5(e) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.651(b)(1)(B)];

- If the child is no longer attending the school of origin whether there is a recommendation that the child's right to attend that school be waived, whether a written explanation of that recommendation was provided if the child is a foster child, whether the child was not afforded the right to attend the school of origin without a waiver, and whether the child was immediately enrolled in a new school pursuant to Ed. Code § 48853.5(d)(4) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.651(b)(1)(C)];

- Whether the parent's or guardian's educational rights should be temporarily limited [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.651(b)(1)(D)]; and

- Whether, taking into account other statutory considerations, out of home placement is the environment best suited to meet the unique needs of the child and promotes educational stability [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.651(b)(1)(E)].

Additionally, at the disposition hearing and at all subsequent hearings provided for in Cal. Rules of Court., Rule 5.651(a), the court must address and determine the child's general and special education needs, identify a plan for meeting those needs, and provide a clear, written statement using form JV-535, and specifying the person who holds the educational rights for the child [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.651(b)(2)].

[2] Special Education

[a] In General

Special education law involves the interplay of several laws that provide for the protection and rights of children with disabilities in the public school setting. The applicable laws include: (1) the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) [20 U.S.C. § 1400 et seq.], which sets forth procedures and programming that states must provide to receive federal funding under the Act; (2) Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 [29 U.S.C. § 794], which prohibits recipients of federal funding from discriminating on the basis of disability; (3) the Americans with Disabilities Act [42 U.S.C. 12101 et seq.], which prohibits both public and private schools from discriminating on the basis of disability and requiring them to provide reasonable accommodations that do not cause undue hardship; (4) the Fourteenth Amendment safeguards of equal protection and due process as enforced through 42 U.S.C. § 1983; and (5) California Education Code § 56400 et seq. [see generally Dale et al., Representing the Child Client, Ch. 6, Representing Students in School-Related Matters (Matthew Bender)].

The Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) was adopted to assure that all children with disabilities have available to them "a free appropriate public education which emphasizes special education and related services designed to meet their unique needs, [and] to assure that the rights of children with disabilities and their parents or guardians are protected..." [20 U.S.C. § 1400(c); 34 C.F.R. § 300.1; 20 U.S.C. § 1401(a)(17)]. The statute and the regulations implementing them [34 C.F.R. § 300.000-.754] set forth in great detail the substantive and procedural rights of disabled students. The law requires that a child having one or more of the disabilities listed in the IDEA, and needing special education and "related services," be entitled to the rights described. [see generally Dale et al., Representing the Child Client, Ch. 6, Representing Students in School-Related matters (Matthew Bender)].

The IDEA defines children with disabilities as those "with mental retardation, hearing impairments, visual impairments including blindness, serious emotional disturbance, orthopedic impairments, autism, traumatic brain injury, other health impairments or specific learning disabilities..." who, by reason thereof, need special education and related services [20 U.S.C. § 1401(a)(1)(A)(i)-(ii); 34 C.F.R. § 300.7(a)(1)].

[c] State Law

In California, the IDEA and other applicable statutes and regulations are supported by Education Code § 56400, which intends to the extent feasible, to do the following:

- Ensure that children and young adults with disabilities are provided a free and appropriate public education [Ed. Code § 56400(a)];

- Ensure that children and young adults with disabilities receive the necessary educational support and services they need to complete their education [Ed. Code § 56400(b)].

- Offer parents and guardians of children and young adults with disabilities access to accurate information, specialized training, and peer to peer support in their communities [Ed. Code § 56400(c)].

- Ensure that parents, guardians, and families of children and young adults with disabilities are full participants in their child's education, school reform, and comprehensive systems change efforts [Ed. Code § 56400(d)].

- Build upon existing local and regional service delivery systems to improve, expand, and offer coordinated technical assistance to the network of existing resources [Ed. Code § 56400(e)].

§ 329.131 School Security

[1] Search and Seizure

[a] In General

It is well established that students in public schools have a legitimate expectation of privacy in their persons and in the personal effects they bring to school. However, courts have also stated that this expectation must be balanced against the school's obligation to maintain discipline and to provide a safe environment for students and staff [New Jersey v. T.L.O. (1985) 469 U.S. 325, 339-341, 105 S. Ct. 733, 83 L. Ed. 2d 720] . In California, the latter concern is also reflected in Article I, section 28,subdivision (c) of the California Constitution which provides that all students and staff of public schools have an inalienable right to attend campuses that are "safe, secure and peaceful."

What has precipitated out of the combination of these interests is a rule whereby school officials may conduct a search of the student's person and personal effects based upon a reasonable suspicion that the search will disclose evidence that the student is violating or has violated the law or a school rule. "Reasonable suspicion" is a lower standard than probable cause. Ultimately, the legality of the search depends simply on the reasonableness, under the circumstances, of the search. [New Jersey v. T.L.O., above, 469 U.S. at p. 341 ; see also In re William G. (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 550, 562-565, 221 Cal. Rptr. 118 ; In re Cody S. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 86, 91-92] . In the absence of articulable facts supporting a reasonable suspicion that a search will disclose evidence of a law violation or a violation of school rules, a search of a child's belongings at school is unconstitutional. Mere disruptive behavior does not authorize a school official to rummage through his or her students' personal belongings [In re Lisa G. (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 801, 807, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 163] . On the other hand, completely random searches of students who enter school grounds are authorized for the purpose of determining whether a weapon is being brought on campus [In re Latasha W. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1524, 1526-1527, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 886] .

[b] Two-Fold Inquiry Determining Reasonableness

In order to determine whether a student search conducted pursuant to New Jersey v. T.L.O. is based upon a reasonable suspicion, the courts have established a two-fold inquiry. The action must be justified at its inception and the search, as actually conducted, must be reasonably related in scope to the circumstance which justified the interference in the first place. The search must not be excessively intrusive in light of the age and sex of the student and the nature of the infraction. [T.L.O., above, 469 U.S. at 341 ; In re William V. (2004) 111 Cal. App. 4th 1464, 1469, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 695] . Recent case law suggests that, using this inquiry, the mere fact that a minor had no legitimate business on a school campus creates a reasonable need to determine whether he posed a danger, justifying a patdown search [People v. Jose Y. (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 748, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 268] .

[c] T.L.O. Searches

[i] Searches by Teachers and School Officials

The reasonable suspicion standard set forth by the U.S. Supreme Court in New Jersey v. T.L.O. applies to searches of students conducted by teachers and school officials in public schools [T.L.O., above, at pp. 333-336]. Both the United States and California Supreme Courts, however, expressly declined to consider whether the standard is applicable to a student search conducted with law enforcement involvement or where a school official acts in cooperation with, or as an agent of, law enforcement [T.L.O., above, 469 U.S. at p. 341 fn. 7 ; In re William G., above, 40 Cal. 3d at p. 562, fn. 12].

Subsequent cases reflect a blurred distinction between law enforcement personnel and traditional school officials. In so doing, while the applicability of T.L.O. to searches conducted by police officers remains unresolved, it is clear that the list of employees falling within the definition of a "school officials" has expanded. The California Supreme Court has held that, for the purposes of assessing the validity of a detention under the Fourth Amendment, no meaningful distinction can be drawn between non-law enforcement security officers employed by a school district and other school officials [In re Randy G. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 556, 568-569 & fn 3, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 516] . Subsequent case law has similarly refused to distinguish between school officials and police officers on assignment to schools as a resource officers for the purpose of analyzing detentions and searches of students at school [In re William V. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 1464, 1471-1472, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 695] .

The standard to stop a minor student in order to ask questions or conduct an investigation is different than that required to conduct a search at school. Citing the broad authority of school administrators over student behavior, school safety, and the learning environment, the California Supreme Court has held that school officials may detain minor students on school grounds without reasonable suspicion of criminal activity or violation of a school rule. While stopping a student on school grounds during school hours, calling a student into the corridor to discuss a school-related matter, or summoning a student to the principal's office for such purpose is not a detention within the meaning of the Fourth Amendment, the test for actions deemed to be detentions is the same--namely, whether the school officials' conduct was arbitrary, capricious, or undertaken for purposes of harassment [In re Randy G. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 556, 559-565, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 516] . [See also § 329.32[5].]

§ 329.132 School Discipline

Students in the public school system are subject to an array of disciplinary sanctions. The vast majority involve minor sanctions imposed informally without administrative or judicial review. However, certain types of school discipline, either because of the reason for the discipline or the severity of the punishment, result in the need for legal consultation or representation. This is especially true as school districts have adopted "Zero Tolerance" policies that predetermine sanctions for certain behavior beyond those that are mandated by statute. See generally Dale, et. al., Representing the Child Client, P 10.05, Particular Types of School Discipline (Matthew Bender).

The general distinction between suspension and expulsion is one of duration relating to a child's removal from school. Statutorily, suspension is defined as the removal of a pupil from ongoing instruction for adjustment purposes [Educ. Code § 48925(d)] and expulsion is the removal of a pupil from (1) the immediate supervision and control, or (2) the general supervision, of school personnel [Educ. Code § 48925(b)]. In either case, students subject to removal from school are entitled to certain due process protections including the right to notice and an opportunity to be heard. Although this can be done informally, at a minimum, school officials must inform students of what they are accused of doing and the basis for the accusation as well as giving students the chance to explain their version of what occurred. While these procedures should be employed prior to the imposition of a sanction, they may takeplace after the removal has occurred [Goss v. Lopez (1975) 419 U.S. 565, 582, 95 S. Ct. 729, 42 L. Ed. 2d 725] .

In California, the bases upon which discipline may be imposed and which specific local school officials may impose the various forms of suspensions is set out by statute [Educ. Code § 48900 et. seq.; see table below]. Generally, the total number of days for which a pupil may be suspended from school in any year is not to exceed 20 days [Educ. Code § 48903]. If the pupil is enrolled in a continuation school or class, they may be suspended for a period not to exceed the remainder of the semester if the acts enumerated in Educ. Code § 48900 occurred [Educ. Code § 48912.5]. When a minor has been expelled from school, the expulsion order is to remain in effect until the governing board orders readmission. For acts other than those described in [Educ. Code § 48915(c)] that is not to be later than the last day of the semester following the semester in which the expulsion occurred, at which time the pupil is to be reviewed for readmission to a school maintained by the district or to the school the pupil last attended. For acts described in Educ. Code § 48915(c), the review for readmission is to be set one year from the date the expulsion occurred [Educ. Code § 48916].

For most offenses, the decision to suspend or expel is discretionary, not mandatory, and must be based on a finding of one or both of the following:

- Other means of correction are not feasible or have repeatedly failed to bring about proper conduct [Educ. Code § 48915(b)(1)].

- Due to the nature of the act, the presence of the pupil causes a continuing danger to the physical safety of the pupil or others [Educ. Code § 48915(b)(2)].

The hearing to determine if a student should be suspended or expelled normally should precede any exclusion from school. As a practical matter this is rarely the case. Most students are first suspended on a short-term basis, and while this suspension is in effect a notice is sent by the school scheduling a hearing for a long term suspension [see Dale, et. al., Representing the Child Client, P 10.05[2][c], Particular Types of School Discipline (Matthew Bender)]. Once a hearing is held, the burden of proof necessary to support the allegations of the school district is a preponderance of evidence [John A. v. San Bernardino City Unified School District (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 301, 187 Cal. Rptr. 472, 654 P.2d 242] or substantial evidence [Educ. Code § 48918(f)].

While the hearing process is relatively informal, the common tendency is to consider all forms of evidence presented. However, pupils subject to long-term school disciplinary hearings have the right to confront their accusers and cross-examine witnesses [Educ. Code § 48918(b)]. Generally, this requires direct testimony on the primary allegations against the student and, in fact, evidence to expel a student may not be based solely upon hearsay [Educ. Code § 48918(f)].

In the event that a pupil is expelled after a hearing an appeal may be filed within thirty days of the board's decision. The county board of education must then hear the appeal in closed session within twenty school days and render a decision within three school days of the hearing [Educ. Code §§ 48919, 48920].

Students who have been suspended or dismissed from school for disrupting the orderly operation of the institution may be denied access to the campus or facility for the duration of the suspension or, in the event of an expulsion, for a period not to exceed one year [Penal Code § 626.2]. Written notice of the suspension or expulsion, including the condition prohibiting access to the school, must be served by registered or certified mail. If such notice is provided, and a suspended or expelled student violates the condition prohibiting access, they may be charged with a misdemeanor offense pursuant to Penal Code § 626 [In re Leon S. (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 1556, 1560-1561, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 679] .

Mental illness is extremely common. Almost every family in California is affected, people from every background and any age. In any year, between 5 percent and 7 percent of adults suffer from a serious mental illness, as do a similar percentage of children--between 5 percent and 9 percent. More than two million children, adults and seniors in California are affected by a potentially disabling mental illness every year. People who become disabled by mental illness deserve the same guarantee of care already extended to those who face other kinds of disabilities [Proposition 63, Section 1, (a)].

In a cost-cutting move 30 years ago, California drastically cut back its services in state hospitals for people with severe mental illness. Thousands ended up on the streets homeless and incapable of caring for themselves. Today thousands of suffering people remain on our streets because they are afflicted with untreated severe mental illness. We can and should offer these people the care they need to lead more productive lives [Proposition 63, Section 1, (d)].

Counties are the primary providers of mental health care in California communities for persons who lack private coverage for such care. Both children and adults are eligible to receive such assistance. Counties provide a range of psychiatric counseling, hospitalization, and other treatment services to patients. In addition, some counties arrange other types of assistance such as housing, substance abuse treatment, and employment services to help their clients. A number of counties have established so-called "systems of care" to coordinate the provision of both medical and nonmedical services for persons with mental health problems.

County mental health services are paid for with a mix of state, local, and federal funds. As part of a prior transfer of mental health program responsibilities from the state to counties, some state revenues are automatically set aside for the support of county mental health programs and thus are not provided through the annual state budget act. Other state support for county mental health programs is provided through the annual state budget act and thus is subject to change by actions of the Legislature and Governor [See generally Legislative Analyst's Analysis of Proposition 63].

[2] Funding

Proposition 63 establishes a state personal income tax surcharge of 1 percent on taxpayers with annual taxable incomes of more than $1 million. Funds resulting from the surcharge will be used to expand county mental health programs.

Under this measure, beginning in 2004-2005, the State Controller would transfer specified amounts of state funding on a monthly basis into a new state fund named the Mental Health Services Fund. State revenues designated for this fund are estimated at $275 million in 2004-2005 (partial year), $750 million in 2005-2006, $800 million in 2006-2007, with increasing amounts annually thereafter. It is expected that expenditures by the state and counties for expansion of mental health programs will increase by comparable amounts [Legislative Analyst's Estimate of Net State and Local Government Fiscal Impact].

[3] Programs

Revenues deposited in the Mental Health Services Fund will be used to create new county mental health programs and to expand some existing programs. These funds will not be provided through the annual state budget act and thus amounts will not be subject to change by actions of the Legislature and Governor. Specifically, the funds can be used for the following activities:

- Children's System of Care. Expansion of existing county system of care services for children who lack other public or private health coverage to pay for mental health treatment.

- Adults' System of Care. Expansion of existing county system of care services for adults with serious mental disorders or who are at serious risk of such disorders if they do not receive treatment.

- Prevention and Early Intervention. New county prevention and early intervention programs to get persons showing early signs of a mental illness into treatment quickly before their illness becomes more severe.

- "Wraparound" Services for Families. A new program to provide stateassistance to counties, where feasible, to establish wraparound services, which provide various types of medical and social services for families (for example, family counseling) where the children are at risk of being placed in foster care.

- "Innovation" Programs. New county programs to experiment with ways to improve access to mental health services, including for underserved groups, to improve program quality, or to promote interagency collaboration in the delivery of services to clients.

- Mental Health Workforce: Education and Training. Stipends, loan forgiveness, scholarship programs, and other new efforts to (1) address existing shortages of mental health staffing in county programs and (2) help provide the additional staffing that would be needed to carry out the program expansions proposed in this measure.

- Capital Facilities and Technology. A new program to allocate funding to counties for technology improvements and capital facilities needed to provide mental health services.

The measure specifies the portion of funds to be devoted to particular activities. In 2004-2005, most of the funding will be provided for expanding the mental health care workforce and for capital facility and technology improvements. In subsequent years, most funding will be used for new prevention and early intervention programs and various expansions of the existing types of services provided by counties directly to mental health clients [See generally Legislative Analyst's Analysis of Proposition 63].

[4] Administration

Under the terms of the proposition, each county must draft and submit for state review and approval, a three-year plan for the delivery of mental health services within its jurisdiction. Counties are also required to prepare annual updates and expenditure plans for the provision of mental health services.

The Department of Mental Health, in coordination with certain other state agencies, has the lead state role in implementing most of the programs specified in the measure and allocating the funds through contracts with counties. In addition, a new Mental Health Services Oversight and Accountability commission will review county plans for mental health services and to approve expenditures for certain programs. The existing Mental Health Planning Council continues to review the performance of the adult and children's system of care programs. The Franchise Tax Board is the lead state agency responsible for administration of the tax provisions of this proposition [See generally Legislative Analyst's Analysis of Proposition 63].

Proposition 63 contains special provisions that prohibit the state from reducing financial support for mental health programs below the 2003-2004 level and that restrict certain other changes in mental health programs. Such restrictions are meant to prevent the Legislature and Governor from taking certain actions in the future to reduce state expenditures for mental health services. As a result, state spending in the future should be higher than it otherwise would have been.

[5] Effect on Delinquency

State and national studies have indicated that mental health programs similar to some of those expanded by Proposition 63 generate significant savings to state and local governments. Studies of such programs in California to date suggest that much of the savings would probably accrue to local government. Specifically the expansion of county mental health services as proposed in this measure will probably result in savings on state prison and county jail operations, medical care, homeless shelters, and social services programs. To the extent that juveniles are affected by mental health programs to the same, if not greater, extent as adults, a similar impact and savings can be expected on juvenile institutional placements and delinquency reduction [See generally Legislative Analyst's Analysis of Proposition 63; David E. Arredondo et. al., Juvenile Mental Health Court: Rationale and Protocols, 52 Juv. & Fam. Ct. J. 1, 3 (2001)].

The initiative codifies the importance of these outcomes by emphasizing the improved timely access to services for underserved populations and strategies to reduce suicide, incarceration, school failure, unemployment, prolonged suffering, homelessness, and the removal of children from their homes [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5840(a), (d)].

[6] Subsequent Legislation

The California Judicial Council is now required, to the extent resources are available, to provide education on mental health and developmental disability issues affecting juveniles in delinquency proceedings to judicial officers and other public officers involved in the arrest, evaluation, prosecution, defense, disposition, or placement phases of delinquency proceedings [Gov. Code § 68553.5].

In addition, the court now has the authority to refer a minor for a mental health evaluation by a licensed mental health professional, either a psychiatrist or psychologist, when it appears that the minor suffers from a serious mental disorder is seriously emotionally disturbed, or has a developmental disability. Procedures for the consideration of a written report, resulting from the evaluation, by a multidisciplinary team and the incorporation of the treatment plan proposed by the team are now available to counties in which the board of supervisors chose to adopt them [Welf. & Inst. Code §

710 et seq.]. These provisions are consistent with the Juvenile Mental Health Court models, established in Santa Clara County, and adopted throughout the country, which may be ripe for funding pursuant to Proposition 63 [See generally Arredondo et al., Juvenile Mental Health Court: Rationale and Protocols, 52 Juv. & Fam. Ct. J. 1, 3 (2001)].

[1] In General

Deoxyribonucleic Acid (DNA) is the genetic material contained in humans that controls the production of substances needed for development and life activities. The genetic information contained in DNA can be used, like a fingerprint, to identify and differentiate between individuals. Historically, DNA evidence has been used toidentify, arrest, convict and exonerate people involved in the criminal justice system [See generally Legislative Analyst's Analysis of Proposition 69].

Proposition 69, which was enacted by voter initiative on November 2, 2004, expands the list of individuals required to submit DNA samples. That list now includes juveniles with a sustained petition for a felony offense or a sustained petition involving any sex or arson offense, or attempt to commit any such offense. An admission of a "wobbler" offense charged as a felony is not an "adjudication" of the misdemeanor or felony status of that offense. That determination is to be made by the juvenile court in the course of the proceedings [In re Nancy C. (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 508, 512, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 871] .

The compulsory, nonconsensual gathering of a biological sample for DNA testing, pursuant to Penal Code § 296, was recently challenged as a violation of a minor's Fourth Amendment interests in In re Calvin S. (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 443, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 559 . In considering the minor's interests, the court also considered the juvenile's relationship to the state and the state's public policy favoring confidentiality. Balancing those interests against the limited release of the DNA profiles and the public interest in accurate prosecution of crimes by facilitating the detection, apprehension, and conviction of offenders, the court determined that making juveniles subject to the provisions of Penal Code § 296 is constitutional and "hardly a public announcement of a juvenile offender's felony conviction." [In re Calvin S. (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 443, 449, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 559].

[2] Collection and Use

Immediately following the sustaining of a petition involving a qualifying offense, state or local law enforcement officials are required to collect, from any juvenile, a sample of inner cheek cells of the mouth, known as a "buccal swab" sample. This sample is in addition to the right thumbprint, and a full palm print impression of each hand, and blood specimens or biological samples required to be taken prior to the passage of proposition 69 [Penal Code § 296(a)(1), (3)].

Upon collection, the samples are submitted to the California Department of Justice (DOJ). The DOJ laboratory analyzes the samples and stores the DNA profiles in a statewide database. The profiles are also submitted by DOJ to the Combined DNA Index System, a national repository maintained by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The information in the DNA databank is compared to evidence collected from crime scenes for possible matches [Penal Code §§ 295(g), (h), 297].

If at any stage of court proceedings the prosecuting attorney determines that specimens, samples, and print impressions have not been taken as required, they shall notify the court orally on the record, or in writing, and request that the court order collection of the specimens, samples, and print impressions. However, a failure by the prosecuting attorney, or any other law enforcement agency, to notify the court shall not relieve a minor from the obligation to provide the specimens, samples, and print impressions as required by law [Penal Code § 296(e)].

Prior to the final disposition of the case, the court must inquire and verify that the specimens, samples, and print impressions required have been obtained and that this fact is included in the abstract of judgment or dispositional order [Penal Code § 296(f)].

[3] Retroactive Application

The list of qualifying offenses that require a minor to submit a DNA sample is retroactive, regardless of when the matter was adjudicated. Consequently, DNA is to be obtained from minors previously adjudicated for qualifying offenses who are presently in custodial facilities and placements, as well as those on probation or parole [Penal Code § 296.1].

§ 329.221 Decisions

[1] Capacity to Commit Crime

Evidence on the issue of wrongfulness must relate to the specific act committed but may include a general awareness of the difference between right and wrong and circumstantial evidence surrounding a child's behavior. In re James B. (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 862, 873, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 457

Presumption that minor under the age of 14 is incapable of committing crime, set forth in Penal Code § 26, as applying to delinquency proceedings; rebuttal of presumption as prerequisite to wardship adjudication under Welf. & Inst. Code § 602. In re Manuel L. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 229, 236, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 865 P.2d 718 ; In re R. (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 855, 862, 83 Cal. Rptr. 671, 464 P.2d 127

Presumption that minor under age of 14 is incapable of committing crime (Penal Code § 26) as rebutted by clear and convincing evidence that, at the time minor committed the charged act, he or she knew of its wrongfulness. In re Manuel L. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 229, 236, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 865 P.2d 718

Finding of capacity as not an element of offense and, therefore, as not requiring proof beyond reasonable doubt under Welf. & Inst. Code § 701 or In re Winship (1970) 397 U.S. 358, 90 S. Ct. 1068, 25 L. Ed. 2d 368 (due process requires proof beyond a reasonable doubt in juvenile proceedings). In re Manuel L. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 229, 235-236, 239 n.5, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 865 P.2d 718 (disapproving, to the extent inconsistent with this decision, In re Billie Y. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 127, 269 Cal. Rptr. 212 ; In re Francisco N. (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 175, 179-180, 230 Cal. Rptr. 475 ; In re Richard T. (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 248, 252-253, 220 Cal. Rptr. 573 ; and Shortridge v. Municipal Court (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 611, 618, 198 Cal. Rptr. 749 ; see also In re Clyde H. (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 338, 343, 154 Cal. Rptr. 727)

Penal Code § 26 presumption as overcome when court had evidence beyond reasonable doubt that minor, who was two months short of his 14th birthday, appreciated wrongfulness of his conduct; fact that Penal Code § 288(a) (lewd or lascivious act on child under 14) was enacted to protect children as not precluding prosecution of member of that protected class. In re Billie Y. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 127, 130-133, 269 Cal. Rptr. 212 . Presumption of Penal Code § 26 that child under age of 14 is incapable of committing crime as referring to chronological age, not mental age. In re M. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 419, 422, 149 Cal. Rptr. 387, 584 P.2d 524

Although intent of Penal Code § 26 (presumption that minors are incapable of committing crime in absence of clear proof that at time of act they knew its wrongfulness) does not permit court to infer knowledge from bare commission of act itself, reference as properly permitted to be made to attendant circumstances, including its preparation, particular method of its commission, and its concealment. In re C. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 888, 900, 148 Cal. Rptr. 366, 582 P.2d 957

When only evidence on issue of knowledge of wrongfulness was brief statement of police officer that minor said yes when asked if he knew difference between right and wrong, evidence as insufficient to meet requirements of Penal Code § 26 demanding more substantial evidence to clearly prove 9-year-old boy harbored necessary capacity to commit serious criminal offense. In re Michael B. (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 443, 446, 118 Cal. Rptr. 685

[2] Jurisdiction of Juvenile Court

Notwithstanding the fact that a minor's wardship can be established exclusively as the result of a violation of federal law, Welf. & Inst. Code § 602 is not preempted by the United States Constitution's Supremacy Clause, 18 U.S.C. § 3231 (which gives federal courts exclusive jurisdiction over federal criminal offenses), or any other provision of federal law. In re Jose C. (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 534, 541-555, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 674

Penal Code § 654 provides, in relevant part: "An acquittal or conviction and sentence under any one [provision of law] bars a prosecution for the same act or omission under any other." While expressly applicable to juvenile proceedings, it should be noted that amended petitions may be filed after jurisdiction, by admission or contested hearing, if the matter has not yet gone to disposition. In re R.L. (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 1339, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 854

The Kellett rule applies in delinquency proceedings. In Kellett, the California Supreme Court held that when "the prosecution is or should be aware of more than one offense in which the same act or course of conduct plays a significant part, all such offenses must be prosecuted in a single proceeding unless joinder is prohibited or severance permitted for good cause. Failure to unite all such offenses will result in a bar to subsequent prosecution of any offense omitted if the initial proceedings culminate in either acquittal or conviction and sentence" [Kellett v. Superior Court (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 822, 827, 48 Cal. Rptr. 366] . However, Kellett does not apply when the prosecutor cannot proceed on additional charges earlier because additional facts and police reports have not been discovered at the time of the original jurisdiction and disposition hearing. In re R.L. (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 1339, 1343-1345, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 854

When minor is found unfit on Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(b) offense, and offense is dismissed in adult court, juvenile court can reacquire jurisdiction. In re Richard C. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 966, 971, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 506

When minor is convicted in adult court before it is discovered that he was a minor at the time the offense was committed, the matter must be referred back to juvenile court to determine if the minor is unfit. Jose D. v. Superior Court (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 1098, 1100, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 664

Juvenile and adult court may exercise concurrent jurisdiction over minor over the age of 18. In re Mikeal D. (1983)

Juvenile courts as exercising exclusive initial jurisdiction over all youths under 18 years of age and, until that court makes certification order, superior court as lacking jurisdiction to make order affecting juvenile, except, perhaps, to suspend criminal proceedings and transfer accused to juvenile court when proceedings have been inadvertently commenced in superior court. People v. Chi Ko Wong (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 698, 710, 135 Cal. Rptr. 392, 557 P.2d 976

Welf. & Inst. Code § 607(b) which extends the juvenile court's jurisdiction to age 25 for Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(b) offenses applies to minors under the age of 16. In re Julian O. (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 847, 850-851, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 193 (modified on other grounds)

Welf. & Inst. Code § 607(b) extends the jurisdiction of the court until the age of 25 where the ward was committed to DJF (formerly CYA) for an offense specified in §§ 707(b), (d)(2), or (e), regardless of a subsequent order to modify or vacate the commitment. In re Antoine D. (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 1314, 1323-1325, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 885

For juvenile wardship jurisdiction purposes, person as attaining age 18 on first minute of day of 18th birthday, and not first second of day preceding 18th birthday. Johnson v. Superior Court (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1093, 1094-1097, 256 Cal. Rptr. 651

Welf. & Inst. Code § 679 as requiring only that nothing be done to preclude minor from being present at jurisdiction hearing; minor may knowingly and intelligently waive right to attend and may not complain of situation created by voluntary absence. In re Sidney M. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 39, 48, 208 Cal. Rptr. 378

§ 329.242 Decisions

[1] Detention Hearing

Welf. & Inst. Code § 632 requires a child to be released from custody if a detention hearing is not held before the end of the day following the filing of a petition. In re Angel M. (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 1498, 1501 ; 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 825

Although it appears reasonable not to release a child where there is no parent or guardian present, there is no authority requiring a parent or guardian to be present at a detention hearing; the court does not have discretion to detain a child on this basis if the statutory time requirements have not been met. In re Angel M. (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 1498, 1506 ; 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 825

Juvenile detention hearing as not equivalent of adult preliminary hearing; juvenile as not entitled to present evidence of affirmative defense unless evidence bears on question of whether juvenile is danger to community if released pending jurisdiction hearing. In re Korry K. (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 967, 970-971, 175 Cal. Rptr. 91

Juvenile court must consider the minor's case on its individual merits and cannot detain the minor based solely on a category of crime. In re William M. (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 16, 29-30, 89 Cal. Rptr. 33, 473 P.2d 737

Juvenile court may not detain an out-of-custody minor who appears for a pretrial conference without counsel and without having been given notice that he or she might be detained. In re Ryan B. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1519, 1527, 265 Cal. Rptr. 629

At a detention rehearing, only the preparers of the report must be made available to the minor for cross-examination. In re Luis M. (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 1090, 1094, 226 Cal. Rptr. 39

Minor has right to a detention rehearing where the court must find whether there is a reasonable probability that a crime occurred and that the minor committed it. In re Dennis H. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 350, 354-355, 96 Cal. Rptr. 791

[2] Preadjudication Procedures

Due process standards governing preadjudication detention of juvenile delinquent as satisfied when purpose of detention is to protect community and minor from consequences of future offenses, conditions of preadjudication confinement are regulatory and nonpunitive in nature, and applicable procedures properly safeguard minor from erroneous and unnecessary deprivations of liberty. Schall v. Martin (1984) 467 U.S. 253, 266-272, 274-280, 104 S. Ct. 2403, 81 L. Ed. 2d 207

Juvenile detainees as constitutionally entitled to judicial probable cause determination within 72 hours of arrest; this due process requirement as met by formal juvenile detention hearing pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 632(a) when the hearing is held within 72 hours of arrest; otherwise, Constitution requires separate, timely judicial determination of probable cause for any period of detention beyond 72 hours; 48-hour rule governing pretrial detention of adults as not applying to juvenile detention. Alfredo A. v. Superior Court (1994) 6 Cal. 4th 1212, 1231-1232, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 623, 865 P. 2d 56

Detention in county jail is appropriate only until disposition and the ability of the court to order pre-dispostion detention in the facility does not expand the range of disposition alternatives set forth in Welf. & Inst. Code § 202. The proper procedure for detention in county jail must begin with an initial placement in a juvenile facility, after which probation may seek an order to allow for housing in county jail pending disposition. In re Ramon M. (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 665, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 158

Juveniles as properly detained without right to bail or prehearing release. Aubry v. Gadbois (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 470, 475, 123 Cal. Rptr. 365

Detention as required to be based on substantial showing of facts establishing grounds required as condition precedent to detention. In re Macidon (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 600, 607, 49 Cal. Rptr. 861

[3] Temporary Custody & Arrest

Welf. & Inst. Code § 625.1, permitting peace officer, without warrant, to take temporary custody of minor whenever officer has reasonable cause to believe that minor has committed crime in officer's presence as overriding Welf. & Inst. Code § 625(a), allowing peace officer to take minor into temporary custody without warrant when officer only had reasonable cause to believe minor was one who had broken law under Welf. & Inst. Code § 602. In re S. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 727, 744-745, 139 Cal. Rptr. 708, 566 P.2d 610

Cite-back procedure, which allows release of juvenile after he or she is instructed to return to police station at later time for continued discussion with officer, as legal. In re Juan G. (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 766, 769-770, 174 Cal. Rptr. 795

Code § 625* and as not applicable to arrests pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 625.1(c) (commission of felony). In re Anthony J. (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 164, 172-173, 150 Cal. Rptr. 183

§ 329.252 Decisions

[1] Challenging Certification Order

The juvenile court's ultimate finding that a minor is a fit or unfit subject for treatment under juvenile court law is subject to review for error under an abuse of discretion standard. People v. Superior Court (Jones) (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 667, 680, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 641

The juvenile court's findings of fact are subject to appellate review under a "substantial evidence" standard. People v. Superior Court (Jones) (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 667, 681-682 ; 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 641

Rule regarding manner in which certification order may be challenged as only applying prospectively. People v. Chi Ko Wong (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 698, 716, 135 Cal. Rptr. 392, 557 P.2d 976

Penal Code § 995 as not embracing challenge to certification order made by juvenile court in collateral proceedings. People v. Chi Ko Wong (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 698, 715, 135 Cal. Rptr. 392, 557 P.2d 976

Certification order as normally challenged only by extraordinary writ in collateral proceedings commenced prior to commencement of trial on charges for which defendant is certified as unfit for treatment within juvenile court facilities. People v. Chi Ko Wong (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 698, 714, 135 Cal. Rptr. 392, 557 P.2d 976

Because certification hearing is extrajudicial process with regard to subsequent criminal proceedings, appellate review of criminal proceedings as not properly broadened to include attack on certification order. People v. Chi Ko Wong (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 698, 710-711, 135 Cal. Rptr. 392, 557 P.2d 976

[2] Constitutional Considerations

Waiver of juvenile court jurisdiction to adult court as prohibited without providing minor with hearing, access to appointed counsel, discovery of all social records, and specific findings or statement of reasons why juvenile court seeks to relinquish jurisdiction. Kent v. United States (1966) 383 U.S. 541, 563-564, 86 S. Ct. 1045, 16 L. Ed. 2d 84

Welf. & Inst. Code § 707, establishing procedure by which juvenile court may certify minor to adult court on finding that minor is unfit for treatment and care under juvenile court law, as not unconstitutionally vague. Donald L. v. Superior Court (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 592, 601, 102 Cal. Rptr. 850, 498 P.2d 1098 (overruled on another ground in In re V. (1980) 28 Cal. 3d 587, 596, 169 Cal. Rptr. 713, 620 P.2d 163)

Presumption of unfitness of 14-year-old pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(e) as not violative of equal protection or due process. Hicks v. Superior Court (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1649, 1658-1661, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 269

[3] Considerations for Unfitness Finding

Robbery while armed with dangerous or deadly weapon, for which unfitness is presumed under Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(b)(3), as including vicarious as well as personal arming. In re Christopher R. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 86, 92-95, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 786, 859 P. 2d 1301

In certification proceeding, no limitations as imposed on evidence that court may consider other than basic tests of relevancy and materiality to issue of amenability to treatment by juvenile court facilities; requirement that court must read and consider probation officer's report on behavioral patterns as introducing wide assortment of hearsay, opinion evidence, evidence of prior offenses, school reports, and other miscellaneous information. People v. Chi Ko Wong (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 698, 718, 135 Cal. Rptr. 392, 557 P.2d 976

Factors that may be considered by juvenile court in certifying minor to adult court as including whether minor would be physical danger to society because of mental or physical deficiency, disorder, or abnormality, estimated time required for rehabilitation, nature of crime allegedly committed, circumstances and details surrounding commission, minor's behavior pattern including past record of delinquency, degree of sophistication especially as it relates to criminal activities, and contradictory opinion testimony. Jimmy H. v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 709, 715-716, 91 Cal. Rptr. 600, 478 P.2d 32

A presumption of unfitness under the circumstances and gravity of the crimes criterion may be rebutted by evidence pertaining to the minor's mental state, or mental retardation that tends to lessen the severity of the behavior even if it does not justify or excuse the offense. Rene C. v. Superior Court (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 1, 12-14, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 71

Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(b)'s listed offenses as restricted to felony offenses and not including misdemeanor offenses. In re Sim J. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 94, 96-99, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 30

People as not required to negate possibility that treatment through juvenile court system would be possible in hearing to determine fitness under Welf. & Inst. Code § 707. People v. Browning (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 125, 139, 119 Cal. Rptr. 420 (overruled on another ground in People v. Williams (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 663, 669, 128 Cal. Rptr. 888, 547 P.2d 1000)

Affirmative defense of alibi is not relevant at fitness hearing. People v. Superior Court (Rodrigo O.) (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1297, 1303, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 796

Presumption of Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(c) as inapplicable when minor challenges sufficiency of evidence against him or her, unless prosecution first establishes prima facie case that criminal violation was actually committed. Edsel P. v. Superior Court (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 763, 776-777, 211 Cal. Rptr. 869

Court as required to presume that juvenile age 16 or older charged with offense listed in Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(b) is not fit and proper subject of juvenile court law, unless court finds by preponderance of evidence that minor is fit and proper undereach of five criteria listed in Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(c). People v. Superior Court (Steven S.) (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 162, 174-177, 173 Cal. Rptr. 788

[4] Direct File (Prosecutorial Waiver)

If a minor, directly filed upon in criminal court pursuant to Penal Code § 707(d), is not convicted of the § 707(b) offense(s) that were the basis of the prosecutorial waiver, there is no subsequent binding effect keeping the child in adult court on the basis of future delinquency. People v. Superior Court (Marcelina M.) (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 651, 656-657 ; 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 940

Welf. & Inst. Code § 602(b) requires that juveniles age 14 or older be prosecuted under the general law when it is alleged that they have committed certain specified offenses. If convicted under the general law, such individuals may be punished by life in prison, with 14- and 15-year-olds eligible for parole. People v. Demirdjian (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 10, 16, 17, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 184

[5] Sentencing Considerations

The Supreme Court has determined that the requirement of Penal Code § 1170.19(a)(4), that the criminal court must secure the prosecutor's consent before it can order a Youth Authority (Division of Juvenile Justice) commitment violates the state Constitution's separation of powers doctrine (Cal. Const., Art. III, § 3). People v. Thomas (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 635, 642, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 2 .

Welf. & Inst. Code § 1732.6(a) restricts the criminal court's discretion to order a Youth Authority (Division of Juvenile Justice) commitment for minors convicted of any offense described in Penal Code § 667.5(c). Minors convicted of such offenses cannot be committed to the Youth Authority (Division of Juvenile Justice) if they have been "sentenced to incarceration for life, an indeterminate period to life, or a determinate period of years such that the maximum number of years of potential confinement when added to the minor's age would exceed 25 years." Welf. & Inst. Code § 1732.6(a), People v. Thomas (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 635, 643, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 2 .

[6] Statement of Reasons in Support of Findings

Because evidence in support of juvenile court's order of certification to adult court was overwhelming, court's failure to state reasons in support of unfitness finding as harmless error. People v. Chi Ko Wong (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 698, 723, 135 Cal. Rptr. 392, 557 P.2d 976

Juvenile court's fear that minor could not be kept within juvenile court's jurisdiction for significantly long period of time because Welf. & Inst. Code § 1800 allowing continued detention of dangerous persons might be declared unconstitutional as an insufficient basis for certifying minor to superior court. Jimmy H. v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 709, 716, 91 Cal. Rptr. 600, 478 P.2d 32

Where there is a presumption of unfitness the court must recite its findings as to each of the statutory criteria and state its reasons supported by evidence for finding the minor fit. People v. Superior Court (Zaharias M.) (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 302, 306, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 838

Where there is a presumption of unfitness, the minor has a right to require the prosecution to establish a prima facie case that he or she committed the acts that constitute the offense alleged. People v. Superior Court (Zaharias M.) (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 302, 307-308, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 838 .

Juvenile court has no jurisdiction to find minor unfit for treatment as juvenile without first receiving and considering probation department social study report (Welf. & Inst. Code § 707 (c)). Raul P. v. Superior Court (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 294, 298-299, 200 Cal. Rptr. 360

Transfer order to adult court under Welf. & Inst. Code § 707 as vacated if juvenile court fails to state reasons for transfer with sufficient particularity to permit meaningful review. Juan T. v. Superior Court (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 207, 211, 122 Cal. Rptr. 405

When referee's comments at time of fitness hearing clearly demonstrate that Youth Authority commitment was excluded from consideration, finding of unfitness as insufficient. People v. Joe T. (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 114, 121, 121 Cal. Rptr. 329 (disapproved on other grounds in People v. Chi Ko Wong (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 698, 716, 135 Cal. Rptr. 392, 557 P.2d 976)

Statement of reasons why juvenile court is certifying minor to adult court as not required to be in form of traditional findings of fact, but only in sufficient specificity to permit meaningful review. People v. Browning (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 125, 138, 119 Cal. Rptr. 420 (overruled on another ground in People v. Williams (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 663, 669, 128 Cal. Rptr. 888, 547 P.2d 1000)

[7] Subsequent Use of Fitness Finding

Prior finding of unfitness, where the juvenile was acquitted in adult court, did not deprive the juvenile court of jurisdiction to adjudicate subsequent petition. In re Richard C. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 966, 972, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 506

§ 329.262 Decisions

[1] Admissions of Allegations

Defects in giving admonitions and obtaining waivers on constitutional rights, as required by Boykin-Tahl rule does not result in reversal per se, and admission is valid if, under totality of circumstances, it was voluntary and intelligent. People v. Howard (1992) 1 Cal. 4th 1132, 1178-1179, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 268, 824 P. 2d 1315

Juvenile's personal admission of truth of penal charge as not properly given by his or her signing of prepared form. In re Regina N. (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 577, 584-585, 172 Cal. Rptr. 810

Application of Penal Code § 1203.4 (right of discharged probationer to change plea) to juvenile court proceedings as clearly violative of statute and contrary to legislative intent. In re S. A. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 241, 245, 85 Cal. Rptr. 775

[2] Amendment to Petition

Reversal of juvenile court finding of wardship as required when court found that minor committed uncharged lesser-related offense, over minor's objection. In re Johnny R. (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1579, 1583-1585, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 43

Reversal of finding of wardship under Welf. & Inst. Code § 602 as required when minor charged with rape and had no notice or warning of being subject to lesser related (but not included) charge of sexual battery, and silence of minor on conviction for sexual battery did not imply consent. In re Alberto S. (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1459, 1464-1465, 277

Cal. Rptr. 475

Reversal of finding of wardship under Welf. & Inst. Code § 602 as required when minor had committed an offense or offenses other than those specifically alleged in petition or necessarily included within an alleged offense, unless minor consents to finding on substituted charge. In re Robert G. (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 437, 445, 182 Cal. Rptr. 644, 644 P.2d 837

Reversal of finding as required when trial court allowed amendment of petition, over defendant's objection, to allege assault by means of force likely to produce great bodily injury, an offense not necessarily included within crimes of battery or robbery originally charged in petition. In re Roy C. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 912, 914-915, 215 Cal. Rptr. 513

Without appropriate amendment to charging petition or notice to minor, juvenile court as without jurisdiction to find minor guilty of uncharged and unincluded lesser offense in case in which minor remained silent and made no objection to procedure. In re Carlos S. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 377, 379-380, 156 Cal. Rptr. 442 ; see In re Tammie J. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 24, 25-26, 161 Cal. Rptr. 286

[3] Codefendants and Accomplices

Penal Code § 1111, which prohibits the use of uncorroborated accomplice testimony as the sole basis of a criminal conviction, is inapplicable to juvenile adjudications, although the Supreme Court decision in In re Mitchell P., which upholds the prohibition, "warrants reevaluation." In re Christopher B. (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 1557, 1564, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 253 .

Neither due process nor equal protection violated by holding Penal Code § 1111, which prohibits use of accomplice's uncorroborated testimony as sole basis of conviction, inapplicable to juvenile court proceedings. In re P. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 946, 949, 952-953, 151 Cal. Rptr. 330, 587 P.2d 1144 , cert. denied, 444 U.S. 845, 100 S. Ct. 90, 62 L. Ed. 2d 59 , reh'g denied, 444 U.S. 946, 100 S. Ct. 308, 62 L. Ed.2d 316

Aranda/Bruton procedures are not required in juvenile adjudications, since they are tried by a court, not a jury. In re Jose M. (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1470, 1479, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 55

Neither equal protection nor fundamental fairness as requiring that Penal Code § 1118 be applicable in juvenile court proceedings.

In re Joseph H. (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d 627, 632, 159 Cal. Rptr. 681

Juvenile court order sustaining petition brought under Welf. & Inst. Code § 602 alleging murder as reversed when proof of guilt consisted of prior, unsworn, out-of-court statement given by apparent accomplice under threat of prosecution and incarceration, when narrative was confused and declarant later repudiated statement under oath such that proof is so fraught with uncertainty as to preclude confident determination of guilt beyond reasonable doubt. In re Eugene M. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 650, 659, 127 Cal. Rptr. 851

Out-of-court statements made by one defendant that incriminate codefendant as not permitted to be introduced in joint jurisdictional hearing unless inculpatory references to codefendant deleted; if logical deletion impossible, hearings as required to be severed and statement used only against declarant. In re D. L. (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 65, 71, 120 Cal. Rptr. 276

Rule that accomplice testimony be corroborated, if applied to juvenile proceedings, would tend toward formality and an adversary atmosphere in juvenile system. In re R.C. (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 887, 896, 114 Cal. Rptr. 735

California requirement that accomplice testimony is to be corroborated as legislative refinement and not rule included within traditional concepts of due process because it must be required in juvenile cases. In re R.C. (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 887, 893, 114 Cal. Rptr. 735

[4] Continuances

If a continuance is sought in order to file a motion to set aside the jurisdictional finding based upon newly discovered evidence, pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 778, the motion may be denied when the allegedly new evidence is not dispositive of the outcome. People v. Beeler (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 953, 1003, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 607

Welf. & Inst. Code § 682(e) requires that when a contested jurisdictional hearing is continued for good cause, the hearing must commence within seven days of the day to which it was continued. In re Kerry K. (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 1, 4-7, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 467

A jurisdictional hearing does not "commence," for the purposes of § 682(e), if the prosecutor is not ready to process the case to conclusion when the hearing begins. In reChuong D. (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 1303, 1310-1311, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 351

[5] Discovery

Failure to allege nonrecollection of prior statements and admissions as not precluding discovery of statements and admissions if information sought was alleged to be necessary for preparation of defense, relevant and material to case, solely in control of real parties, and unknown to minor. Joe Z. v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 797, 805, 91 Cal. Rptr. 594, 478 P.2d 26

Statements, admissions, and conversations of former codefendants as discoverable in delinquency proceedings on showing of necessity and inability to obtain information from other sources. Joe Z. v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 797, 805, 91 Cal. Rptr. 594, 478 P.2d 26

Minor's statements, admissions, recorded conversations, and notes and memoranda concerning those conversations as discoverable in delinquency proceedings on showing of good cause. Joe Z. v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 797, 804, 91 Cal. Rptr. 594, 478 P.2d 26

Extensive discovery procedures generally applicable to civil proceedings as not available to minors in juvenile court. Joe Z. v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 797, 801, 91 Cal. Rptr. 594, 478 P.2d 26

Quasi-criminal character of delinquency proceedings as leading court to conclude that juvenile courts should have same degree of discretion as court in ordinary criminal case to permit, on proper showing, discovery between parties. Joe Z. v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 797, 801, 91 Cal. Rptr. 594, 478 P.2d 26

Juvenile court as having discretion to order discovery prior to fitness hearing; burden of justifying discovery, by showing reasonable necessity and that discovery will not unduly delay or prolong proceeding, as being on party seeking disclosure; if discovery request includes only those items listed in parallel adult reciprocal discovery statute, no additional showing as being required. Clinton K. v. Superior Court (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1244, 1249-1250, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 140

The sanction of dismissal should be employed only when the prosecutor has engaged in discovery misconduct that is depriving the minor defendant of a fair trial; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1420 (now Rule 5.546), to extent it allows juvenile court to dismiss solely because of discovery abuses, is inconsistent with legislative intent and is disapproved. In re Jesus J. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1057, 1060, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 429

Although Proposition 115's reciprocal discovery provisions do not apply to juvenile proceedings, juvenile court has inherent authority to order reciprocal discovery. Robert S. v. Superior Court (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 1417, 1422, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 489

A juvenile court has discretion to order reciprocal discovery consistent with Penal Code § 1054 et seq. in a delinquency case. However, the juvenile court must exercise its discretion to order reciprocal discovery by making a discovery order. In the absence of an express order for reciprocal discovery by the juvenile court, the provisions of Penal Code § 1054 do not automatically apply to a delinquency proceeding. In re Thomas F. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1249, 1254-1255, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 19

When it appears from evidence that informer is material witness on issue of guilt or innocence and defendant seeks disclosure of informer's identity, prosecution as required either to disclose identity or incur dismissal of action; defendant seeking disclosure of informer's identity as bearing burden of demonstrating that there is reasonable possibility that anonymous informant whose identity is sought could give evidence on issue of guilt that might result in defendant's exoneration. In re Tracy J. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 472, 477, 156 Cal. Rptr. 512

Juvenile court's failure to state reasons for dismissal under Welf. & Inst. Code § 782 in the minute order renders order invalid. In re Juan C (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 748, 753, 24 Cal. Rptr 2d 573

Juvenile court as having sole power to dismiss petition filed pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 602 and as not bound to accept recommendation of probation officer for dismissal. Raymond B. v. Superior Court (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 372, 378, 162 Cal. Rptr. 506

[7] Incompetency and Insanity

Due process requires that a competency hearing cannot be deferred until after the court has determined whether a case is to be heard in juvenile or adult court. Tyrone B. v. Superior Court (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 227, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 569

The standard for determining competency is whether the minor has the present ability to consult with his lawyer with a reasonable degree of rational understanding as well as factually understanding the proceedings against him, not whether the minor knows right from wrong or knows the wrongfulness of the act charged in the petition. In re Ricky S. (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 232, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 432

Mental disorder or developmental disability may not be the exclusive basis for incompetency to stand trial cases under Penal Code § 1367(a). The court's inquiry must determine developmental disability, including a minor's age, and assess cognitive, psychological, social, and moral development. Timothy J. v. Superior Court and Dante H. v. Superior Court (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 847, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 746 .

Because conviction of accused person while he is legally incompetent violates due process, state in juvenile court proceeding as conceding that protective reach of Penal Code § 1368, relating to recess of proceedings to resolve competency issue, extends to Welf. & Inst. Code § 602 proceedings in juvenile court. In re M. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 419, 430 n. 14, 149 Cal. Rptr. 387, 584 P.2d 524

Insanity as defense in juvenile court proceeding under Welf. & Inst. Code § 602. In re M. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 419, 423 n.3, 149 Cal. Rptr. 387, 584 P.2d 524

Juvenile as entitled to interpreter throughout criminal proceedings; acquiescence by defense counsel as not constituting adequate waiver of right. In re Dung T. (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 697, 707-709, 206 Cal. Rptr. 772

[9] Jury Trial and Advisory Jury

Consistent with overwhelming case law in support of the practice, as well as widespread use of juvenile adjudications as strikes in criminal courts, the California Supreme Court has held that the Constitution does not preclude use of sentence enhancements against adult felons who had "prior valid, fair, and reliable [juvenile] adjudications[s] ... where the juvenile proceeding included all the constitutional protections applicable to such matters, even though these protections did not include the right to a jury trial." People v. Nguyen (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 1007, 1019, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 615

Following the decision in People v. Nguyen (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 1007, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 615 , which held that using prior juvenile adjudications to enhance an adult offender's sentence under the Three Strikes Law was constitutional, appellate courts have found the rationale applicable to use as an aggravating factor under Cal. Rule of Court, Rule 4.421(b)(2). People v. Quiles (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 612, 620-621, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 378

The collateral impact of the Three Strikes law does not change the fundamentally different nature of juvenile and adult court proceedings; hence, a juvenile adjudication without a jury trial does not violate a juvenile's due process rights. In re Myresheia W. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 734, 741 ; 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 647

Broad provisions of Welf. & Inst. Code § 680 as including discretionary power on part of juvenile court to empanel advisory jury to assist in determination of jurisdictional issues when, in exceptional case, benefits to be derived from use of advisory jury far outweigh any benefits of informality and confidentiality. People v. Superior Court (Carl W.) (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 271, 284-285, 124 Cal. Rptr. 47, 539 P.2d 807

Considerations properly weighed in determining desirability of empaneling an advisory jury as falling into three categories: (1) nature and relative difficulty of fact finding task in particular case, (2) seriousness of charges from point of view of probable dispositionof minor if they were sustained, and (3) extent to which any salutary effects attendant on informal proceeding remain possible of achievement in circumstances. People v. Superior Court (Carl W.) (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 271, 284, 124 Cal. Rptr. 47, 539 P.2d 807

Neither state nor federal Constitution guarantees jury trial in juvenile proceedings. In re Daedler (1924) 194 Cal. 320, 332, 228 P. 467

Changing philosophy of juvenile court law dictates that juveniles be granted constitutional right to jury trial, however court of appeal bound by stare decisis to holding of California Supreme Court denying right to jury trial to juveniles. In re Javier A. (1984) 159 Cal. App.3d 913, 954, 206 Cal. Rptr. 386

Minor as having no constitutional right to waive right to be treated as juvenile in order to obtain jury trial in criminal court. In re Anna S. (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 869, 871-873, 160 Cal. Rptr. 495

Neither state nor federal Constitution as guaranteeing jury trial in juvenile proceeding. In re Anthony J. (1978) 86

Cal. App. 3d 164, 174, 150 Cal. Rptr. 183

Although due process includes right to trial by jury in state criminal proceedings, equal protection as not requiring that juvenile courts use juries. In re R.C. (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 887, 896, 114 Cal. Rptr. 735

Juvenile as not entitled to jury trial based on rationale that California Constitution does not require that full panoply of rights accorded adults accused of crimes be extended to juvenile because to do so would introduce strong tone of criminality in juvenile proceedings. In re Steven C. (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 255, 261, 88 Cal. Rptr. 97

[10] Procedural Format of Juvenile Court Proceedings

In considering whether the shackling of a juvenile at a jurisdictional hearing is warranted, the court should apply the same standard used for adult defendants in preliminary hearings, specifically that some showing of necessity is required and finding stated on the record. In re DeShaun M. (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 1384, 1387, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 627 .

The court may not adopt a general policy requiring the use of physical restraints based solely on the inadequacy of courtroom facilities or lack of available security personnel, and the decision to shackle a minor who appears for a delinquency court proceeding must be based on the non-conforming conduct and behavior of that individual minor, made on a case-by-case basis, and depends upon the type of proceeding. Tiffany A. v. Superior Court (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 1344 .

History of Welfare and Institutions Code sections dealing with structure of juvenile court proceedings as clearly indicating that Legislature intended to create bifurcated juvenile court procedure in which court would first determine whether facts of the case would support jurisdiction of court in declaring wardship and thereafter would consider social study report at hearing on appropriate disposition of that ward. In re J.L.P. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 86, 89, 100 Cal. Rptr. 601

Theory underlying legislative policy requiring bifurcated procedure is that once minor has been declared fit subject for juvenile treatment, court as existing not for punishment but for assistance of juvenile; thus, considerations relative to proper disposition of minor as different from those that bear on determination that a crime has been committed. In re J.L.P. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 86, 89, 100 Cal. Rptr. 601

Juvenile court proceedings as designed to produce informal nonadversary atmosphere such that there appears to be no reason why jurisdictional and dispositional phases cannot be disposed of in single bifurcated hearing provided that there is compliance with basic requirements of those phases. In re Mikkelsen (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 467, 470, 38 Cal. Rptr. 106

Due process does not require a full evidentiary hearing on dual status determinations pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 241.1. In re Henry S. (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 248, 252 , 44 Cal. Rprt. 3d 418

[11] Proceedings Under Welf. & Inst. Code § 601

When juvenile was placed in foster group home on petition sustained pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 601, juvenile court as not having jurisdiction to sustain petition under Welf. & Inst. Code § 602 on ground that minor ran away from placement in absence of specific court order directing minor to remain in placement and obey rules of placement. In re C. (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 761, 765, 119 Cal. Rptr. 735

When breakdown in parental control is because of failings in parent rather than in minor, Welf. & Inst. Code § 601 petition as not sustainable; finding as supporting determination that minor is within Welf. & Inst. Code § 600 (now Welf.

& Inst. Code § 300) because Welf. & Inst. Code § 600 deals with children in need of help, not with delinquent children in need of correction. In re Henry G. (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 276, 284, 104 Cal. Rptr. 585

Although single instance of conduct as sufficient to make minor subject to jurisdiction of juvenile court when he or she violates law or fails to obey lawful order of court after being found to be person described in Welf. & Inst. Code § 601, rule as not necessarily applying to proceedings pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 601 when standards of conduct not carefully delineated. In re D.J.B. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 782, 786, 96 Cal. Rptr. 146

When 14-year-old minor deliberately lied to mother to obtain permission to spend weekend with friends about 40 miles away, but was picked up about 600 miles away in process of crossing foreign border, single act was sufficiently serious to support finding that minor was beyond parental control and subject to juvenile court jurisdiction under Welf. & Inst. Code § 601. In re David S. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 1124, 1128, 91 Cal. Rptr. 261

Language of Welf. & Inst. Code § 601 as construed to require repeated refusals on part of minor to obey parents in order to fall within first portion of Welf. & Inst. Code § 601, but to require only single act, if sufficiently serious, to indicate that minor was "beyond control." In re David S. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 1124, 1128, 91 Cal. Rptr. 261

Phrase in Welf. & Inst. Code § 601, "beyond control," as construed basically to mean defying parental authority. In re David S. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 1124, 1126, 91 Cal. Rptr. 261

Refusal by dependent child of court to remain in placement as relevant and material evidence in jurisdictional hearing under Welf. & Inst. Code § 601, but refusal in single instance to do so as not constituting persistent or habitual refusal to obey reasonable and proper order or directions of custodian. In re Rita P. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 1057, 1060, 95 Cal. Rptr. 430

The parties in § 601 proceedings are the minor and the probation officer. People v. Superior Court (Tony S.) (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 904, 908, 119 Cal. Rptr. 125 . The probation officer must determine upon investigation whether the minor's best interest would be served if he is declared a ward of the court and must furnish such assistance and information as the court may require in the disposition of the case. In re Steven C. (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 255, 265, 88 Cal. Rptr. 97 . This includes appearing and participating in the jurisdictional hearing to assist in the ascertaining and presentation of the evidence with the consent or at the request of the juvenile court judge. In reJesse G. (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 724, 731, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 331

[12] Proceedings Under Welf. & Inst. Code § 602

The 12-month time limit specified in Welf. & Inst. Code § 654.2(a) is directory not mandatory and, as such, a violation of the statute does not result in the trial court losing fundamental jurisdiction over a case and wardship was properly established even though the 12-month period had expired. In re C.W. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 468, 474, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 851 .

Referee as without authority under Cal. Const., art. VI, § 22, to conduct jurisdictional hearing under Welf. & Inst. Code § 602, absent stipulation conferring judicial power. In re C. (1979) 26 Cal. 3d 49, 57, 160 Cal. Rptr. 704, 603 P.2d 1300

Court as committing reversible error in reviewing social study before determination of issue of jurisdiction of juvenile court. In re R. (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 855, 859-860, 83 Cal. Rptr. 671, 464 P.2d 127

Oral stipulation to referee as temporary judge was sufficient. In re Aontae D. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 167, 172, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 176

Penal Code § 120221(d), which prohibits a person on probation from possessing a firearm, applies to juveniles on probation. In re Reyes P. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1468, 1471-1472, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 466

Because Penal Code § 186.22(a), (b) and (d) are a creation of Proposition 21, they are intended to apply to juvenile conduct and proceedings in spite of the fact they speak in terms of convictions and do not refer to juvenile adjudications. In re Damien V. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 16, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 107

Court's denial of opportunity for counsel to argue merits of case on conclusion of testimony prior to pronouncement of finding in jurisdictional hearing as reversible error. In re William G. (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 210, 217, 165 Cal. Rptr. 587

Use of criminal contempt to create Welf. & Inst. Code § 602 offense when minor violated court order by running away (which is Welf. & Inst. Code § 601 offense) as improper. In re Mary D. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 34, 36-38, 156 Cal. Rptr. 829

Admission of reputation evidence regarding minor's membership in Chinese gang as reversible error when testimony was not based on personal knowledge, was irrelevant to change, constituted hearsay, and constituted prejudice to minor of irreparable nature, particularly when identification testimony of minor was not particularly strong or persuasive. In re Wing Y. (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 69, 79, 136 Cal. Rptr. 390

Appeal from declaration of wardship under Welf. & Inst. Code § 602 on grounds that only evidence received was mother's testimony that juvenile confessed to acts alleged should have been excluded on ground of parent-child privilege analogous to attorney-client privilege as resulting in affirmation of trial court's determination that no such privilege existed by statute and could not therefore be considered according to Evid. Code § 911. In re Terry W. (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 745, 748, 130 Cal. Rptr. 913

Federal ICWA statutes permit states to pass more stringent laws affecting the rights of Indian children with respect to protecting the rights of a parent or Indian custodian, and while Welf. & Inst. Code § 224.3 expands its reach to delinquency proceedings, it does so only where those proceedings relate to parents of Indian custodians and the child is at risk of foster care placement. In re Alejandro A. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 1343, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 44

Minor as possessing no constitutional right to public trial in juvenile court proceedings. In re Jesse McM. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 187, 189, 164 Cal. Rptr. 199

[14] Refiling of Petition

Characterization of juvenile court proceedings as not criminal in nature and conducted for protection and benefit of youth in question as leading court to find that failure of deputy district attorney to subpoena witnesses as minor lapse in form that should not preclude refiling of petition dismissed without prejudice due to resulting lapse of time limitation imposed for setting of trial. Neil G. v. Superior Court (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 572, 576, 106 Cal. Rptr. 505

[15] Deferred Entry of Judgment

DEJ serves to 1) identify nonviolent juvenile offenders who are at risk of escalating their antisocial behavior, yet remain candidates for rehabilitation, and 2) target scarce resources toward treating and rehabilitating theses individuals. It also implicitly acknowledges that minors over the age of 14 who have felony petitions sustained against them face severe consequences under the law. In re Spencer S. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1315, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 477

Welf. & Inst. Code § 790(a)(4) makes a minor ineligible for DEJ if "probation has ever been revoked without being completed." Recent case law suggests that in order for this section to take effect, the court must expressly revoke probation. This is true notwithstanding the fact that a minor may have sustained a new delinquency petition, or that said petition was based upon facts that clearly violate the terms and conditions of probation, while on probation. In support of the position, the court in T.P. relies upon the distinction between probation violation and probation revocation as discussed in People v. Coleman (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 867, 895 n 22 . Unfortunately, no such distinction exists in juvenile law since Welf.& Inst. Code § 777(e), allowing for probation to be violated without revocation, was deleted with the passage of Proposition 21 on March 8, 2000. In re T.P. (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1, 4-5, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 893

The compromise between procedural fairness and desirable outcomes may be achieved by distinguishing between a minor's right to make a motion to suppress evidence prior to a jurisdictional hearing and the jurisdictional hearing itself. Under this analysis, a minor may file and argue such motions prior to the jurisdictional hearing while reserving the right to admit the petition as alleged and request DEJ if they do not prevail. In re A.I. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1426, 1433-1437, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 501

Where a minor declines to admit each allegation in the petition, no duty on behalf of the juvenile court arises to refer the case to the probation department or to summarily grant DEJ. In re Usef S. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 276, 285, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 612

DEJ is intended to provide an "expedited mechanism for channeling certain first-time offenders away from the full panoply of a contested delinquency proceeding" and that goal cannot coexist with a minor who insists on exercising every procedural protection offered. In re Kenneth J. (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 973, 980, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 352

§ 329.272 Decisions

[1] Calculation of Term

There is no statutory authority for setting the maximum time of confinement when a minor is not removed from the physical custody of his or her parent and it is error for a court to specify a term of imprisonment in such cases. In re Matthew A. (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 537, 541, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 119

Section 731(c) gives the juvenile court the discretion to set the maximum confinement time at less than the lengthiest term an adult would serve for the same offense, but it does not allow for the imposition of a term less than the minimum adult term. In re Joseph M. (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 889, 896, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 756 .

Juvenile "max time" is an outside time limit on a DJF commitment, not a specific term of confinement. Neither the aggravating/mitigating circumstance scheme nor the restrictions enumerated in Cunningham, which are applicable to the sentencing of adult felons, are directly applicable to setting "max time" in juvenile cases. In re Christian G. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 708, 715, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 215 .

Commitment of a minor to DJF for the maximum period under Welf. & Inst. Code § 731 is not equivalent to an adult's commitment to prison for the upper term based upon aggravating factors because the statutory scheme and cases "not only justify but demand a different treatment approach" for minors and, as such, the requirements of Cunningham v. California do not apply to delinquency. In re Alex U. (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 259, 266, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 695

Length of commitment of minor under 18 U.S.C. § 5037(c)(1)(B), a federal Juvenile Delinquency Act provision limiting detention to maximum term authorized for adult, as dependent on court's determination of maximum permissible sentence in appropriate range under U.S. Sentencing Guidelines. United States v. R.L.C. (1992) 503 U.S.

Penal Code § 12022.1 "free on bail" enhancement is applicable to juvenile on home supervision. In re Jovan B. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 801, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 428, 863 P.2d 673

Persons committed to Youth Authority as not entitled to have presentence conduct credits applied against maximum term of commitment. People v. Austin (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 155, 161-166, 178 Cal. Rptr. 312, 636 P.2d 1 (adults); In re Ricky H. (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 176, 184-190, 178 Cal. Rptr. 324, 636 P.2d 13 (minors)

Minor as entitled, in accordance with Welf. & Inst. Code § 726(c), to precommitment credit for time spent in juvenile hall pending resolution of charges against him. In re J. (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 522, 536, 159 Cal. Rptr. 317, 601 P.2d 549

When the court elects to aggregate the period of physical confinement on multiple petitions, it need not include all of the petitions previously sustained or the time served on those petitions. In re Bryant R. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1230, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 734

Welf. & Inst. Code § 731(b) applies only to commitments to CDCR, DJF whereas § 726(c) applies to all commitments where the minor is removed from the physical custody of his or her parent. In re Ali A. (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 569, 572-574, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 846

Once maximum time of confinement has been computed, subsequent redeterminations of time for petitions previously sustained is prohibited. In re David H. (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 1131, 1137, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 330

Welf. & Inst. Code § 607(b) which extends juvenile court jurisdiction to age 25 for 707(b) offenses applies to minors under the age of 16. In re Julian O. (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 847, 850-851, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 193

Time spent on "house arrest" or electronic monitoring does not entitle a minor to receive custody credits for the purposes of calculating maximum time of confinement. In re Lorenzo L. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1076, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 150

Minor is not entitled to credit for time spent on home detention or other nonsecure placements. In re Randy J. (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1497, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 152

"Maximum term of imprisonment" as calculated by using upper term for both substantive offense and enhancement that has been found true. In re George M. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 376, 381-382, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29

Penal Code § 654 (barring multiple convictions based on included offenses) as irrelevant to delinquency proceedings, so long as juvenile court's aggregation of offenses does not increase minor's theoretical maximum term of confinement. In re Robert W. (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 32, 34, 279 Cal. Rptr. 625

Person originally sentenced to state prison after determination that he or she is not amenable to Youth Authority treatment, but subsequently resentenced and committed to Youth Authority, as not being entitled to have maximum Youth Authorityconfinement time reduced by conduct credits earned while in state prison. People v. Linear (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 508, 510, 249 Cal. Rptr. 836

When aggravating multiple counts and previously sustained petitions, the maximum confinement term is calculated by adding the upper term for the principal offense, plus one-third of the middle term for each of the remaining subordinate felonies or misdemeanors. Welf. & Inst. Code § 726; Pen. Code § 1170.1(a). In re Deborah C. (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 125, 140, 177 Cal. Rptr. 852

Aggregating current Youth Authority commitment with unrelated previously suspended term as improper unless sufficient advance notice to minor and parents of at least 48 hours is given to allow fair opportunity to defend at dispositional hearing. In re Jose P. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 52, 60-61, 161 Cal. Rptr. 400

In light of Welf. & Inst. Code § 707.2, providing that prior to sentence court of criminal jurisdiction may remand minor to custody of Youth Authority for purpose of evaluation, trial court as not precluded by fitness hearing in juvenile court before criminal proceedings were begun and pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 707, as result of which it was found minor would not be amenable to care, treatment, and training program available through facilities of Youth Authority, from committing minor to Youth Authority where court felt minor could benefit from and was in need of rehabilitation program provided by Authority. People v. Jiminez (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 707, 709-713, 157 Cal. Rptr. 86

Advancement of parole consideration hearing date to take account of time served prior to commitment as not required by Penal Code § 2900.5 because date does not establish parole release date, term, or sentence. In re Davis (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 919, 923-924, 151 Cal. Rptr. 29

A commitment to the Division of Juvenile Facilities, in the Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation's Division of Juvenile Justice, requires that a specific term be set and that the record reflect that the court has considered facts and circumstance related to the case in setting that term. In re Jacob J. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 429, 437-439, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 255 ; In re Carlos E. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1529, 1542-1543, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 551

The court has the discretion under Welf. & Inst. Code § 726(c) to commit a minor to the Youth Authority (Division of Juvenile Justice) solely on the current allegations, instead of aggregating all of the previously sustained petitions against him. In re Alex N. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 18, 22-23, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 172

Disregarding a minor's most recently sustained petition when committing a minor to DJF is contradictory to the well-settled laws governing the juvenile court system and would undermine the court's policy of holding minors accountable for their actions. In re G.C. (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 405, 411, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 523

The court's discretion to set a term of physical confinement to a term less than the maximum imposable term is not limited to the options available under the determinate sentencing law "triad" set by Penal Code § 1170. The juvenile court operates under an indeterminate disposition scheme in which the minor's release date and term of confinement are determined by the Board of Parole Hearings, subject to the "ceiling" imposed by the committing court. This means, at a minimum, that the court may impose any maximum time within the range of statutory options available for the offense committed. In re H.D. (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 768, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 627 ; In re R.O. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1493, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 738

Where the record is silent as to whether the court considered the relevant facts and circumstances when setting the minor's confinement period, it is presumed that the court performed its statutory duty and was aware of the discretion provided pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 731(c). In re Julian R. (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 487, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 790

In the context of calculating maximum time pursuant to § 731(b), it has been noted that the juvenile court operates under an indeterminate disposition scheme that is not limited to the options available under the adult criminal sentencing triad set forth in Penal Code § 1170. Therefore, at least pursuant to DJF commitment, the court may impose any maximum time of confinement within the range of statutory options available for the offense committed. In re H.D. (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 768, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 627 ; In re R.O. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1493, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 738

[2] Division of Juvenile Facilities

"It is unlikely that the Legislature intended always to bar DJF commitments for juveniles who commit DJF-eligible offenses, who are given a second chance via probation, and who fail to make good on that second chance. ... [T]he purpose of ... Section 733 was to reduce the cost and increase the effectiveness of juvenile confinement by shifting all but the most serious juvenile offenders to county facilities. [cites] This purpose does not support the view that those who commit the offenses the Legislature deemed serious enough for DJF must not be confined there if they first get probation but then violate its terms." In re M.B. (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1472, 1478, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 359

Welf. & Inst. Code § 707.2, requiring adult criminal court to order Youth Authority evaluation and report before sentencing minor, as mandatory even when offense precludes Youth Authority commitment; evaluation as not futile because sentencing court has discretion to strike allegations and can commit youthful offender to Department of Corrections but order him or her housed in Youth Authority facilities. *People v. Rule 1494(c) (now Rule 5.795) of the California Rules of Court requires that the juvenile court specify in its order committing a minor to the California Youth Authority whether the minor's offense "is one listed in Section 707(b)" of the Welfare and Institutions Code; a determination of this finding may be reached by consideration of the circumstances of the underlying offense as found in the probation officer's social study and other relevant evidence. *In re Gary B. Juvenile court as properly committing minor to Youth Authority when minor committed number of serious crimes and

[3] Continued Detention of Dangerous Persons

The extended detention scheme has repeatedly been found to have a demonstrably civil purpose and confinement, in furtherance of that purpose, is imposed only for treatment. In re Brian J. (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 97, 135, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 246 .

The current version of the Extended Detention Act, amended in light of Howard N., is constitutional and the "serious and well-founded risk of reoffense" language is not a required finding for an extended commitment. In re Lemanuel C. (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 33, 43-49, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 597 , disapproving In re Michael H. (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 1074, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 627 .

Though § 1800 proceedings are civil in nature, § 1801.5 clearly and unambiguously affords "all" constitutional rights to juveniles facing extended commitments that defendants in criminal trials are given, including the right not to testify in commitment proceedings (the probable cause hearing as well as subsequent trial). Joshua D. v. Superior Court (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 549, 565, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 715

The California Supreme Court addressed the extended detention scheme and determined that it was constitutional through an interpretation that requires not only that a person is physically dangerous to the public because of their mental deficiency, disorder, or abnormality, but also that the mental deficiency, disorder, or abnormality causes serious difficulty controlling their dangerous behavior and must result in a serious and well- founded risk of re-offense. Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 1800, 1800.5, 1801, 1801.5; In re Howard N. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 117, 135, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 866

[4] Effect of Diagnostic Study

Consideration of Youth Authority amenability report as only one factor that court is required to consider, and although court must give it serious consideration, court is nevertheless free to reject it; 1982 amendment to Welf. & Inst. Code § 707.2 as retaining requirement for report, but as abrogating rule of People v. Carl B. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 212, 217-219, 155 Cal. Rptr. 189, 594 P.2d 14 , that court must give great weight to YA recommendation absent substantial countervailing considerations. People v. Jones (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 585, 600, 250 Cal. Rptr. 635, 758 P.2d 1165

Youth Authority's recommendation after diagnostic study as not absolutely binding on sentencing court but as entitled to great weight and ordinarily should be followed in absence of substantial countervailing considerations. People v. B. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 212, 214-215, 155 Cal. Rptr. 189, 192, 594 P.2d 14 amendment of Welf. & Inst. Code § 707.2 as enlarging trial court's sentencing discretion, in specific reaction to Carl B.; thus, although trial court is required to consider Youth Authority recommendation that minor be placed in Youth Authority facilities as factor in sentencing, it is only one of several primary considerations in determining appropriate disposition. People v. Martinez (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1372, 1388, 237 Cal. Rptr. 219 ; People v. Lesnick (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 637, 645, 234 Cal. Rptr. 491

[5] Juveniles Inappropriate for Commitment

List of juveniles inappropriate for commitment to Youth Authority as including: (1) youths who are dependent or primarily placement problems; (2) unsophisticated, mildly delinquent youths for whom commingling with serious delinquents who make up most of Youth Authority population might result in negative learning experience and loss of self-esteem; and (3) mentally retarded or mentally disturbed youths. *In re Aline D. [7] Necessary Findings for Commitment

Juvenile court did not err in failing to make and enter express findings indicating reasons for order of commitment in addition to statement required by Welf. & Inst. Code § 726. In re Kenneth H. (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 616, 620-621, 189 Cal. Rptr. 867, 659 P.2d 1156 ; In re H. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 18, 24-25, 145 Cal. Rptr. 357, 577 P.2d 177

[8] Return of Minor by Youth Authority

When juvenile committed to Youth Authority was returned to juvenile court under Welf. & Inst. Code § 780, but juvenile court was prohibited from transferring case to adult court in violation of double jeopardy bar and had no other plausible alternatives, juvenile court as having authority to refuse to vacate, modify, or set aside previous Youth Authority commitment; Youth Authority as required to accept juvenile back in custody. Breed v. Superior Court (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 773, 782, 134 Cal. Rptr. 228

Rptr. 137, 497 P.2d 481*

Juvenile honorably discharged from control by Youth Authority except those who during incarceration have been placed in state prison as having absolute right to release from all penalties and disabilities resulting from offense or crime and to petition court to set aside verdict of guilty and dismiss accusation or information; court as required to grant petition regardless of fact that minor after release became involved in criminal activity. Parks v. Code § 602 requiring as condition of probation that minor spend five to 20 days in juvenile hall at discretion of juvenile hall staff as appropriate when order was made in furtherance of purpose of juvenile court law to rehabilitate minor by offering least restrictive alternative, where commitment was reasonable, fitting, and proper to end of reformation and rehabilitation, and supported by appropriate findings that minor had previously failed on probation, and continued uninterrupted physical custody of minor by parents would be detrimental. In re Ricardo M. (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 744, 751, 125 Cal. Rptr. 291

Dismissal of case as one alternative available to referee at time of original disposition if court supervision is then thought to be unnecessary or harmful despite absence of such alternative in statutory scheme. In re W. R. W. (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 1029, 1037, 95 Cal. Rptr. 354

In dispositions under petitions brought pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 602, removal of minor from parental custody as matter of last resort and should not be ordered unless other means have failed. In re Donna G. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 890, 894, 86 Cal. Rptr. 421

A minor not personally or immediately responsible for a victim's loss may still be subject to an order of restitution. In re I.M. (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1195, 1209, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 375 . It is enough that a restitution order "would make amends 'to society for the breach of the law, for any injury done to any person resulting from that breach, and generally and specifically for the reformation and rehabilitation of the probationer.' [citation]" Ibid.

The court may also order the probation department to financially assist a parent's travel to and from visitation when necessary to promote the goal of returning the minor to parental custody. This does not mean that parents are entitled to transportation costs as a matter of constitutional right. It does, however, mean that the broad statutory powers conferred upon the court to make "any and all reasonable orders for the care, supervision, custody, conduct, maintenance, and support of the minor ..." includes the ability to order the payment of travel costs for a parent, so long as "appropriated funds are reasonably available." In re L.M. (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 645, 650-651 , 99 Cal. Rptr. 33d 350

Since restitution laws are to be broadly and liberally construed, and are authorized by a dispositional statute passed by the Legislature, there is no right to have the obligation to pay restitution, or its amount determined by a civil jury trial. In re A.M. (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 668, 673-674, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 168

The nexus between sustained offense and loss to the victim need not be direct or apparent. Recent case law suggests that an offense as benign as driving without a license, in violation of Veh. Code § 12500(a), may support a restitution order for burial and cremation expenses for a victim struck and killed by a car driven by a minor. In that instance, the police reports indicated that both the driver and pedestrian were responsible for the accident. Still, in making the restitution order, the court determined restitution to be appropriate as the minor's conduct was a substantial factor in causing the accident, notwithstanding the nature of the sustained offense. In re A.M. (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 668, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 168

"Harvey Stipulations" or "Harvey Waivers" do not apply to juvenile court proceedings. In juvenile court proceedings, dismissed charges or conduct that is not charged may be considered for the purpose of disposition, including restitution orders. In re T.C. (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 837, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 447

Specific orders that a minor take medications prescribed for conditions related to his or her rehabilitation may be lawful but must be narrowly tailored. While they need not specify particular medication by name, they must refer to a specific diagnosis and prescription related to rehabilitation. In re Luis F. (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 176, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 174

Home supervision, or house arrest, is a permissible sanction [In re Walter P. (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 95, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 668] , as is use of electronic monitoring devices, including global positioning system (GPS) devices [In re R.V. (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 239, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 702] . It should be noted that because such conditions do not fall within the definition of "secure confinement" pursuant to Welf.& Inst. Code § 726(c), they neither require wardship nor count as custody credits against a minor's maximum time of confinement. In re Walter P. (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 95, 101-102, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 668

With respect to associations, the preferred language is to prohibit association "with any person known to you to be on probation, on parole or a member of a criminal street gang" [In re H.C. (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 1067, 1072, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 793] . With respect to orders related to "dangerous or deadly weapon" possession, it has been held to apply to items specifically delineated by statutes and items that can be used to cause injury or death. In re R.P. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 562, 566-570, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 822

The conditions required by Welf. & Inst. Code § 729.2 must be imposed and other conditions, not related to removal from parental custody or placement in "secure confinement" as defined in Welf. & Inst. Code § 726(c), may be imposed as well. Among these conditions, a period of time on home supervision or "house arrest" and participation in a juvenile work program are permitted. In re Walter P. (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 95, 101-103, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 668

An order placed upon a minor living with his mother in Mexico that prohibited him from entering the United States except to attend school, work, or visit his father and family, and required notification to his probation officer before entering the country, was determined to be lawful for the child whose sustained petition involved marijuana smuggling. Alex O. v. Superior (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1176, 95 Cal. Rptr. 438

[13] Parent's Liability for Support of Minor

In determining restitution based upon a victim's medical expenses, when a medical provider accepts a patient's Medi-Cal payment, the provider is barred from recovery for any unpaid balance from the patient. The amount of restitution ordered should reflect the amount of the Medi-Cal payment, not the amount billed by the provider. In re Anthony M. (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 1010, 1018, 67 Cal.Rptr. 3d 734

Economic losses, pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 730.6, are broadly defined and the court may order payment for costs incurred to collect restitution, including legal fees incurred for collection of economic loss. In re Imran Q. (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1316, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 121

Because the state's interest in the rehabilitation of juvenile offenders is not implicated by a release of vicarious liability against an otherwise non-culpable parent, payments accepted by victims from the insurer of a parent or guardian will release the parent of guardian from liability for restitution. In re Michael S. (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 1443,

1451-1453, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 920

Judges have broad discretion in fixing the amount of restitution and may use any rational method for determining the amount, provided that it is reasonably calculated to make the victim whole and is consistent with the purpose of rehabilitation. In re Dina V. (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 486, 489, 59 Cal. Rptr. 3d 862

County as entitled to reimbursement from family of minor child declared ward of juvenile court for Aid to Families with Dependent Children--Foster Care (AFDC-FC) grant paid by county to foster care group home to support minor. County of San Mateo v. Dell J. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1236, 1241-1242 n.5, 252 Cal. Rptr. 478, 762 P.2d 1202 (clarifying that concurring opinion in *In re Jerald C. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 1, 201 Cal. [5] Subsequent Use in Criminal Court Sentencing

Consistent with overwhelming case law in support of the practice, as well as widespread use of juvenile adjudications as strikes in criminal courts, the California Supreme Court has held that the Constitution does not preclude use of sentence enhancements against adult felons who had "prior valid, fair, and reliable [juvenile] adjudications[s] ... where the juvenile proceeding included all the constitutional protections applicable to such matters, even though these protections did not include the right to a jury trial." People v. Nguyen (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 1007, 1019, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 615

Following the decision in People v. Nguyen (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 1007, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 615 , which held that using prior juvenile adjudications to enhance an adult offender's sentence under the Three Strikes Law was constitutional, appellate courts have found the rationale applicable to use as an aggravating factor under California Rule of Court, Rule 4.421(b)(2). People v. Quiles (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 612, 620-621, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 378

This Judicial Council form is used to petition to have a child declared a ward of the court (JV-600) [see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 601, 602; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.520]. It includes one of three existing Judicial Council forms of attachment alleging grounds for jurisdiction in a delinquency proceeding: Child Habitually Disobedient (JV-610) [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 601(a)]. The other existing attachments are entitled:

- Child Habitually Truant (JV-611) [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 601(b)].
- Violation of Law by Child (JV-620) [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 602].

This form is usually filed by the district attorney after a referral from a probation officer, but a complaining party may also apply to commence proceedings if the probation officer does not recommend the filing of a petition [Welf. & Inst. Code § 653.5, 655].

Use of this form is mandatory [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.504]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge. Note that the attachment forms JV-610, JV-611, JV-620 are not included as they are normally used only by the district attorney or probation officer.

[3] Form of Petition

The petition must be verified [Welf. & Inst. Code § 656; see Welf. & Inst. Code § 656.5]. An unverified petition may be dismissed without prejudice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.524(b)]. The petition must contain the following [Welf. & Inst. Code § 656; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.524(b)]:

- The title of the court and the proceedings.
- The relevant code provisions.
- The name, age, and address, if known, of the minor.
- The names and residence addresses, if known, of both parents and any guardian of the minor. If no parent or guardian resides within the state, or the residence address is unknown, the name and address of the adult relative residing nearest to the location of the court must be included.
- A concise statement of the facts concerning the alleged misconduct.
- Whether or not the minor was detained and if so, the precise time the minor was taken into custody.
- Various notices regarding restitution, fines, penalties, community service, etc.

[4] Service of Notice and Petition

The juvenile court clerk must serve notice and a copy of the verified petition on the minor, parent or guardian, any known attorney for the minor, parent, or guardian, and, if requested, the district attorney [Welf. & Inst. Code § 658; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule5.524(f); see § 329.351 (form of notice of hearing), and Ch. 328, Juvenile Courts: Dependency Proceedings, § 328.353 (form of proof of service of juvenile court petition)]. Failure to do so is a jurisdictional error that may be raised on a motion at the hearing or by a petition for habeas corpus [In re Linda D. (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 567, 571, 83 Cal. Rptr. 544] .

Code § 658*; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.524].

This form may also be used to serve notice of any of the hearings in a delinquency proceeding, including detention, jurisdiction, disposition, and review hearings. The appropriate hearing must be marked in Paragraph 2 of the form.

Use of this form is mandatory [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.504]. [3] Form of Notice

The notice must contain the following [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 658, 659; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.524(f)]:

- The names and addresses of the minor and the person entitled to notice.
- The relevant code provisions.
- The date, time, and place for the hearing.
- A statement that the minor, parent, or guardian is entitled to have an attorney present at the hearing and that, if the party is indigent and desires an attorney, he or she should promptly notify the juvenile court clerk.
- A cautionary statement of the party's potential financial liability for appointed counsel and for costs of support of the minor at a county institution.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that, on _____[date], at _____[time], or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in [_____ (Department or Division) _____ of] this court, located at _____[street address], _____[city], the minor _____[name] will, and hereby does, move for an order suppressing as evidence the following: _____[describe with particularity the evidence, statement, or admission to be suppressed]. The motion will be made on the grounds that the _____[evidence or statement or admission] was illegally obtained because _____[state basis for assertion that evidence, statement, or admission was illegally obtained].

The motion will be based on this notice of motion, on the declaration(s) of _____[name(s)] and the memorandum of points and authorities served and filed herewith, on the records and file herein, and on such evidence as may be presented at the hearing of the motion.
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Minor _____ [name]

[2] Use of Form

This form may be used in preparation of a motion to suppress illegally obtained evidence, statements, or admissions in delinquency cases. Although juvenile court proceedings are not deemed criminal [Welf. & Inst. Code § 203], the procedures used and the grounds on which such motions are brought in practice seem to follow those used in adult criminal proceedings.

[3] Content of Prehearing Motion and Accompanying Papers

All prehearing motions must be specific, note the grounds for the motion, and be supported by points and authorities [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.544]. Unless otherwise ordered or specifically provided by law, and absent a waiver, a prehearing motion to suppress evidence obtained as a result of an unlawful search or seizure and accompanying points and authorities must be served on the child and opposing counsel and filed with the court at least five judicial days before the date the jurisdiction hearing is set to begin [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.544(1)].

[4] Constitutional Protections

The protections extended to juveniles charged with the commission of a crime include, as a matter of constitutional due process, the following [In re R.C. (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 887, 897, 114 Cal. Rptr. 735 ; In re Ruth H. (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 77, 85, 102 Cal. Rptr. 534] :

- The exclusionary rules relating to illegally seized evidence.
- Rules for unconstitutional pretrial identification.
- The explicit waiver of rights prior to a judicial admission.
- The inadmissibility of statements obtained in violation of the Miranda warnings.
- The bar on multiple prosecutions.

Juveniles are entitled to these fundamental protections in proceedings that may result in confinement or other sanctions, whether the state labels these proceedings "criminal" or "civil" [In re Ruth H. (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 77, 85, 102 Cal. Rptr. 534] .

However, Cal. Const., art. I, § 28(d), adopted as part of Proposition 8 at the June 1982 election, provides that relevant evidence shall not be excluded in any criminal proceeding, including any trial or hearing of a juvenile for a criminal offense. It abrogates both of the following:

- The "vicarious exclusionary rule" under which a defendant had standing to object to the introduction of evidence seized in violation of the rights of a third person.

- A defendant's right to object to and suppress evidence seized in violation of the California, but not the federal, constitutional search and seizure provision.

- Other evidence obtained in violation of the state, but not federal, privilege against self-incrimination [People v. May (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 309, 315-320, 243 Cal. Rptr. 369, 748 P.2d 307 ; In re Lance W. (1985) 37 Cal. 3d 873, 879, 210 Cal. Rptr. 631, 694 P.2d 744] .

An exception has been carved out for a minor's immunity from use at the jurisdiction hearing of any statements made at a fitness hearing. This exception has not been nullified by Cal. Const., art. I, § 28(d), but is preserved by the exception for statutory privileges contained in that section [People v. May (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 309, 318-320, 243 Cal. Rptr. 369, 748 P.2d 307 (preserving Ramona R. as exception); see Ramona R. v. Superior Court (1985) 37 Cal. 3d 802, 804, 808-810, 210 Cal. Rptr. 204, 693 P.2d 789] .

This form is the approved Judicial Council form of Order for Prisoner's Appearance and Waiver of Appearance (JV-450). It may be used when the juvenile court issues an order for the appearance of an incarcerated parent whose parental rights may be affected by a juvenile dependency or wardship proceeding involving the parent's child [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 349; Penal Code § 2625]. Use of the form is mandatory [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.504], and it may be produced by a word-processor printer or similar process [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.504(b), (c)].

The form may be used to obtain the appearance or waiver of an incarcerated parent at any hearing involving that parent's custody rights with respect to a child who is before the juvenile court. For example, the order may be made with respect to a hearing to declare the child a dependent of the court [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 300], to terminate parental rights [see Fam. Code § 7800 et seq.; Welf. & Inst. Code § 366.26], to appoint a legal guardian [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 366.26], or to order the child placed in long-term foster care [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 366.26].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Right to Appearance or to Waive Appearance

A parent of a minor who is the subject of a custody hearing has a right to be present at that hearing even if the parent is incarcerated at the time [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 349; Penal Code § 2625]. The juvenile court must direct the transportation of any parent who is incarcerated in a California state or county institution when the dependency hearing pertains to the assumption of dependency jurisdiction or the termination of parental rights. The juvenile court may authorize the transportation of any such incarcerated parent for any other dependency hearing regarding the parent's child [Penal Code § 2625; In re Barry W. (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 358, 369-370, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 161] . The incarcerated parent or an authorized person acting on the prisoner's behalf may waive the right to appear by completing the second page of this form [see Penal Code § 2625]. If the waiver is provided to the incarcerated parent together with the order, the box indicating that a waiver is attached should be marked.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on _____[date], at _____[time], or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in [_____ (Department or Division) _____

_____ [firm name, if any]
_____ [signature]
By _____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [moving party]

This form of notice of motion and motion is for use in moving to dismiss a juvenile court delinquency petition. The motion may be employed in a variety of instances. For example, the motion is properly made before trial or at the commencement of proceedings where the petition itself fails to allege the necessary grounds for juvenile court jurisdiction [see In re J. T. (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 633, 642, 115 Cal. Rptr. 553] .

The motion may also be made after the prosecuting attorney or the probation officer has presented the evidence in support of the petition and counsel wishes to argue that the evidence is insufficient to sustain jurisdiction, even in the absence of any defense by the minor. The motion may also be used to seek dismissals required by statute for failure to proceed within the time limitations imposed on juvenile court proceedings.

[3] Authority for Motion

[a] Court's General Power to Control Its Proceedings

No specific statute or rule provides for a motion to dismiss. Such a procedure is, however, a commonly accepted practice, the authorization for which may be found in the court's inherent power to provide for the orderly conduct of proceedings before it, and to control its process and orders to make them conform to law and justice [Code Civ. Proc. § 128(a)(3), (8)].

[b] Dismissals After Presentation of Evidence

The juvenile court is specifically authorized to dismiss a petition, if, after hearing the evidence, it finds that the minor is not a person within the jurisdiction of the juvenile court [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 701.1]. In effect, the motion presented in this form simply seeks such a determination before all of the evidence is heard by the court.

[c] Dismissals in the Interests of Justice

A judge of the juvenile court in which a petition is filed, at any time before the minor reaches the age of 21 years, may dismiss the petition or may set aside the findings and dismiss the petition if the court finds that the interests of justice and the welfare of the minor require such dismissal, or if it finds that the minor is not in need of treatment or rehabilitation. The court has the jurisdiction to order dismissal regardless of whether the minor is, at the time of the order, a dependent child of the court or a ward of the court [Welf. & Inst. Code § 782].

Counsel should be careful to distinguish between a dismissal in the interest of justice and one precipitated due to a lack or insufficiency of jurisdictional grounds. The former carries with it the connotation that the requisite jurisdictional grounds were present, but for extraneous reasons the petition was dismissed. The latter, however, connotes the absence of jurisdictional grounds and hence a more complete exoneration of the minor.

[4] Notice Requirement

There is no express statutory provision generally requiring that notice of allmotions be given, and it has been left to the courts to determine whether a motion requires written notice to the adverse party where not expressly required by statute [Arata v. Tellurium G. & S. M. Co. (1884) 65 Cal. 340, 342, 4 P. 195] . Generally, when the order granting the motion affects the rights of the adverse party, the motion must be made on notice to that party [McDonald v. Severy (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 629, 631, 59 P.2d 98 ; Bohn v. Bohn (1913) 164 Cal. 532, 536, 129 P. 981] .

Insofar as no specific statute or rule governs motions to dismiss in juvenile court, the motion may not technically require such notice. It is prudent practice, however, that whenever possible counsel prepare the noticed motion.

[5] Points and Authorities

No specific statute or rule requires the submission of points and authorities in support of a motion to dismiss juvenile court proceedings. Counsel is well advised, however, to submit such supporting papers in order to bolster the strength of the motion and in recognition that the juvenile court is a department of the superior court which requires the submission of points and authorities in support of all noticed motions [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113].

I, _____[name], declare:

1. I am the attorney for the minor in the above-entitled action.

2. On or about _____[date], the District Attorney filed a petition seeking a fitness hearing in the above-entitled matter to determine whether the minor is a fit and proper subject to be dealt with under the juvenile court laws.

3. The minor is charged with a violation of Penal Code Section _____[specify code section(s) allegedly violated], an offense specified in Welfare & Institutions Code Section [707(b) or (e)] for which there is a presumption of unfitness.

4. Pursuant to California Rules of Court, Rule 5.772 and Edsel P. v. Superior Court (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 763, 211 Cal. Rptr. 869 , on request of the minor, the prosecution has the burden of establishing a prima facie showing that the offense alleged is specified in Welfare and Institutions Code Section [707(b) or 707(e)] and that the minor committed the crimes charged, prior to a determination of fitness.

5. The minor, through his attorney, hereby requests that the District Attorney be required to present a prima facie showing of the minor's guilt of the charged offense prior to any determination of fitness.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[2] Use of Form

This form may be used whenever the prosecution or the court has requested a fitness hearing to determine whether the minor should be remanded to adult court for trial, and where the minor is charged with an offense for which there is a presumption of unfitness under Welf. & Inst. § 707(a)(2) or (c).

When the prosecution is relying on a presumption of unfitness established by Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(a)(2) the minor is entitled to a determination that there is a prima facie showing that he or she is guilty of the charged crime which raises the presumption [Edsel P. v. Superior Court (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 763, 211 Cal. Rptr. 869] . Since the enactment of Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(c) creates a similar presumption of unfitness for minors 14 years of age or older charged with 707(b) offenses, the holding of Edsel P. is arguably applicable to petitions filed under that section.

Additionally, the California Rules of Court provide that on the minor's motion, the court must determine whether a prima facie showing has been made that the offense alleged is a felony or specified in Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(b) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.772(b)].

A request for a prima facie hearing is not mandatory and must be considered carefully by the attorney for the minor. Although there may be some cases in which the prosecution will have difficulty establishing a prima facie showing, and such a hearing could provide useful discovery for the minor, it will also provide recorded testimony and may in some cases prejudice the juvenile court judge or referee who is making the fitness determination against the minor by emphasizing the facts of the offense.

Although Edsel P. seemed to implicate that at a prima facie hearing the minor would be entitled to confront and cross-examine percipient witnesses, the court in People v. Superior Court (Ronald H.) (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1475, 1477, 269 Cal. Rptr. 4 , has since held that Edsel P. only requires the prosecution to call the preparers of the reports presented; i.e., police officers or probation officers. Therefore, counsel for the minor must subpoena any percipient witnesses whose testimony may defeat a prima facie showing or diminish the gravity or seriousness of the offense.

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

THE MINOR IS ENTITLED UNDER THE CALIFORNIA AND UNITED STATES CONSTITUTIONS TO TRIAL BY JURY AS TO HIS OR HER GUILT ON THE CHARGES ALLEGED IN THE PETITION

The right to an impartial jury in all criminal proceedings is guaranteed by the Sixth Amendment of the United States Constitution and imposed upon the States by the Fourteenth Amendment (Duncan v. Louisiana (1968) 391 U.S. 145 .) California's constitution similarly guarantees that "[t]rial by jury is an inviolate right and shall be secured to all" (Cal. Const. art. I, § 16).

Both the United States Supreme Court and the California Supreme Court have thus far declined to extend the right to jury trial to juvenile proceedings, on the premise that juvenile proceedings are not "criminal prosecutions" resulting in criminal convictions (McKeiver v. Pennsylvania (1970) 403 U.S. 528 , plurality opinion; In re Daedler (1924) 194 Cal. 320).

In November 1994, Proposition 184 was passed by the voters resulting in the enactment of Penal Code § 1170.12, which redefines certain juvenile adjudications as "prior felony convictions" for purposes of sentence enhancement. This and other changes in the juvenile law have transformed the juvenile court into a court of "criminal prosecution." As such, the minor is entitled to a jury trial (see In re Javier A. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 913).

While it is the voters prerogative to alter the juvenile court law, it remains the responsibility of the courts to assure that those changes are accompanied by the appropriate Constitutional protection. If minors are to suffer all the potentially harmful consequences of adult "convictions" for juvenile court "adjudications," they should be entitled to all the due process protection afforded adults. Trial by jury is the most fundamental due process protection.

This Judicial Council form must be used when a court orders a fitness determination after a hearing on whether a minor is unfit for juvenile court treatment (JV-710) [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 707; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.766].

Use of this form is mandatory [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.504]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Findings Required in Order

If the court concludes that the minor is unfit for juvenile court treatment, the court's order must make specific findings, as stated in the approved form [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 707; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 5.770(c)(2) and 5.772(f)(1), (2)]. The findings will vary depending on whether any designated serious felonies are alleged to have been violated [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(b), (c), (d)(2), (e)].

If the court concludes that the minor is fit for juvenile court treatment and no serious felonies are alleged [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(a)], the court need only note its conclusion in its minutes [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.768]. However, the commission of a serious felony indicates that the juvenile is unfit [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(c)] and, therefore, the court must make specific findings that indicate its reasons for concluding against this presumption [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.772].

A court's order may be vacated on appeal if it does not state the reasons supporting the decision, unless the court's conclusory statements are also supported by substantial facts in the court record [see Juan T. v. Superior Court (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 207, 211-212, 122 Cal. Rptr. 405] .

[2] Use of Form

This form of affidavit and petition to seal juvenile court records is an illustrative example of one used by the juvenile court of the Superior Court of Alameda County. The format of such forms may vary from county to county; counsel should check with the clerk of the juvenile court to procure the most recent standardized form used in local courts.

Under certain circumstances, the court may be petitioned to seal the juvenile record of a minor who has been involved in any of the following [Welf. & Inst. Code § 781(a)]:

- Any case in which a petition has been filed with the juvenile court to commence proceedings to adjudge a person to be a ward of the court.

- Any case in which a person is cited to appear before a probation officer or is taken before a probation officer by a peace officer.

- Any case in which a minor is taken before any officer of a law enforcement agency.

Five years after the jurisdiction of the court has terminated, or in a case in which no petition was filed, five years after the person was cited, or at any time after the person reaches the age of 18, the person or the probation officer may petition the court to seal the records, including records of arrest relating to the person's case, that are in the custody of the juvenile court and probation officer and any other agencies, including law enforcement agencies and public officials, that petitioner alleges to have custody of such records [Welf. & Inst. Code § 781(a)].

The record may not be sealed if the minor committed an offense listed in Welf. & Inst. Code § 707(b) after they have attained 14 years of age. Determinations under Welf. & Inst. Code § 781 with respect to former wards of the court must be made by the court in the county in which wardship was last terminated [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.830(a)].

An application for a petition to seal records filed by a former ward of the court must be submitted to the probation department in the county in which wardship was last terminated. If the probation officer determines that the former ward is eligible to petition for sealing, he or she will prepare and file the petition, conduct an investigation pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 781, prepare a report for thecourt, set the matter for hearing, and notify the prosecuting attorney of the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.830(a)]. If the applicant is not a former ward, the application may be submitted to the probation department in any county in which there is a juvenile record concerning the petitioner, and the probation officer will follow the same procedures as described above for an application filed by a former ward [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.830(b)].

The court will review the petition and the probation officer's report, and an order will be issued if the court is satisfied that the minor has not been convicted of a felony or of any misdemeanor involving moral turpitude and that rehabilitation has been attained [Welf. & Inst. Code § 781]. In any case in which a ward of the juvenile court is subject to the registration requirements for certain sex offenders set forth in Penal Code § 290, the court must also provide in the order that the person is relieved from the registration requirement and for the destruction of all registration information in the custody of the Department of Justice and other agencies and officials [Welf. & Inst. Code § 781(a)].

An order sealing records applies in the county of the court hearing the petition and in all other counties in which there are juvenile records concerning the petitioner [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.830(a)(4)].

This form is the Judicial Council petition for obtaining the report of a law enforcement agency regarding the taking of a minor into custody, including the disposition of the matter, when it is available [Welf. & Inst. Code § 828(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.552(g)].

This form has been adopted for mandatory use [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.504], although Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.552(g) states that the form is only required to be used by persons seeking to inspect or obtain law enforcement agency reports that are not related to the escape of a minor from a secure detention facility. It may be produced by a word-processor printer or similar process [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.504(b), (c)]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The form must generally be used by any person or entity who is authorized by Welf. Code § 828 to inspect or obtain law enforcement agency reports regarding the taking of a minor into custody [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.552(g)]. Unless they are sealed under Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 389, 781 or Penal Code § 1203.45, a law enforcement agency may disclose these records to another law enforcement agency, including a school district police or security department, or to any person or agency that has a legitimate need for the information for purposes of official disposition of a case [Welf. &

Inst. Code § 828(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.552(g)]. If the record containing the information has not been sealed, a court is required to consider this information for the purpose of determining whether adjudication of the commission of crimes as a juvenile warrants a finding that there are circumstances in aggravation under Penal Code § 1170 or to deny probation [Welf. & Inst. Code § 828(a)].

In complying with a request for records, the law enforcement agency must include information regarding the disposition of the taking into custody, when it is available [Welf. & Inst. Code § 828(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.552(g)]. A law enforcement agency must also disclose the name and description of a minor, without a formal petition, to any person specifically requesting this information when the agency has been notified under Welf. & Inst. Code § 1155 that the minor has escaped from a secure detention facility [Welf. & Inst. Code § 828(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.552(g)(1)]. The agency may release this information without a request if it finds that release of the information is necessary to assist in recapturing the minor or to protect the public from substantial physical harm [Welf. & Inst. Code § 828(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.552(g)(2)].

Item number 5 of the petition is used to indicate that the minor in question has consented to the requested disclosure. If that item is checked, the minor's written consent should be attached to the petition.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

29-330 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 330.10

§ 330.10 Governing Law

[1] Landlord/Tenant Relationship, Generally

All of the Landlord and Tenant chapters in this volume discuss general legal principles and the governing law applicable to different aspects of the landlord/tenant relationship.

Certain fundamental aspects of the legal relationship between a landlord and a tenant are governed by Civ. Code §§ 1940-1954.1 (regarding leasing land and dwellings). These sections apply to all "persons who hire dwelling units located within this state including tenants, lessees, boarders, lodgers, and others, however denominated" [Civ. Code § 1940(a)].

A "dwelling unit" is a structure, or a part of a structure, that is used as a home, residence, or sleeping place by any person or persons maintaining a household [Civ. Code § 1940(c)].

Civ. Code §§ 1940-1954.1 do not apply in the case of transient occupancy in hotels, motels, residence clubs, or other facilities, if the occupancy is subject to taxation under Rev. & Tax. Code § 7280 [Civ. Code § 1940(b)(1)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Transient Occupancy. The primary effect of this inapplicability is that these owners are not landlords and need not use the unlawful detainer statutes; that is, they may use self-help to evict occupants. Because Civ. Code §§ 1940-1954.1 does not apply to these owners, this probably means that their occupants may not use the repair and deduct remedy or the statutory retaliation remedies. By Myron Moskovitz

PRACTICE TIP: Self-Help. Landlords should be cautious when using self-help. This remedy should not be construed as being unlimited or uncircumscribed. By Benjamin Kaplan

However, no person may require an occupant of a residential hotel as defined by Health & Safety Code § 50519 to move, or to check out and reregister, before expiration of 30 days' occupancy, if a purpose of such requirement is to have that occupant maintain transient occupancy status pursuant to Civ. Code § 1940(b)(1) [Civ. Code § 1940.1(a); see

Civ. Code § 1940.1(b) (penalties for violation)].

Civ. Code §§ 1940-1954.1 also do not apply in the case of occupancy at a hotel or motel where the innkeeper retains a right of access to, and control of, the dwelling unit, if the hotel or motel provides or offers all of the following to all of the residents [Civ. Code § 1940(b)(2)]:

- Facilities for safeguarding personal property in accordance with Civ. Code § 1860;
- Central telephone services subject to tariffs filed with the Public Utilities Commission;
- Maid, mail, and room services;
- Occupancy for periods shorter than seven days; and
- Food service provided by a food establishment [see Health & Safety Code § 113780 ("food establishment" defined) (repealed July 1, 2007)] located on or adjacent to premises of the hotel or motel and owned or operated by the innkeeper or by a person or entity under a lease or similar relationship with the innkeeper or affiliated with the innkeeper.

PRACTICE TIP:

Short-Term Occupants. Attorneys for owners who rent to short-term occupants should draft occupancy agreements and advise their clients with these cases in mind. Owners will have more power to take immediate action against defaulting occupants if the terms of the agreements have more of the characteristics of lodging agreements than of tenancy agreements. By Myron Moskovitz

[2] Proceedings in Unlawful Detainer, Forcible Entry, and Forcible Detainer

Proceedings in unlawful detainer, forcible entry, and forcible detainer are governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1159-1179a [see Civ. Code § 792]. These statutes appear in Part Three of the Code of Civil Procedure; however, numerous provisions of Part Two of the Code of Civil Procedure are expressly incorporated into the proceedings by various provisions contained in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1159-1179a [see § 330.12]. In addition, several provisions contained in Part Two, by their own terms, apply to specified special proceedings [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 415.45, 415.47 (relating to service of summons in certain unlawful detainer proceedings)].

The economic litigation procedures for limited civil cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 90 et seq.] do not apply to proceedings in unlawful detainer, forcible entry, and forcible detainer [Code Civ. Proc. § 91(b)].

Much of the case law discussing unlawful detainer, and thus many of the cases cited in this and the following chapters, are opinions rendered by appellate departments of the superior courts. These opinions, unlike those of the courts of appeal and the Supreme Court, are not subject to the mandatory aspect of the doctrine of stare decisis and, therefore, are not binding on other appellate departments or trial courts [see Auto Equity Sales, Inc. v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 450, 455, 20 Cal. Rptr. 321, 369 P.2d 937 (decisions of Supreme Court and courts of appeal are binding on all lower courts); Worthington v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 384, 389, 134 Cal. Rptr. 507 (appellate department opinions not binding on higher courts and not controlling in appellate department)].

Appellate departments, like any other appellate court, may overrule their prior decisions. Similar decisions from other states, law review articles and other secondary authorities, and appellate department opinions may be cited in any court for their precedential and persuasive value.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

29-330 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 330.11

§ 330.11 Nature of Unlawful Detainer, Forcible Entry, and Forcible Detainer Proceedings

Proceedings in unlawful detainer, forcible entry, and forcible detainer are special summary proceedings, purely statutory in character, designed to provide means by which the possession of premises that are wrongfully withheld may be restored to the persons entitled to possession [see Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 632, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168 ; Turem v. Texaco, Inc. (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 758, 763, 46 Cal. Rptr. 389 ; Werner v. Sargeant (1953) 121 Cal. App. 2d 833, 837, 264 P.2d 217] . The object of the statutes is to prevent disturbance of the public peace resulting from forcible recovery of possession by self-help. Therefore, a proceeding in unlawful detainer, forcible entry, or forcible detainer may not be maintained when possession has been returned to the plaintiff before the complaint is filed [see Markham v. Fralick (1934) 2 Cal. 2d 221, 226, 39 P.2d 804 ; Childs v. Eltinge (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 843, 853, 105 Cal. Rptr. 864] .

Chapter 330 LANDLORD AND TENANT: GENERAL INTRODUCTION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 330.12 Terminology and Classification of Remedies

Unlawful detainer, forcible entry, and forcible detainer, which were created by statute and were entirely unknown at common law, are "special proceedings," not "actions" [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 22 ("actions" defined), 23 (every other remedy as a special proceeding); Tide Water Assoc. Oil Co. v. Superior Court (1955) 43 Cal. 2d 815, 822, 279 P.2d 35, 4 O.&G.R. 588 (special proceeding is a case that was neither an action at law nor a suit in equity under the common law or equity practice)]. Civil actions are governed by Part Two of the Code of Civil Procedure [Code Civ. Proc. § 307 et seq.], entitled "Civil Actions." Thus, unlawful detainer, forcible entry, and forcible detainer, which are set out in Part Three of the Code of Civil Procedure, entitled "Special Proceedings," are not civil actions even though they are "civil cases." This distinction is important because the statutes governing civil actions do not apply to special proceedings except to the extent that a specific statute applicable to civil actions (1) expressly states that it applies to special proceedings (or simply "proceedings," as in the term "actions and proceedings") or (2) is incorporated by one or more of the statutes governing the special proceeding.

Some court decisions have been imprecise with regard to which statutes apply. This imprecision has no doubt been generated by (1) the Legislature's indiscriminate use of the word "action" in statutes relating to unlawful detainer, forcible entry, and forcible detainer [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 415.45(a), 415.47]; (2) the specific incorporation of various provisions of Part Two of the Code of Civil Procedure in the statutes governing these special proceedings [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1167 (service of summons), 1167.3, 1167.5, 1177 (provisions of Part Two generally)]; and (3) the fact that these special proceedings are commenced by the filing of a complaint instead of by petition, which is usually used to commence special proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166; compare Code Civ. Proc. § 411.10 (commencement of civil actions by complaint) with, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1086 (petition for writ of mandate), 1276 (petition to change name)].

For consistency and precision, in Chapters 331-335 unlawful detainer, forcible entry, and forcible detainer will be referred to as proceedings or special proceedings and not as actions.

29-331 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 331.10

§ 331.10 Types of Tenancies

[1] The Four Types of Tenancies

Four types of tenancies are generally recognized: tenancy at will, periodic tenancy, tenancy for fixed term, and tenancy at sufferance. These are briefly described in [2]-[5], below. For a more detailed discussion of the different types of tenancies, see CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE LAW & PRACTICE, Ch. 150, Types of Tenancies (Matthew Bender).

[2] Tenancy at Will

A tenancy at will is an estate that confers a right to the possession of premises leased for such indefinite period as both parties shall determine [Covina Manor, Inc. v. Hatch (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 790, 284 P.2d 580] . One who enters on land by permission of the owner under a void parol contract, under a void lease, or pending negotiations for a written lease is a tenant at will [Covina Manor, Inc. v. Hatch (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 790, 284 P.2d 580] .

[3] Periodic Tenancy

A periodic tenancy is a form of a tenancy at will. Periodic tenancies continue for successive periods of time of the same length unless sooner terminated by notice at the end of one such period. A tenancy from year to year is a periodic tenancy. A tenancy created under an invalid lease may be construed as a periodic tenancy with the period determined by the frequency of the payment of rent [Camp v. Matich (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 660, 665, 197 P.2d 345] .

[4] Tenancy for Fixed Term

A tenancy for a fixed term is the most common type of tenancy, especially in commercial settings. To create an estate for a definite period, the duration must be capable of exact computation when it becomes possessory. The most important difference between a periodic tenancy and a tenancy for a fixed term is that the latter terminates at the end of such term without the notice that is required to terminate a periodic tenancy [Camp v. Matich (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 660, 665, 197 P.2d 345] .

[5] Tenancy at Sufferance

A tenancy at sufferance arises when a person who lawfully entered the property continues in possession or "holds over" beyond the person's period of rightful possession, without any rightful title and without the landlord's consent [Gartlan v. C.A. Hooper Co. (1918) 177 Cal. 414, 425-426,170 P. 1115 ; Hull v. Laugharn (1934) 3 Cal. App. 2d 310, 314, 39 P.2d 478] . The characteristic that distinguishes a tenancy at sufferance from a tenancy at will is the absence of consent by the landlord. A tenancy at will is always by right and permission of the landlord [Hull v. Laugharn (1934) 3 Cal. App. 2d 310, 314, 39 P.2d 478 ; see [2], above (tenancy at will)].

[6] Presumptions Regarding Length of Tenancy

A hiring of real property, other than lodgings and dwelling houses, in places in which there is no custom or usage on the subject, is presumed to be a month-to-month periodic tenancy unless otherwise designated in writing. An exception to this general rule is the case of real property used for agricultural or grazing purposes, in which case a hiring is presumed to be for one year from its commencement unless otherwise expressed in the hiring [Civ. Code § 1943].

