Civil action is commenced by filing complaint with court; in ordinary lawsuits deadline for serving summons is later than deadline for filing complaint; Gov. Code § 66499.37 (action to review decision concerning a subdivision), however, expressly requires not only that action be commenced within 90 days, but also that service of summons be effected within same 90 days. Maginn v. City of Glendale (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1102, 1104-1108, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 639

Complaint deemed filed when presented to clerk for filing during business hours in form required by state law; clerk has ministerial duty to file such paper. Carlson v. Department of Fish & Game (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1268, 1270, 1272-1276, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 601

Commencement of action suspends running of period of limitation as to matters arising out of transaction set forth in complaint. Record Machine & Tool Co. v. Pageman Holding Corp. (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 164, 175-176, 342 P.2d 402

Period of limitation on action in form of cross-action by defendant, if cause of action arises out of transaction set forth in complaint, is suspended by filing of complaint. Luther v. Foster (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 725, 729, 310 P.2d 655 (disapproved on other grounds in Palmer v. Gregg (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 657, 662, 56 Cal. Rptr. 97, 422 P.2d 985)

[ii] As to Fictitiously Named Defendant

Suing defendant by fictitious name under Code Civ. Proc. § 474 is means of bringing suit before barred by statute of limitation; party so sued is party from date of commencement if true name inserted by amendment. Austin v.

Massachusetts Bonding & Insurance Co. (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 596, 599, 600, 602, 15 Cal. Rptr. 817, 364 P.2d 681

Notice of intent to commence action against health care provider, when properly served on named defendants, extends period for commencement of suit against Does as well as against named defendants. Grimm v. Thayer (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 866, 870-871, 233 Cal. Rptr. 687 (disapproved on another ground in Woods v. Young (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 315, 328 n.4, 279 Cal. Rptr. 613, 807 P.2d 455)

While duty to investigate is considered in discussing whether initial complaint is timely, that inquiry is not relevant to whether Doe amendment is timelyunder Code Civ. Proc. § 474; while it is true that plaintiff's ignorance of defendant's name must be genuine (in good faith) and not feigned and that plaintiff need not be aware of each and every detail concerning person's involvement before plaintiff loses claim to ignorance, it is equally true that plaintiff does not relinquish his or her right under section 474 simply because he or she has suspicion of wrongdoing arising from one or more known facts; trial court erred in medical malpractice action in holding that the plaintiff did not properly amend complaint to substitute a doctor as Doe defendant under section 474 when court applied standard that plaintiff was obligated to make reasonable investigation to discover doctor's identity to determine connection between him and plaintiff's injuries; only relevant inquiry was whether plaintiff knew of doctor's identity and facts giving rise to cause of action against him. Fuller v. Tucker (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 1163, 1169-1173, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 776

When lawsuit is initiated within applicable limitation period against someone and plaintiff has complied with Code Civ. Proc. § 474 by alleging existence of unknown additional defendants, relevant inquiry when plaintiff seeks to substitute a real defendant for one sued fictitiously is what facts plaintiff actually knew at time original complaint filed; to defeat claim of ignorance required by section 474, it must be shown that plaintiff had actual knowledge of basic facts; on other hand, when lawsuit is first initiated after applicable period of limitation has expired and plaintiff is entitled to claim benefit of delayed discovery rule, relevant inquiry is what plaintiff knew or, through exercise of due diligence, reasonably could have discovered at an earlier date; statute of limitation begins to run when plaintiff suspects or should suspect that plaintiff's injury was caused by wrongdoing, that someone has done something wrong to plaintiff. General Motors Corp. v. Superior Court (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 580, 587-588, 594-596, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 871

Plaintiff cannot avoid statute of limitations by naming fictitious defendant and then, after statute has run, adding by amendment defendant whose identity and capacity were known from outset. Pabitzky v. Frager (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 401, 403-404, 210 Cal. Rptr. 426

Allegation of fictitiously named defendants under Code Civ. Proc. § 474 is proper in action under Tort Claims Act (Gov. Code § 810 et seq.) to designate public employee defendants; under Tort Claims Act, plaintiff is necessarily not ignorant of public entity's identity at commencement of action, but is nonetheless able to be initially ignorant in good faith of public employees' true names. Olden v. Hatchell (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 1032, 1034-1039, 201 Cal. Rptr. 715

Party sued as Doe defendant is, for statute of limitations purposes, a party from time filing of original complaint; amendment adding specific name of Doe defendant after statute of limitations has run is justified, even though plaintiff originally knew of defendant's existence, when plaintiff was originally ignorant of facts giving rise to cause of action against that defendant. Scannell v. County of Riverside (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 596, 616-617, 199 Cal. Rptr. 644

Period of limitation continues to run as to person sued under fictitious name where complaint states no cause of action against him. Williams v. Goodman (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 856, 861-862, 29 Cal. Rptr. 877

Statutes of limitation apply to actions begun by cross complaint. Strong v. Strong (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 540, 544, 140

P.2d 386 ; Wells Fargo Bank v. Kincaid (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 120, 124, 66 Cal. Rptr. 832 , cert. denied, 393 U.S. 915

Filing of cross complaint to complaint by suspended corporation, tolls statute of limitations so that corporation may proceed with its original action upon revival if the statute of limitations as to the complaint had not yet expired at time cross complaint was filed. American Alternative Energy Partners II v. Windridge, Inc. (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 551, 564-565, 49 Cal Rptr. 2d 686 (rule applied to limited partnership that failed to file certificate of limited partnership)

Action that could have been asserted in cross complaint in original action but that was filed as separate action does not relate back to filing of original action and limitation period is not tolled during pendency of original action. Luna Records Corp., Inc. v. Alvarado (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 1026-1028, 1030, 283 Cal. Rptr. 865

Cross complaint is generally barred if action barred when complaint was filed. Trindade v. Superior Court (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 857, 859, 106 Cal. Rptr. 48

Cross complaint on action otherwise barred is not barred if plaintiff took advantage of extended period of limitation to delay filing complaint until cross claim was barred. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. v. Fales (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 712, 717, 106 Cal. Rptr. 21, 505 P.2d 213 (construing Ins. Code § 11580.2)

Period of limitation on defendant's cross action against plaintiff, if not barred, is suspended by filing complaint; period of limitation on defendant's cross action against any other person is not suspended. Trindade v. Superior Court (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 857, 859-860, 106 Cal. Rptr. 48

[iv] Defect in Designating Defendant

Misnomer or merely defective description or characterization of defendant, curable by amendment, does not affect period of limitation; naming wrong defendant altogether does not suspend running of period. Mayberry v. Coca Cola Bottling Co. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 350, 352-353, 53 Cal. Rptr. 317 ; Chitwood v. County of Los Angeles (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 522, 525, 92 Cal. Rptr. 441

[v] Defects in Form of Complaint

Running of period of limitation is suspended by filing of complaint notwithstanding its having defects or irregularities curable by amendment. Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Leale (1910) 14 Cal. App. 307, 308-309 ; Olsen v. Lockheed Aircraft Corp. (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 737, 742, 47 Cal. Rptr. 242

[vi] In Court Without Jurisdiction

Commencing action seasonably in court without jurisdiction nevertheless suspends running of period of limitation; action is transferrable to court with jurisdiction even after period of limitation would otherwise have expired. Morgan v. Somervell (1940) 40 Cal. App. 2d 398, 400, 104 P.2d 866 ; see Friends of Mammoth v. Board of Supervisors (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 247, 269, 104 Cal. Rptr. 761, 502 P.2d 1049

[e] Condition on Obligation

[i] Period Begins When Condition Occurs

Period of limitation for action based on liability which does not arise until occurrence of condition precedent begins to run only when condition occurs. Rose v. Foord (1892) 96 Cal. 152, 154, 30 P. 1114

[ii] Effect of Filing Complaint Before Performance of Condition

Complaint filed before performance of condition does not state cause of action, and is curable only by amendment within period alleging performance of condition. Wilson v. People ex rel. Dept. of Public Works (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 665, 667-669, 76 Cal. Rptr. 906

[iii] Implicitly Required to Be Performed in Reasonable Time

Person whose right to sue depends on his or her performing condition precedent is not allowed to suspend running of period of limitation indefinitely by delaying performance of condition; reasonable time for performance is to be allowed, generally the statutory period. Bass v. Hueter (1928) 205 Cal. 284, 287, 270 P. 958

[iv] Rejection of Claim as Condition

Period of limitation on claim required to be rejected before suit can be maintained does not begin to run until rejection. Spencer v. Los Angeles (1919) 180 Cal. 103, 119, 179 P. 163 ; Chas. L. Harney, Inc. v. State of California (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 77, 102, 31 Cal. Rptr. 524

Service of trustee's notice of rejection in proper form under Prob. Code § 19251 commences 90-day statute of limitations under Prob. Code § 19255(a)(1) even though filing of rejection with county clerk occurs later; having been served with trustee's written notice of rejection and thus having been on actual notice that trustee rejected claim, California Department of Health Services' complaint against decedent's trust estate filed more than 90 days later was time-barred; legislative scheme does not create separate rights of action against distributees so as to permit recovery under Prob. Code § 19203 when creditor has failed to establish its right after bringing action against decedent's trust. Bonta v. Baker (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 302, 304-307, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 172

Period of limitation on claim subject to Tort Claims Act probably begins to run even though claim was not presented and rejected as required in Act. Savage v. State (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 793, 796-797, 84 Cal. Rptr. 650 (interpreting effect of Gov. Code § 946.6 providing for judicial relief from bar to suit because nonpresentation of claim)

Running of period is suspended after rejection of claim where public entity misled claimant into delaying filing of complaint by appearing to be reconsidering claim. Potstada v. City of Oakland (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 1022, 1028-1029, 106 Cal. Rptr. 705

Determination whether public entity is estopped to assert statute of limitation because of misleading advice to claimant regarding substantive rights depends on whether entity aced unconscionably or took unfair advantage. Driscoll v. City of Los Angeles (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 297, 306, 61 Cal. Rptr. 661, 431 P.2d 245

[v] Official Governmental Act as Condition

Accrual of cause of action is postponed when statute requires official notice by governmental agency to plaintiff as condition precedent to plaintiff bringing action and notice has not yet been given; running of limitation period commences when required condition precedent is performed. Williams v. Pacific Mutual Life Ins. Co. (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 941, 950-951, 231 Cal. Rptr. 234

[f] Death of Obligee

Death of obligee does not, in absence of contrary statutory provision, suspend running of period of limitation on cause of action accruing during lifetime. Andersen v. Superior Court of County of Napa (1921) 187 Cal. 95, 101, 200 P. 963 ; see former Code Civ. Proc. § 353 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 366.1)

Death of obligee before accrual of cause of action does not suspend running of period of limitation, notwithstanding that when cause of action accrues no person exists who is entitled to sue. Cortelyou v. Imperial Land Co. (1913) 166 Cal. 14, 23-24, 134 P. 981

[g] Disability

[i] General Rule

Statutes of limitation are based on assumption that person having cause of action will not delay bringing it for unreasonable time; assumption does not apply where person is denied access to courts. Estate of Caravas (1952) 40 Cal. 2d 33, 40, 250 P.2d 593

Disability that arises simultaneously with accrual of cause of action exists when cause of action accrues and thus, suspends running of period of limitation. Weinstock v. Eissler (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 212, 231, 36 Cal. Rptr. 537 (insanity caused by and arising simultaneously with wrongful act on which cause of action based)

Plaintiff relying on disability must show it to be continuing from time cause of action accrued, tacking of disabilities, some of which did not exist when cause of action accrued, is not permitted. Rose v. Petaluma & Santa Rosa Ry. Co. (1923) 64 Cal. App. 213, 217, 221 P. 406

[ii] Disability of One of Joint Obligees

Joint obligees not under disability are benefitted by suspension of running of period of limitation because of disability of another joint obligee. Leeper v. Beltrami (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 195, 209, 1 Cal. Rptr. 12, 347 P.2d 12

[iii] Imprisonment

Imprisonment for life with possibility of parole suspends running of period of limitation, notwithstanding language in former Code Civ. Proc. § 352 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 352.1) "for term less than life." Grasso v. McDonough Power Equipment, Inc. (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 597, 599, 70 Cal. Rptr. 458

[iv] Insanity

In medical malpractice action, plaintiff's mental incompetence does not toll three-year statutory period provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5. Fogarty v. Superior Court (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 316, 320, 172 Cal. Rptr. 594

[v] Minority

When minor is emancipated by court order under Fam. Code § 7000 et seq., tolling provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 352(a) no longer applies, and emancipated minor's causes of action accrue and statute of limitations begin to run on date of emancipation. West Shield Investigations & Security Consultants v. Superior Court (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 935, 940, 949-951, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 612 .

Tolling provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 352(a) held to apply in action against wife of alleged child abuser sued on theory of negligent supervision, rather than Code Civ. Proc. § 340.1, which extends statute of limitations for civil action based on childhood sexual abuse; extended tolling provision of section 340.1 applies only to perpetrator of sexual abuse. Chaney v. Superior Court (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 152, 155-156, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73

Tolling provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 352(a) for minority applies to a federal civil rights action brought under 42 U.S.C. § 1983; tolling not precluded by Code Civ. Proc. § 352(b). City of Huntington Park v. Superior Court (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1293, 1297-1300, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 68

Code Civ. Proc. § 352(a)(1) (tolling during minority) applies to toll special limitation period in specific statute absent expression of contrary legislative intent, and public policy protecting minors precludes circumvention of tolling provision by incorporation of special limitation period in contract. Jessica H. v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 590, 592, 594-596, 202 Cal. Rptr. 239

[h] Election of Remedy

Whether breach is anticipatory or not, when there are ongoing contractual obligations plaintiff may elect to rely on contract despite breach, and statute of limitations does not begin to run until plaintiff has elected to treat breach as terminating contract. Mullins v. Rockwell Internat. Corp. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 731, 734, 738-739, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 636, 936 P.2d 1246 ; Romano v. Rockwell Internat., Inc. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 479, 484-485, 489-490, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20, 926 P.2d 1114

Reasonable and good-faith election of one remedy, to lessen extent of injury or damages, suspends running of period of limitation on other remedies. Myers v. County of Orange (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 626, 634, 86 Cal. Rptr. 198 ; Tu-Vu Drive-In Corp. v. Davies (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 435, 437, 58 Cal. Rptr. 105, 426 P.2d 505 ; Santa Clara County v. Hayes Co. (1955) 43 Cal. 2d 615, 617-619, 275 P.2d 456 ; Campbell v. Graham-Armstrong (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 482, 490, 107 Cal. Rptr. 777, 509 P.2d 689 (applying rule)

[i] Equitable Tolling

Equitable tolling of statute of limitations requires that (1) plaintiff provide timely notice to defendant of claim, (2) resultant delay not cause prejudice to defendant's position, and (3) plaintiff act reasonably and in good faith; plaintiff did not act reasonably and in good faith when there was unwarranted delay in filing action in that she had conducted her own investigation of facts, and had possession of results of defendant's investigation for 18 months before filing action. Ervin v. Los Angeles County (9th Cir. 1988) 848 F.2d 1018, 1019-1020

Equitable tolling does not apply when plaintiff who allegedly suffered several different wrongs pursues only one remedy regarding those wrongs. Ervin v. Los Angeles County (9th Cir. 1988) 848 F.2d 1018, 1019

A builder's passive ownership of property from the time the construction phase was completed until the owners purchased it does not preclude the builder from asserting the limitation defense of Code Civ. Proc. § 337.15, which requires that a suit to recover damages for a latent construction defect be brought within 10 years of the date of substantial completion of construction, regardless of the date of discovery of the defect. Absent any allegation that conduct by the builder following completion of the home caused plaintiff's damages, the builder should not be denied the protection that section 337.15 extends to developers. Gundogdu v. King Mai, Inc. (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 310, 315, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 489

Code Civ. Proc. § 337.15 is not subject to equitable tolling for repairs; establishing judicially created exception for repairs to 10-year period under Section 337.15 would rewrite statute in way that undermines its statutory purpose and violates established rules of statutory construction; moreover, equitable tolling is not permissible when inconsistent with text of relevant statute; for courts to add judicially inspired exception to express exceptions already approved by the Legislature--in conflict with purpose of statute--would usurp Legislature's role in determining policy. FNB Mortgage Corp. v. Pacific General Group (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1116, 1132-1134, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841

In ordinary lawsuits deadline for serving summons is later than deadline for filing complaint; Gov. Code § 66499.37 (action to review decision concerning a subdivision), however, expressly requires not only that action be commenced within 90 days, but also that service of summons be effected within same 90 days; Gov. Code § 66499.37 is not subject to equitable tolling. Maginn v. City of Glendale (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1102, 1109, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 639 (delayed service of summons)

In majority of cases in which courts apply equitable tolling doctrine, plaintiff possesses several legal remedies and in good faith pursues one designed to lessen extent of his or her injuries or damage; if defendant is not prejudiced, running of limitations period is tolled as to other available remedies; if, however, request for equitable tolling is not based on pursuit of one legal theory over another, but on initial action voided by court for failure to pay filing fee and there is no claim of error on court's part concerning first action nor assertion of any delay or dilatory tactics on defendant's part, doctrine of equitable tolling is inapplicable. Hu v. Silgan Containers Corp. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1261, 1270-1271, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 333 (distinguishing Bollinger v. National Fire Ins. Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 399, 154 P.2d 399 , in which court held plaintiff should be able to pursue second action although statute of limitations had expired because (1) trial court had erroneously granted initial nonsuit, (2) defendant's dilatory tactics prevented disposition of first action in time to permit second timely filing, and (3) plaintiff had at all times proceeded with diligence; all three factors present in Bollinger are essential to apply Bollinger rule)

Equitable tolling only applies when defendant receives notice, within limitations period, of plaintiff's pursuit of alternative remedy, so that defendant is aware of need to begin investigating matter; equitable tolling held not to apply when plaintiff took no formal action in pursuit of alternative remedy against defendant or third party, but merely engaged in informal negotiations. 65 Butterfield v. Chicago Title Ins. Co. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1047, 1062-1063, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 40

Doctrine of equitable tolling does not apply to Code Civ. Proc. § 340.6; also, one element that must be present before equitable tolling rule of Bollinger v. National Fire Ins. Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 399, 154 P.2d 399 applies is that plaintiffs are left without judicial forum for resolution of their claims through forces outside their control; unlike plaintiffs in Bollinger, plaintiffs in this case were not denied trial on merits due to error of trial court, but because they mistakenly filed suit against California defendants in Arizona state court. Gordon v. Law Offices of Aguirre & Meyer (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 972, 979-980, 980 n.8, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 119

Under equitable tolling, statute of limitations in one forum is tolled as to claim being pursued in another forum. Martell v. Antelope Valley Hospital Medical Center (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 978, 985, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 329

28 U.S.C. § 1367(d), enacted in 1990, codifies principles of equitable tolling found in state case law; under section 1367(d), period of limitation for any pendent claim over which federal court has supplemental jurisdiction is tolled while claim is pending and for 30 days after it is dismissed unless state law provides for longer tolling period, i.e., second suit must be filed within 30 days after dismissal of pendent state claims without prejudice unless state law extends that period; plaintiff under section 1367(d) is not allowed to tack onto limitations period full time during which federal action was pending; thus, when initial federal action containing state pendent claims filed and thereafter dismissed, what conduct is "reasonable" under equitable tolling doctrine requirement of reasonable promptness in refiling must be assessed in light of 30-day grace period set forth in section 1367(d). Kolani v. Gluska (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 402, 408-411, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 257

Although one-year period from date of loss to file action against insurer is equitably tolled between time insured notifies insurer of loss, and denial of claim, insured's request for reconsideration after insurer unequivocally denies claim does not create additional period of equitable tolling. Singh v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 135, 140, 145-148, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 546

Action to enforce stop notice against city timely by virtue of equitable tolling of statute of limitations while plaintiff pursued claim against general contractor and bonding company; equitable tolling has three elements: (1) timely notice to the defendant, (2) lack of prejudice to defendant, and (3) good faith conduct on plaintiff's part; timely notice essentially means first claim must have been filed within statutory period; lack of prejudice to defendant translates to requirement that facts of two claims are identical or at least so similar that defendant's investigation of first claim will put defendant in position to fairly defend second one; with regard to good faith, reasoned long delay even after crediting the tolling period might be considered unreasonable, or intentionally defendant into believing second claim would not be filed might be deemed to constitute bad faith. Structural Steel Fabricators, Inc. v. City of Orange (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 459, 464-465, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 867

Under equitable tolling doctrine, alternative remedy pursued during limitation period, such as timely filed federal action, tolls statute of limitations; doctrine of equitable tolling requires not only that plaintiff has timely filed alternative remedy, but also that in so doing plaintiff acted reasonably and in good faith. McAlpine v. Superior Court (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1, 5, 5 n.2, 257 Cal. Rptr. 32

Statute of limitations applicable to statutory cause of action for retaliatory discharge was not equitably tolled by action filed in federal court based on same facts when federal complaint alleging retaliatory layoff was amended to class action and state law causes of action were not included. Ficalora v. Lockheed Corp. (1983) 193 Cal. App. 3d 489, 493, 238 Cal. Rptr. 360

Statute of limitations applicable to petition for disability pension was tolled during time workers' compensation claim based on same facts was pending. Collier v. City of Pasadena (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 917, 926, 191 Cal. Rptr. 681

[j] Exhaustion of Administrative Remedies

Reasonable and good faith attempt to exhaust administrative remedies before suing suspends period of limitation, whether or not exhaustion is required before commencing action. Campbell v. Graham-Armstrong (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 482, 490, 107 Cal. Rptr. 777, 509 P.2d 689

Exhaustion of administrative remedies that is necessary prelude to action suspends running of period of limitation from time claim is made until decision. Dillon v. Board of Pension Comm'rs (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 427, 431 ; Community Cause v. Boatwright (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 888, 903, 177 Cal. Rptr. 657 ; A. Teichert & Son, Inc. v. State of Cal., (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 736, 746, 48 Cal. Rptr. 225

Limitations period for taxing entity's action against company for money due on unpaid business tax assessment was tolled until taxpayer exhausted administrative remedy. City of Los Angeles v. Centex Telemanagement, Inc. (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1384, 1389

[k] Failure to Comply With Ins. Code § 11583

Legislative purpose of Ins. Code § 11583 in requiring written notice of limitation period is to prevent claimant from being lulled into sense of complacency about filing suit because of apparent cooperativeness of defendant or his or her insurance company that is indicated by advance or partial payment of claim; 1985 amendment demonstrates unambiguous legislative intent to relieve insurer of duty to provide claimant with this protection where he or she has counsel on whom law imposes identical duty. Associated Truck Parts, Inc. v. Superior Court (1991) 279 Cal. Rptr. 76

Ins. Code § 11583 applies to state and state agencies so as to toll the time limitation for filing claim under Gov. Code § 945.4; university's provision of augmented health service to injured student without demanding payment constituted advance or partial payment of damages under section 11583, although provision of basic services paid for at matriculation would not. Maisel v. San Francisco State University (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 689, 693-694, 184 Cal. Rptr 694

In action for damages for personal injuries sustained in motor vehicle accident, defendant was not precluded by Ins. Code § 11583 from asserting one-year statute of limitations (former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 340(c))), although notice was not given when defendant's insurer paid plaintiff, when payment of property damage claim was made after statute of limitations on personal injury action had run and giving of notice would have been useless act. Jackson v. Andco Farms, Inc. (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 475, 478-479, 181 Cal. Rptr. 815

Statute of limitations under Ins. Code § 11583 was tolled by defendant's payment to injured party under liability policy without notifying injured party of applicable statute of limitations. Malinski v. Wegman's Nursery & Landscaping, Inc. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 282, 290-292, 162 Cal. Rptr. 287

[l] Felon

Limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.3 (actions for damages based on defendant's felony) was tolled by Code Civ. Proc. § 352.5 at time plaintiff filed suit against defendant, because defendant was then under order to pay restitution to plaintiff. Jamieson v. Hickey (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 595, 599, 244 Cal. Rptr. 859

Code Civ. Proc. § 340.3 tolls period of limitation against convicted defendant when judgment or sentence is stayed; defendant was not "convicted" within meaning of section 340.3 when she pleaded nolo contendre, and was ultimately found not guilty by reason of insanity. Newman v. Newman (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 255, 258-259, 241 Cal. Rptr. 712

[m] Fraudulent Concealment of Cause of Action

In products liability action arising from plaintiff's pregnancy and miscarriage while using intrauterine contraceptive device, alleged fraudulent concealment by manufacturer of actual pregnancy rate associated with use of device did not toll statute of limitations because plaintiff became aware of facts giving rise to cause of action within limitations period by virtue of miscarriage. Braxton-Secret v. A.H. Robins Co. (9th Cir. 1985) 769 F.2d 528, 531-532

Gov. Code § 11130.3(a), part of Bagley-Keene Open Meeting Act, does not allow any extension of time even through operation of doctrine fraudulent concealment; purpose of doctrine of fraudulent concealment and of 30 day limitation period of Gov. Code § 11130.3(a) are not consistent. Regents of University of California v. Superior Court (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 509, 532-535, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 257, 976 P.2d 808

Pleading of fraudulent concealment as excuse for late filing is mere surplusage if nothing appears on face of complaint suggesting that action is barred by statute of limitations, and thus plaintiff was not required to plead all elements of fraudulent concealment. Union Carbide Corp. v. Superior Court (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 15, 25-26, 201 Cal. Rptr. 580, 679 P.2d 14

Fraudulent concealment of cause of action suspends running of period of limitation. Pashley v. Pacific Elec. Ry. Co. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 226, 229-232, 153 P.2d 325 ; Community Cause v. Boatwright (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 888, 899, 177 Cal. Rptr. 657

When defendant fraudulently conceals facts on which cause of action depends, statute of limitations is tolled until plaintiff discovers or ought to have discovered facts. Hernandez v. Garcetti (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 675, 680-681, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 443

Defendant's fraud in concealing cause of action against defendant tolls applicable statute of limitations, but only for period claim is undiscovered by plaintiff or until such time as plaintiff, by exercise of reasonable diligence, should have discovered it; like discovery rule, rule of fraudulent concealment is equitable principle designed to effect substantial justice between parties; rationale is that culpable defendant should be estopped from profiting by defendant's own wrong to extent that it hindered otherwise diligent plaintiff in discovering plaintiff's cause of action. Mark K. v. Roman Catholic Archbishop (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 603, 611, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73

In action brought on several theories for injuries sustained from intrauterine device eight years prior, cause of action for personal injuries caused by device accrued when injuries were incurred; however, cause of action in fraud based on defendant's representations accrued seven years after injuries incurred, when plaintiff discovered facts showing possible fraud. Snow v. A.H. Robins Co. (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 120, 127-135, 211 Cal. Rptr. 271

Pleading of belated discovery of facts requires appellate court to determine as matter of law whether failure to discover cause of action earlier was due to plaintiff's failure to act with reasonable diligence, and whether trial court correctly applied reasonable diligence test to each and every cause of action pleaded; test of reasonable diligence is whether plaintiff has information of circumstances sufficient to put reasonable person on inquiry, or opportunity to obtain knowledge from sources open to investigation. Snow v. A.H. Robins Co. (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 120, 128, 129, 211 Cal. Rptr. 271

Mere negligent failure to disclose cause of action is not sufficient to toll statute of limitations. Community Cause v. Boatwright (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 888, 901, 177 Cal. Rptr. 657

Mere nondisclosure of material fact, in absence of fiduciary relationship, is not fraudulent concealment of cause of action. Hesse v. Vinatieri (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 448, 451, 302 P.2d 699

Fraudulent act after period of limitation has expired is not fraudulent concealment of cause of action. Scafidi v. Western Loan & Bldg. Co. (1946) 72 Cal. App. 2d 550, 566, 165 P.2d 260 ; see Bank of America v. Williams (1948) 89 Cal. App. 2d 21, 25, 200 P.2d 151 (reporting rule)

[n] Legal Inhibition to Sue

[i] Adverse Case Law Is Not Legal Inhibition to Sue

Retroactive application of judicial decision means only that new rule of law governs events occurring prior to date of decision only if such events are at issue in timely filed actions. Monroe v. Trustees of the California State Colleges (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 399, 407, 99 Cal. Rptr. 129, 491 P.2d 1105 (retroactive application of judicial decision that permitted teacher to challenge dismissal after refusing to take loyalty oath did not revive actions barred by statute of limitations); Bartman v. Estate of Bartman (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 780, 786, 148 Cal. Rptr. 207

Existence of judicially developed rule of law contrary to plaintiff's position is not a legal prohibition against suit and does not suspend running of period of limitation. Estate of Horman (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 62, 71, 95 Cal. Rptr. 433, 485 P.2d 785

[ii] Pending Appeal in Related Case

Code Civ. Proc. § 356 excludes from statutory period the time during which commencement of an action is stayed by injunction or statutory prohibition; Section 356 has also been applied where plaintiff's action is legally prohibited by means other than injunction or statutory prohibition, including periods during which the plaintiff is legally prevented from taking action to protect his or her rights, for example, pending legally required deliberations of pension board; action against corporate directors was not barred by Code Civ. Proc. § 359 because statute of limitations was suspended pending determination of appeal in related case that established their liability. Hoover v. Galbraith (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 519, 526, 102 Cal. Rptr. 733, 498 P.2d 981

[iii] Pending Bankruptcy Proceeding

Running of period of limitation is suspended during period when plaintiff is legally restrained from taking action to protect his interests; period suspended for action in conversion while bankruptcy court order prohibited plaintiff "from interfering with the debtor in possession of his property." Eistrat v. Cekada (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 289, 291-292, 324 P.2d 881

Pendency of bankruptcy proceeding suspends running of period of limitation on creditor's action against bankrupt on provable debt. Hoff v. Funkenstein (1880) 54 Cal. 233, 235 ; Graybar Elec. Co. v. Lovinger (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 936, 937-938, 185 P.2d 370

Nonresidence of obligee does not, in absence of contrary statutory provision, affecting running of period of limitation. Cvecich v. Giardino (1940) 37 Cal. App. 2d 394, 400-402, 99 P.2d 573

[p] Obligor's Concealment of Self

Period of limitation runs if obligor is present in state, notwithstanding plaintiff's ignorance of that fact or inability to discover presence. St. Paul Title & Trust Co. v. Stensgaard (1912) 162 Cal. 178, 180-181, 121 P. 731

Domestic corporation is not able to conceal itself within state. Coates Capitol Corp. v. Superior Court (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 125, 129, 59 Cal. Rptr. 231

Obligor's fraudulent concealment of his or her identity does not suspend running of period of limitation, if obligor present in state. Staples v. Zoph (1935) 9 Cal. App. 2d 369, 370, 49 P.2d 1131 (disapproved in Bernson v. Browning-Ferris Industries (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 926, 936, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440, 873 P.2d 613 , which holds that equitable estoppel precludes defendant from asserting statute of limitations when plaintiff is unable to discover defendant's actual identity as a result of intentional concealment)

[24] Waiving Bar of Statute

[a] By Private Agreement

[i] Before or After Action Has Begun

Parties to existing controversy are competent to agree to forego statute of limitation for definite period; agreement is estoppel against pleading bar of statute. Kemper v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1918) 177 Cal. 618, 620, 171 P. 426

Right to plead bar of statute of limitation is waivable either before or after action begun. Tebbets v. Fidelity & Cas.

Co. (1909) 155 Cal. 137, 139, 99 P. 501

[ii] Reasonableness

Parties to contract are competent to agree on period of limitation shorter than statutory period, if period agreed on is not so unreasonable as to show imposition or undue advantage. Beeson v. Schloss (1920) 183 Cal. 618, 622, 192 P. 292

Determination whether period of limitation agreed on in contract is unreasonable. Capehart v. Heady (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 386, 388-391, 23 Cal. Rptr. 851

[iii] By Authorized Agent of Obligor

Written waiver of statute of limitations signed by authorized agent is for all intents and purposes signed by person obligated as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 360.5 and therefore valid; hence, corporation's waiver of statute of limitations signed by corporation's attorney-agent comports with requirement of section 360.5 that waiver of statute of limitations be signed by person obligated; because written waiver of statute of limitations is not a contract, equal dignities rule (Civ. Code § 2309), requiring that authority to enter into contract required by law to be in writing can only be given by an instrument in writing, does not apply to it Carlton Browne & Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 35, 37, 45-46, 258 Cal. Rptr. 118

[iv] Waiver by Personal Representative of Decedent's Estate Prohibited

Personal representative of decedent's estate is not authorized to waive defense of bar of statute of limitation in action based on claim against estate. Bryson v. Hill (1930) 107 Cal. App. 158, 160, 290 P. 52

[v] Operation as Extension of Period of Limitation

Provision of bonds making demand and failure to comply for three months prerequisite to action on bonds would give plaintiff statutory period plus three months in which to bring suit; failure to make demand cannot be used to extend indefinitely period of limitation. California Safe Deposit & Trust Co. v. Sierra Valleys Ry. Co. (1910) 158 Cal. 690, 697, 112 P. 274

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 360.5, written waiver executed prior to running of applicable statute of limitations is effective for period of four years from commencement of running of statute of limitations; for written waiver executed after statute of limitations has run, four-year period runs from date of signing waiver; thus, statute abolishes making of unlimited and indefinite waivers at time credit is extended or loan is made, and prevents any one waiver from waiving statute for period of more than four years beyond time statute would otherwise have run. California First Bank v. Braden (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 672, 676-677, 264 Cal. Rptr. 820

Private agreement waiving forever party's right to plead bar of statute of limitation is valid in appropriate case. Brownrigg v. deFrees (1925) 196 Cal. 534, 546, 238 P. 714

Private agreement giving party right to sue at his convenience and whenever desired is valid in appropriate case. Atlas Fin. Corp. v. Kenny (1945) 68 Cal. App. 2d 504, 514-517, 157 P.2d 401

[vii] Effect on Persons Other Than Parties to Agreement

Waiver binds persons in privity, in absence of conflict of interest. Lerner v. Los Angeles City Board of Education (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 382, 397 ns.8, 9, 29 Cal. Rptr. 657, 380 P.2d 97

Privity, for purpose of applying rule regarding waiver of plea of bar of statute of limitation, generally exists between persons so identified in interest as to represent same legal right. Lerner v. Los Angeles Bd. of Educ. (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 382, 398 n.10, 29 Cal. Rptr. 657, 380 P.2d 97

Waiver, in agreement, is extendable beyond person's death and, in appropriate circumstances, may prevent personal representative of estate from asserting bar of statute in action under agreement on rejected claim. Brownrigg v. deFrees (1925) 196 Cal. 534, 546, 238 P. 714

Although parties may contract to extend limitations period, agreement has no effect on other potential parties with whom no privity exists. FNB Mortgage Corp. v. Pacific General Group (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1116, 1121, 1129-1131, 1135-1136, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841

Agreement to extend statute of limitations made between senior secured lienholder creditor and its debtor before statute of limitations has run was binding on junior lienholder. Kaichen's Metal Mart, Inc. v. Ferro Cast Co. (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 8, 14-16, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 233

Person not party to agreement (such as third-party beneficiary) is bound by special limitation period in agreement, although ignorant of existence and contents of agreement. Sanders v. American Casualty Co. (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 306, 308-310, 74 Cal. Rptr. 634

Defendant's acts prior to suit, inconsistent with plea of bar of statute, amount to waiver (perhaps estoppel). Lerner v. Los Angeles Bd. of Educ. (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 382, 396, 29 Cal. Rptr. 657, 380 P.2d 97 ; Church v. Public Utilities Com. (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 399, 401, 333 P.2d 321 ; Isaacson v. Oakland (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 414, 419, 69 Cal. Rptr. 379

Defense that action is barred by statute of limitations is subject to waiver; thus, though bar of statute is pleaded in answer as affirmative defense, failure of defendant to assert defense at trial, or of trial court to make any factual findings based on it, forecloses consideration of issue on appeal even if it appears that plaintiff's suit was not timely filed. RRLH, Inc. v. Saddleback Valley Unified School Dist. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1602, 1605-1606 n.2, 272 Cal. Rptr. 529

Waiver of bar of statute is not required to be in writing; conduct, even silence, is sufficient in appropriate circumstances. Atlas Fin. Corp. v. Kenny (1945) 68 Cal. App. 2d 504, 517, 157 P.2d 401

[c] By Failure to Plead

Once sued, defendant who does not timely raise limitation defense waives defense no matter how long plaintiff has delayed. Hambrecht & Quist Venture Partners v. American Medical Internat., Inc. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1532, 1548, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 33

Statute of limitations defense not raised in trial court is waived and is not subject to being raised on appeal. Stalberg v. Western Title Ins. Co. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1223, 1232, 282 Cal. Rptr. 43

Because action may generally proceed to judgment if defense of statute of limitations is waived, statute of limitations is not usually jurisdictional. People v. American Bankers Ins. Co. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 1289, 1296-1297, 278 Cal. Rptr. 314

[25] When Period of Limitation Begins to Run

[a] When Cause of Action Accrues

The single-publication rule provides that, for any single edition of a newspaper or book, there is but a single potential action for a defamatory statement contained in the newspaper or book, no matter how many copies of the newspaper or the book were distributed, and the accrual of the cause of action in that case is not delayed by the discovery rule when the defamation occurred by means of a book, magazine, or newspaper that was distributed to the public [see Shively v. Bozanich (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1230, 1248, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 576, 80 P.3d 676] . The single publication rule applies to all publications, including those that receive only limited circulation and, thus, are not generally distributed to the public. Hebrew Academy of San Francisco v. Goldman (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 883, 890, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 178, 173 P.3d 1004

As general rule, cause of action accrues when cause of action is complete with all its elements. Norgart v. Upjohn Co. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 383, 397, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 453, 981 P.2d 79

Cause of action for unpaid wages accrues when wages first become legally due, i.e., on regular payday for pay period in which employee performed the work; when work is continuing and employee is therefore paid periodically (e.g., weekly or monthly), separate and distinct cause of action accrues each payday, triggering on each occasion running of new period of limitations; for statute of limitations purposes action for unpaid wages is deemed to have commenced, like all civil actions, on date on which employee files complaint. Cuadra v. Millan (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 855, 859, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 687, 952 P.2d 704

In California, harm or injury to plaintiff is essential element of ripe cause of action in negligence or strict liability; moreover, as general proposition it is settled that cause of action accrues for statute of limitation purposes on occurrence of last element essential to cause of action. Buttram v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 520, 531 n.4, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 438, 941 P.2d 71

Statute of limitations does not begin to run until cause of action accrues, that is, until party that owns cause of action is entitled to begin and prosecute it; cause of action for breach of contract does not accrue before time of breach; if party repudiates contract before time of performance and plaintiff elects to disregard the repudiation, statute of limitations does not begin to run until time set by contract for performance; when there are ongoing contractual obligations, whether breach is anticipatory or not, if plaintiff elects to rely on contract despite a breach, statute of limitations does not begin to run until plaintiff has elected to treat breach as terminating contract; statute of limitations does not begin to run in tort action until plaintiff possesses true cause of action by which is meant that events have developed to point where plaintiff is entitled to legal remedy. Romano v. Rockwell Internat., Inc. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 479, 484-485, 487-490, 500-501, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20, 926 P.2d 1114

Period of limitation in case of professional negligence does not begin to run until plaintiff suffers appreciable harm. Budd v. Nixen (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 195, 200-201, 98 Cal. Rptr. 849, 491 P.2d 433 (legal malpractice)

Period of limitation does not begin to run until accrual of cause of action; cause of action accrues when remedy is available. Heyer v. Flaig (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 223, 230, 74 Cal. Rptr. 225, 449 P.2d 161

Period of limitation begins to run when suit may be maintained, and not until then. Osborn v. Hopkins (1911) 160 Cal. 501, 506, 117 P. 519

In legal malpractice action, plaintiffs first sustained actual injury when they were required to obtain and pay new counsel to file a lawsuit seeking to escape the consequences of their signing lease documents that were among the actual damages plaintiffs suffered as a result of the attorney's alleged malpractice. Truong v. Glasser (2009) 181 Cal. App. 4th 102, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 811

In determining whether an agent's knowledge of certain facts is imputed to the principal for purposes of establishing the principal's notice of those facts, for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.1(b)(2), (c), the court of appeal held that so long as the agent was under a duty to disclose certain information, the principal is bound by the agent's knowledge of that information whether or not the agent communicated it to the principal. For this purpose, there is no difference between constructive and actual notice. Santillan v. Roman Catholic Bishop of Fresno (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 4, 10-11, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 343

Even though a prior discriminatory evaluation and pay adjustment continue to have negative effects on an employee's pay throughout his or her employment, the cause of action accrues at the time the evaluation and pay adjustment are made, when the employer acted in a discriminatory manner with adverse consequences for the employee. Once the damage is such that the cause of action accrues, additional damage from the same wrong does not alter the accrual of the cause of action or otherwise extend the limitations period. Hammond v. County of Los Angeles (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 1579, 1597, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 690

A cause of action for a latent construction defect does not accrue until an owner is aware of the damage and suffers a compensable economic injury. The cause of action does not accrue when the structure suffers physical damage, but when the owner suffers a compensable economic injury of which the owner is aware. Siegel v. Anderson Homes (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 994, 1014, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 462

The accrual of causes of action growing out of the publication of defamatory or other tortious statements is governed by the single-publication rule. This rule states that one cause of action will arise and the statute of limitations will begin running upon the first general publication or broadcast of a tortious statement, no matter how may copies are distributed or how many people hear or see the broadcast. A subsequent republication gives rise to a new single cause of action. This single-publication rule applies to statements published on Internet Web sites. The Traditional Cat Association, Inc. v. Gilbreath (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 392, 395, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 353

Monthly installment contract payments are divisible performance obligations as revealed by the provisions of the contract and the conduct of the parties. The statute of limitations begins to run from the time of each breach. Armstrong Petroleum Corp. v. Tri-Valley Oil & Gas Co. (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 1375, 1388-1389, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 412

When reversal of a trial court judgment gives rise to a possible cause of action for malicious prosecution, the statute of limitations first begins to run on the date the appellate court issues its remittitur. White v. Lieberman (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 210, 213, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 608

In professional negligence action, mere hiring of second consultant to investigate adequacy of first consultant's work only establishes speculative harm, or threat of future harm not yet realized, which is insufficient to trigger statute of limitations. Price v. Dames & Moore (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 355, 361, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 65

In action for writ of mandamus under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5, statute of limitations commences to run when petitioner is properly notified of decision pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(b), and not by an after-the-fact declaration of mailing. Donnellan v. City of Novato (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1097, 1107 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 882

Cause of action for professional negligence does not accrue until plaintiff (1) sustains damage and (2) discovers, or should discover, negligence; while mere breach of professional duty, causing only nominal damages, speculative harm, or threat of future harm not yet realized does not suffice to create cause of action for negligence, action accrues, and statute begins to run, as soon as plaintiff suffers "appreciable harm" from breach; thus, in action by general contractor against architect and construction manager for economic losses allegedly caused by their professional negligence during county construction project, action was time-barred under Code Civ. Proc. 339(1) since general contractor did not bring suit until more than two years after it told construction manager that it had been severely damaged by construction delays and errors; although suit was filed less than two years after county refused to reimburse contractor, county's refusal merely had potential of altering amount of damage. Smith v. SHN Consulting Engineers & Geologists, Inc. (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 638, 650-652, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 424

In determining commencement of limitations period for disciplinary action of real estate broker under Bus. & Prof. Code § 10176, it is occurrence of ground for discipline that commences limitation period; where ground is licensee's actual misconduct, that misconduct commences period; however, where ground is disciplinary action of regulatory agency, it is final official action that commences period; thus, where ground for disciplinary action against broker was suspension of his law license, not underlying misappropriation of client's funds, it was irrelevant that actual misappropriation of funds took place outside statutory limitations period, since action was commenced within three years of suspension of his license to practice law. Herrera v. Department of Real Estate (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 776, 779, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 232

It is not enough to commence running of limitations period when plaintiff knows of his or her injury and its factual cause (or physical cause); rather, plaintiff must be aware of injury, its factual cause, and sufficient facts to put him or her on inquiry notice of negligent cause. Clark v. Baxter Healthcare Corp. (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 1048, 1057, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 223 (product liability action against manufacturers and distributors of latex gloves)

Limitation period does not begin to run until cause of action accrues, i.e., all essential elements are present and claim becomes legally actionable. Glue-Fold, Inc. v. Slautterback Corp. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 1018, 1029, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 661

Period of limitation cannot run before plaintiff possesses true cause of action, that is, events must have developed to point where plaintiff is entitled to legal remedy, not mere symbolic judgment such as award of nominal damages. Butcher v. Truck Ins. Exchange (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1442, 1468, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 521

When wrongful act of another causes injury, as general rule statute of limitation attaches immediately although injury slight and not all resulting damages sustained at that time; single tort can be foundation for but one claim for damages; if statute of limitations bars action based on harm immediately caused by defendant's wrongdoing, separate cause of action based on subsequent harm arising from that wrongdoing would normally amount to splitting cause of action. Bennett v. Shahhal (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 384, 391-392, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 272

Well established that cause of action accrues once plaintiff suffers harm and becomes aware of necessary facts linking defendant to harm. Curtis v. Kellogg & Andelson (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 492, 501, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 536

Limitation period under Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1) for claims founded on title insurance policy cannot begin to run until policy is issued, even when insured may have discovered facts leading insured to believe claim existed before title policy issued. Smeaton v. Fidelity Nat. Title (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1000, 1001, 1004, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 591

Cause of action accrues at moment party who owns it is entitled to bring or prosecute action thereon; this occurs when events have developed to point where plaintiff is entitled to legal remedy, not merely symbolic judgment like award of nominal damages. Keru Investments, Inc. v. Cube Co. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1412, 1423, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 744

make each rental payment arises independently, and statute begins to run from time performance of each severable obligation is due; four-year limitations period applicable to plaintiff's written lease (see Code Civ. Proc. § 337(1)) would permit recovery for all unpaid rental installments falling due during four-year period ending with filing of action. Tsemetzin v. Coast Federal Savings & Loan Assn. (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 1334, 1345, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726

Generally, cause of action accrues when, under substantive law, wrongful act is done and liability arises, that is, when suit may be brought; defendant's acts determine when accrual occurs under rule; statute of limitations ordinarily commences to run notwithstanding plaintiff's ignorance of causeof action or wrongdoer's identity; however, various exceptions are made to avoid sometimes unjust consequences of strict adherence to general rule, one of which deems accrual to occur when damage results; although right to recover nominal damages will not trigger running of limitation period, infliction of appreciable and actual harm, however uncertain in amount, commences statutory period; neither uncertainty as to amount of damages nor difficulty in proving damages tolls limitation period. Engstrom v. Kallins (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 773, 783, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 842

In tort actions, statute of limitation commences when last element essential to cause of action occurs; no cause action accrues and statute of limitation does not begin to run in tort action until damage has occurred; moreover, when last element of cause of action to occur is damage, statute of limitations begins to run on occurrence of appreciable and actual harm, however uncertain in amount, that consists of more than nominal damages; mere breach of duty causing only nominal, speculative harm or threat of future harm not yet realized does not normally suffice to create cause of action; common law rule that cause of action accrued on date of injury modified by discovery rule; under discovery rule, cause of action does not accrue until plaintiff discovers injury and its negligent cause or could have discovered injury and cause through exercise of reasonable diligence. San Francisco Unified School Dist. v. W. R. Grace & Co. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1318, 1326, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305

Statute of limitations cannot begin to run until cause of action accrues; cause of action accrues when person who owns it is entitled to bring and prosecute action on it. County of Fresno v. Lehman (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 340, 345-346, 280 Cal. Rptr. 310

Date cause of action accrues is date when limitation period begins to run; generally, cause of action accrues when, under substantive law, wrongful act is done and liability arises, i.e., when suit may be brought. Menefee v. Ostawari (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 239, 245, 278 Cal. Rptr. 805 ; see also Long Beach Unified Sch. Dist. v. State of California (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 155, 169, 275 Cal. Rptr. 449

Time within which plaintiff must commence action begins to run on occurrence of last fact essential to cause of action; infliction of appreciable and actual harm, however uncertain in amount, commences statutory limitations period. Panopulos v. Westinghouse Electric Corp. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 660, 670, 264 Cal. Rptr. 810 (disapproved on other grounds in Turner v. Anheuser-Busch, Inc. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1238, 1253, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 223, 876 P.2d 1022)

Time cause of action accrues is question of fact, and trial court's finding on accrual of cause of action for statute of limitations is upheld on appeal if supported by substantial evidence. Institoris v. City of Los Angeles (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 10, 17, 258 Cal. Rptr. 418

Occurrence of some cognizable event rather than knowledge of its legal significance starts running of statute of limitations. Abari v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 530, 535, 252 Cal. Rptr. 565

In ordinary tort and contract actions, statute of limitations as beginning to run on occurrence of last element essential to cause of action; for "rule ofdiscovery" to come into play, cause of action itself as required to lie unsuspected; hidden facts relating to proof are of no consequence. Spellis v. Lawn (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1075, 1079-1080, 246 Cal. Rptr. 385

When injury, although slight, is sustained in consequence of another's wrongful act and law affords remedy therefor, statute of limitations attaches at once; running of statute is not postponed by fact that actual or substantial damages do not occur until later date. Spellis v. Lawn (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1075, 1080-1081, 246 Cal. Rptr. 385

Statute of limitations begins to run when plaintiff sustains appreciable harm; in action alleging variety of torts arising out of bank's representation regarding tax liability of loan, notification of tax deficiency rather than tax court judgment constituted appreciable harm; incurring or paying of attorney's fees, if caused by defendant's negligence, constitutes appreciable harm sufficient to trigger running of statute of limitations. McKeown v. First Interstate Bank (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1225, 1229-1231, 240 Cal. Rptr. 127

Action on contract for declaratory relief, brought before any breach of contract, is not barred by statute of limitations because no cause of action for coercive relief has yet accrued and no statute of limitation has yet been set in motion. United Pacific/Reliance Ins. Co. v. DiDomenico (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 673, 676-677, 219 Cal. Rptr. 119

Statute of limitations on installment contract runs from date of each installment. Conway v. Bughouse, Inc. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 194, 200, 164 Cal. Rptr. 585 (agreement for monthly payments for life as installment contract)

[b] Delayed Discovery

Under the delayed discovery rule, a cause of action accrues and the statute of limitations begins to run when the plaintiff has reason to suspect an injury and some wrongful cause, unless the plaintiff pleads and proves that a reasonable investigation at that time would not have revealed a factual basis for that particular cause of action. Fox v. Ethicon Endo-Surgery, Inc. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 797, 808-809, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 661, 110 P.3d 914

The discovery rule most frequently applies when it is difficult to for the plaintiff to observe or understand that there has been an injury or breach. Shively v. Bozanich (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1230, 1248, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 576, 80 P.3d 676

Discovery rule does not apply to postpone accrual of a cause of action based on the publication of a defamatory statement in a book. The cause of action for defamation accrues and the statute of limitations begins to run from the date the book was first generally distributed to the public, regardless of when the plaintiff actually learned of the existence of the book. Shively v. Bozanich (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1230, 1248, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 576, 80 P.3d 676

Common law discovery rule, when applicable, indefinitely delays accrual of cause of action until plaintiff discovers or reasonably has cause to discover facts constituting it; discovery rule may be expressed by Legislature or implied by courts and is exception to general rule that cause of action accrues when allegedly wrongful result occurs; common law discovery rule does not apply to Code Civ. Proc. § 340.6(a) (legal malpractice actions); defendant in legal malpractice action bears burden of proving facts necessary to enjoy benefits of Section 340.6(a). Samuels v. Mix (1999) 22 Cal. 4th 1, 9-14, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 273, 989 P.2d 701

Where someone steals a trade secret and then sells it to a third party, with respect to the element of knowledge, the statute of limitations on a cause of action for misappropriation begins to run when the plaintiff has any reason to suspect that the third party knows or reasonably should know that the information is a trade secret. The third party's actual state of mind does not affect the running of the statute. Cypress Semiconductor Corp. v. Superior Court (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 575, 587, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3rd 685

Public awareness of a problem through media coverage alone does not create constructive suspicion for purposes of discovery. The statute of limitations does not begin to run when some members of the public have a suspicion of wrongdoing, but only once the plaintiff has a suspicion of wrongdoing. Unruh-Haxton v. Regents of University of California (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 343, 364, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 146

Discovery rule postpones accrual of cause of action until plaintiff discovers or has reason to discover cause of action, until, that is, plaintiff at least suspects or has reason to suspect a factual basis, as opposed to a legaltheory, for its elements; plaintiff has reason to suspect when plaintiff has notice or information that would cause reasonable person to inquire; plaintiff may discover or have reason to discover cause of action even if plaintiff does not suspect or have reason to suspect identity of defendant. Norgart v. Upjohn Co. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 383, 389, 397-399, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 453, 981 P.2d 79

Rules postponing accrual of cause of action until specified event occurs, e.g., until discovery of facts constituting fraud or mistake, are distinguishable from rules suspending or tolling the running of statute of limitations notwithstanding accrual of cause of action. Cuadra v. Millan (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 855, 865 n.11, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 687, 952 P.2d 704

Cause of action for latent injury does not accrue until plaintiff discovers or reasonably should have discovered that he or she has suffered compensable injury. Buttram v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 520, 530, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 438, 941 P.2d 71 (asbestos-related latent and progressive disease pleural mesothelioma)

Period of limitation in ordinary tort and contract actions begins to run on occurrence of last element essential to cause of action, notwithstanding plaintiff's ignorance of cause of action or identity of wrongdoer; however, in legal malpractice case casue of action does not accrue until plaintiff knows or should know all material facts essential to show elements of cause of action. Neel v. Magana, Olney, Levy, Cathcart & Gelfand (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 176, 187, 189, 98 Cal. Rptr. 837, 491 P.2d 421

If a plaintiff's reasonable and diligent investigation discloses only one kind of wrongdoing when the injury was actually caused by tortious conduct of a wholly different sort, the discovery rule postpones accrual of the statute of limitations on the newly discovered claim; in such cases, the key issue is whether a reasonable investigation at that time would have revealed a factual basis for that particular cause of action. E-Fab, Inc. v. Accountants, Inc. Services (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1308, 1322, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 9

The discovery rule is not so broad as to delay accrual indefinitely until the plaintiff stumbles upon a claim. Rather, the plaintiff discovers the cause of action when he at least suspects a factual basis, as opposed to a legal theory, for its elements, even if he lacks knowledge thereof--when, simply put, he at least suspects that someone has done something wrong to him, "wrong" being used, not in any technical sense, but rather in accordance with its lay understanding. Lyles v. State of California (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 281, 286, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 696

For purposes of Ins. Code § 1871.7's limitation period, plaintiff discovers the cause of action when he at least suspects a factual basis, as opposed to a legal theory, for its elements, even if he lacks knowledge thereof. He has reason to discover the cause of action when he has reason at least to suspect a factual basis for its elements. Such reasonable suspicion exists when the plaintiff has notice or information of circumstances to put a reasonable person on inquiry. State of California ex rel. Metz v. CCC Information Services, Inc. (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 402, 417, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 156

A cause of action for a latent construction defect does not accrue until an owner is aware of the damage and suffers a compensable economic injury. The cause of action does not accrue when the structure suffers physical damage, but when the owner suffers a compensable economic injury of which the owner is aware. Siegel v. Anderson Homes (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 994, 1014, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 462

Discovery rule does not apply when the alleged defamatory material is found in a mass-media publication such as the use of plaintiff's distorted likeness on network broadcasts and the Internet. Long v. Walt Disney Co. (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 868, 874, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 836

In a case alleging liability of a bank under Com. Code § 3307 for taking an instrument from a fiduciary with notice of breach of fiduciary duty, the represented person may rely on delayed discovery of the injury to postpone the accrual of the cause of action. Cochran Investment Co. v. Bank of America (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 341, 348, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 51

Discovery rule may be applied to breaches of contract that can be, and are, committed in secret and, where the harm flowing from those breaches will not be reasonably discoverable by plaintiffs until a future time, when 1) the injury or the act causing the injury, or both, have been difficult for the plaintiff to detect, 2) the defendant has been in a far superior position to comprehend the act and the injury, and 3) the defendant had reason to believe the plaintiff remained ignorant that he had been wronged. Gryczman v. 4550 Pico Partners, Ltd. (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 1, 5, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 680

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d), action for relief on grounds of fraud is not deemed accrued until discovery, by aggrieved party, of facts constituting fraud; discovery in this context means not when plaintiff became aware of specific wrong alleged, but when plaintiff suspected or should have suspect that injury was caused by wrongdoing; statute of limitation begins to run when plaintiff has information that would put reasonable person on inquiry; plaintiff need not be aware of specific facts necessary to establish claim since they can be developed in pretrial discovery; thus, reasonable person wouldhave concluded he was injured in 1990 and action for fraud filed in 1999 was time barred, despite claim by plaintiff that he was not put on notice of fraudulent conduct until 1996, where in 1990 plaintiff sent associate as courier to pick up check that defendant owed plaintiff, but defendant instead made check payable to associate, and where, when plaintiff questioned transaction, defendant stated that associate claimed that plaintiff had approved payment to him and that check had been cashed before there was stop payment order. Kline v. Turner (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 1369, 1374-1375, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 699

Common law discovery rule, developed to mitigate harsh results produced by strict definitions of accrual, postpones accrual until plaintiff discovers or has reason to discover cause of action; discovery rule is widely applied although its scope and application can be difficult. Glue-Fold, Inc. v. Slautterback Corp. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 1018, 1029, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 661

When fiduciary obligation is involved, cause of action does not accrue until beneficiary has knowledge or notice of act constituting breach of fidelity; this principle applies in case of insurance agent. Butcher v. Truck Ins. Exchange (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1442, 1469, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 521

Common law rule that action for personal injury or property damage accrues on date of injury, is modified by discovery rule, which provides accrual date of cause of action is delayed until plaintiff is aware of injury and its cause; plaintiff charged with awareness as of date plaintiff suspects or should suspect that injury was caused by wrongdoing, that someone has done something wrong to him or her; accordingly, period of limitations begins to run without regard to whether plaintiff is aware of specific facts necessary to establish his or her claim, provided plaintiff has suspicion of wrongdoing, which plaintiff is charged with once plaintiff has notice or information of circumstances to put reasonable person on inquiry. McKelvey v. Boeing North Am. Inc. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 151

Accrual of cause of action is delayed until plaintiff is aware of injury and its negligent cause; once plaintiff has suspicion of wrongdoing and therefore incentive to sue, he or she must decide whether to file suit or sit on his or her rights; so long as suspicion exists, plaintiff cannot wait for facts to find him or her; plaintiff under duty to reasonably investigate and suspicion of wrongdoing, coupled with knowledge of harm and its cause, will commence limitations period. Curtis v. Kellogg & Andelson (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 492, 501, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 536

Under discovery rule, statute of limitations begins to run when plaintiff suspects or should suspect that defendant's injury was caused by wrongdoing, that someone has done something wrong to defendant; limitation period begins to run once plaintiff has information or notice that would cause reasonable person to inquire; plaintiff need not be aware of specific facts necessary to establish claim, which is process contemplated by discovery; once plaintiff has suspicion of wrongdoing, and therefore incentive to sue, plaintiff must decide whether to file suit or sit on plaintiff's rights; as long as suspicion exists, plaintiff must go find the facts and cannot wait for facts to find plaintiff. Mark K. v. Roman Catholic Archbishop (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 603, 611, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73

General rule is that cause of action accrues when wrongful act is done, not at time of plaintiff's discovery; under delayed discovery rule, however, cause of action will not accrue until plaintiff discovers or should have discovered through exercise of reasonable diligence, all facts essential to cause of action; doctrine of late discovery requires plaintiff to plead facts showing an excuse for late discovery of facts underlying plaintiff's cause of action; plaintiff must show plaintiff was not at fault for failing to discover it or had no actual or presumptive knowledge of facts sufficient to put plaintiff on inquiry. Prudential Home Mortgage Co. v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1236, 1246-1247, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 566

Statute of limitations for actions involving fiduciary obligation normally triggered on date plaintiff discovers, or should have discovered, the negligence. Field v. Century 21 Klowden-Forness Realty (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 18, 20-21, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 784

When lawsuit is first initiated after applicable period of limitation has expired and plaintiff is entitled to claim benefit of delayed discovery rule, relevant inquiry is what plaintiff knew or, through the exercise of due diligence, reasonably could have discovered at an earlier date; statute of limitation begins to run when plaintiff suspects or should suspect that plaintiff's injury was caused by wrongdoing, that someone has done something wrong to plaintiff; on other hand, when lawsuit is initiated within applicable limitation period against someone and plaintiff has complied with Code Civ. Proc. § 474 by alleging existence of unknown additional defendants, relevant inquiry when plaintiff seeks to substitute real defendant for one sued fictitiously is what facts plaintiff actually knew at time original complaint was filed; to defeat claim of ignorance required by Code Civ. Proc. § 474, it must be shown that plaintiff had actual knowledge of basic facts. General Motors Corp. v. Superior Court (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 580, 587-588, 594-596, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 871

Under discovery rule, statute of limitations does not begin to run until plaintiff either (1) actually discovers injury or its cause or (2) could have discovered injury and its cause through exercise of reasonable diligence; discovery rule applied, when fiduciary relationship existed between parties and, among other things, failure of defendant attorney and collection agency to disclose ongoing status of collection matter despite plaintiffs' numerous requests precluded plaintiffs from discovering defendants wrongful conduct and that plaintiffs had cause of action. Cross v. Bonded Adjustment Bureau (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 266, 277-282, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 801

Although under discovery rule, limitation period begins once plaintiff acquires notice or information that would cause inquiry by reasonable person, fiduciaries have duty to make full and fair disclosure of all facts that affect plaintiff's rights and interests; breach of duty to disclose known facts with intention to hinder, and that does hinder, commencement of action until action would be outlawed is fraud practiced on plaintiff that in conscience estops defendant's reliance on statute of limitations; if duty to disclose exists, disclosure must be full and complete and any concealment or misrepresentation amounts to fraud sufficient to entitle party injured thereby to action; if fiduciary relationship exists, plaintiff's usual duty of diligence to discover facts does not exist. Cross v. Bonded Adjustment Bureau (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 266, 281, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 801

When plaintiff filed complaint in 1993 containing causes of action for breach of contract and negligence alleging that defendant caused contamination of plaintiff's property by severing a pipe while performing construction work in 1981, and complaint was timely filed under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 337(1) and 338(b) based on application of the discovery rule, but not timely filed under Code Civ. Proc. § 337.15 ten-year limitation period for latent construction defects, plaintiff's causes of action held not time barred by Code Civ. Proc. § 337.15 because the mandated discovery rule of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act's (CERCLA) (42 U.S.C. § 9601 et seq.)

preempts Code Civ. Proc. § 337.17 thereby eliminating its ten year limitation period when the claims are based on a latent construction defect that results in toxic contamination of plaintiff's property. Angeles Chemical Co. v. Spencer & Jones (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 112, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 594

Plaintiff is charged with "presumptive" knowledge so as to commence running of statute when plaintiff had notice or information of circumstances to put reasonable person on inquiry or had opportunity to obtain knowledge from sources open to his or her investigation. Wilshire Westwood Associates v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 732, 740, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 562

Cause of action under discovery rule accrues when plaintiff either (1) actually discovered his or her injury and its negligent cause or (2) could have discovered injury and cause through exercise of reasonable diligence; limitation period begins once plaintiff has notice or information of circumstances to put reasonable person on inquiry; subjective suspicion is not required; if person becomes aware of facts that would make reasonably prudent person suspicious, he or she has duty to investigate further and is charged with knowledge of matters that would have been revealed by such an investigation. Mangini v. Aerojet-General Corp. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1125, 1150-1151, 281 Cal. Rptr. 827

Delayed discovery rule of former Code Civ. Proc. § 338(4) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)], relating to fraud, applies to causes of action for breach of contract consisting of breach of fiduciary duty. Lee v. Escrow Consultants, Inc. (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 915, 922, 259 Cal. Rptr. 117

If party could not reasonably have discovered facts giving rise to cause of action for libel based on defamatory matter contained in confidential file and communicated to person of whom party was unaware, statute of limitations starts to run on discovery of publication of defamatory matter. Schneider v. United Airlines, Inc. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 71, 77, 256 Cal. Rptr. 71

Whether there was belated discovery of legal malpractice cause of action for purposes of beginning limitation period is question of fact. Baright v. Willis (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 303, 310, 198 Cal. Rptr. 510

Commencement of limitation period in legal malpractice action is tolled by belated discovery when plaintiff received professional advice that no cause of action existed; degree of diligence required of plaintiff in ferreting out negligence is diminished in case of professional relationship. Baright v. Willis (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 303, 312-313, 198 Cal. Rptr. 510

"Rule of discovery" provides that cause of action does not accrue until plaintiff knows, or should know, all material facts essential to show elements of cause of action. Pereira v. Dow Chemical Co. (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 865, 873, 181 Cal. Rptr. 364

When rule of discovery applies, issue of whether or not discovery of cause of action was reasonably delayed is question of fact; question becoming matter of law only when reasonable minds can draw only one conclusion from proffered evidence; whether or not due diligence has been used to discover cause of action is also question of fact. Pereira v. Dow Chemical Co. (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 865, 874, 181 Cal. Rptr. 364

Running of period of limitation in case of progressively developing or continuing wrong, where nature, extent, or permanence of harm is difficult to discover, is generally suspended until discovery of, or opportunity to discover, facts. Bradler v. Craig (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 466, 471, 79 Cal. Rptr. 401

When personal injury is suffered without perceptible trauma and by silent and insidious impregnation as consequence of act or omission of another, who knows, or is charged with the responsibility of knowing that the act or omission may result in personal injury, and injured person is unaware of cause of injury, and as a reasonably prudent and intelligent person could not, without specialized knowledge, have been made aware of cause, action for tort does not accrue until injured person knows or by the exercise of reasonable diligence should have discovered cause of injury. Warrington v. Charles Pfizer & Co. (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 564, 569-570, 80 Cal. Rptr. 130 (injury from ingestion of drug)

Period of limitation begins to run when fact of injury and identity of person responsible are known, notwithstanding plaintiff's failure to discover some or most of resulting damage until later. Howe v. Pioneer Mfg. Co. (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 330, 340-341, 68 Cal. Rptr. 617

[c] Fiduciary Relationship

Period of limitation on action by beneficiary against fiduciary generally does not run as long as fiduciary relationship has not been repudiated. Estate of Clary (1928) 203 Cal. 335, 341, 264 P. 242

In a case alleging liability of a bank under Com. Code § 3307 for taking an instrument from a fiduciary with notice of breach of fiduciary duty, the represented person may rely on delayed discovery of the injury to postpone the accrual of the cause of action. Cochran Investment Co. v. Bank of America (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 341, --, 101 Cal. App. 4th 341, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 51

Total repudiation of voluntary trust is required to start period of limitation running. Cortelyou v. Imperial Land Co. (1913) 166 Cal. 14, 20, 134 P. 981

Statute of limitations for actions involving fiduciary obligation is normally triggered on date plaintiff discovers, or should have discovered, the negligence. Field v. Century 21 Klowden-Forness Realty (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 18, 20-21, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 784

Trustee's acts of conversion of trust property akin to fraudulent concealment; statutes of limitation do not begin to run in action for breach of voluntary trust until there is repudiation brought to beneficiary's attention, that is, repudiation of trust is not effective and cannot commence running of statute of limitations unless and until fact of repudiation is brought home to beneficiary; when fiduciary wrongfully concealed items she chose to retain from estate, statute of limitations was tolled until beneficiary discovered or ought to have discovered existence of cause of action for fiduciary's conversion. Strasberg v. Odyssey Group, Inc. (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 906, 916-918, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474

Although, under discovery rule, limitation period begins once plaintiff acquires notice or information that would cause inquiry by reasonable person, defendants as fiduciaries have duty to make full and fair disclosure to plaintiffs of all facts that affect their rights and interests; breach of duty to disclose known facts with intention to hinder, and that does hinder, commencement of action until action would be outlawed is fraud practiced on plaintiff that in conscience estops defendant's reliance on statute of limitations; if duty to disclose exists, disclosure must be full and complete and any concealment or misrepresentation amounts to fraud sufficient to entitle injured party to action; if fiduciary relationship exists, plaintiffs usual duty of diligence to discover facts does not exist. Cross v. Bonded Adjustment Bureau (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 266, 281, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 801

Anticipatory breach of voluntary trust does not start period of limitation running. Brewer v. Simpson (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 567, 593, 2 Cal. Rptr. 609, 349 P.2d 289 ; National Auto. & Cas. Ins. Co. v. Pitchess (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 62, 65, 110 Cal. Rptr. 649

Action for breach of fiduciary duty is subject to four-year period set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 338(g) for commencement of action; statute of limitations on action for breach of fiduciary duty based on concealment commences to run when plaintiff discovers or, in exercise of reasonable diligence, should have discovered that facts had been concealed. Stalberg v. Western Title Ins. Co. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1223, 1230, 282 Cal. Rptr. 43

Limitation period on former partners' cause of action against other former partners for fraud based on concealment of profits derived from sale and rental of property to dissolved partnership was postponed by fraudulent concealment and did not commence until plaintiffs had actual or inquiry notice. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman v. Cohen (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1059-1060, 237 Cal. Rptr. 14

Between fiduciaries, actual notice is question of fact; distribution of report, which had footnote disclosing separate interest of some partners in assets leased to partnership, at partnership meeting was not sufficient to charge other partners with notice of separate interests or profit on lease. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman v. Cohen (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1059, 237 Cal. Rptr. 14

Principle that plaintiff's ignorance of cause of action is no bar to running of statute of limitations was inapposite to plaintiff in action to rescind limited partnership who was in fiduciary relationship with defendant and relied on fiduciary's advice that partnership structure was in compliance with law. Sherman v. Lloyd (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 693, 699, 226 Cal. Rptr. 495

Date-of-discovery rule applies to fiduciary when strict adherence to date of injury rule would result in unfairness to plaintiff and would encourage wrongdoers to mislead fiduciary to delay bringing suit; discovery rule is particularly appropriate when defendant maintains custody and control of plaintiff's property or interests. April Enterprises, Inc. v. KTTV (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 805, 827, 195 Cal. Rptr. 421

Trustee is required to repudiate trust positively and unequivocally; repudiation must be brought to beneficiary's attention, for period of limitation to start running. MacMullan v. Kelly (1912) 19 Cal. App. 700, 706, 127 P. 819

Period of limitation on action against involuntary trustee begins to run when trust created; repudiation is not necessary. Norton v. Bassett (1908) 154 Cal. 411, 416, 97 P. 894

[26] Limitations Period Applicable to Actions Upon Foreign Judgments

Ten-year statute of limitations in Code Civ. Proc. § 337.5, applicable to actions upon sister state judgments, also applies to actions upon foreign judgments. This is so regardless of whether the action is styled as a claim for "recognition" or "enforcement" or "domestication." Manco Contracting Co. (WLL) v. Bezdikian (2008) 45 Cal. 4th 192, 208, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 233, 195 P.3d 604

§ 345.70 Allegation--Suspension of Period of Limitation--Absence of Defendant From State [Code Civ. Proc. § 351]

[1] FORM Allegation--Suspension of Period of Limitation--Absence of Defendant From State [Code Civ. Proc. § 351]

1. On _____[date cause of action accrued], defendant _____[name, unless there is only one defendant] was outside the State of California and had Comment, Baker v. Beech Aircraft Corp.: Plaintiff's Burden of Reasonable Diligence Grows Heavier, 13 U. West L.A. L. Rev. 235 (1981) 68 Cal. L. Rev. 106 (1980) 9 Sw. U. L. Rev. 291 (1977) 10 Cal. West. L. Rev. 453-458 (1945) 33 Cal. L. Rev. 152-155 (1945)no designated agent within the state for service of process.

[EITHER]

2. On _____[date], defendant _____ [returned to the state or had a designated agent within the state for service of process, namely _____ (name)]. For the entire period between _____[date], and _____[date], defendant was outside the state and had no designated agent within the state for service of process.

[OR]

2. As of _____[date complaint filed], defendant remains outside the state and has no designated agent within the state for service of process. For the entire period between _____[date], and _____[date], defendant has been outside the state and has had no designated agent within the state for service of process.

[2] Use of Form

The allegation in [1], above, should be inserted into the complaint if the defendant was out of the state when the cause of action against him or her accrued, and had no agent for service of process within the state [see Code Civ. Proc. § 351; for discussion, see § 345.20[2], above].

[3] Anticipating Defense of Statute of Limitations

[a] Allegation Anticipating Defense

Where it appears from the complaint that the period of limitation has expired, the complaint should contain facts showing that the statute has not run, or that the defendant is estopped to plead the bar of the statute, or has waived the right to plead it [see Kunstman v. Mirizzi (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 753, 755, 44 Cal. Rptr. 707 , see also Donahue v. Stockton Gas etc. Co. (1907) 6 Cal. App. 276, 282, 92 P. 196 (plaintiff not required to show action not barred)]. If the plaintiff fails to so plead, the defendant may assert the bar of the statute by demurrer or by affirmative defense in the answer [see §§ 345.100, 345.104].

[b] Complaint for Fraud in Form of Common Count

A complaint cast in the form of a common count will not always show on its face whether the action is barred by a statute of limitation. Therefore, where the plaintiff having a cause of action based on fraud pleads a common count instead of alleging a series of facts, it is neither necessary nor appropriate to state the circumstances and time of discovery of the fraud, by way of avoiding the bar of the statute of limitation [MacDonald v. Reich & Lievre, Inc. (1929) 100 Cal. App. 736, 739-740, 281 P. 106 (disapproved on other grounds in Mary Pickford Co. v. Bayly Bros., Inc. (1993) 12 Cal. 2d 501, 521, 86 P.2d 102)]. If the action in such a case is in fact barred, then the defendant may show this at the trial under a general denial [see § 345.100[4][d]]. If the defendant attempts to do this, then the plaintiff may introduce evidence in rebuttal.

[c] Defendant's Absence From State

If the plaintiff's action can be saved from the bar of a statute of limitation by the fact that the defendant was absent from the state, then that fact should be alleged in the complaint. Unless the defendant's absence is alleged, it will be assumed that he was present in the state during the time in question [Bass v. Berry (1876) 51 Cal. 264, 265] .

Since Code Civ. Proc. § 351 refers to the defendant's being "out of the state" and to "the time of his absence," an allegation based on this statute should not be restricted to the fact that the defendant was not a resident of California during the critical time. Such an allegation has been upheld "in the interests of justice," but only because the defendant neglected to challenge it by demurrer [see Frantz v. Mallen (1928) 204 Cal. 159, 161, 267 P. 314] .

For discussion of the effect of the Commerce Clause on the tolling provisions of Code Civ. Prov. § 351, see § 345.20[2][e], above.

[4] Pleading After Answer Raising Defense of Bar

Facts on which a plaintiff wishes to rely in order to relieve himself from the bar of a statute of limitation may be deemed to have been pleaded in answer to the affirmative matters alleged in the answer of the defendant which raise the defense of bar [Fox v. Tay (1891) 89 Cal. 339, 344, 24 P. 855, 26 P. 897] . This rule is a corollary of the statutory rule that the statement of any new matter in the answer, in avoidance or constituting a defense, must, on trial, be deemed controverted by the opposite party [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.20(b)].

Thus, where the plaintiff omits to allege in the complaint facts which avoid the bar of a statute of limitation that would otherwise appear to defeat his action, if the defendant demurs on the ground o bar, then the demurrer should be sustained, with leave to amend, and the plaintiff will be obliged to plead those facts. But if the defendant raises the bar in his answer, without demurring, then no amendment is necessary, and the missing facts will be deemed included in the complaint.

[1] FORM Allegation--Suspension of Period of Limitation--Injury to Child Conceived But Not Yet Born [Code Civ. Proc. § 340.4]

1. The injuries herein alleged to have been sustained by plaintiff occurred after he/she was conceived but before he/she was born.

[2] Use of Form

The allegation in [1], above, is for use in a complaint by a minor to recover damages for injuries sustained after conception but before birth [see Code Civ. Proc. § 340.4]. Code Civ. Proc. § 340.4 extends the time in which the action may be filed until six years after birth (see discussion under [3], below), but does not apply to actions based on medical malpractice. These actions are governed exclusively by Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 [see Young v. Haines (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 883, 894, 226 Cal. Rptr. 547, 718 P.2d 909 ; *Donabedian v. Manzer (1986) 187 Cal. [3] Injury to Unborn Child

Any action by or on behalf of a minor for personal injuries sustained prior to or in the course of birth must be brought within six years from the date of the minor's birth and the time the minor is under any disability mentioned in Code Civ. Proc. § 352 (minority, insanity) is not to be excluded in computing the time limited for the commencement of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 340.4; see Young v. Haines (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 883, 890, 226 Cal. Rptr. 547, 718 P.2d 909] . Because Code Civ. Proc. § 340.4 mentions only Code Civ. Proc. § 352, it is subject to being extended on any ground of tolling set forth in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 351-366.2, other than as set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 352 [*see Young v. 1. On _____[date cause of action accrued], _____[allege facts showing plaintiff's insanity, e.g., plaintiff was of such unsound mind that he was incapable of caring for his property or transacting business or understanding the nature and effects of his acts].

[EITHER]

2. On _____[date], _____[allege plaintiff's recovery of sound mind, e.g., plaintiff recovered sufficient soundness of mind that he became capable of caring for his property, transacting business, and understanding the nature and effects of his acts].

[OR]

2. As of _____[date complaint filed], plaintiff's mental condition remains the same, and for the entire period between those dates plaintiff's mental condition has remained the same.

[2] Use of Form

The allegation in [1], above, should be inserted into the complaint if the plaintiff was "insane" when the cause of action accrued [see Code Civ. Proc. § 352(a); for discussion, see § 345.20[11][b] et seq., above].

[3] Insanity as Disability Suspending Period of Limitation

As used in Code Civ. Proc. § 352(a), "insane" refers to a condition of mental, derangement which renders the sufferer incapable of caring for his property or transacting business, or understanding the nature or effects of his acts [Hsu v. Mt. Zion Hospital (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 562, 571, 66 Cal. Rptr. 659 ; see Feeley v. Southern Pacific Transportation Co. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 949, 951-953, 285 Cal. Rptr. 666 (term "insanity" sufficient to toll limitation period includes unconsciousness); Pearl v. Pearl (1918) 177 Cal. 303, 307, 177 P. 845 (finding in terms of rule stated in Hsu case as sufficient to support conclusion period of limitation had not expired); Henein v. Saudi Arabian Parsons Ltd. (9th Cir. 1987) 818 F.2d 1508 (mere physical disability or nervous shock following accident does not constitute insanity)].

A person who has been adjudicated mentally ill pursuant to provisions in the Welfare and Institutions Code might also be "insane" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 352(a), but such an adjudication is not a conclusive judicial determination that the person is "insane," but the presumption is rebuttable. A person who is adjudged mentally ill and in need of hospital treatment under the Welfare and Institutions Code might nevertheless be capable of transacting business and carrying out his affairs, either during occasional lucid intervals or throughout his hospitalization [Hsu v. Mt. Zion Hospital (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 562, 571-572, 572-573, 66 Cal. Rptr. 659 ; see In re Zanetti (1950) 34 Cal. 2d 136, 208 P.2d 657 ; see also Weihofen, "Mental Incompetency to Contract or Convey," 39 S. Cal. L. Rev. 211, 221, 222 and n.49 (1966)].

The definition of "insane" given in the first paragraph is not the sole definition of insanity for the purpose of applying Code Civ. Proc. § 352(a), and the three alternative conditions set out in that definition are not the exclusive tests of mental incompetence for that purpose. The basic question in a case where the plaintiff invokes Code Civ. Proc. § 352(a) is whether the allegedly insane plaintiff was sufficiently aware of the nature or effects of his acts to be able to comprehend such business transactions as hiring an attorney and beginning a lawsuit. If he was, then he was not "insane" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 352(a) [Hsu v. Mt. Zion Hospital (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 562, 575, 66 Cal. Rptr. 659] .

If an adjudication of incompetence is to be relied on as evidence of the plaintiff's being "insane" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 352(a), then counsel should bear in mind that an adjudication of incompetence will not raise the presumption that the plaintiff was incompetent before the date of adjudication [Larsson v. Cedars of Lebanon Hospital (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 704, 707, 218 P.2d 604] .

[4] Application of Analogous Rules

In applying Civ. Code §§ 38, 39, and 40 (dealing with contracts by persons without understanding or of unsound mind), a number of decisions have held, that when it has been judicially determined in a proceeding for the appointment of a guardian that a person is incompetent to handle his person and property, the effect is to fix the status of incompetence until restoration to capacity in a proceeding for that purpose under Prob. Code § 1470. This rule applies in a case where the plaintiff invokes Code Civ. Proc. § 352(a); thus, if a guardian has been appointed for the plaintiff because of incompetence and that guardianship continues, then it is error to receive evidence that the plaintiff was not "insane" at the time in question if the evidence is objected to after receipt of evidence of the guardianship adjudication [Gottesman v. Simon (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 494, 502, 337 P.2d 906] .

[5] Allegation of Insanity

In alleging the plaintiff's insanity for the purpose of invoking Code Civ. Proc. § 352(a), it is probably insufficient to state merely that the plaintiff was insane. Also, the allegation should avoid the word "incompetent" because it is not necessarily synonymous with "insane," and a bare allegation of the plaintiff's incompetence might be inadequate to invoke Code Civ. Proc. § 352(a) [see, e.g., Wade v. Busby (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 700, 702-703 (allegation that plaintiff was "incompetent by reason of her extreme age and infirmity and mental condition" was insufficient)].

The language of the first paragraph of this form of allegation uses the disjunctive "or," whereas the language of the second paragraph uses the conjunctive "and." This format should be followed carefully. Any one of the three conditions referred to in the first paragraph could render the plaintiff "insane," but a recovery of a sound mind would require the absence of all three conditions [see Hsu v. Mt. Zion Hospital (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 562, 574-575, 66 Cal. Rptr. 659 (disapproving instruction that "to find that plaintiff ceased to be insane, you must find that she was capable of caring for her property, or transacting business, or understanding the nature or effects of her acts;" emphasis added)].

2. On _____[date], plaintiff was released from that imprisonment. For the entire period between those dates plaintiff was confined in prison.

[OR]

2. As of _____[date complaint filed], remains imprisoned. For the entire period between those dates plaintiff has been confined in prison.

[2] Use of Form

The allegation in [1], above, should be inserted into the complaint when the plaintiff was imprisoned when the cause of action accrued [see Code Civ. Proc. § 352.1(a)], or, if the action involves real property, when his or her title first descended or accrued [see Code Civ. Proc. § 328.5; see also § 345.20[11][e], above]. [2] Use of Form

The allegation in [1], above, should be inserted into the complaint when a former action was commenced within the applicable period of limitation, judgment for plaintiff was reversed on appeal other than the merits, and the present action is begun within one year after the reversal [*see Code Civ. No reported case has considered the question when the "year after the reversal" [see Code Civ. Proc. § 355] begins. As to reversals by California appellate courts, it probably begins on the day when the clerk enters the remittitur in the record of the case [see Cal. [2] Use of Form

The allegation in [1], above, should be inserted into the complaint if the commencement of the action was stayed by injunction or statutory prohibition, or if the plaintiff was otherwise legally prevented from taking action to protect his or her interests [see Code Civ. Proc. § 356 and the discussion in § 345.20[16], above, see also 11 U.S.C. §§ 362(a)-(f) (stay of actions against debtors in bankruptcy)].

[3] Application of Code Civ. Proc. § 356

The rule in Code Civ. Proc. § 356 has been restated by the Supreme Court to be that the period of limitation is suspended during any period in which the plaintiff is legally prevented from taking action to protect his or her rights [see Dillon v. Board of Pension Commrs. (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 427, 431, 116 P.2d 37] . Although no reported decision has so held, the implicit corollary of this rule is that the period of limitation is not suspended during any period in which the plaintiff has any legal means of protecting his or her rights. Also implicit in both the rule of Code Civ. Proc. § 356, and the general scheme of statutes of limitation, is the principle that one with a good cause of action will not delay bringing it for an unreasonable length of time; but, when a plaintiff has been denied access to the courts, the basis of the principle is destroyed [Estate of Caravas (1952) 40 Cal. 2d 33, 40, 250 P.2d 593] . Thus, it would seem that if a person having a cause of action is under a legal inhibition to sue, and there is available to him or her a legal means for relief from that inhibition, his or her failure to seek relief as promptly as he or she reasonably can should be deemed a waiver of his or her right to rely on suspension of the period of limitation because of the inhibition, at least as to the portion of the time of asserted suspension when he or she neglected or omitted to act for his or her own protection.

For discussion particular situations, see §§ 345.20[16][b] -[d], above.

30-345 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 345.81

§ 345.81 Allegation--Defendant Estopped to Raise Defense of Bar

[1] FORM Allegation--Defendant Estopped to Raise Defense of Bar

1. On _____[date], defendant _____[name, unless there is only one defendant] _____ [specify acts establishing estoppel, e.g., informed plaintiff that defendant would settle plaintiff's claim and pay plaintiff the sum of $_____, which was acceptable to plaintiff. Defendant promised to pay that sum forthwith. However, no payment was made as of _____ (date of last day of period of limitation). Between those dates, plaintiff refrained from filing a complaint because of defendant's continued assurances that payment was forthcoming. Plaintiff relied on defendant's promises to pay because of defendant's relationship to plaintiff as plaintiff's _____ (specify, e.g., employer). On _____ (date), plaintiff discovered that defendant never had any intention of paying any settlement sum but, instead, intended to induce plaintiff not to commence an action and, thus, to prevent plaintiff not to commence an action within the period of limitation].

[2] Use of Form

The allegation in [1], above, illustrates the manner of pleading an estoppel against the defendant's raising the defense of bar of a statute of limitation. No general form can be given because each case will have unique facts. The most often used ground for estoppel is probably fraudulent concealment of a cause of action, which may exist in a case of professional negligence [for discussion, see § 345.22[3], above]. Estoppel may also arise in the case of a fiduciary relationship [for discussion, see § 345.19[4], above].

[3] Nature of Estoppel to Raise Defense of Bar

The equitable doctrine of estoppel in pais is applicable in a proper case to prevent a fraudulent or an inequitable resort to a statute of limitation [see Ginns v. Savage (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 520, 524-525, 39 Cal. Rptr. 377, 393 P.2d 689 (absence of fraud as not preventing application of doctrine of estoppel to limitation question)]. Acts or conduct that wrongfully induce a party to believe that an amicable adjustment of his or her claim will be made may create an estoppel against pleading a statute of limitation. When the delay in commencing an action is induced by the conduct of the defendant, it cannot be availed of by him or her as a defense. A person cannot justly or equitably lull the adversary into a false sense of security and thereby cause him or her to subject a claim to the bar of a statute of limitation, and then be permitted to plead the very delay caused by the conduct as a defense to the action when brought. Acts or conduct that wrongfully induce a party to believe that an amicable adjustment of the claim will be made may create an estoppel against pleading a statute of limitation [Regus v. Schartkoff (1957) 156 Cal. App. 2d 382, 386-387, 319 P.2d 721 ; see Tresway Aero, Inc. v. Superior Court (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 431, 438, 96 Cal. Rptr. 571, 487 P.2d 1211 (reporting rule of estoppel to raise statute of limitation in defense and citing Regus case)]. Similarly, repeated threats by a defendant that cause the plaintiff duress and result in the plaintiff's delay in bringing suit may also create an estoppel against pleading the statute of limitations [Ateeq v. Najor (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1351, 1356-1357, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 320 (defendant repeatedly threatened to deport plaintiff if plaintiff challenged defendant's accounting)].

Although equitable estoppel typically arises through some misleading affirmative conduct on a defendant's part, an estoppel may also arise from silence when there is a duty to speak [Spray, Gould & Bowers v. Associated Internat. Ins. Co. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1260, 1263, 1268-1269, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 552 (insurer's failure to notifiy claimant of time limits pertaining to a claim in violation of California administrative regulation].

A party has a reasonable time within which to bring his action after the estoppel has expired. When a substantial period for instituting an action intervenes after expiration of the delay engendered by a party, that party's conduct, representations, or promise will not estop him or her from asserting the bar of a statute of limitation. Moreover, such a party is not estopped when the conduct, representations, or promise did not in fact induce the other party to forbear from instituting an action. When the inducement for delay has ceased to operate, the plaintiff cannot excuse his or her failure to institute the action on the ground of estoppel. A reasonable time within which a plaintiff may file an action after discovery of the alleged fraud (constituting the ground for asserting estoppel) cannot exceed the period of limitation imposed by the applicable statute [Regus v. Schartkoff (1957) 156 Cal. App. 2d 382, 386-387, 319 P.2d 721 ; see Tresway Aero, Inc. v. Superior Court (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 431, 438, 96 Cal. Rptr. 571, 487 P.2d 1211] . Laches may not be pleaded, however, when the claimed prejudice is a result of the party's own wrongful actions [Ateeq v. Najor (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1351, 1359, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 320] .

Whether a complaint sufficiently alleges a fraudulent concealment of the cause of action, and when the plaintiff discovered or should have discovered the facts giving rise to the cause of action, are to be determined by the same rules that apply when the question is whether a case is within the saving provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 338 regarding actions based on fraud [Sears v. Rule (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 131, 147, 163 P.2d 443 (discovery of facts); Kimball v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1934) 220 Cal. 203, 215, 30 P.2d 39 (pleading)].

If the plaintiff intends to rely on estoppel, the complaint must contain a statement of facts, not conclusions, constituting the ground for estoppel, in the same manner as when fraud is alleged under Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d) and the plaintiff is obliged to establish an excuse for delayed filing [see Negaard v. Department of Aeronautics (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 92, 107 Cal. Rptr. 920 , cert. denied, 414 U.S. 1069] . In the analogous case of fraud and the application of Code Civ. Proc. § 338, the plaintiff must plead and prove facts showing lack of knowledge, and lack of means of obtaining knowledge (i.e., in the exercise of reasonable diligence, the facts could not have been discovered at an earlier date), and how and when the plaintiff actually discovered the fraud [see Casualty Ins. Co. v. Rees Investment Co. (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 716, 720, 92 Cal. Rptr. 857] . Likewise in the case of estoppel, the plaintiff must plead and prove facts showing a lack of knowledge of the facts constituting the ground for estoppel, and a lack of means for obtaining that knowledge, and how and when the plaintiff became aware of those facts [see Negaard v. Department of Aeronautics (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 92, 97, 107 Cal. Rptr. 920 , cert. denied, 414 U.S. 1069] .

If the facts alleged in the complaint do not show that the statute of limitations has run, the plaintiff may not need to specifically plead facts supporting estoppel [Ateeq v. Najor (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1351, 1358, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 320

(plaintiff timely raised issue of estoppel in response to defendant's motion for defense judgment; defendant first raised statute of limitations as affirmative defense) see also Gallo v. Superior Court (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1375, 1383, 246 Cal. Rptr. 587] .

§ 345.82 Allegation--Statute of Limitations Equitably Tolled

[1] FORM Allegation--Statute of Limitations Equitably Tolled

1. On _____[date], plaintiff _____ [set out plaintiff's action(s) that gave defendant notice of plaintiff's claim within the applicable statute of limitations, e.g., filed an action in federal court naming as defendant _____[name], the defendant herein. A copy of that complaint is attached as Exhibit A and is incorporated herein by reference].

2. _____[Both claims arose from the defendant's conduct as alleged herein or allege other circumstances demonstrating lack of prejudice to defendant in gathering evidence necessary for defense].

3. _____[Set out facts showing good faith and reasonableness of plaintiff's acts in filing second claim, e.g., Plaintiff filed this action immediately after his/her federal court action was dismissed without prejudice to any state cause of action due to lack of federal court jurisdiction, as he/she had maintained to defendant would be done were the federal action dismissed].

[2] Use of Form

The allegation in [1], above, should be inserted into the complaint when the statute of limitations would appear to have expired, but during part of the time another remedy was being pursued against the same defendant by plaintiff based on the same or similar facts. The pendency of the first claim may support a finding that the statute of limitations was equitably tolled while the first claim was pending [see Addison v. State of California (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 313, 319, 146 Cal. Rptr. 224, 578 P.2d 941] .

[3] Equitable Tolling

A statute of limitation applicable to a given cause of action may be found by a court to have been equitably tolled if plaintiff attempted to remedy his or her claim through another avenue and [Addison v. State of California (1978) 21

Cal. 3d 313, 319, 146 Cal. Rptr. 224, 578 P.2d 941 ; Collier v. City of Pasadena (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 917, 924, 191 Cal. Rptr. 681 ; Elkins v. Derby (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 410, 412, 115 Cal. Rptr. 641, 525 P.2d 81] :

- Defendant received timely notice of the first claim;
- Defendant was not prejudiced in gathering evidence to defend against the second claim; and
- Plaintiff acted reasonably and in good faith in filing the second claim.

If the first claim is an action brought in federal court that includes a pendent state claim over which the federal court has supplemental jurisdiction, the second suit must be filed within 30 days after dismissal of the pendent state claim without prejudice unless state law extends that period [28 U.S.C. 1367(d); Kolani v. Gluska (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 402, 408-411, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 257] .

[2] Use of Form

The allegation in [1], above, should be inserted into the complaint when the statutory period of limitation has been extended by agreement; in other words, when the defendant has executed a waiver of his or her right to assert the defense that the action is barred pursuant to *Code Civ. [2] Use of Form

The allegation in [1], above, may be inserted into the complaint when the debtor made a partial payment of principal or interest due on a promissory note before the period of limitation on an action based on the note expired. The effect of such a payment is to begin a new period of limitation running from the date of the payment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 360; for further discussion, see § 345.23].

§ 345.100 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Action Barred by Statute of Limitations--General Form

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Action Barred by Statute of Limitations--General Form

[_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION]

1. The action is barred _____ [by the provisions of _____ (insert, if appropriate : subdivision _____ of) Section _____ of the Code of Civil Procedure or in that _____ (state facts establishing bar)].

[2] Use of Form

The affirmative defense in [1], above, may be inserted into the answer when the defendant wishes to raise the defense of bar of a statute of limitation. The alternative method of pleading, namely a reference to the applicable section (and subdivision, if the section is subdivided) of the Code of Civil Procedure, is authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 458.

[3] Necessity of Raising Defense Affirmatively

A party who wishes to rely on the defense that an action is barred by a statute of limitation must affirmatively raise the defense in an appropriate pleading [see Union Sugar Co. v. Hollister Estate Co. (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 740, 744, 47 P.2d 273 ; see also County of San Mateo v. Booth (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 388, 399, 185 Cal. Rptr. 349] . A defendant who fails to raise the defense by an appropriate pleading will be held to have waived his or her right to rely on it [In re Andrew V. (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1286, 1291, 284 Cal. Rptr. 38 (court's jurisdiction not affected by running of statute; party must plead defense of limitation or it is waived)].

In applying the general rule that failure to raise the defense of bar of a statute of limitation will be deemed a waiver, it does not matter whether the statute in question is a general statute of limitation or relates to a special proceeding [Sheeter v. Lifur (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 729, 739, 249 P.2d 336] .

[4] Pleading Bar of Statute

[a] By Pleading Facts or by Specifying Statute in Demurrer or Answer

A defendant may, if the defect appears on the face of a complaint, set up the bar of a statute of limitation either by demurrer or by answer. The failure to urge it by way of demurrer does not deprive the defendant of the right to rely on such defense in his or her answer [Stafford v. Russell (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 319, 321, 255 P.2d 872] . For a form of demurrer raising the bar of the statute of limitations, see § 345.104, below.

There are two ways of making a plea of bar of a statute of limitation.

The first is by alleging all of the facts showing that action is barred and indicating that the lateness of the commencement of the action is being urged as a defense.

The second is stated in Code Civ. Proc. § 458, which states that in pleading a statute of limitation, it is not necessary to state the facts showing the defense; rather, the answer may state generally that the cause of action is barred by the provisions of a specified section (giving the number of the section and subdivision thereof, if it is so divided, relied upon) of the Code of Civil Procedure [Code Civ. Proc. § 458]. If the defendant following Code Civ. Proc. § 458 fails to specify the applicable section and, if it is divided into subdivisions, the particular subdivision or subdivisions relied on, the plea is insufficient [Brown v. World Church (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 684, 691, 77 Cal. Rptr. 669 (reporting rules)].

The court has discretion to allow an amendment of the answer for the purpose of inserting the omitted reference [St. Paul Title & Trust Co. v. Stensgaard (1912) 162 Cal. 178, 180, 121 P. 731] .

[b] After Demurrer Overruled

Where the defendant demurred on the ground of bar of a statute of limitation (specifying the section and subdivision as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 458), the demurrer was overruled, and the defendant then pleaded the bar of the statute in the answer without specifying the section and subdivision relied on or the facts establishing the bar, he may be held to have waived his right to rely on the attempted defense [see DeCelle v. Alameda (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 528, 533, 34 Cal. Rptr. 597] .

[c] Against Claim Other Than Plaintiff's

A plea that an action is barred by a statute of limitation may be raised against a claim other than the plaintiff's claim against the defendant pleading the bar, if the two claims are sufficiently related. For example, where the plaintiff sues to foreclose a senior deed of trust and joins the beneficiary of a junior deed of trust, the junior beneficiary may plead in defense that the action to foreclose the senior deed of trust is barred by the statute of limitation, even through the trustor waived that defense as to himself by failure to plead it [Flack v. Boland (1938) 11 Cal. 2d 103, 107, 77 P.2d 1090 (junior beneficiary, who also sought foreclosure, became in effect the senior beneficiary first in line to receive the proceeds of foreclosure sale)].

[d] Against Common Count

Where the plaintiff has cast his complaint in the form of a common count, (1) the defense of bar of a statute of limitation may not be raised by demurrer unless it affirmatively appears on the face of the complaint that the action is barred, and (2) under a general denial, the defendant may urge any defense which tends to show that the plaintiff does not have a subsisting cause of action [Evans v. Zeigler (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 226, 230-231, 204 P.2d 902] .

[e] By Amendment of Answer

An amendment of the answer may be allowed for the purpose of raising the defense of bar of a statute of limitation, even though no attempt was made originally to plead that defense [Wrightson v. Dougherty (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 257, 265-266, 54 P.2d 13] . A requested amendment for the purpose of raising that defense is entitled to as much consideration as an amendment asserting any other claim or defense [Vedder v. Superior Court (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 627, 629, 62 Cal. Rptr. 222] . The trial court may, in its discretion and in furtherance of justice, deny an application to amend an answer for the purpose of raising the defense of bar of a statute of limitation [Davenport v. Stratton (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 232, 249, 149 P.2d 4 (restating rule)].

The point in proceedings at which an amendment may be allowed for the purpose of pleading bar of a statute of limitation appears to be any time before there is a decision, verdict, or judgment [see Trower v. City and County of San Francisco (1910) 157 Cal. 762, 766-767, 109 P. 617 (amendment allowed after cause submitted)].

A request to amend the answer so as to plead the defense of bar of a statute of limitation may properly be denied if it is made too late or if the circumstances of the case show that the defendant has no tenable ground on which to base the request [see, e.g., L.B. Laboratories, Inc. v. Mitchell (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 56, 61, 244 P.2d 385 (request to amend answer to plead bar of Code Civ. Proc. § 337 as properly denied where complaint showed action was based on contract, plaintiff's opening argument so stated without objection from defendant, and request was made only after defendant's motion for nonsuit on ground of lack of evidence of negligence was opposed by plaintiff's argument that action was based on contract)].

[f] In Retrial After Reversal

If the defense was not presented at the first trial in a case where the judgment was reversed on appeal and the cause was remanded for retrial, the trial court may, in its discretion, allow an amendment of the answer before the retrial, for the purpose of raising the defense for the first time [see Estate of Horman (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 62, 72-73, 95 Cal. Rptr. 433, 485 P.2d 785 (adopting court of appeal opinion)].

[g] By Motion for Summary Judgment

Where a defendant having a good defense based on a statute of limitation fails to raise it by demurrer or in his answer, he might nevertheless be permitted to assert it by, for example, moving for summary judgment on the basis of a declaration stating the facts which show the action to be barred. The granting of a motion for summary judgment in such a case has been upheld, in derogation of the plaintiff's argument that the defendant's right to assert the bar of the applicable statute was waived, or the defendant was estopped to assert it, because of failure to demur or plead the bar in his answer. The reasoning was that since the defendant could have amended his answer and then moved for judgment on the pleadings, the granting of his motion for summary judgment simply achieved a proper result by a more direct method [Hunter v. Los Angeles County (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 820, 823, 69 Cal. Rptr. 288] .

[h] By Motion to Strike

The pleading of bar of a statute of limitation in the form of a motion to strike the complaint has been upheld where the motion was accompanied by a demurrer pleading the same objection (as well as an answer pleading the bar) [Sullivan v. Wright (1954) 124 Cal. App. 2d 836, 837-838, 269 P.2d 671] . The rationale in that case was that if the court of appeal were to reverse the order striking the complaint, on the basis that the bar of a statute of limitation cannot be a ground for granting a motion to strike, then the demurrer raising the bar would nevertheless remain intact even though the action was, in fact, barred. Thus, reversing the order to strike would have achieved no useful purpose.

A motion to strike that is not accompanied by a demurrer where both raise the bar of a statute of limitation should probably be denied. The plaintiff should have at least one chance to amend the complaint so as to avoid the bar of the statute, but granting a motion to strike might deprive him of that chance (if the period of limitation has expired).

[i] In Application to Vacate, or After Vacation of, Default

A statute of limitation is a "statute of repose;" therefore, it is a meritorious defense which may properly be set up after a default has been vacated or as a ground for vacating a default. A defendant who asserts that an action is barred by lapse of time is deemed to answer to the merits [Lilly-Brackett Co. v. Sonnemann (1910) 157 Cal. 192, 196-197, 106 P. 715] .

[5] Plaintiff's Response to Attempted Plea of Bar

The rule in Code Civ. Proc. § 458 as to the manner of pleading the bar of a statute of limitation in the answer is not self-operating. It depends for its enforcement on the diligence of the plaintiff in objecting to the insufficiency of the plea, either by demurrer to the answer or by timely objection at trial [Davenport v. Stratton (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 232, 248, 149 P.2d 4] .

If an answer attempts to raise the defense of bar of a statute of limitation following the procedure allowed in Code Civ. Proc. § 458 but the form of the allegation is defective, the plaintiff's remedy is a demurrer on the ground of uncertainty. Absent such a demurrer, the plaintiff cannot complain of the defective pleading, at least if it is evident from the facts of the case and from the language of the statute that applies which particular statute and subdivision the defendant relies on [St. Paul Title & Trust Co. v. Stensgaard (1912) 162 Cal. 178, 180, 121 P. 731] .

If the defendant attempts to plead in his answer the bar of a statute of limitation, but the plea is defective, and the plaintiff does not demur (or otherwise object to the defective pleading) but allows the action to go to trial and judgment, then the plaintiff's omission to object while the action was in the trial court will be deemed a waiver of the objection [Churchill v. Woodworth (1906) 148 Cal. 669, 676, 84 P. 155] . However, if the plaintiff omits to demur or otherwise to object to a defective pleading of bar of a statute of limitation by the defendant but nevertheless does object during the trial to the admission of evidence in support of the plea, then the plaintiff's objection is timely [Davenport v. Stratton (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 232, 248, 149 P.2d 4] . And if the plaintiff makes a timely objection to the defective pleading of bar of a statute of limitation, then it is probably an abuse of discretion for the trial court to deny the defendant leave to amend his answer so as to cure the defect [see Davenport v. Stratton (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 232, 252, 149 P.2d 4] .

[6] Plaintiff's Pleading Bar of Statute

[a] In Answer to Cross Complaint

Where the plaintiff is a cross defendant under a cross complaint filed by the person (defendant) whom he sued, a defense that the action under the cross complaint is barred by a statute of limitation will be deemed waived if it is not raised in the trial court [Hall v. Chamberlain (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 673, 679-680, 192 P.2d 759] .

[b] Against Set-Off Claim

A statute of limitation has no application to setoff claims of an equitable nature based on the same series of transactions as the complaint [see Kroepsch v. Muma (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 467, 475, 77 Cal. Rptr. 348] .

On that date the cause of action alleged in the complaint arose in _____[other state or foreign country], as follows: _____[briefly describe circumstances giving rise to cause of action]. On that date, and at all times since then until the complaint was filed, there was in full force and effect in _____[other state or foreign country] a certain statute of limitation designated as _____[statute number, code section, or other form of designation] and providing _____ [as follows: _____ (state pertinent provisions) or as set forth in the true and correct copy, certified as such by _____ (certifying officer), which is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof]. The action is barred by the provisions of that statute and by Section 361 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

[2] Use of Form

The form of affirmative defense in [1], above, may be inserted into the answer if the cause of action arose outside California, the plaintiff has not been a citizen of California or has not held the cause of action from the time it accrued, and the action is barred under the laws of the other state or foreign country where it arose [see Code Civ. Proc. § 361; § 345.13[3], above].

It is a principle of conflict of laws recognized in California that the barring of an action by a statute of limitation is a procedural matter governed by the law of the forum, regardless of where the cause of action arose [Biewend v. Biewend (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 108, 114, 109 P.2d 701] .

Code Civ. Proc. § 361 applies to causes of action that are barred by the law of the state where they arose but not by the law of California, and only such causes of action. If the plaintiff has not been a citizen of California from the time the cause of action accrued elsewhere, then the effect of Code Civ. Proc. § 361 is to apply the statute of limitation of the jurisdiction where the cause of action arose, unless the action is also barred by a California statute [see Biewend v. Biewend (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 108, 115, 109 P.2d 701 ; see also McCann v. Foster Wheeler (2010) 48 Cal. 4th 68, 85, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 378] .

Although the overriding purpose of "borrowing" statutes is to curtail forum shopping, Code Civ. Proc. § 361 does not inquire into a plaintiff's subjective intent in bringing suit in California. By its terms, section 361 applies whenever a cause of action arises in another state and would be stale in that state, unless the holder of the cause of action is a California citizen who has held the cause from the time of accrual [Giest v. Sequoia Ventures, Inc (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 300, 303, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 476] . Therefore, the fact that surviving heirs and executors of the estate of a decedent, who was allegedly exposed to asbestos while working on a construction project in Montana, did not intend to avoid any limitations period, but only filed the wrongful death action in California because several other defendants were not amenable to service in Montana was immaterial, and a Montana statute of repose applied to bar the action [Giest v. Sequoia Ventures, Inc (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 300, 303-304, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 476] .

[_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION]

1. On _____[date], pursuant to Section 6403 of the Corporations Code, defendant filed with the Secretary of State of California an instrument in writing, under the seal of and duly executed by defendant, designating _____[name] as a person on whom personal service of summons on any action brought against defendant might be made, and containing the other information required by that section. Also filed on that date along with that instrument was the written consent of _____[name] to serve as designated agent for the service of process. From that date until the filing of the complaint those written instruments remained on file, unchanged and in full force and effect. Therefore, the action is barred by the provisions of Section _____, subdivision _____, of the Code of Civil Procedure.

[2] Use of Form

The form of affirmative defense in [1], above, may be inserted into the answer if the complaint alleges suspension of the running of the period of limitation because of the defendant's absence from the state, and the defendant foreign corporation [see Corp. Code §§ 2105, 2110-2111] has had a designated agent for service of process within the state during the time in question [see Code Civ. Proc. § 351; § 345.20[2], above].

[2] Use of Form

The form of affirmative defense in [1], above, may be inserted into the answer where the plaintiff's action is based on an agreement having a term shortening the period of limitation. Such agreements are enforceable [see § 345.28, above].

If the plaintiff's action is not based on the agreement shortening the period of limitation, then the making of the agreement will have to be alleged. Regarding the pleading of the making of an agreement, see Ch. 140, Contracts .

[2] Use of Form

The ground of demurrer in [1], above, may be pleaded against a complaint which shows on its face that the action is barred. For discussion of demurrers generally, alternative forms of demurrer, a form of notice of hearing on a demurrer, and additional related forms, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

[3] Raising Bar of Statute by Demurrer

The defense that an action is barred by a statute of limitation is not specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10 as a ground of demurrer. The only subdivision of that section under which this ground could be raised is that the pleading does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see Bell v. Bank of California (1908) 153 Cal. 234, 245, 94 P. 889 (ground of bar of statute is deemed included in ground of failure to state facts sufficient to constitute cause of action)].

This ground is, by the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10-430.90, not waived by failure to demur. The defendant (or plaintiff, in an appropriate situation) may, if the defect appears on the face of the pleading, set up the bar of the statute either by demurrer or by answer. If a pleading does not show on its face that the period of limitation has expired, then the bar of the statute must be pleaded by answer [California Safe Deposit & Trust Co. v. Sierra Valleys Ry. Co. (1910) 158 Cal. 690, 698, 112 P. 274 ; see United Western Medical Centers v. Superior Court (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 500, 505, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 682 (while demurrer based on statute of limitations lies if dates in question are shown on face of pleading, if those dates are missing, there is no ground for general demurrer)].

A demurrer on the ground of bar of a statute of limitation does not lie where the complaint shows merely that the action may be barred. It must appear affirmatively that, on the facts stated in the complaint, the right to maintain an action is necessarily barred [see Marshall v. Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 1403, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 339 ; Moya v. Northrup (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 276, 283, 88 Cal. Rptr. 783] . This will not be the case unless the complaint alleges every fact which the defendant would be required to prove if he were to plead the bar of the applicable statute of limitation as an affirmative defense [Farris v. Merritt (1883) 63 Cal. 118, 119] . For example, a complaint that alleged that a notice of rejection of a claim presented to a public entity was mailed "on or about" a date six months and one day before the complaint was filed was held sufficient to withstand a general demurrer based on the six-month statute of limitations of Gov. Code § 945.6(a)(1) [Childs v. State of California (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 155, 159-162, 192 Cal. Rptr. 526] .

[4] Form of Demurrer

Code Civ. Proc. § 458, which allows a plea of bar of a statute of limitation by reference to the applicable section and subsection of the Code of Civil Procedure [see § 345.100[4], above], applies only to cases in which the bar of a statute is pleaded in the answer as an affirmative defense. That section has no reference to a demurrer. In demurring to a pleading, it is sufficient simply to specify the applicable statute as a ground for the demurrer, or even to state nothing more than that the cause of action is barred by the statute of limitation [see Bainbridge v. Stoner (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 423, 431, 106 P.2d 423 ; see Lewis v. Security-First Nat. Bank (1943) 58 Cal. App. 2d 827, 828 and n., 137 P.2d 864 (holding as a sufficient statement in demurrer, on authority of Bainbridge case: "That the first amended complaint is barred by the statute of limitations of the State of California")].

[5] Notice of Hearing and Memorandum

A notice of hearing must be filed and served with a demurrer. The hearing date must be not more than 35 days following the filing of the demurrer or on the first date available to the court thereafter. Notice is given in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(c)].

A memorandum in support of each ground of demurrer must also accompany a demurrer [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[6] Matters Subject to Discretionary Judicial Notice

Where the ground of the demurrer is based on a matter of which the court may take judicial notice pursuant to Evid. Code §§ 452, 453, that matter is required to be specified in the demurrer or in the supporting memoranda, except as the court may otherwise permit [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.70]. To comply with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(l), the request should also be made in a separate document listing the specific items for which notice is requested. For discussion of and forms for requesting judicial notice, see Ch. 321, Judicial Notice .

The taking of judicial notice does not in and of itself require acceptance of the truth of a factual matter that might be deduced from that matter. Thus, even though the court might take judicial notice of customary procedures of a public entity with respect to the preparation and mailing of notices of rejection of tort claims as an official act of a governmental entity, judicial notice of the mailing of a particular tort claim may not be taken when that is precisely the issue in dispute in the case and the evidence to be judicially noticed does not incontrovertibly show that the practice was followed in the particular case [Cruz v. County of Los Angeles (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 1131, 1134].

[7] Effect of Specifying Statute in Demurrer

When a demurrer specifies a particular section on which the defendant relies to defeat the action, no other sections are pleaded, and the only question is whether the action is barred by the particular section or sections mentioned in the demurrer [Bank v. Wickersham (1893) 99 Cal. 655, 660, 34 P. 444] .

[8] Order Sustaining Demurrer

Whenever a demurrer in any action or proceeding is sustained, the court is required to include in its decision or order a statement of the specific ground or grounds on which the decision or order is based, unless the party against whom the demurrer is sustained waives this requirement [Code Civ. Proc. § 472d].

If a complaint shows on its face that the action is barred by a statute of limitation and this defect is the only ground for a demurrer, the court is not required to state the ground on which the demurrer is sustained, despite section 472d [see Rutherford v. Johnson (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 316, 318, 58 Cal. Rptr. 546] .

Defendant demurs to the complaint on the ground that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that it appears on the face of the complaint that plaintiff has inexcusably and unreasonably delayed the commencement of the action, to the prejudice of defendant in that _____[specify how delay caused prejudice].

