Defendant was thereby discharged from any further payment of rent for the premises as sued for in this action.

[2] Use of Form

The form of affirmative defense in [1], above, may be used to assert nonliability for rent when the tenant is constructively evicted by the landlord's failure to repair a leased dwelling within a reasonable time after notice of the dilapidations [see Civ. Code §§ 1941, 1942].

For further discussion of constructive evictions, see § 332.11[2][f] and § 334.61[5][g].

[3] No Rent Obligation After Constructive Eviction

Any interference by the landlord by which the tenant is deprived of the beneficial enjoyment of the premises amounts to a constructive eviction if the tenant so elects and surrenders possession, and the tenant is not liable for rentals for the portion of the term following his or her constructive eviction [Kulawitz v. Pacific Woodenware & Paper Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 664, 670, 155 P.2d 24 ; see Clark v. Spiegel (1971) 99 Cal. Rptr. 86 (to avoid further liability for rent, tenant must vacate after constructive eviction)], and he or she is entitled to the return of prepaid rent [Sierad v. Lilly (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 770, 775, 22 Cal. Rptr. 580] .

[4] Waiver of Right to Abandon

If, in the case of an interference with the tenant's beneficial enjoyment of the premises, the tenant does not surrender the premises within a reasonable time after the date of the interference, he or she is deemed to have waived his or her right to abandon. What constitutes a reasonable period of time is a question of fact to be determined by the trier of fact after considering all of the circumstances [Petroleum Collections Inc. v. Swords (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 841, 847-848, 122 Cal. Rptr. 114] .

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that he/she leased the premises for the purpose of conducting a business of _____ [type of business] on the premises.

During defendant's occupancy of the leased premises for this purpose, plaintiff failed to repair facilities under his/her control and which he/she had a duty to repair under the terms of the lease, and this failure to repair rendered the leased premises wholly unfit for the purpose for which leased, as follows: _____ [specify].

By reason of the above, defendant vacated the premises on or about _____ [date].

Defendant was thereby discharged from any further payment of rent for the premises as sued for in this action.

[2] Use of Form

The form of affirmative defense in [1], above, may be used to assert nonliability for rent when the tenant is constructively evicted by the landlord's failure to make repairs that results in rendering the leased premises unfit for the purpose for which leased [see Butt v. Bertola (1952) 110 Cal. App. 2d 128, 130-131, 242 P.2d 32] . Notice may be required by the lease; if so, an allegation of notice to the landlord should be added.

§ 334.112 Affirmative Defense of Discharge From Payment of Rent for Breach of Warranty of Habitability

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense of Discharge From Payment of Rent for Breach of Warranty of Habitability

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that on _____ [date], defendant gave notice to plaintiff that _____ [specify defects in defendant's dwelling constituting breach of warranty of habitability] and asked that plaintiff repair these conditions.

On _____ [date], plaintiff had failed and refused to repair the defects about which he/she had been notified.

Defendant is discharged from the payment of rent in excess of $_____ per month as sued for in this action due to plaintiff's breach of the implied warranty of habitability.

[2] Use of Form

The form of affirmative defense in [1], above, may be used to assert nonliability for rent when the landlord's failure to repair defects in a dwelling after notice constitutes a breach of the implied warranty of habitability.

[3] Warranty of Habitability

A warranty of habitability is implied by law in residential leases in California. Under the implied warranty of habitability, a residential landlord covenants that premises he or she leases for living quarters will be maintained in a habitable state for the duration of the lease. This warranty does not require that a landlord ensure that leased premises are in perfect, aesthetically pleasing condition, but it does mean that "bare living requirements" must be maintained. In most cases, substantial compliance with those applicable building and housing code standards that materially affect health and safety will suffice to meet the landlord's obligations under the common law implied warranty of habitability [Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 631, 637, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168] .

[4] Standards of Tenantability

The standards of tenantability set out in Civ. Code § 1941.1, though not strictly applicable in this context of their own force, provide some helpful guidance in determining whether a landlord has satisfied the common law warranty of habitability [Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 637 n. 23, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168] .

The tenant is entitled to a jury instruction based on the relevant standards of Civ. Code § 1941.1 [Knight v. Hallsthammar (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 46, 57-58, 171 Cal. Rptr. 707, 623 P.2d 268] . An instruction that fails to substantially comply with these standards would constitute a breach [Smith v. David (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 101, 109, 176 Cal. Rptr. 112] .

For a discussion of Civ. Code § 1941.1, see § 332.10[1][b][ii].

[5] Reasonable Time to Repair Not Required

When a landlord has notice of alleged uninhabitable conditions not caused by the tenants, a landlord's breach of the implied warranty of habitability exists whether or not he or she has had a reasonable time to repair [Knight v. Hallsthammar (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 46, 54-55, 171 Cal. Rptr. 707, 623 P.2d 268] .

[6] Notice of Breach Required

The tenant must give notice of alleged defects to the landlord and allow a reasonable time for repairs to be made [Hinson v. Delis (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 62, 70, 102 Cal. Rptr. 661] .

[7] Materiality of Breach

In considering the materiality of an alleged breach, both the seriousness of the claimed defect and the length of time for which it persists are relevant factors. Minor housing code violations standing alone that do not affect habitability must be considered de minimis and will not entitle the tenant to a reduction in rent. Likewise, the violation must be relevant and affect the tenant's apartment or the common areas that he or she uses. Moreover, the contract principle that no one may benefit from his or her own wrong will permit the landlord to defend against damage caused by the tenant's wrongful action [Hinson v. Delis (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 62, 70, 102 Cal. Rptr. 661] .

[8] Rent Obligations

The tenant's duty to pay rent is mutually dependent on the landlord's fulfillment of his of her implied warranty of habitability [Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 635, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168] . The tenant is not absolved from all liability for rent, but remains liable for the reasonable rental value of the premises, as determined by the trial court, for such time as the premises were in violation of the housing codes [Hinson v. Delis (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 62, 70, 102 Cal. Rptr. 661] .

A suggested measure of damages for breach of the implied warranty of habitability is the difference between the fair rental value of the premises if they had been as warranted and the fair rental value of the premises as they were during occupancy by the tenant in the unsafe or unsanitary condition. Trial courts must use all available facts to approximate the fair and reasonable damages under all of the circumstances [Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 638, 639, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168] .

[9] Tenant's Lack of Knowledge of Condition Not Prerequisite

The fact that the tenant had knowledge of the defect at the time he or she occupied the premises does not preclude reliance on breach of the implied warranty of habitability based on the defects of which the tenant had knowledge [

Knight v. Hallsthammar (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 46, 54, 171 Cal. Rptr. 707, 623 P.2d 268] and an instruction stating that plaintiffs continued living in the house did not mean that the premises were habitable [Smith v. David (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 101, 110, 176 Cal. Rptr. 112] .

[10] Change of Ownership Irrelevant

A defense based on the breach of the implied warranty of habitability exists despite the fact that the breach occurred before the present landlord's acquisition of the premises and continued after the change of ownership [Knight v. Hallsthammar (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 46, 55-57, 171 Cal. Rptr. 707, 623 P.2d 268] .

[11] Payment of Rent Into Court

If the tenant claims that all or a part of the rent is not due because of defects in the premises, the trial court may, during the pendency of the action and at the request of either party, require the tenant to make the rental payments at the contract rate into court as they become due for as long as the tenant remains in possession. At the trial of the action the court can then determine how the rent paid into court should be distributed [Hinson v. Delis (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 62, 71, 102 Cal. Rptr. 661] .

[12] Waiver Prohibited

Public policy requires that landlords generally not be permitted to use their superior bargaining power to negate the warranty of habitability rule [Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 625 n. 9, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168] .

The form of affirmative defense in [1], above, may be used to assert nonliability for rent when the leased premises have been destroyed through no fault of the tenant and the tenant has not covenanted to rebuild [see Civ. Code § 1933(4)].

[3] Effect of Covenant to Repair

A general covenant to repair does not prevent a lease's termination when the premises are destroyed [Realty & Rebuilding Co. v. Rea (1920) 184 Cal. 565, 574-578, 194 P. 1024] .

§ 334.116 Affirmative Defense of Discharge From Payment of Rent for Frustration of Purpose of Lease

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense of Discharge From Payment of Rent for Frustration of Purpose of Lease

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that at the time of the execution of the lease, plaintiff and defendant contemplated that the leased premises would be used for the purpose of _____ [specify].

On or about _____ [date], the city of _____ passed an ordinance requiring that _____ [specify ordinance provisions that destroyed the expected value of the leased premises for the purpose intended].

Defendant vacated the premises on _____ [date].

Defendant was thereby discharged from any further payment of rent for the premises as sued for in this action.

[2] Use of Form

The form of affirmative defense in [1], above, may be used to assert nonliability for rent when the purpose for which the premises were leased has been frustrated by an ordinance destroying the expected value of the leased premises for that purpose. The defense should allege that the tenant vacated the premises because to continue in possession would indicate that the premises had at least some value to the tenant.

[3] Frustration as Defense to Action for Rent

The doctrine of commercial frustration applies when the expected value of performance to the party seeking to be excused has been destroyed by a chance event that supervenes to cause an actual, but not literal, failure of consideration [Lloyd v. Murphy (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 48, 53, 153 P.2d 47] . A lessee may seek to apply this doctrine to avoid liability for rent, but it is applied only in extreme cases [see Fey v. Rossi Improvement Co. (1914) 23 Cal. App. 766, 767-768,

139 P. 908] . The purpose supposedly frustrated must have been within the contemplation of both parties to the transaction. It is not sufficient that one of the parties hoped to use the premises in a specific way not mentioned in the lease [Brown v. Oshiro (1945) 68 Cal. App. 2d 393, 396-397, 156 P.2d 976] .

[4] When Lease Does Not Terminate

The lease does not terminate and the frustration of purpose doctrine is not applicable when:

- The event was within the reasonable anticipation of the parties at the time of the drafting of the lease [Mitchell v. Ceazan Tires, Ltd. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 45, 47, 153 P.2d 53] ;

- The lease does not specifically limit the use to which the premises may be put to a use prohibited by a supervening statute [Grace v. Croninger (1936) 12 Cal. App. 2d 603, 605-607, 55 P.2d 940] ;

- A governmental regulation does not entirely prohibit the business to be carried on in the leased premises but only limits or restricts it and thereby makes it less profitable and more difficult to continue [Lloyd v. Murphy (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 48, 56, 153 P.2d 47] ; or

- The tenant has voluntarily assumed the duty of compliance with governmental regulations and is later unable to comply with them [Glenn R. Sewell Sheet Metal, Inc. v. Loverde (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 666, 675-678, 75 Cal. Rptr. 889, 451 P.2d 721] .

PART IV. FORMS
C. Tenant's Defenses to Recovery of Rent

29-334 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 334.117

§ 334.117 Affirmative Defense of Discharge From Payment of Rent for Tenant's Right to Repair and Deduct [Civ. Code § 1942]

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense of Discharge From Payment of Rent for Tenant's Right to Repair and Deduct [Civ. Code § 1942]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that on or about _____ [date], defendant gave notice to plaintiff that _____ [specify dilapidations that landlord had duty to repair].

Plaintiff failed and refused to correct the above conditions. Defendant repaired the conditions on _____ [date] at an expenditure of $_____ [sum not exceeding one month's rent].

Defendant was thereby entitled to deduct this amount from his/her rent and he/she is not liable to plaintiff for the amount as sued for in this action as rent.

Defendant had not previously exercised this remedy more than twice within the 12 months preceding _____ [date].

[2] Use of Form

The form of affirmative defense in [1], above, may be used to assert nonliability for rent when the amount claimed is the amount deducted by the tenant for the cost of repairs that he or she made after the landlord failed to make, despite an obligation to do so and after notice.

[3] Repair and Deduct Remedy

Before defendant may make any repairs and deduct the cost from the rent, the lessee must give notice to the lessor of dilapidations that ought to be repaired, and if the lessor neglects to make these repairs within a reasonable time, the lessee may repair the dilapidations and deduct the costs from the rent if they do not exceed one month's rent of the premises [Civ. Code § 1942(a)]. If a lessee acts to repair and deduct the costs of the repairs after the 30th day following notice to the lessor, the lessee is presumed to have acted after a reasonable time [Civ. Code § 1942(b)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Using Repair and Deduct Remedy. Since repair and deduct is a limited remedy, the strategy should be to utilize it to correct some fundamental condition truly effecting the habitability of the premises. By Benjamin Kaplan

[4] Exercise of Remedy

If the lease or hiring of a dwelling has been renewed by agreement or is presumed to have been renewed under Civ. Code § 1945 on or after January 1, 1980, the remedy of repairing and deducting is available twice in a 12-month period [Civ. Code § 1942(a)]. For any leases entered into and not renewed or presumed to have been renewed before January 1, 1980, the remedy is available only once in a 12-month period [see former Civ. Code § 1942(a)].

[1] FORM

AS A [_____(if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____(specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that on [_____ date], defendant paid for [_____ specify utility] to [_____ name of utility] on plaintiff's behalf at an expenditure of $_____

Defendant was thereby entitled to deduct this amount from his/her rent, per Civil Code Section 1942.2, and he/she is not liable to plaintiff for the amount as sued for in this action as rent.

[2] Use of Form

This form of affirmative defense may be used to assert nonliability for rent when the amount claimed is the amount deducted by the tenant for the cost of utilities that he or she paid but which were the landlord's responsibility to pay.

[3] Remedy for Nonpayment of Utilities

A tenant who has made a payment to a utility pursuant to Pub. Util. Code § 777, 777.1, 10009, 10009.1, 12822, 12822.1, 16481, or 16481.1 may deduct the payment from rent as provided in each of these Public Utility Code sections [Civ. Code § 1942.2].

In general, these Public Utility Code sections provide that when a landlord is the utility customer for individually metered service and the account is in arrears, the utility will give notice directly to the affected occupant in English and specified languages [see Civ. Code § 1932], with the opportunity to become the account customer, bringing the account up to date, before individual utility service is terminated [see, e.g., Pub. Util. Code § 777]. The practitioner should consult the particular code section to determine specific requirements.

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense of Discharge From Payment of Rent for Landlord's Retaliatory Motive [Civ. Code § 1942.5]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that on or about _____ [date], defendant _____ [either gave notice to plaintiff to repair in accordance with Civil Code Section 1942 or filed a written complaint with an appropriate governmental agency to obtain correction of a condition relating to tenantability of his/her leased dwelling].

On _____ [date], plaintiff gave defendant notice that effective _____ [date], defendant's rent would be increased to $_____ per month.

In so raising defendant's rent, plaintiff was retaliating against defendant because of the act(s) mentioned above.

Plaintiff _____ [either has paid or has offered to pay] the original rental of $_____ per month.

Plaintiff is not liable for any rent in excess of the original rental amount.

Defendant has not invoked the provisions of Civil Code Section 1942.5 in the 12 months preceding this action.

[2] Use of Form

This form of affirmative defense may be used to assert nonliability for rent that is the result of a landlord's retaliation against a tenant who exercised his or her rights under Civ. Code § 1942 or because of his or her complaint to an appropriate governmental agency as to the dwelling's tenantability.

PRACTICE TIP:

Protection Afforded by Civ. Code § 1942.5. As Civ. Code § 1942.5 protects the tenant's exercise of any rights granted by the Chapter in which that section is located, and that includes Civ. Code § 1942 (which requires the tenant to notify the landlord of defects on the premises before invoking the repair-and-deduct remedy), § 1942.5 appears to protect the tenant from retaliation for complaining to the landlord about the defects. By Myron Moskovitz

[3] Retaliatory Eviction as Defense

[a] Statutory Authority

Under the provisions of Civ. Code § 1942.5, if the lessor retaliates against the lessee because of the exercise by the lessee of his or her statutory rights set forth in Civ. Code §§ 1940-1954 or because of his or her complaint to an appropriate agency as to a dwelling's tenantability, and if the dwelling's lessee is not in default as to the payment of rent, the lessor may not recover possession of a dwelling in any action or proceeding, cause the lessee to quit involuntarily, increase the rent, or decrease any services within 180 days after [Civ. Code § 1942.5(a)]:

- The date on which the lessee, in good faith, gave notice of dilapidations under Civ. Code § 1942 or made an oral complaint to the lessor regarding tenantability;

- The date on which the lessee, in good faith, filed a written complaint or an oral complaint that is registered or otherwise recorded in writing with an appropriate agency, of which the lessor has notice, for the purpose of obtaining correction of a condition relating to tenancy;

- The date of an inspection or issuance of a citation resulting from a complaint described above, of which the lessor did not have notice;

- The filing of appropriate documents commencing a judicial or arbitration proceeding involving the issue of tenantability; or

- The entry of judgment or the signing of an arbitration award, if any, when in the judicial proceeding or arbitration the issue of tenantability is determined adversely to the lessor.

The 180-day period runs from the latest applicable date [Civ. Code § 1942.5(a)]. The above provisions can be invoked only once in any 12-month period [Civ. Code § 1942.5(b)].

It is also unlawful for a lessor to increase rent, decrease services, cause a lessee to quit involuntarily, bring an action to recover possession, or threaten to do any of these acts for the purpose of retaliating against the lessee because he or she has lawfully organized or participated in a lessees' association or an organization advocating lessees' rights or has lawfully or peacefully exercised any rights under the law. In an action brought by or against the lessee under the rights set out above, the lessee has the burden of producing evidence that the lessor's conduct was in fact retaliatory [Civ. Code § 1942.5(c)]. Because reporting a crime to authorities is lawfully exercising legal rights, a lessee cannot be evicted in retaliation for reporting a crime, especially when the crime was committed by the landlord [Barela v. Superior Court (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 244, 248-254, 178 Cal. Rptr. 618, 636 P.2d 582] .

A lessor may recover possession of a dwelling, increase the rent, or decrease the services within the periods described above if the notice of termination, rent increase, or other act, and any pleading or statement of issues in an arbitration states the ground on which the lessor, in good faith, seeks to do any of the acts. If the statement is controverted, the lessor must establish its truth at the trial or other hearing [Civ. Code § 1942.5(e)].

[b] Case Authority

There is also a common-law defense of retaliatory eviction. Civ. Code § 1942.5(h) explicitly states that the remedies provided by Civ. Code § 1942.5 are in addition to any other remedies provided by statutory or decisional law, and the California Supreme Court has recognized that this provision means that the common-law defense of retaliatory eviction is parallel to and independent of the statutory defense [Barela v. Superior Court (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 244, 250-251, 178 Cal. Rptr. 618, 636 P.2d 582] . The common law defense first arose before the enactment of Civ. Code § 1942.5 in terms of a defense to an eviction in retaliation for a tenant's exercising statutory rights [Schweiger v. Superior Court (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 507, 517-518, 90 Cal. Rptr. 729, 476 P.2d 97 ; see Vargas v. Municipal Court (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 902, 914-915, 150 Cal. Rptr. 918, 587 P.2d 714 (exercise of labor law rights)].

The California Supreme Court later expanded the defense to all situations when, on balance, the public policies furthered by protecting the tenant from eviction outweigh the state's interest in ensuring that unlawful detainer proceedings are truly summary. The expansion came in a case in which the defense allowed an eviction in retaliation for filing a federal lawsuit charging violations of federal farm labor law [S. P. Growers Asso. v. Rodriguez (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 719, 728-729, 131 Cal. Rptr. 761, 552 P.2d 721] .

The defense of retaliatory eviction is available to a commercial tenant such as when it is alleged that the motive for the eviction is the tenant's truthful testimony against the landlord in an action brought by a third party [Custom Parking, Inc. v. Superior Court (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 90, 100-101, 187 Cal. Rptr. 674] .

The existence of this parallel and independent basis for the defense is important when the lessor's acts are not within the provisions of Civ. Code § 1942.5 or when the limitations set forth in Civ. Code § 1942.5 preclude its use.

[4] Retaliatory Eviction as a Cause of Action

A lessee may bring an action for damages against a lessor or his or her agent for violating Civ. Code § 1942.5. For a form and allegations for use in this type of action, see § 334.64.

A preliminary injunction may also be sought to halt a retaliatory eviction [Aweeka v. Bonds (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 278, 282, 97 Cal. Rptr. 650] .

§ 335.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses and contains forms relating to rent control. The chapter focuses on state law that preempts or relates to local residential and commercial rent control ordinances and includes coverage of all of the following:

- The nature and validity of residential rent control ordinances and their primary components [see §§ 335.10 -335.12];
- A residential property owner's right under state law to establish initial and/or subsequent rental rates [see § 335.13];
- State law requirements for establishing and certifying rent levels [see § 335.14];
- General remedies under state law [see § 335.15];
- Prohibitions against compelling a landlord to remain in business ("Ellis Act" prohibitions) [see § 335.16]; and
- Commercial rent control [see § 335.17].

In addition, the chapter includes the following forms:

- A complaint for an action by a tenant against a landlord for eviction based on a fraudulent intent to occupy [see § 335.40].
- A complaint for an action by a tenant against a landlord for failure to refund excess rent charged [see § 335.41].
- Affirmative defenses to an action against a landlord [see §§ 335.42, 335.43].

Chapter 335 LANDLORD AND TENANT: RENT CONTROL
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

29-335 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 335.10

§ 335.10 Governing Statutes

Rent control in California is determined by local option--some cities and counties have enacted residential rent control ordinances, although most have not. For those that have chosen to enact such ordinances, the California Legislature has imposed certain restrictions on local jurisdictions' authority to limit landlords' abilities to raise rents and evict when they like.

Limitations on penalties against persons who are in substantial compliance with rent control ordinances are governed by Civ. Code § 1947.7. The establishment and certification of permissible rent levels for registered units is generally governed by Civ. Code § 1947.8. The Costa-Hawkins Rental Housing Act [Civ. Code §§ 1954.50-1954.535], effective January 1, 1996, grants residential property owners the right to establish the initial rental rate and, in some cases, all subsequent rental rates for designated dwellings or units. Regulation of evictions based on the intended reoccupation by the owner or owner's relatives, and penalties for violation, are governed by Civ. Code § 1947.10. Refunds of excess rent and penalties for failure to refund excesses or intentionally charging above rent ceilings are governed by Civ. Code § 1947.11. Cost of professional services, such as attorneys' fees, incurred by owners of residential units subject to rent control provisions are set forth in Civ. Code § 1947.15; however, Civ. Code § 1947.15 is not operative unless the Costa-Hawkins Rental Housing Act [Civ. Code § 1954.50 et seq.] is repealed [Civ. Code § 1947.15(k)]. Prohibitions against commercial rent control are contained in Civ. Code §§ 1954.25-1954.31. A landlord's right to go out of business despite rent control ordinances is established in the "Ellis Act," Gov. Code § 7060 et seq.

Volume 29: Landlord and Tenant: General Introduction thru Rent Control-Chs. 330-339
Chapter 335 LANDLORD AND TENANT: RENT CONTROL
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

29-335 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 335.11

§ 335.11 Rent Control Provisions

[1] Nature

Residential rent control regulation in California is for the most part within the jurisdiction of local governments, particularly municipalities [see Birkenfeld v. City of Berkeley (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 129, 159-160, 130 Cal. Rptr. 465, 550 P.2d 1001] . Many California cities have enacted residential rent control ordinances, and these regulations vary widely in scope and content.

PRACTICE TIP:

Consult Local Ordinances and Regulations. Before advising a client with regard to any residential rent control issue, counsel should obtain a copy of the applicable local ordinance. As these laws are amended frequently, counsel should confirm that he or she has obtained the current version of any local ordinance. In addition, some rent control boards have enacted regulations that interpret those ordinances. Be sure to consult those regulations too. By Myron Moskovitz and Publisher's Editorial Staff.

In several areas, state law preempts local regulations. For discussion of state laws preempting or supplementing local ordinances, see §§ 335.14 -335.17. For example, the Legislature has declared that state law totally occupies the area of commercial rent control, and that local commercial rent control is prohibited in California [Civ. Code §§ 1954.25, 1954.27(a); see § 335.17]. Therefore, before advising a client with regard to a rent control matter, counsel should determine if state law applies.

Although there is no federal rent control law, federal law preempts local and state regulation in matters relating to Native American reservations [Zachary v. Wilk (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 754, 761-762, 219 Cal. Rptr. 122] and certain federally assisted rental buildings [see 24 C.F.R. Part 246].

PRACTICE TIP:

Consult Rules and Regulations. Often provisions related to both substantive and procedural matters (for example, the required contents of notices or the procedures related to notices) are contained in Rules and Regulations which are not part of the local ordinances themselves. An attorney should carefully review such Rules and Regulations to insure that strict compliance is obtained. Moreover, even if an attorney should determine that certain requirements are preempted by state law (such as a provision requiring the notice to be filed within a specified time after service or that there is no specified penalty for the failure to file), a conservative approach should be taken and compliance be made so as to obviate a tenant's resort to any defense to the action. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[2] Validity

[a] Rent Control as Valid Exercise of Police Power

Rent control regulations are constitutional as a valid exercise of a local entity's police power. Rents may be controlled by a local government even in the absence of an emergency, provided that the regulation is reasonably related to a legitimate governmental purpose such as correction of a housing shortage [Birkenfeld v. City of Berkeley (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 129, 158-160, 130 Cal. Rptr. 465, 550 P.2d 1001] . Rent control laws may properly be passed by initiative, and state legislation is not required to authorize a local government to enact rent control regulations [Birkenfeld v. City of Berkeley (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 129, 140, 130 Cal. Rptr. 465, 550 P.2d 1001] .

[b] When Rent Control Ordinances Are Unconstitutional

A rent control ordinance is unconstitutional if the procedures for rent adjustment are so cumbersome and unrelated to the law's stated purpose as to deprive a landlord of due process of law [Birkenfeld v. City of Berkeley (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 129, 173, 130 Cal. Rptr. 465, 550 P.2d 1001] , or if the law itself has a confiscatory effect on landlords [Birkenfeld v. City of Berkeley (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 129, 165, 130 Cal. Rptr. 465, 550 P.2d 1001 ; Fisher v. City of Berkeley (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 644, 679, 209 Cal. Rptr. 682, 693 P.2d 261 , aff'd, 475 U.S. 260, 106 S. Ct. 1045, 89 L. Ed. 2d 206] .

Confiscatory regulations include (1) ordinances that lower rents below the level required for the measure's stated purpose, and (2) ordinances that do not provide a landlord with a fair return on his or her investment [Fisher v. City of Berkeley (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 644, 686, 209 Cal. Rptr. 682, 693 P.2d 261 , aff'd, 475 U.S. 260, 106 S. Ct. 1045, 89 L. Ed. 2d 206] . A "fair return on investment" is not, however, necessarily synonymous with a "fair return on value" of the property [Fisher v. City of Berkeley (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 644, 679-686, 209 Cal. Rptr. 682, 693 P.2d 261 , aff'd, 475 U.S. 260, 106 S. Ct. 1045, 89 L. Ed. 2d 206] . Further, a local agency may consider financial hardship to the tenant when determining rent increases without depriving a landlord of a fair return on his or her investment [Pennell v. City of San Jose (1988) 485 U.S. 1, 108 S. Ct. 849, 99 L. Ed. 2d 1] .

Civ. Code § 1947.15 provides that, to ensure that owners of residential units subject to rent control ordinances are not precluded or discouraged from obtaining a fair return on their properties because of professional expenses they must incur in the course of administrative proceedings to obtain the rent increases necessary to provide a fair return, the rent control provisions must provide that these professional expenses may be included in any calculation of net operating income and operating expenses used to determine a fair return to the property owner [see Civ. Code § 1947.15; see also § 335.12[3][c]]. However, those professional fees must be included in the fair return calculation only if the rent control ordinance does not include vacancy decontrol [Civ. Code § 1947.15(b)]. In light of the requirement in the Costa-Hawkins Rental Housing Act [Civ. Code § 1954.50 et seq.] that all cities provide for vacancy decontrol, the Legislature amended Civ. Code § 1947.15 to provide that it is not operative unless the Costa-Hawkins Rental Housing Act is repealed [Civ. Code § 1947.15(k)].

[c] When Rent Control Regulations Are Constitutional

Rent control regulations have survived a series of constitutional challenges, based on the following:

- Impairment of contract [see Interstate Marina Development Co. v. County of Los Angeles (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 435, 445-449, 202 Cal. Rptr. 377] ;

- Improper delegation of legislative power [Carson Mobilehome Park Owners' Ass'n v. City of Carson (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 184, 190-191, 197 Cal. Rptr. 284, 672 P.2d 1297] ; and

- Improper delegation of judicial power [McHugh v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 348, 375, 261 Cal. Rptr. 318, 777 P.2d 91 ; Sterling v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 176, 186, 214 Cal. Rptr. 71] .

Imposition of treble damages by a rent control agency is unconstitutional as a violation of the judicial powers clause of the California Constitution [McHugh v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 348, 378-379, 261 Cal. Rptr. 318, 777 P.2d 91] . However, treble damages in cases of wrongful eviction as promulgated by a local ordinance are enforceable if part of the judicial function [see Kelly v. Yee (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 336, 340-342, 261 Cal. Rptr. 568] .

[i] Kavanau v. Santa Monica Rent Control Board

A rent control regulation may effect a taking, even though it leaves the property owner some economically beneficial use of the property [Kavanau v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 761, 774, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672, 941 P.2d 851] . The California Supreme Court has suggested that the analysis used under the due process clause, which focuses on the regulation's impact and investors' ability to earn a fair return, applies to determine whether a price control regulation such as rent control effects a taking [Kavanau v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 761, 773-776, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672, 941 P.2d 851 (enumerating factors for court to consider in determining whether regulation that does not deprive the property owner of all economic use of the property effects a taking); Santa Monica Beach, Ltd. v. Superior Court (1999) 19 Cal. 4th 952, 971, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 93, 968 P.2d 993] .

In Kavanau v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd., the Supreme Court concluded that a landlord's allegations that rent control denied him a fair return on his investment were not sufficient to establish a taking [Kavanau v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 761, 777, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672, 941 P.2d 851] . In that case, the court of appeal had held that a 12 percent limit on rent increases deprived plaintiff landlord of a fair return and thus violated his right to due process. Before the case went to the California Supreme Court, plaintiff dropped the due process cause of action. Thus, the only claim before the Supreme Court was for inverse condemnation. The Supreme Court stated that plaintiff essentially argued that because he lost rental income as a direct result of defendant's unconstitutional application of the 12 percent limit, he had suffered a taking requiring just compensation. Thus, the Court stated that plaintiff was asking it to consider whether a rent regulation that violates a particular property owner's right to due process by depriving him or her of a fair return also necessarily constitutes a taking. However, the Court declined to reach that issue, holding instead that when a due process violation is the sole basis of an asserted taking, a remedy for the due process violation, if available and adequate, is a valuable benefit that satisfies the takings clause. It held that an adjustment of the plaintiff's future rents that took into consideration past confiscatory rents would provide an adequate remedy in that case [Kavanau v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 761, 777-782, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672, 941 P.2d 851] .

The Ninth Circuit has held that California's creation and implementation of the Kavanau process for adjustment of future rents that takes into consideration past confiscatory rents provides an adequate procedure for seeking just compensation, and that the property owner cannot claim a violation of the Just Compensation Clause until it has used the procedure and been denied just compensation [Equity Lifestyle Properties Inc. v. County of San Luis Obispo (9th Cir. 2008) 548 F.3d 1184, 1190-1191].

In Santa Monica Beach, Ltd. v. Superior Court [Santa Monica Beach, Ltd. v. Superior Court (1999) 19 Cal. 4th 952, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 93, 968 P.2d 993] , the California Supreme Court did not decide whether the standard of review for takings claims based on rent control legislation is identical to the rational relationship test employed in other price control schemes. The Court concluded that it was at least clear that the heightened intermediate scrutiny standard articulated by the United States Supreme Court for regulatory takings claims [see Nollan v. California Coastal Comm'n (1987) 483 U.S. 825, 836-837, 107 S. Ct. 3141, 97 L. Ed. 2d 677 (regulation of property effects a taking if it does not substantially advance legitimate state interests); Dolan v. City of Tigard (1994) 512 U.S. 374, 391, 114 S. Ct. 2309, 129 L. Ed. 2d 304] is inapplicable to takings claims based on the general application of rent control laws to an individual landlord [Santa Monica Beach, Ltd. v. Superior Court (1999) 19 Cal. 4th 952, 967, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 93, 968 P.2d 993] . It stated that the standard of review for generally applicable rent control legislation must be at least as deferential as for generally applicable zoning legislation and other legislative land use controls, which means that a party challenging rent control on takings grounds must show that it is an "arbitrary regulation of property rights" [Santa Monica Beach, Ltd. v. Superior Court (1999) 19 Cal. 4th 952, 967, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 93, 968 P.2d 993] .

The Supreme Court concluded that even if the more stringent "substantial interest" test of Nollan and Dolan were applicable, the landlord in Santa Monica Beach, Ltd. failed to establish a taking claim. Even though the landlord alleged that the ordinance failed to advance its stated goals of providing affordable housing for the poor, the elderly, and young families, the landlord did not allege that the rent control ordinance failed to advance the purpose of preventing unreasonable and excessive rent increases, and therefore did not adequately allege that the ordinance failed to advance some legitimate state purpose [Santa Monica Beach, Ltd. v. Superior Court (1999) 19 Cal. 4th 952, 971, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 93, 968 P.2d 993] .

In Galland v. City of Clovis [Galland v. City of Clovis (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 1003, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 711, 16 P.3d 130] , the California Supreme Court addressed the question left open in Kavanau, discussed in [i], above: whether a future rent adjustment also forecloses a suit for damages for violation of a right to constitutional due process under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 [Galland v. City of Clovis (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 1003, 1008, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 711, 16 P.3d 130] . The Court concluded that it does. It held that to recover § 1983 damages for allegedly confiscatory rent regulation, landlords must show that a confiscatory rent ceiling or other rent regulation was imposed and that relief via a writ of mandate and a Kavanau adjustment is inadequate [Galland v. City of Clovis (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 1003, 1025, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 711, 16 P.3d 130] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

29-335 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 335.12

§ 335.12 Local Rent Control Ordinances

[1] Exemptions

Most local rent control ordinances specifically exempt certain rental property from regulation in addition to that property being exempted as a matter of state or federal law preemption. For discussion of state and federal law preemption generally, see § 335.11[1]. For discussion of specific areas of state law preemption, see §§ 335.14 -335.16.

Commonly exempted properties include the following:

- Small, owner-occupied buildings;
- Buildings with fewer than a specified number of units;
- Newly constructed units or buildings;
- Hotel and boarding house rooms rented to transient tenants;
- Luxury units (generally defined with regard to unit size or rent);
- Substantially renovated units;
- Government owned or subsidized units;
- Care facilities (for example, hospitals and nursing homes); and
- Units maintained by nonprofit institutions (for example, school dormitories and religious residential units).

Exemption of specified types of rental units does not constitute a denial of equal protection under either the United States or California Constitutions [Kalaydjian v. City of Los Angeles (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 690, 694, 197 Cal. Rptr. 149 ; Cotati Alliance for Better Housing v. City of Cotati (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 280, 291-293, 195 Cal. Rptr. 825] .

A landlord and tenant may not by mutual agreement exempt rented property from rent control [Gombiner v. Swartz (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1365, 1372, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 83]. Thus, a landlord and tenant could not settle a dispute by modifying the lease to exempt the property from the effect of the Los Angeles Rent Stabilization Ordinance ("RSO"). The RSO prohibits any person from accepting or retaining rent that exceeds the rent set under the RSO's provisions [L.A. Mun. Code, §§ 151.04, 151.10(A)]. It followed that the landlord could not, even with the tenant's acquiescence or by mutual agreement, circumvent that which the law prohibited. An agreement that violates the law is void and unenforceable [Civ. Code §§ 1598, 1599], and a law established for a public reason cannot be contravened by a private agreement [Civ. Code § 3513; Gombiner v. Swartz (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1365, 1372, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 83].

PRACTICE TIP:

Ascertain Exemptions That May Be Available. Exemption provisions vary widely among municipalities, and, before advising a client, counsel should ascertain which exemptions are available. Additionally, counsel should determine whether the applicable ordinance requires a landlord to obtain approval of the rent control board as a precondition to exemption. By Publisher's Editorial Staff.

[2] Registration

Many rent control ordinances require a landlord to register his or her units and pay a registration fee. Additionally, a landlord may be required to provide the rent control agency with information relating to the units, including rental rates. A landlord's failure to comply with registration requirements may preclude him or her from receiving rent adjustments or evicting tenants. Subsequent compliance may or may not entitle a landlord to general rent adjustments lost by prior nonregistration, even when the noncompliance was on the part of a predecessor landlord [see Searle v. City of Berkeley Rent Stabilization Bd. (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1251, 1255-1259, 243 Cal. Rptr. 449 (rent control provision precluding landlords and their successors from recapturing, on later registration, annual rent increases lost by prior nonregistration as neither confiscatory nor a violation of constitutional due process principles)].

[3] Determination of Rent

[a] Base Rent

Most rent control ordinances regulate rents based on rent levels in effect at a specified base date. The base date may be a date before adoption of the rent control ordinance, to avoid incorporating last-minute increases made by landlords in anticipation of price controls [see Birkenfeld v. City of Berkeley (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 129, 166, 130 Cal. Rptr. 465, 550 P.2d 1001 (selection of base date before adoption of rent control initiative appropriate and reasonable)]. Rent increases are implemented through general adjustments, individual adjustments, or a combination of both. For discussion of both types of adjustments, see [b] and [c], below.

[b] General Adjustments

Rent control ordinances provide for general adjustments by which rent increases are implemented, some with and some without the requirement of rent control agency approval. General adjustments may take effect annually, periodically, or after a unit is vacated. The adjustment may be in an amount specified by the ordinance itself, an amount tied to the Consumer Price Index, or an amount determined by the rent control agency. Although a general adjustment provision is not necessarily constitutionally required [Carson Mobilehome Park Owners' Ass'n v. City of Carson (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 184, 194, 197 Cal. Rptr. 284, 672 P.2d 1297] , a rent control ordinance that allows increases only through a cumbersome individual adjustment procedure may be unconstitutional [see Birkenfeld v. City of Berkeley (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 129, 173, 130 Cal. Rptr. 465, 550 P.2d 1001] .

[c] Individual Adjustments; Costs of Professional Services

To ensure that landlords will receive a fair return on their investment, rent control ordinances provide for increases in addition to the general adjustment. These increases may be determined based on a "fair value formula," or based on consideration by the rent control board of specified factors relating to a landlord's costs and income. Additionally, individual increases may be authorized for capital improvements, rehabilitation work, increased utilities costs, and a variety of other reasons. The substantive and procedural requirements of individual adjustment provisions vary widely from jurisdiction to jurisdiction.

Civ. Code § 1947.15 provides that any city, county, or city and county that administers an ordinance or regulation (1) controlling or establising the price at which all or any portion of residential rental units may be offered for rent or (2) controlling the rent adjustment, must permit reasonable expenses, fees, and other costs for professional services to be included in any calculation of net operating income and expenses used to determine a fair return to the property owner. However, professional fees must be included in the fair return calculation only if the rent control ordinance does not include vacancy decontrol [Civ. Code § 1947.15(b); see Civ. Code § 1947.15(i) ("vacancy decontrol" defined)]. In light of the requirement in the Costa-Hawkins Rental Housing Act [Civ. Code § 1954.50 et seq.] that all cities provide for vacancy decontrol [see [4], below], the Legislature amended Civ. Code § 1947.15 to provide that it is not operative unless the Costa-Hawkins Rental Housing Act is repealed [Civ. Code § 1947.15(k)].

[4] Vacancy Decontrol

All California rent control ordinances must provide for vacancy decontrol, which removes restrictions from units when they become vacant [see Civ. Code § 1954.50 et seq. (Costa-Hawkins Rental Housing Act); § 335.13]. On rerental, the units may become subject to rent control again, but rent may be adjusted only from the new base rent. In some municipalities, units vacated under certain circumstances are permanently decontrolled. Generally, vacancy decontrol provisions apply only to voluntary vacancies, or involuntary vacancies based on specified grounds. Additionally, vacancy decontrol may be conditioned on notice to the rent control board and submission of documentation.

A landlord who suffers an informally created tenancy to coexist along with the formally created tenancy may be estopped to claim that the premises became vacant when the formal tenancy ended, if the informal tenancy continued. For example, a lessor permitted the lessee's housemate to occupy a leased house along with the lessee. The housemate had no formal agreement with the lessor, but occasionally paid the rent called for in the lease, which the lessor accepted. When the lessee terminated the lease, the housemate continued to occupy the house, and the lessor made a formal lease agreement with the housemate, at a higher rent. However, it was held that the rent increase was not lawful under the local vacancy decontrol provision because there had been no vacancy. Under the local provision, a tenancy was not required to be formalized by an express agreement, and under state law a tenancy can be created informally by mutual consent and the landlord's acceptance of rent from the tenant [Getz v. City of West Hollywood (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 625, 628-630, 284 Cal. Rptr. 631] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Increasing Rents Under Vacancy Decontrol. Many local jurisdictions provide for a procedure by which a landlord can obtain the right to increase rents pursuant to vacancy decontrol with regard to "informally created tenancies." This procedure may be utilized without prejudice to any right a landlord may have to assert a provision in a written lease providing for there to be no assignment or subletting. Attorneys should consult not only the local ordinance, but the Rules and Regulations as there are usually limitations on the right to exercise such a right which runs for a specified time from the discovery of the "informally created tenancy." The San Francisco Rent Board Rules and Regulations, Section 6.14, is an example of such a provision. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[5] Eviction Control

Most rent control ordinances regulate the grounds on which a landlord may evict a tenant. Eviction control provisions are valid and not preempted by state law, except to the extent that they conflict with the summary nature of state eviction procedures [Birkenfeld v. City of Berkeley (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 129, 151-153, 130 Cal. Rptr. 465, 550 P.2d 1001] . Additionally, local eviction control provisions are preempted by state law to the extent that they attempt to limit a landlord's right to evict tenants in conjunction with withdrawing the property from the rental market [Javidzad v. City of Santa Monica (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 524, 526-527, 251 Cal. Rptr. 350 (superseded by Gov. Code § 7060.7, subd. (b))]. In 1999 the Legislature made it clear that local governments have authority to regulate, 1) the demolition of rental property, and 2) the conversion of non-residential use [Lincoln Place Tenants Assn. v. City of Los Angeles (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 425, 443 ; for additional discussion of the Ellis Act (Gov. Code § 7060 et seq.), which grants landlords the absolute right to go out of business, see § 335.16].

Common permissible grounds for eviction include the following:

- The failure to pay rent [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2) (eviction after service of three-day notice for nonpayment of rent)];
- A tenant's breach and/or failure to cure a breach of a rental covenant;
- Conduct of a tenant constituting a nuisance or causing damage;
- Unlawful use of the rental premises;
- A tenant's refusal to execute an extension or renewal of a lease on terms similar to the expiring agreement;
- Owner or family member occupancy of a unit [see Civ. Code § 1947.10 (requires an owner or family member to occupy the unit for a minimum of six continuous months); see also § 335.15[3]];
- A tenant's refusal to allow the landlord access to the unit;
- An unauthorized sublet; and
- Substantial renovation of the premises.

Some rent control ordinances also authorize defenses to an eviction action by a landlord. Counsel should consider the availability of all these defenses when representing either a landlord or a tenant in an eviction proceeding.

PRACTICE TIP:

"Just Cause" Eviction Requirement. Under state law, a landlord may terminate a month-to-month tenancy for no reason or almost any reason simply by giving the tenant 30-days written notice. But rent control ordinances requiring "just cause" to evict do not permit this, and these ordinances have been held valid and not preempted by state law. Similarly, state law does not require a landlord to renew a lease, and a landlord may evict a tenant who refuses to leave at the end of a lease. But here again, local rent control laws requiring just cause to evict prevent such an eviction. By Myron Moskovitz.

PRACTICE TIP:

Effect of a Tenant's Notice to Terminate. There is a "trap" inherent in most ordinances which relates to the ordinance's failure to provide for a landlord's right to evict if the tenant should provide to the landlord a 30-day notice to terminate a month-to-month tenancy. Although state law provides that a tenant may withdraw such notice within the 30-day period, there is no provision in most ordinances that provides a specified (permissible) grounds for eviction if the tenant gives notice and the 30-day period runs before the tenant decides to remain. A landlord must be acutely aware of this "trap" as the landlord may otherwise be caught in a situation wherein the landlord has rented the premises to a new tenant premised on the former tenant honoring its notice and moving. Some commentators have argued that this constitutes "detrimental reliance" by the landlord on the tenant's notice, and will estop the tenant from contesting an eviction action. However, the non-waiver provisions of most ordinances will probably protect such a tenant from this position.

There are various ways in which a landlord may choose to deal with this type of situation, such as writing a letter to a tenant who gives a notice informing the tenant that the landlord is going to rent the unit premised on the tenant's notice. However, this is not in any way a solution to the problem. It would be wise to have some exculpatory provision in any new written rental agreement with the "new" tenant that provides for the eventuality that the current tenant does not honor its own notice. The better practice is simply to wait until the tenant has vacated before re-letting to a "new" tenant. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[6] Remedies for Violation

Rent control ordinances typically subject noncompliant landlords to criminal and civil liability. All local penalties, however, are subject to a statutory "substantial compliance" defense [Civ. Code § 1947.7; see § 335.15[1]]. Additionally, the California Supreme Court has held that a rent control agency may not properly assess treble damages when adjudicating a tenant's claim for excess rent, as imposition of these damages by a rent control agency is a violation of the judicial powers clause set forth in Cal. Const., art. VI, § 1 [McHugh v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 348, 378-379, 261 Cal. Rptr. 318, 777 P.2d 91] . Similarly, it is a violation of the judicial powers clause for a rent control agency to issue an order authorizing a tenant to withhold rent as a means of recovering excess rent previously charged if the agency does not allow the landlord an opportunity to first obtain judicial review of the order [McHugh v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 348, 376-377, 261 Cal. Rptr. 318, 777 P.2d 91 ; Sylve v. Riley (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 23, 26-27, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 608 ; Floystrup v. City of Berkeley Rent Stabilization Bd. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1309, 1314-1316, 268 Cal. Rptr. 898] . An order authorizing withholding of rent is not unconstitutional if the landlord has an opportunity to challenge it in court, as when the agency stays enforcement of the order for a period of time sufficient to allow the landlord to seek a stay from the courts under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(g) [McHugh v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 348, 376-377, 261 Cal. Rptr. 318, 777 P.2d 91 ; for discussion and forms relating to petitions for mandate to review administrative decisions, see Ch. 474, Availability of Judical Review of Agency Decisions , through Ch. 474C, Procedures in Reviewing Agency Decisions].

PRACTICE TIP:

Mandamus Proceedings. Functionally, practically, most landlords are not going to be in the financial position, nor will they have the economic incentive, to challenge a local Board's ruling by a mandamus proceeding absent involvement of a large number of units, similarly situated. By Benjamin Kaplan.

When the rent control ordinance requires trebling of damages for an unlawful eviction, the ordinance imposes a penalty, and the limitations period is thus the one-year limitation period for actions for penalties [Menefee v. Ostawari (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 239, 243-245, 278 Cal. Rptr. 805 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 340(a)].

When there is an eviction on the basis a relative will take possession, the plaintiff claims the relative did not take possession, and the defendant relies on the statute of limitations, there is a triable issue of fact as to when the appearance of vacancy constitutes inquiry notice of lack of intent to have the relative take possession [Sylve v. Riley (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 23, 26-27, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 608] .

Santa Monica's "tenant harassment" ordinance authorizes civil and criminal penalties against a landlord who maliciously serves a notice of eviction or brings any action to recover possession of a rental unit without a reasonable factual or legal basis [Santa Monica Mun. Code § 4.56.020(i)(1)]. In Action Apartment Assn., Inc. v. City of Santa Monica, the Supreme Court held that parts of the ordinance were preempted by the litigation privilege set forth in Civ. Code § 47(b) [Action Apartment Assn., Inc. v. City of Santa Monica (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 1232, 1243-1250, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 398, 163 P.3d 89] . The litigation privilege conflicted with and thus preempted entirely the provision regarding the filing of an action to recover possession of a rental unit [Action Apartment Assn., Inc. v. City of Santa Monica (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 1232, 1243-1250, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 398, 163 P.3d 89] . However, the privilege preempted only partially the provision concerning service of a notice of eviction. A prelitigation communication is privileged only when it relates to litigation that is contemplated in good faith and under serious consideration, which is an issue of fact. Because a factual inquiry is required in order to determine whether a particular eviction notice is privileged, it was impossible to conclude that the litigation privilege would bar every action arising under the provision of the section authorizing suits based on unfounded notices of eviction [Action Apartment Assn., Inc. v. City of Santa Monica (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 1232, 1251-1252, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 398, 163 P.3d 89] .

The Santa Monica rent control law provides that any landlord who "demands, accepts, receives, or retains any payment of rent in excess of the maximum lawful rent, in violation of" various city ordinances, rules, or regulations pertaining to rent control, "shall be liable in a civil action to the tenant from whom such payments are demanded" [Santa Monica Charter Amend. § 1809]. The tenant is entitled to actual damages based on the amount of the improper demand or receipt of excess rent, attorney's fees and costs, and a civil penalty of treble damages if the landlord acted willfully or with oppression, fraud, or malice. In Bisno v. Douglas Emmett Realty Fund 1988 (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1534, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 492 , the landlord asserted that it was entitled to increase the rent to market rate because the tenant's ex-wife, who was not on the lease, was residing in the unit. The named tenant disputed the increase. The landlord filed an unlawful detainer action, which was ultimately dismissed. The court of appeal held that the Civ. Code § 47(b) litigation privilege barred the named tenant's wrongful eviction action based on the unlawful detainer action, but remanded for retrial the tenant's Charter Amend. § 1809 cause of action based on the landlord's 60-day notice of a demand for a rent increase, which was made under the Costa Hawkins Rental Housing Act [Bisno v. Douglas Emmett Realty Fund 1988 (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1534, 1553, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 492 ; see Civ. Code § 1954.50 et seq.].

Although the landlord in Bisno contended the rent increase notice came within the scope of the privilege because it qualified as a communication made in anticipation of litigation, the court stated that the notice of rent increase was far more attenuated from the ultimate unlawful detainer action than was the wrongful detainer three-day notice to quit, which did come within the privilege [Bisno v. Douglas Emmett Realty Fund 1988 (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1534, 1553, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 492]. First, the 60-day notice requirement applies whenever a landlord demands a rent increase such as that sought by the landlord in Bisno, regardless of the reason, unless a different notification period is required by statute. Because Costa Hawkins does not provide a notice period, the 60-day notice was required [Civ. Code § 827(a), (b)(3), (c); Bisno v. Douglas Emmett Realty Fund 1988 (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1534, 1553, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 492]. Second, although the rent increase was sought pursuant to a statute, at heart Costa Hawkins allows landlords to avoid local rent control ordinances and impose whatever rent they think the market will bear either at the start of a new tenancy or when an existing tenant sublets his or her unit. The court reasoned that the essence of such an arrangement is by far more contractual than statutory, as exemplified by Costa Hawkins's express preference for any contractually agreed rental rate in the event of a sublease [Bisno v. Douglas Emmett Realty Fund 1988 (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1534, 1553, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 492 ; Civ. Code § 1954.53(d)(1)]. The court observed that theoretically, any demand for increased rent could be viewed as a step toward litigation because it is possible a tenant might refuse to comply, leading the landlord to sue. The court concluded that to apply the litigation privilege to such demands without regard to the factual setting would stretch the privilege to its breaking point. Because the central issue in Bisno was factual, namely, whether litigation was contemplated in good faith and under serious consideration at the time the rent increase notice was sent, and had never been litigated, it had to be litigated on remand [Bisno v. Douglas Emmett Realty Fund 1988 (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1534, 1554, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 492].

PRACTICE TIP:

Availability of Civil Lawsuit. A landlord who serves an eviction notice stating a false ground for "good cause" (e.g., a false statement that the landlord intends to occupy the premises) is vulnerable not just to civil penalties imposed by the local rent control board (and possibly criminal penalties), but also to a separate civil lawsuit by the affected tenant. Judgments and settlements in such cases have run into six figures. By Myron Moskovitz.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

29-335 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 335.13

§ 335.13 Residential Property Owner's Right Under State Law to Establish Initial and/or Subsequent Rental Rates

[1] General Applicability and Exclusions

The Costa-Hawkins Rental Housing Act [Civ. Code §§ 1954.50-1954.535] allows an owner of residential real property to establish the initial rental rate and, in some cases, all subsequent rental rates for designated dwellings or units [Civ. Code §§ 1954.52, 1954.53]. For purposes of the Act, "residential real property" is any dwelling or unit that is intended for human habitation [Civ. Code § 1954.51(e)]. "Owner" includes any person, acting as principal or through an agent, having the right to offer residential real property for rent, including the owner's predecessor in interest. The term does not include the owner or operator of a mobilehome park, or the owner of a mobilehome or his or her agent [Civ. Code § 1954.51(b)].

Statutory provisions of the Act permitting an owner to establish the initial and/or subsequent rental rates, discussed in [2] and [3], below, do not apply to any dwelling or unit when the following conditions are met [Civ. Code §§ 1954.52(d), 1954.53(f)]:

- The dwelling or unit has been cited in an inspection report by the appropriate governmental agency as containing serious health, safety, fire, or building code violations, as defined by Health & Safety Code § 17920.3, excluding any violation caused by a disaster [Civ. Code § 1954.53(f)(1)];

- The citation was issued at least 60-days before the date of the vacancy [Civ. Code § 1954.53(f)(2)]; and

- The cited violation had not been abated when the prior tenant vacated and had remained unabated for 60-days or longer. However, the 60-day time period may be extended by the appropriate governmental agency that issued the citation [Civ. Code § 1954.53(f)(3)].

Also, nothing in the provisions may be construed to affect any authority of a public entity that may otherwise exist to regulate or monitor the basis or grounds for a tenant's eviction [Civ. Code §§ 1954.52(c), 1954.53(e)]. However, these provisions do not preserve an oversight role for the local agency when owners implement rent increases pursuant to the Costa-Hawkins Act. Thus, local rent control regulations that imposed criteria not found in the Act for determining whether a vacancy was "voluntary" for purposes of a rent increase, gave the rent board the power to challenge an owner's vacancy rent increase "if a question of fact arises" regarding the correct rent, and placed the burden on the owner to prove that the vacancy was a qualifying vacancy, were held preempted by the Act [Cabina v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 853, 863-864, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 676] .

[2] Right to Establish Initial and Subsequent Rental Rates for Designated Dwelling or Unit

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, but subject to the exceptions described in [1], above, and below, an owner of residential real property may establish the initial and all subsequent rental rates for a dwelling or unit that satisfies any of the following [Civ. Code § 1954.52(a)]:

- Has a certificate of occupancy issued after February 1, 1995;

- Has already been exempt from the residential rental control ordinance of a public entity on or before February 1, 1995, under a local exemption for newly constructed units; or

- Is alienable separate from the title to any other dwelling unit or is a specified subdivided interest in a subdivision [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 11004.5(b), (d), (e) (permitted subdivided interests)], except that any unit or dwelling is excluded if the previous tenancy was terminated by the owner by notice in accordance with Civ. Code § 1946.1 or was terminated on a change in the terms of the tenancy noticed in accordance with Civ. Code § 827. A condominium dwelling or unit that has not been sold separately by the subdivider to a bona fide purchaser for value is also excluded. The initial rent amount of such a unit is the lawful rent in effect on May 7, 2001, unless the rent amount is governed by a different provision of the Act. This exclusion does not apply if the unit meets the first two criteria set forth above or all the condominiums except one have been sold separately by the subdivider to bona fide purchasers for value and the subdivider has occupied the remaining unsold dwelling or unit as his or her principal residence for at least one year after the subdivision occurred [Civ. Code § 1954.52(a)(3)(B)(ii)].

PRACTICE TIP:

"Separately Alienable." "Separately alienable" will relate usually to a single family dwelling, a condominium, or a co-operative apartment. Be aware that local jurisdictions have implemented interpretations that if there are two separately standing dwelling units on one parcel, because each is not "separately alienable," this provision of Costa-Hawkins for exemption from rent control does not apply. By Benjamin Kaplan.

For a dwelling or unit described above whose initial or subsequent rental rates are controlled by an ordinance or charter provision in effect on January 1, 1995, the following apply [Civ. Code § 1954.52(a)]:

- An owner of real property may establish the initial and all subsequent rental rates for all existing and new tenancies in effect on or after January 1, 1999, if the tenancy in effect on or after January 1, 1999, was created between January 1, 1996, and December 31, 1998.

- Beginning on January 1, 1999, an owner of real property may establish the initial and all subsequent rental rates for all new tenancies if the previous tenancy was in effect on December 31, 1995.

- The initial rental rate for a dwelling or unit whose initial rental rate is controlled by an ordinance or charter provision in effect on January 1, 1995 may not, until January 1, 1999, exceed the amount calculated under Civ. Code § 1954.53(c) (described in [3], below). An owner of residential real property may until January 1, 1999, establish the initial rental rate for a dwelling or unit only where the tenant has voluntarily vacated, abandoned, or been evicted in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2) (unlawful detainer action for nonpayment of rent).

However, it should be noted that none of the provisions discussed above apply if the owner has otherwise agreed by contract with a public entity in consideration for certain direct financial contribution or other forms of assistance from the public entity [see Civ. Code § 1954.52(b)].

[3] Right to Establish Initial Rental Rates for Designated Dwelling or Unit

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, but subject to exceptions noted in [1], above, and below, an owner of residential real property may establish the initial rental rate for a dwelling or unit, except when any of the following applies [Civ. Code § 1954.53(a)]:

- The previous tenancy was terminated by the owner by notice in accordance with Civ. Code § 1946.1 or was terminated on a change in the terms of the tenancy noticed under Civ. Code § 827 (except a change permitted by law in the amount of rent or fees). The owner's termination or nonrenewal of a contract or recorded agreement with a governmental agency that provides for a rent limitation to a qualified tenant, is a change in the terms of the tenancy under Civ. Code § 827.

- The owner has otherwise agreed by contract with a public entity in consideration for certain direct financial contribution or other form of assistance [see Civ. Code § 1954.52(b)].

- For a dwelling or unit whose initial rental rate is controlled by an ordinance or charter provision in effect on January 1, 1995, the initial rental rate to be established by the owner may not, until January 1, 1999, exceed the amount prescribed by statute, and discussed below.

The above-listed provisions apply to, and include, renewal of the initial hiring by the same tenant, lessee, authorized subtenant, or authorized sublessee for the entire period of his or her occupancy at the rental rate established for the initial hiring [Civ. Code § 1954.53(b)].

The rental rate of a dwelling or unit whose initial rental rate is controlled by ordinance or charter provision in effect on January 1, 1995, must, until January 1, 1999, be established in accordance with the following formula. When the previous tenant has voluntarily vacated, abandoned, or been evicted in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1161(2) (nonpayment of rent), an owner may, no more than twice, establish the initial rental rate for a dwelling or unit in an amount that is no greater than 15 percent more than the rental rate in effect for the immediately preceding tenancy or in an amount that is 70 percent of the prevailing market rent [Civ. Code § 1954.51(c) ("prevailing market rent" defined)] for comparable units, whichever amount is greater. The initial rental rate established is not to be deemed to substitute for or replace increases in rental rates otherwise authorized pursuant to law [Civ. Code § 1954.53(c)].

In a jurisdiction that controls by ordinance or charter provision the rental rate for a dwelling or unit, an owner who terminates or fails to renew a contract or recorded agreement with a governmental agency that provides for a rent limitation to a qualified tenant may not set an initial rent for three years following the date of termination or nonrenewal. For any new tenancy established during the three-year period, the rental rate for that vacated dwelling or unit must be the same rate as the rent under the terminated or nonrenewed contract or recorded agreement, plus any increases authorized after the termination or nonrenewal of the contract or recorded agreement [Civ. Code § 1954.53(a)(1)(A)]. However, this provision does not apply to any new tenancy of 12 months or more duration established after January 1, 2000, in accordance with the owner's contract or recorded agreement with a governmental agency that provides for a rent limitation to a qualified tenant unless the prior vacancy in that dwelling or unit was based on a nonrenewed or canceled contract or recorded agreement with a governmental agency that provides for a rent

Furthermore, when an owner terminates or fails to renew a contract or recorded agreement with a governmental agency that provides for rent limitations to a qualified tenant, the tenant or tenants who were the beneficiaries of the contract or recorded agreement must be given at least 90 days' written notice of the effective date of the termination and are not obligated to pay more than the tenant's portion of the rent, as calculated under the contract or recorded agreement to be terminated, for 90 days following receipt of the notice of termination or nonrenewal of the contract [Civ. Code § 1954.535; see Apartment Assn. of Los Angeles County, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 119, 132, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 575 (ordinance prohibiting landlords terminating Section 8 housing contract with city housing authority from charging tenant more than tenant's portion of rent under former contract without any time limit is preempted by Civ. Code § 1954.535)]. This requirement applies whether or not the premises are located in a rent controlled jurisdiction [Wasatch Property Management v. Degrate (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 1111, 1121, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 262, 112 P.3d 647] .

A provision of the San Francisco rent control ordinance purporting to limit the amount of rent a landlord could charge for a replacement unit following an owner move-in eviction directly contradicted the provision that "notwithstanding any other provision of law, an owner of residential real property may establish the initial rental rate for a dwelling or unit" [Civ. Code § 1954.53(a)] and therefore was preempted by the Act [Bullard v. San Francisco Rent Stabilization Board (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 488, 492-493, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 819] . The rent restriction did not qualify as a regulation of the "grounds for eviction" under Civ. Code § 1954.53(e). The ground for eviction was that the landlords sought to recover possession of a unit for use as their principal residence. The requirement that owners offer another unit at a regulated rent was a condition imposed by the rent control ordinance on the owners' recovery of possession, but it could not be deemed in any ordinary sense of the term a "ground" for the eviction [Bullard v. San Francisco Rent Stabilization Board (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 488, 492, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 819] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Examine All Notices. An attorney should examine all previous notices to (even) prior tenants to determine whether a previous tenancy was terminated by a 30-day notice (even for "good or permissible grounds under a Rent Control Ordinance"), or was based on some change in the terms of the tenancy which then resulted in eviction. Thus, by one example only, if a prior tenancy was terminated by an owner move in eviction based on a 30-day notice, and then re-rented, the provisions of Costa-Hawkins relating to rent increases would not apply. To provide another example, there was a practice formerly engaged wherein the landlord would change a provision establishing "no pets" in the building and then evict a tenant based on the tenant having a pet. Such an eviction would also serve to remove the property from the provisions of Costa-Hawkins. Many local jurisdictions have parallel ordinances which provide, for example, for the return of the unit to the original rental amount if a landlord fails to comply fully with the owner move in provisions. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[4] Effect of Statute on Subletting and Assignments

Nothing in Civ. Code § 1954.53(a)-(c), summarized in [3], above, or any other provision of law, precludes the express establishment in a lease or rental agreement of the rental rates to be applicable in the event the rental unit is sublet. Similarly, nothing in the statute is to be construed to impair the obligations of contracts entered into before January 1, 1996 [Civ. Code § 1954.53(d)(1)].

When the original occupant or occupants who took possession of the dwelling or unit under the rental agreement with the owner no longer permanently resides there, an owner may increase the rent by any amount allowed by Civ. Code § 1954.53 [see [3], above] to a lawful sublessee or assignee who did not reside at the dwelling or unit before January 1, 1996 [Civ. Code § 1954.53(d)(2)]. An exception to this rule exists for partial changes in occupancy of a dwelling or unit when one or more of the occupants of the premises, under an agreement with the owner, remains an occupant in lawful possession of the dwelling or unit, or when a lawful sublessee or assignee who resided at the dwelling or unit before January 1, 1966, remains in possession of the dwelling or unit [Civ. Code § 1954.53(d)(3)].

The provisions of Civ. Code § 1954.53 do not enlarge or diminish an owner's right to withhold consent to a sublease or assignment [Civ. Code § 1954.53(d)(3)]. Further, acceptance of rent by the owner does not operate as a waiver or otherwise prevent enforcement of a covenant prohibiting sublease or assignment or as a waiver of an owner's rights to establish the initial rental rate unless the owner has received written notice from the tenant that is party to the agreement and thereafter accepted rent [Civ. Code § 1954.53(d)(4)].

§ 335.14 State Law Requirements for Establishment and Certification of Rent Levels

[1] Statutory Requirement to Provide for Permissible Rent Levels

In accordance with state statute, an ordinance or charter that establishes residential rent control and requires registration of rents must also provide for establishment and certification by the local agency of permissible rent levels for the registered rental units, and any changes to those levels [Civ. Code § 1947.8(a)].

If the rent control ordinance, charter, or regulation was in effect on January 1, 1987, it must have provided for establishment and certification of permissible rent levels by January 1, 1988, including completion of all appeals and administrative proceedings connected with establishment of those levels. After July 1, 1990, a local agency may not maintain any action to recover excess rent against a property owner who has registered his or her unit with the local agency within the time limits set forth in Civ. Code § 1947.8 if the initial certification of permissible rent levels affecting that particular property has not been completed, unless the delay is willfully and intentionally caused by the property owner or is a result of court proceedings or further administrative proceedings ordered by a court [Civ. Code § 1947.8(b)].

If the rent control ordinance, charter, or regulation was or is adopted on or after January 1, 1987, it must provide for the establishment and certification of permissible rent levels within one year after its adoption, including completion of all appeals and administrative proceedings connected with establishment of those levels [Civ. Code § 1947.8(b)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Have Existing Rents Certified. If your client is considering buying a building in a city that controls rents, he or she faces the danger that the existing rents might be illegal (e.g., because some prior owner raised rents by an amount higher than allowed by the ordinance), and this illegal base rent might prevent the new owner from taking advantage of any new rent increases. To avoid this problem, the attorney should require the old owner to have the existing rents certified as proper by the rent board. By Myron Moskovitz.

[2] Requirement to Provide Parties With Certification

On the request of a landlord or a tenant, the local rent control agency must provide the landlord and the tenant with a certificate or other documentation reflecting the rental unit's permissible rent levels. A landlord may also request a certificate of permissible rent levels for rental units that have a base rent established, but which are vacant and not exempt from registration under Civ. Code § 1947.8. A landlord or tenant may appeal the determination of the permissible rent levels reflected in the certificate. The levels reflected in the certificate or other documentation are, in the absence of intentional misrepresentation or fraud, binding and conclusive on the local agency unless determination of the levels is being appealed [Civ. Code § 1947.8(b)].

After permissible rent levels have been established and certified under Civ. Code § 1947.8(b), as described above, the local agency must, on the request of the landlord or the tenant, provide the landlord and the tenant with a certificate of the permissible rent levels of the rental unit. The certificate must be issued within five business days from the date of request. The permissible rent levels reflected in the certificate are, in the absence of intentional misrepresentation or fraud, binding and conclusive on the local agency unless the determination of the permissible rent levels is being appealed [Civ. Code § 1947.8(c)].

[3] Appeal of Determination of Permissible Rent Levels

The landlord or the tenant may appeal the determination of the permissible rent levels reflected in the certificate. Any appeal of a determination of permissible rent levels as reflected in the certificate, other than an appeal of the original determination under Civ. Code § 1947.8(b), must be filed with the local agency within 15 days from issuance of the certificate. The local agency must provide the landlord and the tenant with written notice of its decision within 60 days after the appeal has been filed [Civ. Code § 1947.8(c)].

[4] Fees

A local rent control agency is permitted to charge the person to whom a certificate is issued a fee in an amount necessary to cover the reasonable costs incurred by the agency in issuing the certificate [Civ. Code § 1947.8(d)].

[5] Other Issues Applicable to Establishment of Permissible Rent Levels

The absence of a certification of permissible rent levels does not impair, restrict, abridge, or otherwise interfere with a judicial or administrative hearing, or with any matter in connection with a conveyance of an interest in property [Civ. Code § 1947.8(e)]. The record of permissible rent levels is a public record for purposes of the California Public Records Act (Gov. Code § 6250 et seq.) [Civ. Code § 1947.8(f); for discussion of that Act, see Ch. 470C, Public Records Act].

Civil Code § 1947.8 may not be construed to grant a public entity any power that it does not possess independent of the statute to control or establish a system of rent control, nor may it be construed to diminish any such power that that entity may possess, except as specifically provided in the statute [Civ. Code § 1947.8(i)].

§ 335.15 General Remedies Under State Law

[1] "Substantial Compliance" Requirement

[a] Overview

The Legislature has declared that, because the operation of local rent stabilization programs can be complex and disputes arise frequently with regard to standards of compliance, it is the Legislature's intent to limit imposition of penalties and sanctions against an owner of residential rental units if that person has attempted in good faith to fully comply with the regulatory processes [Civ. Code § 1947.7(a)]. Therefore, an owner of a residential rental unit who is in substantial compliance with a residential rent control ordinance or charter that requires registration of rents may not be assessed a penalty or any other sanction for noncompliance with the ordinance, charter, or regulation. The exclusive remedies that may be imposed against an owner who is in substantial compliance are restitution to the tenant or recovery of the registration or filing fees due to the local agency [Civ. Code § 1947.7(b)].

PRACTICE TIP:
Limits on Remedies. Although the remedies are included in local ordinances, state law puts limits on them. By Myron Moskovitz.

For purposes of Civ. Code § 1947.7, the term "substantial compliance" means that the owner of a residential rental unit has made a good-faith attempt to comply with the ordinance, charter, or regulation that is sufficient to reasonably carry out the intent and purpose of the rent control provision, but is not in full compliance, and has, after receiving notice of a deficiency from the local rent control agency, cured the defect in a timely manner, as reasonably determined by the local agency [Civ. Code § 1947.7(b)]. A landlord who fails to register his or her units with the correct base rent, charges rent increases in excess of the permissible percentage increase, and fails to comply for over one year with the rent control agency's order to reregister the units with the correct base rent is not in substantial compliance with the local ordinance in accordance with Civ. Code § 1947.7(b) [Minelian v. Manzella (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 457, 462-463, 263 Cal. Rptr. 597] .

For purposes of the provisions of Civ. Code § 1947.7, an owner is deemed in compliance with a rent control ordinance, charter, or regulation if he or she is in substantial compliance with the applicable local rental registration requirements and applicable local and state housing code provisions, has paid all fees and penalties owed to the local agency that have not otherwise been barred by the applicable statute of limitations, and has satisfied all claims for refunds of rental overcharges brought by tenants or by the local rent control board on behalf of tenants of the affected unit [Civ. Code § 1947.7(e)].

Civ. Code § 1947.7 does not prohibit the award of sanctions or penalties under the state Unfair Business Practices Law [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq.] when the local agency (1) does not require registration of rents, and (2) has not adopted and followed an administrative procedure for the determination of substantial compliance under Civ. Code § 1947.7(b) [People v. Beaumont Investment Ltd. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 102, 124-126, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 429 (sanctions against mobilehome park owners for forcing tenants to accept long-term leases to avoid rent control; court assumed for purposes of discussion that Civ. Code § 1947.7 applies to mobilehome park rent schemes)].

For a form of affirmative defense for use by a landlord to allege substantial compliance, see § 335.42.

PRACTICE TIP:

Availability of "Wrongful Eviction" Defense. Civ. Code § 1947.7 does not provide the landlord with an affirmative defense in a "wrongful eviction" action brought by a tenant. It is hypothetically possible under the statutory schema that such a defense might be available under the definition of "substantial compliance" if (1) a landlord serves an eviction notice that fails to comply with the ordinance, (2) the tenant then files a report of "wrongful eviction," (3) the local agency then sends a notice of deficiency, and (4) the landlord then cures the defect in a timely manner. However, such a situation would be relatively early on in the process so as to make the circumstances, however unlikely to happen, be of minimal import. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[b] Restoration of Annual Rent Adjustments

If (1) the owner of any residential unit that has been registered and for which a base rent has been listed, (2) the owner of any residential unit who can show, by a preponderance of the evidence, a good-faith attempt to comply with the registration requirements with respect to that unit, or (3) the owner of any residential unit that was exempt from registration requirements in a previous version of the rent control ordinance has subsequently been found not to be in compliance with the ordinance, charter, or regulation, all annual rent adjustments that may have been denied during the period of the owner's noncompliance must be restored prospectively once the owner is in compliance with the ordinance, charter, or regulation [Civ. Code § 1947.7(c)].

[c] Powers of Public Entities

The statute may not be construed to grant to a public entity any power that it does not possess independent of the provision to control or establish a system of control on residential rents, nor may it be construed to diminish any power to do so that that public entity may possess, except as specifically provided in the statute [Civ. Code § 1947.7(f); see Richman v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 1457, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 690 (under this provision, board continues to have pre-enactment authority to determine whether amenities such as parking spaces are included in base rent for dwelling unit)].

[d] Confidential Nature of Tenant Information

In rent control jurisdictions that require the periodic registration of rents and, for purposes of complying with Civ. Code § 1954.53(e) (authority of local jurisdiction to regulate evictions), the local agency requires an owner to provide the name of a present or former tenant, the tenant's name and any additional information provided concerning the tenant is confidential and must be treated as confidential information within the meaning of the Information Practices Act of 1977. The local agency may request but may not compel an owner to provide any information regarding a tenant other than the tenant's name [Civ. Code § 1947.7(g)].

[2] Intentional Violation of Rent Provisions

In any city, county, or city and county that administers a system of residential rent control and requires registration of rents, after establishment of a certified rent level, any owner who charges a tenant rent in excess of the certified lawful rent ceiling must refund the excess rent to the tenant on demand. If the owner refuses to refund the excess rent and a court determines that he or she willfully or intentionally charged the tenant rent in excess of the certified lawful rent ceiling, the court will award the tenant a judgment for the excess amount of rent and may treble that amount. The prevailing party will be awarded attorney's fees and court costs [Civ. Code § 1947.11(a)].

The remedy provided by Civ. Code § 1947.11 may not be construed to prohibit any other available remedies [Civ. Code § 1947.11(b)]. Additionally, the statute may not be construed to extend the time within which actions are required to be brought beyond the otherwise applicable limitations set forth in the Code of Civil Procedure [Civ. Code § 1947.11(c)].

For a form of complaint for damages for failure to refund excess rent charged, see § 335.41.

PRACTICE TIP:

Intentional vs. Innocent Increase. It does not matter whether an illegal rent increase is intentional or innocent. Both intentional and innocent increases will give rise to a lawsuit against the landlord to recover the illegal increase. However, only an intentional increase will warrant treble damages. By Myron Moskovitz.

[3] Eviction for Owner Occupation

After July 1, 1990, in any city, county, or city and county that administers a system of residential rent control and requires registration of rents, any owner who evicts a tenant based on the owner's or the owner's immediate relative's intention to occupy the tenant's unit is required to maintain residence in the unit for at least six continuous months [Civ. Code § 1947.10(a)].

If a court determines that the eviction was based on fraud by the owner or the owner's immediate relative to not fulfill this six-month requirement, it may order the owner to pay treble the cost of relocating the tenant from his or her existing unit back into the previous unit, and may order the owner to pay treble the amount of any increase in rent that the tenant has paid. If the tenant decides not to relocate back into the previous unit, the court may order the owner to pay treble the amount of one month's rent paid by the tenant for the unit from which he or she was evicted, and treble the amount of any costs incurred in relocating to a different unit. The prevailing party will be awarded attorney's fees and court costs [Civ. Code § 1947.10(a)]. The remedy provided by Civ. Code § 1947.10 may not be construed to prohibit any other available remedies [Civ. Code § 1947.10(b)].

In addition to the statutory authority for a cause of action based on eviction for fraudulent owner occupation, one court has held that a private cause of action for damages exists for a tenant who is damaged when he or she is evicted by his or her landlord based on occupancy of the unit by the landlord's relative if the relative never resides on the premises. The fraudulent eviction is a violation of the "good faith" standard contained in most local rent control ordinances [Castillo v. Friedman (1987) 243 Cal. Rptr. 206 (decided before enactment of Civ. Code § 1947.10)].

For a form of complaint for damages for eviction based on a fraudulent intent to occupy, see § 335.40.

PRACTICE TIP:

Availability of Damages. As a practical matter, local rent ordinances usually have more stringent requirements and far greater exposure to damages than is provided in Civ. Code § 1947.10. In a rent/eviction control jurisdiction, an attorney should always read the ordinance and the Rules and Regulations before proceeding with the filing of a "wrongful eviction" action. By Benjamin Kaplan.

§ 335.16 Prohibition Against Compelling Landlord to Remain in Business

[1] Ellis Act Prohibitions and Definitions

The Ellis Act [Gov. Code § 7060 et seq.] prohibits a public entity from compelling the owner of any residential real property to offer, or continue to offer, accommodations in the property for rent or lease, whether by statute, ordinance, regulation, or administrative action implementing any statute, ordinance, or regulation [Gov. Code § 7060(a)]. The prohibition does not, however, extend to local ordinances restricting withdrawal of less than all of an owner's accommodations from the rental market [Gov. Code § 7060.7(d); see [2], below].

The term "public entity" includes the state, county, city, district, public authority, public agency, and any other political subdivision or public corporation in the state [Gov. Code § 811.2]. The term "accommodations" means the residential rental units in any detached physical structure containing four or more residential rental units, and with regard to a detached physical structure containing three or fewer residential rental units, the residential rental units in that structure and in any other structure located on the same parcel of land, including any detached physical structure containing four or more residential rental units [Gov. Code § 7060(b)]. "Accommodations" does not include condominiums because they are not detached physical structures [Valnes v. Santa MonicaRent Control Bd. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1116, 1120-1122, 270 Cal. Rptr. 636] .

The Ellis Act is applicable to residential hotels, and the owner of a residential hotel has the right to go out of the residential hotel business [Bullock v. City and County of San Francisco (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1072, 1095-1099, 271 Cal. Rptr. 44] . However, in 2003 the Legislature amended the Ellis Act to exempt guestrooms or efficiency units within a residential hotel located in a city and county or in a city with a population of over 1,000,000, if the hotel has a permit of occupancy issued prior to January 1, 1990, and did not deliver a notice of intent to withdraw the accommodations from rent or lease [see Gov. Code § 7060.4(a); see also [4][i], below] before January 1, 2004 [Gov. Code § 7060(a)].

For a form of affirmative defense for use by a landlord to allege the withdrawal of units from the rental market, see § 335.43.

PRACTICE TIP:

Ellis Act Evictions. Ellis Act evictions are very complicated. A wrong move can expose the owner to substantial liability to cities and to evicted tenants. Owners should be strongly advised not to try this without a lawyer's assistance. By Myron Moskovitz.

[2] Legislative Intent

In enacting the Ellis Act, the Legislature intended to supersede prior case authority that upheld local regulations restricting or eliminating a landlord's ability to withdraw his or her property from the rental market [see Gov. Code § 7060.7; see also Nash v. City of Santa Monica (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 97, 207 Cal. Rptr. 285, 688 P.2d 894 (opinion decided before and superseded by enactment of Ellis Act)]. The provisions of the Ellis Act, however, are not intended to do any of the following:

- Interfere with local governmental authority over land use, including regulation of the conversion of existing housing to condominiums or other subdivided interests or to other nonresidential use following its withdrawal from rent or lease under the Ellis Act [Gov. Code § 7060.7(a)];

- Preempt local or municipal environmental or land use regulations, procedures, or controls that govern the demolition and redevelopment of residential property [Gov. Code § 7060.7(b)];

- Override procedural protections designed to prevent abuse of the right to evict tenants [Gov. Code § 7060.7(c)];

- Permit an owner to withdraw from rent or lease less than all of the accommodations, as defined by Gov. Code § 7060(b)(1) or (2) [Gov. Code § 7060.7(d)];

- Grant to a public entity any power that it does not possess independent of the Ellis Act to control or establish a system of control on the price at which accommodations may be offered for rent or lease, or to diminish any such power that that public entity may possess, except as specifically provided by Gov. Code § 7060 et seq. [Gov. Code § 7060.7(e)]; or

- Alter in any way either Gov. Code § 65863.7, relating to withdrawal from rent or lease accommodations that comprise a mobilehome park, or Civ. Code § 798.56(g), relating to a change of use of a mobilehome park [Gov. Code § 7060.7(f)].

Amendments to Gov. Code § 7060.7 in the year 2000, providing that the Act is "not otherwise intended to ... (a) Interfere with local governmental authority over land use, including regulation of the conversion of existing housing to condominiums or other subdivided interests or to other nonresidential use following its withdrawal from rent or lease under [the Act][, or] (b) Preempt local or municipal environmental or land use regulations, procedures, or controls that govern the demolition and redevelopment of residential property," did not authorize the City of San Francisco to require a residential hotel owner to comply with the city's Hotel Conversion and Demolition Ordinance permit and one-to-one replacement requirements in order to withdraw the units from the market [Reidy v. City and County of San Francisco (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 580, 590-591, 593, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 894] . Nothing in the amendments altered the expressly stated, fundamental purpose of the Ellis Act: to allow owners of residential rental property to go out of the rental business without restriction by the local government, nor did the amendments manifest an intent to upend uniform judicial construction holding that a local government cannot condition an owner's right to go out of business on compliance with requirements that do not appear in the Act. Rather, the amendments' specific reference to local regulations that govern "demolition and redevelopment" [Gov. Code § 7060.7(b)] clarifies the Act by incorporating the body of judicial construction that uniformly holds that the Act does not restrict local governments from exercising their police powers to regulate the use of the landlord's property as to such matters as zoning, demolition, and development after it is taken off the rental market, so long as those regulations do not otherwise prevent a residential landlord from going out of the rental business [Reidy v. City and County of San Francisco (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 580, 592, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 894] .

PRACTICE TIP:

"Land Use" Issues. Since the Ellis Act does not preclude a local jurisdiction from regulating land use, an attorney needs to carefully discuss and consider with the client who wants to "Ellis" his or her property, the problems that may be encountered with a local jurisdiction when application is made by permit to change the use of the property. For example, there may be a discretionary review process that a landlord must follow in respect to reducing a building from a permitted use of six units to a permitted use as a single family residence. It would be wise under such circumstances for the attorney and client to both consult with an attorney who specializes in "land use" law and regulation before proceeding under the Ellis Act. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[3] Scope of Prohibition

The statutory prohibition does not do any of the following:

- Prevent a public entity from enforcing any contract or agreement by which an owner of residential real property has agreed to offer the accommodations for rent or lease in consideration for a direct financial contribution (including contributions specified in Gov. Code § 65916, relating to direct financial contributions to housing developments through participation in costs, and any form of interest rate subsidy or tax abatement provided to facilitate the acquisition or development of real property), or with regard to written contracts or agreements entered into before July 1, 1986, for any consideration. Such a contract or agreement is not enforceable against a person who acquires title to the accommodations as a bona fide purchaser for value (or successors in interest thereof) unless the purchaser, at the time of acquiring title to the accommodations, had actual knowledge of the contract or agreement or a written memorandum of the contract or agreement specifically describing its terms and the affected real property and identifying the owner of the property was recorded with the county recorder before July 1, 1986, or not less than 30 days before transfer of title to the property to the purchaser. The county recorder will index the memorandum in the grantor-grantee index [Gov. Code § 7060.1(a)].

- Diminish or enhance, except as specifically provided in Gov. Code § 7060.2, relating to rerenting withdrawn property, any power of a public entity to grant or deny any entitlement to the use of real property, including, but not limited to, planning, zoning, and subdivision map approvals [Gov. Code § 7060.1(b)].

- Diminish or enhance the power of a public entity to mitigate any adverse impact on persons displaced by reason of the withdrawal from rent or lease of any accommodations [Gov. Code § 7060.1(c)].

- Supersede provisions for relocation assistance (Gov. Code § 7260 et seq.), fair housing (Gov. Code § 12900 et seq.), enforcement of unfair competition (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq.), personal rights (Civ. Code § 43 et seq.), hiring (Civ. Code § 1925 et seq.), unlawful detainer (Code Civ. Proc. § 1159 et seq.), and community development and housing (Health & Safety Code § 33000 et seq.) [Gov. Code § 7060.1(d)].

- Relieve any party to a lease or rental agreement of the duty to perform any obligation under that lease or rental agreement [Gov. Code § 7060.1(e)].

[4] Permissible Local Regulation

[a] Certain Restrictions Are Permitted

If a public entity, by valid exercise of its police power, has in effect any control or system of control on the price at which accommodations may be offered for rent or lease, that entity may provide by statute or ordinance, or by regulation as specified in Gov. Code § 7060.5, that any accommodations that have been offered for rent or lease and that were subject to that control or system of control at the time the accommodations were withdrawn from rent or lease are subject to certain restrictive provisions [Gov. Code § 7060.2]. These permissible local restrictions are discussed in [b]-[h], below. For discussion of the requirements of Gov. Code § 7060.5 relating to the procedure for adopting local regulations, see [j], below.

[b] Accommodations Offered for Rent Within Five Years After Withdrawal

If the accommodations are offered again for rent or lease for residential purposes within five years after withdrawal, local regulation may require the accommodations to be offered and rented or leased at the lawful rent in effect at the time the notice of intent to withdraw the accommodations was filed with the public entity, plus any annual adjustments available under the local rent control [Gov. Code § 7060.2(a)(2)]. This requirement applies to all tenancies commenced during either of the following time periods [Gov. Code § 7060.2(a)(2)]:

- Within the five-year time period after any notice of intent to withdraw the accommodations was filed with the public entity, whether or not the notice was rescinded or the withdrawal was completed pursuant to the notice of intent.

- The five-year period after the accommodations were withdrawn.

These provisions prevail over any conflicting provision of law authorizing the landlord to establish the rental rate on the initial hiring of the accommodations [Gov. Code § 7060.2(a)(3)].

[c] Accommodations Offered for Rent Within Two Years After Withdrawal

[i] Actual and Exemplary Damages

If the accommodations are offered again for rent or lease within two years of the date the accommodations were withdrawn, local regulation may hold the owner of the accommodations liable for actual and exemplary damages to any tenant or lessee who was displaced from the property. Any action by a tenant or lessee under such a local regulation must be brought within three years of the withdrawal of the accommodations from rent or lease, but a tenant is not precluded from pursuing any alternative remedy available under the law [Gov. Code § 7060.2(b)(1)].

A public entity that has enacted any of the provisions set forth above may institute a civil proceeding for exemplary damages for displacement of tenants or lessees against any owner who has again offered accommodations for rent or lease within two years of withdrawal. Any action by a public entity for such damages must be brought within three years of the withdrawal of the accommodations from rent or lease [Gov. Code § 7060.2(b)(2)].

[ii] Reinstatement of Lease or Rental Agreement

Local regulation may require an owner who offers accommodations again for rent or lease within two years of withdrawal to offer the unit for rent or lease first to the tenant or lessee displaced from that unit by the withdrawal if the tenant has advised the owner in writing within 30 days of the displacement of his or her desire to consider an offer to renew the tenancy and has furnished the owner with an address to which that offer is to be directed. The regulation must provide that the tenant, lessee, or former tenant or lessee may advise the owner of a change of address to which an offer is to be directed at any time during the period of eligibility [Gov. Code § 7060.2(b)(3)].

If the tenant or lessee advises the owner of a desire to consider an offer to renew the tenancy, the owner must offer to reinstate a rental agreement or lease on terms permitted by law. The offer must be deposited in the United States mail, by registered or certified mail with postage prepaid, addressed to the displaced tenant or lessee at the address furnished to the owner as provided above, and must describe the terms of the offer. The regulation must give the displaced tenant or lessee 30 days from the deposit of the offer in the mail to accept the offer by personal delivery of the acceptance or by deposit of the acceptance in the United States mail by registered or certified mail with postage prepaid [Gov. Code § 7060.2(b)(3)].

[d] Accommodations Offered for Rent Within 10 Years After Withdrawal

A public entity may require that an owner who offers accommodations again for rent or lease within a period of up to 10 years from the date on which they were withdrawn first offer the unit to the tenant or lessee displaced from that unit by the withdrawal, if that tenant or lessee requests the offer in writing within 30 days after the owner has notified the public entity of an intention to offer the accommodations again for residential rent or lease pursuant to a requirement adopted by the public entity under Gov. Code § 7060.4(c). An owner of accommodations who fails to comply with this requirement may be liable to any displaced tenant or lessee for punitive damages in an amount up to the contract rent for six months [Gov. Code § 7060.2(b)(3)].

Local regulation may provide that, if accommodations are demolished and new accommodations are constructed on the same property and offered for rent or lease within five years of the date the accommodations were withdrawn from rent or lease, the newly constructed accommodations are subject to any system of control on the price at which they would be offered on the basis of a fair and reasonable return on the newly constructed accommodations, notwithstanding any exemption from the system of controls for newly constructed accommodations [Gov. Code § 7060.2(d)].

A city ordinance promulgated pursuant to Gov. Code § 7060.2(d) was not preempted or repealed by the Costa-Hawkins Rental Housing Act, Civ. Code § 1954.42(a) ("notwithstanding any other provision of law, an owner of residential real property may establish the initial and all subsequent rental rates for a dwelling or a unit about which any of the following is true: [P] (1) It has a certificate of occupancy issued after February 1, 1995") [Apartment Assn. of Los Angeles County, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 13, 30, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 441] . Costa-Hawkins specifically provides that it does not "affect the authority of a public entity that may otherwise exist to regulate or monitor the basis for eviction" [Civ. Code § 1954.52(c)]. Section 7060.2(d) essentially allows local entities to enact ordinances that discourage landlords from evicting tenants under the false pretense that they are going out of business pursuant to the Ellis Act. Thus, by its terms, Costa-Hawkins did not override Gov. Code § 7060.2(d), or "affect" the city's authority to enact the ordinance at issue [Apartment Assn. of Los Angeles County, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 13, 2627, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 441] . The two statutes could be harmonized by construing section 7060.2(d) as an exception to section 1954.52(d) [Apartment Assn. of Los Angeles County, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 13, 25, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 441] .

Gov. Code § 7060.2 was amended by the Legislature in 2002 to extend from two to five years the period in which the original rent will apply to properties that are withdrawn and then reoffered for rent or lease [2002 Stats., ch. 301 (SB 1403)]. The amendments to Gov. Code § 7060.2 adopted in SB 1403 apply to all new tenancies created after December 31, 2002. If a new tenancy was lawfully created before January 1, 2003, after a lawful withdrawal of the unit, the amendments do not apply to new tenancies created after that date [Gov. Code § 7060.2(e)].

[g] Purchase of Property and Occupation by Tenants in Common

Purchase of property by tenants in common and occupation of the units by the tenants is legal; it is not going out of the landlord business and then resuming it because the tenant-in-common relationship is not a landlord-tenant relationship [Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. v. Bluvshtein (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 308, 315-317, 281 Cal. Rptr. 298] .

[h] Successors in Interest

If the regulations enacted by a public entity under Gov. Code § 7060.2 apply constraints to a successor in interest of an owner who has withdrawn accommodations from rent or lease, the public entity must record a notice with the county recorder that specifically describes (1) the real property where the accommodations are located, (2) the dates applicable to the constraints, and (3) the name of the owner of record of the real property. The notice will be indexed in the grantor-grantee index [Gov. Code § 7060.3].

A person who acquires title to the real property after the date on which the accommodations thereon have been withdrawn from rent or lease, as a bona fide purchaser for value, is not a successor in interest for these purposes if the notice was not recorded with the county recorder at least one day before the transfer of title [Gov. Code § 7060.3].

[i] Notice of Intention to Withdraw

[i] Notice to Public Entity

Any public entity that, by a valid exercise of its police power, has in effect any control or system of control on the price at which accommodations are offered for rent or lease may require by statute, ordinance, or regulation as specified by Gov. Code § 7060.5 that the owner notify the entity of an intention to withdraw those accommodations from rent or lease and may require that the notice contain statements, under penalty of perjury, providing information on the number of accommodations, the address or location of those accommodations, the name or names of the tenants or lessees of the accommodations, and the rent applicable to each residential unit [Gov. Code § 7060.4(a)]. For discussion of the requirements of Gov. Code § 7060.5, relating to the procedure for adopting local regulations, see [j], below.

Information regarding the name or names of the tenants, the rent applicable to any residential rental unit, or the total number of accommodations is confidential information and must be treated as confidential information by any public entity for purposes of the Information Practices Act of 1977 (Civ. Code § 1798 et seq.). A public entity is considered an "agency" for purposes of that act [Gov. Code § 7060.4(a); see Civ. Code § 1798.3(b) ("agency" defined); for discussion of the Information Practices Act, see Ch. 429, Privacy, § 429.60 et seq.].

PRACTICE TIP:

Availability of Protections. Note that these state statutes are not "self-executing." All they do is allow cities with rent control to enact ordinances or regulations that give certain protections to tenants faced with Ellis Act evictions. If cities fail to take advantage of these opportunities, tenants will not have these protections. By Myron Moskovitz.

[ii] Recording Memorandum of Notice

The statute, ordinance, or regulation may also require that the owner record with the county recorder a memorandum summarizing the provisions, other than the confidential provisions, of the notice in a form that must be prescribed by the statute, ordinance, or regulation, and require a certification with that notice that actions have been initiated as required by law to terminate any existing tenancies. In that situation, the date on which the accommodations are withdrawn from rent or lease is 120 days from the delivery in person or by first-class mail of that notice to the public entity [Gov. Code § 7060.2(b)(3)].

However, if the tenant or lessee is at least 62 years of age or disabled, and has lived in his or her accommodations for at least one year before the date of the owner's delivery to the public entity of the notice of intent to withdraw, then the date of withdrawal of the accommodations of that tenant or lessee is extended to one year after delivery of such notice to the public entity, provided that the tenant or lessee gives written notice of his or her entitlement to an extension to the owner within 60 days of the date of the owner's delivery of the notice of intent to withdraw. In that situation, the following provisions apply [Gov. Code § 7060.4(b)]:

- The tenancy is continued on the same terms and conditions as existed on the date of the owner's delivery of the notice of intent to withdraw, subject to any adjustments otherwise available under the system of control [Gov. Code § 7060.4(b)(1)];

- No party will be relieved of the duty to perform any obligation under the lease or rental agreement [Gov. Code § 7060.4(b)(2)];

- The owner may elect to extend the date of withdrawal on any other accommodations up to one year after date of delivery of the notice of intent to withdraw, subject to the provisions of Gov. Code § 7060.4(b)(1) and (b)(2) [Gov. Code § 7060.4(b)(3)];

- Within 30 days of the notification by the tenant or lessee to the owner of his or her entitlement to an extension, the owner must give written notice to the public entity of the claim that the tenant or lessee is entitled to stay in their accommodations for one year after date of delivery to the public entity of the notice of intent to withdraw [Gov. Code § 7060.4(b)(4)]; and

- Within 90 days of the date of delivery to the public entity of the notice of intent to withdraw, the owner must give written notice to the public entity and the affected tenant or lessee of the owner's election to extend the date of withdrawal and the new date of withdrawal under Gov. Code § 7060.4(b)(3) [Gov. Code § 7060.4(b)(5)].

[iii] Notice to Displaced Tenant

The statute, ordinance, or regulation may also require the owner to notify any tenant or lessee displaced under these provisions that the public entity has been notified as described above, that the notice to the public entity specified the name and the amount of rent paid by the tenant or lessee as an occupant of the accommodations, and the amount of rent the owner specified in the notice to the public entity, together with a notice to the tenant or lessee of his or her rights under Gov. Code § 7060.2(b)(3) [Gov. Code § 7060.4(c); see [c][ii], above, for discussion of the rights of a tenant or lessee under Gov. Code § 7060.2(b)(3)].

Furthermore, a notice to a displaced tenant or lessee must include the following [Gov. Code § 7060.4(c)(5)]:

- If the tenant or lessee is at least 62 years of age or disabled, and has lived in his or her accommodations for at least one year before the date of delivery to the public entity of the notice of intent to withdraw, a statement that the tenancy will be extended to one year after delivery of the notice of intent to withdraw, provided that the tenant or lessee gives written notice of his or her entitlement to the owner within 60 days of the date of delivery to the public entity of the notice of intent to withdraw [Gov. Code § 7060.4(c)(5)(A)];

- A statement that the extended tenancy will continue on the same terms and conditions as existed on the date of delivery to the public entity of the notice of intent to withdraw, subject to any adjustments otherwise available under the system of control [Gov. Code § 7060.4(c)(5)(B)]; and

- A statement that no party will be relieved of the duty to perform any obligation under the lease or rental agreement during the extended tenancy [Gov. Code § 7060.4(c)(5)(C)].

The statute, ordinance, or regulation may require the owner to notify the public entity in writing of an intention to again offer the accommodations for rent or lease [Gov. Code § 7060.4(d)].

[j] Procedure for Enacting Regulations

The regulations authorized by Gov. Code §§ 7060.2 and 7060.4, relating to accommodations offered for rent after withdrawal and notice of an intention to withdraw accommodations, may be enacted by a public entity after public notice and hearing by a public body of the public entity if the members of the body have been elected by the voters of the public entity. The regulation is subject to referendum in the manner prescribed by law for ordinances of the legislative body of the public entity, except that the decision to repeal the regulation or to submit it to the voters must be made by the public body that adopted the regulation, and the regulation must become effective on adoption by the public body of the public entity and remain in effect until a majority of the voters voting on the issue vote against the regulation, notwithstanding Elec. Code §§ 9235, 9237, and 9241, relating to referendum procedure, or any other law [Gov. Code § 7060.5].

[5] Unlawful Detainer Proceedings

If an owner seeks by an unlawful detainer proceeding to displace a tenant or lessee from accommodations withdrawn from rent or lease under Gov. Code § 7060 et seq., the tenant or lessee may appear and answer or demur in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1170, and may assert by way of defense that the owner has not complied with the applicable provisions of Gov. Code § 7060 et seq., or with the statutes, ordinances, or regulations of public entities adopted to implement that chapter [Gov. Code § 7060.6].

For detailed coverage of unlawful detainer proceedings generally, including numerous forms of complaint, see Ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Actions .

PRACTICE TIP:

Affirmative Defenses Generally Not Available. It is doubtful that affirmative defenses of "discrimination" and "retaliation" can succeed with regard to Ellis Act evictions. The California Supreme Court has held that when a landlord has complied with the Ellis Act procedures for withdrawing rental property from the market and has instituted an action for unlawful detainer, and the tenant asserts the statutory defense of retaliatory eviction, the landlord may overcome the defense by demonstrating a bona fide intent to withdraw the property from the market [Drouet v. Superior Court (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 583, 600, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 205, 73 P.3d 1185] . If the tenant controverts the landlord's bona fide intent to withdraw the property, the landlord then has the burden to establish its truth at the hearing by a preponderance of the evidence [Drouet v. Superior Court (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 583, 600, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 205, 73 P.3d 1185] .

Nevertheless, landlords often create their own problems with respect to "Ellising" a building, such as permitting an employee to live in a unit of a building as part of that employees compensation, thus not taking all the units out of rental housing use. It is therefore essential to "clear the decks" before proceeding with the Ellis procedures, which will also include reading any and all local enactments regarding such evictions and/or displacements. By Benjamin Kaplan.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

29-335 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 335.17

§ 335.17 Commercial Rent Control

[1] Definitions

The term "commercial rental control" includes any action of a public entity taken by statute, charter, ordinance, resolution, administrative regulation, or any other governmental enactment, to establish, continue, implement, or enforce any control or system of controls on the price at which, or the term for which, commercial real property may be offered for rent or control or system of controls that would select, mandate, dictate, or otherwise designate a specific tenant or specific person or entity with whom the owner must negotiate on the formation, extension, or renewal of a tenancy; or any other enactment that has such a purpose [Civ. Code § 1954.26(f)].

The term "price" includes any charge or fee, however denominated, for the hiring of commercial real property, and includes security deposits [Civ. Code § 1954.26(b); see Civ. Code § 1950.7]. The term "tenant" includes subtenants and sublessees, as well as lessees [Civ. Code § 1954.26(g)].

[2] Prohibition Against Local Controls

The Legislature has declared that the price charged for real property is a matter of statewide concern because the economic impact of commercial rent control extends beyond the local boundaries within which the controls are imposed [Civ. Code § 1954.25]. Therefore, the Legislature has enacted a uniform system with regard to commercial rents, applicable to every local jurisdiction in the state, and no public entity may enact any measure constituting commercial rent control or enforce any commercial rental control, whether enacted before, on, or after January 1, 1988 [Civ. Code §§ 1954.25, 1954.27(a)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Statewide System Not a System of Rent Control. Although California has undoubtedly preempted commercial rent control, the statewide system cannot by any reasonable stretch of the imagination be deemed a system of rent control for commercial property. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[3] Limitations on Prohibition

[a] No Grant of Additional Powers to Public Entities

The prohibition against commercial rent control does not augment or diminish the authority of a public entity except as expressly provided in the commercial rental control provisions [Civ. Code § 1954.30].

[b] Prohibition Does Not Effect Contracts, Leases, Rights, and Obligations

The prohibition on commercial rent control may not be construed to do any of the following:

- Relieve any party to a commercial lease or rental agreement of the duty to perform any obligation of the agreement [Civ. Code § 1954.27(b)(1)];

- Preclude express establishment in a commercial lease or rental agreement of the price at which real property may be offered to a subtenant or sublessee [Civ. Code § 1954.27(b)(2)];

- Impair any obligation of any contract entered into before January 1, 1988 [Civ. Code § 1954.27(b)(3)];

- Affect any provision of, or requirement for mitigation of damages under Civ. Code §§ 1951-1952.6 [Civ. Code § 1954.27(b)(4)];

- Limit any adjustment of price required or permitted by law because of constructive eviction [Civ. Code § 1954.27(b)(5)];

- Enlarge or diminish in any way any power that a public entity may have with regard to regulation of rental rates or the ownership, conveyance, or use of any property specified in Civ. Code § 1954.26(d)(1)-(3), relating to property not within the definition of "commercial real property" [Civ. Code § 1954.27(b)(6); see [4], below];

- Relieve any party of any requirement or mandate to arbitrate, or deprive any party of any right to arbitrate or compel arbitration, which mandate or right exists under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1141.10 et seq., 1280 et seq. , 1823 et seq., or any other provision of state law [Civ. Code § 1954.27(b)(7); see generally Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration , et seq., and Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration];

- Affect in any way, or preclude the inclusion of, any provision in a lease creating any lawful option, right of first refusal, or any covenant to renew or extend the lease or sell the real property or any interest in the property [Civ. Code § 1954.27(b)(8)]; and

- Relieve any person of any duty or deprive any person of any right or cause of action that may exist under Civ. Code §§ 51, 53, or 782, relating to civil rights [Civ. Code § 1954.27(b)(9)].

[c] Prohibition Does Not Effect Other Laws and Public Contracts

The prohibition against commercial rent control does not limit or affect public entities' authority under the Eminent Domain Law (Code Civ. Proc. § 1230.010 et seq.), the Airport Approaches Zoning Law (Gov. Code § 50485 et seq.), the Subdivision Map Act (Gov. Code § 66410 et seq.), or Pub. Res. Code § 5020 et seq., relating to historical resources [Civ. Code § 1954.28(a), (c), (e), (f); see also [5][a], below (authority of public entities)]. Similarly, the power of local entities to abate nuisances is neither limited nor affected by the commercial rent control prohibition [Civ. Code § 1954.28(b)]. Further, the prohibition may not affect or limit any contract or agreement entered into by a public entity relating to the transfer, lease, or license of commercial real property owned or leased by that public entity, except any requirement enacted under Civ. Code § 1954.31, relating to local ordinances establishing notice requirements for termination of commercial real property leases on expiration of their term [Civ. Code § 1954.28(g)].

The commercial rent control prohibition also does not limit or affect (1) any contract or agreement by which an owner agrees with a public entity to offer any real property for rent at a stipulated or maximum price or under a specified formula for ascertaining a stipulated or maximum price, in consideration for a direct financial contribution; (2) any written contract between a redevelopment agency and an owner or developer of commercial real property within a redevelopment project area; (3) or any written development agreement entered into under Gov. Code § 65864 et seq. Any contract described above is not enforceable against an owner who became an owner without actual knowledge of the contract or agreement, more than 30 days before the recording with the county recorder of a written memorandum of the contract or agreement specifically describing its terms and identifying the real property and the owner. The county recorder will index these memoranda in the grantor-grantee index [Civ. Code § 1954.28(d)].

[d] Certain Powers of Public Entity Are Not Affected by Prohibition

Nothing in the commercial rent control prohibition may, with regard to a public entity, grant, enlarge, or diminish any power that the entity may possess under Gov. Code § 65000 et seq., relating to planning and land use, with regard to charter cities, planning or zoning powers granted under Cal. Const., art. XI, § 5, or any power that it may possess to mitigate the impact caused by the construction, reconstruction, demolition, or alteration of the size of any commercial real property, unless the actions are taken for the clear or systematic purpose of circumventing the ban on commercial rent control [Civ. Code § 1954.29(a)]. Similarly, the prohibition may not, with regard to a public entity, grant, repeal, enlarge, or diminish any authority to require a business license, whether for regulation or revenue [Civ. Code § 1954.29(b)].

[4] Property Not Subject to Prohibition

Certain property is specifically excluded from the definition of "commercial real property," and is not subject to the prohibition on commercial rent control. The prohibition does not apply to the following [Civ. Code § 1954.26(d)]:

- Dwellings or dwelling units subject to the provisions of Civ. Code § 1940, relating to leases of land and dwellings;

- Any accommodation in a residential hotel as defined in Health & Safety Code § 50519, or comparable accommodations that are specifically regulated by a public entity in structures in which 20 percent or more of the accommodations are occupied by persons as their primary residence;

- Any hotel unit located in a structure with 20 or more units or in which 20 percent or more of the accommodations were occupied as of August 5, 1987, by persons as their primary residence if, in either circumstance, the unit was subject to rental controls on August 5, 1987, provided that any control exercised thereafter is in accordance with the system of controls in effect on that date; or

- Any space or dwelling unit in any mobilehome park as defined in Health & Safety Code § 18214.

[5] Local Notice Requirements on Expiration of Term

[a] Authority of Public Entity

Notwithstanding the prohibition on commercial rent control, a public entity may enact a statute, charter, charter amendment, or ordinance establishing a requirement for notice relating to the termination of a lease of commercial real property due to the expiration of its term [Civ. Code § 1954.31]. The provisions of the enactment may not, however, apply to any lease or rental agreement that is not in writing, that constitutes a tenancy at will, that is for a term of less than one year or for an unspecified term, or that is a month-to-month tenancy or a tenancy at sufferance, or to any lease, the term of which expires within 270 days after the effective date of the enactment [Civ. Code § 1954.31(d)].

[b] Mandatory Provisions

The local enactment must contain provisions dealing with any or all of the following:

- Delivery of a negotiation notice by a tenant [Civ. Code § 1954.31(a)(1)]. The term "negotiation notice" means a written notice by a tenant in privity of estate and contract with the owner, stating either that the tenant offers to extend or renew the lease on the terms set forth in the notice, or that the tenant solicits an offer for the extension or renewal of the lease from the owner [Civ. Code § 1954.26(j)].

- A requirement for an owner to deliver an impasse notice at any time after delivery of the negotiation notice [Civ. Code § 1954.31(a)(2)]. The term "impasse notice" means a written notice that states either that the owner has not received from the tenant an offer of any terms for an extension or renewal of the lease that are acceptable to the owner or an acceptance by the tenant of any offer of terms by the owner, and that an impasse with regard to any agreement on a lease extension or renewal has been reached; or that the owner is not willing to extend or renew the lease [Civ. Code § 1954.26(i)]. Although the local enactment may contain a requirement for an owner to deliver an impasse notice at any time after delivery of the negotiation notice, the requirement will be inapplicable unless the tenant has been required to deliver a negotiation notice not less than 270 days before the expiration of the lease and has done so [Civ. Code § 1954.31(a)(2)(A)]. The mandate for delivery of an impasse notice must not occur earlier than 180 days before expiration of the lease, and no impasse notice is required if the parties have executed a renewal or extension of the lease [Civ. Code § 1954.31(a)(2)(B), (C)]. Furthermore, provision must be made in the enactment that the notice must include, in a form of type that will distinguish it from the body of the text of the balance of the notice, a disclosure reading either "The giving of this notice does not necessarily preclude further dialogue or negotiation on an extension or renewal of the lease if the parties choose to negotiate, but the delivery of this notice discharges all obligations of _____ (the owner) under the provisions of _____ (the enactment) and Section 1954.31 of the Civil Code"; or "By giving this notice _____ (the owner) declares that he or she does not intend to negotiate further on any extension or renewal of the lease" [Civ. Code § 1954.31(a)(2)(D)].

- Establish that a bad-faith failure to comply with the enactment is subject to a remedy for actual damages [Civ. Code § 1954.31(a)(3)].

- Any remedy under the enactment or Civ. Code § 1954.31 is available only by an action brought by the owner or the tenant [Civ. Code § 1954.31(a)(4)].

The enactment must also contain, or will be deemed to contain, the following provisions:

- A tenant may not exercise any right under the enactment or Civ. Code § 1954.25 et seq., unless the tenant has performed the terms of the lease in such manner as would entitle the tenant to exercise any option he or she might possess under the lease [Civ. Code § 1954.31(b)(1)].

- No right or cause of action accruing to a tenant under the enactment or Civ. Code § 1954.25 et seq. may be assigned other than to a person who is a lawful assignee of the lease, is in lawful possession of the premises under the lease, and is in compliance with Civ. Code § 1954.31(b)(1) [Civ. Code § 1954.31(b)(2)].

- Nothing in the enactment or Civ. Code § 1954.25 et seq. creates or imposes, nor may be construed to create or impose, a duty to extend or renew, or to negotiate on an extension or renewal, of any lease; nor does the delivery or receipt of any notice provided for by the enactment or Civ. Code § 1954.25 et seq. constitute a waiver of any rights to continued performance under the covenants under the lease or to actions for possession [Civ. Code § 1954.31(b)(3)].

- The delivery of any notice under the enactment or Civ. Code § 1954.25 et seq. creates a rebuttable presumption affecting the burden of proof that the notice has been properly given [Civ. Code § 1954.31(b)(4)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Notice Requirements of Civ. Code § 1954.31. The notice requirements of Civ. Code § 1954.31 are not "eviction notice requirements" nor literally "termination notice requirements." Rather, the notice requirements create a schema for the prior negotiation of possible extensions by a commercial tenant which are keyed on the commercial tenant providing a "negotiation notice" at least 270 days before the lease's termination date, and then only if enacted by the local jurisdiction. If the statute achieves anything, it is to provide the tenant with a "wake-up" call that his or her tenancy is at an end. The landlord, however, may be required to respond by way of an impasse notice to the tenant within a specified time period, not earlier than 180 days before the end of the lease, or else the landlord may be exposed to unspecified damages. However, the provisions of Civ. Code § 1954.31(c) [see [c], below] do not interfere, in any way, with the landlord's right to evict (1) after the end of the fixed term tenancy or (2) for a breach of the lease before the end of the fixed term. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[c] Limitations on Scope of Local Regulation

No local enactment may provide or be deemed to provide for any of the following [Civ. Code § 1954.31(c)]:

- Any extension of a lease's term without the mutual, written consent of the owner and the tenant;

- Any requirement on either party to offer to extend or renew or to negotiate an extension or renewal of the lease;

- A bar to any action brought to recover possession whether by ejectment, unlawful detainer, or other lawful means; or

- Any remedy under the enactment or Civ. Code § 1954.25 et seq., other than that which may be provided under Civ. Code § 1954.31(a)(3).

§ 335.18 Mobilehomes

Mobilehome parks are regulated by the Mobilehome Residency Law [Civ. Code § 798 et seq.]. Newly constructed mobilehome spaces initially held out for rent after January 1, 1990, are exempt from any ordinance, rule, regulation, or initiative measure adopted by any city, county, or city and county that establishes a maximum amount that a landlord may charge a tenant for rent [Civ. Code 798.45; see Civ. Code § 798.7 ("new construction" defined)]. Local rent control ordinances regulating mobilehome spaces held out for rent before January 1, 1990, are valid, as the Legislature has not shown an intent to occupy the entire field of mobilehome regulation [Palos Verdes Shores Mobile Estates, Ltd. v. City of Los Angeles (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 362, 374, 190 Cal. Rptr. 866] . These mobilehomes, however, are subject to Civ. Code § 798.17, which provides that certain rental agreements are exempt from any ordinance, rule regulation, or initiative measure adopted by any local governmental agency that establishes a maximum amount that a landlord may charge for rent [Civ. Code § 798.17(a)].

[1] Constitutionality of Rent Control Laws

Rent control ordinance allowing consideration of tenant hardship in determining allowable rent increases is not facially invalid under due process and equal protection clauses of U.S. Const., amend. XIV. Pennell v. City of San Jose (1988) 485 U.S. 1, 11-15, 108 S. Ct. 849, 99 L. Ed. 2d 1

Mobilehome park's rent control takings claim was not ripe because it failed to pursue "Kavanau adjustment" of prospective rents that would compensate for past losses and failed to show that "Kavanau adjustment" was inadequate remedy. Carson Harbor Village, Ltd. v. City of Carson (9th Cir. 2004) 353 F.3d 824, 830 ; see Kavanau v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 761, 767, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672, 941 P.2d 851

Mobilehome park owner's allegation that city rent control ordinance allowed tenants to capture "premium" on sales price of mobilehomes alleged as-applied regulatory takings claim, but claim was not ripe because owner failed to show that "Kavanau adjustment" was inadequate remedy. Hacienda Valley Mobile Estates v. City of Morgan Hill (9th Cir. 2003) 353 F.3d 651, 661 ; see Kavanau v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 761, 767, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672, 941 P.2d 851

Reduction of base rent allowed under city rent control ordinance at mobilehome park following termination of park's adult-only policy violates park owner's rights under United States v. City of Hayward (9th Cir. 1994) 36 F.3d 832, 835

Property owner's facial taking challenge to local mobilehome park rent control ordinance is ripe for judicial review even though property owner did not first seek remedies in state court since at time alleged taking occurred California did not recognize actions for inverse condemnation based on regulatory takings. Levald, Inc. v. City of Palm Desert (9th Cir. 1993) 998 F.2d 680, 686

District court's dismissal of substantive due process claim challenging city's mobilehome park rent control and vacancy control ordinance as taking without just compensation was proper; however, court abused its discretion by failing to explain its reasons for denying leave to amend a complaint (when no reasons were apparent from record). Levald, Inc. v. City of Palm Desert (9th Cir. 1993) 998 F.2d 680, 692

Federal court claim that rent control ordinance was taking was not ripe for adjudication when state remedies had not been pursued. Schnuck v. City of Santa Monica (9th Cir. 1991) 935 F.2d 171

In actions alleging confiscatory rent regulation, availability of future rent adjustment forecloses suit for damages for violation of right to constitutional due process under 42 U.S.C. § 1983. Galland v. City of Clovis (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 1003, 1008, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 711, 16 P.3d 130

Rent board proceedings effect substantive due process violation only when board's actions amount to a "deliberate flouting of the law." Galland v. City of Clovis (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 1003, 1035-1036, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 711, 16 P.3d 130

No showing that rent control ordinance failed to advance a "substantial governmental interest" and therefore effected a taking when landlord alleged that ordinance failed to advance its stated goals of providing affordable housing for poor, elderly, and young families, but did not allege that rent control ordinance failed to advance legitimate purpose of preventing unreasonable and excessive rent increases. Santa Monica Beach, Ltd. v. Superior Court (1999) 19 Cal. 4th 952, 971, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 93, 968 P.2d 993

Rent control regulation may effect an unconstitutional taking, even though it leaves property owner some economically beneficial use of the property; however, when a due process violation is sole basis of asserted taking, remedy for due process violation, if available and adequate, is a valuable benefit that satisfies takings clause. Kavanau v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 761, 773-776, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 672, 941 P.2d 851

Rent control legislation is not improper delegation of judicial power. McHugh v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 348, 375, 261 Cal. Rptr. 318, 777 P.2d 91 ; Baskin v. City of Berkeley Rent Stabilization Bd. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 708, 715, 253 Cal. Rptr. 791

Rent control ordinance based on fair return on investment is constitutional. Fisher v. City of Berkeley (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 644, 679-686, 209 Cal. Rptr. 682, 693 P.2d 261 , aff'd, 475 U.S. 260, 106 S. Ct. 1045, 89 L. Ed. 2d 206

Rent control ordinance is not improper delegation of legislative power. Carson Mobilehome Park Owners' Ass'n v. City of Carson (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 184, 190, 197 Cal. Rptr. 284, 672 P.2d 1297

Rent control ordinance that provided just, fair, and reasonable standard and included 12 relevant factors is constitutional even though it did not contain formula for determining reasonable return. Carson Mobilehome Park Owners' Ass'n v. City of Carson (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 184, 189-191, 197 Cal. Rptr. 284, 672 P.2d 1297

Rent control regulation is constitutional as valid exercise of local entity's police power. Birkenfeld v. City of Berkeley (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 129, 173, 130 Cal. Rptr. 465, 550 P.2d 1001

Rent control regulation may properly be enacted by initiative. Birkenfeld v. City of Berkeley (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 129, 159-160, 130 Cal. Rptr. 465, 550 P.2d 1001

Rent control ordinance is unconstitutional if procedure for rent adjustment is so cumbersome and unrelated to purpose of law as to constitute denial of due process. Birkenfeld v. City of Berkeley (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 129, 173, 130 Cal. Rptr. 465, 550 P.2d 1001

San Francisco rent ordinance requiring landlords to pay tenants interest on security deposits at rate of five percent did not effect a taking. Small Prop. Owners of San Francisco v. City & County of San Francisco (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 1388, 1409, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 121

Property owner prevented from charging increased rent by rent control ordinance subsequently determined to be unconstitutional not entitled to recover lost rental income, either from tenants or from city that imposed rent limits, if ordinance did not deny owner a fair return on its investment. Hillsboro Properties v. City of Rohnert Park (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 379, 393-394, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 441

"Fair return on investment" does not require separate rent increase for each capital improvement; due process only requires fair return on investment as a whole. Morgan v. City of Chino (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 1192, 1198-1199, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 784

Rent control board did not usurp judicial functions in determining whether mobilehome leases were exempt from regulation and issuing decisions imposing penalties for excess rent charges, because such actions were reasonably necessary to accomplish board's legitimate regulatory functions. Village Trailer Park v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 1133, 1143, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 857

Requirement in city's rent control ordinance that landlords place residential tenants' security deposits in interest-bearing accounts at federally insured financial institutions and pay tenants 3 percent interest per year gave rise to regulatory takings claim. Action Apartment Assn. v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 587, 593, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 412

Mobilehome rent control ordinance imposing vacancy controls did not effect regulatory taking; city could reasonably have concluded that limiting park owners' ability to raise the rent on sale or transfer of mobilehomes would accomplish the legitimate goal of protecting current mobilehome owners' equity in their homes and protecting prospective mobilehome owners fromexcessive rents. Montclair Parkowners Assn. v. City of Montclair (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 784, 795, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 598

County ordinance and agreement entered into by county and mobilehome park owners imposing 15-year moratorium on enactment of rent control legislation affecting mobilehome parks was unconstitutional limitation on power of future county boards of supervisors to make and enforce ordinances pursuant to their police power. County Mobilehome Positive Action Com., Inc. v. County of San Diego (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 727, 740-741, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 409

Trial court was correct in staying enforcement of rent control provision that prohibited any landlord who purchased rental property after effective date of rent control ordinance from seeking adjustment in base rents since ordinance was too broad and could have unconstitutional results in particular cases. Apartment Assn. of Greater L.A. v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1730, 1738-1739, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 228

Raising registration fee by $48 and not allowing it to be passed on to tenant does not deprive landlord of fair return on investment when there was no showing that base rent or allowed increases were minimum required to be constitutional. West Hollywood Concerned Citizens v. City of West Hollywood (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 486, 497-499, 283 Cal. Rptr. 470

Rent control ordinance authorizing civil action and mandating imposition of treble damages by trial court is not punitive or violative of due process. Kelly v. Yee (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 336, 341-342, 261 Cal. Rptr. 568

Rent control provision precluding landlords and successors in interest from recapturing, on later registration, annual rent increases lost by prior nonregistration is neither confiscatory nor a violation of constitutional due process principles. Searle v. City of Berkeley Rent Stabilization Bd. (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1251, 1255-1259, 243 Cal. Rptr. 449

Rent control ordinance requiring landlord to paint every four years or have rent decreased is constitutional. Berman v. City of West Hollywood Rent Stabilization Dept. (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 837, 840-841, 243 Cal. Rptr. 144

Guarantee of fair return on value is not required for validity of rent control law, nor must law guarantee owner's anticipated appreciation. Baker v. City of Santa Monica (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 972, 979-982, 226 Cal. Rptr. 755

Ordinance allowing rent control board to decrease rents when landlord's maintenance expenses decrease and to base decision partially on violations of housing and health ordinances is valid. Sterling v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 176, 183-185, 214 Cal. Rptr. 71

Rent control ordinance is not unconstitutional impairment of contract. Interstate Marina Development Co. v. County of Los Angeles (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 435, 448, 202 Cal. Rptr. 377

Provision of rent control ordinance exempting certain units from regulation is not denial of equal protection under California or federal constitutions. Kalaydjian v. City of Los Angeles (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 690, 694, 197 Cal. Rptr. 149

Rent control ordinance based on "return on investment" rather than "return on current value" is constitutional. Cotati Alliance for Better Housing v. City of Cotati (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 280, 286-291, 195 Cal. Rptr. 825

[2] Application of Rent Control Laws

Under San Francisco Residential Rent Stabilization and Arbitration Ordinance, successor landlord was liable for refunding overpayment of rent charged by predecessor to tenant. Baychester Shopping Center, Inc. v. San Francisco Residential Rent Stabilization and Arbitration Board (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 1000, 1005, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 341

Although lease expressly prohibited subletting, roommate came within definition of "tenant" in Berkeley Rent Control Ordinance; landlord was unable to evict roommate after named tenant surrendered possession since landlord had no grounds for eviction of roommate under Ordinance. DeZerega v. Meggs (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 28, 38-39, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366

Costa-Hawkins Rental Housing Act [Civ. Code § 1954.50 et seq.] occupies entire field of vacancy decontrol, and therefore local regulations imposing criteria not found in Act for determining whether vacancy was "voluntary" for purposes of rent increase, giving rent board power to challenge owner's vacancy rent increase "if a question of fact arises" regarding correct rent, and placing burden on owner to prove that vacancy was qualifying vacancy, were preempted by Act. Cabinda LLC v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 853, 863-864, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 676

Mobilehome rent control ordinance applied to tenancies of nine months or longer at recreational vehicle park. Griffith v. County of Santa Cruz (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 1318, 1322, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 801

Amendment by city council of rent control ordinance adopted by voter initiative is invalid. Mobilepark West Homeowners Assn. v. Escondido Mobilepark West (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 32, 43, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 393

Rent control ordinance is applicable to purchaser at trust deed sale; eviction of tenant of former owner precluded without basis under rent control ordinance. Gross v. Superior Court (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 265, 270-273, 217 Cal. Rptr. 284

Employee residing on and holding over tenancy on premises was licensee, not tenant, and not entitled to protection of rent control ordinance. Chan v. Antepenko (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 21, 250 Cal. Rptr. 851

Provisions in rent control ordinance are applicable to person who acquired premises by foreclosure. People v. Little (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 14, 19-21 , 192 Cal. Rptr. 619

[3] Adjustments

Alternative formula presented by mobilehome park owner on application for special adjustment under mobilehome park rent control ordinance did not serve to rebut evidentiary presumption in ordinance that consumer price index and net operating income adjustments would provide fair return. TG Oceanside, L.P. v. City of Oceanside (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 1355, 1381-1382, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 320

Rent control board required to use gross profits maintenance analysis or similar methodology giving due consideration to debt service costs in calculating fair return for mobilehome park owner. Carson Gardens, L.L.C. v. City of Carson Mobilehome Park Rental Review Board (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 856, 866, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 768

When applying maintenance of net operating income (MNOI) standard in determining rent increase for mobilehome park, rent board is not required as matter of law to account for inflation by indexing base year NOI by 100 percent or more of increase in consumer price index. H.N. & Frances Berger Foundation v. City of Escondido (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1, 14-15, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 19

Santa Monica Rent Control Board not authorized by city rent control ordinance to file petitions to reduce rents based on impacts of construction on behalf of individual tenants who had not come forward on their own initiative but was authorized to order rent reductions for tenants who petitioned for reductions. Ocean Park Assocs. v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 1050, 1064-1065, 1069, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 421

Low base rents at mobilehome parks did not provide fair rate of return due to "unique or extraordinary circumstances," based on fact that previousowner of parks owned properties free and clear, paid pre-Proposition 13 taxes, and had not raised rents since 1985 because he did not want any "government involvement." Concord Communities, L.P. v. City of Concord (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 1407, 1417-1418, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 511

Interference with housing services resulting from reasonably necessary repair and maintenance to rental units, without a substantial impact on the right to occupy the premises as a residence, does not represent a decrease in services justifying a corresponding reduction in rent. Golden Gateway Center v. San Francisco Residential Rent Stabilization & Arbitration Bd. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1204, 1212, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 332

City's Mobilehome Rental Review Board decision that authorized only limited increase in rent for owners' mobilehome parks reversed and remanded to Board for reconsideration when Board, in determining owners' claim for increased rents, committed serious error by failing to account for interest payments on encumbering loans in determining income (or loss) resulting from operation of parks. Yee v. Mobilehome Park Rental Review Bd. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1097, 1100, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1

Rent control board does not abuse discretion in using prior rent roll to compute gross income for purposes of determining allowable rent increase based on increased financing costs. Cole v. City of Oakland Residential Rent Arbitration Bd. (1991) 3 Cal. App. 4th 693, 697-699, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 593

Local rent control ordinance that included "security deposits" in its definition of rent and limited rent increases is not preempted by either Civ. Code § 1950.5 (regulating security deposits) or by Civ. Code § 827 (permitting landlord to change terms of month-to-month tenancy on 30 days' notice). People v. Tannenbaum (1994) 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 534

[4] Exhaustion of Administrative Remedies

Challenge to rent control ordinance is precluded by failure to exhaust administrative remedies by application to rent control board for individual adjustment. Amberhill Properties v. City of Berkeley (9th Cir. 1987) 814 F.2d 1340, 1341

[5] Actions

Local rent board regulation granting tenant displaced by disaster right to reoccupy same unit following unit's repair is valid and does not exceed scope of underlying rent control ordinance. Aguirre v. Lee (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1646, 1653, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 367

Action to recover excess rent under rent control ordinance is subject to three-year limitations period of Code Civ. Proc. § 338(a), not one-year period of Code Civ. Proc. § 340(a). Mitchell v. Leslie (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 7, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 419

Private cause of action for damages is available for tenant damaged by landlord's violation of good faith standard contained in local ordinance; landlord evicted plaintiff based on occupancy of the unit by landlord's mother and landlord's mother never resided on the premises. Castillo v. Friedman (1987) 243 Cal. Rptr. 206 (decided before enactment of Civ. Code § 1947.10)

[6] Evidence

Rent Control Board's determination as to threshold of "significantly below fair market rates" could only have been premised on personal experience and knowledge of real estate, and therefore board was not qualified to dispute experts' opinion that base rents at mobilehome park were significantly below market value. Concord Communities, L.P. v. City of Concord (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 1407, 1416, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 511

Issue of fair return on investment under rent control ordinance is matter of expert opinion. Whispering Pines Mobile Home Park, Ltd. v. Scotts Valley (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 152, 159-161, 225 Cal. Rptr. 364

Imposition of treble damages by rent control agency is unconstitutional. McHugh v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 348, 378-379, 261 Cal. Rptr. 318, 777 P.2d 91

Rent control ordinance authorizing civil action for treble damages mandates imposition of treble damages by trial court; provision not punitive or violative of due process. Kelly v. Yee (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 336, 341-342, 261 Cal. Rptr. 568

[8] Review

Court reviewing rent control agency decision under mandamus procedure (Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5) must be provided with complete administrative record, including evidence; requirement applies whether court exercises independent judgment or determines whether agency's findings supported by evidence. Buckhart v. San Francisco Residential Rent etc., Bd. (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1032, 1036, 243 Cal. Rptr. 298

Administrative decision allowing rent increase does not involve fundamental vested right when denial of increase would not put landlord out of business or result in rents so low so as to be confiscatory; proper standard of review is substantial evidence rather than independent judgment test. San Marcos Mobilehome Park Owners' Assn. v. City of San Marcos (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1492, 1499-1504, 238 Cal. Rptr. 290

[9] Exemptions From Rent Control Laws

Provision of rent control ordinance exempting certain units from regulation is not denial of equal protection under California or federal constitutions. Kalaydjian v. City of Los Angeles (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 690, 694, 197 Cal. Rptr. 149

In unlawful detainer action, trial court's finding that downstairs area of landlord's single family residence constituted "dwelling" for purposes of local municipal code was proper; however, premises were exempt under local rent control ordinance which excepted rental units in single family dwellings. Gabor v. Cox (1994) 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 925

[10] Substantial Compliance

Landlord who fails to register units with correct base rent, charges rent increases in excess of permissible percentage increase, and fails to comply for over one year with rent control agency's order to reregister units with the correct base rent is not in substantial compliance with local rent control ordinance under Civ. Code § 1947.7(b). Minelian v. Manzella (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 457, 462-463, 263 Cal. Rptr. 597

[11] Withdrawal of Property From Rental Market

San Francisco ordinance requiring landlords to provide relocation assistance when removing property from rental market and not limiting such assistance to lower income tenants does not violate Ellis Act. Pieri v. City & County of San Francisco (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 886, 892-893, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 629

San Francisco code section requiring landlords seeking eviction under Ellis Act to notify tenants as to amount of relocation assistance payment landlord believed to be due created substantive defense not contemplated by Ellis Act and therefore was preempted. Johnson v. City & County of San Francisco (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 7, 18, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 8

Ellis Act (Gov. Code § 7060 et seq.) preempted local ordinance that conditioned issuance of demolition permits for buildings with two or more residential rental units on city's approval of plans to construct a condominium, stock cooperative, or community apartment project and also provided that demolition permit could be withheld unless owner waived the right to construct such a project for a period of 10 years from the date of demolition. Los Angeles Lincoln Place Investors, Ltd. v. City of Los Angeles (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 53, 64, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 600

Local ordinance requiring six months notice and payment of relocation assistance as condition of going out of business is preempted by state law, which preempts local substantive controls over landlord's right to go out of business. Channing Properties v. City of Berkeley (1993) 11 Cal. App. 4th 88, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 32

Municipal ordinance that required one-to-one replacement of residential units as condition of going out of business of residential renting is preempted by state law allowing landlords to go out of business. Bullock v. City and County of San Francisco (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1072, 1099-1101, 271 Cal. Rptr. 44

Local ordinance requiring rent board permit to demolish building conflicts with state law granting landlords absolute right to go out of business. Javidzad v. City of Santa Monica (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 524, 527-529, 251 Cal. Rptr. 350 (superseded by Gov. Code, § 7060.7, subd. (b))

Local ordinance requiring landlord to obtain permit to evict tenants and go out of business is preempted by state law allowing landlords to go out of business. City of Santa Monica v. Yarmark (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 153, 163-165, 249 Cal. Rptr. 732

[12] Indian Reservations

Federal law preempts local rent control ordinance for property located on Indian reservations. Zachary v. Wilk (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 754, 761-762, 219 Cal. Rptr. 122

[13] Eviction Control

Proceeding under San Francisco rent ordinance rather than declaratory relief action was proper method for determining tenant's "protected" status under ordinance. DeLaura v. Beckett (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 542, 547, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 253

San Francisco Rent Control Ordinance provision barring eviction under certain conditions when tenant sublets, even if lease precluded a sublet, was proper exercise of Rent Board's authority and was not unconstitutional impairment of contract. Danekas v. San Francisco Residential Rent Stabilization and Arbitration Board (2001) 95 Cal. App. 4th 638, 647, 650, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 694

Defendant(s).	)	or does not exceed) $10,000]
	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] (hereinafter referred to as "Plaintiff"), a natural person, is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a resident of _____ County, California.

