The record in all cases when the proceeding is in rem, including probate, guardianship, conservatorship, and insolvency proceedings, may be supplied in like manner on like notice to all persons who have appeared therein, and on notice by publication or postings for not less than 10 days, as the court may order, to all persons who have not appeared. When restored, the record will have the same effect as the original on all persons who have been personally served with the notice of the application, and as to all other persons it will be prima facie evidence of the contents of the original [Code Civ. Proc. § 1953.05].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

31-356 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 356.25

§ 356.25 Restoring Private Documents or Records

[1] Petition and Notice

Any person, corporation, copartnership, organization, institution, business, or member of a profession or calling interested in establishing the existence, substance, genuineness, or authenticity of any memorandum, book, map, chart, manuscript, writing, account, entry, record, print, document, representation, or combination thereof which has been either damaged, rendered wholly or partially illegible, destroyed in whole or in part, or lost by explosion, conflagration, earthquake, disaster, or other public calamity may apply to a court by verified petition [see § 356.68] for an order establishing, reciting, or declaring the existence, substance, genuineness, or authenticity of such document or record [Code Civ. Proc. § 1953.10; see § 356.71 for order].

Notice [see § 356.70] of the filing of the petition and of the time and place of the hearing thereon must be given to such persons, if any, as the court may designate by an order [see § 356.69]. The order must specify how notice is to be given; it may be by publication, posting, personal service, or otherwise as the court directs [Code Civ. Proc. § 1953.11].

The petition may be decided in a special proceeding in the course of a case [see Daddario v. Snow Valley (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1325, 1330, 1339, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726] without violating a party's right to a jury trial [Daddario v. Snow Valley (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1325, 1339, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726 (special proceeding deciding petition under Code Civ. Proc. § 1953.10 was not trial)].

[2] Hearing and Order

At the hearing on the petition, proof must be submitted to the court that the statements in the petition are true. If the court is satisfied, it makes an order reciting the existence, substance, genuineness, or authenticity of the document [Code Civ. Proc. § 1953.12]. The order is to refer to the document and shall be deemed in lieu of the original [Code Civ. Proc. § 1953.13]. The issuance of such an order precludes the admission or crediting of assertions about the contents of the restored document that are contrary to the findings in the order [Daddario v. Snow Valley (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1325, 1330, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726 (declaration that plaintiff never signed release did not prevent summary judgment for defendant based on restored release)].

Given that an order restoring a private document is deemed in lieu of the original document, the order constitutes best evidence of the content of the document [Daddario v. Snow Valley (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1325, 1338, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726] .

§ 356.26 Action to Restore Private Written Document or Instrument

[1] By Complaint

An action may be maintained by any person interested in any private document or instrument in writing which has been lost or destroyed to prove or establish such document or instrument or to compel the issuance, execution, and acknowledgment of a duplicate thereof [Civ. Code § 3415(a); for complaint to compel execution of duplicate of lost or destroyed promissory note, see § 356.72].

[2] Security for Negotiable Instrument

If the document or instrument is a negotiable instrument, the court must compel the owner of the negotiable instrument to give an indemnity bond to the person reissuing, reexecuting, or reacknowledging the same, against loss, damage, expense, or other liability that may be suffered by the person by reason of the issuance of the duplicate instrument or by the original instrument still remaining outstanding [Civ. Code § 3415(b); for a form order compelling execution of duplicate of lost or destroyed promissory note, see § 356.73].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 356.27 Proving Content of Lost Writings With Other Evidence

Generally, when best evidence is not available [Daddario v. Snow Valley (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1325, 1330, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726 (order restoring lost private document constitutes best evidence precluding admission of secondary evidence)], the content of a writing may be proved by otherwise admissible secondary evidence [Evid. Code § 1521(a)]. These provisions give trial courts discretion to permit the use of copies to prove the content of a writing [Kahn v. Lasorda's Dugout, Inc. (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1118, 11231124, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 790] .

However, in permitting the introduction of otherwise admissible secondary evidence to prove the contents of a writing, the statute does not excuse compliance with the hearsay rule [Pajaro Valley Water Management Agency v. McGrath (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1108, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 741] .

The rule for the admission of secondary evidence of a lost paper requires that a bona fide and diligent search has been unsuccessfully made for it in the place where it was most likely to be found. The party is also expected to show that he or she has in good faith exhausted in a reasonable degree all the sources of information and means of discovery that [Dart Industries, Inc. v. Commercial Union Ins. Co. (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 1059, 1068, 52 P.3d 79 ; 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 142] :

- The nature of the case would naturally suggest; and
- Are accessible to that party.

A corollary of the rule that the contents of lost documents may be proved by secondary evidence is that the law does not require the contents of such documents be proved verbatim. The substance of a lost or destroyed document is all that is required [Dart Industries, Inc. v. Commercial Union Ins. Co. (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 1059, 1069, 52 P.3d 79 ; 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 142] .

By way of exception to the statutory rule, secondary evidence is not admissible to prove the content of a writing if either a genuine dispute exists concerning material terms of the writing and justice requires the exclusion, or admission of the secondary evidence would be unfair [Evid. Code § 1521(a)].

Under another exception, oral testimony is generally not admissible to prove the content of a writing [Evid. Code § 1523(a)]. However, oral testimony of the content of a writing is not inadmissible if the proponent does not have possession or control of a copy of the writing and the original is lost or has been destroyed without fraudulent intent on the part of the proponent of the evidence [Evid. Code § 1523(b)].

All Persons Claiming Any Interest in, or Lien Upon,	)	COMPLAINT UNDER DESTROYED LAND RE-
the Real Property Herein Described or Any Part	)	CORDS RELIEF LAW Thereof,	)
Defendants.	)

Plaintiff alleges:

1. On or about _____ [date], the public records of the Office of the County Recorder of _____ County, California, were _____ [lost or destroyed] in _____ [whole or material part] by _____ [describe how records were lost or destroyed, e.g., flood, fire, earthquake, enemy attack, or any other cause].

2. Among the public records so _____ [lost or destroyed] were all of the records and documents pertaining to real property described as follows: _____ [set forth particular description of the real property].

3. Plaintiff is _____ [specify estate, title, or interest of plaintiff in property, e.g., the owner in fee simple absolute of all the real property herein described, and is and was, _____ (at all times herein mentioned or and has been for _____ years), in actual and exclusive occupation and possession of the above-described real property].

4. In addition to the interest plaintiff claims herein, there are no other or subsisting interests, mortgages, deeds of trust, liens, encumbrances, or estates of any kind or nature of other persons in the above-described real property, or in any part thereof, which are known to plaintiff [, except _____ (specify any other actual or alleged interests of other persons in the real property known to plaintiff)].

5. Plaintiff brings this action in rem against all the world pursuant to the Destroyed Land Records Relief Law, Section 751.01-751.28 of the Code of Civil Procedure, to establish his title to the above-described real property and to determine all adverse claims thereto.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. That he/she be adjudged the owner of such property in fee simple absolute.

2. That his title to the above-described property be established and quieted.

3. That the court ascertain and determine all estates, rights, titles, interests, and claims in and to the above-described property and every part thereof, whether the same be legal or equitable, present or future, vested or contingent, or whether the same consist of mortgages or liens of any description.

4. For costs and disbursements.

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use in commencing an action under the Destroyed Land Records Relief Law [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 751.01-751.28] to establish title and determine all adverse claims to real property after the relevant public records in the office of the county recorder have been lost or destroyed. For further discussion on commencing action, see §§ 356.11, 356.12.

Plaintiff must also file a declaration setting forth certain specific facts [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.09; for plaintiff's declaration, see § 356.51].

[3] Allegations

The complaint must contain [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.04]:

- A statement of the facts enumerated in Code Civ. Proc. § 751.02 (Paragraph 1).
- A particular description of the real property (Paragraph 2).
- A specification of the estate, title, or interest of the plaintiff in the property (Paragraph 3).

[4] Verification

The complaint must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.04; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446, 2015.5].

[5] Jurisdiction and Venue

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action as an unlimited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 88, 580(b)(3), 751.02].

The action may be brought in the superior court for the county in which the real property is situated. It may also be brought in the county in which the real property is situated either if any real property is in another county but was formerly in the county of which all or a material part of the records were lost or destroyed or if the lost or destroyed records included all or a material part of the public records in the office of the county recorder covering all or a material part of the time when the real property was in the county whose records were so lost or destroyed [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.02].

I have never made any conveyance of the real property, or any part thereof, or any interest therein, to any person [, except _____ (specify any conveyances made by declarant and the dates when made)]. In addition to the interest claimed herein by me, there are no other or subsisting interests, mortgages, deeds of trust, liens, encumbrances, or estates of any kind or nature of other persons in the real property, or in any part thereof, known to me [, except _____ (specify any other actual or alleged interests of other persons in the real property known to the declarant)].

I do not know, and have not been informed, or any person who claims, or may claim, any interest in or lien on the property or any part thereof adversely to me [, except _____ (specify the names and addresses of any person claiming an adverse interest in the real property)].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [signature]

The plaintiff's declaration in [1], above, must be filed with a complaint in an action under the Destroyed Land Records Relief Law [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 751.01-751.28; for a complaint under the Destroyed Land Records Relief Law, see § 356.50].

[3] Contents of Declaration

The declaration must fully and explicitly set forth and show the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.09]:

- The character of plaintiff's estate, right, title, interest, or claim in, and possession of the property as well as the period it has existed and from whom it was obtained.

- Whether or not the plaintiff has ever made any conveyance of all or any part of the property, or any interest therein, and if so when and to whom as well as a statement of any and all subsisting mortgages, deeds of trust, and other liens thereon.

- That the plaintiff does not know and has never been informed of any other person who claims or who may claim any interest in or lien on all or any part of the property adversely to him or her, or if he or she does know or has been informed of any such person, including persons filing notices of ownership under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 751.23, 751.27, the name and address of each such person.

[4] Declaration in Lieu of Affidavit

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 751.09 refers to the statement which must accompany the complaint as an affidavit, Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 permits the substitution of a declaration under penalty of perjury. Since this is the form of statement most commonly used, the form in [1], above, is presented as a declaration rather than an affidavit.

[5] Where No Ability to State Facts

If the plaintiff is unable to state any of the matters required by Code Civ. Proc. § 751.09, he or she must set forth and show fully and explicitly the reasons for such inability [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.09].

[6] Part of Judgment Roll

The plaintiff's declaration constitutes a part of the judgment roll [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.09].

[7] Who Makes Declaration

If the plaintiff is a corporation, the declaration is made by an officer of the corporation, and if the plaintiff is a person under guardianship or conservatorship, the declaration is made by his guardian or conservator [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.09]. An executor, administrator, guardian, conservator, or other person holding the possession of property in the right of another may make, sign, verify, and file for record the declaration on behalf of the estate or interest which he or she represents [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.28].

[8] Service With Complaint and Summons

If the declaration discloses the name of any person claiming any interest in or lien on the property adverse to the plaintiff, a copy of the declaration, along with a copy of the summons and the complaint must be served on such person if he or she can be found in the manner provided by law for the service of a summons in a civil action [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 415.10, 415.20], other than by publication. Service must be made during the period of the publication of the summons as provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 751.06 [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.10].

If the person cannot, with reasonable diligence, be served personally within the period of publication of the summons, then upon the expiration of the period of publication, a copy of the summons, memorandum, complaint, and declaration must be mailed, postage prepaid, addressed to him or her as follows [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.10]:

- At the address given in the declaration;
- If no such address is given, at his last address known to the plaintiff; or
- If no such address is available, at the county seat of the county in which the action is brought.

MEMORANDUM

The first publication of this summons was made in _____ [name of publication] newspaper on _____ [date].

The following persons are said to claim an interest in, or lien on, the property adverse to plaintiff:

Names	Ad-dresses
_____	_____

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use as a summons to be issued under the seal of the superior court after the filing of a complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 751.02, 751.04, 751.05] in proceedings to establish title and determine adverse claims under the Destroyed Land Records Relief Law [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 751.01-751.28].

[3] Contents of Form

[a] Summons

The summons must contain the name of the court and county in which the action is brought, the name of the plaintiff, and a particular description of the real property involved [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.05].

The description of the defendants as set forth in the form's caption is a statutory requirement [see Code Civ. Proc. § 751.05].

The memorandum at the end of the summons meets the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 751.06. That section requires the summons to be published in a newspaper of general circulation in the county in which the action is brought; it also requires that the publication be made pursuant to Gov. Code § 6065, which provides for publication of a summons once a week for eight successive weeks [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.06]. If the declaration of the plaintiff [see § 356.51[1]] required by Code Civ. Proc. § 751.09 discloses the name of any person claiming an interest in or a lien on the property, that fact and the name and address of such person must also be stated in the memorandum appended to the summons [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 751.07, 751.27]. This person must then be served with a copy of the summons and attached memorandum, the complaint [for the form of complaint, see § 356.50], and the plaintiff's declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.10; for the form of declaration, see § 356.51].

[4] Posting on Property

A copy of the summons and attached memorandum must also be posted in a conspicuous place on each separate parcel of property described in the complaint within 15 days after the first publication of the summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.08].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use as a notice of the pendency of an action, commonly referred to as a notice of lis pendens, which is required to be filed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 751.13. At the time of filing the complaint, the plaintiff must record a notice of lis pendens in the office of the recorder of the county in which the property is situated. The form must contain the object of the action or defense and a particular description of the property affected by the action or defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.13]. For a form of complaint under the Destroyed Land Records Relief Law, see § 356.50.

[3] Acknowledgment

The form contains the standard form of acknowledgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1189], which would appear to be required on such notices by Gov. Code § 27287. However, in practice most county recorders do not appear to require such notices to be acknowledged; thus, the county recorder should be consulted for local requirements when the notice is being prepared.

[4] Recording

The notice is recorded in the same manner as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 405.20 (notice of action concerning or affecting real property) [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.13].

The above-entitled matter came on regularly for trial on _____ [date], before the above-entitled court without a jury [, a jury having been waived by the parties to the action]. Plaintiff, _____ [name], appeared [personally and] by and through his attorney, _____ [name of attorney]; _____ [there were no appearances by any defendants in the matter or defendant, _____ (name), appeared (personally and) by and through his attorney _____ (name of attorney)]. The matter having been heard, evidence both oral and documentary having been introduced, the court being fully advised in the matter, the matter having been submitted to the court for decision, and, after careful deliberation thereon, the court now renders its decision in writing and makes the following Statement of Decision:

STATEMENT OF DECISION

1. Plaintiff, pursuant to statute, duly filed his verified complaint and _____ [affidavit or declaration] with the court, and at the same time, filed a notice of the pendency of this action in the office of the County Recorder of _____ County, California, where the notice was recorded by the recorder, pursuant to statute, in a book devoted exclusively to the recordation of such notices [if the property is still situated in the same county in which the records were destroyed, add: and entered upon a map or plat of the parcels of land kept by him/her for that purpose, on that part of the map or plat representing the parcel described in the notice, areference to the date of the filing of the notice, and to the book and page of the record thereof].

2. Pursuant to order of this court dated _____, a copy of the summons in this matter together with an attached memorandum as prescribed by statute was published commencing on _____ [date], in _____ [name], a newspaper of general circulation as designated by order of this court, at least once a week for eight successive weeks as required by statute, and was posted in a conspicuous place on the real property described in the complaint on _____ [date], within 15 days after the first publication of the summons as prescribed by statute.

3. Plaintiff has used due diligence to discover the names and addresses of any other person who claims or who may claim any interest in or lien on any part of the real property described in the complaint, and _____ [has been unable to locate and has not been informed of any such person or has properly served all such persons as listed in plaintiff's _____ (affidavit or declaration) with a copy of the summons, complaint, and _____ (affidavit or declaration), as prescribed by statute].

4. On or about _____ [date], the public records of the office of the County Recorder of _____ County, California, were _____ [lost or destroyed] by _____ [describe how records where lost or destroyed, e.g., flood, fire, earthquake, enemy attack, or any other cause], and among the public records so _____ [lost or destroyed] were all the records and documents pertaining to the real property described in the complaint.

5. Plaintiff is _____ [specify estate, title, or interest of plaintiff in property, e.g., the owner in fee simple absolute of all the real property described in the complaint, and is and was, _____ (at all times mentioned herein or and has been for _____ years), in actual and peaceable occupation and possession of the real property].

6. There are no other or subsisting interests, mortgages, deeds of trust, liens, encumbrances, or estates of any kind or nature of persons other than plaintiff in the real property described in the complaint, or any part thereof [, except _____ (specify all interests of persons other than plaintiff in real property, stating their names and addresses)].

Let judgment be entered accordingly.

Judge of the Superior Court

This statement of decision is not required in actions under the Destroyed Land Records Relief Law [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.01 et seq.]. It may, however, be used pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 632. On the request of any party appearing at the trial, made within 10 days after the court announces a tentative decision [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(d)], or if the trial has lasted less than one calendar day, or less than eight hours over more than one day, made prior to submission of the matter for decision [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(n)], the court shall issue a statement of decision explaining the factual and legal basis for its decision as to each of the principal controverted issues at trial. The request for a statement of decision must specify those controverted issues as to which the party is requesting a statement of decision. After a party has requested such a statement, any party may make proposals as to the content of the statement of decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 632].

[2] Use of Form

The judgment in [1], above, is for use in proceedings under the Destroyed Land Records Relief Law [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 751.01-751.28]. It is patterned after the statement of decision as set forth in the form in § 356.57. Judgment in such an action cannot be obtained by default; the court must require proof of the facts alleged in the complaint and other pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.14]. The judgment must determine all estates, rights, titles, interests, and claims in and to the property and every part thereof, whether legal or equitable, present or future, vested or contingent, or whether they consist of mortgages or liens of any decription. It is conclusive on every person who at the commencement of the action had or claimed any estate, right, title, or interest in or to all or any part of such property as well as on every person claiming under him or her by title subsequent to the commencement of the action [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 751.15, 751.27].

[3] Recordation

A certified copy of the judgment must be recorded in the office of the recorder of the county in which the action was commenced. Any party or the successor in interest of any party to the action may file the entire judgment roll for record in the office of the county recorder [Code Civ. Proc. § 751.16].

[2] Use of Form

The order in [1], above, is for use in establishing the existence of a private document or record. Before the order can be issued, a hearing must be held where proof must be submitted to the court that notice [for a form, see § 356.70] has been given as prescribed by court order [Code Civ. Proc. § 1953.11; see § 356.69[1]]. The court receives such evidence as may be required, and if it is satisfied that the statements contained in the petition [for a form, see § 356.68] are true, its order recites the existence, substance, genuineness, or authenticity of the destroyed or lost document or papers [Code Civ. Proc. § 1953.12]. The order must refer to the memorandum, book, map, chart, manuscript, writing, account, entry, record, print, document, representation, or combination thereof which is the subject of the petition. The order is deemed in lieu of the original document or paper and has the same effect as if the original had not been damaged, destroyed, or otherwise rendered wholly or partially illegible [Code Civ. Proc. § 1953.13].

	)	WRITTEN INSTRUMENT OR DOCUMENT

Plaintiff states and alleges:

1. At all times herein mentioned plaintiff was and is a resident of _____ [city], _____ County, California, and defendant was and is a resident of [city], _____ County, California.

[2. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued herein as DOES I-_____, inclusive, and therefore sues these defendants by such fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained.]

3. On _____ [date], for value received, defendant made, executed, and delivered to plaintiff a promissory note in the amount of $_____, payable to plaintiff as follows: _____ [specify terms and conditions of instrument].

4. _____ [On or about _____ (date) or On a date unknown to plaintiff but subsequent to the delivery of the promissory note to plaintiff by defendant], the [original] promissory note was _____ [describe what happened to instrument, e.g., lost or destroyed as a result of _____ (state cause)] and no longer is in existence. [A copy of such promissory note is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.]

5. The balance due and owing on the promissory note at the time of its _____ [loss or destruction] was $_____.

6. On _____ [date], plaintiff requested and demanded that defendant execute and deliver a new promissory note to plaintiff to replace the _____ [lost or destroyed] note, but defendant failed and refused, and continues to fail and refuse to execute and deliver such new promissory note.

7. Plaintiff stands ready to give an indemnity bond to defendant pursuant to Section 3415 of the Civil Code with sureties approved by the court at the court's direction to indemnify defendant against loss, damage, expense, or other liability which may be suffered by him/her by reason of the issuance of the duplicate promissory note.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For an order compelling defendant to make, execute, and deliver a new promissory note to plaintiff pursuant to the terms as stated _____ [in Exhibit A attached to this complaint or herein] as a replacement for the _____ [lost or destroyed] original note after plaintiff gives adequate security or an indemnity bond as directed by the court.

2. For costs and disbursements.

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use in compelling the issuance, execution, and acknowledgment of a duplicate of a promissory note that has been lost or destroyed. Any person interested may bring the action [Civ. Code § 3415]. The form alleges the loss or destruction of the note, its contents or terms and the current amount due; it also contains an offer to post an indemnity bond. The court must order such security or bond to indemnify the defendant against any loss, damage, expense, or other liability which may be suffered by reason of the issuance of a duplicate instrument or by the original instrument still remaining outstanding [Civ. Code § 3415]. For discussion on actions to restore private written documents or instruments, see § 356.26.

court, the Honorable _____ [name of judge], Judge, presiding. The plaintiff appeared [personally and] by and through his attorney, _____ [name of attorney], and the defendant appeared [personally and] by and through his attorney, _____ [name of attorney]. Evidence, both oral and documentary, having been presented by the parties hereto, the court being fully advised in the matter, the matter having been submitted to the court, and the court being satisfied that the promissory note, which is the subject of plaintiff's complaint, has been _____ [lost or destroyed] as stated in the complaint, now therefore,

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED, AND DECREED that defendant make, execute, and deliver to plaintiff a new promissory note in the amount of $_____ containing the following terms and conditions: _____ [specify terms and conditions of instrument], which duplicate promissory note shall replace the original note.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, ADJUDGED, AND DECREED that defendant's making, executing, and delivering to plaintiff of the duplicate promissory note be conditioned upon plaintiff giving an indemnity bond in the amount of $_____ [containing the following provisions: _____ (state any special terms, conditions, or provisions to be contained in the bond such as duration or when the bond may be released)], which will exist toindemnify defendant against loss, damage, expense, or other liability that may be suffered by reason of the issuance of the duplicate promissory note or by the original instrument still remaining outstanding.

[2] Use of Form

The order in [1], above, is for use in ordering defendant to execute a duplicate of a promissory note that was either lost or destroyed. The order may be conditioned on the plaintiff's giving an indemnity bond [Civ. Code § 3415(b)]. It appears that the bond no longer has to be approved by the court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.410(a)]. Such security or bond is required by Civ. Code § 3415 when the document to be restored is a negotiable instrument, and the purpose of the security or bond is to indemnify the defendant against loss, damage, expense, or other liability which may be suffered by him or her by reason of the issuance of the duplicate instrument or by the original instrument still remaining outstanding [Civ. Code § 3415]. For a form of complaint to compel execution of duplicate of lost promissory note, see § 356.72.

This chapter discusses the tort of malicious prosecution and contains the following forms:

- Complaints and allegations for use when the original proceeding was a criminal action [see §§ 357.190-357.192].
- Complaints for use when the original proceeding was a civil action [see §§ 357.193-357.194].
- Affirmative defenses [see §§ 357.195-357.202.5].
- Demurrers [see §§ 357.204-357.206].

For discussion and forms for use in actions involving torts which often arise from the same factual situations as actions for malicious prosecution, see Ch. 58, Assault and Battery , Ch. 257, False Imprisonment , Ch. 340, Libel and Slander , and Ch. 362, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress .

This chapter also discusses the tort of abuse of process and contains forms of complaints for abuse of process [see §§ 357.220, 357.221], forms of demurrers to complaints for abuse of process [see §§ 357.222-357.224], and forms of affirmative defenses to such complaints [see §§ 357.225, 357.226].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Malicious Prosecution

31-357 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 357.10

§ 357.10 Proceedings on Which Action May Be Based

Actions for malicious prosecution may be predicated on either a malicious criminal prosecution or a malicious civil action [Webb v. Youmans (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 851, 854, 57 Cal. Rptr. 11 (civil)].

Actions may also be based on ancillary process or an ancillary proceeding such as a writ of execution [see McPheeters v. Bateman (1936) 11 Cal. App. 2d 106, 108, 53 P.2d 195], an attachment levied in an action prosecuted maliciously and without probable cause [see White Lighting Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 336, 348-349, 66 Cal. Rptr. 697, 438 P.2d 345 (dictum)], an order for civil arrest [Siffert v. McDowell (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 373, 378, 229 P.2d 388], an injunction [see Asevado v. Orr (1893) 100 Cal. 293, 297-298, 34 P. 777], or an order appointing a receiver [see Jones v. Richardson (1935) 9 Cal. App. 2d 657, 660, 50 P.2d 810].

Malicious prosecution actions may also be based on insanity proceedings [Brock v. Southern Pac. Co. (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 182, 185, 195 P.2d 66].

The offering of a forged will for probate may support an action for malicious prosecution [Steiner v. Eikerling (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 639, 645, 226 Cal. Rptr. 694].

One court has stated that proceedings ancillary to a marital dissolution action, such as an order to show cause re modification of support or contempt, will support a malicious prosecution action [see Chauncey v. Niems (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 967, 975-976, 227 Cal. Rptr. 718]. However, subsequent cases have characterized that statement as dicta and have declined to follow it, holding that such contempt proceedings cannot be the basis of a malicious prosecution action [Bidna v. Rosen (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 27, 37-38, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 251 ; Green v. Uccelli (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1112, 1120-1123, 255 Cal. Rptr. 315 ; Lossing v. Superior Court (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 635, 637-638, 255 Cal. Rptr. 18 ; see § 357.72[18]].

Administrative proceedings may be the basis for a malicious prosecution action [Hardy v. Vial (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 577, 581, 311 P.2d 494].

However, malicious prosecution actions cannot be based on proceedings that are not instituted against another. For example, proceedings that deal instead with broader issues of public interest, such as a comparative hearing concerning the issuing of an FCC license, are not proceedings against another for purposes of a malicious prosecution action [Stolz v. Wong Communications Limited Partnership (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1811, 1820-1821, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 229].

Several court opinions have held that a malicious prosecution action can be based on a denial of privileges that triggers a right to appeal, even though the appeal proceeding is actually triggered by the malicious prosecution plaintiff [Axline v. Saint John's Hosp. & Health Ctr. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 907, 916-917, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 385 ; Nicholson v. Lucas (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1657, 1666, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 778 (letter denying staff privileges to physician that triggered right to seek appeal with hospital was sufficient to support malicious prosecution action by physician; both cases)].

For a listing of additional cases in which malicious prosecution actions have been allowed, see the Research Guide, § 357.70 et seq.

Volume 31: Lis Pendens thru Mandate and Prohibition-Chs. 348-358
Chapter 357 MALICIOUS PROSECUTION AND ABUSE OF PROCESS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Malicious Prosecution

31-357 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 357.11

§ 357.11 Proceedings on Which Action May Not Be Based

[1] Small Claims

An action for malicious prosecution cannot be based on the institution of a small claims proceeding, because otherwise a prudent claimant would be forced to consult with an attorney before using a statutory process intended as an attorney-free method of settling disputes over small amounts [Black v. Hepner (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 656, 658-659, 202 Cal. Rptr. 799 ; Pace v. Hillcrest Motor Co. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 476, 479, 161 Cal. Rptr. 662]. Nor can the action be based on a successful appeal in superior court from the small claims judgment [Cooper v. Pirelli Cable Corp. (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 294, 298-300, 206 Cal. Rptr. 581].

[2] Binding Arbitration

The California Supreme Court has held that a proceeding terminated through contractual arbitration, unlike judicial arbitration [see § 357.14[4]], cannot be the basis for a subsequent malicious prosecution action, regardless of whether the underlying action originated in court or in arbitration [Brennan v. Tremco Inc. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 310, 314, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 790, 20 P.3d 1086]. The Court based its decision on the trend against creating or expanding derivative tort remedies, together with the recognition that parties who voluntarily choose arbitration generally expect and desire that the arbitration will end the dispute [Brennan v. Tremco Inc. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 310, 315, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 790, 20 P.3d 1086].

In addition, the Court noted that binding contractual arbitration is fundamentally different from judicial arbitration in important ways. A dissatisfied party to private contractual arbitration does not have a right to request a trial de novo or judicial review of the arbitrator's decision. Moreover, an arbitrator in most instances of contractual arbitration does not even need to provide an explanation of the basis for the decision. The lack of a written rationale for the decision would frustrate any determination of whether or why the action was terminated in favor of a particular party, which is an indispensable inquiry in prosecuting a malicious prosecution action [Brennan v. Tremco Inc. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 310, 316, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 790, 20 P.3d 1086 ; see also Sagonowsky v. More (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 122, 131-134, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 118 ; see generally § 357.14].

The holding in Brennan v. Tremco Inc. prohibits a malicious prosecution action against both the actual party who brought the underlying action and that party's attorney [Brennan v. Tremco Inc. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 310, 317, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 790, 20 P.3d 1086 (disapproving Rogers v. Peinado (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 1, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 817 , which would have allowed malicious prosecution action against attorney who was not actually party to arbitration agreement)]. However, the Supreme Court's opinion does not entirely foreclose the possibility of a malicious prosecution action if the arbitration agreement explicitly states that such an action may be brought [see Brennan v. Tremco Inc. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 310, 318, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 790, 20 P.3d 1086 ; see also Sagonowsky v. More (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 122, 134, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 118].

[3] Motions and Writs During Course of Litigation

Motions and writs that are filed during the course of existing litigation that are not separate proceedings may not by themselves be the basis for a malicious prosecution action [Merlet v. Rizzo (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 53, 60, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 83 ; Silver v. Gold (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 17, 24, 259 Cal. Rptr. 185].

[4] Appellate Proceedings

Thus, a malicious prosecution action cannot be based on an allegedly frivolous appeal, because an appeal cannot be considered a separate action seeking affirmative relief [Coleman v. Gulf Ins. Group (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 782, 793-794, 226 Cal. Rptr. 90, 718 P.2d 77]. Similarly, an unsuccessful motion to disqualify opposing counsel will not support a suit for malicious prosecution [Silver v. Gold (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 17, 23-24, 259 Cal. Rptr. 185]. The filing of a writ of sale as an attempt to enforce an existing judgment cannot be the basis for a malicious prosecution action, nor can the filing of a motion for reconsideration [Merlet v. Rizzo (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 53, 60-64, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 83].

[5] Administrative Proceedings Not Resulting in Formal Action

Additionally, an investigation by an official body or administrative board that has the power to take action adversely affecting the legally protected interests of the person being investigated cannot be the basis of a malicious prosecution action if the investigation does not lead to the initiation of formal proceedings against the investigated person [Lebbos v. State Bar (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 656, 670, 211 Cal. Rptr. 847 ; Brody v. Montalbano (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 725, 736, 151 Cal. Rptr. 206]. If, however, the invasion of the investigated person's legally protected interest occurs without a formal hearing, and it is the investigated person who mustinitiate the formal proceeding to secure reinstatement of a position or a license, then a malicious prosecution action may lie [Imig v. Ferrar (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 48, 60, 138 Cal. Rptr. 540 (plaintiff allowed to amend complaint to state cause of action for malicious prosecution)].

[6] Family Law Motions

No malicious prosecution action may arise out of unsuccessful family law motions or orders to show cause [Bidna v. Rosen (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 27, 37, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 251 (rejecting language in Chauncey v. Niems (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 967, 975-976, 227 Cal. Rptr. 718 , stating that order to show cause could have sufficiently independent existence to justify malicious prosecution, as unpersuasive dicta)]. A litigant in a proceeding under the Family Code who has been subjected to meritless motions and/or orders to show cause is limited to remedies under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 and Fam. Code § 271, despite the arguable "inadequacy" of those remedies [Bidna v. Rosen (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 27, 36-37, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 251].

However, this does not preclude a malicious prosecution action based on otherwise ordinary civil actions or cross-actions that just happen to originate in the course of family law proceedings, at least if family law issues such as marital status, child custody, or spousal support are not implicated [Nicholson v. Fazeli (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1091, 1098-1099, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 881]. In one case, for example, a malicious prosecution action based on a cross-complaint brought by a trust seeking the return of trust property, or damages for the property's loss, was not barred merely because the cross-complaint originated during a marital dissolution action [Nicholson v. Fazeli (2003)

[7] Injunction Against Harassment

For many of the same reasons that a family law motion will not generally support a malicious prosecution action, an unsuccessful petition for an injunction prohibiting harassment under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6 is not a proper basis for a subsequent malicious prosecution action [Siam v. Kizilbash (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1563, 1572-1574, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 368]. Harassment actions often stem from bitter and even irrational disputes, and this background of bitterness often makes it difficult to distinguish between a malicious petition and one that is not malicious. Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6 also provides for attorney's fees as a sanction for filing a frivolous petition. Moreover, proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6 were designed to be processed simply and expeditiously, with little or no involvement by attorneys, a goal that would be frustrated if consultation with an attorney were necessary to protect against a subsequent lawsuit [Siam v. Kizilbash (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1563, 1572-1573, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 368].

Subsequently, the court of appeal also held that filing an action for an injunction under the Workplace Violence Safety Act, Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8, will not support a subsequent malicious prosecution action if the request for an injunction is denied. The court concluded that because the provisions and goals of Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8 are substantially similar to those of Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6, the justification for not allowing a subsequent malicious prosecution action following an unsuccessful petition under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.6 applied with equal force to an unsuccessful petition under Code Civ. Proc. § 527.8 [Robinzine v. Vicory (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1416, 1422-1424, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 65] .

[8] Contempt Proceeding Ancillary to Ongoing Action

It has generally been held that a malicious prosecution action cannot be based on the institution of a contempt proceeding that is ancillary to an ongoing action [Lossing v. Superior Court (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 635, 638-639, 255 Cal. Rptr. 18 (contempt proceedings to sanction discovery abuse); Green v. Uccelli (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1112, 1121-1122, 255 Cal. Rptr. 315 (contempt proceedings for disobedience of court order in family law proceeding)]. The malicious prosecution action is not permitted even if an order to show cause re contempt was taken off calendar or discharged by the court after hearing [Green v. Uccelli (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1112, 1122, 255 Cal. Rptr. 315]. These courts have reasoned that to permit the action would have a chilling effect on access to the courts to enforce orders, and on the vigorous legal representation to which a client is entitled. Moreover, a variety of statutory remedies exists that can be applied within the ongoing action to prevent or remedy abuse of the contempt sanction [Lossing v. Superior Court (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 635, 639-639, 255 Cal. Rptr. 18 ; Green v. Uccelli (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1112, 1122-1124, 255 Cal. Rptr. 315].