[2] Use of Form

The ground for demurrer in [1], above, may be used where the complaint in an action for equitable relief shows on its face that the action is barred by laches. If the bar of laches is not apparent on the face of the complaint, then the facts establishing the defense should be stated in the answer in the form of an affirmative defense.

For discussion of laches, see § 345.40, above.

To _____[identify party, e.g., plaintiff] _____[name] and to his/her attorney of record:

1. NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on _____[date], at _____[time], or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in [_____ (Department or Division) _____ of] this court, located at _____[street address], _____[city], _____[ specify party, e.g., defendant] will, and hereby does, move for an order pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 597 for the separate trial of the special defense pleaded in defendant's answer that plaintiff's action is barred by the provisions of _____[specify applicable statute of limitations]. The motion will be made on the ground that the defense constitutes a complete bar to plaintiff's action, and a separate trial will therefore eliminate the need, time, and expense of a regular trial of the action.

2. The motion will be based on this notice of motion, on the declaration(s) of _____[name(s)] and the supporting memorandum served and filed herewith, on the records and file herein, and on such evidence as may be presented at the hearing of the motion.
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

The form of notice of motion in [1], above, may be used where the defendant (or, in an appropriate case, some other party) seeks a separate trial of the defense of bar of a statute of limitation, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 597.

A supporting memorandum must be filed and a copy served with this notice of motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005, 1010; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); for discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities].

[3] Separate Trial of Special Defense on Motion

When the answer pleads any of several special defenses, among them that the action is barred by a statute of limitation, the court may, either on the court's own motion or on the motion of any party, proceed to the trial of that special defense before the trial of any other issue in the case [Code Civ. Proc. § 597].

Code Civ. Proc. § 597 merely states a procedural rule which authorizes the trial court in proper cases to avoid an unjustifiable expenditure of time in the trial of issues related to the merits of an action when it appears after the trial of a special defense that the plaintiff could not recover in any event. That section has no application where it can be clearly seen, from the plaintiff's pleading and from what purports to be a comprehensive offer of proof, that he cannot present a cause of action that is not barred by a statute of limitation [Neff v. New York Life Ins. Co. (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 165, 175, 180 P.2d 900] .

[4] Separate Trial of Statute of Limtation Issue in Medical Malpractice Actions

In an action against any physician or surgeon or other health care professional listed in Code Civ. Proc. § 597.5, or against a licensed hospital as the employer of any of those persons, based on the person's alleged professional negligence, or for rendering professional services without consent, or for error or omission in the person's practice, if the answer pleads that the action is barred by the statute of limitation, and if any party so moves or the court on its own motion requires, then the issues raised by that plea must be tried separately and before any other issues in the case are tried. If the issue raised by the plea of the statute of limitation is finally determined in favor of the plaintiff, then the remaining issues must be tried [Code Civ. Proc. § 597.5; Kelemen v. Superior Court (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 861, 864, 186 Cal. Rptr. 566 (separate trial must be ordered pursuant to Section 597.5 when a proper motion is made)].

The health care professionals to whom Section 597.5 applies in addition to physicians and surgeons are dentists, registered nurses, dispensing opticians, optometrists, registered physical therapists, podiatrists, licensed psychologists, osteopathic physicians and surgeons, chiropractors, clinical laboratory bioanalysts, clinical laboratory technologists, and veterinarians [Code Civ. Proc. § 597.5].

[5] Special Defense in Answer to Cross Complaint

The provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 597 also apply to the trial of a special defense pleaded in answer to a cross complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 597].

[2] Use of Form

The form of order in [1], above, may be used when the court grants a motion for separate trial of the special defense that an action is barred by a statute of limitation [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 597, 597.5]. For a form of motion, see § 345.120.

[3] Effect of Decision or Verdict in Plaintiff's Favor

If the decision of the court, or the verdict of the jury, on the separate trial of a special defense is in favor of the plaintiff, then trial of the other issues must thereafter be had, either on the court's own motion or on the motion of any party; and judgment must thereafter be entered in the same manner and with the same effect as if all of the issues in the case had been tried at one time [Code Civ. Proc. § 597].

[4] Effect of Decision of Verdict in Defendant's Favor

If the decision of the court, or the verdict of the jury, on the separate trial of a special defense is in favor of the defendant pleading it, then judgment for that defendant must thereupon be entered; and no trial of other issues in the case may be had against that defendant unless the judgment is reversed on appeal or is set aside or otherwise vacated [Code Civ. Proc. § 597].

[5] Review of Decision or Verdict in Plaintiff's Favor

In the event of a decision or verdict in favor of the plaintiff on the separate trial of a special defense, any and all decisions and verdicts on the special defense and all ruling on the trial of it are deemed excepted to, and they may be reviewed on a motion for a new trial or on appeal from the final judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 597].

§ 345.150 Explanation of Table

This table lists periods of limitation for various types of actions and proceedings and other similar time periods, such as claim periods; it does not include general provisions relating to the triggering or tolling of the various limitation periods. It is intended for use as a quick reference guide.

The listings are under alphabetical headings that describe the most salient or commonly recognized characteristic of the particular type of action or proceeding. Thus, some headings describe the defendant (see, e.g. § 345.212, Financial Institutions, § 345.227, Health Care Providers, and § 345.282, Public Entities, Officers, and Employees), whereas others describe an event, cause, injury, instrument, or other subject matter that is commonly associated with the particular type of action or proceeding (see, e.g. § 345.165, Asbestos Exposure, § 345.184, Contracts, § 345.270, Personal Injury, and § 345.321, Unfair Competition).

This table also includes cross references, when applicable, to other chapters in this publication that include related forms, further discussion, or both.

CAUTION:

This table is not intended to comprise an exhaustive list of all limitation periods governed by California law. If a particular topic being researched is not found in this table, review other chapters in California Forms of Pleading and Practice and California primary law sources.

- Civil action to recover wages under Lab. Code § 1197.5(a) (prohibiting sex discrimination in wage rates)--Two years after cause of action occurs; three years after cause of action occurs if statutory violation wilful. Lab. Code § 1197.5(h)

- Proceeding by employee against former employer for wrongful termination--Variable depending on underlying cause of action

- Tort of wrongful termination in violation of public policy--One year from actual discharge. Romano v. Rockwell Internat., Inc. (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 479, 503, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20, 926 P.2d 1114 ; Barton v. New Unified Motor Manufacturing, Inc. (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 1200, 1203, 1205-1209, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 328 (other cases applying one-year period cited); but see Daniels v. Fesco Division of Cities Service Co. (9th Cir. 1984) 733 F.2d 622, 623 (two-year period applicable)

- Breach of contract, whether or not constructive discharge is alleged, two years from date of actual termination of employment. Mullins v. Rockwell Internat. Corp. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 731, 734, 743, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 636, 939 P.2d 1246 (applying two-year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 339 as to causes of action involving breach of covenant of good faith and fair dealing and breach of oral contract, but applicable statute was not subject to dispute)

- There are three statutes of limitations that might apply to a claim by a former employee seeking payment for unused vested vacation because the claim could be characterized as one based on (1) an oral employment contract, (2) a written employment contract, or (3) a liability created by statute. A two-year limitations period applies to oral contract claims, as provided by Code Civ. Proc., § 339(1). A four-year limitations period applies to claims based on written contracts, as set forth in Code Civ. Proc., § 337(1). A three-year limitations period applies to an action upon a liability created by statute, as stated in Code Civ. Proc., § 338(a). When a former employee's complaint is filed within all of the potentially applicable limitation periods, a court need not decide which period applies. Church v. Jamison (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1568, 1577, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 166

See other specific subject matter sections, e.g., § 345.184, on contracts, for other potentially relevant limitation periods

§ 345.205 Environmental Law

- Action commenced under Health & Safety Code § 39000 et seq. (air resources)--Three years from discovery of facts. Code Civ. Proc. § 338(k)

- Action or proceeding to challenge agency-approved activity on ground that plan or other written documentation submitted in lieu of environmental impact report does not comply with statutory requirements--Thirty days from filing notice of approval or adoption of activity. Pub. Res. Code § 21080.5(g)

- Action or proceeding against public agency that is carrying out or has approved project that may have significant effect on environment without having determined whether or not project may have significant effect on environment--One hundred and eighty days either after public agency's decision to carry out or approve project or after commencement of project when it was undertaken without formal decision of public agency. Pub. Res. Code § 21167(a)

- Action or proceeding against public agency alleging that public agency has improperly determined whether or not project may have significant effect on environment, or alleging that environmental impact report does not comply with California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) (Pub. Res. Code § 21000 et seq.), or alleging that any other act or omission of public agency does not comply with CEQA provisions--Thirty days after filing of notice of approval or determination to carry out project or, in case of person who requested copy of notice, from deposit of copy of notice in mail. Pub. Res. Code § 21167(b), (c), (e), (f). When an agency files a notice of determination for the approval of a subsequent activity, and, in accordance with Pub. Res. Code § 21166, and 14 Cal. Code Regs. § 15168, no negative declaration or environmental impact report (EIR) has been prepared for the activity, Pub. Res. Code § 21167(e) appears to furnish the appropriate statute of limitations for challenges to the agency's action. The issue in such cases is limited to the legality of the agency's decision about whether to require a subsequent or supplemental EIR, or subsequent negative declaration. Committee for Green Foothills v. Santa Clara County Bd. of Supervisors (2010) 48 Cal. 4th 32, 56-57, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 181

- Action or proceeding alleging that public agency has improperly determined that project is not subject to CEQA--Thirty-five days after filing of notice of approval or determination to carry out project, 180 days after public agency's decision to carry out or approve project when notice of approval has not been filed, or 180 days after commencement of project if project is undertaken without formal decision by public agency. Pub. Res. Code § 21167(d), (f). Consistent with the principle that statutes of limitations apply equally to well- and ill-founded suits, all California Environmental Quality Act, Pub. Res. Code, § 21000 et seq., challenges to an agency's exemption determination--even those with merit--must be brought within 35 days after the agency files a compliant notice of exemption. Stockton Citizens for Sensible Planning v. City of Stockton (2010) 48 Cal. 4th 481, 504, 106 Cal. Rptr. 3d 858

This chapter discusses procedures that apply to limited civil cases.

The chapter discusses pleading, pretrial, and trial procedures established to reduce the expense of litigation in limited civil cases [see § 345A.10 et seq.], and includes Judicial Council forms for use in discovery in limited civil cases [see § 345A.100 et seq.].

The chapter also discusses the appeal of a judgment or an order in a limited civil case [see § 345A.30 et seq.], and includes related forms [see § 345A.110 et seq.]. The chapter also provides Procedural Checklists for an appellant [see § 345A.90] and respondent [see § 345A.91] and for the removal of an appeal to the court of appeal [see § 345A.92].

For discussion of what constitutes a limited civil case, see Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter , which also discusses and provides forms relating to reclassification of an action as a limited civil case or otherwise under Code Civ. Proc. § 403.010 et seq.

§ 345A.03 Superior and Municipal Court Unification

Until 1998, all counties were required to have both superior courts and municipal courts, which were sometimes called "inferior courts" [see Cal. Const. art. VI, § 5(a)-(d)]. Former justice courts had been eliminated bythe passage of Proposition 191 in 1994, and on January 1, 1995, all existing justice courts became municipal courts [Cal. Const. art. VI, § 5(b)].

In 1998, Proposition 220 amended the California Constitution to permit the unification of municipal and superior courts in any county by vote of the superior court judges and municipal court judges [Cal. Const. art. VI, §§ 5(e), 23]. In a county with unified courts, there was only a superior court, which had subject matter jurisdiction over all proceedings, including civil proceedings that would otherwise have been within the exclusive jurisdiction of a municipal court [see Cal. Const. art. VI, § 5(e)].

To accommodate court unification, the Legislature extensively amended the Code of Civil Procedure. Previously municipal courts had original jurisdiction over certain civil cases, primarily those in which the demand was less than $25,000. After unification was authorized, such cases were termed "limited civil cases" and were in the jurisdiction of the municipal court, or in counties with no municipal court, in the jurisdiction of the superior court [see former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85.1, 86].

On February 8, 2001, the superior and municipal courts of Kings County unified. With this unification, all counties had unified their courts, and municipal courts no longer existed in California. In November 2002, the passage of Proposition 48 amended the California Constitution to remove references to municipal courts. Accordingly, superior courts are now the only California state trial courts, exercising general jurisdiction over all cases, including small claims and juvenile proceedings [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.210; Welf. & Inst. Code § 245]. Thus, limited civil cases are in the jurisdiction of the superior courts [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; see Code Civ. Proc. § 86].

§ 345A.10 Scope of Subpart

This subpart discusses pleading, pretrial, and trial procedures established to reduce the expense of litigation in limited civil cases [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 90-100].

Forms concerning discovery in economic litigation in limited civil cases are included in They are:

- The Judicial Council case questionnaire [see § 345A.100].
- The Judicial Council request for witnesses and evidence [see § 345A.101].
- A motion to withdraw a limited civil case from the economic litigation provisions [see § 345A.102].
- A motion for additional discovery [see § 345A.103].

For a discussion of the provisions governing discovery in limited civil cases, see Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing .

§ 345A.12 Application of Procedures to Limited Civil Cases

[1] In General

Except as otherwise provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 91, the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 90-100 apply to every limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 91(a); for the exceptions, see [2] and [4], below]. For discussion of what constitutes a limited civil case, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances .

[2] Not Applicable to Small Claims Actions and Unlawful Detainer Proceedings

Code Civ. Proc. §§ 90-100 do not apply to actions in small claims court under Code Civ. Proc. § 116.110 et seq. or to proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. § 1159 et seq. for unlawful detainer or forcible entry or detainer [Code Civ. Proc. § 91(b)].

[3] Effect on General Procedures for Civil Actions

Except when changed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 90-100, all provisions of law applicable to civil actions generally apply to limited civil cases subject to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 90-100 [Code Civ. Proc. § 90].

For discussion and forms relating to any pleading, pretrial, and trial procedures that are not affected by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 90-100, see the particular chapter of this publication in which the procedures are discussed.

[4] Motion to Withdraw Action From Economic Litigation Provisions

Any limited civil case may be withdrawn from the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 90-100 on a noticed motion and a showing that it is impractical to prosecute or defend the action within the limitations of those provisions [Code Civ. Proc. § 91(c)]. For a form of motion, see § 345A.102.

PRACTICE TIP:

Use of Withdrawal Procedure. Although withdrawal remains an option in an appropriate case, it is infrequently sought. Also, economy-driven interest in "flat fee" arrangements between defense counsel and insurance carriers is increasing the marketability of defense skill in utilizing economic litigation procedures. Economic litigation also furnishes cost advantages to plaintiff attorneys employed under a contingency fee arrangement. On the other hand, counsel must consider differences such as limited discovery and scope of collateral estoppel under economic litigation in deciding whether to move to withdraw. By Hon. Phillip J. Argento.

§ 345A.13 Pleadings

[1] Allowed Pleadings

The pleadings allowed in limited civil cases subject to the provisions for economic litigation are complaints, answers, cross complaints, answers to cross complaints, and general demurrers [Code Civ. Proc. § 92(a)].

[2] No Special Demurrers

Code Civ. Proc. § 92(c) prohibits the use of special demurrers with respect to limited civil cases subject to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 90-100.

This limitation leaves only two grounds for demurrer in such actions:

- That the pleading does not state facts sufficient to state a cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)]; and

- That the answer does not state facts sufficient to constitute a defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20(a)].

All other grounds for demurrer are regarded as special demurrers [see Buss v. J.O. Martin Co., Inc. (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 123, 133, 50 Cal. Rptr. 206] .

For discussion of demurrers generally, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

[3] Verification of Pleadings

The answer need not be verified, even if the complaint or cross complaint is verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 92(b)].

Regardless of whether or not the complaint or cross complaint is verified, a general denial is sufficient, but only puts in issue the material allegations of the complaint. However, if the cause of action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection and the complaint is verified, the denial of the allegations must be made positively or according to the information and belief of the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)].

For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[4] Caption of Complaint to State Amount Demanded and Identify Case as Limited Civil Case

On a complaint or petition, below the character of the action, the amount demanded in the complaint or petition must be stated as: "Amount demanded exceeds $10,000" or "Amount demanded does not exceed $10,000" [Gov. Code § 70613(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9)]. There is a lower filing fee for cases demanding less than $10,000 [see Gov. Code § 70613(a),(b)].

The caption of the complaint or petition must also contain the words "Limited Civil Case" [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)]. Designating the case as a limited civil case effectively limits the amount demanded to $25,000, exclusive of attorney's fees, interest, and costs [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85(a), 580(b)(1); Wozniak v. Lucutz (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 1031, 1044-1046, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 310 (defendant has right to rely on Code Civ. Proc. § 580(b)(1), which provides that relief in limited civil case may not exceed maximum amount in controversy for limited civil case)].

As the first paper filed in a civil action, the complaint or petition must be accompanied by a civil case cover sheet [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.220(a)]. The cover sheet must be on Cal. Judicial Council Form CM-010, which requires that the case be identified as either a limited civil case or an unlimited civil case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.220(a), (b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.31; Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen. A]. For further discussion of the civil case cover sheet, along with an illustrative reproduction of the form, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints .

[5] Captions of All Subsequent Pleadings and Papers to Identify Case as Limited Civil Case

The caption of every pleading and paper filed subsequent to the complaint in a limited civil case must contain the words "Limited Civil Case" [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)].

§ 345A.14 Availability of Motions

[1] In General

Except as restricted by Code Civ. Proc. § 92, all motions available in civil actions generally are permitted in limited civil cases subject to the provisions for economic litigation [Code Civ. Proc. § 92(e)].

[2] Motions to Strike

Motions to strike are not available in limited civil cases except on the ground that the damages or relief sought are not supported by the allegations of the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 92(d); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 431.10, 435, 436 (motions to strike generally)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Combining Motion With General Demurrer. Defense counsel should consider utilizing a motion to strike in conjunction with a general demurrer if the relief sought includes punitive damages, attorney fees, or prejudgment interest on allegations that are insufficient to justify awarding such relief. A number of judges handling economic litigation take the view that law and motion matters should be infrequent, and when pursued, moving papers should be only a few pages. By Hon. Phillip J. Argento.

§ 345A.15 Case Questionnaires

[1] Service by Plaintiff

A plaintiff in a limited civil case subject to the economic litigation provisions has the option to serve case questionnaires with the complaint, using the Judicial Council-approved form [Code Civ. Proc. § 93(a); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.31; Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen. A; for an illustration of the form, see § 345A.100]. The questionnaires served must include a copy of the plaintiff's complete case questionnaire, and a blank copy of the defendant's case questionnaire [Code Civ. Proc. § 93(a)].

As stated in the instructions to the Judicial Council form, a case questionnaire should not be filed with the court. A case questionnaire is not authorized for small claims or unlawful detainers or other actions to obtainpossession of real property pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1159 et seq. [see Code Civ. Proc. § 91(b)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Advantages of Case Questionnaire. The case questionnaire has been underutilized by counsel. Plaintiff's use of a case questionnaire leads to early preparation of the case, and conveys such preparedness to defense counsel. Moreover, given that defense counsel will likely receive the served summons and complaint several days after service on the defendant, the requirement that defendant furnish information with the answer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 93(b)] can place additional time pressure on defense counsel. Yet such "up-front" preparation by defense counsel can facilitate early and economic resolution of the case. Moreover, many judges request the questionnaires at formal settlement conferences and informal settlement opportunities, such as following the hearing of a law and motion matter. By Hon. Phillip J. Argento.

[2] Defendant's Response

Any defendant on whom a case questionnaire is served must serve a completed defendant's case questionnaire on the requesting plaintiff with the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 93(b)].

[3] Content of Questionnaires

The case questionnaire is designed to elicit fundamental information about each party's case, including names and addresses of all witnesses with knowledge of any relevant facts, a list of all documents relevant to the case, a statement of the nature and amount of damages, and information covering insurance coverages, injuries, and treating physicians [Code Civ. Proc. § 93(c)]. Pursuant to statutory direction, the Judicial Council has adopted a form of case questionnaire [see Code Civ. Proc. § 93(c); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.31; Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen. A; for an illustration of the form, see § 345A.100]. The court clerk must provide the approved forms [Code Civ. Proc. § 93(d)].

[4] Motion to Compel Compliance

A party may move to compel compliance with the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 93(a) or (b) for the use of case questionnaires in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 2023 (Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.030 effective July 1, 2005) [Code Civ. Proc. § 93(e)]. For an example of forms of motion pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2023(b) (Code Civ. Proc. § 2023.030 effective July 1, 2005) and 2031(l) (Code Civ. Proc. § 2031.300 effective July 1, 2005) to compel compliance with a demand for production and inspection of documents, see Ch. 195, Discovery: Inspection of Tangible Evidence .

§ 345A.16 Discovery

Discovery is permitted in limited civil cases subject to the economic litigation provisions only to the extent provided by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 94 and 95 [Code Civ. Proc. § 94].

Code Civ. Proc. § 94 governs the availability of interrogatories, requests to identify or produce, requests for admissions, depositions, subpoenas duces tecum, identification of expert witnesses, and physical and mental examinations. For form interrogatories for limited civil cases, see § 345A.104. For further discussion of interrogatories, see Ch. 194, Discovery: Interrogatories .

Code Civ. Proc. § 95 authorizes additional discovery on noticed motion or by stipulation of the parties. For a form of motion for additional discovery, see § 345A.102. For further discussion of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 94 and 95, see Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing .

§ 345A.17 Requests for Evidentiary Statements

[1] In General

Any party may serve on any other party a request in substantially the following form [Code Civ. Proc. § 96(a)]:

TO: _____, attorney for _____:

You are requested to serve on the undersigned, within 20 days, a statement of: the names and addresses of witnesses (OTHER THAN A PARTY WHO IS AN INDIVIDUAL) you intend to call at trial; a description of physical evidence you intend to offer; and a description and copies of documentary evidence you intend to offer or, if the documents are not available to you, a description of them. Witnesses and evidence that will be used only for impeachment need not be included. YOU WILL NOT BE PERMITTED TO CALL ANY WITNESS, OR INTRODUCE ANY EVIDENCE, NOT INCLUDED IN THE STATEMENT SERVED IN RESPONSE TO THIS REQUEST, EXCEPT AS OTHERWISE PROVIDED BY LAW.

The clerk must furnish forms for such requests [Code Civ. Proc. § 96(f)]. The Judicial Council has adopted a form of request for statement of witnesses and evidence [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.31; Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen. A; see also § 345A.101].

[2] Service of Requests and Statements

A request for an evidentiary statement must be served no more than 45 days nor less than 30 days prior to the date first set for trial, unless otherwise ordered [Code Civ. Proc. § 96(b)]. A statement responding to the request must be served within 20 days from the service of the request [Code Civ. Proc. § 96(c)]. The time for serving and responding to requests is computed as provided by law, including extensions of time for service by mail pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 [Code Civ. Proc. § 96(g)].

No additional, amended, or late statement is permitted except by written stipulation or unless ordered for good cause on noticed motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 96(d)].

[3] No Filing Unless Ordered

Requests or statements served under Code Civ. Proc. § 96 are not filed, unless otherwise ordered by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 96(e)].

[4] Consequences for Failure to Comply With Request

[a] General Rules

Except as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 97(b) [see discussion under § 345A.17[4][b]], on objection of a party who served a request in compliance with Code Civ. Proc. § 96, no party required to serve a statement may call a witness or introduce evidence, except for purposes of impeachment, against the objecting party unless the witness or evidence was included in the statement served [Code Civ. Proc. § 97(a)]. However, nothing in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 90-100 limits the introduction of evidence in any default hearing pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 585 [Code Civ. Proc. § 97(c)].

Although no reported cases expressly interpret Code Civ. Proc. §§ 96 and 97, two cases have considered requests for witnesses and evidence under substantially similar predecessor statutes that governed the former pilot project on which the provisions of the economic litigation statutes arebased. In Border v. Kuznetz (1980) 162 Cal. Rptr. 881 , the appellate court held that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying plaintiff's various motions to relieve him from default in filing a timely witness and evidence statement under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1825.1 in plaintiff's action for personal injury arising from an automobile accident. In Lumpkin v. Friedman (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 450, 455-456, 182 Cal. Rptr. 378 , the court stated that a dismissal because of a failure to comply with the request for witnesses and evidence under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1825.1 constituted a dismissal on the merits, a requisite element of a subsequent suit for malicious prosecution.

[b] Exceptions

The exceptions to the prohibition against calling a witness or introducing evidence after failing to include the witness or evidence in an evidentiary statement pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 96(a) are as follows [Code Civ. Proc. § 97(b)(1)-(4)]:

- A person who, in his or her individual capacity, is a party to the litigation and who calls himself or herself as a witness.
- An adverse party.
- Witnesses and evidence used solely for purposes of impeachment.
- Documents obtained by discovery authorized by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 81-100.

Furthermore, the court may, on such terms as may be just, permit a party to call a witness or introduce evidence that is required to be, but is not included in, the party's statement if the court finds that the party has made a good faith effort to comply with Code Civ. Proc. § 96(c) (time within which statement must be served), or that the failure to comply was the result of his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 473 [Code Civ. Proc. § 97(b)(5)]. The conditions that the court may impose in permitting such a witness to be called or such evidence to be introduced include, but are not limited to, continuing the trial for a reasonable period of time and awarding costs and litigation expense [Code Civ. Proc. § 97(b)(5)]. For full discussion of relief from orders under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, see Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders .

PRACTICE TIP:

Opposition to Request for Relief. If reasonable grounds to do so exist, a complying party should oppose a noncomplying party's request for relief from a failure to comply with a responding evidentiary statement. This promotes enforcement of economic litigation rules, and may result in imposition of reasonable costs and litigation expenses arising from noncompliance on the noncomplying party or attorney, or both. By Hon. Phillip J. Argento.

§ 345A.18 Prepared Testimony of Witnesses

A party may, in lieu of presenting direct testimony, offer the prepared testimony of relevant witnesses in the form of affidavits or declarations under penalty of perjury. The prepared testimony may include, but need not be limited to, the opinions of expert witnesses, and testimony that authenticates documentary evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 98]. To the extent the contents of the prepared testimony would have been admissible were the witness to testify orally, the prepared testimony must be received as evidence in the case, provided that either of the following applies:

- A copy has been served on the party against whom it is offered at least 30 days prior to the trial, together with a current address of the affiant that is within 150 miles of the place of trial, and the affiant is available for service of process at that place for a reasonable period of time, during the 20 days immediately prior to trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 98(a)]; or

- The statement is in the form of all or part of a deposition in the case, and the party against whom it is offered had an opportunity to participate in the deposition [Code Civ. Proc. § 98(b)].

The court must determine whether or not the affidavit or declaration must be read into the record in lieu of oral testimony or admitted as a documentary exhibit [Code Civ. Proc. § 98].

PRACTICE TIP:

Whether to Use Prepared Testimony. Counsel should consider at least the following factors in deciding whether to utilize prepared testimony: (1) The importance of the witness's testimony to the substantive issues; (2) the importance of the witness's demeanor, credibility, and expertise, if any, to the persuasiveness of the presentation before the jury or judge; and (3) the cost of producing the in-court testimony. For example, a minor fact witness with average demeanor and credibility could well be handled through prepared testimony, whereas a credible expert on a close liability issue could lose persuasive impact if presented through prepared testimony. Some judges have ruled that when one party complies with this procedure, and the other party nevertheless timely subpoenas that witness for trial, the cost of producing that trial testimony should fall on the subpoenaing party even if the subpoenaing party prevails in the action. By Hon. Phillip J. Argento.

§ 345A.19 Effect of Judgment or Final Order

A judgment or final order in a limited civil case subject to the economic litigation provisions is conclusive between the parties and their successors in interest in respect to the matter directly adjudged. However, the judgment or final order does not operate as collateral estoppel of a party or a successor in interest to a party in other litigation with a person who wasnot a party or a successor in interest to a party to the action in which the judgment or order is rendered [Code Civ. Proc. § 99]. Thus, the scope of collateral estoppel arising from judgments in limited civil cases subject to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 90-100 is narrower than its application to cases of unlimited jurisdiction in the superior court or to limited civil cases that were withdrawn from the economic litigation provisions under Code Civ. Proc. § 91(c). For further discussion of collateral estoppel, see Ch. 491, Res Judicata .

§ 345A.31 Governing Law and Rules of Court Conversion Tables

Superior courts have appellate jurisdiction in causes prescribed by statute that arise in limited civil cases in their counties [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 11; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 77(e), 904.2].

Appeals generally are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 901 et seq. The judgments and orders in a limited civil case from which an appeal may be taken are set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 904.2. Gov. Code § 68081 establishes a special procedure for briefing issues under consideration by the court but not discussed in party briefs.

Effective January 1, 2009, appellate division rules are set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.800-8.816. Rules governing procedure for appellants and respondents are set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.820- 8.842. Below is a chart for converting the rules in effect prior to January 1, 2009, to the new rule numbers. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.802(a), provides that these rules are to be "construed to ensure that the proceedings they govern will be justly and speedily determined."

The transfer on appeal of a limited civil case to a court of appeal is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 911, a statute intended to secure uniformity of decision and settle important questions of law. Rules relating to such transfers are set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.1000-8.1018.

PRACTICE TIP:

Deadlines in Appeals of Limited Civil Cases. Numerous deadlines apply to appellate practice in the superior court; generally, those deadlines involve shorter periods of time than comparable procedures in the higher appellate courts. By Hon. Phillip J. Argento.

§ 345A.32 Appellate Division of Superior Court

[1] Description

There is an appellate division of the superior court in every county and city and county [Code Civ. Proc. § 77(a)]. Most appellate divisions consist of three judges, but when the Chairman of the Judicial Council finds it necessary, the appellate division may consist of four judges [Code Civ. Proc. § 77(a)].

[2] Number of Judges Rendering Decision

The concurrence of two judges of the appellate division of the superior court is necessary to render a decision in every case in the appellate division [Code Civ. Proc. § 77(d)].

[3] Jurisdiction

[a] Appeals From Judgments and Orders in Limited Civil Cases

Superior courts have appellate jurisdiction in causes prescribed by statute that arise in limited civil cases in their counties [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 11; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 77(e), 904.2]. The appellate division of the superior court has jurisdiction on appeal from the superior court in a limited civil case except when the appeal is a retrial in the superior court [Code Civ. Proc. § 77(e)]. For discussion of an example of an appeal requiring retrial in the superior court, see Ch. 526, Small Claims .

The creation of appellate divisions in superior courts in place of the former appellate departments is intended to provide greater autonomy so that the division can exercise a true review function in a unified superior court [see Trial Court Unification: Revision of Codes, 28 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Reports 51, 74 (1998)]. Even before this, it had been held that the appellate department was a distinct and separate department of the superior court with jurisdiction and powers defined by statute pursuant to express constitutional sanction, and that it was limited to the consideration of appeals not requiring a retrial, hence not embracing jurisdiction to review judgments through the medium of an original proceeding [Thomasian v. Superior Court (1953) 122 Cal. App. 2d 322, 331, 265 P.2d 165 ; see also discussion under § 345A.33].

[b] No Limit on Dollar Amount

No statute limits the jurisdiction of the appellate division of the superior court to any fixed amount in hearing appeals from limited civil cases. The appellate division, therefore, can review an order denying a motion to vacate forfeiture of bail, even though the amount of bail exceeds the ordinary jurisdictional amount in civil actions, because the order is appealable [see Newman v. Superior Court (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 620, 622-623, 63 Cal. Rptr. 284, 432 P.2d 972 (making statement in context of appeals from municipal court)].

§ 345A.33 Proceedings for Extraordinary Relief

The Supreme Court, courts of appeal, superior courts, and their judges have original jurisdiction in proceedings for extraordinary relief in the nature of mandamus, certiorari, and prohibition [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10].

For discussion and procedure for obtaining such relief, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition , and Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari), Writ of. If an appeal is proper, it is improper for the appellate division to hear the matter as a petition for extraordinary relief before a single judge. On an appeal to the appellate department, the decision would be concurred in by two of its judges and would be final [see Conway v. Municipal Court (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1019-1020, 166 Cal. Rptr. 246] .

Even though appeal of a small claims court judgment is in a trial de novo to the superior court, rather than to the appellate division of the superior court, review of a postjudgment enforcement order of the small claims court is by extraordinary writ in the appellate division [General Electric Capital Auto Financial Services, Inc. v. Appellate Division (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 136, 144-145, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 552] .

§ 345A.34 Scope of Review

[1] Judgments, Orders, and Rulings Appealable

The right of appeal is wholly statutory. No judgment or order can be appealed unless the right of appeal is expressly authorized by statute [In re Taya C. (1991) 2 Cal. App. 4th 1, 6, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 810 ; see Milliken v. Gray (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 595, 596, 81 Cal. Rptr. 525] . Code Civ. Proc. § 904.2 specifically lists the only orders and judgments in limited civil cases that are appealable [see Kelly v. Kelly (1954) 270 P.2d 947 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 983, now Code Civ. Proc. § 904.2)].

In limited civil cases, an appeal of a ruling by a superior court judge or other judicial officer may be taken from the following judgments or orders [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.2]:

- From a judgment, except (1) an interlocutory judgment, or (2) a judgment of contempt that is made final and conclusive by Code Civ. Proc. § 1222.
- From an order made after a judgment made appealable by the preceding paragraph.
- From an order changing or refusing to change the place of trial.
- From an order granting a motion to quash service of summons or granting a motion to stay or dismiss the action on the ground of inconvenient forum.
- From an order granting a new trial or denying a motion for judgment notwithstanding the verdict.
- From an order discharging or refusing to discharge an attachment or granting a right to attach order.

- From an order granting or dissolving an injunction, or refusing to grant or dissolve an injunction.
- From an order appointing a receiver.

On an appeal under Code Civ. Proc. § 904.2, the appellate division may review the verdict or decision and any intermediate ruling, proceeding, order, or decision that involves the merits, necessarily affects the judgment or order appealed, or that substantially affects the rights of a party, including, on any appeal from the judgment, any order on motion for a new trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 906]. However, Code Civ. Proc. § 906 does not authorize the reviewing court to review any decision or order from whichan appeal might have been taken [Code Civ. Proc. § 906]. For further discussion of the types of appealable orders generally, see Ch 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal .

[2] Reviewable Issues

Superior courts usually review only for errors of law that, if uncorrected, would result in a miscarriage of justice; such error must result in injuryto the party in order to justify reversal [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 13; see also § 345A.36]. The appellate division of the superior court, in rendering a decision in a proceeding other than a summary denial of a petition for extraordinary writ, may raise an issue that is neither proposed nor briefed by any party to the proceeding. However, before the appellate court renders its decision based on that issue, the court is required to afford the parties an opportunity to present their views on the matter through supplemental briefing [Gov. Code § 68081]. If the court fails to afford the opportunity, a rehearing must be ordered on timely petition of any party [Gov. Code § 68081].

§ 345A.36 Prejudicial Error Doctrine

It is constitutionally mandated that no judgment shall be set aside, or new trial granted, in any cause, on the ground of misdirection of the jury, or the improper admission of evidence, or for any error as to any matter on pleading, or for any error as to any matter of procedure, unless, after an examination of the entire cause, including the evidence, the court is of the opinion that the error complained of has resulted in a miscarriage of justice [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 13]. A miscarriage may be found when after an examination of the entire case, including the evidence, the court is of the opinion that it is reasonably probable that a result more favorable to the appealing party would have been reached in the absence of the error [People v. Watson (1956) 46 Cal.2d 818, 836, 299 P.2d 243] .

Cal. Const., art. VI, § 13, is clarified and strengthened Code Civ. Proc. § 475, which provides that the court must, in every stage of an action, disregard any error, improper ruling, instruction, or defect in the pleadings or proceedings that, in the opinion of the court, does not affect the substantial rights of the parties. No judgment, decision, or decree may be reversed or affected by reason of any error, ruling, instruction, or defect, unless it appears from the record [Code Civ. Proc. § 475]:

- That the error, ruling, instruction, or defect was prejudicial;
- That by reason of such error, ruling, instruction, or defect, the party complaining or appealing sustained and suffered substantial injury; and
- That a different result would have been probable if such error, ruling, instruction, or defect had not occurred or existed.

There is no presumption that error is prejudicial or that injury was done if error is shown [Code Civ. Proc. § 475].

The respondent, or the party in whose favor the judgment appealed from is given, may, without appealing from the judgment, request that the reviewing court determine whether or not the appellant was prejudiced by the errors or error on which he or she relies for reversal or modification of the judgment from which the appeal is taken [Code Civ. Proc. § 906].

For further discussion, see Ch. 41, Appeal: Review Standards and Appellate Rules of Law .

§ 345A.37 Who May Appeal

[1] Aggrieved Party

Any aggrieved party may appeal in the cases prescribed by the law governing appeals [Code Civ. Proc. § 902]. An aggrieved party is any party having an interest recognized by law in the subject matter of the judgment, whose interest is affected injuriously by the judgment [County of Alameda v. Carleson (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 730, 737, 97 Cal. Rptr. 385, 488 P.2d 953 ; Redevelopment Agency v. City of Berkeley (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 158, 166, 143 Cal. Rptr. 633] . Any person who is party to the record is an aggrieved party [Pacific States Sav. & L. Co. v. Mortimer (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 811, 814, 161 P.2d 684 (interpreting former Code Civ. Proc. § 938, which is substantially similar to Code Civ. Proc. § 902)].

A party appealing is known as an appellant, and an adverse party as a respondent [Code Civ. Proc. § 902].

[2] Death of Appellant

In the event of the death of any person who would, if still alive, have a right of appeal, either the attorney of record representing the decedent in the court in which the judgment was rendered, or the executor or administrator of the estate of the decedent, may file a notice of appeal from the judgment within the time the decedent could have filed such a notice if he or she had survived [Code Civ. Proc. § 903].

§ 345A.38 Notice of Appeal

[1] Requirement

An appeal from a judgment of a limited civil case, or from a particular part of the judgment, is taken by filing with the clerk of that court a notice of appeal from the judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.821(a)].

[2] Sufficiency of Notice

A notice of appeal is sufficient if it identifies the particular limited civil case judgment or order being appealed. A notice of appeal is to be liberally construed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.821(a)(2)].

Because a notice of appeal must be liberally construed in favor of its sufficiency, notices referring to an order have been interpreted to apply to a judgment in order to protect the right of appeal when it is reasonably clear that the appellant was attempting to appeal from the judgment and respondent could not possibly have been misled or prejudiced [Vibert v. Berger (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 65, 67-68, 48 Cal. Rptr. 886, 410 P.2d 390 ; Luz v. Lopes (1960) 55 Cal. 2d 54, 59-60, 10 Cal. Rptr. 161, 358 P.2d 289 ; Brown v. Municipal Court (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 357, 360 n.1, 150 Cal. Rptr. 216 (cases interpreting former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1(a) which is substantially similar to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.821(a)(2)].

[3] Persons Authorized to File

A notice of appeal must be signed by the appellant or by his or her attorney [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.821(a)(1)].

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.821(a)(1) constitutes a liberalization and a distinct departure from the general rule that a party represented by counsel may not file papers in propria persona in the litigation because Rule 8.821(a)(1) permits either the appellant or his or her attorney to sign the notice. "His or her attorney" has been construed to include an attorney not of record if he or she actually is an appealing party's attorney [see Estate of Hultin (1947) 29 Cal. 2d 825, 832, 178

P.2d 756 ; City of Downey v. Johnson (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 775, 781, 69 Cal. Rptr. 830 (interpreting former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1(a), which is substantially similar to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.821(a)(1)]. The rule is apparently satisfied when any person empowered to act for appellant signs the notice [see Seeley v. Seymour (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 844, 853-854, 237 Cal. Rptr 282] .

[4] What Constitutes Filing

Filing of a notice of appeal with a court clerk consists of (1) its delivery to the clerk, (2) for the purpose of filing it, (3) at the clerk's office, (4) during business hours, and (5) with payment of any required filing fee. If the filing is by mail, it is complete when the document is delivered to the clerk by the postal service, not when it is deposited in the mail; the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 (extension when service by mail) and Evid. Code § 641(presumption of receipt of mailed document) have no application to the filing of a notice of appeal [Thompson, Curtis, Lawson & Parrish v. Thorne (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 797, 801, 98 Cal. Rptr. 753] .

[5] Notification of Filing

When the notice of appeal is filed, the trial court clerk mails notification of the filing to the attorney of record of each party and to any unrepresented party. A copy of the notice of appeal is sufficient notification if the required information is on the copy or is added by the trial court clerk. The mailing is a sufficient performance of the clerk's duty despite the death of the party or the discharge, disqualification, suspension, disbarment, or death of the attorney. The failure of the clerk to give the notification does not affect the validity of the notice of appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.821(d)].

[6] Cross Appeal

If an appellant timely appeals from a judgment or appealable order, the time for any other party to appeal from the same judgment or order is extended until 10 days after the trial court clerk mails notification of the first appeal. If an appellant timely appeals from an order granting a motion for a new trial, an order granting--within 75 days after entry of judgment--a motion to vacate the judgment, or a judgment notwithstanding the verdict, the time for any other party to appeal from the original judgment or from an order denying a motion for judgment notwithstanding the verdict is extended until 10 days after the clerk mails notification of the first appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.823(f)].

For a discussion of motions for new trial and motions to vacate a judgment and to enter another and different judgment, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial, §§ 371.60 et seq., 371.90 et seq..

PRACTICE TIP:

Appeal of Order for New Trial. A party who loses at trial may move for a new trial. If that motion is granted, the party who won at trial may appeal the order for a new trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.2(e)]. In such case, the party who lost at trial should file a cross-appeal pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.823(f). It is unusual, but if the grant of a new trial is reversed, and a cross-appeal is pending, then the appellate court can consider it. But, if no cross-appeal has been filed, and the grant of new trial is reversed, the judgment in favor of the winning party is reinstated, and it is then too late for the losing party to file an appeal from that judgment. By Hon. Phillip J. Argento.

AUTHOR: Hon. Phillip J. Argento Editorial Consultant

§ 345A.39 Time for Filing Notice of Appeal

[1] After Entry of Judgment

A notice of appeal must be filed on or before the earliest of the following dates [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.822(a)(1) (file-stamped copy of judgment or appealable order may be used in place of "notice of entry")]:

- 30 days after the trial court clerk mails the party filing the notice of appeal a document entitled "Notice of Entry" of judgment or a file-stamped copy of the judgment, showing the date either was mailed.

- 30 days after the party filing the notice of appeal serves or is served by a party with a document entitled "Notice of Entry" of judgment or a file-stamped copy of the judgment, accompanied by proof of service.

- 90 days after the date of entry of the judgment.

These times are subject to exceptions provided in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.823, governing extensions of time and cross-appeals, or by statute [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.822(a); for discussion of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.823, see § 345A.39[5], [6]].

[2] Prior to Entry of Judgment

A notice of appeal filed after judgment is rendered but before it is entered is valid and is treated as filed immediately after entry of judgment. The appellate division may treat a notice of appeal filed after the trial court has announced its intended ruling, but before it has rendered judgment, as filed immediately after entry of judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.822(c)].

[3] Notice of Entry of Judgment

Except for specified family law proceedings, small claims actions, or actions or proceedings in which a prevailing party is not represented by counsel, the party submitting an order or judgment for entry must prepare and mail a copy of the notice of entry of judgment to all parties who have appeared in the action or proceeding. This party also must file with the court the original notice of entry of judgment and proof of service by mail [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.5(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 664.5(c) (defining "judgment")]. If a prevailing party is not represented by counsel in a contested action or special proceeding, the court clerk must mail notice of entry of judgment promptly on entry to all parties who have appeared in the action or special proceeding, and must execute a certificate of the mailing and place it in the court's file in the cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.5(b)].

[4] Date of Entry of Judgment

The entry date of a judgment is the date the judgment is filed under Code Civ. Proc. § 668.5 or the date it is entered in the judgment book. The date of entry of an appealable order that is entered in the minutes is the date it is entered in the permanent minutes. However, if the minute order directs that a written order be prepared, the entry date is the date the signed order is filed. A written order prepared under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1312, or similar local rule is not such an order prepared by direction of a minute order. The entry date of an order that is not entered in the minutes is the date the signed order is filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.822(b)].

[5] On Denial of Motion for New Trial

If any party serves and files a valid notice of intention to move for a new trial, the time to appeal from the judgment is extended for all parties. If the motion is denied, the time to appeal from the judgment is extended until the earliest of [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.823(b)]:

- 15 days after the trial court clerk mails, or a party serves, an order denying the motion or a notice of entry of that order.
- 15 days after denial of the motion by operation of law.
- 90 days after entry of judgment.

[6] On Denial of Motion to Vacate Judgment

If, within the time prescribed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.822 [see § 345A.39[1]], to appeal from the judgment, any party serves and files a valid notice of intention to move to vacate the judgment or a valid motion to vacate the judgment, the time to appeal from the judgment is extended for all parties until the earliest of [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.823(c)]:

- 15 days after the trial court clerk mails, or a party serves, an order denying the motion or a notice of entry of that order.
- 45 days after the first notice of intention to move or motion is filed.
- 90 days after entry of judgment.

Under certain circumstances, withdrawal of a motion to vacate before the motion has been heard is the equivalent to denial of the motion and extends the time to appeal until 30 days after the date of withdrawal [see O'Donnell v. Municipal Court (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 714, 716-717, 255 Cal. Rptr. 31 (defendant's motion withdrawn after trial judge warned defendant that motion would result in larger award for plaintiff)].

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.823(c), refers generally to any motion to vacate on any ground, and thus covers all types of motions to vacate, statutory or otherwise. For example, the rule applies to motions to vacate under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 as well as those motions made in compliance with Code Civ. Proc. §§ 663 and 663a (relating to filing notice of intention within 15 days, etc.) [Knudson v. Superior Court (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 876, 880, 73 Cal. Rptr. 513] . For a discussion of motions to vacate, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial, § 371.90 et seq.

[7] Jurisdictional Nature of Time Requirement

Time requirements for filing a notice of appeal are mandatory and jurisdictional. In the absence of statutory authorization, neither the trial nor appellate courts may extend or shorten the time for appeal, even to relieve against mistake, inadvertence, accident, or misfortune. Nor can jurisdiction be conferred on the appellate court by the consent or stipulation of the parties, estoppel, or waiver. In strictly adhering to the statutory time for filing a notice of appeal the courts are not arbitrarily penalizing procedural missteps. Relief may be given for excusable delay in complying with many provisions in the statutes and rules on appeal, such as those governing the time within which the record and briefs must be prepared and filed. These procedural time provisions, however, become effective after the appeal is taken. The first step, taking of the appeal, is not merely aprocedural one; it vests jurisdiction in the appellate court and terminates the jurisdiction of the lower court [Estate of Hanley (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 120, 123-24, 142 P.2d 423 ; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.822(d) (if notice of appeal filed late, appellate division must dismiss appeal); but see Drum v. Superior Court (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 845, 852-853, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 279 (on untimely notice of appeal, appellate court has discretion to treat appeal as petition for extraordinary writ within appellate court's jurisdiction)].

[8] No Estoppel Based on Excuse

The theory of offering proof of estoppel based on a compelling excuse in order to extend the time for filing has been rejected [Hollister Convalescent Hosp., Inc. v. Rico (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 660, 672, 674, 125 Cal. Rptr. 757, 542 P.2d 1349 (disapproving Slawinski v. Mocettini (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 70, 45 Cal. Rptr. 15, 403 P.2d 143)]. The notion of estoppel has no place in determining whether a timely notice of appeal has been filed within the jurisdictional period. The expiration of a jurisdictional period is not, and by its nature cannot be, affected by the actions of the parties [Hollister Convalescent Hosp., Inc. v. Rico (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 660, 674, 125 Cal. Rptr. 757, 542 P.2d 1349 ; see Sharp v. Union Pac. R.R. Co. (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 357, 361, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 925] . Furthermore, it is immaterial whether misrepresentations concerning the date on which the order was filed are willful or inadvertent, or whether the parties seeking to dismiss the appeal are acting in good faith or not. The requirement as to the time for taking an appeal is mandatory, and the court is without jurisdiction to consider one which has been taken subsequent to the expiration of the statutory period [Estate of Hanley (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 120, 122, 142 P.2d 423 ; see Sharp v. Union Pac. R.R. Co. (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 357, 361, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 925] .

[9] Effect of Conflicting Dates of Entry

When there is a clear conflict between the permanent minutes of the court and a formal order of denial it subsequently issues relative to the date of entry of an order denying a motion for new trial, that conflict is to be resolved for purposes of appeal in the appellant's favor. Thus, for purposes of appeal, the date of entry in such circumstances is deemed to be the later of the two conflicting dates [Hollister Convalescent Hosp., Inc. v. Rico (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 660, 668, 125 Cal. Rptr. 757, 542 P.2d 1349 (interpreting Slawinski v. Mocettini (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 70, 72-74, 45 Cal. Rptr. 15, 403 P.2d 143)].

[10] Effect of Misdescription of Order or Judgment

A notice of appeal that specifies a nonappealable order but is timely with respect to an existing appealable order or judgment will be construed to apply to the latter judgment or order [Hollister Convalescent Hosp., Inc. v. Rico (1975)

§ 345A.40 Filing Fee

The notice of appeal must be accompanied by the filing fee required under Gov. Code § 70621, an application for a waiver of court fees and costs on appeal under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.818, or an order granting an application for a waiver of court fees and costs. The filing fee is nonrefundable [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.821(b)(1)]. The clerk must file the notice of appeal even if the appellant does not present the filing fee or an application for, or order granting, a waiver of court fees and costs [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.821(b)(2)].

The fee for filing a notice of appeal in a limited civil case as of January 2010 is $330 [Gov. Code § 70621(a)]. However, if the amount demanded in the limited civil case, excluding attorney's fees and costs, is $10,000 or less, the fee is $205 [Gov. Code § 70621(b)]. The Judicial Council may make rules governing the time and method of payment and providing for excuse [Gov. Code § 70621(d)]. § 345A.41 Stay on Appeal

Except as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1 et seq. (judgments or orders requiring undertakings), the perfecting of an appeal automatically stays proceedings in the trial court on the judgment or order appealed from or on the matters embraced therein or affected thereby, including enforcement of the judgment or order, but the trial court may proceed on any other matter embraced in the action and not affected by the judgment or order [Code Civ. Proc. § 916(a)]. For a discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1 et seq., see Ch. 43, Appeal: Stay of Proceedings .

PRACTICE TIP:

Non-Application of Automatic Stay. Judgments or orders requiring undertakings under Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1 et seq., which do not receive automatic stays on perfecting an appeal, are among the most frequently appealed limited civil case determinations. For example, absent an appeal bond, judgments and orders for money [Code Civ. Proc § 917.1(a)(1)] or delivery of possession of real property [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.4] arising from unlawful detainer actions are not stayed. Counsel for appellant should consult Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1 et seq. for the extent of judgments that require undertakings before receiving automatic stays on appeal. By Hon. Phillip J. Argento.

When there is a stay of proceedings other than the enforcement of the judgment, the trial court will have jurisdiction of proceedings related to the enforcement of the judgment as well as any other matter embraced in the action and not affected by the judgment or order appealed from [Code Civ. Proc. § 916(b)].

§ 345A.42 Types of Record on Appeal

The record on appeal is the set of paper and exhibits reflecting proceedings in the trial court on which the appeal is decided. Any reversible error must be shown from this record. Generally, the record on appeal consists of a reporter's transcript and a clerk's transcript [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.832, 8.834]. Further, an appeal may be presented on a record consisting in whole or in part of an agreed statement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.836], or a transcript officially recorded pursuant to Gov. Code § 69957 may be used in lieu of a reporter's transcript [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.756].

§ 345A.42A Notice Designating Record on Appeal

Within 10 days after filing the notice of appeal, an appellant must serve and file a notice in the trial court designating the record on appeal. The appellant may combine its notice designating the record with its notice of appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.831(a)].

The notice must specify the date the notice of appeal was filed and which form of the record of the written documents from the trial court proceedings the appellant elects to use [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.831(b)]. These forms include [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.830(a)(1)]:

- A clerk's transcript under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.832.

- If the court has a local rule for the appellate division permitting this form of the record, the original trial court file under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.833.

- An agreed statement under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.836.

If an appellant wants to raise any issue that requires consideration of the oral proceedings in the trial court, the record on appeal must include a record of the oral proceedings in the form of one of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.830(a)(2)]:

- A reporter's transcript under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.834 or a transcript prepared from an official electronic recording under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.835. I

- If the court has a local rule for the appellate division permitting this form of the record, an official electronic recording of the proceedings under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.835.

- An agreed statement under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.836.
- A statement on appeal under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.837.

§ 345A.43 Reporter's Transcript

[1] Appellant's Notice

An appellant's notice designating a reporter's transcript under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.831 [see § 345A.42A] must specify the date of each proceeding to be included in the transcript and may specify portions of the designated proceedings that are not to be included. If the appellant designates less than all the testimony, the notice must state the points to be raised on the appeal; the appeal is then limited to those points unless, on motion, the appellate division permits otherwise [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.834(a)(1), (2)]. The clerk promptly mails a copy of each notice to the reporter. The copy must show the date it was mailed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.834(a)(4)].

[2] Respondent's Notice to Transcribe Additional Proceedings

If the appellant serves and files a notice designating a reporter's transcript, the respondent may, within 10 days after such service, serve and file a notice in the trial court designating any additional proceedings the respondent wants included in the reporter's transcript [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.834(a)(3)].

[3] [Reserved]

[4] Contents of Reporter's Transcript

The reporter must transcribe all designated proceedings and must note in the transcript where any proceedings were omitted and the nature of those proceedings. The reporter must also note where any exhibit was marked for identification and where it was admitted or refused, identifying such exhibits by number or letter. The reporter may not transcribe the voir dire examination of jurors, any opening statement, or the proceedings on a motion for new trial, unless they are designated. If a party designates a portion of a witness's testimony to be transcribed, the reporter must transcribe the witness's entire testimony unless the parties stipulate otherwise. The reporter may not copy any document includable in the clerk's transcript under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.832 [see § 345A.44] [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.834(c)].

[5] Estimate of Cost

Within 10 days after the clerk mails a notice under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.834(a)(4) [see § 345A.43[1]], the reporter must file the estimate with the clerk, or notify the clerk in writing of the date that he or she notified the appellant directly, of the estimated cost of preparing the reporter's transcript [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.834(b)(1)].

[6] Reporter's Charges

Within 10 days after the clerk notifies the appellant of the estimated cost of preparing the reporter's transcript or within 10 days after the reporter notifies the appellant directly, the appellant must deposit with the clerk an amount equal to the estimated cost or file with the clerk a waiver of the deposit signed by the reporter. The clerk must then promptly notify the reporter to prepare the transcript [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.834(b)(2)].

Within 20 days after the clerk notifies the reporter to prepare the transcript, or the reporter receives the fees from the appellant, the reporter must prepare and certify an original of the reporter's transcript and file it in the trial court. The reporter must also file one copy of the original transcript or more than one copy if multiple appellants equally share the cost of preparing the record [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.834(d)(1)].

When the transcript is completed, the reporter must bill each designating party at the statutory rate and send a copy of the bill to the clerk. The clerk must pay the reporter from that party's deposited funds and refund any excess deposit or notify the party of any additional funds needed. In a multiple reporter case, the clerk must pay each reporter who certifies under penalty of perjury that his or her transcript portion is completed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.834(d)(2)].

If the appeal is abandoned or is dismissed before the reporter has filed the transcript, the reporter must inform the clerk of the cost of the portion of the transcript that the reporter has completed. The clerk must pay that amount to the reporter from the appellant's deposited funds and refund any excess deposit [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.834(d)(3)].

§ 345A.44 Clerk's Transcript

[1] Appellant's Notice

A notice designating documents to be included in a clerk's transcript must identify each designated document by its title and filing date or, if the filing date is not available, the date it was signed. A notice designating additional documents may specify portions of designated documents that are not to be included in the clerk's transcript. For minute orders or jury instructions, it is sufficient to collectively designate all minute orders or all minute orders entered between specified dates, or all written instructions given, refused, or withdrawn [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.832(b)(2)].

All exhibits admitted in evidence, refused, or lodged are deemed part of the record, but a party wanting an exhibit included in the transcript must specify that exhibit by number or letter in its designation. If the trial court has returned a designated exhibit to a party, the party in possession of the exhibit must deliver it to the trial court clerk within 10 days after the notice designating the exhibit is served [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.832(b)(3)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Designating Papers for Transcript. Specificity and selectivity are important in designating papers for inclusion in the clerk's transcript; otherwise, the clerk may include unnecessary or unwanted documents that nevertheless fit the descriptions given or may overlook desired documents. This frequent occurrence results in confusion and delay. Many appellate counsel and appellate clerks recommend a personal inspection of the court file before designating papers for the clerk's transcript to ensure that documents benefitting their clients are clearly identified and included. In addition, the practice of designating such documents in a combined notice of appeal, reporter's transcript, and clerk's transcript facilitates such early examination of the file. By Hon. Phillip J. Argento.

[2] Respondent's Notice to Include Additional Items

Within 10 days after the appellant serves a notice under rule 8.831 indicating that the appellant elects to use a clerk's transcript, the respondent may serve and file a notice in the trial court designating any additional documents the respondent wants included in the clerk's transcript [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.832(b)(1)].

[3] [Reserved]

[4] Contents of Clerk's Transcript

The clerk's transcript must contain [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.832(a)]:

- The notice of appeal.
- Any judgment appealed from and any notice of its entry.
- Any order appealed from and any notice of its entry.
- Any notice of intention to move for a new trial, or motion to vacate the judgment, for judgment notwithstanding the verdict, or for reconsideration of an appealed order, with supporting and opposing memoranda and attachments, and any order on such motion and any notice of its entry.
- The notice designating the record on appeal.
- The register of actions, if any.

Each document must show the date necessary to determine the timeliness of the appeal under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.822 or 8.823 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.832(b)(2)]. If designated by any party, the clerk's transcript must also contain [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.832(b)(3)]:

- Any other document filed or lodged in the case in the trial court.
- Any exhibit admitted in evidence, refused, or lodged.
- Any jury instructions that any party submitted in writing, the cover page required by Cal. Rules of Ct. Rule 2.1055(b)(2), and any written jury instructions given by the court.

[5] Charges

Within 30 days after the respondent files a designation under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.832(b)(1), [see § 345A.44[2]] or the time to file it expires, whichever first occurs, the trial court clerk must send to the appellant, notice of the estimated cost to prepare an original and one copy of the clerk's transcript. The trial court clerk must also send to each party other than the appellant, notice of the estimated cost to prepare a copy of the clerk's transcript for that party's use [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.832(c)(1)].

Within 10 days after the clerk sends the notice, the appellant and any party wanting to purchase a copy of the clerk's transcript must deposit the estimated cost with the clerk, unless otherwise provided by law or the party submits an application for a waiver of the cost under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.818, or an order granting a waiver of this cost [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.832(c)(3)].

[6] Preparation of Clerk's Transcript

Within 30 days after the appellant deposits the estimated cost of the transcript or the court files an order waiving that cost, the clerk must prepare an original and one copy of the clerk's transcript and certify the original, and prepare any additional copies for which the parties have made deposits [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.832(d)(1)].

If the appeal is abandoned or dismissed before the clerk has completed preparation of the transcript, the clerk must refund any portion of the deposit exceeding the preparation cost actually incurred [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.832(d)(2)].

§ 345A.45 Appeal on Trial Court File

If the court has a local rule for the appellate division electing to use the trial court file for the record, the original trial court file may be used instead of a clerk's transcript [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.833(a)].

Within 10 days after the appellant serves a notice under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.831 [see § 345A.42A], indicating that the appellant elects to use a clerk's transcript, the trial court clerk may mail the appellant a notice indicating that the appellate division for that court has elected by local court rule to use the original trial court file instead of a clerk's transcript and providing the appellant with an estimate of the cost to prepare the file, including the cost of sending the index [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.833(b)(1)].

Within 10 days after the clerk mails the estimate, the appellant must deposit the estimated cost with the clerk, unless otherwise provided by law or the party submits an application for a waiver of the cost under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.818 or an order granting a waiver of this cost [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.833(b)(2)].

Within 10 days after the appellant deposits the cost or the court files an order waiving that cost, the trial court clerk must put the trial court file in chronological order, number the pages, and attach a chronological index and a list of all attorneys of record, the parties they represent, and any unrepresented parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.833(b)(3)].

The clerk must send copies of the index to all attorneys of record and any unrepresented parties for their use in paginating their copies of the file to conform to the index [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.833(b)(4)].

If the appellant elected to proceed with a reporter's transcript, the clerk must send the prepared file to the appellate division with the reporter's transcript. If the appellant elected to proceed without a reporter's transcript, the clerk must immediately send the prepared file to the appellate division [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.833(b)(5)].

§ 345A.45A Appeal When Trial Proceedings Were Officially Electronically Recorded

If the trial court proceedings were officially recorded electronically under Gov. Code § 69957 and the electronic recording was prepared in compliance with applicable rules regarding electronic recording of court proceedings, the written transcripts may be used as the record on appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.835(a)]. A written transcript of official electronic recordings prepared and certified as provided in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.952, is prima facie a true and complete record of the oral proceedings it purports to cover and satisfies any requirement for a reporter's transcript of oral proceedings [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.835(b)].

If the court has a local rule for the appellate division permitting this, on stipulation of the parties or on order of the trial court under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.837(d)(6), the original of an official electronic recording of the trial court proceedings, or a copy made by the court, may be transmitted as the record of the oral proceedings without being transcribed. Such an official electronic recording satisfies any requirement for a reporter's transcript of the proceedings [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.835(c)].

§ 345A.46 Agreed Statement

[1] Contents

An agreed statement is a summary of the trial court proceedings that is agreed to by the parties. If the parties have prepared an agreed statement or stipulated to prepare one, the appellant can elect under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.831 [see § 345A.46A], to use an agreed statement as the record of the documents filed in the trial court, replacing the clerk's transcript, and as the record of the oral proceedings in the trial court, replacing the reporter's transcript [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.836(a)].

The agreed statement must explain the nature of the action, the basis of the appellate division's jurisdiction, and the rulings of the trial court relating to the points to be raised on appeal. The statement should recite only those facts that a party considers relevant to decide the appeal and must be signed by the parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.836(b)(1)]. If the agreed statement replaces a clerk's transcript, the statement must be accompanied by copies of all items required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.832(a)(1), showing the dates required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.832(a)(2) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.836(b)(2)]. The statement may be accompanied by copies of any document includable in the clerk's transcript under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.832(a)(3) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.836(b)(3)].

[2] Extension of Other Time Limits During Preparation of Statement

If an appellant indicates on its notice designating the record under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.831 [see § 345A.46A], that it elects to use an agreed statement, the appellant must file with the notice designating the record either the agreed statement or a stipulation that the parties are attempting to agree on a statement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.836(c)(1)]. Within 30 days after filing the notice of designation under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.831, the appellant must either [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.836(c)(2)]:

- File the statement if the parties were able to agree on the statement.

- File both a notice stating that the parties were not able to agree on the statement and a new notice designating the record under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.831. In the new notice designating the record, the appellant may not elect to use an agreed statement.

§ 345A.47 Statement on Appeal

[1] Appellant's Notice and Proposed Statement

A statement on appeal is a summary of the trial court proceedings that is approved by the trial court. An appellant can elect under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.831 [see § 345A.42A], to use a statement on appeal as the record of the oral proceedings in the trial court, replacing the reporter's transcript [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.837(a)]. If the appellant elects in its notice designating the record use a statement on appeal, the appellant must serve and file a proposed statement within 20 days after filing the notice. If the appellant does not file a proposed statement within this time, the trial court clerk must promptly notify the appellant by mail that it must file the proposed statement within 15 days after the notice is mailed and that failure to comply will result in the appeal being dismissed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.837(b)].

The proposed statement must contain a condensed narrative of the oral proceedings that the appellant believes necessary for the appeal and a summary of the trial court's holding and judgment. Subject to the court's approval, the appellant may present some or all of the evidence by question and answer [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.837(c)(1)].

The proposed statement must also include a statement of the points the appellant is raising on appeal. If the condensed narrative covers only a portion of the oral proceedings, then the appeal is limited to the points identified in the statement unless, on motion, the appellate division permits otherwise [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.837(c)(2)].

[2] Review of Appellant's Proposed Statement

Within 10 days after the appellant files the proposed statement, the respondent may serve and file proposed amendments to the statement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.837(d)(1)].

No later than 10 days after the respondent files proposed amendments or the time to do so expires, a party may request a hearing to review and correct the proposed statement. No hearing will be held unless ordered by the trial court judge, and the judge will not ordinarily order a hearing unless there is a factual dispute about a material aspect of the trial court proceedings [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.837(d)(2)]. If a hearing is ordered, the court must promptly set the hearing date and provide the parties with at least five days' written notice of the hearing date [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.837(d)(3)].

If no hearing is ordered, no later than 10 days after the time for requesting a hearing expires, the trial court judge must review the proposed statement and any proposed amendments and make any corrections or modifications to the statement necessary to ensure that it is an accurate summary of the trial court proceedings. If a hearing is ordered, the trial court judge must make any corrections or modifications to the statement within 10 days after the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.837(d)(4)]. The trial court judge must not eliminate the appellant's specification of grounds of appeal from the proposed statement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.837(d)(5)].

[3] Review of Corrected Statement

If the trial court judge makes any corrections or modifications to the proposed statement, the clerk must send copies of the corrected or modified statement to the parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.837(e)(1)]. Within 10 days after the statement is sent to the parties, any party may serve and file proposed modifications or objections to the statement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.837(e)(2)].

[4] Certification of Statement

If the trial court judge does not make any corrections or modifications to the proposed statement and does not order either the use of an official electronic recording or the preparation of a transcript in lieu of correcting the proposed statement, the judge must promptly certify the statement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.837(f)(1)].

If the trial court judge corrects or modifies an appellant's proposed statement, within five days after the time for filing proposed modifications or objections has expired, the judge must review any proposed modifications or objections to the statement filed by the parties, make any corrections or modifications to the statement necessary to ensure that it is an accurate summary of the trial court proceedings, and certify the statement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.837(f)(2)].

§ 345A.52 Augmentation of Record

At any time, on motion of a party or its own motion, the appellate division may order the record augmented to include any document filed or lodged in the case in the trial court or a certified transcript--or agreed statement or a statement on appeal--of oral proceedings not designated under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.831 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.841(a)(1)].

A party must attach to its motion a copy, if available, of any document or transcript that it wants added to the record. The pages of the attachments must be consecutively numbered, beginning with the number 1. If the appellate division grants the motion, it may augment the record with the copy [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.841(a)(2)]. If the party cannot attach a copy of the matter to be added, the party must identify it as required under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.831 [*Cal. § 345A.53 Correction of Record

On agreement of the parties, motion of a party, or on its own motion, the appellate division may order the correction or certification of any part of the record [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.841(b)(1)]. The appellate division may order the trial court to settle disputes about omissions or errors in the record or to make corrections pursuant to stipulation filed by the parties in that court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.841(b)(2)].

If a clerk or reporter omits a required or designated portion of the record, a party may serve and file a notice in the trial court specifying the omitted portion and requesting that it be prepared, certified, and sent to the appellate division. The party must serve a copy of the notice on the appellate division [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.841(c)(1)]. The clerk or reporter must comply with the notice within 10 days after it is filed. If the clerk or reporter fails to comply, the party may serve and file a motion to augment, attaching a copy of the notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.841(c)(2)].

If a guardian or conservator seeks approval of a proposed compromise of a pending appeal, the appellate division may, before ruling on the compromise, direct the trial court to determine whether the compromise is in the minor's or the conservatee's best interest and to report its findings [*Cal. § 345A.55 Abandonment and Dismissal

[1] Before Record Filed

An appellant may abandon the appeal at any time by filing an abandonment of the appeal signed by the appellant or the appellant's attorney of record. The appellant must file the abandonment in the appellate division. If the record has not been filed in the appellate division, filing an abandonment effects a dismissal of the appeal and restores the trial court's jurisdiction [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.855].

[2] After Record Filed

An appellant may abandon the appeal at any time by filing an abandonment of the appeal signed by the appellant or the appellant's attorney of record. The appellant must file the abandonment in the appellate division. If the record has been filed in the appellate division, the appellate division may dismiss the appeal and direct immediate issuance of the remittitur [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.855(b)(3)].

[3] Dismissal for Failure to Prosecute

If a party fails to do any act required to procure the record, the trial court clerk must promptly notify that party by mail that it must do the act specified in the notice within 15 days after the notice is mailed and that, if it fails to comply, the reviewing court may impose the following sanctions [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.842(a)]:

- If the defaulting party is the appellant, the court may dismiss the appeal.

- If the defaulting party is the respondent, the court may proceed with the appeal on the record designated by the appellant.

If the party fails to take the action specified in a notice from the trial court clerk, the trial court clerk must promptly notify the appellate division of the default, and the appellate division may impose one of the following sanctions [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.842(b)]:

- If the defaulting party is the appellant, the reviewing court may dismiss the appeal but may vacate the dismissal for good cause.

- If the defaulting party is the respondent, the reviewing court may order the appeal to proceed on the record designated by the appellant, but the respondent may obtain relief from default under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.60(d).

[4] Notification of Abandonment or Dismissal

The appellate division clerk must immediately notify the adverse party of the filing or of the order of dismissal. If the record has not been filed in the appellate division, the clerk must immediately notify the trial court. If a reporter's transcript has been requested, the clerk must immediately notify the reporter if the appeal is abandoned before the reporter has filed the transcript [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.855(c)].

[5] Effect of Dismissal

The dismissal of an appeal is with prejudice to the right to file another appeal within the time permitted, unless the dismissal is expressly made without prejudice to another appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 913].

[1] Filing

The appellant must serve and file an appellant's opening brief within 30 days after the record is filed in the appellate division. Any respondent's brief must be served and filed within 30 days after the appellant files its opening brief. Any appellant's reply brief must be served and filed within 20 days after the respondent files its brief. No other brief may be filed except with the permission of the presiding judge. Instead of filing a brief, or as part of its brief, a party may join in a brief or adopt by reference all or part of a brief in the same or a related appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.882(a)].

The appellate division of the superior court must give the parties an opportunity to submit supplemental briefs on an issue that is not proposed or briefed by any party to the proceeding, but on which the court plans to base its decision; otherwise, on timely petition, any party is entitled to a rehearing [Gov. Code § 68081].

[2] Extension of Time to File Brief

Applications to extend time for filing briefs must be served and filed, but the presiding judge of the reviewing court may require an additional showing to be made, and for good cause shown may excuse advance service [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.811; see also discussion in § 345A.58].

[3] Format

A brief may be reproduced by any process that produces a clear, black image of letter quality. The paper must be white or unbleached, recycled, 81/2 by 11 inches, and of at least 20-pound weight. Both sides of the paper may be used if the brief is not bound at the top [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.883(c)(1)].

Any conventional typeface may be used. The typeface may be either proportionally spaced or monospaced [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.883(c)(2)]. The type style must be roman, but for emphasis, italics or boldface may be used or the text may be underscored. Case names must be italicized or underscored. Headings may be in uppercase letters [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.883(c)(3)].

Unless the brief is prepared on a typewriter, the type size, including footnotes, must not be smaller than 13-point [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.883(c)(4)]. The lines of text must be at least one-and-a-half-spaced. Headings and footnotes may be single-spaced. Quotations may be block-indented and single-spaced. Single-spaced means six lines to a vertical inch [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.883(c)(5)].

The margins must be at least 11/2 inches on the left and right and 1 inch on the top and bottom [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.883(c)(6)]. The pages must be consecutively numbered [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.883(c)(7)]. The brief must be bound on the left margin, except that briefs may be bound at the top if required by a local rule of the appellate division. If the brief is stapled, the bound edge and staples must be covered with tape [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.883(c)(8)]. The brief need not be signed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.883(c)(9)].

A typewritten original and carbon copies may be filed only with the presiding justice's permission, which will ordinarily be given only to unrepresented parties proceeding in forma pauperis. All other typewritten briefs must be filed as photocopies. Both sides of the paper may be used if a photocopy is filed; only one side may be used if a typewritten original and carbon copies are filed. The type size, including footnotes, must not be smaller than standard pica, 10 characters per inch. Unrepresented incarcerated litigants may use elite type, 12 characters per inch, if they lack access to a typewriter with larger characters [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.883(c)(10)].

[4] Contents and Length

Each brief must state each point under a separate heading or subheading summarizing the point and support each point by argument and, if possible, by citation of authority. Each brief must also support any reference to a matter in the record by a citation to the volume and page number of the record where the matter appears [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.883(a)(1)].

An appellant's opening brief must [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.883(a)(2)]:

- State the nature of the action, the relief sought in the trial court, and the judgment or order appealed from.
- State that the judgment appealed from is final or explain why the order appealed from is appealable.
- Provide a summary of the significant facts limited to matters in the record.

A brief produced on a computer may not exceed 6,800 words, including footnotes. A brief must include a certificate by appellate counsel or an unrepresented party stating the number of words in the brief. The person certifying may rely on the word count of the computer program used to prepare the brief [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.883(b)(1)]. A brief produced on a typewriter must not exceed 20 pages [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.883(b)(2)].

On application, the presiding judge may permit a longer brief for good cause. A lengthy record or numerous or complex issues on appeal will ordinarily constitute good cause. If the court grants an application to file a longer brief, it may order that the brief include a table of contents and a table of authorities [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.883(b)(4)].

[5] Service

Before filing any document, a party must serve one copy of the document on the attorney for each party separately represented, on each unrepresented party, and on any other person or entity when required by statute or rule. The party must attach to the document presented for filing a proof of service showing service on each person or entity required to be served. The proof must name each party represented by each attorney served [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.25]. Unless the appellate division provides otherwise by local rule or order in the specific case, only the original brief, with proof of service, must be filed in the appellate division [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.882(d)].

In an unfair competition proceeding under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq., service must also comply with Bus. & Prof. Code § 17209. Specifically, the brief (or petition) must be served on the Attorney General ofCalifornia and the district attorney of the county in which the lower court action was originally filed, and each brief (or petition) must be served within three days of filing unless the time is extended for good cause [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17209].

[6] Copy to Trial Court Judge

A copy of each brief must be served on the trial court clerk for delivery to the judge who tried the case. A copy of each brief must be served on a public officer or agency when required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.29 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.882(d)].

[7] Amicus Curiae

Within 14 days after the appellant's reply brief is filed or was required to be filed, whichever is earlier, any person or entity may serve and file an application for permission of the presiding judge to file an amicus curiae brief. For good cause, the presiding judge may allow later filing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.882(c)(1)]. The application must state the applicant's interest and explain how the proposed amicus curiae brief will assist the court in deciding the matter [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.882(c)(2)]. The proposed brief must be served and accompany the application and may be combined with it [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.882(c)(3)].

The Attorney General may file an amicus curiae brief without the presiding judge's permission, unless the brief is submitted on behalf of another state officer or agency. However, the presiding judge may prescribe reasonable conditions for filing and answering the brief [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.882(c)(4)].

§ 345A.57 Applications on Routine Matters

Except as the California Rules of Court provide otherwise, parties must serve and file all applications, including applications to extend time to file records, briefs, or other documents and applications to shorten time. Applications to extend the time to prepare the record on appeal may be filed in either the trial court or the appellate division. All other applications must be filed in the appellate division. For good cause, the presiding judge of the court where the application was filed, or his or her designee, may excuse advance service [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.806(a)].

The application must state facts showing good cause to grant the application and identify any previous applications relating to the same subject filed by any party in the same appeal or writ proceeding [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.806(b)]. Applications must be accompanied by addressed, postage-prepaid envelopes for the clerk's use in mailing copies of the order on the application to all parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.806(c)].

Unless the court determines otherwise, the presiding judge of the court in which the application was filed, or his or her designee, may rule on the application [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.806(d)].

§ 345A.58 Extension and Shortening of Time

[1] Computation of Time

The time for doing any act required or permitted under the Rules of Court, will be computed and extended in the manner provided by the Code of Civil Procedure [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.810(a)]. Computation of time, generally, is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 10, 12, 12a, and 12b, and extensions of time are generally governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1054. For discussion of extension of time in civil actions and proceedings, see Ch. 524, Shortening and Extension of Time .

[2] Extension of Time by Trial Court

For good cause, the presiding judge of the trial court, or his or her designee, may extend the time to do any act to prepare the record on appeal. The trial court may not extend the time to do an act if that time, including any valid extension, has expired. Notwithstanding anything in the California Rules of Court to the contrary, the trial court may grant an initial extension to any party to do any act to prepare the record on appeal on an ex parte basis [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.810(b)].

[3] Extension of Time by Reviewing Court

For good cause and except as the California Rules of Court provide otherwise, the presiding judge of the appellate division, or his or her designee, may extend the time to do any act required or permitted under the Rules, except the time to file a notice of appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.810(c)]. An application for extension of time must be made as provided in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.810(d) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.810(d); see discussion under § 345A.57]. The factors courts use to determine good cause include the degree of prejudice to any party from a grant or denial of the extension and the number and complexity of the issues raised [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.811(b)].

[4] Shortening of Time by Reviewing Court

For good cause and except as the California Rules of Court provide otherwise, the presiding judge of the appellate division, or his or her designee, may shorten the time to do any act required or permitted under the Rules [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.813].

§ 345A.59 Motions in Reviewing Court

Except as the California Rules of Court provide otherwise, to make a motion in the appellate division a party must serve and file a written motion, stating the grounds and the relief requested and identifying any documents on which it is based [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.813(a)(1)]. A motion must be accompanied by a memorandum and, if it is based on matters outside the record, by declarations or other supporting evidence [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.813(a)(2)]. Any opposition to the motion must be served and filed within 15 days after the motion is filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.813(a)(3)].

The court may rule on a motion any time after an opposition or other response is filed or the time to oppose has expired [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.813(b)(1)]. On a party's request or its own motion, the appellate division may place a motion on calendar for a hearing. The clerk must promptly send each party a notice of the date and time of the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.813(b)(2)].

AUTHOR: Hon. Phillip J. Argento Editorial Consultant

§ 345A.60 Motion for Imposition of Sanctions

On motion of a party or its own motion, the appellate division may impose sanctions, including the award or denial of costs, on a party or an attorney for taking a frivolous appeal or appealing solely to cause delay or committing any unreasonable violation of the California Rules of Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.891(e)(1)].

A motion for sanctions must include a declaration supporting the amount of any monetary sanction sought and must be served and filed before any order dismissing the appeal but no later than 10 days after the appellant's reply brief is due. If a party files a motion for sanctions with a motion to dismiss the appeal and the motion to dismiss is not granted, the party may file a new motion for sanctions within 10 days after the appellant's reply brief is due [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.891(e)(2)].

The court must give notice in writing if it is considering imposing sanctions. Within 10 days after the court sends notice, a party or attorney may serve and file an opposition, but failure to do so will not be deemed consent. An opposition may not be filed unless the court sends notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.891(e)(3)].

Unless otherwise ordered, oral argument on the issue of sanctions must be combined with oral argument on the merits of the appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.891(e)(4)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Basis of Sanctions. The motion procedure adopted under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.891(e) is patterned after the procedure governing a request for sanctions in the court of appeal under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.276. The underlying intent in adopting the procedure is to establish uniformity in the procedures for imposing sanctions on appeal, whether the appeal is one pending in the court of appeal or the appellate division of the superior court. For detailed discussion of the procedure under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.276 and the imposition of sanctions on appeal in the court of appeal, including factors to consider when seeking sanctions, see Ch. 49, Appeal: Sanctions .

For a form of motion for sanctions on appeal, see § 345A.126.

[1] Calendars

Unless otherwise ordered, all appeals in which the last reply brief was filed or the time for filing this brief expired 45 or more days before the date of a regular appellate division session must be placed on the calendar for that session by the appellate division clerk. By order of the presiding judge or the division, any appeal may be placed on the calendar for oral argument at any session [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.885(a)]. Oral argument may be conducted by videoconference if it is ordered by the presiding judge on application of any party or on the court's own motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.885(b)]. Parties may waive oral argument [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.885(d)].

[2] Notice of Hearing

As soon as all the parties' briefs are filed or the time for filing these briefs has expired, the appellate division clerk must send a notice of the time and place of oral argument to all parties. The notice must be sent at least 20 days before the date for oral argument. The presiding judge may shorten the notice period for good cause. In that event, the clerk must immediately notify the parties by telephone or other expeditious method [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.885(c)(1)].

An application from a party requesting that oral argument be conducted by videoconference must be filed within 10 days after the court sends notice of oral argument [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.885(b)]. If oral argument will be conducted by videoconference, the clerk must specify, either in the notice required under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.885(b)(1) or in a supplemental notice sent to all parties at least five days before the date for oral argument, the location from which each judge of the appellate division panel assigned to the case will participate in oral argument [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.885(c)(2)].

[3] Argument

Unless the court provides otherwise, at the hearing on the appeal the appellant, petitioner, or moving party has the right to open and close. If there are two or more such parties, the court sets the sequence of argument [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.885(e)(1)].

Each side is allowed 10 minutes for argument. The appellant may reserve part of this time for reply argument. If multiple parties are represented by separate counsel, or if an amicus curiae, on written request, is granted permission to argue, the court may apportion or expand the time [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.885(e)(2)]. Only one counsel may argue for each separately represented party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.885(e)(3)].

If oral argument is conducted by videoconference, each judge of the appellate division panel assigned to the case must participate in the entire oral argument either in person at the superior court that issued the judgment or order that is being appealed or by videoconference from another court. Unless otherwise allowed by local rule or ordered by the presiding judge, all the parties must appear at oral argument in person at the superior court that issued the judgment or order that is being appealed. The oral argument must be open to the public at the superior court that issued the judgment or order that is being appealed. If provided by local rule or ordered by the presiding judge, oral argument may also be open to the public at any of the locations from which a judge of the appellate division is participating in oral argument [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.885(b)(2)].

The appellate division must ensure that [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.885(b)(2)(D)]:

- During oral argument, the participants in oral argument are visible and their statements are audible to all other participants, court staff, and any members of the public attending the oral argument;
- Participants are identified when they speak; and
- Only persons who are authorized to participate in the proceedings speak.

A party must not be charged any fee to participate in oral argument by videoconference if the party participates from the superior court that issued the judgment or order that is being appealed or from a location from which a judge of the appellate division panel is participating in oral argument [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.885(b)(2)(E)].

§ 345A.62 Factual Determinations by Reviewing Court

In all cases in which trial by jury is not a matter of right or in which trial by jury has been waived, the reviewing court may make factual determinations contrary to or in addition to those made by the trial court. The factual determinations may be based on the evidence adduced before the trial court, either with or without the taking of evidence by the reviewing court [Code Civ. Proc. § 909; see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 11].

The reviewing court may, for the purpose of making the factual determinations or for any other purpose in the interests of justice, take additional evidence of or concerning facts occurring at any time before the decision of the appeal, and may give or direct the entry of any judgment or order and may make any further or other order that the case may require [Code Civ. Proc. § 909].

Code Civ. Proc. § 909 is to be liberally construed for the purpose, when feasible, of encouraging causes to be disposed of by a single appeal and without further proceedings in the trial court except when, in the interests of justice, a new trial is required on some or all of the issues [Code Civ. Proc. § 909].

PRACTICE TIP:

Motion for Hearing on Additional Evidence. An attorney who wants the appellate court to exercise this power should make a noticed motion for hearing and schedule it sufficiently before oral argument. If the motion is granted, and evidence taken, its impact can be assessed and the briefs written accordingly before oral argument. By Hon. Phillip J. Argento.

Substitution of parties in an appeal or original proceeding must be made by serving and filing a motion in the appellate division. Proc. § 368.5* in the event of assignment of a judgment, see Ch. 318, Judgments, § 318.150 et seq. For a discussion of substitution after the death of a party, see Ch. 21, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings .

§ 345A.64 Substitution and Withdrawl of Attorneys

A party may substitute attorneys by serving and filing in the appellate division a stipulation signed by the party represented and the new attorney [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.814(b)].

An attorney may request withdrawal by filing a motion to withdraw. Unless the court orders otherwise, the motion need be served only on the party represented and the attorneys directly affected [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.814(c)(1)]. The proof of service need not include the address of the party represented. However, if the court grants the motion, the withdrawing attorney must promptly provide the court and the opposing party with the party's current or last known address and telephone number [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.814(c)(2)]. The appellate division clerk must notify the trial court of any ruling on the motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.814(c)(3)].

§ 345A.65 Written Opinions

Appellate division judges are not required to prepare a written opinion in any case but may do so when they deem it advisable or in the public interest. A decision by opinion must identify the participating judges, including the author of the majority opinion and of any concurring or dissenting opinion, or the judges participating in a "by the court" opinion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.887(a)].

§ 345A.66 Finality of Judgment

Except as otherwise provided, an appellate division decision, including an order dismissing an appeal involuntarily, is final 30 days after the decision is filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.888(a)(1)].

If the appellate division certifies a written opinion for publication or partial publication after its decision is filed and before its decision becomes final in that court, the finality period runs from the filing date of the order for publication [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.888(a)(2)].

The following appellate division decisions are final in that court when filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.888(a)(3)]:

- The denial of a petition for writ of supersedeas.
- The denial of an application for bail or to reduce bail pending appeal.
- The dismissal of an appeal on request or stipulation.

ILLUSTRATION:

Inflexibility of Rule. A petitioner whose motion to suppress evidence in a limited civil case was denied appeals to the appellate division, which reverses. Respondent petitions for a rehearing of the appeal, and the appellate division issues a notice of hearing on the petition within 30 days of the judgment. The appellate division then issues an order granting the motion for rehearing 40 days after the judgment. Is the order timely? No, the time limit set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.888(a), is not subject to extension or exception; it is inflexible. Therefore, the 30-day limit set by the rule cannot be avoided by the court merely sending a notice of hearing before expiration of the 30 days and entertaining oral argument at some later date on the rehearing petition [Weighand v. Appellate Department (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 629, 631, 166 Cal. Rptr. 670] .

§ 345A.67 Rehearing

[1] When Authorized

At any time before a judgment of an appellate division becomes final [see discussion under § 345A.66], the appellate division may vacate the judgment and order a rehearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.889(a)].

The appellate division of the superior court must grant a rehearing on timely petition by a party when the court has based its decision on an issue that was not proposed or briefed by any party to the proceeding, and the court failed to give the parties an opportunity to submit supplemental briefs on that issue [Gov. Code § 68081].

[2] Petition, Answer, and Determination

A party may serve and file a petition for rehearing within 15 days after [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.889(b)(1)]:

- The decision is filed.
- A publication order restarting the finality period under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.888(a)(2), if the party has not already filed a petition for rehearing.
- A modification order changing the appellate judgment under California Rules of Ct., Rule 8.888(b).
- The filing of a consent under California Rules of Ct., Rule 8.888(c).

A party must not file an answer to a petition for rehearing unless the court requests an answer. The clerk must promptly send to the parties copies of any order requesting an answer and immediately notify the parties by telephone or another expeditious method. Any answer must be served and filed within eight days after the order is filed unless the court orders otherwise. A petition for rehearing normally will not be granted unless the court has requested an answer [Cal.

Rules of Ct., Rule 8.889(b)(2)].

The petition and answer must comply with the relevant provisions of California Rules of Ct., Rule 8.883 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.889(b)(3); see § 345A.56]. Before the decision is final and for good cause, the presiding judge may relieve a party from a failure to file a timely petition or answer [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.889(b)(4)].

An order granting a rehearing vacates the decision and any opinion filed in the case. If the appellate division orders rehearing, it may place the case on calendar for further argument or submit it for decision [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.889(d)].

§ 345A.68 Restitution on Reversal or Modification

When the judgment or order is reversed or modified, the reviewing court may direct that the parties be returned so far as possible to the positions they occupied before the enforcement of or execution on the judgment or order. In doing so, the reviewing court may order restitution on reasonable terms and conditions of all property and rights lost by the erroneous judgment or order, so far as the restitution is consistent with rights of third parties and may direct the entry of a money judgment sufficient to compensate for property or rights not restored. The reviewing court may take evidence and make findings concerning such matters or may, by order, refer such matters to the trial court for determination [Code Civ. Proc. § 908].

PRACTICE TIP:

Restitution From the Appellate Division. Although Code Civ. Proc. § 908 furnishes the appellate division with statutory authority to grant restitution, such grants are infrequent. Counsel should usually take the ordinary route; seeking restitution in the trial court, which has inherent power to grant it independent of statute [see Schubert v. Bates (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 785, 789, 185 P.2d 793] . By Hon. Phillip J. Argento.

§ 345A.69 Costs on Appeal

[1] Right to Costs

Except as otherwise provided, the prevailing party is entitled to costs on appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.891(a)(1)]. The prevailing party is the respondent if the appellate division affirms the judgment without modification or dismisses the appeal. The prevailing party is the appellant if the appellate division reverses the judgment in its entirety [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.891(a)(2)]. If the appellate division reverses the judgment in part or modifies it, or if there is more than one notice of appeal, the appellate division must specify the award or denial of costs in its decision [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.891(a)(3)]. In the interests of justice, the appellate division may also award or deny costs as it deems proper [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.891(a)(4)].

For discussions of the recovery of costs and attorney's fees, generally, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees .

[2] Frivolous Appeals and Violations

On motion of a party or its own motion, the appellate division may impose sanctions, including the award or denial of costs, on a party or an attorney for taking a frivolous appeal or appealing solely to cause delay, or committing any unreasonable violation of the California Rules of Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.891(e)(1)]. Furthermore, when it appears to the reviewing court that the appeal was frivolous or taken solely for delay, it may add to the costs on appeal such damages as may be just [Code Civ. Proc. § 907].

For discussion of the motion procedure for requesting the imposition of monetary sanctions, see § 345A.60.

[3] Judgment for Costs

The appellate division clerk must enter on the record and insert in the remittitur judgment awarding costs to the prevailing party. If the clerk fails to enter judgment for costs, the appellate division may recall the remittitur for correction on its own motion or on a party's motion made not later than 30 days after the remittitur issues [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.891(b)].

[4] Items Recoverable

A party may recover only the costs of the following, if reasonable [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.891(d)(1)]:

- Filing fees.
- The amount the party paid for any portion of the record, whether an original or a copy or both, subject to reduction by the appellate division.
- The cost to produce additional evidence on appeal.
- The costs to notarize, serve, mail, and file the record, briefs, and other papers.
- The cost to print and reproduce any brief, including any petition for rehearing or review, answer, or reply.
- The cost to procure a surety bond, including the premium and the cost to obtain a letter of credit as collateral, unless the trial court determines the bond was unnecessary.

Unless the court orders otherwise, an award of costs neither includes attorney's fees on appeal nor precludes a party from seeking them under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1702 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.891(d)(2)].

[5] Procedure for Claiming Costs

Within 30 days after the clerk sends notice of issuance of the remittitur, a party claiming costs awarded by the appellate division must serve and file in the trial court a verified memorandum of costs under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1702(a)(1) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.891(c)(1)].

[6] Motion to Tax Costs

A party may serve and file a motion in the trial court to strike or tax costs in the manner required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1700 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.891(c)(2)]. An award of costs is enforceable as a money judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.891(c)(3)]. For forms and discussion of a motion to tax costs, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.10 et seq.

[7] Attorney's Fees

Contracts and statutes providing for the allowance of attorney's fees to the prevailing party have been interpreted as including allowance for legal service rendered on appeal [see Buescher v. Lastar (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 73, 76, 132 Cal. Rptr. 124 (note); Union Bank v. Ross (1976) 54 Cal. App. 3d 290, 299, 126 Cal. Rptr. 646 (contract); Roberts v. Brian (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 427, 430, 106 Cal. Rptr. 360 (attorney's fees under Welf. & Inst. Code § 10962)]. However, a statute providing for an award of attorney's fees "upon the trial of the action" has been held to limit an award of attorney's fees to services in the trial court and not on appeal [General Elec. Co. v. Central Surety & Ins. Corp. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 590, 603-604, 43 Cal. Rptr. 48 (former Gov. Code § 4207, governing action on contractor's bond)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Award of Attorney's Fees by Reviewing Court. When attorney's fees are recoverable, the reviewing court has jurisdiction to award them unless it directs the determination to the trial court. Directing the determination to the trial court is often the result because the reviewing court will usually lack necessary information to determine reasonable fees. For a fuller discussion of recovery of attorney's fees, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees . By Hon. Phillip J. Argento.

§ 345A.70 Relief From Default

The reviewing court for good cause may relieve a party from default occasioned by any failure to comply with the California Rules of Court, except the failure to give timely notice of appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.812].

PRACTICE TIP:

Factors for Relief. In deciding whether to relieve a party from a default, the reviewing court must consider various factors such as the nature of the default, its length in time, surrounding circumstances, and relative injury to the parties. Each case will turn on its own facts [see Jarkieh v. Badagliacco (1945) 68 Cal. App. 2d 426, 431, 156 P.2d 969 (disapproved on other grounds in *Tenzer v. Superscope, Inc. § 345A.71 Remittitur to Lower Court

[1] Issuance and Effect

An appellate division must issue a remittitur after a decision in an appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.890(a)]. If an appellate division case is not transferred to the court of appeal under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1000 et seq., the appellate division clerk must [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.890(b)(1)]:

- Issue a remittitur immediately after the court of appeal denies transfer, or the period for granting transfer expires.
- Send the remittitur to the trial court with a file-stamped copy of the opinion or order.
- Return to the trial court with the remittitur all original records, exhibits, and documents sent to the appellate division in connection with the appeal, except any certification for transfer, the transcripts or statement on appeal, briefs, and the notice of appeal.

If an appellate division case is transferred to a court of appeal under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1000 et seq., the appellate division clerk must issue a remittitur and return documents to the trial court as provided in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1018 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.890(b)(2)].

[2] On Stipulation

The court may direct the immediate issuance of the remittitur on stipulation of the parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.890(c)(1)].

[3] Stay

The court, for good cause, may stay the issuance of the remittitur for a reasonable period [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.890(c)(2)].

[4] Recall

On a party's or its own motion or on stipulation, and for good cause, the court may order a recall of a remittitur's issuance for a reasonable period [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.890(c)(2)]. An order recalling a remittitur issued after a decision by opinion does not supersede the opinion or affect its publication status [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.890(c)(3)].

§ 345A.72 Transfer to Court of Appeal

[1] Authority to Transfer

Courts of appeal have appellate jurisdiction of cases in which superior courts have original jurisdiction in causes of a type within the appellate jurisdiction of the courts of appeal on June 30, 1995, and in other causes prescribed by statute [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 11]. Code Civ. Proc. § 911 provides that a court of appeal may under certain circumstances order any case on appeal to a superior court in its district transferred to it for hearing and decision as provided by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.1000-8.1018 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 911].

[2] Scope of Review

A Court of Appeal to which any case is transferred under Code Civ. Proc. § 911 has similar power to review any matter and make orders and judgments as the appellate division of the superior court would have in such a case. If, however, the case was tried anew in the superior court, the court of appeal has similar power to review any matter and make orders and judgments as it has in a case appealed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1 (that is, as in appeal of cases other than limited civil cases) [Code Civ. Proc. § 911].

The court of appeal, on transfer from the appellate division of the superior court, is required to decide all issues necessary to resolution ofthe appeal and transmit the remittitur to the trial court that originally heard the case. It does not have discretion to select issues for review in the same manner as the Supreme Court. Thus, it may not review only selected issues that are not dispositive of the appeal, and remand the cause to the appellate division of the superior court to decide issues it has left unresolved [Snukal v. Flightways Manufacturing, Inc. (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 754, 761-777, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 3 P.3d 286] .

[3] Transfer on Motion by Court of Appeal

[a] Grounds for Transfer

A court of appeal may order a case transferred to it for hearing and decision if the appellate division certifies it pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1002 or the court of appeal determines under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1005 that transfer is necessary to secure uniformity of decision or to settle an important question of law [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1002].

[b] Time for Ordering Transfer

A transfer on the court of appeal's own motion may be ordered within 20 days after the record on transfer is filed in the court of appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1008(c)(1)].

[c] Extension of Time for Ordering Transfer

The court of appeal may extend the time for ordering a case transferred from the superior court to the court of appeal on the court of appeal's own motion, as provided in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1008, by not more than 20 days [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1008(c)(2)].

[4] Transfer on Certification by Superior Court

[a] Authority to Certify

A case may be transferred to the court of appeal when the superior court certifies that such transfer appears necessary to secure uniformity of decision or to settle important questions of law [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1005(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 911]. Despite certification, the court of appeal may refuse the transfer [Dvorin v. Appellate Dep't of Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 648, 650, 125 Cal. Rptr. 771, 542 P.2d 1363 ; see discussion under § 345A.72[4][i]].

The superior court may certify a transfer to the court of appeal on the application of a party or on its own motion. The certification may be made by a majority of the appellate division judges to whom the case has been assigned or who decided the appeal or, if the case has not yet been assigned, by any two judges of the appellate division. If any of the assigned or deciding judges is unable to act on the certification, a judge designated or assigned to the appellate division by the chairman of the Judicial Council may act in that judge's place [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1005(a)].

[b] Application by Party for Certification

Any party may apply to the superior court for the certification of a case. The application must be served and filed any time after the record on appeal is filed in the appellate division and within 15 days after judgment is pronounced or a modification order changing the appellate judgment is filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1005(b)(1); see § 345A.72[4][f]].

[c] Opposition to Certification

Any party may serve and file an opposition within five days after the filing of the application for certification [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1005(b)].

[d] Decision to Grant or Deny Certification

No hearing is held on the application, and the failure of the court to certify the case is deemed a denial of the application [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1005(b)].

[e] Content of Certification

If the superior court decides to certify the case for transfer, the certification must contain a brief statement setting forth any conflict of decision (with citation of or reference to decisions creating the conflict) or important question of law to be settled. It must also state whether there was a judgment in the superior court, and, if so, the nature and the date of the judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1005(e)].

[f] Time for Filing Certification

A case may be certified any time after the record on appeal is filed in the appellate division and before the appellate division judgment is final in that court, as provided by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.888 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1005(c), (d)].

Failure to file the certification with the clerk of the superior court may result in dismissal of the appeal [see Corcoran v. Universal Guardian Corp. (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 904, 909-910, 140 Cal. Rptr. 421 ; People v. Burdzinski (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 540, 542-543, 173 Cal. Rptr. 440] .

[g] Extension of Time for Filing Certification

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1005 (Certification), as repealed and adopted effective January 1, 2007, by the California Judicial Council, has no provision for extending the time for filing certification.

[h] Transmission of Certification

On the filing of the certification, the clerk of the superior court must promptly send a copy of the order to the court of appeal clerk and the parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1005(f)(1)].

[i] Discretion to Deny Transfer

The courts of appeal have discretion in deciding whether to transfer cases under Code Civ. Proc. § 911. Thus, the courts of appeal may refuse transfer despite certification by the superior court [Dvorin v. Appellate Dep't of Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 648, 650, 125 Cal. Rptr. 771, 542 P.2d 1363 ; Schweiger v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 507, 517 n.5, 90 Cal. Rptr. 729, 476 P.2d 97] .

[j] Notice of Denial of Transfer

On denial of transfer on certification, the clerk of the court of appeal must return the record on transfer and any exhibits to the clerk of the superior court and must mail notice of the denial to each party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1008(f)(3)].

[k] No Review on Denial of Transfer

A petition for review by the California Supreme Court may not be filed after denial of a transfer to a court of appeal in a case within the appellate jurisdiction of a superior court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.500(a)(1)].

[l] When Transfer May Be Ordered

A transfer on certification by the superior court may be ordered within 20 days after the record on transfer is filed in the court of appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1008(c)(1)].

No case in which there is a right on appeal to a trial anew in the superior court may be transferred under Code Civ. Proc. § 911 before a decision in such case becomes final in the superior court [Code Civ. Proc. § 911].

[5] Record on Transfer

[a] Contents

The record on transfer must include the original record on appeal prepared under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.831-8.842, any briefs filed in the appellate division, and any order or opinion of the appellate division [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1010(a)].

[b] Transmission of Record

The superior court clerk must promptly send the record on transfer to the court of appeal and notify the parties that the record was sent when any of the following occurs [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1010(b)(1)]:

- The appellate division certifies a case;
- The superior court clerk sends a copy of an appellate division opinion certified for publication to the court of appeal under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.887;
- The superior court clerk receives a copy of a petition to transfer;
- The superior court receives a request from the court of appeal for the record on transfer.

The court of appeal clerk must promptly notify the parties when the record on transfer is filed [Cal Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1010(B)(2)].

[6] Order Granting or Denying Transfer

The court of appeal may order transfer after certification or on its own motion, within 20 days after the record on transfer is filed in the court of appeal, or, on petition to transfer, within 20 days after the petition is filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1008(c)(1)]. If the court of appeal does not timely order a transfer, the transfer is deemed denied [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1008(c)(3)].

[7] Notice of Order for Transfer

When a transfer order is filed, the clerk must promptly send a copy to the superior court clerk and the parties. With the transfer order, the clerk must send notice of the time to serve and file any briefs ordered under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1012, and, if specified by the court of appeal, the issues to be briefed and argued [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1008(f)]. The clerk's failure to mail the order or notice does not affect the court of appeal's jurisdiction [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1008(f)(4)].

[8] Stay of Proceedings in Appellate Division

On the timely filing of a certification by the superior court or an order of transfer on the court of appeal's own motion, further action, other than the preparation and transmission of the record, by the superior court in the case is stayed until the termination of the proceedings in the court of appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1014]. Unlike some stays issued by the trial court, the stay under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1014 does not require an undertaking by either party.

[9] Briefs

After transfer, the parties may file briefs in the court of appeal only if the court so orders after a party's application or the court's own motion.The court of appeal may prescribe the briefing sequence in any briefing order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1012(a)(1)]. Instead of filing a brief, a party may join in or adopt by reference all or part of a brief in the same or a related case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1012(a)(2)].

The opening brief must be served and filed within 20 days after entry of the briefing order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule

8.1012(b)(1)]. The responding brief must be served and filed within 20 days after the opening brief is filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1012(b)(2)]. Any reply brief must be served and filed within 10 days after the responding brief is filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1012(b)(3)].

The proof of service of every brief must show delivery of a copy to the appellate division from which the case was transferred [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1012(c)(2)].

Briefs may not exceed 5,600 words if produced on a computer, or 20 pages if typewritten [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1012(d)]. In all other respects, briefs must comply with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1012(d)].

[10] Transmission of Remittitur

After the decision of the court of appeal is final, the clerk must promptly issue a remittitur. The clerk must address the remittitur to the appellate division, sending that court two copies of the remittitur and two file-stamped copies of the court of appeal opinion or order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1018(b)].

On receiving the court of appeal remittitur, the clerk of the appellate division must promptly issue a remittitur if there will be no further proceedings in that court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1018(c)]. All original records, papers, documents, and exhibits, except any certification, transcripts on appeal, briefs, or notice of appeal are returned with the remittitur [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1018(d)].

§ 345A.84 Decisions

[1] Appealable and Nonappealable Judgments and Orders

[a] Generally

Regular practice of courts if party appeals from both appealable and nonappealable order is dismissal of latter appeal. Hamasaki v. Flotho (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 602, 608, 248 P.2d 910 ; Martin v. Johnson (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 595, 607-608, 151 Cal. Rptr. 816

[b] Default Judgments

Order denying motion to set aside default and vacate judgment is appealable. Conway v. Municipal Court (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1014-1015, 166 Cal. Rptr. 246

[c] Demurrers

Reviewing court is without jurisdiction to entertain purported appeal from order sustaining or overruling demurrer to complaint even though it is without leave to amend. Yancey v. Fink (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1334, 1342, 277 Cal. Rptr. 415

[d] Injunction

When entry of judgment renders question of right to interim relief moot, order denying motions for temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction is not appealable. Agnew v. City of Los Angeles (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 1, 2, 330 P.2d 385

Injunction is interpreted broadly to include preliminary injunctions. American Ins. Co. v. Gernand (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 300, 305, 68 Cal. Rptr. 810

Failure to appeal from preliminary injunction does not preclude defendants from appealing permanent injunction when preliminary injunction only restrained defendants during pendency of action and with respect to arbitration issue presented in action and permanent injunction enjoined defendants with respect to arbitration of any claim. American Ins. Co. v. Gernand (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 300, 305, 68 Cal. Rptr. 810

[e] Orders Changing Place of Trial

Order by municipal court changing or refusing to change place of trial is appealable. Metzger v. Silverman (1976) 133 Cal. Rptr. 355

Order transferring matter from municipal court to superior court on ground that complaint prays for amount in excess of statutory jurisdiction of municipal court is not order changing place of trial and, therefore, not appealable. Milliken v. Gray (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 595, 596, 81 Cal. Rptr. 525

Place of trial and venue are synonymous. Milliken v. Gray (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 595, 598, 81 Cal. Rptr. 525 ; Arganbright v. Good (1941) 116 P.2d 186

[f] Order Denying New Trial

Order denying motion for new trial is nonappealable. Rodriguez v. Barnett (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 154, 156, 338 P.2d 907 ; Martin v. Johnson (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 595, 607, 151 Cal. Rptr. 816 ; Kelly v. Kelly (1954) 270 P.2d 948 .

[g] Order Directing Entry of Summary Judgment

Order directing entry of summary judgment is order made before judgment, not in the list of appealable orders set forth in statute, and not appealable. Gardenswartz v. Equitable Etc. Soc. (1937) 68 P.2d 322 (interpreting Code Civ. Proc. § 903, which is substantially similar to Code Civ. Proc. § 907.2)

[h] Post-Judgment Orders

Post-judgment order for issuance of writ of execution is directly appealable. Weil v. Weil (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 378, 379, 217 P.2d 979 (interpreting former Code Civ. Proc. § 963(2))

[2] Notice of Appeal

Notice of appeal referring to order is to be liberally construed to apply to judgment in order to protect right of appeal. Vibert v. Berger (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 65, 67-68, 48 Cal. Rptr. 886, 410 P.2d 390 ; Luz v. Lopes (1960) 55 Cal. 2d 54, 59-60, 10 Cal. Rptr. 161, 358 P.2d 289 ; Brown v. Municipal Court (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 357, 360 n.1, 150 Cal. Rptr. 216 (interpreting former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1(a), which is substantially the same as Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.821(a))

Either appellant or appellant's attorney may sign notice of appeal. Estate of Hultin (1947) 29 Cal. 2d 825, 832, 178 P.2d 756 ; City of Downey v. Johnson (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 775, 781, 69 Cal. Rptr. 830

Filing of notice of appeal by mail is complete when notice delivered to clerk by postal service. Thompson, Curtis, Lawson & Parrish v. Thorne (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 797, 801, 98 Cal. Rptr. 753

[3] Time to File Notice of Appeal

Mailing of notice of entry of order by clerk does not initiate time for filing notice of appeal when notice undelivered due to improper address. Triumph Precision Products, Inc. v. Insurance Co. of North America (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 362, 365, 154 Cal. Rptr. 120 (interpreting Code Civ. Proc. § 664.5 prior to amendment)

[4] Extension of Time to File Appeal

Former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 123(b) (now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.823(a)) allowing extension of time for filing notice of appeal after motion to vacate judgment is filed applies to motions to vacate judgments under Code Civ. Proc. § 473. Knudson v. Superior Court (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 876, 879, 73 Cal. Rptr. 513

Extension of time for filing notice of appeal by making motion to vacate judgment or to vacate judgment and enter another and different judgment does not affect time for appeal from special order but only extends time for appeal from judgment. Palmese v. Superior Court (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 600, 602, 14 Cal. Rptr. 453

Appeal dismissed when time for filing notice of appeal was extended by timely motion for new trial, but notice of appeal not filed within 15 days after entry of order denying motion. Cannon v. Goble (1955) 283 P.2d 390

[5] Effect of Failure to Appeal

Plaintiff who failed to exercise remedy of appeal is not entitled to annul municipal court judgment because all legal remedies must be exhaustedbefore equitable relief available. Doran v. Sherman (1937) 18 Cal. App. 2d 479, 480, 64 P.2d 442

[6] Record on Appeal

Appellate department may take judicial notice of own records. Schein v. Holbrook (1952) 245 P.2d 708

Unexcused failure of appellant to give notice to clerk to procure preparation of judgment roll is grounds for dismissal of appeal. Schein v. Holbrook (1952) 245 P.2d 708

Rules of Court providing for appeal on reporter's statement, settled statement, or agreed statement does not prevent submission and decision of appeal on judgment roll alone. Schein v. Holbrook (1952) 245 P.2d 708

[7] Settled Statement

Striking of engrossed settled statement was proper when municipal court did not properly carry out settlement and engrossment of settled statement on appeal to superior court appellate department under former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 127 (now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.837); improper conformance with former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 127 (now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.837) was shown when judge ordered respondent, rather than appellant, to engross statement on appeal, appellant was never served with copy of settled statement as engrossed in accordance with judge's order, and engrossed settled statement did not contain trial judge's certification that statement accurately and truly reflected oral proceedings. Quail v. Municipal Court (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 572, 575-576, 217 Cal. Rptr. 361

Failure to include judge's oral instruction in settled statement constitutes waiver of right to argue error in oral instruction on appeal. Cobian v. Ordonez (1980) 163 Cal. Rptr. 126

Requirement of certification of engrossed statement by trial judge is mandatory unless parties stipulate that statement as originally served or engrossed is correct. Potter v. Solk (1958) 327 P.2d 990

Settled statement is not mandatory when reporter's transcript not requested. Schein v. Holbrook (1952) 245 P.2d 708 (interpreting former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7, which is substantially similar to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.837)

[8] Scope of Review

Nonappealing respondent is not within Code Civ. Proc. § 906 exception permitting appellate review when respondent seeks not to save judgment, but to overthrow it. California State Employees' Assn. v. State Personnel Bd. (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 372, 382 n.7, 223 Cal. Rptr. 826

When appellate court or Supreme Court reverses judgment, trial court is bound by direction given. Stafford v. Municipal Court (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 368, 371, 4 Cal. Rptr. 441

Rules of law that apply to appeals to other appellate courts of state apply with equal force to appeals from municipal court to superior court. Burnett v. Reyes (1953) 256 P.2d 91 ; Mastrofini v. Swanson (1952) 250 P.2d 764

[9] Opinion of Reviewing Court

Judges of appellate department are not required to write opinions. People v. Alberts (1955) 292 P.2d 90

[10] Mandate

Writ of mandate to review municipal court judgment denied when it is possible to imply sufficient findings to support judgment because lower court judgment is presumed correct. Hall v. Municipal Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 641, 643-644, 111 Cal. Rptr. 721, 517 P.2d 1185

Writ of mandate to compel superior court to hear petitioner's defense after transfer to court of appeal may be denied despite certification. Schweiger v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 507, 517-518, 90 Cal. Rptr. 729, 476 P.2d 97

Peremptory writ of mandate is appropriate in first instance when engrossed settled statement as stricken for nonconformance with former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 127 (now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.837). Quail v. Municipal Court (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 572, 576, 217 Cal. Rptr. 361

Procedure of former Code Civ. Proc. § 988t [now Code Civ. Proc. § 911] did not eliminate the power of court of appeal to issue writ of mandate to appellate department of superior court that has erroneously refused to exercise jurisdiction of appeal from municipal court. Knudson v. Superior Court (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 876, 880, 73 Cal. Rptr. 513

When appellate department of superior court erroneously determines it has no jurisdiction as matter of law, court of appeal has duty to mandate lower court to take jurisdiction. Palmese v. Superior Court (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 600, 603, 14 Cal. Rptr. 453

[11] Writ of Review

Writ of review may be issued to reverse municipal court judgment after judgment affirmed by appellate department of superior court when municipal court lacked subject matter jurisdiction. Greene v. Municipal Court (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 446, 450-453, 124 Cal. Rptr. 139

[12] Frivolous Appeals

Appeal not necessarily frivolous when it appears from notice of appeal that only issue tendered is one that has been decided by Supreme Court because it is not possible to make determination of frivolousness on notice of appeal alone. Pacific States Sav. & L. Co. v. Mortimer (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 811, 813, 161 P.2d 684

§ 345A.90 Appellant's Guide

[1] Obtain Copies of Relevant Documents

☐ Pleadings and all papers filed.

☐ Judgment or order appealed from.

☐ Any notice of intention to move for new trial or notice of motion to vacate judgment or order, and rulings thereon.

☐ Notice of entry of judgment.

[2] Determine if Appeal Can Be Taken

☐ Does appellant have standing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 902; see also § 345A.37]?

☐ Is judgment or order appealable [see Code Civ. Proc. § 904.2; see also § 345A.34[1]]?

☐ Was any error prejudicial [see § 345A.36]?

☐ When will deadline expire for filing notice of appeal [see [4], below; see also Cal. Rules of Ct.,

Rule 8.751; § 345A.39]?