2. Defendant(s) _____ [name] (hereinafter referred to as "Defendant(s)"), is/are, and at all times mentioned in this complaint was/were, the owner(s) of the dwelling located at _____ [unit number, if any, street address, city], _____ County, California (referred to below as "the premises").

[3. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued in this complaint as DOES I through _____, inclusive, and therefore sues these defendants by such fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants is negligently responsible in some manner for the occurrences alleged in this complaint, and plaintiff's injuries as herein alleged were proximately caused by defendants' negligence).]

[4. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that) (A)t all times mentioned in this complaint, each defendant was the agent of the other(s), was acting within the course and scope of this agency, and all acts alleged to have been committed by any one of them was committed on behalf of every other defendant.]

5. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff and defendant(s) entered into _____ [a written or an oral] agreement by the terms of which defendant(s) rented the premises to plaintiff _____ [describe nature of tenancy, e.g., on a month-to-month basis] at the agreed rental of $_____ per _____ [specify, e.g., month] payable _____ [specify, e.g., in advance on the first day of each month], commencing on _____ [date]. [A copy of the rental agreement is attached to this complaint as Exhibit A and made a part of this complaint.]

6. In accordance with the rental agreement, plaintiff entered into possession of the premises on _____ [date] and continued in possession until _____ [date], on which date plaintiff vacated the premises in accordance with _____ [specify, eviction procedure, e.g., a notice to quit served on plaintiff by defendant(s)], as alleged below.

7. OPTIONAL: Plaintiff has duly performed all of the conditions of the rental agreement to be performed on his/her part.

8. On or about _____ [date], defendant(s) _____ [specify eviction procedure, e.g., served plaintiff with a 30-day notice to quit the premises]. [Defendant also served plaintiff with _____ (specify additional forms, if any, served on plaintiff as required by local rent control ordinance, title of local ordinance, and passage date, e.g., a rent stabilization ordinance declaration as required by the Rent Stabilization Ordinance of the City of Paradise, effective April 21, 1995, operative May 1, 1995).]

9. Defendant(s) represented [in the _____ (specify, e.g., rent stabilization ordinance declaration)] that the grounds for plaintiff's eviction were that defendant sought possession of the premises for _____ [his/her] use and occupancy or use and occupancy by _____ (specify member of defendant's immediate family, e.g., defendant's mother _____ [name]) under _____ [specify rent control ordinance provision authorizing eviction based on owner occupancy, title, and passage date of ordinance].

10. Defendant's representations were false, and _____ [defendant or _____ (name of member of defendant's immediate family)] has not resided on the premises for six continuous months, as required by Civil Code Section 1947.10.

[EITHER]

11. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that, when defendant(s) made the representations alleged in this complaint, he/she/they knew them to be false and that these representations were made by defendant(s) with no intention of fulfilling the six-month requirement of Civil Code Section 1947.10 and with the intent to defraud plaintiff and induce him/her to quit the premises.

[OR]

11. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that, when defendant(s) made the representations alleged in this complaint, he/she/they had no reasonable grounds for believing that the representations were true, and that these representations were made by defendant(s) with the intent to induce plaintiff to quit the premises.

[CONTINUE]

12. As a proximate result of the eviction, plaintiff was forced to take up residence at _____ [specify plaintiff's residence(s) since eviction], for a period of _____ [specify time period e.g., two months], at a cost of $_____ per _____ [specify, e.g., month], for a total cost of $_____. The difference between the rent that would have been paid for the premises and the amount paid by plaintiff since the eviction is $_____, and plaintiff has been damaged in that amount.

13. As a further proximate result of the eviction, plaintiff incurred the following costs:

[SPECIFY costs incurred by plaintiff in relocating]

a. Moving costs: $_____

b. Storage costs: $_____

c. Utility charges: $_____

d. Other _____: $_____

TOTAL COSTS: $_____

[14. Plaintiff has incurred and will incur attorney's fees in prosecuting this action.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

[EITHER, if plaintiff desires to relocate on the premises]

1. That defendant(s) be compelled to allow plaintiff to relocate on the premises as a tenant on the same terms as were in effect before plaintiff's eviction;

2. For damages in the sum of $_____, which is three times the amount of rent expenses incurred in excess of rent that would have been paid to defendant(s);

3. For a sum amounting to three times the cost to plaintiff of relocating on the premises;

[OR, if plaintiff does not desire to relocate on the premises]

1. For damages in the sum of $_____, which is three times the amount of one month's rent paid by plaintiff for the premises;

2. For damages in the sum of $_____, which is three times the amount of costs incurred by plaintiff in relocating to a different residence;

[CONTINUE]

[3/4. For attorney's fees in the sum of $_____;]

4/5. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

5/6. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by a residential tenant in a city, county, or city and county with a system of rent control against an owner when the tenant has been evicted from a rental unit based on reoccupation of the unit by the owner or a member of the owner's immediate family, neither the owner nor the family member has maintained residence in the unit for six continuous months, and the eviction was based on fraud by the owner or the family member not to fulfill the six-month requirement [Civ. Code § 1947.10(a)].

In pleading a local ordinance, such as a rent control ordinance, counsel must refer to the ordinance by its title and date of passage [Code Civ. Proc. § 459].

The remedies provided by Civ. Code § 1947.10 do not prohibit any other remedies available to a party affected by the statute [Civ. Code § 1947.10(b)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Use of This Form. The attorney should note that the complaint in [1], above, does not provide for causes of action based on a local rent control ordinance. As a practical matter, local ordinances usually have more stringent requirements and far greater exposure to damages than is provided in Civ. Code § 1947.10. In a rent/eviction control jurisdiction, an attorney should always read the ordinance and the rules and regulations before proceeding with the filing of a "wrongful eviction" action. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[3] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8)].

If the action is a limited civil case, the caption must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 and must also identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

[4] Allegations

The above complaint alleges the following:

- Plaintiff's name, capacity, and residence (Paragraph 1).

- Defendant's ownership of the rental unit (Paragraph 2) [see Civ. Code § 1947.10(a)].

- An optional allegation as to fictitiously named defendant(s) (optional Paragraph 3) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 474].

- An optional allegation for use when agents are being sued (optional Paragraph 4) [see Ch. 427, Principal and Agent].

- The rental agreement creating the landlord-tenant or lessor-lessee relationship (Paragraph 5) [see Civ. Code § 1947.10(a)].

- Plaintiff tenant's possession of the premises (Paragraph 6).

- Performance by plaintiff of all conditions to be performed on his or her part (Optional Paragraph 7) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 457].

- The date of defendant's eviction of plaintiff (Paragraph 8) [see Civ. Code § 1947.10(a)].

- The eviction procedure employed by defendant, including any and all forms served by defendant on plaintiff (Paragraph 8) [see Civ. Code § 1947.10(a)].

- Defendant's representation to plaintiff that the eviction was based on occupancy of the rental unit by defendant or a member of his or her immediate family (Paragraph 9) [see Civ. Code § 1947.10(a)].

- The rent control ordinance provision authorizing eviction based on owner occupation, and the title and passage date of the rent control ordinance (Paragraph 9) [see Code Civ. Proc. 459].

- That defendant's representation was false and that neither defendant nor his or her family member has maintained residence in the unit for six continuous months (Paragraph 10) [see Civ. Code §

- Allegations of fraud for use in the alternative depending on whether defendant's representations constituted intentional or negligent misrepresentation (alternate Paragraphs 11) [see Civ. Code §§ 1710, 1947.10(a)].

- Plaintiff's detriment proximately resulting from the eviction relating to the amount of rent paid since the eviction in excess of the amount that plaintiff would have paid defendant as rent (Paragraph 12) [see Civ. Code § 1947.10(a)].

PRACTICE TIP:
Seek Future Rent? Plaintiff may also consider seeking the difference in rent for the future time plaintiff expected to live in the old apartment. However, this claim may subject plaintiff to an argument that such damages are speculative. By Myron Moskovitz.

- Plaintiff's detriment proximately resulting from the eviction relating to the costs incurred by plaintiff in relocating to a different unit (Paragraph 12) [see Civ. Code § 1947.10(a)].

- An optional allegation as to attorney's fees incurred (optional Paragraph 13) [see Civ. Code § 1947.10(a)].

[5] Damages

If the court determines that the plaintiff's eviction was based on fraud by the defendant or the defendant's immediate relative to not fulfill the six-month residency requirement of Civ. Code § 1947.10, it may order the defendant to pay treble the cost of relocating the plaintiff from his or her existing unit back into the previous unit and may order the defendant to pay treble the amount of any increase in rent that the plaintiff has paid. If the plaintiff decides not to relocate back into the previous unit, the court may order the defendant to pay treble the amount of one month's rent paid by the plaintiff for the unit from which he or she was evicted and treble the amount of any costs incurred in relocating to a different unit. The prevailing party will also be awarded attorney's fees and court costs [Civ. Code § 1947.10(a)].

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by a residential tenant in a city, county, or city and county with a system of rent control against an owner who has willfully or intentionally charged the tenant rent in excess of the established, certified, lawful rent ceiling for the rental unit, and has refused the tenant's demand to refund the excess rent [Civ. Code § 1947.11(a)]. In pleading a local ordinance, such as a rent control ordinance, counsel must refer to the ordinance by its title and date of passage [Code Civ. Proc. § 459].

The remedies provided by Civ. Code § 1947.11 do not prohibit any other remedies available to a party affected by the statute [Civ. Code § 1947.11(b)].

[3] Statute of Limitations

Civ. Code § 1947.11 does not extend the time within which an action is required to be brought beyond the otherwise applicable limitations set forth in the Code of Civil Procedure [Civ. Code § 1947.11(c)].

[4] Allegations

The above complaint alleges:

- The plaintiff's name, capacity, and residence (Paragraph 1).
- Defendant's ownership of the rental unit (Paragraph 2) [see Civ. Code § 1947.11(a)].
- An optional allegation as to fictitiously named defendant(s) (Optional Paragraph 3) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 474].
- An optional allegation for use when agents are being sued (Optional Paragraph 4) [see Ch. 427, Principal and Agent].
- The establishment and certification of a permissible rent level for the premises by the local rent control agency under a local rent control ordinance (Paragraph 5) [see Civ. Code § 1947.11(a)].
- The title and passage date of the local rent control ordinance (Paragraph 5) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 459].
- The rental agreement creating the landlord-tenant or lessor-lessee relationship and requiring payment of excessive rent (Paragraph 6) [see Civ. Code § 1947.11(a)].
- Plaintiff tenant's possession of the premises (Paragraph 7).
- That defendant willfully and intentionally charged plaintiff excessive rent (Paragraph 8) [see Civ.

Code § 1947.11(a)].

- An optional allegation for use when plaintiff was unaware that the rent charged was excessive (Paragraph 8).

- The total amount of rent paid by plaintiff to defendant in excess of the certified permissible rent level for the premises (Paragraph 9) [see Civ. Code § 1947.11(a)].

- Plaintiff's demand that defendant refund the excess rent paid (Paragraph 10) [see Civ. Code § 1947.11(a)].

- Defendant's refusal to refund the excess rent (Paragraph 11) [see Civ. Code § 1947.11(a)].

- An optional allegation as to attorney's fees incurred (optional Paragraph 12) [see Civ. Code § 1947.11(a)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Attorney's Fees. If plaintiff is seeking attorney's fees, he or she should state whether a lease provision or a statute is the basis for the claim. Note that Civ. Code § 1947.11(a) provides that "[t]he prevailing party shall be awarded attorney's fees and court costs." By Myron Moskovitz and Benjamin Kaplan.

[5] Damages

If the court determines that the defendant willfully or intentionally charged the plaintiff rent in excess of the certified rent ceiling, the court will award the plaintiff a judgment for the excess amount of rent, and may treble that amount. The prevailing party will be awarded attorney's fees and court costs [Civ. Code § 1947.11(a)].

§ 335.42 Affirmative Defense in Action Against Landlord Based on Noncompliance With Local Rent Control Ordinance; Landlord in Substantial Compliance [Civ. Code § 1947.7(b)]

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense in Action Against Landlord Based on Noncompliance With Local Rent Control Ordinance; Landlord in Substantial Compliance [Civ. Code § 1947.7(b)]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that he/she has made a good-faith attempt to comply with _____ [specify title and passage date of local rent control ordinance], sufficient to carry out the intent and purpose of the ordinance, because _____ [set forth facts showing defendant's good-faith attempt to comply with local ordinance].

After receiving notice from _____ [local rent control agency] that he/she/it was not in compliance with local law, defendant cured the defect by _____ [set forth facts showing how defendant cured defect].

Defendant acted to cure the defect in a timely manner, because _____ [set forth facts showing that defendant cured defect in a timely manner as reasonably determined by local rent control agency].

Defendant is in substantial compliance with _____ [specify title and passage date of local rent control ordinance], as defined by Civil Code Section 1947.7(b), and therefore may not be assessed a penalty or any other sanction for noncompliance other than _____ [restitution to _____ (name of tenant) or recovery of _____ (registration or filing) fees due to _____ (local rent control agency)].

[2] Use of Form

The form of affirmative defense in [1], above, may be used in an answer to an action against a landlord for noncompliance with a local rent control ordinance when the landlord is in "substantial compliance" with the ordinance and the plaintiff seeks to assess a penalty or sanction against the landlord [see Civ. Code § 1947.7(b)].

In pleading a local ordinance, such as a rent control ordinance, counsel must refer to the ordinance by its title and date of passage [Code Civ. Proc. § 459].

PRACTICE TIP:

Rule Applicable Only to Penalties. Please note that this allegation is a defense only to the claim for a penalty. Thus, it is not applicable for use as a defense to the claim for the overcharge itself. By Myron Moskovitz.

PRACTICE TIP:

Availability of "Wrongful Eviction" Defense. Civ. Code § 1947.7 does not provide the landlord with an affirmative defense in a "wrongful eviction" action brought by a tenant. It is hypothetically possible under the statutory schema that such a defense might be available under the definition of "substantial compliance" if (1) a landlord serves an eviction notice that fails to comply with the ordinance, (2) the tenant then files a report of "wrongful eviction," (3) the local agency then sends a notice of deficiency, and (4) the landlord then cures the defect in a timely manner. However, such a situation would be relatively early on in the process so as to make the circumstances, however unlikely to happen, be of minimal import. By Benjamin Kaplan.

[3] Allegations

The above form of affirmative defense alleges:

- The defendant landlord's good faith attempt to comply with the ordinance (Paragraph 1) [see Civ. Code § 1947.7(b)].

- That defendant cured the deficiency after receiving notice of the deficiency from the local rent control agency (Paragraph 2) [see Civ. Code § 1947.7(b)].

- That defendant cured the deficiency in a timely manner as reasonably determined by the local rent control agency (Paragraph 3) [see Civ. Code § 1947.7(b)].

- That defendant is in substantial compliance with the ordinance in accordance with Civ. Code § 1947.7(b) and may not be assessed a penalty or any other sanction for noncompliance (Paragraph 4) [see Civ. Code § 1947.7(b)].

[4] Substantial Compliance

A landlord who fails to register units with the correct rent base, charges rent increases in excess of permissible percentage increases, and fails to comply for over one year with the rent control agency's order to reregister units with the correct base rent is not in substantial compliance with the rent control ordinance under Civ. Code § 1947.7(b) [Minelian v. Manzella (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 457, 462-463, 263 Cal. Rptr. 597] .

§ 335.43 Affirmative Defense Action Against Landlord Based on Tenant's Eviction From Rental Unit; Landlord Withdrawing Units From Rental Market [Gov. Code § 7060]

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense Action Against Landlord Based on Tenant's Eviction From Rental Unit; Landlord Withdrawing Units From Rental Market [Gov. Code § 7060]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that he/she evicted plaintiff from the premises because defendant is withdrawing all the accommodations located at _____ [specify address] from the rental market.

Defendant further alleges that he/she has withdrawn the accommodations located at _____ [specify address] in good faith and with bona fide intent.

Defendant has an absolute right under Government Code Section 7060 to go out of business as a landlord and may not be compelled to continue to offer plaintiff's unit for rent or lease.

[2] Use of Form

The form of affirmative defense in [1], above, may be used in an action against a landlord based on a tenant's eviction from a rental unit, when the eviction is incident to the landlord's withdrawal of the accommodations from the rental market [see Gov. Code § 7060].

The defense is only available if the landlord is withdrawing all the accommodations from the rental market [Gov. Code § 7060.7(d); see also Gov. Code § 7060(b) ("accommodations" defined)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Use of this Form. The attorney should note that if, for example, a tenant moved pursuant to an Ellis Act eviction and is alleging that the landlord did not take all the units out of the rental housing market, then no affirmative defense would appear to be necessary. In this case, a denial (Answer) would raise the issue of compliance. However, a tenant might bring a lawsuit based on "retaliation" or "discrimination,"

[3] Allegations

The above form of affirmative defense alleges (1) that plaintiff was evicted because defendant is withdrawing all the accommodations from the rental market (Paragraph 1) [see Gov. Code § 7060(a)]; (2) that the landlord acted in good faith and with bona fide intent in withdrawing the property from the rental market, which overcomes allegations of retaliatory eviction (Paragraph 2) [see Drouet v. Superior Court (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 583, 600, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 205, 73 P.3d 1185] ; and (3) that defendant has an absolute right to withdraw the accommodations from the rental market and may not be compelled to offer the plaintiff's unit for rent or lease (Paragraph 3) [see Gov. Code § 7060(a)].

Chapter 340 LIBEL AND SLANDER
PART I. SCOPE

This chapter discusses the right of a person to protect one's personal reputation from defamatory statements. The forms include complaints for libel [see §§ 340.220 -340.236] and slander [see §§ 340.237 -340.244]. Also included is a form for presenting a claim to a public entity [see § 340.245] and allegations of the presentation of a claim to a public entity and its rejection [see § 340.246]. For forms for use in actions involving torts that protect interests that are similar to the interests discussed in this part, see Ch. 269, Fraud and Deceit , Ch. 357, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process , Ch. 362, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress , and Ch. 429, Privacy .

This chapter discusses the various defenses which may be asserted against a complaint for libel or slander. Included are forms for defenses based on a failure to plead special damages sufficiently [see §§ 340.260 -340.262], on constitutional privilege [see §§ 340.264 -340.270], on the retraction statute [see §§ 340.271 -340.277], on the statutory immunity afforded broadcasters [see § 340.278], on justification by truth [see § 340.279], on mitigation [see § 340.280], on absolute privilege [see §§ 340.281 -340.287], on qualified privilege [see §§ 340.281 and 340.288], on consent [see § 340.289], and on the statute of limitations [see §§ 340.290 and 340.291]. Also included are forms based on failure to convey a defamatory meaning [see § 340.292], on failure to file a claim with public entity [see § 340.293], on the immunity afforded a public employee [see § 340.294], and on immunity afforded a public entity [see § 340.295]. In addition, a general form for notice of motion for summary judgment on the basis of an affirmative defense [see § 340.296] and an order granting that motion [see § 340.297] are included.

This chapter discusses and provides forms for use in slander of title and trade libel actions. The following forms are included in this part:

- Complaints for use in slander of title actions [see §§ 340.310 and 340.311],
- Defenses to slander of title actions [see §§ 340.312 -340.317], and
- A complaint for trade libel [see § 340.318].

For discussion and forms for use in actions which may be related to slander of title actions, see Ch. 11, Adjoining

Libel includes those defamatory statements that are more permanent in form than the defamatory matter conveyed by words. In California, a libel is a false and unprivileged publication by writing, printing, picture, effigy, or other fixed representation to the eye that exposes any person to hatred, contempt, ridicule, or obloquy or that causes him or her to be shunned or avoided or that has a tendency to injure the person in his or her occupation [*Civ. PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Defamation: Libel And Slander Complaints

30-340 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 340.12

§ 340.12 Libel on Its Face

[1] Defamation Without Explanation

A libel on its face, or libel per se, is a libel that is defamatory of the plaintiff without the necessity of explanatory matter such as an inducement, an innuendo, or any other extrinsic fact [Civ. Code § 45a; Barnes-Hind, Inc. v. Superior Court (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 377, 381, 385, 226 Cal. Rptr. 354] .

Language may be libelous on its face even though it may also be susceptible of an innocent interpretation. The test is whether a defamatory meaning appears from the language itself without the necessity of explanation or the pleading of extrinsic facts. If it does, whether the charge be directly made or merely implied, the publication--without averment, colloquium, or innuendo--will, in itself, constitute a libel [MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 549, 343 P.2d 36] .

Defamatory language not libelous on its face is not actionable unless the plaintiff alleges and proves that he or she has suffered special damage as a proximate result thereof [Civ. Code § 45a].

[2] Trade Libel Distinguished

The distinction between libel and trade libel is that the former concerns the person or reputation of the plaintiff and the latter relates to his or her goods [Polygram Records, Inc. v. Superior Court (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 543, 547-550, 555, 216 Cal. Rptr. 252 ; Shores v. Chip Steak Co. (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 627, 630, 279 P.2d 595 ; see Barnes-Hind, Inc. v. Superior Court (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 377, 381, 385, 226 Cal. Rptr. 354 (suggesting that statement disparaging product may constitute libel as well as trade libel)].

[3] Libelous Comments

Comments, opinions, and criticisms may be defamatory even though they are based on true or privileged statements of fact. The publisher is liable unless the comments themselves are privileged [Maidman v. Jewish Publ'ns, Inc. (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 643, 649, 7 Cal. Rptr. 617, 355 P.2d 265] .

Volume 30: Libel and Slander thru Limited Liability Companies-Chs. 340-347
Chapter 340 LIBEL AND SLANDER
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Defamation: Libel And Slander Complaints

30-340 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 340.13

[1] Defined

Slander includes those defamatory statements that are less permanent and more transitory in nature. Slander is a false and unprivileged publication, orally uttered, and also communications by radio or any mechanical or other means that (1) charges any person with crime, or with having been indicted, convicted, or punished for crime; (2) imputes in him or her the present existence of an infectious, contagious, or loathsome disease; (3) tends directly to injure him or her in respect to his or her office, profession, trade or business, either by imputing to him or her general disqualification in those respects that the office or other occupation peculiarly requires, or by imputing something with reference to his or her office, profession, trade, or business that has a natural tendency to lessen its profits; (4) imputes to him or her impotence or a want of chastity; or (5) that, by natural consequence, causes actual damage [Civ. Code § 46].

The mere fact that oral defamation is subsequently quoted or printed in a newspaper does not make it libel. The original oral statement is still slander [Mercado v. Hoefler (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 12, 18, 11 Cal. Rptr. 787] .

[2] Slander Per Se

Statements can be slanderous per se even though they do not appear to be defamatory on their face and in innuendo and inducement are required to make the words actionable [Jarman v. Rea (1902) 137 Cal. 339, 345-346, 70 P. 216 ; White v. Valenta (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 243, 251-254, 44 Cal. Rptr. 241] . Thus, if words can be shown to have carried a meaning that made them slanderous within any of the first four categories of Civ. Code § 46, damages are presumed, and there is no need to plead and prove special damages to sustain a cause of action [see Jarman v. Rea (1902) 137 Cal. 339, 345, 70 P. 216 ; White v. Valenta (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 243, 252, 44 Cal. Rptr. 241] . This principle contrasts sharply with the requirement that, for words not libelous on their face to be actionable, special damages must be pleaded and proved [see Civ. Code § 45a].

California courts have held that broadcast defamation must be treated as slander [Polygram Records v. Superior Court (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 543, 551-552 n.9, 216 Cal. Rptr. 252 ; Arno v. Stewart (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 955, 961, 54 Cal. Rptr. 392 ; see Civ. Code §§ 46 (slander), 48a (slander by radio broadcast requires special damages)]. However, one court of appeal recognized this requirement, but noted in dictum that Restatement (Second) of Torts § 568A persuasively contends that broadcast defamation should be treated as libel. The court also noted that statements in videotape form could arguably be deemed communication by any mechanical means and, therefore, slander under Civ. Code § 46, or be deemed a publication by fixed representation to the eye and, therefore, libel under Civ. Code § 45. Thus, the court opined that modern technology in the form of audio recording, cable television, and videotape has rendered the traditional libel-slander dichotomy increasingly obsolete [Polygram Records v. Superior Court (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 543, 551-552 n.9, 216 Cal. Rptr. 252] .

§ 340.15 Inaccurate Quotations

The United States Supreme Court, in an action brought by a public figure for the purposes of the constitutional requirement of actual malice, has discussed the application of general defamation principles to the claim that plaintiff was defamed by a magazine story that attributed quotations to him inaccurately [Masson v. New Yorker Magazine, Inc. (1991) 501 U.S. 496, 511-512, 111 S. Ct. 2419, 115 L. Ed. 2d 447] . The primary issue in the case was whether or not the charges constituted actual malice [see § 340.18[2][a]].

In general, quotation marks around a passage indicate to the reader that it reproduces the speaker's words verbatim; they inform the reader that he or she is reading the statement of the speaker, not a paraphrase or other indirect interpretation by an author. By providing this information, quotations add authority to the statement and credibility to the author's work. Quotations allow the reader to form his or her own conclusions, and to assess the conclusions of the author, instead of relying entirely on the author's characterization of the subject [Masson v. New Yorker Magazine, Inc. (1991) 501 U.S. 496, 511, 111 S. Ct. 2419, 115 L. Ed. 2d 447] .

A fabricated quotation may injure reputation in at least two ways, giving rise to a claim of defamation. First, the quotation might attribute an untrue factual assertion to the speaker, for example, a fabricated quotation of a public official admitting he or she had been convicted of a serious crime when in fact he or she had not. Second, regardless of the truth or falsity of the factual matter asserted within the quoted statement, the attribution may result in injury to reputation because the manner of expression or even the fact that the statement was made indicates a negative personal trait or an attitude the speaker does not hold, for example, a fabricated assertion of grandiosity or arrogance. In that situation, one need not determine whether the assertion is true in order to determine whether the report that the plaintiff made the assertion might have injured his or her reputation [Masson v. New Yorker Magazine, Inc. (1991) 501 U.S. 496, 511-512, 111 S. Ct. 2419, 115 L. Ed. 2d 447 (plaintiff, a psychoanalyst, quoted as asserting himself to be "the greatest analyst who ever lived")]. The Court further stated that a self-condemnatory quotation may carry more force than criticism by another, in that it would constitute an admission against the speaker's interest [Masson v. New Yorker Magazine, Inc. (1991) 501 U.S. 496, 512, 111 S. Ct. 2419, 115 L. Ed. 2d 447] .

§ 340.16 Opinions

[1] Milkovich Rule

The United States Supreme Court has held that no separate constitutional privilege for opinion is required to ensure the freedom of expression guaranteed by U.S. Const. amend. I. Rather, the Court held that First Amendment freedom of expression is adequately secured by existing constitutional doctrine without the creation of an artificial dichotomy between "opinion" and "fact." Those existing doctrines that the court set out that protect free expression are as follows [Milkovich v. Lorain Journal Co. (1990) 497 U.S. 1, 18-21, 110 S. Ct. 2695, 111 L. Ed. 2d 1] :

- A statement on matters of public concern must be provable as false before there can be liability under state defamation law when a media defendant is involved [see Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 776-778, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783] ;

- Statements that cannot reasonably be interpreted as stating actual facts and that are obviously rhetorical hyperbole are protected [see Hustler Magazine, Inc. v. Falwell (1988) 485 U.S. 46, 50, 108 S. Ct. 876, 99 L. Ed. 2d 41 ; Letter Carriers v. Austin (1974) 418 U.S. 264, 284-286, 94 S. Ct. 2770, 41 L. Ed. 2d 745 ; Greenbelt Coop. Publ'g Ass'n v. Bresler (1970) 398 U.S. 6, 13-14, 90 S. Ct. 1537, 26 L. Ed. 2d 6] ;

- If a statement of opinion concerning a public official or public figure reasonably implies false and defamatory facts, the plaintiff must show that the statements were made with knowledge of their falsity or with reckless disregard of the truth [see Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 336-337, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789 ; Curtis Publ'g Co. v. Butts (1967) 388 U.S. 130, 153-154, 87 S. Ct. 1975, 18 L. Ed. 2d 1094 ; New York Times Co. v. Sullivan (1964) 376 U.S. 254, 279-280, 84 S. Ct. 710, 11 L. Ed. 2d 686] ; and

- Enhanced appellate review, in which the appellate court has an obligation to make an independent examination of the whole record, provides assurance that these determinations will be made in a manner that does not constitute a forbidden intrusion on the field of free expression [see Bose Corp. v. Consumers Union of U.S., Inc. (1984) 466 U.S. 485, 499, 104 S. Ct. 1949, 80 L. Ed. 2d 502] .

Thus, the factfinder must conclude, based on the facts presented, and under the constitutional guarantees listed above, whether the statements in question are of a defamatory nature [Milkovich v. Lorain Journal Co. (1990) 497 U.S. 1, 21, 110 S. Ct. 2695, 111 L. Ed. 2d 1] .

Although Milkovich involved a media defendant, its standards have been applied without regard to the defendant's status [see Kahn v. Bower (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1599, 1607 n.3, 284 Cal. Rptr. 244 ; but see Savage v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 434, 445, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305 (no First Amendment issue was raised by "matter of purely private concern communicated between private individuals")].

[2] Application of Rule by California Courts

One California court of appeal stated that the dispositive question after Milkovich is whether a reasonable fact finder could conclude that the published statements imply a provably false factual assertion [Moyer v. Amador Valley Joint Union High Sch. Dist. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 720, 724, 275 Cal. Rptr. 494] . To that end, courts have examined the "totality of circumstances," by reviewing the meaning of the language in context, and its susceptibility to being proved true or false [see, e.g., Savage v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 434, 445, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305 (holding statement, that plaintiff had conflict of interest, was not defamatory as matter of law because statement did not imply objective fact that could be proved true or false); Jensen v. Hewlett-Packard Co. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 958, 970-971, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 83 (language of employee evaluation examined within context in which it was published and held to be an expression of management's opinion of employee's work habits, interpersonal skills, and level of effort); Kahn v. Bower (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1599, 1608, 284 Cal. Rptr. 244 ; Moyer v. Amador Valley J. Union High Sch. Dist. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 720, 725, 275 Cal. Rptr. 494] .

California cases decided since Milkovich have embraced its redefinition of the opinion issue under U.S. Const. amend. I [see, e.g., Edwards v. Hall (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 886, 901-907, 285 Cal. Rptr. 810 ; Moyer v. Amador Valley Joint Union High Sch. Dist. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 720, 723-725, 275 Cal. Rptr. 494] . Thus far, courts have rejected the argument that Cal. Const. art. I, § 2(a) (providing that every person may freely speak, write, and publish sentiments on all subjects, being responsible for abuse of right) provides broader protection for statements of opinion than U.S. Const. amend. I [see, e.g., Edwards v. Hall (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 886, 285 Cal. Rptr. 810 ; Weller v. American Broad. Cos., Inc. (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 991, 1006, 283 Cal. Rptr. 644] .

One case also rejected the assertion that Baker v. Los Angeles Herald Examiner (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 254, 228 Cal. Rptr. 206, 721 P.2d 87 , which set forth California law prior to Milkovich, compelled a contrary finding, holding rather that Baker neither discussed nor rested on the California Constitution [Edwards v. Hall (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 886, 905, 285 Cal. Rptr. 810] . Under Baker, the opinion issue was characterized as a determination whether a statement is either opinion and not defamatory, or fact and potentially defamatory [Baker v. Los Angeles Herald Examiner (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 254, 259-262, 228 Cal. Rptr. 206, 721 P.2d 87] .

Baker also held that a statement in the form of an opinion may be actionable if the publisher implies that it is based on undisclosed defamatory facts [Baker v. Los Angeles Herald Examiner (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 254, 266-267, 228 Cal. Rptr. 206, 721 P.2d 87 ; Okun v. Superior Court (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 442, 451-452, 175 Cal. Rptr. 157, 629 P.2d 1369 ; see also Restatement (Second) of Torts § 566, comment b]. However, a publisher is not liable for defamation if the publisher gives an opinion and fully discloses all of the facts on which the opinion is based, without implying the existence of any other facts, so long as those underlying disclosed facts are provably true [Franklin v. Dynamic Details, Inc. (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 375, 384-390, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 429 (defendant not liable for libel or trade libel for e-mail statements implying that plaintiff was dishonest in his business dealings, because defendant provided description in e-mails about specific true aspects of plaintiff's Internet web site that supported defendant's opinion)].

California has traditionally applied a "totality-of-circumstances" test to determine whether a potentially defamatory statement of fact (either express or implied) was made. Under this test, the court determines the meaning of the statement according to its natural and popular construction, and considers the total context in which a statement was made [Baker v. Los Angeles Herald Examiner (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 254, 260-261, 228 Cal. Rptr. 206, 721 P.2d 87] . The crucial determination whether the statement was fact or opinion was held to be a question of law for the court [Greenbelt Coop. Publ'g Ass'n v. Bresler (1970) 398 U.S. 6, 13-15, 90 S. Ct. 1537, 26 L. Ed. 2d 6 ; Moyer v. Amador Valley Joint Union High Sch. Dist. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 720, 724, 275 Cal. Rptr. 494 ; Jensen v. Hewlett-Packard Co. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 958, 971, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 83] . Although counsel should be aware of the differences between former law and the standards of Milkovich, until the contours of opinion law have been more solidly established in California, it is likely that in most cases, the same result will be reached regardless of which standard is applied [see, e.g., Edwards v. Hall (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 886, 907, 285 Cal. Rptr. 810 (stating that same result would be reached under either Milkovich rule or state totality-of-circumstances test)].

It also appears that Milkovich has not affected constitutional protection of statements that are clearly satirical, hyperbolic, imaginative, or rhetorical [see, e.g., Winter v. DC Comics (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 458, 467-469, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 431 ; James v. San Jose Mercury News, Inc. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1, 13, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 890 ; Weller v. American Broad. Cos., Inc. (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 991, 1001 n.7, 283 Cal. Rptr. 644 ; Moyer v. Amador Valley Joint Union High Sch. Dist. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 720, 723-724, 275 Cal. Rptr. 494] . Moreover, a statement of opinion relating to matters of public concern that does not contain a provably false factual connotation receives full constitutional protection [Milkovich v. Lorain Journal Co. (1990) 497 U.S. 1, 19-20, 110 S. Ct. 2695, 111 L. Ed. 2d 1 ; James v. San Jose Mercury News, Inc. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1, 13, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 890 ; Weller v. American Broad. Cos., Inc. (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 991, 1000, 283 Cal. Rptr. 644] .

Statements made by church leaders when terminating the employment of other church leaders may be protected by a First Amendment-based "ministerial exception," if evaluating the truth or falsity of those statements would necessarily require an inquiry into the truth or falsity of the doctrinal beliefs of the church [see, e.g., Gunn v. Mariners Church, Inc. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 206, 216, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 (worship director could not sue former church employer for post-termination statements to congregation that plaintiff had been "caught in a sin," had admitted to "moral and sexual actions that are sin," had suffered "breakdown in character," and was "broken man.")].

Chapter 340 LIBEL AND SLANDER
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Defamation: Libel And Slander Complaints

30-340 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 340.17

§ 340.17 Pleading Requirements

[1] Publication

An action for defamation must allege that the defamatory matter was published, or communicated, to some third person [see Draper v. Hellman Commercial Trust & Sav. Bank (1928) 203 Cal. 26, 39, 263 P. 240 (libel); Cunningham v. Simpson (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 301, 307, 81 Cal. Rptr. 855, 461 P.2d 39 (slander)]. There is no requirement that the statement be disseminated widely; a slanderous statement heard by one person is no less a slander than that heard by a multitude [Cunningham v. Simpson (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 301, 307, 81 Cal. Rptr. 855, 461 P.2d 39] .

A defendant does not necessarily "publish" defamatory material by faxing a letter to a number supplied by the plaintiff, even if that fax is read by a third party. In one case, for example, an attorney sent a letter to defendant on her law office letterhead, which contained an office fax number. Defendant responded by sending to that fax number a letter addressed to the attorney that made allegedly defamatory accusations. This letter was received and read by the attorney's daughter, who worked in the law office. The court of appeal held that this fax did not constitute publication to a third person, as the attorney invited correspondence to her to be sent to that fax number and had the burden to protect her own confidentiality under those circumstances [Martinelli v. International House USA (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 1332, 1338, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 186].

[2] Colloquium

The fact that a person is not named in a defamatory statement does not preclude words clearly conveying a meaning within one of the statutory classifications of libel and slander from being actionable per se [Washer v. Bank of Am. (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 822, 829, 136 P.2d 297] . However, in such a case, the plaintiff must sustain the burden of pleading and proof, by way of a colloquium, that the defamatory meaning attached to him [Carlisle v. Fawcett Publ'ns, Inc. (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 733, 741, 20 Cal. Rptr. 405] . But it is sufficient to state, generally, that the defamatory matter out of which the cause of action arose was published or spoken of and concerning the plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 460; Washer v. Bank of Am. (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 822, 829, 136 P.2d 297 ; Carlisle v. Fawcett Publ'ns, Inc. (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 733, 741, 20 Cal. Rptr. 405] . It is not necessary for the plaintiff to state in the complaint any extrinsic facts for the purpose of showing the application to the plaintiff of the defamatory matter out of which the cause of action arose [

Code Civ. Proc. § 460].

If the defendant controverts the allegation, however, the plaintiff then must establish at trial that it was so published or spoken [Code Civ. Proc. § 460]. When the person defamed is not mentioned by name, it is sufficient if the publication points to the plaintiff by description or circumstance tending to identify him or her and the jury can infer that the defamatory statement applies to the plaintiff [Di Giorgio Fruit Corp. v. AFL-CIO (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 560, 569-570, 30 Cal. Rptr. 350] . However, if a defamatory statement identifies the plaintiff only through reasonable, though not necessary, implication, the plaintiff bears the burden of presenting evidence that some person actually made the implied connection identifying the plaintiff [SDV/ACCI, Inc. v. AT&T Corp. (9th Cir. 2008) 522 F.3d 955, 960].

Language cannot have the quality of a libel unless there is a certainty as to the individuals accused. There must be a personal application of the publication to the plaintiff. When the language refers to a large group of people, a plaintiff cannot by use of a colloquium make the publication specifically refer to him [Los Angeles Fire & Police Protective League v. Rodgers (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 419, 425, 86 Cal. Rptr. 623 (more than 5,000 persons); Smith v. Harnish (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 115, 118, 333 P.2d 815 (indeterminate group of fictitious persons who might at some unstated future time "unscrupulously" defame others in a legislative proceeding); Noral v. Hearst Publications, Inc. (1940) 40 Cal. App. 2d 348, 350, 104 P.2d 860 (accusation against "officials of the Worker's Alliance" when that category included more than 162 officials)]. If no single member of a group could have stated a cause of action, then neither can all of them together [Mullins v. Brando (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 409, 422-423, 91 Cal. Rptr. 796] .

[3] Innuendo When Language Ambiguous

The purpose of an innuendo is to declare what the words meant to those to whom they were published. When the words themselves, under any circumstances, would convey to those who read or hear them a defamatory meaning, there is no occasion for the pleading of an innuendo. Conversely, if the words under no circumstances could convey a defamatory meaning, then no innuendo can make them defamatory. An innuendo is necessary when the words used are susceptible of either a defamatory or an innocent interpretation [Washer v. Bank of Am. (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 822, 828, 136 P.2d 297 ; Bates v. Campbell (1931) 213 Cal. 438, 443, 2 P.2d 383] .

A plaintiff may not, however, plead extrinsic facts to enlarge or change the plain and ordinary meaning of the language used in the publication which is reasonably susceptible of only an innocent interpretation and thereby state a cause of action for libel. The innuendo may only interpret its meaning but cannot introduce one other or broader than the language naturally bears; it cannot add to or enlarge or change the sense of the published words [Emde v. San Joaquin County Cent. Labor Council (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 146, 159-160, 143 P.2d 20 ; Corman v. Blanchard (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 126, 138, 27 Cal. Rptr. 327] .

[4] Inducement

An inducement sets forth the extrinsic facts and circumstances that, coupled with the language uttered, make it actionable when standing alone the language used would appear not to affect the plaintiff injuriously [Grand v. Dreyfus (1898) 122 Cal. 58, 62, 54 P. 389 (slander)]. Stated another way, an inducement indicates that the words were understood in a defamatory sense and shows the situation or opinion of the readers was such that they derived a defamatory meaning from them [Peabody v. Barham (1942) 52 Cal. App. 2d 581, 585, 126 P.2d 668 , overruled on other grounds, MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 551, 343 P.2d 36 (libel)].

[5] Identification of Plaintiff With Fictional Character

A work of fiction may libel an actual nonfictional person if a reasonable person would understand that the fictional character portrayed was in fact the plaintiff [Bindrim v. Mitchell (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 61, 78, 155 Cal. Rptr. 29] . A cause of action for defamation is not established merely because someone believes the fictional character refers to the plaintiff; the belief must be reasonable [Aguilar v. Universal City Studios, Inc. (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 384, 391, 219 Cal. Rptr. 891] . Moreover, mere similarity or even identity of names is insufficient to establish that a work of fiction is about a real person [Aguilar v. Universal City Studios, Inc. (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 384, 388, 219 Cal. Rptr. 891] .

[6] Falsity

Under the common law, a defendant is not liable for defamation if he or she proves the truth of the defamatory statement [see Lipman v. Brisbane Elementary Sch. Dist. (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 224, 233, 11 Cal. Rptr. 97, 359 P.2d 465 ; see also Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 776, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783 (holding that, at least in some cases, plaintiff must prove falsity of allegedly defamatory statement)].

However, recent decisions of the United States Supreme Court have interpreted U.S. Const. amend. I, as requiring that the burden be shifted, at least in certain cases, to the plaintiff to plead and prove falsity. Thus, if a plaintiff is a public figure, or if the plaintiff is a private figure who is suing a newspaper or other media defendant for publishing speech of a public concern, that plaintiff bears the burden of proving the falsity of the defamatory statement before recovering damages [Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 768-769, 776-777, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783 (private figure plaintiff); Garrison v. Louisiana (1964) 379 U.S. 64, 74, 85 S. Ct. 209, 13 L. Ed. 2d 125 (public official plaintiff)].

For discussion of other constitutional requirements in defamation actions, see § 340.18.

[7] Statutory Malice: Exemplary Damages After Demand for Retraction Under Civ. Code § 48a

A statutorily defined "actual malice," not to be confused with the constitutionally required "actual malice" [see § 340.18[2][a]], is required to be pleaded and proved by a plaintiff seeking exemplary damages in an action for damages for the publication of a libel in a newspaper, or of a slander by radio broadcast, when plaintiff has demanded a retraction and the defendant has failed to publish or broadcast the retraction under the circumstances described in Civ. Code § 48a(1)-(3) [see Civ. Code § 48a(1)-(3), (4)(c)]. Specifically, statutory actual malice is the state of mind arising from hatred or ill will toward the plaintiff, except that such a state of mind occasioned by a good faith belief on the part of the defendant in the truth of the libelous publication or broadcast at the time it is published or broadcast does not constitute actual malice [Civ. Code § 48a(4)(d)].

The above-described malice requirement applies only to those retraction situations described in Civ. Code § 48a(1)-(3) [see Manguso v. Oceanside Unified Sch. Dist. (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 574, 581, 200 Cal. Rptr. 535 (Civ. Code § 48a as special statutory protection given to newspapers); Burnett v. National Enquirer, Inc. (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 991, 1000-1004, 193 Cal. Rptr. 206 (applicability of Civ. Code § 48a)].

It appears that both constitutional "actual malice" and statutory "actual malice" are required to support an award of punitive damages in an action covered by the retraction statute [see McCoy v. Hearst Corp. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 835, 872, 231 Cal. Rptr. 518, 727 P.2d 711] .

Unless a communication is defamatory on its face, an averment of special damages is required [Civ. Code § 45a; Gautier v. General Tel. Co. (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 302, 309, 44 Cal. Rptr. 404] .

§ 340.18 Constitutional Limitations on Recovery

[1] In General

Decisions of the United States Supreme Court have placed wide constitutional limitations on plaintiffs in defamation actions. These limitations vary depending on whether the plaintiff is a private person, as opposed to a public official or public figure. The limitations provided by U.S. Const. amend. I, do not apply in all cases, however [see Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. v. Greenmoss Builders, Inc. (1985) 472 U.S. 749, 105 S. Ct. 2939, 86 L. Ed. 2d 593, 603-604 (no constitutional protections apply to statements about private plaintiffs if the statement does not relate to a matter of public concern)]. Although the Supreme Court has stated that it is an open question whether or not the protection of U.S. Const. amend. I extends to cases involving nonmedia defendants [see Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 779 n.4, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783 ; Hutchinson v. Proxmire (1979) 443 U.S. 111, 133, 99 S. Ct. 2675], the Court has also indicated that nonmedia defendants are treated in the same manner as media defendants under U.S. Const. amend. I [see Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. v. Greenmoss Builders, Inc. (1985) 472 U.S. 749, 773, 105 S. Ct. 2939, 86 L. Ed. 2d 593 (White, J., concurring); see also Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 770-777, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783 (as with public figure plaintiff, private figure suing media defendant for speech of public concern required to prove falsity)]. One California court of appeal has adopted this view by expressly holding that the constitutional privilege to publish without actual malice applies equally to nonmedia defamers [Miller v. Nestande (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 191, 200, 237 Cal. Rptr. 359] .

[2] Public Officials

[a] Actual Malice Requirement

In New York Times Co. v. Sullivan (1964) 376 U.S. 254, 84 S. Ct. 710, 11 L. Ed. 2d 686 , the Supreme Court reversed a judgment against four individuals and the corporation that publishes the New York Times newspaper. The judgment had been rendered under an Alabama law by which a political advertisement that had appeared in the New York Times was deemed libelous per se because the defense of truth could not be established. The Court considered the case against the background of a profound national commitment to the principle that debate on public issues should be uninhibited, robust, and wide-open, and that it may well include vehement, caustic, and sometimes unpleasantly sharp attacks on government and public officials [New York Times Co. v. Sullivan (1964) 376 U.S. 254, 270, 84 S. Ct. 710, 11 L. Ed. 2d 686] . To foster this commitment to public debate, the Court announced a constitutional privilege available to all defendants sued by public officials for defamation: a public official may not recover damages for a defamatory falsehood relating to his or her official conduct unless he or she proves that the statement was made with "actual malice"--that is, with knowledge that it was false or with reckless disregard of whether or not it was true [New York Times Co. v. Sullivan (1964) 376 U.S. 254, 279-280, 84 S. Ct. 710, 11 L. Ed. 2d 686] . The proof presented by a public official must be of convincing clarity in order to demonstrate constitutional malice and overcome the privilege [New York Times Co. v. Sullivan (1964) 376 U.S. 254, 286-288, 84 S. Ct. 710, 11 L. Ed. 2d 686] . In evaluating claims by public officials that a defendant recklessly disregarded the truth of a publication, there must be sufficient evidence to permit the conclusion that the defendant in fact entertained serious doubts as to the truth of his or her publication [St. Amant v. Thompson (1968) 390 U.S. 727, 731, 88 S. Ct. 1323, 20 L. Ed. 2d 262] .

In Masson v. New Yorker Magazine, Inc. (1991) 501 U.S. 496, 111 S. Ct. 2419, 115 L. Ed. 2d 447 , the Supreme Court discussed the actual malice requirement in the context of a claim that plaintiff (a public figure) was defamed when a magazine article attributed to him, within quotation marks, words he had not said. The general defamation principles applicable to such a claim are discussed in § 340.15.

Whether a fabricated quotation can be the basis for a finding of actual malice rests on the requisite knowledge of falsity or reckless disregard as to truth or falsity, which in turn depends on the concept of falsity in this context. Although any alteration of a verbatim quotation is false, not every alteration constitutes the falsity required to prove actual malice [Masson v. New Yorker Magazine, Inc. (1991) 501 U.S. 496, 513-515, 111 S. Ct. 2419, 115 L. Ed. 2d 447] .

The Court declined to create a discrete rule applicable to inaccurate quotations, as it had similarly declined to do with respect to opinions, holding instead that the essential principles of defamation law suffice to delineate liability in this area [Masson v. New Yorker Magazine, Inc. (1991) 501 U.S. 496, 516, 111 S. Ct. 2419, 115 L. Ed. 2d 447 ; see Milkovich v. Lorain Journal Co. (1990) 497 U.S. 1, 19-20, 110 S. Ct. 2695, 111 L. Ed. 2d 1 (discussed in § 340.16)].

Minor changes to correct grammar or syntax ("technical falsity") do not amount to falsity for purposes of proving actual malice [Masson v. New Yorker Magazine, Inc. (1991) 501 U.S. 496, 514, 111 S. Ct. 2419, 115 L. Ed. 2d 447] . Moreover, an alteration that goes beyond a technical correction of this type does not by itself prove falsity within the meaning of the definition of actual malice, because alteration of a speaker's words that effects no material change in meaning (including any meaning conveyed by the manner or fact of expression) imparts no injury to the speaker that is compensable as a defamation [Masson v. New Yorker Magazine, Inc. (1991) 501 U.S. 496, 514-515, 111 S. Ct. 2419, 115 L. Ed. 2d 447] . A deliberate alteration of the words uttered by a plaintiff does not equate with knowledge of falsity of a statement attributed to a public figure unless the alteration results in a material change in the meaning conveyed by the statement. If the alteration of a plaintiff's words gave a different meaning to the statements actually made, bearing on their defamatory character, then the device of quotations might well be critical in establishing that the words are actionable [Masson v. New Yorker Magazine, Inc. (1991) 501 U.S. 496, 517, 111 S. Ct. 2419, 115 L. Ed. 2d 447] .

On remand to the Ninth Circuit, the court in Masson v. New Yorker Magazine, Inc. (9th Cir. 1992) 960 F.2d 896 held that a trier of fact could conclude that, under the standard set forth in Harte-Hanks Commc'ns v. Connaughton (1989) 491 U.S. 657, 109 S. Ct. 2678, 105 L. Ed. 2d 562 , the publisher acted with malice in publishing the allegedly inaccurate quotations because it had a high degree of awareness of probable falsity, or it had reason to doubt the veracity of the author of the story or the accuracy of the facts and quotations in the story and it failed to take reasonable steps to dispel those doubts [Masson v. New Yorker Magazine, Inc. (9th Cir. 1992) 960 F.2d 896, 900 ; see also Khawar v. Globe Int'l, Inc. (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 254, 276-279, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178, 965 P.2d 696 (actual malice found when tabloid published photograph and statements identifying plaintiff as real assassin of Robert Kennedy, since newspaper had obvious reasons to doubt accuracy of information but made no attempt to verify); but see Rosenaur v. Scherer (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 260, 275-276, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 674 (right to rely on information provided in public documents absent reason to doubt accuracy of information)].

The court distinguished publishers that do nothing to investigate the accuracy of a story and those that do not investigate the accuracy of a story even when they have obvious reasons to doubt the accuracy of a story. The court stated that once doubt exists, the publisher must act reasonably in dispelling it. Thus, when the publisher undertakes to investigate the accuracy of a story and learns facts casting doubt on the information contained in the story, it may not ignore those doubts, even though it had no duty to conduct the investigation in the first place [Masson v. New Yorker Magazine, Inc. (9th Cir. 1992) 960 F.2d 896, 901] .

In reaching its decision, the court rejected the incremental harm doctrine, stating that it is not an element of California libel law. In the libel context, the incremental harm doctrine proposes to measure harm inflicted by the challenged statements beyond the harm imposed by the rest of the publication. The doctrine provides that if the measured harm is determined to be nominal or nonexistent, then the statements are not actionable [Masson v. New Yorker Magazine, Inc. (9th Cir. 1992) 960 F.2d 896, 898-899] .

When actual malice is the pivotal issue in a defamation case, summary judgment in favor of a publisher of the defamatory statement is generally the favored remedy if the opponent fails to present clear and convincing evidence of actual malice [cf. Antonovich v. Superior Court (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 1041, 1047, 285 Cal. Rptr. 863 (plaintiff's showing of actual malice was sufficient to defeat defendant's prima facie showing of good faith belief in statement's truth)].

[b] Public Officials Covered

The United States Supreme Court has not specifically defined who is a "public official." However, the issue was addressed in three opinions in Rosenblatt v. Baer (1966) 383 U.S. 75, 86 S. Ct. 669, 15 L. Ed. 2d 597 . In the lead opinion, Justice Brennan stated that the public-official designation applies, at the very least, to those among the hierarchy of government employees who have, or appear to the public to have, substantial responsibility for or control over the conduct of governmental affairs [Rosenblatt v. Baer (1966) 383 U.S. 75, 85, 86 S. Ct. 669, 15 L. Ed. 2d 597] . The Brennan opinion suggests that all who are employed by the government are not necessarily public officials for the purposes of defamation law if the position held is not one of power and importance. Writing separately, Justices Douglas and Black advocated a broad scope that would encompass anyone who might be perceived to be in the public domain [Rosenblatt v. Baer (1966) 383 U.S. 75, 88-91, 94-96, 86 S. Ct. 669, 15 L. Ed. 2d 597 ; see Mosesian v. McClatchy Newspapers (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 597, 604-608, 252 Cal. Rptr. 586 (discussing and analyzing various opinions in Rosenblatt)].

In the view of at least one California court, the Brennan opinion is both dicta and lacking a majority on the issue of the scope of the public-official designation, and is therefore not binding precedent [see Mosesian v. McClatchy Newspapers (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 597, 607, 252 Cal. Rptr. 586] . Nevertheless, this court adopted the limitations implicit in the Brennan opinion. Under this view, a public official is someone in the government's employ who: (1) has or appears to have substantial responsibility for or control over the conduct of governmental affairs; (2) usually enjoys significantly greater access to the mass media and therefore, has a more realistic opportunity to contradict false statements than has a private individual; (3) holds a position in government that has such apparent importance that the public has an independent interest in the person's qualifications and performance beyond the general public interest in the qualifications and performance of all government employees; and (4) holds a position that invites public scrutiny and discussion of the person holding it entirely apart from the scrutiny and discussion occasioned by the particular controversy [Mosesian v. McClatchy Newspapers (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 597, 608-609, 252 Cal. Rptr. 586] .

In an earlier case, the court of appeal held that a former superintendent of a junior college who sues for defamation must meet the New York Times test [McCunn v. California Teachers Ass'n (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 956, 962-964, 83 Cal. Rptr. 846] . In addition, in a subsequent case, the court of appeal held that the superintendent of a charter school district was a public official for these purposes, because charter schools receive public funding and are considered part of the state's public school system [Ghafur v. Bernstein (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 1230, 1238-1240, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 626] .

The concept that a public school teacher is a public official, adopted in certain other states, was expressly rejected in Franklin v. Benevolent & Protective Order of Elks (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 915, 924-925, 159 Cal. Rptr. 131 . The governance or control which a public classroom teacher might exercise over the conduct of government is too remote and philosophical in the court's view, to justify exposing teachers to a qualifiedly privileged assault on reputation. The court concluded that an appropriate balancing of freedom of expression against sanctity of reputation does not require, and an appropriate regard for the role of the classroom teacher in present society should not permit, extension of the public official concept to include a school teacher.

The holder of a state-issued license to conduct horse racing events is not a public official. Such a person is not a governmental employee, and the state regulation of private enterprise through licensing requirements does not make the job a governmental function [Mosesian v. McClatchy Newspapers (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 597, 608-611, 252 Cal. Rptr. 586 (analogizing that the governmental licensing of attorneys does not make the practice of law a governmental function)].

A deputy public defender is not a public official because he or she does not have "substantial responsibility for or control over the conduct of governmental affairs." The control that a deputy public defender may exercise over the management of a particular case must invariably be controlled in turn by considerations of the best interests of the individual client, tempered only by professional constraints applicable to all attorneys and not by any generalized public interest beyond concern that indigent defendants should be competently and professionally represented [James v. San Jose Mercury News, Inc. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1, 11, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 890] . In so holding, the court of appeal rejected the holding in Tague v. Citizens for Law & Order, Inc. (1977) 142 Cal. Rptr. 689 , in which the appellate department of the superior court had held that an assistant public defender is a public official.

[c] Publications Covered

The privilege delineated in the New York Times case applies to books as well as to the news media--newspapers, magazines, radio, and television [Church of Scientology of Cal. v. Dell Publ'g Co., Inc. (N.D. Cal. 1973) 362 F. Supp. 767, 769] . In addition, dicta from a recent Supreme Court decision suggests that the constitutional privileges derived from the First Amendment apply to nonmedia as well as media defendants [see Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. v. Greenmoss Builders, Inc. (1985) 472 U.S. 749, 773, 105 S. Ct. 2939, 86 L. Ed. 2d 593 (four members of dissent per Brennan, J., and White, J., concurring)]. One California court of appeal has adopted this position by expressly holding that the constitutional privilege to publish without actual malice applies equally to media and nonmedia defendants [Miller v. Nestande (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 191, 200, 237 Cal. Rptr. 359] .

[d] Political Candidates Covered in California

Whatever rights of free speech the Constitution guarantees to the public with respect to criticism of incumbent public officials must also be granted to the latter and their supporters in an election campaign when their speech is addressed to the qualifications of their opponents [Noonan v. Rousselot (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 447, 452, 48 Cal. Rptr. 817] .

[3] Public Figures

[a] Definition

The Supreme Court effectively extended the New York Times privilege to defendants who are sued for defamation by "public figures" in the companion cases of Curtis Publishing Co. v. Butts and Associated Press v. Walker [Curtis Publ'g Co. v. Butts (1967) 388 U.S. 130, 87 S. Ct. 1975, 18 L. Ed. 2d 1094] . Although a majority of the Court could not agree on an opinion, the Court concluded that constitutional protection should be afforded for criticism of nonpublic officials who are nevertheless intimately involved in the resolution of important public questions or who, by reason of their fame, shape events in areas of concern to society at large [Curtis Publ'g Co. v. Butts (1967) 388 U.S. 130, 164, 87 S. Ct. 1975, 18 L. Ed. 2d 1094] .

The definition of a public figure requires that the plaintiff assume special prominence in the resolution of public questions by voluntarily and actively seeking, in connection with any given matter of public interest, to influence the resolution of the issues involved [Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 352, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789 ; Reader's Digest Assn. v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 244, 254, 208 Cal. Rptr. 137, 690 P.2d 610] . Only in this manner does an individual relinquish an interest in the protection of his or her personal name [Franklin v. Benevolent & Protective Order of Elks (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 915, 929, 931, 159 Cal. Rptr. 131 (high school teacher using book in classroom who did not (1) anticipate controversy, (2) engage in activities connected with controversy beyond those required by school district regulations, (3) respond to media inquiries, or (4) call press conferences or take case to public in attempt to influence resolution of issues, as not assuming special prominence beyond that thrust on her)].

If a person is neither a public personality, nor thrusts himself or herself into the vortex of a particular public issue or engages the public's attention in an attempt to influence its outcome, the person is not a public figure [Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 352, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789] . For example, the wife of a scion of a wealthy industrial family was held not to be a public figure because she did not assume any role of special prominence in the affairs of society, did not thrust herself to the forefront of any particular public controversy in order to influence resolution of any issues involved, and even though she resorted to a state court in filing for separate maintenance, did not freely choose to publicize issues as to the propriety of her married life [Time, Inc. v. Firestone (1976) 424 U.S. 448, 453, 454, 96 S. Ct. 958, 47 L. Ed. 2d 154, 162-163] .

In determining whether or not a plaintiff is a public figure, courts should look for evidence of affirmative actions by which the purported public figure has thrust himself or herself into the forefront of a particular controvery. The determination is often a close question that can only be resolved by considering the totality of the circumstances comprising each individual controversy, and as such, the mere involvement of a person in a matter which the media deems to be of interest to the public does not, in and of itself, require that such a person become a public figure for the purpose of a subsequent libel action [Reader's Digest Assn. v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 244, 254-255, 208 Cal. Rptr. 137, 690 P.2d 610 (drug rehabilitation organization and its founder were public figures because of their myriad attempts to thrust their case and organization in general into public eye)].

[b] "All Purpose" or "Limited Purpose" Public Figures

A defendant's claim that the plaintiff is a "public figure" can be grounded on either of two alternative bases. In some instances an individual may achieve such pervasive fame or notoriety that he or she becomes a public figure for all purposes and in all contexts. This type of public figure is known as an "all purpose" public figure [see Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789, 812 ; Reader's Digest Assn. v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 244, 253, 208 Cal. Rptr. 137, 690 P.2d 610] . Examples of persons who have been held to be all-purpose public figures include a nationally well-known attorney [Belli v. Curtis Publ'g Co. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 384, 388, 102 Cal. Rptr. 122] and a famous television personality [Montandon v. Triangle Publ'ns, Inc. (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 938, 946, 120 Cal. Rptr. 186] .

Absent clear evidence of general fame or notoriety in the community, and pervasive involvement in the affairs of society, an individual should not be deemed a public personality for all aspects of his or her life. It is preferable to reduce the public figure question to a more meaningful context by looking to the nature and extent of an individual's participation in the particular controversy giving rise to the defamation [Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789, 812] . For example, a prominent local lawyer and businessman who obtained a horse racing license for a newly established racing meet, and intended to seek renewal of the license for the following year, was held to be a limited purpose public figure with respect to a defamation action brought against a local newspaper that revealed criminal elements in his background, because the licensing was the subject of much public controversy, and the plaintiff's personal qualifications were pertinent to his fitness for holding the license [Mosesian v. McClatchy Newspapers (1991) 285 Cal. Rptr. 430] .

More commonly, an individual voluntarily injects himself or herself, or is drawn, into a particular public controversy and thereby becomes a public figure for a limited range of issues [see Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789, 812] . This type of public figure is known as a "limited purpose" public figure, and unlike the all-purpose public figure, loses certain protection for his or her reputation only to the extent that the allegedly defamatory communication relates to his or her role in a public controversy [Reader's Digest Assn. v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 244, 254, 208 Cal. Rptr. 137, 690 P.2d 610] . For example, a nationally known drug rehabilitation organization and its founder have been held to be limited purpose public figures for the purposes of general controversy surrounding the effectiveness of the organization's rehabilitation program [Reader's Digest Assn. v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 244, 254, 208 Cal. Rptr. 137, 690 P.2d 610] . To be considered a public figure even for limited purposes, the person must have either voluntarily engaged the public's attention in an attempt to influence the outcome of a public controversy, or must have acquired such public prominence in relation to the controversy as to permit media access sufficient to effectively counter media-published defamatory statements [Khawar v. Globe Int'l, Inc. (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 254, 265, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178, 965 P.2d 696] .

[4] Private Plaintiffs

[a] Application of Actual Malice Requirement

In Rosenbloom v. Metromedia, Inc. [Rosenbloom v. Metromedia, Inc. (1971) 403 U.S. 29, 91 S. Ct. 1811, 29 L. Ed. 2d 296] , a magazine distributor sued a radio station for allegedly defamatory newscasts. A plurality of the Supreme Court concluded that all discussion and communication involving matters of public or general concern should be protected by the New York Times privilege [Rosenbloom v. Metromedia, Inc. (1971) 403 U.S. 29, 44, 91 S. Ct. 1811, 29 L. Ed. 2d 296] . This extension of the privilege was retracted by the Court in Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 346-347, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789] . In place of Rosenbloom, the Gertz majority stated the following three constitutional principles applicable when a private individual sues a publisher or broadcaster for a statement which is defamatory on its face:

- Fault: A plaintiff must show that the publisher or broadcaster was at fault for publishing the statement. However, so long as the States do not impose liability without fault, they may define for themselves the appropriate standard of liability for a publisher or broadcaster of defamatory falsehood injurious to a private individual [Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 347, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789] . The Court suggested that a negligence standard of fault would be appropriate [see Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 350, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789 ; see also Widener v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 415, 433, 142 Cal. Rptr. 304 (suggesting in dicta that standard in California is one of negligence)].

- No Presumed Damages: When a defamation action is within the ambit of a First Amendment privilege, the federal constitution precludes a presumption of damages unless actual malice, as defined by the Supreme Court in New York Times Co. v. Sullivan (1964) 376 U.S. 254, 279-280, 84 S. Ct. 710, 11 L. Ed. 2d 686 , is shown. In the absence of such malice, a private individual may recover only for "actual injury." Actual injury includes impairment of reputation and standing in the community, personal humiliation, and mental anguish and suffering, as well as out-of-pocket losses. Awards for actual injury must be supported by competent evidence, although compensation for actual damages such as loss of reputation and mental suffering may be awarded without proof that assigns an actual dollar value [Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 349-350, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789] .

- Punitive Damages: Like general damages, before the plaintiff can recover punitive damages from a publisher or broadcaster, he or she must show that the defendant acted intentionally or recklessly [see Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 349-350, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789] .

The rules of Gertz do not apply in all cases brought by private individuals [cf. Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 776-777, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783 (private figure suing media defendant for speech of public concern required to prove falsity)]. In Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. v. Greenmoss Builders, Inc. (1985) 472 U.S. 749, 759-761, 105 S. Ct. 2939, 86 L. Ed. 2d 593 , the United States Supreme Court limited Gertz by holding that it does not apply to cases in which the allegedly defamatory statement does not relate to a matter of public concern.

In Dun & Bradstreet, the Court held that a commercial credit report did not involve a matter of public concern [Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. v. Greenmoss Builders, Inc. (1985) 472 U.S. 749, 761-763, 105 S. Ct. 2939, 86 L. Ed. 2d 593] . In so holding, the Court emphasized that the type of commercial credit reporting in issue did not involve any strong interest in the free flow of commercial information nor did it require special protection to ensure that debate on public issues would be robust, uninhibited, and wide-open. The Court considered the following factors relevant in reaching its finding: (1) the statement was solely in the interest of the publisher and its specific business audience, (2) it was made available to only five subscribers who had agreed not to disseminate the report further, and (3) it was made for profit [Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. v. Greenmoss Builders, Inc. (1985) 472 U.S. 749, 761-763, 105 S. Ct. 2939, 86 L. Ed. 2d 593] .

A California court has held that a deputy public defender's performance, and administration of the criminal laws in general and laws relating to child molestation in particular, were matters of legitimate public interest and concern. Therefore, the qualified constitutional protections applicable to publications by media defendants about private plaintiffs on matters of public interest or public concern applied to a deputy public defender's libel action against a newspaper based on a column that named him in the context of a discussion of asserted violations of law by defense attorneys in criminal cases involving child victims [James v. San Jose Mercury News, Inc. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1, 4, 11, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 890] .

[c] No Neutral Reportage Privilege Recognized

Some jurisdictions other than California have recognized a "neutral reportage" privilege protecting the accurate and disinterested reporting of charges brought against a public figure by a responsible, prominent organization, even when the original charges are defamatory [see Khawar v. Globe Int'l, Inc. (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 254, 268-269, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178, 965 P.2d 696 (describing Second Circuit articulation of privilege)]. Without deciding whether the privilege may ever be constitutionally required, the California Supreme Court has specifically rejected the existence of the privilege for the republication of defamatory reports concerning private figures [Khawar v. Globe Int'l, Inc. (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 254, 273, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178, 965 P.2d 696] . The Supreme Court concluded that the reporting of false and defamatory accusations about a private person will rarely provide valuable information in the resolution of a matter of public concern, while such reporting can have a devastating effect on the reputation of the accused individual. Further, a private person, by virtue of his or her status as a private person, has not voluntarily elected to encounter an increased risk of defamation by entering a public debate and may lack sufficient media access to counter the accusations [Khawar v. Globe Int'l, Inc. (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 254, 272-273, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178, 965 P.2d 696] .

Neither the California Supreme Court nor any other California court has specifically ruled on whether the privilege may exist when the plaintiff is a public figure or public official [see Khawar v. Globe Int'l, Inc. (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 254, 269 & n.2, 271, 273, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178, 965 P.2d 696] .

[5] Exercise of Religious Belief

When a defamation action involves members of a religious organization, it may pit two societal interests--the protection of an individual's reputation, and the free exercise of religion--against each other. Accommodation of these competing interests requires that, for a plaintiff to recover damages for defamatory remarks made during the course of a doctrinal explanation by a duly authorized minister, the plaintiff must show by clear and convincing evidence that the defamation was made with constitutional malice, that is, with knowledge that it was false or with reckless disregard of whether it was false or not. Whether the plaintiff is a public figure, or whether the publication is in a newspaper, is irrelevant [McNair v. Worldwide Church of God (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 363, 377, 242 Cal. Rptr. 823] . Thus, when remarks about a plaintiff's conduct as a wife and as a member of the church were made while the speaker was explaining the church's newly developed and widely misunderstood doctrine on divorce and remarriage, first at a conference, and then in a report, the plaintiff's inability to establish the requisite malice was fatal to her defamation action [McNair v. Worldwide Church of God (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 363, 377-378, 242 Cal. Rptr. 823 ; see also Ch. 110, Churches and Religious Organizations].

[6] De Novo Review

If a plaintiff has prevailed at trial in a defamation action in which plaintiff was required to prove constitutional "actual malice," the defendant may obtain a de novo review by an appellate court on the issue of actual malice [McCoy v. Hearst Corp. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 835, 842, 231 Cal. Rptr. 518, 727 P.2d 711 ; see Harte-Hanks, Inc. v. Connaughton (1989) 491 U.S. 657, 689-693, 109 S. Ct. 2678, 105 L. Ed. 2d 562 (affirming jury verdict and circuit court of appeal affirmation after conducting extensive review of evidence relating to actual malice)]. The appellate court is required to conduct an independent review of all of the evidence presented on the issue of actual malice. Normal principles of substantial evidence review do not apply. The court may not restrict itself to evidence favorable to the judgment. In addition, the court is not required to consider the evidence in the light most favorable to the verdict and may substitute its own inferences on the issue of actual malice for those drawn by the trier of fact [McCoy v. Hearst Corp. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 835, 845-847, 231 Cal. Rptr. 518, 727 P.2d 711 (reversing judgment of trial court after conducting extensive review of evidence relating to actual malice); see Harte-Hanks, Inc. v. Connaughton (1989) 491 U.S. 657, 689-693, 109 S. Ct. 2678, 105 L. Ed. 2d 562 (affirming jury verdict and court of appeal affirmation after conducting extensive review of evidence relating to actual malice)].

30-340 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 340.19

§ 340.19 Interpretation of Defamatory Language

[1] In General

The court must determine as a matter of law whether the publication is libelous on its face [MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 546, 343 P.2d 36 ; Scott v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 277, 288-289, 112 Cal. Rptr. 609] . When allegedly defamatory material is unambiguous and in the court's opinion could not reasonably be understood as nondefamatory, the issue of libel should not be submitted to the jury [Polygram Records v. Superior Court (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 543, 551, 216 Cal. Rptr. 252 ; Scott v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 277, 288-289, 112 Cal. Rptr. 609 ; Patton v. Royal Indus., Inc. (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 760, 765, 70 Cal. Rptr. 44] .

[2] Language Not Defamatory

If material published is not fairly susceptible of a defamatory meaning, it is proper to dismiss the action [Mellen v. Times-Mirror Co. (1914) 140 P. 277 ; Polygram Records v. Superior Court (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 543, 551, 216 Cal. Rptr. 252 ; Arno v. Stewart (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 955, 959-960, 54 Cal. Rptr. 392] . For example, when there can be only one reasonable interpretation of a cartoon and that interpretation is nonlibelous, a court is required to rule as a matter of law that the material is not defamatory, and it may not submit the issue to a jury [Yorty v. Chandler (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 467, 475, 91 Cal. Rptr. 709] .

[3] Jury Question

It is error for a court to rule as a matter of law that a publication cannot be defamatory on its face when, by any reasonable interpretation, the language is susceptible of a defamatory meaning [Mellen v. Times-Mirror Co. (1914) 167 Cal. 587, 593, 140 P. 277 ; Cameron v. Wernick (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 890, 893, 60 Cal. Rptr. 102] . If it is determined that the publication is susceptible of a defamatory meaning and also of an innocent and nondefamatory meaning, it is for the jury to determine which meaning would be given to it by the average reader [MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 546, 343 P.2d 36 ; Scott v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 277, 288-289, 112 Cal. Rptr. 609] . Even when the covert meaning ascribed to the words is improbable, the question of whether the words are defamatory or innocent should be left to the jury for determination under proper instructions [Carlisle v. Fawcett Publ'ns, Inc. (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 733, 743, 20 Cal. Rptr. 405 ; Gallagher v. Chavalas (1941) 48 Cal. App. 2d 52, 58, 119 P.2d 408] .

30-340 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 340.20

§ 340.20 Who Can and Cannot Sue

[1] Corporations

Words spoken or written of a stockholder or officer give no right of action to the corporation unless they have been spoken or written in direct relation to the trade or business of the corporation [Washburn v. Wright (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 789, 793, 68 Cal. Rptr. 224 ; see also Triton Ins. Underwriters Inc. v. National Chiropractic Ins. Co. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 829, 832, 43 Cal. Rptr. 504] .

[2] Multiple Plaintiffs and Class Actions

When two or more persons are affected by the same defamatory matter, the defamation is deemed several as to each of them, and each may therefore sue for it independently of the other [Writers Guild of Am., W., Inc. v. Superior Court (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 841, 847, 78 Cal. Rptr. 520] .

However, it has been held that a fire and police protective league of more than 5,000 members was not "similarly situated" and did not share a community of interest in alleged defamatory statements accusing three of its police officers of brutality. Thus, the league did not have standing to maintain a class action on behalf of all of its members for damages for alleged defamation of such members [Los Angeles Fire & Police Protective League v. Rodgers (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 419, 423-425, 86 Cal. Rptr. 623] .

[3] Municipal Corporations

A municipality may not, consistent with the free speech provision of the California Constitution, bring a libel action against an individual [Albany v. Meyer (1929) 99 Cal. App. 651, 654-655, 279 P. 213 (citizen published circular charging city with bankruptcy in course of opposition to city's proposal to issue bonds to build new school)].

[4] Partners

When a defamation directed against a partnership is of such a nature as to affect the partners personally, each partner may, in a separate suit, recover whatever damages he or she has personally sustained [Lewis v. Hayes (1918) 177 Cal. 587, 589, 171 P. 293] .

[5] Unincorporated Associations

The rule generally accepted is tht an unincorportated association has a cause of action for defamation in those circumstances in which a corporation has such a cause of action [Washburn v. Wright (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 789, 793, 68 Cal. Rptr. 224] . Thus, for example, a labor union can sue for libel of the union as an entity [Daniels v. Sanitarium Ass'n, Inc. (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 602, 609, 30 Cal. Rptr. 828, 381 P.2d 652] , the trustees of a nonprofit trust which depended for its support on voluntary contributions can sue for libel of the association as an entity [Washburn v. Wright (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 789, 73, 68 Cal. Rptr. 224] , and an association of police officers can sue for the libel of the association as an entity [Mullins v. Brando (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 409, 422, 91 Cal. Rptr. 796 (dictum)].

[6] Peace Officers

Notwithstanding the privileges set forth in Civ. Code § 47 [see generally § 340.57 et seq.], Civ. Code § 47.5 provides that a peace officer may bring an action for defamation against an individual who has filed a complaint with that officer's employing agency alleging misconduct, criminal conduct, or incompetence, if that complaint is false, the complaint was made with knowledge that it was false, and it was made with spite, hatred, or ill will. Knowledge that the complaint was false may be proved by a showing that the complainant had no reasonable grounds to believe the statement was true and that the complainant exhibited a reckless disregard for ascertaining the truth [Civ. Code § 47.5].

One the California court of appeal opinion has held that this statute is unconstitutional as an impermissible content-based restriction on speech, because it selectively targets only speech that is critical of police officers without a compelling government interest for doing so [Walker v. Kiousis (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 1432, 1457, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 69] . However, based on a subsequent California Supreme Court opinion [People v. Stanistreet (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 497, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 633, 58 P.3d 465)], the court of appeal has since held that the statute is constitutional, primarily because there is no realistic possibility that the statute actually results in the official suppression of ideas [Loshonkohl v. Kinder (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 510, 516-518, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 114 (upholding constitutionality of Civ. Code § 47.5].

[7] Person Charged With Child Abuse

No person charged by indictment, information, or other accusatory pleading with child abuse, as set forth in Penal Code § 1165 [Civ. Code § 48.7(f); see Penal Code §§ 11165-11165.10, superseding former Penal Code § 11165, to which Civ. Code § 48.7(f) refers], may, while the charge is pending before a trial court, bring a civil action for libel or for slander against the minor, the parent or guardian of the minor, or any witness, based on any statements made which are reasonably believed to be in furtherance of the criminal prosecution. Any applicable statute of limitations on the civil action is tolled during the period that the criminal charge is pending before the court [Civ. Code § 48.7(a)]. The charge is not pending within the meaning of Civ. Code § 48.7 after dismissal or pronouncement of judgment or during an appeal from the judgment [Civ. Code § 48.7(a)]. The purpose of the statute is to protect victims of child abuse, their parents or guardians, and witnesses to the acts of abuse from harassment by civil lawsuits for defamation while criminal proceedings are still pending [Satz v. Superior Court (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1525, 1531, 275 Cal. Rptr. 710] . It does not, therefore, apply to a newsperson who broadcasts events of a child-abuse trial. Consequently, the limitation period in an action against a newsperson is not tolled during the period of time that the criminal charges are pending [Satz v. Superior Court (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1525, 1532-1533, 275 Cal. Rptr. 710 (newsperson is not "witness" within meaning of statute)].

If a complaint is filed while the criminal charge is pending, no responsive pleading need be filed until 30 days after the end of the period set forth in Civ. Code § 48.7(a) [Civ. Code § 48.7(b)]. Moreover, the complaint is required to state that it is not barred by Civ. Code § 48.7(a), and a failure to do so is a ground for demurrer [Civ. Code § 48.7(c)]. If the demurrer is sustained, the prevailing party must be awarded attorney's fees and costs [Civ. Code § 48.7(d)].

If the prosecutor is informed by a minor, parent, guardian, or witness that a complaint has been filed that may be subject to Civ. Code § 48.7, the prosecutor is required to provide the person with a copy of Civ. Code § 48.7 [Civ. Code § 48.7(e)].

If an action is brought after the conclusion of any criminal proceeding against a child for allegedly making a false accusation of abuse, the child may assert the absolute privileges of Civ. Code § 47(b) whenever applicable [Smith v. M.D. (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 1169, 1184-1190, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 315] (child's statements to parents, grandparent, and police were absolutely privileged under Civ. Code § 47(b)); see also Chabak v. Monroy (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 1502, 1515-1519, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 641 (Penal Code § 11172 does not supersede litigation privilege when alleged victim of child abuse makes report of abuse to police, parents, or paralegal); see generally §§ 340.60 -340.61.

30-340 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 340.21

[1] In General

In the absence of privilege, anyone who actively participates in the publication of a false and libelous statement is liable for special, general, and even punitive damages [Di Giorgio Corp. v. Valley Labor Citizen (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 268, 273, 67 Cal. Rptr. 82] .

[2] Author

The general rule is that the author of defamatory statements is not liable for a republication thereof where he or she neither authorized nor intended such republication to be made. However, the original author may be liable if such republication was reasonably foreseeable [Mitchell v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 268, 281, 208 Cal. Rptr. 152, 690 P.2d 625 ; Neary v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 1136, 1147, 230 Cal. Rptr. 281 (adequate facts supported finding that defendants could foresee republication); Di Giorgio Corp. v. Valley Labor Citizen (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 268, 273, 67 Cal. Rptr. 82 ; Curley v. Vick (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 670, 673, 27 Cal. Rptr. 501] . Thus, the repetition of slander may be shown since it bears on the extent of liability [Mercado v. Hoefler (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 12, 18, 11 Cal. Rptr. 787 (original slander repeated in newspaper)].

Although the originator of the defamatory statement is not ordinarily liable for damages resulting from the voluntary disclosure by the defamed person of the contents of a libelous communication to others, the originator of the defamatory statement may be held liable for such damages if he or she communicated the defamatory statement under circumstances which made it reasonably foreseeable that the defamed person would be under a strong compulsion to republish the statement to others [see McKinney v. Santa Clara County (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 787, 795-798, 168 Cal. Rptr. 89 (defendant's false statement of reasons for plaintiff's dismissal was voluntarily disclosed by plaintiff to prospective employers)]. However, imposing liability on the original publisher for forced republication by the defamed person requires an actual republication of the defamatory comments. Mere foreseeability that the defamed person might have to repeat the defamatory comments at some point in the future is an insufficient basis for imposing liability [Dible v. Haight Ashbury Free Clinics, Inc. (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 843, 855, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 464].

An author of a nonlibelous statement cannot be held liable for its being changed into a libelous statement and so published unless he or she authorized, consented to, or participated in the publication of the article as changed. The mere fact that an author knew that changes might be made in the wording of an article submitted does not justify a claim that he or she must know that the publisher might turn the article into a libelous one. An author has the right to assume that no such change will be made [Montandon v. Cox Broad. Corp. (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 932, 937, 120 Cal. Rptr. 196] .

[3] Distributor

A vendor or distributor of publications is not liable for disseminating the defamatory publication of another, absent a showing of malice or scienter in the sense that the distributor knew of the libelous nature of the material, or should have known in light of knowledge of facts giving rise to a duty to investigate. This limitation on liability is in effect constitutional, due to the First Amendment protection afforded to sellers and distributors of books or other publications [Osmond v. EWAP Inc. (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 842, 852-854, 200 Cal. Rptr. 674 (action against adult bookstore operator for display and sale of film copies with libelous label)].

[4] Principal of Agent

A principal is subject to liability from defamatory statements made by an agent acting within the scope of his or her authority [Di Giorgio Fruit Corp. v. AFL-CIO (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 560, 576, 30 Cal. Rptr. 350 ; Mercado v. Hoefler (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 12, 18, 11 Cal. Rptr. 787 ; Swift & Co. v. Gray (9th Cir. 1939) 101 F.2d 976, 981 (slanderous statement by employee of corporation)]. However, an employer cannot be held vicariously liable for the defamatory statements of an employee if the employee has obtained a judgment in his or her favor on the merits of the defamation claim [Shaw v. Hughes Aircraft Co. (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 1336, 1347, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 446] .

[5] Radio and Television Broadcasters

The owner of a radio or television station or his or her agent is not liable for damages resulting from a defamatory statement made by someone other than the owner or agent if the owner or agent exercised due care to prevent the utterance of the statement [Civ. Code § 48.5; see Correia v. Santos (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 844, 856, 13 Cal. Rptr. 132] .

[6] Electoral Candidate, State Ballot Measure Proponent, and Campaign Committee Sponsor

A candidate or state measure proponent is liable for any slander or libel committed by a committee that is controlled by that candidate or state measure proponent as defined by Gov. Code § 82016 if the candidate or state measure proponent willfully and knowingly directs or permits the libel or slander [Elec. Code § 20501(a)]. A person who is a sponsor of a sponsored committee, as defined by Gov. Code § 82048.7, is liable for any slander or libel committed by the sponsored committee if the sponsor willfully and knowingly directs or permits the libel or slander [Elec. Code § 20501(b)]. In any action for libel or slander brought by a candidate, the willingness or unwillingness of the defendant to retract or correct a communication made in the course of a campaign, and his or her action in doing so, is admissible in evidence in the exemplary damages phase of a bifurcated trial [Elec. Code § 20502(a)]. The remedy provided by Elec. Code § 20502 is in addition to any other remedy provided by law [Elec. Code § 20502(b)].

"Campaign advertising or communication" is any communication authorized by (1) a candidate or a candidate's controlled committee [see Gov. Code § 82016 ("controlled committee" defined)], (2) a committee making independent expenditures [see Gov. Code § 82031 ("independent expenditure" defined)], or (3) a committee formed primarily to support or oppose a ballot measure [see Gov. Code § 82047.5 ("primarily formed committee" defined)], for the purpose of advocating the election or defeat of a qualified candidate or ballot measure through any broadcasting station, newspaper, magazine, outdoor advertising facility, direct mailing, or any other type of general, public, political advertising [Elec. Code § 304]. For further definition and discussion of candidates, committees, and ballot measure proponents, see Ch. 242, Election Campaigns , and Ch. 302, Inititative, Referendum, and Recall .

The provisions of Civ. Code § 43 et seq., relating to libel and slander, are fully applicable to any campaign advertising or communication [Elec. Code § 20500]; in addition, the legislation enacting the former versions of this provision stated that they were declaratory of existing law [see Stats. 1987, ch. 778, § 3]. Therefore, if plaintiff is an incumbent candidate for political office suing his or her opponent for damages arising out of libelous campaign advertising or communication, and the advertising or communication relates to matters of public concern, even though it does not relate to plaintiff incumbent's conduct while in office, then defendant is not liable unless plaintiff proves the advertising or communication to be false or reckless when made (i.e., made with actual malice), even though defendant is a nonmedia defendant [see Miller v. Nestande (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 191, 198-201, 237 Cal. Rptr. 359] . It appears likely that plaintiff would have to prove actual malice in such a case even if he or she were not an incumbent candidate, because the requirement of a showing of actual malice is necessary to protect a free flow of information regarding qualifications of persons applying for, as well as already holding, public office [see Miller v. Nestande (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 191, 201, 237 Cal. Rptr. 359] .

[7] Repeaters of Defamatory Language

Every repetition of a defamation is a separate publication and gives rise to a new cause of action [Neal v. Gatlin (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 871, 877 n.4, 111 Cal. Rptr. 117 ; Di Giorgio Corp. v. Valley Labor Citizen (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 268, 273, 67 Cal. Rptr. 82] even though the repeater states the source [Di Giorgio Corp. v. Valley Labor Citizen (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 268, 273, 67 Cal. Rptr. 82] .

The Communications Decency Act of 1996 provides a federal statutory immunity from common law liability for defamation for Internet publications that originate from a different party. Specifically, that act provides that no provider or user of an interactive computer service may be treated as the publisher or speaker of any information provided by another information content provider [47 U.S.C.S. § 230(c)(1); see also 47 U.S.C.S. § 230(f)(2), (3) ("interactive computer service" and "information content provider" defined)]. Liability may not be imposed under state or local law if inconsistent with this federal protection [47 U.S.C.S. § 230(e)(3)], effectively overriding common law liability for republication in this context. This immunity is discussed in greater detail in § 340.75.

§ 340.22 General Damages

General damages for defamation actions generally are not specially defined in the Civil Code [but see generally Civ. Code § 3333 (damages for proximately caused detriment)]. However, the Code does define general damages sought by a plaintiff in an action for damages for the publication of a libel in a newspaper, or of a slander by radio broadcast, when plaintiff has demanded a retraction and the defendant has failed to publish or broadcast the retraction under the circumstances described in Civ. Code § 48a(1)-(3) [see Civ. Code § 48a(1)-(3), (4)(a)]. In this latter situation, general damages are defined as those damages for loss of reputation, shame, mortification, and hurt feelings [Civ. Code § 48a(4)(a)].

Under common law principles, in an action for damages based on language defamatory per se, damage to the plaintiff's reputation is conclusively presumed; he or she need not introduce any evidence of actual damages in order to obtain or sustain an award of damages [Contento v. Mitchell (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 356, 358, 104 Cal. Rptr. 591 (slander); Di Giorgio Fruit Corp. v. AFL-CIO (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 560, 577, 30 Cal. Rptr. 350 (libel)] and evidence tending to show lack of injury to reputation is inadmissible [Schomberg v. Walker (1901) 132 Cal. 224, 230, 64 P. 290 (libel); Clay v. Lagiss (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 441, 448, 299 P.2d 1025 (slander)]. Hence, general damages are presumed as a matter of law in a case of slander per se [Douglas v. Janis (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 931, 940, 118 Cal. Rptr. 280 ; Clay v. Lagiss (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 441, 448, 299 P.2d 1025] . If the slanderous language was not slanderous per se and the action must be brought under Civ. Code § 46(5), after plaintiff proves actual damages as required by Civ. Code § 46(5), the jury then may consider plaintiff's loss of reputation, shame, and hurt feelings in awarding general damages [Cunningham v. Simpson (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 301, 309, 81 Cal. Rptr. 855, 461 P.2d 39] . However, in suits brought by private plaintiffs within the coverage of the First Amendment, in the absence of proof of "actual malice," general damages may not be presumed and are limited to "actual injury" [see Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 349-350, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789 ; see also § 340.18[4][a]].

Special damages are all damages that the plaintiff alleges and proves that he or she has suffered in respect to his or her property, business, trade, profession, or occupation, including such amount of money as the plaintiff alleges and proves that he or she has expended as a result of the alleged libel, and no other [see Civ. Code §§ 45a, 48a(4)(b)]. When the alleged libel is not actionable per se, an allegation of special damages is an essential element of the cause of action [Civ. Code § 45a; Smith v. Los Angeles Bookbinders Union (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 486, 494-495, 284 P.2d 194 , overruled on other grounds, MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 551, 343 P.2d 36] .

Under California law, a loss of clients following defamation is evidence of recoverable special damages [see MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 548, 343 P. 2d 36 ; see also O'Hara v. Storer Communications, Inc. (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1101, 1112, 282 Cal. Rptr. 712] . One court of appeal has expanded the scope of special damages regarding business loss, holding that "special damages" include loss of income from the inability to work as a result of illness, depression, or emotional distress caused by defamation, based on a potential employer's conclusion that the defamation rendered plaintiff unable to perform the ordinary duties of his or her profession [O'Hara v. Storer Communications, Inc. (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1101, 1113-1115, 282 Cal. Rptr. 712 (plaintiff was limited to special damages under Civ. Code § 48a because no demand for retraction was made)]. Under such a theory, a plaintiff may produce evidence that a prospective employer failed to hire plaintiff after noticing indications of plaintiff's impaired mental condition caused by the defamation [O'Hara v. Storer Communications, Inc. (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1101, 1113-1115, 282 Cal. Rptr. 712] . That court stated that its rule does not violate the general law of defamation that does not permit a plaintiff's emotional injury to support a claim of special damages [O'Hara v. Storer Communications, Inc. (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1101, 1114-1115, 282 Cal. Rptr. 712] . However, it could be argued that under Restatement (Second) of Torts § 575 comments b and c, the inability to work caused by emotional distress supports a claim for general damages only, because special damages are limited to economic harm directly caused by loss of reputation (for example, if a potential employer failed to hire plaintiff because of the taint on his or her reputation), rather than by emotional harm [see O'Hara v. Storer Communications, Inc. (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1101, 1121-1123, 282 Cal. Rptr. 712 (Amos, J., dissenting); see also § 340.22].

§ 340.25 Punitive Damages

[1] When Available

Like general damages, punitive damages for defamation actions generally are not specially defined in the Civil Code [but see generally Civ. Code § 3294]. However, the Code does define those exemplary damages sought by a plaintiff in an action for damages for the publication of a libel in a newspaper, or of a slander by radio broadcast, when plaintiff has demanded a retraction and the defendant has failed to publish or broadcast the retraction under the circumstances described in Civ. Code § 48a(1)-(3) [see Civ. Code § 48a(1)-(3), (4)(c), (d)]. In this latter situation, exemplary damages are defined as those that may, in the discretion of the court or jury, be recovered in addition to general and special damages for the sake of example and by way of punishing a defendant who has made the publication or broadcast with statutorily defined "actual malice" [see § 340.17[7]] (not to be confused with constitutionally required "actual malice") [Civ. Code § 48a(4)(c); see Civ. Code § 48a(4)(d) ("actual malice" defined); see also § 340.18[2][a]].

A plaintiff is never entitled as a matter of right to punitive damages [Brewer v. Second Baptist Church (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 791, 800-801, 197 P.2d 713 ; Shumate v. Johnson Publ'g Co. (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 121, 135, 293 P.2d 531] . For punitive damages to be recovered, there must be proof of the presence of malice in fact; that is, the motive and willingness to vex, harass, annoy, or injure [Davis v. Hearst (1911) 160 Cal. 143, 162, 116 P. 530 ; Gautier v. General Tel. Co. (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 302, 310, 44 Cal. Rptr. 404] .

Malice in fact is never presumed [Davis v. Hearst (1911) 160 Cal. 143, 179, 116 P. 530 ; Nova v. Flaherty (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 761, 764, 303 P.2d 382] . However, the trier of fact may infer malice in fact from the tenor of the publication of a libel that is actionable per se [Shumate v. Johnson Publ'g Co. (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 121, 136, 293 P.2d 531] . But malice may not be implied on the part of a defendant from any failure on his or her part to prove truth or the privilege of fair comment [Nova v. Flaherty (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 761, 764, 303 P.2d 382] .

In certain defamation suits, punitive damages may not be assessed in the absence of proof of constitutionally required "actual malice" as discussed in § 340.18[2][a]. Specifically, the First Amendment requires that a public figure plaintiff, or a private figure plaintiff who brings a defamation action against a media defendant for publishing speech involving a matter of public concern, may not recover presumed or punitive damages when that plaintiff has failed to show that the defendant published the speech with knowledge of its falsity or with reckless disregard for the truth [Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 349, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789 ; see Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. v. Greenmoss Builders, Inc. (1985) 472 U.S. 749, 759-761, 105 S. Ct. 2939, 86 L. Ed. 2d 593] . Thus, in such cases, it appears that the plaintiff must satisfy both the federal standard and the state standard before punitive damages may be recovered [see Kapellas v. Kofman (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 20, 28 n.6, 81 Cal. Rptr. 360, 459 P.2d 912] .

For discussion of punitive damages generally, including continuing developments regarding the constitutional attack on punitive damages per se, see Ch. 177, Damages .

[2] No Vicarious Liability

Punitive damages are awarded to punish the defendant for his or her own wrongdoing and not for the wrongful action of someone else, not even his or her own agent or employee [Davis v. Hearst (1911) 160 Cal. 143, 170, 116 P. 530 ; Di Giorgio Corp. v. Valley Labor Citizen (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 268, 277, 67 Cal. Rptr. 82 ; see also Civ. Code § 3294(b)].

Therefore, to recover punitive damages against multiple defendants the plaintiff must prove malice on the part of each defendant. If two persons are sued the motive of one is not allowed to aggravate the damages against the other [Davis v. Hearst (1911) 160 Cal. 143, 165, 116 P. 530 ; Di Giorgio Corp. v. Valley Labor Citizen (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 268, 277, 67 Cal. Rptr. 82] .

[3] Jury Discretion

The granting or withholding of the award of punitive damages is wholly within the control of the jury [Brewer v. Second Baptist Church (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 791, 801, 197 P.2d 713] .

Moreover, juries have a wider discretion in awarding punitive damages than they have in the matter of compensatory damages [Di Giorgio Fruit Corp. v. AFL-CIO (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 560, 581, 30 Cal. Rptr. 350] .

[4] Appellate Review

An appellate court will declare an amount of punitive damages excessive only if, after reviewing the entire record, the award is so grossly excessive as to indicate passion or prejudice on the part of the jury [Cunningham v. Simpson (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 301, 308-309, 81 Cal. Rptr. 855, 461 P.2d 39 ; Roemer v. Retail Credit Co. (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 926, 937, 119 Cal. Rptr. 82] . The amount of damages must be so grossly excessive that it can be reasonably imputed solely to the jury's passion or prejudice before the jury's determination is reversed on appeal [Douglas v. Janis (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 931, 940, 118 Cal. Rptr. 280] .

§ 340.26 Continuous Publications

[1] Ex Parte Application for Shortened Time to Respond

In any action for libel or slander, for good cause shown on ex parte written application, the court may order that the time to respond to the complaint is 20 days after the service of summons on the defendant. The application must be supported by an affidavit (or declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) stating facts showing, among other things, that the alleged defamatory matter has been continuously published and that there is a reasonable likelihood that the publication will continue. The order must direct the clerk to endorse the summons to show that the time to respond has been shortened pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 460.5. A copy of the application, affidavit, and order must be served with the summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 460.5(a)].

[2] Time to Respond to Complaint or Amend Answer Under Code Civ. Proc. § 586

In any action under Code Civ. Proc. § 460.5(a), unless otherwise ordered by the court for good cause shown, the time allowed the defendant to respond to the complaint or amend the answer under Code Civ. Proc. § 586 is not to exceed 10 days [Code Civ. Proc. § 460.5(b)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 460.5(b) appears to refer to the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 586(a)(1)-(5) specifying the time for the defendant to respond to an amended complaint or to any other complaint when a defendant's demurrer has been overruled or motion to strike has been in whole or in part denied or when a demurrer to the answer has been sustained.

[3] Precedence Over Other Civil Actions

The court must give any such action precedence over all other civil actions, except actions to which special precedence is given by law, in the matter of the setting the case for hearing or trial, and in hearing the case, to the end that all such actions shall be quickly heard and determined. Except for good cause shown, the court must not grant a continuance in excess of 10 days without the consent of the adverse party [Code Civ. Proc. § 460.5(c)].

[4] Definition

For purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 460.5, "continously published" means three or more publications within 15 days [Code Civ. Proc. § 460.5(d)].

In an action by a candidate or former candidate for elective public office against a holder of an elective public office or an opposing candidate for libel or slander that is alleged to have occurred during the course of the campaign, the time allowed the defendant to respond to the complaint is shortened to 20 days [Code Civ. Proc. § 460.7(a)]. Furthermore, unless otherwise ordered for good cause shown, the time allowed the defendant to respond to the complaint or to amend an answer under Code Civ. Proc. § 586 may not exceed 10 days [Code Civ. Proc. § 460.7(b)]. Such actions for campaign libel or slander are given precedence over other civil actions in the same manner as actions involving continuing publications under Code Civ. Proc. § 460.5 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 460.7(c), discussed in § 340.26[3]].

§ 340.28 Uniform Single Publication Act

Civ. Code §§ 3425.1-3425.5 contain the provisions of the Uniform Single Publication Act [Civ. Code § 3425.1]. The act must be interpreted as to effectuate its purpose to make uniform the law of those states or jurisdictions which enact it [Civ. Code § 3425.2]. No person can have more than one cause of action for damages for libel or slander or invasion of privacy or any other tort founded on any single publication or exhibition or utterance, such as any one issue of a newspaper, book, magazine, any one presentation to an audience, any one broadcast over radio or television, or any one exhibition of a motion picture. Recovery in any action will include all damages for any such tort suffered by the plaintiff in all jurisdictions [Civ. Code § 3425.3; see Strick v. Superior Court (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 916, 922-923, 192 Cal. Rptr. 314 (related cause of action for fraud and deceit held time-barred by single publication rule)]. A judgment in any jurisdiction for or against the plaintiff on the substantive merits of any action for damages founded on a single publication or exhibition or utterance as described in Section 3425.3 will bar any other action for damages by the same plaintiff against the same defendant founded on the same publication or exhibition or utterance [Civ. Code § 3425.4].

In the case of a single, integrated publication, the cause of action based upon objectionable matter appearing in the publication accrues upon the first general distribution of the publication to the public [Belli v. Roberts Bros. Furs (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 284, 289, 49 Cal. Rptr. 625 ; see also Strick v. Superior Court (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 916, 922, 192 Cal. Rptr. 314] .

The act does not apply to separate aggregate publications on different occasions. In such cases, the publication reaches a new group and the repetition justifies a new cause of action. For example, the republication of a hardcover book in a paperback form is a new issue of that book giving rise to a new cause of action [Kanarek v. Bugliosi (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 327, 332-333, 166 Cal. Rptr. 526 ; see Schneider v. United Airlines, Inc. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 71, 76, 256 Cal. Rptr. 71] .

The single publication rule applies not only to books and newspapers that are published with general circulation, but also to publications that are given only limited circulation and are not generally distributed to the public [Hebrew Academy of San Francisco v. Goldman (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 883, 890, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 178, 173 P.3d 1004]. In one case, for example, the Supreme Court held that the single publication rule applied to an oral history transcript originally contained in restricted access at a research library of the University of California, even though no more than 10 copies of the transcript were known to exist and none were available to the public without restrictions [Hebrew Academy of San Francisco v. Goldman (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 883, 892-893, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 178, 173 P.3d 1004].

The single publication rule applies to the publication of allegedly defamatory material on an Internet web site [Traditional Cat Assn., Inc. v. Gilbreath (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 392, 404, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 353] . In one case, for example, the defendant established that the plaintiff's action for defamation was untimely because the action was filed more than a year after the last update to allegedly defamatory material published on the defendant's web site [Traditional Cat Assn., Inc. v. Gilbreath (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 392, 404-405, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 353] .

§ 340.29 Necessity of Filing

A claim must be presented in actions for money or damages against local public entities [Gov. Code § 905]; a claim for death, or for injury to persons or personal property or growing crops, must be presented not later than six months after the accrual of the cause of action or one year for any other cause of action [Gov. Code § 911.2].

Except when a plaintiff pleads and proves that he or she did not know or have reason to know he or she had to file a claim, a cause of action against a public employee or former public employee for injury resulting from an act or omission in the scope of his or her employment as a public employee is barred if an action against the employing public entity is barred even though the public entity is immune from liability [Gov. Code § 950.2].

Because of these provisions, a former public employee must file a claim with the public entity as a prerequisite to suing another public employee for allegedly defamatory remarks [Neal v. Gatlin (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 871, 875-877, 111 Cal. Rptr. 117 (former college teacher suing former colleagues for allegedly defamatory letters commenting on his teaching ability); Hopper v. Allen (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 797, 799, 72 Cal. Rptr. 435 (former police officer suing city police chief for allegedly defamatory statements); see also Tietz v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 905, 909-910, 48 Cal. Rptr. 245 (teacher suing school district for mental distress)]. Private individuals who sue governmental employees also must file claims with the appropriate governmental entity as a prerequisite to a defamation suit [Miller v. Hoagland (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 57, 61-62, 55 Cal. Rptr. 311 (private individual suing city attorney for allegedly fraudulent letter); Burgdorf v. Funder (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 443, 448, 54 Cal. Rptr. 805 (private individual suing chief of state Division of Tax Collection for allegedly libelous letter)].

30-340 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 340.30

§ 340.30 Statute of Limitations

[1] In General

The statute of limitations for libel and slander actions is one year [Code Civ. Proc. § 340; Hopper v. Allen (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 797, 801-803, 72 Cal. Rptr. 435 ; Rutherford v. Johnson (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 316, 318, 58 Cal. Rptr. 546] . A libel uttered but once is not a continuous thing. The libel occurs on publication, and the statute of limitations begins to run at that time [Campbell v. Jewish Comm. for Pers. Serv. (1954) 125 Cal. App. 2d 771, 774, 271 P.2d 185] . The time of publication is the date of first general distribution of a publication to the public and not the date placed on the cover of a publication [see Strick v. Superior Court (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 916, 922, 192 Cal. Rptr. 314 ; McGuiness v. Motor Trend Magazine (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 59, 61-63, 180 Cal. Rptr. 784] . A subsequent republication of the same defamatory statement does start the statute of limitations running again from the time of the subsequent publication [see Schneider v. United Airlines, Inc. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 71, 77, 256 Cal. Rptr. 71 (originator of defamation is liable even for subsequent publication for which he or she is not responsible, if republication was reasonably foreseeable)].

[2] Rule of Discovery

The "rule of discovery" may be applied to certain defamation actions. Under this rule, the cause of action does not accrue, for the purpose of determining limitation under Code Civ. Proc. § 340, until the plaintiff discovers, or with reasonable diligence should discover, all of the facts constituting the cause of action. However, this rule does not apply unless the defamation is committed in an inherently secretive manner [Shively v. Bozanich (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1230, 1248-1250, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 576, 80 P.3d 676 ; McGuiness v. Motor Trend Magazine (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 59, 63, 180 Cal. Rptr. 784] . For example, the running of the statute of limitations is not delayed until plaintiff discovers the alleged libel if such libel is contained in a publication such as a book, newspaper, or magazine that is widely available to the public, including plaintiff [Shively v. Bozanich (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1230, 1250-1251, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 576, 80 P.3d 676 ; see also Long v. Walt Disney Co. (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 868, 875, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 836 (discovery rule inapplicable to action based on material broadcast on national network television weekly for more than one year) McGuiness v. Motor Trend Magazine (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 59, 63, 180 Cal. Rptr. 784] .

The discovery rule is inapplicable to such publication even if the publication, though published and technically available to the public, is not widely disseminated or mass-marketed. In one case, for example, the discovery rule did not apply to an oral history transcript originally contained in restricted access at a research library of the University of California, even though no more than 10 copies of the transcript were known to exist and none were available to the public without restrictions, little or no publicity had been given to the transcript that would bring it to plaintiff's attention, and there was no reason for the plaintiff to have or seek knowledge of the allegedly defamatory statements contained within. In that case, the Supreme Court stressed that the plaintiffs had access to the document from the time that it was published [Hebrew Academy of San Francisco v. Goldman (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 883, 894-895, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 178, 173 P.3d 1004].

Once defamatory material is published in a book that is available to the general public, the equitable grounds for applying the discovery rule to toll the running of the statute of limitations disappear, not only for any cause of action based on that publication, but also for any cause of action based on earlier publications that were inherently secret or confidential at the time but are revealed in the published book [Shively v. Bozanich (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1230, 1253, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 576, 80 P.3d 676] . In this situation, the limitations period begins to run on all causes of action contained in or revealed by the book when the book is distributed to the general public, regardless of when the plaintiff learned of the defamatory material [Shively v. Bozanich (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1230, 1247-1251, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 576, 80 P.3d 676] .

A plaintiff's knowledge of a defamatory publication does not start the running of the statute of limitations for the purposes of later republications of the same defamatory material. In such a case, the statute of limitations on the later cause of action does not run from the time of the accrual of the first cause of action, but rather from the time of the second publication [Schneider v. United Airlines, Inc. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 71, 77, 256 Cal. Rptr. 71] .

[3] Equitable Estoppel

The authors of an allegedly defamatory writing who conceal their identities may be equitably estopped from pleading the statute of limitations in a libel action if the libeled individual neither knew, nor through the exercise of reasonable diligence should have discovered, the identity of the authors [Bernson v. Browning-Ferris Indus. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 926, 928, 936, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440, 873 P.2d 613 (disapproving contrary language of Staples v. Zoph (1935) 9 Cal. App. 2d 369, 49 P.2d 1131)].

The requirement that the plaintiff exercise reasonable diligence permits tolling of the statute of limitations only until the plaintiff knows, or through the exercise of reasonable diligence should have discovered, the defendant's identity. Lack of knowledge alone is not sufficient to stay the statute; a plaintiff may not disregard reasonably available avenues of inquiry that, if vigorously pursued, might yield the desired information [Bernson v. Browning-Ferris Indus. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 926, 936, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440, 873 P.2d 613] . One factor that must be considered pertinent to the diligence inquiry is whether a timely Doe complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 474] would, as a practical matter, have facilitated the discovery of the defendant's identity within the three-year period for service of process under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210 [Bernson v. Browning-Ferris Indus. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 926, 936-937, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440, 873 P.2d 613] . If the identity of at least one defendant is known, the plaintiff must avail himself or herself of the opportunity to file a timely complaint naming Doe defendants and take discovery [Bernson v. Browning-Ferris Indus. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 926, 937, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440, 873 P.2d 613] . However, if the facts are such that even discovery cannot pierce a defendant's intentional efforts to conceal his or her identity, the plaintiff will not be penalized [Bernson v. Browning-Ferris Indus. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 926, 937, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440, 873 P.2d 613] .

§ 340.31 Choice of Law

Under California conflicts law, the tort of libel occurs at the place of publication of the libelous statement [see Moore v. Greene (9th Cir. 1970) 431 F.2d 584, 591 ; Gallegos v. Union-Tribune Publ'g Co. (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 791, 797, 16 Cal. Rptr. 185] . However, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals has applied California substantive law of libel to an allegedly libelous letter published outside the state. Reasoning that the purpose of libel is to protect the interest of a victim's reputation and that California was the state which was most interested in the protection of its residents' reputation, the court applied California substantive law to a letter published in Texas which allegedly libeled a California resident [Moore v. Greene (9th Cir. 1970) 431 F.2d 584, 591-592] .

§ 340.32 Undertaking Not Required

Former Code Civ. Proc. § 830 required the plaintiff in a defamation action to file a written undertaking in the amount of $500 before a summons could be issued by the clerk; if such an undertaking were not filed, the court had to dismiss the action. This requirement was held to be an unconstitutional deprivation of property on the rationale that since the $500 undertaking was a mandatory and unequivocal requirement, the statute failed to provide for a meaningful hearing prior to the deprivation of property and thus violated plaintiff's right to due process as guaranteed by the California and United States Constitutions [Allen v. Jordanos' Inc. (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 160, 164, 125 Cal. Rptr. 31] .

A plaintiff who recovers judgment in an action for libel or slander must be allowed as costs $100 to cover counsel fees in addition to other costs. If the action is dismissed or the defendant recovers judgment, the defendant must be allowed $100 to cover counsel fees in addition to other costs, and judgment must be entered accordingly [Code Civ. Proc. § 1037].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Defamation: Libel And Slander Complaints

30-340 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 340.33

§ 340.33 Prior Restraint

The United States Supreme Court has held that "prior restraints on speech and publication are the most serious and least tolerable infringement on First Amendment rights" [Neb Press Ass'n v. Stuart (1976) 427 U.S. 539, 559, 96 S. Ct. 2791, 49 L. Ed. 2d 683] . There is a "heavy presumption" against the constitutional validity of any prior restraint, and the party seeking to restrain expression has a "heavy burden of showing justification for the imposition of such a restraint" [Org. for a Better Austin v. Keefe (1971) 402 U.S. 415, 419, 91 S. Ct. 1575, 29 L. Ed. 2d 1] .

The United States Supreme Court has not specifically addressed the propriety of enjoining defamatory speech. It has, however, strongly intimated in dictum that such statements are no more susceptible to prior restraint than other forms of speech [see Org. for a Better Austin v. Keefe (1971) 402 U.S. 415, 418, 91 S. Ct. 1575, 29 L. Ed. 2d 1] .

Because First Amendment guarantees of speech are within the liberty safeguarded by the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment from invasion by state action [Neb Press Ass'n v. Stuart (1976) 427 U.S. 539, 556, 96 S. Ct. 2791, 49 L. Ed. 2d 683] , states are not free to adopt a standard lower than that mandated by the U.S. Constitution and California's standard is fully consistent with the federal standard. For example, the California Supreme Court struck down a temporary restraining order enjoining a candidate for political office from publishing allegedly libelous statements about his opponent. In doing so, the Court held that "the truth or falsity of a statement on a public issue is irrelevant to the question of whether it should be repressed in advance of publication" [Wilson v. Superior Court (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 652, 658, 119 Cal. Rptr. 468, 532 P.2d 116] .

There are no California decisions upholding prior restraint of alleged defamation. To the contrary, in dictum the California Supreme Court has repeatedly interpreted the state Constitution to proscribe injunctive relief for threatened defamation [see, e.g., Rosicrucian Fellowship v. Rosicrucian Fellowship Non-Sectarian Church (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 121, 145, 245 P.2d 481 ; Northwestern Pac. R.R. Co. v. Lumber & Sawmill Worker's Union (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 441, 448, 189 P.2d 277 ; see also Bright v. L.A. Unified Sch. Dist. (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 450, 464, 134 Cal. Rptr. 639, 556 P.2d 1090 ; Evans v. Evans (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1157, 1169, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 859] .

However, a narrowly drawn injunction issued after a trial at which defendant's particular speech has been adjudicated to be defamatory may properly enjoin the defendant from repeating the defamation and is not considered a prior restraint [Balboa Island Village Inn, Inc. v. Lemen (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 1141, 1155-1156, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 320, 156 P.3d 339] . If a statement that was once false becomes true at a later time, the defendant may move the court to modify or dissolve the injunction [Balboa Island Village Inn, Inc. v. Lemen (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 1141, 1161, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 320, 156 P.3d 339] . An otherwise permissible injunction may not prevent a defendant from presenting grievances to government officials with relevant enforcement responsibilities [Balboa Island Village Inn, Inc. v. Lemen (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 1141, 1160-1161, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 320, 156 P.3d 339 ; see also Evans v. Evans (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1157, 1172-1173, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 859 (pretrial order preventing defendant from communicating with sheriff's department about defendant's ex-husband, who was officer within department, was overbroad, despite exception allowing defendant to call 911 to report criminal conduct)].

§ 340.50 Failure to Plead Special Damages

If a publication is not libelous on its face or slanderous per se, the plaintiff must allege that he has suffered special damages as a result of the publication [Civ. Code § 45a (libel); Civ. Code § 46(5) (slander)]. Special damages must be alleged with particularity [Pridonoff v. Balokovich (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 788, 791-792, 228 P.2d 6 ; Smith v. Los Angeles Bookbinders Union (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 486, 494, 284 P.2d 194] in order to protect the defendant from surprise [Pridonoff v. Balokovich (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 788, 792, 228 P.2d 6] . Thus, a general allegation of the loss of prospective employment, sale, or profit is not a sufficient allegation of special damages [Pridonoff v. Balokovich (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 788, 792, 228 P.2d 6 (dictum); Smith v. Los Angeles Bookbinders Union (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 486, 494-495, 284 P.2d 194 (general allegation of injury to business of $100,000 as not sufficient)]. To the contrary, an allegation of special damages is sufficiently specific where it alleges that plaintiff suffered the loss of employment with a specific employer, for a specific period of time, and in a specific amount of money [Pridonoff v. Balokovich (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 788, 792, 228 P.2d 6] .

Defendants who are sued for defamation by public officials and public figures, as well as defendants who are sued by private individuals forallegedly defamatory statements relating to matters of public concern, may raise constitutional defenses to such actions [see New York Times Co. v. Sullivan (1964) 376 U.S. 254, 84 S. Ct. 710, 11 L. Ed. 2d 686 ; Curtis Publ'g Co. v. Butts (1967) 388 U.S. 130, 87 S. Ct. 1975, 18 L. Ed. 2d 1094 ; *Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Defenses To Defamation Actions

30-340 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 340.52

§ 340.52 Special Motion to Strike Cause of Action Based on Exercise of Constitutional Rights (Anti-SLAPP Statute)

To protect the public interest that encourages continued participation in matters of public significance, and to protect this participation from being chilled through abuse of the judicial process [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16(a)], the California legislature enacted Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16, which provides a special motion to strike so-called SLAPP (Strategic Litigation Against Public Participation) suits. If the requirements of the statute are otherwise met, a defendant may use this special motion to strike in a defamation action [see, e.g., Lafayette Morehouse, Inc. v. Chronicle Publ'g Co. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 855, 862-863, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 46] .

A motion to strike a cause of action may be brought under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16 if the defendant's underlying conduct was in furtherance of the defendant's right of petition or free speech under the United States or California Constitutions in connection with a public issue [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16(b)(1)]. Specifically, a motion to strike may be made if any of the following actions by the defendant form the basis for the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16(e)]:

- Any written or oral statement made before a legislative, executive, or judicial proceeding, or any other proceeding authorized by law.

- Any written or oral statement or writing made in connection with an issue under consideration or review by a legislative, executive, or judicial body, or any other official proceeding authorized by law.

- Any written or oral statement or writing made in a place open to the public or in a public forum in connection with an issue of public interest.

- Any other conduct in furtherance of the exercise of the constitutional right of petition or free speech in connection with a public issue or an issue of public interest.

Unlike cases falling under the last two paragraphs listed above, a defendant moving to strike a cause of action arising from a statement made before, or in connection with an issue under consideration by, a legally authorized official proceeding need not separately demonstrate that the statement concerned an issue of public interest [Briggs v. Eden Council for Hope & Opportunity (1999) 19 Cal. 4th 1106, 1123, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 471, 969 P.2d 564] .

However, there are other considerations that may affect the success of a motion to strike a cause of action arising from a statement made before, or in connection with an issue under consideration by, a judicial body. For example, the requirements for applying a motion to strike under these provisions may, in some circumstances, be the same as the requirements for applying the litigation privilege of Civ. Code § 47(b) [see A.F. Brown Elec. Contractor, Inc. v. Rhino Elec. Supply, Inc. (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 1118, 1125-1126, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1] . For example, because the litigation privilege does not extend to pre-litigation communications made when no lawsuit was seriously being considered, a motion to strike is properly denied if it is based on the same conduct [Haneline Pacific Properties, LLC v. May (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 311, 319-320, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 919 ; A.F. Brown Elec. Contractor, Inc. v. Rhino Elec. Supply, Inc. (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 1118, 1128, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1] . Conversely, if the suit is based on statements that would be privileged under Civ. Code § 47(b) because made in anticipation of litigation contemplated in good faith and under serious consideration, the suit may be subject to a motion to strike. This is the case even if suit is filed several months after the statements were made and the statements were made to nonparties to the lawsuit, so long as the statements have the requisite connection to the impending lawsuit [Neville v. Chudacoff (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 1255, 1266-1270, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 383; see also Rohde v. Wolf (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 28, 38, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 348].

The California Supreme Court has cautioned, however, that because the litigation privilege is designed to protect access to the courts, while the anti-SLAPP statute is designed to prevent abuse of the judicial process, not all conduct protected by the litigation privilege will automatically be protected under the anti-SLAPP statute [see Flatley v. Mauro (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 299, 322-324, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 606, 139 P.3d 2] . For example, even assuming that the litigation privilege might apply to pre-litigation conduct that is illegal, the Supreme Court has held that a defendant may not successfully pursue a motion to strike under the anti-SLAPP statute if the underlying conduct taken by the defendant was illegal as a matter of law, because illegal conduct is not constitutionally protected [Flatley v. Mauro (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 299, 317, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 606, 139 P.3d 2 (attorney's threats to publicly accuse plaintiff of rape constituted criminal extortion as matter of law); see also Paul for Council v. Hanyecz (2001) 85 Cal. App. 4th 1356, 1366, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 864 (defendant admitted underlying conduct was illegal laundering of campaign contributions)]. Therefore, if the defendant concedes, or the evidence conclusively establishes, that the allegedly protected speech or petitioning activity was illegal, the defendant may not use the anti-SLAPP statute to strike the complaint [Flatley v. Mauro (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 299, 320, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 606, 139 P.3d 2] . However, if there is a factual dispute as to the legality of the defendant's underlying conduct, the plaintiff, if necessary to demonstrate a probability of success on the merits as discussed below, bears the burden of proving the illegality of the defendant's underlying conduct [Paul for Council v. Hanyecz (2001) 85 Cal. App. 4th 1356, 1367, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 864] .

A motion to strike may be filed within 60 days after the filing of the complaint, or at any later time at the court's discretion on terms the court deems proper [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16(f)]. The moving defendant bears the initial burden of showing that the cause of action arose from protected activity [Shekhter v. Financial Indem. Co. (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 141, 150-151, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843] . However, a defendant moving to strike does not bear the burden of actually proving that the plaintiff intended to chill the defendant's exercise of First Amendment rights [Equilon Enters. v. Consumer Cause, Inc. (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 53, 58, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 507, 52 P.3d 685] , nor need the defendant show that the targeted action has or will have an actual chilling effect [City of Cotati v. Cashman (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 69, 75-76, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 519, 52 P.3d 695] , review granted, depublished, Cashman v. City of Cotati, 415 F.3d 1027 . It is sufficient that the defendant establish that the challenged lawsuit arose from an act by the defendant in furtherance of the right of petition or free speech [Equilon Enters v. Consumer Cause, Inc. (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 53, 58, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 507, 52 P.3d 685 , reh'g granted, depublished, Cashman v. City of Cotati, 415 F.3d 1027].

In response, the plaintiff has the burden of establishing, with admissible evidence, that there is a probability that the plaintiff will prevail on the claim [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16(b)]. In making its determination, the court considers the pleadings and supporting and opposing affidavits stating the facts on which the liability or defense is based [Code Civ.

Proc. § 425.16(b)(2)]. The court cannot weigh the credibility or comparative strength of competing evidence, although the court must grant a defendant's motion to strike if the defendant's supporting evidence defeats the plaintiff's claim as a matter of law [Tuchscher Dev. Enters., Inc. v. San Diego Unified Port Dist. (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 1219, 1235, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 57] .

While the court does not generally weigh the strength of competing evidence, a public figure plaintiff attempting to defeat a motion to strike a defamation action must show a probability of demonstrating actual malice by clear and convincing evidence, and neither the trial court nor a reviewing court is required to consider the evidence of actual malice in the light most favorable to the plaintiff or draw all permissible inferences in favor of plaintiff [Christian Research Inst. v. Alnor (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 71, 86, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 600 (reviewing court concluded that plaintiff failed to offer clear and convincing evidence that defendant published false account of mail fraud investigation against plaintiff with actual malice)]. In addition, while the stay on discovery that generally accompanies the filing of a motion to strike may be lifted by the trial court on noticed motion with a showing of good cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16(g)], a plaintiff who must demonstrate actual malice to prevail on a defamation claim does not have good cause to seek discovery on the issue of malice without first making a prima facie demonstration that the allegedly defamatory statements are provably false factual assertions [Paterno v. Superior Court (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1342, 1349, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 244]. If a plaintiff has not alleged actual malice in the complaint, but the proof presented during the hearing on the motion to strike supports a finding that defendant acted with actual malice, the plaintiff should be granted leave to amend the complaint to add allegations in conformity with that proof [Nguyen-Lam v. Cao (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 858, 871-873, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 205].

An order granting or denying a motion to strike is appealable under Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1 [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.16(i), 904.1(a)(13)]. If the trial court denies a special motion to strike, a perfected appeal automatically stays the trial court proceedings [Varian Med. Sys., Inc. v. Delfino (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 180, 195, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 298, 106 P.3d 958] . However, trial court proceedings may continue on causes of action not affected by the motion to strike [Varian Med. Sys., Inc. v. Delfino (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 180, 195 n.8, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 298, 106 P.3d 958] .

With exceptions for prevailing defendants in actions brought under certain provisions governing wrongful conduct by public employees and public agencies in withholding public documents or violating open meetings laws, in any action subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16(b), a prevailing defendant on a special motion to strike is entitled to recover his or her attorney's fees and costs [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16(c)(1); see Code Civ. Proc. § 415.16(c)(2)--exceptions described].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Defenses To Defamation Actions

30-340 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 340.53

§ 340.53 Statutory Protection Afforded Newspapers and Broadcasters

[1] Scope of Protection

Newspaper publishers as well as radio and television broadcasters are afforded broad statutory protection in California under the provisions of Civ. Code § 48a, the retraction statute. As discussed in § 340.18[4], protection has been increased by the Supreme Court decision in Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789 .

[2] Provisions of Retraction Statute

In any action for damages for the publication of a libel in a newspaper or of a slander by a radio or television [see Civ. Code § 48.5(4)] broadcast, a plaintiff can recover no more than special damages unless a correction is demanded and is not published or broadcast as the section further provides. The plaintiff must serve on the publisher at the place of publication, or on the broadcaster at the place of broadcast, a written notice specifying the statements claimed to be libelous and demanding that the same be corrected. The notice and demand must be served within 20 days after knowledge of the publication or broadcast of the statements claimed to be libelous [Civ. Code § 48a(1)].

If a correction is demanded within the 20-day period and is not published or broadcast in substantially as conspicuous a manner in the newspaper or on the broadcasting station as were the statements claimed to be libelous, in a regular issue thereof published or broadcast within three weeks after the service, plaintiff, if he or she pleads and proves the notice, demand, and failure to correct and if the cause of action is maintained, may recover general, special, and exemplary damages. However, the plaintiff may recover no exemplary damages unless the plaintiff proves that the defendant made the publication or broadcast with actual malice as defined by the statute, and then only in the discretion of the court of jury, and actual malice may not be inferred or presumed from the publication or broadcast [Civ. Code § 48a(2)].

A correction must be published or broadcast in substantially as conspicuous a manner in the newspaper or on the broadcasting station as the statement claimed in the complaint to be libelous, prior to receipt of a demand for it, and it must be of the same force and effect as though the correction had been published or broadcast within three weeks after a demand for it [Civ. Code § 48a(3)].

The purpose of the retraction statute is to encourage the free and rapid dissemination of news [Field Research Corp. v. Superior Court (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 110, 115, 77 Cal. Rptr. 243, 453 P.2d 747 ; Pridonoff v. Balokovich (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 788, 791, 228 P.2d 6] .

[4] Adequacy of Demand for Retraction

The crucial issue in evaluating the adequacy of the notice that a broadcaster receives from a demand for a retraction under Civ. Code § 48a turns on whether the publisher should reasonably have comprehended which statements plaintiff protested and wished corrected [Kapellas v. Kofman (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 20, 31-32, 81 Cal. Rptr. 360, 459 P.2d 912 ; MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 554, 343 P.2d 36] .

A demand for retraction is only effective as to the plaintiffs listed or so described in the demand such that the defendant fairly knows who is objecting to the challenged publication. Thus, merely stating that a business entity is seeking a retraction does not preserve the rights of that entity's parent corporation to seek general or punitive damages, even if the business entity listed in the demand is a wholly owned subsidiary of the parent corporation and this fact of ownership is common knowledge [Anschutz Entertainment Group, Inc. v. Snepp (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 598, 642-643, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 133].

[5] Service on Publisher or Broadcaster

Although the word "publication" in the first sentence of Civ. Code § 48a(1) is used in its legal sense to mean the communication of any defamation, the second sentence provides that the demand for correction must be served on the "publisher" or "broadcaster" and clearly refers to the owner or operator of the newspaper or radio or television station rather than the originator of the defamatory statements [Field Research Corp. v. Superior Court (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 110, 113-114, 77 Cal. Rptr. 243, 453 P.2d 747 ; Pridonoff v. Balokovich (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 788, 791, 228 P.2d 6] . At least in the case of newspapers, however, the California Supreme Court has construed this service requirement to be satisfied when the demand is (1) served on the publisher, (2) served on a person designated by the publisher to receive such demands, or (3) served on someone employed at the newspaper other than the publisher or the publisher's designee if the publisher acquires actual knowledge of the demand within the 20-day period set forth in Civ. Code § 48a(1) [Freedom Newspapers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 652, 658, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 839, 842 P.2d 138 (impliedly overruling Farr v. Bramblett (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 36, 44, 281 P.2d 372 , which was itself overruled on other grounds in Field Research Corp. v. Superior Court (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 110, 114 n.4, 77 Cal. Rptr. 243, 453 P.2d 747)]. Conversely, a plaintiff is not required to serve a demand on the author of an article if the plaintiff has served a demand on the publisher [Larrick v. Gilloon (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 408, 420, 1 Cal. Rptr. 360 , overruled on other grounds, Field Research Corp. v. Superior Court (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 110, 114 n.4, 77 Cal. Rptr. 243, 453 P.2d 747] .

When the demand for correction and the notice of statements deemed defamatory are served by mail, neither Civ. Code § 48a(1) nor Code Civ. Proc. § 1020 (any notice required by law may be given by registered mail) requires that they be sent by registered mail [Freedom Newspapers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 652 (expressly disapproving any suggestion to the contrary in San Leandro Collection Serv. v. Dunbar (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 933)].

As noted in § 340.53[2], to provide a sufficient retraction to gain immunity from liability for general or punitive damages under Civ. Code § 48a, the retraction must appear in substantially as conspicuous a manner in the newspaper as were the allegedly libelous statements [Civ. Code § 48a(3)]. The question of the sufficiency of a retraction is peculiarly a question of fact for the jury [Twin Coast Newspapers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 656, 660-662, 256 Cal. Rptr. 310] . Thus, the issue of whether a newspaper article retracting the allegedly libelous statement was as conspicuous as the allegedly libelous article is a question of fact for the jury [Twin Coast Newspapers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 656, 660-662, 256 Cal. Rptr. 310] . However, a court may instruct a jury that the undisputed facts compel the conclusion that the retraction was adequate as a matter of law [Twin Coast Newspapers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 656, 662, 256 Cal. Rptr. 310] .

[7] Participants Covered

The purpose of Civ. Code § 48a could be circumvented if the section were limited to newspaper publishers and radio and television broadcasters, and therefore the section protects those who participate in the publication or broadcast, including reporters, columnists, authors, critics, and editors. Otherwise, the section would protect not those engaged in the rapid dissemination of news but merely those who owned or operated the facilities for such dissemination; it would protect, not a special form of news reporting, but a special form of investment [Field Research Corp. v. Superior Court (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 110, 114-115, 77 Cal. Rptr. 243, 453 P.2d 747 ; Pridonoff v. Balokovich (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 788, 791, 228 P.2d 6] .