A hiring of lodgings or a dwelling house for an unspecified term is presumed to have been for such length of time as the parties adopt for the estimation of the rent. Thus, a hiring at a monthly rate of rent is presumed to be for one month. In the absence of any agreement respecting the length of time or the rent, the hiring is presumed to be monthly [Civ. Code § 1944].

Chapter 331 LANDLORD AND TENANT: CREATING THE TENANCY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

29-331 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 331.11

§ 331.11 Creation of Landlord/Tenant Relationship

[1] Occupancy With Owner's Consent/Existence of Lease Not Necessary

The occupancy of premises with the consent of the owner creates a landlord-tenant relationship and, in the absence of an understanding to the contrary, implies an agreement on the part of the tenant to pay a reasonable rent for such occupation [Ross v. Long Beach (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 258, 263, 148 P.2d 649 ; Meyer v. Parobek (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 509, 513, 259 P.2d 948] .

Tenancies need not necessarily be created by valid leases. One may become a tenant at will, a periodic tenant under an invalid lease, or a periodic tenant without any lease at all by occupying premises with the owner's consent. Such tenancies carry with them the incidental obligation to pay rent [Ellingson v. Walsh, O'Connor & Barneson (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 673, 675, 104 P.2d 507 ; Meyer v. Parobek (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 509, 512-513, 259 P.2d 948] .

[2] Landlord's Duty Not to Discriminate

No business establishment of any kind whatsoever may discriminate against, boycott or blacklist, refuse to buy from, contract with, sell to, or trade with any person in California because of the race, creed, religion, color, national origin, sex, disability, or medical condition of the person or of the person's partners, members, stockholders, directors, officers, managers, superintendents, agents, employees, business associates, suppliers, or customers [Civ. Code § 51.5]. "Person" includes any person, firm, association, organization, partnership, business trust, corporation, limited liability company, or company [Civ. Code § 51.5]. The term "business establishment" is to be given the broadest possible interpretation [Burks v. Poppy Construction Co. (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 463, 468-469, 20 Cal. Rptr. 609, 370 P.2d 313] and includes the business of leasing or selling real property [Lee v. O'Hara (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 476, 478, 20 Cal. Rptr. 617, 370 P.2d 321 ; Swann v. Burkett (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 685, 694, 26 Cal. Rptr. 286] .

PRACTICE TIP:

"Business Establishments" Applicable to Single-Family Dwellings? One interesting question is whether the Unruh Civil Rights Act applies to the landlord of a single-family dwelling. Although there are no cases specifically on point, the broad interpretations and sweeping applications described above and below, as well as public policy considerations, would lead one to answer such an inquiry in the affirmative. By Myron Moskovitz

The Unruh Civil Rights Act prohibits all arbitrary discrimination and the list of particular bases for discrimination therein is illustrative, not restrictive [Marina Point, Ltd. v. Wolfson (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 721, 732, 180 Cal. Rptr. 496, 640 P.2d 115 ; In re Cox (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 205, 216, 90 Cal. Rptr. 24, 474 P.2d 992] . It is a violation of the Unruh Act to exclude families with children from ordinary apartment buildings. Such a blanket exclusion is not permissible, even if children cause more problems than adults, because the Unruh Act does not permit a business enterprise to exclude an entire class of individuals on the basis of a generalized prediction that the class as a whole is more likely to commit misconduct than other classes. The landlord's remedy is to exclude the particular persons causing the problem. The blanket exclusion is also unreasonable because nothing in the nature of an ordinary apartment is incompatible with the presence of children. Retirement communities or housing complexes reserved for older persons, however, are a reasonable and permissible means under the Unruh Act of providing specialized facilities for persons who need them [Marina Point, Ltd. v. Wolfson (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 721, 732, 180 Cal. Rptr. 496, 640 P.2d 115] .

For a general discussion of the Unruh Civil Rights Act and related provisions as they relate to housing discrimination, see Ch. 117, Civil Rights: Housing Discrimination .

[3] Rights of Tenants

[a] Possessory Rights of Tenant for Years or at Will

A tenant at will or for a fixed term, unless he or she is a wrongdoer by holding over, may occupy the buildings, take the annual products of the soil, and work mines and quarries on the property open at the commencement of the tenancy [Civ. Code § 819]. However, a tenant has no other rights to the property other than those given to him or her by the agreement or instrument by which the tenancy is acquired, or by Civ. Code § 819 [Civ. Code § 820].

[b] Prohibition Against Modification or Waiver of Specified Rights

Under Civ. Code § 1953(a), any provision of a lease or rental agreement of a dwelling executed on or after January 1, 1976, in which a tenant agrees to modify or waive any of the following rights is void as contrary to public policy:

- Tenant's rights or remedies under Civ. Code § 1950.5 (payment or deposit to secure rental agreement) or § 1954 (landlord's permissible entry of dwelling);
- Tenant's right to assert a cause of action against the landlord that may arise in the future;
- Tenant's right to any notice or hearing required by law;
- Tenant's procedural rights in litigation in any action involving rights and obligations as a tenant; and
- Tenant's right to have the landlord exercise a duty of care to prevent personal injury or personal property damage when that duty is imposed by law.

Any provision in a lease or rental agreement of a dwelling executed on or after January 1, 1976, in which a tenant agrees to modify or waive a statutory right, if the modification or waiver is not void under Civ. Code §§ 1953(a), 1941.1 (waiver of need for landlord to keep premises habitable or tenant's right to repair premises), or 1954 (restrictions on landlord's permissible entry of dwelling), is void as contrary to public policy unless the lease or rental agreement is presented to the tenant before he or she takes actual possession of the premises. This does not apply to any provisions modifying or waiving a statutory right in agreements renewing leases or rental agreements if the same provision was also contained in the lease or rental agreement that is being renewed [Civ. Code § 1953(b)].

[4] Payment of Taxes

For a discussion of who is liable for the payment of taxes, see § 332.46.

[5] Rent

[a] In General

Many landlord-tenant disputes revolve around the issue of rent. It is critical to understand that a carefully drafted lease can help avoid potential disputes.

[b] Rent Defined

Rent is compensation paid for the use of land. It need not be money. Any chattels or products of the soil serve the purpose equally as well [Atlantic Oil Co. v. Los Angeles County (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 585, 600, 72 Cal. Rptr. 886, 446 P.2d 1006] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Rent. Rent may also be defined by the lease to contain other payments not usually considered "rent" such as payment for water or utilities. By Benjamin Kaplan

[c] Liability for Payment of Rent

A person is obligated to pay rent on the basis of mere occupancy of premises as a tenant, even without an express agreement [Samuels v. Ottinger (1915) 169 Cal. 209, 211, 146 P. 638] and irrespective of whether the use thereof was tortious or wrongful [Meyer v. Parobek (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 509, 513, 259 P.2d 948] . A tenant is liable for rent despite the absence of actual delivery of possession if there was no impediment to the tenant taking possession or if he or she was given a legal right of entry and enjoyment during the term of the leasehold [Reynolds v. McEwen (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 540, 542-543, 244 P.2d 961] . For example, if the premises have been leased to a tenant, he or she is deemed to have had the right to possession and his or her actual possession thereof is immaterial [O'Meara v. Hables (1912) 163 Cal. 240, 242-243, 124 P. 1003] .

[d] When Rent Is Due

If there is no usage or contract to the contrary, rent is payable at the termination of the holding when it does not exceed one year. If the holding is by the day, week, month, quarter, or year, rent is payable at the termination of the respective period, as it successively becomes due [Civ. Code § 1947]. However, if the parties orally agree to renew a lease requiring payment in advance, the same terms and conditions are continued in the renewal in spite of the provisions of Civ. Code § 1947 [Rosenbaum Estate Co. v. Robert Dollar Co. (1916) 31 Cal. App. 576, 577, 161 P. 10] .

PRACTICE TIP:

When Rent Is Due. Most leases provide for the payment of rent in advance of the period of the holding. However, absent such a provision in the lease, the payment may be governed by the actual practice of the parties. By Benjamin Kaplan

[e] Accrual of Rent

Rent does not accrue from day to day; it accrues on the day it is payable [Dicker v. West (1958) 164 Cal. App. 2d 55, 58, 330 P.2d 106] . If rent is payable in advance, the landlord is entitled to the full amount at the beginning of the lease period [Friedman v. Isenbruck (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 326, 335, 244 P.2d 718] . A landlord's right to recover past due rent accrues from the time of default, and, in the past, the landlord was not entitled to recover for future rent not yet due under the lease [Phillips-Hollman, Inc. v. Peerless Stages (1930) 210 Cal. 253, 258-259, 291 P. 178 ; but now see Civ. Code § 1951.2 et seq. (landlord may, under certain specified circumstances, recover the equivalent of future rent)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Rent Is Contractual. Rent is contractual and when the contract terminates, the landlord's entitlement to receive rent terminates. By Benjamin Kaplan

[f] Prepaid Rent

In the absence of a qualifying provision in the lease, prepaid rent will not be apportioned. That is, if rent is paid in advance, a lawful surrender or termination during the prepaid period does not entitle the lessee to a proportional rebate. This rule applies even if the lease is terminated by destruction of the premises, but is not applicable if the advance deposit required by the lease is not contemplated as prepaid rent but only as a security fund out of which the rent is to be paid as it accrues from day to day [Dicker v. West (1958) 164 Cal. App. 2d 55, 58, 330 P.2d 106] .

However, if after prepayment of rent, a lease is terminated because of the landlord's fault, then a constructive eviction takes place and the tenant may recover prepaid rent [Friedman v. Isenbruck (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 326, 335, 244 P.2d 718 ; see Sierad v. Lilly (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 770, 775, 22 Cal. Rptr. 580 (unjust enrichment doctrine); see also Johnson v. Snyder (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 86, 89, 221 P.2d 164] .

[g] Form of Payment

A landlord or a landlord's agent may not demand or require cash as the exclusive form of payment of rent [Civ. Code § 1947.3(a)(1)]. However, there is an exception when the tenant has previously attempted to pay the rent with a check drawn on insufficient funds or has instructed a drawee to stop payment. In such circumstances, the landlord may demand or require cash as the exclusive form of payment for a period not exceeding three months. The landlord must give the tenant a written notice stating that the payment instrument was dishonored and informing the tenant that the tenant must pay in cash for the period determined by the landlord. The landlord must attach a copy of the dishonored instrument to the notice [Civ. Code § 1947.3(a)(2)]. The notice must comply with Civ. Code § 827 if demanding or requiring payment in cash constitutes a change in the terms of the lease [Civ. Code § 1947.3(a)(2)].

For purposes of these requirements, the issuance of a money order or a cashier's check is direct evidence only that the instrument was issued [Civ. Code § 1947.3(b)]. Waiver of these provisions is contrary to public policy, and void and unenforceable [Civ. Code § 1947.3(c)].

[6] Security Deposits

[a] "Security" Defined

Security deposits are not rent (but prepaid rent can be treated as a security deposit). Civ. Code § 1950.5(b) provides that security means any payment, fee, deposit, or charge, including, but not limited to, any payment, fee, deposit, or charge, except as provided in Civ. Code § 1950.6 (application screening fee; see § 331.11[7]), that is imposed at the beginning of the tenancy to be used to reimburse the landlord for costs associated with processing a new tenant or that is imposed as an advance payment of rent, used or to be used for any purpose, including, but not limited to, any of the following:

- Compensation to a landlord for a tenant's default in payment of rent;
- Repair of damages to leased premises, exclusive of wear and tear, caused by the tenant or the tenant's guest or licensee;
- Cleaning of leased premises following a tenancy's termination (for tenancies beginning after January

1, 2003, the security may be used to return the unit only to the same level of cleanliness it was in at the tenancy's inception); and

- To remedy future defaults by the tenant in any obligation under the rental agreement to restore, replace, or return personal property or appurtenances, exclusive of ordinary wear and tear, if the security deposit is authorized to be applied in such a fashion by the rental agreement.

PRACTICE TIP:

Interest on Security Deposits in Local Rent Control Jurisdictions. In most local rent control jurisdictions there are ordinancesgoverning security deposits. These ordinances may require payment of interest on the security deposits. By Benjamin Kaplan

[b] Amount of Security Deposit

A landlord may not demand or receive rent in excess of an amount equal to (1) two months' rent for unfurnished residential property or (2) three months' rent for furnished residential property [Civ. Code § 1950.5(c)]. Civ. Code § 1950.5 also sets forth in detail rules regarding the return of security deposits. For discussion of the form a security deposit can take (e.g., check, cash, money order), see [d], below.

[c] Validity of Security Deposits

Security deposits are governed by Civ. Code § 1950.5. Before the enactment of Civ. Code § 1950.5, case law governed the validity of security deposits. This law provided that an agreement that contemplates the deposit of a fund as security for performance of a lease is valid and enforceable [see Ace Realty Co. v. Friedman (1951) 106 Cal. App. 2d 805, 812, 236 P.2d 174] .

A security fee paid by a tenant to a landlord is an amount intended to offset expenses incurred by the landlord as a result of tenant conduct during the tenancy. A fee imposed at the outset of the tenancy to reimburse the landlord for expenses incurred for such purposes as providing application forms, listing, interviewing, screening the applicant, checking credit references, and for similar purposes is not a security governed by the provisions of Civ. Code § 1950.5 [Kraus v. Trinity Management Services (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 116, 141, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 485, 999 P.2d 718 ; Civ. Code § 1950.6; see [7][a], below (Landlord's Right to Charge Screening Fee)].

[d] Form of Payment

A landlord or a landlord's agent may not demand or require cash as the exclusive form of a deposit of security [Civ. Code § 1947.3(a)(1)]. However, there is an exception when the tenant has attempted to pay with a check drawn on insufficient funds or has instructed a drawee to stop payment. In such circumstances, the landlord may demand or require cash as the exclusive form of payment. The landlord must give the tenant a written notice stating that the payment instrument was dishonored and informing the tenant that the tenant must pay in cash. The landlord must attach a copy of the dishonored instrument to the notice [Civ. Code § 1947.3(a)(2)]. For purposes of these requirements, the issuance of a money order or a cashier's check is direct evidence only that the instrument was issued [Civ. Code § 1947.3(b)]. Waiver of these provisions is contrary to public policy, and void and unenforceable [Civ. Code § 1947.3(c)].

[7] Tenant/Applicant Screening Fees

[a] Landlord's Right to Charge Screening Fee

When a landlord (defined as an owner of residential property [see Civ. Code § 1950.6(g)]) or his or her agent receives a request to rent a residential property, the landlord or agent may charge the applicant (and his or her guarantor or cosignor, if any) an "application screening fee" [defined in [b], below] to cover the costs of obtaining information about the applicant [Civ. Code § 1950.6(a); see Civ. Code § 1950.6(i) ("applicant" defined)]. The information requested and obtained by the landlord may include, but is not limited to, personal reference checks and consumer credit reports. The landlord may, but is not required to, accept and rely on a consumer credit report presented by an applicant [Civ. Code § 1950.6(a)]. In cases where the landlord or his or her agent knows or should have known that no rental unit is available or will be available in a reasonable period of time, the landlord may not charge an application screening fee unless the applicant agrees in writing [Civ. Code § 1950.6(c)].

The landlord must provide the applicant, either personally or by mail, with a receipt for the fee paid, and the receipt must itemize the out-of-pocket expenses and time spent by the landlord or his or her agent to obtain and process the information about the applicant [Civ. Code § 1950.6(d)]. If the landlord or his or her agent does not perform a personal reference check or does not obtain a consumer credit report, the landlord or his or her agent must return any amount of the screening fee that is not used for the purposes authorized by statute to the applicant [Civ. Code § 1950.6(e)]. If an applicant who has paid an application screening fee requests a copy of his or her consumer credit report from the landlord, the landlord or his or her agent must provide a copy of the report to the applicant [Civ. Code § 1950.6(f)].

The statutory provisions for an application screening fee do not preempt any provisions or regulations that govern the collection of deposits and fees under federal or state housing assistance programs [Civ. Code § 1950.6(k)].

[b] Application Screening Fee Defined

"Application" screening fee means any nonrefundable payment of money charged by a landlord or his or her agent to an applicant, the purpose of which is to purchase a consumer credit report and to validate, review, or otherwise process an application for the rent or lease of residential rental property [Civ. Code § 1950.6(h)]. The fee is not an "advance fee" as that term is used in Bus. & Prof. Code § 10026 (advance fee rental agreements), nor is it a "security" as that term is used in Civ. Code § 1950.5 (security deposits) [Civ. Code § 1950.6(j)].

[c] Amount of Fee

An application screening fee may not exceed the actual out-of-pocket costs of gathering information concerning the applicant, including, but not limited to, the cost of using a tenant screening service or a consumer credit reporting service, and the reasonable value of time spent by the landlord or his or her agent in obtaining information on the applicant. In no case may the fee charged by the landlord or his or her agent be greater than $30.00 per applicant, except that the fee may be adjusted annually to commensurate with an increase in the Consumer Price Index, beginning on January 1, 1998 [Civ. Code § 1950.6(b)].

[8] Payment of "Key Money"

A landlord may not require, demand, or cause to make payable the payment of "key money," however denominated, or the landlord's attorney's fees incurred in preparing the lease or rental agreement, as a condition of initiating, continuing, or renewing a commercial lease or nonresidential rental agreement, unless the amount of payment is stated in the written lease or rental agreement [Civ. Code § 1950.8(a), (b)]. Any person who violates this prohibition is subject to a civil penalty of three times the amount of actual damages proximately suffered by the person seeking to obtain the lease or rental. In addition, that person is entitled to an award of costs, including reasonable attorneys' fees, incurred in connection with obtaining the civil penalty [Civ. Code § 1950.8(c)].

It is not unlawful under Civ. Code § 1950.8 for a landlord to merely make a demand for "key money." Rather, for liability to attach under the statute a plaintiff must allege that the landlord (1) made a demand for "key money" as a condition of initiating, continuing, or renewing a lease or rental agreement, and (2) failed to state the amount of the demanded payment in the resulting new written lease or rental agreement between the parties [Edamerica, Inc. v. Superior Court (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 819, 828-829, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 921] .

The prohibition against a verbal demand of "key money" does not prohibit the advance payment of rent, if the amount and character of the payment are clearly stated in a written lease or rental agreement [Civ. Code § 1950.8(d)]. It also does not prevent any person from charging a reasonable amount incurred in connection with business activities relating to the initiating, continuing, or renewing of a lease or rental agreement for nonresidential real property, such as costs relating to verification of the tenant's creditworthiness or other qualifications, or cleaning fees reasonably incurred in connection with the hiring of the real property [Civ. Code § 1950.8(e)]. In addition, the prohibition does not bar a person from increasing a tenant's rent for nonresidential real property to recover building operating costs incurred on the tenant's behalf, if the right to the rent, the method of calculating the increase, and the period of time covered by the increase is stated in the lease or rental agreement [Civ. Code § 1950.8(f)].

[9] Landlord's Lien

[a] Lien Applies to Property in Furnished and Unfurnished Apartment Houses and Apartments

Keepers of furnished and unfurnished apartment houses and apartments have a lien on the baggage and other property of value belonging to their tenants and all the property in the possession of such tenants that is in the apartment house or apartment for charges due for accommodation, rent, services, meals, for all monies expended for them at their request, and for the costs of enforcing the lien [Civ. Code § 1861a]. For a description of the procedure for enforcing the lien, including sale at public auction, see Civ. Code § 1861a.

[b] Exemptions

Any property that is exempt from enforcement of a money judgment is not subject to the lien provided for in Civ. Code § 1861a [Civ. Code § 1861a].

Chapter 331 LANDLORD AND TENANT: CREATING THE TENANCY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

29-331 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 331.12

§ 331.12 Leases of Real Property

[1] Defined

A lease of real property is an agreement by which one is granted on stated terms and conditions the right to occupy the property to the exclusion of the grantor [Bachenheimer v. Palm Springs etc. Corp. (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 580, 591, 254 P.2d 153] .

[2] Leases Are Contractual in Nature

A lease, although primarily a conveyance to the lessee of an interest in real property, is contractual in nature. Two distinct sets of rights and obligations are created; one arises out of the relation of landlord and tenant and is based on privity of estate, whereas the other arises out of the express provisions of the lease and is based on privity of contract [Medico-Dental Bldg. Co. v. Horton & Converse (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 411, 418, 132 P.2d 457 ; Samuels v. Ottinger (1915) 169 Cal. 209, 211, 146 P. 638 ; Flynn v. Mikelian (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 305, 310, 25 Cal. Rptr. 138] .

[3] Requirements of a Lease

[a] Intent of Parties to Create Lease Is Key Element

To create a valid lease there must be a definite agreement as to the extent and boundary of the property leased (such as the street address), a definiteand agreed term, a definite and agreed rent, and a time and manner of payment of rent [Santa Cruz v. MacGregor (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 45, 53, 2 Cal. Rptr. 727] . A lease must ordinarily be signed by both parties and delivered [Vavuris v. Pinelli (1957) 147 Cal. App. 2d 390, 393, 305 P.2d 149] . Although these elements are necessary to a lease's existence, they are not sufficient alone to create a lease unless the parties so intend. The question of intention is to be determined by a construction of the instrument in light of the surrounding circumstances [Back v. New York Merchandise Co. (1961) 196 Cal. App. 2d 434, 442, 16 Cal. Rptr. 591] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Oral Agreement Despite Lack of Signature. Even when a lease may be deemed unenforceable due to the lack of a party's signature [see [e], below for a discussion of the signature requirements], it may still be evidence of an oral agreement between the parties. By Benjamin Kaplan

PRACTICE TIP: No Lease. If a lease is not created, a court might conclude in appropriate circumstances that a license, a security interest, or some other instrument was created. By Myron Moskovitz

No particular legal terminology is required in the making of a lease, but it is essential that the instrument show an intention to establish the relationship of landlord and tenant [Beckett v. City of Paris Dry Goods Co. (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 633, 636, 96 P.2d 122] . The parties' characterization of an agreement as a lease is not controlling, but it is some evidence that the parties intended to create a lease [Sherwin v. Bogosian (1931) 112 Cal. App. 359, 364, 296 P. 641] .

In summary, all that is required is that the agreement show the intention of the named lessor to dispossess himself or herself of, and to grant to the named lessee, the right to enter and possess the designated premises in subordination to the lessor's title for a fixed consideration and period of time [Timm v. Brown (1947) 78 Cal. App. 2d 609, 616, 178 P.2d 10] .

One of the distinguishing characteristics of a lease is that the owner of premises must grant the possessor "exclusive" possession and control of the premises, including possession exclusive of the owner for the lease's term. Sporadic use of premises, with shared control by the owner during each use, cannot be deemed "exclusive" of the owner's possession [Golden West Baseball Co. v. City of Anaheim (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 11, 32-33, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 378] . For example, possession and control of stadium premises by the owner of a professional baseball team on approximately 81 dates that vary from year to year cannot be considered "exclusive against all the world including the owner" when the owner operates all concession and parking premises, with shared control by the owner during each use [Golden West Baseball Co. v. City of Anaheim (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 11, 32-33, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 378] .

[b] Description of Premises

A valid lease must contain a description of the premises to be leased [Beckett v. City of Paris Dry Goods Co. (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 633, 637, 96 P.2d 122] . If the description is ambiguous as to the description of the premises, a court may consider evidence of the parties' intentions [Gilman v. Nemetz (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 81, 87-88, 21 Cal. Rptr. 317] .

If a lessee takes possession of property under a lease containing an ambiguous and uncertain description of the property to be occupied and pays the stipulated rent, the lease will be enforced as a lease if the parties act on it as relating to particular premises [Beckett v. City of Paris Dry Goods Co. (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 633, 637, 96 P.2d 122 ; Gilman v. Nemetz (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 81, 87-88, 21 Cal. Rptr. 317] . Thus, an indefinite description of the property may be cured by taking possession [Beckett v. City of Paris Dry Goods Co. (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 633, 637, 96 P.2d 122 ; Santa Cruz v. MacGregor (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 45, 53, 2 Cal. Rptr. 727] .

[c] Definite Term

A valid lease must have a definite term [Frey v. Corbin (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 536, 539, 191 P.2d 21] . The lease's term may be month-to-month. The term of a lease is adequately stated if the possession is to commence on the completion of the premises, and any uncertainty as to such a term is removed by the completion of the premises [Santa Cruz v. MacGregor (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 45, 53, 2 Cal. Rptr. 727] .

[d] Consideration

A valid lease must be based on consideration. A lease that allows one party to withdraw at his or her pleasure is not enforceable because of lack of consideration [Cox v. Hollywood Film Enterprises, Inc. (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 320, 325, 240 P.2d 713] . However, a lease that can be canceled on only 90 days' notice is supported by consideration [

Associated Oil Co. v. Myers (1933) 217 Cal. 297, 301, 18 P.2d 668] .

In an ordinary lease, there is mutual consideration in that the landlord impliedly warrants quiet enjoyment by the tenant and the tenant promises to pay rent [Blackman v. Dalton's Auto & Furniture Loans Ltd. (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 14, 18, 124 P.2d 123] . In a requirements lease, if the landlord promises to lease to the tenant all the space he or she needs and the tenant agrees to lease all the space he or she needs from the landlord, the requisite consideration exists [Fisher v. Parsons (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 829, 834-836, 29 Cal. Rptr. 210] .

A valid lease must ordinarily be signed by both parties and delivered to become operative [Vavuris v. Pinelli (1957) 147 Cal. App. 2d 390, 393, 305 P.2d 149], although leases for less than one year, as well as month-to-month agreements, need not be in writing [see Civ. Code §§ 1622, 1624(a)(3)]. It is not essential that the lessee sign a lease because delivery to and acceptance of the leased premises is sufficient. The lessee may indicate acceptance by taking possession or by paying rent. On such acceptance, both landlord and tenant become bound under the lease, except that a special covenant, such as one to repair, does not bind the tenant who has not signed [Walker v. Dorn (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 118, 121, 49 Cal. Rptr. 362] .

Whether an instrument has been delivered is a question of fact, and retention of the lease by the landlord is not conclusive evidence of its nondelivery. If retention is with the tenant's consent, it must be considered delivered if the parties understand it has been executed and is in operation [Handley v. Guasco (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 703, 710, 332 P.2d 354] .

[f] Foreign Language Translation

Any person engaged in a trade or business who negotiates primarily in Spanish, either orally or in writing, in the course of entering into a lease, sublease, rental contract or agreement, or other term of tenancy contract or agreement, for a period of longer than one month, covering a dwelling, apartment, mobilehome, or other dwelling unit normally occupied as a residence, must, on the request of any party to the contract or agreement and before the execution thereof, deliver an unexecuted Spanish language translation of the contract or agreement. In addition, at the time and place where such a contract or agreement is entered into, a Spanish language notice of the right to such a translation must be provided to the lessee or tenant [Civ. Code § 1632(a)]. On a failure to comply with the provisions of Civ. Code § 1632, the aggrieved person may rescind the contract or agreement in the manner provided by the Civil Code [Civ. Code § 1632(g)]. In this context, the term "contract" or "agreement" does not include matters ordinarily incorporated by reference in the above-described leases, subleases, rental contracts or agreements, or other term of tenancy contracts or agreements, including, but not limited to, rules and regulations governing a tenancy and inventories of furnishings to be provided by the person described in Civ. Code § 1632(a) [Civ. Code § 1632(d)].

These requirements also apply to persons negotiating primarily in Chinese, Tagalog, Vietnamese, or Korean [Civ. Code § 1632(b)]. Those persons must provide copies of the unexecuted contract or agreement and the notice of the statutory requirement in the language in which the contract or agreement was negotiated [Civ. Code § 1632(b), (d)].

For a discussion of Civ. Code § 1632, see Ch. 127, Consumer Contracts and Loans . For a discussion of and forms for use in an action to rescind a contract, see Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution .

[4] Agreement to Execute Lease

If the parties agree in writing on the essential terms of a lease, there is a binding lease even if a formal instrument is to be prepared and signed later [Gavina v. Smith (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 501, 504, 154 P.2d 681 ; Cappelmann v. Young (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 49, 53, 165 P.2d 950] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Warning! It is important to be careful in executing documents considered to be an intention to lease later as these documents may be enforceable as a lease if they contain all the essential terms even though it was contemplated that a lease would be executed later. By Benjamin Kaplan

However, an agreement to lease in the future will not be construed as a present lease if it can be shown that the parties did not intend such a result [Potter v. Mercer (1879) 53 Cal. 667, 672-674 ; overruled by Jordan v. Talbot (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 597], or if the agreement is too uncertain and incomplete in that it lacks a date for commencement or a specified term [Martin v. Hall (1933) 219 Cal. 334, 338-339, 26 P.2d 288] .

Whether an instrument is a present lease or an agreement to execute a lease in the future is largely a question of the intention of the parties [Levin v. Saroff (1921) 54 Cal. App. 285, 289-290, 201 P. 961 , disapproved on other grounds, Sterling v. Taylor (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 757, 770, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116, 152 P.3d 420]. If possession is given under an agreement, this is a circumstance tending to prove that a present lease was intended [Santa Cruz v. MacGregor (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 45, 54, 2 Cal. Rptr. 727] .

[5] Modification

In all leases of lands or tenements, or of any interest therein, from week-to-week, month-to-month, or other period less than a month, the landlord may change the terms of the lease by giving written notice to the tenant in the manner prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1162. With regard to tenancies for less than one month, the changes will take effect on the expiration of a period at least as long as the term of the hiring itself. With regard to tenancies from month-to-month, the changes will take effect at the expiration of not less than 30 days. If such change takes effect within a rental term, the rent accruing from the first day of such term to the date of such change is computed at the rental rate that existed immediately before such change. However, parties may provide by a written agreement that a notice changing the terms of the lease may be given at any time not less than seven days before the expiration of a term, to be effective on the term's expiration [Civ. Code § 827(a)].

When served on the tenant, the notice in and of itself operates and is effective to create and establish, as part of the lease, the terms, rents, and conditions specified in the notice, if the tenant continues to hold the premises after the notice takes effect [Civ. Code § 827(a)].

A landlord may increase the rent in a lease of a residential dwelling or an interest in a residential dwelling from week-to-week, month-to-month, or other period less than a month, on giving written notice to the tenant by either delivering a copy to the tenant personally or by serving a copy by mail under the procedures prescribed in Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 [Civ. Code § 827(b)]. If the proposed rent increase for that tenant is 10 percent or less of the rental amount charged to that tenant at any time during the 12 months before the effective date of the increase, either in and of itself or when combined with any other rent increases for the 12 months before the effective date of the increase, the notice must be delivered at least 30 days before the effective date of the increase and subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 if served by mail [Civ. Code § 827(b)]. If the increase in rent is greater than 10 percent, the minimum notice period is increased by an additional 30 days. However, this additional 30-day period does not apply to an increase in rent caused by a change in a tenant's income or family composition as determined by a recertification required by statute or regulation [Civ. Code § 827(b)]. If a state or federal statute, state or federal regulation, recorded regulatory agreement, or contract provides for a longer period of notice regarding a rent increase than that provided above, the personal service or mailing of the notice must be in accordance with the longer period [Civ. Code § 827(c)].

[6] Interpretation

A lease is construed primarily as a contract, and therefore, when doubt arises as to what the rights, duties, and obligations of the parties are under the terms of a lease, the statutory rules for the construction of contracts as embodied in Civ. Code §§ 1635-1662 (interpretation of contracts) are applicable [Wright v. Coberly-West Co. (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 31, 35, 58 Cal. Rptr. 213 ; Northridge Hospital Foundation v. Pic'N' Save No. 9 (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1088, 1095-1098, 232 Cal. Rptr. 329] .

For example, the contract principle regarding the mutual dependency of covenants is appropriate in dealing with residential leases of urban dwelling units [Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 624, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168] . A lease should be construed in conformity with the fundamental principle that the intentions of the parties should be given effect as far as possible [Medico-Dental etc. v. Horton & Converse (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 411, 418-419, 132 P.2d 457] . Thus, covenants and agreements in a lease should be construed to be dependent on or independent of each other according to the intentions of the parties and the good sense of the case, and technical words should give way to such intentions [Medico-Dental Bldg. Co. v. Horton & Converse (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 411, 419, 132 P.2d 457 ; Enos v. Foster (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 152, 155, 317 P.2d 670] . Thus, rent may be in certain circumstances an independent covenant.

Any ambiguity or uncertainty in a lease must be interpreted most strongly against the party who drafted the lease [Cooper v. Mart Associates(1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 108, 116, 37 Cal. Rptr. 145] . For this reason, some leases contain clauses waiving this rule of construction and stating that in the event of a dispute, leases are to be construed and interpreted as if both parties jointly prepared the lease. If the landlord, as drafter of the lease, did not allow any negotiation of the language in the lease, a court would probably not permit such a waiver. The inclusion of a clause that both parties had the opportunity to be represented by counsel and that the lease was a fully negotiated agreement may help support a waiver (or estoppel) argument.

[7] Recording

[a] When Lease Is Void for Failure to Record

A conveyance of real property, or an estate for years in the property, is void as against any subsequent purchaser or mortgagee of the same property, or any part of the property, in good faith and for valuable consideration, whose conveyance is first duly recorded, unless it is duly recorded before the recording of a notice of action [Civ. Code § 1214]. The word conveyance, as used in Civ. Code § 1214, includes all leases of real property [Seal of Gold Mining Co. v. Slater (1911) 161 Cal. 621, 630, 120 P. 15] , other than a lease for a term not exceeding one year [Civ. Code § 1214]. Thus, the purpose of recording a lease is to give notice to prospective bona fide purchasers and thus protect the lessee's estate in the leased property from either future encumbrances or sale of the property.

[b] Unrecorded Written Leases

Although void as against a good faith purchaser or mortgagee of the leased property, an unrecorded written lease for a term in excess of one year is valid as between the parties and those having notice of the lease [Civ. Code § 1217]. Such a lease is therefore valid as against a purchaser of the property who has notice of it or such notice as should put the purchaser on inquiry, such as an inspection of the subject premises. Possession of the property by a tenant or subtenant is sufficient to put the subsequent purchaser on notice of the tenant's or subtenant's claim to the property, and therefore the subsequent purchaser's rights will be subject to the leasehold rights of the tenant in possession even if the lease is not recorded [Evans v. Faught (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 698, 705, 42 Cal. Rptr. 133] .

[8] Renewal of Leases

[a] Possession After Expiration of Lease

If a lessee of real property remains in possession of the property after the expiration of the hiring, and the lessor accepts rent from him or her,the parties are presumed to have renewed the hiring on the same terms and for the same time, not exceeding one month when the rent is payable monthly nor in any case one year [Civ. Code § 1945].

PRACTICE TIP:

Implied Renewal of Lease. The rule whereby fixed-term leases automatically turn into month-to-month agreements on the same terms is very useful in applying an attorney's fee provision in a lease to what many people often assume has become merely an oral month-to-month agreement. By Myron Moskovitz

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, any term of a lease executed after June 30, 1966, for the hiring of residential real property that provides for the automatic renewal or extension of the lease for all or part of the full term of the lease if the lessee remains in possession after the expiration of the lease or fails to give notice of his or her intent not to renew or extend before the expiration of the lease is voidable by the party who did not prepare the lease unless the renewal or extension provision appears in at least eight-point boldface type, if the contract isprinted, in the body of the lease agreement and a recital of the fact that such provision is contained in the body of the agreement appears in at least eight-point boldface type, if the contract is printed, immediately before the place where the lessee executes the agreement. In this case, the presumption in Civ. Code § 1945 (implied renewal of lease) applies [Civ. Code § 1945.5].

[b] Extension Distinguished

A renewal of a lease creates a new and distinct tenancy. An extension of a lease is the stretching or spreading out of a former term [Burroughs v. Ben's Auto Park, Inc. (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 449, 454, 164 P.2d 897 ; Smith v. Arthur D. Little, Inc. (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 391, 399, 81 Cal. Rptr. 140 ; see In re Marriage of Joaquin (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1529, 1534, 239 Cal. Rptr. 175] . However, the distinction between a renewal and an extension of a lease is not always observed. The word "renewal" and the words "to renew" have no definite and fixed legal significance [Erickson v. Boothe (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d 266, 273, 179 P.2d 611] , and courts frequently use the terms "renew" and "extend" interchangeably [Cicinelli v. Iwasaki (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 58, 64, 338 P.2d 1005] .

This confusion also appears in the applicable statutes. Although Civ. Code §§ 1945 and 1945.5 refer to "renewal," their legal effect is that of an extension. When difficulty occurs in interpreting whether a lease provides for an extension or for a renewal, a court will, if possible, give effect to the intention of the parties. In the absence of an express provision that a new lease was intended to be executed, the presumption is that no new lease was intended and the tenant continues to hold under the original lease. The lease must clearly and positively show that the making of a new lease was intended, and this must appear from the express language of the parties [see Civ. Code § 1654; Erickson v. Boothe (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d 266, 275, 179 P.2d 611] .

[c] Effect on Original Lease

The execution of a new (renewal) lease does not operate to interrupt the possession of the lessee under the original lease [Reynolds v. McEwen (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 540, 545, 244 P.2d 961] . Execution of a new lease by a tenant, as opposed to a renewal lease to commence on termination of the existing lease, operates as an effective surrender of the premises demised in the original lease [Scott v. Mullins (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 51, 55, 27 Cal. Rptr. 269] .

If a tenant remains in possession under a new (renewal) lease, the tenant must be careful to reserve any rights contained in the former lease, such as the right to remove fixtures, or else such rights will be lost [see Schlageter Estate Co. v. Koontz (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 814, 819, 218 P.2d 814 ; Woods v. Bank of Haywards (1909) 10 Cal. App. 93, 96, 106 P. 730] . However, under an extension of the lease, the parties are deemed to have assented to all of the terms of the original lease [Knox v. Wolfe (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 494, 500, 167 P.2d 3] .

When a tenant under a lease remains in possession of the leased premises with the permission of the lessor from month-to-month after the term expires, a new tenancy is not created but the original tenancy is deemed to have been extended [Schmitt v. Felix (1958) 157 Cal. App. 2d 642, 646, 321 P.2d 473] .

§ 331.13 Cotenants

Cotenants hold as tenants in common but are jointly and severally liable on covenants to repair and to deliver possession at the end of the term [Coburn v. Goodall (1887) 72 Cal. 498, 503, 14 P. 190] .

The possession of one cotenant is possession for all other cotenants [Barrow v. Simon (1934) 2 Cal. App. 2d 500, 503, 38 P.2d 197] . A holding over by one tenant in possession where the lease provides that such holding over is to be construed to be a tenancy from month-to-month will bind all cotenants unless the other tenants act to terminate the lease. A cotenant not in possession may give notice of termination of the tenancy and, if the cotenant does so, he or she cannot be held liable for his or her cotenants' holding over. In such a case, the landlord may either accept the cotenant in possession as his or her sole tenant or terminate the tenancy [Schmitt v. Felix (1958) 157 Cal. App. 2d 642, 646-648, 321 P.2d 473] .

Chapter 331 LANDLORD AND TENANT: CREATING THE TENANCY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

29-331 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 331.14

§ 331.14 Title

[1] Property to Which Tenant Is Entitled

The general rule is that everything that belongs to the demised premises or is used with and appurtenant to it and that is reasonably essential to its enjoyment passes as an incident of the leased premises to the tenants, unless specifically reserved by the lessor [Owsley v. Hamner (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 710, 717, 227 P.2d 263 ; Sierad v. Lilly (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 770, 774, 22 Cal. Rptr. 580] . Thus, in the absence of qualifying words, a lease of a part of a building passes with it, as incident thereto, everything necessarily used with or reasonably necessary for the enjoyment of the part demised [Sierad v. Lilly (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 770, 774, 22 Cal. Rptr. 580] .

A lease of an entire house or building operates as a lease of the land on which the building stands, at least as far as is needed for its support; the same is true of adjacent land belonging to the lessor that is used with the building and is necessary for proper occupation of the leased premises for the purpose for which the lease was intended [Bachenheimer v. Palm Springs etc. Corp. (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 580, 588, 254 P.2d 153] . The lease of a store passes as an incident or appurtenance thereto everything then in use for the store [Owsley v. Hamner (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 710, 716, 227 P.2d 263] .

Although not expressly granted, rights and easements may and do pass to lessees by implication [Sierad v. Lilly (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 770, 774, 22 Cal. Rptr. 580] . If the express words of the grant are not sufficient, the implication that supplies those words flows either from a reasonable necessity or, considering all the circumstances, from the manifest intention of the parties [Sierad v. Lilly (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 770, 774, 22 Cal. Rptr. 580] . For easements to be implied, they need not be absolutely necessary or required to make the leased property tenantable. The prevailing test is whether they are reasonably necessary for the beneficial enjoyment of the property leased [Owsley v. Hamner (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 710, 718, 227 P.2d 263] . Whether they are is generally a question of fact [Froomer v. Drollinger (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 90, 96-98, 19 Cal. Rptr. 891] .

[2] Estoppel to Deny Landlord's Title

[a] In General

A lessee or sublessee usually is estopped to deny the title of his or her landlord [People v. Rice (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 207, 211, 8 Cal. Rptr. 76] . Thus, the issue of the validity of the landlord's title may not be raised as a defense to a suit for either unlawful detainer or for rent [Staudigl v. Harper (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 439, 445-446, 173 P.2d 343 (unlawful detainer action); Blackman v. Dalton's Auto & Furniture Loans Ltd. (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 14, 17, 124 P.2d 123 (rent)], nor can it be raised in an action to cancel a lease [Ware v. Stafford (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 840, 843-844, 307 P.2d 950] .

[b] Exceptions

There are a number of exceptions to the rule that the tenant is estopped to question his or her landlord's title. If the landlord brings an action against the tenant in which the landlord seeks to quiet his or her title against the tenant rather than merely recover possession from the tenant, the tenant is not estopped and can set up and attempt to establish his or her own superior title [Dimond Public Utility Dist. v. Shaffer (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 482, 486-487, 8 Cal. Rptr. 372] . A tenant is not estopped to question his or her landlord's title in an action to have the lease rescinded if the tenant was induced to enter into the lease by fraudulent representations of the landlord [Kearney Inv. Co. v. Golden Gate Ferry Co. (1926) 198 Cal. 560, 563-564, 246 P. 322] or in an action to recover rent paid to the landlord when the lease was executed under the misapprehension that the landlord owned the leased property [Stratton v. Hanning (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 723, 727, 294 P.2d 66] .

The tenant is also not estopped to deny the title of his or her landlord and claim title for himself or herself if the tenant was in possession of the property before the lease and was therefore not placed in possession by the landlord [Strong v. Baldwin (1908) 154 Cal. 150, 161-162, 97 P. 178] , if he or she is no longer in possession of the property [Stratton v. Hanning (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 723, 727, 294 P.2d 66] , or if it is clear from the lease that the parties agreed that the tenant could question the landlord's title [Taylor v. Continental So. Corp. (1951) 104 Cal. App. 2d 425, 432, 233 P.2d 577] . A tenant can interplead the conflicting claims of his or her landlord and a third party as to rent despite any estoppel to deny the landlord's title [Hancock Oil Co. v. Hopkins (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 497, 509, 150 P.2d 463] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Alleged Successor of Landlord. In addition to the above exceptions, a tenant may always question whether a landlord's alleged successor properly took title from the landlord and is thus entitled to make demands on the tenant. By Myron Moskovitz

PRACTICE TIP: Gravamen of Action Based on Newly Acquired Title. Another exception to the rule in [a], above, exists when the gravamen of the action is based on newly acquired title by foreclosure sale. By Benjamin Kaplan

[3] Adverse Possession

It is a general rule that a lessee in possession of real property under a lease may not hold adversely to his or her landlord whileholding under the lease [Harvey v. Nurick (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 213, 215, 74 Cal. Rptr. 94] . Such possession may not be classified as hostile, and therefore, a requisite element of adverse possession cannot be satisfied.

When a landlord and tenant relationship has existed between any persons, the possession of the tenant is deemed the possession of the landlord until the expiration of five years from the termination of the tenancy, or, if there has been no written lease, until the expiration of five years from the time of the last payment of rent, notwithstanding that such tenant may have acquired another title, or may have claimed to hold adversely to his or her landlord. These presumptions may not be made after the periods limited above [Code Civ. Proc. § 326].

[4] Tenant's Obligation to Notify Landlord of Any Proceeding to Recover Property

Every tenant who receives notice of any proceeding to recover the real property occupied by the tenant, or the possession of such property, must immediately inform his or her landlord of the proceeding, and also deliver any written notice of the proceeding to the landlord. The tenant is responsible to the landlord for all damages that the landlord may sustain by reason of any omission to inform the landlord of the notice or to deliver a written notice to the landlord [Civ. Code § 1949].

[5] Landlord's Right to Inspect Leased Premises

When a lease contains a provision that the tenants will not violate governmental laws and regulations, the landlord has the right to ensure that such violations are not taking place. When a landlord reasonably suspects these violations, he or she has a right to inspect leased premises.

Since contamination that would violate government laws and regulation is usually hidden from view, an expert investigation is required. Good faith and fair dealing with regard to the covenant of lawful activity requires a reasonable means by which the landlord can assure itself that environmental laws are not being violated. Such assurance may be provided by tests and reports initiated by the tenant that objectively provide adequate assurance. If the tenant fails to provide this report, the landlord has the right to come onto leased premises and conduct testing in a reasonable and nonobtrusive manner [Sachs v. Exxon Co. U.S.A. (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 1491, 1498, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 237] .

[6] Options to Purchase

For a general discussion and form surrounding a lessee's option to purchase the premises, see § 334.67.

[b] Option of First Refusal Distinguished

A lease can give a tenant the right of first refusal to extend or renew the lease and this clause is enforceable [Schwartz v. Shapiro (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 238, 255, 40 Cal. Rptr. 189] . Although a right of first refusal is similar to an option, it differs in that the option creates in the tenant a power to compel the landlord to lease the property on specified terms whether he or she is willing to do so at the time of the exercise of the option or on the commencement of the new lease.

A right of first refusal, on the other hand, does not give the tenant the right to compel an unwilling landlord to lease the property, but merely requires the landlord, when and if he or she decides to lease it, to offer it first to the tenant. The tenant has the right to meet an offer made by a third party, but this right is conditioned on the landlord's continued leasing of the property [Ablett v. Clauson (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 280, 283-284, 272 P.2d 753] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Rights and Duties During the Tenancy

29-332 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 332.10

§ 332.10 Duty to Repair or Restore

[1] Landlord

[a] General Duty

At common law, a landlord had no general obligation to repair or maintain leased premises in the absence of fraud, a covenant to repair, or a statutory duty to repair [Glenn R. Sewell Sheet Metal, Inc. v. Loverde (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 666, 671-672, 75 Cal. Rptr. 889, 451 P.2d 721] . This rule has been modified, however, with regard to a landlord's liability for personal injuries resulting from an accident on his or her leased premises. A landlord is now under a duty to exercise ordinary care in the management of his or her premises [Brennan v. Cockrell Investments, Inc. (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 796, 799, 802, 111 Cal. Rptr. 122] .

For discussion of a landlord's covenant to repair, see § 332.55. For a discussion of the respective duties of landlords and tenants under a commercial lease to comply with applicable governmental laws and regulations (including those requiring repairs and improvements to leased property), see [c], below.

[b] Statutory Duty

[i] In General

A landlord's common law obligation to repair property has been modified by statute in California with regard to residential property, though it remains unchanged for commercial property. At common law, the tenant took the property for better or for worse and, in the absence of a special, or bargained for, agreement, the tenant could not involve the landlord in any expense for repairs without the landlord's consent [Van Every v. Ogg (1881) 59 Cal. 563, 565] .

Under California statute, however, the lessor of a building intended for the occupation of human beings is responsible for ensuring that the building is in a condition fit for residential occupation and for repairing all subsequent dilapidations of the building that render the building untenantable, except such as are mentioned in Civ. Code § 1929 [

Civ. Code § 1941]. These rights cannot be waived by agreement [see Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 631, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168 ; see also Civ. Code § 1953].

[ii] Standards

Under Civ. Code § 1941.1, a dwelling will be deemed untenantable for purposes of Civ. Code § 1941 if it substantially lacks any of the following affirmative standard characteristics:

- Effective waterproofing and weather protection of roof and exterior walls, including unbroken windows and doors;

- Plumbing or gas facilities that conformed to applicable law in effect at the time of installation, maintained in good working order;

- A water supply approved under applicable law, that is under the control of the tenant, capable of producing hot and cold running water, or a system that is under the control of the landlord, which produces hot and cold running water, furnished to appropriate fixtures, and connected to a sewage disposal system approved under applicable law;

- Heating facilities that conformed with applicable law at the time of installation, maintained in good working order;

- Electrical lighting, with wiring and electrical equipment that conformed with applicable law at the time of installation, maintained in good working order;

- Building, grounds, and appurtenances at the time of the commencement of the lease or rental agreement in every part clean, sanitary, and free from all accumulations of debris, filth, rubbish, garbage, rodents and vermin, and all areas under control of the landlord kept in every part clean, sanitary, and free from all accumulations of debris, filth, rubbish, garbage, rodents, and vermin;

- An adequate number of appropriate receptacles for garbage and rubbish, in clean condition and good repair at the time of the commencement of the lease or rental agreement, with the landlord providing appropriate serviceable receptacles thereafter, and being responsible for the clean condition and good repair of these receptacles under his or her control; and

- Floors, stairways, and railings maintained in good repair.

- A locking mail receptacle is provided for each residential unit in a residential hotel [Civ. Code § 1941.1(i), effective July 1, 2008; see Health & Safety Code § 17958.3 (mailbox requirements)].

In addition, a dwelling will be deemed untenantable for purposes of Civ. Code § 1941 if it is a residential unit that meets the definition of "substandard building" set forth in Health & Safety Code § 17920.3 or if it contains lead hazards as set forth in Health & Safety Code § 17920.10 [Civ. Code § 1941.1].

A lessor of a building intended for the residential occupation of human beings is responsible for installing at least one usable telephone jack and for placing and maintaining the inside telephone wiring in good working order [Civ. Code § 1941.4]. Also, on and after July 1, 1998, a landlord of a building intended for human habitation must install and maintain in operable condition deadbolts on dwelling doors and other locking and security devices on windows and doors [Civ. Code § 1941.3(a)].

[iii] Defenses

No duty on the landlord's part to repair a dilapidation arises under Civ. Code § 1941 or 1942 (duty of lessor to keep building fit for occupancy) if the tenant is in substantial violation of any of the following affirmative obligations, provided the tenant's violation contributes substantially to the dilapidation's existence or interferes substantially with the landlord's obligation under Civ. Code § 1941 to effect the necessary repairs [Civ. Code § 1941.2(a)]:

- To keep that part of the premises that he or she occupies and uses clean and sanitary as the condition of the premises permits;

- To dispose from his or her dwelling unit of all rubbish, garbage, and other waste, in a clean and sanitary manner;

- To properly use and operate all electrical, gas, and plumbing fixtures and keep them as clean and sanitary as their condition permits;

- Not to permit any person on the premises, with his or her permission, to willfully or wantonly destroy, deface, damage, impair, or remove any part of the structure or dwelling unit or the facilities, equipment, or appurtenances thereto, nor himself or herself do any such thing; or

- To occupy the premises as his or her abode, utilizing portions of the premises for living, sleeping, cooking, or dining purposes only which were respectively designed or intended to be used for such occupancies.

The first two bullets above do not apply if the landlord has expressly agreed in writing to perform the act or acts mentioned therein [Civ. Code § 1941.2(b)].

[iv] Waiver

Any agreement by a tenant of a dwelling waiving or modifying his or her rights under Civ. Code § 1941 or 1942 is void as contrary to public policy with regard to any condition that renders the premises untenantable, except that the landlord and the tenant may agree that the tenant will undertake to improve, repair, or maintain all or stipulated portions of the dwelling as part of the consideration for rent [Civ. Code § 1942.1]. A tenant is not entitled to recover amounts expended in making repairs when he or she has waived all his or her rights under Civ. Code § 1942 [Arnold v. Krigbaum (1915) 169 Cal. 143, 147, 146 P. 423] .

[v] Arbitration

The landlord and tenant may, if an agreement is in writing, set forth the provisions of Civ. Code §§ 1941-1942.1, inclusive, and provide that any controversy relating to a condition of the premises claimed to make them untenantable may by application of either party be submitted to arbitration, in accordance with the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1280-1294.2 (arbitrations), and that the costs of the arbitration will be apportioned by the arbitrator between the parties [Civ. Code § 1942.1].

Note that the Sixth District Court of Appeal has held that to be enforceable, an agreement to arbitrate issues concerning the rights and obligations of a landlord and tenant, including tenantability issues, must be contained in a separate agreement and not in the lease itself [Jaramillo v. JH Real Estate Partners, Inc. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 394, 404, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 525] . The court's reasoning was based on Civ. Code § 1953(a)(4), which precludes a residential lease agreement from including any modification or waiver of a tenant's "procedural rights in litigation in any action involving his rights and obligations as a tenant." Thus, to ensure enforceability, landlords may wish to enter into separate agreements to arbitrate with their tenants. For arbitration provisions to be included in residential leases, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 34B, Residential Leases (Matthew Bender), and Rabkin and Johnson, Current Legal Forms, Ch. 23, Real Estate Leases (Matthew Bender).

For discussion and forms for use in nonjudicial arbitration under Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq., see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration , and Ch. 33, Contractual Arbitration: Appointment of Arbitrator and Conduct of Proceeding .

[c] Compliance With Laws Regarding Repair

When preventative or reparative actions are required by law, one or more of the parties interested in leased property must be obliged to comply. Since the property owner is initially under the duty to comply with all laws and orders, he or she, as landlord, remains subject to that duty [Glenn R. Sewell Sheet Metal, Inc. v. Loverde (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 666, 672, 75 Cal. Rptr. 889, 451 P.2d 721] . Although a commercial tenant may be able to assume this duty, a residential tenant may not assume this duty [see Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 631, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168 ; see also [b][i], above].

[d] Implied Warranty of Habitability

A warranty of habitability is implied by law in residential leases in California [Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 631, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168] . The Supreme Court has held that the landlord's breach of the implied warranty may constitute a defense to an unlawful detainer action [Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 619, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168] . Since the Court also stated that the tenant's duty to pay rent is mutually dependent on the landlord's fulfillment of the implied warranty of habitability [Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 635, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168] , breach of the implied warranty constitutes a valid defense to a landlord's action for rent [see §§ 332.11[2][a], 333.29[4], 333.162, 334.10[3], 334.52, 334.63, 334.83].

[2] Tenant

[a] Statutory Duty

A residential tenant is under no general obligation to correct defective conditions of leased premises. A commercial tenant is only under such an obligation when necessary to prevent waste or to rectify delapidations caused by his or her own lack of ordinary care [Glenn R. Sewell Sheet Metal, Inc. v. Loverde (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 666, 671, 75 Cal. Rptr. 889, 451 P.2d 721 (dictum)]. A residential tenant only has an obligation to use ordinary care for preserving the premises in safe and good condition [Civ. Code § 1928]. Although the tenant must also repair all deteriorations or injuries to the premises caused by the tenant's want of ordinary care [Civ. Code § 1929], the tenant has no obligation to repair portions of the premises over which he or she has no control or authority [Rathbun Co. v. Simmons (1928) 90 Cal. App. 692, 696, 266 P. 369] .

[b] Compliance With Laws Regarding Repair

There are three ways in which a tenant obligates himself or herself to comply with laws regarding repair of leased premises:

- The creation of the lessor-lessee relationship itself imposes on the lessee a minimal duty of compliance with applicable laws. Such a duty extends only to those required activities that are truly minor in expense and inconvenience, that arise out of the ordinary course of the lessee's use of the premises, and that would in no event impose on the lessee a burden greater than that imposed by the common-law duty to prevent waste [Glenn R. Sewell Sheet Metal, Inc. v. Loverde (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 666, 672, 75 Cal. Rptr. 889, 451 P.2d 721] .

- A lessee who voluntarily uses leased premises in a manner different from the use before the creation of his or her tenancy, and thereby causes the premises to fall within the scope of existing laws not previously applicable to the premises, must bear the burden of conforming his or her new use to the requirements of the law and of taking all action necessary to rectify any subsequent instances of noncompliance [Glenn R. Sewell Sheet Metal, Inc. v. Loverde (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 666, 672, 75 Cal. Rptr. 889, 451 P.2d 721] . When a subtenant modifies the premises and puts it to different use, the tenant is liable to the landlord for the cost of code compliance [Wolfen v. Clinical Data, Inc. (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 171, 180-182, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 684] .

- A commercial lessor may transfer his or her obligations regarding repair to his or her lessee by an agreement in which the lessee assumes the duty of compliance with statutes and the risk that the performance of this duty may prove expensive or inconvenient. The general rule is that a lessee's unqualified covenant to comply with applicable laws, standing alone, does not constitute an assumption of the duty to comply with those laws that require curative actions of a "substantial" nature, but the lessor can disclaim any obligation and the lessee can assume all risks [Glenn R. Sewell Sheet Metal, Inc. v. Loverde (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 666, 673-675, 75 Cal. Rptr. 889, 451 P.2d 721] .

For discussion of a tenant's breach of a covenant to keep and surrender leased premises in good condition, see § 332.42.

[3] Insurance

For a discussion and form regarding who must pay for insurance, see § 332.44.

§ 332.11 Covenants and Conditions

[1] Distinguished

[a] In General

A condition is a qualification annexed to an estate by the grantor, on the happening of which the estate granted is enlarged or defeated. It differs from a covenant in that it is created by the mutual agreement of the parties [Knight v. Black (1912) 19 Cal. App. 518, 522, 126 P. 512] ; a covenant is an agreement of the covenantor only [Knight v. Black (1912) 19 Cal. App. 518, 522, 126 P. 512] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Covenants v. Conditions. Both covenants and conditions are binding on the landlord and the tenant. Failure of a condition can end a tenancy, while breach of a covenant usually does not end a tenancy. Conditions are binding on successors in interest; covenants are binding on successors in interest only if they run with the land. By Myron Moskovitz

Generally, use of such terms as "covenants to" or "agrees to" suggests that the provision is a covenant whereas the use of such terms as "on condition that," "subject to," "in the event that," or "shall" suggests that the provision is a condition. Determination of whether a particular provision constitutes a condition or a covenant depends on consideration of the whole instrument. The words used are not determinative of whether a clause was intended to operate as a condition or a covenant. The construction follows the probable intention of the parties [Streicher v. Heimburge (1928) 205 Cal. 675, 683-684, 272 P. 290] , and a restrictive covenant as to property retained by a lessor must be evidenced by a clearly expressed intention [Stockton Dry Goods Co. v. Girsh (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 677, 680, 227 P.2d 1] . A covenant that may result in a forfeiture on breach of the covenant will be construed strictly against the person relying on the breach [Salton Community Services Dist. v. Southard (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 526, 535, 64 Cal. Rptr. 246] .

[b] Covenants Running With the Land

The distinguishing characteristic of a covenant running with the land is that both liability on and enforcement of it pass with the transfer of the estate. It binds not only the original covenantor, but also his heirs, devisees, assignees, and subsequent purchasers. In addition, covenants running with the land are binding on subsequent transferees of the property, even though they do not contractually assume any responsibility for their performance. In other words, if a covenant runs with the land, it is unnecessary to establish liability founded on privity of contract [Cicinelli v. Iwasaki (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 58, 65, 338 P.2d 1005] .

Covenants running with the land, however, bind only those who acquire the whole estate of the covenantor in some part of the property [Civ. Code § 1465]; no one, merely by reason of having acquired an estate subject to such a covenant, is liable for a breach of the covenant before he or she acquired the estate or after he or she has parted with it [Civ. Code § 1466; see Farber v. Greenberg (1929) 98 Cal. App. 675, 684-685, 277 P. 534] . Ordinarily, the covenantee of a covenant running with the land is not entitled to enforce the covenant following the transfer of the benefited property [Maron v. Howard (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 473, 484-485, 66 Cal. Rptr. 70 (dictum) (questioned on other grounds in Abadjian v. Superior Court (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 363, 372, 214 Cal. Rptr. 234)].

[c] Dependent and Independent Covenants

Covenants in a lease are either independent or dependent. The breach of an independent covenant will not justify the other party's nonperformance of his or her covenants, while the breach of a dependent covenant will permit the other party not to perform on his or her covenants. The remedy for the breach of an independent covenant is damages. The determining factors in characterizing covenants as dependent or independent are the intentions of the parties at the time of execution and the "good sense of the case" [Medico-Dental Bldg. Co. v. Horton & Converse (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 411, 418-420, 132 P.2d 457] .

Covenants in leases are independent unless the lease expressly or impliedly makes them conditional [Kulawitz v. Pacific Woodenware & Paper Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 664, 669, 155 P.2d 24 ; Goldsmith v. Tub-O-Wash (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 132, 138, 18 Cal. Rptr. 446] . For instance, covenants that run to the entire consideration for a lease are mutual and dependent [Medico-Dental Bldg. Co. v. Horton & Converse (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 411, 419, 132 P.2d 457] .

The emerging trend in the law is away from the independent covenants doctrine in residential leases and toward finding covenants to be mutually dependent [see Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 634-635, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168] . The doctrine, however, remains strong in commercial tenancies [see Schulman v. Vera (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 552, 560-563, 166 Cal. Rptr. 620 ; see also Cal. Eviction Defense Manual, 2nd ed., § 19.5].

[d] Effect of Breaching Covenants and Conditions

Although a condition, as distinguished from a covenant, entails the consequences of forfeiture of the estate [Streicher v. Heimburge (1928) 205 Cal. 675, 684, 272 P. 290 (questioned on other grounds in Simons v. Young (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 170, 187-188, 155 Cal. Rptr. 460)], the breach of a covenant is merely a ground for the recovery of damages [Knight v. Black (1912) 19 Cal. App. 518, 522, 126 P. 512] .

[ii] Breach by Lessee

The breach of a covenant by the lessee gives no right of reentry unless the lease provides that it will result in forfeiture or termination of the lessee's interest [Exchange Sec. Co. v. Rossini (1919) 44 Cal. App. 583, 585, 186 P. 828] . A tenant's breach of a lease covenant may nevertheless result in forfeiture, following proper notice, under the unlawful detainer statutes [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161], although the lessor may elect to disregard the breach and continue the lease in effect or rely on the breach and declare a forfeiture [Salton Community Services Dist. v. Southard (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 526, 533, 64 Cal. Rptr. 246] .

As a general rule, before the lessor can declare a forfeiture of the lease for nonperformance of a covenant, he or she must first, absent a contrary provision in the lease or a waiver of demand by the lessee, demand performance of the covenant. This is true whether the lessor subsequently sues in unlawful detainer or ejectment. However, if the breach is one that cannot be cured, a demand for performance is not a condition precedent to an unlawful detainer action [Salton Community Services Dist. v. Southard (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 526, 529, 64 Cal. Rptr. 246] .

[iii] Breach by Lessor

When a lessor breaches a covenant that is a condition precedent to the lessee's performance, the lessee has a choice of several remedies: he or she may rescind and become absolved from further payment of rentals; he or she may continue under the lease and sue for loss of profits; or, he or she may treat the violation as putting an end to the lease for the purposes of performance and sue for damages. For example, when performance of a covenant by the lessor is essential to the beneficial enjoyment of the property by the lessee, it is a condition precedent to the lessee's performance, and a breach thereof may amount to a constructive eviction [Kulawitz v. Pacific Woodenware & Paper Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 664, 669-670, 672, 155 P.2d 24] .

[iv] Waiver of Breach

If a lessor knows of a breach and nonetheless conducts himself or herself in a manner consistent with the continued existence of the lease and inconsistent with its termination by forfeiture, this supports an inference that the lessor has waived the lessee's breach [Salton Community Services Dist. v. Southard (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 526, 533, 64 Cal. Rptr. 246] . For example, the acceptance of rent by a landlord with full knowledge of all the facts from a tenant, after the breach of a condition of a lease, is generally deemed a waiver of the breach and precludes the landlord from declaring a forfeiture of the lease by reason of the breach [Kern Sunset OilCo. v. Good Roads Oil Co. (1931) 214 Cal. 435, 440, 6 P.2d 71 ; see Group Property Inc. v. Bruce (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 549, 555, 248 P.2d 761] . However, waiver of a breach is a matter of intent and, while an intent to waive may be inferred from the acceptance of rent under certain circumstances, this inference may be rebutted if the express agreement between the parties is that rent paid would be accepted without prejudice [Karbelnig v. Brothwell (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 333, 342, 53 Cal. Rptr. 335] .

[v] Future Breaches

Although the acceptance of rents after a known default is generally a waiver of a past default, whether it is a waiver of a future breach depends on (1) the nature of the duty to be performed and (2) the lease's form and contents [Extension Oil Co. v. Richfield Oil Corp. (1942) 52 Cal. App. 2d 105, 108, 125 P.2d 895 (oil lease)].

[2] Landlord's Covenants

[a] Implied Warranty of Habitability

A warranty of habitability is implied by law in residential leases in California [Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 631, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168] . For detailed coverage of this warranty, see §§ 332.10[1][d], 333.28[4], 334.10[3], 334.61 (sample complaint for breach of implied warranty of habitability), and 334.112 (sample affirmative defense of discharge from payment of rent for breach of implied warranty of habitability).

[b] Delivery of Possession

For a form and discussion relating to the lessor's duty to deliver possession, see § 332.52.

[c] Adequacy for Use

Except as modified by Civ. Code §§ 1941 and 1941.1 and the implied warranty of habitability in residential leases, there is no implied warranty or covenant that leased premises are fit for the purposes for which they are rented, or for the particular use for which they are intended by the tenant, or that they will continue to be fit for the purposes for which they are leased [Woolford v. Electric Appliances, Inc. (1938) 24 Cal. App. 2d 385, 387, 75 P.2d 112] . Although a landlord is ordinarily under no duty to prepare the premises for the use of the tenant [Strecker v. Barnard (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 149, 152, 240 P.2d 345] , when the lease spells out the purposes for which the property is leased and requires the lessor to build or install equipment for such use, there is an implied covenant that the leased premises will be reasonably adequate for the intended use [Woolford v. Electric Appliances, Inc. (1938) 24 Cal. App. 2d 385, 389, 75 P.2d 112] .

[d] Not to Lease to Competing Business

[i] In General

The fact that a lease may specify the purposes or uses that may be made of leased premises does not, in and of itself, give the lessee an exclusive right to so use the premises without competition either from the lessor or from other of the lessor's lessees in the same building or area [see Stockton Dry Goods Co. v. Girsh (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 677, 681, 227 P.2d 1] . However, a covenant not to let other premises in the lessor's property or permit their use for certain purposes during the existence of the lease with the covenantee is binding [Kulawitz v. Pacific Woodenware & Paper Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 664, 669, 155 P.2d 24] . Such a restrictive covenant must be evidenced by a clearly expressed intention [Stockton Dry Goods Co. v. Girsh (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 677, 680, 227 P.2d 1] , but it may be implied when language indicating the restrictive intent is used [Keating v. Preston (1940) 42 Cal. App. 2d 110, 122, 108 P.2d 479] .

Such a clause is to be interpreted to give effect to the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing. For instance, it was appropriate to interpret such a clause to include additions to the shopping center to which the lease related, for to do otherwise would violate the implied covenant [Edmond's of Fresno v. MacDonald Group, Ltd. (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 598, 605-608, 217 Cal. Rptr. 375] .

[ii] Breach

A breach of a covenant not to permit a similar sales business to be conducted occurs if but one of several classes of articles sold in such business is permitted to be sold by the competitor [Kulawitz v. Pacific Woodenware & Paper Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 664, 673, 155 P.2d 24] .

[iii] Rescission After Breach

Although contractual restraints on trade competition are generally invalid under the provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code § 16600, that section has not been deemed to avoid express restrictive covenants, which are frequently incorporated in leases, regarding the use of leased premises [see Stockton Dry Goods Co. v. Girsh (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 677, 680, 227 P.2d 1] . Such a covenant is therefore binding and a breach of the covenant entitles the lessee to terminate the lease when the breach defeats the entire object of the lessee's entering into the lease and is not corrected by the lessor after notification of the breach by the lessee [Medico-Dental Bldg. Co. v. Horton & Converse (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 411, 420, 430, 132 P.2d 457] .

For discussion, a procedural guide, and forms concerning the rescission of contracts, see Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution .

[iv] When Lessor's Successors Are Bound

A covenant by the lessor not to lease other property to a competing business is binding on the lessor's successors if certain requirements are met [see Civ. Code § 1470].

However, even when the conditions are not met, the covenant may be enforceable as an equitable servitude if it is in a written lease and the person against whom it is to be enforced had actual notice of the covenant [Hudson Oil Co. v. Shortstop (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 488, 493-496, 168 Cal. Rptr. 801] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Binding Successors. To bind successors (including mortgagees), parties to valuable leases should have them recorded in the recorder's office of the county in which the land is located. By Myron Moskovitz

[e] Quiet Enjoyment

[i] In General

Even in the absence of a special covenant of quiet enjoyment, a lease carries with it an implied covenant of quiet enjoyment [see Civ. Code § 1927] that is binding on the lessor during the continuation of the term. Whether expressed or implied, this covenant means that a tenant must not be wrongfully evicted or disturbed in his or her possession by the lessor [Pierce v. Nash (1954) 126 Cal. App. 2d 606, 612, 272 P.2d 938 ; see Civ. Code § 1927]. Such covenants for quiet enjoyment run with the land [Civ. Code § 1463].

[ii] Constructive Evictions

A constructive eviction is a breach of the covenant of quiet enjoyment [Clark v. Spiegel (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 74, 80, 99 Cal. Rptr. 86 ; Giraud v. Milovich (1938) 29 Cal. App. 2d 543, 547, 85 P.2d 182] . A constructive eviction occurs when the landlord's acts or omissions to act, or any disturbance or interference with the tenant's possession by either the landlord or by someone acting under his or her authority, render the premises, or a substantial portion of the premises, unfit for the purposes for which they were leased, or has the effect of depriving the tenant for a substantial period of time of the beneficial enjoyment or use of the premises [Groh v. Kover's Bull Pen, Inc. (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 611, 614, 34 Cal. Rptr. 637 ; Sierad v. Lilly (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 770, 773, 22 Cal. Rptr. 580] .

For further discussion of constructive evictions, see §§ 333.28[3][c], 334.61 and 334.62 (sample complaints), and 334.105-334.109 (sample affirmative defenses)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Disturbance Caused by Another Tenant. The landlord also has the duty to ensure quiet enjoyment to a tenant who is being disturbed by another tenant of the same building. By Benjamin Kaplan

PRACTICE TIP: Examine Economic Value of Lease Before Terminating. Before claiming constructive eviction and terminating the lease, the tenant should examine the economic value of the lease by comparing the required rent to the present market rent for similar premises. If the lease is valuable, the tenant might be better off staying in the place and suing the landlord for damages. By Myron Moskovitz

[iii] Property Deemed Essential to Use and Enjoyment

The intention of the parties as to what property was to be occupied as essential to the use and enjoyment of the described premises is to be ascertained from the circumstances at the time the lease is entered into [Sierad v. Lilly (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 770, 773, 22 Cal. Rptr. 580] .

[iv] Obligation to Vacate

There can be no constructive eviction if the lessee continues in the possession of the premises. Therefore, a lessee alleging an interference with the implied covenant of quiet enjoyment has an obligation to vacate the premises within a reasonable time [Clark v. Spiegel (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 74, 79-80, 99 Cal. Rptr. 86] .

[v] Waiver of Right to Abandon

If, in the case of an interference with the tenant's beneficial enjoyment of the premises, the tenant does not surrender the premises within a reasonable time after the date of the interference, he or she is deemed to have waived his or her right to abandon the leased premises. What constitutes a reasonable period of time is a question of fact to be determined by the trier of fact after considering all of the circumstances [Petroleum Collections Inc. v. Swords (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 841, 847-848, 122 Cal. Rptr. 114] .

A tenant who chooses to abandon leased premises should be confident of being able to establish sufficient facts to constitute constructive eviction or the tenant will be liable for breach of the rental agreement [Hinson v. Delis (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 62, 69, 102 Cal. Rptr. 661 (overruled on other grounds in Knight v. Hallsthammar (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 46, 55 n.7, 171 Cal. Rptr. 707, 623 P.2d 268)].

[3] Tenant's Covenants

[a] General Limitations in Commercial Leases on Tenants' Use of Premises

A commercial lease may include a restriction on use of the leased property [Civ. Code § 1997.210(a)]. "Lease" means a lease or sublease of real property for other than residential purposes, and includes modifications and other agreements affecting a lease [Civ. Code § 1997.020(b)]. "Restriction on use" means a provision in a lease that restricts the use of the leased property by a tenant, whether by limiting use to a specified purpose, mandating use for a specified purpose, limiting or prohibiting a change in use, or otherwise [Civ. Code § 1997.020(c)]. A restriction on use that is otherwise illegal, however, is not authorized [Civ. Code § 1997.030]. Unless the lease includes a restriction on use, a tenant's rights under a lease include any reasonable use of leased property [Civ. Code § 1997.210(b)].

A restriction on use of leased property by a tenant may absolutely prohibit a change in use [Civ. Code § 1997.230], or may provide that a change in use is subject to any express standard or condition [Civ. Code § 1997.240]. A use restriction may require the landlord's consent for a change in use subject to any express standard or condition for giving or withholding consent, including but not limited to either of the following [Civ. Code § 1997.250]:

- The landlord's consent may not be unreasonably withheld; and
- The landlord's consent may be withheld subject to express standards or conditions.

Except as provided in Civ. Code § 1997.270 [see [b], below], Civ. Code § 1997.010 et seq. applies to leases executed before, on, and after January 1, 1992 [Civ. Code § 1997.050]. For purposes of these provisions, "tenant" includes a subtenant or assignee [Civ. Code § 1997.020(d)], and "landlord" includes a tenant who is a sublandlord under a sublease [Civ. Code § 1997.020(a)]. For a form of allegations to use when a tenant breaches a covenant limiting the purposes for which leased premises may be used, see § 332.48.

[b] When No Standard for Landlord's Consent Is Specified

If a restriction on use of leased property by a tenant requires the landlord's consent for a change in use but provides no standard for giving or withholding consent, the restriction must be construed to include an implied standard that the landlord's consent may not be unreasonably withheld. Whether the landlord's consent has been unreasonably withheld in a particular case is a question of fact on which the tenant has the burden of proof. The tenant may satisfy the burden of proof by showing that, in response to the tenant's written request for a statement of reasons for withholding consent, the landlord has failed, within a reasonable time, to state in writing a reasonable objection to the change in use [Civ. Code §

Civ. Code § 1997.260 applies to use restrictions executed on or after January 1, 1992. If a restriction in use executed before January 1, 1992 requires the landlord's consent for a change in use of leased premises by a tenant, but provides no standard for giving or withholding consent, the landlord has sole and absolute discretion to give or withhold consent [Civ. Code § 1997.270(a)]. If the terms of a restriction on change in use are fixed by an option or other agreement, the restriction on change in use will be deemed to be executed on the date of execution of the option or other agreement [Civ. Code § 1997.270(b)].

[c] Remedies

For the purpose of statutory damages on termination for breach of a lease [see Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)], the amount of rental loss that could be or could have been reasonably avoided is computed by taking into account any reasonable use of the leased property. However, if the lease contains a restriction on use that is enforceable, the computation must take into account the restricted use of the property except to the extent that the tenant proves that under all the circumstances enforcement of the restriction would be unreasonable. The circumstances include, but are not limited to, circumstances involving both the leased property and any building or complex in which the property is located [Civ. Code § 1997.040(a)].

The statutory remedy of continuation of a lease after breach and abandonment [see Civ. Code § 1951.4] is available notwithstanding the presence in the lease of a restriction on use of the leased property. The restriction on use applies if it is enforceable under Civ. Code § 1997.010 et seq., except to the extent that the tenant proves that under all the circumstances enforcement of the restriction would be unreasonable. The circumstances include, but are not limited to, those involving both the leased property and any building or complex in which the property is located [Civ. Code § 1997.040(b)].

[d] Implied Covenant to Remain in Business

When the amount of rent is based on a percentage of sales, the tenant reasonably may be said to have covenanted impliedly to use good faith to continue using the premises for the purpose for which the premises were leased [Lippman v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 136, 142-143, 280 P.2d 775] . For further discussion of this covenant, see § 332.50.

[e] Use Restrictions in Residential Leases

A residential lease may limit use to residential uses [Civ. Code § 1930; Chandler v. Hart (1911) 161 Cal. 405, 413, 119 P. 516] . The remedies for breach are damages or rescission [Civ. Code § 1930]. For a form of allegations to use when a tenant breaches a covenant limiting the purposes for which leased premises may be used, see § 332.48.

[4] Implied Covenant of Good Faith and Fair Dealing

There is an implied covenant in all leases that neither party will do anything that will have the effect of destroying or injuring the right of the other party to receive the fruits of the contract. This implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing not only imposes on each contracting party the duty to refrain from anything that would render performance of the contract impossible by any act of his or her own, but also imposes the duty to do everything that the contract presupposes will be done to accomplish its purposes [McWilliams v. Holton (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 447, 451, 56 Cal. Rptr. 574] .

For instance, it was appropriate to interpret a noncompetition clause in a lease so as to include additions to the shopping center to which it related, for to do otherwise would violate the implied covenant [Edmond's of Fresno v. MacDonald Group, Ltd. (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 598, 605-608, 217 Cal. Rptr. 375] . Also, it is a breach of the covenant for a sublessor not to renew a master lease when the sublessor has contracted with the sublessee to renew the sublease on the same terms as the master lease [Mitchell v. Exhibition Foods, Inc. (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1033, 1043-1044, 229 Cal. Rptr. 535] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Rights and Duties During the Tenancy

§ 332.12 Assignment

[1] By Lessor

[a] In General

A person to whom any real property is transferred or devised, on which rent has been reserved, or to whom any such rent is transferred, is entitled to the same remedies for recovery of rent, for nonperformance of any of the lease's terms, or for any waste or cause of forfeiture, as his or her grantor or devisor might have had [Civ. Code § 821]. A right of reentry, or of repossession for breach of condition subsequent, can be transferred [Civ. Code § 1046].

[b] Tenant's Rights Against Assignee of Landlord

Whatever remedies the lessee of any real property may have against his or her immediate lessor for the breach of any agreement in the lease, he or she may have against the lessor's assignees. The lessee's assignees also have such remedies against the lessor and his or her assigns, except on covenants either against encumbrances or relating to the title or possession of the premises [Civ. Code § 823].

[2] By Lessee

[a] In General

In the absence of a contractual provision to the contrary, a lessee may assign his or her leasehold interest [Kassan v. Stout (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 39, 43, 106 Cal. Rptr. 783, 507 P.2d 87] . For a discussion of the right of an assignee of a general assignment for the benefit of creditors to occupy any business premises held under a lease by the assignor under Civ. Code § 1954.1, despite any contrary contractual provisions, see Ch. 307, Insolvency .

[b] Requirements

An assignment of a lease must transfer the entire term of the original lessee as to the entire premises or some part of the premises. The term transferred must be for a period of time at least equal to the remainder of the original lease's term [Barkhaus v. Producers' Fruit Co. (1923) 192 Cal. 200, 205-206, 219 P. 435 ; Gilman v. Nemetz (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 81, 86, 21 Cal. Rptr. 317] . If by the terms of the conveyance, whether in the form of a lease or an assignment, new conditions with a right of entry or new causes of forfeiture are created, then the tenant holds by different tenure and a new leasehold interest arises which is not an assignment [Barkhaus v. Producers' Fruit Co. (1923) 192 Cal. 200, 206, 219 P. 435] .

PRACTICE TIP:

No Assignment. Depending on the particular facts of a case, if a transfer does not qualify as an assignment it is not clear what the transfer is. Two possibilities that counsel could argue is that the transfer is a sublease or is totally ineffective. By Myron Moskovitz

[c] Presumption of Assignment

There is a presumption of an assignment that follows occupancy of the leased premises by one other than the lessee, especially when the occupant pays the rent and cost of maintenance [Karbelnig v. Brothwell (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 333, 341, 53 Cal. Rptr. 335] .

[d] Restrictions on Transfer

[i] Permitted in Commercial Lease

A commercial lease may include a restriction on transfer of the tenant's interest in the lease [Civ. Code § 1995.210(a); see Civ. Code § 1995.020(b) ("lease" means a lease or sublease of real property for other than residential purposes)]. "Restriction on transfer" means a provision in a lease that restricts the right of transfer of the tenant's interest in the lease [Civ. Code § 1995.020(c)]. "Transfer" of a tenant's interest means an assignment, sublease, or other voluntary or involuntary transfer or encumbrance of all or part of a tenant's interest in a lease [Civ. Code § 1995.020(e)]. "Tenant" includes a subtenant or assignee [Civ. Code § 1995.020(d)]. Any ambiguity in a restriction on transfer must be construed in favor of transferability [Civ. Code § 1995.220].

A restriction on transfer may absolutely prohibit transfer [Civ. Code § 1995.230]. A restriction on transfer may provide that the transfer is subject to any express standard or condition, including but not limited to, a provision that the landlord is entitled to some or all of any consideration the tenant receives from a transferee in excess of the rent under the lease [Civ. Code § 1995.240]. A restriction on transfer may require the landlord's consent for transfer subject to any express standard or condition for giving or withholding consent, including but not limited to, the condition that the landlord's consent may not be unreasonably withheld or that the landlord's consent may be withheld subject to express standards or conditions [Civ. Code § 1995.250]. "Landlord" includes a tenant who is a sublandlord under a sublease [Civ. Code § 1995.020(a)].

[ii] Termination and Recapture Clause

Since restrictions on transfer are lawful and not limited in breadth, a commercial lease may include a termination and recapture clause. This type of clause provides that if the tenant gives notice of intent to assign or sublease, the landlord may terminate the lease and enter into a lease with the proposed sublessee or assignee to recapture an increase in rent [Carma Developers (Cal.) Inc. v. Marathon Development California, Inc. (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 342, 351-371, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467, 826 P.2d 710] .

[iii] When No Standard for Landlord's Consent Is Specified

If a restriction on transfer of the tenant's interest in a lease, executed on or after September 23, 1983, requires the landlord's consent for transfer but provides no standard for giving or withholding consent, the restriction on transfer must be construed to include an implied standard that the landlord's consent may not be unreasonably withheld. Whether the landlord's consent has been unreasonably withheld in a particular case is a question of fact on which the tenant has the burden of proof. The tenant may satisfy the burden of proof by showing that, in response to the tenant's written request for a statement of reasons for withholding consent, the landlord has failed, within a reasonable time, to state in writing a reasonable objection to the transfer [Civ. Code §§ 1995.260, 1995.270(b)].

If a restriction on transfer executed before September 23, 1983, requires the landlord's consent for the tenant's transfer but provides no standard for giving or withholding consent, the landlord's consent may be unreasonably withheld [Civ. Code § 1995.270(b)].

If the terms of a restriction on transfer are fixed by an option or other agreement, the restriction on transfer is deemed to be executed on the date of execution of the option or other agreement [Civ. Code § 1995.270(b)].

This statutory scheme was expressly enacted to overrule the cases of Kendall v. Ernest Pestana, Inc. (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 488, 220 Cal. Rptr. 818, 709 P.2d 837 and Cohen v. Ratinoff (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 321, 195 Cal. Rptr. 84 , which held that a lessor's consent to an assignment could not be unreasonably withheld. The Legislature stated that those decisions frustrated the expectations of the parties, with the result of impairing commerce and economic development, and that public policy was to enable and facilitate freedom of contract by the parties to commercial real property leases [Civ. Code § 1995.270(a); see Rancho Santa Paula Mobilehome Park, Ltd. v. Evans (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 1139, 1146 n.5, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 464] .

[iv] When Lease Contains No Restriction on Transfer

When there is no restriction on transfer in the lease, a tenant has an unrestricted right of transfer [Civ. Code § 1995.210(b)].

[v] Effect of Assignment Without Consent

A restriction as to assignment is a covenant for the lessor's benefit; until he or she elects to take advantage of a breach as authorized by law, the assignment remains a valid and binding conveyance of the leasehold interest as to all other parties. Stated differently, assignments without the lessor's consent are merely voidable, not void [People v. Klopstock (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 897, 901, 151 P.2d 641 ; Weisman v. Clark (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 764, 767, 43 Cal. Rptr. 108] . The lessor has the option to terminate the lease [Civ. Code § 1995.320(b)], or, ignoring the breach, to treat the lease as if it still existed [Karbelnig v. Brothwell (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 333, 341, 53 Cal. Rptr. 335] .

If the lessor elects to terminate, he or she must give notice of his or her intention [Sexton v. Nelson (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 248, 258, 39 Cal. Rptr. 407] , but merely giving notice of the invalidity of an assignment without a notice of termination is insufficient to forfeit a lease [People v. Klopstock (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 897, 901, 151 P.2d 641 ; Weisman v. Clark (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 764, 767, 43 Cal. Rptr. 108] .

[vi] Waiver of Breach

A lessor waives a breach of a covenant not to assign if he or she has knowledge of the assignment and nevertheless accepts rent from the assignees month after month [Miller v. Reidy (1927) 85 Cal. App. 757, 762, 260 P. 358] . It is not enough that the lessor might have discovered the fact on inquiry [German-American Sav. Bank v. Gollmer (1909) 155 Cal. 683, 691, 102 P. 932] . Knowledge of the assignment must be actual and not constructive [Weisman v. Clark (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 764, 769, 43 Cal. Rptr. 108] . However, when the lessor relies on an express agreement in the lease against waiver of the right to assert a forfeiture and also gives notice that acceptance of the rent was not a consent to the assignment and acts promptly in filing a cause of action seeking a forfeiture of the lease, there is no waiver [Karbelnig v. Brothwell (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 333, 341-342, 53 Cal. Rptr. 335] . Moreover, the lessor will not be deemed estopped to declare a forfeiture because of violating a lease provision against assignment without his or her consent if the landlord has been lulled by the lessee's evasion or false statements [Weisman v. Clark (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 764, 769, 43 Cal. Rptr. 108] .

[vii] Tenant's Remedies

If a restriction on transfer of a tenant's interest in a lease requires the landlord's consent for transfer subject to an express or implied standard that the landlord's consent may not unreasonably be withheld, and the landlord unreasonably withholds consent to a transfer, in addition to any other remedies provided by law for breach of the lease, the tenant has all the remedies provided for breach of contract, including but not limited to, (1) the right to contract damages caused by the landlord's breach or (2) the right to terminate the lease [Civ. Code § 1995.310].

[viii] Landlord's Remedies

If a tenant transfers the tenant's interest in a lease in violation of a restriction on transfer of a tenant's interest, in addition to any other remedies provided by law for breach of the lease, the landlord has all the remedies provided for breach of contract, including but not limited to, (1) the right to contract damages caused by the tenant's breach or (2) the right to terminate the lease [Civ. Code § 1995.320].

A remedy provided by law for violating the rights of the tenant or the landlord concerning transfer of the tenant's interest, including the remedies provided above, is subject to an express provision in the lease that affects the remedies and subject to any applicable defense, whether legal or equitable, including but not limited to waiver and estoppel [Civ. Code § 1995.300].

An assignee who receives or makes a transfer in violation of a restriction on transfer of a tenant's interest in a lease is jointly and severally liable with the tenant for contract damages. The provisions for measure of damage to the landlord in Civ. Code § 1951.2 apply to an assignee [Civ. Code § 1995.330(a)].

The landlord's right to terminate a lease for a transfer in violation of a restriction includes the right to terminate a transfer without terminating the lease. If the landlord terminates a transfer without terminating the lease, the assignee or subtenant in possession is guilty of unlawful detainer and the landlord may obtain possession from the assignee or subtenant without terminating the tenant's right of possession. For this purpose, the unlawful detainer procedure may be used with changes necessary to make the procedure applicable [Civ. Code § 1995.330(b)].

Eviction of the assignee without terminating the tenant's right of possession would be used when the landlord wants to continue the tenant's liability for rent and seeks to recover rent as it becomes due under Civ. Code § 1951.4.

[x] Subsequent Transfer

A restriction on transfer of a tenant's interest in a lease applies to a subsequent transfer by a tenant, an assignee, or a subtenant notwithstanding the landlord's consent to a prior transfer or the landlord's waiver of a standard or condition for a prior transfer [Civ. Code § 1995.340(a)]. However, the above provision is not applicable if the lease provides expressly that the restriction on transfer is limited to the original tenant or the landlord states in writing that the consent or waiver applies to a subsequent transfer [Civ. Code § 1995.340(b)].

[e] Effect on Lessee-Assignor

By an assignment, the lessee transfers all of his or her title and interest in the leasehold estate and retains no reversionary interest or right of reentry [Flynn v. Mikelian (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 305, 310, 25 Cal. Rptr. 138] . The assignor's privity of estate is thereby ended, although ordinarily his or her contractual obligations to the lessor are not released even though the lessor consents to the assignment and the assignee expressly assumes the obligations of the lease [De Hart v. Allen (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 829, 832, 161 P.2d 453 ; Flynn v. Mikelian (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 305, 310, 25 Cal. Rptr. 138] .

For example, an obligation to pay rent, without an express agreement, arises from the mere occupancy as tenant of the premises. A lessee who has not agreed to pay rent is, by his or her transfer to an assignee with the landlord's consent, relieved of any further obligation to pay rent. This obligation is thereafter on the assignee who has come into privity of estate with the landlord. But when the lessee has expressly agreed to pay rent, his or her liability under the contract remains, notwithstanding an assignment with the lessor's consent [Samuels v. Ottinger (1915) 169 Cal. 209, 211, 146 P. 638 ; but see Meredith v. Dardarian (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 248, 252, 147 Cal. Rptr. 761 (questioning decision in Samuels)].

Conduct on the assignee's part can result in a surrender or abandonment of the premises. An assignor has no interest in the premises that he or she can exercise in the event of such an abandonment, and he or she cannot prevent the original lessor from terminating the lease [Flynn v. Mikelian (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 305, 311-312, 25 Cal. Rptr. 138] .

Ordinarily, the lessee-covenantee of a covenant running with the land is not entitled to enforce the covenant following the transfer of the benefited property [Maron v. Howard (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 473, 484-485, 66 Cal. Rptr. 70 (dictum)].

[f] Effect on Assignee

After an assignment, there is privity of estate between the lessor and the assignee [Flynn v. Mikelian (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 305, 310, 25 Cal. Rptr. 138] . An assignee is therefore liable for all covenants running with the land [see First Nat'l Bank of Oroville v. Aldridge (1939) 33 Cal. App. 2d 485, 490, 92 P.2d 674] . But an assignee of a lease who does not assume the obligations is not bound by the contractual obligations of the lease [Ellingson v. Walsh, O'Connor & Barneson (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 673, 676, 104 P.2d 507] .

An assignee is not liable for installments of rent that become due before the assignment. However, the assignee is personally liable for rents that accrue while he or she is in possession, even though the month or other period for which the rent is owed began before he or she took possession [First Nat'l Bank of Oroville v. Aldridge (1939) 33 Cal. App. 2d 485, 491-492, 92 P.2d 674] .

The assignment of a lease transfers to the assignee the right to enforce every unbroken covenant that the lease contains. The exceptions to this rule are stated in Civ. Code § 823, which provides that accrued remedies for already-ripened breaches of covenants either against encumbrances or relating to the title or possession of the premises do not pass to the assignee; instead, they remain with the original lessee. However, neither of these two statutory exceptions has any reference to breaches of the lease that have not occurred nor to remedies that have not arisen before the assignment of the lease [Standard Livestock Co. v. Pentz (1928) 204 Cal. 618, 629-630, 269 P. 645] .

[g] Lessor's Remedies Against Lessee's Assignee

Whatever remedies the lessor of any real property has against his or her immediate lessee for the breach of any agreement in the lease or for recovery of possession, he or she also has against the assignees of the lessee; this rule applies to any cause of action accruing while they are such assignees, except when the assignment is made by way of security for a loan, and is not accompanied by possession of the premises [Civ. Code § 822].

§ 332.13 Subleases

[1] Distinguished From Assignments

The transfer of all of a lessee's interest in a lease is an assignment, while the transfer of a portion of the lessee's interest is a sublease [Reed v. South Shore Foods, Inc. (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 705, 710, 40 Cal. Rptr. 575] .

If the transfer is an assignment, the transferee comes into privity of estate with the original lessor and the transferor is not the landlord of his or her transferee. When the transfer is a sublease, the transferor becomes the landlord, the transferee the subtenant, and the latter is not in privity with the head lessor. Sublessees have no right to any option given by the lease, while assignees may enforce such an obligation of the lessor [Ablett v. Clauson (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 280, 283, 272 P.2d 753] .

[2] Sublessee's Duties and Rights

It is the duty of a person contracting for a sublease to ascertain the provisions of the original lease. A subtenant is charged with notice of the existence of the original lease and is bound by its terms and conditions [Pedro v. Potter (1926) 197 Cal. 751, 760, 242 P. 926] .

The right of a sublessee to possession of the premises as against the original lessor terminates with the lease or term of the original lessee. Since a subtenant holds the premises subject to the performance of the terms and conditions impressed on the estate by the provisions of the original lease, his or her rights are generally held to be terminated when the original lessor declares a forfeiture of the original lessee's term based on the latter's nonperformance of obligations imposed on him or her [Scott v. Mullins (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 51, 55, 27 Cal. Rptr. 269] .

§ 332.14 Publicly-Subsidized Private Housing

[1] In General

A public body does not possess the same freedom of action as a private landlord. It may not discriminate arbitrarily between persons and classes either in leasing its premises or in continuing the occupancy of existing tenants [Housing Authority of Los Angeles v. Cordova (1955) 279 P.2d 215] . It is also forbidden from making the privilege of continuance dependent on conditions that would deprive any of its citizens of their constitutional rights [Housing Authority of Los Angeles v. Cordova (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 883, 279 P.2d 215] .

A tenant in a federally subsidized housing project may not be evicted without prior notice and proof of good cause [Appel v. Beyer (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 7, 15, 114 Cal. Rptr. 336] . However, what constitutes "good cause" for eviction in a given case depends on the facts perceived in relation to the purposes of the relevant housing law and the posture of the affected parties [Appel v. Beyer (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 7, 19, 114 Cal. Rptr. 336] .

Similarly, a tenant in a state-subsidized housing project may not be evicted without notice and proof of good cause as defined by the rules and regulations of the California Housing Finance Agency. In addition, a tenant is entitled to request a hearing, held in accordance with procedures established by the agency, at which good cause for eviction must be established by the weight of the evidence [Health & Safety Code § 51066].

[2] Transitional Housing Programs: Definitions

Under the Transitional Housing Participant Misconduct Act, operative July 1, 1992, a transitional housing program is defined as any program that is designed to assist homeless persons in obtaining skills necessary for independent living in permanent housing, and that has all of the following components [Health & Safety Code § 50582(g)]:

- Comprehensive social service programs that include regular, individualized case management services and that may include alcohol and drug abuse counseling, self-improvement education, employment and training assistance services, and independent living skills development;

- Use of a program unit as a temporary housing unit in a structured living environment, which use is conditioned on compliance with the transitional housing program rules and regulations; and

- A rule or regulation that specifies an occupancy period of not less than 30 days, but not more than 24 months.

Abuse of the transitional housing program is defined as intentionally or recklessly causing or attempting to cause bodily injury, or sexual assault or placing another person in reasonable apprehension of imminent serious bodily injury to himself, herself, or another, if the injured person is another participant, program operator's staff, or a person residing within 100 feet of the program site [Health & Safety Code § 50582(a)].

Program misconduct is defined as any intentional violation of the program's rules that [Health & Safety Code § 50582(d)]:

- Substantially interferes with the orderly operation of the transitional housing program; and

- Relates to drunkenness on the program site, unlawful use or sale of controlled substances, theft, arson, or destruction of the property of the program operator, persons living within 100 feet of the program site, program employees, or other participants; or

- Relates to violence or threats of violence, and harassment of persons living within 100 feet of the program site, program employees, or of other participants.

[3] Injunction Against Abuse of Program or Program Misconduct

Under the Transitional Housing Participant Misconduct Act, operative July 1, 1992, the operator of a transitional housing program for the benefit of homeless persons may seek, on its own behalf or on behalf of other participants, project employees, or persons residing within 100 feet of the program site, a temporary restraining order and an injunction prohibiting abuse or program misconduct [Health & Safety Code § 50585(a)].

The Act specifies procedures for filing a petition for an injunction [Health & Safety Code § 50585(b)] and hearing within five days of the filing of the petition [Health & Safety Code § 50585(c)]. Any willful disobedience of any temporary restraining order or injunction granted under the Act is a misdemeanor under Penal Code § 166 [Health & Safety Code § 50586(b)].

The Judicial Council is required to promulgate forms and related instructions to implement the procedures required by the Act [Health & Safety Code § 50588].

[4] Recovery of Dwelling Unit

The Act specifies procedures for recovering the participant's dwelling unit on issuance of an order excluding the participant from the program site [Health & Safety Code §§ 50590, 50591].

B. Termination of Tenancies

29-332 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 332.20

§ 332.20 Method of Termination Depends on Type of Tenancy

[1] Tenancy at Will

A tenancy or other estate at will, however created, may be terminated by the landlord giving notice in writing to the tenant, in the manner prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1162, to remove from the premises within a period of not less than 30 days, as specified in the notice [Civ. Code § 789; see Civ. Code § 1946].

[2] Periodic Tenancy

A hiring of real property, for a term not specified by the parties, is deemed to be renewed as stated in Civ. Code § 1945 at the end of the term implied by law unless one of the parties gives written notice to the other of an intention to terminate the tenancy, before the expiration of the term of the hiring itself, not exceeding 30 days [Civ. Code § 1946]. However, notwithstanding Civ. Code § 1946, an owner must give notice at least 60 days before the proposed date of termination, unless one of the following circumstances applies, in which case 30 days' notice is required [Civ. Code § 1946.1(b)-(e)]:

- The tenant has lived in the dwelling for less than one year; or

- The dwelling or unit is alienable separate from the title to any other dwelling unit; the owner has contracted to sell the dwelling or unit to a bona fide purchaser for value, and has established an escrow with a licensed escrow agent or a licensed real estate broker; the purchaser is a natural person or persons; the notice is given not more than 120 days before escrow is established; notice was not previously given to the tenant pursuant to Civ. Code § 1946.1; and the purchaser in good faith intends to reside in the property for at least one full year after the tenancy's termination.

As to a tenancy from month-to-month, either of the parties may terminate by giving at least 30 days' written notice of termination at any time and the rent is due and payable to and including the date of termination.The parties may provide by agreement at the time the tenancy is created that a notice of the intention to terminate the tenancy may be given at any time not less than seven days before the expiration of the term thereof [Civ. Code § 1946].

The notice required by Civ. Code §§ 1946 and 1946.1 is required to be given in the manner prescribed in Code Civ. Proc. § 1162 or by sending a copy of the notice by certified or registered mail addressed to the other party. Civ. Code § 1946 also provides that the lessee may give the notice by sending a copy by certified or registered mail addressed to the agent of the lessor to whom the lessee has paid the rent for the month before the date of the notice or by delivering a copy to the agent personally [Civ. Code § 1946].

PRACTICE TIP:
Warning! Civ. Code § 1946 may not be used to change the terms of a tenancy. By Benjamin Kaplan

A periodic tenancy is also terminated by the tenant's death [Miller & Desatnik Management Co. v. Bullock (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 13, 16-18, 270 Cal. Rptr. 600] .

[3] Tenancy for Fixed Term

A tenancy for a fixed term expires automatically at the end of the lease term [Ryland v. Appelbaum (1924) 70 Cal. App. 268, 270, 233 P. 356] . There is no need for the landlord to serve notice on the tenant at the end of the lease term [Camp v. Matich (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 660, 665, 197 P.2d 345] .

[4] Tenancy by Active Duty Service Members

[a] Special Notice Provisions

In 2002, the state Legislature enacted special protections for officers and enlisted members of the National Guard called or ordered into active state or federal service and reservists of the United States Military Reserve who have been called to full-time active service or duty [Stats. 2000, ch. 60, § 1; Mil. & Vet. Code § 400 et seq.]. The legislation establishes special notice provisions for the termination of leases by active service members and reservists. The provisions apply to any lease covering premises occupied for dwelling, professional, business, agricultural, or similar purposes in any case in which the lease was executed by or on the behalf of a person who, after the execution of the lease, entered military service [Mil. & Vet. Code § 409(a)]. Any such lease may be terminated by notice in writing delivered to the lessor or to the lessor's agent by the lessee at any time following the date of the beginning of the period of military service [Mil. & Vet. Code § 409(b)]. Delivery of this notice may be accomplished by mailing it to the lessor or to the lessor's agent [Mil. & Vet. Code § 409(b)].

For a form of a notice terminating a lease by a member of a military service, as well as coverage of the statutory eligibility requirements, see § 332.71A.

[b] Effective Date of Termination

Termination of any lease providing for monthly payment of rent will be effective on the last day of the month following notice and not more than 45 days after notice is provided to the lessor [Mil. & Vet. Code § 409(b)]. In the case of all other leases, termination will be effected on the last day of the month following the month in which the notice is delivered or mailed. In that case, any unpaid rent for a period preceding termination will be prorated and any rent paid in advance for a period succeeding termination must be refunded by the lessor [Mil. & Vet. Code § 409(b)]. On application by the lessor before the termination period provided for in the notice, a court may modify or restrict any relief granted under the statute [Mil. & Vet. Code § 409(b)].

[c] Penal Provisions

Any person who knowingly seizes, holds, or detains the personal effects, clothing, furniture, or other property of any person who has lawfully terminated a lease covered by these provisions, or in any manner interfered with the removal of property from the premises covered by the lease for the purpose of subjecting or attempting to subject any of the property to a claim for rent accruing after the date of the lease's termination, or attempts to do so, is guilty of a misdemeanor [Mil. & Vet. Code § 409(c)].

[d] Dependents of Service Members

Dependents of service members are also entitled to these benefits unless the court finds that the dependents' ability to comply with the terms of the obligation has not been materially impaired by the military service of the person on whom the applicants are dependent [Mil. & Vet. Code § 414].

[e] Effective Date of Legislation

These provisions apply to service members on active service or duty since September 11, 2001. However, the protections apply prospectively from June 20, 2002 (date bill was signed into law) [Mil. & Vet. Code § 420].

[5] Property in Foreclosure

Notwithstanding the unlawful detainer provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a [see Ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Actions], a tenant or subtenant in possession of a rental housing unit at the time the property is sold in foreclosure must be given 60 days' written notice to quit pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1162 [see § 332.70 (form)] before the tenant or subtenant may be removed from the property through unlawful detainer proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161b(a)]. However, this notice requirement does not apply if any party to the note remains in the property as a tenant, subtenant, or occupant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161b(b)]. Section 1161b is in effect until January 1, 2013 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161b(c)].

In 2009, Congress established a 90-day notice requirement in the Protecting Tenants at Foreclosure Act [P.L. 111-22, S. 896]. This requirement applies to any foreclosure on a federally related mortgage loan or on any dwelling or residential real property after May 20, 2009 [P.L. 111-22, § 702, 123 Stats. 1660-1661; see also P.L. 111-22, § 703, 123 Stats. 1661, amending 42 U.S.C. § 1437f(o)(7) (following foreclosure, successor in interest may terminate Section 8 tenancy on 90 days' notice if owner will occupy property as primary residence)]. The Act provides that any immediate successor in interest in the property pursuant to the foreclosure assumes that interest subject to the rights of any bona fide tenant as of the date of the notice of foreclosure, under any bona fide lease entered into before the notice of foreclosure, to occupy the premises until the end of the remaining term of the lease [P.L. 111-22, § 702(a)(2), 123 Stats. 1661]. However, a successor in interest may terminate a lease effective on the date of sale of the unit to a purchaser who will occupy the unit as a primary residence, subject to the receipt by the tenant of a 90-day notice to vacate [P.L. 111-22, § 702(a)(2), 123 Stats. 1661].

A lease or tenancy is considered bona fide if (1) the mortgagor or the child, spouse, or parent of the mortgagor under the contract is not the tenant; (2) the lease or tenancy was the result of an arms-length transaction; and (3) the lease or tenancy requires the receipt of rent that is not substantially less than fair market rent for the property or the unit's rent is reduced or subsidized due to a federal, state, or local subsidy [P.L. 111-22, § 702(b), 123 Stats. 1661]. These provisions are repealed on December 31, 2012 [P.L. 111-22, § 704, 123 Stats. 1662].

§ 332.21 Option to Terminate

The lease may include a provision allowing one of the parties to terminate the lease. Usually the option arises on the occurrence of some event, but the option is valid if the lease states that it can be exercised at any time during the lease term after the requisite notice and without cause. The language must be unequivocal because courts prefer to avoid forfeitures [see McNeece v. Wood (1928) 204 Cal. 280, 284, 267 P. 877 ; *O'Connor v. West Sacramento Co. With regard to agreements executed on or after January 1, 1979, for accommodations from month-to-month in a nursing or convalescent home, the agreements terminate on the death of the person (patient) by or for whom it was made. Neither this person's estate nor his or her heirs, legatees, or personal representatives can be liable for any rent due for the accommodations beyond the rent due as of the date of death (because this is the date the agreement terminates); no advance payment of rent, in excess of what is due on that date, may be claimed or retained by the nursing or convalescent home but, rather, must be paid to the heirs, legatees, and/or personal representative of the decedent within two weeks after the date of death. A waiver of these rights on the part of the decedent (patient) is void as contrary to public policy [Civ. Code § 1934.5].

A tenant's rights in leased property end on the date of the lease's termination [Hart v. Fuller (1920) 45 Cal. App. 618, 620, 188 P. 611] . Although a tenant may be liable for rent unpaid at that time, he or she is no longer liable for future rent payments [Space Properties, Inc. v. Tool Research Co. (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 819, 825-826, 22 Cal. Rptr. 166] . However, if a tenancy is terminated because of the tenant's breach of lease, the tenant may be liable for future rent under Civ. Code § 1951.2.

A tenant must surrender the property to the landlord on termination of the tenancy [Commissioners v. Barnard (1893) 98 Cal. 199, 202, 32 P. 982] .

A surrender of the premises may be accomplished either by the express agreement of the parties or by operation of law [Martin v. Cassidy (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 106, 111, 307 P.2d 981] . A true voluntary surrender by consent of the parties requires that the landlord and tenant agree to extinguish all liabilities as between themselves arising out of the tenancy, including any further liability for rent [Steel v. Thompson (1922) 59 Cal. App. 191, 192, 210 P. 430] . A surrender by operation of law arises when the parties to the lease commit acts so inconsistent with the existing relation of landlord and tenant as to imply that they have both agreed to a surrender [Triest & Co. v. Goldstone (1916) 173 Cal. 240, 243, 159 P. 715] . If an effective surrender has occurred, the tenant has no further liability for rent [Welcome v. Hess (1891) 90 Cal. 507, 512-513, 27 P. 369] .

An abandonment takes place when the tenant leaves the premises vacant with the avowed intention not to be bound by the lease [Kassan v. Stout (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 39, 43, 106 Cal. Rptr. 783, 507 P.2d 87 ; see Flynn v. Mikelian (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 305, 310, 25 Cal. Rptr. 138] . It is the voluntary giving up of a thing by the tenant because he or she no longer desires to possess it or assert any right or dominion over it and is entirely indifferent as to what may become of it or as to whom may thereafter possess it [Kassan v. Stout (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 39, 43, 106 Cal. Rptr. 783, 507 P.2d 87] .

Abandonment is distinguished from surrender by the fact that in a surrender the tenant returns possession of the property to the landlord, either with his or her consent or by operation of law, whereas in an abandonment, there is no return of possession [see Martin v. Cassidy (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 106, 111, 307 P.2d 981] .

[2] Intent

Abandonment is a question of intention to be determined only on an investigation of all the facts and circumstances [Boral v. Caldwell (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 157, 162, 35 Cal. Rptr. 689] . To constitute an abandonment, the tenant's acts must clearly indicate a desire to relinquish all rights in and possession of the property [Martin v. Cassidy (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 106, 110, 307 P.2d 981] . Moreover, the tenant need never have been in actual possession; it is sufficient that he or she had the unqualified right to possession [Bernard v. Renard (1917) 175 Cal. 230, 234, 165 P. 694] .

[3] Common Law Remedies

Leases either executed before July 1, 1971, or whose terms were fixed by an agreement executed before that date, are subject to the common-law remedies relevant to surrender or abandonment by the tenant [see Civ. Code § 1952.2].

Under the common law, and in situations involving leases executed after July 1, 1971, in which the landlord has not properly exercised the statutory remedy, a landlord has three remedies on surrender or abandonment of possession by a tenant before the expiration of the lease term.

First, the landlord may consider the lease as still in existence and sue for the unpaid rent either as it becomes due for the unexpired portion of the rental term or for the entire amount at the end of the term [Kulawitz v. Pacific Woodenware & Paper Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 664, 671 ; Dorcich v. Time Oil Co. (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 677, 683, 230 P.2d 10] .

As a second alternative, the landlord can treat the lease as terminated and retake possession for his or her own account [Kulawitz v. Pacific Woodenware & Paper Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 664, 671, 155 P.2d 24 ; Dorcich v. Time Oil Co. (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 677, 683, 230 P.2d 10] .

As the third alternative, the landlord can retake possession for the tenant's account and relet the premises, holding the tenant liable for the difference between the amount due under the original lease and the amount that the landlord is able to procure in good faith by reletting [Kulawitz v. Pacific Woodenware & Paper Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 664, 671, 155 P.2d 24 ; Dorcich v. Time Oil Co. (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 677, 683, 230 P.2d 10] . If the landlord chooses to follow this alternative, it is crucial that he or she notify the tenant of his or her intent before the reletting. Failure to give notice results in a surrender and precludes the landlord from collecting any damages based on reletting at a lower rental [Ace Realty Co. v. Friedman (1951) 106 Cal. App. 2d 805, 814, 236 P.2d 174] . However, if there has been an assignment of the lease, the landlord need only notify the original tenant, not the assignee, to hold the original tenant liable for the breach [De Hart v. Allen (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 829, 832, 161 P.2d 453] .

When the landlord elects to retake possession for the tenant's account and relet the premises, the right of action for damages still does not accrue until the end of the term [De Hart v. Allen (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 829, 833, 161 P.2d 453] , and any action brought before the expiration of the term of the original lease is prematurely brought [Treff v. Gulko (1932) 214 Cal. 591, 594, 7 P.2d 697 ; but see B.K.K.Co. v. Schultz (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 786, 791, 86 Cal. Rptr. 760] . If a landlord is unable to relet the premises for any portion of the term, the entire balance of the rent is the measure of damage [B.K.K. Co. v. Schultz (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 786, 791, 86 Cal. Rptr. 760] .

[4] Statutory Rules

[a] Termination of Lease

In 1970, the Legislature made important changes in the common-law rules applicable to abandonment and termination of leases [see Civ. Code §§ 1951-1952.6], the most significant of which is that a lease now terminates automatically on abandonment by the tenant [see Civ. Code § 1951.2].

[b] Usual Remedy

Except as provided in Civ. Code § 1951.4 (rights of tenant under lease), if a tenant of real property breaches the lease and abandons the property before the end of the term or if the right to possession is terminated by the landlord because of a breach of the lease, the lease terminates. On such termination, the landlord may recover from the tenant [Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)]:

- The worth at the time of award of the unpaid rent that had been earned at the time of termination;

- The worth at the time of award of the amount by which the unpaid rent, which would have been earned after termination until the time of award, exceeds the amount of such rental loss that the tenant proves could have been reasonably avoided;

- Subject to Civ. Code § 1951.2(c), the worth at the time of award of the amount by which the unpaid rent for the balance of the term after the time of award exceeds the amount of such rental loss that the tenant proves could be reasonably avoided; and

- Any other amount necessary to compensate the landlord for all the detriment proximately caused by the tenant's failure to perform his or her obligations under the lease or that, in the ordinary course of things, would be likely to result therefrom.

PRACTICE TIP:

Lease Must So Provide. It has been this practitioner's experience that to recover the above amounts, the lease must specifically provide that these amounts are recoverable (despite the fact that Civ. Code § 1951.2 does not specifically state this). By Benjamin Kaplan

PRACTICE TIP: When Remedy Is Valuable. The "worth at the time of award" remedy is usually valuable only in a falling market, that is, when the current market rental value of the property is less than the rent the tenant agreed to pay. When the market is rising, this remedy usually gives nothing to the landlord. Even here, however, the landlord is still entitled to his or her expenses in reletting the property, including advertising, brokerage fees, renovation costs, and the like, under Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)(4). These might be substantial and worth suing for in themselves. By Myron Moskovitz

For purposes of the above provisions, the "time of award" means the time of the judgment for damages, not the time of the prior unlawful detainer judgment restoring possession of the property [California Safety Center, Inc. v. Jax Car Sales (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 992, 996-999, 211 Cal. Rptr. 39] .

The right to damages under Civ. Code § 1951.2 does not depend on a termination of possession but depends only on a termination of the right to possession. If the tenant is given a three-day notice to quit but stays in possession thereafter by agreement and then abandons the premises, the landlord is still entitled to damages for the remainder of the lease term [Walt v. Superior Court (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1667, 1672-1678, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 278] .

The general principles governing mitigation of damages apply in determining what constitutes a rental loss that could reasonably be avoided [Leg. Comm'n Comment to Civ. Code § 1951.2]. Therefore, the court will consider whether the landlord acted reasonably to mitigate damages [see Green v. Smith (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 392, 396, 67 Cal. Rptr. 796] . If the landlord did act reasonably, it is irrelevant if alternative measures would have further reduced his or her damages [Green v. Smith (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 392, 398, 67 Cal. Rptr. 796] . Further, in mitigating damages, a landlord is not required to consider renegotiating another lease with the defaulting tenant even if the tenant offers terms that could result in avoidance of loss [Zanker Development Co. v. Cogito Systems, Inc. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1377, 1381-1382, 264 Cal. Rptr. 76] .

If the premises are leased to a third party after the tenant abandons, the amount by which the rent payable under the new lease exceeds the amount of rental loss for the balance of term under the abandoned lease must be considered in the damage award. If the amount of rent under the new lease exceeds the lost rent under the old lease and other consequential damages, the landlord has not been damaged and may not recover damages. If the rent under the new lease does not exceed the landlord's losses but is greater than the rent under the abandoned lease, the increase must be offset against the landlord's damages [Willis v. Soda Shoppes of California Inc. (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 899, 902-905, 184 Cal. Rptr. 761] .