[9] Motions in Related Proceedings

A malicious prosecution action cannot be based on the making of a motion, by a party to an ongoing action, in litigation to which the movant is not a party, when making the motion is legitimately related to the ongoing action. One rationale for this prohibition is that to permit the cause of action would disrupt the ongoing action by injecting tort claims against the parties' lawyers. The other rationale is that the court with jurisdiction over the litigation in which the motion is made has inherently broad powers to control the proceedings before it [Adams v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 521, 528, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 49 (motion by counsel for adverse party in ongoing civil action for reconsideration of orders issued during plaintiff's criminal trial to reduce or expunge the plaintiff's prior felony convictions)].

Malicious prosecution is a cause of action not favored by the law [Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal. 3d 863, 872-873, 254 Cal. Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498 (civil); Babb v. Superior Court (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 841, 847, 92 Cal. Rptr. 179, 479 P.2d 379 (civil)]. This means, at least in the context of criminal actions, the public policy is in favor of the apprehension and punishment of criminals; that policy, therefore, limits the person complaining of criminal charges by placing on him or her the burden of proving the basic elements of the tort of malicious prosecution [Grove v. Purity Stores, Ltd. (1957) 153 Cal. App. 2d 234, 242, 314 P.2d 543 (criminal)]. But, since public policy does not limit the right to seek redress for the malicious abuse of judicial process, the phrase stating that these actions are not favored should not be employed to defeat a legitimate cause of action [Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 43, 53, 118 Cal. Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608 (civil)].

§ 357.13 Elements of Tort

To establish a cause of action for malicious prosecution, a plaintiff must plead and prove all of the following:

- The prior action was commenced by or at the direction of the defendant and was pursued to a legal termination in the plaintiff's favor.

- The prior action was brought without probable cause.

- The prior action was initiated with malice [Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal. 3d 863, 871, 254 Cal. Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498 (civil); Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 43, 50, 118 Cal. Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608 (civil); Jaffe v. Stone (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 146, 149, 114 P.2d 335 (criminal); Robbins v. Blecher (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 886, 892-893, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 815].

- The plaintiff suffered an injury or damage as a result [Maxon v. Security Ins. Co. (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 603, 613, 29 Cal. Rptr. 586 (criminal)].

The plaintiff has the burden of proving the basic elements of the tort. However, these same elements, viewed from the defendant's perspective, furnish full defenses [Jaffe v. Stone (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 146, 159, 114 P.2d 335 (criminal)].

§ 357.14 Favorable Termination

[1] On or Reflecting Merits

The plaintiff in a malicious prosecution action must plead and prove that the prior judicial proceeding of which he or she complains terminated in his or her favor [Babb v. Superior Court (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 841, 845, 92 Cal. Rptr. 179, 479 P.2d 379 (civil)]. A favorable termination is one that tends to indicate the innocence of the accused, and although the termination need not be one that follows a trial on the merits, it must reflect the merits of the underlying action [De La Pena v. Wolfe (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 481, 484, 223 Cal. Rptr. 325]. For example, termination by bar of the statute of limitations does not reflect on the merits of the action, and thus does not constitute favorable termination for purposes of a malicious prosecution action [Lackner v. LaCroix (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 747, 752, 159 Cal. Rptr. 693, 602 P.2d 393]. However, an action is favorably terminated if a trial court grants summary judgment to the defendant based on the statute of limitations, but a reviewing court then affirms the judgment on thegrounds the action lacks intrinsic merit as a matter of law [Ray v. First Fed. Bank (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 315, 317, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436 (court of appeal decision affirming summary judgment reflected on merits and on malicious prosecution plaintiff's innocence)].

Application of the parol evidence rule to exclude evidence of terms that vary, alter, or add to an integrated written agreement, leading to a judgment in favor of the party asserting the integrated written agreement, is not procedural in nature, but instead is a judgment on the merits. As such, it constitutes a favorable termination for purposes of a subsequent malicious prosecution action [Casa Herrera, Inc. v. Beydoun (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 336, 343-345, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 97, 83 P.3d 497]. However, dismissal of an action for failure to comply with discovery orders does not constitute a favorable termination if there is a doubt as to the liability or innocence of the prevailing party in the action that was dismissed [Pattiz v. Minye (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 822, 884, 827, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 802]. However, dismissal following a terminating sanction granted for abuse of the discovery process may support a finding that the favorable termination element has been satisfied, if the record from the underlying action shows that the underlying plaintiff made no attempt during discovery to substantiate the allegations in the complaint and the court's dismissal of that action was justified by the plaintiff's lack of evidence [Daniels v. Robbins (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 204, 219, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 683 ; see also Ross v. Kish (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 188, 200, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 484 (plaintiff's refusal to attend own deposition was concession that action lacked merit)]. In malicious prosecution actions against the underlying plaintiff's attorney, the fact that the discovery abuses were the fault of the client rather than the attorney does not matter for purposes of establishing the favorable termination element [Daniels v. Robbins (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 204, 220-222, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 683].

Dismissal due to lack of standing, which is a jurisdictional defect, does not constitute a favorable termination reflecting on the merits of the action [Hudis v. Crawford (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1586, 1592, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 50].

However, the favorable termination of the allegedly malicious proceeding need not be a final determination of the controversy. It is sufficient to show that the former proceeding was legally terminated. The fact that the termination would not be a bar to another civil suit or criminal prosecution founded on the same action is no defense to the action for malicious prosecution [Jaffe v. Stone (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 146, 157, 114 P.2d 335 (criminal); MacDonald v. Joslyn (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 282, 289 (civil)].

A malicious prosecution plaintiff cannot meet the favorable termination requirement merely by demonstrating that the termination was more favorable to that party than the terms of a settlement offer made by that party earlier in the underlying action [StaffPro, Inc. v. Elite Show Servs., Inc. (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 1392, 1400-1401, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 682] .

[2] Action Still Pending

If the action is still pending, then there has not been a favorable termination [Rich v. Siegel (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 465, 469, 86 Cal. Rptr. 665 (civil)]. An action is still pending, and there is no favorable termination, if an appeal is pending [Friedman v. Stadum (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 775, 779, 217 Cal. Rptr. 585 (civil); see Feld v. Western Land & Dev. Co. (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 1328, 1334, 1335, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 23 (civil); see also § 357.72[11][b]].

If the plaintiff in an underlying action deletes a cause of action in an amended complaint, but the defendant remains in the case with respect to other causes of action, the defendant may not complain for malicious prosecution with respect to the deleted cause until the entire action has reached a favorable termination [Jenkins v. Pope (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1292, 1298-1301, 266 Cal. Rptr. 557].

In a proceeding in administrative mandate that results in an order remanding the matter for reconsideration of the decision with respect to the correctness of the standard used to assess the evidence, the petitioneressentially prevails on its procedural challenge, even though its petition was ultimately denied, precluding an action by the real parties in interest for malicious prosecution [Sierra Club v. Superior Court (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 1138, 1144-1147, 214 Cal. Rptr. 740].

[3] Voluntary Dismissal

A voluntary dismissal of a civil action by the plaintiff, even though expressly made "without prejudice," may be a favorable termination that will support an action for malicious prosecution [Robbins v. Blecher (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 886, 893, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 815 ; MacDonald v. Joslyn (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 282, 289, 79 Cal. Rptr. 707 (civil)]. It is not enough merely to show that the proceeding was dismissed. The reasons for the dismissal must be examined to determine whether the termination reflected on the merits. Voluntary dismissal on technical grounds, such as lack of jurisdiction, laches, the statute of limitations or prematurity does not constitute a favorable termination because it does not reflect on the substantive merits of the underlying claim [Robbins v. Blecher (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 886, 893-894, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 815 (voluntary dismissal with prejudice based on mootness was not favorable termination); see Chauncey v. Niems (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 967, 976-977, 227 Cal. Rptr. 718 (allegation of voluntary termination by the plaintiff, even with prejudice, may be insufficient to withstand a demurrer; court, in its discretion, is entitled to require a clear allegation of favorable termination rather than a questionable inference)].

Similarly stated, the dismissal of the previous proceeding is not considered to constitute a favorable termination if it was on technical grounds, for procedural reasons, or for any other reason not inconsistent with the person's guilt [Jaffe v. Stone (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 146, 157, 114 P.2d 335 (criminal); see Drummond v. Desmarais (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 439, 450, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 183 (dismissal of fee petition for failure to bring petition as compulsory cross-complaint in different action brought by clients was technical disposition not reflecting on merits)]. For example, an action for malicious prosecution cannot be maintained when the termination of the prior criminal prosecution or civil action has been brought about either by the procurement of defendant therein or by compromise and settlement [Paskle v. Williams (1931) 214 Cal. 482, 484, 6 P.2d 505 (civil)]. Voluntary dismissal in order to save the cost of further litigation, rather than because the plaintiff lost faith in the merits of the claim, does not constitute a favorable termination for the defendant [Contemporary Services Corp. v. Staff Pro Inc. (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 1043, 1056-1057, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434] .

Voluntary dismissal of an underlying action, when based on mootness caused by reversal on appeal of a previous judgment that was a predicate for the underlying action, does not constitute a favorable termination on the merits [Robbins v. Blecher (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 886, 894, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 815]. Consistent with this general rule, if a malicious prosecution action is stayed on the grounds that an appeal from the underlying judgment is pending, and the underlying appeal is then resolved adversely to the malicious prosecution plaintiff, a voluntary dismissal of the malicious prosecution action by that plaintiff in response to losing the underlying appeal is considered a technical disposition and not a termination on the merits for purposes of any subsequent malicious prosecution action that might be brought by the defendant in the first malicious prosecution action [Drummond v. Desmarais (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 439, 459, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 183].

A dismissal after a settlement generally does not constitute a favorable termination. In such a case, the dismissal reflects ambiguously on the merits of the action as it results from the joint action of the parties, thus leaving open the question of the guilt or innocence of the defendant in the underlying action [Haight v. Handweiler (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 85, 88, 244 Cal. Rptr. 488 ; see Cantu v. Resolution Trust Corp. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 857, 881-882, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151 (dismissal of interpleader action in which malicious-prosecution plaintiff was named as one of claimants, after settlement in which all claimants except malicious-prosecution plaintiff participated)].

If the underlying case is terminated through negotiations and compromise by the parties, it does not matter that a procedure other than voluntary dismissal is used to resolve the lawsuit. Thus, a plaintiff is not allowed to maintain a malicious prosecution action if a compromise reached in the underlying action resulted in a stipulated judgment [Dalany v. American Pac. Holding Corp. (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 822, 828, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 13]. This is the result even if prior to the negotiated settlement the jury had returned a verdict in favor of the party who subsequently seeks to prosecute the malicious prosecution action [Ferreira v. Gray, Cary, Ware & Freidenrich (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 409, 413, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 683].

However, if the malicious prosecution plaintiff received a favorable judgment on the merits at trial in the underlying action, but the parties subsequently settled the action and dismissed all appeals without the malicious prosecution plaintiff giving up any portion of the favorable trial court judgment, the postjudgment settlement constitutes a favorable termination of the underlying action for the malicious prosecution plaintiff [Siebel v. Mittlesteadt (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 735, 743, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 155, 161 P.3d 527] . In addition, a party who prevails on the merits at trial does not forgo favorable termination status merely by stipulating to accept a reduction to that party's requested costs [HMS Capital, Inc. v. Lawyers Title Co. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 204, 214-216, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 786].

[4] Judicial Arbitration Award

A judicial arbitration award denying the plaintiff's claim may or may not be a favorable termination, depending on the reasons why the litigation resulted as it did. For example, a showing that the arbitration award merely reflects the plaintiff's inability to prove damages without reflecting a finding that the defendant was not guilty of misconduct, or a showing that plaintiff failed to seek a trial de novo because he or she discovered that the defendant was a judgment-proof shell corporation and not because plaintiff believed that the suit was meritless, might be sufficient to show that the arbitration award and judgment following it do not constitute a favorable termination [Stanley v. Superior Court (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 460, 465-466, 181 Cal. Rptr. 878].

[5] Multiple Theories and Multiple Causes of Action

There is a split among court of appeal opinions as to whether the favorable termination element may be met if the underlying proceeding involved multiple, severable causes of action, only some of which were terminated in favor of the malicious prosecution plaintiff. Some opinions have held that the element may be met if favorable termination can be shown on at least one severable cause of action [Tabaz v. Cal Fed Fin. (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 789, 794, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 134 ; Paramount Gen. Hosp. Co. v. Jay (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 360, 363, 372, 261 Cal. Rptr. 723] . Other opinions have held that severability only comes into play when analyzing the lack of probable cause element of the malicious prosecution cause of action [see § 357.16[1]], and that the element of favorable termination is concerned only with the result in the underlying proceeding as a whole [StaffPro, Inc. v. Elite Show Servs., Inc. (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 1392, 1402-1405, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 682 (relying on language in Crowley v. Katleman (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 666, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 386, 881 P.2d 1083); Dalany v. American Pac. Holding Corp. (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 822, 829, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 13] .

[6] Criminal Actions

In criminal actions, if there was no trial on the merits, then the determination of the prior action must be of such a nature as to indicate the innocence of the accused [Jaffe v. Stone (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 146, 150, 114 P.2d 335 (criminal)]. It is not necessary, though, that further prosecution be precluded on the ground of double jeopardy [Jaffe v. Stone (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 146, 156, 114 P.2d 335 (criminal)]. For instance, there was a favorable termination of the proceeding if it was dismissed by the prosecutor in the interests of justice and for the lack of sufficient evidence [Jackson v. Beckham (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 264, 270, 31 Cal. Rptr. 739 (criminal)] or if it was dismissed by the magistrate at the preliminary hearing on the ground of insufficiency of evidence [Jaffe v. Stone (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 146, 151, 156, 114 P.2d 335 (criminal)]. However, if a criminal proceeding goes to trial, it is ordinarily necessary as a foundation for a malicious prosecution action that the accused was acquitted [Jaffe v. Stone (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 146, 150, 114 P.2d 335 (criminal)].

However, when the criminal action terminates favorably and the plaintiff then brings an action for malicious prosecution, the defendant in that action may show that the plaintiff actually committed the offense charged, even though the jury acquitted the plaintiff. This showing, although it has no bearing on the favorable termination of the criminal charge, will be used to negate the plaintiff's claim that the criminal action was commenced without probable cause [Verdier v. Verdier (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 348, 353, 313 P.2d 123 (criminal); see § 357.16].

The plaintiff in an action for malicious prosecution bears the burden of proving the favorable termination of the earlier proceedings [Kassan v. Bledsoe (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 810, 812, 60 Cal. Rptr. 799 (civil)].

[8] Effect of Requirement

The requirement of a favorable termination means that a defendant in the principal action who loses will not institute a malicious prosecution suit, because the adverse judgment operates to establish conclusively that the plaintiff had probable cause [Babb v. Superior Court (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 841, 847, 92 Cal. Rptr. 179, 479 P.2d 379 (civil); Roos v. Harris (1928) 203 Cal. 201, 202, 263 P. 225 (criminal)].

The requirement also means that a malicious prosecution action that is instituted while an appeal of the underlying action is pending, may be dismissed [see Friedman v. Stadum (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 775, 779 al. Rptr. 585 (civil) (First Appellate District)]. One court has recommended in dictum, however, that a court should abate the action, rather than dismiss it. Even though an action that has been dismissed can be refiled, it must overcome additional procedural obstacles, including but not limited to, applicable statutes of limitation [see Feld v. Western Land & Dev. Co. (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 1328, 1336, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 23 (civil) (Fourth Appellate District)]. For discussion of and forms for use in the abatement of actions filed prematurely, see Ch. 3, Abatement of Actions .

§ 357.15 Affirmative Relief Sought in Underlying Action

A cause of action for malicious prosecution will not lie unless the defendant sought affirmative relief in the underlying action. Mere resistance to an opponent's attack, motivated by a desire to preserve, or to return to, the status quo as it existed before judicial proceedings had commenced, cannot be the basis for a malicious prosecution action [Coleman v. Gulf Ins. Group (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 782, 793-794, 226 Cal. Rptr. 90, 718 P.2d 77 ; Idell v. Goodman (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 262, 273 Cal. Rptr. 605]. For example, a defendant's appeal, which is merely the continuation of an attempt to repel the plaintiff's attack, cannot be the basis of a malicious prosecution action [Coleman v. Gulf Ins. Group (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 782, 794, 226 Cal. Rptr. 90, 718 P.2d 77]. Similarly, a creditor's proceeding to block discharge of a debtor's debts in bankruptcy, brought with the sole objective of preserving the creditor's rights as they existed before the debtor filed for bankruptcy, cannot be the basis for the action [Idell v. Goodman (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 262, 272-273, 273 Cal. Rptr. 605].

[1] In General

Probable cause is defined insofar as it applies to the malicious prosecution of civil actions as a suspicion founded on circumstances sufficiently strong to warrant a reasonable person in the belief that the charge is true [Davis v. Local Union No. 11, Int'l Bhd. of Elec. Workers, AFL-CIO (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 686, 692 (civil)]. Stated differently, one who commences a civil suit acts on probable cause if he or she has an honest belief, founded on facts sufficiently strong to justify that belief, that grounds exist for the proceeding [Kennedy v. Byrum (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 474, 480, 20 Cal. Rptr. 98 (civil)]. It does not mean "legal cause" because, if it did, then every plaintiff who failed to recover in a lawsuit would be liable to an action for malicious prosecution [Lucchesi v. Giannini & Uniack (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 777, 785, 205 Cal. Rptr. 62 (civil); Albertson v. Raboff (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 372, 385, 8 Cal. Rptr. 398 (civil)].

In the context of an action alleging malicious prosecution of a prior civil suit, the standard for determining probable cause is whether any reasonable attorney would have thought the civil claim was tenable [Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal. 3d. 863, 885-886, 254 Cal. Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498 (civil); Klein v. Oakland Raiders, Ltd. (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 67, 76, 259 Cal. Rptr. 149 (civil)]. In evaluating whether or not probable cause exists, a court must take into account the evolutionary potential of legal principles [Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal. 3d 863, 886, 254 Cal. Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498 (civil)].

Probable cause to bring a civil action, or the lack of it, must be determined with regard to the theory on which the allegedly malicious civil action was actually based. The test for malicious prosecution is not whether the defendant had reasonable grounds to seek some kind of relief in the original action, but whether he or she had reasonable grounds for asserting the theory for relief contained in the complaint and tried to the fact finder. Thus, even if the defendant had grounds for a suit against the plaintiff, if he or she failed to prosecute the suit on those grounds and instead prosecuted the suit on untenable grounds, the defendant may be found liable for malicious prosecution [Kreeger v. Wanland (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 826, 835-836, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 790 (civil); Williams v. Coombs (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 626, 644, 224 Cal. Rptr. 865 , criticized, Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal. 3d 863, 885-886, 254 Cal. Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498 (civil)]. In assessing the tenability of the underlying action, the complaint must be construed liberally in favor of the pleader, rather than restrictively in favor of the malicious prosecution plaintiff [Leonardini v. Shell Oil Co. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 547, 571, 264 Cal. Rptr. 883].

If the plaintiff in the underlying action is put on notice that a fundamental factual element of the case is disputed, probable cause to prosecute the action may be lacking unless that plaintiff possesses either evidence sufficient to support a favorable judgment on that element or information sufficient to support an inference that such evidence can be obtained [see Arcaro v. Silva & Silva Enters. Corp. (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 152, 158-159, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 433 (no probable cause to prosecute underlying debt collection action because alleged debtor provided credible evidence that signature on credit application and guarantee had been forged, and collection agency lacked facts showing that signature was genuine)]. In one case, for example, the court of appeal held that a malicious prosecution action could be prosecuted because the creditor in an underlying debt collection action sought to recover much more than the creditor had probable cause to seek to recover from the debtor [Citi-Wide Preferred Couriers, Inc. v. Golden Eagle Ins. Corp. (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 906, 914, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 199 (creditor sought $7861, despite admission that only about $1900 was owed)].

If the client has lied to the attorney about the facts underlying the claim, and the attorney has no reason to know that the given facts were incorrect, the relevant facts for determining probable cause on the part of the attorney are the facts as given to the attorney [Swat-Fame, Inc. v. Goldstein (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 613, 625, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 556 ; see also Morrison v. Rudolph (2002) 103 Cal. App.4th 506, 512-513, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 747]. However, even if probable cause exists as to the attorney under those facts, the client may still be liable for malicious prosecution if the client knew the facts as given were false [Swat-Fame, Inc. v. Goldstein (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 613, 632 n.14, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 556 ; see also Morrison v. Rudolph (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 506, 514, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 747].

An attorney may be liable for malicious prosecution for continuing to prosecute a claim after the attorney discovers that the action in fact lacks probable cause, even if the attorney had probable cause to initiate the action [Zamos v. Stroud (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 958, 970, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 54, 87 P.3d 802 (disapproving of any inconsistent language in Swat-Fame, Inc. v. Goldstein (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 613, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 556 , Morrison v. Rudolph (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 506, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 747 , and Vanzant v. DaimlerChrysler Corp. (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 1283, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 48); see also Bergman v. Drum (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 11, 23-24, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 112 (Zamos applied retroactively)]. This principle applies to a plaintiff's attorney who files an appeal in a case after the attorney discovers that the action lacks probable cause [Soukup v. Law Offices of Herbert Hafif (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 260, 297, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 638, 139 P. 3d 30] .

An attorney joining in as cocounsel for a plaintiff in a case that has already been filed may be held liable for malicious prosecution and should promptly become familiar with the bases for the asserted claims before or immediately after joining the case in order to minimize or eliminate any grounds for malicious prosecution liability. In one case, attorneys filed a suit in representation of multiple tenants and employees of defendant apartment owner, alleging multiple causes of action based on dismal living conditions at the apartment and resulting physical ailments, as well as employment-related torts such as wrongful termination. Unfortunately, the attorneys listed both tenants and employees as plaintiffs on all causes of action, even though some of the causes of action clearly had no application to all plaintiffs. After the suit had been filed, other attorneys joined as cocounsel for the limited purpose of assisting in prosecution of toxic mold claims. After one of the tenant plaintiffs dismissed herself from the suit, the apartment owner brought a malicious prosecution action against the original attorneys and their cocounsel, arguing that there was no basis for asserting many of the causes of action on behalf of the dismissed plaintiff. Defendant attorneys filed a motion to strike the malicious prosecution action under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16, the anti-SLAPP statute [see § 357.24], but the court of appeal held that the apartment owner had demonstrated a sufficient probability of success on the merits to withstand the motion to strike, even as applied to cocounsel, at least for any damage sustained during the time that cocounsel was associated with the suit and failed to take corrective steps. While stopping short of stating that the landowner should win at trial on the merits of the malicious prosecution claims [see Sycamore Ridge Apartments LLC v. Naumann (2008) 157 Cal. App. 4th 1385, 1392 n.1, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 561], the court noted that cocounsel joining after a suit is filed should be familiar with the client's claims, and whether or not probable cause exists for bringing or sustaining such claims, before agreeing to join [Sycamore Ridge Apartments LLC v. Naumann (2008) 157 Cal. App. 4th 1385, 1407-1411, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 561 (evidence of lack of probable cause, malice, and damages was sufficient to withstand motion to strike)].

If the plaintiff in an underlying civil action has some evidence suggesting that a particular party may be liable, a mere assertion by the attorney for that potentially-liable party that the party is not liable, without more, is not enough to defeat a finding of probable cause for bringing an action against that party [Marijanovic v. Gray, York & Duffy (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 1262, 1271-1272, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 867] .

If the issue is whether the facts as known at the time were sufficient to justify bringing the underlying action against the particular defendant, the test for establishing probable cause may be more stringent in California than in other jurisdictions, because California procedure allows for filing suit against Doe defendants pending further fact finding [see Puryear v. Golden Bear Ins. Co. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1188, 1197, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 507 (California rule more stringent than Restatement rule); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 474].

Each claim prosecuted must be supported by probable cause. Thus, even if probable cause is present for one of multiple claims in an underlying action, a plaintiff is entitled to sue for the malicious prosecution of the claim(s) not supported by probable cause [Mabie v. Hyatt (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 581, 584, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 657].

Probable cause as an element in an action for the malicious prosecution of a criminal action requires that there be such a state of facts as would lead a person of ordinary care and prudence to believe and entertain an honest and strong suspicion that the accused person is guilty [Kincaid v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 733, 741, 66 Cal. Rptr. 915 (criminal)]. It does not depend on the possession of facts that satisfactorily prove the guilt of the accused person. Rather, it has reference to a common standard of human judgment and conduct and exists if one is possessed of information or facts that are sufficient to cause a reasonable person to honestly believe the charge is true [Northrup v. Baker (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 347, 354, 20 Cal. Rptr. 797 (criminal); Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 540-541, 222 P.2d 136 (criminal)]. Therefore, a person may act on what appears to be true, even if it turns out to be false [Fry v. Bank of Am. (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 150, 156, 298 P.2d 34 (criminal)].

In order to prove the lack of probable cause, plaintiff must present substantial evidence to create a conflict or an inference of the lack ofprobable cause [Davis v. Local Union No. 11, Int'l Bhd. of Elec. Workers, AFL-CIO (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 686, 692 (civil); Kassan v. Bledsoe (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 810, 816, 60 Cal. Rptr. 799 (civil)]. It should be noted, though, that in a criminal case, proof that no crime was committed or that the accused is innocent does not necessarily negate the existence of probable cause [Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 541, 222 P.2d 136 (criminal)].

The plaintiff in a malicious prosecution action is not required to present expert testimony concerning whether an attorney's actions in instituting and maintaining an action were reasonable [Gerard v. Ross (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 968, 987-988, 251 Cal. Rptr. 604 (rejecting contention by defendant appellant that reversal was required due to failure of plaintiff in underlying action to present expert testimony)]. Indeed, a party is generally prohibited from calling expert witnesses to give their opinions concerning whether a reasonable attorney would conclude that claims advanced in the prior action were tenable; as a general rule, experts may not give opinions on matters that are essentially within the province of the court to decide [Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal. 3d 863, 884, 254 Cal. Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498].

The probable cause element calls on the trial court to make an objective determination of the "reasonableness" of the defendant's conduct in instituting a prior civil action. Because the malicious prosecution tort is intended to protect an individual's interest in freedom from unjustifiable and unreasonable litigation, if the trial court determines that the prior action was objectively reasonable, the plaintiff has failed to meet the threshold requirement of demonstrating an absence of probable cause, and the defendant is entitled to prevail [Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal. 3d 863, 878, 254 Cal. Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498 (civil)].

In a criminal proceeding, probable cause does not depend on the actual state of the case; rather, it depends on the honest and reasonable belief of the party commencing the prosecution which must appear to have existed in the party's mind at the time of his or her proceedings. The actual guilt or innocence of plaintiff is not the controlling factor since it is only necessary that defendant have met the standard of conduct of the ordinarily prudent person in believing plaintiff guilty [Clary v. Hale (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 880, 888-889, 1 Cal. Rptr. 91 (criminal)]. Thus, it is evident that subjective good faith is an independent element of probable cause [Klotz v. Alexander (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 238, 243, 21 Cal. Rptr. 305 (criminal)] and that the element of probable cause must be viewed from a subjective as well as an objective point of view [White v. Brinkman (1937) 23 Cal. App. 2d 307, 312, 73 P.2d 254 (criminal)].

Because an objective determination by the trial court that the underlying action was objectively reasonable may establish probable cause, denial of a defendant's motion for summary judgment in the underlying civil action will normally be sufficient to establish probable cause [Roberts v. Sentry Life Ins. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 375, 384, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 408 ; see also Hufstedler, Kaus & Ettinger v. Superior Court (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 55, 68-69, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 551]. However, under certain circumstances, a denial of summary judgment in the underlying action would not preclude a finding that probable cause was lacking--for example, if the underlying motion for summary judgment was denied on procedural or technical grounds, rather than due to the existence of triable issues of material fact [see Wilson v. Parker, Covert & Chidester (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 811, 823, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 19, 50 P.3d 733 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Hutton v. Hafif (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 527], or was denied due to materially false facts submitted in opposition [see Roberts v. Sentry Life Ins. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 375, 384, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 408 ; see, e.g., Slaney v. Ranger Ins. Co. (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 306, 319-321, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 915].

Denial of a motion to strike brought under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16 in the underlying action cannot be used to support a finding that the underlying action was brought with probable cause [Hutton v. Hafif (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 527, 548-550, 59 Cal. Rptr. 3d 109 (2005 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16(b)(3) overruled holding in Wilson v. Parker, Covert & Chidester (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 811, 50 P.3d 733 , that allowed denial of special motion to strike to be used to support finding of probable cause)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16, the so-called Anti-SLAPP Statute, is discussed further in Ch. 376, Motions to Strike: Anti-SLAPP .

A preliminary injunction granted to the plaintiff in the underlying action after a hearing on the merits establishes probable cause as to all causes of action that were reasonably related to the injunction [Fleishman v. Superior Court (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 350, 355-358, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 383]. In deciding whether to issue a preliminary injunction, a trial court must evaluate the likelihood that the party seeking the injunction will ultimately prevail on the merits and balance the consequences of the issuing the injunction with the consequences of not doing so [Fleishman v. Superior Court (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 350, 355-356, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 383]; see also Paiva v. Nichols (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1007, 1022, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 838] . The failure to post a required undertaking or bond under Code Civ. Proc. § 529(a) in order to perfect a preliminary injunction does not negate that the order granting the preliminary injunction conclusively establishes probable cause for bringing the action [Paiva v. Nichols (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1007, 1024, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 838].

A default judgment in the underlying action does not establish probable cause for bringing that action because the trial court does not have the benefit of the presentation of evidence on the merits by both sides in the lawsuit [Bergman v.

Drum (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 11, 22, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 112].

[4] Burden of Proof

The plaintiff in an action for malicious prosecution bears the burden of proving the lack of probable cause on the part of defendant [Kassan v. Bledsoe (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 810, 812, 60 Cal. Rptr. 799 (civil); Walker v. Jensen (1949) 95 Cal. App. 2d 269, 275, 212 P.2d 569 (criminal)].

[5] Relation to Favorable Termination Requirement

The elements of probable cause and favorable termination are distinct elements, serving different purposes. Probable cause reflects on whether the defendant had an honest and reasonable belief in the truth of the allegations. Favorable termination reflects on the innocence of the defendant in the prior action [Crowley v. Katleman (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 666, 686, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 386, 881 P.2d 1083 ; Warren v. Wasserman, Comden & Casselman (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1297, 1303, 271 Cal. Rptr. 579].

The objective tenability of the underlying action, or lack of it, does not bear on whether the underlying action was favorably terminated [Crowley v. Katleman (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 666, 686, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 386, 881 P.2d 1083 ; Warren v. Wasserman, Comden & Casselman (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1297, 1303, 271 Cal. Rptr. 579]. An action brought without probable cause may be decided on technical or procedural grounds, precluding a favorable termination on the merits [see Warren v. Wasserman, Comden & Casselman (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1297, 1303, 271 Cal. Rptr. 579].

The existence of probable cause is not negated by merely showing that the accused was successful at the trial of the proceedings in securing an exoneration. Not even a conflict on the issue of probable cause is created by such favorable termination of the proceeding that gave rise to the malicious prosecution action [Kassan v. Bledsoe (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 810, 816, 60 Cal. Rptr. 799 (civil); Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 541, 222 P.2d 136 (criminal)].

[6] No Inference From Malice

While malice may be inferred from the lack of probable cause, the reverse is not true; the lack of probable cause may not be implied from even the most express malice [Kassan v. Bledsoe (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 810, 816, 60 Cal. Rptr. 799 (civil); Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 542, 222 P.2d 136 (criminal)]. This is the rule because malice and the lack of belief in the guilt of the accused are not the same thing. For example, a defendant who honestly believes in the guilt of a person may prosecute that person even with a vindictive motive when reasonable grounds exist for the belief [see Franzen v. Shenk (1923) 192 Cal. 572, 583, 221 P. 932 (insanity proceeding)].

[7] Question of Law or Fact

Whether the defendant had probable cause for instituting the prosecution is always a matter of law to be determined by the court, and is never left to the determination of the jury. Even when the facts are in dispute, the court determines the issue of probable cause once the jury has determined the facts [Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal. 3d 863, 875, 254 Cal. Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498 (civil); Ball v. Rawles (1892) 93 Cal. 222, 227, 28 P. 937 (criminal); Williams v. Coombs (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 626, 636, 224 Cal. Rptr. 865 , criticized, Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal. 3d 863, 885-886, 254 Cal. Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498 (civil)]. The determination is made by the court because the probable cause question requires a sensitive evaluation of legal principles and precedents, a task generally beyond the capabilities of lay jurors [Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal. 3d 863, 875, 254 Cal. Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498 (civil)].

When there is no dispute concerning the facts on which an attorney acted in filing a prior action, the question whether there was probable cause to institute the prior action is purely a legal question, to be determined by the trial court on the basis of whether, as an objective matter, the prior action was legally tenable or not [Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal. 3d 863, 875, 254 Cal. Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498 (civil); Klein v. Oakland Raiders, Ltd. (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 67, 75, 259 Cal. Rptr. 149 (civil)].

[8] Irrelevance of Attorney Research

The adequacy of an attorney's research is not relevant to the determination of probable cause, because the determination of probable cause relates solely to whether the attorney's claim was objectively tenable [Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal. 3d 863, 875, 883, 254 Cal. Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498 (civil; disapproving holding to contrary in Tool Research & Eng'g Corp. v. Henigson (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 675, 120 Cal. Rptr. 291)]. However, if a trial court determines that a prior action by a defendant was not objectively tenable, the extent of a defendant attorney's investigation and research may be relevant to the further question of whether the attorney acted with malice [Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal. 3d 863, 875, 883, 254 Cal. Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498].

[9] Vicarious Liability

If an agent, while acting within the scope of his or her authority, acquires knowledge or receives notice of any fact material to the subject matter of the agency, the principal is charged with constructive notice of that fact. Thus, a principal may be charged with the lack of probable cause and bad faith by one of its agents [see Davis v. Local Union No. 11, Int'l Bhd. of Elec. Workers, AFL-CIO (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 686, 694-695 (civil); Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 544, 222 P.2d 136 (criminal)].