[8] Nonparticipants Not Protected

The language of Civ. Code § 48a indicates that it does not apply to third parties who are not participants in the publishing or broadcasting enterprise [Field Research Corp. v. Superior Court (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 110, 113-114, 77 Cal. Rptr. 243, 453 P.2d 747 ; Pridonoff v. Balokovich (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 788, 791, 228 P.2d 6] . Thus, either an intruder on a television program [White v. Valenta (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 243, 249-250, 44 Cal. Rptr. 241] or an ordinary slanderer whose remarks subsequently find their way into a newspaper [Mercado v. Hoefler (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 12, 18-19, 11 Cal. Rptr. 787] is not protected. The author of a letter to the editor is also a nonparticipant in the business of publishing, and is not protected by the provisions of Civ. Code 48a [Denney v. Lawrence (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 927, 936-940, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 556] .

[9] Magazines Not Covered

Civ. Code § 48a applies only to a publication in a newspaper or by radio and does not apply to magazines [Alioto v. Cowles Communications, Inc. (9th Cir. 1975) 519 F.2d 777, 778-779 ; Montandon v. Triangle Publ'ns, Inc. (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 938, 949-953, 120 Cal. Rptr. 186 ; see Burnett v. National Enquirer, Inc. (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 991, 1000-1001, 193 Cal. Rptr 206] .

§ 340.54 Due Care by Radio and Television Broadcasters

Civ. Code § 48.5 provides for the nonliability of the owner, licensee, or operator of a broadcasting station or network in an action for defamation by radio. It provides, in substance, that the owner of a radio station, or the owner's agent, is not liable for damages resulting from a defamatory statement made as a part of a broadcast over that station which was made by someone other than the owner or agent if the owner or agent exercised due care to prevent the utterance of such a statement. At the most, Civ. Code § 48.5 confers a defense upon the owner and agent under the noted circumstances and does not raise a cause of action against them in favor of the person defamed [Correia v. Santos (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 844, 856, 13 Cal. Rptr. 132] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Defenses To Defamation Actions

30-340 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 340.55

§ 340.55 Justification by Truth

[1] Allegations in Answer

In any action for libel or slander, the defendant may, in the defendant's answer, allege both the truth of the matter charged as defamatory and any mitigating circumstances to reduce the amount of damages [Code Civ. Proc. § 461].

[2] Complete Defense

Truth is a complete defense against civil liability for defamation regardless of the bad faith or malicious purpose of the publisher of the material [Davis v. Hearst (1911) 160 Cal. 143, 195, 116 P. 530 ; Swaffield v. Universal Ecsco Corp. (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 147, 164, 76 Cal. Rptr. 680] .

[3] Substantial Truth Sufficient

It is generally agreed that it is not necessary to prove the literal truth of an allegedly libelous accusation in every detail, so long as the imputation is substantially true and therefore justifies the "gist" or "sting" of the remark [Emde v. San Joaquin County Cent. Labor Council (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 146, 160, 143 P.2d 20 ; Southwell v. Mallery, Stern & Warford (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 140, 145, 239 Cal. Rptr. 371 ; Handelsman v. San Francisco Chronicle (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 381, 387, 90 Cal. Rptr. 188] . Immaterial variances and defects of proof upon minor matters are to be disregarded if the substance of the charge is justified [Stoneking v. Briggs (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 563, 573, 62 Cal. Rptr. 249] . Thus, for example, a statement made in the present tense, such as a statement that a person "is" a criminal, may be found to be substantially true if it refers technically to a state of affairs that was true in the past [Hughes v. Hughes (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 931, 937-939, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 247 (statement "our dad's a pimp" was substantially true because supported by evidence that person had engaged in pimping activities in past)].

A media defendant is not liable for publishing a factual account that provides only one perspective on a story, but fails to include additional facts that might give the reader or listener a different impression of the events discussed [Paterno v. Superior Court (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1342, 1352, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 244].

[4] Adding Emphasis to Truthful Statement Not Defamatory

The mere addition of simple emphasis to an otherwise completely accurate and truthful factual statement is not, in and of itself, defamatory [Smith v. Maldonado (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 637, 652, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 397] . Therefore, in one case, the re-publication and dissemination of a truthful and accurate newspaper article was not defamatory because the article was unedited and unchanged except for the highlighting of one paragraph that identified the plaintiffs as having been the clients of an attorney who had been the subject of a criminal sting operation [Smith v. Maldonado (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 637, 653, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 397] . A truthful statement of fact may be transformed into potentially defamatory material only if it is substantively changed by editing or rearranging the words, removing language from or adding language to the original statement, or repeating or reproducing the statement in a different surrounding context in such a way as to render the statement reasonably susceptible of a different meaning or interpretation [Smith v. Maldonado (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 637, 652, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 397] .

[5] Subjective Belief of Truth Immaterial

It is immaterial whether the publisher believed the statements were true at the time they were made, so long as they in fact were true [Emde v. San Joaquin County Cent. Labor Council (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 146, 160, 143 P.2d 20] .

[6] Burden of Proof of Falsity

The United States Supreme Court has held that, at least when the plaintiff is either a public figure or a private figure who is suing a newspaper or other media defendant for publishing speech of a public concern, U.S. Const. amend. I, requires that the plaintiff bear the burden of proving the falsity of the defamatory statement before recovering damages [Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 776-779, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783] . However, the Court has continued to leave open the question of what standards would apply if a private plaintiff sues a nonmedia defendant [see, e.g., Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 779 n.4, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783 ; see also Hutchinson v. Proxmire (1979) 443 U.S. 111, 133 n.16, 99 S. Ct. 2675, 61 L. Ed. 2d 411 (open question whether protection of U.S. Const. amend. I, extends to cases involving nonmedia defendants)].

Although the United States Supreme Court has not ruled on the issue, the California court of appeal has held that a private-figure plaintiff also bears the burden of proving the falsity of allegedly defamatory statements in an action against nonmedia defendants, if the statements concern a matter of public interest [Integrated Healthcare Holdings, Inc. v. Fitzgibbons (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 515, 529, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 517 ; Nizam-Aldine v. City of Oakland (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 364, 372-375, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 781] .

Under the common law, a plaintiff is not otherwise required to allege that the statements are false, and an omission of an allegation of falsity in thecomplaint may not be grounds for a demurrer [see Lipman v. Brisbane Elementary Sch. Dist. (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 224, 233, 11 Cal. Rptr. 97, 359 P.2d 465 ; see also Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 776, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783] . Therefore, although it is currently unclear whether or not a private plaintiff who sues a nonmedia defendant is required to plead and prove falsity, it appears that at least under Lipman, and until the United States Supreme Court rules otherwise, the burden remains on the defendant rather than on the plaintiff. However, the better practice is for a plaintiff to allege falsity in a complaint, and a defendant might have a valid argument against a plaintiff who fails to do so.

§ 340.56 Mitigation

In any action for libel or slander, the defendant may in his or her answer allege both the truth of the matter charged as defamatory and any mitigating circumstances to reduce the amount of damages. Whether he or she proves the justification or not, he or she may give in evidence the mitigating circumstances [Code Civ. Proc. § 461].

The "mitigating circumstances" that Code Civ. Proc. § 461 allows the defendant to prove are those that tend to show that the defendant, in speaking the slanderous words, acted in good faith, with honesty of purpose, and not maliciously. The fact that the person to whom the slander may have been uttered was not influenced thereby or had subsequently regained his or her confidence in the plaintiff would not be such a "mitigating circumstance" [Clay v. Lagiss (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 441, 448, 299 P.2d 1025 ; Shumate v. Johnson Publ'g Co. (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 121, 135, 293 P.2d 531] .

§ 340.57 Privilege

A defendant who has published a defamatory statement about a plaintiff may avoid liability if the publication was privileged. When the privilege relied on is of the type referred to as an "absolute" privilege, the defendant avoids liability even when the publication was made with malice. A "qualified" or "conditional" privilege, on the other hand, does not protect a defendant who had acted maliciously [Saroyan v. Burkett (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 706, 708, 21 Cal. Rptr. 557, 371 P.2d 293] .

If the privilege is absolute, it is unaffected by the presence of malice. Regardless of the specific type of absolute privilege (discussed under subsequent headings), the absolute immunity attaches if all of the following conditions have been met [Tiedemann v. Superior Court (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 918, 924, 148 Cal. Rptr. 242 ; Bradley v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 818, 824, 825, 106 Cal. Rptr. 718] :

- The publication was made in a judicial (or quasi-judicial) proceeding;
- The publication had some connection or logical relation to the action;
- The publication was made to achieve the objectives of the litigation; and
- The publication involved litigants or other participants authorized by law.

Generally speaking, the only privileges applicable to defamation actions are those enumerated in Civ. Code § 47 [Neary v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 1136, 1144, 230 Cal. Rptr. 281] .

The defense of privilege to a charge of defamation is an affirmative one that must be specifically pleaded unless it appears on the face of the complaint [Locke v. Mitchell (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 599, 602, 61 P.2d 922 ; Peoples v. Tautfest (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 630, 635, 79 Cal. Rptr. 478 ; Everett v. California Teachers Ass'n (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 291, 293, 25 Cal. Rptr. 120] . If the existence of the privilege is disclosed on the face of the complaint, the privilege is available as a matter of defense on demurrer [Locke v. Mitchell (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 599, 602, 61 P.2d 922 ; Whelan v.

Wolford (1958) 164 Cal. App. 2d 689, 693, 331 P.2d 86] .

When the facts and circumstances under which a defamatory publication was made are undisputed, the question of privilege is a matter of law that may be resolved in a summary judgment proceeding [Costa v. Superior Court (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 673, 678, 204 Cal. Rptr. 1] .

§ 340.58 Absolute Privilege for Executive Officers

A privileged publication is one made in the proper discharge of an official duty [Civ. Code § 47(a)]. The privilege is absolute and exists for state officials corresponding in rank to federal cabinet members to publish false and defamatory matter of another in the exercise of an executive function if the matter has some relation to the executive proceeding in which the officer is acting [Saroyan v. Burkett (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 706, 710, 21 Cal. Rptr. 557, 371 P.2d 293] . Some California courts of appeal have held that the absolute privilege conveyed by Civ. Code § 47(a) extends only to state executives who correspond in rank to federal cabinet officers; it does not extend to state officials of lesser rank [see Frisk v. Merrihew (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 319, 323, 116 Cal. Rptr. 781 ; White v. California (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 621, 626-628, 95 Cal. Rptr. 175] . Other court of appeal opinions have held, however, that the absolute privilege of Civ. Code § 47(a) extends to lower level state or local officials so long as the publication was made while the official was exercising his or her policymaking function and was acting within the scope of his or her official duties [Morrow v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 1424, 1440-1441, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 885 (statements made by school superintendent to newspaper reporter concerning district's decision to replace principal in response to school violence were privileged); Neary v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 1136, 1141, 230 Cal. Rptr. 281 (vice-chancellor at state university)].

The state Attorney General was protected by the privilege when he released a report at a press conference that named persons suspected of involvement in organized crime in the state [Kilgore v. Younger (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 770, 779, 180 Cal. Rptr. 657, 640 P.2d 793] . The Supreme Court found that the Attorney General was discharging an official duty at the press conference, and that regardless of the propriety of the discharge, failure to apply the absolute privilege would cause a chilling effect on the energetic performance of the public's business [Kilgore v. Younger (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 770, 782, 180 Cal. Rptr. 657, 640 P.2d 793 ; see also Maranatha Corrections, LLC v. Department of Corrections & Rehabilitation (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1075, 1088-1091, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 614 (privilege applied when director of State Department of Corrections & Rehabilitation released letter to public explaining that public contract with plaintiff was terminated due to perceived misappropriation of funds owed to state); Tutor-Saliba Corp. v. Herrera (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 604, 615, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 21 (city attorney's speech discussing merits of pending litigation was protected)].

§ 340.59 Absolute Privilege for Legislative Proceedings

[1] In General

A privileged publication or broadcast is one made in any legislative proceeding authorized by law [Civ. Code § 47(b)]. The privilege is absolute since absolute immunity attaches to statements made before a legislative body. The existence of malice on the part of the declarant will not defeat the privilege if it is shown that the statement that is alleged to be defamatory bears some connection to the work of the legislative body [Scott v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 277, 285, 112 Cal. Rptr. 609] . The general immunity afforded legislators extends to all that is spoken or done in the course of legislative proceedings [Scott v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 277, 288, 112 Cal. Rptr. 609] . However, although the application of the privilege requires the demonstration of some connection with the proceedings, there is no requirement of relevancy, materiality, or pertinency (in their technical sense) [Scott v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 277, 285, 112 Cal. Rptr. 609 ; see Thornton v. Rhoden (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 80, 90, 53 Cal. Rptr. 706] .

[2] Public Included in Privilege

The immunity afforded to legislators attaches to interested members of the public who wish to address themselves to matters pending before a legislative body [Scott v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 277, 288, 112 Cal. Rptr. 609 ; Pettitt v. Levy (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 484, 488, 104 Cal. Rptr. 650 ; see Whelan v. Wolford (1958) 164 Cal. App. 2d 689, 694, 331 P.2d 86] . The privilege also extends to statements made by members of the public during preliminary conversations while marshalling evidence and preparing to address a legislative body, so long as the statements are relevant to the legislative proceedings and are directed toward the achievement of the objects of the proceedings [Cayley v. Nunn (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 300, 304, 235 Cal. Rptr. 385] .

§ 340.60 Absolute Privilege for Judicial Proceedings

[1] Availability

A publication or broadcast made in any judicial proceeding authorized by law is privileged [Civ. Code § 47(b)]. The privilege granted by Civ. Code § 47(b) is an absolute one because it protects publications made with actual malice or with the intent to do harm [Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375, 379, 295 P.2d 405 ; Bradley v. Hartford Acc. & Indem. Co. (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 818, 824, 106 Cal. Rptr. 718 , disapproved on other grounds, Silberg v. Anderson (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 205, 218-219, 266 Cal. Rptr. 638, 786 P.2d 365] .

The California Supreme Court has held that there is no requirement that the communication be "in the interest of justice" to be absolutely privileged [Silberg v. Anderson (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 205, 212, 266 Cal. Rptr. 638, 786 P.2d 365 (disapproving to extent inconsistent cases holding that statements not made in interest of justice are not privileged, including Fuhrman v. California Satellite Sys. (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 408, 421, 231 Cal. Rptr. 113 , and Kinnamon v. Staitman & Snyder (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 893, 896-897, 136 Cal. Rptr. 321); see Rubin v. Green (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 1187, 1194, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 828, 847 P. 2d 1044 (citing Silberg v. Anderson for proposition that malicious prosecution actions are only exception to applicability of Civ. Code § 47(b))]. Therefore, communications that are made in connection with and logically related to litigation do not fall outside the judicial privilege merely because they are, or are alleged to be, fraudulent, perjurious, unethical, or even illegal [Jacob B. v. County of Shasta (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 948, 957-959, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 477, 154 P.3d 1003 ; Kashian v. Harriman (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 892, 920, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 576] .

Although the litigation privilege may be applied in a breach of contract action, application in those cases depends on the facts of the case and whether application would further the policies underlying the privilege [Feldman v. 1100 Park Lane Associates (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 1467, 1497-1498, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 ; Wentland v. Wass (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 1484, 1492, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 109] . For example, the court of appeal rejected application of the privilege in a case seeking liquidated damages following a breach of a contract in which the defendants had agreed not to make public comments accusing the plaintiff of wrongdoing in connection with his role as managing partner of a business venture. Although the statements breaching this contractual agreement were made in connection with litigation, the court noted that the defendants had contractually agreed not to make such public statements, and in doing so had waived the protection of the litigation privilege [Wentland v. Wass (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 1484, 1494, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 109] . Moreover, the court concluded that the policies underlying the privilege--including promoting access to the courts, truthful testimony, and zealous advocacy, as well as encouraging finality and avoiding litigation--would not be furthered by applying the privilege to a breach of contract case in which the speaker had violated an agreement not to speak [Wentland v. Wass (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 1484, 1494, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 109] .

The judicial privilege may not apply when another statute specifically prohibits the conduct alleged to be protected by the privilege, at least when applying the privilege would defeat the purposes of the other statute [compare Cabral v. Martins (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 471, 488-489, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 394 (application of litigation privilege to attorneys' conduct in representing clients in probate proceedings would not defeat purposes of child support evasion statutes, Civ. Code §§ 1714.4, 1714.41), with Komarova v. National Credit Acceptance, Inc. (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 324, 339-340, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 880 (litigation privilege did not apply to conduct in violation of Rosenthal Fair Debt Collection Practices Act, Civ. Code § 1788 et seq.)].

The absolute judicial privilege applies to allegedly actionable conduct that occurs in connection with judicial proceedings in Mexico [Beroiz v. Wahl (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 485, 493-494, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 905] .

[2] Privilege Applicable to Statements Made in Arbitration Proceedings

"Judicial proceeding" has been held to include arbitration, whether judicial arbitration [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.10 et seq.] or arbitration pursuant to private contractual agreement [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq.], so that statements of a witness at an arbitration hearing are protected by the privilege [Moore v. Conliffe (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 634, 647-648, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 152, 871 P.2d 204] . In reaching this conclusion, the California Supreme Court noted that it had no occasion to address the question whether the litigation privilege also applied to statements involving "alternative dispute resolution" proceedings other than those involving arbitration [Moore v. Conliffe (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 634, 651 n.8, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 152, 871 P.2d 204] .

While statements of a witness at an arbitration proceeding are generally protected, the litigation privilege does not protect an expert witness from a suit brought by the party who hired that expert witness even if based on testimony provided in conjunction with an arbitration proceeding [Lambert v. Carneghi (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1120, 1125-1126, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 626].

[3] Privilege Applies to Communication, Not to Conduct

The California Supreme Court has held that the privilege of former Civ. Code § 47(2) [now see Civ. Code § 47(b)] precludes recovery for tortiously inflicted injury resulting from publications or broadcasts made during the course of judicial and quasi-judicial proceedings, but does not bar recovery for injuries from tortious conduct, regardless of the purpose for which the conduct is undertaken [Kimmel v. Goland (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 202, 205, 271 Cal. Rptr. 191, 793 P.2d 524] . In that case, plaintiffs tape-recorded telephone conversations with defendants without defendants' knowledge, in violation of Penal Code § 632 (which prohibits tape recording of telephone conversation without consent of all parties), and turned the tapes over to their attorney, who transcribed them in preparation for the filing of a civil complaint based on allegations supported by defendants' statements made during the recorded conversations. The Supreme Court held that former Civ. Code § 47(2) [now see Civ. Code § 47(b)] does not provide immunity for either plaintiffs or their attorney with regard to the defendants' cross complaint against those parties, alleging violation of Penal Code § 632, because the cross complaint alleged injury from the illegal taping of the conversations, not from any "publication" or "broadcast" of the information contained in those conversations [Kimmel v. Goland (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 202, 209-214, 271 Cal. Rptr. 191, 793 P.2d 524] . For discussion and forms regarding Penal Code § 630 et seq., see Ch. 429, Privacy .

[4] Publications Covered

The privilege is not limited to the pleadings, to the oral or written evidence, or to publications in open court or in briefs or in affidavits if the publication is made to achieve the objects of the litigation [Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375 , 381, 295 P.2d 405 ; Rader v. Thrasher (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 883, 887, 99 Cal. Rptr. 670] . The privilege extends to:

- Statements made in affidavits [Bernstein v. Alameda-Contra Costa Med. Ass'n (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 241, 246, 293 P.2d 862] .

- Questions and answers at a deposition [Thornton v. Rhoden (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 80, 85, 93, 53 Cal. Rptr. 706] .

- Statements made by a judge at a settlement conference [Soliz v. Williams (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 577, 588-589, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 184 (immunity applied even to statements made in hallway outside courtroom)].

- Interviews between a prospective witness and an attorney [Ascherman v. Natanson (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 861, 865, 100 Cal. Rptr. 656] .

A condominium association's publication of assessment liens is covered by the privilege, even though the liens may be enforced either judicially or by private sale [Wilton v. Mountain Wood Homeowners Assn., Inc. (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 565, 568-570, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 471] .

[5] Persons Covered

Persons who qualify for the absolute privilege afforded by former Civ. Code § 47(2) [now see Civ. Code § 47(b)] include:

- Judges and other officers [Soliz v. Williams (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 577, 585, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 184 ; Bradley v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 818, 824, 106 Cal. Rptr. 718 , disapproved on other grounds, Silberg v. Anderson (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 205, 218-219, 266 Cal. Rptr. 638, 786 P.2d 365] .

- Attorneys [Friedman v. Knecht (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 455, 460, 56 Cal. Rptr. 540] .

- Parties [Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375, 378-379, 295 P.2d 405] .

- Witnesses and prospective witnesses [Ascherman v. Natanson (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 861, 865, 100 Cal. Rptr. 656 ; but see Lambert v. Carneghi (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1120, 1142-1144, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 626 (litigation privilege does not protect expert witness from suit brought by party who hired witness, even if suit is based on witness's testimony)].

- A county bar association and its officers and the State Bar and its investigative employees [Lebbos v. State Bar (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 656, 669, 211 Cal. Rptr. 847] .

- Jurors [Bradley v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 818, 825, 106 Cal. Rptr. 718 , disapproved on other grounds, Silberg v. Anderson (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 205, 218-219, 266 Cal. Rptr. 638, 786 P.2d 365] .

There is no broad exception to the litigation privilege available to a plaintiff merely because he or she did not participate in the underlying judicial proceedings [Action Apartment Assn., Inc. v. City of Santa Monica (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 1232, 1247-1248, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 398, 163 P.3d 89 ; Komarova v. National Credit Acceptance, Inc. (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 324, 341, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 880]. Conversely, defendants who were neither participants nor litigants in the underlying judicial proceedings are never protected from liability by the judicial privilege of Civ. Code § 47(b) [Wise v. Thrifty Payless, Inc. (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 1296, 1304, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 437] . For example, in a case involving the dissemination of private information, the plaintiff's estranged husband may have been protected from liability by his use of private information about the plaintiff during their marriage dissolution proceedings, but a pharmacy that was not a participant in those proceedings could not use the husband's judicial privilege as a shield from liability for the pharmacy's own tortious conduct in initially revealing the private information to the plaintiff's estranged husband [Wise v. Thrifty Payless, Inc. (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 1296, 1303-1305, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 437] .

[6] False Evidence

The privilege is accorded even if the testimony of a witness is allegedly perjured and malicious [Kachig v. Boothe (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 626, 641, 99 Cal. Rptr. 393] . Inasmuch as there is no exception to the privilege when the testimony is perjured, no exception applies to the preparation and presentation of false documentary evidence [Kachig v. Boothe (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 626, 641, 99 Cal. Rptr. 393 ; Agostini v. Strycula (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 804, 808, 42 Cal. Rptr. 314] .

[7] Some Relation or Relevance to Action Required

An absolute privilege attaches only to a publication that has some connection or logical relation to the judicial proceeding, is permitted by law, and is made to achieve the objects of the litigation [Silberg v. Anderson (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 205, 212, 266 Cal. Rptr. 638, 786 P.2d 365] . This logical relation must bear a functional connection to the litigation, so that the communicative act must be a necessary or useful step in the litigation process; it is not sufficient that the communication's content is related to that of the litigation [Rothman v. Jackson (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1134, 1145-1146, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 284] . For example, a psychologist retained by the parties to a child-custody proceeding for the purpose of making nonbinding recommendations to the court based on professional evaluations is absolutely privileged to make communications that are legitimately connected with that function [Obos v. Scripps Psychological Assocs., Inc. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 103, 107, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 30 (communication by court-ordered psychologist to children's attorney and therapist, regarding allegation that mother's boyfriend had been dishonorably discharged from military and fired from his job for dishonesty, furthered goal of ascertaining which custodial arrangement was in children's best interest, thus was logically connected to case); Gootee v. Lightner (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 587, 591-596, 274 Cal. Rptr. 697 (affirming summary judgment for defendant in action for professional negligence based on alleged negligent and intentional conduct); Howard v. Drapkin (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 843, 860-864 , 271 Cal. Rptr. 893 (dismissing action against psychologist based on alleged bias toward other party and abusive conduct toward plaintiff)].

In addition, communications by attorneys with residents in a mobilehome park concerning park conditions, and the possibility of the attorneys being retained to prosecute an action against the park owner for failure to maintain the park, had "some relation" to an anticipated lawsuit, and thus, were privileged even if the attorneys' conduct constituted wrongful solicitation [Rubin v. Green (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 1187, 1194-1196, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 828, 847 P. 2d 1044] . However, relevancy or materiality in a strict evidentiary sense is not required [Bradley v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 818, 824, 106 Cal. Rptr. 718 , disapproved on other grounds, Silberg v. Anderson (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 205, 218-219, 266 Cal. Rptr. 638, 786 P.2d 365] . The privilege is denied to any participant in legal proceedings only if the matter is so palpably irrelevant to the subject matter of the controversy that no resonable person can doubt its irrelevancy and impropriety [Loomis v. Superior Court (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1026, 1030, 241 Cal. Rptr. 236 (absolute privilege held to apply to filing of public records of State Bar disciplinary proceeding in support of motion to strike another motion that was allegedly filed by suspended attorney during period of suspension)].

If the allegedly defamatory statements meet the requirements for application of the judicial privilege, including the requirements of relevancy and pertinency, the fact that the person allegedly defamed was not a party to the underlying proceeding does not defeat application of the privilege [Obos v. Scripps Psychological Assocs., Inc. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 103, 106-109, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 30] . Therefore, for example, the privilege applied in a case in which an innocent party not connected to a bankruptcy proceeding was erroneously identified as the debtor in the caption of a notice of motion to sell personal property, which was filed in the course of the bankruptcy proceeding. The court of appeal concluded that the fact that the misidentified plaintiff was not actually involved with the bankruptcy did not change the fact that the contextual document in which the allegedly defamatory mistake occurred--the notice of motion--was filed to further the objects of the bankruptcy litigation [Sacramento Brewing Co. v. Desmond, Miller & Desmond (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 1082, 1090, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 760] .

Civ. Code § 47(b) does not protect the republication of otherwise privileged material, on a nonprivileged occasion, to persons to whom the privilege does not apply. For example, the statute was held not to protect statements made by a forensic psychotherapist to the media, regarding his professional impressions of a person examined in conjunction with a judicial proceeding, when the information disclosed was not otherwise accessible to the public [Susan A. v. County of Sonoma (1991) 2 Cal. App. 4th 88, 95-96, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 27] . One court has held that the privilege does not even protect communication of statements that would otherwise be available to the public, holding that the privilege does not preclude liability for defamation based on facsimile transmission of a copy of a complaint to a newspaper that is neither a party to nor a participant in the litigation [Shahvar v. Superior Court (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 653, 659, 663, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 597] . However, the holding in Shahvar has been abrogated by the 1996 amendment to Civ. Code § 47(d) [see Stats. 1996, ch. 1055, § 1].

In addition, the absolute judicial immunity of Civil Code Section 47(b) does not immunize a judge from liability for false, defamatory statements that are made to the press about a pending lawsuit and that make the plaintiff appear to be a liar, because such statements to the press are not a normal judicial function [Soliz v. Williams (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 577, 595, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 184] .

In contrast, a six-year-old child's statements reporting alleged sexual abuse to her parents and grandmother were absolutely protected. These statements were considered to be made in anticipation of criminal proceedings, and because the child was so young, the adults were considered to be participants in any subsequent litigation [Smith v. M.D. (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 1169, 1189-1190, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 315] .

[8] Statements Made Before and After Judicial Proceedings

A communication is privileged if made in, or in anticipation of, litigation by litigants or authorized participants [Rothman v. Jackson (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1134, 1145, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 284 (citing Moore v. Conliffe (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 634, 641, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 152)]. However, one court of appeal has held that the privilege of Civ. Code § 47(b)(2) does not generally extend to statements made after a judicial proceeding, unless the statements relate to an additional proceeding, such as a proceeding on a motion for a new trial [Laffer v. Levinson, Miller, Jacobs & Phillips (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 117, 123, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 233] . Thus, statements made by an attorney to a third party that involved merely a threat of possible future litigation were not subject to an absolute privilege merely because they had some relation to a past proceeding that had been resolved [Laffer v. Levinson, Miller, Jacobs & Phillips (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 117, 123-124, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 233 (factual questions existed regarding applicability of qualified privilege)].

A pre-litigation statement is protected by the litigation privilege of Civ. Code § 47(b) if the statement is made in connection with proposed litigation that is contemplated in good faith and under serious consideration [Aronson v. Kinsella (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 254, 262, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305 ; see also Edwards v. Centex Real Estate Corp. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 15, 33, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 518] . The privilege for pre-litigation statements is an absolute privilege and is not conditioned on an imminency requirement. As long as the statements are made in serious and good faith consideration of the litigation, the contemplated litigation need not be imminent [Aronson v. Kinsella (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 254, 266-267, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305 ; see also Edwards v. Centex Real Estate Corp. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 15, 35, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 518] . If pre-litigation demand letters are sent to a large number of potential defendants, a plaintiff need not actually file suit against every defendant to be entitled to the protection of the judicial privilege as to all of the demand letters [Blanchard v. DIRECTV, Inc. (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 903, 920, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 385] .

The privilege will not protect pre-litigation communications that are not reasonably relevant to anticipated litigation, especially if the particular communications are defamatory comments about an individual. In one case, for example, the privilege did not protect erroneous statements in a demand letter about a person's criminal record, because the comments were not reasonably relevant to the subject of the demand letter, which involved civil charges of unfair competition leveled at the person's current employer [Nguyen v. Proton Tech. Corp. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 140, 150-152, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 392] .

The litigation privilege does not automatically apply as a matter of law to a retraction published by a newspaper in response to a demand made pursuant to Civ. Code § 48a, which is discussed in § 340.53. Before the privilege may even arguably attach to such a retraction, the newspaper printing the retraction must establish that either it or the party demanding the retraction seriously and in good faith proposed imminent access to the courts as a means of resolving their dispute [Eisenberg v. Alameda Newspapers, Inc. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1359, 1381, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 802 (newspaper failed to show that litigation was imminent)].

[9] Liberal Application

In applying the general rule of immunity of judicial officers in the conduct of judicial business, of which the privilege in defamation actions is but a special application, the California courts favor a liberal construction of the scope of jurisdiction and relevancy [Lewis v. Linn (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 394, 399, 26 Cal. Rptr. 6] . Under Civ. Code § 47(b), doubts are to be resolved in favor of relevancy and pertinency [Thornton v. Rhoden (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 80, 93, 53 Cal. Rptr. 706] .

§ 340.61 Absolute Privilege for Other Official Proceedings

[1] Availability

A publication or broadcast made in any official proceeding authorized by law is privileged [Civ. Code § 47(b)]. The phrase "in any other official proceeding authorized by law" contained in Civ. Code § 47(b) encompasses those proceedings that resemble judicial and legislative proceedings, such as transactions of administrative boards and quasi-judicial and quasi-legislative proceedings. The general rule is now well established that the absolute privilege is applicable not only to judicial but also to quasi-judicial proceedings [see Silberg v. Anderson (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 205, 212, 266 Cal. Rptr. 638, 786 P.2d 365] ; thus, defamatory statements made in both judicial and quasi-judicial proceedings having some relation to the proceeding are absolutely privileged [Harris v. King (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1185, 1188, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 790 (medical report prepared by physician and submitted to State Compensation Insurance Fund was communication made in connection with quasi-judicial proceeding and absolutely privileged under Civ. Code § 47(b)); King v. Borges (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 27, 32, 104 Cal. Rptr. 414 ; Ascherman v. Natanson (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 861, 865, 100 Cal. Rptr. 656] .

The words "official proceeding" in this portion of Civ. Code § 47(b) do not encompass nongovernmental proceedings [Hackethal v. Weissbein (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 55, 60, 154 Cal. Rptr. 423, 592 P.2d 1175 (decided under former Civ. Code § 47(2))]. However, after the Court's decision in Hackethal, the legislature amended Civ. Code § 47(b) by adding protection of publications or broadcasts made in the initiation or course of any other proceeding authorized by law and reviewable by mandate pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1084-1097 [see Civ. Code § 47(b)]. This privilege is discussed in § 340.62.

In addition to any other immunity that may exist, any testimony provided by a pupil as a witness in an expulsion hearing is specifically protected by Civ. Code § 47(b) [Educ. Code § 48918.6].

[2] Determinative Factors

The primary factors that determine the nature of quasi-judicial proceedings under Civ. Code § 47(b) are (1) whether the administrative body is vested with discretion based on investigation and consideration of evidentiary facts; (2) whether it is entitled to hold hearings and decide the issue by the application of rules of law to the ascertained facts; and, more importantly, (3) whether its power affects the personal or property rights of private persons [Ascherman v. Natanson (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 861, 866, 100 Cal. Rptr. 656 (decided under former Civ. Code § 47(2))].

[3] Communications to Agencies Protected

A communication to an official administrative agency, which communication is designed to prompt action by that agency, is as much a part of the "official proceeding" as a communication made after the proceedings have commenced. Thus, it is protected by the absolute privilege of Civ. Code § 47(b) [Martin v. Kearney (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 309, 311, 124 Cal. Rptr. 281 ; King v. Borges (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 27, 34, 104 Cal. Rptr. 414] . Moreover, because a complaint constitutes part of the official proceedings, it is not necessary that the official body take any particular action on the complaint for the complaint itself to be protected [Lee v. Fick (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 89, 97, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 375 (written complaints from parents to school board about coach's conduct were protected, even though no formal hearings were ever requested or held)].

For example, the absolute privilege applies to a letter written to the state Division of Real Estate [King v. Borges (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 27, 34, 104 Cal. Rptr. 414] as well as to letters sent to a public school teacher's superiors that were designed to prompt official action with respect to the teacher's conduct [Martin v. Kearney (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 309, 311, 124 Cal. Rptr. 281] , and communications to the Committee of Teacher Credentials regarding accusations of unprofessional conduct against a high school teacher [Picton v. Anderson Union High Sch. Dist. (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 726, 737, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 829] .

Similarly, statements made in the course of an investigative audit by the State Auditor under the Reporting of Improper Governmental Activities Act (Gov. Code § 8547 et seq.) are absolutely privileged under Civ. Code § 47(b) [Braun v. Bureau of State Audits (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1382, 1388-1389, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 791] .

[4] Communications to Police Protected

Unless the elements of malicious prosecution can be proven, statements made to the police regarding potential criminal activity are protected from civil liability by an absolute privilege under Civ. Code § 47(b) [Hagberg v. California Fed. Bank (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 350, 355, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 803, 81 P.3d 244 ; Kashian v. Harriman (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 892, 926-927, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 576] . Applying the absolute privilege to such statements, which are generally made in preparation for or intended to prompt investigation that could result in an official proceeding, serves the important public interest of securing open channels of communication between citizens and law enforcement personnel [Hagberg v. California Fed. Bank (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 350, 368, 372, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 803, 81 P.3d 244] . However, the privilege does not apply to the act of making a citizen's arrest, which is affirmative conduct that constitutes more than the communicative act of reporting potential criminal activity to the police [Kesmodel v. Rand (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1136-1137, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 118] .

In order to protect the privilege as applied to statements made to the police, the privilege applies to a claim that the party who made the report to the police conducted a negligent investigation prior to making the report [Devis v. Bank of Am. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1002, 1008-1009, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 238] . A report made to the police is privileged even when the report may be incidentally heard by third parties [Devis v. Bank of Am. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1002, 1011-1012, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 238] .

Because the right to compel the attendance at trial of witnesses on behalf of a criminal defendant is a constitutionally protected right, conduct undertaken to compel a witness to attend and testify is protected under the litigation privilege [Kemps v. Beshwate (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 1012, 1018-1019, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 480] .

Cases applying the absolute privilege to police reports extend the privilege only to police reports that trigger adequate procedural safeguards. Therefore, if there is evidence on summary judgment that a particular report of potential criminal activity in a foreign country has triggered an investigation lacking adequate procedural safeguards, there may be a triable issue of fact as to whether the police report is subject to the absolute privilege, rather than the qualified privilege [Beroiz v. Wahl (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 485, 496, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 905] .

Although Gov. Code § 1031.1 provides a qualified immunity for information provided by employers to law enforcement agencies conducting background checks on applicants, that statute also contains a savings clause that preserves any other existing common law and statutory privileges and immunities [see Gov. Code § 1031.1(b)]. Prior to the enactment of Gov. Code § 1031.1, case law had held that Civ. Code § 47(b) provides an absolute immunity to employers responding to background check requests from law enforcement agencies [see O'Shea v. General Tel. Co. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1040, 1048, 238 Cal. Rptr. 715] . Therefore, that absolute immunity remains available in addition to the statutory qualified immunity of Gov. Code § 1031.1 [Bardin v. Lockheed Aeronautical Sys. Co. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 494, 504, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726] .

[5] Limit on Privilege

The privilege is not applicable, however, to defamatory statements that were not made in an official proceeding to achieve the object of the particular proceeding [Frisk v. Merrihew (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 319, 324, 116 Cal. Rptr. 781] . Nor does the privilege extend to communications between private parties who are not acting in an official or quasi-judicial capacity, even if the communication is required by law [Slaughter v. Friedman (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 149, 155-156, 185 Cal. Rptr. 244, 649 P.2d 886 ; Prevost v. First W. Bank (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1492, 1498-1499, 239 Cal. Rptr. 161] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Defenses To Defamation Actions

30-340 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 340.62

§ 340.62 Absolute Privilege for Proceedings Reviewable by Mandate

A publication or broadcast made in the initiation or course of a proceeding that is not a legislative, judicial, or other official proceeding, but is a proceeding authorized by law and is reviewable pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1084-1097 (mandate), is privileged [see Civ. Code § 47(b)]. This provision was added to Civ. Code § 47(b) subsequent to the Supreme Court's decision that a hearing before the judicial commission of a private medical society was not an official proceeding within the scope of the absolute privilege of Civ. Code § 47(b) [see Stats. 1979, ch. 184; Hackethal v. Weissbein (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 55, 58-61, 154 Cal. Rptr. 423, 592 P.2d 1175 (decided under former Civ. Code § 47(2))].

Because mandate may be used to compel a private medical association to restore a physician to membership [see Bernstein v. Alameda-Contra Costa Med. Ass'n (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 241, 254, 293 P.2d 862] , it appears that statements made during hearings, such as the ones in Hackethal, which resulted in the physician's expulsion from the county medical society, would be absolutely privileged under the 1979 amendment to Civ. Code § 47. A letter regarding a physician's qualifications sent to the Board of Medical Quality Assurance by the appointee of a hospital review committee was absolutely privileged under Civ. Code § 47(b) since the purpose of the letter was to prompt board action and was thus part of an official proceeding [Long v. Pinto (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 946, 948, 179 Cal. Rptr. 182 (decided under former Civ. Code § 47(2)); see Dorn v. Mendelzon (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 933, 941-942, 242 Cal. Rptr. 259] . A copy of the letter sent by the appointee to the board of directors of another private hospital where the plaintiff was on staff was also absolutely privileged because the holding in Hackethal should not be applied retroactively and becaue the amendment to former *Civ. § 340.63 Exceptions to Absolute Privilege for Legislative, Judicial, Official, and Mandate Proceedings

[1] Allegation or Averment in Marital Dissolution or Legal Separation Action

Civ. Code § 47(b) expressly excepts from its privilege for publications or broadcasts made in any (1) legislative or (2) judicial proceeding, or (3) in any other official proceeding authorized by law, or (4) in the initiation or course of any other proceeding authorized by law and reviewable pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1084 et seq., an allegation or averment contained in any pleading or affidavit filed in an action for marital dissolution or legal separation made of or concerning a person by or against whom no affirmative relief is prayed in the action is not a privileged publication or broadcast as to the person making the allegation or averment within the meaning of Civ. Code § 47 unless the pleading is verified or affidavit sworn to, and is made without malice, by one having reasonable and probable cause for believing the truth of the allegation or averment and unless the allegation or averment is material and relevant to the issues in the action [Civ. Code § 47(b)(1)].

[2] Intentional Spoliation of Evidence

Civ. Code § 47(b) expressly excepts from its privilege for publications or broadcasts made in any (1) legislative or (2) judicial proceeding, or (3) in any other official proceeding authorized by law, or (4) in the initiation or course of any other proceeding authorized by law and reviewable pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1084 et seq., any communication made in furtherance of an act of intentional destruction or alteration of physical evidence undertaken for the purpose of depriving a party to litigation of the use of that evidence, whether or not the content of the communication is the subject of a subsequent publication or broadcast that is privileged pursuant to Civ. Code § 47. Physical evidence is defined as evidence specified in Evid. Code § 250 or evidence that is property of any type specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 2031.010 et seq. [Civ. Code § 47(b)(2)].

[3] Concealment of Existence of Insurance

Civ. Code § 47(b) does not make privileged any communication made in a judicial proceeding knowingly concealing the existence of an insurance policy or policies [Civ. Code § 47(b)(3)]. However, this exception does not apply to statements that conceal only the terms of a policy that is known to exist, including statements that misrepresent the amount of the policy coverage [Home Ins. Co. v. Zurich Ins. Co. (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 17, 24-25, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 583] .

[4] Recorded Lis Pendens

Civ. Code § 47(b) expressly provides that a recorded lis pendens is not a privileged publication unless it identifies an action previously filed with a court of competent jurisdiction that affects the title or right of possession or real property, as authorized or required by law [Civ. Code § 47(b)(4)].

§ 340.64 Absolute Privilege of Report in Public Journal

A privileged publication or broadcast is one made by a fair and true report in, or a communication to, a public journal of (1) a judicial, (2) legislative, or (3) other public official proceeding, or (4) of anything said in the course thereof, or (5) of a verified charge of complaint made by any person to a public official, on which complaint a warrant has been issued [Civ. Code § 47(d)(1)]. Nothing in Civ. Code § 47(d)(1) makes privileged any report to a public journal that violates Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 5-120, breaches a court order, or violates any requirement of confidentiality imposed by law [Civ. Code § 47(d)(2)]. It is an absolute privilege [see Howard v. Oakland Tribune (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1124, 1128, 245 Cal. Rptr. 449 (neither malice nor abuse of personal privilege will defeat privilege); Handelsman v. San Francisco Chronicle (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 381, 386, 90 Cal. Rptr. 188] .

The well-recognized rule is that the alleged defamatory matter must only be substantially in accord with the report in order to be entitled to the privilege of Civ. Code § 47(d) [Colt v. Freedom Communications, Inc. (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1551, 1558-1560, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 245 ; Handelsman v. San Francisco Chronicle (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 381, 386, 90 Cal. Rptr. 188 ; Hayward v. Watsonville Register-Pajaronian & Sun (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 255, 262, 71 Cal. Rptr. 295] . In determining whether the report was fair and true, the article must be regarded from the standpoint of persons whose function is to give the public a fair report of what has taken place, such as reporters, and not from the standpoint of attorneys [Handelsman v. San Francisco Chronicle (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 381, 387, 90 Cal. Rptr. 188] .

The privilege of Civ. Code § 47(d) is not lost on the ground that the proceeding being reported about is confidential. In addition, the fact that a proceeding is closed to the public does not prevent it from being a "public official proceeding" for purposes of Civ. Code § 47(d) [Braun v. Chronicle Publ'g Co. (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1036, 1050-1051, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 58 (confidential investigative audit of hospital training program director by State Auditor)].

[2] Communications Protected by Privilege

A truthful report that a charge has been made in a complaint filed in an action is clearly within the protection afforded by Civ. Code § 47(d)(1) because the filing of a pleading is a public and official act in the course of judicial proceedings [Kurata v. Los Angeles News Publ'g Co. (1935) 4 Cal. App. 2d 224, 227, 40 P.2d 520 ; see also Dorsey v. National Enquirer, Inc. (9th Cir. 1992) 973 F.2d 1431, 1436-1437 (statement in article that mother was "100% convinced" that Arnold Dorsey (a.k.a. Engelbert Humperdink) had AIDS virus was fair and true account of court documents in which allegation was qualified "upon information and belief")]. Oral statements of district attorneys, sheriffs, and police officers come under the qualified privilege of Civ. Code § 47(d)(1) as do the crime reports of a police department and FBI identification records that are part of such reports and on which a criminal complaint is filed and a warrant of arrest is issued [Hayward v. Watsonville Register-Pajaronian & Sun (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 255, 260, 71 Cal. Rptr. 295] . A report of a state administrative agency investigation into the expenditure of public funds is also within the privilege [see Howard v. Oakland Tribune (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1124, 1128, 245 Cal. Rptr. 449] . In addition, a true report of a congressional investigation into allegations of corruption in governmental anti-racketeering activity is within the privilege [Crane v. Arizona Republic (9th Cir. 1992) 972 F.2d 1511, 1525-1526 (nothing in language of former Civ. Code § 47(4) (now see Civ. Code § 47(d)(1)) precludes coverage of committee investigations not open to public)].

Also, although a false charge that a person is a correspondent in a divorce action is libelous per se, the publication of a truthful report that such a charge has been made during the trial of an action is clearly within the protection afforded by Civ. Code § 47(d)(1) [see Mortensen v. Los Angeles Examiner (1931) 112 Cal. App. 194, 207, 296 P. 927] .

30-340 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 340.65

§ 340.65 Absolute Privilege for Report of Public Meeting

A privileged publication or broadcast is one made by a fair and true report of (1) the proceedings of a public meeting, if the meeting was lawfully convened for a lawful purpose and open to the public, or (2) the publication of the matter complained of was for the public benefit [Civ. Code § 47(e)]. The privilege encompassed within Civ. Code § 47(e) is an absolute privilege, and therefore malice is not properly an issue when publications are claimed to be privileged under it [Williams v. Daily Review, Inc. (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 405, 418, 419, 46 Cal. Rptr. 135] .

Under Civ. Code § 47(e), a publication is privileged if it is a fair and true report of the proceedings of a public meeting lawfully convened for a lawful purpose and open to the public or, alternatively, if it is a fair and true report of the proceedings of a public meeting that is not lawfully convened for a lawful purpose or not open to the public, provided that the publication is for the public benefit [Williams v. Daily Review, Inc. (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 405, 418, 46 Cal. Rptr. 135] .

The absolute privilege under Civ. Code § 47(e) applies to media defendants who summarized a report on organized crime, containing the plaintiff's name, that had been adopted by the state Attorney General and released by the Attorney General at a press conference [Kilgore v. Younger (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 770, 776-778, 180 Cal. Rptr. 657, 640 P.2d 793] . The Supreme Court found that the media articles were merely giving further publicity to information about the plaintiff that was already public, were fair and true because they captured the substance of the Attorney General's release, and carefully stated the alleged nature of the report [Kilgore v. Younger (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 770, 776-778, 180 Cal. Rptr. 657, 640 P.2d 793] .

30-340 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 340.66

§ 340.66 Qualified Privilege for Publication Made in the Common Interest

[1] Availability

The common interest privilege consists of a privileged publication or broadcast made in a communication, without malice, to a person interested in that communication. by: (1) one who is also interested; (2) one who stands in such relation to the person interested as to afford a reasonable ground for supposing the motive for the communication innocent; or (3) one who is requested by the person interested to give the information [Civ. Code § 47(c)]. The qualified privilege conveyed by Civ. Code § 47(c) for persons interested in a communication provides only a conditional privilege, one that is defeated if the jury finds that the utterance was actuated by malice [Cunningham v. Simpson (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 301, 307-308, 81 Cal. Rptr. 855, 461 P.2d 39] .

[2] Application to Statements Concerning Job Performance

The common interest privilege clearly protects statements made by current or former employers concerning the job performance of former or current employees [see, e.g., King v. United Parcel Service, Inc. (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 426, 440-442, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 359 (supervisor's statements to employees that plaintiff was fired for falsifying timecard were privileged)]. The qualified privilege for communications to interested persons based on a request applies to and includes a communication concerning the job performance or qualifications of an applicant for employment, based on credible evidence, made without malice, by a current or former employer of the applicant to, and on request of, one whom the employer reasonably believes is a prospective employer of the applicant. A current or former employer, or the employer's agent, is authorized to answer whether or not the employer would rehire a current or former employee. These provisions do not apply to a communication concerning the speech or activities of an applicant for employment, if the speech or activities are constitutionally protected or otherwise protected by Code Civ. Proc. § 527.3 (concerning labor disputes) or any other provision of law [Civ. Code § 47(c)].

Consistent with the established rule that malice is not established by a showing of mere negligence [§ 340.66[4]], the statutory language requiring that the communication of an employer be "based on credible evidence" does not mean that the qualified privilege is lost because of negligence such as an oversight or unintentional error. However, this language can defeat the privilege if the communication is made up of mere rumors or unfounded gossip [Noel v. River Hills

Wilsons, Inc. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1363, 1375, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 216 (former employer's negligence in providing inaccurate information to plaintiff's prospective employer did not defeat privilege, because former employer believed inquiry concerned different employee)].

[3] Interested Defined

The word "interested," as used in Civ. Code § 47(c), refers to a direct and immediate concern with the publication. The conditional privilege of Civ. Code § 47(c) thus does not apply to publication by a magazine or newspaper merely because it relates to a matter that may have general public interest [Brown v. Kelly Broad. Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 711, 719, 738, 257 Cal. Rptr. 708, 771 P.2d 406 ; Rancho La Costa, Inc. v. Superior Court (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 646, 664-668, 165 Cal. Rptr. 347] . Thus, the only privilege that exists to protect the media by requiring proof of malice, rather than ordinary negligence, is for the publication of items of public interest concerning public officials, candidates for public office, and public figures [Brown v. Kelly Broad. Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 711, 719, 734, 738, 257 Cal. Rptr. 708, 771 P.2d 406] . With regard to defamatory statements by the news media concerning private figures, the privilege under Civ. Code § 47(c) does not apply [Brown v. Kelly Broad. Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 711, 719, 738, 257 Cal. Rptr. 708, 771 P.2d 406] .

[4] Definition of Malice

Actual malice is the state of mind arising from hatred or ill will toward the plaintiff, provided that such a state of mind occasioned by a good faith belief on the part of the defendant in the truth of the libelous publication or broadcast at the time it is published or broadcast does not constitute actual malice [Civ. Code § 48a(4)(d)].

The California courts have elaborated on the statutory definition of actual malice in a number of ways. It has been defined as "a state of mind arising from hatred or ill will, evidencing a willingness to vex, annoy, or injure another person" [Davis v. Hearst (1911) 160 Cal. 143, 160, 164 . 530; see, e.g., Hailstone v. Martinez (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 728, 740-741, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 347 ; Dietrich v. Litton Indus., Inc. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 704, 714, 90 Cal. Rptr. 856 ; see Cunningham v. Simpson (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 301, 308, 81 Cal. Rptr. 855, 461 P.2d 39] ; as "personal hatred or ill will towards the plaintiff, or wanton disregard of the civil obligations of the defendants toward the plaintiff" [Frommoethelydo v. Fire Ins. Exch. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 208, 217, 228 Cal. Rptr. 160, 721 P.2d 41 ; Hearne v. De Young (1901) 132 Cal. 357, 361-362, 64 P. 576 ; White v. State of California (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 621, 628-629, 95 Cal. Rptr. 175] and "a desire or disposition to injure another founded upon spite or ill will" [Siemon v. Finkle (1923) 190 Cal. 611, 618, 213 P. 954 ; White v. State of California (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 621, 628-629, 95 Cal. Rptr. 175] . Because actual malice is a function of the state of mind of the communicator, it is not established by a showing of mere negligence, such as an oversight or unintentional error [Noel v. River Hills Wilsons, Inc. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1363, 1370-1371, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 216] .

One court has held that the statutory definition of "actual malice" set forth in Civ. Code § 48a(4)(d) refers only to that degree of misconduct that must be shown to recover exemplary damages under Civ. Code § 48a(2), (4)(c) and has no application to the "malice" that must be shown to defeat the qualified privilege of former Civ. Code § 47(3) [now see Civ. Code § 47(c)]. Thus, to recover punitive damages, a plaintiff must prove both hatred or ill will and a lack of good faith belief in the truth of the defamatory publication under Civ. Code § 48a(4)(d). However, a plaintiff may defeat the qualified privilege of Civ. Code § 47(c) by showing hatred, ill will, or other improper motive, or by showing a lack of reasonable grounds for believing that the false statements were true [Manguso v. Oceanside Unified Sch. Dist. (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 574, 580-581, 200 Cal. Rptr. 535] .

[5] Presumption of Innocence Created

The qualified privilege conferred by Civ. Code § 47(c) creates a presumption that the communication is made innocently and without malice [Smith v. Hatch (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 39, 47, 76 Cal. Rptr. 350 ; Lesperance v.

North American Aviation, Inc. (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 336, 341, 31 Cal. Rptr. 873] .

[6] Legal Inference of Malice Prohibited

In the case of privilege outlined by Civ. Code § 47(c), malice may not be inferred from the communication [Civ. Code § 48; Emde v. San Joaquin County Cent. Labor Council (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 146, 161, 143 P.2d 20] . Thus, whereas, in the case of a false and unprivileged publication that is libelous per se, malice is implied and the lack of it is a matter of defense that need not be pleaded, this is not true of a qualified privilege because expressly so prohibited by Civ. Code § 48. Hence, if the complaint discloses a case of qualified privilege, no malice is presumed, and, in order to state a cause of action, the pleading must contain affirmative allegations of malice in fact [Locke v. Mitchell (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 599, 602, 61 P.2d 922] .

However, in determining whether a defendant may take advantage of the privilege granted in Civ. Code § 47(c), malice may be inferred if the defendant does not have reasonable or probable cause to believe the defendant's statement to be true [Stationers Corp. v. Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 412, 418, 42 Cal. Rptr. 449, 398 P.2d 785 ; MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 552, 343 P.2d 36 ; Brewer v. Second Baptist Church (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 791, 797-800, 197 P.2d 713] .

[7] Privilege as Question of Law If Facts Undisputed

If the facts and circumstances under which a defamatory publication is made are not disputed, the question of privilege is one of law [Kramer v. Ferguson (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 237, 245, 41 Cal. Rptr. 61] . Therefore, if the issue of mutual interest appears without conflict, a defendant in an action for defamation is entitled to an instruction that, as a matter of law, the statement was qualifiedly privileged [Gantry Constr. Co. v. American Pipe & Constr. Co. (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 186, 197, 122 Cal. Rptr. 834] .

[8] Pleading and Proving Malice

Ordinarily, privilege must be specially pleaded by the defendant, and the burden of proving it is on him or her [see Gantry Constr. Co. v. American Pipe & Constr. Co. (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 186, 198 n.10, 122 Cal. Rptr. 834] . However, if the complaint alleges facts that show that the statement was prima facie entitled to the qualified privilege, then plaintiff must allege and prove the presence of malice [Gantry Constr. Co. v. American Pipe & Constr. Co. (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 186, 198, 122 Cal. Rptr. 834] .

Thus, to defeat the qualified privilege disclosed by the complaint and existing by virtue of Civ. Code § 47(c), the pleadings must contain affirmative allegations of malice in fact, and malice must exist as a fact in order to destroy the privilege [Locke v. Mitchell (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 599, 602, 61 P.2d 922 ; White v. State of California (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 621, 629, 95 Cal. Rptr. 175 ; see also Lundquist v. Reusser (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1193, 1208-1210, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 776, 875 P.2d 1279 (noting pleading requirements, and holding that plaintiff has burden of proving malice once defendant establishes that statement was made on privileged occasion)].

The pleading of malice must set forth specific facts that indicate the existence of personal malice [Maidman v. Jewish Publ'ns, Inc. (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 643, 653, 7 Cal. Rptr. 617, 355 P.2d 265 ; Locke v. Mitchell (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 599, 603-604, 61 P.2d 922 ; Noonan v. Rousselot (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 447, 453, 48 Cal. Rptr. 817] . The rule of specificity serves a salutary purpose since it makes it impossible for a plaintiff who is faced with a qualified privilege to force the case to issue by the naked allegation that defendant acted "maliciously" [Noonan v. Rousselot (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 447, 453, 48 Cal. Rptr. 817] .

Pleading only that a statement was "maliciously published" is an insufficient allegation of actual malice if the complaint discloses the existence of a qualified privilege under Civ. Code § 47(c) [Locke v. Mitchell (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 599, 603, 61 P.2d 922 ; Boyich v. Howell (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 801, 803, 34 Cal. Rptr. 794] . However, pleading that defendants published an article with knowledge of its falsity or without an honest belief in its truth or without reasonable grounds for believing it to be true is sufficient to raise the issue of qualified privilege [MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 551-552, 343 P.2d 36 ; Washer v. Bank of Am. (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 822, 831, 136 P.2d 297 ; Noonan v. Rousselot (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 447, 453, 48 Cal. Rptr. 817 ; Boyich v. Howell (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 801, 803, 34 Cal. Rptr. 794] .

The common-interest privilege of Civ. Code § 47(c) is determined under a two-step analysis. Once the defendant has established that the statement at issue was made on a privileged occasion, the plaintiff has the burden of establishing that the statement was made with malice [Lundquist v. Reusser (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1193, 1208, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 776, 875 P.2d 1279] .

[9] Effect of Failure to Award Punitive Damages

The mere failure to award punitive damages does not necessarily negate the existence of malice that destroys the conditional privilege available under Civ. Code § 47(c) [Brewer v. Second Baptist Church (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 791, 800-801, 197 P.2d 713 ; Stoneking v. Briggs (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 563, 571, 62 Cal. Rptr. 249] .

[10] When Privilege Is Lost

The conditional privilege given to communications between interested persons by Civ. Code § 47(c) extends to false statements of fact, although the occasion may be abused and the protection of the privilege lost by the publisher's lack of belief, or of reasonable grounds for belief, in the truth of the defamatory matter; by excessive publication; by a publication of defamatory matter for an improper purpose; or if the defamation goes beyond the group interest [Brewer v. Second Baptist Church (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 791, 797, 197 P.2d 713 ; Emde v. San Joaquin County Cent. Labor Council (1948) 23 Cal. 2d 146, 154-155, 143 P.2d 20] .

The privilege is lost if the publication is motivated by hatred or ill will toward the plaintiff or by any cause other than the desire to protect the interest for the protection of which the privilege is given [Brewer v. Second Baptist Church (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 791, 797, 197 P.2d 713] .

The privilege is also lost if defendant publishes the article with knowledge of its falsity [MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 552,343 P.2d 36 ; Roemer v. Retail Credit Co. (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 368, 371, 83 Cal. Rptr. 540] .

Thus, the deliberate publication of known false and defamatory statements cannot be excused on the claim they were made in good faith and from innocent motives. Such abuse of the privilege conferred by Civ. Code § 47(c) destroys it [Patton v. Royal Indus., Inc. (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 760, 766, 70 Cal. Rptr. 44 ; Russell v. Geis (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 560, 566, 59 Cal. Rptr. 569] .

[11] When Privilege Is Not Lost

Even if the publisher has no belief in the truth of the injurious statement, the publication will be protected under certain circumstances. Notwithstanding the lack of belief in the truth of the statement or the knowing falsity of the statement, the publisher may be protected by the qualified privilege under Civ. Code § 47(c) if the defamatory matter is stated as a rumor or suspicion by a third party and not as a fact and the relation of the parties and the importance of the interests affected balanced with the harm likely to be done by the publication make the publication reasonable [Stockton Newspapers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 966, 980-981, 254 Cal. Rptr. 389 (newspaper's publication of account of misconduct by police officer was reasonable even absent belief in truth of allegations because of public's interest in learning of accusations of official misconduct)]. In such a case, if a fair report is published, the publisher is under no duty to resolve conflicting claims of what happened [Stockton Newspapers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 966, 970-971, 254 Cal. Rptr. 389] .

In addition, failure to investigate the truth of the statement or negligence in the investigation of it does not constitute actual malice and cannot without more override the privilege [see Stockton Newspapers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 966, 983-984, 254 Cal. Rptr. 389] .

§ 340.67 Right of Fair Comment

The common law right of fair comment allows a person to make a fair comment on matters of public interest [see Maidman v. Jewish Publ'ns, Inc. (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 643, 651-652, 7 Cal. Rptr. 617, 355 P.2d 265 , overruled on other grounds, Brown v. Kelly Broadcasting Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 711, 257 Cal. Rptr. 708, 771 P.2d 406 ; Williams v. Daily Review, Inc. (1965) 236 Cal. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 711, 732 n.18, 257 Cal. Rptr. 708, 771 P.2d 406 (dictum that fair comment defense has mistakenly been included with common interest privilege embodied in former Civ. Code § 47(3) (now see Civ. Code § 47(c)) by such cases as Maidman and Williams)]. However, the protection that the law affords to those who would comment or criticize extends only to comment that is fair, not in the sense that it must be reasonable or moderate, but in the sense that it must be published, in part at least, for the bona fide purpose of giving the public the benefit of comment that it is entitled to have rather than for any ulterior motive of causing harm to the plaintiff [*Maidman v. Jewish Publ'ns, Inc. (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 643, 652, 7 Cal. Rptr. 617, 355 P.2d 265 , overruled on other grounds, Brown v. Kelly Broadcasting Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 711, 257 Cal. 30-340 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 340.68

§ 340.68 Consent Available as Defense

As a general rule, the consent of a person to the publication of defamatory matter concerning him or her is a complete defense to his or her action for defamation [Kelly v. William Morrow & Co. (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1625, 1632, 231 Cal. Rptr. 497 ; Restatement (Second) of Torts § 583]. The defense does not apply when the plaintiff merely requests that the defendant repeat a defamatory statement that already had been made in the presence of third parties [Puchan v. Godeau (1914) 167 Cal. 692, 694, 140 P. 952 ; Moranville v. Aletto (1957) 153 Cal. App. 2d 667, 671, 315 P.2d 91] . In contrast, if a statement made privately to the plaintiff is published solely through the actions and effort of the plaintiff or if the plaintiff demands publication of material that turns out to be defamatory, the plaintiff's consent confers an absolute privilege on the defendant's publication [Royer v. Steinberg (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 490, 498-499, 153 Cal. Rptr. 499] . An exception occurs when the defendant who privately makes a defamatory statement could have reasonably foreseen that the plaintiff would be under a strong compulsion to disclose its contents to a third party, such as a prospective employer who will inquire why plaintiff was fired from his or her previous job; in such a case, plaintiff's publication of the statement is no consent to defamation [McKinney v. County of Santa Clara (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 787, 796-798, 168 Cal. Rptr. 89] . In any case, if the plaintiff's consent to publication is ambiguous or qualified, the extent of the privilege conferred is a question of fact and must be determined by the language or acts with which the consent was given in light of the surrounding circumstances [Kelly v. William Morrow & Co. (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1625, 1633, 1635, 231 Cal. Rptr. 497] .

§ 340.69 When No Defamatory Meaning Conveyed

A defendant's words are not defamatory unless they are understood in a defamatory sense. Thus, it is always open to the defendant to show that the words were not understood at all, that they were taken entirely in jest, or that some meaning other than the obvious one was attached by all who heard or read them [Polygram Records v. Superior Court (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 543, 555, 216 Cal. Rptr. 252 ; Arno v. Stewart (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 955, 962-963, 54 Cal. Rptr. 392] . But the jocular intent of the publisher will not relieve him or her from liability if it is reasonable to not understand the utterance as a joke [Polygram Records v. Superior Court (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 543, 555, 216 Cal. Rptr. 252 ; Arno v. Stewart (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 955, 964, 54 Cal. Rptr. 392] .

§ 340.70 Governmental Immunity

[1] Public Employees

Public employees are not personally liable for their discretionary acts that are within the scope of their authority [Gov. Code § 820.2]. For example, a public employee is cloaked with immunity if sued for defamation when he or she answers a claim for the refund of gasoline taxes alleged to be excessive [Burgdorf v. Funder (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 443, 448-449, 54 Cal. Rptr. 805] .

Public employees have no immunity and thus are personally liable for their torts in two situations. First, they are liable when their discretionary acts are beyond the scope of their official powers and are tortious [see Gov. Code § 820.2]. Second, they are liable for tortious acts if they are acting in a ministerial capacity, even though the act falls within the scope of their authority [see Johnson v. State of California (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 782, 793-798, 73 Cal. Rptr. 240, 447 P.2d 352] .

[2] Public Entities

A public entity would be vicariously liable for the defamatory statement of one of its employees only if the statement were made within the scope of the employee's employment and were a ministerial, as opposed to a discretionary, act [see Gov. Code § 815.2; see also Johnson v. State of California (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 782, 793-798, 73 Cal. Rptr. 240, 447 P.2d 352] . It is, however, difficult to conceive of a situation in which a public employee would make a defamatory statement in a ministerial capacity, and there appear to be no reported cases in which a public entity has been held liable for the ministerial statement of a public employee that has defamed someone.

§ 340.71 Professional Immunity

Some types of professional societies, various committees that monitor the quality of professional services, and the members of these societies and committees are immune from monetary liability and damages for any act performed within the function of a committee formed to maintain the professional standards of a society or to review the quality of services rendered by or to an individual if the act was taken without malice, after a reasonable effort to obtain the facts of the matter and in the reasonable belief that the action was warranted [Civ. Code § 43.7(a), (b)]. For a discussion of this immunity as it relates to physicians, see Ch. 414, Physicians and Other Medical Personnel. For a discussion of this immunity as it relates to a professional society, see Ch. 61, Associations and Clubs .

Similarly, qualified immunity is available to physicians and surgeons, podiatrists, chiropractors, and attorneys who are members of an underwriting committee whose purpose is the writing of professional liability insurance [Civ. Code § 43.7(d)]. This qualified immunity is available to attorneys only until January 1, 1990, unless the legislature extends or deletes that date [see Civ. Code § 43.7(d), (e)]. Persons providing information to professional licensing boards or review committees are also immune from liability and damages if the communication is intended to aid in the evaluation of a practitioner of the healing or veterinary arts [Civ. Code § 43.8; see Hassan v. Mercy Am. River Hosp. (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 709, 718, 720, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 623, 74 P.3d 726 (immunity of Civ. Code § 43.8 is qualified rather than absolute, but may attach to entities as well as to natural persons; see also Civ. Code § 43.8 (as amended eff. July 6, 2007)]. Neither of the immunities afforded by Civ. Code § 43.7 or Civ. Code § 43.8 affect the availability of any absolute privilege under Civ. Code § 47 [Civ. Code § 43.8]. § 340.72 Attorney's Fees as Recoverable in Action Involving Peace Officer

In any action for damages arising out of the performance of a peace officer's duties brought against a peace officer, as defined in Penal Code §§ 830-832.8, or against a public entity employing a peace officer, including an action for libel or slander brought pursuant to Civ. Code § 45 or 46, the court may, in its discretion, award reasonable attorney's fees to the defendant or defendants as part of the costs on a finding by the court that the action was not filed or maintained in good faith and with reasonable cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.7; see Planned Protective Servs., Inc. v. Gorton (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 245 Cal. Rptr. 790] . The statute also applies reciprocally to allow for an award of attorney's fees to a private citizen who must defend against baseless complaints for libel or slander stemming from a complaint by that private citizen about the manner in which a peace officer has performed his or her duties [Martin v. Szeto (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 445, 451 & n.7, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 687, 84 P.3d 374] .

Despite an apparent ambiguity in its wording, the California Supreme Court has made clear that Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.7 does not permit the recovery of attorney's fees by defendants in a defamation case, unless the case concerns the conduct of a peace officer [Martin v. Szeto (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 445, 452, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 687, 84 P.3d 374] . The Supreme Court analyzed the legislative history of the statute and concluded that the legislature clearly intended to limit the attorney's fees provision to only those actions in which a peace officer or that officer's employer is a party, and only if the action arises out of the performance of the officer's duties [Martin v. Szeto (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 445, 448-452, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 687, 84 P.3d 374] .

Counsel for the defendant should include in the prayer to the answer a request for these fees. For a discussion of the procedures necessary for recovering these attorney's fees, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees .

§ 340.73 Immunity for Persons Reporting Child Abuse

[1] Persons Required to Report

Any person who is required by Penal Code § 11166 (persons required to report child abuse or neglect) to report, and who does report, a known or suspected instance of child abuse or neglect is immune from civil or criminal liability for any report required or authorized by Penal Code §§ 11165-11174.1 (reporting and investigation of child abuse or neglect) [Penal Code § 11172(a); see Penal Code § 11166(a)-(d), (i)]. This immunity applies even if the person reporting acquired the knowledge or reasonable suspicion of child abuse or neglect outside of his or her professional capacity or outside the scope of employment [Penal Code § 11172(a)]. Any of these persons who, at the request of a designated agency, provides the agency with access to the victim of a known or suspected instance of child abuse or neglect is also immune from civil or criminal liability as a result of providing that access [Penal Code § 11172(b)]. The immunity afforded by Penal Code § 11172 is absolute [Ferraro v. Chadwick (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 86, 95, 270 Cal. Rptr. 379 ; Storch v. Silverman (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 671, 675, 231 Cal. Rptr. 27] . It extends not only to the reporting of suspected child abuse or neglect, but also to the provision of services giving rise to the obligation to report, such as the collection of data or the observation, examination, or treatment of the suspected victim or perpetrator of child abuse, performed in a professional capacity or within the scope of employment [Krikorian v. Barry (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1211, 1223, 242 Cal. Rptr. 312] . It extends to communications made to law-enforcement and judicial-system officers in investigations that arise from the original reports made [Ferraro v. Chadwick (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 86, 92-95, 270 Cal. Rptr. 379] .

This immunity does not protect family counselors and foster parents from liability that is based not on their report of child abuse or neglect, but on their post-report activities such as searching for corroboration or attempting to pressure a witness to obtain a conviction [James W. v. Superior Court (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 246, 256-257, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 169] .

Any person who is required by Penal Code §§ 11165-11174.1 to report a known or suspected instance of child abuse or neglect, or any person taking photographs at his or her direction, is immune from civil or criminal liability for taking photographs or causing photographs to be taken of a suspected victim of child abuse without parental consent, or for disseminating the photographs with the required reports. Any other use of photographs so taken, however, does not immunize the person from civil or criminal liability [Penal Code § 11172(a)].

Despite these immunities, any person who is required by Penal Code §§ 11165-11174.1 to report a known or suspected instance of child abuse or neglect, and who is a defendant in an action based on a report of child abuse or neglect required or authorized by Penal Code §§ 11165-11174.1, may be entitled to an award of limited attorney's fees from the State Board of Control. However, the claim for an award may only be presented to the Board, and will only be allowed by the Board, if the court dismisses the action on the defendant's demurrer or motion for summary judgment, or if the defendant prevails in the action [Penal Code § 11172(c)].

Attorney's fees are not available if a public entity has provided for the defense of the action under Gov. Code § 995 (defense by public entity of action or proceeding against entity's employee) [Penal Code § 11172(c)].

The reports of a designated agency submitted to the Department of Justice are not subject to any immunity under Penal Code § 11172 [Penal Code § 11169].

For a discussion of the persons required to report suspected child abuse or neglect, see Ch. 429, Privacy .

[2] Persons Authorized to Report

Any person, other than those required to report known or suspected instances of child abuse or neglect under Penal Code § 11166, who reports a known or suspected instance of child abuse or neglect is immune from civil or criminal liability as a result of any report authorized by Penal Code §§ 11165-11174.1 [Penal Code § 11172(a)]. The person loses this immunity, however, and becomes liable for any damages caused if it can be proven that a false report was made and the person knew the report was false or was made with reckless disregard of the report's truth or falsity [Penal Code § 11172(a)]. The person may also lose immunity by failing to follow the statutory procedures for reporting suspected child abuse or neglect [see Searcy v. Auerbach (9th Cir. 1992) 980 F.2d 609, 610-611 (clinical psychologist, who gave written opinion of child abuse to father, lacked immunity under Penal Code §§ 11164-11174.3 because he failed to report suspected instance of child abuse to authorized agencies or individuals)].

However, these provisions apply only to third persons who report the abuse of a child. They do not apply to a child reporting his or her own alleged abuse, who may instead assert the absolute privileges of Civ. Code § 47(b) if they are applicable [Smith v. M.D. (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 1169, 1184-1190, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 315 (child's statements to parents, grandparent, and police were absolutely privileged under Civ. Code § 47(b)); see generally §§ 340.60, 340.61].

The liability imposed under Penal Code § 11172(a) for knowingly making a false report of child abuse creates an exception to the privileges provided by Civ. Code § 47(b) [Begier v. Strom (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 877, 884-885, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 158 ; see also Siam v. Kizilbash (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1563, 1577, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 368 (Begier holding still valid after Supreme Court's analysis in Hagberg v. California Fed. Bank (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 350, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 803, 81 P.3d 244)]. The privileges of Civ. Code § 47(b) are described in § 340.60. In addition, voluntary reporters may be liable for making false reports to parties who are required to report suspected abuse [Siam v. Kizilbash (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1563, 1578, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 368] .

These provisions apply only to reports made by third parties, however, and do not apply to a report of child abuse made by the alleged victim of the abuse [Chabak v. Monroy (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 1502, 1515-1519, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 641] . Thus, an alleged victim of child abuse cannot be held liable under these provisions for making a report of the abuse to police, and the litigation privilege of Civ. Code § 47(b) otherwise immunizes the alleged victim from liability for making statements about the alleged abuse to parents or others in anticipation of litigation [Chabak v. Monroy (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 1502, 1519, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 641] .

For a discussion of when a person charged with child abuse may commence an action for defamation arising out of any alleged instance of child abuse, see § 340.20[7].

§ 340.74 Immunity for Health Practitioners Reporting Injuries Related to Criminal Conduct

A health practitioner who is required by Penal Code §§ 11160, 11162.5, or 11166 to report injuries related to criminal conduct, and who does report a known or reasonably suspected instance of injury related to criminal conduct, is immune from civil or criminal liability for any report required or authorized by Penal Code §§ 11160-11163.2 [see Penal Code § 11161.9(a); see also Penal Code § 11162.7 (reporting requirements do not apply if report is required pursuant to Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act or Elder Abuse and Dependent Adult Civil Protection Act)]. A health practitioner who, pursuant to a request from an adult protective services agency or a local law enforcement agency, provides the requesting agency with access to the victim of a known or suspected instance of abuse or neglect is also immune from civil or criminal liability as a result of providing that access [Penal Code § 11161.9(c)].

Any person required or authorized to report pursuant to Penal Code §§ 11160-11163.2, or designated by a person required or authorized to report a suspected instance of abuse or neglect, who takes photographs of a suspected victim is immune from civil or criminal liability for taking the photographs, causing the photographs to be taken, or disseminating the photographs to local law enforcement with the reports. However, any other use of photographs so taken does not immunize the person from civil or criminal liability [Penal Code § 11161.9(b)(1)].

In addition to these immunities, any person who is required by Penal Code §§ 11160-11163.2 to report a known or reasonably suspected instance of injury related to criminal conduct, and who is a defendant in an action based on such report, may be entitled to an award of limited attorney's fees from the Victim Compensation and Government Claims Board [Penal Code § 11163(a), (b)(1)]. However, the claim for an award may only be presented to the Board, and will only be allowed by the Board if the court dismisses the action on the defendant's demurrer or motion for summary judgment, or if the defendant prevails in the action [Penal Code § 11163(b)(1), (2)]. Attorney's fees are not available if a public entity has provided for the defense of the action under Gov. Code § 995 (defense by public entity of action or proceeding against entity's employee) [Penal Code § 11163(b)(3)].

In any court proceeding or administrative hearing, neither the physician-patient privilege nor the psychotherapist privilege applies to the information required to be reported pursuant to Penal Code §§ 11160-11163.2 [Penal Code § 11163.2(a)].

30-340 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 340.75

§ 340.75 Federal Immunity for Internet Republication of Defamatory Material Originating From Another Source

The Federal Communications Decency Act of 1996 provides a statutory immunity from common law liability for defamation for Internet publications that originate from a different party. Specifically, that act provides that no provider or user of an interactive computer service may be treated as the publisher or speaker of any information provided by another information content provider [47 U.S.C.S. § 230(c)(1); see also 47 U.S.C.S. § 230(f)(2), (3) ("interactive computer service" and "information content provider" defined)], and liability may not be imposed under state or local law if inconsistent with this federal protection [47 U.S.C.S. § 230(e)(3)]. This immunity effectively overrides common law liability for republication in this context [see § 340.21[7]]. This broad immunity from common law liability even applies to republications made with notice of the potential defamatory nature of the content [Barrett v. Rosenthal (2006) 40 Cal. 4th 33, 43-49, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 55, 146 P.3d 510 (immunity applied even if republisher could be considered "distributor," rather than "publisher," under common law distinction); see § 340.21[3]].

While the Communications Decency Act does not define the term "user," the California Supreme Court has concluded that the term extends to all individuals who use an interactive computer service, regardless of whether the "use" at is sue consists of merely receiving defamatory information, or screening and removing defamatory publication from an Internet site, or some other use of the interactive computer service [Barrett v. Rosenthal (2006) 40 Cal. 4th 33, 58-60, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 55, 146 P.3d 510 (rejecting application of distinction between "active" and "passive" use)].

However, the Supreme Court cautioned that, at some point, active involvement in the creation of a defamatory Internet posting may expose a defendant to liability as the originator of the defamatory content, while also noting that other courts have required conduct that goes beyond the traditional editorial role of a publisher in order to overcome the immunity provided by the Act [Barrettv. Rosenthal (2006) 40 Cal. 4th 33, 60 n.19, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 55, 146 P.3d 510] . The court of appeal held in one case that the recipient of an allegedly defamatory e-mail could not be held liable for forwarding the e-mail on to others merely because he added prefatory remarks to the forwarded message that essentially stated that the truth would come out in the end. The court concluded that this comment made no material contribution to the alleged defamation contained in the message being forwarded [Phan v. Pham (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 323, 328, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 791] .

In a case involving illegal discrimination rather than defamation, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals held that the operators of a website designed to match people looking to rent out spare rooms with people looking to rent such rooms were not immune under the Communications Decency Act for requiring users to answer certain profile questions, concerning such things as sex and sexual orientation and whether he or she would rent to someone with a particular gender or orientation, as a prerequisite to using the service. Such questions could constitute illegal discrimination if asked by an actual real estate broker, and by asking the questions and recording the answers for use by the service, the website operators were doing more than merely publishing content created solely by others [Fair Housing Coun., San Fernando v. Roommates.com (9th Cir. 2008) 521 F.3d 1157, 1164-1167].

The "provider" of an interactive computer service is also defined broadly under the Act. For example, the court of appeal has held that an employer that provides its employees with Internet access through the company's internal computer system is a "provider" [Delfino v. Agilent Technologies, Inc. (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 790, 806, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 376] .

§ 340.76 Opposition to Identification of Anonymous Internet Writer

The right to publish anonymously is a freedom of speech generally protected by the First Amendment [McIntyre v. Ohio Elections Comm'n (1995) 514 U.S. 334, 341-342, 115 S. Ct. 1511, 131 L. Ed. 2d 426], although constitutional protection is not afforded to anonymous speech that is defamatory [Chaplinsky v. New Hampshire (1942) 315 U.S. 568, 571-572, 62 S. Ct. 766, 86 L. Ed. 1031]. Anonymous speech published on the Internet is afforded the same constitutional protection, but persons targeted by such speech may seek identification of the speaker from the website host or Internet service provider when the speech is allegedly defamatory. However, no national consensus has yet emerged on precisely how to balance the right of anonymous free speech with the need of a defamed person to obtain the identity of the speaker [see Krinsky v. Doe 6 (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 1154, 1167-1170, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 231 (reviewing various approaches that courts nationwide have taken)].

Squarely faced with the issue in Krinsky v. Doe 6, the court of appeal concluded that if a defendant has been notified that a plaintiff seeks his or her identity and defendant seeks to quash a subpoena issued to the site host or service provider, the plaintiff must make a prima facie showing of the elements of libel in order to defeat the motion to quash. If the plaintiff succeeds in providing evidence that a libelous statement has been made, the court concluded that no further balancing of interests is necessary to overcome the defendant's constitutional right to speak anonymously [Krinsky v. Doe 6 (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 1154, 1172, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 231 (plaintiff failed to present prima facie case under Florida law)].

The court in Krinsky noted that a requirement that the plaintiff attempt to notify the defendant when his or her identity is sought would not be unduly burdensome, and also that Internet service providers and message board hosts often provide notice to parties when their identity is sought. The court did not actually impose a notice requirement, however, because in the case before it, the defendant had already been notified and thus the issue was moot [see Krinsky v. Doe 6 (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 1154, 1171, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 231].

C. Slander of Title and Trade Libel

30-340 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 340.90

§ 340.90 Definition of Slander of Title

[1] In General

A tort action for slander of title may be brought against one who, without a privilege to do so, publishes matter which is untrue and disparaging to another's property in land, chattels, or intangible things under such circumstances as would lead a reasonable man to foresee that the conduct of a third person as purchaser or lessee thereof might be determined thereby. The person is liable for pecuniary loss resulting to the other from the impairment of vendibility thus caused [Gudger v. Manton (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 537, 541, 134 P.2d 217 , disapproved on other grounds, Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375, 381, 295 P.2d 405 ; Frank Pisano & Assocs. v. Taggart (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 1, 24, 105 Cal. Rptr. 414] .

While the definition of slander of title includes personal property as well as real property, there is only one reported case in California involving personal property [see Chrysler Credit Corp. v. Ostly (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 663, 117 Cal. Rptr. 167] .

Slander of title is an invasion of the interest in the vendibility of property [Phillips v. Glazer (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 673, 677, 211 P.2d 37] or in the immediate salability of property [Smith v. Stuthman (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d 708, 709, 181 P.2d 123] .

[2] Not Applicable to Adverse Possessor

A person whose title to property depends on adverse possession cannot state a cause of action for slander of title against a person who raises or relies on the record title. The adverse possessors must establish their title by a quiet title action before they have a marketable title and as a condition precedent to any action for slander of title [Howard v. Schaniel (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 256, 262-266, 169 Cal. Rptr. 678] .

[3] Defamation Distinguished

The gravamen of an action for disparagement of title is different from that of an action for personal defamation [

Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375, 378, 295 P.2d 405] . An action for disparagement of title alleviates injury to real property [Coley v. Hecker (1928) 206 Cal. 22, 27, 272 P. 1045] , whereas an action for defamation alleviates injury to a person's reputation or character [see Civ. Code §§ 45, 46].

[4] Written and Spoken Words Included

The term "slander of title" includes both spoken and written means by which the right of property may be invaded, and a right of action exists irrespective of the means by which the title is traduced. This is so because a property right had been invaded--an injury to real property has been sustained [Coley v. Hecker (1928) 206 Cal. 22, 27, 272 P. 1045] . Therefore, the phrase "slander of title" is merely a figure of speech in which the title is personified. Thus, where the facts involve a written document which causes damage, the term is an anomaly because no spoken words have been uttered [Coley v. Hecker (1928) 206 Cal. 22, 27, 272 P. 1045] .

[5] Complete Denial of Title Unnecessary

To be disparaging, a statement need not be a complete denial of title in others, but may be any unfounded claim of an interest in the property which throws doubt upon its ownership [Gudger v. Manton (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 537, 542-543, 134 P.2d 217 , disapproved on other grounds, Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375, 381, 295 P.2d 405 ; Phillips v. Glazer (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 673, 677, 211 P.2d 37] .

The matter need not create a legal "cloud" on the property owner's title to constitute disparagement [Seeley v. Seymour (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 844, 857, 237 Cal. Rptr. 282] . If the matter is reasonably understood to cast doubt upon the existence or extent of another's interest in land, it is disparaging to the latter's title where it is so understood by the recipient [Hill v. Allan (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 470, 489, 66 Cal. Rptr. 676] .

§ 340.91 Types of Documents Found Disparaging

[1] In General

Various types of documents have been found disparaging of a person's title or interest in real property, including:

- A lien [Gudger v. Manton (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 537, 542-543, 134 P.2d 217 , disapproved on other grounds, Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375, 381, 295 P.2d 405] ;

- An abstract of judgment after an undertaking staying execution pending appeal had been filed [Coley v. Hecker (1928) 206 Cal. 22, 28-29, 272 P.1045] ;

- An executed deed by a person who had no interest in the property [Fearon v. Fodera (1915) 169 Cal. 370, 380, 148 P. 200] ;

- A forged deed of trust [Forte v. Nolfi (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 656, 686, 102 Cal. Rptr. 455] ;

- A master plan for a residential development [Glass v. Gulf Oil Corp. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 412, 424-425, 96 Cal. Rptr. 902] ;

- The recording of notices of location of mining claims where plaintiff was holder of leasehold interest [Davis v. Wood (1943) 61 Cal. App. 2d 788, 793-799, 143 P.2d 740] ; and

- An assignment of royalties under a mining lease [Ezmirlian v. Otto (1934) 139 Cal. App. 486, 493, 34 P.2d 774] .

Other instances of disparaging documents include the recording of fraudulent grant deeds [Castaic Clay Mfg. Co. v. Dedes (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 444, 447, 450, 240 Cal. Rptr. 652] and the recording of a memorandum of agreement purporting to memorialize a lease agreement, which had not been signed by the owner [Seeley v. Seymour (1987) 190

Cal. App. 3d 844, 856-859, 237 Cal. Rptr. 282] .

It has also been held that posting a sign next to the plaintiff's property which states that anyone purchasing the property would also be "buying a law suit" is disparaging [Phillips v. Glazer (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 673, 677-678, 211 P.2d 37] .

[2] Certificate of Acknowledgment Not Disparaging

A certificate of acknowledgment bears no relation to legal interests in property, but serves only to lend to the document to which it is affixed the aura of authenticity. As such, a false certificate of acknowledgment, by itself, could impart no disparaging imputation or innuendo against the plaintiff's interests [Kirsch v. Barnes (N.D. Cal. 1957) 153 F. Supp. 260, 264 , aff'd, (9th Cir. Cal 1959) 263 F.2d 692] .

Publication of the untrue and disparaging matter is an element of the cause of action. Therefore, a complaint that fails to allege that the defendant ever made a title report to anyone; that documents which were "prepared" were not also completed or executed; or that the defendant never recorded or otherwise published any information to anyone about the title is properly subject to a demurrer [*Southcott v. § 340.93 Description of Property

It is necessary for the complaint to set forth and describe the property respecting which the defamatory statements were made as well as to aver title to the property [Burkett v. Griffith (1891) 90 Cal. 532, 541, 27 P. 527 , disapproved on other grounds, Gudger v. Manton (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 537, 544, 134 P.2d 217] . However, in an action involving slander of title the property involved need not be described in the complaint with the same degree of particularity as is necessary in an action to quiet title [Davis v. Wood (1943) 61 Cal. App. 2d 788, 793, 143 P.2d 740] .

To commit the tort of slander of title it is not necessary to prove that defendant acted with actual malice or ill will toward plaintiff [Phillips v. Glazer (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 673, 677, 211 P.2d 37 ; see Gudger v. Manton (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 537, 543-544, 134 P.2d 217 , disapproved on other grounds, Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375, 379, 295 P.2d 405] . Implied malice from knowledge of the falsity of the publication is all that is required [Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375, 383, 295 P.2d 405] .

In a slander of title action when the evidence showed that a buyer recorded a document that contained false accusations against the seller while the buyer was in default under the contract of sale, malice could be implied because accusations made without foundation are indicative of malice [Contra Costa County Title Co. v. Waloff (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 59, 66-67, 7 Cal. Rptr. 358] .

30-340 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 340.96

[1] Plaintiff's Burden to Prove Lack of Privilege

To state a cause of action for slander of title, there must be a lack of privilege [Gudger v. Manton (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 537, 544, 134 P.2d 217 , disapproved on other grounds, Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375, 295 P.2d 405] . Although the gravamen of an action for disparagement of title is different from that of an action for personal defamation, substantially the same privileges are recognized in relation to both torts in the absence of statute. Questions of privilege relating to both torts are now resolved in the light of Civ. Code § 47 [Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375, 378-379, 295 P.2d 405 ; Hill v. Allan (1968) 259 Cal App2d 470, 490, 66 Cal. Rptr. 676 ; see § 340.50 et seq.].

There is some uncertainty regarding the burden of proof on the issue of lack of privilege. Some cases hold that the burden of proof of the lack of privilege is on the plaintiff [Hill v. Allan (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 470, 489, 66 Cal. Rptr. 676 ; Spencer v. Harmon Enters., Inc. (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 614, 622, 44 Cal. Rptr. 683] . Other cases hold that the burden is normally on the defendant [Palmer v. Zaklama (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1367, 1380-1381, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116 ; see Stevens v. Snow (1923) 191 Cal. 58, 64-65, 214 P. 968 (case involving defamation as opposed to slander of title)]. A recent case suggests that the existence of a privilege is normally an affirmative defense on which defendant has the burden of proof, but when the existence of the privilege appears on the face of plaintiff's complaint, the plaintiff has the burden of proof [Smith v. Commonwealth Land Title Ins. Co. (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 625, 630-631, 223 Cal. Rptr. 339] .

[2] Absolute Privilege

[a] Judicial Proceedings

The absolute privilege granted under Civ. Code § 47(b)(2) applies to any publication that is required or permitted [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 405.20] by law in the course of a judicial proceeding to achieve the objects of the litigation, even though the publication is made outside the courtroom and no function of the court or its officers is invoked. Thus, it is not limited to the pleadings, the oral or written evidence, to publication in open court or in briefs or affidavits. If the publication has a reasonable relation to the action and is permitted by law, the absolute privilege attaches [Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375, 380-381, 295 P.2d 405 ; Wilton v. Mountain Wood Homeowners Assn., Inc. (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 565, 569, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 471 ; Frank Pisano & Assocs. v. Taggart (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 1, 24-25, 105 Cal. Rptr. 414] . However, under Civ. Code § 47(b)(4), "[a] recorded lis pendens is not a privileged publication unless it identifies an action previously filed with a court of competent jurisdiction which affects the title or right of possession of real property, as authorized or required by law" [see also Palmer v. Zaklama (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1367, 1378-1381].

Courts have used an "interest of justice" test, that is whether the extrajudicial communication was intended to further the litigation and to promote justice, to determine whether a communication is privileged under Civ. Code § 47(b)(2) [Earp v. Nobmann (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 270, 282-285, 175 Cal. Rptr. 767 , overruled, Silberg v. Anderson (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 205, 219, 266 Cal. Rptr. 638, 786 P.2d 365)]. However, that test was rejected by the California Supreme Court [Silberg v. Anderson (1990) 50Cal. 3d 205, 219 , 266 Cal. Rptr. 638, 786 P.2d 365] . In Silberg v. Anderson, the court stated that "[t]he principal purpose of [former Civ. Code] § 47(2) [now see Civ. Code § 47(b)(2)] is to afford litigants and witnesses the utmost freedom of access to the courts without fear of being harassed subsequently by derivative tort actions" [Silberg v. Anderson (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 205, 213, 266 Cal. Rptr. 638, 786 P.2d 365] .

[b] Absolutely Privileged Documents

The absolute privilege of Civ. Code § 47(b)(2) attaches to the recordation of a notice of lis pendens if it identifies an action previously filed with a court of competent jurisdiction that affects the title or right of possession of real property, as authorized or required by law [Civ. Code § 47(b)(4)]. Such a publication is permitted by law and, like other documents that may be filed in an action, it has a reasonable relation thereto; it is immaterial that it is recorded with the county recorder instead of being filed with the county clerk [Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375, 381, 295 P.2d 405 ; Earp v. Nobmann (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 270, 281-282, 175 Cal. Rptr. 767] . The enactment of statutory procedures for expunging a lis pendens (Code Civ. Proc. § 405.30 et seq.) was not intended to abolish the absolute privilege for recording a lis pendens [Earp v. Nobmann (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 270, 282, 175 Cal. Rptr. 767] .

Similarly, the filing of a claim of mechanic's lien and a judicial proceeding to enforce it is privileged within the meaning of Civ. Code § 47(b)(2) [Frank Pisano & Assocs. v. Taggart (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 1, 25, 105 Cal. Rptr. 414] .

The publication of an assessment lien by a condominium owners' association is also absolutely privileged under the judicial proceedings privilege of Civ. Code § 47(b), regardless of whether the lien is enforced by judicial foreclosure or by private sale [Wilton v. Mountain Wood Homeowners Assn., Inc. (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 565, 568-570, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 471] .

The absolute privilege under Civ. Code § 47(b) applies to quasi-judicial as well as judicial proceedings. Thus, for example, it bars a slander of title action based on a cease and desist order issued in proceedings before the California Coastal Commission [see Ojavan Investors, Inc. v. California Coastal Comm'n (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 516, 528-529, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 103] .

[3] Conditional Privilege of Rival Claimant

[a] In General

The courts have long recognized that a rival claimant of property is conditionally privileged to disparage or is justified in disparaging another's interest in the property by an honest and good-faith assertion of an inconsistent legally protected interest in himself [Gudger v. Manton (1943)21 Cal. 2d 537, 545, 134 P.2d 217 , disapproved on other grounds, Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375, 381, 295 P.2d 405 ; Hill v. Allan (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 470, 490, 66 Cal. Rptr. 676] .

[a] Absence of Malice Essential

The conditional privilege of a rival claimant or interested party is always available whenever the statements are made without malice [Hill v. Allan (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 470, 490, 66 Cal. Rptr. 676] . However, the existence of actual malice will defeat the assertion of the qualified privilege [Gudger v. Manton (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 537, 543, 134 P.2d 217 , disapproved on other grounds, Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375, 381, 295 P.2d 405 ; Earp v. Nobmann (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 270, 285, 175 Cal. Rptr. 767] . Malice will not be inferred from the mere fact of communication [Hill v. Allan (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 470, 490, 66 Cal. Rptr. 676 ; see Civ. Code § 48]. Malice exists when the person making the statement acts out of hatred or ill will, has no reasonable grounds for believing the statement to be true, or makes the statement for any reason other than to protect the interest for the protection of which the privilege is given [Earp v. Nobmann (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 270, 285, 175 Cal. Rptr. 767] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Slander of Title and Trade Libel

30-340 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 340.97

§ 340.97 Damages

[1] Essential Element of Cause of Action

The allegation and proof of damages as the direct and natural result of the disparaging statement are essential to maintaining a cause of action for slander of title [Burkett v. Griffith (1891) 90 Cal. 532, 537, 27 P. 527 , disapproved on other grounds, Gudger v. Manton (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 537, 544, 134 P.2d 217] .

[2] Loss of Sale to Particular Purchaser Unnecessary

A property owner may recover for the impairment of the vendibility of his or her property without showing that the loss was caused by prevention of a particular sale. The usual manner in which a third person's reliance upon disparaging matter causes pecuniary loss is by preventing a sale to a particular purchaser. However, the disparaging matter may, if widely disseminated, cause pecuniary loss by depriving its possessor of a market in which, but for the disparagement, the possessor's land or other thing might with reasonable certainty have found a purchaser [Glass v. Gulf Oil Corp. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 412, 424, 96 Cal. Rptr. 902] .

[3] Elements of Damages

[a] In General

The pecuniary loss for which a publisher of disparaging matter is liable results from the impairment of the vendibility of the thing in question caused by the publication of the disparaging matter and the expense of litigation reasonably necessary to remove the doubt cast by the disparagement of the property [Frank Pisano & Assocs. v. Taggart (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 1, 25, 105 Cal. Rptr. 414 ; Castaic Clay Mfg. Co. v. Dedes (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 444, 447-448, 240 Cal. Rptr. 652 ; Davis v. Wood (1943) 61 Cal. App. 2d 788, 797-798, 143 P.2d 740] . However, if the period of time during which plaintiff's title was disparaged is based on both the recordation of a lis pendens which was absolutely privileged and a later letter claiming an interest in the property, which was not privileged, damages cannot be awarded for the period of disparagement caused by the privileged lis pendens [Earp v. Nobmann (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 270, 287, 175 Cal. Rptr. 767] .

[b] Attorney's Fees

A plaintiff in a slander of title action can recover attorney's fees incurred in clearing title to the property because the tort required plaintiff to bring the proceedings to protect his or her interests [Glass v. Gulf Oil Corp. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 412, 437-439, 96 Cal. Rptr. 902] . Plaintiff cannot recover attorney's fees incurred in prosecuting the slander of title action; however, if a slander of title cause of action is combined with a quiet title cause of action, the attorney's fees incurred in bringing the quiet title cause of action can be recovered [Contra Costa County Title Co. v. Waloff (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 59, 67-68, 7 Cal. Rptr. 358] . Since attorney's fees under these circumstances are special damages, they should be pleaded in the complaint [Spencer v. Harmon Enters., Inc. (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 614, 621, 44 Cal. Rptr. 683] .

[c] Inconvenience and Time to Remove Cloud

In an action for disparagement of title, damages may be awarded for the inconvenience and time suffered by the plaintiff in the re moval of a recorded cloud on the plaintiff's title [Forte v. Nolfi (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 656, 685, 102 Cal. Rptr. 455 ; Wright v. Rogers (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 349, 366-367, 342 P.2d 447] . And where there is no express testimony of the amount of damage as a result of plaintiff's time and inconvenience, a trial judge can call on his or her general knowledge of the amount [Forte v. Nolfi (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 656, 686, 102 Cal. Rptr. 455 ; Wright v. Rogers (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 349, 367, 342 P.2d 447] .

[d] Loss of Use of Proceeds Not Recoverable

The damages that may be awarded in an action for disparagement of title do not include the loss of use of the money which would have been received if a prospective sale had been consummated [Earp v. Nobmann (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 270, 287, 175 Cal. Rptr. 767] .

[4] Causal Connection Required

The plaintiff must show that the damages sustained were the "direct and natural" result of the disparaging remark [Burkett v. Griffith (1891) 90 Cal. 532, 537, 27 P. 527 , disapproved on other grounds, Gudger v. Manton (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 537, 544, 134 P.2d 217] .

[5] Measure of Damages

The proper measure of damages in slander of title actions is the amount which will compensate the plaintiff for all the damage proximately caused by the disparagement [Gudger v. Manton (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 537, 555, 134 P.2d 217 , disapproved on other grounds, Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375, 381, 295 P.2d 405 ; see Civ. Code § 3333].

[6] Punitive Damages Permitted

In a slander of title action where fraud is involved, the award of punitive damages is expressly authorized by Civ. Code § 3294 [Spencer v. Harmon Enters., Inc. (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 614, 626, 44 Cal. Rptr. 683 ; see also TXO Prod. v. Alliance Res. (1993) 509 U.S. 443, 452-466, 113 S. Ct. 2711, 125 L. Ed. 2d 366 (upholding $10 million punitive damage award from state-court jury based on $19,000 compensatory damage award for common law slander of title claim); Castaic Clay Mfg. Co. v. Dedes (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 444, 450, 240 Cal. Rptr. 652 (recording of fraudulent grant deeds)].

Actions for injuries to real property are local actions and must be brought in the county in which the property is situated [see Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)]. The term "injuries to real property" as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 392 is not, however, limited to physical injury to or interference with the land. It includes actions for slander of title, and thus an action for slander of title must be brought in the county in which the property involved lies [see Coley v. Hecker (1928) 206 Cal. 22, 27-28, 272 P. 1045 ; Wick v. Mattison (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 608, 609, 24 Cal. Rptr. 677] .

Truth is a defense to an action for slander of title [see Gudger v. Manton (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 537, 543, 134 P.2d 217 , disapproved on other grounds, Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375, 381, 295 P.2d 405] because truth is not considered to disparage a person's title [Kirsch v. Barnes (N.D. Cal. 1957) 153 F. Supp. 260, 264 , aff'd, (9th Cir. 1959) 263 F.2d 692] .

[2] Failure to Act Maliciously

When defendants do not act maliciously, are acting under the advice of counsel, and believe that their recording of a deed is proper, they have a defense to a slander of title action [Cavin Mem'l Corp. v. Requa (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 345, 361, 85 Cal. Rptr. 107] .

§ 340.102 Statute of Limitations

The statute of limitations for a cause of action for slander of title is three years [Code Civ. Proc. § 338(g)]. The cause of action does not begin to run until the plaintiff could reasonably be expected to discover the existence of the cause of action [Stalberg v. Western Title Ins. Co. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1223, 1230, 282 Cal. Rptr. 43 ; Arthur v. Davis (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 684, 690-692, 178 Cal. Rptr. 920] .

For example, discovery of a wild deed gives rise to a duty of inquiry and could commence the running of the statute [Stalberg v. Western Title Ins. Co. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1223, 1230, 282 Cal. Rptr. 43] . Similarly, if an attorney, in the course of quieting title to an easement, discovers wild deeds and the fact that defendant authorized their recording, that knowledge is imputed to the clients to commence the running of the limitation period [Stalberg v. Western Title Ins. Co. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1223, 1231, 282 Cal. Rptr. 43] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Slander of Title and Trade Libel

30-340 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 340.103

§ 340.103 Trade Libel

[1] Definition

Trade libel is an intentional disparagement of the quality of property which results in pecuniary damage to plaintiff [Leonardini v. Shell Oil Co. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 547, 572, 264 Cal. Rptr. 883 (intention is to cause financial harm to business); Polygram Records v. Superior Court (1985)170 Cal. App. 3d 543, 548, 216 Cal. Rptr. 252 ; Erlich v. Etner (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 69, 73, 36 Cal. Rptr. 256] . Thus, an ac tion for trade libel lies where statements about the goods of a competito r go no further than to criticize those goods and where the criticism is based upon or appeals to a personal taste or preference of the buyer and does not impugn the honesty or integrity of the merchant in the sale of the goods [Rosenberg v. J.C. Penney Co. (1939) 30 Cal. App. 2d 609, 621, 86 P.2d 696] . Trade libel need not be in writing [Polygram Records v. Superior Court (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 543, 548, 216 Cal. Rptr. 252] .

To constitute trade libel, a statement must be false, but need not be malicious except in the sense that it is not privileged [Leonardini v. Shell Oil Co. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 547, 572, 264 Cal. Rptr. 883] .

[2] Defamation Distiguished

[a] Trade Libel Not Actionable Defamation

Trade libel and defamation protect different interests. The action for defamation is to protect the personal reputation of the injured party. The action for trade libel is to protect the economic interests of the injured party against pecuniary loss [Leonardini v. Shell Oil Co. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 547, 573, 264 Cal. Rptr. 883 ; Polygram Records (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 543, 548, 216 Cal. Rptr. 252] .

Further, the common law imposes more stringent requirements on the plaintiff seeking to recover for trade libel in three respects. First, a defamatory statement is presumed to be false, with truth a matter to be proved by the defendant. In an action for trade libel, the plaintiff must plead and prove that the statement is false. Second, a defendant in a defamation action is held to strict liability insofar as falsity of the statement is concerned. In an action for trade libel, the defendant is subject to liability only if he or she knew of the falsity or acted with reckless disregard concerning it, or if he or she acted with ill will or intended to interfere in the economic interests of the plaintiff in an unprivileged fashion. Finally, in defamation, a plaintiff is required under the common law to prove special damages in only a limited number of situations. In trade libel, pecuniary loss to the plaintiff must always be proved [Polygram Records (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 543, 549, 216 Cal. Rptr. 252 , quoting from Rest. 2d Torts, § 623A, comment g].

Thus, trade libel is not true libel and is not actionable as defamation. Although, under Civ. Code §§ 44-46, defamation is also effected by libelous or slanderous statements that tend to injure a person in his or her occupation, office, profession, trade or business, the statements concerned cast aspersions on a plaintiff directly or by imputation fairly implied. The statutes are not concerned with statements that do not call into question the plaintiff's honesty, integrity, or competence, or reasonably imply any reprehensible personable characteristic [Polygram Records (1985) 170 Cal.App. 3d 543, 549-550, 216 Cal. Rptr. 252] . For a detailed discussion of defamation generally, see § 340.10 et seq.

Another important difference between trade libel and defamation is that, because of the economic interest involved in trade libel, the disparagement of quality may be enjoined in a proper case, whereas personal defamation can not be enjoined [Leonardini v. Shell Oil Co. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 547, 574-575, 264 Cal. Rptr. 883 (no injunction available; distinguishing Black & Yates v. Mahogany Asso. (3rd Cir. 1942) 129 F.2d 227 , and Martin v. Reynolds Metals Co. (D. Or. 1963) 224 F. Supp. 978 , as involving purely private concerns)].

[b] Trade Libel May Be Actionable Libel Per Se

An action for libel per se may be brought if statements about the goods of a competitor include libelous words concerning the seller that impute to him fraud, dishonesty, or questionable business methods in connection with the sale. By so implying business dishonesty, an action for libel per se under Civ. Code §§ 45, 45a lies in which no special damages need to be alleged or proved [Erlich v. Etner (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 69, 73, 36 Cal. Rptr. 256 ; Rosenberg v. J.C. Penney Co. (1939) 30 Cal. App. 2d 609, 621, 86 P.2d 696 ; see Barnes-Hind, Inc. v. Superior Court (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 377, 381, 385, 226 Cal. Rptr. 354 (corporation may sue for damage to business reputation)].

[3] Statute of Limitations

There has been some question whether the one-year statute of limitations under Code Civ. Proc. § 340(c) (libel and slander) or the two-year statute of limitations under Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1) (contract, obligation or liability not founded on an instrument in writing) applies to actions for trade libel. However, one court of appeal has held that, because trade libel is not directed at the plaintiff's personal reputation, but rather at the goods he or she sells or the character of his or her business, actions for trade libel are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1) [Guess, Inc. v. Superior Court (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 473, 475, 477-479, 222 Cal. Rptr. 79] .

[4] Constitutional Limitations

Constitutional limitations on liability based on the First Amendment rights of freedom of the press and free speech, which were formulated in defamation actions, apply to all cases based on an injurious falsehood, including trade libel [see Blatty v. New York Times Co. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 1033, 1042, 232 Cal. Rptr. 542, 728 P.2d 1177 ; Leonardini v. Shell Oil Co. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 547, 576, 264 Cal. Rptr. 883 (attempt to influence government action as indisputably protected by First Amendment)]. The primary constitutional protections involve a requisite showing of the defendant's state of mind regarding the truth or falsity of the alleged injurious falsehood.

For example, in cases in which the plaintiff is a public figure, an action for trade libel must be supported by a showing of "actual malice" on the part of the defendant [see Blatty v. New York Times Co. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 1033, 1043, 232 Cal. Rptr. 542, 728 P.2d 1177 (citing federal authority)]. "Actual malice" in this context means that the defendant published the disparaging statement with knowledge of its falsity or with reckless disregard for its truth or falsity [see New York Times Co. v. Sullivan (1964) 376 U.S. 254, 279-280, 285-286, 84 S. Ct. 710, 11 L. Ed. 2d 686] . This actual malice standard is a subjective one and it also applies when the statements involve a matter of public concern, even though the plaintiff may not have been a public figure [Melaleuca, Inc. v. Clark (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1344, 1363-1365, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 627] . For a complete discussion of the constitutional privileges arising under the First Amendment, see § 340.18[1].

In addition, at least when the defendant is a member of the media, the First Amendment requires that the injurious falsehood must be "of and concerning" the plaintiff or his or her property; that is, it must specifically refer to plaintiff or his or her property or must refer to them by reasonable implication. Thus, when a plaintiff brought several causes of action, including an action for trade libel, alleging that the New York Times erroneously failed to include his book in its list of top bestsellers, the complaint failed to state a cause of action because the best seller list did not refer to plaintiff or his novel, even by implication [Blatty v. New York Times Co. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 1033, 1042, 1046, 232 Cal. Rptr. 542, 728 P.2d 1177] .

Frequently, a cause of action for trade libel is combined with a cause of action for intentional interference with prospective economic advantage [see, e.g., Hofmann Co. v. E. I. DuPont de Nemours & Co. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 390, 394, 248 Cal. Rptr. 384] . The constitutional concerns raised in Blatty may also affect the action for intentional interference with prospective economic advantage. However, when the speech alleged to have caused the injury was made in the course of a discussion of governmental affairs, the manner in which government is operated or should be operated, or another matter relating to political processes, the speech is deserving of the highest protection, and the speaker's opinions, even if falsely and insincerely held, are constitutionally protected [Hofmann Co. v. E. I. DuPont de Nemours & Co. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 390, 407-408, 248 Cal. Rptr. 384] .

[3] Choice of Law Determination

Conflicts of law rule in California as stating that libel occurs at place of publication of libelous statement. Moore v. Greene (9th Cir. 1970) 431 F.2d 584, 591 ; Gallegos v. Union-Tribune Publ'g Co. (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 791, 797, 16 Cal. Rptr. 185

Interest analysis as indicating court should apply law of forum rather than law of place of publication in appropriate circumstances. Moore v. Greene (9th Cir. 1970) 431 F.2d 584, 591-592

[4] Constitutional Limitations on Recovery

[a] Malice

[i] Clear and Convincing Evidence

Public figure plaintiff must prove actual malice with "convincing clarity" (clear and convincing evidence). New York Times Co. v. Sullivan (1964) 376 U.S. 254, 285-286, 84 S. Ct. 710, 11 L. Ed. 2d 686 ; McCoy v. Hearst Corp. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 835, 860, 231 Cal. Rptr. 518, 727 P.2d 711 ; Gomes v. Fried (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 924, 934, 186 Cal. Rptr. 605 ; see also Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc. (1986) 477 U.S. 242, 244, 254, 106 S. Ct. 2505, 91 L. Ed. 2d 202 (clear and convincing standard must be considered by federal court when ruling on motion for summary judgment under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 56)

Actual malice is defined as either knowledge that defamatory material was false or reckless disregard of whether it was false or not. New York Times Co. v. Sullivan (1964) 376 U.S. 254, 279-280, 84 S. Ct. 710, 11 L. Ed. 2d 686

Malice could be found when preparer of financial report knew that report was biased and client wanted report to overstate negative financial aspects of company in order to depress stock price. Overstock.com, Inc. v. Gradient Analytics, Inc. (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 688, 710-711, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 29

Use of phrase "convicted perpetrator of domestic abuse" by defendant, who was not lawyer and thought phrase was accurate, was meant to refer to family court's finding that plaintiff had committed domestic violence against her, not to criminal conviction, and use of phrase did not prove actual malice. Annette F. v. Sharon S. (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 1146, 1167-1170, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 100

Finding of actual malice was precluded because, in addition to professing good-faith belief in truth of statements made, defendant had evidence that source of information contained in statements was reliable and other evidence or circumstances provided reasons for believing information to be true. Jackson v. Paramount Pictures Corp. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 10, 34

In action for slander, based on critical remarks made by defendant to newspaper employees regarding coverage of campaign in which defendant was involved, summary judgment for defendant was properly granted, on ground that plaintiff failed to introduce evidence of actual malice. Live Oak Publ'g Co. v. Cohagan (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 1277,

1287-1293, 286 Cal. Rptr. 198

In action by plaintiff, member of city council, against newspaper based on series of articles depicting plaintiff as dishonest politician, evidence showing some factual errors and reporter's predisposed bias against plaintiff did not establish clear and convincing proof of either deliberate falsification or reckless publication, despite publisher's awareness of probable falsity; defendant's motion for judgment notwithstanding verdict was properly granted on ground that actual malice was not proved. Fletcher v. San Jose Mercury News (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 172, 183-190, 264 Cal. Rptr. 699

Defendants' subjective belief in truth of allegations, rather than subjective intent toward plaintiff, is proper inquiry of court in determination of actual malice; existence of defamatory inference, which could be drawn by reasonable reader of brochure, was not sufficient to show that defendant acted with actual malice because brochure's quotations from court documents, although extracted out of context, were accurate and unambiguous. Planned Protective Servs., Inc. v. Gorton (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1, 9-11, 245 Cal. Rptr. 790

Burden of proving actual malice as on party alleging defamatory statement; malice must be proven by clear and convincing evidence. Gomes v. Fried (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 924, 934, 186 Cal. Rptr. 605

[ii] Subjective Awareness Test of Recklessness

Public official suing for defamation as required to show that defendant was subjectively aware of possible doubts regarding truth of defamatory publication. St. Amant v. Thompson (1968) 390 U.S. 727, 731, 88 S. Ct. 1323, 20 L. Ed. 2d 262

Publication of literally untrue statement, without holding statement out as true, is potentially sufficient to show lack of subjective knowledge or recklessness concerning falsification of statement of fact required by New York Times test. Dworkin v. Hustler Magazine, Inc. (9th Cir. 1989) 867 F.2d 1188, 1194-1195 (statement of outrageous parody or caricature intended as statement of opinion was not published with malice)

Focus of actual malice, with regard to public official's recovery under New York Times rule, is defendant's state of mind toward allegedly libelous material published. McCoy v. Hearst Corp. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 835, 847, 231 Cal. Rptr. 518, 727 P.2d 711

[iii] Public Officials Covered

Term "public official" as used in New York Times test as applying at least to public employees with substantial responsibility. Rosenblatt v. Baer (1966) 383 U.S. 75, 86 S. Ct. 669, 15 L. Ed. 2d 597

Deputy public defender not public official for purposes of application of constitutional limitations on defamation suits. James v. San Jose Mercury News, Inc. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1, 11, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 890 ; cf. Tague v. Citizens for Law & Order, Inc. (1977) 142 Cal. Rptr. 689

Superior court judge is public official for purposes of application of constitutional limitations on defamation suits. Aisenson v. American Broad. Co. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 146, 154, 269 Cal. Rptr. 379

Police officer as public official. Gomes v. Fried (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 924, 932-934, 186 Cal. Rptr. 605

Attorney who was city attorney for Redevelopment Agency as public official for purpose of New York Times rule. Weingarten v. Block (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 129, 139, 140, 162 Cal. Rptr. 701

Former school superintendent as public official and thus required to meet New York Times test. McCunn v. California Teachers Ass'n (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 956, 962-964, 83 Cal. Rptr. 846

[iv] Publications Covered

New York Times test as applicable to books as well as news media. Church of Scientology of Cal. v. Dell Publ'g Co., Inc. (N.D. Cal. 1973) 362 F. Supp. 767, 769

Constitutional privilege to publish without actual malice is applicable to nonmedia defendants. Miller v. Nestande (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 191, 200, 237 Cal. Rptr. 359

Incumbent candidate for public office must prove actual malice, even though defendants were not members of media and alleged defamatory statements were unrelated to official conduct, in action against opponent and several former prisoners of war for dissemination of pamphlet accusing incumbent of cooperating with enemy while POW during Vietnam war. Miller v. Nestande (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 191, 200-202, 237 Cal. Rptr. 359

[b] Public Figures

[i] Constitutional Requirements

Public figure plaintiff is required by U.S. Const. amend. I, to show falsity of defamatory statement to prevail in defamation suit. Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 775, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783 (dictum)

[ii] Delineating Who Are Public Figures

Person who engages in criminal conduct as not automatically becoming public figure for purposes of comment on limited range of issues relating to person's conviction for crime. Wolston v. Reader's Digest Ass'n, Inc. (1979) 443 U.S. 157, 99 S. Ct. 2701, 61 L. Ed. 2d 450, 461

Person who pleaded guilty to contempt charge for failure to respond to grand jury subpoena directing him to appear to testify in investigation of espionage activity as not public figure for purposes of constitutional privilege. Wolston v. Reader's Digest Ass'n, Inc. (1979) 443 U.S. 157, 99 S. Ct. 2701, 61 L. Ed. 2d 450, 457, 460-461

Scientist who received federal funds for research projects, whose response to receiving award for wasteful spending from United States Senator was reported by news media but whose published writings reached small number of professionals, and who did not thrust himself or his views into public controversy to influence others as not public figure for purposes of constitutional privilege. Hutchinson v. Proxmire (1979) 443 U.S. 111, 99 S. Ct. 2675, 61 L. Ed. 2d 411, 431

Wife of scion of wealthy industrial family who sought separate maintenance from husband as not public figure for purposes of constitutional privilege. Time, Inc. v. Firestone (1976) 424 U.S. 448, 456, 96 S. Ct. 958, 47 L. Ed. 2d 154

Public figure as determined either on basis of general fame or on basis of involvement in a particular controversy. Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 351, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789

with his performance as coach. McGarry v. University of San Diego (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 97, 115, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 467

Catholic priest, who was not particularly well-known because of religious, civic, or political activities and had not sought or received notoriety or public attention by reason of his position or achievements, was not public figure for purposes of defamation claim he brought against person who made statement to press implying that priest, who had been helping to take care of elderly woman, was really trying to influence her to become beneficiary of her estate. Gallagher v. Connell (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1260, 1271-1274, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 673

Plaintiff became limited purpose public figure by purposefully drawing public and media attention to her relationship with another woman in order to promote gay marriage and second-parent adoptions, and that status extended to subject matter of very public legal dispute between plaintiff and her partner over adoption rights to their children. Annette F. v. Sharon S. (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 1146, 1164-1165, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 100

Journalist who was photographed near Robert Kennedy moments before his assassination was not public figure in relation to tabloid newspaper's article reporting book's false accusation that journalist assassinated Kennedy, because journalist was never suspect in government's investigation, journalist's views on assassination were never publicized, and journalist never sought to influence public discussion about assassination. Khawar v. Globe Int'l, Inc. (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 254, 264-267, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178, 965 P.2d 696

Two corporations that ran closeout sale for well known landmark department store as not public figures in that merely doing business with parties to public controversy or selling goods to public does not cause elevation to public figure status. Vegod Corp. v. American Broad. Co., Inc. (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 763, 769, 770, 160 Cal. Rptr. 97, 603 P.2d 14

Plastic surgeon who put himself into public debate over merits of plastic surgery by appearing on local television shows, writing numerous articles in medical journals and beauty magazines advocating surgery, testifying as expert witness on subject, and advertising his services in local media, was limited purpose public figure for purposes of defamation claims made against former patient. Gilbert v. Sykes (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 13, 25-26, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 752

Candidate for public office as "public figure" for purposes of constitutional privilege. Planned Protective Servs., Inc. v. Gorton (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1, 9, 245 Cal. Rptr. 790

Community leaders of organization opposing San Fernando Valley as site of Olympics as public figures who have thrust themselves to forefront of public controversy to influence resolution of issues, and as required to meet higher standard for recovery than private individuals. Lewis v. Ueberroth (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 442, 446, 195 Cal. Rptr. 150

In action for defamation based on article accusing plaintiffs of being mobsters, gangsters, members of organized crime, and owners of resort that was organized crime headquarters, plaintiffs as not public figures merely because resort had access to media for costly advertising campaign, since such access and advertising is not thrusting oneself into vortex of controversy in attempt to influence resolution of issues involved. Rancho La Costa, Inc. v. Superior Court (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 646, 653-661, 165 Cal. Rptr. 347

City attorney who thrust himself to forefront of public controversy, who actively and voluntarily continued representation of Redevelopment Agency as its chief local counsel, and who earned substantial amounts from public expenditures as public figure. Weingarten v. Block (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 129, 142, 143, 162 Cal. Rptr. 701

Well-known TV personality was public figure. Montandon v. Triangle Publ'ns, Inc. (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 938, 946, 120 Cal. Rptr. 186

Well-known national attorney was public figure. Belli v. Curtis Publ'g Co. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 384, 388, 102 Cal. Rptr. 122

[c] Suits Brought by Private Individuals Suing Media Defendants

[i] In General

States as prohibited from imposing liability without fault on a media defendant sued by a private individual. Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 347, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789

Private individual suing media defendant as required to prove "actual injury" unless the New York Times test is met. Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 349-350, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789

Private individual suing media defendant as required to meet New York Times test before recovering either presumed or punitive damages. Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 349-350, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789

Media defendant is not entitled to "neutral reportage" privilege for republishing defamatory accusations about private person who does not qualify as public figure or official. Khawar v. Globe Int'l, Inc. (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 254, 268-273, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178, 965 P.2d 696

[ii] Limitation to Matters of Public Concern

Private figure suing newspaper or other media defendant for publishing speech of public concern is required by U.S. Const. amend. I to bear burden of proving falsity of defamatory statement before recovering damages. Philadelphia Newspapers v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 768-769, 775-777, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783

Constitutional limitations enunciated in Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 349-350, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789 , as not applying in suits by private plaintiffs in which the allegedly defamatory statements do not involve matters of public concern. Dun & Bradstreet v. Greenmoss Builders, Inc. (1985) 472 U.S. 749, 759-761, 105 S. Ct. 2939, 86 L. Ed. 2d 593

Deputy public defender's performance, and administration of criminal laws in general and laws relating to child molestation in particular, as matters of legitimate public interest and concern. James v. San Jose Mercury News, Inc. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1, 4, 11, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 890

[d] Jurisdiction

Nonresident editor of publication and nonresident author as not enjoying First Amendment preference on issue of in personam jurisdiction in action based on publication of allegedly libelous material. Jones v. Calder (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 128, 132, 187 Cal. Rptr. 825

[5] Damages

[a] Appellate Review

Appellate court as not declaring award of punitive damages excessive unless it is so grossly excessive as to indicate passion or prejudice on part of jury. Cunningham v. Simpson (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 301, 308-309, 81 Cal. Rptr. 855, 461

P.2d 39 ; Roemer v. Retail Credit Co. (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 926, 937, 119 Cal. Rptr. 82

Court as warranted in ordering new trial when excessive damages appear to have been awarded as result of passion or prejudice. Rudolph v. Gorman (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 666, 669, 338 P.2d 218

[b] General Damages

After proving actual damage in action for slander under Civ. Code § 46(5), plaintiff as entitled to have jury consider loss of reputation, shame, and hurt feelings in awarding general damages. Cunningham v. Simpson (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 301, 309, 81 Cal. Rptr. 855, 461 P.2d 39

When remark slanderous per se, evidence tending to show lack of injury to plaintiff's reputation as not admissible. Schomberg v. Walker (1901) 132 Cal. 224, 230, 64 P. 290 ; Clay v. Lagiss (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 441, 448, 299 P.2d 1025

General damages presumed as matter of law in case of slander per se. Douglas v. Janis (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 931, 940, 118 Cal. Rptr. 280 ; Clay v. Lagiss (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 441, 448, 299 P.2d 1025

Award of nominal damages as correct when plaintiff suffers no actual damage when statements are libelous per se. Triton Ins. Underwriters Inc. v. National Chiropractic Ins. Co. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 829, 833, 43 Cal. Rptr. 504

Fact at least one patient stopped going to plaintiff physician because of defamatory newspaper article as capable of sustaining award of general damages. Hanley v. Lund (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 633, 645, 32 Cal. Rptr. 733 , disapproved on other grounds, Adams v. Murakami (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 105, 115-116, 284 Cal. Rptr. 318, 813 P.2d 1348

Plaintiff as entitled to damages for mental worry, distress, grief, and mortification in addition to general damages. Moranville v. Aletto (1957) 153 Cal. App. 2d 667, 672, 315 P.2d 91 ; Clay v. Lagiss (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 441, 449, 299 P.2d 1025

[c] Punitive Damages

[i] Entitlement

Actual malice required for punitive damages award under Civ. Code § 48a as distinct from actual malice required to maintain libel action under New York Times rule; defendant's attitude towards plaintiff, rather than towards the material published, as focus of actual malice under Civ. Code § 48a. McCoy v. Hearst Corp. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 835, 872-873, 231 Cal. Rptr. 518, 727 P.2d 711

Plaintiff as never entitled as matter of right to exemplary damages. Brewer v. Second Baptist Church (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 791, 800-801, 197 P.2d 713 ; Shumate v. Johnson Publ'g Co. (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 121, 135, 293 P.2d 531

In action by private figure against newsletter addressing general topic of sexual assault and harassment, newsletter as constituting matter of public concern, and plaintiff as therefore required to prove at least negligence to recover any damages and required to prove malice under New York Times v. Sullivan to recover presumed or punitive damages. Carney v. Santa Cruz Women Against Rape (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1019, 271 Cal. Rptr. 30

Punitive damages as proper in libel action when preponderance of evidence supports finding that defendant acted with intent to vex, injure, or annoy, or with conscious disregard of plaintiff's rights. Burnett v. National Enquirer, Inc. (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 991, 1009, 1009 n.9, 193 Cal. Rptr. 206

[ii] Implied or Express Malice

Malice as capable of being either implied or express. Shumate v. Johnson Publ'g Co. (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 121, 135, 293 P.2d 531 ; Freeman v. Mills (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 161, 168-169, 217 P.2d 687

[iii] Inference of Malice

Trier of fact as capable of inferring malice from tenor of publication actionable per se. Shumate v. Johnson Publ'g Co. (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 121, 136, 293 P.2d 531

[iv] Jury Discretion

Juries as having exclusive power to grant or withhold award of punitive damages. Brewer v. Second Baptist Church (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 791, 801, 197 P.2d 713

Juries as having wider discretion in awarding punitive damages than in awarding compensatory damages. Di Giorgio Fruit Corp. v. AFL-CIO (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 560, 581, 30 Cal. Rptr. 350

[v] Malice Never Presumed

Malice in fact as never presumed and as required to be proved. Davis v. Hearst (1911) 160 Cal. 143, 179, 116 P. 530 ; Nova v. Flaherty (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 761, 764, 303 P.2d 382

[vi] Media Defendants

Private individual suing media defendant as capable of recovering punitive damages only if New York Times test of knowledge or recklessness met. Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 349-350, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789

[vii] No Inference From Failure of Defense

Malice as not inferred from defendant's failure to prove truth or fair comment privilege. Nova v. Flaherty (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 761, 764, 303 P.2d 382

[viii] No Vicarious Liability

Punitive damages as awarded to punish defendant for his or her own wrong and not for wrong of even own agent or employee. Davis v. Hearst (1911) 160 Cal. 143, 170, 116 P. 530 ; Di Giorgio Corp. v. Valley Labor Citizen (1968)

260 Cal. App. 2d 268, 277, 67 Cal. Rptr. 82

Plaintiff as required to prove malice on part of each defendant in order to recover punitive damages against multiple defendants. Davis v. Hearst (1911) 160 Cal. 143, 165, 116 P. 530 ; Di Giorgio Corp. v. Valley Labor Citizen (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 268, 277-278, 67 Cal. Rptr. 82

Award of nominal damages as not required to support award of punitive damages. Contento v. Mitchell (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 356, 358, 104 Cal. Rptr. 591

[x] Proof of Malice Required

Plaintiff as required to prove malice before recovering punitive damages. Davis v. Hearst (1911) 160 Cal. 143, 162, 116 P. 530 ; Gautier v. General Tel. Co. (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 302, 310, 44 Cal. Rptr. 404

Malice required to recover punitive damages for libel under Civ. Code § 48a as being "actual malice" defined by Civ. Code § 48a(4)(d), which requires proof of both hatred or ill will and lack of good faith belief in truth of defamation when published. Manguso v. Oceanside Unified Sch. Dist. (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 574, 577, 581, 200 Cal. Rptr. 535

[xi] Public Figures

Plaintiff suing public figure in California as capable of recovering punitive damages; Civ. Code § 3294 as constitutional in this respect. Maheu v. Hughes Tool Co. (1977) 569 F.2d 459, 478-480

[xii] Purpose of Punitive Damages

Punitive damages as required to punish defendant for own wrong and not wrong of someone else, even the defendant's own agent or employee. Davis v. Hearst (1911) 160 Cal. 143, 170, 116 P. 530 ; Di Giorgio Corp. v. Valley Labor Citizen (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 268, 277, 67 Cal. Rptr. 82

[d] Special Damages

Special damages as essential element of cause of action if defamation not libelous on its face. Gomes v. Fried (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 924, 939, 186 Cal. Rptr. 605

Special damage as essential allegation where defamation not libelous on its face. Smith v. Los Angeles Bookbinders Union (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 486, 494-495, 284 P.2d 194 , overruled on other grounds, MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 551, 343 P.2d 36

Special damages as required to be alleged with specificity. Smith v. Los Angeles Bookbinders Union (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 486, 494, 284 P.2d 194 .