[c] Effect of Agreement

The provisions of Civ. Code § 1951.2 do not preclude an enforceable agreement between the landlord and the tenant that the tenant will vacate the premises and not be liable for further rent. Nor do the provisions of Civ. Code § 1951.2 preclude the landlord from intentionally waiving or being estopped from collecting rent after the tenant vacates. Civ. Code § 1951.2 is only designed to prevent the unintentional waiver of the right to collect future rent by attempts to mitigate damages [Desert Plaza Partnership v. Waddell (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 805, 811-814, 225 Cal. Rptr. 775] .

[d] Interest

The "worth at the time of award" of the amount referred to in Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)(1), (2) is computed by allowing interest at such lawful rate as may be specified in the lease or, if no such rate is specified in the lease, at the legal rate. The "worth at the time of award" of the amount referred to in Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)(3) is computed by discounting such amount at the discount rate of the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco at the time of award, plus 1 percent [Civ. Code § 1951.2(b)].

[e] Prerequisites to Recovering Damages

The landlord may recover damages under Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)(3) only under the following conditions [Civ. Code § 1951.2(c)]:

- The lease provides that the damages he or she may recover include the worth at the time of award of the amount by which the unpaid rent for the balance of the term after the time of award, or for any shorter period of time specified in the lease, exceeds the amount of such rental loss for the same period that the tenant proves could be reasonably avoided; or

- The landlord relet the property before the time of award and proves that in reletting the property he or she acted reasonably and in a good-faith effort to mitigate the damages, but the recovery of damages under this is subject to any limitations specified in the lease.

[f] Mitigation as Not Waiving Right to Damages

Efforts by the landlord to mitigate the damages caused by the tenant's breach of the lease do not waive the landlord's right to recover damages under Civ. Code § 1951.2 [Civ. Code § 1951.2(d)].

Following abandonment, the landlord's sale of the property does not constitute breach of the duty to mitigate, provided the trier of fact finds a sale to be a reasonable means to avoid further loss of rental revenue [Millikan v. American Spectrum Real Estate Services California, Inc. (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 1094, 1100, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 459] . The landlord retains the right to claim rental loss accruing after the date of sale, except to the extent the breaching tenant can prove the rental loss was avoidable, together with consequential damages including the landlord's selling expenses [Millikan v. American Spectrum Real Estate Services California, Inc. (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 1094, 1104, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 459] .

A landlord who operated a gas station after it was abandoned by the tenants, and turned a profit, was not precluded from seeking damages under Civ. Code § 1951.2. The trial court had entered judgment for the tenants in spite of their breach, finding that the landlord suffered no damages because she and her husband occupied the premises after unsuccessfully attempting to re-lease it, managed to run the business at a profit, and mitigated damages well above the amount of damages owed by the tenants. The court of appeal reversed, holding that the proper measure of mitigation credit was the property's fair market rental value. It reasoned that a tenant's right not to pay damages for rent that he or she proves could have been earned had the property been re-leased at fair market value does not convert a landowner's ability to successfully run a business into an offset against the tenant's breach [Lu v. Grewal (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 841, 849-850, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 623] .

[g] Indemnification

Nothing in Civ. Code § 1951.2 affects the landlord's right under a lease of real property to indemnification for liability arising before the lease's termination for personal injuries or property if the lease provides for such indemnification [Civ. Code § 1951.2(e)].

[h] Continuation of Lease

Under Civ. Code § 1951.4, even though a tenant of real property has breached his or her lease and abandoned the property, the lease continues in effect for so long as the landlord does not terminate the tenant's right to possession, and the landlord may enforce all rights and remedies under the lease, including the right to recover the rent as it becomes due under the lease, if any of the following conditions are satisfied [Civ. Code § 1951.4(b)]:

- The lease permits the tenant, or does not prohibit or otherwise restrict the tenant's right, to sublet the property, assign the tenant's interest in the lease, or both.

- The lease permits the tenant to sublet the property, assign the tenant's interest in the lease, or both, subject to express standards or conditions, provided the standards and conditions are reasonable at the time the lease is executed and the landlord does not require compliance with any standard or condition that has become unreasonable at the time the tenant seeks to sublet or assign. For this purpose, an express standard or condition is presumed to be reasonable; this presumption is a presumption affecting the burden of proof.

- The lease permits the tenant to sublet the property, assign the tenant's interest in the lease, or both, with the landlord's consent, and the lease provides that the consent must not be unreasonably withheld or the lease includes a standard implied by law that consent must not be unreasonably withheld.

A landlord may utilize the remedies described above only if the lease so provides. In addition to any other type of provision used in a lease to provide for this remedy, a provision in a lease in substantially the following form is sufficient [Civ. Code § 1951.4(a)]:

> The lessor has the remedy described in Civ. Code § 1951.4 (lessor may continue lease in effect after lessee's breach and abandonment and recover rent as it becomes due, if lessee has right to sublet or assign, subject only to reasonable limitations).

PRACTICE TIP:

Rent as It Becomes Due vs. Worth at Time of Award. This remedy, suing periodically for the rent as it comes due, seems expensive and time-consuming compared to the worth at the time of award remedy. Nevertheless, it might be preferable in situations when it is difficult and expensive to prove the worth at the time of award. In small retail tenancies for relatively short terms, for example, it might cost more in expert witness fees to prove the worth than the recovery would justify. Here, the Civ. Code § 1951.4 remedy might be preferable. However, this remedy is not available unless the lease provides for it, so if you are representing the landlord, be sure to put it in the lease to keep your client's options open. By Myron Moskovitz

For the purposes of Civ. Code § 1951.4(b), the following do not constitute a termination of the tenant's right to possession [Civ. Code § 1951.4(c)]:

- Acts of maintenance or preservation or efforts to relet the property;

- The appointment of a receiver on the landlord's initiative to protect the landlord's interest under the lease; or

- Withholding consent to a subletting or assignment, or terminating a subletting or assignment, if the withholding or termination does not violate the tenant's rights.

[i] Leases Not Covered by Statutory Remedies

The statutory rules concerning abandonment apply to all leases, subleases, or lease agreements except for the following:

- Any lease executed before July 1, 1971 [Civ. Code § 1952.2(a)].

- Any lease executed on or after July 1, 1971, if the lease's terms were fixed by a lease, option, or other agreement executed before July 1, 1971 [Civ. Code § 1952.2(b)].

- An agreement for the removal of or exploration for natural resources [Civ. Code § 1952.4].

- A lease or agreement for lease for real property between a public entity and a nonprofit corporation that issues tax-free bonds for acquisition or improvement of the property, whose title or interest in the property is subject to a reversion or vesting in a public entity, unless the lease specifies that the statute applies [Civ. Code § 1952.6].

- A lease or agreement to lease between any public entity and any other public entity, unless the lease or agreement specifically provides to the contrary [Civ. Code § 1952.6].

[5] Measure of Future Damages

The parties to any lease entered into before July 1, 1971, could specifically provide that, on a breach by the tenant, the landlord would recover the worth at the time of the termination of the excess, if any, of the amount of rent and charges that was equivalent to rent reserved in the lease for the balance of the lease term or for any shorter period of time over the reasonable rental value of the property.

The landlord's right to collect this type of damages is now cumulative to all other remedies given to him or her by law or by the lease's terms. However, the landlord's election to recover this type of damages precludes him or her from exercising any other remedy for recovering these charges. In addition, the lease may have required that the landlord exercise this remedy within a specified time period [Civ. Code § 3308].

[6] Liquidated Damages

Except as provided below, a promise to pay liquidated damages for a breach of a contract is valid unless the promisor (or other person seeking to invalidate the promise) establishes that the promise was unreasonable under the circumstances existing when the contract was made [Civ. Code § 1671(b)].

However, a promise by the retail purchaser or renter of personal property or services, primarily for his or her personal, family, or household purposes, to pay liquidated damages for breach of the purchase or rental contract, or a promise by a lessee of real property, for use as his or her dwelling or as a dwelling for persons dependent on him or her for support, to pay liquidated damages for breach of the lease agreement, is void, except that the parties may agree in the contract or lease agreement on an amount that must be presumed to be the damages arising from a breach, when, from the nature of the case, it would be impracticable or extremely difficult to fix the actual damages [Civ. Code § 1671(c), (d)].

The above does not apply in any case when another statute expressly applicable to the contract prescribes the rules or standard for determining the validity of a liquidated damages provision for the breach of a contract [Civ. Code § 1671(a)].

In addition, it is specifically provided that Civ. Code § 1671 applies to a lease of real property [Civ. Code § 1951.5], except a lease executed before July 1, 1971, or a lease executed on or after that date and having terms fixed by a lease, option, or other agreement executed before that date [Civ. Code § 1952.2].

A liquidated damages clause will generally be considered unreasonable, and thus unenforceable under Civ. Code § 1671(b), if it bears no reasonable relationship to the range of actual damages that the parties could have anticipated would flow from a breach [Ridgley v. Topa Thrift & Loan Assn. (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 970, 977, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 378, 953 P.2d 484] . The amount set as liquidated damages must represent the result of a reasonable endeavor by the parties to estimate a fair average compensation for any loss that may be sustained. In the absence of such relationship, a contractual clause purporting to predetermine damages must be construed as a penalty [Ridgley v. Topa Thrift & Loan Assn. (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 970, 977, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 378, 953 P.2d 484] . A provision in a commercial lease extension increasing the rent but providing that half of the increased rent would be conditionally "deferred" and ultimately forgiven if the tenants complied with all of their obligations under the lease was unenforceable as a penalty. The deferred rent had no reasonable relationship to the amount of actual damages caused by the tenants' breach of their obligation to maintain the premises [Harbor Island Holdings, LLC v. Kim (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 790, 795-800, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 406] .

§ 332.25 Abandoned Real Property

[1] Notice by Lessor

[a] In General

Real property is deemed abandoned by the lessee, within the meaning of Civ. Code § 1951.2, and the lease terminates, if the lessor gives written notice of his or her belief of abandonment, as provided in Civ. Code § 1951.3, and the lessee fails to give the lessor written notice, before the date of termination specified in the lessor's notice, stating that he or she does not intend to abandon the real property, and stating an address at which the lessee may be served by certified mail in any action for unlawful detainer of the real property [Civ. Code § 1951.3(a)].

Civ. Code § 1951.3 does not preclude the lessor or the lessee from otherwise proving that the real property has been abandoned by the lessee within the meaning of Civ. Code § 1951.2 [Civ. Code § 1951.3(f)], nor does it preclude the lessor from serving a notice requiring the lessee to pay rent or quit as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1161 or 1162 at any time permitted by those sections, nor does it affect the time and manner of giving any other notice required or permitted by law. Moreover, the giving of notice provided by Civ. Code § 1951.3 does not satisfy the requirements of either Code Civ. Proc. § 1161 or 1162 [Civ. Code § 1951.3(g)].

The lessor may give a notice of belief of abandonment to the lessee in accordance with Civ. Code § 1951.3, only when the rent on the property has been due and unpaid for at least 14 consecutive days, and the lessor reasonably believes that the lessee has abandoned the property. The date of the lease's termination is required to be specified in the lessor's notice, and cannot be less than 15 days after the notice is served personally or, if mailed, not less than 18 days after the notice is deposited in the mail [Civ. Code § 1951.3(b)].

[b] Service of Notice

The lessor's notice of belief of abandonment is required to be personally delivered to the lessee, or sent by first class mail, postage prepaid, to the lessee at his or her last known address and, if there is reason to believe that the notice sent to that address will not be received by the lessee, also to such other address, if any, known to the lessor where the lessee may reasonably be expected to receive the notice [Civ. Code § 1951.3(c)].

[2] When Property Is Not Abandoned

Real property will not be deemed to be abandoned under Civ. Code § 1951.3 if the lessee proves any of the following [Civ. Code § 1951.3(e)]:

- At the time the notice of belief of abandonment was given, the rent was not due and unpaid for 14 consecutive days;

- At the time the notice of belief of abandonment was given, it was not reasonable for the lessor to believe that the lessee had abandoned the real property. The fact that the lessor knew that the lessee left personal property on the real property does not, of itself, justify a finding that the lessor did not reasonably believe that the lessee had abandoned the real property;

- Before the date specified in the lessor's notice, the lessee gave written notice to the lessor, stating his or her intent not to abandon the real property, and stating an address at which he or she can be served by certified mail in any action for unlawful detainer of the real property; or

- During the period commencing 14 days before the time the notice of belief of abandonment was given, and ending on the date the lease would have terminated in accordance with the notice, the lessee paid to the lessor all or a portion of the rent due and unpaid on the real property.

[3] Reletting of Property

On the initial reletting of the property, the lessor is required to send a written notice to the lessee, stating that the property has been relet, the name and address of the new lessee, and the length of the new lease and the amount of the rent. The notice is required to be delivered to the lessee personally, or be sent by regular mail to the lessee at the address shown on the request, not later than 30 days after the new lessee takes possession of the property. No notice is required if the amount of the rent due and unpaid at the time of termination exceeds the amount of the advance payment [Civ. Code § 1951.7(c)].

As used in Civ. Code § 1951.7, "advance payment" means monies paid to the lessor of real property as prepayment of rent, or as a deposit to secure faithful performance of the terms of the lease, or another payment that is the substantial equivalent of either of these. A payment that is not in excess of the amount of one month's rent is not an advance payment [Civ. Code § 1951.7(a)].

The notice specified by Civ. Code § 1951.7(c) is required to be given only if [Civ. Code § 1951.7(b)]:

- The lessee has made an advance payment;

- The lease is terminated in accordance with Civ. Code § 1951.2; and

- The lessee has made a request, in writing, to the lessor that he or she be given notice under Civ. Code § 1951.7(c).

§ 332.26 Abandoned Personal Property

[1] Application of Statutes

An optional procedure for the disposing of personal property that remains on the premises after a tenancy has terminated and the premises have been vacated by the tenant is provided by Civ. Code § 1980 et seq. (residential property) and 1993 et seq. (commercial property) [Civ. Code §§ 1981(a), 1993.02(a)]. These statutes do not apply when Civ. Code §§ 1862.5 (property left in licensed hospital), 2080.8 (property left with Regents of University of California or University of California Police Department), 2080.9 (property left with Trustees of California State Universities and Colleges), or 2081-2081.6 (property left with common carrier, commission merchant, innkeeper, or warehouseman) apply. They also do not apply to property that exists for the purposes of providing utility services and is owned by a public utility, whether or not this property is actually in operation to provide the utility services [Civ. Code §§ 1981(b), 1993.02(b)]. Nor do these statutes apply to any manufactured home as defined in Health & Safety Code § 18007, any mobilehome as defined in Health & Safety Code § 18008, or to any commercial modular, as defined in Health & Safety Code § 18001.8, including attachments thereto or contents thereof, whether or not the manufactured home, mobilehome, or commercial coach is subject to registration under the Health & Safety Code [Civ. Code §§ 1981(c), 1993.02(c)]. Finally, the statutes are not applicable to the disposition of animals that have been abandoned in or around premises that have been vacated on or immediately preceding the termination of a lease or other rental agreement or foreclosure [see Civ. Code § 1815(d)] or whose disposition is governed by applicable provisions of the Food and Agricultural Code [Civ. Code §§ 1981(d), 1993.02(d)].

Except as provided [see Civ. Code § 1993.01], the provisions of this procedure do not apply to commercial property. The term "commercial property" does not include self-storage units [Civ. Code § 1980.5].

If the requirements of Civ. Code § 1980 or 1993 et seq. are not satisfied, it does not affect the rights and liabilities of the landlord, former tenant, or any other person [Civ. Code §§ 1981(e), 1993.02(f)].

[2] Definitions

The following terms are defined for purposes of Civ. Code §§ 1980 et seq. and 1993 et seq. [Civ. Code §§ 1980, 1993]:

- "Commercial real property" includes any part, portion, or unit thereof, and any related facilities, space, or services, but does not include self-storage units [see Civ. Code § 1954.26 (definition of "commercial real property").

- "Landlord" means any operator, keeper, lessor, or sublessor of any furnished or unfurnished premises for hire, or his or her agent or successor in interest.

- "Owner" means any person other than the landlord who has any right, title, or interest in personal property.

- "Premises" includes any common areas associated with the premises.

- "Reasonable belief" means the actual knowledge or belief a prudent person would have without making an investigation (including any investigation of public records). Notwithstanding the foregoing, when the landlord has specific information indicating that such an investigation would be reasonable in relation to the probable value of the personal property involved, "reasonable belief" also includes the actual knowledge or belief a prudent person would have if such an investigation were made.

- "Records" means any material, regardless of the physical form, on which information is recorded or preserved by any means, including in written or spoken words, graphically depicted, printed, or electromagnetically transmitted. "Records" does not include publicly available directories containing information an individual has voluntarily consented to have publicly disseminated or listed, such as name, address, or telephone number.

- For residential property, "tenant" includes any paying guest, lessee, or sublessee of any premises for hire; for commercial property, "tenant" includes any lessee or sublessee of any commercial real property and its premises for hire.

The terms "landlord" and "tenant" are defined broadly, such that the statutes govern personal property left on any rental property, whether furnished or unfurnished, residential or commercial.

[3] Disposing of Lost Property

Personal property that the landlord reasonably believes to have been lost must be disposed of in accordance with Civ. Code §§ 2080-2080.9 (lost and unclaimed property). The landlord is not liable to the owner of the property if he or she complies with these statutes when disposing of the property [Civ. Code §§ 1982(a), 1993.01].

If the appropriate police or sheriff's department refuses to accept property as provided in Civ. Code §§ 2080-2080.9, the landlord may dispose of the property in accordance with the abandoned property provisions [Civ. Code §§ 1982(b), 1993.01; see Civ. Code §§ 1980 et seq., 1993 et seq.].

[4] Notice to Tenant

[a] Requirements

When personal property remains on the premises after a tenancy has terminated and the premises have been vacated by the tenant, the landlord is required to give written notice to the tenant and to any other person the landlord reasonably believes to be the owner of the property [Civ. Code §§ 1983(a), 1993.03(a)]. If the property remaining on the premises consists of records [see Civ. Code §§ 1980(e), 1993(f)], the tenant is presumed to be the owner of the records [Civ. Code

The notice is required to describe the property in a manner reasonably adequate to permit the owner of the property to identify it. The notice may describe all or a portion of the property, but the limitation of liability provided by Civ. Code §§ 1989 and 1993.08 [see [8], below], does not protect the landlord from any liability arising from the disposition of property not described in the notice. However, a trunk, valise, box, or other container that is locked, fastened, or tied in a manner that deters immediate access to its contents may be described as such without describing its contents [Civ. Code §§ 1983(b), 1993.03(b)].

The notice is also required to advise the person to be notified that reasonable costs of storage may be charged before the property is returned, where the property may be claimed, and the date before which the claim must be made. The date specified in the notice is required to be a date not less than 15 days after the notice is personally delivered or, if mailed, not less than 18 days after the notice is deposited in the mail [Civ. Code §§ 1983(b), 1993.03(b)].

Statutory forms of notice are set forth in Civ. Code §§ 1984 and 1993.04 [see § 332.90 (form)].

[b] Service of Notice

The notice is required to be personally delivered to the person to be notified or sent by first class mail, postage prepaid, to the person to be notified at his or her last known address and, if there is reason to believe that the notice sent to that address will not be received by that person, also to such other address, if any, known to the landlord where such person may reasonably be expected to receive the notice. If the notice is sent by mail to the former tenant, one copy is required to be sent to the premises vacated by such tenant [Civ. Code §§ 1983(c), 1993.03(c)].

[5] Storage of Abandoned Property

The personal property described in the notice [see [4][a], above] is required either to be left on the vacated premises or to be stored by the landlord in a place of safekeeping until the landlord either releases the property in accordance with Civ. Code § 1987 or 1993.01 [see [6], below], or disposes of the property in accordance with Civ. Code § 1988 or 1993.07 [see [7], below]. The landlord is required to exercise reasonable care in storing the property, but he or she is not liable to the tenant or any other owner for any loss not caused by a deliberate or negligent act [Civ. Code §§ 1986, 1993.06].

[6] Release of Personal Property

The personal property described in the notice [see [4][a], above] is required to be released by the landlord to the former tenant, or at the landlord's option, to any person reasonably believed by the landlord to be its owner, if the tenant or other person pays the reasonable cost of storage and takes possession of the property not later than the date specified in the notice for taking possession [Civ. Code §§ 1987(a), 1993.01].

[7] Public Sale

[a] Release or Sale

When personal property is not released in accordance with Civ. Code § 1987(a) and the notice [see [4][a], above] stated that the personal property would be sold at a public sale, the landlord must release the personal property to the former tenant if he or she claims it before the time it is sold and pays the reasonable cost of storage, advertising, and sale incurred before the time the property is withdrawn from sale [Civ. Code §§ 1987(b), 1993.01].

If the personal property described in the notice is not released in accordance with Civ. Code § 1987, it is sold at public sale by competitive bidding. However, if the landlord reasonably believes that the total resale value of the property not released is less than $300 (for residential property) or the lesser of $750 or $1 per square foot of the premises (for commercial property), he or she may retain the property for his or her own use, or dispose of it in any manner he or she chooses [Civ. Code §§ 1988(a), 1993.07(a)(2)]. Nothing in Civ. Code § 1988 or 1993.07 precludes the landlord or tenant from bidding on the property at the public sale [Civ. Code §§ 1988(a), 1993.07(d)].

[b] Notice of Sale

Notice of the time and place of the public sale is required to be given by publication, under Gov. Code § 6066, in a newspaper of general circulation, published in the county where the sale is to be held. The last publication must be not less than five days before the sale is to be held. The notice of the sale cannot be published before the last of the dates specified for taking possession of the property in any notice given in accordance with Civ. Code § 1983 or 1993.03. The notice of the sale must describe the property to be sold in a manner reasonably adequate to permit the owner of the property to identify it. The notice may describe all or a portion of the property, but the limitation of liability provided by Civ. Code § 1989 or 1993.08 [see [8], below] does not protect the landlord from any liability arising from the disposition of property not described in the notice. However, a trunk, valise, box, or other container that is locked, fastened, or tied in a manner that deters immediate access to its contents may be described as such without describing its contents [Civ. Code §§ 1988(b), 1993.07(b)].

[c] Proceeds of Sale

After deducting the costs of storage, advertising, and sale, any balance of the sale proceeds that is not claimed by the former tenant or an owner other than the tenant will be paid into the treasury of the county in which the sale took place not later than 30 days after the date of sale. The former tenant or other owner may claim the balance within one year from the date of payment to the county by making application to the county treasurer or other official designated by the county. If the county pays the balance or any part of the balance to a claimant, neither the county nor any officer or employee of the county is liable to any other claimant as to the amount paid [Civ. Code §§ 1988(c), 1993.07(c)].

[8] Nonliability of Landlord

Notwithstanding Civ. Code §§ 1981(e) and 1993.02(f) (when requirements of the personal property provisions are not satisfied, nothing affects the rights and liability of the landlord, former tenant, or any other person), if the landlord releases to the former tenant property that remains on the premises after a tenancy is terminated, the landlord is not liable with regard to that property to any person [Civ. Code §§ 1989(a), 1993.08(a)].

When the landlord releases property in accordance with Civ. Code § 1987 to a person (other than the former tenant) reasonably believed by the landlord to be the owner of the property, the landlord is not liable with regard to that property to the following persons [Civ. Code §§ 1989(b), 1993.08(b)]:

- Any person to whom notice was given in accordance with Civ. Code § 1983 or 1993.03; or

- Any person to whom notice was not given in accordance with Civ. Code § 1983 or 1993.03, unless the person proves that before releasing the property, the landlord believed, or reasonably should have believed, that the person had an interest in the property, and also that the landlord knew, or should have known on reasonable investigation, the person's address.

When property is disposed of in accordance with Civ. Code § 1988 or 1993.07, the landlord is not liable with regard to that property to the following persons [Civ. Code § 1989(c)]:

- Any person to whom notice was given in accordance with Civ. Code § 1983 or 1993.03; or

- Any person to whom notice was not given in accordance with Civ. Code § 1983 or 1993.03, unless the person proves that, before disposing of the property, the landlord believed, or reasonably should have believed, that the person had an interest in the property, and also that the landlord knew, or should have known on reasonable investigation, the person's address.

[9] Costs of Storage

Under Civ. Code § 1990(a) (applicable to both residential and commercial property), costs of storage that may be required to be paid are assessed in the following manner:

- When a former tenant claims property under Civ. Code § 1987 (applicable to both residential and commercial property), he or she may be required to pay the reasonable costs of storage for all the personal property remaining on the premises at the termination of the tenancy that are unpaid at the time the claim is made; or

- When an owner other than the former tenant claims property under Civ. Code § 1987, he or she may be required to pay the reasonable costs of storage for only the property in which he or she claims an interest.

In determining the costs to be assessed under Civ. Code § 1990(a), the landlord may not charge more than one person for the same costs [Civ. Code § 1990(b)].

If the landlord stores the personal property on the premises, the cost of storage is the fair rental value of the space reasonably required for the storage for the term of the storage [Civ. Code § 1990(c)].

[10] Return of Property on Tenant's Request

[a] Procedure

A residential landlord must not refuse to surrender to a residential tenant any personal property not owned by the landlord that was left on the premises after the tenant had vacated the premises, and the return of which has been requested by the tenant or by his or her representative. The following must occur to give the tenant the right to the return [Civ. Code § 1965(a)]:

- The tenant requests, in writing, within 18 days of vacating the premises, the surrender of the personal property. The request must include a description of the property and specify the tenant's mailing address. A form of request for return is set forth in § 332.93.

- The landlord or agent has control or possession of the tenant's personal property at the time the request is received.

- The tenant on demand of the landlord tenders payment of all reasonable costs associated with the landlord's removal and storage of the personal property. A form of the landlord's demand for costs is set forth in § 332.94.

- The tenant agrees to claim and remove the personal property at a reasonable time mutually agreed on by the landlord and tenant but not later than 72 hours after the tender of costs.

[b] When Request Procedure Not Applicable

The procedure in [a], above, is not applicable when the disposition of personal property has been initiated or completed in accordance with the procedure set forth in Civ. Code §§ 1980-1991. It is also not applicable when the occupancy is defined by Civ. Code § 1940(b), which refers to hotel and motel occupants [Civ. Code § 1965(c)].

[c] Compliance by Landlord

A landlord who complies with the tenant's request is not liable to any person with regard to that person's personal property that is given to another person. In the event of conflicting demands, the first timely request for surrender of personal property received by the landlord prevails [Civ. Code § 1965(d)].

[d] Noncompliance by Landlord

A landlord who retains personal property in violation of Civ. Code § 1965 is liable to a tenant in a civil action for the following damages [Civ. Code § 1965(e)(1), (2)]:

- Actual damages not to exceed the value of the personal property if the property is not surrendered by the later of (1) a reasonable time after the tenant's request, or (2) if costs were demanded and the tenant paid the costs, the time agreed on to claim the property. Three days is presumed to be a reasonable time.

- An amount not to exceed $250 for each bad faith violation of this provision. In determining the amount of the award, the court must consider proof of matters as justice may require.

In addition, the court may award reasonable attorney's fees and costs to the prevailing party [Civ. Code § 1965(e)(3)].

This remedy is not exclusive and does not preclude either the landlord or the tenant from pursuing other remedies [Civ. Code § 1965(f)].

A form of complaint for these damages is set forth in § 332.95.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Termination of Tenancies

29-332 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 332.27

§ 332.27 Domestic Violence, Sexual Assault, or Stalking

A tenant may notify the landlord that he or she or a household member was a victim of an act that constitutes an act of domestic violence [Fam. Code § 6211], sexual assault [Pen. Code §§ 261, 261.5, 262, 286, 288a, 289], or stalking [Civ. Code § 1708.7], and that the tenant intends to terminate the tenancy [Civ. Code § 1946.7(a)]. "Household member" means a member of the tenant's family who lives in the same household as the tenant [Civ. Code § 1946.7(g)].

The notice of termination must be in writing, and one of the following documents must be attached to the notice [Civ. Code § 1946.7(b); see § 332.71 (form of termination notice to landlord)]:

- A copy of a temporary restraining order or emergency protective order issued pursuant to Fam. Code §§ 6300 et seq., 6400 et seq., Pen. Code § 136.2, Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6, or Welf. & Inst. Code § 213.5, that protects the tenant or household member from further domestic violence, sexual assault, or stalking.

- A copy of a written report by a peace officer employed by a state or local law enforcement agency acting in his or her official capacity, stating that the tenant or household member has filed a report alleging that he or she or the household member is a victim of domestic violence, sexual assault, or stalking.

The notice to terminate the tenancy must be given within 60 days of the date that the attached temporary restraining order or emergency protective order was issued, the peace officer's written report was made, or within the time period for giving notice of termination described in Civ. Code § 1946 [Civ. Code § 1946.7(c)].

A tenant who provides a notice of termination under Section 1946.7 is responsible for payment of rent for 30 days following the giving of the notice, or within the appropriate period as described in Section 1946, and thereafter is released from any rent payment obligation under the rental agreement without penalty [Civ. Code § 1946.7(d)]. [12] Lease Requirements

[a] In General

Requirements for valid lease. Santa Cruz v. MacGregor (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 45, 53, 2 Cal. Rptr. 727

Required elements are not sufficient alone to create lease unless parties so intend. Back v. New York Merchandise Co. (1961) 196 Cal. App. 2d 434, 442, 16 Cal. Rptr. 591

Parties' characterization of agreement as lease does not control, but is evidence that parties intended that it operate as such. Sherwin v. Bogosian (1931) 112 Cal. App. 359, 364, 296 P. 641

Lease is sufficiently certain when tenant goes into possession on certain date, begins paying rent on that date, terms were same as in lease between landlord and previous tenants, and property was described. Pike v. Hayden (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 606, 612, 218 P.2d 578

Agreement providing for sporadic use of premises, with shared control by owner during each use, is not deemed "exclusive" possession and control of premises necessary to characterize agreement as lease. Golden West Baseball Co. v. City of Anaheim (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 11, 32-33, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 378

Minor, nonessential details in lease are permitted to be left for future agreement; uncertainty of such details does not render contract unenforceable if terms can be settled by reasonable determination; whether contractual detail is essential is matter of degree; essentiality is settled by determining whether indefinite promise is so essential to bargain that inability to enforce that promise strictly according to its terms would make unfair enforcement of remainder of agreement. Mabee v. Nurseryland Garden Centers, Inc. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 968, 972, 149 Cal. Rptr. 105 (holding in lease of commercial property in shopping center that specification of exact boundaries of leased premises was not necessary to bargain, that exact site location was to be agreed to later, and that if parties could not agree, matter would be settled by court)

Lease must be based on consideration. Cox v. Hollywood Film Enterprises, Inc. (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 320, 325, 240 P.2d 713

Binding lease exists when parties agree in writing on essential terms of lease although formal instrument is to be prepared and signed later. Gavina v. Smith (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 501, 504, 154 P.2d 681 ; Cappelmann v. Young (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 49, 53, 165 P.2d 950

Agreement to lease in future is not present lease if agreement is too uncertain and incomplete. Martin v. Hall (1933) 219 Cal. 334, 338-339, 26 P.2d 288

Whether instrument is present lease or agreement to execute lease in future is question of intention of the parties. Levin v. Saroff (1921) 54 Cal. App. 285, 289-290, 201 P. 961 , disapproved on other grounds, Sterling v. Taylor (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 757, 770, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116, 152 P.3d 420

Delivery, which is prerequisite to validity of lease, is established by evidence that lessee's attorney received physical delivery of lease and lessee received copy of letter pursuant to which attorney held lease, despite lessor's reservation of right to take lease back if collateral agreement not satisfied. Corson v. Brown Motel Investments, Inc. (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 422, 426, 151 Cal. Rptr. 385

[13] Low Income Housing

Prospective low income tenants are third-party beneficiaries of regulatory contract between owner/developer and city required by Health & Safety Code § 52080(b) (bond financing for construction of rental units, percentage of which are set aside for low income tenants); preliminary injunction is proper to restrain owner from utilizing policy preventing no more than four persons to occupy three-bedroom apartment. Zakaria v. Lincoln Property Co. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 500, 509-510, 229 Cal. Rptr. 669

[16] Nature of Lease

Lease involves two sets of rights and obligations arising out of privity of estate and privity of contract. Ellingson v. Walsh, O'Connor & Barneson (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 673, 675, 104 P.2d 507 ; Samuels v. Ottinger (1915) 169 Cal. 209, 211, 146 P. 638

Lease and license distinguished. Kaiser Co. v. Reid (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 610, 619, 184 P.2d 879 ; Nahas v. Local 905, Retail Clerks International Asso. (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 808, 821, 301 P.2d 932

Determination whether agreement is lease, easement, or some other interest in land for purposes of determining rights and duties under agreement, is not essential since contractual relationship between parties must be analyzed based on evidence and findings without regard to its classification under traditional common law concepts. Golden West Baseball Co. v. City of Anaheim (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 11, 33, 36-37, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 378

For purposes of tort liability, no special or unique relationship exists between landlord and tenant in commercial setting that creates fiduciary relationship, since duties toward each other are defined by lease between those parties and ordinary damages for breach of lease are available equally to both. Girard v. Delta Towers Joint Venture (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1741, 1749-1751, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 102

[17] Offer to Lease

Proposed sublessee's financing of special improvements does not constitute acceptance of offer to lease. San Diego Professional Ass'n v. Herrick (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 424, 429-430, 84 Cal. Rptr. 398

[18] Options to Purchase

Month-to-month tenant is not entitled to specific performance of option to purchase property where option clause had been deleted from lease by written notice properly given pursuant to Civ. Code § 827. Wilcox v. Anderson (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 593, 596, 148 Cal. Rptr. 773

[19] Recordation

When tenant's option to purchase was separate, unrecorded document that was not referred to in recorded lease, tenant's possession under lease does not give subsequent purchaser constructive notice of option or requiring inquiry of tenant of other rights. Gates Rubber Co. v. Ulman (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 356, 366-370, 262 Cal. Rptr. 630

Purpose of recording lease. Domarad v. Fisher & Burke, Inc. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 543, 554, 76 Cal. Rptr. 529

[20] Regulatory Compliance by Landlord and Tenant

Under net lease with broad repair clause and general compliance with laws clause, landlord is not entitled to force tenant to make or pay for costs of seismic upgrading undertaken by landlord in absence of existing damage to leased building or any governmental ordinance requiring seismic upgrade to building. Prudential Ins. Co. of America v. L.A. Mart (9th Cir. 1995) 68 F.3d 370, 371

Responsibility for complying with governmental laws, regulations, or orders does not necessarily depend on literal terms of lease's compliance with laws clause but rather on terms of lease as a whole and whether governmental order was triggered by lessee's particular use of leased premises. Brown v. Green (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 812, 824-830, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 598, 884 P.2d 55 ; Hadian v. Schwartz (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 836, 843-845, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 589, 884 P.2d 46

Language of clause requiring tenant to comply with all applicable laws when using toxic substances and to clean up "any such wastes, substances or materials found on or under the property," and circumstances in which lease was made, showed that mere presence of de minimis amounts of certain substances otherwise toxic in larger quantities did not trigger tenant's obligations to clean up property. SDC/Pullman Partners v. Tolo Inc. (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 37, 44-45, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 62

[21] Rule Against Perpetuities

Commercial, nondonative transactions such as options to renew, rights of first refusal, and commercial leases are exempt from provisions of Uniform Statutory Rule Against Perpetuities (Prob. Code § 21225), except if involving lease or grant of town or city lot, which is subject to statutory 99-year term limit (Civ. Code § 718). Shaver v. Clanton (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 568, 576, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 595

[22] Sublease

Sublessee is bound by terms and conditions of original lease. Pedro v. Potter (1926) 197 Cal. 751, 760, 242 P. 926

Transfer of portion of lessee's interest is a sublease. Reed v. South Shore Foods, Inc. (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 705, 710, 40 Cal. Rptr. 575

Subtenant's direct rental payments to owner does not affect status of transfer. Reed v. South Shore Foods, Inc. (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 705, 711, 40 Cal. Rptr. 575

Sublessees have no right to any option given by original lease but assignees are entitled to enforce obligation to renew. Ablett v. Clauson (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 280, 283, 272 P.2d 753

[23] Subordination

Commercial lease was extinguished by trustee sale under deed of trust that was senior to lease by virtue of clause in lease subordinating it to future mortgages; fact that subordination clause encompassed only mortgages and not deeds of trust did not mean lease was not forfeited, because the two instruments are functionally and legally the same. Aviel v. Ng (2007) 161 Cal. App. 4th 809, 817, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 200

Foreclosure did not terminate subordinated lease that contained an attornment provision under which the tenant agreed to recognize, or attorn to, a new landlord who could be the purchaser in a foreclosure sale or the transferee in a transfer in lieu of foreclosure. Miscione v. Barton Development Co. (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1320, 1332, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 280

Foreclosure terminates subordinated lease. Dover Mobile Estates v. Fiber Form Products, Inc. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1494, 1499-1500, 270 Cal. Rptr. 183

University Students Co-op. Ass'n (9th Cir. 1991) 939 F.2d 808, 812-814*

[25] Termination of Tenancies

Tenant's exercise of option to renew lease, which occurred after fire destroyed premises, did not cut off landlord's rights under provision allowing either party to cancel lease within 30 days of total or partial destruction of premises. 11382 Beach Partnership v. Libaw (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 212, 216, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 533

[26] Third Parties

Tenant's possession of property is sufficient to put subsequent purchaser on notice of tenant's claim. Evans v. Faught (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 698, 705, 42 Cal. Rptr. 133

[27] Title

Lessee is estopped to deny title of his or her landlord. People v. Rice (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 207, 211, 8 Cal. Rptr. 76 ; First Nat'l Bank of Oroville v. Aldridge (1939) 33 Cal. App. 2d 485, 489, 92 P.2d 674

[2] Use of Form

This form is a general form of complaint for use in an action by a landlord against a tenant for breach of a covenant in a lease.

PRACTICE TIP:

Including Exhibits With Complaint. There is no requirement that copies of leases or notices to perform covenants be attached to the complaint as exhibits [see P 5 of form], so long as the complaint includes allegations of proper service of a proper notice. Some attorneys routinely attach these as exhibits. However, they are exposing themselves to a demurrer or motion to quash if their attached notice is defective on its face or inconsistent with the attached lease. This exposure might not be a bad thing, however; if a notice is defective, the landlord's attorney might as well find out early in the suit, before extensive attorneys' fees are incurred. By Myron Moskovitz

[3] Damages in Action Based on Contract

For the breach of an obligation arising from contract, the measure of damages, except where otherwise expressly provided by the Civil Code, is the amount that will compensate the party aggrieved for all detrimentproximately caused thereby, or which, in the ordinary course of things, would be likely to result therefrom [Civ. Code § 3300].

PRACTICE TIP:

Estimating Damages. You might estimate "daily damages" simply by dividing the monthly rent by the number of days in the month. By Myron Moskovitz

[4] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8)].

If the action is a limited civil case, the caption must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 and must also identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

[5] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified also, if the action is in the superior court and is not a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial except in a limited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

§ 332.42 Allegation--Tenant's Breach of Covenant to Keep and Surrender Premises in Good Condition

[1] FORM Allegation--Tenant's Breach of Covenant to Keep and Surrender Premises in Good Condition

1. By the lease, defendant covenanted to keep and surrender the leased premises in good condition, as more particularly set out in [Paragraph _____ of] the lease.

2. In breach of this covenant, defendant failed and refused to keep and surrender the leased premises in good condition, as follows: _____[specify].

3. By reason of defendant's breach of the covenant, plaintiff was required to, and did, expend the sum of $_____ to put the premises in good condition after they were vacated by defendant, to plaintiff's damage in such sum.

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use in a complaint for damages for breach of a covenant to keep and surrender leased premises in good condition. These allegations may be substituted for Paragraphs 8 to 10 in § 332.40[1].

[3] Tenant's Covenant to Repair or to Deliver Premises in Specified Condition

Most tenant's covenants to repair obligate the tenant to repair all damage occurring during the term of the lease with the exception of ordinary wear and tear. These covenants are reasonably interpreted to avoid placing any unwarranted burden of improvement of the landlord's premises on the tenant. The tenant is not bound to make repairs of a substantial nature, involving the substitution of new structures or parts thereof for old, although the latter are defective and worn out through age [Lynn v. DePue Warehouse Co. (1962) 198 Cal. App. 2d 742, 746, 17 Cal. Rptr. 841] . Thus, a tenant is not required to renovate the premises at the expiration of his or her lease [Kanner v. Globe Bottling Co. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 559, 565, 78 Cal. Rptr. 25] and is not obligated to restore the premises to his or her landlord in a better condition than they were at the inception of the tenancy [Kanner v. Globe Bottling Co. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 559, 566, 78 Cal. Rptr. 25] .

A lease provision that the tenant deliver up possession of the premises at the expiration of the lease in good condition, with ordinary use and wear excepted, contemplates that deterioration will occur by reason of time and use despite ordinary care for its preservation [Kanner v. Globe Bottling Co. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 559, 565, 78 Cal. Rptr. 25] . But when a tenant covenants to restore the premises to the condition in which they were before any alterations by the tenant, the tenant has the duty to do that which is necessary to restore the premises to their original condition [see Worthington v. Kaiser Foundation Health Plan, Inc. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 435, 440, 87 Cal. Rptr. 272] .

A lease provision and amendment to the lease requiring the tenant of commercial property to maintain and repair the premises, including "make any improvement, correct any condition, or otherwise comply with any written notice" from the city or landlord regarding defects did not require the tenant to replace the roofs on the premises. The tenant's duty of maintenance under the lease and amendment could only be reasonably construed as requiring the tenant to maintain the roofs in their conditions as of the time those written agreements were executed (i.e., in their then-dilapidated conditions). If the parties had intended the tenant to assume the obligation to replace the roofs, it would be reasonable to expect that the lease and/or amendment would expressly state this rather than merely stating that the tenant was required to maintain the roofs and other parts of the premises [ASP Properties Group, L.P. v. Fard, Inc. (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 1257, 1271-1272, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 343] .

[4] Measure of Damages

If an action is brought after expiration of a term for breach of a tenant's covenant to keep the premises in repair or to surrender them in good repair or in a specified condition, the measure of damages is the reasonable cost of putting the demised premises into the required state of repair or the condition contemplated by the covenant [Iverson v. Spang Industries, Inc. (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 303, 308, 119 Cal. Rptr. 399 (involving covenant to restore premises to original condition)]. In addition, a tenant who breaches a covenant to restore the premises to their original condition is liable for damages for the loss of rentals during the period required to restore the premises [Worthington v. Kaiser Foundation Health Plan, Inc. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 435, 442, 87 Cal. Rptr. 272] .

When there is a breach of the duty to return the premises in good repair, the landlord may recover the reasonable cost of restoring the premises plus lost rent for the time of making the repairs even if the landlord rerents the premises at a reduced rate to a tenant who makes the repairs [Polster, Inc. v. Swing (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 427, 432-434, 210 Cal. Rptr. 567] .

2. In breach of the covenant, defendant failed and refused to deliver up possession of the leased premises on expiration of the term of the lease on _____ [date], and held possession of the premises without plaintiff's consent for an additional period of _____ [number] days.

3. § 332.44 Allegations--Tenant's Breach of Covenant to Insure Against Fire

[1] FORM Allegations--Tenant's Breach of Covenant to Insure Against Fire

1. By the lease, defendant covenanted to keep the leased premises insured at all times against fire, as more particularly set out in [Paragraph _____ of] the lease.

2. In breach of this covenant, defendant failed and refused to provide insurance against fire for the leased premises as follows: _____[specify].

3. By reason of defendant's breach of the covenant, plaintiff was required to, and did, provide insurance against fire for the premises and pay the premiums therefor in the sum of $_____, to plaintiff's damage in such sum.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use in a complaint for damages for breach of a tenant's covenant to insure the leased premises against fire. These allegations may be substituted for Paragraphs 8 to 10 in § 332.40[1].

[3] Covenants to Insure

The failure to maintain insurance as agreed in a lease is a breach of the lease giving rise to a liability measured by the damage suffered from failure to secure indemnity from the promised insurance [Davidson v. Welch (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 220, 236-237, 75 Cal. Rptr. 676] . But failure to insure the property, even if the lease requires it, is not a breach of the lease when performance is impossible because the insurance company will not issue a policy [Kaliterna v. Wright (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 926, 935, 212 P.2d 32 (overruled on other grounds in State Farm etc. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 428, 431, 304 P.2d 13)]. In addition, when there is an agreement for insurance between parties standing in the relationship of lessor and lessee, and the party obligated, in violation of his or her agreement, procures insurance payable to himself or herself alone, the other party for whose benefit the agreement was made has an equitable lien on the proceeds of such insurance [Davidson v. Welch (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 220, 237, 75 Cal. Rptr. 676] .

[4] Effect of Assignment

A covenant to procure insurance runs with the land, and therefore an assignee of the lease in possession of the premises must pay insurance premiums if this obligation was provided for in the lease [Bank of America etc. Ass'n. v. Moore (1937) 18 Cal. App. 2d 522, 525, 64 P.2d 460] .

[5] Effect of Absence of Covenant to Insure

In the absence of special provision in the lease there is no obligation of the tenant to procure insurance for the benefit of his or her landlord insuring against fire or any other risk, and neither the landlord nor the tenant ordinarily has an interest in the proceeds of insurance obtained by the other on his or her own separate insurable interest [Alexander v. Security-First Nat'l Bank (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 718, 723, 62 P.2d 735] .

By the same token if the lessee does not agree to obtain insurance or to pay any increase in premiums on policies covering the premises and resulting from the lessee's authorized use of the premises, the lessee does not breach the lease by refusing or failing to do so. This is so notwithstanding the fact that the lease provides that no use is to be made of the premises that would increase the rate of insurance. Such a provision applies only when the lessee makes a different or unauthorized use of the premises, and not when the lessee uses the premises in conformity with the use expressly authorized by the lease itself [Nieman v. Peterson (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 14, 150 Cal. Rptr. 774] .

29-332 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 332.45

§ 332.45 Allegations--Tenant's Breach of Covenant to Comply With Municipal Health Regulations Relating to Use of Premises

[1] FORM Allegations--Tenant's Breach of Covenant to Comply With Municipal Health Regulations Relating to Use of Premises

1. By the lease, defendant covenanted to comply at his/her own expense with all municipal health regulations and orders relating to use of the leased premises, as more particularly set out in [Paragraph _____ of] the lease.

2. In breach of this covenant, defendant failed and refused to comply with a certain municipal health regulation and order issued thereon relating to use of the premises and requiring certain repairs and alterations to the premises, as follows: _____[specify].

3. By reason of defendant's breach of covenant, plaintiff was required to, and did, expend the sum of $_____ for repairs and alterations to the premises in compliance with regulation and order, to plaintiff's damage in that sum.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use in a complaint for damages for a tenant's breach of a covenant to comply with municipal health regulations and orders relating to the use of the leased premises at his or her own expense. The form may be used for commercial leases only. These allegations may be substituted for Paragraphs 8 to 10 in § 332.40[1].

[3] Tenant's Performance of Covenant

The tenant's performance of a covenant to comply with municipal regulations relating to the use of the premises at the tenant's own expense is not excused because it would add to tenant's expense [Rose v. Long (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 824, 826-827, 275 P.2d 925] .

[4] Responsibility for Complying With Governmental Laws

The responsibility for complying with governmental laws, regulations, or orders does not necessarily depend on the literal terms of the lease's compliance with laws clause. Rather, this responsibility depends on the lease's terms as a whole and whether the governmental order was triggered by the lessee's particular use of the lease premises [Brown v. Green (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 812, 824-830, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 598, 884 P.2d 55 ; Hadian v. Schwartz (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 836, 843-845, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 589, 884 P.2d 46] .

§ 332.46 Allegations--Tenant's Breach of Covenant to Pay Taxes

[1] FORM Allegations--Tenant's Breach of Covenant to Pay Taxes

1. By the lease, defendant covenanted to pay all taxes levied against the leased premises, as more particularly set out in [Paragraph _____ of] the lease.

2. In breach of this covenant, defendant failed and refused to pay taxes levied against the leased premises in the sum of $ _____, as follows: _____ [specify].

3. By reason of defendant's breach of covenant, plaintiff was required to, and did, pay the sum of $_____ in discharge of the taxes [and accrued interest and penalties], to plaintiff's damage in that sum.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use in a complaint for damages for a tenant's breach of a covenant to pay the taxes levied against the leased premises. These allegations may be substituted for Paragraphs 8 to 10 in § 332.40[1].

[3] Covenant to Pay Taxes

When a covenant has been included in the lease obligating the tenant to pay taxes and assessments, the extent of liability depends on the words of the covenant, the context in which they occur, and the subject matter to which they are applied [Terminal Inv. Co. v. Pope Estate Co. (1932) 122 Cal. App. 281, 283, 10 P.2d 139] . This liability is further limited to taxes legally assessed [Third & Broadway Bldg. Co. v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1933) 132 Cal. App. 186, 192, 22 P.2d 574] . The parties to a lease either may provide that one or the other of them must pay the taxes assessed against the leased premises or may agree to an apportionment of the taxes between them [Lawrence v. F.W. Woolworth Co. (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 119, 121, 45 Cal. Rptr. 140, 403 P.2d 396] .

If the covenant provides that the tenant must also pay any increase in taxes on leased lands due to increased assessed valuation, this clause does not require the tenant also to pay increased taxes occasioned by an increase in the tax rate [Los Angeles Land & Water Co. v. Consumers Rock & Gravel Co. (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 77, 79, 43 P.2d 281] . However, a covenant that provides for payment of taxes by the tenant during the lease's term includes taxes that may be enacted after the lease has been entered into, including those taxes created by an ordinance whose enactment comes on the very last day of the lease term [Dorr v. Marsh (1920) 184 Cal. 588, 589-590, 194 P. 1002 ; Terminal Inv. Co. v. Pope Estate Co. (1932) 122 Cal. App. 281, 293-295, 10 P.2d 139] .

[4] Effect of Assignment

Covenants to pay taxes and assessments run with the land [Civ. Code § 1463; Ellis v. Bradbury (1888) 75 Cal. 234, 236, 17 P. 3] . Consequently, when a tenant assigns his or her interest in the lease to another, the assignee in possession becomes liable for tax payments under the covenant. Should the assignee specifically assume the obligations of the lease, he or she remains liable on the covenant even though he or she may not be in possession [Bank of America etc. Ass'n. v. Moore (1937) 18 Cal. App. 2d 522, 525, 64 P.2d 460] .

[5] Payment of Taxes in Absence of Covenant

In the absence of an express agreement with regard to the payment of taxes, the general rule is that the lessor has the obligation to pay all taxes assessed against the leased premises during the lease's term. Excepted from the general rule are taxes on improvements constructed on the leased premises by the lessee when the lessee by the terms of the lease is permitted to remove the improvements either during or at the end of the lease term. In this case, the lessee has the obligation of paying the increase in taxes due to the improvements, and he or she may not avoid such liability by proving that it is unlikely that he or she will remove the improvements [Lawrence v. F.W. Woolworth Co. (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 119, 121-123, 45 Cal. Rptr. 140, 403 P.2d 396] .

Also, a lessee may be required to pay real property taxes on the leased premises, or on a portion of the leased premises, under a lease that fails to impose this obligation on him or her in express terms but when the obligation is implicit in a construction of the lease [Ellis v. Title Ins. & Trust Co. (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 204, 206, 38 Cal. Rptr. 605] .

[6] Improvements and Fixtures

For the purpose of property taxation, the term "real estate" includes improvements, and the definition of improvements includes fixtures [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 104, 105].

The assessor is required to assess taxable property to the persons owning, claiming, possessing, or controlling it on the lien date, but may assess the property on the secured roll to the person owning, claiming, possessing, or controlling it for the ensuing fiscal year [Rev. & Tax. Code § 405]. Hence, improvements may properly be assessed to the tenant in possession [Valley Fair Fashions, Inc. v. Valley Fair (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 614, 616, 54 Cal. Rptr. 306] .

A written statement may be filed attesting to separate ownership whenever improvements are owned by a person other than the owner of the land on which they are located and the assessor is required to assess separate interests in real property to their separate owners if he or she receives such a statement [Rev. & Tax. Code § 2188.2]. However, the assessor is not prohibited from separately assessing improvements to the tenant when he or she received no such statement [Ventura County v. Channel Islands State Bank (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 240, 244-251, 59 Cal. Rptr. 404] , although the ultimate liability for the tax as between the owner and the lessee turns on a construction of the agreements between them [Valley Fair Fashions, Inc. v. Valley Fair (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 614, 617, 54 Cal. Rptr. 306] .

§ 332.47 Allegations--Tenant's Breach of Covenant Not to Keep or Use Inflammable Substances on Leased Premises

[1] FORM Allegations--Tenant's Breach of Covenant Not to Keep or Use Inflammable Substances on Leased Premises

1. Under the terms of the lease, defendant agreed that there was not to be kept, used, stored, or sold on the premises any inflammable or combustible substances.

2. On or about _____ [date], and prior thereto, defendant violated the lease's terms in that he/she had stored on the premises, contrary to the terms of the lease, great quantities of _____ [specify] which substance was readily inflammable. This inflammable and combustible substance, on or about _____ [date], caused a fire to start on the premises, which completely destroyed the building on the premises. The reasonable cost of restoring the premises to the condition at the time of the fire was and is the sum of $_____. This sum has not, nor has any part of this sum, been paid.

3. As a result of this fire, plaintiff was further damaged in the loss of the rent for _____ [number] months, in the amount of $_____.

4. Plaintiff is informed and believes, and thereon alleges, that defendant knew at the time that he/she brought on the premises the inflammable and combustible substance mentioned above, that the substance was inflammable and combustible, and that the substance might cause fire to the building, and defendant also knew that the lease prohibited the bringing and storing on the premises inflammable and combustible substances, and that, notwithstanding the lease's provisions, the defendant brought the substance on the premises and stored the same thereon. Plaintiff further alleges that the substance, being inflammable and combustible, caused the fire that destroyed the building on the premises.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use in a complaint for damages for breach of a covenant not to keep or use inflammable substances on the leased premises. These allegations may be substituted for Paragraphs 8 to 10 in § 332.40[1].

1. By the lease, defendant covenanted to use the premises for _____ [specify] purposes only, and for no other purposes, as more particularly set out in [Paragraph _____ of] the lease.

2. In breach of the covenant, on or about _____[date], defendant began to use the premises for _____[specify] purposes.

3. As a proximate result of defendant's breach of the covenant, the premises were damaged, requiring repairs in the sum of $_____, which plaintiff performed to his/her damage in that sum.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use in a complaint for damages for a tenant's breach of a covenant limiting the purposes for which leased premises may be used. These allegations may be substituted for Paragraphs 7 to 10 in § 332.40[1].

As an alternative to seeking damages, the landlord may rescind the lease [Civ. Code § 1930; Keating v. Preston (1940) 42 Cal. App. 2d 110, 115, 108 P.2d 479] . For a discussion, forms, and procedural guide for use in an action for rescission, see Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution .

[3] Limitations on Use of Premises in Commercial Lease

A commercial lease may include restrictions on the use and change in use of the leased premises [see Civ. Code § 1997.210 et seq.].

[4] Limitations on Use of Premises in Residential Lease

A residential lease may also prohibit changes in use [Civ. Code § 1930; Chandler v. Hart (1911) 161 Cal. 405, 413, 119 P. 516] . A tenant is liable for damages for a change in use in violation of a lease provision [Civ. Code § 1930].

A lease that fails to specify the purpose for which the leased premises may be used, implies that it may be used for any appropriate purpose [Keating v. Preston (1940) 42 Cal. App. 2d 110, 118, 108 P.2d 479] .

The landlord may also recover contract damages against the assignee for breach of the covenant not to assign without permission [Civ. Code § 1995.330(a)].

[3] Restrictions on Transfers of Commercial Leases

- The right to contract damages caused by the tenant's breach; or
- The right to terminate the lease.

§ 332.50 Allegations--Tenant's Breach of Implied Covenant to Remain in Business

[1] FORM Allegations--Tenant's Breach of Implied Covenant to Remain in Business

1. By the lease, defendant agreed to pay a rental of [$ _____(specify fixed sum) and] _____ percent of the _____ [specify, e.g., gross receipts or profits] from the business that defendant was to conduct on the leased premises.

2. By the lease, defendant impliedly covenanted to remain in business and to operate the business in its usual and customary manner.

3. In breach of the implied covenant, on or about _____[date], defendant ceased to do business on the leased premises.

4. As a proximate result of defendant's breach, plaintiff was deprived of rent in the amount of $_____ [specify amount that plaintiff would have received had defendant operated the business as usual or amount of damages as specified in lease] to plaintiff's damage in that sum.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use in a complaint for damages for a tenant's breach of an implied covenant to remain in business when the rent is based on a percentage of the income from the business. These allegations may be substituted for Paragraphs 8 to 10 in § 332.40[1].

This form may be used even if the lease provides for a fixed sum in addition to a percentage of the business income if the fixed sum is not an adequate rental [Lippman v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 136, 142-146, 280 P.2d 775] .

[3] Implied Covenant to Remain in Business

Ordinarily, a statement as to the purpose for which premises are leased does not imply a covenant by the lessee that he or she will engage in that use, since the lessee may cease to use the premises for any purpose [Lippman v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 136, 142, 280 P.2d 775 ; Charles C. Chapman Building Co. v. California Mart (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 846, 855, 82 Cal. Rptr. 830] . But if the rental for use of a building is based on a percentage of sales, the lessee reasonably may be said to covenant impliedly that he or she will use good faith to insure a continuation of them. Such an implied covenant may be found not to exist, however, if there is a substantial and adequate guaranteed minimum rental [Lippman v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 136, 143-145, 280 P.2d 775 ; see College Block v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1376, 1380-1384, 254 Cal. Rptr. 179 (covenant to continue to operate in good faith is implied when rent paid is minimum amount plus percentage of sales and minimum rent is not substantial; whether rent is substantial is question of fact based on circumstances at time lease was executed)].

If rent for business property is based on a percentage of gross receipts or profits, the rental arrangement determines whether a covenant to use the premises for the purposes stated will be implied. The rent may be: (1) in a fixed sum which under the circumstances is both adequate and fair plus a percentage of gross receipts or profits; (2) in a fixed sum which under the circumstances is neither adequate nor substantial plus a percentage of gross receipts or profits; or (3) a percentage of gross receipts or profits only. In the case of the first alternative, absent an express covenant by the lessee to use the property for the purposes stated, he or she may cease to use them for any purpose. In the case of the other two alternatives, a covenant to so use the property may be implied [Lippman v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 136, 142-146, 280 P.2d 775] .

[4] Damages for Breach

The measure of damages for breach of the covenant to remain in business ordinarily is the amount that the lessor would have received from his or her share of the proceeds of the business had the lessee operated it in its usual and customary manner. But the parties may provide a different measure of damages in the lease such as the average monthly rental paid during the 12 months preceding the breach [Lippman v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 136, 144-147, 280 P.2d 775] .

§ 332.52 Allegations--Landlord's Breach of Covenant to Deliver Possession

[1] FORM Allegations--Landlord's Breach of Covenant to Deliver Possession

1. By the lease, defendant covenanted to deliver possession of the leased premises to plaintiff on a certain date, to wit, _____ [date], as more particularly set out in [Paragraph _____ of] the lease.

2. In breach of this covenant, defendant failed to deliver possession of the leased premises to plaintiff and plaintiff was required to, and did, lease other premises.

3. At the time of executing the lease, plaintiff paid a rental deposit to defendant in the sum of $_____ and by reason of defendant's breach of the covenant, plaintiff has been damaged in such sum for rental deposit paid and not returned. Plaintiff has also suffered additional damages, the exact amount of which has yet to be ascertained, and plaintiff will amend this complaint, if necessary, to allege the exact amount of damages when the same becomes known.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use in a complaint for damages for a landlord's breach of a covenant to deliver possession of the leased premises on a specified date. These allegations may be substituted for Paragraphs 7 to 9 in § 332.51[1].

[3] Lessor's Duty to Deliver Possession

The lessor is under a duty to put the lessee in the quiet possession of the leased premises on the date specified. Failure of the lessor within a reasonable time after request to fulfill his or her obligation as to placing and securing the lessee in the possession of the premises will justify the lessee's terminating the lease [Civ. Code § 1932(1)]. Actual delivery of the premises, however, is not required. The duty is satisfied if there is no impediment to the lessee's taking possession or if the lessee is given a legal right of entry and enjoyment during the term. The tenant may not relieve himself or herself of the obligation to pay rent under an executed lease for a definite term either by refusing to take possession of the premises or by abandoning the premises after he or she has taken possession [Reynolds v. McEwen (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 540, 542-543, 244 P.2d 961] .

The landlord is liable for his or her own acts or the acts of those claiming title paramount to the lease that prevent the tenant from taking possession. However, he or she cannot be held liable for acts of third parties such as trespassers [Playter v. Cunningham (1862) 21 Cal. 229, 233] . If the landlord remains in possession of all or a portion of the leased premises, he or she loses his or her right to collect rent, in the absence of a special agreement to the contrary [Bowers v. Cherokee Bob (1873) 45 Cal. 495, 500] .

[4] Damages

The proper measure of damages for a landlord's failure to deliver possession of the premises leased is the difference between the agreed rent and the rental value of the premises during the term of the lease, not that stated in Civ. Code § 3306 (measure of damages for breach of contract to convey land). In determining the rental value, the court may consider not only expert testimony but also the agreed rent negotiated by the parties and the rental specified in prior leases of the premises [Foreman & Clark Corp. v. Fallon (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 875, 884-886, 92 Cal. Rptr. 162, 479 P.2d 362] .

§ 332.53 Allegations--Landlord's Breach of Covenant to Make Alterations

[1] FORM Allegations--Landlord's Breach of Covenant to Make Alterations

1. By the lease, defendant covenanted to make alterations in the leased premises during plaintiff's tenancy so as to render the premises more suitable for plaintiff's use, as more particularly set out in [Paragraph _____ of] the lease.

2. In breach of this covenant, defendant failed and refused to make alterations to the leased premises, as follows: _____ [specify].

3. By reason of defendant's breach of the covenant, the reasonable rental value of the leased premises was only $_____ per month, which sum is $_____ per month less than the rental contracted for with the alterations, and plaintiff has been damaged in the sum of $_____.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use in a complaint for damages for a landlord's breach of a covenant to make alterations in the leased premises. These allegations may be substituted for Paragraphs 7-9 in § 332.51[1].

[3] Time for Complying With Covenant to Make Improvements

If a lessor covenants to make improvements on the premises, but the lease is silent as to the time the improvements will be made, in the absence of any other agreement, the lessor is obliged to perform the stipulated acts within a reasonable time [Schwarting v. Carpenter (1910) 157 Cal. 432, 433-434, 108 P. 318 (citing Civ. Code § 1657)].

§ 332.55 Allegations--Landlord's Breach of Covenant to Repair

[1] FORM Allegations--Landlord's Breach of Covenant to Repair

1. By the lease, defendant covenanted to maintain the premises in good repair and to make any necessary repairs, as more particularly set out in [Paragraph _____of] the lease.

2. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff notified defendant [in writing] that the premises were in need of repair in that _____ [specify conditions requiring repair about which defendant was notified].

3. In breach of the covenant, defendant failed and refused to make necessary repairs on the leased premises as follows: _____ [specify].

4. By reason of defendant's breach of the covenant, plaintiff was required to and did expend the sum of $_____ for the necessary repairs to the premises, to plaintiff's damage in that sum.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use in a complaint for damages for a landlord's breach of a covenant to repair the demised premises. These allegations may be substituted for Paragraphs 7-9 in § 332.51[1].

[3] Landlord's Covenant to Repair--Notice on Condition Precedent

When a landlord is obligated to make repairs during the term of a commercial lease, actual or constructive notice of the need for repair is necessary to put the landlord in default of his or her obligation, unless he or she agreed to repair without notice, or has actual knowledge or reasonable opportunity to acquire knowledge of the defect [Morris v. Oney (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 864, 869-870, 32 Cal. Rptr. 88] . That is, unless explicitly excluded in the lease, performance under an express covenant to repair is conditional on notice from the tenant and is an indispensable condition precedent to a landlord's duty to perform under the covenant to repair [Wal-Noon Corp. v. Hill (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 605, 612, 119 Cal. Rptr. 646] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Landlord's Obligation to Make Repairs Without Notice of Conditions. This should be distinguished from the landlord's obligation to make repairs even without notice of conditions if those conditions render the premises unhabitable. By Benjamin Kaplan

PRACTICE TIP: No Notice in Residential Leases. For residential property, the landlord must make necessary repairs even without a notice of repair. By Myron Moskovitz

[4] Reentry

If there is no provision to the contrary in the lease, the landlord may reenter the premises to effect necessary repairs. The landlord may not, however, reenter to make major alterations without the tenant's permission [Dwyer v. Carroll (1890) 86 Cal. 298, 304-305, 24 P. 1015] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Effect of Breach of the Peace. In addition, the landlord may not effect entry in breach of the peace. By Benjamin Kaplan

[5] Damages for Breach

The measure of a tenant's damages for a breach of the landlord's covenant to repair is the difference between the reasonable rental value of the premises as is and as contracted to be [Collins v. Kobold (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 868, 872, 304 P.2d 182 ; Noble v. Tweedy (1949) 90 Cal. App. 2d 738, 743, 203 P.2d 778] . A court may award exemplary damages for the discomfort and inconvenience caused by a landlord's failure to replace the windows and doors of a tenant's apartment for a period of two weeks [Farvour v. Geltis (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 603, 605, 205 P.2d 424] .

[6] Rescission

The breach of a covenant to repair or maintain the premises may give the tenant a right to rescind the lease [Groh v. Kover's Bull Pen, Inc. (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 611, 615, 34 Cal. Rptr. 637] .

[7] Responsibility for Complying With Governmental Laws

The responsibility for complying with governmental laws, regulations, or orders does not necessarily depend on the literal terms of the lease's compliance with laws clause. Rather, this responsibility depends on the lease's terms as a whole and whether the governmental order was triggered by the lessee's particular use of the lease premises [Brown v. Green (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 812, 824-830, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 598, 884 P.2d 55 ; Hadian v. Schwartz (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 836, 843-845, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 589, 884 P.2d 46] .

§ 332.56 Allegations--Landlord's Breach of Covenant to Extend Term of Lease

[1] FORM Allegations--Landlord's Breach of Covenant to Extend Term of Lease

1. By the lease, defendant covenanted to extend the term of the lease at the election of plaintiff for an additional period of _____ [number] years at a rental of $_____, as more particularly set out in [Paragraph _____ of] the lease.

2. In accordance with this covenant and on or about _____[date], plaintiff elected to and did extend the term of the lease for such additional period by notice in writing in compliance with the terms of the lease. (A true and correct copy of the lease is attached hereto as Exhibit B and is incorporated herein by reference.)

3. In breach of the covenant, defendant failed and refused to extend the term of the lease and plaintiff was required to and did vacate the premises on expiration of the original term.

4. By reason of defendant's breach of covenant, plaintiff has been deprived of the use and value of the leasehold for such additional term, the reasonable value of which is $_____, to his/her damage in such sum.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use in a complaint for damages for a landlord's breach of a covenant to extend the term of a lease. These allegations may be substituted for Paragraphs 7-9 in § 332.51[1]. It should be noted, that a plaintiff in this type of case may choose to seek declaratory relief (extending the term) rather than damages.

[3] Action for Damages

A plaintiff is entitled to sue for damages for a landlord's breach of the covenant to extend the lease's term [Stern v. Krasne (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 818, 820-821, 280 P.2d 45] .

[4] Option to Renew

The exercise of an option to renew may be made by giving notice [Shamp v. White (1895) 106 Cal. 220, 222, 39 P. 537] . However, formal written exercise of an option to renew is not essential [Cicinelli v. Iwasaki (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 58, 67, 338 P.2d 1005] . If the landlord accepts rental payment, this constitutes an exercise of the option to extend the lease [Schmitt v. Felix (1958) 157 Cal. App. 2d 642, 645, 321 P.2d 473] .

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use as an affirmative defense to an action for breach of a covenant contained in a lease based on waiver of the breach by the lessor's conduct after the breach with knowledge of it.

PRACTICE TIP:

Include Ultimate Facts. When setting forth affirmative defenses, you should include a provision for specific ultimate facts. Affirmative defenses must generally be plead in the same manner as any cause of action. By Benjamin Kaplan

[3] Acceptance of Rent Waives Breach

A landlord who accepts rent after the breach of a condition is deemed to have waived the breach when the landlord acts with full knowledge of the facts [Kern Sunset Oil Co. v. Good Roads Oil Co. (1931) 214 Cal. 435, 440, 6 P.2d 71] .

§ 332.58 Affirmative Defense--Action for Breach of Covenant to Repair--Destruction of Premises

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense--Action for Breach of Covenant to Repair--Destruction of Premises

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

On _____ [date], the leased premises were totally destroyed through no fault of defendant and defendant was and is under no obligation to rebuild the structure.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use as an affirmative defense to an action for breach of a covenant to repair when the premises were totally destroyed.

[3] General Rule When Leased Premises Are Destroyed

As a general rule, in the absence of covenants by the landlord to repair or rebuild, a lease automatically terminates in the event the entire leased premises are destroyed [Civ. Code § 1933(4); Mattal v. American Trust Co. (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 645, 647, 25 Cal. Rptr. 517] . In addition, a tenant may terminate a lease before the end of the term agreed on when the greater part of the leased premises, or that part which was and which the landlord had reason to believe at the time of the lease was the material inducement to the tenant to enter into the contract, perishes from any other cause than the tenant's want of ordinary care [Civ. Code § 1932(2); C.M. Staub Shoe Co. v. Byrne (1915) 169 Cal. 122, 126-127, 145 P. 1032] .

[4] Destruction of Premises as Defense

A general covenant by a tenant to repair or surrender the premises at the end of the term in as good condition as they were at the beginning of the term does not oblige the tenant to rebuild structures that have been completely destroyed [

Realty & Rebuilding Co. v. Rea (1920) 184 Cal. 565, 576, 578, 194 P. 1024 ; Dicker v. West (1958) 164 Cal. App. 2d 55, 60-61, 330 P.2d 106] . Similarly, a general covenant by the landlord to repair is not sufficient to prevent the lease's termination, nor does it obligate the landlord to rebuild structures on the complete destruction of the premises [Mattal v. American Trust Co. (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 645, 647-648, 25 Cal. Rptr. 517 (dictum)].

However, a party may not terminate a lease because of the destruction of the subject matter when the party has assumed the risk of such destruction by his or her cotenants to repair since to do so would be to evade one of the essential elements of the risk allocation intended by the parties' agreement. The result is the same when the lessee has assumed the risk involved by his or her cotenants relieving his or her lessor of all duties of repair and maintenance and undertaking for himself or herself the duty to comply with all laws and orders regarding the premises [Glenn R. Sewell Sheet Metal, Inc. v. Loverde (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 666, 678, 75 Cal. Rptr. 889, 451 P.2d 721] .

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense--Action for Tenant's Breach of Covenant--Illegality of Lease or Covenant

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

By the terms of the _____ [lease or covenant], plaintiff leased the premises to defendant for the purpose of _____ [specify illegal purpose]. Plaintiff therefore has no enforceable rights under the _____ [lease or covenant].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use as an affirmative defense to an action for a tenant's breach of covenant when the premises were leased for an illegal purpose.

[3] Illegality of Lease

A lease, like any contract, must have a legal object [see Civ. Code § 1550(3)] and may be void for illegality [see Grace v. Croninger (1922) 56 Cal. App. 659, 663-664, 206 P. 130] . The illegality may result from purposes unlawful in themselves, such as prostitution or gambling, or from lawful purposes carried on in an unlawful manner, such as when a hotel is leased to be used for apartment purposes in violation of both local and state laws [Shephard v. Lerner (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 746, 749, 6 Cal. Rptr. 433] .

[4] Illegal Purpose of Lease

When use of the premises is limited by the lease to one prohibited by statute or local ordinance, the courts will not enforce it [Becerra v. Hochberg (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 431, 433, 14 Cal. Rptr. 101 ; Shephard v. Lerner (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 746, 749, 6 Cal. Rptr. 433] . If the use is illegal because it is prohibited by a zoning ordinance, for example, and the lessor knows of the lessee's contemplated use, the lessee may rescind the contract on the ground of mutual mistake of law [see Civ. Code § 1689(b)(1), (5); Becerra v. Hochberg (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 431, 433, 14 Cal. Rptr. 101 (dictum)], or on the ground of failure of consideration when the illegality of the use results from the lessor's act or omission [see Civ. Code § 1689(b)(2); Lyke v. Pursley (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 417, 422-423, 340 P.2d 709] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Lessor's Misrepresentation. If the lessor has knowledge of a material fact that before the entering of the lease would render the premises unusable or extremely difficult to use by a prospective lessee, then that failure to disclose would probably be actionable in and of itself as a misrepresentation that the premises were fit for the intended use. By Benjamin Kaplan

However, the fact that a lease that contemplates action by governmental authorities before the property may be used for the purpose specified in it is not illegal [Stockburger v. Dolan (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 313, 316-317, 94 P.2d 33] .

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a notice for use by a landlord to terminate a tenancy for an unspecified or month-to-month term. At least 30 days' written notice is required if the lease agreement does not provide for shorter notice (not less than seven days before expiration of the term) [see Civ. Code § 1946; see also Renner v. Huntington etc. Oil & Gas Co. (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 93, 102, 244 P.2d 895 (30-day notice to quit required to terminate month-to-month tenancy)].

This form may also may be used to terminate a periodic tenancy for a period shorter than month-to-month, in which case the shorter notice period will be used in the form [see Civ. Code § 1946].

Notwithstanding Civ. Code § 1946, an owner must give notice at least 60 days (not 30 days) before the proposed date of termination of a periodic tenancy if the tenant has been living in the dwelling for at least one year [Civ. Code § 1946.1(a)-(c)]. In any case, a tenant must give notice for a period at least as long as the term of the periodic tenancy before the proposed date of termination [Civ. Code § 1946.1(b); for notice of termination by tenant, see § 332.71]. After an owner has given notice pursuant to Civ. Code § 1946.1, a tenant may also give notice of his or her intention to terminate the tenancy under that section, provided that the tenant's notice is for a period at least as long as the term of the periodic tenancy and the proposed date of termination occurs before the owner's proposed date of termination [Civ. Code § 1946.1(e)]. Notice must be sent by certified or registered mail given in the manner prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1162 [Civ. Code § 1946.1(f)].

The 60-day notice requirement for longer term renters does not apply if (1) the dwelling or unit is alienable separate from the title to any other dwelling unit; (2) the owner has contracted to sell the dwelling unit to a bona fide purchaser for value, and has established an escrow with a licensed escrow agent or a licensed real estate broker; (3) the purchaser is a natural person or persons; (4) the notice is given not more than 120 days before escrow is established; (5) notice was not previously given to the tenant in accordance with Civ. Code § 1946.1; and (6) the purchaser in good faith intends to reside in the property for at least one full year after the tenancy's termination [Civ. Code § 1946.1(d)]. These provisions do not affect the authority of a public entity to regulate or monitor the basis for eviction [Civ. Code § 1946.1(g)].

Notwithstanding the unlawful detainer provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a [see Ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Actions], a tenant or subtenant in possession of a rental housing unit at the time the property is sold in foreclosure must be given 60 days' written notice to quit pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1162 before the tenant or subtenant may be removed from the property through unlawful detainer proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161b(a)]. However, this notice requirement does not apply if any party to the note remains in the property as a tenant, subtenant, or occupant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161b(b)]. Section 1161b is in effect until January 1, 2013 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161b(c)].

In 2009, Congress established a 90-day notice requirement in the Protecting Tenants at Foreclosure Act [Pub. L. No. 111-22, S. 896]. This requirement applies to any foreclosure on a federally related mortgage loan or on any dwelling or residential real property after May 20, 2009 [Pub. L. No. 111-22, § 702, 123 Stats. 1660-1661; see also Pub. L. No. 111-22, § 703, 123 Stats. 1661, amending 42 U.S.C. § 1437f(o)(7) (following foreclosure, successor in interest may terminate Section 8 tenancy on 90 days' notice if owner will occupy property as primary residence)]. The Act provides that any immediate successor in interest in the property pursuant to the foreclosure assumes that interest subject to the rights of any bona fide tenant as of the date of the notice of foreclosure, under any bona fide lease entered into before the notice of foreclosure, to occupy the premises until the end of the remaining term of the lease [Pub. L. No. 111-22, § 702(a)(2), 123 Stats. 1661]. However, a successor in interest may terminate a lease effective on the date of sale of the unit to a purchaser who will occupy the unit as a primary residence, subject to the receipt by the tenant of a 90-day notice to vacate [Pub. L. No. 111-22, § 702(a)(2), 123 Stats. 1661]. A lease or tenancy is considered bona fide if (1) the mortgagor or the child, spouse, or parent of the mortgagor under the contract is not the tenant; (2) the lease or tenancy was the result of an arms-length transaction; and (3) the lease or tenancy requires the receipt of rent that is not substantially less than fair market rent for the property or the unit's rent is reduced or subsidized due to a federal, state, or local subsidy [Pub. L. No. 111-22, § 702(b), 123 Stats. 1661]. These provisions are repealed on December 31, 2012 [Pub. L. No. 111-22, sec. 704, 123 Stats. 1662].

PRACTICE TIP:

Drafting a Notice to Terminate. Counsel may determine that it is beneficial not to specify a specific date regarding when the tenancy is terminated (the form in § 332.70[1] states that the tenancy is terminated as of a specific date that is at least 30 days after notice is served). Rather, it may be better to simply state that the lease is terminated "30 days after the date of service on you not counting the date you were served." In addition, the landlord should not state a reason for the termination unless demanded by law because it may be held that you have to prove what you alleged. Lastly, counsel may decide that the notice should specify that the tenant will be liable for costs of suit and, if provided by the lease, attorney's fees. By Benjamin Kaplan

[3] When Tenancy Is Terminated

The tenancy is not terminated on the giving of the notice but on expiration of the notice period [Highland Plastics, Inc. v. Enders (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 7 , 167 Cal. Rptr. 353] . Thus, the obligation to pay rent continues until expiration of the notice terminating the tenancy [Wheeler v. Bainbridge (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 849, 851 , 191 P.2d 134] .

If the tenant holds over after the tenancy is terminated, the tenant is guilty of unlawful detainer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(1)].

[4] Notice

[a] When Notice May Be Given

In the case of a month-to-month tenancy, the notice may be given at any time, and rent is due and payable through the date of termination [see Civ. Code §§ 1946, 1946.1]. The notice need not be given at the beginning of the month or at the beginning of the rental period, but may be given at any time during the month. Rent is prorated accordingly [see Wheeler v. Bainbridge (1948) 84 Cal. App.2d Supp 849, 191 P.2d 134] .

[b] Format and Contents of Notice

Although the notice must be in writing [Civ. Code §§ 1946, 1946.1(a)], no particular format is prescribed. Consequently, the notice may be in a notice format, as set forth in § 332.70[1], or it may be given in simple letter or other written form.

The notice should, however, describe the property to avoid any claim of insufficiency. The complaint for unlawful detainer, which will follow the notice, is expressly required to describe the premises with reasonable certainty [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(a)(3); see Code Civ. Proc. § 455 (made applicable to unlawful detainer proceedings by Code Civ. Proc. § 1177), which provides that in an action for recovery of real property, the property must be described in the complaint with such certainty as to enable an officer, on execution, to identify it]. The property is normally described by stating its address or, in the case of a particular unit on property having a single address or within a building on the property, by stating the unit number as well as the address.

Civ. Code §§ 1946 and 1946.1 do not require that the reason for termination be specified. However, if the tenant is apt to claim retaliatory eviction, the reason for termination may be set forth to show that the eviction is not retaliatory. The reason must also be stated if there is local rent control legislation limiting the grounds on which such tenancies may be terminated.

When a landlord receives funding from a government agency, a notice to quit must include a statement of reasons constituting good cause for termination [Mitchell v. Poole (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 249 Cal. Rptr. 842] .

The optional statement at the end of the first paragraph that proceedings will be commenced may be included if the landlord anticipates that the tenant may not comply with the notice. The final paragraph should be included when the notice is given at such a time that additional rent will be payable before expiration of the notice period. However, unpaid rent accruing before expiration of the notice period is not recoverable in an unlawful detainer proceeding, although damages for the unlawful detention are recoverable. Rent may be recovered in an unlawful detainer proceeding only when the proceeding arises from the tenant's failure to comply with a notice to pay rent or quit given under Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2), discussed in § 333.10[2] [see Saberi v. Bakhtiari (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 509, 512-516, 215 Cal. Rptr. 359] .

There is no express statutory requirement that the notice be signed, but such requirement would appear to be implied by the express requirement of Civ. Code §§ 1946 and 1946.1 that to terminate the tenancy one of the parties must give written notice to the other of his or her intention to terminate a tenancy. Regardless, the better practice is for the landlord, the landlord's agent to whom the tenant has been paying rent, or the landlord's attorney to sign the notice. If the notice is signed by any person other than the landlord, that person's authority to sign should be set forth in the notice [see Baugh v. Consumers Associates, Ltd. (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 672, 674, 50 Cal. Rptr. 822 (holding insufficient a three-day notice to pay rent or quit which, among other things, was given by one other than the lessor and no assignment of the lease was mentioned)].

[c] Effect on Unlawful Detainer Proceeding of Notice Signed by One Other Than Landlord

If the notice is signed by someone other than the landlord, such as an attorney or agent, the landlord may be required in any subsequent proceeding for unlawful detainer to prove that he or she authorized the attorney or agent to serve the notice [see Zumwalt v. Hargrave (1945) 71 Cal. App. 2d 415, 419-420, 162 P.2d 957 (attorney); Earl Orchard Co. v. Fava (1902) 138 Cal. 76, 80, 70 P. 1073 (agent); see also Wayland v. Latham (1928) 89 Cal. App. 55, 66-67, 264 P. 766 (regarding three-day notice to pay rent or quit required by unlawful detainer statutes, notice is sufficient when signed by landlord's agent who was known to tenant to be landlord's agent and to whom tenant had been paying rent)]. If the notice is signed by only one of two or more co-lessors, it may be necessary in any subsequent proceeding in unlawful detainer to prove that service of the notice was authorized or ratified by the co-lessors [see Earl Orchard Co. v. Fava (1902) 138 Cal. 76, 79, 70 P. 1073 (authorization established); Axis Petroleum Co. v. Taylor (1941) 42 Cal. App. 2d 389, 396, 108 P.2d 978 (neither authorization nor ratification established)].

[d] Service of Notice

The notice must be served on the tenant in the manner prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1162 [Civ. Code §§ 1946, 1946.1; for a discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 1162, see § 333.11]. In the case of terminating a month-to-month tenancy, the notice may also be served by sending a copy by certified or registered mail addressed to the tenant [Civ. Code §§ 1946, 1946.1(f)].

Unlike a three-day notice served under Code Civ. Proc. § 1161, there is no requirement that the notice be served on subtenants since there is no default the subtenants could cure [see Four Seas Inv. Corp. v. International Hotel Tenants' Assn. (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 604, 611-612, 146 Cal. Rptr. 531] .

[e] Withdrawal of Notice

Acceptance by the landlord of rent covering any period beyond the notice period may constitute an implied withdrawal of the notice [see Highland Plastics, Inc. v. Enders (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 167 Cal. Rptr. 353 ; see also EDC Associates, Ltd. v. Gutierrez (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 167, 170-171, 200 Cal. Rptr. 333] . To avoid this result the landlord, when accepting a tender of rent that extends beyond the notice period, should notify the tenant that no withdrawal of the notice is intended and promptly refund that portion of the rent paid for days beyond the notice period.

[f] Additional Notices

No additional three-day notice is required to maintain a proceeding for unlawful detainer should the tenant fail to vacate the premises as required by the above notice [see Civ. Code § 791; Hennessy v. Gleason (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 616, 619, 184 P.2d 913 ; La Cava v. Breedlove (1946) 77 Cal. App. 2d 129, 132, 174 P.2d 880] .

[1] FORM Notice to Landlord Terminating Tenancy for Unspecified Term or Month-to-Month Tenancy [Civ. Code §§ 1946, 1946.1]--By Tenant

NOTICE OF TERMINATION OF TENANCY

To: _____ [name of landlord]

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that I/we will vacate the premises known as _____ [describe premises, e.g., street address including apartment number, if any] on or before _____ [date at least 30 days after notice is served], thereby terminating my/our tenancy.

This notice is intended as a _____ [e.g., 30]-day notice terminating my tenancy as required by the provisions of Civil Code Sections 1946 and 1946.1.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

[2] Use of Form

This form is a form of notice for use by a tenant under a tenancy for an unspecified or month-to-month term to terminate the tenancy. Civ. Code § 1946 provides that at least 30 days' written notice is required unless the lease agreement provides for shorter notice (not less than seven days before expiration of term). However, notwithstanding Civ. Code § 1946, a tenant is required to give notice for a period at least as long as the term of the periodic tenancy before the proposed date of termination [Civ. Code § 1946.1(b), (e)].

Notwithstanding the unlawful detainer provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a [see Ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Actions], a tenant or subtenant in possession of a rental housing unit at the time the property is sold in foreclosure must be given 60 days' written notice to quit pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1162 before the tenant or subtenant may be removed from the property through unlawful detainer proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161b(a)]. However, this notice requirement does not apply if any party to the note remains in the property as a tenant, subtenant, or occupant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161b(b)]. Section 1161b is in effect until January 1, 2013 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161b(c)].

In 2009, Congress established a 90-day notice to vacate requirement in the Protecting Tenants at Foreclosure Act [Pub. L. No. 111-22, S. 896]. This requirement applies to any foreclosure on a federally related mortgage loan or on any dwelling or residential real property after May 20, 2009 [Pub. L. No. 111-22, § 702, 123 Stats. 1660-1661; see also Pub. L. No. 111-22, § 703, 123 Stats. 1661, amending 42 U.S.C. § 1437f(o)(7) (following foreclosure, successor in interest may terminate section 8 tenancy on 90 days' notice if owner will occupy property as primary residence)]. The federal provisions are repealed on December 31, 2012 [Pub. L. No. 111 22, § 704, 123 Stats. 1662].

[3] Service of Notice

The notice must be served on the landlord as follows [Civ. Code §§ 1946, 1946.1(f)]:

- In the manner prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1162 [for a discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 1162, see § 333.11]; or

- By sending a copy by certified or registered mail.

Civ. Code § 1946 specifies that notice may be served by sending a copy by certified or registered mail addressed to the landlord or by sending a copy by certified or registered mail addressed to the lessor's agent to whom the lessee has paid the rent for the month prior to the date of the notice or by delivering a copy to the agent personally.

[4] When Tenant Is Guilty of Unlawful Detainer

A tenant continuing in possession after he or she gives notice terminating the tenancy is guilty of unlawful detainer [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(5); for discussion, see § 333.10[2][c]].

[2] Use of Form

This form is a notice for the termination of a lease by a member of a military service [Mil. & Vet. Code § 409; 50 U.S.C.

App. § 535]. For discussion of eligibility requirements, see [7], below.

[3] State Law Termination Provisions

Under Mil. & Vet. Code § 409, any lease covering premises occupied for dwelling, professional, business, agricultural, or similar purposes that was executed by or on the behalf of a person who, after the execution of such lease, entered full-time active duty with the National Guard or United States Military Reserve, may be terminated by notice in writing delivered to the landlord or to the landlord's agent by the tenant at any time following the date of the beginning of the period of military service [Mil. & Vet. Code § 409(a), (b)]. These provisions apply to service members on active service or duty since September 11, 2001. However, the protections apply prospectively from June 20, 2002 (date bill was signed into law) [Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.11]. Dependents of service members are also entitled to these benefits unless the court finds that the dependents' ability to comply with the terms of the obligation has not been materially impaired by the military service of the person on whom the applicants are dependent [Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.5].

[4] Federal Termination Provisions

The Servicemembers Civil Relief Act [50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.] provides for the termination of any lease covering premises occupied or intended to be occupied for residential, professional, business, agricultural, or similar purposes by a servicemember or the servicemember's dependents [50 U.S.C. App. § 535]. The lease must have been executed (1) by or on behalf of a person who, after the lease's execution, entered military service, or (2) by a servicemember who thereafter receives military orders for a permanent change of station or to deploy with a military unit for a period of not less than 90 days [50 U.S.C. App. § 535(b)]. The lessee may terminate the lease at any time after his or her entry into military service or the date of the tenant's military orders for a permanent change of station or deployment. Any such lease may be terminated by notice in writing delivered to the landlord (or his or her grantee) or to the landlord's (or his or her grantee's) agent by the tenant [50 U.S.C. App. § 535(a)].

For purposes of the Act, the term "servicemember" means a member of the armed forces, the commissioned corps of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, and the commissioned corps of the Public Health Service [50 U.S.C. App. § 511(1); see 10 U.S.C. § 101(a)(5)].

[5] Delivery of Notice

The state statute provides that delivery of this notice may be made by mail to the landlord or landlord's agent [Mil. & Vet. Code § 409(b)]. The federal statute specifies that delivery may be made by hand, by private business carrier, or by U.S. mail, return receipt requested [50 U.S.C. App. § 535(c)].

[6] Effective Date of Termination

Under Mil. & Vet. Code § 409, termination of any lease providing for monthly payment of rent will be effective on the last day of the month following notice and not more than 45 days after notice is provided to the lessor [Mil. & Vet. Code § 409(b)]. In the case of all other leases, termination will be effected on the last day of the month following the month in which the notice is delivered or mailed. In that case, any unpaid rent for a period preceding termination will be prorated and any rent paid in advance for a period succeeding termination must be refunded by the landlord [Mil. & Vet. Code § 409(b)]. On application by the landlord before the termination period provided for in the notice, a court may modify or restrict any relief granted under the statute [Mil. & Vet. Code § 409(b)].

Under 50 U.S.C. App. § 535(d)(1), termination of a lease providing for monthly payment of rent will be effective 30 days after the first date on which the next rental payment is due and payable after the date when notice is delivered or mailed. In the case of all other leases, termination will be effected on the last day of the month following the month in which the notice is delivered or mailed. In such cases, any unpaid rent for a period preceding termination will be prorated and any rental paid in advance for a period succeeding termination must be refunded by the landlord or his or her assignee. On application by the landlord to the appropriate court before the termination period provided for in the notice, any relief granted may be subject to such modifications or restrictions as in the opinion of the court justice and equity may in the circumstances require.

[7] Persons Eligible for Benefits

The state law provisions apply to service members on active service or duty since September 11, 2001. The protections apply prospectively from June 20, 2002 (date bill was signed into law) [Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.11]. "Service member" means both of the following [Mil. & Vet. Code § 400(a)]:

- Officers and enlisted members of the National Guard called or ordered into active state service by the Governor pursuant to the provisions of Mil. & Vet. Code § 143 or 146 or into active federal service by the President of the United States pursuant to Title 10 or 32 of the United States Code.

- Reservists of the United States Military Reserve who have been called to full-time active duty.

"Military service" means full-time active state service or full-time active federal service, as defined in the first bulleted item, above, or full-time active duty of a reservist, as defined in the second bulleted item, above, for a period in excess of seven days in any 14-day period. For any service member who has been called to active service or duty since September 11, 2001, to engage in homeland defense against terrorism, his or her days of service before June 20, 2002, must be credited toward this seven-day period [Mil. & Vet. Code § 400(b)].

The federal provisions apply to all of the following:

- Servicemembers who are members of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, or Coast Guard and on active duty [50 U.S.C. App. § 511(2)(A)(i); see 10 U.S.C. § 101(d)(1) ("active duty" defined)].

- National Guard members under a call to active service authorized by the President or the Secretary of Defense for a period of more than 30 consecutive days for purposes of responding to a national emergency declared by the President and supported by federal funds [50 U.S.C. App. § 511(2)(A)(ii)].

- Commissioned officers of the Public Health Service or the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration who are on active service [50 U.S.C. App. § 511(2)(B)].

- U.S. citizens who are serving with the forces of a nation with which the United States is allied in the prosecution of a war or military action [50 U.S.C. App. § 514].

- Persons ordered to report for induction or military service [50 U.S.C. App. § 516].

The federal provisions also apply during any period in which a servicemember is absent from duty on account of sickness, wounds, leave, or other lawful cause [50 U.S.C. App. 511(2)(C)].

Dependents of servicemembers are also entitled to the state and federal benefits unless the court finds that the dependents' ability to comply with the terms of the obligation has not been materially impaired by the military service of the person on whom the applicants are dependent [Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.5; 50 U.S.C. App. § 538].

[8] Jurisdiction

The provisions of the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act apply to the United States, the states and political subdivisions of the states, and all territory subject to the jurisdiction of the United States [50 U.S.C. App. § 512(a)]. The provisions apply to judicial and administrative proceedings commenced in any court or agency in any jurisdiction subject to the Act, with the exception of criminal proceedings [50 U.S.C. App. § 512(b)]. Any application under the Act that is required to be made to a court in which no proceeding has already been commenced may be made to any court that would otherwise have jurisdiction over the matter [50 U.S.C. App. § 512(c)].

[1] FORM Notice to Tenant Terminating Tenancy at Will [Civ. Code § 789]--By Landlord

NOTICE OF TERMINATION OF TENANCY

To: _____ [name of tenant]
_____ [street address and unit number, if any]
_____ [city], California

Tenant in Possession--

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that you must remove yourself from and deliver possession of the premises _____ [described above or known as _____ (street address, unit number, if any, and city), California] to _____ [the undersigned or _____ (name), your landlord or _____ (name), your landlord's authorized agent] on or before _____ [date at least 30 days after notice is served on tenant].

This notice is given in accordance with the provisions of Civil Code Section 789 and its purpose is to terminate your tenancy of the above-described property.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

[2] Use of Form

This form is a notice for use by a landlord to terminate a tenancy at will [see Civ. Code § 789].

Notwithstanding the unlawful detainer provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a [see Ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Actions], a tenant or subtenant in possession of a rental housing unit at the time the property is sold in foreclosure must be given 60 days' written notice to quit pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1162 before the tenant or subtenant may be removed from the property through unlawful detainer proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161b(a)]. However, this notice requirement does not apply if any party to the note remains in the property as a tenant, subtenant, or occupant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161b(b)]. Section1161b is in effect until January 1, 2013 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161b(c)].

In 2009, Congress established a 90-day notice to vacate requirement in the Protecting Tenants at Foreclosure Act [P.L. 111-22, S. 896]. This requirement applies to any foreclosure on a federally related mortgage loan or on any dwelling or residential real property after May 20, 2009 [P.L. 111-22, § 702, 123 Stats. 1660-1661; see also P.L. 111-22, § 703, 123 Stats. 1661, amending 42 U.S.C. § 1437f(o)(7) (following foreclosure, successor in interest may terminate Section 8 tenancy on 90 days' notice if owner will occupy property as primary residence)]. The federal provisions are repealed on December 31, 2012 [P.L. 111 22, § 704, 123 Stats. 1662].

[3] Format of Notice

The notice must be in writing and direct the tenant to remove from the premises within a period of not less than 30 days, to be specified in the notice [Civ. Code § 789]. Otherwise, no particular format is prescribed. Consequently, the notice may be in a notice format, as set forth above, or it may be given in simple letter or other written form.

There is no express statutory requirement that the notice be signed, but this requirement might be implied by the express requirement of Civ. Code § 789 that the notice be given by the landlord in writing. Regardless, the better practice is for the landlord, the landlord's authorized agent, or the landlord's attorney to sign the notice. If the notice is signed by any person other than the landlord, that person's authority to sign should be set forth in the notice [see Baugh v. Consumers Associates, Ltd. (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 672, 674, 50 Cal. Rptr. 822 (holding insufficient a three-day notice to pay rent or quit which, among other things, was given by one other than the landlord and no assignment of the lease was mentioned)].

[4] Service of Notice

The notice may be served on the tenant in the manner prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1162 [Civ. Code § 789; for a discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 1162, see § 333.11].

[5] Three-Day Notice to Quit and 30-Day Notice to Terminate

Civ. Code § 789 provides that a tenancy at will, however created, may be terminated by the landlord's giving the tenant written notice, served as prescribed in Code Civ. Proc. § 1162, to remove from the premises within a period of not less than 30 days, to be specified in the notice. Code Civ. Proc. § 1161 provides in effect that a tenant at will who holds over after termination of the tenancy as prescribed in the Civil Code is guilty of unlawful detainer [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(1)]. Under Civ. Code § 789 and Code Civ. Proc. § 1161, it appears that the only notice required as a condition precedent to a proceeding for unlawful detainer would be the 30-day notice under Civ. Code § 789 to terminate the tenancy [see Covina Manor, Inc. v. Hatch (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 790, 284 P.2d 580 (mentioning only above two code sections in discussing termination of tenancy at will)].

However, the California Supreme Court has held that the lessor may not maintain a proceeding in unlawful detainer against a tenant at will without giving both the 30 days' notice required by Civ. Code § 789 and later the three days' notice in writing to surrender possession as required by Civ. Code § 791. The Court further held that service of both notices must be averred in the complaint for unlawful detainer [Martin v. Splivalo (1880) 56 Cal. 128, 129-130 (but also holding that a lessor may maintain an action for ejectment without the additional three-day notice)]. The provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(1) as they existed when Martin was decided in 1880 and as they appear today with regard to tenancies at will have not changed, and Civ. Code § 789 has not been amended. Civ. Code § 791 was amended in 1931 to add the provision that the three-days' notice is not required when the hiring of real property is for a term not specified by the parties and when the hiring was terminated under and in accordance with Civ. Code § 1946 [see Historical Note to Civ. Code § 791 in West's Annotated California Codes]. A court of appeal, distinguishing Martin on the ground of the 1931 amendment of Civ. Code § 791, has expressly held that no three-days' notice is required in addition to the 30-days' notice terminating a month-to-month tenancy under Civ. Code § 1946 as a condition precedent to suing for unlawful detainer [Hennessy v. Gleason (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 616, 619-620, 184 P.2d 913 ; see Palmer v. Zeis (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 859, 151 P.2d 323 (reaching same result)].

Although a tenancy at will is a tenancy for an unspecified term and would therefore seem to come within the provisions of Civ. Code § 1946, Civ. Code § 789 expressly covers the manner of terminating tenancies at will, and Civ. Code § 791 does not make an exception for tenancies terminated under Civ. Code § 789. Thus, the rule of Martin appears to continue to apply and to require a three-day notice under Civ. Code § 791 in addition to the 30-day notice under Civ. Code § 789 as a condition precedent to suing for unlawful detainer. However, one court of appeal, without mentioning Martin or any other case, has held that the three-day notice need not be given in addition to the 30-day notice [Alves v. Rodrigues (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 333, 337, 190 P.2d 649 (unlawful detainer proceeding involving tenancy at will resulting from the tenant's holding over after expiration of an oral lease for one year; landlord had given both notices, but court said that the subsequent three-day notice was unnecessary); see Rishwain v. Smith (1947) 77 Cal. App. 2d 524, 526, 175 P.2d 555 (only 30-day notice given before suing in unlawful detainer; court did not discuss issue of whether three-day notice was required)].

Although service of the additional three-day notice would seem superfluous, it is suggested that, because of the apparent conflict between Martin (a Supreme Court case) and Alves (a court of appeal case), a landlord intending to sue a tenant at will for unlawful detainer if possession is not surrendered should follow the procedure set out in Martin until such time as the Supreme Court overrules Martin or otherwise holds that the three-day notice is not required.

PRACTICE TIP:

Take the More Conservative Approach. Because of the strict construction of statutes and laws against the landlord plaintiff in unlawful detainer actions, it is best to take the more conservative approach, and give the additional notice, particularly when it does not involve the passage of too much additional time.
By Benjamin Kaplan

[6] Examples of Tenancies Constituting Tenancy at Will

A person who enters on land with the owner's permission under a void parol contract, or under a void lease, or pending the unexecuted negotiations for a written lease, is considered a tenancy at will [Carteri v. Roberts (1903) 140 Cal. 164, 167, 73 P. 818 ; Covina Manor, Inc. v. Hatch (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 790, 284 P.2d 580] .

A contract for the sale of real property that provides that the purchaser should give the seller free and full use of the premises from the time title passes until the last day specified in a 90-day written notice to move given by the purchaser should be construed as a tenancy at will terminable on condition subsequent, that is, the purchaser's giving the seller 90-day written notice to move [First & C Corp. v. Wencke (1967) 253 Cal. App. 2d 719, 722-723, 61 Cal. Rptr. 531] .

The purchaser of land under an executory or void land sales contract constitutes a tenant at will [Turney v. Collins (1941) 48 Cal. App. 2d 381, 391, 119 P.2d 954] . This case also held that notice to a tenant at will to vacate the premises forthwith is ineffective and cancels itself out when, on one hand, the notice purported to demand possession and, on other hand, the notice demanded a specific sum if defendant continued in possession [Turney v. Collins (1941) 48 Cal. App. 2d 381, 392, 119 P.2d 954] .

The payment and acceptance of periodic rent converts a tenancy at will into a periodic tenancy [Tracy v. Donovan (1918) 37 Cal. App. 350, 351-352, 174 P. 113] .

The permissive occupation of realty when no rent is reserved or paid and no time is agreed on to limit the occupation constitutes a tenancy at will [Covina Manor, Inc. v. Hatch (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 790, 284 P.2d 580] .

[1] FORM Notice to Lessee Terminating Lease in Accordance With Option Retained Under Written Lease--By Lessor

NOTICE OF TERMINATION OF TENANCY

To: _____ [name of lessee]
_____ [street address and unit number, if any]
_____ [city], California
Tenant in Possession--

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that [_____ (specify condition, if any, triggering the earlier termination of the lease, e.g., the premises _____ (described above or known as _____(street address, unit number, if any, and city), California) were sold on _____ (date), and, therefore)], pursuant to the election reserved to the [undersigned] Lessor _____ [name] by Paragraph _____ of the lease dated _____, under which you hold possession of the _____ [premises or above-described premises or the premises known as _____ (street address, unit number, if any, and city), California], the Lessor has elected to and hereby does terminate the lease as of _____ [_____ (date) or _____ days after service on you of this notice]. Consequently, you must deliver up possession of the premises to _____ [the undersigned or _____ (name), your lessor or _____(name), your Lessor's authorized agent] on or before _____ [that date or expiration of the _____-day period].

[Rent in the amount of $_____ is due and payable through the date your tenancy is terminated by this notice.]
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a lessor to terminate a lease in accordance with the provisions for termination set forth in the lease. The notice is designed for use when a written lease for a fixed term reserves a right in the lessor to prematurely terminate the lease either on the happening of a specified condition, for example, on the sale of the property, or on the giving of a specified number of days' notice to the lessee.

The final paragraph may be included if the notice is given at such a time that additional rent will be payable before expiration of the notice period.

[3] Three-Day Notice

It is not clear from the cases whether an additional three-day notice to quit is required to render the tenant guilty of unlawful detainer for holding over. In Samuels v. Singer (1934) 1 Cal. App. 2d 545, 549-550, 36 P.2d 1098 , itwas held under Civ. Code §§ 791, 793 that such a notice is required, but that no additional notice is required to maintain an action for ejectment [see also Chinese Hosp. Foundation Fund v. Patterson (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 627, 631-633, 81 Cal. Rptr. 795 (treating unlawful detainer proceeding as action for ejectment and holding lessor was able to maintain action in ejectment without terminating lease when so provided in lease)]. For a form of the three-day notice to quit that may be used, see § 332.76. For a discussion and forms for use in actions for ejectment, see Ch. 241, Ejectment .

On the other hand, it has been held that no additional three-day notice is required to maintain a proceeding in unlawful detainer if the lease is terminated in accordance with a lease provision that the lessee will quit the premises on the lessor's giving a notice of termination as provided in the lease [Buhman v. Nickels & Brown Bros. (1905) 1 Cal. App. 266, 269, 82 P. 85] , or if the notice of termination under the lease's terms was for a breach of covenant that could not be undone [Hignell v. Gebala (1949) 90 Cal. App. 2d 61, 67-68, 202 P.2d 378] .

Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a landlord or lessor when the tenant or lessee has defaulted in the payment of rent. This form is used to demand payment of the rent due and to inform the tenant or lessee that if the amount demanded is not paid, possession of the premises will be surrendered [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2)].

The purpose of the notice is to give the tenant or subtenant in possession an opportunity to pay the rent and thereby retain possession of the premises [Fifth & Broadway Partnership v. Kimny, Inc. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 195, 202, 162 Cal. Rptr. 271] .

The last paragraph of the form should be included if the lessor elects to declare the lease forfeited if payment is not made within the three-day period [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(a)] or possession is not surrendered. If payment is made, the declaration of forfeiture is nullified and the lease remains in effect [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1161(3), 1161.5].

PRACTICE TIP:

Use Caution When Drafting Three-Day Notices. Drafting and serving three-day notices must be done very carefully. The amount of rent claimed may not be overstated, and other breaches must be accurately and completely stated. Notice problems lead to loss of unlawful detainer actions--and to loss of clients.

In addition, counsel should make sure that the amount of rent demanded in any subsequent complaint is the same as that demanded in the three-day notice. By Myron Moskovitz

[3] Format and Contents of Notice

The notice must be in writing [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2)]. Otherwise, no particular format is prescribed. Consequently, the notice may be in a notice format, as set forth above, or it may be given in simple letter or other written form.

The notice must demand payment of the rent due or, in the alternative, possession of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2)]. It must also state no more than the exact amount of rent due [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2); Werner v. Sargeant (1953) 121 Cal. App. 2d 833, 837, 264 P.2d 217] . It may also include a demand for interest on the unpaid rent if interest is provided for in the lease [Canal-Randolph Anaheim, Inc. v. Wilkoski (1978) 78 Cal. App. 3d 477, 492, 144 Cal. Rptr. 474] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Including Interest in Notice. However, unless the amount of interest is sizable, and probably only if it is designated as additional rent, it is not good practice to include these amounts in the notice. If the tenant pays the rent demanded in the three-day period, the landlord can thereafter send another notice demanding the interest. By Benjamin Kaplan

A notice to pay rent or quit that overstates the rent due is ineffective and will not support an unlawful detainer proceeding [Nourafchan v. Miner (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 746, 753, 215 Cal. Rptr. 450 ; Ernst Enterprises, Inc. v. Sun Valley Gasoline, Inc. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 355, 359, 188 Cal. Rptr. 641] . A fortiori, a notice that fails to state any amount of rent due and is attached to the complaint for unlawful detainer, will not sustain a judgment for unlawful detainer [Baugh v. Consumers Associates, Ltd. (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 672, 674-675, 50 Cal. Rptr. 822 (notice was also defective in that it was given by one other than lessor and no assignment of lease was stated)]. But a notice demanding payment of rent due on a specified date in an amount that is calculable from information known to the lessee and wrongfully withheld from the lessor satisfies the requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2) that the notice state the amount of rent due [Valov v. Tank (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 867, 871-874, 214 Cal. Rptr. 546 (lease of farmland provided rent was to be 20 percent of gross crop and required lessee to provide lessor with figures necessary to calculate amount and lessee failed to do so)].

A three-day notice must be served within one year after the rent "becomes due" [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2)]. However, a notice demanding payment of rents due within one year is not automatically invalidated because the notice also demands rent due more than a year before the notice [Levitz Furniture Co. v. Wingtip Communications, Inc. (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1035, 1041, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 656] .

Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2) also requires that the notice set forth the name, telephone number, and address of the person to whom the rent payment is to be made. If the payment may be made personally, the notice must state the usual days and hours that person will be available to receive the payment or the number of an account and the name and street address of a financial institution into which the rental payment may be made (provided that the institution is located within five miles of the rental property). If the address for payment does not allow for personal delivery, it will be conclusively presumed that on the mailing of any rent or notice to the owner by the tenant to the name and address provided, the notice or rent is deemed received by the owner on the date posted, if the tenant can show proof of mailing to the name and address provided by the owner. If an electronic funds transfer procedure has been previously established, the notice must state that payment may be made pursuant to that procedure.

Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2) does not expressly require that the notice be signed, but the better practice is to sign it. Nevertheless, it has been held that an undated, unsigned notice was sufficient when [Cavanaugh v. High (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 714, 721, 6 Cal. Rptr. 525] :

- The notice was personally served by the landlord on the tenant;

- Service of the notice on a specified date in person was alleged in the complaint and admitted in the answer; and

- The parties' joint pretrial statement so stated.

This case also held that any defect in the notice was rendered inconsequential by defendant's continuous insistence that there was no lease and that notice to pay or quit would not lie [Cavanaugh v. High (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 714, 721, 6 Cal. Rptr. 525] .

[4] Use of Estimates for Commercial Property

There are special rules allowing the use of estimates of rent due in three-day notices for commercial property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161.1(a)]. They are applicable when the exact amount of rent due cannot be calculated because, for instance, it depends on sales information that the tenant has not given to the landlord. The term "commercial property" means all real property in California except mobilehomes [see Civ. Code § 798.3 ("mobilehome" defined)], recreational vehicles [see Civ. Code § 799.29 ("recreational vehicle" defined)], or dwelling units subject to Civ. Code § 1940 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161.1(d)].

For commercial property, if the amount stated in the three-day notice is clearly identified by the notice as an estimate and the amount claimed is not in fact correct, but it is determined at the trial or by other judicial determination that rent was owing and the amount claimed in the notice was reasonable, the tenant will be subject to a judgment for possession and the actual amount of rent and other sums found to be due [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161.1(a)].

However, if on receiving a notice claiming an estimated amount, the tenant tenders to the landlord within the time required by the notice for payment an amount that the tenant reasonably estimates to be due, and it is determined at trial that the amount of rent due was the amount tendered by the tenant or a lesser amount, the tenant is deemed the prevailing party for all purposes. If the court determines that the amount tendered by the tenant was less than the amount due, but was reasonably estimated nevertheless, the tenant will retain the right to possession if, within five days of the effective date of the judgment, he or she pays the landlord the amount previously tendered if it was not previously accepted, the difference between the amount tendered and the amount determined by the court to be due, and any other sums as ordered by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161.1(a)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 1161.1(a) uses conditional phraseology when speaking of a tender by the tenant. Accordingly, although a tenant may act to protect his or her right to possession by tendering a reasonable estimate of the rent due, the failure to do so does not relieve the landlord of complying with the obligations to provide a notice that reasonably estimates the amounts owed [WDT-Winchester v. Nilsson (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 516, 533-534, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 511] .

There is a presumption affecting the burden of proof that the amount of rent claimed or tendered is reasonably estimated if, in relation to the amount determined to be due at the trial or by other judicial determination of that issue, the amount claimed or tendered was no more than 20 percent more or less than the amount determined to be due. However, if the rent due is contingent on information primarily within the knowledge of one party to the lease and that information has not been furnished to, or has not accurately been furnished to the other party, the court must consider that fact in determining the reasonableness of the amount of rent claimed or tendered [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161.1(e)]. In addition, even after a judicial finding that the estimated amount exceeds the 20 percent margin, an estimate may nevertheless be deemed a reasonable estimate for purposes of the statute, depending on the facts of the case [WDT-Winchester v. Nilsson (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 516, 531, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 511] .

In addition, in an unlawful detainer action, the landlord's failure to request the trial court to adjudicate the issue of the reasonablness of the amount of rent demanded (under Code Civ. Proc. § 1161.1) precluded the landlord from having that issue determined on appeal [Cinnamon Square Shopping Center v. Meadowlark Enterprises (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1837, 1844, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 697] .

[5] Service of Notice

The notice must be served on the tenant and any subtenant in actual occupation of the premises [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2)]. Failure to serve the three-day notice on persons recognized as tenants in possession precludes judgment against them in an unlawful detainer proceeding [Kwok v. Bergren (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 596, 600, 181 Cal. Rptr. 795] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Prejudgment Claim of Right to Possession. It should be noted that the prejudgment claim of right to possession statutes may effect this requirement, although the statutes are not clear on this point [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 415.46, 1174.3]. By Benjamin Kaplan

The notice may be served at any time within one year after the rent became due [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2); see Fifth & Broadway Partnership v. Kimny, Inc. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 195, 202, 162 Cal. Rptr. 271] . A landlord who waits over one year to sue for unpaid rent is relegated to an ordinary breach of contract action, which results only in a money judgment without restitution of the demised property [Cal-American Income Property Fund IV v. Ho (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 583, 585, 207 Cal. Rptr. 532] .

The notice must be served in the manner prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1162 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1162; for a discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 1162, see § 333.11]. When service of the notice is made by posting and mailing, the tenant has three days from receiving the notice in the mail to pay rent [Davidson v. Quinn (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 9, 11-14 , 188 Cal. Rptr. 421] , although this rule may not be determinative as one cannot generally tell when the notice was received.

[6] Recovery of Pretermination Rent

Pretermination rent is recoverable in an unlawful detainer proceeding when the proceeding is based only on the failure to comply with a three-day notice to pay rent or quit [Saberi v. Bakhtiari (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 509, 512-516, 215 Cal. Rptr. 359] .

_____ [typed name]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a landlord or lessor when the tenant or lessee has breached a covenant or condition of the lease that the lessee can still perform. The purpose of the notice is to demand performance of the condition or covenant or, in the alternative, the surrender of the premises [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3)]. For a form of notice for use when the covenant that has been breached can no longer be performed, and the breach is therefore incurable, see § 332.76.

[3] Overlap Between Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3) and (4)

Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3) and (4) may both apply when the breach consists of assigning, subletting, or waste. Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3) requires the three-day notice to be in the alternative (to perform or to quit) if the covenant can yet be performed. Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(4), on the other hand, simply provides that the breach terminates the lease and the landlord is, on service of a three days' notice to quit, entitled to possession without regard to whether the covenant can yet be performed. Apparently, the landlord may proceed under either or both of these provisions to the extent that each provision applies. For example, not every breach of a lease provision regarding repairs will constitute waste.