Chapter 357 MALICIOUS PROSECUTION AND ABUSE OF PROCESS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Malicious Prosecution

31-357 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 357.17

§ 357.17 Malice

[1] In General

The tort of malicious prosecution connotes something more blameworthy than mere negligence. Thus, its chief element is malice [Maxon v. Security Ins. Co. (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 603, 615, 29 Cal. Rptr. 586 (criminal)]. Malice means actual ill will or some improper motive or purpose, whether express or implied. It may range anywhere from open hostility to indifference [Grindle v. Lorbeer (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1461, 1465, 242 Cal. Rptr. 562 (civil); see Maxon v. Security Ins. Co. (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 603, 615, 29 Cal. Rptr. 586 (criminal)].

[a] Direct and Circumstantial

Malice may be proved by direct evidence; it also may be inferred from all the circumstances in the case [Weber v. Leuschner (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 829, 837, 50 Cal. Rptr. 86 (criminal)], including declarations of the defendant indicating prejudice, ill will, or malicious motive [Jackson v. Beckham (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 264, 272, 31 Cal. Rptr. 739 (criminal)], as well as the absence of good faith of the accuser [Bulkley v. Klein (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 742, 750, 23 Cal. Rptr. 855 (criminal)]. It is not necessary, though, for a plaintiff to prove that the prosecution was inspired by personal hostility, a grudge, or ill will. It is sufficient if it appears that the previous action was instituted in bad faith to vex, annoy, or wrong the adverse party [Weber v. Leuschner (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 829, 837, 50 Cal. Rptr. 86 (criminal)].

An attorney's failure to conduct adequate research or investigation prior to filing suit may be considered in determining the question of malice [see Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal. 3d 863, 883, 254 Cal. Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498] . In addition, malice formed by an attorney after the filing of the underlying complaint may be actionable [Daniels v. Robbins (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 204, 226, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 683] . In the case so holding, however, the court determined that the malicious prosecution plaintiff had failed to present evidence of such malice on the part of the attorneys who maintained the underlying suit. The evidence in the record showed only a lack of evidentiary support for the allegations in the underlying complaint, a lack of factual investigation after the complaint was filed as evidenced by an inability to comply with discovery requests, a client who may have had ill will against the underlying defendant, and a refusal of the underlying plaintiff to dismiss without a waiver of claims by the underlying defendant [Daniels v. Robbins (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 204, 227, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 683] .

Although malice may normally be inferred from lack of probable cause to initiate the underlying action [see, e.g., Pond v. Insurance Co. of N. Am. (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 280, 288, 198 Cal. Rptr. 517 ; see also § 357.17[2][b]], in actions in which the underlying case was a family law action, malice requires a more convincing and precise showing than mere inference [Chauncey v. Niems (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 967, 978-979, 227 Cal. Rptr. 718].

[b] Inference From Lack of Probable Cause

Malice may be inferred from the lack of probable cause [MacDonald v. Joslyn (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 282, 292, 79 Cal. Rptr. 707 (civil); Weber v. Leuschner (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 829, 836, 50 Cal. Rptr. 86 (criminal)]. Therefore, if plaintiff fails to show the lack of probable cause, no inference of malice on the part of defendant may be drawn [Clary v. Hale (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 880, 889, 1 Cal. Rptr. 91 (criminal)].

An inference of malice from a lack of probable cause requires that the party's behavior in bringing an action be clearly unreasonable. However, the inference is not automatic on a finding of no probable cause, because it is necessary that actual malice be found. For example, there is always the possibility that a party's behavior before filing might be unreasonable enough to support a finding of no probable cause, yet would not support an inference of malice as a matter of fact [Weaver v. Superior Court (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 166, 193, 156 Cal. Rptr. 745 ; see Grindle v. Lorbeer (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1461, 1466-1468, 242 Cal. Rptr. 562 (attorney's mere negligence in investigation of facts before filing is insufficient to constitute malicious prosecution)].

The question of malice presents an issue of fact to be determined by the trier of fact [Northrup v. Baker (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 347, 354, 20 Cal. Rptr. 797 (criminal)].

[4] Malice Per Se

One who knowingly presses a baseless criminal charge acts without probable cause and is guilty of malice per se [Jackson v. Beckham (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 264, 272, 31 Cal. Rptr. 739 (criminal)], because the only justification for a criminal proceeding is to bring an offender to justice [Bulkley v. Klein (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 742, 750, 23 Cal. Rptr. 855 (criminal)].

31-357 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 357.18

§ 357.18 Damages

Malice must be proven against a particular defendant in order to justify an award of compensatory damages against that defendant [Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 541-542, 222 P.2d 136 (criminal)]. When proven, the measure of compensatory damages for the malicious prosecution of a civil action includes attorney's fees and court costs for defending the prior action and compensation for emotional distress, mental suffering, and impairment to reputation proximately caused by the initiation and prosecution of the action [Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 43, 51, 59, 118 Cal. Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608 (civil)]. Damages may also be recovered for loss of time, deprivation of liberty, injury to fame and character, general impairment of social and mercantile standing, injury to credit, and all losses sustained to plaintiff's business as the direct and natural result of the proceedings complained of [Davis v. Local Union No. 11, Int'l Bhd. of Elec. Workers, AFL-CIO (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 686, 695-696 (civil)]. Plaintiff can also recover any damages for bodily harm [Singleton v. Perry (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 489, 495, 289 P.2d 794 (criminal)].

If a defendant in the underlying lawsuit was successful in whole or in part on a special motion to strike under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16 (the so-called anti-SLAPP statute discussed in § 357.24), and recovered attorney's fees and costs under that statute, that party may not recover as damages in a subsequent malicious prosecution action any attorney's fees and costs that were awarded and actually paid to him or her under the motion to strike for defending against the underlying action [Jackson v. Yarbray (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 75, 97, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 303] . However, the malicious prosecution plaintiff may seek all fees and costs incurred in the underlying suit and the defendant bears the burden of challenging recovery of that portion of the fees and costs that were already awarded and actually paid for the successful motion to strike, and that defendant must provide proof of an appropriate allocation if some causes of action in the underlying lawsuit withstood the motion to strike and were not included in the underlying fee award [Jackson v. Yarbray (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 75, 96-98, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 303] .

[2] Punitive Damages

[a] In General

When it is proven by clear and convincing evidence that the defendant has been guilty of malice, the jury may award damages against him or her for the sake of example and by way of punishing him or her [Civ. Code § 3294(a)]. For example, flagrant abuse of the judicial process by the filing of fabricated claims, in order to force the settlement or abandonment of a legitimate claim, is precisely the type of tortious conduct that an award of punitive damages is designed to deter [Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 43, 65, 118 Cal. Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608 (civil; decided before 1987 amendment to Civ. Code § 3294(a))].

[b] Malice Defined

Malice, as used in Civ. Code § 3294(a), is defined as conduct intended to cause injury, or despicable conduct that is carried on with willful and conscious disregard of the safety or rights of others [Civ. Code § 3294(c)(1)].

[c] Wealth of Defendant as Factor in Award

The wealthier the wrongdoing defendant, the larger the award of punitive damages need be in order to accomplish the statutory objective of making the defendant an example and punishing him or her [Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 43, 65, 118 Cal. Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608 (civil)].

§ 357.19 Test for Malicious Criminal Prosecution

The test for determining whether a criminal action was prosecuted maliciously is whether the defendant was actively instrumental in causing the prosecution [Cedars-Sinai Med. Ctr. v. Superior Court (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 414, 417, 253 Cal. Rptr. 561]. The plaintiff need not show, however, that the defendant sought out the police or prosecutorial authorities and reported facts to them indicating that plaintiff had committed a crime. It is sufficient for the plaintiff to show that defendant knowingly gave false information to the police or testified falsely at a hearing [Williams v. Hartford Ins. Co. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 893, 897-898, 195 Cal. Rptr. 448 (citing with approval Rupp v. Summerfield (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 657, 326 P.2d 912)]. Williams distinguished language in Sullivan v. County of Los Angeles (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 710, 720, 117 Cal. Rptr. 241, 527 P.2d 865 that stated that the plaintiff must show that defendant has at least sought out the police or prosecutorial authorities and falsely reported facts to them indicating that plaintiff had committed a crime. The Williams court stated that this language should not be applied to malicious prosecution actions because Sullivan was not a malicious prosecution case but a case involving false imprisonment, and at the point in the opinion when that language was used, the court was considering an argument based on institution of an action in a context other than for malicious prosecution. A person may be liable for malicious prosecution without personally signing the complaint initiating the criminal proceeding if he or she has instigated or procured the proceeding [Siffert v. McDowell (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 373, 378-379, 229 P.2d 388 (civil arrest); Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 544, 222 P.2d 136 (criminal)].

§ 357.20 Alternative Theories of Recovery or Charges Actionable

There is no reason for permitting plaintiffs and cross complaints to pursue shotgun tactics by proceeding on counts and theories which they know or should know to be groundless. Thus, an action for malicious prosecution lies when but one of alternate theories of recovery is maliciously asserted [Crowley v. Katleman (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 666, 679, 695, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 386, 881 P.2d 1083 ; Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 43, 57, 118 Cal. Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608 (civil); Mabie v. Hyatt (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 581, 584, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 657 ; see also § 357.14[5]].

Similarly, a plaintiff who was prosecuted under a justified criminal charge as well as under a maliciously joined unjustified charge does not need to prove that the damage was specifically attributable to the unjustified one [Singleton v. Perry (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 489, 497-498, 289 P.2d 794 (criminal)].

[1] In General

An action for malicious prosecution lies when a cross pleading allegedly is filed maliciously. The harm to society and to the individual cross defendant caused by the filing of a cross pleading without probable cause and with malice is substantially similar to that occasioned by the filing of a complaint or other initial pleading known to be false or meritless. Thus, cross pleadings are actionable as in the case of other affirmative malicious prosecutions [Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 43, 50-53, 118 Cal. Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608 (civil)].

[2] Cross Complaints Prohibited in Main Action

A party defendant may not cross complain for malicious prosecution in the first or main action until there has been a favorable termination with respect to the first or main action [Babb v. Superior Court (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 841, 846, 92 Cal. Rptr. 179, 479 P.2d 379 ; Loomis v. Murphy (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 589, 593, 266 Cal. Rptr. 82 (authorizing defendant to cross complain for malicious prosecution following dismissal of complaint)]. If the plaintiff in the first or main action amends his or her complaint to delete one or more causes of action that appeared in the first complaint, the defendant may not cross complain for malicious prosecution of the deleted cause or causes until favorable termination of the entire proceeding [Jenkins v. Pope (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1292, 1298-1301, 266 Cal. Rptr. 557].

§ 357.22 Absolute Privilege Not Available

The fact that a communication may be absolutely privileged for purposes of a defamation action under Civ. Code § 47(b) since it was made in connection with a judicial proceeding does not prevent its being an element of an action for malicious prosecution in a proper case. The policy of encouraging free access to the courts is outweighed by the policy of affording redress for individual wrongs when the elements of a cause of action for malicious prosecution are proved [Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375, 382, 295 P.2d 405 (civil); Williams v. Hartford Ins. Co. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 893, 897, 195 Cal. Rptr. 448 (civil); *see Ribas v. Chapter 357 MALICIOUS PROSECUTION AND ABUSE OF PROCESS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Malicious Prosecution

31-357 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 357.23

§ 357.23 Defenses

[1] In General

Since the plaintiff has the burden of proving the basic elements of the cause of action, the negation of any of the elements furnishes a full defense to the defendant [see Jaffe v. Stone (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 146, 159, 114 P.2d 335 (criminal)]. The most common defense proved in this manner is showing that the institution of the prior proceeding was based on probable cause [see § 357.23[2], [4]].

[2] Advice of Counsel

Reliance in good faith on the advice of counsel is a defense to an action for malicious prosecution inasmuch as the defense shows probable cause [Mabie v. Hyatt (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 581, 598, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 657 ; Sosinsky v. Grant (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 1548, 1556, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 552 ; Kennedy v. Byrum (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 474, 481, 20 Cal. Rptr. 98 (civil); see Pond v. Insurance Co. of N. Am. (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 280, 288, 198 Cal. Rptr. 517]. Thus, if a person has acted on the opinion and advice of counsel to the effect that he or she had a good cause of action after laying all of the facts of the case in good faith before his or her counsel, then probable cause is established and it is presumed that he or she has made out a complete defense to a malicious prosecution action [Brinkley v. Appleby (1960) 276 Cal. App. 2d 244, 247, 80 Cal. Rptr. 734 (civil)]. This rule is especially applicable when the advice of a regularly elected prosecuting officer of a state or county is sought and relied on because it is the prosecutor's official duty to enforce the criminal statutes in the interest of public welfare [Walker v. Jensen (1949) 95 Cal. App. 2d 269, 274, 212 P.2d 569 (criminal)]. After a public prosecutor has been consulted, the defense is available no matter how erroneous the advice may have been [Richter v. Neilson (1936) 11 Cal. App. 2d 503, 508, 54 P.2d 54 (criminal)].

In order to rely on the defense, the requisite disclosure is the disclosure of facts, and a client who turns over evidence to his or her attorney is not required to advance any particular legal theory or point out any statute or particular aspect of the evidence that may seem especially relevant. For example, a client who provides a copy of a relevant contract to his or her attorney has met the disclosure requirement with regard to that contract without having to point out any particular provision of the contract or any statute that may impact on the interpretation or application of the contract. It is the role of the attorney to tell the client what facts are relevant and how the law applies [Bisno v. Douglas Emmett Realty Fund 1988 (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1534, 1545-1546, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 492].

[b] Limitations

The defense of advice of counsel is not applicable when the initiator of the action acts in bad faith or withholds from counsel facts the initiator knew or should have known would defeat a cause of action otherwise appearing from the information supplied. Similarly, counsel's advice must be sought in good faith and not as a mere cloak to protect one against a suit for malicious prosecution [Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 43, 53-54, 118 Cal. Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608 (civil); see Walker v. Jensen (1949) 95 Cal. App. 2d 269, 274, 212 P.2d 569 (criminal)]. Thus, it is not a defense when defendant did not believe the accused to be guilty [Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 545, 222 P.2d 136 (criminal)]. In addition, good-faith reliance on counsel may also be rejected if the party asserting that good faith admits that he or she had no evidence to prove his or her underlying claim, but was merely acting on suspicions [Palmer v. Zaklama (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1367, 1383-1384, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116].

[c] Burden of Proof

The burden of proving the affirmative defense of advice of counsel is on the party seeking to benefit by it [Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 43, 54, 118 Cal. Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608 (civil)].

[d] Questions of Fact

Whether there was a full and fair disclosure of all the facts to counsel and whether counsel gave any advice are questions of fact [Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 545, 222 P.2d 136].

[3] Honest Statement of Facts

A person is not liable for malicious prosecution when the person does nothing more than lay the facts before a magistrate and leaves to the magistrate such action as he or she may deem proper. That person is not liable when he or she has taken no active part in the arrest but has left the matter to the public officials and no bad faith appears [Gogue v. MacDonald (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 482, 486-487, 218 P.2d 542].

[4] Probable Cause

The existence of probable cause constitutes a complete defense to an action for malicious prosecution, and it is often the primary issue in theaction [Kassan v. Bledsoe (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 810, 815-816, 60 Cal. Rptr. 799 (civil)]. Even a malicious motive on the part of defendant is not important if a legal ground existed on which the action could be based [Paskle v. Williams (1931) 214 Cal. 482, 487, 6 P.2d 505 (civil)]. The fact that the plaintiff made a settlement offer in the underlying action is inadmissible to show probable cause. Probable cause is a function of the state of mind of the defendant; the plaintiff's state of mind is irrelevant [Covell v. Superior Court (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 39, 43, 205 Cal. Rptr. 371].

One of the most frequent ways of establishing probable cause is by proving good-faith reliance on the advice of counsel [see § 357.23[2]]. Probable cause may also be shown by the fact that plaintiffs actually committed an offense charged in the criminal action, even though the jury acquitted them of the charge [Verdier v. Verdier (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 348, 353, 313 P.2d 123 (criminal)]. It should be noted, though, that knowledge of facts that may constitute probable cause is knowledge possessed at the time of the prosecution, not knowledge that was subsequently acquired [Centers v. Dollar Markets (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 543, 222 P.2d 136 (criminal); Hudson v. Zumwalt (1944) 64 Cal. App. 2d 866, 872, 149 P.2d 457 (civil)]. However, a defendant is not required to have exhausted all sources of information bearing on the relevant facts in order to have had probable cause for instituting the prior proceeding [Brock v.

Southern Pac. Co. (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 182, 199, 195 P.2d 66 (insanity proceeding)]. If the underlying proceeding was a civil action and the defendant is an attorney, probable cause may be established by showing that the attorney's claim was legally tenable [Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal. 3d 863, 885-886, 254 Cal. Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498].

Absent proof of fraud, a jury verdict against the malicious prosecution plaintiff in the prior proceeding of which he or she complains constitutes a conclusive presumption that probable cause existed for the prior proceeding, even if the verdict is upset by the trial judge or on appeal [Cowles v. Carter (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 350, 355-356, 359-360, 171 Cal. Rptr. 269]. If probable cause for bringing the underlying action is established, probable cause also exists for the continuation of the same action after it has been reversed on appeal [Vanzant v. DaimlerChrysler Corp. (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 1283, 1291, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 48], but subject to the rule that an attorney may be liable for continuing to prosecute a claim after the attorney discovers that the action in fact lacks probable cause [Zamos v. Stroud (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 958, 970, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 54, 87 P.3d 802 ; see § 357.16[1]].

Although generally a trial court judgment in the underlying action in favor of the malicious prosecution defendant will establish probable cause for bringing the action even if that decision is subsequently reversed on appeal, there is an exception applicable when the underlying initial judgment was procured by fraud or perjury [Wilson v. Parker, Covert & Chidester (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 811, 817, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 19, 50 P.3d 733 ; Carpenter v. Sibley (1908) 153 Cal. 215, 218, 94 P. 879]. However, where such claims of fraud or perjury are litigated and rejected by the fact finder in the underlying action, a malicious prosecution plaintiff cannot rely on those same claims of fraud or perjury to establish the absence of probable cause in the malicious prosecution action [Plumley v. Mockett (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 1031, 1056, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 822 (malicious prosecution plaintiff could not relitigate claim that fraudulent evidence and perjury were used to obtain initial adverse decision in underlying proceeding with Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences, when Board rejected exact same claim when reaching initial decision)].

[5] Action by Governmental Entity Not Permitted

Governmental entities may not maintain malicious prosecution actions against persons who have previously sued the entity without success. The bringing of suits against the government is absolutely privileged and cannot form the basis for the imposition of civil liability for malicious prosecution [City of Long Beach v. Bozek (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 527, 538-539, 183 Cal. Rptr. 86, 645 P.2d 137 , cert. granted and opinion vacated, 459 U.S. 1095 (1983) , opinion reinstated, 33 Cal. 3d 727, 190 Cal. Rptr. 918, 661 P.2d 1072 (1983)].

However, the court of appeal has held that this rule does not prevent a private party from bringing a malicious prosecution action based on an earlier lawsuit that was also brought against a public entity [Padres L.P. v. Henderson (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 495, 510, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 584]. In that case, for example, a private party that was working with a city to arrange for the financing of a new baseball stadium was entitled to sue for malicious prosecution based on a meritless reverse validation action brought by private citizens challenging the financing plans, even though the city itself would be precluded from bringing such an action [Padres L.P. v. Henderson (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 495, 510-513, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 584]. The court concluded that parties with a unique and substantial interest in a project who participate in a reverse validation action to protect that interest are entitled to seek redress for damages suffered as a result of the action, if they can establish that the reverse validation action was frivolous and brought with malice [Padres L.P. v. Henderson (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 495, 513, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 584].

[6] Immunity of Public Employees

Under Gov. Code § 821.6, a public employee is not liable for injury caused by the institution or prosecution of any judicial or administrative proceeding within the scope of his or her employment, even if the employee acts maliciously, and without probable cause [Tur v. City of Los Angeles (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 897, 901, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 470]. Judges, executive heads of administrative departments, public prosecutors, grand jurors, and fire marshals [see White

v. Towers (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 727, 731-732, 235 P.2d 209 (investigator for Fish and Game Commission held immune)], county building inspectors and supervisors [Dawson v. Martin (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 379, 381-382, 309 P.2d 915], deputy sheriffs and city police officers [Coverstone v. Davies (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 315, 322, 239 P.2d 876], court marshals [Keylon v. Kelley (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 490, 493-494, 10 Cal. Rptr. 549], and school officials [Hardy v. Vial (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 577, 582-584, 311 P.2d 494] all qualify for immunity when acting within the scope of their duties or employment [see Gov. Code § 821.6]. However, the immunity of a public employee from liability for malicious prosecution extends only to proceedings instituted within the scope of his or her employment [Gov. Code § 821.6; Vivell v. Belmont (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 38, 40-41, 78 Cal. Rptr. 841]. For example, it does not extend either to a city council member who acts wholly outside the scope of his or her duties by seeking private gain in urging the criminal prosecution of a person by the city [see Vivell v. Belmont (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 38, 41, 78 Cal. Rptr. 841] or to a police officer who maliciously and without cause initiates a posecution against a citizen [Prentice v. Bertken (1942) 50 Cal. App. 2d 344, 349, 123 P.2d 96].

Under Gov. Code § 822.2, a public employee may be liable for misrepresentations if the employee is guilty of actual fraud, corruption, or actual malice. This potential liability for malicious representations, however, does not create an exception to a public employee's Gov. Code § 821.6 immunity from liability for malicious prosecution, and the immunity from malicious prosecution applies even if the public employee instigates the prosecution by means of fraudulent, corrupt, or malicious misrepresentations [Tur v. City of Los Angeles (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 897, 899-900, 902-903, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 470 (firefighters immune under Gov. Code § 821.6 for presenting accusation to city attorney's for prosecution)].

[7] Immunity of Public Entity

A public entity is immune from suits for malicious prosecution [Gov. Code §§ 815.2(b), 821.6; Blackburn v. Los Angeles County (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 175, 176-178, 116 Cal. Rptr. 622 (criminal); Vivell v. Belmont (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 38, 40-41, 78 Cal. Rptr. 841 (criminal)].

[8] Immunity of Anonymous Witness Program

An organization that sponsors or conducts an anonymous witness program, and its employees and agents, are immune from civil actions for damages resulting from its receipt of information regarding possible criminal activity or from dissemination of that information to a law enforcement agency [Civ. Code § 48.9(a)]. The immunity does not apply when the information was disseminated with actual knowledge that it was false [Civ. Code § 48.9(c)(1)].

§ 357.24 Motion to Strike Cause of Action Based on Constitutionally Privileged Conduct (Anti-SLAPP Statute)

[1] Purpose and Use

To protect the public interest that encourages continued participation in matters of public significance, and to protect this participation from being chilled through abuse of the judicial process [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16(a), (h)], the California legislature enacted Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16, which provides a special motion to strike so-called SLAPP suits (Strategic Litigation Against Public Participation). If the requirements of the statute are otherwise met, a defendant (including a defendant who is an attorney) may use this special motion to strike in a malicious prosecution action [see, e.g., Jarrow Formulas, Inc. v. LaMarche (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 728, 741, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 636, 74 P.3d 737 (malicious prosecution action based on underlying civil lawsuit); Dickens v. Provident Life & Accident Ins. Co. (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 705, 716, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 877 (malicious prosecution action based on underlying participation in procuring criminal prosecution); White v. Lieberman (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 210, 221, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 608 (attorney who prosecuted underlying claim entitled to bring motion to strike)].

For further discussion of the special motion to strike, see Ch. 376, Motions to Strike: Anti-SLAPP .

[2] Requirements

A motion to strike a cause of action may be brought under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16 if the defendant's underlying conduct was in furtherance of the defendant's right of petition or free speech under the United States or California Constitutions in connection with a public issue [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16(b)(1)]. Specifically, a motion to strike may be made if any of the following actions by the defendant form the basis for the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16(e)]:

- Any written or oral statement made before a legislative, executive, or judicial proceeding, or any other proceeding authorized by law.

- Any written or oral statement or writing made in connection with an issue under consideration or review by a legislative, executive, or judicial body, or any other official proceeding authorized by law.

- Any written or oral statement or writing made in a place open to the public or in a public forum in connection with an issue of public interest.

- Any other conduct in furtherance of the exercise of the constitutional right of petition or free speech in connection with a public issue or an issue of public interest.

Unlike cases falling under the last two paragraphs listed above, a defendant moving to strike a cause of action arising from a statement made before, or in connection with an issue under consideration by, a legally authorized official proceeding need not separately demonstrate that the statement concerned an issue of public interest [Briggs v. Eden Council for Hope & Opportunity (1999) 19 Cal. 4th 1106, 1123, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 471, 969 P.2d 564].

[3] Procedure

A motion to strike may be filed within 60 days after the filing of the complaint, or at any later time at the court's discretion on terms the court deems proper [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16(f)]. The moving defendant bears the initial burden of showing that the cause of action arose from protectedactivity [Shekhter v. Financial Indem. Co. (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 141, 150-151, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843]. However, a defendant moving to strike does not bear the burden of actually proving that the plaintiff intended to chill the defendant's exercise of First Amendment rights [Equilon Enters. v. Consumer Cause, Inc. (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 53, 58, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 507, 52 P.3d 685], nor need the defendant show that the targeted action has or will have an actual chilling effect [City of Cotati v. Cashman (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 69, 75-76, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 519, 52 P.3d 695]. It is sufficient that the defendant establish that the challenged lawsuit arose from an act by the defendant in furtherance of the right of petition or free speech [Equilon Enters. v. Consumer Cause, Inc. (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 53, 58, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 507, 52 P.3d 685].

In response, the plaintiff has the burden of establishing, with admissible evidence, that there is a probability that the plaintiff will prevail on the claim [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16(b)]. In making its determination, the court considers the pleadings and supporting and opposing affidavits stating the facts on which the liability or defense is based [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16(b)(2)]. The court cannot weigh the credibility or comparative strength of competing evidence, although the court must grant a defendant's motion to strike if the defendant's supporting evidence defeats the plaintiff's claim as a matter of law [Tuchscher Dev. Enters., Inc. v. San Diego Unified Port Dist. (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 1219, 1235, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 57].

In any action subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16, a defendant prevailing on a special motion to strike is entitled to recover his or her attorney's fees and costs [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16(c)].

For further discussion of the special motion to strike, see Ch. 376, Motions to Strike: Anti-SLAPP .

[4] Underlying Suit Dismissed Under Anti-SLAPP Statute ("SLAPPback" Suit)

Effective October 5, 2005, the legislature has provided special procedures for a motion to strike a cause of action for malicious prosecution or abuse of process if that cause of action arises from the filing or maintenance of a prior cause of action that was itself dismissed pursuant to the anti-SLAPP statute discussed in § 357.24[1]. The legislature has found these so-called "SLAPPback" lawsuits to be consistent with the goal of the anti-SLAPP statute--namely, protecting the valid exercise of the right of free speech and petition. Therefore, the legislature's stated intent in enacting Code Civ. Proc. § 425.18 was to treat these lawsuits differently from other malicious prosecution or abuse of process actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.18(a), (b)(1)]. Because the statute effects only procedural changes, Code Civ. Proc. § 425.18 applies to cases pending at the time of its enactment [Soukup v. Law Offices of Herbert Hafif (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 260, 280-281, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 638, 139 P. 3d 30] . If a cause of action for malicious prosecution or abuse of process qualifies as a SLAPPback suit, a motion to strike may be brought under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16, but it is subject to certaindifferent procedures, as described below. Although Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16 still governs many aspects of the motion to strike a SLAPPback suit, subsections (c), (f), (g), and (i) of Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16 are inapplicable because Code Civ. Proc. § 425.18 supplies its own provisions to govern those procedural aspects of the motion to strike [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.18(c)].

A special motion to strike a SLAPPback lawsuit must be filed within 120 days after the service of the complaint, or, at the discretion of the court, within six months after the service of the complaint or at any later time in extraordinary cases due to no fault of the defendant and upon written findings of the court stating the extraordinary case and circumstance [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.18(d)(1)]. The motion to strike must be scheduled by the clerk of the court for a hearing not more than 30 days after service of the motion, unless docket conditions of the court require a later hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.18(d)(2)].

A party opposing a special motion to strike a SLAPPback suit may file an ex parte application for a continuance to obtain necessary discovery. If it appears that facts essential to justify opposition to the motion may exist, but cannot be presented at that time, the court is required either to grant a reasonable continuance to permit the party to obtain affidavits or conduct discovery or to make any other order as may be just [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.18(e)].

If the court finds that a special motion to strike a SLAPPback suit is frivolous or solely intended to cause unnecessary delay, the court is required to award costs and reasonable attorney's fees, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5, to the plaintiff who prevails on the motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.18(f)]. As noted above, a defendant prevailing on a special motion to strike a SLAPPback suit is not entitled to attorney's fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16(c) [Hutton v. Hafif (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 527, 539-540, 59 Cal. Rptr. 3d 109] .

A party aggrieved by an order denying a special motion to strike under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.18, or by an order granting a motion to strike as to some but less than all causes of action alleged in the complaint, may petition an appropriate reviewing court for a peremptory writ within 20 days after service of written notice of entry of the order [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.18(g)].

In addition to these procedural differences applicable to all SLAPPback suits, a special motion to strike a SLAPPback suit may not be filed at all by a party whose filing or maintaining of the underlying cause of action was illegal as a matter of law [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.18(h)]. The underlying suit is "illegal as a matter of law" if the defendant concedes the illegality of the assertedly protected activity or if the illegaliity is conclusively established by the evidence presented in connection with the motion to strike [Soukup v. Law Offices of Herbert Hafif (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 260, 286-287, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 638, 139 P. 3d 30] .

The plaintiff bears the burden of establishing that the underlying action was illegal as a matter of law. In meeting this burden, the plaintiff must identify with particularity the statutes violated by the filing of the underlying action and the specific manner in which the statutes were violated with reference to their elements [Soukup v. Law Offices of Herbert Hafif (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 260, 286-287, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 638, 139 P. 3d 30] . A showing that only part of the underlying action violated a particular statute, but other parts did not, does not meet the plaintiff's burden of showing that the underlying action was "illegal as a matter of law" [Hutton v. Hafif (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 527, 542-543, 59 Cal. Rptr. 3d 109] . A plaintiff must meet these requirements to exempt the plaintiff's SLAPPback suit from a motion to strike. The SLAPPback statute does not create a broader exemption from application of the anti-SLAPP statute, even if there is evidence that the underlying lawsuit was otherwise baseless [Soukup v. Law Offices of Herbert Hafif (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 260, 290, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 638, 139 P. 3d 30] .

A SLAPPback suit filed by a public entity is not subject to the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 425.18 [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.18(i)].

For further discussion of the special motion to strike, see Ch. 376, Motions to Strike: Anti-SLAPP .

A defendant or cross defendant in any civil proceeding under the California Tort Claims Act (Gov. Code § 810 et seq.) or for indemnity orcontribution in any civil action waives any right to seek damages for malicious prosecution by requesting defense costs incurred in opposing the proceeding claimed by the defendant or cross defendant to have been brought in bad faith and without reasonable cause. However, failure to request defense costs does not constitute a waiver of the right to pursue a malicious prosecution action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1038(c)]. For further discussion of *Code Civ. PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Malicious Prosecution

31-357 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 357.26

§ 357.26 Statute of Limitations

[1] In General

The period of limitation for filing an action for malicious prosecution is two years (one year, prior to January 1, 2003) [Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1; see Stavropoulos v. Superior Court (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 190, 197, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 705 ; see also former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3); Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions, § 345.14].

[2] When Period Begins to Run

A cause of action for malicious prosecution first accrues at the conclusion of litigation in favor of the party allegedly prosecuted maliciously. Thus, the period of limitations begins to run on the date that the proceedings in the prior action were dismissed or terminated [Babb v. Superior Court (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 841, 846, 92 Cal. Rptr. 179, 479 P.2d 379]. The fact that the time for appeal from the judgment has not yet run does not prevent the filing of the malicious prosecution action, and therefore the running of the statute is not stayed merely because anappeal could still be filed [Feld v. Western Land & Dev. Co. (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 1328, 1334, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 23 ; Gibbs v. Haight, Dickson, Brown & Bonesteel (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 716, 719, 228 Cal. Rptr. 398].

[3] Effect of Pending Appeal

The rule that the malicious prosecution cause of action accrues on entry of judgment in the trial court in the underlying action applies even if an appeal is taken from that judgment [Feld v. Western Land & Dev. Co. (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 1328, 1334, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 23 (harmonizing Friedman v. Stadum (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 775, 778-779, 217 Cal. Rptr. 585 (not statute of limitations case, but assuming that malicious prosecution cause of action does not accrue until appeal from underlying action is resolved); and Gibbs v. Haight, Dickson, Brown & Bonesteel (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 716, 719, 228 Cal. Rptr. 398 (assuming that malicious prosecution cause of action accrues on entry of trial court judgment in underlying action))]. However, when an appeal is taken, special rules govern the running of the statute of limitations. The statute runs from the time of entry of judgment in the trial court until the notice of appeal is filed. Once the notice of appeal is filed, the appeals process tolls the running of the statute until the process is exhausted, at which point the statute commences to run again [Feld v. Western Land & Dev. Co. (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 1328, 1334, 4 Cal.

Rptr. 2d 23 ; Gibbs v. Haight, Dickson, Brown & Bonesteel (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 716, 722, 228 Cal. Rptr. 398].

If no review is sought beyond the California Supreme Court, the issuance of the remittitur in the underlying action exhausts the appellate process [Rare Coin Galleries, Inc. v. A-Mark Coin Co., Inc. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 330, 338, 248 Cal. Rptr. 341 ; see Feld v. Western Land & Dev. Co. (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 1328, 1334, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 23]. If a trial court judgment for the plaintiff is reversed on appeal, the issuance of the remittitur first triggers the running of the statute of limitations [White v. Lieberman (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 210, 217, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 608].