[6] Definitions

[a] Libel

Comments, opinions, and criticisms as capable of carrying defamatory meaning even though based on true or privileged statements of fact. Maidman v. Jewish Publ'ns, Inc. (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 643, 649, 7 Cal. Rptr. 617, 355 P.2d 265

Language as capable of being deemed libelous on its face even though it may carry possible innocent interpretation. MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 549, 343 P.2d 36

False statement of fact as essential element of libel; question of law as to whether statement is one of fact or opinion. Botos v. Los Angeles County Bar Assn. (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 1083, 1088, 199 Cal. Rptr. 236

Statement of opinion as outside meaning of libel, whereas statement of fact or statement meant to convince audience it is factual as possibly libelous on its face. Tschirky v. Superior Court (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 534, 539, 177 Cal. Rptr. 357

Libel distinguished from trade libel. Shores v. Chip Steak Co. (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 627, 630, 279 P.2d 595

[b] Importance of Distinction Between Libel and Slander

Importance of distinction between libel and slander as involving requirement of proving special damages when statement slanderous as opposed to libelous. Correia v. Santos (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 844, 852, 13 Cal. Rptr. 132

[c] Privacy Distinguished

Defamation and privacy distinguished. Kelly v. Johnson Publ'g Co. (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 718, 721, 325 P.2d 659

[d] Slander

Defamation by radio or television broadcast as slander in California. Arno v. Stewart (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 955, 961, 54 Cal. Rptr. 392

Fact oral slander later quoted in newspaper as not making the defamatory statement libel. Mercado v. Hoefler (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 12, 18, 11 Cal. Rptr. 787

[e] Slander Per Se

Statements made defamatory through pleading innuendo and inducement as slanderous per se if within Civ. Code § 46(1)-(4); pleading and proof of special damages not necessary. Jarman v. Rea (1902) 137 Cal. 339, 345-346, 70 P. 216 ; White v. Valenta (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 243, 251-254, 44 Cal. Rptr. 241

[7] Determination of Public Official/Public Figure Question

Trial court determination of public official/public figure issue prior to jury trial in defamation action was not abuse of discretion, because this procedure is consistent with that followed for determination of privilege, and becausee Evid. Code § 320 permits discretion in order of proof unless otherwise provided by law. Weingarten v. Block (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 129, 134, 135, 162 Cal. Rptr. 701

[8] Editorial Process

If member of press is alleged to have circulated damaging falsehoods and is sued for injury to plaintiff's reputation, plaintiff is not barred from inquiring into editorial processes of those responsible for publication by U.S. Const. amends. I, XIV. Herbert v. Lando (1979) 441 U.S. 153, 155, 169-170, 99 S. Ct. 1635, 60 L. Ed. 2d 115

[9] Elements of Action

Jury is required to determine if ordinary reader would have understood allegedly libelous article that was ambiguous as factual assertion charging plaintiff, member of city council, with crime or whether statements were generally understood as opinion respecting plaintiff's public conduct in regard to matter in issue; however, if allegedly defamatory statement unambiguously constitutes either fact or opinion, question is one of law. Good Government Group, Inc. v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 672, 680, 682, 150 Cal. Rptr. 258, 586 P.2d 572 ; see Fuhrman v. Risner (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 725, 731-732, 155 Cal. Rptr. 122

[10] Indemnity of Corporate Officer

Corporate officer as entitled to indemnity for making defamatory statements with respect to corporate business under equitable circumstances. Brokate v. Hehr Mfg. Co. (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 133, 139, 52 Cal. Rptr. 672

[11] Insurance Policies

[a] Applicability of Collateral Estoppel

Principal of collateral estoppel as applicable to case where plaintiff operator of broadcasting station had been held liable for defamatory statement which he refused to retract after proper demand by defamed person; plaintiff operator as estopped from recovering under insurance policy which required compliance with demand. Mulrooney v. Employers Reinsurance Corp. (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 942, 944-946, 81 Cal. Rptr. 907

[b] Coverage

Insurance policy covering plaintiff psychiatrist as applicable to allegedly slanderous statements made when rendering professional service in discussion availability of psychiatric hospital facilities. Geddes v. Tri-State Ins. Co. (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 181, 183-185, 70 Cal. Rptr. 183

[12] Interpretation of Defamatory Language

[a] Construction of Language

[i] All Circumstances Considered

Determining whether language is defamatory as requiring examination of all circumstances attending publication. MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 546, 343 P.2d 36 ; Arno v. Stewart (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 955, 961-962, 54 Cal. Rptr. 392

In applying "totality of circumstances" test, editorial context is powerful element in construing as opinion what might otherwise be considered fact; "spicy prose" used in book to describe opponents in earlier litigation and to provide author's opinion of merits of that litigation, taken in context, was opinion and could not support action for defamation by attorney. Ferlauto v. Hamsher (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1394, 1401-1405, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843

[ii] Entirety of Language Considered

Determining whether language is libelous as including examination of expressions used as well as whole scope and apparent object of writer. MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 546, 343 P.2d 36

Determining whether language is libelous as requiring examination of entirety of language. Stevens v. Storke (1923) 191 Cal. 329, 334, 216 P. 371 ; Handelsman v. San Francisco Chronicle (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 381, 388, 90 Cal. Rptr. 188

[iii] Effect on Average Reader

Determining whether language defamatory as requiring examination of effect of language on mind of average reader. MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 547, 343 P.2d 36 ; Mullins v. Brando (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 409, 415, 91 Cal. Rptr. 796

[iv] Natural Meaning of Words

Determining whether language is defamatory as requiring examination in light of natural and popular construction. MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 546-547, 343 P.2d 36

Court as no more free to infer defamation from what is neither said nor reasonably implied than it would be to infer an innocent meaning from what is not negated by publication. Mullins v. Thieriot (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 302, 305, 97 Cal. Rptr. 27

Determining whether language is defamatory as requiring examination in light of what persons of ordinary intelligence would understand. Williams v. Daily Review, Inc. (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 405, 414-415, 46 Cal. Rptr. 135 , overruled on other grounds, Brown v. Kelly Broadcasting Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 711, 257 Cal. Rptr. 708, 771 P.2d 406 ; Megarry v. Norton (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 581, 583, 290 P.2d 571

[v] Single Readership Mentality Hypothesized

Law as hypothesizing single readership mentality where two meanings are possible. Williams v. Daily Review, Inc. (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 405, 410-411, 46 Cal. Rptr. 135 , overruled on other grounds, Brown v. Kelly Broadcasting Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 711, 257 Cal. Rptr. 708, 771 P.2d 406

[b] Implying Unstated Facts

Letter stating opinion and using terms "mysteriously" and "amazingly" as not implying allegation of undisclosed defamatory facts that would be actionable. Okun v. Superior Court (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 442, 452, 175 Cal. Rptr. 157, 629 P.2d 1369

[c] Language Defamatory on Its Face

Material unambiguous and defamatory on its face as properly withheld from jury and refusal to permit publisher to show understood in innocent sense as correct. Maher v. Devlin (1928) 203 Cal. 270, 278-281, 263 P. 812 ; Arno v. Stewart (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 955, 960, 54 Cal. Rptr. 392

Accusations that physician was untrained and lacked proper credentials were actionable factual assertions. Del Junco v. Hufnagel (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 789, 798-799, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 22

Statements in letter that attorney had acted unconscionably and in violation of ethical duties as lawyer were actionable, because they were not mere hyperbole, epithet, or subjective expressions of disapproval. Ruiz v. Harbor View Community Assn. (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1456, 1472, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 133

Unambiguous language not reasonably capable of being understood as non-defamatory as not proper to submit to jury. Scott v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 277, 288-289, 112 Cal. Rptr. 609 ; Patton v. Royal Indus., Inc. (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 760, 765, 70 Cal. Rptr. 44 .

[d] Language Not Defamatory

Dismissal of action where language not fairly susceptible of defamatory meaning as properly dismissed. Mellen v. Times-Mirror Co. (1914) 167 Cal. 587, 593, 140 P. 277 ; Arno v. Stewart (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 955, 960, 54 Cal. Rptr. 392

Caption "Manhunt at the Border" run during television news report not susceptible to being interpreted to mean manhunt by police when reporters suggested only that police were "investigating" and search was being made by alleged victim. Balzaga v. Fox News Network, LLC (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 1325, 1340-1341, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 782

Attorney's newspaper advertisement stating that persons who had built wood deck after certain date with galvanized screws manufactured by certain manufacturers "may have certain legal rights and be entitled to monetary compensation" and should call the attorney "to investigate whether you have a potential claim" was not actionable defamation; advertisement did not claim that screws were defective, suggesting at most that some screws may have been unsuitable for use in building wood decks, that possibility of legal claim existed, but that further investigation would be needed to determine if claim exists for potential plaintiffs. Simpson Strong-Tie Co. Inc. v. Gore (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 737, 760-763, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 292

Plaintiffs failed to show that statements describing one as "deadbeat dad who owed thousands to wife and children," and other as "bankrupt, drunk, and chewin' tobaccy," were not substantially true. Vogel v. Felice (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1006, 1021-1023, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 350

Use of words "thief" and "liar" during chance confrontation with political foe was constitutionally protected hyperbole. Rosenaur v. Scherer (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 260, 280, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 674

Challenged statement in broadcast interview that hotel had fired union employees illegally could not reasonably be construed as slanderous if considered in context of entire news story; allegedly slanderous statement within news broadcast must be considered in light of entire broadcast. Monterey Plaza Hotel v. Hotel Employees & Restaurant Employees (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1057, 1065-1066, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 10

Rhetorical hyperbole is not actionable; statements such as "when the legal community turns on kids, it doubles their trauma" and that school law specialist "get[s] hassled all the time by attorneys wanting school records without going through the proper motions," in column naming deputy public defender in context of discussion of asserted violations of law by defense attorneys in criminal cases involving child victims, were rhetorical hyperbole in that the statements contained too many generalizations, elastic terms, and elements of subjectivity to be susceptible of proof or disproof. James v. San Jose Mercury News, Inc. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1, 14-15, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 890

Hyperbole is not actionable; media's use of term "bad guy," in broadcasting results of opinion poll of criminal law judges, was at most rhetorical hyperbole and therefore not actionable. Aisenson v. American Broad. Co. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 146, 157, 269 Cal. Rptr. 379

Where only one reasonable interpretation of cartoon exists and it is non-libelous, court as required by law to rule material not defamatory. Yorty v. Chandler (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 467, 475, 91 Cal. Rptr. 709

[e] Language Reserved for Jury Interpretation

Reasonable juror could conclude that statements of county supervisor, impugning company's actions and motives when raising rents at mobilehome parks, were provably false factual assertions, and thus trial court erred in granting county's motion to strike. Manufactured Home Communities v. County San Diego (9th Cir. 2008) 544 F. 3d 959, 963-964

Jury as required to decide if publication defamatory if publication susceptible of either defamatory or nondefamatory meaning. MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 546, 343 P.2d 36 ; Scott v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 277, 288-289, 112 Cal. Rptr. 609

Court as not permitted to rule publication not defamatory on its face if reasonable interpretation indicates susceptibility of defamatory meaning. Mellen v. Times-Mirror Co. (1914) 167 Cal. 587, 593, 140 P. 277 ; Cameron v. Wernick (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 890, 893, 60 Cal. Rptr. 102

Question for jury consideration even if covert meaning ascribed to words is improbable. Carlisle v. Fawcett Publ'ns, Inc. (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 733, 743, 20 Cal. Rptr. 405 ; Gallagher v. Chavalas (1941) 48 Cal. App. 2d 52, 58, 119 P.2d 408

[f] Liability for Insinuations

False inferences or implications raised by arrangement and phrasing of apparently non-libelous statements as potentially injurious as explicit epithets. Kapellas v. Kofman (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 20, 33, 81 Cal. Rptr. 360, 459 P.2d 912

Defendant as liable for insinuations as well as for explicit statements. Maidman v. Jewish Publ'ns, Inc. (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 643, 651, 7 Cal. Rptr. 617 , 355 P.2d 265 , overruled on other grounds, Brown v. Kelly Broadcasting Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 711, 257 Cal. Rptr. 708, 771 P.2d 406 ; Mullins v. Brando (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 409, 415, 91 Cal. Rptr. 796

[g] Meaning as One Understood by Recipient

[k] Test Not Quantitative

Test of libel as not quantitative; single sentence as capable of providing foundation for libel action. Washburn v. Wright (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 789, 795, 68 Cal. Rptr. 224

[13] Jurisdiction Over Nonresident Defendant

Trial court properly granted Hong Kong defendants' motion to quash service of summons for lack of personal jurisdiction in action against religious organization and several individuals for allegedly libelous magazine editorial and misleading conduct in soliciting donations, because undisputed declarations showed that defendants' only contacts with California were that 600 out of 8,500 copies per month of magazine were sent to California readers and that allegedly misleading receipts for contributions were sent to California contributors; trial court was entitled to accept defendants' declaration that no information for magazine article was gathered in California and that defendants' only contact with California was while visiting relatives more than one year prior to publication of article. Evangelize China Fellowship, Inc. v. Evangelize China Fellowship (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 440, 444, 448-449, 194 Cal. Rptr. 240

[14] Language Libelous on Its Face

[a] In General

Definition of libel as very broad in California. Maidman v. Jewish Publications, Inc. (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 643, 649, 7 Cal. Rptr. 617, 355 P.2d 265 ; Bates v. Campbell (1931) 213 Cal. 438, 441, 2 P.2d 383

In libel per se (Civ. Code § 45a), defendant is liable for what is insinuated as well as for what is stated explicitly; that defamatory charge or insinuation also leaves room for innocent interpretation does not establish that defamatory meaning does not appear from language itself. O'Connor v. McGraw-Hill, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 478, 485, 206 Cal. Rptr. 33

[b] Imputation of Crime

Defamation action in which defendant, state official, distributed flyer with plaintiff's photograph on it describing him as active shoplifter as imputing criminal behavior generally actionable as defamatory per se in state court actions; action brought in federal court under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 as dismissed in this situation because plaintiff's interest in his reputation as neither "liberty" nor "property" guaranteed against state deprivation without due process of law. Paul v. Davis (1976) 424 U.S. 693, 699, 96 S. Ct. 1155, 47 L. Ed. 2d 405

Imputing crime to a person as libel per se. Draper v. Hellman Commercial Trust & Sav. Bank (1928) 203 Cal. 26, 34, 263 P. 240 (fraudulent appropriation of funds); Boyich v. Howell (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 801, 802, 34 Cal. Rptr. 794 (stuffing ballot box in union election); Morris v. National Fed'n of Blind (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 162, 164, 13 Cal. Rptr. 336 (calling person "racketeer")

[18] Opinion

[a] No Separate Constitutional Privilege

U.S. Const. amend. I, as not requiring separate constitutional privilege for opinion; First Amendment freedom of expression as adequately secured by existing constitutional doctrine without creation of artificial dichotomy between "opinion" and "fact"; factfinder as required to conclude, based on facts presented and under established constitutional guarantees, whether statements in question are of defamatory nature. Milkovich v. Lorain Journal Co. (1990) 497 U.S. 1, 18-19, 110 S. Ct. 2695, 111 L. Ed. 2d 1

Defendant's use of colorful language to describe unpleasant working conditions with plaintiff, including that work experience was "horrible" and that plaintiff "slaved" for plaintiff, was nonactionable opinion. Nygard, Inc. v. Uusi-Kerttula (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 1027, 1052-1053, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 210

Statements in financial report suggesting accounting improprieties by subject company in order to boost company's stock price were not protected statements of opinion, as statements implied provably false assertions of fact. Overstock.com, Inc. v. Gradient Analytics, Inc. (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 688, 704-705, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 29

Statement made to public suggesting that head football coach at university may have been fired because of unspecified "immoral" behavior was non-actionable statement of opinion, as statement provided no hint as to specific conduct of plaintiff and was incapable of being interpreted as implying provably false assertion of fact because behavior that might qualify as immoral to one person might be perfectly acceptable to another. McGarry v. University of San Diego (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 97, 116-117, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 467

Derogatory statements made about plaintiff during comedy radio talk show, calling plaintiff "local loser," "chicken butt," and "skank," constituted speaker's subjective judgment or rhetorical hyperbole and, because not stating provable facts about plaintiff, were not actionable. Seelig v. Infinity Broad. Corp. (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 798, 810-812, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108

Statements concerning advertisement run by plaintiff, which did not under totality of circumstances imply existence of provably false facts, as not defamatory; hyperbolic statements as protected independently of characterization as opinion. Morningstar, Inc. v. Superior Court (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 676, 688-693, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 547

Statements written by newspaper columnist concerning criminal defense lawyer's tactics in criminal cases involving child victims as protected speech in nature of expression of imaginative expression or rhetorical hyperbole (deputy public defender's acquisition of school records as "really scary part of this story"; deputy public defender went to "extreme lengths"), clearly recognizable as opinion and not reasonably to be understood as statements of literal fact. James v. San Jose Mercury News, Inc. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1, 14, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 890

In action against talk-show host of nationally syndicated television program, statements that charged head of local NAACP chapter with attempted "extortion" (demands for donation in exchange for not publicly charging donor with hiring discrimination), as implying provably false assertion within meaning of Milkovich, and therefore actionable. Edwards v. Hall (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 886, 902-904, 285 Cal. Rptr. 810 (reversing summary judgment in favor of defendant)

In action by former county child welfare worker against privately employed children's counselor, statements by defendant to plaintiff's supervisor, charging plaintiff with professional incompetence, as actionable. Kahn v. Bower (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1599, 1609, 284 Cal. Rptr. 244

In action by antique dealer against television station, implications in television broadcast entitled "Museum Fraud?" that plaintiff had knowingly sold stolen property to museum, as actionable. Weller v. American Broad. Cos., Inc. (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 991, 1002-1007, 283 Cal. Rptr. 644

Alleged defamatory statements that plaintiff was incompetent surgeon as not protected if they imply assertion of false objective fact; trial court's sustaining of demurrer to slander cause of action on ground that statements were opinion as harmless because factual determination showed that statements were true (that plaintiff was incompetent surgeon). Gill v. Hughes (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 1299, 1309, 278 Cal. Rptr. 306

Milkovich v. Lorain Journal Co. (1990) 497 U.S. 1, 110 S. Ct. 2695, 111 L. Ed. 2d 1 , as not substantially changing principles established by California courts by employing test of totality of circumstances to review meaning of language in context and its susceptibility of being proved true or false. Moyer v. Amador Valley Joint Union High Sch. Dist. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 720, 725-726, 275 Cal. Rptr. 494 (statements in student newspaper concerning high school teacher not actionable)

Statements written by student in high school newspaper criticizing teacher as protected speech in nature of expression of subjective judgment (that teacher was "worst in the school"), form of exaggerated expression (that teacher was "babbler"), and rhetorical hyperbole (that smoke bomb was planted in classroom to "terrorize" teacher). Moyer v. Amador Valley Joint Union High Sch. Dist. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 720, 725-726, 275 Cal. Rptr. 494

[b] Pre-Milkovich Determinations of Opinion Versus Fact

Outlandish statements made in pornographic magazine about pornography opponent embroiled in debate over pornography as opinion and not fact because statements could not be understood to describe actual facts about plaintiff or actual events in which plaintiff participated, but would rather be understood as exaggerated criticism of plaintiff because of her views. Dworkin v. Hustler Magazine, Inc. (9th Cir. 1989) 867 F.2d 1188, 1193 ; Leidholdt v. L.F.P. Inc (9th Cir. 1988) 860 F.2d 890, 893-894

Remarks as opinion and not actionable defamation if remarks are not themselves factual, do not suggest that conclusion is being drawn from facts not disclosed in remarks, and are made in context of heated political debate and understood by audience to be opinion rather than statement of fact. Koch v. Goldway (9th Cir. 1987) 817 F.2d 507, 509-510

Opinion as not actionable defamation; opinion as protected because it cannot be false, and statements as not actionable defamation unless they are false. In re Yagman (9th Cir. 1986) 796 F.2d 1165, 1172

Whether statement is one of fact or opinion as, in first instance, question of law. Okun v. Superior Court (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 442, 450, 175 Cal. Rptr. 157, 629 P.2d 1369 ; Gregory v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 596, 601, 131 Cal. Rptr. 641, 552 P.2d 425

Poll conducted by television station, reflecting performance rating of superior court judge by members of criminal law bar, as protected opinion in absence of any evidence that results were falsified by defendant; media's right to broadcast results of opinion polls regarding elected officials as not restricted to election years. Aisenson v. American Broad. Co. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 146, 155-156, 269 Cal. Rptr. 379

In course of interview for newspaper article, reporter's statement to interviewee that subject of article "was a crook and a crooked politician and I don't want him to be reelected" as constitutionally protected opinion. Fletcher v. San Jose Mercury News (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 172, 190-192, 264 Cal. Rptr. 699

[19] Penal Provisions

Criminal libel legislation [former Penal Code §§ 248-251] was unconstitutional. Eberle v. Municipal Court (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 423, 432, 127 Cal. Rptr. 594

[20] Pleading Requirements

[a] Amendments

Leave to amend allegation of complaint setting forth allegedly slanderous statement only in substance as available if there is any reasonable possibility that plaintiff can state good cause of action. Okun v. Superior Court (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 442, 460, 175 Cal. Rptr. 157, 629 P.2d 1369

[b] Colloquium

Pleading of colloquium as required to show that words were spoken of and concerning plaintiff. Washer v. Bank of Am. (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 822, 829, 136 P.2d 297 , overruled on other grounds, MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 343 P.2d 36 ; Carlisle v. Fawcett Publ'ns, Inc. (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 733, 741, 20 Cal. Rptr. 405

Fact person not named in defamatory statement as not precluding meaning that is actionable per se. Washer v. Bank of Am. (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 822, 829, 136 P.2d 297 , overruled on other grounds, MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 343 P.2d 36

Single member of group as required to be able to state cause of action before group can. Mullins v. Brando (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 409, 422-423, 91 Cal. Rptr. 796

Language referring to large group of persons as not capable of being made to apply to plaintiff by use of a colloquium. Los Angeles Fire & Police Protective League v. Rodgers (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 419, 425, 86 Cal. Rptr. 623 (more than 5,000); Smith v. Harnish (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 115, 118, 333 P.2d 815 (indeterminate group); Noral v. Hearst Publications, Inc. (1940) 40 Cal. App. 2d 348, 350, 104 P.2d 860 (greater than 162 persons)

If person defamed not mentioned by name, colloquium that shows that publication points to plaintiff by description or circumstance as sufficient. Di Giorgio Fruit Corp. v. AFL-CIO (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 560, 569-570, 30 Cal. Rptr.

[c] Exact Language Not Required

Plaintiff as not required to set forth precise language in slander action. Fleet v. Tichenor (1909) 156 Cal. 343, 346, 104 P. 458 ; Haub v. Friermuth (1905) 1 Cal. App. 556, 557-558, 82 P. 571 ; see also Okun v. Superior Court (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 442, 458, 175 Cal. Rptr. 157, 629 P.2d 1369 (slander can be charged by alleging substance of defamatory statement)

Plaintiff as required to prove substantially that defendant spoke words that constitute sting of charge. Fleet v. Tichenor (1909) 156 Cal. 343, 346, 104 P. 458 ; Carl v. McDougal (1919) 43 Cal. App. 279, 282, 184 P. 885

[d] Good Reputation Not Required

Pleading of good reputation as not required generally because law presumes plaintiff's reputation is good until defendant attacks it. Draper v. Hellman Commercial Trust & Sav. Bank (1928) 203 Cal. 26, 43, 263 P. 240 ; Davis v. Hearst (1911) 160 Cal. 143, 186, 116 P. 530

Pleading of good reputation is required where plaintiff alleges harm done to plaintiff in plaintiff's business or professional capacity. Draper v. Hellman Commercial Trust & Sav. Bank (1928) 203 Cal. 26, 43, 263 P. 240

Pleading of inducement as required to set forth extrinsic circumstances affecting construction of language and making it actionable. Grand v. Dreyfus (1898) 122 Cal. 58, 62, 54 P. 389

Pleading inducement as indicating situation or opinion of readers which made meaning of words defamatory. Peabody v. Barham (1942) 52 Cal. App. 2d 581, 585, 126 P.2d 668 , overruled on other grounds, MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 551, 343 P.2d 36

[f] Innuendo

Pleading external facts by way of innuendo as not capable of enlarging or changing sense of language and thereby making innocent language defamatory. Emde v. San Joaquin County Cent. Labor Council (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 146, 159-160, 143 P.2d 20

Pleading of innuendo as necessary if meaning of language ambiguous. Washer v. Bank of Am. (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 822, 828, 136 P.2d 297 , overruled on other grounds, MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 343 P.2d 36 ; Bates v. Campbell (1931) 213 Cal. 438, 443, 2 P.2d 383 ; Corman v. Blanchard (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 126, 138, 27 Cal. Rptr. 327

Language bearing only one meaning, which is innocent, as not capable of being made libelous by innuendo. Washer v. Bank of Am. (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 822, 828, 136 P.2d 297 , overruled on other grounds, MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 343 P.2d 36 ; Corman v. Blanchard (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 126, 138, 27 Cal. Rptr. 327

Pleading of explanatory matter as capable of being disregarded as surplusage when publication is libelous on its face. Bates v. Campbell (1931) 213 Cal. 438, 443, 2 P.2d 383 ; Menefee v. Codman (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 396, 404, 317 P.2d 1032 , overruled on other grounds, MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 343 P.2d 36

Words as required to be reasonably understood in defamatory sense before pleading an innuendo can aid pleader. Carlisle v. Fawcett Publ'ns, Inc. (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 733, 743, 20 Cal. Rptr. 405

Pleading innuendo as recognition of fact that language may not be considered defamatory on its face. Babcock v. McClatchy Newspapers (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 528, 533-534, 186 P.2d 737 , overruled on other grounds, MacLeod v. Tribune Publishing Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 551, 343 P.2d 36

Presence of innuendo in complaint as advantageous to defendant. Gallagher v. Chavalas (1941) 48 Cal. App. 2d 52, 57-58, 119 P.2d 408

Plaintiff who places meaning on words by use of innuendo as required to abide by it during trial. Gallagher v. Chavalas (1941) 48 Cal. App. 2d 52, 57, 119 P.2d 408

[g] Malice

Complaint as required to allege presence of constitutional malice if private individual sues media defendant. Gertz v. Welch (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 349-350, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789

Complaint as required to specifically allege malice if complaint discloses qualified privilege under former Civ. Code § 47(3) [now see Civ. Code § 47(c)]. Maidman v. Jewish Publ'ns, Inc. (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 643, 653, 7 Cal. Rptr. 617, 355 P.2d 265 , overruled on other grounds, MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 343 P.2d 36 ; Locke v. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 711, 257 Cal. Rptr. 708, 771 P.2d 406

Pleading that publication was motivated by hatred or ill will toward plaintiff as sufficient allegation of malice to prevent application of qualified privilege under former Civ. Code § 47(3) [now see Civ. Code § 47(c)]. Kelly v. General Tel. Co. (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 278, 285, 186 Cal. Rptr. 184

[h] Plaintiff's Burden of Proof of Falsity

Public figure plaintiff, or private figure plaintiff suing newspaper or other media defendant for publishing speech of public concern, as required by First Amendment to bear burden of proving falsity of defamatory statement before recovering damages. Philadelphia Newspapers v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 768-769, 776-77, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783 (but leaving open question of quantity of proof of falsity required)

[i] Publication

Publication as essential pleading requirement in defamation action. Cunningham v. Simpson (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 301, 307, 81 Cal. Rptr. 855, 461 P.2d 39 (slander); Draper v. Hellman Commercial Trust & Sav. Bank (1928) 203 Cal. 26, 39, 263 P. 240 (libel)

Publication to one person as sufficient. Cunningham v. Simpson (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 301, 307, 81 Cal. Rptr. 855, 461

P.2d 39

Newspaper as unable to state cause of action in libel against person based on letter criticizing newspaper's coverage of certain political candidate; plaintiff's publication of letter (as paid advertisement) as precluding liability. Live Oak Publ'g Co. v. Cohagan (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 1277, 1287, 286 Cal. Rptr. 198

Publication as occurring when statement communicated to any person other than party defamed. Kelly v. General Tel. Co. (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 278, 284, 186 Cal. Rptr. 184

[j] Special Damages

Purpose of special damages requirement as protecting publishers. MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 550, 343 P.2d 36

Complaint alleging publication of language not defamatory on its face as required to allege special damages. Washer v. Bank of Am. (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 822, 827-829, 136 P.2d 297 , overruled on other grounds, MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 343 P.2d 36 (libel and slander); Gautier v. General Tel. Co. (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 302, 309, 44 Cal. Rptr. 404 (slander)

[21] Proof of Reckless Disregard for Truth or Falsity

Criminal accusations against public official made without attempt to confirm accuracy of source and made with knowledge of source's hostility toward plaintiff as possible proof of wanton and reckless disregard of veracity. Fisher v. Larsen (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 627, 640, 188 Cal. Rptr. 216

Plaintiff's status as public official and public figure as requiring proof that publication was false and was circulated with reckless disregard for its truth or falsity; recklessness as not established by (1) failure to obtain plaintiff's version of events, (2) inaccuracies, (3) failure to provide objective picture, or (4) showing that reporting was speculative or even sloppy. Weingarten v. Block (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 129, 144, 147, 162 Cal. Rptr. 701

[22] Public Debates

Criticism of developer's wisdom and motives with implication that developer was motivated by selfish interest rather than public good as well within bounds of protected political debate. Okun v. Superior Court (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 442, 451, 454, 175 Cal. Rptr. 157, 629 P.2d 1369

Statement by successful candidate in school board election accusing plaintiff of violating school privacy laws as truthful and within protected speech of political campaign. Fisher v. Larsen (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 627, 642, 188 Cal. Rptr. 216

Complaint for libel by owner of large parcel of land that had been approved for planned community development against two organizers of referendum drive opposing project alleging that in course of circulating referendum petitions defendants had made false and malicious statements concerning project as properly dismissed after demurrer was sustained because statements did not impugn plaintiff's honesty or accuse it of crime but were expressions of defendants' opinions. Blackhawk Corp. v. Ewing (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 640, 642-644, 156 Cal. Rptr. 581

[23] Special Damages

Partial summary judgment as proper on issue of entitlement to special damages arising from loss of election to public office when no possibility existed that plaintiff could prove loss of election resulted from alleged defamation. Fisher v. Larsen (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 627, 636-636, 188 Cal. Rptr. 216

[24] Standard of Review

Clearly erroneous standard of Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 52(a) as not prescribing standard of review of determination of actual malice in defamation action brought in federal court; independent judgment as required to be exercised to determine whether record establishes actual malice with convincing clarity. Bose Corp. v. Consumers Union of U.S., Inc. (1984) 466 U.S. 485, 514, 104 S. Ct. 1949, 80 L. Ed. 2d 502

[25] Summary Judgment

Clear and convincing evidence standard applicable to actual malice issue as required to be considered by federal court when ruling on motion for summary judgment under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 56 in defamation action. Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc. (1986) 477 U.S. 242, 254, 106 S. Ct. 2505, 91 L. Ed. 2d 202

Summary judgment as favored remedy in actions for defamation because unnecessarily protracted litigation would have chilling effect on exercise of First Amendment rights and speedy resolution of cases involving free speech is desirable; on such motion, trial court as required to determine whether there is sufficient showing of malice to warrant submission of that issue to jury. Reader's Digest Assn. v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 244, 252, 208 Cal. Rptr. 137, 690 P.2d 610 ; Good Government Group, Inc. v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 672, 685, 150 Cal. Rptr. 258, 586 P.2d 572 ; Osmond v. EWAP Inc. (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 842, 854-855, 200 Cal. Rptr. 674 ; Fuhrman v. Risner (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 725, 731, 155 Cal. Rptr. 122

Summary judgment as favored remedy in libel actions because protracted proceedings cause media to hesitate printing articles carrying potential for lawsuit; importance of speech freedoms as necessitating expeditious disposition of defamation litigation. McClatchy Newspapers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 961, 966-967, 234 Cal. Rptr. 702

In defamation action brought by public official, some showing of potential actual malice as required to avoid summary judgment in favor of defendants. Fisher v. Larsen (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 627, 634, 188 Cal. Rptr. 216 , disapproved on other grounds, Reader's Digest v. Superior Court (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 244, 208 Cal. Rptr. 137, 690 P.2d 610

Summary judgment as appropriate when defendant's declaration negated his knowledge of falsity or reckless disregard of falsity of statements about plaintiff union officers, and plaintiffs' declarations failed to raise issue of triable fact regarding defendant's state of mind in making statements. Warren v. Herndon (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 141, 148-149, 171 Cal. Rptr. 220

Summary judgment as proper where plaintiff alleged defamatory statements made outside his presence and two defendants denied allegation in affidavits. Swope v. Moskovitz (1967) 253 Cal. App. 2d 514, 516, 61 Cal. Rptr. 277

[26] Undertaking Not Required

Former Code Civ. Proc. § 830 which required the filing of a $500 written undertaking in all defamations cases as an unconstitutional depri vation of property. Allen v. Jordanos' Inc. (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 160, 164, 125 Cal. Rptr. 31

[27] Uniform Single Publication Act

State's interest in redressing injuries actually occurring within its borders as extending to libel actions brought by nonresident because false statement of fact harms both subject of falsehood and readers, and state may rightly employ its libel laws to discourage deception of its citizens; state as having substantial interest in cooperating with other states through single publication rule to provide forum for efficiently litigating all issues and damage claims arising out of libel in unitary proceeding; single publication rule, forum-state's unusually long statute of limitations, and plaintiff's lack of contact with forum state as not defeating jurisdiction otherwise proper under both due process clause and law of forum state. Keeton v. Hustler Magazine, Inc. (1984) 465 U.S. 770, 776-778, 104 S. Ct. 1473, 79 L. Ed. 2d 790

Cause of action as accruing on first general distribution of publication to public under Uniform Single Publication Act. Belli v. Roberts Bros. Furs (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 284, 289, 49 Cal. Rptr. 625

Defamatory statements made in quasi-judicial proceeding that have some relation thereto as absolutely privileged. King v. Borges (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 27, 32, 104 Cal. Rptr. 414 ; Ascherman v. Natanson (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 861, 865, 100 Cal. Rptr. 656

[b] Communications to Agencies Protected

Employer's communications to unemployment office regarding employee's dismissal as entitled to qualified privilege under former Civ. Code § 47(2) [now see Civ. Code § 47(b)]; other reports by investigators and employer as also entitled to qualified privilege under former Civ. Code § 47(3) [now see Civ. Code § 47(c)]. Ghebreselassie v. Coleman Sec. Serv. (9th Cir. 1987) 829 F.2d 892, 898

Because proceedings undertaken by official investigative and enforcement branch of Internal Revenue Service qualify as actions by quasi-judicial agency regularly engaged in official proceeding authorized by law, communications to such agency designed to prompt regulatory enforcement actions as required to be considered part of official proceeding; even if communication maliciously motivated, privilege as still attaching if statement made to achieve intended objective of proceeding. Tiedemann v. Superior Court (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 918, 926, 148 Cal. Rptr. 242

Communication to official administrative agency designed to prompt action by that agency as protected by absolute privilege under former Civ. Code § 47(2) [now see Civ. Code § 47(b)]. Martin v. Kearney (1975) 51 Cal. App.3d 309, 311, 124 Cal. Rptr. 281 ; Brody v. Montalbano (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 725, 736, 151 Cal. Rptr. 206 ; King v. Borges (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 27, 34, 104 Cal. Rptr. 414

[c] Determinative Factors

Report by supervisory committee of federal credit union concerning termination of employee as not absolutely privileged, because credit union was not governmental agency and proceedings of its supervisory committee or board of directors were not subject to review by writ of mandate. Cuenca v. Safeway San Francisco Employees Fed. Credit Union (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 985, 994-995, 225 Cal. Rptr. 852

Grievance hearings resulting in loss of fundamental vested rights as subject to review by mandate; privilege under former Civ. Code § 47(2) [now see Civ. Code § 47(b)] as applicable to statements made in grievance hearings reviewable by mandate. Wallin v. Vienna Sausage Mfg. Co. (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 1051, 1055-1056, 203 Cal. Rptr. 375

Three primary factors weighed as important in determining whether proceedings are quasi-judicial and thus absolutely privileged under former Civ. Code § 47(2) [now see Civ. Code § 47(b)]. Goodley v. Sullivant (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 619, 625, 108 Cal. Rptr. 451 , disapproved on other grounds, Hackethal v. Weissbein (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 55, 61 n.5, 154 Cal. Rptr. 423, 592 P.2d 1175 ; Ascherman v. Natanson (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 861, 866, 100 Cal. Rptr. 656

[d] Limit on Privilege

Statutory absolute privilege as not extending to communications between private parties, even if communication is required by law. Prevost v. First W. Bank (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1492, 1498-1499, 239 Cal. Rptr. 161

Privilege as applicable only when made to achieve object of meeting. Frisk v. Merrihew (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 319, 324, 116 Cal. Rptr. 781

[e] Policy Underlying Privilege

Communication to administrative agency as absolutely privileged under former Civ. Code § 47(2) [now see Civ. Code § 47(b)]. King v. Borges (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 27, 34, 104 Cal. Rptr. 414

Policy of free speech as underlying application of absolute privilege to quasi-judicial proceedings. Ascherman v. Natanson (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 861, 866, 100 Cal. Rptr. 656

[2] Absolute Privilege for Executive Officers

Absolute privilege for executive officers as applicable for state officials corresponding in rank to federal cabinet members. Saroyan v. Burkett (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 706, 710, 21 Cal. Rptr. 557, 371 P.2d 293

Absolute privilege for executive officers as not applicable to state officials of lesser rank than those equivalent to federal cabinet members. White v. California (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 621, 626-628, 95 Cal. Rptr. 175

[3] Absolute Privilege for Judicial Proceedings

[a] In General

Absolute immunity pursuant to former Civ. Code § 47(2) [now see Civ. Code § 47(b)] as applying when publication (1) was made in judicial proceeding, (2) had some connection or logical relation to action, (3) was made to achieve objectives of litigation, and (4) involved litigants or other participants authorized by law. Silberg v. Anderson (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 205, 212, 266 Cal. Rptr. 638, 786 P.2d 365 ; Costa v. Superior Court (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 673, 677, 204 Cal. Rptr. 1

Absolute privilege of former Civ. Code § 47(2) [now see Civ. Code § 47(b)] as applying to defeat claims of invasion of privacy and intentional infliction of emotional distress, as well as to defeat claims of defamation. Ribas v. Clark (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 355, 364, 212 Cal. Rptr. 143, 696 P.2d 637 ; Williams v. Coombs (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 626, 645-646, 224 Cal. Rptr. 865

Privilege granted by former Civ. Code § 47(2) [now see Civ. Code § 47(b)] as absolute since it protects publications made with actual malice or with intent to do harm. Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375, 379, 295 P.2d 405 ; Bradley v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 818, 824, 106 Cal. Rptr. 718 ; Pettitt v. Levy (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 484, 488, 104 Cal. Rptr. 650 ; Rader v. Thrasher (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 883, 887, 99 Cal. Rptr. 670 ; Smith v. Hatch (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 39, 45, 76 Cal. Rptr. 350

Former Civ. Code § 47(2) [now see Civ. Code § 47(b)] as providing absolute bar to cause of action for defamation stemming from federal district court complaint alleging causes of action for federal and state antitrust violations and related causes of action regarding conduct of hospital administrator; statute as providing absolute privilege unaffected by malice if publication has reasonable relation to action and is permitted by law; filing of lawsuit as publication in course of judicial proceeding. Abraham v. Lancaster Cmty. Hosp. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 796, 809-813, 822, 266 Cal. Rptr. 360

Privilege provided by former Civ. Code § 47(2) [now see Civ. Code § 47(b)] with respect to publications made in any judicial proceeding as applicable to injurious publication, of whatever nature, in protected proceeding; conduct of publishing, rather than publication itself, as what is protected. Rosenthal v. Irell & Manella (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 121, 127-128, 185 Cal. Rptr. 92

[b] Exception to Absolute Privilege

Statement in divorce action that absolutely privileged even though libelous per se. Lyons v. Gilliland (9th Cir. 1962) 303 F.2d 452, 453

Single exception to former Civ. Code § 47(2) as encompassing pleading or affidavit filed in action for marital dissolution or legal separation against person from whom no affirmative relief is being sought. Rader v. Thrasher (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 883, 887, 99 Cal. Rptr. 670 ; see Civ. Code § 47(b)(1)

Statement in divorce action that plaintiff and ex-wife carrying on meretricious relationship as not privileged since plaintiff not being sued for affirmative relief. Rutherford v. Johnson (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 316, 317-319, 58 Cal. Rptr. 546

[c] Liberal Application of Privilege

[i] Favored by Courts

Doubts as resolved in favor of relevancy and pertinency under former Civ. Code § 47(2) [now see Civ. Code § 47(b)]. Thornton v. Rhoden (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 80, 93, 53 Cal. Rptr. 706

Courts as favoring liberal application of absolute privilege for judicial proceedings. Lewis v. Linn (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 394, 399, 26 Cal. Rptr. 6

[ii] Limits on Liberal Application

Communication as privileged under former Civ. Code § 47(2) [now see Civ. Code § 47(b)] only if made to achieve purpose of litigation; attorney's false representation to plaintiff that bench warrant had been issued against her for failure to appear at judgment-debtor examination as not serving purpose of litigation and therefore not privileged. Carney v. Rotkin, Schmerin & McIntyre (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1513, 1521-1523, 254 Cal. Rptr. 478

Tendency to apply absolute privilege for judicial proceedings liberally confined to cases in which public service or administration of justice requires complete immunity. Bradley v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 818, 824, 106 Cal. Rptr. 718

Placement of special emphasis on requirement that publication be in furtherance of litigation as required before it is appropriate for courts to liberally expand privilege. Bradley v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 818, 826, 106 Cal. Rptr. 718 , overruled on other grounds, Silberg v. Anderson (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 205, 266 Cal. Rptr. 638, 786 P.2d 365

[d] Motive or Intent Irrelevant

Allegations that defendant conspired to introduce defamatory material into judicial proceedings do not obviate absolute privilege. McClatchy Newspapers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 961, 968-971, 234 Cal. Rptr. 702

Absolute privilege is not barred by actual malice; court is bound to accept complaint allegations regarding purpose of publication if complaint does not show any other purpose. Financial Corp. of Am. v. Wilburn (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 764, 776-777, 234 Cal. Rptr. 653

[e] No Relevancy Requirement

Letter to organization membership for purpose of describing basis of pending litigation and soliciting support and views of members was covered by privilege under former Civ. Code § 47(2) [now see Civ. Code § 47(b)]. Costa v. Superior Court (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 673, 678, 204 Cal. Rptr. 1

Absolute privilege for judicial proceedings as not requiring relevancy, only that publication have some connection to proceeding. Thornton v. Rhoden (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 80, 90, 53 Cal. Rptr. 706

Absolute privilege for judicial proceedings as protecting attorney from defamation regardless of purpose in publishing material, belief in its truth, or knowledge of its falsity. Thornton v. Rhoden (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 80, 93, 53 Cal. Rptr. 706

Absolute privilege for judicial proceedings as denied to participant in legal proceeding only when matter is palpably irrelevant so that no reasonable man would doubt its impropriety. Jordan v. Lemaire (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 622, 625, 35 Cal. Rptr. 337 ; Lewis v. Linn (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 394, 399, 26 Cal. Rptr. 6

[f] Perjury Protected by Privilege

Absolute privilege for judicial proceedings as covering even perjured testimony of witnesses. Pettitt v. Levy (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 484, 488, 104 Cal. Rptr. 650 ; Kachig v. Boothe (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 626, 641, 99 Cal. Rptr. 393

Criminal action, not civil action for defamation, as only remedy for perjured statement in complaint. Pettitt v. Levy (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 484, 489, 104 Cal. Rptr. 650

Absolute privilege for judicial proceedings as covering perjured documentary evidence. Pettitt v. Levy (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 484, 489, 104 Cal. Rptr. 650 ; Kachig v. Boothe (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 626, 641, 99 Cal. Rptr. 393 ; Agostini v. Strycula (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 804, 808, 42 Cal. Rptr. 314

[g] Persons Covered by Privilege

[6] Absolute Privilege for Proceedings Reviewable by Mandate

Privilege conferred by former Civ. Code § 47(2) [now see Civ. Code § 47(b)] (publication or broadcast made in any legislative or judicial proceeding or in any other official proceeding authorized by law, or in initiation or course of any other proceeding authorized by law and reviewable by writ of mandate) as absolute and unaffected by existence of malice. Dorn v. Mendelzon (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 933, 941, 242 Cal. Rptr. 259

Board of Medical Quality Assurance (BMQA) as administrative agency created by Legislature whose responsibilities include enforcement of Medical Practice Act and review of performance of physicians and surgeons licensed in California, with duty to investigate complaints and power to initiate disciplinary proceedings against practitioners; disciplinary actions taken against licensee as reviewable by mandate; accordingly, any publication in connection with BMQA proceedings as clothed with absolute privilege set forth in former Civ. Code § 47(2) [now see Civ. Code § 47(b)] as having been made in course of official proceeding and proceedings reviewable by writ of mandate. Dorn v. Mendelzon (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 933, 941, 242 Cal. Rptr. 259

Letters or communications designed to prompt official action as being as much part of "official proceeding" as communication made after proceeding has commenced, because, to function effectively, administrative agency as required to have "open channel" by which concerned persons may call attention to suspected wrongdoing; as matter of public policy, importance of providing to citizens free and open access to governmental agencies for reporting of suspected illegal activity as outweighing occasional harm that might befall defamed individual. Dorn v. Mendelzon (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 933, 941-942, 242 Cal. Rptr. 259

Privilege provided by former Civ. Code § 47(2) [now see Civ. Code § 47(b)] as not subject to being defeated by asserting tort theory other than libel or slander based on same protected communication. Dorn v. Mendelzon (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 933, 943, 242 Cal. Rptr. 259

[7] Absolute Privilege of Report in Public Journal

[a] Extent of Privilege

Report of family court proceeding in which mother seeking additional child support claimed that Arnold Dorsey, a.k.a. Engelbert Humperdinck, had AIDS virus as privileged under former Civ. Code § 47(4) [now see Civ. Code § 47(d)]. Dorsey v. National Enquirer, Inc. (9th Cir. 1992) 973 F.2d 1431, 1436-1437

Report of congressional investigation into allegations of corruption in governmental anti-racketeering activity as privileged under former Civ. Code § 47(4) [now see Civ. Code § 47(d)], even if committee investigation not open to public. Crane v. Arizona Republic (9th Cir. 1992) 972 F.2d 1511, 1525-1526

Privilege under former Civ. Code § 47(4) [now see Civ. Code § 47(d)] as applicable to statements made at city council meeting. Green v. Cortez (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 1068, 1073, 199 Cal. Rptr. 221

"Fair report" concept of former Civ. Code § 47(4) [now see Civ. Code § 47(d)] as permitting some degree of literary license, so that report using exaggerated terms is privileged as long as the gist of report is justified. Jennings v. Telegram-Tribune Co. (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 119, 125-127, 210 Cal. Rptr. 485

Fair and true report of judicial proceeding as privileged under former Civ. Code § 47(4) [now see Civ. Code § 47(d)] and if subject of statement is presiding judicial officer, even report that is not fair and true as not supporting imposition of liability absent malice. Grillo v. Smith (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 868, 873, 193 Cal. Rptr. 414

Application of absolute privilege of report in public journal as requiring only substantial accurancy. Handelsman v.

San Francisco Chronicle (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 381, 386, 90 Cal. Rptr. 188 ; Hayward v. Watsonville Register-Pajaronian & Sun (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 255, 262, 71 Cal. Rptr. 295 ; Kurata v. Los Angeles News Publ'g Co. (1935) 4 Cal. App. 2d 224, 227-228, 40 P.2d 520

Privilege as applicable to oral statements of district attorneys, sheriffs, and police officers, crime reports of police department, and FBI identification records. Hayward v. Watsonville Register-Parajonian & Sun (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 255, 260, 71 Cal. Rptr. 295

Privilege as applicable to publication of charge made in complaint. Kurata v. Los Angeles News Publ'g Co. (1935) 4 Cal. App. 2d 224, 227, 40 P.2d 520

Error in naming paper or characterizing writing in which publication alleged to be libelous appears as not defeating privilege. Mortensen v. Los Angeles Examiner (1931) 112 Cal. App. 194, 202, 296 P. 927 , overruled on other grounds, Lipman v. Brisbane Elementary Sch. Dist. (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 224, 11 Cal. Rptr. 97, 359 P.2d 465

Privilege as applicable to report of charge of being corespondent in divorce action made during trial. Mortensen v. Los Angeles Examiner (1931) 112 Cal. App. 194, 207, 296 P. 927 , overruled on other grounds, Lipman v. Brisbane Elementary Sch. Dist. (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 224, 11 Cal. Rptr. 97, 359 P.2d 465

[b] Policy Underlying Substantial Accuracy Rule

Inaccurate and defamatory reports of judicial proceedings as not requiring showing of actual malice. Time, Inc. v. Firestone (1976) 424 U.S. 448, 453, 454, 96 S. Ct. 958, 47 L. Ed. 2d 154

Reason for substantial accuracy rule as fact that exact reproduction as potentially harmful as reporter's interpretation. Handelsman v. San Francisco Chronicle (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 381, 386, 90 Cal. Rptr. 188

[c] Test for Determining Accuracy

Test of accuracy for privilege as standard of accuracy for those whose function it is to give public fair report of what has occurred. Handelsman v. San Francisco Chronicle (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 381, 387, 90 Cal. Rptr. 188

[8] Absolute Privilege of Report of Public Meeting

Privilege encompassed within former Civ. Code § 47(5) [now see Civ. Code § 47(e)] as absolute privilege; malice as not proper issue if privilege asserted. Williams v. Daily Review, Inc. (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 405, 518-519, 46 Cal. Rptr. 135

Privilege as applicable to fair and true report of public meeting lawfully convened and open to public, or of public meeting not lawfully convened or not open to public if publication is for public benefit. Williams v. Daily Review, Inc. (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 405, 418, 46 Cal. Rptr. 135 , overruled on other grounds, Brown v. Kelly Broadcasting Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 711, 257 Cal. Rptr. 708, 771 P.2d 406

[9] Absolute Quasi-Judicial Immunity

Absolute quasi-judicial immunity under common law as properly extended to neutral third persons for their conduct in performing dispute-resolution services that are connected to judicial process and involve (1) making of binding decisions, (2) making of findings or recommendations to court, or (3) arbitration, mediation, conciliation, evaluation, or similar resolution of pending disputes; psychologist retained by parties to prepare written report for use in child-custody determination by court as entitled to immunity. Howard v. Drapkin (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 843, 860, 271 Cal. Rptr. 893

[10] Attorney Fees in Action Against Peace Officer

Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.7 as allowing award of attorney fees in libel and slander actions involving peace officers and their employers; statute as not authorizing award of attorney fees to defendant who prevails in libel or slander lawsuit not involving peace officers or their employers. Planned Protective Servs., Inc. v. Gorton (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 245 Cal. Rptr. 790

[11] Child-Abuse Reporting Statutes

Psychologist, who gave written opinion of child abuse to father, as lacking immunity under Penal Code §§ 11164-11174.3 because he failed to report suspected instance of child abuse to authorized agencies or individuals. Searcy v. Auerbach (9th Cir. 1992) 980 F.2d 609, 610-611

Psychotherapist as not entitled to refuse deposition request for confidential communications related to child-abuse report on basis of psychotherapist-patient privilege (Evid. Code §§ 1012, 1014) in defamation action brought against plaintiff's former spouse who reported suspected child abuse to psychotherapist, based on consequent report to authorities made by psychotherapist pursuant to Penal Code § 11166(a); plaintiff's need for disclosure as outweighing defendant's right to privacy. Roe v. Superior Court (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 832, 843, 280 Cal. Rptr. 380

[12] Consent

Defendant as not able to utilize defense of consent where he merely repeats at plaintiff's urging the charge of being a thief which had been made in presence of third person and thus published. Puchan v. Godeau (1914) 167 Cal. 692, 694, 140 P. 952 ; Moranville v. Aletto (1957) 153 Cal. App. 2d 667, 671, 315 P.2d 91

"Personal Depiction Waiver" given by plaintiff to author and publisher as not constituting consent to defamation, libel, and invasion of privacy for purposes of demurrer if waiver is ambiguous on its face or does not suggest it was knowingly made; extent of privilege conferred by consent as determined by language or acts by which consent given in light of surrounding circumstances. Kelly v. William Morrow & Co. (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1625, 1633, 1635, 231 Cal. Rptr. 497

Plaintiff's disclosure of defendant's defamatory statement of reasons for firing plaintiff as not constituting consent to defamation because defendant could have reasonably foreseen plaintiff would be under strong compulsion to disclose statement to prospective employer. McKinney v. County of Santa Clara (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 787, 796-798, 168 Cal. Rptr. 89

Request to publish defamatory material as creating absolute privilege that cannot be overcome by showing of malice. Royer v. Steinberg (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 490, 499, 153 Cal. Rptr. 499

[13] Due Care by Radio and Television Broadcasters

Provisions of Civ. Code § 48.5 as providing defense of due care where defamatory statement made by someone other than owner or owner's agent. Correia v. Santos (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 844, 856, 13 Cal. Rptr. 132

[14] Governmental Immunity

Government officials as not personally liable for discretionary acts within the scope of their authority. Burgdorf v. Funder (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 443, 448-449, 54 Cal. Rptr. 805 (tax official)

[15] Justification by Truth

[a] Burden of Pleading on Defendant

Burden of pleading truth of publication as resting with defendant. Swaffield v. Universal Ecsco Corp. (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 147, 164, 76 Cal. Rptr. 680

[b] Burden of Proof of Falsity

Public figure, or private figure suing newspaper or other media defendant for publishing speech of public concern, as required by U.S. Const. amend. I, to bear burden of proving falsity of defamatory statement before recovering damages; standards applicable to action by private plaintiff against nonmedia defendant as open question. Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 768-769, 776-777, 779 n.4, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783

Burden of proving truth of falsity of publication as resting with defendant. Shumate v. Johnson Publ'g Co. (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 121, 131, 293 P.2d 531

[c] Complete Defense

Truth as complete defense against defamation action. Draper v. Hellman Commercial Trust & Sav. Bank (1928) 203 Cal. 26, 34, 263 P. 240 ; Snively v. Record Publ'g Co. (1921) 185 Cal. 565, 574, 198 P. 1 , overruled on other grounds, Brown v. Kelly Broadcasting Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 711, 257 Cal. Rptr. 708, 771 P.2d 406 ; Davis v. Hearst (1911) 160 Cal. 143, 195, 116 P. 530 ; Swaffield v. Universal Ecsco Corp. (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 147, 164, 76 Cal. Rptr. 680 ; Washer v. Bank of Am. (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 501, 509, 197 P.2d 202

[d] Liability for Part of Publication

Defendant as liable for any material part of publication proved not true. Shumate v. Johnson Publ'g Co. (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 121, 132, 293 P.2d 531

[e] Risk in Pleading Truth

Pleading defense of truth as involving risk of malice being inferred. Shumate v. Johnson Publ'g Co. (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 121, 138 n.6, 293 P.2d 531

[f] Subjective Belief Immaterial

Objective truth, not subjective truth, as standard for justification defense. Emde v. San Joaquin County Cent. Labor Council (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 146, 160, 143 P.2d 20

Defamatory publication as inferentially false. Shumate v. Johnson Publ'g Co. (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 121, 131, 293 P.2d 531

[g] Substantial Truth Sufficient

Defendant as required to prove only substantial, not literal, truth of publication. Emde v. San Joaquin County Cent. Labor Council (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 146, 160, 143 P.2d 20 ; Handelsman v. San Francisco Chronicle (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 381, 387, 90 Cal. Rptr. 188

One statement that may have been false and potentially libelous in lengthy newspaper article, gist of which was substantially true, was not actionable. Carver v. Bonds (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 328, 358-359, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 480

Immaterial variances and defects of proof disregarded if defendant justifies substance of publication. Stoneking v. Briggs (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 563, 573, 62 Cal. Rptr. 249

[16] Mitigation

Mitigating circumstances defined as acting in good faith, with honesty of purpose, and not maliciously. Clay v. Lagiss (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 441, 448, 299 P.2d 1025 ; Shumate v. Johnson Publ'g Co. (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 121, 135, 293 P.2d 531

[17] Petition Clause of First Amendment

Petition Clause of U.S. Const. amend. I, as guaranteeing right to petition government for redress of grievances and assuring specific freedom of expression; Petition Clause as not providing absolute immunity from damages for libel. McDonald v. Smith (1985) 472 U.S. 479, 483-485, 105 S. Ct. 2787, 86 L. Ed. 2d 384

[18] Privileges in General

[a] Absolute Versus Qualified Privileges

[i] Absolute Privileges

Requirement by federal and state law for insurers to provide explanation of reason for denying reimbursement of patients' claims as not creating absolute privilege for publication because insurers are neither officials nor acting in official capacity. Slaughter v. Friedman (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 149, 155-156, 185 Cal. Rptr. 244, 649 P.2d 886

Absolute privilege distinguished from "qualified" or "conditional" privilege. Saroyan v. Burkett (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 706, 708, 21 Cal. Rptr. 557, 371 P.2d 293

Absolute privilege as extending to acts of state executive officers who correspond to federal cabinet members and not to state officials of lower rank. Saroyan v. Burkett (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 706, 710, 21 Cal. Rptr. 557, 371 P.2d 293

Absolute privilege as extending to participants in and publications arising from judicial proceedings. Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375, 379, 295 P.2d 405

In action for malicious prosecution and intentional infliction of emotional distress, based on defendant's statements to police and district attorney accusing plaintiff of committing crimes against her, defendant's statements as absolutely privileged under former Civ. Code 47(2) [now see Civ. Code § 47(b)]. Cote v. Henderson (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 796, 806, 267 Cal. Rptr. 274

Absolute privilege under former Civ. Code § 47(2) [now see Civ. Code § 47(b)] as extending to statements made to California Highway Patrol during employment background investigation by Patrol. O'Shea v. General Tel. Co. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1040, 1048, 238 Cal. Rptr. 715

Absolute privilege accorded media by former Civ. Code § 47(4) [now see Civ. Code § 47(d)] as not affected by malice or abuse of privilege by speaker. McClatchy Newspapers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 961, 974, 234 Cal. Rptr. 702 ; Green v. Cortez (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 1068, 1074-1075, 199 Cal. Rptr. 221

Newspaper opinion criticizing behavior of judges and opining that court order was illegal as absolutely privileged under First Amendment and as not required to have any legal or factual basis to be protected. Grillo v. Smith (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 868, 874-875, 193 Cal. Rptr. 414

Absolute privilege under former Civ. Code § 47(2) [now see Civ. Code § 47(b)] as extending to statements made in any official proceeding authorized by law, including communication concerning possible wrongdoing made to official governmental agency designed to prompt action by that entity, and employer's statement of reasons for discharging employee made to state Department of Employment Development. Williams v. Taylor (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 745, 753-754, 181 Cal. Rptr. 423 ; but see Fenelon v. Superior Court (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1476, 1483, 273 Cal. Rptr. 367 (declining to follow Williams regarding absolute privilege afforded to statements made solely to police outside quasi-judicial context)

Absolute privilege of former Civ. Code § 47(1) [now see Civ. Code § 47(a)] as not extending to lower level officials even if publication was made while official was exercising policymaking function and acting within the scope of official duties. Frisk v. Merrihew (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 319, 323, 116 Cal. Rptr. 781 ; White v. State of California (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 621, 626-627, 95 Cal. Rptr. 175

Absolute privilege as extending to participants in and publications arising from legislative proceedings. Scott v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 277, 288, 112 Cal. Rptr. 609

Absolute privilege as extending to participants in and publications arising from quasi-judicial proceedings. Ascherman v. Natanson (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 861, 866, 100 Cal. Rptr. 656

Absolute privilege conveyed by former Civ. Code § 47(4) [now see Civ. Code § 47(d)]. See Handelsman v. San Francisco Chronicle (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 381, 386, 90 Cal. Rptr. 188

Absolute privilege conveyed by former Civ. Code § 47(5) [now see Civ. Code § 47(e)]. Williams v. Daily Review, Inc. (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 405, 418, 46 Cal. Rptr. 135 , overruled on other grounds, Brown v. Kelly Broadcasting Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 711, 257 Cal. Rptr. 708, 771 P.2d 406

[ii] Loss of Absolute Privilege

Absolute privilege as applicable only to publication reasonably related to action, permitted by law, and made to achieve objects of proceeding. Frisk v. Merrihew (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 319, 324, 166 Cal. Rptr. 781 ; Bradley v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 818, 824-826, 106 Cal. Rptr. 718 , overruled on other grounds, Silberg v. Anderson (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 205, 266 Cal. Rptr. 638, 786 P.2d 365

Defamatory statement initially cloaked in absolute privilege as capable of losing protection when uttered on non-privileged occasion. Bradley v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 818, 827, 106 Cal. Rptr. 718

[b] Abuse of Privilege Question for Jury

Issue whether privileged occasion abused as jury question unless facts permit only one conclusion. Frisk v. Merrihew (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 319, 326, 116 Cal. Rptr. 781

[c] Burden of Pleading

[i] Absence of Privilege Essential

Defendant as not required to establish privilege where complaint affirmatively discloses absolute privilege. Whelan v. Wolford (1958) 164 Cal. App. 2d 689, 693, 331 P.2d 86

[ii] Defendant

Defense of privilege as affirmative one requiring specific pleading unless it appears on face of complaint. Locke v. Mitchell (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 599, 602, 61 P.2d 922 ; Peoples v. Tautfest (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 630, 635, 79 Cal. Rptr. 478 ; Everett v. California Teachers Ass'n (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 291, 293, 25 Cal. Rptr. 120

Defendant as having burden of pleading and proving conditional privilege. Fairfield v. Hagan (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 194, 204, 56 Cal. Rptr. 402

[iii] Demurrer Available

Demurrer available as matter of defense where existence of privilege disclosed on face of complaint. Locke v. Mitchell (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 599, 602, 61 P.2d 922 ; Whelan v. Wolford (1958) 164 Cal. App. 2d 689, 693, 331 P.2d 86

If existence of privilege is revealed on face of complaint, demurrer as appropriate. Green v. Cortez (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 1068, 1072-1073, 199 Cal. Rptr. 221

Demurrer based on privilege under former Civ. Code § 47(4) [now see Civ. Code § 47(d)] as properly sustained because plaintiff stipulated that complaint could not be amended to allege inaccurate reporting. Green v. Cortez (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 1068, 1072, 1075, 199 Cal. Rptr. 221

[d] Decisional Definition of Malice

Definition of actual malice as "a desire or disposition to injure another founded upon spite or ill will." Siemon v. Finkle (1923) 190 Cal. 611, 618, 213 P.954 ; White v. California (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 621, 628-629, 95 Cal. Rptr. 175

Definition of actual malice as a state of mind arising from hatred or ill will, evidencing a willingness to vex, annoy, or injure another person. Davis v. Hearst (1911) 160 Cal. 143, 160, 164, 116 P. 530 ; Dietrich v. Litton Indus., Inc. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 704, 714, 90 Cal. Rptr. 856 ; see Cunningham v. Simpson (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 301, 308, 81 Cal. Rptr. 855, 461 P.2d 39

Definition of actual malice as personal hatred or ill will towards the plaintiff, or wanton disregard of the civil obligations of the defendants toward the plaintiff. Hearne v. De Young (1901) 132 Cal. 357, 361-362, 64 P. 576 ; White v. California (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 621, 628-629, 95 Cal. Rptr. 175

Malice as established by showing that publication was motivated by hatred or ill will towards plaintiff or by showing that defendant lacked reasonable grounds for belief in truth of publication and therefore acted in reckless disregard of plaintiff's rights. Dorn v. Mendelzon (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 933, 945, 242 Cal. Rptr. 259

Actual malice or malice in fact as malice necessary to defeat qualified privilege; defined as state of mind arising from hatred or ill will, evidencing willingness to vex, annoy, or injure another person, or lack of reasonable grounds on part of publisher of defamatory statement to believe statement was true, with publication made with reckless disregard for plaintiff's rights. Cuenca v. Safeway San Francisco Employees Fed. Credit Union (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 985, 994-995, 225 Cal. Rptr. 852

To defeat qualified privilege of former Civ. Code § 47(3) [now see Civ. Code § 47(c)], plaintiff as required to show defendant's hatred or ill will or lack of good faith belief in truth of defamatory publication, but not both; stricter burden of proof required to show "actual malice" under Civ. Code § 48a(4)(d) as not applicable to show "malice" under former Civ. Code § 47(3) [now see Civ. Code § 47(c)]. Manguso v. Oceanside Unified Sch. Dist. (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 574, 580-581, 200 Cal. Rptr. 535

Malice respecting liability for libel as malice in law, to be distinguished from malice in fact or actual malice proved by evidence of evil motive and intent, which is basis for punitive damages for libel. Burnett v. National Enquirer, Inc. (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 991, 1006-1007, 193 Cal. Rptr. 206

[e] Effect of Failure to Award Punitive Damages

Mere failure to award punitive damages as not necessarily negating existence of malice and thus destroying availability of conditional privilege. Brewer v. Second Baptist Church (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 791, 800-801, 197 P.2d 713

[f] Evidence of Malice; Test of Relevancy

(1921) 185 Cal. 565, 576, 198 P. 1 , overruled on other grounds, Brown v. Kelly Broadcasting Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 711, 257 Cal. Rptr. 708, 771 P.2d 406*

[v] When Privilege Is Lost

Qualified privilege as lost if occasion giving rise to privilege is abused. Brewer v. Second Baptist Church (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 791, 797, 197 P.2d 713 ; Emde v. San Joaquin County Cent. Labor Council (1948) 23 Cal. 2d 146, 154-155, 143 P.2d 20

Qualified privilege as lost if publication motivated by hatred or ill will or by any cause other than desire to protect interest which privileged designed to protect. Brewer v. Second Baptist Church (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 791, 797, 197 P.2d 713

Qualified privilege as lost if defendant has knowledge of its falsity. MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 552, 343 P.2d 36 ; Roemer v. Retail Credit Co. (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 368, 371, 83 Cal. Rptr. 540

Claims of good faith and innocent motives as not excusing publication of known false and defamatory statements. Patton v. Royal Indus., Inc. (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 760, 766, 70 Cal. Rptr. 44 ; Russell v. Geis (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 560, 566, 59 Cal. Rptr. 569

[19] No Defamatory Meaning Conveyed as Defense

Defendant as capable of showing that words not understood at all, taken in jest, or some meaning other than the obvious one was conveyed to all who heard or read them. Arno v. Stewart (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 955, 962-963, 54 Cal. Rptr. 392

Jocular intent of publisher as not relieving him from liability if it is reasonable to not understand utterance as joke. Ervin v. Record Publ'g Co. (1908) 97 P. 21 ; Arno v. Stewart (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 955, 964, 54 Cal. Rptr. 392

[20] Opinion as Defense

Bar Association's opinion of candidate for judicial office as not defamatory; opinions as protected by U.S. Const. amend. I, public as well served by public comment by bar association, and bar association as having vested interest in aiding public in election of judges. Botos v. Los Angeles County Bar Assn. (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 1083, 1088-1090, 199 Cal. Rptr. 236

[21] Special Damages Not Alleged

Special damages as required to be alleged with particularity. Pridonoff v. Balokovich (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 788, 791-792, 228 P.2d 6 ; Smith v. Los Angeles Bookbinders Union (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 486, 494, 284 P.2d 194 , overruled on other grounds, MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 551, 343 P.2d 36

Purpose of pleading special damages with particularity as protecting defendant from surprise. Pridonoff v. Balokovich (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 788, 792, 228 P.2d 6

General allegation of loss of prospective employment, sale, or profit as not sufficient allegation of special damages. Pridonoff v. Balokovich (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 788, 792, 228 P.2d 6 (dictum); Smith v. Los Angeles Bookbinders Union (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 486, 494-495, 284 P.2d 194 (general allegation of injury to business of $100,000 as not sufficient), overruled on other grounds, MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 343 P.2d 36

Allegation of special damages as sufficiently specific where loss of employment with specific employer, for specific period, and in specific amount alleged. Pridonoff v. Balokovich (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 788, 792, 228 P.2d 6

[22] Statute of Limitations

Statute of limitations as one year for libel and slander actions. Hopper v. Allen (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 797, 801-803, 72 Cal. Rptr. 435 ; Rutherford v. Johnson (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 316, 318, 58 Cal. Rptr. 546

Libel as occurring on publication and statute of limitations as beginning to run at that time. Campbell v. Jewish Comm. for Pers. Serv. (1954) 125 Cal. App. 2d 771, 774, 271 P.2d 185

[23] Statutory Protection Afforded Newspapers and Broadcasters

[a] Adequacy of Demand for Retraction

Plaintiff's demand for retraction of "certain statements" as not sufficient under Civ. Code § 48a. Anderson v. Hearst Publ'g Co. (S.D. Cal. 1954) 120 F. Supp. 850, 852

Purpose of specificity requirement as being to facilitate publisher's investigative efforts in determining whether statements were erroneous. Kapellas v. Kofman (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 20, 30, 81 Cal. Rptr. 360, 459 P.2d 912

Test for adequacy of demand for retraction as whether publisher should reasonably have comprehended which statements plaintiff protested and wished corrected. Kapellas v. Kofman (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 20, 31-32, 81 Cal. Rptr. 360, 459 P.2d 912 ; MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 554, 343 P.2d 36

Demand for retraction that referred to certain statements as insufficient under Civ. Code § 48a to give publisher notice that photograph and its caption were also included in request for retraction. Gomes v. Fried (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 924, 938, 186 Cal. Rptr. 605

[b] All Participants Covered by Retraction Statute

Coverage of retraction statute as extending to all participants in publication or broadcast. Field Research Corp. v. Superior Court (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 110, 114, 77 Cal. Rptr. 243, 453 P.2d 747 ; Pridonoff v. Balokovich (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 788, 791, 228 P.2d 6

[c] Constitutionality of Retraction Statute

Retraction statute as not violative of either California or United States Constitutions. Werner v. Southern Cal. Associated Newspapers (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 121, 124-137, 216 P.2d 825

[d] Effect of Demand for Retraction

Publisher as not able to refuse demand for retraction on basis of some general objections where other objections are specific. Kapellas v. Kofman (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 20, 33, 81 Cal. Rptr. 360, 459 P.2d 912

[e] Magazines Not Protected by Retraction Statute

Retraction statute as not covering magazines. Alioto v. Cowles Communications, Inc. (9th Cir. 1975) 519 F.2d 777, 778-789 ; Montandon v. Triangle Publ'ns, Inc. (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 938, 949-953, 120 Cal. Rptr. 186 ; see Burnett v. National Enquirer, Inc. (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 991, 1000-1001, 193 Cal. Rptr 206

[f] Nonparticipants Not Covered by Retraction Statute

[i] In General

Coverage of retraction statute as not extending to non-participants in publishing or broadcasting enterprise. Field Research Corp. v. Superior Court of San Francisco (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 110, 113-114, 77 Cal. Rptr. 243, 453 P.2d 747 ; Pridonoff v. Balokovich (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 788, 791, 228 P.2d 6

Limitation of retraction statute to persons engaged in immediate dissemination of news as justified by damages, inability to check sources, and possibility of effective retraction. Field Research Corp. v. Superior Court (1969) 71

Cal. 2d 110, 114, 77 Cal. Rptr. 243, 453 P.2d 747 ; Werner v. Southern Cal. Associated Newspapers (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 121, 125-134, 216 P.2d 825

Weekly publication as not protected by Civ. Code § 48a because publication's content was based on "how to," celebrity, medical, or personal improvement stories and gossip items, rather than politics, sports, crime, or wire service items and because lead time for stories was one to three weeks. Burnett v. National Enquirer, Inc. (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 991, 1000, 193 Cal. Rptr. 206

[ii] Intruder on Television Program

Intruder on television program as not afforded privilege of retraction statute. White v. Valenta (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 243, 249-250, 44 Cal. Rptr. 241

[iii] Ordinary Slanderer

Ordinary slanderer as not afforded protection of retraction statute merely because his or her remarks subsequently find their way into a newspaper later. Mercado v. Hoefler (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 12, 18-19, 11 Cal. Rptr. 787

[g] Purpose of Retraction Statute

Purpose of retraction statute as to encourage free and rapid dissemination of news. Field Research Corp. v. Superior Court (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 110, 114, 77 Cal. Rptr. 243, 453 P.2d 747 ; Pridonoff v. Balokovich (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 788, 228 P.2d 6

Purpose of retraction statute as not to allow person questioned concerning his or her own conduct to give false information with impunity. Dietrich v. Litton Indus., Inc. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 704, 712, 90 Cal. Rptr. 856

[h] Republications Protected by Retraction Statute

Retraction staute as covering republication of article where author does not authorize, consent to, or intentionally participate in republication of the article. Di Giorgio Corp. v. Valley Labor Citizen (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 268, 274, 67 Cal. Rptr. 82

Republication in another newspaper as never subjecting original newspaperman to punitive damages. Di Giorgio Corp. v. Valley Labor Citizen (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 268, 275-276, 67 Cal. Rptr. 82

[i] Service on Publisher or Broadcaster

Service requirements of retraction statute as met in libel action when notice and demand are served on publisher, on publisher's designee, or on employee other than designee if publisher acquires actual knowledge of notice and demand within statutory 20-day period. Freedom Newspapers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 652, 658, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 839, 842 P.2d 138 (overruling Field Research Corp. v. Superior Court (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 110, 113-114, 77 Cal. Rptr. 243, 453 P.2d 747 , and Pridonoff v. Balokovich (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 788, 791, 228 P.2d 6 , to extent inconsistent with opinion)

Service of demand on author of article as not necessary if demand already served on publisher. Larrick v. Gilloon (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 408, 420,421, 1 Cal. Rptr. 360 , overruled on other grounds, Field Research Corp. v.

Superior Court (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 110, 114 n.4, 77 Cal. Rptr. 243, 453 P.2d 747

[j] Sufficiency of Retraction

Issue of whether newspaper's retraction of allegedly libelous statement was as conspicuous as allegedly libelous article as question of fact for jury. Pierce v. San Jose Mercury News (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1626, 1631-1633, 263 Cal. Rptr. 410 ; Twin Coast Newspapers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 656, 660-662, 256 Cal. Rptr. 310 (undisputed facts may, however, compel conclusion that retraction was adequate as matter of law)

Retraction as insufficient when headline to gossip column failed to mention retraction and retraction was eighth item in ten item column, whereas libelous statements had been fourth item in earlier column, and retraction was substantially shorter and occupied less column space than original item. Burnett v. National Enquirer, Inc. (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 991, 1011 n.8, 193 Cal. Rptr. 206

[24] Summary Judgment Procedure as Favored Defense

Summary judgment procedure as particularly appropriate for speedy resolution of defamation actions involving First Amendment interests; motion for summary judgment by defendant in such action as requiring trial court to determine whether there is sufficient showing of malice to warrant submission of that issue to jury. Good Government Group, Inc. v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 672, 685, 150 Cal. Rptr. 258, 586 P.2d 572 ; Osmond v. EWAP Inc. (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 842, 854-855, 200 Cal. Rptr. 674

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST
A. Defamation: Libel And Slander Complaints

30-340 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 340.180

§ 340.180 Facts to Be Ascertained

NOTE:
The following plaintiff's general procedural checklist is illustrative only of the basic points which counsel for a plaintiff in a defamation action should cover. Not all of the following facts will be ascertainable from the client in the initial interview. Subsequent interviews may be required or it may be necessary to ascertain the facts from other persons, including the potential defendant, by use of discovery proceedings.

1. Facts relating to plaintiff:

a. Name, address, and telephone number of plaintiff.

b. Capacity of plaintiff (such as minor, adult, corporation, unincorporated association (e.g., union), partner in partnership, public employee, etc.).

c. Additional facts, as desired, relating to plaintiff's stability and financial solvency (such as employment status, prior residences, credit, bank, and personal references).

2. Facts relating to defendants:

a. Name and address of each potential defendant.

b. Capacity of each potential defendant (such as corporation, unincorporated association, agent, employee, public entity, public employer, newspaper publisher, radio broadcaster, television broadcaster, etc.).

3. Facts relating to possible privileges available to defendant(s):

a. Whether the words were spoken or written by an executive officer in state government [see Civ. Code § 47(a)].

b. Whether the words were spoken or written in connection with a legislative, judicial, or other official proceeding, or proceeding reviewable by mandate pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1084-1097 [Civ. Code § 47(b)].

c. Whether the words were spoken or written by the defendant to a person who was interested in the communication, to a person who was related to the defendant, or to a person who requested the defendant to give him the information [see Civ. Code § 47(c)]. If so, whether the words were spoken or written with sufficient malice to negate the qualified privilege.

d. Whether the words were written in a public journal concerning an official proceeding or verified complaint [see Civ. Code § 47(d)].

e. Whether the words were written in a report of a public meeting or of a matter for the public benefit [see Civ. Code § 47(e)].

4. Facts relating to defamatory publication by private defendant(s):

a. The precise words which were spoken or written by the defendant(s).

b. The reason the words were false.

c. The way in which the words were harmful to the plaintiff's reputation.

d. The names and other pertinent facts concerning potential witnesses of the publication of the defamatory words (where slander is involved).

e. The meaning of the words, if ambiguous, as understood by the plaintiff and others who read, saw, or heard the words (the "innuendo").

f. The circumstances under which the words were communicated (the "inducement").

g. The reason the words referred to the plaintiff if the plaintiff was not named specifically (the "colloquium").

h. Whether the words were spoken or written (in order to apply relevant choice of law principles).

NOTE:
After collecting all of the above facts, counsel for plaintiff must determine whether the words were libelous per se [see Civ. Code §§ 45, 45a] or slanderous per se [see Civ. Code § 46]. If the language is clearly defamatory per se, it is not necessary to plead special damages, and general damages will be presumed [see Contento v. Mitchell (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 356, 358, 104 Cal. Rptr. 591] . However, if the words are not clearly defamatory per se, then it is necessary to plead and prove special damages [see Civ. Code §§ 45a, 46(5)].

5. Facts relating to defamatory publication by media defendant:

NOTE:
In addition to the data that counsel should obtain from a plaintiff who is suing a private individual, the first amendment places constraints on a private individual who is suing a newspaper publisher, radio broadcaster, or television broadcaster for a publication defamatory on its face [see Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789] .

a. Circumstances or any other information available to plaintiff which would indicate that the defendant was at fault, or negligent, in publishing or broadcasting the defamatory language.

b. The amount ascertainable to date, or before the complaint will be filed, of the actual injury which plaintiff has suffered as a result of the defamatory publication.

c. Any circumstances or other information available to plaintiff which would indicate that defendant published or broadcast the defamatory language either intentionally knowing that it was false or with a reckless disregard for the truth of the publication. (Facts obtained in this area are essential to recover ing presumed, or general, damages as well as punitive damages.)

6. Facts relating to damages:

a. The relationship between the defamatory words and plaintiff's loss of reputation in the community and any feeling of shame, mortification, and hurt feelings [see Civ. Code § 48a(4)(a)].

b. The amount ascertainable to date, or before the complaint will be filed, of any damages to property, business, trade, profession, or occupation (e.g., accounts lost, decrease in business volume, etc.) [see Civ. Code § 48a(4)(b)].

c. Facts showing the existence of oppression, fraud, or malice which would give rise to punitive damages [Civ. Code §§ 48a(4)(c), 3294].

d. Facts showing defendant(s) knowingly or recklessly published defamatory communication where plaintiff is either a public official or a public figure or where defendant is either a publisher or a broadcaster.

§ 340.181 Documents to Be Obtained

NOTE:

Not all of the following documents will be obtainable from the client in the initial interview. Subsequent interviews may be required or, where circumstances will permit, they might be mailed to the attorney. Also, it might be necessary to obtain the documents from persons other than the client.

1. Libel: Copies of the written document which plaintiff asserts is libelous. The closer to the date of publication of a newspaper the easier it is to obtain copies of the edition in which the libelous article appears. Where the libel appears in a letter, counsel should retain the original and have several copies made immediately. Where the libel appears on a sign, an attempt should be made to photograph the sign or, if the sign has been taken down, to obtain declarations from persons who saw the sign.

2. Slander: Declarations from persons who heard the defendant utter the slanderous words. If the slander occured on a radio or television broadcast, counsel should attempt to obtain a tape recording or video tape of the broadcast.

§ 340.182 Procedure Applicable When Media Defendant Sued

NOTE:
Any person suing a newspaper publisher or radio or television broadcaster in California must comply with the provisions of Civ. Code § 48a, the retraction statute, in order to recover more than special damages.

1. Prepare a demand for retraction indicating with specificity which statements the plaintiff claims are defamatory [see Civ. Code § 48a(1); Forms 14 & 29].

2. Within 20 days after plaintiff became aware of the publication or broadcast, serve the demand for retraction on the publisher or broadcaster at the place of publication or broadcast [see Civ. Code § 48a(2)].

3. Make certain that the publisher or broadcaster complies with the retraction statute by correcting the defamatory statements within three weeks of service of the demand. Further, the retraction must be published or broadcast in substantially as conspicuous a manner as the statements that were defamatory [see Civ. Code § 48a(2)].

§ 340.183 Additional Counts and Causes of Action

1. Facts giving rise to a cause of action for damages for libel or slander might also give rise to one or more of the following actions which counsel will want to consider:

a. Negligent misrepresentation or intentional fraud [for procedure and forms, see Ch. 269, Fraud and Deceit ; for memoranda of points and authorities, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 105, Fraud and Deceit (Matthew Bender)].

b. Malicious prosecution or abuse of process [for procedure and forms, see Ch. 357, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process].

c. Intentional infliction of mental suffering and forms, see Ch. 362, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress].

d. Invasion of privacy [for procedure and forms, see Ch. 429, Privacy].

e. Infringement of trademarks and trade names [for procedure and forms, see Ch. 549, Trademarks and Trade Names].

f. Unfair competition [for procedure and forms, see Ch. 565, Unfair Competition].

2. Factors to be considered for all causes of action:

a. Financial solvency of possible defendants.

b. Difficulties, if any, involved in obtaining jurisdiction over the various defendants.

c. Difficulties, if any, in proving liability.

Chapter 340 LIBEL AND SLANDER
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST
A. Defamation: Libel And Slander Complaints

30-340 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 340.184

§ 340.184 Essential Allegations of Complaint

1. Exact language: There is no requirement that the plaintiff plead the precise language alleged to be defamatory in an action for libel [see des Des Granges v. Crall (1915) 27 Cal. App. 313, 315, 149 P. 777] or slander [see Fleet v. Tichenor (1909) 156 Cal. 343, 346, 104 P. 458] . However, it is common practice to do so.

2. Publication: The publication of the defamatory words to at least one person is an essential element in every cause of action for defamation [see Draper v. Hellman Commercial Trust & Sav. Bank (1928) 203 Cal. 26, 39, 263 P. 240 (libel); Cunningham v. Simpson (1960) 1 Cal. 3d 301, 307, 81 Cal. Rptr. 855, 461 P.2d 39 (slander)].

3. Good Reputation: The plaintiff is required to plead his or her good reputation only when alleging harm caused plaintiff in his or her business or professional capacity [see Draper v. Hellman Commercial Trust & Sav. Bank (1928) 203 Cal. 26, 43, 263 P. 240] . However, it is common practice to allege plaintiff's good reputation in all defamation actions.

4. Colloquium: Where the plaintiff is not specifically named, it is necessary to plead that the matter was published or spoken concerning the plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 460; Washer v. Bank of Am. (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 822, 829, 136 P.2d 297] .

5. Falsity: Under the common law, a plaintiff is not required to allege that the statements are false [see Lipman v. Brisbane Elementary Sch. Dist. (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 224, 233, 11 Cal. Rptr. 97, 359 P.2d 465 ; see also Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 776, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783] , although it is common practice to do so. However, if the plaintiff is a public figure, or if the plaintiff is a private figure who is suing a newspaper or other media defendant for publishing speech of a public concern, the First Amendment requires that the plaintiff bear the burden of proving the falsity of the defamatory statement before recovering damages [Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 768-769, 776-777, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783] .

6. Innuendo: When the words used are susceptible of either a defamatory or an innocent interpretation, an innuendo explaining what the words meant is necessary [see Washer v. Bank of Am. (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 822, 828, 136 P.2d 297] .

7. Inducement: When the circumstances in which the words were written or spoken are necessary in order to make the defamatory meaning clear, it is necessary to explain those circumstances by way of an inducement [see Grand v. Dreyfus (1898) 122 Cal. 58, 62, 54 P. 389 (slander); Peabody v. Barham (1942) 52 Cal. App. 2d 581, 585 , overruled on other grounds, MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 551, 343 P.2d 36 (libel)].

8. Statutory malice: Statutorily defined "actual malice" (hatred or ill will), not to be confused with the constitutionally required "actual malice" standard (reckless disregard for falsity), must be pleaded and proved by a plaintiff seeking exemplary damages in an action for damages for the publication of a libel in a newspaper, or of a slander by radio broadcast, when plaintiff has demanded a retraction and the defendant has failed to publish or broadcast the retraction under the circumstances described in Civ. Code § 48a(1)-(3) [see Civ. Code § 48a(1)-(3), (4)(c), (d); see also Manguso v. Oceanside Unified Sch. Dist. (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 574, 581, 200 Cal. Rptr. 535 (Civ. Code § 48a as special statutory protection given to newspapers); Burnett v. National Enquirer, Inc. (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 991, 1000-1004, 193 Cal. Rptr. 206 (discussing applicability of Civ. Code § 48a)].

9. Constitutional malice: Malice in the constitutional sense means that the defendant published the statement intentionally knowing that it was false or with reckless disregard for whether it was true or not [New York Times Co. v. Sullivan (1964) 376 U.S. 254, 279-280, 84 S. Ct. 710, 11 L. Ed. 2d 686] . It must be pleaded in two situations: (1) where public officials or public figures are trying to recover for defamatory statements [New York Times Co. v. Sullivan (1964) 376 U.S. 254, 279-280, 84 S. Ct. 710, 11 L. Ed. 2d 686 ; Curtis Publ'g Co. v. Butts (1967) 388 U.S. 130, 164, 87 S. Ct. 1975, 18 L. Ed. 2d 1094 (Warren, Ch. J., concurring)] and (2) where private individuals are seeking to recover presumed or punitive damages from a media defendant [Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 346-350, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789] .

10. Special damages: When language is not libelous on its face or slanderous per se, it is necessary to allege special damages [see Civ. Code §§ 45a, 46(5), 48a(4)(b)]. A plaintiff who is suing a media defendant must allege actual injury as a result of the defamatory publication or broadcast [see Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 346-350, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789] .

11. General damages: When words are defamatory per se, the law presumes the existence of general damages when a private individual is suing another private individual [see Contento v. Mitchell (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 356, 358, 104 Cal. Rptr. 591] . However, if plaintiff is suing a media defendant, he or she must show intentionality or recklessness before presumed, or general, damages may be recovered [see Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 346-350, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789] .

12. Punitive damages: In general, malice, fraud, or oppression, as defined in Civ. Code § 3294, must be shown before a plaintiff may recover punitive damages in a defamation action [see Civ. Code § 3294]. However, statutory malice, as defined in Civ. Code § 48a(4)(d) (hatred or ill will), must be shown if punitive damages are sought by a plaintiff in an action for damages for the publication of a libel in a newspaper, or of a slander by radio broadcast, when plaintiff has demanded a retraction and the defendant has failed to publish or broadcast the retraction under the circumstances described in Civ. Code § 48a(1)-(3) [see Civ. Code § 48a(1)-(3), (4)(a)]. Additionally, if the plaintiff is either a public figure or a private figure who brings a defamation action against a media defendant for publishing speech involving a matter of public concern, that plaintiff must show constitutional "actual malice" (reckless disregard for falsity) before he or she may recover punitive damages [Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 349, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789 ; see Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. v. Greenmoss Builders, Inc. (1985) 472 U.S. 749, 759-761, 105 S. Ct. 2939, 86 L. Ed. 2d 593] .

NOTE:
The following checklist is illustrative only of the basic points which counsel for a defendant in a defamation action should cover. Not all of the following facts will be ascertainable from the client in the initial interview. Subsequent interviews may be required or it may be necessary to ascertain the facts from others, including the plaintiff, by use of discovery proceedings.

1. Facts relating to defendant:

a. Name, address, and telephone number of defendant.

b. Capacity of defendant (such as corporation, unincorporated association, agent, employee, public entity, public employer, newspaper publisher, radio broadcaster, television broadcaster, etc.

NOTE:
Defendant's capacity generally will be revealed by the complaint. Nevertheless, counsel will wish to confirm the allegation with his or her client. Of course, if the capacity is not disclosed by the complaint, counsel will wish to ascertain it.

c. Additional facts, as desired, relating to defendant's stability and financial solvency (such as employment status, prior residences, credit, bank, and personal references).

2. Facts required for the answer:

NOTE:
Counsel should advise his or her client not to discuss the case with any third person.

a. Date, manner, and place of service of the complaint and summons.

b. Allegations of complaint.

Ascertain which of the facts alleged in the complaint are true, which are false, and which ones defendant does not know the truth or falsity of.

c. Affirmative defenses.

NOTE:
Affirmative defenses can be raised by demurrer, as well as by answer, where they appear on the face of the complaint or from matters of which the court must or may take judicial notice [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10, 430.30].

There are various defenses which might be raised to an action for defamation. Among such defenses counsel should consider the following:

(1) Failure of the plaintiff to allege special damages where the publication is not defamatory per se (see § 340.260) or to allege special damages with sufficient specificity (see §§ 340.261 and 340.262).

(2) Defenses based on plaintiff's failure to allege constitutional malice where plaintiff is a public official, public figure, or private individual or where defendant is a newspaper publisher, radio broadcaster, or television broadcaster (see §§ 340.264 -340.273).

(3) Defenses based on the plaintiff's failure to comply with the retraction statute [Civ. Code § 48a] (see §§ 340.274 -340.277).

(4) Statutory immunity afforded broadcaster [Civ. Code § 48.5] (see § 340.278).

(5) Truth of the defendant's statements (see § 340.279).

(6) Mitigating circumstances (see § 340.280).

(7) Absolute privileges [Civ. Code § 47(a), (b), (d), (e)] (see §§ 340.282 -340.287).

(8) Qualified privilege [Civ. Code § 47(c)] (see § 340.288).

(9) Consent (see § 340.289).

(10) Statute of limitations [Code Civ. Proc. § 340(c)] (see §§ 340.290 and 340.291).

(11) Failure to convey a defamatory meaning (see § 340.292).

(12) Failure to file a claim with defendant public entity (see § 340.293).

(13) Immunity afforded public employee (see § 340.294).

(14) Immunity afforded a public entity (see § 340.295).

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use by a private individual to obtain damages from another private individual for a libelous publication. For a form of complaint for use by a private individual to obtain damages from a newspaper for a libelous publication, see § 340.233.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges:

- The capacity and residence of defendant (Paragraph 1).
- An optional allegation a s to fictitiously named defendant (Paragraph 2).
- An optional allegation for use when agents are being sued (Paragraph 3).
- The plaintiff's occupation, residence, and good reputation (Paragraph 4).
- What published language was defamatory (Paragraph 5).
- An optional allegation for use when the plaintiff is not named and a colloquium must be pleaded (Paragraph 6) [Code Civ. Proc. § 460; Washer v. Bank of Am. (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 822, 829, 136 P.2d 297] .
- The falsity of the publication as it pertains to the plaintiff (Paragraph 7).
- Alternative to be used depending on whether the publication is clearly libelous on its face or ambiguous and requires the pleading of an innuendo (Paragraph 8) [Washer v. Bank of Am. (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 822, 828, 136 P.2d 297] .
- An optional allegation of inducement for use when the language is ambiguous (Paragraph 9) [Grand v. Dreyfus (1898) 122 Cal. 58, 62, 54 P. 389] .
- Publication of the material (Paragraph 10) [see Draper v. Hellman Commercial Trust & Sav. Bank (1928) 203 Cal. 26, 39, 263 P. 240] .

The allegation of general damages is always pleaded when the publication is libelous on its face (Paragraph 11) [cf. Civ.

Code § 48a(4)(a)]. The allegation of special damages (Paragraph 12) [Civ. Code § 48a(4)(b)] is pleaded only when appropriate if the publication is clearly libelous on its face, but is an essential allegation otherwise [Civ. Code § 45a; Gautier v. General Tel. Co. (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 302, 309, 44 Cal. Rptr. 404] . An allegation for punitive damages is also included Paragraph 13) [Civ. Code § 3294].

[4] Specification of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded for this cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case or whether it is a limited civil case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complain [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115], see Ch. 177, Damages , and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments .

[5] Verification

Verification of this complaint is not required, but verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer in a superior court action other than a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446] and precludes a general denial in superior court and some limited civil cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[6] Venue

An action for defamation must be tried in the county in which the defendants, or some of them, reside at the commencement of the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]. This is true because an action for defamation is not an action for a physical injury, the only type of "personal injury" that is contemplated by the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a) that allow such an action to be brought in the county in which the injury occurred [see Graham v. Mixon (1917) 177 Cal. 88, 92, 169 P. 1003 (libel)]. Hence, Code Civ. Proc. § 395 does not give a person against whom an alleged libel is published in a newspaper the right to maintain his or her action, against the defendant's protest, in any county in which the newspaper may circulate [Graham v. Mixon (1917) 177 Cal. 88, 93, 169 P. 1003] .

[7] Pleading of Exact Language

In a libel action the complaint must contain a sufficient statement of the language alleged to be defamatory in order to notify the defendant of the charge he or she must answer [see des Des Granges v. Crall (1915) 27 Cal. App. 313, 315, 149 P. 777] . And because the court must determine as a matter of law whether the matter is libelous on its face, it is common practice to set forth the exact language or other defamatory material in the complaint itself or attached as an exhibit. There is, however, no statutory or decisional requirement that the exact language be pleaded in the complaint.

[8] Colloquium

When plaintiff was not named specifically, it is not necessary to state any extrinsic facts in the complaint for the purpose of showing the application to the plaintiff of the defamatory matter out of which the cause of action arose [

Code Civ. Proc. § 460]. It is sufficient to state generally that the matter was published or spoken concerning the plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 460; Washer v. Bank of Am. (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 822, 829, 136 P.2d 297] . If this type of general allegation is challenged, the plaintiff must establish at trial that it was so published or spoken [Code Civ. Proc. § 460].

[9] Falsity

The United States Supreme Court has recently held that, at least when the plaintiff is either a public figure or a private figure who is suing a newspaper or other media defendant for publishing speech of a public concern, the First Amendment requires that the plaintiff bear the burden of proving the falsity of the defamatory statement before recovering damages [Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 776-777, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783] . However, the Court has continued to leave open the question of what standards would apply if a private plaintiff sues a nonmedia defendant [see, e.g., Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc.v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 779 n.4, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783 ; see also Hutchinson v. Proxmire (1979) 443 U.S. 111, 133 n.16, 99 S. Ct. 2675, 61 L. Ed. 2d 411 (open question as to whether the protection of First Amendment extends to cases involving nonmedia defendants)], although it appears that a private figure plaintiff suing a nonmedia defendant over a statement that is a matter of public concern must prove fault, and therefore must plead and prove falsity [see Dun & Bradstreet v. Greenmoss Builders, Inc. (1985) 472 U.S. 749, 758-761, 105 S. Ct. 2939, 86 L. Ed. 2d 593] .

Under the common law, a plaintiff is not required to allege that the statements are false, and an omission of an allegation of falsity in the complaint may not be grounds for a demurrer [see Lipman v. Brisbane Elementary Sch. Dist. (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 224, 233, 11 Cal. Rptr. 97, 359 P.2d 465 ; see also Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 776, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783] . Therefore, although it is currently unclear whether or not a private plaintiff who sues a nonmedia defendant is required to plead and prove falsity, it appears that at least under Lipman, and until the United States Supreme Court rules otherwise, the burden remains on the defendant rather than on the plaintiff. Nevertheless, it is common practice for a plaintiff to allege falsity in the complaint, and because the point is unclear, it is advisable to do so.

[10] Actual Malice

A private plaintiff who sues a defendant for publishing a statement that is not a matter of public concern is not required to prove actual malice to recover presumed damages or punitive damages [Dun & Bradstreet v. Greenmoss Builders, Inc. (1985) 472 U.S. 749, 759-761, 105 S. Ct. 2939, 86 L. Ed. 2d 593] .

For discussion of actual malice, see § 340.18[1].

[11] Good Reputation

Plaintiff is not required generally to plead that he or she possessed a good reputation before the defamatory publication by the defendant because the law presumes that the plaintiff's reputation is good until the defendant attacks it [Draper v. Hellman Commercial Trust & Sav. Bank (1928) 203 Cal. 26, 43, 263 P. 240 ; Davis v. Hearst (1911) 160 Cal. 143, 186, 116 P. 530] . However, the pleading of plaintiff's good reputation in a general sense is common in defamation complaints. More importantly, it is an essential allegation if the plaintiff is alleging that the harm was caused to him or her in his or her business or professional capacity [Draper v. Hellman Commercial Trust & Sav. Bank (1928) 203 Cal. 26, 43, 263 P. 240] .

[12] Innuendo When Language Ambiguous

The office of an innuendo is to declare what the words meant to those to whom they were published. When the words themselves, under any circumstances, would convey to those who read or hear them a meaning within the statutory definitions, there is no occasion for the pleading of an innuendo. Conversely, if the words under no circumstances could convey a defamatory meaning, then no innuendo can make them defamatory. An innuendo is necessary if the words used are susceptible of either a defamatory or an innocent interpretation [Washer v. Bank of Am. (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 822, 828, 136 P.2d 297] .

[13] Inducement When Language Ambiguous

An inducement indicates that the words were understood in a defamatory sense and shows the situation or opinion of the readers was such that they derived a defamatory meaning from them [Peabody v. Barham (1942) 52 Cal. App. 2d 581, 585, 126 P.2d 668 , overruled on other grounds, MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 551, 343 P.2d 36] .

[14] Publication

It is essential in an action for libel that the complaint allege that the defamatory matter was published or communicated to some third person [Draper v. Hellman Commercial Trust & Sav. Bank (1928) 203 Cal. 26, 39, 263 P. 240] .

[15] General Damages

General damages for defamation actions generally are not specially defined in the Civil Code [but see generally Civ. Code § 3333 (damages for proximately caused detriment)]. However, the Code does define those general damages sought by a plaintiff in an action for damages for the publication of a libel in a newspaper, or of a slander by radio broadcast, when plaintiff has demanded a retraction and the defendant has failed to publish or broadcast the retraction under the circumstances described in Civ. Code § 48a(1)-(3) [see Civ. Code § 48a(1)-(3), (4)(a)]. In this latter situation, general damages are defined as those damages for loss of reputation, shame, mortification, and hurt feelings [Civ. Code § 48a(4)(a)].

In an action for libel on its face, general damages are presumed [see Civ. Code § 45a; Di Giorgio Fruit Corp. v. AFL-CIO (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 560, 577, 30 Cal. Rptr. 350] .

[16] Special Damages

Special damages are all the damages that the plaintiff alleges and proves that he or she has suffered in respect to his or her property, business, trade, profession, or occupation, including the amount of money that he or she alleges and proves that he or she has expended as a result of the alleged libel [Civ. Code §§ 45a, 48a(4)(b)]. They must be alleged with particularity [Smith v. Los Angeles Bookbinders Union (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 486, 494, 284 P.2d 194 , overruled on other grounds, Macleod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 551, 343 P.2d 36 ; see also Pridonoff Balokovich (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 788, 791-792, 228 P.2d 6] and are an essential allegation when a publication is not libelous on its face [Civ. Code § 45a].

[17] Punitive Damages

Punitive damages are awarded for the sake of example and to punish a defendant who has made a publication or broadcast with malice as defined in Civ. Code § 3294(c)(1) (which should not be confused with the constitionally required "actual malice" standard, discussed in § 340.18[1]), oppression, or fraud [see Civ. Code § 3294(a), (c)].

[21] Decisions

[a] Broad Definition of Libel

Definition of libel as very broad in California. Maidman v. Jewish Publications, Inc. (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 643, 649, 7 Cal. Rptr. 617, 355 P.2d 265 , overruled on other grounds, Brown v. Kelly Broad. Co. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 711, 732-733, 257 Cal. Rptr. 708, 771 P.2d 406 ; Bates v. Campbell (1931) 213 Cal. 438, 441, 2 P.2d 383

[b] Colloquium

Pleading of colloquium as required to show that words were spoken of and concerning plaintiff. Washer v. Bank of Am. (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 822, 829, 136 P.2d 297 ; Carlisle v. Fawcett Publ'ns, Inc. (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 733, 741, 20 Cal. Rptr. 405

Fact person not named in defamatory statement as not precluding meaning which is actionable per se. Washer v. Bank of Am. (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 822, 829, 136 P.2d 297

Where person defamed not mentioned by name, colloquium which shows that publication points to plaintiff by description or circumstance as sufficient. Di Giorgio Fruit Corp. v. AFL-CIO (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 560, 569-570, 30 Cal. Rptr. 350

Language referring to large group of persons as not capable of being made to apply to plaintiff by use of a colloquium. Los Angeles Fire & Police Protective League v. Rodgers (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 419, 425, 86 Cal. Rptr. 623 (more than 5,000); Smith v. Harnish (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 115, 118, 333 P.2d 815 (indeterminate group); Noral v. Hearst Publications, Inc. (1940) 40 Cal. App. 2d 348, 350, 104 P.2d 860 (greater than 162 persons)

[c] Falsity

Plaintiff as not required to allege falsity of allegedly defamatory publication. Lipman v. Brisbane Elementary Sch. Dist. (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 224, 233, 11 Cal. Rptr. 97, 359 P.2d 465

Public figure plaintiff, or private figure plaintiff suing newspaper or other media defendant for publishing speech of public concern, is required by U.S. Const. amend. I, to bear burden of proving falsity of defamatory statement before recovering damages; standards applicable to private plaintiff suing nonmedia defendant is open question. Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 775-776, 779 n.4, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783

Pleading of inducement as required to set forth extrinsic circumstances affecting construction of language. Grand v. Dreyfus (1898) 122 Cal. 58, 62, 54 P. 389

Pleading of inducement as indicating situation or opinion of readers which made meaning of words defamatory. Peabody v. Barham (1942) 52 Cal. App. 2d 581, 585, 126 P.2d 668 , overruled on other grounds, MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 551, 343 P.2d 36

[e] Innuendo

Pleading of innuendo as necessary where meaning of language ambiguous. Washer v. Bank of Am. (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 822, 828, 136 P.2d 297 ; Bates v. Campbell (1931) 213 Cal. 438, 443, 2 P.2d 383 ; Corman v. Blanchard (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 126, 138, 27 Cal. Rptr. 327

Pleading external facts by way of innuendo as not capable of enlarging or changing sense of language and thereby making innocent language defamatory. Emde v. San Joaquin County Cent. Labor Council (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 146, 159-160, 143 P.2d 20

Words as required to be reasonably understood in defamatory sense before pleading an innuendo can aid pleader. Carlisle v. Fawcett Publ'ns, Inc. (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 733, 743, 20 Cal. Rptr. 405

Language bearing only one meaning which is innocent as not capable of being made libelous by innuendo. Washer v. Bank of Am. (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 822, 828, 136 P.2d 297 ; Corman v. Blanchard (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 126, 138, 27 Cal. Rptr. 327

[f] Interpretation of Defamatory Language

Question of whether language is libelous on its face as question of law for court. MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 546, 343 P.2d 36 ; Scott v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 277, 288-289, 112 Cal. Rptr. 609

Question of whether or not language is reasonably susceptible of defamatory meaning as question of law. MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 546, 343 P.2d 36 ; Arno v. Stewart (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 955, 959, 54 Cal. Rptr. 392

[g] Publication

Publication as essential pleading requirement in defamation action. Draper v. Hellman Commercial Trust & Sav.

Bank (1928) 203 Cal. 26, 39, 263 P. 240

[h] Special Damages

Pleading of reduction in number of new clients and loss of clients as sufficient pleading of special damages for purposes of Civ. Code § 48a. Kanarek v. Bugliosi (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 327, 337, 166 Cal. Rptr. 526

Complaint alleging publication of language not defamatory on its face as required to allege special damages. Gautier v. General Tel. Co. (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 302, 309, 44 Cal. Rptr. 404

[i] Test for Libel on Its Face

Test for libel on its face as whether publication will constitute libel without averment, colloquium, or innuendo. MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 549, 343 P.2d 36

[j] Venue

Person as required under Code Civ. Proc. § 395 to bring libel action in county where defendant resides; action for alleged libel in newspaper as not capable of being maintained, against defendant's protest, in any county in which the newspaper may circulate. Graham v. Mixon (1917) 177 Cal. 88, 92-93, 169 P. 1003

§ 340.222 Allegation--For Use When Complaint Discloses Apparent Statute of Limitations Bar--Facts Supporting Equitable Estoppel

[1] FORM Allegation--For Use When Complaint Discloses Apparent Statute of Limitations Bar--Facts Supporting Equitable Estoppel

1. Defendant _____ [name] intentionally concealed his/her/its authorship of the above-described publication by _____ [specify facts tending to show intentional concealment, e.g., not identifying himself/herself/itself in the publication, and by denying authorship when confronted by plaintiff].

2. Plaintiff exercised reasonable diligence in attempting to determine the author of the above-described publication, in that he/she _____ [specify steps taken to determine authorship, e.g., investigated the various possible sources of the publication, and received only denials from defendant until _____ (date), when plaintiff discovered that defendant had in fact authored the publication].

[2] Use of Form

This allegation is for use if it otherwise appears on the face of the complaint that the action was filed more than a year from the date of the allegedly defamatory publication. The allegation sets forth the facts that establish the requirements for equitable estoppel based on the defendant's concealment of his or her identity.

[3] Equitable Estoppel

A defendant may be equitably estopped from asserting the statute of limitations if, as the result of intentional concealment, the plaintiff is unable to discover the defendant's actual identity [Bernson v. Browning-Ferris Indus. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 926, 936, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440, 873 P.2d 613] . For the doctrine of equitable estoppel to apply, the plaintiff must have exercised reasonable diligence [Bernson v. Browning-Ferris Indus. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 926, 936, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440, 873 P.2d 613] . The requirement that the plaintiff exercise reasonable diligence permits tolling of the statute of limitations only until the plaintiff knows, or through the exercise of reasonable diligence should have discovered, the defendant's identity. Lack of knowledge alone is not sufficient to stay the statute; a plaintiff may not disregard reasonably available avenues of inquiry that, if vigorously pursued, might yield the desired information [Bernson v. Browning-Ferris Indus. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 926, 936, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440, 873 P.2d 613] . One factor that must be considered pertinent to the diligence inquiry is whether a timely Doe complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 474] would, as a practical matter, have facilitated the discovery of the defendant's identity within the three-year period for service of process under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210 [Bernson v. Browning-Ferris Indus. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 926, 936-937, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440, 873 P.2d 613] . If the identity of at least one defendant is known, the plaintiff must avail himself or herself of the opportunity to file a timely complaint naming Doe defendants and take discovery [Bernson v. Browning-Ferris Indus. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 926, 937, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440, 873 P.2d 613] . However, if the facts are such that even discovery cannot pierce a defendant's intentional efforts to conceal his or her identity, the plaintiff will not be penalized [Bernson v. Browning-Ferris Industries (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 926, 937, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440, 873 P.2d 613] .

[4] Decisions

Equitable estoppel as available to preclude defendant from asserting statute of limitations if defendant intentionally concealed identity from plaintiff, who exercised reasonable diligence to determine defendant's identity. Bernson v. Browning-Ferris Indus. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 926, 928, 936, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440, 873 P.2d 613

§ 340.230 Allegation--Defendant Is Candidate, State Ballot Measure Proponent, or Committee Sponsor [Elec. Code § 20501] Liable for Defamatory Campaign Advertising or Communication [Elec. Code § 20500]

[1] FORM Allegation--Defendant Is Candidate, State Ballot Measure Proponent, or Committee Sponsor [Elec. Code § 20501] Liable for Defamatory Campaign Advertising or Communication [Elec. Code § 20500]

1. At all times herein mentioned, defendant was _____ [specify, e.g., a candidate for the office of mayor of the City of _____ in the _____ [month and year] general election], and as such, controlled the _____ [name] committee, a _____ [specify type of committee, e.g., controlled] committee as defined by Section 82016 of the Government Code.

2. Defendant willfully and knowingly _____ [directed or permitted] the _____ [name] committee to publish the abovementioned _____ [describe campaign advertisement or communication, e.g., direct mailing].

[3. If plaintiff is public official, allege falsity. See § 340.220, alternative Paragraphs 7.]

4. Defendant _____ [directed or permitted] publication of the _____ [describe campaign advertisement or communication, e.g., direct mailing] either with knowledge that it was false and defamatory of plaintiff or, if its false and defamatory nature was not known to defendant, then with reckless disregard for its obvious falsity and defamatory nature.

[2] Use of Form

These allegations may be used to allege that a committee controlled by defendant electoral candidate or state ballot measure proponent, as defined by Gov. Code § 82016, published a libelous campaign advertisement or communication at or with the willful and knowing direction or permission of the candidate or measure proponent [see Elec. Code §§ 304, 20501(a)]. This form may also be used to allege that a sponsored committee, as defined by Gov. Code § 82048.7, published a libelous campaign advertisement or communication at or with the willful and knowing direction or permission of defendant committee sponsor [see Elec. Code §§ 304, 20501(a)]. This form may be adapted for use when the campaign advertising or communication is alleged to be slanderous, rather than libelous [see Elec. Code § 20501].

For further discussion of defamatory campaign advertising or communication, see § 340.21[6].

[3] Allegations

This form alleges: defendant's capacity as a candidate or ballot measure proponent in control of a committee defined by Gov. Code § 82016, or as a sponsor of a sponsored committee defined by Gov. Code § 82048.7 (Paragraph 1); that defendant willfully and knowingly directed or permitted his or her committee to commit the libel (Paragraph 2) [see Elec. Code § 20501]; and that defendant published the libelous material with malice (Paragraph 4) [see Miller v. Nestande (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 191, 201, 237 Cal. Rptr. 359] . Optional Paragraph 3 alleges the falsity of the libelous material, and is for use when plaintiff is a public official, such as an incumbent public officeholder who is a candidate for election [see Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 776, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783] .

[4] Falsity

The United States Supreme Court has held that U.S. Const. amend. I, requires a public figure or official who brings a defamation action to bear the burden of proving the falsity of the defamatory statement before recovering damages [see Garrison v. Louisiana (1964) 379 U.S. 64, 74, 85 S. Ct. 209, 13 L. Ed. 2d 125 ; see also Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 776, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783] . Therefore, the common law rule that plaintiff is not required to allege the falsity of the statements [see Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 776, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783] is preempted and inapplicable to a defamation action by a public official [see Gomes v. Fried (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 924, 934, 186 Cal. Rptr. 605] .

For discussion of the constitutional requirements of pleading and proof in defamation actions by public officials, see the § 340.18[1].

For allegations for use to allege that plaintiff is a public official, see § 340.235.

[5] Actual Malice

If plaintiff is an incumbent candidate for political office suing an opponent for damages arising out of libelous campaign advertising or communication, and the advertising or communication relates to matters of public concern, then plaintiff must prove defendant either knew the advertising or communication to be false or reckless when made, or made it with reckless disregard of its truth or falsity [see Miller v. Nestande (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 191, 198-201, 237 Cal. Rptr. 359] . It appears likely that plaintiff would have to make the same showing even if he or she were not an incumbent seeking election [see Miller v. Nestande (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 191, 201, 237 Cal. Rptr. 359] .

For further discussion of the requirement that plaintiff plead and prove actual malice, see § 340.21[6].

Civ. Code §§ 43-53 as applicable to campaign advertising or communication. Elec. Code § 20500

_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[Verification, if desired. See § 340.220.]

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use by a student to obtain damages for a defamatory publication published by a school superintendent and trustees. It is based on complaint filed in Elder v. Anderson (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 326, 23 Cal. Rptr. 48 .

[3] Falsity

The United States Supreme Court has held that, at least when the plaintiff is either a public figure or a private figure who is suing a newspaper or other media defendant for publishing speech of a public concern, the First Amendment requires that the plaintiff bear the burden of proving the falsity of the defamatory statement before recovering damages [Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 768-769, 776-777, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783] . However, the Court has continued to leave open the question of what standards would apply if a private plaintiff sues a nonmedia defendant [see, e.g., Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 779 n.4, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783 ; see also Hutchinson v. Proxmire (1979) 443 U.S. 111, 133 n.16, 99 S. Ct. 2675, 61 L. Ed. 2d 411 (open question as to whether the protection of U.S. Const. amend. I, extends to cases involving nonmedia defendants)], although it appears that a private figure plaintiff suing a nonmedia defendant over a statement that is a matter of public concern must prove fault, and therefore must plead and prove falsity [see Dun & Bradstreet v. Greenmoss Builders, Inc. (1985) 472 U.S. 749, 757-761] . Whether a statement is a matter of public concern will depend on a variety of factors, including whether the statement requires any special protection to ensure that debate on public issues remains robust, uninhibited, and wide-open; in whose interest the statement is made; and the breadth of dissemination of the statement [see Dun & Bradstreet v. Greenmoss Builders, Inc. (1985) 472 U.S. 749, 756, 761-763, 105 S. Ct. 2939, 86 L. Ed. 2d 593] .

Under the common law, a plaintiff is not required to allege that the statements are false, and an omission of an allegation of falsity in the complaint may not be grounds for a demurrer [see Lipman v. Brisbane Elementary Sch. Dist. (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 224, 233, 11 Cal. Rptr. 97, 359 P.2d 465 ; see also Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 776, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783] . Therefore, although it is currently unclear whether or not a private plaintiff who sues a nonmedia defendant is required to plead and prove falsity, it appears that at least under Lipman, and until the United States Supreme Court rules otherwise, the burden remains on the defendant rather than on the plaintiff. Nevertheless, it is common practice for a plaintiff to allege falsity in the complaint, and because the point is unclear, it is advisable to do so.

[4] Actual Malice

A private plaintiff who sues a defendant for publishing a statement that is not a matter of public concern is not required to prove actual malice to recover presumed damages or punitive damages [Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. v. Greenmoss Builders, Inc. (1985) 472 U.S. 749, 759-761, 105 S. Ct. 2939, 86 L. Ed. 2d 593] .

For additional discussion of the constitutional requirements of pleading and proof, see § 340.18[1].

[5] State Statutes

Access to pupil records prohibited without parental consent or judicial order except to enumerated groups of persons. Educ. Code § 49076

[6] Decisions

Violation of former Educ. Code § 10751 as providing no direct penalty; publication by trustees of false and defamatory information as subjecting trustees to defamation action just as other private citizens. Elder v. Anderson (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 326, 336, 23 Cal. Rptr. 48

School trustees as immune from suit for discretionary acts within scope of employment. Lipman v. Brisbane Elementary Sch. Dist. (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 224, 230, 11 Cal. Rptr. 97, 359 P.2d 465

Dated: _____

_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use to demand that allegedly defamatory material be corrected or retracted by a newspaper publisher or by an employee of the publisher who, on the publisher's behalf, is designated to receive such demands, to determine whether and how to respond to them, and to make corrections or retractions if he or she determines to do so [see Freedom Newspapers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 652, 658, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 839, 842 P.2d 138] . Service of the demand is a condition precedent to recovering either general or punitive damages from a newspaper publisher [Civ. Code § 48a(1), (2)].

A demand for retraction is only effective as to the plaintiffs listed or so described in the demand such that the defendant fairly knows who is objecting to the challenged publication. Thus, merely stating that a business entity is seeking a retraction does not preserve the rights of that entity's parent corporation to seek general or punitive damages, even if the business entity listed in the demand is a wholly owned subsidiary of the parent corporation and this fact of ownership is common knowledge [Anschutz Entertainment Group, Inc. v. Snepp (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 598, 642-643, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 133].

The demand may be served on the publisher, on a person designated by the publisher to receive such demands, or on an employee at the newspaper other than the publisher or the publisher's designee if the publisher acquires actual knowledge of the demand within the 20-day period set forth in Civ. Code § 48a(1) [Freedom Newspapers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 652, 658, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 839, 842 P.2d 138] . When the demand is served by mail, it need not be sent by registered mail [Freedom Newspapers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 652 (expressly disapproving any suggestion to the contrary in San Leandro Collection Serv. v. Dunbar (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 933)]. For further discussion of legally sufficient service of the demand, see § 340.53[5].

[3] Constitutional Limitations

In addition to the statutory requirement of a demand before recovering either general or punitive damages [Civ. Code § 48a], the United States Supreme Court has forbidden the imposition of liability without fault on publishers in suits by private individuals and has required that private individual plaintiffs meet the New York Times "actual malice" standard required for public figure plaintiffs before recovering either general or punitive damages from newspaper publishers [Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 346-350, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789] . Ho wever, it appears that the constitutional restrictions set forth in Gertz only apply to a private plaintiff when the defamatory statement relates to a matter of public concern [see Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. v. Greenmoss Builders, Inc. (1985) 472 U.S. 749, 759-761, 105 S. Ct. 2939, 86 L. Ed. 2d 593] . In addition to the actual malice requirement, if the plaintiff is a public figure, or a private figure who is suing a newspaper or other media defendant for publishing speech of a public concern, U.S. Const. amend. I, requires that the plaintiff bear the burden of proving the falsity of the defamatory statement before recovering damages [Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 768-769, 776-777, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783] .

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times hereinmentioned was, a corporation duly organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of California and has its principal place of business in _____ County, California.

[2. Defendants _____, _____, and _____ (names) are, and at all times mentioned herein were, residents of _____ County, California.]

3. [Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 340.220, Paragraph 2.]

4. [Agency allegation, if appropriate. See § 340.220, Paragraph 3.]

5. At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ [name of corporation] was, and now is, doing business as a publisher and disseminator of news and current events, and was, and now is, publishing and circulating a daily newspaper in the City of _____, County of _____, State of California, known as the "_____" [name]. The paper has a wide circulation and is read by a great number of persons and citizens of the area in which it is published and circulated.

6. At all times herein mentioned, plaintiff was, and now is, _____ [state occupation] and resides in the City of _____, County of _____, State of California. Plaintiff has resided in the City of _____ for _____ [number] years and at all times has enjoyed a good reputation generally and in his/her occupation.

[EITHER]

7. On _____ [date], in all the editions of the _____ [name of newspaper], defendant(s) printed, published, and circulated, or caused to be printed, published, and circulated in the newspaper on page _____ [number] thereof, an article in writing that stated: _____ [set forth precise language of the article].

[OR]

7. On _____ [date], in all the editions of the _____ [name of newspaper], defendant(s) printed, published, and circulated, or caused to be printed, published, and circulated in the newspaper on page _____ [number] thereof, an article, which is attached hereto as Exhibit A and incorporated herein for all purposes.

[CONTINUE]

[8. Allegation of colloquium, if appropriate. See § 340.220, Paragraph 6.]

9. This article is libelous on its face because _____ [specify facts that support allegation.]

10. This article is false because _____ [specify facts that support allegation].

11. This article was read by readers of the _____ [name of newspaper] at that time and on that occasion in the City of _____, County of _____ and throughout the State of California.

12. Defendant(s) _____ was/were negligent in publishing this article. With ordinary and reasonable care defendant(s) would have realized or could have discovered that the article was obviously false and grossly libelous as it applied to this plaintiff.

13. Furthermore, defendant(s) published the article either knowing that it was false or with reckless disregard for whether it was true because _____ [specify facts that support allegation].

[EITHER, if demand is served on publisher]

14. On _____ [date], within 20 days after the article appeared in _____ [name of newspaper], plaintiff served on defendant publisher a demand for correction or retraction as required by Civil Code Section 48a. A copy of the demand is attached hereto, marked Exhibit _____, and incorporated herein by reference.

[OR, if demand is served on publisher's designee]

14. On _____ [date], within 20 days after the article appeared in _____ [name of newspaper], plaintiff served on _____ [name] a demand for correction or retraction as required by Civil Code Section 48a. _____ [Name], an employee of defendant publisher, had actual authority, either by delegation from the publisher or by a pattern or practice developed over a period of years, to receive such demands, to determine on the publisher's behalf whether and how to respond to them, and to make corrections or retractions if he/she determined to do so. A copy of the demand is attached hereto, marked Exhibit _____, and incorporated herein by reference.

[OR, if demand is served on employee other than publisher's designee and publisher timely acquires actual knowledge of demand]

14. On _____ [date], within 20 days after the article appeared in _____ [name of newspaper], plaintiff served on _____ [name], an employee of defendant publisher, a demand for correction or retraction as required by Civil Code Section 48a. On _____ [date], also within 20 days after the article appeared, defendant publisher acquired actual knowledge of the demand. A copy of the demand is attached hereto, marked Exhibit _____, and incorporated herein by reference.

[CONTINUE WITH EITHER]

15. Up to and including the date of the filing of this complaint, defendant(s) _____ [has or have] failed and refused, and still fail and refuse, to publish a correction or retraction as required by law.

[OR]

15. On _____ [date], defendant(s) published what it claimed to be a retraction that comports with the law. A copy of that retraction is attached hereto, marked Exhibit _____, and made a part hereof. The retraction is not legally sufficient because it fails to meet the requirements of Civil Code Section 48a(3). It was not published in substantially as conspicuous a manner in the newspaper as the original article and does not have the same force and effect as though the correction had been published within three weeks after a demand for it.

[CONTINUE]

16. [General damages allegation. See § 340.220, Paragraph 11.]

17. [Special damages allegation. See § 340.220, Paragraph 12.]

18. The above-described article was published with knowledge of its falsity or with a reckless disregard for whether it was true, without a good faith belief in the truth of the matter, and with hatred or ill will toward the plaintiff, and thus plaintiff seeks an award of punitive damages.

CAUTION:
Service of a demand for correction of the allegedly libelous publication is a condition precedent to suing a newspaper publisher for libel [see Civ. Code § 48a(1), (2); see also § 340.232].

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use to obtain damages from a newspaper for a defamatory article which was libelous on its face. Counsel should use see § 340.244 rather than this form to draft a similar action for slander against a radio broadcaster.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges:

- The falsity of the article (Paragraph 10) [Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 768-769, 776-777, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783] .

- Negligence by the publisher in publishing the defamatory article (Paragraph 12) [Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 346-350, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789] .

- Intentionality or recklessness in publishing the article (Paragraph 13) [Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 346-350, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789] .

- The service of a demand for correction (Alternative Paragraphs 14) [Civ. Code § 48a(1), (2); Freedom Newspapers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 652, 658, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 839, 842 P.2d 138] .

- The publisher's failure to comply with the demand (Alternative Paragraphs 15) [Civ. Code § 48a(2), (3)].

The allegation concerning punitive damages alleges both constitutional "actual malice" and statutory "actual malice" under Civ. Code § 48a, both of which are required to support an award of punitive damages in an action covered by the retraction statute [see McCoy v. Hearst Corp. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 835, 872, 231 Cal. Rptr. 518, 727 P.2d 711] .

[4] Falsity

The United States Supreme Court has held that a private figure suing a newspaper or other media defendant for publishing speech of a public concern is required by U.S. Const. amend. I, to bear the burden of proving the falsity of the defamatory statement before recovering damages [Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 768-769, 776-777, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783] .

However, the Court has expressly left open the question of what standards would apply if a private plaintiff sues a nonmedia defendant [Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 768-769, 776-777, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783 ; Hutchinson v. Proxmire (1979) 443 U.S. 111, 133 n.16, 99 S. Ct. 2675, 61 L. Ed. 2d 411] . Presumably, then, the question is also left open as to what standards would apply if a private plaintiff sued a newspaper or other media defendant for publishing speech not of a public concern. Under the common law, a plaintiff is not required to allege that the statements are false, and an omission of an allegation of falsity in the complaint may not be grounds for a demurrer [see Lipman v. Brisbane Elementary Sch. Dist. (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 224, 233, 11 Cal. Rptr. 97, 359 P.2d 465 ; see also Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 776-777, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783] . Therefore, at this time, although it is unclear whether or not a private plaintiff who sues a media defendant for publishing speech not of a public concern is required to plead and prove falsity, it appears that at least under Lipman, and until the United States Supreme Court rules otherwise, the burden remains on the defendant rather than on the plaintiff. Nevertheless, it is common practice for a plaintiff to allege falsity in the complaint, and because the point is unclear, it is advisable to do so.

[5] Actual Malice

The United States Supreme Court has held that the states may not impose liability for defamation without fault [Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 347, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789] . However, except as explained below, the Court has not yet decided the minimal standard of fault that may be imposed in a defamation suit brought by a private plaintiff [see, e.g., Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 779 n.4, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783, 790-792 (discussion of recent defamation case law)]. California courts also have yet to establish a requisite standard of fault, but it has been suggested in dicta that the standard is one of negligence [see Widener v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 415, 433, 142 Cal. Rptr. 304] .

The United States Supreme Court has held, however, that a private figure plaintiff who brings a defamation action against a media defendant for publishing speech involving a matter of public concern may not recover presumed or punitive damages if the plaintiff fails to show that the defendant published the speech with knowledge of its falsity or with reckless disregard for the truth [Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 349, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789 ; see Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. v. Greenmoss Builders, Inc. (1985) 472 U.S. 749, 759-761, 105 S. Ct. 2939, 86 L. Ed. 2d 593] . Rather, such a plaintiff may only recover those damages as are sufficient to compensate him or her for actual injury [Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 349-350, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789] . On the other hand, if the speech is not a matter of public concern, the constitutional actual malice standard does not apply [Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. v. Greenmoss Builders, Inc. (1985) 472 U.S. 749, 759-761, 105 S. Ct. 2939, 86 L. Ed. 2d 593] .

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use to obtain damages for a defamatory article appearing in a newspaper, which insinuated that the plaintiff was a communist sympathizer. The complaint is based on the one filed in MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 343 P.2d 36 .

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded for this cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case or whether it is a limited civil case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

§ 340.235 Allegations--Public Official Suing for Defamatory Publication Libelous on Its Face [Civ. Code §§ 45, 45a]

[1] FORM Allegations--Public Official Suing for Defamatory Publication Libelous on Its Face [Civ. Code §§ 45, 45a]

1. At all times herein mentioned, plaintiff was, and now is, _____ [state office held, e.g., a member of the City Council of _____ City]. Plaintiff has resided in the City of _____ for _____ [number] years and at all times has enjoyed a good reputation generally. He/She has served as a _____ [state nature of office] for _____ [number] years and at all times has enjoyed a good reputation as an honest and conscientious public servant.

2. Defendant(s) published the _____ [specify form in which statements were made, e.g., article or pamphlet] either with knowledge that it was false and defamatory of the plaintiff or, if the false and defamatory nature of it was not known to _____ [him/her or them], with reckless disregard for its obvious falsity and defamatory nature.

[2] Use of Form

These allegations are for use by a public official to obtain damages for a defamatory newspaper article that was libelous on its face. Allegation 1 is for use in place of Allegation 6 in see § 340.233. Allegation 2 is for use in place of Allegation 12 in see § 340.233.

For forms of allegations for use when a public official is seeking damages for defamatory campaign advertising from an electoral candidate, a state ballot measure proponent, or the sponsor of a campaign committee, see § 340.229.1.

These allegations may also be used by a public official to obtain damages for defamatory statements disseminated by a nonmedia defendant that are libelous on their face [see Miller v. Nestande (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 191, 200, 237 Cal. Rptr. 359] . For this purpose, Allegation 1 should be used in place of Allegation 4 in see § 340.220, and Allegation 2 should be inserted after Allegation 10 in see § 340.220.

[3] Allegations

Allegation 1 states the nature of the public office held by the plaintiff and the fact that he or she has enjoyed a good reputation generally in the community as well as a public official. Allegation 2 contains the constitutionally imposed assertion that the newspaper article was published either intentionally or recklessly [New York Times Co. v. Sullivan (1964) 376 U.S. 254, 84 S. Ct. 710, 11 L. Ed. 2d 686] .

Paragraph 10 of see § 340.233 is an appropriate allegation of falsity that is constitutionally required [see Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 768-769, 775, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783] , and should be used by a public official bringing a defamation suit. see § 340.220, in alternative Paragraphs 7, also includes allegations of falsity which should be used.

[4] Falsity

The United States Supreme Court has held that the First Amendment requires a public figure or official who brings a defamation action to bear the burden of proving the falsity of the defamatory statement before recovering damages [see Garrison v. Louisiana (1964) 379 U.S. 64, 74, 85 S. Ct. 209, 13 L. Ed. 2d 125 ; see also Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 768-769, 775, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783] . Therefore, the common law rule that a plaintiff is not required to allege that the statements are false [see Lipman v. Brisbane Elementary Sch. Dist. (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 224, 233, 11 Cal. Rptr. 97, 359 P.2d 465 ; see also Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 775, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783] has been preempted and does not apply to a defamation action by a public official [see Gomes v. Fried (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 924, 934, 186 Cal. Rptr. 605] .

[5] Actual Malice

The United States Supreme Court has held that a public official or public figure who brings a defamation action against a publisher is required to prove actual malice, that is, that the defendant published the statement with knowledge of, or reckless disregard as to, whether the statement was true or false [New York Times Co. v. Sullivan (1964) 376 U.S. 254, 279-280, 84 S. Ct. 710, 11 L. Ed. 2d 686 ; see Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 768-769, 773, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783] .

For discussion of constitutional requirements of pleading and proof in actions by public officials, see § 340.18[1].

[6] Decisions

Public figure plaintiff as required to show falsity of defamatory statement before recovering damages and prevailing on suit for defamation. Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 768-769, 776, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783 (dictum)

Public official as prohibited from recovering damages for defamation relating to his or her official conduct unless knowledge of falsity or recklessness with regard to truth of article proved on part of publisher. New York Times Co. v. Sullivan (1964) 376 U.S. 254, 279-280, 84 S. Ct. 710, 11 L. Ed. 2d 686

Incumbent candidate for public office as required to prove actual malice even though defendants are not members of media, in action against opponent and several former prisoners of war (POW) for dissemination of pamphlet accusing incumbent of cooperating with enemy while POW during Vietnam war. Miller v. Nestande (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 191, 200-202, 237 Cal. Rptr. 359

[3. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 340.220, Paragraph 2.]

[4. Agency allegation, if appropriate. See § 340.220, Paragraph 3.]

5. [Business of corporate defendant as publisher of newspaper. See § 340.233, Paragraph 5.]

6. [Allegation of plaintiff holding public office and enjoying good reputation. See § 340.235, Allegation 1.]

7. On _____ [date], in all the editions of the _____ [name of newspaper], defendant(s) printed, published, and circulated, or caused to be printed, published, and circulated in the newspaper on page _____ [number] thereof, a cartoon. A copy of the cartoon is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.

8. [Allegation of colloquium, if appropriate. See § 340.220, Paragraph 6.]

9. This cartoon is libelous on its face because it _____ [specify facts that support allegation, e.g., depicts plaintiff accepting a bribe].

10. [Allegation of falsity. See § 340.233, Paragraph 10.]

11. This cartoon was seen and read by readers of the _____ [name of newspaper] at that time and on that occasion in the City of _____, County of _____, and throughout the State of California.

12. Defendant(s) published the cartoon either with knowledge that it was false and defamatory of the plaintiff or, if the false and defamatory nature of the article was not known to _____ [him/her or them], with reckless disregard for its obvious falsity and defamatory nature because _____ [specify facts which support allegation].

13. [Allegation of service of demand for retraction on publisher. See § 340.233, Paragraph 14.]

14. [Allegation of failure of publisher to comply with retraction demand. See § 340.233, Paragraph 15.]

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use to obtain damages for words slanderous per se. For a form of complaint for use by a private individual to obtain damages from a radio broadcaster for a slanderous publication, see § 340.244.

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- The exact words spoken or their substantial equivalent (Paragraph 4) [Fleet v. Tichenor (1909) 156 Cal. 343, 346, 104 P. 458] .

- The publication of the words to at least one person (Paragraph 5) [Cunningham v. Simpson (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 301, 307, 81 Cal. Rptr. 855, 461 P.2d 39] .

- The reason the words were slanderous per se (Paragraph 6) [Civ. Code § 46].

- An optional allegation that the words were false (Paragraph 7).

- An optional allegation pleading an innuendo if the words are ambiguous (Paragraph 8) [Washer v. Bank of Am. (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 822, 828, 136 P.2d 297 , overruled on other grounds, MacLeod v. Tribune Publ'g Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 343 P.2d 36] .

- An optional allegation pleading an inducement (Paragraph 9) [Jarman v. Rea (1902) 137 Cal. 339, 345, 70 P. 216 , overruled on other grounds, Snively v. Record Publ'g Co. (1921) 185 Cal. 565, 576, 198 P. 1] .