[4] Format and Contents of Notice

The notice must be in writing [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3)]. Otherwise, no particular format is prescribed. Consequently, the notice may be in a notice format, as set forth above, or it may be given in simple letter or other written form.

If the covenant or condition can yet be performed, the notice must demand its performance or, in the alternative, possession of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3)].

The last paragraph of the form should be included if the lessor elects to declare the lease forfeited if the covenant or condition is not performed within the three-day period. If the covenant or condition is performed, the declaration of forfeiture is nullified and the lease remains in effect [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1161(3), 1161.5].

Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3) does not expressly require that the notice be signed, but the better practice is to sign it.

[5] Service of Notice

The notice must be served on the tenant and any subtenant in actual occupation of the premises [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3). Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3), however, unlike Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2)], imposes no time limit on when the notice must be served. Consequently, the ordinary statute of limitation applies [Cal-American Income Property Fund IV v. Ho (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 583, 585, 207 Cal. Rptr. 532] .

The notice must be served in the manner prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1162 [for a discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 1162, see § 333.11].

[6] Damages Recoverable

Unpaid rent accruing before expiration of the notice period may be recovered in an unlawful detainer proceeding only when the proceeding arises from the tenant's failure to comply with a three-day notice under Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2) to pay rent or quit [see Saberi v. Bakhtiari (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 509, 512-516, 215 Cal. Rptr. 359] . Other unpaid money obligations required as part of the lessee's consideration for the lease, such as the lessee's covenant to pay real estate taxes or a proportionate share of the cost of maintaining common areas that are treated differently than rent in the lease, however, may be recovered as damages under Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(b) in an unlawful detainer based on a three-day notice under Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3) to perform the covenant or quit the premises [see Cal-American Income Property Fund IV v. Ho (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 583, 585-586, 207 Cal. Rptr. 532] .

[7] Forfeitures

A condition involving a forfeiture must be strictly interpreted against the party for whose benefit it is created [Civ. Code § 1442]. However, forfeitures for the breach of a covenant or condition in a lease are not favored by the courts and are enforced only when it is shown that the clear and manifest intention of the parties was to provide for forfeiture in the event of a breach [McNeece v. Wood (1928) 204 Cal. 280, 284, 267 P. 877] .

NOTICE TO QUIT

To: _____ [name of tenant]
_____ [street address and unit number, if any]
_____ [city], California
Tenant in Possession--

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that, within three days after service on you of this notice, you must quit and surrender possession of the premises _____ [described above or known as _____(street address, unit number, if any, and city), California] to _____ [the undersigned or (name), your _____ (landlord or lessor) or _____ (name), your _____ (landlord's or lessor's) authorized agent]. If you fail to vacate and surrender possession of the premises within the three-day period, legal proceedings will be commenced against you to recover possession and to recover a judgment for damages for your unlawful detention of the premises.

[Your tenancy is being terminated for the reason(s) that _____ (specify, e.g., you have, in violation of your covenant not to do so, sublet [a portion of] the demised premises to one _____ [name])].

[FURTHER NOTICE IS GIVEN that, because _____(specify, e.g., you have breached a covenant of the lease and the breach is incurable), _____ (the undersigned or your _____ [lessor or landlord]) has elected to declare forfeited the _____ (lease or rental agreement) under which you hold possession of the premises.]
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a landlord or lessor to demand surrender of the possession of real property when the tenant or lessee:

- Has breached a covenant or condition of the lease and the breach is incurable [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3)];

- Has assigned the lease or committed waste on the demised premises, contrary to the lease's conditions or covenants [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3), (4)];

- Is maintaining, committing, or permitting the maintenance or commission of a nuisance on the demised premises [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(4)];

- Is using the demised premises for an unlawful purpose [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(4)]; or

- Has committed an act of domestic violence, sexual assault, or stalking against another tenant or subtenant who is no longer residing at the premises [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(4) (repealed effective 1/1/12)].

With appropriate modifications, this form may also be used as a three-day notice to quit when a right to reenter under the lease has accrued [see Civ. Code § 791].

[3] Format and Contents of Notice

The notice must be in writing [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3)]. Otherwise, no particular format is prescribed. Consequently, the notice may be in a notice format, as set forth above, or it maybe given in simple letter or other form.

If the covenant or condition can yet be performed, the notice must demand its performance or, in the alternative, possession of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3); see § 332.75].

When a broken covenant is not capable of performance, an alternative form of notice to the tenant to perform the covenant or surrender possession is not required. However, written demand to surrender possession within three days is required as a condition precedent to a proceeding for unlawful detainer [Schnittger v. Rose (1903) 139 Cal. 656, 660-663, 73 P. 449 ; Salton Community Services Dist. v. Southard (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 526, 529, 64 Cal. Rptr. 246 ; Zucco v. Farullo (1918) 37 Cal. App. 562, 567, 174 P. 929] .

The last paragraph of the form should be included if the lessor elects to declare the lease or rental agreement forfeited [ see Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(a)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3), (4) do not expressly require that the notice be signed, but the better practice is to sign it.

[4] Service of Notice

If the notice is given under Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3), it must be served on the tenant and any subtenant in actual occupation of the premises [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3)]. If the notice is given under Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(4), it must be served on the person or persons in possession of the premises [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(4)].

The notice must be served in the manner prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1162 [for a discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 1162, see § 333.11].

[5] Waste

When a tenant has committed waste, a notice to quit is not required to demand performance of the covenants against committing waste because Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(4) provides that a tenant committing waste on the demised premises contrary to conditions and covenants of lease thereby terminates the lease [Zucco v. Farullo (1918) 37 Cal. App. 562, 567-568, 174 P. 929] .

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by the purchaser of property at one of the described sales to demand surrender of possession from a former owner who is holding over after the sale or from an occupant claiming a right to possession under a former owner [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a(b)]. By appropriately changing the notice period, the above notice may also be used when the property consists of a rental housing unit rented or leased by a tenant or subtenant on a week-to-week, month-to-month, or other interval or for a fixed period of time. In such case, however, the period of notice must be equal to the term of the hiring itself, but not exceeding 30 days [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a(c); see § 333.10[10]].

PRACTICE TIP:
Rent Control Ordinances. WARNING! A tenant in possession may be protected from eviction by local rent control ordinances. By Benjamin Kaplan

[3] Format and Contents of Notice

The notice must be in writing [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a(b)]. Otherwise, no particular format is prescribed. Consequently, the notice may be in a notice format, as set forth above, or it may be given in simple letter or other written form.

If the property is subject to local legislation limiting the grounds on which tenancies may be terminated, the notice should include a statement showing that the eviction is authorized under that legislation [see Gross v. Superior Court (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 265, 271, 217 Cal. Rptr. 284 (holding Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a does not preempt local rent stabilization ordinance limiting grounds for eviction)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a(b) does not expressly require that the notice be signed, but the better practice is to sign it.

[4] Service of Notice

The notice must be served on the person holding over and continuing in possession of the property and on any subtenant in actual occupation of the premises [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a(b)]. The notice is required to be served in the manner prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1162 [for a discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 1162, see § 333.11].

[5] Holding Over After Notice to Quit: Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a(b), (c)

The following are all subject to an eviction by a proceeding in unlawful detainer [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a(b)(1)-(4)]:

- A judgment debtor or person claiming under a judgment debtor who holds over and continues in possession of the property after an execution sale and the service of a three-day notice to quit;

- A mortgagor, or person claiming under a mortgagor, who holds over and continues in possession of the property after a foreclosure sale and the service of a three-day notice to quit;

- A trustor, or person claiming under a trustor, who holds over and continues in possession of the property after a sale of the property under a power of sale contained in a trust deed and the service of a three-day notice to quit;

- A seller, or person claiming under a seller, who holds over and continues in possession of the property after the sale and the service of a three-day notice to quit; and

In addition, the owner of a mobilehome or person claiming under the owner after a sale in accordance with Health & Safety Code § 18037.5under the default provisions of a conditional sale contract or security agreement and the service of a three-day notice to quit is subject to an eviction by a proceeding in unlawful detainer [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a(b)(5)].

Notwithstanding the above, a tenant or subtenant in possession of a rental housing unit, as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a(d), which has been sold by reason of causes enumerated in Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a(b), who rents or leases a unit on a periodic basis or for a fixed period of time is required to be given a notice to quit under Code Civ. Proc. § 1162 at least as long as the term of the hiring itself but not exceeding 30 days before the tenant or subtenant may be removed therefrom by a proceeding in unlawful detainer [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a(c)].

[Rent in the amount of $_____ is due and payable through the end of the 60-day period.]

This notice is given in compliance with California Civil Code §§ 798.55-798.57.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

[Owner or authorized agent or representative]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by the management of a mobilehome park to notify a homeowner of management's intention not to renew a tenancy or to terminate a tenancy in a mobilehome park [see Civ. Code § 798.55(b)]. With appropriate modifications, it may also be used by a homeowner to give management the required 60-day notice before vacating his or her tenancy [see Civ. Code § 798.59].

[3] 60-Day Notice of Intention Not to Renew or to Terminate Tenancy

[a] Statutory Requirement

The management of a mobilehome park may not terminate or refuse to renew a tenancy, except for a reason specified in Civ. Code §§ 798.55- 798.61 and on notice to the homeowner to remove the mobilehome from the park within a period of not less than 60 days [Civ. Code § 798.55(b); for further discussion of tenancies in mobilehome parks, see § 333.12[7]].

[b] Format and Contents of Notice

The notice must be in writing and must direct the homeowner to sell or remove the mobilehome from the park, at the homeowner's election, within a period of not less than 60 days, which period must be specified in the notice [Civ. Code § 798.55(b)].

The notice of termination must set forth the reason relied on by management for the termination with specific facts to permit determination of the date, place, witnesses, and circumstances concerning the reason. Neither a reference to Civ. Code § 798.56 nor to one of its subdivisions nor a recital of the language of Civ. Code §§ 798.55-798.61 will constitute compliance with this requirement [Civ. Code § 798.57].

Permissible reasons for terminating a tenancy are listed in Civ. Code § 798.56.

Civ. Code § 798.55(b) does not expressly require that the notice be signed, but the better practice is to sign it.

[4] Service of Notice

The 60-day notice must be given to the homeowner in the manner prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1162 [Civ. Code § 798.55(b); for a discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 1162, see § 333.11].

A copy of the 60-day notice must also be sent to the legal owner, as defined in Health & Safety Code § 18005.8, to each junior lienholder, as defined in Health & Safety Code § 18005.3, and to the registered owner of the mobilehome, if other than the homeowner, by United States mail within 10 days after notice to the homeowner. The copy may be sent by regular mail or by certified or registered mail with return receipt requested. If the homeowner has not paid the rent due within three days after notice to the homeowner and the first notice was not sent by certified or registered mail with return receipt requested, a copy of the notice must again be sent to the legal owner, to the junior lienholder, and to the registered owner, by certified or registered mail with return receipt requested within 10 days after notice to the homeowner. Copies of the notice must be addressed to the legal owner, to each junior lienholder, and to the registered owner at their addresses, as set forth in the registration card specified in Health & Safety Code § 18091.5 [Civ. Code § 798.55(b)].

[5] Three-Day Notice to Pay Rent or Utility or Incidental Charges or to Vacate

When the reason for termination is nonpayment of rent, utility charges, or reasonable incidental service charges, the amount due must have been unpaid for at least five days from its due date, and the homeowner must be given a three-day written notice after that five-day period to pay the amount due or to vacate the tenancy [see § 332.74 for a form that may be adapted for this use]. The five-day period does not include the date payment is due [Civ. Code § 798.56(e)(1)].

The three-day notice must be given in the manner prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1162 and may be given at the same time as the 60 days' notice required for termination of the tenancy [Civ. Code § 798.56(e)(1); see Palmer v. Agee (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 377, 384-386, 150 Cal. Rptr. 841 (involving predecessor statute, court held that 60-day notice provision is to exclusively apply to proceedings for termination of mobilehome tenancies for nonpayment of rent and that summary proceedings of unlawful detainer are not applicable for terminating mobilehome tenancies)]. A copy of the notice must also be sent to the persons or entities described in Civ. Code § 798.55(b) within 10 days after notice is delivered to the homeowner [Civ. Code § 798.56(e)(1)].

The three-day notice must contain the following statement printed in at least 12-point boldface type at the top of the notice, with the appropriate number written in the blank [Civ. Code § 798.56(e)(1)]:

> Warning:
> This notice is the (insert number) three-day notice for nonpayment of rent, utility charges, or other reasonable incidental services that has been served upon you in the last 12 months. Pursuant to Civil Code Section 798.56(e)(5), if you have been given a three-day notice to either pay rent, utility charges, or other reasonable incidental services or to vacate your tenancy on three or more occasions within a 12-month period, management is not required to give you a further three-day period to pay rent or vacate the tenancy before your tenancy can be terminated.

The homeowner remains liable for all payments due until the time the tenancy is vacated. Payment by either the homeowner within the three-day period or on behalf of the homeowner by the legal owner, a junior lienholder, or the registered owner if other than the homeowner before expiration of 30 calendar days following the mailing to them of the 60-day notice required by Civ. Code § 798.55(b) cures the default with regard to the payment [Civ. Code § 798.56(e)(2), (6)]. But a cure in this manner of a default of rent, utility charges, or reasonable incidental service charges by the legal owner, a junior lienholder, or theregistered owner, if other than the homeowner, may not be exercised more than twice during a 12-month period [Civ. Code § 798.56(e)(6)(B)]. If the homeowner has been given a three-day notice to pay the amount due or to vacate the tenancy on three or more occasions during the preceding 12-month period, and each notice included the warning statement set forth above [see Civ. Code § 798.56(e)(1)], no written three-day notice is required in the case of a subsequent nonpayment of rent, utility charges, or reasonable incidental service charges [Civ. Code § 798.56(e)(5)]. However, in that situation, the homeowner must still be given a 60-day notice to remove the mobilehome, with copies given to the legal owner, any junior lienholder, and the registered owner [Civ. Code § 798.56(e)(5)]. Under certain conditions, the default may then be cured by the legal owner, a junior lienholder, or the registered owner [see Civ. Code § 798.56(e)(6)].

[6] Additional Notices When Termination Is for Change of Use of Park

When the reason for terminating the tenancy is a change of the use of the park or any part of it, additional pretermination notices must be given in accordance with Civ. Code § 798.56(g).

[7] Termination to Make Site Available to Mobilehome Purchaser Prohibited

A tenancy is not permitted to be terminated for the purpose of making a homeowner's site available for a person who purchased or proposes to purchase, or rents or proposes to rent, a mobilehome from the mobilehome park owner or the owner's agent [Civ. Code § 798.58].

[8] Unlawful Detainer, Forcible Entry, and Forcible Detainer

Except as otherwise provided in Civ. Code §§ 798.55-798.61, the provisions of these sections do not affect any rights or proceedings set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1159 et seq. (unlawful detainer, forcible entry, and forcible detainer) [Civ. Code § 798.60].

Code § 799.30*] ("recreational vehicle park" defined) to give notice of terminating a tenancy in the park [Civ. Code § 799.66]. The form should be used when management wants to terminate or refuse to renew a "tenant's" [see [3], below, for definition of "tenant"] occupancy for a reason other than nonpayment of rent [Civ. Code § 799.66; termination of a tenancy for nonpayment of rent or other charges is covered under Civ. Code § 799.65]. The notice need not state the cause for termination, but must provide at least 30 days' notice of termination [Civ. Code § 799.66].

For a form of 72-hour notice to a "defaulting occupant" [see Civ. Code §§ 799.22, 799.55-799.59] to remove his or her recreational vehicle from a recreational vehicle park, see § 332.80.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by an owner or manager of a recreational vehicle park to notify a "defaulting occupant" [see [3], below] to remove his or her recreational vehicle from the premises within 72 hours after receiving the notice [see Civ. Code § 799.57].

The notice is a prerequisite to the right of the park's owner or manager to have the defaulting occupant's recreational vehicle removed from the lot that is the subject of the registration agreement between the park and the occupant [Civ. Code § 799.55]. The rules governing notice to the city police or county sheriff, the removal of the occupants from the vehicle, the care required in removing the vehicle, and the lien of the park's owner or manager on the vehicle and its contents for proper charges due from a defaulting occupant are set forth in Civ. Code §§ 799.58 and 799.59.

A 72-hour notice is not required to evict a guest if specified conditions are met, including (1) at the time the guest was provided accommodations by the park management, he or she was provided with, and signed, a written notice that the park management would need the lot to accommodate an arriving person with a contractual right thereto, and that if the guest failed to fully depart at the agreed-on time, the park management may take possession of the guest's property left in the site, including any recreational vehicle, and make the lot available to new guests; (2) there are no other substantially similar campsites, camping cabins, lots, or rental units available for the arriving person; and (3) at the time that the park management actually undertakes to evict the guest, the park management offers another campsite, camping cabin, lot, or rental unit to the guest, if one is available [Civ. Code § 1866(b)(1); see Civ. Code § 1866(c) (park management may enter lot to take possession of property and have vehicle towed)].

[3] "Defaulting Occupant" Defined

A "defaulting occupant" is the owner or operator of a recreational vehicle who has been an occupant in a recreational vehicle park for fewer than 30 days and who fails to pay for his or her occupancy in the park or who fails to comply with the park's reasonable written rules and regulations given to the occupant on registration [Civ. Code §§ 799.22, 799.28].

[4] Format and Contents of Notice

The notice must be in writing [Civ. Code §§ 799.55-799.57]. Otherwise, no particular format is prescribed. Consequently, the notice may be in a notice format, as set forth above, or it may be given in simple letter or other written form.

The notice is required to state that if the defaulting occupant does not remove the recreational vehicle from the park within 72 hours after receiving the notice, the owner or manager of the park has authority under Civ. Code. § 799.58 to have the recreational vehicle removed from the lot to the nearest storage facility [Civ. Code § 799.57].

There is no express requirement in the statutes that the notice be signed. Nevertheless, the better practice would be for the owner or manager to sign the notice.

[5] Service of Notice

The 72-hour notice must be served by the owner or manager of the park [Civ. Code § 799.55]. The notice is served by delivering a copy to the defaulting occupant personally [Civ. Code § 799.56]. The management must also serve the notice on the police or sheriff [Civ. Code § 799.56(c)].

[6] Curing Default by Payment

Civ. Code § 799.55 provides that a defaulting occupant may correct his or her payment deficiency during normal business hours within the 72-hour period. As pointed out in [4], above, Civ. Code § 799.57 provides that the notice to a defaulting occupant must state that the owner or manager of the park may remove the vehicle if the owner does not remove it, but does not provide for curing the default. Thus, it is not clear whether payment under Civ. Code § 799.55 will cure the default and thus eliminate the grounds for vehicle removal, or whether the recreational vehicle park owner or manager is entitled to have the vehicle removed even if the payment is made. Consequently, as part of the Notice of Removal, the owner or manager of a recreational vehicle park may wish to include an additional sentence providing that removal will occur unless the payment deficiency, the amount of which should be set forth in the notice, is cured within 72 hours during normal business hours.

[7] Incapacitated Occupants or Vehicles

Delivery of the notice as set forth in [5], above, to a defaulting occupant who is incapable because of a physical incapacity of removing the vehicle from the park is not sufficient. For those occupants and defaulting occupants whose vehicles are not motorized or cannot be moved by the occupant's vehicle, the default must be cured within 72 hours, but the date to quit must be no less than seven days after service of the notice [Civ. Code § 799.56(b)].

§ 332.90 Notice to Former Tenant of Right to Reclaim Abandoned Personal Property [Civ. Code §§ 1983, 1984, 1993.03, 1993.04]

[1] FORM Notice to Former Tenant of Right to Reclaim Abandoned Personal Property [Civ. Code §§ 1983, 1984, 1993.03, 1993.04]

To _____ [name and address of former tenant]:

When you vacated the premises at _____ [address of premises, including room or apartment number, if any], the following personal property remained: _____ [description of personal property]. Unless you pay the reasonable cost of storage for all of the above-described property, and take possession of the property which you claim, not later than _____ [date not less than 15 days after notice is personally delivered or, if mailed, not less than 18 days after notice is deposited in mail], this property may be disposed of in accordance with Civil Code Section _____ [1988 or 1993.07].

[EITHER]

If you fail to reclaim the property, it will be sold at a public sale after notice of the sale has been given by publication. You have the right to bid on the property at this sale. After the property is sold and the cost of storage, advertising, and sale is deducted, the remaining money will be paid over to the county. You may claim the remaining money at any time within one year after the county receives the money.

[OR]

Because you were a commercial tenant and this property is believed to be worth less than the lesser of SEVEN HUNDRED FIFTY DOLLARS ($750), or one dollar ($1) per square foot of the premises you occupied, it may be kept, sold, or destroyed without further notice if you fail to reclaim it within the time indicated above.

Dated: _____.

_____ [landlord's typed or printed name]

_____ [telephone number]

_____ [address]

[2] Use of Form

This form is taken from Civ. Code §§ 1984 (residential property) and 1983.04 (commercial property). It is to be given to the former tenant of premises when personal property remains after a tenancy has terminated and the premises have been vacated by the tenant [Civ. Code §§ 1983(a), 1993.03(a)]. This notice, along with the procedures provided in Civ. Code §§ 1980 et seq. (residential property) and 1993 et seq. (commercial property) for disposition of personal property remaining on premises at the termination of a tenancy, provide an optional procedure [Civ. Code §§ 1981(a), 1993.02(a)]. The rights and liabilities of the landlord, former tenant, or any other person are not affected if the requirements of Civ. Code §§ 1980 et seq. or 1993 et seq. are not satisfied [Civ. Code §§ 1981(e), 1993.02(f)].

For a form of a notice to be sent to a person other than a former tenant concerning the right to reclaim abandoned personal property [Civ. Code §§ 1985, 1993.05], see § 332.91.

[3] Contents of Notice

The notice must describe the property in a manner reasonably adequate to permit the property's owner to identify it. The notice may describe all or a portion of the property, but the limitation of liability provided by Civ. Code §§ 1989 and 1993.08 does not protect the landlord from any liability arising from the disposition of property not described in the notice. However, a trunk, valise, box, or other container that is locked, fastened, or tied in a manner that deters immediate access to its contents may be described as such without describing its contents [Civ. Code §§ 1983(b), 1993.03(b)].

The notice must also advise the person to be notified that reasonable costs of storage may be charged before the property is returned, where the property may be claimed, and the date before which the claim must be made [Civ. Code §§ 1983(b), 1993.03(b)].

Moreover, the date specified in the notice must be a date not less than 15 days after the notice is personally delivered or, ir mailed, not less than 18 days after the notice is deposited in the mail [Civ. Code §§ 1983(b), 1993.03(b)].

[4] Service of Notice

The notice must be personally delivered to the person to be notified or sent by first-class mail, postage prepaid to the person to be notified at his or her last known address. If there is reason to believe that the notice sent to that address will not be received by that person, the notice must also be personally delivered or sent to the other address, if any, known to the landlord where the person may reasonably be expected to receive the notice. If the notice is sent by mail to the former tenant, on copy must be sent to the premises vacated by the tenant [Civ. Code §§ 1983(c), 1993.03(c)].

[5] Lost Property

Personal property the landlord reasonably believes to have been lost must be disposed of in accordance with Civ. Code § 2080 et seq. The landlord is not liable to the owner of the property if he or she complies with Civ. Code § 2080 et seq.

[Civ. Code §§ 1982(a), 1993.01 (section 1982 applicable to commercial property)]. If the appropriate police or sheriff's department refuses to accept the lost property, the landlord may dispose of the property in accordance with the abandoned property provisions [Civ. Code § 1982(b)]. The abandoned property provisions [Civ. Code § 1980 et seq.] do not apply when Civ. Code § 2081 et seq. (stored unclaimed goods left with a common carrier) applies [Civ. Code § 1981(b)].

[6] Combined Notification

When a notice of belief of abandonment is given to a lessee in accordance with Civ. Code § 1951.3 [see § 332.96], the notice to the former tenant of the right to reclaim abandoned property under Civ. Code § 1983 or 1993.03 may be given at the same time, even though the tenancy is not terminated until the end of the period specified in the notice of belief of abandonment. If the notices are so given, they may, but need not, be combined in one notice that contains all the information required by both [Civ. Code §§ 1991, 1993.09].

[1] FORM Notice by Landlord to Lessee of Belief of Abandonment of Real Property [Civ. Code § 1951.3]

To _____ [name and address of lessee-tenant]:

This notice is given in accordance with Civil Code Section 1951.3 concerning the real property leased by you at _____ [state location of the property by address or other sufficient description]. The rent on this property has been due and unpaid for 14 consecutive days and the _____ [lessor or landlord] believes that you have abandoned the property.

The real property will be deemed abandoned within the meaning of Civil Code Section 1951.2 and your lease will terminate on _____ [insert a date not less than 15 days after this notice is served personally or, if mailed, not less than 18 days after this notice is deposited in the mail] unless before such date the undersigned receives at the address indicated below a written notice from you stating both of the following:

(1) Your intent not to abandon the real property; and

(2) An address at which you may be served by certified mail in any action for unlawful detainer of the real property.

You are required to pay the rent due and unpaid on this real property as required by the lease, and your failure to do so can lead to a court proceeding against you.
Dated: _____.

_____ [lessor-landlord's signature]

_____ [lessor-landlord's typed or printed name]

_____ [address to which lessee-

tenant is to send notice]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is taken from Civ. Code § 1951.3(d). It is for use by a landlord to give notice to a tenant of a belief that the tenant's leased real property has been abandoned. If the lessee fails to give the lessor written notice [see § 332.97], before the date of termination specified in the landlord's notice, stating that he or she does not intend to abandon the real property and stating an address at which the lessee may be served by certified mail in any action for unlawful detainer of the real property, the real property is deemed abandoned by the tenant, within the meaning of Civ. Code § 1951.2 (termination of lease; lessor's recovery from lessee), and the lease terminates [Civ. Code § 1951.3].

PRACTICE TIP:

Effect of Failure to Provide Required Notice. If the landlord fails to send the statutory notice of belief of abandonment, and retakes possession anyway under the belief that the tenant has abandoned, the landlord is taking a chance: if wrong about abandonment, the landlord is committing a trespass and probably a forcible entry and detainer, and is liable for all consequent damages. The notice of belief of abandonment protects the landlord if he or she is "wrong but reasonable." By Myron Moskovitz

[3] Available Alternatives for Landlord

Nothing in Civ. Code § 1951.3 precludes the landlord from otherwise proving that the real property has been abandoned by the tenant within the meaning of Civ. Code § 1951.2 (termination of lease; landlord's recovery from tenant) [Civ. Code § 1951.3(f)].

Nothing in Civ. Code § 1951.3 precludes the landlord from seeking a notice requiring the tenant to pay rent or quit as provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1161 (unlawful detainer; notice to quit) and 1162 (service of notice to quit) at any time permitted by those sections, or affects the time and manner of giving any other notice required by law. The giving of notice of belief of abandonment does not satisfy the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1161 and 1162 [Civ. Code § 1951.3(g)].

[4] Combined Notification

When a notice of belief of abandonment is given to a lessee under Civ. Code § 1951.3, the notice to the former tenant of the right to reclaim abandoned property in accordance with Civ. Code § 1983 [see § 332.91] may, but need not, be given at the same time, even though the tenancy is not terminated until the end of the period specified in the notice of belief of abandonment. If the notices are so given, they may, but need not, be combined in one notice that contains all the information required by Civ. Code §§ 1951.3 and 1983 [Civ. Code § 1991].

_____ [tenant's typed or printed name]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a tenant to notify his or her landlord of an intent not to abandon real property.

[3] Address for Unlawful Detainer Summons

When a tenant has given a landlord written notice of the tenant's intent not to abandon leased real property, the summons in an action for unlawful detainer of the real property may be served on the tenant by certified mail, postage prepaid, addressed to the tenant at the address stated in the tenant's notice of intent not to abandon. The summons must be deposited in the mail within 60 days after the tenant's notice of intent not to abandon is received by the landlord. Service in this manner is deemed completed on the tenth day after such mailing [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.47(a)].

[4] Effect of Failure to Include Address

When the tenant has given the landlord written notice of the tenant's intent not to abandon leased real property, but has failed to include in the notice an address at which the tenant may be served by certified mail in any action for unlawful detainer of the real property, the summons in the action may be served on the tenant by certified mail, postage prepaid, addressed to the tenant at (1) the same address or addresses to which the landlord's notice of belief of abandonment was addressed if that notice was given by mail, or (2) the address of the real property if the landlord's notice of belief of abandonment was personally served on the tenant. In either case, the summons must be deposited in the mail within 60 days after the tenant's notice of intent not to abandon is received by the landlord. Service in this manner is deemed completed on the tenth day after mailing [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.47(b)].

The methods of service for a summons in an action for unlawful detainer provided above are alternative methods and do not preclude service in any other manner authorized by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 413.10-417.40 [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.47(c)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Evicting a Tenant

29-333 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 333.10

§ 333.10 Acts Constituting Unlawful Detainer

[1] General Provisions and Definitions

The acts constituting unlawful detainer are set forth in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1161 (holding over after termination of tenancy) and 1161a (holding over after sale).

The word "tenant," as used in this chapter, means a tenant of real property for a term less than life and includes the executor or administrator of his or her estate [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161, 1st paragraph; see also Telegraph Avenue Corp. v. Raentsch (1928) 205 Cal. 93, 96-97, 269 P. 1109 (99-year tenancy held to be a term less than life)]. Excluded are persons whose occupancy is described in Civ. Code § 1940(b) (transient occupancy in hotel, motel, residence club, or other facility, or occupancy at hotel or motel where innkeeper retains right of access and control and provides specified services) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161, last paragraph].

As used in this chapter, the word "landlord" includes the landlord's successor in estate if any [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(1), (2), (4), (5)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Do Not Use Self-Help to Evict. A landlord should not use self-help to evict any tenant, even a lowly tenant at sufferance. Even though such a tenant is entitled to no notice of eviction, he or she may be evicted only by the sheriff after judgment in an unlawful detainer or ejectment action. Improper use of self-help can lead to a large judgment against the landlord in a "wrongful eviction" action. By Myron Moskovitz

[2] Holding Over by Tenant

[a] After Expiration of Term

Except in the case of an agricultural lease discussed below, a tenant who, in person or by subtenant, continues in possession of the property, or any part of it, after expiration of the term for which it was let, provided the expiration is of a nondefault nature however brought about, without the landlord's permission, is guilty of unlawful detainer [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(1)]. No notice by the landlord to vacate is required as a condition to suing for unlawful detainer [Earl Orchard Co. v. Fava (1902) 138 Cal. 76, 78-79, 70 P. 1073 ; Castle Park No. 5 v. Katherine (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 6, 154 Cal. Rptr. 498] . The above applies when the person to be removed became the occupant of the premises as a servant, employee, agent, or licensee and the relation of master and servant, employer and employee, principal and agent, or licensor and licensee has been lawfully terminated or the time fixed for the occupancy by the agreement between the parties has expired [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(1)].

In the case of a tenancy on agricultural lands, if the tenant holds over and retains possession for more than 60 days after expiration of the term without any demand for possession or notice to quit by the landlord, the tenant is deemed to be holding by permission and is entitled to hold under the terms of the lease for another full year. The holding over for the 60-day period is construed as a consent by the tenant to hold for another year and the tenant will not be guilty of an unlawful detainer during that year [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2); see Nye v. Dotta (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 129, 132, 245 P.2d 529 (notice by landlord served after expiration of 60-day period as ineffective to cancel lease retroactively as of end of term specified)].

[b] Effect of Rent Control Ordinances Requiring Good Cause to Evict

For a discussion of local rent control ordinances, see § 335.12.

[c] After Notice Terminating Tenancy or Agreement to Surrender

Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(1) is not to be construed so as to prevent the removal of the occupant in any other lawful manner, but in the case of a tenancy at will, the tenancy must first be terminated by notice as prescribed in the Civil Code [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(1)]. A tenancy at will is terminated under the Civil Code by the landlord's giving the tenant a 30-day notice to quit the premises [Civ. Code § 789; see § 332.70 (form of 30-day notice)]. A tenancy for an unspecified term or from month-to-month is also terminated by the giving of a 30-day notice unless a shorter term of notice (not less than seven days before expiration of the term) was agreed on by the parties at the time the tenancy was created [Civ. Code § 1946; see §§ 332.70 and 332.71 (forms of notices)]. Other periodic tenancies are terminated by written notice given as long before the expiration of the notice as the term of hiring, not exceeding 30 days [Civ. Code § 1946]. A tenant who holds over after expiration of the notice period is guilty of unlawful detainer [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(1); see Civ. Code § 790].

A tenant who gives the landlord written notice as provided in Civ. Code § 1946 of his or her intention to terminate the tenancy, or makes a written offer to surrender that is accepted by the landlord in writing and fails to deliver up possession at the time specified in the written notice without the landlord's permission is also guilty of unlawful detainer [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(5)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Applicability in Rent Controlled Jurisdictions. It should be noted that the rule set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(5) may not be valid in rent controlled jurisdictions. By Benjamin Kaplan

[d] After Default in Payment of Rent and Notice

A tenant is guilty of unlawful detainer when he or she, in person or by subtenant, continues in possession without the landlord's permission after default in the payment of rent and three days' written notice, stating the amount due and requiring its payment or possession of the property, has been served on the tenant and on any subtenant in actual occupation of the premises [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2); see § 332.74 (form of three-day notice); Sun Terrace Manor v. Municipal Court (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 739, 742, 108 Cal. Rptr. 307 (involving proceeding by corporate cooperative against shareholder-tenant); see also § 333.11[5]].

PRACTICE TIP:

Serving Three-Day Notice to Terminate Residential Tenancy. Before serving a three-day notice to terminate a residential tenancy, be sure to check to see if there is a local rent control ordinance in the jurisdiction in which the property is located. Such an ordinance might well impose "good cause" or other restrictions on when the notice may be served. In addition, you should not confuse the rules for serving notice with the rules for service of process. By Myron Moskovitz

With regard to commercial real property, there are special provisions applicable to using estimates of the rent due in the three-day notice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161.1]. When the amount stated in the notice provided to the tenant under Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2) is clearly identified by the notice as an estimate, the landlord may receive a judgment for possession and the actual amount due, even if the estimate is incorrect, provided the estimate was reasonable [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161.1(a)].

[e] After Breach of Covenant Other Than to Pay Rent and Notice

A tenant is guilty of unlawful detainer when he or she, in person or by subtenant, continues in possession after (1) a neglect or failure to perform any conditions or covenants of the lease or agreement under which the property is held, other than the one for the payment of rent, but including any covenant not to assign or sublet, and (2) three days' written notice requiring performance of the conditions or covenants or the possession of the property has been served on the tenant and on any subtenant in actual possession of the premises [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3); see § 332.76; Sun Terrace Manor v. Municipal Court (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 739, 742, 108 Cal. Rptr. 307 (involving proceeding by corporate cooperative against shareholder-tenant); see also [8], below, and § 333.11[5]].

If the conditions and covenants violated by the lessee cannot be performed afterward, then no notice need be given demanding their performance [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3)]. However, the three-day notice demanding possession of the property must still be given [Schnittger v. Rose (1903) 139 Cal. 656, 660-663, 73 P. 449 ; see § 332.76].

[3] Effect of Lease Provision on Period of Notice

The parties may provide in the lease a longer notice for termination than the three-day period required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1161 (discussed under [2][c], [d], above) [see Devonshire v. Langstaff (1935) 10 Cal. App. 2d 369, 371-372, 51 P.2d 902 ; see also Fifth & Broadway Partnership v. Kimny, Inc. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 195, 200-201, 162 Cal. Rptr. 271 (holding, however, that 90-day notice provision of lease did not apply because it was not mandatory and lease authorized unlawful detainer proceeding in accordance with statute as alternative)].

However, the jurisdictional notice is that prescribed by the statute, and is sufficient if any longer notice required by the lease is substantially complied with [Schulman v. Vera (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 552, 564, 166 Cal. Rptr. 620 (statutory three-day notice given but contractually required five-day notice substantially complied with)].

A provision in a commercial lease requiring a shorter notice period than that required by statute does not violate public policy merely because it provides for notice different from and superseding that provided by statute [see Hignell v. Gebala (1949) 90 Cal. App. 2d 61, 67, 202 P.2d 378] , but Civ. Code § 1953 precludes lease provisions that purport to modify a residential tenant's rights regarding receipt of notices. However, if the tenancy is one from month-to-month, the parties may not agree to terminate on less than seven days' notice [Civ. Code § 1946]. Such lease provisions for shorter notice are valid and binding on the parties [see Devonshire v. Langstaff (1935) 10 Cal. App. 2d 369, 372, 51 P.2d 902] , as are provisions that provide for longer notice than that required by statute [Watkins v. McCartney (1922) 57 Cal. App. 643, 644-645, 207 P. 909] .

[4] Forfeiture of Lease at End of Notice Period

The object to be attained by a notice under Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2) or (3) (discussed under [2][c], [d], above) is a forfeiture of the lease [Downing v. Cutting Packing Co. (1920) 183 Cal. 91, 95, 190 P. 455] . Hence, on the proper service of a notice to pay rent or quit or to perform a condition or covenant or quit and stating an election to declare the lease forfeited, the tenancy is forfeited as of the end of the notice period if the tenant fails to pay the rent or perform the condition or covenant [see Downing v. Cutting Packing Co. (1920) 183 Cal. 91, 95-96, 190 P. 455 ; Lehr v. Crosby (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 8, 177 Cal. Rptr. 96 (both involving notice to pay rent or quit)]. For a discussion of when the court must in its judgment declare a forfeiture of the lease, see § 333.13[13][d]. For forms and discussions of a petition, notice of application, and order granting relief from a judgment of forfeiture, see §§ 333.132, 333.133, and 333.134.

[5] Curing Default

In the event of an unlawful detainer under either Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2) or (3) (discussed under [2][c], [d], above), the tenant, or any subtenant in actual occupation of the premises, or any mortgagee of the term, or other person interested in its continuance, may, within three days after service of the notice, perform the lease's conditions or covenants or pay the stipulated rent, as the case may be, and thereby save the lease from forfeiture [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3); see Downing v. Cutting Packing Co. (1920) 183 Cal. 91, 95-96, 190 P. 455 ; Highland Plastics, Inc. v. Enders (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 167 Cal. Rptr. 353 ; see also Reed v. South Shore Foods, Inc. (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 705, 713, 40 Cal. Rptr. 575 (tender of rent one day after expiration of three-day period prescribed in notice as ineffective to cure default); but see Glendale Fed. Bank v. Hadden (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1150, 1156, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 102 (unlawful detainer action terminated interest of bank that was beneficiary of deed of trust in leasehold and had failed to obtain an agreement from the property owner permitting it to cure tenant's default)]. If this is done, any declaration of forfeiture stated in the notice to the tenant required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1161 is nullified and the lease or rental agreement remains in effect [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161.5].

With regard to commercial real property, if the notice provided to the tenant by the landlord pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2) (discussed under [2][c], above) claims an amount identified by the notice as an estimate, and the tenant tenders to the landlord within the time required by the notice for payment an amount that the tenant reasonably estimates to be due, the court may allow the tenant to retain the right to possession [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161.1(a)].

[6] Waiver of Default and Estoppel

As a general rule, the acceptance of rent by the lessor or landlord from the lessee or tenant after the breach of a condition or covenant with full knowledge of all the facts is a waiver of the breach and precludes the lessor or landlord from declaring a forfeiture of the lease by reason of the breach [Kern Sunset Oil Co. v. Good Roads Oil Co. (1931) 214 Cal. 435, 440, 6 P.2d 71 ; see EDC Associates, Ltd. v. Gutierrez (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 167, 170, 200 Cal. Rptr. 333] . The general rule does not apply, however, if the lease provides otherwise [see Salton Community Services Dist. v. Southard (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 526, 530, 64 Cal. Rptr. 246] .

Whether there has been a waiver is a question of intent. But to overcome the presumption of waiver that tender and acceptance of the rent creates, either some positive evidence of rejection of the rent on the landlord's part or a specific reservation of rights in the lease is required [EDC Associates, Ltd. v. Gutierrez (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 167, 170, 200 Cal. Rptr. 333] .

Although acceptance of money by the landlord during the notice period may be shown in an unlawful detainer proceeding based on a 30-day notice terminating a month-to month-tenancy [see Civ. Code § 1946] as tending to show a waiver of forfeiture, this evidence bears only on rent paid for the period following termination of the tenancy and not to rents accrued before termination [Castle Park No. 5 v. Katherine (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 6, 154 Cal. Rptr. 498] . In such a case it has been said that tender of the rent and its acceptance by the landlord within the notice period probably results in an implied withdrawal of the landlord's notice to terminate a periodic tenancy provided the rent accepted is sufficient to cover a period beyond the 30-day period, but that the mere tender of the rent does not result in a waiver. For there to be a waiver, the landlord must accept the rent and the rent accepted must be an amount sufficient to cover the rent period beyond the period specified in the termination notice [Highland Plastics, Inc. v. Enders (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 167 Cal. Rptr. 353] .

If the breach is waived by the lessor or the landlord after service of the notice required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1161, any election stated in the notice to declare the lease or rental agreement forfeited is nullified and the lease or rental agreement remains in effect [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161.5].

Apart from waiver, a lessor may be estopped to rely on a particular breach of covenant as a ground for forfeiture of the lease when the lessor, by conduct after the lease's execution, led the lessee to believe that strict compliance with the covenant would not be required and the lessee acted accordingly to his or her detriment [Salton Community Services Dist. v. Southard (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 526, 531, 64 Cal. Rptr. 246] .

[7] Commercial Real Property

If the landlord accepts a partial payment of rent, including any payment under Code Civ. Proc. § 1161.1(a) [see § 333.13[13][e][iii]], after serving notice under Code Civ. Proc. § 1161, the landlord, without any further notice to the tenant, may commence and pursue an action under Code Civ. Proc. § 1159 et seq. to recover the difference between the amount demanded in the notice and the payment actually received [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161.1(b)].

Acceptance by the landlord of partial payment of rent after filing a complaint under Code Civ. Proc. § 1166 is evidence only of that payment, without waiver of any rights or defenses of any of the parties. The landlord is entitled to amend the complaint to reflect the partial payment without creating a necessity for the filing of an additional answer or other responsive pleading by the tenant, and without prior leave of court, and such an amendment may not delay the matter from proceeding. The landlord must, however, provide actual notice to the tenant that acceptance of the partial rent payment does not constitute a waiver of any rights, including any right the landlord may have to recover possession of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161.1(c)].

[8] Assigning, Subletting, Waste, Nuisance, or Unlawful Use

If a tenant or subtenant or the executor or administrator of the estate assigns, sublets, or commits waste on the demised premises contrary to the lease's conditions or covenants, or maintains, commits, or permits the maintenance or commission of a nuisance on the demised premises, or uses the premises for an unlawful purpose, he or she risks receipt of a three-day notice. If the three-day notice expires without performance, the lease is terminated. The landlord or the landlord's successor in estate, if any, must, on service of three days' notice to quit on the personor persons in possession, be entitled to restitution of possession of the demised premises under the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1159-1179a [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(4); see § 332.26; see also Thrifty Oil Co. v. Batarse (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 770, 772-776, 220 Cal. Rptr. 285 (holding unlawful detainer judgment was properly entered on showing that sublessee had sublet property without seeking sublessor's consent as required by sublease); Roth v. Morton's Chefs Services, Inc. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 380, 387-388, 218 Cal. Rptr. 684 (consent to sublease 50 percent of leased premises as not supporting sublease of 100 percent of premises)]. Any holding over beyond the three-day period would constitute an unlawful detainer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161, first paragraph].

Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(4), among other things, codifies the common law rule that a tenant must use leased property in such a way as to avoid waste. Waste can be proved only by acts that injuriously affect the market value of the property and show that the market value is substantially or permanently diminished or depreciated [Smith v. Cap Concrete, Inc. (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 769, 776-777, 184 Cal. Rptr. 308] . A similar showing is required to sustain a proceeding in unlawful detainer based specifically on allegations of waste [Freeze v. Brinson (1991) 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 227 ; cf. Rowe v. Wells Fargo Realty Services, Inc. (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 310, 319-320, 212 Cal. Rptr. 374 (allegations, including damage to thermostat and installation of lights without express authorization, held not to constitute waste)]. If the lease or rental agreement does not contain a covenant against waste, a three-day notice to quit the premises is not authorized under Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3) or (4). The landlord's only remedy in this case would appear to be an action for damages [see Code Civ. Proc. § 732].

The provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(4) also extend to a tenant who maintains, commits, or permits the maintenance or commission of a nuisance on leased premises. For purposes of the statute, a person who commits an offense relating to controlled substances, unlawful weapons or ammunition or uses the premises to further the purposes of that offense is deemed to have committed a nuisance on the premises [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(4); see Civ. Code § 3485 (until January 1, 2014, unlawful detainer action may be brought by city prosecutor or city attorney in cities of Los Angeles, Long Beach, San Diego, Oakland, and Sacramento to abate nuisance caused by illegal conduct involving an unlawful weapons or ammunition purpose on real property); Civ. Code § 3486 (until January 1, 2014, city prosecutor or city attorney in cities of Los Angeles, Long Beach, Palmdale, San Diego, Oakland and Sacramento may file action for unlawful detainer against any person in violation of nuisance or illegal purpose provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(4) with regard to a controlled substance; after that date, the authorization will apply only to the City of Los Angeles and only if the city has previously filed specified reports)].

Also for purposes of the statute, if a person commits an act of domestic violence [see Fam. Code § 6211 (definition), sexual assault [see Pen. Code §§ 261, 261.5, 262, 286, 288a, 289 (definitions)], or stalking [see Civ. Code § 1708.7 (definition)] against another tenant or subtenant on the premises, there is a rebuttable presumption affecting the burden of proof that the person has committed a nuisance upon the premises. However, the presumption does not apply if the victim of the act of domestic violence, sexual assault, or stalking, or a household member of the victim, other than the perpetrator, has not vacated the premises [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(4) (to be repealed on January 1, 2012)]. These provisions may not be construed to supersede the provisions of the Violence Against Women and Department of Justice Reauthorization Act of 2005 [P.L.109-162, sec. 606, amending 42 U.S.C. § 1437f] that allow a tenant who engages in criminal acts of physical violence against cotenants to be removed from the lease [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(4) (to be repealed on January 1, 2012)].

To justify termination of a lease because of the use of the premises for an unlawful purpose under Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(4), the unlawful purpose must relate to the functional use of the property itself and not to just any violation of law. This is also true of a covenant in the lease prohibiting use of the premises in violation of the law. Such a covenant serves to protect thelessor's interest in the demised premises by limiting the functional use of the property and ensures that the lessee will harm neither the physical attributes nor the reputation of the property and will utilize the demised premises in a manner conducive to the lessor's interest so as to secure the continued payment of the rental obligations [Rowe v. Wells Fargo Realty Services, Inc. (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 310, 319-320, 212 Cal. Rptr. 374 (holding resetting of temperature controls in violation of federal Department of Energy regulation did not constitute unlawful use that would terminate lease)].

[9] Holding Over by Subtenant, or by Tenant's Servant, Employee, Agent, or Licensee

A tenant may take proceedings, similar to those prescribed in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1159-1179a, to obtain possession of the premises let to a subtenant or held by a servant, employee, agent, or licensee, in case of an unlawful detention of the premises underlet to or held by him or her [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3)]. Thus, the summary processes of unlawful detainer are available to a sublessor [Reed v. South Shore Foods, Inc. (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 705, 711, 40 Cal. Rptr. 575] .

[10] Holding Over After Sale

A person who holds over after sale and continues in possession of a manufactured home (as defined in Health & Safety Code § 18007 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a(a)(1)]), a mobilehome (as defined in Health & Safety Code § 18008 [Code Civ.

Proc. § 1161a(a)(2)]), or real property after he or she and any subtenant in actual possession of the premises have been served as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1162 [see § 333.11] with a three-day notice to quit the property as prescribed in Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a(b) or, in the case of a rental housing unit, the notice prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a(c), discussed below, may be removed as prescribed in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1159-1179a in the following cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a(b)]:

- Sale under writ of execution. When the property has been sold under a writ of execution against the person, or a person under whom the person claims, and the title under the sale has been duly perfected [see § 333.85].

- Sale under writ of sale after foreclosure or power of sale. When the property has been sold under a writ of sale, on the foreclosure of a mortgage, or under an express power of sale contained in a mortgage, executed by the person or a person under whom the person claims, and the title under the foreclosure has been duly perfected [see § 333.86].

- Sale under power of sale in trust deed. When the property has been sold in accordance with Civ. Code § 2924under a power of sale contained in a trust deed executed by the person, or a person under whom the person claims, and the title under the sale has been duly perfected [see § 333.87].

- Sale by person to be evicted. When the property has been sold by the person, or a person under whom the personclaims, and the title under the sale has been duly perfected [see § 333.88].

- Sale under conditional sale contract or security agreement. When the property has been sold in accordance with Health & Safety Code § 18037.5 (relating to mobilehomes) under the default provisions of a conditional sale contract or security agreement executed by the person, or a person under whom the person claims, and the title under the sale has been duly perfected.

For discussion of these types of sales, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments , Ch. 294, Homesteads , and Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages .

A tenant or subtenant in possession of a rental housing unit (that is, any structure or part of a structure rented or offered for rent for residential occupancy in California [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a(d)]) that has been sold by reason of any of the causes enumerated in Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a(b) (set forth above) who rents or leases the rental housing unit either on a periodic basis from week-to-week, month-to-month, or other interval, or for a fixed period of time, must be given written notice to quit in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1162 [see § 333.11], at least as long as the term of hiring itself, but not exceeding 30 days, before the tenant or subtenant may be removed from the unit as prescribed in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1159-1179a [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a(c)].

The above provisions do not affect the rights of a tenant or subtenant in possession of a rental housing unit under a fixed term lease when the rental housing unit has been sold by the owner and the title under the sale has been duly perfected [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a(b)(2)].

In the case of a sale under a writ of sale after foreclosure or under a power of sale in a trust deed, a tenant may be able to recover actual and exemplary damages incurred due to the loss of the tenancy if the private or judicial foreclosure was the result of "rent skimming" by the landlord. "Rent skimming" is the use of revenue received from the rental of a parcel of residential real property, at any time during the first year period after acquiring that property, without first applying the revenue or an equivalent amount to the payments due on all mortgages and trust deeds encumbering that property [Civ. Code § 890(a)]. A tenant of residential real property may bring an action against a person who has engaged in rent skimming with regard to that property for the recovery of actual damages, including any security deposit as defined under Civ. Code § 1950.5, and moving expenses if theproperty is sold at a foreclosure sale and the tenant was required to move. If the tenant prevails in the action, he or she is entitled to recover reasonable attorney's fees and costs. The court may also award exemplary damages, and the court must award exemplary damages of at least three times the amount of actual damages, if the defendant has engaged in multiple acts of rent skimming, or if the payments due under any trust deed or mortgage were two or more months delinquent at the time the tenant rented the premises [Civ. Code § 891(d); for discussion of security deposits under Civ. Code § 1950.5, see § 331.11[6]]. For further discussion and a form of complaint for damages for rent skimming, see Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages .

29-333 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 333.11

§ 333.11 Service of Notices

[1] Notices Required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1161 or 1161a

The notices terminating tenancies that are required by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1161 and 1161a [see § 333.11] may be served as follows [Code Civ. Proc. § 1162; see Chinese Hosp. Foundation Fund v. Patterson (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 627, 632, 81 Cal. Rptr. 795] :

- By delivering a copy to the tenant personally (personal service);

- If the tenant is absent from his or her place of residence and usual place of business, by leaving a copy with some person of suitable age and discretion at either place and sending a copy through the mail addressed to the tenant at the tenant's place of residence (a combination of substituted service and mail service); or

- If the place of residence and business cannot be ascertained, or a person of suitable age or discretion cannot be found there, then by affixing a copy in a conspicuous place on the property, delivering a copy to a person residing there if this person can be found, and sending a copy through the mail addressed to the tenant at the place where the property is situated (a combination of service by posting, substituted service, and mail service).

If the tenant is absent from the residence and place of business, the post and mail service may be used without prior attempts at personal service [Hozz v. Lewis (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 314, 317, 263 Cal. Rptr. 577] .

Service on a subtenant may be made in the same manner [Code Civ. Proc. § 1162].

Code Civ. Proc. § 1162 does not require a showing of reasonable diligence in attempting personal service under Code Civ. Proc. § 1162(1) before utilizing the combined forms of service under Code Civ. Proc. § 1162(2) and (3), as is required by Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(b) for the service of a summons by a combination of substituted abode service and mail service [Nourafchan v. Miner (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 746, 750-751, 215 Cal. Rptr. 450 ; Highland Plastics, Inc. v. Enders (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 6, 167 Cal. Rptr. 353] . However, if the tenant cannot be located for personal service, Code Civ. Proc. § 1162(3) requires the person making the post and mail form of service to first determine either that the tenant's place of residence and business cannot be ascertained or that a person of suitable age or discretion cannot be found there [Highland Plastics, Inc. v. Enders (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 167 Cal. Rptr. 353] .

Code Civ. Proc. § 1162(2) provides for service of the notice in the same manner as Code Civ. Proc. § 1011, relating to service of papers in civil actions and proceedings. This service is legally equivalent to personal service [Davidson v. Quinn (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 9, 188 Cal. Rptr. 421] . However, unlike Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(b) (relating to service of summons and authorizing substituted service on person at least 18 years of age), Code Civ. Proc. § 1162(2) does not specify a minimum age of the person on the premises with whom the notice may be left. Rather, it specifies only that the person be of suitable age and discretion. The determination in any given case as to whether the person to whom the notice was given was of a "suitable age" is a matter within the trial court's discretion [Lehr v. Crosby (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 177 Cal. Rptr. 96] .

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1162(3), posting alone of the notice is insufficient [Jordan v. Talbot (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 597, 609, 12 Cal. Rptr. 488, 361 P.2d 20 ; see Greene v. Lindsey (1982) 456 U.S. 444, 450-453, 102 S. Ct. 1874, 72 L. Ed. 2d 249] . Mail service is also required. The service is complete when the notice is posted and a copy is deposited in the mail addressed to the tenant at the address where the premises are located [Highland Plastics, Inc. v. Enders (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 167 Cal. Rptr. 353] .

It is not clear whether the tenant's time to comply with a notice served under Code Civ. Proc. § 1162(2) or (3) is extended under the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1013, relating to service by mail [cf. Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20 (service of summons; expressly providing that service is deemed complete 10 days after mailing)]. In one case [Walters v. Meyers (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 15, 277 Cal. Rptr. 316] , the appellate department of thesuperior court held that Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 applies only to notices in pending civil actions, unless the language of the statute requiring the notice provides otherwise. The court held that Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 does not apply to three-day notices, noting that there is no language in the unlawful detainer statutes extending the time. The court also held that notice is effective on the day it is posted and mailed and not when it is received, stating that a contrary interpretation would render the various statutory methods of service meaningless. Similarly, in Highland Plastics, Inc. v. Enders (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 167 Cal. Rptr. 353 , which involved service of a 30-day notice under Civ. Code § 1946, the appellate department held a tenant's time to comply was not extended, reasoning that Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 applies only to papers served after the filing of a complaint in a civil action and not to service of precomplaint papers. On the other hand, in Davidson v. Quinn (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 9, 188 Cal. Rptr. 421 (default in payment of rent), the appellate department held that Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3) (notices to pay rent or quit and to perform a condition or covenant of the lease or quit) requires three days' actual notice when termination results from the tenant's default in the payment of rent, that the three-day period does not begin to run until the notice is actually served on the tenant, and that the tenant thus has three full days in which to cure the default and prevent forfeiture.

In 1995, the legislature amended Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 to provide that its provisions for extending time when service is by mail apply absent a specific exception provided for by that code section or by another statute or rule of court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a)].

[2] Notice Terminating Tenancy for Unspecified Term or Periodic Tenancy

Service of a notice terminating a tenancy for an unspecified term or a periodic tenancy must be given in the manner prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1162 [see [1], above], or by sending a copy by certified or registered mail addressed to the other party [Civ. Code § 1946].

In addition, the lessee may give notice by sending a copy by certified or registered mail addressed to the lessor's agent to whom the lessee has paid the rent for the month before the date of the notice or by delivering a copy to the agent personally [Civ. Code § 1946].

[3] Notice Required to Exercise Right of Reentry

Whenever the right of reentry is given to a lessor in any lease or otherwise, the reentry may be made at any time after the right has accrued on three days' notice as provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1161 and 1162 [Civ. Code § 791]. The three days' notice is not required, however, when thehiring of the real property is for a term not specified by the parties and was terminated in accordance with the provisions of Civ. Code § 1946 [Civ. Code § 791; see Jordan v. Talbot (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 597, 608, 12 Cal. Rptr. 488, 361 P.2d 20] . Moreover, an action for the possession of real property (for example, an action for ejectment) leased with a right of reentry may be maintained at any time after the right to reenter has accrued without the notice prescribed in Civ. Code § 791 [Civ. Code § 793].

[4] Service on Cotenants

Proper service on one of two or more cotenants named in a written lease constitutes service on the other cotenants [University of So. Cal. v. Weiss (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 759, 769-770, 25 Cal. Rptr. 475] .

[5] Service on Subtenants

Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2) and (3), relating to the tenant's default in the payment of rent and the tenant's neglect or failure to perform other covenants or conditions of the lease or rental agreement, respectively, require that the three-days' notice be served on any subtenant in actual occupation of the premises as well as on the tenant [see § 333.10[2][c], [d]]. However, to maintain an unlawful detainer proceeding against the tenant, the subtenant need not be served if the premises are occupied by both the tenant and the subtenant [Chinese Hosp. Foundation Fund v. Patterson (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 627, 632, 81 Cal. Rptr. 795] . But, if the landlord wants to evict both the tenant and the subtenant, the subtenant must be served with a separate notice that complies with the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1161. Service of a copy of the notice directed to and served on the tenant alone is not sufficient [Briggs v. Electronic Memories & Magnetics Corp. (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 900, 904-905, 126 Cal. Rptr. 34] .

Service on the subtenant may be made in the same manner as on the tenant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1162(3)].

The purpose of the requirement that the subtenant as well as the tenant be served with a notice is to provide the subtenant with the opportunity to cure the tenant's default and thus remain in possession of the premises [Four Seas Inv. Corp. v. International Hotel Tenants' Assn. (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 604, 611, 146 Cal. Rptr. 531] . Thus, there is no statutory requirement that the subtenant be served with the notice if the tenancy is terminated by a notice given in accordance with Civ. Code § 1946 (termination of tenancy for unspecified term or periodic tenancy by notice)or under Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(1) (termination of tenancy by expiration of term) or under Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(4) (termination of lease by assigning, subletting, or committing waste on demised premises contrary to conditions or covenants of lease, or maintaining or permitting maintenance of nuisance on demised premises, or using demised premises for unlawful purpose and service of three-day notice to quit on persons in possession), because there is no default to be cured [see Four Seas Inv. Corp. v. International Hotel Tenants' Assn. (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 604, 611, 146 Cal. Rptr. 531] . By the same reasoning, when the tenancy is terminated under Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3) because of an incurable breach, it would appear that service on the subtenant is not required.

[6] Computing Time

The time in which any act provided by law is to be done is computed by excluding the first day and including the last, unless the last day is a holiday, and then it is also excluded [Code Civ. Proc. § 12]. Holidays include Saturdays, Sundays, and the days listed in Gov. Code § 6700 [Code Civ. Proc. § 10, 12a, 135]. Thus, compliance with a three-day notice to quit, for example, served on a Monday is timely if the premises are vacated by the end of the following Thursday since, in computing time, Monday is excluded and Thursday is included. If Thursday falls on a holiday, then compliance is timely if the premises are vacated by the end of Friday.

When the last day of a three-day notice to pay rent falls on a legal holiday, the time to pay rent is extended through the first full day thereafter that is not a legal holiday [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 12, 12a; Lamanna v. Vognar (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 4]. Therefore, an unlawful detainer complaint filed on the first full day after the holiday is premature because the defendant is not guilty of unlawful detainer on the day the complaint is filed [Lamanna v. Vognar (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 4].

§ 333.12 Unlawful Detainer Proceedings

[1] Governing Law

Unlawful detainer is governed generally by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1161-1179a, which incorporate many of the provisions of Part Two of the Code of Civil Procedure, relating to civil actions. Other statutes specifically relating to unlawful detainer proceedings include Civ. Code § 1942.3 (presumption of breach of habitabilityin unlawful detainer proceeding), Civ. Code § 1952 (effect of unlawful detainer proceeding on actions under Civ. Code §§ 1951-1951.8, relating to tenant's abandonment of leased property), Civ. Code § 1952.3 (effect on unlawful detainer proceeding of surrender of possession of property before trial or judgment if there is no trial), and Code Civ. Proc. §§ 415.45 and 415.47 (relating to service of summons by posting or mail, respectively, in certain unlawful detainer proceedings). Health & Safety Code §§ 17031.5, 17031.6, and 17031.7 govern the termination or modification of tenancies in employee housing, proceedings in unlawful detainer involving these tenancies, and prohibitions against retaliatory employment action.

[2] Nature and Purpose

[a] In General

Unlawful detainer is a statutory proceeding governed solely by the statutes creating it and is not based on contract [see Fish Construction Co. v. Moselle Coach Works, Inc. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 654, 658, 196 Cal. Rptr. 174 ; Fifth & Broadway Partnership v. Kimny, Inc. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 195, 200, 162 Cal. Rptr. 271] . The statutes are procedural and provide a summary procedure for regaining possession of real property once the consensual basis for the tenant's occupancy is at an end [see Birkenfeld v. City of Berkeley (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 129, 149, 130 Cal. Rptr. 465, 550 P.2d 1001 ; De La Vara v. Municipal Court (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d 638, 640, 159 Cal. Rptr. 648] . The statutory rights and remedies are given in lieu of the landlord's common law rights and remedies, which had included the right to enter and expel the tenant by force [Childs v. Eltinge (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 843, 853, 105 Cal. Rptr. 864 ; see Deal v. Municipal Court (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 991, 995, 204 Cal. Rptr. 79 ; Schulman v. Vera (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 552, 562, 166 Cal. Rptr. 620] . The statutory remedy is intended to be a relatively simple and speedy remedy that obviates any need for self-help by landlords [Birkenfeld v. City of Berkeley (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 129, 151, 130 Cal. Rptr. 465, 550 P.2d 1001] . Thus, the primary purpose of an unlawful detainer proceeding is to obtain possession of real property in the cases specified by statute [Gray v. Whitmore (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 1, 17-19, 94 Cal. Rptr. 904] . The recovery of damages and rent by the landlord from a defaulting tenant is merely incidental to the proceeding to recover possession [Briggs v. Electronic Memories & Magnetics Corp. (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 900, 906, 126 Cal. Rptr. 34 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(b) and discussion under § 333.13[13][e]].

[b] Strict Compliance With Statutory Procedure Required

The summary nature of unlawful detainer proceedings mandate strict compliance with the governing statutory provisions [De La Vara v. Municipal Court (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d 638, 640, 159 Cal. Rptr. 648 ; see Cal-American Income Property Fund IV v. Ho (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 583, 585, 207 Cal. Rptr. 532 (unlawful detainer is highly summary in nature and code requirements must be followed strictly); Schulman v. Vera (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 552, 563-564, 166 Cal. Rptr. 620 (unlawful detainer is a statutory remedy and statutory requirements must be strictly complied with)]. Thus, a person seeking to avail himself or herself of the unlawful detainer statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161; see § 333.10], must bring himself or herself clearly within the terms of the relationship between himself or herself and the occupier of the property that is described in the statute [Goetze v. Hanks (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 615, 616, 68 Cal. Rptr. 150 ; Marvell v. Marina Pizzeria (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 7, 202 Cal. Rptr. 818] . In addition, the statutes permitting incidental relief, such as damages, are strictly construed [Highland Plastics, Inc. v. Enders (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1]. Relief not authorized by the statutes may not be granted [Castle Park No. 5 v. Katherine (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 6].

[3] Unlawful Detainer Assistants

[a] Unlawful Detainer Assistants Act: Legislative Findings and Declarations

The Unlawful Detainer Assistants Act [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6400-6415] governs individuals and organizations who provide assistance and advice in unlawful detainer proceedings. The regulations are deemed necessary to protect tenants, landlords, and legitimate tenants' rights organizations from certain individuals and organizations who, although purporting to assist clients in unlawful detainer proceedings, file fraudulent and frivolous claims in connection with these proceedings [see 1993 Stats., ch. 1011, § 1 (legislative findings and declarations)].

[b] Unlawful Detainer Assistant Defined

An "unlawful detainer assistant" is any individual who for compensation renders assistance or advice in the prosecution or defense of an unlawful detainer claim or action, including any bankruptcy petition that may affect the unlawful detainer claim or action [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6400(a)].

[c] Registration Requirements

An unlawful detainer assistant must register with the county clerk in the county where the unlawful detainer assistant has his or her principal place of business (primary registration) and in any other county in which he or she performs acts for which registration is required (secondary registration) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6402; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6403 (required contents of application for registration)]. However, the registration requirement does not apply, among others, to any of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6401]:

- Any government employee acting in the course of his or her employment;
- A member of the bar or his or her employees or agents;
- An independent contractor while acting on behalf of a bar member; and

- Any employee of a nonprofit, tax exempt corporation who either assists clients free of charge or is supervised by a member of the State Bar of California who has malpractice insurance.

[d] Bond or Cash Deposit and Contract Requirements

On primary registration, the unlawful detainer assistant must post a bond or cash in the amount of $25,000 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6405(a), (e)]. In the case of a secondary registration, the unlawful detainer assistant is only required to include a certified copy of the bond or cash deposit posted in the county in which the assistant filed the primary registration [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6405(a)]. In addition, before performing any services, every unlawful detainer assistant must provide his or her client with a written contract [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6410(a)]. The contract provisions between a client and an unlawful detainer assistant are prescribed by statute [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6410(b)]. Failure to comply with the statutory requirements makes the contract voidable at the client's option [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6410(d)].

The bond or cash deposit is available for recovery of damages awarded a property owner or manager, tenant, or other person in an action or proceeding for injuries caused by the acts of the unlawful detainer assistant in the performance of duties as an unlawful detainer assistant [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6412(a)]. If there is a recovery against the bond or cash deposit, the unlawful detainer assistant must file a new bond or deposit an additional amount of cash within 30 days [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6412(b)].

[e] Judicial Council Forms

The Judicial Council Forms of Complaint [see § 333.80], Summons [see § 333.100], Request/Counter-Request to Set Case for Trial [see § 333.106], Answer [see § 333.110], and Interrogatories [see § 333.120] in unlawful detainer actions all request the preparing party to set forth both of the following:

- Whether an unlawful detainer assistant, for compensation, gave advise or assistance with the forms; and

- If so, the assistant's name, address, telephone number, county of registration, registration number, and the date the assistant's registration expires.

[4] Presumptions as to Term of Lease or Rental Agreement

A hiring of real property, other than lodgings and dwelling-houses, in places where there is no custom or usage on the subject, is presumed to be a month-to-month tenancy unless otherwise designated in writing. In the case of real property used for agricultural or grazing purposes, however, a hiring is presumed to be for one year from its commencement unless otherwise expressed in the hiring [Civ. Code § 1943]. A hiring of lodgings or a dwelling-house for an unspecified term is presumed to have been for such length of time as the parties adopt for the rent's estimation. Thus, a hiring at a monthly rate of rent is presumed to be for one month. In the absence of any agreement regarding the length of time or the rent, the hiring is presumed to be monthly [Civ. Code § 1944]. Implied renewal of a lease or rental agreement is covered by Civ. Code §§ 1945 and 1946 and automatic renewal of leases is covered by Civ. Code § 1945.5.

[5] Termination of Lease or Rental Agreement

A lease or rental agreement of real property for a fixed term is normally terminated by expiration of the term for which the property is leased or rented. A tenancy for an unspecified term or a periodic tenancy, such as a tenancy from month-to-month, is terminated by an appropriate notice from the landlord to the tenant or from the tenant to the landlord [see Civ. Code § 1946; Highland Plastics, Inc. v. Enders (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 6, 167 Cal. Rptr. 353] . A tenancy may be prematurely terminated for nonpayment of rent or other breach of covenant or condition by the giving of a three-day notice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2)-(4); see also § 333.10]. The landlord and tenant may, however, in their lease, provide for a longer period of notice [Fifth & Broadway Partnership v. Kimny, Inc. (1980) 102 Cal. App.

3d 195, 200, 162 Cal. Rptr. 271] . The tenancy is not terminated on the giving of the notice, but, rather, on expiration of the notice period, and no cause of action for eviction exists until after the tenancy is terminated [Highland Plastics, Inc. v. Enders (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 167 Cal. Rptr. 353] .

A tenancy may also be terminated (1) by the tenant because of the landlord's breach of the covenant to repair dilapidations rendering the premises untenantable [see Civ. Code § 1942(a)]; and (2) by the landlord as a result of the tenant's abandonment of the leased premises [see Civ. Code §§ 1951.2, 1951.3].

[6] Restrictions on Acts of Landlord of Residential Property

Landlords may not willfully do any of the following with the intent to terminate the occupancy under any lease or other tenancy or estate at will, however created, of property used by a tenant for his or her residence:

- Cause, directly or indirectly, the interruption or termination of any utility service, including without limitation, water, heat, light, electricity, gas, phone, elevator, or refrigeration, whether or not the utility service is under the landlord's control [Civ. Code § 789.3(a)];

- Prevent the tenant from gaining reasonable access to the property by changing the locks or using a bootlock or by any other similar method or device [Civ. Code § 789.3(b)(1)];

- Remove outside doors or windows [Civ. Code § 789.3(b)(2)]; or

- Remove the tenant's personal property, furnishings, or any other items from the premises without the tenant's prior written consent, except when done in accordance with the procedure set forth in Civ. Code §§ 1980-1991 [Civ. Code § 789.3(b)(3); see § 333.14[8]].

Civ. Code § 789.3(b) is not to be construed to prevent the lawful eviction of a tenant by appropriate legal authorities, nor does it apply to occupancies defined by Civ. Code § 1940(b) (transient occupancy in hotel, motel, residence club, or other facility, or occupancy at hotel or motel where innkeeper retains right of access and control and provides specified services) [Civ. Code § 789.3(b)].

A landlord who violates Civ. Code § 789.3 is liable to the tenant as provided in Civ. Code § 789.3(c) and (d).

PRACTICE TIP:

Overlap Between Civ. Code § 789.3 and Forcible Entry and Detainer. There is substantial overlap between the forcible entry and detainer provisions [see Part C, below] and Civ. Code § 789.3. Keep in mind that while the forcible entry and detainer provisions do not provide for attorney's fees for the prevailing party, Civ. Code § 789.3 does [see Civ. Code § 789.3(d)]. By Myron Moskovitz

[7] Tenancies in Mobilehome Parks

[a] Governing Law

Tenancies in mobilehome parks are governed by the Mobilehome Residency Law [Civ. Code § 798 et seq.], which is discussed at length in Ch. 369, Mobilehomes and Mobilehome Parks .

The manner in which tenancies may be terminated under the Mobilehome Residency Law are set forth in Civ. Code §§ 798.55-798.61. However, except as otherwise provided, these statutes do not affect any rights or proceedings set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1159 et seq. (unlawful detainer, forcible entry, and forcible detainer provisions) [Civ. Code § 798.60; see Palmer v. Agee (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 377, 384-385, 150 Cal. Rptr. 841 (involving predecessor statutes)].

[b] Notice Required to Terminate Mobilehome Park Tenancy

The management (that is, the park owner or the owner's agent or representative) may terminate or refuse to renew a tenancy for one or more of the reasons specified in Civ. Code § 798.56 [see [c], below] on giving the homeowner written notice to remove the mobilehome from the park within a period of not less than 60 days. The notice must be given in the manner prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1162 (see § 333.11) [Civ. Code § 798.55(b); see § 332.78 (form for notifying tenant of intention not to renew or to terminate tenancy in mobilehome park)].

A homeowner must give the management written notice of not less than 60 days before vacating his or her tenancy [Civ. Code § 798.59].

[c] Grounds for Termination by Management

Tenancy in a mobilehome park may be terminated by management for the following reasons [Civ. Code § 798.56]:

- Failure to comply with a local ordinance, state law, or regulation relating to mobilehomes within a reasonable time after receiving a notice of noncompliance from the appropriate governmental agency.

- Conduct on the park premises constituting a substantial annoyance to other homeowners or residents.

- Failure to comply with a reasonable park rule or regulation as set forth in the rental agreement or any amendment to it within seven days after written notice of the alleged violation. However, no written notice is required if a homeowner has been given a written notice of an alleged violation of the same rule or regulation on three or more occasions within a 12-month period.

- Nonpayment of rent, utility charges, or reasonable incidental service charges, provided the homeowner is given a three-day written notice to pay the amount due or vacate the tenancy [see § 332.78].

- Condemnation of the mobilehome park.

- Change of use (defined in Civ. Code § 798.10) of the mobilehome park or any portion of it, provided specified notice requirements are met.

- The homeowner or resident has been convicted of prostitution, an assault with a firearm on another person or on a peace officer or firefighter engaged in the performance of his or her duties [Pen. Code §§ 243(d), 245(a)(2), (b)], lewd or lascivious acts involving children [Pen. Code § 288], arson [Pen. Code § 451], or a felony controlled-substance offense, if the act resulting in the conviction was committed anywhere on the premises of the mobilehome park including, but not limited to, within the homeowner's mobilehome. The tenancy may not be terminated, however, if the person convicted of the offense has permanently vacated, and does not subsequently reoccupy, the mobilehome.

However, no tenancy in a mobilehome park may be terminated for the purpose of making a homeowner's site available for a person who purchased or proposes to purchase, or rents or proposes to rent, a mobilehome from the mobilehome park owner or the park owner's agent [Civ. Code § 798.58].

[d] Attorney's Fees and Costs

In any action arising out of the provisions of the Mobilehome Residency Law, the prevailing party is entitled to reasonable attorney's fees and costs [Civ. Code § 798.85; see Palmer v. Agee (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 377, 386-388, 150 Cal. Rptr. 841 (affirming portion of unlawful detainer judgment granting defendant's judgment on the pleadings and reversing portion denying defendant's attorney's fees)].

[8] Tenancies in Recreational Vehicle Parks

[a] Governing Law and Definitions

Tenancies in recreational vehicle parks are governed by the Recreational Vehicle Park Occupancy Law, which is set forth at Civ. Code § 799.20 et seq. "Recreational vehicle park" is defined as any area or tract of land, or a separate designated section within a mobilehome park, where two or more lots are rented, leased, held out for rent or lease, or were formerly held out for rent or lease and later converted to a subdivision, cooperative, condominium or other form of resident ownership, to accommodate owners or users of recreational vehicles, camping cabins, or tents [Civ. Code § 799.30; Health & Safety Code § 18862.39; see Health & Safety Code §§ 18010 ("recreational vehicle" defined), 18862.5 ("camping cabin" defined)]. "Tenant" is defined as an owner or operator of a recreational vehicle who has been an occupant in a recreational vehicle park for more than 30 consecutive days [Civ. Code § 799.32]. "Resident" is defined as a tenant who has occupied a lot in a park for nine months or more [Civ. Code § 799.31].

[b] Notice Required to Terminate Recreational Vehicle Park Tenancy

If a person has occupied a lot for more than 30 days but less than nine months [see Civ. Code §§ 799.31, 799.32], the tenancy may be terminated for failure to pay rent or service charges if the rent has been unpaid for five days and a three-day notice to vacate or pay rent has been given thereafter. The three-day notice must be served in the same manner as an unlawful detainer three-day notice [Civ. Code § 799.65; see § 333.11]. Management may terminate the tenancy for any other reason on 30 days' notice [Civ. Code § 799.66].

If a person has occupied a lot for more than nine months [see Civ. Code § 799.31], management may terminate a tenancy only for specified causes and on 60 days' written notice. The 60-day notice must be served in the same manner as an unlawful detainer three-day notice [Civ. Code § 799.70; see § 333.11].

Evictions of tenants are subject to the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1159 et seq. (unlawful detainer, forcible entry, and forcible detainer provisions) [Civ. Code §§ 799.69, 799.71].

Removal of recreational vehicles of defaulting occupants on 72-hour notice is governed by Civ. Code §§ 799.55-799.59 [see § 332.80].

[c] Attorney's Fees and Costs

In any action arising out of the provisions of the Recreational Vehicle Park Occupancy Law, the prevailing party is entitled to reasonable attorney's fees and costs [Civ. Code § 799.78].

[9] Tenancies in Floating Home Marinas

Lease of rental space for a boat in a marina is subject to unlawful detainer because the space is real property [Smith v. Municipal Court (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 685, 688-689, 245 Cal. Rptr. 300] . However, there are special limitations on unlawful detainer actions, including a requirement of cause for eviction, that apply to floating home marinas [see Civ. Code § 800.70 et seq.]. The rules and limitations applicable to floating home marinas are similar to those applicable to mobilehome parks, which are discussed in [7], above.

[10] Order for Payment of Rent by Gasoline Dealer Into Court

In any unlawful detainer proceeding brought by a petroleum distributor against the gasoline dealer, the court may, at the time either party requests it, require the tenant to make rental payments into the court, for the landlord, at the contract rate, pending the case's resolution [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(a)]. For discussion of the regulation of the nonrenewal or termination of petroleum distributors and other franchises, see Ch. 515, Securities and Franchise Regulation .

[11] Parties to Proceeding; Effect of Nonjoinder

No person other than the tenant and any subtenant in the actual occupation of the premises when the complaint is filed need be made defendants, and no proceeding may abate, nor may plaintiff be nonsuited, for the nonjoinder of any person who might have been named as a defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1164]. However, a judgment may be rendered only against parties who were served with process or appeared in the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1164]. Thus, a judgment may not be entered against one not a party to the proceeding, although one not named as a party in the original complaint may be made a party by amendment of the complaint in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 473 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1177; Fifth & Broadway Partnership v. Kimny, Inc. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 195, 199, 162 Cal. Rptr. 271] . Consequently, if the landlord wants to evict all persons on the premises, he or she should join as defendants all adults on the premises, either by their true names or by fictitious names [see Arrieta v. Mahon (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 381, 393, 182 Cal. Rptr. 770, 644 P.2d 1249 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 474; § 333.80]. If a defendant became a subtenant of the premises after the notice provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2) (notice to pay rent or quit) was served on the tenant, the fact that the notice was not served on each subtenant constitutes no defense to the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1164].

Except as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1164, the provisions of Part Two of the Code of Civil Procedure relating to parties to civil actions [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 367-389.5] apply to proceedings in unlawful detainer [Code Civ. Proc. § 1165].

[12] Protection for Servicemembers and Dependents

Under the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act [50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.], a servicemember or dependents of the servicemember may not be evicted from any premises occupied or intended to be occupied primarily as a residence and for which the agreed rental is not more than $2,400 per month (subject to adjustment for inflation), without leave of court [50 U.S.C. App. § 531(a); see 50 U.S.C. App. §§ 511 (definitions), 514, 516, 538 (additional persons protected)]. The court may stay the proceedings for up to 90 days, unless the court determines that justice and equity require a longer or shorter period of time, or adjust the obligations under the lease to preserve the interests of all parties [50 U.S.C. App. § 531(b)]. Any person knowingly taking part in any eviction or distress other than as provided in 50 U.S.C. App. § 531(a), or who so attempts, is guilty of a misdemeanor and subject to imprisonment not to exceed one year and/or a fine [50 U.S.C. App. § 531(c)(1)].

In addition, state legislation offers temporary protection from the enforcement of civil liabilities for officers and enlisted members of the National Guard called or ordered into active state or federal service and reservists of the United States Military Reserve who have been on full-time active service or duty since September 11, 2001 [see 2002 Stats., ch. 60, § 1; Mil. & Vet. Code § 400 et seq.]. If premises are occupied primarily for dwelling purposes by the spouse, children, or other dependents of a service member called to active service or duty, no eviction or distress can be made until 30 days after the service member is released from active service or duty, except on leave of court granted on application therefor or granted in an action or proceeding affecting the right of possession [Mil. & Vet. Code § 406(a); see Mil. & Vet. Code § 400(a) ("service member" defined), (b) ("military service" defined)]. Any person who knowingly takes part in any eviction or distress other than as permitted by Mil. & Vet. Code § 406(a), or who attempts to do so, is guilty of a misdemeanor [Mil. & Vet. Code § 406(c)].

The court, on its own motion or on application, may stay the proceedings for the period specified in Mil. & Vet. Code § 406(a) [Mil. & Vet. Code § 406(b)]. Rather than granting a complete stay, the court may require the tenant to make regular partial payments during the service member's period of military service, or the court may make any other order that it finds to be just [Mil. & Vet. Code § 406(b)]. The court may deny the stay if it finds that the ability of the tenant to pay the agreed rent is not materially affected by the military service [Mil. & Vet. Code § 406(b)].

These protections apply to service members on active service or duty since September 11, 2001. However, the protections apply prospectively from June 20, 2002 (date bill was signed into law) [Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.11]. Dependents of service members are also entitled to these benefits unless the court finds that the dependents' ability to comply with the terms of the obligation has not been materially impaired by the military service of the person on whom the applicants are dependent [Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.5].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Evicting a Tenant

29-333 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 333.13

§ 333.13 Unlawful Detainer Litigation

[1] Venue

Subject to the power of a court to transfer actions and proceedings, the county in which the real property that is the subject of the action, or some part of it, is situated, is the proper county for the trial of an action for the recovery of real property [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1)]. With regard to subvenue, the proper court location for trial of a proceeding for an unlawful detainer is the location where the court tries that type of proceeding that is nearest or most accessible to where the real property that is the subject of the action, or some part of it, is situated [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(b)]. Otherwise, any location of the superior court designated as the proper court under Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a) is a proper court location for the trial. The court may specify by local rule the nearest or most accessible court location where the court tries that type of case [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(b)].

The primary purpose of a proceeding in unlawful detainer (or forcible entry or forcible detainer) is to recover possession of real property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(a); Gray v. Whitmore (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 1, 17-18, 94 Cal. Rptr. 904] . Hence, venue for these proceedings is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 392 [see Childs v. Eltinge (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 843, 851, 105 Cal. Rptr. 864 (unlawful detainer); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1177 (application of Part Two of Code of Civil Procedure, Code Civ. Proc. §§ 307-1062.20, to these proceedings)]. For further discussion of venue of civil actions, see Ch. 571, Venue .

[2] Jurisdiction

An unlawful detainer (or forcible entry or forcible detainer) proceeding for which the whole amount of damages claimed is $25,000 or less, is a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(4)]. Limited civil cases are within the jurisdiction of the superior court [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86].

A plaintiff completing the Judicial Council's Unlawful Detainer Complaint form [see § 333.80[1]] must set forth information regarding the court's "Jurisdiction." The plaintiff must check one (or more) of the appropriate boxes, that is, that the action is:

- A "Limited Civil Case" in which the amount demanded either does not exceed $10,000 or exceeds $10,000 but does not exceed $25,000;

- An "Unlimited Civil Case" (amount demanded exceeds $25,000); and/or

- An action "reclassified" from (1) unlawful detainer to general unlimited civil (possession not in issue); (2) unlawful detainer to general limited civil (possession not in issue); (3) limited to unlimited; and/or (4) unlimited to limited [see [3][c], below (reclassification)].

[3] The Complaint

[a] Verification, Contents, and Attachments

[i] Complaint Must Be Verified and Must Properly Describe Premises

A complaint for unlawful detainer [see §§ 333.80 -333.88 for sample complaints] must be verified and include the typed or printed name of the verifying person. The complaint must set forth the facts on which the plaintiff seeks to recover [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(a)(1), (2); Delta Imports, Inc. v. Municipal Court (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 1033, 1036, 194 Cal. Rptr. 685] . It must also describe the premises with reasonable certainty [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(a)(3)]. That is, the property must be described in the complaint with such certainty as to enable an officer, on executing a judgment, to identify it [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 455, 1177]. Thus, it has been held that a piece of real property known by some name may be sufficiently described by use of the name [Hildreth v. White (1885) 66 Cal. 549, 550, 6 P. 454 (action for ejectment)]. In unlawful detainer proceedings in which there are no title problems and only the right to possession is involved, it is customary to describe the premises by street address, apartment number, if any, city, county, and zip code [see, e.g., Judicial Council Form of Complaint for unlawful detainer cases, as set forth in § 333.80[1], Paragraph 3].

[ii] Tenant's Unlawful Possession Must Be Plead

Because a proceeding in unlawful detainer involves a forfeiture of the tenant's right to possession, one of the matters that must be pled and proved is that the tenant remains in unlawful possession of the premises. If the tenant has surrendered possession of the premises to the landlord before the complaint's filing, the landlord's remedy is not a proceeding for unlawful detainer but, rather, an action for damages and rent [Briggs v. Electronic Memories & Magnetics Corp. (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 900, 906, 126 Cal. Rptr. 34 ; see also § 333.30].

[iii] Alleging Facts Surrounding Notice to Quit

When a written notice to quit the premises, or to pay rent or quit, or to perform a covenant or quit, is a condition precedent to maintaining a proceeding for unlawful detainer, the giving of the notice must be alleged in the complaint [see Delta Imports, Inc. v. Municipal Court (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 1033, 1036, 194 Cal. Rptr. 685 ; Samuels v. Singer (1934) 1 Cal. App. 2d 545, 549, 36 P.2d 1098] . Although the notice may be alleged either verbatim or according to its legal effect [Zucco v. Farullo (1918) 37 Cal. App. 562, 568, 174 P. 929] , a complaint that merely alleges that the defendant was given notice is insufficient. The complaint must allege that the notice was written, that it specified the breach or default on which the termination was based, that it unequivocally demanded possession within three days, or if the condition or covenant allegedly violated was capable of being performed, that the notice gave the tenant the alternative of performing the covenant or condition or of quitting possession [Delta Imports, Inc. v. Municipal Court (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 1033, 1036-1037, 194 Cal. Rptr. 685] . The complaint must also allege that the notice expired without the tenant performing the covenant or vacating the premises. This requirement can be met by attaching a copy of the notice to the complaint and incorporating it into the complaint by reference [see Wilson v. Sadleir (1915) 26 Cal. App. 357, 359, 146 P. 1061] .

[iv] Allegations of Fraud, Force, or Violence

The complaint may set forth any circumstances of fraud, force, or violence that may have accompanied the alleged unlawful detainer (or forcible entry or forcible detainer) and claim damages for them [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(b)].

[v] Alleging Method Used to Serve Defendant with Notice of Termination

The complaint must state specifically the method used to serve the defendant with the notice or notices of termination on which the complaint is based. This requirement may be satisfied by using and completing all items relating to service of the notice or notices in an appropriate Judicial Council form complaint, or by attaching a proof of service of the notice or notices of termination served on the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(a)(5)].

[vi] Attachments

In addition to the allegations noted in [i]-[v], above, in an action regarding residential real property, the plaintiff must attach to the complaint both of the following:

- A copy of the notice or notices of termination served on the defendant on which the complaint is based [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(c)(1)(A)]; and

- A copy of any written lease or rental agreement regarding the premises. In addition, any addenda or attachments to the lease or written agreement that form the basis of the complaint must also be attached [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(c)(1)(B)]. However, the documents required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(c)(1)(B) are not required to be attached if the complaint alleges (1) that the lease or rental agreement is oral; (2) that a written lease or rental agreement regarding the premises is not in the possession of the landlord or any agent or employee of the landlord; or (3) an action based solely on Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2) (that is, when tenant continues in possession without landlord's permission after default in payment of rent and service of three-day notice to pay rent or quit) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(c)(1)(B)].

If the plaintiff fails to attach the documents required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(c), the court must grant leave to amend the complaint for a five-day period in order to include the required attachments [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(c)(2)].

[b] Proceeding Filed in Proper Court

The complaint must state facts showing that the proceeding has been commenced in the proper superior court for trial and is a proceeding for unlawful detainer. These facts may be set forth in a separate affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) filed with the complaint and served with the summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 396a(a)]. If this is not done, the proceeding must be dismissed without prejudice, unless the court, on such terms as may be just, permits the affidavit (or declaration) to be filed after the filing of the complaint and a copy served on the defendant. If this is done, the defendant's time to answer or plead dates from the service [Code Civ. Proc. § 396a(a)].

If it appears that the court is not the proper court or court location for trial, the court must, on its own motion or on the motion of the defendant, order the proceeding transferred to the proper court unless the defendant is represented by counsel and consents in writing, or in open court, to the keeping of the proceeding in the court in which it was commenced [Code Civ. Proc. § 396a(b)]. If transfer is ordered and the summons was served before the filing of the proceeding in the transferee court, the time for any defendant so served who has not appeared to answer dates from service on the defendant of written notice of the filing in the transferee court [Code Civ. Proc. § 396a(c)].

[c] Reclassification

[i] Reclassification of Initial Pleading

If the caption of the complaint or cross-complaint filed in the superior court mistakenly fails to state that the proceeding is a limited civil case, the defendant (or the cross-defendant, as the case may be) may file a motion for reclassification within the time allowed to respond to the initial pleading [see § 333.13[3][d]]. A motion for reclassification does not extend the defendant's time to answer or otherwise respond to the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 403.040(a)]. For thorough discussion of reclassification and related forms, see Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter .

The court, on its own motion, may also reclassify a case at any time [Code Civ. Proc. § 403.040(a)]. However, the court is not required to reclassify a proceeding because the judgment to be rendered, as determined at the trial or hearing, is one that might have been rendered in a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 403.040(c)]. Furthermore, in any case when the misclassification is due solely to an excess in the amount of the demand, the excess may be remitted and the proceeding may continue as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 403.040(d)].

If a defendant or cross-defendant files a motion for reclassification after the time allowed to respond to the complaint, cross-complaint, or other initial pleading, the court must grant the motion if both of the following conditions are satisfied [Code Civ. Proc. § 403.040(b)]:

- The caption of the initial pleading misstates the jurisdictional classification of the proceeding, or mistakenly fails to state that the proceeding is a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 403.040(b)(1)]; and

- The moving party shows good cause for not seeking reclassification earlier [Code Civ. Proc. § 403.040(b)(2)].

[ii] Reclassification of Amended Pleading

If a plaintiff (or a cross-complainant as the case may be) files an amended complaint or other amended initial pleading that changes the jurisdictional classification from that previously stated in the caption, and simultaneously pays the reclassification fees as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 403.060(a) and Gov. Code § 70619 [see § 333.13[3][c][iv]], the clerk must promptly reclassify the case [Code Civ. Proc. § 403.020(a)]. An amendment to an initial pleading is treated in the same manner as an amended initial pleading [Code Civ. Proc. § 403.020(b)].

[iii] Reclassification by Cross-Complaint

If a cross-complainant in a limited civil case files a cross-complaint that causes the proceeding to exceed the maximum amount in controversy for a limited civil case, or otherwise fails to satisfy the requirements for a limited civil case as prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 85, the caption of the cross-complaint must state that the proceeding is a limited civil case to be reclassified by cross-complaint, or words to that effect. The cross-complainant must pay the reclassification fees as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 403.060(a) and Gov. Code § 70619 [see § 333.13[3][c][iv]], and the clerk must promptly reclassify the case [Code Civ. Proc. § 403.030].

[iv] Determination of Reclassification Fees

The fee for reclassification of a case from a limited civil case to an unlimited civil case is $140 [Code Civ. Proc. § 403.060(a); Gov. Code § 70619]. This reclassification fee is in addition to any other fee due for that appearance or filing in a limited civil case. No additional amounts may be charged for appearance or filing fees paid before reclassification. After reclassification, the fees ordinarily charged in an unlimited case must be charged [Code Civ. Proc. § 403.060(a)]. If a reclassification fee is required and is not paid at the time an amended complaint or other initial pleading, cross-complaint, or stipulation for reclassification is filed under Code Civ. Proc. § 403.020, 403.030, or 403.050, the clerk may not reclassify the case [Code Civ. Proc. § 403.060(b)].

No fee may be charged for reclassification of a case from an unlimited civil case to a limited civil case. The fees ordinarily required for filing or appearing in a limited civil case must be charged at the time of filing a pleading that reclassifies the case. Parties are not entitled to a refund of the difference between any fees previously paid for appearance or filing in an unlimited civil case and the fees due in a limited civil case. After reclassification, the fees ordinarily charged in a limited civil case will be charged [Code Civ. Proc. § 403.060(c)].

[v] Nonpayment of Reclassification Fees

If the fees have not been paid as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 403.060 [see [iv], above] within five days after service of notice of the order for reclassification, any party interested in the case, regardless of whether that party is named in the complaint, may pay the fees, and the clerk must promptly reclassify the case [Code Civ. Proc. § 403.040(d)].

The cause of action must not be further prosecuted until the reclassification fees are paid. If the fees are not paid within 30 days after service of notice of an order for reclassification, the court, on its own motion or on the motion of any party, may dismiss the proceeding without prejudice on the condition that no other action on the cause may be commenced in another court before the reclassification fees are paid [Code Civ. Proc. § 403.040(d)].

[vi] Effect of Reclassification Order

A proceeding that is reclassified is deemed to have been commenced at the time the complaint was initially filed, not at the time of reclassification [Code Civ. Proc. § 403.070(a)].

The court has the same authority over the reclassified proceeding as if the proceeding had been originally commenced as reclassified. The court may allow or require whatever amendment of the pleadings, filing and service of amended, additional, or supplemental pleadings, or giving of notice, or other appropriate action, as may be necessary for the proper presentation and determination of the proceeding as reclassified [Code Civ. Proc. § 403.070(b)].

[vii] Appeal of Order to Grant or Deny Motion to Reclassify Proceeding

When an order is made by the superior court granting or denying a motion to reclassify a proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 403.040 [see § 333.13[3][c][i]], the party aggrieved by the order may, within 20 days after service of a written notice of the order, petition the court of appeal for the district in which the court granting or denying the motion is situated for a writ of mandate requiring proper classification of the proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 403.040 [Code Civ. Proc. § 403.080]. The superior court may, for good cause, and before the expiration of the initial 20-day period, extend the time for one additional period not to exceed 10 days. The petitioner must file a copy of the petition in the superior court immediately after the petition is filed in the court of appeal. The court of appeal may stay all proceedings in the case, pending judgment on the petition becoming final. The clerk of the court of appeal must file with the clerk of the superior court a copy of any final order or final judgment immediately after the order or judgment becomes final [Code Civ. Proc. § 403.080].

[d] Summons

On the complaint's filing, a summons must be issued [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(d)]. The summons must be in the form specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 412.20 (contents of summons in civil action), except that the defendant's time to respond to the complaint is five days (rather than 30 days), including Saturdays and Sundays but excluding all other judicial holidays, after the defendant has been served with the summons. If the last day for filing the response falls on a Saturday or Sunday, the response period is extended to and includes the next court day [Code Civ. Proc. § 1167; see § 333.100 (Judicial Council form of summons for mandatory use in unlawful detainer proceedings)]. In all other regards, the summons is issued, served, and returned in the same manner as a summons in a civil action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1167; for full discussion, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

The requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 1167 that the defendant answer or otherwise plead to the complaint within five days after the summons is served does not violate the due process or equal protection clauses of the federal or state constitutions (U.S. Const., amend. XIV; Cal. Const., art. I, § 7) [Deal v. Municipal Court (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 991, 994, 998, 204 Cal. Rptr. 79] .

However, because Code Civ. Proc. § 1167 provides a response time of only five days, as contrasted to the 30 days normally allowed a defendant in a civil action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 412.20(a)(3)], service of a five days' summons on a complaint that fails to state a cause of action for unlawful detainer (or forcible entry or forcible detainer) is defective in illegally purporting to shorten the defendant's time to plead and hence does not give the court jurisdiction over the defendant [see Greene v. Municipal Court (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 446, 451-452, 124 Cal. Rptr. 139 (unlawful detainer)]. Service of the summons in such a case would be subject to a motion to quash [see § 333.20].

[e] Access to Court Records

The clerk may allow access to records in any unlawful detainer action filed as a limited civil case, including the court file, index, and register of actions, only as follows [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161.2(a)]:

- To a party to the action, including a party's attorney;

- To any person who provides the clerk with the names of at least one plaintiff and one defendant and the address of the premises, including the apartment or unit number, if any;

- To a resident of the premises who provides the clerk with the name of one of the parties or the case number and shows proof of residency;

- To any person by order of the court, which may be granted ex parte, on a showing of good cause [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161.2(b) (good cause includes, but is not limited to, gathering newsworthy facts)]; and

- To any other person 60 days after the complaint has been filed. However, if a defendant prevails in the action within 60 days of the filing of the complaint, the clerk may only allow access to the persons listed in the items above.

On the filing of a case so restricted, the clerk of the court must mail notice to each defendant named in the complaint at the address in the complaint. The contents of the notice are prescribed by statute. The notice does not constitute service of the summons and complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161.2(c)].

The purpose of these restrictions is to prevent unscrupulous eviction defense services from searching court records and contacting defendants in newly filed unlawful detainer actions to offer fraudulent and erroneous advice regarding the attempted eviction [Stats. 1991, ch. 1007, § 1]. However, the fact the statute is directed at organizations that represent tenants does not mean it is inapplicable to organizations that represent landlords. Thus, a tenant screening company may not obtain a blanket order under Code Civ. Proc. § 1161.2 allowing it access to all unlawful detainer filings [U.D. Registry, Inc. v. Municipal Court (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 671, 675, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 788] .

The restrictions do not apply to a case that seeks to terminate a mobilehome park tenancy if the statement of the proceeding's character in the caption of the complaint clearly indicates that the complaint seeks termination of a mobilehome park tenancy [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161.2(e)].

[4] Prejudgment Claim of Right to Possession

[a] Availability

In addition to serving the summons and complaint on a tenant or a subtenant, if any, a landlord may have a form of prejudgment claim of right to possession served on other adult occupants who are not named in the complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 415.46(a), (b)]. Service of the form cuts off the right of unnamed occupants to raise a postjudgment challenge in the unlawful detainer action; an occupant who is served with a summons, complaint, and prejudgment claim of right to possession has only a 10-day period after service in which to file his or her prejudgment claim and be added as a defendant in the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.25(a), (b); see also § 333.13[4][c]]. After that period, the occupant may not object to enforcement of a resulting judgment for possession of the premises by any postjudgment proceeding [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 415.46(e), 715.020(d); see also § 333.13[4][b][ii]].

Although all occupants are not named as defendants, the judgment and the writ of possession will apply to all tenants, subtenants, if any, named claimants, if any, and any other occupants of the premises, and the levying officer will be empowered to remove the unnamed occupants from the property [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 715.010(b)(7) (contents of writ), 715.020(c), (d) (removal by levying officer)]. For discussion and forms relating to a writ of possession of real property generally, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments .

If the landlord does not have the unnamed occupants served with the form of prejudgment claim of right to possession, Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.3 provides a postjudgment procedure by which an occupant not named in the judgment may stop his or her eviction by filing or presenting the levying officer with a claim of right to possession [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.3(b), (c); see also § 333.14[4][b]].

[b] Service

[i] Requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 415.46

Code Civ. Proc. § 415.46(a) authorizes service of the form of prejudgment claim of right to possession on "any person who appears to be or who may claim to have occupied the premises at the time of the filing of the action." This language makes it somewhat unclear whether service is authorized on all current occupants, on all persons who may have been occupants when the action was filed, or both. Read together with Code Civ. Proc. § 415.46(c) (discussed below), which directs the process server to serve any other identifiable adult occupants, whether present or absent, as well as all unidentified occupants who may claim to occupy the premises at the time the action was filed, it appears that Code Civ. Proc. § 415.46(a) is intended to authorize service on any person who appears to be occupying the premises or who may claim to have occupied the premises at the time of the filing of the action.

Service of the prejudgment claim of right to possession must be effected by a marshal, sheriff, or registered process server [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.46(b)]. Service must be made at the same time that service is made on the tenant or subtenant [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.46(a)].

When serving the summons and complaint on a tenant and subtenant, if any, the marshal, sheriff, or registered process server must make a reasonably diligent effort to ascertain whether there are other adult occupants of the premises who are not named in the summons and complaint by inquiring of the person or persons who are being personally served, or any other person of suitable age who appears to reside on the premises, whether there are other occupants of the premises [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.46(c)]. If the identity of such an occupant is disclosed to the officer or process server and the occupant is present at the premises, the officer or process server must serve that occupant with a copy of the prejudgment claim of right to possession attached to the summons and complaint. If personal service cannot be made on that occupant at that time, service may be effected by leaving a copy of a prejudgment claim of right to possession attached to a copy of the summons and complaint addressed to that occupant with a person of suitable age and discretion at the premises, affixing the same so that it is not readily removable in a conspicuous place on the premises in a manner most likely to give actual notice to that occupant, and sending a copy of the same addressed to that occupant by registered mail [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.46(c)]. The form prescribed is set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 415.46(f) and is reproduced in § 333.136.

In addition to the service on an identified occupant, or if no occupant is disclosed to the officer or process server, or if substituted service in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 415.45 is made on the tenant and subtenant, the officer or process server must serve a prejudgment claim of right to possession for all other persons who may claim to occupy the premises at the time of the filing of the action by leaving and affixing a copy of a prejudgment claim of right to possession attached to a copy of the summons and complaint at the premises in the same manner as set forth above, and sending the same addressed to "all occupants in care of the named tenant" by first-class mail [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.46(c)].

The person serving process must also state the date of service on the form of prejudgment claim of right to possession. The absence of the date of service on the form, however, does not invalidate the claim [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.46(c); for discussion of the time for filing the claim, see § 333.13[4][c]].

Proof of service must be filed with the court and must include a statement that service was made in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 415.46. Service on occupants does not alter or affect service on the tenant or subtenant [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.46(d)].

[ii] Effect of Service

If an owner or his or her agent has directed and obtained service of a prejudgment claim of right to possession in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 415.46, no occupant of the premises, whether or not named in the judgment for possession, may object to the enforcement of the judgment under the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.3 in any post judgment proceeding (discussed at § 333.14[4][b]) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 415.46(e), 715.020(d)].

[c] Filing of Claim by Occupant

[i] Requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.25

Any occupant who is served with a prejudgment claim of right to possession may file a claim with the court within 10 days of the date of service of the prejudgment claim to right of possession as shown on the return of service. The 10-day period includes Saturday and Sunday, but excludes all other judicial holidays. If the last day for filing the claim falls on a Saturday or Sunday, the filing period is extended up to and including the next court day [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.25(a)].

Filing the prejudgment claim to right of possession constitutes a general appearance for which a fee is collected [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.25(a); see Gov. Code § 70614].

For a form of prejudgment claim of right to possession, see § 333.105.

[ii] Effect of Filing Claim

At the time of filing, the claimant will be added as a defendant in the unlawful detainer action. The clerk must notify the plaintiff that the claimant has been added as a defendant by mailing a copy of the claim filed with the court to the plaintiff with a notation so indicating [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.25(b)]. The claimant must answer or otherwise respond to the summons and complaint within five days, including Saturdays and Sundays but excluding all other judicial holidays, after filing the prejudgment claim of possession. Thereafter, the name of the claimant must be added to any pleading, filing, or form filed in the unlawful detainer action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.25(b)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Examine Court Records. It is wise to examine the court file shortly after the 10 day period as clerks often do not fulfill their function. By Benjamin Kaplan

[5] Immediate Possession

[a] Motion Required for Immediate Possession

On filing the complaint, the plaintiff may, on motion, have immediate possession of the property or premises by a writ of possession issued by the court and directed to the sheriff of the county, or to the constable or marshal, for execution when it appears to the satisfaction of the court, after a hearing on the motion, from the verified complaint and from any affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) filed or oral testimony given by or on behalf of the parties, that the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166a(a); see §§ 333.101, 333.102 (forms and discussion of application and order that summons be served by posting premises)]:

- Resides out of state;
- Has departed from the state;
- Cannot, after due diligence, be found within the state; or
- Has concealed himself or herself to avoid service of the summons.

[b] Requirement to File Undertaking

The plaintiff must file an undertaking in such sum as must be fixed and determined by the judge, to the effect that, if the plaintiff fails to recover judgment against the defendant for the possession of the premises or if the suit is dismissed, the plaintiff will pay the defendant such damages, not to exceed the amount fixed in the undertaking, as may be sustained by the defendant by reason of the dispossession under the writ of possession [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166a(c)].

[c] Order for Immediate Possession

If, at the hearing on the motion, the court finds in favor of the plaintiff and against the defendant, an order must be entered for the immediate possession of the premises [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166a(d)]. The order may be enforced as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 712.010 et seq. (relating to enforcing nonmoney judgments) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166a(e); for discussion, a procedural checklist, and forms, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments]. For purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 1166a, references in Code Civ. Proc. § 712.010 et seq. and in Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(e)-(m) [see § 333.14[8]] to the "judgment debtor" will be deemed references to the defendant, to the "judgment creditor" will be deemed references to the plaintiff, and to the "judgment of possession or sale of property" will be deemed references to an order for the immediate possession of the premises [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166a(f)].

[d] Purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 1166a

The purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 1166a, authorizing the writ of possession in an unlawful detainer proceeding, is to afford the lessor immediate possession of the premises unlawfully detained. The possession so given vests full and complete control of the premises in the lessor; the lessee is thereby evicted and his or her liability for rent under the lease is terminated from that date forward if the action thereafter results in a termination of the lease without any resumption of possession by the lessee [Garfinkle v. Montgomery (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 149, 155, 248 P.2d 52] .

[6] Provisional Remedies

[a] Attachment

The provisional remedy of attachment [Code Civ. Proc. § 481.010 et seq.] is available in an unlawful detainer proceeding [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1177]. The amount that may be secured by an attachment is set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 483.020. However, an attachment may not be issued on a claim against a defendant who is a natural person if the claim is based on the sale or lease of property and the property sold or leased was used by the defendant primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [see Code Civ. Proc. § 483.010(c)]. For a discussion and forms relating to attachment, see Ch. 62, Attachment .

[b] Receivership

In superior court a receiver may be appointed by the court in which an action or proceeding is pending, or by a judge thereof, in "an action of unlawful detainer" [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(7)]. The court may also appoint a receiver in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 564 in limited civil cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(8)]. For discussion, procedural guides, and forms relating to receivers, see Ch. 486, Receivers .

[7] Joinder With Other Claims

Generally, an unlawful detainer proceeding may not be tried with other causes, except perhaps by mutual consent of the parties because, otherwise, the purpose of the summary procedure, to afford an expeditious and adequate remedy for obtaining possession of premises wrongfully withheld by tenants, would be entirely frustrated [Childs v. Eltinge (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 843, 852-853, 105 Cal. Rptr. 864] .

[8] Discovery

Discovery is permitted in all unlawful detainer actions and might be especially worthwhile in a commercial case, depending on the amount at stake in the litigation. Counsel representing plaintiffs in residential unlawful detainer proceedings should be sure to note whether the defendant has raised as an affirmative defense a breach of the landlord's obligations under Civ. Code § 1941 or of any warranty of habitability. If so, discovery should be conducted so as to avoid any surprises at trial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.2]. Note that Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.5, which requires trials of unlawful detainer actions within 20 days of the action being at issue, usually requires a party seeking extensive discovery to obtain an extension of the trial date.

PRACTICE TIP:

Conducting Discovery in Unlawful Detainer Actions. Generally, carefully drafted requests for admission and interrogatories should be sufficient discovery in most uncomplicated residential unlawful detainer actions. In addition, the quick service of a set of form interrogatories is often productive when done early in an action. By Myron Moskovitz and Benjamin Kaplan

Notice of a motion for summary judgment must be given in compliance with Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1013 and 1170.8 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1351(a) (effective 1/1/09)]. Any opposition to the motion and any reply to an opposition may be made orally at the time of hearing or in writing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1351(b) (effective 1/1/09)]. If a party seeks to have a written opposition considered before the hearing, the written opposition must be served and filed on or before the court day before the hearing. Service must be by personal delivery, facsimile transmission, express mail, or other means consistent with Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010, 1011, 1012, and 1013, and reasonably calculated to ensure delivery to the other party or parties no later than the close of business on the court day before the hearing. The court, in its discretion, may consider written opposition filed later [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1351(c) (effective 1/1/09)].

[9] Motion for Summary Judgment

A motion for summary judgment may be made at any time after the answer is filed; five days' notice is required. Summary judgment must be granted and denied on the same basis as a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c [Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.7; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1177 (application of provisions of Part Two of Code of Civil Procedure, which includes Code Civ. Proc. § 437c, to unlawful detainer proceedings)]. Notice of a discovery motion must be given in compliance with Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1013 and 1170.7 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1347(a) (effective 1/1/09)]. Any opposition to the motion and any reply to an opposition may be made orally at the time of hearing or in writing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1347(b) (effective 1/1/09)]. If a party seeks to have a written opposition considered before the hearing, the written opposition must be served and filed on or before the court day before the hearing. Service must be by personal delivery, facsimile transmission, express mail, or other means consistent with Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010, 1011, 1012, and 1013, and reasonably calculated to ensure delivery to the other party or parties no later than the close of business on the court day before the hearing. The court, in its discretion, may consider written opposition filed later [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1347(c) (effective 1/1/09)]. For discussion, a procedural checklist, and forms for use in moving for summary judgment that may be adapted for use in an unlawful detainer proceeding, see Ch. 537, Summary Judgment .

[10] Right to Jury Trial

Whenever an issue of fact is presented by the pleadings in an unlawful detainer (or forcible entry or forcible detainer) proceeding, it must be tried by a jury, unless the right to a jury trial is waived as in other cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 1171; see Department of Transportation v. Kerrigan (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 41, 200 Cal. Rptr. 865 (defenses of breach of warranty of habitability and retaliatory eviction as legal defenses to which right to trial by jury applies)]. The jury must be formed in the same manner as other trial juries in the court in which the proceeding is pending [Code Civ. Proc. § 1171].

In unlawful detainer proceedings, the jury fees must be deposited five days before the date set for trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 631(b)].

For a general discussion of a jury's formation, the right to and waiver of jury trial, and forms for demanding or waiving trial by jury, see Ch. 322, Juries and Jury Selection .

[11] Calendar Precedence

Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.5(a) requires trials of unlawful detainer actions to be held within 20 days of cases being at issue. The court in which a proceeding for unlawful detainer is pending must give the proceeding precedence over all other civil actions, except actions to which special precedence is given by law, in setting it for hearing or trial, and hearing it, to the end that all such proceedings must be quickly heard and determined [Code Civ. Proc. § 1179a; see Fish Construction Co. v. Moselle Coach Works, Inc. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 654, 658, 196 Cal. Rptr. 174] . Nothing in Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.5, relating to time for trial and continuances [see [12], below] is to be construed to abrogate or interfere with the precedence given by Penal Code § 1050 to the trial of criminal cases over the trial of civil matters [Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.5(i)]. For further discussion and forms for use in establishing the precedence of a case, see Ch. 425, Pretrial Proceedings .

[12] Trial

[a] Notice of Trial

Before trial may be had of an issue of fact in the absence of the adverse party, proof must be made to the satisfaction of the court that the adverse party had five days' notice of trial in an unlawful detainer proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 594(a), 1177]. For a discussion of the notice of trial requirement and a form of notice of trial, see Ch. 551, Trial .

After the case is at issue and when the case has been set for trial, a copy of the notice of trial must be served on the adverse party at least 10 days before the date set for trial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 594(b)]. Either party may serve the required notice of trial on the other party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 594; for further discussion and a form of notice, see Ch. 551, Trial].

PRACTICE TIP:

Waiver of Notice of Trial. Any waiver of notice of trial should be placed in evidential form. By Benjamin Kaplan

[b] Period for Trial

If the defendant appears in an unlawful detainer proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 1170 (appearance by answer or demurrer), trial of the proceeding must be held not later than the 20th day following the date the request to set the time of trial is made, unless time is extended by the court on the agreement of all parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.5(a), (b); see [c] and [d], below]. However, if the proceeding is to evict an employee from employee housing accommodations and the answer contains specified allegations, the trial must be set not earlier than 30 days from the date the answer is filed [see Health & Safety Code § 17031.6(b)]. For procedures and forms for use in having a case set for trial, see Ch. 425, Pretrial Proceedings .

[c] Extension of Period for Trial

The court may extend the period for trial on the agreement of all of the parties, but no other extension may be granted unless the court on its own motion or the motion of a party holds a hearing and renders a decision as specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.5(c) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.5(b)].

[d] Procedure if Trial Is Not Held Within Time Specified

If trial is not held within the time specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.5, the court on its own motion or the motion of a party, on finding that there is a reasonable probability that the plaintiff will prevail in the proceeding, must determine the amount of damages, if any, to be suffered by the plaintiff by reason of the extension, and must issue an order requiring the defendant to pay that amount into court as the rent would have otherwise become due and payable or into an escrow designated by the court for so long as the defendant remains in possession pending the termination of the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.5(b), (c); see Medford v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 236, 241, 189 Cal. Rptr. 227 (statute does not authorize trial court to require deposit of past rent or damages as condition of granting continuance)]. When payments into court or the escrow designated by the court are made in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.5, the court may order that the payments be invested in an insured interest-bearing account [Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.5(g)]. Any cost for administering the escrow account is recoverable by the prevailing party as part of recoverable costs [Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.5(e)].

The determination of the amount of the payment must be based on the plaintiff's verified statement of the contract rent for rental payment, and verified objection to it filed by the defendant, and the oral or demonstrative evidence presented at the hearing. The court's determination of the amount of damages must include consideration of any evidence, presented by the parties, embracing the issue of diminution of value or of any setoff permitted by law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.5(c)]. If the defendant fails to make a payment ordered by the court, trial of the proceeding must be held within 15 days of the date payment was due [Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.5(d)].

After trial, the court must determine the distribution of the payment made into court or the escrow designated by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.5(f)]. If the payments have been invested in an insured, interest-bearing account, interest on the account must be allocated to the parties in the same proportions as the original funds are allocated [Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.5(g)].

When it appears from evidence introduced at trial that the defendant has been guilty of an unlawful detainer other than that charged in the complaint, the judge must order that the complaint be amended to conform to proof. The amendment must be made without any imposition of terms [Code Civ. Proc. § 1173]. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1173 and Code Civ.