[3] Prepare Notice of Appeal

☐ Prepare notice of appeal as required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.822 [see §§ 345A.110-345A.112 (form); see also § 345A.38].

NOTE:
Combining Papers. The notice to prepare clerk's transcript may be prepared together with the notice to prepare reporter's transcript or both notices may be included in a single document containing the notice of appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.831; see [6], below; § 345A.112; see also § 345A.44].

☐ Make the following copies:

☐ Original for filing.

☐ Copy for respondent.

☐ Copy for client (appellant).

☐ Sign (or have appellant sign) notice as required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.821(a) [see § 345A.38[3]].

[4] File Notice of Appeal

☐ Ascertain time limit for filing notice of appeal as follows:

☐ In absence of motion for new trial or motion to vacate judgment, time for filing is earliest of the following dates [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.822(a); see also § 345A.39]:

☐ 30 days after mailing by the clerk of the court of document entitled "notice of entry" of judgment or appealable order.

☐ 30 days after service of document entitled "notice of entry" of judgment or appealable order by any party on the party filing the notice of appeal, or by the party filing the notice of appeal.

☐ On denial of motion for new trial, time is extended to 15 days after either entry of order denying motion or denial of motion by operation of law, but no later than 90 days after entry of judgment [Cal.

Rules of Ct., Rule 8.823(b); see § 345A.39[5]].

☐ On denial of motion to vacate judgment, time is extended to 15 days after either entry of order denying motion or 45 days after the first notice of intention to move or motion is filed, but no later than 90 days after entry of judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.823(c); see § 345A.39[6]].

☐ File notice of appeal with clerk of court in which judgment or order appealed from was rendered [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.821(a); see § 345A.38].

☐ If the appellant is able to pay, pay filing fee, as required by Gov. Code § 70621(a), at time of filing or within 10 days thereafter [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.821(b); see § 345A.40].

☐ If the appellant is indigent, obtain waiver of filing fee [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.821(b); see § 345A.40; see also Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.100 et seq.].

[5] Obtain Stay of Execution

☐ Determine if judgment or order requires undertaking as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 917.1 et seq. [see Code Civ. Proc. § 916; see also § 345A.41].

☐ If undertaking is required, follow procedures set out in Ch. 43, Appeal: Stay of Proceedings

[6] Prepare and Obtain Filing of Record

☐ Determine kind of record needed by considering the following alternatives:

☐ Clerk's and reporter's transcripts [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.832, 8.834; see §§ 345A.43, 345A.44].

☐ Clerk's transcript alone (may be limited to judgment roll) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.832; see § 345A.45].

☐ Agreed statement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.836; see § 345A.46].

☐ Statement on appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.837; see § 345A.47].

☐ Prepare notice designating record on appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.831; see § 345A.42A].

NOTE:
Combining Papers. The notice designating record on appeal may be included in a single document containing the notice of appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.831; see §§ 345A.44, 345A.112 (form)].

☐ Make the following copies:

☐ File notice within 10 days after filing notice of appeal and serve on respondent [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.831; see §§ 345A.43, 345A.44].

☐ Arrange payment of costs to prepare clerk's and reporter's transcript within 10 days after notification by clerk of estimated cost [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.832(c), 8.834(b); see also §§ 345A.43[5], 345A.44].

☐ In lieu of filing above notices, if respondent agrees, prepare stipulation regarding record on appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.836; see § 345A.114 (form); see also § 345A.44[3]].

☐ If appealing on clerk's transcript only, do the following:

☐ Prepare notice to designating record [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.831; see also § 345A.45].

☐ Follow procedure set out above regarding appeal on reporter's and clerk's transcript.

☐ If appealing on agreed statement, do the following:

☐ File original statement within 30 days after filing notice of appeal, setting forth the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.836; see § 345A.46[1]]:

☐ Nature of controversy.

☐ Basis for reviewing court's jurisdiction.

☐ How trial court decided questions to be reviewed.

☐ Any facts alleged and proved or sought to be proved that are necessary to a determination of the questions on appeal.

☐ File original statement along with the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.836; see § 345A.46[1]]:

☐ Copy of notice of appeal with filing date.

☐ Any notice of intention to move for a new trial or motion to vacate the judgment, the ruling thereon, if any, and a recital or resume of any oral proceedings thereon.

☐ List or records, etc., parties want transmitted to reviewing court.

☐ If appealing on statement, do the following:

☐ Serve and file notice showing intent to proceed by statement within 10 days after filing notice of appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.837; see § 345A.47[1]].

☐ Within 20 days thereafter, serve and file proposed condensed statement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.837; see § 345A.47[1]].

☐ Attend hearing at time set by clerk (not more than 10 days after response to proposed statement) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.837; see § 345A.47[4]].

☐ Obtain respondent's stipulation or judge's certification that engrossed statement is correct [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.837(f); see § 345A.47[5]].

[7] Correction and Certification of Record

☐ If record is correct, obtain stipulation that record is correct (stipulation renders certification by court unnecessary) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.841; see also § 345A.48].

☐ If record requires correction, file request for correction of clerk's and/or reporter's transcript within 10 days after mailing of clerk's notice of completion of transcripts [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.841(a); see also §§ 345A.48, 345A.119 (form)].

NOTE:
Certification if No Request. If neither party requests correction of clerk's and/or reporter's transcript within the specified time, the clerk will then certify the record as correct [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.840; see also § 345A.48].

☐ If any party files request for correction of clerk's and/or reporter's transcript, attend hearing on certification [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.841; see also § 345A.48].

[8] Briefs

☐ Prepare opening brief [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.882; see § 345A.56; for a skeletal form of brief, see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs].

☐ Make the following number of copies:

☐ Original and one copy for filing.

NOTE:
Local Requirements. Check local court rules for rule requiring additional copies to be filed with the clerk for assistance of members of court [see, e.g., San Mateo Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 1.2 (requiring three additional carbon copies)].

☐ Copy for respondent.

☐ Office copy;

☐ Copy for client, if desired.

☐ Other copies as desired.

☐ If no extension of time sought, sign, serve, and file opening brief within 30 days after filing of record on appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.882; see § 345A.56].

☐ If needed, obtain extension of time to file brief, by doing the following:

☐ Prepare application that sets forth the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.810; see § 345A.120 (form); see also § 345A.57]:

☐ Good cause for granting application.

☐ Any previous applications granted or denied.

☐ Make the following copies:

☐ Office copy.

☐ Two copies for each party.

☐ File application and serve copy of application on each other party; alternatively, present to presiding judge for filing with additional showing of good cause for excusing advance service.

☐ Provide clerk with addressed, postage prepaid envelopes and one copy for each of the other parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.806; see § 345A.57].

☐ Within 20 days after the filing of respondent's brief, prepare, serve, and file reply brief, if desired [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.882(a)(3); see also § 345A.56].

[9] Voluntary Dismissal or Abandonment of Appeal

☐ If dismissal sought before filing record, prepare written abandonment or stipulation of abandonment and file with trial court clerk (dismissal of appeal is automatic) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.825(b)(2); see § 345A.121 (form); see also § 345A.55[1]].

☐ If dismissal sought after record is filed, prepare request for dismissal or stipulation and file with appellate division clerk [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.825(b)(2); see § 345A.55[2]].

NOTE:
Notice. The clerk will notify the adverse party of the abandonment or dismissal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.825(b)].

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

30-345A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 345A.92

AUTHOR: Hon. Phillip J. Argento Editorial Consultant

NOTE:
Transfer With or Without Party's Request. A court of appeal may order a case on appeal to a superior court transferred to itself for hearing on its own motion or on certification of the superior court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1002]. A case may be certified for transfer on the superior court's own motion, or on application of a party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1005(a)(1)]. The following procedures apply only when transfer is sought by a party applying to the superior court for certification for transfer of an appeal.

[1] Application for Certification

☐ Prepare, file, and serve application any time after record on appeal is filed in appellate division and within 15 days after judgment is pronounced or modification order is filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1005(b); see § 345A.125 (form); see also § 345A.171[4][b], [f]].

NOTE:
No Hearing. The application may be included in a petition for rehearing. No hearing will be held on the application. The court's failure to certify the case within the time allowed is deemed a denial of application [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1005(b)(4)].

[2] Opposition to Certification

☐ Prepare, serve, and file opposition within five days after filing of application for certification [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1005(b)(3); see § 345A.72[4][c]].

[3] Contents of Record

☐ Record on transfer consists of [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1010(a); see also § 345A.72[5]]:

☐ Original record on appeal prepared under Cal. Rules of Ct, Rules 8.830-8.837 in a limited civil case;

☐ Any brief filed in the appellate division; and ☐ Any order or opinion of the appellate division.

[4] Briefs

NOTE:

Brief Limits and Requirements. After transfer, the parties may file briefs in the court of appeal only if ordered by the court [Cal. Rules of Ct.,Rule 8.1012(a)]. The court will prescribe the briefing sequence in any briefing order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1012(a)(1)]. The record on appeal will include the briefs filed with the superior court appellate division [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1012(a)].

☐ If designated appellant in case transferred after trial was held in superior court, do the following:

☐ Prepare, serve, and file opening brief within 20 days after entry of order of transfer [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1012(b)(1)].

☐ If desired, file reply brief within 10 days after filing of respondent's brief, but not later than time of oral argument.

☐ If designated respondent in case transferred after trial was held in superior court, prepare, serve, and file respondent's brief within 20 days after the filing of appellant's opening brief [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1012(b)(2)].

Click here to view image.

The form in [1], above, is an illustrative reproduction of the case questionnaire form adopted by the Judicial Council for use in a limited civil case subject to the economic litigation provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 90-100 [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.31; Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen. A; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 91(a) (actions coming under economic litigation procedure); for discussion, see § 345A.12]. The form sets out questions to be answered by the party serving it relating to the pertinent facts of the case, and includes instructions for its use.

Use of the above questionnaire is initiated by the plaintiff or cross complainant, who may elect to fill it out and serve it on the defendant with the complaint or cross complaint, along with a blank form for use by the defendant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 93(a)]. If the plaintiff serves a case questionnaire, the defendant receiving the service must serve his or her own completed case questionnaire on the plaintiff with the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 93(b)]. For further discussion of case questionnaires, see § 345A.15.

Forms that have been adopted by the Judicial Council are mandatory and must be used [Gov. Code § 68511; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.31]. Copies of this form are required to be made available by the court clerk [Code Civ. Proc. § 93(d)].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[2] Use of Form

The form of request for a statement of witnesses and evidence in [1], above, has been adopted by the Judicial Council for use by a party in a limited civil case subject to the economic litigation provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 90-100 [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.31; Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen. A; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 91(a) (actions coming under economic litigation procedure); § 345A.12]. Forms adopted by the Judicial Council are mandatory and must be used [Gov. Code § 68511; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.31. Copies of this form must be furnished by the court clerk [Code Civ. Proc. § 96(f)]. For further discussion of requests for evidentiary statements, see § 345A.17.

A request for an evidentiary statement may be served on any other party to the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 96(a)]. The form is self-explanatory. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a party in a limited civil case who seeks to conduct discovery in addition to that allowed by the economic litigation provisions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 94]. The court may, on noticed motion and subject to such terms and conditions as are just, authorize a party to conduct additional discovery, but only on a showing that the moving party will be unable to prosecute or defend the action effectively without the additional discovery. In determining whether to allow additional discovery, the court must take into account whether the moving party has used all applicable discovery in good faith, and whether the party has attempted to secure the additional discovery by stipulation or by means other than formal discovery [Code Civ. Proc. § 95(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 95(b) (parties may stipulate to additional discovery); see also § 345A.16].

The motion must be supported by a memorandum [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1112(a), 3.1113]; facts relied on to support the motion must be established by declarations under penalty of perjury [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1112(b), 3.1306(a)]. For detailed coverage of the requirements for motions generally, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is interrogatories designed by the Judicial Council for optional use by parties in a limited civil case subject to the economic litigation provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 90-100 [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 91, 94, 2030.010-2030.410, 2033.710]. Some of these interrogatories are similar to questions in the Case Questionnaire for Limited Civil Cases [see § 345A.100] and may be omitted if the information sought has already been provided in a completed Case Questionnaire.

Form interrogatories may be served on any other party to the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 94]. The form is self-explanatory. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. [2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a notice of appeal designed by the Judicial Council for optional use by parties in a limited civil case [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.821(a)]. The notice is sufficient if it states in substance that the appellant appeals from a specified judgment or order, or a particular part of the judgment. The notice must be signed by the appellant or by his or her attorney [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.821(a)]. The notice must be filed within the time specified in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.822 [see § 345A.39]. The notice must be filed with the clerk of the court from which the appeal is taken [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.821(a)]. An appeal may be taken by any party aggrieved by the judgment or order, or part of the judgment or order, from which the appeal is taken [Code Civ. Proc. § 902; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 903 (who may file notice on behalf of deceased party)]. For further discussion of the notice of appeal, see § 345A.38. For discussion of the time for filing the notice, see § 345A.39.

The notice of appeal may be combined with a notice designating papers and records the appellant desires incorporated in the record on appeal and with the notice to prepare the reporter's transcript [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.831]. For a form of such a combined notice, see § 345A.112[1].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

Presiding Judge

[2] Use of Form

The application in [1], above, is for use by a party seeking an extension of time for doing an act related to a "routine" matter in the reviewing court, such as the filing of appellant's opening brief. The order is for use by the superior court in granting the application [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.810]. For further discussion of applications on routine matters, see § 345A.57.

[3] Requirement of Prepaid Envelopes and Copies

The applicant must provide to the clerk addressed, postage prepaid envelopes and sufficient additional copies of the application for later mailing by the clerk to all other parties of a copy of the order granting or denying the application, together with a copy of the application [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.806(c)]. For further discussion of applications on routine matters, see § 345A.57.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by an appellant to abandon an appeal. It is filed in the office of the clerk of the trial court that made the order or rendered the judgment from which the appeal was taken [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.825]. For further discussion of abandonment, see § 345A.55.

In lieu of this form, the parties may file a stipulation for abandonment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.825]. For a form of stipulation for abandonment that may be adapted for this purpose, see Ch. 48, Appeal: Abandonment, Dismissal, and Stipulated Reversal, § 48.51.

The filing of either a notice of abandonment or stipulation for abandonment operates to dismiss the appeal and to restore the jurisdiction of the trial court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.825]. The dismissal of an appeal is with prejudice unless expressly made without prejudice [Code Civ. Proc. § 913]. On such a dismissal, the appellant is entitled to the return of that portion of any deposit in excess of the actual cost of preparation of the record on appeal up to that time [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.825].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[2] Use of Form

The form set out in [1], above, is for use by a party seeking an award of monetary sanctions against the appellant for a frivolous appeal. The motion should not be made until there are sufficient circumstances on appeal to justify an award of sanctions, normally after the appellant has filed an opening brief. The motion must be supported by a memorandumof points and authorities [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.891(e)], and by a declaration supporting the amount of sanctions being sought [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.891(e)(2)]. It is also advisable to file a declaration stating any facts or circumstances not shown in the record on appeal.

The motion must be accompanied by a proof of service on all parties to the appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.21]. For discussion and forms relating to proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

For further discussion of the motion procedure, including the time for service and filing, see § 345A.60.

§ 346.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses actions related to the formation, operation, and dissolution of limited liability companies (LLCs) under California's Beverly-Killea Limited Liability Company Act [Corp. Code § 17000 et seq.]. The Legal Background covers the following topics:

- Applicability of the Act, including domestic and foreign LLCs [see §§ 346.10, 346.18].
- Description and characteristics of LLCs [see § 346.11].
- Formation of LLCs, including structuring formalities, registration and recordkeeping requirements, and members [see §§ 346.12 -346.14].
- Management of LLCs [see § 346.15].
- Mergers and reorganizations [see § 346.16].
- Dissolution and winding up procedures [see § 346.17].
- Recognition and registration of foreign LLCs [see § 346.18].

Taxation and liability issues that will arise in the formation and operation of an LLC are discussed throughout the chapter where appropriate.

This chapter contains forms for use in all of the following:

- An allegation of capacity and principal place of business for both a domestic and a foreign LLC [see §§ 346.100, 346.101].

- An affirmative defense that a foreign LLC is not qualified to do business in California [see § 346.102].

- A complaint against a member of an LLC on an alter ego theory [see § 346.110].

- A notice of motion, declaration, and order relating to amending a judgment to include members of an alter ego LLC as judgment debtors [see §§ 346.111 -346.113].

- Complaints for making an improper distribution and for failing to make a distribution [see §§ 346.120, 346.121].

- Forms for determining and paying the value of a dissenting interest [see §§ 346.130 -346.136].

- A complaint for involuntary dissolution [see § 346.150].

- Complaints for damages against managers and members of the LLC for breach of specified obligations [see §§ 346.160, 346.161].

- A complaint for indemnification for defense expenses [see § 346.162].

Chapter 346 LIMITED LIABILITY COMPANIES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

30-346 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 346.10

AUTHOR: Hon. Walter L. Blackwell III The Honorable Walter L. Blackwell III is a superior court judge in Barstow, California.

§ 346.10 Governing Law: Beverly-Killea Limited Liability Company Act

[1] Effective Date of Act

On September 30, 1994, Governor Pete Wilson signed legislation enacting the Beverly-Killea Limited Liability Company Act (the "Act") [Stats. 1994, Ch. 1200, § 27 (S.B. 469); see Corp. Code § 17000 et seq.]. As urgency legislation, the Act became effective on that date [Stats. 1994, Ch. 1200, § 100; see also Stats. 1996, Ch. 57 ("clean-up" legislation effective June 6, 1996)]. California joined 45 other states and the District of Columbia that have passed legislation creating the entity known as the limited liability company (an "LLC").

The Act provides for the creation of domestic LLCs [Corp. Code § 17050 et seq.; see § 346.12] and the recognition of foreign LLCs [Corp. Code § 17450 et seq.; see § 346.18].

[2] General Characteristics of Limited Liability Company

An LLC is a relatively new type of business entity that is essentially a hybrid of a corporation and a partnership. If structured properly, a California LLC can have the income tax transparency of a partnership on both the federal and California level, without some of the restrictions imposed on corporations and limited partnerships. Properly structured LLCs can also provide their members, managers, and officers limited liability similar to that enjoyed by corporate shareholders; that is, liability limited to their investments and commitments to invest in the LLC.

LLCs offer great flexibility of form and structure, which can range from the extremely simple to the very complex and, if desired, can closely approximate management and ownership structures of either corporations or partnerships.

LLCs have two basic organizational documents. The first is the articles of organization, Form LLC-1, a one-page statutory form, which must be filed with the Secretary of State. The second is the operating agreement, a vehicle for prescribing the structural details of the LLC. It is permissible to have an oral operating agreement, though prudent practice would indicate having a written agreement. Various other registration forms are also prescribed by the Secretary of State.

For illustrations of these organizational forms, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 12C, Limited Liability Companies (Matthew Bender).

[3] Overriding the Act Through Articles or Operating Agreement

The Act expressly allows an LLC's articles of organization or operating agreement to vary most of the provisions in the Act governing relations among members and relations between members and the LLC [Corp. Code § 17005]. The Act also states that the presence of the words "unless otherwise provided in the articles of organization or operating agreement" (or similar words) in a provision does not imply that other provisions of the Act may not be varied as among members by those documents [Corp. Code § 17005(e)]. In this sense, the "overridable" provisions are "default" provisions, to provide for the matters they cover if the articles or operating agreement is silent on those matters.

Some of these provisions of the Act may be overridden only by the articles or a written operating agreement. These include all of the following:

- The provision that the power to adopt, alter, amend, or repeal an operating agreement is vested in the members [Corp. Code § 17059].

- Certain matters as to members' voting rights [Corp. Code § 17103].

- Certain matters as to meetings of members [Corp. Code § 17104].

- Certain matters as to election, removal, resignation, or expiration of terms of managers [Corp. Code § 17152].

- Provisions regarding appointment, resignation, and removal of officers and their authority [Corp. Code § 17154].

- Provisions regarding indemnification of managers and others, and securing insurance for them [Corp. Code § 17155].

The provision as to the fiduciary duties of a manager [see § 346.15[6]] can be modified only by a written operating agreement "with the informed consent of the members" [Corp. Code § 17005(d)].

Corp. Code § 17005(b) lists several provisions of the Act respecting relations of members that cannot be overridden by articles of organization or an operating agreement. These include the definitions in the Act and a number of voting and other rights of members [Corp. Code § 17005(b)]. Certain other matters relating to formation of LLCs, class and derivative actions, mergers, and dissenting rights of members in reorganizations and dissolution of an LLC may be varied only to the extent expressly provided by the respective statutory provisions [Corp. Code § 17005(c)].

This chapter includes reminders in several key places that a particular provision of the Act may or may not be overridden. But many other provisions of the Act described in this chapter may also be overridden. Therefore, the reader should refer back to this section or to Corp. Code § 17005 for guidance as to whether a particular provision of the Act may be overridden and in what way.

[4] Role of Limited Liability Companies

The Act is designed especially to assist the formation and operation of small, closely-held or closely-controlled business arrangements. But, unlike some other states' LLC statutes, the California Act permits structures sufficiently flexible to be attractive to larger, more complex business ventures. Business areas in which the LLC structure seems particularly useful include real estate, joint ventures (particularly ventures with foreign partners), high technology and venture capital, oil and gas, and theatrical investments. Thus, LLCs are often used as alternatives to general partnerships, limited partnerships, or S corporations.

[5] Prohibited Activities

[a] Prohibition on Professional Practice

The California LLC Act, unlike similar legislation in New York, Delaware, and elsewhere, does not permit a domestic or foreign LLC to render professional services, as that term is defined in Corp. Code § 13401(a) and Corp. Code § 13401.3 [Corp. Code § 17375 (codifying previously uncodified provision); see Stats. 1994, Ch. 1200, § 93]. Under those sections, "professional services" are defined as to be any type of professional services that may be lawfully rendered only pursuant to a license, certification, or registration authorized by the Business and Professions Code, Chiropractic Act, or Osteopathic Act in California [Corp. Code § 13401(a)], and any type of professional services that may be lawfully rendered only pursuant to a license, certification, or registration authorized by the Yacht and Ship Brokers Act [Corp. Code § 13401.3; see Harb. & Nav. Code § 700 et seq.].

Chapter 9 of the Act has been reserved for possible future use if changes in law permit LLCs to render professional services. For the present, however, professional LLCs may not be formed.

[b] Prohibition on Banking, Insurance, or Trust Company Business

Limited liability companies may not engage in the banking business, the business of issuing policies of insurance and assuming insurance risks, or the trust company business [Corp. Code § 17002(a)]. A LLC, however, may operate as a health care service plan licensed pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1340 et seq. if the LLC is a subsidiary of a health care service plan licensed pursuant to those provisions and the LLC is established to serve an existing line of business of the parent health care service plan. The tort or contract liability of a LLC created to operate as a health care service and its members is not limited or restricted in any manner because of the LLC status of the health care service plan. Corp. Code § 17002(b).

[6] Lack of Case Law

Because LLCs have been authorized in California only since September, 1994, there is a shortage of reported California cases involving LLCs. This is expected to change as LLC members, managers, and creditors begin to have disputes and litigate their differences.

PRACTICE TIP:

Interim Guidance. In the absence of specific California case law involving LLCs, reference should be made to California case law on similar issues relating to corporations and partnerships, and to case law of other states involving LLCs, for guidance.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

30-346 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 346.11

AUTHOR: Hon. Walter L. Blackwell III The Honorable Walter L. Blackwell III is a superior court judge in Barstow, California.

§ 346.11 Description and Characteristics of California Limited Liability Companies

[1] Definition and Powers Under the Act

A "limited liability company" or "domestic limited liability company" is an entity with one or more members organized under the Beverly-Killea Limited Liability Company Act that is subject to the provisions on personal liability of members [Corp. Code § 17001(t); see Corp. Code § 17101; see also § 346.14[14]].

An LLC may engage in any lawful business activity, whether or not for profit (subject to any limitations contained in its articles of organization and to compliance with any other applicable laws) except the banking business, the business of issuing policies of insurance and assuming insurance risks, or the trust company business [Corp. Code § 17002(a); see Corp. Code § 17002(b) (operation as licensed health care service plan permitted); see also § 346.10[5][b]], and except for rendering professional services as described in § 346.10[5][a]. In carrying out its business activities, an LLC has all of the powers of a natural person, subject to any limitations contained in its articles of organization and subject to compliance with the Act. These powers include, among others, the following [Corp. Code § 17003]:

- Transact the LLC's business, carry on its operations, and qualify to do business.
- Sue, be sued, complain, or defend in its own name any type of action.
- Make contracts and guarantees, incur liabilities, act as surety, and borrow money.
- Own, transfer, and lease real and personal property.
- Issue, purchase, and redeem securities.

[2] Characteristics of Limited Liability Company

[a] Status as Entity

Because an LLC is an entity [Corp. Code § 17001(t), see § 346.11[1]], it may conduct business, sue and be sued, and exercise all the powers of a natural person, in its own name [see Corp. Code § 17003].

[b] Limited Liability

In general, LLCs afford their members and managers (including officers) limited liability essentially like that enjoyed by a corporate shareholder. They are not personally liable for any debt, liability, or obligation of the LLC arising in "contract, tort, or otherwise" solely by being a member,manager, or officer of the LLC [Corp. Code §§ 17101(a), 17158]. Exceptions to limited liability of members, managers, and officers are discussed in §§ 346.14[14][b] and 346.15[8][b].

[c] Treatment Similar to Partnership for Income Tax Purposes

A properly structured LLC will receive pass-through income tax treatment essentially like that of a partnership. That treatment avoids the double taxation attributable to corporations that are not S corporations; that is, taxation once on the corporate earnings and again on shareholders' dividends. [I.R.C. §§ 1(h)(11), 61(a)(7), 301(a), (c)(1), 316(a)]. Double taxation of dividends, however, is less of a concern during years in which dividends are taxable at lower capital gains rates (generally tax years beginning after December 31, 2002, and before January 1, 2009), but it is still a reason to structure an LLC as a pass-through entity rather than a corporation [see I.R.C. § 1(h)(11); Pub. Law No. 108-27, §§ 302(f)(1), 303 (effective date and sunset provisions for dividend taxation at capital gains rates)]. It also allows other tax benefits as contrasted not only with corporations but also, in a few respects, with partnerships.

For more detailed discussion of the tax aspects of limited partnerships, see Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, Ch. 24A, Limited Liability Companies (Matthew Bender).

[d] Members

Every LLC must have at least one member [see Corp. Code § 17001(t); see also § 346.14[1]]. A membership interest includes the member's economic interest in the LLC, any right to vote or participate in management, and any right to information about the affairs of the LLC [Corp. Code § 17001(z)]. The interest may, but need not, be issued in the form of certificates of interest. An "interest" in an LLC is a security under the Corporate Securities Law of 1968, except for a membership interest in an LLC in which the person claiming an exception can prove that all of the members are actively engaged in managing the LLC [Corp. Code § 25019]. This section includes requirements as to evidentiary matters as to proving active engagement in management.

[3] Taxation of Limited Liability Companies

[a] Minimum California Franchise Tax

Every LLC or foreign LLC classified as a partnership for California tax purposes that is doing business in California, organized in California, or registered with the Secretary of State is required to file a California tax return [Rev. & Tax. Code § 18633.5(a) (which also requires Franchise Tax Board to prescribe manner and extent to which required information must be included with return)]. It must pay an annual minimum franchise tax of $800 for the privilege of doing business in California [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 17941(a), 23153(d)(1)]. This tax must be paid annually until a certificate of cancellation of articles of organization (LLCs) or certificate of cancellation of registration (foreign LLCs) is filed with the Secretary of State [Rev. & Tax. Code § 17941(b)(1)]. If a taxpayer files a return with the Franchise Tax Board that is designated as its final return, the Franchise Tax Board will notify the taxpayer that the annual tax will continue to be due annually until a certificate of cancellation is filed with the Secretary of State pursuant to Corp. Code §§ 17356 or 17455 [Rev. & Tax. Code § 17941(b)(2)].

An LLC is not subject to the franchise tax for a taxable year if [Rev. & Tax. Code § 17947(a)]:

- It files a timely final annual return [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 17947(b) (definition)] for the preceding taxable year;

- It does not do business in California after the end of the taxable year for which it filed the final return; and

- It files a certificate of cancellation [see Corp. Code §§ 17356, 17455] with the Secretary of State before the end of the 12-month period beginning with the date the final return was filed.

PRACTICE TIP:

When to Pay Franchise Tax. An LLC should wait to be billed for the annual minimum franchise tax; if an LLC submits this payment with its articles of organization or its application for registration, it will be taxed as a corporation [see Secretary of State's letter accompanying LLC form packet].

If the Secretary of State files a certificate of cancellation pursuant to Corp. Code § 17350.5 (concerning a certificate of cancellation filed within 12 months of filing the articles of organization if the LLC has not conducted any business) [see § 346.17[5]], then Rev. & Tax. Code § 23153(f)(1) will provide an exemption from the minimum franchise tax as if the LLC were properly treated as a corporation for that purpose only, and Rev. & Tax. Code § 23153(f)(2) (excluding LLCs from that exemption) will not apply. However, the LLC is not entitled to receive reimbursement for annual taxes or fees already paid [Rev. & Tax. Code § 17941(e)].

[b] California Fee Based on Income

In addition to the minimum franchise tax [see § 346.11[3][a]], every LLC or foreign LLC subject to the franchise tax [Rev. & Tax. Code § 17941] must also pay a graduated annual fee based on its total income of $250,000 or more from all sources derived from or attributable to California [Rev. & Tax. Code § 17942(a); see Rev. & Tax. Code § 17942(b) (definition); see also Rev. & Tax. Code § 19394 (claiming refund of discriminatory fee under Rev. & Tax. Code § 17942)]. The fee ranges from $900 to $11,790 [Rev. & Tax. Code § 17942(a)].

[c] Net Income Taxes

If properly structured, an LLC is a pass-through tax entity for California and federal income tax purposes much like a partnership, and so its members, not the LLC, pay tax on its net income much as partners would [I.R.C. § 701; see § 346.11[2][c]]. The LLC, in this case, is essentially an accounting entity.

Although the LLC is disregarded as an entity for federal tax purposes, it appears that the IRS may not be entitled to disregard the entity for purposes of collecting taxes owed by an individual LLC member. Thus, in a situation in which the IRS issued a notice of levy on the assets of an LLC which was validly formed under the laws of West Virginia and solely owned by an individual taxpayer, in order to satisfy that taxpayer's tax liability, it was determined that the IRS can only collect from the property of the taxpayer to satisfy that taxpayer's liability. State law controls in determining the nature of a person's interest in property for purposes of determining whether a tax lien or levy attaches, and in this case pursuant to the state LLC statutes the taxpayer had no property in the LLC's property. The mere fact that the LLC entity is disregarded for federal tax purposes does not entitle the IRS to disregard the entity for purposes of collection. The IRS, however, may have several collection options, including collecting the taxpayer's distributive interest in the LLC or collecting from the LLC's assets on the basis that it is the taxpayer's alter ego [see I.R.S. Internal Litigation Memorandum 199930013 (April 18, 1999)].

If business requirements, such as freedom of management structure, are more important to an LLC than partnership income tax treatment, the LLC may choose to be taxed as a corporation, and pay the two levels of tax inherent in the corporate structure (once on LLC earnings and again on member dividends) [see I.R.C. §§ 1(h)(11) (taxation of qualified dividends at capital gains rates), 61(a)(7), 301(a), (c)(1), 316(a)]. In this case, the LLC will be treated by the IRS and the FTB as a corporation for tax purposes.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

30-346 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 346.12

AUTHOR: Hon. Walter L. Blackwell III The Honorable Walter L. Blackwell III is a superior court judge in Barstow, California.

§ 346.12 Formation of Limited Liability Company

[1] General Requirements

An LLC must have at least one member [Corp. Code § 17050(b)] and is subject to the provisions on personal liability of members [Corp. Code § 17001(t); see Corp. Code § 17101; see also § 346.14[14]]. Members may be natural persons, partnerships, limited partnerships, trusts, estates, associations, corporations, other LLCs, or other types of entities, whether domestic or foreign [Corp. Code § 17001(x), (ae)].

Forming an LLC is simple: it comes into existence when its articles of organization are filed with the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 17050(c); see [3], below]. Before or after (presumably promptly after) that filing, the members must enter into a written or oral operating agreement [Corp. Code § 17050(a); see [4], below].

[2] Name

[a] Requirements

The Act sets forth specific requirements regarding an LLC's name. The name of the LLC must be set forth in the articles of organization [Corp. Code § 17052; see [3][b], below]. Chiefly, the name must not be one that the Secretary of State determines is likely to mislead the public, and must not be the same as, or resemble so closely as to tend to deceive, the name of an existing domestic or registered foreign LLC (absent consent) or a name already reserved by an LLC or foreign LLC [Corp. Code § 17052(c); see [b], below].

The last words of the name must be "limited liability company" or the abbreviation "LLC" or "L.L.C." The words "limited" and "company" may be abbreviated to "Ltd." and "Co." respectively [Corp. Code § 17052(a)]. The words "bank," "trust," "trustee," "incorporated," "inc.," "corporation," or "corp." may not be used in the name of an LLC. Furthermore, the name must not contain the words "insurer" or "insurance company" or any other words suggesting that the LLC is in the business of issuing policies of insurance and assuming insurance risks [Corp. Code § 17052(d)]. An LLC's name should not be indicative of a "professional service" [Secretary of State's letter accompanying LLC form packet; see Corp. Code § 13401(a)].

An LLC's name may contain the name of one or more of its members [Corp. Code § 17052(b)].

[b] Reservation

On payment of the required fee [see Gov. Code § 12190(a)], an applicant may reserve an approved LLC name with the Secretary of State for 60 days. The same person may not reserve the same name for consecutive 60-day periods [Corp. Code § 17053], but may do so with breaks between 60-day periods.

[3] Articles of Organization

[a] Filing Requirements

Articles of organization must be filed on Form LLC-1. This form may be obtained from any office of the Secretary of State. However, the articles, like all mandatory LLC forms, must be filed with the Limited Liability Company Unit in the Sacramento office of the Secretary of State [see Secretary of State's letter accompanying LLC form packet]. The articles must be executed by one or more persons, and submitted for filing with the applicable filing fee [Corp. Code § 17050(a); see Gov. Code § 12190(b) (fee)]. Along with instructional materials provided in conjunction with the form for filing articles of organization, the Secretary of State is required to include a notice that filing the registration will obligate the limited liability company to pay an annual tax for that taxable year to the Franchise Tax Board pursuant to Rev. & Tax. Code § 17941. The notice must be updated annually to specify the dollar amount of the tax [Corp. Code § 17050(d)].

[b] Contents

The articles of organization of an LLC must set forth all of the following [Corp. Code § 17051(a)]:

- The name of the LLC.
- A statement regarding the purpose of the LLC in the form specified by the Act.
- The name and address of the LLC's initial agent for service of process.
- If it is to be managed by managers and not by all of its members, a statement to that effect. If it is to be managed by only one manager, a statement to that effect [see Form LLC-1].

PRACTICE TIP:
Management by Members. The Act contains a default provision stating that if the articles of organization are silent on the issue of management, the LLC will be deemed to be managed by its members [Corp. Code §§ 17150, 17151(b)]. An LLC may elect management by managers after the initial filing of the articles by amending them, or by executing restated articles [see [d], [e], below].

It is not necessary to set out in the articles any of the powers of the LLC [Corp. Code § 17051(b)]. However, the articles may include other provisions not inconsistent with law, including provisions limiting or restricting the business or powers of the LLC; governing admission of members; the time at which the LLC is to dissolve; events that will cause dissolution of the LLC [see § 346.17[1]]; a statement of whether there are limitations on the authority of managers or members to bind the LLC and if so what they are; and the names of the managers of the LLC [Corp. Code § 17051(c)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Optional Matters in Articles. Because the articles of organization are a public document and can be changed only by formal amendment filed with the Secretary of State and, unless otherwise provided in the articles or a written operating agreement, require the unanimous vote of all members for their amendment, it may be desirable not to include optional matters in the articles.

[c] Articles of Organization Govern Operating Agreement

If any provision of the articles of an LLC conflicts with its written operating agreement, the articles control [Corp. Code § 17005(f); see [4], below].

[d] Amendment of Articles

Subject to the requirement that at least a majority in interest of the members vote to amend [Corp. Code § 17103(b)], the members of an LLC may amend its articles at any time [Corp. Code § 17054(a)]. An amendment may make any change in the articles determined by the members and that would be lawful to insert in original articles filed at the time the amendment is filed [Corp. Code § 17054(a)].

To amend articles, at least one manager of the LLC (or if it has no managers, one member) must file a certificate of amendment (Form LLC-2) with the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 17054(b)]. The certificate must contain the LLC's name, its Secretary of State's file number, and the text of the amendment [Corp. Code § 17054(b)].

A certificate of amendment to articles must be filed to effect the following [Corp. Code § 17054(c)]:

- A change in the name of the LLC.
- A change in the statement regarding the existence of managers [see Corp. Code § 17151(b)].
- A change in the time for dissolution of the LLC.
- A change in the events that will cause dissolution of the LLC.

In addition, a certificate of amendment must be filed within 30 days of discovery by a manager of any false or erroneous material statement in the articles [Corp. Code § 17054(d)].

A manager may be liable for misstatements in a certificate of amendment [Corp. Code § 17054(e); see § 346.15[8][b][iii]].

[e] Restatement of Articles

An LLC's articles of organization may be restated at any time by filing Form LLC-10 with the Secretary of State. In general, the restated articles must contain all the information required to be included in the original articles [Corp. Code § 17054(f); see Corp. Code § 17051 (requirements for original articles); see also [b], above]. For additional discussion and an illustration of form LLC-10, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 12C, Limited Liability Companies (Matthew Bender).

[f] Recording of Articles

An LLC may record with any county recorder a certified copy of its articles of organization and any exhibits, attachments, or amendments filed with the Secretary of State. A foreign LLC may record a certified copy of its application for registration, certificate of registration, or any amendment filed in the office of the Secretary of State. The recording will create a conclusive presumption in favor of any bona fide purchaser or encumbrancer for value of the LLC's real property located in the county in which the certified copy has been recorded of the statements contained in the document [Corp. Code § 17052(f)].

[4] Operating Agreement

The members of an LLC must enter into an operating agreement either before or after filing of its articles [Corp. Code § 17050(a)]. The Act defines an "operating agreement" as any agreement, written or oral, among all the members as to the affairs of the LLC and the conduct of its business in a manner not inconsistent with law or its articles, including amendments [Corp. Code § 17001(ab)].

The operating agreement may be written or oral and may be as simple as an agreement to organize an LLC [Corp. Code § 17001(ab) ("operating agreement" defined)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Desirability of Written Operating Agreement. Except in unusual circumstances or when the terms of the operating agreement are relatively simple and readily provable, it seems advisable that an operating agreement be written, since it is likely to be the key document of an LLC. A written agreement may help to avoid (1) future disagreements among members and between members and managers, (2) arguments against limited liability protection based on a lack of operating agreement or the inadequacy of the agreement (for example, insufficient structuring of capital accounts), and (3) suggestions that counsel is involved in the issuance of securities.

Depending, among other things, on whether the LLC will be managed by its members or by managers other than all of the members and the complexity of the desired business structure, the operating agreement may need to contain provisions somewhat akin to those in corporate bylaws and certainly many of the provisions that would be contained in a well thought out partnership agreement. The operating agreement should also specify any respects in which the "default provisions" of the initial Act [see § 346.10[3]] are to be changed or rendered inapplicable to the LLC. Some changes to default provisions must be in a written operating agreement to be effective [Corp. Code § 17005(b)-(d)].

A well-drafted, relatively detailed operating agreement should contain some or all of the following types of provisions: definition of terms used in it; provisions as to accounting, records, financial statements and reports; names and addresses of members; rights and duties of members; if the LLC is to be managed by the members, provisions as to management and as to a management group of members, if any; if it is to be managed by managers, the necessary details of that management [see § 346.15]; contributions; capital accounts and capital structure; allocations of profits and losses and any special allocations; distributions; various tax matters such as tax elections and identification of the equivalent of a tax matters partner; disposition of interests of members; termination of memberships and rights of members holding terminated memberships; assignment of membership interests and admission of additional members; withdrawal of members; dissolution and winding up; amendment; and other provisions common to detailed contracts, including statements of consideration, provisions for notice, severability, integration, governing law, and confidentiality (if appropriate). For detailed discussion and a complete operating agreement, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 12C, Limited Liability Companies (Matthew Bender).

Many corporate bylaws or partnership agreements include, without changes, many of the matters already provided for by the relevant governing law simply as a convenient and readily available catalog. Consideration should be given, depending on the circumstances of a particular LLC, to whether this is desirable. In addition, as noted above, the operating agreement should cover any matters as to which the Act's default rules are changed.

The power to adopt and change the operating agreement of an LLC is vested in its members but its articles of organization or a written operating agreement may prescribe the manner in which the operating agreement may be changed [Corp. Code § 17059].

The operating agreement may not be filed with the Secretary of State [see Secretary of State's letter accompanying LLC form packet].

[5] Biennial Statement

Every LLC, whether domestic or foreign, must file a statement of information (Form LLC-12 for an initial statement or Form LLC-12R thereafter) with the Secretary of State within 90 days after filing its original articles of organization and biennially thereafter [Corp. Code § 17060(a)]. If no required information has changed since the previous statement was filed, an LLC may, in lieu of filing a biennial statement, advise the Secretary of State that no changes in the required information have occurred [Corp. Code § 17060(b)]. If a statement is not filed as required, an LLC is subject to monetary penalties and possible suspension of its powers and rights [Corp. Code §§ 17651(b), 17653, 17654].

§ 346.13 Agent, Office, and Recordkeeping Requirements

[1] Agent for Service of Process

An LLC must continuously maintain an agent in California for service of process on it [Corp. Code § 17057(b)].

[2] Office in California

An LLC must continuously maintain an office located in California at which it keeps required records [Corp. Code § 17057(a); see [3], below]. Within California the office may be located where the managers of the LLC choose.

[3] Records Required to Be Kept at Office

An LLC must keep the following records, in writing or in any other form capable of being converted into clearly legible tangible form, at its office in California [Corp. Code § 17058(a)]:

- A current list of the full name and last known business or residence address of each member and each holder of an economic interest in the LLC and the contribution and share in profits and losses of each member and holder of an economic interest.

- A current list of any managers [see Corp. Code § 17151(b)].

- A copy of its articles of organization, any amendments to the articles, and executed copies of any powers of attorney relating to the execution of the articles.

- Copies of federal, state, and local income tax or information returns and reports for the six most recent taxable years.

- A copy of any written operating agreement, any amendments to the agreement, and executed copies of any powers of attorney relating to the execution of the agreement.

- Copies of the LLC's financial statements for the six most recent fiscal years.

- The LLC's books and records as they relate to its internal affairs for at least the current and past four fiscal years.

On an assessor's request, an LLC owning, claiming, possessing, or controlling property in California must make relevant business records available [Corp. Code § 17058(b)]. In addition, LLC members have the right to inspect records [Corp. Code § 17106; see § 346.14[11]].

An LLC failing to comply with these recordkeeping requirements after a written request to do so by a member is subject to daily monetary penalties up to a stated maximum [Corp. Code § 17651].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

30-346 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 346.14

AUTHOR: Hon. Walter L. Blackwell III The Honorable Walter L. Blackwell III is a superior court judge in Barstow, California.

§ 346.14 Members

[1] "Member" Defined

A "member" of an LLC is a person who has been admitted as a member in accordance with its articles of organization or operating agreement or is an assignee of an interest in the LLC who has become a member, and who has not resigned, withdrawn, or been expelled or dissolved [Corp. Code § 17001(x)]. The term "person" includes natural persons and most other types of entities, domestic and foreign [Corp. Code § 17001(ae)]. An LLC must have one or more members [Corp. Code §§ 17001(t), 17050(b)].

[2] "Membership Interest" Defined

A "membership interest" in an LLC is a member's rights in the LLC, collectively, including the member's economic interest, any right to vote or participate in its management, and any rights to information concerning its business and affairs provided by the Act [Corp. Code § 17001(z)]. "Economic interest" means a person's right to share in income, gains, losses, deductions, credit, or similar items of and receive distributions from an LLC but does not include any other rights of a member including rights to vote or to participate in management or, with some exceptions, rights to information concerning the business and affairs of the LLC [Corp. Code § 17001(n)]. Unlike a membership interest, which may or may not be a security under the Corporate Securities Law of 1968, an economic interest apparently is always a security under that Act [see § 346.11[2][e]]. A membership interest is personal property and neither a member nor an assignee has any interest in specific LLC property [Corp. Code § 17300].

A member's interest in an LLC is not subject to execution if the LLC is not a judgment debtor [Code Civ. Proc. § 699.720(a)(2)]. An employee's interest in an LLC issued pursuant to a membership interest purchase or option plan, or an officer's or manager's membership interest issued in any transaction in connection with securing employment, is not subject to Labor Code provisions governing employee investments in an employer's business [Corp. Code § 17100(d); see Lab. Code §§ 406, 407].

[3] Classes of Members

The articles or a written operating agreement may provide for different classes of members. A class may have such relative rights, powers, and duties, which may be senior or subordinate to other classes, as provided by those documents [Corp. Code § 17103(a)].

[4] Becoming a Member

On formation of an LLC, its members are the persons who enter into its operating agreement before or after filing of its articles of organization [Corp. Code § 17050(a)]. After an LLC is formed, a person may become a member by acquiring a membership interest from it in conformity with its articles of organization or operating agreement or, if those documents do not otherwise provide,a majority in interest of the members, excluding the vote of the person acquiring the membership interest, and only when the person becomes a party to the operating agreement [Corp. Code § 17100(a)(1)].

A person who is an assignee of a membership interest may become a member on the unanimous vote (or if so provided in the articles or operating agreement, a smaller vote) of the other members and by complying with the articles or operating agreement or, if those documents do not so provide, when the person becomes a party to the operating agreement [Corp.Code § 17100(a)(2)]. Thus, even if membership interests are freely assignable, an assignee can become a member only as set forth in the preceding sentence.

The operating agreement may provide that interests of members or assignees may be evidenced by certificates and provide for their transfer [Corp. Code § 17105].

[5] Rights and Duties of Members

[a] Rights Contained in Articles of Organization or Operating Agreement

Membership rights and responsibilities generally are determined by the operating agreement or articles of organization. If those documents are silent, the Act provides default provisions [see § 346.10[3]; see also Corp. Code §§ 17100-17104].

Particularly important issues to consider include members' rights concerning classes of members, capital contributions, allocations of profits and losses, distributions, voting, management rights (and rights as to managers), transfer of interests, and dissolution or merger.

[b] Transfer of Interests

Members may freely assign or encumber their economic interests [see [2], above; see also Corp. Code § 17001(n)] independent of their membership interests. Free transferability of economic interests does not give an LLC the corporate characteristic of free transferability, as long as the transfer of the membership interest is adequately restricted [see § 346.11[2][c]]. They also may transfer their membership interests at any time with the consent of a majority in interest of the members not transferring their interests [Corp. Code §§ 17301(a), 17303(a)]. Assignment of an economic interest does not of itself dissolve an LLC or, except as set forth in articles of organization or the operating agreement, entitle the assignee to vote and participate in the management and affairs of the LLC or to become or exercise any rights of a member [Corp. Code § 17301(a)(2)]. The assignment merely entitles the assignee to receive, to the extent assigned, economic benefits to which the assignor would have been entitled [Corp. Code § 17301(a)(3)]. In contrast, the assignment or transfer of a membership interest entitles the assignee to all of the rights and powers, and certain of the obligations, of a member [Corp. Code § 17303(a), (b)].

[c] Class and Derivative Actions

Any member of a domestic or foreign LLC may bring a class action on behalf of all or a class of members to enforce a claim common to those members and may bring derivative actions in the name or right of the LLC. This type of class action is governed by the general law applicable to class actions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 382; see also Ch. 120, Class Actions]. However, in order to maintain a class action with regard to an LLC, there is no requirement that the class be so numerous that joinder of all members of the class is impractical [Corp. Code §§ 17500, 17501].

No action may be brought unless both of the following conditions exist [Corp. Code § 17501(a)]:

- The plaintiff alleges in the complaint that he or she was a member of record or beneficiary at the time of the transaction complained of, or that the interest devolved upon him or her from a person who was a member at the time of such transaction; and

- The plaintiff alleges in the complaint with particularity his or her efforts to obtain the desired action from the LLC's managers, and that he or she has informed the LLC or its managers in writing of each cause of action.

[6] Authority of Members

Unless the articles provide that an LLC will be managed by one or more managers [Corp. Code § 17151(b)], every member is an agent of the LLC for the purpose of its business and affairs [Corp. Code § 17157(a)]. The act of any member for the apparent purpose of carrying on in the usual way the LLC's business and affairs binds it, unless the member has no actual authority to act for it in the particular matter and the person with whom the member is dealing actually knows that the member has no such authority [Corp. Code § 17157(a)]. A member acting in contravention of a restriction on authority cannot bind the LLC to persons actually knowing of the restriction [Corp. Code § 17157(c)].

If the LLC is managed by one or more managers, then no member, acting solely as such, is an agent of the LLC or can bind or act for the LLC [Corp. Code § 17157(b)(1)].

[7] Capital Contributions and Accounts of Members

[a] In General

The articles or operating agreement of an LLC may provide for capital contributions of members, which may be in money, property, or services, or an obligation to contribute any of those things to the LLC [Corp. Code § 17200(a)]. The Act does not require that members make capital contributions, but some member capital is likely to be needed by the business and adequate capitalization may be necessary for members to avoid shareholder-like liability [see [14][b][i], below]. Subject to the articles or operating agreement, a member is not excused from an agreement to make a contribution to the LLC because of death, disability, dissolution, or other reason [Corp. Code § 17201(a)(1)]. For a complaint for use by an LLC against a member for failure to make a required contribution, see § 346.161.

A member who does not make an agreed contribution of property or services may, at the LLC's option, be required to contribute an amount of cash equal to the fair market value (or written agreed value, if any) of the contribution not made [Corp. Code § 17201(a)(2)]. This option is in addition to other rights under the articles, the operating agreement, or applicable law.

An operating agreement may provide that the interest of a member who fails to make any agreed contribution or other payment will be subject to specified remedies or consequences. Such a provision is enforceable in accordance with its terms unless the member seeking to invalidate it establishes that it was unreasonable under the circumstances at the time the agreement was made. The Act lists a number of specific remedies which may be provided, including loss of voting rights and rights to participate in management of the LLC or reduction of the defaulting member's economic rights, including specified specific methods of reduction [Corp. Code § 17201(a)(3)].

The capital contribution of a member to an LLC is to be credited to a capital account established for the member. That account will consist of the original contribution, increased by any additional contribution and the member's share of profits and decreased by any distribution to the member and by that member's share of losses [see Corp. Code § 17001(d)].

The obligation of a member to make a contribution may be compromised only by the unanimous vote of the other members. Notwithstanding any such compromise, a person whose claim against an LLC arose before receipt of notice of such a compromise may enforce the original obligation to make the contribution but any other person with a claim may enforce only the existing obligation to make a contribution after giving effect to the compromise [Corp. Code § 17201(b)].

If an obligation of a member to make a contribution is conditional, a person with a claim against the LLC may not enforce the obligation unless the conditions have been satisfied or waived. "Conditional obligations" include, among other things, a capital contribution payable on a discretionary call of the LLC before the call occurs [Corp. Code § 17201(c)].

[b] Additional Contributions of Members

Absent a provision to the contrary in the articles or operating agreement, no member is required to make a capital contribution other than any agreed initial contribution [Corp. Code § 17200(b)]. If additional contribution is required, the obligation to make it and the remedies for failure to do so are the same as those described above as to an initial contribution [Corp. Code § 17201].

[c] Tax Consequences of Contributions

Various tax consequences arise for both the member and the LLC from a member's contribution to an LLC. For example, a contribution of services by a member to an LLC in exchange for an interest in the LLC is a taxable event for the member. However, providing services to an LLC in exchange for a profit interest would not be a taxable event for either the member of the LLC [Rev. Proc. 93-27, 1993-2 C.B. 343]. There are likely to be other tax consequences from the receipt of services by the LLC. Allocations of LLC tax items among the members may depend on conformity to IRS rules, among other things, as to capital accounts [see Treas. Reg. § 1.704-1(b)(2)(iv)].

[8] Profits, Losses, and Distributions

Profits and losses of an LLC and distributions to members are allocated among them, and among the classes of members, as provided in the operating agreement. If the operating agreement does not otherwise provide, profits and losses are allocated in proportion to the contributions of each member [Corp. Code § 17202]. If the operating agreement does not otherwise provide, distributions that are a return of capital are allocated in proportion to the contributions of each member, and distributions that are not a return of capital are made in proportion to the allocation of profits [Corp. Code § 17250].

At the time that a member becomes entitled to receive a distribution, the member has the status of a creditor of the LLC with respect to the distribution and is entitled to all remedies available to creditors, subject to limitations on distributions that would result in insolvency [Corp. Code § 17250; see Corp. Code §§ 17254, 17353]. The operating agreement may provide for establishing a record date with respect to the sharing of profits and distributions [Corp. Code § 17250].

A member is entitled to receive distributions from an LLC while a member and before dissolution and winding up of the LLC, as specified in the operating agreement, subject to certain limitations on distributions that would result in insolvency [Corp. Code §§ 17251, 17254].

A member does not have the right to demand a distribution, and may not be forced to accept a distribution, except in cash or except on dissolution and winding up of an LLC [Corp. Code § 17253].

[9] Voting

Voting rights may be tailored on almost any basis desired by those forming an LLC. The articles or a written operating agreement may provide all or certain identified members or a specified class or group of members the right to vote separately or with all or any class or group of members on any matter and voting may be on a per capita, number, financial interest, class, group or other basis [Corp. Code § 17103(a); see [3], above (classes of members)]. If no voting provision is contained in the articles or a written operating agreement, members vote in proportion to their interests in current profits (or in the case of a member whose entire economic interest in the LLC has been assigned to a person who is not a member, the interest in current profits the assigning member would have had if the assignment had not been made) [Corp. Code § 17103(a)(1)].

Any amendment of the articles or operating agreement requires the unanimous vote of all members [Corp. Code § 17103(a)(2)]. In all other matters in which a vote is required, a vote of the majority in interest of the members is sufficient [Corp. Code § 17103(a)(3)]. In no event may the articles be amended by a vote of less than a majority in interest of the members and members must be afforded the right to vote on a merger of the LLC or on its dissolution [Corp. Code § 17103(b), (c)]. These amendment provisions may not be overridden [Corp. Code § 17005(b)(3)].

It may be desirable to require unanimous consent for mergers with entities other than LLCs, given the potential tax consequences and changes in personal liability, rights, and duties and other matters that can occur with such a change in type of business entity.

[10] Members' Meetings

Members' meetings may be held at any placeby electronic video screen communication or by electronic transmittal by and to the LLC [see Corp. Code § 17001(o)(1),(2)], in or out of California specified by the caller of the meeting or by articles of organization or a written operating agreement. If no location is so specified, meetings are to be held at the principal executive office of the LLC [Corp. Code § 17104(a)]. Unless prohibited by the articles of organization of the LLC and if authorized by the operating agreement, members not physically present in person or by proxy at a meeting of members may do any of the following by electronic transmission by and to the LLC [see Corp. Code § 17001(o)(1), (2)] or by electronic video screen communication [Corp. Code § 17104(a)]:

- Participate in a meeting of members;
- Be deemed present in person or by proxy; and
- Vote at a meeting of members, whether that meeting is to be held at a designated place or in whole or in part by means of electronic transmission by and to the LLC or by electronic video screen communication.

A members' meeting may be called by a manager or by one or more members representing more than 10 percent of the interests of members [Corp. Code § 17104(b)]. Meetings must be noticed, conducted, and adjourned and special meetings may be called and adjourned as specified in the Act [Corp. Code § 17104(c)-(e), (g), (h)]. A majority in interest of the members represented at a meeting constitutes a quorum [Corp. Code § 17104(h)]. Record dates may be set much as in the case of business corporations [Corp. Code § 17104(k)]. Proxies may be used much as for corporations formed under the General Corporation Law [Corp. Code § 17104(j)]. Members may participate in meetings by use of conference phones or electronic video screen communication [see Corp. Code §§ 17001(o)(1),(2), 17104(f)]. Note that many of these rules may be varied by a written operating agreement [see §§ 346.10[3], 346.12[4]].

Actions that may be taken at a meeting may be taken without a meeting if written consent is received within a specified time from a sufficient number of members [Corp. Code § 17104(i)].

A meeting of the members may be conducted, in whole or in part, by electronic transmission by and to the LLC or by electronic video screen communication, if both of the following requirements are met [Corp. Code § 17104(l)]:

- The LLC implements reasonable measures to provide members (in person or by proxy) a reasonable opportunity to participate in the meeting and to vote on matters submitted to the members, including an opportunity to read or hear the proceedings of the meeting substantially concurrently with those proceedings.

- When any member votes or takes other action at the meeting by means of electronic transmission to the LLC or electronic video screen communication, a record of that vote or action must be maintained by the LLC.

[11] Information and Inspection Rights

The Act provides certain rights to members and holders of economic interests in LLCs to obtain information and to inspect records, to receive annual reports, financial statements, and federal and state income tax information [Corp. Code § 17106]. These rights cannot be varied by the articles of organization or an operating agreement [Corp. Code § 17005(b)(4)].

Special reporting requirements apply to LLCs with more than 35 members [see Corp. Code § 17106(c)].

If the members of a foreign limited liability company residing in California represent 25 percent or more of the voting interests of members of that limited liability company, those members are entitled to all information and inspection rights provided in Corp. Code § 17106 [Corp. Code § 17453; Burkle v. Burkle (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 1029, 1039-1040, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 562 ("those members" unambiguously refers to California members and merely distinguishes members residing in California from members residing elsewhere, who are not entitled to inspection rights under California law)].

[12] Withdrawal of Members

The articles or operating agreement may provide that a member may withdraw, resign, or retire from an LLC at the time or on the happening of events specified in the operating agreement, or that a member does not have the right to withdraw, resign, or retire [Corp. Code § 17252(a); see Corp. Code § 17001(as) ("withdrawal" defined to include the resignation or retirement of a member)]. Notwithstanding any such restriction, a member nevertheless may withdraw at any time by giving notice to the other members. Unless the articles or operating agreement provide otherwise, however, the withdrawn member is not entitled to payment for the member's interest in the LLC. Beginning on the date of withdrawal, the withdrawn member has only the right of a holder of an economic interest [see Corp. Code § 17001(n) (definition); see also § 346.14[2] with respect to the withdrawn member's interest in the LLC, and then only with respect to any distributions to which the holder of an economic interest is entitled under the operating agreement. Furthermore, the withdrawn member will no longer be a member of the LLC [Corp. Code § 17252(a)]. If the withdrawal, resignation, or retirement is in violation of the operating agreement, the LLC has the right to offset any damages for breach of the operating agreement from any amounts otherwise distributable to the withdrawn member with respect to that members's economic interest in the LLC [Corp. Code § 17252(a)]. Upon a member's withdrawal, the list of members must be amended accordingly [Corp. Code § 17252(b); see Corp. Code § 17058(a)(1)].

[13] Termination of Membership Interests

An LLC's operating agreement may provide for termination in whole or part of membership interests and economic interests. If an economic interest is so terminated, the member is entitled to demand and receive a return of that interest [Corp. Code § 17100(c)].

[14] Liability of Members

[a] General Non-Liability

In general, a member of an LLC is not personally liable for any debt, obligation, or liability of the LLC arising in contract, tort, or otherwise solely by reason of being a member [Corp. Code § 17101(a)]. However, there are a number of situations in which members may be personally liable for actions taken as members. The most important of these are covered in § 346.14[14][b].

[b] Situations Giving Rise to Personal Liability

[i] Liability Comparable to That of a Shareholder

A member of an LLC is subject to liability under the common law governing alter ego liability. A member of an LLC is also personally liable under a judgment of a court or for an obligation of the LLC arising in contract, tort, or otherwise under the same or similar circumstances and to the same extent as a shareholder of a corporation may be personally liable for such an obligation of the corporation, except that failure to hold meetings or to observe formalities pertaining to calling or conducting meetings may not be considered a factor tending to establish alter ego or personal liability when the articles of organization or operating agreement do not expressly require the holding of meetings of members or managers [Corp. Code § 17101(b)].

When a person is sued on the theory that an LLC is the person's alter ego, that person probably has standing to enforce the LLC's agreement to arbitrate the underlying dispute, even though that person was not a party to the agreement [see Rowe v. Exline (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1276, 1285, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 787 (rule applied in case involving corporation)]. For discussion of enforcement of an arbitration agreement, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration .

[ii] Improper Distributions

Personal liability will attach for receiving improper distributions (that is, distributions that, if made, would render the LLC insolvent) made before or during the winding up of an LLC [Corp. Code §§ 17101(a), (c), 17254]. A member or assignee of a member is personally obligated to return an improper distribution from an LLC to the extent that the member or assignee had actual knowledge of facts indicating the impropriety of the distribution [Corp. Code § 17254(e)].

Moreover, a member or manager who votes for a distribution in violation of the operating agreement or that is improper under the Act is personally liable to the LLC for the amount of the distribution that exceeds what could have properly been paid if the member or manager had acted in compliance with the relevant sections of the Act governing distributions [Corp. Code § 17255(a)].

For a complaint for use by an LLC against a member for receiving an improper distribution, see § 346.120.

[iii] Failure to Pay Taxes

Personal liability may also attach to a member who is responsible for an LLC that collects sales tax and fails to remit this tax to the State Board of Equalization [Rev. & Tax. Code § 6829(c)]. Notwithstanding any provision in the Corporations Code to the contrary if the SBE can show that the member had a duty to comply with Rev. & Tax. Code § 6829, and that he or she willfully failed to pay or failed to cause the LLC to pay the taxes, personal liability will result [Rev. & Tax. Code § 6829(a); see Rev. & Tax. Code § 6829(d) ("willfully" defined), (e), (f) (collection and notice of deficiency)]; see also State Board of Equalization v. Wirick (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 411, 413, 419-421, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 919 (Rev. & Tax. Code § 6829 applied to former chief financial officer of corporation, despite fact that he had resigned position over one year before corporation ceased business); § 346.15[8][b][vi]].

[iv] Agreement to Be Obligated

A member of an LLC may agree to be obligated personally for any or all of the LLC's debts, obligations, and liabilities, as long as the agreement to be obligated is set forth in the articles of organization or in a written operating agreement that specifically refers to the code section (Corp. Code § 17101(e)) authorizing liability [Corp. Code § 17101(e)].

[v] Tortious Conduct or Written Guarantee

Nothing in the provisions limiting liability of members of an LLC is intended to affect a member's liability to third parties for the member's participation in tortious conduct or pursuant to the terms of a written guarantee or other contractual obligation entered into by the member, other than an operating agreement [Corp. Code § 17101(c); see Corp. Code § 17101(a) (general liability rule)].

[15] Indemnification and Insurance

If provided in its articles or written operating agreement, an LLC may indemnify a member for any act in that capacity except a breach of fiduciary duty [Corp. Code § 17155(a); see Corp. Code § 17153 (breach of fiduciary duty); see also § 346.15[6]]. The standard of fiduciary duty set forth in Corp. Code § 17153 can be varied by a written operating agreement with the "informed consent of the members" [Corp. Code § 17005(d)]. Similarly, an LLC may purchase insurance on behalf of any member against liabilities asserted against the member in that capacity [Corp. Code § 17155(b)].

For a complaint for use by an agent of an LLC against the LLC for indemnification for defense expenses, see § 346.162.

[16] Standard of Conduct of Members

Controlling shareholders of a corporation are subject to rigorous scrutiny; in a transaction with the corporation, the burden is on the controlling shareholder to prove the good faith and inherent fairness of the transaction from the viewpoint of the corporation [Efron v. Kalmanovitz (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 546, 556, 38 Cal. Rptr. 148] . By analogy, it may be that members of an LLC who are not managers but hold a majority interest may owe the other members a fiduciary duty similar to that of controlling shareholders. A member of an LLC, however, is expressly permitted to lend money to and transact other business with the LLC and, "subject to other applicable law," has the same rights and liabilities as a person who is not a member [Corp. Code § 17004]. The interplay of these two concepts remains to be determined.

If an LLC does not provide for managers in its articles of organization, its members are deemed to be managers [Corp. Code § 17001(w); see Form LLC-1]. As such they would seem to be held to the fiduciary duties of a manager, that is, that of partners in a partnership [Corp. Code § 17153; see § 346.15[6] (fiduciary duties of manager)], subject to possible modification as set forth in [15], above.

§ 346.15 Management

[1] "Manager" Defined

A "manager" of an LLC is a person elected by the members to manage the LLC if its articles contain the required statement regarding managers [see Corp. Code § 17151(b); see also § 346.12[3][b]]. If the articles do not contain that statement, "manager" refers to each member of the LLC [Corp. Code § 17001(w)]. Thus, for an LLC without elected managers, the management provisions outlined in this section and references to management elsewhere in this article and the Act apply to all members of the LLC.

[2] Tax Implications of Management Structure

Prior to 1997, the management structure of an LLC could have a direct impact on its federal income tax status. Entity classification regulations in effect prior to January 1, 1997, classified unincorporated entities as "associations" (taxable as corporations) or partnerships based on the presence or absence of four "corporate characteristics": limited liability, continuity of life, centralized management, and free transferability of interests. Effective January 1, 1997, however, the IRS adopted simplified entity classifications that dispense with the former tests and permit most unincorporated entities, including LLCs, to simply elect whether to be taxed as corporations or partnerships [see Treas. Reg. § 301.7701-3]. For income or taxable years beginning on and after January 1, 1997, classification of a business entity as a partnership or an association taxable as a corporation for California tax purposes is the same as classification for federal tax purposes [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 23038(b)(2)]. For additional discussion, see Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, Ch. 24A, Limited Liability Partnerships, § 652.01[2][b] (Matthew Bender). As a result of these regulations, the management structure of an LLC will have no effect on its tax classification for income tax purposes.

[3] Management by Members, Managers, or Officers

A limited liability company may be managed either by all of its members or by one or more managers [Corp. Code §§ 17150, 17151]. The managers may be or include some of the members [Corp. Code § 17151(a)] and do not need to be natural persons [Corp. Code § 17151(c)]. Unless the articles of organization state that an LLC will be managed by one or more managers [see Corp. Code § 17151(b); see also § 346.12[3][b]], its business and affairs are to be managed by all of its members, subject to any restrictions in its articles or operating agreement.

If management is vested in the members, they have the rights, duties, and obligations of managers [Corp. Code § 17150] and the description contained in this article as to "rights, duties, and obligations" of managers in general apply to the members in their management role. Care should be taken in applying this rule since not all of the provisions of the Act concerning managers involve the creation of rights of, or imposition of duties or obligations on, managers. For example, Corp. Code § 17152, dealing with election, removal, resignation, and expiration of the term of office of a manager, would seem by its terms to apply only to a situation when managers manage; the references in it ought not to apply to members as managers.

If an LLC is to be managed by managers, its articles of organization must contain a statement to that effect [Corp. Code § 17151(b)]. The articles need not state the number or names of managers, but if there is to be only one manager, the articles must so state [Corp. Code § 17151(b)]. The articles or operating agreement may, and one of them (preferably the operating agreement) should, contain provisions in detail appropriate to the particular LLC's needs about the number, qualifications, and duties of managers [Corp. Code § 17151(c)] and about the authority of managers to bind the LLC [Corp. Code § 17051(c)(5)]. One of those documents (again, preferably, the operating agreement) should also contain provisions and regulations appropriate to the particular LLC for its management [see § 346.12[4] (operating agreement and its contents)]. If an LLC has manager(s), a member acting solely as such is not an agent of the LLC and cannot bind it or execute any instrument on its behalf [Corp. Code § 17157(b)(1)].

The operating agreement may provide for the appointment of officers for the LLC. Officers may, but need not be, members or managers. Any number of offices may be held by the same person [Corp. Code § 17154(a)]. If the operating agreement does not provide for the appointment of officers, the managers may appoint officers [Corp. Code § 17154(b)]. An officer serves at the pleasure of the managers, and may be removed or resign at any time, subject in each case to rights and liabilities of the officer or LLC, as the case may be, under any contract to which the officer is a party [Corp. Code § 17154(b)].

[4] Appointment and Removal of Managers

Although the Act is silent on the formalities of management, leaving that to coverage by articles of organization or the operating agreement, the Act does have express provisions regarding appointment and removal of managers. These provisions cannot be varied except by the articles of organization or a written operating agreement [Corp. Code § 17005(b)]. Management positions must be filled by the affirmative vote of a majority in interest of the members [Corp. Code § 17152(a)]. Unless otherwise provided in the operating agreement, "majority in interest of the members" is more than 50 percent of the interests of members in current profits [Corp. Code § 17001(v)]. Unless they resign or are removed, managers hold office until expiration of their terms or until their successors have been elected and qualified [Corp. Code § 17152(d)].

Removal of managers may be with or without cause, but must be by a vote of a majority in interest of the members at a meeting called expressly for that purpose [Corp. Code § 17152(b)]. Managers may resign at any time on written notice to the LLC [Corp. Code § 17152(c)]. Neither removal nor resignation of a manager prejudices the rights, if any, of the manager or the LLC under any contract of employment [Corp. Code § 17152(b), (c)].

[5] Managers as Agents

If the articles of organization provide that an LLC is to be managed by one or more managers, every manager is an agent of the LLC for the purpose of its business and affairs [Corp. Code § 17157(b)(2)]. The act of any manager for the apparent purpose of carrying on in the usual way the business and affairs of the LLC binds the LLC, unless the manager has no actual authority to act for the LLC in the particular matter and the person with whom the member is dealing actually knows that the manager has no such authority [Corp. Code § 17157(b)(2)]. A manager acting in contravention of a restriction on authority cannot bind the LLC to persons actually knowing of the restriction [Corp. Code § 17157(c)].

An LLC's articles of organization may contain a limitation on the authority of managers to bind it [Corp. Code § 17051(c)(5)].

Notwithstanding Corp. Code § 17157(c), and subject to Corp. Code § 17051(d), any written instrument, or endorsement or assignment of a written instrument, executed or entered into between an LLC and another person, when signed by at least two managers (or by the sole manager if there is only one) is not made invalid as to the LLC by the managers' lack of authority in the absence of the other person's actual knowledge1 that the signing managers had no authority [Corp. Code § 17157(d)].

[6] Managers' Fiduciary Duties

[a] In General

A manager owes a fiduciary duty to an LLC and its members to the same extent as a partner would owe to a partnership and to the partners of the partnership [Corp. Code § 17153]. A partner's standard of conduct owed to the partnership and other partners is to act in the highest good faith to the partners, and a partner may not seek to obtain an advantage in the partnership affairs by the slightest misconduct, misrepresentation, concealment, threat, or adverse pressure of any kind [Leff v. Gunter (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 508, 514, 189 Cal. Rptr. 377, 658 P.2d 740] . Partnership agreements can, and often do, expressly provide standards of loyalty and care expected of the partners that vary this general standard of partner's conduct. In the same manner, the Act allows the fiduciary duties of a manager to be modified as set forth in [b], below.

For a complaint for use against a manager for breach of a fiduciary duty, see § 346.160.

[b] Modification of Managers' Fiduciary Duties

Managers' fiduciary duties to the LLC and its members may only be modified in a written operating agreement with "the informed consent of the members" [Corp. Code § 17005(d)]. Modification of managers' duty of care and loyalty may be beneficial not only to the manager but also to the LLC. The duties could be specifically tailored to suit the nature of its business and the relationship of the manager not only to the LLC but also to other business interests acknowledged and permitted to exist in addition to the manager's role in the LLC. Similarly, the duty of care could be graduated, ranging from breach that stems from negligence to breach stemming from willful misconduct, depending on the proscribed activity and the skills expected from the manager.

From the view of the manager, the modification could serve to narrow the scope of the duty of loyalty to allow the manager to enter into business that is competitive with the company or to take opportunities for the manager's personal advantage. Such an arrangement may be necessary to induce the manager to serve the LLC as suCh. Although a partner's duties generally are as stated in [a], above, partnership agreements have provided relief from the standard referred in [a], above. In the same manner, the operating agreement can provide exceptions to a manager's duty of loyalty.

With respect to the duty of care, partnership agreements are often drafted to delineate the level of care expected of each partner. Sometimes, for example, partnership agreements exclude negligence as a cause of breach of the partner's duty of care. An LLC manager's duty of care can also be modified to reflect the requisite conduct and skill expected in the performance of the particular managerial role.

Presumably the standard of fiduciary duty and the power of an operating agreement to change that standard apply to members in their role as managers in an LLC that they manage. It is probable that members are even more likely than managers to have outside interests that impinge on or even compete with their LLC and that need to be limited or permitted by careful drafting as to their duty of loyalty. Similarly, members entitled to participate in management of an LLC may bring entirely different skills to it so that their duty of care needs to be carefully addressed in light of the particular facts.

[7] Managers' Other Duties

The Act does not provide that managers must hold meetings or observe any formalities. Because the Act is silent in this regard, the operating agreement has the flexibility and should be used to establish whatever rules and procedures for management suit the parties' purposes. However, as with members' liability issues, if particular formalities are required in the operating agreement, failure to observe those formalities may impose personal liability on the members for obligations of the LLC [Corp. Code § 17101(b)].

Managers must file a certificate of amendment (Form LLC-6) to the articles of organization within 30 days after discovering any false or erroneous material statement in the articles or in any amendment to the articles [Corp. Code § 17054(d); see § 346.12[3][d] (amendment of articles); see also [8][b][iii], below (liability for failure to file certificate)].

[8] Liability of Managers and Officers

[a] General Non-Liability

In general, managers and officers of an LLC are not personally liable for any debt, obligation, or liability of the LLC solely by reason of being a manager or officer [Corp. Code § 17158(a)]. However, there are a number of instances in which a manager will be personally liable for actions taken as a manager [see [b], below].

[b] Situations Giving Rise to Personal Liability

[i] Agreement to Be Personally Obligated

A manager may agree to be obligated personally for any or all of the LLC's debts, obligations, and liabilities if the agreement to be liable is set forth in the articles or a written operating agreement that specifically refers to the code section (Corp. Code § 17158(b)) authorizing liability [Corp. Code § 17158(b)(1)]. Furthermore, a manager may agree to be obligated pursuant to the terms of a written guarantee or other contractual obligation entered into by the manager, other than an operating agreement [Corp. Code § 17158(b)(2)].

[ii] Breach of Fiduciary Duties

A manager may be liable for breach of fiduciary duties [Corp. Code § 17153; see [6], above; see also § 346.160 (complaint for breach of fiduciary duty)].

[iii] Criminal or Tortious Conduct

Although the Act does not specifically deal with the liability of a manager for participation in tortious conduct (as it does in *Corp. Code § 17101(c)*with respect to members), there seems no doubt that a manager as well as a member would be so liable. In addition, under well established criminal principles applied in a business context, a manager would have personal criminal responsibility for participation in criminal acts in the same manner as corporate officers.

[iv] Misstatement in Articles of Organization

A manager who executes a certificate of amendment to the articles of organization is personally liable for any statement materially inconsistent with the operating agreement or any material misstatement of fact in the certificate of amendment if the manager knew or should have known that the statement was false when made or that the statement became false and a required amendment was not filed, and a person suffered from reliance on those statements [Corp. Code § 17054(e); see Corp. Code § 17054(d) (manager's duty to file certificate of amendment within 30 days of discovering false or erroneous statement)].

[v] Voting for Improper Distributions

A manager who votes for a distribution in violation of the operating agreement or Corp. Code §§ 17254 or 17353 is personally liable to the LLC for the amount of the distribution that exceeds what could have been distributed without violating those sections or the operating agreement. For this liability to apply, it must be established that the manager did not act in compliance with Corp. Code §§ 17254 or 17353 [Corp. Code § 17255(a)]. A manager held liable under this provision may compel contribution from other liable parties [Corp. Code § 17255(b)].

[vi] Failure to Pay Sales Taxes

A manager may become personally liable for unpaid sales taxes and interest and penalties on those taxes under certain circumstances if the manager willfully fails to pay or cause to be paid sales taxes due from the LLC [Rev. & Tax. Code § 6829(a)]. Notwithstanding any provision in the Corporations Code to the contrary if the SBE can show that the manager had a duty to comply with Rev. & Tax. Code § 6829, and that he or she willfully failed to pay or failed to cause the LLC to pay the taxes, personal liability will result [Rev. & Tax. Code § 6829(a); see Rev. & Tax. Code § 6829(d) ("willfully" defined), (e), (f) (collection and notice of deficiency)].

The statute imposing liability for taxes upon termination of an LLC [Rev. & Tax. Code § 6829] has been held to apply to the former chief financial officer of a corporation, despite the fact that he resigned his position over one year before the corporation ceased business. Because the present tense in the statute includes the past tense [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 11], that section covers former officers as well as those in charge when the corporation ceases [State Board of Equalization v. Wirick (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 411, 413, 419-421, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 919 (also holding that Rev. & Tax. Code § 6829 was not unconstitutionally vague because it gave officer fair notice that he could be personally liable for company's unpaid taxes after he left corporation)].

[c] Failure to Warn Employees of Workplace Danger

Managers of an LLC are subject to fine and imprisonment for failure to warn employees of, or to abate, serious concealed workplace dangers [see Penal Code § 387].

[9] Indemnification and Insurance

If so provided in its articles of organization or written operating agreement, an LLC may indemnify its managers, officers, employees, or agents for any act except a breach of the fiduciary duty set forth in Corp. Code § 17153 [Corp. Code § 17155(a)]. The standard of fiduciary duty set forth in Corp. Code § 17353 can be varied with "the informed consent of the members" [Corp. Code § 17005(d)]. Corp. Code § 17153 (fiduciary duty) refers only to managers, not officers or others [see [6], above]. The document providing for indemnification should set forth clearly the standards for entitlement to it and the procedures for receiving it.

In addition to indemnification permitted as just described, an employee of an LLC would be entitled to the indemnity provided by Lab. Code § 2802.

An LLC also may purchase insurance on behalf of its managers, officers, employees, or agents who have liability asserted against them in that capacity or arising out of their status as such [Corp. Code § 17155(b)].

[10] Remuneration of Managers

Managers and members of an LLC are not entitled to remuneration for acting in the LLC business, except as follows:

- The LLC operating agreement or other agreement among all LLC members may provide for remuneration to members acting in the LLC business [Corp. Code § 17004(b)]; and

- Managers or members winding up the affairs of the LLC are entitled by statute to reasonable compensation [Corp. Code §§ 17004(b), 17352(c)].

[11] Failure to Report Misleading Statements

A publicly traded LLC may be liable for a civil penalty of up to $1,000,000 if it acquires knowledge that a materially false or misleading statement that affects the public's perception of its financial condition has been made by its officers or agents, and fails to notify specified government authorities and its members [Corp. Code § 17656; Stats 2003, Ch. 477, § 1(b) (statement of legislative intent that publicly traded LLCs act in responsible manner with respect to statements about financial condition); see Corp. Code § 17656(f) (statute applies only to LLCs that are "issuers" as defined in Section 2 of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002, Pub. Law 107-204, 116 Stat. 745; 15 U.S.C. § 7201(a)(7))]. For detailed discussion of these requirements, see Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, Ch. 27, Limited Liability Companies (Matthew Bender). However, an action seeking such a civil penalty may only be brought by the Attorney General, a district attorney, or a city attorney in the name of the people of the State of California [Corp. Code § 17656(g)]. No private right of action exists under this statute.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

30-346 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 346.16

AUTHOR: Hon. Walter L. Blackwell III The Honorable Walter L. Blackwell III is a superior court judge in Barstow, California.

§ 346.16 Mergers, Conversions, and Reorganizations

[1] Procedure for Merger

One or more LLCs may merge with or be acquired by any other business entity or entities [Corp. Code § 17550(a), (b)] if the other entity or entities are authorized to do so by their governing law. This applies to domestic as well as foreign LLCs and other business entities [Corp. Code § 17555].

The Act specifies the procedures for merger. First, each LLC must approve an agreement of merger by a majority vote, and each other merging entity must approve that agreement by those persons required to approve the merger by the laws under which it is organized [Corp. Code § 17551(a)]. The agreement of merger must contain information specified by the Act, which is similar to that required in mergers of business corporations and limited partnerships [Corp. Code § 17551(a)(1)-(6)]. Specific rules must be followed concerning treatment of interests in LLCs in mergers involving their parents or other entities owning more than 50 percent of the voting interests in the LLC [Corp. Code § 17551(b)]. An agreement of merger may be amended or abandoned [Corp. Code § 17551(c), (d)]. The Act provides for filings of one or more certificates of merger, the content and filing of which differ depending on the identity of the surviving entity [Corp. Code § 17552]. If the members of any constituent LLC would become personally liable for any obligations of a party to the merger, the principal terms of the agreement of merger must be approved by all members of the constituent LLCs unless all members would have dissenters' rights [Corp. Code § 17551(a)].

Mergers are effective on filing of the certificate of merger (Form LLC-9) with the Secretary of State, unless it provides for delayed effective date [Corp. Code § 17553]. On the effective date of merger, existence of the disappearing business entities ceases, and the surviving entity succeeds automatically to the rights, property, debts, and liabilities of the disappearing entities [Corp. Code § 17554]. Furthermore, the surviving domestic or foreign LLC or other business entity will be deemed to have assumed the liability of each disappearing domestic or foreign LLC or other business entity that is taxed under Rev. & Tax. Code § 17001 et seq. or § 23001 et seq. for the following [Corp. Code § 17554.5(a); see also Corp. Code § 17554.5(b) (Secretary of State notifies Franchise Tax Board of merger)]:

- To prepare and file, or to cause to be prepared and filed, tax and information returns otherwise required of that disappearing entity as specified in Rev. & Tax. Code § 18501 et seq.; and

- To pay any tax liability determined to be due.

An agreement of merger may amend the operating agreement of a constituent LLC, or adopt a new operating agreement for a constituent LLC, if it is the surviving LLC in the merger. The amendment or adoption is effective at the effective time or date of the merger. However, if a greater number of members is required to approve an amendment to the operating agreement of the constituent LLC than is required to approve the agreement of merger, any amendment or adoption takes effect if the vote of the constituent LLC in favor of the merger is at least as great as the vote required to amend the operating agreement of that LLC [Corp. Code § 17551(e)].

Both the merger procedures and the rules governing dissenting interests are similar to the rules applicable to mergers and reorganizations of business corporations and limited partnerships [Corp. Code §§ 1200 et seq., 1300 et seq.; Corp. Code §§ 15678.1 et seq., 15679.1 et seq. (CRLPA); Corp. Code §§ 15911.01 et seq., 15911.10 et seq., 15911.20 et seq. (ULPA '08)].

[2] Procedure for Conversion

An LLC may be converted into an "other business entity" [see Corp. Code § 17001(ac) (defined as a corporation, limited partnership, general partnership, business trust, real estate investment trust, or unincorporated association other than nonprofit corporation)], a foreign other business entity [see Corp. Code § 17001(s) (defined as any other business entity formed under the laws of any state other than California or under the laws of the United States or a foreign country), or a foreign limited liability company [Corp. Code § 17540.2(a); see Corp. Code § 17001(q) (definition)]. Pursuant to a conversion into a domestic or foreign general partnership or limited partnership, or into a foreign limited liability company, each of the members of the converting LLC must receive a percentage interest in profits and capital of the converted entity equal to that member's interest in profits and capital of the converting LLC as of the effective time of the conversion [Corp. Code § 17540.2(a)]. Pursuant to a conversion into an other business entity or foreign other business entity not specified above, (1) each of the membership interests of the same class must be treated equally with respect to any distribution of cash, property, rights, interest, or securities of the converted entity, unless all members of the class consent; and (2) the nonredeemable membership interests of the converting limited liability company must be converted only into nonredeemable interests or securities of the converted entity, unless all holders of the nonredeemable interests consent [Corp. Code § 17540.2(a)]. Further, conversion is effective only if the law under which the converted entity will exist expressly permits formation of that entity pursuant to a conversion, and if the LLC complies with all requirements of any other law that applies to conversion to the converted entity [Corp. Code § 17540.2(b)].

To convert to an other business entity, foreign other business entity, or foreign LLC, the LLC must approve a plan of conversion. The plan must contain information specified by the Act [Corp. Code § 17540.3(a)]. A vote of a majority in interest of the members of the converting LLC (or any greater percentage specified in the articles or written operating agreement) must approve the plan of conversion [Corp. Code § 17540.3(b)]. If the LLC is converting into a limited partnership, the members who will become general partners of the converted limited partnership pursuant to the plan of conversion must also approve the plan [Corp. Code § 17540.3(c)]. A plan of conversion may be amended or abandoned [Corp. Code § 17540.3(d), (e)].

A conversion into an other business entity, foreign other business entity, or a foreign limited liability company is effective upon the earliest of the approval of the plan by the members of the converting LLC, the filing of all required documents, or the date set forth in the plan of conversion [Corp. Code § 17540.4(a)]. The filing of a certificate of conversion or an organizational document containing a statement of conversion by the converting LLC has the effect of filing a certificate of cancellation, and no certificate of dissolution or cancellation [see Corp. Code § 17356] is required [see Corp. Code § 17540.6(c)]. The Act specifies treatment of the converting LLC's ownership of both real and personal property [see Corp. Code §§ 17540.7, 17540.9].

An other business entity, foreign other business entity, or foreign LLC may be converted to a domestic LLC. The conversion will be effective under the Act at the time it is effective under the law under which the converting entity is organized, if articles of organization are filed with the Secretary of State [see Corp. Code § 17540.8].

For further discussion of conversion procedures, see Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws, Ch. 27, Limited Liability Companies (Matthew Bender), and California Legal Forms, Ch. 12C, Limited Liability Companies (Matthew Bender).

[3] Dissenters' Rights on Merger or Reorganization

[a] In General

The Act provides for dissenters' rights in mergers or other reorganizations [see Corp. Code § 17600 et seq.]. "Reorganization" is defined to include conversions [see Corp. Code § 17540.1 et seq.; see also [2], above], mergers, certain acquisitions of controlling interests in other business entities, and certain acquisitions of substantially all of the assets of other business entities [Corp. Code § 17600(a)]. In general, in a merger or reorganization, a member who is entitled to vote on a reorganization and has taken necessary steps to have a dissenting interest [see Corp. Code § 17601(b) (definition)] may require the LLC to purchase that interest for cash at fair market value [Corp. Code § 17601(a); see [c], below].

These dissenters' rights provisions apply to domestic LLCs, and to foreign LLCs if members holding more than 50 percent of voting interests reside in California [Corp. Code § 17612(a)]. These provisions do not apply to an LLC with 35 or fewer members if all the members have waived the application of dissenters' rights provisions in writing [Corp. Code § 17612(c)].

With certain listed exceptions, a dissenting member of an LLC that is reorganizing does not have the right to attack the validity of the reorganization or to have the reorganization set aside or rescinded [see Corp. Code § 17613(a)].

[b] "Dissenting Interest" Defined

A "dissenting interest" is a membership interest in an LLC that satisfies all of the following [Corp. Code § 17601(b)]:

- The membership interest was outstanding on the date for the determination of members entitled to vote on the reorganization.

- The membership interest was not voted in favor of the reorganization, or the membership interest was voted against the reorganization [see Corp. Code § 17601(b)(2)].

- The member has demanded that the LLC purchase its interest at its fair market value [see Corp. Code § 17602 (method of demand)].

- The member has submitted the certificate of interest for endorsement, if applicable [see Corp. Code § 17603].

[c] Requiring Company to Purchase Dissenting Interest

If LLC members have the right to require the LLC to purchase their dissenting interests [see Corp. Code § 17601(b)

(definition); see also [b], above], the LLC must mail to each member a notice of approval of the proposed reorganization. The notice must contain specified information, including the price determined to be the fair market value of outstanding interests, the method of valuation, the latest available balance sheet, the latest income statement, and a description of the procedure to exercise dissenters' rights. The statement of price constitutes an offer by the LLC to purchase dissenting interests at that price [Corp. Code § 17602(a)]. For an illustration of this form, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 12C, Limited Liability Companies (Matthew Bender).

A member with a dissenting interest who wishes the LLC to purchase his or her interest must make a written demand on the LLC for the purchase of the interest and the payment to the member in cash of its fair market value. To be effective, the demand must be received by the LLC within 30 days after the notice of reorganization was mailed to members [Corp. Code § 17602(b)]. The demand must state the number or amount of interest, and must contain a statement of the member's claim of the fair market value of the interest on the day before the announcement of the proposed reorganization. The statement of value constitutes an offer by the member to sell the dissenting interest at that price [Corp. Code § 17602(c)]. For a form for making such a demand, see § 346.130.

If the LLC and the dissenting member agree that the interest is a dissenting interest, and agree on the price to be paid for the interest, the dissenting member is entitled to the agreed price, with interest from the date of consummation of the reorganization. Agreements as to value of dissenting interests must be in writing and must be kept with the records of the LLC [Corp. Code § 17604(a)]. The LLC must pay for a dissenting interest within 30 days after the amount of the interest has been agreed on, or within 30 days after conditions to the reorganization are satisfied, whichever is later [Corp. Code § 17604(b)]. The dissenting member must submit certificates of interest (or, if none, written notice of the number or amount of interests) on payment [Corp. Code § 17604(b); see Corp. Code § 17603].

If the LLC denies that an interest is a dissenting interest, or the LLC and the dissenting member cannot agree on the value of a dissenting interest, either the LLC or the member may bring an action in superior court within six months after the date of the notice of approval of the reorganization to settle the issue [Corp. Code § 17605; see § 346.131 (complaint)]. The court may appoint an appraiser to determine the fair market value of dissenting interests, or may make the determination itself [see Corp. Code § 17606; see §§ 346.132 -346.136 (forms for use in appraisal)].

[d] Loss of Status as Dissenting Interest

A dissenting interest loses its status as such, and the holder of that interest ceases to be a dissenting member, on the occurrence of any of the following [Corp. Code § 17610]:

- The LLC abandons the reorganization.
- The interest is transferred before its submission for endorsement [see Corp. Code § 17603].
- The dissenting member and the LLC do not agree that the interest is a dissenting interest or disagree on the purchase price of the interest, and neither files a complaint within six months after the notice of approval of the reorganization [see Corp. Code § 17605].
- The dissenting member, with the LLC's consent, withdraws the demand for purchase of the dissenting interest.

§ 346.17 Dissolution and Winding Up

[1] Causes of Dissolution

An LLC must be dissolved, and its affairs wound up, when the first of the following occurs [Corp. Code § 17350]:

- When specified in the articles of organization.
- On the happening of events specified in the articles or written operating agreement.
- By the vote of a majority in interest of the members [see Corp. Code § 17001(v) (definition)], or greater percentage of the voting interests of members specified in the articles or written operating agreement.
- Entry of a decree of judicial dissolution pursuant to Corp. Code § 17351.

[2] Judicial Dissolution

An LLC may be judicially dissolved pursuant to an action filed by a manager or member when any of the following occurs [Corp. Code § 17351(a)]:

- It is not reasonably practicable to carry on the LLC's business in conformity with its articles or operating agreement.
- Dissolution is reasonably necessary for the protection of the rights or interests of the complaining members.
- The LLC's business has been abandoned.

- The LLC's management is deadlocked or subject to internal dissention.

- Those in control of the LLC have been guilty of, or have knowingly countenanced, persistent and pervasive fraud, mismanagement, or abuse of authority.

For a complaint for judicial dissolution, see § 346.150.

Noninitiating members may avoid dissolution by purchasing the membership interests of the initiating members at their fair market value [Corp. Code § 17351(b)(1)]. The Act specifies procedures for such a purchase [see Corp. Code § 17351(b)(2)-(5)], including a special proceeding in which the court will fix the value of the interests to be transferred, if necessary because of the parties' inability to agree on a price. The court's decree resulting from that special proceeding is separately appealable [Corp. Code § 17351(b)(3); Dickson v. Rehmke (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 469, 476-477, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 874 (decree was issued in May, and notice of appeal filed in August was filed too late even though filed within period for appeal from court's judgment in dissolution action)].

[3] Continuation of Existence After Dissolution

A dissolved LLC continues to exist for the purpose of winding up its affairs, dealing with actions by or against it, collecting or discharging its obligations, disposing of or conveying its property, and collecting and dividing its assets [Corp. Code § 17354(a)]. A dissolved LLC may not, however, continue business except so far as necessary for its winding up. In that connection, actions to which the LLC is a party do not abate by reason of its dissolution or its winding up proceedings and assets inadvertently omitted from its winding up continue to be owned by it for the benefit of the persons entitled to those assets [Corp. Code § 17354(b)].

Causes of action against a dissolved LLC may be enforced against it to the extent of its undistributed assets and, if its assets have been distributed to its members, against them to the extent of the assets distributed to them [Corp. Code § 17355]. The Act provides for contribution in the event a member is compelled to return distributed assets in an amount in excess of the member's pro rata share of the claim and for a statute of limitations for such claims against members [Corp. Code § 17355(a)]. In addition, like provisions as to business corporations, LLCs survive and continue to exist indefinitely for the purpose of being sued in quiet title actions; and judgments rendered in any such actions bind all members or other persons to the extent of their interest in the LLC [Corp. Code § 17355(c)]. For purposes of assessments under the Revenue and Taxation Code against persons secondarily liable [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 19071 et seq.], the liability described in Corp. Code § 17355 is considered to be a liability at law with respect to a dissolved LLC [Corp. Code § 17355(d)].

Even if a certificate of dissolution has been filed [see [5], below], a majority in interest of the members of an LLC may file a certificate of continuation (Form LLC-8) with the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 17357(a)] and on that filing, the certificate of dissolution is of no effect [Corp. Code § 17357(c)].

A certificate of continuation may be filed in any of the following circumstances [Corp. Code § 17357(a)]:

- The business of the LLC is to be continued pursuant to a unanimous vote of the remaining members.

- The dissolution of the LLC was by vote of the members pursuant to Corp. Code § 17350(b) and each member who consented to the dissolution has agreed in writing to revoke that member's vote in favor of or consent to the dissolution.

- The LLC was not, in fact, dissolved.

[4] Winding Up

When a limited liability company is dissolved, the managers or members must wind up its affairs. In a judicial dissolution [see § 346.17[2]], winding up is conducted in accordance with the decree of dissolution [Corp. Code § 17352(a)]. In a nonjudicial dissolution, the managers who have not wrongfully dissolved the LLC or, if none, the members may wind it up. The winding up process requires notification to known creditors and claimants, payment or adequate provision for debts and liabilities and distributions of remaining assets among members according to their respective rights and preferences as specified in the Act [Corp. Code § 17353(a); see Corp.Code § 17353(c) (method of adequately providing for payment of debts and liabilities)] or as otherwise specified in articles of organization or the operating agreement.

On the petition of a manager, a member, or three or more creditors, a court may order the winding up of the LLC if it appears necessary for the protection of those parties [Corp. Code § 17352(b)]. Except as otherwise provided in the articles or written operating agreement, the managers or members winding up the LLC are entitled to reasonable compensation [Corp. Code § 17352(c)].

[5] Certificate of Dissolution and Certificate of Cancellation

When a limited liability company dissolves, its managers must file a certificate of dissolution (Form LLC-3) with the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 17356(a)]. If, however, dissolution is made by the vote of all of the members and a statement to that effect is added to the certificate of cancellation of articles, a separate filing of a certificate of dissolution is not required [Corp. Code § 17356(a)(3)]. When the affairs of the LLC have been wound up, a certificate of cancellation (Form LLC-4/7) must be filed with the Secretary of State, cancelling the LLC's articles of organization [Corp. Code § 17356(b)].

The certificate of cancellation must contain a statement that a final franchise tax return [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 23332] or a final annual tax return [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 17947] has been or will be filed with the Franchise Tax Board as required [Corp. Code § 17356(b)(2)(B)]. The Secretary of State will notify the Franchise Tax Board of the filing [Corp. Code § 17356(b)(3)].

If a domestic LLC has not conducted any business within 12 months from the date the articles of organization were filed, a majority of the members may execute a certificate of cancellation of articles of organization, stating that the LLC has not conducted any business from the time of the filing of the articles of organization [Corp. Code § 17350.5(a)]. The Secretary of State will notify the Franchise Tax Board of the cancellation [Corp. Code § 17350.5(b)]. On the filing of the certificate of cancellation, the LLC will be canceled, and its powers, rights, and privileges will cease [Corp. Code § 17350.5(c)].

AUTHOR: Hon. Walter L. Blackwell III The Honorable Walter L. Blackwell III is a superior court judge in Barstow, California.

§ 346.18 Foreign Limited Liability Companies

[1] Recognition and Governing Law

A foreign limited liability company ("foreign LLC") may register as an LLC in California. A foreign LLC will be recognized as such and its organization and internal affairs, and the authority and liability of its managers and members, will be governed by the laws of the state or foreign country under which it is organized [Corp. Code § 17450(a)].

[2] Registration; Transacting Intrastate Business

A foreign LLC is allowed to register with the Secretary of State and must do so to transact intrastate business in California lawfully [Corp. Code § 17450 et seq.]. To register as a foreign LLC, it must register with the Secretary of State on Form LLC-5, comply with name requirements, and pay applicable fees [Corp. Code §§ 17451, 17452]. Along with instructional materials provided in conjunction with the application for registration, the Secretary of State is required to include a notice that filing the registration will obligate the LLC to pay an annual tax to the Franchise Tax Board pursuant to Rev. & Tax. Code § 17941. The notice must be updated annually to specify the dollar amount of the tax [Corp. Code § 17451(d)].

PRACTICE TIP:

When to Pay Franchise Tax. A foreign LLC should wait to be billed for the annual minimum franchise tax; if a foreign LLC submits this payment with its application for registration, it will be taxed as a corporation [see Secretary of State's letter accompanying LLC form packet].

A foreign LLC may not be denied registration because of a difference between the laws under which it is organized and the laws of California [Corp. Code § 17450(b)]. This can be of considerable importance because the definition of a "foreign LLC" [see Corp. Code § 17001(q)] allows considerable latitude of form and structure. However, this provision does not override the restriction described in § 346.10[5], prohibiting the rendition of professional services. Accordingly, foreign professional LLCs may not register or transact business as professional LLCs in California.

Failure to register before transacting intrastate business subjects a foreign LLC to penalties essentially the same as those applicable to unregistered foreign corporations or limited partnerships. The definition of "transacting intrastate business" [see Corp. Code § 17001(ap)] is also essentially the same for foreign LLCs as for other foreign business entities. Penalties include the inability to maintain proceedings in California courts until the LLC registers and monetary penalties [Corp. Code § 17456(a), (b)]. For an affirmative defense for use against a foreign LLC that has failed to register, see § 346.102[1]. In addition, a foreign LLC transacting business in California without having registered appoints the Secretary of State as its agent for service of process for causes of action arising out of the transaction of business in California [Corp. Code § 17456(d)].

A member of a foreign LLC does not become liable for obligations of the foreign LLC solely because of its failure to register [see Corp. Code § 17456(c)]. A registered foreign LLC is required to file the same annual report as an LLC within specified periods and is subject to monetary penalties and possible loss of its right to transact intrastate business in California if it does not do so [Corp. Code § 17655].

[3] Effect of Recognition and Registration

Recognition of foreign LLCs is very significant for them under California law. Before the Act's enactment, a foreign LLC might have been treated as a general partnership, an unincorporated association, or a corporation. Treatment might have differed depending on the purpose; for example, liability of members, taxation, entity status, or right to hold property. The Act seems to lay most of these uncertainties to rest, subject to future judicial interpretations.

The legal significance of registration is similar to that as to other types of foreign entities doing intrastate business in California. Registration includes the privilege of transacting intrastate business, ability to maintain legal actions, requirements to pay state taxes and fees [see § 346.11[3]], and avoidance of pecuniary penalties for failure to register [Corp. Code §§ 17456, 17457].

The allegation of principal place of business may be included if it is necessary to establish venue [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5]. However, if venue is to be established on a different basis, such as the county where the liability arises [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5], the allegation of principal place of business should be omitted. For further coverage of venue, see Ch. 571, Venue .

For an affirmative defense alleging a plaintiff foreign LLC's incapacity to maintain an action, see § 346.102 [see § 346.101[4]].

[3] Limited Liability Company as Entity

A foreign LLC is an entity separate from its members [Corp. Code § 17001(q)].

[4] Registration as Prerequisite to Maintaining Action

To transact intrastate business in California, a foreign LLC must first register with the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 17451; see California Legal Forms, Ch. 12C, Limited Liability Companies (Matthew Bender)]. A foreign LLC that fails to register and obtain a certificate of registration [see Corp. Code § 17452] may not maintain any action or proceeding in any California court until it has registered, and is subject to fine [Corp. Code § 17456(a), (b)].

A foreign LLC transacting business in California without having properly registered appoints the Secretary of State as its agent for service of process for causes of action that arise out of the transaction of business in California [Corp. Code § 17456(d)]. For further coverage of foreign LLCs, see § 346.18.

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense--Plaintiff Foreign Limited Liability Company May Not Maintain Action Because It Is Not Qualified to Transact Business in California [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2); Corp. Code §§ 17451, 17452, 17456(a)]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

Plaintiff is a foreign limited liability company that has entered into repeated and successive transactions of its business in this state, other than in interstate or foreign commerce, but does not hold a valid certificate of registration from the California Secretary of State to transact intrastate business. Plaintiff is therefore barred from maintaining any action or proceeding in any California court.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an affirmative defense for use in the answer of a defendant in an action or proceeding brought by a foreign LLC that is transacting intrastate business but that has not registered to do so. The affirmative defense alleges that the foreign LLC may not maintain an action in any California court because it has not properly registered with the Secretary of State [see Corp. Code §§ 17451, 17452, 17456(a); see also [3], below].

For discussion of answers and pleading affirmative defenses, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[3] Registration as Prerequisite to Maintaining Action

To transact intrastate business in California, a foreign LLC must first register with the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 17451; see California Legal Forms, Ch. 12C, Limited Liability Companies (Matthew Bender)]. A foreign LLC that fails to register and obtain a certificate of registration [*see Corp. [2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a complaint for use when a plaintiff seeks to impose liability for an LLC obligation on controlling members of the LLC on the "alter ego" doctrine [see § 346.110[4]]. For further coverage of alter ego liability, see Ch. 161, Corporations: Alter Ego Liability .

If additional causes of action are to be alleged in this complaint, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints .

[3] Required Allegations

This complaint alleges the following:

- The capacity of the parties (Paragraphs 1-3)

- That there is a unity of ownership and interest between the LLC and the individual defendant members (Paragraph 4) [see Minifie v. Rowley (1921) 187 Cal. 481, 487, 202 P. 673] .

- That adherence to the fiction of separate existence of the LLC would sanction fraud or promote injustice (Paragraph 5) [see Minifie v. Rowley (1921) 187 Cal. 481, 487, 202 P. 673] .

- The underlying cause of action against the LLC (Paragraph 6) [see Design Associates, Inc. v. Welch (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 165, 171, 36 Cal. Rptr. 341] .

For examples of allegations of underlying causes of action, see Ch. 16, Corporations: Alter Ego Liability .

[4] Liability of Limited Liability Company Member

In general, a member of an LLC is not personally liable for a debt, obligation, or liability of the LLC solely by reason of being a member of the LLC [Corp. Code § 17101(a)]. However, a member of an LLC is liable under the common law governing alter ego liability, and is also personally liable under the same or similar circumstances, and to the same extent, as a shareholder of a corporation would be liable for a debt, liability, or obligation of the corporation [see § 346.110[5]]. Failure to conduct meetings or observe formalities are not considered factors in imposing alter ego or personal liability if not required by the LLC's articles of organization or operating agreement [Corp. Code § 17101(b); see § 346.14[14] (liability of members)].

[5] Liability Under Alter Ego Doctrine

The "alter ego" doctrine provides that, when necessary to protect the rights of third parties and to accomplish justice, a court will disregard the distinct corporate identity and will treat the obligations of the corporation as those of the equitable owners [Minton v. Cavaney (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 576, 579, 15 Cal. Rptr. 641, 364 P.2d 473 ; Erkenbrecher v. Grant (1921) 187 Cal. 7, 10-11, 200 P. 641] .

Under Corp. Code § 17101(b) [see § 346.110[4]], a member of an LLC is subject to liability under the common law governing alter ego liability. Thus, alter ego liability attaches to members who are the "equitable owners" of an LLC comparable to the equitable owners of a corporation. For detailed discussion of the corporate alter ego liability, see Ch. 161, Corporations: Alter Ego Liability .

PRACTICE TIP:

When to Allege Alter Ego Liability. Whenever a claim is asserted against an LLC and there is a possibility that the LLC may not be able to satisfy a judgment if one is obtained, consideration should be givento asserting a cause of action against some or all of its members on the alter ego theory.

[6] Jurisdiction and Venue

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)], and the first page of the first paper must state whether or not the demand exceeds $10,000 [Gov. Code § 70613(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9) (statement regarding amount of demand must appear "below the character of the action or proceeding")].

Venue is proper in an action against an LLC in any of the following counties [Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5]:

- Where the contract is made or to be performed.
- Where the obligation or liability arises or the breach occurs.
- Where the principal place of business of the LLC is situated.

For further coverage of jurisdiction and venue, see Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter and Ch. 571, Venue .

[7] Complaint Not Normally Verified

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified also, if the action is in the superior court and is not a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial except in a limited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)].

For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

To defendants _____ [name of limited liability company and member defendant(s)] and their attorneys of record:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that, on _____ [date], at _____ [time], or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in [_____ (Department or Division) _____ of] this court, located at _____ [address], _____ [city], California, plaintiff will, and hereby does, move for an order amending the judgment rendered in this case as follows:

That portion of the judgment that begins with the words "_____" on page _____, line _____ and continues with the words "_____" on page _____, line _____, and that now reads as follows: _____ [set out portion of judgment naming limited liability company as judgment debtor] be amended to read as follows: _____ [restate above portion adding name of controlling member].

The motion will be made on the following grounds:

(1) That _____ [name of controlling member] is, and at all times material to plaintiff's case was, the alter ego of defendant; and

(2) That the judgment as rendered contains a misnomer in failing to include the name of _____ [name of controlling member] as judgment debtor.

The motion will be based on this notice of motion, on the declaration of _____ [name] and on the memorandum served and filed herewith, on all the papers and records on file herein, and on such oral and documentary evidence as may be presented at the hearing of the motion.
Dated: _____.

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name and title]

Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a notice of motion for use in obtaining an order to add the name of a controlling member to a judgment rendered against an LLC. This form is used when a plaintiff seeks to obtain a judgment against a controlling member of an LLC under the "alter ego" doctrine [see § 346.110[4], [5]]. This form typically is used when judgment has been obtained against an LLC that is unable to pay the judgment. A member's interest in an LLC is not subject to execution, however, if the LLC is not a judgment debtor [Code Civ. Proc. § 699.720(a)(2)].

This notice of motion states when, and the grounds on which, the motion will be made, and the papers on which it will be based [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1010; see also § 346.112 (supporting declaration)].

For an order granting this motion, see § 346.113. For discussion of law and motion procedure, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

[3] Use of Alter Ego Doctrine

Under Corp. Code § 17101(b) [see § 346.110[4]], a member of an LLC is subject to liability under the common law governing alter ego liability. Thus, alter ego liability attaches to members who are the "equitable owners" of an LLC comparable to the equitable owners of a corporation. For more detailed discussion of the common law governing alter ego liability, see Ch. 161, Corporations: Alter Ego Liability .

PRACTICE TIP:

When to Allege Alter Ego Liability. Whenever a judgment is obtained against an LLC that the LLC is unable to pay, consideration should be given to attempting to impose liability on its controlling members by amending the judgment. For detailed discussion of the alter ego doctrine, see Ch. 161, Corporations: Alter Ego Liability . Note that failure to conduct meetings or otherwise observe formalities may not be the basis for imposition of alter ego or personal liability on members if those formalities are not required by the articles of organization or operating agreement [Corp. Code § 17101(b)].

[4] Requirement to Include Supporting Memorandum

This notice of motion must be accompanied by a supporting memorandum [Cal. Rules of Ct., 3.1103(a), 3.1113]. See Ch. 417, Points and Authorities, for a discussion of the correct forms. In addition, a copy of any paper on which the motion is to be based must accompany the notice if that paper has not previously been served on the party to be notified and was not filed by him or her [Code Civ. Proc. § 1010]. The notice of motion may also be, and most often is, accompanied by a declaration establishing the facts on which the motion is based [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2003, 2009, 2015.5].

1. I am _____ [identify declarant, e.g., an attorney at law duly admitted to practice before all the courts of the State of California and the attorney of record herein for the plaintiff or other statement as appropriate].

2. On _____ [date], judgment was entered in favor of the plaintiff against _____ [name of defendant], a limited liability company, in the amount of $_____.

3. On _____ [date], I conducted a creditor's examination of _____ [name of defendant] pursuant to an order by this court under Code of Civil Procedure § 708.110, whereat _____ [name] as _____ [specify position, e.g., treasurer] of defendant appeared and was examined on behalf of defendant. [A copy of the transcript of the examination is attached to this declaration as Exhibit A.]

4. The examination disclosed that _____ [set forth facts establishing "alter ego" relationship on the basis of unity of interest and ownership and inequity resulting from recognition of separate limited liability company entity].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [typed name]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a declaration for use in factually establishing the relationship between a defendant LLC and its controlling member, in support of a motion to include the name of the alter ego member in the judgment as a judgment debtor. The declaration is based on facts discovered during plaintiff's examination of an officer of the defendant LLC pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 708.110 (examination of debtor supplemental to execution) [see Thomson v. L.C. Roney & Co., Inc. (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 420, 422, 246 P.2d 1017] .

[3] Establishing Alter Ego Relationship

To establish the alter ego relationship, the declaration and exhibits must show that there exists a unity and identity of interest between equitable owner member and its alter ego LLC [see Arnold v. Browne (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 386, 394, 103 Cal. Rptr. 775 ; Rosen v. E.C. Losch Co., Inc. (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 324, 333, 44 Cal. Rptr. 377] and that if the acts are treated as those of the LLC alone, an inequitable result will follow [see Arnold v. Browne (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 386, 394, 103 Cal. Rptr. 775 ; Schoenberg v. Romike Properties (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 154, 167, 59 Cal. Rptr. 359 ; Thomson v. L.C. Roney & Co., Inc. (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 420, 427-429, 246 P.2d 1017] . For the applicability of cited corporate law to LLCs, see [4], below.

[4] Use of Alter Ego Doctrine

Under Corp. Code § 17101(b) [see § 346.110[4]], a member of an LLC is subject to liability under the common law governing alter ego liability. Thus, alter ego liability attaches to members who are the "equitable owners" of an LLC comparable to the equitable owners of a corporation. For more detailed discussion of the common law governing alter ego liability, see Ch. 161, Corporations: Alter Ego Liability .

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages Against Members for Receiving Improper Distribution [Corp. Code § 17254(e)]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR _____ [specify, e.g., DAMAGES]
_____ [name],	)
a California Limited Liability Company, and	)	(Improper Distribution)
_____ [name(s) of member(s)],	)	[Amount demanded _____ (exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]
Defendants.	)
	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Allege capacity of limited liability company. See § 346.100[1].]

2. Defendant _____ [name of member receiving improper distribution] is a resident of _____ County, California.[Continue to name all defendant members and their residences.] Each of the defendants named in this paragraph was, at the time of the distribution alleged in Paragraph 4, a member of the limited liability company.

3. Plaintiff _____ [name of creditor] is a creditor of the limited liability company with a _____ [debt or claim] for _____ [describe nature of debt or claim] in the currently outstanding amount of $_____. Plaintiff's _____ [debt or claim] arose on _____ [date], before the time of the distribution alleged in Paragraph 4, and plaintiff did not consent to that distribution. Plaintiff brings this action on its own behalf and on behalf of and in the name of the limited liability company.

4. On or about _____ [date], the limited liability company made a distribution of its _____ [cash or property consisting of _____ (describe)] to its members by _____ [specify, e.g., declaring a dividend in an amount of $_____ per membership interest on _____ (number) outstanding _____ (describe class or series) membership interests, of which dividend defendants received a total of $_____ or _____ (redeeming or purchasing) _____ (number) membership interests of the limited liability company's outstanding _____ (describe class or series) for an amount of $_____ per membership interest, of which amount defendants received a total of $_____ on its _____ (transfer to them or irrevocable delivery to a trustee for their benefit) on _____ (date)].

5. Plaintiff is informed and believes, and on that basis alleges, that the distribution alleged in Paragraph 4 of this complaint was contrary to law in that _____ [e.g., the limited liability company will be, as a result of making the distribution, unable to pay its debts as they become due or the limited liability company's total assets, as a result of making the distribution, will be less than its total liabilities plus the amount needed to satisfy preferential rights on dissolution].