The complaint also contains allegations for general damages (Paragraph 10), for special damages (Paragraph 11) [Civ. Code § 3333], and for punitive damages (Paragraph 12) [Civ. Code § 3294].

[4] Specification of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded for this cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case or whether it is a limited civil case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115], see Ch. 177, Damages , and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments .

[5] Pleading of Exact Language

In a slander action the plaintiff need not set forth with absolute precision the exact words alleged to be defamatory [Fleet v. Tichenor (1909) 156 Cal. 343, 346, 104 P. 458 ; Haub v. Friermuth (1905) 1 Cal. App. 556, 557-558, 82 P. 571] . However, the plaintiff must substantially prove that the defendant spoke words that constitute the sting of the charge contained in the complaint [Fleet v. Tichenor (1909) 156 Cal. 343, 346, 104 P. 458 ; Carl v. McDougal (1919) 43 Cal. App. 279, 282, 184 P. 885] .

[6] Slander Per Se

Statements can be slanderous per se even though they do not appear to be defamatory on their face, and an innuendo and inducement are required to make the words actionable [Jarman v. Rea (1902) 137 Cal. 339, 345-346, 70 P. 216 , overruled on other grounds, Snively v. Record Publ'g Co. (1921) 185 Cal. 565, 576, 198 P. 1 ; White v. Valenta (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 243, 251-254, 44 Cal. Rptr. 241] . Thus, if words can be shown to have carried a meaning that made them slanderous within any of the first four categories of Civ. Code § 46, damages are presumed and there is not need to plead and prove special damages to sustain a cause of action [see Jarman v. Rea (1902) 137 Cal. 339, 345-346,

[7] General, Special, and Punitive Damages

Neither general, special, nor punitive damages in an action for slander per se are specially defined in the Civil Code [but see generally Civ. Code §§ 3294 (punitive damages), 3333 (damages for proximately caused detriment)]. However, the code does define these types of damages sought by a plaintiff in an action for slander by a radio broadcast when plaintiff has demanded a retraction and the defendant has failed to broadcast the retraction under the circumstances described in Civ. Code § 48a(1)-(3) [see Civ. Code § 48a(4)]. For further discussion, see §§ 340.22, 340.24, and 340.25.

[8] Falsity

The United States Supreme Court has recently held that, at least when the plaintiff is either a public figure or a private figure who is suing a newspaper or other media defendant for publishing speech of a public concern, the First Amendment requires that the plaintiff bear the burden of proving the falsity of the defamatory statement before recovering damages [Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 768-769, 775-777, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783] . However, the Court has continued to leave open the question of what standards would apply if a private plaintiff sues a nonmedia defendant [see, e.g., Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 779 n.4, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783 ; see also Hutchinson v. Proxmire (1979) 443 U.S. 111, 133 n.16, 99 S. Ct. 2675, 61 L. Ed. 2d 411 (open question whether protection of First Amendment extends to cases involving nonmedia defendants)].

Under the common law, a plaintiff is not required to allege that the statements are false, and an omission of an allegation of falsity in the complaint may not be grounds for a demurrer [see Lipman v. Brisbane Elementary Sch. Dist. (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 224, 233, 11 Cal. Rptr. 97, 359 P.2d 465 ; see also Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 775, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783] . Therefore, although it is currently unclear whether or not a private plaintiff who sues a nonmedia defendant is required to plead and prove falsity, it appears that at least under Lipman, and until the United States Supreme Court rules otherwise, the burden remains on the defendant rather than on the plaintiff. Nevertheless, it is common practice for a plaintiff to allege falsity in the complaint, and because the point is unclear, it is advisable to do so.

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 340.220, Paragraph 1.]

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 340.220, Paragraph 2.]

[3. Agency allegation, if appropriate. See § 340.220, Paragraph 3.]

4. [Allegation containing spoken words. See § 340.237, Paragraph 4.]

5. [Publication of words to third person. See § 340.237, Paragraph 5.]

6. [Allegation of innuendo. See § 340.237, Paragraph 8.]

7. [Allegation of inducement. See § 340.237, Paragraph 9.]

[8. Allegation of falsity. See § 340.237, Paragraph 7.]

9. The above-described words were the direct and proximate cause of the following actual damages suffered by the plaintiff: _____ [specify facts that entitle plaintiff to recover special damages, such as injury to plaintiff's property, business, trade, profession, or occupation].

10. Plaintiff has also suffered general damages because of damage to his/her reputation and the suffering of same and hurt feelings.

11. [Allegation of punitive damages. See § 340.237, Paragraph 12.]

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[Verification, if desired. See § 340.220.]

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use to obtain damages for words not slanderous per se. The essential allegation is one for special damages (Paragraph 9) because an action for defamation not slanderous per se is not actionable without it [see Gautier v. General Tel. Co. (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 302, 309, 44 Cal. Rptr. 404] .

[3] Specification of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded for this cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case or whether it is a limited civil case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115], see Ch. 177, Damages , and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments

[4] State Statutes

Words falsely published that by their natural consequence cause actual damage to plaintiff as slanderous. Civ. Code § 46(5)

[5] Decisions

Averment of special damages as required if publication not defamatory on its face. Gautier V General Telephone Co. (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 302, 309, 44 Cal. Rptr. 404

On proof of actual damages in action for slander under Civ. Code § 46(5), jury as capable of considering plaintiff's loss of reputation, shame, and hurt feelings in awarding general damages. Cunningham v. Simpson (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 301, 309, 81 Cal. Rptr. 855, 461 P.2d 39

[1] FORM Demand for Retraction of Slanderous Comment [Civ. Code § 48a]

To _____ [name of broadcaster]:

I call your attention to a _____ [describe type of comment, e.g., statement or program] which was made on _____ [date], on your _____ [radio or television] station. The _____ [describe type of comment] was made by _____ [name of person making comment] who stated: _____ [set forth exact language of the comment or allege substance of comment].

[The entire _____ (describe nature of comment) is grossly slanderous as it applies to me or The portions of the _____ (describe nature of comment) that apply to me are grossly slanderous: _____.] I therefore demand that _____ [the entire _____ (describe nature of comment) or those portions of the _____ (describe nature of comment)] be corrected in the manner required by Section 48a(3) of the Civil Code of the State of California.
Dated: _____

_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use to demand that allegedly defamatory material be corrected or retracted by a radio or television broadcaster in compliance with Civ. Code § 48a(3). Such a demand is a condition precedent to recovering either general or punitive damages from a radio or television broadcaster [Civ. Code §§ 48a(1), 48a(2)].

[3] Constitutional Limitation on Damages

In addition to the statutory requirement of a demand before recovering either general or punitive damages, the United States Supreme Court had forbidden the imposition of "liability without fault" on publishers in suits by private individuals, and has required that private individual plaintiffs meet the New York Times standard before recovering either general or punitive damages from broadcasters for a statement that is a matter of public concern [Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 346-350, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789 ; see Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 768-769, 775-777, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783] . Also, a public figure plaintiff, or a private plaintiff who is suing a media defendant for publishing speech of a public concern, is required by the First Amendment to bear the burden of proving the falsity of the defamatory statement before recovering damages [Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 768-769, 776-777, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783] .

[4] State Statutes

[Caption. See § 340.237.]

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Allegation of corporate status of broadcaster. See § 340.233, Paragraph 1.]

[2. Capacity and residence of other defendants, if applicable. See § 340.233, Paragraph 2.]

[3. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 340.220, Paragraph 2.]

[4. Agency allegation, if appropriate. See § 340.220, Paragraph 3.]

5. At all times herein mentioned, the corporation was, and now is, doing business as a _____ [radio or television] broadcaster and was and now is broadcasting _____ [radio or television] programs in the City of _____, County of _____, State of California. The programs are broadcast over _____ [station _____ at _____ (number) _____ (AM or FM) or Channel _____ (number)]. The programs are _____ [heard or seen] by a great number of persons and citizens of the area in which it is broadcast.

6. [Capacity and residence of plaintiff. See § 340.220, Paragraph 4.]

[EITHER]

7. On _____ [date], in a broadcast that occurred around _____ [time], defendant(s) broadcast or caused to be broadcast a _____ [describe nature of comment] made by _____ [name of person making comment], which stated: _____ [set forth precise language of the comment].

[OR]

7. On _____ [date], in a broadcast that occurred around _____ [time], defendant(s) broadcast or caused to be broadcast a _____ [describe nature of comment] made by _____ [name of person making comment], a transcript of which is attached hereto as Exhibit A and incorporated herein for all purposes.

[8. Allegation of colloquium, if appropriate. See § 340.220, Paragraph 6.]

9. The broadcast was slanderous per se because _____ [specify facts that support allegation.]

10. This broadcast was false because _____ [specify facts that support allegation.]

11. The broadcast was heard by those who _____ [listen to or watch] _____ [radio or television] programs of _____ [station _____ or Channel _____] in the City of _____, County of _____ and throughout the State of California.

12. Defendant(s) _____ [was or were] negligent in broadcasting this program. With ordinary and reasonable care defendant(s) would have realized or could have discovered that the program was obviously false and grossly slanderous as it applied to this plaintiff.

13. Furthermore, defendant(s) broadcast the program either knowing that it was false as it applied to plaintiff or with reckless disregard for whether or not it was true.

14. On _____ [date], within 20 days after the broadcast was made, plaintiff served on defendant broadcaster a demand for correction or retraction as required by Section 48a of the Civil Code. A copy of that demand is attached hereto, marked Exhibit _____, and incorporated herein by reference.

[EITHER]

15. Up to and including the date of the filing of this complaint, defendant(s) _____ [has or have] failed and refused, and still fail and refuse, to broadcast a correction or retraction as required by law.

[OR]

15. On _____ [date], defendant(s) broadcast what is claimed to be a retraction that comports with the law. A copy of that retraction is attached hereto, marked Exhibit _____ [B or C], and incorporated herein by reference. The retraction is not legally sufficient because it fails to meet the requirements of Section 48a(3) of the Civil Code. It was not broadcast in substantially as conspicuous a manner as the original program was broadcast and does not have the same force and effect as though the correction had been broadcast within three weeks after a demand for it.

16. [General damages allegation. See § 340.220, Paragraph 11.]

17. [Special damages allegation. See § 340.220, Paragraph 12.]

18. The above-described program was broadcast by the defendant(s) because of his/her/its/their feelings of hatred and ill-will toward plaintiff and with willful and conscious disregard for the rights of plaintiff, thereby justifying an award of punitive damages against defendant(s) _____ in an amount appropriate to punish defendant(s) for his/her/its/their wrongful conduct and to deter others from engaging in such conduct.

CAUTION:
Service of a demand for retraction of the allegedly slanderous comment is a condition precedent to suing a broadcaster for slander [see Civ. Code §§ 48a(1), 48a(2); see also § 340.243].

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use to obtain damages from a radio or television broadcaster for a defamatory program that is slanderous per se.

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- The falsity of the broadcast (Paragraph 10) [Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 768-769, 776-777, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783] .

- Negligence by the broadcaster in broadcasting the defamatory program (Paragraph 12) [Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 346-350, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789] .

- Intentionality or recklessness in broadcasting the program (Paragraph 13) [Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (1974) 418 U.S. 323, 346-350, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789] .

- The serving of a demand for retraction on the broadcaster (Paragraph 14) [Civ. Code §§ 48a(1), 48a(2); Field Research Corp. v. Superior Court (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 110, 113-114, 77 Cal. Rptr. 243, 453 P.2d 747] .

- The failure of the broadcaster to comply with the demand (Paragraph 15) [Civ. Code §§ 48a(2), 48a(3)].

At the above date and place, _____ [name(s) of public employee(s)] published the following statement about _____ [name of claimant]: _____ [set out language with as much precision as possible].

Claimant has been injured as a result of this statement in the amount of $_____ as of the filing of this claim. The basis of the above computation is as follows:

(1) General damages in the sum of $_____.

(2) Special damages in the sum of $_____.
Dated: _____

[signature of claimant or of person acting in claimant's behalf]

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use in filing a claim with either the state or a local public entity when either one or a number of its employees has made defamatory remarks or statements about the claimant [see Gov. Code §§ 905, 905.2, 910, 910.2]. The filing of a claim with the appropriate public entity is a prerequisite to an action for defamation [Neal v. Gatlin (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 871, 875-877, 111 Cal. Rptr. 117 (college teacher)].

[1] FORM Allegations--Presentation of Claim to Public Entity [Gov. Code §§ 905, 905.2] and Rejection of Claim by Public Entity [Gov. Code §§ 912.4, 912.6, 912.8]

1. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff duly presented to defendant _____ [name of public entity] a claim in the amount of $_____ for the damages sought herein.

[EITHER]

2. On or about _____ [date], defendant rejected the claim _____ [either in its entirety or allowed the claim in the amount of $_____ and rejected it as to the remainder.

[OR]

2. Defendant failed and refused to act on the claim within the period of 45 days after its presentation, and the claim was thus rejected under the provisions of Section 912.4 of the Government Code of the State of California on _____ [date].

These allegations are for use in a complaint for libel or slander against either a public entity or public employee. The allegations state that the plaintiff filed a claim with the public entity [see Gov. Code §§ 905, 910] and that the entity rejected that claim either explicitly [see Gov. Code § 912.6] or by the elapse of the 45 day period in which it must act [see Gov. Code § 912.4].

[Caption. See § 340.260]

Defendant demurs to the complaint herein on the following grounds:

The complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that it appears on the face of the complaint that the language claimed to be defamatory is _____ [not a false statement of fact or an expression of opinion].

Attorney for Defendant(s) _____ [name(s)]

CAUTION:
The United States Supreme Court has held that U.S. Const. amend. I, does not require that state defamation laws establish a privilege for statements of opinion, as opposed to factual statements. The Court held in Milkovich v. Lorain Journal Co. (1990) 497 U.S. 1, 17-21, 110 S. Ct. 2695, 111 L. Ed. 2d 1 , that whether or not a statement is defamatory depends not on an opinion/fact dichotomy, but rather on whether it is based on the facts presented and, under existing constitutional guarantees, it is of a defamatory nature. It is unclear whether the California courts will adopt the Supreme Court's holding and likewise eliminate the opinion exemption or whether they will continue on the basis of the California Constitution or common law to exempt statements of opinion. Milkovich is discussed in § 340.16[1].

CAUTION:

A party filing a demurrer is required to serve and file therewith a notice of hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(c)] and a memorandum of points and authorities in support of each ground thereof [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use in objecting, by general demurrer, to a complaint for defamation on the grounds that the pleading does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] because it appears on the face of the complaint that the allegedly defamatory language is merely a statement of opinion [see Botos v. Los Angeles County Bar Assn. (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 1083, 1088-1089, 199 Cal. Rptr. 236 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a) (grounds for objection to complaint by demurrer must appear on face of complaint)].

[3] Decisions

False statement of fact as essential element of libel; legal distinction of fact from opinion as varying with context. Okun v. Superior Court (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 442, 450-451, 175 Cal. Rptr. 157, 629 P.2d 1369

Statements written by newspaper columnist concerning criminal defense lawyer tactics in criminal cases involving child victims as protected speech in nature of expression of imaginative expression or rhetorical hyperbole (deputy public defender's acquisition of school records as "really scary part of this story"; deputy public defender went to "extreme lengths"), clearly recognizable as opinion and not reasonably to be understood as statements of literal fact. James v. San Jose Mercury News, Inc. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1, 14, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 890

Expression of opinion in heat of political controversy as not libelous. Carr v. Warden (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 1166, 1170, 206 Cal. Rptr. 162

Distinction between fact and opinion as question of law when statement unambiguously constitutes either fact or opinion; but when statement can be understood by average listener or reader in either sense, issue must be left to trier of fact. O'Connor v. McGraw-Hill, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 478, 484, 206 Cal. Rptr. 33

When statements made in context of public controversy, political or public debate, heated labor dispute, or other setting in which audience expects parties to persuade others to their positions by use of epithets or fiery rhetoric, court as allowed to determine, as question of law, that statements should be viewed in context and treated as expression of opinion. *O'Connor v. § 340.265 Affirmative Defense--Defendant Did Not Publish [or Broadcast] Statement About Public Official With Malice

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense--Defendant Did Not Publish [or Broadcast] Statement About Public Official With Malice

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

The _____ [publication or broadcast] complained of in plaintiff's complaint concerned plaintiff's official conduct as a public official. It was not _____ [published or broadcast] by the defendant either with knowledge that it was false or with reckless disregard of the truth of the statements. It thus is protected by constitutional privilege.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense may be set forth in the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30] to a complaint for libel or slander where plaintiff has failed to identify himself as a public official. It alleges that defendant did not make the publication or broadcast with actual malice toward the plaintiff, and thus the statements are protected by the constitutional privilege afforded by New York Times Co. v. Sullivan (1964) 376 U.S. 254, 279-280, 84 S. Ct. 710, 11 L. Ed. 2d 686 .

[1] FORM Demurrer--Failure of Public Figure Suing for Defamation to Allege Malice

[Caption. See § 340.260.]

Defendant demurs to the complaint herein on the following ground:

The complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that plaintiff has pleaded facts which identify him as a public figure but yet has failed to allege that defendant _____ [published or broadcast] the allegedly defamatory statements concerning him with knowledge of their falsity or with reckless disregard for their truth as required by the first amendment.

For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use in objecting, by demurrer, to a complaint on the ground that the pleading does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] because plaintiff has pleaded facts which identify himself as a public figure but yet has failed to allege that the defendant either published or broadcast the statements with actual malice [see Curtis Publ'g Co. v. Butts (1967) 388 U.S. 130, 164, 87 S. Ct. 1975, 18 L. Ed. 2d 1094 (Warren, Ch. J., concurring)]. This defect must appear on the face of the complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]. Where plaintiff has not identified himself as a public figure, the constitutional privilege should be raised by answer [see § 340.267].

[1] FORM Demurrer--Failure of Plaintiff (Suing Publisher or Broadcaster) to Allege Notice and Demand for Retraction [Civ. Code § 48a(2)]

[Caption. See § 340.260.]

Defendant demurs to the complaint herein on the following ground:

The complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that plaintiff has failed to allege that, within 20 days after his/her knowledge of the _____ [publication or broadcast], he/she notified defendant of the allegedly defamatory statements which had been _____ [published or broadcast] concerning him/her and has failed to allege that he/she demanded a correction of the allegedly defamatory statements. Plaintiff has not alleged any special damages resulting from the _____ [publication or broadcast]. Because Section 48a of the Civil Code bars recovery of any damages except special damages without the pleading and proof of the above-mentioned notice and demand, plaintiff's complaint therefore fails to state a cause of action.

§ 340.272 Affirmative Defense--Failure of Plaintiff Suing Publisher [or Broadcaster] to Notify Defendant With Sufficient Specificity What Statements Were Allegedly Defamatory [Civ. Code § 48a(1)]

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense--Failure of Plaintiff Suing Publisher [or Broadcaster] to Notify Defendant With Sufficient Specificity What Statements Were Allegedly Defamatory [Civ. Code § 48a(1)]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

The _____ [publication or broadcast] complained of in plaintiff's complaint made numerous statements about plaintiff. The notice and demand which plaintiff served on defendant within the 20 days statutory period was not sufficiently specific to enable defendant to ascertain which statements in the _____ [publication or broadcast] were claimed by plaintiff to be defamatory. Thus, defendant was not able to make the required correction or retraction.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense may be set forth in the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30] to a complaint for defamation against a publisher or broadcaster. It alleges that the notice and demand served on the publisher or broadcaster by the plaintiff were not specific enough to enable the defendant to make a correction or retraction [see Kapellas v. Kofman (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 20, 31-32, 81 Cal. Rptr. 360, 459 P.2d 912] .

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

Plaintiff did not serve the notice and demand for correction on defendant within the 20 day period as required by Section 48a(1) of the Civil Code. Because plaintiff's complaint does not allege any special damages, plaintiff can not recover any damages.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense may be set forth in the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30] to a complaint for defamation against a publisher or broadcaster. It alleges that the required notice and demand for retraction where not served on the publisher or broadcaster within the 20-day statutory period required by Civ. Code § 48a(1).

§ 340.274 Affirmative Defense--Failure of Plaintiff Suing Broadcaster to Serve Demand on Owner Rather Than Originator of Allegedly Defamatory Statements [Civ. Code § 48a(1)]

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense--Failure of Plaintiff Suing Broadcaster to Serve Demand on Owner Rather Than Originator of Allegedly Defamatory Statements [Civ. Code § 48a(1)]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

Plaintiff did not serve the notice and demand for correction on defendant. Plaintiff served _____ [name of originator of statement], an employee who works for defendant as a _____ [specify capacity of person served, such as disc jockey]. Such service does not comply with the retraction statute and is legally insufficient.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense may be set forth in the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30] to a complaint for defamation against a broadcaster. It alleges that the required notice and demand for correction were not served on the owner or operator of the broadcasting station and thus is legally insufficient [see Civ. Code § 48a(1); Field Research Corp. v. Superior Court (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 110, 113-114, 77 Cal. Rptr. 243, 453 P.2d 747] .

In the case of an alleged libel by a newspaper or other publication, the service requirements of Civ. Code § 48a(1) are satisfied by serving the notice and demand (1) on the publisher; (2) on the employee designated by the publisher to receive, respond to, and act on such notices and demands; or (3) on any other employee of the publication if the publisher has acquired actual knowledge of the notice and demand within the 20-day period of Civ. Code § 48a(1) [Freedom Newspapers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 652, 658, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 839, 842 P.2d 138] .

Case law has not addressed the question of whether these service options are permissible in the case of an allegedly defamatory broadcast. However, the rationale underpinning the holding in Freedom Newspapers does not appear to preclude these service options in that situation [see Freedom Newspapers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 652, 656-658, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 839, 842 P.2d 138] . For a form raising the affirmative defense of plaintiff's failure to properly serve the notice and demand in the case of an allegedly defamatory publication, see § 340.274.5.

Service of notice and demand for correction or retraction on publisher, publisher's designee, or other employee of publisher. *Freedom Newspapers, Inc. v. Service of notice and demand as required to be made on publisher, publisher's employees under specified conditions, or broadcaster, rather than on originator of defamatory statements. Freedom Newspapers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 652, 658, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 839, 842 P.2d 138 (service on publisher or publisher's employees as permitted); Field Research Corp. v. Balokovich (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 788, 791, 228 P.2d 6 (service on originator as not permitted)

§ 340.275 Affirmative Defense--Failure of Plaintiff Suing Publisher to Serve Demand on Owner or Appropriate Employee Rather Than Originator of Allegedly Libelous Statements [Civ. Code § 48a(1)]

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense--Failure of Plaintiff Suing Publisher to Serve Demand on Owner or Appropriate Employee Rather Than Originator of Allegedly Libelous Statements [Civ. Code § 48a(1)]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state: TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

Plaintiff did not serve the notice and demand for correction on either defendant or _____ [name of employee], the employee designated by defendant to receive, respond to, and act on such notices and demands on defendant's behalf. Plaintiff served _____ [name of originator of statement], an employee of defendant who works for defendant as a _____ [specify capacity of person served, such as reporter]. Even though plaintiff served the notice and demand on this employee within the 20-day time period set forth in Civil Code Section 48a(1), defendant did not acquire actual knowledge of the notice and demand within this time period. Therefore, service does not comply with the statute and is legally insufficient.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense may be set forth in the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30] to a complaint for libel against a newspaper publisher. This defense is for use when plaintiff has served the notice and demand for correction on the originator of the allegedly libelous statements, who is a person other than the publisher or the employee designated by the publisher to receive, respond to, and act on such notices and demands, and when, despite service on this person, the publisher has not acquired actual knowledge of the notice and demand within the 20-day period specified in the retraction statute [Freedom Newspapers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 652, 658, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 839, 842 P.2d 138 ; see Civ. Code § 48a(1)]. If the originator of the allegedly libelous statements is, in fact, the publisher's designee for receipt of and action on such notices and demands, or if the publisher has acquired actual knowledge of the notice and demand within the 20-day period specified in the retraction statute, then plaintiff has met its service requirements under the statute and this defense is inapplicable [see Freedom Newspapers, Inc. v. Superior Court

Case law does not address the question of whether these service options are permissible in the case of an allegedly defamatory radio or television broadcast. However, the rationale underpinning the holding in Freedom Newspapers does not appear to preclude these service options in that situation [see Freedom Newspapers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 652, 656-658, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 839, 842 P.2d 138] . Counsel wishing to apply the Freedom Newspapers rationale to the broadcast context may therefore choose to adapt this form for use against a complaint for an allegedly defamatory broadcast. Counsel choosing not to apply the rationale to the broadcast context may use the affirmative defense set out in see § 340.274.

[3] Decisions

Service requirements of retraction statute as met when notice of statements and demand for correction are served on publisher, on publisher's designee, or on employee other than designee if publisher acquires actual knowledge of notice and demand within statutory 20-day period. Freedom Newspapers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 652, 658, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 839, 842 P.2d 138

Service of notice and demand on author of article as not necessary when demand already served on publisher. Larrick v. Gilloon (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 408, 420, 1 Cal. Rptr. 360 , overruled on other grounds, Field Research Corp. v. Superior Court (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 110, 114, 77 Cal. Rptr. 243, 453 P.2d 747

For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities].

[2] Use of Form

This notice of motion is for use by a defendant to give notice of a motion for summary adjudication of the claim for punitive damages in a complaint for libel or slander against a publisher or broadcaster. The basis for granting the motion is either that the complaint failed to allege compliance with the retraction statute [Civ. Code § 48a] or that it failed to allege malice as required by the retraction statute [see Civ. Code § 48a(4)(d); see also McCoy v. Hearst Corp. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 835, 872, 231 Cal. Rptr. 518, 727 P.2d 711 (suggesting that both constitutional "actual malice" and statutory "actual malice" are required to support award of punitive damages in action covered by retraction statute)]. The defendant should use this motion for summary adjudication of the claim for punitive damages when the complaint also alleges special damages. If the complaint fails to allege special damages and seeks general and punitive damages without alleging compliance with the retraction statute and actual malice according to the New York Times standard, the appropriate pleading is a demurrer for failure to state a cause of action [see §§ 340.270 and 340.271].

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Justification--Defendant's Statements Were Truthful

AS A SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE, defendant alleges:

The statements complained of in plaintiff's complaint were not false. To the contrary, they were completely truthful in that _____ [specify facts that support defense of truth].

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense may be set forth in the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30] to a complaint in a libel or slander action. It alleges that the defendant's statements about the plaintiff were truthful. Truth is a complete defense to an action for defamation [Draper v. Hellman Commercial Trust & Sav. Bank (1928) 203 Cal. 26, 34, 263 P. 240 ; Swaffield v. Universal Ecsco Corp. (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 147, 164, 76 Cal. Rptr. 680] .

[3] Burden of Pleading and Proving Falsity

The United States Supreme Court has held that, at least if the plaintiff is either a public figure or a private figure who is suing a newspaper or other media defendant for publishing speech of a public concern, U.S. Const. amend. I, requires that the plaintiff bear the burden of proving the falsity of the defamatory statement before recovering damages [Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 768-769, 776-777, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783] . However, the Court has continued to leave open the question of the standards that would apply if a private plaintiff sues a nonmedia defendant [see, e.g., Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc. v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 779 n.4, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783 ; see also Hutchinson v. Proxmire (1979) 443 U.S. 111, 133 n.16, 99 S. Ct. 2675, 61 L. Ed. 2d 411 (open question as to whether the protection of U.S. Const. amend. I, extends to cases involving nonmedia defendants)].

Under the common law, a plaintiff is not required to allege that the statements are false, and an omission of an allegation of falsity in the complaint may not be grounds for a demurrer [see Lipman v. Brisbane Elementary Sch. Dist. (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 224, 233, 11 Cal. Rptr. 97, 359 P.2d 465 ; see also Philadelphia Newspapers v. Hepps (1986) 475 U.S. 767, 775-776, 106 S. Ct. 1558, 89 L. Ed. 2d 783] . Therefore, although it is currently unclear whether or not a private plaintiff who sues a nonmedia defendant is required to plead and prove falsity, it appears that, at least under Lipman, and until the United States Supreme Court rules otherwise, the burden remains on the defendant rather than on the plaintiff. However, the better practice is for a plaintiff to allege falsity in a complaint, and a defendant might have a valid argument against a plaintiff who fails to do so.

[4] Risk in Pleading Truth

There is always a certain risk involved in pleading truth as an affirmative defense since, in proper cases and under proper instructions, the jury may infer malice from the fact that a defendant repeats the defamatory matter that is later found to be false [Shumate v. Johnson Publ'g Co. (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 121, 138 n.6, 293 P.2d 531 , quoting Reynolds v. Pegler (2d Cir. 1955) 223 F.2d 429, 434] . Thus, pleading truth as well as other facts and circumstances might provide evidence from which the jury could have inferred the existence of oppression and malice--a motive to vex, harass, and annoy the plaintiff--sufficient to support an award of exemplary damages [Shumate v. Johnson Publ'g Co. (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 121, 138, 293 P.2d 531] .

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Mitigation

AS A SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE, defendant alleges:

The statements complained of in plaintiff's complaint were made by defendant in good faith, honestly, and not maliciously in that _____ [specify facts that support allegation].

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense may be set forth in the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30] to a complaint in a libel or slander action. It alleges that the defendant's statements about the plaintiff were made in good faith, honestly, and not maliciously [see Clay v. Lagiss (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 441, 448, 299 P.2d 1025] . The facts that support the allegation constitute mitigating circumstances that serve to reduce the damages for which defendant is liable [see Code Civ. Proc. § 461].

[3] State Statutes

Defendant as capable of alleging both truth and mitigation in answer. Code Civ. Proc. § 461

[1] FORM General Demurrer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]--Presence of Privilege Disclosed on Face of Plaintiff's Complaint

[Caption. See § 340.260.]

Defendant demurs to the complaint herein on the following ground:

The complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that the _____ [absolute or qualified] privilege conveyed by Section _____ [number] of the Civil Code is disclosed by reason of the fact that _____ [specify facts disclosed in complaint that indicate presence of privilege].

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

CAUTION:
A party filing a demurrer is required to serve and file therewith a notice of hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(c)] and a memorandum of points and authorities in support of each ground thereof [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1113(a)]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use in objecting, by demurrer, to a complaint on the ground that the pleading does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] because it discloses the existence of a privilege on its face [see Locke v. Mitchell (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 599, 602, 61 P.2d 922] .

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Privilege Publication Made in Connection With Judicial Proceeding [Civ. Code § 47(b)]

AS A SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE, defendant alleges:

The statements complained of in plaintiff's complaint were made by defendant during the course of _____ [specify type of judicial proceeding]. They were made _____ [orally or contained in a _____ (specify type of document)] and clearly had a relationship to the proceedings in which defendant was participating when they were made because _____ [specify facts supporting allegation].

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense may be set forth in the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30] to a complaint for libel or slander if the statements were related to the judicial proceeding in which the defendant was participating [see Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375, 379, 295 P.2d 405] .

The California Supreme Court has held that the litigation privilege applies to protect statements made in contractual arbitration proceedings [Moore v. Conliffe (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 634, 658, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 152, 871 P.2d 204] . The Court declined to state whether the privilege also applies to statements made in the course of other "alternative dispute resolution" proceedings [*Moore v. [1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Privilege Publication Made in Connection With Administrative Proceeding [Civ. Code § 47(b)]

AS A SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE, defendant alleges:

The statements complained of in plaintiff's complaint were made by defendant during the course of _____ [specify type of governmental proceeding other than legislative or judicial proceeding, or specify other proceeding reviewable by mandate]. They were made _____ [orally or contained in a _____ (specify type of document)] and clearly had a relationship to the proceedings in which defendant was participating when they were made because _____ [specify facts supporting allegation].

[2] Use of Form

Civ. Code § 47(b) extends a privilege to publications or broadcasts made in an official proceeding other than a legislative or judicial proceeding. The words "official proceeding" as used in former Civ. Code § 47(2) as it existed at the time did not encompass nongovernmental proceedings [Hackethal v. Weissbein (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 55, 60, 154 Cal. Rptr. 423, 592 P.2d 1175 (decided under former Civ. Code § 47(2))]. However, after the Court's decision in Hackethal, the legislature amended Civ. Code § 47(b) by adding protection of publications or broadcasts made in the initiation or course of any other proceeding authorized by law and reviewable by mandate pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1084-1097 [see Civ. Code § 47(b)]. This form may therefore be used if the statement was made in the initiation of such a proceeding.

[4] State Statutes

Privileged publication as one made in official proceeding other than legislative or judicial proceeding or in proceeding reviewable by mandate pursant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1084-1097. Civ. Code § 47(b)

[5] Decisions

[a] In General

Defamatory statements made in quasi-judicial proceeding that have some relation thereto as absolutely privileged. King v. Borges (1972) 28 Cal. App.3d 27, 32, 104 Cal. Rptr. 414 ; Ascherman v. Natanson (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 861, 865, 100 Cal. Rptr. 656

[b] Determinative Factors

Factors weighted as important in determining whether proceedings are quasi-judicial and thus absolutely privileged under former Civ. Code § 47(2) [now see Civ. Code § 47(b)]. Goodley v. Sullivant (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 619, 625, 108 Cal. Rptr. 451 ; Ascherman v. Natanson (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 861, 866, 100 Cal. Rptr. 656

[c] Policy

Policy of free speech as underlying application of absolute privilege to quasi-judicial proceedings. Ascherman v. Natanson (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 861, 866, 100 Cal. Rptr. 656

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Privilege--Fair and True Report in Public Journal [Civ. Code § 47(d)]

AS A SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE, defendant alleges:

The statements complained of in plaintiff's complaint were made by defendant on _____ [date], in a fair and true report contained in _____ [specify public journal]. The report accurately described _____ [a judicial proceeding or a legislative proceeding or a _____ (specify) public proceeding or statements made in the course of a _____ (specify) proceeding or a verified charge or complaint made by _____ (identify person) to _____ (identify public official) on which a warrant has been issued].

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense may be set forth in the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30] to a complaint for libel if the statements were a fair and true report in a public journal that described (1) a judicial proceeding, (2) a legislative proceeding, (3) another type of public official proceeding, (4) statements made in the course of such a proceeding, or (5) a verified charge or complaint made by any person to a public official on which a warrant has been issued [Civ. Code § 47(d)].

[b] Substantial Accuracy

Former Civ. Code § 47(4) [now see Civ. Code § 47(d)] as requiring reporter to ensure that "gist or sting" of report, in its very substance, is accurately conveyed, but as allowing certain degree of literary license, because reporter is not bound by testifier's exact words. McClatchy Newspapers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 961, 975-976, 234 Cal. Rptr. 702

"Fair report" concept of former Civ. Code § 47(4) [now see Civ. Code § 47(d)] as permitting some degree of literary license, so that report using exaggerated terms is privileged as long as the gist of report is justified. Jennings v. Telegram-Tribune Co. (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 119, 125-127, 210 Cal. Rptr. 485

Application of absolute privilege of report in public journal as requiring only substantial accuracy. Handelsman v. San Francisco Chronicle (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 381, 386, 90 Cal. Rptr. 188

Reason for substantial accuracy rule as fact that exact reproduction as potentially harmful as reporter's interpretation. Handelsman v. San Francisco Chronicle (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 381, 386, 90 Cal. Rptr. 188

Test of accuracy for privilege as standard of accuracy for those whose function it is to give public fair report of what has occurred. Handelsman v. San Francisco Chronicle (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 381, 387, 90 Cal. Rptr. 188

Error in naming paper or characterizing writing in which publication alleged to be libelous appears as not defeating privilege. Mortensen v. Los Angeles Examiner (1931) 112 Cal. App. 194, 202, 296 P. 927

[Caption. See § 340.260.]

Defendant demurs to the complaint herein on the following ground:

The complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that it clearly appears on the face of the complaint that the alleged _____ [libel or slander] occurred on _____ [date] and that the complaint was filed on _____ [date]. The intervening period of time is thus obviously greater than one year and is barred by Section 340(c) of the Code of Civil Procedure.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant(s) _____ [name]

CAUTION:
A party filing a demurrer is required to serve and file therewith a notice of hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(c)] and a memorandum of points and authorities in support of each ground thereof [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use in objecting, by general demurrer, to a complaint on the ground that the pleading does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] because the plaintiff has failed to file the complaint within the one year period permitted by the statute of limitations applicable to defamation actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 340(c)]. This defect must appear on the face of the complaint; otherwise, the ground for objection should be taken by answer [see § 340.291] rather than by demurrer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a), (b)].

[3] California Points and Authorities

For a memorandum of points and authorities supporting this demurrer, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 142, Libel and Slander (Defamation) (Matthew Bender)

[4] State Statutes

Statute of limitations as one year for libel and slander actions. Code Civ. Proc. § 340(c)

[5] Decisions

One-year limitation period of former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 340(c)] as beginning on first date that substantial distribution of publication to retail outlets took place under Uniform Single Publication Act (Civ. Code § 3425.3). Strick v. Superior Court (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 916, 922, 192 Cal. Rptr. 314

Libel cause of action as accruing on date of first general distribution of publication to public, not cover date of magazine; statute of limitations as not tolled until plaintiff discovers alleged libel if libel was contained in nationally distributed magazine, widely available to public, including plaintiff. McGuiness v. Motor Trend Magazine (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 59, 63, 180 Cal. Rptr. 784

Cause of action for libel as not accruing, for purpose of limitation under Code Civ. Proc. § 340, until plaintiff discovers, or with reasonable diligence should discover, facts constituting cause of action (e.g., fact of publication of defamatory statement). Manguso v. Oceanside Unified Sch. Dist. (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 725, 731, 152 Cal. Rptr. 27

State of limitations as one year for libel and slander actions. Hopper v. Allen (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 797, 801-803, 72 Cal. Rptr. 435 ; Rutherford v. Johnson (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 316, 318, 58 Cal. Rptr. 546

Libel as occuring on publication and statute of limitation as beginning to run at that time. Campbell v. Jewish Comm. for Pers. Serv. (1954) 125 Cal. App. 2d 771, 774, 271 P.2d 185

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges the statements complained of in plaintiff's complaint were made by defendant about plaintiff on _____ [date]. Such statements were made without any feelings by defendant of hatred or ill will for plaintiff. To the contrary, they were made in good humor and as a joke and thus did not carry any defamatory meaning to those who heard the remarks.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense may be set forth in the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30] to a complaint for libel or slander where the statements failed to convey a defamatory meaning to those who heard them because they were made as a joke.

Defendant demurs to the complaint herein on the following ground:

The complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that defendant is a public employee who is employed by _____ [specify public entity] and works as a _____ [specify capacity]. Defendant made the statements complained of in plaintiff's complaint herein during the course of defendant's employment. Plaintiff has failed to allege that he filed a claim with _____ [specify public entity] as requred by Sections 950.2 and 905 of the Government Code. Moreover, since the statements were made on _____ [date] and the complaint was noted filed until _____ [date], the period of time of six months permitted for the filing of such a claim has elapsed [*Gov. Thus, the statements are immune to a cause of action for _____ [either libel or slander] under Section 820.2 of the Government Code.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense may be set forth in the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30] to a complaint for libel or slander where the statements were made by a public employee within the scope of his or her employment and thus are immune to a libel or slander action [see Gov. Code § 820.2].

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Public Entity Immune for Discretionary Statement of Public Employee

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that _____ [Name of employee] is a public employee employed by defendant. The statements complained of by plaintiff were made in the exercise of discretion properly vested in _____ [name of employee] and were within the scope of his/her employment. Thus, since _____ [name of employee] is immune from liability for the statements under Section 820.2 of the Government Code, defendant is likewise immune under Section 815.2(b) of the Government Code.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense may be set forth in the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30] to a complaint for libel or slander where defendant public entity is immune for the discretionary statements made by one of its employees about the plaintiff [Gov. Code § 815.2(b)].

A public entity would also not be liable for a defamatory statement made by one of its employees outside the scope of his or her employment. This is true because Gov. Code § 815.2(a) limits a public entity's liability to an act or omission of the employee which was within the scope of his or her employment.

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use as a notice of motion for summary judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c]. The notice of motion must be served on all other parties to the action at least 28 days before the hearing of the motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a)], and it must be supported by affidavits that are based on the personal knowledge of the affiant [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(b), (d)]. A motion for summary judgment should be used by counsel whenever a complaint has no merit because there is not triable issue of fact or because it is clear that defendant can make use of one of the affirmative defenses relevant to a libel or slander action. Raising the substance of an affirmative defense by way of summary judgment is obviously a quicker and more efficient way of resolving a dispute than by way of an answer since it eliminates the necessity of other pretrial proceedings or even a trail itself.

SECOND COUNT

(Cancellation of Cloud on Title)

1. Plaintiff incorporates by reference Paragraphs 1-9 of plaintiff's First Count as though fully set out herein.

2. Defendant(s) claim(s) and assert(s) an interest in the above-described real property which is adverse to plaintiff. That interest is based on a _____ [describe instrument] which was _____ [published or recorded] on or about _____ [date]. [If recorded, state location of county recorder as well as the book and page number where it is recorded.]

3. The _____ [describe instrument] is invalid and void because _____ [describe reasons for the invalidity such as falsity, forgery, or fraud].

4. The claim of the defendant(s) to the above-described property clouds plaintiff's title to that property, depreciates the property's market value, and prevents plaintiff from enjoying the use of the property and premises in the manner most to plaintiff's interest as its owner.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment [against defendants, and each of them,] as follows:

1. For general damages in the sum of $_____.

2. For punitive damages.

3. For the _____ [describe instrument] to be delivered to the clerk of the court for cancellation and that it be declared void.

4. For damages caused plaintiff by the inconvenience and time suffered by plaintiff in removing this cloud on plaintiff's title.

5. For attorney's fees and costs incurred in removing the cloud on plaintiff's title according to proof.

6. For costs of suit incurred herein.

7. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use to obtain damages for disparagement of title to real property [see Gudger v. Manton (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 537, 543, 134 P.2d 217 (disapproved with respect to statement that levy of a writ of execution is not an act in the course of a judicial proceeding in Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375, 381, 295 P.2d 405)] and to remove a cloud on the title to that property [see Civ. Code § 3412].

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges in the first count:

- The ownership in fee of a parcel of real property and the description of that property (Paragraph 4).
- The publication or recording by the defendant of a document done willfully, wrongfully, without justification, and without privilege (Paragraph 5).
- The falsity of the document (Paragraph 6).
- The casting of doubt on the plaintiff's title in the property (Paragraph 6).
- The causation of damages resulting from the impairment of the immediate salability of the property or of the general vendibility of the property (Paragraph 7).

- The incurring of attorney's fees in cancelling the instrument (Paragraph 8).

- Oppression, fraud, and malice by the defendant which justifies the awarding of punitive damages (Paragraph 9).

It alleges in the second count:

- The assertion by the defendant(s) of a claim or claims which are adverse to the plaintiff (Paragraph 2).

- The reasons why the instrument is void (Paragraph 3).

- The fact that the instrument constitutes a cloud on plaintiff's title and prevents plaintiff from obtaining the full use of the property (Paragraph 4).

[4] Quiet Title Action Distinguished

The distinction between an action for the cancellation of an instrument clouding the title to real property (Second Count) and an action to quiet title to it lies in the nature of the relief sought. In an action for cancellation brought pursuant to Civ. Code § 3412 the relief sought is an order that a particular instrument be cancelled by the court because it is void or voidable and may cause injury to the plaintiff [Civ. Code § 3412]. In an action to quiet title, the relief sought is for the court to determine and eliminate claims or interests in real property adverse to the party seeking relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 760.020(a)]. More often than not in slander of title actions the plaintiff is seeking to remove a cloud on the plaintiff's title in addition to obtaining damages for the decrease in value of the plaintiff's property. However, occasionally the plaintiff is attempting to quiet title to his or her real property rather than remove a cloud on it. In that case, the second count may be based on the forms which appear in Ch. 482, Quieting Title, in place of the allegations which appear in the Second Count of this form.

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense--Absolute Privilege for Judicial Proceedings [Civ. Code § 47(b)]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges:

1. The _____ [specify document, e.g., lis pendens] complained of was filed in good faith and in conjunction with an action defendant filed against the above-named plaintiff titled _____ vs. _____, No. _____, filed on _____ [date], in the _____ court of _____ County, California. The action was one to _____ [specify, e.g., cancel deed to real property].

2. Defendant recorded the _____ [specify document] in the recorder's office of _____ County, California, in Book _____, page _____.

[2] Use of Form

This defense is for use in an answer to a complaint for slander of title when the allegedly disparaging document was filed in conjunction with a judicial proceeding and is thus absolutely privileged.

Although a defendant normally has the burden of pleading and proving an affirmative defense, when the existence of an absolute privilege appears on the face of plaintiff's complaint, the complaint may be subject to a demurrer [Stevens v. Snow (1923) 191 Cal. 58, 64-65, 214 P. 968 ; see also Smith v. Commonwealth Land Title Ins. Co. (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 625, 630-631, 223 Cal. Rptr. 339] .

If the instrument claimed to be privileged is a lis pendens, the privilege will not attach unless the lis pendens identifies an action previously filed with a court of competent jurisdiction that affects the title or right of possession of real property, as authorized or required by law [Civ. Code § 47(b)(4)].

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges:

1. The defendant claims an interest in the real property that plaintiff alleges the _____ [describe document] disparaged. That interest is _____ [specify interest of defendant, e.g., a leasehold interest] in that real property.

2. The _____ [describe document] was _____ [published or recorded] by the defendant without malice and in good faith.

3. The _____ [publishing or recording] of the _____ was conditionally privileged and prevents plaintiff from recovering from any impairment in the value of the property that the _____ [describe document] caused.

[2] Use of Form

This defense is for use in an answer to a complaint for slander of title by either publishing or recording in which the defendant was conditionally privileged to do so because of the defendant's status as a rival claimant of or interested party in the property that plaintiff has alleged was disparaged.

Although a defendant normally has the burden of pleading and proving an affirmative defense, when the existence of a qualified privilege appears on the face of plaintiff's complaint, the plaintiff has the burden of pleading malice sufficient to overcome the privilege [Smith v. Commonwealth Land Title Ins. Co. (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 625, 630-631, 223

Cal. Rptr. 339] . If the plaintiff's complaint discloses the existence of a qualified privilege and does not allege malice, a demurrer is the proper response [Smith v. Commonwealth Land Title Ins. Co. (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 625, 630-631, 223 Cal. Rptr. 339] .

This defense is for use in an answer to a complaint for slander of title if the defendant has never published or recorded the allegedly disparaging document to any person.

Although a defendant normally has the burden of pleading and proving an affirmative defense, if the the failure to publish appears on the face of the complaint, it is subject to a demurrer for failure to state a cause of action [see Southcott v. Pioneer Title Co. (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 673, 676-677, 21 Cal. Rptr. 917] . This form may be adapted for use in a demurrer. For discussion and forms of demurrer, see Ch. 206, Demurrers Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings].

[3] Decisions

Communication of disparaging remarks about title to real property is essential to slander of title action. Southcott v. Pioneer Title Co. (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 673, 676-677, 21 Cal. Rptr. 917

Allegations that defendant "prepared" a document and that an escrow was "closed" were insufficient allegations of publication in slander of title action. Southcott v. Pioneer Title Co. (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 673, 676-677 ,

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 340.220, Paragraph 1.]

[2. Defendants Doe I through Doe _____, inclusive, are sued herein under fictitious names. Their true names and capacities are unknown to plaintiff. When their true names and capacities are ascertained, plaintiff will amend this complaint by inserting their true names and capacities herein. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges, that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by those defendants.)]

3. [Agency allegation, if appropriate. See § 340.220, Paragraph 3.]

4. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff was the owner of certain business goods located in the County of _____, State of California, more particularly described as follows: _____ [describe business goods].

5. On or about _____ [date], defendant(s) willfully, without justification, and without privilege _____ [published or communicated or caused to be published or caused to be communicated] to other persons _____ [describe type of communication, e.g., a letter] which stated: _____ [set forth disparaging statements in precise language].

[6. If material does not mention plaintiff or his/her goods by name, add: The defendant's(s') statements were made of and concerning the plaintiff's above-described business goods and were so understood by those who read the statements.]

7. The defendant's(s') statements disparaged plaintiff's above-described business goods in that _____ [set forth reasons why defendant's statements are disparaging to plaintiff's business goods, e.g., the defendant's statements falsely indicated that plaintiff's above-described business goods are made with inferior materials].

8. The defendant's(s') statements were false.

[9. If plaintiff is public figure, or statements concerned matter of public interest add: The statements of defendant(s) were made with knowledge of their falsity or with reckless disregard for their truth or falsity.]

[10. If plaintiff is private person suing a media defendant, and is not alleging knowledge or reckless disregard, allege negligence. See § 340.233, Paragraph 12.]

11. As a proximate result of defendant's(s') publication of the statements, prospective customers have been deterred from buying plaintiff's above-described business goods and from otherwise dealing with plaintiff, and plaintiff has thereby suffered injury to plaintiff's business and pecuniary loss in the sum of $_____.

12. [Punitive damages allegation. See § 340.311 , Paragraph 8.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment [against defendants, and each of them,] as follows:

1. For damages in the sum of $_____.

2. For punitive damages.

3. For costs of suit incurred herein.

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [typed name]

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use in obtaining damages for statements which disparage the quality of plaintiff's business goods and thereby cause pecuniary loss to plaintiff.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following [see Erlich v. Etner (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 69, 73-75, 36 Cal. Rptr. 256] :

- The ownership and description of plaintiff's business goods (Paragraph 4).
- The publication or communication of statements by defendants to third persons (Paragraph 5).
- That the statements of defendant(s) referred to plaintiff's business goods and were so understood by those who read them (Paragraph 6).
- That the defendant's statements disparaged plaintiff's business goods (Paragraph 7).
- The falsity of defendant's(s') statements (Paragraph 8).
- The "special damage" plaintiff thereby suffered (Paragraph 11).

In addition, to meet First Amendment limitations on liability, if the plaintiff is a public figure, or the allegedly actionable statements concerned a matter of public interest, the optional paragraph alleging actual malice must be used regardless of the identity of the defendant (Paragraph 9). If the plaintiff is a private person but the defendant is a member of the media, either Paragraph 9 or Paragraph 10 must be used to satisfy the requirements of the First Amendment (Paragraphs 9, 10) [see Blatty v. New York Times Co. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 1033, 1042, 232 Cal. Rptr. 542, 728 P.2d 1177 ; Melaleuca, Inc. v. Clark (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1344, 1363-1365, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 627] .

[4] "Special Damage": Pleading and Proof

In an action for trade libel, the plaintiff must plead and prove that the publication of the disparaging statements has played a substantial part in inducing others not to deal with plaintiff and that as a result, he or she has suffered "special damage" (pecuniary loss) [Leonardini v. Shell Oil Co. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 547, 573, 264 Cal. Rptr. 883] . In California, the plaintiff may plead this by means of a general allegation that persons have been dissuaded from dealing with plaintiff by reason of the publication, together with an allegation of pecuniary loss in a specific sum [see Erlich v. Etner (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 69, 74, 75, 36 Cal. Rptr. 256 ; Wright v. Coules (1906) 4 Cal. App. 343, 347, 87 P. 809] . Although the plaintiff may allege loss of business in general terms, it nevertheless appears that the plaintiff must prove loss by showing the effect of the disparaging statements on the conduct of specific persons [see Erlich v. Etner (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 69, 73-74, 75, 36 Cal. Rptr. 256 ; but see Restatement (Second) of Torts § 633 cmts. g, h].

[5] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified also, if the action is in the superior court and is not a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial except in a limited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

[6] Defamation Action Distinguished

When the disparaging statements affect not only a business person's goods but also his or her reputation for honesty, the appropriate action is one for libel per se under Civ. Code §§ 45, 45a. The advantage of such an action is that general damages are presumed and special damages need not be alleged or proved [Erlich v. Etner (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 69, 73, 36 Cal. Rptr. 256 ; Rosenberg v. J.C. Penney Co. (1939) 30 Cal. App. 2d 609, 621, 86 P.2d 696] .

[7] Decisions

Constitutional limitations on liability applicable in trade libel actions. Blatty v. New York Times Co. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 1033, 1042-1043, 232 Cal. Rptr. 542, 728 P.2d 1177 ; Melaleuca, Inc. v. Clark (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1344, 1363-1365, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 627 ; Leonardini v. Shell Oil Co. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 547, 574-579, 264 Cal. Rptr. 883 ; *Hofmann Co. v. E. I. Chapter 342 LIENS AND WAGE PREFERENCES
PART I. SCOPE

30-342 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 342.01

§ 342.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the general provisions of the Civil Code that regulate liens. The chapter contains forms for use in enforcing various miscellaneous liens [see §§ 342.150 -342.157], as well as a complaint to marshal assets [see § 342.158] and an affirmative defense [see § 342.160].

This chapter also discusses and contains forms for use in actions to impress and foreclose equitable liens. It includes the following forms:

- A general complaint to impress and foreclose an equitable lien on real or personal property by one who has a security interest in the property [see § 342.180].

- A complaint against a decedent's personal representative to impress and foreclose an equitable lien on the decedent's real property [see § 342.181].

- A complaint by an assignee of a contractor and holder of a promissory note to impress and foreclose an equitable lien on real property [see § 342.182].

- A stipulation creating a lien on a cause of action [see § 342.183].

This chapter discusses and contains forms for use by an unpaid wage claimant who seeks priority in the distribution of the proceeds that result from a levy by a nonlabor, secured creditor [see §§ 342.200 -342.205]. The chapter also includes discussion and a form for use by an unpaid wage claimant when his or her employer has made an assignment either for the benefit of creditors or as a result of a proceeding in insolvency or receivership [see § 342.206].

Concluding this chapter is Part V. Table of Liens [see § 342.250 et seq.], which is an extensive table of California statutes relating to the creation of liens, including both liens discussed in this chapter and those covered in other chapters of this publication. Convenient cross references to the other chapters are included in the table.

For references to liens discussed in other chapters of this publication, and relevant forms, see the cross references in § 342.02.

A. Liens In General

30-342 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 342.10

§ 342.10 Governing Statutes

[1] In General

Liens are governed generally by Civ. Code §§ 2872-2914. Hospital liens are governed by Civ. Code §§ 3045.1-3045.6, various miscellaneous liens by Civ. Code §§ 3046-3066, and vehicle liens by Civ. Code §§ 3067-3074. Certain sections of the Code of Civil Procedure also govern specific liens, such as oil and gas liens [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1203.50-1203.66], liens on animals [Code Civ. Proc. § 1208.5], and liens on aircraft [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1208.61-1208.70. In addition, numerous sections in other codes create and regulate the enforcement of liens in specific instances. For a comprehensive listing of specific liens, see the Table of Liens in § 342.250.

[2] Secured Interests Under Uniform Commercial Code

Any transaction or security interest governed by the Uniform Commercial Code is not affected by Civ. Code § 2872 et seq. [Civ. Code § 2914].

Note, however, that Division 9 of the Commercial Code governs consensual security interests in personal property and fixtures, except those arising from the types of transactions excluded by Com. Code § 9109(c) [Com. Code § 9109(a)]. For instance, an assignment of a claim arising in tort, other than a commercial tort claim, is not governed by Division 9 (although Com. Code §§ 9315 and 9322 would apply with respect to proceeds and priorities in proceeds) [Com. Code § 9109(c)(12)].

For further discussion of the creation, enforcement, and priority of liens created pursuant to Division 9 of the Commercial Code, see Ch. 503, Sales: Secured Transactions .

Chapter 342 LIENS AND WAGE PREFERENCES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Liens In General

30-342 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 342.11

§ 342.11 Definitions

[1] Lien

A lien is a charge imposed in some mode other than by a transfer in trust on specific property by which it is made security for the performance of an act [Civ. Code § 2872; Code Civ. Proc. § 1180]. It is either general or special [Civ. Code § 2873].

[2] General Lien

A general lien is one that the holder is entitled to enforce as a security for the performance of all the obligations, or all of a particular class of obligations, which exist in his favor against the owner of the property [Civ. Code § 2874]. Thus, a general lien covers the indebtedness to the lien claimant that has arisen from a series of transactions. General liens include:

- A vendor's lien on real property [Civ. Code § 3046].
- A foundry proprietor's lien [Civ. Code § 3051].
- A laundry or dry cleaning proprietor's lien [Civ. Code § 3051].
- A factor's lien [Civ. Code § 3053].
- A banker's lien [Civ. Code § 3054].
- A master's lien [Harb. & Nav. Code § 492].
- A seaman's lien [Harb. & Nav. Code § 493].

[3] Special Lien

A special lien is one that the holder can enforce only as security for the performance of a particular act or obligation, and of any obligations that may be incidental thereto [Civ. Code § 2875]. Thus, a special lien arises from a single transaction between the lien claimant and property owner. Special liens include an artisan's or repair person's lien for services [Civ. Code § 3051], and a purchaser's lien on real property [Civ. Code § 3050].

30-342 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 342.12

§ 342.12 Lien as Form of Encumbrance

The term "encumbrances" includes taxes, assessments, and all liens on real property [Civ. Code § 1114 (statutory spelling is "incumbrances")]. Thus, an encumbrance, although the term is sometimes used synonymously with the term "lien," is broader than a lien with respect to real property [see Civ. Code § 2872].

30-342 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 342.13

§ 342.13 Creation of Liens

[1] By Contract or Operation of Law

A lien is created (1) by contract of the parties or (2) by operation of law [Civ. Code § 2881].

A lien that arises by mere operation of law, however, does not arise until the time at which the act to be secured by the lien ought to be performed [Civ. Code § 2882].

The parties do not have to use the word "lien" in their contract to create a valid lien. Terms such as "granting a security interest in collateral" are sufficient [Bluxome Street Associates v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1149, 1153, 254 Cal. Rptr. 198] .

Unlike liens governed by Division 9 of the Commercial Code, the filing of a financing statement is not necessary to create a valid lien under Civ. Code § 2881(1) [Bluxome Street Associates v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1149, 1156, 254 Cal. Rptr. 198] . Although providing notice of a lien is a statutory prerequisite to the creation or enforceability of certain types of liens [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 491.410(b) (attachment lien), 697.310(a), 697.510(a) (judgment liens on real and personal property, respectively)], creation and enforcement of contractual liens under Civ. Code § 2881(1) do not require the giving of any notice [Cetenko v. United California Bank (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 528, 532, 179 Cal. Rptr. 902, 638 P.2d 1299 ; Bluxome Street Associates v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1149, 1157, 254 Cal. Rptr. 198] .

[2] On Unacquired Property

An agreement may be made to create a lien on property not yet acquired by the party agreeing to give the lien, or not yet in existence. In that case the lien agreed for attaches from the time when the party agreeing to give it acquires an interest in the thing, to the extent of that interest [Civ. Code § 2883(a)]. For these purposes, an agreement by a beneficiary of an estate that is subject to administration [see Prob. Code § 7000 et seq.] to create a lien on real property in the estate that is undistributed at the time the agreement is entered into will not create a lien on the real property unless and until the property is distributed to that beneficiary. On recordation of an order confirming the sale of the real property [see Prob.

Code § 10313] and the recording of a duly executed deed in accordance with that order, any expectancy of a lien in the real property under the agreement will be extinguished [Civ. Code § 2883(b)].

For further discussion of the encumbrance and sale of estate property, see Ch. 445, Probate: Sale of Estate Property .

[3] As Security for Future Obligations

A lien may be created by contract, to take immediate effect, as security for the performance of obligations not then in existence [Civ. Code § 2884].

Failure to notify the tax debtor does not affect the constructive notice otherwise imparted by recordation, nor does it affect the force, effect, or priority otherwise accorded the tax lien [*Civ. § 342.21 Redemption

[1] Right of Interest Holder in Property

Every person who has an interest in property subject to a lien has a right to redeem it from the lien at any time after the claim is due and before his or her right of redemption is foreclosed [Civ. Code § 2903].

[2] Subrogation

By the redemption, the person redeeming the interest becomes subrogated to all the benefits of the lien, as against all owners of other interests in the property, except in so far as he or she was bound to make the redemption for their benefit [Civ. Code § 2903].

[3] Method of Redemption

Redemption from a lien is made by performing or offering to perform the act whose performance is secured by the lien and paying or offering to pay the damages, if any, to which the holder of the lien is entitled for delay [Civ. Code § 2905].

[4] Junior Lienor's Right to Redemption

One who has a lien that is inferior to another on the same property has a right (1) to redeem the property in the same manner as its owner might from the superior lien, and (2) to be subrogated to all the benefits of the superior lien, when necessary for the protection of his or her interests, on satisfying the claim secured thereby [Civ. Code § 2904].

When the holder of special lien is compelled to satisfy a prior lien for his or her own protection, the special lienholder may enforce payment of the amount so paid as part of the claim for which his or her own lien exists [Civ. Code § 2876].

[5] Effectiveness of Option to Redeem

An option granted to a secured party by a debtor to acquire an interest in real property collateral is effective according to its terms if the right to exercise the option is not dependent on the occurrence of default with respect to the security agreement [Civ. Code § 2906]. If the real property subject to the option is other than residential real property containing four or fewer units, the option will not be deemed invalid or ineffective on the basis that the secured party has impaired the debtor's equity of redemption in violation of common law or Civ. Code § 2889 [Civ. Code § 2906].

Civ. Code § 2906 shall not be construed to make valid or effective an otherwise unlawful option, nor shall any inference be drawn from this section as to the validity or application of common law with respect to residential property containing four or fewer units [Civ. Code § 2906].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Liens In General

30-342 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 342.22

§ 342.22 Priority Between Lien Claimants

[1] First in Time

Other things being equal, different liens on the same property have priority according to the time of their creation, except in cases of bottomry and respondentia [Civ. Code § 2897; see Harb. & Nav. Code §§ 450 et seq. (bottomry), 470 et seq. (respondentia).

Unless a statute provides otherwise, the priority accorded by Civ. Code § 2897 to the first lien created is not altered by the fact that no notice was given of that lien while notice was given of a subsequently created lien [Bluxome Street Associates v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1149, 1158, 254 Cal. Rptr. 198 (subsequent attachment lien of which notice was required by Code Civ. Proc. § 491.410 as subordinate to lien created earlier of which no notice was given)].

[2] Equitable Considerations

Analysis of the priority of liens pursuant to Civ. Code § 2897 does not end with the determination that a particular lien was created first. The language of the statute also requires a determination that the equities of the lienholders are equal [Bluxome Street Associates v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1149, 1159, 254 Cal. Rptr. 198] . Appropriate considerations include whether one lienholder detrimentally relied on the availability of the property subject to the lien, and whether or not a lienholder's efforts or services resulted in the creation of the fund or property subject to the lien [Bluxome Street Associates v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1149, 1159, 254 Cal. Rptr. 198 ; see also Nicoletti v. Lizzoli (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 361, 369-370, 177 Cal. Rptr. 685 (judgment creditor's subsequent lien subordinated to medical lienors' prior consensual lien; equity supports first-in-time principle); Del Conte Masonry Co. v. Lewis (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 678, 681, 94 Cal. Rptr. 439 (judgment creditor's subsequent lien held superior on basis of equities)].

In personal injury cases, public policy and equity favor giving an attorney's lien for fees and costs priority over a medical lien, regardless of which lien was first in time. Priority of the attorney's lien is essential (1) to ensure that injured persons can obtain legal representation in lawsuits to obtain adequate compensation for the injuries they have suffered, (2) to hold tortfeasors accountable for the harm they have caused, and (3) to provide medical lienholders with a source for compensation that they otherwise might not have. Accordingly, as a matter of law, the amount recovered by the plaintiff in a personal injury lawsuit always goes first to satisfy the attorney's lien for fees and costs before it is used to satisfy medical liens. If the payment of the attorney's lien completely depletes the amount of the judgment, there is nothing left to support a medical lienholder's action to reach the proceeds of the judgment [Gilman v. Dalby (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 606, 619-620, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 231].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Liens In General

30-342 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 342.23

§ 342.23 Extinguishment of Lien

[1] Tender

An offer of payment or other payment that is duly made stops the running of interest on an obligation and has the same effect on all its incidents as a performance of the obligation, even though the title to the thing offered is not transferred to the creditor [Civ. Code § 1504]. Thus, tender that is duly made of the amount of an obligation discharges the lien that has been given as collateral security for the obligation [Sondel v. Arnold (1934) 2 Cal. 2d 87, 89, 39 P.2d 793 (deed of trust)]. While the general rule is that the owner must make a demand for his or her property along with the tender, tender is excused if the lien claimant absolutely refuses to deliver the property to the owner [Enfield v. Hoffman Motor Co. (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 800, 807, 257 P.2d 458] .

[2] Performance of Principal Obligation

Since a lien is deemed accessory to the act for the performance of which it is a security whether any person is bound for the performance or not, it is extinguishable in the same manner along with any other accessory obligation [Civ. Code § 2909].

[3] Merger

A lien is extinguished under ordinary circumstances by merger of the lien and ownership of the property in one person, unless it is necessary for the protection of that person's rights that it be kept alive [Strike v. Trans-West Discount Corp. (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 735, 742-743, 155 Cal. Rptr 132 (lien not extinguished by merger since trial court found title was retained in owner at all times); Ralph C. Sutro Co. v. Paramount Plastering, Inc. (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 433, 438, 31 Cal. Rptr. 174] .

[4] Sale

Once an underlying debt has been satisfied through the sale of the property for the full amount of the obligation owed to the beneficiary, the lien on the property is extinguished [Civ. Code § 2910; Duarte v. Lake Gregory Land and Water

Co. (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 101, 104-105, 113 Cal. Rptr. 893] .

[5] Wrongful Conversion of Personal Property

A lien on personal property is extinguished by the wrongful conversion of the property by the lienholder [Civ. Code § 2910; Ralph C. Sutro Co. v. Paramount Plastering, Inc. (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 433, 438, 31 Cal. Rptr. 174] .

However, an act that is done to preserve and protect property in order that it may remain subject to lien, and that is equally beneficial to those having subordinate rights and not in antagonism to those rights, is not a wrongful conversion under Civ. Code § 2910 [Gardena Valley Airport, Inc. v. All American Sports Enterprises, Inc. (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 478, 483, 41 Cal. Rptr. 93] .

[6] Voluntary Relinquishment

The voluntary restoration of property to its owner by the holder of a lien thereon dependent on possession extinguishes the lien as to the property unless otherwise agreed by the parties [Civ. Code § 2913]. Although the parties may agree otherwise, this exception does not apply, for example, when a repairman relinquishes repaired property to a a vendee under a conditional sales contract on the condition that the property be returned subject to the lien if the legal owner of the property does not also agree to the lien [Jess H. Young & Son, Inc. v. Victory Tool & Die Co. (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 824, 828, 11 Cal. Rptr. 516] . Moreover, notwithstanding any such agreement, the voluntary restoration extinguishes the lien as to creditors of the owner and persons subsequently acquiring a title to the property, or a lien on it, in good faith and for value [Civ. Code § 2913].

[7] Waiver or Subordination

A lienholder may waive its rights in a number of ways. For example, a vessel manufacturer who constructed a sailboat pursuant to a customer's order through a vessel dealer, and who, at the request of the purchaser's lender, issued a certificate stating that the manufacturer had transferred all of its interest in the vessel to the dealer who sold the vessel, was estopped from asserting a lien against the vessel [Islander Yachts, Inc. v. One Freeport 36-Foot Vessel, No. 145 (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 1081, 1088, 219 Cal. Rptr. 654] . Also, if a lienholder's refusal to deliver property is based on a ground inconsistent with the lien, the lien is waived [Enfield v. Hoffman Motor Co. (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 800, 808, 257 P.2d 458] .

Although different liens on the same property have priority according to the time of their creation, a party may agree to waive or subordinate priority [Collins v. Home Sav. & Loan Asso. (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 86, 95, 22 Cal. Rptr. 817] .

[8] Lapse of Time

A lien is extinguished by the lapse of time within which, under the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, either (1) an action can be brought on the principal obligation; or (2) a treasurer, street superintendent, or other public official may sell any real property to satisfy a public improvement assessment or any bond issued to represent the assessment when that assessment is secured by a lien on the real property, whichever is later [Civ. Code § 2911]. This section does not, however, control the enforcement of liens created by particular statutes [Martin v. Board of Administration (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 795, 799, 81 Cal. Rptr. 432] .

[9] No Extinguishment by Partial Performance

The partial performance of an act secured by a lien does not extinguish the lien on any part of the property subject thereto, even if it is divisible [Civ. Code § 2912].

§ 342.24 Right to Marshal Assets

The right of a junior lienholder to require a senior lienholder to marshal assets is provided in Civ. Code §§ 2899 and 3433. This right enables the junior lienholder to force the senior lienholder to resort to property other than the property in which both have liens. § 342.25 Enforcement of Lien

[1] Sale Only if Authorized by Statute

A lien on personal property dependent on possession may be enforced by sale of the property if authorized by statute and only in the manner prescribed by the applicable statute [see, e.g., Civ. Code §§ 1857 (depositaries for hire), 1861 et seq. (innkeepers), 3052 et seq. (miscellaneous liens); see also § 342.250 for a comprehensive listings of liens].

[2] As Equitable Action

The enforcement of liens, whether equitable or statutory, is a well-recognized function of courts of equity. The only distinction in this respect between the different kinds of liens is that in the case of statutory liens equity will interpose only if there is no other adequate remedy [Hibernia etc. Soc. v. London & Lancashire Fire Ins. Co. (1903) 138 Cal. 257, 259, 71 P. 334] .

[3] Jurisdiction Over Enforcement Actions

In an action to enforce a lien on real estate, the superior court in which the property is situated must hear the action [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(2)]. An action to enforce and foreclose liens on personal property is a limited civil case if the amount of the liens is $25,000 or less [see Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(5)]. Actions to enforce and foreclose, or petitions to release, liens of mechanics, materialmen, artisans, laborers, and of all other persons to whom liens are given under Civ. Code § 3109 et seq., or to enforce and foreclose an assessment lien on a common interest development as defined in Civ. Code § 1351, if the amount of the liens is $25,000 or less, are also limited civil cases, with certain exceptions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(6)].

[4] Effect of Homestead Exemption

The homestead exemption does not apply if the judgment to be enforced is for the foreclosure of a mortgage, deed of trust, or other lien or encumbrance on the property other than a lien created pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 697.010 et seq. (liens for enforcement of money judgments generally) and to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 488.500 and 488.510 (attachment lien) [Code Civ. Proc. § 703.010].

If homestead property has been sold, the levying officer must distribute the proceeds in the order established by Code Civ. Proc. § 704.850. The first priority for distribution is the discharge of all liens and encumbrances on the property [see Code Civ. Proc. 704.850(a)]. A levy on a homestead that is subject to a lien or encumbrance, however, is not by itself grounds for acceleration of the obligation secured by the lien or encumbrance, notwithstanding any provision of the obligation, lien, or encumbrance [Code Civ. Proc. § 704.810].

For further discussion, see Ch. 294, Homesteads .

Constructive trusts, resulting trusts, and equitable liens are similar. All three have the basic purposes of identifying and impressing on certain property the beneficial rights that have arisen in an innocent party who in some way contributed to the acquisition, protection, or improvement of property [Holder v. Williams (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 313, 315, 334 P.2d 291] . B. Equitable Liens

30-342 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 342.42

§ 342.42 Creation

[1] By Express Agreement

Every express, executory agreement in writing whereby a contracting party sufficiently indicates an intention to make some particular real or personal property or fund that is therein described or identified a security for a debt or other obligation, or whereby the party promises to convey or assign or transfer the property as security, creates an equitable lien on the property so indicated [McColgan v. Bank of Cal. Ass'n (1929) 208 Cal. 329, 337, 281 P. 381 ; Holder v. Williams (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 313, 316, 334 P.2d 291] . By appropriate agreement, an equitable lien may arise on subsequently acquired property or on property not yet in existence [Civ. Code §§ 2877, 2883, 2884; Garter v. Metzdorf Associates (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 812, 821, 32 Cal. Rptr. 113] .

[2] By Implication

An equitable lien may also be inferred from the circumstances surrounding a particular transaction [see Smith v. Anglo-California Trust Co. (1928) 205 Cal. 496, 503, 271 P. 898 ; Miller v. Mountain View Sav. & L. Ass'n (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 644, 662, 48 Cal. Rptr. 278] .

[3] Intent

An equitable lien is imposed if it appears that the parties intended to give, charge, or pledge real or personal property as security for an obligation and the property can be sufficiently identified [Garter v. Metzdorf Associates (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 812, 821, 32 Cal. Rptr. 113 ; see Lentz v. Lentz (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 891, 894, 73 Cal. Rptr. 686] .

[4] Nonstatutory Origin

While many liens formerly cognizable only as "equity liens" have been incorporated into a statutory form, an "equity lien" is still mainly nonstatutory [Holder v. Williams (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 313, 316, 334 P.2d 291] .

[5] On Cause of Action

An equitable lien may be created on a cause of action. For example, a debtor may grant an equitable lien on a cause of action to creditors such as materialmen [Del Conte Masonry Co. v. Lewis (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 678, 680, 94 Cal. Rptr. 439 ; see Civ. Code § 2883]. For discussion and a form for a stipulation creating an equitable lien on a cause of action, see § 342.183.

[6] Relation-Back Doctrine

Although an equitable lien is not judicially recognized until a judgment is rendered that declares its existence, the lien relates back to the time it was created by the conduct of the parties [Hise v. Superior Court (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 614, 627, 134 P.2d 748 ; Holder v. Williams (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 313, 317, 334 P.2d 291] .

[7] Unjust Enrichment

A court of equity may impress property with an equitable lien to prevent unjust enrichment [Beckman v. Mayhew (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 529, 534, 122 Cal. Rptr. 604] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Equitable Liens

30-342 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 342.44

§ 342.44 Enforcement

[1] By Judicial Action

The possessor of an equitable lien must obtain an order to sell the property and satisfy his or her debt [see White v. White (1936) 11 Cal. App. 2d 570, 574, 54 P.2d 482] .

[2] Against Third Persons

An equitable lien may be enforced against a third person who has notice of the lien [Jud Whitehead Heater Co. v. Obler (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 861, 873, 245 P.2d 608] or who does not give value for the property [Dodd v. Cantwell (1960) 179 Cal. App. 2d 727, 734-735, 4 Cal. Rptr. 113 ; Jud Whitehead Heater Co. v. Obler (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 861, 873, 245 P.2d 608] .

[3] Venue

An action to foreclose a lien on real property must be brought in the county in which the property is situated [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(2)]. Further, in situations in which there is one cause of action to foreclose a lien on real property and another cause of action to obtain a personal judgment that arises out of the same transaction involving the lien, the causes are consolidated and venue is proper in the county in which the land is situated [Case v. Kirkwood (1931) 119 Cal. App. 207, 211, 6 P.2d 110] . An action to foreclose a lien on personal property based on a contract would seem to be required to be brought in the county in which one or more of the defendants reside at the commencement of the action, in which the security for the debt or other obligation was created, or in which the debt is to be repaid or obligation performed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)].

[4] Limitation Period on Principal Obligation

Civ. Code § 2911(1) (discussed in § 342.10 et seq.) applies to equitable liens to extinguish the lien by lapse of the time within which an action could be brought on the principal obligation. Thus, for instance, an action to foreclose an equitable lien arising from industry custom is barred if an action for breach of the underlying oral contract for services is barred by the applicable period of limitation [Filmservice Laboratories, Inc. v. Harvey Bernhard Enterprises, Inc. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1297, 1308-1309, 256 Cal. Rptr. 735] .

30-342 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 342.45

§ 342.45 Construction Fund Claimants

[1] Contract Rights Enforced by Stop Notice Procedures

The rights of all person furnishing labor, services, equipment, or materials for any work of improvement, with respect to any fund for payment of construction costs, are governed exclusively by Civ. Code § 3156 et seq. (stop notices for private works of improvement) and Civ. Code § 3179 et seq. (stop notices for public work). No person may assert any legal or equitable right, other than a right created by direct written contract between the person and the person holding the fund, except pursuant to the provisions of the above-cited sections [Civ. Code § 3264]. Thus, Civ. Code § 3264 has abolished all theories of equitable liens or trust funds [Boyd & Lovesee Lumber Co. v. Western Pacific Corp. (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 460, 465, 118 Cal. Rptr. 699] . For further discussion and forms relating to stop notices for private works of improvement, see Ch. 361, Mechanics' Liens ,. For further discussion and forms relating to stop notices for public works, see Ch. 481, Public Works, § 481.40 et seq.

Civ. Code § 3264 applies to bar claims of general contractors as well as claims of suppliers, and applies whether the claim is against the construction loan fund or against the general assets of the lender [Nibbi Brothers, Inc. v. Home Federal Sav. & Loan Assn. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1415, 1420-1421, 253 Cal. Rptr. 289] .

[2] Availability of Unjust Enrichment Claim

Despite the fact that claims against construction funds are governed exclusively by statute, it does not follow that Civ. Code § 3264 always bars a supplier of labor and materials from recovering from a construction lender on a theory of unjust enrichment. The equitable principle of unjust enrichment provided part of the doctrinal underpinning of the equitable lien, but the law of restitution may give a supplier a cause of action against a lender for unjust enrichment under a broad range of circumstances distinct from those on which the equitable lien was predicated. In an appropriate case, the lender's fraudulent inducement to the supplier to perform work on the property may give rise to a cause of action distinct from the equitable lien [Nibbi Brothers, Inc. v. Home Federal Sav. & Loan Assn. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1415, 1421-1422, 253 Cal. Rptr. 289] .

However, a lender's request to the supplier, made when the loan is in default, that the supplier perform work, coupled with assurances that the supplier will be paid for that work, are not sufficient basis for a cause of action for the value of the benefit conferred by the work unless the lender promised that it would pay for the work. Without a specific promise to pay for the work itself, a lender's promise of payment must be construed as an optimistic and nonactionable opinion about the owner-borrower's performance [Nibbi Brothers, Inc. v. Home Federal Sav. & Loan Assn. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1415, 1422-1423, 253 Cal. Rptr. 289] .

C. Wage Preferences

30-342 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 342.60

§ 342.60 Preference to Wage Claims

If a levy of any attachment or execution is not founded on a claim for labor, then any miner, mechanic, salesman, servant, clerk, laborer, or other person who has performed work or rendered personal services for the defendant within 90 days prior to the levy has a preferred wage claim of up to $900 from the proceeds of the levy unless it is disputed by the procedures outlined in Code Civ. Proc. § 1207 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1206(a)]. If the claim is disputed, the petition process set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1206(c) must be used [see discussion in § 342.62].

The preference granted by Code Civ. Proc. § 1206 provides a preferred claim, but it does not create a lien on the debtor's property [Winrod v. Wolters (1903) 141 Cal. 399, 402, 74 P. 1037] . The discussion of this preference is included in this chapter, however, because Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1206-1208 are placed in Part III, Title 4 of the Code of Civil Procedure, which is entitled "Enforcement of Liens." They are also placed in Chapter 3 of Title 4, which is entitled "Certain Liens and Priorities for Salaries, Wages and Consumer Deposits." Thus, even though these preferences for labor performed are not liens, they are often mistaken for liens on property.

30-342 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 342.61

§ 342.61 Method of Securing Preferred Claim on Levy of Attachment or Execution

[1] Verified Statement of Claim

Whenever a laborer has a preferred claim under Code Civ. Proc. § 1206, he or she must file a verified statement of his or her claim [see § 342.200] with the officer executing the writ and file a copy of it with the court that issued the writ. The claimant may serve copies of it that contain the claimant's address on the plaintiff and the defendant, or their agents, or the claimant may mail copies to the plaintiff and the defendant by registered mail at their last known address. If copies of the claim are mailed and if they are returned by the post office undelivered, then that is deemed a sufficient service if no better address is available [Code Civ. Proc. § 1206(a)].

[2] Endorsement on Writ or Abstract of Judgment

The court issuing the writ of attachment or execution must make a notation in the register of actions of every preferred labor claim of which it receives a copy [Code Civ. Proc. § 1206(b)]. The court must also endorse on any writ of execution or abstract of judgment issued subsequently in the case that it is issued subject to the rights of a preferred labor claimant or claimants and give the names and amounts of all such preferred labor claim of which it has notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 1206(b)].

In levying under any writ of execution, the officer making the levy must include in the amount due under the execution any and all preferred labor claims that have been filed in the action and of which the officer has notice, except any claims that may have been finally disallowed by the court under the procedure provided and of which disallowance the officer has actual notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 1206(b)].

30-342 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 342.62

§ 342.62 Dispute of Claim

[1] Verified Denial

Within five days after receiving a copy of the statement provided for in Code Civ. Proc. § 1206, either the plaintiff or the defendant in the action in which the writ issued may file with the officer a sworn statement that denies that any part of such a claim is due for services rendered within 90 days prior to the issuing of the writ, or that denies that any part of the claim is due beyond a specified sum [see § 342.201]. If part of the claim is admitted to be due and the claimant nevertheless files a petition for hearing and the court does not allow more than the amount so admitted, the claimant cannot recover costs. The costs must be deducted from the sum that is determined to be due to the claimant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1207].

[2] Petition for Hearing When Claim Disputed

If any claim is disputed within the time and in the manner prescribed in Code Civ. Proc. § 1207 and if the claimant or claimant's attorney has been served by registered mail or personally with a copy of the dispute, then the claimant or his or her assignee must petition the court having jurisdiction of the action on which the writ is based for a hearing to determine his or her claim for priority [see § 342.202]. If more than one attachment or execution is involved, the petition must be filed in the court having jurisdiction over the senior attachment or execution [Code Civ. Proc. § 1206(c)].

The petition must be filed within 10 days after the copy is deposited in the mail or served personally on the claimant or claimant's attorney. The hearing must be held within 20 days from the filing of the petition unless the court continues it for good cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 1206(c)].

[3] Failure to Petition Bars Claim

If such a petition is not filed by the laborer, the claim to priority is barred [Code Civ. Proc. § 1206(c)].

§ 342.63 Hearing

[1] Notice

Ten days' notice of the hearing must be given by the petitioner to the plaintiff and the defendant, and to all parties or their attorneys claiming an interest in the property [see § 342.204]. The notice may be informal and needs to specify merely the name of the court, names of the principal parties to the senior attachment or execution, and of the wage claimant or claimants on whose behalf it is filed. It must also specify that the hearing is for the purpose of determining the claim for priority [Code Civ. Proc. § 1206(c)].

[2] Who May Contest Claim at Hearing

The plaintiff or the defendant or any other party claiming an interest may contest the amount or validity of the claim in spite of a confession of judgment or failure to appear or to contest the claim on the part of any other person [Code Civ. Proc. § 1206(c)].

[3] Conduct of Hearing

There is no cost for filing or hearing the petition for a hearing to determine a laborer's claim for priority. The hearing is informal, but all parties testifying must be sworn. Any claimant may appear on his or her own behalf at the hearing and may call and examine witnesses to substantiate his or her claim [Code Civ. Proc. § 1206(d)].

§ 342.64 Payment to Levying Officer

[1] Before Payment of Principal

The amount due on preferred labor claims that have not been finally disallowed by the court are considered a part of the sum due under any attachment or execution that augments that amount. It is the duty of any person, firm, association, or corporation on whom a writ of attachment or execution is levied to pay immediately to the levying officer the amount of the preferred labor claims out of any money belonging to the defendant in the action before paying the principal sum called for in the writ [Code Civ. Proc. § 1206(b)].

[2] Officer Retains Possession

The officer must retain in his or her possession as much of the proceeds of the writ as may be necessary to satisfy the claim until the determination of the claim for priority [Code Civ. Proc. § 1206(e)].

§ 342.65 Payment of Claim

[1] By Levying Officer

A claim for wages not exceeding $900 must be paid by the levying officer immediately on expiration of the time under Code Civ. Proc. § 1207 for disputing claims if no verified denial is filed. The officer pays the claim from the proceeds of the levy remaining in his or her hands at the time of the filing of the statement of claim, or collectible by the officer on the basis of the writ [Code Civ. Proc. § 1206(a)].

If the claim for priority is disputed but allowed, the levying officer must pay the amount due, including the claimant's cost of suit, from those proceeds immediately after the order allowing the claim becomes final [Code Civ. Proc. § 1206(e)].

[2] Pro Rata Distribution

If the claims presented under Code Civ. Proc. § 1206 that were not disputed or, if disputed, established by judgment, exceed the proceeds of the writ not disposed of before their presentation, the proceeds must be distributed among the claimants in proportion to the amount of their respective claims. However, prior to any such pro rata distribution the costs incurred by the senior attaching plaintiff or judgment creditor in such an action must be paid first [Code Civ. Proc. § 1208].

§ 342.67 Preferred Labor Claims on Assignment or in Insolvency Proceedings

[1] Salaries, Wages, and Contributions to Employee Benefit Plans

When any assignment, whether voluntary or involuntary, and whether formal or informal, is made for the benefit of creditors of the assignor, or results from any proceeding in insolvency or receivership commenced against him or her, or when any property is turned over to the creditors of a person, firm, association, or corporation, or to a receiver or trustee for the benefit of creditors, the following claims have priority in the following order [Code Civ. Proc. § 1204]:

- Allowed unsecured claims for wages, salaries, or commissions, including vacation, severance, and sick leave pay (1) earned by an individual within 90 days before the date of the making of the assignment or the taking over of the property or the commencement of the court proceeding or the date of the cessation of the debtor's business, whichever occurs first, but only (2) to the extent of $4,300 for each individual;

- Allowed unsecured claims for contributions to employee benefit plans (1) arising from services rendered within 180 days before the date of the making of the assignment or the taking over of the property or the commencement of the court proceeding or the date of the cessation of the debtor's business, whichever occurs first, but only (2) for each plan to the extent of (i) the number of employees covered by the plan multiplied by $4,300 less (ii) the aggregate amount paid to the employees under Civ. Code § 1204(a) plus the aggregate amount paid by the estate on behalf of the employees to any other employee benefit plan. They must be paid by the trustee, assignee, or receiver before the claim of any other creditor of the assignor, insolvent, or debtor whose property is so turned over, and must be paid as soon as the money with which to pay them becomes available.

For general discussion relating to assignments for the benefit of creditors and to the administration of receiverships, see Ch. 307, Insolvency , and Ch. 486, Receivers , respectively.

[2] Right of Refusal to Pay Labor Claims

The trustee, receiver, or assignee for the benefit of creditors has the right to require sworn claims to be presented and the right to refuse to pay any preferred labor claim, either in whole or in part, if he or she has reasonable cause to believe that the claim is not valid, but must pay any part of the claim that is not disputed, without prejudice to the claimant's rights as to the balance of his or her claim, and withhold sufficient money to cover the disputed portion until the claimant in question has a reasonable opportunity to establish the validity of his or her claim by court action, either in his or her own name or through an assignee [Code Civ. Proc. § 1204].

[3] Preference Applicable to All Receivership Actions

The preference afforded labor liens is binding on all the courts of California. Thus, after paying the current operating expenses, in all receivership actions the court must order the receiver to pay the preferred labor claims promptly out of the receipts and earnings of the receivership [Code Civ. Proc. § 1204].

[4] Priority of Consumer Deposits

In any general assignment for the benefit of creditors, the following claims must have priority, subordinate to the priorities for labor claims under Code Civ. Proc. § 1204, but prior to all other unsecured claims: allowed unsecured claims of individuals, to the extent of $900 for each such individual, arising from the deposit, before the commencement of the case, of money in connection with the purchase, lease, or rental of property, or the purchase of services, for the personal, family, or household use of the individuals, that were not delivered or provided [Code Civ. Proc. § 1204.5]. The priority granted by Code Civ. Proc. § 1204.5 is subordinate to that granted by Rev. & Tax. Code § 19253 for personal income and bank and corporation taxes [Code Civ. Proc. § 1204.5].

30-342 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 342.68

§ 342.68 Insufficient Funds to Satisfy Preferred Labor Claims

[1] Pro Rata Distribution

If there is insufficient money with which to pay all labor claims as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 1204 in full, the money available must be distributed among the claimants in proportion to the amount of their respective claims [Code Civ. Proc. § 1204].

[2] Proceedings Against Property Subject to Levy

If sufficient money to pay in full all preferred labor claims filed under an attachment or execution does not become available immediately on the expiration of the time for dispute of the claims under Code Civ. Proc. § 1207, then any of the claimants, or their assignees, have the right to proceed directly against the money or other property levied on in individual or joint actions by themselves or by their assignees against the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1208]. The attachment or execution under which the preferred claims were filed must be considered set aside as far as the claimants or their assignees are concerned so as to enable them, or any of them, or any of their assignees, to proceed directly against any or all of the money or other property in question by means of their own attachments or executions [Code Civ. Proc. § 1208].

[3] Pro Rata Distribution, Less Costs, of Proceeds of Direct Action

Any money collected in a direct action against the money or other property on behalf of any such labor claimant or his or her assignee on the basis of the new attachment or execution must be shared in by the other preferred labor claimants who have filed claims that have not been disputed, or, if disputed, established by judgment, in proportion to the amount of their respective claims, deducting only the costs in the action brought by the said labor claimant, or his or her assignee, and the costs in the original action brought by the senior attaching plaintiff or judgment creditor [Code Civ. Proc. § 1208].

[4] Notice of Request to Release by Senior Attaching Plaintiff

If a senior attaching plaintiff or judgment creditor requests a release of his or her original attachment or execution, and the preferred labor claims filed under the attachment or execution are not released, the officer who levied the writ must first mail notices of the request to release to each of the labor claimants who have filed claims, or to their attorneys [Code Civ. Proc. § 1208]. These notices must specify that, unless the claimants bring attachment actions of their own and levy on the money or property in question within five days from the date of the notice, the money or property will be released from the attachment or execution [Code Civ. Proc. § 1208].

[5] Alternative to Notice of Request to Release

Instead of mailing notices of request to release, the officer may collect sufficient money on the basis of the original writ to pay off the preferred labor claims in full and then release the attachment or execution [Code Civ. Proc. § 1208]. In no case may the officer release the attachment or execution without first taking care of the labor claims until the five-day period has expired, unless the officer's costs, keepers' fees, or storage charges have not been immediately taken care of by the parties involved [Code Civ. Proc. § 1208].

[6] Garnishee's Option to Pay Prior to Execution

In any case, a garnishee may pay over to the officer levying the writ any money held by the garnishee without waiting for execution to be levied, and the officer's receipt for the money will be a sufficient quittance [Code Civ. Proc. § 1208]. In that case, the officer must collect the money and immediately pay off the established preferred labor claims in all cases when it is possible to do so without additional court proceedings on the officer's part [Code Civ. Proc. 1208].

PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
A. Liens In General

30-342 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 342.95

§ 342.95 Decisions

[1] Conversion

Act done to protect property in order that it may remain subject to lien and that is equally beneficial to junior lienholders is not wrongful conversion under Civ. Code § 2910. Gardena Valley Airport, Inc. v. All American Sports Enterprises, Inc. (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 478, 483, 41 Cal. Rptr. 93

Refusal by lienholder of proper demand does not constitute conversion if refusal based on ground inconsistent with lien. Enfield v. Hoffman Motor Co. (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 800, 808, 257 P.2d 458

Person who has property wrongfully taken from him or her, on which person has lien under Civ. Code § 3051, has right of action in trover against legal owner for damages sustained by reason of conversion and of right to receive reasonable compensation for labor or materials furnished. Arques v. National Superior Co. (1945) 67 Cal. App. 2d 763, 767-768, 155 P.2d 643

[2] Enforcement

Enforcement of liens is a well-recognized function of equity courts. Curnow v. Happy Valley Blue Gravel & Hydraulic Co. (1885) 68 Cal. 262, 264, 9 P. 149 ; Holbrook v. Phelan (1931) 121 Cal. App. Supp. 781, 783, 6 P.2d 356

Statutory lien may be enforced only in manner prescribed by statute. White v. White (1936) 11 Cal. App. 2d 570, 574, 54 P.2d 482 (dictum)

Lien on land created by contract under Civ. Code § 2881 imposes no personal obligation to perform act for which lien is security according to Civ. Code § 2890; however, lien is binding on land in hands of subsequent grantee with notice and can be enforced by foreclosure with same effect as though title not transferred. Madera Canal &Irrigation Co. v.

K. Arakelian, Inc. (1930) 103 Cal. App. 592, 598, 284 P. 971

[3] Extinguishment

Civ. Code § 2911, which provides for extinguishment of liens by lapse of time within which action can be brought on principal obligation, does not control enforcement of liens created under particular statutes. Raisch v. Myers (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 773, 778, 167 P. 2d 198 ; Martin v. Board of Administration (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 795, 799, 81 Cal. Rptr. 432

Sale of property on which there is lien, in satisfaction of the claim secured thereby, extinguishes lien pursuant to Civ. Code § 2910. Duarte v. Lake Gregory Land and Water Co. (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 101, 104-105, 113 Cal. Rptr. 893

Lien is extinguished under ordinary circumstances by merger of lien and ownership of land in one person unless it is necessary for protection of that person's rights that it be kept alive. Ralph C. Sutro Co. v. Paramount Plastering, Inc. (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 433, 438, 31 Cal. Rptr. 174

Relinquishment of repaired property to vendee under conditional sale contract on condition that it be returned subject to lien, without concurring agreement by owner of property, is not within exception of Civ. Code § 2913; reacquisition of possession of property subject to lien by lien claimant after its surrender to the vendee does not revive lien against vendor (real owner) even though vendee has agreed to return it for lien purposes. Jess H. Young & Son, Inc. v. Victory Tool & Die Co. (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 824, 828, 11 Cal. Rptr. 516

[4] Marshaling Assets

Civ. Code §§ 2899 and 3433 govern bankruptcy proceedings arising in California since validity, nature, and effect of liens are governed by law of state where property is situated. In re T.H. Richards Processing Co. (9th Cir. 1990) 910 F.2d 639, 648 ; Victor Gruen Associates, Inc. v. Glass (9th Cir. 1964) 338 F.2d 826, 829

Burden of showing that creditor can marshal assets without risk of loss to himself or herself rests with creditor urging that another creditor marshal assets. Victor Gruen Associates, Inc. v. Glass (9th Cir. 1964) 338 F.2d 826, 829

Marshaling is well-established rule in equity that, when creditor has lien on two funds and another lien on only one of them, creditor is compelled to exhaust fund on which he or she has exclusive lien and is permitted to resort to other for deficiency only. Citizens' Sav. Bank v. Mack (1919) 180 Cal. 246, 251-252, 180 P. 618

Right to marshal is mere equity that may never be invoked when its operation will create inequity; lien claimant can invoke principle of marshaling assets only when it will benefit claimant without injuring others. Harrington v. Taylor (1917) 176 Cal. 802, 807, 169 P. 690

Equity applies doctrine of marshaling of assets only to conditions existing at time when it is invoked. Harrington v. Taylor (1917) 176 Cal. 802, 807, 169 P. 690 ; Shedoudy v. Beverly Surgical Supply Co. (1980) 100 Cal. App. 3d 730, 736, 161 Cal. Rptr. 164

Doctrine of marshaling of assets, under which, if one creditor has lien on only one asset the former creditor must first proceed against that on which the latter has no lien, is established by general authority and Civ. Code §§ 2899 and 3433. In re Estate of Levin Bros. (1903) 139 Cal. 350, 73 P. 159

Application of principle of marshaling of assets is not allowed because of resulting injustice to other persons if all of mortgaged property is sold in parcels to different parties at different times. Irvine v. Perry (1897) 119 Cal. 352, 356

Marshaling of assets in favor of first of two creditors was proper when trial court determined that assets of debtor's parent company and parent's other subsidiaries constituted second fund, above and beyond that resorted to by first creditor. Shedoudy v. Beverly Surgical Supply Co. (1980) 100 Cal. App. 3d 730, 734, 735, 161 Cal. Rptr. 164

Denial of demand to marshal assets is proper if first lien claimant could not sell parcel of land in lots because bids were inadequate. Barton v. Clough (1937) 20 Cal. App. 2d 473, 476

[5] Merger

Lien is extinguished by merger when lienholder acquires ownership of property, but merger does not always follow union of greater and lesser estate in same ownership since question is one of actual or presumed intent of persons in whom interests are united; in absence of expression of intention, if interest of person in whom estates united would be best subserved by keeping them separate, intent to do so ordinarily is implied. Strike v. Trans-West Discount Corp. (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 735, 742-743, 155 Cal. Rptr. 132

[6] Miscellaneous Liens

[a] Banker's Lien and Setoff

Banker's lien is general lien effective by operation of law. Goggin v. Bank of America Nat. Trust & Sav. Ass'n (9th Cir. 1950) 183 F.2d 322, 324-325

Banker's lien is not dependent solely on any express agreement but arises by implication growing out of relationship of depositor and bank; bank has right to set off proceeds received through collections against loans made to debtor or balances remaining in reserve accounts. Goggin v. Bank of America Nat. Trust & Sav. Ass'n (9th Cir. 1950) 183 F.2d 322, 324-325 ; Biggins v. Southwest Bank (SD Cal. 1971) 322 F. Supp. 62, 70

Setoff for overdraft and related fee would not implicate kind of independent debt that was at issue in Kruger v. Wells Fargo Bank (below), and presence of exempt funds in customer's account would not preclude setoff for overdraft and related fee; moreover, overdrafts and bank charges are not subject to Fin. Code § 864 limitations on bank's right of setoff. Miller v. Bank of Am. (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 630, 640-641, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 31, 207 P.3d 531

Banker's lien under Civ. Code § 3054 is lien on securities such as commercial paper deposited with bank by customer in course of business; so-called "lien" of bank on depositor's account or funds technically is not lien but rather is right of setoff, based on general equitable principles. Kruger v. Wells Fargo Bank (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 352, 358, 113 Cal. Rptr. 449, 521 P.2d 441

[b] Factor's Lien

Factor's lien is possessory; factor is required to have either actual or constructive possession of goods or proceeds in order for lien to attach; lien is not acquired before goods come into factor's possession or after possession has ceased. Baumbach v. Jorgensen (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 799, 801, 308 P.2d 799

[c] Hospital Lien

Lien under Hospital Lien Act (HLA) [Civ. Code § 3045.1 et seq.] requires existence of underlying debt owed by patient to hospital; absent such a debt, no lien may attach. Parnell v. Adventist Health System/West (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 595,

609, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 569, 109 P.3d 69

Legislature intended that lien under HLA comes into existence on giving of notice provided for in Civ. Code § 3045.3. County of San Bernardino v. Calderon (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 1103, 1109, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 333

[d] Laborer's and Repairman's Lien

[i] Acquisition and Termination

Lien under Civ. Code § 3051 must be asserted by party with whom owner has contracted and not by subcontractor. Quist v. Sandman (1908) 154 Cal. 748, 755, 99 P. 204 ; Goodman v. Anglo-California Trust Co. (1923) 62 Cal. App. 702, 705, 217 P. 1078

Lien created by Civ. Code § 3051 is dependent on possession of the property by lien claimant. Quist v. Sandman (1908) 154 Cal. 748, 754-757, 99 P. 204 ; Jess H. Young & Son, Inc. v. Victory Tool & Die Co. (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 824, 827, 11 Cal. Rptr. 516

Lien created by Civ. Code § 3051 was terminated when possession was voluntarily relinquished. Jess H. Young & Son, Inc. v. Victory Tool & Die Co. (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 824, 827, 11 Cal. Rptr. 516

Lien created by Civ. Code § 3051 is not revived when possession is regained, except in cases under Civ. Code § 2913 when property released to its owner on agreement that lien will be revived when possession is returned to lien claimant. Jess H. Young & Son, Inc. v. Victory Tool & Die Co. (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 824, 827, 11 Cal. Rptr. 516

Statutes providing for liens for laborers as being liberally construed to attain purpose for which they were enacted. Baker v. Waite (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 379, 384, 322 P.2d 512

Lien under Civ. Code § 3051 is acquired by virtue of work done, and fact that work done by lien claimant or by his or her agent is immaterial. Goodman v. Anglo-California Trust Co. (1923) 62 Cal. App. 702, 705, 217 P. 1078

[ii] Foreclosure

Every lien claimant under Civ. Code § 3051 has same rights and remedies. First Nat. Bank v. Silva (1927) 200 Cal. 494, 496-497, 254 P. 262 ; Pacific States Finance Corp. v. Freitas (1931) 113 Cal. App. Supp. 757, 772, 205 P. 804

Civ. Code § 3052 prescribes method of foreclosing liens acquired under Civ. Code § 3051. Pacific States F. Corp. v. Freitas (1931) 113 Cal. App. Supp. 757, 771, 295 P. 804

[iii] Priority Over Chattel Mortgages

Lien under Civ. Code § 3051 has preference over lien of preexisting chattel mortgage. First Nat'l Bank v. Silva (1927) 200 Cal. 494, 501, 254 P. 262 ; Pacific States Finance Corp. v. Freitas (1931) 113 Cal. App. Supp. 757, 772, 295 P. 804

[e] Landlord's Lien

Fact that tenant is behind in rent does not warrant landlord's exercise of dominion over plaintiff's personal property located on premises. Gruber v. Pacific States Sav. & L. Co. (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 144, 147-148, 88 P.2d 137

Civ. Code § 1861a does not authorize landlord to take possession of enough of tenant's personal property to secure payment of rent for entire term at beginning of term. Van Dorn v. Couch (1937) 64 P.2d 1197

[f] Laundry Proprietor's Lien

Laundry proprietor has possessory lien under Civ. Code § 3051 only on property delivered to it that is owned by customer; proprietor cannot subject furnishings of owner's house to lien when furnishings have been delivered by tenant. Hackett v. California Laundry (1935) 45 P.2d 833

[g] Mining Lien

Tailings of early mining operations left on mining claim and abandoned by those who placed them there as belonging to owner of claim and work of extracting values therefrom undertaken later as affording ground for miner's lien on land. Baker v. Waite (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 379, 384, 322 P.2d 512

[h] Producer's Lien

Producer's lien [Food & Agric. Code § 55631 et seq.] may not be set aside by trustee in bankruptcy of processor to whom product was delivered but who had not yet paid producer for it, because lien would be good against hypothetical bona fide purchaser without possession when proceeds were not used to satisfy lien. In re Loretto Winery Ltd. (9th Cir. 1990) 898 F.2d 715, 724-725 (state law determines whether trustee may set aside lien)

[i] Thresher's Lien

Person as able to maintain lien for services against threshing machine when labor performed for person in lawful possession but not actual owner of machine. Holt Mfg. Co. v. Collins (1908) 154 Cal. 265, 270, 97 P. 516 ; Lambert v. Davis (1897) 116 Cal. 292, 294, 48 P. 123

Lien under Civ. Code § 3061 as assignable. Clark v. Brown (1903) 141 Cal. 93, 95, 74 P. 548

Owner of threshing machine as liable only for value of labor as determined by court. Clark v. Brown (1903) 141 Cal. 93, 94, 74 P. 548

[j] Vessels

State court action to quiet title in aid of foreclosure sale based on possessory lien for unpaid wharfage fees as not within admiralty's exclusive jurisdiction when action brought against individual seller and buyer of ship; state court as having jurisdiction over quiet title decree. Sellick v. Sun Harbor Marina, Inc. (9th Cir. 1967) 384 F.2d 870, 871-872

Slip lessor as not entitled to sell boat pursuant to Civ. Code § 1988 after obtaining unlawful detainer judgment against boat owner, but as subject to Boater's Lien Law (Harb. & Nav. Code § 500 et seq.), which provides them with possessory lien. Mariners Bay Co. v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 808, 811-815, 280 Cal. Rptr. 292 ; see Harb. & Nav. Code § 501.5

Bailee of boat and trailer with right to possession arising out of lien for storage charges as liable for conversion for failure to deliver property to individual who was not bailor, but who was holder of security interest in property, and thereby had right to redeem property from lien; bailee as entitled to retain property only for reasonable time to investigate security interest holder's claim. Messerall v. Fulwider (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1324, 1330-1331, 245 Cal. Rptr. 548

Manufacturer's lien under Harb. & Nav. Code § 491 was not enforceable until perfected by filing of complaint to foreclose it or by attachment; transfer to bona fide purchaser for value without notice of lien before perfection extinguished lien. Islander Yachts, Inc. v. One Freeport 36-Foot Vessel (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 1081, 1089-1092, 219 Cal. Rptr. 654

Foreclosure of lien under Harb. & Nav. Code §§ 490, 491, 495 for payment of construction of vessel is not preempted by federal admiralty law. Islander Yachts, Inc. v. One Freeport 36-Foot Vessel (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 1081, 1086-1087, 219 Cal. Rptr. 654

Maritime liens conferred by federal [former 46 U.S.C. § 971 (now 46 U.S.C. § 31342)] and state [Harb. & Nav. Code § 491(d)] law that do not depend on possession are cumulative and not exclusive remedy when possessory lien on vessel exists by virtue of Civ. Code § 1856. Sun Harbor Marina, Inc. v. Sellick (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 281, 285, 58 Cal. Rptr. 459

[k] Veterinarian's Lien

Veterinary proprietors' and veterinary surgeons' lien rights are governed by Civ. Code § 3051, rather than by Civ. Code § 3080, which governs all other livestock service providers. Jakubaitis v. Fischer (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1601, 1606, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 39

[7] Notice

Although lien was filed under spouse's former name, purchasers was charged with notice because reasonable inspection of index would have disclosed that seller was person whose property was subject to lien. Kivel v. U.S. (9th Cir. 1989) 878 F.2d 301, 304-305 (lien under I.R.C. § 6323)

[8] Priorities

Judgment creditor's lien created pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 708.410 against property that was subject of fraudulent conveyance had priority over second creditor's lien for attorney fees incurred in prosecuting fraudulent conveyance lawsuit and was evidenced by notice of lien filed in fraudulent conveyance action before second creditor requested amendment of order to provide for attorney fees; "first in time, first in right" rule of Civ. Code § 2897 controls. Fleet Credit Corp. v. TML Bus Sales, Inc. (9th Cir. 1995) 65 F.3d 119, 122

Priority of liens is first in time, first in right except that lien competing with federal lien must be perfected so that nothing remains to be done to establish identity of lienor, property subject to lien, or amount of lien. In re Priest (1983) 712 F.2d 1326, 1327-28

Contractual liens for attorney's fees and medical costs entered into before initiating legal action have priority over divorce judgment creditor's lien created by filing notice once action is pending. Wujcik v. Wujcik (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1790, 1793-1794, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 102

Priority is determined by wording of statutes or codes when one lien created by contract and another under statute. First Nat. Bank v. Silva (1927) 200 Cal. 494, 496, 254 P. 262 ; Del Conte Masonry Co. v. Lewis (1971) 16 Cal. App.

3d 678, 680, 94 Cal. Rptr. 439

Judgment lien attaches to debtor's interest in real estate at time of recordation; when debtor sold property before judgment lien was recorded and grantee did not record deed until after judgment lien was recorded, grantee was entitled to have title quieted against holder of lien. Barisich v. Lewis (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 12, 19, 275 Cal. Rptr. 331

Lien of trust deed recorded after abstract of judgment was superior to previously recorded judgment lien when judgment lien expired before judgment creditor recorded application for renewal of judgment lien. Beneficial Financial, Inc. v. Durkee (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 912, 913, 254 Cal. Rptr. 351 (citing Code Civ. Proc. § 683.130(a))

Contractual lien for attorney's fees and costs entered into prior to initiating legal action has priority over judgment creditor's lien created pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 708.410; fact that purpose of judgment creditor's lien was to reimburse state government for paying out client's child support arrearages did not justifying new exception to "first in time, first in right" rule set forth in Civ. Code § 2897. Cappa v. F & K Rock & Sand, Inc. (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 172, 175-176, 249 Cal. Rptr. 718

[9] Tender

Tender duly made of amount of obligation discharges lien given as collateral security therefor. Sondel v. Arnold (1934) 2 Cal. 2d 87, 89, 39 P.2d 793 (trust deed)

General rule is that owner must make demand for his or her property accompanied by tender; tender is excused by conduct of one claiming possessory lien when claimant makes absolute refusal to deliver property. Enfield v. Hoffman Motor Co. (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 800, 807, 257 P.2d 458

[10] Thieves

Thief is not able to subject property to lien under Civ. Code § 3051; owner entitled to possession without paying charges for repairs and storage. General Exch. Ins. Corp. v. Pellissier Square Garage (1937) 69 P.2d 236

[11] Transfer of Debt

Lien is incident of debt secured; transfer of debt carries lien with it. Lewis v. Booth (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 345, 349, 44 P.2d 560

[12] Waiver

Manufacturer is estopped to assert lien against owner because master carpenter certificate, signed by manufacturer and issued at customer's lender's request, stated that manufacturer had transferred vessel to dealer and contained no statement that lien was being retained, and manufacturer never told customer or lender it intended to retain lien. Islander Yachts, Inc. v. One Freeport 36-Foot Vessel (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 1081, 1087-1088, 219 Cal. Rptr. 654

Conduct by lien claimant inconsistent with lien and that excuses owner from making tender as also capable of amounting to waiver of lien. Enfield v. Huffman Motor Co. (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 800, 807, 257 P.2d 458

Waiver of lien is not shown when claimant merely makes excessive demand if owner does not tender proper amount. Enfield v. Hoffman Motor Co. (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 800, 807, 257 P.2d 458

Sale of personal property prior to completion of repairs is waiver right to lien; sale premature and thus void.
Lundblade v. Pierce (1928) 95 Cal. App. 192, 194, 272 P. 329

§ 342.96 Attorney General Opinions

Among liens under following code sections, relative priority of liens to secure payment for health services rendered to person injured by tortfeasor is: first, lien established by Welf. & Inst. Code § 14124.74 in favor of State Director of Health Services for repayment of expenditures for benefit of beneficiary under Medi-Cal program; second, lien established by Gov. Code § 23004.1 in favor of county for reasonable value of care and treatment furnished to injured person; third, lien established by Civ. Code § 3045.1 in favor of hospital for 3 days of emergency care and treatment services furnished to injured person. 63 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 808 (1980)

Municipality has right to enforce ordinance by towing away parked cars belonging to state or federal government and operated by California National Guard when compelling necessity requires removal; no lien attaches to vehicle for payment of towing or storage charges; against public policy to permit sale of public property to satisfy lien. *15 Ops. B. Equitable Liens

§ 342.111 Decisions

[1] Construction Fund Claimants

Civ. Code § 3264 abolishes all theories of equitable liens of trust funds. Sofias v. Bank of America (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 583, 586-587, 218 Cal. Rptr. 388 ; Boyd & Lovesee Lumber Co. v. Western Pacific Financial Corp. (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 460, 465, 118 Cal. Rptr. 699

[2] Conversion

Suit for conversion is proper when person wrongfully exerts dominion over property subject to equitable lien. McCafferty v. Gilbank (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 569, 576, 57 Cal. Rptr. 695

[3] Creation

[a] In General

Just as an executory contract to sell land is treated in equity as transferring an equitable title to the purchaser, an executory contract to execute a mortgage creates an equitable mortgage if money has been borrowed or other obligation incurred on the faith of it. In re Destro (9th Cir. 1982) 675 F.2d 1037, 1039

When specific property is conveyed to trustee charged with or subject to payment of debts to third persons, even though legal title to property vests in trustee, lien is created in favor of those persons and may be enforced in equity. Hise v. Superior Court (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 614, 626, 134 P.2d 748

If person misappropriates money of another and purchases property with it, other person has option either to enforce equitable lien on property so acquired, holding wrongdoer personally liable for balance if any, or to enforce constructive trust of property. Jud Whitehead Heater Co. v. Obler (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 861, 873, 245 P.2d 608

When property of one person can be reached by proceeding in equity by another as security for claim on ground that otherwise the former would be unjustly enriched, equitable lien arises. Jud Whitehead Heater Co. v. Obler (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 861, 873, 245 P.2d 608

[b] By Lease

Lease creates equitable lien in favor of lessors when lessors waived requirement of formal chattel mortgage but lease required lessees to install furniture and equipment in leased motel units, and to grant lessors chattel mortgage thereon, and provided that chattel mortgage was deemed executed by execution of lease. Garter v. Metzdorf Associates (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 812, 821, 32 Cal. Rptr. 113

[c] By Violating Agreement for Insurance

When party obligated under agreement for insurance (agreement between lessor and lessee) violates his agreement by procuring insurance payable to himself alone, other party for whose benefit agreement made has equitable lien on proceeds of insurance. Davidson v. Welch (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 220, 237, 75 Cal. Rptr. 676

[d] Intent

When parties have manifested intention that real property of one of them will be specially set aside as security for payment of an obligation due the other, equity will give effect to the intention by treating the property as though it has been validly mortgaged. In re Destro (9th Cir. 1982) 675 F.2d 1037, 1039

Intention of parties is paramount factor in determining whether or not equitable lien created. Title Ins. & Trust Co. v. California Dev. Co. (1915) 171 Cal. 173, 201, 152 P. 542

Equitable lien requires intent to fasten obligation to given thing or circumstances such that a just or equitable adjustment of rights of parties contemplates dedication of the property specifically to the obligation. Lentz v. Lentz (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 891, 894, 73 Cal. Rptr. 686

[e] On Common Property of Tenants in Common

Tenant in common is entitled to redeem common property from mortgage and become entitled to equitable lien on interests of cotenant for his or her just proportion of redemption money. A.F.C., Inc. v. Brockett (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 40, 43, 64 Cal. Rptr. 771

Liability of cotenants between themselves for payment of liens against common estate is proportionate to their respective interests; one cotenant relieving common property from lien or charge for joint benefit of tenants in common is entitled to equitable lien by subrogation; paying cotenant is deemed only secondarily, not primarily, liable for his or her cotenant's proportion of debt. A.F.C., Inc. v. Brockett (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 40, 43, 64 Cal. Rptr. 771

[f] On Decedent's Real Property

To establish equitable lien against real estate in favor of widow-beneficiary of life insurance, proceeds of which were applied by insurance company trust deed holder assignee on deceased husband's loan for which policy was collateral security, widow was required to demonstrate that deceased husband intended to make real property the primary security for debt to insurance company and the policy merely collateral security, and that husband had right to do so. Lentz v. Lentz (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 891, 894, 73 Cal. Rptr. 686

[g] On Transferred Real Property

If transfer of property made to one person and purchase price advanced by another as loan to transferee, lender is not entitled to equitable lien on property in absence of agreement with transferee that lender is to have the lien. Hicks v. Bridges (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 146, 148, 313 P.2d 15

[h] Relation-Back Doctrine

Although equitable lien is not judicially recognized until judgment is rendered declaring its existence, lien relates back to time it was created by conduct of parties. Hise v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 614, 627, 134 P.2d 748 ; Holder v. Williams (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 313, 317, 334 P.2d 291

Equitable lien is capable of being deemed created at time of occurrences giving rise to underlying substantive right rather than time of judgment or order declaring its existence. Del Conte Masonry Co. v. Lewis (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 678, 681, 94 Cal. Rptr. 439

[i] Trust Not Created

Equitable lien does not create or embrace trust. New v. New (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 372, 381, 306 P.2d 987

[j] Unjust Enrichment

Court is capable of impressing property with equitable lien to prevent unjust enrichment. Beckman v. Mayhew (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 529, 534, 122 Cal. Rptr. 604

[4] Enforcement

[a] By Judicial Action

Holder of equitable lien on personal property for payment of debt who is not in possession of property is required to establish claim and procure order to sell property and satisfy debt. White v. White (1936) 11 Cal. App. 2d 570, 574, 54 P.2d 482

[b] Against Third Persons

Person received property as gift and was not bona fide purchaser when person paid only $20.00 for ranch; imposition of equitable lien on property for past wages was proper. Dodd v. Cantwell (1960) 179 Cal. App. 2d 727, 734-735, 4 Cal. Rptr. 113

[c] Venue

Action to establish and foreclose lien against real property and for personal judgment against party also interested in land is single action; venue is proper in county in which land situated. Case v. Kirkwood (1931) 119 Cal. App. 207,

211, 6 P.2d 110

[5] Liberal Construction

Equity courts look with favor on equitable liens; these liens are frequently employed to do justice and equity and to prevent unfair results. Holder v. Williams (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 313, 316, 334 P.2d 291 ; Mannon v. Pesula (1943) 59 Cal. App. 2d 597, 606, 139 P.2d 336

[6] Priorities

Priority based on time of creation is capable of being subordinated to equitable preference accorded to party who first asserted his or her claim. Smitton v. McCullough (1920) 182 Cal. 530, 536, 189 P. 686 ; Del Conte Masonry Co. v. Lewis (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 678, 681, 94 Cal. Rptr. 439

Time of creation of lien is last element for consideration when determining priority of equitable claims; claim is capable of predominating only if two interests possess equal degree of right and justice recognized and aided by court of equity. Smitton v. McCullough (1920) 182 Cal. 530, 534, 189 P. 686 ; Del Conte Masonry Co. v. Lewis (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 678, 681, 94 Cal. Rptr. 439

In determining priorities between judgment establishing equitable lien and judgment of competing creditor, court need not limit its inquiry to face of judgment establishing equitable lien, but must consider whether circumstances surrounding entry of that judgment render its enforcement inequitable. Fansler v. Fansler (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 81, 87, 253 Cal. Rptr. 186

[7] Relief Not Available

When development agency had no legal power to levy assessment or development fee on subsequent developer in order to refund option deposit of developer who engaged in unsuccessful negotiations with agency, neither imposition of equitable lien nor constructive trust on redevelopment property was proper because no one was unjustly enriched and unsuccessful developer received return consideration in form of period of exclusive negotiations. Price Dev. Co. v. Redevelopment Agency (9th Cir. 1988) 852 F.2d 1123, 1127 (applying California law in diversity action)

Attorney's and medical provider's liens on personal injury judgment took precedence over later judgment for child support under Civ. Code § 2897 rule giving liens priority according to time of their creation; duty to pay child support, which arose prior to creation of attorney's and medical provider's liens, did not give rise to equitable lien in favor of child or custodial parent. Wujcik v. Wujcik (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1790, 1795, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 102

[b] Limitation of 90 Days Prior to Levy

Claim for vacation pay under Code Civ. Proc. § 1206 is entitled to preferred status assuming that claim arose within 90 days prior to levy of attachment, garnishment, or execution. American Mach. & Foundry Co. v. Golden State Lanes, Inc. (1967) 253 Cal. App. 2d 855, 857-859, 61 Cal. Rptr. 554 (construing former Code Civ. Proc. § 1206 prior to 1982 amendment that removed term "garnishment")

Showing that work performed within 90 days prior to levy as necessary in proceeding to establish right of priority for assigned labor claims under Code Civ. Proc. § 1206 et seq. Steele v. International Air Race Asso. (1942) 50 Cal. App. 2d 176, 177-178, 122 P.2d 593

[c] No Preference if Levy Itself Based on Claim for Labor

Fact that person's compensation measured by percentage of value of work procured by him or her rather than stated salary or daily wage did not affect status of claims; claim for labor that results in action for damages and subsequent levy has priority to claim filed under Code Civ. Proc. § 1206 after levy. Levitt v. Faber (1937) 64 P.2d 498

Procedure under Code Civ. Proc. § 1206 for obtaining preference for wage claims is not available if original levy of attachment or execution is itself "founded upon a claim for labor"; "labor" as used in this phrase includes personal services and is not limited to those who perform physical labor. Levitt v. Faber (1937) 64 P.2d 498

[d] Statutory Creation

Right to priority under Code Civ. Proc. § 1206 is purely statutory and, thus, is not extended to claims other than those specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1206. Legg & Shaw Co. v. Worthington (1910) 157 Cal. 488, 492, 108 P. 284 ; American Mach. & Foundry Co. v. Golden State Lanes, Inc. (1967) 253 Cal. App. 2d 855, 857, 61 Cal. Rptr. 554

[3] Wage or Other Labor Claims if Assignment or Insolvency

Payments made by an employer pursuant to an industrywide collective bargaining agreement into independent trust funds for medical, welfare, and retirement benefits are contributing wages under Code Civ. Proc. § 1204. Dunlop v. Tremayne (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 427, 431, 42 Cal. Rptr. 438, 398 P.2d 774

Code Civ. Proc. § 1204 is intended to ease economic burden of employees of businesses in financial distress. Dunlop v. Tremayne (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 427, 429, 42 Cal. Rptr. 438, 398 P.2d 774 (decided prior to 1979 amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 1204)

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use in foreclosing a nonpossessory lien. It should be noted that liens dependent on possession, such as a service lien under Civ. Code § 3051 or a jeweler's lien under Civ. Code § 3052a, may be enforced by the lienholder by selling the property at a sale after the appropriate notice requirements have been met. See §§ 342.157 and 342.158 for forms of notice under Civ. Code §§ 3051, 3051a.

[3] Allegations

This complaint includes initial paragraphs that allege the capacity of defendant and a basis for venue (Paragraph 1), and, at plaintiff's option, fictitiously named defendants (Paragraph 2) [Code Civ. Proc § 474]. The complaint also alleges the acts giving rise to a special [Civ. Code § 2875] or general [Civ. Code § 2974] lien (Optional Paragraphs 3); plaintiff's demand for performance (Paragraph 4); and the statutory authority for the lien (Paragraph 5) [see Civ. Code § 2881 et seq.; see, e.g., Civ. Code § 3051 (service lien)].

[4] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(j), verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude the defendant from using a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case if the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[5] Jurisdiction

An action to enforce a lien on real estate is filed in the superior court [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10]. An action to enforce and foreclose liens on personal property is a limited civil case if the amount of the liens is $25,000 or less [see Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(5)]. Actions to enforce and foreclose, or petitions to release, liens of mechanics, materialmen, artisans, laborers, and of all other persons to whom liens are given under Civ. Code § 3109 et seq., or to enforce and foreclose an assessment lien on a common interest development as defined in Civ. Code § 1351, if the amount of the liens is $25,000 or less, are also limited civil cases, with certain exceptions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(6)].

[6] Venue

An action to foreclose a lien on real property is to be brought in the county in which the property is situated [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 5(a); Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(2)]. An action to foreclose a lien on on personal property based on a statute is to be brought in the county in which one or more of the defendants reside at the commencement of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)] or in which the cause of action arose [see Code Civ. Proc. § 393(a)].

§ 342.151 Complaint to Enforce Thresher's Lien [Civ. Code § 3061]

[1] FORM Complaint to Enforce Thresher's Lien [Civ. Code § 3061]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT TO ENFORCE THRESHER'S LIEN
_____ [name],	)	[Amount demanded _____
[and DOES I through _____,]	)	(exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]
Defendant(s).	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant owns and operates a threshing machine for hire in _____ County, California, and uses that machine to thresh _____ [name of crop threshed] for various persons in that county [and throughout the state].

[2. Defendants Doe I through Doe _____, inclusive, are sued herein under fictitious names. Their true names and capacities are unknown to plaintiff. When their true names and capacities are ascertained, plaintiff will amend this complaint by inserting their true names and capacities herein. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants claims an interest in the machine.)]

3. At the special request of defendant, plaintiff worked on that threshing machine as a laborer from _____ [date] to _____ [date]. Defendant agreed to pay plaintiff the sum of $_____ [per day or per hour] for his/her labor.

4. Although plaintiff has repeatedly demanded that defendant pay him/her the sum of $_____ for the work and labor performed, the sum still remaining to be paid by defendant, defendant has failed and refused, and still fails and refuses, to make the payment, or any part thereof, and no part of that sum has been paid.

5. Plaintiff stopped working for defendant on _____ [date], within 10 days of the date of filing this action. Therefore, pursuant to Civil Code Section 3061, plaintiff claims a lien on defendant's threshing machine for the amount due plaintiff for his/her labor.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For a lien in the amount of $_____ on defendant's threshing machine;

2. That the lien be foreclosed;

3. That the threshing machine be ordered sold for the payment of the lien;

4. For payment of the amount of the lien from the proceeds of the sale;

5. For costs of suit incurred herein; and

6. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification, if desired. See § 342.150.]

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use in enforcing a laborer's lien on a threshing machine on which the laborer has worked.

[3] Thresher's Lien

Every person performing work or labor in, with, about, or on any barley crusher, threshing machine or engine, horse-power, wagon, or other appliance thereof, while engaged in crushing or threshing, has a lien thereon to the extent of the value of his services [Civ. Code § 3061].

[4] Statute of Limitations

A thresher's lien extends for ten days after any such person ceases the work or labor, provided that within that time an action is brought to recover the amount of the claim [Civ. Code § 3061; see Paragraph 5].

[5] Satisfaction of Lien

If judgment is given in favor of the plaintiff in any such action, and it is further found that plaintiff is entitled to a lien under Civ. Code § 3061, property subject to that lien or as much of that property as may be necessary may be sold to satisfy the judgment. However, if several judgments have been recovered against the same property for the enforcement of the liens, the proceeds of the sale must be divided pro rata among the judgment creditors [Civ. Code § 3061].

[6] Decisions

Person may maintain lien for services against threshing machine when labor performed for person in lawful possession but not actual owner of machine. Holt Mfg. Co. v. Collins (1908) 154 Cal. 265, 270, 97 P. 16 ; Lambert v. Davis (1897) 116 Cal. 292, 294, 48 P. 123

Action to foreclose lien on threshing machine is not proceeding in rem; action to foreclose lien affects only owner made party defendant to action. Holt Mfg. Co. v. Collins (1908) 154 Cal. 265, 270, 97 P. 16

Owner of threshing machine was liable only for value of labor as determined by court; lien was assignable. Clark v. Brown (1903) 141 Cal. 93, 94-95, 74 P. 548

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant is a limited partnership that _____ [owns and grows or produces] _____ [crops and/or farm products], as defined in Food and Agricultural Code Section 55403, in _____ County, California.

[2. Defendants Doe I through Doe _____, inclusive, are sued herein under fictitious names. Their true names and capacities are unknown to plaintiff. When their true names and capacities are ascertained, plaintiff will amend this complaint by inserting their true names and capacities herein. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants is and agent of defendant or is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by those defendants.)]

3. At the special request of defendant [and his/her agent(s)], plaintiff worked to _____ [harvest and/or transport harvested] _____ [crops and/or farm products] from _____ [date] to _____ [date]. Defendant agreed to pay plaintiff the sum of $_____ [per day or per hour] for his/her labor.

4. Although plaintiff has repeatedly demanded that defendant pay him/her the sum of $_____ for the work and labor performed, the sum still remains to be paid by defendant, defendant has failed and refused, and still fails and refuses, to make the payment, or any part thereof, and no part of that sum has been paid.

5. Plaintiff stopped working for defendant on _____ [date], within 45 days of the date of filing this action. Therefore, pursuant to Civil Code Section 3061.5, plaintiff claims a lien on the severed crops or farm products or their sale for the amount due plaintiff for his/her labor.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For a lien in the amount of $_____ on defendant's severed crops or farm products or their sale;

2. That the lien be foreclosed;

3. That the severed crops or farm products be ordered sold for the payment of the lien;

4. For payment of the amount of the lien from the proceeds of the sale;

5. For costs of suit incurred herein; and

6. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [signature]

Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification, if desired. See § 342.150.]

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use in enforcing a harvester's lien on the severed crops or farm products that he or she has harvested or transported.

[3] Harvester's Lien

Every person who as an employee has performed work or labor harvesting or transporting harvested crops or farm products, as defined in Food & Agric. Code § 55403, that are owned and grown or produced by a limited partnership has a lien on any and all of the severed crops or severed farm products or proceeds from their sale for the value of the labor done up to a maximum of earnings for two weeks [Civ. Code 3061.5(a)].

The liens attach whether the work was done at the instance of the owner who is the grower or producer of severed crops or farm products or of any other person acting by or under the owner's authority, directly or indirectly, as contractor or otherwise; and every contractor, subcontractor, or other person having charge of the harvesting or transporting of the severed crops or farm products is the agent of the owner for the purposes of Civ. Code § 3061.5 [Civ. Code § 3061.5(a)

].

Civil Code § 3061.5(a) refers to a limited partnership "as defined in Section 15501 of the Corporations Code," which was enacted as part of the Uniform Limited Partnership Act (ULPA) [see Corp. Code § 15501 et seq. (ULPA)]. However, after the enactment of the ULPA, California limited partnership laws have undergone two major revisions, in the California Revised Limited Partnership Act (CRLPA) [see Corp. Code § 15611 et seq. (CRLPA)] and the Uniform Limited Partnership Act of 2008 (ULPA '08) [Corp. Code § 15900 et seq. (ULPA '08)]. Until January 1, 2010, a limited partnership may be governed by any of the three acts, depending on the partnership's date of formation and certain elections made by the partnership [see Corp. Code § 15534 (ULPA); Corp. Code §§ 15711, 15714, 15724 (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15912.06(a)(1) (ULPA '08)]. However, effective January 1, 2010, all limited partnerships, regardless of the date of formation, generally will be governed by the ULPA '08 [Corp. Code § 15912.06(b) (ULPA '08)]. All three of the acts contain substantially the same definition of a limited partnership [see Corp. Code § 15501 (ULPA); Corp. Code § 15611(r) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15901.02(q) (ULPA '08)]. Accordingly, although Civil Code § 3061.5(a) refers only to the ULPA definition of a limited partnership [see Corp. Code § 15501 (ULPA)], it presumably is applicable to harvested crops or farm products owned, grown, or produced by any California limited partnership. For further coverage of limited partnership laws, see Ch. 400, Partnerships: Governing Statutes ; Ch. 404, Partnerships: Actions Between Limited Partners and Partnerships ; Ch. 405, Partnerships: Actions Between Limited Partners or Partnerships and Third Parties ; and Ch. 406, Partnerships: Dissolution .

[4] Statute of Limitations

The lien expires 45 days after claimant ceases the work or labor unless within that time the claimant, his or her assignee, or successor in interest files a claim with the Labor Commissioner or brings suit to foreclose the lien, in which case the lien continues in force until the claim filed with the Labor Commission or the lien foreclosure suit is finally determined and closed [Civ. Code § 3061.6(a); see Paragraph 5].

[5] Claim Filed With Labor Commissioner

If a claim is filed with the Labor Commissioner, the Labor Commissioner must act on and finally determine the claim within 180 days after filing. If the proceedings are not prosecuted to trial within two years after their commencement, the court may in its discretion dismiss them for want of prosecution [Civ. Code § 3061.6(a)].