If the underlying action involves an appeal in federal appeals court, the statute of limitations for malicious prosecution is tolled until the court of appeals issues its mandate [Korody-Colyer Corp. v. General Motors Corp. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1148, 1152-1153, 256 Cal. Rptr. 658]. Although a federal circuit court is required under the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure to issue its mandate within 21 days of entry of judgment [Fed. R. App. P., Rule 41(a)], the statute of limitations is nevertheless tolled until the mandate issues, even if the court takes longer than 21 days to issue its mandate [Korody-Colyer Corp. v. General Motors Corp. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1148, 1153, 256 Cal. Rptr. 658 (mandate issued 39 days after entry of judgment)].

§ 357.27 Effect of Insurance Coverage for Tort

Some insurance policies specifically cover the insured for damages resulting from malicious prosecution, if the offense is committed during the policy period. However, the court of appeal has held that Ins. Code § 533, which provides as a matter of California public policy that an insurer is not liable for losses caused by a wilful act of the insured [see Ins. Code § 533], shields an insurer from liability for indemnification for malicious prosecution despite express coverage for such loss provided in the insurance policy. The court reasoned that an act of malicious prosecution necessarily constitutes a "wilful" act under Ins. Code § 533, since the required showing of malice in a malicious prosecution action constitutes proof of willfulness [Downey Venture v. LMI Ins. Co. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 478, 500-501, 506, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 142].

While insurance indemnification for direct liability for malicious prosecution may be against public policy, Ins. Code § 533 does not shield an insurer from indemnification for its insured's vicarious liability for malicious prosecution, such as might be provided if an insured corporation is liable for an act of malicious prosecution committed by an agent for the corporation. In such cases, the party vicariously liable has not, by definition, personally committed the wrongful actions [Downey Venture v. LMIIns. Co. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 478, 512-513, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 142]. Coverage for malicious prosecution losses may also be enforceable for claims arising in other jurisdictions that do not have a public policy comparable to that embodied by Ins. Code § 533 [Downey Venture v. LMI Ins. Co. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 478, 514-515, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 142].

Additionally, although indemnification for direct malicious prosecution liability may be precluded, a separate contractual promise to provide a defense in a claim for malicious prosecution is valid and enforceable [Downey Venture v. LMI Ins. Co. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 478, 507, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 142].

§ 357.28 False Imprisonment Distinguished

In malicious prosecution, the detention is malicious but under due forms of law. In false imprisonment, on the other hand, the detention is without color of legal authority [Cummings v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 1407, 1422, 249 Cal. Rptr. 568 (criminal); Collins v. City & County of San Francisco (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 671, 676, 123 Cal. Rptr. 525 (criminal)]. Moreover, the provocation, motive, and good faith of the defendant in an action for false imprisonment do not constitute material elements, whereas malice and the lack of probable cause are the gist of a malicious prosecution action. Also, the requirement of a final determination is not present in an action for false imprisonment because that action is based on an illegal arrest and nothing that occurs subsequent to the arrest can legalize an illegal arrest [Singleton v. Perry (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 489, 494-495, 289 P.2d 794 (criminal)]. It is apparent, therefore, that the two torts are mutually inconsistent. A defendant cannot be held liable for both false imprisonment and malicious prosecution. Although it is common to plead both torts as different counts in the same complaint, the plaintiff may be required to elect which count to send to the jury [see Collins v. City & County of San Francisco (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 671, 676, 123 Cal. Rptr. 525 (criminal); Bulkley v. Klein (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 742, 747, 23 Cal. Rptr. 855 (criminal)].

§ 357.32 Prior Court Approval for Pleading Action Against Attorney Not Required Under Civ. Code § 1714.10

Under Civ. Code § 1714.10, a cause of action against an attorney that is based on a civil conspiracy with his or her client, arising from any attempt to contest or compromise a claim or dispute, and that is based on the attorney's representation to the client, may not be included in a complaint or other pleading unless the court enters an order allowing the pleading to be filed [Civ. Code § 1714.10(a)]. However, Civ. Code § 1714.10 does not apply to a malicious prosecution action against an attorney who allegedly prosecuted an action without probable cause and adequate investigation, if that action was one that any reasonable attorney would have recognized as untenable. A wholly independent malicious prosecution action may be brought against an attorney for his or her wrongful conduct in bringing the untenable action without pleading a civil conspiracy, even if the attorney's client is also sued for malicious prosecution [Westamco Inv. Co. v. Lee (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 481, 487-488, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 634].

If the operative pleading contains a conspiracy claim in addition to a malicious prosecution claim, but the plaintiff has failed to obtain judicial authorization in compliance with Civ. Code § 1714.10, only the conspiracy claim is subject to dismissal under that statute, and the malicious prosecution claim may still be prosecuted [Alden v. Hindin (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 1502, 1507-1508, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 845].

One who uses legal process, whether criminal or civil, against another to accomplish a purpose for which it is not designed is liable to the other for the pecuniary loss caused thereby [Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 210, 231, 317 P.2d 613 ; Czap v. Credit Bureau of Santa Clara Valley (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 1, 5, 86 Cal. Rptr. 417]. Abuse of process differs from malicious prosecution in that the gist of the tort of abuse of process is not commencing an action or causing process to issue without justification, but rather misusing or misapplying process, justified in itself, for an end other than that which it was designed to accomplish [*Drasin v. Chapter 357 MALICIOUS PROSECUTION AND ABUSE OF PROCESS
B. Abuse Of Process

§ 357.51 Elements of Tort

The two essential elements of a cause of action for abuse of process have been stated to be an ulterior purpose and a willful act in the use of process not proper in the regular conduct of the proceeding. Some definite act or threat not authorized by the process, or aimed at an objective not legitimate in the use of the process, is required; and there is no liability if the defendant has done nothing more than carry out the process to its authorized conclusion, even though with bad intentions. The improper purpose usually takes the form of coercion to obtain a collateral advantage, not properly involved in the proceeding itself, such as the surrender of property or the payment of money, by the use of the process as a threat or a club. There is, in other words, a form of extortion, and it is what is done in the course of negotiation, rather than the issuance of any formal use of the process itself, that constitutes the tort [Templeton Feed & Grain v. Ralston Purina Co. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 461, 466, 72 Cal. Rptr. 344, 446 P.2d 152 ; Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 210, 232-233, 317 P.2d 613 ; see Oren Royal Oaks Venture v. Greenberg, Bernhard, Weiss & Karma, Inc. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 1157, 1168-1169, 232 Cal. Rptr. 567, 728 P.2d 1202].

These elements must be specifically pleaded, or a demurrer will lie. For example, it is not enough to allege malice and intent to harm, because those allegations do not satisfy the willful act element [Friedman v. Stadum (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 775, 779, 217 Cal. Rptr. 585]. Moreover, the second element (a willful act in the use of process that is not proper in the regular conduct of the proceeding) is not satisfied by alleging, for instance, that the defendant instituted and continued to prosecute a civil action under the California Environmental Quality Act (Pub. Res. Code § 21000 et seq.) for the purpose of coercing a monetary settlement rather than to further environmental concerns. Although a defendant's act of improperly instituting or maintaining an action may, in an appropriate case, give rise to a cause of action for malicious prosecution, the mere filing or maintenance of a lawsuit--even for an improper purpose--is not a proper basis for an abuse of process action [Oren Royal Oaks Venture v. Greenberg, Bernhard, Weiss & Karma, Inc. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 1157, 1168-1169, 232 Cal. Rptr. 567, 728 P.2d 1202].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Abuse Of Process

§ 357.52 Acts Held to Constitute Abuse of Process

When process is used to obtain a collateral advantage, an action for abuse of process will lie [see Golden v. Dungan (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 295, 301, 97 Cal. Rptr. 577]. For example, filing complaints in improper counties for the ulterior purpose of coercing inequitable settlements and default judgments [Barquis v. Merchants Collection Ass'n (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 94, 104, 101 Cal. Rptr. 745, 496 P.2d 817], seizing a second lender's collateral in the hands of a debtor in order to coerce the former to pay the debtor's original obligation [Templeton Feed & Grain Co. v. Ralston Purina Co. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 461, 466, 72 Cal. Rptr. 344, 446 P.2d 152], attaching property which has a value greatly in excess of the amount of a legitimate claim in order to restrain the debtor from asserting a claim [White Lighting Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 336, 347, 66 Cal. Rptr. 697], seizing the property of a wife in order to coerce her into dropping claims against her husband [Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 210, 230, 317 P.2d 613], and garnishing exempt wages in order to force a debtor to apply her exempt property to the payment of the debt [Czap v. Credit Bureau of Santa Clara Valley (1970) 86 Cal. Rptr. 417] are all uses of process in which the tort of abuse of process has been held to be present. Thus, the term "process" has normally been considered to mean those actions that are initiated either independently, such as the original commencement of a suit, or those processes initiated collaterally, such as an attachment [Tellefsen v. Key Sys. Transit Lines (1961) 198 Cal. App. 2d 611, 613, 17 Cal. Rptr. 919].

It should be noted, however, that the term "process" is not limited to this strict sense of the term and has been interpreted broadly to encompass the entire range of "procedures" incident to litigation [Barquis v. Merchants Collection Ass'n (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 94, 104 n.4, 101 Cal. Rptr. 745, 496 P.2d 817]. For example, giving of a notice that a deposition will be taken [Thornton v. Rhoden (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 80, 94-95, 53 Cal. Rptr. 706], taking an appeal [Tellefsen v. Key Sys. Transit Lines (1961) 198 Cal. App. 2d 611, 613, 17 Cal. Rptr. 919], and using a written interrogatory [Younger v. Solomon (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 289, 296-297, 113 Cal. Rptr. 113] all involve uses of legal process in which courts have stated that it would be possible to recover damages for the abuse of process if the essential elements of the tort were present. This broad interpretation can be explained historically; the tort evolved as a "catch-all" category to cover improper uses of the judicial machinery that did not fit within the earlier established, but narrowly circumscribed, action of malicious prosecution [Barquis v. Merchants Collection Ass'n (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 94, 104 n. 4, 101 Cal. Rptr. 745, 496 P.2d 817].

In one case, the court of appeal held that delaying service of process in one lawsuit with knowledge that another identical complaint has already been filed and served by a different plaintiff, with the ulterior motive of obtaining a larger settlement than would be obtained had defendant known of the second claim when settling the first, can support a finding of abuse of process [Booker v. Rountree (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 1366, 1372, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 733] . However, the court cites no legal authority in support of its conclusion that a plaintiff has to serve process at a time that will be beneficial to a defendant [see Booker v. Rountree (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 1366, 1372, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 733] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Abuse Of Process

31-357 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 357.53

§ 357.53 Acts Held Not to Constitute Abuse of Process

[1] No Misuse

If the defendant has not used legal process for a purpose for which it was not designed and has not obtained collateral advantage over the plaintiff, there is no action for abuse of process [Golden v. Dungan (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 295, 302, 97 Cal. Rptr. 577]. In addition, even if the process of the court is used with a bad motive and with malice, but for a proper purpose, there is no abuse of process [Golden v. Dungan (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 295, 302, 97 Cal. Rptr. 577]. Mere vexation or harasssment is not recognized as an objective sufficient to give rise to the tort [Younger v. Solomon (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 289, 297, 113 Cal. Rptr. 113]. Hence, there is no cause of action for abuse of process stated when a request for appointment of a receiver was proper [Spira v. Superior Court (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 536, 539-540, 116 Cal. Rptr. 93], when a complaint is directed at the manner rather than the actual service of a prior complaint [Golden v. Dungan (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 295, 302, 97 Cal. Rptr. 577], when a judgment creditor examines a judgment debtor and telephones third parties who may be indebted to the judgment debtor even if such examination is done with bad intentions [Kyne v. Eustice (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 627, 633, 30 Cal. Rptr. 391], when a cross complaint alleges only that the primary action only commenced to harass and cause defendant financial loss [Muller v. Muller (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 731, 733, 23 Cal. Rptr. 900], when a right to appeal is exercised even though with an alleged malicious intent [Coleman v. Gulf Ins. Group (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 782, 792-793, 226 Cal. Rptr. 90, 718 P.2d 77 ; Tellefsen v. Key Sys. Transit Lines (1961) 198 Cal. App. 2d 611, 613, 17 Cal. Rptr. 919], and when a creditor levies an attachment that destroys the debtor financially but that is within the creditor's rights [Pimentel v. Houk (1951) 101 Cal. App. 2d 884, 886, 226 P.2d 739].

Continuing to pursue litigation that has been determined to be meritless, such as through the filing of an amended complaint or a motion for attorney's fees, is not actionable as an abuse of process, although it may be actionable under a cause of action for malicious prosecution [Ramona Unified School Dist. v. Tsiknas (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 510, 521, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 381]. The fact that a plaintiff chooses to file an amended complaint, rather than appeal an adverse decision rendered against a prior complaint, does not render the action subject to an abuseof process claim, even if the amended complaint is frivolous [Ramona Unified School Dist. v. Tsiknas (2005) 135 Cal. App. 4th 510, 521, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 381].

[2] No Action Under Judicial Authority

The gravamen of a complaint for abuse of process is the misuse of the power of the court [see Meadows v. Bakersfield Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 749, 753, 59 Cal. Rptr. 34]. However, before the power of the court can be abused, process must issue. If no process issues, there can be no abuse of process and, therefore, no tort. "Process" has been defined as action taken pursuant to judicial authority, either directly or by ancillary proceedings [see, e.g., Adams v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 521, 530, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 49 ; Meadows v. Bakersfield Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 749, 753, 59 Cal. Rptr. 34]. Process is not action taken without reference to the power of the court [Adams v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 521, 530, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 49]. Thus, serving a plaintiff with a false notice that a bench warrant has been issued is not process, because in making the false statement the defendant took no action pursuant to court authority [Carney v. Rotkin, Schmerin & McIntyre (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1513, 1526, 254 Cal. Rptr. 478]. Similarly, recording a notice of default and publishing a notice of trustee's sale pursuant to the terms of a deed of trust is not process, because it is not action taken pursuant to court authority, directly or by ancillary proceedings [Meadows v. Bakersfield Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 749, 753, 59 Cal. Rptr. 34 ; see also Palmer v. Zaklama (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1367, 1380-1381, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116 (recording of notice of lis pendens is not "process")]. Finally, a motion filed by a party to an ongoing action to reconsider an order to reduce or expunge a felony conviction in criminal litigation to which the movant is not a party, is not process, especially when it does not produce any act of judicial authority, such as a writ or order, that is then subsequently abused [Adams v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 521, 530, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 49 (motion to reconsider denied)].

Abuse of process may consist of a threat that process will be invoked for an improper purpose. Therefore, it could also consist of an attempt to invoke process for an improper purpose. However, process must in fact issue at a defendant's behest before a cause of action will lie [see Adams v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 521, 531, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 49].

Specific instances of process are discussed in § 357.52. For a listing of cases both finding and declining to find process, see § 357.90 et seq.

§ 357.54 Malicious Prosecution Distinguished

Abuse of process differs from malicious prosecution in that the gist of the tort is not commencing an action or causing process to issue without justification, but misusing or misapplying process justified in itself for an end other than that which it was designed to accomplish. The purpose for which the process is used, once it is issued, is the only thing of importance. Consequently, in an action for abuse of process, it is unnecessary for the plaintiff to prove either that the proceeding has terminated in his or her favor or that it was obtained without probable cause or in the course of a proceeding begun without probable cause [Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 210, 232, 317 P.2d 613 ; Tellefsen v. Key Sys. Transit Lines (1961) 198 Cal. App. 2d 611, 615, 17 Cal. Rptr. 919].

The damages recoverable for abuse of process include mental suffering [Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 210, 233, 317 P.2d 613]. Emotional distress damages may be recovered as compensatory damages for abuse of process even if the plaintiff has no viable cause of action for negligent or intentional infliction of emotional distress [Yu v. Signet Bank/Virginia (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 298, 321, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 516]. However, a corporate plaintiff cannot sustain mental suffering [Templeton Feed & Grain v. Ralston Purina Co. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 461, 468, 72 Cal. Rptr. 344, 446 P.2d 152].

A plaintiff may also recover punitive damages where the defendant has acted willfully with the wrongful intention of injuring plaintiff and from an improper or evil motive amounting to malice [Templeton Feed & Grain v. Ralston Purina Co. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 461, 471, 72 Cal. Rptr. 344, 446 P.2d 152]. In addition, malice may be inferred from the defendant's conduct in order to make a case for punitive damages [Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 210, 230, 317 P.2d 613].

[1] Availability

The absolute privilege applicable to publications made in the course of judicial proceedings under Civ. Code § 47(b) applies to the tort of abuse of process, as well as to defamation actions [Adams v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 521, 528-529, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 49 ; Younger v. Solomon (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 289, 300-301, 113 Cal. Rptr. 113 ; Thornton v. Rhoden (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 80, 94, 53 Cal. Rptr. 706].

For the privilege to be operative, the publication must have some bearing on or connection with the subject matter of the litigation [Adams v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 521, 529, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 49 ; Younger v. Solomon (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 289, 301-302, 113 Cal. Rptr. 113].

Specifically, the privilege attaches if the publication [Profile Structures, Inc. v. Long Beach Bldg. Material Co. (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 437, 441-444, 226 Cal. Rptr. 192]:

- Was made in a judicial proceeding;
- Had some connection or logical relation to the action;
- Was made to achieve the objects of the litigation; and
- Involved litigants or other participants authorized by law.

The privilege is broadly applied to protect most publications within lawsuits, as long as there is some connection between the lawsuit and the publication. Any doubt as to whether the privilege applies is resolved in favor of applying it [Adams v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 521, 529, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 49].

For example, the privilege precludes a cause of action for abuse of process based on a complaint's factual allegations in support of a claim for punitive damages (such as alleging malicious, intentional, willful, wanton, and reckless acts) even though under existing statutory and case law the plaintiff could not in any circumstances recover punitive damages, regardless of whether the allegations are true [Umansky v. Urquhart (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 368, 372, 148 Cal. Rptr. 547 (action by heirs against physician for wrongful death of plaintiffs' decedent)].

The litigation privilege may be used as a defense to an abuse of process claim that is based on actions taken to enforce a judgment. The California Supreme Court has held that if the gravamen of the action is a communicative act, the litigation privilege extends to noncommunicative acts that are necessarily related to the communicative conduct, including acts necessary to enforce a judgment [Rusheen v. Cohen (2006) 37 Cal. 4th 1048, 1065, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 516, 128 P.3d 713]. In that case, the Court held that the gravamen of the action was the filing of declarations of service in order to obtain a default judgment, and this was privileged communicative conduct. Although the declarations were alleged to have been false, because the gravamen of the action was based on this privileged communicative conduct, subsequent noncommunicative conduct taken to enforce the default judgment, which included application for writ of execution and the act of levying on property, was also privileged and could not support an abuse of process claim [Rusheen v. Cohen (2006) 37 Cal. 4th 1048, 1065, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 516, 128 P.3d 713 ; see also Brown v. Kennard (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 40, 47-51, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 891 ; O'Keefe v. Kompa (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 130, 134, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602]. The Court noted that although extending the litigation privilege has the effect of limiting these types of abuse of process claims, an aggrieved party has other remedies that do not involve another round of litigation. These remedies could include moving to set aside the judgment, posting an undertaking or seeking a writ of supersedeas to counter enforcement efforts, or filing a claim of exemption from execution of the judgment [see Rusheen v. Cohen (2006) 37 Cal. 4th 1048, 1064, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 516, 128 P.3d 713].

The assertion of a lien that is permitted by statute is a privileged communication under the litigation privilege [see, e.g., Olszewski v. Scripps Health (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 798, 831, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 69 P.3d 927]. However, not all litigation-related conduct will constitute communicative conduct protected by the privilege. For example, delaying service of process in one lawsuit with knowledge that another identical complaint has already been filed and served by a different plaintiff, with the ulterior motive of obtaining a larger settlement than would be obtained had defendant known of the second claim when settling the first, is non-communicative conduct that is unprotected by the litigation privilege [Booker v. Rountree (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 1366, 1372-1373, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 733] .

For further discussion of absolute privilege under Civ. Code § 47(b), see Ch. 340, Libel and Slander .

[2] Not an Evidentiary Privilege

Code Civ. Proc. § 47(b) does not, however, create an evidentiary privilege for statements made in the course of judicial proceedings. Accordingly, when, for example, allegations of misconduct properly put an individual's intent at issue in a civil action, statements made during the course of a judicial proceeding may be used for evidentiary purposes in determining whether the individual acted with the requisite intent. Hence, if the filing and pursuit of a civil action could support a cause of action for abuse of process, Civ. Code § 47(b) would not prevent the plaintiff from making evidentiary use of the defendant's statements during settlement negotiations to prove the intent with which the defendant's conduct was undertaken [Oren Royal Oaks Venture v. Greenberg, Bernhard, Weiss & Karma, Inc. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 1157, 1168, 232 Cal. Rptr. 567, 728 P.2d 1202 (tracing history of former Civ. Code § 47(2) (now see Civ. Code § 47(b)) and its applicability to abuse of process actions, but declining to rule on whether former Civ. Code § 47(2) applied in abuse of process context)].

[3] Effect of Defendant's Standing

A lack of standing on the part of the defendant to, in fact, publish material or make statements claimed to be privileged does not necessarily vitiate application of the privilege to that defendant [Adams v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 521, 532, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 49]. Thus, in a case in which the abuse of process defendants, who were counsel to parties adverse to plaintiff in an ongoing lawsuit, filed motions to reconsider orders to reduce or expunge the abuse of process plaintiff's felony convictions in unrelated criminal proceedings to which the defendants were not parties, the fact that one of the motions was denied for lack of standing on the part of defendants did not destroy the privilege applicable to the motions. In holding that the privilege applied, the court reasoned that the motions were connected to the ongoing lawsuit between the parties because that lawsuit involved allegations of fraud in connection with a real estate transaction. Furthermore, to hold the privilege inapplicable would be tantamount to rendering any attempt to intervene in a lawsuit actionable abuse of process. Finally, the court noted that the courts with jurisdiction over the criminal proceedings had inherently broad powers to control the proceedings before them, and could therefore remedy any abusive interference in those proceedings [Adams v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 521, 531-532, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 49].

The two-year (one-year, prior to January 1, 2003) period of limitations set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1 [see former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3); Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions, § 345.14] is applicable to action filed for abuse of process [Thornton v. Rhoden (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 80, 95, 53 Cal. Rptr. 706 ; McFaddin v. H.S. Crocker Co. (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 585, 590-591, 33 Cal. Rptr. 389].

The limitation period begins when the abuse of process occurs or, if the injury to the plaintiff does not occur at the time the abuse of processoccurs, the limitation period begins when the injury occurs [Cantu v. Resolution Trust Corp. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 857, 887, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151].

§ 357.72 Decisions

[1] Absolute Privilege Not Available

Absolute privilege under former Civ. Code § 47(2) (now see Civ. Code § 47(b)) as not available in malicious prosecution actions. Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375, 382, 295 P.2d 405 ; Brody v. Montalbano (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 725, 736, 151 Cal. Rptr. 206

Privilege set forth by former Civ. Code § 47(2) (now see Civ. Code § 47(b)) to publications or broadcasts made in legislative, judicial, and other official proceedings as applicable not only in defamation case but in any other action except one for malicious prosecution. Pettitt v. Levy (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 484, 488-491 , 104 Cal. Rptr. 650

[2] Alternative Theories of Recovery or Charges Actionable

Alternative theories of recovery as actionable where maliciously asserted. Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 43, 57, 57 n.5, 118 Cal. Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608

Maliciously joined unjustified criminal charge as actionable. Singleton v. Perry (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 489, 497-498, 289 P.2d 794

[3] Cross Complaints Actionable

Cross complaints filed maliciously as actionable. Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 43, 50-53, 118 Cal. Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608

Defendant in main action as prohibited from cross complaining in main action. Babb v. Superior Court (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 841, 846, 92 Cal. Rptr. 179, 479 P.2d 379

Defendant in main action as permitted to cross complain in main action following favorable termination, such as dismissal of plaintiff's complaint. Loomis v. Murphy (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 589, 593, 266 Cal. Rptr. 82

[5] Damage Without a Wrong Possible

No one as capable of recovering damages for legal arrest unless elements of tort proved; legal arrest without presence of elements as damage without a wrong. Maxon v. Security Ins. Co. (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 603, 614, 29 Cal. Rptr. 586

[6] Damages

[a] Compensatory

Compensatory damages as including out of pocket expenditures such as attorney's fees, other legal fees, business loss, general harm to reputation, social standing and credit, and mental and bodily harm. Allard v. Church of Scientology of Cal. (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 439, 451, 129 Cal. Rptr. 797

Nature of damages recoverable in malicious prosecution actions. Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 43, 51, 59, 118 Cal. Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608 ; Singleton v. Perry (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 489, 495, 289 P.2d 794 ; Davis v. Local Union No. 11, Int'l Bhd. of Elec. Workers, AFL-CIO (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 686, 695-696

Malice as required to be proven against particular defendant in order to justify award of compensatory damages against that defendant. Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 541-542, 222 P.2d 136

Principal injury resulting from malicious prosecution of criminal charge as injury to feelings and reputation of defendant therein. Maxon v. Security Ins. Co. (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 603, 613, 29 Cal. Rptr. 586

[b] Punitive Damages

Person who flagrantly abuses judicial process as liable for punitive damages. Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 43, 65, 118 Cal. Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608

Awarding of punitive damages as requiring showing of malice in fact. Bertero v. National General Corp. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 43, 66, 118 Cal. Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608

Wealth of defendant as factor in award of punitive damages. Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 43, 65, 118 Cal. Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608

Jury award of punitive damages as properly reduced by court when award does not bear reasonable relationship to defendant's assets or annual income. Gerard v. Ross (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 968, 978-980, 251 Cal. Rptr. 604

[7] Defenses

[a] Advise of Counsel

[i] In General

Probable cause as established by malicious prosecution defendants when they prove that they have in good faith consulted a lawyer, have stated all the facts to him or her, have been advised by the lawyer that they have a good cause of action, and have honestly acted on the advice of the lawyer. Lucchesi v. Giannini & Uniack (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 777, 788, 205 Cal. Rptr. 62

Reliance in good faith on advice of counsel as defense inasmuch as it shows probable cause. Kennedy v. Byrum (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 474, 481, 20 Cal. Rptr. 98

Advice of counsel as presumed to be complete defense where defendant presented all facts in good faith to counsel. Brinkley v. Appleby (1960) 276 Cal. App. 2d 244, 247, 80 Cal. Rptr. 734

Defense as especially applicable where facts presented to prosecutor. Walker v. Jensen (1949) 95 Cal. App. 2d 269, 274, 212 P.2d 569

Defense as available no matter how erroneous advice may have been where public prosecutor consulted. Richter v. Neilson (1936) 11 Cal. App. 2d 503, 508, 54 P.2d 54

Burden of proving defense as on defendant. Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 43, 54, 118 Cal. Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608

[iii] Limitations

Defense of advice of counsel as not applicable where initiator of action acts in bad faith or withholds vital facts from counsel or where advice sought as cloak to protect one against suit for malicious prosecution. Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 43, 53-54, 118 Cal. Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608

Defense as not available where defendant does not believe accused to be guilty. Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 545, 222 P.2d 136

Defense that probable cause is based on advice of counsel as failing where there are any circumstances within knowledge of prosecuting witness which would destroy apparent effect of facts stated by witness to attorney. Northrup v. Baker (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 347, 355, 20 Cal. Rptr. 797

[iv] Question of Fact

Whether there was full and fair disclosure of all facts to counsel and whether counsel gave any advice as question of fact. Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 545, 222 P.2d 136

[b] Attorney's Reasonable Belief

Adequacy of attorney's research as not relevant to probable cause determination. Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal. 3d 863, 883, 883 n.9, 254 Cal. Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498 (disapproving Tool Research & Eng'g Corp. v. Henigson (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 675, 120 Cal. Rptr. 291 to extent that it reached contrary conclusions)

When facts known by attorney are not in dispute, probable cause issue as properly determined by trial court under objective standard; probable cause determination as not including determination of whether attorney subjectively believed that prior claim was legally tenable. Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal. 3d 863, 881, 883 n.9, 254 Cal. Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498 (disapproving Tool Research & Eng'g Corp. v. Henigson (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 675, 120 Cal. Rptr. 291 to extent that it reached contrary conclusions)

Governmental entities as not permitted to sue for malicious prosecution. City of Long Beach v. Bozek (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 527, 538-539, 183 Cal. Rptr. 86, 645 P.2d 137 , cert. granted and opinion vacated, 459 U.S. 1095, 103 S. Ct. 712, 74 L. Ed. 2d 943 (1983) , opinion reinstated, 33 Cal. 3d 727, 190 Cal. Rptr. 918, 661 P.2d 1072 (1983)

Negation of one of elements of cause of action as full defense. Jaffe v. Stone (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 146, 159, 114 P.2d 335

[d] Honest Statement of Facts

Person as not liable for laying out facts for public officials where action is in good faith. Gogue v. MacDonald (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 482, 486-487, 218 P.2d 542

[e] Immunity of Public Employees

County employee acting within scope of employment as immune from claim of malicious prosecution under Gov. Code § 821.6 for initiating criminal prosecution against plaintiff, to whom county detective had previously granted immunity from prosecution; county as consequently immune also under Gov. Code § 815.2(b). Scannell v. County of Riverside (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 596, 604, 199 Cal. Rptr. 644

Immunity of public employee as extending only to proceedings instituted within scope of employment. Vivell v. Belmont (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 38, 40-41, 78 Cal. Rptr. 841

School officials as immune from malicious prosecution suit. Hardy v. Vial (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 577, 582-584, 311 P.2d 494

Deputy sheriffs and city policeman as immune from malicious prosecution suit. Coverstone v. Davies (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 315, 322, 239 P.2d 876

Investigator for Fish and Game Commission as immune from malicious prosecution suit. White v. Towers (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 727, 731-732, 235 P.2d 209

Court marshal as immune from malicious prosecution suit. Keylon v. Kelley (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 490, 493-494, 10 Cal. Rptr. 549

Immunity as not extending to city councilman seeking prosecution of citizen for private gain. Vivell v. Belmont (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 38, 41, 78 Cal. Rptr. 841 (dictum); Scannell v. County of Riverside (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 596, 604-605, 199 Cal. Rptr. 644

County building inspector and supervisors as immune from malicious prosecution suit. Dawson v. Martin (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 379, 381-382, 309 P.2d 915

Immunity as not extending to police officer who maliciously and without cause initiates prosecution against citizen. Prentice v. Bertken (1942) 50 Cal. App. 2d 344, 349, 123 P.2d 96

[f] Immunity of Public Entity

Combined effect of Gov. Code §§ 815.2(b), 821.6 as immunizing public entity from liability from malicious prosecution suits. Blackburn v. Los Angeles County (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 175, 176-178, 116 Cal. Rptr. 622 ; Vivell v. Belmont (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 38, 40-41, 78 Cal. Rptr. 841

County as immune from malicious prosecution suits; immunity as capable of being raised by demurrer as well as by answer. Dawson v. Martin (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 379, 381-382, 309 P.2d 915

Malicious motive is not important if legal ground for action existed. Paskle v. Williams (1931) 214 Cal. 482, 487, 6 P.2d 505

Grant of nonsuit in malicious prosecution action was appropriate because, based on undisputed facts, it was objectively reasonable to suspect that plaintiff had committed underlying crime; when plaintiff was detained by security at amusement park with probable cause to believe that plaintiff had committed some crime by surreptitiously videotaping young boys, uncertainty as to precise crime committed was irrelevant to determination of probable cause. Ecker v. Raging Waters Group, Inc. (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 1320, 1332, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 320

Existence of probable cause as complete defense to action for malicious prosecution. Walsh v. Bronson (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 259, 264, 245 Cal.Rptr. 888 ; Kassan v. Bledsoe (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 810, 815-816, 60 Cal. Rptr. 799

Probable cause as established by showing offense charged was committed even though jury acquitted plaintiffs of it. Verdier v. Verdier (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 348, 353, 313 P.2d 123

Defendant in malicious prosecution action as always able to show plaintiff was in fact guilty of offense charged; this defense as analogous to defense of truth in actions for defamation. Clary v. Hale (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 880, 889-890, 1 Cal. Rptr. 91

Knowledge of facts as time prosecution initiated as that which constitutes probable cause and not that knowledge acquired later. Centers v. Dollar Markets (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 543, 222 P.2d 136 ; Hudson v. Zumwalt (1944) 64 Cal. App. 2d 866, 872, 149 P.2d 457

Defendant as not required to have exhausted all sources of information bearing on relevant facts to have probable cause. Brock v. Southern Pac. Co. (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 182, 199, 195 P.2d 66

Prima facie showing of probable cause as established by proof of fact that at preliminary defense hearing accused was duly held by magistrate for trial; mere fact of acquittal of defendant on trial of criminal charge as not prima facie evidence of want of probable cause for prosecution. Randleman v. Boeres (1928) 93 Cal. App. 745, 752-753, 270 P. 374

Doctrine of res judicata as barring relitigation of malicious prosecution claim. Aronow v. LaCroix (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1039, 1046-1053, 268 Cal. Rptr. 866

[i] Unclean Hands

When applying equitable doctrine of "unclean hands" to malicious prosecution action, conduct supporting defense must bear direct relationship to claim, although conduct need not relate directly to defendant's decision to file underlying action. Kendall-Jackson Winery, Ltd. v. Superior Court (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 970, 984-987, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 743

Unclean hands defense as applicable if plaintiff's malicious prosecution action relates to his or her unconscientious conduct in underlying litigation. De Rosa v. Transamerica Title Ins. Co. (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 1390, 1396-1397, 262 Cal. Rptr. 370

Summary judgment for defendant as proper under doctrine of unclean hands when plaintiff failed to disclose crucial information that might have led to different result in action on prior prosecution. Pond v. Ins. Co. of N. Am. (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 280, 292, 198 Cal. Rptr. 517

[8] Definition

Definition of malicious prosecution. Singleton v. Perry (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 489, 494, 289 P.2d 794 (criminal)

Elements of tort. Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 43, 50, 118 Cal. Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608 ; Jaffe v. Stone (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 146, 159, 114 P.2d 335 ; Zeavin v. Lee (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 766, 769, 186 Cal. Rptr. 545

In action for malicious prosecution resulting from defendant's having initiated criminal proceedings against plaintiff, plaintiff as having burden to demonstrate (1) institution of criminal proceedings at instigation of defendants, (2) termination of those proceedings favorable to plaintiff, (3) lack of probable cause, and (4) malice. Williams v. Taylor (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 745, 754, 181 Cal. Rptr. 423

Essential element of tort as not established when association of which defendants allegedly were members, and not defendants themselves, brought prior action. Iram Enterprises v. Veditz (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 603, 608, 179 Cal. Rptr. 1

False imprisonment distinguished from malicious prosecution. Singleton v. Perry (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 489, 494-495, 289 P.2d 794 ; Collins v. City & County of San Francisco (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 671, 676, 123 Cal. Rptr. 525 ; Scannell v. County of Riverside (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 596, 607-608, 199 Cal. Rptr. 644

Malicious prosecution distinguished from false imprisonment; termination of prosecution favorable to person prosecuted as essential to claim of malicious prosecution, whereas subsequent exoneration of arrestee as having no bearing on validity of arrest for purposes of false imprisonment. Gomez v. Garcia (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 392, 399, 169 Cal. Rptr. 350

False imprisonment and malicious prosecution as mutually inconsistent; plaintiff as sometimes required to elect upon which count to go to the jury. Collins v. City & County of San Francisco (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 671, 676, 123 Cal. Rptr. 525 ; Bulkley v. Klein (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 742, 747, 23 Cal. Rptr. 855

[11] Favorable Termination

[a] In General

Termination by bar of statute of limitations as not reflecting on merits of action and thus not constituting favorable termination for purposes of malicious prosecution action. Lackner v. LaCroix (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 747, 752, 159 Cal. Rptr. 693, 602 P.2d 393 ; Warren v. Wasserman, Comden & Casselman (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1297, 1302, 1303, 271 Cal. Rptr. 579

Final termination not required; legal termination as sufficient. Jaffe v. Stone (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 146, 157, 114 P.2d 335 ; MacDonald v. Joslyn (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 282, 289, 79 Cal. Rptr. 707

Because favorable termination reflecting on merits of underlying action was proven, this favorable termination as not affected by settlement not reflecting on merits reached in separate and independent, but related, action between malicious prosecution plaintiff and party who was not malicious prosecution defendant. Sierra Club Found. v. Graham (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1135, 1152, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726

Summary judgment for malicious prosecution plaintiff in underlying action as not favorable termination for purposes of malicious prosecution action because underlying judgment was based on statute of frauds and parol evidence rule and therefore grounds for judgment were primarily procedural in nature. Hall v. Harker (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 836, 844-845, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 44 , overruled in part, Casa Herrera, Inc. v. Beydoun (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 336 , to extent Hall held that judgment based on application of parol evidence rule does not constitute favorable termination for purposes of malicious prosecution action)

Voluntary dismissal of underlying action due to technical or procedural defect in action does not supply requisite favorable termination. Eells v. Rosenblum (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1848, 1855, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 323 (dismissal because initial filing was premature)

Underlying suit terminated by settlement, even if plaintiff in malicious prosecution action paid nothing in settlement, as not constituting favorable termination. Pender v. Radin (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1807, 1816-1817, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 36

Underlying state court cross action as favorably terminated although cross plaintiff filed for bankruptcy protection before entry of judgment, since cross plaintiff's motion for summary judgment was heard, orally granted, and documented by minute order. Shorr v. Kind (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 249, 253-254, 259, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 192

Voluntary dismissal of civil action as not constituting favorable termination when dismissal was not on merits and resulted from practical decision that further litigation was too expensive to pursue. Oprian v. Goldrich, Kest & Assocs. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 337, 345, 269 Cal. Rptr. 429

Expert testimony of attorneys who participated in underlying action as admissible to show whether or not voluntary dismissal constituted favorable termination. Leonardini v. Shell Oil Co. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 547, 583, 264 Cal. Rptr. 883

When underlying action alleges multiple, severable causes of action that could have been subject of separate proceedings, favorable termination of severable cause of action as sufficient basis for malicious prosecution action.