Proc. §§ 469 and 470, which permit amendment of pleadings to conform to proof, and Code Civ. Proc. § 473, first paragraph, which permits correction of mistakes in pleadings, pleadings in unlawful detainer may be amended to conform to proof and mistakes may be corrected before or after judgment [Babcock v. Antis (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 823, 830, 156 Cal. Rptr. 673 (holding that a mere demand for daily damages or for other generalized damages in unenumerated amounts, which could be interpreted as potentially escalating the amount of the demand above the municipal court's jurisdiction, is correctable by amendment to conform to proof); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1177 generally incorporating into unlawful detainer proceedings the provisions of Part Two of the Code of Civil Procedure, which include Code Civ. Proc. §§ 467, 470, and 473].

PRACTICE TIP:

Amending Complaint. However, counsel should keep in mind that there is no possibility of amending a complaint to introduce a notice first served after the complaint has been filed. By Benjamin Kaplan

No continuance will be permitted on account of the amendment unless the defendant, by affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) filed, shows to the satisfaction of the court good cause for the continuance [Code Civ. Proc. § 1173].

[13] Judgment

Judgment must be entered on the trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.5(a)]. If required by the court, the judgment must be prepared [see Code Civ. Proc.§§ 1170.5(a), 1174, 1174.2; see also §§ 333.130 (Judicial Council form of judgment), 333.131 (Judicial Council attachment to judgment when tenant's defense that plaintiff breached covenant to provide habitable premises is sustained), 333.131B (Judicial Council stipulated judgment form)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Preparation of Judgment. In superior court actions and proceedings, the judgment is normally prepared by the prevailing party. By Myron Moskovitz

For further discussion of judgments, see Ch. 318, Judgments .

[b] Against Guilty Parties; Effect on Nonparties

When it appears that any of the parties served with process or appearing in the proceeding are guilty of the offense charged, judgment must be rendered against that party [Code Civ. Proc. § 1164]. Conversely, a judgment may not be entered against one not a party to or appearing in the proceeding [Fifth & Broadway Partnership v. Kimny, Inc. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 195, 199, 162 Cal. Rptr. 271 ; for the postjudgment procedure for securing an order evicting a tenant who was not named, see § 333.14[4]]. However, all persons who entered the premises under the tenant after the suit was commenced are bound by the judgment the same as if they had been made parties to the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1164].

[c] For Possession of Premises

If the jury's verdict or the court's findings are for the plaintiff, judgment must be entered for possession of the premises [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(a)]. However, in an unlawful detainer proceeding by a petroleum distributor against a gasoline dealer, possession must not be restored to the petroleum distributor, except as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1166a [see [5], above], unless the court determines that the petroleum distributor had good cause under Bus. & Prof. Code § 20999.1 (setting forth grounds) to terminate, cancel, or refuse to renew the gasoline dealer's franchise [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(a); see E. S. Bills, Inc. v. Tzucanow (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 824, 826-827, 215 Cal. Rptr. 278, 700 P.2d 1280] . Good cause to terminate a lease under Bus. & Prof. Code § 20999.1 is a question of fact and must be tried on its merits [

Ernst Enterprises, Inc., v. Sun Valley Gasoline, Inc. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 355, 358-359, 188 Cal. Rptr. 641] . For a discussion of the termination or nonrenewal of petroleum products franchises, see Ch. 515, Securities and Franchise Regulation .

[d] Forfeiting Lease

If the proceeding is for an unlawful detainer after the tenant's neglect or failure to perform the conditions or covenants of the lease or agreement under which the property is held, or after default in the payment of rent, the judgment for plaintiff must also declare the lease or agreement forfeited if the notice required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1161 [see § 333.10[2][d], [e]; see also §§ 332.74 -332.76] states the landlord's election to declare the forfeiture [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(a); see Saberi v. Bakhtiari (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 509, 515, 215 Cal. Rptr. 359 ; see also § 333.10[4]]. However, if the notice does not so state, the lease or agreement will not be forfeited [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(a); see § 333.10[5]].

A judgment declaring the lease or agreement forfeited does not relieve the lessee from liability under Civ. Code § 1951.2 (damages resulting from termination of lease because of lessee's breach of lease and abandonment of property) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.5].

[e] For Damages and Rent

[i] Assessment

The jury or court, as the case may be, must (1) assess the damages suffered by the plaintiff by the unlawful detainer, and (2) if the unlawful detainer be "after default" in the payment of rent, find the amount of any rent due [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(b); see Saberi v. Bakhtiari (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 509, 515, 215 Cal. Rptr. 359 (holding that "after" in term "after default," means "based on")].

For the method of determining the tenant's damages for the landlord's breach of the warranty of habitability of a residence, see § 333.28[4][d].

[ii] "Rent Found Due" and "Damages" Defined

Rent found due is the amount of rent due and unpaid under the lease or tenancy before expiration of the three-day notice demanding payment of unpaid rent or possession. Damages include the reasonable rental value of the property for the period that the tenant continues in possession after termination of the period prescribed in the notice [see Markham v. Fralick (1934) 2 Cal. 2d 221, 226, 39 P.2d 804 ; Medford v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 236, 238 n.1, 189 Cal. Rptr. 227 ; see also Roberts v. Redlich (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 566, 569, 244 P.2d 933] .

Damages are calculated according to the reasonable value of the use of the premises during the time of the unlawful detainer [Glouberman v. Coffey (1955) 138 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 906, 907 , 292 P.2d 681] . The amount agreed on between the parties as rent is evidence of the rental value of the property. However, since the proceeding is not an action on a contract but, rather, one for the recovery of possession and, incidentally, for the damages occasioned by the unlawful detainer, the rental value may be greater or less than the rent provided for in the lease or rental agreement [see Harris v. Bissell (1921) 54 Cal. App. 307, 312-313, 202 P. 453 ; Lehr v. Crosby (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 8-9, 177 Cal. Rptr. 96] . However, any amount of daily rental for continued unlawful occupancy by the defendant after judgment is not properly included in the judgment [Pfitzer v. Candeias (1921) 53 Cal. App. 737, 741, 200 P. 839 ; Lehr v. Crosby (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 177 Cal. Rptr. 96] .

Because the amount recoverable is damages, it is not limited by local rent control regulations controlling the amount of rent payable [Adler v. Elphick (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 642, 649-650, 229 Cal. Rptr. 254] .

Damages may also include those resulting from any circumstances of fraud, force, or violence that may have accompanied the alleged unlawful detainer [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(b)].

[iii] When Three-Day Notice Estimated Rent Due for Commercial Real Property

With regard to commercial real property, if the amount stated in the notice provided to the tenant under Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2) [see § 333.10[2][d]] is clearly identified by the notice as an estimate and the amount claimed is not in fact correct, but it is determined at the trial or by other judicial determination that rent was owing and the amount claimed in the notice was reasonably estimated, the tenant will be subject to a judgment for possession and the actual amount of rent and other sums found to be due [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161.1(a)].

If on receiving a notice claiming an estimated amount, however, the tenant tenders to the landlord within the time required by the notice for payment an amount that the tenant reasonably estimates to be due, and it is determined at trial that the amount of rent due was the amount tendered by the tenant or a lesser amount, the tenant is deemed the prevailing party for all purposes. If the court determines that the amount tendered by the tenant was less than the amount due, but was reasonably estimated nevertheless, the tenant will retain the right to possession if, within five days of the effective date of the judgment, he or she pays the landlord the amount previously tendered if it was not previously accepted, the difference between the amount tendered and the amount determined by the court to be due, and any other sums as ordered by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161.1(a)].

There is a presumption affecting the burden of proof that the amount of rent claimed or tendered is reasonably estimated if, in relation to the amount determined to be due at the trial or by other judicial determination of that issue, the amount claimed or tendered was no more than 20 percent more or less than the amount determined to be due. However, if the rent due is contingent on information primarily within the knowledge of one party to the lease and that information has not been furnished to, or has not accurately been furnished to the other party, the court will consider that fact in determining the reasonableness of the amount of rent claimed or tendered [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161.1(e)].

The term "commercial real property" means all real property in California except mobilehomes [see Civ. Code § 798.3 ("mobilehome" defined)], recreational vehicles [see Civ. Code § 799.24 ("recreational vehicle" defined)], or dwelling units subject to Civ. Code § 1940 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161.1(d)].

[iv] When Unpaid Rent May Not Be Recovered in Unlawful Detainer Proceeding

Pretermination rent (that is, rent accruing before termination of the period specified in the notice to quit) may be recovered in an unlawful detainer proceeding only when the landlord's right to possession is founded on the tenant's failure to pay rent following service of a three-day notice to pay rent or quit the premises under Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2) (discussed under § 333.10[2][d]) [Saberi v. Bakhtiari (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 509, 513, 215 Cal. Rptr. 359] . Pretermination rent may not be recovered in an unlawful detainer proceeding based on a 30-day notice to quit under Civ. Code § 1946 or on a notice to quit based on the violation of a covenant in the lease other than for the payment of rent [see Saberi v. Bakhtiari (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 509, 512-516, 215 Cal. Rptr. 359 ; Harris v. Bissell (1921) 54 Cal. App. 307, 313-314, 202 P. 453 ; Castle Park No. 5 v. Katherine (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 6, 154 Cal. Rptr. 498] .

However, if the unlawful detainer consists of a tenant's holding over after expiration of a three-day notice under Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3) to perform covenants to pay certain costs and expenses for maintaining the property, which were treated differently than rent in the lease, or to quit the premises, the amounts required to be paid are not rent within the meaning of the unlawful detainer statutes and may be recovered in the unlawful detainer proceeding [see Cal-American Income Property Fund IV v. Ho (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 583, 585-586, 207 Cal. Rptr. 532 (unpaid taxes assessed against demised premises and proportionate share of costs of maintaining common areas)].

[f] Prejudgment Interest

Plaintiff is entitled to prejudgment interest on the past due rent that is certain and fixed in amount at the legal rate from the date each installment became due [Sullivan v. Wellborn (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 214, 220, 195 P.2d 787 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(c); see also Civ. Code §§ 3287, 3302].

Prejudgment interest is not normally recoverable on an award based on the reasonable rental value of the property [Stockton Morris Plan Co. v. Carpenter (1936) 18 Cal. App. 2d 205, 213-214, 63 P.2d 859] . For when interest may be recovered in an action or proceeding, see generally Civ. Code §§ 3287-3289.5.

[g] Statutory Damages

If malice is shown, the plaintiff may be awarded statutory damages of up to $600, in addition to actual damages, including rent found due. The trier of fact is required to determine whether actual damages, statutory damages, or both must be awarded, and judgment must be entered accordingly [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(b)].

Under the law in effect before January 1, 1994, treble damages for malice were properly awarded if malice was pleaded and proved, but it must have also been established that defendant (1) willfully, deliberately, intentionally, and obstinately withheld possession of the property (2) with knowledge that the lease has terminated and (3) against the landlord's will [Sasson v. Katash (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 119, 126, 194 Cal. Rptr. 46 (affirming judgment awarding plaintiff $26,333.36 damages and $40,166.64 punitive damages for a total of $66,500); Fifth & Broadway Partnership v. Kimny, Inc. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 195, 204-205, 162 Cal. Rptr. 271 (affirming judgment awarding plaintiff treble damages)].

[h] Interest on Judgment

A plaintiff who obtains a judgment in his or her favor is entitled to interest on the verdict or decision of the court from the time it is rendered or made [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1177; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1802; see also Ch. 318, Judgments].

[i] When Unpaid Rent Can Be Recovered in Unlawful Detainer Proceedings

Any judgment for damages and the rent found due under Code Civ. Proc. § 1174 is a mere incident to the main object of the proceeding, which is the recovery of possession of the premises [Gray v. Whitmore (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 1, 18, 27, 94 Cal. Rptr. 904] . Hence, notwithstanding use of the word "shall" in Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(b), stating that the jury or court "shall" assess the damages [see § 333.13[13][e][i]], it has been held that the lessor is not required to litigate the issue of rental damages in the unlawful detainer proceeding, as that could delay and frustrate the primary purpose of that proceeding, which is to obtain speedy possession of the property, but may seek its recovery in a separate civil action [Northrop Corp. v. Chaparral Energy, Inc. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 725, 729-730, 214 Cal. Rptr. 173 (at time judgment for possession of property was entered in unlawful detainer proceeding, civil action was pending between parties involving issues of rent and damages for lessee's failure to surrender possession of industrial property after notice of termination of lease)].

In addition, Civ. Code § 1952(b) provides that unless the lessor amends the complaint as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1952.3(a)(1) [see § 333.30], to state a claim for damages not recoverable in the unlawful detainer proceeding, the bringing of such a proceeding does not affect the lessor's right to bring a separate action for relief under Civ. Code § 1951.2 (damages recoverable on termination of lease because of lessee's abandonment of property), Civ. Code § 1951.5 (contract provisions for liquidated damages), and Civ. Code § 1951.8 (lessor's right to any appropriate equitable relief) [see Northrop Corp. v. Chaparral Energy, Inc. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 725, 729, 214 Cal. Rptr. 173] . However, no damages may be recovered in the subsequent action for any detriment for which a claim for damages was made and determined on the merits in the unlawful detainer proceeding [Civ. Code § 1952(b)].

[j] Attorney's Fees

Claims for entitlement to attorney's fees can both impede and accelerate settlements. Attorney's fees are only recoverable if authorized by statute or contract. If a lease calls for the prevailing party to recover attorney's fees and costs incurred, this claim should be included in the memorandum of costs filed by the prevailing party following judgment. The prevailing party is either defined in a written agreement signed by the parties or determined by the trier of fact.

§ 333.14 Postjudgment Proceedings

[1] New Trial

[a] Governing Law

The provisions of Part Two of the Code of Civil Procedure relating to new trials in civil actions, except insofar as they are inconsistent with the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1159-1179a or with rules adopted by the Judicial Council, apply to proceedings for unlawful detainer (and forcible entry and forcible detainer) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1178].

The provisions governing new trials in Part Two are Code Civ. Proc. §§ 655-663.2. For a discussion of these provisions, a procedural checklist, and forms for use in moving the court for an order granting a new trial or vacating the judgment and entering another and different judgment, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial .

[b] Hardship Cases and Applications to Relieve Tenants Against Forfeiture of Lease or Rental Agreement

In cases of hardship, the court may relieve a tenant against a forfeiture of a lease or rental agreement, whether written or oral and whether or not the tenancy has terminated, and restore the tenant to his or her former estate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1179; see Childs v. Eltinge (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 843, 852 n.8, 105 Cal. Rptr. 864] . The court has the discretion to relieve any person against forfeiture on its own motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 1179].

An application for relief against forfeiture may be made at any time before restoration of the premises to the landlord [Code Civ. Proc. § 1179]. The application may be made by a tenant or subtenant, or a mortgagee of the term, or any person interested in the term's continuance. The application must be made by petition, setting forth the facts on which the relief is sought, and must be verified by the applicant. Notice of the application, with a copy of the petition, must be served at least five days before the hearing on the plaintiff in the judgment, who may appear and contest the application [Code Civ. Proc. § 1179]. Alternatively, a person appearing without an attorney may make the application orally, if the plaintiff either is present and has an opportunity to contest the application, or has been given ex parte notice of the hearing and the purpose of the oral application. In no case may the application or motion be granted except on condition that full payment of rent due, or full performance of conditions or covenants stipulated, so far as practicable, be made [

Code Civ. Proc. § 1179; see Hignell v. Gebala (1949) 90 Cal. App. 2d 61, 70-71, 202 P.2d 378] .

[c] Writ of Execution to Enforce Judgment

If the judgment after trial is for plaintiff, a writ "of execution" [sic, writ of possession; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 712.010-712.070, 715.010-715.040, 1174(d)] must be issued immediately by the court on plaintiff's request [Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.5(a)]. However, if (1) the proceeding is for an unlawful detainer after default in the payment of rent, (2) the lease or agreement under which the rent is payable has not by its terms expired, and (3) the notice required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1161 has not stated the landlord's election to declare a forfeiture, the court may, and if the lease or agreement is in writing, is for a term of more than one year and does not contain a forfeiture clause, must order that a writ will not be issued to enforce the judgment until the expiration of five days after the entry of judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(c)]. The orders referred to in Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(c) need not be stated in the judgment, however, because the statute merely regulates the time that execution on the judgment may issue and does not affect the contents of the judgment [Bloomquist v. Haley (1928) 204 Cal. 251, 253, 268 P. 367] .

Within the five-day period, the tenant, or any subtenant, or any mortgagee of the term, or any other party interested in its continuance, may pay into the court for the landlord (1) the amount found due as rent, with interest; (2) the amount of the damages found by the jury or court for the unlawful detainer; and (3) the costs of the proceedings, and thereon the judgment must be satisfied and the tenant restored to the tenant's estate. If payment is not made within five days, the judgment may be enforced for its full amount and for the possession of the premises [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(c)].

Subject to the above provisions, the judgment for possession may be enforced as provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 712.010-717.010 (relating to enforcing nonmoney judgments) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(d)].

[d] Balancing of Equities Required

The mere fact that a hardship exists, however [see [b], above], will not automatically be a basis on which to set aside the forfeiture, since hardship will exist in almost all cases if relief is not granted. Rather, the test in applying the statute involves a balancing of the equities. In balancing the equities, the court should take into consideration the circumstances of the case, any hardship to the lessee from the forfeiture, any hardship to the lessor from relieving the lessee from the forfeiture, and the willful or other character of the breach causing the forfeiture, and then use its best discretion in determining whether relief will be granted [Thrifty Oil Co. v. Batarse (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 770, 777-778, 220 Cal. Rptr. 285 (enumerating factors to be considered by trial court when forfeiture results from lessee's having sublet commercial premises without having sought lessor's consent as required by lease)].

[2] Appeals

[a] Governing Law

The provisions of Part Two of the Code of Civil Procedure relating to appeals [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 901-936.1], except insofar as they are inconsistent with the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1159-1179a or with rules adopted by the Judicial Council, apply to proceedings for unlawful detainer (and forcible entry and forcible detainer) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1178]. Because Code Civ. Proc. §§ 901-936.1 would apply without Code Civ. Proc. § 1178 by virtue of Code Civ. Proc. § 901 which expressly makes those provisions applicable to both civil actions and proceedings, it appears that the purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 1178 is to limit the applicability of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 901-936.1 to the extent of any inconsistency that may exist between those statutes and the statutes or Judicial Council rules governing unlawful detainer (and forcible entry and forcible detainer) actions.

[b] Stay of Judgment

An appeal by the defendant does not automatically stay proceedings on the judgment. To secure a stay, the appellant must first direct a petition for a stay of the judgment pending appeal to the trial judge who is required to grant it if he or she finds that the moving party will suffer extreme hardship in the absence of a stay and that the nonmoving party will not be irreparably injured by its issuance. If the trial court denies a stay, the defendant may forthwith petition the appropriate appeals court for an extraordinary writ [Code Civ. Proc. § 1176(a); see Mehr v. Superior Court (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 1044, 1048-1050, 189 Cal. Rptr. 138 (decided before 1985 amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 1176, which apparently codified holding of that case)].

If the trial or appellate court stays enforcement of the judgment, the court may impose whatever conditions it deems just. But in any case, as a condition of issuing the stay of enforcement, the court is required to order the payment of the reasonable monthly rental value to the court monthly in advance as rent would otherwise become due. "Reasonable rental value" means the contract rent unless the rental value has been modified by the trial court in which case the modified rental value is used [Code Civ. Proc. § 1176(a)].

For discussion and forms for use in taking an appeal from a superior court judgment, see Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview , et seq. For discussion and forms for use in taking an appeal from a judgment in a limited civil case, see Ch. 345A, Limited Civil Cases .

[c] Effect on New Cause of Action

A new cause of action on the same agreement for the rental of real property is not barred because of an appeal by any party [Code Civ. Proc. § 1176(b)].

[3] When Judgments Are Enforceable

Except when the proceeding is for an unlawful detainer after default in the payment of rent and the conditions set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(c) are met, the judgment may be enforced immediately [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(c)], provided (1) the judgment has not been stayed by the filing of an appeal [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1176(a); see also [2][b], above]; (2) the tenant has not been granted relief from the judgment declaring the lease or rental agreement forfeited [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1179; see also Bedi v. McMullan (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 272, 276-277, 206 Cal. Rptr. 578] ; and (3) the judgment has not been vacated on an appropriate motion [see, e.g., Stegge v. Wilkerson (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 1, 5, 10 Cal. Rptr. 867 (judgment, when vacated, cannot be effective for any purpose); see also Bedi v. McMullan (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 272, 275, 206 Cal. Rptr. 578 (default judgment that has been set aside will not support writ of execution)].

[4] Writ of Possession

[a] Issuance and Contents

A judgment for possession of real property may be enforced by a writ of possession of real property issued under Code Civ. Proc. § 712.010 [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 681.010(c), 715.010, 1174(d)]. The application must include a declaration under penalty of perjury stating the daily rental value of the property as of the date that the complaint was filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 712.010]. The application must also indicate that the writ applies to all tenants, subtenants, if any, named claimants, if any, and any other occupants of the premises [Code Civ. Proc. § 715.010(a)]. The court clerk can issue writs of possession in default cases.

The writ must require the levying officer to whom it is directed to enforce the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 712.020]. It must include the general information set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 712.020. It must also contain all of the following information [Code Civ. Proc. § 715.010(b)]:

- A description of the real property;

- A statement that, if the real property is not vacated within five days from the date a copy of the writ is served on the occupant or, if the copy of the writ is posted, within five days from the date a copy of the writ is served on the judgment debtor, the levying officer will remove the occupants from the real property and place the judgment creditor in possession;

- A statement that any personal property, except a mobilehome, remaining on the real property after the judgment creditor has been placed in possession will be sold or otherwise disposed of in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1174 unless the judgment debtor or other owner pays the judgment creditor the reasonable cost of storage and takes possession of the personal property not later than 15 days after the time the judgment creditor takes possession of the real property;

- The date the complaint that resulted in the judgment of possession was filed;

- The date or dates on which the court will hear objections to enforcing the judgment of possession that are filed in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.3 [see § 333.14[4][b]], unless a summons, complaint, and form of prejudgment claim of right to possession were served on the occupants in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 415.46 [see § 333.13[4][a]];

- The daily rental value of the property as of the day the complaint for unlawful detainer was filed, unless a summons, complaint, and form of prejudgment claim of right to possession were served on the occupants in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 415.46 [see § 333.13[4][a]]; and

- A statement that the writ applies to all tenants, subtenants, if any, named claimants, if any, and any other occupants of the premises, if a summons, complaint, and form of prejudgment claim of right to possession were served on the occupants in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 415.46 [see § 333.13[4][a]].

At the time the writ of possession is served or posted, the levying officer must also serve or post a copy of the form for a claim of right to possession [see § 333.14[4][b]], unless a summons, complaint, and form of prejudgment claim of right to possession were served on the occupants in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 415.46 (see § 333.13[4][a]) [Code Civ. Proc. § 715.010(c)].

The disposition of personal property remaining on the premises after the judgment creditor is placed in possession in accordance with a writ of possession is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(e)-(m) [see § 333.14[8]]. For this purpose, references in Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(e)-(m) to the "landlord" must be deemed to be references to the judgment creditor and references to the "tenant" must be deemed to be references to the judgment debtor or other occupant [Code Civ. Proc. § 715.030].

For discussion, a procedural checklist, and forms for use in enforcing a writ of possession generally, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments .

[b] Unnamed Occupant's Claim of Right to Possession

[i] Filing Claim of Right

Unless a prejudgment claim of right to possession has been served on occupants in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 415.46 [see § 333.13[4][a]], any occupant not named in the judgment for possession who occupied the premises on the date the action was filed may object to enforcement of the judgment against that occupant by filing a claim of right to possession as prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.3. An occupant or tenant who is named in the action as a defendant is not required to file a claim of right to possession to protect his or her right to possession of the premises [Code Civ.

Proc. § 1174.3(a)]. The form prescribed is set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.3(h). For a reproduction of that form, see § 333.135.

When a person is made a defendant but is not named in the judgment for possession, he or she must file a claim of right of possession to stop an eviction by the sheriff; a writ of mandate to force the sheriff to restore possession is not a proper remedy [Cardenas v. Noren (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1344, 1347-1350, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 367] .

The filing constitutes a general appearance requiring the payment of a fee as provided in Gov. Code § 70614 (relating to filing fees for limited civil cases), although Gov. Code § 68630 et seq. relating to fee waivers applies [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.3(a) (section failed to take into account 2009 repeal of § 68511.3; replaced by § 68630 et seq.)]. For forms for use in applying for fee waivers, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees .

The claim may be filed at any time after the writ of possession is served or posted, up to and including the time at which the levying officer returns to effect the eviction of those named in the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.3(a)].

The court issuing the writ of possession must set a date or dates when it will hold a hearing to determine the validity of objections to enforcing the judgment. The objection to the eviction may be made by delivering the claim of right to possession to the levying officer at the office of the levying officer or at the premises at the time of eviction [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.3(b)].

If the claim of right to possession is completed and presented to the sheriff, marshal, or other levying officer, and if the levying officer does not have a document specifying that a prejudgment claim of right to possession was served, the officer must forthwith [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.3(b)]:

- Stop the eviction of the occupants at the premises;

- Provide a receipt or copy of the completed claim of right of possession to the claimant indicating the date and time the completed form was received; and

- Deliver the original completed claim of right to possession to the court issuing the writ of possession of real property.

[ii] Procedure for Presenting Claim

A claim of right to possession is effected by either of the following methods [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.3(c)]:

- Presenting in person with identification to the sheriff, marshal, or other levying officer a completed form, and delivering to the court within two court days after its presentation an amount equal to 15 days' rent together with the appropriate fee or form for proceeding in forma pauperis. On receiving a claim of right to possession, the sheriff, marshal, or other levying officer must indicate on the claim form the date and time of its receipt and deliver the original to the issuing court and a receipt or copy of the claim to the claimant and notify the plaintiff of that fact. Immediately on receiving the 15 days' rent and the fee or form, the court must file the claim of right to possession and serve an endorsed copy with the notice of the hearing date on the plaintiff and the claimant by first-class mail. The court issuing the writ must set and hold a hearing on the claim not less than five nor more than 15 days after the claim is filed.

- Presenting in person with identification to the sheriff, marshal, or other levying officer a completed form, and delivering to the court within two court days after its presentation the appropriate fee or application for fee waiver without delivering the 15 days' rent. In this case, the court must immediately set a hearing on the claim to be held on the fifth day after the filing is completed. The court must notify > the claimant of the hearing date at the time the claimant completes the filing and must notify the plaintiff of the hearing date by first-class mail. On receiving a claim of right to possession, the sheriff, marshal, or other levying officer must indicate on the claim form the date and time of its receipt and deliver the original to the issuing court and a receipt or copy of the claim to the claimant and notify the plaintiff of that fact.

If a claim is made without delivery to the court of the appropriate filing fee or a fee-waiver application, the claim must immediately be deemed denied and the court must so order. On denial, the court must immediately deliver an endorsed copy of the order to the levying officer and must serve an endorsed copy of the order on the plaintiff and claimant by first-class mail [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.3(f)].

[iii] Hearing on Claim

At the hearing, the court must determine whether there is a valid claim of possession by the claimant who filed the claim, and the court must consider all evidence produced at the hearing, including, but not limited to, the information in the claim. The court may determine the claim to be valid or invalid based on the evidence presented. The court must determine the claim to be invalid if the court determines that the claimant is an invitee, licensee, guest, or trespasser. If the court determines the claim is invalid, the court must order the return to the claimant of the amount of 15 days' rent, less a pro rata amount for each day that enforcement of the judgment was delayed by reason of making the claim of right to possession, which pro rata amount is paid to the landlord. If the court determines that the claim is valid, the 15 days' rent must be returned immediately to the claimant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.3(d)].

[iv] Procedure if Claim Is Ruled Valid

If, on hearing, the court determines that the claim is valid, then the court must order further proceedings as follows [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.3(e)]:

- If the unlawful detainer is based on a curable breach and the claimant was not previously served with a proper notice, if any notice is required, then the required notice may at the plaintiff's discretion be served on the claimant at the hearing or after the hearing. If the claimant does not cure the breach within the required time, then a supplemental complaint may be filed and served on the claimant as defendant if the plaintiff proceeds against the claimant in the same action. For this purpose only, service of the required notice and of the supplemental complaint may be made by first-class mail addressed to the claimant at the subject premises, or service may be made on his or her attorney of record. In either case, Code Civ. Proc. § 1013, regarding extension of time limits, will otherwise apply. Further proceedings on the merits of the claimant's continued right to possession after service of the summons and supplemental complaint will be conducted as in other unlawful detainer proceedings.

- In all other cases, the court must deem the unlawful detainer summons and complaint to be amended on their faces to include the claimant as defendant. Service of the summons and complaint, as thus amended, may, at the plaintiff's discretion, be made at the hearing or after the hearing, and the claimant thus named and served as a defendant in the proceeding must answer or otherwise respond within five days thereafter.

[v] Procedure if Claim Is Denied or Ruled Invalid

If the claim of right to possession is denied under Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.3(f) (failure to pay fee or file forms for proceeding in forma pauperis in a timely manner), or if the claimant fails to appear at the hearing, or if the court determines at the hearing that there are no valid claims, or if the claimant does not prevail at a trial on the merits of the unlawful detainer action, the court must order the levying officer to proceed with enforcing the original writ of possession as deemed amended to include the claimant, which must be effected within a reasonable time, not to exceed five days. On receiving the court's order, the levying officer may enforce the writ of possession as against any occupant or occupants [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.3(g)].

[5] Writ of Execution

A writ of possession may be enforced as a writ of execution to satisfy any money judgment included in the judgment for possession. If amounts due under the judgment are not satisfied in accordance with the writ of possession, the judgment creditor may use a writ of execution [see Code Civ. Proc. § 699.010] to satisfy any money judgment included in the judgment after the writ of possession has been returned or 180 days after its issuance, whichever is earlier [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 712.040, 1174(d)].

For discussion, a procedural checklist, and forms for use in enforcing a money judgment, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments .

[6] Receivership

In any case, a superior court may, after judgment, appoint a receiver to dispose of the property according to the judgment, or to preserve it during the pendency of an appeal, or in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 680.010 et seq., relating to enforcement of judgments [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4)]. A receiver may also be appointed after the sale of real property in accordance with a decree of foreclosure, during the redemption period, to collect, expend, and disburse rents as directed by the court or as otherwise provided by law [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4)]. The court may also appoint a receiver in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 564 in limited civil cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(8)]. Thus, any trial court may appoint a receiver under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 708.610-708.630 to enforce a judgment for possession of real property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 712.060].

[7] Res Judicata Effect of Judgment

Because an unlawful detainer proceeding is summary in character and only claims bearing directly on the right of immediate possession are ordinarily adjudicated, a judgment in an unlawful detainer proceeding usually has very limited res judicata effect and will not normally prevent one who is dispossessed from bringing a subsequent action to resolve questions of title or to adjudicate other legal and equitable claims between the parties [Vella v. Hudgins (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 251, 255, 142 Cal. Rptr. 414, 572 P.2d 28 ; Pelletier v. Alameda Yacht Harbor (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 1551, 1557, 230 Cal. Rptr. 253] . However, an unlawful detainer judgment will bar any subsequent actions in whole or in part as to any issues necessarily determined in the unlawful detainer proceeding. Moreover, the full and fair litigation of an affirmative defense, even one not ordinarily cognizable in unlawful detainer if it is raised without objection and if a fair opportunity to litigate it is provided, will result in a judgment conclusive on issues material to that defense [Vella v. Hudgins (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 251, 256-257, 142 Cal. Rptr. 414, 572 P.2d 28] .

For a full discussion of res judicata and its application, see Ch. 491, Res Judicata .

[a] Terminology

For the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(e), (f), (h), (k), and (l) [see [b], [c], below], the terms "owner," "premises," and "reasonable belief' " have the same meaning as provided in Civ. Code § 1980 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(m)].

[b] Lost Property

Personal property remaining on the premises that the landlord reasonably believes to have been lost must be disposed of in accordance with Civ. Code § 2080 et seq. (lost money and goods). The landlord is not liable to the owner of any property disposed of in this manner. If the appropriate police or sheriff's department [see Civ. Code § 2080.1] refuses to accept the property, it is deemed not to have been lost [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(e)].

[c] Other Property Not Belonging to Tenant

[i] Notice and Storage

The landlord is required to give notice under Civ. Code § 1983 to any person (other than the tenant) reasonably believed by the landlord to be the owner of personal property remaining on the premises, unless the procedure for surrender of property under Civ. Code § 1965 has been initiated or completed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(f)]. The landlord must store the property in a place of safekeeping until it is either released in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(h) or disposed of in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(i) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(g); see [ii], below].

[ii] Release or Disposal of Property

The landlord is required to release personal property in accordance with Civ. Code § 1965, or to release it to the tenant or, at the landlord's option, to a person reasonably believed by the landlord to be its owner if the tenant or other person (1) pays the costs of storage as provided in Civ. Code § 1990 (reasonable costs of storage or fair rental value of space reasonably required for storage of property on premises) and (2) claims the property not later than (a) the date specified in the writ of possession before which the tenant must make his or her claim (not later than 15 days after the landlord takes possession of real property) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 715.010(b)(3)], or (b) the date specified in the notice before which a person other than the tenant must make his or her claim (date not less than 15 days after personal service or 18 days after first-class mail service; see Civ. Code § 1983(b)) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(h)].

With regard to the storage costs claimed, it has been suggested as follows: (1) a tenant who is overcharged for storage by mistake, fraud, duress, or oppression may recover against a landlord under the common count of money had and received; and (2) on a demand for the property based on a tender of the reasonable charges for storage, a tenant may bring an action against the landlord who refused to surrender possession of the property either in claim and delivery for the recovery of the property itself, with damages for its wrongful detention, or for damages for the wrongful conversion of the property [Gray v. Whitmore (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 1, 25, 94 Cal. Rptr. 904] . For discussion and forms of complaints for money had and received and to recover possession of personal property, see Ch. 121, Common Counts , and Ch. 119, Claim and Delivery , respectively. For discussion, a procedural checklist, and forms of complaints for conversion, see Ch. 150, Conversion .

Personal property not released in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(h) must be disposed of in accordance with Civ. Code § 1988 (sale of abandoned property or other disposal if value is less than $300) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(i)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(h) and (i) do not offend the due process or equal protection clauses of the U.S. Const., amend. XIV [Gray v. Whitmore (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 1, 22, 27-28, 94 Cal. Rptr. 904 , approved in Love v. Keays (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 339, 344-345, 98 Cal. Rptr. 811, 491 P.2d 395 (also holding other subsequently deleted parts of Code Civ. Proc. § 1174 to be unconstitutional)].

[iii] Nonliability of Landlord

If the landlord releases personal property to the tenant in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(h) [see [ii], above], the landlord is not liable with regard to that property to any person [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(j)]. If the landlord releases the property to a person other than the tenant under Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(h) or the property is disposed of in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(i) [see [ii], above], the landlord is not liable with regard to that property to (1) the tenant or to any person to whom notice was given in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(f) [see [i], above]; or (2) any other person, unless the other person proves that before releasing or disposing of the property the landlord believed or reasonably should have believed that the other person had an interest in the property and also that the landlord knew or should have known on reasonable investigation the address of the other person [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(k), (l)].

[9] Duty to Inspect on Entry of Judgment of Possession

A landlord may not ignore a defaulting tenant's possible neglect of property. Thus, a duty to inspect attaches upon entry of the judgment of possession in an unlawful detainer action and includes reasonable periodic inspections thereafter [Stone v. Center Trust Retail Properties, Inc. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 608, 613, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 556]. On entry of judgment, a holdover tenant's incentive to maintain a property dissipates because continued maintenance likely benefits only the landlord. To protect the public, the incentive to maintain the property must not be an orphan abandoned by a tenant and ignored by a shortly reoccupying landlord. Entry of judgment provides a workable bright line for the parties to know where responsibility lies, and aligns that responsibility with the parties' reordered incentives [Stone v. Center Trust Retail Properties, Inc. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 608, 613, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 556]. In Stone v. Center Trust Retail Properties, Inc., the court held that a landlord who obtained a judgment of possession in unlawful detainer proceedings against a restaurant but allowed the restaurant to continue operating, at which time a customer was injured, could be liable for the customer's injuries. The landlord had a duty to inspect the premises on entry of judgment and at reasonable intervals thereafter [Stone v. Center Trust Retail Properties, Inc. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 608, 614-615, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 556].

§ 333.20 Motion to Quash Service of Summons

[1] When Authorized

A defendant, on or before the last day of his or her time to plead or within a further time as the court may for good cause allow, may serve and file a notice of motion (1) to quash service of summons on the ground the court lacks jurisdiction over the person of the defendant and/or (2) to stay or dismiss the action on the ground of inconvenient forum [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 418.10(a), 1177]. Contrary to Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(b), the time for making the motion in an unlawful detainer, forcible entry, or forcible detainer proceeding must be not less than three days or more than seven days after the filing of the notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 1167.4(a)]. The service and filing of the notice of motion extends the defendant's time to plead to the complaint until five days after he or she is served with a written notice of entry of an order denying the motion. The court may extend this time for an additional period not exceeding 15 days on good cause shown [Code Civ. Proc. § 1167.4(b)]. Notice of a motion to quash service of summons on the ground of lack of jurisdiction or to stay or dismiss the action on the ground of inconvenient forum must be given in compliance with Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1013 and 1167.4 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1327(a) (effective 1/1/09)]. Any opposition to the motion and any reply to an opposition may be made orally at the time of hearing or in writing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1327(b) (effective 1/1/09)]. If a party wants to have a written opposition considered before the hearing, it must be filed and served on or before the court day before the hearing. Service must be by personal delivery, facsimile transmission, express mail, or other means consistent with Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010, 1011, 1012, and 1013, and reasonably calculated to ensure delivery to the other party or parties no later than the close of business on the court day before the hearing. The court, in its discretion, may consider written opposition filed later [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1327(c) (effective 1/1/09)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Using Code Civ. Proc. § 1167.4. This is a very tricky statute that is easy to mess up. Keep in mind that if you mail, you add five days on. Thus, if you give seven days' notice and mail then it is 12 days and outside the statute. If you give three days' notice and mail then it is eight days and outside the statute. This practitioner cannot see how you can meet the statutory deadlines and still come within the statute unless you personally serve. By Benjamin Kaplan

Failure to make a motion to quash service of summons under Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10 at the time of filing a demurrer or motion to strike constitutes a waiver of the issues of lack of personal jurisdiction, inadequacy of process, inadequacy of service of process, inconvenient forum, and delay in prosecution [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(e)(3)].

[2] Failure of Complaint to State Cause of Action

A motion to quash service of the summons is the proper method for determining whether the court has acquired personal jurisdiction over the defendant through service of the five-day unlawful detainer summons. If the underlying complaint fails to state a cause of action for unlawful detainer, then use of the five-day summons is improper, the court does not acquire jurisdiction over the person of the defendant by its service, and the defendant is entitled to an order quashing service as a matter of law. If the court erroneously refuses to quash service, the defendant is entitled to a writ of mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(c) to compel it to do so [Delta Imports, Inc. v. Municipal Court (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 1033, 1035, 194 Cal. Rptr. 685 (complaint failed to state cause of action for unlawful detainer in that it failed to allege service of proper notice terminating tenancy)].

For a discussion of the procedure and forms for use in moving to quash service of summons, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances. For a discussion and forms for use in petitioning for a writ of mandate to compel the trial court to enter an order quashing service of the summons under *Code Civ. § 333.21 Time to Answer, Amend Answer, and Extensions

Unless otherwise ordered by the court for good cause shown, the time allowed the defendant to answer the complaint, answer the complaint if amended, or amend the answer under Code Civ. Proc. § 586(a)(2), (3), (5), (6), or (7) may not exceed five days [Code Civ. Proc. § 1167.3].

Unless otherwise ordered by the court for good cause shown, no extension of time allowed for the causes specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 (relating to, among other things, acts to be done relating to pleadings) may exceed 10 days without the adverse party's consent [Code Civ. Proc. § 1167.5]. The application for the extension may be made ex parte and need not be in written form. However, the applicant must advise the court in writing as to the nature of the case and whether any extensions have been previously granted by order of court or stipulation of counsel [Deal v. Municipal Court (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 991, 997 n.6, 204 Cal. Rptr. 79 , citing former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 235(b) (see now Cal Rules Ct., Rule 2.20(b)]. For further discussion, a procedural checklist, and forms for use in securing an extension of time under Code Civ. Proc. § 1054, see Ch. 524, Shortening and Extension of Time .

The five-day period of Code Civ. Proc. § 1167.3 and the 10-day period of extension authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 1167.5 are directions to the court rather than absolute limitations on its authority. Thus, the short time limitation (five days) provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1167 [see § 333.13[3][d]] may, on a proper showing, be extended to such time as may be just under the circumstances [Deal v. Municipal Court (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 991, 997-998, 204 Cal. Rptr. 79] .

In addition to the above statutes, Code Civ. Proc. § 473 affords relief from the statutory time limitations within which to plead [Deal v. Municipal Court (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 991, 998 n.10, 204 Cal. Rptr. 79 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1177 (application of Part Two of the Code of Civil Procedure to unlawful detainer proceedings)].

The defendant may answer the complaint at the same time he or she moves to quash service of summons under Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10 [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(e); see § 333.20]. The filing of an answer at the same time as a motion to quash service of summons does not constitute an appearance unless the court denies the motion to quash, in which case the defendant is not deemed to have generally appeared until entry of the order denying the motion [Code Civ. Proc. §

418.10(e)(1)]. If the motion to quash service of summons is denied and the defendant petitions for a writ of mandate [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(c); see § 333.20[2]], the defendant will not be deemed to have generally appeared until the proceedings on the writ petition have finally concluded [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(e)(2)].

For the extension of time to plead resulting from defendant's filing a notice of motion to quash service of the summons, see § 333.20.

§ 333.22 Defaults

[1] Default Judgments

If at the time appointed any defendant served with a summons does not appear and defend, the clerk, or judge if there is no clerk, must, on the written application of the plaintiff and proof of service of the summons and complaint, enter the default of any defendant so served. If requested by the plaintiff, the clerk or judge must also immediately enter judgment for restitution of the premises and issue a writ of execution. The application for a default judgment and the default judgment must include a place to indicate that the judgment includes tenants, subtenants, if any, named claimants, if any, and any other occupants of the premises. Thereafter, the plaintiff may apply to the court for any other relief demanded in the complaint, including costs, against the defendant, or defendants, or against one or more of them [Code Civ. Proc. § 1169]. For the procedure for having defaults and default judgments entered and forms of default judgments generally, see Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments . See also §§ 205.90 (mandatory Judicial Council form for request for entry of judgment), 333.130 (Judicial Council form of unlawful detainer judgment that may be used as default judgment), and 333.131A (Judicical Council form of declaration for default judgment by court).

[2] Relief From Default

Code Civ. Proc. § 1179 authorizes a court to relieve a tenant from forfeiture after judgment and restore him or her to the formerly held estate, in cases of hardship. The court has the discretion to relieve any person against forfeiture on its own motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 1179]. In addition, an application for relief against forfeiture may be made at any time before restoration of the premises to the landlord [Code Civ. Proc. § 1179]. The application may be made by a tenant or subtenant, or a mortgagee of the term, or any person interested in the term's continuance. The application must be made by petition, setting forth the facts on which the relief is sought, and be verified by the applicant. Notice of the application, with a copy of the petition, must be served at least five days before the hearing on the plaintiff in the judgment, who may appear and contest the application [Code Civ. Proc. § 1179]. Alternatively, a person appearing without an attorney may make the application orally, if the plaintiff either is present and has an opportunity to contest the application, or has been given ex parte notice of the hearing and the purpose of the oral application. The application or motion may be granted only on condition that full payment of rent due, or full performance of conditions or covenants stipulated, so far as practicable, is made [Code Civ. Proc. § 1179].

The matter of granting or denying the application lies within the sound discretion of the trial court [Superior Motels, Inc. v. Rinn Motor Hotels, Inc. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1032, 1064, 241 Cal. Rptr. 487] .

§ 333.23 Defendant's Pleadings

On or before the day fixed for his or her appearance [see §§ 333.13[3][d], 333.21], the defendant may appear and answer or demur [Code Civ. Proc. § 1170]. Code Civ. Proc. § 1170 limits the defendant to filing an answer or demurrer or both; a cross complaint is normally not permitted [Schubert v. Lowe (1924) 193 Cal. 291, 295, 223 P. 550 ; see § 333.26]. Except as otherwise provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1159-1179a, the general provisions governing answers [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10-430.30, 430.80, 431.10-431.70] and demurrers [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10-430.80] in civil actions apply in unlawful detainer proceedings [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1177].

For the Judicial Council approved form of answer for use in an unlawful detainer proceeding, see § 333.110. § 333.24 Demurrers

[1] Effect of General Demurrer to Complaint

A general demurrer to a complaint under Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e), that is, that the complaint fails to state a cause of action, will be denied even if the complaint fails to state a cause of action for unlawful detainer as long as it states some other cause of action. However, if the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause for relief in unlawful detainer, then issuance of the five-day summons is improper and the court does not acquire personal jurisdiction over the defendant by reason of its proper service [see Code Civ. Proc. § 410.50(a)]. The defendant may file a demurrer at the same time he or she moves to quash service of summons under Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10 [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(e)]. The filing of a demurrer at the same time as a motion to quash service of summons does not constitute an appearance unless the court denies the motion to quash, in which case the defendant is not deemed to have generally appeared until entry of the order denying the motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(e)(1)]. If the motion to quash service of summons is denied and the defendant petitions for a writ of mandate [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(c); see § 333.20[2]], the defendant will not be deemed to have generally appeared until the proceedings on the writ petition have finally concluded [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(e)(2)].

Failure to make a motion to quash service of summons under Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10 at the time of filing a demurrer constitutes a waiver of the issues of lack of personal jurisdiction, inadequacy of process, inadequacy of service of process, inconvenient forum, and delay in prosecution [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(e)(3)].

For a discussion of in personam jurisdiction, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal .

[2] Objection to Improper Matter in Complaint

When an otherwise sufficient complaint for unlawful detainer seeks relief beyond that authorized under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1159-1179a or contains other improper matter, the proper method for objecting to it is by a motion to strike the improper matter [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 436(a), 1177], or by alleging the impropriety of the matter as a defense in the answer to the complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 431.30(b)(2), 1177], and not by a motion to quash service of the summons [see Saberi v. Bakhtiari (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 509, 517, 215 Cal. Rptr. 359 (involving improper request for pretermination rent, in which court distinguished Greene v. Municipal Court (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 446 , and, in effect, disapproved the contrary statement in Castle Park No. 5 v. Katherine (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 6 , which cited Greene); for when pretermination rent may be recovered in an unlawful detainer proceeding, see § 333.13[13][e][iv] and [i]].

For discussion and forms for use in moving for an order striking improper matter from a complaint, see Ch. 375, Motions to Strike: Pleadings .

29-333 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 333.25

§ 333.25 Motion to Strike

Defendant's counsel should review the complaint and all attachments carefully to determine whether any improper allegations or material can be the subject of a motion to strike [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 435-437 (requirements applicable to motions to strike)]. For discussion and sample motions to strike, see Ch. 375, Motions to Strike: Pleadings .

The defendant may file a motion to strike at the same time he or she moves to quash service of summons under Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10 [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(e); see § 333.20]. The filing of a motion to strike at the same time as a motion to quash service of summons does not constitute an appearance unless the court denies the motion to quash, in which case the defendant is not deemed to have generally appeared until entry of the order denying the motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(e)(1)]. If the motion to quash service of summons is denied and the defendant petitions for a writ of mandate [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(c); see § 333.20[2]], the defendant will not be deemed to have generally appeared until the proceedings on the writ petition have finally concluded [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(e)(2)].

Failure to make a motion to quash service of summons under Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10 at the time of filing a motion to strike constitutes a waiver of the issues of lack of personal jurisdiction, inadequacy of process, inadequacy of service of process, inconvenient forum, and delay in prosecution [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(e)(3)].

Claims in a cross-complaint filed in an unlawful detainer proceeding may be subject to a special motion to strike pursuant to the anti-SLAPP statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16; Feldman v. 1100 Park Lane Associates (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 1467, 1486-1487, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 ; see Ch. 376, Motions to Strike: Anti -SLAPP]. Thus, where the plaintiff landlord filed a special motion to strike the defendant subtenants' cross-complaint for damages after dismissal of an unlawful detainer proceeding, the court of appeal held that to the extent the subtenants' claims were based on (1) the unlawful detainer proceeding; (2) the filing of a three-day notice to quit; and (3) on allegedly threatening statements made by an agent of the landlord, they came within the scope of the anti-SLAPP statute as actions taken in anticipation or furtherance of litigation [Feldman v. 1100 Park Lane Associates (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 1467, 1486-1488, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1]. Furthermore, with the exception of a claim for negligent misrepresentation, all of the subtenants' claims, including a claim for breach of contract, were barred by the litigation privilege set forth in Civ. Code § 47 [

Feldman v. 1100 Park Lane Associates (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 1467, 1491-1493, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1].

§ 333.26 Cross Complaints Generally Not Allowed

Because the primary purpose of a proceeding for unlawful detainer is to obtain the possession of real property in the cases specified by statute, cross complaints are generally not allowed as they could frustrate that purpose by injecting extrinsic issues into the case [Union Oil Co. v. Chandler (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 716, 721, 84 Cal. Rptr. 756 ; see Knowles v. Robinson (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 620, 625, 36 Cal. Rptr. 33, 387 P.2d 833 ; Deal v. Municipal Court (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 991, 995, 204 Cal. Rptr. 79] . As a result, issues extrinsic to the possessory right are generally excluded even though they arise out of the proceeding's subject matter [E. S. Bills, Inc. v. Tzucanow (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 824, 830, 215 Cal. Rptr. 278, 700 P.2d 1280] .

29-333 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 333.28

§ 333.28 Permissible Affirmative Defenses

[1] In General

Affirmative defenses are permitted if they would, if successful, preclude removal of the tenant from the premises [Vella v. Hudgins (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 251, 255, 142 Cal. Rptr. 414, 572 P.2d 28] . Thus, affirmative defenses, whether legal or equitable, which raises considerations that either (1) negate the facts or conditions on which the right to terminate the tenancy depends or (2) show that to enforce the eviction would violate the federal or state constitutions or other public policy may be pleaded and litigated [see Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 633-634 n.19, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168] .

In causes where the legality of the reason for an eviction may be in issue, the court, in deciding whether to permit affirmative defenses, may balance the interest in preserving the summary nature of the unlawful detainer proceeding against the public policies furthered by protecting the defendant from eviction under the alleged defenses [Mobil Oil Corp. v. Handley (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 956, 963, 143 Cal. Rptr. 321] .

[2] Ownership Issues

[a] Between Landlord and Tenant

The broad question of title may not normally be raised and litigated by either cross complaint or affirmative defense in an unlawful detainer proceeding [Abstract Investment Co. v. Hutchinson (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 242, 248-249, 22 Cal. Rptr. 309] . This result derives from the rule that a tenant in possession is normally estopped from denying the landlord's title as it existed at the outset of the relationship [see, e.g., People v. Rice (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 207, 211, 8 Cal. Rptr. 76 ; Staudigl v. Harper (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 439, 446, 173 P.2d 343] .

However, title may be litigated when the plaintiff has put title in issue by having, for example, filed a prior action against the lessees for declaratory relief and for a judgment quieting title to the property as against the lessees that is still pending [Greenhut v. Wooden (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 64, 68-69, 180 Cal. Rptr. 786] .

[b] Between Purchaser of Property and Person Holding Over

A qualified exception to the rule that title may not be tried in an unlawful detainer proceeding is contained in Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a, which extends the summary eviction remedy beyond the conventional landlord-tenant relationship to include certain purchasers of property and provides for a narrow and sharply focused examination of title. For example, Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a(b)(3) authorizes an unlawful detainer proceeding against a person who continues in possession of real property after the property has been sold under a power of sale contained in a trust deed executed by the person or a person under whom the person claims, the title under the sale has been duly perfected, and a proper notice to quit has been served. Thus, one who has purchased property at a trustee's sale and seeks to evict the occupant in possession must, to establish that he or she is a proper plaintiff, show that he or she acquired the property at a regularly conducted sale and thereafter "duly perfected" the title. To this limited extent, title may be litigated in the unlawful detainer proceeding [see Vella v. Hudgins (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 251, 255, 142 Cal. Rptr. 414, 572 P.2d 28 ; California Livestock Production Credit Assn. v. Sutfin (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 136, 140 n.2, 211 Cal. Rptr. 152] . But regardless of whether the issue is litigated, the unlawful detainer judgment will normally bar any subsequent actions founded on allegations of irregularity in the trustee's sale under the doctrine of res judicata [see Vella v. Hudgins (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 251, 255, 142 Cal. Rptr. 414, 572 P.2d 28 ; see also § 333.14[7]].

Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a does not, however, require a defendant to litigate a complex fraud claim involving activities not directly related to the technical regularity of the trustee's sale within the statutory time constraints of an unlawful detainer proceeding. Hence, a subsequent civil action between the parties on the fraud issue may be maintained and is not barred by the prior judgment in the unlawful detainer proceeding [Vella v. Hudgins (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 251, 258, 142 Cal. Rptr. 414, 572 P.2d 28 ; see Mehr v. Superior Court (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 1044, 1049-1050, 189 Cal. Rptr. 138] .

Notwithstanding the limited qualified exception discussed above, a homeowner may not be evicted, consistent with due process guaranties, without being permitted to raise affirmative defenses which, if proved, would maintain the homeowner's possession and ownership. Accordingly, in an unlawful detainer proceeding brought in a municipal court by a corporation after it had acquired title to the homeowners' property through a fraudulent and deceptive loan transaction after the homeowners had defaulted on a prior loan, the appellate court held that the homeowners were entitled to assert their affirmative defenses of fraud and related causes, in which case, title to the property was inevitably in issue [Asuncion v. Superior Court (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 141, 146, 166 Cal. Rptr. 306 (holding that because title was inevitably in issue and value of property exceeded municipal court's jurisdictional maximum, jurisdiction was in superior court)]. In such a case, if the homeowner has separately filed an action based on the fraud and that action is pending, the superior court may stay the eviction proceeding until trial of the fraud action under the authority of Code Civ. Proc. § 526 (made applicable to unlawful detainer proceedings by Code Civ. Proc. § 1177) which permits a preliminary injunction to preserve the status quo on such grounds as irreparable injury, multiplicity of judicial proceedings, or unconscionable relative hardship [Asuncion v. Superior Court (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 141, 146, 166 Cal. Rptr. 306] .

[3] Equitable Defenses

[a] In General

An affirmative defense raising equitable considerations that negate the facts or conditions on which the right to terminate the tenancy depends may be pleaded and litigated [Union Oil Co. v. Chandler (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 716, 722, 725, 84 Cal. Rptr. 756] . Equitable defenses that have been permitted include the following:

- Equitable estoppel [see Union Oil Co. v. Chandler (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 716, 720, 727-729, 84 Cal. Rptr. 756 (defense properly raised but not established); see also Roth v. Morton's Chefs Services, Inc. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 380, 387-388, 218 Cal. Rptr. 684 (substantial compliance; but holding fraud vitiates any colorable claim to substantial compliance)];

- Equitable defense that tenancy was not a month-to-month tenancy as alleged by plaintiff, but that occupation was under a partially executed oral agreement to execute a lease [see Schubert v. Lowe (1924) 193 Cal. 291, 295-296, 223 P. 550] ; and

- Equitable defense of offer of other security of greater value in lieu of that required by lease that had become impossible to give [see Knight v. Black (1912) 19 Cal. App. 518, 525-526, 126 P. 512] .

One court has stated that the equitable defense of laches is not available in an action at law and that unlawful detainer is a legal action and therefore laches is not a bar to unlawful detainer [Northridge Hospital Foundation v. Pic'N' Save No. 9 (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1088, 1101, 232 Cal. Rptr. 329] . The court's underlying reasoning in Northridge appears, however, to be faulty. The court relied on Witkin, Cal. Procedure, vol. 2, Actions, § 78, p. 951 (2d ed. 1970), in support of its statement, yet the cited text concerns actions to quiet title and does not mention unlawful detainer. In fact, a proceeding in unlawful detainer is neither an action at law nor an action in equity; it is a statutory special proceeding unknown to the common law [see Witkin, Cal. Procedure, vol. 3, Actions, §§ 12, 13 (3d ed. 1985)]. The court's conclusion that laches is not available in an unlawful detainer proceeding thus appears not to be supported by valid authority.

[b] Condemnation

The taking of premises by the government for public use may be provided for in the lease. If there is a lease provision, it will control in the event of condemnation. If there is no such provision, the lease will be terminated by a taking of the entire premises and the tenant will have no further liability for rent [Texas Co. v. County of Los Angeles (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 55, 62, 338 P.2d 440] . If there is only a partial taking, the tenant will remain liable for the entire rent absent a contrary lease provision [Carlstrom v. Lyon Van & Storage Co. (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 625, 632, 313 P.2d 645] .

[c] Constructive Eviction

A tenant is entitled to the quiet possession of the leased premises during the term of the lease against all persons, including the landlord [Civ. Code § 1927]. If the landlord has breached the covenant of quiet enjoyment, the tenant is justified in refusing to pay rent. Constructive eviction is a breach of this covenant. Therefore, the tenant can use the landlord's constructive eviction as an affirmative defense to defeat a claim for rent. However, there is a clear obligation on a tenant alleging a breach of quiet enjoyment to vacate the premises within a reasonable time [Clark v. Spiegel (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 74, 79-80, 99 Cal. Rptr. 86] .

For a more detailed discussion of the covenant of quiet enjoyment and constructive eviction, see Ch. 332, Landlord and Tenant: The Tenancy .

[d] Actual Partial Eviction

An actual partial eviction is only available as a defense if the unlawful detainer complaint is based on nonpayment of rent. In addition, actual partial eviction is a defense to the entire obligation to pay rent only if the eviction is from a substantial portion of the premises. In determining whether the eviction is substantial, the court should consider the extent of the interference with the tenant's use and enjoyment of the property, particularly when the partial eviction was not in bad faith. The court may, however, reduce the amount of rent due based on the partial eviction even if the eviction is not a defense to the entire rent obligation [Dussin Investment Co. v. Bloxham (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 308, 314-317, 157 Cal. Rptr. 646] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Using Defense. There must be some material reduction in the portion of the premises that really impacts on its use. By Benjamin Kaplan

[e] Destruction of Premises

There are two statutory provisions that control whether there is a termination of the lease following destruction of the leased premises, unless there are lease provisions to the contrary.

Civ. Code § 1933(4) provides that the hiring of a thing terminates by destruction of the thing hired. Thus, if the premises are completely destroyed, the lease may terminate automatically and with it the obligation to pay rent.

Civ. Code § 1932(2) applies when there has been a partial destruction of the premises and if the lease contains no contrary provisions. It provides that the tenant may terminate the hiring of the leased premises before the end of the term agreed on if the greater part of the leased premises or the part that was the material inducement to enter into the lease is destroyed, other than as a result of the tenant's negligence [Civ. Code § 1932(2)]. The tenant must specifically elect to terminate the lease [see Civ. Code § 1932(2)]. However, if the lease contains a covenant on the part of the landlord to rebuild the premises, then the lease does not terminate [Mattal v. American Trust Co. (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 645, 647-648, 25 Cal. Rptr. 517] . In addition, if the tenant is obligated to make all repairs during the lease term and the property is destroyed as a result of the tenant's failure to make these repairs, the tenant's obligations under the lease do not terminate on the destruction of the premises [Glenn R. Sewell Sheet Metal, Inc. v. Loverde (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 666, 678, 75 Cal. Rptr. 889, 451 P.2d 721] . However, a general covenant to repair is not sufficient to prevent the lease's termination on destruction of the demised premises [Realty & Rebuilding Co. v. Rea (1920) 184 Cal. 565, 574-578, 194 P. 1024] .

[f] Frustration

The doctrine of commercial frustration applies when the expected value of performance to the party seeking to be excused has been destroyed by a chance event that supervenes to cause an actual, but not literal, failure of consideration [Lloyd v. Murphy (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 48, 53, 153 P.2d 47] . A lessee may seek to apply this doctrine to avoid liability for rent, but it is applied only in extreme cases [see Fey v. Rossi Improvement Co. (1914) 23 Cal. App. 766, 767-768, 139 P. 908] .

For a further discussion of this defense, see the comments and references in § 334.116.

[g] Illegality

If a lease is knowingly made by both parties for the use of premises in violation of local ordinances and state housing statutes, it is a contract for an illegal purpose and no enforceable duties or rights arise under it [Shephard v. Lerner (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 746, 748-751, 6 Cal. Rptr. 433 ; Cf. Espinoza v. Calva (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 1393, 1400, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 492 (trial court erred in awarding judgment for landlord for past-due rent when premises lacked certificate of occupancy); Gruzen v. Henry (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 515, 517-519, 148 Cal. Rptr. 573 (landlord's failure to comply with ordinance rendered money judgment for rent improper, even though landlord was entitled to order of eviction)].

[4] Breach of Implied Warranty of Habitability

[a] Nature of Warranty

There is in California a common-law implied warranty of habitability in residential leases under which a landlord covenants that premises leased for living quarters will be maintained in a habitable state for the duration of the lease, and a waiver of that warranty by any provision in the lease or rental agreement is generally prohibited by public policy [Knight v. Hallsthammar (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 46, 52-53, 171 Cal. Rptr. 707, 623 P.2d 268 ; see Green v. Superior Court

(1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 629, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168] . This warranty does not require that a landlord ensure that leased premises are in perfect, aesthetically pleasing condition, but it does mean that bare living requirements must be maintained. In most cases, substantial compliance with those applicable building and housing code standards that materially affect health and safety suffice to meet the landlord's obligations under the warranty [Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 637, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168] .

The California Supreme Court has held that the landlord's breach of the implied warranty may constitute a defense to an unlawful detainer action [Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 619, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168] . This defense is only available if the unlawful detainer action is based on nonpayment of rent. Because the Court also stated that the tenant's duty to pay rent is mutually dependent on the landlord's fulfillment of his or her implied warranty of habitability [Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 635, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168] , it seems certain that the breach of the implied warranty would constitute a valid defense to a landlord's action for rent.

To constitute a breach of the warranty, it is not required either that the defective condition be unknown to the tenant at the time of taking occupancy or that the landlord be given a reasonable time to repair the defect. The warranty is breached whenever the landlord has notice of alleged uninhabitable conditions not caused by the tenants themselves [Knight v. Hallsthammar (1981) 171 Cal. Rptr. 707 (disapproving to extent they are inconsistent with above rule, Quevedo v. Braga (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1 and Hinson v. Delis (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 62, 102 Cal. Rptr. 661)]. The fact that the tenant continues to live in the uninhabitable premises after learning of the defects does not constitute a waiver of the landlord's breach of warranty [Knight v. Hallsthammar (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 46, 51, 59, 171 Cal. Rptr. 707, 623 P.2d 268] .

The purpose behind adopting the implied warranty of habitability of residences was to force the rehabilitation of substantially defective slum dwellings so that the poor may live decently [Cazares v. Ortiz (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 23, 168 Cal. Rptr. 108] . However, the warranty is not limited to slums; it applies to all residential leases, at least in urban areas [see Schulman v. Vera (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 552, 560-561 n.2, 166 Cal. Rptr. 620] .

[b] Related Statutory Provisions

The declaration of an implied warranty of habitability and of a public policy that generally prohibits waiver of that warranty is consistent with California's statutory pattern of landlord-tenant relations [Knight v. Hallsthammar (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 46, 53, 171 Cal. Rptr. 707 623 P.2d 268] . The statutory pattern is covered in Civ. Code §§ 1925-1954.1. Thus, under Civ. Code § 1929 the lessee or renter of premises must repair all deteriorations occasioned by his or her want of ordinary care. With this exception, and except as provided in Civ. Code § 1941.2, as described below, the lessor of a building intended for human occupancy must, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary, put it in a condition fit for human occupation and repair all subsequent dilapidations that render it uninhabitable [Civ. Code § 1941; for conditions that render a dwelling untenantable or uninhabitable, see Civ. Code § 1941.1 and Knight v. Hallsthammar (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 46, 58-59 nn. 9, 10, 171 Cal. Rptr. 707, 623 P.2d 268] . The tenant has the right, subject to specified conditions and procedural prerequisites, to make repairs and deduct the cost from rent payments needed to cure conditions that the landlord should have corrected, which is a remedy explicitly stated to be independent of any other available remedy [see Civ. Code § 1942; Knight v. Hallsthammar (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 46, 53, 59, 171 Cal. Rptr. 707, 623 P.2d 268 ; Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 629-631, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168] .

However, no duty on the part of the landlord to repair a dilapidation arises under Civ. Code § 1941 or 1942 if the tenant is in substantial violation of specified affirmative obligations and the violation contributes substantially to the existence of the dilapidation or interferes substantially with the landlord's obligation under Civ. Code § 1941 to effect the necessary repairs [Civ. Code § 1941.2(a)].

Any agreement by the tenant of a dwelling waiving or modifying the tenant's rights under Civ. Code § 1941 or 1942 is void as contrary to public policy with regard to any condition that renders the premises untenantable. However, the landlord and tenant may agree that the tenant must undertake to improve, repair, or maintain all or stipulated portions of the dwelling as part of the consideration for rental [Civ. Code § 1942.1; see Knight v. Hallsthammar (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 46, 54, 171 Cal. Rptr. 707, 623 P.2d 268] . If the agreement is in writing, the landlord and tenant may also set forth the provisions of Civ. Code §§ 1941-1942.1, inclusive, and provide that any controversy relating to a condition of the premises claimed to make them untenantable may by application of either party be submitted to arbitration in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq. and the costs of the arbitration will be apportioned by the arbitrator between the parties [Civ. Code § 1942.1].

Note that the Sixth District Court of Appeal has held that to be enforceable, an agreement to arbitrate issues concerning the rights and obligations of a landlord and tenant, including tenantability issues, must be contained in a separate agreement and not in the lease itself [Jaramillo v. JH Real Estate Partners, Inc. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 394, 404, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 525] . The court's reasoning was based on Civ. Code § 1953(a)(4), which precludes a residential lease agreement from including any modification or waiver of a tenant's "procedural rights in litigation in any action involving his rights and obligations as a tenant." Thus, to ensure enforceability, landlords may wish to enter into separate agreements to arbitrate with their tenants. For discussion and forms for use in nonjudicial arbitration under Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq., see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration , and Ch. 33, Contractual Arbitration: Appointment of Arbitrator and Conduct of Proceeding .

A landlord may not issue a three-day notice to quit based on nonpayment of rent [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2)] if the dwelling (1) is declared substandard as set forth in Health & Safety Code § 17920.3 because conditions listed in that section exist to an extent that endangers the life, limb, health, property, safety, or welfare of the public or the occupants of the dwelling; (2) contains lead hazards as specified in Health & Safety Code § 17920.10; or (3) substantially lacks any of certain affirmative standard characteristics [Civ. Code § 1941.1], and other specified conditions are met [Civ. Code § 1942.4]. A landlord who violates Civ. Code § 1942.4 is liable to the tenant for actual damages and special damages of not less than $100 and not more than $5,000 [Civ. Code § 1942.4(b)]. For further discussion of Civ. Code § 1942.4 and a complaint by a tenant against a landlord for damages and a repair order for an untenantable dwelling, see § 334.60.

A landlord who institutes an unlawful detainer proceeding based on a tenant's nonpayment of rent and who is liable for violation of Civ. Code § 1942.4 will be liable to the tenant for reasonable attorneys' fees and costs of the suit [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.21].

PRACTICE TIP:

Suing for Breach of Implied Warranty. When suing for breach of the implied warranty of habitability, it might be best to include causes of action for both the common law and statutory remedies, as each is slightly different. Attorney's fees, for example, are allowed under the statutory scheme [see Civ. Code § 1942.4(b)], but are allowed under common law only if a lease provision for attorney's fees is deemed applicable [see Fairchild v. Park (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 919, 925, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 442 (tenants who prevailed in action for breach of implied warranty of habitability entitled to award of attorneys' fees based on attorneys' fees provision in their written lease)]. By Myron Moskovitz

On and after July 1, 1998, the landlord of a building intended for human habitation must install deadbolt locks on entry doors for dwelling units and locking devices on windows. The deadbolts and locks must meet specific statutory requirements [Civ. Code § 1941.3(a)]. A tenant must notify the landlord of any locking device that becomes inoperable. The landlord must correct the violation within a reasonable time after receiving a notice of deficiency or after having actual notice of a deficiency [Civ. Code § 1941.3(b)]. A tenant's remedies for a landlord's violation of the statutory provisions for deadbolts and locks include those provided by Civ. Code §§ 1942, 1942.4, and 1942.5, an action for breach of contract, and an action for injunctive relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 526 [Civ. Code § 1941.3(c)]. Also, in an unlawful detainer action involving a default in the payment of rent, a tenant may raise the violation as an affirmative defense [Civ. Code § 1941.3(c); see § 333.110[5][f]].

All new and replacement water heaters, and all existing residential water heaters, must be braced, anchored, or strapped to resist falling or horizontal displacement due to earthquake motion [Health & Safety Code § 19211(a)]. An owner of residential rental property may not evict any person on the basis that the eviction is required in order to comply with this requirement [Health & Safety Code § 19211(c)]. Any building or portion of a building, including any dwelling unit, guestroom, or suite of rooms or the premises on which it is located that is in violation of this requirement is deemed to be a nuisance [Health & Safety Code § 19211(d)]. The owner or the owner's agent has the right to correct any violation [Health & Safety Code § 19211(d)].

[i] Residential Lease

The landlord's breach of the warranty of habitability may be raised as a defense in an unlawful detainer proceeding arising from the tenant's nonpayment of rent under a residential lease or rental agreement [Knight v. Hallsthammar (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 46, 52, 171 Cal. Rptr. 707, 623 P.2d 268 ; Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 619, 620, 631-637, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168] . The defense is based on the fact that the tenant's duty to pay rent is mutually dependent on the landlord's fulfillment of his or her implied warranty of habitability and, hence, the landlord's breach of the warranty may be directly relevant to the issue of possession. If the tenant can prove the landlord's breach, the tenant may demonstrate that the nonpayment of rent was justified and that no rent is in fact due and owing to the landlord. Under these circumstances, the landlord would not be entitled to possession of the premises [Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 635, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168] . Moreover, a tenant may defend an unlawful detainer proceeding against a current owner, at least with regard to rent currently being claimed due, despite the fact that the uninhabitable conditions first existed under a former owner [Knight v. Hallsthammar (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 46, 57, 171 Cal. Rptr. 707, 623 P.2d 268] .

The procedure for raising the defense of breach of the implied warranty of habitability is as follows [see Lee v. Vignoli (1979) 160 Cal. Rptr. 79 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2)]:

- The tenant notifies the landlord of the defects;
- The landlord fails to remedy the defects within a reasonable time and the tenant stops paying rent;
- The landlord serves on the tenant a three-day notice to pay the rent or quit the premises;
- On the tenant's failure to quit the premises, the landlord sues to evict the tenant for nonpayment of the withheld rent; and
- The tenant serves and files an answer in which the facts constituting the breach of the implied warranty are alleged.

Breach of the warranty is a legal defense as to which the parties would appear to be entitled to a jury trial [see Department of Transportation v. Kerrigan (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 41, 200 Cal. Rptr. 865] . Whether the premises were uninhabitable is a question of fact for the trier of fact [Lehr v. Crosby (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 6, 177 Cal. Rptr. 96 ; see Hall v. Municipal Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 641, 643-644, 111 Cal. Rptr. 721, 517 P.2d 1185] .

The issue of breach of the implied warranty of habitability may also be raised by the tenant in an independent action against the landlord for rent abatement or damages [see Civ. Code § 1942.4; Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 903, 913-932, 162 Cal. Rptr. 194 ; Quevedo v. Braga (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 140 Cal. Rptr. 143 ; for discussion and forms, see Ch. 334, Landlord and Tenant: Claims for Damages].

[ii] Commercial Lease

The covenant of habitability is implied only in residential leases or rental agreements and not in commercial leases. Hence, the defense that the landlord has breached the covenant is not available to a tenant in an unlawful detainer proceeding arising out of a commercial lease [Schulman v. Vera (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 552, 560, 166 Cal. Rptr. 620 ; see Fish Construction Co. v. Moselle Coach Works, Inc. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 654, 658, 196 Cal. Rptr. 174] . If the lease contains a covenant by the landlord to repair, the common law rule that the duty to repair and the duty to pay rent are independent covenants prevails [see Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 622-623, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168] . Thus, a commercial tenant may not remain in possession of the premises without paying rent and then set up the claim for damages for the landlord's breach of the covenant to repair as a defense in an unlawful detainer proceeding. Rather, the remedies available to a tenant under a commercial lease would be to quit the premises and sue for damages if the breach constitutes a constructive eviction. If the tenant elects to remain in possession with or without having the necessary repairs made, or if the conditions resulting from the breach do not amount to a constructive eviction, the tenant may institute an action for damages for breach of covenant [Schulman v. Vera (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 552, 558, 166 Cal. Rptr. 620] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Dependant Covenant. Despite the Schulman case, the landlord's duty to repair (in a lease provision) and the tenant's duty to pay rent might, in some circumstances, be considered dependant covenants [see Moskovitz, et al., California Eviction Defense Manual, § 19.5 (CEB 2nd ed.)]. By Myron Moskovitz

For a discussion and forms for use by a tenant in suing a landlord for damages for breach of covenant, see Ch. 334, Landlord and Tenant: Claims for Damages .

[d] Computing Tenant's Damages

If the tenant proves the defense of breach of the implied warranty of habitability at trial, the trier of fact must determine a reasonable rent for the period of the breach [see Lee v. Vignoli (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 24, 160 Cal. Rptr. 79] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Calculating Rent. Reasonable rent can be calculated by subtracting the tenant's damages from the contract rent. By Myron Moskovitz

The court may, during the pendency of the proceeding and at the request of either party, require the tenant to make the rental payments at the contract rate into court as they become due for as long as the tenant remains in possession. At the trial, the court can then determine how the rent paid into court should be distributed [Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 637, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168] .

Although it has been said that five different methods have been suggested for computing the tenant's damages, it has been held that an appropriate method is as follows [see Cazares v. Ortiz (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 23, 168 Cal. Rptr. 108] :

- Recognize the agreed contract rent as proper for the premises as impliedly warranted;
- Reduce the agreed rent by the percentage reduction of habitability;
- Multiply the difference by the number of months of occupancy.

If the trial court determines that the landlord's breach of warranty is total and that the tenant owes no rent whatsoever, the court should enter judgment for the tenant in the unlawful detainer proceeding. If the court determines, however, that the damages from the breach of warranty justify only a partial reduction in rent, the tenant may maintain possession of the premises by paying that portion of the back rent that is owing as directed by the court. If the tenant fails to pay this sum, the landlord is entitled to a judgment for possession. Also, if the trial court finds that the landlord has not breached the warranty of habitability it should immediately enter judgment in the landlord's favor [Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 639, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168] .

The above rules have been partially codified. In an unlawful detainer proceeding involving residential premises after default in payment of rent in which the tenant has raised as an affirmative defense a breach of the landlord's obligations under Civ. Code § 1941 or of any warranty of habitability, the court must determine whether a substantial breach of these obligations has occurred [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.2(a)]. The term "substantial breach," as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.2, means the failure of the landlord to comply with applicable building and housing code standards that materially affect health and safety [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.2(c)].

If the court finds that a substantial breach has occurred, the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.2(a)]:

- Must determine the reasonable rental value of the premises in its untenantable state to the date of trial;

- Must deny possession to the landlord and adjudge the tenant to be the prevailing party, conditioned on the tenant's payment of the rent that has accrued to the date of the trial as adjusted by the court within a reasonable period of time not exceeding five days from the date of the court's determination or, if service of the court's determination is made by mail, within the extended period of time set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1013;

- May order the landlord to make repairs and correct the conditions that constitute a breach of the landlord's obligations;

- Must order that the monthly rent be limited to the reasonable rental value of the premises as determined above until repairs are completed; and

- Except as otherwise provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.2(b), must award the tenant costs and attorneys' fees if authorized by any statute or the contract of the parties.

If the tenant fails to pay all rent accrued to the date of trial as determined in the judgment and within the period prescribed by the court, the court must award possession of the premises to the landlord. The tenant must, however, retain any rights conferred by Code Civ. Proc. § 1174 (relating to the judgment, forfeiture of the lease, assessing damages, execution, and disposal of the tenant's personal property left on the premises) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.2(a)].

If the court determines that there has been no substantial breach by the landlord of Civ. Code § 1941 or of any warranty of habitability or if the tenant fails to pay all rent accrued to the date of trial, as required by the court under Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.2(a), then judgment must be entered in the landlord's favor, and the landlord must be the prevailing party for the purposes of awarding costs or attorneys' fees under any statute or the contract of the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.2(b)].

This provision is not intended to deny the tenant the right to a trial by jury [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.2(d)].

[e] When Breach Is Presumed

In any unlawful detainer proceeding by the landlord to recover possession from a tenant, a rebuttable presumption affecting the burden of producing evidence that the landlord has breached the habitability requirements in Civ. Code § 1941 [see [b], above] is created with regard to rental agreements or leases entered into or renewed on or after January 1, 1986 [Civ. Code § 1942.3(c)] if all of the following conditions exist [Civ. Code § 1942.3(a)]:

- The dwelling (1) substantially lacks any of the affirmative standard characteristics listed in Civ. Code § 1941.1 (conditions rendering dwelling untenantable), (2) is declared substandard pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 17920.3, or (3) contains lead hazards as defined in Health & Safety Code § 17920.10;

- A public officer or employee who is responsible for enforcing any housing law has notified the landlord, or the landlord's agent, in a written notice issued after inspecting the premises that informs the landlord of his or her obligation to abate the nuisance or repair the substandard or unsafe conditions;

- The conditions have existed and have not been abated 60 days beyond the date of issuance of the notice specified above, and the delay is without good cause; and

- The conditions were not caused by an act or omission of the tenant in violation of Civ. Code § 1929 or 1941.2 [see § 333.28[4][b]].

The presumption does not arise unless all of the above conditions are proven. However, a failure to establish the presumption does not otherwise affect the tenant's right to raise and pursue any defense based on the landlord's breach of the implied warranty of habitability [Civ. Code § 1942.3(b)].

For a discussion of rebuttable presumptions affecting the burden of producing evidence, see Ch. 551, Trial .

For the remedies available to the tenant when the landlord demands or collects rent when the rental dwelling meets the definition of "substandard building" set forth in Health & Safety Code § 17920.3, contains lead hazards as specified in Health & Safety Code § 17920.10, or substantially lacks any of certain affirmative standard characteristics [Civ. Code § 1941.1], and other specified conditions are met, see Civ. Code § 1942.4.

[5] Retaliatory Eviction

[a] Sources and Basis of Doctrine

The ability of a tenant to raise the defense of retaliatory eviction was first recognized in Schweiger v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 507, 517, 90 Cal. Rptr. 729, 476 P.2d 97 . At about the same time, the Legislature added Civ. Code § 1942.5. That section involves different courses of action the lessee may follow when the lessor retaliates against the lessee because of the exercise by the lessee of his or her statutory rights or because of a complaint to an appropriate governmental agency as to a dwelling's tenantability [see Civ. Code § 1942.5]. For further discussion of this defense, see the comments and references in §§ 334.64 and 334.119.

The doctrine of retaliatory eviction stems from two parallel and independent sources that, to a large extent, overlap each other. The first is the common-law doctrine developed by the courts and the second is the statutory scheme set forth in Civ. Code § 1942.5 and other statutes [Barela v. Superior Court (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 244, 250-251, 178 Cal. Rptr. 618, 636 P.2d 582 ; see Western Land Office, Inc. v. Cervantes (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 724, 731-740, 220 Cal. Rptr. 784 ; see also Civ. Code § 1942.5(h) (legislative cognizance of common-law doctrine)].

The retaliatory eviction doctrine is founded on the premise that a landlord may normally evict a tenant for any reason or for no reason at all, but a landlord may not evict for an improper reason [Barela v. Superior Court (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 244, 249, 178 Cal. Rptr. 618, 636 P.2d 582] .

The defense of retaliatory eviction is a legal defense as to which the parties are entitled to a jury trial [Department of Transportation v. Kerrigan (1984) 200 Cal. Rptr. 865] .

[b] Common-Law Doctrine

Retaliatory eviction occurs when a landlord exercises his or her legal right to terminate a residential tenancy in an authorized manner but with a motive of retaliating against a tenant who has exercised a legal right [Four Seas Inv. Corp. v. International Hotel Tenants' Assn. (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 604, 610, 146 Cal. Rptr. 531] . Retaliatory eviction, based on the tenant's exercise of a statutory right, may be plead as an affirmative defense in an unlawful detainer proceeding to recover possession of residential property [Vargas v. Municipal Court (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 902, 913-916, 150 Cal. Rptr. 918, 587 P.2d 714 (termination of employment and eviction from home in retaliation for tenants' exercise of statutorily protected rights under S. P. Growers Asso. v. Rodriguez (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 719, 724, 131 Cal. Rptr. 761, 552 P.2d 721 (eviction of nonunion workers from company-owned housing in retaliation for their filing federal lawsuit charging violations of federal Farm Labor Contractor Registration Act); Schweiger v. Superior Court of Alameda County (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 507, 517, 90 Cal. Rptr. 729, 476 P.2d 97 (retaliatory eviction based on exercise of statutory right to repair dilapidations and deduct cost from rent after notice to landlord)]. The defense is permitted whenever, on balance, the public policies furthered by protecting a tenant from eviction outweigh the state's interest in ensuring that unlawful detainer proceedings are truly summary [see E. S. Bills, Inc. v. Tzucanow (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 824, 830, 215 Cal. Rptr. 278, 700 P.2d 1280 ; Barela v. Superior Court (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 244, 250, 178 Cal. Rptr. 618, 636 P.2d 582] .

The doctrine has been extended to allow an independent action by the tenant against the landlord for both actual and punitive damages for retaliatory eviction [see Civ. Code § 1942.5(f), (g); Aweeka v. Bonds (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 278, 281, 97 Cal. Rptr. 650 ; see also Western Land Office,Inc. v. Cervantes (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 724, 736-737, 220 Cal. Rptr. 784] . For further discussion and forms for use by a lessee in suing a lessor for damages for retaliatory eviction, see Ch. 334, Landlord and Tenant: Claims for Damages .

[c] Statutory Scheme

If the lessee is not in default in the payment of rent, the lessor may not, in retaliation against a lessee because of the lessee's exercise of rights under Civ. Code §§ 1940-1954.1, relating to the leasing of land and dwellings, or complaint to an appropriate agency as to the tenantability of a dwelling [Civ. Code § 1942.5(a); see Barela v. Superior Court (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 244, 250-252, 178 Cal. Rptr. 618, 636 P.2d 582 ; see also Hernandez v. Stabach (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 309, 312-317, 193 Cal. Rptr. 350 (class action by tenants of uninhabitable apartments for injunctive relief in which appellate court affirmed orders granting preliminary injunction enjoining landlord from evicting or threatening to evict tenants without prior showing of good cause being made to superior court)]:

- Recover possession of the dwelling in any action or proceeding;
- Cause the lessee to quit involuntarily;
- Increase the rent; or
- Decrease any services within 180 days after the latest of certain specified dates.

For a discussion of the history of Civ. Code § 1942.5, see Western Land Office, Inc. v. Cervantes (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 724, 732-734, 737-740, 220 Cal. Rptr. 784 .

In addition, it is unlawful for a lessor to increase rent, decrease services, cause a lessee to quit involuntarily, bring an action to recover possession, or threaten to do any of these acts for the purpose of retaliating against the lessee because the lessee has lawfully organized or participated in a lessees' association or an organization advocating lessees' rights or has lawfully and peaceably exercised any rights under the law [Civ. Code § 1942.5(c); see EDC Associates, Ltd. v. Gutierrez (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 167, 172-178, 200 Cal. Rptr. 333 (separate opinion of Justice Andreen)]. This provision is broad enough to cover an eviction in retaliation for the renter's complaint to the police that the landlord has committed a crime [Barela v. Superior Court (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 244, 251-252, 178 Cal. Rptr. 618, 636 P.2d 582] .

A lessor may, however, recover possession of a dwelling and do any of the other acts described in Civ. Code § 1942.5(a) or (c), above, if the notice of termination, rent increase, or other act, and any pleading or statement of issues in an arbitration states the ground on which the lessor in good faith seeks to recover possession, increase rent, or do any of the other acts described in Civ. Code § 1942.5(a) or (c). If the statement is controverted, the lessor has the burden of establishing its truth at the trial or other hearing [Civ. Code § 1942.5(e)]. For the liability of the lessor to the lessee for violating the provisions of Civ. Code § 1942.5, which remedies are in addition to any other remedies provided by statutory or case law [Civ. Code § 1942.5(h)], see Civ. Code § 1942.5(f) and (g).

The operator of certain employee housing is prohibited from terminating or modifying a tenancy in retaliation for the tenant's exercise of specified rights, and the tenant may raise the defense of retaliation or retaliatory eviction in any action for possession, including an unlawful detainer proceeding [see Health & Safety Code §§ 17031.5, 17031.6]. In addition, persons operating certain employee community housing are prohibited from taking retaliatory employment action [see Health & Safety Code § 17031.7].

[d] Applicability to Commercial Leases

Although the cases and statutes set forth in [a]-[c], above, concern residential leases, the defense of retaliatory eviction is available in an unlawful detainer proceeding involving a commercial lease when to disallow the defense would frustrate the purpose of statutory law [see Mobil Oil Corp. v. Handley (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 956, 965-967, 143 Cal. Rptr. 321 (stating defense of retaliatory eviction of franchised petroleum lessee based on lessee's exercise of rights under California and federal law could properly be raised, but holding under facts of case that trial court properly struck defense, leaving tenant to an action at law)].

By virtue of Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(a), the defense of retaliatory eviction may be raised in an unlawful detainer proceeding by a petroleum distributor against a gasoline dealer when the defense goes to the issue of the distributor's good faith in terminating or refusing to renew the dealer's franchise [E. S. Bills, Inc. v. Tzucanow (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 824, 826-827, 831-834, 215 Cal. Rptr. 278, 700 P.2d 1280] .

The existence or nonexistence of a landlord's retaliatory motive is ordinarily a question of fact to be resolved by the trier of fact [Western Land Office, Inc. v. Cervantes (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 724, 731, 220 Cal. Rptr. 784] . However, the issue cannot be submitted to the jury unless substantial evidence appears in the record in support of it [Four Seas Inv. Corp. v. International Hotel Tenants' Assn. (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 604, 610, 146 Cal. Rptr. 531] . Thus, when the affirmative defense of retaliatory eviction is asserted under either the common law doctrine or under Civ. Code § 1942.5 [see [c], above], the burden of proving retaliatory motive by a preponderance of the evidence is on the tenant under the provisions of Evid. Code §§ 500 and 520 [see Schweiger v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 507, 517, 90 Cal. Rptr. 729, 476 P.2d 97 (common law defense); Western Land Office, Inc. v. Cervantes (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 724, 726, 735, 739, 740-742, 220 Cal. Rptr. 784 (statutory defense); see also Civ. Code § 1942.5(c)]. Conversely, a landlord who takes action for a valid reason not listed in the unlawful detainer statutes must give notice to the tenant of the ground on which he or she proceeds and, if the tenant controverts that ground, the landlord has the burden of proving its existence by a preponderance of the evidence [Western Land Office, Inc. v. Cervantes (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 724, 726, 740-742, 220 Cal. Rptr. 784 ; see Civ. Code § 1942.5(e)].

[f] Eviction in Violation of Constitutional Right

Judicial eviction of a tenant because of race violates the tenant's rights guaranteed by the U.S. Const., amend. XIV, and by Cal. Const., art. I, § 7(a). Hence, eviction based on racial discrimination may also be asserted as an affirmative defense in an unlawful detainer proceeding to recover possession of residential property [Abstract Investment Co. v. Hutchinson (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 242, 244-245, 255, 22 Cal. Rptr. 309] .

[g] Defense Based on Municipal Rent Control Legislation

Municipal ordinances eliminating particular grounds for eviction for the purpose of enforcing municipal rent control legislation are a limitation on the landlord's property rights under the police power [see Cal. Const., art. XI, § 7], giving rise to a substantive ground of defense in unlawful detainer proceedings [Birkenfeld v. City of Berkeley (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 129, 149, 130 Cal. Rptr. 465, 550 P.2d 1001 ; Gross v. Superior Court (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 265, 271-272, 217 Cal. Rptr. 284] . Hence, a defense based on municipal rent control legislation may be plead if applicable [see Birkenfeld v. City of Berkeley (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 129, 149, 130 Cal. Rptr. 465, 550 P.2d 1001 (although holding rent control legislation in issue unconstitutional because of specified defects, Court said that Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1159-1179a and Civ. Code §§ 1951-1952.6 do not preclude a defense based on municipal rent control legislation enacted under the police power imposing rent ceilings and limiting the grounds for eviction for the purpose of enforcing those rent ceilings); Nourafchan v. Miner (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 746, 751-752, 215 Cal. Rptr. 450 ; see also Fisher v. City of Berkeley (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 644, 655-656, 209 Cal. Rptr. 682, 693 P.2d 261 (explaining Birkenfeld and holding particular rent control ordinance before it did not violate Sherman Antitrust Act, 15 U.S.C. §§ 1, 2)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Pleading Affirmative Defense Under Rent Control Ordinances. An affirmative defense under municipal rent control ordinances need only be plead if the plaintiff has not plead applicability and compliance with the ordinances. If the plaintiff has plead applicability and compliance, the denial by answer puts the matter in issue without any affirmative defense having to be plead. By Benjamin Kaplan

The rule described above applies not only to unlawful detainer proceedings brought by a landlord against a tenant but to unlawful detainer proceedings brought by the purchaser at a foreclosure sale against tenants occupying the premises under a lease or rental agreement as well [Gross v. Superior Court (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 265, 271, 217 Cal. Rptr. 284] .

When a landlord charges and a tenant pays rent in excess of the maximum rent allowable under a rent control ordinance, the tenant has an affirmative defense to an unlawful detainer action based on the claim that the rent has already been paid. There is no statute of limitations as to how far back the excess rent may be applied [Minelian v. Manzella (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 457, 466-468, 263 Cal. Rptr. 597] .

When a local rent control ordinance requires payment of relocation assistance as a condition to evictions based on certain bases, failure to pay the assistance is a defense to an unlawful detainer action [Salazar v. Maradeaga (1992) 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 676] .

For the manner of pleading an ordinance, see Code Civ. Proc. § 459, which is made applicable to unlawful detainer proceedings by Code Civ. Proc. § 1177. For further discussion of legislation and local ordinances governing rent control, see Ch. 335, Landlord and Tenant: Rent Control .

[h] Lessee's Period of Protection

If a lessor retaliates against a lessee because of the exercise by the lessee of his or her rights under Civ. Code §§ 1940-1954.1 (leasing land and dwellings) or because of the lessee's complaint to an appropriate agency as to tenantability of a dwelling, and if the dwelling's lessee is not in default as to the payment of rent, the lessor may not recover possession of a dwelling in any action or proceeding, cause the lessee to quit involuntarily, increase the rent, or decrease any services within 180 days [Civ. Code § 1942.5(a)].

- After the date on which the lessee, in good faith, has given notice in accordance with Civ. Code § 1942 (tenant's right to repair or vacate), or has made an oral complaint to the lessor regarding tenantability; or

- After the date on which the lessee, in good faith, has filed a written complaint, or an oral complaint that is registered or otherwise recorded in writing, with an appropriate agency, of which the lessor has notice, for the purpose of obtaining correction of a condition relating to tenantability; or

- After the date of an inspection or issuance of a citation, resulting from a complaint described above, of which the lessor did not have notice; or

- After the filing of appropriate documents commencing a judicial or arbitration proceeding involving the issue of tenantability; or

- After entry of judgment or the signing of an arbitration award, if any, when in the judicial proceeding or arbitration the issue of tenantability is determined adversely to the landlord.

In each instance, the 180-day period runs from the latest applicable date referred to above [Civ. Code § 1942.5(a)].

A tenant may not invoke the provisions of Civ. Code § 1942.5(a) more than once in any 12-month period [Civ. Code § 1942.5(b)]. This limitation period applies only to retaliation defenses raised under the statute, not those raised under common law.

[i] Acts Relating to Lessees' Rights

It is unlawful for a landlord to increase rent, decrease services, cause a tenant to quit involuntarily, bring an action to recover possession, or threaten to do any of these acts, for the purpose of retaliating against the tenant because he or she has lawfully organized or participated in a tenants' association or an organization advocating tenants rights or has lawfully and peaceably exercised any rights under the law. In any action brought under Civ. Code § 1942.5(c), the tenant has the burden of producing evidence that the landlord's conduct was retaliatory [Civ. Code § 1942.5(c)].

[j] Lessor's Rights

Nothing in Civ. Code § 1942.5 limits in any way the exercise by the landlord of his or her rights under any lease or agreement or any law pertaining to the hiring of property or his or her right to do any of the acts described in Civ. Code § 1942.5(a)-(c) for any lawful cause. Any waiver by a tenant of his or her rights under Civ. Code § 1942.5 is void as contrary to public policy [Civ. Code § 1942.5(d)].

[k] When Lessor May Recover Possession

Notwithstanding Civ. Code § 1942.5(a)-(d), a landlord may recover possession of a dwelling and do any of the other acts described in Civ. Code § 1942.5(a) within the period or periods prescribed therein, or within Civ. Code § 1942.5(c), if the notice of termination, rent increase, or other act, and any pleading or statement of issues in an arbitration, if any, states the ground on which the landlord, in good faith, seeks to recover possession, increase rent, or do any of the other acts described in Civ. Code § 1942.5(a) or (c). If the statement is controverted, the landlord must establish its truth at the trial or other hearing [Civ. Code § 1942.5(e)].

[l] Damages

Any landlord or agent of a landlord who violates Civ. Code § 1942.5 is liable to the tenant in a civil action for the actual damages sustained by the tenant and for punitive damages in an amount not less than $100 or more than $2,000 for each retaliatory act when the landlord or agent has been guilty of fraud, oppression, or malice with regard to each act [Civ. Code § 1942.5(f)].

[m] Attorney's Fees

In any action brought for damages for retaliatory eviction, the court must award reasonable attorney's fees to the prevailing party if either party requests attorney's fees on the initiation of the action [Civ. Code § 1942.5(g)].

[n] Remedies Not Exclusive

The remedies provided by Civ. Code § 1942.5 are in addition to any other remedies provided by statutory or decisional law [Civ. Code § 1942.5(h)]. Therefore, there is also a common law defense of retaliatory eviction, which is parallel to and independent from the statutory right provided by Civ. Code § 1942.5 [Barela v. Superior Court (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 244, 250-251, 178 Cal. Rptr. 618, 636 P.2d 582] . The common law defense of retaliatory eviction existed even before the 1970 enactment of Civ. Code § 1942.5, stating that the statutory retaliatory eviction remedies were in addition to other remedies [Glaser v. Meyers (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 770, 775-777, 187 Cal. Rptr. 242] .

[o] Retaliatory Eviction by Employee Housing Operator

[i] Protected Acts

No person operating employee housing may terminate or modify a tenancy by increasing rent, decreasing services, threatening to bring or bringing an action to evict, refusing to renew a tenancy, or in any other way intimidating, threatening, restraining, coercing, blacklisting, or discharging an employee or tenant because of the tenant's exercise of any of the following acts [Health & Safety Code § 17031.5(a)]:

- Complaining in good faith, orally or in writing, to the operator, landlord, or employer about tenantability or about any right provided by Health & Safety Code § 17000 et seq. (Employee Housing Act);

- Exercising any legal right with regard to the housing provided by the Employee Housing Act;

- Complaining in good faith, orally or in writing, to any applicable enforcement agency about tenantability or any right provided by the Employee Housing Act;

- Bringing an action to enforce any rights provided for by the Employee Housing Act or by Civ. Code § 1940 et seq. (leasing land and dwellings); or

- Bringing an action under Civ. Code § 1942.5 (damages for retaliatory eviction).

[ii] Retaliation Defense

The tenant has a defense of retaliation in any action for possession if the employer or landlord violates Health & Safety Code § 17031.5. If the employer or landlord acts to modify or terminate a tenancy within six months after the employee or tenant has exercised any of the acts enumerated in Health & Safety Code § 17031.5(a), there is a rebuttable presumption affecting the burden of proof that the employer's or landlord's action was retaliatory [Health & Safety Code § 17031.5(b)].

No tenant has a defense of retaliation in an action for possession when tenantability is an issue of fact and the untenantable condition was caused by the deliberate or negligent act or omission of the tenant, a member of his or her family, or other persons on the premises with his or her consent [Health & Safety Code § 17031.5(c)].

[6] Statute of Frauds

[a] Agreement for Period Greater Than One Year

An agreement for the leasing for a longer period than one year of real property is invalid, unless the same, or some note or memorandum thereof, is in writing and subscribed by the party to be charged or by his or her agent [Civ. Code § 1624(a)(3)]. This agreement, if made by an agent of the party sought to be charged, is invalid, unless the authority of the agent is in writing, subscribed by the party sought to be charged [Civ. Code § 1624(a)(3); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1971]. An oral one-year lease is not within the statute of frauds [see Civ. Code § 1624(a)(3)].

For a form of affirmative defense based on the statute of frauds, see Ch. 140, Contracts .

PRACTICE TIP:

Expiration of Fixed Term Leases. If a landlord is relying on the expiration of a fixed term lease, and the lease is invalid under the statute of frauds, then the tenancy was in fact at will or month-to-month and could be terminated only by a 30-day notice. By Myron Moskovitz

PRACTICE TIP: Exceptions to Statute of Frauds. There are exceptions to the statute of frauds that should also be explored because they may apply in the landlord/tenant context if the relationship has been in existence for some time [see, e.g., [d], below (regarding part performance)]. By Benjamin Kaplan

Since a sublease is merely a lease between a present tenant and a third party, it too must conform to the statute of frauds. Further, an assignment of a lease must also meet the statute requirements [Maron v. Howard (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 473, 485, 66 Cal. Rptr. 70] . In addition, an agreement to surrender a lease for more than one year must be in writing [Strei v. Brooks (1928) 95 Cal. App. 589, 591-592, 273 P. 145] .

[b] Requirements

To satisfy the statute of frauds, the lease must contain three essentials [Enlow v. Irwin (1926) 80 Cal. App. 98, 101, 251 P. 658] :

- An adequate description of the property to be leased;
- A definite term; and
- A definite rent and the time and manner of its payment.

[c] Extrinsic Evidence

A lessee may not add to the terms of a lease by use of an estoppel based on representations of the lessor made before its execution [Salton Community Services Dist. v. Southard (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 526, 531, 64 Cal. Rptr. 246] . However, if a lease is ambiguous, extrinsic evidence is admissible to assist the court in interpreting it [Norlen Investment Co. v. Minskoff (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 534, 536, 59 Cal. Rptr. 484] .

[d] Part Performance

Part performance of an oral lease for more than one year by taking possession of the premises may take the situation out of the operation of the statute of frauds [Schubert v. Lowe (1924) 193 Cal. 291, 295-296, 223 P. 550] . The payment of money, however, is not sufficient part performance [Psihozios v. Humberg (1947) 80 Cal. App. 2d 215, 217-218, 181 P.2d 699] .

[e] Oral Renewals

An oral agreement for a one-year lease to be annually renewed for one-year terms at the tenant's desire violates the statute of frauds. As to those periods already executed, though, the statute has no application. However, if the entire agreement were considered as a unit, part performance would take the situation out of the statute of frauds [Aaker v. Smith (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 36, 43, 196 P.2d 150] .

[f] Requirements Lease

An oral lease to provide for a tenant's requirements for office space does not violate the statute of frauds because its performance might be completed within a year [Fisher v. Parsons (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 829, 836-837, 29 Cal. Rptr. 210] .

[7] Statute of Limitations

A lease executed before July 1, 1971, or one in which the terms of the lease were fixed before that date, is not governed by Civ. Code §§ 1951-1952 [Civ. Code § 1952.2]. The period of limitation for commencing an action based on these leases, if there was an oral contract, is two years from the date the cause of action arose [Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1); Tillson v. Peters (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 671, 679, 107 P.2d 434] . The period for commencing an action based on these leases, if there was a written contract, is four years [Code Civ. Proc. § 337(1)].

If a landlord is seeking relief under Civ. Code § 1951.2 (regarding what lessor may recover from lessee on the lease's termination) based on an oral lease, the action must be brought within two years of the breach and abandonment of the property, or within two years after the termination of the right of the tenant to possession of the property, whichever is the earlier time [Code Civ. Proc. § 339.5]. If the landlord is seeking relief under Civ. Code § 1951.2 based on a written lease, the action must be brought within four years of the breach and abandonment of the property, or within four years of the termination of the tenant's right to possession, whichever is the earlier time [Code Civ. Proc. § 337.2].

§ 333.29 Time Limits for Discovery

[1] Short Time Limits May Apply

There are special, shorter time limits for certain methods of discovery in unlawful detainer actions [see, e.g., [2], below, regarding depositions]. A discovery motion may be made at any time on giving five days' notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.8]. For a detailed discussion of discovery methods, see Ch. 190, Depositions and Discovery .

[2] Deposition

In unlawful detainer actions, an oral deposition must be scheduled for a date at least five days after service of the deposition notice, but not later than five days before trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 2025.270(b)].

[3] Interrogatories

A plaintiff in an unlawful detainer proceeding may propound interrogatories to a party without leave of court at any time that is five days after service of the summons or appearance by that party, whichever occurs first [Code Civ. Proc. § 2030.020(c)]. The party to whom any interrogatories are propounded has five days from the date of service to respond, unless on motion of the propounding party the court has shortened the time for response [Code Civ. Proc. § 2030.260(b)].

[4] Demand for Inspection of Documents

A plaintiff may make a demand for inspection copying, testing, or sampling without leave of court at any time that is within five days after service of the summons on or appearance by the party to whom the demand is directed, whichever occurs first [Code Civ. Proc. § 2031.020(c)]. Demands for inspection copying, testing, or sampling must specify a reasonable time that is at least five days after service of the demand, and must permit the party to whom the demand is directed to have at least five days after service to respond, unless on motion of the party making the demand the court has shortened the time for response [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2031.030(c)(2), 2031.260(b)].

Either party may make a supplemental demand to inspect, copy, test, or sample any later acquired or discovered documents, tangible things, land or other property, or electronically stored information in the custody, or control of the party on whom the demand is made twice before the initial setting of a trial date, and (subject to the time limits on discovery proceedings and motions provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.010 et seq.), once after the initial setting of a trial date [Code Civ. Proc. § 2031.050(a), (b)]. On motion, for good cause shown, the court may grant leave to a party to make an additional number of supplemental demands for inspection copying, testing, or sampling [Code Civ. Proc. § 2031.050(c)].

[5] Request for Admission

A plaintiff may make requests for admission by a party without leave of court at any time that is five days after service of the summons or appearance by that party, whichever occurs first [Code Civ. Proc. § 2033.020(c)]. The party to whom any requests are directed has five days from the date of service to respond, unless on motion of the requesting party the court has shortened the time for response [Code Civ. Proc. § 2033.250(b)].

B. Defending an Eviction Action

29-333 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 333.30

§ 333.30 Effect of Surrender of Possession Before Trial or Judgment if There Is No Trial

[1] On Nature of Action

Except as provided in Civ. Code § 1952.3(b) [see [3], below] and Civ. Code § 1952.3(c) [see below], if possession of the property is no longer in issue in an unlawful detainer proceeding because possession has been delivered to the lessor before trial or, if there is no trial, before judgment is entered, the case becomes an ordinary civil action [Civ. Code § 1952.3(a); see Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 633 n.18, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168 (recognizing same rule before its codification in Civ. Code § 1952.3)]. The purpose of Civ. Code § 1952.3 is to accord a tenant, who has relinquished possession of the contested premises at any time before trial, time to prepare for trial and perhaps raise certain defenses not available in unlawful detainer actions. Once possession has been delivered to the landlord, the need for a summary proceeding no longer exists [Fish Construction Co. v. Moselle Coach Works, Inc. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 654, 659, 196 Cal. Rptr. 174] .

The above rule does not apply, however, if the defendant's default has been entered on the unlawful detainer complaint and has not been opened by an amendment of the complaint [see [2], below] or otherwise set aside. In this event the case must proceed as an unlawful detainer proceeding [Civ. Code § 1952.3(c)].

[2] On Relief Available to Plaintiff

When an unlawful detainer proceeding becomes an ordinary civil action under Civ. Code § 1952.3(a), the lessor may obtain any relief to which he or she is entitled, including, when applicable, relief authorized by Civ. Code § 1951.2 (what lessor may recover on automatic termination of lease because of lessee's breach of lease and abandonment of property or termination of lease by lessor because of lessee's breach). However, if the lessor seeks to recover damages described in Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)(3) (amount by which unpaid rent for balance of term exceeds amount of rental loss that lessee proves could be reasonably avoided) or any other damages not recoverable in the unlawful detainer proceeding, the lessor must first amend the complaint in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 472 or 473 so that possession of the property is no longer in issue and to state a claim for such damages. The lessor must serve a copy of the amended complaint on the defendant in the same manner as a copy of a summons and original complaint are served [Civ. Code § 1952.3(a)(1)].

For discussion and forms for use in amending a complaint, see Ch. 21, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings . For the manner in which thesummons and complaint are served, see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 413.10-417.40 and Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers.

[3] On Defenses and Cross Claims Available to Defendant

When an unlawful detainer proceeding becomes an ordinary civil action under Civ. Code § 1952.3(a), the defendant may, by appropriate pleadings or amendments to pleadings, seek any affirmative relief, and assert all defenses, to which he or she is entitled, whether or not the lessor has amended the complaint [Civ. Code § 1952.3(a)(2)]. The court may not require the defendant to deposit into court back rent and accrued damages alleged to be due the landlord as a condition to filing a cross complaint or as a condition to continuing the trial date to allow time for filing and responding to the cross complaint [Medford v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 236, 239-240, 189 Cal. Rptr. 227 (at p. 239 n.4, pointing out without deciding that Civ. Code § 1952.3 could be interpreted to mean that defendant may file a cross complaint as a matter of right without seeking leave of court to do so)]. However, Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30(a) (relating to compulsory cross complaints) does not apply unless, after delivering possession of the property to the lessor, the defendant (1) files a cross complaint or (2) files an answer or an amended answer in response to an amended complaint filed under Civ. Code § 1952.3(a)(1) [Civ. Code § 1952.3(a)(2)].

The defendant's time to respond to a complaint for unlawful detainer is not affected by the delivery of possession of the property to the lessor. However, if the complaint is amended as provided in Civ. Code § 1952.3(a)(1), the defendant has the same time to respond to the amended complaint as in an ordinary civil action, that is, 30 days [Civ. Code § 1952.3(b); Code Civ. Proc. § 471.5(a)].

For a discussion of cross complaints, including compulsory cross complaints, forms of cross complaints, and forms for use to secure leave of court to file a cross complaint, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints .

[4] On Right to Continuance

When possession is no longer an issue because possession has been delivered to the lessor within the period prescribed by Civ. Code § 1952.3, and the proceeding is thereby converted to an ordinary civil action, the defendant is entitled, on proper motion, to have the matter continued or placed off calendar to enable him or her to prepare pleadings seeking relief or asserting affirmative defenses not cognizable in an unlawful detainer proceeding and to gather evidence to establish those defenses or the right to such relief. A contrary rule would defeat the statutory policy [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1179a] that only those proceedings in which possession remains an issue are entitled to calendar preference as unlawful detainer proceedings and that, once possession has ceased to be an issue, the matter must proceed as an ordinary civil action [Fish Construction Co. v. Moselle Coach Works, Inc. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 654, 659-660, 196 Cal. Rptr. 174] .

Nothing in Civ. Code § 1952.3 affects the pleadings that may be filed, relief that may be sought, or defenses that may be asserted in an unlawful detainer proceeding that has not become an ordinary civil action by reason of the delivery of possession of the property to the lessor before trial or, if there is no trial, before judgment is entered [Civ. Code § 1952.3(d)].

Forcible entry and forcible detainer are defined in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1159 and 1160, respectively. The showing required to be made at trial is set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1172. Otherwise, the proceedings are governed generally by the same statutes governing proceedings in unlawful detainer, that is, by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1159-1179a.

Penal Code § 418 defines the criminal offenses of forcible entry and forcible detainer and makes them misdemeanors.

PRACTICE TIP:

Forcible Detainer as Crime. As forcible detainer is a crime, tenants who are forcibly removed by their landlords might regain possession most quickly and cheaply by a call to the local police department, rather than by filing suit. By Myron Moskovitz

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Forcible Entry and Forcible Detainer

29-333 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 333.41

§ 333.41 Nature and Purpose of Proceedings

Judicial proceedings for forcible entry and forcible detainer are summary proceedings to recover possession of premises forcibly or unlawfully detained [Jordan v. Talbot (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 597, 604, 12 Cal. Rptr. 488, 361 P.2d 20] . The intent of the statutes is to prevent bloodshed, violence, and breaches of the peace likely to result from wrongful entries into the possession of others [Jordan v. Talbot (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 597, 607, 12 Cal. Rptr. 488, 361 P.2d 20] . More precisely stated, the legislative intent was to establish a summary procedure for the restitution of real property and thereby promote the settlement of disputes over possession by legal means rather than by self-help. An additional indication of the policy against self-help is found in Penal Code § 418, which makes it a misdemeanor for any person to use any force or violence in entering on or detaining any lands or other possessions of another [Daluiso v. Boone (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 484, 498-499, 78 Cal. Rptr. 707, 455 P.2d 811] . Thus, the purpose of the statutes was to secure a judicial adjustment of differences concerning the right to possession of property and thereby prevent the parties themselves from redressing or attempting to redress their own wrongs that is likely to lead to serious wrongs against the public or society [Daluiso v. Boone (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 484, 495, 78 Cal. Rptr. 707, 455 P.2d 811 ; Rosano v. Superior Court (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 92, 96, 194 Cal. Rptr. 749] .

Every person is guilty of forcible entry if he or she [Code Civ. Proc. § 1159]:

- Breaks open doors, windows, or other parts of a house, or by any kind of violence or circumstance of terror enters on or into any real property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1159(1)]; or

- After entering peaceably on real property, turns out by force, threats, or menacing conduct, the party in possession [Code Civ. Proc. § 1159(2); see Bedi v. McMullan (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 272, 275, 206 Cal. Rptr. 578 ; Civic Western Corp. v. Zila Industries, Inc. (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 1, 17, 135 Cal. Rptr. 915] .

"Every person," as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 1159, includes the owner or a person with a superior right to possession, as well as strangers to the title [see Jordan v. Talbot (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 597, 603, 12 Cal. Rptr. 488, 361 P.2d 20] . "House," as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 1159(1), is not limited to homes, but includes commercial buildings as well [Karp v. Margolis (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d 69, 73, 323 P.2d 557] . "Party in possession," as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 1159(2), means any person who hires real property and includes a boarder or lodger, but does not include those persons whose occupancy is described in Civ. Code § 1940(b) (transient occupancy in hotel, motel, residence club, or other facility, or occupancy at hotel or motel where innkeeper retains right of access and control and provides specified services) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1159(2)].

A person who obtains possession of property by a forcible entry does not have the right to retain it [Jordan v. Talbot (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 597, 608, 12 Cal. Rptr. 488, 361 P.2d 20] . In addition, no notice or demand for surrender of the premises is necessary to maintain a proceeding for forcible entry [Rutledge v. Barger (1927) 82 Cal. App. 356, 359, 255 P. 537] .

- By force, or by menaces and threats of violence, unlawfully holds and keeps the possession of any real property, whether it was acquired peaceably or otherwise [Code Civ. Proc. § 1160(1); see Bedi v. McMullan (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 272, 275, 206 Cal. Rptr. 578] ; or

- In the nighttime, or during the absence of the land's occupant, unlawfully enters on the real property and, after demand made for its surrender, for the period of five days refuses to surrender it to the former occupant [*Code Civ. Consequently, as an adjunct to any of the standard causes for relief, there is a fifth cause for relief, to wit, damages for fraud accompanying any forcible entry or forcible detainer [*Valencia v. 29-333 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 333.45

§ 333.45 Common Law Tort Actions

[1] Damages For Forcible Entry

Apart from any remedy available in a summary proceeding of forcible entry and detainer, but in furtherance of the policy against self-help, a person in peaceable possession of real property may recover in an action in tort all damages for injuries to his or her person or goods that are the natural and proximate result of a forcible entry by another, irrespective of whether the entering party has title or the right to possession [Daluiso v. Boone (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 484, 486, 499, 78 Cal. Rptr. 707, 455 P.2d 811 (at page 500 overruling Walker v. Chanslor (1908) 153 Cal. 118, 94 P. 606 , and Canavan v. Gray (1883) 64 Cal. 5, 27 P. 788)]. If the occupant's possession was lawful but only damages for a wrongful eviction are sought, the occupant may sue for damages for wrongful eviction notwithstanding that restitution of the premises is not sought under the forcible entry statutes [Allen v. McMillion (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 211, 219 n.6, 147 Cal. Rptr. 77] .

For discussion and forms of complaints and affirmative defenses that may be adapted for use in suing the intruder in tort, see Ch. 58, Assault and Battery , Ch. 362, Mental Suffering , and Ch. 550, Trespass .

[2] Actions For Trespass

A person in peaceful though wrongful possession of real property may sue in tort for nonstatutory forcible entry and interference with that possession even in the absence of an injury to his or her person or goods [Allen v. McMillion (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 211, 214, 147 Cal. Rptr. 77] . Although the cause of action is for nonstatutory forcible entry, it has been held that there is no great harm in calling the cause of action an action for trespass so long as it is borne in mind that the cause of action is not for infringement of ownership rights or for injury to real property, but for the forcible, that is, wrongful, interference with peaceable possession [Allen v. McMillion (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 211, 218, 147 Cal. Rptr. 77] . On proof of the elements of a trespass, that is, a nonstatutory action for forcible entry, the plaintiff in the absence of any injury to his or her person or goods is entitled to an award of at least nominal damages, just as would be true if the intruder was a third party rather than the property's owner. However, unlike the ordinary case when the trespasser is a stranger, the plaintiff by declining to seek restitution of the premises under the forcible entry statutes acquiesces in the continued possession of the property by the forcibly intruding owner. In other words, what is being remedied in the tort action is the manner of dispossession (self-help) rather than the fact of it [Allen v. McMillion (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 211, 219, 147 Cal. Rptr. 77] .