When a claim is filed with the Labor Commissioner, the Labor Commissioner, if the owner who is the grower or producer has failed to satisfy the conditions of Civ. Code § 3061.5(d), must determine whether or not the owner is capable financially of satisfying the claim [Civ. Code § 3061.6(b)]. If the Labor Commissioner determines that a lien is necessary to protect the interest of claimants, the Labor Commissioner must file the lien on the crop, the severed farm product, or their proceeds, and notify, in writing, the owner and all persons who have filed financing statements on the crop, the farm product, or their proceeds pursuant to the provisions of the Commercial Code [Civ. Code § 3061.6(b)].

[6] Attachment of Crops, Farm Products, or Sale Proceeds

The plaintiff in any lien foreclosure suit, at the time of issuing the summons or at any time afterwards, may have the severed crops or severed farm products or proceeds from their sale on which the lien subsists attached, as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 488.010 et seq., on delivering to the clerk an appropriate affidavit, by or on behalf of the plaintiff [Civ. Code § 3061.6(c); see generally Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations and Ch. 62, Attachment]. The affidavit must show that [Civ. Code § 3061.6(c)]:

- The plaintiff, or his assignor or predecessor in interest, performed labor in harvesting or transporting the severed corps or farm products, or both.

- The labor has not been paid for.

- The sum for which the attachment is asked does not exceed the lesser of the reasonable value of the services rendered or if earnings, does not exceed the lesser of two weeks unpaid earnings or reasonable value of actual services rendered, or 25 percent of the fair market value of the severed crop or severed farm products.

- The attachment is not sought and the action is not brought to hinder, delay or defraud any creditor or creditors of any defendant.

[7] Joinder of Claimants

Any number of persons claiming liens under Civ. Code §§ 3061.5 and 3061.6 may join in the same action. When separate actions are commenced, the court may consolidate them [Civ. Code § 3061.6(d); see generally Ch. 125, Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions].

If after sale of the property subject to the liens provided for in Civ. Code §§ 3061.5 and 3061.6, under the judgment or decree of foreclosure of the lien or liens, there is a deficiency of proceeds, the proceeds must be divided pro rata among the lien claimants whose liens are established, regardless of the order in which the liens were created or the order in which the suits to foreclose same were commenced [Civ. Code § 3061.6(d)]. Judgment for the deficiency may be docketed against the party personally liable therefor and his or her sureties [Civ. Code § 3061.6(d)].

[8] Priority of Lien

The liens provided for in Civ. Code § 3061.5 attach from the date of the commencement of the work or labor, and are preferred liens, prior in dignity to all other liens, claims, or encumbrances [Civ. Code § 3061.5(b)].

[9] Limit of Lien Amount

Except as provided in Civ. Code § 3061.5(a) and (c), the liens provided for in Civ. Code § 3061.5 will not be limited as to amount by any contract price agreed on between the owner who is the grower or producer of the severed crops or severed farm products and any contractor, but may not exceed in amount the reasonable value of the labor done, nor the price agreed on for the labor between the claimant and the employer [Civ. Code § 3061.5(b)].

[10] Buyer in Ordinary Course of Business Takes Free of Lien

A buyer in the ordinary course of business, as defined in Com. Code § 1201(b)(9), takes free of a harvester's lien, notwithstanding the fact that the lien is perfected and the buyer knows of its existence [Civ. Code § 3061.5(e)].

[11] Order for Sale of Perishable Goods

If the harvester's lien has attached to perishable goods, the lienholder, during the period for which the lien is in effect and prior to the filing of a foreclosure suit, may obtain a court order for the sale of the perishable goods pursuant to the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 488.530 [Civ. Code § 3061.6(f)]. However, in the event that the perishable crop is subject in whole or in part to a valid marketing agreement that is in force between the owner who is the grower or producer and an agricultural marketing cooperative organized under the Food and Agriculture Code or similar laws of other states, the agricultural marketing cooperative may purchase or otherwise take possession or custody of the crop or portion thereof according to the terms of the marketing agreement [Civ. Code § 3061.6(f)]. Any moneys due and payable to the owner who is the grower or producer in return for the crop must be paid by the agricultural marketing cooperative to the court [Civ. Code § 3061.6(f)].

[12] Separate Action and Attachment Possible

Civ. Code § 3061.5 or 3061.6 do not impair or affect the right of any person to whom any debt may be due for work done to maintain a personal action to recover the debt against the person liable therefor, or his or her sureties, either in connection with the lien suit or in a separate action [Civ. Code § 3061.6(e)]. The person bringing a personal action may take out a separate attachment notwithstanding his or her lien, and in his or her affidavit to procure an attachment need not state that his or her demand is not secured by a lien [Civ. Code § 3061.6(e); see § 342.152[6] (affidavit procedure)]. The judgment, if any, obtained by the plaintiff in the personal action will not impair or merge any harvester's lien held by the plaintiff, provided that any money collected on the judgment must be credited on the amount of the lien in any action brought to enforce the same, in accordance with Civ. Code § 3061.5 [Civ. Code § 3061.6(e)].

[13] Bond Eliminates Lien

No person has a lien if the owner who is the grower or producer of the severed crops or farm products, or their proceeds, who otherwise would be subject to a lien pursuant to Civ. Code § 3061.5(a), either gives directly, or requires a person or entity hired or used to furnish labor in connection with harvesting or transporting the severed crops, to give to the Labor Commissioner prior to the harvest and for 45 days after its completion, a bond executed by an admitted surety insurer in an amount and form acceptable to the Labor Commissioner, which is conditioned on the payment of all wages found to be due and unpaid in connection with the operations under any provision of the Civil Code [Civ. Code § 3061.5(d)].

[1] FORM Breeder's Lien--Verified Claim [Civ. Code § 3062]

CLAIM OF BREEDER'S LIEN

I, _____ [name], depose and say that:

1. I _____ [am the owner of or have charge of] a _____ [stallion or jack or bull] that is named _____ [name] and registered under Register No. _____.

2. On _____ [date], propagating services were performed at _____ [location], California, on a _____ [mare or cow] that is named _____ [name] and registered under Register No. _____.

3. The name of the [reputed] owner of the _____ [mare or cow] is _____ [name].

4. The value of the above-mentioned services was $_____, neither all nor any part of which has been paid. Therefore, pursuant to Civil Code Section 3062, a lien is claimed on the _____ [mare or cow] and on the offspring of the above-mentioned services in that amount.

[2] Use of Form

This claim is for use in recording a verified claim of breeder's lien on a mare or cow and any offspring that resulted from propagating services provided by a stallion, jack, or bull.

[3] Lien for Services of Stallion, Jack, or Bull

Every owner or person having in charge any stallion, jack, or bull used for propagating purposes has a lien for the agreed price of its service on any mare or cow and on the offspring of the service [Civ. Code § 3062].

The lien is not available when some willfully false representation concerning the breeding or pedigree of the stallion, jack, or bull has been made or published by the owner or person in charge or some other person at the request or instigation of the owner or person in charge [Civ. Code § 3062]. Every person who willfully advertises any cattle, horse, sheep, swine, or other domestic animal for purposes of copulation or profit as having a pedigree other than the true pedigree of the animal forfeits all right by law to collect pay for the services of the animal [Civ. Code § 3064.1].

[4] Recording Claim of Lien

Within 90 days after the service on account of which the lien is claimed, every claimant of lien under Civ. Code § 3062 must record in the office of the county recorder of the county where the mare or cow subject thereto is kept a verified claim. It must contain a particular description of the mare or cow, the date and place of service, the name of the owner or reputed owner of the mare or cow, a description by name or otherwise of the stallion, jack, or bull performing the service, the name of the owner or person in charge thereof, and the amount of the lien [Civ. Code § 3063].

When the claim is recorded it is notice to subsequent purchasers and encumbrancers of the mare or cow and of the offspring of the service. The length of the notice is one year after the recording [Civ. Code § 3063].

Plaintiff alleges:

1. At all times herein mentioned, plaintiff owned, and still owns, a certain _____ [stallion or jack or bull] named _____ [name] with Register No. _____, which is kept by plaintiff on his/her ranch in _____ County, California.

2. At all times herein mentioned, defendant owned, and still owns, a certain _____ [mare or cow] named _____ [name] with Register No. _____, which is kept by defendant on his/her ranch in _____ County, California.

[3. Defendants Doe I through Doe _____, inclusive, are sued herein under fictitious names. Their true names and capacities are unknown to plaintiff. When their true names and capacities are ascertained, plaintiff will amend this complaint by inserting their true names and capacities herein. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants claims an interest in the _____ [stallion or jack or bull].)]

4. On _____ [date], at the ranch of plaintiff and at the special request of defendant, plaintiff furnished propagation services of his _____ [stallion or jack or bull] to the _____ [mare or cow] of defendant. Defendant promised to pay plaintiff the sum of $_____ for those services.

[5. Offspring born to the mare as a result of the service of plaintiff's _____ (stallion or jack or bull) is being kept by defendant at his/her ranch in _____ County, California.]

6. Pursuant to Civil Code Section 3063, plaintiff filed a verified claim of breeder's lien in the office of the County Recorder of _____ County, California on _____ [date], which is within 90 days after the services were furnished. A copy of the claim of breeder's lien is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.

7. Although plaintiff has repeatedly demanded payment from defendant of the sum of $_____ for the services, defendant failed and refused, and still fails and refuses, to make the payment or any part of it.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For the sum of $_____;

2. That plaintiff have a lien in the amount of $_____ on the _____ [mare or cow] [and offspring];

3. That the lien be foreclosed and the _____ [mare or cow] [and offspring] be sold to satisfy the lien;

4. That plaintiff be paid the amount of the lien from the proceeds of the sale;

5. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

6. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use in enforcing a breeder's lien for the value of unpaid propagation services rendered by a stallion, jack, or bull to a mare or cow.

[3] Venue

An action to enforce any lien created under Civ. Code § 3062 may be brought in any county wherein any of the property subject thereto may be found [Civ. Code § 3064].

[4] Allegations

This complaint includes initial paragraphs that allege the identity and capacity of plaintiff and defendant, and a basis for venue (Paragraphs 1, 2), and, at plaintiff's option, fictitiously named defendants (Paragraph 3) [Code Civ. Proc § 474]. The complaint also alleges the acts giving rise to the lien (Paragraph 4), the existence of offspring (Optional Paragraph 5), adherence to statutory prerequisites (Paragraph 6) [see Civ. Code § 3063], and plaintiff's demand for performance, and defendant's refusal to perform (Paragraph 7).

[2] Use of Form

This notice is for use by a hospital in giving notice to all known tortfeasors and their liability insurers of the claim of a lien for the value of emergency and ongoing medical services that the hospital rendered to an injured person.

[3] Hospital Lien on Damages Recovered by Injured Person

[a] Availability

Every person, partnership, association, corporation, public entity, or other institution or body maintaining a hospital licensed under the laws of California that furnishes emergency and ongoing medical or other services to any person injured by reason of an accident or negligent or other wrongful act that is not covered by the workers' compensation laws, if the person has a claim against another for damages on account of his or her injuries, has a lien on the damages recovered or to be recovered by the person or by his or her heirs or personal representative in case of his or her death. The lien extends to the amount of the reasonable and necessary charges of the hospital and any hospital affiliated health facility [see Health and Safety Code § 1250] in which services are provided for the treatment, care, and maintenance of the person in the hospital (or health facility affiliated with the hospital) resulting from the accident or negligent or other wrongful act [Civ. Code § 3045.1].

A lien under the Hospital Lien Act (HLA) [Civ. Code § 3045.1 et seq.] requires the existence of an underlying debt owed by the patient to the hospital. Absent such a debt, no lien may attach. In one case, a hospital received payment from a patient and his health insurer and agreed to accept that payment as "payment in full" for its services. Nonetheless, after the patient brought a tort claim against the driver who caused the underlying accident, the hospital filed a notice of lien under the HLA against any settlement or judgement in the tort action, seeking to recover the difference between the "actual" cost of the medical services provided and the negotiated amount received by the hospital under its provider agreement. The California Supreme Court concluded that the hospital could not assert a lien under the HLA against the patient's recovery from the third party tortfeasor [Parnell v. Adventist Health System/West (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 595, 609, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 569, 109 P.3d 69 , disapproving Swanson v. St. John's Regional Medical Center (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 245, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 325].

The HLA does not state that a hospital lien takes priority over competing liens. On the contrary, the HLA expressly recognizes that other liens may take priority. It provides that any entity which makes payment to the injured person must first pay the hospital as much of its reasonable costs as can be satisfied out of 50 percent of the proceeds of a judgment or settlement "after paying any prior liens" [Civ. Code § 3045.4]. By failing to afford hospital liens first priority and by expressly acknowledging that other liens may take priority over hospital liens, the Legislature expressed its intent to apply the time-based priority (that is, the lien first-in-time has priority) set forth in Civ. Code § 2897 to liens arising under the HLA [County of San Bernardino v. Calderon (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 1103, 1113, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 333] .

[b] Lien on Damages by Judgment or by Settlement

The hospital lien is applicable whether the damages are recovered or are to be recovered by judgment, settlement, or compromise [Civ. Code § 3045.2].

[c] Exemption for Claims Against Common Carrier

Hospital liens do not apply to any claim or cause of action against a common carrier subject to the jurisdiction of the Public Utilities Commission or the Interstate Commerce Commission [Civ. Code § 3045.6]; for discussion of who are common carriers, see Ch. 109, Carriers .

[4] Notice to Person Liable and Insurance Carrier

A hospital lien is not effective unless a written notice is delivered or mailed by registered mail, return receipt request and postage prepaid, to each person, firm, or corporation known to the hospital and alleged to be liable to the injured person for the injuries sustained. The notice must contain the name and address of the injured person, the date of the accident, the name and location of the hospital, the amount claimed as reasonable and necessary charges, and the name of each person, firm, or corporation known to the hospital and alleged to be liable to the injured person for the injuries received. The notice must be served or mailed prior to the payment of any moneys to the injured person or his or her attorney or legal representative as compensation for the injuries [Civ. Code § 3045.3]. The Legislature intended that a lien under the Hospital Lien Act [Civ. Code § 3045.1 et seq.] comes into existence when the notice provided for in Civ. Code § 3045.3 is given [County of San Bernardino v. Calderon (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 1103, 1109, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 333] .

The hospital also must deliver or mail by registered mail, return receipt requested and postage prepaid, a copy of the notice to any insurance carrier known to the hospital that has insured the person, firm, or corporation alleged to be liable to the injured person against the liability. The person, firm, or corporation alleged to be liable to the injured person must, on request of the hospital, disclose to the hospital the name of the insurance carrier that insured it against the liability [Civ. Code § 3045.3].

The class of persons who are "alleged to be liable to the injured person for the injuries received" [Civ. Code § 3045.3] would not include the injured person's insurer that provided uninsured motorist coverage (including underinsured motorist coverage), even though the insurer could resist a claim under such coverage by asserting any defense that the tortfeasor could assert. The possibility that the uninsured-motorist insurer could stand in the tortfeasor's place for the limited purpose of resisting a claim by its own insured cannot make the Hospital Lien Act applicable to that insurer, as though the claim for uninsured-motorist benefits were equivalent to a claim for damages against the tortfeasor. For the same reason, that insurer is not in the class of "insurance carrier[s that have] ... insured the person, firm, or corporation alleged to be liable to the injured person against the liability" [Civ. Code § 3045.3]. A notice delivered or mailed to that insurer would be ineffectual under the Act, since the hospital can have no lien on the injured person's uninsured motorist benefits [Weston Reid, LLC v. American Ins. Group, Inc. (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 940, 949-950, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 748].

[5] Liability for Payment of Hospital's Lien Claim

Any person, firm, or corporation, including but not limited to an insurance carrier, making any payment to the injured person, or to his or her attorney, heirs, or legal representative, for the injuries sustained, after the receipt of the notice as provided by Civ. Code § 3045.3, without paying to the hospital the amount of its lien claimed in the notice (or so much thereof as can be satisfied out of 50 percent of the moneys due under any final judgment, compromise, or settlement agreement after paying any prior liens) is liable to the hospital for the amount of its lien claimed in the notice that the hospital was entitled to receive as payment for the medical care and services rendered to the injured person [Civ. Code § 3045.4]. When an insurer or other payor fails to pay a hospital "the amount of its lien ... or so much thereof as can be satisfied out of 50 percent of the moneys" at the time the judgment, compromise, or settlement is disbursed, the insurer or other payor remains liable to the hospital for only that amount, not the full amount of the lien [Mercy Hospital v. Farmers (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 213, 223, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 638, 932 P.2d 210] .

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Plaintiff is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation duly organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of California and authorized to do business, and engaging in the business of conducting a [private] hospital in _____ County, California.

2. Defendant _____ Insurance Company is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of California and engaged in the insurance business with its principal office for the transaction of business in _____ County, California [or other capacity and residence of defendant].

[3. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 342.150, Paragraph 2.]

4. From _____ [time], on _____ [date], to _____ [time], on _____ [date], plaintiff furnished _____ [specify services rendered, e.g., emergency medical treatment and ongoing medical and other services] to _____ [name of injured person] for a total of _____ hours. The treatment was for injuries received by him/her and had a reasonable value of $_____. The amount owed by _____ [name of injured person] and due and unpaid to plaintiff is $_____.

5. Pursuant to Civil Code Section 3045.3, on _____ [date], plaintiff sent a notice of lien to defendant by registered mail, with return receipt requested and proper postage prepaid. A copy of that notice is attached hereto as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference.

6. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that defendant thereafter paid _____ [name of injured person] $_____ in satisfaction of all claims that _____ [name of injured person] had against defendant for personal injuries received in the accident referred to in the notice of lien. That payment was made by defendant without paying to plaintiff the amount of its lien claim or any part thereof.

7. Although plaintiff repeatedly demanded that defendant pay $_____ to plaintiff prior to filing this complaint, defendant has failed and refused and still fails and refuses to make such a payment. Plaintiff has received nothing in payment from defendant for the services rendered to _____ [name of injured person].

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For $_____ as the amount of the lien, or as much as can be satisfied out of 50 percent of the money due under any final judgment, compromise, or settlement agreement after paying any prior liens;

2. For costs of suit incurred herein; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am _____ [specify office, e.g., chief administrative officer] of _____ Hospital, which is the plaintiff in this action, and I have been authorized to make this verification on its behalf. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use by a hospital to enforce its lien on the damages that a person to whom it rendered emergency and ongoing medical treatment recovered from an insurance company. With appropriate modifications, the complaint may also be used to enforce the lien against the person alleged to be liable for those injuries.

[3] Amount of Lien

If a hospital is paid at the time the judgment, compromise, or settlement is disbursed, it is entitled to receive as much of its lien as can be satisfied out of 50 percent of the recovery [Civ. Code §§ 3045.2, 3045.4; see § 342.155[5]]. Even if the hospital is not paid at the time the patient's recovery against the third person's insurer is disbursed, however, the insurer or other payor remains liable to the hospital for only that amount, not the full amount of the lien [Mercy Hospital v. Farmers (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 213, 223, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 638, 932 P.2d 210] .

[4] Enforcement of Hospital Lien

The person, partnership, association, corporation, or other institution or body maintaining the hospital may enforce its lien by filing an action at law against the person, firm, or corporation making the payment and to whom the notice was given [Civ. Code § 3045.5].

[5] Allegations

This complaint includes initial paragraphs that allege the identity and capacity of plaintiff and defendant, and a basis for venue (Paragraphs 1, 2), and, at plaintiff's option, fictitiously named defendants (Paragraph 3) [Code Civ. Proc § 474]. The complaint also alleges the acts giving rise to the lien (Paragraph 4) [see Civ. Code § 3045.1; Parnell v. Adventist Health System/West (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 595, 609, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 569, 109 P.3d 69 (lien under Civ. Code § 3045.1 requires existence of underlying debt owed by patient to hospital; in absence of such debt, no lien may attach)], adherence to statutory prerequisites (Paragraphs 5, 6) [see Civ. Code § 3045.3], and plaintiff's demand for performance and defendant's refusal to perform (Paragraph 7).

[6] Statute of Limitations

The action may be filed at any time within one year after the date of the payment to the injured person or to the injured person's heirs, attorney, or legal representative [Civ. Code § 3045.5].

- Veterinary proprietors and veterinary surgeons [see Jakubaitis v. Fischer (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1601, 1606, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 39 (veterinary proprietors' and veterinary surgeons' lien rights are governed by Section 3051 rather than Civ. Code § 3080, which governs all other livestock service providers)].

Civ. Code § 3051, however, has no application to any vessel as defined in Harb. & Nav. Code § 21, to any vehicle as defined in Veh. Code § 670 that is subject to registration pursuant to that code, or to any manufactured home as defined in Health & Safety Code § 18007, any mobilehome as defined in Health & Safety Code § 18008, or any commercial coach as defined in Health & Safety Code § 18001.8, whether or not the manufactured home, mobilehome, or commercial coach is subject to regulation under the Health and Safety Code [Civ. Code § 3051].

[4] Written Notice as Prerequisite to Lien

That portion of any lien, as provided for in Civ. Code § 3051, that is in excess of $300 for any work, services, or care, or in excess of $200 for any safekeeping, rendered or performed at the request of any person other than the holder of the legal title, is invalid unless prior to commencing any such work, service, care, or safekeeping the person claiming the lien gives actual notice in writing. It must be served either by personal service or by registered letter addressed to the holder of the legal title to the property if known [Civ. Code § 3051a].

[5] Alternative Lien-Sale Procedure

[a] For Charges Not Exceeding $150

Civ. Code § 3052b provides an alternative to the lien-sale procedure set forth in Civ. Code § 3052, but is applicable only to liens under Civ. Code § 3051 for charges not exceeding $150.00, exclusive of additional charges and interest authorized by that section [Civ. Code § 3052b(a)].

[b] Conditions Precedent

The lienholder must have, as a condition precedent to using the alternative procedure:

- Provided the property owner with written notice of the lien provisions of Civ. Code § 3052b.

- Obtained the property owner's address and telephone number, together with a written declaration signed by the property owner stating that the property owner has read and understands the summary provided pursuant to Civ. Code § 3052(a)(1), at the time of entering into the transaction from which the lien arose.

- Posted, at the time of the transaction from which the lien arose, a notice that fully and fairly informs the public of the substance of Civ. Code § 3052b, which notice must be posted in a location clearly visible to the public in the lienholder's business premises [Civ. Code § 3052(b)(a)(1)-(3)].

[c] Written Notice

Any lienholder proceeding under Civ. Code § 3052b must notify the owner of the property subject to the lien by first-class mail on completion of the work for which the lien is claimed [Civ. Code § 3052b(b)]. Not less than 30 days following the above notice, the lienholder must notify the property owner by first class mail that the property will be sold to satisfy the lien, unless the charges are paid within 30 days following the mailing of the notice [Civ. Code § 3052b(d)].

[d] Lien Sale

If the lienholder has complied with the notice provisions of Civ. Code §§ 3052b, 3051d, not less than 30 days have elapsed since the mailing of the notice of sale, and the property owner has not fully paid the original charges for which the lien is claimed plus any additional charges authorized for storage of the property, the lienholder may sell the property subject to the lien at a public or bona fide private sale to satisfy the sum of those obligations, all costs and expenses of the sale, and interest at the rate of 12 percent per annum from 30 days following receipt of the notice that the work had been completed [Civ. Code § 3052b(e)]. The proceeds of the sale shall first be applied to the discharge of the lien, the costs of sale, and authorized interest, and the remainder, if any, must be paid to the former owner of the property so sold [Civ. Code § 3052b(g)].

[1] FORM Possessory Lien--Notice of Sale of Property at Public Auction [Civ. Code §§ 3051, 3052]

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that at _____ [time] on _____ [date], _____ [name of lienholder] will conduct a public auction to satisfy his/her lien in the _____ [describe property] owned by _____ [name of legal owner]. The sale will be conducted at _____ [street address], _____ [city], California.
Dated: _____.

_____ [name of lienholder]

[2] Use of Form

This notice is for either publishing in a newspaper or posting in order to satisfy the notice requirements of Civ. Code § 3052. Such notice must be given prior to the sale of personal property in order to satisfy a possessory lien established by Civ. Code § 3051 [Civ. Code § 3052].

[3] Authority of Lienholder to Sell Property

If the person entitled to a lien provided in Civ. Code § 3051 is not paid the amount due, and for which the lien is given, within 10 days after the same has become due, then the lienholder may proceed to sell the property or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the lien and the costs of sale at public auction [Civ. Code § 3052].

[4] Time and Manner of Notice

Before selling the property at public auction, at least 10 but not more than 20 days' previous notice of the sale must be given by advertising in some newspaper published in the county in which the property is situated. If there is no newspaper printed in the county, then notice may be given by posting notice of the sale in three of the most public places in the town and at the place where the property is to be sold for 10 days prior to the date of sale [Civ. Code § 3052].

[5] Right of Redemption

Within 20 days after a sale to enforce a possessory lien, the legal owner may redeem any property so sold by paying the lien amount, all costs and expenses of the sale, and interest on the sum at the annual rate of 12 percent from the due date, or the date when the amount was advanced, until the repayment [Civ. Code § 3052].

[6] Proceeds of Sale to Enforce Possessory Lien

The proceeds of the sale of personal property to enforce a possessory lien must be applied to the discharge of the lien and cost of keeping and selling the property. The remainder, if any, must be paid over to the legal owner of the property [Civ. Code § 3052].

[1] FORM Complaint to Marshal Assets [Civ. Code §§ 2899, 3433]--By Lien Creditor Against Other Secured Creditors

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	COMPLAINT TO MARSHAL ASSETS
[and DOES I through _____,]	)
Defendant(s).	)

Plaintiff alleges:

1. On _____ [date], defendant _____ [name of debtor] became indebted to plaintiff in sum of $_____.

[2. The indebtedness of defendant _____ (name of debtor) was evidenced by a _____ (describe instrument, e.g., lease agreement), a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.]

3. In order to secure repayment of the debt to plaintiff, defendant _____ [name of debtor] executed and delivered to plaintiff a _____ [describe security instrument] on _____ [date]. A copy of the _____ [describe security instrument] is attached hereto as Exhibit _____ [A or B], and made a part hereof. The _____ [describe security instrument] conveyed a lien on _____ [real or personal] property owned by defendant, which is more particularly described as _____ [describe nature of property].

4. Prior to the time defendant _____ [name of debtor] became indebted to plaintiff, defendant was indebted to defendant(s) _____ [name(s) of other creditor(s)] in the amount of $_____.

5. To secure payment of the debt to defendant(s) _____ [name(s) of other creditor(s)], plaintiff is informed and believes and based on that information and belief alleges that defendant _____ [name of debtor] executed and delivered to defendant(s) _____ [name(s) of other creditor(s)] a _____ [describe security instrument] on _____ [real or personal] property owned by defendant _____ [name of debtor], which is more particularly described as _____ [describe nature of property]. This property includes property by which defendant's debt to plaintiff is also secured.

6. Defendant _____ [name of debtor] currently owes plaintiff $_____ of unpaid principal on the indebtedness secured by Exhibit _____ [A or B] together with interest at the rate of _____ percent per annum from _____ [date].

7. Defendant _____ [name of debtor] currently owes defendant(s) _____ [name(s) of other creditor(s)] $_____ of unpaid principal on the indebtedness that is secured by the above-described property.

8. Plaintiff is informed and believes and based on that information and belief alleges that defendant _____ [name of debtor] is currently unable and will be unable in the future to pay plaintiff and defendant(s) _____ [name(s) of other creditor(s)] the sums that are currently due and that will become due and owing.

9. Plaintiff is informed and believes and based on that information and belief alleges that defendant(s) _____ [name(s) of other creditor(s)] intend to foreclose the security interest(s) he/she/they hold in the above-described property, including the property by which defendant _____'s [name of debtor] indebtedness is secured.

10. The value of the _____ [real or personal] property described in Exhibit _____ [A or B] is $_____. The value of the _____ [real or personal] property that secures payment of the debt of defendant(s) _____ [name(s) of other creditor(s)] is $_____, exclusive of the value of the property that also secures the debt to plaintiff. The value of the property securing the debt of defendant(s) _____ [name(s) of other creditor(s)] is thus more than sufficient to satisfy defendant's debt to him/her/them.

11. Defendant(s) _____ [name(s) of other creditor(s)] can resort to the property securing his/her/their indebtedness that does not also secure plaintiff's interest without any possibility of injury to his/her/their interest and without any injustice to anyone.

12. On _____ [date], plaintiff demanded that defendant(s) _____ [name(s) of other creditor(s)] resort only to property of defendant _____ [name of debtor] that is not also securing the indebtedness of defendant _____ [name of debtor] to plaintiff according to the provisions of Civil Code sections 2899 and 3433. [A copy of the demand is attached as Exhibit _____ (B or C) and incorporated by reference.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant(s)[, and each of them,] as follows:

1. That defendant(s) be required to apply the property other than that in which plaintiff has a security interest for payment of his/her indebtedness according to the provisions contained in Civil Code Sections 2899 and 3433; and

2. For such other relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use by a creditor to force another debtor or other debtors to foreclose a security interest in property other than the property that also secures the debtor's indebtedness to plaintiff.

[3] Allegations

A complaint to marshal assets alleges the facts of the debtor's indebtedness to plaintiff (Paragraphs 1-3), the facts of the debtor's indebtedness to another creditor or creditors (Paragraphs 4, 5), the amounts currently owing to plaintiff and the other creditor or creditors (Paragraphs 6, 7), the fact that the debtor is not and will not be able to meet his or her obligations to plaintiff and the other creditor or creditors (Paragraph 8), the type of property that secures the debtor's indebtedness to the other creditor or creditors (Paragraph 9), the value of the property that secures the other creditor's or creditors' interest exclusive of the value of the property that also secures plaintiff's interest (Paragraph 10), the fact that the other creditor or creditors can resort to the property not securing the debtor's indebtedness to plaintiff without any injustice or possibility of injuring their own interests (Paragraph 11) [Harrington v. Taylor (1917) 176 Cal. 802, 807, 169 P. 690] , and plaintiff's demand that the other creditor or creditors marshal their assets according to the provisions of Civ. Code §§ 2899 and 3433 (Paragraph 12) [see Civ. Code §§ 2899, 3433].

[4] Jurisdiction

An action to marshal assets is an equitable action [Citizens' Sav. Bank v. Mack (1919) 180 Cal. 246, 251-252, 180 P. 618] . Jurisdiction has not been extended to limited civil cases [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86; cf. Code Civ. Proc. § 708.210 et seq. (creditor's suits after judgment, over which Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(9) confers jurisdiction in limited civil cases)], and therefore jurisdiction over the action is in the superior court as other than a limited civil case [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10].

[5] Venue

If the action involves personal property, the proper forum is the place where one or more of the defendants reside at the commencement of the action, the county in which the indebtedness is to be paid, or the county in which the security interest was created [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]. If the action involves real property, the county in which the real property is situated is the proper forum [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(2)].

[6] Costs

In actions or proceedings in which a party recovers other than monetary relief and in situations other than as specified, the "prevailing party" is as determined by the court; in such a case, the court may allow costs or not and, if allowed, may apportion costs between the parties on the same or adverse sides [Code Civ. Proc. § 1032(a)(4)]. For further discussion of costs, procedure, and forms, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.10 et seq.

[7] Decisions

Burden of showing that creditor can marshal assets without risk of loss to himself or herself rests with creditor urging that another creditor marshal assets. Victor Gruen Associates, Inc. v. Glass (9th Cir. 1964) 338 F.2d 826, 829

Civ. Code §§ 2899 and 3433 govern bankruptcy proceedings arising in California since validity, nature, and effect of liens are governed by law of state where property is situated. Victor Gruen Associates, Inc. v. Glass (9th Cir. 1964) 338 F.2d 826, 829

Marshaling is well established rule in equity that, when creditor has lien on two funds and another lien on only one of them, creditor is compelled to exhaust fund on which he or she has exclusive lien and is permitted to resort to other for deficiency only. Citizens' Sav. Bank v. Mack (1919) 180 Cal. 246, 251-252, 180 P. 618 ; Shedoudy v. Beverly Surgical Supply Co. (1980) 100 Cal. App. 3d 730, 734, 161 Cal. Rptr. 164

Right to marshal is mere equity that may never be invoked when its operation will create inequity; lien claimant is capable of invoking principle of marshaling assets only when it will benefit him or her without injuring others. Harrington v. Taylor (1917) 176 Cal. 802, 807, 169 P. 690 ; Shedoudy v. Beverly Surgical Supply Co. (1980) 100 Cal. App. 3d 730, 736, 161 Cal. Rptr. 164

Equity applies doctrine of marshaling of assets only to conditions existing at time when it is invoked. Harrington v. Taylor (1917) 176 Cal. 802, 807, 169 P. 690

Doctrine of marshaling of assets under which if one creditor has lien on only one of assets the former must first proceed against that on which the latter has no lien is fully established by general authority and by Civ. Code §§ 2899 and 3433. In re Estate of Levin Bros. (1903) 139 Cal. 350, 73 P. 159

When judgment debtor has alienated all property that he or she owns, parcel last alienated by judgment debtor is property that must be first subjected to satisfaction of judgment lien. Commonwealth Land Title Co. v. Kornbluth (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 518, 529, 220 Cal. Rptr. 774

When party holding prior or paramount lien covering property releases, with knowledge of prior conveyance by debtor, property that is primarily chargeable with debt, and does so without consent of parties interested in property that is only secondarily liable, value of released property is required to be credited on debt secured by prior or paramount lien. Commonwealth Land Title Co. v. Kornbluth (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 518, 528-529, 220 Cal. Rptr. 774

"Transfer" under Civ. Code § 2899(4)(3) (resort of lienholder to things that have been transferred for valuable consideration, since creation of prior lien, in inverse order of transfer) refers to original conveyance of property by debtor and not to most recent sale of property. Commonwealth Land Title Co. v. Kornbluth (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 518, 526-527, 220 Cal. Rptr. 774

Under Civ. Code § 2899(2), unencumbered property owned by judgment debtor when abstracts of judgment were recorded must be sold prior to sale of other presently encumbered properties, also owned by judgment debtor when abstracts of judgment were recorded, as long as sale can be accomplished without risk of loss to judgment creditor. Commonwealth Land Title Co. v. Kornbluth (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 518, 525, 220 Cal. Rptr. 774

Marshaling is equitable principle in accordance with which assets and securities of debtor are resorted to or apportioned so as to secure protection to rights of each of two or more creditors, or of creditor and some person other than creditor having interest in assets and securities. Commonwealth Land Title Co. v. Kornbluth (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 518, 524, 220 Cal. Rptr. 774

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense Allegation to Complaint to Marshal Assets [Civ. Code §§ 2899, 3433]--Defendant Would Be Substantially Injured if Required to Marshal Assets

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that he/she would be substantially injured by an order requiring him/her to marshal his/her assets under Civil Code section 2899 in that _____ [specify reasons why defendant should be permitted to foreclose his/her interest in property that also secures plaintiff's lien]. Thus, defendant would be caused the injustice prohibited by Civil Code Sections 2899 and 3433 if required to marshal his/her assets in order to protect plaintiff's lien in _____ [describe property in which plaintiff claims a lien].

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense is for use by a creditor who has a prior security interest in property in which the plaintiff also has a lien.

Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification, if desired. See § 342.150.]

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use by a person who has an equitable lien in either real or personal property.

[3] Allegations

The essential allegations in an action to impress an equitable lien on property are that the defendant or another person became indebted to plaintiff (Paragraph 3), that the plaintiff and the defendant or another person intended to make the property security for the indebtedness (Paragraph 3, Alternative Paragraphs 4) [Lentz v. Lentz (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 891, 894, 73 Cal. Rptr. 686 ; Garter v. Metzdorf Associates (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 812, 821, 32 Cal. Rptr. 113] , and when the person who has possession of the property at the time the complaint is filed is not the person who created the equitable lien, that the person was not a bona fide purchaser since he or she received it as a gift or had notice of the plaintiff's right to an equitable lien in the property (Optional Paragraph 5) [Dodd v. Cantwell (1960) 179 Cal. App. 2d 727, 734-735, 4 Cal. Rptr. 113 ; Jud Whitehead Heater Co. v. Obler (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 861, 873, 245 P.2d 608] .

[4] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction over claims for equitable liens [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10]. There is no authority permitting claims for equitable liens to be filed as limited civil cases [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86].

[5] Venue

An action to foreclose a lien on real property must be brought in the county in which the property is situated [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(2)]. Moreover, in situations in which there is one cause of action to foreclose a lien on real property and another cause of action to obtain a personal judgment that arises out of the same transaction involving the lien, the causes are consolidated and venue is proper in the county in which the land is situated [Case v. Kirkwood (1931) 119 Cal. App. 207, 211, 6 P.2d 110] . An action to foreclose a lien on personal property based on a contract would appear to be required to be brought in the county in which one or more of the defendants reside at the commencement of the action, in which the security for the debt or other obligation was created, or in which the debt is to be repaid or obligation performed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)].

[6] Decisions

[7] Creation

Form of agreement creating lien is not material since equity looks at intent and purpose rather than form. Lentz v. Lentz (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 891, 894, 73 Cal. Rptr. 686

Equitable lien requires intent to fasten obligation to given thing or circumstances such that just or equitable adjustment of rights of parties contemplates dedication of property specifically to obligation. Lentz v. Lentz (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 891, 894, 73 Cal. Rptr. 686

Equitable lien is created when intent appears to give or to charge or to pledge real or personal property as security for obligation and property can be sufficiently identified. Garter v. Metzdorf Associates (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 812, 821, 32 Cal. Rptr. 113

Equitable lien relates to time it was created by conduct of parties. Hise v. Superior Court (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 614, 627, 134 P.2d 748 ; Holder v. Williams (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 313, 317, 334 P.2d 291

[8] Enforcement

If property subject to equitable lien is transferred to third person who has notice of equitable lien or who does not give value, equitable lien can be enforced against property in hands of third person. Jud Whitehead Heater Co. v. Obler (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 861, 873, 245 P.2d 608

Holder of equitable lien on personal property for payment of debt who is not in possession of property is required to establish claim and procure order to sell property and satisfy debt. White v. White (1936) 11 Cal. App. 2d 570, 574, 54 P.2d 482

Plaintiff alleges:

1. On or about _____ [date], the deceased _____ [name] died, and his/her estate is now pending administration in a proceeding in the Superior Court of _____ County, California, entitled _____, No. _____.

2. Defendant is the duly appointed, qualified, and acting personal representative of the estate of the deceased.

[3. On _____ (date), plaintiff duly _____ (filed in duplicate with the clerk of the court in the estate proceeding or presented to defendant, as the personal representative of the estate of the deceased)

his/her verified claim in writing in the sum of $_____ on the matters on which this action is based. A copy of the claim as so _____ (filed or presented) is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.]

[If claim was filed, EITHER]

4. Defendant, as the personal representative of the estate of the deceased, rejected the claim and on _____ [date], served on plaintiff notice in writing of the rejection.

[OR]

4. More than 30 days have elapsed since the claim was _____ [filed or presented], and defendant as the personal representative of the estate of the deceased has _____ [neglected or refused] to _____ [file or endorse] his/her allowance or rejection; plaintiff elects to treat the claim as thereby rejected.

[OR]

4. More than 30 days have elapsed since the claim was presented to the judge in the estate proceeding, and the judge has _____ [neglected or refused] to endorse his/her approval or rejection; plaintiff elects to treat the claim as thereby rejected.

[CONTINUE]

5. During his/her lifetime, decedent became the owner of certain improved real property particularly described as follows: _____ [specify real property].

6. Decedent was the owner in fee simple of the above-described property at his/her death, and the property is part of his/her estate in the hands of defendant as the personal representative of decedent's estate.

7. Decedent became indebted to plaintiff in the amount of the claim because _____ [specify transaction or acts leading to obligation]. On or about _____ [date], decedent represented to plaintiff that if plaintiff would forego his/her right to the $_____ due to plaintiff, decedent would give plaintiff an interest in the real property. Relying on this promise, plaintiff made no further attempt to collect the $_____ due to him/her from decedent.

8. Although plaintiff repeatedly demanded of decedent that he/she convey to plaintiff an interest in the property, decedent at all times failed and refused to make the conveyance. [A copy of plaintiff's written demand to decedent on _____ (date) is attached hereto as Exhibit B and made a part hereof.]

9. No part of the sum has been paid [except the sum of $_____], leaving a balance due, owing, and unpaid to plaintiff in the sum of $_____.

10. Plaintiff hereby waives recourse against property in decedent's estate other than the property described herein.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as personal representative of the estate of _____ [name], deceased, as follows:

1. For the sum of $_____;

2. That the court declare that plaintiff is the holder of and entitled to an equitable lien on the real property in the amount of $_____;

3. That the lien be foreclosed and the interest of _____ [name of decedent] be sold;

4. That plaintiff be declared to be entitled to the sum of $_____ from the proceeds of the sale thereof;

5. For costs of suit incurred herein; and

6. For such other and further relief as the court deems proper.

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use in impressing an equitable lien on the property of a decedent's estate when decedent was indebted to plaintiff during his or her life and granted an interest in real property to plaintiff in return for plaintiff's forbearance in collecting his or her debt.

[3] Allegations

This complaint contains initial paragraphs that allege the status of decedent, the capacity of defendant, and a basis for venue (Paragraphs 1, 2). It is not necessary to allege the filing or presentation of a claim (Optional Paragraph 3), and the rejection of the claim (Optional Paragraphs 4), in order to state a cause of action to impress an equitable lien on the decedent's property [see Brunson v. Babb (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 214, 229, 302 P.2d 647 ; see also Prob. Code §§ 9000(b) (claim excludes dispute regarding title of decedent to specific property), 9256 (when claim is deemed refused), 9391 (lienholder may commence enforcement action without first filing claim)]. However, it would seem to be better to file or present a claim, if possible, since the personal representative will pay the claim if he or she finds it is valid, thus avoiding the necessity of filing an action [see Prob. Code § 9250 et seq.; for discussion, forms, and a procedural guide for use generally in claims against an estate, see Ch. 444, Probate: Claims Against the Estate .

This form further alleges the existence of plaintiff's claim and the property of the deceased on which plaintiff asserts a lien (Paragraphs 5-7), that plaintiff demanded, and decedent refused, satisfaction (Paragraphs 8, 9), and that plaintiff expressly waives recourse to other property in the estate (Paragraph 10) [see Prob. Code § 9391].

[4] Cross References

[5] State Statutes

Enforcement of liens on property in decedent's estate. Prob. Code § 9391

[6] Decisions

Equitable action to recover money or property against estate of decedent does not require claim to be filed against estate; claiming interest in decedent's property by reason of promises and representations made by decedent is proper basis for equitable lien and is not asserting claim against estate. Brunson v. Babb (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 214, 229, 302 P.2d 647

[Caption. See § 342.180.]

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 342.150, Paragraph 1.]

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 342.150, Paragraph 2.]

3. On or about _____ [date], defendant entered into a contract in writing with _____ [name of contractor]. According to the terms of the contract, _____ [name of contractor] agreed to furnish to defendant certain labor and materials in making improvements on certain real property of defendant, described more particularly as follows: _____ [describe].

4. The written contract was recorded in the office of the county recorder of _____ County, State of California, on _____ [date], in book _____, page _____, of the official records.

5. The contractor is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a licensed contractor under the Contractors' License Law of the State of California.

6. On _____ [date], defendant made, executed, and delivered his/her promissory note to the contractor. A copy of that note is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.

7. On _____ [date], for a valuable consideration, the contractor sold, endorsed, and delivered the promissory note to plaintiff who, ever since, has been and now is the owner and holder thereof. The contract provides in part as follows: _____ [set out wording granting a lien on the property to the contractor, e.g., "Owner hereby grants to contractor a lien on the above-described property as security for the faithful performance of the obligations of the owner under this contract"]. The promissory note was delivered by defendant to the contractor as the obligation of the owner to the contractor under the contract.

8. A payment of $_____ became due on the promissory note, according to its terms, on _____ [date]. Neither all nor any part of that payment has been made. The promissory note provides that if an installment is not paid when due, the entire balance of the note becomes due and payable at the option of the holder. Plaintiff has exercised his/her option to require the entire amount of the promissory note due and payable. Neither all nor any part thereof has been paid, even though plaintiff has demanded of defendant that the payment be made.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For the sum of $_____ principal, with interest thereon at the rate of _____ per cent per annum from the date of filing this complaint;

2. That plaintiff have a lien on the real property of defendant in the amount of $_____, plus interest at _____ per cent per annum from the date of filing of this complaint;

3. That this court order the lien foreclosed and that judgment be entered against the property and defendant for that sum with costs;

4. That the judgment provide that the property be sold according to law in the usual practice of this court and that the proceeds of the sale be applied to satisfy the lien and costs and expenses of levying and sale with the surplus proceeds, if any, being paid to defendant;

5. For costs of suit herein; and

6. For such other and further relief as the court deems proper.

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing form of complaint is for use by an assignee of a contractor who held a promissory note that gave the contractor a lien on defendant's real property in exchange for the contractor's agreement to furnish labor and materials in making improvements on the defendant's real property. This form is based on the complaint filed in Mann v. Leasko (1960) 179 Cal. App. 2d 692, 4 Cal. Rptr. 124 .

[3] Allegations

The foregoing complaint contains initial optional paragraphs alleging the identity and capacity of defendant, and establishing a basis for venue (Paragraphs 1, 2), identifying the contract (Paragraphs 3, 4), alleging that the contractor was licensed (Paragraph 5) [see Ch. 104, Building Contracts], and alleging facts related to the promissory note itself (Paragraphs 6-8).

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing form of preferred wage claim is for use by a claimant who has performed labor for a person within 90 days prior to a levy on property of that person pursuant to a writ of attachment or execution by a nonlabor creditor [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1206(a)].

The claim is limited to wages earned but not paid that resulted from work performed 90 days prior to the date when the sheriff levied on the property and is also limited to $900 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1206(a)].

[3] Caption

The caption of the claim does not include the claimant's name. Rather, the caption should be patterned after the caption in the main action except for the fact that it should state that a labor claim is being filed.

[4] Filing

[a] Verified Original

The verified statement of the claim must be filed with the officer who executed the writ [Code Civ. Proc. § 1206(a)].

[b] Court Copy

A copy of the verified claim must be filed with the court that issued the writ [Code Civ. Proc. § 1206(a)].

[5] Service

Copies of the claim may be served on the plaintiff and defendant in the main action by personal service on them or their agents or by mailing copies to their last known addresses [Code Civ. Proc. § 1206(a)].

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing form of denial is for use by a creditor in denying either the entire amount of a preferred labor claim under Code Civ. Proc. § 1206, or a partial amount of such a claim. With appropriate adaptations, the form may be used by the defendant in the main action rather than by the creditor [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1207].

[3] Information and Belief

The form is drafted for use by a creditor who has knowledge that the wage claim is false or excessive. If the declaration can only be made on information and belief, it should be redrafted to state the nature and source of the information and belief [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1207].

[4] Service and Filing of Verified Denial

The verified denial must be filed with the levying officer within five days after receiving a copy of the statement of claim [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1207].

The claimant's 10-day deadline for filing a petition to determine the claim of priority commences when a copy of the denial is mailed by registered mail to the claimant or the claimant's attorney at the address given in the statement of claim and the registry receipt is attached to the original denial filed with the levying officer, or when a copy of the denial is handed to the claimant or the claimant's attorney [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1206(c)].

_____ [Name of claimant] hereby petitions the above-entitled court for a hearing on his/her claim for priority and alleges:

1. Petitioner is a claimant who has filed a claim for payment of unpaid wages under Code of Civil Procedure section 1206. The claim was filed in connection with the levy of a writ of _____ [specify] by _____ [name of creditor], plaintiff in the above-entitled action, against _____ [name of claimant's employer], defendant in the above-entitled action and claimant's employer.

2. A copy of the verified wage claim was sent to the Sheriff of _____ County, California, on _____ [date]. A copy of the claim is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.

3. The Sheriff had previously, on _____ [date], levied a writ of _____ [attachment or execution] against the property and assets of _____ [name of claimant's employer] according to the demand of _____ [name of creditor].

4. The wage claim was denied _____ [completely or in the amount of $_____] on _____ [date]. A copy of the denial is attached hereto as Exhibit B and made a part hereof.

5. The wage claim of petitioner is valid in its entirety, has priority over the right of _____ [name of creditor] to any proceeds resulting from the writ of _____ [attachment or execution], and should be paid prior to any payment to _____ [name of secured creditor].

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays that this court set a time and place for a hearing on the disputed claim in order to determine the validity thereof and for such other and further relief as the court deems just.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

Petitioner

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing form of petition is for use by a labor claimant to seek a hearing to determine priority if the wage claim has been denied completely or partially by the attaching creditor or his or her employer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1206(c)].

[3] Time for Filing

The petition must be filed within 10 days after the time when the attaching creditor or employer deposited the denial in the mail or served a copy of it on the claimant or the claimant's attorney; otherwise the claim for priority is barred [Code Civ. Proc. § 1206(c)].

[4] More Than One Writ Involved

If more than one attachment or execution is involved, the petition must be filed in the court having jurisdiction over the senior attachment or execution [Code Civ. Proc. § 1206(c)].

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing form of notice is for use by a labor claimant in giving the required notice to the plaintiff and defendant, or their attorneys, and also all parties who are claiming an interest in the property, or their attorneys [Code Civ. Proc. § 1206(c)].

[3] Time Limitation

The notice of the hearing must be given 10 days prior to the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 1206(c)].

[4] Contents of Notice

The notice may be informal, and only needs to specify the name of the court, names of the principal parties to the senior attachment or execution, and name of the wage claimant or claimants on whose behalf it is filed, and that the hearing is for the purpose of determining the claim for priority [Code Civ. Proc. § 1206(c)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use by a labor claimant whenever any assignment is made for the benefit of creditors of the assignor. With appropriate modifications, it may be used by a labor claimant when an assignment results from any proceeding in insolvency or receivership against the assignor, or when any property is turned over to the creditors of a person, firm, association, or corporation, or to a receiver or trustee for the benefit of creditors [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1204].

[3] Limitations on Claims

The claim for wages, salary, or commissions is limited to those earned but not paid that resulted from work performed within 90 days before the date of the making of the assignment, the taking over of the property, the commencement of the court proceeding, or the date of the cessation of the debtor's business, whichever occurs first. The claim for wages is also limited to $4,300. The claim for contributions to employee benefit plans is limited to those arising from services rendered within 180 days before the date of the making of the assignment, the taking over of the property, the commencement of the court proceeding, or the date of the cessation of the debtor's business, whichever occurs first. The claim for contributions is also limited to the extent of the number of employees covered by the employee benefit plan multiplied by $4,300, less the aggregate amount paid to the employees under Code Civ. Proc. § 1204(a) plus the aggregate amount paid by the estate on behalf of the employees to any other benefit plan [Code Civ. Proc. § 1204].

[4] Sworn Claims and Payments

The trustee, receiver, or assignee for the benefit of creditors has the right to require sworn claims to be presented and has the right to refuse to pay any such preferred claim, either in whole or in part, if he or she has reasonable cause to believe that the claim is not valid. He or she must, however, pay any part that is not disputed without prejudice to the claimant's rights as to the balance of the claimant's claim. He or she must also withhold sufficient money to cover the disputed portion until the claimant in question has a reasonable opportunity to establish the validity of the claim by court action, either in the claimant's own name or through an assignee [Code Civ. Proc. § 1204].

§ 344.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the rights and liabilities of life tenants and remainder beneficiaries. It contains forms of complaints for use by a remainder beneficiary against a life tenant for waste [see § 344.60], and against the personal representative of the estate of a deceased life tenant to recover the unconsumed portion of a life estate [see § 344.61]. It also includes a form of complaint by a remainder beneficiary against a life tenant to foreclose a lien when the life tenant failed to pay real property taxes [see § 344.62].

For forms and a procedural guide for use by a life tenant or a remainder beneficiary in an action to partition successive estates, see Ch. 397, Partition .

§ 344.11 "Life Estate" Defined

A life estate is an estate the duration of which is measured by the life of the person holding it, or by the life of some other person [Estate of Nichols (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 783, 795, 19 Cal. Rptr. 93] . A life estate is a freehold estate, whether it is measured in its duration by the life of the tenant, or by the life of a third person [Civ. Code §§ 765, 766]. The remainder interest in the property vests in the remainder beneficiary on the life tenant's death [Civ. Code § 780; see Clarke v. Bates (1951) 104 Cal. App. 2d 597, 598-599, 232 P.2d 33] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

30-344 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 344.13

§ 344.13 Creation

[1] By Deed

A life estate may be created in a deed (1) by a grant of a life estate [Barnett v. Barnett (1894) 104 Cal. 298, 301-302, 37 P. 1049 ; Jacobs v. All Persons (1909) 12 Cal. App. 163, 168, 106 P. 896] or (2) by a reservation in favor of the grantor [Green v. Brown (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 391, 394-395, 232 P.2d 487 ; Lowe v. Ruhlman (1945) 67 Cal. App. 2d 828, 834, 155 P.2d 671] . A life estate may also be created by implication when the grant in the deed is in fee simple, but the deed is delivered to another person besides the grantee and is to be delivered to the grantee on the grantor's death [see Wilhoit v. Salmon (1905) 146 Cal. 444, 448, 80 P. 705 (deed unconditionally delivered in escrow vested title but not use and possession in grantees, and impliedly reserved life estate in grantor)].

[2] By Will

A life estate may be created by will [Colburn v. Burlingame (1923) 190 Cal. 697, 700, 214 P. 226 ; Estate of Smythe (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 343, 345, 351, 282 P.2d 141] .

[3] Language of Conveyance

To convey a life estate it is not necessary that specific language such as "life estate" be used or that the estate be expressly declared to be a life estate. Any language that describes the characteristics of the estate in such a way as to show that a life estate was intended to pass is sufficient [Estate of Nichols (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 783, 795, 19 Cal. Rptr. 93 (will); Estate of Smythe (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 343, 345-346, 282 P.2d 141 (will)]. Moreover, it is not necessary to the creation of a life estate or interest that the donor, trustor, or testator express in words the period of its duration, nor is it necessary that he or she provide for disposition of the property on termination of the life estate or interest [Estate of Bjors (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 361, 371, 229 P.2d 468] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

30-344 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 344.14

§ 344.14 Rights of Life Tenant

[1] Use of Land

The owner of a life estate has the same rights to use the land as the owner of a fee simple [Civ. Code § 818]. The life tenant may make reasonable use of the premises, including, for example, the taking of all issues and profits from the land [Civ. Code § 818; see also Sallee v. Daneri (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 324, 327-328, 121 P.2d 781 (life tenant permitted to cut and sell wood to clear land for farming)]. The life tenant's use is, however, subject to the limitation that it must not injure the reversionary interest [Civ. Code § 818]. Thus, although the life tenant is not technically a trustee, he or she must use the premises with due regard for the rights of the remainder beneficiary [Estate of Steiner (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 78, 81, 49 Cal. Rptr. 352 ; see also discussion in § 344.15[3] regarding waste].

[2] Reimbursement for Required Improvement

Generally, a life tenant has no obligation to make permanent improvements on the property that is the subject of the life estate. Moreover, a life tenant who does so may not assert a claim for reimbursement against the remainder beneficiary. An exception exists when the improvements are made under compulsion of statute or ordinance or when they are required by changed conditions to insure reasonable income from unproductive or low-income property [Eastman v. Peterson (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 169, 173, 73 Cal. Rptr. 803] . For example, when a city had ordered that improvements be made to correct deficiencies in a building subject to a life estate, the cost of improvements made by the life tenant could be recovered in an action to impress and foreclose a lien for such improvements against the remainder beneficiary [Eastman v. Peterson (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 169, 173-176, 73 Cal. Rptr. 803] .

[3] Insurance

A life tenant who insures the dwelling and improvements on property in which he or she has a life estate is entitled to the exclusive payment of the insurance benefits, unless an arrangement has been entered into obligating the life tenant to insure the interest of the remainder beneficiary [Corder v. McDougall (1932) 216 Cal. 773, 774-775, 16 P.2d 740] .

Chapter 344 LIFE ESTATES AND REMAINDERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

30-344 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 344.15

§ 344.15 Duties of Life Tenant

[1] Encumbrances

If there is an existing encumbrance on the property that is the subject of the life estate, the life tenant must pay the interest on the obligation and the remainder beneficiary must pay the principal [Boggs v. Boggs (1944) 63 Cal. App. 2d 576, 580, 147 P.2d 116] . If the remainder beneficiary fails to meet his or her obligation to pay the principal on such an obligation, and thus forces the life tenant to make that payment in addition to the payment of interest on the obligation, the life tenant has a lien on the remainder beneficiary's interest that can be foreclosed after demand on the remainder beneficiary for reimbursement [Boggs v. Boggs (1944) 63 Cal. App. 2d 576, 583-585, 147 P.2d 116] .

A life tenant who encumbers the property after the life estate has been created is solely liable for payment of the obligation [see Pryor v. Winter (1905) 147 Cal. 554, 559, 82 P. 202 (remainder beneficiary independent title not subject to mortgage foreclosure suit against life tenant)].

[2] Taxes and Assessments

The life tenant must pay the taxes and other annual charges, and a just proportion of extraordinary assessments benefitting the whole inheritance [Civ. Code § 840]. If a life tenant fails to pay taxes and the holder of the reversionary interest pays them to protect his or her interest in the property, that interest entitles the holder to make the payment without being considered a mere volunteer; under equitable principles of subrogation, the holder of the revisionary interest thereby succeeds to the lien held by the taxing authority [Riley v. Turpin (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 152, 156, 301 P.2d 834 ; see Civ. Code § 2903]. For a form of complaint to establish and foreclose on the lien, see § 344.62.

[3] Waste

[a] Waste Defined

Civ. Code § 818 requires the life tenant to do no act that would injure the inheritance, and Civ. Code § 840 requires him or her to keep the buildings and fences in repair from ordinary waste. A more general, judicially stated definition of waste is that it is an unlawful act or omission of duty on the part of a tenant that results in permanent injury to the inheritance [Southern Pacific Land Co. v. Kiggins (1930) 110 Cal. App. 56, 60-61, 293 P. 708 (suit by vendor against vendee)]. For example, a life tenant would be liable for the removal of timber from the subject property to the extent that such removal injures the inheritance of the remainder beneficiary [see Civ. Code § 818; see also Sallee v. Daneri (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 324, 327-328, 121 P.2d 781 (life tenant not liable where cutting timber appreciated rather than depreciated property)].

A life tenant generally may work open mines and open new pits or galleries in the mine without committing waste [see Haskell v. Wood (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 799, 803-804, 64 Cal. Rptr. 459] . The right to work mines and the apportionment of income between the life tenant and remainder beneficiary are governed by the Legal Estates Principal and Income Law, Civ. Code § 731 et seq. For discussion, see § 344.16.

[b] Proving Waste

Whether a life tenant has permanently injured the reversionary interest of the remainder beneficiary is determined by proof only of conduct that has resulted in substantial depreciation of the market value of the land [Sallee v. Daneri (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 324, 327, 121 P.2d 781] . The burden of proving depreciation in market value of the land as a result of the alleged wrongful acts of waste rests on the remainder beneficiary; the remainder beneficiary must establish depreciation by satisfactory evidence, even though a life tenant may not use what might appear to be the best of care in the cultivation and care of the property [Sallee v. Daneri (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 324, 327, 121 P.2d 781] . Hence, the owner of the reversionary interest may not subject the life tenant to damages for every act that does not meet with his or her approval [Sallee v. Daneri (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 324, 327, 121 P.2d 781] .

[c] Action for Waste; Treble Damages

If a life tenant commits waste on the subject property, any person aggrieved by the waste may bring an action against him or her for it [Code Civ. Proc. § 732]. Treble damages may be awarded in the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 732]. The purpose of the statute allowing this action is not to establish a rule of treble damages in all actions for waste, but to leave that matter to the court's discretion. In exercising its discretion, the court may award treble damages only when the waste was committed willfully and wantonly or maliciously. For instance, it would not be just to subject a life tenant to treble damages if the waste was committed under an honest claim of right or as the result of an honest mistake as to the defendant's right [Isom v. Rex Crude Oil Co. (1903) 140 Cal. 678, 679-680, 74 P. 294 (action by landlord against assignee of lease procured by fraud from tenant)].

For a form of complaint for damages for, and injunctive relief against, waste, see § 344.60.

[d] Equitable Relief Available

Besides recovering damages, a remainder beneficiary may seek an injunction against threatened waste [Code Civ. Proc. § 526(a)(2); see § 344.60]. For example, an injunction was obtained when the life tenant wanted to tear up drain pipes on the subject property and would thereby have injured the inheritance [see Taft v. Washington (1915) 29 Cal. App. 197, 199, 154 P. 1073] .

[e] Action for Trespass Distinguished

In the customary situation involving a life tenant and a remainder beneficiary, there will be no problem in establishing that privity of title exists between the parties, and that the wrongdoer is rightfully in possession of the property [see Southern Pacific Land Co. v. Kiggins (1930) 110 Cal. App. 56, 61, 293 P. 708 (stating these two requirements for waste actions in general)]. However, if for some reason, it is discovered that these two requirements are not present, the action is for trespass and not for waste [see Wagoner v. Silva (1903) 139 Cal. 559, 560, 73 P. 433] . For discussion and forms related to the tort of trespass, see Ch. 550, Trespass .

Chapter 344 LIFE ESTATES AND REMAINDERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

30-344 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 344.16

§ 344.16 Allocation Between Principal and Income

[1] Governing Law

Generally, the Legal Estates Principal and Income Law [Civ. Code §§ 731-731.15] governs the allocation of principal and income between a life estate and the remainder and the apportionment of receipts and expenses between a life tenant and a remainder beneficiary [Civ. Code § 731.04]. However, the creator of a particular estate or interest may address these matters when the estate or interest is established. If so, the creator's intention is controlling, unless it is contrary to governing law [Estate of Traung (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 811, 816, 185 P.2d 801 ; Estate of Heard (1951) 107 Cal. App. 2d 225, 232-233, 236 P.2d 810 ; Union Nat. Bank v. Hunter (1949) 93 Cal.App. 2d 669, 673, 209 P.2d 621 ; Estate of Bothwell (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 598, 604, 151 P.2d 298] . The creator's intent is determined by looking at the facts that existed at the time the estates were created [Estate of Gartenlaub (1921) 185 Cal. 648, 653, 198 P.209] . Theconveyor or devisor who establishes a legal estate or interest may authorize the life tenant or another person to direct the manner in which income and principal are ascertained and receipts and expenses are apportioned [Civ. Code § 731.04]. If the life tenant or other designated person exercises this authority in good faith and according to his or her best judgment, this exercise will be conclusive although it may be contrary to any determination that a court having jurisdiction might have made [Civ. Code § 731.04].

Transactions that establish a principal held in trust are governed by a different law, the Revised Uniform Principal and Income Act (Probate Code § 16300 et seq.) [Civ. Code § 731.02]. For discussion of principal and income allocation when the principal is held in trust, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 64*Testamentary Trusts* , .

Before 1968, the Uniform Principal and Income Act [former Civ. Code § 730 et seq.] governed these matters with regard to both legal estates and trusts. Cases decided under those provisions may apply to situations now governed by the Legal Estates Principal and Income Law.

The provisions of the Legal Estates Principal and Income Law do not affect the provisions of the Personal Income Tax Law or the Bank and Corporation Tax Law [Civ. Code § 731.01].

[2] Principal and Income Defined

As used in the Legal Estates Principal and Income Law, "principal" is real or personal property divided into present and future interests, with one person presently entitled to use or receive income from the property until the entire property, or a substitution for it, is distributed to the same or another person at a designated future time [Civ. Code § 731.03(a)].

"Income" is the return derived from principal [Civ. Code § 731.03(b)]. "Income" means "net income," unless there is a clear intention to the contrary [Re Estate of Duffill (1919) 180 Cal. 748, 755, 183 P. 337 (right to use property entitles life tenant to net earnings of corporate stock); Estate of Davis (1946) 75 Cal. App. 2d 528, 533, 171 P.2d 463] .

[3] Tenant and Remainder Beneficiary Defined

The "tenant" is the person who has the present beneficial use of the principal, the person to whom the income is currently paid, or the person for whom income is currently accumulated [Civ. Code § 731.03(c)].

The "remainderman" is the person who is ultimately entitled to the principal, either by the terms of the transaction that established the principal or by operation of law [Civ. Code § 731.03(c)]. This chapter uses the terms "remainder beneficiary" and "remainder beneficiaries" in place of the terms "remainderman" and "remaindermen."

[4] Distribution of Principal and Income

The Legal Estates Principal and Income Law (Civ. Code § 731 et seq.) applies to ascertain what is principal and what is income as between a life tenant and a remainder beneficiary when the conveyor or devisor has not so specified [Civ. Code § 731.04]. Under this law, a life tenant has the right to all income derived from the principal, reduced by expenses properly charged against the income [Civ. Code § 731.05(c)]. For a discussion of expenses charged against income, see § 344.17. Generally, income is paid and delivered to the life tenant. The life tenant retains the income, if it is already in his or her possession. If the terms of the transaction that established the principal so direct, the income is held and accumulated for the life tenant [Civ. Code § 731.05(c)].

When a tenant's right to income ends, by death or in any other manner, income payments already actually paid belong to the life tenant or to his or her personal representative. Income actually received after the life tenant's right to income has terminated are to be paid to the person next entitled to the income by the terms of the transaction that established the principal [Civ. Code § 731.06; see §§ 344.20, 344.42[7]].

Generally, the principal must be held for the remainder beneficiary to be distributed under the terms of the transaction that established the remainder or under governing law [Civ. Code § 731.05(c)]. However, if any part of the principal in the possession of a life tenant is an obligation for the payment of money secured by a mortgage or another pledge of real or personal property, the special rules of Civ. Code § 731.14 govern [Civ. Code § 731.05(c); see § 344.18[8]].

§ 344.17 Allocation of Expenses

[1] Ordinary Expenses

Generally, ordinary expenses incurred in connection with the principal and its administration and management are paid out of income. These expenses include [Civ. Code § 731.15(a)]:

- Regularly recurring taxes assessed against any part of the principal;
- Water rates;
- Insurance premiums taken on the estates of both the life tenant and the remainder beneficiary;
- Interest on mortgages on the principal;
- Ordinary repairs;
- Compensation of assistants; and
- Court costs on regular accountings, except attorneys' fees.

However, ordinary expenses incurred in the administration and management of unproductive property (as defined in Civ. Code § 731.13) are paid out of principal [Civ. Code § 731.15(a); see § 344.17[5]].

[2] Attorney's Fees and Legal Fees

Attorney's fees for ordinary or current services are paid one-half out of income, one-half out of principal, or in whatever proportion the court directs [Civ. Code § 731.15(a)].

Attorney's fees and other costs incurred in maintaining or defending any action to protect the property or its title, unless the action is due to the fault or cause of the life tenant, are paid out of principal [Civ. Code § 731.15(b)].

[3] Taxes

Taxes levied by any federal, state, or foreign authority on profit or gain resulting from a change in the form of the principal are paid out of principal, even if the taxing authority designates the tax as a tax on income [Civ. Code § 731.15(b); see Civ. Code § 731.05(b) (treatment of gain from change in form of principal); see also § 344.17[8]]. However, special rules apply when any part of the principal in possession of the life tenant is an obligation for the payment of money secured by a mortgage or another pledge of property [Civ. Code §§ 731.05(b), 731.14; see § 344.18[8]].

[4] Other Costs and Expenses

Costs or assessments for improvements to property forming part of the principal, brokers' commissions, title charges, other costs in connection with purchasing, selling, or leasing property or investing or reinvesting the principal, and all other expenses not specifically designated as ordinary expenses, must be paid out of principal [Civ. Code § 731.15(b); see Civ. Code § 731.15(a) (costs designated ordinary expenses); see also §§ 344.16, 344.17[1]].

[5] Charges Against Unproductive Property

Ordinary expenses usually paid out of income are paid out of principal when they are incurred in disposing of, or as carrying charges on, unproductive property [Civ. Code § 731.15(a); see § 344.17[1]]. However, these expenses will eventually be charged against any delayed income that is due to the life tenant if the unproductive property is disposed of before the principal is finally distributed to the remainder beneficiary [see Civ. Code § 731.13(b); see also § 344.18[7]].

[6] Allocation of Receipts; Rents and Interest

Generally, money or other property is income if it is received as payment for rent of real property, as payment for hire of personal property, as interest on money loaned, as interest on the rental or use value of property wrongfully withheld or tortiously damaged, or as any other payment in return for the use of the principal [Civ. Code § 731.05].

[7] Dividends

Dividends on corporate shares, paid in stock or otherwise, are income unless they are specifically allocated to principal under Civ. Code § 731.07(a)(1), (2) [Civ. Code § 731.05]. For further discussion, see § 344.18[1][a].

[8] Change in Form of Principal

Money or other property is principal if it is paid or delivered as a refund, replacement, or any other change in form of the principal. The following changes in the form of the principal are specifically designated as receipts of principal [Civ. Code § 731.05(b)]:

- Consideration for the sale or other transfer of property forming part of the principal, but not a transfer that is a leasing or letting;
- Loan repayment;
- Liquidation of assets of a corporation;
- Proceeds of property taken on eminent domain proceedings unless separate awards to the life tenant and the remainding beneficiary are made; and

- Insurance proceeds on property forming part of the principal, unless the insurance has been issued for the benefit of either the life tenant or the remainder beneficiary alone.

Generally, any profit or loss resulting from a change in form is a receipt or expense attributable to the principal. However, the special rules set forth in Civ. Code § 731.14 apply if any part of the principal in the life tenant's possession is an obligation for the payment of money secured by a mortgage or any other pledge of property [Civ. Code § 731.05(b)]. For a discussion of these special rules, see § 344.18[8].

§ 344.18 Allocation in Specific Situations

[1] Disbursement of Corporate Assets

[a] Dividends

Whether corporate dividends are treated as principal or income depends on the nature of the dividends. Corporation dividends, including ordinary and extraordinary dividends and dividends payable in shares or other securities or corporate obligations, are treated as income unless they are specifically allocated to principal under Civ. Code § 731.07(a)(1), (2) [Civ. Code § 731.07(a)]. If a life tenant may choose to receive dividends in cash or in shares of the declaring corporation, the dividends are allocated to income, regardless of the life tenant's choice, unless the dividends are distributed by a qualified real estate investment trust [Civ. Code § 731.07(a), (f); see § 344.18[1][e]].

Dividends on corporate shares forming part of the principal are allocated to principal if they are payable (1) in shares of the declaring corporation of the same kind and rank as the shares on which the dividends are paid; or (2) in shares of the declaring corporation of a different kind or rank to the extent that they represent a capitalization of surplus not derived from earnings [Civ. Code § 731.07(a)(1), (2)].

The life tenant may rely on the paying corporation's statement as to any relevant facts concerning the source or character of dividends or disbursements of corporate assets, including the corporation's statement as to whether dividends are paid from profits or earnings or are a return of capital or a division of corporate property [Civ. Code § 731.07(g)].

The date when a dividend accrues to the person who is entitled to it is the date that the corporation specifies, or, if the corporation does not specify a date, the date that the dividend is declared [Civ. Code § 731.07(e)].

[b] Subscription Rights

Subscription rights to shares or other securities or obligations of a corporation that accrue on account of ownership of shares or other securities in that corporation and proceeds from the sale of such rights are allocated to principal. Subscription rights to shares or other securities or obligations of a corporation accruing on account of ownership of shares or other securities in another corporation and proceeds from the sale of such rights are allocated to income [Civ. Code § 731.07(b)].

[c] Disbursements on Corporate Liquidation

Generally, the amounts paid to shareholders by a liquidating corporation on corporate shares in disbursement of corporate assets are treated as principal. However, cash dividends paid by a liquidating corporation on corporate shares declared before the liquidation or as arrears of preferred or guaranteed dividends are treated as income. All disbursements of corporate assets to shareholders that a liquidating corporation designates as a return of capital or a division of corporate property are treated as principal [Civ. Code § 731.07(c)].

[d] Disbursements on Corporate Merger, Consolidation, or Reorganization

When one corporation succeeds another by merger, consolidation, or reorganization, or otherwise acquires the assets of the original corporation and corporate shares of the succeeding corporation are issued to the original corporation's shareholders in like proportion to, or in substitute for, shares of the original corporation, the two corporations are treated as a single corporation in applying the provisions regarding disbursement of corporate assets. However, two corporations will not be treated as a single corporation merely because one owns corporate shares of or otherwise controls or directs the other [Civ. Code § 731.07(d)].

[e] Disbursements by Regulated Investment Company or Qualified Real Estate Investment Trust

Most distributions made by a regulated investment company or a trust qualifying and electing to be taxed under federal law as a real estate investment trust are treated as principal. These include distributions from capital gains, depreciation, or depletion, whether in the form of cash, an option to take new stock or cash, or an option to purchase additional shares. However, distributions from ordinary income by the company or trust are treated as income [Civ. Code § 713.07(f)].

[2] Bonds or Obligations for Payment of Money

Generally, bonds or other obligations for the payment of money that are part of the principal are treated as principal at an inventory value fixed by appraisers regularly appointed by the court. If no appraisal value is available, the value is the market value at the time the principal was established or the cost, if the obligations were purchased later, regardless of their par or maturity value. When these obligations mature or when they are sold or otherwise transferred, any realized loss or gain is allocated to the principal, except when any part of the principal in tenant's possession is an obligation for the payment of money secured by a mortgage or another pledge of property. Then, the gain or loss is allocated under Civ. Code § 731.14 [Civ. Code § 731.08; see § 344.18[8]].

If any part of the principal consists of bonds or other obligations for the payment of money that bear no stated interest but are redeemable at maturity or at a future time at an amount in excess of the amount of consideration for which it was issued, the excess, when realized, is allocated to income [Civ. Code 731.08].

[3] Use of Principal to Continue Business

If the creator of the life estate authorizes the life tenant to use any part of the principal to continue a business carried on by the creator, the net profits of the business attributable to the principal are treated as income [Civ. Code § 731.09(a)]. If the life tenant is authorized to continue a business that consists of buying and selling property, the net profits for any period are determined by deducting the inventory value of the property at the beginning of the period and the expenses during the period from the gross returns during the period and the inventory value of the property at the end of the period [Civ. Code § 731.09(b)]. If the continuation authorized involves a business that does not consist of buying and selling property, the net income is computed in accordance with the customarypractice of the business, but may not be computed in a manner that decreases the principal [Civ. Code § 731.09(c)].

Any increase in the value of the principal used in a continued business is allocated to principal. Any losses in a calendar year, after the income from the business has been exhausted, is also allocated to the principal [Civ. Code § 731.09(d)].

[4] Animals and Offspring

Generally, the offspring or increase of animals held as part of the principal are allocated to income. However, if animals are held as part of the principal partly or wholly because of the offspring or increase that they are expected to produce, the offspring or increase is allocated to the principal to the extent necessary to maintain the original number of animals; the remainder is allocated to income [Civ. Code § 731.10]. If any part of the principal consists of animals employed in the business, the provisions regarding the use of the principal to continue a business apply [Civ. Code § 731.10; see § 344.18[3]].

[5] Natural Resources

The rule for allocating the proceeds from land with natural resources (e.g., timber, minerals, oils, gas) that may be removed or developed depends on whether the life tenant in possession has a duty to change the form of the principle's investment. If the life tenant has no duty to change the form of the investment, the net proceeds from natural resources taken from the land are allocated to income, whether they are received as rent, a bonus on a lease, consideration, or royalties or other proceeds for the permanent severance of the natural resources from the lands. Net proceeds are also allocated to income if the life tenant in possession has no duty to change the form of the investment, is authorized by law or the terms of the transaction establishing the principal to lease or otherwise develop the natural resources, and no provision is made for disposition of the net proceeds after paying expenses and carrying charges on the property [Civ. Code § 731.11(a)].

In the following specified circumstances, the life tenant is authorized to develop natural resources, in spite of evidence of a duty to change the form of the investment, unless there is additional evidence of appropriate intent to create the duty [Civ. Code § 731.11(a)]:

- The natural resources or the right to exploit them are specifically devised or granted;
- Development or exploitation of the natural resources began before the life estate was established;
- The transaction establishing the principal confers general authority to lease or otherwise develop the property; or
- The transaction establishing the principal directs that the lands be retained.

The fact that property received when the principal was created does not fall within the category of investments the tenant is authorized to make under the terms of the instrument establishing the principal or by law is not evidence of a duty to change the investment's form. The fact that a life tenant has the authority to sell property is not evidence of a duty to change the form of the investment [Civ. Code § 731.11(a)].

Proceeds from lands containing natural resources and the proceeds that are not allocated to income under Civ. Code § 731.10(a) or by the terms of the transaction establishing the principal are allocated between income and principal. All of these proceeds that do not exceed 5 percent per annum of the inventory value of the resources, fixed by a court appraisal or, if no inventory value is available, the fair market value of the resources at the time the principal was established or their cost, if acquired later, are allocated to income. The remaining proceeds are allocated to the principal [Civ. Code § 731.11(b)].

The provisions in the Legal Estates Income and Principal Law regarding natural resources do not change any right that otherwise accrues by law to a life tenant to develop or work natural resources for his or her own benefit [Civ. Code § 731.11(c)].

[6] Property Subject to Depletion

If any part of the principal is property subject to depletion, for example, leaseholds, patents, copyrights, or royalty rights, and the life tenant in possession does not have a duty to change the form of the investment of the principal, the full amount of rents, royalties, or income from the property is income to the life tenant. However, the rents, royalties, or income from property subject to depletion must be allocated between income and the principal if the life tenant has a duty to change the form of the investment, either at once or as soon as a reasonable price may be obtained. In that case, the rents, royalties, or income are allocated to income in an amount that does not exceed 5 percent per annum of the property's inventory value, fixed by a court-appointed appraiser or, if there is no fixed inventory value, the property's market value at the time the principal was established or its cost, if purchased later. The remaining rents, royalties, or income are allocated to the principal [Civ. Code § 731.12].

[7] Delayed Income on Unproductive Property

If property has been unproductive for more than a year and remains so until disposed of, a life tenant in possession is under a duty to change the form of property as soon as a reasonable price may be obtained. Property is unproductive if it has not produced an average net income of at least1 percent per annum of its inventory value, fixed by a court-appointed appraiser or, if no inventory value is available, its market value at the time the principal was established or its cost, if purchased or acquired later. If the change is delayed, but is made before the property is finally distributed, the tenant is entitled to share in the net proceeds received from the property as delayed income to the extent discussed below [Civ. Code § 731.13(a)].

The delayed income allocated to the life tenant is the difference between the net proceeds received from final distribution of the principal and the amount which, if placed in an account bearing simple interest at the rate of 5 percent per annum during the period in which the change was delayed, would have produced the net proceeds at the time of the change. However, the income may not exceed the amount by which the net proceeds exceed the inventory value of the property, fixed by a court-appointed appraiser, or, if no inventory value is available, its market value at the time the principal was established or its cost, if purchased later. The net proceeds consist of the gross proceeds reduced by any expenses incurred in disposing of the property and all carrying charges paid out of principal during the unproductive period [Civ. Code § 731.13(b)]. Furthermore, the life tenant's share of the delayed income is reduced by the amount of any income received from the property and the value of any beneficial use of the property during the period in which the change is delayed [Civ. Code § 731.13(d)].

For the purpose of calculating delayed income, the period in which the change is delayed begins when the duty to make it first arose. Unless there is evidence to the contrary, that duty is presumed to arise one year after the life tenant first received the property, if it was unproductive at that time; otherwise, it is presumed to arise one year after the date that the property became unproductive [Civ. Code § 731.13(c)].

Delayed income is apportioned between successive life tenants, or a successive life tenant and a remainder beneficiary in the manner provided for distributing income on the termination of a life tenant's right to income under Civ. Code § 731.06 [Civ. Code § 731.13(e); see § 344.16[4]].

[8] Obligation for Payment of Money Secured by Mortgage or Pledge of Property

If part of the principal is an obligation for the payment of money that is secured by a mortgage or another pledge of property and the life tenant in possession acquires cash or other property by enforcement or in lieu of enforcement of the obligation, the acquired property is treated as a single substituted asset. Income from the acquired property, expenses incident to the property, and proceeds on its sale, satisfaction, or transfer (but not proceeds from leasing or letting) are apportioned in the manner provided for property of like character that was purchased or held as part of the estate at the time the principal was established [Civ. Code § 731.14(a)].

Gain or profit realized on the transfer of the acquired property is allocated to income in an amount up to, but not exceeding, the accrued unpaid interest on the original obligation as of the date the property was acquired; the balance is allocated to the principal. The allocation of gain to income is in addition to all other credits to income under the governing law. If the original form of the income is a noncash asset that is converted to cash, the cash received in the conversion must be allocated first to income, then to principal [Civ. Code § 731.14(a)].

Sums paid on account of accrued interest are apportioned between successive life tenants, or a successive life tenant and a remainder beneficiary, in the manner provided for distributing income on the termination of a life tenant's right to income under Civ. Code § 731.06 [Civ. Code § 731.14(a); see § 344.16[4]].

The price of acquired property is the unpaid balance of the principal sum of the debt secured by the original property plus the following amounts, whenever paid [Civ. Code § 731.14(a)]:

- Costs, charges, and expenses incident to acquisition of the property; and
- Taxes, bonds, and assessments payable by the life tenant at the date the property was acquired.

However, interest accruing on taxes, bonds, and assessments from the date the property was acquired are allocated to principal [Civ. Code § 731.14(a)].

If interest has accrued on a bond or any other voluntarily created obligation since the establishment of the principal, the interest is overdue and unpaid, and the life tenant disposes of the obligation, the proceeds are divided pro rata between income and principal. The same rule applies to the disposition of a certificate of deposit that is evidence of the deposit of a bond or another obligation with a protective or reorganization committee and the disposition of stock or other security received in enforcing an obligation or in foreclosure of the security on an obligation [Civ. Code § 731.14(b)].

Interest is computed at the rate specified in the obligation. The allocation is made made after repayment of (1) expenses incurred in connection with the disposition and (2) any sums paid to protect or preserve the obligation. An allocation to income may not exceed the interest accrued and unpaid on the original obligation up to the time of the disposition. If another security is received in lieu of the original obligation, the allocation to income must not exceed the interest that would have accrued on the substituted security up to the time of the disposition of the original security, less income received from the original or the substituted security [Civ. Code § 731.14(b)].

These provisions apply to (1) the disposition of a bond, debenture, note, or any other evidence of indebtedness, voluntarily created; (2) a certificateof deposit that is evidence of the deposit of any of these instruments with a protective or reorganization committee; and (3) stock or any other security received through enforcing an obligation or through foreclosure of the security for the obligation [Civ. Code § 731.14(b)]. Disposition includes sale, surrender, compromise, settlement, accord and satisfaction, and similar arrangements [Civ. Code § 731.14(b)].

PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

30-344 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 344.42

§ 344.42 Decisions

[1] Accounting Actions

Life tenant is not charged with depreciation in determining net income from property in action for accounting. Steeve v. Yaeger (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 455, 464, 302 P.2d 704

[2] Construction of Terms Creating Estate

Power to dispose of or consume entire life estate does not render gift void, when donor's intent was to give life estate with limited power of disposal or consumption. Colburn v. Burlingame (1923) 190 Cal. 697, 700, 214 P. 226

Adults adopted by testator's daughter 21 years after testator's death were not "children" of daughter to whom testator intended to devise remainder interest. Williams v. Ward (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 381, 384-385, 93 Cal. Rptr. 107

Bequest or devise to surviving spouse in general terms, without stating whether it is a fee or life estate, with broad powers of enjoyment or disposition, but with gift over to subsequent takers of what remains on survivor's death, to be construed to create life estate. Estate of Morse (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 411, 417, 88 Cal. Rptr. 52

Grant of unlimited right to consume property does not validate grant of life estate. Estate of Morse (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 411, 416, 88 Cal. Rptr. 52

Unqualified right to receive one-half of net proceeds from property during lifetime creates life estate. Steeve v. Yaeger (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 455, 462, 302 P.2d 704

Judgment for defendant administrator of life tenant's estate affirmed when evidence supported finding that property was completely consumed for her use in accordance with terms of will and no remainder was left to be distributed. Osbourne v. First Nat. Trust & Sav. Bank (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 285, 287-295, 302 P.2d 417

Clause in joint will giving surviving spouse right to "full use and enjoyment" of life estate in property with remainder over permitts expenditures for life tenant's benefit but does not permit inter vivos gifts. Hill v. Thomas (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 672, 677-678, 288 P.2d 157

Donee of life estate is capable of only making such disposition and use of property he or she receives as is fairly authorized by grant and consistent with purposes thereof; remainder beneficiary is cheated of interest in property when life tenant is entitled to consume property for "comfort and support." King v. Hawley (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 534, 539-540, 546, 248 P.2d 491

General rule that wherever possible remainder will be construed as vested rather than contingent is overcome by provisions in will creating contingent remainders. Rhoda v. Alameda County (1933) 134 Cal. App. 726, 732, 26 P.2d 691

[3] Creation

[a] By Deed

Life estate is capable for being created by reservation in deed in favor of grantor. Green v. Brown (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 391, 394-395, 232 P.2d 487 ; Lowe v. Ruhlman (1945) 67 Cal. App. 2d 828, 834, 155 P.2d 671

Life estate is capable of being created by implication when grant in deed is in fee simple but delivery to grantee is postponed until grantor's death. Wilhoit v. Salmon (1905) 146 Cal. 444, 448, 80 P. 705

Life estate is capable of being created by grant in deed. Barnett v. Barnett (1894) 104 Cal. 298, 301-302, 37 P. 1049 ; Jacobs v. All Persons, etc. (1909) 12 Cal. App. 163, 168, 106 P. 896

[b] By Will

Life estate is capable of being created by will. Colburn v. Burlingame (1923) 190 Cal. 697, 700, 214 P. 226 ; Estate of Smythe (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 343, 345, 351, 282 P.2d 141

[c] Language of Conveyance

Language describing characteristics of life estate is sufficient to create life estate. Estate of Nichols (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 783, 795, 19 Cal. Rptr. 93 (will); Estate of Smythe (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 343, 345-346, 282 P.2d 141 (will)

Provisions stating period of duration or providing for disposition of property on termination of life estate or interest is not necessary to create life estate. Estate of Bjors (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 361, 371, 229 P.2d 468

[4] Definition

Life estate is estate the duration of which is measured by life of person holding it or by another person's life. Estate of Nichols (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 783, 795, 19 Cal. Rptr. 93

[5] Duties of Life Tenant

[a] Encumbrances

Life tenant is solely liable for payment of obligation when he or she encumbers property after life estate is created. Pryor v. Winter (1905) 147 Cal. 554, 559, 82 P. 202 (remainder beneficiary has independent title not subject to mortgage foreclosure suit against life tenant)

Life tenant is required to pay interest on obligation and remainder beneficiary is required to pay principal where existing encumbrance on property is subject to life estate. Boggs v. Boggs (1944) 63 Cal. App. 2d 576, 580 147 P.2d 116

[b] Taxes and Assessments

Holder of reversionary interest is entitled to pay taxes to protect his or her interest without being considered mere volunteer; holder succeeds to lien held by taxing authority. Riley v. Turpin (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 152, 156, 301 P.2d 834

[c] Waste

[i] Defined

Prohibition of Civ. Code § 818 that life tenant must do no act to injury of remainder interest is applicable to personal as well as real property. Estate of Steiner (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 78, 81, 49 Cal. Rptr. 352

Waste is unlawful act or omission of duty on tenant's part that results in permanent injury to inheritance. Southern Pacific Land Co. v. Kiggins (1930) 110 Cal. App. 56, 60-61, 293 P. 708 (suit by vendor against vendee)

[ii] Duty of Life Tenant in Using Property

Life tenant is required to conserve rents or royalties derived from mine or well for remainder beneficiary when well or mine was not open at time of death of preceding estate or when opening was not specifically authorized. Haskell v. Wood (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 799, 803-804, 64 Cal. Rptr. 459

Life tenant is required to use premises with due regard for rights of remainder beneficiary. Estate of Steiner (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 78, 81, 49 Cal. Rptr. 352

Life tenant is required to be guided by principles of prudence to end that value of property is not diminished. Bliss v. Security-First Nat. Bank (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 50, 56, 183 P.2d 312

Duty of life tenant to protect corpus of estate against waste requires life tenant to foreclose on security that is in default.

Bliss v. Security-First Nat. Bank (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 50, 54-55, 183 P.2d 312

[iii] Equitable Relief

Injunctive relief is available when life tenant threatens acts that would injure inheritance. Taft v. Washington (1915) 29 Cal. App. 197, 199, 154 P. 1073

[iv] Proving Waste

Waste is determined by whether life tenant's conduct has substantially depreciated market value of land. Sallee v. Daneri (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 324, 327, 121 P.2d 781

Burden of proving waste is on remainder beneficiary. Sallee v. Daneri (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 324, 327, 121 P.2d 781

Owner of reversionary interest is not capable of subjecting life tenant to damages for every act that does not meet with his or her approval. Sallee v. Daneri (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 324, 327, 121 P.2d 781

[v] Treble Damages

Granting of treble damages under Code Civ. Proc. § 732 rests with discretion of court; such damages are granted only when waste is committed willfully and wantonly or maliciously. Isom v. Rex Crude Oil Co. (1903) 140 Cal. 678, 679-680, 74 P. 294 (action by landlord against assignee of lease procured by fraud from tenant)

[6] Rights of Life Tenant

[a] Insurance

Life tenant who insures dwelling and improvements on property in which he or she has life estate is entitled to proceeds of insurance policy unless another arrangement has been made with remainder beneficiary. Corder v. McDougall (1932) 216 Cal. 773, 774-775, 16 P.2d 740

[b] Reimbursement for Required Improvement

Life tenant is entitled to reimbursement from remainder beneficiary for improvements made under compulsion of statute or ordinance or necessitated by changed circumstances. Eastman v. Peterson (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 169, 173, 73 Cal. Rptr. 803

[c] Use

Donee of life estate is entitled to make only such disposition and use of property he or she receives as is fairly authorized by grant and consistent with purposes of grant. King v. Hawley (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 534, 539-540, 248 P.2d 491

Life tenant is permitted to cut and sell wood to clear land for farming when activity appreciated rather than depreciated land value. Sallee v. Daneri (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 324, 327-328, 121 P.2d 781

[7] Termination of Life Estate

Life estate is capable of being terminated by agreement. Salles v. Loane (1928) 204 Cal. 55, 58-59, 266 P. 538

If life estate would terminate on life tenant's removal from property and life tenant sought partition, completion of sale is required for termination. Forrest v. Elam (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 164, 171, 151 Cal. Rptr. 591

Remainder interest in property vests in remainder beneficiary on life tenant's death. Clarke v. Bates (1951) 104 Cal. App. 2d 597, 598-599, 232 P.2d 33

Life estate terminates by merger of present and future interests by conveyance of same to one person. Holman v. Holman (1938) 25 Cal. App. 2d 445, 455-456, 77 P.2d 515 (joint deed of life tenant and remainder beneficiary terminated life estate and remainder)

[8] Valuation of Life Estate and Remainder

Life estate and remainder interests in particular asset is capable of valuation at given point in time, based on life expectancy and assumed rate of return on investment; sum of their values is equal to total value of asset at that time. In re Estate of Malpas (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 1901, 1908, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 806

Defendant.	)	ENT INJUNCTION(S), AND DAMAGES
	)	[Amount demanded _____ (exceeds
	)	or does not exceed) $10,000]
		[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

Plaintiff alleges:

1. _____ [Name of decedent] was the owner in fee simple of certain real property in _____ [county or city and county], California, more particularly described as follows: _____ [legal description].

2. _____ [Name of decedent] continued to own the property up to the time of his/her death on _____ [date].

3. On _____ [date], _____ [name of decedent] made, executed, and published his/her last will and testament in writing, devising the property to the defendant for the period of _____ [his/her life or the life of _____ (name of other person whose life measures the estate)], and the remainder to plaintiff.

4. After the death of _____ [name of decedent], the will was duly admitted to probate on _____ [date], by order of the Superior Court of _____ County, Probate No. _____. That court distributed the property to plaintiff and defendant in accordance with the terms of the will. A copy of the distribution order is attached as Exhibit A and made a part of this complaint.

5. On _____ [date], pursuant to the terms of the distribution order, the defendant entered into possession of the property and has remained in possession ever since.

6. Commencing on or about _____ [date], and since that time, defendant has caused injury to the property and to plaintiff's inheritance and remainder in that property by committing waste, in that _____ [specify defendant's acts or omissions constituting waste].

7. Prior to the commencement of defendant's conduct, the property had a reasonable market value of $_____; presently, its reasonable market value is $_____.

[8. Each act and omission of defendant as alleged above was done intentionally and over the plaintiff's objection. Defendant willfully and maliciously engaged in that conduct with the full knowledge that it would result in substantial damage to the inheritance and plaintiff's remainder interest. Therefore, plaintiff is entitled to recover treble damages from defendant.]

9. _____ [Allege basis for preliminary and permanent injunctive relief, e.g., (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that) (P)laintiff's inheritance and remainder interest will be further wasted, thus causing a multiplicity of judicial proceedings, unless defendant's conduct is restrained].

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

[1. For an order requiring defendant to show cause, if any he/she has, why he/she should not be enjoined as set forth below, during the pendency of this action.]

2. For [(a temporary restraining order,) a preliminary injunction, and] a permanent injunction, all enjoining defendant, and his/her agents, servants, and employees, and all persons acting under, in concert with, or for them _____ [specify acts to be restrained or compelled].

3. For actual damages in the sum of $_____, to be trebled pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 732 for total damages in the sum of $_____.

4. For costs of suit herein incurred.

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a remainder beneficiary against a life tenant for damages and injunctive relief when the life tenant has caused and continues to cause waste to the remainder beneficiary's reversionary interest.

[3] Allegations

The complaint should allege the way in which the life tenancy was created. This can occur either according to the provisions of a distribution order after probate of a decedent's will that created the life estate in defendant and reversionary interest in plaintiff (Paragraphs 1-4), or it can occur through a conveyance in a deed or trust. If the interest was created in a deed or trust, the initial paragraphs of this complaint would have to be modified accordingly.

The complaint must allege the defendant's acts that constitute waste (Paragraph 6) [see Civ. Code §§ 818, 840] and the amount of depreciation of the property's market value (Paragraph 7) [see Sallee v. Daneri (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 324, 327, 121 P.2d 781] . An optional allegation is included to support a claim for treble damages (Paragraph 8) [Code Civ. Proc. § 732; Isom v. Rex Crude Oil Co. (1903) 140 Cal. 678, 680 74 P. 294 (treble damages are granted only when waste is committed willfully and wantonly or maliciously)].

The form also alleges a basis for the award of injunctive relief (Paragraph 9) [see Civ. Code § 3422; Code Civ. Proc. § 526; Taft v. Washington (1915) 29 Cal. App. 197, 199, 154 P. 1073] . Optional phrases are included in the caption and prayer for use if a temporary restraining order, preliminary injunction, or both are requested.

[4] Verification

Verification [Code Civ. Proc. § 446] is required if plaintiff seeks a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction on a complaint instead of on affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581] . Otherwise, verification is not required, but verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446] and precludes use of a general denial [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[5] Jurisdiction and Venue

Because the action for damages for waste is combined with a request for a permanent injunction, jurisdiction is in the superior court and the action may not be a limited civil case except as otherwise authorized by statute [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8), 580(b)(2)]. If plaintiff decides to seek injunctive relief in the form of a preliminary injunction or temporary restraining order only, then the case may be brought as a limited civil case if the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1), (7)].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case and must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

The proper court for an action for injuries to real property is the superior court in the county in which the real property is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1)].

[6] State Statutes

[a] Actions and Damages

Right of remainder beneficiary to bring action for damage to inheritance. Civ. Code § 826

Grounds for injunction. Civ. Code § 3422; Code Civ. Proc. § 526

Right to bring action against life tenant for waste; treble damages. Code Civ. Proc. § 732

[b] Duty of Life Tenant

Duty of life tenant not to injure inheritance. Civ. Code § 818

[c] Statute of Limitations

Statute of limitations on actions for damage to real property is three years. Code Civ. Proc. § 338(b)

On _____ [date], _____ [name of original owner] made, executed, and published his/her last will and testament in writing, devising the property to _____ [name of deceased life tenant] for life and the remainder to plaintiff. A copy of the will is attached as Exhibit A and made a part of this complaint.

4. After the death of _____ [name of original owner], _____ [name of deceased life tenant] entered into possession of the property and remained in possession until he/she died on _____ [date].

5. On or about _____ [date], _____ [name of deceased life tenant] sold the property. The proceeds of the sale, after expenses, were $_____, and that sum was paid to and received by _____ [name of deceased life tenant] on or about _____ [date]. Plaintiff received no portion of the proceeds of the sale.

6. During his/her lifetime, _____ [name of deceased life tenant] consumed only $_____ of the proceeds of the sale of the above-described property. Thus, when the life tenant died on _____ [date], $_____ of the proceeds remained for delivery to plaintiff as the remainder beneficiary.

7. Since the death of _____ [name of deceased life tenant], plaintiff has received nothing from the proceeds of the sale of the property.

8. The estate of _____ [name of deceased life tenant] is now pending administration in a proceeding in the Superior Court of _____ County, California, entitled _____, Probate No. _____.

9. Defendant is the duly appointed, qualified, and acting personal representative of the estate of the deceased life tenant.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays for judgment against defendant, as personal representative of the estate of the deceased, in the sum of $_____, and for costs of suit, to be paid out of the estate in due course administration.

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use by a remainder beneficiary against the personal representative of the estate of a deceased life tenant to recover a portion of the life estate that was unconsumed at the time of the tenant's death. Because this complaint involves an assertion of a right to property adverse to the deceased life tenant's estate, the plaintiff is not a creditor of the estate, and need not file a claim against the estate [see Estate of Smith (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 844, 851, 268 P.2d 53] .

As an alternative to this action, the remainder beneficiary may bring an action for conveyance or transfer of property claimed to belong to the decedent or another person [Prob. Code § 850(a); see Prob. Code § 850 et seq.]. For complete coverage of these actions, see Ch. 440, Probate .

[3] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8)]. When title or right to possession is to be tried, or permanent injunctive relief is sought, the case will be classified as an unlimited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 88].

In limited civil cases, the first page of the first paper must state that it is a limited civil case and whether the amount demanded exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

[4] Related Actions

If the estate was consumed by the life tenant in a manner that was willful, malicious, and outside the powers granted him or her by the terms of the conveyance, a plaintiff would want to consider an action for waste and treble damages [see § 344.60]. Because this is a claim against the deceased life tenant, and not an adverse claim of title to property, the remainder beneficiary would have to file a claim in the estate proceedings as a prerequisite to the action [see Prob. Code §§ 9000, 9002; for discussion of creditor's claims in decedent's estates proceedings, see Ch. 454, Probate: Claims Against the Estate].

If property subject to the life estate had been given away in a way that was inconsistent with the terms of the grant, defeating the remainder beneficiary's interest, plaintiff should consider a quiet title action against the donee [see King v. Hawley (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 534, 536, 546, 248 P.2d 491 ; see generally Ch. 482, Quieting Title].

If both money and property were given away by the life tenant in a way that was inconsistent with the terms of the grant, it also would be proper to bring an action for damages against the donee [see Hill v. Thomas (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 672, 675-676, 288 P.2d 157] .

[5] Decisions

Judgment for defendant administrator of estate of life tenant affirmed when evidence supported finding that property was completely consumed for her use in accordance with terms of will and no remainder was left to be distributed. Osbourne v. First Nat'l Trust & Sav. Bank (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 285, 287-295, 302 P.2d 417

Clause in joint will giving surviving spouse right to "full use and enjoyment" of life estate in property with remainder over permits expenditures for benefit of life tenant but does not permit inter vivos gifts. Hill v. Thomas (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 672, 677-678, 288 P.2d 157

§ 344.62 Complaint to Foreclose Lien--By Remainder Beneficiary Against Life Tenant for Failure to Pay Taxes [Civ. Code § 840]

[1] FORM Complaint to Foreclose Lien--By Remainder Beneficiary Against Life Tenant for Failure to Pay Taxes [Civ. Code § 840]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	COMPLAINT TO FORECLOSE LIEN FOR FAIL-Defendant.	)	URE OF LIFE TENANT TO PAY TAXES

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant is, and all times herein mentioned was, a resident of _____ County, California [or allege other capacity and residence].

2. Plaintiff is the owner of a remainder interest, after the life estate of defendant, in that real property described as follows: _____ [legal description].

3. Although defendant has been in possession of the property since _____ [date], he/she has failed to pay any of the real property taxes levied or assessed on it. Therefore, plaintiff has been forced to pay the taxes to protect his/her reversionary interest in the property.

4. Plaintiff has repeatedly demanded that defendant pay the taxes on the property, but to this date defendant has refused.

5. Plaintiff has paid the sum of $_____ to this date [and prior to judgment herein will have paid the further sum of $_____] in property taxes assessed against the property.

6. Defendant has failed to repay plaintiff any part of the sum of $_____ paid by plaintiff for the real property taxes.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For a lien in the amount of $_____ on defendant's life estate.

2. That the lien be foreclosed.

3. That the life estate be sold for the payment of the lien.

4. For payment of the amount of the lien from the proceeds of the sale.

5. For costs of suit herein incurred.

6. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use by a remainder beneficiary in foreclosing a lien on a life estate when the life tenant has refused to pay the real property taxes and the remainder beneficiary has been forced to pay them to protect his or her interest.

[3] Jurisdiction and Venue

Because the complaint seeks to enforce a lien on real property, the superior court has jurisdiction over the action, and it is an unlimited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(b)(5), 580(b)(3)].

The action must be commenced in the superior court in the county in which the real property is situated [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(2)].

[4] State Statutes

Duty of life tenant to pay taxes and other annual charges; duty to pay just proportion of extraordinary assessments benefiting whole inheritance. Civ. Code § 840

[5] Decisions

Holder of reversionary interest is entitled to pay taxes to protect his or her interest without being considered mere volunteer; holder succeeds to lien held by taxing authority and therefore has standing to seek partition. Riley v. Turpin (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 152, 156, 301 P.2d 834

Chapter 345 LIMITATION OF ACTIONS
PART I. SCOPE

30-345 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 345.01

§ 345.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the limitation of actions, including

- Determining and calculating the appropriate period [see § 345.17 et seq.].
- Suspension and tolling of the period [see § 345.20 et seq.].
- Revival of a barred debt by promise or acknowledgment after expiration of period of limitation [see § 345.24].
- Relation back of amended complaints [see § 345.25 et seq.].
- Waiver of the bar of the statute of limitations [see § 345.28].
- Laches [see § 345.40 et seq.].

A Research Guide collects statutes and cases generally applying to statutes of limitation [see § 345.50 et seq.].

This chapter provides the following forms:

- Allegations, for inclusion in complaints, of facts causing the tolling of a period of limitation and thus excusing what would otherwise appear on the face of the complaint to be an untimely action [see §§ 345.70 et seq.].
- Allegations that a debt barred by the statute of limitations has been revived [see §§ 345.85].
- Affirmative defenses alleging that an action is barred by a statute of limitations [see §§ 345.100 et seq.].

- Demurrer raising the defense of the statute of limitations [see § 345.104].

- A ground of demurrer that an equitable action is barred by laches [see § 345.110].

- Notice of motion for separate trial of the special defense that the action is barred by the statute of limitations [see § 345.120] and an order granting separate trial [see § 345.121].

Concluding this chapter is Part V. Table of Limitation Periods [see § 345.150 et seq.], which provides the various periods of limitation organized by types of action. The table may be used as a quick reference for researching the limitation period governing a given action or proceeding. Included in the table are convenient cross references, when applicable, to other chapters in this publication that contain related forms, further discussion, or both.

§ 345.10 Governing Statutes

The limitation of actions and proceedings generally is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 312, 313 (general provisions), 315349.4 (periods of limitation), and 350-363 (general provisions regarding commencement, tolling, waiver, etc., of limitation periods). Periods of limitation for many special actions and proceedings are provided throughout the codes, most of which are identified in the Table of Limitation Periods [see § 345.150 et seq.].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Statute of Limitations

30-345 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 345.11

§ 345.11 Purpose of Statutory Limitation

Statutes of limitation are designed to promote justice by preventing surprises through the revival of claims that have been allowed to slumber until evidence has been lost, memories have faded, and witnesses have disappeared. The theory is that even if one has a just claim, it is unjust not to put an adversary on notice to defend within the period of limitation; the right to be free of stale claims comes, in time, to prevail over the right to prosecute a claim [see Gutierrez v. Mofid (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 892, 898, 218 Cal. Rptr. 313, 705 P.2d 886 ; Bollinger v. National Fire Ins. Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 399, 407, 154 P.2d 399 ; Duty v. Abex Corp. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 742, 748-749, 263 Cal. Rptr. 13] . They are intended to enable defendants to marshall evidence while memories and facts are fresh and to provide defendants with repose for past acts [Jordache Enterprises, Inc. v. Brobeck, Phleger & Harrison (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 739, 755, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 749, 958 P.2d 1062] .

Thus, civil statutes of limitations protect defendants from the necessity of defending stale claims and require plaintiffs to pursue their claims diligently [Romano v. Rockwell Internat., Inc. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 479, 488, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20, 926 P.2d 1114 ; see Downs v. Department of Water & Power (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1099-1100, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 590 (fundamental purpose underlying statute of limitations is to protect defendants from having to defend against stale claims by providing notice in time to prepare a fair defense on the merits and second policy is to require plaintiffs to diligently pursue their claims)].

Although statutes of limitations are favored for policy reasons of necessity and expediency [see, e.g., Fontana Land Co. v. Laughlin (1926) 199 Cal. 625, 636, 250 P. 669 ; Kunstman v. Mirizzi (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 753, 757, 44 Cal. Rptr. 707] , they run counter to the strong public policy that litigation be disposed of on the merits whenever possible. Their arbitrary time limits do not distinguish between just and unjust claims or between avoidable and unavoidable delay. Thus, because statutes of limitations are technical defenses that can bar just claims, they are to be strictly construed to avoid the forfeiture of a plaintiff's rights. Courts may not indulge in a strained construction to apply a statute of limitations to the facts of a particular case [Duty v. Abex Corp. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 742, 752-753, 263 Cal. Rptr. 13 , citing Chase Sec. Corp. v. Donaldson (1945) 325 U.S. 304, 324-315, 65 S. Ct. 1137, 89 L. Ed. 1628] .

The California Supreme Court has suggested that the affirmative defense based on the statute of limitations should not be characterized as "favored" or "disfavored." Recognizing that courts have both "favored" the defense as being in accord with public policy because it promotes repose by giving stability to human affairs and, less often, "disfavored" the defense as being against public policy because it disposes of a cause of action on procedural grounds rather than on the merits, the Court noted that these public policies are equally strong. Balancing them is exclusively for the Legislature when it establishes limitation periods [see Norgart v. Upjohn Co. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 383, 396, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 453, 981 P.2d 79] .

Chapter 345 LIMITATION OF ACTIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Statute of Limitations

30-345 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 345.12

§ 345.12 Constitutionality of Statutes of Limitation

The authority of the Legislature to provide periods of limitation is unquestionable, and the fixing of time limits within which particular rights must be asserted is a matter of legislative policy. The only restriction of the Legislature's authority is that a statute of limitation must not be so manifestly inequitable as to amount to a denial of justice [Ocean S. R. Co. v. Santa Cruz (1961) 198 Cal. App. 2d 267, 273, 17 Cal. Rptr. 892 ; see also Kupka v. Board of Administration (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 791, 797, 176 Cal. Rptr. 214] .

Statutes of limitation are generally not subject to constitutional challenge for violation of the notice requirements of the Due Process Clause of U.S. Const., amend. XIV, as announced in the Supreme Court's decisions in Mennonite Board of Missions v. Adams (1983) 462 U.S. 791, 103 S. Ct. 2706, 77 L. Ed. 2d 180 , and Mullane v. Central Hanover B. & T. Co. (1950) 339 U.S. 306, 70 S. Ct. 652, 94 L. Ed. 865 . This is true particularly of "self-executing" statutes of limitation, in which the period of limitation is not triggered by the legal proceeding itself. When, however, a statute of limitations is not self-executing and operates to limit a cause of action that amounts to a property interest, it violates due process if it does not provide actual notice of the limitations period [Tulsa Collection Servs. v. Pope (1988) 485 U.S. 478, 486-488, 491, 108 S. Ct. 1340, 99 L. Ed. 2d 565, 575-577, 579] . For example, an Oklahoma nonclaim provision, limiting the period within which creditors might bring claims against a decedent's estate, violated due process notice requirements when it did not provide creditors with actual notice of the limitation period [Tulsa Collection Servs. v. Pope (1988) 485 U.S. 478, 487-488, 491, 108 S. Ct. 1340, 99 L. Ed. 2d 565, 577, 579 ; for discussion of the California nonclaim provisions (Prob. Code §§ 9050, 9100), see Ch. 454, Probate: Claims Against the Estate].

§ 345.13 Choice of Law

[1] Governmental Interest Analysis

The governmental interest analysis approach, under which the forum state searches to find the proper law to apply based on the interests of the litigants and the involved states, governs the choice of law for determining whether an action is barred by the statute of limitations [Offshore Rental Co. v. Continental Oil Co. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 157, 161, 148 Cal. Rptr. 867, 583 P.2d 721 ; Reich v. Purcell (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 551, 553, 63 Cal. Rptr. 31, 432 P.2d 727] . The forum state will generally apply its own law unless a litigant demonstrates that applying the law of another state would further the interests of the other state [Hurtado v. Superior Court (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 574, 581, 114 Cal. Rptr. 106, 522 P.2d 666] .

In applying the governmental interst analysis approach, the court examines the policies underlying the competing laws of the involved states to determine which states are interested in having their laws applied to the issues in question. A state will have an interest in having its law applied if the policies underlying the law would be thereby advanced. A true conflict exists if both California and the foreign state have a strong interest in applying their respective laws. The court must then engage in comparative impairment analysis and apply the law of the state whose policy would be more impaired if its law were not applied. If only one of two potentially concerned states has an interest in having its law applied, the conflict of laws is false, and the court will apply the law of the only interested state [Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners v. American Medical Internat., Inc. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1532, 1543 n.9, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 33 ; Ashland Chemical Co. v. Provence (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 790, 793-794, 181 Cal. Rptr. 340] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Identifying Governmental Interest. A Kentucky plaintiff sued three California defendants in California state court to enforce a promissory note. The note was executed and to be paid in Kentucky and was to be construed according to Kentucky law. The action was barred by California's statute of limitations, but not by Kentucky's statute of limitations which was fifteen years. Will California law apply to bar the action? Yes. The court held that Kentucky had no interest, but that California did because statutes of limitations are designed to protect the enacting state's residents and courts from burdens associated with the prosecution of stale claims. California courts and a California resident would be protected by applying California's statute of limitations because California was the forum and the defendant was a California resident [see Ashland Chemical Co. v. Provence (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 790, 794-795, 181 Cal. Rptr. 340] .

[2] Effect of Choice of Law Provision in Contract

A choice of law provision providing that the contract shall be governed by the "laws" of a particular jurisdiction has been held to incorporate the statute of limitations of the chosen state [Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners v. American Medical Internat., Inc. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1532, 1536, 1538-1544, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 33] . Such an arm's length contractual choice of law provision will be enforced if the chosen state has a substantial relationship to the parties to the transaction, or there is any other reasonable basis for the parties choice, and the chosen state's law is not contrary to a fundamental policy of California. If there is a fundamental conflict with California law, the court must determine if California has a materially greater interest than the chosen state in the determination of the particular issue. If California has a greater interest, the choice of law will not be enforced because California will decline to enforce a law that is contrary to this state's fundamental policy [Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners v. American Medical Internat., Inc. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1532, 1536, 1544-1449, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 33 (choice of law provision resulting in Delaware's three year statute of limitation being applied to breach of contract and declaratory relief claims rather than four year California period not in conflict with California policy and enforced)].

Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners v. American Medical Internat., Inc. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1532, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 33 , distinguished Ashland Chemical Co. v. Provence (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 790, 181 Cal. Rptr. 340 , cited in the Illustration, in [1], above. Although the Hambrecht court noted that the result in Ashland Chemical Co. that the choice of law provision was unenforceable because it violated California's policy of protecting state residents from stale claims may have been correct, the court questioned Ashland Chemical Co.'s analysis to determine the enforceability of such a clause and pointed out error in Ashland Chemical Co.'s suggestion that a choice of law provision is per se unenforceable if the chosen state's statute of limitations is longer than California's because California allows contracting parties to extend statute of limitations, although with some restrictions [Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners v. American Medical Internat., Inc. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1532, 1549 n. 17, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 33] . The court also indicated that dicta in Ashland Chemical Co. suggesting that state's statutes of limitations apply only to resident of that state is incorrect and not to be followed because choice of law provision can apply to defendant who is not resident of state [Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners v. American Medical Internat., Inc. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1532, 1546 n.14, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 33] .

In addition, a choice of law provision that states the contract will be governed by the "laws" of a particular state incorporates that state's "borrowing statute." A borrowing statute requires that each cause of action be timely under the state chosen by the contract and any state in which the claim arose--effectively applying the shorter of the two states' limitations periods [Hughes Electronics Corp. v. Citibank Delaware (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 251, 260, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 244 (a choice of law provision in a contract stating that all claims will be resolved under the laws of New York required application of New York's borrowing statute; applying the borrowing statute resulted in the cause of action being barred because the claim arose in California, which had a shorter one-year statute of limitations)].

For further discussion of the enforceability of choice of law clauses, see Ch. 140, Contracts .

[3] Actions Barred in State of Origin

When a cause of action has arisen in another state or in a foreign country, and by the laws of that other state or foreign country an action cannot be maintained against a person by reason of the lapse of time, an action cannot be maintained against that person in California unless the person having the cause of action has been a citizen of California and has held the cause of action from the time it accrued [Code Civ. Proc. § 361]. For a form of affirmative defense raising this limitation, see § 345.101.

§ 345.14 Effect of Amending a Statute

[1] Extending Period

[a] Application to Cause of Action Not Already Barred

A legislative extension of the statutory period within which an action must be brought is valid as to any cause of action then pending and not already barred, unless the statute expressly provides to the contrary. The party claiming to be adversely affected will be deemed to have suffered no injury, if the cause of action was not already barred, because the extension affects only the remedy and not the right [see Mudd v. McColgan (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 463, 468, 183 P.2d 10 ; Evelyn, Inc. v. California Emp. Stab. Com. (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 588, 592, 311 P.2d 500 ; Douglas Aircraft Co. v. Cranston (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 462, 465, 24 Cal. Rptr. 851, 374 P.2d 819 ; Mojica v. 4311 Wilshire, LLC (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 1069, 1072-1073, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 887 ; Society of Cal. Pioneers v. Baker (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 774, 784, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 865 ; Resolute Ins. Co. v. Municipal Court (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 1006, 1009, 90 Cal. Rptr. 337] .

[b] Revival of Barred Cause of Action

The Legislature has the power to amend a statute of limitations retroactively so as to revive a common-law civil cause of action already barred under the former limitation period [Liebig v. Superior Court (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 828, 835, 257 Cal. Rptr. 574 (distinguishing cases involving statutes of limitations governing prescriptive property rights and civil liability created by statutes, as well as criminal cases, in which the law is to the contrary); see Hellinger v. Farmers Group, Inc. (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 1049, 1054, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 268 (in Code Civ. Proc. § 340.9, legislature retroactively revived causes of action arising from damages caused by Northridge earthquake); Lent v. Doe (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1177, 1181, 1183-1184, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 389 (retroactive revival of time barred claims is constitutionally permissible provided it does not interfere with vested title to real or personal property)].

The Legislature must expressly declare that an amended statute of limitations is to be applied retroactively; if it does not, the extended time for bringing a particular action cannot be applied retroactively so as to revive an action that had already been barred by the period of limitation contained in the former statute [see Aguilera v. Heiman (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 590, 596, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 18 ; Bullard v. California State Automobile Assn. (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 211,

216-219, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 225 ; Krupnick v. Duke Energy Morro Bay, LLC (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 1026, 1027-1030, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 767 ; Bartman v. Estate of Bartman (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 780, 787-788, 148 Cal. Rptr. 207 ; Carr v. State of California (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 139, 144-147, 129 Cal. Rptr. 730] .

[2] Shortening Period

The Legislature may shorten the period within which an action may be commenced, since a statute of limitation affects the remedy only and does not impair the cause of action itself. However, a statute shortening the period of limitation cannot be applied retroactively to defeat an accrued cause of action that is not barred by the statute applicable before the new statute took effect. To avoid the unconstitutional effect of retroactive application, a statute must be applied prospectively to such causes of action; and even then, the claimant must be allowed a reasonable time within which to proceed with his cause of action [Scheas v. Robertson (1951) 38 Cal. 2d 119, 125, 238 P.2d 982 ; Niagara Fire Ins. Co. v. Cole (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 40, 42-43, 44 Cal. Rptr. 889 ; see Edward Fineman Co. v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1110, 1125-1126, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 478 (retroactive application of Com. Code § 4111)].

Thus, the statute must not operate within so short a time as to give the party no reasonable opportunity to exercise his or her remedy. Whether or not there is reasonable time is a question of the constitutionality of the statute. It is not a discretionary matter for the trial court, and if it appears that there was a reasonable time for exercise of the remedy before the statutory bar became fixed, the trial court cannot consider individual hardship or other circumstances, but must give effect to the express provisions of the law [Rosefield Packing Co. v. Superior Court (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 120, 122, 124, 47 P.2d 716 ; Mohlmann v. City of Burbank (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 1037, 1044, 225 Cal. Rptr. 109 ; Eden v. Van Tine (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 879, 887, 148 Cal. Rptr. 215] .

[3] Clarifying Statute

Retroactive application of an amendment that merely clarifies a statute is not prohibited merely because it applies to facts in existence before the effective date of the amendment or because the complaint or petition was filed prior to the amendment [Noggle v. Bank of America (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 853, 859, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 829 (1996 amendment to Prob. Code § 16460 clarifying events that trigger statute of limitations applied retroactively)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Statute of Limitations

30-345 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 345.15

§ 345.15 Effect of New Judicial Opinion

A judicial opinion in a civil case does not generally supersede the operation of the statute of limitations so as to revive old claims that were not pursued because of a previously prevailing contrary rule of law, or to reincarnate dead causes of action barred by the statute of limitations [Monroe v. Trustees of the California State Colleges (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 399, 406-407, 99 Cal. Rptr. 129, 491 P.2d 1105 ; see also Estate of Horman (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 62, 71, 95 Cal. Rptr. 433, 485 P.2d 785 , cert. denied, 404 U.S. 1015 (1972) (discussed under § 345.20[16], below)].

When a new judicial opinion clarifies that a right of action exists, it does not extend the running of the statute of limitations [Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Assn. v. City of La Habra (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 809, 815-816, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 369, 23 P.3d 601 , disapproving McBrearty v. City of Brawley (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1441, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 862] . For example, in November 1986, the voters approved Proposition 62, a statewide initiative providing, inter alia, that local governments may not impose any general tax until that tax is submitted to the electorate and approved by a majority of voters. A few years after the passage of Proposition 62, an appellate court declared its voter approval requirements unconstitutional [City of Woodlake v. Logan (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1058, 1064-1068, 282 Cal. Rptr. 27] . In 1992, the City established a utility users tax to raise revenue for general governmental purposes, starting May 1, 1993, without first submitting it to the voters for approval. In September 1995, the California Supreme Court upheld the constitutionality of Proposition 62 [Santa Clara County Local Transportation Authority v. Guardino (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 220, 238-254, 261, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 207, 902 P.2d 225] . In March 1996, the plaintiffs brought an action to invalidate the utility tax. The California Supreme Court held that the statute of limitations did not begin to run when the 1995 Guardino opinion was issued, but began to run anew each time the tax was collected. The plaintiffs were thus allowed to challenge taxes collected within 3 years prior to the filing of their action. The court commented that the plaintiffs had the same opportunity as the taxpayers in Guardino to bring the issue of the constitutionality of Proposition 62 to the California Supreme Court and thus could have brought their action when the tax was first established [Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Assn. v. City of La Habra (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 809, 815-816, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 369, 23 P.3d 601 , disapproving McBrearty v. City of Brawley (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1441, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 862] .

Chapter 345 LIMITATION OF ACTIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Statute of Limitations

30-345 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 345.16

§ 345.16 Application of Statutes of Limitation

[1] Inflexible as General Rule

A statute of limitation operates against the right of action, not against the holder of that right [Record Machine & Tool Co. v. Pageman Holding Corp. (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 164, 174, 342 P.2d 402] . Because statutes of limitations prescribe definite periods of time within which actions may be brought or certain steps may be taken, they are adamant rather than flexible in nature. Statutes of limitation are upheld and enforced regardless of personal hardship [Chas. L. Harney, Inc. v. State of California (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 77, 91, 31 Cal. Rptr. 524] .

A Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) motion for relief based on mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect is not available to provide relief from an error that results in the running of the applicable statue of limitations [Life Savings Bank v. Wilhelm (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 174, 177, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 657 ; Carlson v. Department of Fish & Game (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1268, 1279, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 601 ; but see Simpson v. Williams (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 285, 238 Cal. Rptr. 566 (section 473 relief available in relation to action for declaratory relief following attorney fee arbitration; questioned in Shiver, McGrane, & Martin v. Littell (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1041, 1049, 266 Cal. Rptr. 298)]. When the Legislature has decided to introduce an element of flexibility in a particular instance, it has expressly provided for extension of the limitation period on a showing of good cause, and courts have interpreted the good cause standard as equivalent to a showing under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, which grants relief on the ground of mistake, inadvertence, or excusable neglect. Absent a specific provision for extension, it must be inferred that the Legislature did not intend to permit relief on grounds of good cause or under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 [Kupka v. Board of Administration (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 791, 795, 176 Cal. Rptr. 214 ; Castro v. Sacramento County Fire Protection District (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 927, 929, 933, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 193 (1992 amendments of section 473 did not overturn Kupka)].

Warning:

Formal Filing Requirements Must Be Met. The action must be filed within the applicable limitations period, and all formal filing requirements must be met. For instance, the failure to tender the appropriate filing fee prior to the expiration of the statute of limitations may result in the action being dismissed. For discussion of how to cure a filing fee defect where the payment is voided due to a returned check, or the fee tendered was below the required amount, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints, § 123.28.

[2] Exceptions to Inflexible Application

Exceptions to the rigid application of the statute of limitations include the following:

- Statutory provisions suspending or tolling the period of limitation, such when the defendant is absent from the state [see Code Civ. Proc. § 351] or is under a disability [see Code Civ. Proc. § 352 (minority, insanity)]. For discussion, see § 345.20[1] et seq.

- Suspension of the statute based on case law, for example, estoppel to plead the bar of the statute because of fraudulent concealment of a cause of action [see Bollinger v. National Fire Ins. Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 399, 411, 154 P.2d 399 ; Pashley v. Pacific E. R. Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 226, 229, 153 P.2d 325 ; Community Cause v. Boatwright (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 888, 899, 177 Cal. Rptr. 657 ; for discussion, see § 345.22[3]] or fraudulent concealment that the wrong party was sued [see Kleinecke v. Montecito Water Dist. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 240, 245-247 ; for discussion, see § 345.22[4]].

[3] Construction of Statutes of Limitation

Statutes of limitation are to be strictly construed, and the court must find the Legislature's intent from the statute itself. A statute of limitation must be applied as it plainly reads [Skidmore v. County of Alameda (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 534, 540, 90 P.2d 577 ; but see Pryor v. Winter (1905) 147 Cal. 554, 557-558, 82 P. 202 (court ruling whether action is barred by statute of limitation should consider all statutory provisions on subject; provisions to be construed in light of presumption Legislature is acquainted with, and legislates with reference to, settled principles of law)]. If the facts relied on leave doubt as to whether an action has been brought within the applicable period of limitation, a court should not indulge a strained construction of the applicable statute for the purpose of supporting the plea of bar of the statute [see Herman v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 819, 826-827, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144 ; County of L.A. v. Security First Nat. Bank (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 575, 580, 191 P.2d 78] .

For discussion of general principles of statutory construction, see Ch. 531, Statutes and Ordinances .

[4] To Cases in General

Civil actions and special proceedings of a civil nature, without exception, can be commenced only within the periods of limitation prescribed in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 312-366.2, after the cause of action has accrued, except when, in special cases, a different limitation is prescribed by statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 312; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 363 ("action" as including, when necessary, special proceeding of civil nature)].

The statutes of limitations found in the Code of Civil Procedure do not apply to administrative actions [Robert F. Kennedy Medical Center v. Department of Health Services (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1357, 1362, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 180 ; Little Company of Mary Hospital v. Belshe (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 325, 329, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 626] . For discussion of the statute of limitations applicable to an administrative proceeding, see Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication, § 372A.12.

[5] To Actions by a State or County

The periods of limitation prescribed in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 335-349 3/4 apply to actions brought in the name of the state or a county, or for the benefit of the state or a county, in the same manner a to actions by private parties, except that actions for the recovery of money due on account of the support of patients at state or county hospitals may be commenced at any time within four years after the last date of service or the last date of payment [Code Civ. Proc. § 345]. When the state is the plaintiff, however, certain actions relating to real property are barred by particular provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure [see Code Civ. Proc. § 315].

[6] To Actions by a Municipality

Municipalities are subject to statutes of limitations [Los Angeles v. County of Los Angeles (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 624, 627, 72 P.2d 138] .

[7] To Actions Against Public Entities and Public Employees

Special limitation periods apply to actions against public entities and public employees. For discussion, see Ch. 467, Public Entities and Officers: Enforcement of Judgments Against Public Entities .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Statute of Limitations

30-345 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 345.17

§ 345.17 Effect of Court Being Closed

[1] Saturday, Sunday, Holidays, and "Court Days"

The time in which an act provided by law is to be done is computed by excluding the first day and including the last, unless the last day is a holiday, and then it is also excluded [Code Civ. Proc. § 12].

Code Civ. Proc. § 12a provides in part that if the last day for the performance of any act provided or required by law to be performed within a specified period of time is a holiday, then that period is extended to and including the next day which is not a holiday [Code Civ. Proc. § 12a]. Thus, Code Civ. Proc. § 12a may have the effect of extending a limitation period [see, e.g., Tran v. Fountain Valley Community Hospital (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1464, 1467, 60 Cal Rptr. 2d 91 (Section 12a applied when last day to file action would have been a Sunday; distinguishing cases in which courts declined to extend the time within which an action must be performed which involved situations where the last date on which to act was a specified number of days before a date certain)].

The term "holiday" includes Saturday [Code Civ. Proc. § 12a] and Sunday [Code Civ. Proc. § 12a, Gov. Code § 6700(a)]. It also includes holidays specified in Gov. Code § 6700, as adjusted for weekends pursuant to Gov. Code § 6701 [Code Civ. Proc. § 12a, Gov. Code § 6700(b), (d)-(e), (g)-(o)]:

- January 1st.
- February 12th (Lincoln Day).
- The third Monday in February (Presidents Day).
- The last Monday in May (Memorial Day).
- July 4th.

- The first Monday in September (Labor Day).
- September 9th (Admission Day).
- The second Monday in October (Columbus Day).
- November 11th (Veterans Day).
- December 25th.
- Good Friday from 12 noon to 3:00 p.m.
- Every day appointed by the President or Governor for a public fast, thanksgiving, or holiday.

Two holidays listed in Gov. Code § 6700 are excluded from the definition of holiday in Code Civ. Proc. § 12a. They are [Code Civ. Proc. § 12a; Gov. Code § 6700(c), (f)]:

- The third Monday in January (Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Day).
- March 31st (Cesar Chavez Day).

A "court day" may be defined as any day in which the court is not closed due to a judicial holiday [see Code Civ. Proc. § 133, 134]. While courts of justice may be held and business transacted on any day, [Code Civ. Proc. § 133], courts must be closed for the transaction of judicial business on judicial holidays [as defined, above], for all but the following purposes [Code Civ. Proc. § 134(a), (b)]:

- To give, upon request, instructions to a deliberating jury.
- To receive a verdict or discharge a jury.
- For arraignments in criminal actions.
- For Saturday Small Claims court sessions.
- For injunctions and writs of prohibition, which may be issued and served on any day.

The fact that a court is open on a judicial holiday cannot make that day a nonholiday for purposes of computing the time required for the conduct of any proceeding nor for the performance of any act [Code Civ. Proc. § 134(d)].

If a day appointed for the holding or sitting of a court, or to which it is adjourned, falls on a judicial holiday, it is deemed appointed for or adjourned to the next day [Code Civ. Proc. § 134(d)].

A court may designate one or more departments to remain open on a judicial holiday or at any hours of the day or night [Code Civ. Proc. § 134(c)], however these courts are still judicial holidays for purposes of computing the time required for the conduct of any proceeding or for the performance of any act [Code Civ. Proc. § 134(d)]; and any paper lodged with the court during that time must be filed by the court on the next non-judicial holiday if the document meets the filing criteria [Code Civ. Proc. § 134(d)].

Discussion of county holiday having the same effect as a judicial holiday, see 57 Op. Atty. Gen. Cal. 641 .

[2] Closure for Entire Day for Treated Same as Holiday

In addition, if any city, county, or state office, other than a branch office, is closed for the whole of a day, that day is considered a holiday as to the business of that office for computing time under Code Civ. Proc. § 12a [Code Civ. Proc. § 12b; see Code Civ. Proc. § 12a, discussed under § 345.17[1], above]. Although Code Civ. Proc. § 12b does not define "branch office," the ordinary definition would include outlying districts of a superior court. Thus, when local rule permitted the filing of a complaint in either the west district or the downtown central district, the downtown courthouse as well as the west district courthouse would have to have been closed before Section 12b could apply to give the plaintiff an additional day to file the complaint [Bennett v. Suncloud (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 91, 98-99, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 80 (factual issue sufficient to overcome demurrer was raised as to whether central district courthouse was closed due to Northridge earthquake)].