6. Defendants received the distribution alleged in Paragraph 4 with knowledge of the facts indicating its impropriety. [Continue allegation with any facts supporting allegation.]

7. No creditor of the limited liability company whose debt or claim arose before the time of the unlawful distribution alleged in Paragraph 4 of this complaint consented to the distribution. The liabilities of the limited liability company to the nonconsenting creditors at the time of the distribution were $_____.

8. As a result of the improper distribution alleged in this complaint, each defendant is liable to the limited liability company for the benefit of all creditors not consenting to that distribution up to the amount received by that defendant plus interest thereon at the legal rate on judgments, but not exceeding $_____ [sum equal to either liabilities of limited liability company to nonconsenting creditors as alleged in Paragraph 7].

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For damages in the sum of $_____, to be apportioned among the defendants according to the improper distribution received by each defendant, and to be awarded to the limited liability company for the benefit of all nonconsenting creditors;

2. For interest at the legal rate on the amount of the distribution received by each defendant from and after _____ [date];

3. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[Verification, if desired. See § 346.110[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a complaint that may be used by a creditor of an LLC to recover damages from members of the LLC who have received an improper distribution with knowledge of the facts indicating its impropriety [see Corp. Code § 17254; see also [4], below].

This form may be modified for use by a member of the LLC who did not consent to the improper distribution, to recover damages from members who did consent to and receive the improper distribution. For language that may be modified for use in this situation, see Ch. 164, Corporations: Dividends and Reacquisition of Shares, § 164.51.

[3] Required Allegations

This complaint alleges the following:

- The capacity of the parties (Paragraphs 1-3).
- The circumstances of the improper distribution (Paragraph 4).
- That the distribution was improper because the LLC would be unable to pay its debts or because its total assets would be less than its liabilities plus the amount needed to satisfy preferential rights on dissolution (Paragraph 5) [Corp. Code § 17254(a)].
- That the member voting for the distribution had actual knowledge of facts indicating the impropriety of the distribution (Paragraph 6) [Corp. Code § 17254(e)].
- That the plaintiff did not consent to the distribution (Paragraph 7).
- That as a result of the improper distribution, the LLC is indebted to the plaintiff and other creditors.

For purposes of the statute of limitations, the complaint also alleges the date of the distribution [Corp. Code § 17254(f); see § 346.120[5]] .

[4] Liability for Improper Distributions

An LLC may not make a distribution if, after giving effect to the distribution, (1) the LLC would not be able to pay its debts as the become due in the usual course of business, or (2) the LLC's total assets would be less than its total liabilities plus (unless the operating agreement provides otherwise) the amount necessary to satisfy preferential rights on dissolution [Corp. Code § 17254(a)].

A member of an LLC who receives a prohibited distribution with knowledge of facts indicating its impropriety is liable to the LLC for the benefit of all of the creditors or members entitled to institute an action for the amount received by that member [Corp. Code § 17254(e)].

The member's liability for receiving an improper distribution is conditioned on his or her having knowledge of the facts indicating the impropriety [Corp. Code § 17254(e)]. "Impropriety" means unlawfulness or illegality [England v. Christensen (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 413, 430, 52 Cal. Rptr. 402] .

In addition, a member of manager of an LLC who votes for an improper distribution is personally liable to the LLC for the amount of the distribution that exceeds what would be permissible [Corp. Code § 17255(a)].

For further coverage of liability for improper distributions, see § 346.14[14][b][ii].

[5] Statute of Limitations

A cause of action with respect to an obligation to return an improper distribution must be brought within four years after the distribution is made [Corp. Code § 17254(f)].

[6] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)], and the first page of the first paper must state whether or not the demand exceeds $10,000 [Gov. Code § 70613(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9) (statement regarding amount of demand must appear "below the character of the action or proceeding")].

vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	COMPLAINT FOR _____ a California Limited Liability Company, and	)	[specify, e.g., DAMAGES]
_____ [name(s) of member(s)],	)	(Refusal to Make Distribution)
Defendants.	)	[Amount demanded _____ (exceeds
	)	or does not exceed) $10,000]

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a limited lability company duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of California, with its principal place of business in _____ County, California.

2. On _____ [date], plaintiff was a member of record of the defendant. Plaintiff has at all times since been a member of record of defendant.

3. On _____ [date], plaintiff was entitled to receive the sum of $_____ as a distribution pursuant to section _____ of the defendant's operating agreement. A true and correct copy of the operating agreement is attached hereto as Exhibit "A" and made a part hereof.

4. On _____ [date], at _____ [street address and city], California, defendant's principal place of business, plaintiff delivered a written demand, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit "B" and made a part hereof, that defendant pay all such amounts then due and owing to plaintiff. Defendant has failed and refused, and continues to fail and refuse, to pay plaintiff such amounts.

5. By reason of defendant's refusal to pay such amounts, plaintiff has been damaged in the sum of $_____.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For damages in the sum of $_____, with interest thereon from and after _____ [date];

2. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[Verification, if desired. See § 346.110[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a complaint for use by a member of an LLC to recover damages from the LLC for refusal to make a distribution to the member required by the LLC's operating agreement [Corp. Code §§ 17250, 17251].

[3] Required Allegations

This complaint alleges (1) the capacity of the parties (Paragraphs 1, 2), (2) that plaintiff was entitled to a distribution under the LLC's operating agreement (Paragraph 3), (3) that plaintiff demanded the distribution and was refused by defendant (Paragraph 4), and (4) that plaintiff has been damaged by this refusal (Paragraph 5) [Corp. Code §§ 17250, 17251].

[4] Member's Right to Distribution

A member of an LLC is entitled to receive distributions from an LLC while still a member of the LLC, and before the dissolution and winding up of the LLC, as specified in the operating agreement. This is subject to certain limitations on distributions that would result in insolvency [Corp. Code § 17251; see Corp. Code § 17254; see also § 346.120[4] (improper distributions)].

Distributions are made to members of an LLC in the manner specified in the LLC's operating agreement, if any. If there is no operating agreement, distributions that are a return of capital are made in proportion to a member's contribution, and distributions that are not a return of capital are made in proportion to the allocation of profits [Corp. Code § 17250].

For further coverage of distributions to members, see § 346.14[8].

§ 346.130 Dissenting Member's Demand for Purchase of Interest [Corp. Code § 17601(b)(3)]

[1] FORM Dissenting Member's Demand for Purchase of Interest [Corp. Code § 17601(b)(3)]

DEMAND FOR PURCHASE OF MEMBERSHIP INTEREST

To _____ [name of limited liability company]:

1. I am the owner of a membership interest of _____ [name of limited liability company]. This membership interest is held of record in my name, and is evidenced by Certificate No. _____.

2. I demand that _____ [name of limited liability company] purchase this interest for cash at the price of $_____. This price is the fair market value of this interest as of _____ [date], the day that _____ [name of limited liability company] has stated is the day before the first announcement of the terms of the proposed reorganization of _____ [name of member's limited liability company] and_____[name of other entity].

3. I submit the certificate representing the interest for which I make this demand for purchase for the purpose of endorsing the certificate with a statement that the interest is a dissenting interest. I submit the certificate to the limited liability company at its principal office located at _____ [address].
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

_____ [typed name of member]

_____ [address]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a written demand from a member of an LLC holding a dissenting interest [see [6], below] that the LLC purchase the dissenting interest [Corp. Code §§ 17601, 17602].

For further discussion of dissenter's rights, see § 346.16 and California Legal Forms, Ch. 12C, Limited Liability Companies (Matthew Bender).

[3] Contents of Demand

A demand for purchase of a dissenting interest must be in writing and must contain all of the following [Corp. Code § 17602(b), (c)]:

- A demand that the dissenting member's interest be purchased by the LLC;
- The number and amount of the dissenting member's interest;
- The dissenting member's assertion of the fair market value of the interest to be purchased; and
- A demand that payment be in cash.

The demand must be received by the LLC within 30 days after the day on which the notice of approval of the reorganization was mailed to members [Corp. Code § 17602(b)]. The dissenting member must also tender the certificate of interest if one has been issued. If no certificate of interest has been issued, the member must give written notice of the number or amount of the interest [see Corp. Code § 17603].

[4] Notice of Proposed Reorganization

If LLC members have the right to require the LLC to purchase their dissenting interests [see Corp. Code § 17601(b)], the LLC must mail to each member a notice of approval of the proposed reorganization. The notice must contain specified information, including the price determined to be the fair market value of outstanding interests, the method of valuation, the latest available balance sheet, the latest income statement, and a description of the procedure to exercise dissenters' rights. The statement of price constitutes an offer by the LLC to purchase dissenting interests at that price [Corp. Code § 17602(a)].

For a notice of approval of a proposed reorganization, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 12C, Limited Liability Companies (Matthew Bender).

[5] Right to Demand Purchase of Dissenting Interest

In general, in a merger or reorganization, a member who is entitled to vote on a reorganization and has taken necessary steps to have a dissenting interest [see Corp. Code § 17601(b) (definition); see also [6], below], may require the LLC to purchase that interest for cash at fair market value [Corp. Code § 17601(a)].

A member with a dissenting interest who wishes the LLC to purchase his or her interest must make a written demand on the LLC for the purchase of the interest and the payment to the member in cash of its fair market value. The statement of value constitutes an offer by the member to sell the dissenting interest at that price [Corp. Code § 17602(c)]. For coverage of contents of the demand, see [3], above.

These dissenters' rights provisions apply to domestic LLCs, and to foreign LLCs if members holding more than 50 percent of voting interests reside in California [Corp. Code § 17612(a)]. These provisions do not apply to an LLC with 35 or fewer members if all the members have waived the application of dissenters' rights provisions in writing [Corp. Code § 17612(c)].

[6] "Dissenting Interest" Defined

A "dissenting interest" is a membership interest in an LLC that satisfies all of the following [Corp. Code § 17601(b)]:

- The membership interest was outstanding on the date for the determination of members entitled to vote on the reorganization.

- The membership interest was not voted in favor of the reorganization, or the membership interest was voted against the reorganization [see Corp. Code § 17601(b)(2)].

- The member has demanded that the LLC purchase its interest at its fair market value [see Corp. Code § 17602 (method of demand)].

- The member has submitted the certificate of interest for endorsement, if applicable [see Corp. Code § 17603].

Plaintiff alleges:

1. This complaint is filed pursuant to Corporations Code Section 17605.

2. Defendant is a limited liability company duly organized under the laws of the State of _____, with its principal executive office located in _____ County, California.

3. On_____[date], defendant entered into an agreement of reorganization with_____[ name of entity] to merge defendant and that_____[entity] in accordance with the Corporations Code.

4. Plaintiff is, and on the date for determination of members of record entitled to vote at the members' meeting called to approve the proposed reorganization described in Paragraph 3 of this complaint was, a member of record of defendant. Plaintiff's interest were not voted in favor of that reorganization.

5. On _____ [date], in accordance with the provisions of Corporations Code Section 17602, plaintiff made timely written demand on defendant for the purchase from plaintiff of plaintiff's interest and payment to plaintiff in cash of its fair market value. The demand stated the membership interest of defendant held of record by plaintiff that the plaintiff demanded that defendant purchase, and contained a statement, that is $_____, of what plaintiff claimed to be the fair market value of plaintiff's interest as of the day before the first announcement of the terms of the _____ [reorganization or merger] alleged in Paragraph 3 of this complaint. A true and correct copy of the demand is attached hereto as Exhibit "A" and made a part hereof.

6. On _____ [date], plaintiff submitted a written notice of the amount of plaintiff's interest that plaintiff has demanded that defendant purchase to _____ [defendant at its principal office or _____ (name of defendant's transfer agent), a transfer agent of defendant, at _____ (transfer agent's address)].

7. _____ [Identify issues, e.g., Defendant denies that plaintiff's interest as to which purchase is demanded is a dissenting interest and/or defendant and plaintiff are unable to agree on the fair market value of plaintiff's interest as of _____ (date), the day before the first announcement of the terms of the _____ (reorganization or merger) alleged in Paragraph 3 of this complaint.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. That plaintiff's interest is a dissenting interest;

2. That the court determine, or appoint appraisers to determine, the fair market value of plaintiff's dissenting interest as of the day before the first announcement of the terms of the _____ [reorganization or merger] alleged in this complaint;

3. For payment of an amount equal to the fair market value of of plaintiff's dissenting interest;

4. For interest as allowed by law;

5. For costs of suit herein incurred pursuant to Corporations Code Section 17606; and

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a complaint for use in an action by a dissenting member of an LLC to obtain a determination that his or her interest is a dissenting interest. This complaint is for use by a member with a dissenting interest who has already made a written demand on the LLC to purchase the dissenting interest [see § 346.130[1] (form of demand)], and the LLC has denied that the member has a dissenting interest. This complaint may also be used to demand a determination of the fair market value of the dissenting interest as of the day before the first announcement of the terms of the proposed reorganization to which plaintiff dissents [see [4], below].

[3] Required Allegations

This complaint alleges (1) that it is filed pursuant to Corp. Code § 17605 (Paragraph 1); (2) the capacity of the parties (Paragraphs 2, 4), (3) that defendant entered into an agreement of reorganization (Paragraph 3), (4) that plaintiff demanded the payment for its dissenting interest and submitted its certificate of interest to defendant pursuant to Corp. Code §§ 17602, 17603 (Paragraphs 5, 6), and (5) that defendant has denied that the interest is a dissenting interest (Paragraph 7) [Corp. Code § 17605].

[4] Action for Court-Appointed Appraisal

If, after written demand from a member [see § 346.130[1] (form of demand)], an LLC denies that an interest is a dissenting interest, or the LLC and the dissenting member cannot agree on the value of a dissenting interest, either the LLC or the member may bring an action in superior court within six months after the date of the notice of approval of the reorganization to settle the issue [Corp. Code § 17605]. The court may appoint an appraiser to determine the fair market value of dissenting interests [see Corp. Code § 17606].

For further coverage of reorganizations and dissenting interests, see §§ 346.16, 346.130.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a report to be presented to the court by the appraisers, or a majority of them, who were appointed by the court to determine the fair market value of an LLC member's dissenting interest on reorganization of the LLC [Corp. Code § 17606].

[3] Submission of Report

If an LLC proposing a reorganization and a member of the LLC holding a dissenting interest cannot agree on the fair market value of the dissenting interest, an action may be brought in superior court by either party to determine the fair market value of the interest [Corp. Code § 17605(a)].

The court may then appoint one or more appraisers to determine the fair market value of the dissenting interest. At a time fixed by the court, the appraiser, or a majority of them, must make and file a report of the value with the clerk of the court. On the motion of any party [see § 346.134[1] (form for notice of motion)], the report must be submitted to the court along with any additional relevant evidence. If the court finds the report reasonable, it may confirm it [Corp. Code § 17606(a)].

If a majority of the appraisers fail to make and file a report within 30 days from the date of their appointment (or other specified time), or the report is not confirmed by the court, the court must determine the fair market value of the outstanding interests of the LLC [Corp. Code § 17606(b)].

To _____[name of limited liability company] and to _____[name], its attorney of record:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on _____ [date], at _____ [time], or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in [_____ (Department or Division) _____ of] this court, located at _____[street address], _____[city], plaintiff will, and hereby does, move for an order under Corporations Code Section 17606(a) confirming the report by the appraiser(s) appointed in this matter that was filed on _____ [date], and for judgment in accordance that report. The motion will be made on the ground that the report is reasonable.

The motion will be based on this notice of motion, on the declaration of _____ [name], the memorandum served and filed with this notice, on the report by the appraisers filed with the clerk of this court, a copy of which accompanies this notice, on the papers and records on file, and on such oral and documentary evidence as may be presented at the hearing of the motion.
Dated: _____.

Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a notice of motion for use in applying for confirmation by the court of an appraiser's report determining the fair market value of a plaintiff LLC member's dissenting interest [see Corp. Code § 17606(a); see also § 346.133[1] (form for report)]. It states when, and the grounds on which, the motion will be made and the papers on which it is based [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1010].

[3] Submission of Report on Party's Motion

After the appraisers have filed their report in the office of the clerk of the court, the report is submitted to the court on the motion of any party. The report will be considered on any evidence that the court considers relevant. If the court finds the report reasonable, the court may confirm it [Corp. Code § 17606(a)]. If the court does not confirm the report, the court must determine the fair market value of the dissenting shares [Corp. Code § 17606(b)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Complying With Local Rules. Many courts have local rules concerning the filing of motions, including rules concerning the advance reservation of motion dates, the days on which motions are heard, the departments in which motions are heard, and whether motions are to be filed with the court clerk or directly with the department that will hear the motion. Some courts also allow filing by fax with the payment of the appropriate fee. The attorney should always consult the local rules of court.

[4] Requirement to Include Supporting Memorandum

This notice of motion must be accompanied by a supporting memorandum [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1103(a), 3.1113]. See Ch. 417, Points and Authorities , for a discussion of the correct forms. A copy of any paper on which the motion is to be based must also accompany the notice if such paper has not previously been served on the party to be notified and was not filed by him or her [Code Civ. Proc. § 1010]. The notice of motion may also be, and most often is, accompanied by a declaration establishing the facts on which the motion is based [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2003, 2009, 2015.5]. Note that if this is a law and motion proceeding within the meaning of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1103(a), the format requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110 will apply to the notice of motion.

The report of _____ [names of appraisers], the appraisers duly appointed by the court to determine the fair market value of the plaintiff's interest in _____ [name of limited liability company], a limited liability company, as of _____ [date], was duly filed on _____ [date]. This report determined the fair market value of that interest to be $_____. On motion of _____ [plaintiff or defendant], the report was submitted to the court, and the court has taken the report on submission. Having considered all relevant evidence bearing on the report, and being fully advised, the court finds the award of the appraisers to be reasonable.

IT IS HEREBY ADJUDGED, ORDERED, AND DECREED that the report of the appraisers in the above-entitled action be and the same is hereby confirmed.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an order for use in confirming the report of the appraisers of the fair market value of a dissenting interest in an LLC that has been submitted to the court on the motion of any party [Corp. Code § 17606(a); see § 346.134[1] (form for notice of motion)].

[3] Order Confirming Report

After the appraisers have filed their report in the office of the clerk of the court, the report is submitted to the court on the motion of any party. The report will be considered on any evidence that the court considers relevant. If the court finds the report reasonable, the court may confirm it [Corp. Code § 17606(a)].

If a majority of the appraisers fail to make and file a report within 30 days from the date of their appointment (or other specified time), or the report is not confirmed by the court, the court must determine the fair market value of the outstanding interests of the LLC [Corp. Code § 17606(b)].

For a form for a judgment to use after confirmation of the appraiser's report, see § 346.136[1].

[4] Whether Motion Is Law and Motion Proceeding

It is not clear whether the motion relating to this order [see § 346.134[1] (form for notice of motion)] is a law and motion proceeding within the meaning of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1103(a)(2). If it is, the first page of each paper must specify the following information immediately below the case number [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1110(b)]:

- The date, time, and location, if ascertainable, of any scheduled hearing and the name of the hearing judge, if ascertainable.
- The nature or title of any attached document (other than an exhibit).
- The date of filing of the action.
- The trial date, if set.

Both this form and the notice of motion in § 346.134[1] are drafted on the assumption that the above-listed requirements do apply, and therefore include space for all the information noted above. In addition, documents bound together must be consecutively paginated [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1110(c)].

§ 346.136 Judgment Determining Fair Market Value of Dissenting Interest [Corp. Code § 17606]

[1] FORM Judgment Determining Fair Market Value of Dissenting Interest [Corp. Code § 17606]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)
_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
a California Limited Liability Company, and	)	JUDGMENT
_____ [name(s)],	)

The above-entitled action, having come on for trial on _____ [date], on the complaint of plaintiff and the answer of defendant, _____ [name of limited liability company], and the action having been tried before the court, plaintiff being represented by counsel, _____ [name], and defendant by counsel, _____ [name], and evidence, both oral and documentary, having been introduced and certain stipulations of facts having been made, and the court having considered all evidence and facts and the arguments of counsel and being fully advised in the premises, and having directed that judgment be entered in accordance therewith;

NOW, THEREFORE, IT IS HEREBY ADJUDGED, ORDERED, AND DECREED:

1. Plaintiff's membership interest in the defendant is a dissenting interest.

2. Plaintiff have judgment entered against defendant in the sum of $ _____, representing the fair market value on _____ [date] of plaintiff's interest in _____ [name of limited liability company], with interest on that sum at the rate of 10 percent per annum from the date that judgment is entered in this action; provided, however, that the judgment will be payable only on the endorsement and delivery to defendant of the certificates of interest of the plaintiff, if any.

[EITHER]

3. Plaintiff and defendant shall bear their respective costs of suit except that each party shall pay one half of the reasonable compensation of the appraisers appointed in this action, each in the amount of $ _____.

[OR, if value awarded plaintiff exceeds limited liability company's original offer]

3. Defendant shall pay plaintiff _____ [his or her] costs of suit incurred in this action in the amount of $_____, including the reasonable compensation of the appraisers appointed in this action in the amount of $_____.

[OR, if value awarded plaintiff exceeds 125 percent of limited liability company's original offer]

3. Defendant shall pay plaintiff _____ [his or her] costs of suit incurred in this action in the amount of $ _____, including the reasonable compensation of the appraisers appointed in this action in the amount of $_____, plaintiff's attorney's fees in the amount of $_____, and the fees of plaintiff's expert witnesses in the amount of $_____.

[CONTINUE]

Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a judgment for use in determining (1) that a plaintiff LLC member's membership interest is a dissenting interest, (2) the fair market value of dissenting interest, reflecting the court's determination of the amount, whether or not made with the aid of appraisers, and (3) how the costs of the suit will be apportioned.

Three optional forms of Paragraph 3 are provided, depending on how cost of the suit will be apportioned [see Corp. Code § 17606(e); see also § 346.136[4]].

[3] Rendering Judgment Against Limited Liability Company for Payment of Dissenting Interest

Subject to restrictions relating to the Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Transfer Act [see Corp. Code § 17607], judgment must be rendered against an LLC for payment of an amount equal to the fair market value, as determined by the court, of each dissenting interest that a dissenting member is entitled to require the LLC to purchase, with interest at the legal rate for judgments from the date of consummation of the reorganization [Corp. Code § 17606(c)].

The judgment is payable forthwith, provided that the member endorse and deliver to the LLC the transferable certificates of interest, if any, evidencing the membership interest [Corp. Code § 17606(d)].

[4] Apportioning Costs of Action

The costs of the action, including compensation of appraisers, to be fixed by the court, will be assessed or apportioned as the court deems equitable. However, if the appraisal of the dissenting interest exceeds the price offered by the LLC, the LLC must pay the costs, including, in the court's discretion, if the value awarded is more than 125 percent of the price offered by the LLC [see Corp. Code § 17602(a)], attorney's fees and fees of expert witnesses [Corp. Code § 17606(e)].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a complaint for use by one or more members of an LLC to seek judicial dissolution of the LLC [Corp. Code §§ 17350(c), 17351(a); see § 346.150[4]].

[3] Required Allegations

This complaint alleges the following:

- The capacity of the parties (Paragraphs 1, 2), and
- The grounds for the judicial dissolution (Paragraph 3) [Corp. Code § 17351(a)].

[4] Grounds for Judicial Dissolution

An LLC may be judicially dissolved pursuant to an action filed by a manager or member when any of the following occurs [Corp. Code § 17351(a); see Corp. Code § 17350(c)]:

- It is not reasonably practicable to carry on the LLC's business in conformity with its articles of organization or operating agreement.
- Dissolution is reasonably necessary for the protection of the rights or interests of the complaining members.
- The LLC's business has been abandoned.
- The LLC's management is deadlocked or subject to internal dissention.
- Those in control of the LLC have been guilty of, or have knowingly countenanced, persistent and pervasive fraud, mismanagement, or abuse of authority.

Noninitiating members may avoid dissolution by purchasing the membership interests of the initiating members at their fair market value [Corp. Code § 17351(b)(1)]. The Act specifies procedures for such purchase [see Corp. Code § 17351(b)(2)-(5)], including a special proceeding in which the court will fix the value of the interests to be transferred, if necessary because of the parties' inability to agree on a price. The court's decree resulting from that special proceeding is separately appealable [Corp. Code § 17351(b)(3); Dickson v. Rehmke (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 469, 476-477, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 874 (decree was issued in May, and notice of appeal filed in August was filed too late even though filed within period for appeal from court's judgment in dissolution action)].

For further coverage of dissolution, winding up, and avoiding dissolution, see § 346.17.

[5] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)], and the first page of the first paper must state whether or not the demand exceeds $10,000 [Gov. Code § 70613(b)]. The statement regarding the demand must use the following language: "Amount demanded _____ [exceeds or does not exceed] $10,000" [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9) (statement regarding amount of demand must appear "below the character of the action or proceeding")].

5. As a direct and proximate result of defendant's(s') violation of his/her/their fiduciary duty(ies) as set forth herein, plaintiff has been damaged in the sum of $_____.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendants and each of them as follows:

1. For _____ [specify, e.g., damages in the sum of $_____];

2. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[Verification, if desired. See § 346.110[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a complaint that may be used by an LLC to seek damages from a manager of the LLC for breach of his or her fiduciary duties [see Corp. Code § 17153].

[3] Required Allegations

This complaint alleges:

- The capacity of the parties (Paragraphs 1-3).

- That the defendants breached their fiduciary duty to the LLC (Paragraph 4) [Corp. Code § 17153].

- That the LLC was damaged as a result of that breach (Paragraph 5).

[4] Manager's Fiduciary Duties

A manager owes a fiduciary duty to an LLC and its members to the same extent as a partner would owe to a partnership and to the partners of the partnership [Corp. Code § 17153]. A partner's standard of conduct owed to the partnership and other partners is to act in the highest good faith to the partners, and a partner may not seek to obtain an advantage in the partnership affairs by the slightest misconduct, misrepresentation, concealment, threat, or adverse pressure of any kind [Leff v. Gunter (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 508, 514, 189 Cal. Rptr. 377, 658 P.2d 740] .

Much as partners' duties may be altered in a partnership agreement, managers' fiduciary duties to the LLC and its members may only be modified in a written operating agreement with the informed consent of the members [Corp. Code § 17005(d)].

[5] Who Is Affected by Fiduciary Duty

An LLC may be managed by all its members or by one or more managers [Corp. Code §§ 17150, 17151]. Unless the articles of organization state that an LLC will be managed by one or more managers [see Corp. Code § 17151(b)], the business and affairs of the LLC are to be managed by its members (subject to any restrictions in the articles or operating agreement) [Corp. Code § 17150]. If the articles do not contain this statement, "manager" refers to each member of the LLC [Corp. Code § 17001(w)]. This means that if the LLC's articles do not specifically state that the LLC will be managed by one or more managers, the fiduciary duty outlined in § 346.160[4] applies to each member of the LLC.

[6] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)], and the first page of the first paper must state whether or not the demand exceeds $10,000 [Gov. Code § 70613(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9) (statement regarding amount of demand must appear "below the character of the action or proceeding")].

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Plaintiff _____ [name of limited liability company] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a limited liability company organized and existing under the laws of the State of California, with its principal place of business at _____ [address], _____ [city], California.

2. Defendant _____ [name of member] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a resident of _____ County, California [or allege other capacity and residence of defendant].

3. Defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [specify position with the limited liability company, e.g., a member of the plaintiff limited liability company].

_____. [In separately numbered paragraphs, state capacity in limited liability company of other individual defendants].

4. Defendant(s) _____ [name(s) of member(s)] and the plaintiff entered into a written operating agreement, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit "A" and made a part hereof, whereby defendant(s) agreed to make a capital contribution to the plaintiff in the amount of $_____ eaCh. Defendant breached this agreement with the plaintiff limited liability company in that _____ [set forth facts showing breach of the agreement with the limited liability company].

5. Plaintiff has performed each and every obligation required of it by the operating agreement described herein, except those obligations that have been excused by defendant's breaCh.

6. As a direct and proximate result of defendant's(s') breach of the operating agreement as set forth herein, plaintiff has been damaged in the sum of $_____.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendants and each of them as follows:

1. For _____ [specify, e.g., damages in the sum of $_____];

2. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[Verification, if desired. See § 346.110[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a complaint that may be used by an LLC to seek damages from a member for breach of his or her obligation, contained in the operating agreement, to make a contribution to the LLC [Corp. Code § 17201; see [4], below].

This form may be modified to seek damages for a failure to otherwise comply with a member's obligations to the LLC contained in the operating agreement.

[3] Required Allegations

This complaint alleges (1) the capacity of the parties (Paragraphs 1-3), (2) that the parties entered into a written operating agreement and that defendants breached their obligation to contribute to the LLC (Paragraph 4) [Corp. Code § 17201], (3) that plaintiff has performed its obligations or that they were excused by defendant's breach (Paragraph 5), and (4) that the LLC was damaged as a result of the breach (Paragraph 6).

[4] Requirement to Make Contribution

The articles of organization or operating agreement of an LLC may provide for capital contributions of members, which may be in money, property, or services, or an obligation to contribute any of those things to the LLC [Corp. Code § 17200(a)]. The Act does not require that members make capital contributions, but some member capital is likely to be needed by the business and adequate capitalization may be necessary for members to avoid shareholder-like liability [see § 346.14[14][b][i]].

[5] Consequences of Failure to Make Contribution

A member who does not make an agreed contribution of property or services may, at the LLC's option, be required to contribute an amount of cash equal to the fair market value (or written agreed value, if any) of the contribution not made. This option is in addition to other rights, including specific performance, that the LLC may have under the articles, the operating agreement, or applicable law [Corp. Code § 17201(a)(2)].

The operating agreement may provide that the interest of a member who fails to make any agreed contribution or other payment shall be subject to specified remedies or consequences, including reduction of economic rights. Such a provision is enforceable in accordance with its terms unless the member seeking to invalidate it establishes that it was unreasonable under the circumstances at the time the agreement was made [Corp. Code § 17201(a)(3)].

Subject to the articles or operating agreement, a member is not excused from an agreement to make a contribution to the LLC because of death, disability, dissolution, or other reason [Corp. Code § 17201(a)(1)].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a complaint is for use by an agent of an LLC claiming that he or she is entitled to indemnification from the LLC for defense expenses incurred in a civil action or proceeding in which he or she was sued because of being an agent of the LLC, where he or she successfully defended the action or proceeding on the merits [see Corp. Code § 17155(a); see also [4], below].

PRACTICE TIP:

Basis of Claim. Although the indemnification sought in this complaint is authorized by statute [Corp. Code § 17155(a)], this cause of action should be viewed as a cause of action for breach of contract; that is, breach of the indemnification provision in the articles of organization or written operating agreement.

[3] Required Allegations

This complaint alleges (1) the capacity of the parties (Paragraphs 1, 2), (2) that plaintiff as an agent of the LLC successfully defended an action against the LLC (Paragraphs 3, 4), (3) that plaintiff is entitled to indemnity under the LLC's articles or operating agreement (Paragraph 5) [Corp. Code § 17155], (4) that plaintiff performed all its obligations to the LLC and is obligated to pay expenses based on its defense (Paragraphs 6, 7).

[4] Agent's Right to Indemnification

Except for a breach of fiduciary duty [see Corp. Code § 17153], the articles of organization or written operating agreement of an LLC may provide for indemnification of any person, including a manager, member, officer, employee, or agent of the LLC, against judgments, settlements, or other liabilities incurred in that capacity [Corp. Code § 17155(a)].

§ 348.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the statutory requirements for giving a notice of a pending action that concerns real property, commonly referred to as a notice of lis pendens. It also discusses the procedure to be followed in expunging notices of lis pendens.

The chapter contains:

- A general form of notice of the pendency of an action [see § 348.60].

- Notice of motion and supporting declaration to expunge a notice of lis pendens from the record and related order [see §§ 348.61, 348.62].

- Notice of motion and supporting declaration to require the claimant to provide an undertaking and related order [see §§ 348.63, 348.64].

- Notice of motion to exonerate or modify an undertaking [see § 348.65].

- Notice of withdrawal of lis pendens [see § 348.66].

§ 348.10 Governing Statutes

The general requirements for the filing and recording of a notice of lis pendens and for expunging such a notice are contained in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 405-405.61. These provisions became operative on January 1, 1993. They replaced, and significantly revised the requirements set forth in, former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 409-409.9. Cases construing the former provisions are cited as persuasive authority in the following discussion to the extent that they state principles or procedures that appear to be consistent with, and not abrogated by, Code Civ. Proc. §§ 405-405.61.

The Research Guide to this chapter should be consulted for other lis pendens statutes covering specific actions affecting interests in real property.

§ 348.11 Purpose of Lis Pendens: Provisional Protection of Real Property Interest

When an action involves a claim affecting real property, a party to that action may, by recording a notice of lis pendens, preserve his or her rights or interests, if any, in the real property pending the final determination of the action. The notice of lis pendens provides constructive notice that the claim affecting that property is pending. Any taker of a subsequently created interest in that property thus takes that interest subject to any judgment rendered in the pending action [see La Paglia v. Superior Court (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1322, 1326, 264 Cal. Rptr. 63 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1908(a)(2); Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375, 379, 295 P.2d 405 ; *Brandolino v. Lindsay (1969) 269 Cal. § 348.12 Application of Lis Pendens to Other Actions

In addition to actions in California state courts, the lis pendens statute applies to actions pending in any United States District Court [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.5].

A public agency that brings an action to declare a building uninhabitable must record a lis pendens notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.7]. Nevertheless, the statute does not apply to actions by a public agency in eminent domain [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.6; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1230.010 et seq.]. In those actions, the issuance, service, and recordation of a notice of pendency of action are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1250.150 [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.6].

§ 348.14 Persons Entitled to Record Lis Pendens

A party to an action who asserts a real property claim (see definition, below) may record a notice of pendency of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.20; see Code Civ. Proc. § 405.2 ("notice of pendency of action" or "notice" means a notice of the pendency of an action in which a real property claim is alleged)]. Such a party who records a notice of lis pendens is called a "claimant" [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.1]. A "real property claim" is a cause or causes of action in a pleading that would, if meritorious, affect either of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.4]:

- Title to, or the right to possession of, specific real property; or

- The use of an easement identified in the pleading, other than an easement obtained pursuant to statute by any regulated public utility.

ILLUSTRATION:

Trustee's Sale. A creditor, whose debt is secured by a deed of trust on real property, initiates a private trustee sale of the property pursuant to the terms of the deed of trust. Is it proper for the creditor or trustee to record a notice of lis pendens? No. This nonjudicial proceeding to foreclose under the deed of trust is not the type of judicial action to which the lis pendens procedures pertain [see Carpenter v. Smallpage (1934) 220 Cal. 129, 132-133, 29 P.2d 841 (decided under prior law)].

One court has held that the California lis pendens statutes do not authorize the recording in California of a notice of litigation that is pending in the courts of another state [The Formula Inc. v. Superior Court (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1455, 1465, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 341]. The court concluded that nothing in the text or history of the initial enactment of the lis pendens statutes indicates a specific legislative purpose to include litigation in the courts of other states within their reach [The Formula Inc. v. Superior Court (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1455, 1462, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 341]. The court also declined to construe the statutes as authorizing the recording of such notice. Amendments to the original lis pendens statutes created a balance in which the interests of third party litigant claimants, property owners, and prospective purchasers are protected by a complicated procedural scheme. This balance is an integral part of the policy underlying the lis pendens statutes. If lis pendens notices of litigation in the courts of other states were authorized, the California statutory balance of the interests of third party litigant claimants, property owners, and prospective purchasers would depend on the willingness of the courts of the other 49 states to adopt the entire procedural scheme and substantive criteria for expungement of a California lis pendens notice. In view of the uncertainty that other states would adopt California's lis pendens procedural scheme and substantive criteria, the foreseeability that involvement in a real property transaction might include the inconvenience of litigation in the state where the property is located, and the lack of any indication that such a construction was necessary, the California lis pendens statutory scheme should not be judicially construed to extend to litigation in the courts of other states [The Formula Inc. v. Superior Court (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1455, 1465, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 341].

§ 348.15 Contents of Notice of Lis Pendens

The notice of lis pendens must contain the names of all parties to the action and a description of the affected property [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.20]. For a form of notice of lis pendens, see § 348.60.

PRACTICE TIP:

Avoid Doe Defendants. Recordation is effective to provide constructive notice only of the noticed action and only of its pendency against parties who are not fictitiously named [see Code Civ. Proc. § 405.24 and discussion in § 348.20]. In other words, notice of a claim against a fictitiously named defendant will not be effective either against that defendant or his or her successors. Counsel for a party alleging a real property claim should therefore take particular care to identify and name all defendants by their proper names.

§ 348.16 Attorney Signature or Court Approval

A notice of lis pendens generally may not be recorded unless either of the following are satisfied [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.21]:

- The claimant's attorney of record in the pending action has signed the notice.

- If the claimant is appearing in propria persona, the claimant has signed the notice and the notice has been approved by a judge. A judge of the court in which the action is pending may approve the notice on the request of the claimant.

§ 348.17 Service of Notice of Lis Pendens

[1] Service Before Recordation Generally Required

Before recording a notice of lis pendens, the claimant must mail a copy of the notice, by registered or certified mail with return receipt requested, to the following persons [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.22]:

- All parties to whom the real property claim is adverse [see discussion in § 348.14 (defining "real property claim")]. Copies must be mailed to all known addresses of these parties.

- All owners of record of the affected real property, as determined by the latest county assessment roll.

The claimant must prepare and execute proof of service under Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a [see Code Civ. Proc. § 405.23; see also §§ 348.17[4], 348.18].

[2] Service on Later Named Adverse Parties

When a party to whom the real property claim is adverse is later joined in the action, the claimant must serve that party with a copy of the notice of lis pendens immediately and in the same manner as service on prior named adverse parties [see Code Civ. Proc. § 405.22].

[3] Declaration in Lieu of Service

If there is no known address for service on an adverse party or owner, the claimant may record a declaration under penalty of perjury to that effect [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.22; see § 348.18; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 (requirements for declaration)]. The claimant is not required to serve a copy of the notice on that party or owner [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.22].

[4] Notice Void Without Proper Service

A notice of lis pendens is void and invalid as to any adverse party or owner of record if either or both of the following occur [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.23]:

- The claimant fails to serve that party or owner with a copy of the notice as required under Code Civ. Proc. § 405.22 [see § 348.17[1]].

- The claimant fails to record, together with the notice, a proof of service on that party or owner in the form and content specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a.

Technical violations that render the lis pendens notice "void and invalid" permit a defendant to clear title to the affected property by filing a motion for expungement [McKnight v. Superior Court (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 291, 303, 215 Cal. Rptr. 909 ; but see Biddle v. Superior Court (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 135, 137-138, 215 Cal. Rptr. 848 (lis pendens valid when, notwithstanding certain technical violations, defendants had actual notice and waived defects in service by waiting more than one year to file motion to expunge); see discussion in § 348.21[5]].

§ 348.18 Recording Notice of Lis Pendens

The notice of lis pendens may be recorded in the office of the recorder of each county in which all or part of the real property is situated [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.20]. Proof of prior service of copies of the notice on each adverse party or owner must be recorded together with the notice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 405.23, covered in § 348.17[4]].

A party to a pending arbitration may not record a notice of pendency of action without first filing a civil action in superior court [Manhattan Loft LLC. v. Mercury Liquors Inc. (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 1040, 1045, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 457] . In one case, the defendants recorded two notices of lis pendens during arbitration proceedings in a dispute over the sale of property. The plaintiff filed suit against defendants for slander of title, claiming that they were not authorized to file lis pendens during the arbitration proceedings. Defendants filed a special motion to strike the complaint pursuant to the anti-SLAPP statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16]. The trial court granted the motion. The court of appeal reversed. A lis pendens may be filed only when an action in a court of law is pending. An arbitration proceeding does not constitute an "action" within the meaning of the lis pendens law [Manhattan Loft LLC. v. Mercury Liquors Inc. (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 1040, 1056, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 457] . Because no action was pending at the time the defendants filed the two lis pendens, they improperly recorded the notices of pendency of action. Thus, the trial court erred in granting the special motion to strike [Manhattan Loft LLC. v. Mercury Liquors Inc. (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 1040, 1045, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 457] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Get Acknowledgment of Notice; Record as Soon as Possible. Although some local recorders may record a lis pendens without an acknowledgment, an acknowledgment appears to be required under Gov. Code § 27287.

Because a notice of lis pendens is effective only from the time it is recorded, it is usually in the claimant's best interest to record the notice as soon as possible after initiating the action [see also § 348.20]. The notice may be recorded, however, as long as the action is still pending. For example, it is permissible to record a notice of lis pendens after rendition of judgment in the action but before the judgment becomes final [see Kartheiser v. Superior Court (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 617, 619, 345 P.2d 135] .

§ 348.20 Effect of Lis Pendens

[1] Constructive Notice

A recorded notice of lis pendens provides constructive notice of the pendency of the noticed action as it relates to the real property described in the notice, but only of its pendency against parties who are not fictitiously named [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.24]. However, a recorded document does not impart constructive notice from the moment it is recorded. The operative event is the indexing of the document [Lewis v. Superior Court (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1850, 1866-1867, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 63 ; see Dyer v. Martinez (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 1240, 1246, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 907 ; Hochstein v. Romero (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 447, 452, 268 Cal. Rptr. 202] . Before constructive notice may be conclusively presumed, the document must be "recorded as prescribed by law" [Civ. Code § 1213]. A document that is not indexed as required by statute does not impart constructive notice because it has not been recorded "as prescribed by law" [Hochstein v. Romero (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 447, 452, 268 Cal. Rptr. 202 ; Lewis v. Superior Court (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1850, 1866, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 63] .

The following persons are deemed to have constructive notice from the time that the notice is recorded [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.24]:

- Any purchaser.

- Any encumbrancer.
- Any other transferee of the real property described in the notice.

The rights and interest of the claimant in the property, as ultimately determined in the pending noticed action, relate back to the date of the recording of the notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.24].

ILLUSTRATION:

Effect of Relation Back to Recordation. Corporation sues a former officer, alleging that he had converted and sold corporate assets, invested the proceeds in real property, and fraudulently transferred the title to that property from himself to his wife. Corporation records a notice of lis pendens soon after commencing the action, in 1984. In June 1987, Corporation obtains a judgment in its favor, awarding damages and restraining defendants from conveying the real property until further order of the court. In September 1987, defendants file a bankruptcy petition under Chapter 11. In the bankruptcy proceeding, Corporation asserts a claim to the real property as a secured creditor. The Bankruptcy Appellate Panel holds that the prior judgment does not affect title to or possession of property, and therefore does not relate back to the recording of the lis pendens notice. Consequently, Corporation's claim is not secured, but is voidable as a preferential transfer under 11 U.S.C. § 547 because the abstract of judgment was filed within the 90-day "preference period" preceding the date the bankruptcy petition was filed. Is the Bankruptcy Appellant Panel correct in its holding? No. The prior judgment may not affect title to the extent that it awards damages, but it does affect title to the extent that it enjoins the conveyance of real property found to have been fraudulently transferred. The judgment therefore relates back to the date the lis pendens was recorded and is senior to any later acquired interest [see In re Lane (9th Cir. 1992) 980 F.2d 601, 602-603 (recording of lis pendens constituted "transfer" under 11 U.S.C. § 547(e)(1)(A))].

[2] Period of Effectiveness

Unless a notice of lis pendens is expunged or withdrawn, it remains effective as long as the action is pending, that is, until the action is finally determined on appeal or the time for appeal has passed, unless the judgment is sooner satisfied [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1049; Garcia v. Pinhero (1937) 22 Cal. App. 2d 194, 197] .

If an action in which a lis pendens has been filed is settled and then abandoned or dismissed, without any consent decree or judgment ordering an accounting or determining any rights in the real property, the lis pendens is terminated. Thus, a person who has acquired an interest before settlement, abandonment, or dismissal is not affected by the prior lis pendens [Harris v. Whittier Bldg. & Loan Asso. (1936) 18 Cal. App. 2d 260, 266, 63 P.2d 840 ; Olson v. Cornwell (1933) 134 Cal. App. 419, 426-427, 25 P.2d 879] . If, after termination of an action without judgment, a new action is commenced asserting a real property claim, a new lis pendens must be recorded and filed [see Garcia v. Pinhero (1937) 22 Cal. App. 2d 194, 196, 70 P.2d 675] .

[3] Practice Effect and Safeguards

While the lis pendens law is designed to protect the claimant's rights by providing notice, and not to aid plaintiffs in their claims, the practical effect of recording a lis pendens is to render a defendant's property both unmarketable and unsuitable as security for a loan. The financial pressure thus exerted on a defendant can be considerable, forcing him or her to settle not on the merits of the case but simply to get rid of the cloud on his or her title. Because of the potential for abuse, to gain an unfair advantage in litigation as distinguished from preserving the status quo, courts have tended toward a restrictive rather than a liberal application of the lis pendens statutes [see La Paglia v. Superior Court (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1322, 1326-1327, 264 Cal. Rptr. 63 ; see, e.g., § 348.21[2]].

The 1993 lis pendens law, to guard against such abuse, enacted several safeguards for persons who may be affected by a notice of lis pendens. The law now provides for increased oversight in the recording of notices (by requiring court approval of notices that are filed by claimants appearing in propria persona) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 405.21 and § 348.16], and imposes on claimants strict notice requirements [see Code Civ. Proc. § 405.22; see § 348.17]. It also clearly places the burden of proof on claimants in most proceedings that have been initiated by other affected persons to expunge the notice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 405.30; see § 348.21[1], [4]]. Moreover, under a related amendment to Civ. Code § 47, the filing of a notice of lis pendens is no longer absolutely privileged, with the result that a claimant who files an improper notice may be liable for any resulting damages in an action for slander of title [see § 348.28].

§ 348.21 Grounds for Expungement of Notice of Lis Pendens

[1] Pleading Does Not Contain Real Property Claim--General Rule

The court must order a lis pendens notice expunged if it finds that the pleading on which the notice is based does not contain a real property claim. In this event, the court may not require an undertaking as a condition of the expungement order [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.31].

If an affected party or person seeks to expunge a notice of lis pendens on this ground, it is the claimant, or party who recorded the notice, who has the burden of proving that his or her pleading includes a real property claim [see Code Civ. Proc. § 405.30]. A "real property claim" means any cause or causes of action in a pleading that would, if meritorious, affect either of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.4; see also § 348.14]:

- Title to, or the right to possession of, specific real property; or

- The use of an easement identified in the pleading, other than an easement obtained pursuant to statute by any regulated public utility.

For further discussion of whether particular actions constitute or include a real property claim, see § 348.21[2].

[2] Creditor Suits

[a] Fraudulent Conveyance

The law is unsettled regarding the status of creditors' suits as real property claims. The California Supreme Court has held that a creditor's action to set aside as fraudulent a debtor's transfer of real property, brought under the Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act [Civ. Code § 3439 et seq.], is a "real property claim" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 405.4 because it is a cause of action that would, if meritorious, affect title to real property [Kirkeby v. Superior Court (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 642, 648, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 805, 93 P.3d 395 ; see Hunting World, Inc. v. Superior Court (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 67, 72, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 923 (cited with approval on this point by Kirkeby, and discussed in § 348.21[2][b]]. However, under the prior lis pendens statute [former Code Civ. Proc. § 409 et seq., repealed as of January 1, 1993], the majority view held that creditors' suits seeking to impose an equitable lien or constructive trust on real property did not affect title to real property for the purpose of recording a notice of lis pendens [see below]. In Kirkeby, the Supreme Court expressly did not reach the question of whether a claim seeking to impose a constructive trust or equitable lien may be a basis for a lis pendens [Kirkeby v. Superior Court (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 642, 650 n.7, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 805, 93 P.3d 395] .

In Kirkeby, the plaintiff started a business with her brother and his wife (defendants). Plaintiff alleged that after she resigned from the company board of directors, defendants began looting the corporation through fraud and self-dealing. Plaintiff filed a lawsuit against defendants alleging numerous causes of action including a cause of action for fraudulent conveyance, and seeking declaratory and injunctive relief as well as damages. In her fraudulent conveyance cause of action, plaintiff alleged that her brother obtained a $50,000 loan from the business by representing that he would use the borrowed funds to construct a building to house the business operations. However, plaintiff alleged that defendants used the loan to purchase residential income property and immediately transferred their interest in the property to a family limited partnership. Plaintiff also alleged that her brother transferred his interest in his family's residence to a family trust and that defendants, as trustees of that trust, subsequently transferred the trust's interest in the residence to the family partnership. Plaintiff alleged that defendants made both of the transfers to defraud creditors, and requested that the transfers be voided to the extent necessary to satisfy the claims set forth in her complaint. These transfers formed the bases of plaintiff's fraudulent conveyance claim. Plaintiff recorded a notice of lis pendens on the two properties in question. The trial court granted defendants' motion to expunge the lis pendens on the ground the complaint primarily sought money damages. The court of appeal denied plaintiff's petition for a writ. The Supreme Court reversed the court of appeal judgment and remanded the action.

The Court explained that a fraudulent conveyance claim requesting avoidance of a transfer or obligation pursuant to Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(1) may result in the voiding of a transfer of title of specific real property. By definition, the voiding of a transfer of real property will affect title to or possession of real property. Therefore, a fraudulent conveyance action seeking avoidance of a transfer under Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(1) clearly "affects title to, or the right to possession of " real property and is a real property claim for the purposes of the lis pendens statutes [Kirkeby v. Superior Court (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 642, 649, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 805, 93 P.3d 395] . The Court held that the plaintiff in Kirkeby adequately pled a fraudulent conveyance claim by alleging that the defendants transferred title of the subject properties with the intent to defraud. The plaintiff also asked the court to void the transfers of both properties to the extent necessary to satisfy the claims in her complaint. As such, her fraudulent conveyance claim, if successful, would affect title to specific real property. Accordingly, the Court held that the plaintiff's lis pendens was improperly expunged [Kirkeby v. Superior Court (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 642, 650-651, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 805, 93 P.3d 395] .

In reaching this conclusion, the Court recognized that the lis pendens statute may be abused, and that because of the effect of a lis pendens, courts have restricted rather than broadened the application of the statute. Nevertheless, the Court stated that it could not ignore the plain language of the statute, which clearly establishes that fraudulent conveyance claims may support a lis pendens when the plaintiff seeks to void a fraudulent transfer [Kirkeby v. Superior Court (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 642, 651, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 805, 93 P.3d 395] .

[b] Equitable Liens and Constructive Trusts

Under the prior lis pendens law, the courts of appeal were in conflict on the issue whether a lis pendens was appropriate when a creditor sought to impose an equitable lien or constructive trust on real property in order to recover on a debt, for example, by alleging that the real property was purchased with funds that the debtor fraudulently transferred to avoid paying the creditor. The question under the prior law was whether a notice of lis pendens could properly be filed in these creditors' suits because they "affected title to" real property [cf. Code Civ. Proc. § 405.4; see § 348.21[1]].

The minority view held that creditor suits did affect title to real property for the purpose of recording a notice of lis pendens [see Okuda v. Superior Court (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 135, 138-141, 192 Cal. Rptr. 388 (action to foreclose equitable lien); Coppinger v. Superior Court (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 883, 890-891, 185 Cal. Rptr. 24 (action to impose constructive trust)]. The majority view favored a restrictive application of the law because of the potential for abuse by creditors to use the notice of lis pendens to obtain an unfair advantage in the prosecution of their cases. These courts held that creditor suits did not affect title to real property for the purpose of recording a notice of lis pendens, reasoning that the creditors did not have a claim to a present interest in the real property, but were simply pursuing claims for an equitable lien or constructive trust on the real property as a means of securing recovery on a debt unrelated to the real property [see La Paglia v. Superior Court (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1322, 1327-1329, 264 Cal. Rptr. 63 ; Wardley Development, Inc. v. Superior Court (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 391, 393, 394 n.3, 394-398, 262 Cal. Rptr. 87 ; Elder v. Carlisle Ins. Co. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1313, 1320 n.8, 238 Cal. Rptr. 897 ; Urez Corp. v. Superior Court (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1141, 1147-1149, 235 Cal. Rptr. 837 ; Burger v. Superior Court (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 1013, 1017-1019, 199 Cal. Rptr. 227] .

In Hunting World [Hunting World, Inc. v. Superior Court (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 67, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 923 (cited with approval in Kirkeby v. Superior Court (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 642, 651, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 805, 93 P.3d 395 , discussed in § 348.21[2][a])], the court found that an extension of this majority line of cases was not necessary because the current lis pendens law is designed to curb abuses of lis pendens. It provides for expungement if the claimant cannot show by a preponderance of the evidence that the action is probably valid. Further, the court may protect the property owner by expungement if adequate relief for the claimant may be secured by a bond or by requiring a bond as a condition of the lis pendens [Hunting World, Inc. v. Superior Court (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 67, 73, 26 Cal. Rptr.2d 923] . The court also found that an extension of the majority line of cases was unwarranted because the clear wording of Code Civ. Proc. § 405.31 covers a claim to set aside a conveyance of real property. According to the court, in most of those cases, constructive trust or equitable lien causes of action were appended to lawsuits that centered on money damages; thus, those courts could conclude that the actions primarily sought money damages and did not affect title to real property. By contrast, the uniform fraudulent transfer action covered by the lis pendens in Hunting World affected only title to real property [Hunting World, Inc. v. Superior Court (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 67, 73-74, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 923] .

A later Court of Appeal decision went along with the majority line of cases precluding the use of a lis pendens in constructive trust cases. In Lewis v. Superior Court (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1850, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 63 , purchasers of real property sought expungement of a federal lis pendens filed in an action alleging that the seller had originally purchased the property with misappropriated funds. The court found that (1) the essence of the federal complaint was an effort to impose a constructive trust on the property, (2) the majority line of cases held that such a claim does not permit the recording of a lis pendens, and (3) the 1992 revisions to the lis pendens statute did not overrule that line of cases [Lewis v. Superior Court (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1850, 1859, 1862, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 63] . The court found no reason to believe that the Legislature, when enacting the revised statute, intended to change the scope of the term "real property claim" as used in the statute. The State Bar Report that supported the legislation stated that the term neither includes nor excludes constructive trust claims and suggested leaving this area for further judicial development. In the face of this report and the majority line of decisions, the court found that the fact that the Legislature made no definitional change in the statute created a strong presumption that it was satisfied with the restrictive interpretation applied by the overwhelming majority of decisions [Lewis v. Superior Court (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1850, 1863-1864, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 63] .

The Lewis court noted that Hunting World involved an entirely conventional fraudulent conveyance claim [Lewis v. Superior Court (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1850, 1863, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 63] . The court acknowledged that a fraudulent conveyance claim can support a lis pendens, but found that the application of this rule depends on the specific nature of the claim. The obvious and fundamental distinction between the federal action in Lewis and cases like Hunting World was that the complaint at issue in Lewis did not allege that there was a conveyance of real property; it merely alleged that the eventual seller wrongfully took money and used the money to buy--not convey--the property. The fact that one of the claims was labeled "fraudulent conveyance" was irrelevant, because there was no allegation of a conveyance. Thus, the court concluded that the complaint merely re-alleged a constructive trust claim, which could not support a lis pendens [Lewis v. Superior Court (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1850, 1865al. Rptr. 2d 63 ; see Kirkeby v. Superior Court (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 642, 650, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 805, 93 P.3d 395 (citing Lewis in support of its conclusion that fraudulent conveyance claim may support lis pendens)].

The court of appeal in Campbell v. Superior Court (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 904, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 68 followed the majority line of cases in holding that claims seeking imposition of a constructive trust and equitable lien did not support the recording of a lis pendens. In Campbell, the plaintiff, as trustee of a trust established by his now-deceased father, filed a complaint alleging that the defendant exercised undue influence against the father in persuading him to expend approximately $200,000 in trust funds to pay for the remodeling of the defendant's house. The plaintiff requested the imposition of a constructive trust and an equitable lien on the defendant's house and recorded a lis pendens on the house. In affirming the expungement of the lis pendens, the court of appeal agreed with the cases holding that to allow a party to record a lis pendens when the party seeks only "to freeze the real property as a res from which to satisfy a money judgment" is not consistent with the history and purpose of the lis pendens statutes [Campbell v. Superior Court (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 904, 918-919, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 68] .

[c] Combined Theories of Liability

The reasoning underlying Lewis v. Superior Court (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1850, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 63 [see § 348.21[2][b]] was applied in a case in which the plaintiffs were not creditors and did not seek a constructive trust remedy solely as a collateral means to collect money damages. In that case, the plaintiffs alleged that they had formed a joint venture with one of the defendants to buy certain real properties, but that defendant and others wrongfully acquired the properties for themselves. Plaintiffs' complaint asserted causes of action seeking compensatory and punitive damages on fraud and tort theories, or a combination of compensatory and punitive damages with imposition of a constructive trust. Two causes of action focused narrowly on imposition of a constructive trust and sought orders compelling defendants to convey to plaintiffs an interest in and possession of a described portion of the properties. The court of appeal upheld the trial court's expungement of the lis pendens notice even though the plaintiffs might have been entitled to imposition of a constructive trust requiring the defendants to convey to plaintiffs the share of the legal title plaintiffs would have acquired had the defendants not breached their duties toward plaintiffs. The court concluded that when a pleading combines theories of liability for monetary damages and for a constructive trust, plaintiffs should not be able to maintain a lis pendens. The court reasoned that the danger is too great that a lis pendens, which effectively renders the property unmarketable, would have the coercive effects condemned by Lewis and earlier decisions [BGJ Assocs. v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 952, 971-972, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693] .

[3] Other Actions

Examples other than creditor suits [see § 348.21[2]] decided under the prior lis pendens law, in which courts considered whether a particular action affected title to or right of possession of real property [cf. § 348.21[1]], include the following:

- A lis pendens is proper in an action involving a leasehold interest in real property, which affects "right to possession" [see Goldstein v. Ray (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 571, 575, 173 Cal. Rptr. 550] .

- A lis pendens is not proper in an action concerning personal property only [see MacDermot v. Hayes (1917) 175 Cal. 95, 109-110, 170 P. 616 ; Security First Nat'l Bank v. Sartori (1939) 34 Cal. App. 2d 408, 418, 93 P.2d 863 (chattel mortgage; dictum)].

- A lis pendens is not proper in an action to recover money damages only [Allied E. Fin. v. Goheen Enterprises (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 131, 133-134, 71 Cal. Rptr. 126] .

- A lis pendens is not proper in an action to recover attorney's fees [Hardy v. San Fernando Valley C. of C. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 572, 576, 222 P.2d 314] .

[4] Real Property Claim Lacks "Probable Validity"

The court must order that a lis pendens notice be expunged if it finds that the claimant has not established by a preponderance of the evidence the probable validity of the real property claim [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.32; see Code Civ. Proc. § 405.30 (claimant has burden of proof in motion to expunge under Code Civ. Proc. § 405.32)]. In this event, the court may not require an undertaking as a condition of the expungement order [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.32].

"Probable validity" of a claim means that it is more likely than not that the claimant will obtain a judgment against the defendant on the claim [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.3].

Under the "probable validity" standard, if the claimant loses at trial, the lis pendens must be expunged (unless the trial court can foresee that the judgment probably will be reversed on appeal). However, the claimant may petition for a writ of mandate to review the expungement order [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.39], and the petition may include a request for a temporary stay of the order [Mix v. Superior Court (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 987, 996-997, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 826 ; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(7) (requesting temporary stay in writ petition)].

The standard for deciding whether to issue a writ of mandate vacating a postjudgment expungement order is whether a petitioner's real property claim has probable validity, i.e., whether it is more likely than not the real property claim will prevail at the end of the appellate process. In making that decision, the court of appeal assesses whether the petitioner has made out a prima facie case for reversal of the judgment, based on the record in the trial court and the arguments of the parties. However, this "mini-review" is not equivalent to a full-scale resolution of the underlying appeal [Amalgamated Bank v. Superior Court (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 1003, 1008, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 686 ; cf. Behniwal v. Superior Court (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 1048, 1050, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 162 (instead of embarking on intermediate "probable validity" review, appellate court decided merits of appeal and vacated its own order directing expungement)]. If the court determines that the writ petition fails to make out a prima facie case of entitlement to relief, it will be disposed of by summary denial, without a statement of reasons.

Because summary denial of a writ petition does not constitute law of the case, the court can summarily deny a writ without being hamstrung into deciding the appeal against the real property claimant. A writ denial will, however, allow the expungement order to go into effect, thereby removing the lis pendens as a cloud on the real property [Amalgamated Bank v. Superior Court (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 1003, 1020, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 686] .

[5] Claimant May Be Adequately Protected by Undertaking

If a court finds that a claimant alleges a real property claim and that it has probable validity [see § 348.21[1], [4]], it must nonetheless order that the notice of lis pendens be expunged if it also finds that an undertaking will secure adequate relief to the claimant. In this event, the expungement order must be conditioned on the giving of an undertaking sufficient to indemnify the claimant for all damages proximately resulting from the expungement that the claimant may incur if the claimant prevails on the real property claim [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.33]. In determining whether an undertaking will secure adequate relief to the claimant, the presumption that real property is unique set out in Civ. Code § 3387 does not apply, except for real property improved with a single-family dwelling that the claimant intends to occupy [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.33].

In its order conditionally expunging the notice, the court is required to set a return date for the moving party to show fulfillment of the condition. The court must deny the motion to expunge without further notice or hearing if the moving party fails to fulfill the condition on the return day [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.33].

The claimant may recover on the undertaking pursuant to the general bonds and undertakings provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 996.440 [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.33]. Nevertheless, the undertaking serves to protect only against damages that proximately result from the expungement [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.33]. Therefore, if a party is given a bond as a condition of expungement and prevails in the underlying action solely on a cause of action that did not support the recordation of a lis pendens, he or she may not satisfy the judgment out of the bond [Elder v. Carlisle Ins. Co. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1313, 1318-1319, 238 Cal. Rptr. 897] .

For discussion and forms relating to enforcement of liability on a bond pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 996.440, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings .

For discussion concerning an undertaking by the claimant, as distinguished from an undertaking in his or her favor, see § 348.21.

[6] Failure to Comply With Service or Filing Requirements

A lis pendens will be void and invalid as to any adverse party or owner of record unless the service and filing requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 405.22 are met [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.23; see § 348.17[4]]. The Comments to Code Civ. Proc. § 405 et seq. prepared by the Real Property Law Section of the State Bar indicate that this provision was intended to continue the rule of former Code Civ. Proc. § 409(d) that a lis pendens was void and invalid unless applicable service and filing requirements were satisfied [see Code Civ. Proc. § 405.23 (Comment)]. McKnight v. Superior Court (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 291, 303, 215 Cal. Rptr. 909 , held that a violation of the technical requirements of former Code Civ. Proc. § 409(d) was a ground justifying expungement, even though the statute did not expressly provide for expungement. The violation justifying expungement in that case consisted of the plaintiff's failure to file a copy of thelis pendens and proof of service with the court [McKnight v. Superior Court (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 291, 303, 215 Cal. Rptr. 909] . However, in Biddle v. Superior Court (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 135, 138, 215 Cal. Rptr. 848 , the court found that a lis pendens was valid when the plaintiffs mailed a copy of the lis pendens to the defendants at their business address by first class mail, even though the statute required it to be mailed return receipt requested to all known addresses. The court found that the plaintiffs had substantially complied with the statutory service requirement and unquestionably conveyed prompt actual notice to the defendants, thereby satisfying the purposes of the statute. Further, the court ruled that the defendants waived any service defects by waiting more than a year to file the motion to expunge based on the allegedly defective service [Biddle v. Superior Court (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 135, 137-138, 215 Cal. Rptr. 848] . The Comments to Code Civ. Proc. § 405.23 indicate that it was not intended to disapprove the waiver principles applied in Biddle.

§ 348.22 Expungement Procedure

[1] Motion to Expunge

At any time after a notice of pendency of action has been recorded, the following persons may apply to the court in which the action is pending for an order expunging the lis pendens notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.30]:

- Any party to the pending action.

- Any nonparty with an interest in the real property that is affected by the notice. A nonparty must obtain leave to intervene from the court at or before the time that he or she brings the motion to expunge.

PRACTICE TIP:

File Separate Motion to Intervene. A nonparty's motion to intervene should not be combined with the motion to expunge for two reasons. First, in many cases, local rules require every motion to be separately filed [see, e.g., Los Angeles County Superior Court Rules, Rule 9.3]. Second, the preparing and filing of separate motions should avoid confusion. For further discussion of intervention and a complete set of forms that may be used by a person who intends to intervene in an action, see Ch. 395, Parties .

Evidence or declarations may be filed with the motion to expunge the notice. The court may permit evidence to be received in the form of oral testimony. It may make any orders it deems just to provide for discovery by any party affected by a motion to expunge the notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.30].

PRACTICE TIP:

Use Declarations When Possible. Although the court may permit oral testimony, such leave is rarely given. Absent unusual circumstances, counsel should ensure that all supporting or opposing evidence is offered in the form of admissible declarations or affidavits.

If the motion to expunge is made under either Code Civ. Proc. § 405.31 or 405.32, the claimant (or the party opposing the motion) has the burden of proof to establish either that there is a real property claim alleged, or that this claim has probable validity [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.30; § 348.21[1]]. There is no similar provision with regard to a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 405.33, that is, for expungement on the ground that the moving party may make an adequate undertaking [see § 348.21[5]]. Thus, it appears that if the court finds that there is a claim with probable validity, the moving party has the burden of establishing that he or she may make an adequate undertaking.

By making a motion for expungement, a party or affected person is not precluded from seeking an injunction or other relief [see Code Civ. Proc. § 405.8].

For discussion of the circumstances under which the court is required to order expungement, see § 348.21[1]. For a form of motion to expunge a notice of lis pendens, see § 348.61.

[2] Award of Attorney's Fees and Costs

In a motion to expunge, the court is required to award the party prevailing on the motion his or her reasonable attorney's fees and costs incurred in making or opposing the motion, unless the court finds that the other party acted with substantial justification or that other circumstances make the imposition of attorney's fees and costs unjust [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.38].

PRACTICE TIP:

Award Is Discretionary. Code Civ. Proc. § 405.38 states that the court "shall" order an award in favor of the prevailing party unless it makes specified findings. This does not make the award absolutely mandatory, but in effect places a burden on the party subject to the sanction to establish substantial justification or other good cause for not making the award. Counsel faced with the imposition of an award should always remind the court of its discretion not to impose the award if it makes the findings set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 405.38.

When a lis pendens is withdrawn while a motion to expunge is pending, the moving party is not automatically entitled to attorneys' fees nor should it automatically be denied attorneys' fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 405.38. Instead, the trial court has discretion to award attorneys' fees based on a determination of which party would have prevailed on the motion and whether the lis pendens claimant acted with substantial justification in withdrawing the lis pendens, or whether, in light of all of the circumstances, the imposition of fees would otherwise be unjust [Castro v. Superior Court (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 1010, 1022-1023, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 865] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Award of Fees and Costs. The language of Code Civ. Proc. § 405.38 resembles provisions for the imposition of monetary sanctions in discovery motions. Counsel should refer to cases construing these provisions for guidance in seeking or opposing an award under Code Civ. Proc. § 405.38 [see Ch. 190, Depositions and Discovery].

Counsel should also consider requesting an award of fees and costs in the moving or opposing papers, specifying the party against whom the award is to be imposed and the amount requested.

Notwithstanding the "mandatory" nature of the award, due process considerations require that a person subject to monetary sanction first be given proper notice and an opportunity to be heard [see In re Marriage of Flaherty (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 637, 651-654, 183 Cal. Rptr. 508, 646 P.2d 179] . In any event, counsel should carefully document the costs and fees incurred, and include this documentation in the supporting papers, together with the basis for calculating fees.

[3] Order Expunging Notice

An order expunging a notice of lis pendens is not effective, and must not be recorded, until the time period for seeking review by writ has elapsed [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.35; see § 348.22[4]]. If a petition for writ of mandate is filed, an expungement order is not effective and may not be recorded, until the writ proceeding is finally adjudicated [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.35].

The county recorder has no duty to determine whether the above requirements, or the requirements of any order expunging a notice, have been met [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.35].

When the time for filing a petition for writ of mandate has elapsed, or the writ has been finally adjudicated, the prevailing party may record a certified copy of the order of expungement in the office of the recorder where the notice of lis pendens was filed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 405.60, 405.61; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1019.5 (general requirements for serving conformed copies of order on parties)].

For discussion of the effect of a recorded order of expungement, see § 348.27. For discussion of the requirements for filing a subsequent notice of lis pendens, after the court has granted an order expunging a prior notice, see § 348.23. For a form of an order expunging a notice of lis pendens, see § 348.62.

[4] Review by Writ of Mandate

An expungement order or other court action under Code Civ. Proc. § 405.30 et seq. is not appealable. A party aggrieved by an order made on a motion to expunge may obtain appellate review by petition for writ of mandate. The petition for the writ must be filed and served within 20 days of service of written notice of the expungement order by the court or any party. The court that issued the order may, within the initial 20-day period, extend the initial period for one additional period not to exceed 10 days. The party petitioning for the writ must deliver a copy of the petition to the clerk of the court that issued the order and request that it be placed in the court file [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.39].

§ 348.24 Motion for Undertaking by Claimant

[1] Requirements for Making Motion

As an alternative to moving for an order expunging a notice of lis pendens (see §§ 348.21, 348.22), a party or other person with an interest in the real property described in the notice may, in effect, seek indemnity for any damages that he or she might incur as a result of the notice of lis pendens. Specifically, a person with an interest in the property may move for an order requiring the claimant to give the moving party an undertaking as a condition of maintaining the notice in the record title [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.34]. A person who is not a party to the pending action must obtain leave from the court to intervene at or before the time that he or she makes the motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.34].

PRACTICE TIP:

File Separate Motion to Intervene. A nonparty's motion to intervene should not be combined with the motion to require an undertaking for two reasons. First, in many cases, local rules require every motion to be separately filed [see, e.g., Los Angeles County Superior Court Rules, Rule 9.3]. Second, the preparing and filing of separate motions should avoid confusion. For further discussion of intervention and a complete set of forms that may be used by a person who intends to intervene in an action, see Ch. 395, Parties, § 395.10 et seq.

The motion to require an undertaking may be made at any time after the notice of lis pendens is recorded, and regardless of whether a motion to expunge has been filed. It is, however, subject to the provisions for expungement under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 405.31 and 405.32 (see § 348.21[1], [4]) [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.34]. Apparently, this means that an undertaking as a condition to maintaining the notice is not available if the claimant's pleading does not contain a real property claim or if the claimant has not established the probable validity of the claim by a preponderance of the evidence [see Code Civ. Proc. § 405.34].

For a form of a motion to require an undertaking, see § 348.63.

[2] Determination of Motion

The court may permit evidence to be received in the form of oral testimony and may make any orders it deems just to provide for discovery by any affected party [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.34].

PRACTICE TIP:

Use Declarations When Possible. Although the court may permit oral testimony, this is likely to be a rare occurrence. Absent unusual circumstances, counsel should ensure that all supporting or opposing evidence is offered in the form of admissible declarations or affidavits.

The court may order the claimant to make the undertaking, in such nature and in such amount as it determines to be just [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.34; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1019.5 (general requirements for serving conformed copies of order on parties)]. In the event that it orders an undertaking, the court must set a return date for the claimant to show compliance. If the claimant fails to do so, the court must order the notice of pendency of action expunged without further notice or hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.34].

In a motion to require an undertaking by the claimant, the court is required to award the party prevailing on the motion his or her reasonable attorney's fees and costs incurred in making or opposing the motion, unless the court finds that the other party acted with substantial justification or that other circumstances make the imposition of attorney's fees and costs unjust [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.38; see § 348.22[2]]. For a form of an order requiring an undertaking, see § 348.64.

A court is not authorized to order the filing of a recorded deed of trust for security in lieu of an undertaking as a condition of continuing a lis pendens. The provisions of the Bond and Undertaking Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.110 et seq.] apply to lis pendens undertakings. Under that law, there is no authorization for filing a recorded trust deed in lieu of an undertaking, and the statutory definition of an undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.190] does not include a recorded trust deed [Markley v. Superior Court (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 738, 745-750] .

[3] Recovery on Undertaking

The moving party may recover on an undertaking by the claimant pursuant to the general bonds and undertakings provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 996.440, on a showing of both of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.34]:

- The claimant did not prevail on the real property claim; and
- The person seeking recovery suffered damages as a result of the maintenance of the notice.

In assessing damages, the court may not consider the claimant's intent or the presence or absence of probable cause. The amount of recovery is limited to the amount of the undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.34].

If a motion to expunge is denied, but the claimant is required to post a bond, the bond may be used to collect awarded attorney's fees when the defendant prevails [On v. Cow Hollow Properties (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1568, 1572-1574, 272 Cal. Rptr. 535] .

If property increases in value while a lis pendens prevents its sale, there are no damages under a bond posted by a plaintiff. Thus, the defendant is not entitled to damages based on evidence that the rate of inflation increased faster than the increase in the value of the property [CMSH Co. v. Antelope Development, Inc. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 174, 179-181, 272 Cal. Rptr. 605] .

§ 348.25 Motion to Modify or Exonerate Undertaking

After notice and hearing, a court may exonerate or modify any undertaking required under either Code Civ. Proc. § 405.33 (undertaking by affected person as condition to expungement; discussed in § 348.21[5]) or Code Civ. Proc. § 405.34 (undertaking by claimant; discussed in § 348.24). The court may also exonerate or modify any undertaking required pursuant to stipulation made in lieu of an order [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.37].

The court may grant this order for good cause and on such terms as are just. The order may be made conditional on the giving of a new undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.37; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1019.5 (general requirements for serving conformed copies of order on parties)].

In a motion to exonerate or modify an undertaking, the court is required to award the party prevailing on the motion his or her reasonable attorney's fees and costs incurred in making or opposing the motion, unless the court finds that the other party acted with substantial justification or that other circumstances make the imposition of attorney's fees and costs unjust [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.38; see also § 348.22[2]]. For a form of motion to modify or exonerate an undertaking, see § 348.65.

§ 348.26 Withdrawal of Lis Pendens Notice

At any time after the notice of lis pendens is recorded, the claimant may withdraw the notice. The claimant, or his or her successor in interest, must execute a notice of withdrawal and have it acknowledged [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.50; see § 348.27]. § 348.27 Effect of Expungement or Withdrawal of Lis Pendens Notice

On the recordation of either a certified copy of an expungement order (discussed under § 348.22[3]) or a notice of withdrawal (discussed under § 348.26), neither the notice of lis pendens nor any information derived from it constitutes actual or constructive notice of any matters contained in the notice or relating to the pending action. Nor does the notice or any information derived from it create a duty of inquiry in any person thereafter dealing with the affected property [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.60; see Lewis v. Superior Court (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1850, 1871, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 63 (once lis pendens is withdrawn or expunged, title to property must be treated as though lis pendens was never filed, and current owners may transfer property as though lis pendens never existed)].

In addition, on recordation of the withdrawal notice or order, a person shall not be deemed to have actual knowledge of the action or any matters relating to the action if all of the following apply [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.61]:

- The person is not a named party at the time the withdrawal notice or order is recorded.
- The person thereafter becomes a purchaser, transferee, mortgagee, or other encumbrancer of any interest in the real property subject to the action.
- The person takes that interest for a valuable consideration.

- The person takes that interest by a conveyance recorded prior to the recording of a certified copy of the judgment or decree issued in the action.

Such a person shall not be deemed to have actual knowledge of the action or any matters relating to it regardless of whether he or she possessed actual knowledge of the action or matter and regardless of when or how any such knowledge was obtained [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.61]. Code Civ. Proc. § 405.61 is expressly intended "to provide for the absolute and complete free transferability of real property after the expungement or withdrawal of a notice of pendency of action" [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.61].

When a lis pendens is expunged in an action to enforce a judgment lien, the recorded judgment lien is not extinguished. The judgment lien makes the judgment creditor a secured creditor and can only be extinguished (1) by the recordation of an acknowledgment of satisfaction of the underlying judgment or (2) by the judgment creditor's release of the lien [Federal Deposit Ins. Corp. v. Charlton (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1066, 1070, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 686] .

A withdrawn lis pendens may be admissible in a fraud action when the plaintiff had notice of the lis pendens and an issue in the defense of the fraud is whether the plaintiff had knowledge of the underlying judgment. Former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 409.55 (now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 405.50, 405.60) and 409.8 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 409.61) do not apply in a fraud action [Bishop Creek Lodge v. Scira (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1721, 1733-1734, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745 ; for coverage of Code Civ. Proc. § 405.50, see § 348.26]. If they did, (1) the plaintiff could purchase property after a lis pendens had been withdrawn or expunged and claim fraudulent misrepresentation or fraudulent nondisclosure of matters as to which he or she had actual knowledge, and (2) the defendant's evidence that the plaintiff had actual knowledge could be excluded as legally irrelevant. Such a result would be manifestly unfair. The Legislature intended in former §§ 409.55 and 409.8 to protect purchasers, but not to give them a fraud cause of action that would not otherwise exist [Bishop Creek Lodge v. Scira (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1721, 1733-1734, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745] .

§ 348.28 When Lis Pendens Notice Is Privileged Publication

Formerly, a notice of lis pendens was held to be an absolutely privileged publication in a judicial proceeding [see Earp v. Nobmann (1981) 122 Cal. App.3d 270, 281-282, 175 Cal. Rptr. 767 (overruled on other grounds in Silberg v. Anderson (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 205, 212-213, 266 Cal. Rptr. 638, 786 P.2d 365)]. The current lis pendens statute provides that a recorded notice of lis pendens does not constitute a privileged publication unless the notice identifies an action previously filed with a court of competent jurisdiction that affects the title or right of possession of real property, as authorized or required by law [Civ. Code § 47(b)(4)].

In other words, a notice of lis pendens now has a qualified rather than an absolute privilege. It appears, for example, that a notice is not privileged if it is subject to expungement under Code Civ. Proc. § 405.31 because it does not contain a real property claim (discussed in § 348.21[1]). It is also arguable that a notice is not privileged if it is subject to expungement under Code Civ. Proc. § 405.32 because it contains a real property claim but that claim lacks probable validity (discussed in § 348.21[4]).

The result is that a claimant who records a notice of lis pendens may be liable for damages if the title owner can prove the elements of a tort action for slander of title, i.e., an unprivileged publication of matter that is untrue and that impairs the vendibility of real property resulting in pecuniary loss [see, e.g., Frank Pisano & Associates v. Taggart (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 1, 24, 105 Cal. Rptr. 414] .

PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

31-348 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 348.42

AUTHOR: Edythe L. Bronston Alan M. Mirman Hon. Robert H. O'Brien David J. § 348.42 Decisions

[1] Actions Affecting Title or Possession

Cause of action based on fraudulent conveyance with proceeds invested in real property affects title to or possession of real property. In re Lane (9th Cir. 1992) 980 F.2d 601, 604

Fraudulent conveyance claim affects title to or right to possession of specific real property and therefore is "real property claim" supporting recording of notice of lis pendens. Kirkeby v. Superior Court (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 642, 650, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 805, 93 P.3d 395

Action based on good faith improver statute (Code Civ. Proc. § 871.1 et seq.) affects title to or possession of real property because court has authority to fashion equitable remedy that may include lien on property. Okuda v. Superior Court (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 135, 139-141, 192 Cal. Rptr. 388

[2] Actions Not Affecting Title or Possession

Filing of lis pendens is not effective if action is one to foreclose trust deed by nonjudicial sale of property by trustees after notice has been given as provided in trust deed. Carpenter v. Smallpage (1934) 220 Cal. 129, 132-133, 29 P.2d 841

[3] Constitutionality

Complaint based on failure to make a will is not basis for lis pendens because constructive trust will not be imposed if specific property is not identified by contract to make will. Westbrook v. Superior Court (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 703, 712-714, 222 Cal. Rptr. 317

Action for recovery of broker's commission was not basis for constructive trust and did not affect title to real property; lis pendens was properly expunged. Deane v. Superior Court (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 292, 296-297, 210 Cal. Rptr. 406

Action by limited partners against partnership seeking constructive trust on real property transferred by partnership did not affect real property because limited partners only had interest in partnership and not in land. North Coast Business Park v. Superior Court (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 858, 860, 205 Cal. Rptr. 81

Lis pendens statutes are constitutional and are not deprivation of significant property interest without due process of law. Empfield v. Superior Court (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 105, 108, 108 Cal. Rptr. 375

[4] Definitions

Lis pendens is a "conveyance" within meaning of Civ. Code §§ 1214, 1215. Putnam Sand & Gravel Co. v. Albers (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 722, 725, 92 Cal. Rptr. 636

[5] Describing Property

If lis pendens is to protect potential interest in property effectively, petition in action forming basis of lis pendens must designate specific property to be affected and nature and full extent of relief sought; lis pendens filed after wife petitioned for dissolution of marriage claiming only community interest in property protected only one-half interest in property even though court awarded it entirely to wife as separate property. Head v. Crawford (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 11, 16, 202 Cal. Rptr. 534 (disapproved on related point in Droeger v. Friedman, Sloan & Ross (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 26, 36-39, 283 Cal. Rptr. 584, 812 P.2d 931)

Description of property in lis pendens is sufficient to give notice if, on inquiry, it would lead to ascertainment of identity of property involved in litigation. Stearns v. Los Angeles City School Dist. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 696, 743, 53 Cal. Rptr. 482

[6] Duration of Notice

Lis pendens notice is purely incidental to action in which it is filed; lis pendens notice has no existence apart from such action. Garcia v. Pinhero (1937) 22 Cal. App. 2d 194, 197, 70 P.2d 675

New notice of lis pendens must be recorded when second action is commenced after first action was terminated. Garcia v. Pinhero (1937) 22 Cal. App. 2d 194, 196, 70 P.2d 675

Person acquiring interest before settlement, abandonment, or dismissal of case is not affected by prior lis pendens. Harris v. Whittier Bldg. & Loan Asso. (1936) 18 Cal. App. 2d 260, 266, 63 P.2d 840 ; Olson v. Cornwell (1933) 134 Cal. App. 419, 426-427, 25 P.2d 879

[7] Effect of Failure to File

Mere pendency of action, without more, does not impair constructive notice to all the world of fact of such litigation. MacDermot v. Hayes (1917) 175 Cal. 95, 110, 170 P. 616 ; Agnew v. Cronin (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 117, 126, 306 P.2d 527

Filing of lis pendens with county recorder is not essential prerequisite to court's jurisdiction of subject matter of suit in which recordation of such notice is required; failure to record lis pendens is immaterial as against party to action who had actual notice of its pendency and participated in it. Patten-Blinn Lumber Co. v. Francis (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 196, 200, 333 P.2d 255

[8] Effect on Prior Unrecorded Conveyance

Civ. Code § 1214 subordinated unrecorded conveyance to judgment cutting down or voiding title that grantor in unrecorded conveyance purported to convey. Torrez v. Gough (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 62, 71, 289 P.2d 840

[9] Expungement of Notice

[a] Availability

Entry of judgment does not automatically entitle party in whose favor judgment was rendered to expungement of lis pendens; after judgment, lis pendens remains until statutory ground for expungement is established. McKnight v. Faber (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 639, 651, 230 Cal. Rptr. 57 (disapproved on other ground in Silberg v. Anderson (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 205, 212-213, 266 Cal. Rptr. 638, 786 P.2d 365)

Court, in proper case, is permitted to direct that lis pendens be expunged from record. Allied Eastern Financial v. Goheen Enterprises (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 131, 134, 71 Cal. Rptr. 126

[b] Effect of Expungement or Withdrawal

Withdrawn lis pendens may be admissible in fraud action when plaintiff had notice of lis pendens and issue in defense of fraud is whether plaintiff had knowledge of underlying judgment. Bishop Creek Lodge v. Scira (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1721, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745

Once lis pendens is expunged or withdrawn, title to property must be treated as though lis pendens was never filed, and current owners may transfer property as though lis pendens never existed. Lewis v. Superior Court (1994) 30 Cal.

App. 4th 1850, 1871, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 63

Order expunging lis pendens has no effect on previously recorded abstracts of judgment and judgment liens created by them. Federal Deposit Ins. Corp. v. Charlton (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1066, 1069-1070, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 686

Sale after expungement gives nonparty purchaser bona fide purchaser status regardless of actual knowledge of proceeding. Knapp Development & Design v. Pal-Mal Properties Ltd. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 786, 789-790, 240 Cal. Rptr. 920

[c] If Undertaking Given

Trial court abuses its discretion in denying motion to expunge notice of lis pendens if adequate relief could be secured by filing suitable undertaking. Empfield v. Superior Court (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 105, 108, 108 Cal. Rptr. 375

Order of expungement in favor of state is improper if sole evidentiary basis for court's order is affidavit or equivalent declaration offered by moving party and facts stated do not constitute grounds for relief sought. Swanston v. Superior Court (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 355, 357, 92 Cal. Rptr. 572

Court, in setting amount of undertaking of party moving to expunge lis pendens, has discretion to fix amount less than asserted value of total victory by claimant. Howden-Goetzl v. Superior Court (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 135, 139-140, 86 Cal. Rptr. 323

Petition for writ of mandate is proper to compel superior court to set aside its order to expunge notice of lis pendens or to increase amount of undertaking. Howden-Goetzl v. Superior Court (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 135, 137-138, 86 Cal. Rptr. 323

[d] Review of Expungement Order

Summary denial of petition for writ of mandate to reverse order expunging lis pendens is not res judicata. McKnight v. Faber (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 639, 651 n.4, 230 Cal. Rptr. 57 (disapproved on other ground in Silberg v. Anderson (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 205, 212-213, 266 Cal. Rptr. 638, 786 P.2d 365)

Although order expunging lis pendens is not separately appealable, such order is subject to review pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 906 (involving merits, affecting judgment, or substantially affecting rights of party) on appeal of summary judgment. McKnight v. Faber (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 639, 651, 230 Cal. Rptr. 57 (disapproved on other ground in Silberg v. Anderson (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 205, 212-213, 266 Cal. Rptr. 638, 786 P.2d 365)

[10] Homesteads

Lis pendens does not ordinarily give precedence to later judgment over intervening declaration of homestead. Putnam Sand & Gravel Co. v. Albers (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 722, 725, 92 Cal. Rptr. 636

[11] Leasehold Interests

Lis pendens gave successful plaintiff rights superior to tenant from defendant for term of more than year when lease entered into after lis pendens recorded. Goldstein v. Ray (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 571, 574-577, 173 Cal. Rptr. 550

Lis pendens recorded as to leasehold interest for years on real property is proper. Parker v. Superior Court (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 397, 400, 88 Cal. Rptr. 352

[12] Notice as Privileged Publication

Slander of title cause of action properly based on recordation of lis pendens; underlying action challenging sale of property to enforce judgment was not a "real property claim." Palmer v. Zaklama (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1367, 1377-1380, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116

Notice of lis pendens is absolutely privileged in action for disparagement of title, as a republication of pleadings. Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375, 379, 295 P.2d 405 ; Ahmanson Bank & Trust Co. v. Tepper (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 333, 342, 74 Cal. Rptr. 774 (but see 1992 amendment to Civ. Code § 47, making privilege qualified, not absolute)

Notice of lis pendens is absolutely privileged and constitutes no basis of action for slander of title. Woodcourt, II Limited v. McDonald Co. (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 245, 250-252, 173 Cal. Rptr. 836 (but see 1992 amendment to Civ. Code § 47, making privilege qualified, not absolute)

[13] Purpose of Lis Pendens to Give Constructive Notice

Sole purpose of recording notice of lis pendens is giving constructive notice of pendency of proceeding. Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375, 379, 295 P.2d 405

Recorded document does not impart constructive notice from moment it is recorded; instead, operative event is indexing of document. Lewis v. Superior Court (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1850, 1866, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 63 ; Hochstein v. Romero (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 447, 452, 268 Cal. Rptr. 202

Recordation of lis pendens was in effect republication of pleadings to give constructive notice of all facts apparent on face of pleadings and of other facts, which facts being stated necessarily put purchaser on inquiry. Ahmanson Bank & Trust Co. v. Tepper (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 333, 342, 74 Cal. Rptr. 774

Lis pendens gives notice of what may be established by judgment and is effective with respect to what is established. Ahmanson Bank & Trust Co. v. Tepper (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 333, 342, 74 Cal. Rptr. 774

[14] Real Property Claim

Fraudulent conveyance claim affects title to or right to possession of specific real property and therefore is "real property claim" supporting recording of notice of lis pendens. Kirkeby v. Superior Court (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 642, 650, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 805, 93 P.3d 395

Easement dispute affects title or right of possession of dominant tenement, and therefore lis pendens may be recorded on dominant tenement. Park 100 Investment Group II v. Ryan (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 795, 812, -- Cal. Rptr. 3d --

Pleading that combines theories of liability for monetary damages and for constructive trust did not support lis pendens, even though plaintiff might have been entitled to imposition of constructive trust requiring conveyance of legal title plaintiff would have acquired had defendants not breached their duties toward plaintiff. BGJ Assocs. v. Superior Court (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 952, 971-972, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693

Constructive trust claim does not support lis pendens, and neither does fraudulent conveyance claim that merely alleges that money was wrongfully taken and used to buy--not convey--property. Lewis v. Superior Court (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1850, 1862-1865, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 63

Creditor's action to set aside debtor's fraudulent transfer of real property is "real property claim" within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 405.4. Hunting World, Inc. v. Superior Court (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 67, 72, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 923

[15] Recording

Recording of lis pendens after judgment rendered but before its finality is permissible. Kartheiser v. Superior Court (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 617, 619, 345 P.2d 135

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use as a general form of notice of pendency of action, commonly referred to as a notice of lis pendens.

It is prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 405 et seq.

[3] Required Information

The form contains provisions for inserting the following required statutory information [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.20]:

- The names of all the parties to the pending action.
- A description of the property affected by the action.

Code Civ. Proc. § 405.20 does not specifically require that the notice contain a recitation of the object of a plaintiff's complaint or of a defendant's cross complaint, as did its predecessor [see former Code Civ. Proc. § 409(a)]. Thus, the pleadings will have to be reviewed to determine the object and nature of the underlying action. See cross references to other chapters that discuss actions that may involve the recording of a lis pendens in § 348.60[10].

[4] Real Property Claim

A notice of lis pendens must be based on a "real property claim." Thus, the notice must be one that, if meritorious, would affect either of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.4]:

- Title to, or right to possession of, specific real property; or
- The use of an easement identified in the pleading, other than an easement obtained pursuant to statute by any regulated public utility.

[5] Issuance Requirement

A lis pendens may not be recorded unless it is issued (1) by an attorney of record in the action to be recorded, (2) by a judge on request of a party or (3) by a party acting in propria persona if approved by a judge [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.21]. This form assumes that the lis pendens will be issued by the attorney but can be adapted if it will be issued by the court.

[6] Acknowledgement

The form also contains the form of acknowledgement [see Civ. Code § 1189] that Gov. Code § 27287 apparently requires.

[7] Service on Adverse Parties

Prior to recording the notice of lis pendens, the claimant must first cause a copy of the notice to be mailed, by registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, to all known addresses of the adverse parties and to all owners of record as shown by the latest county assessment roll. If there is no known address for service on an adverse party or owner, then, as to that party, a declaration under penalty of perjury to such effect may be recorded instead of the proof of service described above, and service on that party is not required [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.22].

Immediately following recordation, a copy of the notice must be filed with the court in which the action is pending. Service must also be made immediately on each adverse party who is later brought into the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 405.22].

A notice of lis pendens is void and invalid as to any adverse party or owner of record unless the above-described service requirements are met for the party or owner and a proof of service, as set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a, has been recorded with the notice of lis pendens [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.22].

[8] Federal Statutes

Notice of pendency of action of any United States district court action concerning real property is recordable under state statutes. 28 U.S.C. § 1964

[9] State Statutes

Effect of recording notice of action on subsequently recorded conveyance. Civ. Code § 1214

Filing notice of pendency of action in state and federal actions with recorder. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 405.5, 405.20

Effect of judgment on persons with actual or constructive notice of action or proceeding. Code Civ. Proc. § 1908

SUPPORTING DECLARATION OF _____ [name]

I, _____ [name], declare:

1. I am _____ [identify declarant, e.g., the defendant in the above-entitled matter, and the owner of the property on which plaintiff has recorded the notice of lis pendens, which is the subject of this motion to expunge].

2. _____ [Here and in subsequent paragraphs set forth additional facts from declarant's knowledge that support the motion and grounds on which it is based, e.g., Plaintiff's lawsuit is based on an alleged loan of money from plaintiff to declarant to finance certain improvements on declarant's property. The alleged loan did not provide for any lien or encumbrance on declarant's property but was evidenced only by a promissory note signed by declarant in which I allegedly personally promised and agreed to pay to plaintiff the sum of $_____ in installments over a period of _____ years. Plaintiff's lawsuit is based on declarant's alleged default in payment of that loan, which declarant denies and disputes in my answer on file with this court in the above-entitled matter].

3. Declarant has incurred expenses as follows in making this motion: _____ [itemize reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, and explain basis of computing each expense], for a total of $_____.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [signature]

[typed name]

SUPPORTING MEMORANDUM

[Add memorandum supporting motion]

CAUTION:
A supporting memorandum is required to be served and filed with this notice of motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005, 1010; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1114(a) (motions for which memorandum is not required)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use as a notice of motion to expunge a notice of lis pendens from the record under Code Civ. Proc. § 405 et seq. It should be filed with the court and served on the adverse party along with a supporting declaration or affidavit [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.30]. The notice of motion contains a request for an order for reasonable attorney's fees and costs if the moving party prevails [see Code Civ. Proc. § 405.38]. For discussion of expungement of lis pendens, see § 348.21[1].

The declaration in this form is based on the case of Allied Eastern Financial v. Goheen Enterprises (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 131, 71 Cal. Rptr. 126 . The factual situation stated in the declaration supports a notice of motion on the grounds that the action on which the notice of lis pendens is based does not affect title to or right of possession of the real property described in the notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.4]. The form also contains factual information supporting an award of reasonable attorney's fees and costs that the moving party has incurred [see Code Civ. Proc. § 405.38].

[3] Moving Party

At any time after a notice of lis pendens has been recorded, the following persons may apply to the court in which the action is pending for an order expunging the lis pendens notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.30]:

- Any party to the pending action.

- Any nonparty with an interest in the real property that is affected by the notice. A nonparty must obtain leave to intervene from the court at or before the time that he or she brings the motion to expunge.

A motion to intervene should not be combined with the motion to expunge (1) to avoid confusion, and (2) because local rules often require every motion to be separately filed [see, e.g., Los Angeles Superior Court Rules, Rule 9.3]. Although Code Civ. Proc. § 405.30 is silent regarding whether the motion to intervene should be made under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) (permissive intervention) or (b) (mandatory intervention), the motion should be made under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) if the intervenor is asserting that the disposition of the action may impair or impede the intervenor's interest in the real property. For further discussion of intervention and a complete set of intervention forms, see Ch. 395, Parties .

[4] State Statutes

Requirement that court order lis pendens notice expunged unless lis pendens claimant carries burden of proof in opposition by preponderance of evidence. Code Civ. Proc. § 405.32

Undertaking is possible condition to court denying or granting motion to expunge. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 405.33, 405.34

[5] Decisions

Declaration of third party on information and belief is insufficient to establish that action affects real property. Burger v. Superior Court (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 1013, 1019-1020, 199 Cal. Rptr. 227

Order expunging lis pendens is justified in action by buyers for specific performance if buyers failed to perform according to contract (no timely deposit of loan funds into escrow). Nash v. Superior Court (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 690, 696-701, 150 Cal. Rptr. 394 (disapproved on other ground in Malcolm v. Superior Court (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 518, 528, 174 Cal. Rptr. 694, 629 P.2d 495 , but holding in Malcolm regarding "state-of-mind" requirement for expungement now superseded by 1992 amendment requiring showing of probable validity)

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use as an order expunging a notice of lis pendens pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 405.30 et seq. The order may be issued at any time after the recordation of the notice of lis pendens [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.30].

The court must order that the notice of lis pendens be expunged unless the party filing the notice shows to the court's satisfaction, by a preponderance of the evidence, that (1) the action does affect title to, the right of possession of, or the use of an easement in the real property described in the notice, and (2) the real estate claim has probable validity [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 405.30-405.32]. Alternatively, the notice of lis pendens must be ordered expunged if the court finds the real property claim has probable validity, but adequate relief can be secured to the claimant by the giving of an undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.33]. Finally, a violation of the service and filing requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 405.22 may be a ground justifying expungement [see McKnight v. Superior Court (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 291, 303, 215 Cal. Rptr. 909 ; Code Civ. Proc. § 405.23]. For discussion of the effect of violations of service and filing requirements, see § 348.21[6].

[3] Provision of Undertaking

If expungement is conditioned on the giving of an undertaking, the undertaking must be of such nature and in such amount as will indemnify the claimant for all damages proximately resulting from the expungement that the claimant may incur if the claimant prevails on the real property claim. The court must set a return date for the moving party to show fulfillment of the undertaking condition. If the moving party fails to show fulfillment of the condition by the return date, the court must deny the motion to expunge without further notice or hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.33].

[4] Attorney's Fees and Costs

The order should also direct that the prevailing party be awarded reasonable attorney's fees and costs, unless the court finds that the other party acted with substantial justification or that other circumstances make the imposition of attorney's fees and costs unjust [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.38].

[5] Review of Order by Writ of Mandate

An order granting or denying a motion to expunge a notice of lis pendens is not appealable. If such an order is made, the party aggrieved by the order may petition the proper reviewing court to review the order by writ of mandate. The petition for writ of mandate must be filed within 20 days after service of written notice of the order or within any additional time (not exceeding 10 days) that the trial court allows [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.39].

No expungement order is effective, nor is it allowed to be recorded in the office of any county recorder, until the time within which a petition for writ of mandate may be filed has expired [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.35]. If a petition for mandate has been filed, the expungement order is not effective until the proceeding commenced by the petition is finally adjudicated [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.35].

[6] Recordation of Another Notice

After a lis pendens has been ordered expunged, the claimant may not record another notice of lis pendens as to the affected property without first obtaining leave of the court in which the action is pending [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.36].

[7] State Statutes

Effect of recording order expunging notice of pendency of action. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 405.60, 405.61

Form and sufficiency of undertaking. Code Civ. Proc. § 995.310 et seq.

[8] Decisions

Whether to expunge lis pendens under former Code Civ. Proc. § 409.2 (now see Code Civ. Proc. 405.33) on filing of undertaking if court finds that undertaking secures adequate relief to claimant is within discretion of trial court. Sheets v. Superior Court (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 68, 70, 149 Cal. Rptr. 912

SUPPORTING MEMORANDUM

[Add memorandum supporting motion]

CAUTION:
A supporting memorandum is required to be served and filed with this notice of motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005, 1010; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1114(a) (motions for which memorandum is not required)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use as a notice of motion to require the claimant to provide the moving party with an undertaking as a condition of maintaining a lis pendens notice in the record title. The motion may be brought at any time after the notice of lis pendens is recorded, and regardless of whether a motion to expunge has been filed. It is, however, subject to the provisions for expungement under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 405.31 and 405.32 (discussed in § 348.21[1], [4]) [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.34].

The court may receive oral testimony and provide for discovery by any affected party [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.34].

[3] Moving Party

A motion to require a claimant to provide an undertaking as a condition of maintaining a lis pendens notice may be brought by any person with an interest in the real property described in the notice. A person who is not a party to the pending action must obtain leave from the court to intervene at or before the time that he or she makes the motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.34].

A nonparty's motion to intervene should not be combined with the motion to require an undertaking (1) to avoid confusion, and (2) because local rules often require every motion to be separately filed [see, e.g., Los Angeles Superior Court Rules, Rule 9.3]. Although Code Civ. Proc. § 405.34 is silent regarding whether the motion to intervene should be made under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) (permissive intervention) or (b) (mandatory intervention), the motion should be made under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) if the intervenor is asserting that the disposition of the action may impair or impede the intervenor's interest in the real property. For further discussion of intervention and a complete set of intervention forms, see Ch. 395, Parties .

[4] Giving of Undertaking

The court must determine the nature and amount of the undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.34]. The undertaking should state that the claimant will indemnify the moving party for damages suffered as a result of the maintenance of the notice if the claimant does not prevail on the real property claim. In its order requiring an undertaking, the court must set a return date for the claimant to show compliance and must order the lis pendens notice expunged without further notice or hearing if the claimant fails to do so [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.34]. The moving party may recover on the undertaking by showing (1) that the claimant did not prevail on the real property claim and (2) that the moving party suffered damages as a result of the maintenance of the lis pendens [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.34; see Code Civ. Proc. § 996.440 (procedure for recovery on undertaking)].

[5] Attorney's Fees and Costs

When an order is made under the lis pendens statute granting or denying a motion to require the claimant to give the moving party an undertaking, the court must direct that the prevailing party be awarded reasonable attorney's fees and costs, unless the court finds that the other party acted with substantial justification or that other circumstances make the imposition of attorney's fees and costs unjust [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.38].

[6] State Statutes

Form and sufficiency of undertaking. Code Civ. Proc. § 995.310 et seq.

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use as an order requiring a claimant to give the moving party an undertaking as a condition of maintaining the notice of lis pendens in the record title. The order may be issued at any time after the notice of lis pendens has been recorded [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.34].

[3] Provision of Undertaking

The undertaking must be of a nature and in an amount as the court determines to be just. In its order requiring the undertaking, the court must set a return date for the claimant to show compliance. If the claimant fails to do so by the return date, the court must order the notice of lis pendens expunged without further notice or hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.34].

[4] Attorney's Fees and Costs

The order should direct that the prevailing party be awarded reasonable attorney's fees and costs, unless the court finds that the other party acted with substantial justification or that other circumstances make the imposition of attorney's fees and costs unjust [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.38].

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT _____ [name] withdraws the notice of pendency of action (lis pendens) that was recorded in the above action on _____ [date], in Book _____, at Page _____, of the Official Records of _____ County, California. _____ [Repeat name] is the [successor in interest of the] party who recorded the above lis pendens.

The above lis pendens affected certain real property that is situated [in part] in _____ [county in which notice is to be recorded] County, California, and that is described as follows: _____ [set forth legal description, including street address, of real property].

This notice of withdrawal is recorded pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 405.50.

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[Acknowledgement. See § 348.60[1]]

[2] Use of Form

This form is a notice for use in withdrawing a lis pendens by the party or parties who recorded it or by a successor in interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.50].

[3] Required Contents

The form must be executed by the party who recorded the notice of lis pendens or the party's successor in interest and must also be acknowledged [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.50; see Gov. Code § 27287].

[4] Effect of Withdrawal

Recordation of a notice of withdrawal of a notice of lis pendens has the same effect on subsequent purchasers or encumbrancers as recordation of an order expunging such a notice [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 405.60, 405.61]. That is, it clears the title of the property from the effect of the lis pendens [see § 348.27].

PART I. SCOPE

31-349 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 349.01

§ 349.01 Scope of Chapter

[1] In General

This chapter discusses the protection afforded to intellectual property, and contains forms for use in protecting that property, under the federal copyright law. It also discusses related protection of intellectual property and ideas, and contains forms for use in protecting that property and those ideas under various principles of California law. Part B discusses the federal Copyright Act of 1976. Part C discusses California law. Part D discusses the federal Semiconductor Chip Protection Act of 1984.

The chapter contains a form of complaint for use in federal district court for infringement of copyright [see § 349.100]. The chapter also contains a form of complaint for use in a state court for damages arising out of a breach of an express contract, breach of confidence, or wrongful use of an idea [see § 349.101], and an order for the viewing of an infringing work in connection with a complaint for wrongful use of an idea [see § 349.102].

For discussion and forms concerning causes of action related to this chapter, see Ch. 57, Art ; Ch. 269, Fraud and Deceit ; Ch. 429, Privacy ; Ch. 549, Trademarks and Trade Names ; and Ch. 565, Unfair Competition .

[2] Moral Rights as Opposed to Economic and Proprietary Rights

The scope of this chapter is limited to a discussion of and forms for use in the protection and enforcement of economic and proprietary rights in intellectual property under federal and state copyright laws, and in ideas under California law. In addition, both federal and California law recognize the existence of and provide protection for and methods of enforcement of moral rights in certain types of intellectual property. Certain aspects of artists' moral rights have been codified in the federal copyright law [see 17 U.S.C. § 106A]. Discussion of, and forms for use in protecting and enforcing, an artist's moral rights in intellectual property under federal and California law are contained in Ch. 57, Art .

Federal copyright protection is governed by Title 17 of the United States Code. State protection for works of authorship not protectible under federal law, including works of authorship that are not fixed in any tangible medium of expression, and sound recordings fixed prior to February 15, 1972, is governed by Civ. Code § 980 et seq.

§ 349.11 "Fixed in Tangible Medium of Expression" Defined

A work is "fixed" in a tangible medium of expression when its embodiment in a copy or phonorecord, by or under the authority of the author, is sufficiently permanent or stable to permit it to be perceived, reproduced, or otherwise communicated for a period of more than transitory duration. A work consisting of sounds, images, or both, that is being transmitted, is "fixed" for purposes of the Federal Copyright Act of 1976 if a fixation of the work is being made simultaneously with its transmission [17 U.S.C. § 101].

§ 349.12 Federal Preemption

State common law copyright protection is expressly preempted by the Federal Copyright Act of 1976 [17 U.S.C. § 301(a)]. Exceptions to this rule of preemption apply to all of the following [17 U.S.C. § 301(b)]:

- Works not copyrightable under federal law, including works not fixed in any tangible medium of expression [see, e.g., Civ. Code § 980 et seq.; see also discussion in § 349.41].

- Causes of action arising from undertakings commenced before January 1, 1978. For copyright claims under California common law, this exception applies when the defendant's infringement, not just the plaintiff's creation of the work, occurred before January 1, 1978 [Klekas v. EMI Films, Inc. (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 1102, 1110, 198 Cal. Rptr. 296].

- Causes of action arising from works protected by the Copyright Act of 1909, which was applicable prior to January 1, 1978, the effective date of the Copyright Act of 1976. The 1909 Act applies in such cases even if the alleged infringement occurred in 1978 or later. [Magnuson v. Video Yesteryear (9th Cir. 1996) 85 F.3d 1424, 1427-1428].

- Activities violating legal or equitable rights that are not equivalent to any of the exclusive rights specified by 17 U.S.C. § 106 [see also discussion in § 349.22[1]].

- State and local landmarks, historic preservation, zoning, or building codes relating to architectural works.

For further discussion of the effect of the 1976 Act on state common law copyright protection see § 349.41.

31-349 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 349.20

§ 349.20 Federal Copyright Act of 1976

Under the Federal Copyright Act of 1976 (17 U.S.C. § 101 et seq.) a single federal system has been established for the protection of literary property. The act abolishes the former dual system of "common law copyright" for unpublished works and federal statutory copyright for published works. Formerly, federal copyright protection, with some exceptions, began once a work had been published. Under the 1976 Act, however, copyright protection in an original work of authorship begins as soon as it is created by being fixed in any tangible medium of expression from which it can be perceived, reproduced, or otherwise communicated, either directly or with the aid of a machine or device [see 17 U.S.C. § 102(a); see also H.R. Rep. No. 1476, 94th Cong., 2nd Sess. (1976)].

The superseded Copyright Act of 1909 is not necessarily immaterial in current cases. In a case of alleged infringement of copyright [see § 349.27], for instance, that act could be relevant on the issue of whether the work in question either received copyright protection under the 1909 act or fell into the public domain while that act was in force [see Societe Civile Succession Richard Guino v. Renoir (9th Cir. 2008) 549F.3d 1182, 1185-1190 (defendant infringed plaintiff's copyright in sculptures that were created in 1913-1917 and first published in 1917 in France; from 1917 to 1978, those sculptures were neither protected by copyright in United States nor in public domain; on January 1, 1978, they became subject to Copyright Act of 1976, under which in 1984 copyright protection was secured by registration)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Federal Copyright Law

31-349 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 349.21

§ 349.21 Subject Matter of Copyright

[1] In General

Copyright protection under the 1976 Act subsists in original works of creation that are fixed in any tangible medium of expression. The medium may be one now known, or one later developed. A work is considered to be sufficiently fixed if it can be perceived, reproduced, or otherwise communicated, either directly or with the aid of a machine or device [17 U.S.C. § 102(a)]. The Copyright Act does not contemplate the copyrighting of a now-nonexistent original work on the basis of a tendered reconstruction [Kodadek v. MTV Networks, Inc. (9th Cir. 1998) 152 F.3d 1209].

Works of authorship protected by the 1976 Act include the following [17 U.S.C. § 102(a)]:

- Literary works.
- Musical works, including any accompanying words.
- Dramatic works, including any accompanying music.
- Pantomimes and choreographic works.
- Pictorial, graphic, and sculptural works.
- Motion pictures and other audiovisual works.
- Sound recordings.
- Architectural works.

These terms are further defined in 17 U.S.C. § 101.

[2] Fixation in Tangible Medium of Expression

The concept of fixation under the 1976 Act is central to the application of the statute to any given work. Fixation requires that the work contained in a material object must, in some manner, take on the physical aspects of the protected work such that the "copy" of that work may be perceived by an observer [Walker v. University Books, Inc. (9th Cir. 1979) 602 F.2d 859, 864 (blueprint sufficiently tangible and permanent to permit fixation)].

Under the present copyright statute, it makes no difference what the form, manner, or medium of fixation is, or may be, so long as there is a fixation and it is capable of being perceived directly or by means of any machine or device now known or later developed. For example, a live television broadcast of a news event, sporting event, or live performance of music or drama is disseminated to the public in an unfixed form; however, the coverage is almost always simultaneously recorded. The copyright owner, in such an event, would be protected by the federal copyright law and could proceed in a federal court against an infringing user of the live broadcast [see Notes of Committee on the Judiciary to § 102, H.R. Rep. No. 1476, 94th Cong., 2nd Sess. (1976)].

In one case, the Ninth Circuit held that the act of loading copyrighted system maintenance software into a computer's random access memory (RAM) created a copy of protectable expression that was sufficiently "fixed" to constitute an infringement of the copyright, even though the copy is lost from the RAM when the computer is switched off, because the operator could view the system error log and diagnose any problems with the computer while the software was in the RAM [MAI Systems Corp. v. Peak Computer, Inc. (9th Cir. 1993) 991 F.2d 511, 518-519].

[3] Compilations and Derivative Works

The 1976 Act also extends protection for works that are either derivative or compilations [17 U.S.C. § 103(a); see 17 U.S.C. § 101 ("compilation" and "derivative work" defined); Jarvis v. K2 Inc. (9th Cir. 2007), 486 F.3d 526, 530-532 (collage ads incorporating edited versions of plaintiff's photographs were not collective works--that is, not compilations--but were derivative works)]. However, the copyright in the "new version" covers only the material contributed by the later author, and is independent of and does not affect one way or another any preexisting copyright or public domain status of the preexisting material [17 U.S.C. § 103(b)]. In deciding whether to grant copyright protection to a derivative work, courts must be concerned about the impact that a derivative copyright will have on the copyright privileges and rights of the owner of the underlying work. The body of law regarding derivative copyrights is designed to strike a balance between the holder of a copyright in the underlying work and the creator of a work that is made by copying that underlying work [Entertainment Research Group, Inc. v. Genesis Creative Group, Inc. (9thCir. 1998) 122 F.3d 1211, 1219] . The test of a derivative copyright is two-fold. First, to support a copyright, the original aspects of a derivative work must be more than trivial. Second, the original aspects of a derivative work must reflect the degree to which it relies on preexisting material and must not in any way affect the scope of any copyright protection in that preexisting material [Entertainment Research Group, Inc. v. Genesis Creative Group, Inc. (9th Cir. 1998) 122 F.3d 1211, 1220 (adopting so-called Durham test and discussing at length district court's proper application of that test in this case); see Durham Industries, Inc. v. Tomy Corp. (2d Cir. 1980) 630 F.2d 905, 909]. In addition, copyright protection under the 1976 Act does not extend to any part of the work in which preexisting material was unlawfully used [17 U.S.C. § 103(a)].