It should also be noted that any person who enters residential real property on the invitation of an occupant, during reasonable hours or because of emergency circumstances, for the purpose of providing information regarding tenants' rights or to participate in a tenants' association will not be liable in any criminal or civil action for trespass [Civ. Code § 1942.6].

29-333 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 333.47

§ 333.47 Elements of Forcible Entry

[1] Plaintiff's Actual, Peaceable Possession

To state a cause of action, or cause for relief, for forcible entry, plaintiff must allege that he or she was in the actual, peaceable possession of the property at the time of the entry complained of [Knowles v. The Crocker Estate Co. (1899) 125 Cal. 264, 265, 57 P. 998 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1172 (discussed at § 333.50)]. Both words, "actual" and "peaceable," are important. It is not sufficient to allege that plaintiff was entitled to possession or that he or she had constructive possession; it must be alleged that he or she was in actual possession of the premises at the time of the defendant's entry [Knowles v. The Crocker Estate Co. (1899) 125 Cal. 264, 265, 57 P. 998] . Actual possession, however, need not consist of actual physical presence on the land, but may exist when one not in actual possession has whatever exclusive power and dominion over it as its circumstances will reasonably permit [Conroy v. Duane (1873) 45 Cal. 597, 603-605] . Further, plaintiff's possession must be peaceable and not one maintained against the defendant by force [Bowers v. Cherokee Bob (1873) 45 Cal. 495, 503-504] . When, if ever, the possession of a person who enters by force becomes a peaceable possession so as to enable that person to sue for forcible entry is a question of fact to be determined from each case's circumstances [Bowers v. Cherokee Bob (1873) 45 Cal. 495, 504] . The plaintiff may be any "party in possession," that is, any person who hires real property, including a boarder or lodger, but not including those persons whose occupancy is described in Civ. Code § 1940(b) (transient occupancy in hotel, motel, residence club, or other facility, or occupancy at hotel or motel where innkeeper retains right of access and control and provides specified services) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1159(2)].

[2] Forcible Entry by Defendant

[a] Code Civ. Proc. § 1159(1)

To state a cause of action, or cause for relief, for forcible entry under Code Civ. Proc. § 1159(1), plaintiff must allege that defendant is guilty of a forcible entry because defendant entered the premises by breaking open doors, windows, or other parts of the building or, by any kind of violence or circumstance of terror [Code Civ. Proc. § 1159(1)]. Angry words and threats of force may be sufficient to constitute acts of forcible entry under Code Civ. Proc. § 1159(1), and the breaking of locks is of itself evidence of force [Calidino H. Co. v. Bank of America, etc. (1939) 31 Cal. App. 2d 295, 310, 87 P.2d 923] . However, neither violence nor physical damage is required to constitute a forcible entry under Code Civ. Proc. § 1159(1); what is required is that there be an unauthorized entry against the occupant's consent, in which event force may be implied [Jordan v. Talbot (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 597, 605-607, 12 Cal. Rptr. 488, 361 P.2d 20] . For example, an entry made by unlocking a door without the possessor's consent constitutes a forcible entry [Jordan v. Talbot (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 597, 605, 12 Cal. Rptr. 488, 361 P.2d 20 ; Karp v. Margolis (1959) 159 Cal. App. 2d 69, 71, 73, 323 P.2d 557 ; Winchester v. Becker (1906) 4 Cal. App. 382, 384, 88 P. 296] .

[b] Code Civ. Proc. § 1159(2)

To state a cause of action, or cause for relief, for forcible entry under Code Civ. Proc. § 1159(2), plaintiff must allege that defendant is guilty of a forcible entry because after entering the premises peaceably he or she expelled the plaintiff from the premises by force, threats, or menacing conduct [Code Civ. Proc. § 1159(2)]. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1159(2), a forcible entry is completed if, after a peaceable entry, the occupant is excluded from possession by force or threats of violence [Jordan v. Talbot (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 597, 607-608, 12 Cal. Rptr. 488, 361 P.2d 20 (overruling Potter v. Mercer (1879) 53 Cal. 667, 674 , and disapproving Baxley v. Western Loan & Bldg. Co. (1933) 135 Cal. App. 426, 429, 27 P.2d 387)]. Thus, it has been held that a landlord is guilty of forcible entry under Code Civ. Proc. § 1159(2) by peaceably entering the tenant's apartment in the tenant's temporary absence and removing the tenant's furniture without his or her consent, rendering the apartment unsuitable for residence and thereby forcing the tenant to seek shelter elsewhere, and by a subsequent show of force that caused the tenant to refrain from reentering the premises [Jordan v. Talbot (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 597, 607, 12 Cal. Rptr. 488, 361 P.2d 20] .

[3] Defendant's Continuing Possession

To state a cause of action, or cause for relief, for forcible entry, plaintiff must allege that defendant continues to detain possession of the premises from plaintiff [Davies v. Stark (1914) 25 Cal. App. 519, 521, 144 P. 315] . The whole purpose of the forcible entry statutes is to provide a summary means of restoring possession to the person entitled to it, and Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(a) requires the court, when it or the jury finds in plaintiff's favor, to enter a judgment for possession of the premises. A judgment for possession would, of course, be useless if defendant no longer detained possession of the premises from plaintiff, and this judgment would not serve the purpose of the forcible entry statutes [Bell v. Haun (1908) 9 Cal. App. 41, 44, 97 P. 1126] . Therefore, a complaint that alleges a forcible entry but not a detention of the property by defendant does not state a cause of action for forcible entry [Davies v. Stark (1914) 25 Cal. App. 519, 521-522, 144 P. 315 ; Bell v. Haun (1908) 9 Cal. App. 41, 44, 97 P. 1126] .

[4] Damage Caused by Entry and Detention

If damages are sought, plaintiff must allege that he or she has been damaged in a certain amount by the defendant's forcible entry and wrongful detention of the premises [Karp v. Margolis (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d 69, 74-75, 323 P.2d 557] .

§ 333.48 Elements of Forcible Detainer

[1] Plaintiff's Occupancy or Right to Possession and Defendant's Forcible Detention of Property

To state a cause of action, or cause for relief, for forcible detainer, plaintiff must allege the following:

- In a proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 1160(1), plaintiff was entitled to the possession of the property at the time of the forcible detainer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1172 (discussed under § 333.50); see also San Francisco etc. Soc. v. Leonard (1911) 17 Cal. App. 254, 269, 119 P. 405 (action by employer for forcible detainer against employee who peacefully entered but forcibly detained property after employment's termination)]. Plaintiff must also show that the defendant, by force, or by menaces and threats of violence, unlawfully holds and keeps possession of the property, whether possession was acquired peaceably or otherwise [Code Civ. Proc. § 1160(1); see Moldovan v. Fischer (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 600, 606, 308 P.2d 844] .

- In a proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 1160(2), plaintiff was the property's "occupant" and that the defendant, in the nighttime or during the occupant's absence, unlawfully entered on the property and refused to surrender possession to the occupant for a period of five days after a demand for possession was made [Code Civ. Proc. § 1160(2); see Moldovan v. Fischer (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 600, 607, 308 P.2d 844] .

The term "occupant" is defined as one who within five days preceding the unlawful entry, was in the peaceable and undisturbed possession of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1160(2)]. Possession of the premises by a person's agent or servants is sufficient to constitute the person as an occupant within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 1160(2) [Moldovan v. Fischer (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 600, 607, 308 P.2d 844] . An "unlawful entry" as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1160(2) means simply an entry made without the occupant's consent [Dutcher v. Sanders (1912) 20 Cal. App. 549, 552, 129 P. 809] . Thus, under Code Civ. Proc. § 1160(2), the complaint must allege plaintiff's peaceable possession, defendant's unlawful entry, and defendant's forcible detention [White v. Pfieffer (1913) 165 Cal. 740, 742, 134 P. 321] .

[2] Defendant's Continuing Detention of Property

To state a cause of action for forcible detainer, plaintiff must allege that defendant continues to detain possession of the premises from plaintiff. The purpose of the forcible detainer statutes is to provide a summary means of restoring possession to the person entitled to it, and Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(a) requires the court, when it or the jury finds in plaintiff's favor, to enter a judgment for possession of the premises [see San Francisco etc. Soc. v. Leonard (1911) 17 Cal. App. 254, 267, 119 P. 405] .

[3] Damage Caused by Detainer of Property

If damages are sought, the plaintiff must allege that he or she has been damaged in a certain amount by the defendant's forcible detainer of the premises [see San Francisco etc. Soc. v. Leonard (1911) 17 Cal. App. 254, 267-268, 119 P. 405] .

§ 333.49 Summons

On the filing of a complaint, a summons must be issued [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(d)]. The Judicial Council has not approved a form of summons for use in proceedings for forcible entry or forcible detainer and the general form of summons for use in civil actions would be inappropriate. Consequently, counsel will either have to (1) draft his or her own summons, in which event the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 412.20 and 1167 must be complied with, or (2) adapt the Judicial Council approved form of summons for unlawful detainer [see § 333.100]; this may be done by typing above the words "UNLAWFUL DETAINER" in the last box of the block heading one of the following: "FORCIBLE ENTRY AND DETAINER" or "FORCIBLE DETAINER," checking the "5 Day Response Time" box, and crossing out the words "UNLAWFUL DETAINER."

Notice of a motion to quash service of summons on the ground of lack of jurisdiction or to stay or dismiss the action on the ground of inconvenient forum must be given in compliance with Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1013 and 1167.4 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1327(a) (effective 1/1/09)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Forcible Entry and Forcible Detainer

29-333 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 333.51

§ 333.51 Defenses

[1] In General

The defendant may show in defense that defendant or his or her ancestors or those whose interest in the premises defendant claims, have been in the quiet possession of the property for the space of one whole year together next before the commencement of the proceeding and that his or her interest in the property is not then ended or determined. This showing is a bar to the proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1172; see Karp v. Margolis (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d 69, 74, 323 P.2d 557 (pointing out that title is not to be confused with possession)].

A necessary element of a cause of action for forcible detainer is that the entry was unlawful with regard to the relation between the defendant and the plaintiff. Thus, defendant may show, in defense, for example, that the entry was with plaintiff's consent [see Carteri v. Roberts (1903) 140 Cal. 164, 166-167, 73 P. 818 (entry under verbal executory agreement for one year written lease to begin at some future time; although parol agreement was unenforceable (see Civ. Code § 1624(a)), permissive entry under it created tenancy at will that could be terminated only by 30 days' notice under Civ. Code § 789); see also Tracy v. Donovan (1918) 37 Cal. App. 350, 351, 174 P. 113 ; Roberts v. Casey (1939) 36 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 767, 93 P.2d 654] .

[2] Effect of Defendant's Ownership or Right of Possession

The inquiry in forcible entry and detainer cases is confined to the actual peaceable possession of the plaintiff and the unlawful or forcible ouster or detention by the defendant, or in the case of a forcible detainer the plaintiff's right to possession [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1172], the object being to prevent the disturbance of the public peace by the forcible assertion of a private right. Questions as to the defendant's title or right of possession cannot arise [Jordan v. Talbot (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 597, 604, 12 Cal. Rptr. 488, 361 P.2d 20] . Thus, the fact the defendant may have title or the right to possession of the land is no defense under the forcible entry and forcible detainer statutes (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1159, 1160), since, by their own terms, these statutes apply to "every person" [see Daluiso v. Boone (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 484, 495-496, 78 Cal. Rptr. 707, 455 P.2d 811 ; Jordan v. Talbot (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 597, 603-604, 12 Cal. Rptr. 488, 361 P.2d 20 ; Allen v. McMillion (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 211, 218-219, 147 Cal. Rptr. 77 ; Rutledge v. Barger (1927) 82 Cal. App. 356, 359-360, 255 P. 537] . This is true even if the defendant's entry was under a right of reentry given by the lease. A fortiori, a lease provision expressly permitting a forcible entry by the landlord to recover possession would be void as contrary to public policy [Jordan v. Talbot (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 597, 604-605, 12 Cal. Rptr. 488, 361 P.2d 20] . The plaintiff's interest in peaceable though wrongful possession is secured against forcible intrusion by conferring on plaintiff the right to restitution of the premises, the primary remedy, and incidentally to an award of damages proximately caused by the forcible entry [see Allen v McMillion (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 211, 219, 147 Cal. Rptr. 77 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(b)].

Thus, once a forcible entry, for example, on plaintiff's actual possession is proven, plaintiff is entitled to restitution, though the fee simple title and present right of possession are shown to be in the defendant [Jordan v. Talbot (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 597, 604, 12 Cal. Rptr. 488, 361 P.2d 20] .

Evidence of the defendant's title and ownership of the premises is admissible in evidence in a proceeding for forcible entry and detainer, however, not to disprove the plaintiff's right to a judgment, but as evidence bearing on the question of how much damages the plaintiff suffered as the natural and proximate cause of the forcible entry and the forcible detainer [Karp v. Margolis (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d 69, 75, 323 P.2d 557] .

[1] Possession, Actual Damages, and Statutory Damages

If at trial, the jury's verdict or court's findings are in the plaintiff's favor and against the defendant, judgment must be entered for the possession of the premises [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(a)]. The jury or the court, if the proceeding was tried without a jury, must also assess the damages occasioned to the plaintiff by any forcible entry or forcible detainer alleged and proved. If the defendant is found guilty and malice is shown, the plaintiff may be awarded statutory damages of up to $600, in addition to actual damages, including rent found due. The trier of fact must determine whether actual damages, statutory damages, or both, must be awarded, and judgment must be entered accordingly [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(b); see San Francisco etc. Soc. v. Leonard (1911) 17 Cal. App. 254, 269-272, 119 P. 405] .

For the manners of enforcing the judgment, see § 333.14[3].

[2] Treble Damages

If a person recovers damages for a forcible or unlawful entry in or on, or detention of any building or any cultivated real property, judgment may be entered for three times the amount of which the actual damages are assessed [Code Civ. Proc. § 735].

PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

29-333 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 333.62

§ 333.62 Decisions

[1] Purpose and Nature of Unlawful Detainer

Unlawful detainer statutes as procedural in nature, providing adequate, expeditious, and summary procedure for regaining possession of real property once consensual basis for tenant's occupancy is at an end. Birkenfeld v. City of Berkeley (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 129, 149, 130 Cal. Rptr. 465, 550 P.2d 1001 ; Gross v. Superior Court (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 265, 270, 217 Cal. Rptr. 284 ; De La Vara v. Municipal Court (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d 638, 640, 159 Cal. Rptr. 648 ; Childs v. Eltinge (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 843, 853, 105 Cal. Rptr. 864

Purpose of unlawful detainer proceeding as being to restore to landlord possession of property when tenant fails to pay rent. Fifth & Broadway Partnership v. Kimny, Inc. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 195, 203, 162 Cal. Rptr. 271

Primary purpose of unlawful detainer proceeding as being to obtain possession of real property in cases specified by statute. Gray v. Whitmore (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 1, 17-18, 94 Cal. Rptr. 904

Proceedings in unlawful detainer as wholly created and strictly controlled by statute; mode and measure of plaintiff's recovery as limited by those statutes (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1161-1179a), which prevail over inconsistent general principles of law and procedure because of special function of unlawful detainer proceedings to restore immediate possession of real property. Balassy v. Superior Court (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 1148, 1151, 226 Cal. Rptr. 817

[2] Unlawful Detainer After Sale of Property

Purchaser of property at trustee's sale on foreclosure of trust deed who seeks to evict occupant in possession as required in unlawful detainer proceeding to show that he or she acquired property at regularly conducted sale and thereafter "duly perfected" title. Vella v. Hudgins (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 251, 255,142 Cal. Rptr. 414, 572 P.2d 28 ; California Livestock Production Credit Assn. v. Sutfin (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 136, 140 n.2, 211 Cal. Rptr. 152

In unlawful detainer proceeding brought by purchaser of property sold under power of sale in trust deed, defendant trustor's attacks on plaintiff's title, other than by attempting to show plaintiff's noncompliance with procedure for trustee sale set forth in Civ. Code § 2924, as not constituting valid defenses to proceeding and therefore as not raising any triable issue of fact; defendant's assertion of noncompliance with Civ. Code § 2924 as not raising triable issue because defendant made no showing that it had offered to do equity by tendering full amount of debt for which property was given as security. MCA, Inc. v. Universal Diversified Enterprises Corp. (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 170, 176-177, 103 Cal. Rptr. 522

[3] Availability of Remedy

Proceeding in unlawful detainer as available only when relation of landlord and tenant exists; that is, remedy is limited to cases in which tenant is estopped to deny landlord's title; hence, vendee in possession of land under contract of sale who has defaulted in installment payment of purchase price as not becoming tenant at will subject to removal by suit in unlawful detainer. Francis v. West Virginia Oil Co. (1917) 174 Cal. 168, 169-171, 162 P. 394

Remedy of unlawful detainer as not available to husband to oust his former mistress from house purchased with community property assets when husband had orally agreed to allow mistress to live in house rent free for as long as she wished and some nine years later served her with written notice changing terms of her "tenancy" to provide for rent of $1,000 per month, because mistress had never consented to landlord-tenant relationship and therefore was not a tenant in possession; husband's remedy as being action to quiet title or proceeding for forcible detainer. Harper v. Raya (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 908, 910-913, 201 Cal. Rptr. 563

Statutory situations (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1161, 1161a) in which remedy of unlawful detainer is available as exclusive. Greene v. Municipal Court (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 446, 450, 124 Cal. Rptr. 139

Vendee in possession of land under contract of sale who has defaulted in payment of installment of purchase price is not subject to removal by summary method of unlawful deta iner. Greene v. Municipal Court (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 446, 451, 124 Cal. Rptr. 139 ; Goetze v. Hanks (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 615, 616-617, 68 Cal. Rptr. 150

Relationship between corporate cooperative and shareholder-tenant is that of landlord and tenant; hence, remedy of unlawful detainer proceeding is available to cooperative against tenant who detains premises after tenant's membership and tenancy rights are terminated in accordance with cooperative's bylaws. Sun Terrace Manor v. Municipal Court (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 739, 742-744, 108 Cal. Rptr. 307

Purchaser of leasehold interest who is allowed possession before escrow closes per escrow agreement is not a tenant and unlawful detainer is unavailable to seller to regain possession if escrow does not close. Marvell v. Marina Pizzeria (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 202 Cal. Rptr. 818

[4] Constitutionality of Proceeding

Oregon unlawful detainer statute requiring trial within six days after service of complaint and limiting triable issues is not violative of due process or equal protection provisions of U.S. Constitution. Lindsey v. Normet (1972) 405 U.S. 56, 66-70, 92 S. Ct. 862, 31 L. Ed. 2d 36

Civ. Code § 1785.13(a)(3), restricting credit reporting agencies from reporting specified information about unlawful detainer defendants, is unconstitutional. U.D. Registry, Inc. v. State of California (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 107, 116, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 228 .

Hearing required by due process clause of U.S. Const., Amend. XIV, and former Cal. Const, Art I, § 13 (now Cal. Const., Art I, § 7(a)), is subject to waiver; valid waiver in trust deed precludes defendant in unlawful detainer proceeding from challenging constitutionality of procedure of trustee's sale. MCA, Inc. v. Universal Diversified Enterprises Corp. (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 170, 174-175, 103 Cal. Rptr. 522

[5] Notices Terminating Tenancy

Three-day notice demanding payment of more than one year's rent is insufficient to support unlawful detainer action since it did not correctly state amount that is due and it was not served within one year after rent became due, both required under Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2). Bevill v. Zoura (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 694, 697-698, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 635

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1161.1(a), tenant is not commanded to make tender of amount reasonably estimated to be due and failure to do so does not relieve landlord of complying with obligation to provide notice that reasonably estimates amount owed. WDT-Winchester v. Nilsson (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 516, 533-534, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 511

Finding that landlord's demand for estimated rent exceeds 20 percent margin set by Code Civ. Proc. § 1161.1(e) does not necessarily preclude estimate being deemed reasonable for purposes of statute, depending on facts of case. WDT-Winchester v. Nilsson (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 516, 531, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 511

Landlord's failure to serve three-day notice to pay rent or quit on subtenants, as well as on tenant, is waiver of right to have premises restored in absolutely vacant and tenantless condition by tenant who surrenders possession within three-day period. Markham v. Fralick (1934) 2 Cal. 2d 221, 224, 39 P.2d 804

Notice to pay rent or quit under Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2) that overstates rent due is ineffective and does not support proceeding for unlawful detainer. Nourafchan v. Miner (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 746, 753, 215 Cal. Rptr. 450 ; Ernst Enterprises, Inc. v. Sun Valley Gasoline, Inc. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 355, 359, 188 Cal. Rptr. 641

Lessee waives any defect in service of three-day notice to pay rent or quit possession of farmland by admitting in answer to complaint in unlawful detainer proceeding that he received relevant notice and it was shown that landlord repeatedly attempted personal service on lessee at his residence to no avail, due to lessee's successful efforts to avoid process server, and notice was posted on lessee's residence and copy was mailed to him. Valov v. Tank (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 867, 874-876, 214 Cal. Rptr. 546

*Code Civ. Proc. § 1161*does not require that lessor serve subtenants as well as tenant with notice to pay rent or quit to maintain proceeding in unlawful detainer against tenant when leased premises are occupied by both tenant and certain subtenants. Chinese Hosp. Foundation Fund v. Patterson (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 627, 632, 81 Cal. Rptr. 795

Three day period of three-day notice to pay rent or perform covenant or quit premises does not commence to run until notice is actually served on tenant. Davidson v. Quinn (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 9, 188 Cal. Rptr. 421

Code Civ. Proc. § 594(b), relating to notice of trial and providing that time extension provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a), relating to service by mail, must not serve to extend notice of trial requirements for unlawful detainer proceedings, is direct expression of legislative intent to preserve summary characteristics of unlawful detainer proceedings after complaint has been filed and implies clear legislative intent to exclude notice requirements for terminations of tenancies from time extension provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a), relating to service by mail. Highland Plastics, Inc. v. Enders (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 167 Cal. Rptr. 353

Tenancy is not terminated on giving of notice but on expiration of notice period, and no cause of action for unlawful detainer exists until tenancy has been terminated. Highland Plastics, Inc. v. Enders (1980) 167 Cal. Rptr. 353

Manners of serving notices terminating tenancy. Highland Plastics, Inc. v. Enders (1980) 167 Cal. Rptr. 353

[6] Forfeiture of Lease

Forfeiture of lease for appointment of receiver for sublessor when sublessee had continued to pay rent is proper when landlord lost security from appointment. Superior Motels, Inc. v. Rinn Motor Hotels, Inc. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1032, 1062-1066, 241 Cal. Rptr. 487

Right of lessor to declare forfeiture of lease arising from breach of covenant by lessee is waived when lessor, with knowledge of breach, accepts rent specified in lease. EDC Associates, Ltd. v. Gutierrez (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 167, 170, 200 Cal. Rptr. 333 ; Highland Plastics, Inc. v. Enders (1980) 167 Cal. Rptr. 353

[7] Effect of Surrender of Possession

Landlord's conversion of unlawful detainer action to ordinary civil action for failure to pay rent is proper if landlord gives up claims for possession and defendant given all rights he or she would have in ordinary civil action. Lynch & Freytag v. Cooper (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 603, 608-610, 267 Cal. Rptr. 189

When tenant voluntarily surrenders possession of property before trial, right to possession is no longer in issue and proceeding has become ordinary civil action for damages in which rationale underlying rule prohibiting affirmative defenses and cross complaints evaporates. See Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 633 n.18, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168 ; Knowles v. Robinson (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 620, 625, 36 Cal. Rptr. 33, 387 P.2d 833 ; Medford v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 236, 240, 189 Cal. Rptr. 227 ; Mihans v. Municipal Court (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 479, 486, 87 Cal. Rptr. 17 ; Union Oil Co. v. Chandler (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 716, 722, 84 Cal. Rptr. 756

Proceeding in unlawful detainer does not exist when possession of premises is surrendered before complaint is filed. Markham v. Fralick (1934) 2 Cal. 2d 221, 224, 39 P.2d 804

Defendant's delivery one day before trial of keys to plaintiff's attorney with letter advising plaintiff that defendants no longer claimed possession of commercial premises is sufficient to establish relinquishment of possession and to allow defendant additional time within which to gather evidence needed to support defense that leased premises were not maintained in safe and secure manner and pleaded denial that plaintiff had performed all covenants of lease agreement. Fish Construction Co. v. Moselle Coach Works, Inc. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 654, 657-659, 196 Cal. Rptr. 174

Although not allowed to file cross complaint in unlawful detainer proceeding while remaining in possession of premises, tenant, after moving out, is entitled to do so under Civ. Code § 1952.3, filing of which is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 428.50. Medford v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 236, 239, 189 Cal. Rptr. 227 (noting without deciding that Civ. Code § 1952.3 could be interpreted to mean that defendant might file cross complaint as matter of right without first obtaining leave of court)

Neither Code Civ. Proc. § 1024 (postponements conditioned on payment of costs) nor Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.5 (postponements conditioned on payment into court of accruing rent) authorize trial court to require tenant in unlawful detainer proceeding who has quit premises to deposit into court past rent and damages as condition for granting leave to file cross complaint because of delays that naturally flow from opening case to cross complaint. Medford v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 236, 240-242, 189 Cal. Rptr. 227

Demurrer to cross complaint for unlawful detainer is properly sustained without leave to amend when record before appellate court establishes that at time demurrer was before trial court occupant had left premises in dispute and, therefore, no possessory action could be maintained. Civic Western Corp. v. Zila Industries, Inc. (1977) 66 Cal. App.

3d 1, 19, 135 Cal. Rptr. 915

If tenant voluntarily surrenders possession of property before issues of fact in unlawful detainer proceeding are finally joined, right to possession is no longer in issue and proceeding becomes ordinary civil action for damages. Union Oil Co. v. Chandler (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 716, 722, 84 Cal. Rptr. 756 ; see Knowles v. Robinson (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 620, 625, 36 Cal. Rptr. 33, 387 P.2d 833 ; Mihans v. Municipal Court (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 479, 486, 87 Cal. Rptr. 17

Although defendant in unlawful detainer proceeding is limited to filing answer or demurrer (Code Civ. Proc. § 1170) to preserve summary character of proceedings from issues irrelevant to right of immediate possession and court has jurisdiction to strike cross complaint filed in such proceeding, cross complaints are permitted when defendant surrenders possession before trial. Erbe Corp. v. W & B Realty Co. (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 773, 778, 63 Cal. Rptr. 462

[8] Complaint

Plaintiff is not required in complaint to plead that it had served notice on all subtenants and joined them as parties when it did not appear that subtenants were in default. Telegraph Avenue Corp. v. Raentsch (1928) 205 Cal. 93, 98, 269 P. 1109

Tenant screening company could not obtain blanket order under Code Civ. Proc. § 1161.2 allowing it access to all unlawful detainer filings in municipal court, even though statute is directed at organizations that represent tenants and company represented landlords. U.D. Registry, Inc. v. Municipal Court (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 671, 675, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 788

Complaint in unlawful detainer is required to set forth facts on which plaintiff seeks to recover and, if plaintiff claims defendant breached covenants in lease, compliance with notice requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3). Delta Imports, Inc. v. Municipal Court (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 1033, 1036, 194 Cal. Rptr. 685

Statutory requirements of complaint for unlawful detainer is set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1166. De La Vara v. Municipal Court (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d 638, 640-642, 159 Cal. Rptr. 648

When averments of complaint are sufficient to state cause of action in ejectment and prays for relief that can be granted in such action, trial court is entitled to grant plaintiff relief in ejectment, although facts pleaded might also show cause of action for unlawful detainer or even to quiet title. Chinese Hosp. Foundation Fund v. Patterson (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 627, 632, 81 Cal. Rptr. 795

[9] Jurisdiction

Unless tenant has been properly served, court lacks jurisdiction in unlawful detainer action to evict. Marquez-Luque v. Marquez (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1513, 1518-1519, 238 Cal. Rptr. 172

Jurisdiction of unlawful detainer proceeding is in superior court when title to property worth more than jurisdictional maximum of municipal court is inevitably in issue. Asuncion v. Superior Court (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 141, 142, 146, 166 Cal. Rptr. 306

Trial court does not acquire jurisdiction over person of defendant served with summons issued under Code Civ. Proc. § 1167, which limits time to file responsive pleading to five days, when complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute cause of action for unlawful detainer, forcible detainer, or forcible entry. Greene v. Municipal Court (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 446, 451-452, 124 Cal. Rptr. 139

Pending action for declaratory relief brought by lessees in another county presenting same underlying issue is to correct amount of rent due, but not encompassing issue of lessors' rights to regain possession and terminate lease, does not invoke rule of exclusive concurrent jurisdiction, so as to divest court in county in which real property is situated from jurisdiction over unlawful detainer proceeding. Childs v. Eltinge (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 843, 848-856, 105 Cal. Rptr. 864

[10] Parties

Legislature is empowered to authorize maintenance of unlawful detainer proceeding by or against executor or administrator of deceased person. Stockton Morris Plan Co. v. Carpenter (1936) 18 Cal. App. 2d 205, 209, 63 P.2d 859

[11] Sublessees

Later termination of lease by tenant and landlord does not affect unlawful detainer proceeding against subtenant, which cause of action arose when rent was not paid after service of three-day notice to pay rent or quit. Fifth & Broadway Partnership v. Kimny, Inc. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 195, 200-203, 162 Cal. Rptr. 271

Sublessee is bound by terms and conditions of original lease and its rights are dependent on and subject to sublessor's rights. Fifth & Broadway Partnership v. Kimny, Inc. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 195, 201, 162 Cal. Rptr. 271

[12] Motion to Quash

Manner of attacking complaint that fails to state facts sufficient to constitute cause of action for unlawful detainer is by motion to quash and not by general demurrer. Delta Imports, Inc. v. Municipal Court (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 1033, 1035-1036, 194 Cal. Rptr. 685

[13] Trial

Defendant in unlawful detainer action is entitled to jury trial because action for unlawful detainer is one at law. Marquez-Luque v. Marquez (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1513, 1519, 238 Cal. Rptr. 172

Right to jury trial in civil cases is guaranteed by Cal. Const., Art I, § 16, and specifically granted in unlawful detainer proceedings by Code Civ. Proc. § 1171. Department of Transportation v. Kerrigan (1984) 200 Cal. Rptr. 865

Tenant is entitled to jury trial on issue of retaliatory eviction in unlawful detainer proceeding. Department of Transportation v. Kerrigan (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 41, 200 Cal. Rptr. 865

[14] Jury Instructions

When appropriate under facts of given case, residential tenants defending against unlawful detainer proceedings on ground landlord breached implied warranty of habitability, are entitled to jury instructions based on relevant standards set forth in Civ. Code § 1941.1 (conditions under which premises are deemed to be untenantable), regardless of whether "repair and deduct" remedy of Civ. Code § 1942 has been used. Knight v. Hallsthammar (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 46, 58-59, 171 Cal. Rptr. 707, 623 P.2d 268

[15] Res Judicata

Trial court's determination in unlawful detainer proceeding involving farm workers and their employer, although binding within context of unlawful detainer proceeding, has no res judicata or collateral estoppel effect in any related unfair labor practice proceeding before Agricultural Labor Relations Board and initiated in accordance with Agricultural Labor Relations Act (Lab. Code §§ 1140-1166.3). Vargas v. Municipal Court (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 902, 916, 150 Cal. Rptr. 918, 587 P.2d 714

[16] Judgments

Unlawful detainer judgments based on signed stipulations for judgment on documents resembling official court forms, printed in English, of Spanish speaking tenants who did not read English in which tenants purported to agree to onerous terms in landlord's favor are consideration for stay as denying tenants their due process rights and are void on their face. Little v. Sanchez (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 501, 504-506, 213 Cal. Rptr. 297

In unlawful detainer proceeding, fact that landlord's notice demanded accrued rent in amount of $600 and judgment awarded only $582 (a difference of $18) does not warrant reversal; though there was no reporter's transcript and hence trial court's reasons for reducing amount were unknown, such error contained in judgment correct in its result is trifling. Gruzen v. Henry (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 515, 519 and n.2, 148 Cal. Rptr. 573

[17] Damages

Net profits earned by tenant is not proper measure of damages for landlord in unlawful detainer action; reasonable rental value is proper measure of damages. Superior Motels, Inc. v. Rinn Motor Hotels, Inc. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1032, 1069-1072, 241 Cal. Rptr. 487

Lessor is not required to seek rental damages in unlawful detainer proceeding, determination of which could delay and frustrate primary purpose of proceeding to obtain speedy possession of property, but is permitted to seek such damages in separate civil action. Northrop Corp. v. Chaparral Energy, Inc. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 725, 729-730, 214 Cal. Rptr. 173

Treble damages is properly awarded against defendant in unlawful detainer proceeding if malice is pleaded and proved; requirement that it be established that defendant willfully, deliberately, intentionally, and obstinately withheld possession with knowledge that lease had terminated and against will of landlord. Sasson v. Katash (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 119, 126, 194 Cal. Rptr. 46 (construing prior law); Fifth & Broadway Partnership v. Kimny, Inc. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 195, 204, 162 Cal. Rptr. 271 (construing prior law)

Proper measure of damages in unlawful detainer proceeding brought under Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a(b)(3) (detention after sale of property under power of sale in trust deed) is detriment to owner because of unlawful detention of property; detriment is measurable in amount of reasonable rental value that plaintiff might have realized had plaintiff not been denied possession unlawfully; hence, trial court did not err in having considered, in part, rents received by defendant during period of unlawful detention in fixing plaintiff's damages for unlawful detention of real property purchased at nonjudicial sale under trust deed. MCA, Inc. v. Universal Diversified Enterprises Corp. (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 170, 179, 103 Cal. Rptr. 522

Rule in California is well established that lessee of real property who willfully, deliberately, intentionally, and obstinately withholds possession of property, with knowledge of termination of lease and against landlord's will is liable for treble damages. Erbe Corp. v. W & B Realty Co. (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 773, 780, 63 Cal. Rptr. 462

[18] Injunctive Relief

Preliminary injunction enjoining landlord from suing tenants in unlawful detainer without prior court order is proper in class action by tenants against landlord for injunctive relief when it was shown that landlord had engaged in unlawful business practice of retaliatory eviction against tenants who had exercised lawful rights. Hernandez v. Stabach (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 309, 312-315, 193 Cal. Rptr. 350

[19] Rent

Court does not have jurisdiction to make post-judgment award of rent after unlawful detainer judgment in favor of tenant. Hudec v. Robertson (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1156, 1163-1167, 258 Cal. Rptr. 868

Code Civ. Proc. § 1174 controls trial court's jurisdiction to enter judgment for possession in unlawful detainer proceedings and to award collateral rents and damages; language of section makes clear that court has no jurisdiction to condition entry of judgment for possession in defendant's favor on defendant's immediate payment of pendente lite rents when plaintiff does not prevail on foundational issue of unlawful detainer and right to possession. Balassy v. Superior Court (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 1148, 1152, 226 Cal. Rptr. 817

Primary purpose of unlawful detainer proceeding is being to enable landlord to recover possession of property; recovery of rent is mere incident to main object; when main object of proceeding fails, incidents fall with it; hence, landlord who fails to show that defendant unlawfully detained property is not entitled in unlawful detainer proceeding to recover arrears of rent due. Markham v. Fralick (1934) 2 Cal. 2d 221, 226-227, 39 P.2d 804

Covenants in lease requiring tenant to pay real estate taxes assessed against demised property and proportionate share of cost of maintaining common areas of shopping center in which demised property was located, when rent was treated separately in lease, is not rent and consequently not subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2), requiring that notice to pay rent or quit be served within one year after rent becomes due, but subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3), which imposes no time limitation on when notice must be served, thus leaving ordinary statute of limitations to apply. Cal-American Income Property Fund IV v. Ho (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 583, 585, 207 Cal. Rptr. 532

Landlord in unlawful detainer proceeding is entitled to eviction judgment but not to award of past due rent when it is shown that landlord failed to secure certificate of occupancy as required by city ordinance that expressly imposed only criminal sanction for its violation but purpose of which was to insure that property meets health and safety requirements of city code. Gruzen v. Henry (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 515, 517-519, 148 Cal. Rptr. 573

Tenant does not have right to prevent lessor from employing summary remedies to which he or she is entitled under unlawful detainer statutes by refusing to pay disputed rent and instead filing and serving action for declaratory relief. Childs v. Eltinge (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 843, 854, 105 Cal. Rptr. 864

If amount of rent is in dispute, lessee is permitted to pay rent under protest and institute action for declaratory relief in which, if he or she prevails, it could be declared that lessee was entitled to reimbursement or credit against rent due thereafter during lease's term. Childs v. Eltinge (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 843, 853-854, 105 Cal. Rptr. 864

If lessor enters into and assumes full control of premises during pendency of unlawful detainer proceeding and it cannot be said that this assumption of control is for lessee's account under appropriate provisions of lease or circumstances justifying such declaration, entry constitutes eviction and lessee's liability for rent is terminated. Garfinkle v. Montgomery (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 149, 153, 248 P.2d 52

Landlord's acceptance of HUD housing assistance payments made on behalf of tenant after tenant's breach does not waive landlord's right to terminate lease, at least where those payments did not constitute rent under terms of lease. Savett v. Davis (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 13, 20, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 550

In unlawful detainer proceeding for unpaid rent brought after three-day notice to pay rent or quit had been served, trial court has committed reversible error in awarding landlord back rent after landlord had waived all back rent in open court. Lee v. Vignoli (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 24, 160 Cal. Rptr. 79

[20] Appeal

Appeal by landlord from judgment for tenant in unlawful detainer action based on trial court's determination that landlord's notice to pay rent was deficient is not moot even though tenant had relinquished possession of premises. Cinnamon Square Shopping Center v. Meadowlark Enterprises (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1837, 1843, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 697

In unlawful detainer action, landlord's failure to raise and its failure to request trial court to adjudicate issue of reasonableness of amount of rent demanded (under Code Civ. Proc. § 1161.1) precludes landlord from having that issued determined on appeal. Cinnamon Square Shopping Center v. Meadowlark Enterprises (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1837, 1844, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 697

Appeal from judgment awarded to plaintiff in unlawful detainer proceeding, for restitution and possession of property, is not rendered moot by defendant's relinquishment of possession of property pending appeal when defendant was compelled to give up property under judgment; fact that defendant may have given up possession before formal eviction under writ of execution does not make appeal moot, because effective relief was available to defendant if he prevailed on appeal; on reversal of judgment, appellate court is empowered to restore defendant to possession of property. Old National Financial Services, Inc. v. Seibert (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 460, 467-468, 239 Cal. Rptr. 728

Tenant's payment in unlawful detainer proceeding of pendente lite rentals to avoid forfeiture of right to possession does not effect waiver of tenant's entitlement to appeal that portion of judgment and does not render issue moot. Balassy v. Superior Court (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 1148, 1150 n.2, 226 Cal. Rptr. 817

Defendant's vacation of premises in accordance with judgment of possession for plaintiff and failure to request stay of execution pending appeal or protective order does not deprive defendant of right to determination on appeal that judgment of possession was erroneous after implied finding made in defendant's favor on affirmative defense. Lee v. Vignoli (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 24, 160 Cal. Rptr. 79

Tenant in possession appealing from adverse unlawful detainer judgment is entitled to stay only if trial court exercises its discretion to grant one; Code Civ. Proc. § 1176 is discretionary stay-of-judgment statute that clearly promotes valid state objective. Goldie's Bookstore v. Super. Ct. of State of Cal. (9th Cir. [Cal.] 1984) 739 F.2d 466, 470-471

[21] Arbitration

When (1) license agreement provided for arbitration and related lease did not, (2) franchisee and franchisor were parties to pending class action regarding license agreement, and (3) grounds for franchisor's termination of lease were alleged breaches of same provisions of license agreement that were subject of class action, arbitration of unlawful detainer action had to be compelled but stayed until resolution of class action to avoid conflicting rulings [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.2(c)]; although action for right of possession is normally subject to priority, breach of lease and breach of licensing agreement were inextricably intertwined. Pioneer Take Out Corp. v. Bhavsar (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1353, 1357-1358, 257 Cal. Rptr. 749

[22] Attorney's Fees

Unlawful detainer action that was based on violation of lease provisions and was voluntarily dismissed by landlord was action on the contract and therefore attorneys' fees award to tenant was barred by Civ. Code § 1717(b)(2). Mitchell Land and Improvement Co. v. Ristorante Ferrantelli Inc. (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 479, 490, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 9

Subtenant entitled to attorneys' fees under sublease provision after landlords dismissed unlawful detainer action alleging that tenant was unlawfully in possession of premises; unlawful detainer claim sounded in tort, and therefore recovery of fees was not barred by Civ. Code § 1717(b)(2). Drybread v. Chipain Chiropractic Corp. (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 1063, 1077, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 580

Right to recover attorney's fees in unlawful detainer proceeding extends to attorney's fees incurred on appeal. Richard v. Degen & Brody, Inc. (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 289, 300, 5 Cal. Rptr. 263

[23] Franchises

Jurisdiction of court in unlawful detainer proceeding against franchised lessee is broad enough to encompass issues arising out of provisions of franchise contract as well as lease to extent that these provisions affect right to possession of premises. Mobil Oil Corp. v. Handley (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 956, 962-963, 143 Cal. Rptr. 321

In unlawful detainer proceeding against franchised lessee, court, in deciding whether to permit affirmative defenses, is permitted to balance interest in preserving summary nature of unlawful detainer proceeding against public policies furthered by protecting defendant from eviction under alleged defenses; if statutes controlling franchise arrangement prevent its termination, then purpose of those statutes would be totally frustrated if eviction from premises in unlawful detainer proceeding without consideration of those statutes were permitted; but if defendant has adequate remedy at law and/or trial of alleged defenses would be lengthy and difficult, this balance may be resolved by refusing to hear affirmative defenses. Mobil Oil Corp. v. Handley (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 956, 963, 143 Cal. Rptr. 321

[24] Mobilehome Park Tenants

In unlawful detainer proceeding against mobilehome park tenants, 60-day notice of former Civ. Code § 789.5 (now see Civ. Code § 798.55) rather than three-day notice of Code Civ. Proc. § 1161 is required, and attorney's fees are awardable to successful tenant under former Civ. Code § 789.12 (now see Civ. Code § 798.85). Palmer v. Agee (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 377, 385-386, 387-388, 150 Cal. Rptr. 841

[25] Petroleum Dealers

In unlawful detainer proceeding against petroleum dealer based on failure to make required petroleum purchases, dealer is entitled to introduce all relevant evidence to establish that prices charged were unfair. E. S. Bills, Inc. v. Tzucanow (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 824, 832-834, 215 Cal. Rptr. 278, 700 P.2d 1280

[26] Receivership

Appointment on lessor's application of receiver who takes possession of property and collects rents from subtenants during pendency of unlawful detainer proceeding constitutes eviction of tenant relieving tenant from payment of rent during receiver's occupancy. Telegraph Avenue Corp. v. Raentsch (1928) 205 Cal. 93, 99-101, 269 P. 1109

[27] Affirmative Defenses and Cross Complaints Generally

Unlawful detainer is summary proceeding in which only issues directly relevant to ultimate question of possession may be raised in defense; counterclaims, cross complaints, and affirmative defenses are generally not considered. Barela v. Superior Court (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 244, 249, 178 Cal. Rptr. 618, 636 P.2d 582 ; S. P. Growers Asso. v. Rodriguez (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 719, 723-724, 131 Cal. Rptr. 761, 552 P.2d 721

Rule is firmly established in California that neither cross complaint nor counterclaim may be properly filed in suit for unlawful detention of property, even though alleged cause therein contained grows out of subject matter involved in original suit; exceptions. Knowles v. Robinson (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 620, 625-626, 36 Cal. Rptr. 33, 387 P.2d 833

Unlawful detainer statute is not unconstitutional in depriving lessee of equal protection of the laws in denying right to setoff, counterclaim, or cross complain. Telegraph Avenue Corp. v. Raentsch (1928) 205 Cal. 93, 97-98, 269 P. 1109

Affirmative defenses are not assertable in unlawful detainer proceeding unless directly relevant to right of possession. Fish Construction Co. v. Moselle Coach Works, Inc. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 654, 658, 196 Cal. Rptr. 174

Affirmative defenses and cross complaints are generally not allowed in unlawful detainer proceeding as they could frustrate summary remedy provided by statute by injecting into proceeding issues extrinsic to that right. Union Oil Co. v. Chandler (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 716, 721, 84 Cal. Rptr. 756 ; see Deal v. Municipal Court (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 991, 995, 204 Cal. Rptr. 79 ; Mihans v. Municipal Court (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 479, 486, 87 Cal. Rptr. 17

Breach of covenant to repair in commercial lease is no defense to unlawful detainer proceeding for failure to pay rent; tenant is required to bring separate action for damages. Schulman v. Vera (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 552, 560-563, 166 Cal. Rptr. 620

Homeowners are not permitted to be evicted, consistent with due process guarantees, without being permitted to raise affirmative defenses that if proved would maintain their possession and ownership. Asuncion v. Superior Court (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 141, 146, 166 Cal. Rptr. 306

Generally, neither cross complaint nor affirmative defense is admissible in unlawful detainer proceeding; two exceptions are (1) when tenant has voluntarily surrendered possession before issues of fact are finally joined; and (2) when court is permitted to inquire into equitable considerations. Union Oil Co. v. Chandler (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 716, 721-722, 84 Cal. Rptr. 756 ; see Deal v. Municipal Court (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 991, 995, 204 Cal. Rptr. 79 ; Mihans v. Municipal Court (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 479, 486, 87 Cal. Rptr. 17

Defendants are not prejudiced by trial court's order in unlawful detainer proceeding striking their cross complaint when in both their pretrial statement of issues and written notice of surrender of possession they steadfastly maintained their legal right to possession; unlawful detainer proceeding is appropriate means to test any question of immediate possession to real property, whether defendant is in actual physical possession or merely claims legal right to immediate possession. Erbe Corp. v. W & B Realty Co. (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 773, 778-779, 63 Cal. Rptr. 462

[28] Racial Discrimination

Racial discrimination is permissible affirmative defense in unlawful detainer proceeding to recover possession of residential property. Abstract Investment Co. v. Hutchinson (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 242, 244-245, 255, 22 Cal. Rptr. 309 (judicial eviction based on racial discrimination as violation of rights guaranteed by federal and state constitutions)

[29] Rent Control Ordinances

Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1159-1179a and Civ. Code § 1951-1952.6 does not preclude defense based on municipal rent control legislation enacted in accordance with police power imposing rent ceilings and limiting grounds for eviction for purpose of enforcing those rent ceilings. Birkenfeld v. City of Berkeley (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 129, 149, 130 Cal. Rptr. 465, 550 P.2d 1001 ; Gross v. Superior Court (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 265, 270-271, 217 Cal. Rptr. 284 ; Nourafchan v. Miner (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 746, 751-752, 215 Cal. Rptr. 450

Municipal court commits reversible error in determining that plaintiff apartment house owner in unlawful detainer proceedings against tenants preparatory to converting apartment house to condominiums had either complied with or was not subject to city's rent control law, which required obtaining permit from city's rent control board to remove apartment building from rental housing market before evicting tenants, when city rent control board had in effect ruled to the contrary in previously denying owner's petition for declaration that it had vested right to proceed with conversion; in permitting owner in unlawful detainer proceedings to collaterally attack order of board, a quasi-judicial administrative body whose decisions are not subject to collateral attack, municipal court has acted in excess of its jurisdiction; owner's remedy is to challenge board's order by administrative mandate, a proceeding over which municipal court has no jurisdiction. Hazon-Iny Development, Inc. v. Unkefer (1980) 172 Cal. Rptr. 191

[30] Retaliatory Eviction

Two parallel and independent sources for doctrine of retaliatory eviction exist in California: common law doctrine developed by courts and statutory scheme set forth in Civ. Code § 1942.5 and other statutes. Barela v. Superior Court (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 244, 250, 251, 178 Cal. Rptr. 618, 636 P.2d 582 ; see Western Land Office, Inc. v. Cervantes (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 724, 731-740, 220 Cal. Rptr. 784

Retaliatory eviction arising from tenant's having complained to police that landlord had committed crime (molesting tenant's nine-year-old daughter) is proper defense in unlawful detainer proceeding. Barela v. Superior Court (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 244, 249-254, 178 Cal. Rptr. 618, 636 P.2d 582

Retaliatory eviction, based on tenant's exercise of statutory right, is permissible affirmative defense in unlawful detainer proceeding to recover possession of residential property. Vargas v. Municipal Court (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 902, 913-916, 150 Cal. Rptr. 918, 587 P.2d 714 ; Schweiger v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 507, 517, 90 Cal. Rptr. 729, 476 P.2d 97

Under Evid. Code §§ 500 and 520, burden of proving retaliatory motive by preponderance of evidence is on tenant. See Schweiger v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 507, 517, 90 Cal. Rptr. 729, 476 P.2d 97 (common law defense); Western Land Office, Inc. v. Cervantes (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 724, 726, 735, 739-742, 220 Cal. Rptr. 784 (statutory defense, further holding that Civ. Code § 1942.5 creates no rebuttable presumption in tenant's favor)

Tenant is not required to show financial condition of landlord before punitive damages may be imposed under Civ. Code § 1942.5 for retaliatory eviction and punitive damages are available in these circumstances even though tenant did not move. Rich v. Schwab (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 803, 815-817, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 170

Statutory prohibition of retaliatory eviction (Civ. Code § 1942.5) provides protection to mobilehome park residents and is not preempted by Mobilehome Residency Law (Civ. Code § 798 et seq.). Rich v. Schwab (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 803, 812, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 355

Defense of retaliatory eviction is unavailable in unlawful detainer proceeding after valid foreclosure sale under deed of trust and lawful perfection of purchaser's title. California Livestock Production Credit Assn. v. Sutfin (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 136, 142, 211 Cal. Rptr. 152

Retaliatory eviction is legal and not equitable defense. Department of Transportation v. Kerrigan (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 41, 200 Cal. Rptr. 865

[31] Warranty of Habitability

Warranty of habitability is implied by law in residential lease; breach of warranty is permissible defense in unlawful detainer proceeding. Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 631-634, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168 ; see Hall v. Municipal Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 641, 643-644, 111 Cal. Rptr. 721, 517 P.2d 1185 (dicta)

Collateral estoppel is not applicable to tenant's action for damages for breach of warranty of habitability filed after stipulated judgment in unlawful detainer action in which tenant raised issue of breach of warranty of habitability as affirmative defense. Landeros v. Pankey (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 1167, 1174, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 165

In unlawful detainer proceeding when court finds breach of implied warranty of habitability that requires reduction in rent, judgment giving landlord possession is improper unless tenant is given opportunity to pay reducedrent and retain possession. Lee v. Vignoli (1979) 160 Cal. Rptr. 79

Damages for breach of implied warranty of habitability are determined by reducing agreed rent by percentage of reduction of habitability found by trier of fact. Cazares v. Ortiz (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 23, 168 Cal. Rptr. 108

Although breach by landlord of implied warranty of habitability may be raised as defense in unlawful detainer proceeding, landlord is not required to plead performance of warranty in complaint to state cause of action. De La Vara v. Municipal Court (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d 638, 640-642, 159 Cal. Rptr. 648

[32] Forcible Entry

Defendant landlord commits forcible entry in violation of Code Civ. Proc. § 1159 by unlocking plaintiff's apartment in her temporary absence without her consent and entering with storage company employees to remove her furniture, even though there was no physical damage to premises or actual violence. Jordan v. Talbot (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 597, 605, 12 Cal. Rptr. 488, 361 P.2d 20

[33] Forcible Detainer

Person, who by fraudulent pretense that she desired to make temporary inspection of house, took actual possession and permanent occupancy of premises without consent of party entitled to possession, is guilty of unlawful entry under Code Civ. Proc. § 1160(2). White v. Pfieffer (1913) 165 Cal. 740, 742, 134 P. 321

Husband's remedy to oust his former mistress from house purchased with community property assets where husband had orally agreed to allow his mistress to live in house rent free for as long as she wished and some nine years later served her with written notice changing terms of her "tenancy" to provide for rent of $1,000 per month, was either an action to quiet title or a proceeding for forcible detainer, and not unlawful detainer because mistress had never consented to landlord-tenant relationship and therefore was not a tenant in possession. Harper v. Raya (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 908, 913, 201 Cal. Rptr. 563

Employee who holds property by force and threats of violence after termination of employment is not guilty of forcible entry but is guilty of forcible detainer. San Francisco etc. Soc. v. Leonard (1911) 17 Cal. App. 254, 261-264, 269, 119 P. 405

[34] Damages for Forcible Entry and Forcible Detainer

Damages for forcible entry do not encompass lost profits for period after plaintiff lost legal right to possession of premises such as after expiration of period specified in legal notice to terminate. Rosano v. Superior Court (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 92, 95-96, 194 Cal. Rptr. 749

[35] Forcible Entry and Forcible Detainer Under Writ of Execution

Landlord who evicted tenant in reliance on properly issued court order that was subsequently determined to have been erroneously issued had proceeded in accordance with orderly judicial processes rather than forcible self-help and therefore was not liable for forcible entry and detainer. Glass v. Najafi (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 45, 51, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 606

Landlord who evicts tenant under invalid writ of execution and unenforceable judgment is liable for forcible entry and detainer. Bedi v. McMullan (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 272, 274-275, 206 Cal. Rptr. 578

Landlord who evicts tenant under valid writ of execution issued under enforceable judgment is not liable for forcible entry and detainer. See Hamilton v. Waters (1949) 93 Cal. App. 2d 866, 867, 210 P.2d 67 ; Bedi v. McMullan (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 272, 275, 206 Cal. Rptr. 578

[36] Forcible Entry and Forcible Detainer Under Void Statute

State officials are liable for forcible entry and detainer when they evict tenant under color of void statute. McCauley v. Weller (1859) 12 Cal. 500, 528 ; see Bedi v. McMullan (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 272, 275, 206 Cal. Rptr. 578

[37] Tort Actions for Forcible Entry and Detainer

Right of person in peaceable possession of real property to recover, in action sounding in tort, damages for injuries to his or her person and goods caused by forcible entry of one who is or claims to be lawful owner or possessor of land. Daluiso v. Boone (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 484, 486, 78 Cal. Rptr. 707, 455 P.2d 811

Right to recover in tort for nonstatutory forcible entry even in absence of injury to person or property when plaintiff was in peaceful though wrongful possession of real property. Allen v. McMillion (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 211, 214-220, 147 Cal. Rptr. 77

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

29-333 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 333.70

§ 333.70 Plaintiff's Procedural Guide

[1] Facts to Be Ascertained

NOTE:
The following is illustrative only of procedures commonly followed in an unlawful detainer proceeding. Not all the matters mentioned here may be required in a particular case, and any given case may require proceedings not mentioned here.

☐ Obtain facts relating to the client.

☐ Client's name, address, and phone number.

☐ Client's capacity, such as an individual, corporation, partnership, unincorporated association, or a public agency.

☐ If the client is other than an individual, authority of the person consulting counsel to employ counsel on behalf of the entity he or she represents and whether the client is in compliance with the appropriate statutes and regulations governing domestic or foreign corporations, partnerships, or unincorporated associations.

☐ If the client is doing business under a fictitious business name, obtain facts whether he, she, or it has complied with the fictitious business name statutes. For further discussion of obtaining these facts, see Ch. 2, Procedural Guide for Civil Actions .

PRACTICE TIP:
Obtain Documents/Use Care Before Filing Complaint. Remember, there is no substitute for obtaining the original and/or up to date documents that contain the information. Reliance on a client's memory, recollection, or knowledge is a dangerous practice. Since you will probably be put to the test regarding proof in any case, you might as well make sure that you can prove your case before you file it. Keep in mind that every dollar of your client's money that you spend before commencing the action (before service of the notice) will probably save your client money after the action is intitiated. Somehow there is a drive to "get on with it" and it is ignored that 90 percent of the mistakes made in unlawful detainer actions are made before the complaint is filed. By Benjamin Kaplan

☐ Obtain facts relating to legal relief sought or potential cause of action.

☐ Obtain the specific facts of which the client complains, that is, what the potential defendant(s) did or failed to do, or the legal relief sought.

PRACTICE TIP:

Obtain Complete History. The ideal situation is for your client to provide you with a complete history of the matter on which you indicate to your client that you will rely. Otherwise it is important that you prepare a statement of facts that your client subscribes to before initiating the action. Make sure you see all the original records of a client and be prepared to review them. You will often find that your client has made one or more mistakes in record keeping that will impact significantly on demands that you would have otherwise and erroneously made. By Benjamin Kaplan

☐ If the client's complaint is directed to an act or omission of the tenant or tenants of the property, that is, to a breach of a covenant or the nonperformance of a condition, obtain a description of the act or omission, its extent and effect on the premises, and any reasons given for it to the client by the potential defendant(s).

PRACTICE TIP:

Obtain All Documents. Again, always insist on obtaining all correspondence and notes. By Benjamin Kaplan ☐ Ascertain from the client any steps taken to secure relief without legal advice [see § 333.12[6]].

PRACTICE TIP:

Know Relationship Between Parties. It is important that you know the psychological and personal dimensions of the relationship. Often times clients are either embarrassed or do not see the importance of this background information, but it is critical to your assessing what legal moves will best achieve your objectives. By Benjamin Kaplan ☐ Obtain any facts that would tend to show that any circumstances of fraud, force, or violence accompanied the acts of the defendant(s) or that the act or omission to act of the defendant(s) was effected with malice. If the defendant(s) are found guilty of unlawful detainer, damages may be claimed for any circumstances of fraud, force, or violence that may have accompanied the unlawful detainer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(b); § 333.13[13][e], [g]]. If malice is shown, plaintiff may be awarded statutory damages of up to $600 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(b)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Statutory Damages. As a matter of practice and practicality, it is best not to go after the $600. By Benjamin Kaplan ☐ Obtain facts relating to each potential defendant.

PRACTICE TIP:

Obtain Information on All Persons Claiming Right to Possession. It is critically important that the names and descriptions of all those claiming a right to possession of the subject premises be obtained. Although the service of a prejudgment claim of right to possession will smoke out the unnamed claimants, you will still be faced with the problem of what you should do if you have not previously served them with a cure notice when the clerk adds them as a defendant. A major effort should be made to identify and serve all persons who might claim an interest with the appropriate notice. By Benjamin Kaplan

☐ The name and phone number of each person or entity who is in possession of, or lives on, the property and his or her address if other than the property in question [see § 333.12[11]]. No person other than the tenant of the premises and subtenant, if there is one, in the actual occupation of the premises when the complaint is filed need be made parties defendant in an unlawful detainer proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1164].

PRACTICE TIP:

Be All Inclusive. Be very careful in applying narrow meanings to these statutes. It is best to be all inclusive and identify and serve all those who appear to be claiming an interest even if the claim or possession is "constructive" in nature. By Benjamin Kaplan

☐ Capacity of each potential defendant, such as an individual (including whether the individual is an adult or a minor), a corporation, or an unincorporated association.

☐ If the premises are occupied chiefly for dwelling purposes and the agreed rental does not exceed $1,200 per month, whether any tenant in occupation of the premises is the spouse or child or dependent of a person in the U.S. military service [see § 333.12[12]].

☐ Description of each potential defendant's employment or professional status, if an individual, and his or her business address and phone number if other than the premises in question.

☐ Obtain facts relating to the tenancy.

☐ The term of the tenancy, that is, whether it is from month-to-month or some other period, or for a fixed term.

☐ Whether the tenancy is under a rental agreement or a lease.

☐ Whether the rental agreement or lease was oral or written.

☐ If oral, between whom was the rental agreement or lease made.

☐ If oral, the agreement with regard to rent, and how, when, and where rent was or is to be paid. In the absence of an agreement or usage to the contrary, rent is normally payable at the termination of the holding if it does not exceed one year [see Civ. Code § 1947].

☐ If oral, the terms of the agreement or lease.

☐ If oral, when the term of the tenancy began.

☐ If oral and for a fixed term, when is, or was, it scheduled to terminate.

☐ If oral, any agreement between the parties as to any notice required to terminate the tenancy.

☐ If oral, any option given to the tenant to renew the term of the tenancy under the terms of the rental agreement or lease.

☐ If oral, any agreements with regard to who was responsible for maintaining and repairing the interior and exterior of the premises.

☐ Whether oral or written, the date and specifics of any later changes made to the agreement or lease. If the rental agreement or lease is in writing, its terms, conditions, and covenants, as well as what persons executed it, when the term began and terminated, whether there were any options in it, any notice required by the parties to terminate it, and any provisions relating to the maintenance and repair of the premises will be discovered from the writing itself.

☐ Obtain facts relating to the property.

☐ The street address, city, and county where the property in question is situated and the nature of the property, such as commercial property (describing the commercial activity being carried on), or residential property, such as a house, flat, or unit in an apartment house or condominium.

PRACTICE TIP:

Inquiries Regarding the Property. Get the grant deed and check the title. Obtain all building department records. Check to see who the assessor has as the owner. By Benjamin Kaplan

☐ The client's interest in the property in question, for example, the sole owner of the property, a co-owner, or the owner of a life estate or an estate for years. If the client's interest in the property is a terminable estate, when it is scheduled to terminate.

☐ The condition of the property and of any heating, cooling, electrical, water, plumbing, or drainage systems connected to or installed in the premises (1) at the time the tenancy began; (2) in the interim; and

(3) at present.

☐ Any maintenance or repairs performed on the property by the client during the tenancy's term.

☐ Any maintenance or repairs performed on the property by a potential defendant during the tenancy's term.

☐ Any maintenance and repair that now need to be done.

☐ The names, approximate ages, and occupations of any subtenants in actual occupation of the property.

[2] Documents to Be Obtained

PRACTICE TIP:

Be All Inclusive. Everything, including the original escrow file, should be obtained. Be sure to obtain any insurance policy and cover sheet covering the property and ascertain whether there is liability insurance coverage for wrongful eviction or any interference with possessory interests. By Benjamin Kaplan

☐ Obtain any written lease or rental agreement between the client and each potential defendant.

☐ Obtain any written professional, business, credit, or personal references supplied by the tenant in the negotiations leading up to the lease or rental agreement with the client.

☐ Obtain any written responses from the tenant's references to the client's inquiries concerning the tenant before the lease or rental agreement was executed.

☐ If a potential defendant is a corporation, obtain a statement of its corporate status, as well as the names of its directors and managing officers and the name of its agent for service of process. This information may be secured from the Secretary of State's office in Sacramento [see Corp. Code §§ 110 (filing of instruments by Secretary of State), 209, 1502-1505 (domestic corporations), 2101-2107 (foreign corporations qualified to do business in California); for further discussion, see Ch. 160, Corporations: Capacity].

☐ If a potential defendant is a partnership or other unincorporated association, a statement of the names of its partners or officers, and of its agent for service of process, if any. If the potential defendant is a partnership, the above information may be available at the office of the county recorder [see Corp. Code § 16303(d) (Uniform Partnership Act of 1994 provision); see also Corp. Code § 15502(1)(b) (Uniform Partnership Act provision, applicable to limited partnerships that existed on July 1, 1984, and elected not to be governed by California Revised Limited Partnership Act) (repealed January 1, 2010); Corp. Code §§ 15902.01(e), 15912.06 (applicable to limited partnerships formed on or after January 1, 2008, limited partnerships formed before that date that elect to be subject to Limited Partnership Act of 2008 [Corp. Code § 15900 et seq.], and all limited partnerships after that date)]. If a potential defendant is an unincorporated association, including a partnership [see Corp. Code §§ 18030, 18035], the information may be available from the Secretary of State's office in Sacramento [see Corp. Code § 18200 et seq.].

☐ Any written communications between the plaintiff and a potential defendant regarding the dispute in issue.

[3] Preliminary Determinations

☐ Determine what legal relief client is seeking with regard to the property [see §§ 333.10, 333.12[5]].

☐ Determine whether a demand for possession or notice to quit the premises must be served on the tenant to terminate the tenancy and, if so, whether it has been served [see §§ 332.70 -332.73]. If the tenancy is at will, or of agricultural lands, or from month-to-month, or if the rental agreement or lease provides for a specific period of notice to terminate, a written notice terminating the tenancy, in the absence of any breach by the tenant, will normally be required [see Civ. Code §§ 789, 1946, 1946.1; Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(1), (2)].

PRACTICE TIP:
Notice to Quit. Be very careful about proceeding on a client's generated notice. You are not off the hook because the client's other attorney prepared it. You must not proceed unless you are assured of reasonable success and if the notice is not defective. By Benjamin Kaplan

☐ Determine whether the potential defendant(s) breached any covenants or conditions of the rental agreement or lease with plaintiff.

☐ If it is determined that defendant(s) breached any covenants or conditions, determine whether the plaintiff may elect to declarethe agreement or lease forfeited as a result of it [see §§ 333.10[4] -[6], 333.13[13][d]].

☐ Determine whether, in the case of a breach of a covenant or condition by the tenant, a notice to cure the breach or, if the breach is incurable, a demand for possession or to quit the premises is required as a condition to suing for unlawful detainer [see § 333.10].

☐ Determine whether the wrongful act or omission of the defendant(s) is sufficient to give rise to a proceeding for unlawful detainer if the premises are not surrendered after the proper notice is given [see § 333.10].

☐ If the tenant, or any tenant, is the spouse, child, or dependent of a person serving in the U.S. military, National Guard, or military reserve, determine the applicability, if any, of the limitations on eviction contained in the federal Servicemembers Civil Relief Act and under state law [see § 333.12[12]].

☐ Determine whether the provisional remedy of attachment is available under the facts and whether it should be utilized [see § 333.13[6][a]].

☐ Determine whether the provisional remedy of receivership is available under the facts and whether it should be utilized [see § 333.13[6][b]].

PRACTICE TIP:

Receiverships. Receiverships are very expensive. They should be used sparingly and when significant sums of money are involved. If not used sparingly, all you will be doing is supporting the receiver and his or her attorney. By Benjamin Kaplan

☐ Determine the county in which the unlawful detainer proceeding should be tried. The county in which the real property or some part of it is situated is the proper county for the trial of a proceeding for the recovery of real property [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1), (b)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 571, Venue .

☐ Determine which court in the county has subject matter jurisdiction of the proceeding [see §§ 333.13[2], 333.71[2]].

☐ Determine what remedy would best satisfy the client's interests.

NOTE:

Although this guide assumes that a proceeding for unlawful detainer is the appropriate remedy, counsel should be aware that there are, normally, two remedies available to a landlord to recover possession of real property. The remedies are (1) a special proceeding in unlawful detainer (or forcible detainer) and (2) a civil action for ejectment. For further discussion and forms relating to ejectment, see Ch. 241, Ejectment . A civil action for breach of contract is an alternative remedy available to the landlord when recovery of possession of the premises is not desired following a tenant's breach of a covenant or condition of the lease or rental agreement. This remedy is also available to a tenant when it is the landlord who breaches a covenant or condition of the lease or rental agreement. For further discussion and forms relating to breach of contract claims, see Ch. 334, Landlord and Tenant: Claims for Damages .

[4] Notices

NOTE:

The following number of copies should be made for notices in addition to the original: (1) one copy for each tenant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161, last paragraph] or person holding over and continuing in possession after sale [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a]; (2) in the case of a breach of covenant or nonperformance of a condition or holding over and continuing in possession after sale, one copy for each subtenant in actual occupation of the premises [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1161(2), (3), 1161a(b), (c)] or, when the breach or misuse of the premises results in the lease's termination, one copy for each person in possession [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(4)]; (3) a copy for the client if desired; (4) one or more office copies; and (5) any additional copies as may be desired. For the manners in which notices may be served, see Code Civ. Proc. § 1162.

☐ Draft the appropriate notice [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1161, 1161a; see also §§ 332.70 -332.80].

☐ Serve a copy of the notice on each tenant or person holding over or continuing in possession after sale and on each subtenant in actual occupation of the premises [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1161(2), (3), 1161a(b), (c)] or person in possession [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(4)].

[5] Drafting Court Papers

☐ Pleadings and papers filed by the plaintiff should, except as otherwise noted below, be prepared in the following number of copies: an original for filing with the court; any additional copies required by the court; a copy for each defendant; a copy for the plaintiff, if desired; an office copy; and additional copies as may be desired.

☐ Draft the complaint for unlawful detainer [see §§ 333.13[3], 333.80 -333.88].

☐ Fill in a Judicial Council form of Summons for Unlawful Detainer [see § 333.100] for each defendant to be served; prepare original for filing, a copy for service on the defendant(s), and an office copy [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1167].

☐ If the summons is to be served by posting [see Code Civ. Proc. § 415.45], draft the application for an order for service of summons by posting, the supporting affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5), and the order; prepare original for filing, a copy for the plaintiff if desired, an office copy, and any additional copies as may be desired [see §§ 333.101, 333.102].

☐ If possession is to be sought on the complaint's filing, draft a notice of motion for immediate possession of the premises, the supporting affidavits or declarations, and the order for immediate possession [see §§ 333.103, 333.104].

☐ If it is determined that a writ of attachment is proper [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 481.010-493.060] and should be secured, draft the application for a right to attach order and a writ of attachment with a supporting declaration. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 62, Attachment .

☐ If it is determined that a receiver should be appointed to take possession of the property [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564-570; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1175-3.1177], draft the declaration and ex parte application for appointment of a receiver and the order to show cause why the appointment should not be confirmed, or a notice of motion for the appointment of a receiver and supporting papers. For discussion, a procedural guide, and forms, see Ch. 486, Receivers .

☐ Draft any interrogatories to be served on a defendant [see § 333.120; see also Ch. 190, Depositions and Discovery].

[6] Filing

☐ Present the original of the complaint (and any copies that may be required by the court) to the court clerk for filing. In addition, present all copies to be conformed and returned, and have the clerk issue a summons for each defendant and have the copies conformed [see § 333.13[3][d]]. For the manner in which a summons is issued in a civil action, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[7] Service of Papers and Proof of Service

☐ Serve a copy of the complaint and of the summons on each defendant named in the complaint. The summons must be served and returned in the same manner as a summons in a civil action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1167; see § 333.13[3][d]]. For the manner in which a summons is served and returned in a civil action, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

☐ Draft the proof of service of the summons and complaint or the proof of posting summons [see §§ 333.100, 333.101] or use the Judicial Council separate form of proof of service, and present it to the court clerk for filing. For discussion, a procedural guide, and forms, including the Judicial Council separate form of proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

PRACTICE TIP:
Use Judicial Council Form. Courts require use of the Judicial Council Proof of Service Form (POS-010). By Benjamin Kaplan

[8] Procedure on Default

☐ If the defendant fails to appear and defend within the time specified in the summons, prepare an application for entry of default; prepare an original for filing, a copy to be mailed to the defendant, a copy for the plaintiff if desired, and an office copy; mail a copy to the defendant, present the original to the court clerk for filing, and have the copies conformed.

PRACTICE TIP:
Local Rules and Practices. Check local rules as well as "unwritten rules" in notice form that the clerk has in its office by way of a checklist. By Benjamin Kaplan

☐ On plaintiff's written application and proof of service of the summons and complaint, the clerk will enter the defendant's default, and if requested by plaintiff, immediately enter a judgment for restitution of the premises and issue a writ of possession [Code Civ. Proc. § 1169]. For a discussion of default and forms for use in requesting the entry of default and default judgment, see Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments . For a discussion of enforcing judgments and a form of writ of possession, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments .

☐ If judgment is to be entered by the court and the court so permits, prepare a declaration of facts to be submitted in lieu of personal testimony [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(d)]. See § 333.131A (Judicial Council declaration form).

[9] Response to Pleading and Motions Filed by Defendant(s)

☐ Prepare any opposition to any motions by a defendant and the proof(s) of service, serve a copy of each paper on the defendant's counsel or, if none, one copy on the defendant [see Code Civ. Proc.§§ 1015, 1177], and present the originals, together with the proof of service, to the court clerk for filing.

PRACTICE TIP:
Local Rules. Check local rules for required extra copy to Law and Motion Department.

By Benjamin Kaplan

☐ Examine the answer and determine whether there is any ground for demurring to it under Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1177], and if there is, prepare the demurrer and notice of hearing. For discussion, procedure, and forms of demurrers to an answer and notice of hearing, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

☐ Determine whether there is any defense to the proceeding. If there is no defense, and this can be shown by any of the papers specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b), counsel may wish to move for summary judgment. If so, prepare a notice of motion for summary judgment, one or more supporting affidavits, and a memorandum of points and authorities, and secure a hearing date from the court clerk. A motion for summary judgment may be made at any time after the answer is filed on giving five days' notice personally served and must be granted or denied on the same basis as a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c [Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.7]. For discussion, procedures, and forms, see Ch. 537, Summary Judgment .

☐ Prepare the proof of service for each paper to be served on the attorney for the defendant(s) or, if none, on the defendant(s) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1015; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a for form and content of proof of service by mail]. If service is made by mail, the copy of the paper served must either bear a notation of the date and place of mailing or be accompanied by an unsigned copy of the proof of service [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1013(b), 1177].

☐ Determine whether there may be any fact issues for which a right to trial by jury will be appropriate and, if so, whether to demand a jury trial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1171; see also § 333.13[10]].

§ 333.71 Defendant's Procedural Guide

[1] Facts to Be Ascertained

☐ Regarding the complaint, ascertain from defendant(s) which of the facts alleged in the complaint are true, which are false, and which defendant(s) is (or are) unable to answer because he, she, or they lack sufficient information to reply.

☐ Regarding the summons, ascertain from defendant(s) the manner in which the summons was served on the (or each) defendant, and the time and place where service was made.

☐ Regarding defenses, ascertain from the defendant(s) any facts that may support the pleading of one or more affirmative defenses [see Civ. Code § 1941; Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.2; see also § 333.28].

[2] Preliminary Determinations

☐ Determine whether the notice or notices, required to be given as a condition precedent to the complaint's filing, was or were given.

☐ Determine whether the summons served is in proper form and was served in accordance with statutory requirements. If the form or service is defective, determine whether facts exist that would support a motion to quash the service of summons for lack of personal jurisdiction [see § 333.20].

☐ Determine whether the complaint states facts sufficient to constitute a cause for relief.

NOTE:
The objection that the complaint fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause for relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] is not waived by failure to raise it by demurrer or answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.80(a)].

☐ Determine whether any other objections to the complaint exist that may be raised by demurrer or answer. Grounds other than lack of subject matter jurisdiction and failure to state a cause for relief are set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b)-(d), (f)-(h).

☐ Determine whether any affirmative defenses exist that may be plead that would defeat plaintiff's cause for relief [see § 333.28].

☐ Determine whether the complaint lacks merit and, if so, whether to move for summary judgment. A motion for summary judgment may be made at any time after the answer is filed on giving five days' notice and must be granted or denied on the same basis as a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c [Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.7].

☐ If there are fact issues to be tried, determine whether there is a right to trial by jury on any of them and, if there are, whether todemand a jury trial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1171; see also § 333.13[10]].

☐ If it appears that plaintiff might prevail in the unlawful detainer proceeding, determine whether the possession of the property should be surrendered to plaintiff. For the effect on the proceeding of the property's surrender, see § 333.30.

[3] Drafting Papers

NOTE:
The following number of copies should be prepared for pleadings and papers filed by the defendant: an original for filing with the court; any additional copies required by the court; a copy for the plaintiff's attorney or, if none, one copy for the plaintiff; one copy for the defendant, if desired; one office copy; and any additional copies as may be desired.

☐ Draft any notice of motion to quash service of summons if the court lacks personal jurisdiction over the defendant. For procedures and forms, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal .

☐ Draft any demurrer to the complaint and notice of hearing, the answer, or all three. The time allowed the defendant(s) to demur to or answer the complaint is five days [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1167, 1167.3, 1170]. For the Judicial Council approved form of answer to a complaint for unlawful detainer, see § 333.110.

☐ Draft any opposition to any motion for immediate possession of the premises [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1166a(b)].

☐ Draft any opposition to any application for a writ of attachment. For procedures and forms, see Ch. 62, Attachment .

☐ Draft any opposition to any noticed motion for appointment of a receiver or order to show cause why the appointment of a receiver should not be confirmed. For discussion and a procedural guide, see Ch. 486, Receivers .

☐ Draft any notice of motion for summary judgment, together with its supporting papers [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.7]. For discussion, a procedural guide, and forms, see Ch. 537, Summary Judgment .

☐ Prepare responses to any interrogatories; note that originals of responses must be served on the propounding party within five days from the date of service of the interrogatories, unless on motion of the propounding party the court has shortened the time for response [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2030.260(b)].

☐ Prepare the proof of service for each paper to be served [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a for form and content of proof of service by mail]. If service is made by mail, the copy of the paper served must either bear a notation of the date and place of mailing or be accompanied by an unsigned copy of the proof of service [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1013(b), 1177].

[4] Service and Filing

☐ Serve a copy of each pleading, notice of motion with its supporting papers, and opposition on the plaintiff's attorney, if any, and, if none, a copy of each on the plaintiff in person or by mail [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 465, 1011-1013, 1015, 1177].

☐ If a notice of motion to quash service of summons for lack of personal jurisdiction over the defendant is to be filed, serve only a copy of the notice of motion and its supporting papers on the plaintiff and nothing else. The service of an answer, demurrer, or other paper constitutes a general appearance [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1014], which is equivalent to the service of summons on the party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 410.50(a)].

PRACTICE TIP:
Serving Papers. Although not determinative, all papers served in the above manner should bear the words "Special Appearance" next to the client's name. By Benjamin Kaplan ☐ Prepare the proof of service [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a for proof of service by mail] if not already done [see Paragraph, above], and have it signed by the person who made service. For discussion, a procedural guide, and forms, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

☐ Deliver the original of each paper served to the court clerk for filing.

§ 333.72 Notice of Trial

☐ To set a case for trial, an at-issue memo (or a memo to set) must be filed. Counsel should check the court's local rules to determine how to have a case placed on the civil active list.

☐ When the case has been set for trial, serve a copy of the notice of trial on the adverse party at least 10 days before the date set for trial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 594(b)]. Either party may serve the required notice of trial on the other party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 594]. For further discussion and a form of notice, see Ch. 551, Trial .

NOTE:
If the defendant appears in the unlawful detainer proceeding by demurrer or answer, trial must be held not later than the 20th day following the date that the request to set the time of trial is made, unless time is extended by the court on the agreement of all parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.5(a), (b)].

[1] Facts to Be Ascertained

☐ Obtain any facts establishing that the forfeiture will result in hardship to the defendant(s) that outweighs any hardship to the plaintiff in denying forfeiture [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1179; see also § 333.132].

[2] Drafting Papers

☐ Draft the petition for relief from forfeiture [see § 333.132] in an original for filing, two copies for plaintiff's attorney (one copy for the attorney and a courtesy copy for the client) or, if none, one copy for the plaintiff, a copy for defendant, if desired, an office copy, and any additional copies as may be desired.

☐ Draft the notice of the application in the same number of copies and for the same distribution as the petition [see § 333.133].

☐ Draft the order granting the petition in the same number of copies and for the same distribution as the petition [see § 333.134].

[3] Service, Filing, and Hearing

☐ Serve two copies of the notice of application, together with two copies of the petition on the plaintiff's attorney (one copy of each for the attorney and a courtesy copy of each for the client) or, if none, one copy of each on the plaintiff [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1015, 1177].

☐ Attend the hearing. If the petition is granted, present to the courtroom clerk the order granting the petition to be given to the judge for signing and have the clerk conform the copies.

☐ Unless notice of the court's order was waived by all parties in open court and entered in the minutes, prepare a notice of the court's order [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1019.5(a), 1177] in an original for filing, two copies for service on plaintiff's attorney, if any, or, if none, one copy for service on the plaintiff, a copy for the defendant, if desired, an office copy, and any additional copies as may be desired.

☐ Serve two copies (one copy for the attorney and a courtesy copy for the client) of the notice of order on the plaintiff's attorney or, if none, one copy on the plaintiff [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1015, 1177], prepare a proof of service, and present the original of the notice together with the original of the proof of service to the court clerk for filing. Some attorneys prefer to attach a conformed copy of the court's order to the copy of the notice of order that is served.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an illustrative filled-in reproduction of the Judicial Council approved form of complaint (Judicial Council Form No. UD-100) for use in a proceeding for unlawful detainer [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.12, 1166]. Use of the Judicial Council form is optional [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12]. Nevertheless, it appears to be widely used in courts throughout California, particularly in general run-of-the-mill landlord-tenant cases involving residences or residential units and simple commercial leases, and should probably be used if feasible.

A "CIVIL CASE COVER SHEET" must accompany the complaint unless the complaint is filed in small claims court [see Cal. Rule of Court, Rule 3.220]. For coverage of complaints generally, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints .

In actions regarding residential property, the plaintiff must attach to the complaint (1) a copy of the notice or notices of termination served on the defendant on which the complaint is based; and (2) a copy of any written lease or rental agreement regarding the premises, and any addenda or attachments to the lease or written agreement that form the basis of the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(c)(1)]. These documents are not required to be attached if the complaint alleges that (1) the lease or rental agreement is oral; (2) a written lease or rental agreement regarding the premises is not in the possession of the landlord or any agent or employee of the landlord; or (3) the action is based solely on nonpayment of rent pursuantto Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(c)(1)(B)]. If the plaintiff fails to attach the required documents, the court must grant leave to amend the complaint for a five-day period in order to include the required attachments [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(c)(2)].

The acts constituting unlawful detainer generally are set forth in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1161 and 1161a [see § 333.10]. A tenant may also sue for unlawful detainer to obtain possession of premises let to a subtenant or held by a servant, employee, agent, or licensee in the event he or she unlawfully detains the premises underlet to or held by him or her [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3)]. Some unlawful detainer cases involve situations to which this form does not easily lend itself [see, e.g., § 333.80[4]]. In these cases, counsel may wish to draft his or her own complaint [see, e.g., complaints in §§ 332.40-332.51, 333.81-333.88, 334.61-334.64].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

For the Judicial Council form of answer to the above complaint, see § 333.110.

[3] Verification Required

The complaint must be verified and include the typed or printed name of the verifying person [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(a)(1)]. For a further discussion of verification, see § 333.80[7][nn].

[4] Complaint by Employer, Principal, Licensor, Purchaser After Sale, or Mobilehome or Recreational Vehicle Park Management

This form is the only complaint for unlawful detainer approved by the Judicial Council and seems to work fairly well in cases involving leases or rental agreements. But unlawful detainer proceedings may also be brought against the following: (1) a person who became the occupant of the premises as a servant, employee, agent, or licensee and holds over after termination of the master/servant, employer/employee, principal/agent, or licensor/licensee relationship [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(1); see also § 333.10[2][a]]; and (2) a person who continues in possession of the property after it has been sold [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a(b); see also § 333.10[10]]. Moreover, the property held over after sale may not be real property at all, but may be a manufactured home or a mobilehome [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a(a), (b)]. In addition, an unlawful detainer proceeding may be available to a mobilehome or recreational vehicle park owner to evict a park tenant who holds over after termination of thetenancy [see Civ. Code §§ 798.60, 799.45(c); see also § 333.12[7] and [8] and §§ 332.78 -332.80 (sample notices to terminate these tenancies)].

Paragraph 6. of the above complaint alleges the existence of the relationship between the parties that creates a duty on the defendant's part to the plaintiff with regard to the property. However, the statements in this paragraph assume the existence of a rental agreement between the plaintiff and defendant and that the unlawful detainer is of real property. The form does not expressly provide for any of the alternative relationships described above and hence does not easily lend itself to use in such cases. Nevertheless, it would appear that the form could be used by crossing out Paragraph 6. in its entirety and then either substituting an "Attachment 6." alleging the existence of one of the alternative relationships or by checking the box in Paragraph 15. and attaching an "Attachment 15." containing the allegations necessary to establish one of the alternative relationships. But since use of the form is optional, it might be simpler for the attorney in such a case to draft his or her own complaint [see §§ 333.81 -333.88].

[5] Complaint Against Assignee

A landlord's right to terminate a lease for a transfer in violation of a lease restriction on transfer includes the right to terminate a transfer without terminating the lease. If the landlord terminates a transfer without terminating the lease, the assignee or subtenant in possession is guilty of unlawful detainer and the landlord may obtain possession from the assignee or subtenant without terminating the tenant's right of possession. For this purpose, the unlawful detainer procedure may be used with changes necessary to make the procedure applicable [Civ. Code § 1995.330(b)]. The above form may be modified by crossing out Paragraph 6. in its entirety and either substituting an "Attachment 6." alleging possession by the assignee in violation of the lease, or checking the box in Paragraph 15. and attaching an "Attachment 15." containing the allegations of possession by an assignee in violation of the lease. All other appropriate boxes should be checked, and the complaint should not demand the lease's forfeiture.

[6] Contents of Complaint

The contents of a complaint for unlawful detainer are prescribed generally by Code Civ. Proc. § 396a [see § 333.13[3][b]] and Code Civ. Proc. § 1166 [see § 333.13[3][a]]. Although Code Civ. Proc. § 396a appears in Part Two of the Code of Civil Procedure, it applies by its own terms to both actions and proceedings, and is also made applicable to unlawful detainer proceedings by Code Civ. Proc. § 1177. The format of the caption is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 422.30 and 422.40, both of which apply to unlawful detainer proceedings by virtue of the general incorporating language of Code Civ. Proc. § 1177.

[7] Filling Out Form

[a] Block Heading: Identification of Attorney and Title of Court

In the first box of the block heading insert the name, State Bar number, address, and phone number of the attorney for the plaintiff. If the plaintiff is appearing without an attorney, insert just the party's name, address, and phone number. Next, insert the plaintiff's name or, if the plaintiff is representing himself or herself, "In propria persona" or "In person" to the right of "ATTORNEY FOR (Name)."

PRACTICE TIP:

Attorney's Name and State Bar Number. Courts require the lead attorney, usually the attorney signing the pleading, to state his or her name above the firm name, if any, followed by the attorney's state bar number. Thus, it is common practice to simply include this information on all pleadings. By Benjamin Kaplan

In the next box, insert the county in which the Superior court is situated, the court's post office address, if any, and its street address [see Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(a)].

For a discussion of the subject matter jurisdiction of trial courts in proceedings in unlawful detainer, see § 333.13[2].

[b] Block Heading: Title of Case

Insert the title of the case beneath the title of the court. The title of the case must include the names of all the parties [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 422.30(a)(2), 422.40, 1177; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(4)]. Thus, the plaintiff's name and the name of the defendant must be inserted. If there are more than one plaintiff or one defendant, all of their names must be set forth. If the space is insufficient, either a cover sheet or an attachment may be used for this purpose. The parties' names then also need to be set forth in Paragraph 1 of the complaint [see § 333.80[7][f]].

No person other than the tenant of the premises, and the subtenant, if there is one, in actual occupation of the premises when the complaint is filed need be made defendants in the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1164; see Richard v. Degen & Brody, Inc. (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 289, 301, 5 Cal. Rptr. 263 (liability of sublessee for damages)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 1164 further provides that no proceeding will abate, nor must the plaintiff be nonsuited, for the nonjoinder of any person who might have been made a party defendant, but when it appears that any of the parties served with process, or appearing in the proceeding, are guilty of the offense charged, judgment must be rendered against him or her.

PRACTICE TIP:

Code Civ. Proc. § 1164. This statute contains obvious problems if one considers that there must be a prior notice served before an unlawful detainer action arises. Thus, in a situation where a notice must be served, the statute would not operate as it says it would. By Benjamin Kaplan

Thus, the intent of Code Civ. Proc. § 1164 is to permit unlawful detainer proceedings to go forward in the absence of individuals who, but for the rule, might be considered indispensable parties. The section does not suggest that the rights of those who are not joined may be determined in their absence. Consequently, for the judgment to be binding on all persons who claim a right to possession of the premises, the complaint for unlawful detainer should include as defendants the names of all adults who are on the premises [Arrieta v. Mahon (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 381, 391-392, 182 Cal. Rptr. 770, 644 P.2d 1249] .

If there are other potential defendants of whom plaintiff is ignorant, check the box immediately preceding "DOES 1 TO _____" and insert on the blank line the total number of "DOE" defendants who are to be included in the proceeding [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 474, 1177]. These defendants might include persons on the premises whose names are unknown or unknown persons, such as cotenants, subtenants, occupants, or assignees, who claim a right to possession.

PRACTICE TIP:

Prejudgment Claim of Right to Possession. In this situation, the prejudgment claim of right to possession must be used as well [see § 333.105 (Prejudgment Claim of Right to Possession)]. By Benjamin Kaplan

Although all persons who enter the premises under the tenant after the suit's commencement are bound by the judgment the same as if they had been made parties to the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1164], this does not apply to any person claiming a right to possession of the premises before the unlawful detainer proceeding is filed [see Arrieta v. Mahon (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 381, 392, 182 Cal. Rptr. 770, 644 P.2d 1249] .

Paragraph 5. of the above complaint satisfies the requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 474 (made applicable to proceedings in unlawful detainer by Code Civ. Proc. § 1177) that the plaintiff state in the complaint that he or she is ignorant of the defendant's true name when the defendant is fictitiously named. When the name of a fictitiously named defendant is discovered, the complaint must be amended accordingly [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 474, 1177]. For discussion and forms for use in amending a complaint, see Ch. 21, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings .

To toll the running of any statute of limitations against fictitiously named defendants, the complaint must state a cause of action against them [Williams v. Goodman (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 856, 861, 29 Cal. Rptr. 877] . This requirement is met if the charging allegations uses the word "defendants" (as appears in the above complaint, for example, in Paragraphs 3., 7.b.(2), and 12.) as this word includes the fictitiously named defendants [see Austin v. Massachusetts Bonding & Insurance Co. (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 596, 600, 15 Cal. Rptr. 817, 364 P.2d 681] .

If no additional doe defendants are to be joined, do not check the box immediately preceding "DOES 1 TO _____" and type N/A (not applicable) on the blank space to the right of "DOES 1 TO."

[c] Block Heading: Case Number

The court clerk will insert the case number when the complaint is presented for filing, and copies should be conformed at that time.

As indicated by the asterisk (*) following "Unlawful Detainer" in the block heading, the form should not be used for complaints alleging evictions after the sale of property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a]. For sample complaints alleging evictions after sale, see §§ 333.85 -333.88.

In this block heading the plaintiff must indicate whether the filing is an initial "Complaint" or an "Amended Complaint." If an Amended Complaint is being filed, the number of the amended complaint (e.g., First, Second, etc.) must be included.

[e] Block Heading: Jurisdiction

The January 1, 2005, Judicial Council form includes a block heading requiring the plaintiff to set forth the jurisdiction of the case. In limited civil cases the caption must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000. When a limited civil case is brought in the superior court, the caption must also identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

In the block heading the plaintiff must check one (or more) of the following boxes:

- That the action is a "Limited Civil Case" in which the amount demanded either does not exceed $10,000 or exceeds $10,000 but does not exceed $25,000;

- That the action is an "Unlimited Civil Case" in which the amount demanded exceeds $25,000; and/or

- That the action is "reclassified" from (1) unlawful detainer to general unlimited civil (possession not in issue); (2) unlawful detainer togeneral limited civil (possession not in issue); (3) limited to unlimited; or (4) unlimited to limited.

[f] Paragraph 1. (Name of Parties)

In Paragraph 1., set forth the names of all the plaintiffs and defendants. These names should match the names set forth

[g] Paragraph 2. (Plaintiff's Capacity)

The plaintiff's capacity (adult individual, public agency, partnership, corporation, or other) to maintain a proceeding for unlawful detainer is indicated by checking the appropriate box in Paragraph 2.a. The box labeled "other" may be checked to include an executor or administrator, a trustee of an express trust [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 369, 1177], a guardian or conservator of an estate or a minor appearing by a guardian ad litem [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 372, 1177], or an unincorporated association other than a partnership [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 388(a), 1177].

PRACTICE TIP:
Supporting Documents. Be sure to see the underlying supporting documents before filing the action.
By Benjamin Kaplan

For a discussion and forms relating to allegations of capacity, see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used .

If the plaintiff made the rental agreement with the defendant under a fictitious business name (as defined in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900), then the plaintiff's capacity must be indicated in Paragraph 2.a., the box in Paragraph 2.b. checked, and the fictitious business name set forth in the blank space at the end of Paragraph 2.b. Compliance with the requirements of the fictitious business name statutes [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17910-17917] is necessary to maintain an "action" on an agreement made under a fictitious business name [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17918]. The allegation in Paragraph 2.b. that the requirements have been complied with avoids a demurrer under Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b) on the ground of lack of capacity to sue [see Pleaters & Stitchers Asso. v. Davis (1934) 140 Cal. App. 403, 406, 35 P.2d 401 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1170, 1177 and Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings]. For further discussion and forms relating to compliance with the fictitious business name statutes, see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used .

[h] Paragraph 3. (Description of Property and Venue)

In Paragraph 3., insert the street address, apartment number, if any, city, zip code, and county of the unlawfully detained property. Thisinformation satisfies the requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(a)(3) that the complaint describe the premises with reasonable certainty and the requirement of Briggs v. Electronic Memories & Magnetics Corp. (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 900, 906, 126 Cal. Rptr. 34 that a complaint in unlawful detainer include an allegation that the tenant remains in possession of the premises.

The information required by Paragraph 3. (address of premises) also lays the venue of the proceeding, that is, the county in which the proceeding is required to be tried. By virtue of Code Civ. Proc. § 1177, venue in unlawful detainer proceedings is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 392, that is, by the situs of the property [Childs v. Eltinge (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 843, 851, 105 Cal. Rptr. 864 ; see § 333.13[1]].

[i] Paragraph 4. (Interest in Premises)

Indicate the plaintiff's interest in the premises in Paragraph 4. The first box is checked if the plaintiff is the owner of the property. The term "owner" apparently includes the holder of a fee simple absolute estate or a defeasible fee estate, and multiple owners of a fee estate, such as joint tenants, tenants in common, or holders of a community or partnership interest. If the plaintiff is not this type of owner, the second box, labeled "other," should be checked and the plaintiff's interest specified, as, for example, a holder of a life estate or a tenancy estate such as a tenancy for years or a periodic tenancy [see Civ. Code § 1946; Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3)].

A person who does not have any interest in or title to the real property may not recover possession of it in an unlawful detainer proceeding [see Costa v. Neves (1938) 12 Cal. 2d 121, 126, 82 P.2d 600] .

[j] Paragraph 6.a. (Rental Agreement)

In Paragraph 6.a. insert the date the rental agreement was entered into and the name of the defendant who rented the premises from the plaintiff. In Paragraph 6.a.(1) indicate the type of tenancy agreed on between the parties by either checking the box labeled "month-to-month tenancy" or the box labeled "other tenancy" and specifying the type, as, for example, a periodic tenancy shorter than month-to-month, a year-to-year tenancy, a tenancy for a term of years subject to a condition subsequent, or a tenancy for a fixed term. In Paragraph 6.a.(2) insert the amount of rent agreed on in the blank space provided. An attachment to Paragraph 6.a. is apparently needed if the rental agreement does not provide for a fixed-sum rent, as, for example, when the rent is a percentage of gross profits or a combination of a fixed sum plus a percentage of gross profits. Further, in Paragraph 6.a.(2) indicate the frequency of payment by checking the box labeled "monthly" or the box labeled "other" and specifying the frequency, such as weekly, quarterly, or yearly. Lastly, in Paragraph 6.a.(3), indicate the day the defendant agreed to pay the rent by checking the box labeled"first of the month" or the box labeled "other day" and specify the day, as, for example, fifteenth of the month, or in the case of a tenancy for other than month-to-month, first of the week, first day of each quarter, or first of the year.

The information sought in Paragraph 6.a., along with that provided in the other allegations of the form, satisfies the requirement that the plaintiff set forth the facts on which he or she seeks to recover possession [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(a)(2); see also § 333.13[3][a]]. Additionally, this information satisfies the requirement that the plaintiff plead the fact that a landlord-tenant relationship exists between the parties [see Fredericksen v. McCosker (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 114, 116, 299 P.2d 908] .

For using this form in situations involving a hold-over possession by, for example, an employee, agent, or licensee [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(1)], or after a sale of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a], see [4], above.

[k] Paragraph 6.b. (Written or Oral Agreement and Initial Landlord's Identity)

In Paragraph 6.b., check the appropriate box in the first line to indicate whether the rental agreement was written or oral. This allegation avoids an objection by demurrer or answer on the ground that it cannot be ascertained from the complaint whether the contract was written, oral, or implied by conduct [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(g), which is made applicable to unlawful detainer proceedings by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1170 and 1177]. For agreements that must be in writing to satisfy the statute of frauds, see Civ. Code §§ 1091 and 1624 and Ch. 530, Statute of Frauds .

In addition, indicate in Paragraph 6.b.(1), (2), (3), or (4) who made the rental agreement with defendant. For example, check the box labeled "(1) plaintiff" if the plaintiff, as an individual, corporation, or partnership, entered into the agreement with the defendant. Check the box labeled "(2) plaintiff's agent" if, for example, the plaintiff's authorized agent or attorney-in-fact entered into the agreement [see Civ. Code §§ 2295, 2400; Prob. Code § 4000 et seq.]. Check the box labeled "(3) plaintiff's predecessor in interest" if, for example, the plaintiff is the transferee or devisee of the reve rsionary interest from the previous landlord [see Civ. Code § 821]. Check the box labeled "(4) other" to indicate any other person who entered into the rental agreement with the defendant, such as plaintiff's former guardian or conservator [see Prob. Code §§ 2550, 2553-2555], plaintiff's spouse when the lease was of community property for a period of one year or less [see Fam. Code § 1102], or plaintiff's former cotenant, whose interest in the property the plaintiff has now obtained. Normally, if a rental agreement is made by a spouse on behalf of both spouses or a cotenant on behalf of all cotenants, both spouses or all cotenants would be named as plaintiffs in the unlawful detainer proceeding [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 367, 378, 389, 1165].

Check the box following c. in Paragraph 6. if the unlawful detainer proceeding is brought against multiple defendants, but only one, or some but not all, of the defendants are named in Paragraph 6.a. as a party or parties to the rental agreement. Indicate the unnamed defendants' status, thus establishing their legal relationship with the defendants named in Paragraph 6.a. and their duties to the plaintiff, by checking the box labeled "(1) subtenants," the box labeled "(2) assignees," or the box labeled "(3) other" and specifying such other status, as, for example, a licensee, easement holder, partner, or person otherwise occupying the premises.

[m] Paragraph 6.d. (Modification or Amendment of Rental Agreement)

If the rental agreement was modified after the date it was entered into by the parties as indicated in Paragraph 6.a., then check the box in Paragraph 6. following d. and specify how the agreement was later changed, for example, by a rent increase in accordance with a notice served on the tenant by the landlord [see Civ. Code § 827] or, on the dissolution of the marriage of a couple who signed the agreement together as landlords, by the removal of one of their names from the agreement if the other former spouse has assumed complete ownership of the property.

[n] Paragraphs 6.e. and 6.f. (Attachment of Written Agreement)

Check the box following Paragraph 6.e. and attach the required documents as "Exhibit 1" if the action concerns residential property, and the circumstances set forth in Paragraph 6.f. do not apply. This paragraph satisfies the statutory requirement that a copy of any written lease or rental agreement regarding residential premises, as well as any addenda or attachments to the lease or written agreement that form the basis of the complaint, be attached to the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(c)(1)(B)]. A copy of a written agreement is not required for residential property if the agreement was oral [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(c)(1)(B)(i)]. If the plaintiff fails to attach the documents required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(c), the court must grant leave to amend the complaint for a five-day period in order to include the required attachments [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(c)(2)].

Check the box preceding Paragraph 6.f. if the action concerns residential property, there is a written agreement, and a copy of the written agreement is not attached. Check box (1) if the plaintiff does not have a copy of the written agreement, and check box (2) if the action is solely for nonpayment of rent [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2)]. The box preceding Paragraph 6.f. need not be checked if the agreement was oral.

There is no requirement that the agreement be attached to the complaint when the case concerns a commercial lease, and attaching it generally isnot necessary to avoid a demurrer. With respect to commercial leases, the complaint should simply allege the existence of a written agreement.

PRACTICE TIP:

Beware of Demurrer. When the lease is attached to the complaint, the landlord/plaintiff needs to be careful when drafting his/her allegations. The tenant may be able to demur and argue that there is some inconsistency between the agreement and an allegation in the complaint. By Myron Moskovitz.

[o] Paragraph 7. (When Notice Is Condition Precedent to Unlawful Detainer)

Check the box following Paragraph 7. if some form of notice was served on the defendant by the plaintiff under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1161 or 1161a or under some other statute [see §§ 332.70 -332.80 (sample notices)]. When this notice is required, the fact of its service on the defendant must be alleged in the complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(a)(5); Delta Imports, Inc. v. Municipal Court (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 1033, 1036, 194 Cal. Rptr. 685 ; Samuels v. Singer (1934) 1 Cal. App. 2d 545, 549, 36 P.2d 1098] . This box is apparently not checked when written notice by the plaintiff is not a prerequisite to an unlawful detainer proceeding, as, for example, when a tenant continues in possession after expiration of a fixed term, or when a servant, employee, agent, or licensee continues in possession after termination or expiration of his or her service, employment, agency, or license [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(1); see also § 333.10[2][a], [c]].

[p] Paragraph 7.a. (Person and Type of Notice Served)

If the box for Paragraph 7. is checked, then indicate in the space provided in a. the name of the defendant on whom the notice was served.

Next, check the applicable box in Paragraph 7.a.(1)-(6) that correctly describes the type of notice served. If the defendant was served notice in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2) to pay past due rent or quit the premises, check the box after (1) labeled "3-day notice to pay rent or quit" [see §§ 332.74 (sample notice), 333.10[2][d]]. If the defendant was served a 30-day or 60-day notice to terminate a periodic tenancy [Civ. Code § 1946] or a tenancy at will [Civ. Code § 789], check the box after (2) labeled "30-day notice to quit" or the box after (3) labeled "60-day notice to quit" [see §§ 332.70, 332.71, 332.72 (sample notices), 333.10[2][c], 333.11[3]]. If the defendant was served notice in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3) to correct a curable breach of covenant or condition or quit the premises, check the box after (4) labeled "3-day notice to perform covenants or quit" [see §§ 332.75 (sample notice), 333.10[2][e]]. If thedefendant was served notice in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(3) to quit the premises because of a noncurable breach of covenant, or in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(4), check the box after (5) labeled "3-day notice to quit" [see §§ 332.76 (sample notice), 333.10[2][e], [8]]. This box should also be checked if the notice was served in accordance with Civ. Code § 791 after the landlord's right of reentry had accrued [see § 333.11[3]]. Check the box after (6) labeled "other" and specify the type of notice served if the notice was for a period other than one specified, such as a notice of fewer than 30 days to terminate a month-to-month tenancy based on the agreement of the parties or to terminate a periodic tenancy for some period shorter than month-to-month [see Civ. Code § 1946]. This box after 7.a.(6) should also be checked and the type of notice served specified if the notice was served under a lease provision requiring some other period of notice [see § 332.73 (sample notice)].

Paragraph 7. does not cover the situation when the unlawful detainer resulted from the tenant's failure to deliver up possession after expiration of the period specified in the tenant's notice terminating a periodic tenancy [see Civ. Code § 1946] or the tenant's written offer of surrender that was accepted in writing by the landlord [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(5)]. In this case, to completely set forth the facts on which plaintiff seeks to recover [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(a)(2)], plaintiff could include allegations of such service in an attachment under Paragraph 15. or draft his or her own complaint [see § 333.84].

Indicate in Paragraph 7.b.(1) the date on which the period stated in the notice described in Paragraph 7.a. expired. The statement following Paragraph 7.b.(2) provides that the defendant failed to comply with the requirements of the notice by the date specified in the notice.

[q] Paragraphs 7.d., 17.e. (Election to Declare Forfeiture)

The plaintiff, as landlord, may state in the notice required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1161 his or her election to declare a forfeiture of the lease or rental agreement following the tenant's neglect or failure to perform the conditions or covenants of the lease or agreement or default in the payment of rent [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(a)]. If the notice includes this election, check the box in Paragraph 7.d. To request the forfeiture of the agreement in the prayer, check the box in Paragraph 17.e. If the court finds in the plaintiff's favor, then the judgment must declare the forfeiture of the lease or agreement [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(a); see also § 333.10[4]].

PRACTICE TIP:

Forfeiture. A 30-day notice terminating a tenancy without cause may not contain a forfeiture demand or notice. By Benjamin Kaplan

[r] Paragraph 7.e. (Attachment of Copy of Notice)

The notice may be alleged either verbatim or according to its legal effect [Zucco v. Farullo (1918) 37 Cal. App. 562, 568, 174 P. 929] , or it may be alleged as is done in the above form, by attaching a copy of it as an exhibit to the complaint [see Wilson v. Sadleir (1915) 26 Cal. App. 357, 359, 146 P. 1061] . If a copy is attached, check the box in Paragraph 7. following e. and label the attachment "Exhibit 2." Box 7.e. must be checked and a copy of the notice attached if the action concerns residential property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(c)(1)(A)]. The exhibit may be fastened to a page of the size required for the complaint and attached. When prepared by a machine copying process, the exhibit must be equal to typewritten material in legibility and permanency of image [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.104].

[s] Paragraph 7.f. (Different Service on One or More Defendants)

If one or more of the defendants was served with a different notice, on a different date, or in a different manner (from the options set forth in Paragraph 7.a. or from another of the defendants), check the box after Paragraph 7.f. and state this fact in an "Attachment 8.c." If Paragraph 7.f. is checked, Paragraph 8.c. must also be checked with the accompanying "Attachment 8.c." that specifies the facts surrounding the different service (such as type of notice served, when notice period expired, and manner of service) for each defendant [see Paragraphs 7.a. through e. and 8.].

[t] Paragraph 8. (Method Used to Serve Notice)

If a notice was served on the defendant by the plaintiff, check the box for Paragraph 8.a. and indicate the method of service used by checking the appropriate box in Paragraph 8.a.(1)-(5) [see § 333.11].

If a copy of the notice was personally delivered to the defendant under Code Civ. Proc. § 1162(1), check the first box under 8.a.(1) and indicate the date of service. If service was made by leaving a copy of the notice at the defendant's place of residence or usual place of business and by mailing a copy to his or her place of residence under Code Civ. Proc. § 1162(2), check the second box under 8.a.(2) and insert the name or description of the person of suitable age and discretion at either place with whom the notice was left, the date on which it was left at either place, the place at which it was left, and the date a copy was mailed to the defendant's residence, in the spaces provided. If a copy of the notice was posted on the premises occupied by the defendant under Code Civ. Proc. § 1162(3), check the third box under 8.a.(3) and insert the date of posting, whether or not a copy was left with a person on the premises, the date a copy was mailed to the defendant at the place where the property is situated, and the reason this posting method had to be used. If a notice to terminate a tenancy for an unspecified term was sent by certified or registered mail by the plaintiff to the defendant in accordance with Civ. Code § 1946, thencheck the fourth box under 8.a.(4) and indicate the date the notice was mailed.

If the tenancy was terminated by defendant's notice of termination to the plaintiff under Civ. Code § 1946 or by the tenant's written offer to surrender possession that was accepted by the plaintiff in writing, plaintiff may either modify Paragraph 8.a. to so allege, or include an allegation to that effect in an attachment to Paragraph 15., or counsel may draft his or her own complaint [see § 333.84].

If one defendant was served on behalf of two or more defendants and the defendants signed a joint written rental agreement, check the box after Paragraph 8.b. and insert the name of the defendant served in the space provided.

If the notice was served on defendants other than those alleged in Paragraph 7.a., check the box for Paragraph 8.c. and prepare "Attachment 8.c." that includes information about this service. For example, the information could describe service on subtenants in actual possession of the premises, who are required to be served notice under Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2), (3), and (4).

The plaintiff is required to allege only the ultimate fact that the notice was served on the defendant [Zucco v. Farullo (1918) 37 Cal. App. 562, 568, 174 P. 929] , but the burden of proving service still rests on the plaintiff [Lamey v. Masciotra (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 709, 713, 78 Cal. Rptr. 344] . Paragraph 8. appears to provide more information than the ultimate fact of service, but further proof may be required if the defendant denies the fact or method of service. Under Paragraph 8.d, proof of service of the notice may be attached and labeled as "Exhibit 3" [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(a)(5) (requirement that complaint must state specifically method used to serve defendant with notice of termination may be satisfied by using and completing all items relating to service of notice in appropriate Judicial Council form complaint, or by attaching proof of service of notice)].

[u] Paragraph 9. (Demand for Possession)

This box should be checked in lieu of Paragraphs 7. and 8. when the unlawful detainer consists of the defendant's holding over after expiration of a fixed-term lease. In this case, the plaintiff is not required to serve any notice to quit on the defendant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(1); see also § 333.10[2][a]].

[v] Paragraphs 10., 17.c. (Amount of Rent Due)

Paragraph 10. should be checked and the amount of rent due stated when the three-day notice to pay rent or quit the premises was served. When the unlawful detainer charged is after default in the payment in rent [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(a)(4)], the complaint must state the amount of the rent [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2)].

PRACTICE TIP:
Amount of Rent. Make sure the amount of rent alleged due is the same as that demanded in the three-day notice. By Myron Moskovitz

If the amount of rent due and unpaid under the lease or tenancy before the expiration of the three-day notice is alleged in Paragraph 10., also check the box after c. in the prayer in Paragraph 17. and insert the amount of the past-due rent.

It should be noted that pretermination rent (rent accruing before expiration of the period specified in the notice to quit) is recoverable in an unlawful detainer proceeding only when the unlawful detainer consists of a holding over without payment after service of a three-day notice to pay rent or quit [see Saberi v. Bakhtiari (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 509, 512-516, 215 Cal. Rptr. 359 ; see also § 333.13[13][e][iv]]. In any other situation, the box for Paragraph 10. should not be checked and plaintiff's remedy to recover the rent would be by an independent action.

[w] Paragraphs 11., 17.f. (Fair Rental Value Damages)

The jury or the court must assess the damages occasioned to the plaintiff by any unlawful detainer alleged in the complaint and proved on trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(b); see § 333.13[13][e][i], [ii]]. If the plaintiff seeks damages, check the box in Paragraph 11. and indicate the fair daily rental value of the premises. Additionally, check the box after f. in the prayer in Paragraph 17. and insert the date in which the damages began accruing. The daily rent is usually calculated by dividing the agreed on rent by the number of days in the month.

[x] Paragraphs 12., 17.g. (Statutory Damages)

If the defendant is found guilty of unlawful detainer, and malice is shown, the plaintiff is entitled to statutory damages of up to $600.00, in addition to actual damages, including rent found due [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(b); see § 333.13[13][g]]. Under these circumstances, check the box after Paragraph 12. and include in an "Attachment 12" the facts supporting the claim for statutory damages. In addition, check the box after g. in the prayer in Paragraph 17. that requests statutory damages.

[y] Paragraphs 13., 17.d. (Attorney's Fees)

The box for Paragraph 13. should be checked if the plaintiff seeks to obtain attorney's fees under a written agreement, such as a lease or rental agreement [see Civ. Code § 1717; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1021, 1177; Richard v. Degen & Brody, Inc. (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 289, 299-300, 5 Cal. Rptr. 263 (overruled on other grounds, Kendall v. Ernest Pestana, Inc. (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 488, 496-498, 220 Cal. Rptr. 818, 709 P.2d 837)]. A provision in a written agreement that provides for reasonable attorney fees is limited to reasonable compensation for legal services that are reasonably necessary under the circumstances of a case [Cirimele v. Shinazy (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 50, 52, 285 P.2d 311] . To request attorney's fees in the prayer, check the box after d. in Paragraph 17.

For further discussion of attorney's fees, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees .

[z] Paragraph 14. (Rent or Eviction Control Ordinance)

Check the box for Paragraph 14. if the defendant's tenancy is subject to a local rent control or eviction control ordinance, and specify the city or county that enacted the ordinance, the ordinance's title, and the date of its passage [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 459, 1177; see also § 333.28[5][g]].

PRACTICE TIP:

Check Local Rent Control Ordinances. Be sure to check applicable ordinances to determine whether certain special language is required to be included in the complaint (as well as the notice to quit, such as a statement that the tenant has a right to seek and obtain advice from the rent board). Most rent control ordinances require allegations of good cause to evict. This is also required in public housing and in most government-subsidized housing. By Myron Moskovitz

[aa] Paragraph 15. (Additional Allegations)

If additional allegations are required, check the box in Paragraph 15. and include the allegations in "Attachment 15." to the complaint. For example, additional allegations may be necessary if this form is used in situations not involving a rental agreement, such as when there is a holding over by a servant, employee, agent, or licensee [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(1)], or by a person who holds over after the property has been sold and the purchaser's title perfected [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a(b); see also [4], above]. An attachment may also be required to allege that the notice of termination was given by the defendant-tenant to the plaintiff-landlord or that the unlawful detainer consists of the holding over by the tenant after the tenant made a written offer to surrender the premises which was accepted in writing by the landlord [see Civ. Code § 1946; Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(5); see also [p] (Person and Type of Notice Served), above] and to allege the method the notice was served in such cases [see [t] (Method Used to Serve Notice), above].

Attachment 15. may also be used to set forth any circumstances of fraud, force, or violence that may have accompanied the alleged unlawful detainer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(b); see also § 333.13[3][a][iv]].