Chapter 345 LIMITATION OF ACTIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Statute of Limitations

30-345 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 345.18

§ 345.18 Determination of Applicable Statute

[1] Determined by Nature of Cause of Action

The statute of limitation to be applied in a case ordinarily is determined by the nature of the right sued upon, not by the by the form of the action or the relief demanded [Davies v. Krasna (1973) 14 Cal. 3d 502, 515, 121 Cal. Rptr. 705, 535 P.2d 1161 ; Day v. Greene (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 404, 411, 29 Cal. Rptr. 785, 380 P.2d 385 ; Quintilliani v. Mannerino (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 54, 66, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 359] . Similarly stated, what is significant for statute of limitation purposes is the primary interest invaded by the defendant's wrongful conduct [Barton v. New United Motor Manufacturing, Inc. (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 1200, 1207, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 328] .

Thus, in determining which statute of limitation applies in a given case, the court should look beyond the relief sought and should consider instead the basic cause of action giving rise to the plaintiff's right to relief [see Leeper v. Beltrami (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 195, 214, 1 Cal. Rptr. 12, 347 P.2d 12] . The court must identify the nature of the cause of action, that is, the gravamen of cause of action [People ex rel Dept. of Conservation v. Triplett (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 233, 244, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 610] .

Neither the caption, the prayer, nor the form of the complaint is conclusive in determining the nature of the liability from which the cause of action flows [Parker v. Walker (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 1173, 1189, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 908 ; Agair, Inc. v. Shaeffer (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 513, 516, 42 Cal. Rptr. 883] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Identifying Cause of Action to Apply Statute of Limitations. Shortly before two employees leave their employment, one of them, without authorization, writes checks on the employer's account payable to himself, his wife, and to the other employee. The employer commences an action against two former employees to recover money. The complaint alleges that the defendants had been employed under an oral contract and that the drawing of the checks violated their agreement. The two-year statute of limitations governing actions on unwritten obligations, Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1), would bar the action. The action would be timely, however, under the three-year statute of Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d), governing actions on the ground of fraud or mistake. Is the action timely brought? Yes. The facts show the violation of a confidential relationship by misappropriation of property, and not the breach of an oral employment contract. The fact that a breach of contract may have been involved is not decisive when the gravamen of the action is actual or constructive fraud or mistake [see Agair, Inc. v. Shaeffer (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 513, 516-519, 42 Cal. Rptr. 883] .

Various statutes specify periods of limitation for specific causes of action. Most of these are identified in Part V. of this chapter, Table of Limitation Periods [see § 345.150 et seq.]. If no other statute of limitations is provided, then the four-year period under Code Civ. Proc. § 343 applies. When the legislature intends that another or no limitations period applies, it must say so in clear and unmistakable language [County of Marin Assn. of Firefighters v. Marin County Employees' Retirement Assn. (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1638, 1651, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 736 (applying Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d) to the case before it)].

[2] When More Than One Statute Applies

[a] More Specific Statute Applies

When two statutes of limitation may apply to a given cause of action and one is general and one specific, the specific limitation period will apply [Collection Bureau of San Jose v. Rumsey (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 301, 310-311, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 792, 6 P.3d 713 ; Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Assn. v. City of Los Angeles (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 242, 248, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 742 ; Creditors Collection Service v. Castaldi (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1039, 1043-1044, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 511] .

Examples of this rule include:

- In action on accounts receivable for medical expenses that were technically open book accounts, against surviving spouse to recover expenses of deceased spouse's last illness, Prob. Code § 13554(c) (concerning enforcement of deceased spouse's debt against surviving spouse), which incorporated one-year limitation period of former Code Civ. Proc. § 353 (now Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2), applied as more specific than Fam. Code § 914 (concerning spouses' liability for each other's debts incurred for necessaries of life); one-year period of former section 353 also applied as more specific than four-year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 337, generally applicable to open book accounts [Collection Bureau of San Jose v. Rumsey (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 301, 309-311, 313, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 792, 6 P.3d 713] .

- In taxpayer suit challenging ordinance extending business tax to home occupations, 90-day limitation period of former Gov. Code § 65009(c)(2) (now Gov. Code § 65009(c)(1)(B)) applied rather than general three-year period of Code Civ. Proc. § 338(a) [Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Assn. v. City of Los Angeles (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 242, 248, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 742] .

- Three-year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d) applied to quasi-contract action based on mistake rather than two-year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 339 because section 338(d) applies more specifically to quasi-contract actions that seek recovery of money obtained by fraud or mistake, while section 339 applies generally to quasi-contract actions based on contract, obligation or liability not founded on a written instrument [Creditors Collection Service v. Castaldi (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1039, 1043-1044, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 511] .

- Home purchaser's negligent misrepresentation cause of action against seller's real estate brokerage and agent was governed by specific two-year limitation period of Civ. Code § 2079.4 rather than by general Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d) three-year period [Loken v. Century 21- Award Properties (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 263, 273, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 683 (when two inconsistent statutes cover same subject matter, special statute, whether or not enacted first, treated as exception to general statute and controls unless a contrary intent clearly appears)].

- In Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act (Civ. Code § 1792 et seq.) action, specific limitation period of Com. Code § 2725 applied over general limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 338 [Krieger v. Nick Alexander Imports, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 205, 213-215, 285 Cal. Rptr. 717] .

[b] Shorter Controls When Neither Is More Specific

In some circumstances, more than one statute of limitations may be applicable. For example, if two statutes of limitations appear to apply to an action, and neither is more specific than the other and both stand on equal footing, both will apply so that the statute with the shorter limitation period will be controlling [see, e.g., Anson v. County of Merced (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 1195, 1199, 1202, 249 Cal. Rptr. 457 (Gov. Code § 945.6 and Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 applied equally to medical malpractice action brought against public entity, with shorter period under Gov. Code § 945.6 controlling)].

[3] Actions Based on Statute

[a] Other Than for Penalty or Forfeiture

An action based on a liability created by statute, other than a penalty or forfeiture, must be commenced within three years [Code Civ. Proc. § 338(a)]. A cause of action is based on a liability created by statute, for purposes of applying this limitations period, only if the liability is embodied in a statutory provision and is of a type that did not exist at common law [West Shield Investigations & Security Consultants v. Superior Court (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 935, 952, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 612 ; Jackson v. Cedars-Sinai Medical Center (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1315, 1320, 269 Cal. Rptr. 877] . Thus, when a cause of action is based on a statute that did not create a new form of liability, but merely codified and refined existing law, the three year limitations period in Code Civ. Proc. § 338 for actions based on statutory liability does not apply [West Shield Investigations & Security Consultants v. Superior Court (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 935, 952, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 612] .

A declaratory judgment action or mandate petition to enforce a statutory liability must be brought within the same three-year period after accrual of the cause of action under Code Civ. Proc. § 338(a) as an action for damages or injunction on the same liability [Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Assn. v. City of La Habra (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 809, 821, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 369, 23 P.3d 601 (causes of action for declaration of invalidity of currently collected tax and for writ of mandate to prevent future collection of tax were no more barred by statute of limitations than would be action for refund of taxes paid)]. However, an action by taxpayer advocacy groups and individual taxpayers challenging a city's utility users tax, on the ground that under Proposition 62 (Gov. Code § 53720 et seq.) it required voter approval, was not barred by the statute of limitations, even though the action was brought more than three years after the city ordinance was enacted and plaintiffs were seeking declaratory and writ relief rather than a refund. Considering the plaintiffs' claim of continuous accrual of the cause of action, the Court held that here the three-year limitations period under Code Civ. Proc. § 338(a) applied, and no other statute or constitutional rule provided differently, and therefore the validity of a tax measure could be challenged within the statutory period after any collection, regardless of whether more than three years have passed since the measure was adopted [Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Assn. v. City of La Habra (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 809, 818-825, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 369, 23 P.3d 601] .

[b] For Penalty or Forfeiture

An action on a statute for a penalty or forfeiture, when the action is given to an individual or to an individual and the state, must be commenced within one year, unless the statute imposing it prescribes a different limitation [Code Civ. Proc. § 340(a)]. A penalty or forfeiture includes any law that compels a defendant to pay a plaintiff other than what is necessary to compensate the plaintiff for legal damage done by the defendant [see People ex rel. Dept. of Conservation v. Triplett (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 233, 252, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 610 (cancellation fee incurred by landowner who voluntarily opts to cancel Williamson Act contract is not a penalty for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 338(a))]. Thus, claims based on statutes which provide for mandatory recovery of damages additional to actual losses incurred, such as treble damages, are considered penal in nature, and thus are governed by the one-year limitation set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 340(a) [Menefee v. Ostawari (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 239, 243, 278 Cal. Rptr. 805 ; see Prudential Home Mortgage Co. v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1236, 1241-1242, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 566 (claims for statutory forfeiture under Civ. Code § 2941)].

A one-year limitation also applies to actions on statutes for a forfeiture or penalty to the people of the state [Code Civ. Proc. § 340(b)].

[c] For Both Actual Damages and Penalty

Some statutory schemes contain separate, independent statutory provisions for recovery of actual damages and treble damages; in that case, the three-year period of limitation of Code Civ. Proc. § 338(a) may apply to the claim for actual damages under one statute, while the one-year period of Code Civ. Proc. § 340(a) applies to the claim for treble damages under the other statute [G.H.I.I. v. MTS, Inc. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 256, 277-279, 195 Cal. Rptr. 211 (antitrust laws)].

When a statute vests the trial court with the discretionary option of awarding treble damages in addition to actual damages, a claim based on the statute is not governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 340(a). When, however, the allowance of treble damages is, by the terms of the statute, mandatory, the statute provides for a penalty, and an action based on it is subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 340(1) [Menefee v. Ostawari (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 239, 243, 278 Cal. Rptr. 805 (applying former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(1), now see Code Civ. Proc. § 340(a), to wrongful eviction action based on San Francisco ordinance providing for mandatory treble damage award); see Mitchell v. Leslie (1995) 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 419 (applying Code Civ. Proc. § 338(a) in action to recover excess rent charged in violation of local rent control Charter; treble damages not mandatory on finding a violation of the Charter, and restitution of excess rent is not a penalty)].

Chapter 345 LIMITATION OF ACTIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Statute of Limitations

30-345 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 345.19

§ 345.19 When Period of Limitation Begins to Run

[1] Period Begins When Cause of Action Accrues

A period of limitation does not begin to run until a cause of action accrues, and a cause of action invariably accrues when there is a remedy available [Heyer v. Flaig (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 223, 230, 74 Cal. Rptr. 225, 449 P.2d 161 (overruled on other grounds in Laird v. Blacker (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 606, 617, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 550, 828 P.2d 691); Glue-Fold, Inc. v. Slautterback Corp. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 1018, 1029, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 661 (limitation period does not begin to run until cause of action accrues, i.e., all essential elements are present and claim becomes legally actionable)].

Stated alternatively, in ordinary tort and contract actions, the statute of limitations begins to run on the occurrence of the last element essential to the cause of action [Neel v. Magana, Olney, Levy, Cathcart & Gelfand (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 176, 187, 98 Cal. Rptr. 837, 491 P.2d 421 ; Buttram v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 520, 531 n.4, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 438, 941 P.2d 71 ; see Norgart v. Upjohn Co. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 383, 389, 397, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 453, 981 P.2d 79 (when cause of action is complete with all its elements); see also Keru Investments, Inc. v. Cube Co. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1412, 1423, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 744 (cause of action accrues at moment party who owns it is entitled to bring or prosecute action thereon)].

Thus, for example, it has been said that an action accrues on the date of injury [Naftzger v. American Numismatic Society (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 421, 428, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 784 ; see San Francisco Unified School Dist. v. W. R. Grace & Co. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1318, 1326, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305 (no cause of action accrues until there is damage)].

In actions for an insurance company's refusal to defend, the cause of action accrues not with the filing of the action to be defended, but by the insurer's refusal to defend [Eaton Hydraulics Inc. v. Continental Casualty Co. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 966, 973-974, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 91] .

Accrual of the cause of action may, however, be delayed by the discovery rule, as discussed in [3], below.

[2] Appreciable Harm Required for Cause of Action to Accrue

In any event, the remedy must be a real legal remedy based on appreciable harm to the plaintiff, so that he or she is entitled to more than merely a symbolic judgment, such as an award of nominal damages [Budd v. Nixen (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 195, 200, 98 Cal. Rptr. 849, 491 P.2d 433 ; see Davies v. Krasna (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 502, 513, 121 Cal. Rptr. 705, 535 P.2d 1161 (questioned in Intermedics v. Ventritex, Inc. (N.D. Cal. 1993) 822 F. Supp. 634, 642, n.7 as to "appreciable harm" requirement in a misappropriation of trade secrets case due to subsequent enactment of Uniform Trade Secrets Act); Slavin v. Trout (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 1536, 1540, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 219 ; Miller v. Lakeside Village Condominium Assn. (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 1611, 1622-1623, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 796] . The mere breach of a duty that causes only nominal damages, speculative harm or the threat of future harm not yet realized does not normally suffice to create a cause of action [San Francisco Unified School Dist. v. W. R. Grace & Co. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1318, 1326, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305] . However, although a right to recover nominal damages will not trigger the running of the period of limitations, the infliction of appreciable and actual harm, however uncertain in amount, will commence the statutory period [Miller v. Lakeside Village Condominium Assn. (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 1611, 1622, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 796 (quoting from Davies v. Krasna (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 502, 514, 121 Cal. Rptr. 705, 535 P.2d 1161); see San Francisco Unified School Dist. v. W. R. Grace & Co. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1318, 1326, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305 (if last element of cause of action is damage, statute of limitations begins to run on occurrence of appreciable and actual harm, however uncertain in amount, that consists of more than nominal damages)]. When a wrongful act of another causes injury, as general rule the statute of limitations attaches immediately even if the injury is slight and not all resulting damages are sustained at that time [Bennett v. Shahhal (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 384, 391-392, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 272] . Because a single tort can be foundation for but one claim for damages, if the statute of limitations bars an action based on the harm immediately caused by the defendant's wrongdoing, a separate cause of action based on subsequent harm arising from that wrongdoing would normally amount to splitting cause of action [Bennett v. Shahhal (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 384, 391-392, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 272] .

In addition, a statute of limitation begins to run only on the accrual of a cause of action for coercive relief. Thus, when an action for noncoercive, declaratory relief is maintained before any actual breach, an action based on a breach is not barred by the lapse of time between the noncoercive action and the breach [see United Pacific/Reliance Ins. Co. v. DiDomenico (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 673, 676-677, 219 Cal. Rptr. 119] . Although the right to declaratory relief may exist before an obligation is breached, the same statute of limitations applicable to the action for coercive relief applies to the declaratory relief action. Thus, when an action for declaratory relief is brought after the accrual of a cause of action for coercive relief, a declaratory relief action will not be time barred if the statute of limitations has not expired to bring the action for coercive relief. On the other hand, if the statute of limitations to bring the action for coercive relief has expired, an action for declaratory relief will also be time barred [Engstrom v. Kallins (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 773, 784, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 842 (joined cause of action for declaratory relief timely filed when other causes of action alleged in complaint timely filed)].

[3] Delayed Accrual Under Discovery Rule

[a] Delayed Discovery

The discovery rule is an exception to general rule for determining when cause of action accrues [Norgart v. Upjohn Co. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 383, 397, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 453, 981 P.2d 79 ; see Fox v. Ethicon Endo-Surgery, Inc. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 797, 807, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 661, 110 P.3d 914 ; Samuels v. Mix (1999) 22 Cal. 4th 1, 9, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 273, 989 P.2d 701] . The discovery rule postpones accrual of a cause of action until the plaintiff discovers, or has reason to discover, the cause of action; until, that is, plaintiff at least suspects, or has reason to suspect, a factual basis for its elements [Norgart v. Upjohn Co. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 383, 389, 397, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 453, 981 P.2d 79 ; see also Samuels v. Mix (1999) 22 Cal. 4th 1, 9, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 273, 989 P.2d 701 (common law discovery rule, when applicable, indefinitely delays accrual of cause of action until plaintiff discovers or reasonably has cause to discover facts constituting it)]. Similarly stated, the discovery rule permits accrual of a cause of action to be delayed until a plaintiff knew or should have known of the wrongful conduct at issue [Naftzger v. American Numismatic Society (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 421, 428, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 784 ; see San Francisco Unified School Dist. v. W. R. Grace & Co. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1318, 1326, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305 (under discovery rule, cause of action does not accrue until plaintiff either discovers injury and its negligent cause or could have discovered injury and cause through exercise of reasonable diligence)].

In order to employ the discovery rule to delay accrual of a cause of action, a potential plaintiff who suspects that an injury has been wrongfully caused must conduct a reasonable investigation of all potential causes of that injury. If such an investigation would have disclosed a factual basis for a cause of action, the statute of limitations begins to run on that cause of action when the investigation would have brought such information to light. In order to adequately allege facts supporting a theory of delayed discovery, the plaintiff must plead that, despite diligent investigation of the circumstances of the injury, he or she could not have reasonably discovered facts supporting the cause of action within the applicable statute of limitations period [Fox v. Ethicon Endo-Surgery, Inc. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 797, 808-809, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 661, 110 P.3d 914] .

The discovery rule most frequently applies when it is difficult to for the plaintiff to observe or understand that there has been an injury or breach [Shively v. Bozanich (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1230, 1248, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 576, 80 P.3d 676 (discovery rule does not apply to postpone accrual of a cause of action based on the publication of a defamatory statement in a book until plaintiff learns of existence of the book)].

At least in the context of unfair competition claims based on a defendant's allegedly deceptive marketing materials and sales practices, which is simply a different legal theory for challenging fraudulent conduct and where the harm from the unfair conduct will not reasonably be discovered until a future date, the time to file a Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 cause of action starts to run only when a reasonable person would have discovered the factual basis for a claim [Broberg v. The Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 912, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 225].

Whether applicable limitations periods had expired in a lawsuit brought by investors against corporate officers and shareholders alleging breach of contract, fraud, and other causes of action, and specifically whether investors exercised reasonable diligence over the business project to merit application of the delayed discovery rule, was a question for the trier of fact [Cleveland v. Internet Specialties West, Inc. (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 24, 30-31, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 892 .

In ordinary tort and contract actions, the period of limitation begins to run on the occurrence of the last element essential to the cause of action. The plaintiff's ignorance of the cause of action or of the identity of the wrongdoer does not suspend the running of the period [Neel v. Magana, Olney, Levy, Cathcart & Gelfand (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 176, 187, 98 Cal. Rptr. 837, 491 P.2d 421] . However, the discovery rule may be applied to breaches of contract which can be, and are, committed in secret and, where the harm flowing from those breaches will not be reasonably discoverable by plaintiffs until a future time [Gryczman v. 4550 Pico Partners, Ltd. (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 1, 4, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 680] . This exception applies when 1) the injury or the act causing the injury, or both, have been difficult for the plaintiff to detect, 2) the defendant has been in a far superior position to comprehend the act and the injury, and 3) the defendant had reason to believe the plaintiff remained ignorant that he had been wronged. In these instances, the plaintiffs should not suffer where circumstances prevented them from knowing they have been harmed and defendants should not be allowed to knowingly profit from the injured party's ignorance [Gryczman v. 4550 Pico Partners, Ltd. (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 1, 5, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 680] .

Some causes of action, however, are intended to remedy harm that by its nature may not be immediately apparent. With respect to some of these causes of action, plaintiffs are protected by statutes that expressly delay the time when the cause of action accrues. For example, an action for fraud or mistake is not deemed to accrue until the plaintiff or plaintiff's agent actually discovers the facts constituting the fraud or mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d); see, e.g., Aaroe v. First American Title Ins. Co. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 124, 127-129, 271 Cal. Rptr. 434 (error to grant nonsuit on statute of limitations ground in action against title insurance company for conspiracy to defraud when court recognized that action was filed within three years of plaintiffs' alleged discovery of fraud); Lee v. Escrow Consultants, Inc. (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 915, 922, 259 Cal. Rptr. 117 (action for breach of contract involving a breach of fiduciary duties); see also County of Marin Assn. of Firefighters v. Marin County Employees' Retirement Assn. (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1638, 1652-1653, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 736 (Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d) delays accrual of cause of action and requires suit to be filed within three years of accrual; if this requirement is satisfied, subdivision (d) does not limit plaintiff's ability to recover for events that occurred more than three years before accrual or filing); for discussion, see Ch. 269, Fraud and Deceit].

Other particular causes of action do not accrue until the plaintiff discovers, or through the exercise of reasonable diligence should have discovered, the acts giving rise to the cause of action. These include the following:

- Misappropriation of a trade secret [Civ. Code § 3426.6; for discussion, see Ch. 565, Unfair Competition, § 565.100 et seq.].

- Injuries or death caused by asbestos poisoning [Code Civ. Proc. § 340.2].

- Accountant malpractice [Code Civ. Proc § 339(1); see generally International Engine Parts, Inc. v. Feddersen & Co. (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 606, 608-609, 620, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 150, 888 P.2d 1279 ; for discussion, see Ch. 462, Public Accountants].

Even in the absence of an express statutory provision, courts have applied the delayed discovery doctrine to certain causes of action when it would be manifestly unjust to deprive the plaintiff of a cause of action before the plaintiff is aware that he or she has been injured [see Leaf v. City of San Mateo (1980) 104 Cal App. 3d 398, 406, 408, 163 Cal. Rptr. 711] . For instance, a cause of action for a latent construction defect has been held not to accrue until a successive owner is aware of the damage and suffers a compensable economic injury [Siegel v. Anderson Homes (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 994, 1014, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 462] .

Two common themes run through the cases that apply the discovery rule of accrual [Mark K. v. Roman Catholic Archbishop (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 603, 610-611, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73 ; Parsons v. Tickner (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1513, 1526-1529, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810] :

- First, the rule is applied to types of actions in which it will generally be difficult for plaintiffs to immediately detect or comprehend the breach or the resulting injuries. In certain instances, the causes or injuries are actually hidden, e.g., the erasure of a video tape held in the defendant's custody, when a foreign object is left in the patient's body after surgery, or a subterranean trespass. In other instances, although the breach and damage are not physically hidden, they may be beyond what the plaintiff reasonably could be expected to comprehend.

- Second, in explaining the application of the rule, courts have relied on the nature of the relationship between the plaintiff and defendant. The delayed accrual rule is generally applicable to confidential or fiduciary relationships.

In a products liability action, for example, if the plaintiff is injured because of the defendant's wrongful act but is unaware of the injury or its cause at the time of the wrong because the injury was suffered without perceptible trauma, the statute of limitations does not begin to run until the plaintiff discovers or, by the exercise of reasonable diligence would have discovered, the cause of the injury [see Pereira v. Dow Chemical Co. (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 865, 873-874, 181 Cal. Rptr. 364 ; G.D. Searle & Co. v. Superior Court (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 22, 25-26, 122 Cal. Rptr. 218] . Delayed discovery of the negligent performance of a technical service contract also may be a reason for suspending the applicable limitations period [see Seelenfreund v. Terminix of Northern California (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 133, 136-139, 148 Cal. Rptr. 307 (negligent termite inspection by structural pest control operator)].

The doctrine of fraudulent concealment of a cause of action is considered a close cousin of the discovery rule [see Bernson v. Browning-Ferris Industries (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 926, 931, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440, 873 P.2d 613] . For discussion of that doctrine, see § 345.22[3].

In a defamation action, for example, the single-publication rule provides that, for any single edition of a newspaper or book, there is but a single potential action for a defamatory statement contained in the newspaper or book, no matter how many copies of the newspaper or the book were distributed, and the accrual of the cause of action in that case is not delayed by the discovery rule when the defamation occurred by means of a book, magazine, or newspaper that was distributed to the public [Shively v. Bozanich (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1230, 1248, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 576, 80 P.3d 676]. The single publication rule applies to all publications, including those that receive only limited circulation and, thus, are not generally distributed to the public [Hebrew Academy of San Francisco v. Goldman (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 883, 890, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 178, 173 P.3d 1004].

The discovery rule is not so broad as to delay accrual indefinitely until the plaintiff stumbles upon a claim. Rather, the plaintiff discovers the cause of action when he at least suspects a factual basis, as opposed to a legal theory, for its elements, even if he lacks knowledge thereof--when, simply put, he at least suspects that someone has done something wrong to him, "wrong" being used, not in any technical sense, but rather in accordance with its lay understanding. Thus, under the discovery rule, the plaintiff need not be aware of the specific facts or legal theory necessary to establish the claim. He or she need not even know the identity of the wrongdoer. Rather, the plaintiff need only be aware of his or her injury and have knowledge of sufficient facts to place him or her on actual or inquiry notice that the injury has a negligent cause [Lyles v. State of California (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 281, 286, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 696] .

[b] Distinguished From Tolling

The statutes and case law postponing the accrual of a cause of action until a specified event occurs, e.g., until discovery of the facts constituting fraud or mistake, are to be distinguished from the rules suspending or tolling the running of the statute of limitations notwithstanding the accrual of a cause of action [Cuadra v. Millan (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 855, 865 n.11, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 687, 952 P.2d 704 (noting that some case law loosely describe delayed accrual as tolling the statute of limitations; for discussion of suspension, or tolling, of the statute of limitations, see § 345.20)].

[c] Pleading Facts Showing Excuse for Late Discovery

The doctrine of late discovery requires a plaintiff to plead facts showing an excuse for late discovery of the facts underlying plaintiff's cause of action. Plaintiff must plead that, despite diligent investigation of the circumstances of the injury, he or she could not have reasonably discovered facts supporting the cause of action within the statute of limitations period [Fox v. Ethicon Endo-Surgery, Inc. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 797, 808-809, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 661, 110 P.3d 914] . Plaintiff must show that plaintiff was not at fault for failing to discover it or had no actual or presumptive knowledge of facts sufficient to put plaintiff on inquiry [Prudential Home Mortgage Co. v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1236, 1247, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 566] .

Plaintiff must specifically plead facts to show (1) the time and manner of discovery and (2) the inability to have made earlier discovery despite reasonable diligence. The burden is on the plaintiff to show diligence and conclusory allegations will not withstand demurrer [Fox v. Ethicon Endo-Surgery, Inc. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 797, 808, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 661, 110 P.3d 914 ; McKelvey v. Boeing North Am. Inc. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 151, 160].

[d] What Consititutes Discovery

The question of when there has been a belated discovery of the cause of action is ordinarily a question of fact. It is only when reasonable minds can draw but one conclusion from the evidence that it becomes a question of law [Johnson v.

Haberman & Kassoy (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 1468, 1476, 247 Cal. Rptr. 614 ; see Sylve v. Riley (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 23, 26, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 608 (whether reasonable diligence was exercised is generally a question of fact that precludes summary judgment); see also 65 Butterfield v. Chicago Title Ins. Co. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1047, 1054, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 40 (resolution of statute of limitations issue normally question of fact)].

If the plaintiff does know the fact of injury and the identity of the person responsible for it, his or her failure to discover some or most of the resulting damage until later generally will not suspend the running of the period of limitation [Howe v. Pioneer Mfg. Co. (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 330, 340-341, 68 Cal. Rptr. 617 ; see also 65 Butterfield v. Chicago Title Ins. Co. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1047, 1054, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 40 (as general matter, it is discovery of facts, not their legal significance, that starts statute; thus, irrelevant that plaintiff is ignorant of legal remedy or legal theories underlying plaintiff's cause of action)]. Moreover, a plaintiff is charged with "presumptive" knowledge so as to commence the running of the statute once he or she has notice or information of circumstances to put a reasonable person on inquiry, or has the opportunity to obtain knowledge from sources open to his or her investigation [see Wilshire Westwood Associates v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 732, 740, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 562 (and cases cited therein)]. The plaintiff need not be aware of the specific facts necessary to establish the claim. Once a person suspects or should suspect wrongdoing, he or she must go find the facts, and cannot wait for the facts to find him or her. A plaintiff has reason to suspect when plaintiff has notice or information that would cause a reasonable person to inquire [Norgart v. Upjohn Co. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 383, 397-398, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 453, 981 P.2d 79 (wrongful death based on negligence and strict liability of drug manufacturer); Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1103, 1111, 245 Cal. Rptr. 658, 751 P.2d 923 (product liability); Kline v. Turner (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 1369, 1374, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 699 (fraud); Clark v. Baxter Healthcare Corp. (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 1048, 1057, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 223 (products liability action against manufacturers and distributors of latex gloves); McKelvey v. Boeing North Am. Inc. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 151, 160 (contamination of land around defendants' facilities); San Francisco Unified School Dist. v. W.R. Grace Co. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1318, 1326-1327, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305 (asbestos in building)]. However, statutes may provide that certain types of information may not be sufficient to put a plaintiff on inquiry notice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 340.8(c)(2) (for specified toxic injury actions,mediareports regarding hazardous material or toxic substance contamination do not, in and of themselves, constitute sufficient facts to put a reasonable person on inquiry notice that the injury or death was caused or contributed to by the wrongful act of another)].

A plaintiff may discover, or have reason to discover, the cause of action even if plaintiff does not suspect, or have reason to suspect, the identity of the defendant. That is because the defendant's identity is not an element of any cause of action. Thus, failure to discover, or have reason to discover, the identity of the defendant does not postpone the accrual of a cause of action [Norgart v. Upjohn Co. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 383, 399, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 453, 981 P.2d 79] .

With respect to actions based on progressively developing or continuing wrongs when the nature, extent, or permanence of the harm is difficult to discover, the running of the period of limitation is suspended until the time of discovery of, or the opportunity to discover, the facts [see Bradler v. Craig (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 466, 471, 79 Cal. Rptr. 401] . Similarly, the running of the limitations period is generally suspended until the detriment of which plaintiff is aware constitutes "appreciable and actual harm," rather than a merely technical injury that gives a right to nominal damages only [see Davies v. Krasna (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 502, 513-514, 121 Cal. Rptr. 705, 535 P.2d 1161 (questioned as to "appreciable harm" requirement in misappropriation of trade secrets case due to California's subsequent enactment of Uniform Trade Secrets Act in Intermedics v. Ventritex, Inc. (N.D. Cal. 1993) 822 F. Supp. 634, 642 n.7)]. However, in an action for damage to real property, the statute commences to run when a reasonably prudent person becomes aware of facts indicating that an investigation should be conducted [see Mangini v. Aerojet-General Corp. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1125, 1150, 281 Cal. Rptr. 827] .

If a plaintiff's reasonable and diligent investigation discloses only one kind of wrongdoing when the injury was actually caused by tortious conduct of a wholly different sort, the discovery rule postpones accrual of the statute of limitations on the newly discovered claim. In such cases, the key issue is whether a reasonable investigation at that time would have revealed a factual basis for that particular cause of action [E-Fab, Inc. v. Accountants, Inc. Services (2007) 153

Cal. App. 4th 1308, 1322, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 9 .

[e] Complication After Original Personal Injury

Some courts have also allowed personal injury actions based on the delayed discovery of a serious complication arising from a tort that also resulted in an earlier, substantial injury, when the later complication was of a different type than the original, transitory injury. These courts reasoned that in such a case the plaintiff has separate causes of action for the independent injuries [see Zambrano v. Dorough (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 169, 173-174, 224 Cal. Rptr. 323 (initial injuries from misdiagnosed tubal pregnancy were substantial but plaintiff as able to sue for hysterectomy that became necessary two years later); Martinez-Ferrer v. Richardson-Merrell, Inc. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 316, 318-320, 325-327, 164 Cal. Rptr. 591 (initial side effects of drug were substantial but plaintiff could sue for cataracts contracted 12 years later)]. However, one court has stated that the cause of action may not be split unless the delay between the plaintiff's earlier and later injuries causes injustice [Miller v. Lakeside Village Condominium Assn. (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 1611, 1622-1623, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 796] .

[f] Personal Injury From Asbestos Exposure

A special rule applies for victims of asbestosis [see Code Civ. Proc. § 340.2]. Section 340.2, which applies only to actions for injury or illness arising from asbestos exposure, does not make the limitations period run from the date of the injury or illness or its discovery as similar statutes commonly provide. Code Civ. Proc. § 340.2(a) provides for the limitations period to run from the date the plaintiff suffered "disability" and discovered that the disability was caused by asbestos exposure [Hamilton v. Asbestos Corp. (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 1127, 1138, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 701, 998 P.2d 403] . Under Section 340.2(a), an action for injury or illness based on exposure to asbestos must be commenced within the later of the following:

- Within one year after the date the plaintiff first suffered disability.

- Within one year after the date the plaintiff either knew, or through the exercise of reasonable diligence should have known, that such disability was caused or contributed to by such exposure.

"Disability" as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 340.2(a) means the loss of time from work as a result of such exposure which precludes the employee's regular occupation [Code Civ. Proc. § 340.2(b)]. A comparable limitation period applies in wrongful death actions based on exposure to asbestos, with the date of death standing in place of the date of disability [see Code Civ. Proc. § 340.2(c)].

Because a plaintiff cannot discover that his or her disability was caused by asbestos exposure before he or she suffers that disability, the disability must in all cases either precede or accompany its discovery. Thus, Code Civ. Proc. § 340.2(a)(1), (2) may be read as providing in effect that an action for injury or illness arising from asbestos exposure must be filed within one year after the date the plaintiff first suffered disability and either knew or should have known the disability was caused or contributed to by that exposure [Hamilton v. Asbestos Corp. (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 1127, 1138-1142, 1146, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 701, 998 P.2d 403] .

In Hamilton, plaintiff had retired before suffering disability within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.2. Plaintiff brought an action seeking damages for asbestosis, for which plaintiff had been diagnosed 14 years earlier. More then two years after filing the first action plaintiff was diagnosed with a malignant peritoneal mesothelioma and within one month thereafter filed a second action to recover damages for that cancer. The court applied the rationale of Williamson v. Plant Insulation Co. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1406, 1419-1420, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 751 and Duty v. Abex Corp. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 742, 749-751, 263 Cal. Rptr. 13 , in holding that neither action was barred by Code Civ. Proc. § 340.2. The Court, however, noted that under the facts the Court did not need to reach the question of whether plaintiff had a separate primary right to be free from each of the two diseases resulting from plaintiff's asbestos exposure [Hamilton v. Asbestos Corp. (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 1127, 1138-1142, 1146, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 701, 998 P.2d 403 ; compare Hamilton v. Asbestos Corp., Puckett v. Johns-Manville Corp. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 1010, 1017, 215 Cal. Rptr. 726 ("disability" as used in section intended to refer to permanent termination of individual's capacity to perform tasks involved in his or her regular occupation rather than some temporary interference with that capacity), Nelson v. Flintkote Co. (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 727, 731, 735-736 (complaint timely when plaintiff who had been exposed to asbestos but continued working brought action while still employee) and Duty v. Abex Corp. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 742, 748-752, 263 Cal. Rptr. 13 , concept of "disability" does not encompass persons who retire before onset of what otherwise might be considered "disability," i.e., statute of limitation does not commence to run if retiree has not suffered "disability" as defined in statute before retirement), with Uram v. Abex Corp. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1425, 266 Cal. Rptr. 695 (plaintiff's action filed in 1987 held time barred when plaintiff had retired in 1959 with a disability retirement, in 1976 was advised by doctors that he had pulmonary fibrosis caused by asbestos exposure and in that year filed worker's compensation claim describing the injury for the purpose of the 1959 disability retirement as asbestos in the lungs; 1987 action time barred becauseplaintiffactually knew or believed in 1976 that disability caused or at least contributed to by asbestos exposure), see also Anderson v. Metalclad Insulation Corp. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 284, 294, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 331 (Uram distinguished; when worker's compensation claim for temporary and permanent disability does not identify any time lost from work, it is not reasonable to infer from fact of filing claim alone, that employee is disabled within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.2)].

A cause of action may accrue for different purposes on different dates, depending on the purpose for which the accrual determination is being sought [Buttram v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 520, 530, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 438, 941 P.2d 71] . For example, in determining whether a cause of action for damages arising from a latent and progressive disease such as asbestos-related pleural mesothelioma accrued prior to June 4, 1986, the effective date of Proposition 51, which limits a tortfeasor's liability for noneconomic damages [see Civ. Code § 1431.2(a) (liable only for proportion of damages equal to tortfeasor's own percentage of fault)] and does not apply retroactively [see In Evangelatos v. Superior Court (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1188, 1193-1194, 246 Cal. Rptr. 629, 753 P.2d 585] , the action will be deemed to accrue when the plaintiff was first diagnosed with the disease for which damages are being sought, or otherwise discovered his or her illness or injuries [Buttram v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 520, 539-540, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 438, 941 P.2d 71 (rejecting appreciable harm test applied by court of appeal)].

If the asbestos action is brought pursuant to the Jones Act (46 U.S.C.S. § 688), a three-year period of limitations applies [46 U.S.C.S. § 763a; see Wagner v. Apex Marine Ship Management Corp. (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 1444, 1448, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 533] . The period is subject to the discovery rule [Wagner v. Apex Marine Ship Management Corp. (2000) 83 Cal. App.4th 1444, 1446, 1453, 100 Cal. Rptr.2d 533 (applying rule; holding discovery of one asbestos-related disease does not trigger running of statute of limitations on all separate and distinct asbestos-related diseases caused by the same exposure to asbestos)]. For discussion of the Jones Act, and related forms, see Ch. 522, Ships and Shipping . For more detailed discussion and forms relating to the Jones Act, see Benedict on Admiralty (7th ed., Matthew Bender).

[4] Fiduciary Relationship

The statute of limitations for breach of a fiduciary duty is the four year period set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 343 [Stalberg v. Western Title Ins. Co. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1223, 1230, 282 Cal. Rptr. 43] .

As a general rule, the period of limitation does not begin to run on a cause of action by the beneficiary of a fiduciary relationship against the fiduciary as long as the fiduciary relationship is not repudiated [Estate of Clary (1928) 203 Cal. 335, 341, 264 P. 242] .

A total repudiation by a voluntary trustee of his or her trust starts the running of the period of limitation [Cortelyou v. Imperial Land Co. (1913) 166 Cal. 14, 20, 134 P. 981] , but a mere anticipatory breach does not [Brewer v. Simpson (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 567, 593, 2 Cal. Rptr. 609, 349 P.2d 289 ; National Auto. & Cas. Ins. Co. v. Pitchess (1973) 35 Cal.

App. 3d 62, 65, 110 Cal. Rptr. 649] . For the period of limitation to begin running, the trustee must, by some act or by declaration, positively and unequivocally repudiate the trust, and the fact of repudiation must be brought to the attention of the beneficiary [MacMullan v. Kelly (1912) 19 Cal. App. 700, 706, 127 P. 819 ; see Strasberg v. Odyssey Group, Inc. (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 906, 917, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474 (limitation period does not commence to run unless and until fact of repudiation brought to beneficiary's attention; rule discussed in context of Code Civ. Proc. § 338(c) three-year statute of limitations for conversion actions)].

No repudiation of an implied or a constructive trust (that is, an involuntary trust) is necessary to start the running of the period of limitation on an action by the beneficiary against the trustee. The cause of action in favor of the beneficiary accrues immediately on the law's creation of the trust [Norton v. Bassett (1908) 154 Cal. 411, 416, 97 P. 894] . This rule has been held inapplicable, however, when the beneficiary was ignorant of the facts giving rise to the cause of action due to fraudulent concealment [see Strasberg v. Odyssey Group, Inc. (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 906, 918-919, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474 (suit for conversion, unjust enrichment, injunctive relief and declaration of constructive trust; beneficiary ignorant of existence of property and of who held it and had no reason to believe trustee wrongfully withheld trust property or transferred it out of the trust to an unauthorized person)].

The statute of limitations on a breach of fiduciary duty based on concealment of facts begins to run when the plaintiff discovers or, in the exercise of reasonable diligence, could have discovered that facts had been concealed [Stalberg v. Western Title Ins. Co. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1223, 1230, 282 Cal. Rptr. 43 (citing Sanchez v. South Hoover Hospital (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 93, 101, 132 Cal. Rptr. 657, 553 P.2d 1129 , a medical malpractice action in which the Supreme Court characterized the doctor-patient relationship as "fiduciary in nature"); see Field v. Century 21 Klowden-Forness Realty (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 18, 20-21, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 784 (statute of limitations for actions involving a fiduciary obligation normally triggered on date plaintiff discovers, or should have discovered, the negligence); see also Strasberg v. Odyssey Group, Inc. (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 906, 916-919, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474] . While the fiduciary relationship continues, however, plaintiff's burden of discovery is reduced and he or she is entitled to rely on the statements and advice provided by the fiduciary [Eisenbaum v. Western Energy Resources, Inc. (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 314, 324, 267 Cal. Rptr. 5 ; see also Sanchez v. South Hoover Hospital (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 93, 102, 132 Cal. Rptr. 657, 553 P.2d 1129] . Thus, a plaintiff need not establish that due diligence was exercised to discover the facts within the limitations period unless a duty existed to inquire, and the circumstances were such that failure to inquire would be negligent. When a plaintiff is not under such a duty to inquire, the limitations period does not begin to run until plaintiff actually discovers the facts constituting the cause of action, even though the means for obtaining the information are available [Eisenbaum v. Western Energy Resources, Inc. (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 314, 325, 267 Cal. Rptr. 5 ; see also [3], above, and [5], below].

Chapter 345 LIMITATION OF ACTIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Statute of Limitations

30-345 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 345.20

§ 345.20 Suspension of Period of Limitation

[1] Effect of Suspension

A statute of limitations may be "tolled," that is, its operation temporarily suspended during the pendency of a particular condition specified by statute or judicial decision. Once the condition is lifted, the statute of limitations will continue to run [Grell v. Laci Le Beau Corp. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1300, 1305, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 358] .

When the running of a period of limitation is suspended for a given length of time, the effect is to add an equal period to the statutory period [Estate of Caravas (1952) 40 Cal. 2d 33, 42, 250 P.2d 593] .

Many situations in which the running of a period of limitation is suspended without regard to the specific underlying action are discussed in the following sections. Statutes that provide tolling provisions for specific actions, are discussed in the chapters in which those actions are discussed [see, e.g., Ch. 76, Attorney Professional Liability].

[2] Absence of Obligor From State

[a] General Rule

[i] Time of Absence Not Counted

If a person is out of the state when a cause of action accrues against him or her, the action may be commenced within the statutory period after his or her return to the state. If a person departs the state after a cause of action accrues against him or her, the time of his or her absence is not part of the time limited for the commencement of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 351].

[ii] Physical Absence Regardless of Amenability to Suit

Absence from the state within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 351 means physical absence and is to be taken literally, without regard to whether or not the defendant was amenable to suit in California during a period of absence. Thus, the five weeks when a California resident was visiting family and friends outside California, during the year after a premises liability personal-injury cause of action accrued against him or her, would not be counted as part of the one-year limitation period, even though he or she could have been sued in California, and served with process, whether physically present in the state or not [Dew v. Appleberry (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 630, 633-637, 153 Cal. Rptr. 219, 591 P.2d 509] .

[iii] Nonresidence of Obligor

Code Civ. Proc. § 351 states that an action may be commenced against a person "after his return to the state." Normally, "return" implies a coming back after first having been in the state and then leaving. However, that language in Code Civ. Proc. § 351 applies not only where the defendant was once a resident of the state, left it, and returned, but also where the defendant has never been in, or resided in, the state. "Return" in the context of Code Civ. Proc. § 351 is equivalent to "enter" if a nonresident defendant is involved; the word applies as well to persons coming from outside the state as to citizens of the state who leave and then return [see Cvecich v. Giardino (1940) 37 Cal. App. 2d 394, 399-400, 99 P.2d 573] . Thus, where a cause of action accrues against a person who, at the time of accrual, resides outside the state, the action may be commenced within the time otherwise limited, after his or her entry into the state, notwithstanding that never before that moment did he or she reside in or enter the state [see Code Civ. Proc. § 351].

[iv] Clandestine Versus Open Return to California

A person departing from the state after a cause of action has accrued against him or her may not have reckoned in his or her favor the time of any secret, clandestine, or fraudulently contrived visit to his or her former residence in the state, for the purpose of ascertaining the time of absence from the state. But, if the person returns openly, after the action would be barred but for the absence, and especially if the return is not only open and unconcealed but also, in the case of periodic visits, repeated and prolonged, the fact that the plaintiff has not learned of his or her presence in the state before his or her departure again is immaterial [Stewart v. Stewart (1907) 152 Cal. 162, 166, 92 P. 87] .

[v] Period of Absence Coinciding With Plaintiff's Disability to Bring Action

A period during which the defendant was absent from the state while the plaintiff was under a disability may not be added to the period within which the plaintiff must bring an action after the disability is removed [see Rafael v. Superior Court (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 457, 458-460, 81 Cal. Rptr. 748] . For forms alleging circumstances tolling the period of limitation on this basis, see §§ 345.70 and 345.71.

[vi] Nonresidence of Obligee

Absent a statute to the contrary, the provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 351, that the period of limitation on a cause of action does not begin to run while the person against whom the cause exists is a nonresident [see [i], below], or is absent from the state, must be given effect notwithstanding the nonresidence of the person in whose favor the cause of action exists. This rule covers cases where neither the plaintiff nor the defendant was a resident of California when the cause of action accrued, and it also covers cases where the cause of action accrued outside the state [but see Code Civ. Proc. § 361, discussed in § 345.13[3]]. The rationale is that Code Civ. Proc. § 351 makes no exception for nonresident plaintiffs; thus, for the courts to infer such an exception would be to legislate by judicial decree, as well as to discriminate unjustifiably against nonresident plaintiffs [Cvecich v. Giardino (1940) 37 Cal. App. 2d 394, 400-402, 99 P.2d 573 ; see Kohan v. Cohan (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 915, 923-924, 251 Cal. Rptr. 570 (upholding Cvecich interpretation as constitutional)].

[b] Motorists

Veh. Code § 17463 provides that the tolling provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 351 do not apply to a resident motorist who could be served in the state. This exemption from Code Civ. Proc. § 351 was extended to a nonresident motorist in Bigelow v. Smik (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 10, 12-13, 85 Cal. Rptr. 613 . The court held that the statutory period for commencing action against a nonresident is not suspended when the nonresident leaves the state because a nonresident motorist is always subject to service of process within the state pursuant to Veh. Code §§ 17451 and 17453 (use of state highways by nonresident motorist as equivalent to appointment of Director of Department of Motor Vehicles as agent for service of process).

On the other hand, it has been held that, in an action for infliction of emotional distress suffered as a result of defendant's waving a gun at plaintiff who was driving the car behind his on a highway, the four days defendant was absent from the state during the limitations period was excluded under Code Civ. Proc. § 351 and that the provisions of Veh. Code § 17463 did not apply because, although the incident may have arisen out of the use of defendant's vehicle, it did not arise out of its operation or ownership as those terms are used in Veh. Code §§ 17459, 17460 (acceptance by a California resident of a certificate of ownership or registration or driver's license constitutes consent that personal service in an action arising out of the operation or ownership of a motor vehicle in California may be made within or without state, regardless of subsequent change of residency) [Mounts v. Uyeda (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 111, 115-120, 277 Cal. Rptr. 730] .

[c] Absence of One of Joint Obligors

When two or more persons are jointly liable on an obligation, the fact that the period of limitation has expired as to one of them who resides in the state, does not affect the running of the period as to another of them who is absent from the state. As to the latter, the running of the period of limitation remains suspended, as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 351, while he or she is absent [see Arocena v. Sawyer (1923) 60 Cal. App. 581, 591-592, 213 P. 523 (partners, one a resident and one a nonresident, jointly liable; action against nonresident partner not barred even though period of limitation expired as to resident partner)].

[d] Corporation or Partnership as Obligor

Code Civ. Proc. § 351 does not apply in the case of a foreign corporation, in view of Corp. Code §§ 2110, 2111, 2114 (regarding service of summons on foreign corporations by delivery of summons to Secretary of State) [see Cardoso v. American Medical Systems, Inc. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 994, 997-999, 228 Cal. Rptr. 627 ; Loope v. Greyhound Lines, Inc. (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 611, 614, 250 P.2d 651 (decided under prior law)]; and it does not apply to a domestic corporation because it cannot depart from or be absent from the state [Loope v. Greyhound Lines, Inc. (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 611, 614, 250 P.2d 651] .

Similarly, when determining the applicability of Code Civ. Proc. § 351, a limited partnership that has designated an agent for service of process, and is therefore always amenable to suit in California, is considered an entity permanently within the state and the statute of limitations is not tolled when the general partner is absent from the state [Epstein v. Frank (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 111, 120, 177 Cal. Rptr. 831 ; see Cardoso v. American Medical Systems, Inc. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 994, 999, 228 Cal. Rptr. 627] .

[e] Effect of Commerce Clause

Insofar as Code Civ. Proc. § 351 is applied to a nonresident defendant sued on a contractual obligation incurred in interstate commerce, it has been held to violate the Commerce Clause of the U.S. Constitution (U.S. Const., art. I, § 8, cl. 3), because it forces the nonresident individual to choose between being present in California for several years or forfeiting the statute of limitations defense, remaining subject to suit in California in perpetuity [Abramson v. Brownstein (9th Cir. 1990) 897 F.2d 389, 391-393] .

Section 351 also impermissibly burdens interstate commerce with respect to residents who travel in the course of interstate commerce. This conclusion, however, is limited to travel for the facilitation of interstate commerce. The Commerce Clause does not bar the application of the tolling provisions of section 351 to interstate travel unrelated to the facilitation of interstate commerce (e.g., vacation trips) [Filet Menu, Inc. v. Cheng (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1276, 1282-1284, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 384] . Thus, Code Civ. Proc. § 351 is not facially invalid, and it continues to apply to toll periods of absences of resident defendants from the state during the applicable limitations period when no interstate commerce is involved [Filet Menu, Inc. v. Cheng (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1276, 1283-1284, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 384 ; Mounts v. Uyeda (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 111, 120-122, 277 Cal. Rptr. 730] .

The tolling provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 351 have been applied to nonresident defendants who have never entered the state and to resident defendants who are temporarily absent from the state. Whether section 351 applies to resident defendants who are permanently absent from California, i.e., those who move out of state, was considered by the court in Heritage Marketing & Ins. Services, Inc. v. Chrustawka (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 754, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 126 , which concluded that section 351 penalizes people who move out of state by imposing a longer statute of limitations on them than on those who remain in the state, and that the commerce clause protects persons from such restraints on their movements across state lines [Heritage Marketing & Ins. Services, Inc. v. Chrustawka (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 754, 763, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 126] .

[f] Legal Malpractice Claims

Although the tolling provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.6 are exclusive with regard to legal malpractice claims, the broad terms of the fourth tolling provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.6(a)--the provision applicable to legal and physical disabilities--encompass the circumstances described in the general tolling provisions set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 351, which generally provides that if, when the cause of action accrues against a person, he or she is out of the state, the action may be commenced within the applicable limitations period after his or her return to the state [Jocer Enterprises, Inc. v. Price (2010) 183 Cal. App. 4th 559, 569, 107 Cal. Rptr. 3d 539] .

[3] Arbitration

If contractual disputes are submitted to arbitration or some other form of reference, the running of the applicable period of limitation is usually suspended [A. Teichert & Son, Inc. v. State of Cal. (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 736, 746-747, 48 Cal. Rptr. 225 (overruled on other grounds in E.H. Morrill Co. v. State of California (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 787, 792, 56 Cal. Rptr. 479, 423 P.2d 551)].

A court may not deny a petition to compel arbitration on the ground the statute of limitations has run on the claims the parties agreed to arbitrate [Wagner Construction Co. v. Pacific Mechanical Corp. (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 19, 25, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434, 157 P.3d 1029] .

Cal. Code of Civ. Proc. § 1281.12 provides that if an arbitration agreement requires that arbitration of a controversy be demanded or initiated by a party to the arbitration agreement within a period of time, the commencement of a civil action by that party based upon that controversy, within that period of time, shall toll the applicable time limitations contained in the arbitration agreement with respect to that controversy, from the date the civil action is commenced until 30 days after a final determination by the court that the party is required to arbitrate the controversy, or 30 days after the final termination of the civil action that was commenced and initiated the tolling, whichever date occurs first. The end of the tolling period simply means that the contractual limitations clock begins to run again, not that the limitations period ended [Pearson Dental Supplies, Inc. v. Superior Court (2010) 48 Cal. 4th 665, 673-675, 108 Cal. Rptr. 3d 171, 229 P.3d 83] .

[4] Class Action Pending Certification

The filing of a class action may toll the running of the applicable statute of limitations for all members of the putative class until class certification is denied if the class action [see Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1103,

1121-1125, 245 Cal. Rptr. 658, 751 P.2d 923 ; Becker v. McMillin Construction Co. (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1493, 1498-1502, 277 Cal. Rptr. 491 ; see also San Francisco Unified School Dist. v. W. R. Grace & Co. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1318, 1340, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305 (plaintiff, owner of building containing asbestos, who sued asbestos manufacturer alleging causes of action including strict liability and negligence and who became member of mandatory federal class action and thereafter opted out of class action was entitled to have limitations period tolled during time when plaintiff was member of the class; Jolly and Becker cases analyzed)]:

- Protects the efficiency and economy of litigation as promoted by the class action device, and

- It sufficiently notifies the defendant of the substantive claims of the members of the class and the number and generic identities of the potential plaintiffs who may participate in the judgment.

For discussion of class actions, see Ch. 120, Class Actions .

[5] Commencing Action

[a] Period Suspended While Action Is Pending

An action is commenced, within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 312 et seq., when the complaint is filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 350]. Plaintiff's act of filing the complaint fixes the date on which the action is commenced, thus allowing the defendant and the court to determine whether the action is commenced within the period prescribed by the applicable statute of limitations, and hence is timely [Cuadra v. Millan (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 855, 864, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 687, 952 P.2d 704] .

A complaint is deemed filed when it is presented to the clerk for filing during business hours in the form required by state law [Carlson v. Department of Fish & Game (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1268, 1270, 1272-1276, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 601] .

The commencement of an action suspends the running of a period of limitation as to matters arising out of the transaction set forth in the complaint. This suspension continues while the action is pending; that is, until the final determination of the action on appeal, if an appeal is taken. Following a final judgment of affirmance on appeal, an action is no longer pending. The effect of the suspension because of pendency of an action is to add the period of pendency to the period of limitation. Thus, when the action is no longer pending, the period of limitation begins to run again, from the point at which it had been suspended. Another action, if the plaintiff is otherwise entitled to bring one, would have to be commenced within the time that is left, or within any extension under an applicable statute such as Code Civ. Proc. § 355, relating to bringing new actions after reversal on appeal [see Record Machine & Tool Co. v. Pageman Holding Corp. (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 164, 175-176, 342 P.2d 402] .

As to cross-actions against codefendants or new parties, the statute of limitations is not tolled by the commencement of a plaintiff's action. The principle underlying the rule that a statute of limitations is suspended by the filing of the original complaint is that the plaintiff has thereby waived the claim and permitted the defendant to make all proper defenses to the cause of action pleaded. But, where the controversy is limited to cross-defendants, none of whom has done any act in the nature of a waiver, the reason for the rule does not exist [Boyer v. Jensen, 129 Cal. App. 4th 62, 70, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 124] .

[b] Effect of Dismissal Without Prejudice

However, although the filing of a complaint may have tolled the statute of limitations, when an action is dismissed without prejudice, either by voluntary dismissal without prejudice, or by involuntary dismissal for delay in prosecution [see Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(4) and (g)], the limitation period is restored as if no action had been brought [Wood v.

Elling Corp. (1977) 20 Cal. 3d. 353, 359, 142 Cal. Rptr. 696, 572 P.2d 755 ; Thomas v. Gilliland (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 427, 430-433, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 520 ; Troche v. Daley (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 403, 412, 266 Cal. Rptr. 34] .

For example, in an action contesting the right to real property, the general rule is that the five-year statutory period for adverse possession can be tolled by filing an action within that period. Such an action has the effect of interrupting the continuous-possession element of adverse possession and the statute remains tolled during the pendency of the litigation. However, if the action is unsuccessful, leading to no change of possession, the statute of limitations is not arrested whether the action is dismissed for want of prosecution, prosecuted to judgment, compromised, or voluntarily abandoned [California Maryland Funding, Inc. v. Lowe (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1798, 1803-1804, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 784 (institution of defendant's action in 1981, which was dismissed for failure to prosecute in 1988, did not result in any change of possession and thus did not toll statute of limitations; defendant established continuous-possession element of adverse possession as well as other elements)]. For discussion of dismissals without prejudice and restoration of pertinent statutes of limitations, see Ch. 212, Dismissal .

[c] In Court Without Jurisdiction; Transfer

A person who has seasonably begun an action is entitled to have it tried on the merits, notwithstanding a choice of the wrong court. If a plaintiff does not sleep on his or her rights, but merely mistakes the jurisdiction of the court to which he or she applies for relief, no constitutional right of the defendant is impaired by transferring the action to a court having jurisdiction [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 396(b)]; and if the action was begun within the period of limitation, such a transfer does not violate any vested right of the defendant [see Morgan v. Somervell (1940) 40 Cal. App. 2d 398, 400, 104 P.2d 866 ; see also Friends of Mammoth v. Board of Supervisors (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 247, 269, 104 Cal. Rptr. 761, 502 P.2d 1049] .

[d] Defect in Designating Defendant

An error in designating or describing a defendant that amounts merely to a misnomer or a defective description or characterization, as opposed to naming or indicating the wrong person altogether, is not significant with respect to the operation of a statute of limitations. The error can be corrected by amendment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(a)(1)] after the period of limitation has otherwise expired. An example of a merely defective description is the characterization of a corporate defendant as a partnership, such as "Coca Cola Bottling Company of Sacramento, a partnership" instead of "Coca Cola Bottling Company of Sacramento, Ltd., a corporation" [see Mayberry v. Coca Cola Bottling Co. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 350, 352-353, 53 Cal. Rptr. 317] . An example of naming the wrong defendant altogether, which is not curable by amendment after the period of limitation has expired as to the person actually intended, is the designation of the "Los Angeles County Flood Control District" as defendant if the plaintiff intended to sue the "County of Los Angeles" [see Chitwood v. County of Los Angeles (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 522, 525, 92 Cal. Rptr. 441] .

[e] Against Fictitiously-Named Defendant

[i] Avoidance of Statute of Limitations if Plaintiff Ignorant of Defendant's Identity

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 474, if a plaintiff is ignorant of a defendant's true name, the plaintiff has the right to sue that defendant by a fictitious name. The long-recognized purpose of this provision is to enable the plaintiff to bring suit before it is barred by a statute of limitations. If a complaint sets forth, or attempts to set forth, a cause of action against a defendant designated by a fictitious name, and the true name is later discovered and substituted by amendment, the defendant is considered a party to the action from its commencement so that the period of limitation stops running as of the date of the original pleading [Austin v. Massachusetts Bonding & Ins. Co. (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 596, 599, 600, 602, 15 Cal. Rptr. 817, 364 P.2d 681 ; see also Smeltzley v. Nicholson Mfg. Co. (1977) 18 Cal. 3d 932, 934, 939, 939 n.1, 136 Cal. Rptr. 269, 559 P.2d 624] .

If a defendant is designated by a fictitious name in a complaint but no attempt is made to state any cause of action against that defendant, the period of limitation continues to run as to him or her, even if he or she files an answer [Williams v. Goodman (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 856, 861-862, 29 Cal. Rptr. 877] .

For further discussion of the relation back of the statute of limitation with respect to fictitiously named defendants, see § 345.25[4], below. For discussion of the prerequisites for a proper fictitious name allegation and forms of such allegations, see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used, § 20.12 and § 20.30 et seq.

[ii] Effect of Additional Allegations and Causes of Action

If an amended pleading both substitutes a defendant's real name for a fictitious name and adds allegations and causes of action, the amended pleading is deemed filed as of the date of the original complaint, provided that recovery is sought in both pleadings on the same general set of facts. An amended pleading relates back if it seeks to bring in a defendant who is in the chain of causation of the original pleading, even if the particular facts concerning the new defendant were not set forth in the original pleading [Olson v. Volkswagen of America (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 1437, 1442-1443, 247 Cal. Rptr. 719 (amendment relates back if original complaint is against driver of motor vehicle and amended complaint seeks to bring in other defendants on warranty and products liability theories)].

For further discussion of the relation back doctrine, see § 345.25, below.

[f] Defects in Form of Complaint

If a complaint filed within the applicable period of limitation exhibits a defect or an irregularity that is curable by amendment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(a)(1)], such as the omission of the plaintiff's or his attorney's signature, the running of the period of limitation is suspended by the filing of the complaint, despite the defect or irregularity [see Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Leale (1910) 14 Cal. App. 307, 308-309, 111 P. 759] .

[g] Defect in Designating Plaintiff

A technical defect in the complaint, such as the designation of the plaintiff's capacity as a private individual rather than a representative, is curable by an amendment which will relate back to the filing of the original complaint even if the period of limitation has otherwise expired before the filing of the amendment. If the defect is attacked on demurrer, then the order sustaining the demurrer should grant leave to amend; and if the defect is attacked on a motion for judgment on the pleadings, then judgment should be rendered without prejudice to re-filing a complaint [Olsen v. Lockheed Aircraft Corp. (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 737, 742, 47 Cal. Rptr. 242 ; for discussion of the effect of amending a pleading, see § 345.25].

[h] Effect on Cross Complaint

Statutes of limitation, although commonly phrased in terms restricting only the commencement of actions, also apply to causes of action asserted by a defendant in a cross complaint [Strong v. Strong (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 540, 544, 140 P.2d 386 ; Wells Fargo Bank v. Kincaid (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 120, 124, 66 Cal. Rptr. 832 , cert. denied, 393 U.S. 915] .

If, when a complaint is filed, an action that may be raised on a cross complaint is not already time barred, the filing of the complaint suspends the running of the statute of limitations as to the action that may be raised as a cross complaint [see Union Sugar Co. v. Hollister Estate Co. (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 740, 746, 47 P.2d 273 ; Sidney v. Superior Court (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 710, 715-716, 717, 244 Cal. Rptr. 31 (allowing amendment of cross complaint for property damage to add related cause of action for personal injury); Trindade v. Superior Court (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 857, 859-860, 106 Cal. Rptr. 48 ; see also Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v. Fales (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 712, 720, 106 Cal. Rptr. 21, 505 P.2d 213 (dissent, collecting cases)]. The rationale is that the plaintiff, by filing the complaint, has waived the right to assert the statute of limitation in defense [Trindade v. Superior Court (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 857, 859-860, 106 Cal. Rptr. 48] . The filing of the plaintiff's complaint does not suspend the running of the statute of limitations as to any claims the defendant may have against anyone other than the plaintiff because such cross defendants cannot be said to have done any act in the nature of a waiver [Trindade v. Superior Court (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 857, 859-860, 106 Cal. Rptr. 48] .

An action that is already barred when the complaint is filed may not be raised by cross complaint [see Strong v. Strong (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 540, 544-545, 140 P.2d 386 ; but see Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v. Fales (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 712, 717-719, 106 Cal. Rptr. 21, 505 P.2d 213 (insurer subrogated to rights of its insured against uninsured motorist cannot rely on statute of limitations to avoid cross complaint by uninsured motorist sued by insurer under Ins. Code § 11580.2(g))].

The filing of a complaint does not toll the statute of limitations on a cause of action, which, although it could be brought on a cross complaint, is not, but is brought as a subsequent complaint [Luna Records Corp., Inc. v. Alvarado (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1023 1027, 283 Cal. Rptr. 865 (defendant had not responded in any way to complaint in the original action, but filed complaint in different county after original complaint was dismissed on court's own motion for lack of prosecution)].

[6] Condition Precedent on Obligation

[a] Period of Limitation Commences on Occurrence of Condition

The period of limitation for an action based on a liability that does not arise until the occurrence of a condition precedent commences to run only when that condition occurs [see Rose v. Foord (1892) 96 Cal. 152, 154, 30 P. 1114] . As an example, the liability of a seller of property, who has been paid in advance to refund the purchase money in lieu of delivering the property, does not arise until the buyer demands a refund; and the period of limitation for an action to recover the purchase money does not begin to run until the demand is made.

[b] Implicitly Required to Be Performed in Reasonable Time

If a person's right to bring an action depends on his or her performing an act as a condition precedent, and he or she is under no disability or restraint to perform it, he or she cannot suspend indefinitely the running of the period of limitation by delaying performance of the act. If the time within which the act is to be performed is indefinite or not specified, then a reasonable time will be allowed after which the period will begin to run. Unless there are peculiar circumstances, a reasonable time will generally be held to be the applicable period of limitation [Bass v. Hueter (1928) 205 Cal. 284, 287, 270 P. 958] .

[c] Effect of Filing Complaint Before Performance of Condition

If the right to maintain an action against a person depends on the performance of a condition precedent, and a complaint is filed before performance of the condition, it is not possible for the complaint to state a cause of action against that person. That person's name cannot be substituted in place of a defendant's fictitious name after the period of limitation against that person has expired. The only way in which the cause of action against that person can be preserved is by amendment of the complaint within the period of limitation, after the condition precedent has been performed, to allege a cause of action against him or her. This may be done by the use of a fictitious name if the person's name is unknown, and then the true name can be substituted by amendment thereafter either before or after the period of limitation has otherwise expired. The crucial step is to amend the complaint seasonably so that it states a cause of action against the person in question [see Wilson v. People ex rel. Dept. of Public Works (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 665, 667-669, 76 Cal. Rptr. 906] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Failure to Timely Amend Complaint After Performance of Condition Precedent. Plaintiff files a personal injury complaint against two named and six fictitiously named defendants. The plaintiff then applies to the State of California for leave to present a late claim for damages against the state, and the application is denied. Subsequently, plaintiff obtains a court order under Gov. Code § 946.6 allowing her to sue the state without presentation of a written claim. Under Section 946.6(f), the plaintiff must file the action related to the claim against the state within 30 days of the issuance of the order. Forty seven days after issuance of the order, plaintiff serves a copy of her complaint on the State of California as Doe I. May the plaintiff avoid the 30-day limitation period by serving the state with the complaint as one of the original fictitiously named defendants? No.

The plaintiff could have filed a separate action against the state or amended the complaint to name the state as a defendant, or simply served the state with a copy of the complaint within the 30-day period, but did not. Plaintiff argued that she could serve the state as one of the Doe defendants, and that service would relate back to the time of filing the original complaint. The court rejected this argument, pointing out that the original complaint was filed before the performance of a condition precedent to filing a complaint against the state and, not alleging the performance of that condition, stated no cause of action against the state as a Doe defendant. A subsequent pleading that sets out the subsequent performance of a condition precedent to suit cannot relate back to the time of filing the original complaint and thereby toll the running of the period of limitation, because the rule of relation back does not operate to assign the performance of a condition precedent to a date prior to its actual occurrence. Amending the original complaint after the expiration of the limitation period could not relate back to a cause of action against the state which at the time of filing did not exist. Having failed to proceed in the 30-day period when she was excused from having to plead and prove the filing of a claim, plaintiff's action against the state was properly dismissed [Wilson v. People ex rel. Dept. of Public Works (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 665, 667-669, 76 Cal. Rptr. 906] .

For discussion of relation-back of amended pleadings generally, see § 345.25.

[d] Rejection of Claim as Condition

When the rejection of a claim is a prerequisite to suit, the claim does not ripen into a cause of action until rejection, and the period of limitation does not begin to run until that event [Spencer v. Los Angeles (1919) 180 Cal. 103, 119, 179 P. 163 ; Chas. L. Harney, Inc. v. State of California (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 77, 102, 31 Cal. Rptr. 524] .

With respect to actions against public entities subject to the Tort Claims Act, however, this rule appears to have been abrogated by Gov. Code § 946.6, the statute that provides for judicial relief from the bar to a suit because of nonpresentation of a claim [see Savage v. State of California (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 793, 796-797, 84 Cal. Rptr. 650] .

When a person has a claim against a public entity that he or she submitted for acceptance or rejection, as required by law as a condition precedent to maintaining an action, and he or she delayed beginning an action on the claim because he or she reasonably relied on the public entity's course of conduct in handling the claim and believed that the public entity was reexamining the claim, the public entity may be estopped to assert the bar of the applicable statute of limitation in defense [see Potstada v. City of Oakland (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 1022, 1028-1029, 106 Cal. Rptr. 705 (affirming judgment for plaintiff and trial court's ruling that defendant city estopped to plead bar of statute)]. The issue of whether a public agency may be estopped to assert the statute of limitation against a plaintiff because of the agency's advice to the claimant concerning his or her substantive rights against the agency depends on whether the public agency acted in an unconscionable manner or otherwise set out to, or did, take unfair advantage of the plaintiff [Driscoll v. City of Los Angeles (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 297, 306, 61 Cal. Rptr. 661, 431 P.2d 245] .

On the effect of minority when a required claim is not filed, see [11][a][iv], below.

[7] Court's Assumption of Jurisdiction Over Practice of Party's Attorney

If a person entitled to bring an action or other proceeding, which has not been filed or otherwise instituted, is represented by an attorney over whose practice a California court has assumed jurisdiction pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6180 (cessation of practice) or 6190 (incapacity to practice), and an application for the court to assume jurisdiction was filed prior to the expiration of the applicable statute of limitation or claim statute, that person has six months from the date of entry of the order assuming jurisdiction within which to file or otherwise institute the matter if the applicable statute of limitation otherwise would have expired [Code Civ. Proc. § 353.1].

[8] Death of Defendant

[a] One-Year Period Replaces Otherwise Applicable Period

Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2, which sets out the limitation period generally applicable when a prospective defendant has died, essentially replaces, rather than suspends, the otherwise applicable limitation period. Subject to the exceptions discussed under [c], below [see Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2(b)], Section 366.2 provides that if a person against whom an action may be brought on a liability of the person, whether arising in contract, tort, or otherwise, whether or not accrued, dies before the expiration of the applicable limitation period and if the cause of action survives, an action may be commenced within one year after the date of death, and the limitation period that would have been applicable does not apply [Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2(a), (b)]. Therefore, if the applicable statute of limitations has not run at the time of death, the one-year limitation period established by Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2(a) applies, whether it extends or shortens the period of limitation that would have otherwise applied [see Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comment to 1992 addition of Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2].

An action need not be filed against the personal representative to satisfy Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2. An action is timely if a plaintiff, unaware of the decedent's death, files an action naming the decedent as defendant within one year of the decedent's death. The plaintiff may later amend the complaint to name the personal representative, and if the amended complaint seeks recovery on the same general facts as the original complaint and seeks recovery for the same injuries, the amended complaint will relate back and be deemed filed as of the date of the original complaint [Burgos v. Tamulonis (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 757, 762-763, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 728 (construing language in former Code Civ. Proc. § 353 which is comparable to Code Civ. Proc. Section 366.2)]. As in any other action against a decedent, the claim requirement applies, and it may be necessary to petition for leave to file a late claim in the decedent's estate [see Burgos v. Tamulonis (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 757, 763 n.7, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 728] .

Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2 has been held to bar a cross complaint against a decedent's estate and its personal representatives for equitable indemnity filed more than one year after decedent's death, despite the ordinary rule that an indemnity action does not accrue for statute of limitation purposes until a tort defendant pays a judgment or settlement for which that defendant is entitled to indemnity, when the one year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2(a) was not tolled as provided for in Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2(b) and the cross complaint's allegations failed to show that decedent had any insurance that would cover any of the claims at issue [Bradley v. Breen (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 798, 800, 804-806, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726] . A different statute of limitations applies to claims covered by a decedent's liability insurance [see Prob. Code § 551; for discussion, see [c][ii], below]. The one-year period of Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2 also applies to an action against the surviving spouse for recovery of hospital and medical expenses of the deceased spouse's last illness, whether the action is based on Prob. Code § 13554(c), concerning enforcement of a deceased spouse's debts against a surviving spouse, or on Fam. Code § 914, concerning a married person's liability for his or her spouse's debts incurred for necessaries of life [see Collection Bureau of San Jose v. Rumsey (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 301, 304-305, 307-313, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 792, 6 P.3d 713 (construing statutes when section 13554 referred to former Code Civ. Proc. § 353, the predecessor statute to section 366.2)].

The one-year limitation period set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2(a) applies to actions brought on liabilities of persons dying on or after January 1, 1993 [Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2(c)]. A comparable one-year period applies to actions brought on liabilities of persons dying on or after January 1, 1991, through December 31, 1992 [compare Code Civ.

Proc. § 366.2(a) with former Code Civ. Proc. § 353(b)]. Different limitation periods apply depending on whether the decedent died between July 1, 1988, and January 1, 1991, or before July 1, 1988 [see former Code Civ. Proc. § 353(b)-(d)].

In an action arising from a surrogacy contract between a decedent and his former wife and a surrogate mother, it was undisputed that the complaint was filed more than one year after the decedent's death and that none of the enumerated exceptions in Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2 applied. In accordance with the plain language of Section 366.2, the one-year limitations period was not tolled during the minority of the children. Moreover, the one-year limitations period in Section 366.2 applied to an action on the liability of a deceased person, without regard to the location of the decedent's personal representative or estate [Farb v. Superior Court (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 678, 684, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 586] .

[b] Tolling of One-Year Period

Subject to the matters excepted from Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2 [see [c], below], the one-year limitations period of Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2(a) is not tolled or extended for any reason [Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2(b)].

The period of limitation may, however, be subject to the doctrine of equitable estoppel [see Battuello v. Battuello (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 842, 847-848, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548 ; for discussion, see § 345.22],

[c] Exceptions

[i] Claims Against Decedent's Estate or Revocable Trust

Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2 does not apply to the following actions and proceedings:

- Claims and actions on claims against a decedent's estate [Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2(b)(2); see Prob. Code §§ 9352, 9353 (tolling by filing claim, acceptance of claim, and time for bring action after rejection)].

- Claims and actions on claims against a revocable trust of a deceased settlor [Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2(b)(3); see Prob. Code §§ 19253, 19255 (tolling by filing claim, acceptance of claim, and time for bring action after rejection)].

These exceptions allow the claims procedure to operate by tolling the statute of limitations when a claim is filed until it is allowed, approved, or rejected [Prob. Code §§ 9352(a) (estates), 19253(b) (trusts)], further tolling it until collection if the claim is allowed or approved [Prob. Code §§ 9352(b) (estates), 19253(c) (trusts)], and providing different periods of limitation for bringing the action if the claim is denied [Prob. Code §§ 9353 (estates), 19255(a) (trusts)]. These provisions allow tolling of the absolute one-year period under limited circumstances in order to facilitate the orderly administration of the decedent's estate [see Levine v. Levine (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 1256, 1263, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 255] .

For discussion of claims procedure and actions based on rejected claims in decedents' estates and revocable trusts, including time limitations, and forms to bring actions on rejected claims, see Ch. 454, Probate: Claims Against the Estate , and Ch. 560, Trusts: Express, Public, Charitable, and Totten Trusts , respectively.

[ii] Action to Establish Decedent's Insured Liability

Actions under Prob. Code § 550 et seq. to establish a decedent's liability for which he or she was protected by liability insurance may be brought within one year of the end of the otherwise applicable limitation period, if it had not expired at the time of decedent's death, as an express exception to Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2 [Prob. Code § 551 (actions against insurance company to establish decedent's insured liability)].

These are actions to recover available insurance proceeds, rather than to pursue the estate, although the personal representative may be joined if the plaintiff complies with claim requirements [see Prob. Code §§ 550, 554]. For discussion of these actions, see Ch. 454, Probate: Claims Against the Estate .

[iii] Action to Enforce Lien Against Decedent's Property

Prob. Code § 9391 authorizes an action to enforce a mortgage or other lien on property in the decedent's estate, including but not limited to a judgment lien, when the plaintiff has waived all recourse against other property in the estate. The limitations provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2 (discussed under § 345.20[8], above) do not apply in such an action [Prob. Code § 9391]. For further discussion of claims brought under Prob. Code § 9391, see Ch. 454, Probate: Claims Against the Estate .

[iv] Pending Determination of Whether Particular Motion, Petition, or Action Would Violate No Contest Clause

Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2 does not apply to motions, petitions, or other acts by a beneficiary as to which the statute of limitations is tolled pending a determination whether the motion, petition, or act would constitute a contest within the meaning of a no contest clause, as that part read prior to its repeal by Chapter 174 of the Statutes of 2008. [Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2(b)(4); see former Prob. Code §§ 21308, 21320 (repealed on January 1, 2010)]. For discussion of this procedure, see Ch. 444, Probate: Will Contests .

[9] Death of Potential Plaintiff

If a person entitled to bring an action dies before the expiration of the applicable limitation period and if the cause of action survives, an action may be commenced before expiration of the later of six months after the person's death or the limitations period that would have applied if the person had not died [Code Civ. Proc. § 366.1]. For a form alleging circumstances tolling the period of limitation on this basis, see § 345.76.

In an appropriate case, the time limitations specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 366.1 for bringing the action may be subject to the delayed discovery rule [see, e.g., Parsons v. Tickner (1995) 31 Cal App 4th 1513, 1525-1529, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810 (action based on fraud brought by daughter of deceased not time barred even though filed 19 years after decedent's death; applying Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)); for discussion of delayed discovery, see § 345.19[3]].

When the person who has the benefit of an executory obligation dies before the obligor breaches, and thus dies before the accrual of a cause of action, the period of limitation for an action based on the breach begins to run from the time of the breach, notwithstanding that there is, at the time of the breach and accrual of the cause of action, no person in being with standing and capacity to maintain an action. Someone interested in the estate, such as a creditor, an heir, or a devisee, could at least obtain special letters of administration for the purpose of commencing an action. The running of the period of limitation would not be suspended pending appointment and qualification of, and issuance of letters to, an executor or a general administrator [see Cortelyou v. Imperial Land Co. (1913) 166 Cal. 14, 23-24, 134 P. 981] .

Absent an allegation of circumstances causing suspension of the running of the period of limitation, if an action in favor of a decedent was barred when the decedent died, the decedent's heirs do not derive any cause of action from the decedent [Rogers v. Bank of America (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 228, 231, 294 P.2d 959] .

[10] Beneficiary's Claims Against Third Party Regarding Trust Property

If a trustee fails to take action against a third person with respect to the trust property during the period of limitation, the beneficiary of the trust is precluded from maintaining an action against the third person [see Triplett v. Williams (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 135, 137-138, 74 Cal. Rptr. 594] . This rule applies even if the beneficiary is under a disability to sue, such as minority [Patchett v. Pacific Coast Ry. Co. (1893) 100 Cal. 505, 510, 35 P. 73] .

[11] Plaintiff's Disability

[a] Tolling for Minority

[i] Minority

If, when a cause of action accrued, the person entitled to bring the action was under 18 years of age, the period of limitation under Code Civ. Proc. § 335 et seq. for bringing the action is tolled during the plaintiff's minority [Code Civ. Proc. § 352(a); see Fam. Code §§ 6500, 6502]. The tolling provision is not easily overcome. The Code Civ. Proc. § 352 tolling provisions apply to special time limitations for filing suit contained in specific statutes when there is no expression of legislative intent to the contrary [West Shield Investigations & Security Consultants v. Superior Court (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 935, 947, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 612 ; Jessica H. v. Allstate Insurance Co. (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 590, 592, 202 Cal. Rptr. 239] .

For a form alleging circumstances tolling the period of limitation on the basis of minority, see § 345.72. Exceptions to this tolling rule are discussed under [iv] and [v], below, and under [c] et seq., below. The effect of emancipation on tolling during minority is discussed under [vii], below.

[ii] Effect of Guardianship

Appointment of a general guardian does not affect the tolling of the statute of limitations as to a cause of action accruing to or "vesting" in a minor [Aronson v. Bank of America (1941) 42 Cal. App. 2d 710, 720, 109 P.2d 1001] .

[iii] Effect of Existence of Custodian Under Uniform Transfers to Minors Act

The existence of a custodian under the Uniform Transfers to Minors Act (Prob. Code § 3900 et seq.) does not affect the tolling of the statute of limitations either [see Epstein v. Frank (1981) 177 Cal. Rptr. 831 (involving gift under former Uniform Gifts to Minors Act; period of limitations tolled on notes payable to minor's custodian)].

[iv] Action for Prenatal Injuries or Medical Malpractice

Actions based on prenatal injuries are subject to a specific period of limitations that is not tolled by minority [see Code Civ. Proc. § 340.4; for a form alleging circumstances tolling the period of limitation on this basis, see § 345.73].

A specific period also applies to minors' actions against a health care provider for professional negligence [see Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5; see also Tran v. Fountain Valley Community Hospital (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1464, 1467, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 91 (Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 subject to provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 12a)]. However, if the health care provider is a public entity, the period of limitation under Gov. Code § 945.6, rather than to extended period under Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 will apply [Martell v. Antelope Valley Hospital Medical Center (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 978, 980, 983, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 329] . For discussion, see Ch. 367A, Minors: Tort Actions .

[v] Action for Sexual Abuse of Minor

Actions based on the sexual abuse of a minor are subject to an extended period of limitations [see Code Civ. Proc. § 340.1]. For discussion, see Ch. 5, Abuse of Minors and Elderly .

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 340.1 extends the limitations period for claims to the later of the plaintiff's 26th birthday or the date when the plaintiff discovered that his psychological injuries were caused by sexual abuse, it revived for only one year all such claims that were already time barred [Hightower v. Roman Catholic Bishop of Sacramento (2006)

142 Cal. App. 4th 759, 767 ; see also Doe v. Roman Catholic Bishop of San Diego (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1382, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 398].

Further, the part of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.1 purporting to revive previously dismissed complaints has been found to violate the state's constitutional separation of powers doctrine. Where final judgments have been entered in earlier actions under the statute of limitations that previously existed, and those judgments were upheld on appeal, they became final for separation of powers purposes and cannot be legislatively revived. Because the power to conclusively resolve cases by rendering dispositive judgments rests with the judiciary alone, the Legislature could not reverse final judgments that were rendered under the previous limitations period of § 340.1 [Perez v. Roe (2006) 146 Cal. App. 4th 171, 188, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 762] .

[vi] Action for Employment Discrimination

The one-year period of Gov. Code § 12960 for filing an administrative complaint under the California Fair Employment and Housing Act [Gov. Code § 12940 et seq.] is extended for one year from the date the aggrieved party attains majority [Gov. Code § 12960(d)(4)].

[vii] Effect of Minority on Failure to File Claim or Administrative Complaint

When the filing of a claim or administrative complaint within a specific time is a prerequisite to maintenance of a civil action, there is authority that has held that the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 352 do not toll the time periods for the filing of such a claim or administrative complaint.

Examples of periods not extended by section 352 include:

- Period allowed under Probate Code for filing minor's claim against decedent's estate [Billups v. Tiernan (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 372, 376, 90 Cal. Rptr. 246] .

- Two-year period for insured to demand arbitration or pursue other remedies as required by Ins. Code § 11580.2 as prerequisite to complaint against insurance carrier for uninsured motorist benefits [Republic Indem. Co. v. Barn Furniture Mart, Inc. (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 517, 56 Cal. Rptr. 609] .

For further discussion, see [c], below.

[viii] Effect of Emancipation

A minor who is emancipated by court order under Fam. Code § 7000 et seq., is, by operation of law, subject to all legal consequences of emancipation which are set forth in Fam. Code § 7050, including the right to sue or be sued in the minor's own name. Once emancipated, a minor is under no legal disability with respect to bring his or her own claims. Therefore, the minor's tolling provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 352(a) no longer applies and the emancipated minor's causes of action accrue and statute of limitations begin to run on the date of emancipation [West Shield Investigations & Security Consultants v. Superior Court (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 935, 940, 949-951, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 612] .

[b] Tolling for Insanity

[i] Insanity

If, when a cause of action accrued, the person entitled to bring the action was insane, the period of limitation under Code Civ. Proc. § 335 et seq. for bringing the action is tolled for the time of the disability [Code Civ. Proc. § 352(a)]. For purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 352, a plaintiff is "insane" if "incapable of caring for his or her property or transacting business or understanding the nature or effects of his or her acts" [Alcott Rehabilitation Hospital v.

Superior Court (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 94, 101, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 807] .

For a form alleging circumstances tolling the period of limitation on this basis, see § 345.74. Exceptions to this tolling rule are discussed under [c] et seq., below.

[ii] Unconsciousness

Unconsciousness constitutes "insanity" sufficient to toll the limitation period [Feeley v. Southern Pacific Transportation Co. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 949, 951-953, 285 Cal. Rptr. 666] .

[iii] Disability Resulting From Tortious Act

If incompetency results from a tortious act and the disability exists from the time of the act, the limitation period is tolled the entire time the person is disabled [Weinstock v. Eissler (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 212, 230-231, 36 Cal. Rptr. 537 (day of act included); Tzolov v. International Jet Leasing, Inc. (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 117, 118, 120, 283 Cal. Rptr. 314] . This rule applies even if the incompetency is permanent [Tzolov v. International Jet Leasing, Inc. (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 117, 118, 120, 283 Cal. Rptr. 314] .

[iv] Effect of Conservatorship

The limitation period remains tolled even when a conservator is appointed for an incompetent person [Tzolov v. International Jet Leasing, Inc. (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 117, 118, 120, 283 Cal. Rptr. 314 (citing cases using obsolete terminology of "general guardian," which is now "conservator"; see Prob. Code §§ 1800.3, 1801)]. Thus, a cause of action that belongs to an incompetent person is not affected by a general conservator's failure to an incompetent person is not affected by a general conservator's failure to sue during the limitation period [Gottesman v. Simon (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 494, 502-503, 337 P.2d 906] .

[v] Action for Medical Malpractice

The tolling provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 352 for insanity can not extend the three-year limitation period established by Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 for medical malpractice actions [Fogarty v. Superior Court (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 316, 320] . It may apply, however, to extend the one-year limitation period of section 340.5 [see Belton v. Bowers Ambulance Service (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 928, 930-931, 935, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 107, 978 P.2d 591 (involving Code Civ. Proc. § 352.1 concerning prisoners); but see Bennett v. Shahhal (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 384, 392, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 272 (one-year statute of limitations not tolled on basis of plaintiff's dementia; Code Civ. Proc § 352 is general tolling statute that is inapplicable to MICRA actions governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5)].

[vi] Action for Elder Abuse

The tolling provision of Code. Civ. Proc. § 352 for insanity applies to actions for elder abuse against a health care provider. Actions for elder abuse against a health care provider are governed by the two-year statute of limitations for assault, battery, injury, or death caused by wrongful acts or neglect found in Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1. Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1 allows for application of tolling period for insanity [Benun v. Superior Court (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 113, 127, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 26] .

[c] Effect of Minority or Insanity on Action Against Public Entity

The tolling provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 352 does not apply to an action against a public entity or public employee on a cause of action subject to a claim requirement under Gov. Code § 900 et seq., 910 et seq., or 950 et seq. This exception to the rule of tolling does not apply to any claim presented to a public entity prior to January 1, 1971 [Code Civ. Proc. § 352(b)]. Similarly, a minor's action for medical malpractice against a public entity is subject to the Gov.

Code § 945.6 six-month period of limitation, rather than to extended period under Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 [Martell v. Antelope Valley Hospital Medical Center (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 978, 980, 983, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 329] .

With regard to minority, the tolling provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 352(a) has been held to apply to a federal civil rights action brought under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 [City of Huntington Park v. Superior Court (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1293, 1297-1300, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 68] .

[d] Effect of Minority or Insanity on Action for Recovery of Real Property

The time to commence any of the following actions is tolled if the person entitled to commence the action was, at the time title first descended or accrued, either under the age of majority or insane [Code Civ. Proc. § 328]:

- An action for the recovery of real property.
- An action for the recovery of the possession of real property.
- An action to recover rents or services out of real property.

The same tolling provision applies to making any entry or any defense founded on the title to real property [Code Civ. Proc. § 328].

Under this tolling provision, the time, not exceeding 20 years, during which the disability continues is not deemed any portion of the time in Code Civ. Proc. § 315 et seq. limited for the commencement of the action, or the making of the entry or defense, but the action may be commenced, or entry or defense made, within five years after the disability ceases, or if the person dies while still under the disability, within five after the death [Code Civ. Proc. § 328].

[e] Tolling for Prisoners Serving Less Than Life Term

[i] General Rule

If, when a cause of action accrued, the person entitled to bring the action was imprisoned on a criminal charge, or in execution under the sentence of a criminal court for a term less than for life, the period of limitation under Code Civ. Proc. § 335 et seq. for bringing the action is tolled for the time of the disability, but not to exceed two years [Code Civ. Proc. § 352.1(a)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 352.1, enacted effective 1/1/95, applies to causes of action that accrued before the effective date of the statute; thus "[c]laims ... that accrued before January 1, 1995 are tolled for two years from accrual, or until January 1, 1995, whichever occurs later, as long as such an application does not result in manifest injustice" [Carlson v. Blatt (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 646, 650, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 42 , adopting reasoning of Johnson v. State of Cal. (9th Cir. 2000) 207 F.3d 650, 654 and Fink v. Shedler (9th Cir. 1999) 192 F.3d 911, 916] .

The qualification "for a term less than life" has been interpreted as applying to all prisoners with life terms having the possibility of parole [see Grasso v. McDonough Power Equipment, Inc. (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 597, 599, 70 Cal. Rptr. 458] .

For a form alleging circumstances tolling the period of limitation on this basis, see § 345.75. Exceptions to this tolling rule are discussed under [ii] et seq., below.

[ii] Action Against Public Entity

The tolling provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 352.1 does not apply to an action against a public entity or public employee on a cause of action subject to a claim requirement under Gov. Code §§ 900 et seq., 910 et seq., or 950 et seq. This exception to the rule of tolling does not apply to any claim presented to a public entity prior to January 1, 1971 [Code

Civ. Proc. § 352.1(b)].

[iii] Action Relating to Conditions of Confinement

The tolling provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 352.1 does not apply to an action, other than an action for damages or that portion of an action that is for damages, relating to the conditions of confinement, including an action brought by that person under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 [Code Civ. Proc. § 352.1(c)].

[iv] Action for Recovery of Real Property

The time to commence any of the following actions is tolled if the person entitled to commence the action was, at the time title first descended or accrued, imprisoned on a criminal charge or in execution on conviction of a criminal offense, for a term less than life [Code Civ. Proc. § 328.5]:

- An action for the recovery of real property.
- An action for the recovery of the possession of real property.
- An action to recover rents or services out of real property.

The same tolling provision applies to making any entry or any defense founded on the title to real property [Code Civ. Proc. § 328.5].

Under this tolling provision, the time, not exceeding two years, during which the imprisonment continues is not deemed any portion of the time in Code Civ. Proc. § 315 et seq. limited for the commencement of the action, or the making of the entry or defense, but the action may be commenced, or entry or defense made, within five years after the imprisonment ceases, or if the person dies while imprisoned, within five after the death [Code Civ. Proc. § 328.5].

[v] Action for Medical Malpractice

The tolling provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 352.1 may apply to extend the one-year limitation period for medical malpractice actions established by Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5, but it cannot extend the absolute three-year period of that statute [Belton v. Bowers Ambulance Service (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 928, 930-931, 935, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 107, 978 P.2d 591 (disapproving Hollingsworth v. Kofoed (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 423, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 808)].

[vi] Retroactive Application

The tolling provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 352.1, are retroactive and apply to tort actions accruing before the date of the enactment of the statute, January 1, 1995. Thus, where the statute of limitations on an attorney malpractice claim commenced to run in 1989 when a prisoner was convicted of multiple offenses, the prisoner had one year from the enactment date (until January 1, 1996) to file an action for malpractice against his former attorney and a suit filed in 1997 was time barred [Carlson v. Blatt (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 646, 649-651, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 42] .

[f] Disability Must Exist When Action Accrues or Arise Simultaneously

No person can avail himself or herself of a disability, with respect to the limitation of an action, unless the disability existed when the right of action accrued [Code Civ. Proc. § 357]. When two or more disabilities coexist at the time when the right of action accrues, the limitation does not attach until they are removed [Code Civ. Proc. § 358].

If a disability sufficient to suspend the running of a period of limitation arises simultaneously with accrual of the cause of action in question, then the disability exists at the time the cause of action accrues, and the period of limitation does not begin to run until the disability is removed. An example is insanity [see Code Civ. Proc. § 352(a)] that is caused by, and arises simultaneously with, the wrongful act or negligence on which the cause of action is based [see Weinstock v. Eissler (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 212, 231, 36 Cal. Rptr. 537] .

[g] No Tacking of Successive Disabilities

When a plaintiff relies on a disability, he or she must show that it was a continuing one from the time when his or her cause of action accrued. A disability occurring after accrual, and hence, after the period of limitation has begun to run, does not suspend the running of the period unless such a qualification is stated in the applicable statute. Therefore, a succession of disabilities, some of which did not exist when the cause of action accrued, cannot be tacked together for the purpose of suspending the running of a period of limitation [Rose v. Petaluma & Santa Rosa Ry. Co. (1923) 64 Cal. App. 213, 217, 221 P. 406 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 358].

[h] Disability of One of Joint Obligees

If a cause of action is joint and if an action is not barred as to one of the plaintiffs because of suspension of the running of the period of limitation as the result of a disability, the action is not barred as to the other plaintiffs, even though as to them the period of limitation has expired [Leeper v. Beltrami (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 195, 209, 1 Cal. Rptr. 12, 347 P.2d 12] .

[12] Probationer Under Order of Restitution

If, after a cause of action accrues against a person, that person comes under an order for restitution as a condition of probation with respect to the specific act or omission giving rise to that person's liability, the time during which the order is in effect is not a part of the time limited for the commencement of an action based on that act or omission [Code Civ. Proc. § 352.5].

[13] Military Service and Reservists

Under the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act (50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.), a person's period of military service is not to be included in computing any period of limitation under any law, regulation, or order for the bringing of any action or proceeding in any court, board, bureau, commission, department, or other agency of government by or against any Servicemembers or by or against his or her heirs, executors, administrators, or assignees. This provision applies whether the cause of action or right or privilege to institute the action or proceeding accrued prior to or during the period of military service [50 U.S.C. App. § 526; see also 50 U.S.C. App. §§ 511 (definitions), 514, 516 (additional persons protected)]. The tolling provision of 50 U.S.C. App. § 526 is mandatory and does not require any showing that the person in military service was prejudiced [Syzemore v. County of Sacramento (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 517, 522-524, 127 Cal. Rptr. 741] .

California enacted a statutory scheme essentially mirroring the former Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940 [see now Servicemembers Relief Act] in regards to suspending the period of limitations for reservists and members of the National Guard, providing that the period of military service is not to be included in computing any period now or hereafter to be limited by any law, regulation, or order for the bringing of any action or proceeding in any court, board, bureau, commission, department, or other agency of government by or against any service member or by or against his or her heirs, executors, administrators, or assigns, whether the cause of action or the right or privilege to institute the action or proceeding accrued prior to or during the period of service, nor will any part of the period be included in computing any period now or hereafter provided by any law for the redemption of real property sold or forfeited to enforce any obligation, tax, or assessment [Mil. & Vet. Code § 404(a)]. Under the state statute, service member means both [see Mil. & Vet. Code § 401(a)]:

- Officers and enlisted members of the National Guard called or ordered into active state service by the Governor or President.

- Reservists of the United States Military Reserve who have been called to full-time active duty.

Military service under that state statute means full-time active state service or full-time active federal service for a period in excess of seven days in any 14-day period; and any service member who has been called to active service or duty since September 11, 2001, to engage in homeland defense against terrorism, his or her days of service prior to June 21, 2002 are credited toward this seven-day period [Mil. & Vet. Code § 401(b)].

[14] War

When a person is, by reason of the existence of a state of war, under a disability to commence an action, the time of continuance of that disability is not part of the period limited for the commencement of the action, whether the cause of action accrued before or during the period of disability [Code Civ. Proc. § 354]. The word "action" in this statute includes a special proceeding of a civil nature [Code Civ. Proc. § 363]. This provision applies, for example, when it is impossible for a nonresident alien to file a complaint in California because he or she is residing in a nation that is occupied by enemy military forces [Estate of Caravas (1952) 40 Cal. 2d 33, 39, 250 P.2d 593 (limitation period suspended while Greece was occupied by German forces in World War II; period also suspended under Code Civ. Proc. § 356, relating to statutory prohibition to commence action, on basis of Trading With the Enemy Act)].

For a form alleging circumstances tolling the period of limitation on this basis, see § 345.78.

[15] Disability of Attorney

The physical disability of a plaintiff's attorney may toll the period of limitations of a client's action, if compliance is thereby made impossible, and manifest injustice would otherwise result. For example, debilitating injuries sustained by a sole practitioner immediately prior to the expiration of the statutory period was held to constitute an implicit tolling exception to the applicable statute of limitations of the client's action [Lewis v. Superior Court (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 366, 372-380, 220 Cal. Rptr. 594] .

[16] Action Stayed or Other Legal Inhibition to Sue

[a] General Rule

When the commencement of an action is stayed by injunction or statutory prohibition, the time of the continuance of the injunction or prohibition is not part of the time limited for the commencement of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 356]. This provision means, in general, that the running of a period of limitation is suspended during any period in which the plaintiff is legally restrained from taking action to protect his or her interests [see Eistrat v. Cekada (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 289, 291-292, 324 P.2d 881] . For example, it applies when the plaintiff is legally prevented from taking action to protect his or her rights or when the commencement of an action must await the deliberations and decision of an administrative agency [Hoover v. Galbraith (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 519, 526, 102 Cal. Rptr. 733, 498 P.2d 981] .

The existence of a rule of law propounded in a judicial opinion that, if applied to the plaintiff's case, would defeat the plaintiff's cause of action cannot be used as the basis for a claim that the plaintiff was legally prevented from suing while the rule remained the law and that the period of limitation should be held to have been suspended from the time of the decision giving rise to the rule until the rule was later abrogated in another case. Such rules of law can be changed; the existence of such rules does not prevent a person from commencing an action and challenging the soundness of the reasoning that led to the rule [see Estate of Horman (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 62, 71, 95 Cal. Rptr. 433, 485 P.2d 785 , cert. denied, 404 U.S. 1015 (1972)] .

For a form alleging circumstances tolling the period of limitation on this basis, see § 345.80.

[b] Action Based on Health Care Provider's Professional Negligence

Code Civ. Proc. § 356 (discussed in [a], above) does not toll the statute of limitations for a health care provider's professional negligence action during the interval between the notice of intention to sue and the filing of the complaint. Although Code Civ. Proc. §§ 364, 365 require that a 90-day notice be given to a defendant before commencing an action based on a health care provider's professional negligence, and provide that an attorney who does not comply with this requirement and prematurely files suit may be subject to discipline, Code Civ. Proc. § 365 states that a medical malpractice plaintiff's failure to comply with the 90-day notice period does not invalidate court proceedings and is not jurisdictional. Because a plaintiff is not legally prevented from commencing a medical malpractice suit during the mandatory 90-day waiting period, there is no "statutory prohibition" requiring tolling under Code Civ. Proc. § 356 during the 90-day waiting period [Woods v. Young (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 315, 324, 279 Cal. Rptr. 613, 807 P.2d 455 ; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 364, 365].

Under certain circumstances, however, Code Civ. Proc. § 364(d) tolls for 90 days the applicable statute of limitations for a health care provider's professional negligence. With regard to the one-year limitation period after discovery specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5, if the notice of intent to sue is served during the last 90 days of that one-year limitation period, the one-year period is tolled under section 364(d) for 90 days. If the notice of intent to sue is served before the last 90 days of the one-year limitation period, section 364(d) does not toll the one-year period [Code Civ. Proc. § 364(d); Woods v. Young (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 315, 325-326, 328, 279 Cal. Rptr. 613 ; see Barber v. Superior Court (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 1076, 1080-1081, 285 Cal. Rptr. 668 (Supreme Court's holding in Woods that 90-day tolling provision of Section 340.5 does not extend limitation period beyond one year and 90 days given retroactive effect); see also Preferred Risk Mutual Ins. Co. v. Reiswig (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 208, 213 n.2, 218, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 187, 980 P.2d 895 (90-day tolling under Code Civ. Proc. § 364(d) applied to equitable indemnity action based on health care provider's professional negligence governed by one-year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) rather than Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5); Bennett v. Shahhal (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 384, 389-390, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 272 (when Code Civ. Proc. § 364 notice was not served within 90 days of expiration of one-year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5(a), subsequent service of second Section 364 notice within 90 days of expiration of that one year limitation period did not toll one year limitation)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 provides that in no event shall the time for commencement of a legal action exceed three years unless tolled by any of three specific circumstances, which do not include giving a Code Civ. Proc. § 364 notice within the last 90 days of the three-year period. Nonetheless, service of a Code Civ. Proc. § 364 notice within the last 90 days of the three-year period also tolls the three year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5. Code Civ. Proc. § 364 applies equally to the one-year and three-year statutes of limitation for medical malpractice actions [Russell v. Stanford University Hospital (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 783, 788-790, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 97, 937 P.2d 640 (following Woods v. Young (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 315, 279 Cal. Rptr. 613, 807 P.2d 455); see Newman v. Burnett (1997) 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 175 (three-year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 applicable to minors tolled for 90 days when Code Civ. Proc. § 364(a) intent-to-sue notice served during last 90 days of that three-year limitation period)].

The 90-day tolling provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 364(d) may apply to extend the period of limitations under statutes other than Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5. Section 364(d) is a part of the Medical Injury Compensation Reform Act (MICRA) and applies to actions based on medical malpractice, even if the action is governed by a statute of limitations that is not part of MICRA [Preferred Risk Mutual Ins. Co. v. Reiswig (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 208, 217-218, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 187, 980 P.2d 895 (applied to equitable indemnity action based on health care provider's professional negligence that was governed by one-year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 340)]. However, the tolling provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 364(d) apply only to causes of action for professional negligence and not to causes of action for intentional torts such as battery, even if they arise from the same factual circumstances [Perry v. Shaw (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 658, 664-666, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 70 (dicta), citing Noble v. Superior Court (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1189, 1191-1194, 237 Cal. Rptr. 38] .

A Code Civ. Proc § 364 notice may be served in the manner prescribed in Chapter 5 (commencing with Code Civ. Proc. § 1010) of Title 14 of Part 2 of the Code of Civil Procedure [Code Civ. Proc. § 364(c)]. Service of a section 364 notice by mail is complete on deposit in the mail and Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a) does not delay the effectiveness of the mailed notice [Silver v. McNamee (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 269, 278-283, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 445] . However, if the plaintiff fails to take adequate steps likely to accomplish actual notice on a defendant, plaintiff does not effectively comply with Code Civ. Proc. § 364 and the statute of limitations for bringing plaintiff's action against that defendant is not tolled, that is, the plaintiff cannot take advantage of the Code Civ. Proc. § 364(d) 90-day extension period [Derderian v. Dietrick (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 892, 899-900, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 800 (insufficient for plaintiffs to send notice to address listed on bill when they could not have adequate assurance from face of bill that post office address of organization from whom the bill was received had any direct connection with defendant)].

On the other hand, section 364 does not expressly require that a health care provider must receive actual notice of a plaintiff's intent to sue before the limitations period may be tolled under Code Civ. Proc. § 364(d). Thus, when the plaintiff strictly complies with statutes governing the method of service by mailing the notice properly addressed to the named defendant, actual notice by the named defendant is not required for plaintiff to take advantage of the section 364(d) tolling provision [Silver v. McNamee (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 269, 283-286, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 445 (cases such as Derderian, requiring actual notice by defendants were factually distinguished as involving situation where plaintiffs did not strictly comply with statutes governing method of service; nothing in those cases suggests that defendant's receit of actual notice is necessary when service is made in strict compliance with the statutory requirements)].

For further discussion of statutes of limitations relating to actions against health care providers, see Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice .

[c] Action Barred by Law of Another State

When a cause of action has arisen in another state, or in a foreign country, and by the laws of that other state or foreign country an action cannot there be maintained on that cause of action against a person by reason of the lapse of time, an action on that cause of action cannot be maintained against that person in California, except in favor of a person who has been a citizen of California and who has held the cause of action from the time it accrued [Code Civ. Proc. § 361].

[d] Pending Bankruptcy Proceeding

The filing of a petition in bankruptcy operates as an automatic stay of the commencement or continuation of any action against the debtor, nonbusiness codebtors of Chapter 13 debtors, and property of the debtor and of the bankruptcy estate [11 U.S.C. §§ 362(a), 1301].

Creditors may seek relief from the stay for cause, including inadequate protection of their interests [11 U.S.C. §§ 362(d), 1301(c)]. Otherwise, the stay remains in effect until the earliest of the following times: (1) the time the case is closed; (2) the time the case is dismissed; or (3) if the case is one for the liquidation of the estate of an individual under Chapter 7, or a case under Chapter 11 (business reorganization), Chapter 12 (family farmer with regular annual income), or Chapter 13 (adjustment of debts of an individual with ordinary income), the time a discharge is granted or denied [11 U.S.C. § 362(d)].

Bankruptcy law extends a limitation period that did not expire prior to the filing of the bankruptcy petition until the later of the following events: (1) the ordinary expiration date of the period, plus any suspensions found in nonbankruptcy law; or (2) 30 days after notice of termination or expiration of the stay [11 U.S.C. § 108(c); see 11 U.S.C. § 524 (permanent injunction against action on discharged claim)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 356 [discussed under [a], above] is a suspension under nonbankruptcy law, and thus serves to extend the applicable limitation period for the time the stay was in effect [Eistrat v. Cekada (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 289, 291-292,

324 P.2d 881] .

However, because Code Civ. Proc. § 356 only applies to judicial remedies, it does not extend the time under Civ. Code § 2924 for reinstatement of a mortgage or deed of trust. Thus, if the debtor does not reinstate within the 60 days following the filing of the bankruptcy petition as provided by 11 U.S.C. § 108(b) and the reinstatement period has expired by the time the stay is terminated, the lender can immediately post notice of sale and proceed [Napue v. Gor-Mey West, Inc. (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 608, 615-620, 220 Cal. Rptr. 799] .

[17] Pending Appeal

An action on a judgment, as distinguished from execution on a judgment, may not be commenced until the judgment has become final either on expiration of the period within which an appeal may be taken or, if an appeal is taken, on the issuance of the remittitur when the judgment has been affirmed [Hoover v. Galbraith (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 519, 525-526, 102 Cal. Rptr. 733, 498 P.2d 981] . If an appeal is taken, the statute of limitations restarts on the date the appellate court issues a remittitur since jurisdiction revests in the trial court on that date, pursuant to Cal. Rules of Court, former Rule 29.6 (now 8.540), rather than on the date the remittitur is filed in the trial court [see Bellows v. Aliquot Associates, Inc. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 426, 432-434, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 723] .

If it is not possible to bring an action to trial pending determination of an appeal in a related case, the time consumed on that appeal is impliedly excluded from the period of limitation [Hoover v. Galbraith (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 519, 526, 102 Cal. Rptr. 733, 498 P.2d 981] .

However, in the case of a legal malpractice action based on an attorney's representation of the plaintiff in a lawsuit, the limitation period begins to run on the entry of the adverse judgment or final order of dismissal, and is not tolled pending appeal of the underlying lawsuit [Laird v. Blacker (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 606, 615-618, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 550, 828 P.2d 691] .

[18] Dismissal of Supplemental Claims in Federal Court

In cases in which the federal district court has original jurisdiction, 28 U.S.C. § 1367(a) grants the court supplemental jurisdiction over any state law claims that are so related to claims in the action within the court's original jurisdiction that they form part of the same case or controversy under U.S. Const., art. III.

Under 28 U.S.C. § 1367(d), the state statute of limitations for any claim that is asserted supplementally is tolled while the claim is pending in federal court and for a period of 30 days after it is dismissed, unless state law provides a longer tolling period. The section 1367(d) tolling provision includes the time during which a federal appeal with the court of appeals is pursued, and the 30-day grace period commences once the judgment of dismissal is affirmed by that court. Thus, 28 U.S.C. § 1367(d) continues to toll the state statute of limitations during the federal appeal period, but tolling ceases once the district court decision is affirmed by the federal appellate court. Tolling under section 1367(d) is not extended by the later filing of a petition for writ of certiorari with the United States Supreme Court [Kendrick v. City of Eureka (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 364, 366, 368-369, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 153 (plaintiffs claims held untimely)]. For further discussion of 28 U.S.C. § 1367(d), see Moore's Federal Practice, Third Ed., Ch. 106 (Matthew Bender).

[19] Legislative Abrogation of Defendant's Immunity From Suit

While the Legislature has the authority to abrogate a defendant's immunity from suit, the general rule is that legislation is to be construed to operate prospectively only and not to apply retroactively to proceedings that began before legislation was amended unless there is clear legislative intent for retroactive application [Barker v. Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp. (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 42, 48, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 531 (plaintiff's wrongful death suit barred by statute of limitations against cigarette manufacturer after Legislature's 1997 abrogation of the prior immunity from suit for injuries from tobacco products, Civ. Code § 1714.45, plaintiff also failed to properly raise issue of fraudulent concealment by defendant before appeal)].

Chapter 345 LIMITATION OF ACTIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Statute of Limitations

30-345 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 345.21

§ 345.21 Equitable Tolling

[1] Elements

[a] In General

A period of limitation may be tolled as to one action when plaintiff has sought an alternative form of relief, and a three-pronged test has been satisfied. The three elements are [Addison v. State of California (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 313, 319, 146 Cal. Rptr. 224, 578 P.2d 941 ; Collier v. City of Pasadena (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 917, 924, 191 Cal. Rptr. 681 ; see Kolani v. Gluska (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 402, 409, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 257] :

- That defendant has received timely notice of the first claim,
- That defendant has not been prejudiced in gathering evidence to defend against the second claim, and
- That plaintiff has acted reasonably and in good faith in filing the second action.

The doctrine of equitable tolling has been described as bringing together previously separate rationales for tolling periods of limitation, including situations when plaintiff pursues administrative remedies, files a complaint that is later determined to be defective, or institutes an action that seeks to lessen damages or other harm that may have to be remedied by a second action [Collier v. City of Pasadena (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 917, 923, 191 Cal. Rptr. 681 ; see also cases discussed under [d] and [2], below].

ILLUSTRATION:

Equitable Tolling Based on Appellate Court's Denial of Petition for Writ of Mandate Without Prejudice to Filing Petition in Superior Court. Plaintiff property owner's association seeks to set aside a county board of supervisor's affirmance of the issuance of conditional use and building permits by filing a petition for mandate in the court of appeals within 30 days of the board's decision. The petition is denied by the court of appeals without prejudice to the filing of proceedings in superior court. Plaintiffs > file in superior court 35 days after the board's decision became final. County law requires that decisions of the board become final unless court review is sought within 30 days. Are plaintiffs in violation of the county ordinance? No. By filing an identical petition in the Court of Appeal within 30 days and promptly refiling in the superior court plaintiffs effectively put defendants on notice within the 30-day statute of limitations [see Friends of Mammoth v. Board of Supervisors (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 247, 269, 104 Cal. Rptr. 761, 502 P.2d 1049] .

Tolling can only suspend the running of a statute that still has time to run. It cannot revive a statute that has already expired [65 Butterfield v. Chicago Title Ins. Co. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1047, 1062, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 40] .

Equitable tolling is not permissible when it is inconsistent with the text of the relevant statute of limitations [FNB Mortgage Corp. v. Pacific General Group (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1116, 1132-1134, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841 (10-year period under Code Civ. Proc. § 337.15 is not subject to equitable tolling for repairs)].

For a form of allegation of circumstances raising the equitable tolling of statutes of limitations, see § 345.82.

[b] Timely Notice

The timely notice requires the first claim to have been filed within the statutory period [65 Butterfield v. Chicago Title Ins. Co. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1047, 1063, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 40 ; Downs v. Department of Water & Power (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1100, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 590] .

The filing of the first claim must alert the defendant in the second claim of the need to begin investigating the facts which form the basis for the second claim. Generally, this means that the defendant in the first claim is the same one being sued in the second [Downs v. Department of Water & Power (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1100, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 590 ; see 65 Butterfield v. Chicago Title Ins. Co. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1047, 1063, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 40] .

[c] Lack of Prejudice to Defendant

The second element, lack of prejudice to the defendant in gathering evidence to defend against the second claim, essentially translates to a requirement that the facts of the two claims be identical or at least so similar that the defendant's investigation of the first claim will put him or her in a position to fairly defend the second [Downs v. Department of Water & Power (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1100, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 590] .

This aspect of the test is probably the keystone of the doctrine, providing the basis for the tolling when the facts of the two claims are identical or so similar that defendant's investigation of the first claim will necessarily provide a factual basis for the defense of the second. It is the nature of the facts underlying the claims, rather than the forms of the causes of action, that are determinative; as long as the claims are based on essentially the same set of facts, it is irrelevant whether the claims are alternative or parallel, consistent or inconsistent, compatible or incompatible [Cervantes v. City of San Diego (9th Cir. 1993) 5 F.3d 1273, 1276 (applying California law); Collier v. City of Pasadena (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 917, 925, 191 Cal. Rptr. 681] .

The doctrine of equitable tolling, however, does not apply when a plaintiff who has suffered several different wrongs pursues only one remedy as to one of those wrongs [Aerojet General Corp. v. Superior Court (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 950, 956, 223 Cal. Rptr. 249] . For example, the doctrine does not apply to toll an action against an employer for fraudulent concealment of the cause of plaintiff's injury while plaintiff pursues a workers' compensation claim for the injury because these remedies are not alternative remedies for the same harm but different remedies for different harms [Aerojet General Corp. v. Superior Court (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 950, 956-957, 223 Cal. Rptr. 249] .

[d] Plaintiff's Good Faith and Reasonable Conduct

The third element, good faith and reasonable conduct on plaintiff's part, is less clearly defined in the cases, but in Addison v. State of California (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 313, 319, 146 Cal. Rptr. 224, 578 P.2d 941 , the Supreme Court did stress that the plaintiff filed the second claim a short time after tolling ended [Downs v. Department of Water & Power (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1100, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 590] .

In the majority of cases in which courts apply the equitable tolling doctrine, the plaintiff possesses several legal remedies and in good faith pursues one designed to lessen the extent of his or her injuries or damage. In these cases, if the defendant is not prejudiced, the running of the limitations period is tolled as to the other available remedies [Hu v. Silgan Containers Corp. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1261, 1270, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 333] . If, however, the request for equitable tolling is not based on the pursuit of one legal theory over another, but rather is based on some defect concerning the first action, and there is no claim of error on the court's part concerning the first action nor an assertion of any delay or dilatory tactics on the defendant's part, there is authority that has denied application of the doctrine of equitable tolling.

In Hu v. Silgan Containers Corp. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1261, 1270-1271, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 333 , the doctrine of equitable tolling was held inapplicable when the initial action was voided by the court pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 411.20 for failure to pay the filing fee. The Hu court distinguished Bollinger v. National Fire Ins. Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 399, 154 P.2d 399 , in which the court held that the plaintiff should be able to pursue the second action although the statute of limitations had expired because (1) the trial court had erroneously granted the initial nonsuit, (2) dilatory tactics on defendant's part prevented disposition of the first action in time to permit a second timely filing, and (3) plaintiff had at all times proceeded in a diligent manner. The concurrence of the three factors present in Bollinger are essential for application of rule stated in Bollinger [Hu v. Silgan Containers Corp. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1261, 1270-1271, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 333 ; see Gordon v. Law Offices of Aguirre & Meyer (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 972, 979-980, 980 n.8, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 119 (doctrine of equitable tolling not applicable to Code Civ. Proc. § 340.6; as alternative basis for not applying equitable tolling, court noted one element that must be present to apply equitable tolling rule of Bollinger is that plaintiffs are left without judicial forum for resolution of their claims through forces outside their control, which was not true in this case)].

[e] First Remedy Need Not Be "Legal" Remedy

It may not be necessary that the remedy pursued be a "legal" remedy, in the sense of an action or a proceeding in court or before an administrative agency. In one case, the "remedy" pursued was an attempt to prevent damages in consequence of the defendant's negligence by means other than by such an action or a proceeding [see County of Santa Clara v. Hayes Co. (1955) 43 Cal. 2d 615, 617-619, 275 P.2d 456] .

Merely engaging in informal negotiations is not adequate to support equitable tolling [see 65 Butterfield v. Chicago Title Ins. Co. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1047, 1063, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 40 (no equitable estoppel based on title insurer's negotiations with third party)].

[f] Insurance Claims

Equitable tolling applies to toll the Ins. Code § 2071 one-year period of limitation for actions on an insurance policy from the time the insured gives notice of damage to its insurer pursuant to applicable policy notice provisions until the insurer formally denies the claim in writing [Prudential-LMI Com. Insurance v. Superior Court (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 674, 678, 274 Cal. Rptr. 387, 798 P.2d 1230 ; see also Marselis v. Allstate Insurance Co. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 122, 126, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 668 (equitable tolling rule does not apply to reopen insurance claims that have been paid but did not have a unequivocal written confirmation stating that the claim was closed); Singh v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 135, 145-148, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 546 (when insurer denies claim unequivocally, insured's request for reconsideration does not create additional period of equitable tolling); Stanton Road Associates v. Pacific Employers

Ins. Co. (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 333, 343-344, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1 (equitable tolling doctrine does not apply when limitation period had expired before plaintiff gave notice of loss to its insurer)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Equitable Tolling Based on Workers' Compensation Claim. Plaintiff is injured while working on defendant's premises and files a workers' compensation claim 10 months after the injury. The workers' compensation claim is rejected 15 months after the injury and plaintiff files an action in state court approximately one month later. Is the plaintiff in violation of the one year statute of limitations? No. Defendant's interest in being promptly apprised of claims against them so they may gather and preserve evidence is fully satisfied when the plaintiff filed a compensation claim within one year of the date of the injury [see Elkins v. Derby (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 410, 412, 115 Cal. Rptr. 641, 525 P.2d 81] .

Equitable tolling also applies to the breach of a continuing duty under a contract or insurance policy. For example, the limitation period for an action under a title insurance policy for failure to defend the insured accrues when the insurer refuses the insured's tender of defense, but the limitation period is equitably tolled until the underlying action is terminated by final judgment [Lambert v. Commonwealth Land Title Ins. Co. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 1072, 1077, 1079, 1080, 282 Cal. Rptr. 445, 811 P.2d 737 (disapproving contrary language in Central Bank v. Transamerica Title Ins. Co. (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 859, 149 Cal. Rptr. 822)].

An insured's cause of action for breach of the implied covenant may accrue on the entry of the trial court's judgment, but the limitations period should not commence to run until that judgment becomes final. Until such judgment is final, the insured has either not been harmed or the amount of that harm cannot be determined [Archdale v. American Internat. Specialty Lines Co. (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 449, 476, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 632].

[g] Second Action in State Court When First Claim Was in Federal Court With Supplemental Jurisdiction

When the first claim is a federal court action containing state claims over which the federal court has supplemental jurisdiction, 28 U.S.C. 1367(d) codifies the rule of equitable tolling. However, Section 1367(d) substitutes a bright line rule in place of a case-by-case analysis of "reasonableness." Under Section 1367(d), the period of limitation for any pendent claim over which the federal court has supplemental jurisdiction is tolled while the claim is pending and for 30 days after it is dismissed unless state law provides for a longer tolling period, i.e., the second suit must be filed within 30 days after dismissal of the pendent state claims without prejudice unless state law extends that period [Kolani v. Gluska (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 402, 408-410, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 257] .

Under 28 U.S.C. 1367(d) a plaintiff is not allowed to tack onto the limitations period the full time during which the federal action was pending [Kolani v. Gluska (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 402, 410-411, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 257] . Thus, when an initial federal action containing state pendent claims is filed and thereafter dismissed, what conduct is "reasonable" under the equitable tolling doctrine requirement of reasonable promptness in refiling must be assessed in light of the 30-day grace period set forth in 28 U.S.C. 1367(d) [Kolani v. Gluska (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 402, 410-411, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 257 (statute of limitations barred plaintiff's claims when plaintiffs did not refile in state court until 78 days after federal suit was dismissed, no California statute afforded a grace period for longer than 30 days and no extraordinary circumstances justified the delay)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Equitable Tolling Based on Action in Federal Court. Plaintiffs bring an action in federal court against the State of California and a county alleging causes of action for violation of both federal and state law. The federal court dismisses the causes of action for violation of federal law and also dismisses without prejudice the pendent state claims over which it had supplemental jurisdiction. Plaintiffs then promptly bring a similar case in state court concerning the state claims. Although the federal court case was filed within the state statute of limitations, by the time the state court case is filed the statute of limitations has passed. Is the state court case in violation of the statute of limitations? No. Defendants were notified within the state statute of limitations by the filing of the similar federal suit. Plaintiffs were acting in good faith by filing their case first in federal court and then filing in state court promptly after dismissal of the federal suit. Defendants had the opportunity to begin gathering evidence and preparing a defense before the state statute of limitations expired [see Addison v. State of California (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 313, 319, 146 Cal. Rptr. 224, 578 P.2d 941] .

[2] Exhausting Administrative Remedies

A period of limitation is suspended during the pendency of administrative proceedings forming a necessary prelude to a lawsuit [Dillon v. Board of Pension Commrs. (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 427, 431, 116 P.2d 37 ; A. Teichert & Son, Inc. v. State of Cal. (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 736, 746, 48 Cal. Rptr. 225] .

This is true even when no statute makes the exhaustion of administrative remedies in the case at hand a condition of the right to sue. That is, the exhaustion of administrative remedies before commencing suit, if those remedies are pursued reasonably and in good faith, has the effect of suspending the running of period of limitation while that course is being followed [see Campbell v. Graham-Armstrong (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 482, 490, 107 Cal. Rptr. 777, 509 P.2d 689 ; see also McDonald v. Antelope Valley Community College Dist. (2008) 45 Cal. 4th 88, 103, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 734, 194 P.3d 1026 (internal administrative remedies for resolving employment grievances are optional and need not be exhausted before filing a California Fair Employment and Housing Act, Gov. Code, § 12900 et seq., action, but if an aggrieved party voluntarily elects to pursue such an administrative remedy, it does not follow from this that the voluntariness of that election renders equitable tolling unavailable); see also discussion under § 345.21[1], above].

Chapter 345 LIMITATION OF ACTIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Statute of Limitations

30-345 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 345.22

§ 345.22 Equitable Estoppel

[1] Elements

A defendant may be estopped from raising the bar of the statute of limitations if his or her conduct or statements induced the plaintiff to refrain from bringing a timely action. It is not a punitive notion, but rather a remedial judicial doctrine employed to insure fairness, prevent injustice, and do equity. It stems from the venerable judicial prerogative to redress unfairness in the application of otherwise inflexible legal dogma, based on sound public policy and equity. [Leasequip, Inc. v. Dapeer (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 394, 403-404, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 782] .

The equitable estoppel doctrine applies if the plaintiff establishes that the defendant was aware of the limitation period, that he or she intended that the plaintiff should rely on his or her conduct or statements, that the plaintiff was ignorant of the true facts, and that the plaintiff relied on the defendant's conduct or statements to his or her detriment [Kleinecke v. Montecito Water Dist. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 240, 245-247, 195 Cal. Rptr. 58 ; see Barr v. ACandS, Inc. (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 1038, 1057-1058, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 494 (no estoppel when, despite evidence of custom in asbestos-litigation to encourage dismissal of marginal cases with recognition that later suit may be filed if more significant symptoms develop and first actions were dismissed without prejudice, there was no evidence that defendants made any representations to plaintiffs to induce them to dismiss)]. However, a complaint must include facts indicating defendant's conduct directly prevented plaintiff from filing suit on time [Lantzy v. Centex Homes (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 363, 383-385, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 655, 73 P.3d 517 (no equitable estoppel where defendant's conduct included offers to fix problem in lieu of suit, but plaintiff failed to adequately plead facts that defendant's conduct actually and reasonably induced plaintiff to forebear suing within limitations period)]. Whether an estoppel exists--whether the acts, representations or conduct lulled a party into a sense of security preventing him or her from instituting proceedings before the running of the statute, and whether the party relied thereon to his or her prejudice--is a question of fact and not of law [Holdgrafer v. Unocal Corp. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 907, 925-926, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 216] .

Application of equitable estoppel against the assertion of a limitations defense typically arises through some misleading affirmative conduct on a defendant's part [see, e.g., Leasequip, Inc. v. Dapeer (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 394, 403-404, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 782 (attorney equitably estopped from asserting the statute of limitations defense in legal malpractice lawsuit for giving faulty advice)]. An estoppel may also arise from silence when there is a duty to speak. For example, an insurer's direct violation of duly promulgated administrative regulations issued by the California Insurance Commissioner, requiring the insurer to notify a claimant insured of time limits pertaining to a claim, may provide the basis of an estoppel against the insurer's assertion of a contract limitations defense [Spray, Gould & Bowers v. Associated Internat. Ins. Co. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1260, 1263, 1268-1269, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 552] .

The conduct that forms the estoppel need not be fraudulent, performed in bad faith, or with an intent to mislead the plaintiff [Barr v. ACandS, Inc. (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 1038, 1057, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 494] .

The doctrine of estoppel also has been codified in Evid. Code § 623, which reads: "Whenever a party has, by his own statement or conduct, intentionally and deliberately led another to believe a particular thing true and to act upon such belief, he is not, in any litigation arising out of such statement or conduct, permitted to contradict it" [see Leasequip, Inc. v. Dapeer (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 394, 403-404, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 782] .

For a form of allegation raising the issue of estoppel to assert the defense of the statute of limitations, see § 345.81.

[2] Independent of Limitation Period

Equitable estoppel comes into play after a limitations period has expired and addresses itself to the circumstances in which a party will be estopped from asserting the statute of limitations as a defense to an admittedly untimely action because that party's conduct has induced another into forebearing suit within the applicable limitations period [Battuello v. Battuello (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 842, 847-848, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548 (quoting Bomba v. W.L. Belvidere, Inc. (7th Cir. 1978) 579 F.2d 1067, 1070)] . The doctrine is judicially created and limits the typical statute of limitations. Altough it arose in courts of equity, it also applies to actions at law. It enters into a statute of limitations, if at all, by being read into it judicially [see Regents of University of California v. Superior Court (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 509, 532-533, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 257, 976 P.2d 808 (addressing doctrine of fraudulent concealment)].

Equitable estoppel, unlike tolling, is neither concerned with the point at which a limitations period commences to run nor with the circumstances which may suspend running of the limitation period. Application of equitable estoppel is wholly independent of the limitations period itself. It arises, not from the language of the statute, but from the equitable principle that a person will not be permitted to profit from that person's own wrongdoing in a court of justice [Battuello v. Battuello (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 842, 847-848, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548 (quoting Bomba v. W.L. Belvidere, Inc. (7th Cir. 1978) 579 F.2d 1067, 1070)] . Nonetheless, cases addressing equitable estoppel often speak in terms of "tolling" the statute of limitations [see, e.g., Regents of University of California v. Superior Court (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 509, 532-533, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 257, 976 P.2d 808] .

Because equitable estoppel operates directly on the defendant without abrogating the running of the statutory limitations period, it might apply no matter how unequivocal the statutory language containing the applicable limitations period is expressed [Battuello v. Battuello (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 842, 847-848, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548 (quoting Bomba v. W.L. Belvidere, Inc. (7th Cir. 1978) 579 F.2d 1067, 1070)] .

For example, with regard to Code Civ. Proc. 366.2, although Code Civ. Proc. 366.2(b) clearly shows the Legislature intended that the statute of limitations set forth in that section not be "tolled" or "extended," the statute is silent about equitable estoppel. Absent such language, or legislative history suggesting that the Legislature intended to abrogate the doctrine of equitable estoppel, it has been held that the doctrine of equitable estoppel still applies [Battuello v. Battuello (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 842, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548 (allegations sufficient to support claim of equitable estoppel to bar defendant from raising Section 366.2 limitation period when defendant's false statement caused plaintiff's forbearance from suit until limitation period expired)].

However, the California Supreme Court, noting Gov. Code § 11130.3(a), a part of Bagley-Keene Open Meeting Act contained in Gov. Code § 11120 et seq., does not allow any extension of time expressly or by implication and its legislative history supports this conclusion, has held that Section 11130.3(a) does not allow any extension of time even through operation of the doctrine of fraudulent concealment [Regents of University of California v. Superior Court (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 509, 527-535, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 257, 976 P.2d 808] . In reaching this conclusion, however, the court noted that the typical statute of limitations admits of the application of the doctrine of fraudulent concealment. The purposes of each are consistent the one with the other, which is not the case for Gov. Code § 11130.3(a) [Regents of University of California v. Superior Court (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 509, 533-534, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 257, 976 P.2d 808 (defendant not equitably estopped, based on alleged fraudulent concealment of cause of action, from asserting Gov. Code § 11130.3(a) 30-day statute of limitation); cf. FNB Mortgage Corp. v. Pacific General Group (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1116, 1121 1132-1134, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841 (Code Civ. Proc. § 337.15 is not subject to equitable tolling); for discussion of equitable tolling, see § 345.21].

[3] Fraudulent Concealment of Cause of Action

When the defendant is guilty of having fraudulently concealed the facts on which a cause of action depends, the statute of limitations is tolled until the plaintiff discovers or ought to have discovered those facts [Hernandez v. Garcetti (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 675, 680-681, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 443 ; see Bernson v. Browning-Ferris Industries (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 926, 931, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440, 873 P.2d 613 ; Mark K. v. Roman Catholic Archbishop (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 603, 611, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73] . Fraudulent concealment is a close cousin to the discovery rule [see Bernson v. Browning-Ferris Industries (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 926, 931, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440, 873 P.2d 613 ; Mark K. v. Roman Catholic Archbishop (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 603, 611, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73 ; for discussion of delayed discovery, see § 345.19[3]]. The purpose of the doctrine is to disarm a defendant, who, by his or her own deception, has caused a claim to become stale and a plaintiff dilatory [Regents of University of California v. Superior Court (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 509, 533, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 257, 976 P.2d 808] .