In the case of compilations, originality rather than the time and effort expended by the compiler (the so-called "sweat of the brow") in making the compilation is the touchstone of copyright protection, at least in such compilations as directories and other fact-based works [Feist Pub. v. Rural Tel. Serv. (1991) 499 U.S. 340, 359-360, 111 S. Ct. 1282, 113 L. Ed. 2d 358 (repudiating the "sweat of the brow" doctrine)]. To merit copyright protection, the facts, materials, or data must be selected, coordinated, or arranged in such a way as to render the work as a whole original. Therefore, there will be some fact-based (or data-based or other materials-based) work in which the selection, coordination, and arrangement will not be sufficiently original to trigger copyright protection [Feist Pub. v. Rural Tel. Serv. (1991) 499 U.S. 340, 358, 111 S. Ct. 1282, 113 L. Ed. 2d 358]. The requisite originality is not a stringent standard, and does not require that facts, data, or other materials be presented in an innovative or surprising way. The selection and arrangement of those facts, data, or materials, however, cannot be so mechanical or routine as to require no creativity whatsoever [Feist Pub. v. Rural Tel. Serv. (1991) 499 U.S. 340, 358, 362, 111 S. Ct. 1282, 113 L. Ed. 2d 358]. Thus, a telephone book's white pages listings, limited to basic subscriber information (name, town, and telephone number) and arranged alphabetically does not contain the requisite originality to be copyrightable as a compilation [Feist Pub. v. Rural Tel. Serv. (1991) 499 U.S. 340, 362-363, 111 S. Ct. 1282, 113 L. Ed. 2d 358]. On the other hand, "organizers" (calendar-type books produced to help users plan daily activities and typically containing uncopyrightable blank forms for recording calendar and address information, as well as uncopyrightable utilitarian features such as pockets for business cards) can be copyrightable as compilations if the selection, coordination, and arrangement of materials and data in the organizer attain sufficient originality [Harper House, Inc. v. Thomas Nelson, Inc. (9th Cir. 1989) 889 F.2d 197, 204-205].

A combination of unprotectable elements may qualify for copyright protection [Apple Computer, Inc. v. Microsoft Corp. (9th Cir. 1994) 35 F.3d 1435, 1446], but only if those elements are numerous enough and their selection and arrangement are original enough that their combination constitutes an original work of authorship [Satava v. Lowry (9th Cir. 2003) 323 F.3d 805, 811]. On the other hand, the creator of such a work that is not eligible for regular copyright protection can still have a so-called "thin copyright," which would protect against identical copying of that work [Satava v. Lowry (9th Cir. 2003) 323 F.3d 805, 812 ; Ets-Hokin v. Skyy Spirits, Inc. (9th Cir. 2003) 323 F.3d 763, 766].

Chapter 349 LITERARY PROPERTY AND COPYRIGHT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Federal Copyright Law

31-349 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 349.22

§ 349.22 Scope of Copyright

[1] Exclusive Rights in Copyrighted Works

Title 17 U.S.C. § 106 confers a package of exclusive rights on the owner of a copyright. A copyright, like other intellectual property, comprises a series of carefully defined and carefully delimited interests to which the law affords correspondingly exact protections [Dowling v. United States (1985) 473 U.S. 207, 216, 105 S. Ct. 3127, 87 L. Ed. 2d 152]. A copyright owner has the exclusive right to do and to authorize any or all of the following activities [17 U.S.C. § 106]:

- Reproducing the copyrighted work in copies or phonorecords.
- Preparing derivative works based on the copyrighted work.
- Distributing copies or phonorecords of the copyrighted work to the public by sale or other transfer of ownership or by rental, lease, or lending.
- Performing publicly the copyrighted work in the case of literary, musical, dramatic, and choreographic works, pantomimes, motion pictures, and other audiovisual works.
- Displaying publicly the copyrighted work in the case of literary, musical, dramatic, and choreographic works, pantomimes, and pictorial, graphic, or sculptural works, including the individual images of a motion picture or other audiovisual work.
- In the case of sound recordings, performing the copyrighted work publicly by means of a digital audio transmission.

[2] Limitations on Exclusive Rights

Title 17 U.S.C. § 106 does not accord the copyright owner complete control over all possible uses of his or her work.

The property rights of a copyright holder have a character distinct from the possessory interest of the owner of simple goods, wares, or merchandise because the copyright holder's dominion is subjected to precisely defined limits [Dowling v. United States (1985) 473 U.S. 207, 217, 105 S. Ct. 3127, 87 L. Ed. 2d 152]. Thus, there are a number of statutory limitations on the exclusive rights afforded to a copyright owner under the 1976 Act. These limitations include:

- Fair use of a copyrighted work by reproduction for purposes of criticism, comment, news reporting, teaching, scholarship, or research [see 17 U.S.C. § 107; see also discussion in § 349.27[6][b]].

- Reproduction or distribution by libraries and archives made without any purpose of direct or indirect commercial advantage [see 17 U.S.C. § 108].

- Distribution of copies or phonorecords of the copyrighted work to the public by sale or other transfer of ownership, or by rental, lease, or lending [17 U.S.C. § 106(3); see also 17 U.S.C. § 602(a) (unauthorized importation)]. However, under the "first sale doctrine" set out in 17 U.S.C. § 109(a), this distribution right may be exercised solely with respect to the initial disposition of copies of a work, not to prevent or restrict the resale or other further transfer of possession of such copies [see Nimmer on Copyright, Ch. 8, The Nature of the Rights Protected by Copyright, § 8.12(B)(1) (Matthew Bender)]. In the Ninth Circuit, the general rule is that the first sale doctrine provides a defense only when the claims involve domestically made copies of U.S.-copyrighted works [Omega S.A. v. Costco Wholesale Corp. (9th Cir. 2008) 541 F.3d 982, 985, 990-991 (holding that Supreme Court's ruling in Quality King Distribs., Inc. v. L'Anza Research Int'l, Inc. (1998) 523 U.S. 135, 139-152, 118 S. Ct. 1125, 140 L. Ed. 2d 254 did not invalidate Ninth Circuit's established rule)]. Therefore, in the Ninth Circuit, unauthorized sale of a U.S.-copyrighted item that was manufactured outside the United States is an infringement of copyright [Omega S.A. v. Costco Wholesale Corp. (9th Cir. 2008) 541 F.3d 982, 986, 990-991 (no defense available under 17 U.S.C. § 709 available to retailer who sold Swiss-manufactured watches in the United States without manufacturer's consent)].

- Performance or display of a copyrighted work for educational, religious, personal, or promotional purposes in which there is no direct or indirect admission charge, or there is an admission charge but the net proceeds are used exclusively for educational, religious, or charitable purposes [see 17 U.S.C. § 110; see also § 349.27[6][e]].

- Permitted secondary transmissions, including transmissions by cable systems under compulsory license, of primary transmissions by secondary retransmission systems [see 17 U.S.C. § 111].

- "Ephemeral recordings" of a copyrighted work, other than a motion picture or other audiovisual work, by a transmitting organization entitled to transmit a performance or display of the work to the public under a license or transfer of the copyright or under the limitations on exclusive rights in sound recordings (17 U.S.C. § 114(a)), to facilitate a legally-permitted later transmission [see 17 U.S.C. § 112].

- Manufacture, distribution, or display of a useful article portrayed as such in a copyrighted pictorial, graphic, or sculptural work, and manufacture, distribution, or display of pictures or photographs of such articles in connection with advertisements or commentaries related to their distribution or display, or in news reports [see 17 U.S.C. § 113].

- Performance rights in copyrighted sound recordings [see 17 U.S.C. § 114].

- Limited rights of an owner of a copy of a computer program to make another copy or adaptation of that program [see 17 U.S.C. § 117].

- Manufacture, distribution, or public display of pictorial representations of an architectural work, if the building in which the work is embodied is located in or ordinarily visible from a public place [see 17 U.S.C. § 120(a)].

- A building owner's alteration, destruction, or authorization of alteration or destruction, of a building embodying architectural work without the consent of the author or copyright owner of the architectural work [see 17 U.S.C. § 120(b)].

For detailed discussion of the scope of exclusive rights in a copyrighted work, see Nimmer on Copyright, Ch. 8, The Nature of the Rights Protected by Copyright (Matthew Bender), and Notes of Committee on the Judiciary to 17 U.S.C. §§ 106-118, House Report No. 94-1476.

[3] Compulsory Licensing

The 1976 Act also provides for compulsory licensing of various uses of a copyrighted work [see 17 U.S.C. §§ 111(c), (d), 115, 119]. Compulsory licensing is essentially a statutory exception to the Act's provision that the copyright owner has certain statutorily specified exclusive rights in the work [see 17 U.S.C. § 106 (discussed in [1], above)] and the Act's provision that anyone who violates any of those rights is an infringer of the copyright [see 17 U.S.C. § 501(a) (discussed under § 349.27[1])].

The Copyright Act provides for compulsory licensing in the following circumstances:

- A cable system may obtain a compulsory license to make secondary transmissions to the public of primary transmissions made by a broadcast station licensed by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) or an appropriate governmental authority of Canada or Mexico [see 17 U.S.C. § 111(c), (d)].

- Once phonorecords of a nondramatic musical work have been distributed to the public under authority of the copyright owner, others may obtain a compulsory license to make and distribute their own phonorecords of that work, under specified circumstances [see 17 U.S.C. § 115; Peer Intern. Corp. v. Pausa Records, Inc. (9th Cir. 1990) 909 F.2d 1332, 1337] .

- "Satellite carriers" may obtain a "statutory" (i.e., compulsory) license to make secondary transmissions to the public for private home viewing of a primary transmission made by a "super station" or by a network station, under specified circumstances [see 17 U.S.C. § 119].

The Copyright Act also provides for negotiated licensing of the performances of nondramatic musical works on coin-operated phonorecords ("jukeboxes") and for negotiated licensing for the use of pictorial, graphic, sculptural, and nondramatic musical works by public broadcasting entities [see 17 U.S.C. §§ 116, 118]. In the absence of an effective agreement, royalties are to be determined by a panel of experts appointed by the Librarian of Congress and called copyright royalty judges (or, before June 1, 2005, by ad hoc copyright arbitration royalty panels) [17 U.S.C. §§ 116(b)(2), 118(b)(4); see 17 U.S.C. § 801 et seq. (appointment of and proceedings by copyright royalty judges); see also former 17 U.S.C. §§ 116(b)(2), 118(b)(3); Pub. L. No. 108-419, § 6 (operative date of amendments enacted by Copyright Royalty and Distribution Reform Act of 2004; transitional application of former provisions of Copyright Act mandating proceedings by ad hoc copyright arbitration royalty panels pursuant to former 17 U.S.C. § 801 et seq.)].

For detailed discussion of compulsory and negotiated license provisions under the Copyright Act, Nimmer on Copyright, Ch. 8, The Nature of the Rights Protected by Copyright (Matthew Bender).

[4] Reasonable License of Music for Individual Proprietors

Notwithstanding that a performing rights society is subject to a consent decree providing for a reasonable license rate or fee to be charged for use of its music, an individual proprietor who owns or operates fewer than seven nonpublicly traded establishments in which nondramatic musical works are publicly performed, and who claims that a music license agreement offered by the performing rights society is unreasonable as to him or her, may bring a judicial proceeding to determine a reasonable license fee or rate with regard to his or her business [17 U.S.C. § 513]. The industry rate is presumed to have been reasonable at the time it was set, but the presumption does not affect a determination of whether the rate is correctly applied to music used by the proprietor in his or her business [17 U.S.C. § 513(4)].

[5] Implied Grant of License

A license is deemed to have been granted implicitly if the following three facts are established [*Asset Mktg. Sys. v. Gagnon (9th Cir. 2008) 542 F.3d 748, 2008 U.S. App. LEXIS 19179, at *14-15]:

First, a person--the licensee--requested the creation of a work (which is a work of the kind that can be subject to copyright). The request need not be explicit or formalized; what matters is that the licensee took the initial steps toward creation of the work, having that result in mind. Creation of the work was responsive to the licensee's initiative [*see Asset Mktg. Sys. v. Gagnon (9th Cir. 2008) 542 F.3d 748, 2008 U.S. App. LEXIS 19179, at 16].

Second, the creator--the copyright owner and licensor--made that particular work and delivered it to the licensee who requested it. That is, the work was created specifically for the licensee. Whether the work was actually delivered could be disputed; for instance, a customized computer program could have been installed on the licensee's computer as object code (which is readable by the computer but not easily readable by a person), while the creator retained the source code (which a person can read and which can be modified by a programmer), and then the creator could plausibly deny that the program was delivered. In any event, as long as the other two facts are established, and the licensee in fact has some meaningful use of the work, a court may conclude that an implied license has been granted [*see Asset Mktg. Sys. v. Gagnon (9th Cir. 2008) 542 F.3d 748, 2008 U.S. App. LEXIS 19179, at 17].

Third, the licensor intended that the licensee-requestor would use the work in some way appropriate to the nature of the work: for example, copying and distributing it (for example, the work is a special effect created for use in a film) or using and modifying it for use in business operations (for example, the work is a customized computer program) [*Asset Mktg. Sys. v. Gagnon (9th Cir. 2008) 542 F.3d 748, 2008 U.S. App. LEXIS 19179, at 15]. The relevant intent is the licensor's objective intent at the time of the creation and delivery of the work, as manifested by the parties' conduct. A court should consider the following factors to determine whether the creator had such an intent [*Asset Mktg. Sys. v. Gagnon (9th Cir. 2008) 542 F.3d 748, 2008 U.S. App. LEXIS 19179, at *18-19]:

- Whether the parties were engaged in a short-term discrete transaction as opposed to an ongoing relationship;

- Whether the creator submitted (regardless of whether the parties signed) a written contract providing that copyrighted material could be used only with the creator's future involvement or express permission; and

- Whether the creator's conduct during the creation or delivery of the copyrighted material indicated that use of the material without the creator's involvement or consent was permissible.

If an implied license was granted, two dependent issues can arise. First, as to the durability of the license, if the licensee gave consideration--in the usual case, the licensee pays money to the creator--then the license may be irrevocable [see Asset Mktg. Sys. v. Gagnon (9th Cir. 2008) 542 F.3d 748, 757], or it may have been converted into a contract [see Effects Assoc., Inc. v. Cohen (9th Cir. 1990) 908 F.2d 555, 559 n.7]. Second, issues can arise regarding the scope of the license--whether it is limited in any way (such as by geographic area), whether it is exclusive or not, and what the licensee is entitled to do with, and with respect to, the work (for instance, whether a computer program may be modified). Evidence of the parties' intent must be considered in each case [see, e.g., Asset Mktg. Sys. v. Gagnon (9th Cir. 2008) 542 F.3d 748, 757 (court's finding that creator of work intended to grant nonexclusive, unlimited license was supported by fact that creator submitted draft of agreement to licensee, which contained statement to that effect; and fact that parties never signed it was irrelevant)]. A licensee infringes the owner's copyright if the licensee's use exceeds the scope of the license [S.O.S., Inc. v. Payday, Inc. (9th Cir. 1989) 886 F.2d 1081, 1087].

§ 349.23 Copyright Ownership

[1] In General

The copyright in a work protected by the 1976 Act vests initially in the author or authors of the work [17 U.S.C. § 201(a)]. In the case of a work made for hire [see discussion § 349.23[2]], the employer (or other person for whom the work was specially prepared) is considered the author of the work and is regarded as the initial owner of the work unless there is a specific written agreement otherwise by the parties [17 U.S.C. § 201(b)]. However, when the work consists of separate contributions in a collective work, the author of a separate contribution is regarded as the initial owner of the separate contribution even though copyright ownership of the collective work as a whole may vest with another person [17 U.S.C. § 201(c); see Notes of Committee on the Judiciary to § 201, House Report No. 94-1476].

Under 17 U.S.C. § 201(c), a publisher could reprint a contribution from one issue in a later issue of a magazine, for example, or could reprint an article from one edition of an encyclopedia in a later revision of it; but the publisher could not revise the contribution itself or include it in a new anthology or an entirely different collective work. Essentially, that section of the 1976 Act adjusts a publisher's copyright in its collective work to accommodate a freelance contributor's copyright in the contribution. If there is demand for a freelance article standing alone or in a new collection, the 1976 Act allows the freelance contributor to benefit from that demand; after authorizing initial publication, the contributor may also sell the article to others [New York Times Co. v. Tasini (2001) 533 U.S. 483, 497, 121 S. Ct. 2381, 150 L. Ed. 2d 500 (freelance-contributed articles first published in New York Times could not, without contributors' consent, be later published in NEXIS database or other similar computer database; that database must be viewed as entirely new collective work rather than "revision" of original collective work)].

[2] Work for Hire

A work is "for hire" when it is prepared by an employee within the scope of his or her employment or when it is specially ordered or commissioned for use in a collective work or for other purposes specified by statute [17 U.S.C. § 101]. In determining whether a work was prepared by an employee, principles of the general common law of agency apply. Many factors, including the hiring party's right to control the manner and means by which the product is accomplished, the skill required, and the duration of the relationship between the parties, must be considered, and no one factor is determinative [see Community for Creative Non-Violence v. Reid (1989) 490 U.S. 730, 752-753, 109 S. Ct. 2166, 104 L. Ed. 2d 811].

In weighing the factors, a court may draw some guidance from the alleged employer's status as a technology start-up company, in the light of common practices for such a business and of the way the company operated. In particular, a contemplated indefinite duration of the relationship between the company and the individual (who would appear to be an employee if not hired for a specific term nor with a discretely defined end-product in mind), the individual's performing and being available to perform employee-like tasks for the company (such as doing work in several areas and having a title suggesting broad duties), the fact that the individual received a salary from the company during the relationship (even if the salary was paid in stock in lieu of cash), and the nature of the company's business (to develop and sell a thing that required continual technological innovation), all could support a finding that the individual was an employee. Factors pointing to the opposite conclusion might be given little weight in the light of the way the company operated because of being a technology start-up. For instance, having control over the manner and means of doing work--a typical indicator of an employment relationship--is comparatively unimportant for a start-up company, if not actually counter-productive [*JustMed, Inc. v. Byce (9th Cir. 2010) 600 F.3d 1118, 2010 U.S. App. LEXIS 6976, at *18-24] .

[3] Joint Work

A work is a "joint work" when it is prepared by two or more authors with the intention that their contributions be merged into inseparable or interdependent parts of a unitary whole [17 U.S.C. § 101]. The authors of a joint work are coowners of the copyright in that work [17 U.S.C. § 201(a)]. In the Ninth Circuit, joint authorship requires each author to make an independently copyrightable contribution to the work [Ashton-Tate Corp. v. Ross (9th Cir. 1990) 916 F.2d 516, 521].

In the case of a work, such as a motion picture, that is the result of many individuals' creative contributions, authorship entails more than merely making a valuable and copyrightable contribution. In the absence of a determinative contract, several factors may be among the criteria for authorship. First, an author superintends the work by exercising control. Second, putative coauthors make objective manifestations of their shared intent to be coauthors. Third, the audience appeal of a joint work turns on the combined contributions of the coauthors, and the share of each in the work's success cannot be appraised. Control in many cases will be the most important factor: absence of control is strong evidence of the absence of coauthorship. The factors cannot be reduced to a rigid formula, however, because the creative relationships to which they apply vary too much. Different people do creative work together in different ways, and even among the same people working together the relationship may change over time as the work proceeds [Aalmuhammed v. Lee (9th Cir. 2000) 202 F.3d 1227, 1234-1235 (plaintiff could not support claim to be coauthor of motion picture Malcolm X, although plaintiff did have quantum meruit claim for making valuable, copyrightable contribution)].

Laches may be a defense to a copyright coauthorship claim, and the period for determining laches starts when the plaintiff knew or should have known of the defendant's claim of sole authorship [Jackson v. Axton (9th Cir. 1994) 25 F.3d 884, 887-889].

§ 349.24 Transfer of Ownership

The ownership of a copyright may be transferred in whole or in part by any means of conveyance or by operation of law, and is to be treated as personal property on death of the owner. Moreover, any of the exclusive rights comprised in a copyright under the 1976 Act may be transferred and owned separately [17 U.S.C. § 201(d); see also Notes of Committee on the Judiciary to § 201, House Report No. 94-1476].

To be valid, any transfer of copyright ownership, other than by operation of law, must be in writing and signed by the copyright owner or by his or her agent [17 U.S.C. § 204(a)]. The Ninth Circuit has held that the writing must be a product of the parties' negotiations and that execution of the writing must be substantially contemporaneous with the parties' agreement [Konigsberg Intern., Inc. v. Rice (9th Cir. 1994) 16 F.3d 355, 357].

When contracting for a transfer of any of the exclusive rights under a copyright, the transferee must obtain a writing executed by the copyright owner, which the owner intends as a memorandum of contract transferring the exclusive right [PMC, Inc. V. Saban Entertainment, Inc. (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 579, 591-592, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 877].

Whenever a person who owns a copyright transfers that copyright to another person so that the transferee can make and sell a product embodying that copyright, the value of the copyright interest is exempt from sales and use tax under Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 6011(c)(10) and 6012(c)(10) [Preston v. State Bd. of Equalization (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 197, 214, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 407, 19 P.3d 1148].

§ 349.25 Duration of Copyright

A copyright in a work created on or after January 1, 1978, subsists from its creation and endures for the lifetime of the author plus 70 years [17 U.S.C. § 302(a)]. In the case of a joint work prepared by two or more authors who did not work for hire, the copyright endures for a term consisting of the life of the last surviving author plus 70 years [17 U.S.C. § 302(b)]. For anonymous and pseudonymous works and works made for hire, the copyright endures for a period of 95 years after its publication, or 120 years after its creation, whichever comes first [17 U.S.C. § 302(c)].

A copyright in a work created but not copyrighted before January 1, 1978, endures for the same term as provided in § 302 of the Act. In no case, however, will a term of copyright for this type of work expire before December 31, 2002. In the event that such a created work is published on or before December 31, 2002, the term of copyright will not expire before December 31, 2047 [17 U.S.C. § 303(a); see also Notes of Committee on the Judiciary to § 303, House Report No 94-1476]. The distribution of a phonorecord before January 1, 1978, does not for any purpose constitute a publication of the musical work embodied in it [17 U.S.C. § 303(b); see ABKCO Music, Inc. v. LaVere (9th Cir. 2000) 217 F.3d 684, 691 (Congress intended that 17 U.S.C. § 303(b) would clarify law on this issue and nullify Ninth Circuit's "aberrational" La Cienega decision); La Cienega Music Co. v. ZZ Top (9th Cir. 1995) 53 F.3d 950, 953 (distribution of phonorecord was "publication" of underlying work and "the clock started ticking under the Copyright Act of 1909")].

Any copyright that was existing in its first term on January 1, 1978, endures for a term of 28 years from the date that it was originally secured [17 U.S.C. § 304(a)(1)(A)]. Specified persons are entitled to a renewal and extension of such copyrights for an additional 67 years [see 17 U.S.C. § 304(a)(1)(B), (C)]. Renewal is automatic, and no application for renewal is required [17 U.S.C. § 304(a)(3)(B)]. The renewal owner may, however, apply to register the renewed copyright [see 17 U.S.C. § 304(a)(3)(A)], in which case the extended term vests on the date of application for registration; otherwise, the extended term vests on the last day of the original term of the copyright [see 17 U.S.C. § 304(a)(2)(A), (B); see also Marascalco v. Fantasy, Inc. (9th Cir. 1991) 953 F.2d 469, 470-476, 21 U.S.P.Q.2d 1376]. Renewed copyrights that were subsisting in their second terms between December 31, 1976, and December 31, 1977, have been extended to endure for terms of 95 years from the date copyright was originally secured [17 U.S.C. § 304(b); see 17 U.S.C. § 304(c), (d) (governing termination of transfers and licenses covering extended renewal term and termination rights that expired on or before effective date of Sonny Bono Copyright Term Extension Act); see also

§ 349.26 Notice and Registration of Copyright

[1] Notice of Copyright on Copies or Phonorecords Publicly Distributed on or After March 1, 1989

A notice of copyright may be placed on publicly distributed copies of a protected work or on all publicly distributed phonorecords [17 U.S.C. §§ 401(a), 402(a)]. If a notice in the form and position specified by 17 U.S.C. § 401(b) (copy) or 402(b) (phonorecord) appears on the published copy or phonorecord to which a defendant in a copyright infringement suit had access, then no weight will be given to the defendant's interposition of a defense based on innocent infringement in mitigation of actual or statutory damages, except as provided in the last sentence of 17 U.S.C. § 504(c)(2) (statutory damages against nonprofit educational institution, library, archives, or public broadcaster as remitted if infringer believed fair use doctrine applied) [17 U.S.C. §§ 401(d), 402(d)].

Under former 17 U.S.C. §§ 401 and 402, a notice of copyright was required to be placed on publicly distributed copies of a protected work and on publicly distributed phonorecords. The requirement was deleted by the Berne Convention Implementation Act of 1988 [Pub. L. No. 100-568], which took effect on March 1, 1989, the date on which the Berne Convention entered into force with respect to the United States [Pub. L. No. 100-568 § 13(a)]. Any cause of action arising under the Federal Copyright Act before March 1, 1989, is governed by the provisions of the Federal Copyright Act in effect when the cause of action arose [Pub. L. No. 100-568 § 13(b)].

[2] Notice of Copyright on Copies or Phonorecords Publicly Distributed Before March 1, 1989

With respect to copies and phonorecords publicly distributed by authority of the copyright owner before March 1, 1989, but after 1977, the omission of the copyright notice described in 17 U.S.C. §§ 401-403 will not invalidate the copyright if the omission occurs only on a small number of copies or phonorecords distributed publicly, or if the omission is the result of an unauthorized removal of a notice, or if the copyright owner registers the work within five years after the publication without notice and a reasonable effort is made to add notice to all copies or phonorecords distributed publicly [17 U.S.C. § 405(a); see Lloyd v. Schlag (9th Cir. 1989) 884 F.2d 409, 415 ; Lifshitz v. Walter Drake & Sons, Inc. (9th Cir. 1986) 806 F.2d 1426, 1432-1433 ; see also 17 U.S.C. § 406 (governing the effect of error in the name of the copyright owner or date contained in pre-Berne Convention Act notices)]. In addition, copyright protection has been statutorily restored for motion pictures that were first fixed or published without the required copyright notice in the territory of a North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) country after January 1, 1978, and before March 1, 1989, under certain circumstances [see 17 U.S.C. § 104A; see also 37 C.F.R. § 201.31 (procedure for restoring copyright protection)].

[3] Preregistration of Unpublished Work

It is possible to preregister an unpublished work that is being prepared for commercial distribution, if the work is in a class that has had a history of infringement prior to authorized commercial distribution [see 17 U.S.C. § 408(f)(1),(2)]. The Register of Copyrights has determined that the following classes of works are eligible for preregistration [37 C.F.R. § 202.16(b)(1)]:

- Motion pictures.
- Sound recordings.
- Musical compositions.
- Literary works being prepared for publication in book form.
- Computer programs (including video games).
- Advertising or marketing photographs.

Preregistration enables the registrant to commence an action based on infringement occurring before normal registration [see 17 U.S.C. § 411(a)]. However, as an incentive for the copyright owner to follow up with a normal registration, an action based on preregistration will be subject to mandatory dismissal insofar as the action concerns infringement occurring before publication or within two months after publication, unless the copyright owner has completed a normal registration within either three months after publication of the work or one month after the copyright owner learned of the infringement [see 17 U.S.C. § 408(f)(4); see also 17 U.S.C. § 412 (copyright owner may not recover statutory damages or attorney's fees, in action based on preregistration, unless normal registration has been completed within stated period)].

In addition, any person who willfully infringes a copyright by the distribution of a work being prepared for commercial distribution, by making it available on a computer network accessible to members of the public, is guilty of an offense, if the person knew or should have known that the work was intended for commercial distribution [17 U.S.C. § 506(a)(1)(C)].

While preregistration of a work offers advantages to a copyright owner [see 17 U.S.C. §§ 408(f), 411, 412], preregistration of a work does not constitute prima facie evidence of the validity of the copyright or of the facts stated in the application for preregistration or in the preregistration record. The fact that a work has been preregistered does not create any presumption that the Copyright Office will register the work on submission of an application for registration [37 C.F.R. § 202.16(c)(13)].

For discussion of preregistration of an unpublished work, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 103A, Copyrights (Matthew Bender).

[4] Registration of Published Work

The owner of a copyright or of any exclusive right in a published work may register a claim to that work in the Copyright Office by depositing copies of the work together with an application and deposit fee [see 17 U.S.C. §§

408-410]. Registration is not a condition of copyright protection [17 U.S.C. § 408(a)], except in some instances to preserve a pre-Berne Convention Act copyright that otherwise would be invalidated because of omission of the required copyright notice [see 17 U.S.C. § 405(a)(2)].

However, registration, or preregistration in an appropriate case [see § 349.26[3]], usually is a prerequisite to bringing an infringement suit [17 U.S.C. § 411(a); *Reed Elsevier, Inc. v. Muchnick (2010) -- U.S. --, 130 S. Ct. 1237, 176 L. Ed. 2d 18, 2010 U.S. LEXIS 2202, at 6 (insofar as section 411(a) requires registration, that requirement is merely precondition to commencing copyright infringement action; copyright holder's failure to comply with that requirement does not restrict federal court's subject-matter jurisdiction over infringement claims involving unregistered works)]. A plaintiff who brings an infringement action under the Copyright Act may not recover statutory damages or attorney's fees for (1) any infringement of copyright in an unpublished work commenced before the effective date of its registration, unless preregistration requirements were met [see § 349.26[3]]; or (2) any infringement of copyright commenced after first publication of the work and before the effective date of its registration, unless registration is made within three months after the first publication of the work [17 U.S.C. § 412]. The first act of infringement in a series of ongoing infringements of the same kind marks the commencement of one continuing infringement under 17 U.S.C. § 412 [Derek Andrew, Inc. v. Poof Apparel Corp. (9th Cir. 2008) 528 F.3d 696, 701-702 (plaintiff was not entitled to recover either statutory damages or attorney's fees from defendant that began its infringing activity--commercially distributing its garments bearing "hang tags" that imitated copyrighted design of tags used on garments distributed by plaintiff--before effective date of plaintiff's copyright registration and repeated same act after that date each time defendant distributed garments bearing infringing tags; fact that defendant distributed different kinds of garments each time was irrelevant)].

Limited exceptions exist to the requirement of registration as a prerequisite to a copyright infringement action. An action brought for violation of the author's rights under 17 U.S.C. § 106A (relating to the attribution and related rights of the author of a work of visual art [see Ch. 57, Art, § 57.52[4]]) may be instituted without regard to registration [17 U.S.C. § 411(a)]. In addition, in the case of a work consisting of sounds, images, or both, the first fixation of which is made simultaneously with its transmission, the copyright owner, either before or after that fixation takes place, may institute an action for infringement [see 17 U.S.C. § 501] if the copyright owner does both of the following [17 U.S.C. § 411(c)]:

- Serves notice on the infringer, not less than 48 hours before the fixation, identifying the work and the specific time and source of its first transmission and declaring an intention to secure copyright in the work; and

- Registers the work, if required by 17 U.S.C. § 411(a), within three months after its first transmission.

For discussion of copyright registration procedures and forms for use in registering a copyright, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 103A, Copyrights (Matthew Bender); see also Nimmer on Copyright, Ch. 7, Statutory Formalities , and Ch. 21, Copyright Office Forms and Related Materials (Matthew Bender).

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Federal Copyright Law

31-349 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 349.27

§ 349.27 Infringement of Copyright

[1] Violation of Exclusive Rights

[a] Direct Infringement

Anyone who violates any of the exclusive rights of the copyright owner [see 17 U.S.C. §§ 106-119; see also § 349.22[1]], or who imports copies or phonorecords into the United States in violation of 17 U.S.C. § 602, is an infringer of the copyright [17 U.S.C. §§ 501(a), 511(a)].

There are three types of copyright infringement [Ellison v. Robertson (9th Cir. 2004) 357 F.3d 1072, 1076]:

- Direct infringement.
- Contributory infringement [see [b], below].
- Vicarious infringement [see [c], below].

To prove a claim of direct copyright infringement, the owner of the copyright must show that the defendant directly violated one or more of the plaintiff's exclusive rights under the Copyright Act [A&M Records, Inc. v. Napster, Inc. (9th Cir. 2001) 239 F.3d 1004, 1013, 57 U.S.P.Q.2d 1729].

When a widely shared service or product is used to commit infringement, it may be impossible to enforce rights in the protected work effectively against all direct infringers, and the only practical alternative may be to go against the distributor of the copying device for indirect liability on a theory of contributory infringement or vicarious infringement. One infringes contributorily by intentionally inducing or encouraging direct infringement, or infringes vicariously by profiting from direct infringement while declining to exercise a right to stop or limit it. Although the Copyright Act does not expressly render anyone liable for infringement committed by another, these doctrines of secondary liability emerged from common law principles and are well established in the law [MGM Studios, Inc. v. Grokster, Ltd. (2005) 545 U.S. 913, 929-930, 125 S. Ct. 2764, 162 L. Ed. 2d 781 ; see [b], [c], below].

[b] Contributory Infringement

One who distributes a device with the object of promoting its use to infringe copyright, as shown by clear expression or other affirmative steps taken to foster infringement--that is, inducement--is liable for the resulting acts of infringement by third parties. Mere knowledge of infringing potential or of actual infringing uses is not enough to subject a distributor to liability, nor are ordinary acts incidental to product distribution, such as offering customers technical support or product updates, support liability in themselves. The rule of inducement premises liability on purposeful, culpable expression and conduct (and thus does nothing to compromise legitimate commerce or discourage innovation having a lawful promise) [MGM Studios, Inc. v. Grokster, Ltd. (2005) 545 U.S. 913, 936-937, 125 S. Ct. 2764, 162 L. Ed. 2d 781 ; see Perfect 10, Inc. v. Amazon.com, Inc. (9th Cir. 2007), 487 F.3d 701, 729 (defendant "could be held contributorily liable if it had knowledge that infringing ... images were available using its search engine, [and it] could take simple measures to prevent further damage to [plaintiff's] copyrighted works, and [it] failed to take such steps")].

The theory of contributory infringement can be summarily described by reference to rules for cases at the ends of the scale of pertinent activities. On one hand, if a thing is "good for nothing else" but infringement, there is no legitimate public interest in its uncontrolled availability, and there is no injustice in presuming or imputing an intent to infringe on the part of one who distributes it. On the other hand, the theory allows the equivocal conduct of distributing a thing having substantial legitimate usefulness as well as the potential for infringing use, as the theory limits liability to instances of more acute fault than the mere understanding that some users will undertake infringing activity [MGM Studios, Inc. v. Grokster, Ltd. (2005) 545 U.S. 913, 932-933, 125 S. Ct. 2764, 162 L. Ed. 2d 781] .

A credit card company cannot be said to materially contribute to copyright infringement by web site owners when the company processes credit card payments by cardholders to the infringing web sites in spite of having knowledge of the ongoing infringement, because the company has no direct connection to that infringement. In providing payment services, the credit card company in no way assists or enables internet users to locate infringing material, nor does the company distribute it. Although the credit card company can make it easier for web sites to profit from infringing activity, the issue is whether a defendant charged with contributory infringement somehow participated in reproduction, alteration, display, or distribution of copyrighted material--all of which can occur without payment [Perfect 10, Inc. v. Visa Int'l Serv. Ass'n (9th Cir. 2007) 494 F.3d 788, 796] .

While a credit card company might induce customers to use their cards to purchase goods and services, the company is not, by virtue of that inducement, guilty of specifically inducing infringement when the cards are used to buy copyrighted material from web sites providing content appropriated from the copyright holder, in the absence of "affirmative steps taken to foster infringement" [MGM Studios, Inc. v. Grokster, Ltd. (2005) 545 U.S. 913, 936-937, 125 S. Ct. 2764, 162 L. Ed. 2d 781] or other facts suggesting that the company promoted its payment system as a means to infringe [Perfect 10, Inc. v. Visa Int'l Serv. Ass'n (9th Cir. 2007) 494 F.3d 788, 800-801] .

[c] Vicarious Infringement

A defendant is vicariously liable for copyright infringement if the defendant enjoys a direct financial benefit from another's infringing activity and,having the right and ability to supervise the infringing activity, allows it to continue [A&M Records v. Napster, Inc. (9th Cir. 2001) 239 F.3d 1004, 1022, 57 U.S.P.Q.2d 1729].

When a credit card company becomes aware that its cards are being used to buy copyrighted material from web sites providing content appropriated from the copyright holder, no vicarious liability arises from the fact that the company has power to stop processing credit card payments to the infringing web sites, in the absence of proof that the company has the right and ability to control the infringing activity [Perfect 10, Inc. v. Visa Int'l Serv. Ass'n (9th Cir. 2007) 494 F.3d 788, 803-804 ("the mere ability to withdraw a financial 'carrot' does not create the 'stick' of 'right and ability to control' that vicarious infringement requires")].

[2] Inapplicability to Infringing Acts Occurring Outside United States

The Copyright Act does not apply extraterritorially to infringing acts that take place entirely outside the United States [Subafilms, Ltd. v. MGM-Pathe Communications (9th Cir. 1994) 24 F.3d 1088, 1095-1098 (citing, among other authority, Nimmer on Copyright, Ch. 12, Infringement Actions--Procedural Aspects (Matthew Bender)]. Furthermore, the Ninth Circuit has held that a defendant cannot be held liable under the Copyright Act for merely authorizing within the United States acts of infringement that occur entirely abroad [Subafilms, Ltd. v. MGM-Pathe Communications (9th Cir. 1994) 24 F.3d 1088, 1093-1095]. However, a copyright holder is entitled to recover profits flowing from the infringer's exploitation abroad of domestic acts of infringement [Los Angeles News Service v. Reuters Television Int'l, Ltd. (9th Cir. 1998) 149 F.3d 987, 992 ; see Los Angeles News Service v. Reuters Television Intern., Ltd. (9th Cir. 2003) 340 F.3d 926, 931-932 (holding that actual damages are not recoverable and clarifying that 1998 decision in same case actually held that profits are recoverable, even though that opinion spoke in terms of damages)].

[3] Civil Action for Infringement

[a] Commencement of Action

The legal or beneficial owner of any of the exclusive rights of copyright can, subject to the registration requirements of 17 U.S.C. § 411 (discussed in § 349.26[3] and [4]), institute an action for infringement of any of those rights committed while he or she is the owner [17 U.S.C. § 501(b)]. To do so, the owner, as plaintiff, must file a complaint in federal district court, which has original exclusive subject matter jurisdiction in copyright matters, and serve the defendant in accordance with the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure [see 28 U.S.C. §§ 1338 (jurisdiction), 1400 (venue)]. The court will require the plaintiff to serve notice of the action on any person whose interest is likely to be affected by a decision in the case. The court may require that notice be served on any person shown, by the records of the Copyright Office or otherwise, to have or claim an interest in the copyright. The court may require the joinder, and must permit the intervention, of any person having or claiming an interest in the copyright [17 U.S.C. § 501(b)]. For a complaint for infringement of copyright, see § 349.100.

The creator of a work for hire does not retain a beneficial interest under which the creator may sue for copyright infringement, unless there is an express contractual provision to the contrary [see Warren v. Fox Family Worldwide, Inc. (9th Cir. 2003) 328 F.3d 1136, 1144-1145]. However, a legal or beneficial owner of a copyright may assign the right to an accrued cause of action for copyright infringement, without any other copyright rights accompanying the assignment, to the creator of a work for hire, or to any other person; and such an assignee may sue on that cause of action for infringement [Silvers v. Sony Pictures Entertainment, Inc. (9th Cir. 2003) 330 F.3d 1204, 1206-1207, 1209].

A person who lacks standing to bring an infringement suit under the Copyright Act, but who complains of competitive injury stemming from acts of alleged copyright infringement, also lacks standing to bring suit on a claim under the Lanham Act or the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act, or under a state unfair competition law, if successful prosecution of the action would require determination of the underlying infringement claim [Sybersound Records, Inc. v. UAV Corp. (9th Cir. 2008) 517 F.3d 1137, 1141].

[b] Action Against Public Entities

For acts of infringement committed on or after November 15, 1990, any state, instrumentality of a state, or officer or employee of a state or instrumentality of a state acting in his or her official capacity can be sued as a defendant in a copyright infringement action [17 U.S.C. §§ 501(a), 511(a); Pub. L. No. 101-553 § 3, 104 Stat. 2749 (1990) (effective date)]. Neither U.S. Const., amend. XI, nor any other doctrine of sovereign immunity immunizes these individuals and entities from suit in federal court for acts of copyright infringement occurring on or after that date [17 U.S.C. § 511(a); Pub. L. No. 101-553, § 3, 104 Stat. 2749 (1990)]. For acts of infringement committed by these individuals and entities before November 15, 1990, the rule of sovereign immunity in the Ninth Circuit and elsewhere, barring suit against them, stands [see BV Engineering v. Univ. of Cal., Los Angeles (9th Cir. 1988) 858 F.2d 1394, 1400].

[4] Proof of Infringement

[a] Ownership and Copying

The elements required to be proven to establish infringement of copyright are ownership by the plaintiff of a valid copyright and copying by the defendant of the constituent original elements of the copyrighted work [Feist Pub. v. Rural Tel. Serv. (1991) 499 U.S. 340, 361, 111 S. Ct. 1282, 113 L. Ed. 2d 358 ; Pasillas v. McDonald's Corp. (9th Cir. 1991) 927 F.2d 440, 442]. "Copying" is shorthand for the violation of any of the copyright owner's exclusive rights described in 17 U.S.C. §§ 106-118 [see S.O.S., Inc. v. Payday, Inc. (9th Cir. 1989) 886 F.2d 1081, 1085 ; see also MAI Systems Corp. v. Peak Computer, Inc. (9th Cir. 1994) 991 F.2d 511, 519 (loading software into computer RAM creates a "copy")]. In cases involving licensees, assignees, and other successors in interest to the copyright, the plaintiff may also be required to show the chain of title from the original copyright owner [see Bell v. Combined Registry Co. (N.D. Ill. 1975) 397 F. Supp. 1241, 1244].

The plaintiff has the burden of proof on both elements of the prima facie case [see Walker v. University Books, Inc. (9th Cir. 1979) 602 F.2d 859, 862]. However, the copyright registration certificate, if made within five years after first publication of the work, provides prima facie evidence of the validity of the copyright and of the facts stated in the certificate and shifts the burden to the defendant to demonstrate why the copyright is not valid [see, e.g., Entertainment Research Group, Inc. v. Genesis Creative Group, Inc. (9th Cir. 1998) 122 F.3d 1211, 1218 (defendant overcame prima facie proof of validity of copyright by presenting evidence that plaintiff's work was not sufficiently original to merit copyright protection)]. The evidentiary weight to be accorded a certificate of registration issued more than five years after first publication of the work is within the district court's discretion [17 U.S.C. § 410(c); Bibbero Systems, Inc. v. Colwell Systems, Inc. (9th Cir. 1990) 893 F.2d 1104, 1106].

For an unauthorized use of a copyrighted work to be actionable, there must be substantial similarity between the plaintiff's work and the defendant's work [see [b], below]. This means that even when the fact of copying is conceded, no legal consequences will follow from that fact unless the copying was substantial. A use is trivial--that is, not substantial--only if the average audience would not recognize the appropriation [Fisher v. Dees (9th Cir. 1986) 794 F.2d 432, 434 ("[A] taking is considered de minimis only if it is so meager and fragmentary that the average audience would not recognize the appropriation.")]. In other words, the general test for substantial similarity looks to the response of the average audience, or ordinary observer, to determine whether a use is infringing [see, e.g., Cavalier v. Random House, Inc. (9th Cir. 2002) 297 F.3d 815, 822]. To say that a use is trivial because no audience would recognize the appropriation is thus to say that the works are not substantially similar [Newton v. Diamond (9th Cir. 2003) 349 F.3d 591].

[b] Proof of Copying by Circumstantial Evidence

Because direct evidence of copying is rarely available, the plaintiff can establish this element through circumstantial evidence by demonstrating that [Pasillas v. McDonald's Corp. (9th Cir. 1991) 927 F.2d 440, 442 ; Baxter v. MCA, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 812 F.2d 421, 423]:

- The defendant had access to the allegedly infringed work prior to creation of the defendant's work, and

- The two works are substantially similar in both idea and expression of that idea.

In the Ninth Circuit, once the plaintiff demonstrates access and substantial similarity, the burden shifts to the defendant to prove that the latter's work was not copied but independently created [Kamar Intern., Inc. v. Russ Berrie and Co. (9th Cir. 1981) 657 F.2d 1059, 1062 ; see Transgo, Inc. v. Ajac Transmission Parts Corp. (9th Cir. 1985) 768 F.2d 1001, 1018]. This analysis has been criticized in at least one other circuit on the ground that proof of access and substantial similarity merely creates a rebuttable presumption of copying that, once established, shifts the burden of going forward, rather than the burden of persuasion, to the defendant. Under this view, if the defendant successfully rebuts the presumption, the fact finder then weighs all the evidence, keeping in mind that the plaintiff has the ultimate burden of persuasion on the issue of copying [see, e.g., Keeler Brass Co. v. Continental Brass Co. (4th Cir. 1988) 862 F.2d 1063, 1066].

[c] Access and Substantial Similarity

Proof of access can be established by showing that the defendant had a reasonable opportunity to view the copyrighted work [see Sid & Marty Krofft Television Productions, Inc. v. McDonald's Corp. (9th Cir. 1977) 562 F.2d 1157, 1162-1163]. Where there is no direct evidence of access, circumstantial evidence can be used to prove access, either by establishing a chain of events linking the plaintiff's work and the defendant's access or by showing that the plaintiff's work has been widely disseminated [Three Boys Music Corp. v. Bolton (9th Cir. 2000) 212 F.3d 477, 482 , citing Nimmer On Copyright, Ch. 13, Infringement Actions -Substantive Aspects, § 13.02[A] (Matthew Bender); e.g., Art Attacks Ink, LLC v. MGA Entm't Inc. (9th Cir. 2009) 581 F.3d 1138, 1143-1145 (plaintiff failed to show either sufficient chain of events or wide dissemination of protected work)].

Proof of substantial similarity can be established by showing literal similarity between the two works. However, duplication or near identity does not necessarily prove infringement and is not necessarily required in order to show infringement. The plaintiff must prove not only a substantial similarity of the general ideas involved in the two works, but also a substantial similarity in the expression of those ideas [see Sid & Marty Krofft Television v. McDonald's Corp. (9th Cir. 1977) 562 F.2d 1157, 1164].

In assessing the amount of proof required to show access and substantial similarity, the Ninth Circuit has adopted the "inverse ratio rule" [Shaw v. Lindheim (9th Cir. 1990) 919 F.2d 1353, 1361-1362 ; but see Aliotti v. R. Dakin & Co. (9th Cir. 1987) 831 F.2d 898, 902 (questioning, in dictum, the continuing viability of the inverse ratio rule)]. Under the rule, when the quantum of proof of access is very high, the degree of similarity required to be shown between the plaintiff's work and the defendant's work may be relatively low. For example, if clear and convincing evidence of access is presented, the quantum of proof required to show substantial similarity may be lower than when access is shown merely by a preponderance of the evidence. Conversely, a very high degree of similarity is required in order to dispense with proof of access. However, no amount of proof of access will suffice to show copying if there are no similarities between the works at issue, because access without similarity cannot create an inference of copying [Shaw v. Lindheim (9th Cir. 1990) 919 F.2d 1353, 1361-1362 ; Sid & Marty Krofft Television v. McDonald's Corp. (9th Cir. 1977) 562 F.2d 1157, 1172].

Similarity is a factual issue to be determined by the trier of fact. In determining whether the plaintiff has proved substantial similarity, the federal courts have adopted a bifurcated test. As originally formulated in the Ninth Circuit, the first, or extrinsic, test involved a determination of whether there is a substantial similarity of the "general ideas" in the two works involved. If the extrinsic test was satisfied, then the trier of fact applied the second, or intrinsic, test to determine whether a reasonable, ordinary person would find substantial similarity in the expression of those ideas, without the aid of any analytical dissection [see Sid & Marty Krofft Television Productions, Inc. v. McDonald's Corp. (9th Cir. 1977) 562 F.2d 1157, 1164] .

In later cases, Ninth Circuit panels have recharacterized the difference between the extrinsic and intrinsic tests, at least as applied to literary works such as books, scripts, plays, and motions pictures. According to these later decisions, the extrinsic test can no longer be seen as a test for mere similarity of ideas. The factors in the extrinsic test now include virtually every element that can be considered concrete in a literary work [Shaw v. Lindheim (9th Cir. 1990) 919 F.2d 1353, 1357]. These elements include plot, themes, dialogue, mood, setting, pace, characters, and sequence [Shaw v. Lindheim (9th Cir. 1990) 919 F.2d 1353, 1356-1357 ; e.g., Funky Films, Inc. v. Time Warner Entm't Co. (9th Cir. 2006) 462 F.3d 1072, 1078-1082 ("At first blush, these apparent similarities in plot appear significant; however, an actual reading of the two works reveals greater, more significant differences and few real similarities at the levels of plot, characters, themes, mood, pace, dialogue, or sequence of events.")]. Because the criteria incorporated into the extrinsic test encompass virtually all objective manifestations of creativity, the two tests, in the case of literary works, are more sensibly described as objective and subjective analyses of expression, inasmuch as they have strayed from the Krofft division between expression and ideas [Shaw v. Lindheim (9th Cir. 1990) 919 F.2d 1353, 1357]. Under this latter view, the intrinsic test is a subjective test that focuses on whether the ordinary, reasonable audience would recognize the defendant's work as a dramatization or picturization of the plaintiff's work, i.e., whether an average reasonable person would find substantial similarity between the two expressions based on the total concept and feel of the two works [see Kouf v. Walt Disney Pictures & Television (9th Cir. 1994) 16 F.3d 1042, 1045 ; Shaw v. Lindheim (9th Cir. 1990) 919 F.2d 1353, 1357].

For the purposes of a defense summary judgment motion, only the extrinsic test is applicable. If the plaintiff can satisfy the extrinsic test, then a triable issue of fact regarding substantial similarity is presented, and summary judgment must be denied [see Kouf v. Walt Disney Pictures & Television (9th Cir. 1994) 16 F.3d 1042, 1045 ; Shaw v. Lindheim (9th Cir. 1990) 919 F.2d 1353, 1359-1361]. If the plaintiff cannot satisfy the extrinsic test, then the defendant is entitled to summary judgment [see Kouf v. Walt Disney Pictures & Television (9th Cir. 1994) 16 F.3d 1042, 1045].

Substantial similarity analysis is only germane in cases in which the accused infringer denies that he or she copied the plaintiff's work; it is not relevant when the defendant admits copying the plaintiff's work. Even a small amount of copying may constitute an infringement. However, the amount and substantiality of the work copied may be relevant to the defense of fair use [see Norse v. Henry Holt and Co. (9th Cir. 1993) 991 F.2d 563, 566]. For discussion of the fair use doctrine, see § 349.27[6][b].

[d] Displaying Work on Web Site

One of the exclusive rights of a copyright owner [see § 349.22[1]] is the right "to display the copyrighted work publicly" [17 U.S.C. § 106(5)]. If a person using Internet browser software on the person's own computer can make a copyrighted work viewable on that computer by means of a connection, over the Internet, to another computer, then courts in the Ninth Circuit may apply a so-called "server test" to determine whose computer "displays" the work, and thereby identify who, if anyone, is chargeable with infringement. A "server" is a computer connected to the Internet for the purpose of locating specified data that is stored in the computer's memory or in a separate storage device and transmitting ("serving") that data to another computer also connected to the Internet, pursuant to a request sent to the server by that computer.

When a server stores and transmits a copy of a work, the server owner "displays" the work, for purposes of copyright law [Perfect 10, Inc. v. Amazon.com, Inc. (9th Cir. 2007) 508 F.3d 1146, 1159-1160 ; see § 349.27[1][a]]. However, the server owner may raise the defense of fair use [Perfect 10, Inc. v. Amazon.com, Inc. (9th Cir. 2007) 508 F.3d 1146, 1163, 1168 (display of thumbnail images on search engine website could have been fair use); see § 349.27[6][b]].

On the other hand, when a server stores and transmits, not a copy of a work, but only the Internet address of another server--what is commonly called a "link" (or "hypertext link")--where a copy of a work is stored, this does not constitute "displaying" the work. The coded instructions of the link do not themselves cause infringing images to appear on a user's computer screen, but merely give the location of the stored image to the user's browser. Only if the browser then interacts with the indicated server, which then transmits its stored image back to the browser, is the (possibly infringing) image "displayed" when it appears on the user's computer screen [Perfect 10, Inc. v. Amazon.com, Inc. (9th Cir. 2007) 508 F.3d 1146, 1161]. In this situation, it would be irrelevant if the user's perception was that the image appearing on the user's computer screen came from the initial server (which provided only the link) instead of the ultimate server

(where the image actually was stored). The Copyright Act, unlike the Trademark Act, does not protect a copyright holder against acts that cause consumer confusion [Perfect 10, Inc. v. Amazon.com, Inc. (9th Cir. 2007) 508 F.3d 1146, 1161].

Another of the exclusive rights of a copyright owner is the right "to distribute copies ... of the copyrighted work to the public" [17 U.S.C. § 106(3)]. Again, by applying the server test, a court may determine whether a given computer actually is used to "distribute copies" or merely provides a link to another computer where a copy of the work is stored [Perfect 10, Inc. v. Amazon.com, Inc. (9th Cir. 2007) 508 F.3d 1146, 1162 ("search engine communicates HTML instructions that tell a user's browser where to find full-size images on a website publisher's computer, but engine does not itself distribute copies of the infringing photographs. It is the website publisher's computer that distributes copies of the images by transmitting the photographic image electronically to the user's computer")].

The server test may lead a court to the conclusion that a server owner is not liable for direct infringement. However, the server owner could be liable for contributory infringement [Perfect 10, Inc. v. Amazon.com, Inc. (9th Cir. 2007) 508 F.3d 1146, 1172 (search engine could be held contributorily liable if it had knowledge that infringing images were available using its search engine, could take simple measures to prevent further damage to copyrighted works, and failed to take such steps); see § 349.27[1][b]] or vicarious infringement [Perfect 10, Inc. v. Amazon.com, Inc. (9th Cir. 2007) 508 F.3d 1146, 1175 ; see § 349.27[1][c]]. In such a case, however, the server owner might be eligible to raise one of the safe-harbor defenses created in the Digital Millennium Copyright Act [Perfect 10, Inc. v. Amazon.com, Inc. (9th Cir. 2007) 508 F.3d 1146, 1172 ; see § 349.27[6][d]].

[5] Remedies for Infringement

[a] Availability

The Copyright Act of 1976 provides a variety of civil and criminal remedies for infringement of copyright [see 17 U.S.C. §§ 502-511], the highlights of which are discussed immediately below.

[b] Damages

In an action for copyright infringement, the copyright owner is entitled to recover the actual damages suffered as a result of the infringement, plus any of the infringer's profits that are attributable to the infringement and are not taken into account in computing the actual damages [17 U.S.C. §§ 504(b), 511(b); see Jarvis v. K2 Inc. (9th Cir. 2007), 486 F.3d 526, 534 (district court's calculations of damages were "entirely consistent" with 17 U.S.C. § 504(b) and case law)]. Actual damages are to be measured by the extent to which the market value of the copyrighted work has been injured or destroyed by the infringement [Frank Music Corp. v. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Inc. (9th Cir. 1985) 772 F.2d 505, 512 (market value is what willing buyer would have been reasonably required to pay to willing seller for copyrighted work)]. Actual damages must be suffered "as a result of the infringement," and recoverable profits must be "attributable to the infringement" [17 U.S.C. § 504(b)]. From the statutory language, it is apparent that a causal link between the infringement and the monetary relief sought is a predicate to recovery of both actual damages and profits. The plaintiff must establish this causal connection, and this requirement is akin to the tort requirement for proof of causation and damages [Polar Bear Prods., Inc. v. Timex Corp. (9th Cir. 2004) 384 F.3d 700, 708 (award of indirect profits vacated because plaintiff failed to prove causal connection)].

When a defendant proprietor of an establishment claims its activities were exempt under 17 U.S.C. § 110(5), but a court can find no reasonable grounds for believing the use of a copyrighted work was exempt under that subsection, the plaintiff is entitled to an additional award of two times the amount of the license fee that the proprietor should have paid for the use during the preceding period (up to three years) [17 U.S.C. § 504(d)].

For an infringement plaintiff who failed to register his or her copyright before infringement, 17 U.S.C. § 504(b) provides the sole means to obtain monetary remedies, namely, the indirect profits of the infringer that are attributable to the infringement (and are not taken into account in computing actual damages) [Mackie v. Rieser (9th Cir. 2002) 296 F.3d 909, 914 ; see 17 U.S.C. § 412] (statutory damages under 17 U.S.C. § 504(c) are not available for infringement before registration, except when requirements for preregistration were met); see also § 329.26[3]]. On its face, that subsection does not differentiate between "direct profits"--those that are generated by selling an infringing product--and "indirect profits"--revenue that has a more attenuated nexus to the infringement. Nor does it discuss whether tort principles, such as causation, should play a role in determining whether the infringer's profits were a result of the infringing act. Nevertheless, the Ninth Circuit holds that the copyright owner must establish the existence of a causal link before indirect-profits damages can be recovered [Mackie v. Rieser (9th Cir. 2002) 296 F.3d 909, 914].

Willful infringers may not deduct income taxes [L.P. Larson, Jr., Co. v. Wm. Wrigley, Jr., Co. (1928) 277 U.S. 97, 99-100, 48 S. Ct. 449, 72 L. Ed. 800], but the Supreme Court has left open the possibility that nonwillful infringers could deduct their income taxes from the infringing profits. The Ninth Circuit holds that nonwillful infringers may deduct income taxes, to the extent that income taxes were actually paid, from their infringing profits [Three Boys Music Corp. v. Bolton (9th Cir. 2000) 212 F.3d 477, 487-488 (but net operating loss may not be deducted); accord, In Design v. K-Mart Apparel Corp. (2d Cir. 1994) 13 F.3d 559, 567 ; contra, Schnadig Corp. v. Gaines Mfg. Co., Inc. (6th Cir. 1980) 620 F.2d 1166, 1169-1170].

Alternatively, the plaintiff in the infringement suit may elect, at any time before final judgment is rendered, to recover an award of statutory damages rather than actual damages and profits. The statutory damages with respect to all infringements involved in the action with respect to any one work are to be not less than $750 nor more than $30,000, as the court considers just [17 U.S.C. §§ 504(c)(1), 511(b); see 17 U.S.C. § 412 (statutory damages are available only if copyright was registered or if unpublished work was preregistered); Mackie v. Rieser (9th Cir. 2002) 296 F.3d 909, 912]. The court has wide discretion within the statutory maximum and minimum dollar figures to determine the amount of statutory damages to be awarded [Peer Intern. Corp. v. Pausa Records, Inc. (9th Cir. 1990) 909 F.2d 1332, 1336 ; see F.W. Woolworth Co. v. Contemporary Arts (1952) 344 U.S. 228, 231-232, 73 S. Ct. 222, 97 L. Ed. 276, 280 (construing similar statutory damages provision in 1909 Copyright Act)]. Furthermore, statutory damages are recoverable regardless of whether there is adequate evidence of actual damage suffered by the plaintiff or of profits reaped by the defendant. The trial court's award will be overturned only for an abuse of discretion [Los Angeles News Service v. Reuters Television Intern., Ltd. (9th Cir. 1998) 149 F.3d 987, 996 (upholding maximum statutory damages award); Peer Intern. Corp. v. Pausa Records, Inc. (9th Cir. 1990) 909 F.2d 1332, 1336 (upholding maximum statutory damages award of $4 million for 80 infringements even though plaintiff suffered nominal damages; calculation based on former maximum statutory award of $50,000 for willful infringement); Harris v. Emus Records Corp. (9th Cir. 1984) 734 F.2d 1329, 1335].

If the court finds the infringement to have been willful, statutory damages may be increased to not more than $150,000 [17 U.S.C. §§ 504(c)(2), 511(b)]. In this context, neither the 1976 Act nor its legislative history defines "willful." In the Ninth Circuit, willful infringement is defined as knowledge by a defendant that itsconduct constitutes an act of infringement [Peer Intern. Corp. v. Pausa Records, Inc. (9th Cir. 1990) 909 F.2d 1332, 1335, 1335 n.3, 1336]. To refute evidence of willful infringement, a defendant must not only establish its good faith belief in the innocence of its conduct, but it must also show that it was reasonable in holding that belief [Peer Intern. Corp. v. Pausa Records, Inc. (9th Cir. 1990) 909 F.2d 1332, 1336].

If the court finds the infringement to have been made by a person not aware that his or her acts caused an infringement, statutory damages may be reduced to $200 [17 U.S.C. §§ 504(c)(2), 511(b)].

There is no statutory right to a jury trial when a copyright owner elects to recover statutory damages. However, the Seventh Amendment provides a right to a jury trial on all issues pertinent to an award of statutory damages, including the amount, under 17 U.S.C. § 504(c) [Feltner v. Columbia Pictures Television, Inc. (1998) 523 U.S. 340, 118 S. Ct. 1279, 1283-1284, 1287-1288, 140 L. Ed. 2d 438].

[c] Costs and Attorney's Fees

The court in its discretion may allow the recovery of full costs by or against any party (other than the United States or an officer thereof); and, except as otherwise provided by the Copyright Act, the court may also award reasonable attorney's fees to the prevailing party as part of the costs [17 U.S.C. §§ 505, 511(b); see 17 U.S.C. § 412 (attorney's fees are available only if copyright was registered or if unpublished work was preregistered); Mackie v. Rieser (9th Cir. 2002) 296 F.3d 909, 912 (same)]. Prevailing-party status turns on whether there has been a material alteration of the legal relationship of the parties in consequence of the action respecting which attorney's fees are claimed. When there has been no material alteration of the parties' legal relationship--for instance, after the plaintiff has taken a voluntary dismissal without prejudice--there is no "prevailing" party, hence no party is entitled to attorney's fees [Cadkin v. Loose (9th Cir. 2009) 569 F.3d 1142, 1144-1145 ("Because the plaintiffs in this lawsuit remained free to refile their copyright claims against the defendants in federal court following their voluntary dismissal of the complaint, we hold the defendants are not prevailing parties and thus not entitled to the attorney's fees the district court awarded them"), overruling Corcoran v. Columbia Broad. Sys., Inc. (9th Cir. 1941) 121 F.2d 575, 576] .

Historically, the Ninth Circuit had established a dual standard, awarding attorney's fees to a prevailing plaintiff as a matter of course while requiring a finding of bad faith or frivolity on the part of a plaintiff before awarding attorney's fees to a prevailing defendant [see, e.g., McCulloch v. Albert E. Price, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 823 F.2d 316, 322]. However, the United States Supreme Court subsequently rejected this dual standard and held that the standard for awarding attorney's fees is the same for both prevailing plaintiffs and prevailing defendants, and that an attorney's fee award to either prevailing party is subject to the trial court's discretion [Fogerty v. Fantasy, Inc. (1994) 510 U.S. 517, 534, 114 S. Ct. 1023, 127 L. Ed. 2d 455); see Mattel, Inc. v. Walking Mountain Prods. (9th Cir. 2003) 353 F.3d 792, 816 (regarding award of fees to defendant: "Under the Copyright Act, the question is whether a successful defense of the action furthered the purposes of the Act, not whether a fee award would do so.")].

The United States Supreme Court identified the following nonexclusive list of factors to guide the award or denial of attorney's fees [Fogerty v. Fantasy, Inc. (1994) 510 U.S. 517, 534 n.19, 114 S. Ct. 1023, 127 L. Ed. 2d 455]:

- Frivolousness.
- Motivation.
- Objective unreasonableness (both in the factual and in the legal components of the case).
- The need in particular circumstances to advance considerations of compensation and deterrence.

The Ninth Circuit has added the following as additional considerations [Ets-Hokin v. Skyy Spirits, Inc. (9th Cir. 2003) 323 F.3d 763, 766 ; Fantasy, Inc. v. Fogerty (9th Cir. 1996) 94 F.3d 553, 559-560]:

- The degree of success obtained.
- The purposes of the Copyright Act.
- Whether the chilling effect of attorney's fees may be too great or impose an inequitable burden on an impecunious plaintiff.

When a party prevails on both a copyright claim and a noncopyright claim, the court should first decide whether the copyright and noncopyright claims are related. If they are, then the court should proceed to compute a reasonable fee award. If the court determines that the copyright and noncopyright claims are not related, the prevailing party cannot recover fees for the noncopyright claim, but the court must attempt to arrive at a fair apportionment and then compute a reasonable fee award. There is no precise rule or formula for making these determinations. For example, the court may attempt to identify specific hours that should be eliminated, or it may simply reduce the total award to account for the limited success. The court necessarily has discretion in making this equitable judgment [Traditional Cat Ass'n v. Gilbreath (9th Cir. 2003) 340 F.3d 829, 834-835] .

[d] Interest

Prejudgment interest is a generally available remedy, and its application in a particular case hinges on whether such an award would further the statute's purpose. Prejudgment interest may be necessary in some cases, in order to effectuate the legislative purpose of making copyright holders whole and removing incentives for copyright infringement. The ability to recover multiple forms of remedies does not render prejudgment interest superfluous. Frequently, a copyright plaintiff can only recover one type of remedy, be it actual damages or indirect profits, and the statutory availability of both remedies does not mitigate harm caused by the defendant's delay in making reparations--a harm that the remedy of prejudgment interest is uniquely tailored to address [Polar Bear Prods., Inc. v. Timex Corp. (9th Cir. 2004) 384 F.3d 700, 718].

[e] Injunctive and Impounding Relief

A plaintiff in an infringement action, in addition to obtaining damages for an infringement, may obtain temporary and final injunctive relief to prevent or restrain infringement of a copyright [see 17 U.S.C. §§ 502, 511(b); see Fed. R.Civ. P., Rule 65 (injunctions generally); see, e.g., LGS Architects, Inc. v. Concordia Homes (9th Cir. 2006) 434 F.3d 1150, 1155-1157 ; Dr. Seuss Enters., L.P. v. Penguin Books USA, Inc. (9th Cir. 1997) 109 F.3d 1394, 1403-1406, 42 U.S.P.Q.2d 1184] . Registration generally is a jurisdictional prerequisite to a suit for copyright infringement [see 17 U.S.C. § 411; see also § 349.26[4]], but that rule does not limit the remedies that a court may grant. Rather, the Copyright Act gives courts broad authority to issue injunctive relief [see 17 U.S.C. § 502(a)]. Once a court has jurisdiction over an action for infringement under 17 U.S.C. § 411 with respect to a registered copyright, the court may grant injunctive relief to restrain infringement of an unregistered copyright that the owner seeks to protect in the same action [Perfect 10, Inc. v. Amazon.com, Inc. (9th Cir. 2007), 487 F.3d 701, 710] .

Additionally, at any time while an infringement action is pending, the court may order the impounding, on such terms as it may deem reasonable, of (1) all copies or phonorecords claimed to have been made or used in violation of the exclusive right of the copyright owner; (2) all plates, molds, matrices, masters, tapes, film negatives, or other articles by means of which such copies or phonorecords may be reproduced; and (3) records documenting the manufacture, sale, or receipt of things involved in any the violation, provided that any records seized must be taken into the custody of the court [17 U.S.C. §§ 503(a)(1), 511(b)]. As part of a final judgment or decree, the court may order the destruction or other reasonable disposition of all copies or phonorecords found to have been made or used in violation of the copyright owner's exclusive rights, and of all plates, molds, matrices, masters, tapes, film negatives, or other articles by means of which such copies or phonorecords may be reproduced [17 U.S.C. §§ 503(b), 511(b)].

Preliminary injunctive relief is available to a copyright owner that demonstrates either (1) a combination of probable success on the merits and the possibility of irreparable harm, or (2) that serious questions are raised and the balance of hardships tips in its favor. These two formulations represent two points on a sliding scale in which the required degree of irreparable harm increases as the probability of success decreases [A&M Records, Inc. v. Napster, Inc. (9th Cir. 2001) 239 F.3d 1004, 1013] . In order to demonstrate likely success on the merits, the copyright owner must necessarily demonstrate that defenses available to the alleged infringer--such as fair use [see § 349.27[6][b]] or the Online Copyright Infringement Liability Limitation Act [17 U.S.C. § 512; see § 349.27[6][d]]--can be overcome. This burden is properly placed on the copyright owner seeking to demonstrate entitlement to the extraordinary remedy of a preliminary injunction at an early stage of the litigation, before the defendant has had the opportunity to undertake extensive discovery or develop defenses. However, because the defendant in an infringement action has the burden of proving an affirmative defense such as fair use, the defendant is obliged to introduce evidence to support the defense, in response to the copyright owner's request for preliminary relief. The copyright owner then must show a likelihood of success by challenging the alleged infringer's evidence [Perfect 10, Inc. v. Amazon.com, Inc. (9th Cir. 2007), 487 F.3d 701, 714-715] .

The plaintiff may take an interlocutory appeal from the district court's denial of a preliminary injunction [28 U.S.C. § 1292(a)(1)]. In that event, the appeal is not rendered moot by the defendant's voluntary termination of the infringing activity unless "it is absolutely clear that the ... [infringing activity] could not reasonably be expected to recur" [Adarand Constructors, Inc. v. Slater (2000) 528 U.S. 216, 222, 120 S. Ct. 722, 145 L. Ed. 2d 650 (emphasis in original; internal quotation marks omitted); LGS Architects, Inc. v. Concordia Homes (9th Cir. 2006) 434 F.3d 1150, 1153-1154].

The plaintiff seeking a preliminary injunction must post a bond for the payment of costs and damages incurred by a party who is later found to have been wrongfully enjoined [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 65(c)]. A prevailing defendant then may have the bond executed in its favor and recover damages, including lost profits, up to the amount of the bond [Nintendo of America v. Lewis Galoob Toys (9th Cir. 1994) 16 F.3d 1032, 1036].

[6] Defenses

[a] In General

A defendant in a copyright infringement action may defend against the ultimate facts by challenging plaintiff's claims as to ownership and copying [see discussion in § 349.27[4]]. In addition, the defendant may claim abandonment of copyright [Bell v. Combined Registry Co. (7th Cir. 1976) 536 F.2d 164, 170], or that defendant's actions were within the limitations on the exclusive rights of the plaintiff copyright owner as set forth under 17 U.S.C. §§ 107-120 [see § 349.22[2]; see also § 349.27[6][b]], or that the plaintiff attempts to misuse the copyright so as to secure an exclusive right or limited monopoly not granted by the Copyright Office [Practice Mgmt. Info. Corp. v. AMA (9th Cir. 1997) 121 F.3d 516, 520 (AMA misused its copyright by licensing its copyrighted medical procedures coding system to federal agency in exchange for agency's agreement not to use any competing coding system)], which is known as the defense of misuse [see Lasercomb America, Inc. v. Reynolds (4th Cir. 1990) 911 F.2d 970, 977-979]. Defendant also may raise defenses based on procedural and equitable issues such as:

- Jurisdictional defects [see 28 U.S.C. §§ 1338, 1400 (jurisdiction and venue of federal courts in copyright cases); e.g., Subafilms, Ltd. v. MGM-Pathe Communications (9th Cir. 1994) 24 F.3d 1088, 1095-1098 (no extraterritorial effect of federal copyright law over foreign acts of infringement)].

- Laches [see, e.g., Blackburn v. Southern Cal. Gas Co. (S.D. Cal. 1936) 14 F. Supp. 553, 554 ; see also Kling v. Hallmark Cards, Inc. (9th Cir. 2000) 225 F.3d 1030, 1038-1039 (period of delay for laches for copyright infringement claim starts when plaintiff knew or should have known about impending or actual infringement, not when plaintiff knew of adverse claim of ownership)].

- Estoppel [see, e.g., Hampton v. Paramount Pictures Corporation (9th Cir. 1960) 279 F.2d 100, 104].

- Statute of limitations [see § 349.27[6][c]].

- Unclean hands [see, e.g., Testa v. Janssen (W.D. Pa. 1980) 492 F. Supp. 198, 201].

- Misuse of the copyright [Practice Mgmt. Info. Corp. v. AMA (9th Cir. 1997) 121 F.3d 516, 520].

For further discussion of defenses to copyright infringement, see Nimmer on Copyright, Ch. 13, Infringement

Actions--Substantive Aspects (Matthew Bender).

[b] Fair Use

[i] Nature of Defense

The 1976 Act accorded for the first time an express statutory right of fair use of a copyrighted work [see 17 U.S.C. § 107]. The defense of fair use, however, had been a well-established judicially created doctrine long before the 1976 Act [see, e.g., Mathews Conveyor Co. v. Palmer-Bee Co. (6th Cir. 1943) 135 F.2d 73, 85 (discussion of factors to consider in determining fair use)]. The statutory defense of fair use embraced the scope and general purpose of the judicial doctrine, but did not change, narrow, or enlarge it in any way [see Elsmere Music, Inc. v. National Broad. Co. (S.D.N.Y. 1980) 482 F. Supp. 741, 744-745 , aff'd per curiam, 623 F.2d 252 (2d Cir. 1980) ("the District Court correctly applied the doctrine of fair use")]. Regarding the scope and limits of the fair use doctrine, cases antedating the 1978 Act will continue to be valid.

In determining whether the use made of a work in any particular case is a fair use, "the factors to be considered shall include" the following [17 U.S.C. § 107; see, e.g., Los Angeles News Serv. v. KCAL-TV Channel 9 (9th Cir. 1997) 108 F.3d 1119, 1121]:

- The purpose and character of the use, including whether such use is of a commercial nature or is for nonprofit educational purposes [see [ii], below].

- The nature of the copyrighted work [see [iii], below].

- The amount and substantiality of the portion used in relation to the copyrighted work as a whole [see [iv], below].

- The effect of the use upon the potential market for and value of the copyrighted work [see [v], below].

This analysis should not be simplified with bright-line rules, but instead requires a case-by-case analysis [Los Angeles News Serv. v. CBS Broad., Inc. (9th Cir. 2002) 305 F.3d 924, 938 , amended, 313 F.3d 1093] . The court should not treat the factors in isolation from one another. All are to be explored, and the results are to be weighed together, in light of the purposes of copyright [Elvis Presley Enters. v. Passport Video (9th Cir. 2003) 349 F.3d 622, 627]. The fact that a work is unpublished does not itself bar a finding of fair use if such a finding is made after consideration of all factors listed above [17 U.S.C. § 107].

First Amendment concerns in copyright cases are subsumed within the fair-use inquiry. In other words, if the use of the alleged infringer is not fair use, there are no First Amendment prohibitions against granting a preliminary injunction [Elvis Presley Enters. v. Passport Video (9th Cir. 2003) 349 F.3d 622, 626].

For further discussion of the defense of fair use, see Nimmer on Copyright, Ch. 13, Infringement Actions--Substantive Aspects (Matthew Bender).

[ii] Purpose and Character of Use

The most important component of the inquiry into the purpose and character of the use is the question whether the allegedly fair use was transformative [Los Angeles News Serv. v. CBS Broad., Inc. (9th Cir. 2002) 305 F.3d 924, 938] , that is, whether the second use adds something new, with a further purpose or different character, altering the first with new expression, meaning, or message. The more transformative the new work, the less will be the significance of other factors, like commercialism, that may weigh against a finding of fair use [Campbell v. Acuff-Rose Music, Inc. (1994) 510 U.S. 569, 579, 114 S. Ct. 1164, 127 L. Ed. 2d 500].

A commercial use of a copyrighted work does not necessarily preclude a finding of fair use [see, e.g., Campbell v. Acuff-Rose Music, Inc. (1994) 510 U.S. 569, 114 S. Ct. 1164, 127 L. Ed. 2d 500 (commercial nature of song parody does not render it presumptively unfair); Triangle Publications, Inc. v. Knight-Ridder Newspapers, Inc. (5th Cir. 1980) 626 F.2d 1171, 1174-1175]. Although not controlling, however, the fact that a new use is commercial as opposed to nonprofit weighs against a finding of fair use [Harper & Row Publishers, Inc. v. Nation Enters. (1985) 471 U.S. 539, 562, 105 S. Ct. 2218, 85 L. Ed. 2d 588]. The degree to which the new user exploits the copyright for commercial gain (as opposed to incidental use as part of a commercial enterprise) affects the weight to be afforded commercial nature as a factor [Elvis Presley Enters. v. Passport Video (9th Cir. 2003) 349 F.3d 622, 627].

Use of copyrighted materials for educational purposes, when the materials were purchased from the copyright owner, enhanced the value of the copyright, and that use was protected by the fair use doctrine [Allen v. Academic Games League of Am., Inc. (9th Cir. 1996) 89 F.3d 614, 617]. An educational nonprofit use would usually be fair use, but a finding of a nonprofit educational purpose does not compel a finding of fair use if other factors are contrary [Marcus v. Rowley (9th Cir. 1983) 695 F.2d 1171, 1175].

The fair use doctrine has been applied to:

- Criticism and comment [see, e.g., Suid v. Newsweek Magazine (D.D.C. 1980) 503 F. Supp. 146, 148 (quoting passages from book about John Wayne in article following actor's death)].

- Parody [see, e.g., Campbell v. Acuff-Rose Music, Inc. (1994) 510 U.S. 569, 114 S. Ct. 1164, 127 L. Ed. 2d 500 (rap song parody of copyrighted popular song may be fair use, depending on balancing of factors under 17 U.S.C. § 107); Elsmere Music Inc. v. National Broad. Co. (2d Cir. 1980) 623 F.2d 252, 253 (Saturday Night Live sketch parodying "I Love New York" campaign); but see Walt Disney Productions v. Mature Pictures Corp. (S.D.N.Y. 1975) 389 F. Supp. 1397, 1398 (parody of Mickey Mouse Club in X-rated film); Loew's Inc. v. Columbia Broad. Sys. (S.D. Cal. 1955) 131 F. Supp. 165, 175-181 (parody of "Gaslight" in Jack Benny television sketch), aff'd sub nom. Benny v. Loew's Inc. (9th Cir. 1956) 239 F.2d 532] .

- Matters of public interest [see, e.g., Meeropol v. Nizer (2d Cir. 1977) 560 F.2d 1061, 1068 (publication of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg letters); Time Inc. v. Bernard Geis Assocs. (S.D.N.Y. 1968) 293 F. Supp. 130, 146 (sketches based on film of President Kennedy's assassination)].

Home video recording of copyrighted works that (1) amounted mostly to "time-shifting," (2) would not be objected to by substantial numbers of copyright holders who licensed their works for free television, and (3) did not impair the value of the copyrighted works, was held to be fair use [Sony Corp. v. Universal City Studios, Inc. (1984) 464 U.S. 417, 419-428, 104 S. Ct. 774, 78 L. Ed. 2d 574 , superseded by statute as stated in 641 F. Supp. 2d 913 (2009)].

[iii] Nature of Copyrighted Work

The Supreme Court has passed over the nature of the copyrighted work without giving it much attention, stating that this factor is often not much help [Campbell v. Acuff-Rose Music, Inc. (1994) 510 U.S. 569, 586, 114 S. Ct. 1164, 127 L. Ed. 2d 500]. It is of most relevance in the fair use analysis when the original material and the copy are different in nature [Sony Computer Entertainment Am., Inc. v. Bleem, LLC (9th Cir. 2000) 214 F.3d 1022, 1028].

Fair use has been successfully asserted with respect to limited copying of textbooks or other informational material prepared primarily for limited distribution and dealing with scientific or historical topics [see, e.g., Eisenschiml v.

Fawcett Publications, Inc. (7th Cir. 1957) 246 F.2d 598, 604 (historical facts about Lincoln)]. Creative material prepared for general public distribution has also been found to be the subject of fair use [see, e.g., Triangle Publications, Inc. v. Knight-Ridder Newspapers (5th Cir. 1980) 626 F.2d 1171, 1175 (magazine cover used in television ad); but see Dr. Pepper Co. v. Sambo's Restaurants, Inc. (N.D. Tex. 1981) 517 F. Supp. 1202, 1208 (use of television commercial too similar to "Be a Pepper" commercial)].

[iv] Amount and Substantiality of Portion Used

A standard of reasonableness is to be applied when evaluating the amount and substantiality of the portion used in relation to the copyrighted work as a whole [see, e.g., Rosemont Enters., Inc. v. Random House, Inc. (2d Cir. 1966) 366 F.2d 303, 310].

In the case of parody, the Supreme Court has recognized that the parodist must be able to use enough of the original work to make the object of the parody's critical wit recognizable. Such a use may be a fair use, even though the portion taken was the heart of the original [Campbell v. Acuff-Rose Music, Inc. (1994) 510 U.S. 569, 114 S. Ct. 1164, 127 L. Ed. 2d 500].

[v] Effect of Use on Potential Market or Value

Perhaps the most important of the four factors is the effect of the use on the potential market for or value of the copyrighted work [see, e.g., Triangle Publications, Inc., v. Knight-Ridder Newspapers (5th Cir. 1980) 626 F.2d 1171, 1177]. In determining that effect of the defendant's use, the courts have looked to the function of each work regardless of the media in which each appeared. Thus, if the use adversely affects the value of any future adaptation rights (even though unexercised) in the copyrighted works, the courts will find the use unfair even if defendant's work was in a different media [see, e.g., Iowa State Univ. Research Found., Inc. v. American Broad. Cos., Inc. (2d Cir. 1980) 621 F.2d 57, 61-62]. On the other hand, if the defendant's use of material similar to the plaintiff's work performs a substantially different function than the copyrighted work, the courts may permit the fair use defense, even though both works employ the same or similar media [see, e.g., Karll v. Curtis Publ'g Co. (E.D. Wisc. 1941) 39 F. Supp. 836, 837-838]. For example, a rap parody of a popular song may be found not to be a fair use to the extent that the parody harms the potential derivative market for other rap versions of the original song. However, the fact that a parody may (like a scathing critical review) harm the market for the original work by reducing demand for it does not give rise to damages that are remediable under copyright law, and such harm may not be considered in determining whether the parody is a fair use [Campbell v. Acuff-Rose Music, Inc. (1994) 510 U.S. 569, 114 S. Ct. 1164, 127 L. Ed. 2d 500].

[c] Statute of Limitations

Title 17 U.S.C. § 507(b) provides a three-year statute of limitations for civil actions for copyright infringement. The statute of limitations begins to run from the time the infringement claim "accrued" [17 U.S.C. § 507(b)]. A copyright infringement claim "accrues" when the copyright owner has knowledge of a violation or is chargeable with such knowledge [Roley v. New World Pictures, Ltd. (9th Cir. 1994) 19 F.3d 479, 481].

Therefore, an infringement suit is time-barred if it is based on an act of infringement that the plaintiff discovered, or reasonably should have discovered, more than three years before commencement of the suit. If the suit is not time-barred, the plaintiff may recover for (1) all infringing acts that occurred within the three-year limitation period and (2) any infringing act that occurred before the three-year limitation period began, if the plaintiff did not discover it, and reasonably could not have discovered it, before the limitation period began [Polar Bear Prods., Inc. v. Timex Corp. (9th Cir. 2004) 384 F.3d 700, 705-707]. The plaintiff may not recover forany infringing act that the plaintiff discovered before the three-year limitation period began [Roley v. New World Pictures, Ltd. (9th Cir. 1994) 19 F.3d 479, 481].

[d] Limitations on Liability for Online Copyright Infringement

The Online Copyright Infringement Liability Limitation Act [17 U.S.C. § 512], enacted as title II of the Digital Millennium Copyright Act DMCA [Pub. L. No. 105-304 (DMCA)], creates four safe harbor defenses that Internet service providers may raise to limit their liability for claims of copyright infringement. These defenses relate to (1) transitory digital network communications, (2) system caching, (3) information residing on systems or networks at the direction of users, and (4) information location tools [17 U.S.C. § 512(a)-(d); see generally Perfect 10, Inc. v. CCBill LLC (9th Cir. 2007) 481 F.3d 751, 758-767 (explanation of what is required for service provider to be eligible to invoke each of those four safe harbor defenses)]. However, claims against service providers for copyright infringement "are generally evaluated just as they would be in the non-online world" [see [1]-[5], above], and a safe harbor defense would apply to limit a service provider's liability only if the provider could be found liable under the usual principles of copyright law [Ellison v. Robertson (9th Cir. 2004) 357 F.3d 1072, 1077].

To invoke any of the four safe harbor limitations of liability, a service provider must meet two conditions for eligibility. The safe harbor limitations of liability apply only if [17 U.S.C. § 512(i)(1)]:

- The service provider has adopted and reasonably implemented, and informs subscribers and account holders of the service provider's system or network of, a policy that provides for the termination in appropriate circumstances of subscribers and account holders of the service provider's system or network who are repeat infringers. A service provider "implements" a policy if it has a working notification system, has a procedure for dealing with DMCA-compliant notifications, and does not actively prevent copyright owners from collecting information needed to issue such notifications. An implementation is "reasonable" if, under appropriate circumstances, the service provider terminates users who repeatedly or blatantly infringe copyright. Circumstances would be "appropriate" for action by a service provider when it either has actual knowledge of infringing activity, is aware of facts or circumstances from which infringing activity is apparent, or has received notification of claimed infringement meeting the requirements of 17 U.S.C. § 512(c)(3). A service provider need not affirmatively police its users for evidence of repeat infringement [Perfect 10, Inc. v. CCBill LLC (9th Cir. 2007) 481 F.3d 751, 758-759, 760-764 (what constitutes implicit awareness of apparent infringing activity; what constitutes copyright holder's effective notification of infringement)].

- The service provider accommodates and does not interfere with standard technical measures. These are technical measures that copyright owners use to identify or protect copyrighted works and that (1) have been developed pursuant to a broad consensus of copyright owners and service providers in an open, fair, voluntary, multi-industry standards process, (2) are available to any person on reasonable and nondiscriminatory terms, and (3) do not impose substantial costs on service providers or substantial burdens on their systems or networks [17 U.S.C. § 512(i)(2)].

A service provider that does not meet these threshold requirements is not entitled to invoke the safe-harbor limitations on liability [17 U.S.C. § 512(i)(1)]. Whether these requirements have been met is an issue of fact [Ellison v. Robertson (9th Cir. 2004) 357 F.3d 1072, 1080 (trial court erred in concluding, on summary judgment motion, that defendant had met requirements)].

A service provider "implements" a policy if the service provider has a working notification system and a procedure for dealing with DMCA-compliant notifications, and if it does not actively prevent copyright owners from collecting information needed to issue such notifications [*Perfect 10, Inc. v. Amazon.com, Inc. (9th Cir. 2007), 487 F.3d 701 , ___, 2007 U.S. App. LEXIS 12508, at *6-10] .

An implementation of the service provider's policy is "reasonable" if, under appropriate circumstances, the service provider terminates users who repeatedly or blatantly infringe copyright. To identify and terminate repeat infringers, a service provider need not affirmatively police its users for evidence of repeat infringement, but in order to invoke the safe harbor protection, a service provider must act expeditiously to remove, or disable access to, the infringing material when it has actual knowledge of infringing activity, or is aware of facts or circumstances from which infringing activity is apparent, or has received notice of claimed infringement that substantially complies with all of the requirements of 17 U.S.C. § 512(c)(3). A compliant notice need not have come from the plaintiff in the present case, however; it could have come from a nonparty, and that could have made the service provider aware of facts or circumstances from which infringing activity was apparent. On the other hand, receipt of a noncompliant notice would not be sufficient to make the service provider aware of facts or circumstances from which infringing activity is apparent [Perfect 10, Inc. v. Amazon.com, Inc. (9th Cir. 2007), 487 F.3d 701, 711-716] .

[e] Statutory Exemption From Liability for Making, Providing, or Using Technology to Skip Portions of Movies Viewed at Home

Notwithstanding the exclusive rights of owners of copyrighted works under 17 U.S.C. § 106 [see § 349.22[1]], no infringement of copyright arises from either of the following acts [17 U.S.C. § 110(11)]:

- Making imperceptible--that is, skipping--limited portions of audio or video content of a motion picture, by or at the direction of a member of a private household, during a performance in or transmission to that household for private home viewing, from an authorized copy of the motion picture.

- Creating or providing a computer program or other technology that enables skipping of limited audio or video portions of a motion picture and that is designed and marketed to be used, at the direction of a member of a private household, for that purpose, if no fixed copy of the altered version of the motion picture is created by that computer program or other technology.

The term "making imperceptible" does not include the addition of audio or video content that is performed or displayed over or in place of existing content in a motion picture [17 U.S.C. § 110 (penultimate paragraph)].

This exemption does not imply further rights under 17 U.S.C. § 106, or have any effect on defenses or limitations on rights granted under any other section of the Copyright Act or under any other paragraph of 17 U.S.C. § 110, which generally specifies various limitations on a copyright holder's exclusive rights [17 U.S.C. § 110 (last paragraph)].

§ 349.28 Security Interests in Copyrights

The Copyright Act permits the owner of a copyright to create a security interest in it. The Ninth Circuit has stated that the Copyright Act's use of the word "mortgage" as one definition of a "transfer" [see 17 U.S.C. § 101] is properly read to include security interests under Article 9 of the Uniform Commercial Code [Aerocon Engineering, Inc. v. Silicon Valley Bank (In re World Auxiliary Power Co.) (9th Cir. 2002) 303 F.3d 1120, 1126].

Division 9 of the Commercial Code, which generally governs security interests in property other than real property [see generally Ch. 503, Sales: Secured Transactions], does not apply to security interests in copyrights "to the extent that any ... statute ... of the United States preempts" Division 9 [Com. Code § 9109(c)(1)]. Insofar as the Copyright Act concerns security interests in copyrights, it preempts state law [see 17 U.S.C. § 301(a); see also § 349.12]. Therefore, security interests in copyrights are governed primarily by the Copyright Act [see In re Cybernetic Services, Inc. (9th Cir. 2001) 252 F.3d 1039, 1056 ("The Copyright Act, by its terms, governs security interests.")]; but, to the extent that the Copyright Act couldnot be applied with respect to the matter, security interests in copyrights would be governed by Division 9 of the Commercial Code.

The Copyright Act permits a security agreement covering a registered copyright--that is, any document evidencing the transfer of a security interest in a registered copyright--to be recorded in the Copyright Office [see 17 U.S.C. § 205(c)]. A duly recorded security agreement preserves the priority of the creditor's security interest [see 17 U.S.C. § 205(d)]. Since the Copyright Act covers the matter of preserving priority, no filing is necessary under Division 9 of the Commercial Code; indeed, no filing under Division 9 is even possible, with respect to a security interest in a registered copyright [see Com. Code §§ 9310(a), (b)(3), 9311(a)(1); cf. Aerocon Engineering, Inc. v. Silicon Valley Bank (In re World Auxiliary Power Co.) (9th Cir. 2002) 303 F.3d 1120, 1128 (construing former Com. Code §§ 9104 and 9302, now superseded but essentially continued in Com. Code §§ 9109, 9310, and 9311: "For registered copyrights, the only proper place to file is the Copyright Office.")].

A security agreement covering an unregistered copyright cannot be recorded in the Copyright Office, however; and there is no other way, under the Copyright Act, for a creditor to preserve the priority of the creditor's security interest in an unregistered copyright [Aerocon Engineering, Inc. v. Silicon Valley Bank (In re World Auxiliary Power Co.) (9th Cir. 2002) 303 F.3d 1120, 1128]. Therefore, Division 9 of the Commercial Code, by its terms, "governs perfection and priority of security interests in unregistered copyrights", and on this matter the Copyright Act does not preempt state law [Aerocon Engineering, Inc. v. Silicon Valley Bank (In re World Auxiliary Power Co.) (9th Cir. 2002) 303 F.3d 1120, 1128].

31-349 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 349.41

§ 349.41 Recovery Under State Law

[1] Theories Not Preempted

The Copyright Act 1976 does not affect or limit any right or remedies under the common law or statutes of any state relating to activitiesviolating legal or equitable rights that are not equivalent to any of the exclusive rights within the general scope of the copyright as specified in 17 U.S.C. § 106 [see, e.g., KNB Enterprises v. Matthews (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 362, 365, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 713 (claim under Civ. Code § 3344 was not preempted when based on invasion of plaintiff's right of publicity, which was not equivalent to exclusive rights under Copyright Act, arising from defendant's unauthorized use of noncopyrightable subject matter--model's likeness--even though it was captured in copyrightable photograph)]. The common law rights of privacy, publicity, and trade secrets, as well as the general laws of defamation and fraud, appear to remain unaffected by federal preemption [see Notes of Committee on the Judiciary to 17 U.S.C. § 301, H.R. Rep. No. 1476, 94th Cong., 2nd Sess. (1976); see also Orth-O-Vision, Inc. v. Home Box Office (S.D.N.Y. 1979) 474 F. Supp. 672, 684 n.12]. Furthermore, state courts are fully competent to adjudicate state-law breach of contract claims, even when the underlying contract involves ownership, assignment, or license of a copyright, much less mere assignment of royalties from a copyrighted work [Durgom v. Janowiak (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 178, 180, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 619] .

The courts generally use an "extra element test" to determine whether a state cause of action is equivalent to a copyright claim. If, under state law, the act of reproduction, performance, distribution, or display will in itself infringe the state-created right, then the right is preempted. If other elements are required, however, in addition to or instead of the acts of reproduction, performance, distribution, or display in order to constitute a state-created cause of action, then the right does not lie within the general scope of copyright and there is no preemption [Summit Mach. Tool Mfg. v. Victor CNC Systems (9th Cir. 1993) 7 F.3d 1434, 1439-1440 ; Gladstone v. Hillel (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 977, 987, 250 Cal. Rptr. 372 ; see Oddo v. Ries (9th Cir. 1984) 743 F.2d 630, 635]. The "extra element" must be one that changes the nature of the action so that it is qualitatively different from a copyright infringement claim [Summit Mach. Tool Mfg. v. Victor CNC Systems (9th Cir. 1993) 7 F.3d 1434, 1439-1440 ; Gladstone v. Hillel (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 977, 987, 250 Cal. Rptr. 372 ; see Donald Frederick Evans v. Continental Homes, Inc. (11th Cir. 1986) 785 F.2d 897, 914].

[2] Recovery Under Personal Rights Theory

Causes of action under common law or state statute arising out of personal rights such as breach of contract or a breach of trust or confidence are still available so long as those rights are distinct from copyright infringement [see 17 U.S.C. § 301; see also discussion in § 349.41[1]]. For example, a state cause of action for interference with contractual relations arising out of the reproduction and distribution of a copyrighted work would be preempted by the Copyright Act 1976 since the rights allegedly interfered with were not different in kind from those rights protected under the Act, that is, exclusive rights to reproduce and distribute the work in question [see Harper & Row, Publishers v. Nation Enterprises (S.D.N.Y. 1980) 501 F. Supp. 848, 850-852 , aff'd, 723 F.2d 195, 201 (2d Cir. 1983) , rev'd on other grounds, 471 U.S. 539, 105 S. Ct. 2218, 85 L. Ed. 2d 588 (1985) ; Maheu v. CBS, Inc. (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 662, 672-673, 247 Cal. Rptr. 304] .

[3] Recovery Under Property Rights Theory

More problematic is recovery under common law or state statute for misappropriation and conversion. The House Judiciary Committee Report indicates that recovery under these theories has not been preempted [see Notes of Committee on the Judiciary to 17 U.S.C. § 301, H.R. Rep. No. 1476, 94th Cong., 2nd Sess. (1976)]. Under the "extra element" test applied by the courts [see discussion in § 349.41[1]], a state cause of action for conversion is not preempted because conversion involves the extra element of wrongful possession of the tangible embodiment of a work [Gladstone v. Hillel (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 977, 987, 250 Cal. Rptr. 372 ; see Oddo v. Ries (9th Cir. 1984) 743 F.2d 630, 635]. Nevertheless, the remedy obtained by the plaintiff must be closely tailored to rights conferred by state law. A plaintiff in state court cannot, on a theory of conversion, enforce a right equivalent to copyright--the right to restrain copying of his or her work. An example of a properly tailored remedy for the tort of conversion is an injunction that prevents the defendant from using the work or other representations of plaintiff's designs that the defendant wrongfully acquired or retained possession of, and from using copies of the work or other representations of designs that were derived from the work or other representations of the design while defendant wrongfully retained possession [Gladstone v. Hillel (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 977, 989-990, 250 Cal. Rptr. 372].

In contrast, an action for conversion of copyrightable property is preempted when plaintiff seeks damages arising from the reproduction and distribution, rather than from the physical possession, of plaintiff's work [Maheu v. CBS, Inc. (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 662, 671-673, 247 Cal. Rptr. 304]. This conforms to the general rule that an action is preempted when the rights sought to be protected are equivalent to those rights protected under the Copyright Act of 1976, such as an alleged act of misappropriation consisting simply of an act of public performance [see Orth-O-Vision, Inc. v. Home Box Office (S.D.N.Y. 1979) 474 F. Supp. 672, 684], or an act of conversion consisting of exercising dominion and control over reproduction and distribution of derivative works based on a copyrighted work [see, e.g., Harper & Row, Publishers v. Nation Enterprises (S.D.N.Y. 1980) 501 F. Supp. 848, 850-852 , aff'd, 723 F.2d 195, 201 (2d Cir. 1983) , rev'd on other grounds, 471 U.S. 539, 105 S. Ct. 2218, 85 L. Ed. 2d 588 (1985)] .

Similarly, recovery under quasi-contract may also be subject to federal preemption. In quasi-contract, the plaintiff seeks to recover under the theory that the defendant received a benefit, such as an idea, and that he or she ought to pay for the wrongful appropriation of the idea. However, defendant's obligation to pay arises out of an obligation imposed by law in order to do justice and not out of an obligation imposed by the parties themselves for services rendered [see Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 778, 794, 256 P.2d 947 ; Fink v. Goodson-Todman Enterprises, Ltd. (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 996, 1010, 88 Cal. Rptr. 679]. In addition, recovery under quasi-contract requires that the material in question constitute protectible property, which requires the plaintiff to show concreteness and novelty [see Fink v. Goodson-Todman Enterprises, Ltd. (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 996, 1009-1010, 88 Cal. Rptr. 679]. The requirement of concreteness may well fix the material in question in a tangible form of expression, thereby falling within the scope of exclusive rights protectible under the Copyright Act of 1976 [see 17 U.S.C. § 106].

[4] Recovery Under Unfair Competition Theory

Recovery under a state unfair competition law is generally subject to preemption under federal copyright and patent laws. A state may not, when an article is unpatented and uncopyrighted, prohibit by statute the copying of the article itself or award damages for that copying [Sears, Roebuck & Co. v. Stiffel Co. (1964) 376 U.S. 225, 232-233, 84 S. Ct. 784, 11 L. Ed. 2d 661 (preemption by federal patent law)]. When a complaint alleges no facts other than the lawful copying of an article in the public domain, no cause of action for misappropriation of the article, under a theory of unfair competition, is stated [Sammons & Sons v. Ladd-Fab, Inc. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 306, 309, 187 Cal. Rptr. 874 (copying of unpatented products and reproduction of uncopyrighted catalog)].

The Copyright Act of 1976 does not preempt an action for unfair competition based on "reverse palming off," i.e., appropriating the property of another and selling it as one's own. The courts have reasoned that such actions require the plaintiff to establish "extra elements" beyond those necessary to establish a copyright infringement [see discussion § 349.41[1]], such as the deceptive conduct of "palming off" another's product as one's own and the likelihood of customer confusion [see Summit Mach. Tool Mfg. v. Victor CNC Systems (9th Cir. 1993) 7 F.3d 1434, 1441 ; Gladstone v. Hillel (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 977, 987, 990, 250 Cal. Rptr. 372 ; see generally Ch. 549, Trademarks and Trade Names ; Ch. 565, Unfair Competition ; but see Norse v. Henry Holt and Co. (9th Cir. 1993) 991 F.2d 563, 568 (author's claims that defendants misappropriated his unpublished letters for use in a book and "palm[ed]" them off as their own were preempted by federal copyright law)]. However, the United States Supreme Court has ruled, in the patent context, that the likelihood of public confusion about the source of the defendant's goods is not enough to support an injunction against copying or an award of damages for copying an article that the federal laws permit to be copied [Sears, Roebuck & Co. v. Stiffel Co. (1964) 376 U.S. 225, 232, 84 S. Ct. 784, 11 L. Ed. 2d 661 (Illinois statute)].

Whether a state law regulating marketing practices relating to copyrighted subject matter is violative of the Copyright Act of 1976 may well be determined on what right the law is protecting or establishing. For example, a state law prohibiting blind bidding relating to the right to exhibit motion pictures has been held to be a proper state regulation that was not preempted by the federal law [see Allied Artists Pictures Corp. v. Rhodes (S.D. Ohio 1980) 496 F. Supp. 408, 446-448]. However, a state unfair competition law regulating retransmission of copyrighted works was held to be preempted by the Copyright Act of 1976 [see Orth-O-Vision, Inc. v. Home Box Office (S.D.N.Y. 1979) 474 F. Supp. 672, 683-684].

§ 349.42 Protection for Unfixed Works of Authorship

[1] In General

Under the California copyright laws as amended in 1982, state copyright protection is provided for works of authorship not protectible under federal law. Included within the works of authorship protected under state law are works of authorship that are not fixed in any tangible medium of expression. A work is considered not fixed when it is not embodied in a tangible medium of expression or when its embodiment in a tangible medium of expression is not sufficiently permanent or stable to permit it to be perceived, reproduced, or otherwise communicated for a period of more than transitory duration, either directly or with the aid of a machine or device [see Civ. Code § 980(a)(1); see also § 349.12].

[2] Classroom Lectures

[a] Prohibited Copying

Special provisions of the Education Code establish special intellectual property rights relating to classroom lectures and related presentations. Under these provisions, no business, agency, or person, including, but not necessarily limited to, an enrolled student, may prepare, cause to be prepared, give, sell, transfer, or otherwise distribute or publish, for any commercial purpose, any contemporaneous recording of an academic presentation in a classroom or equivalent site of instruction by an instructor of record. This prohibition applies to a recording made in any medium, including, but not necessarily limited to, handwritten or typewritten class notes [Educ. Code § 66450(a)]. However, this prohibition must not be construed so as to interfere with the rights of disabled students under law [Educ. Code § 66450(b)]. "Academic presentation" means any lecture, speech, performance, exhibit, or other form of academic or aesthetic presentation, made by an instructor of record as part of an authorized course of instruction that is not fixed in a tangible medium of expression [Educ. Code § 66450(c)(1)]. "Commercial purpose" means any purpose that has financial or economic gain as an objective [Educ. Code § 66450(c)(2)]. "Instructor of record" means any teacher or staff member employed to teach courses and authorize credit for the successful completion of courses [Educ. Code § 66450(c)(3)].

It does not constitute a violation for a business, agency, or person solely to provide access or connection to or from a facility, system, or network over which that business, agency, or person has no control, including related capabilities that are incidental to providing access or connection. This exemption does not apply to a business or agency that is owned by, or to a business, agency, or person that is controlled by, or a conspirator with, a business, agency, or person actively involved in the creation, editing, or knowing distribution of a contemporaneous recording that violates the anticopying prohibition [Educ. Code § 66451(c)].

The anticopying prohibition is not intended to change existing law as it pertains to the ownership of academic presentations [Educ. Code § 66452(a)].

[b] Judicial Relief

Any court of competent jurisdiction may grant relief that it finds necessary to enforce the anticopying prohibition, including the issuance of an injunction. Any person injured by a violation of the anticopying prohibition may recover court costs, attorney's fees, and a civil penalty, in addition to actual damages, from any person who is not a student enrolled in the institution at which the instructor of record makes his or her academic presentation and who seeks to obtain financial or economic gain through the unauthorized dissemination of the academic presentation. The amount of the civil penalty must not exceed $1,000 for the first offense or $5,000 for the second offense; and for any subsequent offense, a penalty of not less than $10,000 or more than $25,000 may be imposed [Educ. Code § 66451(a)]. For complaints for use in obtaining injunctive relief, which may be adapted for use in this situation, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

Actions for any relief may be prosecuted in a court of competent jurisdiction by the attorney general or any district attorney or by any county counsel authorized by agreement with the district attorney in actions involving violation of a county ordinance, or any city attorney of a city, or city and county, having a population in excess of 750,000, and, with the consent of the district attorney, by a city prosecutor in any city having a full-time city prosecutor or, with the consent of the district attorney, by a city attorney in any city, or city and county, in the name of the people of the State of California on their own complaint or on the complaint of any board, officer, person, corporation, or association or by any person acting for the interests of itself, its members, or the general public [Educ. Code § 66451(b)].

[c] Policies of Academic Institutions

By statute, the Regents of the University of California and the governing boards of private postsecondary institutions are requested to, the Trustees of the California State University must, and the governing board of each community college district may, in consultation with faculty and in accordance with applicable procedures, develop policies to prohibit the unauthorized recording, dissemination, and publication of academic presentations for commercial purposes [Educ. Code § 66452(a)].

The Regents of the University of California and the governing boards of private postsecondary institutions are requested to, the Trustees of the California State University must, and the governing board of each community college district may, adopt or provide for the adoption of specific regulations governing a violation of the anticopying prohibition by students, along with applicable penalties for a violation of the regulations. The regents are requested to, the trustees must, and the governing board of each community college district may, adopt procedures to inform all students of those regulations, with applicable penalties, and any revisions [Educ. Code § 66452(b)].

§ 349.43 Protection for Sound Recordings Fixed Prior to February 15, 1972

Civ. Code § 980 also provides state copyright protection to an author of a sound recording fixed before February 15, 1972. This protection will endure until February 15, 2067, when federal law will govern all copyright protection for sound recordings [17 U.S.C. § 301(c); cf. Civ. Code § 980(a)(2)].

In addition to the state civil copyright protection of Civ. Code § 980(a)(2), various criminal penalties provide protection under state law for owners of sound recordings fixed before February 15, 1972 [see Penal Code §§ 653h (violations relating to transferring sound recordings), 653s, 653u (violations relating to recording live performances), 653w (violations relating to nondisclosure of origins of recording; see below)]. When a person is convicted under Penal Code § 653h, 653s, 653u, or 653w, a court, in addition to other statutory penalties, must order the forfeiture, destruction, or other disposition of all articles on which sounds can be recorded or stored, and all devices for manufacturing, reproducing, or assembling these articles [Penal Code § 653v]. Neither Penal Code § 653h or 653s enlarges or diminishes the rights and remedies of parties in civil litigation [see Penal Code §§ 653h(f), 653s(e)].

Until January 1, 2015, if there is a conviction for a violation of Penal Code § 653w (knowingly advertising or offering for sale or resale, or selling or reselling, or causing the rental, sale or resale, or renting, or manufacturing, or possessing for these purposes, any recording or audiovisual work, the cover, box, jacket, or label of which does not disclose the actual true name and address of the manufacturer thereof and the name of the actual author, artist, performer, producer, programmer, or group), then a nonresidential building or place used by the convicted person in committing that violation is deemed a nuisance that may be enjoined, abated, and prevented, and for which damages may be recovered, whether it is a public or private nuisance [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17800(a),(c); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17802 (sunset provision)]. The district attorney of the county where the nuisance exists, or any city attorney in the county, or any citizen of California who resides in the county, may maintain an action to abate and prevent the nuisance and to perpetually enjoin the person conducting or maintaining it, and the owner, lessee, or agent of the building or place, in or on which the nuisance exists, from directly or indirectly maintaining or permitting it. The complaint must be verified unless filed by the district attorney or a city attorney [Penal Code § 11226]. An owner must be provided with 30 days' notice prior to the filing of an action to abate the nuisance [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17800(a)]. For discussion and forms for use in an action to abate a nuisance, see Ch. 391, Nuisance .

§ 349.44 Protection of Ideas

Federal copyright protection for an original work of authorship does not extend to any idea, procedure, process, system, method of operation, concept, principle, or discovery, regardless of the form in which it is described, explained, illustrated, or embodied in any work [see 17 U.S.C. § 102(b)]. Under California law, an idea is not considered to be literary property [Desny v. Wilder (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 715, 731-733, 299 P.2d 257]. However, a person whose idea has been wrongfully used by another person may be able to recover under state law by either proceeding against the wrongdoer for breaching a confidential relationship when the plaintiff has disclosed an idea in confidence, for breach of contract, or for inducing a breach of contract [see §§ 349.45, 349.46[3]].

§ 349.45 Breach of Confidence

A person who discloses or makes use of an idea transmitted to him or her in confidence may be liable for breach of confidence under California law [see Blaustein v. Burton (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 161, 186-187, 88 Cal. Rptr. 319 ; Thompson v. California Brewing Co. (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 469, 474-476, 310 P.2d 436]. The tort of breach of confidence is based on the concept of an implied obligation or contract between the parties, created by law for reasons of justice when no contract otherwise exists. Because breach of confidence is not predicated solely on an express agreement protecting the confidence, the tort can be established without proof of a promise. Nevertheless, since the gravamen of the tort is an understanding between the parties that an idea is offered on a condition of confidence, there can be no breach of confidence in the absence of an understanding between the parties that the confidential nature of the information will be maintained [Tele-Count Engineers, Inc. v. Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 455, 466, 214 Cal. Rptr. 276].

Liability for breach of confidence arises if the plaintiff submits a new idea to the defendant in confidence, and the defendant accepts it in confidence with the understanding that the idea would not be used or disclosed, or used for purposes beyond the limits of the confidence, without the plaintiff's consent [Tele-Count Engineers, Inc. v. Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 455, 462, 214 Cal. Rptr. 276 , citing Faris v. Enberg (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 309, 321, 158 Cal. Rptr. 704]. Additionally, the idea must be confidential and novel, the defendant's knowlege of the confidential nature of the information must precede its disclosure, and the defendant must have an opportunity to reject disclosure in advance, since the unsolicited submission of an idea is not actionable [Tele-Count Engineers, Inc. v. Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 455, 462, 465, 214 Cal. Rptr. 276 ; cf. Fink v. Goodson-Todman Enterprises, Ltd. (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 996, 1009, 88 Cal. Rptr. 679 (novel idea is not element of cause of action for breach of contract for unauthorized use or disclosure of idea)].

One appellate court has suggested that the plaintiff must establish that, under the circumstances, the defendant knew or should have known that the disclosure was made in confidence [see Thompson v. California Brewing Co. (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 469, 476, 310 P.2d 436]. Apparently, however, actual notice of confidentiality is required to establish defendant's knowledge that the disclosure was made in confidence [Aliotti v. R. Dakin & Co. (9th Cir. 1987) 831 F.2d 898, 903 (applying California law); Tele-Count Engineers, Inc. v. Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 455, 465, 214 Cal. Rptr. 276]. Mere constructive notice, or a showing that the defendant should have known of the confidential nature of the information imparted, would improperly subject a defendant to liability without the requisite understanding or voluntary acceptance of the confidential disclosure [Tele-Count Engineers, Inc. v. Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 455, 465, 214 Cal. Rptr. 276] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Protection of Literary Property and Ideas Under California Law

31-349 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 349.46

§ 349.46 Contractual Protection of Ideas

[1] Ideas as Consideration

The transmission or conveyance of an idea can constitute valuable consideration that can be bargained for before it is disclosed to the proposed purchaser. In the publishing or entertainment field, the publisher or producer often will enter into a contractual agreement in which he or she will agree to pay for the service of having transmitted or conveyed to him or her ideas that are valuable and that can be put to profitable use [see Desny v. Wilder (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 715, 737-738, 299 P.2d 257 ; Donahue v. Ziv Television Programs, Inc. (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 593, 609, 54 Cal. Rptr. 130].

Claims under state law are preempted by the Copyright Act if (1) the work at issue comes within the subject matter of copyright, and (2) the state law rights are equivalent to any of the exclusive rights within the general scope of copyright [17 U.S.C. § 301]. To survive preemption, the state cause of action must protect rights that are qualitatively different from the rights protected by copyright; in other words, the complaint must allege an extra element that changes the nature of the action. For purposes of avoiding preemption, the implied promise to pay required by Desny is such an extra element [Grosso v. Miramax Film Corp. (9th Cir. 2004) 383 F.3d 965, 968 ; see Landsberg v. Scrabble Crossword Game Players, Inc. (9th Cir. 1986) 802 F.2d 1193, 1196 (defendants, who used plaintiff's idea for game-strategy book without paying expected compensation, were liable on Desny claim, which "turns not upon the existence of a [copyright] ... but upon the implied promise to pay the reasonable value of the material disclosed")].

[2] Novelty Not Required

An idea that can be the subject matter of a contract is not required to be novel or original since the recipient of the idea has willingly agreed to pay [see Fink v. Goodson-Todman Enterprises, Ltd. (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 996, 1008-1009 n.16, 88 Cal. Rptr. 679 ; Blaustein v. Burton (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 161, 183, 88 Cal. Rptr. 319]. The fact that the idea used was one that the publisher or producer could have thought of himself or herself is no defense against the claim of the writer [Blaustein v. Burton (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 161, 183, 88 Cal. Rptr. 319]. The idea may be valuable to its recipient simply because the disclosure took place at the right time [see Donahue v. United Artists Corp. (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 794, 809, 83 Cal. Rptr. 131].

[3] Breach of Contract

For a purveyor of an abstract idea to prevail in an action to recover compensation for the use of that idea, he or she must be able to show that either (1) before or after disclosure he or she had obtained an express promise to pay for use of the idea, or (2) the circumstances preceding and attending disclosure, together with the conduct of the offeree acting with knowledge of the circumstances, showed a promise of the type usually referred to as implied-in-fact [see Desny v. Wilder (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 715, 737-738, 299 P.2d 257 ; Klekas v. EMI Films, Inc. (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 1102, 1114, 198 Cal. Rptr. 296].