Paramount Gen. Hosp. Co. v. Jay (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 360, 372, 261 Cal. Rptr. 723

Voluntary dismissal of defendant in underlying action as not constituting termination in favor of defendant when plaintiff's purpose for dismissing defendant was to effect settlement with another defendant in same action. Haight v. Handweiler (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 85, 88-89, 244 Cal. Rptr. 488

Favorable termination requirement as met in declaratory relief action when court declines to make declaration sought by defendant and instead issues declaratory judgment favoring adversarial position of plaintiff. Camarena v. Sequoia Ins. Co. (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1089, 1099-1100, 235 Cal. Rptr. 820

Dismissal of underlying action on ground that defendant-attorney's allegedly defamatory statement is privileged under former Civ. Code § 47(2) (now see Civ. Code § 47(b)) as favorable termination for purposes of malicious prosecution action subsequently brought by attorney. Berman v. RCA Auto Corp. (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 321, 323-327, 222 Cal. Rptr. 877

Demurrer without leave to amend as proper when action still pending on appeal, because there has been no favorable termination. Friedman v. Stadum (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 775, 779, 217 Cal. Rptr. 585

Trial court as properly sustaining demurrer to complaint for malicious prosecution without leave to amend when statute of limitations barred action; bar raised by statute of limitations as not reflecting on merits of action and thus as not constituting favorable termination for purposes of subsequent malicious prosecution action. Drasin v. Jacoby & Meyers (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 481, 483-484, 197 Cal. Rptr. 768

Dismissal as not favorable termination when based on the successful raising of the defense of laches since such dismissal does not reflect in any way on merits of action. Asia Inv. Co. v. Borowski (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 832, 838, 184 Cal. Rptr. 317

Judgment based on evidence presented, even if judgment also resulted from sanctions for failure to produce witness and evidence statement required under economical litigation project, as favorable termination. Lumpkin v. Friedman (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 450, 455-456, 182 Cal. Rptr. 378

Whether or not judicial arbitration award denying plaintiff's claim followed by plaintiff's failure to seek trial de novo constitutes favorable termination as depending on whether or not facts show that conclusion of proceedings reflects defendant's innocence of wrongdoing. Stanley v. Superior Court (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 460, 465-466, 181 Cal. Rptr. 878

Whether voluntary dismissal with prejudice was unfavorable determination as question of fact. Weaver v. Superior Court (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 166, 185, 156 Cal. Rptr. 745

Final termination requirement as satisfied in civil action where plaintiff must institute another action to try issues presented. Rich v. Siegel (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 465, 469, 86 Cal. Rptr. 665 ; Kennedy v. Byrum (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 474, 480, 20 Cal. Rptr. 98

Final termination requirement as satisfied in criminal action where prosecutor must institute proceedings de novo. Hurgren v. Union Mut. Life Ins. Co. (1904) 141 Cal. 585, 588, 75 P. 168

Dismissal as not favorable termination where it was on technical grounds, for procedural reasons, or for any other reason not inconsistent with person's guilt. Jaffe v. Stone (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 146, 157, 114 P.2d 335

Favorable termination requirement as not met where termination brought about either by procurement of defendant therein or by compromise and settlement. Paskle v. Williams (1931) 214 Cal. 482, 484, 6 P.2d 505

Plaintiff as bearing burden of proving favorable termination of prior proceedings. Kassan v. Bledsoe (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 810, 812, 60 Cal. Rptr. 799

[c] Effect of Requirement

Defendant in principal action as not capable of instituting malicious prosecution action since adverse judgment operates to establish conclusively that plaintiff had probable cause. Babb v. Superior Court (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 841, 847, 92 Cal. Rptr. 179, 479 P.2d 379

[d] Examples for Civil Actions

Voluntary dismissal of civil action as favorable termination on which action for malicious prosecution may be based. Hurgren v. Union Mut. Life Ins. Co. (1904) 141 Cal. 585, 587-590, 75 P. 168 ; Kennedy v. Byrum (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 474, 477, 479-480, 20 Cal. Rptr. 98

In malicious prosecution action against attorney based on attorney's representation of client in prior suit, dismissal of prior action for client's refusal to cooperate with attorney or make discovery as not favorable termination. Zeavin v. Lee (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 766, 771, 186 Cal. Rptr. 545

Voluntary dismissal of civil action as favorable termination which will support action for malicious prosecution even though expressly made without prejudice. MacDonald v. Joslyn (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 282, 289, 79 Cal. Rptr. 707

Dismissal of contempt proceedings ancillary to probate proceedings as favorable termination on which to bring malicious prosecution action. Ferraris v. Levy (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 408, 410-411, 36 Cal. Rptr. 30

Dismissal of contempt proceeding ancillary to a bankruptcy proceeding which was dismissed by mutual consent after a compromise of conflicting claims as not a favorable termination. Eustace v. Dechter (1942) 53 Cal. App. 2d 726, 732-733, 128 P.2d 367

Where facts alleged and judicially noticed in action against persons who won prior judgments based on false document and perjured testimony were not sufficient to warrant setting aside prior judgments, such facts could not serve as basis for action for damages on theory of fraud or malicious prosecution. Kachig v. Boothe (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 626, 636-641, 99 Cal. Rptr. 393

Favorable termination as not possible where action still pending. Rich v. Siegel (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 465, 469, 86 Cal. Rptr. 665

[e] Examples for Criminal Actions

Favorable termination in criminal action as required to indicate innocence of accused if no trial occurred. Jaffe v. Stone (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 146, 150, 114 P.2d 335

That proceedings should have gone so far as to preclude further prosecution on ground of double jeopardy as not necessary in order that there may be sufficient termination in favor of accused for malicious prosecution action. Jaffe v. Stone (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 146, 156, 114 P.2d 335

When defendant in criminal proceeding entered plea of nolo contendere to one or more charges in accusatory pleading pursuant to a plea bargain, dismissal of criminal charges remaining as not constituting favorabletermination. Cote v. Henderson (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 796, 804, 267 Cal. Rptr. 274

Favorable termination as sufficiently stated by allegation of dismissal of underlying criminal action on basis of known prior grant of immunity to accused. Scannell v. County of Riverside (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 596, 612-614, 199 Cal. Rptr. 644

Dismissal by prosecutor in interests of justice and for lack of sufficient evidence as constituting favorable termination. Jackson v. Beckham (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 264, 270, 31 Cal. Rptr. 739

Dismissal by magistrate at preliminary hearing based on insufficiency of evidence as favorable termination unless further proceedings growing out of same misconduct have been instituted. Jaffe v. Stone (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 146, 151, 156, 114 P.2d 335

Acquittal is ordinarily necessary foundation for malicious prosecution suit when criminal proceeding goes to trial. Jaffe v. Stone (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 146, 150, 114 P.2d 335

Dismissal by court for lack of evidence is favorable termination of criminal action. Bulkley v. Klein (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 742, 750, 23 Cal. Rptr. 855

Dismissal of criminal proceeding by prosecutor "in the interests of justice" is not favorable termination when innocence of accused not indicated by record. De La Riva v. Owl Drug Co. (1967) 253 Cal. App. 2d 593, 599-600, 61 Cal. Rptr. 291

Dismissal of criminal proceeding after issuance of writ of habeas corpus is favorable termination. Holliday v. Holliday (1898) 123 Cal. 26, 31, 55 P. 703

[f] Theory Underlying Requirement

Favorable termination indicates absence of probable cause, supported by doctrine of finality of judgments. Kachig v. Boothe (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 626, 639, 99 Cal. Rptr. 393

[12] Lack of Probable Cause

[a] In General

Underlying claims brought under unfair competition statute were objectively tenable and therefore sufficient to defeat malicious prosecution action, because it could not be said that all reasonable lawyers would have agreed that underlying claims lacked merit. Paulus v. Bob Lynch Ford, Inc. (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 659, 680-684, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 148

Although probable cause may have supported underlying conversion action, malicious prosecution action could be prosecuted if no probable cause existed to add underlying negligence and fraud claims. Videotape Plus, Inc. v. Lyons (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 156, 161-162, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1

Denial of defendant's motion for summary judgment in underlying civil action will normally be sufficient to establish probable cause for bringing underlying action. Roberts v. Sentry Life Ins. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 375, 384, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 408

Trial court's granting of plaintiff's motion under Penal Code § 995 to dismiss underlying criminal action insufficient to establish that defendant lacked probable cause to bring action. Cummings v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 1407, 1421, 249 Cal. Rptr. 568

Denial of motions for summary judgment and nonsuit in prior action insufficient to show as matter of law that probable cause for prior action existed. Lucchesi v. Giannini & Uniack (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 777, 788, 205 Cal. Rptr. 62 ; but see Roberts v. Sentry Life Ins. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 375, 384, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 408 (questioning continued viability of Lucchesi, which was decided when probable cause included element of subjective good faith)

Lack of probable cause sufficiently stated in allegation that private defendant filed criminal complaint against plaintiff in face of knowledge that prosecution could not succeed because of prior grant of immunity of prosecution. Scannell v. County of Riverside (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 596, 610-611, 199 Cal. Rptr. 644

Plaintiff's acquittal of criminal charge not evidence of lack of probable cause; abandonment of criminal proceeding by public prosecutor is matter not subject to consideration by court in malicious prosecution action in determining existence of probable cause if prosecutor acted on own initiative; same is true when prosecutor decides to dismiss charges on which magistrate refused to bind plaintiff over for trial while binding plaintiff over on other charges, rather than reallege them in information, when magistrate refrained from ruling on merits of charges on which plaintiff was not bound over for trial. Williams v. Taylor (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 745, 755, 181 Cal. Rptr. 423

Definition for civil action. Davis v. Local Union No. 11, Int'l Bhd. of Elec. Workers, AFL-CIO (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 686, 692 ; Kennedy v. Byrum (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 474, 480, 20 Cal. Rptr. 98

Definition for criminal action. Kincaid v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 733, 741, 66 Cal. Rptr. 915

Probable cause for instituting insanity proceedings require facts that would lead reasonably prudent man to believe that person was insane. Rouse v. Twin Pines Sanitarium, Inc. (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 639, 642-643, 328 P.2d 536

Probable cause is not legal cause. Albertson v. Raboff (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 372, 385, 8 Cal. Rptr. 398

Fact that lawsuit was unsuccessful does not justify inference that it was brought without probable cause. Masterson v. Pig'n Whistle Corp. (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 323, 335, 326 P.2d 918

Probable cause in criminal action not equivalent to possessing facts that satisfactorily prove guilt of accused person. Northrup v. Baker (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 347, 354, 20 Cal. Rptr. 797 ; Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 540-541, 222 P.2d 136

Person capable of acting on what appears to be true even if it turns out to be false. Fry v. Bank of Am. (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 150, 156, 298 P.2d 34

Good faith is independent element of probable cause in malicious prosecution cases actual and honest belief in guilt of plaintiff; is integral part of good faith. Klotz v. Alexander (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 238, 243, 21 Cal. Rptr. 305

[b] Burden of Proof

Plaintiff bears burden of proving lack of probable cause on part of defendant. Kassan v. Bledsoe (1967) 252 Cal. App.

2d 810, 812, 60 Cal. Rptr. 799 ; Walker v. Jensen (1949) 95 Cal. App. 2d 269, 212 P.2d 569

[c] Evidence

Plaintiff failed to create triable dispute about lack of probable cause for filing underlying action, despite conflicting evidence about whether evidence was fabricated in underlying action, when other, undisputed evidence provided objectively reasonable basis for bringing underlying causes of action. Sangster v. Paetkau (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 151, 167-168, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 66

Defendant's evidence regarding basis of administrative action to deny hospital surgery privileges to dentist established probable cause as matter of law; plaintiff's evidence challenging defendant's conclusion insufficient to establish triable issue of fact regarding reasonableness of defendant's decision. Nicholson v. Lucas (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1657, 1666-1671, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 778

Plaintiff required to present substantial evidence to create conflict or inference of lack of probable cause. Davis v. Local Union No. 11, Int'l Bhd. of Elec. Workers, AFL-CIO (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 686, 692 ; Kassan v. Bledsoe (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 810, 816, 60 Cal. Rptr. 799

Proof that no crime committed or that accused innocent does not necessarily negate existence of probable cause. Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 541, 222 P.2d 136

Question of plaintiff's guilt permitted to be retried in malicious prosecution action; thus, while unreversed conviction conclusive as to guilt, barring malicious prosecution, acquittal as not conclusive as to plaintiff's innocence. Clary v. Hale (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 880, 889-890, 1 Cal. Rptr. 91

Court's order of commitment to mental institution is bar to action for malicious prosecution based on institution of insanity proceeding. Rouse v. Twin Pines Sanitarium, Inc. (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 639, 642-643, 328 P.2d 536

[d] No Inference From Malice

Lack of probable cause not implied from even most express malice. Kassan v. Bledsoe (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 810, 816, 60 Cal. Rptr. 799 ; Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1960) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 542, 222 P.2d 136

[e] Question of Law or Fact

Probable cause always properly determined by court, although resolution of preliminary facts may be submitted to jury when factual dispute exists. Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal. 3d 863, 884, 254 Cal. Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498

Question of probable cause is legal question, to be determined by trial court, when there is no dispute concerning facts on which attorney acted in filing prior action. Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal. 3d 863, 868, 254 Cal. Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498 ; Klein v. Oakland Raiders, Ltd. (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 67, 74-75, 259 Cal. Rptr. 149

Probable cause is question for court when facts not in dispute; when conflict in evidence exists, jury required to determine whether facts exist that warrant or reject inference of probable cause. Masterson v. Pig'n Whistle Corp. (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 323, 337, 326 P.2d 918 ; Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 541, 222 P.2d 136

Not even conflict on issue of probable cause created by favorable termination of prior proceeding. Kassan v. Bledsoe (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 810, 816, 60 Cal. Rptr. 799 ; Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 541, 222 P.2d 136

[g] Standard of Proof

Lack of probable cause established by proof that civil action commenced despite initiator's knowledge of falsity of claim. Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 43, 55, 118 Cal. Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608

Lack of probable cause in criminal action established by honest and reasonable belief of person commencing prosecution. Clary v. Hale (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 880, 888-889, 1 Cal. Rptr. 91

Probable cause required to be proved from subjective as well as objective point of view. White v. Brinkman (1937) 23 Cal. App. 2d 307, 312, 73 P.2d 254

[h] Vicarious Liability

Vicarious liability of principal for agent's lack of probable cause and good faith in initiating proceeding. Davis v. Local Union No. 11, Int'l Bhd. of Elec. Workers, AFL-CIO (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 686, 694-695

[13] Liability of Corporation

Corporation liable for punitive damages for malicious prosecution when tort committed with malice in fact by official, who having the power to bind the corporation, constituted, in contemplation of law, corporation itself. City Prod. Corp. v. Globe Indem. Co. (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 31, 36, 151 Cal. Rptr. 494

[14] Malice

Summary judgment for defendants proper when plaintiffs failed to demonstrate evidence of malice; lack of probable cause, by itself, insufficient to demonstrate malice, which requires evidence of defendant's subjective intent. Estate of Tucker v. Interscope Records (9th Cir. 2008) 515 F.3d 1019, 1031-1032

Chief element in malicious prosecution is malice; malice is improper motive or purpose. Maxon v. Security Ins. Co. (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 603, 615, 29 Cal. Rptr. 586

Malice means defendant has some evil or sinister purpose in mind. Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 541, 222 P.2d 136

Element of malice involves processes of mind and its thinking. Grove v. Purity Stores, Ltd. (1957) 153 Cal. App. 2d 234, 241, 314 P.2d 543

[15] Evidence

[a] In General

Plaintiff in malicious prosecution action is not collaterally estopped from proving malice merely because plaintiff was denied sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 in prior action for failing to prove that prior action was brought in bad faith, because sanction motions are normally decided summarily. Wright v. Ripley (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1189, 1191, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 334

Mere fact that attorney failed to perform thorough research before filing action insufficient to establish that attorney acted with malice. Grindle v. Lorbeer (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1461, 1467, 242 Cal. Rptr. 562

In action against private citizen for malicious prosecution, evidence that defendant did nothing more than truthfully recount his observations to police and prosecutor, insufficient to establish that he acted with malice and without probable cause. Gomez v. Garcia (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 392, 399, 169 Cal. Rptr. 350

Malice capable of being proved by either direct or indirect evidence. Weber v. Leuschner (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 829, 837, 50 Cal. Rptr. 86

Malice proved when previous action instituted in bad faith to vex, annoy, or wrong adverse party. Weber v. Leuschner (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 829, 50 Cal. Rptr. 86

Malice capable of being inferred from declaration of defendant indicating prejudice, ill will, or malicious motive. Jackson v. Beckham (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 264, 272, 31 Cal. Rptr. 739

Malice capable of being inferred from absence of good faith of accuser. Bulkley v. Klein (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 742, 750, 23 Cal. Rptr. 855

[b] Inference From Lack of Probable Cause

Malice capable of being inferred from lack of probable cause. Jacques Interiors v. Petrak (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 1363, 1371, 234 Cal. Rptr. 44 ; MacDonald v. Joslyn (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 282, 292, 79 Cal. Rptr. 707 ; Weber v. Leuschner (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 829, 836, 50 Cal. Rptr. 86

No inference of malice possible from plaintiff's failure to show lack of probable cause. Clary v. Hale (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 880, 889, 1 Cal. Rptr. 91

[c] Malice Per Se

Knowingly pressing baseless criminal charge constitutes malice per se. Jackson v. Beckham (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 264, 272, 31 Cal. Rptr. 739

[d] Question of Fact

Existence of malice is question of fact. Northrup v. Baker (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 347, 354, 20 Cal. Rptr. 797

[16] Personal Action

Action for malicious prosecution is personal one. Coverstone v. Davies (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 315, 324, 239 P.2d 876

[17] Proceedings on Which Action May Be Based

Attachment levied in action prosecuted maliciously and without probable cause is basis for malicious prosecution action. White Lighting Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 336, 348-349, 66 Cal. Rptr. 697, 438 P.2d 345 (dictum)

Administrative proceeding is basis for malicious prosecution action. Hardy v. Vial (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 577, 581, 311 P.2d 494

Malicious prosecution action brought in state court may be based on underlying action brought in federal court under federal patent or copyright law; because malicious prosecution tort action does not "arise under" federal Copyright Act, federal law does not vest exclusive jurisdiction over claim in federal courts. Mattel, Inc. v. Luce, Forward, Hamilton & Scripps (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1179, 1185-1187, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 794 ; see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1338(a)

Declaratory relief proceeding is sufficient basis for malicious prosecution action. Camarena v. Sequoia Ins. Co. (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1089, 1097, 235 Cal. Rptr. 820

Malicious criminal prosecution or civil action is basis for malicious prosecution action. Webb v. Youmans (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 851, 854, 57 Cal. Rptr. 11

Order for civil arrest is basis for malicious prosecution action. Siffert v. McDowell (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 373, 378, 229 P.2d 388

Insanity proceeding is basis for malicious prosecution action. Brock v. Southern Pac. Co. (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 182, 185, 195 P.2d 66

[18] Proceedings on Which Action May Not Be Based

[a] Administrative Proceedings

Report to State License Board submitted by evaluator hired by insurance company to review work of flooring installer could not be basis for malicious prosecution action, because Board initiated subsequent citation proceeding after conducting investigation pursuant to its authority to do so. Rodas v. Spiegel (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 513, 520-521, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 439

Attorney not permitted to bring action for malicious prosecution against parties who filed complaint with State Bar alleging that attorney was guilty of unprofessional and unethical conduct, even though proceeding eventually terminated in attorney's favor, when State Bar conducted independent investigation of charges. Stanwyck v. Horne (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 450, 452, 194 Cal. Rptr. 228

[b] Bankruptcy

Claim brought against party other than debtor in bankruptcy for inducing debtor to seek bankruptcy is preempted by federal bankruptcy law, because claim would require determination of good faith of bankruptcy petition, which rests within exclusive jurisdiction of bankruptcy courts; relying on malicious prosecution precedent, abuse of process claim against bankruptcy debtor's insurer and attorneys was preempted. Choy v. Redland Ins. Co. (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 789, 801, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 94

Action for malicious prosecution brought in state court was not preempted; underlying litigation was state-law fraud action brought in state court by debtor-in-bankruptcy against creditor and bankruptcy trustee, was only removed to federal bankruptcy court because of involvement of bankruptcy trustee, was not brought under federal statute, and was resolved by bankruptcy court through application of state law; under circumstances, state court jurisdiction over malicious prosecution claim would not interfere with federal bankruptcy process or with uniform application of federal bankruptcy law. Satten v. Webb (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 365, 385-387, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 234

Federal bankruptcy action provides exclusive remedy for claim that prior action to prohibit discharge of debts in bankruptcy was abuse of procedure, precluding state law action for malicious prosecution and abuse of process. Ross v. Universal Studios Credit Union (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 537, 541-542, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 712

Federal bankruptcy law provides exclusive remedy for party who successfully defends action by another party in bankruptcy to recover funds allegedly owed. Saks v. Parilla, Hubbard & Militzok (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 565, 567, 573-574, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 120

Malicious prosecution action cannot be based on authorized bankruptcy proceeding, because such state-law tort claim impermissibly intrudes on exclusive federal authority over bankruptcy proceedings and threatens uniformity of federal bankruptcy law, regardless of nature of underlying proceeding. Pauletto v. Reliance Ins. Co. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 597, 605-606, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 334

Adversary proceeding brought by creditor to block discharge of debtor's fiscal obligations in bankruptcy (11 U.S.C. § 727(a)) is insufficient basis for malicious prosecution action; proceeding within exclusive jurisdiction of federal courts; debtors may seek sanctions under federal law if proceedings were filed in bad faith. Idell v. Goodman (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 262, 271, 273 Cal. Rptr. 605

Congressional grant of exclusive jurisdiction over bankruptcy petitions to federal courts precludes action by debtor in state court for malicious prosecution of involuntary bankruptcy. Gene R. Smith Corp. v. Terry's Tractor, Inc. (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 951, 953-955, 257 Cal. Rptr. 598

[c] Suit Against Government

Malicious prosecution action against those who have previously sued governmental entity unsuccessfully unavailable to governmental entity; bringing of suits against government is absolutely protected, and forming no basis of liability of malicious prosecution. Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 11, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581

[19] Statute of Limitations

Limitations period begins to run on date prior action dismissed or terminated. Babb v. Superior Court (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 841, 846, 92 Cal. Rptr. 179, 479 P.2d 379

Former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1 (two-year statute of limitations)) requires cause of action for malicious prosecution to be brought within one year after entry of judgment in underlying action. Scannell v. County of Riverside (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 596, 616, 199 Cal. Rptr. 644

One-year limitation period begins to run on entry of judgment rather than on expiration of time to appeal. Soble v. Kallman (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 719, 721, 129 Cal. Rptr. 373

Period of limitations for filing action for malicious prosecution is one year. Rutherford v. Johnson (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 316, 319, 58 Cal. Rptr. 546

Test for determining whether criminal action prosecuted maliciously is whether defendant was actively instrumental in causing prosecution. Sullivan v. County of Los Angeles (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 710, 720, 117 Cal. Rptr. 241, 527 P.2d 865 ; Cedars-Sinai Med. Ctr. v. Superior Court (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 414, 417, 253 Cal. Rptr. 561

Person who procures third person to institute malicious prosecution is just as liable as if having personally instituted action. Stearns v. County of Los Angeles (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 134, 137, 79 Cal. Rptr. 757

Person potentially liable for malicious prosecution without personally signing complaint initiating criminal proceeding. Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 544, 222 P.2d 136 ; Siffert v. McDowell (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 373, 378-379, 229 P.2d 388

[21] Unfavored Action

Malicious prosecution not favored by law. Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal. 3d 863, 872-873, 254 Cal. Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498 ; Babb v. Superior Court (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 841, 847, 92 Cal. Rptr. 179, 479 P.2d 379

Public policy does not limit plaintiff's right to seek redress for malicious abuse of judicial process. Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 43, 53, 118 Cal. Rptr. 184

Public policy requires plaintiff to prove basic elements of tort of malicious prosecution. Grove v. Purity Stores, Ltd. (1957) 153 Cal. App. 2d 234, 242, 314 P.2d 543

§ 357.94 Decisions

[1] Absolute Privilege for Judicial Proceedings

If gravamen of action is communicative act, litigation privilege extends to noncommunicative acts that are necessarily related to communicative conduct, including acts necessary to enforce judgment. Rusheen v. Cohen (2006) 37 Cal. 4th 1048, 1065, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 516, 128 P.3d 713

Privilege of former Civ. Code § 47(2) (now see Civ. Code § 47(b)), unlike evidentiary privileges that function by exclusion of evidence, is limitation on liability but does not extend to evidentiary use of statements to prove one element of cause of action. Oren Royal Oaks Venture v. Greenberg, Bernhard, Weiss & Karma, Inc. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 1157, 1167-1168, 232 Cal. Rptr. 567, 728 P.2d 1202 ; see also Asia Inv. Co. v. Borowski (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 832, 184 Cal. Rptr. 317

Judicial privilege protects against abuse of process action based on use of writ of execution to enforce purported judgment pursuant to purpose for which process was created, even if wrongful writ of execution is levied on exempt assets of nonparty to invalid judgment; moreover, privilege extends to act of carrying out directive of writ, and not merely to act of applying for writ. Brown v. Kennard (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 40, 47-51, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 891

Levying on bank account and filing abstract of judgment to secure payment of attorney's fee judgment are extensions of underlying action and protected by judicial privilege from abuse of process claim. O'Keefe v. Kompa (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 130, 134, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602

Filing of writ of sale as attempt to enforce existing judgment and filing of motion for reconsideration are protected by judicial privilege and may not support abuse of process action. Merlet v. Rizzo (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 53, 65-66, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 83

Absolute privilege under former Civ. Code § 47(2) (now see Civ. Code § 47(b)) applicable only when communication was made to achieve purpose of litigation. Carney v. Rotkin, Schmerin & McIntyre (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1513,

Absolute privilege under former Civ. Code § 47(2) (now see Civ. Code § 47(b)) denied to participant in legal proceedings only if matter is so palpably irrelevant to subject matter of controversy that no reasonable person can doubt its irrelevancy and impropriety. Loomis v. Superior Court (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1026, 1030, 241 Cal. Rptr. 236

In action for abuse of process and emotional distress, publications made in document prepared by expert witness for use in settlement agreement negotiations between plaintiff and plaintiff's former wife and in expert witness's false testimony at dissolution proceedings covered by absolute privilege of former Civ. Code § 47(2) (now see Civ. Code § 47(b)). Carden v. Getzoff (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 907, 913, 235 Cal. Rptr. 698

Absolute privilege under former Civ. Code § 47(2) (now see Civ. Code § 47(b)) applicable even though publication made outside courtroom. Asia Inv. Co. v. Borowski (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 832, 842-843, 184 Cal. Rptr. 317 (settlement conference; impliedly disapproved by Oren Royal Oaks Venture v. Greenberg, Bernhard, Weiss & Karma, Inc. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 1157, 1167-1168, 232 Cal. Rptr. 567, 728 P.2d 1202 , to extent it holds that such publications may not be used for evidentiary purposes to prove ulterior purpose)

Knowing execution of false declaration of service as abuse of process. Kappel v. Bartlett (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1457, 1463-1467, 246 Cal. Rptr. 815

Absolute privilege under former Civ. Code § 47(2) (now see Civ. Code § 47(b)) for publications made in course of judicial proceedings as applicable to actions for abuse of process. Younger v. Solomon (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 289, 300-301, 113 Cal. Rptr. 113 ; Thornton v. Rhoden (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 80, 94, 53 Cal. Rptr. 706

Absolute privilege under former Civ. Code § 47(2) (now see Civ. Code § 47(b)) as applicable only where publication has some bearing on or connection with subject matter of litigation. Younger v. Solomon (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 289, 301-302, 113 Cal. Rptr. 113

[2] Acts Constituting Abuse of Process

Filing complaints in improper counties as abuse of process. Barquis v. Merchants Collection Asso. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 94, 104, 101 Cal. Rptr. 745, 496 P.2d 817 ; see also Yu v. Signet Bank/Va. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1377, 1389-1390, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 304 (relying on Barquis, abuse of process action could be based on intentionally filing collection suits in Virginia against California credit card holders, despite inadequate basis for personal jurisdiction in Virginia)

Filing action for claim and delivery and then seizing property to force payment of debt owed by another as abuse of process. Templeton Feed & Grain v. Ralston Purina Co. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 461, 466, 72 Cal. Rptr. 344, 446 P.2d 152

Claim and delivery used improperly as abuse of process. Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 210, 229-232, 317 P.2d 613

Allegations that defendant's ulterior motive in executing writ of attachment in face of stay of judgment was to cause such financial harm to plaintiff that plaintiff would be unable or unwilling to file and prosecute appeal of underlying judgment were sufficient to support cause of action for abuse of process. Drum v. Bleau, Fox & Assocs. (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 1009, 1020, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602

Using written interrogatory for improper purpose as abuse of process. Younger v. Solomon (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 289, 296-297, 113 Cal. Rptr. 113

Garnishing exempt wages for improper purpose as abuse of process. Czap v. Credit Bureau of Santa Clara Valley (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 1, 5-7, 86 Cal. Rptr. 417

[3] Acts Not Constituting Abuse of Process

[a] No Misuse

Improper purpose underlying maintenance of lawsuit as insufficient basis for abuse of process action. Warren v. Wasserman, Comden & Casselman (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1297, 1300-1301, 271 Cal. Rptr. 579

Filing of motion to disqualify counsel as not supporting claim of abuse of process when plaintiff fails to show that movant committed unauthorized or wrongful act. Silver v. Gold (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 17, 24-25, 259 Cal. Rptr. 185

Abuse of process as existing only when process is used to obtain collateral advantage; challenge to propriety of method of service, rather than to reasons for service, as not establishing basis for collateral advantage; summary judgment for defendant in abuse of process action as proper after plaintiff had default judgment set aside in earlier action when process server failed to serve plaintiff properly and signed false affidavit of service. Slaughter v. Legal Process & Courier Serv., (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 1236, 1247-1248, 209 Cal. Rptr. 189

Element of coercion as present in filing of every lawsuit; combination of desire to coerce a settlement with filing of complaint for legal malpractice as not constituting actionable abuse of process. Drasin v. Jacoby & Meyers (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 481, 485, 197 Cal. Rptr. 768

Abuse of process as not present where appointment of receiver requested for proper purpose. Spira v. Superior Court (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 536, 539-540, 116 Cal. Rptr. 93

[b] No Action Under Judicial Authority

Abuse of process as not present if no action taken pursuant to judicial authority. Carney v. Rotkin, Schmerin & McIntyre (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1513, 1526, 254 Cal. Rptr. 478 ; Meadows v. Bakersfield Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 749, 753, 59 Cal. Rptr. 34

[4] Contempt

Abuse of process as contempt of court. Arc Inv. Co. v. Tiffith (1958) 330 P.2d 305