Fraudulent concealment of the fact on the existence of which the cause of action accrues is a good answer to a plea of bar of a statute of limitation; but when discovery of the cause of action was merely tardy, and no fraud or fraudulent concealment is involved, the running of the period of limitation will not be suspended. The ground of relief is that the defendant, having by fraud or deceit concealed material facts and by misrepresentations hindered the plaintiff from bringing an action within the statutory period, is estopped from taking advantage of his or her own wrong. A statute of limitation is a shield for the defendant's protection against stale claims, and he or she may not use it to perpetrate a fraud on an otherwise diligent suitor. The rule applies whether or not the basis for the action is itself fraud [Pashley v. Pacific Elec. Ry. Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 226, 229, 230, 231, 232, 153 P.2d 325 ; Parsons v. Tickner (1995) 31 Cal App 4th 1513, 1525-1529, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810 (action labeled as fraud, breach of fiduciary duty and conversion brought by daughter of deceased not time barred although filed 19 years after decedent's death; construing Code Civ. Proc. §§ 338(d), 366.1)].

Mere nondisclosure of a material fact is not, absent a fiduciary relationship, the concealment of a cause of action. There must be some affirmative act calculated to obscure the existence of a cause of action, and that act must be factually alleged, before fraudulent concealment will be found [Hesse v. Vinatieri (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 448, 451, 302 P.2d 699] . However, in cases in which the defendant can be said to have a duty of disclosure, a failure to disclose a material fact may suspend the running of a period of limitation [see discussion under § 345.19[3], above].

A false representation or an act designed to conceal the cause of action, if made after the period of limitation has expired, is not a basis for estopping the defendant from pleading the bar of the applicable statute [Scafidi v. Western Loan & Bldg. Co. (1946) 72 Cal. App. 2d 550, 566, 165 P.2d 260 ; see Bank of America v. Williams (1948) 89 Cal. App. 2d 21, 25, 200 P.2d 151] .

Fraudulent attempts to conceal a cause of action will not toll the limitation period if the plaintiff is aware of the cause of action [Snyder v. Boy Scouts of America, Inc. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1318, 1323, 253 Cal. Rptr. 156 ; Rita M. v.

Roman Catholic Archbishop (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1453, 1460, 232 Cal. Rptr. 685 ; see Barber v. Superior Court (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 1076, 1082-1083, 285 Cal. Rptr. 668 (because plaintiffs were aware of existence of cause of action, no fraudulent concealment when defendant's attorney refused to cooperate in prefiling investigation)]. Likewise, the fraudulent concealment doctrine will not apply and the limitations period will not be tolled if the plaintiff is on notice of a potential claim, even if the plaintiff did not know for certain that claim existed; a plaintiff is under a duty to reasonably investigate, and a suspicion of wrongdoing, coupled with a knowledge of the harm and its cause, commences the limitations period [Snapp & Associates Ins. Services, Inc. v. Robertson (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 884, 890-891].

Moreover, a particular statute of limitations may not allow any extension of time even through operation of the doctrine of fraudulent concealment [see Regents of University of California v. Superior Court (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 509, 532-535, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 257, 976 P.2d 808 (Gov. Code § 11130.3(a), held not to allow any extension of time even through operation of doctrine fraudulent concealment)].

For a form of allegation that defendant is estopped from raising the bar of the statute of limitations, see § 345.81.

[4] Fraudulent Concealment of Defendant's Identity

[a] Basis for Equitable Estoppel

Based on the principle that one should not profit from one's own wrongdoing, a defendant may be equitably estopped from asserting the statute of limitations when, as a result of intentional concealment, the plaintiff is unable to discover the defendant's actual identity [Bernson v. Browning-Ferris Industries (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 926, 936, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440, 873 P.2d 613 (disapproving Staples v. Zoph (1935) 9 Cal. App. 2d 369, 370, 49 P.2d 1131)]. The rule of equitable estoppel includes the requirement that the plaintiff exercise reasonable diligence and, thus, the statute of limitations will toll only until such time that the plaintiff knows, or through the exercise of reasonable diligence should have discovered, the defendant's identity. Lack of knowledge alone is not sufficient to stay the statute; a plaintiff may not disregard reasonably available avenues of inquiry which, if vigorously pursued, might yield the desired information [Bernson v. Browning-Ferris Industries (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 926, 936, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440, 873 P.2d 613] .

In determining whether a plaintiff has exercised reasonable diligence, courts must consider whether the filing of a timely Doe complaint would, as a practical matter, have facilitated the discovery of the defendant's identity within the requisite time period for service of process [Bernson v. Browning-Ferris Industries (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 926, 936-937, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440, 873 P.2d 613 ; Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1103, 1118, 245 Cal. Rptr. 658, 751 P.2d 923] . Furthermore, if the identity of at least one defendant is known, the plaintiff must avail himself or herself of the opportunity to file a timely complaint naming Doe defendants and utilize discovery to ascertain the remaining defendants' identities. However, where discovery efforts will not be successful in ascertaining a defendant's identity because of his or her intentional concealment, the plaintiff should not be penalized [Bernson v. Browning-Ferris Industries (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 926, 937, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440, 873 P.2d 613] .

When adopting this rule, the California Supreme Court predicted that this potential equitable estoppel will not unduly burden the trial courts since it will arise only in those relatively few cases where the defendant asserts a statute of limitations defense and the plaintiff claims that he or she was totally ignorant of the defendant's identity as a result of the defendant's fraudulent concealment [Bernson v. Browning-Ferris Industries (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 926, 937, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440, 873 P.2d 613] .

[b] Nonfraudulent Concealment of Defendant's Presence or Identity

If a defendant is present in California, neither the plaintiff's ignorance of that fact nor his or her inability to discover the defendant's presence will prevent the running of the period of limitation. Moreover, the fact that the defendant is living in this state under an assumed name, if the change of name was without fraudulent intent, will not prevent the running of the period of limitation, even though the plaintiff does not know the defendant's assumed name [St. Paul Title & Trust Co. v. Stensgaard (1912) 162 Cal. 178, 180-181, 121 P. 731] .

[c] Concealment of Corporate Defendant

A domestic corporation cannot conceal itself within the state. Because it is an artificial person, its presence is always open and notorious, even though its officers and agents may conceal themselves or the corporation's business and property. The Corporation Code does not permit a domestic corporation to hide; on the contrary, it provides an effective mode of obtaining personal service on the corporation whose officers and agents cannot be found after due diligence [Coates Capitol Corp. v. Superior Court (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 125, 129, 59 Cal. Rptr. 231 ; see Corp. Code § 1702].

[5] Other Deception

Under appropriate circumstances equitable estoppel will apply to bar a defendant from pleading the bar of the statute of limitations when the plaintiff was induced to refrain from bringing a timely action by the defendant's fraud, misrepresentation, or deceptions, with regard to factors other than the existence of the actual cause of action. For example, in a case in which the plaintiff mistakenly sued a sanitary district instead of the water district, thinking it was the same entity, the court held that the defendant was equitably estopped from pleading the statute of limitations because the counsel for both entities was the same, and his actions served to mislead plaintiff's counsel into thinking that he had sued the right defendant [see Kleinecke v. Montecito Water Dist. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 240, 245-247, 195 Cal. Rptr. 58] .

Chapter 345 LIMITATION OF ACTIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Statute of Limitations

30-345 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 345.23

§ 345.23 Extension of Period of Limitation by Partial Payment of Principal or Interest on Promissory Note

Any payment on account of principal or interest due on a promissory note made by the party to be charged shall be deemed sufficient acknowledgment or promise of a continuing contract to stop, from time to time as any such payment is made, the running of the time within which an action may be commenced upon the principal sum or upon any installment of principal or interest due on such note, and to start the running of a new period of time [Code Civ. Proc. § 360].

A partial payment of either principal or interest on a promissory note made within the statutory period continues the original obligation through a new statutory period; in effect the debtor waives so much of the statutory period as has run in his or her favor [Eilke v. Rice (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 66, 73, 286 P.2d 349 ; Kaichen's Metal Mart, Inc. v. Ferro Cast Co. (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 8, 15, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 233] .

Thus, the effect of a partial payment is to begin a new period of limitation running from the date of the payment. The situation does not involve revival of a barred debt, but rather one where the debt has been "revitalized" by the partial payment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 360; see also Eilke v. Rice (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 66, 73, 286 P.2d 349 ; Kaichen's Metal Mart, Inc. v. Ferro Cast Co. (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 8, 15, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 233 (both distinguishing revival of a barred debt from continuation of old obligation through a new period)].

For a form of allegation of partial payments extending the period of limitation, see § 345.84. For discussion of revival of a barred debt, see § 345.24.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Statute of Limitations

30-345 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 345.24

§ 345.24 Revival of Barred Debt by Promise or Acknowledgment After Expiration of Period of Limitation

[1] Revival of Barred Debt

An acknowledgment of or a promise to pay a debt after an action on the debt has become barred by a statute of limitation can revive the debt. Either an acknowledgment or a promise is sufficient [Western Coal & Mining Co. v. Jones (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 819, 822, 167 P.2d 719 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 360] as long as it is made to the creditor [Biddel v. Brizzolara(1883) 64 Cal. 354, 355, 30 P. 609] or to an agent who was, and whom the debtor knew to be, authorized to contract on the creditor's behalf with reference to the debt [see In re Estate of Azevedo (1936) 17 Cal. App. 2d 710, 712, 62 P.2d 1058 ; Visher v. Wilbur (1907) 5 Cal. App. 562, 569-570, 90 P. 1065] .

For a form of allegation of a promise or acknowledgment reviving a barred debt, see § 345.85.

[2] Effect of Partial Payment After Debt Barred

When a debt is barred by the statute of limitations, payment on account of principal or interest due on a promissory note, made by the party to be charged, is not of itself sufficient to revive the cause of action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 360; Eilke v. Rice (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 66, 73, 286 P.2d 349 ; Kaichen's Metal Mart, Inc. v. Ferro Cast Co. (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 8, 15, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 233] .

For discussion of extension of the period of limitation on a promissory note by partial payment before the debt is barred, see § 345.23.

[3] Elements of Promise of Acknowledgment

[a] Consideration

An existing debt is sufficient consideration to support a new promise to pay, whether expressed or implied from an acknowledgment, even though an action on the debt may be barred by a statute of imitation [see Easton v. Ash (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 530, 534-535, 116 P.2d 433 (restating rule)]. This rule applies only to the case of a promise or an acknowledgment by the debtor, however. A promise or an acknowledgment by someone who was not liable, either as debtor or as surety, while the debt was enforceable, lacks consideration (for example, an acknowledgment of debt by the debtor's widow) [see Sullivan v. Sullivan (1893) 99 Cal. 187, 193, 33 P. 862] .

[b] Writing

[i] Requirement of Written Promise or Acknowledgment

No particular form of promise or acknowledgment is prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 360 [Searles v. Gonzalez (1923) 191 Cal. 426, 430, 216 P. 1003] . The statute requires only that the promise or acknowledgment be in writing and signed by the party to be charged. The purpose of this requirement is to establish a rule with respect to the kind of evidence necessary to prove the promise or acknowledgment, not with respect to the character of the promise or of the acknowledgment from which a promise may be inferred [Easton v. Ash (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 530, 536, 116 P.2d 433] .

A writing is sufficient if it shows that the writer treats the indebtedness as subsisting and as one which the debtor is liable and willing to pay [Searles v. Gonzalez (1923) 191 Cal. 426, 430, 216 P. 1003 ; see also Rounthwaite v. Rounthwaite (1902) 6 CU 878, 883, 68 P. 304 (estoppel in pais as not applicable to excuse noncompliance with requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 360 of writing)].

[ii] Reference to Debt

No writing is sufficient as an acknowledgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 360 unless it contains some reference to the debt which, either by itself or with the aid of evidence of extrinsic facts in explanation, amounts to an admission that there is a debt existing to the creditor to whom the writing is addressed, which the debtor is liable and willing to pay [see Clunin v. First Fed. Trust Co. (1922) 189 Cal. 248, 253-254, 207 P. 1009 (reviewing cases)]. The reference to the debt must be either a specification of the amount due or a reference to some fact by which that amount can be definitely and certainly ascertained [see Outwaters v. Brownlee (1913) 22 Cal. App. 535, 539, 135 P. 300] .

[iii] Language of Promise

A promise, within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 360, is plainly what that word imports, namely an engagement to pay the debt [Western Coal & Mining Co. v. Jones (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 819, 822, 167 P.2d 719] .

The Commercial Code provides that a promise is a written undertaking to pay and an acknowledgment of an obligation by the obligor is not a promise unless the obligor also undertakes to pay [Com. Code § 3103(a)(9)]. This definition relates to commercial paper but is obviously applicable to a case involving revival of a debt; however, the distinction between a promise and an acknowledgment is not significant in such a case because Code Civ. Proc. § 360 provides for either a promise or an acknowledgment.

[iv] Language of Acknowledgment

The acknowledgment must be unqualified and unconditional; that is, while the law will imply a promise to pay from a bare acknowledgment, it will not be sufficient if there are circumstances showing an unwillingness to pay or refuting an intent to contract to pay [Western Coal & Mining Co. v. Jones (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 819, 822-823, 167 P.2d 719] .

A promise not to assert a statute of limitation in defense, whether made before or after a debt is barred, does not amount to an acknowledgment. However, where such a promise is made, there may be found in the context something further which will amount to an acknowledgment [see Carlston v. Shenson (1941) 47 Cal. App. 2d 52, 58-59, 117 P.2d 408] .

[v] Signed by Party to Be Charged

No promise or acknowledgment is sufficient evidence of a new or continuing contract, by which to take the case out of the operation of Code Civ. Proc. § 312 et seq. (statutes of limitation), unless it is contained in some writing, signed by the party to be charged thereby [Code Civ. Proc. § 360].

Because the writing must be signed by the party to be charged, a barred action on a surety's obligation is not revived by the debtor's new promise or acknowledgment [see Easton v. Ash (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 530, 538, 116 P.2d 433 (acts by principal obligor do not suspend running of period of limitation as to guarantor, absent contrary provision in guaranty contract); Brock v. Western Nat'l Indem. Co. (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 10, 16, 281 P.2d 571 (agreement between debtor and creditor extending time to pay debt did not affect running of period of limitation on action on surety's bond where surety was not party to extension agreement)].

[vi] By One of Joint Obligors

In general, the promise of one of several joint obligors cannot revive, as against the others, a cause of action barred by a statute of limitation, nor can it suspend, as to the others, the running of the period of limitation [State Loan & Trust Co. v. Cochran (1900) 130 Cal. 245, 255, 62 P. 466 ; Searles v. Gonzalez (1923) 191 Cal. 426, 434, 216 P. 1003] . There are exceptions, however; for example, a partner's acknowledgment made in the course of business and before dissolution of the partnership has been held binding on the other partners where it was made before the period of limitation had expired [Furlow P.B. Co. v. Balboa L. & W. Co. (1921) 186 Cal. 754, 766-767, 200 P. 625] . There appears to be no reason why the other partners would not also be bound by such an acknowledgment made after the period of limitation has expired.

[vii] By Personal Representative of Decedent's Estate

The Probate Code provides that no claim which is barred by a statute of limitation may be allowed or approved by the personal representative of the decedent's estate [Prob. Code § 9253(b)]. The personal representative has no authority to waive the defense of bar of a statute of limitation [Reay v. Heazelton (1900) 128 Cal. 335, 338-339, 60 P. 977] ; therefore, it appears that the personal representative has no authority to make an acknowledgment or a promise which will revive a barred debt.

[c] Later Action Is Based on New Obligation

If the period of limitation on an action based on a debt has expired when a new agreement respecting the debt is made, then an action thereafter is based on the new promise [Easton v. Ash (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 530, 535, 116 P.2d 433] .

An acknowledgment made after the statutory period of limitation has expired as to the original debt constitutes a new promise, even though the promise is merely implied from the acknowledgment [Vassere v. Joerger (1938) 10 Cal. 2d 689, 693, 76 P.2d 656] . In other words, the acknowledgment of a debt as to which an action is already barred by a statute of limitation gives rise to a new contact and a new cause of action dating from the acknowledgment [see Eilke v. Rice (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 66, 73, 286 P.2d 349 ; Kaichen's Metal Mart, Inc. v. Ferro Cast Co. (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 8, 15, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 233] .

30-345 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 345.25

§ 345.25 Relation Back of Amended Complaint for Purposes of Statute of Limitations

[1] Complaint Relates Back if Recovery Based on Same General Set of Facts

An amended complaint relates back to the filing of the original complaint and thus avoids the bar of the statute of limitations, so long as both pleadings (1) rest on the same general set of facts, (2) involve the same injury, and (3) refer to the same instrumentality [Norgart v. Upjohn Co. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 383, 409, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 453, 981 P.2d 79 ; cf. Smeltzley v. Nicholson Mfg. Co. (1977) 18 Cal. 3d 932, 934, 939-940, 136 Cal. Rptr. 269, 559 P.2d 624 (amended complaint relates back to filing of original complaint if recovery is sought on same general set of facts; amended complaint related back when original complaint asserted injuries were caused by dangerous condition of employers' premises and amended complaint identified that condition as defective machine manufactured by defendant); Austin v. Massachusetts Bonding & Insurance Co. (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 596, 600-603, 15 Cal. Rptr. 817, 364 P.2d 681 ; see Woo v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 169, 176, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20 (general rule is that amended complaint that adds new defendant does not relate back to date of filing original complaint unless exception to general rule for substitution of new defendant for fictitiously named defendant under Code Civ. Proc. § 474 applies); Boyle v. City of Redondo Beach (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1109, 1119, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 164 (amended complaint relates back to original complaint and avoids statute of limitations as bar only if it (1) rests on same set of general facts as original complaint, and (2) refers to same accident and same injuries as original complaint); Winding Creek v. McGlashan (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 933, 940, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 236 (defendant whose name has been substituted for fictitiously named defendant regarded as party from commencement of suit provided complaint is not amended to seek relief on different theory based on general set of facts other than those set out in original complaint)].

Situations in which an amended complaint has been held to relate back include the following:

- Original complaint for refusal to deliver securities and money received by defendants as agent for plaintiff; amendment substituting insurance company for a fictitious defendant and stating cause of action on surety bond [Austin v. Massachusetts Bonding & Insurance Co. (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 596, 600-603, 15 Cal. Rptr. 817, 364 P.2d 681] .

- Original complaint against employer for personal injury based on providing unsafe workplace; amended complaint alleged that plaintiff's injuries resulted from defective machine manufactured by new defendant whose name was substituted for Doe defendant [Smeltzley v. Nicholson Mfg. Co. (1977) 18 Cal. 3d 932, 934, 939 n.1, 136 Cal. Rptr. 299, 559 P.2d 624] .

- Original complaint against employer based on respondeat superior; amendment added cause of action based on employer's negligence in continuing to employ negligent employee [Grudt v. City of Los Angeles (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 575, 583-585, 86 Cal. Rptr. 465, 468 P.2d 825] .

- First amended complaint for negligence in relation to construction accident in San Joaquin County; amendment to first amended complaint changed location to Napa County [Idding v. North Bay Construction Co. (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 1111, 1113, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 149] .

- Original complaint against vehicle operator; amendment added cause of action against manufacturer of vehicle who was substituted for a fictitiously named defendant [Garrett v. Crown Coach Corp. (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 647, 651, 66 Cal. Rptr. 590] .

Application of this basic principle in specific situations is addressed immediately below.

[2] Same Parties

[a] Changing Legal Theory

An amendment that does nothing more than express a change of legal theory underlying the original complaint is allowable, even if additional incidental facts are alleged. As long as the defendant's act for which the plaintiff seeks recovery is the same, and as long as the primary right which the plaintiff alleges to have been violated is the same, the amendment may be held to be based on the same general set of facts [Grudt v. City of Los Angeles (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 575, 584, 86 Cal. Rptr. 465, 468 P.2d 825] .

The amended complaint will be deemed filed as of the date of the original complaint if recovery is sought in both pleadings on the same general set of facts and if the defendant is not prejudiced by the late filing of the amended complaint. If the rights at issue in the amended complaint have been at issue, in one form or another, from the beginning of the litigation, both sets of pleadings should be deemed to arise out of the same general sets of facts [Wilson v. Bittick (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 30, 37-39, 45 Cal. Rptr.31, 403 P.2d 159 (amended complaint, alleging trespass over wider area than original complaint alleged, held to relate back to original complaint)].

[b] Adding Facts

When there is no attempt to state a new cause of action in an amended complaint and the purpose of the amendment is merely to add matters essential to make the original cause of action complete, the amendment relates back to the time of the commencement of the action even if the amendment is made after the period of limitation has expired [Stockwell v. McAlvay (1937) 10 Cal. 2d 368, 375, 74 P.2d 504] .

[c] Adding Damages

An amended complaint alleging special damages not mentioned in the original complaint may relate back to the original complaint as long as the special damages are the result of the injury alleged in the original complaint [Walton v. Guinn (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1354, 1362, 232 Cal. Rptr. 451] .

[d] Changing Caption or Prayer

An amendment in which the only changes of substance are in the caption or the prayer does not state a new cause of action. The subject matter of an action and the issues involved are determinable from the facts pleaded, rather than from the title or the prayer [Coffelt v. Coffelt (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 659, 665, 40 Cal. Rptr. 513] .

Thus, an amendment of the complaint for the purpose of changing the relief prayed for has no effect on whether the complaint was originally filed within the period of limitation, if it does not state a new cause of action or bring in new parties [Kent v. San Francisco Sav. Union (1900) 130 Cal. 401, 406, 62 P. 620] .

[3] New Plaintiff

[a] Correction of Technical Defect

When leave is sought to substitute a new plaintiff based on a technical defect in the plaintiff's status, such as an honest mistake in the naming of the party, courts will generally allow an amendment; however, courts will not allow an amendment that interjects a new party into the litigation for the first time under the guise of a misnomer [compare California Air Resources Bd. v. Hart (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 289, 301, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 153 (amendment to name State of California as plaintiff appropriate as technical amendment not affecting nature of the action) with Diliberti v. Stage Call Corp. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1468, 1471, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 563 (no substitution of a passenger for driver as plaintiff when original complaint did not mention existence of passenger); see also Cloud v. NorthropGrumman Corp. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 995, 1000, 1004-1008, 1011, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 544 (leave to amend to either substitute as plaintiff real party in interest, the bankruptcy trustee, or to obtain trustee's abandonment, did not change substantive cause of action and should have been granted; change one of form rather than substance)].

Whether an amendment to the complaint to change a party's name may relate back to avoid the statute of limitations depends on whether the nature of the action is substantially changed; it does not depend on whether the parties are technically or substantially changed [see Cloud v. Northrop Grumman Corp. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 995, 1000, 1006-1008, 1011, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 544 ; California Air Resources Bd. v. Hart (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 289, 300, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 153] .

For discussion of amending pleadings to correct an error in a party's name, see Ch. 21, Amended Pleadings, § 21.13[1][a].

[b] Alleging Different Legal Theory

When a new plaintiff, joining in a suit brought before the statute of limitations has run against the original plaintiff, seeks to enforce an independent right, the amended pleading does not relate back [Parker v. Superior Court (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 1082, 1088-1091, 223 Cal. Rptr. 292 (survival action of decedent under former Prob. Code § 573 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.10 et seq.) seeks to enforce independent right of independent entity, the estate, and is not the same as wrongful death action pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 377 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60 et seq.), and cannot relate back when limitation period has run); Dominguez v. City of Alhambra (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 237, 243, 173 Cal. Rptr. 345 (widow who had timely filed wrongful death action in her capacity as spouse's heir could not, in her capacity as administrator of his estate, add cause of action for injuries spouse sustained before his death when that limitations period had expired); Bartalo v. Superior Court (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 526, 533, 124 Cal. Rptr. 370 (husband unable to add loss of consortium cause of action after expiration of period of limitation to timely brought personal injury case of wife)].

[4] New Defendant

[a] Substituting True Name for Fictitiously Named Defendant

[i] Generally Avoids Statute of Limitations

A party sued by a fictitious name and later brought into the proceeding by an amendment substituting his or her true name for the fictitious name is considered a party to the proceeding from its commencement for the purposes of the statute of limitations [Austin v. Massachusetts Bonding & Ins. Co. (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 596, 600, 15 Cal. Rptr. 817]. An amended pleading may rest on a different legal theory and state a different cause of action, even against a defendant not named in the original complaint, and still "relate back" to the time the original complaint was filed if the plaintiff seeks recovery for the same accident and the same injuries. Reflecting a policy decision in favor of deciding cases on their merits, courts have gradually broadened the parties' right to amend a pleading without incurring the bar of the statute of limitations [Smeltzley v. Nicholson Mfg. Co., (1977) 18 Cal. 3d 932, 934-940, 136 Cal. Rptr. 269, 559 P.2d 624] . For example, an amended pleading relates back if it seeks to bring in a defendant who is in the chain of causation of the original pleading, even if the particular facts concerning the new defendant were not set forth in the original pleading [Olson v. Volkswagen of America (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 1437, 1442-1443, 247 Cal. Rptr. 719 (amendment related back when original complaint was against driver of motor vehicle and manufacturers of components of automobile, and amended complaint added causes of action against manufacturer of automobile on warranty and products liability theories)].

The new defendant needs no previously established relationship with the original defendant in order for the amended complaint to relate back to the original complaint. For example, an amended complaint substituting a neighboring tavern for Doe defendant and alleging negligence in continuing to serve alcohol to an obviously intoxicated, armed person was held to relate back to the date of the original wrongful death complaint alleging that owners of a different tavern failed to warn patrons of risk created by assailant's presence [see Barnes v. Wilson (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 199, 202-205, 114 Cal. Rptr. 839] . However, unless the original complaint set forth or attempted to set forth some cause of action against the fictitiously named defendant, the amended pleading will not relate back even if a plaintiff has met the other requirements of Doe pleading [Winding Creek v. McGlashan (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 933, 940-941, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 236 (original complaint must allege Doe defendants were in some way responsible for acts of which plaintiff complains; allegations in complaint satisfied requirement; charging allegations satisfying requirement discussed)].

For further discussion of relation back of amended pleadings, see [1], above.

[ii] Ignorance of True Name Requirement

For an amendment substituting the true name of a defendant to relate back to the original date of filing, the plaintiff must actually be ignorant of the identity of the fictitiously named defendant at the time that the complaint is filed. Ignorance of identity has not been interpreted literally. Ignorance includes a situation in which the plaintiff knew the identity of the person but was ignorant of the facts constituting a cause of action against that person. It has also been extended to a situation in which the plaintiff knew the identity of the person and all of the facts, but was unaware that the law provided a cause of action against the person and discovered that right by reason of decisions rendered after the commencement of the action [Hazel v. Hewlett (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 1458, 1464, 247 Cal. Rptr. 723] . Code Civ. Proc. § 474 is to be liberally construed [General Motors Corp. v. Superior Court (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 580, 593, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 871] .

The ignorance must be real and not feigned. A plaintiff must actually be ignorant of the crucial information at the time that the complaint was filed. Unless the evidence demonstrates that the plaintiff willfully or intentionally misused Code Civ. Proc. § 474, a plaintiff's failure to inquire as to the defendant's name or identity will not bar the statute's application [see Balon v. Drost (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 483, 487-490, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12 (noting that the Supreme Court, in Irving v. Carpentier (1886) 70 Cal. 23, 26, 11 P. 391 , has expressly concluded that Code Civ. Proc. § 474 imposes no duty of inquiry on the plaintiff); see also General Motors Corp. v. Superior Court (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 580, 596, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 871 (Section 474 does not impose on plaintiff duty to go in search of facts plaintiff does not have at time plaintiff files original pleading)].

In Balon, a plaintiff who forgot the name of a known defendant before filing the complaint was not precluded from adding the defendant under Code Civ. Proc. § 464 after the statute of limitations expired even though the defendant's name could have been easily ascertained from a public accident report. The forgetfulness was deemed a nonfeigned ignorance of the defendant's identity. The court noted that a plaintiff may act unreasonably in failing to ascertain a defendant's name and still claim the benefit of Code Civ. Proc. § 474 [Balon v. Drost (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 483, 488-490, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12 (First Dist., Div. Two)] . There is contrary authority, however, that has rejected Balon and held that if a plaintiff knows the defendant's identity and then forgets it at the time the complaint is filed, in order to use the Code Civ. Proc. § 474 relation back doctrine to avoid the bar of the statute of limitations the plaintiff must have at least reviewed readily available information likely to refresh his or her memory. If the defendant cannot be identified from readily available information Section 474 is available. If the defendant can be identified from the readily available information Section 474 is unavailable [Woo v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 169, 179-180, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20 (Fourth Dist., Div. One)] .

The ignorance required by Code Civ. Proc. § 474 is ignorance of facts giving rise to a cause of action. The pivotal question is, "did plaintiff know facts?" not "did plaintiff know or believe that plaintiff had a cause of action based on those facts?" [General Motors Corp. v. Superior Court (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 580, 594, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 871 ; Hazel v. Hewlett (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 1458, 1464-1465] . The question of the plaintiff's good faith in this regard is for the determination of the trial court [Hazel v. Hewlett (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 1458, 1464-1465] .

While it is true plaintiff's ignorance of the defendant's name must be genuine (in good faith) and not feigned and that a plaintiff need not be aware of each and every detail concerning a person's involvement before the plaintiff loses the element of plaintiff's ignorance, it is equally true that the plaintiff does not relinquish plaintiff's rights under Section 474 simply because the plaintiff has a suspicion of wrongdoing arising from one or more facts that the plaintiff does not know. To defeat a claim of ignorance, it must be shown that the plaintiff had actual knowledge of the basic facts. The distinction between suspicion that some cause of action could exist and a factual basis to believe a cause exists is critical to the operation of Section 474. The distinction turns on when the plaintiff has knowledge of sufficient facts to cause a reasonable person to believe liability is probable [General Motors Corp. v. Superior Court (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 580, 594-595, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 871 ; see Fuller v. Tucker (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 1163, 1172, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 776 (trial court improperly applied duty to investigate standard that applies to determine accrual of a cause of action rather than standard articulated in General Motors Corp.)].

If the plaintiff is aware of the facts and defendant's name, an amended complaint correcting a party's name will not relate back to avoid the statute of limitations [see Stephens v. Berry (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 474, 479, 57 Cal. Rptr. 505 (no substitution of person who rear-ended plaintiff's car for defendant plaintiff's car rear-ended)]. For example, when the plaintiff has the identity of the driver who rear-ended plaintiff's vehicle and of the driver plaintiff's vehicle was pushed into and mistakenly names as the defendant the driver of the car he was pushed into, section 474 cannot be used to substitute the correct driver as defendant because plaintiff lacked the necessary ignorance [Stephens v. Berry (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 474, 479, 57 Cal. Rptr. 505 (also holding the error was not correctable a mere misnomer)].

For further discussion, see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used .

[iii] Effect of Prejudice From Undue Delay

A defendant who is brought into an action by amendment substituting a real for a fictitious name may avoid a relation back by showing actual prejudice resulting from unreasonable delay in filing the amendment. However, a lack of prejudice alone does not allow the addition of a new defendant by amendment after the statute of limitations has run if the plaintiff was not truly ignorant of the crucial information at the time the original complaint was filed [Hazel v. Hewlett (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 1458, 1466, 247 Cal. Rptr. 723] .

[iv] Procedure

When amending a pleading stating a different cause of action against a defendant not originally named, the plaintiff should substitute a defendant's true name for a fictitious one alleged in the original pleading, a practice long permitted despite the expiration of the limitations period before the amended pleading is filed [see Austin v. Massachusetts Bonding & Insurance Co. (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 596, 599-603, 15 Cal. Rptr. 817, 364 P.2d 681 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 474].

If a new defendant is added by an amended complaint, but is not served with the original complaint as a fictitiously named defendant and substituted in place of a fictitiously named defendant, the amended pleading as to that defendant does not relate back to the filing of the original complaint [see Liberty Transport, Inc. v. Harry W. Gorst Co. (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 417, 428, 280 Cal. Rptr. 159 (disapproved on other grounds, Adams v. Murakami (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 105, 115-116, 284 Cal. Rptr. 318, 813 P.2d 1348)]. However, courts have considered noncompliance with the party substitution requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 474 as a procedural defect that could be cured and have been lenient in permitting rectification of defect. Thus, when plaintiff's amended complaint adds a defendant without identifying the defendant as a substitute for a previously named fictitious defendant and summons is served on the defendant identified as being sued as an individual defendant, not as a defendant previously sued under a fictitious name, the noncompliance with Code Civ. Proc. § 474 procedural requirements may not foreclose consideration of plaintiff's relation back contention [Woo v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 169, 176-177, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20 (noting that in other cases court may require strict compliance and cautioning counsel to follow correct procedure for substituting named defendant for fictitious Doe defendant)].

For forms of amended complaint substituting a defendant for a fictitious defendant, see Ch. 21, Amended Pleadings, § 21.65 et seq.

[b] Estoppel of Defendant From Raising Bar of Limitations Period

The equitable estoppel doctrine applies and an amendment for the purpose of avoiding a bar by the statute of limitations is allowed if the plaintiff establishes that the defendant was aware of the limitation period, that he or she intended that the plaintiff should rely on his or her conduct or statements, that the plaintiff was ignorant of the true facts, and that the plaintiff relied on the defendant's conduct or statements to his or her detriment [Kleinecke v. Montecito Water Dist. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 240, 245-247, 195 Cal. Rptr. 58] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Estoppel from Raising Bar of Limitations Period. Plaintiff serves a wrongly named defendant with a complaint. The attorney for the wrongly named defendant also represents the true defendant. After consulting with the true defendant and determining not to inform plaintiff of the error, the attorney responds to the complaint with an answer on behalf of the wrongly named defendant, thus lulling the plaintiff into believing that the proper defendant had been served. The plaintiff learns of the mistake after the statute of limitations had passed. May plaintiff now amend his complaint to include the proper defendant? Yes. The defendant should be estopped from asserting the statute of limitations. Defense counsel filed an answer which served to divert plaintiff counsel's attention away from the statute of limitation and was given effective notice of the action before the passing of the statute of limitations [see Kleinecke v. Montecito Water Dist. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 240, 245-47, 195 Cal. Rptr. 58] .

For further discussion, see § 345.22, above, and for a form of allegation that defendant is estopped from raising the bar of the statute of limitations and additional discussion, see § 345.81.

[c] Successor of Party

As a general rule, the statute of limitations provides no defense to the successor of a party timely sued [Hutnick v.

United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 456, 467, 253 Cal. Rptr. 236, 763 P.2d 1326 (citing former Code Civ. Proc. § 385 (now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 368.5, 375); Code Civ. Proc. § 1908)]. Thus when an individual defendant dies or becomes incompetent, title to property at issue is transferred, or a corporate defendant is merged or dissolved, the substitution of a representative or successor in place of the named defendant may not be challenged on the ground that the statute of limitations has expired as to the representative or successor [Hutnick v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 456, 467, 253 Cal. Rptr. 236, 763 P.2d 1326 ; for discussion, see Ch. 21, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings, § 21.27].

Similarly, the surety on a mechanics' lien release bond who is joined by amendment as a party defendant to an action to foreclose the lien may not assert the statute of limitations (Civ. Code § 3144.5) as a defense to an action to foreclose on the bond when the action to foreclose on the property subject to the lien was timely filed against the principal on the bond. Although there is no direct substitution of parties, the situation is similar in that the release bond was substituted in place of the liened property after the cause of action accrued, and the new party's liability is premised on the substitution [Hutnick v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 456, 460, 466-467, 253 Cal. Rptr. 236, 763 P.2d 1326 ; for discussion of mechanics' liens, see Ch. 361, Mechanics' Liens].

[5] Curing Variance of Proof

An amendment for the purpose of curing a variance between allegations and proof, if the cause of action is not changed, has no effect on whether the action was originally filed within the period of limitation. As to that issue, such an amendment relates back to the time when the complaint was originally filed [see Smullen v. Phillips (1891) 92 Cal. 408, 411, 28 P. 442] .

§ 345.26 Supplemental Complaints

The relation back doctrine can apply to supplemental, as well as amended complaints. Whether a supplemental complaint may encompass the entire period following commencement of suit depends on the nature of the claims raised in the supplemental pleading. If the claims are unrelated to those alleged in the initial complaint or rely on conduct or events different from those involved in the original action, the statute of limitations should be applied. If however, the original pleading gave notice that the alleged wrongful conduct was of a continuing nature, supplemental pleadings addressed to the same conduct should not encounter statute of limitation questions [Bendix Corp. v. City of Los Angeles (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 921, 925-926, 198 Cal. Rptr. 370 (disagreeing with ITT Gilfillan, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 581, 589, 185 Cal. Rptr. 848 to the extent that case appears to have concluded that supplemental and amended pleadings must always be accorded different treatment regardless of the circumstances of the individual case)].

§ 345.27 New Action After Termination of Previous Action

[1] Reversal of Judgment for Plaintiff

If an action is commenced within the time prescribed therefor and a judgment therein for the plaintiff is reversed on appeal other than on the merits, a new action may be commenced within one year after the reversal [Code Civ. Proc. § 355]. While the language of Code Civ. Proc. § 355 is not so clear and definite as it might be, it must be construed as permitting a new action of any kind having as its objective the same relief as was obtained in the original action [Kenney v. Parks (1902) 137 Cal. 527, 530, 70 P. 556 (construing statute before its 1992 amendment)].

The extended period provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 355 can be used to save an action that was originally filed in another state, either when a judgment for the plaintiff was reversed on appeal or when a diligent plaintiff was denied a judgment on the merits and a new action was thereafter begun in California within one year. This is true even though the period of limitation has expired under California law [see Schneider v. Schimmels (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 366, 370, 64 Cal. Rptr. 273 (overruled on other grounds in Wood v. Elling Corp. (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 353, 362 n.7, 142 Cal. Rptr. 696, 572 P.2d 755)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 355 does not apply if judgment for the plaintiff is reversed on appeal and the cause is remanded for a new trial. That is, if on the retrial the plaintiff loses and the period of limitation on his or her cause of action has run, but less than one year has elapsed since the appellate court reversed and remanded, the plaintiff nevertheless has no right under Code Civ. Proc. § 355 to commence a new action [see Watterson v. Owens River Canal Co. (1922) 190 Cal. 88, 95, 210 P. 625] . The rationale is apparently that the new trial is tantamount to obtaining the benefits of Code Civ. Proc. § 355 by commencing a new action. If the rule were otherwise, then a plaintiff might have two chances to obtain a verdict where in fairness he should have only one. For a form alleging circumstances tolling the period of limitation on this basis, see § 345.79.

[2] Involuntary Dismissal

Code Civ. Proc. § 355 [see discussion under [1], above] protects a plaintiff who has mistaken his or her remedy if he or she was awarded a judgment in the first instance and then was defeated on appeal. The section is designed to ensure to the diligent suitor the right to have a hearing in court, as often as is necessary, until he or she reaches a judgment on the merits. The protection of that section should extend, at least, to a plaintiff who has not mistaken his or her remedy, but who was not allowed, through error of the trial court, to proceed to a trial on the merits [compare former Code Civ. Proc. § 355 with Code Civ. Proc. § 355 as amended by 1992 legislation (amendment made section applicable if judgment on appeal is reversed "other than on the merits"); see Bollinger v. National Fire Ins. Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 399, 409-410, 411, 154 P.2d 399 (construing statute before its 1992 amendment when section, if construed literally, would have applied in event of any reversal on appeal)]. However, if the plaintiff suffers an involuntary dismissal because of a lack of prosecution and there was no error in granting the motion to dismiss, the failure to secure a trial on the merits will likely be seen as a result of the plaintiff's, or his or her attorney's, own neglect. In such a case, if the period of limitation has expired before an action is again commenced, the new action is barred [see Tannhauser v. Adams (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 169, 177-178, 187 P.2d 716 ; Neff v. New York Life Ins. Co. (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 165, 174, 180 P.2d 900 ; Stuckman v. Woodhull (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 424, 426-427, 338 P.2d 934] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Statute of Limitations

30-345 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 345.28

§ 345.28 Waiving Bar of Statute

[1] By Private Agreement

[a] Predispute Agreement

There is no distinction to be made on the ground of public policy between the right of a party to waive the plea of bar of a statute of limitations as a defense to an action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 360.5], and his or her right to waive, by private agreement before the fact, a portion of the time granted by the applicable statute for commencement of an action [Tebbets v. Fidelity & Cas. Co. (1909) 155 Cal. 137, 139, 99 P. 501] . Hence, the parties to a contract may stipulate in the contract for a period of limitation shorter than that fixed by the applicable statute; this does not violate public policy if the period fixed is not so unreasonable as to show imposition or undue advantage in some way [Beeson v. Schloss (1920) 183 Cal. 618, 622, 192 P. 292 ; see Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners v. American Medical Internat., Inc. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1532, 1547-1548, 1549 n.17, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 33] .

The question whether an agreed upon period of limitation is in itself unreasonable is a question of law. Generally, that question must be decided as of the date when the contract was made. Financial considerations usually are irrelevant, and the fact that the agreed-on period of limitation operates as to the claims of one party but not of the other does not make the period unreasonable. However, unreasonableness may be shown by the fact that the time when the agreed upon period begins is fluctuating, vague, and indefinite. If the party in whose favor the agreed upon period operates is engaged in a business or an activity of a quasi-public nature, the agreement as to the shortened period will not be viewed in the same light as an agreement between private parties in general [Capehart v. Heady (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 386, 388-391, 23 Cal. Rptr. 851] .

[b] Construction of Agreements

Contractual stipulations limiting the right to sue to a period shorter than that granted by a statute are looked on with disfavor and should be strictly construed, although this rule cannot be used to destroy the effect of the words of the contract itself. However, this rule is a general rule of law which should not be used to destroy the effect of a more specific rule of law that applies to the case [Sanders v. American Casualty Co. (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 306, 309, 74

Cal. Rptr. 634] . A contractual stipulation to limit a statute of limitations must be clear and explicit, and is to be strictly construed against the party invoking the provision [Western Filter Corp. v. Argan, Inc. (9th Cir. 2008) 540 F.3d 947, 2008 U.S. App. LEXIS 18147].

[c] Formal Requirements Where Defense Barred

A waiver designed to bar a defense to an action which is based on the fact that the action was not commenced within the time limitations prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 312 et seq. is not valid unless it is in writing and is signed by the person obligated [Code Civ Proc. § 360.5]. A waiver of statute of limitations may also be valid if signed by the authorized agent of the person obligated [Carlton Browne & Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 35, 46, 258 Cal. Rptr. 118 (written waiver signed by corporate defendant's attorney-agent)].

[d] Extension of Limitation Period

Similarly, parties to a contract may agree to extend the statute of limitations, although with some limitations [Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners v. American Medical Internat., Inc. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1532, 1547-1548, 1549 n.17, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 33 ; cf. Com. Code § 2725(1) (four-year limitation period for breach of a sales contract cannot be extended by agreement, but can be shortened to not less than one year)].

Older cases have held that private agreements regarding a limitation period may be upheld even where the effect of the agreement is that a party waives forever his right to plead the bar of the applicable statute [see Brownrigg v. deFrees (1925) 196 Cal. 534, 546, 238 P. 714] . However, since the 1951 enactment of Code Civ. Proc. § 360.5, it is not possible to effect a "perpetual waiver" unless it is done in successive periods of four years each.

Section 360.5 provides in part that no waiver executed prior to the expiration of the time limited for the commencement of the action by Code Civ. Proc. § 312 et seq. may be effective for a period exceeding four years from the date of expiration of the statutory period, and no waiver executed after the expiration of such time may be effective for a period exceeding four years from the date thereof; however, any such waiver may be renewed for a further period of not exceeding four years from the expiration of the immediately preceding waiver. Such waivers may be made successively [Code Civ. Proc. § 360.5; see Carlton Browne & Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 35, 40-46, 258 Cal. Rptr. 118 (legislative intent discussed); but see Com. Code § 2725(1) which provides that four-year limitation period for breach of a sales contract cannot be extended by agreement)].

[e] Indirect Effect on Limitation

A private agreement may have an indirect effect on the period of limitation, either lengthening or shortening it. For example, if the right of a party to a contract to bring an action based on it depends on his (1) demanding that some other person, such as a trustee, bring an action, and (2) waiting a specified time until this demand has been complied with or disregarded, then the time elapsing between the demand (assuming it is made before the period of limitation has expired) and the failure to comply with it should not be part of the period of limitation [see California Safe Deposit & Trust Co. v. Sierra Valleys Ry. Co. (1910) 158 Cal. 690, 697, 112 P. 274] .

[f] Between Parties to Existing Controversy

Parties to a controversy may enter into an agreement to forego the statute of limitation for a definite period, and such an agreement may operate as an estoppel to a plea of bar of the statute [Kemper v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1918) 177 Cal. 618, 620, 171 P. 426] .

[g] Effect on Persons Other Than Parties to Agreement

Although parties may contract to extend the limitations period, such an agreement has no effect on other potential parties with whom no privity exists [FNB Mortgage Corp. v. Pacific General Group (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1116, 1121, 1129-1131, 1135-1136, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841 (defendant's tolling agreement with plaintiff did not extend defendant's time to file cross complaint against developer for indemnity)].

A person who is not a party to the agreement that provides a special limitation period can nevertheless be bound by it, even if he was not aware of the existence or contents of the agreement until after the agreed-upon period expired. An example is a third-party beneficiary, who must take the contract as he finds it if he wants to have benefits under it [see Sanders v. American Casualty Co. (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 306, 308-310, 74 Cal. Rptr. 634 ; see also Kaichen's Metal Mart, Inc. v. Ferro Cast Co. (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 8, 14-16, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 233 (agreement to extend statute of limitations made between senior secured lienholder creditor and its debtor before limitation period had expired in which debtor acknowledged debt, agreed to pay it and waived statute of limitations and senior secured lienholder agreed to forebear from instituting suit against debtor binding on junior lienholder; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 360, 360.5 construed)].

[2] By Conduct

[a] Writing Not Required; Silence

It is not necessary in all cases that a waiver of the defense of bar of a statute of limitation should be in writing. The conduct, or even the silence, of a party may, under some circumstances, create an equitable estoppel (in other words, prove the fact of a waiver) which would deprive that party of his right to plead the bar of the applicable statute [Atlas Fin. Corp. v. Kenny (1945) 68 Cal. App. 2d 504, 517, 157 P.2d 401] .

[b] Inconsistent Action

A defendant who, before suit was begun, acted inconsistently with a claim of bar of a statute of limitation may be held to have waived his right to plead that defense [see Lerner v. Los Angeles City Board of Education (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 382, 396, 29 Cal. Rptr. 657, 380 P.2d 97 (action of defendant board in restoring plaintiff's teaching credential without raising defense of statute of limitation as waiver)]. However, since waiver implies a voluntary and informed relinquishment of a right, such a case probably involves not waiver but estoppel [see Church v. Public Utilities Com. (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 399, 401, 333 P.2d 321 ; Isaacson v. Oakland (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 414, 419, 69 Cal. Rptr. 379] .

[3] By Failure to Plead

The defense of the statute of limitations is typically waived by failure to plead, or to adequately plead, the defense [see Hall v. Chamberlain (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 673, 679-680, 192 P.2d 759 ; Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners v. American Medical Internat., Inc. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1532, 1548, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 33 (once sued, defendant who does not timely raise limitations defense waives defense no matter how long plaintiff has delayed); Stalberg v. Western Title Ins. Co. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1223, 1232 (statute of limitations defense not raised in trial court waived and not subject to being raised on appeal)].

[4] Persons in Privity

As long as there is no conflict of interest between persons in privity, a waiver by (and probably, also, an estoppel against) one of them with respect to the defense of bar of a statute of limitations is binding on the other or others [Lerner v. Los Angeles City Board of Education (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 382, 397 ns.8, 9, 29 Cal. Rptr. 657, 380 P.2d 97] .

In applying this rule, privity does not depend on whether the parties constitute independent legal entities; for example, successive owners of property may assume a relationship of privity although they are independent legal persons. A determination of whether privity exists requires an examination of the circumstances of each case. In general, however, privity exists between persons who are so identified in interest with each other that each represents the same legal right.

For example, agents of the same government are in privity with each other since they represent not their own rights but the right of the government [see Lerner v. Los Angeles City Board of Education (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 382, 398 n.10, 29 Cal. Rptr. 657, 380 P.2d 97] .

A person's waiver of the right to plead the defense of bar of a statute of limitations, made in an agreement, may remain effective after his or her death and can defeat the attempt of the personal representative of his or her estate to raise the defense in an action based on a rejected claim against the estate arising out of the agreement [see Brownrigg v. deFrees (1925) 196 Cal. 534, 546, 238 P. 714 (action by decedent's handicapped daughter or enforcement of support obligations under agreement, under which decedent had made no payments for many years, and in which decedent agreed to waive defense of bar of statute of limitations in action brought within 99 years)]. This rule is limited by Code Civ. Proc. § 360.5, which appears to limit the effectiveness of a waiver to four years beyond the expiration of the statutory period of limitation [see discussion under § 345.28[1][d], above].

[5] Personal Representative of Decedent's Estate Prohibited

The personal representative of a decedent's estate has no authority to waive the defense of bar of a statute of limitations against an action based on a claim against the estate [Bryson v. Hill (1930) 107 Cal. App. 158, 160, 290 P. 52] . It appears that because the defense of bar of a statute of limitations is a "personal privilege" of the defendant, a defendant in a representative capacity generally has no authority to waive the defense with respect to actions involving the claims of third persons against the rights of those whom the representative represents [see Radar v. Rogers (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 243, 253, 317 P.2d 17 (dissenting opinion)].

§ 345.29 Relief From Bar of Statute Based on Extrinsic Mistake Caused by Court Clerk

Under certain circumstances, representations made by a court clerk may be construed as extrinsic mistake giving rise to equitable relief so as to preclude application of a statute of limitation [see Mirvis v. Crowder (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1684, 1686-1688, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 644] . "Extrinsic mistake" is a term broadly applied when circumstances extrinsic to the litigation have unfairly cost a party a hearing on the merits [Rappleyea v. Campbell (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 975, 981, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669, 884 P.2d 126 (relief granted from default and default judgment when clerk had given incorrect information to defendants regarding filing fee)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Clerk's Representation That Complaint Will Be Filed Despite Error in Filing Fee. Plaintiff's attorney sends a summons and complaint together with the filing fee by two-day priority mail to the court for filing. On receipt, the court clerk telephones a secretary at plaintiff's attorney's office and assures him that the complaint will be filed on the date received, November 17, but that the balance of the filing fee, which had recently been increased, is owing. Plaintiff's attorney immediately prepares and sends a check for the balance. The statute of limitations runs on November 19. The complaint is stamped filed November 23. Is the action barred by the statute of limitations? No. The clerk's representation that the complaint would be timely filed despite the incorrect filing fee constituted extrinsic mistake entitling plaintiff to relief. The complaint that was otherwise filed late was deemed to have been filed timely, and thus not barred by the statute of limitations [Mirvis v. Crowder (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1684, 1686-1688, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 644 (personal injury action); see Rappleyea v. Campbell (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 975, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669, 884 P.2d 126 (default judgment and entry of default vacated; superior court clerk's misinformation to out of state defendants who represented themselves concerning correct filing fee for their answer constituted extrinsic mistake giving rise to equitable relief)].

B. Laches

30-345 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 345.40

§ 345.40 Nature of Laches

[1] Equitable Defense

Laches is a defense to a suit in equity. Under the doctrine of laches the plaintiff will be refused equitable relief because of his or her delay in bringing suit, even though the suit is commenced within the statutory period of limitation [Trail v. Firth (1921) 186 Cal. 68, 69, 198 P 1033 ; see In re Marriage of Dancy (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 1142, 1150, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 775] . However, whether or not laches exists, an action not brought within the statutory period is barred unless it falls within some exception within the statute or the defense of he statute of limitations is not open to the defendant because of waiver or estoppel [Trail v. Firth (1921) 186 Cal. 68, 69-70, 198 P. 1033] .

The defense of laches is a creature of equity. It is not a defense at law. In an action at law, or where the plaintiff asserts no equitable rights, the statute of limitation rather than the doctrine of laches governs [see Brownrigg v. deFrees (1925) 196 Cal. 534, 539, 238 P. 714 ; see also United States Capital Corp. v. Nickelberry (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 864, 867-868, 174 Cal. Rptr. 814 (defense of laches not available in action on judgment, which is action at law); cf. In re Marriage of Dancy (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 1142, 1148-1149, 1156, 1159 n.8, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 775 (although child support is legal right, actions to determine arrearages are equitable proceedings to which laches may be a defense)].

It is unsettled in California whether the equitable defense of laches applies to an action for money had and received. Although such an action is one at law it is governed by equitable principals [Creditors Collection Service v. Castaldi (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1039, 1044 n.4, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 511] .

The doctrine of laches is not designed to punish the plaintiff; rather, it is meant to prevent unwarranted injustice [see Brewer v. Simpson (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 567, 594, 2 Cal. Rptr. 609, 349 P.2d 289 (restating rule)]. Unless a litigant can show that he or she acted with reasonable diligence in the assertion of his or her equitable rights, a court of equity "will turn a deaf ear to his plea" [Williams v. Stillwell (1933) 217 Cal. 487, 490, 19 P.2d 773] .

[2] Laches Is Question of Fact

Laches is a question of fact, and it must be determined, on the evidence, by all of the circumstances of each particular case [see Wolpert v. Gripton (1931) 213 Cal. 474, 483, 2 P.2d 767 ; In re Marriage of Plescia (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 252, 256, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 120] .

There is no hard and fast rule, either as to the lapse of time or as to the circumstances, which will justify the application of the doctrine of laches [see Wolpert v. Gripton (1931) 213 Cal. 474, 483, 2 P2d 767] . Generally, existence of laches is question of fact to be determined by trial court in light of all the applicable circumstances and absent manifest injustice or a lack of substantial support in the evidence its determination will be sustained [Board of Administration v. Wilson (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1109, 1126-1127, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 207 (trial court's finding of no laches upheld on appeal); see In re Marriage of Plescia (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 252, 256,69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 120 (palpable abuse of discretion standard; trial court's finding of laches upheld on appeal); see also In re Marriage of Dancy (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 1142, 1148, 1159-1160, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 775 (palpable abuse of discretion standard; trial court's implied finding of no laches upheld)].

Chapter 345 LIMITATION OF ACTIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Laches

30-345 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 345.41

§ 345.41 Elements of Laches

[1] Unreasonable Delay Plus Acquiescence or Prejudice

The defense of laches requires unreasonable delay plus either acquiescence in the act about which the plaintiff complains or prejudice to the defendant resulting from the delay [Johnson v. City of Loma Linda (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 61, 68, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 316 ; Board of Administration v. Wilson (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1109, 1126, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 207 ; see In re Marriage of Fogarty & Rasbeary (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1353, 1359, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 653 ; Vernon Fire Fighters Assn. v. City of Vernon (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 710, 719, 223 Cal. Rptr. 871] .

Lapse of time less than the period of limitation does not in itself constitute the defense of laches [see Conti v. Board of Civil Serv. Comm'rs (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 351, 359, 82 Cal. Rptr. 337, 461 P.2d 617 (restating rules and citing many earlier cases)]. Other circumstances besides acquiescence and lapse of time may be material (such as a change in the value or character of property involved in the action) [Chapman v. Bank of California (1893) 97 Cal. 155, 159, 31 P. 896 ; Stevenson v. Boyd (1908) 153 Cal. 630, 636, 96 P. 284] .

In passing on the argument of laches, the court must look to the extent of prejudice to the opposing party, and to the reasonableness of the moving party's actions. These two factors are interrelated; the greater the prejudice, the more timely must be the relief sought [see In re Marriage of Modnick (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 897, 909, 191 Cal. Rptr. 629, 663 P.2d 187] .

Laches may not be pleaded, however, when the claimed prejudice is a result of the party's own wrongful actions [Ateeq v. Najor (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1351, 1359, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 320] .

[2] Unreasonable Delay

[a] Case by Case Determination

There is no artificial rule as to the lapse of time that will justify the application of the doctrine of laches. Each case must be determined on the basis of its facts [see Williams v. Marshall (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 445, 455, 235 P.2d 372 (restating rule); see, e.g., Johnson v. City of Loma Linda (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 61, 68-69, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 316 (unreasonable delay in connection with filing and pursuing petition for administrative mandate when limitation period specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6 inapplicable)].

[b] Relationship to Statutes of Limitation

In determining whether a delay has been unreasonable, the court may use a statute of limitation as a guide [see Vai v. Bank of America (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 329, 343, 15 Cal. Rptr. 71, 364 P.2d 247 ; David Welch Co. v. Erskine & Tulley (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 884, 893, 250 Cal. Rptr. 339 ; see also Robert F. Kennedy Medical Center v. Department of Health Services (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1357, 1362, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 180 (statute of limitations period borrowed as measure of outer limit of reasonable delay in determining laches)].

Whether or not the statute of limitations should be borrowed as a guide to the application of laches depends on strength of analogy between the statute of limitations and the circumstances under which laches is sought to be imposed [Brown v. State Personnel Bd. (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1151, 1159-1160, 213 Cal. Rptr. 53 ; see Fountain Valley Regional Hospital & Medical Center v. Bonta (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 316, 323-325, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 139 (recognition of analogous statute of limitations that was borrowed shifted burden of proof from party asserting doctrine of laches to party arguing against application of doctrine; see discussion under § 345.41[3][b], below)].

Laches may be successfully invoked, even though a relevant statute of limitations has not expired, because laches was the product of a different body of jurisprudence and has different requirements than a statute of limitations. Nothing more than the mere passage of time is required for the statute of limitations to bar an action at law. Mere passage of time alone, however, will never constitute a proper defense of laches. For laches to apply, the passage of time must be unreasonable, and it must have caused prejudice to the other party. Furthermore, since laches exists independently of a relevant statute of limitations, when a statute provides for absolutely no period of limitations, this does not mean that the statute provides for no laches defense. These two doctrines are fundamentally different, and the valid existence of one in no way inhibits or supports the valid existence of the other [In re Marriage of Plescia (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 252, 259-260, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 120 ; accord In re Marriage of Dancy (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 1142, 1150, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 775 ; see also In re Marriage of Fogarty & Rasbeary (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1353, 1356, 1360-1364, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 653 (Plescia holding that laches is defense available to thwart stale attempt at enforcement of judgment for past due spousal support applied to past due child support)].

When an express statute of limitations applies to a suit in equity, however, mere delay to commence the action for a period less than the statutory period is never a defense. However, even when a statute of limitations is directly applicable to a suit in equity and it has not expired, the court may properly refuse to grant an injunction when the plaintiff has assented to the acts complained of and their consequences; and such assent may, in proper cases, be inferred from the plaintiff's acquiescence with full knowledge of all the facts. Furthermore, the acquiescence proving assent may bar relief in equity although it would not be accompanied by all the other circumstances that would make it an estoppel at law [Lux v. Haggin (1886) 69 Cal. 255 (discussing "delay," "laches," and "acquiescence" at 69 Cal. 269-288)].

[c] Delay for Settlement Negotiations

A party's delay in asserting rights is justified when it results from negotiations to reach a settlement of the controversy. This is particularly true where a defaulting party represents that he will make good his default [Potter v. Contra Costa Realty Co. (1934) 220 Cal. 31, 34, 29 P.2d 189] .

[3] Prejudice

[a] Material Change in Status Quo

Laches is not so much a question of lapse of time as whether prejudice has resulted. If the delay has caused no material change in the status quo, that is, no detriment suffered by the party pleading the laches, then there is no point in making the plea [see Conti v. Board of Civil Service Commissioners (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 351, 360, 82 Cal. Rptr. 337, 461 P.2d 617] . The loss of witnesses, for example, is a factor demonstrating prejudice, and the defendant is not required to demonstrate that their testimony would have been favorable to him [see Gerhard v. Stephens (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 864, 904 n. 44, 69 Cal. Rptr. 612, 442 P.2d 692 (reviewing cases)].

[b] Burden of Proof

The elements of unreasonable delay and resulting prejudice may be met in two ways [Fountain Valley Regional Hospital & Medical Center v. Bonta (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 316, 323-325, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 139] :

- First, they may be demonstrated by the evidence in the case, and the person arguing in favor of a finding of laches has the burden of proof on the laches issue.

- Second, the element of prejudice may be "presumed" if there exists a statute of limitations that is sufficiently analogous to the facts of the case and the period of limitations has been exceeded by the party bringing the claim.

In the second situation, the limitation period is "borrowed" from the analogous statute and the burden of proof shifts from the party asserting laches to the party arguing against application of the doctrine of laches. To defeat a finding of laches in this situation, the party arguing against the application of of laches must (1) show that the delay involved in the case was excusable, and (2) rebut the presumption that such delay resulted in prejudice to the opposing party [Fountain Valley Regional Hospital & Medical Center v. Bonta (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 316, 323-325, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 139 (involving review of administrative mandamus proceeding)].

This burden shifting analysis, however, has been rejected in situations when administrative action is of a disciplinary nature involving a professional license [Fountain Valley Regional Hospital & Medical Center v. Bonta (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 316, 324 n.7, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 139 (citing Green v. Board of Dental Examiners (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 786, 795, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 140)].

When no statute of limitation sufficiently analogous to the facts of the case exist, it appears prejudice is never presumed. The defendant must affirmatively demonstrate prejudice to sustain his or her burdens of proof and of production of evidence on the issue of laches [see Miller v. Eisenhower Medical Center (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 614, 624, 166 Cal. Rptr. 826, 614 P.2d 258 ; Board of Administration v. Wilson (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1109, 1126-1127, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 207] .

§ 345.43 Manner of Raising Laches

[1] By Demurrer or as Affirmative Defense

The defense of laches may be raised by demurrer where the facts constituting laches are apparent on the face of the complaint [see Neet v. Holmes (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 447, 460, 154 P.2d 854 (restating rule)].

When the complaint does not indicate that delay occurred that would injure defendant, a demurrer on the basis of laches is not sustainable. Under these circumstances, laches should be raised in the answer and the issue determined at trial [Sangiolo v. Sangiolo (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 511, 514, 151 Cal. Rptr. 27] .

[2] Necessity to Plead Laches

The California Supreme Court has held that a defendant could not raise the defense of laches when neither the defendant nor the complaint had pleaded facts showing laches [Reed v. Norman (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 17, 21-22, 256 P.2d 930] . The Court has similarly stated that, in general, laches may not be relied on unless the facts giving rise to the defense appear in some pleading [see Hamud v. Hawthorne (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 78, 84-85, 338 P.2d 387 (defendant did not plead laches but fact of delay appeared in complaint and record disclosed fact of changed circumstances)].

In earlier cases, the Court has also directly held that laches is not required to be pleaded; the court may deny equitable relief on its own initiative if the evidence shows the party seeking relief to be guilty of laches [Akley v. Bassett (1922) 189 Cal. 625, 648, 209 P. 576 ; Stevinson v. San Joaquin etc. Co. (1912) 162 Cal. 141, 143, 144, 121 P. 398] . Recent cases have stated the rule that courts, in extraordinary cases, have denied relief on their own motion when laches is disclosed by the complaint or appears from evidence even if defense has not been pleaded [see San Bernardino Valley Audubon Society v. City of Moreno Valley (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 593, 608, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 897 ; In re Marriage of Dancy (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 1142, 1158, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 775] . However, the issue of whether a case is extraordinary need not be reached if the issue of laches appears on the face of the adversary's pleading, the parties' trial briefs, and the evidence, because in that case it is not necessary for the defendant to plead laches as a defense [In re Marriage of Dancy (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 1142, 1158-1159, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 775] .

In Akley, the Court further stated that if a complaint seeking equitable relief discloses a great lapse of time without the assertion of any claim, and after long-continued acquiescence in acts hostile to the claim, the plaintiff must show circumstances indicating good faith and reasonable diligence on his or her part [Akley v. Bassett (1922) 189 Cal. 625, 647, 209 P. 576] .

If the statutory period of limitation applicable to the action has expired and the defendant relies on mere delay (which is not equivalent to laches), the defendant must plead the bar of the statute [Lux v. Haggin (1886) 69 Cal. 255, 267, 10 P. 674] .

NOTE:
For a comprehensive list of statutory periods of limitation, see the Table of Limitation Periods n the Appendix to this chapter.

[1] Establishment of Limitations on Actions

Requirement that civil actions be commenced within periods of limitation in Code Civ. Proc. § 312 et seq., except in special cases in which different limitation is prescribed by statute. Code Civ. Proc. § 312

Limitation periods for particular actions. Code Civ. Proc. § 315 et seq.

Limitation periods in *Code Civ. Proc. §§ 335-349*3/4 generally apply to actions brought by or for benefit of state or county. Code Civ. Proc. § 345

Action is commenced by filing complaint. Code Civ. Proc. § 350

Plaintiff whose judgment is reversed on appeal other than on merits as entitled to file new complaint within one year. Code Civ. Proc. § 355

Action arising in other state or foreign country and barred there as barred in California except in favor of person who was California citizen and has held cause of action from accrual to commencement of action. Code Civ. Proc. § 361

"Action" in statutes of limitation includes special proceeding of civil nature. Code Civ. Proc. § 363

[2] Actions by and Against Deceased Persons

If person holding cause of action dies before period of limitation expires on action that survives, period of limitation is extended to later of six months after death or limitation period that would have applied had person not died. Code Civ. Proc. § 366.1

If person against whom cause of action may be brought dies before period of limitation expires, period of limitation is extended one year after person's death. Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2; see former Code Civ. Proc. § 353(b)-(d) (different provisions applicable to actions brought on liabilities of persons dying before January 1, 1993)

[3] Tolling Provisions

Tolling of statute of limitations on action for libel or slander arising out of criminal prosecution for child abuse while criminal prosecution is pending. Civ. Code § 48.7(a)

Tolling of statute of limitations on action for injury or wrongful death during pendency of criminal action against plaintiff charging felony listed in Civ. Code § 847(b). Civ. Code § 847(e)

Tolling provision for minority and insanity regarding actions relating to real property. Code Civ. Proc. § 328

Tolling provision for prisoners regarding actions relating to real property. Code Civ. Proc. § 328.5

General tolling provision for minority and insanity. Code Civ. Proc. § 352

General tolling provision for prisoners. Code Civ. Proc. § 352.1

Extension of period of limitations by period of military service in National Guard and United States Military Reserve. Mil. & Vet. Code § 404(a)

Extension of period of limitation during time of potential defendant's absence from state. Code Civ. Proc. § 351

Extension of period of limitation during time potential defendant is under order of restitution as condition of probation. Code Civ. Proc. § 352.5

Period of limitation on client's action extended by six months from date of entry of order by which court assumes jurisdiction over attorney's practice pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6180 or 6190. Code Civ. Proc. § 353.1

Extension of period of limitation by disability because of existence of state of war. Code Civ. Proc. § 354

Extension of period of limitation by existence of legal inhibition to sue (such as injunction or statutory prohibition). Code Civ. Proc. § 356

Disability as not extending period of limitation unless it existed when cause of action accrued. Code Civ. Proc. § 357

Period of limitation extended by disability remains extended until all coexisting disabilities removed. Code Civ. Proc. § 358

[4] Waiver of Statute of Limitations

Waiver of defense of bar of statute of limitations required to be in writing signed by person to be charged. Code Civ. Proc. § 360.5

Waivers of defense of bar of statute of limitations limited to periods of not more than four years, but subject to execution in succession. Code Civ. Proc. § 360.5

30-345 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 345.53

§ 345.53 Decisions

[1] Agreement Shortening Period of Limitation Disfavored

A contractual stipulation to limit a statute of limitations must be clear and explicit, and is to be strictly construed against the party invoking the provision. Western Filter Corp. v. Argan, Inc. (9th Cir. 2008) 540 F.3d 947, 2008 U.S. App. LEXIS 18147

Contractual stipulations fixing period of limitation shorter than statutory period are disfavored and strictly construed. Sanders v. American Casualty Co. (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 306, 309, 74 Cal. Rptr. 634

[2] Amendment of Statute of Limitation

[a] Clarification of Statute of Limitations

Retroactive application of amendment that merely clarifies statute is not prohibited merely because it applies to facts in existence before effective date of amendment; amendment consistent with original intent of section and intended to reject contrary construction of statute by case law applied retroactively. Noggle v. Bank of America (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 853, 859, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 829

[b] Lengthening Period of Limitation

Legislature may extend statutory period of limitation; extension is generally valid as to any cause of action then pending and not already barred. Mudd v. McColgan (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 463, 468, 183 P.2d 10 ; Evelyn, Inc. v. California Empl. Stab. Com. (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 588, 592, 311 P.2d 500 ; Douglas Aircraft Co. v. Cranston (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 462, 465, 24 Cal. Rptr. 851, 374 P.2d 819 ; Mojica v. 4311 Wilshire, LLC (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 1069, 1072-1073, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 887 ; Battle v. Kessler (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 853, 860, 197 Cal. Rptr. 170

Legislature had power to retroactively revive cause of action for childhood sexual abuse time-barred under prior statute of limitations. Tietge v. Western Province of the Servites, Inc. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 382, 386, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 53 ; see Lent v. Doe (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1177, 1183-1184, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 389

Amendment of statute that enlarges period of limitation applies to pending matters when not otherwise expressly excepted; such legislation affects remedy and is applicable to matters not already barred, without retroactive effect; party has no vested right in running of statute of limitation prior to its expiration and is deemed to suffer no injury if, at time of amendment extending period of limitation for recovery, party is under obligation to pay. Sanchez v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 346, 358, 266 Cal. Rptr. 21 , citing Mudd v. McColgan (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 463 ; see also O'Loughlin v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1518, 1522-1523, 272 Cal. Rptr. 499

Legislature has power to extend civil statute of limitations retroactively to revive common law cause of action time-barred under former limitations period. Liebig v. Superior Court (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 828, 835, 257 Cal. Rptr. 574 (distinguishing cases involving statutes of limitation governing prescriptive property rights and civil liability created by statutes, as well as criminal cases, in which law is contrary)

[c] Shortening Period of Limitation

Party does not have vested right in time for commencement of action nor vested right in running of statute of limitations prior to its expiration; change in statute of limitations merely effects change in procedure and Legislature may shorten period; however, reasonable time must be permitted for party affected to avail himself or herself of remedy before statute takes effect; there was no due process violation when prisoner was represented by counsel and had constructive notice of Code Civ. Proc. § 352.1 (shortening tolling period for time during which plaintiff is imprisoned) when statute was enacted. Carlson v. Blatt (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 646, 649-651, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 42

Retrospective application of shortened limitations period is permissible if party has reasonable time to avail himself or herself of his or her remedy before statute cuts off his or her rights; Com. Code § 4111 is statute of limitations and applicable retroactively. Edward Fineman Co. v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1110, 1125, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 478

Legislature may reduce statute of limitations and new period applies to accrued causes of action if reasonable time is allowed to assert cause of action; to avoid potentially harsh results, drafters' presumed intent regarding pending proceedings is that new time limit will begin running no earlier than effective date of new statute or rule; when no time limit governed motion to recover statutory attorney fees at time of entry of judgment, limitation period later established by amendment of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 870.2(b) (now 3.1702(b)) held to apply to motion; time within which to make motion began running when amended version of rule became effective. Save Our Forest & Ranchlands v. County of San Diego (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1757, 1761, 1765-1768, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 708 (Fourth Dist., Div. One; declining to follow Brown v. Swickard (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 820, 828-829, 209 Cal. Rptr. 844 (Third Dist.) , dealing with amended version of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6)

Plaintiff is entitled to reasonable grace period in which to file suit on claim when court establishes new statute of limitations that would bar preaccrued claim. Espinosa v. Superior Court (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 409, 413, 248 Cal. Rptr. 375

Statute of limitations, being procedural, is usually retroactively applied to accrued causes of action, but court must inquire whether, in given case, retrospective application violates due process; if time left to file suit is reasonable, no constitutional violation occurs and statute is applied as enacted; if no time is left or only unreasonably short time remains, statute cannot be applied at all; whether time left in which to sue is reasonable is question of law. Aronson v. Superior Court (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 294, 297-298, 236 Cal. Rptr. 347

Legislature may shorten statutory period of limitation; shortened period does not apply retroactively to defeat accrued cause of action not barred by statute in effect before period shortened. Niagara Fire Ins. Co. v. Cole (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 40, 42-43, 44 Cal. Rptr. 889 , (reporting rules); see Scheas v. Robertson (1951) 38 Cal. 2d 119, 125, 238 P.2d 982

[3] Burden of Proof

Once defendant establishes prima facie case that statute of limitations applies, burden shifts to plaintiff to prove facts alleged to avoid bar of statute. Burgon v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 813, 824, 155 Cal. Rptr. 763

[4] Bar of Actions of Particular Persons and Entities

[a] Ward When Guardian Fails to File Action Seasonably

When notes are made payable to custodian for minor under Uniform Gifts to Minors Act (Civ. Code §§ 1154-1165) cause of action belongs to minor and is not affected by custodian's failure to sue within period of limitation. Epstein v. Frank (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 111, 122, 177 Cal. Rptr. 831

Cause of action belonging to ward is not affected by guardian's failure to sue within period of limitation. Gottesman v. Simon (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 494, 502-503, 337 P.2d 906

[b] Heirs Where Decedent Failed to File Action Seasonably

Heirs do not derive any cause of action from decedent when decedent's cause of action was barred at time of death, in absence of allegation of circumstances causing suspension of running of period of limitation. Rogers v. Bank of America (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 228, 231, 294 P.2d 959

[c] Successors in Interest

Successors in interest to party timely sued do not have defense of statute of limitations. Hutnick v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 456, 467, 253 Cal. Rptr. 236, 763 P.2d 1326

[d] Trust Beneficiary Where Trustee Fails to File Action Seasonably

Beneficiary is precluded from maintaining action against third person respecting trust property if trustee failed to take action during period of limitation, even if beneficiary was under disability. Triplett v. Williams (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 135, 137-138, 74 Cal. Rptr. 594 ; Patchett v. Pacific Coast Ry. Co. (1893) 100 Cal. 505, 510, 35 P. 73

[e] Persons With Actions for Damages Arising Out of Defendant's Felony

Code Civ. Proc. § 340.3 (limitation period in action for damages based on commission of felony) does not apply retroactively to revive causes of action that were time-barred prior to enactment of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.3. Gallo v. Superior Court (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1375, 1379, 246 Cal. Rptr. 587

Limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.3 for bringing civil action for damages against defendant based on defendant's commission of felony is one year after original felony judgment is pronounced even when felony conviction is subse quently reduced to misdemeanor; period applies to defendant who pleads no contest, as long as judgment of conviction is entered against defendant. Jamieson v. Hickey (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 595, 597, 599, 244 Cal. Rptr. 859

[f] Municipalities

Municipalities are subject to statutes of limitation. City of Los Angeles v. County of Los Angeles (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 624, 627, 72 P.2d 138

[5] Change in Substantive Law Does Not Revive Barred Claims

Change in law does not revive claims already barred by statute of limitations. Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Assn. v. City of La Habra (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 809, 816, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 369, 23 P.3d 601 ; Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1103, 1116-1117, 245 Cal. Rptr. 658, 751 P.2d 923 ; California Coastal Com. v. Superior Court (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1488, 1498 n.7, 258 Cal. Rptr. 567

[6] Choice of Law

Law of forum, not law of place where obligation arose, governs statute of limitation and its applicability. Western Coal & Mining Co. v. Jones (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 819, 828, 167 P.2d 719

Choice of law provision resulting in application of Delaware's three year statute of limitations to breach of contract and declaratory relief claims rather than four year California period was not in conflict with California policy. Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners v. American Medical Internat., Inc. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1532, 1536, 1544-1549, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 33 (questioning analysis used in Ashland Chemical Co. v. Provence (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 790, 793-795, 181 Cal. Rptr. 340 , below)

When only one of two potentially concerned states has interest in having its law applied, conflict of laws is said to be false and court simply applies law of only interested state; in action against California residents on promissory note and guaranty contract executed in Kentucky, trial court did not err in applying California's four-year statute of limitations on written obligations (Code Civ. Proc. § 337), although note said it was governed by Kentucky laws; statute of limitations is designed to protect enacting state's residents and courts from burdens associated with prosecution of stale cases; California had interest in applying its law, whereas Kentucky had no such interest because there were no Kentucky defendants and Kentucky was not forum. Ashland Chemical Co. v. Provence (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 790, 793-794, 181 Cal. Rptr. 340 (analysis questioned by Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners v. American Medical Internat., Inc. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1532, 1546 n.14, 1549 n.17, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 33 , above)

[7] Constitutional Rights Subject to Periods of Limitation

Assertion of constitutional right is subject to reasonable statute of limitations unless constitutional provision provides otherwise; what constitutes reasonable time is question ordinarily left to Legislature, whose decision court will not overrule except where palpable error has been committed; matters that have or could have been adjudicated in validation action under Code Civ. Proc. § 860 et seq., including constitutional challenges, must be raised within statutory limitations period in Code Civ. Proc. § 860 et seq. or they are waived. Friedland v. City of Long Beach (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 835, 846-847, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 427

[8] Constitutionality of Statutes of Limitation

State's involvement in mere running of general, self-executing statute of limitations is generally insufficient to implicate notice requirements of Due Process Clause of U.S. Const., amend. XIV; when limitation period is not self-executing and cause of action amounts to property interest protected by U.S. Const., amend. XIV, of which owner will be deprived on expiration of limitation period, statute of limitations violates Due Process Clause unless it provides for actual notice of limitations period. Tulsa Collection Servs. v. Pope (1988) 485 U.S. 478, 108 S. Ct. 1340, 99 L. Ed. 2d 565, 575-579 (nonclaim provision of Oklahoma's probate code unconstitutional in failing to provide for actual notice to creditors of time within which claims must be filed against decedents' estates)

The tolling provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 351 have been applied to nonresident defendants who have never entered the state and to resident defendants who are temporarily absent from the state. Whether section 351 applies to resident defendants who are permanently absent from California, i.e., those who move out of state, was considered by the court in Heritage Marketing & Ins. Services, Inc. v. Chrustawka (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 754, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 126 , which concluded that section 351 penalizes people who move out of state by imposing a longer statute of limitations on them than on those who remain in the state, and that the commerce clause protects persons from such restraints on their movements across state lines. Heritage Marketing & Ins. Services, Inc. v. Chrustawka (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 754, 763, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 126

Code Civ. Proc. § 351 impermissibly burdens interstate commerce with respect to residents who travel in course of interstate commerce; this conclusion, however, limited to travel for facilitation of interstate commerce; commerce clause does not bar applying tolling provisions of section 351 to interstate travel unrelated to facilitation of interstate commerce (e.g., vacation trips). Filet Menu, Inc. v. Cheng (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1276, 1282-1284, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 384

Allowing adult causes of action for medical malpractice to accrue under Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 on date of injury or on date on which injury should have been reasonably discovered, but requiring minors' causes of action to accrue on date of wrongful act violates minors' right to equal protection of law under equal protection clause of U. S. Const., amend. XIV, and Cal. Const. art. 1, §§ 11 and 21. Photias v. Doerfler (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1014, 1017-1021, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 202

No constitutional impediment exists to retrospective application of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.3 (limitation period in action for damages based on commission of felony) reviving civil cause of action, because defendant has no vested right in sense of repose conferred by knowledge that suit against him or her was time-barred; issue is one of fairness and statutory construction rather than of constitutional right. Gallo v. Superior Court (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1375, 1383, 246 Cal. Rptr. 587

Statute of limitations is consistent with due process when plaintiff or petitioner is allowed reasonable time to bring action. Kupka v. Board of Administration (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 791, 797, 176 Cal. Rptr. 214

Statutes of limitation are within legislature's constitutional authority if not so manifestly inequitable as to amount to denial of justice. Ocean S. R. Co. v. Santa Cruz (1961) 198 Cal. App. 2d 267, 273, 17 Cal. Rptr. 892

[9] Construction of Statutes of Limitation

Application of statute of limitations is not always rigid; statutes and judicial decisions provide for suspension of running of period in certain cases. Bollinger v. National Fire Ins. Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 399, 411, 154 P.2d 399

Statutes of limitation are to be strictly construed; legislative intention is to be found from statute itself; application of statute is to conform to plain reading of statute. Skidmore v. County of Alameda (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 534, 540, 90 P.2d 577

Civ. Code § 3426.6 is part of Uniform Trade Secret Act, which was approved by National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws and adopted without significant change in California, so it is appropriate to accord substantial weight to commissioner's comment on construction of section 3426.6; absent compelling reason for doing otherwise, statute of limitations is to be construed in accordance with its plain language. Glue-Fold, Inc. v. Slautterback Corp. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 1018, 1023, 1025, 1028, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 661

When facts relied on leave it clearly in doubt whether case is within statute of limitations pleaded, courts should not indulge in strained construction to support plea. Herman v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 819, 826-827, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144

Statutorily imposed limitations on actions are technical defenses that should be strictly construed to avoid forfeiture of plaintiff's rights; these limitations are obstacles to just claims, and courts may not indulge in strained construction to apply these statutes to facts of particular case; strong public policy that litigation be disposed of on merits whenever possible. People ex rel. Dept. of Conservation v. Triplett (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 233, 251, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 610

Collective term, "statute of limitations," is commonly applied to great number of acts that prescribe periods beyond which suits may not be brought; statute of limitations is statute that fixes latest time within which action may be brought; as a rule, if Legislature intends to bar bringing of suits beyond certain date, it does so explicitly by employing either term "statute of limitations" (e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 312 et seq.) or some equally unambiguous formula. Utah Property & Casualty Ins. etc. Assn. v. United Services Auto. Assn. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1010, 1025, 281 Cal. Rptr. 917

Application of statute of limitations to bar suit of plaintiff who intentionally chose to pursue legislative remedy for clarification of statutes as opposed to judicial remedy until after limitation period had expired did not violate rule that statutorily imposed limitations on actions are technical defenses that should be strictly construed to avoid forfeiture of plaintiff's rights. Hunt v. County of Shasta (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 432, 445, 275 Cal. Rptr. 113

No showing of prejudice is required to enforce statute of limitations; statutes of limitation are upheld regardless of hardship or of underlying merits of claim. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 604, 612, 258 Cal. Rptr. 413

Absent specific provision in applicable statute of limitations for extension, court is required to infer that Legislature did not intend to permit relief on grounds of good cause. Sinetos v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 1172, 1175-1176, 207 Cal. Rptr. 207

Statutes of limitations are adamant rather than flexible in nature and are upheld and enforced regardless of personal hardship. Sinetos v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 1172, 1175, 207 Cal. Rptr. 207 ; Chas. L. Harney, Inc. v. State of California (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 77, 91, 31 Cal. Rptr. 524 (reporting rule)

Court applying statute of limitations is not authorized to make order "amending" filing date of complaint so that complaint will appear to have been filed within period of limitation, unless complaint was in fact so filed and filing date appearing in record is wrong. City of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 766, 769, 70 Cal. Rptr. 826

Strained construction of statute for purpose of supporting plea of bar of statute is not to be indulged where facts relied on leave clear doubt whether action brought within period of limitation. County of Los Angeles v. Security First Nat'l

Bank (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 575, 580, 191 P.2d 78

Court ruling on issue whether action barred by statute of limitations should consider all statutory provisions on subject; provisions are to be construed in light of presumption legislature acquainted with, and legislates with reference to, settled principles of law. Pryor v. Winter (1905) 147 Cal. 554, 557-558, 82 P. 202

[10] Determination of Applicable Statute

[a] Dependent on Nature of Right on Which Suit Is Based

To determine statute of limitations that applies to cause of action, it is necessary to identify nature of cause of action, i.e., gravamen of cause of action; nature of right sued on and not form of action nor relief demanded determines applicability of statute of limitations. Hensler v. City of Glendale (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 1, 22, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 244, 876 P.2d 1043 ; People ex rel. Dept. of Conservation v. Triplett (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 233, 247, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 610

Determination of which statute applies depends on nature of right sued upon, not form of action or relief demanded. Day v. Greene (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 404, 411, 29 Cal. Rptr. 785, 380 P.2d 385 ; Giffin v. United Transportation Union (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1359, 1362, 236 Cal. Rptr. 6 ; Davies v. Krasna (1973) 14 Cal. 3d 502, 515, 121 Cal. Rptr. 705, 535 P.2d 1161 ; see also Richardson v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 8, 12, 172 Cal. Rptr. 423

Determination of which statute applies depends on basic cause of action giving rise to plaintiff's right to relief. Leeper v. Beltrami (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 195, 214, 1 Cal. Rptr. 12, 347 P.2d 12

Where plaintiffs' claim is based on defendant doctors' intentional acts of egregious abuse, MICRA's statute of limitations, which pertains to medical malpractice actions, would not apply. Unruh-Haxton v. Regents of University of California (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 343, 356, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 146

The two-year statute of limitations prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1) applies to actions for accounting malpractice, and where the gravamen of the case is accounting negligence, the two-year statute is applicable, notwithstanding the existence of other claims against the professionals, such as misrepresentation, for which a different statute of limitations might otherwise apply. Sahadi v. Scheaffer (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 704, 714, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 517

Statute of limitations applicable to action is governed by gravamen of complaint, not cause pled; in suit by city against broker stemming from purchase of securities, where gravamen of complaint was that broker's acts constituted actual or constructive fraud, Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d) (3-year limitation period) applied to causes of action for breach of fiduciary duty and breach of implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing rather than 4-year statute. City of Vista v. Robert Thomas Securities, Inc. (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 882, 889, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 237

Statute of limitation to be applied in particular case determined by nature of right sued on or principal purpose of action, not form of action or relief requested. Curtis v. Kellogg & Andelson (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 492, 503, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 536

Gravamen of complaint and nature of right sued on, rather than form of action and relief demanded, determines which statute of limitation applies; attorney who prepares and signs contract obligating him or her to perform both legal and nonlegal services may not rely on legal malpractice statute of limitations of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.6 as defense to cause of action alleging negligent performance of nonlegal services; Section 340.6 was not defense to cause of action for negligent performance of administrative consulting services, which was subject to ordinary statute of limitations, but was defense to causes of action involving defendant's role as attorney for breach of contract, breach of fiduciary duty and negligent misrepresentation. Quintilliani v. Mannerino (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 54, 57, 66, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 359

To determine applicable statute of limitations, courts consider nature of right sued on, not form of action or relief demanded; although negligent misrepresentation may be species of deceit, in action against accountants for negligent misrepresentation, essence of action was negligence, not fraud; Code Civ. Proc. § 339 two-year statute of limitations for accountant malpractice rather than Code Civ. Proc. § 338(a) three-year limitation period for fraud or mistake held to apply. Ventura County Nat. Bank v. Macker (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1528, 1529-1531, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 418

Under primary rights theory, look to injury or harm suffered in defining particular cause of action; in negligence action against bank for its opening of account in name of corporation which allowed corporate employee to divert checks away from corporation, harm suffered was diversion of checks that were employer's property; thus, cause of action was one for injury to personal property consisting of checks subject to three-year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 338(c) rather than two-year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1). Wisper Corp. v. California Commerce Bank (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 948, 955-957, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 141

Highly questionable whether court should consider apparent motives behind particular action in determining whether statute of limitations should apply; generally, question of whether statute of limitations applies is pure question of law based on language of statute in question or any legislative intent which can be discerned from its legislative history; in determining whether general or specific statute of limitation applies, initial inquiry is whether specific statute applies; if not, then rule of Code Civ. Proc. § 312 for application of specific rather than general statute does not come into play. People ex rel. Dept. of Conservation v. Triplett (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 233, 246-247, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 610

Statute of limitations to be applied in particular case is determined by nature of right sued upon or principal purpose of action, not form of action or relief requested; what is significant is primary interest invaded by defendant's wrongful conduct. Barton v. New Unified Motor Manufacturing, Inc. (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 1200, 1207, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 328

Applicable statute of limitations is determined by substance or gravamen of action rather than by form of pleading, and, hence, pleader's labeling of action is not controlling. Hatch v. Collins (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1104, 1110, 275 Cal. Rptr. 476

Caption, prayer, and form of complaint are not conclusive in determining which statute applies. Agair Inc. v. Shaeffer (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 513, 516, 42 Cal. Rptr. 883

[b] Examples

[i] Contract Actions

Action for improper rescission amounted to no more than a cause of action for breach of contract under a different name. Therefore, plaintiff's claim was barred by the one-year limitations period for contractual claims. Applicable limitations period is determined by the gravamen of the complaint rather than the named cause of action. Akin v. Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's London (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 291, 299, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 284

Action on general contractor's claims against architect and construction manager for economic losses sustained due to their alleged professional negligence during construction was governed by two-year statute governing claims for breach of oral contract (Code Civ Proc. § 339(1)) rather than four-year statute of limitations for patent deficiencies in construction (Code Civ Proc. § 337.1). Smith v. SHN Consulting Engineers & Geologists, Inc. (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 638, 642-643, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 424

Code Civ. Proc. § 337(1) (four-year limitation period in action on written contract), rather than Code Civ. Proc. §

339(1) (two-year limitation period in action on oral contract) applied when terms of agreement were incorporated in writing that was orally accepted by charged party. E. O. C. Ord, Inc. v. Kovakovich (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1194, 1199-1202, 246 Cal. Rptr. 456

[ii] Personal Injury or Wrongful Death

The legislature intended the phrase "injury to, or for the death of, an individual caused by the wrongful act or neglect of another" to be interpreted as embracing all infringements of personal rights, including malicious prosecution, and intended the two-year limitations period set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1, to apply to malicious prosecution actions. Stavropoulos v. Superior Court (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 190, 197, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 705

Former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3), imposing a one-year period of limitation on commencing action for damages for personal injury or wrongful death, applies whenever personal injury or death results, regardless of the tort, contract, or breach of express or implied warranty that may be involved in the case. Cardoso v. American Medical Systems, Inc. (1986) 183 Cal. App.3d 994, 999-1000, 228 Cal. Rptr. 627 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1, which imposes a two-year period of limitation on actions for assault, battery, or injury to, or for the death of, an individual caused by the wrongful act or neglect of another)

[iii] Change in School District Boundaries

Action by school district, students, and students' parents challenging validity of transfer of residential area from one school district to another on grounds transfer constituted invidious discrimination based on wealth and race was governed by one-year statute of limitations of former Educ. Code § 4026 (now see Educ. Code § 35766), expressly applying to school districts, not by six-month limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 349.1, governing actions contesting reorganization or boundary changes of any "public entity." Fleming v. Kent (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 887, 890-893, 181 Cal. Rptr. 361

[iv] Real Property Improvements

Code of Civil Procedure § 337.1 does not apply to claims alleging economic losses incurred in course of construction but rather applies only to claims arising from patent deficiencies that exist on substantial completion of construction; thus action on general contractor's claims against architect and construction manager for economic losses sustained due to their alleged professional negligence during construction was governed by two-year statute governing claims for breach of oral contract (Code Civ Proc. § 339(1)) rather than four-year statute of limitations (Code Civ Proc. § 337.1); furthermore, even if section 337.1 could be construed to encompass claims for patent deficiencies that are resolved by time of substantial completion, section 339(1) would apply since section 337.1 merely provides outer limit of when one of its protected class may be sued for patent defect: no later than four years after substantial completion of project--it does not revive claims that are barred pursuant to other applicable statutes of limitations. Smith v. SHN Consulting Engineers & Geologists, Inc. (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 638, 642-652, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 424

Four-year limit to institute action to recover damages for patent deficiencies in improvements to real property under Code Civ. Proc. § 337.1 were enacted to protect construction contractors from extended liability, and therefore are not available to manufacturer and seller of swimming pool diving platform. Nichols v. Swimquip (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 216, 219-222, 217 Cal. Rptr. 272

[v] Decedent's Promise of Distribution from Estate

Where a claim arises from an alleged oral promise or agreement concerning distribution from a decedent's estate, the action is governed by the limitations period of Code Civ. Proc., § 366.3, which provides that a one-year limitation period applies to a promise or agreement with a decedent to distribution from an estate and specifically states that the limitations period cannot be tolled or extended. Stewart v. Seward (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 1513, 1519, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 651

[vi] Wage Claims and Penalties

Three-year statute of limitations applies to wage claims as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 338(a), while a one-year statute of limitations governs claims for penalties (Code Civ. Proc. § 340(a)). Murphy v. Kenneth Cole Productions (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 1094, 1102, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 880, 155 P.3d 284

[vii] Medical Negligence Against Public Entity

In action for medical negligence against public entities, plaintiffs must comply with both the six-month statute of limitations in the Government Claims Act (Gov. Code § 945.6) and the three-year statute in the Medical Injury Compensation Reform Act (MICRA) (Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5), and the latter statute establishes the outside date by which actions against health care providers, including public entities, must be brought. Roberts v. County of Los Angeles (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 474, 476, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 60

[11] Doctrine of Continuing Violations

Doctrine of continuing violations was developed in cases examining timeliness of complaints filed with Equal Employment Opportunity Commission to establish violation of Title VII of Federal Civil Rights Act of 1964 (see 42 U.S.C. § 2000 et seq.); under doctrine, systematic policy of discrimination is actionable even if some or all of events evidencing its inception occurred prior to limitation period; thus, in action for age and race discrimination under Fair Employment and Housing Act (Gov. Code §§ 12940, 12941) against state agency by employee who had been denied promotion, evidenceof discriminatory acts occurring more than one year prior to filing of employee's second charge with Department of Fair Employment and Housing were not barred by one-year limitations provided by Gov. Code § 12960 when those acts were part of continuing course of harassing conduct occurring from time of employee's first charge several years before up to time of filing second charge and met requirements of doctrine of continuing violations. Watson v. Department of Rehabilitation (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1271, 1290-1291, 261 Cal. Rptr. 204

[12] Effect on Individual Actions of Denial of Class Action Certification

In asbestos-in-building case, plaintiff-owner of building containing asbestos who sued asbestos manufacturer alleging causes of action including strict liability and negligence and who became member of mandatory federal class action and thereafter opted out of class action was entitled to have limitations period tolled during time when plaintiff was member of class. San Francisco Unified School Dist. v. W.R. Grace & Co. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1336-1340, 37 Cal. App. 4th 1318, 1340, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305 (Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1103, 751 P.2d 923 and Becker v. McMillin Construction Co. (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1493, 277 Cal. Rptr. 491 analyzed)

Pendency of class action certification proceedings, in limited circumstances, tolls statute of limitations from time of commencement of suit to time of denial of class certification for all purported members of class who either make timely motions to intervene in surviving individual action or who timely file their individual actions; rule applies only when class action and later individual action or intervention are based on same claims and subject matter and similar evidence. Becker v. McMillin Construction Co. (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1493, 1498-1499, 277 Cal. Rptr. 491

[13] Equitable Estoppel to Assert Bar of Statute of Limitations

[a] Elements

For estoppel to prevent running of statute of limitations, there must be some wrongdoing on defendant's part; plaintiff's ignorance of cause of action or other mistake of law does not preventing running of statute of limitations. Hinton v. NMI Pac. Enters. (9th Cir. 1993) 5 F.3d 391, 397

Defendants who induce plaintiffs not to sue pending settlement may not assert a statute of limitations defense where their conduct caused the untimely filing of the action. Union Oil Co. of California v. Greka Energy Corp. (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 129, 138, 80 Cal. Rptr. 3d 738

A defendant will be estopped to invoke the statute of limitations where there has been some conduct by the defendant, relied on by the plaintiff, which induces the belated filing of the action. It is not necessary that the defendant acted in bad faith or intended to mislead the plaintiff. It is sufficient that the defendant's conduct in fact induced the plaintiff to refrain from instituting legal proceedings. Whether an estoppel exists--whether the acts, representations or conduct lulled a party into a sense of security preventing him or her from instituting proceedings before the running of the statute, and whether the party relied thereon to his or her prejudice--is a question of fact and not of law. Holdgrafer v. Unocal Corp. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 907, 925-926, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 216

Estoppel is applicable where the conduct of one side has induced the other to take such a position that it would be injured if the first should be permitted to repudiate its acts. Four elements must ordinarily be proved to establish an equitable estoppel: (1) The party to be estopped must know the facts; (2) he must intend that his conduct shall be acted upon, or must so act that the party asserting the estoppel had the right to believe that it was so intended; (3) the party asserting the estoppel must be ignorant of the true state of facts; and, (4) he must rely upon the conduct to his injury. The doctrine of estoppel is codified in Evid. Code § 623. Leasequip, Inc. v. Dapeer (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 394, 403-404, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 782

Defendant will be estopped to invoke statute of limitations when plaintiff relies on defendant's conduct and that conduct induces action to be filed late; on other hand, contractor or subcontractor, whether suspecting or unsuspecting, does not lose protection of 10-year limitation period under Code Civ. Proc. § 337.15 because of conduct of another party that extends time for suit against itself; developer's purported conduct toward plaintiff did not induce any reliance on part of defendant that could toll limitations period for defendant to file cross complaint againstdeveloper for indemnity. FNB Mortgage Corp. v. Pacific General Group (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1116, 1121, 1135-1136, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841

To establish equitable estoppel four elements must ordinarily be proved: (1) knowledge of facts by party against whom estoppel is sought, (2) conduct by that party intended to be acted on or that party seeking estoppel had right to believe was intended to be acted on, (3) ignorance of facts by party seeking estoppel, and (4) reliance on conduct by party seeking estoppel to that party's injury; equitable estoppel typically arises through some misleading affirmative conduct on defendant's part; estoppel may also arise from silence when there is duty to speak; insurer's violation of 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2695.4 (insurer to disclose policy time limits that may apply to claim) may provide basis of estoppel against insurer's assertion of contract limitations defense. Spray, Gould & Bowers v. Associated Internat. Ins. Co. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1260, 1265, 1267-1269, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 552

Estoppel to assert bar of statute of limitation is available when defense counsel's willful inaction led plaintiff to pursue wrong defendant until after limitation period had run. Cuadros v. Superior Court (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 671, 675-677, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 18

Estoppel to assert defense of statute of limitations may be invoked when delay in commencing action was induced by defendant's conduct. Kurokawa v. Blum (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 976, 990, 245 Cal. Rptr. 463

Prerequisites to estoppel tolling statute of limitations are that party to be estopped is apprised of facts; other party is ignorant of true state of facts; party to be estopped acted so that other party had right to believe party intended its conduct to be acted on, and other party relied on conduct to its prejudice. Muraoka v. Budget Rent-A-Car, Inc. (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 107, 116, 206 Cal. Rptr. 476

Promise to settle for amount satisfactory to claimant establishes prima facie case for estoppel when party making promise was responsible for delaying settlement discussions until after running of statute and claimant relied on promise in not retaining attorney before statute ran. Muraoka v. Budget Rent-A-Car, Inc. (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 107, 117, 206 Cal. Rptr. 476

[b] Fraudulent Concealment of Defendant's Identity

Applying principle that one should not profit from one's own wrongdoing, defendant is equitably estopped from asserting statute of limitations when, as result of intentional concealment, plaintiff is unable to discover defendant's actual identity. Bernson v. Browning-Ferris Industries (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 926, 936, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440, 873 P.2d 613

[c] Independent From Statute of Limitations

Doctrine of fraudulent concealment is judicially created and enters into statute of limitations, if at all, by being judicially read into it; Gov. Code § 11130.3(a), period of limitation for nullifying actions taken in violation of notice or open meeting requirements of Bagley-Keene Open Meeting Act, does not allow any extension of time even through operation of doctrine of fraudulent concealment; purpose of doctrine of fraudulent concealment and of 30-day limitation period of section 11130.3(a) are not consistent. Regents of University of California v. Superior Court (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 509, 532-535, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 257, 976 P.2d 808

Because equitable estoppel operates directly on defendant without abrogating running of statutory limitations period, it might apply no matter how unequivocal statutory language containing applicable limitations period is expressed; although Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2(a) (cause of action against decedent) clearly shows Legislature intended that statute of limitations set forth in section not be "tolled" or "extended," statute is silent about equitable estoppel, and absent such language, or legislative history suggesting that Legislature intended to abrogate doctrine of equitable estoppel, doctrine of equitable estoppel still applies. Battuello v. Battuello (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 842, 847-848, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548

[d] Pleading and Proof

Question whether defendant's conduct tolls statute of limitations is one of fact for jury once elements of estoppel are determined to have been pleaded adequately. Muraoka v. Budget Rent-A-Car, Inc. (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 107, 117, 206 Cal. Rptr. 476

Estoppel must be pleaded and proved as affirmative bar to defense of statute of limitations. Hanson v. Garden Grove Unified School Dist. (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 942, 948, 181 Cal. Rptr. 378

[14] Federal Causes of Action

When Congress, in creating federal cause of action, fails to supply express statute of limitations, United States Supreme Court generally concludes that Congress intended courts to apply most closely analogous statute of limitations under state law, unless rule from elsewhere in federal law clearly provides closer analogy than available state statutes and federal policies at stake and practicalities of litigation make that rule significantly more appropriate vehicle for interstitial lawmaking. Reed v. United Transport. Union (1989) 488 U.S. 319, 323-325, 109 S. Ct. 621, 102 L. Ed. 2d 665 (involving 29 U.S.C. § 411(a)(2), relating to assembly and free speech rights of members of labor organizations)

When state law provides multiple statutes of limitation for personal injury actions, courts considering claims under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 (conferring general remedy for injuries to personal rights) should borrow state's general or residual statute of limitations for personal injury actions. Owens v. Okure (1989) 488 U.S. 235, 236, 249-251, 109 S. Ct. 573, 102 L. Ed. 2d 594

When Congress does not provide statute of limitations for federal cause of action, forum state's statute of limitations applies unless it unduly qualifies or diminishes federal right cause of action seeks to protect. San Diego County Dist. Council v. Cory (9th Cir. 1982) 685 F.2d 1137, 1139

When Congress has expressly set limitations period on federal claim, state statutes of limitations, including state tolling provisions, do not apply; federal equitable tolling generally applies when defendant's misconduct interferes with plaintiff's filing of lawsuit, or in special circumstances, e.g., when plaintiff files timely lawsuit which is later dismissed without plaintiff's fault; in case of federal claimfor which no federal statute of limitations exists, general rule is that state law applies, although in recent years more courts have not followed general rule and have borrowed other limitations periods from federal statutes; thus, when there is no specifically stated or otherwise relevant federal statute of limitations for federal substantive claim, controlling period is ordinarily most appropriate one provided by state law; when federal claims are governed by state statutes of limitations, state tolling provisions also apply, as long as they are not inconsistent with purpose of federal legislation. Bunnell v. Department of Corrections (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1360, 1370-1374, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 58

Tolling provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 352(a) for minority applies to federal civil rights action brought under 42 U.S.C. § 1983; one-year limitation period for bringing federal civil rights action tolled during plaintiff's minority; tolling not precluded by Code Civ. Proc. § 352(b). City of Huntington Park v. Superior Court (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1293, 1297-1300, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 68

Four-year statute of limitations for actions based on violation of guarantee under U.S. Const., amend. IV, against unreasonable searches and seizures by federal agent acting under color of federal authority, giving rise to claim for damages, does not extend to claims arising from acts of agents of states. City of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 443, 445, 265 Cal. Rptr. 925

[15] Liability Created by Statute

Cause of action is based on liability created by statute only if type of liability provided for in statute was nonexistent at common law; thus, when cause of action is based on statute that did not create new form of liability, but merely codified and refined existing law, three year limitations period in Code Civ. Proc. § 338 for actions based on statutory liability does not apply. West Shield Investigations & Security Consultants v. Superior Court (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 935, 952, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 612

Obligation is liability created by statute within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 338 (providing three-year period of limitation), if statutory scheme has been adopted that gives rise to newly created rights, if liability was created by law in absence of agreement, or if duty is fixed by statute itself. County Sanitation Dist. v. Superior Court (1990) 218 Cal.

App. 3d 98, 106-107, 266 Cal. Rptr. 777

"Liability created by law" is one that exists by virtue of express statute but does not extend to actions arising under common law; hence, three-year statute of limitations in Code Civ. Proc. § 359 applies when there is statutory basis for actions against directors, shareholders, or members of corporation. Smith v. Superior Court (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 950, 953, 266 Cal. Rptr. 253

[16] Liability Created by Ordinance

Ordinance has same force within its jurisdictional limits as statute passed by Legislature has throughout state; therefore, action on liability created by ordinance must be commenced within three-year period prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 338; rules applicable to construction of statutes apply equally to ordinances. County Sanitation Dist. v. Superior Court (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 98, 107, 266 Cal. Rptr. 777

[17] New Action After Termination of Previous Action

[a] Reversal of Judgment for Plaintiff

Code Civ. Proc. § 355 does not apply when judgment for plaintiff is reversed on appeal and cause is remanded for new trial. Watterson v. Owens River Canal Co. (1922) 190 Cal. 88, 95, 210 P. 625

Code Civ. Proc. § 355 permits new action of any kind having as object same relief as obtained in original action. Kenney v. Parks (1902) 137 Cal. 527, 530, 70 P. 556

Extended period of limitation provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 355 applies to action originally filed in other state and refiled in California. Schneider v. Schimmels (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 366, 370, 64 Cal. Rptr. 273

[b] Involuntary Dismissal

Plaintiff suffering involuntary dismissal because of failure to prosecute is not entitled to benefits of Code Civ. Proc. § 355 under Bollinger doctrine. Neff v. New York Life Ins. Co. (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 165, 174, 180 P.2d 900 ; Tannhauser v. Adams (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 169, 177-178, 187 P.2d 716 ; Stuckman v. Woodhull (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 424, 426-427, 338 P.2d 934

Plaintiff is entitled in appropriate case to benefits of Code Civ. Proc. § 355 after involuntary dismissal, if error of trial court denied plaintiff trial on merits. Bollinger v. National Fire Ins. Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 399, 409-410, 411, 154 P.2d 399

[c] Summary Judgment

Although resolution of statute of limitations issue is normally question of fact, when uncontradicted facts established through discovery are susceptible of only one legitimate inference, summary judgment is proper. Romano v. Rockwell Internat., Inc. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 479, 487, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20, 926 P.2d 1114

Resolution of statute of limitations defense is typically factual question for trier of fact; summary judgment proper, however, if court can draw only one legitimate inference from uncontradicted evidence about limitations issue. San Francisco Unified School Dist. v. W. R. Grace & Co. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1318, 1325-1326, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305

Summary judgment granted on ground that action is barred by statute of limitations is technical or procedural disposition of action rather than substantive and does not preclude subsequent action on new theory on which statute of limitations has not yet run. Koch v. Rodlin Enterprises (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1591, 1595-1597, 273 Cal. Rptr. 438

[18] Purpose of Statutory Limitation

Purpose of statute of limitations is to protect defendants from stale claims of dilatory plaintiffs and to stimulate plaintiffs to diligently assert fresh claims against defendants; statutes of limitation operate conclusively across board, not flexibly on case-by-case basis, i.e., cause of action brought within applicable limitations period is not barred, even if, in fact, action is stale and plaintiff is dilatory; conversely, cause of action brought outside limitation period is barred, even if, in fact, action is fresh and plaintiff is diligent. Norgart v. Upjohn Co. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 383, 395-396, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 453, 981 P.2d 79

Typical statute of limitations purpose is to protect defendant from dilatory plaintiff's stale claim. Regents of University of California v. Superior Court (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 509, 533, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 257, 976 P.2d 808

Limitations statutes are intended to enable defendants to marshall evidence while memories and facts are fresh and to provide defendants with repose for past acts; legislative goal underlying statutes of limitation is to require diligent prosecution of known claims so that legal affairs can have their necessary finality and predictability and so that claims can be resolved while evidence remains reasonably available and fresh. Jordache Enterprises, Inc. v. Brobeck, Phleger & Harrison (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 739, 755-756, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 749, 958 P.2d 1062

Statutes of limitations are designed to promote justice by preventing surprises through revival of stale claims. Bollinger v. National Fire Ins. Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 399, 407, 154 P.2d 399

Statutes of limitation are favored by law. Fontana Land Co. v. Laughlin (1926) 199 Cal. 625, 636, 250 P. 669 ; Kunstman v. Mirizzi (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 753, 757, 44 Cal. Rptr. 707

Two major purposes underlie statutes of limitations, that is, protecting defendants from having to defend stale claims by providing notice in time to prepare a fair defense on the merits, and requiring plaintiffs to diligently pursue their claims. Grell v. Laci Le Beau Corp. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1300, 1304-1305, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 358

Statutes of limitation are to be viewed favorably as affording parties who may, by lapse of time, have lost ability to procure evidence, repose and security from stale demands; statutes of limitation are designed to prevent resurgence of stale claims after lapse of periods of time as result of which loss of papers, disappearance of witnesses, feeble recollection, make ineffectual or extremely difficult fair presentation of case; but they are not intended as defenses to just demands of comparatively recent origin. Herman v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 819, 826, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144

Fundamental purpose of statutes of limitation to prevent assertion of stale claims by plaintiffs who have failed to file their action until evidence is no longer fresh and witnesses are no longer available. Gordon v. Law Offices of Aguirre & Meyer (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 972, 978, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 119

Purpose of statutes of limitations is to promote justice by preventing surprises through revival of claims that have been allowed to slumber until evidence has been lost, memories have faded, and witnesses have disappeared; theory is that even if one has just claim it is unjust not to put adversary on notice to defend within period of limitation, and right to be free of stale claims in time comes to prevail over right to prosecute them. Cutujian v. Benedict Hills Estates Assn. (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1379, 1387-1388, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 166

Statute of limitations are designed to provide repose and protection against burden of defending against stale claims. Kray Cabling Co. v. County of Contra Costa (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 1588, 1592-1593, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 674

Limitation periods on suits are designed to promote justice by preventing surprises through revival of stale claims, to protect defendants and courts from handling matters in which search for truth may be impaired by loss of evidence, to encourage plaintiffs to use reasonable and proper diligence in enforcing their rights, and to prevent fraud. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 604, 612, 258 Cal. Rptr. 413

Whether cause of action is barred by statute of limitation is question of fact. Jaffe v. Carroll (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 53, 59, 110 Cal. Rptr. 435

[19] Raising Bar of Statute of Limitations

Bar of statute of limitations may be raised in demurrer pleading failure to state facts sufficient to constitute cause of action. California Safe etc. Co. v. Sierra etc. Co. (1910) 158 Cal. 690, 698, 112 P. 274

Complaint showing on its face that cause of action is barred by statute of limitations is subject to general demurrer. Iverson, Yoakum, Papiano & Hatch v. Berwald (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 990, 995, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 665

Amendment of answer to set up statute of limitations. Clinton v. Smith (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 550, 553-554, 74 Cal. Rptr. 745

[20] Relation Back of Amended Complaint

[a] General Principle

Relation-back doctrine requires that amended complaint must (1) rest on same general set of facts, (2) involve same injury, and (3) refer to same instrumentality, as original one. Norgart v. Upjohn Co. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 383, 409, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 453, 981 P.2d 79

When amendment to complaint is sought after statute of limitations has run, amended complaint is deemed filed as of date of original complaint provided recovery is sought in both pleadings on same general set of facts. Smeltzley v. Nicholson Mfg. Co. (1977) 18 Cal. 3d 932, 934, 136 Cal. Rptr. 269, 559 P.2d 624 ; Austin v. Massachusetts Bonding & Insurance Co. (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 596, 600-603, 15 Cal. Rptr. 817, 364 P.2d 681 ; see also Smeltzley v. Nicholson Mfg. Co. (1977) 18 Cal. 3d 932, 934, 939-940, 136 Cal. Rptr. 269, 559 P.2d 624 ; Grudt v. City of Los Angeles (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 575, 583-585, 86 Cal. Rptr. 465, 468 P.2d 825 ; Streicher v. Tommy's Electric Co. (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 876, 882, 211 Cal. Rptr. 22 ; Overholser v. Glynn (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 800, 805, 73 Cal. Rptr. 628 (facts, not legal theory, as test); Garrett v. Crown Coach Corp. (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 647, 651, 66 Cal. Rptr. 590

General rule is that amended complaint that adds new defendant does not relate back to date of filing original complaint and statute of limitations is applied as of date amended complaint is filed, unless recognized exception to general rule for substitution of new defendant for fictitiously named Doe defendant under Code Civ. Proc. § 474 applies. Woo v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 169, 176, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20

Amended complaint relates back to original complaint and avoids statute of limitation as bar only if it (1) rests on same set of general facts as original complaint, and (2) refers to same accident and same injuries as original complaint. Boyle v. City of Redondo Beach (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1109, 1119, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 164

Amended complaint relates back to filing date of original complaint and avoids bar of statute of limitations so long as recovery is sought in both pleadings on same general set of facts; amended complaint did not relate back when it was based on events occurring on two different dates (original complaint based on events of first date only), and when it referred to different accident, different injury, and different instrumentality. Espinosa v. Superior Court (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 409, 414-415, 248 Cal. Rptr. 375

Amended complaint relates back to filing of original complaint and avoids bar of statute of limitations, so long as recovery is sought in both pleadings on same general set of facts; change in parties does not prevent relation back when no new defendants are brought in for first time at time of amendment. Slaughter v. Legal Process & Courier Service (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 1236, 1253, 209 Cal. Rptr. 189

In action for share of property jointly acquired by plaintiff and man with whom she cohabited, court improperly denied plaintiff right to amend complaint to plead equitable relief in order to come within four-year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 343 for actions in equity, rather than three-year period of Code Civ. Proc. § 339 for actions based on contract, when recovery in both pleadings was based on same general set of facts. Nelson v. Nevel (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 132, 141-142, 201 Cal. Rptr. 93

Amended complaint is based on same general set of facts and relates back to original complaint if amplified statement of facts describes same "accident" as described in original complaint, even though new defendant is identified in connection with specifying new element in chain of causation. Coronet Mfg. Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 342, 348, 153 Cal. Rptr. 366

[b] Adding Cause of Action

Amendment in wrongful demotion case adding new legal theory of constructive discharge based on new facts arising after filing of complaint was barred by statute of limitations. Lee v. Bank of America (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 197, 214-215, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 388

Statute of limitations does not bar amended complaint alleging new causes of action if it rests on same facts as original complaint and refers to same accident and same injuries as original complaint; relation-back doctrine focuses on factual similarity rather than on rights arising from facts, permitting added causes of action to relate back to initial complaint so long as they arise factually from same injury; new cause of action rests on same set of facts when it involves same accident and same offending instrumentality. Goldman v. Wilsey Foods, Inc. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1085, 1094, 265 Cal. Rptr. 294

Amended complaint alleging new cause of action based on new facts not alleged in original complaint does not relate back to date original complaint was filed. Filmservice Laboratories, Inc. v. Harvey Bernhard Enterprises, Inc. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1297, 1309, 256 Cal. Rptr. 735

Plaintiff's attempt to amend complaint to state similar, yet distinct, new cause of action was barred by statute of limitations because amendment could not relate back to filing of original complaint. Parker v. Superior Court (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 1082, 1088, 223 Cal. Rptr. 292 (survival action as distinct from wrongful death action)

Amended complaint adding emotional distress causes of action to wrongful death causes of action related back to date of original complaint, and therefore avoided bar of statute of limitations, because it sought recovery for same accident (electrocution of decedent) and for same injury (loss of plaintiff's son). Rowland v. Superior Court (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 1214, 1218, 217 Cal. Rptr. 786

Proposed amendment to complaint for negligent infliction of emotional distress by failure to detect or properly apprise pregnant woman of possibility of genetic defect in utero to include cause of action for negligent infliction of bodily injury by medical treatment was barred by statute of limitations, because general set of facts underlying cause of action in original complaint was distinct from that underlying proposed amendment, and instrumentality of causation of bodily injury was different in each cause of action. Andalon v. Superior Court (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 600, 616, 208 Cal. Rptr. 899

Amended complaint for wrongful death filed after statute of limitations has run relates back to plaintiff's timely action for loss of consortium, when both actions are based on same set of facts. Lamont v. Wolfe (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 375, 377-379, 190 Cal. Rptr. 874

In action involving automobile collision, proposed amendment stating additional cause of action for negligent entrustment arose from same general set of facts as original complaint for negligence, and was permitted to relate back to original complaint, thereby avoiding bar of statute of limitations. Hirsa v. Superior Court (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 486, 488-491, 173 Cal. Rptr. 418

Plaintiff's amended complaint alleging additional cause of action for damages suffered by decedent before death did not relating back to filing of original complaint for wrongful death and was barred by statute of limitations. Dominguez v. City of Alhambra (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 237, 241, 173 Cal. Rptr. 345

Amendment of complaint at outset of trial to add new theory of recovery on same set of facts. Rainer v. Community Memorial Hosp. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 240, 254, 95 Cal. Rptr. 901

[c] Substituting True Name for Fictitiously Named Defendant

If plaintiff knows defendant's identity and then forgets it at time complaint is filed, plaintiff must have at least reviewed readily available information likely to refresh his or her memory to use Code Civ. Proc. § 474 relation back doctrine to avoid bar of statute of limitations. Woo v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 169, 179-180, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20 (Fourth Dist., Div. One; rejecting contrary authority of Balon v. Drost (1993) 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 12 (1st Dist., Div.2)

Courts have considered noncompliance with party substitution requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 474 as curable procedural defect and have been lenient in permitting rectification of defect; in other cases, however, court may require strict compliance and counsel cautioned to follow correct procedure for substituting named defendant for fictitious Doe defendant. Woo v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 169, 176-177, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20

Amendment adding true name of Doe defendant in action filed against health care provider more than one year after discovery of cause of action was proper because serving notice of intent on named codefendants, as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 364(a), extends period for commencement of suit against Does as well as against named codefendants. Grimm v. Thayer (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 866, 870-871, 233 Cal. Rptr. 687

When defendant is substituted for fictitiously named party that was allegedly liable for plaintiff's damages, date of original complaint applies for limitations purposes. Moseley v. Abrams (1986) 170 Cal. App. 3d 355, 359, 216 Cal. Rptr. 40

Amendment to complaint meeting requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 474 (adding true name of unknown defendant) related back for statute of limitations purposes to date of filing original complaint. Olden v. Hatchell (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 1032, 1037, 201 Cal. Rptr. 715

Amendment adding specific name of Doe defendant makes that defendant party as of date original complaint was filed for purpose of statute of limitation. Scannell v. County of Riverside (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 596, 617, 199 Cal. Rptr. 644

In action for wrongful death resulting from stabbing in tavern, amended complaint substituting owners of another tavern in which assailant is alleged to have become intoxicated for Doe defendants was not barred by statute of limitations. Barnes v. Wilson (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 199, 206, 114 Cal. Rptr. 839

[d] Alleging Additional Damages

Amended complaint alleging special damages not mentioned in original complaint may relate back to original complaint as long as special damages are result of injury alleged in original complaint. Walton v. Guinn (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1354, 1362, 232 Cal. Rptr. 451

[e] Adding Plaintiffs

Under Klopstock v. Superior Court (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 13, 19-22, 108 P.2d 906 , complaint filed by party without standing may be amended to substitute real party in interest if facts of cause of action against defendant are not "wholly different" after amendment; according to Klopstock, amendment to substitute real party in interest as plaintiff is entitled to relation back effect so long as cause of action against defendant is not factually changed; amendment changing nothing other than identity of plaintiff would clearly pass modern "same general set of facts" test set forth in Austin v. Massachusetts Bonding & Ins. Co. (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 596, 600, 364 P.2d 681 ; leave to amend to either substitute as plaintiff real party in interest (i.e., bankruptcy trustee), or to obtain trustee's abandonment of claim, did not change substantive cause of action and should have been granted. Cloud v. Northrop Grumman Corp. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 995, 1000, 1004-1008, 1011, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 544

Amended complaint naming individual in representative capacity as defendant on behalf of decedent relates back to filing of original complaint that was timely filed against decedent whose death was unknown to plaintiff at time of filing original complaint. Burgos v. Tamulonis (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 757, 762-763, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 728

Amendment in which individual plaintiff adds his or her solely owned professional corporation as new plaintiff relates back to original filing of complaint if individual and corporate plaintiffs are, for purposes of action, essentially the same, when same general set of facts are alleged in amended complaint, and when defendant will not suffer prejudice. Pasadena Hospital Assn. v. Superior Court (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1031, 1033, 251 Cal. Rptr. 686

Amendment nunc pro tunc to add new plaintiffs was permissible notwithstanding statute of limitations when new plaintiffs were originally part of class action that was not certified. Guenter v. Lomas & Nettleton Co. (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 460, 468, 189 Cal. Rptr. 470

Husband barred by statute of limitations from becoming additional plaintiff alleging cause of action for loss of consortium in action filed by injured wife. Bartalo v. Superior Court (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 526, 532, 124 Cal. Rptr. 370

[f] Miscellaneous Issues

Appointment of plaintiff as personal representative of her deceased son several years after statute of limitations had run on personal injury survival action was properly held, under facts of case, not to relate back to timely filing of original complaint, when plaintiff knew or should have known that she lacked standing to sue when complaint was filed and incorrectly alleged that she had been appointed personal representative. Coats v. K-Mart Corp. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 961, 967-968, 264 Cal. Rptr. 12

Filing proposed amended complaint stating new cause of action with notice of motion for leave to amend is within period of limitations even though hearing and order on motion occur after period would have run. Wiener v. Superior Court (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 525, 530, 130 Cal. Rptr. 61

Amendment after statute of limitations has run to show that party who made general appearance in action is the defendant. Chitwood v. County of Los Angeles (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 522, 526-528, 92 Cal. Rptr. 441

[21] Relationship Between Statutes of Limitation, Fictitious Name Statute, and Statutory Requirement That Summons Be Served in Three Years

Statutory schemes involving various statutes of limitations, Code Civ. Proc. § 474 (suing party by fictitious name), and Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210 (requiring that summons and complaint be served on defendant within three years after complaint is filed) represent satisfactory compromise between harsh effect on plaintiff of statute of limitations and unfairness to defendant of attempting to litigate stale claim; the shorter the statute of limitations, the greater the need for application of fictitious-names statute. Sobeck & Associates, Inc. v. B & R Investments No. 24 (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 861, 870, 264 Cal. Rptr. 156

[21.1] Relationship Between Statute of Limitations and Statute of Repose

While statute of limitations normally sets time within which proceedings must be commenced once cause of action accrues, statute of repose limits time within which action may be brought and is not related to accrual; statute of repose is thus harsher than statute of limitations in that it cuts off right of action after specified period of time, irrespective of accrual or even notice that legal right has been invaded. Giest v. Sequoia Ventures, Inc (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 300, 305-306, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 476

Statute of repose differs from statute of limitations in that statutes of limitation bar suits filed more than specified period after injury occurs or is discovered, whereas statute of repose is bar on all suits brought more than specified period after date of manufacture of a product and delivery to purchaser; because date of injury is not factor used in computing running of time period and because statutes of repose typically do not have tolling provisions, they acquire substantive nature, barring rights of action even before injury has occurred if injury occurs subsequent to prescribed time period. Burroughs v. Precision Airmotive Corp. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 681, 689-690, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 124

[22] Supplemental Complaints

Supplemental complaint alleging later instances of same conduct as that alleged in original complaint relates back to date of original complaint that gave defendant notice that wrong was of continuing nature. Bendix Corp. v. City of Los Angeles (198) 150 Cal. App. 3d 921, 926, 198 Cal. Rptr. 370 (disagreeing with contrary holding of ITT Gilfillan, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 581, 589, 185 Cal. Rptr. 848)

Supplemental complaint does not relate back to date of filing of original complaint and thus not allowed after period of limitation expires. ITT Gilfillan, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 581, 586-589, 185 Cal. Rptr. 848

[23] Suspension of Period of Limitation

[a] Effect

Effect of suspension of running period of limitation is to add to equal amount of time to period. Estate of Caravas (1952) 40 Cal. 2d 33, 42, 250 P.2d 593

[b] Absence of Obligor From State

[i] General Rule

Fact that defendant was amenable to service of process while outside state is irrelevant to tolling provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 351. Maurer v. Ind. and as Members of Los Angeles Cty. (9th Cir. 1982) 691 F.2d 434, 436

Although the tolling provisions of Code of Civ. Proc. § 340.6 are exclusive with regard to legal malpractice claims, the broad terms of the fourth tolling provision of § 340.6(a)--the provision applicable to legal and physical disabilities--encompass the circumstances described in the general tolling provisions set forth in § 351, which generally provides that if, when the cause of action accrues against a person, he is out of the state, the action may be commenced within the applicable limitations period after his return to the state. Jocer Enterprises, Inc. v. Price (2010) 183 Cal. App. 4th 559, 569, 107 Cal. Rptr. 3d 539

The tolling provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 351 applies to the one-year limitation in medical malpractice cases. Harm resulted from the trial court's denial of plaintiff's discovery motions because his notice of intent to sue was six days late, and at trial the surgeon testified that he was outside California for three days. An absence for three more days--merely a long weekend perhaps--would have made a world of difference to the timeliness of the complaint. Thus, denying discovery prevented the patient from gathering evidence on a dispositive issue. The patient did not have to accept the surgeon's testimony as the final word. Kaplan v. Mamelak (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 637, 643-44, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 861

Code Civ. Proc. § 351 impermissibly burdens interstate commerce with respect to residents who travel in course of interstate commerce; however, Commerce Clause does not bar applying tolling provisions of section 351 to interstate travel unrelated to facilitation of interstate commerce (e.g., vacation trips); demurrer improperly sustained when allegations of complaint did not describe extent to which defendant's absences from California were in course of interstate commerce. Filet Menu, Inc. v. Cheng (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1276, 1282-1284, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 384

Limited partnership is entity permanently within state so that statute of limitations on claims against partnership is not tolled when general partner is absent from state. Epstein v. Frank (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 111, 120, 177 Cal. Rptr. 831

Absence of proposed defendant from state does not suspend running of period of limitation where defendant has agent within state authorized to receive service of process. Bigelow v. Smik (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 10, 12-13, 85 Cal. Rptr. 613

Time of proposed defendant's absence does not add to period of limitation if occurring while plaintiff under disability. Rafael v. Superior Court (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 457, 458-460, 81 Cal. Rptr. 748

[ii] Absence of One of Joint Obligors

Absence of one of two or more joint obligors suspends running of period of limitation as to absent obligor, notwithstanding expiration of period as to other joint obligor remaining in state. Arocena v. Sawyer (1923) 60 Cal. App. 581, 591-592, 213 P. 523 (partners)

[iii] Corporation as Obligor

Code Civ. Proc. § 351 does not apply in action against foreign corporation. Cardoso v. American Medical Systems, Inc. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 994, 997-999, 228 Cal. Rptr. 627

Code Civ. Proc. § 351 does not apply to case of corporate obligee, whether foreign or domestic corporation. Loope v. Greyhound Lines, Inc. (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 611, 614, 250 P.2d 651

[iv] Departure From State After Cause of Action Accrues

Secret, clandestine, or fraudulently contrived visits after departure do not affect suspension of period of limitation because of obligor's departure from state after accrual of cause of action; open, repeated, and prolonged visits, however, are part of period of limitation, whether or not plaintiff knows of them. Stewart v. Stewart (1907) 152 Cal. 162, 166, 92 P. 87

The tolling provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 351 have been applied to nonresident defendants who have never entered the state and to resident defendants who are temporarily absent from the state. Whether section 351 applies to resident defendants who are permanently absent from California, i.e., those who move out of state, was considered by the court in Heritage Marketing & Ins. Services, Inc. v. Chrustawka (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 754, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 126 , which concluded that section 351 penalizes people who move out of state by imposing a longer statute of limitations on them than on those who remain in the state, and that the commerce clause protects persons from such restraints on their movements across state lines. Heritage Marketing & Ins. Services, Inc. v. Chrustawka (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 754, 763, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 126

Tolling provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 351 increases 10-year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 337.5 for time defendant spent out of state to avoid judgment. Green v. Zissis (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 1219, 1223, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 406

[v] Limited Partnership as Obligor

Code Civ. Proc. § 351 does not apply to limited partnership that has designated agent for service of process. Cardoso v. American Medical Systems, Inc. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 994, 999, 228 Cal. Rptr. 627 ; Epstein v. Frank (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 111, 120, 177 Cal. Rptr. 831

[vi] Nonresidence of Obligor

Code Civ. Proc. § 351 applies where obligor never was in or resided in state and subsequently enters state; entry is equivalent to "return." Cvecich v. Giardino (1940) 37 Cal. App. 2d 394, 399-400, 99 P.2d 573

[c] Arbitration

Cal. Code of Civ. Proc. § 1281.12 provides that if an arbitration agreement requires that arbitration of a controversy be demanded or initiated by a party to the arbitration agreement within a period of time, the commencement of a civil action by that party based upon that controversy, within that period of time, shall toll the applicable time limitations contained in the arbitration agreement with respect to that controversy, from the date the civil action is commenced until 30 days after a final determination by the court that the party is required to arbitrate the controversy, or 30 days after the final termination of the civil action that was commenced and initiated the tolling, whichever date occurs first. The end of the tolling period simply means that the contractual limitations clock begins to run again, not that the limitations period ended. Pearson Dental Supplies, Inc. v. Superior Court (2010) 48 Cal. 4th 665, 673-675, 108 Cal. Rptr. 3d 171, 229 P.3d 83

A court may not deny a petition to compel arbitration on the ground the statute of limitations has run on the claims the parties agreed to arbitrate. Wagner Construction Co. v. Pacific Mechanical Corp. (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 19, 25, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434, 157 P.3d 1029

Under Ins. Code § 10089.82, any applicable period of limitations is tolled for number of days beginning from referral to mediation under Ins. Code § 10089.70 et seq. (mediation program for insurance disputes arising from the Northridge earthquake) until date on which mediation is either completed or declined, date on which insured fails to appear for scheduled mediation for second time, or, in the event that a settlement is completed, expiration of any applicable 3 business days cooling off period; period of tolling ended on date parties met for mediation, which was unsuccessful,where there was no indication parties wished to avail themselves further of program, rather than later date on which Department of Insurance sent courtesy letter to parties notifying them of termination of mediation; there was no statutory requirement of formal written notification. Michelson v. Mid-Century Ins. Co. (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 450, 457-459, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 804

Period of limitation is suspended while contractual dispute submitted to arbitration or other form of reference. A. Teichert & Son, Inc. v. State of Cal., (1956) 238 Cal. App. 2d 736, 746-747, 48 Cal. Rptr. 225

[d] Commencing Action

[i] General Rule

Filing of a petition to perpetuate testimony or preserve evidence under Code of Civ. Proc. § 2035.010 et seq. does not constitute the filing of a "suit" for purposes of satisfying the six-month statute of limitations set forth in Gov. Code § 945.6(a)(1) of the California Tort Claims Act. Orr v. City of Stockton (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 622, 627, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 662