In the case of an implied-in-fact contract to pay for the use of an idea, the circumstances involving a writer transmitting or conveying an idea to a publisher or producer would include the understanding that a professional author expects payment for the reasonable value of the idea submitted, if used, and that the conduct of the publisher or producer in accepting the idea implies a promise to fulfill those reasonable expectations [see Davies v. Krasna (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 535, 549, 54 Cal. Rptr. 37 ; Chandler v. Roach (1957) 156 Cal. App. 2d 435, 440-441, 319 P.2d 776].

When warranted by the facts, a purveyor of an idea may also proceed against the recipient for inducing a breach of contract [see Donahue v. Ziv Television Programs, Inc. (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 593, 607, 54 Cal. Rptr. 130].

[4] Basic Similarities

The use of an idea does not imply that there was any copying as to form or manner of expression. When there exist basic similarities in plot ideas, themes, sequences, and dramatic gimmicks, a jury may infer that plaintiff's ideas and format were used by the defendant [Minniear v. Tors (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 495, 504-505, 72 Cal. Rptr. 287].

[5] Assignment of Rights in Idea

Even though a cause of action for breach of an implied-in-fact contract would be assignable, the purported assignment of various interests in a noncopyrighted literary work does not give the assignee the right to pursue a cause of action for breach of an implied-in-fact contract to pay for the disclosure of an idea, if the idea is used, that may have arisen prior to the purported assignment as the result of negotiations between the creator and a third party [Rokos v. Peck (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 604, 616, 227 Cal. Rptr. 480].

Even though the assignability of things in action is the rule and nonassignability the exception, contracts of a purely personal nature generally fall under the exception. The creation of a contract between an author, on the one hand, and an agent, producer, or director, on the other is of such a personal nature that it is effective only between the contracting parties [Rokos v. Peck (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 604, 617, 227 Cal. Rptr. 480].

§ 349.47 Defenses

[1] Lack of Similarity

The test for similarity is whether or not the defendant appropriated and used a qualitatively important part of the plaintiff's idea in such a way that features in the defendant's works are substantially similar to features in the plaintiff's works. If the determination is favorable to the plaintiff, the trier of fact must make the additional inquiry as to whether or not, despite the similarities that suggest appropriation and use, the similarities are purely coincidental and, in fact, defendant's work product was achieved independently of any use of plaintiff's idea [see Fink v. Goodson-Todman Enterprises, Ltd. (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 996, 1007, 1009-1010, 88 Cal. Rptr. 679 (question of similarity interdependent with issue of access)].

[2] Statute of Limitations

The two-year period of limitation under Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1) governs an action alleging the use or appropriation of an idea in violation of an agreement to pay for the reasonable value for obtaining the idea when the actions are for implied breach of contract or breach of confidence [see Donahue v. United Artists Corp. (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 794, 801, 83 Cal. Rptr. 131 ; Thompson v. California Brewing Co. (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 469, 477, 310 P.2d 436].

The two-year period of limitation under *Code Civ. D. Semiconductor Chip Protection Act of 1984

31-349 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 349.60

§ 349.60 Semiconductor Chip Protection Act of 1984

[1] In General

The Semiconductor Chip Protection Act of 1984 (17 U.S.C. § 901 et seq.) provides protection for and exclusive rights to persons owning semiconductor chip products. The Act is specific to semiconductor chips, but other applicable copyright provisions are still available [17 U.S.C. § 912(a)]. 17 U.S.C. § 901(a)(1) and (2) define "semiconductor chip product" and "mask work," respectively [see generally 17 U.S.C. § 901(a)(1) (definitions)]. The owner of a mask work protected under 17 U.S.C. § 901 et seq. has the exclusive rights to do and to authorize the reproduction of the mask work by any means or the importation or distribution of a semiconductor chip product in which the mask work is embodied [17 U.S.C. § 905; see 17 U.S.C. § 902(a), (b) (eligibility for protection); see also 17 U.S.C. §§ 902(c), 906(a) (limitations on protected rights)].

[2] Duration of Protection

The protection provided for a mask work commences on the date the mask work is registered or the date it is first commercially exploited, whichever occurs first. The protection ends at the end of the calendar year ten years after the date on which the protection commenced [17 U.S.C. § 904].

[3] Demarcation of Protection

The owner of a mask work for which protection is provided may affix notice to the mask work and to masks and semiconductor chip products embodying the mask work, in a manner and location as to give reasonable notice of that protection. The affixation of notice is not a condition of protection, but constitutes prima facie evidence of notice of protection [17 U.S.C. § 909].

[4] Documentation of Protection

The exclusive rights in a mask work subject to protection belong to the owner of the mask work, who may transfer or bequeath all or any part of those rights by written instrument [17 U.S.C. § 903(a), (b)]. Any document pertaining to a mask work may be recorded in the Copyright Office, and the recordation of any transfer or license gives all persons constructive notice of the facts stated in the recorded document [17 U.S.C. § 903(c)(1)]. In the case of a conflicting transfer of the exclusive rights in a mask work, the first executed shall be void as against a subsequent transfer that is made for a valuable consideration and without notice of the first transfer, unless the first transfer is recorded within three months after the date of its execution and prior to the date of the subsequent transfer [17 U.S.C. § 903(c)(2)].

§ 349.61 Application for Protection

The owner of a mask work may apply to the Register of Copyrights for registration of a claim of protection in a mask work. Protection shall terminate if the application is not made within two years after the date on which the mask work is first commercially exploited [17 U.S.C. § 908(a)]. The effective date of registration of a claim of protection is the date on which an application and necessary accompanying material was received in the Copyright Office [17 U.S.C. § 908(e)].

Any applicant for registration who is dissatisfied with the refusal of the Register of Copyrights to issue a certificate of registration may seek judicial review of that refusal. The failure of the Register of Copyrights to issue a certificate of registration within four months after an application was filed constitutes a refusal [17 U.S.C. § 908(g)].

§ 349.62 Infringement

[1] Violation of Exclusive Rights

Any person who violates any of the exclusive rights of the owner of a mask work by conduct in or affecting commerce is liable as an infringer of those rights [17 U.S.C. § 910(a)]. For purposes of infringements occurring on or after November 15, 1990, "any person" includes any state, any instrumentality of a state, and any officer or employee of a state or instrumentality of a state acting in his or her official capacity [17 U.S.C. § 910(a); Pub. L. No. 101-553 § 3, 104 Stat. 2749 (1990) (effective date)]. For infringement occurring on and after that date, any state, and any instrumentality thereof, officer, or employee, is subject to the provisions of 17 U.S.C. 901 et seq. in the same manner and to the same extent as any nongovernmental entity [17 U.S.C. § 910(a); see 17 U.S.C. § 911(g)(1); for discussion, see § 349.27[3][b]].

[2] Civil Action

[a] In General

The owner of a protected mask work or its exclusive licensee is entitled to institute a civil action for any infringement with respect to the mask work that is committed after the commencement of that protection [17 U.S.C. § 910(b)(1)]. Any court having jurisdiction of a civil action arising under 17 U.S.C. § 901 et seq. may grant temporary and permanent injunctive relief on terms the court deems reasonable to prevent or restrain infringement of the exclusive rights in a mask work [17 U.S.C. § 911(a)].

An action for infringement must be commenced within three years after the claim accrues [17 U.S.C. § 911(d)].

[b] Damages

On finding liability for infringement of any exclusive right, the court shall award actual damages suffered as a result of the infringement. The court shall also award the infringer's profits that are attributable to the infringement and that are not taken into account in computing the award of actual damages. In establishing the infringer's profits, the injured person need present proof only of the infringer's gross revenue; the infringer is required to prove his or her deductible expenses and the elements of profit attributable to factors other than the mask work [17 U.S.C. § 911(b), (g)(2)].

A person entitled to institute a civil action for infringement may elect, instead of actual damages and profits, an award of statutory damages for all infringements involved in the action, with respect to any one mask work for which any one infringer is liable individually, or for which any two or more infringers are liable jointly and severally, in an amount not more than $250,000 [17 U.S.C. § 911(c), (g)(2)].

[c] Other Relief

At any time while an action for infringement of the exclusive rights in a mask work is pending, the court may order the impounding of all semiconductor chip products, and any articles by means of which those products may be reproduced, that are claimed to have been made, imported, or used in violation of those exclusive rights. Applications for those orders will be heard and determined in the same manner as an application for preliminary injunctive relief [17 U.S.C. § 911(e)(1), (g)(2)]. As part of a final judgment, the court may order the destruction or other disposition of any infringing semiconductor chip products, and any articles by means of which those products may be reproduced [17 U.S.C. § 911(e)(2), (g)(2)].

[d] Attorney's Fees and Costs

The court may allow the recovery of full costs, including reasonable attorney's fees, to the prevailing party [17 U.S.C. § 911(f), (g)(2)].

[e] Evidentiary Effect of Registration Certificate

In any action for infringement, the certificate of registration constitutes prima facie evidence of the facts stated in the certificate and of the fact that the applicant who was issued the certificate has met the requirements of 17 U.S.C. § 901 et seq. and applicable regulations, with respect to the registration of claims [17 U.S.C. § 908(f)].

[f] When Application for Protection Refused

If the application for registration of a claim of protection and registration of the mask work has been refused, the applicant may institute a civil action for infringement if notice of the action, together with a copy of the complaint, is served on the Register of Copyrights. The Register may opt to become a party to the action with respect to the issue of whether the claim of protection is eligible for registration, but his or her failure to become a party does not deprive the court of jurisdiction to determine that issue [17 U.S.C. § 910(b)(2)].

[3] Imported Goods

Articles imported in violation of the owner's rights are subject to seizure and forfeiture in the same manner as property imported in violation of the customs laws. Any forfeited articles shall be destroyed as directed by the Secretary of the Treasury or the court, except that the articles may be returned to the country of export whenever it is shown that the importer had no reasonable grounds for believing that his or her acts constituted a violation of the law [17 U.S.C. § 910(c)(2)].

[4] Limitation of Liability of Innocent Purchaser

An innocent purchaser of an infringing semiconductor chip product shall not incur liability with respect to the importation or distribution of units of the infringing semiconductor chip product that occurs before the innocent purchaser has notice of protection with respect to the mask work embodied in the semiconductor chip product. That innocent purchaser is liable only for a reasonable royalty on each unit of the infringing semiconductor chip product that he or she imports or distributes after having notice of protection with respect to the mask work embodied in the semiconductor chip product. These limitations extend to any person who directly or indirectly purchases an infringing semiconductor chip product from an innocent purchaser [17 U.S.C. § 907].

§ 349.85 Decisions

[1] Federal Copyright

[a] Contributory Infringement

Manufacturers, distributors, retailers, and advertising agencies sued for contributory copyright infringement based on manufacture and sale of video tape recorders is not liable, even if home use was not fair use, when video tape recorders were capable of substantial noninfringing uses. Sony Corp. v. Universal City Studios, Inc. (1984) 464 U.S. 417, 434-451, 104 S. Ct. 774, 78 L. Ed. 2d 574 , superseded by statute as stated in 641 F. Supp. 2d 913 (2009).

[b] Copyrightable Articles

[i] In General

Characters in pictorial works such as films and comic books, but not purely literary characters (for example, protagonists in novels), can be protected by copyright, provided character is especially distinctive and displays consistent, widely identifiable traits. Halicki Films v. Sanderson Sales & Mktg. (9th Cir. 2008) 547 F.3d 1213, 2008 U.S. App. LEXIS 23396 , at 24-25 (citing cases extending copyright protection to film characters Godzilla, James Bond, and Rocky Balboa, and citing case holding that Sam Spade character in Dashiel Hammett novels is not protectable by copyright)

Prices listed in wholesale coin price guide contained sufficient originality to merit copyright protection. CDN, Inc. v. Kapes (9th Cir. 1999) 197 F.3d 1256, 1262

Architectural works embodied in plans and drawings are protected by federal copyright law even if work is not constructed. Hunt v. Pasternack (9th Cir. 1998) 179 F.3d 683, 685-686

"Superbills," billing forms used by physicians to obtain reimbursement from insurance companies, were uncopyrightable blank forms; text in formsconsisting of instructions to patient on how to file insurance claim was too simple to be copyrightable as text in itself. Bibbero Systems, Inc. v. Colwell Systems, Inc. (9th Cir. 1990) 893 F.2d 1104, 1107-1108 (distinguishing other 9th Circuit "text with forms" cases and rejecting cases from other circuits holding to the contrary)

Nonliteral components of computer software program are protected by copyright on program when they constitute expression rather than idea; protection of nonliteral components is dependent on facts of each case. Johnson Controls v. Phoenix Control Systems (9th Cir. 1989) 886 F.2d 1173, 1175, 1177

Literal components of computer software program are protected by copyright on program. Johnson Controls v. Phoenix Control Systems (9th Cir. 1989) 886 F.2d 1173, 1175

Defendants' use of factual content in plaintiff's "trivia encyclopedias" in developing and marketing defendants' trivia board game was noninfringing. Worth v. Selchow & Righter Co. (9th Cir. 1987) 827 F.2d 569, 573

Copyright law never protects facts and ideas contained in published works; author is capable of owning copyright interest only in original arrangement of facts or original manner of expressing ideas. Cooling Systems and Flexibles v. Stuart Radiator (9th Cir. 1985) 777 F.2d 485, 491

Work that results from independent efforts of author is copyrightable, even though identical work is already in public domain. Transgo, Inc. v. Ajac Transmission Parts Corp. (9th Cir. 1985) 768 F.2d 1001, 1019

Whether plaintiff's work is copyrightable as soft sculptural artwork or uncopyrightable as useful article of clothing raises genuine issue of material fact requiring reversal of summary judgment for defendants in copyright infringement action. Poe v. Missing Persons (9th Cir. 1984) 745 F.2d 1238, 1241

Computer programs are entitled to federal copyright protection. Apple Computer v. Formula Intern, Inc. (9th Cir. 1984) 725 F.2d 521, 523-525

Display folders for carpet samples and specifications were useful articles under 17 U.S.C. § 101 and therefore not copyrightable. Fabrica Inc. v. El Dorado Corp. (9th Cir. 1983) 697 F.2d 890, 892-894

Architectural drawings are copyrightable articles under 17 U.S.C. §§ 101, 102. Robert H. Jacobs, Inc. v. Westoaks Realtors, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 637, 643, 205 Cal. Rptr. 620 (but see Historical and Statutory Notes under 17 U.S.C. § 101 concerning effective date of Pub. L. No. 101-650 § 706, and providing that unconstructed architectural work embodied in unpublished plans or drawings are copyrightable on and after December 1, 1990, until December 31, 2002)

[ii] Compilations

Telephone directory's white pages listing of subscriber names, towns, and telephone numbers in alphabetical order was uncopyrightable compilation because selection and arrangement of material lacks sufficient originality. Feist Pub. v. Rural Tel. Serv. (1991) 499 U.S. 340, 111 S. Ct. 1282, 113 L. Ed. 2d 358, 380-381

Originality rather than "sweat of the brow" is touchstone of copyright protection in compilations. Feist Publ'ns, Inc. v. Rural Tel. Serv. Co. (1991) 499 U.S. 340 (repudiating "sweat of the brow" doctrine)

Factual compilation is eligible for copyright if it features original selection or arrangement of facts; copyright is limited to particular selection or arrangement and never extends to facts themselves. Feist Pub. v. Rural Tel. Serv. (1991) 499

U.S. 340, 111 S. Ct. 1282, 113 L. Ed. 2d 358, 372

Organizers, produced to help users plan daily activities, and copyrightable as compilations consisting largely of uncopyrightable elements, are entitled to only limited copyright protection, such that infringement should not be found absent copying or unauthorized use of substantially the entire item. Harper House, Inc. v. Thomas Nelson, Inc. (9th Cir. 1989) 889 F.2d 197, 205

Business correspondence (letters) are copyrightable compilation of facts. Maheu v. CBS, Inc. (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 662, 671, 247 Cal. Rptr. 304

[iii] Derivative Works

Under 17 U.S.C. § 304(c)(6)(A) (derivative works exception to power of termination of copyright grant), termination by author's heirs of grant to music publisher of copyright in song does not terminate publisher's contractual right to share in royalties on sound recordings of song generated by licenses issued by publisher, when sound recordings are derivative works prepared under authority of copyright grant before its termination. Mills Music, Inc. v. Snyder (1985) 469 U.S. 153, 163-164, 105 S. Ct. 638, 83 L. Ed. 2d 556

Preliminary injunction against further production and distribution of "Nuke It" CD, which contained 300 downloaded, user-created "levels" for use when playing "Duke Nukem 3D" computer game that contained utility enabling players to create and post on Internet their own levels of play, was warranted as unauthorized derivative work because audiovisual displays generated when player chooses "Nuke It" level of play came entirely out of "Duke Nukem 3D" source art library. Micro Star v. Formgen, Inc. (9th Cir. 1998) 154 F.3d 1107, 1112

Analysis of whether computer programs altering displays are derivative works. Lewis Galoob Toys, Inc. v. Nintendo of America, Inc. (9th Cir. 1992) 964 F.2d 965, 967-969

Plaintiff's tapes of radio play and phonograph record scripts, as sound recordings fixed before February 15, 1972, are derivative works of scripts, and copyright in scripts are infringed under Copyright Act of 1909 by defendant's unauthorized duplication, remixing, and distribution of plaintiff's tapes. Lone Ranger Television v. Program Radio Corp. (9th Cir. 1984) 740 F.2d 718, 723

[c] Defenses to Infringement

[i] In General

Iranian trade embargo [see 31 C.F.R. § 560.101 et seq.] did not provide any basis for defense when infringement action was based on copyrights in Iranian films that plaintiff imported and licensed for showing in United States,since that trade embargo neither prohibited commercial importation of movies from Iran, nor prohibited obtaining copyrights in such movies, nor prohibited assignment to plaintiff of exclusive rights to copyright, distribute, and exhibit movies in North America. Kalantari v. NITV, Inc. (9th Cir. 2003) 352 F.3d 1202, 1210

Laches is defense to action seeking declaration of coauthorship and coownership to copyrightable work. Jackson v. Axton (9th Cir. 1994) 25 F.3d 884, 887

License to use copyrighted works is defense to copyright infringement action unless licensee exceeded scope of licensing agreement or substantially and materially breached agreement in manner that justifies rescission. Rano v. Sipa Press, Inc. (9th Cir. 1993) 987 F.2d 580, 586

Musician's allegations regarding fraudulent tax shelter plan as basis for rescinding music publishing agreement with copyright holder's predecessors were barred by statute of limitations and res judicata. Fantasy, Inc. v. Fogerty (9th Cir. 1993) 984 F.2d 1524, 1527 (affirming summary judgment in favor of copyright holder on original songwriter's counterclaim in infringement action by copyright holder)

License to use copyrighted works is defense to copyright infringement and as required to be affirmatively pleaded. Oddo v. Ries (9th Cir. 1984) 743 F.2d 630, 634

Unclean hands is defense to copyright infringement. Testa v. Janssen (W.D. Pa. 1980) 492 F. Supp. 198, 201

[ii] Antitrust Issues

Antitrust issues raised in counterclaim to copyright infringement action were properly subject to summary judgment; antitrust immunity doctrine protects litigation that is not objectively baseless when law is unclear. Real Est. Investors v. Columbia (1993) 508 U.S. 49, 113 S. Ct. 1920, 123 L. Ed. 2d 611, 625 (suit by studios holding copyrights to certain motion pictures and counterclaim by resort hotels that recorded motion pictures on video discs and rented discs to hotel guests)

[iii] Fair Use

Parody of song "Oh Pretty Woman" was not presumptively unfair because of its commercial nature; parody use was required to be viewed with respect to all relevant factors establishing fair use and to be judged, case by case, in light of ends of Campbell v. Acuff-Rose Music (1994) 510 U.S. 569, 114 S. Ct. 1164, 127 L. Ed. 2d 500, 517

Magazine's unauthorized verbatim copying of direct quotations from soon-to-be-published memoirs, involving original expressions of great qualitative importance in memoirs and in article, resulting in cancellation of another magazine's agreement to pay money for exclusive right to print prepublication excerpts, was not fair use of memoirs sanctioned by 17 U.S.C. § 107. Harper & Row v. Nation Enterprises (1985) 471 U.S. 539, 569, 105 S. Ct. 2218, 85 L. Ed. 2d 588

Home recording of copyrighted works (1) amounted mostly to "time-shifting," (2) would not be objected to by substantial numbers of copyright holders who licensed their works for free television, and (3) did not impair the value of the copyrighted works, was fair use. Sony Corp. v. Universal City Studios, Inc. (1984) 464 U.S. 417, 419-428, 104 S. Ct. 774, 78 L. Ed. 2d 574 , superseded by statute as stated in 641 F. Supp. 2d 913 (2009).

No fair use defense was available to avoid infringement liability when sheriff's department bought 3,663 single-computer licenses for software, then installed that software on more than 6,000 computers in network and configured network-managing servers so that not more than 3,663 of those computers could use that software at any given time. Wall Data Inc. v. Los Angeles County Sheriff's Dep't (9th Cir. 2006) 447 F.3d 769, 774

Unauthorized creation and use of "thumbnail" versions of copyrighted photographs in internet search engine was fair use. Kelly v. Arriba Soft Corp. (9th Cir. 2003) 336 F.3d 811, 822

All four factors of fair use test in 17 U.S.C. § 107 weighed in favor of conclusion that competitor's use of copyrighted video game screen shots in comparative advertising was fair use. Sony Computer Entertainment America v. Bleem, LLC (9th Cir. 2000) 214 F.3d 1022, 1029

Copying and disassembling (that is, translating into version that programmers could read) was fair use of copyrighted object code (which is readable bycomputer but not by person) for purpose of gaining access to unprotected elements (ideas and functions) in software, so that competitor could make emulator version. Sony Computer Entertainment v.

Connectix Corp. (9th Cir. 2000) 203 F.3d 596, 603-604

Use of copyrighted materials for educational purposes when materials were purchased from copyright owner enhanced value of copyright and was protected by fair use doctrine. Allen v. Academic Games League of American, Inc. (9th Cir. 1996) 89 F.3d 614, 617

Disassembly of copyrighted computer video game program was fair use protected by 17 U.S.C. § 107 when disassembly was only way to gain access to unprotected ideas and functional elements embodied in program. Sega Enterprises Ltd. v. Accolade, Inc. (9th Cir. 1992) 977 F.2d 1510, 1527-1528 (dissolving preliminary injunction in favor of copyright holder)

Use of confidential documents of religious organization to prepare expert witnesses in state tort litigation against organization constituted fair use under 17 U.S.C. § 107. Religious Technology Center v. Wollersheim (9th Cir. 1992) 971 F.2d 364, 367

Analysis of whether computer program alteration of displays constitutes fair use. Lewis Galoob Toys, Inc. v. Nintendo of America, Inc. (9th Cir. 1992) 964 F.2d 965, 969-972

Defendant political lobbying group's use of magazine's copyrighted parody of group was fair use. Hustler Magazine, Inc. v. Moral Majority Inc. (9th Cir. 1986) 796 F.2d 1148, 1152-1156

Fair use is mixed question of law and fact, and absent any genuine issues of material fact, or, if after resolving all issues in favor of opposing party, reasonable trier of fact can reach only one conclusion, court ai permitted to determine, as matter of law, whether challenged use qualifies as fair. Hustler Magazine, Inc. v. Moral Majority Inc. (9th Cir. 1986) 796 F.2d 1148, 1151

Because fair use presupposes good faith and fair dealing, courts properly weigh propriety of defendant's conduct in equitable balance of fair use determination. Fisher v. Dees (9th Cir. 1986) 794 F.2d 432, 436-437

Parody is not presumptively fair use; each assertion of parody defense is required to be considered individually, in light of reason, experience, statutory factors for determination of fair use, and general principles developed in past cases. Fisher v. Dees (9th Cir. 1986) 794 F.2d 432, 435

Defendant's publication of plaintiff's photograph was not fair use under when jury could reasonably have concluded that (1) photograph was used as humorous feature designed to enhance readership of defendant's magazine, (2) photograph was creative product; (3) only small portion of photograph was not reproduced; and (4) value of photograph as novelty item suffered from overexposure by defendant's publication. Brewer v. Hustler Magazine, Inc. (9th Cir. 1984) 749 F.2d 527, 529

[iv] Statute of Limitations

Act of infringement within the three-year statutory limitation period under 17 U.S.C. § 507(b) did not permit plaintiff to "reach back" to recover damages for infringing acts discovered more than three years before filing suit and not sued on earlier. Roley v. New World Pictures, Ltd. (9th Cir. 1994) 19 F.3d 479, 481

[d] Exclusive Rights

Manufacturer of karaoke device was obliged to obtain reprint license for reproducing copyrighted song lyrics and synchonization license for displaying those lyrics so that user of device could sing along with recorded music, in addition to obtaining any compulsory license available under 17 U.S.C. § 115. Leadsinger, Inc. v. BMG Music Publ'g (9th Cir. 2008), 512 F.3d 522, 529

Copyright Act construed as providing that licensing agreement is not terminable at will of author except during five-year period beginning at end of 35 years from date of execution of license, unless agreement explicitly specifies earlier termination date. Rano v. Sipa Press, Inc. (9th Cir. 1993) 987 F.2d 580, 585

Conditions under which copyright license to exhibit film on television do not include right to distribute videocassettes of film. Cohen v. Paramount Pictures Corp. (9th Cir. 1988) 845 F.2d 851, 854-855

Copyright license is required to be construed in accordance with purpose underlying federal copyright law. Cohen v. Paramount Pictures Corp. (9th Cir. 1988) 845 F.2d 851, 854

Under "first sale" doctrine of 17 U.S.C. § 109, copyright owner parting with title to particular copy of copyrighted work thereby divests himself or herself of exclusive right to vend that particular copy and is unable to restrict subsequent sales or transfers thereof. United States v. Minor (9th Cir. 1985) 756 F.2d 731, 734

[e] Jurisdiction

Copyright Act has no extraterritorial application to acts of infringement occurring entirely outside United States. Subafilms, Ltd. v. MGM-Pathe Communications (9th Cir. 1994) 24 F.3d 1088, 1095-1098

Presence of arbitration clause in copyright license agreement and state appellate review of arbitration award did not justify stay of copyright infringement action that was subject to exclusive federal court jurisdiction. Intel Corp. v. Advanced Micro Devices, Inc. (9th Cir. 1993) 12 F.3d 908, 913

Federal district court has subject matter jurisdiction over copyright infringement action by photograph copyright licensor who is British citizen seeking remedies against licensee under 17 U.S.C. §§ 502-505. Rano v. Sipa Press, Inc. (9th Cir. 1993) 987 F.2d 580, 584

Pendent jurisdiction over state law claims accompanying copyright infringement action as discretionary with federal district court. Rano v. Sipa Press, Inc. (9th Cir. 1993) 987 F.2d 580, 588

Action arises under federal copyright laws only if complaint is for remedies expressly granted by Copyright Act, asserts claim requiring construction of Act, or, at very least and perhaps more doubtfully, presents case when distinctive policy of Act requires that federal principles control disposition of claim. Effects Associates, Inc. v. Cohen (9th Cir. 1987) 817 F.2d 72, 73

Inclusion of single paragraph, in complaint for copyright infringement, for purposes of pleading separate claim for fraud and deceit and alluding to oral promise concerning use of plaintiff's works, did not transform infringement claim into one for breach of contract or defeat federal question jurisdiction. Effects Associates, Inc. v. Cohen (9th Cir. 1987) 817 F.2d 72, 73

State courts are fully competent to adjudicate state law breach of contract claims, even where underlying contract involves ownership, assignment, or license of copyright, much less mere assignment of royalties from copyrighted work. Durgom v. Janowiak (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 178, 180, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 619

[f] Notice and Registration

Copyright Act does not contemplate copyright of now-nonexistent original based on tendered reconstruction because types of material that must be deposited with application for certificate of copyright registration include bona fide copies of original work only. Seiler v. Lucasfilm, Ltd. (9th Cir. 1986) 808 F.2d 1316, 1322

Copyright on product design is invalidated by public distribution of copies of product, amounting to approximately 40 percent of owner's total product sales, without prescribed copyright notice. Lifshitz v. Walter Drake & Sons, Inc. (9th Cir. 1986) 806 F.2d 1426, 1432-1433

Misstatement or clerical error in copyright registration application, absent fraud, neither invalidates copyright nor renders registration certificate incapable of supporting infringement action. Cooling Systems and Flexibles v. Stuart Radiator (9th Cir. 1985) 777 F.2d 485, 487

Registration of work by Copyright Office is prima facie evidence of copyrightability and presumption shifts burden of proof to challenging party to demonstrate why work is not copyrightable. Transgo, Inc. v. Ajac Transmission Parts Corp. (9th Cir. 1985) 768 F.2d 1001, 1019

[g] Proof of Infringement

[i] In General

Elements required to be proven to establish infringement is ownership of valid copyright and copying of constituent original elements of copyrighted work. Feist Pub. v. Rural Tel. Serv. (1991) 499 U.S. 340, 111 S. Ct. 1282, 113 L. Ed. 2d 358, 379

Holder of copyrights in motion picture soundtrack musical composition rebutted presumption that songs composed in 1930's were "works for hire" and so established infringement by distributor of phonorecords. Dolman v. Agee (9th Cir. 1998) 157 F.3d 708, 712-713

Loading of software into computer RAM is creating copy within meaning of 17 U.S.C. § 101, and computer service company that loaded copyrighted maintenance software into RAM was engaged in copying. MAI Systems Corp. v. Peak Computer, Inc. (9th Cir. 1993) 991 F.2d 511, 519

Computer servicing company was licensed to use copyrighted software to operate only one system; other activities were copyright infringement. MAI Systems Corp. v. Peak Computer, Inc. (9th Cir. 1993) 991 F.2d 511, 517-519

Licensee of right to use copyright infringes copyright by exceeding scope of license without licensor's permission. S.O.S., Inc. v. Payday, Inc. (9th Cir. 1989) 886 F.2d 1081, 1087, 1089

Successful copyright infringement claim requires plaintiff to show (1) plaintiff's ownership of copyright; (2) defendant's access to plaintiff's work; and (3)substantial similarity, in both idea and expression, between defendant's work and plaintiff's work. Berkic v. Crichton (9th Cir. 1985) 761 F.2d 1289, 1291, 1292 ; Litchfield v. Spielberg (9th Cir. 1984) 736 F.2d 1352, 1355 ; Sid & Marty Krofft Television v. McDonald's Corp. (9th Cir. 1977) 562 F.2d 1157, 1162-1163

Direct evidence of copying is not necessary to establish prima facie case of copyright infringement. Walker v. University Books, Inc. (9th Cir. 1979) 602 F.2d 859, 864

[ii] Copyright Validity

Raw videotapes of newsworthy events were original works of authorship entitled to copyright protection. Los Angeles News Service v. Tullo (9th Cir. 1992) 973 F.2d 791, 793 (affirming judgment in favor of news service on copyright infringement claim against video news clipping service that copied and sold newscasts containing copyright holder's material)

Presumption of validity of copyright is rebuttable by showing that copyright holder's work is not original; test of lack of originality is identical to test for copyright infringement, namely whether copyright holder had access to prior work and whether its work is substantially similar to prior work. North Coast Industries v. Jason Maxwell, Inc. (9th Cir. 1991) 972 F.2d 1031, 1033 (reversing summary judgment for plaintiff clothing manufacturer in copyright infringement action against competitor using similar geometric design)

[iii] Substantial Similarity

In determining substantial similarity, performing "analytic dissection" in comparing expressions of ideas embodied in two computer programs was proper application of "extrinsic test." Brown Bag Software v. Symantec Corp. (9th Cir. 1992) 960 F.2d 1465, 1475

In assessing similarity of published directories, appearance in defendant's publication of one or more wholly or partially fictitious entries (known as "seeds") that also appear in plaintiff's copyrighted publication is strong evidence that copyrighted material has been appropriated. Business Guides v. Chromatic Com. Enterprises (9th Cir. 1989) 892 F.2d 802, 804

Reasonable person test for ascertaining substantial similarity in total concept and feel of infringing work to copyrighted work refers to reasonable person in intended audience of copyrighted work. Johnson Controls v. Phoenix Control Systems (9th Cir. 1989) 886 F.2d 1173, 1176

Quantitatively insignificant similarity between two works is not "substantial" unless appropriated material is qualitatively important to either defendant's or plaintiff's work. Narell v. Freeman (9th Cir. 1989) 872 F.2d 907, 913

When similar features in copyrighted videogame and allegedly infringing videogame are expressive of basic ideas of videogames in general, expression is indispensable in treatment of those ideas, based on technical requirements of videogame medium, and therefore is protected only against virtually identical copying. Frybarger v. International Business Machines Corp. (9th Cir. 1987) 812 F.2d 525, 530

Even though copied portion of copyrighted work is relatively small relative to entire work, if copied portion is qualitatively important, finder of fact properly finds substantial similarity between copyrighted and allegedly infringing works because no bright line rule governs how much similarity is substantial. Baxter v. MCA, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 812 F.2d 421, 425

Under "intrinsic" test for substantial similarity of expression, focus is not whether substantial similarity exists in total concept and feel of works in issue, but is whether that amount of protectible expression in allegedly infringed work is substantially similar to equivalent portions in allegedly infringing work. Cooling Systems and Flexibles v. Stuart Radiator (9th Cir. 1985) 777 F.2d 485, 492-493

Factual works are considered fundamentally different from more artistic works; therefore, similarity of expression is probably required to amount to verbatim reproduction or very close paraphrasing before factual work will be deemed infringed. Cooling Systems and Flexibles v. Stuart Radiator (9th Cir. 1985) 777 F.2d 485, 491

Two-part test for substantial similarity consists of (1) objective, "extrinsic" test, and (2) subjective, "intrinsic" test.

Berkic v. Crichton (9th Cir. 1985) 761 F.2d 1289, 1291, 1292

Similarity is not proved by general similarity of ideas but by similarity of expression of ideas; test for similarity of expression is whether reasonable person can detect substantial similarity between works. Sid & Marty Krofft Television v. McDonald's Corp. (9th Cir. 1977) 562 F.2d 1157, 1162-1165

[h] Public Performance

Playing copyrighted academic games in not-for-profit, educational tournament was not public "performance" within meaning of 17 U.S.C. § 101. Allen v. Academic Games League of America, Inc. (9th Cir. 1996) 89 F.3d 614, 616

Hotel's rental of videodiscs to guests for viewing in hotel rooms on hotel-provided video equipment is not public performance of copyrighted works within meaning of 17 U.S.C. §§ 101, 106(4). Columbia Pictures v. Professional Real Estate, Inv. (9th Cir. 1989) 866 F.2d 278, 279-280, 282

[i] Purpose of Federal Copyright Law

Subsisting "copyright" in preexisting work within meaning of Copyright Act of 1909 does not apply to common law copyrights. Batjac Productions, Inc. v. Goodtimes Home Video Corp. (9th Cir. 1998) 160 F.3d 1223, 1231

Copyright Act is intended to grant valuable enforceable rights to authors, publishers, and others, to afford greater encouragement to production of literary works of lasting benefit to world. Cohen v. Paramount Pictures Corp. (9th Cir. 1988) 845 F.2d 851, 854

[j] Remedies for Infringement

[i] Criminal Penalties

Punishment for conspiracy to commit misdemeanor copyright infringement is not permitted to exceed maximum punishment for misdemeanor copyright infringement. United States v. Minor (9th Cir. 1988) 846 F.2d 1184, 1187 , superseded by statute as stated in 29 F.3d 1390 (1994)

28 U.S.C. § 1498(b), providing that suit against federal government is exclusive remedy for owners claiming copyright infringement by federal government, is no defense to criminal prosecution for willful infringement of copyright. United States v. McCool (9th Cir. 1985) 751 F.2d 1112, 1113

[ii] Class Action

Availability of class action for infringement of copyright. Peer Intern. Corp. v. Pausa Records, Inc. (9th Cir. 1990) 909 F.2d 1332, 1333 , cert. denied, 498 U.S. 1109 (1991)

[iii] Costs and Attorney's Fees

Award of attorney's fees under 17 U.S.C. § 505 was equally available to prevailing plaintiffs and prevailing defendants, within the trial court's discretion. Fogerty v. Fantasy, Inc. (1994) 510 U.S. 517, 114 S. Ct. 1023, 127 L. Ed. 2d 455, 468-470 (unsuccessful infringement action by holder of copyright on song against original songwriter)

Plaintiff in infringement action can be prevailing party and so can be eligible to recover attorney's fees by establishing defendant's liability, whether or not judgment awards all damages that plaintiff sought, and even if only nominal damages are awarded. Wall Data Inc. v. Los Angeles County Sheriff's Dep't (9th Cir. 2006) 447 F.3d 769, 787

Factors to be considered include degree of success obtained, frivolousness of claim or defense, motivation of parties, and need in particular circumstances to advance considerations of compensation and deterrence. Magnuson v. Video Yesteryear (9th Cir. 1996) 85 F.3d 1424, 1432

[iv] Damages

Proper jury instruction on damages: "Actual damages means the amount of money to adequately compensate the copyright owner for the reduction of the market value of the copyrighted work caused by the infringement. The reduction of the market value of the copyrighted work is the amount a willing buyer would have been reasonably required to pay a willing seller at the time of the infringement for the actual use made by the [defendant] of the plaintiff's work. That amount also could be represented by the lost license fees [the plaintiff] would have received for the unauthorized copies." Wall Data Inc. v. Los Angeles County Sheriff's Dep't (9th Cir. 2006) 447 F.3d 769, 786 (sheriff's department bought 3,663 single-computer licenses for software, then installed that software on more than 6,000 computers in network)

Noneconomic and punitive damages are available in common law right-of-publicity action that is not preempted by federal copyright law. Waits v. Frito-Lay, Inc. (9th Cir. 1992) 978 F.2d 1093, 1104-1106 (affirming award of $75,000 for injury to goodwill, professional standing and future publicity value, $200,000 for injury to peace, happiness, and feelings, and $2 million in punitive damages)

Actual damages are defined as extent to which market value of copyrighted work has been injured or destroyed by infringement; Ninth Circuit test for market value is what willing buyer would have been reasonably required to pay to willing seller for plaintiff's work. United States v. King Features Entertainment, Inc. (9th Cir. 1988) 843 F.2d 394, 400

When copyright is infringed, all infringers are jointly and severally liable for plaintiff's actual damages. Frank Music Corp. v. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Inc. (9th Cir. 1985) 772 F.2d 505, 519

In action against defendants' brewing company and advertising agency, alleging infringement of copyright in music used in commercial prepared by agency to advertise brewing company's beer, court is required to avoid unjust enrichment of agency by assessing separate award of damages against agency through reasonable approximation of portion of agency's profits from use of infringing music. Cream Records, Inc. v. Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co. (9th Cir. 1985) 754 F.2d 826, 829

In infringement action, copyright owner is entitled to recover actual damages amounting to reasonable value of license for use of copyrighted work when defendants' unauthorized use destroyed value of work for licensing incommercial advertisements. Cream Records, Inc. v. Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co. (9th Cir. 1985) 754 F.2d 826, 827-828

[v] Declaratory Relief

Licensee's claim for declaration that licensor lacks valid and subsisting copyrights to films that are subject of licensing agreement presents case or controversy suitable for declaratory relief when licensee has real and reasonable apprehension that it would be subject of infringement action by licensor if it continues with use and exploitation of films. Hal Roach Studios v. Richard Feiner and Co. (9th Cir. 1989) 883 F.2d 1429, 1443

[vi] Injunctive Relief

In infringement action in which defendant ultimately prevailed, defendant was permitted to have bond executed in its favor for damages, including lost profits, incurred during pendency of preliminary injunction. Nintendo of America v. Lewis Galoob Toys (9th Cir. 1994) 16 F.3d 1032, 1036

Party requesting preliminary injunction is required to show either likelihood of success on merits and possibility of irreparable injury, or that serious questions going to merits are raised and balance of hardships tips sharply in its favor; in infringement claim, showing of reasonable likelihood of success on merits raises presumption of irreparable harm, and plaintiff is therefore only required to show reasonable likelihood of success on infringement claim. Johnson Controls v. Phoenix Control Systems (9th Cir. 1989) 886 F.2d 1173, 1174

[vii] Profits

When copyright is infringed, each defendant is severally liable for its own illegal profit; one defendant is not liable for profit made by another. Frank Music Corp. v. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Inc. (9th Cir. 1985) 772 F.2d 505, 519

Even though 17 U.S.C. § 504(b) places burden on infringer to show elements of profit attributable to factors other than copyrighted work, when it is clear that not all profits are attributable to infringing material, copyright owner is not entitled to recover all profits merely because infringer fails to establish with certainty that portion of profits not attributable to infringement. Cream Records, Inc. v. Jos. Schlitz Brewing Co. (9th Cir. 1985) 754 F.2d 826, 828-829

Partner, as co-owner of partnership's copyrights, is not liable to copartner for infringement, because each copyright co-owner has independent right to use or license use of copyright; but partner is required to account to copartner for profits made from use of copyrights. Oddo v. Ries (9th Cir. 1984) 743 F.2d 630, 633

[viii] Seizure

Malicious prosecution, rather than abuse of process, is defendant's appropriate counterclaim under California law when plaintiff in copyright infringement suit improperly obtains writ of seizure for allegedly infringing copies. S.O.S., Inc. v. Payday, Inc. (9th Cir. 1989) 886 F.2d 1081, 1091-1092

[k] Transfer of Copyright Ownership

Transfer of interest in co-owned copyright by one co-owner to third person, without like transfer from each other co-owner, cannot be assignment of copyright or grant of exclusive license that gives transferee any co-ownership interest in copyright. Sybersound Records, Inc. v. UAV Corp. (9th Cir. 2008) 517 F.3d 1137, 1141

Potential claims under Copyright Act can be extinguished by release given in exchange for consideration and stated in unambiguous language broad enough to encompass those claims, in absence of evidence that either particular claim was not intended to be covered or release was obtained by fraud, deception, misrepresentation, duress, or undue influence. Marder v. Lopez (9th Cir. 2006) 450 F.3d 445, 449-450

Valid transfer of copyright ownership in motion picture is required by 17 U.S.C. § 204(a) to be made in writing, and writing requirement as applicable to motion picture industry regardless of industry custom of oral agreements. Effects Associates, Inc. v. Cohen (9th Cir. 1990) 908 F.2d 555, 556, 556-558

Special effects company impliedly granted nonexclusive license to producer to incorporate special effects footage into film and to distribution company to distribute film. Effects Associates, Inc. v. Cohen (9th Cir. 1990) 908 F.2d 555,

558-559

In addition to requirement under 17 U.S.C. § 204 that transfer of copyright be in writing to be valid, writing is required to be product of parties' negotiations and be executed contemporaneously with parties' agreement. Konigsberg Intern., Inc. v. Rice (9th Cir. 1994) 16 F.3d 355, 357

Civ. Code § 988 provides that written agreement is required before transfer of property rights may accompany transfer of copyright rights. Chamberlain v. Cocola Associates (9th Cir. 1992) 958 F.2d 282, 282-285 (remanding case to determine whether transaction at issue was loan or sale)

Civ. Code § 988 does not apply to sale of underlying property rights to art object. Chamberlain v. Cocola Associates (9th Cir. 1992) 958 F.2d 282, 282-285 (remanding case to determine whether transaction at issue was loan or sale)

When contracting for transfer of any of exclusive rights under copyright, transferee must obtain writing executed by copyright owner, which owner intends as memorandum of contract transferring exclusive right. PMC, Inc. v. Saban Entertainment, Inc. (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 579, 591-592, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 877

[2] Federal Preemption

[a] State Law Action Preempted

Singer's claims for violation of her common law right to privacy and her California statutory right of publicity [see Civ. Code § 3344], based on alleged misappropriation of her voice and name in defendant's song, were preempted by Copyright Act; however, this holding does not extinguish common law or statutory rights of privacy, publicity, and trade secrets, or general law of defamation and fraud (or other similar causes of action), as long as those causes of action do not concern subject matter of copyright and contain qualitatively different elements than those contained in copyright infringement suit. Laws v. Sony Music Entm't, Inc. (9th Cir. 2006) 448 F.3d 1134, 1145-1146

Author's state law claims that defendants misappropriated his unpublished letters for use in book by "palm[ing] them off" as their own was preempted by federal copyright law. Norse v. Henry Holt and Co. (9th Cir. 1993) 991 F.2d 563, 568

In construing scope of license to use copyright, California rule of contract construction that contract should be interpreted against drafter, thereby deeming licensor-drafter to have granted licensee any right not expressly retained by licensor, is preempted by federal copyright policy that copyright licenses are assumed to prohibit any use not authorized. S.O.S., Inc. v. Payday, Inc. (9th Cir. 1989) 886 F.2d 1081, 1088

Even if defendant's alleged false claim of authorship of music, words, and title of song parody constitutes tort under California law of unfair competition, cause of action is preempted by federal copyright law. Fisher v. Dees (9th Cir. 1986) 794 F.2d 432, 440

In enacting Copyright Act of 1976, Congress intended that state law claims for interference with contract or prospective economic advantage would be preempted when based on unauthorized use or copying of copyrightable property. Maheu v. CBS, Inc. (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 662, 677, 247 Cal. Rptr. 304

State law conversion claim is preempted by federal Copyright Act if damages sought emanate from reproduction and distribution, rather than physical possession, of work. Maheu v. CBS, Inc. (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 662, 672-673, 247 Cal. Rptr. 304

Federal Copyright Act of 1976 preempted rights created by state common law copyright if those rights are equivalent to those protected by federal copyright law and subject matter of copyright falls under federal Act. Robert H. Jacobs, Inc. v. Westoaks Realtors, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 637, 642-643, 205 Cal. Rptr. 620

[b] State Law Action Not Preempted

Statute against pirating recordings produced by others [Penal Code § 653h] is not preempted by federal copyright laws. Goldstein v. California (1973) 412 U.S. 546, 571, 93 S. Ct. 2303, 37 L. Ed. 2d 163 ; but see Nimmer on Copyright, Ch. 1, Constitutional Aspects of Copyright, § 1.01 (Matthew Bender) (discussing whether Goldstein holding was preempted by section 301 of Copyright Act of 1976, 17 U.S.C. § 301)

When complaint essentially alleges copyright infringement for sole purpose of obtaining determination of ownership of copyright, federal court lacks subject matter jurisdiction, because questions regarding the ownership of a copyright are governed by state law. Scholastic Entm't, Inc. v. Fox Entm't Group, Inc. (9th Cir. 2003) 336 F.3d 982, 983

Penal Code § 653w, making it criminal offense to sell or lease recorded music for commercial advantage or private financial gain without disclosing its "origin" (that is, manufacturer, artist, producer, etc.) is not preempted by federal copyright laws. Anderson v. Nidorf (9th Cir. 1994) 26 F.3d 100, 102

Voice misappropriation claim was variation of California common law right of publicity that was not preempted by federal copyright law because copyright infringement claim challenged unauthorized use of song or recording while voice misappropriation claim challenged use of voice. Waits v. Frito-Lay, Inc. (9th Cir. 1992) 978 F.2d 1093, 1100 (action by widely known singer against manufacturer's radio commercial featuring vocal performance that imitated singer's voice)

Noneconomic and punitive damages were available in right-of-publicity action under California law. Waits v. Frito-Lay, Inc. (9th Cir. 1992) 978 F.2d 1093, 1104-1106 (affirming award of $75,000 for injury to goodwill, professional standing and future publicity value, $200,000 for injury to peace, happiness, and feelings, and $2 million in punitive damages)

Plaintiff's pendent state law claim for misappropriation of trade secrets is not preempted by federal copyright law when trade secrets action does not involve legal or equitable right equivalent to any exclusive right of copyright owner under federal copyright law. S.O.S., Inc. v. Payday, Inc. (9th Cir. 1989) 886 F.2d 1081, 1090

Professional singer's action for damages for unauthorized imitation of her distinctive voice in product advertisement is not preempted by federal copyright law when singer is not seeking damages for use of song, because singer's voice is not protectible as original work of authorship fixed in tangible medium of expression. Midler v. Ford Motor Co. (9th Cir. 1988) 849 F.2d 460, 462

In copyright infringement action, plaintiff's state causes of action for conversion of tangible property and breach of partner's fiduciary duty was not preempted by federal Copyright Act of 1976 when state claims involved actions different from those proscribed and interests different from those protected by federal copyright law. Oddo v. Ries (9th Cir. 1984) 743 F.2d 630, 635

Federal action seeking to overturn assignment of copyright renewal rights was properly dismissed because questions of contract rights that are dependent on common law or equitable principles are state law questions even if copyright interests are involved. Dolch v. United California Bank (9th Cir. 1983) 702 F.2d 178, 180-181

Claim under Civ. Code § 3344 was not preempted when based on invasion of right (plaintiff's right of publicity) not equivalent to exclusive rights under Copyright Act and on use of noncopyrightable subject matter (model's likeness), even though it was captured in copyrightable photograph. KNB Enterprises v. Matthews (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 362, 365, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 713

[3] Ideas Protected Under State Law

[a] Breach of Confidence

[i] In General

To prevail on claim for breach of confidence in disclosing or using idea without permission, plaintiff is required to show (1) plaintiff conveyed confidential and novel information to defendant, (2) defendant knew information was conveyed in confidence, (3) plaintiff and defendant understood that confidence be maintained, and (4) defendant disclosed or used information in violation of confidential understanding. Aliotti v. R. Dakin & Co. (9th Cir. 1987) 831 F.2d 898, 903

Action for breach of confidential relationship when plaintiff disclosed idea in confidence. Davies v. Krasna (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 502, 506-510, 121 Cal. Rptr. 705, 535 P.2d 1161 ; Faris v. Enberg (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 309, 323, 158 Cal. Rptr. 704 ; Donahue v. United Artists Corp. (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 794, 801, 83 Cal. Rptr. 131 ; Thompson v. California Brewing Co. (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 469, 474-476, 310 P.2d 436

Breach of confidence is not predicated solely on express agreement protecting confidence and can be established without proof of promise, but no breach of confidence can arise absent understanding that confidential nature of information will be maintained. Tele-Count Engineers, Inc. v. Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 455, 466, 214 Cal. Rptr. 276

Confidential relationship is not created from mere submission of idea to another; evidence of communication of confidentiality of submission or evidence from which confidential relationship can be inferred is required. Tele-Count Engineers, Inc. v. Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 455, 462, 214 Cal. Rptr. 276

[ii] Novelty Required

Even though information need not be protectible under copyright law to be subject of breach of confidence action, idea is required to be confidential and novel. Tele-Count Engineers, Inc. v. Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 455, 462, 214 Cal. Rptr. 276

[b] Breach of Contract

[i] In General

To prevail on claim for breach of implied-in-fact contract to pay for conveyance or use of idea, plaintiff is required to show (1) plaintiff prepared work embodying idea, (2) plaintiff disclosed work to defendant for sale, (3) defendant voluntarily accepted disclosure knowing conditions on which it was tendered, and (4) reasonable value of work; contract to pay for conveyance of idea is not implied when plaintiff discloses idea solely to induce defendant to enter future business relationship, rather than to gain compensation for idea. Aliotti v. R. Dakin & Co. (9th Cir. 1987) 831 F.2d 898, 902

Implied-in-fact contract to pay for conveyance of idea is enforceable only if circumstances and conduct manifesting terms and existence of contract precede or attend disclosure of idea, but if disclosure made in confidence, even though apparently not preceded by conduct indicating existence of implied-in-fact contract, disclosing party is not held to have lost opportunity to be beneficiary of such a contract. Landsberg v. Scrabble Crossword Game Players, Inc. (9th Cir. 1984) 736 F.2d 485, 489-490

Defendants' profits were proper measure of plaintiff's compensatory contract damages under Civ. Code § 3358 for defendant's breach of implied-in-fact contract to pay plaintiff for use of idea, and plaintiff was therefore entitled to more than fair value of defendant's use of his idea, when contract was not for use of idea, but for defendant to refrain from using idea without plaintiff's permission, i.e., required both compensation and plaintiff's permission to plaintiff's manuscript. Landsberg v. Scrabble Crossword Game Players, Inc. (9th Cir. 1986) 802 F.2d 1193, 1198

Imposition of punitive damages against defendant for breach of implied-in-fact contract to pay plaintiff for use of his idea was not clearly erroneous when defendant denied existence of contract in bad faith and without probable cause. Landsberg v. Scrabble Crossword Game Players, Inc. (9th Cir. 1986) 802 F.2d 1193, 1199

Conveyance of idea is capable of constituting valuable consideration and of being bargained for before it is disclosed to proposed purchaser. Desny v. Wilder (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 715, 737-738, 299 P.2d 257

Idea purveyor must show an express promise to pay or circumstances indicating implied-in-fact promise. Desny v. Wilder (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 715, 737-738, 299 P.2d 257

Plaintiff who is purported assignee of certain rights in third party's idea, but who has no contact with defendant, is unable to assert claim for breach of confidence against defendant arising out of defendant's unauthorized use of third party's idea, regardless of implied-in-fact promise by defendant to third party not to use idea without paying for use. Rokos v. Peck (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 604, 619, 227 Cal. Rptr. 480

Action for breaching either express or implied-in-fact contract. Desny v. Wilder (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 715, 737-738, 299 P.2d 257 ; Mann v. Columbia Pictures, Inc. (1981) 128 Cal. App. 3d 628, 634-651, 180 Cal. Rptr. 522

Conditions for implied-in-fact contract were not met when plaintiff did not allege access to ideas by defendants who engaged in alleged pirating of ideas. Klekas v. EMI Films, Inc. (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 1102, 1114-1115, 198 Cal. Rptr. 296

Complaint by plaintiff, who developed fully worked-out subtheme into complete television series, against defendant who allegedly produced series based on plaintiff's ideas stated cause of action for breach of contract. Fink v. Goodson-Todman Enterprises, Ltd. (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 996, 1006-1016, 88 Cal. Rptr. 679

[ii] Novelty and Concreteness Not Required

Action on express or implied contract is not required to prove concreteness or novelty of idea. Fink v. Goodson-Todman Enterprises, Ltd. (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 996, 1008-1009 n.16, 88 Cal. Rptr. 679 ; Blaustein v. Burton (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 161, 183, 88 Cal. Rptr. 319 ; Donahue v. Ziv Television Programs, Inc. (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 593, 600, 54 Cal. Rptr. 130

Idea to be subject matter of contract is not required to be novel or concrete. Donahue v. Ziv Television Programs, Inc. (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 593, 600, 54 Cal. Rptr. 130

[c] Ideas Not Literary Property

Abstract ideas are not entitled to protection in action for plagiarism under either federal or state law. Rokos v. Peck

(1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 604, 612, 227 Cal. Rptr. 480

_____ [name], Defendant.	)	COMPLAINT

Plaintiff alleges:

1. This action arises under the Act of October 19, 1976, Title I § 101, 90 Stat. 2541; 17 U.S.C. § 501; and this court has jurisdiction under the Act of June 25, 1948, c. 646, 62 Stat. 931; 28 U.S.C. § 1338, as hereinafter more fully appears.

2. Prior to _____ [date copyright protection sought and secured], plaintiff _____ [name], who then was and ever since has been a citizen of the United States, created and _____ [ specify mode of creation, e.g., wrote] an original _____ [specify copyrighted work, e.g., novel], entitled _____ [name].

3. This _____ [specify copyrighted work, e.g., novel] contains a large amount of material wholly original with plaintiff and is copyrightable subject matter under the laws of the United States.

4. Between _____ [date] and _____ [date], plaintiff complied in all respects with the Act of October 19, 1976, Title I § 101, 90 Stat. 2541; 17 U.S.C. §§ 401-412, and all other laws governing copyright and secured the exclusive rights and privileges in and to the copyright of the above-entitled work, and received from the Register of Copyrights a certificate of registration, dated and identified as follows: "_____ [date], Class _____, No. _____."

5. Since _____ [date copyright secured], the above entitled work has been _____ [specify nature of fixation in tangible medium, e.g., published] by plaintiff and all copies of it made by plaintiff or under his or her authority or license have been _____ [specify manner of fixation, e.g., published] in strict conformity with the provisions of the Act of October 19, 1976, Title I § 101, 90 Stat. 2541 and all other law governing copyright.

6. Since _____ [date copyright secured], plaintiff has been and still is the sole proprietor of all rights, title, and interest in and to the copyright in the above-entitled work.

7. After _____ [date copyright secured], defendant _____ [name] infringed plaintiff's copyright by _____ [specify nature of infringement, e.g., by publishing and placing on the market a book entitled _____ (name)], which was copied largely from plaintiff's copyrighted work entitled _____ [name].

8. A copy of plaintiff's copyrighted work is attached hereto as Exhibit 1; and a copy of defendant's infringing work is attached hereto as Exhibit 2.

9. Plaintiff has notified defendant that defendant has infringed the copyright of plaintiff, and defendant has continued to infringe the copyright.

10. After _____ [date copyright secured], and continuously since about _____ [date], defendant has been _____ [specify nature of infringement, e.g., publishing and placing on the market a book entitled _____ (name)], and has thereby been engaging in unfair trade practices and unfair competition against plaintiff to plaintiff's irreparable damage.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff demands:

1. That defendant, his or her agents, and servants be enjoined during the pendency of this action and permanently from infringing the copyright of plaintiff in any manner, and from _____ [specify manner of infringement, e.g., publishing, selling, marketing, or otherwise disposing of any copies of the book entitled _____ (name)].

2. That defendant be required to pay to plaintiff such damages as plaintiff has sustained in consequence of defendant's infringement of plaintiff's copyright and the unfair trade practices and unfair competition, and to account for:

a. All gains, profits, and advantages derived by defendant by said trade practices and unfair competition; and

b. All gains, profits, and advantages derived by defendant by his or her infringement of plaintiff's copyright or such damages as the court shall deem proper within the provisions of the copyright statutes, but not less than $250.

3. That defendant deliver up to be impounded during the pendency of this action all copies of said work entitled _____ [name] in his or her possession or under his or her control and deliver up for destruction all infringing copies and all plates, molds, and other matter for making such infringing copies.

4. That defendant pay to plaintiff the costs of this action and reasonable attorney's fees to be allowed to the plaintiff by the court.

5. That plaintiff have such other and further relief as is just.

[2] Source of Form

This complaint is adapted from Official Form Number 17 contained in the Appendix of Forms of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. It is sufficient under the rules and is intended to indicate the simplicity and brevity of statement which the rules contemplate [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 84].

[3] Use of Form

This complaint is for use in a federal district court to obtain an accounting and damages [see 17 U.S.C. § 504], injunctive relief [see 17 U.S.C. § 502], and the impoundment and destruction of infringing articles [see 17 U.S.C. § 503] in an action for infringement of a federal statutory copyright [see 17 U.S.C. § 501 et seq.].

Paragraph 10 contains pleadings under state law for unfair competition for misappropriation of a copyrighted work. However, some federal courts have held that under the Federal Copyright Act of 1976, these claims are preempted by the federal copyright statute [see, e.g., Mitchell v. Penton/Indus. Pub. Co. (N.D. Ohio 1979) 486 F. Supp. 22, 24-26 ; Orth-O-Vision, Inc. v. Home Box Office (S.D. N.Y. 1979) 474 F. Supp. 672, 683-684].

An award of attorney's fees under 17 U.S.C. § 505 is equally available to prevailing plaintiffs and prevailing defendants, within the trial court's discretion [Fogerty v. Fantasy, Inc. (1994) 510 U.S. 517, 114 S. Ct. 1023, 127 L. Ed. 2d 455, 468-470 (unsuccessful infringement action by holder of copyright on song against original songwriter)].

For discussion of federal statutory copyright, see § 349.20 et seq.

[4] Jurisdiction and Venue

Federal district courts have exclusive jurisdiction of actions involving copyrights arising under federal statutes [28 U.S.C. § 1338(a)]. Federal district courts also have jurisdiction of a civil action for unfair competition joined with a substantial, related copyright claim [28 U.S.C. § 1338(b)].

In the Ninth Circuit, an action arising under federal copyright law is sufficient to confer subject-matter jurisdiction on the federal district court if the complaint satisfies any one of the three following independent grounds [Vestron, Inc. v. Home Box Office, Inc. (9th Cir. 1988) 839 F.2d 1380, 1381]:

- The complaint is for a remedy expressly granted by the Copyright Act,
- The complaint asserts a claim requiring construction of the Copyright Act, or
- The complaint presents case in which the distinctive policy of the Copyright Act requires that federal principles control disposition of the claim.

When a suit is for a naked declaration of copyright ownership, absent a bona fide infringement claim, federal courts properly decline jurisdiction [Vestron, Inc. v. Home Box Office, Inc. (9th Cir. 1988) 839 F.2d 1380, 1381]. However, the fact that the plaintiff claims ownership of copyright through a contested contract governed by state law is not fatal to federal jurisdiction, because beneficial owner of the copyright is entitled to establish facts supporting claim of beneficial ownership, even though that requires interpretation of contract [Vestron, Inc. v. Home Box Office, Inc. (9th Cir. 1988) 839 F.2d 1380, 1382].

When a fatal flaw appears on the face of a complaint that purports to assert a copyright infringement action, the action is properly dismissed for lack of subject matter jurisdiction, but when no such flaw appears, the federal court properly possesses subject matter jurisdiction [Vestron, Inc. v. Home Box Office, Inc. (9th Cir. 1988) 839 F.2d 1380, 1382 (court had jurisdiction)].

In copyright infringement actions, venue is proper in the district in which the defendant or the defendant's agent resides or may be found [28 U.S.C. § 1400(a)]. The Ninth Circuit interprets this statutory rule to allow venue in any judicial district in which the defendant would be amenable to personal jurisdiction if the district were a separate state [Columbia Pictures Television v. Krypton Broad. of Birmingham, Inc. (9th Cir. 1997) 106 F.3d 284, 289 , rev'd on other grounds, Feltner v. Columbia Pictures Television, Inc. (1998) 523 U.S. 340, 118 S. Ct. 1279, 140 L. Ed. 2d 438] .

When the defendant would not be susceptible to general personal jurisdiction in the district (if it were a separate state)--that is, the defendant is not a resident there--the court uses a three-part test to determine whether the defendant has had sufficient minimum contacts with the district (considering it as a separate state) to be susceptible to specific personal jurisdiction there [Schwarzenegger v. Fred Martin Motor Co. (9th Cir. 2004) 374 F.3d 797, 802] .

(1) The nonresident defendant must purposefully direct activities toward, or consummate some transaction with a resident of, the district; or the defendant must perform some act by which to purposefully avail himself/herself/itself of the privilege of conducting activities in the district, thereby invoking the benefits and protections of the laws in effect there [see generally Brayton Purcell LLP v. Recordon & Recordon (9th Cir. 2009) 575 F.3d 981, 985-986 (discussing this test and applying it to hold that venue was proper in Northern District of California, in action against resident of Southern District)].

(2) The claim must be one that arises out of or relates to the defendant's district-related activities.

(3) The exercise of jurisdiction must comport with fair play and substantial justice, that is, it must be reasonable.

[5] Verification

Verification of the complaint is not required [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11(a)], but if a temporary restraining order is sought without notice to the defendant, it must clearly appear from specific facts shown by affidavit or verified complaint that immediate and irreparable injury, loss, or damage will result if the order is not granted [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 65]. Hence, verification is included [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446].

[2] Judicial Council Trial Court Forms

Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12 (Stats. 1982, Ch. 272) requires that the Judicial Council develop and approve official forms for use in California trial courts for any complaint, cross complaint, or answer in any action based on breach of contract. Use of these forms is optional [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12].

[3] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use in an action for damages for the unlawful and unauthorized use of an idea. For discussion of contractual protection of ideas, see § 349.46.

It consists of the Judicial Council contract complaint to which a Judicial Council breach of contract cause of action form has been added [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45(a), (b); Cal. Judicial Council Forms PLD-C-001, PLD-C-001(1)]. Additionally the form includes two causes of action, implied contract and breach of confidence, that have been prepared as attachments to the Judicial Council contract complaint [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45(c)]. The attachments have been prepared on the Judicial Council's form that may be used as an additional page with any form [see Cal. Judicial Council Form MC-020].

For general information relating to use of Judicial Council complaint forms, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross

Complaints . These forms are available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[4] Preemption by Copyright Act of 1976

Counsel should carefully analyze the facts of the case and consider whether the cause of action is preempted by the Copyright Act of 1976, which preempts equivalent state law claims [see Endermol Enterntainment, B.V. v. Twentieth Television, Inc. (C.D. Cal. 1998) 1998 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 19049 ; 48 U.S.P.Q.2D (BNA) 1524] .

[5] Filling Out Breach of Contract Complaint Form

For general instructions on how to fill out the first cause of action for breach of contract, see Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.100[3].

Attachments that are not on Judicial Council cause of action forms, such as the second and third causes of action in this form, must be numbered consecutively beginning with "1," and must be preceded with one or more identifying letters derived from the title of the cause of action [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45(c)]. The paragraphs in this form for the second count are lettered "IC" as derived from the title "Implied Contract," while theparagraphs for the third count are lettered "BCF" as derived from the title "Breach of Confidence."

[6] Contents of Form

[a] Breach of Contract

In an action for breach of contract, as contained in the first cause of action, plaintiff should:

- Either attach a copy of the written agreement to the complaint or allege the essential terms of the agreement (Paragraph BC-1);

- Allege the facts showing how defendant breached the agreement (Paragraph BC-2); and

- Specify the damages proximately caused by defendant's breach that were suffered by plaintiff (Paragraph BC-4) [see Civ. Code § 3300].

For further discussion of a cause of action for breach of contract, see Ch. 140, Contracts .

[b] Breach of Implied Contract

In an action for breach of an implied contract, as contained in the second cause of action, plaintiff should allege:

- Defendant's liability under Civ. Code § 1621 (Paragraph IC-1);

- Facts implying that a contract was made between the parties (Paragraph IC-2) [see Desny v. Wilder (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 715, 737-738, 299 P.2d 257 ; see also Grosso v. Miramax Film Corp. (9th Cir. 2004) 383 F.3d 965, 967 ("Grosso's complaint mirrors the requirements of Desny and states that 'the idea was submitted by Plaintiff to Defendants with the understanding and expectation, fully and clearly understood by Defendants that Plaintiffs would be reasonably compensated for its use by Defendants.' We conclude that the complaint stated a Desny claim.")];

- The reasonable value of the defendant's use of the idea (Paragraph IC-3); and

- Defendant's breach of the implied agreement, plaintiff's performance of all obligations, and the damages that plaintiff suffered (Paragraph IC-4, incorporating Paragraphs BC-2, BC-3, and BC-4 of the first cause of action by reference).

[c] Breach of Confidence

Actionable breach of confidence arises when a novel and confidential idea is offered to another in confidence after an opportunity to reject the disclosure, and the disclosure is voluntarily received by the offeree in confidence with the understanding that the idea is not to be disclosed to others or used by the offeree for purposes beyond the limits of the confidence without the offeror's permission [Tele-Count Engineers, Inc. v. Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 455, 462, 465, 214 Cal. Rptr. 276].

Thus, in an action for breach of confidence, as contained in the third cause of action, plaintiff should allege:

- Defendant's liability for the breach of confidence (Paragraph BCF-1) [see Thompson v. California Brewing Co. (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 469, 474-476, 310 P.2d 436].

- Facts showing submission of idea to defendant in confidence (Paragraph BCF-2) [see Tele-Count Engineers, Inc. v. Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 455, 465, 214 Cal. Rptr. 276 (actual notice of confidentiality required)].

- The reasonable value of defendant's use of plaintiff's idea disclosed in confidence (Paragraph BCF-3).

- Facts showing acceptance of idea in confidence by defendant (Paragraph BCF-4).

- Facts showing the breach of confidence by defendant (Paragraph BCF-5).

- Plaintiff's performance of all obligations and the damages that plaintiff suffered (Paragraph BCF-6, incorporating Paragraphs BC-3 and BC-4 of the first cause of action by reference) [see Civ. Code § 3333].

[7] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case in the superior court [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

[8] Attachment of Documentation

Code Civ. Proc. § 429.30(b) applies to an action for breach of contract based on use of the plaintiff's idea [see Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 778, 785, 256 P.2d 947]. A copy of any written material or production embodying the idea together with a copy of the alleged infringing work, must be attached to the complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 429.30(b)]. If, however, by reason of bulk or the nature of the production it is not practicable to attach a copy to the complaint, that fact and the reasons why it is impracticable must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 429.30(b)].

PART I. SCOPE

31-350 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 350.01

§ 350.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses and provides forms for several different kinds of actions involving logs and timber. It also contains a brief discussion of the statutory framework regulating timber resources in California, on both state and private lands.

Forms are included for use in actions for damages from the breach of an agreement to sell timber [see §§ 350.60-350.64], actions for damages from the wrongful cutting or removal of timber [see §§ 350.65, 350.66], forms connected with the assertion of logger's and lumber-millman's liens [see §§ 350.67, 350.68], and a declaration for an application to the Labor Commissioner by a logging employee for a stop notice because of unpaid wages [see § 350.69].

The chapter also includes forms of affirmative defense to claims for treble damages on the grounds that the defendant did not act maliciously [see § 350.70], and that the defendant's entry and removal of timber was not wrongful [see § 350.71].

For a form of a remainderman's complaint that a life tenant's behavior constituted waste, see Ch. 344, Life Estates and Remainders . For a form for use in abating a private nuisance caused by encroachment of roots and branches from adjoining property, see Ch. 11, Adjoining Landowners, § 11.75. For a form for use in an action for trespass when timber, trees, or underwood has been damaged, see Ch. 550, Trespass .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

31-350 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 350.10

§ 350.10 Governing Statutes

Timber resources in national forests and on federal lands are governed by 16 U.S.C. § 471a et seq. Timber resources in California, on both state and privately owned lands, are governed by Pub. Res. Code § 4101 et seq. Damages for injury to or removal of standing timber are governed by Civ. Code § 3346 and Code Civ. Proc. § 733.

Contracts for the sale of standing timber are held by Com. Code § 2107(2) to be within the scope of and governed by Division 2 of the Uniform Commercial Code [Com. Code § 2101 et seq.]. The recordation of such contracts is governed by Civ. Code § 1220. Financing statements regarding standing timber are governed by Com. Code §§ 9203(b)(3)(A), 9301(3)(B), 9501(a)(1)(A), 9502(b), (c), 9519(d), (e), and 9525(d). The tax treatment of cutting or disposal of standing timber is governed by I.R.C. §§ 611-638 and Rev. & Tax. Code § 17681.

Transportation of logs and timber by motor vehicles is governed by Veh. Code §§ 35414, 35552.

Logger's and lumber-millman's liens are governed by Civ. Code §§ 3065-3065b. Stop notices by the Labor Commissioner regarding wages due but not paid to logging employees are governed by Civ. Code § 3065c. Funds or bonds to cover wages due logging employees are governed by Lab. Code § 270.5.

Criminal statutes regarding logs and timber appear in Health & Safety Code § 13003, Penal Code §§ 356, 593a, and Pub. Res. Code §§ 4021, 4601, 4605, and 4879.

Chapter 350 LOGS AND TIMBER
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

31-350 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 350.11

§ 350.11 Definitions and Common Logging Terms

The word "log" has been defined as a usually bulky piece or length of unshaped timber. The word "timber" has been generally defined as trees fit to be used for lumber in building or construction [Buffum v. Texaco, Inc. (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 732, 735, 50 Cal. Rptr. 852] , but also has a more specific definition--large squared or dressed pieces of wood ready for use or forming part of a structure.

Several terms describing people employed in the logging industry appear in this chapter. A "faller" (sometimes called "feller") is a logger who fells trees. A "bucker" is a worker who cuts felled trees into shorter lengths. A "cruiser" (sometimes called "timber cruiser") is a person who estimates the volume and value of marketable timber on a tract of land and maps it out for logging. A "millhand" is a worker in a lumber mill.

The terms "boom company" and "booming company" refer to companies involved in the floating of logs down rivers (or other bodies of water) to the place of milling or manufacture.

Volume 31: Lis Pendens thru Mandate and Prohibition-Chs. 348-358
Chapter 350 LOGS AND TIMBER
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

31-350 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 350.12

§ 350.12 Wrongful Timber Removal or Injury

[1] Treble Damages

For wrongful injuries to timber, trees, or underwood on the land of another or removal thereof, the measure of damages is three times such sum as would compensate for the actual detriment [Civ. Code § 3346(a); Code Civ. Proc. § 733]. However, an award of treble damages under Civ. Code § 3346 or Code Civ. Proc. § 733 is warranted only when the defendant's acts were willful or malicious, [Caldwell v. Walker (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 758, 762, 27 Cal. Rptr. 675], and such an award is strictly within the trial court's discretion [Caldwell v. Walker (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 758, 763, 27 Cal. Rptr. 675].

Although an award of double the actual damages is mandatory under Civ. Code § 3346, the court retains discretion whether to triple them under that statute or Code Civ. Proc. § 733 [Ostling v. Loring (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1731, 1742, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 391 ; Heninger v. Dunn (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 858, 869, 162 Cal. Rptr. 104] . The effect of Civ. Code § 3346 as amended, read together with Code Civ. Proc. § 733, is that the Legislature intended, insofar as willful and malicious trespass is concerned under either section, to leave the imposition of treble damages discretionary with the court, but to place a floor upon that discretion at double damages that must be applied whether the trespass be wilful and malicious or casual and involuntary [Ostling v. Loring (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1731, 1742, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 391 (award of $150,000 in actual damages on complaint requesting $50,000 unsupportable)].

A default judgment is an admission of malice sufficient for an award of double damages, but without more evidence of malice, will not support an award of triple damages [Ostling v. Loring (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1731, 1750, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 391 (double damages awarded)]

For forms of complaint for treble damages, see §§ 350.65, 350.66. For affirmative defenses claiming treble damages are not available, see §§ 350.70, 350.71

[2] Double Damages for Negligent Injuries

When the injuries were caused by casual or involuntary trespass, or when defendant in any action brought under Civ. Code § 3346 had probable cause to believe that the land on which the trespass was committed was his or her own or the land of the person in whose service or by whose direction the act was done, the measure of damages is twice the sum as would compensate for the actual detriment [Civ. Code § 3346(a)].

The removal of trees after the expiration of a contractual right to do so is subject to double damages for wrongful removal [Hendren v. Yonash (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 672, 680-681, 52 Cal. Rptr. 738 (affirming double damage award)]. All timber removed from the property after the expiration date is to be included in the calculation of that timber wrongfully removed [Hendren v. Yonash (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 672, 680-681, 52 Cal. Rptr. 738 (award based on value of timber delivered to mill after expiration date, regardless of when cut)].

In a case involving damages caused to plaintiff's trees by a fire negligently caused by defendant, the court turned down plaintiff's attempt to recover under the double damages provision of Civ. Code § 3346(a), stating [Gould v. Madonna (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 404, 408, 85 Cal. Rptr. 457]:

"The normal use of Civil Code Section 3346 is in cases where timber has been cut from another's land, either with or without knowledge that the cutting was wrongful. It has been suggested that the purpose of the statute is to educate blunderers (persons who mistake location of boundary lines) and to discourage rogues (persons who ignore boundary lines), to protect timber from being cut by others than the owner. [Citations.] We have found no indication anywhere that anyone has considered that the double damages provisions of Section 3346 are applicable to fire damage caused by negligence... . Section 3346 is irrelevant to the damage in this case."

[3] Actual Damages for Public Taking

When the injuries were caused by the taking of wood by the authority of highway officers for the purpose of repairing a public highway or bridge on the land or adjoining it, judgment must only be given in a sum equal to the actual detriment [Civ. Code § 3346(a)].

[3A] Statute of Limitations

The time limitation for wrongful injuries to timber, trees, or underwood in violation of Civ. Code § 3346 is five years from the date of trespass [Civ. Code § 3346(c)].

For a form for pleading the affirmative defense of statute of limitations in a trespass case, see Ch. 550, Trespass, § 550.48.

[3B] Standing

When plaintiffs own the subject property as trustees of a trust holding title, and are the beneficiaries of such trust, plaintiffs can maintain an action under Civ. Code § 3346 in their own name, without mentioning the trust [Hassoldt v. Patrick Media Group, Inc. (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 153, 171, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 662 (standing affirmed)]. Likewise, an out-of-possession landowner who has leased the property to a third party still has sufficient possessory interest to maintain an action for wrongful destruction or injury to timber, trees, or underwood [Hassoldt v. Patrick Media Group, Inc. (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 153, 171, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 662] .

[3C] Pleading Multiple Damages

A complaint that asks for actual damages and "treble said damages pursuant to statute" for a claim under Civ. Code § 3346 and Code Civ. Proc. § 733 is sufficient to put defendant on notice of a demand for multiple damages under those statutes [Ostling v. Loring (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1731, 1750-1751, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 391] .

[4] Proper Place for Trial

The proper place for the trial of an action for damages from defendant's wrongful injuries to or removal of timber is the county in which the trees were located [Wolfe v. Wallace (1957) 154 Cal. App. 2d 523, 527, 316 P.2d 697].

[5] Evidentiary Issues

A witness's testimony concerning his or her prior, nefarious tree trimming activities on behalf of a party charged with wrongful injury to timber, trees, or underwood must contain a striking degree of similarity to that tree trimming at issue in order to be admissible under Evid Code § 1101 primarily as evidence of the identity of the party who injured the timber [Hassoldt v. Patrick Media Group, Inc. (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 153, 164, 165, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 662] . For identity to be established, the misconduct not at issue and the misconduct at issue must share common features that are sufficiently distinctive so as to support the inference that the same person committed both acts. The matching pattern and characteristics of the two sets of misconduct must be so unusual and distinctive as to be like a signature [Hassoldt v. Patrick Media Group, Inc. (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 153, 165, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 662] . Likewise, where the identity of the actor is in dispute and the uncharged misconduct fails to satisfy the stringent "so unusual and distinctive as to be like a signature" standard, the uncharged conduct is not admissible on such issues as intent, motive, or lack of mistake or accident in the wrongful injury to timber [Hassoldt v. Patrick Media Group, Inc. (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 153, 166, 167, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 662] .

[6] Measure of Compensatory Damages

The usual measure of compensatory damages in a case involving damage to timber, trees, or underwood is the difference between the value of the real property before and after the injury [Hassoldt v. Patrick Media Group, Inc. (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 153, 167, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 662] .

An alternative measure of damages is the cost of restoring the timber, trees, or underwood to their condition prior to the injury. Courts will normally not award costs of restoration if they exceed the diminution in the value of the timber, trees, or underwood. The plaintiff may be awarded the lesser of the two amounts. Stated otherwise, a recovery for diminution in value can never exceed the value of the timber, trees, or underwood prior to the injury [Hassoldt v. Patrick Media Group, Inc. (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 153, 167-168, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 662 ; Heninger v. Dunn (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 858, 862-863, 162 Cal. Rptr. 104] . However, the rule precluding recovery of restoration costs in excess of diminution in value is not of invariable application. Restoration costs may be awarded even though they exceed the decrease in market value when there is a reason personal to the owner for restoring the original condition or where there is reason to believe that the plaintiff will, in fact, make the repairs [Hassoldt v. Patrick Media Group, Inc. (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 153, 168, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 662 ; Heninger v. Dunn (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 858, 863, 162 Cal. Rptr. 104] .

Furthermore, if the restoration of the timber, trees, or underwood to a reasonable approximation of their former condition is impossible or impracticable, the landowner may recover the value of the timber, trees, or underwood, either as timber or for their aesthetic qualities, again without regard to the diminution in the value of the timber, trees, or underwood. However, only reasonable costs of replacing destroyed timber, trees, or underwood with identical or substantially similar timber, trees, or underwood may be recovered. Proposed replacement costs may be unreasonable or excessive in relation to the damage inflicted upon the timber, trees, or underwood or their value prior to the trespass. In that case, the achievement of a reasonable approximation of the land's former condition may involve something less than substantially identical restoration [Heninger v. Dunn (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 858, 865, 162 Cal. Rptr. 104 (restoration damages in excess of diminution in value of timber)].

[7] Punitive Damages

Due to the penal nature of the provisions, the damages for wrongful destruction or injury to timber, trees, or underwood may be neither doubled nor tripled under Civ. Code § 3346 if punitive damages are awarded under Civ. Code § 3294. If the fact finder finds the defendant responsible for damaging the plaintiff's tree and also finds that defendant's conduct was engaged in fraudulently, oppressively or maliciously, the jury is to be permitted to determine, under proper instruction, the punitive damages to which the plaintiffs are entitled. The plaintiffs may then elect to have a judgment entered that reflects either the court's multiplication of the compensatory damage under Civ. Code § 3346 or the compensatory and punitive damages under Civ. Code § 3294 [Hassoldt v. Patrick Media Group, Inc. (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 153, 169, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 662] .

[8] Post-Trial Challenge to Method of Valuation

A proper post-trial challenge to the method of valuation of a claim under Civ. Code § 3346 and Code Civ. Proc. § 733 is by either a motion for new trial or an appeal from the default judgment, rather than a motion to vacate judgment [Ostling v. Loring (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1731, 1749-1750, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 391 (denying of motion to vacate)].

For discussion of motions for new trial, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial . For discussion of appeal, see Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview , et seq.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

31-350 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 350.13

§ 350.13 Sales

[1] Standing Timber as Goods

The fee interest in standing timber (i.e., timber not yet cut) is conveyable separately from the title to the property on which the timber stands [Buffum v. Texaco, Inc. (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 732, 734, 50 Cal. Rptr. 852 ; Miller v. Taber (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 792, 795, 309 P.2d 110]. Such a sale is considered to be a contract for the sale of goods subject to Division 2 (Sales) of the Commercial Code, whether it is to be severed by the buyer or the seller even though it forms part of the realty at the time of contracting, if the parties can, by identification, effect a present sale before severence [Com. Code § 2107(2)].

[2] Recordation of Contract

Contracts for the purchase or sale of standing timber or trees, for severance or otherwise, may be recorded in like manner and with like effect as grants of real property, and all statutory provisions relating to the recordation or nonrecordation of conveyances of real property and to the effect thereof apply to such contracts with like effect [Civ. Code § 1220].

[3] Removal Within Specified Time

When a contract for the sale of standing trees states that the trees are to be removed within a specified time, title passes to the buyer only as to those trees that he or she cuts and removes within the designated period, with title to the remaining trees staying in the seller [Whittaker v. Thompson (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 192, 194, 1 Cal. Rptr. 7, 347 P.2d 7 ; Drewry v. Welch (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 159, 165, 46 Cal. Rptr. 65 ; see Mallett v. Doherty (1919) 180 Cal. 225, 229, 180 P. 531]. The severed timber is considered the buyer's personal property [Eistrat v. Western Hardwood Lbr. Co. (1958) 164 Cal. App. 2d 374, 379, 330 P.2d 629].

The fact that the instrument employs words of present grant does not necessarily establish title in the vendee beyond the period allowable for removal. The question in each case is as to what is the contract between the parties [Hendren v. Yonash (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 672, 677, 52 Cal. Rptr. 738 (no title absolute conveyed)].

The expiration of rights by failure to exercise an option to extend a contract for standing timber does not work a forfeiture against the optionee. The reversion of title on an expiration date has the same effect. There simply is nothing left for the optionee to act upon [Hendren v. Yonash (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 672, 677, 52 Cal. Rptr. 738 (option not exercised solely by act of continued removal of timber)]. In the absence of a contract clause to the contrary, the landowner has no duty to notify the buyer of the approaching deadline for extending the contract [Hendren v. Yonash (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 672, 680, 52 Cal. Rptr. 738 (landowner did not waive rights or act in manner justifying estoppel)].

The removal of trees after the expiration of the right to do so is subject to double damages for wrongful removal [Hendren v. Yonash (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 672, 680-681, 52 Cal. Rptr. 738 (buyer failed to exercise extension option but continued to remove trees); see § 350.12[2]].

[4] Wrongful Interference With Severance Contract

Generally, when a landowner prevents or interferes with performance of a contract to sever timber standing on his or her land, the court may extendthe term of the contract by operation of law [Mallett v. Doherty (1919) 180 Cal. 225, 230, 180 P. 531 ; Rossi v. Hackett (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 400, 408, 12 Cal. Rptr. 12]. The court's power to extend the term of such a contract, however, does not include the power to grant further extensions because of contingencies not related to procedural matters intended to accomplish the enforcement of the judgment; for example, the inability of the logger to obtain rights-of-way over adjacent land in order to reach the property to be logged [Orban Lbr. Co. v. Fearrien (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 853, 858-859, 50 Cal. Rptr. 41].

§ 350.14 Reservation of Timber Rights

A deed reserving to the grantor the right to remove timber "at any time" in the future from the deeded land was held to give the grantor a perpetual right to remove the timber [Cochran v. Union Lumber Co. (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 423, 426, 102 Cal. Rptr. 632]. On the other hand, a deed granting land with a reservation of the use of the surface by the grantor for pasturage and farming until the construction of a dam did not by implication reserve timber rights, even though the deed allowed the owner to take timber from the land for the upkeep of his fences and buildings [Coffill v. Bach (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d 163, 168, 323 P.2d 873].

§ 350.14A Failure to Deliver Timber With Land

When specific performance of an exercised option to convey timber-land is ordered, but the vendors cut and removed some of the timber before exercise of the option, rendering full performance impossible, the purchaser is entitled to take the land and timber remaining as partial performance, with compensation for the timber removed. The measure of damages is the same as in an action at law for partial breach of the contract of sale [McCowen v. Pew (1905) 147 Cal. 299, 303, 81 P. 958 (compensation cannot be allowed in the enhanced value thereof, as if the timber removed had been left standing when the proposed railroad was completed)]. Namely, damages are to be calculated at the value at the time when the vendors were ready to complete the contract by making a deed sufficient to convey good title to the vendees [McCowen v. Pew (1905) 147 Cal. 299, 303, 81 P. 958 (deed satisfying option contract was delayed)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

31-350 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 350.15

§ 350.15 Logger's and Lumber-Millman's Liens

Any person who uses his or her own labor or his or her livestock, machinery, or appliances in connection with felling, preparing, or transporting any logs or in manufacturing lumber or other products therefrom, has a lien on the logs and products for unpaid wages [Civ. Code § 3065]. For these purposes, a corporation is a "person" eligible to obtain a logger's lien [Acco Contractors, Inc. v. McNamara & Peepe Lumber Co. (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 292, 294, 297, 133 Cal. Rptr. 717] . This law does not allow a lien for hauling lumber as such after it has been manufactured to a point where it is prepared for consumption merely because the person who purchases it wants to have it hauled to another point for remanufacture [Morehouse v. Shipman Lbr. Servaes Co. (1959) 168 Cal. App. 2d 135, 141, 335 P.2d 496] .

The lien extends to all logs and manufactured products not removed from the county [Civ. Code § 3065a]. This limitation renders the statute largely ineffective. It is common knowledge that the method of handling logs and the manufacture of logs into lumber has changed radically with the advent of powerful trucking equipment and powerful machinery for use in the woods. Instead of mills located in the woods whereby the process of making lumber was carried at least to the point of rough lumber manufacture before the materials were hauled out, it is now common for the trees to be felled, prepared for shipment and then trucked as logs or cants to centrally-located mills that may be hundreds of miles from the point where the trees were felled. As the industry is now conducted, loggers' liens limited to the county where the work is done are often lost before the next payday of the laborer. These considerations, however, do not justify a distortion by way of construction of plain legislative provisions. Any needed change in the legislation is for the Legislature [Morehouse v. Shipman Lbr. Servaes Co. (1959) 168 Cal. App. 2d 135, 138, 335 P.2d 496] .

The lien is limited in duration to 30 days unless an action is instituted within 30 days of cessation of work by plaintiff to foreclose the lien [Civ. Code § 3065a; see § 350.67 for form of complaint]. The date of cessation of the work must be construed to mean the final date work was done or services rendered on any of the logs, lumber, or other manufactured timber products on which the lien is claimed, so as to give the lien claiment or his or her assignee or successor in interest a full 30 days after final cessation of labor to bring suit to foreclose the lien [Civ. Code § 3065b; see Virden v. Neese (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 724, 730-731, 152 P.2d 761]. The lien does not depend on possession or notice [Division of Labor Law Enforcement v. Siskiyou Mills (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 105, 109, 40 Cal. Rptr. 111].

§ 350.16 Labor Commissioner's Stop Order

Whenever any faller, bucker, or millhand [see § 350.11 for definitions] has a logger's lien pursuant to Civ. Code § 3065 and has not been paid for his or her labor by the contractor employing him or her and money is owing to such contractor by a mill operator, the faller, bucker, or millhand may file with the Labor Commissioner an affidavit stating the amount of wages unpaid and describing the labor for which the wages are owed and the period in which the labor was performed [Civ. Code § 3065c]. If the Labor Commissioner finds the affidavit in order, he or she must send to the mill operator a stop notice directing the mill operator to withhold funds in the amount of the unpaid wages from the contractor [Civ. Code § 3065c; see § 350.69 for form of declaration].

§ 350.17 Security Deposits by Contractors

Before commencing work in any period for which a payment of wages would be due, a logging contractor or sawmill operations contractor must either (1) have on hand or on deposit with a bank or trust company sufficient cash or readily salable market securities to pay the wages of each person to be employed during the pay period (or for four weeks, whichever is longer); or (2) deposit with the Labor Commissioner an acceptable bond conditioned on the payment of all wages found by the Labor Commissioner to be due and unpaid in connection with such operations [Lab. Code § 270.5]. An exception from compliance with this rule is made only if the person has an unencumbered title to the fee of real property located within California which has a market value sufficient to pay the wages of every person to be employed during the pay period or for four weeks, whichever is longer [Lab. Code § 270.5].

§ 350.18 Marking of Logs and Timber

In all cases when two or more persons, firms, or corporations are engaged in or intend to engage in putting or placing logs or timber into any navigable water in California to raft or float them for one mile or more to a place of manufacture or sale, the person, firm, or corporation may have some mark of his, her, or its selection, authenticated as provided by statute, impressed in a conspicuous place on the end or surface of each log or piece of timber [Pub. Res. Code § 4875]. Any log or timber that has such a recorded mark impressed on it must be presumed to belong to the person, firm, or corporation in whose name it was recorded [Pub. Res. Code § 4877].

It is unlawful, except for boom companies that may be required to catch and hold logs or timber, to take up or have in possession, sell, dispose of, or convert or appropriate to one's own use any marked log without the owner of the mark's written consent, and knowledge of the ownership of all such timber must be conclusively presumed on proof that the timber was marked and the mark recorded [Pub. Res. Code § 4879]. Cutting or altering a mark is also a criminal offense [Penal Code § 356].

§ 350.19 Floating or Drifting Logs

Whenever any lumber drifts on any island in any of the waters in California or on the bank of any such waters, the owner of the lumber may remove it on payment or tendering to the owner or occupant of the land the amount of damages sustained by the owner or occupant by reason of the drifting of the lumber, and which may accrue in its removal [Pub. Res. Code § 4853]. As used in Pub. Res. Code §§ 4851-4855, "lumber" means all timber, whether in logs, boards, planks, or beams, and whether in rafts or otherwise, but does not include driftwood [Pub. Res. Code § 4851]. If the owner of the lumber does not remove it within three months from the time it drifted, the landowner or occupant must deliver a bill of charges and the lumber to the county sheriff for disposal [Pub. Res. Code § 4853]. When sold, the proceeds of the lumber must be applied first to the payment of the charges of sale and liquidation of the expenses and damages awarded to the claimant, with the residue going to the county treasurer [Pub. Res. Code § 4854]. On production by the former lumber owner of proof of ownership satisfactory to the judge of the county and his or her order therefor, the county treasurer must pay the residue over to the former lumber owner [Pub. Res. Code § 4854]. The rejection by the judge of any claimant's right to such proceeds is conclusive unless he or she commences action within six months thereafter to obtain the proceeds [Pub. Res. Code § 4855].

§ 350.20 State Control of Timber Resources

Control of timber resources in California is vested in the State Board of Forestry and Fire Protection, part of the Department of Forestry [see Pub. Res. Code § 730]. Among the board's responsibilities are (1) representation of the state's interest in the acquisition and management of state forests as provided by law and in federal land matters relating to forestry protection of the state's interests in forest resources on private lands, and (2) the determination, establishment, and maintenance of an adequate forest policy [Pub. Res. Code § 740]. The board is also mandated to prepare and implement a forest management information storage and retrieval program [Pub. Res. Code § 743], and implement a public information program on matters involving forest management [Pub. Res. Code § 745]. State agencies submit to the board plans for, and the results of, all investigations relating to or having an effect on forest resource utilization for review and comment, and the board may, at its expense, contract with any state or local agency to investigate and report on any technical factors involved in forest management [Pub. Res. Code § 743].

Detailed implementation of the State Board of Forestry's functions appears in Pub. Res. Code § 4001 et seq. Among the more important of these sections for purposes of this chapter are Pub. Res. Code § 4101 et seq., dealing with prevention and control of forest fires, and Pub. Res. Code § 4511 et seq., known as the Z'berg-Nejedly Forest Practice Act of 1973, which creates a comprehensive system of regulation and use of all timberlands [see Pub. Res. Code § 4513; see also Laupheimer v. State of California (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 440, 457, 246 Cal. Rptr. 82 (holding Forest Practice Act facially constitutional); for detailed coverage of the Forest Practice Act, see Manaster and Selmi, California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 80, Forestry Development (Matthew Bender)]. Other sections of note are Pub. Res. Code § 4851 et seq., dealing with floating lumber, and Pub. Res. Code § 4875 et seq., dealing with the marking of logs.

Finally, a specific logging operation on privately owned timberlands is subject to Pub. Res. Code § 21000 et seq., commonly known as the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA), even though the logger may prepare a timber harvesting plan under the Forest Practice Act instead of a complete environmental impact report (EIR) [Environmental Protection Info. Ctr., Inc. v. Johnson (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 604, 609, 616, 216 Cal. Rptr. 502 ; see Pub. Res. Code § 21080.5 (exemption from filing complete EIR); Laupheimer v. State of California (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 440, 462, 246 Cal. Rptr. 82 ("cumulative impact" analysis not required in timber harvesting plan); see also Sierra Club v. State Bd. of Forestry (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1215, 1230-1231, 1234, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 19, 876 P.2d 505 (timber harvesting exempt only from EIR requirements and CEQA time limits)]. For complete coverage of CEQA, see Ch. 418, Pollution and Environmental Matters , and Manaster and Selmi, California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Chs. 20-23 (Matthew Bender).

The Forest Practice Act [Pub. Res. Code § 4101 et seq.] and the California Timberland Productivity Act [Gov. Code § 51100 et seq.] do not expressly or impliedly preempt all local zoning regulations with regard to timber operations. Thus, county ordinances restricting timber harvesting operations to specific areas and regulating the areas where helicopter operations associated with harvesting could occur were not preempted. Local zoning ordinances that speak to the location of timber operations, but not to the manner in which they are carried out, are not preempted [Big Creek Lumber Co. v. City of Santa Cruz (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 1139, 1157].

§ 350.43 State Statutes

[1] Agricultural Industry

Planned production of trees is considered as branch of agricultural industry of state for purposes of any law providing for benefit or protection of agricultural industry. Food & Agric. Code § 22

Trees, vines, and other horticultural crops grown by planned production are growing agricultural crops for purpose of any laws pertaining to agricultural industry of state. Food & Agric. Code § 23

[2] Crimes and Offenses

Cutting or altering marks on log, lumber, or wood is misdemeanor. Penal Code § 356

Driving metallic or ceramic object into tree intended for harvest or wood intended for manufacture is felony; additional prison term in case of injury to another. Penal Code § 593a

Possession of any iron, steel, ceramic, or other substance sufficiently hard to injure saws or wood manufacturing or processing equipment with intent to violate Penal Code § 593a is punishable by imprisonment not in excess of one year. Penal Code § 593g

Willful or negligent commission of acts prohibited by or omission of acts required by Pub. Res. Code § 4251 et seq. (statutes protecting forest lands) is misdemeanor. Pub. Res. Code § 4021

Violation of any provision of Z'berg-Nejedly Forest Practice Act of 1973 [Pub. Res. Code § 4511 et seq.] is misdemeanor. Pub. Res. Code § 4601

Imposition of civil penalty in misdemeanor action for violation of Z'berg-Nejedly Forest Practice Act of 1973. Pub. Res. Code § 4601.1(a)(2)

Violation of procedural rule or regulation that does not result in any environmental damage is an infraction. Pub. Res. Code §§ 4601.4, 4601.5

Possession, sale, disposal, or conversion of marked logs or timber is punishable by fine or imprisonment. Pub. Res. Code § 4879

Running steam-powered logging locomotive or other steam-run machine near forest land without adequate devices to prevent escape of fire or sparks is misdemeanor. Health & Safety Code § 13003

[3] Damages for Injuries or Removal

Treble damages for wrongful injuries to timber, trees, or underwood on another's land, or removal thereof. Civ. Code § 3346(a); Code Civ. Proc. § 733

Double damages when trespass causing injuries was casual or involuntary, or when defendant had probable cause to believe that land on which trespass committed was his or her own or land of person in whose service or by whose direction act was done. Civ. Code § 3346(a)

Actual damages when injury to wood caused by taking by highway officers to repair public highway or bridge on land or adjoining it. Civ. Code § 3346(a)

Damages to owner of land injured by drifting lumber. Pub. Res. Code § 4852

[4] Drifting Lumber

Term "lumber" in Pub. Res. Code § 4851 et seq. includes all timber, but excludes driftwood. Pub. Res. Code § 4851

Damages payable to owner of land injured by drifting lumber. Pub. Res. Code § 4852

Disposition of lumber by sheriff when owner does not remove it within three months from time of drifting. Pub. Res. Code § 4853

Application of proceeds of sale of drifting lumber. Pub. Res. Code §§ 4854, 4855

[5] Easements

Right to take wood from land is type of easement appurtenant to land. Civ. Code § 801(5)

Right to take wood is easement creatable by grant. Civ. Code § 802(6)

31-350 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 350.45

§ 350.45 Decisions

[1] Damages for Injury to Timber

Damages for both value of timber and restoration of property through reforestation was proper when both timber and soil were damaged by fire caused by defendant and when plaintiff required by law to replant to certain minimum density. People v. Southern Pacific Co. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 627, 635, 188 Cal. Rptr. 913

[2] Definitions

Word "timber," unless modified or controlled by other expressions in an instrument, means trees fit to be used for lumber in building or construction. Buffum v. Texaco, Inc. (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 732, 735, 50 Cal. Rptr. 852 ; Crain v. Hoefling (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 396, 405, 132 P.2d 882

[3] Drifting or Floating Logs

Former Pub. Res. Code § 4702 [see now Pub. Res. Code § 4852], providing that when lumber (which term includes logs) drifts on any island in any of the waters of this state, or on the bank of any such waters, its owner may remove it on payment or tendering to owner or occupant of land amount of damages sustained by reason thereof and which may accrue in its removal, requires payment of damages to tenant in possession of damaged land and does not requiring any allocation of any portion of such damages to landlord. Bess v. Wise (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 158, 163, 79 Cal. Rptr. 611

Former Pub. Res. Code § 4702 [see now Pub. Res. Code § 4852], does not directly indemnify owner or occupant of riparian land against damage from floating logs or require owner of logs to pay such damages, but permits owner of logs to recover them from land on payment or tender of damages to owner or occupant thereof. Bess v. Wise (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 158, 163-164, 79 Cal. Rptr. 611

Right of landlord to be subrogated to right of tenant to receive damages caused by floating logs under Pub. Res. Code § 4702 [see now Pub. Res. Code § 4852] to the extent that landlord has made expenditures in repairing damage done to leased premises by flood-borne logs. Bess v. Wise (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 158, 165, 79 Cal. Rptr. 611

Lessee is entitled to proceeds of sale of unmarked logs lodged on leased premises by floodwater. Bess v. Wise (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 158, 165-167, 79 Cal. Rptr. 611

[4] Environmental Requirements for Logging Operation

Timber harvest operations are subject to all provisions of California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) except environmental impact report (EIR) requirements and CEQA time limits [Pub. Res. Code § 21167]; Department of Forestry is authorized by Pub. Res. Code § 21160 to request information needed to identify significant adverse impacts of timber harvest plan, even if information is not required by forest practice rules. Sierra Club v. State Bd. of Forestry (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1215, 1230-1231, 1234, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 19, 876 P.2d 505

Declaratory relief action alleging Department of Forestry engaged in "pattern and practice" of improperly assessing cumulative impacts of logging in Mokelumne River watershed but not alleging any specific violations raised actual controversy for which relief could be available; plaintiff failed to prove that Department's pattern and practice of assessing cumulative impacts was legally inadequate. East Bay Mun. Utility Dist. v. Department of Forestry (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 1113, 1119, 1129, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 299

Pub. Res. Code § 21167.4, which requires request for hearing to be filed within 90 days of filing writ of mandate challenging an EIR, applies to writs challenging timber harvest plans. Dakin v. Department of Forestry & Fire Protection (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 681, 686-687, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 490

"Cumulative impact" provisions of CEQA Guidelines (14 Cal. Code Reg. § 15000 et seq.) do not apply literally to timber harvesting plan procedure set forth in Forest Practice Act of 1973 (Pub. Res. Code § 4511 et seq.); Forestry Department is only required to look for, and in some reasonable manner assess, potential cumulative environmental effects and to give sufficient consideration to any effect reasonably considered significant; requisite consideration was not given when cumulative impact issues were repeatedly brought to Department's attention and Department failed to incorporate adequate response into major issue statement prepared pursuant to Pub. Res. Code § 4582.6. Laupheimer v. State of California (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 440, 462, 466, 246 Cal. Rptr. 82 (distinguishing Environmental Protection Information Center, Inc. v. Johnson (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 604, 216 Cal. Rptr. 502)

California Department of Transportation had no duty to comply with CEQA requirements before issuing encroachment permits that allowed timber to be hauled off logging site via busy mountain highway, because Department had no power of approval over activities integral to logging project. Lexington Hills Assn. v. State of California (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 415, 429, 430-431, 246 Cal. Rptr. 97

CEQA and its substantive criteria for evaluation of proposed project's environmental impact apply to timber harvesting industry, and is deemed part of Forest Practice Act of 1973 (Pub. Res. Code § 4511 et seq.) and Forestry Rules. Environmental Protection Information Center, Inc. v. Johnson (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 604, 626, 216 Cal. Rptr. 502

Exemption granted to timber harvesting industry under Pub. Res. Code § 21080.5 is not blanket exemption from CEQA, but instead grants only limited exemption from CEQA by allowing timber harvester to prepare timber harvesting plan pursuant to Forest Practice Act of 1973 (Pub. Res. Code§ 4511 et seq.) in lieu of complete EIR; remainder of CEQA applies to timber harvesting industry. Environmental Protection Information Center, Inc. v. Johnson (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 604, 616, 620, 216 Cal. Rptr. 502

CEQA provides that agencies evaluating timber harvesting project for environmental impact consult with all agencies having jurisdiction over affected natural resources, including archaeological sites; Native American Heritage Commission has that jurisdiction [Pub. Res. Code § 21080.4]. Environmental Protection Information Center, Inc. v. Johnson (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 604, 626, 216 Cal. Rptr. 502

[5] Logger's and Lumber-Millman's Liens

Logger's lien provided by Civ. Code § 3065 is not dependent on possession or notice. Division of Labor Law Enforcement v. Siskiyou Mills (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 105, 109, 40 Cal. Rptr. 111

Lien, and not attachment, creates logger's interest in property. Division of Labor Law Enforcement v. Siskiyou Mills (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 105, 113, 40 Cal. Rptr. 111

Logger's lien was lost when owner ships logs or lumber out of county before commencement of foreclosure action. Division of Labor Law Enforcement v. Siskiyou Mills (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 105, 109, 40 Cal. Rptr. 111 ; Morehouse v. Shipman Lbr. Servaes Co. (1959) 168 Cal. App. 2d 135, 138, 335 P.2d 496

Thirty day period for logger's lien prescribed by statute [see Civ. Code § 3065] does not commence to run until final cessation of labor on all logs covered by logging contract. Virden v. Neese (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 724, 730-731, 152 P.2d 761

[6] Ownership of Trees

Rule that in common ownership of trees each of owners is entitled to realize value of his or her own interest and that in considering situation when one owner sells trees from part of common property, court is entitled to view all of contiguous lands owned by persons involved, so that if one owner takes no more than his or her legitimate fractional interest of total, other owners in common may not complain, is qualified by another rule of equal authority that one owner in common cannot take more than his or her fractional share in value of products of common property involved. Garibaldi v. Garibaldi (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 9, 11, 70 Cal. Rptr. 92

[7] Permits for Loggers

Logger is not a specialty contractor required to be licensed under Contractors License Law [Bus. & Prof. Code § 7000 et seq.], but is subject to former Forest Practice Act [Pub. Res. Code § 4521 et seq.], which controls activities of loggers in logging and clearing of timberlands, and permit required by Pub. Res. Code § 4586 is only permit state requires. Fray v. Rogers (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 858, 863, 77 Cal. Rptr. 776

[8] Protection of Forests

County ordinance requiring use permit before designating land as timberland preserve zone conflicted with Forest Taxation Reform Act of 1976 (Gov. Code § 51110 et seq.), which allows landowners to receive tax benefits as incentive for protecting and conserving timberland. State of California v. County of Santa Clara (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 608, 613-614, 191 Cal. Rptr. 204

[9] Reservation of Timber Rights

Deed reserving to grantor right to remove timber "at any time" in future gave grantor perpetual right to do so. Cochran v. Union Lbr. Co. (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 423, 426, 102 Cal. Rptr. 632

[10] Sales Contracts of Timber

[a] In General

Fee interest in standing timber is conveyable separately from title to property on which timber stands. Buffum v. Texaco, Inc. (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 732, 734, 50 Cal. Rptr. 852 ; Miller v. Taber (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 792, 795, 309 P.2d 110

Where grant is of "all the merchantable timber," court looks first to grant itself for definition of what parties intended "merchantable timber" to mean. Mailliard v. Willow Creek Ranch Co. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 370, 374, 78 Cal. Rptr. 139

Grant of land with reservation of use of surface for pasturage and farming until construction of dam did not constitute reservation of ownership in timber, even though deed allowed owner to take timber for upkeep of fencing and repair of buildings on land. Coffill v. Bach (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d 163, 168, 323 P.2d 873

In action for breach of contract to sell both land and timber, statutory measure of contract damages [Civ. Code § 3300] does not allow plaintiff to recover damages both for appreciation in value of timber on land and depreciation in value of mill erected by plaintiff on land, when latter was not caused by breach itself. Crag Lbr. Co., Inc v. Crofoot (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 755, 777, 301 P.2d 952

[b] Severance of Standing Timber

Contract for sale of standing trees to be severed and removed within specified period of time passes title to vendee to only those trees cut and removed within period. Whittaker v. Thompson (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 192, 194, 1 Cal. Rptr. 7, 347 P.2d 7 ; Drewry v. Welch (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 159, 165, 46 Cal. Rptr. 65 ; see Mallett v. Doherty (1919) 180 Cal. 225, 229, 180 P. 531

Standing timber purchased separately from land under contract for severance becomes personalty under Civ. Code §§ 658 and 660 for all purposes depending on contract of purchase. Sloan v. Hiatt (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 926, 929, 54 Cal. Rptr. 351 ; see Palmer v. Wahler (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 705, 711, 285 P.2d 8

Fact that growing timber is treated as goods in sales contract does not cause title to pass ipso facto unless contract shows that to be intention of parties. Drewry v. Welch (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 159, 166, 46 Cal. Rptr. 65 (decided under former Civ. Code § 1739)

Formal notice of rescission of logging contract given five months after discovery of mutual mistake as to boundaries of land to be logged is sufficiently prompt when facts showed other grounds of rescission arose during five-month interval which were continuing subjects of discussion between parties. Hil-Mac Corp. v. Mendo Wood Products, Inc. (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 526, 530, 45 Cal. Rptr. 396

In action against timber owner for breach of contract to cut and remove merchantable timber, trial court's failure to take into account value to plaintiff of being able to remove logging equipment and accept employment elsewhere was error requiring reduction in damages awarded plaintiff. Pfaff v. Fair-Hipsley, Inc. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 274, 281-283, 42 Cal. Rptr. 624

Severed timber is personal property of purchaser. Eistrat v. Western Hardwood Lbr. Co. (1958) 164 Cal. App. 2d 374, 379, 330 P.2d 629

Measure of damages where defendant failed to deliver precision cut lumber under logging contract is value to contractee of performance of contract as against damage occasioned by reason of nonperformance. Israel v. Campbell (1958) 163 Cal. App. 2d 806, 816-817, 330 P.2d 83

Contract for right to sever and remove timber is contract for sale of goods. Ascherman v. McKee (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 277, 282-283, 299 P.2d 367

Damages were properly awardable to supplier of logs when evidence showed that defendant's method of measuring supplied logs resulted in deprival to plaintiff of credit for 63,540 feet of lumber. Kinkle v. Fruit Growers Supply Co. (1944) 63 Cal. App. 2d 102, 107-108, 146 P.2d 8

[11] State Control of Timber Resources

Forest Practice Act and California Timberland Productivity Act do not preempt county ordinances regulating location of timber operations. Big Creek Lumber Co. v. City of Santa Cruz (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 1139, 1157

County ordinance requiring conditional use permit to harvest timber on residential-zoned property is preempted by Pub. Res. Code § 4516.5 of Forest Practice Act (Pub. Res. Code § 4511 et seq.) when timber operations are to occur on land area of three or more acres. Westhaven Community Development Council v. County of Humboldt (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 365, 371-372, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 536

Regulation exempting timber operations on any parcel of land of less than three acres from requirement of preparing timber harvest plan [former 14 Cal. Code Reg. § 1038(c)] was not authorized by statute and therefore was invalid. Environmental Protection Information Center v. Department of Forestry & Fire Protection (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 1011, 1027, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 892

County ordinance establishing timber harvest buffer zone is not preempted by Forest Practice Act. Big Creek Lumber

Co. v. County of San Mateo (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 418, 422, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 159

[12] Wrongful Interference With Severance Contract

Extension by operation of law of time for performance of contract to enter another's land and cut timber where landowner prevented performance ofcontract. Mallett v. Doherty (1919) 180 Cal. 225, 230, 180 P. 531 ; Rossi v. Hackett (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 400, 408, 12 Cal. Rptr. 12

Court's power to extend term of logging contract on finding of wrongful interference does not include power to grant further extension because of contingencies not related to procedural matters intended to accomplish enforcement of judgment, e.g., inability to obtain rights-of-way over land adjacent to defendant's property to reach standing timber covered by contract. Orban Lbr. Co. v. Fearrien (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 853, 858-859, 50 Cal. Rptr. 41

[13] Wrongful Removal of Timber

Damages for wrongful removal of orange trees was cost of replacement of trees; plaintiff was entitled to doubled damages even though punitive damages were not awarded, but not if punitive damages are awarded. Baker v. Ramirez (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1123, 1137-1138, 235 Cal. Rptr. 857

Damages for injury to trees to be doubled or trebled pursuant to Civ. Code § 3346 are those damages determined by trier of fact to constitute just compensation within overall limits of reasonableness regardless of what specific measure of damages was used. Heninger v. Dunn (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 858, 869, 162 Cal. Rptr. 104

Double damages provision of Civ. Code § 3346 is irrelevant when trees are damaged by fire, and legislative intent is that only actual damages are recoverable therefor. Gould v. Madonna (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 404, 407-408, 85 Cal. Rptr. 457

Right of landowner on expiration of contract for removal of timber to damages for all timber removed after that time. Hendren v. Yonash (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 672, 680-681, 52 Cal. Rptr. 738

Treble damage statute for wrongful removal of timber [Civ. Code § 3346] is penalty statute calling for strict construction. Ghera v. Sugar Pine Lbr. Co. (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 88, 92, 36 Cal. Rptr. 305

Award of treble damages pursuant to Civ. Code § 3346 or Code Civ. Proc. § 733 is warranted only when defendant's acts were willful and malicious. Caldwell v. Walker (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 758, 762, 27 Cal. Rptr. 675 ; Crofoot Lumber, Inc. v. Ford (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 238, 246, 12 Cal. Rptr. 639

Discretion of trial court in awarding treble damages for wrongful removal of timber. Caldwell v. Walker (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 758, 763, 27 Cal. Rptr. 675 ; Roche v. Casissa (1957) 154 Cal. App. 2d 785, 788, 316 P.2d 776 ; Butler v. Zeiss (1923) 63 Cal. App.73, 77, 218 P. 54

Intent of defendant wrongfully removing timber from plaintiff's land is question of fact for the trial court. Crofoot

Lumber, Inc. v. Ford (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 238, 246-247, 12 Cal. Rptr. 639

Jury instruction in accord with Civ. Code § 3346 treble damage provision was proper, even though complaint alleged conversion of "logs" and statute only mentioned "timber and trees." Sweet v. Erickson (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 598, 601, 333 P.2d 369

Proper place for trial of action for damages from defendant's cutting down of trees is county in which trees were located. Wolfe v. Wallace (1957) 154 Cal. App. 2d 523, 527, 316 P.2d 697

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for damages for breach of contract by a seller of timber rights against a buyer of rights. It can be used when the buyer failed to pay the balance of a guaranteed minimum price and to exhaust all merchantable saw or better timber. The form was adapted from the complaint filed in Price v. Tree Topper Timber Co. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 412, 415-416, 20 Cal. Rptr. 817 .