[5] Damages

Corporate plaintiff as not capable of recovering damages for mental suffering in abuse of process action. Templeton Feed & Grain v. Ralston Purina Co. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 461, 468, 72 Cal. Rptr. 344, 446 P.2d 152

Punitive damages as available in abuse of process action where defendant has acted intentionally and maliciously. Templeton Feed & Grain v. Ralston Purina Co. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 461, 468, 72 Cal. Rptr. 344, 446 P.2d 152

Advice of counsel as constituting defense to charge of malice in action for abuse of process seeking punitive damages if defendant has fully disclosed relevant facts to attorney. Templeton Feed & Grain v. Ralston Purina Co. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 461, 472 n.7, 72 Cal. Rptr. 344, 446 P.2d 152

Malice as capable of being inferred from defendant's conduct to prove malice in seeking punitive damages in abuse of process action. Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 210, 230, 317 P.2d 613

Damages recoverable in abuse of process action as including mental suffering. Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 210, 233, 317 P.2d 613

[6] Definition

[a] In General

Abuse of process as use of criminal or civil process against another to accomplish purpose for which process was not designed. Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 210, 231, 317 P.2d 613 ; Czap v. Credit Bureau of Santa Clara Valley (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 1, 5, 86 Cal. Rptr. 417

Gist of abuse of process as misuse of power of court. Younger v. Solomon (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 289, 297, 113 Cal. Rptr. 113

[b] "Process" Defined

Orders to show cause re contempt as properly considered "process" within definition of tort of abuse of process. Clark Equip. Co. v. Wheat (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 503, 526, 154 Cal. Rptr. 874

"Process," as used in tort of abuse of process, as having never been limited to strict sense of term, but instead as having been interpreted broadly to encompass entire range of procedures incident to litigation. Barquis v. Merchants Collection Ass'n (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 94, 104 n.4, 101 Cal. Rptr. 745, 496 P.2d 817

"Process" as means whereby court compels compliance with its demands. Meadows v. Bakersfield Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 749, 753, 59 Cal. Rptr. 34 (posting of notice of default and notice of sale under provisions of deed of trust as not constituting process for abuse of process action)

Elements of abuse of process as ulterior purpose and improper willful act. Templeton Feed & Grain v. Ralston Purina Co. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 461, 466, 72 Cal. Rptr. 344, 446 P.2d 152 ; Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 210, 232-233, 317 P.2d 613

Complaint containing no allegations of misuse of process other than filing of complaint as insufficient to state abuse of process action. Loomis v. Murphy (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 589, 595, 266 Cal. Rptr. 82

To establish cause of action for abuse of process, plaintiff as required to plead that defendant entertained ulterior motive in using process and committed willful act in wrongful manner; ulterior motive as properly inferrable from willful abuse of process. Kappel v. Bartlett (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1457, 1465, 246 Cal. Rptr. 815

Tort of abuse of process as consisting of willful misuse of process to accomplish purpose for which it was not designed and as requiring showing of malice, either express or implied. Slaughter v. Legal Process & Courier Serv. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 1236, 1247, 209 Cal. Rptr. 189

Elements of tort of abuse of process as ulterior motive in using process, and use of process in wrongful manner. Drasin v. Jacoby & Meyers (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 481, 485, 197 Cal. Rptr. 768

Essential element of tort as not established when association of which defendants were allegedly members, and not members themselves, brought action in which process was abused. Iram Enterprises v. Veditz (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 603, 608, 179 Cal. Rptr. 1

Distinction between malicious prosecution and abuse of process. Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 210, 232, 317 P.2d 613 ; Tellefsen v. Key Sys. Transit Lines (1961) 198 Cal. App. 2d 611, 615, 17 Cal. Rptr. 919

Abuse of process as differing from malicious prosecution in that gist of tort as not commencing or causing process to issue without justification, but as misusing or misapplying process justified in itself for end other than that which it was designed to accomplish. Weisenburg v. Molina (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 478, 488, 129 Cal. Rptr. 813

[9] Order to Show Cause re Contempt

Filing orders to show cause re contempt, seeking to enforce prior court orders in dissolution action, as not constituting basis for independent action for abuse of process against attorney for moving party. Green v. Uccelli (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1112, 1125, 255 Cal. Rptr. 315

Improper use of contempt order to obtain collateral advantage in litigation as constituting basis for action for abuse of process. Clark Equip. Co. v. Wheat (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 503, 526-527, 528, 154 Cal. Rptr. 874

[10] Permissible Inferences

In abuse of process action, ulterior motive or purpose as permitted to be inferred from what is said or done about process, but inproper act as not permitted to be inferred from motive. Tellefsen v. Key Sys. Transit Lines (1961) 198 Cal. App. 2d 611, 616, 17 Cal. Rptr. 919

[11] Statute of Limitations

Cause of action for abuse of process as accruing, for purposes of commencement of limitation period under former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1, when defendant's wrongful conduct actually injures plaintiff. Kappel v. Bartlett (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1457, 1467-1469, 246 Cal. Rptr. 815

One-year period of limitation under former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1 (two-year statute of limitations)) as applicable to actions filed for abuse of process. Thornton v. Rhoden (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 80, 95, 53 Cal. Rptr. 706 ; McFaddin v. H.S. Crocker Co. (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 585, 590-591, 33 Cal. Rptr. 389

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST
A. Malicious Prosecution
1. Plaintiff's Checklist

31-357 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 357.110

§ 357.110 Facts and Documents re Complaint

Obtain the facts and documents necessary for preparing the complaint, including the following:

1. Facts to be ascertained.

NOTE:
Not all of the following facts will be ascertainable from the client in the initial interview. Subsequent interviews may be required or it may be necessary to ascertain the facts from others, including the potential defendant(s) by use of discovery proceedings. Notes following facts listed below indicate sources from which the facts required might be obtained.

a. Facts about plaintiff.

b. Capacity of plaintiff to sue.

c. Facts relating to the alleged malicious prosecution.
(1) Date, time, and place of arrest or of institution of civil proceeding.

(2) Description of what happened and of what each person did as far as plaintiff can recollect, including identification of all persons involved.

(3) Nature of cause of action or type of crime charged.

(4) Plaintiff's statement as to motivation of defendant(s) for instituting proceeding.

(5) Whether and when prosecution was terminated in plaintiff's favor; if so, at what stage of the proceeding and in what manner it was terminated.

d. Damages sustained by plaintiff.

(1) Personal injuries.

(2) Name, address, and telephone number of each physician who treated, or is treating, plaintiff for injuries. Communication may thereafter be had with these doctors for more detailed information regarding plaintiff's injuries.

(3) Name and address of hospital in which treatment was rendered to plaintiff as a result of the injuries sustained.

(4) Amount of medical and hospital bills resulting from the malicious prosecution; amount paid and amount owed.

(5) Amount of time lost to plaintiff as a result of the prosecution and plaintiff's estimation of the reasonable value thereof.

(6) If plaintiff was deprived of liberty for any period of time, determine the nature of the deprivation and plaintiff's estimation of the nature of damages suffered therefrom.

(7) Injury to plaintiff's fame, reputation, and character as a result of the prosecution.

(8) Mental suffering.

(9) Name, address, and telephone number of each physician or psychiatrist who treated, or is treating, plaintiff as a result of the mental suffering and distress. Communication may thereafter be had with these physicians or psychiatrists, subject to plaintiff's consent, for more detailed information regarding these injuries.

(10) General impairment of social and mercantile standing, injury to credit, and all losses sustained to plaintiff's business.

(11) Expenses incurred in defense of prior proceeding, including reasonable attorney's fees and court costs.

(12) Facts showing that defendant acted with actual malice and ill will toward plaintiff which can support an award of punitive damages.

e. Facts relating to each defendant.

(1) Name, address, and telephone number of each potential defendant, whether an individual or a legal entity (e.g., a corporation), and the sex and approximate age of each potential individual defendant.

NOTE:
A public employee is not liable for injury caused by his or her institution or prosecution of any judicial or administrative proceeding within the scope of employment, even if he or she acts maliciously and without probable cause [Gov. Code § 821.6]. For a further discussion of the immunity of a public employee, see § 357.23[6]. In a malicious prosecution action potential defendants might include a person procuring a third person to initiate the proceeding, as well as the person or persons who actually initiate the proceeding [see Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 43, 50, 118 Cal. Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608 (civil); Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 544, 222 P.2d 136 (criminal)]. If the person instigating the action has honestly relied on the advice of counsel, even if the advice is incorrect, this is conclusive of the existence of probable cause and neither party may be liable [see discussion in § 357.23[2]].

(2) Occupation, including name and address of employer, of each individual defendant.

(3) Status of each individual defendant at time of malicious prosecution as creditor, agent, officer of corporation, or similar status.

(4) Capacity of each potential defendant.

f. Facts relating to other causes of action.

(1) Violation of plaintiff's right to protection from bodily harm [see Ch. 58, Assault and Battery];

(2) Violation of plaintiff's personal liberty [see Ch. 257, False Imprisonment];

(3) Injury to plaintiff's reputation [see Ch. 340, Libel and Slander];

(4) Intentional infliction of mental distress [see Ch. 362, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress]; and

(5) Ch. 357, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process [see § 357.50 et seq.].

2. Documents to be obtained.

NOTE:
Not all of the following documents will be obtainable from the client in the initial interview. Subsequent interviews may be required, or, when circumstances will permit it, they might be mailed to the attorney. It might, however, be necessary to obtain the documents from someone other than the client. Notes following the documents listed indicate sources from which the documents may be obtained. If the contents of any such document must be proved at trial, the document itself must be presented [Evid. Code § 1520] unless secondary evidence is admissible [see Evid. Code § 1521 et seq.].

a. An attested copy of the complaint or ancillary proceeding in a civil action.

NOTE:
The a copy must be obtained from, and attested by, the clerk of the court in which the prior malicious prosecution was maintained or initiated; no other copy will suffice. This copy may serve as evidence showing defendant's initiation of the prior malicious prosecution. If the prior prosecution was criminal, defendant's instigation of the prosecution may be shown by testimony of any person to whom information was relayed leading to the issuance of the warrant.

b. Letters, correspondence, or any other written documents reflecting malice on behalf of the defendant toward the plaintiff. These documents may be obtainable from the plaintiff; however, if they are in the possession of the defendant, they may have to be obtained through discovery [see Ch. 190, Depositions and Discovery .

c. Attested record of the prior malicious proceedings.

NOTE:
Attested copies of these records as necessary to show that the prior proceeding was terminated favorably to the plaintiff. If these records contain comments of the judge, they may serve as forceful evidence of the absence of probable cause for the initiation of the prior proceeding. Judicial notice may be taken of any judgment, act of any judicial department, or records of any court of record of any state or of the United States [Evid. Code § 452(a), (c), (d)].

d. Bills, receipts, cancelled checks, or similar items, which might serve as evidence of the amount of plaintiff's damages.

31-357 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 357.130

§ 357.130 Facts and Documents re Answer

Obtain the facts and documents necessary for preparing the answer, including the following:

1. Facts to be ascertained.

NOTE:
Not all of the following facts will be ascertainable from the client in the initial interview. Subsequent interviews may be required or it may be necessary to ascertain the facts from others, including the plaintiff, by use of discovery proceedings.

a. Facts relating to defendant.

b. Facts required for the answer.

NOTE:
Counsel should advise the client not to discuss the case with any third person without obtaining prior permission from counsel to do so.

(1) Date, manner, and place summons was served on defendant and contents of summons.

NOTE:
This information will enable counsel to determine when the responsive pleading must be filed and may reveal a defect in service or that the summons did not comply with law, subjecting the summons to a motion to quash [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10; see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

(2) Allegations of complaint.

Ascertain which of the facts alleged in the complaint are true, which are false, and which ones defendant does not know the truth or falsity of.

(3) Affirmative defenses and demurrers:

NOTE:
Affirmative defenses can be raised by demurrer, as well as by answer, if they appear on the face of the complaint or from matters of which the court must or may take judicial notice.

(a) There was no favorable termination of the prior criminal proceeding because plaintiff's innocence was not indicated thereby [see Jaffe v. Stone (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 146, 150, 114 P.2d 335 ; see § 357.195].

(b) Probable cause existed for instituting the prior criminal proceeding because a prosecuting attorney was consulted [see Walker v. Jensen (1949) 95 Cal. App. 2d 269, 274, 212 P.2d 569 ; see § 357.196].

(c) Probable cause existed for instituting the prior criminal proceeding because plaintiff actually committed the offense charged [see Clary v. Hale (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 880, 889-890, 1 Cal. Rptr. 91 ; see § 357.197].

(d) There is no liability for merely making an honest statement of facts to public authorities which later results in the initiation of a criminal proceeding [see Gogue v. MacDonald (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 482, 486-487, 218 P.2d 542 ; see § 357.198].

(e) There was no favorable termination of the prior civil proceeding because it was settled [see Paskle v. Williams (1931) 214 Cal. 482, 484, 6 P.2d 505 ; see § 357.199].

(f) There was no favorable termination of the prior civil proceeding because it is still pending [see Rich v. Siegel (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 465, 469, 86 Cal. Rptr. 665 ; see § 357.200].

(g) Probable cause existed for instituting the prior civil proceeding because counsel was fully, fairly, and honestly advised of all of the facts and defendant acted on counsel's advice [see Kennedy v. Byrum (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 474, 481, 20 Cal. Rptr. 98 ; see § 357.201].

(h) Probable cause existed for an attorney in representing a client because the attorney honestly believed that the client had a tenable claim [see Tool Research & Eng'g Corp. v. Henigson (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 675, 683-684, 120 Cal. Rptr. 291 ; see § 357.202].

(i) The defendant failed to allege the favorable termination of the prior proceeding [see Rutherford v. Johnson (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 316, 320, 58 Cal. Rptr. 546 ; see § 357.204].

(j) The defendant is a public employee whose actions were immune from suit for malicious prosecution [see Gov. Code § 821.6; White v. Towers (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 727, 734, 235 P.2d 209 ; see § 357.205].

(k) The defendant is a public entity which is immune from suit for malicious prosecution [see Gov. Code §§ 815.2(b), 821.6; Blackburn v. Los Angeles County (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 175, 176-178, 116 Cal. Rptr. 622 ; see § 357.206].

(l) The action is barred by the two-year (one-year, prior to January 1, 2003) period of limitations [see Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1; Rutherford v. Johnson (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 316, 319, 58 Cal. Rptr. 546 ; see also former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3); Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions, § 345.14].

(m) The court lacks jurisdiction, there is improper venue, or there are defects in the complaint.

(n) The plaintiff, as defendant or cross defendant in a prior proceeding under the California Tort Claims Act (Gov. Code § 810 et seq.) or for indemnity or contribution in any civil action which he or she claimed was brought in bad faith and without reasonable cause, waived any right to seek damages by requesting defense costs under Code Civ. Proc. § 1038 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1038(c); see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees].

NOTE:
For discussion of these defenses, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal , and Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter , Ch. 571, Venue , and Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints .

2. Documents to be obtained.

NOTE:
Not all of the following documents will be obtainable from the client in the initial interview. Subsequent interviews may be required, or, if circumstances will permit it, they might be mailed to the attorney. It might, however, be necessary to obtain the documents from someone other than the client. Notes following the documents listed indicate sources from which the documents may be obtained. If the contents of any of these documents must be proved at trial, the document itself must be presented [Evid. Code § 1520] unless secondary evidence is admissible [see Evid. Code § 15021 et seq.].

a. Written statements, if any, of parties or witnesses.

b. Medical histories and reports of plaintiff's present injuries and past injuries and illnesses if damages for personal injuries have been alleged.

c. Receipts of expenses paid in connection with the damages sustained by plaintiff as a result of the alleged malicious prosecution.

d. Letters, correspondence, or any other written documents reflecting lack of malice on behalf of the defendant toward the plaintiff.

NOTE:

Some of the above documents may be obtainable from the defendant; however, if they are in the possession of the plaintiff, they may have to be obtained through discovery [see Ch. 190, Depositions and Discovery].

e. Attested record of the alleged prior malicious proceedings.

NOTE:

Attested copies of such records would be necessary to show that the prior proceeding was terminated unfavorably to the plaintiff. Judicial notice may be taken of any judgment, act of any judicial department, or records of any court of record of any state or of the United States [Evid. Code § 452(a), (c), (d)].

31-357 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 357.150

§ 357.150 Facts and Documents re Complaint

Obtain the facts and documents necessary for preparing the complaint, including the following:

1. Facts to be ascertained.

NOTE:
Not all of the following facts will be ascertainable from the client in the initial interview. Subsequent interviews may be required or it may be necessary to ascertain the facts from others, including the potential defendant(s) by use of discovery proceedings. Notes following facts listed below indicate sources from which the facts required might be obtained.

a. Facts about plaintiff.

b. Capacity of plaintiff to sue.

c. Facts relating to the alleged abuse of process.
(1) Type of process used against plaintiff;

(2) Date, time, and place of process used;

(3) Description of what occurred after issuance of process; and

(4) Plaintiff's statement as to defendant's ulterior purpose in misusing the process and type of collateral advantage defendant attempted to obtain over plaintiff.

d. Damages sustained by plaintiff.

(1) Amount of lost wages or loss of employment resulting from misuse of process by defendant;

(2) Mental and emotional suffering;

(3) Name, address, and telephone number of each doctor or psychiatrist who has treated, or is treating, plaintiff as a result of the mental suffering or distress; and

(4) General impairment of social and mercantile standing, injury to credit, and all losses sustained by plaintiff's business.

e. Facts relating to each defendant.

(1) Name, address, and telephone number of each potential defendant, whether an individual or a legal entity (for example, a corporation); sex and approximate age of each potential individual defendant.

NOTE:
A sheriff or other ministerial officer is justified in the execution of all process and orders regular on their face and issued by competent authority [Code Civ. Proc. § 262.1].

(2) Occupation, including name and address of employer, of each individual defendant.

(3) Status of each individual defendant at time of abuse of process such as creditor, agent, officer of corporation, or similar status.

(4) Capacity of each potential defendant.

f. Facts relating to other causes of action.

(1) Violation of plaintiff's personal liberty [see Ch. 257, False Imprisonment];

(2) Injury to plaintiff's reputation [see Ch. 340, Libel and Slander];

(3) Intentional infliction of mental distress [see Ch. 362, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress];

(4) Ch. 357, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process, [see § 357.10 et seq.];

(5) Unfair business practice by collection agency [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq.; see also § 357.221]; and

(6) Injunctive relief [see Ch. 303, Injunctions ; see also § 357.221].

2. Documents to be obtained.

NOTE:
Not all of the following documents will be obtainable from the client in the initial interview. Subsequent interviews may be required, or, if circumstances will permit it, they might be mailed to the attorney. It might, however, be necessary to obtain documents from someone other than the client. If the contents of any document must be proved at trial, the document itself must be presented [Evid. Code § 1520] unless secondary evidence is admissible [see Evid. Code § 1521 et seq.].

a. Evidence of the issuance of process regular on its face.

NOTE:
Evidence of issuance of a summons may be the plaintiff's copy if it is certified by the court. If plaintiff does not have a copy or, if plaintiff's copy is uncertified, the clerk of the court from which the summons issued may be consulted regarding obtaining sufficient evidence of its issuance. If the original copy is in the court's records, judicial notice must be taken of it [Evid. Code § 451(a)].

b. Letters, correspondence, or any other written documents reflecting malice on behalf of the defendant toward the plaintiff. These documents may be obtained from the plaintiff; however, if they are in the possession of the defendant, they may have to be obtained through discovery [see Ch. 190, Depositions and Discovery].

31-357 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 357.170

§ 357.170 Facts and Documents re Answer

Obtain the facts and documents necessary for preparing the answer, including the following:

1. Facts to be ascertained.

NOTE:
Not all of the following facts will be ascertainable from the client in the initial interview. Subsequent interviews may be required or it may be necessary to ascertain the facts from others, including the plaintiff, by use of discovery proceedings.

a. Facts relating to defendant.

b. Facts required for the answer.

NOTE:
Counsel should advise the client not to discuss the case with any third party without obtaining prior permission from counsel to do so.

(1) Date, manner and place summons was served on defendant and contents of summons.

NOTE:
This information will enable counsel to determine when the responsive pleading must be filed and may reveal a defect in service or that the summons does not comply with law, subjecting the summons to a motion to quash [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10; see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

(2) Allegations of complaint.

Ascertain which of the facts alleged in the complaint are true, which are false, and which ones defendant does not know the truth or falsity of.

(3) Affirmative defenses and demurrers:

NOTE:
Affirmative defenses can be raised by demurrer, as well as by answer, if they appear on the face of the complaint or from matters of which the court must or may take judicial notice.

(a) Defendant was not the person who obtained issuance of the process.

(b) There was no improper use of process; that is, process was not used for a purpose other than that for which it was designed [see Golden v. Dungan (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 295, 302, 97 Cal. Rptr. 577 ; see § 357.222].

(c) No action was taken pursuant to judicial authority [see Meadows v. Bakersfield Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 749, 753, 59 Cal. Rptr. 34 ; see § 357.223].

(d) The action is barred by two-year (one-year, prior to January 1, 2003) period of limitations [see Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1; McFaddin v. H.S. Crocker Co. (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 585, 590-591, 33 Cal. Rptr. 389 ; see § 357.224; see also former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3); Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions, § 345.14].

(e) The use of process was absolutely privileged [see Civ. Code § 47(b); Younger v. Solomon (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 289, 300-301, 113 Cal. Rptr. 113 ; see also § 357.225].

(f) There was no malice that can support an award of punitive damages if defendant acted on the advice of counsel [see Templeton Feed & Grain v. Ralston Purina Co. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 461, 472 n.7, 72 Cal. Rptr. 344, 446 P.2d 152 ; see also § 357.226].

(g) The court lacks jurisdiction, there is improper venue, or there are defects in the complaint.

NOTE:
For discussion of these defenses, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal , and Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter , Ch. 571, Venue , and Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints .

2. Documents to be obtained.

NOTE:
Not all of the following documents will be obtainable from the client in the initial interview. Subsequent interviews may be required, or, if circumstances will permit it, they might be mailed to the attorney. It might, however, be necessary to obtain the documents from someone other than the client. Notes following the documents listed indicate sources from which the documents may be obtained. If the contents of any such document must be proved at trial, the document itself must be presented [Evid.

Code § 1520] unless secondary evidence is admissible [see Evid. Code § 1521 et seq.].

a. Written statements, if any, of parties or witnesses.

b. Medical histories and reports of plaintiff's present injuries and of past injuries and illnesses if damages for personal injuries are alleged.

c. Receipts of expenses paid in connection with the damage sustained by plaintiff as a result of the alleged abuse of process.

d. Letters, correspondence, or any other written documents reflecting lack of malice on behalf of the defendant toward the plaintiff.

NOTE:
Some of the above documents may be obtainable from the defendant; however, if they are in the possession of the plaintiff, they may have to be obtained through discovery [see Ch. 190, Depositions and Discovery].

e. Evidence of the issuance of process.

NOTE:
This may be used to show that the defendant was not the person obtaining the issuance of the process. If the defendant is not in possession of the original process issued by the court, or of a certified copy thereof, the clerk of the court from which the process issued may be consulted to obtain sufficient evidence of its issuance. If the original is the court's records, judicial notice must be taken of it [Evid. Code § 451(a)].

[1] FORM Complaint for Compensatory [Civ. Code § 3333] and Punitive [Civ. Code § 3294] Damages--Malicious Prosecution of Criminal Action--General Form

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES
_____ [name(s)],	)	(Malicious Prosecution)

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant(s) _____ [name(s)] is/are, and at all times mentioned herein was/were, _____ [a resident or residents] of _____ County, California [or allege other capacity and residence of defendant(s)].

[2. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued herein as DOES 1- _____, inclusive and therefore sues these defendants by such fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible as hereinafter shown for the occurrences and injuries alleged in this complaint.)]

3. _____ [Allege initiation of criminal proceeding against plaintiff, e.g., On or about _____ (date), in _____ (city), California, defendant(s) _____ (filed a criminal complaint or caused _____ [name of third person] to file a criminal complaint) with _____ (name), a _____ (specify official, e.g., deputy district attorney) of _____ County, California. The complaint accused plaintiff of the crime of violating Section _____ (number) of the Penal Code, a _____ (felony or misdemeanor). This caused a warrant to issue for plaintiff's arrest on _____ [date]. Plaintiff was arrested on _____ [date], detained in custody, charged by information with committing that crime, arraigned on _____ [date], and held for preliminary hearing.]

4. _____ [Allege favorable termination of proceeding, e.g., A preliminary hearing was held on _____ [date], in the Superior Court, _____ County, California, in a proceeding entitled People of the State of California, Plaintiff vs. _____ (name of plaintiff), Defendant, No. _____. At that time the court dismissed the proceeding for lack of evidence against plaintiff.]

5. _____ [Allege lack of probable cause, e.g., Defendant(s) acted without probable cause in initiating the prosecution of plaintiff in that _____ [he or they] did not honestly, reasonably, and in good faith believe plaintiff to be guilty of the crime charged because _____ (specify facts known to plaintiff, if any, constituting defendant(s) lack of probable cause).]

6. _____ [Allege malice, e.g., Defendant(s) acted maliciously in instigating the criminal prosecution in that _____ (specify type of malice such as an improper motive or purpose, prejudice, or a desire to annoy and wrong plaintiff).]

7. As a proximate result of the criminal prosecution initiated by defendant, plaintiff has been damaged.

8. _____ [If appropriate, allege costs and attorney's fees expended in defending against the prosecution, e.g., As a further proximate result of the criminal prosecution so initiated by defendant(s), plaintiff incurred the cost of posting bail and as attorney's fees in defending against the prosecution.]

9. _____ [Allege facts constituting actual malice in order to recover punitive damages, e.g., Defendant's acts were willful, wanton, malicious, and oppressive in that _____ (specify facts showing that defendant(s) motivated by hatred of or ill will toward plaintiff). These acts therefore justify the awarding of punitive damages.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendants, and each of them,] as follows:

1. For general damages according to proof.

2. [For punitive damages.]

3. For costs of suit herein incurred.

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This complaint for damages for malicious prosecution is for use by a plaintiff against a person who has maliciously and without probable cause prosecuted a criminal action against plaintiff.

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges that:

- Defendant initiated or caused to be initiated a criminal proceeding against plaintiff (Paragraph 3) [see Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 544, 222 P.2d 136],

- Maliciously (Paragraph 6) [see Weber v. Leuschner (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 829, 837, 50 Cal. Rptr. 86 ; Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 541, 222 P.2d 136],

- Without probable cause (Paragraph 5) [see Klotz v. Alexander (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 238, 243, 21 Cal. Rptr. 305 ; Clary v. Hale (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 880, 888-889, 1 Cal. Rptr. 91], and

- The proceeding terminated favorably for plaintiff (Paragraph 4) [see Jaffe v. Stone (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 146, 157, 114 P.2d 335 ; Hurgren v. Union Mut. Life Ins. Co. (1904) 141 Cal. 585, 588, 75 P. 168].

The complaint also alleges compensatory damages (Paragraphs 7 and 8) [see Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 43, 51, 59, 118 Cal. Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608 ; Singleton v. Perry (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 489, 495, 289 P.2d 794], and if appropriate, punitive damages (Paragraph 9) [see Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 43, 65, 118 Cal. Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608].

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint, see Ch. 177, Damages , and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115].

[4] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude the defendant from using a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case if the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

[5] Venue

The county in which the defendant resides at the time of the commencement of an action for malicious prosecution is the proper county in which to bring it [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]. Unless there is physical or personal injury, damages resulting from the malicious prosecution of an action do not constitute injuries to persons or property as contemplated by Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a). Therefore, such actions may not be tried in the county where the arrest and the allegedly malicious prosecution occurred [see Plum v. Newhart (1931) 118 Cal. App. 73, 75, 4 P.2d 805 ; see also Monk v. Ehret (1923) 192 Cal. 186, 192-193, 219 P. 452].

[6] Alternative Count for False Imprisonment

Plaintiff may wish to allege an alternative count for false imprisonment. When pleading false imprisonment a plaintiff would have to plead and prove facts showing that the warrant issued and served was void or illegal or that the detention took place without a warrant. [Bulkley v. Klein (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 742, 747, 23 Cal. Rptr. 855]. However, when a complaint is filed it is often not known whether the requirements for the tort of false imprisonment or those for malicious prosecution can be proved. Thus, even though the two causes of action may be joined in separate counts even though they are inconsistent, the defendant cannot be held liable for both, and there may have to be an election upon which count plaintiff wants to go to the jury [see Bulkley v. Klein (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 742, 747, 23 Cal. Rptr. 855]. Where plaintiff has pleaded both counts and fails to prove false imprisonment but does prove malicious prosecution, a judgment for plaintiff will not be reversed on appeal [Bulkley v. Klein (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 742, 747-748, 23 Cal. Rptr. 855].

For discussion of false imprisonment and complaints that may be adapted to constitute a count in this complaint, see Ch. 257, False Imprisonment .

[7] Pleading

[a] Generally

A complaint for malicious prosecution is properly confined to a statement of the elements of malice and the lack of probable cause. Averments of conspiracy, knowledge of the falsity of the charge, and vituperative epithets are merely embellishments and add nothing material to the statement of the case. They will be treated as surplusage [White v.

Brinkman (1937) 23 Cal. App. 2d 307, 313, 73 P.2d 254].

[b] Favorable Termination

The complaint must allege the grounds of the dismissal since a bare allegation that a prior proceeding had been "dismissed" is not sufficient [see Oppenheimer v. Tamblyn (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 293, 295-296, 327 P.2d 574]. Similarly, alleging that a prior proceeding had "legally ceased and terminated favorably to the plaintiff" does not allege sufficient facts to satisfy the requirement of a favorable termination [see Prentice v. Bertken (1942) 50 Cal. App. 2d 344, 351, 123 P.2d 96].

[c] Probable Cause

Pleading the lack of probable cause may be accomplished in either of two ways. It may be pleaded generally [see Hardy v. Vial (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 577, 584, 311 P.2d 494], or it may be pleaded by stating facts necessarily showing its absence [see Pulvermacher v. Los Angeles Co-ordinating Comm. for Aid to Jewish Refugees (1943) 61 Cal. App. 2d 704, 707, 143 P.2d 974]. The allegation of the lack of probable cause (see Paragraph 5) combines these approaches. If plaintiff is not aware of facts which would support this allegation, it is sufficient merely to allege the lack of probable cause in a general fashion [see Hardy v. Vial (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 577, 584, 311 P.2d 494].

It is sufficient to allege malice generally [see Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375, 378, 383, 295 P.2d 405 ; Goland v. Peter Nolan & Co. (1934) 2 Cal. 2d 96, 97, 38 P.2d 783].

[8] Favorable Termination

The favorable termination of a malicious prosecution does not need to be a final determination of the controversy. It is sufficient to show that the former proceeding was legally terminated. The fact that such legal termination would not be a bar to another prosecution founded on the same action is no defense to the action for malicious prosecution [Jaffe v. Stone (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 146, 157, 114 P.2d 335]. A prosecution is deemed to have been favorably terminated when it has been disposed of in such a manner that the prosecutor, if he or she intends to proceed further, must institute proceedings de novo [Hurgren v. Union Mut. Life Ins. Co. (1904) 141 Cal. 585, 588, 75 P. 168]. The disposition of the prior proceeding must also be of such a nature as to indicate the innocence of the accused [Jaffe v. Stone (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 146, 150, 114 P.2d 335]. For example, the discharge of the case by a magistrate at the preliminary hearing on the ground of insufficiency of evidence constitutes a favorable termination unless further proceedings growing out of the same misconduct have been instituted [Jaffe v. Stone (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 146, 151, 156, 114 P.2d 335] as does the dismissal by the prosecutor in the interests of justice and for the lack of sufficient evidence [Jackson v. Beckham (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 264, 270, 31 Cal. Rptr. 739].

For further discussion, see § 357.14[1],

[9] Lack of Probable Cause

[a] In General

Probable cause as an element in an action for the malicious prosecution of a criminal action requires that there be such a state of facts as would lead a man of ordinary care and prudence to believe and entertain an honest and strong suspicion that the person is guilty [Kincaid v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 733, 741, 66 Cal. Rptr. 915]. It does not depend on the possession of facts which satisfactorily prove the guilt of the accused person. Rather, it has reference to the common standard of human judgment and conduct and exists if one is possessed of information or facts which are sufficient to cause a reasonable person to honestly believe the charge is true [Northrup v. Baker (1962) 202

Cal. App. 2d 347, 354, 20 Cal. Rptr. 797 ; Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 540-541, 222 P.2d 136]. Therefore, a person may act upon what appears to be true, even if it turns out to be false [Fry v. Bank of Am. (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 150, 156, 298 P.2d 34]. It should be noted, though, that a person's subjective good faith in prosecuting a criminal action is an independent element of probable cause [Klotz v. Alexander (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 238, 243, 21 Cal. Rptr. 305]. Therefore, the element of probable cause must be viewed from a subjective as well as an objective point of view [White v. Brinkman (1937) 23 Cal. App. 2d 307, 312, 73 P.2d 254].

For further discussion, see § 357.16[1].

[b] No Inference From Malice

The lack of probable cause may not be implied from even the most express malice [Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 542, 222 P.2d 136].

[10] Malice

[a] In General

In order to constitute malice, the defendant must have had in mind an improper motive or sinister purpose in instituting the prosecution [Maxon v. Security Ins. Co. (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 603, 615, 29 Cal. Rptr. 586 ; Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 541, 222 P.2d 136]. It is not necessary for a plaintiff to prove that the prosecution was inspired by personal hostility, a grudge, or ill will. It is sufficient if it appears that the prosecution was instituted in bad faith to vex, annoy, or wrong the adverse party. [Weber v. Leuschner (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 829, 837, 50 Cal. Rptr. 86].

For further discussion, see § 357.17.

[b] Inference From Lack of Probable Cause

Malice may be inferred from the lack of probable cause [Weber v. Leuschner (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 829, 836, 50 Cal. Rptr. 86].

[c] Malice Per Se

One who knowingly presses a baseless criminal charge acts without probable cause and is guilty of malice per se [Jackson v. Beckham (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 264, 272, 31 Cal. Rptr. 739]. This is true since the only justification for a criminal proceeding is the bringing of an offender to justice [Bulkley v. Klein (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 742, 750, 23 Cal. Rptr. 855].