Formerly, the municipal court (or the superior court in a county in which there was no municipal court) had jurisdiction over unlawful detainer proceedings when the whole amount of damages claimed was $25,000 or less [see former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85.1, 86(a)(4) (jurisdiction in limited civil cases)]. Paragraph 16. states that the plaintiff accepts the court's jurisdictional limit, if any. The primary purpose of this statement was to assure that any recovery in a proceeding pending in a municipal court would be within the subject matter jurisdiction of that court and that the case would not be transferred to the superior court under former Code Civ. Proc. § 396 if the demand in the complaint had a potential of exceeding the monetary jurisdiction of the municipal court or in the event that it developed at trial that plaintiff was entitled to a judgment in excess of that jurisdiction. By accepting the excess amount, plaintiff in effect waived any claim to that amount. Note, however, that there are no longer any municipal courts in California.

[cc] Paragraph 17.a. (Prayer for Possession)

The prayer includes a request, in Paragraph 17.a., for possession of the premises. This is the primary object of an unlawful detainer proceeding and, hence, inclusion of the request is not made optional.

[dd] Paragraph 17.b. (Prayer for Costs)

The prayer includes a request, in Paragraph 17.b., for costs incurred during the proceeding. Costs are available to the prevailing party under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1032 and 1033. These provisions are made applicable to unlawful detainer proceedings by Code Civ. Proc. § 1177. In addition, costs of an unlawful detainer proceeding are expressly provided for when the proceeding involves a default in the payment of rent, the rental agreement has not expired, and the notice to pay rent did not state an election to declare a forfeiture of the agreement [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(c)]. For further discussion of costs, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees .

[ee] Paragraph 17.c. (Prayer for Past Due Rent)

If the proceeding is for unlawful detainer after service of a three-day notice to pay rent or quit and failure to pay, check this box and insert the amount of past-due rent [see [v] (Amount of Rent Due), above].

[ff] Paragraph 17.d. (Prayer for Reasonable Attorney's Fees)

If the lease or rental agreement or a particular statute governing the proceeding [see, e.g., Civ. Code § 798.85 (any action arising out of provisions of Mobilehome Residency Law)] authorizes recovery of attorney's fees, check this box [see [y] (Attorney's Fees), above].

[gg] Paragraph 17.e. (Prayer for Forfeiture of Agreement)

If, in his or her notice to the defendant to quit the premises, the plaintiff has stated an election to declare the lease forfeited, check this box [see [q] (Election to Declare Forfeiture), above].

[hh] Paragraph 17.f. (Prayer for Damages for Holding Over)

If damages for holding over after expiration of the notice to quit are sought, check this box and insert the date the damages began accruing [see [w] (Fair Rental Value Damages), above].

[ii] Paragraph 17.g. (Statutory Damages)

If statutory damages are sought [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(b)], check this box and make sure the complaint includes an "Attachment 12" that sets forth the facts alleging the grounds for these damages [see [x] (Statutory Damages), above].

[jj] Paragraph 17.h. (Prayer for Other Relief)

Insert in the space provided any other relief to which plaintiff is entitled. The following are examples:

- If the proceeding is based on an unlawful detainer arising from the failure to pay past due rent or quit [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2)], prejudgment interest on the amount of the past due rent may be requested in the complaint [see § 333.13[13][f]]. To request interest, check the box after h. in Paragraph 17. and specify interest on past due rent. If prejudgment interest is not requested in the complaint or otherwise called to the attention of the trial court, the trial court's failure to allow it cannot be raised for the first time on appeal [Garfinkle v. Montgomery (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 149, 159, 248 P.2d 52] .

- If plaintiff has sustained any damages by reason of any circumstances of fraud, force, or violence that accompanied the alleged unlawful detainer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(b)], specify the amount of damages and the cause (fraud, force, or violence). If these damages are claimed, allegations establishing the fraud, force, or violence should be set forth in an Attachment 15 [see [aa] (Additional Allegations), above].

[kk] Paragraph 18. (Number of Pages to Complaint)

When the complaint is complete, count the number of pages, including attachments and exhibits, check the box after Paragraph 18., and specify the complaint's total number of pages.

[ll] Paragraph 19. (Unlawful Detainer Assistants)

This Judicial Council Form includes information on unlawful detainer assistants [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6400-6415]. This portion of the form must be completed in all cases. If plaintiff did not receive advise or assistance, for compensation, from an unlawful detainer assistant in completing the form complaint, check the "did not" box in Paragraph 19. No other information is required. However, if the plaintiff received any help, advise, or assistance, for a fee, from an unlawful detainer assistance, check the "did" box and complete the information regarding the unlawful detainer assistant in Paragraph 19.a.-f. For a discussion of unlawful detainer assistants, see § 333.12[3].

[mm] Signature

The complaint must be signed by at least one attorney of record in the attorney's individual name, or, if the party is not represented by an attorney, it must be signed by the party. The signer's address and telephone number, if any, must appear in the complaint. An unsigned complaint must be stricken unless the signature's omission is corrected promptly after being called to the attention of the attorney or party [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)]. By presenting a complaint, pleading, or similar paper to the court, whether by signing, filing, submitting, or later advocating, an attorney or unrepresented party is deemed to have made certain certifications regarding the legitimacy of the complaint, pleading, or other paper and is subject to sanctions for violations [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(b) (sanctions for frivolous tactics; for discussion, see Ch. 510, Sanctions)].

[nn] Verification

The complaint must be verified and include the typed or printed name of the verifying person [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(a)(1)]. When the complaint is verified by the attorney or by any other person except one of the parties, that person must set forth in the affidavit (or, as in the above complaint form, declaration under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) the reasons why it is not made by one of the parties [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446, 1177]. For forms of verification for use by an attorney, or by a corporation or partnership which may be attached to the above complaint when appropriate, see Ch. 572, Verification .

[8] Summons

On filing the complaint, a summons must be issued [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(d)]. For discussion and the Judicial Council approved form of summons, see § 333.100.

[5] License and Lease Distinguished

A license, as opposed to a lease, is the authority to do a particular act or series of acts on land of another without possessing an estate in the land. The test to determine whether an agreement for use of real estate is a license or lease is whether the contract gives exclusive possession of premises against all the world, including the owner, in which case it is a lease, or whether it merely confers a privilege to occupy under the owner, in which case it is a license [Shaw v. Caldwell (1911) 16 Cal. App. 1, 7, 115 P. 941 ; see San Juan G. Co. v. San Juan R. etc. Assn. (1939) 34 Cal. App. 2d 159, 169-170, 93 P.2d 582] .

9. On _____ [date following expiration of notice period], plaintiff further [caused to be] served on defendant a three-day written notice demanding possession of the premises before expiration of the three-day period. A copy of the notice is attached to this complaint as Exhibit B and made a part of this complaint.

10. The three-day period expired on _____ [date], and ever since that date plaintiff has been entitled to immediate possession of the premises.

11. Defendant failed and refused to deliver up possession of the premises before expiration of the three-day period or since, and continues in possession without plaintiff's permission or consent.

[12. Defendant's withholding of possession of the premises from plaintiff has been willful, deliberate, intentional, and obstinate and done by defendant with knowledge that his/her tenancy has been terminated and that the withholding is against plaintiff's will, in that _____ (specify).]

13. The reasonable rental value of the premises is $_____ per day, and the damages to plaintiff proximately caused by defendant's unlawful detention have accrued at that rate since _____ [date three-day period expired] and will continue to accrue at that rate so long as defendant remains in possession of the premises.

[Prayer, date, signature block, and verification. See § 333.81[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a landlord to recover possession of real property from a tenant at will, and to recover damages for the holding over after expiration of the notice to quit and statutory damages if malice is shown [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1161(1), 1174(a), (b)]. The complaint may also state any circumstances of fraud, force, or violence that accompanied the unlawful detainer and claim damages for them [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166].

[3] Verification Required

The complaint must be verified and include the typed or printed name of the verifying person [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(a)(1); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446, 1177].

[4] Allegations

The above complaint alleges:

- The creation of the tenancy at will (Paragraphs 4-6) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1166].

- Defendant's entry into possession of the premises (Paragraph 5) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1161(1), 1166].

- Service on defendant of a not less than 30-day notice terminating the tenancy (Paragraph 7) [see Civ. Code § 789; Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(1)].

- Defendant's failure to surrender possession (Paragraph 8) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1161(1), 1166].

- Service on defendant of a three-day notice to quit (Paragraph 9) [see Civ. Code § 791].

- Expiration of the three-day period and plaintiff's right to possession (Paragraph 10) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1166].

- Defendant's unlawful detention of the premises (Paragraph 11) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1161(1), 1166].

- Defendant's current possession of the premises (Paragraph 11) [see Briggs v. Electronic Memories & Magnetics Corp. (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 900, 906, 126 Cal. Rptr. 34] .

- Defendant's malice in withholding possession, to be alleged if plaintiff is seeking statutory damages (Paragraph 12) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(b)].

- The rental value of the property; that is, plaintiff's damages resulting from the unlawful detention (Paragraph 13) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(b)].

For discussion of the required contents of the complaint, see § 333.13[3][a].

[5] Three-Day Notice

Paragraph 9 of the above complaint alleges the service of a three-day notice to quit under Civ. Code § 791 in addition to the not less than 30-day notice required by Civ. Code § 789. Although it is not entirely clear whether the three-day notice is required, it is unlikely that a court would require service of a three-day notice after a 30-day notice. If the three-day notice to quit is not required, damages would begin to accrue from the date the not less than 30-day notice to remove from the premises expired.

Proc. §§ 1161a(b)(3), 1174(a),*

(b); see also § 333.10[10]]. With appropriate modifications, this form may also be used (1) when the nonjudicial sale was under an express power of sale contained in a mortgage, rather than a trust deed [see Civ. Code § 2924; Code Civ. Proc.§ 1161a(b)(2)]; and (2) when the property involved is a rental housing unit (as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a(d)) in the possession of a tenant or subtenant on a periodic basis from week-to-week, month-to-month, or other interval, or for a fixed period of time and the appropriate notice has been served [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161a(c)]. In the latter event, the reference to "three days" and "three-day" in Paragraphs 10-12 should be changed to reflect the longer notice period required.

The complaint may also set forth any circumstances of fraud, force, or violence that accompanied the unlawful detainer and claim damages for them [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(b)].

For discussion of when title may be in issue in the proceeding, see § 333.28[2][b]. For discussion of the relief available in an unlawful detainer proceeding, see § 333.13[13].

[3] Verification Required

The above complaint must be verified and include the typed or printed name of the verifying person [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166(a)(1); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446, 1177].

- The rental value of the property; that is, plaintiff's damages resulting from the unlawful detention (Paragraph 14) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1174(b)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is a notice of motion for use to obtain an order for immediate possession of the premises and issuance of a writ of possession before trial in an unlawful detainer proceeding. The writ may be issued when it appears to the court's satisfaction, after a hearing on the motion, from the verified complaint, and from any affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) filed or oral testimony given by or on behalf of the parties, that the defendant resides out of the state, has departed from the state, cannot, after due diligence be found within the state, or has concealed himself or herself to avoid service of summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166a(a)].

A supporting memorandum is required to be served and filed with this notice of motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010; for discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities]. For a form of order granting the motion, see § 333.104.

Written notice of the hearing on the motion must be served on the defendant by the plaintiff in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1011 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166a(b)].

[3] Contents of Notice

The notice must give the defendant information as specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1166a(b) (set forth in the last paragraph of this form) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1166a(b)]. The motion must indicate that the writ applies to all tenants, subtenants, if any, named claimants, if any, and any other occupants of the premises [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166a(a)].

For discussion of the contents and requirements of noticed motions, a procedural guide, and forms of noticed motions and supporting papers, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

[4] Undertaking

The plaintiff is required to file an undertaking in such sum as will be fixed and determined by the judge, to the effect, that if the plaintiff fails to recover judgment against the defendant for possession of the premises or if the suit is dismissed, the plaintiff will pay the defendant such damages, not to exceed the amount fixed in the undertaking, as may be sustained by the defendant by reason of the dispossession under the writ of possession [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166a(c)]. For discussion and forms for use in filing an undertaking, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings .

Plaintiff's motion for immediate possession of the property described below came on regularly for hearing by the court on _____ [date]. Plaintiff appeared by counsel _____ [name]; defendant _____ [did not appear or specify appearance made].

On proof made to the court's satisfaction that the defendant _____ [resides out of California or has departed from California or, after due diligence, cannot be found within California or has concealed himself/herself to avoid service of summons in this proceeding], and that the motion ought to be granted, and plaintiff having filed in this action an undertaking with good and sufficient sureties who jointly and severally bind themselves to defendant for the statutory obligations of Code of Civil Procedure Section 1166a in an amount heretofore fixed by this court, to wit, the sum of $_____.

IT IS ORDERED that the motion be, and it hereby is, granted, that plaintiff is entitled to immediate possession, and that a writ of possession issue directed to the Sheriff of this county, [or to any Marshal of this Judicial District,] directing him/her to put plaintiff into possession of the following described property: _____ [describe manufactured home, mobilehome, or real property].

Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an order for use when the motion for immediate possession of the property is granted. If the court's findings at the hearing on the motion are in plaintiff's favor and against the defendant, an order must be entered for the immediate possession of the premises [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166a(d)]. The order may be enforced as provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 712.010-717.030, relating to enforcement of nonmoney judgments in civil actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166a(e)]. For the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 1166a, references in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 712.010-717.030 (1) to the "judgment debtor" must be deemed references to the defendant, (2) to the "judgment creditor" must be deemed references to the plaintiff, and (3) to the "judgment of possession of the property" must be deemed references to an order for immediate possession of the premises [Code Civ. Proc. § 1166a(f)].

For discussion and a form of notice of motion for immediate issuance of a writ of possession, see § 333.103.

[3] Enforcement Writ

Except with regard to enforcing a judgment for money, a writ of possession issued in accordance with a judgment for possession in an unlawful detainer action must be enforced without delay, notwithstanding receipt of notice that the defendant has filed a bankruptcy proceeding. However, an exception to this rule exists for writs of possession issued for possession of a mobilehome, manufactured home, or real property in a mobilehome park or manufactured housing community [Code Civ. Proc. § 715.050].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, which is set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 415.46(f), is for use by an occupant who is not named in the unlawful detainer complaint but who claims a right to possession of the premises that are the subject of the unlawful detainer action. The occupant receives the form when it is served by the marshal, sheriff, or registered process server, together with a copy of the summons and complaint, on all the adult occupants of the premises at the same time that the summons and complaint are served on the named defendants [see Code Civ. Proc. § 415.46(a); § 333.13[4][a]; see also Gov. Code § 26721.1 (fee for filing)].

If the form was not served on the occupant, the occupant is not required to file a prejudgment claim and instead may file a postjudgment claim of right to possession after service or posting of the writ of possession, up to and including the time when the levying officer returns to evict the occupant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.3(a)]. For discussion of postjudgment claim of right to possession, see § 333.14[4][b][i].

PRACTICE TIP:

Using Prejudgment Claim. This form is one that should almost always be used unless there is a good articulable reason not to use it. In this practitioner's opinion, the standard of practice in the future will be that it will be presumptively utilized in the absence of good cause. By Benjamin Kaplan

[3] Filing Claim

Any occupant of the premises who is served with a prejudgment claim of right to possession may file the claim with the court within 10 days of the date of service as shown on the return of service. The filing period includes Saturday and Sunday but excludes all other judicial holidays. If the last day for filing the claim falls on a Saturday or Sunday, the filing period is extended to and includes the next court date. Filing the claim constitutes a general appearance [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.25(a)].

[4] Effect of Filing Claim

At the time of filing, the claimant will be added as a defendant in the unlawful detainer action, and the clerk will notify the plaintiff that the claimant has been added as a defendant by mailing a copy of the claim to the plaintiff. The claimant must answer or otherwise respond to the summons and complaint within five days, including Saturdays and Sundays but excluding all other judicial holidays, after filing the prejudgment claim of possession. Thereafter, the claimant's name must be added to any pleading, filing, or form filed in the unlawful detainer action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.25(b)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is a request/counter-request to set an unlawful detainer case for trial. It is adopted for mandatory use. If the defendant appears and files an answer or demur to the complaint, the unlawful detainer case must be set for trial on a date not later than 20 days after the first request to set the case for trial is made [Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.5(a)]. If possession of the premises are in issue, Paragraph 2.a. of the form must be checked. It provides that the case is entitled to legal preference under Code Civ. Proc. § 1179a. Note that the court may extend the period for trial on the agreement of all of the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.5(b); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.5(c) (if trial is not held within time specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.5, court, on finding that there is reasonable probability that plaintiff will prevail in the action, must (1) determine amount of damages, if any, to be suffered by plaintiff by reason of extension; and (2) issue order requiring defendant to pay that amount into court as rent would have otherwise become due and payable or into escrow designated by court for so long as defendant remains in possession pending action's termination)].

[3] Proof of Service by Mail

The second page of Form UD-150 sets forth a "Proof of Service by Mail." An unsigned copy of the Proof of Service by Mail should be completed and served with Form UD-150. After service by mail, the person who mailed Form UD-150 will need to complete the Proof of Service by Mail. Once the Proof of Service by Mail has been completed, it should be given to the clerk for filing.

SHORT TITLE: Parker v. Daly ..... Case Number: C123456

Attachment 3j to Answer to Complaint for Unlawful Detainer

Affirmative Defense 3.b.:

On July 1, 1996, the electric heater in the bedroom of the apartment failed. In addition, the window in the living room of the apartment had been broken since June 15, 1996, resulting in rain damage to the carpet and to defendant's furniture. Defendant phoned plaintiff on July 1 and July 8, 1996, requesting that necessary repairs be made. When plaintiff failed to make the repairs, defendant sent a written notice to plaintiff on July 16, 1996, informing plaintiff that if the necessary repairs were not made within 30 days, defendant would make the repairs herself and deduct the costs from the September rental payment. When the plaintiff did not respond, defendant hired a contractor and an electrician on August 20, 1996, to make the necessary repairs. Their bills for repair totaled $300.00, which defendant paid.

Affirmative Defense 3.c.:

On September 1, 1996, defendant tendered to plaintiff $240.00, together with the bills for $300.00, marked as paid, as payment for the rent due on that date. Plaintiff refused to accept this payment and demanded $540.00 as the rent payment.

Defendant deposited the $240.00 in a bank account (number 0978456-1) opened in plaintiff's name at the Bank of Paradise, and sent a notice of the deposit along with the bank book of the account to plaintiff on September 4, 1996. Defendant will continue to deposit monthly rental payments in this account in plaintiff's name as the payments become due unless otherwise instructed by the court.

Affirmative Defense 3.e.:

In retaliation for defendant's actions, described above, plaintiff served a three-day notice to pay rent or quit on defendant on September 27, 1996, and instituted this proceeding on October 1, 1996.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an illustrative filled-in reproduction of the Judicial Council approved form for use by a defendant in a proceeding for unlawful detainer [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.12, 1166; Judicial Council Form UD-105]. If the landlord does not use a Judicial Council form complaint, the tenant should not use a Judicial Council form answer. If the defendant appears by filing an answer, trial of the unlawful detainer case must be held not later than the 20th day following the date that the request to set the time of trial is made [Code Civ. Proc. § 1170.5(a); see § 333.106 (Judicial Council form of Request/Counter-Request to Set Case For Trial)].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

Use of the Judicial Council form is optional [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12]. Nevertheless, it should be used whenever the Judicial Council approved form of complaint for unlawful detainer is used [see § 333.80].

For a discussion of the format and contents of answers drafted by counsel, which may be adapted for use in answering a counsel-drafted complaint for unlawful detainer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[3] Verification Required

The answer must be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446, 1166(a)(1), 1177].

[4] Time to Answer

The defendant has five days, including Saturdays and Sundays but excluding all other judicial holidays, to answer or otherwise respond to a complaint or amended complaint for unlawful detainer. If the last day for filing the response falls on a Saturday or Sunday, the response period is extended to and includes the next court day [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1167, 1167.3]. However, the court may order a different time limit for answering the complaint if good cause is shown [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1167.3, 1167.5; see § 333.21]. That is, on or before the day fixed for his or her appearance, the defendant may appear and answer or demur [Code Civ. Proc. § 1170; see § 333.23]. For forms of demurrers that may be adapted for use in an unlawful detainer proceeding, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings . For discussion of when a motion to quash service of summons should be made in lieu of filing a general demurrer to the complaint and the effect of a general demurrer, see §§ 333.20, 333.24[1].

[5] Filling Out Form

[a] Block Heading: Identification of Attorney and Title of Court

In the first box of the block heading insert the name, address, and phone number of the attorney for the defendant or of the defendant if he or she is appearing in person. Insert the defendant's name or, if the defendant is representing himself or herself, "In propria persona" or "In person" to the right of "Attorney For (Name)." In the next box, insert the title and address of the court as in the complaint [see § 333.80].

[b] Block Heading: Title of Case

Type the names of the parties in the blocks provided. In an answer it is sufficient to state the name of the first party on each side with an appropriate indication of any other parties, such as "et al." [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 422.40, 1177; see also Ch. 108, Captions and Introductions].

[c] Block Heading: Case Number

Insert the case number in the appropriate box in the caption as it appears in the complaint served on the defendant.

[d] Paragraph 1. (Defendant's Name)

Insert in Paragraph 1. the name of each defendant who joins in the answer to the complaint.

[e] Paragraph 2. (Admissions and Denials)

Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30, concerning the form and content of answers in civil actions, applies to answers in unlawful detainer proceedings [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1177].

Check the box after a. in Paragraph 2. if the defendant generally denies each statement of the complaint and the demand in the complaint does not exceed $1,000 [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 431.40(a), 1177]. Apart from the general denial in this form of answer, the Judicial Council has adopted a general form of general denial the use of which is made mandatory by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.31 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.40(c); Judicial Council Form PLD-050]. It is uncertain whether, in an unlawful detainer proceeding brought on a Judicial Council complaint form, the answering attorney who intends to file a general denial would use the mandatory general denial form, or the form presented here, which is a specific form designed for use to answer the Judicial Council form of complaint for unlawful detainer [cf. Judicial Council Form PLD-050 (general form) with Judicial Council Form UD-105 (unlawful detainer form)]. Consequently, before preparing this form of answer to deny generally the contents of the complaint, counsel should check local court practice to determine whether the court will require use of the general form of general denial.

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

If the box following a. is not checked, check the box following b. in Paragraph 2., in which event the defendant's denials of allegations in thecomplaint must be made positively, that is, specifically, or according to information and belief [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 431.30(d), (f), 1177]. Positive denials may be stated in Paragraph 2.b.(1) by referring to specific paragraphs or parts of the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 431.30(f), 1177]. Check the box at the end of Paragraph 2.b.(1) if the specific denials are continued on an attachment.

Indicate in Paragraph 2.b.(2) which allegations in the complaint defendant specifically denies on the ground that he or she has no information or belief on the subject sufficient to enable him or her to answer [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 431.30(e), (f), 1177; see Ch. 26, Answers , for examples of specific denials on information and belief]. Check the box at the end of Paragraph 2.b.(2) if the denials based on the lack of information or belief are continued on an attachment.

[f] Paragraph 3. (Affirmative Defenses)

Paragraph 3. contains statements of new matters constituting defenses, or affirmative defenses [see Code Civ. Proc. §§

431.30(b)(2), 1177]. Check the appropriate box to assert any of the following affirmative defenses:

- The plaintiff breached the implied warranty of habitability [Paragraph 3.a.; see § 333.28[4]]. This defense should not be alleged unless the complaint is based on non-payment of rent.

- The defendant exercised his or her right to repair and deduct [Paragraph 3.b.; see Civ. Code § 1942]. The repair and deduct defense should not be alleged unless the complaint is based on non-payment of rent.

- The plaintiff refused to accept the defendant's offer to pay rent [Paragraph 3.c.; see, e.g., Strom v. Union Oil Co. (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 78, 83-84, 198 P.2d 347 ; see also § 333.10[5]].

- The plaintiff has waived, changed, or canceled the notice to quit [Paragraph 3.d.; see, e.g., Lee v. Vignoli (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 24, 29-30 , 160 Cal. Rptr. 79 (if landlord waives back rent after serving "pay rent or quit" notice, then 30-day notice under Civ. Code § 1946 is required to terminate month-to-month tenancy)].

- The plaintiff served the notice to quit or filed the complaint to retaliate against the defendant [Paragraph 3.e.; see § 333.28[5]].

- The plaintiff is arbitrarily discriminating against the defendant in violation of the Constitutions or laws of the United States or the State of California [Paragraph 3.f.; see Gov. Code § 12955; see also § 333.28[5][f]].

- The plaintiff's demand for possession violates the local rent control or eviction control ordinance [Paragraph 3.g.; see § 333.28[5][g]; see also Ch. 335, Landlord and Tenant: Rent Control].

- The plaintiff accepted the rent from the defendant to cover a period of time after the date the notice to quit expired [Paragraph 3.h.; see § 333.10[6]].

Check the box in Paragraph 3.i. if the defendant intends to assert any other affirmative defenses. Generally, a tenant may interpose any defense that directly relates to the issue of possession and which, if established, would result in the tenant's retention of the premises [see Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 633 n.19, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168] . For example, the defendant may assert as an affirmative defense that the plaintiff fraudulently acquired title to the premises from the defendant [see Asuncion v. Superior Court (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 141, 146-147, 166 Cal. Rptr. 306] , that the plaintiff's notice to quit or the manner of its service was defective [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1161, 1162], or that the plaintiff had failed to secure a certificate of occupancy as required by a local ordinance [see Gruzen v. Henry (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 515, 517-519, 148 Cal. Rptr. 573 (defense as going to issue of rent due); see also § 333.28].

Under Paragraph 3.j. briefly state the facts relating to any affirmative defense asserted in Paragraphs 3.a.-3.h. or 3.i. Identify each item separately by identifying the appropriate paragraph number. Check the appropriate box in Paragraph 3.j.(1) or (2) if the space in the form is not sufficient to set forth the facts supporting the affirmative defenses alleged and the statements are either fully set forth in the attachment or are continued on an attachment.

The fact pattern set out as an example in Attachment 3.j. of this form describes a situation where the defendant made repairs and deducted the costs of the repairs in conformance with the requirements of Civ. Code § 1942. Standard characteristics necessary for a dwelling to be deemed tenantable are described in Civ. Code § 1941.1. Depositing the rental payment in a bank account in the landlord's name and notifying the landlord of the deposit is a due offer of payment that keeps the tender alive and extinguishes the obligation to pay rent [see Civ. Code § 1500; Webb v. Jones

[g] Paragraph 4.a. (Premises Vacated)

Check the box following a. in Paragraph 4. if the defendant has vacated the premises, and state the date on which the premises were vacated. If possession of the property has been delivered to the lessor before trial or, if there is no trial, before judgment is entered, the case becomes an ordinary civil action in which the defendant may, by appropriate pleadings or amendments to pleadings, seek any affirmative relief, and assert all defenses, to which he or she is entitled [Civ. Code § 1952.3(a)(2); see § 333.30]. If a tenant vacates the premises and surrenders possession to the landlord before the complaint's being filed, then no action for unlawful detainer will lie even though the premises were not surrendered during the notice period [Briggs v. Electronic Memories & Magnetics Corp. (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 900, 906, 126 Cal. Rptr. 34] .

[h] Paragraph 4.b. (Excessive Fair Rental Value)

Check the box following b. in Paragraph 4. if the defendant claims that the fair rental value of the premises claimed in Paragraph 10. of the complaint is excessive, and explain the basis of this assertion. The explanation should show that the fair rental value alleged in the complaint is greater than the reasonable value of the use of the premises during the time of the alleged unlawful detainer [see Glouberman v. Coffey (1955) 292 P.2d 681] .

[i] Paragraph 4.c. (Other Statements)

Check the box following c. in Paragraph 4. if the defendant desires to allege, for example, other facts about the particular lease or rental agreement involved, other circumstances surrounding the alleged unlawful detainer, or information about any alleged holding over after a sale under an execution, mortgage, or trust deed.

[j] Paragraph 5.c. (Prayer--Attorney's Fees)

Check the box following c. in the prayer set out in Paragraph 5. if the defendant seeks to recover reasonable attorney's fees. Generally, attorney's fees are only available if provided for in the lease or rental agreement [see Civ. Code § 1717; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1021, 1177; see also § 333.80[7][w]]. However, attorney's fees may be available by statute in particular cases [see, e.g., Civ. Code § 798.85 (attorney's fees provided in action involving mobilehome tenancy)].

[k] Paragraph 5.d. (Prayer--Order to Make Repairs)

Check the box following d. in Paragraph 5. if the defendant is seeking an order to (1) make the plaintiff repair and correct any conditions that constitute a breach of the implied warranty of habitability and (2) reduce the monthly rent to a reasonable amount until the conditions are corrected. For a discussion of the breach of the warranty of habitability, see § 333.28[4].

[l] Paragraph 5.e. (Other Relief)

Check the box following e. in Paragraph 5. if the defendant requests any other relief in the answer. Different forms of relief, which the defendant may obtain by answer, may have been provided for in the lease or rental agreement. The defendant may also request here an allocation of any security deposit against any amount of rent found due if a credit was claimed in the Answer.

[m] Paragraph 6. (Number of Pages)

Check the box following Paragraph 6. to indicate the number of pages attached to the Answer and specify the number of pages attached.

[n] Paragraph 7. (Unlawful Detainer Assistants)

This Judicial Council Form Answer, like the Judicial Council Form Complaint [see § 333.80], Summons [see § 333.100], and Request/Counter-Request to Set Case for Trial [see § 333.106], requests information on unlawful detainer assistants [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6400-6415]. If the defendant did not receive advise or assistance, for compensation, from an unlawful detainer assistant in completing the form Answer, check the "did not" box in Paragraph 7. No other information is required. However, if the defendant received any help, advise, or assistance, for a fee, from an unlawful detainer assistance, check the "did" box and complete the information regarding the unlawful detainer assistant in Paragraph 7.a.-f. For a discussion of unlawful detainer assistants, see § 333.12[3].

[o] Signature

The answer must be signed by the defendant or his or her attorney [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446, 1166, 1177; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7]. There is a line for the signature near the bottom of page 2, above the verification. Each defendant for whom the answer is filed must be named in Item 1 of the Judicial Council Form Answer (Defendant's name) and must sign the answer unless his or her attorney signs.

[p] Verification

The answer must be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446, 1166(a)(1), 1177]. When the answer is verified by an attorney or any other person except one of the parties, that person must set forth in the affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) the reasons why it is not made by one of the parties [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446, 1177]. For forms of verification for use by an attorney or by a corporation or partnership which may be attached to the above complaint when appropriate, see Ch. 572, Verification .

[q] Recovery for "Rent Skimming"

An alternative form of relief, in the form of a cross complaint or separate action for damages under Civ. Code § 891(d), may be available to a residential tenant holding over after a private or judicial foreclosure sale, when the foreclosure sale resulted from "rent skimming," that is, a landlord's use of rental revenue, at any time during the first year period after acquiring the rental property, without first applying the revenue or an equivalent amount to the payments due on all mortgages and trust deeds encumbering that property [Civ. Code § 890(a)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is a notice of motion for use by a party who seeks to obtain a stay of unlawful detainer proceedings while the party is on active full timeduty or service with one of the branches of the United States armed forces, the National Guard, or the United States Military Reserve. Under the federal Servicemembers Civil Relief Act [50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.], the spouse, children, or other dependents of a person in military service may not be evicted from any premises occupied or intended to be occupied primarily as a residence and for which the agreed rental is not more than $2,400 per month (subject to adjustment for inflation), without leave of court [50 U.S.C. App. § 531(a); see 50 U.S.C. App. §§ 511 (definitions), 514, 516, 538 (additional persons protected)]. The court may stay the proceedings for up to 90 days, unless the court determines that justice and equity require a longer or shorter period of time, or adjust the obligations under the lease to preserve the interests of all parties [50 U.S.C. App. § 531(b)].

Under similar state law provisions [see Mil. & Vet. Code § 400 et seq.], the spouse, children, or other dependents of members of the National Guard called or ordered into active state or federal service and reservists of the United States Military Reserve who have been called to full-time active service or duty since September 11, 2001, may not be evicted until 30 days after the service member is released from active service or duty, except on leave of court granted on application therefor or granted in an action or proceeding affecting the right of possession [Mil. & Vet. Code § 406(a); see Mil. & Vet. Code § 400(a) ("service member" defined), (b) ("military service" defined)].

For discussion of the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act and the state law provisions applicable to National Guard and Military Reserve members, see § 333.12[12]. For discussion of law and motion practice in general, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

[3] Supporting Papers

A supporting memorandum is required to be served and filed with the notice of motion [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113]; for discussion and general forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities . A supporting affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) should also accompany the notice of motion.

[4] Notice

This motion should be made in the manner provided by law for civil actions in general [Code Civ. Proc. § 1010]. For discussion of law and motion practice in general, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

[5] Jurisdiction

The provisions of the federal Servicemembers Relief Act apply to judicial and administrative proceedings commenced in any state court or agency, with the exception of criminal proceedings [50 U.S.C. App. § 512(b)]. Anyapplication under the Act that is required to be made to a court in which no proceeding has already been commenced may be made to any court that would otherwise have jurisdiction over the matter [50 U.S.C. App. § 512(c)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is an illustrative reproduction of the Judicial Council approved form interrogatories [Judicial Council Form UD-106] for use in proceedings for unlawful detainer adopted under Code Civ. Proc. § 2033.710 (legislative directive that Judicial Council create form interrogatories) and is for use by either the plaintiff or the defendant to request that the opposing party respond to (answer) the interrogatories checked. The form has been illustratively filled in for a defendant who has made the denials and affirmative defense allegations as illustrated in § 333.110. Use of the form is optional and does not restrict the right of a party to propound additional interrogatories [Code Civ. Proc. § 2033.740].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The Judicial Council form interrogatories do not change existing law relating to interrogatories, nor do they affect a responding (answering) party's right to assert privileges [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010] or objections [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2030.240; see also § 1(b) of this form].

For a detailed discussion of interrogatories, as well as discovery proceedings generally, and forms for use in such proceedings, see Ch. 190, Depositions and Discovery .

[3] Filling in Form

[a] Block Heading: Identification of Attorney and Title of Court

In the first box of the block heading insert the name, address, telephone number, and State Bar number of the attorney for the propounding (asking) party. If the propounding party is representing himself or herself, insert only the party's name, address, and telephone number. Next, insert the party's name or, if the party is representing himself or herself, "In propria persona" or "In person" to the right of "Attorney For (Name)." In the next box, insert the county where the action has been filed.

[b] Block Heading: Title of Case

Fill in the short title of the case. The short title normally consists of the last name of the first plaintiff and the last name of the first defendant, separated by the abbreviation "v."

[c] Block Heading: Unlawful Detainer Assistants

This Judicial Council Form, like the Judicial Council Form Complaint [see § 333.80] and Answer [see § 333.110], requests information onunlawful detainer assistants [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6400-6415]. If the propounding (asking) party received advise or assistance, for compensation, from an unlawful detainer assistant in completing the Form Interrogatories, check the "did" box and complete the information regarding the unlawful detainer assistant. If the propounding party did not receive any assistance from an unlawful detainer assistant, check the "did not" box and no other information is required. For a discussion of unlawful detainer assistants, see § 333.12[3].

[d] Block Heading: Asking and Answering Parties

In the bottom block, type in the name of the asking party, the name of the answering party, and the set number of the interrogatories [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2030.060; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1000].

[e] Block Heading: Case Number

Insert the case number in the appropriate box in the caption as it appears in the complaint and answer.

[f] Choice of Interrogatories

The text of the interrogatories appears on the form. Each interrogatory is preceded by a blank square box and a number. Counsel should determine which of the interrogatories he or she wishes to ask (propound) and check the box before the appropriate number on the form. The individual interrogatories are grouped according to particular allegations, denials, or affirmative defenses made by the parties in the complaint and answer [see §§ 333.80 and 333.110]. Counsel may use these groupings to aid in choosing interrogatories that address the particular allegations and denials made by the parties in the case.

A party may propound any number of official form interrogatories, plus an additional 35 specially prepared interrogatories if desired [Code Civ. Proc. § 2030.030(a)]. If a party wishes to propound more than 35 specially prepared interrogatories, a declaration for additional discovery must be attached to each set of those interrogatories [Code Civ. Proc. § 2030.040].

[4] Time to Answer

There is a special time limit for answering interrogatories in unlawful detainer actions. The party to whom the interrogatories are propounded has five days from the date of service to respond, unless on motion of the propounding party the court has shortened the time for response [Code Civ. Proc. § 2030.260].

[5] Special Instructions for Answering (Responding) Party

In answering the interrogatories, the answering (responding) party is not limited to his or her own personal knowledge, but must furnish all information available to him or her or anyone acting on his or her behalf [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2030.220; see also § 3(c), (d) of this form].

Whenever an interrogatory may be answered by referring to a writing, the writing may be attached as an exhibit to the response and referred to in the response. If the writing has more than one page, the answer should refer to the page and section where the answer can be found [see § 3(e) of this form].

Whenever the address and phone number for the same person are requested in more than one interrogatory, the answering (responding) party need only furnish them in answering the first interrogatory asking for that information [see § 3(f) of this form]. Answers to the interrogatories must be signed under oath [Code Civ. Proc. § 2030.250].

[3] Contents of Judgment

Paragraph 1 of this form should be checked when the form is used for a default judgment in favor of plaintiff. For a declaration by plaintiff in support of a default judgment, see § 333.131A. Paragraph 2 should be checked if the form is being used for a judgment after trial by the court sitting without a jury. The following paragraphs must be completed in either case:

- Paragraph 3 (parties);

- Paragraph 4 (party entitled to possession);

- Paragraph 5 (judgment applies to all occupants of the premises) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 715.010, 1169, 1174.3; see also §§ 333.12[11], 333.14[4]]; and

- Paragraph 6 (amount and terms of judgment) [for discussion of holdover damages and rent, interest, statutory damages, and attorneys' fees, see § 333.13[13][e] -[j]].

Paragraph 7 must be checked if the judgment is conditional based on the plaintiff's breach of the agreement to provide habitable premises. For the Judicial Council form to attach when the judgment is conditional, see § 333.131[1].

2. On _____ [date], a judgment was rendered in this proceeding in favor of plaintiff _____ [name] against _____ [petitioner or defendant _____ (name)] and duly entered in _____ [specify, e.g., Volume _____, page

_____, of the Judgment Book] of this court. The judgment ordered that plaintiff have and recover from defendant possession of the premises described in the complaint[, recover unpaid rent due in the total sum of $_____, together with interest on each unpaid installment at the rate of ten percent per annum from the date each installment became due,] and declared the lease under which the _____ [petitioner or defendant] held tenancy of the property forfeited.

3. The forfeiture was declared for the reason that defendant had _____ [specify, e.g., breached its covenant to pay increases in the base rent specified in the lease resulting from subsequent periodic appraisals of the property's value exclusive of the improvements as alleged below].

4. Unless relief from forfeiture is granted, petitioner will suffer [enormous] hardship in that _____ [specify in detail facts showing hardship, e.g., as the result of a bona fide dispute between the parties, the judicial resolution of which is now pending in the _____ Court of _____, and petitioner's honest mistake of law as to its right to withhold payment of the additional disputed rent, petitioner will have lost its entire investment of $1,800,000, which will redound to the immediate benefit of the plaintiff in this action, and, without the future receipt of rent from its sublessees, petitioner will be compelled to default on its obligations to pay the additional $800,000 contracted for, all as shown by the following facts:

[Set forth, in successively lettered subparagraphs, the facts giving rise to the hardship, for example:]

a. The lease in this action is a ground lease by the terms of which plaintiff leased the property to petitioner for a term of 60 years, commencing on _____ [date], and terminating on _____ [date], at the base annual rental of $15,000, which rent was to remain firm for the first five years of the lease;

b. The purpose of the lease was to allow petitioner to construct a shopping center on the property and sublease the various units constructed;

c. During the first five years of the lease, petitioner had the shopping center constructed at a cost in excess of $1,800,000 and has entered into contracts for further improvements on the property obligating petitioner to pay an additional sum of approximately $800,000;

d. On or about _____ [date], during the lease's third year, petitioner commenced entering into subleases with retail stores and establishments for the rental of the various stores and units constructed;

e. Under the lease's terms, the base annual rental that petitioner was required to pay plaintiff was subject to adjustment, at plaintiff's option, at the end of each five-year period based on any increase in the appraised value of the real property exclusive of the improvements;

f. Paragraph _____ of the lease prescribed the procedure for ascertaining the appraised value, in substance as follows: plaintiff in this action was first to obtain an appraisal and submit it to petitioner; if petitioner disagreed with the appraisal it was to appoint an appraiser; if the two appraisers were unable to agree, they were to select a third appraiser, and the three were to fix the appraised value, the majority prevailing;

g. At the end of the first five-year period, plaintiff and petitioner undertook actions in purported compliance with the lease provisions for appraisal, which resulted in a majority appraisal of $_____, which would have required petitioner to pay plaintiff an annual rent of $16,000 in addition to the prescribed basic ground rent of $15,000 per year;

h. Petitioner disputed the propriety and validity of the appraisal and procedures employed by the parties and initiated a declaratory relief action to declare the appraisal invalid, to declare the standards to govern reconsideration of rent increases by the parties under the lease, to appoint a neutral appraiser, and to make a new appraisal in accordance with the lease and standards declared by the court; plaintiff filed an answer to the complaint in which it admitted the existence of a dispute between the parties, denied the substance of the petitioner's allegations of impropriety and invalidity of the appraisal, asserted the validity of that appraisal, and prayed for a declaration in accordance with its claims and contentions;

i. Petitioner at all times continued paying the basic ground rent due under the lease but in the mistaken but honest belief that it was not legally required to do so long as the declaratory relief action was pending did not pay the additional rent based on the subsequent appraisal;

j. Plaintiff in this action subsequently served on petitioner a three-day notice to pay the additional rent or quit the premises in which plaintiff stated his/her election to declare the lease's forfeiture and, on petitioner's failure to do either, filed this proceeding for unlawful detainer;

k. Petitioner's special demurrer to the complaint on the ground of another action pending was overruled, and judgment was rendered as alleged above.

[CONTINUE]

5. Petitioner is ready, willing, and able to _____ [specify, e.g., pay in full all rent due under the lease and to perform in full all conditions and covenants of the lease [, including the covenant to _____ (specify, e.g., pay the increased rent based on the appraisal as determined by a majority of the appraisers, together with interest thereon as ordered by the court), which defendant was found to have breached].

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays for an order relieving _____ [it or defendant] against the lease's forfeiture and restoring it to its former estate in the premises.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a form of petition for use by a tenant, subtenant, mortgagee of the term, or any other person interested in the term's continuance to secure relief from a judgment declaring the lease or rental agreement forfeited [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1179]. The fact situation illustrated in this form is adapted from the case of Childs v. Eltinge (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 843, 845-854, 105 Cal. Rptr. 864 .

[3] Verification Required

The above petition must be signed and verified [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446, 1177, 1179, 2015.5; see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7].

[4] Procedure

In cases of hardship, the court may relieve a tenant against a forfeiture of a lease or rental agreement, whether written or oral and whether or not the tenancy has terminated, and restore the tenant to his or her former estate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1179]. The court has the discretion to relieve any person against forfeiture on its own motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 1179]. An application for relief against forfeiture may be made at any time before restoration of the premises to the landlord [Code Civ. Proc. § 1179]. The application may be made by a tenant or subtenant, or a mortgagee of the term, or any person interested in the term's continuance. The application must be made by petition, setting forth the facts on which the relief is sought, and be verified by the applicant. Notice of the application, with a copy of the petition, must be served at least five days before the hearing on the plaintiff in the judgment, who may appear and contest the application [Code Civ. Proc. § 1179]. Alternatively, a person appearing without an attorney may make the application orally, if the plaintiff either is present and has an opportunity to contest the application, or has been given ex parte notice of the hearing and the purpose of the oral application. In no case may the application or motion be granted except on condition that full payment of rent due, or full performance of conditions or covenants stipulated, so far as practicable, be made [Code Civ. Proc. § 1179].

The application for an order under Code Civ. Proc. § 1179 is statutorily defined as a motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 1003; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1177].

The statute does not specify whether the petition should be filed in the main clerk's office or with the courtroom clerk of the judge who rendered the judgment, the procedure for securing a hearing date, or where the petition will be heard. Consequently, counsel should check local court rules and practice to determine the procedure to be followed for filing the petition, securing a hearing date, and having the matter heard.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a form of order for use when the application for relief from that portion of the judgment declaring the lease or rental agreement forfeited is granted [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1179]. The order granting relief from forfeiture is required to be conditioned on full payment of rent due or full performance of conditions or covenants stipulated, so far as the same is practicable [Code Civ. Proc. § 1179].

[3] Factors in Granting Application

The granting or denying of an application for relief from forfeiture of a lease under Code Civ. Proc. § 1179 rests in the trial court's discretion [Hignell v. Gebala (1949) 90 Cal. App. 2d 61, 70, 202 P.2d 378 ; Olympic Auditorium, Inc. v. Superior Court (1927) 81 Cal. App. 283, 285, 253 P. 944 ; Matthews v. Digges (1920) 45 Cal. App. 561, 566, 188 P. 283] . The finding of hardship alone is an insufficient ground to grant relief from a lease's forfeiture under Code Civ. Proc. § 1179; rather, the court is required to balance the equities between parties [Olympic Auditorium, Inc. v. Superior Court (1927) 81 Cal. App. 283, 285-286, 253 P. 944] . Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1179, the court, in balancing equities, should take into consideration the circumstances of the case, any hardship to the lessee from forfeiture, any hardship to the lessor from relieving the lessee from forfeiture, and the willful or other character of the lessee's breach and then use its best discretion in determining whether to grant relief [Thrifty Oil Co. v. Batarse (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 770, 777-778, 220 Cal. Rptr. 285 ; Hignell v. Gebala (1949) 90 Cal. App. 2d 61, 70-71, 202 P.2d 378] .

An order granting relief from forfeiture is permitted to impose such conditions as the court deems equitable in addition to those specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1179 [Olympic Auditorium, Inc. v. Superior Court (1927) 81 Cal. App. 283, 287, 253 P. 944] .

Proc. § 415.46* [Code Civ. Proc. § 1174.3(a); for discussion of prejudgment claim of right to possession, see §§ 333.13[4] and 333.105]. [3] Service and Presentation of Form

The form is actually served or posted by the levying officer at the premises at the time the writ of possession is served [see Code Civ. Proc. § 715.010(c)]. It must then be filled out by any affected occupant and presented to the levying officer at the office of the levying officer or at the premises at the time of the eviction [*Code Civ. Civ. Code § 1714(a) provides that everyone is responsible, not only for the result of his or her willful acts, but also for an injury occasioned to another by his or her want of ordinary care or skill in the management of his or her property or person, except so far as the latter has, willfully or by want of ordinary care, brought the injury on himself or herself.

In Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561 , the California Supreme Court departed from the traditional rules governing the liability of the owners and occupiers of land. It held that Civ. Code § 1714(a), rather than plaintiff's status as a trespasser, licensee, or invitee, controlled the liability of tenants for injuries to their social guests, even though this status could have some bearing on the question of liability [Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 119, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561] . The Court stated that, in the absence of a statutory provision declaring an exception to the fundamental principles enunciated by Civ. Code § 1714, no such exception should be made unless clearly supported by public policy [Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 112, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561] . It decided that no public policy required that an exception be carved out of the statute for tenants in possession when they were sued by their guests [see Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 112-120, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561] .

The California Supreme Court has subsequently held that the rule of Rowland v. Christian applies to the landlord's liability to the tenant and that the landlord owes a tenant a duty of reasonable care in providing and maintaining the rented premises in a safe condition [Becker v. IRM Corp. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 454, 467, 213 Cal. Rptr. 213, 698 P.2d 116 , overruled on other grounds, Peterson v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1185, 1188-1189, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836, 899 P.2d 905 ; see § 334.11[1]]. In Becker, the Court stated that any departure from the fundamental principles of liability under Civ. Code § 1714(a) involves the balancing of a number of considerations, as set forth in Rowland. These include: the foreseeability of harm to the plaintiff, the degree of certainty that the plaintiff suffered injury, the closeness of the connection between the defendant's conduct and the injury suffered, the moral blame attached to the defendant's conduct, the policy of preventing future harm, the extent of the burden to the defendant and consequences to the community of imposing a duty to exercise care with resulting liability for breach, and the availability, cost, and prevalence of insurance for the risk involved [Becker v. IRM Corp. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 454, 467, 213 Cal. Rptr. 213, 698 P.2d 116 , overruled on other grounds, Peterson v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1185, 1188-1189, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836, 899 P.2d 905] . This holding appears to remain intact despite the California Supreme Court's subsequent decision overruling Becker in the area imposing strict products liability on a landlord for injuries resulting from a defect in the leased premises [see Peterson v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1185, 1188-1189, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836, 899 P.2d 905 , discussed in § 334.11[1]].

Courts have therefore held that a landlord, in caring for his or her property, must act toward his or her tenant as a reasonable person under all of the circumstances, including the likelihood of injury, the probable seriousness of injury, the burden of reducing or avoiding the risk, and his or her degree of control over the risk-creating defect [Becker v. IRM Corp. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 454, 468, 213 Cal. Rptr. 213, 698 P.2d 116 , overruled on other grounds, Peterson v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1185, 1188-1189, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836, 899 P.2d 905 ; Portillo v. Aiassa (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1135, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 755 ; Golden v. Conway (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 948, 955, 128 Cal. Rptr. 69 ; Brennan v. Cockrell Investments, Inc. (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 796, 800-801, 111 Cal. Rptr. 122 ; see Alcaraz v. Vece (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1149, 1158-1159, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 448, 929 P.2d 1239] . The landlord's duty is determined by these general factors; the former common law rule, under which a landlord was under no duty to maintain the leased premises free from defects except in certain exceptional circumstances [see Burks v. Blackman (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 715, 718, 344 P.2d 301] , has apparently been abrogated by the Supreme Court's decision in Becker.

For further discussion of the liability of a property owner for injuries caused by defective conditions in the property, see Ch. 421, Premises Liability . For further discussion of a landlord's liability for negligent failure to maintain the rented premises in safe condition, see Levy, Golden, and Sacks, California Torts, ch. 16, Landlord-Tenant Tort Liabilities (Matthew Bender).

[2] Duty to Inspect Premises for Defects

In applying the general considerations discussed in [1], above, courts have found that landlords have owed specific duties to their tenants in various factual situations. For example, in Becker v. IRM Corp. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 454, 213 Cal. Rptr. 213, 698 P.2d 116 , the California Supreme Court held that a landlord may be reasonably expected, in the exercise of ordinary care, to inspect the rented premises to determine whether or not they are safe [Becker v. IRM Corp. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 454, 468, 213 Cal. Rptr. 213, 698 P.2d 116 , overruled on other grounds, Peterson v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1185, 1188-1189, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836, 899 P.2d 905 ; see § 334.11[1]]. The Court therefore reversed a summary judgment entered in the landlord's favor in a case in which the tenant was injured by the shattering of a glass shower door that was not tempered. The Court held that the landlord had a duty to inspect for dangerous conditions in the exercise of due care, and that lack of awareness of the dangerous condition does not necessarily preclude liability [Becker v. IRM Corp. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 454, 468-469, 213 Cal. Rptr. 213, 698 P.2d 116 , overruled on other grounds, Peterson v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1185, 1188-1189, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836, 899 P.2d 905 ; see § 334.11[1]]. However, the Court noted that the duty to inspect should charge the landlord only with those matters that would have been disclosed by a reasonable inspection, and that whether or not a reasonable inspection would have disclosed a particular danger is an issue of fact [Becker v. IRM Corp. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 454, 469, 213 Cal. Rptr. 213, 698 P.2d 116 , overruled on other grounds, Peterson v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1185, 1188-1189, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836, 899 P.2d 905 ; see § 334.11[1]].

In another case, the court held that a landlord was liable to a deliveryman who was attacked by a guard dog kept on the premises by the landlord's commercial tenant [Portillo v. Aiassa (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1132, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 755] . Before renewing the tenant's lease nearly a year before the attack on plaintiff, defendant had not conducted an inspection of the premises, but knew that the tenant was keeping the dog at the store. A sign in the store warned of a guard dog on the premises and a copy of a newspaper article about the dog's recent attack on a robber and its "rotten disposition" was posted near the door of the store [Portillo v. Aiassa (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1132, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 755] . The court held that a landlord owes a duty of care to third parties injured by a dangerous condition, including a tenant's dog, whether or not the landlord has actual knowledge that the dog was dangerous, if the landlord would have discovered the existence of the dangerous condition by exercise of reasonable care [Portillo v. Aiassa (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1134, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 755] . The court noted that defendant would have learned about the dog's dangerous propensities merely by asking about the dog's history and training, why the sign had been posted, or whether the newspaper article was accurate [Portillo v. Aiassa (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1135, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 755] . The court also distinguished the case from earlier cases finding that a landlord had no duty to inspect rented premises for the purpose of discovering the existence of a tenant's dangerous dog and would not be liable to third parties injured by the dog unless the landlord had previous knowledge of the dog's vicious nature [see, e.g., Lundy v. California Realty (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 813, 821, 216 Cal. Rptr. 575 ; Uccello v. Laudenslayer (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 504, 514, 118 Cal. Rptr. 741] , because those cases involved family pets kept in single-family residences. The risk of injury from a guard dog in a store open to the public is far greater; moreover, although they may be necessary in some neighborhoods, guard dogs, unlike family pets, cannot be classified as "an important part of our way of life" [Portillo v. Aiassa (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1137-1138, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 755] . Finally, the court rejected defendant's argument that imposition of a duty to inspect premises for dangerous animals would make a landlord strictly liable. The court notedthat there are numerous scenarios in which a landlord exercising reasonable care to inspect would not necessarily discover the animal's presence (for example, if the tenant concealed the animal) and therefore would not be held liable for injuries caused by the animals [Portillo v. Aiassa (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1138, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 755] .

[3] Action on Implied Warranty of Habitability

The California Supreme Court has established an implied warranty of habitability in residential leases [see Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 623-631, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168] . The warranty was established as a defense in an unlawful detainer action. Thereafter, a superior court appellate department held that a cause of action for damages could be stated in contract for the reduced value of the premises arising from breach of the warranty [Quevedo v. Braga (1977) 140 Cal. Rptr. 143 ; see Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 903, 916-917, 162 Cal. Rptr. 194 (recognized this cause of action)]. The next step was the recognition by a court of appeal that a tenant could state causes of action in tort for damages for breach of the implied warranty of habitability if the breach caused plaintiff discomfort and annoyance, damage to personal property, and emotional distress [Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 903, 913-926, 162 Cal. Rptr. 194] . It therefore appears that a tenant can state a cause of action against a landlord for breach of the implied warranty of habitability causing personal injuries to the tenant.

[4] Landlord's Obligation to Install Locking Mechanisms

On and after July 1, 1988, a landlord of a building intended for human habitation must, among other security measures, install and maintain in operable condition deadbolt locks on doors of dwellings and locking devices on windows [Civ. Code § 1941.3(a)]. The tenant is responsible for notifying the landlord of any deadbolt or other locking devices that become inoperable, and the landlord must correct the deficiency within a reasonable time [Civ. Code § 1941.3(b)]. By the statute's express terms, a landlord's violation of the statutory duties does not broaden, limit, or otherwise affect the duty of care owed by a landlord in accordance with existing law, including any duty that may exist under Civ. Code § 1714, discussed in [1], above [Civ. Code § 1941.3(d)].

[5] Duty to Inspect on Entry of Judgment of Possession

A landlord may not ignore a defaulting tenant's possible neglect of property. Thus, a duty to inspect attaches upon entry of the judgment of possession in an unlawful detainer action and includes reasonable periodic inspections thereafter [Stone v. Center Trust Retail Properties, Inc. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 608, 613, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 556]. On entry of judgment, a holdover tenant's incentive to maintain a property dissipates because continued maintenance likely benefits only the landlord. To protect the public, the incentive to maintain the property must not be an orphan abandoned by a tenant and ignored by a shortly reoccupying landlord. Entry of judgment provides a workable bright line for the parties to know where responsibility lies, and aligns that responsibility with the parties' reordered incentives [Stone v. Center Trust Retail Properties, Inc. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 608, 613, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 556]. In Stone v. Center Trust Retail Properties, Inc., the court held that a landlord who obtained a judgment of possession in unlawful detainer proceedings against a restaurant but allowed the restaurant to continue operating, at which time a customer was injured, could be liable for the customer's injuries. The landlord had a duty to inspect the premises on entry of judgment and at reasonable intervals thereafter [Stone v. Center Trust Retail Properties, Inc. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 608, 614-615, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 556].

§ 334.11 Strict Liability

[1] For Latent Defects in Leased Premises

Before 1995 a landlord engaged in the business of leasing dwellings was strictly liable in tort for injuries resulting from a latent defect in the premises if the defect existed at the time the premises were let to the tenant [Becker v. IRM Corp. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 454, 464, 213 Cal. Rptr. 213, 698 P.2d 116 (tenant injured by shattering of shower door made of untempered glass)]. The Court in Becker held that because landlords are an integral part of the enterprise of producing and marketing rental housing, the cost of injuries resulting from latent defects must be borne by them rather than by the injured persons who are powerless to protect themselves [see Becker v. IRM Corp. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 454, 466-467, 213 Cal. Rptr. 213, 698 P.2d 116] .

However, the California Supreme Court subsequently overruled its decision in Becker imposing strict products liability on landlords for injuries to their tenants caused by a defect in the leased premises [Peterson v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1185, 1188-1189, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836, 899 P.2d 905] . In Peterson, the Court found that the Becker decision constituted an unwarranted extension of the products liability doctrine and that landlords, simply by leasing residential dwellings, should not be included within the class of persons who properly may be held strictly liable under this doctrine [Peterson v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1185, 1190, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836, 899 P.2d 905] . The Court recognized that the Becker decision, judicially engrafting products liability principles onto the law governing landlord liability and holding landlords strictly liable for injuries caused by defects in leased premises, represented a minority view that was not gaining acceptance [Peterson v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1185, 1193-1195, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836, 899 P.2d 905] . In addition, the Court found that to impose liability on landlords without fault was not in accordance with accepted principles and that its reasoning imposing strict liability was flawed in several respects [see Peterson v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1185, 1197-1200, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836, 899 P.2d 905] . The decision in Peterson applies retroactively [McCarthy v. Martinson (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 632, 634, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 149] .

It should be noted, however, that the Court in Peterson specifically did not absolve landlords of all potential responsibility for injuries, and that landlords may still be held liable under general tort principles for injuries resulting from defects in their premises if they have breached the applicable standard of care [Peterson v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1185,1210, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836, 899 P.2d 905] . In addition, a tenant may still pursue a cause of action for strict products liability against the manufacturer, distributor, or retailer of a defective product that causes injury [Peterson v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1185, 1210, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836, 899 P.2d 905] .

In addition to the Supreme Court's decision in Peterson, a court of appeal has held that the doctrine of strict liability does not apply to landlords of commercial or industrial property. The policy placing the burden on residential landlords of maintaining safe premises is not applicable to commercial or industrial landlords [Muro v. Superior Court (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1089, 1096-1097, 229 Cal. Rptr. 383] . Muro relied on the fact that Becker, discussed above, phrased its holding to apply to landlords "engaged in the business of leasing dwellings" [see also Golden v. Conway (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 948, 961-962, 128 Cal. Rptr. 69 (rule applied to landlord "engaged in the business of leasing apartments and appurtenant commercial premises"); Fakhoury v. Magner (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 58, 64, 101 Cal. Rptr. 473 (rule applied to landlord who furnished at least five apartments; court noted that strict products liability doctrine does not apply to casual or isolated transactions)].

For further discussion of the liability of a property owner for injuries caused by defective conditions in the property, see Ch. 421, Premises Liability .

[2] Landlord Who Leases Furnishings

Except as otherwise agreed by the lessor and the lessee in lease agreements for a term of more than 20 days, personal property let to a renter must be put into a condition fit for its intended purpose or use [Civ. Code § 1955]. Relying in part on this provision, a court of appeal has held that a landlord is strictly liable for injuries to a tenant resulting from the tenant's proper use of a defective furnishing within a furnished apartment [Fakhoury v. Magner (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 58, 62-64, 101 Cal. Rptr. 473] .

29-334 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 334.12

§ 334.12 Exculpatory Provisions Invalid

All contracts that have for their object, directly or indirectly, the exemption of anyone from responsibility for his or her own fraud, willful injury to the person or property of another, or violation of law, whether willful or negligent, are against the policy of the law [Civ. Code § 1668]. Thus, an exculpatory clause in a lease whereby the tenant waives all claims against the lessor from any causes is invalid under Civ. Code § 1668 [Halliday v. Greene (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 482, 487-488, 53 Cal. Rptr. 267 ; see Henrioulle v. Marin Ventures, Inc. (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 512, 518-519, 143 Cal. Rptr. 247, 573 P.2d 465 (holding exculpatory clause in residential lease executed before 1976 to be invalid under Civ. Code § 1668)]. In addition, any provision of a lease or rental agreement of a dwelling executed on or after January 1, 1976, by which the lessee agrees to modify or waive his or her right to have the landlord exercise a duty of care to prevent personal injury or personal property damage where that duty is imposed by law, is void as contrary to public policy [Civ. Code § 1953(a)(5), (c)].

For an exculpatory clause to be construed as precluding liability for "active" or "affirmative" negligence, there must be express and unequivocal language in the agreement precluding such liability. A clause that seeks to limit liability generally without mentioning negligence will be construed to shield a party only for passive negligence, not for active negligence [Burnett v. Chimney Sweep, L.L.C. (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1057, 1066, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 562] . Thus, an exculpatory clause in a commercial lease that shielded the landlord from liability for property damage or personal injury, but did not mention negligence, was construed to shield the landlord only from passive negligence [Burnett v. Chimney Sweep, L.L.C. (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1057, 1066-1067, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 562] . In that case, the landlord was actively negligent in refusing to remediate problems caused by excessive moisture and mold infestation on the leased premises [Burnett v. Chimney Sweep, L.L.C. (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1057, 1067-1068, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 562] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Suing a Landlord for Damages

29-334 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 334.13

§ 334.13 Landlord's Duty to Protect Tenants From Criminal Conduct by Third Parties

Landlords owe a duty to their tenants to protect them from reasonably foreseeable risks, including the risk of criminal conduct by third parties [see, e.g., Ann M. v. Pacific Plaza Shopping Center (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 666, 675, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 137, 863 P.2d 207 ; Frances T. v. Village Green Owners Ass'n (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 490, 499-503, 229 Cal. Rptr. 456, 723 P.2d 573] . If the risk is not reasonably foreseeable, there is no duty and no liability. For example, defendants who rented a house to their son were not liable for the injuries suffered by a visitor to the house, whom the son accidentally shot while the son was under the influence of alcohol. Although defendants knew their son had a drinking problem and kept firearms in the house, plaintiff's injury was not reasonably foreseeable because there was no evidence that the son had ever harmed anyone due to either his drinking problem or his possession of firearms and no evidence that the son handled firearms unsafely while drunk [Sturgeon v. Curnutt (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 301, 307, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 498] . Although the combination of drinking and firearms raises the logical possibility of harm to visitors, the court found that nothing put defendants on notice that visitors to the premises were in danger, and therefore they had no duty of care to protect plaintiff from injury [Sturgeon v. Curnutt (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 301, 308, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 498] .

The duty to protect tenants from the risk of criminal conduct by third parties is a duty to safeguard the tenants' personal safety [see, e.g., Frances T. v. Village Green Owners Ass'n (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 490, 499-503, 229 Cal. Rptr. 456, 723 P.2d 573 (tenant of condominium unit assaulted and raped)], not the safety of their property. A commercial landlord owes no duty to safeguard the property of its tenants from even reasonably foreseeable criminal activity by third parties, because tenants are in the best position to take steps to protect their own property, insurance is available to tenants to cover this risk, and holding landlords liable would place an onerous financial burden on landlords (which would eventually be passed on to their tenants) [Rotman v. Maclin Markets, Inc. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1709, 1715, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130 (owner of outdoor market not liable for theft of jewelry from tenant's stand); Royal Neckwear Co. v. Century City, Inc. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1146, 1149-1151, 252 Cal. Rptr. 810 (owner of mall not liable for burglaries of tenant's store)].

Landlords, including mobilehome park owners, ordinarily have no duty to reject prospective tenants they believe, or have reason to believe, are gang members. To recognize such a duty would tend to encourage arbitrary housing discrimination and would place landlords in the untenable situation of facing potential liability whichever choice they make about a prospective tenant. A residential tenant's behavior and known criminal associations may, in some circumstances, create such a high level of foreseeable danger to others that the landlord is obliged to take measures to remove the tenant from the premises or bear a portion of the legal responsibility for injuries the tenant subsequently causes. However, in an action against a mobilehome park by a resident who was shot during an altercation by gang members living across the street, the facts known to park management did not make a violent gang confrontation so extraordinarily foreseeable as to justify imposition of a duty to undertake eviction proceedings [Castaneda v. Olsher (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 1205, 1216-1218, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 99, 162 P.3d 610] .

§ 334.14 Wrongful Eviction

A tenant who is wrongfully evicted by a landlord may recover damages for the eviction, regardless of whether the eviction is actual or constructive [Pierce v. Nash (1954) 126 Cal. App. 2d 606, 612-615, 272 P.2d 938 (constructive eviction); Saferian v. Baer (1930) 105 Cal. App. 238, 243, 287 P. 142 (actual eviction)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Wrongful Evictions in Cities With Rent Control Ordinances. The most common type of wrongful eviction suit is in cities with rent control ordinances with vacancy decontrol when the landlord has given a notice of termination that contains allegedly false grounds (such as the landlord's intent to move into the unit himself or herself) and the tenant vacated and the landlord rented the premises. By Myron Moskovitz

§ 334.15 Intentional Infliction of Mental Distress

One suffering mental anguish and pain or physical injury as a proximate result of a wrongful eviction may waive the breach of contract and sue in tort [Richardson v. Pridmore (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 124, 129, 217 P.2d 113] , including an action for intentional infliction of mental distress [see Emden v. Vitz (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 313, 318-319, 198 P.2d 696] . A tenant can also recover damages from a landlord for intentional infliction of mental distress caused by the landlord's retaliatory eviction [Aweeka v. Bonds (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 278, 281-282, 97 Cal. Rptr. 650] .

§ 334.16 Conversion

[1] In General

Conversion is the unwarranted interference by a defendant with the plaintiff's property from which injury results [Eichhorn v. De La Cantera (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 50, 58, 255 P.2d 70] . A landlord's taking possession of and using the personal property belonging to a tenant constitutes conversion. It is not necessary that the tenant be the owner of the property. It is sufficient if the tenant had actual possession at the time of the landlord's act [Igauye v. Howard (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 122, 126-127, 249 P.2d 558] .

Refusal of one in possession of real property to permit the owner of chattels left on the property to remove his or her goods from the premises may be a conversion. If the owner of the real estate appropriated the goods to his or her own use in defiance of the plaintiff's rights, it is a conversion. However, the mere failure to deliver the goods is not such a serious interference with the owner's dominion as to require the owner to pay the full value of the goods. The removal of another's property from the premises and storage of the property is not a conversion [Zaslow v. Kroenert (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 541, 550-551, 176 P.2d 1] .

It is essential that the plaintiff plead and prove defendant's intention to convert the personal property and exercise ownership over it or an intention to prevent the owner from taking possession of his or her property [Zaslow v. Kroenert (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 541, 550, 176 P.2d 1] . The fact that a tenant is in arrears in the payment of rent does not justify the landlord's exercise of dominion over the tenant's personal property [Haydell v. Silva (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 20, 24-25, 19 Cal. Rptr. 705] .

For further discussion as well as forms related to conversion, see Ch. 150, Conversion .

[2] Damages

Damages for converting personal property are presumed to be [Civ. Code § 3336]:

- The value of the property at the time of the conversion, with the interest from that time, or an amount sufficient to indemnify the party injured for the loss that is the natural, reasonable, and proximate result of the wrongful act complained of, and that a proper degree of prudence on his or her part would not have averted; and

- A fair compensation for the time and money properly expended in pursuit of the property.

[3] No Demand Required

When a landlord wrongfully reenters, no demand by the tenant is necessary as a prerequisite to the accrual of a cause of action for damages for conversion of personal property [Haydell v. Silva (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 20, 24, 19 Cal. Rptr. 705] .

[4] Trespass Distinguished

If there is no substantial interference with possession or the right to use personal property, the tenant has a cause of action only for trespass and may recover only the actual damages due to injury to the personal property or loss of the property's use, rather than the full value of the chattels, which could be recovered for conversion [Jordan v. Talbot (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 597, 610, 12 Cal. Rptr. 488, 361 P.2d 20] .

§ 334.17 Willful Action by Landlord

[1] Termination of Utility Service

A landlord is prohibited from willfully causing, directly or indirectly, with the intent to terminate the occupancy under a lease or other tenancy or estate at will, however created, of property used by a tenant as his or her residence, the interruption or termination of any utility service furnished the tenant whether or not the utility service is under the landlord's control [Civ. Code § 789.3(a)]. This prohibition against terminating utility service is applicable to a temporary or occasional residence as well as to a permanent residence [Otanez v. Blue Skies Mobile Home Park (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 1521, 1525, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 210] . The services include, but are not limited to, water, heat, light, electricity, gas, telephone, elevator, or refrigeration [Civ. Code § 789.3(a)]. In addition, a landlord is prohibited from willfully [Civ. Code § 789.3(b)]:

- Preventing the tenant from gaining reasonable access to the property by changing the locks or using a bootlock or by any other similar method or device;

- Removing outside doors or windows; or

- Removing from the premises the tenant's personal property, the furnishings, or any other items without the prior written consent of the tenant except when done in accordance with the procedure set forth in Civ. Code §§ 1980-1991 (disposition of personal property remaining on premises at termination of tenancy).

Civ. Code § 789.3(b) does not prevent the lawful eviction of a tenant by appropriate legal authorities, nor does it apply to occupancies defined by Civ. Code § 1940(b) (exceptions to term "persons who hire") [Civ. Code § 789.3(b)].

Any landlord who violates Civ. Code § 789.3 is liable to the tenant in a civil action for all of the following [Civ. Code § 789.3(c)]:

- The tenant's actual damages; and

- An amount not to exceed $100 for each day or part of a day the landlord remains in violation of Civ. Code § 789.3. However, in no event may less than $250 be awarded for each separate cause of action. In determining the amount of this award, the court must consider proof of such matters as justice may require. Subsequent or repeated violations, which are not committed contemporaneously with the initial violation, are treated as separate causes of action and are subject to a separate award of damages.

Tenant, as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 789.3, means all the occupants of a rental unit. Therefore, the penalties are effectively $100 per rental unit [Kinney v. Vaccari (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 348, 357-358, 165 Cal. Rptr. 787, 612 P.2d 877] .

In any action under Civ. Code § 789.3(c), the court awards reasonable attorney's fees to the prevailing party. Additionally, in any such action the tenant may seek appropriate injunctive relief to prevent continuing or further violation of the provisions of Civ. Code § 789.3 during the pendency of the action. The remedy provided by Civ. Code § 789.3 is not exclusive and does not preclude the tenant from pursuing any other remedy that he or she may have under any other provision of law [Civ. Code § 789.3(d)].

The reference in Civ. Code § 789.3(a) to "willful" interruption or termination of utility service means intentional interruption or termination of service. The landlord's knowledge or ignorance of the statute would be immaterial [Hale v. Morgan (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 388, 395-397, 149 Cal. Rptr. 375, 584 P.2d 512 (no violation of constitutional equal-protection guaranty)].

In applying the penalty provision in Civ. Code § 789.3(c), a court may not do the following [Hale v. Morgan (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 388, 397-407, 149 Cal. Rptr. 375, 584 P.2d 512 (reversing and remanding for reassessment of penalty); see Kinney v. Vaccari (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 348, 352-356, 165 Cal. Rptr. 787, 612 P.2d 877 (penalties of $100 per day per rental unit for 60 days for total of $36,000 is not disproportionate when landlord's actions were willful and egregious and tenants were reasonable in remaining in premises without utilities for 60 days)]:

- Cumulate by counting any day when the tenant was not actually "deprived" of utility service, such as any day when the tenant could have restored service on his or her own initiative by some reasonable means (if possible) or any day when the tenant was not actually occupying the premises; and

- Apply the penalty provision so that the total penalty is disproportionate in the circumstances.

[2] Nonpayment of Utilities

A tenant who has made a payment to a utility pursuant to Pub. Util. Code § 777, 777.1, 10009, 10009.1, 12822, 12822.1, 16481, or 16481.1 may deduct the payment from rent as provided in each section [Civ. Code § 1942.2]. In general, these Public Utility Code sections provide that when a landlord is the utility customer for individually metered service and the account is in arrears, the utility will give notice directly to the affected occupant in English and specified languages [see Civ. Code § 1932], with the opportunity to become the account customer, bringing the account up to date, before individual utility service is terminated [see, e.g., Pub. Util. Code § 777].

For a form of affirmative defense, see § 334.118.

[3] Menacing Acts

A tenant is entitled to a civil penalty of up to $2,000 for each act of a landlord made for the purpose of influencing the tenant to vacate a dwelling, if the act constitutes [Civ. Code § 1940.2(a), (b)]:

- Theft or extortion [see Pen. Code §§ 484(a), 518].

- The use or threatened use of force, threats, or menacing conduct that constitutes a course of conduct that interferes with the tenant's right to quiet enjoyment of the premises and would create an apprehension of harm in a reasonable person. The tenant is not required to be actually or constructively evicted to obtain relief [Civ. Code § 1940.2(a)(3)].

- A significant and intentional violation of the statutory requirements governing the landlord's entry into the premises [see Civ. Code § 1954].

The action may be brought in small claims court [Civ. Code § 1940.2(b)].

However, the following do not constitute violations of these provisions [Civ. Code § 1940.2(c)]:

- An oral or written warning notice, given in good faith, regarding conduct by a tenant, occupant, or guest that violates, may violate, or has violated the applicable rental agreement, rules, regulations, lease, or laws.

- An oral or written explanation of the rental agreement, rules, regulations, lease, or laws given in the normal course of business.

These provisions do not enlarge or diminish a landlord's right to terminate a tenancy pursuant to existing state or local law, nor do they enlarge or diminish any ability of local government to regulate or enforce a prohibition against a landlord's harassment of a tenant [Civ. Code § 1940.2(d)].

§ 334.18 Statutory Action for Unlawful Rent Skimming

Civ. Code § 890 et seq. establishes civil and criminal liability for "rent skimming," which is essentially a landlord's use of rental revenue from residential property during the first year period after acquiring that property without first applying the revenue or an equivalent amount to payments due on all encumbrances on that property [see Civ. Code § 890(a)(1)]. "Rent skimming" also includes receiving revenue from renting residential property by a person, who without the consent of the owner or owner's agent, asserts possession or ownership of the property through false claim of title, trespass, or any other unauthorized means [see Civ. Code § 890(a)(2); see also Penal Code § 602.9 (misdemeanor)].

A tenant of residential real property may bring an action against a person who has engaged in rent skimming with regard to that property for the recovery of actual damages and attorney's fees and costs. The court may also award exemplary damages and must award at least three times the amount of actual damages under specified circumstances [Civ. Code § 891(d)]. For further discussion and forms relating to this type of action, see Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages .

§ 334.19 Failure to Disclose Application for Permit to Demolish Premises

[1] Written Notice to Tenants

The owner of a residential dwelling unit or the owner's agent who applies to any public agency for a permit to demolish the unit must give written notice of that fact to a prospective tenant before the occurrence of any of the following actions by the owner or the owner's agent [Civ. Code § 1940.6(a)(1)]:

- Entering into a rental agreement with a prospective tenant.
- Requiring or accepting payment from the prospective tenant for an application screening fee.
- Requiring or accepting any other fees from a prospective tenant.
- Requiring or accepting any writings that would initiate a tenancy.

The owner or owner's agent must also give written notice to current tenants before applying to the public agency for the permit to demolish the residential dwelling unit. This requirement includes tenants who have entered into a rental agreement but not yet taken possession of the dwelling unit [Civ. Code § 1940.6(a)(2)]. The notice must include the earliest possible approximate date on which the owner expects the demolition to occur and the approximate date on which the owner will terminate the tenancy. The demolition may not occur before the earliest possible approximate date noticed [Civ. Code § 1940.6(b)].

[2] Tenant Action and Remedies

A tenant may bring an action if the landlord fails to comply with the notice requirements or demolition takes place before the earliest date in the notice [Civ. Code § 1940.6(c)]. The court may order remedies including the actual damages suffered, moving expenses, and a civil penalty of up to $2,500 to be paid by the landlord to the tenant [Civ. Code § 1940.6(c)]. The prevailing party is entitled to reasonable attorney's fees [Civ. Code § 1940.6(c)(3)]. These remedies are cumulative to other remedies available under law [Civ. Code § 1940.6(d)].

PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

29-334 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 334.42

§ 334.42 Decisions

[1] Duty of Landlord to Repair Defective Condition

Landlord is potentially liable for tenant's injury caused by shattered shower door if landlord breached duty to inspect premises and discover defect (fact that glass in door was untempered) that would have been disclosed to reasonable inspection. Becker v. IRM Corp. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 454, 467-469, 213 Cal. Rptr. 213, 698 P.2d 116 (overruled on other grounds in Peterson v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1185, 1188-1189, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836, 899 P.2d 905)

Civ. Code § 1714, rather than plaintiff's status as trespasser, licensee, or invitee, determines liability of tenants for injuries to their social guests even though this status may have some bearing on liability. Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 119, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561

Commercial landlord's failure to show that it conducted reasonable inspection of tenant's premises (produce stand) precludes award of summary judgment in customer's slip-and-fall action against landlord for premises liability. Lopez v. Superior Court (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 705, 717, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 821

Common-law rules regarding liability of landlord for accident on his or her leased premises are superseded by Civ. Code § 1714. Brennan v. Cockrell Investments, Inc. (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 796, 800, 111 Cal. Rptr. 122

No exception to Civ. Code § 1714 made unless clearly supported by public policy. Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 112, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561, 32 A.L.R.3d 496

No public policy requires an exception to Civ. Code § 1714 for landlords not in possession when sued by their tenants. Brennan v. Cockrell Inv., Inc. (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 796, 800, 111 Cal. Rptr. 122

[2] Factors in Landlord's Liability

Landlord may be liable for injuries to tenant from dangerous condition on property landlord controls but does not own or possess. Alcaraz v. Vece (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1149, 1161-1162, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 448, 929 P.2d 1239

Factors in landlord's liability to tenant. Becker v. IRM Corp. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 454, 467-468, 213 Cal. Rptr. 213, 698 P.2d 116 (overruled on other grounds in Peterson v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1185, 1188-1189, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836, 899 P.2d 905); Brennan v. Cockrell Inv., Inc. (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 796, 800-801, 111 Cal. Rptr. 122

[3] RICO

Cause of action stated against lenders who controlled landlords under Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act (RICO) [18 U.S.C. § 1961 et seq.] for maintaining slum premises with owners without funds to maintain premises and maximizing lender's profits at expense of tenant's rights to habitable building; complaint stated RICO cause of action based on enterprise between various defendants and racketeering activity from mail fraud in mailing documents involved in various real estate transactions and that racketeering activity caused damage to tenants from deprivation of habitable building and payment of excess rent. People v. Highland Fed. Savings & Loan (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1692, 1713-1717, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 555

[4] Negligence

Civ. Code § 1714(a) establishes fundamental principle of negligence liability; this fundamental principle is applicable to landlord's liability to tenant; landlord owes tenant duty of reasonable care in maintaining rented premises in safe condition. Becker v. IRM Corp. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 454, 467, 213 Cal. Rptr. 213, 698 P.2d 116 (overruled on other grounds in Peterson v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1185, 1188-1189, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836, 899 P.2d 905)

Landlord owed no duty to assure that tenant's children did not fall out of ordinary second story window when undisputed facts showed that predominant cause of accident was parental negligence. Pineda v. Ennabe (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1403, 1408-1409, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 206

[6] Specific Exceptions to Common Law Rule of Nonliability

[a] Defective Condition of Premises at Time of Lease

General rule of nonliability is not applicable when nuisance existed on property at time lease was made or renewed. Burroughs v. Ben's Auto Park, Inc. (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 449, 453-455, 164 P.2d 897 ; Dennis v. Orange (1930) 110 Cal. App. 16, 23-24, 293 P. 865

[f] Failure to Provide Adequate Security

Summary judgment for landlords was improper in action by tenant who was assaulted on premises by another tenant; assault was foreseeable because assaulting tenant had engaged in prior incidents of assault and battery against plaintiff, and it was triable question whether landlords could have prevented injuries by undertaking security measures or by evicting assaulting tenant. Madhani v. Cooper (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 412, 416-418, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 778

Landlord does not have duty to other tenants to investigate background of tenant who was exhibiting unusual behavior absent any concrete indication of dangerous propensity. Davis v. Gomez (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1401, 1406, 255 Cal. Rptr. 743

Summary judgment for landlord is proper in action alleging that landlord owed duty to investigate whether tenant who possessed firearm and displayed bizarre behavior posed serious threat to tenants because plaintiffs failed to establish what action landlord could have taken, even with reasonable investigation. Davis v. Gomez (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1401, 1406, 255 Cal. Rptr. 743

Shalom Realty (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 4-6 , 185 Cal. Rptr. 641*

Landlord does not owe duty of care to prevent third party criminal activity when not aware of prior criminal acts and when he or she allegedly provided insufficient locks and lighting. Riley v. Marcus (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 103, 109-110, 177 Cal. Rptr. 827

Cause of action is stated against landlord for tenant's rape by third party when landlord had notice of prior criminal activity in lobby, broken lock, and lack of lighting in lobby where attack occurred. Kwaitkowski v. Superior Trading Co. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 324, 327-333, 176 Cal. Rptr. 494

Cause of action for negligence is not stated against landlord when complaint merely alleged landlord's knowledge of crime in general area, failure to replace lightbulb outside plaintiff's apartment, and assault on plaintiff in her apartment; landlord is not required to take precautions against attacks by third persons that he has no reason to anticipate. Hollywood Blvd. Venture v. Superior Court (1981) 116 Cal. App. 3d 901, 903-906, 172 Cal. Rptr. 528

Cause of action is stated against landlord when complaint alleged landlord's knowledge of rapes in apartment complex, awareness that rapes might continue, possession of drawing of suspect, failure to warn plaintiff, failure to take reasonable precautions to protect tenants, and plaintiff's rape in apartment by person resembling drawing. O'Hara v. Western Seven Trees Corp. (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 798, 802-804, 142 Cal. Rptr. 487

Cause of action is not stated against landlord when complaint alleged plaintiff guest was injured by gunshots from third parties who were not tenants and when landlord had no reason to anticipate this conduct. Totten v. More Oakland Residential Housing, Inc. (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 538, 541-545, 134 Cal. Rptr. 29

[g] Violation of Statutory Duty

General rule of nonliability is not applicable when safety law violated. Grant v. Hipsher (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 375, 382-383, 64 Cal. Rptr. 892 ; Ewing v. Balan (1959) 168 Cal. App. 2d 619, 623, 336 P.2d 561

When there are no specific covenants concerning repairs, repair statute is construed to imply that landlord is entitled to notice of need to repair and to reasonable time in which to make repairs. Morris v. Oney (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 864, 869, 32 Cal. Rptr. 88

Landlord is not capable of delegating duty to comply with safety ordinances and statutes. Finnegan v. Royal Realty Co. (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 409, 432, 218 P.2d 17

Landlord is required to comply with safety regulations when he or she leases building knowing it is to be used for purpose that would require structural changes to meet these regulations. Longway v. McCall (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 723, 729, 5 Cal. Rptr. 818

Landlord is obligated to third person when building is leased for purpose that will require structural changes. Finnegan v. Royal Realty Co. (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 409, 423, 218 P.2d 17

Owner is required to terminate tenancy or compel tenant to comply with safety regulation when tenant makes structural change in violation of such regulation. Grant v. Hipsher (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 375, 381, 64 Cal. Rptr. 892 ; Longway v. McCall (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 723, 729, 5 Cal. Rptr. 818

[7] Breach of Warranty of Habitability

Warranty of habitability is implied by law in residential leases in California. Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 637

Residential tenant is not to be deemed to have exempted landlord from implied warranty of habitability by continuing to live in uninhabitable premises, and breach of warranty does not depend on tenant's lack of knowledge of conditions that make premises uninhabitable. Knight v. Hallsthammar (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 46, 59, 171 Cal. Rptr. 707, 623 P.2d 268

Fact that tenant was or was not aware of specific defects is not determinative of landlord's duty to maintain premises that are habitable; reasons that imply existence of warranty of habitability (inequality of bargaining power, shortage of housing, and impracticability of imposing on tenants duty of inspection) is compelling conclusion that tenant's lack of knowledge of defects is not a prerequisite to landlord's breach of warranty. Knight v. Hallsthammar (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 46, 54, 171 Cal. Rptr. 707, 623 P.2d 268

When court finds breach of implied warranty of habitability that requires reduction in rent, judgment giving landlord possession is improper unless tenant is first given opportunity to pay reduced rent and retain possession. Lee v. Vignoli (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 24, 160 Cal. Rptr. 79

[8] Nuisance

Minor resident of apartment complex adequately pleaded causes of action for public nuisance against owners and operators of the apartment complex, based on exposure to secondhand cigarette smoke from smokers in public areas of the complex. Birke v. Oakwood Worldwide (2009) 169 Cal. App. 4th 1540, 1552-1553, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 602

[9] Acts Constituting Actual Evictions

Landlord's breaking into premises, throwing out tenant's personal property, and refusing to allow tenant back on premises constitutes actual eviction. Saferian v. Baer (1930) 105 Cal. App. 238, 241-243, 287 P. 142

[10] Wrongful Eviction Generally

Eviction is possibly unlawful even though not accompanied with threats, violence, or abusive language. Richardson v. Pridmore (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 124, 130, 217 P.2d 113

Tenant is not required to show that landlord acted with bad faith. Pierce v. Nash (1954) 126 Cal. App. 2d 606, 612, 272 P.2d 938

Action for wrongful eviction is contractual in nature. Richardson v. Pridmore (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 124, 129, 217 P.2d 113

Person suffering mental anguish and pain or physical injury is proximate result of eviction as capable of waiving wrongful eviction action and suing in tort. Richardson v. Pridmore (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 124, 129, 217 P.2d 113 (mental anguish)

[11] Actual Eviction by One With Paramount Title as Wrongful

Civ. Code § 1927 contains lessor's agreement to ensure lessee quiet possession of premises during term of hiring against all persons lawfully claiming premises. Standard Livestock Co. v. Pentz (1928) 204 Cal. 618, 638, 269 P. 645

[12] Retaliatory Eviction

In unlawful detainer action when defense of retaliatory eviction under Civ. Code § 1942.5 is raised, tenant has overall burden of proving landlord's retaliatory motive by preponderance of evidence; if landlord takes action for valid reason not listed in unlawful detainer statutes, landlord has duty to give notice of ground and, if tenant controverts ground, landlord has burden of proof of its existence by preponderance of evidence. Western Land Office, Inc. v. Cervantes (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 724, 731-742, 220 Cal. Rptr. 784

Common-law protection from retaliatory eviction is not subject to time limitations imposed on statutory protection from retaliatory eviction by Civ. Code § 1942.5. Glaser v. Meyers (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 770, 775-777, 187 Cal. Rptr. 242

Exercise of rights under law includes reporting of criminal activities to authorities, and eviction for reporting constitutes retaliatory eviction within meaning of Civ. Code § 1942.5(c). Barela v. Superior Court (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 244, 248-254, 178 Cal. Rptr. 618, 636 P.2d 582

Retaliatory eviction defense is available when tenant has only orally complained to landlord and has not repaired and deducted or complained to governmental authorities. Kemp v. Schultz (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 13, 16-18, 174 Cal. Rptr. 837

Affirmative cause of action for retaliatory eviction is possible. Aweeka v. Bonds (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 278, 281, 97 Cal. Rptr. 650

[13] Damages for Wrongful Eviction

[a] General Damages

Measure of damages when tenant wrongfully evicted from agricultural land. Wells v. B.F. Porter Estate (1928) 205 Cal. 776, 780, 272 P. 1039

Amount of damages in wrongful eviction action is governed by Civ. Code § 3300. Standard Livestock Co. v. Pentz (1928) 204 Cal. 618, 642-643, 269 P. 645

Measure of damages under Civ. Code § 3300, as general rule, is value of term, less rent reserved; if wrongfully evicted tenant elects to sue in tort, general damages [see Civ. Code § 3333] for mental anguish and pain or physical injury are recoverable. Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 903, 926, 162 Cal. Rptr. 194

Amount of recovery in wrongful eviction action. Landon v. Hill (1934) 136 Cal. App. 560, 566, 29 P.2d 281

[b] Special Damages

Damages recoverable for wrongful eviction, actual or constructive, includes whatever amounts are necessary to compensate tenant for detriment proximately caused by eviction or likely to result from it, including expenses of removal. Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 903, 926, 162 Cal. Rptr. 194

Tenant is capable of recovering special damages naturally and proximately resulting from wrongful eviction. Landon v. Hill (1934) 136 Cal. App. 560, 566, 29 P.2d 281

[c] Exemplary or Punitive Damages

Exemplary, or punitive, damages are recoverable in tort action [see Civ. Code § 3294(a)] for wrongful eviction when landlord's conduct justifies award. Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 903, 926, 162 Cal. Rptr. 194

[14] Fixtures

Landlord's interest in fixture derived from interest as owner of real property is not governed by Commercial Code but by law of real property and fixtures. Goldie v. Bauchet Properties (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 307, 318, 124 Cal. Rptr. 161, 540 P.2d 1

Fixture defined. R. Barcroft & Sons Co. v. Cullen (1933) 217 Cal. 708, 711, 20 P.2d 665

Factors in determining whether article is fixture. Rinaldi v. Goller (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 276, 279, 309 P.2d 451 ; Allstate Ins. Co. v. County of Los Angeles (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 877, 885-886, 207 Cal. Rptr. 888 ; Cornell v. Sennes (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 126, 132, 95 Cal. Rptr. 728

Where county refused to allow tenant to remove fixtures on termination of lease for boating marina, inverse condemnation was not appropriate theory of recovery because wrong was nothing more than a breach of the lease, in-place value was not an appropriate measure of damages because lease had ended, and landlord was not liable for damages because removal of improvements was barred by Coastal Commission regulation. County of Ventura v. Channel Islands Marina, Inc. (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 615, 625, 629-630, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 762

In resolving whether article is fixture or personalty, elements of tripartite test does not play equal parts since element of intent is regarded as crucial and overriding factor, with other two criteria considered only as subsidiary ingredients relevant to determination of intent. Allstate Ins. Co. v. County of Los Angeles (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 877, 886, 207 Cal. Rptr. 888

Landlord is bound by agreement that tenant may remove fixtures. Clark v. Talmadge (1937) 23 Cal. App. 2d 703, 706-707, 74 P.2d 825 ; Earle v. Kelly (1913) 21 Cal. App. 480, 483, 132 P. 262

Special agreement between landlord and tenant regarding fixtures supersedes general rules. Bridges v. Cal-Pacific Leasing Co. (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 118, 128, 93 Cal. Rptr. 796

Tenant has right to remove trade fixture even though he or she is dispossessed. Bright v. Gineste (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 725, 732, 284 P.2d 839

[15] Good Faith Removal of Fixtures

Civ. Code § 1013.5 is applicable only if article was affixed in good faith and under mistaken belief of a right to affix; absence of either factor defeats action under that statute. Cornell v. Sennes (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 126, 135-136, 95 Cal. Rptr. 728

[16] Option to Purchase

Option to purchase in lease is required to contain all essential terms to be subject to specific performance. Bonk v. Boyajian (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 153, 156, 274 P.2d 948

[17] Option to Extend or Renew

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use by a tenant to recover general damages, medical expenses, and loss of earnings for personal injuries resulting from a landlord's negligent maintenance of an apartment building [see Civ. Code § 1714 (liability for negligence); see also Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 119, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561 (Civ. Code § 1714, rather than plaintiff's status as trespasser, licensee, or invitee, determines liability of tenants for injuries of their social guests even though this status may have some bearing on liability)].

[3] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8)].

If the action is a limited civil case, the caption must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 and must also identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

[4] Allegations

The complaint alleges the landlord-tenant relationship (Paragraphs 3 and 4), defendant's negligence (Paragraph 5), and damages (Paragraphs 6-10).

[5] Specification of Damages

In an action brought to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint or cross-complaint may not state the amount of damages demanded [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)]. However, in a limited civil case the complaint must comply with Gov. Code § 70613 (first page of first paper filed must state whether amount demanded exceeds or does not exceed $10,000) [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)]. The measure of damages for injuries caused by negligence are set forth in Civ. Code § 3333.

For forms and procedures for use in requesting notice of the specific amount sought, see Ch. 177, Damages .

[6] Common Law Rules Superseded

The common law rules regarding a landlord's liability for an accident occurring on his or her leased premises are superseded by Civ. Code § 1714 [Brennan v. Cockrell Investments, Inc. (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 796, 800, 111 Cal. Rptr. 122] .

[1] FORM Allegations of Landlord's Negligence for Failure to Disclose Latent Defects

1. At all times mentioned in this complaint, the apartment included _____ [specify, e.g., an outside rear stairway enclosed by an outer wooden safety railing] for use by the apartment's tenants, including plaintiff, for the purpose of _____ [specify, e.g., ingress to and egress from the rear of the apartment].

2. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff was using the _____ [e.g., stairway] for its intended purpose and while so doing _____ [specify occurrence resulting in injury, e.g., the railing suddenly and without warning collapsed and gave way], thereby causing plaintiff to suffer the injury and damage herein mentioned.

3. At the time of leasing the apartment to plaintiff and at all subsequent times herein mentioned, the _____ [specify] was dangerous and unsafe for use for its intended purpose by tenants, including plaintiff, because of its faulty construction, insecurity, and latent defectiveness; at all of such times defendant[s, and each of them,] had actual knowledge of its dangerous and unsafe condition.

4. At all times mentioned in this complaint, plaintiff was unaware that the _____ [specify] was dangerous and unsafe for use; the dangerous and unsafe condition was not apparent to nor discoverable by plaintiff through the exercise of ordinary care on his/her part.

5. Defendant(s) carelessly and negligently failed to give plaintiff any notice of the dangerous and unsafe conditions of the _____ [specify] at the time of leasing the apartment to plaintiff, at any time thereafter or at all, and the negligence of defendant(s) proximately caused the injuries and damages to plaintiff described below.

[2] Use of Form

This form contains allegations of a landlord's negligence in failing to disclose the existence of a defective condition when the landlord had knowledge of the condition and it was not apparent to the tenant [see Civ. Code §§ 1714, 3333].

These allegations may be used in place of Paragraph 5 in § 334.50[1].

[3] Examples

A landlord is liable for the failure to warn his or her tenant of uninsulated wires [Stanley v. Lander (1934) 3 Cal. App. 2d 284, 288-289, 39 P.2d 225] . In addition, the failure to disclose latent defects in a wooden railing known to the landlord is also a basis for the landlord's liability [Hassell v. Denning (1927) 84 Cal. App. 479, 482-483, 258 P.426] .

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, contains allegations of a landlord's negligence in maintaining some portion of the premises that were provided for the common use of tenants and were thereby under the landlord's control. The landlord has a duty to exercise reasonable care in maintaining and repairing that part of the building over which he or she retains control and which is used in common by tenants and others who enter the premises [Burks v. Blackman (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 715, 718, 344 P.2d 301 ; Harris v. Joffe (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 418, 423, 170 P.2d 454 ; Sockett v. Gottlieb (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 760, 766, 9 Cal. Rptr. 831] . 3. By the lease, defendant[s, and each of them,] covenanted to maintain the leased premises in good repair and tenantable condition during the lease's continuance, as more particularly set out in Paragraph _____ of the lease.

4. At all times mentioned in this complaint, plaintiff was a paying tenant of defendant(s) as to the office space under the lease.

5. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff was _____ [specify activity being performed] when _____ [specify occurrence resulting in injury].

7. [For a reasonable time before the occurrence of the accident to plaintiff, defendant(s) had _____ (either actual knowledge or notice) of the dangerous and unsafe condition of the office space.]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, contains allegations of a landlord's negligence in failing to make repairs when there was an express covenant to repair [Mariotti v. Berns (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 666, 669-670, 251 P.2d 72 (landlord liable when he or she covenanted to keep premises in repair)]. These allegations may be used in place of Paragraph 5 of § 334.50[1].

[3] Notice Requirements

The covenant to maintain premises obligates the landlord to repair the premises in a reasonable time after notice from the tenant [McNally v. Ward (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 871, 884, 14 Cal. Rptr. 260] . Actual or constructive notice of the need for repairs is necessary to put the landlord in default on his or her obligation to repair unless the landlord has agreed to repair without notice or has knowledge or a reasonable opportunity to know of the defect [see Morris v. Oney (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 864, 869, 32 Cal. Rptr. 88] .

1. At all times mentioned in this complaint, defendant(s) owned, provided, maintained, operated, and controlled a certain _____ [specify, e.g., gas heater] installed in the building for the use of tenants therein, including plaintiff.

3. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff was using the above-mentioned _____ [specify, e.g., gas heater] for its intended purpose.

4. At that time and place defendant[s, and each of them,] carelessly and negligently owned, provided, maintained, operated, and controlled this _____ [specify, e.g., gas heater] so that it was dangerous and unsafe for use by tenants, including plaintiff, and carelessly and negligently failed to maintain the _____ [specify] in good repair, and as a proximate result _____ [describe occurrence resulting in injury, e.g., the gas heater exploded without warning], thereby causing plaintiff injuries and damages as mentioned below.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, contains allegations of a landlord's liability for personal injuries suffered by a tenant based on the landlord's violation of a statutory duty. These allegations may be used in place of Paragraph 5 of § 334.50[1].

[3] Statutory Duty to Repair

[a] In General

Statutes and health and safety regulations may impose on the landlord a duty to repair or maintain the premises and make him or her liable to the tenant for personal injuries caused by the failure to repair [Ewing v. Balan (1959) 168 Cal. App. 2d 619, 623, 336 P.2d 561] . These regulations may also impose on the landlord a duty to inspect the premises to discover defective conditions, especially with regard to the exterior of the premises [McNally v. Ward (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 871, 875, 14 Cal. Rptr. 260] . However, employment safety laws contained in Lab. Code §§ 6300-9061 and safety orders promulgated under these provisions are no longer applicable and may not be considered or admitted into evidence in an action for personal injuries or death other than as between an employee and his or her own employer [Lab. Code § 6304.5; Spencer v. G.A. MacDonald Constr. Co. (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 836, 845-861, 134 Cal. Rptr. 78 (upholding constitutionality of statute, approved in Griesel v. Dart Industries, Inc. (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 578, 153 Cal. Rptr. 213, 591 P.2d 503)].

[b] Not Delegable

A landlord's duty to comply with safety ordinances and statutes is mandatory and cannot be delegated to the tenant, nor to any other entity or person [Finnegan v. Royal Realty Co. (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 409, 432, 218 P.2d 17] .

[c] Statutory Presumption of Negligence

The failure of a person to exercise due care is presumed if [Evid. Code § 669(a)]:

- He or she violated a statute, ordinance, or regulation of a public entity;
- The violation proximately caused death or injury to person or property;
- The death or injury resulted from an occurrence of the nature which the statute, ordinance, or regulation was designed to prevent; and
- The person suffering the death or the injury to his or her person or property was one of the class of persons for whose protection the statute, ordinance, or regulation was adopted.

This presumption may be rebutted by proof that the person violating the statute, ordinance, or regulation did what might reasonably be expected of a person of ordinary prudence, acting under similar circumstances who desired to comply with the law [Evid. Code § 669(b)(1)]. When a tenant makes a structural change that is in violation of safety regulations and the owner has knowledge of the change, the law imposes a duty on the owner to terminate the tenancy or compel the tenant to comply with the regulations [Grant v. Hipsher (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 375, 381, 64 Cal. Rptr. 892 ; Longway v. McCall (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 723, 729, 5 Cal. Rptr. 818] .

[4] Structural Changes

When an owner leases a building knowing it is to be used for a purpose that would require structural changes to comply with safety regulations, the duty to comply with those regulations is on the owner [Longway v. McCall (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 723, 729, 5 Cal. Rptr. 818] . In this case, the owner's obligation as to third persons is not one of contract with the lessee, but rather one imposed under the law, a violation of which constitutes negligence [Finnegan v. Royal Realty Co. (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 409, 423, 218 P.2d 17] .

[5] Civ. Code § 1941

A landlord's breach of the statutory duty to repair contained in Civ. Code § 1941 [see § 332.10[1][b] for a discussion of the statute] does not give rise to liability for injuries caused by such failure [Carty v. Blauth (1915) 169 Cal. 713, 716, 147 P. 949 ; Gustin v. Williams (1967) 62 Cal. Rptr. 838] . However, if the tenant proves that the landlord violated Civ. Code § 1941 and that the violation proximately caused injury to the tenant's person or property, a rebuttable presumption of negligence on the part of the landlord arises [Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 903, 924, 162 Cal. Rptr. 194 (stating that holding of Gustin v. Williams (1967) 62 Cal. Rptr. 838 concerning interpretation of statutes and common law must be deemed overruled by rationale of Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168 and Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561); see Evid. Code § 669].

1. At all times mentioned in this complaint, defendant(s) owned, operated, maintained, and controlled that certain building located at _____ [street address], _____ [city], _____ County, California.

2. On or about _____ [date], defendant(s) leased to _____ [name of lessee] certain space in this building for the purpose of _____ [specify purpose involving admission of public, e.g., exhibiting art works] under a written lease, a copy of which is attached to this complaint as Exhibit A and made a part of this complaint.

5. At the time of the lease's execution, an inspection would have revealed the existence of the dangerous condition.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, contains allegations of a landlord's negligence in failing to repair a dangerous condition on premises leased for the public's admission. The lessor of property for a purpose involving the public's admission has a duty to inspect and repair the property before possession is transferred [Ramirez v. Redevelopment Agency (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 397, 400, 84 Cal. Rptr. 356 ; Hayes v. Richfield Oil Corp. (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 375, 380, 240 P.2d 580] .

1. Before _____ [date], defendant(s) had been notified and [was or were] aware that _____ [set forth criminal activity taking place on premises, e.g.,several women tenants had been sexually assaulted on the premises by a person who had broken into their apartments using similar methods each time].

4. Defendant(s) [was or were] aware that _____ [specify criminal activity taking place on premises, e.g., the rapes] were likely to continue because _____ [set forth reasons, e.g., no one suspected of committing the rapes had been arrested and incarcerated].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, contains allegations of a landlord's negligence in failing to provide adequate security precautions against and failure to warn tenants of criminal activity that had taken place on the premises. These allegations may be used in place of Paragraph 5 of § 334.50[1].

[3] Landlord's Duty to Protect Tenant Against Criminal Conduct

A landlord has the duty to exercise reasonable care to warn tenants and protect them with adequate security against foreseeable criminal conduct by third parties [O'Hara v. Western Seven Trees Corp. (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 798, 803-804, 142 Cal. Rptr. 487] . Landlords owe a duty to their tenants to protect them from reasonably foreseeable risks, including the risk of criminal conduct by third parties [see, e.g., Ann M. v. Pacific Plaza Shopping Center (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 666, 675, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 137, 863 P.2d 207] . However, a commercial landlord does not have a duty to safeguard its tenant's property from reasonably foreseeable criminal activity by third parties [Royal Neckwear Co. v. Century City, Inc. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1146, 1151-1152, 252 Cal. Rptr. 810] . In addition, a landlord does not have a duty to other tenants to investigate the background of a tenant who was exhibiting unusual behavior absent any concrete indication of a dangerous propensity [Davis v. Gomez (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1401, 1406, 255 Cal. Rptr. 743] .

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use in an action by a tenant against a landlord when the landlord has interrupted and terminated the tenant's utility services. It includes causes of action based on Civ. Code § 789.3, trespass, and tortious interference with a contractual relationship. The form also includes a cause of action for injunctive relief. It is based on the complaint filed in Elliott v. Kennon, Sacramento Superior Court No. 229383, furnished through the courtesy of Attorney Robert E. Leidigh.

In preparing the above complaint, if a preliminary injunction is sought, counsel should either file affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) in support of the allegations in the complaint or take care to plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; San Juan G. Co. v. San Juan R. etc. Assn. (1939) 34 Cal. App. 2d 159, 174, 93 P.2d 582] . If no affidavits (or declarations) are prepared, the complaint would have to be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527].

PRACTICE TIP:
Notice of Lis Pendens. When appropriate, a notice of lis pendens might be filed with this complaint to bind subsequent purchasers and mortgagees to the terms of the injunction. By Myron Moskovitz

[3] Verification

Verification of the complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 466] is required if plaintiff is seeking a temporary restraining order and/or preliminary injunction on a complaint alone without the use of affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. Otherwise, verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a) (unless otherwise required by law, pleadings not required to be verified)]. If plaintiff does verify the complaint, however, the defendant must file a verified answer in a superior court action [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446(a)] and is precluded from making a general denial in superior court [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of how verifying a complaint affects the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[4] Certification re Notice

When a temporary restraining order is sought without formal notice, the applicant or the applicant's attorney is required to certify to the court under oath that [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(c)(2)]:

- Within a reasonable time before the application he or she informed the opposing party (or his or her attorney, if any) at what time and where the application would be made;

- He or she in good faith attempted to inform the opposing party (or attorney) but was unable to do so, specifying the efforts made to do so; or

- For reasons specified, he or she should not be required to inform the opposing party (or attorney).

[5] Injunctive Relief

Under Civ. Code § 789.3(c), a tenant may seek appropriate injunctive relief to prevent continuing or further violations of the provisions of Civ. Code § 789.3 during the pendency of the action. It is unclear whether this statutory authority for injunctive relief lessens the plaintiff's pleading burden so that plaintiff need not plead irreparable injury and no adequate remedy at law. It is also unclear whether a permanent injunction may be obtained since the statute uses the words "during the pendency of the action." The above complaint does not seek permanent injunctive relief. It does include allegations of irreparable injury and no adequate remedy at law.

[6] Punitive Damages

In applying the penalty provision in Civ. Code § 789.3(c), a court may not cumulate by counting any day when the tenant was not actually "deprived" of utility service, such as when the tenant could have restored service on his or her own initiative by some reasonable means (if possible) or any day when the tenant was not actually occupying the premises. In addition, a court also may not apply the penalty provision so that the total penalty is disproportionate in the circumstances [Hale v. Morgan (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 388, 397-407, 149 Cal. Rptr. 375, 584 P.2d 512 (reversing and remanding for reassessment of constitutionally excessive penalty); see Kinney v. Vaccari (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 348, 352-357, 165 Cal. Rptr. 787, 612 P.2d 877 (penalties of $6,000 for termination of each of six tenants' services for 60 days totaling $36,000 as not unconstitutionally excessive when utilities were shut off with no provocation, tenants tendered rent in sufficient amount to pay utility bill, gas was cut off in winter depriving tenants of heat, and tenants were not unreasonable in remaining in occupancy and trying to have utilities restored)].

Civ. Code § 3295(e) prohibits a claim for punitive damages from stating an amount.

Code § 1942.4* may be utilized in addition to any other remedy provided by Civ. Code § 1940 et seq., by the rental agreement or lease, by any other applicable statutory provision, or by the common law [Civ. Code § 1942.4(f)]. However, the tenant is under no obligation to undertake any other remedy before exercising his or her rights under Civ. Code § 1942.4 [Civ. Code § 1942.4(d)]. If applicable, this form should be joined with causes of action for breach of the implied warranty of habitability and nuisance [see § 334.61].

For a listing of the affirmative standard characteristics enumerated in Civ. Code § 1941.1, see § 332.10[1][b][ii].

For a form of complaint for use to sue in tort for damages for breach of the implied warranty of habitability, see § 334.61. For a form of complaint for use to recover excessive rent paid during the period that the premises were uninhabitable, see § 334.72.

[3] Allegations

A complaint for damages for breach of the duty to maintain a residential unit in tenantable condition must allege all of the following [Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282, 3300, 3333]:

- A duty on the landlord's part to the tenant;
- A breach of that duty;
- Detriment to the tenant;
- Proximate causation; and
- Damages.

In addition, a complaint for damages under Civ. Code § 1942.4 must allege the existence of the conditions set forth in Civ. Code § 1942.4(a) that give rise to the cause of action.

The form in [1], above, alleges:

- Defendant's ownership of or other interest in residential rental property (Paragraph 1).
- Fictitiously named defendants, if any (Paragraph 2) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 474].
- The landlord's statutory duty to maintain in a tenantable condition residential premises that he or she rents to another (Paragraph 3) [Civ. Code § 1941].
- The execution of a lease or rental agreement between the plaintiff as tenant and the defendant as landlord, giving rise to the landlord's statutory duty to maintain the premises in a tenantable condition (Paragraph 4) [see Civ. Code §§ 1941, 1942.4(a), 3300].

- Defendant's breach of duty, that is, the conditions rendering the premises untenantable (Paragraph 5) [see Civ. Code §§ 1941.1, 1942.4(a)(1)].

- The conditions rendering the premises untenantable were not caused by any act or omission of the tenant in violation of Civ. Code § 1929 or 1941.2 (Paragraph 5) [see Civ. Code § 1942.4(a)(4)].

- Plaintiff's discovery of the conditions rendering the premises untenantable (Paragraph 6).

- Plaintiff's notice to the defendant of the dwelling's untenantability (Paragraph 7).

- Notice to the defendant by a public officer or employee of the untenantable condition of the premises and of the defendant's duty to abate the nuisance or repair the condition (Paragraph 8) [see Civ. Code § 1942.4(a)(2)].

- Defendant's further breach of duty by failing to repair the condition within 35 days after service of notice (Paragraph 9) [see Civ. Code § 1942.4(a)(3)].

- Defendant's demand or collection of rent and plaintiff's payment during the period in which all of the conditions listed in Civ. Code § 1942.4(a)(1)-(4) existed or, if applicable, defendant's issuance of a notice of rent increase or a three-day notice to quit for nonpayment of rent (Paragraph 10) [see Civ. Code § 1942(a)].

- The detriment sustained by plaintiff as a result of the untenantability of the premises (Paragraphs 11, 13, 14) [see Civ. Code §§ 1942.4(a), 3282, 3300].

- The characterization of the conditions rendering the premises untenantable as a nuisance (Paragraph 12) [see Civ. Code §§ 3333, 3479; Code Civ. Proc. § 731].

- Proximate causation (Paragraphs 11, 13, 14) [see Civ. Code §§ 3300, 3333].

- Damages (Paragraphs 13, 14) [see Civ. Code §§ 1942.4(b)(1), 3281, 3300, 3333].

[4] Landlord's Duty to Maintain Tenantability of Dwelling

The landlord of a building intended for human occupancy must, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary, put it into a condition fit for human occupation and repair all subsequent dilapidations that render it untenantable, except those mentioned in Civ. Code § 1929 [Civ. Code § 1941; see § 332.10[1][b][ii]]. Civ. Code § 1929 requires that the hirer of a thing repair all deteriorations to it caused by his or her want of ordinary care.

The landlord is under no duty to repair a dilapidation if the tenant is in substantial violation of any of the affirmative obligations set forth in Civ. Code § 1941.2 [discussed in § 332.10[1][b][iii]] and the violation contributed substantially to the existence of the dilapidation or interfered substantially with the landlord's obligation under Civ. Code § 1941 to effect the necessary repairs [Civ. Code § 1941.2(a)].

[5] Availability of Statutory Remedy

The remedy provided by Civ. Code § 1942.4 is available when all of the following conditions exist [Civ. Code § 1942.4(a)]:

- The rental dwelling (1) is declared substandard as set forth in Health & Safety Code § 17920.3 because conditions listed in that section exist to an extent that endangers the life, limb, health, property, safety, or welfare of the public or the occupants of the dwelling, (2) contains lead hazards as set forth in Health & Safety Code § 17920.10, or (3) substantially lacks affirmative standard characteristics set forth in Civ. Code § 1941.1 [see Ch. 332, Landlord and Tenant: The Tenancy, § 332.10[1][b][ii]].

- A public officer or employee who is responsible for the enforcement of any housing law has notified the landlord, or the landlord's agent, in a written notice served after inspection of the premises that informs the landlord of his or her obligations to abate the nuisance or repair the substandard conditions. Service of notice is deemed complete on deposit in the U.S. Mail [Civ. Code § 1942.4(a)(2), (3)].

- The conditions have existed and have not been abated 35 days beyond the date the notice specified in Civ. Code § 1942.4(a)(2) was served, and the delay is without good cause.

- The conditions were not caused by an act or omission of the tenant or lessee in violation of Civ. Code § 1929 or Civ. Code § 1941.2 [see § 332.10[1][b][iii]].

[6] Damages Recoverable

Civ. Code § 1942.4(a) provides that a landlord may not demand or collect rent, issue a notice of rent increase, or issue a three-day notice to pay rent or quit pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2) [see § 333.10[2]] when the statutory conditions set forth in [5], above, exist. A landlord who violates Civ. Code § 1942.4(a) is liable to the tenant for (1) the "actual damages" sustained by the tenant, and (2) "special damages" of not less than $100 and not more than $5,000 [Civ. Code § 1942.4(b)]. "Actual damages" as used in Civ. Code § 1942.4(b)(1) includes damages for emotional distress [McNairy v. C.K. Realty (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 1500, 1506, 59 Cal. Rptr. 3d 429] .

However, the language of Civ. Code § 1942.4(b) is ambiguous because the term "actual damages" includes "special damages" [see Colvig v. RKO General, Inc. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 56, 68-69, 42 Cal. Rptr. 473 (actual damages consist of general and special damages); for further discussion of the nature of damages, see Ch. 177, Damages]. If "actual damages" is correctly used in Civ. Code § 1942.4(b), then the Legislature may have intended "special damages" to mean "punitive damages," which are not "actual damages" [see Civ. Code § 3294 (defining punitive damages); cf. Civ. Code 1942.5(f), relating to retaliatory eviction in which the Legislature has expressly authorized recovery of "actual damages" and "punitive damages"]. If "special damages" is correctly used, then the Legislature may have intended "actual damages" to mean "general damages," although this seems unlikely because it would impose a limit on recovery of part of the actual damages.