[3] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8)].

If the action is a limited civil case, the caption must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 and must also identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

[4] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified also, if the action is an unlimited civil case in the superior court [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case ifthe action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[5] Interest on Awarded Damages

Every person who is entitled to recover damages certain, or capable of being made certain by calculation, and the right to recover which is vested in him or her on a particular day, is also entitled to recover interest thereon from that day, except during such time as the debtor is prevented by law, or by the act of the creditor from paying the debt [Civ. Code § 3287(a)]. Every person who is entitled under any judgment to receive damages based on a cause of action in contract where the claim was unliquidated, may also recover interest thereon from a date prior to the entry of judgment as the court may, in its discretion, fix, but in no event earlier than the date the action was filed [Civ. Code § 3287(b)].

[6] "Stumpage" Defined

The word "stumpage," used in Paragraph 10 in this form, means "the value of standing timber."

[7] Statutes

Contract for sale of timber to be cut is within scope of Division 2--Sales of the Uniform Commercial Code. Com. Code § 2107(2)

Attorney's fees in contract actions. Civ. Code § 1717

[8] Decisions

Fee interest in standing timber is conveyable separately from title to property on which timber stands. Buffum v. Texaco, Inc. (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 732, 734, 50 Cal. Rptr. 852 ; Miller v. Taber (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 792, 795, 309 P.2d 110

Severed timber is personal property of purchaser. Eistrat v. Western Hardwood Lbr. Co. (1958) 164 Cal. App. 2d 374, 379, 330 P.2d 629

Contract for right to sever and remove timber is contract for sale of goods. Ascherman v. McKee (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 277, 282-283, 299 P.2d 367

_____ [names],	)	(Wrongful Cutting and Removal of Timber)
Defendants.	)	[Civ. Code § 3346(a); Code Civ. Proc. § 733]

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendants. See § 350.60[1], Paragraph 1.]

2. [Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued herein as DOES _____ [e.g.,1-25], inclusive, and therefore sues these defendants by such fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by their conduct.)]

3. [Defendants _____ (names) at all times herein mentioned were the agents and employees of their codefendants _____ (names) and in doing the things hereinafter alleged were acting within the course and scope of such agency and the permission and consent of their codefendants.]

4. At all times mentioned herein, plaintiff was the owner of certain land and timber rights situtated in _____ County, California, and described as follows: _____ [description].

5. At all times mentioned herein, plaintiff owned a large volume of cut and bucked timber lying on the land which consisted of _____ [amount and description of timber].

6. In or about the month of _____ [month and year], defendants wrongfully entered on the land with full knowledge of the ownership of plaintiff of the land and of all standing and cut timber thereon, and willfully andmaliciously logged out all the cut and bucked timber for defendants' own use.

7. At the time of removal, the cut and bucked timber had a reasonable value of $_____. By reason of the wrongful entry and willful and malicious removal, plaintiff is entitled to treble damages in the sum of $_____ under the provisions of Civil Code Section 3346(a) and Code of Civil Procedure Section 733.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays for judgment against defendants, and each of them, as follows:

1. Treble damages in the sum of $_____.

2. Costs of suit herein incurred.

3. Such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint by an owner of timber for treble damages for the wrongful cutting or removal of timber. It can be used when the defendant has willfully removed cut and "bucked" timber. The complaint was adapted from the facts in Sweet v. Erickson (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 598, 601, 333 P.2d 369 .

[3] Treble Damages

For wrongful injuries to or removal of timber, trees, or underwood on another's land, the measure of damages is three times the sum as would compensate for the actual detriment [Civ. Code § 3346(a); Code Civ. Proc. § 733]. Although the statutes do not specifically mention willfulness or malice as a precondition for such an award, recovery of treble damages cannot be had except on such a showing [Caldwell v. Walker (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 758, 762, 27 Cal. Rptr. 675 ; Crofoot Lumber, Inc. v. Ford (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 238, 246, 12 Cal. Rptr. 639] .

[4] "Bucked" Timber Defined

"Bucked" timber is felled timber that has been cut into log lengths suitable for transportation from the tract to the mill.

[5] Statutes

Treble damages for wrongful injuries to or removal of timber. Civ. Code § 3346(a); Code Civ. Proc. § 733

[6] Decisions

Precondition of willfulness or malice to recovery of treble damages under Civ. Code § 3346(a) or Code Civ. Proc. § 733. Caldwell v. Walker (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 758, 762, 27 Cal. Rptr. 675 ; Crofoot Lumber, Inc. v. Ford (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 238, 246, 12 Cal. Rptr. 639

Damages recoverable for wrongful cutting to timber. Drewry v. Welch (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 159, 172, 46 Cal. Rptr. 65

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint by a logger against a timber owner and mill operator to foreclose the logger's lien. The complaint is adapted from the complaint used in Virden v. Neese (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 724, 730-731, 152 P.2d 761 .

[3] Logger's and Lumber-Millman's Liens

A complaint to foreclose a logger's lien must be filed within 30 days after final cessation of work by plaintiff [Civ. Code §§ 3065a, 3065b; see Virden v. Neese (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 724, 730-731, 152 P.2d 761]. The lien only applies to logs and timber products remaining in the county [Civ. Code § 3065a; Morehouse v. Shipman Lbr. Servaes Co. (1959) 168 Cal. App. 2d 135, 138, 335 P.2d 496]. The lien as provided by Civ. Code § 3065 is not dependent on possession or notice [Division of Labor Law Enforcement v. Siskiyou Mills (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 105, 109, 40 Cal. Rptr. 111].

The plaintiff in a foreclosure suit may have the logs, lumber, and other manufactured timber products on which such lien subsists attached, as provided in the Civil Code and Code of Civil Procedure [Civ. Code § 3065a].

[Caption. As on papers previously filed in proceeding.]

I, _____ [name], declare:

I am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action and make this declaration under penalty of perjury for the purpose of having attached the logs and products on which my logging lien subsists, which logs and products are located and described as follows: _____ [location and description].

I _____ [performed labor or used my _____ (livestock or machinery or appliances or combination)] in _____ [_____ (felling or bucking or preparing or transporting) said logs or manufacturing the lumber and other timber products or combination], for a period from _____ [date] to _____ [date] in _____ County, California.

Such _____ [labor or use of _____ (livestock or machinery or appliances) or combination] has not been paid for.

The sum for which the attachment is asked, namely $_____, does not exceed the reasonable value of the _____ [services rendered or use of _____ (livestock or machinery or appliances) or combination].

The attachment is not sought and the action is not brought to hinder, delay, or defraud any creditor of any defendant herein.

The attachment is made pursuant to Civil Code Sections 3065 and 3065a. The attachment is not sought and the action is not prosecuted to hinder, delay, or defraud any other creditor of the defendant. Plaintiff has no information or belief that the defendant has filed any proceeding under the National Bankruptcy Act or has made a general assignment for the benefit of creditors [or Defendant's proceeding under the National Bankruptcy Act was terminated on _____ [date] and plaintiff's claim was not discharged in that proceeding as shown by the attached _____ [specify document].

[2] Use of Form

This form is a declaration for use in obtaining attachment of logs, lumber, and other manufactured timber products on which a logger's lien subsistspursuant to Civ. Code §§ 3065, 3065a and which lien is the subject of a foreclosure suit [see § 350.67]. Civ. Code § 3065a provides that the attachment may be made as provided in the Civil Code and Code of Civil Procedure. Thus, counsel is advised to attach this declaration to the Judicial Council-approved form of Application and Declaration for Attachment and Temporary Restraining Order [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 482.040, 486.010; see Ch. 62, Attachment ; see also § 350.60] and to follow the attachment procedure set forth in that chapter.

Nothing contained in the logger's lien foreclosure sections [Civ. Code §§ 3065, 3065a] may be construed to impair or affect the right of any person to whom any debt may be due for work done, or for the use of livestock, machinery, or appliances, to maintain a personal action to recover the debt against the person liable therefor or his or her sureties, either in connection with the lien suit or in a separate action [Civ. Code § 3065a]. The person bringing such a personal action may take out a separate attachment, notwithstanding his or her lien or the amount of his or her debt [Civ. Code § 3065a]. The judgment, if any, obtained by plaintiff in his or her personal action shall not be construed to impair or merge any lien held by plaintiff under Civ. Code §§ 3065, 3065a, provided only that any money collected on the judgment must be credited on the amount of the lien in any action brought to enforce the same in accordance with Civ. Code § 3065a [Civ. Code § 3065a].

[3] Statutes

Attachment of logs and products on which logger's lien subsists; affidavit. Civ. Code § 3065a

Declaration under penalty of perjury. Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5

§ 350.69 Declaration Under Penalty of Perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]--By Faller, Bucker, or Millhand for Stop Notice From Labor Commissioner to Mill Operator [Civ. Code § 3065c]--To Withhold Money Owing to Contractor-Employer in Amount of Unpaid Wages

[1] FORM Declaration Under Penalty of Perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]--by Faller, Bucker, or Millhand for Stop Notice From Labor Commissioner to Mill Operator [Civ. Code § 3065c]--To Withhold Money Owing to Contractor-Employer in Amount of Unpaid Wages

To: Labor Commissioner of the State of California

I, _____ [name], declare:

I am a _____ [faller or bucker or millhand] having a lien pursuant to Civil Code Section 3065 and have not been paid for labor performed for _____ [name], contractor, described as follows: _____ [description of labor performed].

The period in which this labor was performed is _____ [date], to and including _____ [date].

The amount of wages unpaid to me for this labor is $_____.

Money is owing to the contractor by _____ [name], mill operator, whose address is _____.

I make this declaration under penalty of perjury for the purpose of securing a stop notice directing the mill operator to withhold funds owing to the contractor in the amount of my unpaid wages.

I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct and that this declaration was executed on _____ [date], at _____ [city], California.

_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

This form may be filed by a faller, bucker, or millhand with the Labor Commissioner to obtain a stop notice directing a mill operator to withhold from funds due a contractor the amount of unpaid wages as described in the affidavit or declaration of the faller, bucker, or millhand [Civ. Code § 3065c].

[3] Definitions

A "faller" is a logger who fells trees. A "bucker" is a worker who cuts felled trees into shorter lengths. A "millhand" is a worker in a lumber mill.

[4] Stop Orders

Whenever any faller, bucker, or millhand has a lien pursuant to Civ. Code § 3065 and has not been paid for his or her labor by the contractor employing him or her and money is owed to the contractor by a milloperator, the worker, or several of them acting jointly, may file with the Labor Commissioner an affidavit (or declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) stating the amount of unpaid wages, describing the labor for which the wages are owed, and the period in which the labor was performed [Civ. Code § 3065c]. If the Labor Commissioner finds the affidavit or declaration in order, he or she must send a stop notice to the mill operator, directing the mill operator to withhold funds in the amount of the unpaid wages from the contractor [Civ. Code § 3065c]. The mill operator must withhold such funds for 15 days from the date of service of the notice, subject to garnishment within that time by the worker or any assignee of the worker [Civ. Code § 3065c].

[5] Statutes

Faller's, bucker's, or millhand's lien. Civ. Code § 3065

Affidavit for stop notice from Labor Commissioner to mill operator to withhold money owing to employer contractor. Civ. Code § 3065c

Declaration under penalty of perjury. Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5

§ 350.70 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Treble Damages Not Available [Civ. Code § 3346; Code Civ. Proc. § 733]--Defendant Did Not Act Maliciously

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Treble Damages Not Available [Civ. Code § 3346; Code Civ. Proc. § 733]--Defendant Did Not Act Maliciously

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

Treble damages are not available because defendant did not act willfully or maliciously.

[2] Use of Form

This form of affirmative defense is for use by a defendant in an answer to a complaint for treble damages for the wrongful cutting or removal of timber. Civ. Code § 3346 and Code Civ. Proc. § 733 allow treble damages for the wrongful injury or removal of timber. Under these statutes the wrongful act must be willful and malicious for treble damages to be recovered [Caldwell v. Walker (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 758, 762, 27 Cal. Rptr. 675 ; for further discussion, see § 350.12[1]]. The above affirmative defense is adapted from the fact situation in Crofoot Lumber, Inc. v. Ford (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 238, 12 Cal. Rptr. 639 .

[3] Statutes

Treble damages for wrongful injuries to trees on another's land; double damages if trespass was casual or involuntary; actual damages if trespass was in reliance on survey by licensed surveyor. Civ. Code § 3346

Person cutting down or carrying off wood on land of another without lawful authority is liable for treble damages. Code Civ. Proc. § 733

[4] Decisions

Actual damages measure under Civ. Code § 3346 does not apply when defendant relied on survey made by unlicensed surveyor. Lindroth v. Windbigler (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 844, 845-847, 43 Cal. Rptr. 355

Treble damages are available only when wrongdoer intentionally acted willfully or maliciously, intending to vex, harass, annoy, or injure. Caldwell v. Walker (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 758, 762, 27 Cal. Rptr. 675 ; Crofoot Lumber, Inc. v. Ford (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 238, 12 Cal. Rptr. 639

Treble damages under Civ. Code § 3346 and Code Civ. Proc. § 733 are inappropriate against one who entered property of another, cut trees, and removed stumps when (1) actor had been considerably damaged over lengthy period, (2) owner did nothing to alleviate damage even though prior owner had allowed action, (3) action appeared to be only way to prevent damage, and (4) actor made real attempts to determine true owner of landbefore acting to protect his land from further damage. Fick v. Nilson (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 683, 685-686, 220 P.2d 752

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Treble Damages Not Available [Civ. Code § 3346; Code Civ. Proc. § 733]--Defendant Did Not Wrongfully Enter and Remove Timber

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

There was no wrongful entry or removal of timber because there was an agreed on boundary line that was not crossed.

[2] Use of Form

This form of affirmative defense is for use by a defendant in an answer to a complaint for treble damages for the wrongful entry and willful removal of timber. When the requirements for an agreed boundary have been met, a defendant may assert that boundary as an adequate defense to a claim of damages for trespass to timber and treble damages [*Aborigine Lumber Co. v. AUTHOR: Carol S. Sanders By Carol S. Sanders, formerly the directing attorney of Contra Costa Legal Assistance for the Elderly, and the Publisher's Editorial Staff.

This chapter discusses the duties of facilities and the rights of residents and patients under the Long-Term Care, Health, Safety, and Security Act of 1973 (Health & Safety Code § 1417 et seq.). It discusses procedures for the issuance and enforcement of a citation by the Department of Health Services for violations of provisions of the Act and related regulations. It also discusses the Patients' Bill of Rights (Health & Safety Code § 1599 et seq.), which concerns patients in skilled nursing facilities or intermediate care facilities, as well as a long-term health care facility's duty to establish a loss or theft program to safeguard patients' property and requirements for admission contracts. It includes forms of complaint for use in actions against a long-term health care facility based on conduct constituting Class A or Class B violations [see § 351.220], and on violation of a patient's rights [see § 351.221]. It also contains a form of affirmative defense for use in response to a complaint against a long-term health care facility for unlawful relocation based on a change in the manner of payment to Medi-Cal [see § 351.222].

This chapter also discusses and contains forms relating to residential care facilities for the elderly. It discusses licensing requirements for those facilities and remedies for license violations. It discusses obligations of facilities to provide certain services and policies for the benefit of the residents, as well as personal rights of the residents and administrative and civil remedies for violation of those provisions. It includes a form of complaint for use against a residential care facility for the elderly based on theft or loss of a resident's property [see § 351.240], as well as a form of affirmative defense for use in response to that complaint [see § 351.241].

This chapter also discusses continuing care contracts. It includes discussion of requirements regarding the format and contents of continuing care contracts, as well as statutory rights to cancel or void the contract. It also discusses some remedies available only to the Department of Social Services, some of which may be undertaken on behalf of the patient. This part contains a form for giving notice of cancellation [see § 351.260].

This chapter does not discuss licensing and other preliminary requirements regarding the internal organization and financing of facilities that offer continuing life care services, nor does it discuss "deposit subscriptions," which concern payments for continuing care services that are made before the construction of the facility is completed [see generally Health & Safety Code §§ 1771.2 et seq., 1779 et seq., 1780 et seq., 1786 et seq.]. It also does not discuss most of the administrative remedies available only to the Department of Social Services for violation of licensing and related provisions, or remedies available only to prosecuting agencies, that affect only a facility's licensing status or result only in penalties that do not directly inure to the benefit of the resident [see generally Health & Safety Code § 1793.5 et seq.].

§ 351.11 Definitions

[1] Long-Term Health Care Facility

"Long-term health care facility" means any facility licensed pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1250 et seq. that is any of the following [Health & Safety Code § 1418(a); see Health & Safety Code §§ 1250, 1326 (definitions of facilities)].

- A skilled nursing facility.
- An intermediate care facility.
- An intermediate care facility for the developmentally disabled.
- An intermediate care facility for the developmentally disabled that provides habilitative care.
- An intermediate care facility for the developmentally disabled that provides nursing care.
- A congregate living health facility.
- A nursing facility.
- Intermediate care facility/developmentally disabled continuous nursing.

"Long-term health care facility" also includes a pediatric day health and respite care facility licensed under Health & Safety Code § 1760 et seq. [Health & Safety Code § 1418(b); see Health & Safety Code § 1760.2 (definitions)]. The term does not include a general acute care hospital or an acute psychiatric hospital, except for that distinct part of the hospital that provides skilled nursing facility services, intermediate care facility services, or pediatric day health and respite care facility services [Health & Safety Code § 1418(c)].

[2] Skilled Nursing Facility

"Skilled nursing facility" means a health facility that provides skilled nursing care and supportive care to patients whose primary need is for availability of skilled nursing care on an extended basis [Health & Safety Code § 1250(c)].

[3] Intermediate Care Facility

"Intermediate care facility" means a health facility that provides inpatient care to ambulatory or nonambulatory patients who have recurring need for skilled nursing supervision and need supportive care, but who do not require availability of continuous skilled nursing care [Health & Safety Code § 1250(d)].

[4] Nursing Facility

"Nursing facility" means a California-licensed health facility that is certified to participate as a provider of care either as a skilled nursing facility in the Medicare program under Title XVIII of the Social Security Act or as a nursing facility in the medicaid program under Title XIX of the Social Security Act, or as both [Health & Safety Code § 1250(k)].

[5] Licensee

"Licensee" means the holder of a license issued under Health & Safety Code §§ 1250-1339.25 or 1760 et seq. (pediatric day health and respite care facility) for a long-term health care facility [Health & Safety Code § 1418(d)].

[6] Contract of Admission

"Contract of admission" includes all documents that a resident (or his or her representative) must sign at the time of, or as a condition of, admission to a long-term health care facility, as defined in Health & Safety Code § 1326 [Health & Safety Code § 1599.60(b)].

[7] Abbreviated Contract of Admission; Respite Care Services

"Abbreviated contract of admission" means a contract that meets the provisions of Health & Safety Code § 1599.60 et seq., except as otherwise provided, for a resident who is receiving respite care services, as defined in Health & Safety Code § 1418.1 [Health & Safety Code § 1599.60(a)]. The term "respite care services" means services provided to frail elderly or functionally impaired persons in a licensed skilled nursing facility or intermediate care facility on a temporary or periodic basis to relieve persons who are providing their care at home [Health & Safety Code § 1418.1(e); see Health & Safety Code § 1250(c), (d) (definitions of facilities)].

Provisions under Health & Safety Code §§ 1599.65(b), 1599.67(b), 1599.69, 1599.76(b) (Medi-Cal), and 1599.79 (bedhold during transfer to acute care hospital) do not apply to an abbreviated contract of admission [Health & Safety Code § 1599.60(a)].

§ 351.12 Ombudsman Program

Under the Long-Term Care Ombudsman Program, established by the California Department of Aging, the Ombudsman investigates and resolves complaints made by or on behalf of older individuals who are residents of long-term care facilities relating to action, inaction, or decisions of providers (or their representatives) of long-term care services, public agencies, or social service agencies that may adversely affect the health, safety, welfare, or rights of the residents [see 42 U.S.C. § 3027(a)(9); see also Welf. & Inst. Code § 9700 et seq.; 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 8010 et seq.]. The Office of the Long-Term Ombudsman must investigate and seek to resolve complaints and concerns communicated by or on behalf of patients, residents, or clients of any long-term care facility, and must report its conclusions to the complainant, or notify the complainant of its reasons for not conducting an investigation [Welf. & Inst. Code § 9720]. The Ombudsman Office may refer any complaint to any appropriate state or local government agency. Certain licensing agencies, including that of the Department of Health Services, must give priority to an Ombudsman complaint [Welf. & Inst. Code § 9721; see Welf. & Inst. Code 9720 et seq. (investigation and resolution of complaints)].

AUTHOR: Carol S. Sanders By Carol S. Sanders, formerly the directing attorney of Contra Costa Legal Assistance for the Elderly, and the Publisher's Editorial Staff.

§ 351.13 Citation Procedure

[1] Request for Inspection

Any person may request an inspection of any long-term health care facility by giving oral or written notice to the Department of Health Services of an alleged violation of applicable requirements of state law. The notice may be in writing signed by the complainant setting forth with reasonable particularity the matters complained of. The complaint may also be made by telephone or personal visit. Any oral complaint must be reduced to writing by the Department. The substance of the complaint must be provided to the licensee no earlier than at the commencement of the inspection [Health & Safety Code § 1419(d); see Health & Safety Code § 1419(a), (b) (centralized consumer-response unit for department)].

Neither the substance of the complaint provided to the licensee nor any copy of the complaint or record published, released, or otherwise made available to the licensee may disclose the name of any individual complainant or other person mentioned in the complaint, except the name of any duly authorized officer, employee, or agent of the Department of Health Services conducting the investigation or inspection, unless the complainant specifically requests the release of the name or names or the matter results in a judicial proceeding [Health & Safety Code § 1419(e)].

[2] Inspection

Unless the Department of Health Services determines that the complaint is willfully intended to harass a licensee or is without any reasonable basis, an inspector appointed by the Department must make an on-site inspection or investigation within 10 working days of the receipt of the complaint [Health & Safety Code § 1420(a)(1); see Health & Safety Code § 1421 (conduct of inspections)]. In any case in which the complaint involves a serious threat of imminent danger of death or serious bodily harm, the Department must make an onsite inspection or investigation within 24 hours of receipt of the complaint. In any event, the complainant must be promptly informed of the Department's proposed course of action and of the opportunity to accompany the inspector on the inspection or investigation of the facility. On the request of either the complainant or the Department, the complainant or his or her representative, or both, may be allowed to accompany the inspector to the site of the violation, unless the inspector determines that the privacy of any patient would be violated thereby [Health & Safety Code § 1420(a)(1); see Jongepier v. Lopez (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 535, 538-539, 191 Cal. Rptr. 131 (complainant's right to anonymity may not be waived as condition of accompanying Department inspector on inspection of facility)].

In addition to inspections conducted pursuant to a complaint, periodic unannounced inspections of long-term health care facilities by the department are also mandated [see Health & Safety Code §§ 1422(b), (c), 1422.1].

[3] Complainant's Rights of Review

The Department of Health Services must notify the complainant of his or her right to an informal conference with the designee of the Director of Health Services in the county in which the facility is located if the complainant is dissatisfied with the Department's determination on the complaint. A complainant who requests that conference must do so within five business days after receiving the notice [Health & Safety Code § 1420(b)].

If the complainant is dissatisfied with the determination of the Director's designee following the informal conference, the complainant, within 15 days after receipt of that determination, may notify in writing the Deputy Director of the Licensing and Certification Division of the Department, who must assign the request to a representative of the Complainant Appeals Unit for review of the facts that led to both determinations. As a part of the Complainant Appeals Unit's independent investigation and at the request of the complainant, the representative must interview the complainant in the district office where the complaint was initially referred. Based on this review, the Deputy Director of the Licensing and Certification Division of the Department must make his or her own determination and notify the complainant and the facility within 30 days [Health & Safety Code § 1420(c)].

Under specified circumstances, when the Department issues a citation as a result of a complaint and a resident is specifically identified in a citation by name as being specifically affected by the violation, the complainant also has a right to attend a citation review conference requested by the licensee to contest a citation [see Health & Safety Code § 1428(f)].

[4] Prohibition Against Retaliation

No licensee may discriminate or retaliate in any manner against any complainant (meaning any person who has filed a complaint [Health & Safety Code § 1432(I)]), or any patient or employee in its long-term health care facility, on the basis or for the reason that the complainant, patient, employee, or any other person has presented a grievance or complaint, or has initiated or cooperated in an investigation or proceeding of any governmental entity relating to care, services, or conditions at that facility. A licensee who violates this provision is subject to a civil penalty of no more than $10,000, to be assessed by the Director of Health Services and collected in the manner provided in Health & Safety Code § 1430 [Health & Safety Code § 1432(a); see Health & Safety Code § 1432(e) (violation enforced as Class A or B violation), (f) (willful violation as infraction), (g) (licensee subject to either civil penalty or criminal fine)].

Any attempt to expel a patient from the facility, or any discriminatory treatment of a patient by whom, or on whose behalf, a grievance or complaint has been submitted, directly or indirectly, to any governmental entity, or received by a long-term health care facility administrator, or any proceeding instituted under or related to the Long-Term Care, Health, Safety, and Security Act of 1973, within 180 days of the filing of the complaint or the institution of the action, raises a rebuttable presumption that the action was taken by the licensee in retaliation for the filing of the complaint [Health & Safety Code § 1432(b)]. The presumption affects the burden of producing evidence under Evid. Code § 603 [Health & Safety Code § 1432(d); for discussion of Evid. Code § 603, see Ch. 551, Trial, § 551.102].

A rebuttable presumption that an action was taken by the licensee in retaliation arises when any attempt to terminate the employment of, or any other discriminatory treatment of, an employee is made within 120 days of the filing of a grievance or complaint, or an action is instituted against any employee who has presented a grievance or complaint or who has initiated, participated, or cooperated in any investigation or proceeding of any governmental entity as specified in Health & Safety Code § 1432(a), and the facility or licensee had knowledge of the employee's initiation, participation, or cooperation [Health & Safety Code § 1432(c)]. The presumption affects the burden of producing evidence under Evid. Code § 603 [Health & Safety Code § 1432(d)].

[5] Issuance of Citation

If on inspection or investigation, the Director of Health Services determines that any nursing facility is in violation of any state or federal law or regulation relating to the operation or maintenance of the facility, or determines that any other long-term health care facility is in violation of any statutory provision or regulation relating to the operation or maintenance of the facility, the director must promptly issue a notice to correct the violation and of intent to issue a citation to the licensee [Health & Safety Code § 1423(a)]. The Director must issue the notice promptly (not later than 24 hours, excluding Saturday, Sunday, and holidays) after determining or having reasonable cause to determine that an alleged violation has occurred [Health & Safety Code § 1423(a)].

Before completing the investigation and making the determination whether to issue a citation, the Department will hold an exit conference with the licensee to identify the potential for issuing a citation for any violation, discuss investigative findings, and allow the licensee to provide the department with additional information related to the violation. The Department will consider this additional information, in conjunction with information from the inspection or investigation, in determining whether to issue a citation, or whether other action would be appropriate. If the Department determines that the violation warrants the issuing of a citation and an exit conference has been completed it will either (1) recommend the imposition of a federal enforcement remedy on a nursing facility in accordance with federal law, or (2) issue a citation pursuant to state licensing laws. If the facility is a nursing facility, it may recommend the imposition of a federal enforcement remedy other than a federal civil monetary penalty for a federal violation. No violation may result in the issuance of both a citation pursuant to state law and the recommendation that a federal civil monetary penalty be imposed [Health & Safety Code § 1423(a)].

If a state citation is issued, it must be served on the licensee within three days after completion of the inspection (excluding Saturday, Sunday, and holidays), unless the licensee agrees in writing to an extension. Service must be made personally or by registered or certified mail. A copy of the citation must also be sent to each complainant. The citation must fix the earliest feasible time for the elimination of the condition constituting the alleged violation, when appropriate [Health & Safety Code § 1423(a)]. If no harm to patients, residents, or guests has occurred, a single incident, event, or occurrence must result in no more than one citation for each statute or regulation violated [Health & Safety Code § 1423(b)].

The Department must provide a copy of all citations issued under Health & Safety Code § 1424 (discussed under §§ 351.14, 351.15) to the affected residents whose treatment was the basis for the issuance of the citation, to the affected residents' designated family member or representative of each of the residents, and to the complainant if the citation was issued as a result of a complaint [Health & Safety Code § 1424(j)].

[6] Circumstances Under Which Citation May Not Be Issued

No citation will be issued for a violation that has been reported by the licensee to the Department of Health Services, or its designee, as an "unusual occurrence," if all of the following conditions are met [Health & Safety Code § 1423(c)]:

- The violation has not caused harm to any patient, resident, or guest, or significantly contributed to any harm;

- The licensee has promptly taken reasonable measures to correct the violation to prevent a recurrence; and

- The unusual occurrence report was the first source of information reported to the Department of Health Services, or its designee, regarding the violation.

In addition, a citation will not be issued if the violation was first discovered by the facility and recorded in a quality assurance log, was not willful, resulted in no actual harm to any patient or guest, and the facililty took prompt remedial action satisfactory to the Department of Health Services [see Health & Safety Code § 1424.1(a); see also Health & Safety Code § 1424.1(b), (c) (discovery and admissibility of log)].

§ 351.14 Classification of Violations and Penalties

[1] Class AA

Class AA violations are violations that meet the criteria for a Class A violation, and that the Department of Health Services determines to have been a direct proximate cause of death of a patient or resident of a long-term health care facility. Generally, a Class AA citation is subject to a civil penalty in the amount of not less than $5,000 and not exceeding $25,000 for each citation [Health & Safety Code § 1424(c)]. The penalty is enhanced in the case of a skilled nursing facility or an intermediate care facility: not less than $25,000 and not exceeding $100,000 for each citation [Health & Safety Code § 1424.5(a)(1)]. Class AA citations may also result in suspension or revocation of the facility's license [Health & Safety Code §§ 1424(c), 1424.5(a)(1); § 351.14[2]].

For each Class AA citation within a 12-month period that has become final, the Department must consider the suspension or revocation of the facility's license pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1294. For a third or subsequent Class AA citation in a facility within that 12-month period that has been sustained following a citation review conference, the Department must commence action to suspend or revoke the facility's license pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1294 [Health & Safety Code §§ 1424(c), 1424.5(a)(1)].

[2] Class A

Class A violations are violations that the Department of Health Services determines present either (1) imminent danger that death or serious harm to the patients or residents of the facility would result from the violation, or (2) substantial probability that death or serious physical harm to the patients or residents would result from the violation [Health & Safety Code § 1424(d); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 72701, 72703 (skilled nursing facilities), 73701, 73702 (intermediate care facilities)]. A physical condition or one or more practices, means, methods, or operations in use in a long-term health care facility may constitute a Class A violation. The condition or practice constituting a Class A violation must be abated or eliminated immediately, unless a fixed period of time, as determined by the Department, is required for correction [Health & Safety Code § 1424(d)].

Generally, a Class A citation is subject to a civil penalty in an amount not less than $1,000 and not exceeding $10,000 for each citation [Health & Safety Code § 1424(d)]. The penalty is enhanced in the case of a skilled nursing facility or an intermediate care facility: not less than $2,000 and not exceeding $20,000 for each citation [Health & Safety Code § 1424.5(a)(2)].

[3] Class B

Class B violations are violations that the Department of Health Services determines have a direct or immediate relationship to the health, safety, or security of long-term health care facility patients or residents, other than Class A or AA violations [Health & Safety Code § 1424(e); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 73705 (intermediate care facilities)]. Unless otherwise determined by the Department to be a Class A violation, any violation of a patient's rights as set forth in 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 72527 and 73523 that is determined by the Department to cause or, under the circumstances, is likely to cause significant humiliation, indignity, anxiety, or other emotional trauma to a patient is a Class B violation [Health & Safety Code § 1424(e)].

A Class B citation is subject to a civil penalty in an amount not less than $100 and not exceeding $1,000 for each citation [Health & Safety Code § 1424(d)].

Failure to post a notice specifying the name, address, and phone number of the office and the nearest approved organization, and containing a brief description of the services provided by the office and the approved organization, in the approved form, in the manner required by Welf. & Inst. Code § 9718 and Health & Safety Code § 1422.6, will result in a daily $100 penalty and will be a Class B violation until the total penalty exceeds $2,000, in which case it will be a Class A violation [see Health & Safety Code § 1424(h)].

[4] Determination of Amount of Penalty

In determining the amount of the civil penalty, all relevant facts must be considered, including, but not limited to, the following [Health & Safety Code § 1424(a)]:

- The probability and severity of the risk that the violation presents to the patient's or resident's mental and physical condition;
- The patient's or resident's medical condition;
- The patient's or resident's mental condition and his or her history of mental disability or disorder;
- The good faith efforts exercised by the facility to prevent the violation from occurring; and
- The licensee's history of compliance with regulations.

The Department will document the relevant facts it considered in determining the amount of the civil penalty on an attachment to the citation that will be available in the public record. This requirement will not preclude the Department or a facility from introducing facts not listed on the citation to support or challenge the amount of the civil penalty in any proceeding set forth in Health & Safety Code § 1428 [Health & Safety Code § 1424(b)].

[5] Burden of Proof

In any action to enforce a citation for a Class AA violation, the Department must prove all of the following [Health &

Safety Code § 1424(c)]:

- The violation was a direct proximate cause of death of a patient or resident;
- The death resulted from an occurrence of a nature that the regulation was designed to prevent; and
- The patient or resident who died was among the class of persons for whose protection the regulation was adopted.

If the Department meets this burden of proof, the licensee has the burden of proving that the licensee violating the regulation did what might reasonably be expected of a long-term health care facility licensee, acting under similar circumstances, to comply with the regulation. If the licensee sustains this burden, the citation may be reduced or dismissed [Health & Safety Code § 1424(c)].

With respect to Class A and B violations, if the Department of Health Services establishes that a violation occurred, the licensee has the burden of proving that the licensee did what might reasonably be expected of a long-term health care facility licensee, acting under similar circumstances, to comply with the regulation. If the licensee sustains this burden, the citation must be dismissed [Health & Safety Code § 1424(d), (e)].

§ 351.15 Willful Falsification of Health Records

Any willful material falsification or willful material omission in the health record for a patient of a long-term health care facility is a violation [Health & Safety Code § 1424(f)(1)]. "Willful material falsification" means any entry in the patient health care record pertaining to the administration of medication or treatments ordered for the patient, or pertaining to services for the prevention or treatment of decubitus ulcers or contractures, or pertaining to tests and measurements of vital signs, or notations of input and output of fluids, that was made with the knowledge that the records falsely reflect the condition of the resident or the care or services provided [Health & Safety Code § 1424(f)(2)].

"Willful material omission" means the willful failure to record any untoward event that has affected the health, safety, or security of the specific patient, and that was omitted with the knowledge that the records falsely reflect the condition of the resident or the care or services provided. Violation of this provision may result in a civil penalty not to exceed $10,000, or $20,000 in the case of a skilled nursing facility or an intermediate care facility [Health & Safety Code §§ 1424(f)(3), 1424.5(a)(3); see Health & Safety Code § 1424(g)(1), (2) (factors for use in determining amount of penalty, and enforcement of violations in same manner as Class A or B violations)]. The Department of Health Services may issue a Class A or B citation for any violation that meets the requirements for that citation, regardless whether the violation also constitutes a violation of Health & Safety Code § 1424(g). No single act, omission, or occurrence, however, may be cited both as a Class A or B violation and as a violation of Health & Safety Code § 1424(g) [Health & Safety Code § 1424(g)(3)].

§ 351.16 Daily Penalty for Continuing Violation

If a licensee fails to correct a violation within the specified time limit for correction, a civil penalty of $50 may be assessed for each day that the violation continues beyond the date specified for correction. If the licensee disputes a determination regarding an alleged failure to correct a violation or regarding the reasonableness of the proposed deadline for correction, the licensee may request an informal conference and contest the determination [Health & Safety Code § 1425].

§ 351.17 Contest of Citation by Licensee

[1] Procedure

A licensee who desires to contest a citation must notify the Director of Health Services within 15 business days after service of the citation [Health & Safety Code § 1428(a)].

With respect to a Class AA or A citation, or a citation alleging a Class B and either a Class AA or A violation, or the proposed assessment of a civil penalty for those citations, the Director's designee must hold, within 15 business days from the receipt of the request, a citation review conference, at the conclusion of which he or she may affirm, modify, or dismiss the citation or proposed assessment of a civil penalty [Health & Safety Code § 1428(a); see Health & Safety Code § 1428.2 (extension of time limit based on request by facility); see also Health & Safety Code § 1428.2 (enforcement by Attorney General on notification of contest by licensee)]. A licensee who desires to contest the resulting decision must inform the Director in writing within 15 business days after receiving the decision. If the licensee fails to do so, the citation or proposed assessment is deemed a final order not subject to further administrative review, except that the licensee may seek judicial relief from the specified time limits [Health & Safety Code § 1428(a)].

If a licensee desires to contest a class B citation, he or she may request, within 15 business days after service of the citation, a citation review conference, by writing the director or the director's designee of the licensee's intent to appeal the citation through the citation review conference. If the licensee wishes to appeal a citation that has been upheld in a citation review conference, the licensee must, within 15 working days from the date the citation review conference decision was rendered, notify the director or the director's designee that he or she wishes to appeal the citation through the procedures set forth in Health & Safety Code § 100171 or elects to submit the matter to binding arbitration in accordance with Health & Safety Code § 1428(d) [Health & Safety Code § 1428(c); see Health & Safety Code § 1428(e) (burden of proof and procedures on appeal)]. The administrative law judge may affirm, modify, or dismiss the citation or the proposed assessment of a civil penalty. The licensee may choose to have his or her appeal heard by the administrative law judge, or submit the matter to binding arbitration, without having first appealed the decision to a citation review conference by notifying the director in writing within 15 business days of the service of the citation [Health & Safety Code § 1428(c)].

A licensee may seek judicial relief from the 15-day limit to file a notice to contest the citation or the 60-day limit to file the complaint in a timely manner [Demchuk v. State Dep't. of Health Services (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 1, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 635 ; see Health & Safety Code § 1428(c)]. However, the licensee may not seek judicial relief from the 60-day limit for serving the summons and complaint on the Department after filing [Demchuk v. State Dep't. of Health Services (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 1, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 635] .

Health & Safety Code § 1428(c) does not permit a contesting licensee to obtain judicial relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 after failing to timely file an at-issue memorandum in the civil action. The licensee's complaint is subject to dismissal in that situation [see County of San Diego v. Department of Health Services (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 656, 663, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 256] . However, the court may exercise its inherent equitable power, independent of Code Civ. Proc. § 473, and permit the licensee to file a tardy memorandum in appropriate circumstances [cf. County of San Diego v. Department of Health Services (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 656, 664-665, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 256 (finding no extrinsic fraud, mistake, or neglect sufficient to warrant exercise of court's inherent equitable power of relief from default)].

[2] Arbitration

If a licensee is dissatisfied with the decision of the administrative law judge, the licensee may, in lieu of seeking judicial review of the decision as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5, elect to submit the matter to binding arbitration by filing, within 60 days of its receipt of the decision, a request for arbitration with the American Arbitration Association [Health & Safety Code § 1428(d)].

The parties must agree on an arbitrator designated from the American Arbitration Association in accordance with the association's established rules and procedures [Health & Safety Code § 1428(d)].

The arbitration hearing must be set within 45 days of the election to arbitrate, but in no event less than 28 days from the date of selection of an arbitrator. The arbitration hearing may be continued up to 15 additional days if necessary at the arbitrator's discretion [Health & Safety Code § 1428(d)].

A resident, or resident's designated representative (or both) entitled to participate in the citation review conference [see Health & Safety Code § 1428(f)] may make an oral or written statement regarding the citation at any arbitration hearing to which the matter has been submitted after the citation review conference [Health & Safety Code § 1428(d)].

Except as Health & Safety Code § 1428(d) specifically provides otherwise, the arbitration hearing must be conducted in accordance with the American Arbitration Association's established rules and procedures [Health & Safety Code § 1428(d)].

The arbitrator must determine whether the licensee violated the regulations cited by the Department, and whether the citation meets the criteria established in Health & Safety Code §§ 1423, 1424. If the arbitrator determines that the licensee has violated the regulations cited and that the class of citation should be upheld, the proposed assessment of a civil penalty will be affirmed, subject to the limitations set forth in Health & Safety Code § 1424 [Health & Safety Code § 1428(d)].

The licensee and the Department must each bear their respective portion of the arbitration cost [Health & Safety Code § 1428(d)].

[3] Persons Permitted to Attend Review Conference

When the Department of Health Services issues a citation as a result of a complaint or regular inspection visit, and a resident is specifically identified in a citation by name as being specifically affected by the violation, certain persons, including the complainant, may attend the citation review conference [see Health & Safety Code § 1428(f)]. When residents whose names were not specified are affected, representatives of the Office of the State Long-Term Care Ombudsman, of the residents, or of the family council may participate to represent all residents [see Health & Safety Code § 1428(f); see also § 351.12].

[4] Civil Penalty Assessment

In assessing the civil penalty for a violation, relevant factors are essentially the same as those set forth in Health & Safety Code § 1424(a) [see Health & Safety Code § 1428(g); see also § 351.14[4]].

The immunity of a public entity under Gov. Code § 818 from imposition of punitive or exemplary damages does not prevent the state from imposing the statutory civil penalties in the Long-Term Care Act on a state-licensed, county-operated, long-term health care facility [Kizer v. County of San Mateo (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 139, 151, 279 Cal. Rptr. 318, 806 P.2d 1353] . There is nothing in the Tort Claims Act to suggest that Gov. Code § 818 was intended to apply to statutory civil penalties designed to ensure compliance with a detailed regulatory scheme affecting minimum health and safety standards, even though the penalties may have a punitive effect [Kizer v. County of San Mateo (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 139, 146, 279 Cal. Rptr. 318, 806 P.2d 1353] .

[5] Treble Penalties for Class A or B Violations

An assessment of civil penalties for a class A or B violation must be trebled and collected for a second or subsequent violation of the same class within any 12-month period. Trebling must occur only if the first citation issued within the 12-month period was issued in the same class, a civil penalty was assessed, and a plan of correction was submitted for the previous same-class violation occurring within the period without regard to whether the action to enforce the previous citation has become final [Health & Safety Code § 1428(h)]. The increment to the civil penalty is not due and payable, however, unless and until the previous action has terminated in favor the Department of Health Services. The penalty for a Class B violation that is a patient's rights violation pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1424(e) is not to be trebled unless the Department determines the violation has a direct or immediate relationship to the health, safety, security, or welfare of long-term health care facility residents [Health & Safety Code § 1428(h); see § 351.14[3]].

[6] Contest of Class A or Class AA Citation

If a licensee notifies the director that he or she intends to contest a class AA or a class A citation, the licensee may first within 15 business days after service of the citation notify the director in writing of his or her request for a citation review conference. The licensee must inform the director in writing, within 15 business days of the service of the citation or the receipt of the decision of the director's designee after the citation review conference, of the licensee's intent to adjudicate the validity of the citation in the superior court in the county in which the long-term health care facility is located. The action must be filed no later than 90 calendar days after a licensee notifies the director he or she intends to contest the citation or no later than 90 days after the receipt of the decision by the director's designee after the citation review conference, and served not later than 90 days after filing. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a licensee prosecuting a judicial appeal must file and serve a case management statement [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.720 et seq.] within six months after the Department files its answer in the appeal. Notwithstanding Health & Safety Code § 1428(d) [see § 351.17[2]], the court must dismiss the appeal on motion of the Department if the case management statement is not filed by the licensee within the period specified. The court may affirm, modify, or dismiss the citation, the level of the citation, or the amount of the proposed assessment of the civil penalty [Health & Safety Code § 1428(b); see Ch. 425, Pretrial Proceedings].

A licensee, in lieu of contesting a citation pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1428, may transmit to the State Department of Health Services the minimum amount specified by law, or 65 percent of the amount specified in the citation, whichever is greater, for each violation within 15 business days--or 30 business days in the case of a skilled nursing facility or an intermediate care facility--after the issuance of the citation [Health & Safety Code §§ 1424.5(b), 1428.1; *see also Kizer v. § 351.19 Action for Injunction or Damages for Classified Violations

[1] In General

Any licensee who commits a Class A or B violation may be enjoined from permitting the violation to continue or may be sued for civil damages in a court of competent jurisdiction, unless the Department of Health Services has taken action and the violations have been corrected to its satisfaction. Actions for injunction or civil damages, or both, may be prosecuted by the Attorney General in the name of the people of the State of California on the complaint of the Attorney General or on the complaint of any board, officer, person, corporation, or association, or by any person acting for the interest of itself, its members, or the general public [Health & Safety Code § 1430(a)]. The remedies specified in Health & Safety Code § 1430(a) are in addition to any other remedy provided by law [Health & Safety Code § 1430(c)].

For a complaint for damages and injunction pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1430(a), see § 351.220.

[2] Effect of Governmental Inaction

Because Health & Safety Code § 1430(a) excludes actions for injunctions or for civil damages if the Department of Health Services has taken action and the violations have been corrected to its satisfaction, if the Department has investigated the alleged conduct and found it not to constitute a Class A or Class B violation, an action under Health & Safety Code § 1430(a) presumably could not be brought. An action under Health & Safety Code § 1430, however, apparently may be brought if the Department has made no determination and issued no citation [see Myers v. Eastwood Care Center, Inc. (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 628, 635, 183 Cal. Rptr. 386, 645 P.2d 1218 (dictum contrasting private action under Health & Safety Code § 1430 with enforcement action by Attorney General under Health & Safety Code § 1428, which may only be brought after citation has been issued)]. It is not clear by what authority the court would be empowered to classify the alleged violation as A or B, because classification of these violations is, by definition, dependent on a determination made by the Department [see Health & Safety Code § 1424(d), (e), discussed under § 351.14].

If an action under Health & Safety Code § 1430(a) is precluded, a complaint based on the alleged wrongful conduct could still be sought under other causes of action [see Health & Safety Code § 1430(c) (remedies are in addition to other remedies provided by law)].

[3] Limit on Damages

The amount of civil damages that may be recovered in an action for Class A and B violations brought pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1430 may not exceed the maximum amount of civil penalties that could be assessed on account of the violation [Health & Safety Code § 1430(a); see Health & Safety Code §§ 1423-1425 (citations and assessment of civil penalties)].

§ 351.20 Jurisdiction

An action brought pursuant to the Long-Term Care, Health, Safety, and Security Act of 1973 is a limited civil case if civil penalties are not sought or amount to $25,000 or less [Code Civ. Proc. § 86.1]. The superior court has jurisdiction [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)].

If the action seeks permanent injunctive relief, it may not be a limited civil case except as otherwise authorized by statute [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8), 580(b)(2)]. For further discussion of limited civil case classification, see Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter . For discussion of procedures unique to limited civil cases, see Ch. 345A, Limited Civil Cases .

§ 351.21 Rights of Patients

[1] Bill of Rights Under State Law

Pursuant to the Patients' Bill of Rights, skilled nursing and intermediate care facilities must establish written policies and procedures ensuring that each patient admitted to the facility possesses, and has notice of, the following facility obligations [Health & Safety Code § 1599.1(a)-(g)]:

- The facility must employ an adequate number of qualified personnel to carry out all of the functions of the facility.

- Each patient must show evidence of good personal hygiene and must be given care to prevent bedsores, and measures must be used to prevent and reduce incontinence for each patient [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 72315(d)(f) (skilled nursing facility), 73315(d) (intermediate care facility)].

- The facility must provide food of the quality and quantity to meet the patients' needs in accordance with physician's orders [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 72315(h), 72335(a) (skilled nursing facility), 73325(a) (intermediate care facility)].

- The facility must provide an activity program staffed and equipped to meet the needs and interests of each patient and to encourage self-care and resumption of normal activities; patients must be encouraged to participate in activities suited to their individual needs [see Health & Safety Code § 1439.2 (nature of mandated activity program); 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 72379-72389 (requirements for activity program for skilled nursing facility), 73377-73389 (requirements for activity program for intermediate care facility)].

- The facility must be clean, sanitary, and in good repair at all times [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§

72601-72665 (regulations governing skilled nursing facility's physical plant), 73601-73685 (regulations governing intermediate care facility's physical plant)];

- A nurses' call system must be maintained in operating order in all nursing units and must provide visible and audible signal communication between nursing personnel and patients; extension cords to each patient's bed must be readily accessible to patients at all times [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 72315(m)] (patient's call signals must be answered promptly in skilled nursing facility).

- The facility must disclose in writing any significant beneficial interest in an ancillary health service provider or in another facility, or any significant beneficial interest of an ancillary health service provider in the facility, to the patient or the patient's representative, and must advise the patient of the right to choose to have another ancillary health service provider or facility provide any supplies or services ordered by the medical staff of the facility [see Health & Safety Code § 1323(a) (facility's disclosure of interest in ancillary health service provider), (c) (facility's disclosure of health service provider's interest in facility)].

If a resident of a long term health care facility has been hospitalized in an acute care hospital and asserts his or her rights to readmission pursuant to bed-hold provisions or readmission rights of either state or federal law, and the facility refuses to readmit the resident, the resident may appeal the facility's refusal [Health & Safety Code § 1599.1(h)(1)]. In connection with the appeal:

- The refusal of the facility will be treated as if it were an involuntary transfer under federal law, and the rights and procedures that apply to appeals of transfers and discharges of nursing facility residents will apply to the resident's appeal [Health & Safety Code § 1599.1(h)(2)].

- If the resident appeals, and the resident is eligible under the Medi-Cal program, the resident must remain in the hospital, and the hospital may be reimbursed at the administrative day rate, pending the final determination of the hearing officer, unless the resident agrees to placement in another facility [Health & Safety Code § 1599.1(h)(3)].

- If the resident appeals, and the resident is not eligible under the Medi-Cal program, the resident must remain in the hospital if other payment is available, pending the final determination of the hearing officer, unless the resident agrees to placement in another facility [Health & Safety Code § 1599.1(h)(4)].

- If the resident is not eligible for participation in the Medi-Cal program and has no other source of payment, the hearing and final determination must be made within 48 hours [Health & Safety Code § 1599.1(h)(5)].

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a skilled nursing facility, any intermediate care facility, or a congregate living facility must make reasonable efforts to contact the person named in the resident's admission agreement as the resident's contact person, or the resident's responsible person, within 24 hours after a significant change in the resident's health or mental status [Health & Safety Code § 1795(a)].

[2] Regulatory Rights Under State Law

In addition, the rights of patients embodied in the policies and procedures of those facilities must include those specified by regulation [Health & Safety Code § 1599.1].

Skilled nursing facilities and intermediate care facilities must establish written policies, and must make them available to patients (or their representatives, as enumerated) and to the public. The policies and procedures must ensure that each patient has the following rights [22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 72527(a) (skilled nursing facilities), 73523(a) (intermediate care facilities)]:

- To be informed fully, as evidenced by the patient's written acknowledgment prior to or at the time of admission and during stay, of the rights and of all rules and regulations governing patient conduct.

- To be informed fully, prior to or at the time of admission and during stay, of services available in the facility and of any related charges, including any charges for services not covered by the facility's basic per diem rate or not covered under Titles XVIII [42 U.S.C. § 1395 et seq.] or XIX of the Social Security Act [42 U.S.C. § 1396 et seq.].

- To be informed fully by a physician of his or her medical condition unless medically contraindicated, and to be afforded the opportunity to participate in the planning of medical treatment and to refuse to participate in experimental research.

- To refuse treatment to the extent permitted by law and to be informed of the medical consequences of that refusal.

- To be transferred or discharged only for medical reasons, for reasons based on the welfare of the patient or other patients, or for nonpayment; to be given reasonable advance notice to ensure orderly transfer or discharge; and to have the actions documented in the patient's health record [see Health & Safety Code § 1325 (legislative intent to protect patients from "transfer trauma"); see also O'Bannon v. Town Court Nursing Center (1980) 447 U.S. 773, 784 n.16, 100 S. Ct. 2467, 65 L. Ed. 2d 506 (noting damage caused by "transfer trauma")].

- To be encouraged and assisted throughout the period of stay to exercise rights as a patient and as a citizen, and to voice grievances and recommend changes in policies and services to facility staff or outside representatives of the patient's choice, free from restraint, interference, coercion, discrimination, or reprisal.

- To manage personal financial affairs, or to be given at least a quarterly accounting of financial transactions made on the patient's behalf if the facility accepts written delegation of this responsibility subject to the provisions of 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 72529 or 73557.

- To be free from mental and physical abuse and to be free from chemical and (except in emergencies) physical restraints, except as authorized in writing by a physician or other lawfully authorized person, or when necessary to protect the patient or others from injury.

- To be assured confidential treatment of personal and medical records, and to approve or refuse their release to any individual outside the facility, except in the case of transfer to another facility or as required by law or third-party payment contract.

- To be treated with consideration, respect, and full recognition of dignity and individuality, including privacy in treatment and in care of personal needs.

- Not to be required to perform services for the facility that are not included for therapeutic purposes in the patient's plan of care.

- To associate and communicate privately with persons of the patient's choice, and to send and receive personal mail unopened, unless medically contraindicated.

- To meet with others and participate in activities of social, religious, and community groups, unless medically contraindicated.

- To retain and use personal clothing and possessions as space permits, unless to do so would infringe on rights of other patients and unless medically contraindicated.

- If married, to be assured privacy for visits by the patient's spouse and if both are patients in the facility, to be permitted to share a room, unless medically contraindicated.

- To have daily visiting hours established.

- To have visits from members of the clergy at any time, at the request of the patient or the patient's guardian.

- To allow relatives, or persons responsible, to visit critically ill patients at any time, unless medically contraindicated.

- To be allowed privacy for visits with family, friends, clergy, or social workers, or for professional or business purposes.

- To have reasonable access to telephones and to make and receive confidential calls.

- With regard only to patients in intermediate care facilities, to be permitted to purchase drugs or to rent or purchase medical supplies or equipment, pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1320.

With regard to skilled nursing facilities, a patient's regulatory rights may be denied or limited only for good cause, which must be evidenced by the written order of the attending physician, and may only be denied or limited when otherwise authorized by law. The reasons must be documented in the patient's health record by the attending physician [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 72527(b)].

With regard to intermediate care facilities, a patient's regulatory rights may be denied for good cause only by the attending physician, and must be documented in the patient's health record by the attending physician [22 Cal. Code Reg § 73523(b)].

Effective July 1, 2007, the written policies and procedures of a skilled nursing facility or intermediate care facility must ensure that specified federal regulations regarding the rights of residents in long-term care facilities and the duties of those facilities toward their residents [see 42 C.F.R. §§ 483.10, 483.12, 483.13, 483.15 (as in effect July 1, 2006); see also § 351.21[3]] are applied to the facility, in addition to state law requirements and regardless of a resident's payment source or the Medi-Cal or Medicare certification status of the facility in which the resident resides, except that a noncertified facility is not obligated to provide notice of Medicaid or Medicare benefits, covered services, or eligibility procedures [Health & Safety Code § 1599.1(i)].

[3] Rights Under Federal Law

A long-term health care facility (that is, an intermediate care facility, skilled nursing facility, and nursing facility) that participates in Medicare or Medicaid programs must conform to the federal regulations set forth in 42 C.F.R. § 483.1 et seq., some of which apply to all such facilities, and some of which apply only to the facilities specified in the provision. These regulations are based on such residents' rights as freedom from discrimination for exercising one's rights, limitations on transfer and discharge, and freedom from physical restraints [see 42 C.F.R. §§ 483.10, 483.12, 483.13, respectively]. Under these regulations, the facility must provide each resident with the necessary nursing, medical, and psychosocial services to attain and maintain the highest possible mental and physical functional status [42 C.F.R. § 483.25]. In addition, the facility is required to develop a comprehensive care plan for each resident, and to conduct periodic assessments of each resident's functional capacity for that purpose [see 42 C.F.R. § 483.20].

Skilled nursing facilities must also adhere to federal statutes establishing requirements for participation in Medicare and Medicaid reimbursement programs. A skilled nursing facility participating in the Medicare program must comply with the standards set forth in 42 U.S.C. § 1395i-3, such as the protection of a patient's right to privacy [see 42 U.S.C. § 1395i-3(c)]. A skilled nursing facility participating in the Medicaid program must comply with the standards set forth in 42 U.S.C. § 1396r, including limitations on transfer and discharge [see 42 U.S.C. § 1396r(c); see also 42 U.S.C. § 1396r(a) (defining "nursing facility")]. Enforcement of the both these statutes generally inhere to the federal and state governments [see 42 U.S.C. §§ 1395i-3(h) (Medicare), 1396r(h) (Medicaid)]. They are in addition to any other state or federal remedies, and do not preclude any remedies available to an individual at common law [42 U.S.C. §§ 1395i-3(h)(5) (Medicare), 1396r(h)(8) (Medicaid)]. Many of the patients' rights specified under federal law are similar to those specified under California law and regulations [compare, e.g., 42 U.S.C. § 1395i-3(c) with 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 72527(a)].

Federal law regarding skilled nursing facilities participating in the Medicare program also affords a patient the right to receive written information at the time of admission of his or her rights under state law to make decisions concerning medical care received from the facility, including the right to accept or refuse medical or surgical treatment and the right to formulate advance directives [see 42 U.S.C. §§ 1395cc(f), 1395i-3(c)(1)(E); but see Pub. L. No. 101-508, § 4206(c) (not prohibiting application of any state law that allows for objection on basis of conscience by health care provider)]. This provision could be relevant, for example, with respect to an issue regarding the patient's "right to die" [see Cruzan v. Director, Mo. Health Dept. (1990) 497 U.S. 261, 110 S. Ct. 2841, 111 L. Ed. 2d 224, 245-246 (patient's "right to die" under U.S. Const., amend. XIV)].

[4] Civil Action for Violation of Regulations

A current or former resident or patient of a skilled nursing facility or an intermediate care facility may bring a civil action against the licensee of a facility who violates any rights of the resident or patient as set forth in 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 72527 or any other right provided for by federal or state law or regulation. The suit must be brought in a court of competent jurisdiction. The licensee is liable for the acts of the licensee's employees. The licensee is liable for up to $500, and for costs and attorney's fees, and may be enjoined from permitting the violation to continue [Health & Safety Code § 1430(b); see Health & Safety Code § 1250(c) (definition of skilled nursing facility), (d) (definition of intermediate care facility)]. The remedies specified in Health & Safety Code § 1430(b) are in addition to any other remedy provided by law [Health & Safety Code § 1430(c)]. For a form for a complaint for damages and injunctive relief under Health & Safety Code § 1430(b), see § 351.221.

An agreement by a resident or patient of a skilled nursing facility or intermediate care facility to waive his or her rights to sue pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1430(b) is void as contrary to public policy [Health & Safety Code § 1430(b)].

A cause of action under Health & Safety Code § 1430(b) survives the death of the resident or patient, since under the general rule, except as otherwise provided by statute, a cause of action for or against a person is not lost by reason of the person's death but survives subject to the applicable limitation period [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.20(a)], and there is no contrary statutory provision respecting a cause of action under Health & Safety Code § 1430(b) [Fitzhugh v. Granada Healthcare & Rehab. Ctr. (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 469, 473-474, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 585] .

Any rights under Health & Safety Code § 1599 et seq. of a patient judicially determined to be incompetent, or who is found by his or her physician to be medically incapable of understanding that information, or who exhibits a communication barrier, devolve to that patient's guardian, conservator, next of kin, sponsoring agency, or representative payer, unless the facility itself is the representative payer [Health & Safety Code § 1599.3; see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 72527(c) (devolution of rights in skilled nursing facility), 73523(c) (devolution of rights in intermediate care facility)].

31-351 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 351.22

§ 351.22 Protection Against Unlawful Relocation

[1] In General

The Patients' Bill of Rights includes the right not to be transferred except for enumerated purposes [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 72527(a)(5) (skilled nursing facility), 73523(a)(5) (intermediate care facility); see also § 351.21[2]].

[2] Civil Action for Unlawful Relocation

A civil action against the licensee for unlawful relocation may be brought pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1430(b) [see § 351.21[4]]. If the violation also constitutes a Class A or B violation, an action may be brought pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1430(a), which provides a private right of action for injunction or damages for classified violations [see § 351.19].

[3] Restrictions Under Medi-Cal Program

[a] Disclosures

Every long-term health care facility must reveal to applicants for admission, or to their designated representatives, orally and in writing and prior to admission whether the facility participates in the Medi-Cal program, and the circumstances under which the law permits a Medi-Cal recipient to be transferred involuntarily [Health & Safety Code § 1439.8; see Welf. & Inst. Code § 14022.3 (virtually identical provision)].

[b] Prohibition Against Transfer After Conversion to Medi-Cal

No long-term health care facility participating as a provider under the Medi-Cal program may seek to evict any resident or, after 2001, transfer any resident within the facility, because the resident changed his or her manner of purchasing services from private payment or Medicare to Medi-Cal, except that a facility may transfer a resident from a private room to a semiprivate room if the resident changes to Medi-Cal payment status. This prohibition also applies to residents who have made a timely and good faith application for Medi-Cal benefits and for whom an eligibility determination has not yet been made [Welf. & Inst. Code § 14124.7(a); see Welf. & Inst. Code § 14124.10 (prohibiting discrimination against Medi-Cal patients based on source of payment)]. This prohibition does not apply to any resident of a skilled nursing facility or intermediate care facility receiving respite care services, unless the services are already provided through a Medicaid waiver program, or are already allowed as a covered service by the Medi-Cal program [Welf. & Inst. Code § 14124.7(b); see 42 U.S.C. § 1396n (Medicaid waiver program); see also Health & Safety Code § 1418.1 (respite care services), discussed in § 351.11[7]]. In addition, this prohibition does not limit a facility's ability to transfer a resident within a facility, as provided by law, because of a change in a resident's health care needs or if the bed retention would result in there being no available Medicare-designated beds within a facility [Health & Safety Code § 14124.7(c)]. All of these rules, however, are to be implemented only to the extent that there is no conflict with federal law [Health & Safety Code § 14124.7(d)]. For a complaint based on violation of a patient's rights, which includes allegations asserting violation of Welf. & Inst. Code § 14124.7(a), see § 351.221.

[c] Transfer for Misrepresentation of Finances

A long-term health care facility participating as a provider under the Medi-Cal program may transfer or seek to evict a resident if the facility discovers, within 90 days of admission, that a private-pay patient's financial assets and liabilities are materially different than represented prior to acceptance of the patient, after requesting specific financial information, relying on it, and promptly and diligently investigating [see Health & Safety Code § 1439.7(a)-(c)]. This provision applies notwithstanding Welf. & Inst. Code § 14124.7 [Health & Safety Code § 1439.7]. For a form for an affirmative defense based on Health & Safety Code § 1439.7, for use in response to a complaint for unlawful relocation under Welf. & Inst. Code § 14124.7, see § 351.222.

The 90-day limit on transfer or eviction does not apply if the resident fraudulently misrepresented his or her assets and liabilities so that if the material facts were known at the time by the facility the resident would not have been admitted, and the facility could not have discovered the misrepresentation by exercising reasonable diligence [Health & Safety Code § 1439.7(d); see Health & Safety Code § 1439.7(e) (limit of 18 months from admission date to transfer or evict)]. A facility must promptly notify the Department of Health Services and the Office of the Long-Term Care Ombudsman prior to taking action to transfer or evict a resident under Health & Safety Code § 1439.7 [Health & Safety Code § 1439.7(f); see § 351.104[2]].

[d] Eviction After Facility's Voluntary Withdrawal From Medi-Cal Program

Any nursing facility, or any category of intermediate care facility for the developmentally disabled currently certified to participate in the Medi-Cal program, may not voluntarily withdraw from the program unless all of the following conditions are met [Welf. & Inst. Code § 14022.4(a); see Health & Safety Code § 14022.4(b) (not applicable to facilities that filed notice of intent prior to May 1, 1987)]:

- The facility must file with the Department of Health Services a notice of intent to withdraw from the Medi-Cal program.

- The facility is prohibited from subsequently evicting any Medi-Cal recipient or private pay patient residing at the facility at the time the notice of intent to withdraw from the Medi-Cal program, except for patients transferred or discharged only for medical reasons, or for the welfare of that patient or other patients, or for nonpayment.

- Patients admitted to the facility on or after the date of the notice of intent to withdraw from the Medi-Cal program must be advised orally and in writing that the facility intends to withdraw from the Medi-Cal program, and that the facility is not required to keep a new resident who converts from private pay to Medi-Cal, notwithstanding Welf. & Inst. Code § 14124.7.

The facility may formally withdraw from the Medi-Cal program when all patients residing in the facility at the time the facility filed the notice of intent to withdraw from the program no longer reside in the facility [Welf. & Inst. Code § 14022.4(d)].

Welf. & Inst. Code § 14022.4 does not apply to any facility that ceases operations entirely (that is, not in operation for a period of 12 months or longer) [Welf. & Inst. Code § 14022.4(g)].

[4] Relocation Procedures When Facility Unable to Care for Patients

[a] Notice Requirement

Notwithstanding any other provisions of law, a long-term health care facility must give written notice to the affected patients or to the guardians of the affected patients at least 30 days prior to any change in the status of the license or in the operation of the facility resulting in the inability of the facility to care for its patients. If patients' placement problems are encountered that cannot satisfactorily be resolved within the 30-day period, the Department of Health Services and the health facility must agree on an extension that does not exceed an additional 60 days [Health & Safety Code § 1336; see also Health & Safety Code § 1336.2(a), (c) (30-day notice must include notice of right to relocation services) and discussion in § 351.22[4][c]]. The notice requirements under Health & Safety Code § 1336 are inapplicable to actions initiated by the Department of Health Services to suspend or revoke the facility's license [Health & Safety Code § 1336].

[b] Relocation Services

Before residents are transferred because of any change in the status of the license or operation of a facility, including a facility closure or voluntary or involuntary termination of a facility's Medi-Cal or Medicare certification, the facility must take reasonable steps to transfer affected residents safely and minimize possible transfer trauma by doing, at a minimum, all of the following [Health & Safety Code § 1336.2(a)]. In addition, the facility must provide an appropriate team of professional staff to perform these required services [Health & Safety Code § 1336.2(b)].

- The facility must be responsible for ensuring that the resident's attending physician, if available, or a facility medical director, if available, completes the medical assessment of the resident's condition and susceptibility to adverse health consequences, including psychosocial effects, before written notice of transfer is given to the resident. The assessment cannot be considered complete unless it provides, in accordance with these assessments, recommendations for counseling, follow-up visits, and other recommended services, by designated health professionals, and for preventing or ameliorating potential adverse health consequences in the event of transfer.

- The facility must be responsible for ensuring that the facility nursing staff and activity director complete an assessment of the social and physical functioning of the resident based on the relevant portions of the minimum data set, as described in Welf. & Inst. Code § 14110.15, before written notice of transfer is given to the resident. The assessment cannot be considered complete unless it provides recommendations for preventing or ameliorating potential adverse health consequences in the event of transfer. The assessment may be amended because of a change in the resident's health care needs. The assessment must also include a recommendation for the type of facility that would best meet the resident's needs.

- The facility must be responsible for evaluating the relocation needs of the resident, including proximity to the resident's representative, and must determine the most appropriate and available type of future care and services for the resident before written notice of transfer is given to the resident or the resident's representative. The health facility must discuss the evaluation and medical assessment with the resident or the resident's representative and make the evaluation and assessment part of the medical records for transfer. If the resident or resident's representative chooses to make a transfer before completion of assessments, the facility must inform the resident or the resident's representative, in writing, of the importance of obtaining the assessments and follow-up consultation.

- At least 30 days in advance of the transfer, the facility must inform the resident or the resident's representative of alternative facilities that are available and adequate to meet resident and family needs.

- The facility must arrange for appropriate future medical care and services, unless the resident or resident's representative has otherwise made these arrangements. This requirement does not obligate a facility to pay for future care and services.

The Department of Health Services may make available assistance for the placement of hard-to-place residents based on the department's determination of the benefit and necessity of that assistance. A hard-to-place resident is a resident whose level of care, physical malady, or behavioral management needs are substantially beyond the norm [Health & Safety Code § 1336.2(e)].

The department may provide, or arrange for the provision of, necessary relocation services at a facility, including medical assessments, counseling, and placement of patients, if the department determines that these services are needed promptly to prevent adverse health consequences to patients, and the facility refuses, or does not have adequate staffing, to provide the services. In these cases, the facility or the licensee must reimburse the department for the cost of providing the relocation services. The department's participation will not relieve the facility of any responsibility under Health & Safety Code § 1336.2. If the department does not provide or arrange for the provision of the necessary relocation services, and the facility refuses to provide the relocation services as required above, then the department must request that the attorney general's office or the local district attorney's office seek injunctive relief and damages in the same manner as provided for in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. (remedies for unfair competition and unfair business practices) [Health & Safety Code § 1336.2(f)].

[c] Notice of Right to Relocation Services

The facility must give written notice to affected residents or their representatives, advising them of the requirements in Health & Safety Code § 1336.2(a) at least 30 days in advance of transfer. If a facility is required to give written notice pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1336 [see § 351.22[4][a]], then the notice must advise the affected resident or resident's representative of the requirements in Health & Safety Code § 1336.2(a). If the transfer is made pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1336.2(g) (discussed under § 351.22[4][d]), the notice must include notification to the resident or resident's representative that the transfer plan is available to the resident or resident's representative free of charge on request [Health & Safety Code § 1336.2(c)].

In the event of a temporary suspension of the facility's license pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1296 (temporary suspension to protect public welfare), the 30-day notice requirement will not apply, but the facility must provide the relocation services required in Health & Safety Code § 1336.2(a) (discussed under § 351.22[4][b]) unless the department provides the services [Health & Safety Code § 1336.2(d)].

[d] Submission of Relocation Plan

If 10 or more residents are likely to be transferred because of any voluntary or involuntary change in the status of the license or operation of a facility, including a facility closure or voluntary or involuntary termination of a facility's

Medi-Cal or Medicare certification, the facility must submit a proposed relocation plan for the affected residents to the Department of Health Services for approval at least 15 days before the written transfer notification is given to any resident or resident's representative. The plan must provide for implementation of the relocation services in Health & Safety Code § 1336.2(a) (discussed under § 351.22[4][b]) and must describe the availability of beds in the area for residents to be transferred, the proposed discharge process, and the staffing available to assist in the transfers. The plan will become effective on the date the department grants its approval. The department must base its approval of a relocation plan on the standards specified in Health & Safety Code § 1336.2. The department must promptly either approve or reject the plan within 10 working days of receipt from the facility. If the department rejects the plan, the facility may resubmit amended relocation plans, each of which the department must promptly either approve or reject within 10 working days of receipt from the facility. Until one plan has been approved by the department, and until the facility has complied with the requirements in Health & Safety Code § 1336.2(a), the facility may not issue a notice of transfer. The facility must submit the relocation plan to the local long-term care ombudsman at the same time the plan is submitted to the department [Health & Safety Code § 1336.2(g)].

Any resident has the right to remain in the facility for up to 60 days after the approved written notice of the facility's intent to transfer the resident if an appropriate placement based on the relocation assessment and relocation recommendations has not been made. The facility must maintain an appropriate level of staffing in order to ensure the well-being of all residents as they continue to reside in the facility. The department must monitor the facility's staging of transfers, and if the facility's staging of placements is causing a detrimental impact on those residents being transferred, then the department must limit the number of residents being transferred per day until the department determines that it would be safe to increase the number [Health & Safety Code § 1336.2(h)].

[e] Appointment of Receiver

When the facility is found to be in such a condition that continued operation presents a substantial probability or imminent danger of serious physical harm or death to the patients, the Director of the Department of Health Services may petition the court for an order appointing a receiver to operate a long-term health care facility temporarily [see Health & Safety Code § 1325 et seq. (management of long-term health care facilities by temporary receiver); see also Newland v. Kizer (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 647, 652-654, 257 Cal. Rptr. 450 (residents' right to seek court order compelling Department to adopt regulations for management of long-term care facilities by receivership)]. The intent of the Legislature in enacting the receivership provisions is to provide an alternative to transfer trauma and to protect the patients in the absence of other reasonable available alternatives [see Health & Safety Code § 1325].

§ 351.23 Loss or Theft of Patients' Property

A long-term health care facility that fails to make reasonable efforts to safeguard patients' property must reimburse residents for, or replace, stolen or lost property at its then current value [Health & Safety Code § 1289.3(a); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 72529 (safeguards for valuables in skilled nursing facility), 73557 (safeguards for valuables in intermediate care facility)]. A long-term health care facility's obligations to provide a program to prevent loss and theft, set forth in Health & Safety Code § 1289.4, are essentially the same as those set forth in Health & Safety Code § 1569.153, which apply to residential care facilities for the elderly, discussed in § 351.44.

The resident or the resident's representative may bring an action to enforce this duty [Health & Safety Code § 1289.3(a); see § 351.240 (complaint for reimbursement or replacement against residential care facility for elderly, which may be adapted for use by patient of long-term care facility)]. If a facility has shown clear and convincing evidence of its efforts to meet each of the requirements under Health & Safety Code § 1289.4, a rebuttable presumption is established that it has made reasonable efforts to safeguard patient property [Health & Safety Code § 1289.3(a); see Health & Safety Code § 1289.4 (enumerating requirements); see also Health & Safety Code § 1418.7 (requiring policies and procedures to reduce theft and loss pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1289.4)].

A facility that fails to implement an adequate theft and loss program is subject to the issuance of a citation by the Department of Health Services [Health & Safety Code § 1289.3(b)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Long-Term Health Care Facilities

§ 351.24 Requirements for Admission Contracts

[1] In General

Health & Safety Code § 1599.60 et seq. contain extensive requirements governing the form, content, and availability of admission contracts for long-term health care facilities, as well as mandated disclosures of patients' rights and facility obligations, and prohibited clauses. Some of the required provisions are designed to protect patients who are or may become Medi-Cal beneficiaries against unlawful or discriminatory treatment because of their Medi-Cal status [see Health & Safety Code §§ 1599.65(b), 1599.66, 1599.67(b), 1599.69, 1599.70, and 1599.76(b); see also Health & Safety Code § 1599.60(a) (definition of admission contracts), discussed § 351.11[6]].

An admission contract for a skilled nursing facility must have an attachment that is placed before any other attachment and that discloses the name of the owner and licensee of the facility and the name and contact information of a single entity that is responsible for all aspects of patient care and the operation of the facility [Health & Safety Code § 1599.64(c); see Health & Safety Code § 1599.645(a) (requirement to update that information by written notice of changes, which must be sent to residents and patients and their primary contacts within 30 days after regulatory approval of change of ownership)].

A skilled nursing facility [see Health & Safety Code § 1250(c)] may admit a patient only on a physician's order and only if the facility is able to provide necessary care for the patient [Health & Safety Code § 1262.7(a)]. The administrator or designee of a skilled nursing facility is responsible for screening patients for admission to the facility to ensure that the facility admits only those patients for whom it can provide necessary care. The administrator, or his or her designee, must conduct preadmission personal interviews as appropriate with the patient's physician, the patient, the patient's next of kin or sponsor, or the representative of the facility from which the patient is being transferred. A telephone interview may be conducted when a personal interview is not feasible [Health & Safety Code § 1262.7(b)].

[2] Applicability of Governing Provisions

The provisions governing admission contracts under Health & Safety Code § 1599.60 et seq. apply only to new admissions to skilled nursing and intermediate care facilities on and after January 1, 1988. Execution of new admission agreements for patients already residing in those facilities prior to January 1, 1988 is not required. Nevertheless, those patients must be given notice of changes in admission contracts pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1599.60 et seq. [see Health & Safety Code § 1599.84].

Although Health & Safety Code § 1599.60(b) defines "contract of admission" in terms of documents regarding admission "to a long term health care facility, as defined in Section 1326," Health & Safety Code § 1599.84 states that Health & Safety Code § 1599.60 et seq. apply to "skilled nursing and intermediate care facilities," which are only two of the seven categories of long term health care facilities listed in Health & Safety Code § 1326.

[3] Prohibited Provisions

Contracts of admission may not include unlawful waivers of facility liability for the health and safety or personal property of residents. No contract of admission may include any provision that the facility knows or should know to be deceptive or unlawful under state or federal law [Health & Safety Code § 1599.62(a)].

In addition, no contract of admission may include a clause that purports to alter the statutory period for filing an action against a facility [Health & Safety Code § 1599.82; for general disucssion of limitation periods, see Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions].

[4] Disclosure of Grievance Procedure Required

The contract of admission must state that the rules must be reasonable, and that there is a procedure for suggesting changes in the rules. It must also specify that a copy of the facility grievance procedure for resolution of residents complaints about facility practices is available [Health & Safety Code § 1599.75(a), (b)]. The agreement must also inform residents of their right to contact the Department of Health Services or the long-term care ombudsman, or both, regarding grievances against the facility [Health & Safety Code § 1599.75(c); for discussion of complaints to the Department of Health Services, see § 351.13; for discussion of the long-term care ombudsman, see § 351.12].

[5] Arbitration Clause Requirements

All contracts of admission that contain an arbitration clause must clearly indicate that agreement to arbitration is not a precondition for medical treatment or for admission to the facility [Health & Safety Code § 1599.81(a)].

Arbitration clauses must be included on a form separate from the rest of the admission contract. The attachment must contain space for the signature of any applicant who agrees to arbitration of disputes [Health & Safety Code § 1599.81(b)]. On the attachments, clauses referring to arbitration of medical malpractice claims under Code Civ. Proc. § 1295 must be clearly separated from other arbitration clauses, and separate signatures are required for each clause [Health & Safety Code § 1599.81(c)]. The attachment must contain notice that under Health & Safety Code § 1430, the patient may not waive his or her ability to sue for violation of the Patient's Bill of Rights [Health & Safety Code § 1599.81(d); for discussion of actions for violations of Patient's Bill of Rights, see § 351.21[4]]. For additional discussion of the arbitration of medical malpractice claims, see Ch. 39, Tactics and New Developments in ADR, and Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice.

[6] Attorney's Fees

If a provision for the payment of attorney's fees is included in the admission contract, it must state that, in disputes arising from the admission contract, the prevailing party is entitled to attorney's fees [Health & Safety Code § 1599.83; see generally Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees].

[7] Cause of Action for Violations

A violation of the admission contract requirements that is determined to be a Class B violation gives rise to a private right of action for classified violations under Health & Safety Code § 1430(a) (discussed under § 351.19) [see Health & Safety Code § 1599.62(c) (remedies not exclusive)]. For a form of complaint for Class A or B violations under Health & Safety Code § 1430(a), see § 351.220.

[8] Administrative Penalties for Violations

Violation of Health & Safety Code § 1599.60 et seq. is subject to a Class B citation or a deficiency from the Department of Health Services. The admission agreement must be viewed as a whole and results in only one citation [Health & Safety Code § 1599.62(b)]. Unless otherwise expressly provided, the remedies or penalties provided by Health & Safety Code § 1599.60 et seq. do not preclude a resident from seeking any other remedy and penalties available under all other laws of California [Health & Safety Code § 1599.62(c)].

§ 351.25 Requirements for Abbreviated Admission Contracts

Abbreviated admission contracts, applying to respite care service to frail elderly or functionally impaired persons in certain facilities on a temporary or periodic basis, are subject to content and form requirements under Health & Safety Code § 1599.64 [see Health & Safety Code § 1599.64(e); see also Health & Safety Code § 1418.1 (respite care services), discussed under § 351.11[7]]. For example, such a contract must include a statement informing the admittee that the contract is designed specifically for the provision of respite care services and cannot be used for any other type of admission to the facility [Health & Safety Code § 1599.64(f)].

A person who seeks to be admitted to the same facility to receive respite care services for which there already exists a prior executed abbreviated contract of admission that was signed by that person (or his or her representative) need not execute a new abbreviated contract of admission if he or she signs a written statement containing modifications of the previous contract [see Health & Safety Code § 1599.652].

The California Residential Care Facilities for the Elderly Act, set forth in Health & Safety Code § 1569 et seq., governs residential care facilities for the elderly generally. Additional provisions applicable to residential care facilities for the elderly are contained in Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 11006.9 (duty to deliver personal needs allowance to resident who is Medi-Cal recipient) and 15601 et seq. (mandated reporting of elder abuse) [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 15610.17 (identifying certain personnel of residential care facilities for elderly as "care custodians" for purposes of mandated reports of elder abuse)]. Regulations governing residential care facilities for the elderly are set out in 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 87100 et seq.

§ 351.41 Definitions

[1] Residential Care Facility for the Elderly

A "residential care facility for the elderly" is a housing arrangement chosen voluntarily by persons 60 years of age or older, or by their authorized representatives, under which varying levels and intensities of care and supervision, protective supervision, or personal care are provided based on their varying needs, as determined in order to be admitted and to remain in the facility. Persons under 60 years of age with compatible needs may be allowed to be admitted or retained in a residential care facility for the elderly as specified in Health & Safety Code § 1569.316 (compatiblity criteria) [Health & Safety Code § 1569.2(k) (operative only until enactment of legislation implementing three levels of care pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1569.70); see Health & Safety Code § 1569.2(l) (similar later-enacted provision and including "health-related services" among types of services defining facility); see also 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 87101(r)(5) (definition of "residential care facility for elderly"), 87582(b), (c) (residence requirements)].

[2] License

"License" means a basic permit to operate a residential care facility for the elderly [Health & Safety Code § 1569.2(h); see Health & Safety Code §§ 1569.10-1569.24 (licensing procedures)].

[3] Care and Supervision

"Care and supervision" means that the facility assumes responsibility for, or provides or promises to provide in the future, ongoing assistance with activities of daily living without which the resident's physical health, mental health, safety, or welfare would be endangered. Assistance includes assistance with taking medications, money management, or personal care [Health & Safety Code § 1569.2(b)].

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a residential care facility for the elderly must make reasonable efforts to contact the person named in the resident's admission agreement as the resident's contact person, or the resident's responsible person, within 24 hours after a significant change in the resident's health or mental status [Health & Safety Code § 1795(b)].

§ 351.42 Facilities Not Covered by Act

The California Residential Care Facilities for the Elderly Act does not apply to any of the following facilities [Health & Safety Code § 1569.145; see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 87107 (facilities allowed to operate without license)]:

- Health facilities [Health & Safety Code § 1569.145(a); see Health & Safety Code § 1250 (definition); see also § 351.11[1] -[4]];

- Clinics [Health & Safety Code § 1569.145(b); see Health & Safety Code §§ 1200, 1200.1 (definitions)];

- A facility conducted by and for the adherents of a well recognized church or religious denomination for the purpose of providing facilities for the care or treatment of the sick who depend on prayer or spiritual means for healing in the practice of the religion of that church or denomination [Health & Safety Code § 1569.145(c); see Universal Life Church, Inc. v. State of California (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 533, 538, 205 Cal. Rptr. 11 (unlicensed community care facilities operated by church for elderly members were not exempt from licensing requirements, since church was not providing care or treatment of sick who depend on prayer or spiritual means for healing: residents were cared for by private physicians and attended to their own medical needs)];

- A recovery house or other similar facility that provides group living arrangements for persons recovering from alcoholism or drug addiction, if it provides no care or supervision [Health & Safety Code § 1569.145(e)];

- A house, institution, hotel, congregate housing project for the elderly (other than a family arrangement described in the item below), or other similar place that has residents independently accessing supporting services or that is limited to providing one or more of the following: housing, meals, transportation, housekeeping, or recreational and social activities, provided, however, that no resident requires any element of care and supervision or protective supervision as determined by the Director of Social Services [Health & Safety Code § 1569.145(d)];

- An arrangement for the care and supervision of a person or persons by a family member [Health & Safety Code § 1569.145(f)(1); see Health & Safety Code § 1569.145(l) (definition of family member)]; or an arrangement for the care and supervision of a person or persons from only one family by a close friend, whose friendship preexisted the contact between the provider and the recipient, if the care and supervision are provided in a home or residence chosen by the care recipient, and the care arrangement is not of a business nature and occurs only as long as the needs of the recipient for care and supervision are adequately met [Health & Safety Code § 1569.145(f)(2)];

- Any housing of the following kind if occupied by elderly or disabled persons, or both, and if supportive services are made available to residents at their option, as long as the project owner or operator does not contract for or provide the supportive services [but see Health & Safety Code § 1569.145(g)(2) (project owner or operator may coordinate, or help residents gain access to, supportive services, either directly or through service coordinator)]:

  - Housing approved and operated pursuant to 12 U.S.C. § 1701q (supportive housing for the elderly) or 42 U.S.C. § 8013 (supportive housing for the elderly with disabilities), or housing subject to a mortgage insured pursuant to 12 U.S.C. § 1715z (home ownership for low-income families), or housing receiving mortgage assistance pursuant to 12 U.S.C. § 1715 l (housing for moderate-income families) [Health & Safety Code § 1569.145(g)(1)(A)]; or

  - Housing that qualifies for a low income housing credit pursuant to I.R.C. § 42 or is subject to the requirements for rental dwellings for low-income families pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1437f [Health & Safety Code § 1569.145(g)(1)(B)]; or

- Any similar facility determined by the Director of Social Services [Health & Safety Code § 1569.145(h)].

31-351 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 351.43

AUTHOR: Carol S. Sanders By Carol S. Sanders, formerly the directing attorney of Contra Costa Legal Assistance for the Elderly, and the Publisher's Editorial Staff.

§ 351.43 Licensing Requirement

[1] In General

No person, firm, partnership, association, or corporation within California, and no state or local public agency, may operate, establish, manage, conduct, or maintain a residential facility for the elderly in California without a current valid license or current valid special permit as provided under Health & Safety Code § 1569 et seq. [Health & Safety Code § 1569.10]. A facility must be licensed as a residential care facility for the elderly if it offers care and supervision, as defined, to its residents [see Health & Safety Code § 1569.45; § 351.41[3]].

The licensing procedures for residential care facilities for the elderly are set forth under Health & Safety Code § 1569.10 et seq.

[2] Facilities Deemed to Be Unlicensed

A facility is deemed to be an "unlicensed residential care facility for the elderly" and "maintained and operated to provide residential care" if it is unlicensed, not exempt from licensure, and any one of the following conditions is satisfied [Health & Safety Code § 1569.44(a)]:

- The facility is providing care and supervision [see Health & Safety Code § 1569.2(b) (definition of "care and supervision"), discussed under § 351.41[3]];

- The facility is held out as, or represented as, providing care and supervision [see Health & Safety Code § 1569.2(b)];

- The facility accepts or retains residents who demonstrate the need for care and supervision [see Health & Safety Code § 1569.2(b)]; or

- The facility represents itself as a licensed residential facility for the elderly.

[3] Operation of Unlicensed Facility as Unfair Business Practice

[a] In General

Operation of an unlicensed facility is an act of unfair competition and an unfair business practice within the meaning of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. [Health & Safety Code § 1569.46]. For a discussion and forms relating to actions for unfair business practices and unfair competition, see Ch. 565, Unfair Competition .

[b] Enhanced Remedies Under Civil Code

Civ. Code § 3345 provides for the enhancement of a fine, civil penalty, or any other remedy imposed in an action brought by, on behalf of, or for the benefit of senior citizens (or disabled persons) to redress unfair practices or unfair competition. For discussion and forms regarding Civ. Code § 3345, see Ch. 504, Sales: Consumers Legal Remedies Act .

[4] Action by Director to Enjoin Unlicensed Facility

The Director of Social Services may bring an action to enjoin the violation or threatened violation of Health & Safety Code § 1569.10 or 1569.44 (prohibiting operation of unlicensed residential care facilities for the elderly), or both. If the court finds that the alleged violations are true, it must issue an order enjoining the residential care facility for the elderly from continuance of the violation [see Health & Safety Code § 1569.41].

[5] Civil Penalties for Operating Unlicensed Facilities

The Department of Social Services may assess an immediate civil penalty against any person who violates Health & Safety Code § 1569.10 or 1569.44, in the amount of $100 per resident for each day of the violation, notwithstanding any other provision of Health & Safety Code § 1569 et seq., unless the Department deems that other available remedies, including criminal prosecution, are more effective [Health & Safety Code § 1569.485(a)]. The civil penalty must be doubled if the operator refuses to seek licensure or if the operator's licensure application is denied and the operator continues to operate the unlicensed facility, unless the Department deems that other available remedies, including criminal prosecution, are more effective [Health & Safety Code § 1569.485(b); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 87768(a)].

An operator may appeal the assessment to the Director of Social Services [Health & Safety Code § 1569.485(c); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 87769(a)]. The appeal must be made within 10 working days after service of the assessments. If the unlicensed facility operation has not ceased, the $200 per day penalty continues to accrue during the appeal process [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 87769(a)].

[6] Criminal Penalties for Operating Unlicensed Facilities

Operation of a residential care facility for the elderly without a license may be punishable as a misdemeanor pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1569.40(b), (d), or as an infraction pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1569.405.

§ 351.44 Theft and Loss of Patients' Property

[1] Required Prevention Program

Residential care facilities for the elderly must implement a theft and loss program that includes all of the following [see Health & Safety Code § 1569.153]:

- Establishment and posting of the facility's policy regarding theft and investigative procedures.

- Orientation to the policies and procedures for all employees within 90 days of employment.

- Documentation of lost and stolen resident property with a value of $25 or more within 72 hours of the discovery of the loss or theft.

- Written personal property inventories established on admission and retained during the resident's stay in the facility, written in ink, witnessed by the facility and the resident or resident's representative, and dated. Items subsequently brought into or removed from the facility must be added to or deleted from the personal property inventory by the facility. The facility is not liable for items omitted or deleted from the inventory. A copy of a current inventory must be made available on request to the resident, responsible party, or other authorized representative. The resident, resident's family, or a responsible party may list items that are not subject to addition or deletion from the inventory, such as personal clothing or laundry, that are subject to frequent removal from the facility.

- Inventory and surrender of the resident's personal effects and valuables on discharge to the resident or authorized representative in exchange for a signed receipt.

- Inventory and surrender of personal effects and valuables, following the death of a resident, to the authorized representative in exchange for a signed receipt; and immediate written notice to the public administrator of the county on the death of a resident whose heirs are unable or unwilling to claim the property [see Prob. Code §§ 7600-7666 (governing public administration of estate)].

- Documentation of efforts to control theft and loss.

- Establishment of a method of marking personal property for identification purposes.

- Reports to local law enforcment agencies within 36 hours when the administrator has reason to believe property worth $100 or more has been stolen.

- Maintenance of a secured area for residents' property, and provision of locks for the resident's bedside drawer or cabinet on the request and at the expense of the resident or the resident's family or authorized representative.

- Provision of copies of Health & Safety Code §§ 1569.152, 1569.153, and 1569.154 to all residents and their responsible parties and, on request, to all prospective residents and their responsible parties.

- Notification to all current residents and all new residents, on admission, of policies and procedure relating to the theft and loss prevention program.

Only residential units that can be secured by residents, and in which there are no unrelated residents, are exempt from the requirements under Health & Safety Code § 1569.153 [Health & Safety Code § 1569.153(m)].

Special regulations govern the licensee's obligations when a resident's cash resources, personal property, or valuables are given to the licensee for safeguarding [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 87217].

[2] Prohibition Against Lesser Contractual Standard

No provision of a contract of admission, which includes all documents that a resident or his or her representative is required to sign at the time of, or as a condition of, admission to a residential care facility for the elderly, may require or imply a lesser standard of responsibility for the personal property of residents than is required by law [Health & Safety Code § 1569.154].

[3] Right of Action by Resident Against Facility

A residential care facility for the elderly that fails to make reasonable efforts to safeguard residents' property must reimburse residents for or replace stolen or lost resident property at its then current value. The facility is presumed to have made reasonable efforts to safeguard resident property if it has shown clear and convincing evidence of its efforts to meet each of the requirements specified in Health & Safety Code § 1569.153. The presumption is rebuttable, and the resident or the resident's representative may pursue this matter in any court of competent jurisdiction [Health & Safety Code § 1569.152]. The Department is prohibited from determining that a facility's program is inadequate based solely on the occasional occurrence of theft or loss in a facility [Health & Safety Code § 1569.152(c)].

A civil penalty must be levied if the facility has no program or has not shown clear and convincing evidence of its efforts to meet all of the requirements under Health & Safety Code § 1569.153. If implemented policies are inadequate, or the situation warrants, the Department must issue a deficiency [Health & Safety Code § 1569.152(b)].

For a form for a complaint by a resident of a residential care facility for the elderly for reimbursement or replacement of lost or stolen property, see § 351.240. For a form for an affirmative defense to a complaint for reimbursement or replacement of lost or stolen property, based on the resident's failure to add the lost or stolen items to the written inventory or the resident's deletion of the items from the inventory, see § 351.241.

§ 351.45 Other Facility Obligations Under Statute

[1] Resident Councils

Every licensed residential care facility for the elderly, at the request of a majority of its residents, must assist the residents in establishing and maintaining a resident-oriented facility council. The council must be composed of residents of the facility and may include family members of residents of the facility. The council may, among other things, make recommendations to facility administrators to improve the quality of daily living in the facility, and may negotiate to protect residents' rights with facility administrators [Health & Safety Code § 1569.157(a)].

Violation of Health & Safety Code § 1569.157(a) is not subject to criminal prosecution as a misdemeanor, pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1569.40, but is subject to any other provision of Health & Safety Code § 1569 et seq. [Health & Safety Code § 1569.157(b)].

[2] Family Councils

No residential care facility for the elderly may prohibit the formation of a family council, and, if requested by a member of the resident's family or the resident's responsible party, the family council must be allowed to meet in a common meeting room of the facility during hours mutually acceptable to the parties [Health & Safety Code § 1569.158(a)]. A "family council" is a meeting of family members, friends, responsible parties, or agents of two or more patients to confer in private without facility staff [Health & Safety Code § 1569.158(c)]. An "agent" is a person who manages, uses, or controls those funds or assets that legally are required to be used to pay the resident's share of cost and other charges not paid for by the Medi-Cal program [Health & Safety Code § 1569.158(c); Welf. & Inst. Code § 14110.8(a)(3)].

Facility policies on family councils may in no way limit the right of residents and family members to meet independently with outside persons, including members of nonprofit or government organizations or with facility personnel during nonworking hours [Health & Safety Code § 1569.158(b)]. Family councils must also be provided adequate space on a prominent bulletin board or other posting area for the display of meeting notices, minutes, and newsletters [Health & Safety Code § 1569.158(d)].

[3] Mandated Services

Every facility required to be licensed as a residential care facility for the elderly must provide at least the following basic services [Health & Safety Code § 1569.312]:

- Care and supervision [see § 351.41[3]].

- Assistance with instrumental activities of daily living in the combinations that meet the needs of residents.

- Help for residents to gain access to appropriate supportive services in the community. "Supportive services" are resources available to the residents in the community that help to maintain their functional ability and meet their needs as identified in the individual resident assessment. Supportive services may include any of the following: medical, dental, and other health care services; transportation; recreational and leisure activities; social services; and counseling services [Health & Safety Code § 1569.2(n)].

- Awareness of the resident's general whereabouts, although the resident may travel independently in the community.

- Monitoring of activities of the residents while they are under the supervision of the facility to ensure their general health, safety, and well-being.

- Encouragement of residents to maintain and develop their maximum functional abilities through participation in planned activities.

[4] Visiting Policy

Each residential care facility for the elderly must state, on its client information form or admission agreement and on its patient's rights form, the facility's policy concerning family visits and other communication with resident clients. The facility must promptly post notice of its visiting policy at a location in the facility that is accessible to residents and families. The facility's policy concerning family visits and communication must be designed to encourage regular family involvement with the resident client, and must provide ample opportunities for family participation in activities at the facility [Health & Safety Code § 1569.313].

[5] Choice of Supplier of Drugs or Medical Equipment

A residential care facility for the elderly may not require residents to purchase medications or to rent or purchase medical equipment from any particular pharmacy or other source [Health & Safety Code § 1569.314].

Health & Safety Code § 1569.314 does not preclude a residential care facility for the elderly from requiring that residents who need assistance with the purchasing, storing, or taking of medications comply with the facility's policies and procedures regarding storage of medications and methods of assisting residents with the taking of medications, if the policies and procedures are reasonably necessary and meet the intent of state or federal regulations [Health & Safety Code § 1569.314].

[6] Recordkeeping and Confidentiality of Records

Each facility required to be licensed must keep a current record, and must respect the privacy and confidentiality, of all of the following information [Health & Safety Code § 1569.315]:

- Clients in the facility, including each client's name and ambulatory status.
- The name and telephone number of each client's physician.
- The name, address, and telephone number of any person or agency responsible for the care of a client.

[7] Eviction Notice

In addition to complying with other applicable regulations, a licensee of a residential care facility for the elderly who sends a notice of eviction to a resident must set forth in the notice to quit the reasons relied on for the eviction, with specific facts to permit determination of the date, place, witnesses, and circumstances concerning those reasons. In addition, the notice to quit must include all of the following [Health & Safety Code § 1569.683(a)]:

- The effective date of the eviction.
- Resources available to assist in identifying alternative housing and care options, including public and private referral services and case management organizations.
- Information about the resident's right to file a complaint with the Department of Social Services regarding the eviction, with the name, address, and telephone number of the nearest office of community care licensing and the State Ombudsman.
- The following statement: "In order to evict a resident who remains in the facility after the effective date of the eviction, the residential care facility for the elderly must file an unlawful detainer action in superior court and receive a written judgment signed by a judge. If the facility pursues the unlawful detainer action, you must be served with a summons and complaint. You have the right to contest the eviction in writing and through a hearing."

The licensee, in addition to either serving a 30 day notice on the resident or seeking approval from the Department of Social Services and serving a three-day notice on the resident, must notify, or mail a copy of the notice to quit to, the resident's responsible person [Health & Safety Code § 1569.683(b)].

§ 351.46 Residents' Personal Rights Under Regulations

[1] Nature of Rights

Each resident has personal rights that include, but are not limited to, the following [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 87468(a)]:

- To be accorded dignity in his or her personal relationships with staff, residents, and other persons.

- To be accorded safe, healthful, and comfortable accomodations, furnishings, and equipment.

- To be free from corporal or unusual punishment, humiliation, intimidation, mental abuse, or other actions of a punitive nature, such as withholding of monetary allowances or interfering with daily living functions (for example, eating or sleeping patterns or elimination).

- To be informed by the licensee of the provisions of law regarding complaints, and of procedures to register complaints confidentially, including, but not limited to, the address and telephone number of the complaint-receiving unit of the licensing agency.

- To have the freedom to attend religious services or activities of his or her choice, and to have visits from the spiritual advisor of his or her choice. Attendance at religious services, either in or outside the facility, must be on a completely voluntary basis.

- To leave or depart the facility at any time and not to be locked into any room or building or on facility premises by day or night. This does not prohibit the establishment of house rules, such as the locking of doors at night, for the protection of the residents; nor does it prohibit, with permission of the licensing agency, the barring of windows against intruders.

- To visit the facility prior to residence along with his or her family and responsible persons.

- To have his or her family or responsible persons regularly informed by the facility of activities related to his or her care or services, including ongoing evaluations, as appropriate to the resident's needs.

- To have communications to the facility from his or her family and responsible persons answered promptly and appropriately.

- To be informed of the facility's policy concerning family visits and other communications with residents, as specified in Health & Safety Code § 1569.313 [see § 351.45[4]].

- To have private visits with permitted visitors (including ombudsmen and advocacy representatives) during reasonable hours and without prior notice, provided that the rights of other residents are not violated.

- To wear his or her own clothes, to keep and use his or her own personal possessions including toilet articles, and to keep and be allowed to spend his or her own money.

- To have access to individual storage space for private use.

- To have reasonable access to telephones, and to make and receive confidential calls, although the licensee may require reimbursement for long distance calls.

- To mail and receive unopened correspondence in a prompt manner.

- To receive or reject medical care or other services.

- To receive assistance in exercising the right to vote.

- To move from the facility.

[2] Disclosure of Rights

All persons accepted to facilities, or their responsible persons, must be personally advised and given a copy of their personal rights at admission. A copy of these rights signed by the resident or his or her responsible person must be included in the resident's record [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 87468(b)].

Facilities licensed for seven or more residents must prominently post in areas accessible to the residents and their relatives (1) procedures for filing confidential complaints, and (2) a copy of residents' personal rights, or in lieu of a posted copy, instructions on how to obtain additional copies [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 87468(c)].

A licensee of a residential care facility for the elderly that advertises or promotes special care, programming, or environments for persons with a health-related condition, except as specified in Health & Safety Code § 1569.72 (resident requires 24-hour skilled nursing or intermediate care or is bedridden for reason other than temporary illness or recovery from surgery), must provide to each prospective resident an accurate narrative description of these programs and services. The description must be provided in writing before admission. All reasonable efforts must be made to communicate the information in the narrative description to a person who is unable to read it himself or herself, including, but not limited to, reading the description out loud [Health & Safety Code § 1569.628].

§ 351.47 Inspection of Facility

[1] Request for Inspection

Any person may request an inspection of any residential care facility for the elderly by transmitting to the Department of Social Services notice of an alleged violation of applicable requirements prescribed by state statutes or regulations including, but not limited to, a denial of access of any person authorized to enter the facility pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 9722 (governing right of entry of representative of Ombudsman's office). A complaint may be made either orally or in writing [Health & Safety Code § 1569.35(a); see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 87468(c); § 351.46[2]]. The substance of the complaint must be provided to the licensee no earlier than the time of the inspection [Health & Safety Code § 1569.35(b)].

Unless the complainant specifically requests otherwise, neither the substance of the complaint provided the licensee nor any copy of the complaint or any record published, released, or otherwise made available to the licensee may disclose the name of any person mentioned in the complaint except the name of any duly authorized officer, employee, or agent of the Department conducting the investigation or inspection pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1569 et seq. [Health & Safety Code § 1569.35(b)].

[2] Required Inspection

On receipt of a complaint, other than a complaint alleging denial of a statutory right of access to a residential care facility for the elderly, the Department must make a preliminary review. Unless the Department determines that the complaint is willfully intended to harass a licensee or is without any reasonable basis, it must make an on-site inspection within 10 days after receiving the complaint, except when the visit would adversely affect the licensing investigation or the investigation of other agencies, including, but not limited to, law enforcement agencies. In either event, the complainant must be promptly informed of the Department's proposed course of action [Health & Safety Code § 1569.35(c)].

On receipt of a complaint alleging denial of a statutory right of access to a residential facility for the elderly, the Department must review the complaint. The complainant must be promptly notified of the Department's proposed course of action [Health & Safety Code § 1569.35(d)].

[3] Prohibition Against Retaliation

No licensee may discriminate or retaliate in any manner against any person receiving the services of that licensee's residential care facility for the elderly, or against any employee of the licensee's facility, because the person or employee or any other person has initiated or participated in an inspection pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1569.35 [Health & Safety Code § 1569.37].

[4] Periodic Inspections

Every licensed residential care facility must be periodically inspected and evaluated for quality of care by a representative designated by the Director of Social Services. Evaluations must be conducted at least once per year and as often as necessary to ensure the quality of care being provided [Health & Safety Code § 1569.33(a)-(d)]. The Department of Social Services must notify the facility in writing of all deficiencies, and must keep inspection reports and related documents on file [see Health & Safety Code § 1569.33(e), (f)]. As a part of the Department's annual evaluation process, the Department must review the plan of operation, training logs, and marketing materials of any residential care facility for the elderly that advertises or promotes special care, special programming, or a special environment for persons with dementia [Health & Safety Code § 1569.33(g)], in order to monitor compliance with Health & Safety Code §§ 1569.626 and 1569.627 (prescribing staff-training requirements and information-disclosure requirements).

[5] Posting of Licensing Reports

Every residential care facility for the elderly must put in a conspicuous place copies of all licensing reports issued by the Department within the preceding 12 months, and all licensing reports issued by the Department resulting from the most recent annual visit of the Department to the facility. This requirement does not apply to any portion of a licensing report referring to a complaint that was found by the Department to be unfounded or unsubstantiated. During the admission process, the facility must inform the resident and the resident's responsible person in writing that licensing reports are available for review at the facility, and that copies of licensing reports and other documents pertaining to the facility are available from the appropriate district office of the Department. The facility must provide the telephone number and address of the appropriate district office [Health & Safety Code § 1569.38].

§ 351.48 Removal of Resident Because of Extraordinary Needs

When the Department of Social Services does not suspend the license of a facility, it may still order the licensee to remove a resident who has a health condition that cannot be cared for within the limits of the license, or requires inpatient care in a health facility as determined by the Department [Health & Safety Code § 1569.54(a)(1)]. If the Department determines that the resident's mental or physical condition requires immediate transfer from the facility in order to protect the health and safety of the resident, it may order the licensee to remove the resident after the Department consults with a physician or other medical professional about the transfer and ways in which transfer trauma can be minimized [Health & Safety Code § 1569.54(a)(2)].

If the Department alleges that a resident has a health condition that cannot be cared for within the limits of the license or requires inpatient care in a health facility, it must give notice to the resident, his or her legal representative when appropriate, and the licensee. The notice must specify a deadline for submitting a written plan for relocation, and must inform the resident of his or her right to a review and determination by an interdisciplinary team pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1569.34. The resident, or his or her legal representative, has three working days to inform the licensee of the request for review. On receiving a request from a resident, or his or her legal representative, for a review and determination, the licensee must forward the request to the Department within two working days of receipt. Failure or refusal by the licensee to submit the request for review and determination to the Department may be subject to the civil penalties specified in Health & Safety Code § 1569.49 [Health & Safety Code § 1569.54(b)(1); see § 351.29[2]]. The review and determination must be completed within 30 days from the date that the resident was initially informed of the need to relocate [Health & Safety Code § 1569.54(b)(2)].

The provisions allowing for a resident's right to a review prior to transfer as provided for in Health & Safety Code § 1569.54(b) do not negate the Department's authority and responsibility to require an immediate transfer under Health & Safety Code § 1569.54(a)(2) when the Department finds and provides evidence that the resident must be relocated in order to protect his or her health and safety. Moreover, the provisions do not imply any right to a fair hearing pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950 et seq. [Health & Safety Code § 1569.54(c)].

31-351 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 351.49

AUTHOR: Carol S. Sanders By Carol S. Sanders, formerly the directing attorney of Contra Costa Legal Assistance for the Elderly, and the Publisher's Editorial Staff.

§ 351.49 Remedies for Violations

[1] Denial, Suspension, or Revocation of License

Violation by a licensee of the provisions of the Residential Care Facilities for the Elderly Act or of the rules and regulations adopted under that Act is a ground for suspension or revocation of a license [Health & Safety Code § 1569.50(a); see also Health & Safety Code §§ 1569.51 (procedures for suspension, revocation, or denial of license), 1569.525 (relocation and transfer of residents when facility's license is temporarily suspended)].

The Director of Social Services may temporarily suspend any license, prior to any hearing, when, in the opinion of the Director, the action is necessary to protect residents or clients of the facility from physical or mental abuse, abandonment, or any other substantial threat to health or safety. The Director must notify the licensee of the temporary suspension and its effective date and at the same time must serve the provider with an accusation. On receipt of a notice of defense to the accusation by the licensee, the Director must, within 15 days, set the matter for hearing, and the hearing must be held as soon as possible but not later than 30 days after receipt of the notice. The temporary suspension must remain in effect until the time the hearing is completed and the Director has made a final determination on the merits. The temporary suspension will be deemed vacated, however, if the Director fails to make a final determination on the merits within 30 days after the original hearing has been completed [see Health & Safety Code § 1569.50; see also Habrun v. Department of Social Services (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 318, 322, 193 Cal. Rptr. 340 (summary suspension of license of residential care facility for elderly under former Health & Safety Code § 1550 pending hearing on allegations of abuse and neglect endangering health and safety of residents did not violate due process rights of owners since citizen may be temporarily deprived of property rights if state has compelling interest and timely hearing is provided)].

[2] Civil Penalties Levied by Department of Social Services

In addition to suspension, temporary suspension, or revocation of a license, the Department of Social Services may levy a civil penalty [Health & Safety Code § 1569.49(a)]. The amount of the civil penalty must not be less than $25 or more than $50 per day for each violation of the provisions of the Act, except when the nature or seriousness of the violation or the frequency of the violation warrants a higher penalty or an immediate civil penalty assessment, or both, as determined by the Department. In no event may a civil penalty assessment exceed $150 per day per violation [Health & Safety Code § 1569.49(b)].

Notwithstanding Health & Safety Code § 1569.33, governing inspection and notification of deficiencies in compliance with the Act, the department must assess an immediate civil penalty of $150 per day per violation for specified serious violations of Health & Safety Code § 1569 et seq. [Health & Safety Code § 1569.49(c)], and any facility that is cited for repeating the same violation of Health & Safety Code § 1569 et seq. within 12 months of the first violation is subject to an immediate civil penalty of $150, and $50 for each day the violation continues until the deficiency is corrected [Health & Safety Code § 1569.49(c)]. Any facility that is assessed a civil penalty pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1569.49(c) that repeats the same violation within 12 months of the violation subject to Health & Safety Code § 1569.49(c) must be assessed an immediate civil penalty of $150, and $50 for each day the violation continues until the deficiency is corrected [Health & Safety Code § 1569.49(d)].

Additional provisions govern civil penalties for the operation of residential care facilities for the elderly without a license [see § 351.43[5]].

[3] Criminal Penalties

Violation of the Health & Safety Code § 1569 et seq., or willful or repeated violation of any rule or regulation adopted under the Act, is punishable as a misdemeanor [Health & Safety Code § 1569.40(a); see also Health & Safety Code § 1569.406 (unauthorized disclosure to facility of proposed or pending evaluation punishable as misdemeanor)].

Special provisions govern prosecution for the operation of residential care facilities for the elderly without a license [see § 351.43[6]].

§ 351.71 Protection of Elderly Regarding Continuing Care Needs

The Legislature has found that the elderly require protection from tragic consequences that can result from a continuing care provider's insolvency or inability to provide responsible care [see Health & Safety Code § 1770(b)]. It therefore has enacted Health & Safety Code § 1770 et seq., which provide for administrative control over continuing health care providers and empower the purchasers under continuing care contracts with certain contractual safeguards and remedies. An elderly person is defined as an individual who is 60 years of age or older [Health & Safety Code § 1771(e)(1)].

Health & Safety Code § 1770 et seq. must be liberally construed for the protection of persons attempting to secure their care for the remainder of their lifetime or for a period in excess of one year [Health & Safety Code § 1775(f)].

§ 351.72 Definitions

[1] Continuing Care Contract

A continuing care contract is a written contract that includes a promise by a provider to provide one or more elements of care to an elderly resident for the duration of his or her life or for a term in excess of one year in exchange for the payment of an entrance fee or payment of periodic charges, or both types of payments. A continuing care contract may consist of one or a series of agreements, and may have other writings incorporated by reference. A continuing care contract includes a life care contract [Health & Safety Code § 1771(c)(8)].

[2] Life Care Contract

A life care contract is a continuing care contract that includes a promise by a provider to provide all levels of care, including acute care and physicians' and surgeons' services, to a resident for the duration of his or her life. Care must be provided in a facility having a comprehensive continuum of care, including a skilled nursing facility, under the ownership and supervision of the provider on, or adjacent to, the premises. In a life care contract, no change is made in the monthly fee based on the level of service. A life care contract must also include provisions to subsidize residents who become financially unable to pay their monthly care fees [Health & Safety Code § 1771(l)(1)]. For discussion of skilled nursing facilities, see § 351.10 et seq.

[3] Transferor

A transferor, within the meaning of Health & Safety Code § 1770 et seq., is a person who transfers or promises to transfer consideration in exchange for care and related services under a continuing care contract or proposed continuing care contract, for the benefit of another [Health & Safety Code § 1771(t)(3)].

[4] Facility

A facility, for the purposes of Health & Safety Code § 1770 et seq., is any place or accommodation in which a provider provides or will provide a resident with care or related services, whether or not it is constructed, owned, leased, rented, or otherwise contracted for by the provider [Health & Safety Code § 1771(f)(1)].

[5] Provider

A provider, within the meaning of Health & Safety Code § 1770 et seq., is an entity that provides, promises to provide, or proposes to promise to provide, continuing care. The term includes any entity that controls an entity that provides continuing care, makes a continuing care promise, or proposes to promise to provide continuing care. No homeowner's association, cooperative, or condominium association may be a provider [Health & Safety Code § 1771(p)(10); see Health & Safety Code § 1771(p)(11) (provisional certificate of authority indicating department authorization)].