[e] Lack of Probable Cause

Definition for criminal action. Kincaid v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 733, 741, 66 Cal. Rptr. 915

Probable cause as not equivalent to possessing facts which satisfactorily prove guilt of accused person. Northrup v. Baker (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 347, 354, 20 Cal. Rptr. 797 ; Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 540-541, 222 P.2d 136

Person as capable of acting upon what appears to be true even if it turns out to be false. Fry v. Bank of Am. (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 150, 156, 298 P.2d 34

Good faith as independent element of probable cause; actual and honest belief in guilt of plaintiff as integral part of good faith. Klotz v. Alexander (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 238, 243, 21 Cal. Rptr. 305

Proof that no crime committed or that accused innocent as not necessarily negativing existence of probable cause. Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 541, 222 P.2d 136

Element of probable cause as viewed from subjective as well as objective point of view. White v. Brinkman (1937) 23 Cal. App. 2d 307, 312, 73 P.2d 254

[ii] No Inference From Malice

Lack of probable cause as not implied from even the most express malice. Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 542, 222 P.2d 136

[f] Malice

Malice as improper motive or purpose. Maxon v. Security Ins. Co. (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 603, 615, 29 Cal. Rptr. 586

Malice as meaning defendant had evil or sinister purpose in mind. Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 541, 222 P.2d 136

Malice as proved where previous action instituted in bad faith to vex, annoy, or wrong adverse party. Weber v. Leuschner (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 829, 837, 50 Cal. Rptr. 86

Malice as capable of being inferred from lack of probable cause. Jacques Interiors v. Petrak (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 1363, 1371, 234 Cal. Rptr. 44 ; Weber v. Leuschner (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 829, 836, 50 Cal. Rptr. 86

Knowingly pressing baseless criminal charge as constituting malice per se. Jackson v. Beckham (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 264, 272, 31 Cal. Rptr. 739

[g] Pleading

Complaint as properly confined to statement of elements of malice and lack of probable cause; averments of conspiracy, knowledge of falsity of charge, and epithets as surplusage. White v. Brinkman (1937) 23 Cal. App. 2d 307, 313, 73 P.2d 254

Pleading of probable cause generally as valid. Hardy v. Vial (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 577, 584, 311 P.2d 494

Pleading of probable cause by stating facts necessarily showing lack thereof as valid. Pulvermacher v. Los Angeles Co-ordinating Comm. for Aid to Jewish Refugees (1943) 61 Cal. App. 2d 704, 707, 143 P.2d 974

On _____ [date], the deputy district attorney dismissed the charge against plaintiff in the interests of justice and because of the lack of evidence against plaintiff.

[2] Use of Form

This allegation is for use in pleading the element of a favorable termination which is established by the fact that the prosecutor dismissed the charge against plaintiff in the interests of justice and because of a lack of evidence. It may be used in place of Paragraph 4 in see § 357.190.

§ 357.192 Allegation--Favorable Termination of Criminal Prosecution--Acquittal

[1] FORM Allegation--Favorable Termination of Criminal Prosecution--Acquittal

On _____ [date], plaintiff was acquitted of the charge by the Superior Court for the County of _____, _____ [sitting without a jury or sitting with a jury] in a proceeding entitled People of the State of California, Plaintiff vs. _____ [name of plaintiff], Defendant, No. _____.

[2] Use of Form

This allegation is for use in pleading the element of favorable termination by reason of a prior acquittal after a criminal action has gone to trial.

[3] Acquittal as Favorable Termination

If a criminal proceeding goes to trial, it is ordinarily necessary as a foundation for malice prosecution action that the accused was acquitted [Jaffe v. Stone (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 146, 150, 114 P.2d 335]. However, while such an acquittal is thus deemed to be a condition precedent to instituting an action for malicious prosecution, it does not establish that defendant acted without probable cause in initiating the proceeding. That is, the existence of probable cause is not negatived by merely showing that the accused was successful at the trial of the proceedings in securing an exoneration. Not even a conflict on the issue of probable cause is created by such a favorable termination of the prosecution which gave rise to the malicious prosecution action [Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 541, 222 P.2d 136]. Therefore, even after establishing the fact that he or she was acquitted of a criminal charge, plaintiff must still prove with independent evidence that defendant lacked probable cause in initiating the prosecution.

trial. Jaffe v. Stone (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 146, 150, 114 P.2d 335

Not even conflict on issue of probable cause as created by acquittal in previous criminal prosecution. Centers v. Dollar Mkt. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 541, 222 P.2d 136

[2] Use of Form

This complaint for damages for malicious prosecution is for use by a plaintiff against a person who has maliciously and without probable cause brought a previous civil action against plaintiff.

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- Defendant(s) initiated or caused to be initiated a civil action against plaintiff (Paragraph 3) [see Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 43, 50, 118 Cal. Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608].

- The civil action was initiated maliciously (Paragraph 6) [see Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375, 383, 295 P.2d 405];

- The civil action was initiated without probable cause (Paragraph 5) [see Crowley v. Katleman (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 666, 679, 695, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 386, 881 P.2d 1083 ; Davis v. Local Union No. 11, Int'l Bhd. of Elec. Workers, AFL-CIO (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 686, 692].

- The proceeding terminated favorably for plaintiff (Paragraph 4) [see MacDonald v. Joslyn (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 282, 289, 79 Cal. Rptr. 707].

- Compensatory damages (Paragraphs 7 and 8) [see Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1974) 13 Cal.

3d 43, 51, 59, 118 Cal. Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608].

- If appropriate, punitive damages (Paragraph 9) [see Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 43, 65, 118 Cal. Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608].

[4] Favorable Termination

[a] In General

In a civil case, the former proceeding must have been disposed of in such a manner as to require the plaintiff therein to institute another action to try the issues presented [Rich v. Siegel (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 465, 469, 86 Cal. Rptr. 665 ; Kennedy v. Byrum (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 474, 480, 20 Cal. Rptr. 98]. For instance, a voluntary dismissal of a civil action or a proceeding by the plaintiff therein is a favorable termination even though it was expressly made "without prejudice" [MacDonald v. Joslyn (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 282, 289, 79 Cal. Rptr. 707]. However, the dismissal of the prior action is not considered to be a favorable termination if it was brought about by the procurement of the defendant therein or by compromise and settlement [Paskle v. Williams (1931) 214 Cal. 482, 484, 6 P.2d 505]. A favorable termination is one that tends to indicate the innocence of the accused, and while the termination need not be one that follows a trial on the merits, it must reflect the merits of the underlying action [De La Pena v. Wolfe (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 481, 484, 223 Cal. Rptr. 325]. There is no favorable termination of an action if an appeal is pending [Friedman v. Stadum (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 775, 779, 217 Cal. Rptr. 585].

For further discussion, see § 357.14[1],

[b] Pleading

Standing alone, an allegation that all proceedings terminated favorably to plaintiff would be a mere conclusion and insufficient to satisfy pleading requirements. It is necessary to allege facts from which a definite conclusion can be drawn that the prior proceedings terminated favorably to the plaintiff [Webb v. Youmans (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 851, 854, 57 Cal. Rptr. 11].

[5] Lack of Probable Cause

Probable cause means a suspicion founded upon circumstances sufficiently strong to warrant a reasonable person in the belief that the charge is true [Davis v. Local Union No. 11, Int'l Bhd. of Elec. Workers, AFL-CIO (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 686, 692]. Stated differently, one who commences a civil suit acts upon probable cause if he or she has an honest belief, founded upon facts sufficiently strong to justify his or her belief, that grounds exist for the proceeding [Kennedy v. Byrum (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 474, 480, 20 Cal. Rptr. 98]. In the context of an action against an attorney for malicious prosecution of a prior civil suit, the standard for determining probable cause is whether any reasonable attorney would have thought the civil claim was tenable [Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal. 3d. 863, 885-886, 254 Cal. Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498 ; Klein v. Oakland Raiders, Ltd. (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 67, 76, 259 Cal. Rptr. 149]. Probable cause does not mean "legal cause" because, if it did, then every plaintiff who failed to recover in his or her lawsuit would be liable to an action for malicious prosecution [Albertson v. Raboff (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 372, 385, 8 Cal. Rptr. 398]. Probable cause to bring a civil action, or the lack thereof, is determined with regard to the theory on which the allegedly malicious action was actually based. The test for malicious prosecution is not whether the defendant had reasonable grounds to seek some kind of relief in the original action, but whether he or she had reasonable grounds for asserting the theory for relief contained in the complaint and tried to the factfinder. Thus, even if the defendant had grounds for an action against the plaintiff, if he or she failed to prosecute the action on those grounds and instead prosecuted the action on untenable grounds, the defendant may be found liable for malicious prosecution [Williams v. Coombs (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 626, 644, 224 Cal. Rptr. 865 , criticized, Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal. 3d 863, 885-886, 254 Cal. Rtpr. 336, 765 P.2d 498 (civil)].

A malicious prosecution cause of action can be based on a lack of probable cause as to one (or more) of the grounds asserted in an underlying action, even if probable cause existed for one or more of the other grounds asserted [see Crowley v. Katleman (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 666, 679, 695, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 386, 881 P.2d 1083 ; Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 43, 57, 118 Cal. Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608].

Whether or not the defendant had probable cause for instituting the prosecution is always a matter of law to be determined by the court, and is never left to the determination of the jury. Even when the facts are in dispute, the court determines the issue of probable cause after the jury determines the factual issues [Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal. 3d 863, 875, 254 Cal. Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498 (civil); Ball v. Rawles (1892) 93 Cal. 222, 227, 28 P. 937 (criminal); Williams v. Coombs (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 626, 636, 224 Cal. Rptr. 865 , criticized, Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal. 3d 863, 885-886, 254 Cal. Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498 (civil)]. Thus, it is a judicial determination whether or not the defendant acted reasonably and in good faith as a matter of law [Williams v. Coombs (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 626, 637, 224 Cal. Rptr. 865 , criticized, Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal. 3d 863, 885-886, 254 Cal. Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498 (civil); see Evid. Code § 310(a); but see Weaver v. Superior Court (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 166, 189, 192, 156 Cal. Rptr. 745 (civil; reasonableness question as determined by jury)].

For further discussion, see § 357.16[1].

[6] Decisions

[a] Favorable Termination

Voluntary dismissal of civil action as favorable termination on which action for malicious prosecution may be based. Hurgren v. Union Mut. Life Ins. Co. (1904) 141 Cal. 585, 587-590, 75 P. 168 ; Kennedy v. Byrum (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 474, 477, 479-480, 20 Cal. Rptr. 98

Favorable termination as one tending to indicate innocence of accused; no favorable termination when initial action dismissed for failure of plaintiff to answer interrogatories, and when defendant in malicious prosecution action was attorney who substituted into former case after motion to dismiss was granted and mistakenly filed at-issue memorandum. De La Pena v. Wolfe (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 481, 484, 223 Cal. Rptr. 325

Demurrer without leave to amend as proper when action still pending on appeal, because there has been no favorable termination. Friedman v. Stadum (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 775, 779, 217 Cal. Rptr. 585

Voluntary dismissal of civil action as favorable termination which will support action for malicious prosecution even though expressly made without prejudice. MacDonald v. Joslyn (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 282, 289, 79 Cal. Rptr. 707

Dismissal of contempt proceedings ancillary to probate proceedings as favorable termination on which to bring malicious prosecution action. Ferraris v. Levy (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 408, 410-411, 36 Cal. Rptr. 30

Dismissal of contempt proceeding ancillary to a bankruptcy proceeding which was dismissed by mutual consent after a compromise of conflicting claims as not a favorable termination. Eustace v. Dechter (1942) 53 Cal. App. 2d 726, 732-733, 128 P.2d 367

[b] Lack of Probable Cause

Test of attorney's probable cause in representing client as whether any attorney would have thought that client's claim was tenable. Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal. 3d 863, 886, 254 Cal. Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498

Fact that probable cause existed for prosecution of prior action by one party as not exonerating defendant who acted wrongfully. Jacques Interiors v. Petrak (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 1363, 1370-1371, 234 Cal. Rptr. 44

Probable cause as determined by court rather than jury. Williams v. Coombs (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 626, 636-637, 224 Cal. Rptr. 865 , criticized, Sheldon Appel Co. v. Albert & Oliker (1989) 47 Cal. 3d 863, 885-886, 254 Cal. Rptr. 336, 765 P.2d 498

Definition for civil action. Davis v. Local Union No. 11, Int'l Bhd. of Elec. Workers, AFL-CIO (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 686, 692 ; Kennedy v. Byrum (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 474, 480, 20 Cal. Rptr. 98

Probable cause as not meaning legal cause. Albertson v. Raboff (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 372, 385, 8 Cal. Rptr. 398

Plaintiff as required to present substantial evidence to create conflict or inference of lack of probable cause. Davis v. Local Union No. 11, Int'l Bhd. of Elec. Workers, AFL-CIO (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 686, 692 ; Kassan v. Bledsoe (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 810, 816, 60 Cal. Rptr. 799

Lack of probable cause as not implied from even the most express malice. Kassan v. Bledsoe (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 810, 816, 60 Cal. Rptr. 799

Not even conflict on issue of probable cause as created by favorable termination of prior proceeding. Kassan v. Bledsoe (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 810, 816, 60 Cal. Rptr. 799

[c] Proximate Cause

Proximate cause as established when defendant's actions set law in motion and "in natural and continuous sequence" produced harm that defendant suffered. Jacques Interiors v. Petrak (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 1363, 1372-1373, 234 Cal. Rptr. 44

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Criminal Action--Probable Cause Established by Advice of Prosecuting Attorney

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

1. On or about _____ [date], defendant consulted [specify name and title of official, e.g., _____ (name), a deputy district attorney of _____ County, California].

2. Defendant informed _____ [name of official] fully, fairly, and in good faith, of all pertinent facts defendant knew concerning the transaction referred to in the criminal complaint against plaintiff, referred to in plaintiff's complaint herein.

3. Thereafter, in good faith reliance on the advice of _____ [name of official], defendant subscribed and swore to the criminal complaint against plaintiff herein, which is the basis of the present action brought by plaintiff against defendant herein.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense is for use in an answer to plead that defendant acted on the advice of a public prosecutor in initiating the criminal prosecution against plaintiff. Where there has been a full disclosure of the facts in good faith, this defense is available no matter how erroneous the advice given may have been [Richter v. Neilson (1936) 11 Cal. App. 2d 503, 508, 54 P.2d 54].

[3] Burden of Proof

The burden of proving that defendant relied upon the advice of counsel is on defendant [Klotz v. Alexander (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 238, 245, 21 Cal. Rptr. 305].

[4] Proof After General Denial Permitted

The defense of reliance upon the advice of counsel may be shown under a general denial of the complaint [Walker v. Jensen (1949) 95 Cal. App. 2d 269, 275, 212 P.2d 569].

[5] Evidence; Limitation

The defense of advice of counsel can only be established by proving the facts that were stated by a defendant to counsel, not by what was disclosed by the defendant to a police officer [Klotz v. Alexander (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 238, 245, 21 Cal. Rptr. 305]. If there are any circumstances within the knowledge of the prosecuting witness that would destroy the apparent effect of facts stated by the witness to an attorney, then the defense of probable cause based on advice of counsel fails [Northrup v. Baker (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 347, 355, 20 Cal. Rptr. 797].

[6] Decisions

Defense of advice of counsel as especially applicable where facts presented to prosecutor. Walker v. Jensen (1949) 95 Cal. App. 2d 269, 274, 212 P.2d 569

Defense as available no matter how erroneous advice may have been where public prosecutor consulted. Richter v. Neilson (1936) 11 Cal. App. 2d 503, 508, 54 P.2d 54

Defense as not available where defendant does not believe accused to be guilty. Centers v. Dollar Mkts. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 545, 222 P.2d 136

Burden of proving defense of reliance on advice of counsel as on defendant. Klotz v. Alexander (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 238, 245, 21 Cal. Rptr. 305

Proof of defense of reliance on advice of counsel as permitted after general denial of complaint. Walker v. Jensen (1949) 95 Cal. App. 2d 269, 275, 212 P.2d 569

Defense of advice of counsel as only established by proving facts stated to counsel, not police officer. Klotz v. Alexander (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 238, 245, 21 Cal. Rptr. 305

Defense of advice of counsel as not available where circumstances are within knowledge of prosecuting witness which would destroy apparent effect of facts stated to attorney. Northrup v. Baker (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 347, 355, 20 Cal. Rptr. 797

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Criminal Action--Probable Cause Established Because Plaintiff Was in Fact Guilty of Offense Charged

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

1. Notwithstanding the acquittal and favorable termination of the criminal proceeding referred to in plaintiff's complaint herein, plaintiff herein was, in fact, guilty of the offense charged.

2. Defendant herein acted without malice and with probable cause in instituting the criminal proceeding referred to in plaintiff's complaint herein.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense is for use in an answer to plead that defendant acted with probable cause in initiating the criminal prosecution of plaintiff even though plaintiff was acquitted of the charge.

[3] Availability of Defense After Acquittal

This defense is available notwithstanding an acquittal in the prior criminal proceeding. The question of plaintiff's guilt may be retried in the malicious prosecution action because a verdict of not guilty does not necessarily establish innocence; rather, it merely indicates a failure of the prosecution to prove guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. Thus, in a subsequent civil action where all that is required is a preponderance of the evidence on the issue, a further inquiry may be made before a new jury as to whether the lesser burden of proof can be sustained [Clary v. Hale (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 880, 890, 1 Cal. Rptr. 91].

[4] Decisions

Defendant in malicious prosecution action may always show plaintiff was in fact guilty of offense charged. Clary v. Hale (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 880, 889-890, 1 Cal. Rptr. 91

Question of plaintiff's guilt may be retried in malicious prosecution action; while unreversed conviction as conclusive as to guilt, acquittal as not conclusive as to innocence. Clary v. Hale (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 880, 889-890, 1 Cal. Rptr. 91

Proof that plaintiff committed offense charged in criminal action shows existence of probable cause and as a complete defense to malicious prosecution action. Verdier v. Verdier (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 348, 352, 313 P.2d 123

Proof that no crime was committed or that accused was innocent does not necessarily negative existence of probable cause. Centers v. Dollar Mkt. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 534, 541, 222 P.2d 136

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

On _____ [date], defendant fully, fairly, honestly, and in good faith informed _____ [name], a _____ [specify public official, e.g., deputy district attorney] of _____ County, California, of all the facts concerning the transaction referred to in the criminal _____ [information or indictment]. Defendant did nothing more than present these facts to [name of public official] and took no further action in the proceeding. The decision to arrest and prosecute plaintiff was made solely by the district attorney's office.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense is for use in an answer to plead that defendant is not liable because defendant merely presented a full, fair, honest, and good-faith statement of the relevant facts to a public official.

[3] Decisions

Person is not liable for laying out facts for public officials where action is in good faith. Gogue v. MacDonald (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 482, 486-487, 218 P.2d 542

§ 357.201 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Civil Action--Probable Cause Established by Advice of Counsel

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Civil Action--Probable Cause Established by Advice of Counsel

1. On or about _____ [date], defendant consulted _____ [name], an attorney at law, duly licensed to practice law in California.

2. Defendant informed this attorney fully, fairly, and in good faith of all the pertinent facts that defendant knew concerning the transaction referred to in plaintiff's complaint, and thereupon the attorney advised defendant that defendant had a good and sufficient cause of action against plaintiff.

3. Thereafter, and in good faith reliance on the advice of this attorney, defendant instituted the action against plaintiff, which is the basis of the present action brought by plaintiff against this defendant.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense is for use in an answer to plead that probable cause existed for instituting the prior civil action because defendant consulted an attorney in good faith and relied on the attorney's advice in bringing the action.

[3] Burden of Proof

The defense of reliance upon the advice of counsel is an affirmative defense. While it may be shown under a general denial in the answer, the burden of establishing it is upon the defendant [Albertson v. Raboff (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 372, 386, 8 Cal. Rptr. 398].

[4] Questions of Fact

Where the evidence conflicts or is subject to different inferences as to whether there was a full, fair, and complete disclosure to the attorney of all of the facts of the case within the knowledge of the client or as to whether the client acted in good faith on the advice of the attorney, it is for the trier of fact to resolve such conflict or draw the credible inferences [Albertson v. Raboff (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 372, 386, 8 Cal. Rptr. 398].

[5] Decisions

Reliance in good faith on advice of counsel is defense inasmuch as it shows probable cause. Kennedy v. Byrum (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 474, 481, 20 Cal. Rptr. 98

Advice of counsel is presumed to be complete defense where defendant presented all facts in good faith to counsel. Brinkley v. Appleby (1960) 276 Cal. App. 2d 244, 247, 80 Cal. Rptr. 734

Burden of proving defense is on defendant. Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 43, 54, 118 Cal. Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608

Defense of advice of counsel is not applicable where initiator of action acts in bad faith or withholds vital facts from counsel or where advice sought as cloak to protect one against suit for mali cious prosecution. Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 43, 53-54, 118 Cal. Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608

1. From _____ [date], until _____ [date], defendant represented plaintiff in a trial in the _____ [specify] Court of _____, County, California. The action was entitled _____ [name], Plaintiff, vs. _____ [name], Defendant, No. _____. It involved _____ [specify nature of case].

2. At all times before and during that trial, defendant held a reasonable belief that _____ [name of plaintiff] had a tenable cause of action against _____ [name of defendant] for _____ [specify nature of cause of action].

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense is for use in an answer to plead that probable cause existed for an attorney to represent a client because he or she had a reasonable belief that his or her client had a tenable cause of action.

[2] Use of Form

This general demurrer is for use by a defendant to object to a complaint for malicious prosecution where the objection that plaintiff has failed to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action appears on the face of the complaint or from any matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]. This objection is based on the fact that plaintiff has not alleged that there wasa termination of the prior proceeding favorable to plaintiff [*see Rutherford v. CAUTION:
A party filing a demurrer must serve and file with it a memorandum of points and authorities in support of each ground raised [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1103(c), 3.1113(a); for discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities] and a notice of hearing [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1103(c), 3.1112(a)].

[2] Use of Form

This general demurrer is for use by a defendant to object to a complaint for malicious prosecution where the objection that plaintiff has failed to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action appears on the face of the complaint or from any matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]. This objection is based on the fact that defendant is a public employee who is immune for the acts complained of [see Gov. Code § 821.6; White v. Towers (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 727, 734, 235 P.2d 209].

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is a general form that can be adapted for use in all actions for abuse of process.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges:

- The type of process that defendant obtained and used against plaintiff (Paragraph 3).

- The misuse of that process (Paragraph 4) [see Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 210, 231, 317 P.2d 613].

- The ulterior purpose and motivation in misusing the process in order to gain a collateral advantage (Paragraph 5) [see Templeton Feed & Grain v. Ralston Purina Co. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 461, 466, 72 Cal. Rptr. 344, 446 P.2d 152].

- General damages (Paragraph 6) [see Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 210, 233, 317 P.2d 613].

- Punitive damages (Paragraph 7) [see Templeton Feed & Grain v. Ralston Purina Co. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 461, 471, 72 Cal. Rptr. 344, 446 P.2d 152].

An action for abuse of process is properly brought only at the place of residence of the defendant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a); Cacciaguidi v. Superior Court (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 181, 184-187, 276 Cal. Rptr. 465].

[5] Broad Interpretation of "Process"

The term "process" is not limited to the strict sense of the term and has been interpreted broadly to encompass the entire range of "procedures" incident to litigation [Barquis v. Merchants Collection Ass'n (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 94, 104 n.4, 101 Cal. Rptr. 745, 496 P.2d 817].

[6] Damages

The damages recoverable for abuse of process include mental suffering [Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 210, 233, 317 P.2d 613]. A plaintiff may also recover punitive damages if the defendant has acted willfully with the wrongful intention of injuring plaintiff and from an improper or evil motive amounting to malice [see Templeton Feed & Grain v. Ralston Purina Co. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 461, 471, 72 Cal. Rptr. 344, 446 P.2d 152].

[c] Definitions

[i] Abuse of Process

Abuse of process as use of criminal or civil process against another to accomplish purpose for which process was not designed. Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 210, 231, 317 P.2d 613 ; Czap v. Credit Bureau of Santa Clara Valley (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 1, 5, 86 Cal. Rptr. 417

Gist of abuse of process as misuse of power of court. Younger v. Solomon (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 289, 297, 113 Cal. Rptr. 113

[ii] "Process"

"Process," as used in tort of abuse of process, as having never been limited to strict sense of term, but instead as having been interpreted broadly to encompass entire range of procedures incident to litigation. Barquis v. Merchants Collection Ass'n (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 94, 104 n.4, 101 Cal. Rptr. 745, 496 P.2d 817

"Process" as means by which court compels compliance with its demands. Meadows v. Bakersfield Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 749, 753, 59 Cal. Rptr. 34 (posting of notice of default and notice of sale under provisions of deed of trust as not constituting process for abuse of process action)

[d] Elements of Tort

[i] In General

Elements of abuse of process as ulterior purpose and improper willful act. Templeton Feed & Grain v. Ralston Purina Co. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 461, 466, 72 Cal. Rptr. 344, 446 P.2d 152 ; Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 210, 232-233, 317 P.2d 613

[ii] Favorable Termination of Prior Action Unnecessary

In cases in which alleged wrongfulness of process does not depend on alleged lack of probable cause and malice in instituting action in which process issued, termination of that action in favor of defendant as having no bearing on determination of whether process was maliciously procured or improperly used and defendant as not required until termination of primary action to seek damages for alleged wrongful process. White Lighting Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 336, 350-351, 66 Cal. Rptr. 697, 438 P.2d 345 (action involving wrongful attachment)

Distinction between malicious prosecution and abuse of process. Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 210, 232, 317 P.2d 613 ; Tellefsen v. Key Sys. Transit Lines (1961) 198 Cal. App. 2d 611, 615, 17 Cal. Rptr. 919

[f] Permissible Inferences

In abuse of process action, ulterior motive or purpose as permitted to be inferred from what is said or done about process, but improper act as not permitted to be inferred from motive. Tellefsen v. Key Sys. Transit Lines (1961) 198 Cal. App. 2d 611, 616, 17 Cal. Rptr. 919

Inferences to be drawn from evidence as lying in sound discretion of trial judge acting as trier of fact; intention with which party did act as permissibly inferred from evidence of party's subsequent conduct. Tranchina v. Arcinas (1947) 78 Cal. App. 2d 522, 524, 178 P.2d 65

[g] Statute of Limitations

One-year period of limitation under former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1 (two-year statute of limitations)) as applicable to actions filed for abuse of process. Thornton v. Rhoden (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 80, 95, 53 Cal. Rptr. 706 ; *McFaddin v. H.S. vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES AND INJUNC-
_____ [name(s)],	)	TION
Defendant(s).	)	(Abuse of Process and Unlawful Debt Collection)

Plaintiff alleges:

FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION
(Abuse of Process)

1. [Capacity and residence allegation. See § 357.190, Paragraph 1.]

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 357.190, Paragraph 2.]

3. On or about _____ [date], defendant _____ [name], as plaintiff, obtained a judgment in the approximate amount of $_____ against plaintiff herein, as defendant. The prior judgment is case number _____ in the Superior Court, _____ County, California, and was entered on an action for _____ [specify nature of action, e.g., attorney's fees].

4. Thereafter, plaintiff offered to pay defendant the amount of the prior judgment and costs at the rate of $_____ per _____ [specify period, e.g., month], and defendant rejected plaintiff's offer.

5. On or about _____ [date], defendant caused a garnishment of plaintiff's wages to be made by execution on the prior judgment, and plaintiff duly filed a claim of exemption pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure Section 706.05, under which all but $_____ of plaintiff's earnings were declared exempt from execution.

6. Despite defendant's knowledge that all but $_____ of plaintiff's earnings are exempt from execution, defendant has caused a garnishment of plaintiff's wages to be made each week since _____ [date of first garnishment], with malice and the intent to cause plaintiff embarrassment with his/her employer and to coerce plaintiff to pay the judgment out of the proceeds of his/her exempt wages in order to avoid embarrassment to plaintiff and inconvenience to the employer resulting from the garnishments.

7. As a proximate result of the conduct set forth above, plaintiff _____ [specify damages caused by defendant's conduct, e.g., suffered mental distress and became highly nervous and unable to properly perform his/her duties at his/her place of employment. Plaintiff has thereby sustained injury to his/her nervous system and person and has suffered general damages].

8. In engaging in the conduct described above, defendant has acted maliciously, willfully, and with specific intent to injure plaintiff and endanger his/her employment. Plaintiff is therefore entitled to exemplary and punitive damages.

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION
(Unlawful Debt Collection)

9. Plaintiff incorporates herein Paragraphs 1-4, inclusive, of the First Cause of Action.

10. Defendant _____ [name] is a debt collector, within the meaning of Civil Code Section 1788.2(c), duly licensed by the State of California.

11. On or about _____ [date], and continuing daily thereafter, defendant has repeatedly and maliciously telephoned plaintiff at plaintiff's home and employment with regard to the prior judgment, in order to annoy and harass plaintiff, in violation of Civil Code Sections 1788.11(d) and 1788.11(e).

12. As a proximate result of defendant's conduct, plaintiff suffered mental distress and has been damaged thereby.

THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION
(Injunctive Relief from Abuse of Process)

13. Plaintiff incorporates herein Paragraphs 1-6, inclusive, of the First Cause of Action.

14. The practices of defendant as herein alleged are defendant's usual and customary methods to collect debts. Only $_____ of plaintiff's wages are subject to garnishment each week. Unless restrained by the court, defendant will attempt to garnish all of plaintiff's wages repeatedly each week in an effort to collect the entire judgment of $_____. Plaintiff will therefore be compelled to file repeated exemption claims, causing him/her and his/her employer further annoyance and harassment, and causing plaintiff irreparable harm in his/her employment relationship.

15. Plaintiff has no defense to defendant's abuse of process, has no adequate remedy at law, and would suffer permanent and unconscionable damages by their continuance unless defendant is enjoined and restrained from continuing the practice of garnishing plaintiff's wages.

FOURTH CAUSE OF ACTION
(Injunctive Relief From Unlawful Debt Collection)

16. Plaintiff incorporates herein Paragraphs 1-4, inclusive, of the first cause of action, and Paragraphs 10-11, inclusive, of the Second Cause of Action.

17. Defendant's conduct in repeatedly telephoning plaintiff is defendant's usual and customary business practice. Plaintiff is powerless to alter his/her employment telephone number, or to avoid the harmful consequences to plaintiff's employment relationship caused by defendant's conduct. Moreover, defendant's continuous harassment of plaintiff both at home and at plaintiff's employment constitutes a violation of Civil Code Sections 1788.11(d) and 1788.11(e).

18. Plaintiff has no defense to defendant's unlawful debt collection practices, has no adequate remedy at law, and would suffer permanent and unconscionable damages by their continuance unless the defendant is enjoined and restrained from repeatedly and vexatiously telephoning plaintiff.

19. Defendant's conduct is an unfair business practice within the meaning of Business and Professions Code Section 17200.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judment against defendant as follows:

1. For a temporary injunction staying garnishments during the pendency of this action until this matter is decided and for a temporary restraining order staying such garnishments until a hearing may be had on the application for the temporary injunction.

2. For a temporary injunction preventing defendant from telephoning plaintiff until this matter is decided, and for a temporary restraining order preventing defendant from telephoning plaintiff until a hearing may be had on the application for the temporary injunction.

3. For a permanent injunction against defendant restraining it from garnishing by writ of execution the wages due defendant for personal services rendered at any time within 30 days next preceding the levy.

4. For a permanent injunction restraining defendant from telephoning plaintiff regarding the prior judgment and payment thereof.

5. For general damages according to proof.

6. For punitive damages.

7. For costs of suit herein incurred.

8. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This complaint for damages for abuse of process and unfair collection practices and for a permanent injunction, a temporary restraining order, and a temporary injunction is for use when there has been a series of wrongful garnishments of plaintiff's wages and unlawful debt collection practices.

[3] Allegations

The complaint sets forth four causes of action arising out of the defendant's actions. The first cause of action alleges:

- Abuse of process from wrongful repeated garnishment of plaintiff's wages (Paragraphs 3-6) [see Czap v. Credit Bureau of Santa Clara Valley (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 1, 86 Cal. Rptr. 417 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 706.050-706.051 (wages exempt from garnishment)].

- Resulting damages incurred (Paragraphs 7-8).

The second cause of action alleges:

- Unlawful debt collection (Paragraph 10-11) [see Civ. Code § 1788.11].

- Resulting damages incurred (Paragraph 12).

The third cause of action alleges grounds for injunctive relief from abuse of process (Paragraphs 14-15), and the fourth cause of action alleges grounds for injunctive relief from unlawful debt collection (Paragraphs 17-19) [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203 (injunctive relief)].

[4] Verification

Verification [Code Civ. Proc. § 446] is required if plaintiff seeks a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction on a complaint instead of on affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581]. For discussion, a procedural checklist, and additional forms necessary in order to obtain a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

Otherwise, verification is not required, but verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446] and precludes use of a general denial [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

For alternative forms of verification for use when the plaintiff is an individual or other noncorporate entity, see Ch. 572, Verification .

[5] Jurisdiction

An action seeking permanent injunctive relief is not a limited civil case [see Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(8), 580(b)(2)].

[6] Specification of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint, see Ch. 177, Damages , and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115].

[2] Use of Form

This general demurrer is for use by a defendant to object to a complaint for abuse of process when the objection that plaintiff has failed to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action appears on the face of the complaint or from matter of which the court is required to or may take judicial notice [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a)]. This objection is based on the fact that plaintiff has failed to allege that the process in question was used for an improper purpose to obtain a collateral advantageover plaintiff [see Golden v. Dungan (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 295, 301-302, 97 Cal. Rptr. 577]. With appropriate modifications, the form may be used in response to a cross complaint.

§ 357.225 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Absolute Privilege [Civ. Code § 47(b)] for Publication in Judicial Proceedings

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Absolute Privilege [Civ. Code § 47(b)] for Publication in Judicial Proceedings

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that the use of the process that plaintiff claims was abused was a publication made in the course of the proceedings before the court and as such was absolutely privileged under Civil Code Section 47(b).