[7] Order to Abate and Repair

Any court that awards damages for untenantable conditions may also order the landlord to abate any nuisance at the rental dwelling and to repair any substandard conditions of the dwelling, which significantly or materially affect the health or safety of the occupants of the rental dwelling and are uncorrected. If the court orders repairs or corrections, the court's jurisdiction continues over the matter for the purposes of ensuring compliance [Civ. Code § 1942.4(c)].

[8] Attorney's Fees

In addition to the recovery of allowable costs of suit [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1031, 1032; see also Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees], the prevailing party is entitled to recover reasonable attorney's fees in an amount fixed by the court [Civ. Code § 1942.4(b)].

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION
(Negligent Maintenance of Premises)

13. Plaintiff hereby incorporates Paragraphs 1-4, inclusive, of the First Cause of Action.

[14. Under the provisions of Civil Code Section 1941, defendant was required to put the premises in a condition fit for human occupation before renting them and to repair all subsequent dilapidations, other than those caused by the tenant's want of ordinary care, that rendered the premises untenantable.]

15. At the time he/she rented the premises to plaintiff, defendant so negligently owned, maintained, and repaired the premises as to cause them to be unfit for human occupation in that _____ [specify, e.g., the premises substantially failed to comply with those applicable building and housing code standards that materially affect the health and safety of the tenant].

16. Specifically, as a proximate result of defendant's negligence as alleged above, the premises, at the time plaintiff took possession, were uninhabitable and unfit for human occupation in that, among other things, _____ [specify, e.g., the plumbing was inadequate, the roof leaked when it rained, the floor beneath the carpet was deteriorated and rotting, and the premises were infected with roaches]. None of these conditions was known to plaintiff at the time plaintiff moved into the premises.

17. From _____ [the date plaintiff moved into the premises or on or about _____ (date)], plaintiff became increasingly aware of the numerous defective and dangerous conditions listed above, and others, including, but not limited to, the following: _____ [specify, e.g., leaking of sewage from the bathroom plumbing; defective and dangerous electrical wiring; structural weaknesses in the walls; and falling ceiling].

18. Commencing on or about _____ [date], and continuing through _____ [date], plaintiff repeatedly notified defendant _____ [specify manner of notice, e.g., both orally and in writing] of the defective and dangerous conditions described in this complaint and requested that defendant have them repaired, but defendant _____ [failed and refused to repair them, or any of them, or to have them or any of them repaired, within a reasonable time or at all or specify which repairs were made and which were not made].

19. As a proximate result of defendant's negligence and his/her failure to repair the defective and dangerous conditions or to have them repaired within a reasonable time or at all, as alleged above, plaintiff suffered serious emotional and physical distress, all to his/her general damage [in the sum of $_____].

[20. As a further proximate result of defendant's negligence and his/her failure to repair the defective and dangerous conditions or to have them repaired within a reasonable time or at all, and the serious emotional and physical distress caused plaintiff as a proximate result thereof, all as alleged above, plaintiff was required to and did incur medical and related expenses, all to his/her further damage (in the sum of $_____).]

21. As a further proximate result of defendant's negligence and his/her failure to repair the defective and dangerous conditions or to have them repaired within a reasonable time or at all, as alleged above, plaintiff suffered property damage and economic loss including, but not limited to, _____ [specify special damage, e.g., water damage to furniture, rugs, mattress, and curtains], all to his/her further damage in the sum of $_____.

22. _____ [Continue, listing in this and subsequently numbered paragraphs any additional special damage to plaintiff's person or property sustained as a proximate result of the defective and dangerous conditions and, unless the special damages relate to personal injuries and the action is in superior court, the amount of the special damages claimed].

23. Defendant's failure to put the premises into a condition fit for human occupation at the time of renting them to plaintiff and his/her failure to repair the defective and dangerous conditions or to have them repaired within a reasonable time after plaintiff notified him/her of them or at all, as alleged above, were oppressive and malicious within the meaning of Civil Code Section 3294 in that they subjected plaintiff to cruel and unjust hardship in willful and conscious disregard of plaintiff's rights and safety, thereby entitling plaintiff to an award of punitive damages.

THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION
(Maintenance of Nuisance)

24. Plaintiff hereby incorporates Paragraphs 1-7, inclusive, of the First Cause of Action.

25. The defective and dangerous conditions of the premises as alleged in this complaint constituted a nuisance within the meaning of Civil Code Section 3479 and Code of Civil Procedure Section 731 in that they deprived plaintiff of the safe, healthy, and comfortable use of the premises.

26. Plaintiff hereby incorporates Paragraph 8 of the First Cause of Action.

27. As a proximate result of defendant's maintenance of the nuisance, plaintiff suffered discomfort and annoyance, all to his/her general damage in the _____ [sum of $_____ or amount of $_____per day for each day that he/she occupied the premises].

28. As a further proximate result of defendant's maintenance of the nuisance, plaintiff suffered property damage and economic loss including, but not limited to, _____ [specify special damage, e.g., water damage to furniture, rugs, mattress, and curtains], all to his/her further damage in the sum of $_____.

29. _____ [Continue, listing in this and subsequently numbered paragraphs any additional special damage to plaintiff's property sustained as a proximate result of the nuisance and the amount of the special damages claimed].

30. In maintaining the nuisance, defendant acted with full knowledge of the consequences thereof and of the damage being caused to plaintiff. Despite this knowledge, defendant failed to abate the nuisance by repairing the defective and dangerous conditions of the premises or causing them to be repaired. His/Her failure to act was both oppressive and malicious within the meaning of Civil Code Section 3294 in that it subjected plaintiff to cruel and unjust hardship in willful and conscious disregard of plaintiff's rights and safety, thereby entitling plaintiff to an award of punitive damages. Defendant's failure to put the premises into a condition fit for human occupation at the time of renting them to plaintiff and his/her failure to repair the defective and dangerous conditions or to have them repaired within a reasonable time after plaintiff notified him/her of them or at all, as alleged above, were oppressive and malicious within the meaning of Civil Code Section 3294 in that they subjected plaintiff to cruel and unjust hardship in willful and conscious disregard of plaintiff's rights and safety, thereby entitling plaintiff to an award of punitive damages.

FOURTH CAUSE OF ACTION
(Intentional Infliction of Emotional Distress)

31. Plaintiff hereby incorporates Paragraphs 1-8, inclusive, of the First Cause of Action.

32. Defendant's failure to put the premises into a condition fit for human occupation before renting them to plaintiff and his/her repeated failure to repair the defects or to have them repaired when requested by plaintiff to do so or at all, as alleged in this complaint, were knowing, intentional, and willful and done with a reckless disregard of the probability of causing plaintiff emotional distress.

33. As a proximate result of defendant's conduct, as alleged in this complaint, plaintiff suffered extreme mental anguish and emotional [and physical] distress, all to his/her general damage [in the sum of $_____].

[34. As a further proximate result of defendant's conduct and plaintiff's extreme emotional distress, as alleged in this complaint, plaintiff was required to and did incur medical and related expenses, all to his/her further damage (in the sum of $_____).]

35. In failing to correct the defects within a reasonable time or at all despite plaintiff's numerous requests that he/she/they do so as alleged in this complaint, defendant's conduct was malicious and oppressive, in that it was conduct carried on by the defendant in willful and conscious disregard of plaintiff's rights and subjected plaintiff to cruel and unjust hardship. Plaintiff is therefore entitled to recover punitive damages.

FIFTH CAUSE OF ACTION
(Constructive Eviction)

36. Plaintiff hereby incorporates Paragraphs 1-8, inclusive, of the First Cause of Action.

37. On or about _____ [date], the Health Department of the County of _____, served on defendant a notice to vacate and demolish the premises and listed the following violations (among others): _____ [specify, e.g., heavy cockroach infestation; broken interior walls; broken deteriorated flooring on front porch; falling ceiling; deteriorated, overfused electrical wiring; lack of proper plumbing connection to the sewage system in the bathroom; sewage under the bathroom floor; leaking roof; and fire hazard]. OPTIONAL: A copy of the notice is attached to this complaint as Exhibit B and made a part of this complaint.

38. As a proximate result of defendant's failure to maintain the premises in a condition fit for human occupation and in accordance with the above notice, plaintiff was required to vacate the premises and did so on _____ [date].

39. As a proximate result of defendant's conduct, as alleged in this complaint, plaintiff suffered mental anguish and pain [and physical injury], all to his/her general damage [in the sum of $_____].

[40. As a further proximate result of defendant's conduct and plaintiff's mental anguish and pain (and physical injury), as alleged in this complaint, plaintiff was required to and did incur medical and related expenses, all to his/her further damage (in the sum of $_____).]

41. As a further proximate result of defendant's conduct as alleged in this complaint, plaintiff was required to and did incur moving expenses in the sum of $_____, to his/her special damage in that sum.

42. _____ [Allege in this and subsequently numbered paragraphs any additional special damage and amounts necessary to compensate plaintiff for all detriment proximately caused by eviction or likely to result from it].

43. Defendant's failure to maintain the premises in a condition fit for human occupation was oppressive and malicious within the meaning of Civil Code Section 3294 in that it subjected plaintiff to cruel and unjust hardship in willful and conscious disregard of plaintiff's rights and safety, thereby entitling plaintiff to an award of punitive damages.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

On the FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION:

1. For general damages in the sum of $_____;

2. For damage to personal property and economic loss in the sum of $_____;

On the SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION:

3. For general damages _____ [in the sum of $_____ or according to proof];

[4. For medical and related expenses _____ (in the sum of $_____ or according to proof);]

5. For damage to personal property and economic loss in the sum of $_____;

6. For punitive damages in an amount necessary to punish defendants];

On the THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION:

7. For general damages in the amount of $_____ per day for each day that plaintiff occupied the premises;

8. For damage to personal property and economic loss in the sum of $_____;

On the FIFTH CAUSE OF ACTION:

13. For general damages for mental anguish and pain [and physical injury] _____ [in the sum of $_____ or according to proof];

[14. For medical and related expenses _____ (in the sum of $_____ or according to proof);]

15. For moving expenses in the sum of $_____;

16. For punitive damages in an amount necessary to punish defendants;

On ALL CAUSES OF ACTION:

17. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a former residential tenant to sue his or her former landlord for damages arising out of the uninhabitability of the premises. The complaint alleges a cause of action in contract (damages for breach of the implied warranty of habitability) and alternatively in tort for damages on alternative theories of liability. This complaint is adapted from the facts set forth in Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 903, 162 Cal. Rptr. 194 .

For additional discussions of the implied warranty of habitability, see §§ 332.10[1][d], 332.11[2][a], 333.28[4], 333.131, and 334.10[3].

PRACTICE TIP:

Alleging Breach of Implied Warranty of Habitability. Generally, one should not allege breach of the implied warranty of habitability unless the complaint is based on nonpayment of rent, or, perhaps, some other breach of the lease or rental agreement. When the landlord breaches the warranty, the tenant's duty to perform abates. But when the landlord is basing the eviction on expiration of a fixed-term tenancy or a 30-day notice terminating a month-to-month tenancy, he or she is not claiming any breach of covenant by the tenant, so a breach of the implied warranty is no defense (retaliatory eviction, however, might still be a defense in this situation). By Myron Moskovitz

PRACTICE TIP: Allegation That Damage Has Excused Plaintiff's Failure to Pay Rent. It may be beneficial to include an allegation that the conditions alleged to have caused the breach [see, e.g., P 12 of first cause of action] have excused the plaintiff's failure to pay rent. Such an allegation may itself act as a deterrant to the defendant from commencing an unlawful detainer action or may at least constitute a colorable basis for an attempt to enjoin or stay the unlawful detainer action itself. By Benjamin Kaplan

[3] Essential Allegations

[a] Complaint for Damages--Generally

A complaint for damages must allege the following [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282]:

- The existence of a duty owed to the plaintiff by the defendant;
- The defendant's breach of the duty;
- The detriment sustained by the plaintiff as a result of the defendant's breach, that is, the loss or harm suffered by the plaintiff in person or property;
- Proximate causation; and
- Plaintiff's damages, that is, the measure of plaintiff's loss or harm in terms of money [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3300 (breach of contract), 3333 (tort)].

Duty in the above complaint is established by alleging the relationship of the parties as landlord and tenant, which brings into play the duties imposed on the landlord or tenant by statutory and case law. Breach of duty is shown by alleging the defendant's acts or failure to act that were in violation of law, or of a standard imposed by law [see, e.g., Civ. Code § 1714(a) (negligence)]. Detriment is shown by alleging the harm or loss plaintiff suffered as a result of the defendant's acts or failure to act. Proximate causation may be alleged generally (for example, by stating that defendant's acts or failure to act proximately caused the detriment to plaintiff described in the complaint or, as in the above form, that as a proximate result of defendant's acts or failure to act plaintiff sustained specified detriment). Damages are shown by alleging the dollar amount of the harm or loss, or if the dollar amount may not be pleaded, by adding to a description of the detriment the statement "all to plaintiff's damage" [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b) (allegation of damages prohibited in specified superior court actions)].

[b] Complaint for Damages--Nuisance

A complaint for damages for a nuisance must allege the five elements set forth in [a], above. It must also allege the existence of a nuisance; that is, anything that is injurious to health, including, but not limited to, the illegal sale of controlled substances, or is indecent or offensive to the senses, or obtrusive to the free use of property so as to interfere with the comfortable enjoyment of life or property [Civ. Code § 3479]. The maintenance of the nuisance constitutes the breach of duty. Detriment is alleged by stating that plaintiff's property has been injuriously affected or plaintiff's enjoyment of property has been lessened by the nuisance [see Code Civ. Proc. § 731; Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 903, 919, 162 Cal. Rptr. 194 ; see also Smith v. David (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 101, 112-114, 176 Cal. Rptr. 112] .

[c] Complaint for Damages--Intentional Infliction of Emotional Distress

A complaint for damages for intentional infliction of mental, or emotional, distress must also allege the five elements set forth in [a], above. In addition to duty (relationship of parties, as landlord and tenant), breach of duty (outrageous conduct by the defendant), detriment to the plaintiff (severe emotional distress), proximate causation, and damages, the complaint must allege that defendant intended to cause plaintiff emotional distress or acted in reckless disregard of the probability of causing plaintiff emotional distress [Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 903, 921, 162 Cal. Rptr. 194] .

[4] Statutory Duties

In determining the landlord's liability for breach of the implied warranty of habitability, the following statutory duties should be considered:

- Every person is bound without contract to abstain from injuring the person or property of another or infringing on any of his or her rights [Civ. Code § 1708]. In a landlord-tenant relationship, the duty imposed by Civ. Code § 1708 is independent of the rental agreement and attaches over and above its terms. Thus, tenants may treat an injury to their tenancy (such as the uninhabitability of the premises) as a tort or as a breach of contract at their election [Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 903, 919, 162 Cal. Rptr. 194] .

- Parties to a landlord-tenant relationship owe a standard of reasonable care under the ordinary rules of negligence [Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 903, 917, 162 Cal. Rptr. 194 ; see Civ. Code § 1714(a)]. Damages for a breach of this duty are covered by Civ. Code § 3333.

- The hirer of a thing (which term includes the tenant of real property) must repair all deteriorations or injuries to it occasioned by his or her want of ordinary care [Civ. Code § 1929].

- The lessor of a building intended for the occupation of human beings must, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary, put it into a condition fit for such occupation, and repair all subsequent dilapidations that render it untenantable, except as provided in Civ. Code § 1929 [Civ. Code § 1941; for a listing of the characteristics that will render a dwelling untenantable under Civ. Code §§ 1941 and 1941.1, see § 332.10[1][b][ii]].

PRACTICE TIP:
Landlord's Responsibility. The landlord is responsible for conditions of uninhabitability even without actual knowledge of the conditions. By Benjamin Kaplan

- The affirmative obligations of the tenant, the substantial violation of any one of which will prevent the landlord's duty to repair under Civ. Code § 1941 or Civ. Code § 1942 (tenant's limited right to repair and deduct cost from rent) from arising, provided the violation contributes substantially to the dilapidation's existence or interferes with the landlord's obligation under Civ. Code § 1941 to repair it, are listed in Civ. Code § 1941.2 [see § 332.10[1][b][iii]].

[5] Theories of Liability

[a] Breach of Contract

A breach of the implied warranty of habitability will support an independent action against the landlord for damages for breach of contract [see Civ. Code § 3300] to recover retroactive rent abatement for the alleged overpayment of rent resulting from the uninhabitability of the premises [see Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 903, 916, 162 Cal. Rptr. 194 ; Quevedo v. Braga (1977) 140 Cal. Rptr. 143 , overruled on other grounds, Knight v. Hallsthammar (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 46, 55, 171 Cal. Rptr. 707, 623 P.2d 268 ; see Paragraphs 1-12 of the above complaint]. However, neither damages for discomfort or annoyance nor punitive damages are recoverable in such an action [see Quevedo v. Braga (1977) 140 Cal. Rptr. 143 , overruled on other grounds, Knight v. Hallsthammar (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 46, 55, 171 Cal. Rptr. 707, 623 P.2d 268 ; Civ. Code § 3294(a)].

Several methods for computing the tenant's damages (the amount of rent abatement) have been suggested. The first is to measure the tenant's damages by the difference between the fair rental value of the premises if they had been as warranted and the fair rental value of the premises as they were during the occupancy by the tenant in the unsafe or unsanitary condition [Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 638, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168 ; see alternative allegations in Paragraphs 10 and 11 of the above complaint]. Another method of computation, which appears to be the one most commonly utilized, is to measure the tenant's damages by the reduction of the use of the premises. Under this approach, the tenant's rental obligation is reduced by a percentage corresponding to the relative reduction of use of the rented premises caused by the landlord's breach [see Smith v. David (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 101, 113, 176 Cal. Rptr. 112] . In using this approach, the court must first recognize the agreed contract rent as proper for the premises as impliedly warranted; it must then reduce the agreed rent by the percentage reduction of habitability; and finally, to determine the amount of damages, it must multiply the difference by the number of months of occupancy [see Cazares v. Ortiz (1980) 168 Cal. Rptr. 108 ; see also alternative allegations in Paragraphs 10 and 11 of the above complaint].

The tenant's lack of knowledge of the defects rendering the premises uninhabitable is not a prerequisite to the landlord's breach of the warranty, and the fact the tenant continues to live in the premises after learning of the defects does not constitute a waiver of the breach [Knight v. Hallsthammar (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 46, 51-54, 171 Cal. Rptr. 707, 623 P.2d 268] . Nor does the fact that the plaintiff remained in the premises with knowledge of the uninhabitable conditions mean the premises were habitable [Smith v. David (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 101, 110, 176 Cal. Rptr. 112] .

[b] Tortious Breach

A breach of the implied warranty of habitability may be tortious [Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 903, 916, 162 Cal. Rptr. 194 ; Quevedo v. Braga (1977) 140 Cal. Rptr. 143 , overruled on other grounds, Knight v. Hallsthammar (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 46, 55, 171 Cal. Rptr. 707, 623 P.2d 268] . If it is, the tenant may state a cause of action in tort against the landlord for damages resulting from the breach [Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 903, 918-919, 162 Cal. Rptr. 194] . In that case, the tort measure of damages [Civ. Code § 3333] will apply, and the tenant may recover punitive damages if malice, oppression, or fraud is shown by clear and convincing evidence [see Civ. Code § 3294(a)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Additional Damages. The tenant may also be able to recover damages for discomfort and annoyance.
By Myron Moskovitz

[c] Negligence

A landlord is liable for any injury to a tenant proximately caused by the landlord's failure to exercise ordinary care or skill in the management of his or her property [see Civ. Code §§ 1714(a), 3333]; hence, a tenant may state a cause of action in tort for negligence for damages resulting from the landlord's breach of his or her implied warranty of habitability [Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 903, 916-919, 162 Cal. Rptr. 194 ; see Paragraphs 13-23 of the above complaint]. For a discussion of negligence and general forms of complaints for use in suing for damages for negligence, and affirmative defenses, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

If the tenant proves that the landlord violated Civ. Code § 1941 or any applicable building and housing code standards designed to protect the health and safety of tenants, and that the violation proximately caused plaintiff's injuries, a rebuttable presumption of negligence on the landlord's part may arise under Evid. Code § 669(a) [Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 903, 924, 162 Cal. Rptr. 194 ; for discussion of this presumption, see Ch. 380, Negligence]. The presumption under Evid. Code § 669(a) may be rebutted by proof that the person violating the statute, ordinance, or regulation did what might reasonably be expected of a person of ordinary prudence, acting under similar circumstances, who desired to comply with the law [Evid. Code § 669(b)(1); Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 903, 924-925, 162 Cal. Rptr. 194] . The landlord also has available the affirmative defenses of the tenant's negligence and assumption of the risk which, if properly pleaded and proved, could negate liability [Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 903, 925, 162 Cal. Rptr. 194] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Tendering Negligence Allegations to Insurance Carrier. Counsel should realize that allegations of negligence provide the defendant with the opportunity to make a tender to his or her insurance carrier for a defense/indemnity. This is a two edged sword. On the positive side, it provides a pot of gold for any settlement. In addition, the insurance carrier wants to make sure that the situation is cleaned up, particularly if they are still on the current policy. On the negative side, it permits the landlord to skate without the pressure of sizable attorney's fees. By Benjamin Kaplan

[d] Nuisance

The statutory definition of nuisance in Civ. Code § 3479 is broad enough to encompass almost any conceivable type of interference with the enjoyment or use of land or property, and may include the maintenance of rented residential premises in an untenantable condition [Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 162 Cal. Rptr. 194 ; see Paragraphs 24-30 of the above complaint]. An action to enjoin or abate a private nuisance and recover damages may be brought by any person whose property is injuriously affected or whose personal enjoyment is lessened by the nuisance [Code Civ. Proc. § 731; see Civ. Code §§ 3481 (private defined), 3501-3503 (relief available against private nuisance)]. In the case of a substandard residential building that constitutes a public nuisance, a private citizen, such as a tenant, may have a right of action based on the nuisance if he or she shows special injury different in kind from that suffered by the general public [Smith v. David (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 101, 113-114, 176 Cal. Rptr. 112] .

A nuisance may be either a negligent or an intentional tort. If intentional, exemplary damages are recoverable [Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 903, 920, 162 Cal. Rptr. 194] . For a discussion of nuisances generally, a procedural guide, and forms of complaints and affirmative defenses for use in nuisance actions, see Ch. 391, Nuisance .

[e] Intentional Infliction of Emotional Distress

Liability for intentional infliction of emotional, or mental, distress is imposed for conduct exceeding all bounds usually tolerated by a decent society, of a nature that is especially calculated to cause, and does cause, mental distress. Behavior may be considered outrageous if a defendant:

- Abuses a relation or position that gives him or her power to damage the plaintiff's interest;
- Knows the plaintiff is susceptible to injuries through mental distress; or
- Acts intentionally or unreasonably with the recognition that the acts are likely to result in illness through mental distress.

A remedy for breach of the implied warranty of habitability does not preclude a tenant from suing his or her landlord for intentional infliction of mental distress if the landlord's acts are extreme and outrageous and result in severe mental distress [Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 903, 921-922, 162 Cal. Rptr. 194 ; see Paragraphs 31-35 of the above complaint].

For further discussion and general forms of complaints for damages for intentional infliction of emotional distress, see Ch. 362, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress .

[f] Negligent Infliction of Emotional Distress

Negligent infliction of emotional distress is compensable without physical injury in cases involving the tortious interference with property rights. Thus, if, in the factual situation illustrated in the above form, the landlord's failure to repair the premises constituted a tort grounded on negligence, the tenant is entitled to prove his or her damages for emotional distress in that cause of action because the failure to repair not only caused water damage to the tenant's furnishings, but must also be deemed to constitute an injury to his or her tenancy interest [Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 903, 922-923, 162 Cal. Rptr. 194] . Hence any mental distress resulting from defendant's negligence in maintaining the premises in an uninhabitable condition would be alleged in the Second Cause of Action in the above form [see Paragraphs 19 and 20] as a form of detriment [see Civ. Code § 3282] sustained by plaintiff as a proximate result of defendant's negligence, and not set out as a separate cause of action.

[g] Constructive Eviction

A constructive eviction occurs when the acts or omissions of a landlord, or any disturbance or interference with the tenant's possession by the landlord, renders the premises, or a substantial portion of the premises, unfit for the purposes for which they were leased, or has the effect of depriving the tenant for a substantial period of time of the beneficial enjoyment or use of the premises. Abandonment of the premises within a reasonable time after the landlord's wrongful act is essential to enable the tenant to claim a constructive eviction. Failure to repair and keep the premises in a condition suitable for the purposes for which they were leased has been held to constitute eviction [Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 903, 925-926, 162 Cal. Rptr. 194 (pointing out that plaintiff had alleged that she was forced to abandon the premises after the county health department ordered that the premises be vacated and destroyed and whether she abandoned within a reasonable time would constitute a jury question); see Paragraphs 36-43 of above complaint].

The damages recoverable for wrongful eviction, actual or constructive, include whatever amounts are necessary to compensate the tenant for the detriment proximately caused by the eviction or likely to result from it. The measure of damages, as a general rule, is the value of the term, less the rent reserved. In addition to the general damages representing the value of the tenant's unexpired term, recovery may be had for expenses of removal. Moreover, if the tenant wrongfully evicted elects to sue in tort, damages may be awarded for mental anguish and pain or physical injury. Punitive damages may also be recovered when the landlord's conduct justifies the award [Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 903, 926, 162 Cal. Rptr. 194 ; see Paragraphs 39 and 40 of above complaint]. Punitive damages are recoverable when malice, oppression, or fraud is shown by clear and convincing evidence [Civ. Code § 3294(a)].

[h] Other Torts

Other potential theories of liability in tort would include both intentional and negligent misrepresentation if the defendant knew but concealed the existence of the conditions rendering the premises unfit for human occupation at the time the premises were rented or otherwise misrepresented them. For a general discussion of misrepresentation and forms of complaints for use in these actions, see Ch. 269, Fraud and Deceit .

The form in [1], above, may be used when a tenant has been either actually or constructively evicted from the premises by the landlord. For alternative allegations that may be used in lieu of Paragraph 5 and the first alternative Paragraphs 6 and 7, see § 334.63[1].

[3] Wrongful Eviction

A tenant who is wrongfully evicted by his or her landlord may recover damages for the eviction, regardless of whether the eviction is actual or constructive [Pierce v. Nash (1954) 126 Cal. App. 2d 606, 612-615, 272 P.2d 938 (constructive eviction); Saferian v. Baer (1930) 105 Cal. App. 238, 243, 287 P. 142 (actual eviction)]. An eviction may be unlawful even though not accompanied with threats, violence, or abusive language [Richardson v. Pridmore (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 124, 130, 217 P.2d 113] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Local Eviction Controls. Local eviction controls may provide a different definition of wrongful eviction for violation of the ordinance encompassing acts of a relatively low level of conduct, such as a wrongful oral demand for possession. By Benjamin Kaplan

Moreover, the tenant does not need to show that the landlord acted with bad faith [Pierce v. Nash (1954) 126 Cal. App. 2d 606, 612, 272 P.2d 938] .

The willful eviction of a tenant constitutes a breach of contract, and thus an action for wrongful eviction is contractual in nature [Richardson v. Pridmore (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 124, 129, 217 P.2d 113 ; see Nathan v. Locke (1930) 108 Cal. App. 158, 161-162, 287 P. 550] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Attorney's Fees. Therefore, if the lease has an attorney's fees provision, the prayer should include a request for attorney's fees. By Myron Moskovitz

However, one suffering mental anguish and pain or physical injury as a proximate result of an eviction may waive the breach of contract action and sue in tort [Richardson v. Pridmore (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 124, 129, 217 P.2d 113 (mental anguish); see Goldman v. House (1949) 93 Cal. App.2d 572, 576, 209 P.2d 639 (personal injuries); Emden v. Vitz (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 313, 316-319, 198 P.2d 696 (mental suffering)].

[4] Acts Constituting Actual Evictions

A tenant who has been actually evicted from his or her premises may sue for the wrongful eviction. Acts that constitute actual evictions include:

- The landlord's retaking possession of the premises and excluding the tenant from the premises [Landon v. Hill (1934) 136 Cal. App. 560, 562-566, 29 P.2d 281] ; and

- The landlord's breaking into the premises, throwing out the tenant's personal property, and refusing to allow the tenant back on the premises [Saferian v. Baer (1930) 105 Cal. App. 238, 241-243, 287 P. 142] .

If there was no actual eviction, but the landlord trespassed, the tenant may wish to sue the landlord for the trespass [see Ch. 550, Trespass]. The tenant under these circumstances may also want to consider an action for forcible entry and forcible detainer under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1159, 1160.

[5] Acts Constituting Constructive Evictions

Any interference by the landlord by which the tenant is deprived of the beneficial enjoyment of the premises amounts to a constructive eviction if the tenant so elects and surrenders possession [Kulawitz v. Pacific Woodenware & Paper Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 664, 670, 155 P.2d 24] . Thus, a constructive eviction occurs when the acts or omissions of a landlord, or any disturbance or interference with the tenant's possession by the landlord, renders the premises, or a substantial portion of the premises, unfit for the purposes for which they were leased, or has the effect of depriving the tenant for a substantial period of time of the beneficial enjoyment or use of the premises. Abandonment of the premises within a reasonable time after the landlord's wrongful act of is essential to enable the tenant to claim a constructive eviction [Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 903, 925-926, 162 Cal. Rptr. 194] .

The following are examples of when a landlord commits a constructive eviction:

- Serving a notice to quit the premises with malice and without probable cause to believe that the tenant breached the lease when the landlord does not physically interfere with the tenant's possession [Asell v. Rodrigues (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 817, 823-825, 108 Cal. Rptr. 566] ;

- Permitting the premises to become infested with vermin [Buckner v. Azulai (1967) 59 Cal. Rptr. 806] ;

- Failing to repair residential premises and keep them in a condition suitable for the purposes for which they were leased [Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 903, 926, 162 Cal. Rptr. 194 (adding that whether premises were abandoned within a reasonable time would be a jury question)];

- Failing to make necessary repairs in accordance with the terms of the lease or other agreement [Groh v. Kover's Bull Pen, Inc. (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 611, 613-615, 34 Cal. Rptr. 637] ;

- Installing supports that interfere with the intended use of the premises [Pierce v. Nash (1954) 126 Cal. App. 2d 606, 612-617, 272 P.2d 938] ;

- Failing to provide free water, storage space, and adequate ingress and egress over the lessor's property, all in violation of the parties' intentions [Sierad v. Lilly (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 770, 773-775, 22 Cal. Rptr. 580] ;

- Continuing a program of harassment against the tenant designed to injure the tenant's business and the quiet enjoyment thereof [Aaker v. Smith (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 36, 43-46, 196 P.2d 150] ;

- Terrorizing the tenant [Sanders v. Allen (1948) 83 Cal. App. 2d 362, 366-367, 188 P.2d 760] ;

- Breaching a restrictive covenant prohibiting a competing business on the premises [Kulawitz v. Pacific Woodenware & Paper Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 664, 669-671, 155 P.2d 24] ;

- Breaching an agreement to furnish heat [Veysey v. Moriyama (1921) 184 Cal. 802, 805-806, 195 P. 662, 20 A.L.R. 1363 (dictum)]; and

- Cutting off water and boarding up windows necessary for light and air [Clark v. Koesheyan (1915) 26 Cal. App. 305, 307-308, 146 P. 904] .

[6] Acts Not Constituting Constructive Evictions

There is no constructive eviction when the landlord makes a good-faith resort to legal process [Asell v. Rodrigues (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 817, 824, 108 Cal. Rptr. 566 (dictum)], when the acts of the landlord or his or her agent are no more serious than a trespass [North Pac. S.S. Co. v. Terminal Inv. Co. (1919) 43 Cal. App. 182, 189, 185 P. 205] , or when the landlord only interferes with a portion of the property that is merely a convenience, such as a back door or parking lot [see Corwin v. Hamilton (1957) 154 Cal. App. 2d 829, 832-833, 317 P.2d 139] .

[7] General Damages

An eviction entitles a tenant to recover any damages he or she may have sustained [Saferian v. Baer (1930) 105 Cal. App. 238, 244-245, 287 P. 142] . The amount of recovery is governed by Civ. Code § 3300 [Standard Livestock Co. v. Pentz (1928) 204 Cal. 618, 642-643, 269 P. 645] . Civ. Code § 3300 provides that the measure of damages for the breach of an obligation that arises from a contract is the amount that will compensate the party aggrieved for all the detriment proximately caused thereby or that, in the ordinary course of things, would be likely to result therefrom. Thus, a tenant who has been wrongfully evicted can recover general damages, which are measured by the difference between the actual fair market value of the unexpired term at the time of the eviction and the rent reserved; stated differently, the measure of damages is the difference between the present rental value and the agreed rent [Landon v. Hill (1934) 136 Cal. App. 560, 566, 29 P.2d 281] . If the wrongfully evicted tenant elects to sue in tort, general damages may be awarded for mental anguish and pain or physical injury [Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 903, 926, 162 Cal. Rptr. 194] .

[8] Agricultural Land

When a tenant has been wrongfully evicted from agricultural land, the measure of damages is the value of the crop that might be grown on the leased premises during the lease's term, less the cost of raising and harvesting it [Wells v. B.F. Porter Estate (1928) 205 Cal. 776, 780, 272 P. 1039] .

[9] Special Damages

The tenant's recovery in a wrongful eviction action is not limited, however, to the value of his or her leasehold interest. Independently of the general damages ordinarily recoverable, the tenant may recover special damages naturally and proximately resulting from the eviction [Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 903, 926, 162 Cal. Rptr. 194 ; Landon v. Hill (1934) 136 Cal. App. 560, 566, 29 P.2d 281] . These include necessary moving expenses [Beckett v. City of Paris Dry Goods Co. (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 633, 638, 96 P.2d 122 ; Klein v. Lewis (1919) 41 Cal. App. 463, 467, 182 P. 789] ; loss of good will [Schuler v. Bordelon (1947) 78 Cal. App. 2d 581, 586, 177 P.2d 959 ; Landon v. Hill (1934) 136 Cal. App. 560, 566, 569, 29 P.2d 281] ; any sum advanced for future rent [Sierad v. Lilly (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 770, 775, 22 Cal. Rptr. 580 ; Johnson v. Snyder (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 86, 89, 221 P.2d 164] ; the cost of removing the tenant's fixtures [Johnson v. Snyder (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 86, 90, 221 P.2d 164] , or, if the improvements are permanent ones, which the tenant has no right to remove, the reasonable value of the improvements for the remaining term of the lease [Asell v. Rodrigues (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 817, 826, 108 Cal. Rptr. 566] ; the loss of prospective profits for the balance of the lease [Pierce v. Nash (1954) 126 Cal. App. 2d 606, 622, 272 P.2d 938 ; Aaker v. Smith (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 36, 47, 196 P.2d 150] if the business is an established one [Landon v. Hill (1934) 136 Cal. App. 560, 567, 29 P.2d 281] ; and, when pleaded specially, loss of earnings attributable to the landlord's actions [Tooke v. Allen (1948) 85 Cal. App. 2d 230, 237-238 192 P.2d 804] . The tenant may not, however, recover both future loss of profits and the difference between present value and agreed value, because the loss of profits already includes consideration of the rent paid [Landon v. Hill (1934) 136 Cal. App. 560, 566-567, 29 P.2d 281] .

[10] Punitive Damages

If the tenant sues in tort and the landlord has been guilty of fraud, oppression, or malice, exemplary, or punitive, damages may also be recovered [see Civ. Code § 3294(a); Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 903, 926, 162 Cal. Rptr. 194 ; Beckett v. City of Paris Dry Goods Co. (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 633, 639, 96 P.2d 122 ; Tooke v. Allen (1948) 85 Cal. App. 2d 230, 239, 192 P.2d 804] .

§ 334.63 Allegation of Wrongful Eviction of Tenant by Landlord; Actual Eviction by One With Paramount Title

[1] FORM Allegation of Wrongful Eviction of Tenant by Landlord; Actual Eviction by One With Paramount Title

1. By the lease, defendant _____ [either impliedly or expressly] covenanted that plaintiff should have quiet enjoyment and possession of the leased premises during the lease's term.

2. In breach of this covenant and on or about _____ [date], one _____ [name], who at all times mentioned in this complaint was, and still is, owner of the leased premises under a title paramount to that of defendant, entered on the premises and evicted plaintiff from the premises by due process of law, and ever since has kept plaintiff out of possession of the premises.

3. _____ [Allege general damage, e.g., At the time of the eviction alleged in this complaint, the rental value of the property was $_____ per _____ (e.g., month), for a total rental value of $_____ for the balance of the lease's term, whereas the rent reserved under the lease's term was $_____ per _____ (e.g., month) for a total reserved rent of $_____ for the balance of the lease's term. As a proximate result of defendant's breach of covenant and plaintiff's eviction from the premises, as alleged in this complaint, plaintiff has sustained general damages in the amount of $_____ (rental value for balance of term less amount of rent reserved)].

4. As a further proximate result of defendant's breach of covenant and plaintiff's eviction, as alleged in this complaint, plaintiff _____ [allege any special loss or harm suffered in person or property, e.g., was required to and did employ and pay the firm of _____ (name) the sum of $_____ to move plaintiff's merchandise, equipment, supplies, furnishings and furniture, and other personal property from the premises to _____ (new address)], to plaintiff's further damage in that sum.

5. _____ [Continue, alleging in this and subsequent numbered paragraphs any additional special damage suffered in person or property and the amount of special damages sustained].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, are allegations for use in a complaint for damages for a landlord's breach of the covenant of quiet enjoyment when the tenant is evicted by a person with paramount title. The implied covenant of quiet enjoyment and possession has been held to contain the lessor's agreement in a lease to insure the lessee quiet possession of premises during the lease's term against all persons lawfully claiming the premises [Standard Livestock Co. v. Pentz (1928) 204 Cal. 618, 638, 269 P. 645 ; see Civ. Code § 1927]. The above allegations may be substituted for Paragraph 5 and the first alternative Paragraphs 6 and 7 in § 334.62[1].

[3] Attorney's Fees

A tenant may be able to recover the attorney's fees incurred in defending his or her possession against a person claiming a paramount title when the tenant notified the landlord of the action and requested that the landlord defend against it [see Standard Livestock Co. v. Pentz (1928) 204 Cal. 618, 631-633, 269 P. 645 ; Levitzky v. Canning (1867) 33 Cal. 299, 308] . A tenant may not, however, recover attorney's fees when the action against which the tenant must defend was brought by the lessor rather than a third person claiming paramount title, except to the extent the recovery is authorized by the lease's terms [Stockton Theatres, Inc. v. Palermo (1954) 124 Cal. App. 2d 353, 354-368, 268 P.2d 799 ; see Civ. Code § 1717].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a residential tenant against a landlord to recover damages for specified prohibited action taken by the landlord against the tenant in retaliation for the tenant's exercise of his or her rights under law or because of the tenant's complaint as to the dwelling's tenantability [see Civ. Code § 1942.5(a)]. The tenant may not invoke the provisions of Civ. Code § 1942.5(a) more than once in any 12-month period [Civ. Code § 1942.5(b)].

[3] Allegations

The above complaint alleges:

- Defendant's or defendants' ownership of the dwelling (Paragraph 1) [see Civ. Code § 1942.5(a)];
- Execution of the rental agreement creating the landlord-tenant, or lessor-lessee, relationship (Paragraph 4);
- Plaintiff tenant's possession of the premises (Paragraph 5);
- Plaintiff's nondefault in the payment of rent (Paragraph 6) [see Civ. Code § 1942.5(a)];
- Plaintiff's exercise of a legal right or the making of a complaint (Paragraph 7) [see Civ. Code § 1942.5(a)];
- Defendant's or defendants' retaliatory response (Paragraph 8) [see Civ. Code § 1942.5(a)];
- Plaintiff's detriment proximately resulting from the retaliatory act or acts (Paragraphs 9-11) [see Civ. Code §§ 1942.5(f), 3282];
- Defendant's or defendants' malicious and oppressive motive in taking retaliatory action (Paragraph 12) [see Civ. Code §§ 1942.5(f)(2), 3294]; and
- If the action is for damages for retaliatory eviction, the reasonable amount of the attorney's fee incurred (Paragraph 13) [see Civ. Code § 1942.5(g); see also [7], below].

[4] Remedies as Cumulative

The remedies provided by Civ. Code § 1942.5 are in addition to any other remedies provided by statutory or case law [Civ. Code § 1942.5(h)].

[5] Burden of Proof

The burden of producing evidence that the lessor's conduct was, in fact, retaliatory is on the lessee [Civ. Code § 1942.5(c)].

[6] Eviction for Reporting Criminal Activities Prohibited

The exercise of rights under the law includes the reporting of criminal activities to authorities. Thus, a landlord who evicts a tenant because the tenant reported criminal activities is guilty of retaliatory eviction [Barela v. Superior Court (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 244, 248-254, 178 Cal. Rptr. 618, 636 P.2d 582] .

[7] Alleging Attorney's Fees

In any action brought for damages for retaliatory eviction, the court awards reasonable attorney's fees to the prevailing party if either party requests attorney's fees on the initiation of the action [Civ. Code § 1942.5(g)]. It is not clear what the Legislature intended by the term "request," but its purpose may be to require the plaintiff or defendant to give notice that he or she is seeking to recover attorney's fees without being required to plead and prove them in the action. Thus, it may be sufficient to include the request for attorney's fees in the complaint's prayer (as provided in the above complaint), with or without alleging them in the body of the complaint, or answer (if the defendant should so desire), and the court would then award the fees as it would the costs of the action to the prevailing party, who would include these fees in his or her memorandum of costs [see generally Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees].

[8] Preliminary Injunction

A preliminary injunction may be sought to halt a retaliatory eviction [Aweeka v. Bonds (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 278, 282, 97 Cal. Rptr. 650] .

4. Plaintiff's tenancy of the leased premises _____ [either expired or will expire] on _____ [date].

5. Defendant refuses to permit plaintiff to remove the improvements [although plaintiff has offered and still offers to pay defendant the total estimated damages proximately resulting from the affixing and removal of the improvements or to repair the same].

6. Plaintiff elects to exercise his/her rights to remove the improvements under the provisions of Civil Code Sections 1013 and 1013.5.

7. Removal of the improvements can be effected within a period of _____ [specify number of hours or days] and can be accomplished feasibly by _____ [physical method of detaching from premises]. 2. Determining and ordering plaintiff to pay defendant the amount of damages proximately resulting from the affixing and removal of such improvements.

3. For such other and further relief as the court deems proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use to enforce a tenant's right to remove fixtures he or she installed in good faith under a mistaken belief of his or her rights to remove them.

Any encumbrancers of record as well as the owner of the premises are required to be named as defendants [Civ. Code § 1013.5(b)]. When there are encumbrancers of record, a paragraph should be added to the above form identifying them and their interests and estimating their damages, if any.

In any action brought to enforce the right of removal as provided for in Civ. Code § 1013.5, a notice of the pendency of the action must be recorded before trial [Civ. Code § 1013.5]. For a form of notice of a pending action, see Ch. 348, Lis Pendens .

PRACTICE TIP:

Removing Fixtures. Rather than leave it to the courts to decide what is a reasonable time to remove a fixture, both parties will gain greater certainty and minimize the need for litigation if they specify in the lease how much time the tenant is allowed to remove fixtures. By Myron Moskovitz

[3] Damages for Tenant's Good-Faith Mistake in Installing Fixtures

When any person, acting in good faith and erroneously believing because of a mistake either of law or fact that he or she has a right to do so, affixes improvements to the land of another, this person, or his or her successor in interest, has the right to remove the improvements on payment to the land's owner, and any other person having any interest therein who acquired the interest for value after the commencement of the work of improvement and in reliance thereon, of all the damages proximately resulting from the affixing and removal of the improvements [Civ. Code § 1013.5(a)].

This statute is applicable only if the article was affixed in good faith and under a mistaken belief of a right to affix. If either factor is not present, then the measure of damages is not that found in Civ. Code § 1013.5. Rather, the measure of damages would be the value of the fixture in place as part of the realty, and not what it would sell for on the open market [see Cornell v. Sennes (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 126, 135-136, 95 Cal. Rptr. 728 ; see also § 334.94[10][b]].

[4] Other Damages and Remedies

If the property is returned to the owner of the premises after the complaint is filed and he or she would not have used it while it was severed, the proper measure of damages is the injury to the property plus the expenses of reinstalling it [Givens v. Markall (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 374, 381, 124 P.2d 839] . Even if the tenant establishes his or her right to the fixtures, the tenant may still be liable for damages to the premises caused by the fixture's removal [Goldberg v. Stanton (1927) 84 Cal. App. 665, 668-669, 258 P. 417] . The landlord also can obtain an injunction to prevent the tenant from removing fixtures that belong to the landlord [see Gordon v. Cohn (1934) 220 Cal. 193, 30 P.2d 19] .

[5] Requirements of Action

In any action brought to enforce this right, the owner of the land and encumbrancers of record must be named as defendants, a notice of pendency of action must be recorded before trial, and the owner of the land may recover his or her costs of suit and a reasonable attorney's fee fixed by the court [Civ. Code § 1013.5(b)].

[6] When Damages Uncertain

If it appears to the court that the total amount of damages cannot readily be ascertained before the removal of the improvements, or that it is otherwise in the interest of justice, the court may order an interlocutory judgment authorizing the removal of the improvements on condition precedent that the plaintiff pay into court the estimated total damages, as found by the court or as stipulated [Civ. Code § 1013.5(c)].

[7] Consent of Lienholders

If the court finds that the holder of any lien on the property acquired the lien in good faith and for value after the commencement of the work of improvement and in reliance thereon, or that as a result of the making or affixing of the improvements there is any lien against the property under Cal. Const., Art XIV, § 3 (mechanic's liens), judgment authorizing removal, final or interlocutory, is not given unless the holder of each such lien has consented to the improvement's removal. This consent is required to be in writing and filed with the court [Civ. Code § 1013.5(d)].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a tenant who seeks to compel a landlord to convey the leased premises in accordance with an option to purchase contained in the lease.

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges the property's location (Paragraph 3) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1)], the inclusion of an option to purchase in the lease and the provisions of the option (Paragraph 4), plaintiff's exercise of the option (Paragraph 5), plaintiff's full and fair performance of all the conditions precedent on his or her part to the obligation (Paragraph 8) [see Civ. Code § 3392], the defendant's refusal to perform (Paragraph 6), that the consideration is adequate [Civ. Code § 3391(1)], the option agreement is just and reasonable as to the defendant [Civ. Code § 3391(2)], and that plaintiff has no adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law (Paragraph 9) [see Civ. Code § 3387]. A lis pendens should be filed with this complaint.

[4] Option to Purchase

When the lessee exercises an option to purchase contained in a lease, this action extinguishes the lease and terminates the relation of landlord and tenant. The lessee is no longer in possession as a tenant but as a vendee, and the lessor is not entitled to rent after the option is exercised, unless there is an express stipulation in the lease providing for additional rent [Sacks v. Hayes (1956) 304 P.2d 281] .

However, unless the lease provides otherwise, a tenant is not relieved of the duty to pay rent merely by notifying the landlord of his or her intention to exercise a right to purchase. The tenant remains a tenant and not a vendee in possession until the purchase price is paid or tendered and a binding contract of sale comes into existence [Maron v. Howard (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 473, 489, 66 Cal. Rptr. 70] .

All defaults by the lessee in performing the lease do not necessarily terminate or prevent the exercise of an option to purchase nor do they, of themselves, work a forfeiture. The lessor may not ordinarily declare a forfeiture after a lessee has tendered the purchase price; and when the lessor does not in the original instance make an objection to the form of tender, he or she is deemed to have waived any technical objections [Crowell v. Braly (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 352, 354-355, 337 P.2d 211] .

[5] Effect of Assignment

An agreement in a lease that gives the lessee the right to purchase the demised premises is a covenant that runs with the land and, in the absence of express restrictions, an assignment of the lease also includes an assignment of the right to purchase [Maron v. Howard (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 473, 484, 66 Cal. Rptr. 70 (dictum)]. Covenants to give the tenant the first right to purchase the property also run with the land [Laffan v. Naglee (1858) 9 Cal. 662, 676-678] .

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a tenant who seeks to compel a landlord to extend the term of a lease under an option to extend contained in the lease.

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges the property's location (Paragraph 3) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1)], the inclusion of an option to extend the term in the lease and the provisions of the option (Paragraph 4), plaintiff's exercise of the option (Paragraph 5), and his or her full and fair performance of all the conditions precedent on his or her part to the obligation (Paragraph 8) [see Civ. Code § 3392; Cicinelli v. Iwasaki (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 58, 67-68, 338 P.2d 1005] , the defendant's refusal to perform (Paragraph 6), that the consideration is adequate [Civ. Code § 3391(1)], the option agreement is just and reasonable as to the defendant [Civ. Code § 3391(2)], and plaintiff has no adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law (Paragraph 9) [see Civ. Code § 3387].

[4] Option to Extend or Renew

An option to extend or renew a lease is merely an offer by which the lessor binds himself or herself in advance to make a contract if the lessee accepts on the terms and within the time designated. Since the lessor is bound while the lessee is free to accept or not as he or she chooses, courts are strict in holding the lessee-optionee to exact compliance with the option's terms [Cicinelli v. Iwasaki (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 58, 67-68, 338 P.2d 1005] .

A renewal contemplates the giving of a new lease and the execution of a new instrument by the lessor. If a new lease's execution is not intended by the parties, the option to renew is construed as a continuation of the tenancy under the old lease [Smith v. Arthur D. Little, Inc. (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 391, 401, 81 Cal. Rptr. 140] . Ordinarily, a standard renewal clause in a lease will be construed to give the tenant the option to renew the lease for one additional term and will not be construed as permitting successive renewal rights [Penilla v. Gerstenkorn (1927) 86 Cal. App. 668, 670, 261 P. 488] .

To create an enforceable contract right, an option to renew or extend a lease must provide a sufficient standard for enforcing the option without requiring the courts to write a new contract for the parties. It is not necessary for the parties to specify all of the lease's terms; some of the terms may be left to future agreement. However, if an essential element is reserved for the future agreement of both parties, the promise will not give rise to a legal obligation until the future agreement [Ablett v. Clauson (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 280, 284-286, 272 P.2d 753] .

When the only provision not fixed by an option clause to lease for an additional term is the amount of rent, a court can set the amount and the exercise of the option is valid [Streicher v. Heimburge (1928) 205 Cal. 675, 680-685, 272 P. 290] . However, when the only provision fixed by such an option clause is the duration, and all of the other provisions are left to future agreement, the option's terms are too uncertain to make it enforceable as a contract right [Ablett v. Clauson (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 280, 286, 272 P.2d 753] .

A construction given to an exercise of an option to extend or renew a lease by the acts and conduct of the parties with knowledge of its terms, before any controversy has arisen as to its meaning, is entitled to great weight and will, when reasonable, be adopted and enforced by the court [Smith v. Arthur D. Little, Inc. (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 391, 400, 81 Cal. Rptr. 140] .

[5] Exercise of the Option

In the absence of an express provision requiring it, a formal written exercise of the option is not essential; and the lease need not contain any provision regarding the manner and time in which the option is to be exercised. If these provisions are absent, the tenant may exercise the option before the original term's expiration by an act or course of conduct indicating to the lessor his or her election to renew [Los Angeles County v. Kling (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 916, 922, 99 Cal. Rptr. 642 ; Cicinelli v. Iwasaki(1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 58, 67-68, 338 P.2d 1005] . Payment by the tenant of the rental provided in the lease and its acceptance by the landlord constitutes an exercise of the option [Schmitt v. Felix (1958) 157 Cal. App. 2d 642, 645, 321 P.2d 473] . However, if the option provision gives the lessor the right to demand an increase in the rental, to effectively exercise his or her option to extend, the lessee must indicate his or her willingness to pay the increased rental [Cicinelli v. Iwasaki (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 58, 67-68, 338 P.2d 1005] .

A tenant normally exercises an option to renew or extend a lease by giving the landlord appropriate notice of his or her intention to do so. Ordinarily, an actual notice is required only in the case of an option to renew since in the case of an option to extend, the tenant's remaining in possession will constitute sufficient notice of his or her decision if no specific form of notice is required by the lease [Shamp v. White (1895) 106 Cal. 220, 222, 39 P. 537] . If the tenant uses an express notice indicating his or her intention to exercise an option to renew or extend the lease, the renewal must be on the precise terms permitted in the lease. If the tenant varies the terms of the option by indicating that he or she will renew for a different period or on different terms than are contained in the lease, the notice will be ineffective [Carney v. Heisch (1924) 67 Cal. App. 465, 467, 227 P. 780] .

[6] Effect of Exercise

When the lessee has exercised an option to renew a lease, his or her right to possession of the premises for the additional term cannot be defeated by the landlord's actions. The lessee is entitled to specific performance of the covenant to renew. A sublessee stands in exactly the same position and becomes vested with a right to possession of the premises for the additional term when the renewal or extension options of both lease and sublease have been exercised [Cicinelli v. Iwasaki (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 58, 65, 338 P.2d 1005] .

[7] Enforcement of Option by Successors in Interest

A provision in a lease giving the lessee the option to extend or renew the lease creates only a contractual right. It does not transfer any interest in the land until the option is exercised. However, when the option is exercised the covenant to renew ceases to be merely personal and runs with the land. Thus, the legal successors of the lessee, as well as of the lessor, are entitled to the benefits and are burdened with the duties and obligations that the covenant conferred and imposed on the original parties [Cicinelli v. Iwasaki (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 58, 64-65, 338 P.2d 1005] . Consequently, sublessees have no right to any option given by the lease, but assignees may enforce an obligation of the lessor to a further term [Ablett v. Clauson (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 280, 283, 272 P.2d 753] .

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a tenant in an action to recover money deposited as security for performance of a lease or rental agreement.

[3] Nonresidential Property

[a] Governing Law

Security deposits regarding nonresidential property (property not used as the tenant's dwelling) are governed by Civ.

Code § 1950.7. These deposits include any payment or deposit of money the primary function of which is to secure the performance of a rental agreement or any part of such an agreement other than a payment or deposit (including an advance payment of rent) made to secure the execution of a rental agreement [Civ. Code § 1950.7(a)].

[b] Landlord's Rights

The landlord holds any such payment or deposit for the tenant who is party to the agreement. The tenant's claim to the deposit is prior to the claim of any creditor of the landlord except a trustee in bankruptcy [Civ. Code § 1950.7(b)].

The landlord may claim of this deposit only the amounts as are reasonably necessary to remedy tenant defaults in the payment of rent, to repair damages to the premises caused by the tenant, or to clean the premises on the tenancy's termination, if the deposit was made for any or all of those specific purposes. When the landlord's claim on the payment or deposit is only for defaults in the payment of rent, and the security deposit equals no more than one month's rent plus a deposit amount clearly described as the payment of the last month's rent, any remaining portion of the payment or deposit must be returned to the tenant at a time mutually agreed on by landlord and tenant, but in no event later than 30 days from the date the landlord receives possession of the premises [Civ. Code § 1950.7(c)(1)]. If the landlord's claim on the payment or deposit is only for defaults in the payment of rent and the security deposit exceeds the amount of one month's rent plus a deposit amount clearly described as the payment of the last month's rent, any remaining portion of the payment or deposit in excess of an amount equal to one month's rent must be returned to the tenant no later than two weeks after the date the landlord receives possession of the premises, with the remainder to be returned or accounted for within 30 days from the date the landlord receives possession of the premises [Civ. Code § 1950.7(c)(2)]. When the landlord's claim on the payment or deposit includes amounts reasonably necessary to repair damages to the premises caused by the tenant or to clean the premises, any remaining portion of the payment or deposit must be returned to the tenant at a time as may be mutually agreed on by the landlord and tenant, but in no event later than 30 days from the date the landlord receives possession of the premises [Civ. Code § 1950.7(c)(3)].

[4] Residential Property

[a] Governing Law

Security deposits regarding residential property (property used as the tenant's dwelling) are governed by the provisions of Civ. Code § 1950.5 [Civ. Code § 1950.5(a)].

[b] Maximum Security Deposit

A landlord may not demand or receive security, however denominated, in an amount or value in excess of an amount equal to two months rent, in the case of unfurnished residential property, or three months rent, in the case of furnished residential property, in addition to any rent for the first month paid on or before initial occupancy [Civ. Code § 1950.5(c)]. "Security" means any payment, fee, deposit, or charge, including, but not limited to, any payment, fee, deposit, or charge that is imposed at the beginning of the tenancy to be used to reimburse the landlord for costs associated with processing a new tenant, or that is imposed as an advance payment of rent, used or to be used for any purpose, including, but not limited to, compensation of the landlord for the tenant's default in the payment of rent, repair of damages to the premises exclusive of ordinary wear and tear caused by the tenant, and cleaning of the premises on the tenancy's termination [Civ. Code § 1950.5(b)]. A security deposit can also secure the remedy of future defaults by the tenant in any obligation under the rental agreement to restore, replace, or return personal property or appurtenances, exclusive of ordinary wear and tear, if the security deposit is authorized to be applied thereto by the rental agreement [Civ. Code § 1950.5(b)]. "Security" does not include application screening fees [Civ. Code § 1950.5(b); see Civ. Code § 1950.6 (application screening fees)].

It had been thought that a literal reading of this definition would include a legitimate advance payment of rent as a security. However, this construction has been held to be unreasonable. A security is defined by the statute but does not include "legitimate rent." The term "legitimate rent" is used to distinguish payments that a landlord calls rent but which are really security. To make the distinction, the court must look at a payment called rent by the landlord to determine whether it is usual or customary that the type of payment is rent rather than security. The court can consider the historical practices of the landlord in making the determination. Thus, the fact that the landlord changed the name of a payment from security deposit to rent is a factor indicating that the payment is really a security deposit [Granberry v. Islay Invs. (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 382, 388-391, 207 Cal. Rptr. 652] .

The above limitation on the amount of the deposit does not prohibit an advance payment of not less than six months rent when the lease's term is six months or longer. Neither does it preclude the landlord and tenant from entering into a mutual agreement for the landlord, at the tenant's request and for a specified fee or charge, to make structural, decorative, furnishing, or other similar alterations, other than cleaning or repair work for which the landlord may make a claim on the deposit of the previous tenant [Civ. Code § 1950.5(c)].

[c] Landlord's Rights

The landlord holds any security deposit for the tenant who is a party to the lease or rental agreement. The tenant's claim to it is prior to the claim of any creditor of the landlord [Civ. Code § 1950.5(d)].

The landlord may claim from the security deposit only the amounts as are reasonably necessary for the purposes specified in Civ. Code § 1950.5(b) [see [b], above]. The landlord may not assert a claim against the tenant or the security for damages to the premises or any defective conditions that preexisted the tenancy, for ordinary wear and tear or the effects thereof, whether the wear and tear preexisted the tenancy or occurred during the tenancy, or for the cumulative effects of ordinary wear and tear occurring during any one or more tenancies [Civ. Code § 1950.5(e)]. This provision is declaratory of existing law [Civ. Code § 1950.5(p)].

Within a reasonable time after notification of either party's intention to terminate the tenancy, or before the end of the lease term, the landlord must notify the tenant in writing of his or her option to request an initial inspection and of his or her right to be present at the inspection. The purpose of the initial inspection is to allow the tenant an opportunity to remedy identified deficiencies in order to avoid deductions from the security. If the tenant chooses not to request an initial inspection, the landlord's duties with regard to an initial inspection are discharged [Civ. Code § 1950.5(f)(1)]. Based on the initial inspection, the landlord must give the tenant an itemized statement specifying repairs or cleaning that are proposed to be the basis of any deductions from the security. This statement must include the text of Civ. Code § 1950.5(b)(1)-(4) [Civ. Code § 1950.5(f)(2)]. The tenant must be given the opportunity during the period following the initial inspection until termination of the tenancy to remedy identified deficiencies, in a manner consistent with the rights and obligations of the parties under the rental agreement, in order to avoid deductions from the security [Civ. Code § 1950.5(f)(3)].

Requirements pertaining to the initial inspection do not apply when the tenancy is terminated after the tenant defaults in payment of rent, breaches a covenant other than the payment of rent, or commits waste [Civ. Code § 1950.5(f)(1); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2)-(4)].

Within a specified period after the tenant vacates the premises, the landlord must provide an itemized statement indicating the disposition of the security, as well as copies of documents showing charges incurred and deducted by the landlord to repair and clean the premises, and must return any remaining security to the tenant [Civ. Code § 1950.5(g)].

A landlord who has failed in good faith to take advantage of the summary nonjudicial deduct-and-retain procedure allowed under Civ. Code§ 1950.5(f) may nevertheless recover damages for unpaid rent, repairs, and cleaning (permitted under Civ. Code § 1950.5(e)) in a subsequent judicial proceeding. To recover these damages, the landlord must prove by a preponderance of the evidence that he or she has suffered the damages and that the amount claimed is reasonable, as provided in Civ. Code § 1950.5(l) [Granberry v. Islay Investments (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 738, 749-750, 38 Cal. Rptr.

A landlord is not required to pay interest on a security deposit because no statutory requirement requires the landlord to do so [Korens v. R. W. Zukin Corp. (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1054, 1058-1060, 261 Cal. Rptr. 137] .

[5] Termination of Landlord's Interest

Whether or not the property is residential, on termination of the landlord's interest in the unit (property) in question, whether by sale, assignment, death, appointment of a receiver, or otherwise, the landlord or his or her agent is required, within a reasonable time, to do either of the following, whereupon the landlord will be relieved of any further liability regarding the security deposit:

- In the case of residential property, transfer the portion of the security remaining after any lawful deductions made under Civ. Code § 1950.5(e) [see [4][c], above] to the landlord's successor in interest. The landlord must thereafter notify the tenant by personal delivery or by first-class mail, postage prepaid, of the transfer, of any claims made against the security, of the amount of the security deposited, and of the names of the successors in interest, their address, and their telephone number [Civ. Code § 1950.5(h)(1)]. In the case of nonresidential property, transfer the portion of the payment or deposit remaining after any lawful deductions made under Civ. Code § 1950.7(c) [see [3][b], above] to the landlord's successor in interest, and thereafter notify the tenant by personal delivery or certified mail of the transfer, of any claims made against the payment or deposit, and of the transferee's name and address [Civ. Code § 1950.7(d)(1)]. In either case, if the notice to the tenant is made by personal delivery, the tenant must acknowledge receipt of the notice and sign his or her name on the landlord's copy of the notice [Civ. Code §§ 1950.5(h)(1), 1950.7(d)(1)]; or

- Return the portion of the security deposit remaining after any lawful deductions, and, if residential property is involved, furnish the tenant with an itemized written statement of the basis for, and the amount of, the security received and the disposition of the security [Civ. Code §§ 1950.5(h)(2), 1950.7(d)(2)].

On receiving any portion of the security deposit, the transferee has all of the rights and obligations of the landlord with regard to the deposit [Civ. Code §§ 1950.5(k), 1950.7(e)].

[6] Rights and Liabilities of Successor in Interest in Residential Property

Before the voluntary transfer of a landlord's interest in a residential dwelling unit subject to Civ. Code § 1950.5, the landlord must deliver to the landlord's successor in interest a written statement indicating the security remaining after any lawful deductions are made, an itemization of any lawful deductions from any security received, and his or her election. This provision does not affect the validity of title to the real property transferred in violation of its provisions [Civ. Code § 1950.5(i)].

If the requirements of Civ. Code § 1950.5(h) [see [5], above] are not complied with, the landlord's successors in interest are jointly and severally liable with the landlord for repaying the security or that portion of the security that the tenant is entitled to. A landlord's successor in interest may not require the tenant to post any security to replace that amount not transferred to the tenant or successors in interest unless and until the successor in interest first makes restitution of the initial security or provides the tenant with an accounting. The above provision does not preclude a successor in interest from recovering from the tenant compensatory damages that are in excess of the security received from the landlord that was previously paid by the tenant to the landlord. Despite the preceding provisions, if on inquiry and reasonable investigation, a landlord's successor in interest has a good faith belief that the lawfully remaining security deposit is transferred to him or her or returned to the tenant, the successor in interest is not liable for damages or for any security not transferred [Civ. Code § 1950.5(i), (j)].

[7] Proof of Existence of Security Deposit

Proof of the existence of and the amount of a security deposit may be established by any credible evidence, including, but not limited to, a canceled check, a receipt, a lease indicating the requirement of a deposit as well as the amount, prior consistent statements or actions of the landlord or tenant, or a statement under penalty of perjury that satisfies the credibility requirements of Evid. Code § 780 [Civ. Code § 1950.5(o)].

[8] Penalty for Bad-Faith Retention

A bad-faith claim or retention by the landlord (or a transferee or successor in interest) of any portion of the security deposit, if the property is residential, may subject the landlord to a statutory penalty of up to twice the amount of the security, or if the property is not residential, to a penalty of not more than $200 in addition to actual damages [Civ. Code §§ 1950.5(l), 1950.7(f)].

If the property is residential, the court may award damages for bad faith whenever the facts warrant this award, regardless of whether the injured party has specifically requested relief. The landlord or successor in interest has the burden of proof as to the reasonableness of amounts claimed or as to the authority to demand additional deposits [Civ. Code § 1950.5(l)].

[9] Nonrefundable Deposits

No lease or rental agreement for residential property may contain any provision characterizing any security deposit as "nonrefundable" [Civ. Code § 1950.5(m)].

[10] Waiver of Tenant's Rights

Under Civ. Code § 1953(a), (c), any provision in a lease or rental agreement for a dwelling (residential property) executed on or after January 1, 1976, by which the tenant agrees to modify or waive remedies under Civ. Code § 1950.5 is void as contrary to public policy.

[11] Jurisdiction of Small Claims Court and of Superior Court

An action under Civ. Code § 1950.5 may be maintained in small claims court if the total claim (actual damages plus penalty) is within the jurisdictional amount of that court [Civ. Code § 1950.5(n); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 116.220, 116.221 (jurisdiction of small claims court)]. Generally, the small claims court has jurisdiction in cases where the amount of the demand does not exceed $5,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(a)(1); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 116.221 (in actions brought in small claims court by natural persons, jurisdictional limit is $7,500)].

The superior court otherwise has jurisdiction [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10]. If the action is a limited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1) (amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less)], the caption must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 and must also identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

10. Because of the above stated conditions, the premises leased by plaintiffs were unsafe, unhealthy, and substantially uninhabitable. In causing and permitting and in failing and refusing to repair the above stated conditions, Landlord breached the warranty of habitability. By virtue of this breach of warranty and as a result of the uninhabitable condition of the premises, the fair rental value of the premises at all times mentioned in this complaint was $_____ per month.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is adapted from the one filed in Holloway v. Oak Valley Properties, Superior Court for Alameda County, No. H-30375-4, supplied through the courtesy of the Legal Aid Society of Alameda County. It should be used in an action by a tenant against his or her landlord to recover the difference between the rent paid and the fair rental value of premises leased for residential purposes, when the landlord breaches the warranty of habitability. Although there is as yet no appellate court authority for an action for retroactive abatement of rent, such an action would appear to follow from the implied warranty of habitability in residential leases that has been recognized by the California Supreme Court [see Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 629, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168 ; see also Civ. Code § 1941].

A complaint for declaratory relief may also be used by a tenant to obtain a judicial declaration of his or her duty to pay rent when a landlord breaches the warranty of habitability [see Hinson v. Delis (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 62, 71, 102 Cal. Rptr. 661] . For forms for use in a declaratory relief action, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief .

PRACTICE TIP:

Warning! Rent withholding is the most exposed position a tenant can place himself or herself in. It will usually invite the service of an unlawful detainer action with all the attendant consequences of such an action. This course of action should only be counseled in the most extreme circumstances and with due consideration and disclosure of all the possible consequences. By Benjamin Kaplan

Commissioner _____ [name] refused to supply the information.

9. Defendant continues to refuse to make the information available and has publicly manifested its intent to effect the _____ [e.g., 10 percent] rental increase.

10. Defendant has for many years operated its projects at a profit in violation of Health and Safety Code Section 34321.

11. Defendant's budget for fiscal year _____ includes a profit in violation of Health and Safety Code Section 34321.

12. Defendant's threatened conduct, unless and until the same is forthwith enjoined and restrained by order of this court, will cause great and irreparable injury to plaintiffs in that plaintiffs are of low income families, have no cash reserves, and the _____ [e.g., 10 percent] increase will seriously reduce their ability to provide necessities for themselves and their families.

13. Plaintiffs have no adequate remedy at law for their injuries in that costly litigation will be essential to determine their rights and liabilities, this litigation will not provide a speedy remedy, and any amounts they may recover, though substantial to them, will not practically justify the expense of the litigation.

14. Plaintiffs will be subjected to a multiplicity of judicial proceedings to establish their rights and liabilities.

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION
(Declaratory Relief)

Plaintiffs allege:

15. Plaintiffs incorporate Paragraphs 1-14, inclusive, of their First Cause of Action as if the same were herein set out in full.

16. Health and Safety Code Section 34321 declares it is the policy of the state that no housing authority shall construct or operate any housing project for profit or as a source of revenue to the city or the county.

17. Defendant has for many years operated its projects at a profit and its budget for fiscal year _____ includes a proposed profit.

18. An actual controversy has arisen and now exists between plaintiffs and defendant in that plaintiffs contend that defendant is prohibited by the above-mentioned statute from consciously operating its projects at a profit whereas defendant disputes this contention and contends that it may operate the projects at a profit.

19. Plaintiffs ask the court to make a declaration as to the validity of defendant operating and continuing to operate these projects at a profit. The declaration is necessary and appropriate at this time so that plaintiffs may ascertain their rights and duties in the premises.

WHEREFORE, plaintiffs pray for a judgment as follows:

1. For a preliminary injunction enjoining and restraining defendant, its agents, servants, employees, and all persons acting under it from increasing the rents from the level of _____ [date], until further order of this court.

2. For a declaration by the court that defendant may not operate projects at a profit under the above mentioned statute or any other statutes.

3. For costs of suit.

4. For such other and further relief as the court deems just and proper and according to equity.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is based on the complaint filed in Tyree v. Housing Authority of Pleasanton (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 130, 86 Cal. Rptr. 461 . It is for use to secure a permanent injunction restraining a public housing authority from raising the rent and to obtain a declaration that the housing authority may not operate its projects at a profit.

PRACTICE TIP:

Seek Administrative Relief First. There may already exist administrative proceedings or remedies that might serve to accomplish the same results as this complaint seeks to obtain. Although these procedures probably do not have to be exhausted first before obtaining legal relief, all possible administrative remedies should be explored before filing a lawsuit. By Benjamin Kaplan

[3] Allegations

The first cause of action alleges the status of the plaintiffs (Paragraphs 1, 2) and the defendant (Paragraph 3), the notice of rent increase (Paragraph 4) and the housing authority's refusal to disclose the information on which the rent increase was based or to postpone the rent increase (Paragraphs 5-9), violation of Health & Safety Code § 34321 (Paragraph 11), the threat of irreparable injury to plaintiffs (Paragraph 12), that pecuniary compensation will not afford the plaintiffs adequate relief (Paragraph 13) [Civ. Code § 3422(1);], and that the plaintiffs would be subjected to a multiplicity of judicial proceedings (Paragraph 14) [Civ. Code § 3422(3);].

The second cause of action alleges defendant's violation of Health & Safety Code § 34321 (Paragraphs 16, 17) and facts showing the existence of an actual controversy relating to the legal rights and duties of the respective parties (Paragraph 18) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060].

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use to recover rent due under an oral lease. The complaint alleges that the lease is oral [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(g) (complaint is subject to demurrer for failure to state whether contract is written or oral)] and sets out its relevant terms (Paragraph 3), that the plaintiff has performed the conditions on his or her part (Paragraph 4), and that rent is unpaid (Paragraph 6).

The terms of an oral lease that should be alleged in an action for rent are the precise term or tenancy, the amount of rent installments, and when the rent is payable.

A lease for longer than one year must be in writing [Civ. Code § 1624(a)(3)].

An allegation of possession by the defendant (Paragraph 5) is not necessary [O'Meara v. Hables (1912) 163 Cal. 240, 242-243, 124 P. 1003] , but it is customary. If the defendant did not enter into possession, the complaint should allege that the premises were available to him or her and he or she had the right to possession [Rapid Transit Co. v. Santa Clara Valley Land Co. (1924) 70 Cal. App. 390, 392, 233 P. 389] .

[3] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8)].

If the action is a limited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1) (amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less)], the caption must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 and must also identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

[4] Interest

Every person who is entitled to recover damages certain, or capable of being made certain by calculation, and the right to recover which is vested in him or her on a particular day, is entitled also to recover interest thereon from that day, except during such time as the debtor is prevented by law, or by the act of the creditor from paying the debt [Civ. Code § 3287(a)].

[5] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required, verification will require any answer to be verified also, if the action is in the superior court and is not a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial except in limited civil cases, and will preclude a general denial even in limited civil cases when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

PRACTICE TIP:

Verification. There is only limited usefulness obtained by way of a verified answer. Having your client sign a verification exposes him or her to cross-examination on the complaint whereas otherwise no examination would be permitted at deposition and/or at trial on proper objection and instruction. By Benjamin Kaplan

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 334.80[1], P 1.]

2. [Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 334.80[1], P 2.]

3. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff leased to defendant certain premises known as _____ [street address, city], California, under a written lease, a copy of which is attached to this complaint as Exhibit A and made a part of this complaint.

4. [Performance of conditions. See § 334.80[1], P 4.]

5. [Defendant's possession of premises. See § 334.80[1], P 5.]

6. By the lease's terms, defendant was required to pay to plaintiff for the rent of the premises the sum of $_____, payable as more particularly set out in the lease.

7. Defendant has paid the sum of $_____ under the lease and there is now due, owing, and unpaid for rental under the lease the sum of $_____.

8. The lease provides for the payment by defendant to plaintiff of an attorney's fee in any action brought to enforce payment of rent due or to become due, as more particularly set out in the lease. The sum of $_____ is

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use to recover rent and attorney's fees under a written lease.

Attaching a copy of the lease to the complaint makes it unnecessary to expressly allege the lease's specific terms. If a copy is not attached, its pertinent provisions should be quoted in appropriate allegations or accurately summarized.

For a discussion of the sufficiency of allegations in an action for rent, see Pringle v. Fassler (1917) 176 Cal. 264, 265, 168 P.114 .

[3] Attorney's Fees

The recovery of attorney's fees in an action for rent is dependent on a specific provision for attorney's fees in the lease [Bank of America etc. Ass'n. v. Moore (1937) 18 Cal. App. 2d 522, 529-530, 64 P.2d 460] .

[OR]

6. The lease provides for payment by defendant to plaintiff of a fixed minimum rent of $_____ per month, plus percentage rent in a sum equal to _____ percent of net profits from the business, computed and payable as more particularly set out in the lease.

[EITHER]

7. Defendant has paid percentage rent for the leased premises for the period from _____ [date], to and including _____ [date], as follows, claiming such payments were the sums due by reason of the _____ [either net profits or gross sales] from the business: _____ [specify].

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use to obtain an accounting of rent due under a written lease providing that the rent is based on a percentage of the net profits of a business or a minimum rent plus a percentage of the profits. It also asks for the rent found to be due under such an accounting and for attorney's fees as provided in the lease.

With minor adaptations, this form may be used in any case where the rent is to be calculated on a formula basis and the information necessary to calculate the amount is within the defendant's knowledge.

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges the relationship of lessor and lessee (Paragraph 3), plaintiff's performance of conditions on his or her part (Paragraph 4), defendant's possession of the premises (Paragraph 5), that there is an unknown amount of rent due to plaintiff from defendant that cannot be determined without an accounting (Paragraphs 6-9), and that a demand for an accounting has been made by plaintiff and refused by defendant (Paragraph 8) [see Wooster v. Nevills (1887) 73 Cal. 58, 60, 14 P. 390] . It also alleges that plaintiff should be allowed reasonable attorney's fees under the terms of the lease (Paragraph 10).

[4] Interest

The general rule is that when an accounting is required to arrive at a sum justly due, interest is not allowed before the date of judgment [Schmidt v. Waterford Winery, Ltd. (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 28, 34-35, 1 Cal. Rptr. 874] . However, the Schmidt case indicated that an exception to the general rule may exist when the amount due is a liquidated amount that could be ascertained before judgment from the face of a contract or by reference to well-established value plus computation.

5. [Defendant's possession of premises. See § 334.82[1], P 5.]

6. The lease provides for payment by defendant to plaintiff of a fixed minimum rent of $_____ per month, plus a percentage rent equal to _____ percent of gross sales of merchandise, computed and payable as more particularly set out in the lease.

7. Defendant has paid the fixed minimum rent, plus a percentage rent averaging $_____ per month for the period from _____ [date] to and including _____ [date].

8. On or about _____ [date], defendant established a business location at _____ [ street address], in _____ [city], California, and diverted the _____ [e.g., major] portion of his/her business from the leased premises to the new location, and ever since has continued to do so.

9. Ever since establishing the new location and diverting business from the leased premises to it, defendant has not paid any percentage rent for the leased premises, claiming that none was due by reason of limited gross sales of merchandise at the leased premises. Defendant has paid the fixed minimum monthly rental of $_____ only for the period from _____ [date] to and including _____ [date].

10. Plaintiff is informed and believes and on such information and belief alleges that the amount of gross sales at the new location of defendant and the amount of gross sales at the leased premises since the diversion of business, when combined, have been and continue to be approximately the same as the gross sales at the leased premises before the diversion of business.

11. The diversion of business by defendant from the leased premises to such new location was and is contrary to the lease's provisions, and was willfully done by him/her with the intent of depriving plaintiff of the percentage rental payable during the remainder of the lease term.

12. By reason of this diversion of business, plaintiff has been, and continues to be, deprived of the percentage rental provided for by the lease in an amount that should be determined by an accounting.

13. [Attorney's fees. See § 334.82[1], P 10.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For an accounting by defendant of the gross sales at the new location as well as at the leased premises.

2. For the amount of percentage rent found to be due by such an accounting.

3. For reasonable attorney's fees in the sum of $_____.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is adapted from the complaint in Professional Bldg. of Eureka, Inc. v. Anita Frocks, Inc., No. 6 (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 276, 2 Cal. Rptr. 914 . The complaint is for use in an action for an accounting, rent, and attorney's fees under a written lease, when the defendant has been diverting gross sales from the leased premises to another location and thus avoiding payment of a percentage of the gross sales as part of the rent. Even if there is not an explicit provision barring this diversion, it might arguably be barred by the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing [see Carter v. Adler (1955) 138 Cal. App 2d 63, 72-73, 291 P.2d 111 (dictum)].

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use in an action to recover the value of the use and occupation of real property with the owner's consent when there is no lease.

[3] Rent for Occupation Without Lease

Usually the occupancy of premises by a person with the owner's consent creates the relation of landlord and tenant, and in the absence of an understanding to the contrary, implies an agreement on the tenant's part to pay a reasonable rent for the occupation [Ross v. Long Beach (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 258, 263, 148 P.2d 649 ; Meyer v. Parobek (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 509, 513, 259 P.2d 948] .

If the occupancy is without the owner's consent, such as when a former tenant holds over after the end of a term against the owner's wishes, an action in unlawful detainer may be appropriate [see Ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Actions].

For a form of complaint and discussion of an action for rent under an oral lease, see § 334.80.

4. This lease was for a term of _____ [number] year(s) which term expired on _____ [date].

5. On expiration of the lease's term, defendant remained and continued in possession of the leased premises until _____ [date], thereby extending his/her original tenancy for such additional period on a month-to-month basis and on the same terms and conditions as provided in the lease.

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use in an action to recover rent when the lessee under a written lease holds over after expiration of the term with the owner's consent and the lease contained no express provision on holding over.

PRACTICE TIP:
Attorney's Fees. If the lease had an attorney's fee provision, that also carries over, and plaintiff should therefore seek attorney's fees. By Myron Moskovitz

[3] Implied Renewal of Lease

If a lessee of real property remains in possession of the property after the expiration of the hiring, and the lessor accepts rent from him or her, the parties are presumed to have renewed the hiring on the same terms and for the same time, not exceeding one month when the rent is payable monthly nor in any case one year [Civ. Code § 1945].

[4] Extension Versus Renewal

Although Civ. Code § 1945 speaks of a "renewed" hiring, a holding over such as described is an extension [see Woods v. Bank of Haywards (1909) 10 Cal. App. 93, 96, 106 P. 730] . A lease's renewal creates a new and distinct tenancy whereas an extension is the stretching or spreading out of a former term [Burroughs v. Ben's Auto Park, Inc. (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 449, 454, 164 P.2d 897 ; Smith v. Arthur D. Little, Inc. (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 391, 399, 81 Cal. Rptr. 140] .

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use in an action for rent when a lessee holds over after the expiration of the term of a written lease and an express provision in the lease governs the extension.

[3] Requirements for Automatic Extension of Residential Lease

Any term of a lease executed after June 30, 1966 for the hiring of residential real property which provides for the automatic renewal or extension of the lease for all or part of the full term of the lease if the lessee remains in possession after the expiration of the lease or fails to give notice of his or her intent not to renew or extend before the expiration of the lease is voidable by the party who did not prepare the lease unless the renewal or extension provision appears in at least eight-point boldface type, if the contract is printed, in the body of the lease agreement, and a recital of the fact that such provision is contained in the body of the agreement appears in at least eight-point boldface type, if the contract is printed, immediately before the place where the lessee executes the agreement. In this case the presumption in Civ. Code § 1945 (implied renewal of hiring) applies [Civ. Code § 1945.5].

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8)].

If the action is a limited civil case, the caption must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 and must also identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

[4] Allegations

A complaint for damages for breach of a lease agreement must allege the following [see Civ. Code § 3300]:

- Duty;
- Breach of duty;
- Proximate cause;
- Detriment; and
- Damages.

Duty is established by alleging the lease's execution between the owner (or other person having a right to let the premises) and the renter and the relevant terms of the lease (Paragraphs 1, 3). Breach of duty is established by pleading the defendant's breach of a covenant or condition of the lease (Paragraph 4). Proximate cause may be alleged generally, by stating that the breach proximately caused specified detriment or that as a proximate result of the breach plaintiff sustained specified detriment, which is the loss or harm suffered in person or property (Paragraphs 9-13) [see Civ. Code §§ 1952.1(a)(1)-(4) (measure of damages for abandonment of lease), 3281 (detriment is compensable in damages), 3282 (defining detriment)]. In addition to the above elements, a complaint based on the lessee's breach of the lease and abandonment of the property must also allege the lessee's abandonment of the premises, which automatically terminates the lease (Paragraph 5 or alternative Paragraphs 5, 6) [see Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)].

The above complaint also includes an allegation of the capacity of a defendant that is not a natural person, and the city and county of the defendant entity's principal place of business or of a defendant natural person's residence (Paragraph 1). The latter allegations establish venue or subvenue, although facts establishing venue or subvenue are not normally required to be alleged. For a discussion of venue, see Ch. 571, Venue . For forms of allegations of plaintiff's capacity that should be used if plaintiff is other than a natural person or is a natural person suing in a representative capacity, see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used .

[5] Damages

The detriment caused by the breach of an obligation to pay money only is deemed to be the amount due by the terms of the obligation with interest on that amount (Paragraphs 9, 10) [Civ. Code § 3302; see Civ. Code § 1951.2(b) (recovery of interest on rent accruing before judgment in action for damages based on breach of a lease and abandonment expressly authorized)].

Specifically, plaintiff may recover damages for the unpaid rent that had been earned at the time of termination (Paragraph 9) [Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)(1)]. Plaintiff may also recover the amount that would have been earned between the time of termination and the time of the judgment to the extent it exceeds the amount the lessee proves could have been reasonably avoided (Paragraph 10) [Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)(2)].

To recover damages based on loss of rent between the time of the judgment and the end of the term, or any shorter period specified in the lease, plaintiff must either allege that the lease included a provision as alleged in Paragraph 7 of the above form or that plaintiff reasonably and in good faith relet the premises after the abandonment for an amount less than the rental under the abandoned lease. If Paragraph 7 or Paragraph 8 is included, Paragraph 11, which calculates the damages due under either of those paragraphs, should also be included [see Civ. Code § 1951.2(a)(3), (c), (d)].

Any additional consequential damages that are clearly ascertainable in both their nature and origin may also be sought if the specific damage or detriment sustained, together with the amount of damages sought, are alleged in the body of the complaint (Paragraphs 12, 13) [see Civ. Code §§ 3300, 3301].

[6] Abandonment

Property is deemed abandoned following the lessor's notice of belief of abandonment and his or her subsequent failure to receive from the lessee a notice of intention not to abandon [see Civ. Code § 1951.3].

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use to bring an action to recover rent when the lessee breaches the lease and abandons the property before the end of the lease term [see Civ. Code §§ 1951.2, 1951.3], but the lease, including the lessor's right to recover rent, continues in effect under Civ. Code § 1951.4 [see § 332.24[4][h]].

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges the following:

- The lease provision that continues the lease in effect in the event of the lessee's breach of the lease and abandonment of the premises so long as the lessor does not terminate the lessee's right to possession (Paragraph 5) [see Civ. Code § 1951.4(a), (b)].

- That the lease either does not contain any prohibition on transfer or assignment of the lessee's interest or that it permits the lessee to sublet or assign the property or both (Paragraph 5) [Civ. Code § 1951.4(b)(1)-(3); see Civ. Code § 1951.4(b)(3) (requirement that landlord's consent may not be unreasonably withheld may be provided in lease or implied by law)].

- That the plaintiff has not terminated the defendant's right to possession (Paragraph 6) [Civ. Code § 1951.4(b)].

- That rent has become due under the terms of the lease that, to plaintiff's damage, defendant has failed and refused to pay (Paragraph 7) [Civ. Code § 1951.4(b)].

[4] Acts Not Constituting Termination of Lessee's Right to Possession

None of the following constitute a termination of the lessee's right to possession for the purposes of Civ. Code § 1951.4(b) [Civ. Code § 1951.4(c)]:

- Acts of maintenance or preservation or efforts to relet the property;

- The appointment of a receiver on the lessor's initiative to protect the lessor's interest under the lease; or

- Withholding consent to a subletting or assignment, or terminating a subletting or assignment, if the withholding or termination does not violate the lessee's rights.

[1] FORM Complaint by Landlord Against Tenant for Waste, Treble Damages, and for Temporary Restraining Order, Preliminary Injunction, and Permanent Injunction [Civ. Code § 3422; Code Civ. Proc. § 732]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF _____

Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES AND FOR IN-
_____ [name],	)	JUNCTIVE RELIEF
Defendant.	)	(Waste)

Plaintiff alleges:

1. At all times mentioned in this complaint, plaintiff was and now is the owner of certain premises known as _____ [street address and city], California, more particularly described as follows: _____ [legal description].

2. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff leased to defendant _____ [name] the above premises for use as _____ [specify, e.g., a dwelling] _____ [either under a lease in writing, a copy of which is attached to this complaint as Exhibit A and made a part of this complaint or under an oral lease].

3. Under the terms of the lease, on _____ [date], the defendant entered into possession of the premises and has remained in possession ever since.

4. Commencing on or about _____ [date], and since that time, defendant has caused injury to the premises by committing waste thereon by _____ [specify defendant's acts or omissions constituting waste].

5. Before the commencement of defendant's conduct, the above-described premises had a reasonable market value of $_____; presently, its reasonable market value is $_____.

6. Each act and omission of defendant as alleged above was done intentionally and over plaintiff's objection. Defendant willfully and maliciously engaged in this conduct with the full knowledge that it would result in substantial damage to the premises and plaintiff's interest in the premises. Therefore, plaintiff is entitled to recover treble damages from defendant.

7. Plaintiff's property will be further wasted, resulting in a multiplicity of judicial proceedings, unless defendant's conduct is forthwith and henceforth enjoined.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For actual damages in the sum of $_____, to be trebled in accordance with Code of Civil Procedure Section 732 for total damages in the sum of $_____.

2. For a temporary restraining order, preliminary injunction, and permanent injunction compelling the defendant to refrain from _____ [specify acts or omissions constituting waste].

3. For costs of suit herein incurred.

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[Verification, if desired. See § 334.80[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by a landlord against a tenant for damages and a permanent injunction when the tenant has caused and is continuing to cause waste to the leased premises. The commission of waste by a tenant contrary to the conditions or covenants of his or her lease is a basis for bringing an unlawful detainer action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(4)].

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges the creation of the tenancy by lease (Paragraph 2) and the defendant's possession under the lease (Paragraph 3), the acts of defendant that constitute waste (Paragraph 4), the amount of depreciation of the market value of the property (Paragraph 5) [see Sallee v. Daneri (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 324, 327, 121 P.2d 781] , the fact that defendant acted willfully and maliciously which thus entitles plaintiff to treble damages (Paragraph 6) [Code Civ. Proc. § 732; see Isom v. Rex Crude Oil Co. (1903) 140 Cal. 678, 680, 74 P. 294] , and the fact that defendant will continue to commit waste unless enjoined (Paragraph 7) [see Civ. Code § 3422].

[4] Verification

Verification [Code Civ. Proc. § 446] is required if plaintiff seeks a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction on a complaint instead of on affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union(1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581] . Verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer in a superior court action other than a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446] and precludes a general denial in superior court and some limited civil cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[5] Jurisdiction and Venue

Since the action for damages for waste is combined with a request for a permanent injunction, jurisdiction lies exclusively in the superior court, even if a preliminary injunction or temporary restraining order is also sought [Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(8)]. An action seeking permanent injunctive relief is in the jurisdiction of the superior court and is not a limited civil action [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8)]. If, however, plaintiff decides to seek injunctive relief in the form of a preliminary injunction or temporary restraining order only, then the case is a limited civil action if the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less [Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(1), (8)].

The venue for an action for damage to real property is the county where the property is situated [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1)].

[6] Definition of Waste

Waste has been defined judicially as an unlawful act or omission of duty on the tenant's part that results in permanent injury to the leased premises [Southern Pacific Land Co. v. Kiggins (1930) 110 Cal. App. 56, 60-61, 293 P. 708] . By statute, the hirer of a thing must use ordinary care for its preservation in safety and in good condition [Civ. Code § 1928] and he or she must repair all deteriorations or injuries thereto occasioned by his or her want of ordinary care [Civ. Code § 1929].

[7] Remedies for Waste

The commission of waste by a tenant may be ground for an action for damages by the landlord [Richards v. Silveria (1929) 97 Cal. App. 166, 168, 275 P. 478] . Also, an injunction may be obtained to restrain a tenant from practices that amount to waste [Taft v. Washington (1915) 29 Cal. App. 197, 198, 154 P. 1073] . When a tenant commits waste on the demised premises contrary to the condition or covenants of his or her lease, he or she terminates the lease, and the landlord, on service of three days' notice to quit, is entitled to restitution of possession of the premises [Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(4)].

If the waste consists of using the premises for purposes other than those for which it was let, the lease may be rescinded by the landlord [Isom v. Rex Crude Oil Co. (1905) 147 Cal. 659, 661-662, 82 P. 317] .

When real property has been sold in accordance with a levy, the purchaser of the property, or any person who has succeeded to the purchaser's interest, may recover damages from the person causing the injury for injury to the property after levy and before possession is delivered to the purchaser or the person who has succeeded to the purchaser's interest

[Code Civ. Proc. § 746].

[8] Measure of Damages

Ordinarily, the amount of damages recovered for a tenant's waste is the pecuniary measure of the diminution of the estate [Southern Pacific Land Co. v. Kiggins (1930) 110 Cal. App. 56, 61, 293 P. 708] or the value of dilapidations amounting to more than ordinary wear and use [Kanner v. Globe Bottling Co. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 559, 566, 568, 78 Cal. Rptr. 25] .

The statute of limitations on actions for damage to real property is three years [Code Civ. Proc. § 338(b)].

[9] Treble Damages

If a guardian, conservator, tenant for life or years, joint tenant, or tenant in common of real property, commits waste on the property, any person aggrieved by the waste may bring an action against him or her therefor, in which action there may be judgment for treble damages [Code Civ. Proc. § 732]. These damages are not mandatory in character and contemplate a showing of willfulness or maliciousness. Whether the damages should be trebled is left to the court's discretion [Kanner v. Globe Bottling Co. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 559, 568, 78 Cal. Rptr. 25] . Treble damages are also specifically provided by statute for the cutting of timber [Civ. Code § 3346; Code Civ. Proc. § 733].

[10] Alterations by Tenant

The right of a tenant to make any alterations to leased premises depends on the specific terms of the lease agreement. A tenant may not make material alterations to the leased premises without the landlord's prior consent, absent an express provision in the lease permitting or requiring such alterations. Unauthorized alterations may constitute waste, even if they enhance the property's value, because the policy is that the demised property ought to be returned on termination of the leasehold in the same condition as when leased. A tenant may, however, still make minor alterations to leased premises without violating a lease specifically prohibiting alterations by the tenant [Briggs v. Sherman (1924) 65 Cal. App. 249, 252, 223 P. 581] . Whether an alteration is material or minor is a question of fact to be determined by looking to the lease as a whole and any specific provisions regarding alterations [Glenn R. Sewell Sheet Metal, Inc. v. Loverde (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 666, 674, 75 Cal. Rptr. 889, 451 P.2d 721] .

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 334.80[1], P 1.]

2. [Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 334.80[1], P 2.]

3. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff leased to defendant under a lease in writing, for operation by defendant of a business of _____ [specify], certain premises known as _____ [street address and city], California, and more particularly described as follows: _____ [legal description]. A copy of the lease is attached to this complaint as Exhibit A and made a part of this complaint.

4. [The lease contained provisions relating to the making of and right to remove alterations, repairs, additions, and improvements to the leased premises by defendant, (as more particularly set out in Paragraph _____ of the lease or as follows: _____).]

5. During the term of the lease defendant affixed a certain article to the leased premises as follows: _____ [specify, showing nature of article and manner of annexation].

[EITHER]

6. The lease's term _____ [either will expire or expired] on _____ [date].

[OR]

6. Defendant's tenancy of the leased premises has been terminated, effective _____ [date] by reason of the following facts: _____ [specify, e.g., defendant abandoned the premises on or about _____ (date), which was before the end of the term].

[CONTINUE]

7. An actual controversy has arisen and now exists between plaintiff and defendant relating to their respective legal rights and duties as to the article so affixed to the leased premises by defendant. More particularly, the controversy raises the following opposing contentions:

A. Plaintiff contends:

[SET OUT contentions in as many subparagraphs as needed, e.g.:]

(1) By reason of the manner in which the article was affixed to the premises, it became and is an integral part of the premises.

(2) The article cannot be removed without injury to the premises.

(3) Title to the article vested in plaintiff under the provisions of the lease set forth above.

(4) Even if the article were impliedly intended to be removable, defendant's default and plaintiff's reentry for breach of condition forfeited any claim defendant might have asserted as to right of removal.

(5) The affixing of the article to the leased premises by defendant was part of the consideration for the lease, and removal would deprive plaintiff of a part of the consideration.

[CONTINUE]

B. Defendant contends:

[SET OUT contentions in as many subparagraphs as needed, e.g.:]

(1) Defendant affixed the article to the leased premises for the purposes of trade, and as such it has remained a trade fixture removable by defendant during the term's continuance, which has not expired.

(2) The article has not been affixed to the premises in any manner whereby it has become an integral part of the premises.

(3) Removal of the article can be effected without injury to the premises.

(4) The parties intended that the article be removable, and affixing it to the premises permanently was not a part of the lease's consideration.

(5) Defendant retained a right under the lease provisions set forth above to remove such article, and that this is a presently subsisting right.]

[CONTINUE]

8. Plaintiff desires a declaration of his/her rights and duties, and particularly a declaration as to whether the article is an integral part of the premises or otherwise nonremovable, or whether it is a removable trade fixture.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For a determination and declaration that the article specified above is an integral part of the real property or is otherwise nonremovable and belongs as such to plaintiff.

2. For costs of suit herein incurred.

3. For such other further relief as the court deems proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by a landlord who seeks a judicial declaration that a certain improvement affixed to the leased premises is a fixture and cannot be removed by the tenant. The complaint alleges the lease of the premises (Paragraph 3), the affixing of the article (Paragraph 5), and facts showing the existence of an actual controversy relating to the legal rights and duties of the respective parties under the lease (Paragraphs 7, 8) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060].

Although this form is designed for a landlord, it may be modified for use by a plaintiff tenant.

When a landlord sues seeking declaratory relief, the action may be combined with a cause of action to quiet title [see, e.g., Rinaldi v. Goller (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 276, 309 P.2d 451 ; see also Ch. 482, Quieting Title].

[3] Declaratory Relief

Any person interested under a written instrument, excluding a will or a trust, or under a contract, or who desires a declaration of his or her rights or duties with regard to another, or in regard to, in, over, or on property, may, in cases of actual controversy relating to the legal rights and duties of the respective parties, bring an original action or cross-complaint in the superior court for a declaration of his or her rights and duties in the premises, including a determination of any question of construction or validity arising under the instrument or contract [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060; see Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(7)(A) (actions for declaratory relief in limited civil cases available only by means of a cross-complaint); see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86, 86.1 (limited civil case is one in which amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less)]. He or she may ask for a declaration of rights or duties, either alone or with other relief; and the court may make a binding declaration of these rights or duties, whether or not further relief is or could be claimed at the time. The declaration may be either affirmative or negative in form and effect, and the declaration has the force of a final judgment. The declaration may be had before there has been any breach of the obligation in regard to which the declaration is sought [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060].

[4] Fixtures

Fixtures are those things that are so attached to realty as to be considered in law a part of the realty [R. Barcroft & Sons Co. v. Cullen (1933) 217 Cal. 708, 711, 20 P.2d 665] . When a person affixes his or her property to the land of another, without an agreement permitting him or her to remove it, the thing affixed, except as otherwise provided in Civ. Code §§ 1013-1019 (trade fixtures), belongs to the owner of the land, unless he or she chooses to require the former to remove it or the former elects to exercise the right of removal provided for in Civ. Code § 1013.5 (good-faith mistake in affixing property) [Civ. Code § 1013]. Fixtures may not be removed by a tenant at the expiration or termination of the tenant's term [Clark v. Talmadge (1937) 23 Cal. App. 2d 703, 706, 74 P.2d 825] . However, the parties may expressly agree that the tenant may remove the improvements and the lessor is bound thereby [Clark v. Talmadge (1937) 23 Cal. App. 2d 703, 706-707, 74 P.2d 825 ; Earle v. Kelly (1913) 21 Cal. App. 480, 483, 132 P. 262] . A special agreement between landlord and tenant regarding fixtures supersedes the general rules of law regulating their mutual relations and obligations [Bridges v. Cal-Pacific Leasing Co. (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 118, 128, 93 Cal. Rptr. 796] .

[5] Property Character

Fixtures installed by a tenant are considered real property and become the landlord's property on termination of the tenancy except when there is an agreement permitting their removal or when they are affixed for the purpose of trade and the removal can be effected without injury to the premises [Beverly Hills v. Albright (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 562, 568, 7 Cal. Rptr. 706] . When an owner and tenant agree that improvements on the land are the tenant's property, these improvements, even if buildings or homes, lose their nature as real property and become the tenant's personal property [People ex rel. Thain v. Palo Alto (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 400, 402, 78 Cal. Rptr. 240] .

[6] Tests for Determining Fixture

There are three main factors in determining whether an article is a fixture: physical annexation, adaptation to use with real property, and intention to annex to realty. Of these, intention is the most significant but the others are also relevant [Rinaldi v. Goller (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 276, 279, 309 P.2d 451 ; Allstate Ins. Co. v. County of Los Angeles (1984) 161 Cal.App. 3d 877, 885-886, 207 Cal. Rptr. 888 ; Cornell v. Sennes (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 126, 132, 95 Cal. Rptr. 728] . The widely accepted view is that the united application of all three tests is required, but even this will not suffice in all situations. There are other factors, including the relationship of the claiming parties, the relative difficulty of removal, the nature of the article annexed, and whether the fact of annexation is open and apparent [Cornell v. Sennes (1971) 18

Cal. App. 3d 126, 132, 95 Cal. Rptr. 728] . In any given case, whether or not an article annexed to real property is a fixture is a question of fact to be determined on the evidence [Banks v. Clintworth (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 789, 793, 20 Cal. Rptr. 431] .

A thing is deemed to be affixed to land when it is [Civ. Code § 660]:

- Attached to it by roots, as in the case of trees, vines, or shrubs;
- Imbedded in it, as in the case of walls;
- Permanently resting on it, as in the case of buildings; or
- Permanently attached to what is thus permanent, as by means of cement, plaster, nails, bolts, or screws.

However, for the purposes of sale, emblements, industrial growing crops, and things attached to or forming part of the land, which are agreed to be severed before sale or under the contract of sale, are treated as goods and are governed by the provisions of the Civil Code regulating the sales of goods [Civ. Code § 660].

A building does not have to be physically anchored to the land to be affixed. Attachment by force of gravity is sufficient [Rinaldi v. Goller (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 276, 279-280, 309 P.2d 451] . However, annexation by weight and gravity is not necessarily sufficient to indicate an intention to affix the article. It must also appear from the nature of the article that it would naturally and necessarily be annexed to and become a permanent and integral part of the realty, or in other words that the article would become essential to the ordinary and convenient use of the realty [M.P. Moller, Inc. v. Wilson (1936) 8 Cal. 2d 31, 38, 63 P.2d 818] . Nor is the fact that the article is fastened to the realty by bolts or nails necessarily determinative that the article has become a fixture [Kruse Metals Mfg. Co. v. Utility Trailer Mfg. Co. (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 176, 180, 23 Cal. Rptr. 514] .

To make an article a permanent accession to the land, its annexation need not be perpetual. It is sufficient if the article appears to be intended to remain where fastened until worn out, unless the purpose to which the realty is devoted has been accomplished or until the article is superseded by another article more suitable for the purpose [Collins Elec. Co. v. Shasta County (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 864, 868, 101 Cal. Rptr. 285 ; Ventura County v. Channel Islands State Bank (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 240, 248, 59 Cal. Rptr. 404] .

Portions of equipment not attached to the realty but that are used with and essential to other portions attached to the realty constitute a unit and are constructively annexed [Pajaro Valley Bank v. Santa Cruz County (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 621, 627, 24 Cal. Rptr. 639] .

[7] Taxes

The tenant is liable for a tax increase caused by the improvements he or she erected when the improvements are removable by the tenant during the lease's term even though it is unlikely that he or she will remove the improvements [Lawrence v. F.W. Woolworth Co. (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 119, 122-123, 45 Cal. Rptr. 140, 403 P.2d 396] .

[8] Express Agreements Regarding Fixtures

[a] In General

When there is an express agreement giving the lessee the right to remove improvements, this right applies even when the lease is ended before its expiration date because of a failure to pay rent [Clark v. Talmadge (1937) 23 Cal. App. 2d

703, 707, 74 P.2d 825] .

[b] Effect of Extension or Renewal of Lease

When a lease provides that the tenant may remove the fixtures that he or she installs and the tenant remains in possession with the lessor's permission from month-to-month after the lease expires, the continued occupancy is regarded as an extension of the lease and the parties are deemed to have assented to the original lease's terms, including the right to remove the fixtures [Knox v. Wolfe (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 494, 500, 167 P.2d 3] . However, if a tenant remains in possession under a new lease, he or she should be careful to reserve the right to remove fixtures or else the right will be lost [see Schlageter Estate Co. v. Koontz (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 814, 819, 218 P.2d 814] .

[9] Trade Fixtures

[a] Statutory Rule

A tenant may remove from the demised premises, any time during the continuance of his or her term, anything affixed to these premises for purposes of trade, manufacture, ornament, or domestic use, if the removal can be effected without injury to the premises, unless the thing has, by the manner in which it is affixed, become an integral part of the premises [Civ. Code § 1019].

A trade fixture is merely a particular type of fixture for which the law makes a special provision permitting its removal under certain circumstances by a lessee from the lessor's real property to which it has been annexed [Trabue Pittman Corp. v. Los Angeles County (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 385, 393, 175 P.2d 512] . Even if the tenant is dispossessed, he or she has a right under the statute to remove the fixtures [Bright v. Gineste (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 725, 732, 284 P.2d 839 (dictum)], but the statutory provision does not apply when it is superseded by express provisions in the lease [see Renner v. Huntington etc. Oil & Gas Co. (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 93, 103, 244 P.2d 895] .

Although the term "trade fixture" is usually applied to tools, implements, and other items more readily movable than a building, it also includes a structure erected by the tenant on the demised premises for purposes of trade, and the tenant may exercise his or her right of removal at his or her will at any time before the end of the term [Roberts v. Mills (1922) 56 Cal. App. 556, 560, 205 P. 872] .

[b] Removal

If trade fixtures are not removed during the term of the tenancy or within a reasonable time thereafter, they remain part of the realty [Trabue Pittman Corp. v. Los Angeles County (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 385, 394, 175 P.2d 512] . A mortgagee from a tenant has no greater right to remove trade fixtures from the premises after the tenant has surrendered possession to the landlord than the tenant would have [Rinaldi v. Goller (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 276, 281, 309 P.2d 451] .

A lessor and lessee may covenant away any rights that they might otherwise have under the trade fixture rule [Wilmerton v. Morton (1946) 74 Cal. App. 2d 891, 894, 169 P.2d 992] . Furthermore, the trade fixture provision of Civ. Code § 1019, permitting the tenant to remove trade fixtures during the lease's term, is not applicable when the lease is terminated because of a broken covenant and the right of reentry has attached and been exercised [Rinaldi v. Goller (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 276, 282-283, 309 P.2d 451] .

[c] Time for Removal

In the absence of an express agreement in the lease, improvements are required to be removed during the continuance of the term as a condition to the right of removal [Rinaldi v. Goller (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 276, 282].

A tenant who has an express agreement permitting him or her to remove fixtures has a larger right as to the time within which they must be removed than is the case when no such agreement exists, and he or she may remove them within a reasonable time after the expiration of his or her term [Weisberg v. Loughridge (1967) 253 Cal. App. 2d 416, 432, 61 Cal. Rptr. 563] .

[10] Wrongful Removal of Fixtures

[a] Treated as Personalty

If a fixture is wrongfully severed, the owner of the property can at his or her option treat the severed property as personalty and recover it by an action in replevin [Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 606, 328 P.2d 953] or recover damages for its conversion [see Sill Properties, Inc. v. CMAG, Inc. (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 42, 33 Cal. Rptr. 155 ; see also Ch. 150, Conversion].

[b] Damages

The general rule is that the measure of damages for the wrongful removal of a fixture is the value of the fixture in place as part of the realty, and not what it would sell for on the open market removed from the building [Cornell v. Sennes (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 126, 135, 95 Cal. Rptr. 728 ; Wilmerton v. Morton (1946) 74 Cal. App. 2d 891, 897, 169 P.2d 992] . However, this general rule is modified by the enactment of Civ. Code § 1013.5 (good-faith mistake) [Cornell v. Sennes (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 126, 135, 95 Cal. Rptr. 728 ; for a form of complaint to enforce a tenant's right to remove fixtures installed in good faith and discussion of the good faith mistake rule, see § 334.65].

[11] Other Tenant's Remedies for Detention of Fixtures

A tenant who has been denied the right to remove fixtures can either bring an action to obtain possession of the fixtures and for damages for their retention by the landlord [see Knox v. Wolfe (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 494, 167 P.2d 3] , or bring an action to quiet title to the fixtures [Lyons v. Emery (1945) 72 Cal. App. 2d 275, 164 P.2d 272 ; see generally Ch. 482, Quieting Title]. If the fixtures have been wrongfully detained by the landlord, the tenant may recover the fixtures, their reasonable rental value for the period the landlord detained them, and punitive damages if they were detained by oppression, intimidation, and malice [Knox v. Wolfe (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 494, 503-504, 167 P.2d 3] . If a tenant obtains a judgment quieting title to fixtures, the degree may stipulate that he or she must remove them within a certain period of time [Lyons v. Emery (1945) 72 Cal. App. 2d 275, 277, 164 P.2d 272] .

When a lessee constructs permanent improvements that he or she has no right to remove, and he or she is wrongfully evicted before the end of the term, the measure of damages is the reasonable value of the improvements for the remaining term [Asell v. Rodrigues (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 817, 826, 108 Cal. Rptr. 566] .

[12] Third-Party Interests in Fixtures

Agreements between a lessor and lessee as to the character of property are binding between the parties and against third persons having actual or constructive notice thereof [Bridges v. Cal-Pacific Leasing Co. (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 118, 129, 93 Cal. Rptr. 796] .

A provision in a lease providing that a tenant may remove improvements is not effective against those not bound by the agreement such as innocent third persons [Trabue Pittman Corp. v. Los Angeles County (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 385, 397, 175 P.2d 512 ; Ventura County v. Channel Islands State Bank (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 240, 249, 59 Cal. Rptr. 404] . It appears that the landlord will only prevail if the third party obtains his or her interest with actual or constructive knowledge of the prior rights of the landlord in the property at issue [see Bridges v. Cal-Pacific Leasing Co. (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 118, 130, 93 Cal. Rptr. 796] .

A lessor gains no interest in fixtures that are installed by the lessee but owned by a third party [EAC Credit Corp. v.

Bass (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 645, 651, 98 Cal. Rptr. 681] . Thus, when a lessor seeks to recover property purchased by his or her lessee under a conditional sales contract, the lessor must stand in the shoes of the lessee, and he or she cannot prevail against the conditional vendor unless the lessee could have done so [EAC Credit Corp. v. Bass (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 645, 653, 98 Cal. Rptr. 681] .

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by a fire insurer as the subrogee of its insured (landlord), the subrogor, to recover from the tenant (obligor) the amount plaintiff paid its insured for a fire loss proximately caused by the tenant's breach of covenant or negligence [see Ins. Code § 2071]. If there was no insurance, the form may be adapted for use by the landlord against the tenant based on negligence and breach of contract, and if the tenant was obligated under the lease to procure fire insurance, it could be adapted to include allegations for breach of contract based on the lessee's breach of its covenant to procure fire insurance covering the premises.

If, however, under the terms of the lease or rental agreement, the landlord was required to procure insurance for the mutual benefit of both the landlord and the tenant, the landlord would have no action against the tenant to recover for the fire loss and, the landlord's fire insurer would have no right of subrogation [see Gordon v. J.C. Penney Co. (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 280, 283-285, 86 Cal. Rptr. 604] .

[3] Allegations

[a] Generally

The above complaint alleges the following:

- The plaintiff's legal capacity and authority to engage in the insurance business as a particular class of insurer (Paragraph 1).
- The identity of the subrogor (Paragraph 2).
- The existence of insurance covering the loss (Paragraph 3).
- Defendant's capacity, if other than a natural person, and defendant's business if relevant (Paragraph 4).
- Defendant's possession of the premises under a rental agreement or lease (Paragraph 5).
- The venue of the action (Paragraphs 2, 7) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392(a)(1), 395(a), 395.2, 395.5; see also Ch. 571, Venue].
- The defendant's duty to the subrogor, that is, the relationship between the parties giving rise to defendant's duty to exercise due care (Paragraphs 5, 6) [see Civ. Code § 1714(a)].
- The defendant's breach of that duty (Paragraph 7) [see Civ. Code §§ 3300, 3333].
- Proximate causation and detriment (Paragraphs 7-9) [see Civ. Code §§ 3282, 3300, 3333].

- Damages, that is, the measure of the subrogor's loss in terms of money (Paragraphs 8, 9) [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3300, 3333].

- Plaintiff's payment of the loss (Paragraph 10).

[b] Allegation of Subrogation and Underlying Action

A complaint in subrogation must allege not only the relationship between the subrogee and subrogor that obligated the subrogee to make the payment that it made, but must also allege all the elements of the subrogor's cause of action against the obligor [see, e.g., Campan v. Molle (1899) 124 Cal. 415, 416-417, 57 P. 208 ; Iusi v. City Title Ins. Co. (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 582, 586, 28 Cal. Rptr. 893] . It must also allege payment by the subrogee [see Iusi v. City Title Ins. Co. (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 582, 587, 28 Cal. Rptr. 893] .

If the obligor is not liable to the subrogor, the subrogee cannot recover. For example, if it is found in the case of an alleged liability based on negligence that the subrogor's loss or harm was not caused by defendant's negligence, the subrogee cannot prevail [see Breese v. Price (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 923, 930, 176 Cal. Rptr. 791, 633 P.2d 987 ; Mendenhall v. Curtis (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 786, 792, 162 Cal. Rptr. 569] .

For further discussion and additional forms of complaints and defenses for use in subrogated actions, see Ch. 536, Subrogation .

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use in objecting, by demurrer, to a complaint for rent on the ground that the pleading does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] because the action is barred by the statute of limitations [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 337(1), 337.2, 339(1), 339.5]. The defect must appear on the face of the complaint or the ground for objection should be taken by answer rather than by demurrer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a), (b)].

A party filing a demurrer is required to serve and file a supporting memorandum in support of each ground of the demurrer [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); for discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities] and a notice of hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320].

[3] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8)].

If the action is a limited civil case, the caption must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 and must also identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

[4] Statute of Limitations for Leases Executed After July 1, 1971

If a landlord is seeking relief under Civ. Code § 1951.2 based on an oral lease, the action must be brought within two years of the breach and abandonment of the property, or within two years after the termination of the right of the tenant to possession of the property, whichever is the earlier time [Code Civ. Proc. § 339.5]. If the landlord is seeking relief under Civ. Code § 1951.2 based on a written lease, the action must be brought within four years of the breach and abandonment of the property, or within four years of the termination of the tenant's right to possession, whichever is the earlier time [Code Civ. Proc. § 337.2].

[5] Statute of Limitations for Leases Executed Before July 1, 1971

A lease executed before July 1, 1971, or one in which the terms of the lease were fixed before that date, is not governed by Civ. Code § 1951.2 [Civ. Code § 1952.2]. The period of limitation for commencing an action based on these leases when there was an oral contract is two years from the date the cause of action arose [Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1); Tillson v. Peters (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 671, 679, 107 P.2d 434] . The period for commencing an action based on these leases when there was a written contract is four years [Code Civ. Proc. § 337(1)].