[6] Resident

A resident, within the meaning of Health & Safety Code § 1770 et seq., is a person who enters into a continuing care contract with a provider, or who is designated in a continuing care contract to be a person being provided or to be provided services, including care, board, or lodging [Health & Safety Code § 1771(r)(5)].

§ 351.73 Inapplicability of Provisions

Health & Safety Code § 1770 et seq. do not apply to any arrangement for the care of a person by a relative, or any arrangement for the care of a person or persons from only one family by a friend [Health & Safety Code § 1771.3(a)].

Health & Safety Code § 1770 et seq. do not apply to any admission or residence agreements offered by residential communities for the elderly or residential care facilities for the elderly that promise residents preferred access to assisted living services or nursing care, when each of the following conditions is satisfied [Health & Safety Code § 1771.3(b)]:

- Residents pay on a fee-for-service basis for available assisted living services and nursing care.

- The fees paid for available assisted living services and nursing care are the same for residents who have previously occupied a residential living unit as for residents who have not previously occupied a residential living unit.

- No entrance fee or prepayment for future care or access, other than monthly care fees, is paid by, or charged to, any resident at the community or facility. For purposes of this requirement, the term entrance fee does not include initial, deferred, or amortized payments that cumulatively do not equal $7,500.

- The provider has not made a continuing care promise of preferred access, other than a promise as described in the next paragraph.

- The admission or residence agreement states the following:

> "This agreement does not guarantee that an assisted living or nursing bed will be available for residents, but, instead, promises preferred access to any assisted living or nursing beds that are available at the community or facility. The promise of preferred access gives residents who have previously occupied a residential living unit a right over other persons to such beds. A continuing care contract promises that care will be provided to residents for life or for a term in excess of a year. _____ [name of community or facility] is not a continuing care retirement community and _____ [name of provider] does not hold a certificate of authority to enter into continuing care contracts and is not required to have the same fiscal reserves as a continuing care provider. This agreement is not a continuing care contract and is exempted from the continuing care statutes under subdivision (b) of section 1771.3 of the Health and Safety Code so long as the conditions set forth in that section are met."

- The admission or residence agreement also states the policies and procedures regarding transfers to higher levels of care within the community or facility.

Any entity may apply to the Department for a letter of exemption stating that the requesting entity satisfies the requirements for an exemption under Health & Safety Code § 1771.3 [Health & Safety Code § 1771.3(c); see Health & Safety Code § 1771.3(d), (e) (necessary conditions for issuance of letter; contents of application)].

If at any time any of the conditions stated in this section are not satisfied, then the requirements of Health & Safety Code § 1770 et seq. apply, and the Department may impose appropriate remedies and penalties set forth in Health & Safety Code § 1793.5 et seq. [Health & Safety Code § 1771.3(f)].

§ 351.74 Relation of Continuing Care Provisions to Other Remedies and Laws

To the extent that Health & Safety Code § 1770 et seq., as interpreted by the Department of Social Services, may be in conflict with the statutes, regulations, or departmental interpretations governing the sale or hire of real property, the provisions governing continuing care contracts will prevail [Health & Safety Code § 1775(a)].

Notwithstanding any law or regulation to the contrary, a provider for a continuing care retirement community may restrict or abridge the right of any resident, whether or not the resident owns an equity interest, to sell, lease, encumber, or otherwise convey any interest in the resident's unit, and may require that the resident only sell, lease, or otherwise convey the interest to persons approved by the provider. Provider approval may be based on factors that include, but are not limited to, age, health status, insurance risk, financial status, or burden on the provider's personnel, resources, or physical facility. The provider must record any restrictions on a real property interest [Health & Safety Code § 1775(b)].

To the extent that Health & Safety Code § 1770 et seq. conflict with Civ. Code §§ 51.2 (housing discrimination prohibited based on age) and 51.3 (accessible housing for elderly), Health & Safety Code § 1770 et seq. have precedence. A continuing care facility, at its discretion, may limit entrance based on age [Health & Safety Code § 1775(c)]. For discussion of Civ. Code §§ 51.2 and 51.3, see Ch. 117, Civil Rights: Housing Discrimination .

A resident's entry into a continuing care contract described in Health & Safety Code § 1770 et seq. is presumptive evidence of the resident's intent not to return to his or her prior residence to live for purposes of qualifying for Medi-Cal coverage under Welf. & Inst. Code § 14000 et seq. and 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 50425 [Health & Safety Code § 1775(f)].

§ 351.75 Requirements for Continuing Care Contract

All continuing care contracts must be in writing, and must contain all information required by Health & Safety Code § 1788 (discussed under § 351.76) [Health & Safety Code § 1787(a)]. All continuing care contract forms must be approved by the Department of Social Services prior to their use, based on the requirements under Health & Safety Code §§ 1770 et seq. and 1569 et seq. [Health & Safety Code § 1787(b), (c)]. The contract constitutes the full and complete agreement between the parties [Health & Safety Code § 1787(d)]. More than one contract form may be used if multiple program options are available [Health & Safety Code § 1787(e)].

The provider must require a written acknowledgment from the transferor (and the resident, if other than the transferor) that the executed copy of the contract and attachments have been received [Health & Safety Code § 1787(h)].

The continuing care contract constitutes an admissions agreement for purposes of the residential care facility for the elderly and long-term health care facility requirements [Health & Safety Code § 1775(i)]. Only the skilled nursing admission agreement sections of continuing care contracts that cover long-term health care facility services are subject to Health & Safety Code § 1599.60 et seq. ("contract of admission," discussed in Part I in § 351.24) [Health & Safety Code § 1787(j)].

A clearly legible copy of the continuing care contract, executed by each provider named on the provisional certificate of authority or the certificate of authority, the resident, and any transferor, must be furnished with all required or included attachments to the resident at the time the continuing care contract is executed. A copy must also be furnished within 10 calendar days to any transferor who is not a resident [Health & Safety Code § 1787(g)].

All text in contract forms must be printed in at least 10-point type [Health & Safety Code § 1787(f)].

§ 351.76 Mandatory Provisions of Contract

[1] In General

Any continuing care contract must contain all of the following:

- The legal name and address of each provider [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(1)].

- The name and address of the continuing care retirement community [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(2)].

- The resident's name and the identity of the unit the resident will occupy [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(3)].

- If there is a transferor other than the resident: the transferor's name and address (the transferor must be a party to the contract) [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(4)].

- If the provider has used the name of any charitable or religious or nonprofit organization in its title before January 1, 1979, and continues to use that name, and that organization is not responsible for the financial and contractual obligations of the provider or the obligations specified in the continuing care contract, the provider must include in every continuing care contract a conspicuous statement that clearly informs the resident that the organization is not financially responsible [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(5)].

- The date the contract is signed by the resident and any other transferor [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(6)].

- The duration of the contract [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(7)].

- A list of the services to be provided to the resident [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(8)].

- An itemization of the services that are included in the monthly fee and the services that are available at an extra charge [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(9); § 351.76[6]].

- The procedures and conditions under which residents may be voluntarily and involuntarily transferred from their designated living units [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(10); see also § 351.76[5]].

- Provisions describing any changes in the resident's monthly fee and any changes in the entrance fee refund payable to the resident that will occur if the resident transfers from any unit [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(11); § 351.76[6]].

- The obligations of the provider in the event a resident is transferred [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(12)].

- Whether the provider has any responsibility to resume care [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(13)].

- The obligations of the provider for services provided while the resident is absent from the facility [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(14)].

- The conditions under which the resident must permanently release his or her living unit [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(15)].

- If real or personal properties are transferred in lieu of cash: a statement specifying each item's value at the time of transfer, and how the value was ascertained [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(16)].

- Specified information about fees and charges [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(17)-(23), (33); § 351.76[6]].

- Whether the resident's rights under the contract include any proprietary interests in the provider's assets, in the continuing care retirement community, or both. If so, any statement in a contract concerning an ownership interest must appear in a large-sized font or print [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(24)].

- If there is a loan on the property, a provision advising residents that rights they may have to enforce continuing care contracts are subordinate to the rights of the lender [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(25)].

- Notice that the living units are part of a continuing care retirement community that is licensed as a residential care facility for the elderly and, as a result, any duly authorized agent of the Department of Social Services may, on proper identification and on stating the purpose of the visit, enter and inspect the entire premises at any time, without advance notice [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(26)].

- Prescribed notices concerning the parties' rights to cancel the contract [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(27), (28); § 351.78].

- The terms and conditions under which the contract may be terminated after the cancellation period by either party, including any health or financial conditions [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(29)].

- A statement that unilateral termination of the resident by the provider after the cancellation period requires good and sufficient cause [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(30)].

- A statement that at least 90 days' written notice is required for an unilateral termination [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(31)].

- A statement concerning the length of notice that is required by a resident for the voluntary termination after the cancellation period [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(32)].

- The policy or terms for refunding any portion of the entrance fee, in the event of cancellation, termination, or death [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(33)].

- A prescribed notice about the nature of the contract [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(34); § 351.76[7]].

- The following statement: "Nothing in this continuing care contract limits either the provider's obligation to provide adequate care and supervision for the resident or any liability on the part of the provider which may result from the provider's failure to provide this care and supervision" [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(35)].

- Provisions describing how the provider will proceed in the event of a closure, including an explanation of how the provider will comply with Health & Safety Code § 1793.80 et seq. [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(36); § 351.85].

A life care contract must also provide that [Health & Safety Code § 1788(b)]:

- All levels of care, including acute care and physicians' and surgeons' services, will be provided to a resident.

- Care will be provided for the duration of the resident's life unless the life care contract is canceled or terminated by the provider during the cancellation period or after the cancellation period for good cause.

- A comprehensive continuum of care will be provided to the resident, including skilled nursing, in a facility under the ownership and supervision of the provider on, or adjacent to, the continuing care retirement community premises.

- Monthly care fees will not be changed based on the resident's level of care or service.

- A resident who becomes financially unable to pay his or her monthly care fees will be subsidized, provided the resident's financial need does not arise from action by the resident to divest the resident of his or her assets.

[2] Just Cause, Good Cause or Good and Sufficient Cause

Any contract containing a clause that allows a resident to be evicted or a contract to be cancelled for "just cause," "good cause," or "good and sufficient cause," must also contain a provision that neither of the following activities activate the eviction of cancellation provision [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(30)(A)]:

- Filing or lodging a formal or informal complaint with the Department or other appropriate agency; or

- Participation in an organization or affiliation of residents, or other similar lawful activity.

[3] Cancellation

A continuing care contract must contain the following provisions regarding cancellation:

- A conspicuous statement, in at least 10-point boldface type in immediate proximity to the space reserved for the signatures of the resident and, if applicable, the transferor, that provides as follows: "You, the resident or transferor, may cancel the transaction without cause at any time within 90 days from the date you first occupy your living unit. See the attached notice of cancellation form for an explanation of this right" [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(27)].

- Notice that during the cancellation period, the contract may be canceled by the provider without cause, on 30 days written notice; or a statement that the provider waives this right [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(28)].

In addition, every contract must contain a completed form in duplicate of a notice of cancellation. The notice must be attached to the contract, must be easily detachable, and must contain, in at least 10-point boldface type, the statement set forth in Health & Safety Code § 1788(h) [see Health & Safety Code § 1788(h)]. For a form for this notice, see § 351.260.

[4] Transferred Property

A continuing care contract must state all real and personal properties transferred, their value at the time of transfer, and how the value was ascertained. An itemized receipt that includes that information is acceptable if incorporated as a part of the contract. With respect to the transfer of real property, the contract must include a statement that the deed or other instrument of conveyance must contain a recital that the transaction is made pursuant to a continuing care contract and may be subject to rescission by the transferor within 90 days from the date the resident first occupies the residential unit. The failure to comply with this provision does not affect the validity of title to real property transferred pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1770 et seq. [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(16)].

[5] Transfer of Patient

[a] Contract Must Specify Transfer Procedures and Conditions

A continuing care contract must contain the procedures and conditions under which a resident may be voluntarily and involuntarily transferred from a designated living unit. The transfer procedures, at a minimum, must include provisions addressing all of the circumstances described in [b]-[f], below, under which a transfer may be authorized [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(10)].

[b] Circumstances Under Which Facility May Transfer Patient

A continuing care retirement community may transfer a resident under the following conditions, taking into account the appropriateness and necessity of the transfer and the goal of promoting resident independence [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(10)(A)]:

- The resident is nonambulatory. The definition of "nonambulatory," as provided in Health & Safety Code § 13131, must either be stated in full in the continuing care contract or be cited. If cited, a copy of the statute must be made available to the resident, either as an attachment to the continuing care contract or by specifying that it will be provided on request. If a nonambulatory resident occupies a room that has a fire clearance for nonambulatory residence, transfer will not be necessary.

- The resident develops a physical or mental condition that endangers the health, safety, or well-being of the resident or another person.

- The resident's condition or needs require the resident's transfer to an assisted living care unit or skilled nursing facility, because the level of care required by the resident exceeds that which may be lawfully provided in the living unit.

- The resident's condition or needs require the resident's transfer to a nursing facility, hospital, or other facility, and the provider has no facilities available to provide that level of care.

[c] Preconditions for Transfer

Before the continuing care retirement community transfers a resident under any of the conditions specified for obligatory transfers [see [b], above], the community must satisfy all of the following requirements [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(10)(B)(i)-(iii)]:

- Involve the resident and the resident's responsible person [see 22 Cal. Code Regs. § 87101(r)(6) (definition)] and, on the resident's or responsible person's request, family members, or the resident's physician or other appropriate health professional, in the assessment process that forms the basis for the level of care transfer decision by the provider. The provider must offer an explanation of the assessment process. If an assessment tool or tools, including scoring and evaluating criteria, will be used in the determination of the appropriateness of the transfer, the provider must make copies of the completed assessment available on the request of the resident or the resident's responsible person.

- Prior to sending a formal notification of transfer, conduct a care conference with the resident and the resident's responsible person and, on the resident's or responsible person's request, family members, and the resident's health care professionals, to explain the reasons for transfer.

- Notify the resident and the resident's responsible person as to the reasons for the transfer in writing.

If the resident does not have impairment of cognitive abilities, the resident may request that his or her responsible person not be involved in the transfer process [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(10)(B)(iv)].

The notice of transfer must be made at least 30 days before the transfer is expected to occur, except when the health or safety of the resident or other residents is in danger, or the transfer is required by the resident's urgent medical needs. Under those circumstances, the written notice must be made as soon as practicable before the transfer [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(10)(B)(v)].

The written notice must contain the reasons for the transfer, the effective date, the designated level of care or location to which the resident will be transferred, a statement of the resident's right to a review of the transfer decision at a care conference [see Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(10)(C)], and, for disputed transfer decisions, the right to review by the Continuing Care Contracts Branch of the Department of Social Services [see Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(10)(D)]. The notice must also contain the name, address, and telephone number of the Continuing Care Contracts Branch [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(10)(B)(vi)].

The continuing care retirement community must provide sufficient preparation and orientation to the resident to ensure a safe and orderly transfer and to minimize trauma [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(10)(B)(vii)].

[d] Care Conference to Review Transfer Decision

The resident has the right to review the transfer decision at a subsequent care conference that must include the resident, the resident's responsible person and, on the resident's or responsible person's request, family members, the resident's physician or other appropriate health care professional, and members of the provider's interdisciplinary team. The local ombudsperson may also be included in the care conference, on the request of the resident, the resident's responsible person, or the provider [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(10)(C)].

[e] Agency Review of Disputed Transfer Decision

For disputed transfer decisions, the resident or the resident's responsible person has the right to a prompt and timely review of the transfer process by the Continuing Care Contracts Branch of the Department of Social Services [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(10)(D)].

The decision of the Continuing Care Contracts Branch must be in writing and must determine whether the provider failed to comply with the transfer process pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(10)(A)-(C). Pending the decision of the Continuing Care Contracts Branch, the provider must specify any additional care the provider believes is necessary in order for the resident to remain in his or her unit. The resident may be required to pay for the extra care, as provided in the contract [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(10)(E)].

[f] Shared Accommodations

The continuing care contract must provide for the transfer of a second resident when a shared accommodation arrangement is terminated [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(10)(F)].

[6] Fees and Charges

The contract must contain the following information regarding fees and charges:

- A list of all services for which charges in excess of the monthly fee will be made and the fees at the date of the contract for those services [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(9)];

- Provisions for any change in the monthly rate and any refund of entrance fees when a resident transfers from any unit [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(11)];

- The amount of the entrance fee [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(17)];

- In the event two parties have jointly paid the entrance fee or other payment that allows them to occupy the unit, a definition of the allocation of fees [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(18)];

- The amount of any processing fee [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(19)];

- The amount of any monthly care fee [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(20)];

- A provision for notification of the resident at least 30 days in advance of any change in the scope or price of any component of care or other services [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(23)]; and

- The policy for refunding any portion of the entrance fee, in the event of cancellation, termination, or death [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(33)].

In addition, contracts requiring a monthly care fee or other periodic rate must provide additional specified information [see Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(21)]. All contracts must specify a basic method for calculating changes in monthly care fees among those enumerated in Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(22) [see Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(22)].

[7] Notice Regarding Approval of Department of Social Services

The contract must contain the following notice at the bottom of the signatory page [Health & Safety Code § 1788(a)(34)]:

NOTICE

_____ [date]

This is a continuing care contract as defined by paragraph (8) of subdivision (c), or subdivision (l) of Section 1771 of the California Health and Safety Code. This continuing care contract form has been approved by the State Department of Social Services as required by subdivision (b) of Section 1787 of the California Health and Safety Code. The basis for this approval was a determination that (provider name) has submitted a contract that complies with the minimum statutory requirements applicable to continuing care contracts. The department does not approve or disapprove any of the financial or health care coverage provisions in this contract. Approval by the department is NOT a guaranty of performance or an endorsement of any continuing care contract provisions. Prospective transferors and residents are strongly encouraged to carefully consider the benefits and risks of this continuing care contract and to seek financial and legal advice before signing.

[8] Inclusion of Provider's Financial Statement

Every contract must contain a copy of the current audited financial statement [Health & Safety Code § 1788(e)]. New providers unable to furnish a current audited financial statement that will accurately reflect its ability to fulfull the continuing care contract must include certain specified information [see Health & Safety Code § 1788(e)].

§ 351.77 Optional Provisions of Contract

A continuing care contract may include, but is not limited to, and need not include, any of the following items:

- Provisions that limit responsibility for costs associated with the treatment or medication of an ailment or illness existing prior to the date of admission. In such cases, the medical or surgical exceptions, as disclosed by the medical entrance examination, must be listed in the contract or in the medical report, which may be attached to and made a part of the contract [Health & Safety Code § 1788(c)(2)].

- Legal remedies that may be applied in case any material misrepresentation or omission pertaining to assets or health has been made by the resident [Health & Safety Code § 1788(c)(3)].

- A clause that restricts transfer or assignments of the resident's rights and privileges under a continuing care contract because of the personal nature of the contract [Health & Safety Code § 1788(c)(4)].

- A clause for the protection of the provider who may wish to waive any of the terms or provisions of the contract in specific instances in which the resident has breached the contract, without relinquishment of its right to insist on compliance by the resident with all of the other terms or provisions [Health & Safety Code § 1788(c)(5)].

- Provision for the reimbursement of any loss or damage beyond normal wear and tear suffered by the provider as the result of carelessness or negligence on the part of the resident [Health & Safety Code § 1788(c)(6)].

- Provision that the resident agrees to observe off-limit areas of the facility as designated by the provider for safety reasons. However, the provider is prohibited from absolving itself in the contract from liability for past or future negligence by any statement to that effect [Health & Safety Code § 1788(c)(7)].

- Provision for the subrogation to the provider of the resident's rights in the case of injury to a resident caused as a result of the act or negligence of a third party [Health & Safety Code § 1788(c)(8)].

- Provision for a lien on any judgment, settlement, or recovery for any additional expense incurred by the provider in caring for the resident as a result of injury [Health & Safety Code § 1788(c)(9)].

- Provision that requires the cooperation of the resident in assisting in the diligent prosecution of any claim or action against any third party [Health & Safety Code § 1788(c)(10)].

- Provision for the appointment of a conservator or guardian by a court of competent jurisdiction in the event a resident becomes unable to handle his or her personal or financial affairs [Health & Safety Code § 1788(c)(11)].

- Provision that, in the event a provider whose property is tax-exempt is required to pay property taxes or in-lieu taxes, the additional costs will be charged to the resident on a pro rata basis [Health & Safety Code § 1788(c)(12)].

- Other provisions approved by the Department of Social Services [Health & Safety Code § 1788(c)(13)].

In addition, the contract may include a provision for a resident who becomes financially unable to pay monthly care fees at some future date to be subsidized. Particular provisions that may be included in that regard are set forth in Health & Safety Code § 1788(c)(1) [Health & Safety Code § 1788(c)(1)].

§ 351.78 Cancellation

[1] Cancellation by Either Party Within 90 Days

The contract may be canceled without cause by written notice from either party, within 90 days from the date of the resident's initial occupancy [Health & Safety Code § 1788.2(a); see also § 351.78].

[2] Death of Patient

Death of the resident before or during the cancellation period constitutes a cancellation, unless the contract includes specific provisions otherwise [Health & Safety Code § 1788.2(b)].

[3] Contract Executed in Conjunction With Equity Interest

The cancellation period and the associated refund obligations apply to (1) all executed continuing care contracts regarding a unit in a continuing care retirement community that is not an equity continuing care retirement community and (2) continuing care contracts executed in conjunction with a purchase of an equity interest from a provider, but not to continuing care contracts executed in conjunction with sales of an equity interest by one resident to another [Health & Safety Code § 1788.2(c)].

§ 351.79 Allowable Fees on Cancellation

If possession of the living unit in a continuing care retirement community that is not an equity continuing care retirement community is returned to the provider in substantially the same condition as when received, the resident's only obligations are to pay a reasonable fee to cover costs and to pay the reasonable value of services rendered pursuant to the canceled continuing care contract [Health & Safety Code § 1788.2(d)(1)].

Equity project providers may impose a resale fee on sellers. For contracts entered into after January 1, 1996, on the cancellation of a continuing care contract executed in conjunction with the purchase of an equity interest from the provider, the provider may charge a resale fee not to exceed the remainder of the gross resale price of the equity interest minus the purchase price paid by the resident or on behalf of the resident for the interest [Health & Safety Code § 1788.2(d)(2)]. No resale fee may exceed the sum of 10 percent of either the original or resale price of the equity interest and 100 percent of the remainder of the gross resale price of the equity interest minus the purchase price paid by the resident or on behalf of the resident for the interest if either (1) the continuing care contract involved the purchase of an equity interest from the provider and is terminated after the cancellation period, or (2) the continuing care contract involved the purchase of an equity interest from another resident and is terminated at any time [Health & Safety Code § 1788.2(e)]. "Gross resale price" means the resale price before any deductions for resale fees, transfer taxes, real estate commissions, periodic fees, late charges, interest, escrow fees, or any other fees incidental to the sale of real property [Health & Safety Code § 1788.2(f)].

These provisions regarding fees may not be construed to limit the provider's ability to withhold delinquent periodic fees, late charges, accrued interest, or assessments from the sale proceeds, as provided by the continuing care contract or the real estate documents governing the equity continuing care retirement community [Health & Safety Code § 1788.2(g)].

§ 351.80 Refunds Under Contract

During the cancellation period, the provider must pay all refunds owed to a resident within 14 calendar days after a resident makes possession of the living unit available to the provider [Health & Safety Code § 1788.4(a)].

After the cancellation period, any refunds due to a resident under a continuing care contract must be paid within 14 calendar days after the resident makes possession of the living unit available to the provider or 90 calendar days after death or receipt of notice of termination, whichever is later [Health & Safety Code § 1788.4(b)].

In nonequity projects, if the continuing care contract is canceled by either party during the cancellation period or terminated by the provider after the cancellation period, the resident must be refunded the difference between the total amount of entrance, monthly, and optional fees paid and the amount used for care of the resident [Health & Safety Code § 1788.4(c)].

If a resident has paid additional amounts for upgrades, special features, or modifications to the living unit and the provider terminates the resident's continuing care contract, the provider must amortize those additional amounts at the same rate as the entrance fee and must refund the unamortized balance to the resident [Health & Safety Code § 1788.4(d)].

A lump-sum payment to a resident after termination of a continuing care contract that is conditioned on resale of a unit must not be considered to be a refund and may not be characterized or advertised as a refund. The lump sum payment must be paid to the resident within 14 calendar days after resale of the unit [Health & Safety Code § 1788.4(e)].

§ 351.81 Transfer of Money or Property Voidable When Contract Unlawful

Any transfer of money or property, pursuant to a continuing care contract found by the Department of Social Services to be executed in violation of Health & Safety Code § 1770 et seq. is voidable at the option of the resident or transferor for a period of 90 days from the execution of the transfer [Health & Safety Code § 1793.11(a)].

Any deed or other instrument of conveyance must contain a recital that the transaction is made pursuant to rescission by the resident or transferor within 90 days from the date of first occupancy [Health & Safety Code § 1793.11(b)].

No action may be brought for the reasonable value of any services rendered between the date of transfer and the date the resident disaffirms the continuing care contract [Health & Safety Code § 1793.11(c)].

With respect to real property, the right of disaffirmance or rescission is conclusively presumed to have terminated if a notice of intent to rescind is not recorded with the county recorder of the county in which the real property is located within 90 days from the date of first occupancy of the residential living unit [Health & Safety Code § 1793.11(d)].

A transfer of money or property, real or personal, to anyone pursuant to a continuing care contract that was not approved by the Department is voidable at the option of the Department or transferor or his or her assigns or agents [Health & Safety Code § 1793.11(e)].

A transaction determined by the Department to be in violation of Health & Safety Code § 1770 et seq. is voidable at the option of the resident or his or her assignees or agents [Health & Safety Code § 1793.11(f)].

§ 351.82 Preferred Claim on Liquidation

Obligations pursuant to continuing care agreements executed by a provider constitute a preferred claim against all assets owned by the provider in the event of receivership or liquidation. The preferred claim, however, is subject to any perfected claims secured by mortgage, deed of trust, pledge, deposit as security, escrow, or otherwise secured [Health & Safety Code § 1793.9].

§ 351.83 Remedies Available to Department of Social Services

[1] Lien

When necessary to secure an applicant's or a provider's performance of its obligations to depositors or residents, the Department may record a notice or notices of lien on behalf of the depositors or residents. From the date of recording, the lien attaches to all real property owned or acquired by the provider during the pendency of the lien, provided the property is not exempt from the execution of a lien and is located within the county in which the lien is recorded. The lien has the force, effect, and priority of a judgment lien [Health & Safety Code § 1793.15(a)]. For discussion and forms related to judgment liens, see Ch. 318, Judgments .

The Department may record a lien on any real property owned by the provider if the provider's annual report indicates that the provider has an unfunded statutory or refund requirement. The filed lien has the effect, force, and priority of a judgment lien filed against the property [Health & Safety Code § 1793.15(b)].

The Department must file a release of the lien if it deems the lien no longer necessary to secure the performance of all obligations of the applicant or provider to the depositors or residents [Health & Safety Code § 1793.15(c)].

Within 10 days following the Department's denial of a request for a release of the lien, the applicant or provider may file an appeal with the Department [Health & Safety Code § 1793.15(d)].

The decision is subject to court review pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 on petition of the applicant or provider filed within 30 days of service of the decision [Health & Safety Code § 1793.15(e)]. For discussion and forms related to Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5, see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , and succeeding chapters.

[2] Injunctive Relief

In the case of any violation or threatened violation of Health & Safety Code § 1770 et seq., the Department of Social Services may institute a proceeding or may request the Attorney General to institute a proceeding to obtain injunctive or other equitable relief in the superior court in and for the county in which the violation has occurred or will occur or in which the principal place of business of the provider is located. The proceeding must conform with the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 525 et seq., except that no undertaking is required of the Department in any action commenced under Health & Safety Code § 1793.29, nor is the Department required to allege facts necessary to show lack of adequate remedy at law or to show irreparable loss or damage [Health & Safety Code § 1793.29]. For discussion and forms regarding Code Civ. Proc. § 525 et seq., see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[3] Escrow Account

When necessary to secure the interests of depositors or residents, the Department may require that the applicant or provider reestablish an escrow account, return previously released moneys to escrow, and escrow all future entrance fee payments [Health & Safety Code § 1793.17(a); see Health & Safety Code § 1779.4(v)(2)(G) (escrow account for reserve funding on application for permit to sell deposit subscriptions and for certificate of authority)]. The Department may release funds from escrow as it deems appropriate, or terminate the escrow requirement when it determines that the escrow is no longer necessary to secure the performance of all obligations of the applicant or provider to depositors or residents [Health & Safety Code § 1793.17(b)].

[4] Additional Remedies

Several additional remedies and regulatory measures are available to the Department of Social Services to prevent and remedy violations of Health & Safety Code § 1770 et seq. by providers of continuing care services [see generally Health & Safety Code § 1793.7 et seq.].

Certain administrative remedies are specifically provided [see, e.g., Health & Safety Code § 1793.13 (financial plan may be required), 1793.21 (limitation, suspension, revocation of permits for deposit subscriptions and certificates of authority), 1793.27 (civil penalties)]. Moreover, the civil, criminal, and administrative remedies available to the Department of Social Services pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1793.5 et seq. are not exclusive and may be sought and employed by the Department in any combination deemed advisable to enforce Health & Safety Code § 1770 et seq. [Health & Safety Code § 1793.19].

§ 351.84 Criminal Penalties

Certain violations of Health & Safety Code § 1770 et seq. constitute misdemeanor offenses [see Health & Safety Code § 1793.5]. For example, an entity that executes a continuing care contract without holding a current and valid provisional or final certificate of authority issued by the Department of Social Services is guilty of a misdemeanor [Health & Safety Code § 1793.5(c); see Health & Safety Code §§ 1786, 1786.2 (issuance of provisional or final certificate of authority)].

§ 351.85 Requirements for Permanent Closure of Continuing Care Retirement Community Facility

[1] Notice to Residents and Department of Health Services

Notwithstanding any other provisions of law, a regulated provider of a continuing care retirement community facility [see Health & Safety Code § 1771(p)(3) (definition)] must, no less than 120 days before the intended date of the permanent closure of the facility, provide written notice to the Department of Health Services and to the affected residents and their designated representatives. The notice must contain a prescribed statement of residents' rights under Health & Safety Code § 1793.80 et seq. [Health & Safety Code § 1793.80(a)]. When closure is planned for all units in a facility, the provider is prohibited from accepting new residents or entering into new continuing care contracts at the facility being closed once the closure notice has been served [Health & Safety Code § 1793.80(b)].

[2] Closure and Relocation Plan

No less than 90 days before the permanent closure of the continuing care retirement community facility, the provider must provide to the Department of Health Services, to the affected residents of the facility and their designated representatives, and to the local long term care ombudsman program, a written closure and relocation plan [Health & Safety Code § 1793.81]. The plan must contain specified information [Health & Safety Code § 1793.81(a)-(h)]. No action may be taken by the provider to relocate any resident or to close the facility until the relocation plan has been prepared and provided as required [Health & Safety Code § 1793.84(c)].

[3] Options for Residents

In the case of a permanent closure, the provider must secure replacement housing and care at a comparable facility for a resident under a life care contract, at no additional cost to the resident. The replacement housing and care must comply with Health & Safety Code § 1771(l) (stating criteria for what is a life care contract; see § 351.72[2]) and Health & Safety Code § 1788(b) (stating special terms for a life care contract, in addition to prescribed terms for all continuing care contracts; see § 351.76[1]) [Health & Safety Code § 1793.82(c)].

The provider must offer every other resident the choice of the following options, the terms of which must not be less than the terms of the continuing care contract entered into between the resident and the provider as if that contract had been fully performed [Health & Safety Code § 1793.82(a)].

- The resident can choose to receive monetary compensation equal to the value of the remainder of the contract as if the contract had been fully performed [Health & Safety Code § 1793.82(a)(3)].

- The resident can choose to be relocated to another continuing care facility owned or operated by the provider, if available, or relocated to a continuing care facility that is not owned by the provider [Health & Safety Code § 1793.82(a)(1), (2)]. The replacement housing must be housing that is, overall, comparable in cost, size, services, features, and amenities to the unit being vacated. If the resident chooses either of these replacement housing options, the provider must provide the reasonable costs of moving, storage, if applicable, and transportation [Health & Safety Code § 1793.82(b)]. The provider may provide relocation in a facility not owned by the provider on a month to month basis, provided that the terms are otherwise consistent with the requirements for a relocation option. After 120 days, a resident selecting relocation to a facility not owned by the provider may not seek monetary compensation [Health & Safety Code § 1793.82(d)].

- The resident can choose an alternative arrangement that is mutually agreed on by the provider and the resident or his or her representative [Health & Safety Code § 1793.82(a)(3)].

[4] Financial Security for Provider's Obligations

When there is to be a permanent closure of a continuing care retirement community facility, within 30 days of submitting the relocation plan to the Department of Health Services, the provider must fund a reserve, set up a trust fund, or secure a performance bond to ensure the fulfillment of the obligations and commitments associated with the relocation plan. The amount of the reserve trust fund or performance bond must be equal to or greater than the estimated costs of relocating residents and the costs associated with the relocation options [Health & Safety Code § 1793.83(a)].

The reserve, trust fund, or performance bond must be funded with qualifying assets [see Health & Safety Code § 1792.2(a)(1)-(5)] and must not be subject to any liens, judgments, garnishments, or creditor's claims [Health & Safety Code § 1793.83(b)].

[5] Regulatory Oversight of Provider Implementing Closure Plan

The provider must submit monthly progress reports to the Department of Health Services detailing the progress and problems associated with the permanent closure, until all affected residents are relocated and all required payments to, or on behalf of, affected residents are made [Health & Safety Code § 1793.84(a)].

The Department must monitor the implementation of the permanent closure and relocation plan as necessary to ensure full compliance by the provider. If the Department determines that a provider is closing a facility in violation of the law or is doing so in a manner that endangers the health or safety of residents, the Department must take appropriate enforcement action [Health & Safety Code § 1793.84(b); see Health & Safety Code § 1793.5 et seq. (enforcement powers); §§ 351.83[4], 351.84].

§ 351.105 Decisions

[1] Administrative Complaints

Five-business-day limitation period under former Health & Safety Code § 1428 (amended by 1988 legislation to provide for 15-day notice) for notifying Department of Health Services of intention to contest decision after citation review conference are subject to relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, but petition for relief must be filed within reasonable time after knowledge that notification of intention was untimely. Summit Care-California, Inc. v. Department of Health Services (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1584, 1587-1590, 231 Cal. Rptr. 476

Requirement that proper identification be provided to facility during inspection under Health & Safety Code § 1278 applies to officers, employees, or agents of Department of Health Services, and not to complainant accompanying inspector; complainant's identity is governed by Health & Safety Code § 1419, prohibiting disclosure of name of complainant without consent. Jongepier v. Lopez (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 535, 538-539, 191 Cal. Rptr. 131

[2] Administrative Regulation

In action brought by state against nursing home alleging repeated violations of regulations governing conduct of nursing homes, claim of industry-wide noncompliance is not a lawful excuse and not evidence of impossibility of compliance. People v. Casa Blanca Convalescent Homes, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 527, 206 Cal. Rptr. 164

"Substantial compliance" with regulations is no defense against civil action or criminal prosecution, and operator of skilled nursing facility is required to comply with all statutory provisions, absent exemption granted by Department of Health Services. People v. Casa Blanca Convalescent Homes, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 530-531, 206 Cal. Rptr. 164

Regulation requiring nursing facilities to be "clean and sanitary" is not unconstitutionally vague; formula under 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 72329(a), requiring adequate staff to provide necessary nursing services for patients admitted for care, is plain and clear, although no specific number is preset by rule. People v. Casa Blanca Convalescent Homes, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 528-529, 206 Cal. Rptr. 164

Violations of record requirements under 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 72547, including requirement to keep records of fluid intake, blood pressure, and body temperature and to turn body of bedridden patient, does not involve vague, technical matters. People v. Casa Blanca Convalescent Homes, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 529, 206 Cal. Rptr. 164

As matter of public policy and sound reason, doctrine of equitable estoppel is inapplicable to action by state against nursing home for regulatory violations, insofar as doctrine would, inter alia, protect defendant nursing home from sanctions for violations of applicable regulations on theory that some tolerance of its conduct immunized it in all respects. People v. Casa Blanca Convalescent Homes, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 532, 206 Cal. Rptr. 164

[3] Classification of Violations and Penalties

With respect to patient having propensity for climbing over bedrails and falling, convalescent hospital's failure to adopt care plan identifying problem and establishing prevention program constituted Class "A" violation under Health & Safety Code § 1424(c). Kizer v. Waterman Convalescent Hospital, Inc. (1992) 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 239

Statutory scheme for imposition of penalties (Health and Safety Code §§ 1424, 1428, 1428.1) does not violate federal and state guarantees of due process and equal protection. Kizer v. Waterman Convalescent Hospital, Inc. (1992) 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 239

[4] Disclosure Requirements

Disclosure requirements enacted by Proposition 105 (Health & Safety Code §§ 1599.85-1599.89) held unconstitutional because they violate single- subject rule. Chemical Specialties Manufacturers Assn., Inc. v. Deukmejian (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 663, 667-672, 278 Cal. Rptr. 128

[5] Involuntary Transfer of Patient

Nursing home patients have no constitutional right to hearing prior to transfer by facility or physician on ground they no longer need level of care paid for under Medicaid program, because no state action is involved in decision to transfer, notwithstanding extensive federal regulation and federally-funded payments. Blum v. Yaretsky (1982) 457 U.S. 991, 1010-1011, 102 S. Ct. 2777, 73 L. Ed. 2d 534

Nursing home patients have no constitutional right to prerevocation hearing prior to transfer from nursing home caused by Medicaid decertification. O'Bannon v. Town Court Nursing Center (1980) 447 U.S. 773, 785-790, 100 S. Ct. 2467, 65 L. Ed. 2d 506

[6] Unfair Business Practice

Defendant nursing home's practice of providing insufficient nursing personnel is not only illegal but also unfair business practice in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200; "unfair" business practice occurrs when it offends established public policy or when practice is immoral, unethical, oppressive, unscrupulous, or substantially injurious to consumers. People v. Casa Blanca Convalescent Homes, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 530, 206 Cal. Rptr. 164

§ 351.122 Decisions

Residential care facility for elderly assumes special relationship with person when it agrees to have person as resident, and thereby agrees to execute duties imposed on it by regulations to monitor resident and report changes and conditions in physical and mental health; facility does not have absolute duty to prevent resident's suicide, but has duty to exercise reasonable care to prevent resident from self-inflicted harm if it has knowledge or notice of facts from which it might reasonably conclude that resident was likely to so act unless protective measures were taken. Klein v. BIA Hotel Corp. (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1133, 1140-1142, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 60 (reversing summary judgment for defendant in wrongful death action)

Unlicensed community care facilities operated by church for elderly members are not exempt from licensing requirements because church was not providing "care or treatment of sick who depend upon prayer or spiritual means for healing." Universal Life Church, Inc. v. State of California (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 533, 538, 205 Cal. Rptr. 11 (decided under former Health & Safety Code § 1505(g) (now see Health & Safety Code § 1505(f)))

Summary suspension of license and operations of residential care facility for the elderly under Health & Safety Code § 1550 pending hearing on allegations of abuse and neglect endangering health and safety of residents did not violate due process rights of owners, because citizen may be temporarily deprived of enjoyment of property rights if state has compelling interest and timely hearing is provided. *Habrun v. 1. Plaintiff is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a patient at _____ [name of facility].

2. Defendant _____ [name] is licensed to operate a long-term health care facility pursuant to Section 1417 et seq. of the Health and Safety Code and, under this license, maintains and operates _____ [name of facility], which is _____ [specify type of facility, e.g., a skilled nursing facility] as defined in Sections 1418 and 1250 of the Health and Safety Code, located at _____ [street address and city], _____ County, California.

[3. Defendants Doe I through Doe _____, inclusive, are sued herein under fictitious names. Their true names and capacities are unknown to plaintiff. When their true names and capacities are ascertained, plaintiff will amend this complaint by inserting their true names and capacities herein. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges, that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by those defendants.)]

[4. At all times herein mentioned each of the defendants sued herein as DOE was the agent and employee of each of the remaining defendants and was at all times acting within the purpose and scope of the agency and employment.]

[5. _____ (Allege facts relating to plaintiff's age, medical and mental condition and any history of mental disability, duration of residency at facility, and other factors relevant to a determination of the severity of the impact of the violation on the particular resident).]

[EITHER, if alleging Class A violation]

6. Defendant, on or about _____ [date], and at all relevant times, _____ [describe conduct constituting Class A violation, e.g., has failed to provide the facility with structural and equipment requirements in conformance with the regulations adopted by the State Fire Marshal to establish minimum standards for fire prevention, in violation of Title 22, Section 72505 of the California Code of Regulations. Specifically, defendant has failed to provide _____ (specify)].

7. The above-described conduct constitutes a Class A violation pursuant to Section 1424(d) of the Health & Safety Code in that it presents _____ [imminent danger that death or serious harm or the substantial probability that death or serious physical harm] to plaintiff will result.

[OR, if alleging Class B violation]

6. Defendant, on or about _____ [date], and at all relevant times, _____ [describe conduct constituting Class B violation, e.g., has failed to keep the facility's kitchen areas free from litter and rubbish and protected from rodents, cockroaches, flies, and other insects, in violation of Title 22, Section 72345 of the California Code of Regulations, and specifically _____ (specify conditions)].

7. The above-described conduct constitutes a Class B violation pursuant to Section 1424(e) of the Health & Safety Code in that it has a direct or immediate relationship to the health, safety, or security of plaintiff.

[CONTINUE]

8. On or about _____ [date], the State Department of Health Services issued to defendant a citation for Class _____ [A or B] violation based on the above-described conduct. A copy of the citation is attached and incorporated by reference as Exhibit "A." The _____ [State Department of Health Services has not taken action corrective action or violation has not been corrected to the satisfaction of the State Department of Health Services].

[9. _____ (Allege facts, if appropriate, regarding other instances of noncompliance with regulations by the facility and citations issued and penalties assessed for other Class A or B violations within 12 months of violations for which damages are being sought.)]

[10. Defendant's wrongful conduct has caused and, unless restrained and enjoined by order of this court, will continue to cause great and irreparable injury to plaintiff in that _____ (specify facts showing danger of great and irreparable injury, e.g., plaintiff is in danger of being trapped in the facility in the event of fire).]

[11. Plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law for the injuries currently being suffered in that _____ (specify facts in addition to those previously alleged showing the inadequacy of any legal remedies, especially monetary damages, e.g., monetary damages or other legal remedies will not prevent imminent and serious physical danger to plaintiff caused by defendant's conduct).]

[12. As a proximate result of defendant's wrongful conduct as stated above, the plaintiff has suffered _____ (describe damage, e.g., great mental suffering and distress), to his/her damage (in the sum of $_____).]

[ADD, if defendant is state entity]

13. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff _____ [name] filed a claim with _____ [name of governmental entity] by _____ [delivering or mailing] the claim to the _____ [clerk or secretary or auditor] for the injuries, disability, losses, and damages suffered and incurred by him/her by reason of the above-described occurence, all in compliance with the requirements of Section 905 of the Government Code. A copy of the claim is attached as Exhibit _____ incorporated by reference.

14. On or about _____ [date], _____ [name of governmental entity] _____ [rejected the claim in its entirety or allowed the claim in the amount of $_____ and rejected it as to the remainder or failed to act on the claim within the period of 45 days after its presentation, and the claim was thus deemed rejected, under the provisions of Section 912.4 of the Government Code, at the expiration of the 45-day period, which was on _____ (date)].

CAUTION:

A complaint seeking preliminary injunctive relief must be either verified or accompanied by affidavits (declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) in support of the allegations of the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits or declarations, counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E. H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581 ; see Leach v. City of San Marcos (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 648, 661, 261 Cal. Rptr. 805] .

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use by a patient in a long-term health care facility to seek damages and, if appropriate, injunctive relief against the licensee of the facility, based on a Class A or B violation that the Department of Health Services has not taken action to correct, or that has not been corrected to the satisfaction of the Department [see Health & Safety Code § 1430(a) (cause of action); see also Health & Safety Code § 1424(d), (e) (defining nature of Class A and Class B violations, respectively)].

This form may be adapted for use in a class action. For discussion and forms relating to allegations used in class actions, see Ch. 120, Class Actions .

[3] Allegations

This form alleges:

- The plaintiff's standing (Paragraph 1) [see Health & Safety Code § 1430(a)].

- The status of the defendant as a licensee of a long-term health care facility and the basis for venue (Paragraph 2) [see Health & Safety Code §§ 1250, 1418 (defining facilities); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 393(a) (venue)].

- A description of the conduct constituting a Class A or B violation (Paragraphs 6, 7) [see Health & Safety Code § 1424(d), (e)].

- A statement that the Department of Health Services has issued a citation, and that the Department has not sought to correct the condition, or has found any corrections taken to be inadequate (Paragraph 8) [see Health & Safety Code § 1430(a)].

Optional Paragraphs 3 and 4 are for use to allege fictitious defendants and their capacities as agents and employees, respectively.

Optional Paragraph 5 is for use to state facts regarding the patient's medical, physical, and mental condition [see Health & Safety Code §§ 1424(a) (patient's condition relevant to determination of amount of civil penalty), 1430(a) (limit on amount of civil damages)].

Optional Paragraph 9 is for use to set forth defendant's prior history of violations [see Health & Safety Code §§ 1424(a)(5) (relevance of history of violations on penalty), 1428(h) (civil penalty trebled)].

Optional Paragraphs 10 and 11 are for use to establish the basis for injunctive relief [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 526, 527(a) (temporary injunction); see also Civ. Code § 3422 (permanent injunction)].

Optional Paragraph 12 is for use to describe damages incurred in addition to those authorized under Health & Safety Code § 1430(a).

Optional Paragraphs 13 and 14 are for use to set forth facts regarding compliance with procedural prerequisites when the defendant is a governmental entity [see Gov. Code §§ 905, 945.4].

[4] Guardian Ad Litem

If the action is brought by a patient who is incompetent or under a conservatorship, he or she must appear either by a guardian or conservator of his or her estate, or by a guardian ad litem appointed by the court in which the action is pending [see Code Civ. Proc. § 372]. For a discussion of procedures for appointment of a guardian ad litem, see Ch. 291, Guardians ad Litem .

[5] Other Causes of Action

If the violation constitutes an independently actionable wrong, for example, breach of the admission contract, invasion of privacy, negligent or intentional infliction of mental distress, assault and battery, or conversion, this form may be combined with a complaint asserting that cause of action. Frequently, violations by long-term health care facilities affecting patients' care also constitute unfair trade practices under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 [see People v. Casa Blanca Convalescent Homes, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 530, 206 Cal. Rptr. 164 (facility's practice of providing insufficient nursing personnel as not only illegal but also unfair business practice in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200); see also Civ. Code § 3345 (enhanced penalties when conduct constitutes unfair business practice or unfair competition)].

[6] Attorney's Fees

Health & Safety Code § 1430(a) does not provide for attorney's fees. In an appropriate case, however, counsel might seek attorney's fees pursuant to the following: (1) the private attorney general theory [Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5; see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees]; (2) inclusion in the complaint of a cause of action for breach of the admissions contract if the admissions contract contains a provision for attorney's fees [see Health & Safety Code § 1599.83, discussed in § 351.24[6]]; or (3) inclusion in the complaint of a cause of action for violation of the patient's rights [see Health & Safety Code § 1430(b) (expressly providing for attorney's fees); see also § 351.221 for a form for a complaint for violation of patient's rights under Health & Safety Code § 1430(b)].

[7] Jurisdiction

An action brought pursuant to the Long-Term Care, Health, Safety, and Security Act of 1973 is a limited civil case if civil penalties are not sought or amount to $25,000 or less [Code Civ. Proc. § 86.1]. The superior court has jurisdiction of the action [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)]. In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)], and the first page of the paper must state whether or not the demand exceeds $10,000 [Gov. Code § 70613(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9) (statement regarding amount of demand must appear "below the character of the action or proceeding")].

An action seeking permanent injunctive relief is not a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8)].

In an action that is not a limited civil case, brought to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded for this cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)]. Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint, see Ch. 177, Damages , and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115].

App. 3d 648, 661, 261 Cal. Rptr. 805]* .

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use by a current or former resident or patient of a skilled nursing facility or intermediate care facility to seek damages and, if appropriate, injunctive relief, as well as attorney's fees and costs, against the licensee of that facility for violation of the resident's or patient's rights as set forth in the Patients' Bill of Rights [see Health & Safety Code §§ 1430(b) (right of civil action), 1599 et seq. (requirement for establishment of policies regarding patients' rights); see also 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 72527 (skilled nursing facility), 73523 (intermediate care facility)].

This form may be combined with § 351.220 if the conduct also constitutes one or more Class A or B violations [see Health & Safety Code § 1424(d), (e)].

This form can be modified to state a cause of action by a current or former resident for a violation of any other right provided for by federal or state law or regulation [see Health & Safety Code § 1430(b)].

[3] Allegations

The form alleges:

- The status of the defendant as a licensee of a skilled nursing or intermediate care facility and venue (Paragraph 2) [see Health & Safety Code §§ 1250(c), (d), 1430(b) (definitions of facilities); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 393(a) (venue)]; and

- A description of defendant's violation of plaintiff's rights (Paragraph 5) [see Health & Safety Code § 1599 et seq.].

Optional Paragraphs 6 and 7 are for use if plaintiff is subject to unlawful transfer or eviction because he or she changed the manner of payment from private payment or Medicaid to Medi-Cal [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 14124.7; see also 22 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 72527(a)(5) (unlawful transfer or discharge in skilled nursing facility), 73523(a)(5) (unlawful transfer or discharge in intermediate care facility)].

[4] Limitation on Damages

Damages recoverable pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1430(b) are limited to a maximum of $500 [Health & Safety Code § 1430(b)]. Presumably, the $500 limit is applicable to each such violation, and, if violation of more than one specified right has been alleged, the plaintiff may be entitled to seek the appropriate multiple of the $500 limit.

[5] Attorney's Fees and Costs

Attorney's fees and costs may be sought [see Health & Safety Code § 1430(b)].

[6] Jurisdiction

The action will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)], and the first page of the paper must state whether or not the demand exceeds $10,000 [Gov. Code § 70613(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9) (statement regarding amount of demand must appear "below the character of the action or proceeding")].

If the optional language in the form seeking permanent injunctive relief is used, the action may not be a limited civil case except as otherwise authorized by statute [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8), 580(b)(2)].

[7] State Statutes

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges:

1. Plaintiff was admitted to _____ [name of facility] on or about _____ [date].

2. On or about _____ [date], prior to plaintiff's admission and at the request of defendant, _____ [plaintiff or plaintiff's representative, _____ (name),] provided the following information regarding plaintiff's assets and liabilities: _____ [specify]. [A copy of plaintiff's written statement containing that information is attached and incorporated by reference as Exhibit _____.]

3. Defendant relied on that information in deciding to admit plaintiff to the facility.

4. On or about _____ [date], defendant investigated the representations concerning plaintiff's finances and discovered that the plaintiff's financial assets and liabilities are materially different than those represented by plaintiff, in that _____ [specify].

[EITHER]

5. Defendant _____ [transferred or evicted] plaintiff on or about _____ [date], within 90 days of admission.

[OR]

5. Plaintiff fraudulently misrepresented his/her assets and liabilities so that if the material facts were known at the time by the facility, plaintiff would not have been admitted.

6. Defendant could not have discovered the misrepresentation with the exercise of reasonable diligence [because _____ (specify)].

7. Defendant _____ [transferred or evicted] plaintiff on or about _____ [date], within 18 months from the date of plaintiff's admission.

[CONTINUE]

8. On or about _____ [date], and promptly after discovering themisrepresentations, defendant notified the State Department of Health Services and the Office of the Long-Term Care Ombudsman of its intent to _____ [transfer or evict] plaintiff. A copy of each of those notices is attached and incorporated by reference as Exhibits _____ and _____, respectively.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense may be used by the licensee of a long-term health care facility participating in the Medi-Cal program, in an answer to a complaint alleging unlawful transfer of a resident based on the plaintiff's eviction or transfer from the facility because he or she changed the manner of payment from private payment or Medicare to Medi-Cal [see Health & Safety Code § 1439.7 (right to transfer or evict based on misrepresentation of finances); see also Welf. & Inst. Code § 14124.7 (prohibition against transfer or eviction based on change in manner of payment to Medi-Cal)]. It may be used to provide an affirmative defense to the allegations set forth in Paragraphs 6 and 7 of § 351.221[1].

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use by a resident of a residential care facility for the elderly to seek replacement of or reimbursement for property that was stolen or lost in the facility [see Health & Safety Code §§ 1569.152 (cause of action), 1569.153 (theft and loss program required)].

This form may be adapted for use in an action against a long-term health care facility for theft or loss of a patient's property, pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 1289.3, which contains provisions similar to that of Health & Safety Code § 1569.152 governing residential care facilities for the elderly. For discussion of Health & Safety Code § 1289.3 and related provisions, see § 351.23.

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- The status of the defendant as a licensed residential care facility for the elderly and the basis for venue (Paragraph 2) [see Health & Safety Code § 1569.152; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 395 (venue)].

- The existence of fictitious defendants, and their capacities as agents and employees (optional Paragraphs 3, 4).

- A description of the lost or stolen property (Paragraph 5).

- The failure of defendant to make reasonable efforts to safeguard the property, and the resultant loss or theft (Paragraphs 6, 7) [see Health & Safety Code § 1569.153 (requirement for theft and loss program)].

- The value of the property (Paragraph 8).

[4] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)], and the first page of the paper must state whether or not the demand exceeds $10,000 [Gov. Code § 70613(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9) (statement regarding amount of demand must appear "below the character of the action or proceeding")].

NOTICE OF CANCELLATION

_____ [date of transaction]

Your first date of occupancy under this contract is: _____ [date].

You may cancel this transaction, without any penalty within 90 calendar days from the above date.

If you cancel, any property transferred, any payments made by you under the contract, and any negotiable instrument executed by you will be returned within 14 calendar days after making possession of the living unit available to the provider. Any security interest arising out of the transaction will be canceled.

If you cancel, you are obligated to pay a reasonable processing fee to cover costs and to pay for the reasonable value of the services received by you from the provider up to the date you canceled or made available to the provider the possession of any living unit delivered to you under this contract, whichever is later.

If you cancel, you must return possession of any living unit delivered to you under this contract to the provider in substantially the same condition as when you took possession.

Possession of the living unit must be made available to the provider within 20 calendar days of your notice of cancellation. If you fail to make the possession of any living unit available to the provider, then you remain liable for performance of all obligations under the contract.

To cancel this transaction, mail or deliver a signed and dated copy of this cancellation notice, or any other written notice, or send a telegram to _____ [name of provider] at _____ [address of provider's place of business] not later than midnight of _____ [date].

I hereby cancel this transaction.

Chapter 354 LOSS OF CONSORTIUM
PART I. SCOPE

31-354 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 354.01

§ 354.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses general civil liability for loss of consortium by a spouse. It discusses the essential elements necessary to state a cause of action for loss of consortium and the nature of recoverable damages and damages that are not recoverable. The chapter includes discussion of various situations in which of an action for loss of consortium is not available. Defenses to a loss of consortium action and the underlying tort action are discussed.

The chapter also includes a form of complaint for an action by a spouse for loss of consortium based on negligent or intentional injury to the other spouse by a third party [see § 354.50], and forms of affirmative defense [§§ 354.51, 354.52].

[1] "Plaintiff" Spouse and "Nonplaintiff" Spouse

The following terms will be used in this chapter to refer to the two spouses involved in the loss of consortium action: the spouse who is seeking damages for loss of consortium will be referred to as the "plaintiff spouse" and the spouse whose physical or nonphysical injuries are the basis for the loss of consortium action will be referred to as the "nonplaintiff spouse." Although in most cases the nonplaintiff spouse will also be a plaintiff in an action brought by that spouse for his or her own injuries, the use of these terms will avoid confusion when referring to the spouses involved in the loss of consortium action.

[2] Loss of Consortium

The "loss of consortium" is the loss of conjugal fellowship and sexual relations and includes not only the loss of support or service but also the loss of love, affection, society, companionship, sexual relations, and solace. An important aspect of consortium is the moral support each spouse gives the other through the triumph and despair of life [Rodriguez v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 382, 385, 405-406, 408, 115 Cal. Rptr. 765, 525 P.2d 669] . Loss of consortium refers to a complete loss of these elements for a definite period of time or a nondeterminable length of time; it does not refer to the inevitable physical, mental, and emotional damage normally sustained by a spouse when the other spouse is injured [Park v. Standard Chem Way Co. (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 47, 50-51, 131 Cal. Rptr. 338 ; for further discussion of the issue whether one can recover for a "partial" loss of consortium, see § 354.12[3]].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

31-354 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 354.12

§ 354.12 Essential Elements of Loss of Consortium Cause of Action

[1] Valid and Lawful Marriage

The first essential element of a loss of consortium cause of action is a lawful marriage between the plaintiff and his or her spouse at the time of the latter's injury [Elden v. Sheldon (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 267, 279, 250 Cal. Rptr. 254, 758 P.2d 582 ; Borelli v. Brusseau (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 647, 653, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16] . The spouse suing for loss of consortium must be married to the spouse who suffers the underlying injury at the time the intentional or negligent act causing the underlying injury occurs. An injury occurring before the marriage does not give rise to a cause of action for loss of consortium, regardless of whether the plaintiff first learns of the injury before or after the marriage [Zwicker v. Altamont Emergency Room Physicians Med. Group (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 26, 35, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 912 (wife had no loss of consortium claim based on conduct leading to husband's sterility that occurred before marriage)].

Although California does not recognize common-law marriages [see Fam. Code § 300; Etienne v. DKM Enters., Inc. (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 487, 490, 186 Cal. Rptr. 321] , a common-law marriage that would be valid in the state in which the marriage was contracted is recognized by California law [see Fam. Code § 308; cf. Etienne v. DKM Enters., Inc. (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 487, 490-492, 186 Cal. Rptr. 321 (parties' alleged common-law marriage not recognized because of its apparent invalidity under Texas law)]. Therefore, a loss of consortium action may be maintained by the party to a common-law marriage entered into under the laws of another state if the plaintiff can establish the legality of the marriage under the laws of that state.

Beginning in 2005, registered domestic partners are provided by statute with the same legal rights and protections as married spouses, which presumably would extend to these parties the right to recover for loss of consortium [see Fam. Code § 297.5(a)]. However, the statutory right to register as domestic partners extends only to couples of the same sex over the age of 18 and opposite-sex couples in which at least one person is over the age of 62 and meets the eligibility criteria for old-age social security benefits [Fam. Code § 297(a), (b)(4), (5)]. In addition, beginning in 2002, members of unmarried couples meeting these statutory criteria may sue for wrongful death and thus presumably could recover for loss of consortium in those cases [see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60(a)].

[2] Tortious Injury to Nonplaintiff Spouse

The second essential element of a loss of consortium cause of action is a tortious injury suffered by the nonplaintiff spouse [Blain v. Doctor's Co. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1048, 1067, 272 Cal. Rptr. 250 ; see Rodriguez v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 382, 408, 115 Cal. Rptr. 765, 525 P.2d 669] . Often the injuries incurred by the nonplaintiff spouse are ones involving a major physical trauma, such as brain damage, paralysis, or amputation, that disable that spouse and thereby deprive the plaintiff spouse of spousal consortium [see, e.g., Rodriguez v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 382, 386, 115 Cal. Rptr. 765, 525 P.2d 669 (extensive and permanent paralysis)]. However, less grievous physical injuries, or nonphysical, psychological injuries suffered by the nonplaintiff spouse, can also be the basis for a loss of consortium action. In Molien v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 916, 167 Cal. Rptr. 831, 616 P.2d 813 , the Supreme Court addressed this issue in a case in which a husband brought a consortium action against a hospital and doctor for their negligence in misdiagnosing and treating his wife for syphilis, which ultimately led to the destruction of their marriage.

The defendants' argument that the action required a severe physical injury to the nonplaintiff spouse was rejected by the Court, which observed that a mental and physical injury may be equally disabling and the detriment to the mentally injured person's spouse may be just as serious as if the disability involved physical impairment [Molien v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 916, 931, 167 Cal. Rptr. 831, 616 P.2d 813] . Acknowledging that the landmark case that gave rise to the cause of action for loss of consortium [see Rodriguez v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 382, 115 Cal. Rptr. 765, 525 P.2d 669] contemplated an injury that was sufficiently serious and disabling to create an inference that the relationship was more than superficially or temporarily impaired, the Court stated in Molien that there could be no doubt that certain psychological injuries can be just as severe and debilitating as physical injuries [Molien v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 916, 932-933, 167 Cal. Rptr. 831, 616 P.2d 813] . Injuries such as traumatically induced neurosis, psychosis, chronic depression, or phobia, when sufficiently severe, can support a consortium claim; a determination of the requisite seriousness is a matter of proof for the jury [Molien v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 916, 933, 167 Cal. Rptr. 831, 616 P.2d 813] . Thus, if the injury to the nonplaintiff spouse is sufficiently severe, a loss of consortium action does not require physical injury [compare Long v. PKS, Inc. (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 1293, 1301, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 103 (nonplaintiff spouse had suffered both physical and emotional injury in automobile accident that killed spouse's foster daughter; loss of consortium recovery affirmed) with Anderson v. Northrop Corp. (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 772, 780-781, 250 Cal. Rptr. 189 (allegations that nonplaintiff spouse became "mentally upset, distressed, and aggravated" held insufficient to state loss of consortium cause of action, at least absent independent claim for intentional or negligent infliction of emotional distress)].

[3] Plaintiff Spouse Suffered Loss of Consortium

The third essential element of a loss of consortium cause of action is loss of consortium suffered by the plaintiff spouse [see United Servs. Auto. Ass'n v. Warner (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 957, 964-965, 135 Cal. Rptr. 34] . This includes not only the loss of support or service but also the loss of love, affection, society, companionship, sexual relations, and solace [Rodriguez v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 382, 385, 405-406, 408, 115 Cal. Rptr. 765, 525 P.2d 669] .

The issue of whether a "partial" loss of consortium is compensable was discussed by the court of appeal in Carlson v. Wald (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 598, 199 Cal. Rptr. 10 . In Carlson, there was evidence that the couple's sexual frequency diminished from once a day to once a month, that Mr. Wald's help around the house was reduced, and that there was no longer any discussion of future plans, an element of conjugal fellowship and moral support [Carlson v. Wald (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 598, 603, 199 Cal. Rptr. 10] . The court concluded that these facts presented a triable issue of the extent of lost consortium, and that the trier of fact must determine the reasonable compensation for that loss [Carlson v. Wald (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 598, 603, 199 Cal. Rptr. 10] .

In contrast, in Park v. Standard Chem Way Co. (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 47, 131 Cal. Rptr. 338 , a wife alleged that, as a result of the burns and scars her husband received when a drain-opening product exploded, their physical and marital relationship had been altered and she suffered "great mental and emotional pain and suffering, due to the injury to her husband" [Park v. Standard Chem Way Co. (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 47, 49, 131 Cal. Rptr. 338] . The wife concluded that her husband's injury had caused "a partial loss of consortium in that his disfiguring scars cause her grief, humiliation, and embarrassment" [Park v. Standard Chem Way Co. (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 47, 49, 131 Cal. Rptr. 338] . The court held that a consortium claim was not stated because allegations of a partial loss and mental and emotional pain and suffering do not meet the Supreme Court definition of loss of consortium as a loss of support, comfort, protection, society, and pleasure [Park v. Standard Chem Way Co. (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 47, 50, 131 Cal. Rptr. 338] . The court stated in Park that the mental and emotional distress that a husband or wife inevitably experiences when the other is injured does not suffice; the loss must be complete and for a definite or indeterminable period of time [Park v. Standard Chem Way Co. (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 47, 50-51, 131 Cal. Rptr. 338] .

In Carlson, the court characterized the language in Park that disallowed recovery for a partial loss of consortium as dicta, because the issue in that case was the sufficiency of the pleading; that is, tehe court merely held that the plaintiff did not plead any of the consortium definitions [Carlson v. Wald (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 598, 602, 199 Cal. Rptr. 10] . The court in Carlson observed that in Rodriguez the Court had never mentioned the concept of a complete loss of consortium, but instead referred to a loss or "impairment" of consortium rights [Rodriguez v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 382, 409, 115 Cal. Rptr. 765, 525 P.2d 669 ; see Carlson v. Wald (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 598, 602, 199 Cal. Rptr. 10] . An "impairment" suggests a diminution of a spouse's rights; therefore, the court in Carlson held that a diminution of a spouse's rights to consortium is compensable [Carlson v. Wald (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 598, 602, 199 Cal. Rptr. 10] .

[4] Loss Was Caused by Defendant's Wrongful Act

The fourth essential element of a loss of consortium cause of action is that the loss was proximately caused by the defendant's wrongful act [Rodriguez v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 382, 408, 115 Cal. Rptr. 765, 525 P.2d 669] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

31-354 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 354.13

§ 354.13 Joinder of Plaintiff Spouse's Loss of Consortium Action With Nonplaintiff Spouse's Action

[1] Joinder Encouraged

The possibility of a prohibited double recovery can be prevented, or significantly reduced, by a joinder of actions [Rodriguez v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 382, 406, 115 Cal. Rptr. 765, 525 P.2d 669] . Noting that the cases from other jurisdictions are almost equally divided regarding compulsory and permissive joinder of the consortium action with the other spouse's personal injury action, the California Supreme Court has stated that the California statutory scheme strongly encourages joinder, but it is not mandatory [Rodriguez v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 382, 406-407, 115 Cal. Rptr. 765, 525 P.2d 669] . The procedural rules permit and invite joinder, and usually the consortium and personal injury claims are set forth in the same action [Rodriguez v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 382, 407, 115 Cal. Rptr. 765, 525 P.2d 669 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 378 (regarding permissive joinder of plaintiffs)]. If for some reason separate actions have been filed, defendant or plaintiffs would generally be entitled to have them consolidated for trial [Rodriguez v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 382, 407, 115 Cal. Rptr. 765, 525 P.2d 669 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1048(a) (authorizing consolidation of actions with common questions of law or fact)].

[2] Causes of Action Are Independent

Although the causes of action of the plaintiff and nonplaintiff spouses are normally joined, a loss of consortium claim is considered an independent injury to the plaintiff spouse [Rodriguez v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 382, 405, 407, 115 Cal. Rptr. 765, 525 P.2d 669] . The loss of consortium injury is not parasitic on the nonplaintiff spouse's cause of action, nor is it an injury to the marital unit as a whole [Uram v. Abex Corp. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1425, 1436, 266 Cal. Rptr. 695 ; Abellon v. Hartford Ins. Co. (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 21, 26, 212 Cal. Rptr. 852] . As a result, an action for loss of consortium can be maintained independently of the action by the nonplaintiff spouse [Atkins v. Strayhorn (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1380, 1394, 273 Cal. Rptr. 231 ; Abellon v. Hartford Ins. Co. (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 21, 25-26, 212 Cal. Rptr. 852] .

[3] Recovery by Spouse Not Subject to Lien for Workers' Compensation Benefits Paid

An employer who has paid workers' compensation benefits to an injured employee has a statutory right to subrogation from any proceeds obtained in an action by the employee against a third party responsible for the injuries [see Lab. Code § 3860]. However, even when a spouse joins a loss of consortium action with a claim for injuries brought by an injured employee against a third party, the spouse's loss of consortium action is for the spouse's own pain and anguish caused by the third party and an employer has no subrogation right to proceeds allocated to that claim [Gapusan v. Jay (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 734, 742, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 250] . Thus, for example, when a settlement is in satisfaction of both the employee's claims and the spouse's loss of consortium claim, the trial court must ascertain the damages to which each plaintiff is entitled and apportion the settlement [Gapusan v. Jay (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 734, 743, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 250] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

31-354 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 354.14

§ 354.14 Damages

[1] Nature of Recoverable Damages

If a spouse is tortiously injured to the extent that his or her ability to provide love, affection, companionship, comfort, or sexual relations is diminished, the other spouse is entitled to damages for his or her own physical, psychological, and emotional pain, suffering, and anguish resulting from the injury [Lantis v. Condon (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 152, 157, 157 Cal. Rptr. 22 ; but see Ledger v. Tippitt (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 625, 640, 210 Cal. Rptr. 814 (damages for grief and emotional distress not recoverable in loss of consortium actions)].

The official California jury instruction on loss of consortium succinctly delineates the items recoverable. The instruction provides that the plaintiff is entitled to damages for any past or future loss of love, companionship, comfort, affection, society, solace, moral support, enjoyment of sexual relations or ability to have children, and physical assistance in the operation and maintenance of the home [see BAJI No. 14.40 (1979 Revision)].

Although apparently no case has discussed the point, it would seem that certain special damages caused by the loss of consortium, such as the plaintiff spouse's expenses for psychological or family counseling, should also be recoverable to the extent that they are not recoverable by the other spouse in his or her action for personal injuries [see generally Civ. Code § 3333 (tort damages include all detriment proximately caused by defendant's wrongful conduct)].

[2] Damages by Injured Spouse Not Recoverable

The paramount consideration in a determination of nonrecoverable damages is whether the award would result in double recovery. If an item of damages is a component of the injured spouse's action, the consortium claimant cannot obtain those damages [Rodriguez v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 382, 409, 115 Cal. Rptr. 765, 525 P.2d 669] .

The approved jury instruction [see BAJI No. 14.40 (1979 Revision)] states that the award shall not include any compensation for losses that the physically injured spouse may be entitled to recover, and specifically indicates that jurors should not award plaintiff any compensation for loss of financial support and for personal services, such as nursing, rendered to the injured spouse [Rodriguez v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 382, 409, 115 Cal.

Rptr. 765, 525 P.2d 669 (holding that recovery of nursing services in consortium action would constitute double recovery because injured spouse is entitled to medical expenses)]. The instruction cautions that the jurors also should not include any loss of earnings that the plaintiff has suffered if he or she gave up employment to take care of the injured spouse [see BAJI No. 14.40 (1979 Revision)].

§ 354.15 Cause of Action Not Available

[1] Alienation of Affection or Seduction

Loss of consortium actions cannot include allegations based on claims for alienation of affection or seduction, because those causes of action are precluded by statute [see Civ. Code § 43.5].

[2] Parental Consortium

The California Supreme Court has held that policy considerations weigh against a cause of action for loss of parental consortium. The Court set forth three reasons why it rejected a cause of action by a child for loss of parental consortium. First, interference with the sexual relationship of spouses (a significant aspect of spousal consortium) is not present in an action by a child [Borer v. American Airlines, Inc. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 441, 448, 138 Cal. Rptr. 302, 563 P.2d 858] . Second, multiplicity of actions and double recovery of damages is a greater problem in the parent-child context [Borer v. American Airlines, Inc. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 441, 448-449, 138 Cal. Rptr. 302, 563 P.2d 858] . Third, the decisions of other jurisdictions have unanimously rejected a child's suit for loss of parental consortium [Borer v. American Airlines, Inc. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 441, 449, 138 Cal. Rptr. 302, 563 P.2d 858 ; but see Nix v. Preformed Line Prods. Co. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 975, 981-986, 216 Cal. Rptr. 581 (following Borer but criticizing its reasoning; court noted that several other jurisdictions have since recognized an action for loss of parental consortium)]. Inadequacy and difficulty of measuring damages as well as the dangers of unduly excessive liability were also mentioned by the Court as reasons for nonrecognition of parental consortium claims [Borer v. American Airlines, Inc. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 441, 447, 138 Cal. Rptr. 302, 563 P.2d 858] .

[3] Filial Consortium

The California Supreme Court has also held that the policy considerations set forth in Borer v. American Airlines Inc. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 441, 138 Cal. Rptr. 302, 563 P.2d 858 , also preclude an action brought by a parent seeking to recover damages for the loss of a child's support, comfort, protection, society, and pleasure [Baxter v. Superior Court (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 461, 463, 138 Cal. Rptr. 315, 563 P.2d 871] . Dictum in appellate decisions [see Mobaldi v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 573, 586, 127 Cal. Rptr. 720 ; Hair v. County of Monterey (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 538, 545, 547, 119 Cal. Rptr. 639 (stating that although distinction between spousal and filial consortium is not reasonable, Legislature or Supreme Court should decide issue)] expressing a contrary view was disapproved [Baxter v. Superior Court (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 461, 466 n.4, 138 Cal. Rptr. 315, 563 P.2d 871] . The Court noted that there is division among the states on the issue of a parent's claim, but indicated that those jurisdictions permitting recovery had not presented compelling reasons to do so [Baxter v. Superior Court (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 461, 464-465, 138 Cal. Rptr. 315, 563 P.2d 871 ; see Hoyem v. Manhattan Beach City Sch. Dist. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 508, 522, 150 Cal. Rptr. 1, 585 P.2d 851] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

31-354 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 354.16

§ 354.16 Defense of Comparative Negligence

Prior to passage of Proposition 51 in 1986, the contributory negligence of the nonplaintiff spouse did not reduce the damages for loss of consortium awarded to the plaintiff spouse [see Lantis v. Condon (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 152, 155-156, 157 Cal. Rptr. 22] . However, Proposition 51's addition of Civ. Code § 1431.2 has changed that rule. Under Civ. Code § 1431.2, a defendant's liability for noneconomic damages is limited to that defendant's percentage of fault [Civ. Code § 1431.2(a)]. The statute specifically defines noneconomic damages to include damages for loss of consortium [Civ. Code § 1431.2(b)(2); see generally § 354.14[1]]. Thus, under current law, the damages awarded on a claim for loss of consortium brought against a particular defendant are subject to reduction by the percentage of comparative fault of the nonplaintiff spouse [Craddock v. Kmart Corp. (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 1300, 1310-1311, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 881] , as well as by the percentage of comparative fault of any other tortfeasors who have been allocated a share of responsibility for the injury that serves as the basis for the loss of consortium claim [see Civ. Code § 1431.2(a)].

[1] In General

The two-year (one-year, prior to January 1, 2003) statute of limitations [Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1; see former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3); Ch. 345,Limitation of Actions, § 345.14] applies to a loss of consortium cause of action [Shelton v. Superior Court (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 66, 81, 128 Cal. Rptr. 454 ; see Evans v. Dayton Hudson (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 49, 53-55, 285 Cal. Rptr. 550 (partial payments made to injured spouse under Ins. Code § 11583 without notice of statute of limitations do not toll statute for loss of consortium); Uram v. Abex Corp. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1425, 1436, 266 Cal. Rptr. 695 (refusing to apply Code Civ. Proc. § 340.2 to claim for loss of consortium arising from asbestos-related disability)]. The action must generally be filed within one year after the date of injury that produces the loss of consortium [Priola v. Paulino (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 380, 383, 140 Cal. Rptr. 186] . The cause of action accrues and the statute of limitations commences to run at the time the physical injury is sustained by the nonplaintiff spouse [Priola v. Paulino (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 380, 388, 140 Cal. Rptr. 186] .

Accrual of the cause of action is delayed, pursuant to the discovery rule, until the spouse is aware, or in the exercise of reasonable diligence should have been aware, of the injury to the spouse and its negligent cause [Uram v. Abex Corp. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1425, 1433, 1435, 266 Cal. Rptr. 695] . In one case, a contention that the cause of action did not arise at the time of the initial accident and injuries, but arose when permanent disability was sustained, was rejected by the court, concluding that disastrous injuries were not a sine qua non for loss of consortium actions [Priola v. Paulino (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 380, 388-391, 140 Cal. Rptr. 186] .

An amendment adding a consortium claim to the injured spouse's original complaint, proposed after the statute period has run, is not permissible because it represents a new cause of action that is personal to the spouse of the injured person, and the amendment does not relate back to the date the original complaint was filed, notwithstanding that the underlying facts are the same [Shelton v. Superior Court (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 66, 74-81, 128 Cal. Rptr. 454 ; see also Priola v. Paulino (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 380, 383, 140 Cal. Rptr. 186 (following Shelton)].

[2] Governmental Entity Claims Requirements

In consortium actions against public entities, a claim by the injured party will not suffice in regard to the timeliness of the spouse's consortium claim; a specific claim, complying with the claims statutes, must be timely filed by the party seeking loss of consortium damages [Shelton v. Superior Court (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 66, 82-83, 128 Cal. Rptr. 454] .

§ 354.18 Mandatory Contractual Arbitration

The nonplaintiff spouse's agreement to arbitrate a claim for professional negligence against a health care provider extends to the plaintiff spouse's claim for loss of consortium arising from the same injury [Mormile v. Sinclair (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1508, 1510-1516, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 725 ; Gross v. Recabaren (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 771, 778-783, 253 Cal. Rptr. 820 ; see Herbert v. Superior Court (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 718, 215 Cal. Rptr. 477 (same as to wrongful death); but see Baker v. Birnbaum (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 288, 248 Cal. Rptr. 336 (contra)]. The Medical Injury Compensation Reform Act of 1975 (MICRA) includes a statute expressly authorizing arbitration clauses in contracts for medical services as long as specified language is included [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1295]. MICRA is considered in detail in Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice . Whether other contracts requiring mandatory arbitration would be construed as encompassing the nonplaintiff spouse's loss of consortium claim is unresolved. The public policy in favor of arbitration over litigation, and the conservation of judicial resources accomplished through joinder, suggest that enforcement is likely [see Mormile v. Sinclair (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1508, 1511, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 725 ; Gross v. Recabaren (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 771, 775, 253 Cal. Rptr. 820] .

§ 354.30 Decisions

Right to recover for loss of consortium is founded on marriage relationship and cannot exist without marriage; accordingly, person who witnesses tortious injury and death of person with whom he or she shared cohabitant relationship allegedly akin to marital relationship is not permitted to recover damages for loss of consortium. Elden v. Sheldon (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 267, 277-278, 250 Cal. Rptr. 254, 758 P.2d 582 , disapproving Butcher v. Superior Court (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 58, 188 Cal. Rptr. 503

Consortium defined as conjugal fellowship and sexual relations between spouses. Rodriguez v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 382, 385, 115 Cal. Rptr. 765, 525 P.2d 669

Each spouse has cause of action for loss of consortium caused by negligent or intentional injury to other spouse by third party. Rodriguez v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 382, 408, 115 Cal. Rptr. 765, 525 P.2d 669

Concept of consortium not only includes loss of support or services but also embraces elements of love, companionship, affection, society, sexual relations, solace, and more. Rodriguez v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 382, 405, 115 Cal. Rptr. 765, 525 P.2d 669

Under Proposition 51, damages awarded for loss of consortium are subject to reduction by percentage of comparative fault of nonplaintiff spouse. Craddock v. Kmart Corp. (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 1300, 1310-1311, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 881

One-year limitation period of former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1 (two-year limitation period)) applies to cause of action for loss of consortium (even if based on spouse's asbestos-related injury subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 340.2), subject to deferred accrual of cause of action to time when plaintiff knew, or in exercise of reasonable diligence should have known, of injury to spouse and its negligent cause. Uram v. Abex Corp. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1425, 1436-1438, 266 Cal. Rptr. 695

Emotional disquiet described as "mentally upset, distressed, and aggravated" did not rise to level of mental health impairment sufficient to substantially disturb marital relationship on more than temporary basis. Anderson v. Northrop Corp. (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 772, 780, 250 Cal. Rptr. 189

If pattern before injury was that seaman would go on two-month or three-month fishing trips with two-week or three-week intervals between trips, failure to award seaman's spouse damages for loss of consortium was not error; evidence was sufficient to support finding that there was no net loss of society, comfort, and companionship. Da Silva v. Pacific King, Inc. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1, 12, 240 Cal. Rptr. 395

Wife failed to state cause of action for loss of consortium because husband's injury was compensable under Workers' Compensation Law. Santiago v. Employee Benefits Servs. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 898, 214 Cal. Rptr. 679

Wife's claim for loss of consortium was not merged with husband's injury for purposes of denying her recovery under "per person" limitation in insurancepolicy. Abellon v. Hartford Ins. Co. (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 21, 24-32, 212 Cal. Rptr. 852 (distinguishing United Servs. Auto. Ass'n v. Warner (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 957, 964-965, 135 Cal. Rptr. 34 , which held that loss of consortium was not separate bodily injury within meaning of policy)

Loss of consortium action is limited to actual or putative spouses, or to persons in common law marriages from states recognizing those marriages. Ledger v. Tippitt (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 625, 633, 639-640, 210 Cal. Rptr. 814

Diminution or impairment of consortium rights is sufficient to state cause of action; complete loss not required. Carlson v. Wald (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 598, 602-603, 199 Cal. Rptr. 10 (criticizing contrary statement in Park v. Standard Chem Way Co. (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 47, 50, 131 Cal. Rptr. 338)

Action for loss of consortium does not exist in favor of married person whose spouse sustained personal injuries while couple was engaged to marry, but before marriage. Lieding v. Commercial Diving Ctr. (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 72, 76, 191 Cal. Rptr. 559

Award of loss of consortium to husband in civil action for battery/rape of wife was proper because same jurors found that battery/rape occurred and because husband at all times linked loss of consortium action to inability of wife to perform marital responsibilities as result of battery/rape. Delia S. v. Torres (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 471, 484, 184 Cal. Rptr. 787

Judgment awarding both husband and wife damages for loss of consortium of other spouse does not constitute double recovery. Godfrey v. Steinpress (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 154, 168-169, 180 Cal. Rptr. 95

Recovery by husband for loss of consortium not permitted if couple were living together at time of injury, but were not married until after injury. Tong v. Jocson (1977) 76 Cal. App. 3d 603, 604-605, 142 Cal. Rptr. 726

Consortium means complete loss of consortium for definite period of time or nondeterminable length of time and does not refer to inevitable physical, mental, and emotional damage normally or usually suffered by one spouse when other spouse wrongfully injured. Park v. Standard Chem Way Co. (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 47, 50-51, 131 Cal. Rptr. 338

[1] FORM Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10] for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] for Injuries Based on Negligence or Intentional Tort [Civ. Code § 1714(a)]--Action for Loss of Consortium Based on Defendant's Negligent or Intentional Injury to Plaintiff's Spouse

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name], Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name], [and DOES 1	)	COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES through_____,] Defendant(s).	)	(Negligence or Intentional Tort)

Plaintiff alleges:

1. _____ [Allege capacity and residence of defendant, e.g., Defendant _____ (name) is and at all times herein mentioned was a resident of _____ County, California].

2. Plaintiff and plaintiff's spouse _____ [name] are, and at all times herein mentioned were, husband and wife.

[3. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued herein as DOES 1 through _____, inclusive, and therefore sues these defendants by such fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. (Plaintiff is informed and believes that each of these defendants is an agent and employee of defendant _____ (name), and proximately caused plaintiff's damages as herein alleged while acting in such capacity)].

4. _____ [Specify basis of defendant's liability in tort for injury to nonplaintiff spouse that caused loss of consortium, e.g., As alleged in Paragraphs _____ through _____, inclusive, defendant(s) _____ (name(s)) are liable in tort for the injury to _____ (name of nonplaintiff spouse)].

5. Prior to the injuries, plaintiff's spouse was able to and did perform his/her duties as a spouse. Subsequent to the injuries and as a proximate result thereof, plaintiff's spouse has been unable to perform the necessary duties as a spouse[, in that he/she no longer _____ (set forth duties that injury precludes spouse from performing, e.g., can perform the work and services usually performed by him/her in the care, maintenance, and management of the family home)]. Plaintiff's spouse will be unable to perform such work, services, and duties in the future. By reason thereof, plaintiff has been _____[permanently] deprived and will be deprived of the consortium of plaintiff's spouse, including the performance of his/her spouse's necessary duties, all to plaintiff's damage.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant(s) [, and each of them,] as follows:

1. For general damages according to proof;

2. For special damages according to proof;

3. For costs of suit herein incurred;

4. For costs of superior court filing; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use in an action by a spouse for loss of consortium resulting from negligent or intentional injury to the other spouse by a third party [see Rodriguez v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 382, 408, 115 Cal. Rptr. 765, 525 P.2d 669] .

[3] Allegations

This form of complaint includes: an optional allegation regarding the capacity of defendant(s), for use if desired (Paragraph 1); an allegation thatthe plaintiff and the injured person were in fact married at the time of the injury (Paragraph 2); and an optional fictitious name allegation (Paragraph 3). Paragraph 4 is for allegations necessary to establish that the defendant was liable for a tortious injury to plaintiff's spouse, which liability is the basis for liability for loss of consortium. In the typical case in which the loss of consortium action is brought together with the injured spouse's cause of action for his or her injuries, it will be sufficient to refer to the paragraphs in the complaint that establish the liability to the injured spouse; but if the action for loss of consortium is brought independently, the complaint must allege the basis for the defendant's liability for the spouse's injury.

Paragraph 5 alleges the loss of consortium suffered by plaintiff. The complaint should allege in detail the evidence comparing the nature of the marital relationship before and after the injury. The disastrous consequences of the injury to the spouse were dramatically presented in Rodriguez v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 382, 386, 115 Cal. Rptr. 765, 525 P.2d 669 , in which the wife detailed the objective changes and the severe psychological effects of her husband's injury. After explaining that to be deeply in love and having no way of physically expressing it is extremely difficult physically and mentally, the wife convincingly demonstrated that her husband's life had been ruined by the accident, and as his partner, her life had also been ruined [Rodriguez v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 382, 386, 115 Cal. Rptr. 765, 525 P.2d 669] .

A "partial loss of consortium" should not be specifically alleged, but instead the definitions of consortium formulated in Rodriguez should be alleged (for example, loss of love, companionship, affection, society, sexual relations, and solace). Anything less than a permanent loss should be stated in terms of "impairment" or "diminution" of the right to consortium [see Carlson v. Wald (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 598, 602, 199 Cal. Rptr. 10] .

[4] Specification of Damages

In an action brought in the superior court to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint or cross complaint cannot state the amount of damages demanded [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10].

[5] Action for Loss of Consortium

Consortium has been defined as conjugal fellowship and sexual relations between spouses [Rodriguez v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 382, 385, 115 Cal. Rptr. 765, 525 P.2d 669] . In California, each spouse has a cause of action for loss of consortium caused by a negligent or intentional injury to the other spouse by a third party [Rodriguez v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 382, 408, 115 Cal. Rptr. 765, 525 P.2d 669] . Although a complaint for loss of consortium need not allege a complete loss of these elements, it must allege a diminution or impairment of them that is more serious than the inevitable physical, mental, and emotional damage normally sustained by a spouse when the other spouse is injured [Carlson v. Wald (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 598, 602-603, 199 Cal. Rptr. 10 ; criticizing requirement of complete loss of consortium stated in Park v. Standard Chem Way Co. (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 47, 50, 131 Cal. Rptr. 338] .

[6] Damages

In the Rodriguez decision, the court noted that the plaintiff, the wife of the injured person, would not be able to recover for the reasonable value of nursing services because her husband, in his own cause of action, was already entitled to recover medical expenses including the value of her nursing services. Therefore, to permit her to recover for such services would constitute an unlawful double recovery [Rodriguez v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 382, 409, 115 Cal. Rptr. 765, 525 P.2d 669] . In addition, the wife could not recover damages for lost earnings based on the rationale that she was required to quit her job to provide nursing services for her husband. This, too, would be letting her recover damages for nursing services indirectly [Rodriguez v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 382, 409, 115 Cal. Rptr. 765, 525 P.2d 669 ; but see Godfrey v. Steinpress (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 154, 168-169, 180 Cal. Rptr. 95 (judgment awarding each spouse damages for loss of consortium of other spouse as not constituting double recovery)].

[7] Statute of Limitations

The two-year (one-year, prior to January 1, 2003) limitations period [Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1; see former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3); Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions, § 345.14] applies to actions for loss of consortium. The limitations period may be tolled during the period when the plaintiff does not know, and could not discover through the exercise of reasonable diligence, of the injury to his or her spouse and its negligent cause [Uram v. Abex Corp. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1425, 1436-1438, 266 Cal. Rptr. 695] .

[2] Use of Form

This form of affirmative defense is for use by a defendant in an action for loss of consortium to place in issue the statute of limitations period. The two-year (one-year, prior to January 1, 2003) statute of limitations period [Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1; see former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3); Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions, § 345.14] applies to a loss of consortium cause of action [Shelton v. Superior Court (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 66, 81, 128 Cal. Rptr. 454 ; see Evans v. Dayton Hudson (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 49, 53-55, 285 Cal. Rptr. 550 (partial payments made to injured spouse under Ins. Code § 11583 without notice of statute of limitations do not toll statute for loss of consortium); Uram v. Abex Corp. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1425, 1433, 1435, 1436, 266 Cal. Rptr. 695 (refusing to apply Code Civ. Proc. § 340.2 to claim for loss of consortium arising from asbestos-related disability)]. The action must generally be filed within two years (one year, prior to January 1, 2003) [Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1; see former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3); Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions, § 345.14] after the the date of injury that produces the loss of consortium [Priola v. Paulino (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 380, 383, 140 Cal. Rptr. 186] .

The cause of action accrues and the statute of limitations commences to run at the time the physical injury is sustained by the nonplaintiff spouse [Priola v. Paulino (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 380, 388, 140 Cal. Rptr. 186] . Accrual of the cause of action is delayed, pursuant to the discovery rule, until the spouse is aware, or in the exercise of reasonable diligence should have been aware, of the injury to the spouse and its negligent cause [Uram v. Abex Corp. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1425, 266 Cal. Rptr. 695] . In one case, a contention that the cause of action did not arise at the time of the initial accident and injuries, but arose when permanent disability was sustained, was rejected by the court, concluding that disastrous injuries were not a sine qua non for loss of consortium actions [Priola v. Paulino (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 380, 388-391, 140 Cal. Rptr. 186] .

§ 355.10 Governing Statutes

General provisions covering lost and unclaimed property appear in Chapter 4 of Title VI of the Civil Code [Civ. Code §§ 2080-2082].

More specific provisions appear in other sections of the Civil Code covering disposition of unclaimed property by licensed hospitals [Civ. Code §§ 1862.5] and property intentionally abandoned by tenants and guests [Civ. Code §§ 1980-1991].

Provisions appearing in other codes include disposition of unclaimed property by regional park districts [Pub. Res. Code § 5561.5] and the highway patrol department [Veh. Code §§ 2414, 2415], as well as of unclaimed firearms in the possession of a governmental officer [Penal Code § 12032].

Regulations concerning lost public property issued to National Guard enlisted men and officers are set forth in Mil. & Vet. Code §§ 414-416.

Duties of finders of certain containers and equipment appear in Bus. & Prof. Code § 14434 (general statute) and Food & Agric. Code § 34561 (dairy equipment).

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

31-355 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 355.11

§ 355.11 Definitions

[1] "Lost"

The word "lost" has been defined as "gone out of one's possession or control" [Webster's Third International Dictionary, p. 1338]. One commentator has noted that goods are considered lost when from their nature, the place in which they were found, and their condition on finding, it is evident that they were inadvertently and unintentionally dropped where found [Paulus, Finder vs. Locus in Quo--An Outline, 6 Hastings LJ 180, 190 (1955)].

[2] "Unclaimed"

The word "unclaimed" has been defined as "not called for by an owner or consignee" [Webster's Third International Dictionary, p. 2485]. Both property belonging to a known owner and an unknown owner may be considered "unclaimed" [Shedoudy v. Spreckels Bros. Commercial Co. (1908) 9 Cal. App. 398, 400-401, 99 P. 535] .

[3] "Property"

For purposes of the Civil Code, a thing of which there may be ownership is called property, with ownership being defined as the right of one or morepersons to possess and use the thing to the exclusion of others [Civ. Code § 654]. Property is either real or immovable [Civ. Code § 657(1)], or personal or movable [Civ. Code § 657(2)]. Every kind of property that is not real is personal [Civ. Code § 663]. For purposes of this chapter, the word "property" refers to personal, movable property as opposed to real, immovable property.

A person who finds a thing lost is not bound to take charge of it, but if he or she does so he or she becomes a depositary for the owner, with the rights and obligations of a depositary for hire. Any person who finds and takes possession of money, goods, things in action, or other personal property, or saves any domestic animal from drowning or starvation, is required, within a reasonable time, to inform the owner, if known, and to make restitution without compensation, except a reasonable charge for saving and taking care of the property. PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 355.15 Duties of Police or Sheriff's Department; Disposition of Property

[1] Notification of Known Owner

The police or sheriff's department must notify the owner, if the owner's identity is reasonably ascertainable, that it has the property and where it may be claimed. The department may require the owner to pay a reasonable charge to defray costs of storage and care of the property [Civ. Code § 2080.1(b)].

If within 90 days after receipt of the property by the department, the owner appears, proves ownership, and pays all reasonable charges, the department must restore the property to him or her [Civ. Code § 2080.2].

[2] Disposition of Property if Not Claimed

[a] Property Valued at $250 or More

If the reported value of the property is $250 or more and no owner appears and proves ownership of the property within 90 days, the police or sheriff's department must cause notice of the property to be published at least once in a newspaper of general circulation [Civ. Code § 2080.3(a)].

If, after seven days following the first publication of the notice, no owner appears and proves ownership of the property and the person who found or saved the property pays the cost of publication, then the title vests in the person who found or saved the property unless the property was found in the course of employment by an employee of any public agency, in which case the property must be sold at public auction. Title to the property does not vest in the person who found or saved the property or in the successful bidder at the public auction unless the cost of publication is first paid to the city, county, or city and county, the police or sheriff's department of which caused the notice to be published [Civ. Code § 2080.3(a)].

[b] Property Valued at Less Than $250

If the reported value of the property is less than $250 and no owner appears and proves his ownership within 90 days, the title vests in the person who found or saved the property, unless the property was found in the course of employment by and employee of any public agency, in which case the property is sold at public auction [Civ. Code § 2080.3(b)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

31-355 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 355.18

§ 355.18 Responsibilities of Public Agency on Obtaining Possession of Property for Temporary Safekeeping

When a public agency obtains possession of personal property from a person for temporary safekeeping, the public agency must do all of the following [Civ. Code § 2080.10(a)]:

- Take responsibility for the storage, documentation, and disposition of the property.

- Provide the person from whom the property was taken with a receipt and instructions for the retrieval of the property. The receipt and instructions must either be given to the person from whom the property was taken at the time the public agency obtains the property or immediately mailed, by first-class mail, to the person from whom the property was taken.

- If the public agency has knowledge that the person from whom the property was taken is not the owner, the agency must make reasonable efforts to identify the owner. If the owner is identified, the public agency must mail, by first-class mail, a receipt and instructions for the retrieval of the property.

The receipt and instructions must notify the person from whom the property was taken that the property must be claimed within 60 days after the public agency obtains possession or the property will be disposed of in accordance with the disposal provisions of this article [Civ. Code § 2080.10(b)]. Within 60 days, the person may do one of the following:

- Retrieve the property.

- Authorize in writing another person to retrieve the property.

- Notify the public agency in writing that he or she is unable to retrieve the property, because he or she is in custody, and request the public agency to hold the property. If a person notifies the public agency that he or she is unable to retrieve the property within 60 days, or have an authorized person retrieve the property, the public agency must hold the property for not longer than 10 additional months.

The public agency will not be liable for damages caused by any official action performed with due care regarding the disposition of personal property pursuant to this provision [Civ. Code § 2080.10(c)].

"Public agency" is defined as any state agency, any city, county, city and county, special district, or other political subdivision [Civ. Code § 2080.10(d)].

§ 355.20 Unclaimed Property

[1] Course of Business

Property received by carriers, innkeepers, or warehousemen for transportation or safekeeping if not delivered to the owner, consignee, or other designated person, may be held or stored until freight and all just and reasonable charges are paid [Civ. Code § 2081].

If no person claims the property within 60 days, it may be sold by the holder at public auction, with the proceeds used to pay applicable charges, any balance being held for the owner [Civ. Code §§ 2081.1-2081.3]. For a form of notice of auction, see § 355.66.

The person with whom the property is stored is liable for loss or damage only if it results from his negligence or want of proper care [Civ. Code § 2081.4].

[2] Left by Patients in Hospitals

Whenever any personal property is found in or deposited with any licensed hospital and remains unclaimed for 180 days following the departure of the owner from the hospital, the hospital may proceed to sell the property at public auction, and from the proceeds of sale may retain storage charges, reasonable expenses of sale, and sums due the hospital from the last known owner [Civ. Code § 1862.5].

The sale may not be held until at least four weeks after written notice is given to the last known owner, containing a description of each item of personal property to be sold, the hospital's and last known owner's name, and the time and place of sale. The notice may be sent by regular mail, postage prepaid, to the last known owner at his last known address [Civ. Code § 1862.5]. For a form of notice of auction, see § 355.67.

_____ [name(s)],	)	(Conversion)
Defendant(s).	)	[Amount demanded _____
	)	(exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]

Plaintiff alleges:

1. _____ [Allege capacity and residence of defendant, e.g., Defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a resident of _____ County, California].

2. [Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued herein as DOES I-_____, inclusive, and therefore sues these defendants by such fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by their conduct.)]

3. At all times herein mentioned, and in particular on or about _____ [date], plaintiff was, and still is, the _____ [e.g., owner] and was, and still is, entitled to possession of _____ [describe personal property].

4. On or about _____ [date], the personal property described above had a value of $_____, and on that date was in the possession of plaintiff at _____ [location, including city and county], California.

5. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff lost the property at or near _____ [location]. On or after that date, defendant found the property and took charge of it by _____ [e.g., taking it up and carrying it to his house at _____ (location)].

6. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff appeared at [e.g., defendant's house] and made reasonable proof to defendant that plaintiff was the owner of the property by _____ [e.g., exhibiting to defendant a certain bill of sale naming plaintiff as the buyer of the property]. Plaintiff tendered to defendant the sum of $_____ for defendant's expenses and reasonable compensation for saving, preserving, and caring for the property, and plaintiff demanded that defendant restore the property to plaintiff.

7. On or about _____ [date], defendant refused to surrender the property to plaintiff, converted and has continued to convert the property to his/her own use, all to plaintiff's damage in the sum of $_____.

[8. Between the time of defendant's conversion of the property to his/her own use and the filing of this action, plaintiff _____ (describe time and money properly expended in pursuit of the converted property], all to plaintiff's further damage in the sum of $_____.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For the value of the property converted in the sum of $_____.

2. For interest at _____ percent on the foregoing sum, from and after _____ [date].

3. For damages for time and money expended in pursuit of the converted property in the sum of $_____.

4. For costs of suit herein incurred.

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [typed name]

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint and the form of complaint in § 355.63 are meant to present alternatives for the true owner of lost property faced with the finder's refusal to return lost property on reasonable demand and tender of reasonable expenses for saving and caring for the property set forth in Civ. Code § 2080. This form presupposes that the true owner is seeking damages for conversion, and the form in § 355.63 presupposes that the true owner is seeking the lost property itself.

[3] Conversion

[a] Defined

Conversion has been defined as any act of dominion wrongfully exerted over another person's personal property [Beverly Fin. Co. v. American Cas. Co. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 259, 264, 78 Cal. Rptr. 334] . Another authority has defined conversion as an act of willful interference with a chattel, done without lawful justification, by which any person entitled thereto is deprived of use and possession [De Vries v. Brumback (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 643, 647, 2 Cal. Rptr. 764, 349 P.2d 532] . For full discussion of the elements of conversion and related forms, see Ch. 150, Conversion .

[b] Damages

The detriment caused by the wrongful conversion of personal property is presumed to be:

- The value of the property at the time of the conversion with the interest from that time, or an amount sufficient to indemnify the party injured for the loss which is the natural, reasonable, and proximate result of the wrongful act complained of and which a proper degree of prudence on his part would not have averted; and

- A fair compensation for the time and money expended in pursuit of the property [Civ. Code § 3336].

The interest allowable under Civ. Code § 3336 is the legal rate of 10 percent [Cal. Const. art. XV, § 1; Code Civ. Proc. § 685.010(a)].

[4] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude the defendant from using a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case if the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

[5] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive ofinterest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case and must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

1. [Note: Defendant may admit the allegations of the complaint as to the finding or saving of the property, or he may choose to give his own version by way of factual allegations in his answer, e.g., On or about _____, (date), at about _____ (time), at _____ (location) defendant found _____ (the property or animal) in _____ (describe circumstances of finding) and _____ took charge of or saved) the _____ (property or animal) by _____ (the steps taken by the finder may be detailed as a basis for his claims for expenses)].

2. In addition, defendant was further required to, and did, perform the following services in connection with the finding, saving, caring for, and preserving: _____ [describe].

3. On or about _____ [date], when plaintiff demanded that defendant turn over the property to plaintiff, defendant demanded that plaintiff pay to defendant as and for compensation for the expenses and services the sum of $_____. Plaintiff has failed and refused, and continues to fail and refuse, to pay or to tender payment of the sum, or any other reasonable sum, for defendant's the expenses.

[2] Use of Form

The form of affirmative defense in [1], above, is for use in an answer to an action by an owner of property which has been found by defendant. One who finds lost property is intitled to a reasonable charge for saving and taking care of the property [Civ. Code § 2080].

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

At all times since defendant found the property, plaintiff has failed to communicate to defendant reasonable proof that plaintiff owns the property.

[2] Use of Form

The form of affirmative defense in [1], above, is for use in an answer to an action by an alleged owner of property which has been found by defendant. Civ. Code § 2080, the statute governing the duties of a finder of lost property, requires that restitution be made to the owner. The statute does not specify how the owner is to be identified. However, the finder is a depositary for the owner, with the same rights and duties as a depositary for hire [Civ. Code § 2080]. Since a depositary for hire is required to exercise at least ordinary care for the preservation of the property [Civ. Code § 1852], it would appear that the finder would be justified in demanding adequate identification before restoring the property. Failure to do so might result in the finder being liable to the real owner if the purported owner received the property when he or she was not entitled to it.

[1] FORM Notice of Public Auction of Unclaimed Goods--By Licensed Hospital [Civ. Code § 1862.5]

TO _____ [name of last known owner]:

Please be informed that the following personal property has been _____ [found in or deposited with] _____ Hospital, and is believed to be owned by you: _____ [describe each item of personal property which has not been claimed]. This property has remained unclaimed at _____ Hospital for _____ [state time, which must be at least 180 days] days since your departure.

The property has been stored, and _____ Hospital has expended $_____ so far for storage fees, which continue to accrue at the rate of $_____ per day.

Unless the property described above is called for and the accrued storage fees are paid, the property shall be sold to the highest bidder at public auction to be held on _____ [a date at least four weeks from the date of written notice], at _____ [time], at _____ [location of auction].

Yours truly,

[signature of officer or authorized agent of hospital]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a hospital to notify the last known owner of unclaimed property at his last known address of its intention to sell the property at public auction if not called for and storage charges due thereon paid. The notice may be sent by regular mail, postage prepaid [Civ. Code § 1862.5].

The property must remain unclaimed for a period of 180 days following the departure of the owner from the hospital [Civ. Code § 1862.5].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

31-356 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 356.11

§ 356.11 Reestablishing Land Records

[1] Who May Bring Action

Whenever the public records in the office of a county recorder of any county are lost or destroyed in whole or in any material part by flood, fire, earthquake, enemy attack, or from any other cause, any person who claims an estate of inheritance or for life in, and who is by himself or herself or by another person holding under him or her in the actual and peaceable possession of any real property in that county may bring and maintain an action in rem against all the world to establish title to such property and to determine all adverse claims thereto [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.02] under Code Civ. Proc. § 751.01 et seq. These sections are collectively known as the Destroyed Land Records Relief Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.01] and commonly referred to as the McEnerney Act. They were enacted immediately after the San Francisco earthquake and fire of 1906 to restore records of title destroyed by public disaster [Berton v. All Persons (1917) 176 Cal. 610, 615, 170 P. 151] . They are constitutional and do not violate due process [see American Land Co. v. Zeiss (1911) 219 U.S. 47, 58-71, 31 S. Ct. 200, 55 L. Ed. 82] .

[2] Venue

A person bringing an action under the Destroyed Land Records Relief Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.01 et seq.] will usually bring the action in the superior court of the county where the real property is situated [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.02]. The action may also be brought in the county in which the real property is situated if any real property is in another county, but was formerly in the county of which the records were lost or destroyed, as well as if the lost or destroyed records included the public records of the office of the county recorder covering all or a material part of the timewhen the real property was in the county whose records were lost or destroyed [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.02].

[3] Land Included in Action

Any number of separate parcels of land claimed by the plaintiff may be included in the same action [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.03].

Chapter 356 LOST PAPERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

31-356 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 356.12

§ 356.12 Commencing the Action

[1] Complaint

An action under the Destroyed Land Records Relief Law to establish title to property and to determine all adverse claims thereto must be commenced by filing a verified complaint. The party commencing an action must be named as plaintiff, and the defendants must be described as "all persons claiming any interest in, or lien upon, the real property herein described, or any part thereof." The complaint must contain a statement of the facts enumerated in Code Civ. Proc. § 751.02, a particular description of the real property, and a specification of the estate, title, or interest of the plaintiff in the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.04; for complaint to establish title against all adverse claimants, see § 356.50].

[2] Plaintiff's Declaration

At the time of filing the complaint, the plaintiff must file with it an affidavit (declaration in lieu of affidavit; see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5). This affidavit must fully and explicitly set forth and show certain specified facts [see Code Civ. Proc. § 751.09; for plaintiff's declaration, see § 356.51].

[3] Issuance of Summons

After the filing of the complaint, a summons must be issued under the seal of the court and in a statutorily specified form [see Code Civ. Proc. § 751.05; for summons with memorandum, see § 356.52].

[4] Publication of Summons

The summons must be published in a newspaper of general circulation published in the county in which the action is brought. The newspaper in which publication is to be made must be designated by an order of the court or a judge thereof; it is to be signed and filed with the clerk. No other order for the publication of the summons is necessary, nor is any affidavit therefor required. A copy of the complaint need not be served except as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 751.10. The summons must be published pursuant to Gov. Code § 6065 (once a week for eight weeks). To each publication of the summons must be appended a memorandum which states, in substance: "The first publication of this summons was made in _____ (name of newspaper) on the _____ day of _____ (specify)."

[5] Posting of Summons and Memorandum

A copy of the summons and a copy of the memorandum must be posted in a conspicuous place on each separate parcel of the property described in the complaint within 15 days after the first publication of the summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.08].

[6] Service of Summons

If the plaintiff's affidavit discloses the name of any person claiming any interest in or lien on the property which is adverse to the plaintiff, a copy of the summons and the complaint and affidavit must be served on such person, if he or she can be found, in the manner provided for the service of a summons in a civil action, other than by publication [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 415.10, 415.20]. Service must be made during the period of the publication of the summons. A copy of the memorandum provided for in Code Civ. Proc. § 751.07 must be appended to the copy of the summons served upon any such person [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.10].

If such a person cannot, with reasonable diligence, be served as provided above within the period of publication of the summons, then a copy of the summons, memorandum, complaint, and affidavit must be mailed, with postage prepaid, to him or her at the address given in the affidavit or, if no address is given, at his last address known to the plaintiff. If no such address is known, then it must be mailed to the county seat of the county in which the action is brought [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.10].

§ 356.19 Notice of Ownership or Claim

[1] Filing Notice

Where the title to real property may be established or quieted pursuant to the Destroyed Land Records Relief Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.01 et seq.], any person who is or claims to be the owner of such real property or of any interest therein or lien thereon, may himself or herself, or by his or her agent duly authorized by letter of attorney previously recorded in the office of the county recorder of the county where the property is situated, sign, verify, and file for record a notice of ownership and claim [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.23; for notice of ownership and claim, see § 356.55]. The notice must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.24]. After three days from when the notice has been filed for record, all persons who may begin actions pursuant to the Destroyed Land Records Relief Law will be deemed to have notice of the facts stated in the notice. Neither the filing of the notice for record nor its recordation constitute constructive notice to any other person or for any other purpose [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.26].

[2] Effect of Notice

After three days from the filing of the notice for record, any person who begins an action pursuant to the Destroyed Land Records Relief Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.01 et seq.] to perfect or establish his title to the real property described in the notice, or any interest therein, must name in the affidavit [see § 356.51[1]] and memorandum appended to the summons [see § 356.52[1]] the claimant in the notice, or any person who is a successor in interest of such claimant under a subsequently duly recorded written instrument, judgment, or decree, as a party who claims an interest in or lien on the property adverse to the plaintiff. He or she must cause such claimant, or successor in interest, to be served with summons in the action. Otherwise, neither the action nor any judgment or decree made therein will affect the title or interest in the property described in the notice and owned either by the claimant at the time of the filing of the notice or by any such successor in interest prior to the commencement of the action. The failure to name such claimant or successor in interest in the affidavit or memorandum or to serve such claimant or such successor in interest will not affect the validity of the judgment or decree rendered in such action as to any othe person [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.27].

31-356 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 356.21

§ 356.21 Restoration of Recorded Maps

[1] By Verified Petition

When any map which has been recorded in the office of the recorder of any county is injured, destroyed, lost, or stolen, any person interested mayfile in the superior court of the county in which the map was originally filed or recorded a verified petition in writing alleging that such map has been injured, destroyed, lost, or stolen without fault of the person making the application. The petition must also allege that the petitioner has a true and correct copy of the original map which he or she is offering for record in the place of the original map. The petition must be accompanied by a copy of the true copy offered for recording [Code Civ. Proc. § 1855; for petition, see § 356.59].

[2] Notice of Hearing

After filing the verified petition, the clerk sets it for hearing by the court and gives notice of the hearing by posting notice of the time and place of the hearing at the courthouse in the county where the court is held at least 10 days before the hearing. A copy of the petition and a copy of the true copy which is being offered for record must be served on the recorder of the county in which the proceedings are brought at least 10 days before the hearing. The court may order such further notice to be given as it deems proper [Code Civ. Proc. § 1855; for notice of hearing, see § 356.60].

The county recorder is a proper party to a proceeding brought pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1855b since he or she is the only person required by statute to be served with a copy of the petition. The statute contemplates that the recorder is a real party in interest in any such action [Lakeside Park Ass'n v. Sweeney (1958) 157 Cal. App. 2d 101, 104, 320 P.2d 513] .

[3] Evidence Taken at Hearing

At the time set for the hearing, the court must take evidence for and against the peitition. If it appears to the court from the evidence presented that the copy of the map is a true copy of the original map, the court orders the copy placed of record in the office of the recorder in place of the original map [Code Civ. Proc. § 1855; for order and decree, see § 356.61].

[4] Effect of Recording Copy

A certified copy of the court's decree must accompany the copy of the map for record. When presented to the county recorder, the recorder must place the copy of the map in the place of the original map. When placed of record, the copy will have the same effect as the original map, and conveyances of property, referring to the original map will have the same effect as though the original map had not been injured, destroyed, lost, or stolen. Conveyances thereafter made referring to the copy of the original map will be deemed to refer also to the original map [Code Civ. Proc. § 1855].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

31-356 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 356.22

§ 356.22 Restoration of Court Record

[1] By Certified Copy

Whenever in any civil or criminal action or special proceeding in any California court, any record is lost, injured, or destroyed by any reason or conflagration or other public calamity, any person interested therein may apply to the court by a verified petition in writing [see § 356.62] for an order authorizing such defect to be supplied by a certified copy of the original, where such copy can be obtained [Code Civ. Proc. § 1953.01]. After notice [see § 356.63] given pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 et seq., and after it is shown to the satisfaction of the court that the record has been so lost, injured, or destroyed, the court makes an order [see § 356.64] that the certified copy is thereafter to have the same effect in all respects as the original would have had [Code Civ. Proc. § 1953.02].

When the proceeding is undertaken by a person who is not a person interested in the lost record, the judgment is void for lack of jurisdiction [In re Estate of Klepsch (1940) 36 Cal. App. 2d 483, 488, 97 P.2d 987] .

[2] No Copy Available

Whenever in any civil or criminal action or special proceeding in any California court any record is lost, injured, or destroyed by reason of conflagration or other public calamity and a certified copy of the original cannot be supplied, any person interested therein may make a verified written petition [see § 356.65] to the court for restoration of the information or material contained in the record. After such application is made, the court will cause notice [see § 356.63] of the application to be given pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 1953.03].

After the hearing of the application, if the court is satisfied that the statements contained in the written application are true, it makes an order [see § 356.66] reciting the substance and effect of the lost, injured, or destroyed record. The order has the same effect that the original record would have had if it had not been lost, injured, or destroyed, insofar as it concerns the person making the application as well as the persons who have received notice pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010 et seq., 1953.03 [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1953.04].

Upon an application for the restoration of the record, the court, if not fully satisfied from the evidence adduced in support thereof that a provision alleged to have been a part of the original record, correctly expresses the lost order, is justified in refusing to direct the restoration of the record to the extent of including the alleged provision [Richmond v. Denny (1920) 47 Cal. App. 745, 747, 191 P. 554] .