[2] Use of Form

This form of affirmative defense is for insertion in defendant's answer to raise the defense that the use of process that plaintiff claims was abused is protected by the absolute privilege of Civ. Code § 47(b), protecting publications made during the course of judicial proceedings [see, e.g., Adams v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 521, 529-530, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 49]. Unlike evidentiary privileges that function by exclusion of evidence, the privilege of Civ. Code § 47(b) functions as a limitation on liability. Therefore, it does not extend to the evidentiary use of statements to prove an element of cause of action [Oren Royal Oaks Venture v. Greenberg, Bernhard, Weiss & Karma, Inc. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 1157, 1167-1168, 232 Cal. Rptr. 567, 728 P.2d 1202 (disapproving by implication Asia Inv. Co. v. Borowski (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 832, 843-843, 184 Cal. Rptr. 317 , to extent that it holds these publications may not be used for evidentiary purposes to prove existence of ulterior purpose)]. For further discussion, see § 357.56[2].

[3] Standing to Raise Defense

A lack of standing on the part of the defendant to, in fact, publish material or make statements claimed to be privileged does not necessarily vitiate application of the privilege to that defendant [Adams v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 521, 532, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 49 (defendants entitled to raise defense even though found to lack standing in another court to file motion alleged by plaintiff to constitute abuse of process)]. For further discussion, see § 357.56[3].

[4] Decisions

Absolute privilege under former Civ. Code § 47(2) (now see Civ. Code § 47(b)) as denied to participant in legal proceedings only if matter is so palpably irrelevant to subject matter of controversy that no reasonable person can doubt its irrelevancy and impropriety. Loomis v. Superior Court (1987) 195Cal. App. 3d 1026, 1030, 241 Cal. Rptr. 236 (absolute privilege held to apply in abuse of process action based on filing of public records of State Bar disciplinary proceeding in support of motion to strike another motion allegedly filed by suspended attorney during period of suspension)

In action for abuse of process and emotional distress, publications made in document prepared by expert witness for use in settlement agreement negotiations between plaintiff and plaintiff's former wife and in expert witness's false testimony at dissolution proceedings as covered by absolute privilege of former Civ. Code § 47(2) (now see Civ. Code § 47(b)). Carden v. Getzoff (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 907, 913, 235 Cal. Rptr. 698

Absolute privilege of former Civ. Code § 47(2) (now see Civ. Code § 47(b)) attaches if publication (1) was made in judicial proceeding, (2) had some connection or logical relation to action, (3) was made to achieve objects of litigation, and (4) involved litigants or other participants authorized by law. Profile Structures, Inc. v. Long Beach Bldg. Material Co. (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 437, 441-444, 226 Cal. Rptr. 192

Absolute privilege under former Civ. Code § 47(2) (now see Civ. Code § 47(b)) for publications made in course of judicial proceedings as applicable to actions for abuse of process. Younger v. Solomon (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 289, 300-301, 113 Cal. Rptr. 113 ; Thornton v. Rhoden (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 80, 94, 53 Cal. Rptr. 706

Absolute privilege under former Civ. Code § 47(2) (now see Civ. Code § 47(b)) as applicable only if publication has some bearing on or connection with subject matter of litigation. Younger v. Solomon (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 289, 301-302, 113 Cal. Rptr. 113

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--No Malice Present When Defendant Has Acted on Advice of Attorney--No Liability for Punitive Damages

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that all of defendant's actions in _____ [describe type of process allegedly misused] were taken after defendant fully disclosed all of the relevant facts to his/her/its attorney and was advised to follow the legal procedures complained of in plaintiff's cause of action for abuse of process. Therefore, defendant is not liable for punitive damages as alleged by plaintiff.

[2] Use of Form

This form of affirmative defense is for insertion in defendant's answer to raise the defense that there is no liability for punitive damages, because all of the relevant facts were disclosed to counsel, who advised the legal procedures complained of [*Templeton Feed & Grain v. Chapter 358 MANDATE AND PROHIBITION
PART I. SCOPE

§ 358.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses and includes forms relating to proceedings to obtain an extraordinary writ of mandate or prohibition.

The Introduction is divided into several parts:

- Part A of the Legal Background discusses the governing law, briefly compares writs of mandate and prohibition, and distinguishes them from other extraordinary writs commonly used in civil proceedings [see § 358.11 et seq.].

- Part B of the Legal Background discusses the availability of writs of mandate [see § 358.30 et seq.].

- Part C of the Legal Background discusses the availability of writs of prohibition [see § 358.40 et seq.].

- Part D of the Legal Background discusses in greater detail the requirement, common to both writs, that the petitioner lacks a plain, speedy, and adequate remedy at law [see § 358.50 et seq.].

- Part E of the Legal Background discusses grounds for opposing the issuance of both writs [see § 358.60 et seq.].

- Part F of the Legal Background discusses the procedures for obtaining both writs [see § 358.80 et seq.].

The chapter includes the following forms for use by a petitioner:

- A general form of petition for a writ of mandate or prohibition [see § 358.130] and specific allegations that may be included in that form [see §§ 358.131-358.136].

- An alternative writ and order [see §§ 358.139-358.140].
- An application for an order directing the issuance of a peremptory writ [see § 358.141].
- A notice of motion for a peremptory writ [see § 358.142].
- An order to show cause [see § 358.143].
- A replication to the respondent's or real party in interest's answer [see § 358.146].
- A peremptory writ [see § 358.149].
- Judgment for the petitioner [see § 358.147].
- An order to show cause re failure to obey peremptory writ [see § 358.151].

The chapter also includes the following forms for use by a respondent or real party in interest:

- A demurrer to the petition [see § 358.144].
- A verified answer to the petition [see § 358.145].
- Judgment denying the writ [see § 358.148].
- A return to a peremptory writ [see § 358.150].

Finally, the chapter includes a form of notice of motion for judgment on a peremptory writ of mandate [see § 358.152] and a form of judgment granting or denying relief on a noticed motion for judgment on a peremptory writ of mandate [see § 358.153].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. General Considerations

31-358 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 358.10

§ 358.10 Governing Law

[1] Authorizing Law

Proceedings for writ of mandate and writ of prohibition are governed generally by Cal. Const., art. VI § 10, Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1063, 1064, 1084-1110b, and, in appellate courts, Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.485-8.493. Local appellate or superior court rules may also affect writ proceedings [see, e.g., Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 1st App. Dist., Policy Statement A].

[2] Application of General Rules of Practice and Appeal

Except as otherwise required by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1084-1110b, the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure governing civil actions, generally [i.e., Code Civ. Proc. § 307 et seq.], control mandate and prohibition proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1109]. Likewise, the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 307 et seq. relating to new trials and appeals also apply to mandate and prohibition proceedings, except to the extent that they are inconsistent with the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1084-1110b [Code Civ. Proc. § 1110].

Similarly, the civil law and motion rules for trial courts, Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1100 et seq. apply to proceedings for a writ of mandate or prohibition in superior courts [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1103(a)(2)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. General Considerations

31-358 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 358.11

§ 358.11 Function and Scope of Prerogative Writs

[1] Nature of Prerogative Writs

Courts and commentators have characterized writs of mandate and prohibition, as "prerogative writs" [see, e.g., American Mut. Liab. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 579, 588, 113 Cal. Rptr. 561], that is, a court order requiring the performance of a specified act, or giving authority to have it done, issued by the exercise of the extraordinary power of the court on proper cause shown [Black's Law Dictionary 1441, 1442 (5th ed. 1979)].

Prerogative writs are utilized as a means for reviewing judicial, nonjudicial, and administrative rulings [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1103]. They are available only in extraordinary circumstances and courts are vested with discretion to accept or reject requests for them [see American Mut. Liab. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 579, 588-589, 113 Cal. Rptr. 561 ; Renken v. Compton City School Dist. (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 106, 112, 24 Cal. Rptr. 347].

[2] Types of Prerogative Writs

The three major prerogative writs available in California civil proceedings are as follows:

- Writs of mandate, or mandamus, may issue to compel performance of aministerial act or mandatory duty if there is a clear legal right in the person seeking relief, a corresponding duty in the defendant, and a lack of any other adequate remedy [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085(a), 1086].

- Writs of prohibition may issue to prevent an inferior court or tribunal possessing judicial or quasi-judicial powers from exercising its jurisdiction in matters over which it lacks sufficient jurisdiction [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1102, 1103(a)].

- Writs of review (or certiorari) may issue to review miscellaneous actions of inferior tribunals, boards, and officers exercising judicial functions if these bodies have exceeded their jurisdiction [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1068(a), 1074].

Of the three prerogative writs, writs of mandate and prohibition are much more commonly used than writs of certiorari in California civil proceedings. For discussion comparing these writs, see § 358.12. For discussion relating to the less commonly used writ of writ of review, see § 358.13[2].

31-358 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 358.12

§ 358.12 Writs of Mandate and Prohibition Compared

Mandate and prohibition are similar in several basic respects:

- Both remedies are prerogative writs [see § 358.11], issuable by any court on the verified petition of the party beneficially interested if there is no plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085(a), 1086, 1103(a)].

- The writs may be issued and directed to "an inferior tribunal, or to a corporation, board, or person" [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085(a), 1103(a)].

- To a large degree, the procedural requirements for the writs overlap [see Code Civ. Proc § 1105].

- In some cases, the writs can be used interchangeably [see, e.g., Rio Del Mar. etc. Club v. Superior Court (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 214, 217, 190 P.2d 295 (mandamus or prohibition appropriate to secure meritorious dismissal denied by trial court)].

Mandate and prohibition differ in what they can compel the ordered party (known as the "respondent") to do. Generally speaking, mandate is used to compel ministerial action; prohibition is used to restrain or prevent judicial action. Mandate can compel a respondent to perform an act that the law specially enjoins. It can also compel the admission of a party to the use and enjoyment of a right or office to which that party is entitled and from which the party is unlawfully precluded [Code Civ. Proc. § 1085(a)]. Prohibition, on the other hand, can arrest the proceedings of a respondent (typically a court) exercising judicial functions if the proceedings are without or in excess of the respondent's jurisdiction [Code Civ. Proc. § 1102].

§ 358.13 Writs Other Than Mandate and Prohibition Distinguished

[1] Administrative Mandate

[a] Purpose of Administrative Mandate

The writ of administrative mandate is a specialized writ of mandate that is used to obtain review of administrative decisions [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a)]. The writ is only available if conditions specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 obtain [Keeler v. Superior Court (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 596, 599, 297 P.2d 967]. That is, there must be a final decision by an administrative agency that has discretionary authority to make findings of fact and that is required by law to hold a hearing at which evidence was required to be taken, and discretion in the determination of facts is vested in that inferior tribunal, corporation, board, or officer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a); O.W.L. Foundation v. City of Rohnert Park (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 568, 585, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 (traditional mandamus appropriate when city chose to hold public hearing although no hearing legally required); Blue Cross of California v. State Department of Health Services (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 322, 329-330, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 772 ; Winkelman v. City of Tiburon (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 834, 840, 108 Cal. Rptr. 415]. Additionally, the petitioner for the writ must be beneficially interested in issuance of the writ and have no plain and speedy remedy in the ordinary course of law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086].

For detailed discussion and forms relating to administrative mandate proceedings, see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decision , through Ch. 474C, Procedures in Reviewing Agency Decisions .

[b] Review of Administrative Adjudicatory Acts

The choice of remedy between regular and administrative mandate depends to a large degree on whether the agency action is adjudicatory or legislative in nature [Garrick Development Co. v. Hayward Unified School Dist. (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 320, 327-328, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 897 ; Tielsch v. City of Anaheim (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 570, 574, 206 Cal. Rptr. 738]. Generally speaking, a legislative action is the formulation of a rule to be applied to all future cases, whereas an adjudicatory action involves the actual application of such a rule to a specific set of existing facts [Strumsky v. San Diego County Employees Retirement Ass'n (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 28, 35 n.2, 112 Cal. Rptr. 805, 520 P.2d 29 ; Tielsch v. City of Anaheim (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 570, 574, 206 Cal. Rptr. 738].

If the statutory requirements for relief are otherwise met, acts by an administrative body that are of an adjudicatory nature typically are reviewable under administrative mandate, whereas acts by such a body that are of a legislative or quasi-legislative nature are reviewable under regular, or traditional, mandate [see City of Arcadia v. State Water Resources Control Bd. (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 1392, 1408-1409, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 373 ; Langsam v. City of Sausalito (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 871, 879, 235 Cal. Rptr. 672 ; Santa Ana Tustin Community Hospital v. Board of Supervisors (1982) 127 Cal. App. 3d 644, 653, 179 Cal. Rptr. 620]. Administrative mandate is used to review an adjudicatory decision if an agency is not required to hold an evidentiary hearing [O.W.L. Foundation v. City of Rohnert Park (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 568, 585, 86Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 (traditional mandamus appropriate when city chose to hold public hearing although no hearing legally required); Johnston v. Sonoma County Agricultural Preservation and Open Space District (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 973, 983-984, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 226].

[2] Writ of Review (Certiorari)

The writ of review, traditionally known as the writ of certiorari, is used to review miscellaneous actions of inferior tribunals, boards, and officers exercising judicial functions, if these bodies have exceeded their jurisdiction and there is neither any appeal nor, in the judgment of the court, any plain, speedy, and adequate remedy [Code Civ. Proc. § 1068(a)].

Unlike other writs, the writ of review does not command the respondent to do something or show cause why it has not been done. Instead, it commands the respondent to certify to the court the transcript of what has been done and may, in addition, require the respondent to temporarily desist from further proceedings in the matter to be reviewed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1071].

After a court issues the writ of review, it reviews the certified record and then issues a judgment affirming, annulling, or modifying the decision below [Code Civ. Proc. § 1075].

The usefulness of the writ has become limited over time by three factors: (1) most decision-making bodies, other than courts, do not exercise judicial functions; (2) few judicial orders, outside of contempt orders, are unappealable; and (3) the writs of mandate and of administrative mandate provide a broader scope of review of a challenged decision. As one court put it, "Code of Civil Procedure section 1068 explains when a writ of review or certiorari may be granted; and that is, to put it bluntly, not very often" [Freedom Newspapers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1102, 1107, 231 Cal. Rptr. 189].

Special statutory writs of review are available in a number of administrative proceedings, including:

- Review of Alcohol Beverage Control Appeals Board decision [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 23090, 23090.1];
- Review of Workers' Compensation Appeals Board decision [Lab. Code § 5950];
- Review of Public Utilities Commission decision [Pub. Util. Code § 756].

For discussion and forms relating to these specialized writs of review, see respectively Ch. 18, Alcoholic Beverage Licenses , Ch. 577, Workers' Compensation , and Ch. 480, Public Utilities .

For detailed discussion and forms relating to writs of review generally, see Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari), Writ of .

§ 358.14 Parties to Writ Proceeding

[1] Petitioner, Respondent, and Real Party in Interest

In a proceeding to obtain a writ of mandate or prohibition, there are generally three parties [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1107]:

(1) The petitioner, who seeks the writ;

(2) The respondent, whose act the petitioner wishes to compel or prohibit; and

(3) The real party in interest, a party having interests that will be directly or adversely affected if the writ is issued and that therefore has standing to appear in the proceeding and oppose the petition.

In many cases, it is the real party in interest, not the respondent, who participates as the opposing party in the writ proceeding. For example, if a plaintiff in a tort action seeks a writ of mandate in an appellate court to compel a trial court to issue a discovery order against the defendant, the defendant, as real party in interest, will oppose the petition; the trial court, the respondent, will not participate [see Daly v. Superior Court (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 132, 137-140, 137 Cal. Rptr. 14, 560 P.2d 1193)]. A respondent superior court is not justified in filing a return unless there are issues directly impacting the efficient operation of the court or the court's budget [Howard Gunty Profit Sharing Plan v. Superior Court (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 572, 576, n.6, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 896].

There may be more than one real party in interest, so long as each has an interest that would be directly affected by issuance of the writ [see Cal. Rules of Ct, Rule 8.486(a)(2) (writ petition in appellate court must disclose name of real party in interest, if any, or party whose interest would be directly affected by the proceeding)]. For example, if an attorney seeks a writ to review a trial court's denial of an application to withdraw as counsel, real parties in interest would include not only the attorney's client, but also the party opposing that client. The latter also has standing to appear and oppose the petition because issuance of a writ compelling the trial court to grant the withdrawal would further delay the litigation, which could in turn work an injustice on the opposing party [see Manfredi & Levine v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1132, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 494]. But a respondent superior court is not justified in filing a return unless there are issues directly impacting the efficient operation of the court or the court's budget [Howard Gunty Profit Sharing Plan v. Superior Court (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 572, 576, n.6, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 896].

Conversely, in certain types of writ proceedings, typically involving nonjudicial action, there is no real party in interest, and it is the respondent who opposes the petition for the writ. For example, if a corporate shareholder files a petition for a writ of mandate, seeking to compel a corporation to allow inspection of corporate records, there is no real party in interest, and the corporation, as respondent, opposes the petition [see Webster v. Bartlett Estate Co. (1917) 35 Cal. App. 283, 284, 169 P. 702].

[2] Use of Terms "Plaintiff" and "Defendant"

Code of Civil Proc. § 1063 provides that the "party prosecuting a special proceeding" (such as the petitioner in a proceeding for a writ of mandate or prohibition) may be known as the "plaintiff," and that the "adverse party" (the respondent or real party in interest in a writ proceeding) may be known as the "defendant." For the sake of clarity and convenience, however, only the terms "petitioner," "respondent," and "real party in interest" are used in this chapter.

§ 358.15 Petitions Seeking Relief in the Alternative and Mislabeled Petitions

When a petitioner is in doubt concerning the type of writ to seek, it is proper to pray for relief in the alternative form. This follows from the modern principle of pleading that neither mislabeling nor a defective prayer will bar relief justified by properallegations and proof [Peck's Liquors, Inc. v. Superior Court (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 772, 775, 34 Cal. Rptr. 735]. Because of the overlapping use and common features of the writs of mandate and prohibition, and because their distinct functions are not always appreciated, it is not uncommon in modern practice for a petitioner to request either a writ of mandate or prohibition in the alternative, to ensure that the proper writ is requested [see also discussion under § 358.12].

If a petitioner does request the wrong prerogative writ in the given circumstances, the court may nevertheless treat the petition as one for the proper writ [see, e.g., Owens v. Superior Court (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 822, 826, 345 P.2d 921].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. General Considerations

31-358 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 358.16

§ 358.16 Peremptory and Alternative Writ Procedure

[1] Basic Attributes

There are two procedurally distinct types of writs of mandate and prohibition: (1) peremptory writs, which absolutely command the respondent to provide the relief requested in the writ petition, and (2) alternative writs, which command the respondent either to provide the relief requested or, alternatively, to show cause why he or she has not provided the relief requested. Thus, a court presented with a petition for a writ of mandate or prohibition generally may do any of the following [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1087, 1088, 1105; Palma v. U.S. Industrial Fasteners, Inc. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 171, 177-178, 203 Cal. Rptr. 626, 681 P.2d 893]:

- The court may deny the petition summarily.

- The court may issue an alternative writ that commands the respondent to act in conformity with the prayer of the petition or, alternatively, show cause before the court why it should not be ordered so to act.

- The court may issue a peremptory writ in the first instance, commanding the respondent to act in conformity with the prayer of the petition.

[2] Alternative Writ

If the court issues an alternative writ, the respondent may choose to act in conformity with the prayer, in which case the petition becomes moot. Otherwise, the respondent, the real party in interest, or both, may file a written return setting forth the factual and legal bases that justify the respondent's refusal to do so [Palma v. U.S. Industrial Fasteners, Inc. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 171, 177-178, 203 Cal. Rptr. 626, 681 P.2d 893]. The court may then decide whether to issue a peremptory writ. If a respondent court chooses to act in conformity with an alternative writ, thus rendering the petition moot, the reviewing court that issued the alternative writ may retain jurisdiction and decide the issue raised in the petition if the issue is of general interest, likely to recur, and likely to be dispositive of other claims [County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (Crystal B., Steven G., Anita G.) (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 1303, 1307, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 471].

[3] Peremptory Writ in the First Instance

The court may issue a peremptory writ in the first instance only in truly exceptional cases, primarily those in which a compelling temporal urgency requires an immediate decision [Lewis v. Superior Court (1999) 19 Cal. 4th 1232, 1261, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 85, 970 P.2d 872]. More specifically, this accelerated procedure may be used in the limited circumstances: if entitlement to relief is conceded, if there has been clear error under well-settled principles of law and undisputed facts, or if there is an unusual urgency requiring acceleration of the normal process [Lewis v. Superior Court (1999) 19 Cal. 4th 1232, 1258, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 85, 970 P.2d 872 ; Alexander v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 1218, 1223, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 397, 859 P.2d 96].

Before a peremptory writ can issue in the first instance the party adversely affected must receive notice that a peremptory writ in the first instance is being sought and considered, and, absent truly exceptional circumstances requiring immediate action, the court must receive or solicit opposition from the party adversely affected [Lewis v. Superior Court (1999) 19 Cal. 4th 1232, 1236, 1261, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 85, 970 P.2d 872 ; Palma v. U.S. Industrial Fasteners, Inc. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 171, 180, 203 Cal. Rptr. 626, 681 P.2d 893 ; Kernes v. Superior Court (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 525, 530, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 765 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1088 (10-day notice period)].

An appellate court may issue a "suggestive" Palma notice whereby the court provides notice that the court intends to issue a peremptory writ in the first instance granting the relief requested by the petitioner; a discussion of the merits of the writ petition, with a suggestion that the trial court erred in the manner claimed by the petitioner; a specific grant to the trial court of "power and jurisdiction" to change the disputed interim order and enter in its place a new order consistent with the views of the appellate court, in which event the writ petition will be vacated as moot; and a solicitation of opposition to the issuance of a peremptory writ in the first instance, should the trial court elect not to follow the appellate court's recommendation [Brown, Winfield & Canzoneri, Inc. v. Superior Court (2010) 47 Cal. 4th 1233, 2010 Cal. LEXIS 588, 2-3] . If a trial court decides on its own motion to revisit its interim ruling in response to a suggestive Palma notice, that court must inform the parties of its intent to do so, and provide them with an opportunity to be heard [Brown, Winfield & Canzoneri, Inc. v. Superior Court (2010) 2010 Cal. LEXIS 588, 2-35] .

[4] Judicial Considerations in Determining Appropriate Writ

The opposition from the party adversely affected will determine whether the court issues the peremptory writ or follows the standard operating procedure of using the alternative writ or order to show cause. The court must follow the usual writ procedure and issue an alternative writ or order to show cause if the opposition presents any reasonable argument that [Lewis v. Superior Court (1999) 19 Cal. 4th 1232, 1261, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 85, 970 P.2d 872 ; Kernes v. Superior Court (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 525, 530, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 765]:

- The applicable law is unsettled;

- The applicable law does not govern the precise issue presented in light of the particular undisputed facts;

- The application of legal principles set out in various sources of law might lead to different results and there is no compelling need for an expedited decision.

Due to the usually exigent circumstances under which a court considers issuing a peremptory writ in the first instance, it need not give the opposition an opportunity to present oral argument [Lewis v. Superior Court (1999) 19 Cal. 4th 1232, 1252-1253, 1258-1261, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 85, 970 P.2d 872].

Notwithstanding the limited circumstances in which an appellate court may issue a peremptory writ in the first instance, one court of appeal has adopted a rule providing that it will not accept petitions praying for an alternative writ. Rather, it will accept for filing only those petitions for writs of mandate or prohibition that pray solely for a peremptory writ in the first instance, which, if meritorious, the court may grant after due notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 4th App. Dist., Rule 3 (applicable only in Division One of the Fourth Appellate District)]. This local appellate rule would appear to be merely one of convenience for the court, giving it the option in all cases to issue a peremptory writ in the first instance whenever it is otherwise appropriate to do so, without necessarily precluding it from issuing an alternative writ or order to show cause in those cases requiring a full hearing [cf. First App. Dist., Internal Operating Practices and Procedures, § 28 (petition for mandate or prohibition should pray for peremptory writ in first instance, to facilitate possible grant of summary relief)].

For discussion of the limited circumstances in which an appellate court will exercise its original jurisdiction by granting an extraordinary writ in any case, see § 358.30[2]. For a detailed discussion of the procedures for obtaining a writ, see § 358.80 et seq.

B. Availability of Writ of Mandate

31-358 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 358.30

§ 358.30 Jurisdiction in Mandate Proceedings

[1] Courts With Original Jurisdiction

The Supreme Court, courts of appeal, superior courts, and their judges have original jurisdiction in proceedings for extraordinary relief in the nature of mandamus [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1084 ("mandamus" synonymous with "mandate")]. In other words, any court may issue a writ of mandate to any inferior tribunal or to any corporation, board, or person [Code Civ. Proc. § 1085(a)].

The appellate division of the superior court has original jurisdiction in proceedings for extraordinary relief in the nature of mandamus directed to the superior court in causes subject to its appellate jurisdiction [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10]. If the appellate division of the superior court issues a writ of mandate to the superior court (in a limited civil case or in a misdemeanor or infraction case), the superior court is an inferior tribunal for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1084-1097 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1085(b)].

When the superior court has original jurisdiction in a writ proceeding, as distinguished from the appellate division, the court conducts the proceeding pursuant to its general powers and it properly decides the petition through a single judge rather than through a panel of judges sitting as the appellate division [Rosenberg v. Superior Court (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 860, 870, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 365].

[2] Appellate Courts' Exercise of Original Jurisdiction

[a] Assessment of Whether Circumstances Warrant Issuing a Writ

Although an appellate court has original jurisdiction in any mandate proceeding involving an inferior court or other entity [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 and § 358.30[1]], absent a showing of exceptional circumstances, it will not exercise this jurisdiction if the petition for a writ of mandate could have been made first to a lower court [Funeral Dir. Assn. v. Bd. of Funeral Dirs. (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 104, 110, 136 P.2d 785 ; Cohen v. Superior Court (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 268, 270, 274, 72 Cal. Rptr. 814]. Thus, if a petitioner for a writ of mandate files in an appellate court, but could have lawfully petitioned a lower court in the first instance, the petition must set forth the circumstances that render it proper for the writ to issue originally from the reviewing court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(1)].

If exceptional circumstances do exist, a court of appeal may exercise its original jurisdiction in a mandate proceeding notwithstanding the fact that another mandate proceeding, seeking the same relief, is pending in a superior court within another appellate district [see Rivera v. Division of Industrial Welfare (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 576, 581, 71 Cal. Rptr. 739].

A court of appeal will exercise its original jurisdiction in the first instance to issue a writ of mandate, in order to resolve issues of great public import whose prompt resolution is necessary [Faulder v. Mendocino County Bd. of Sup'rs (2005) 144 Cal. App. 4th 1362, 1368-1369, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 251 ; Corbett v. Superior Court (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 649, 657, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 46 (court determines whether class actions may be brought under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq.); Aden v. Younger (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 662, 670, 129 Cal. Rptr. 535]. Similarly, the Supreme Court exercises its original jurisdiction in mandate proceedings only in cases in which the issues presented are of great public importance and require prompt resolution [Bramberg v. Jones (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 1045, 1054-1055, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 319, 978 P.2d 1240 ; Legislature v. Eu (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 492, 500, 286 Cal. Rptr. 283, 816 P.2d 1309 ; Wenke v. Hitchcock (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 746, 750, 100 Cal. Rptr. 290, 493 P.2d 1154].

[b] Effect of Court's Decision

Absent a showing sufficient to justify an appellate court's exercise of its original jurisdiction, the court may deny the petition, and the petitioner's right to reapply for the writ in the proper lower tribunal will not be prejudiced [Funeral Dir. Assn. v. Bd. of Funeral Dirs. (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 104, 110, 136 P.2d 785 ; see also Cal. Const., art. VI, § 12; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 10.1000(a) (transfer of causes from Supreme Court to court of appeal)].

Some statutes provide that the California Supreme Court has exclusive jurisdiction to hear certain types of writ petitions [see, e.g., Pub. Res. Code § 25531]. If a writ petition in the California Supreme Court is the exclusive means of obtaining review of an administrative decision, the Supreme Court's summary denial of the petition is a final judicial determination on the merits [Santa Teresa Citizen Action Group v. California Energy Commission (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 1441, 1447, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 392 (rejecting due process challenge to Supreme Court's exclusive jurisdiction)].

For discussion of the appellate courts' appellate jurisdiction (as distinguished from their original jurisdiction), to review the judgment of a lower court granting or denying a petition for writ of mandate, see § 358.90.

Chapter 358 MANDATE AND PROHIBITION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Availability of Writ of Mandate

31-358 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 358.31

§ 358.31 Requirements for Issuance of Writ of Mandate

[1] Essential Elements

To obtain a writ of mandate, the petitioner must generally show a duty on the part of the respondent [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1085(a) and discussion under § 358.31[2]], the petitioner's beneficial interest in compelling the performance of that duty [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086 and discussion under § 358.31[3][a]], and the inadequacy of other legal remedies [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086 and discussion under § 358.31[4]].

The petition for a writ of mandate must be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(4) (appellate courts)], and must demonstrate theright to the writ by clear, certain, and positive evidence [California Federation of Teachers v. Oxnard Elementary Sch. (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 514, 545, 77 Cal. Rptr. 497]. The right to relief in a mandate proceeding is determined by facts existing at the time that the petition is filed [King v. Martin (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 791, 795, 98 Cal. Rptr. 711 ; Palmer v. Fox (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d 453, 456, 258 P.2d 30].

Each party must also serve and file a Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons at the time it files its first document in the Court of Appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(d)]. The petitioner's certificate must be included in the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.488(c)(1)]. The certificates of the respondent and real party in interest must be included in their preliminary opposition or, if no such opposition is filed, in their return, if any. The certificate must appear after the cover and before the tables [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.488(c)(3)].

The writ may be issued by any court, only to an inferior tribunal or to a corporation, board, or person [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1085(a); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1085(b), discussed in § 358.30[1]].

[2] Duty of Respondent or Right of Petitioner

A court may issue a writ of mandate to compel the performance of an act that the law specially enjoins, such as a duty resulting from an office, trust, or station [Code Civ. Proc. § 1085(a)]. If a writ is sought to compel the performance of an act that the law specially enjoins, the petitioner must establish a clear, present, and usually ministerial duty on the part of the respondent [City of Dinuba v. County of Tulare (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 859, 868, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 614, 161 P.3d 1168 ; Santa Clara County Counsel Attys. Assn. v. Woodside (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 525, 539540, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617, 869 P.2d 1142 ; Galbiso v. Orosi Public Utility Dist. (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 652, 673-674, 107 Cal. Rptr. 3d 36 (plaintiff did not allege agency had duty to act in certain way); Coachella Valley Unified School District v. State of California (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 93, 113, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 9 ; Mednik v. State Department of Health Care Services (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 631, 639, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 112 ; Rancho Murieta Airport, Inc. v. County of Sacramento (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 323, 326-327, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 609 (county had duty to trim trees blocking airport visibility)].

A writ of mandate may also issue to compel the admission of a party to the use and enjoyment of a right or office to which that party is entitled and from which the party has been unlawfully precluded by the respondent [Code Civ. Proc. § 1085(a)]. If a writ is sought to compel the admission of a party to the use and enjoyment of a right or office, the petitioner must establish having a clear, present, and beneficial right to performance of the respondent's duty [Santa Clara County Counsel Attys. Assn. v. Woodside (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 525, 539-540, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617, 869 P.2d 1142 ; Norton v. San Bernardino City Unified School District (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 749, 756-757, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 917 ; Santa Monica Mun. Employees Assn. v. City of Santa Monica (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1538, 1547, 237 Cal. Rptr. 185]. A writ is granted only if it is necessary to protect a substantial right and it is shown that substantial damage will be suffered if the writ is denied [Parker v. Bowron (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 344, 351, 254 P.2d 6 ; California Federation of Teachers v. Oxnard Elementary Sch. (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 514, 545, 77 Cal. Rptr. 497]. That is, the writ must be necessary to enforce or protect a specific legal right that is clear, present, certain, and substantial [American Friends Service Committee v. Procunier (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 252, 256, 109 Cal. Rptr. 22].

[3] Petitioner Must Have Beneficial Interest

[a] Beneficial Interest May Be a Private Interest

A writ of mandate may be issued only on the verified petition of a party beneficially interested [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086]. If the issue is not one of public right and public interest [see § 358.31[3][b]], a particular private interest constitutes a sufficient beneficial interest. Thus, a person who has some special interest to be served or some particular right to be preserved or protected (independent of rights or interests held in common with the public at large) has such a beneficial interest under Code Civ. Proc. § 1086 [Carsten v. Psychology Examining Com. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 793, 796, 166 Cal. Rptr. 844, 614 P.2d 276 ; Mission Hospital Regional Medical Center v. Shewry (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 460, 479-480, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 639 (beneficial interest requirement is very broad); California Association for Health Services at Home v. State Department of Health Services (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 696, 704-707, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 102].

If, however, the petitioner shares an interest with a large segment of the population and the issue is not considered significant by the court, the petitioner's interest will not support issuance of a writ [see Sacramento County Fire Protection Dist. v. Sacramento County Assessment Appeals Bd. II (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 327, 332-333, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 215 (interest of special district in obtaining proper funding through taxes is not beneficial interest in insuring property is properly assessed for tax purposes); Braude v. City of Los Angeles (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 83, 88-89, 276 Cal. Rptr. 256 (petitioner seeking to halt development that would increase traffic congestion on particular freeway shared interest with hundreds of thousands of commuters who used same freeway, though not with all urban area commuters, and increased traffic would only have incremental effect on overall traffic in area)].

[b] Zone of Interest Must Pertain to Duty at Issue

The beneficial-interest analysis may also evaluate whether the interest the petitioner seeks to advance is within the zone of interests to be protected or regulated by the legal duty asserted [Regency Outdoor Advertising, Inc. v. City of West Hollywood (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 825, 829, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 287 (relevant statute did not create standing to promote petitioner's commercial or competitive interests); State Water Resources Control Bd. v. Superior Court (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 907, 915, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 784]. For example, in a case in which the Attorney General, in violation of Water

Code § 186, undertook representation of both the Water Resources Board (which made the challenged underlying administrative determination) and the Department of Fish and Game, a private party had a beneficial interest in a mandamus action in the Court of Appeal after the trial court had disqualified the Attorney General. The interest the private party sought to enforce was within the zone of interests that Water Code § 186 is designed to protect. The Attorney General was thus prevented from representing both the agency that made the challenged determination and another agency that was a separate party to the action [State Water Resources Control Bd. v. Superior Court (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 907, 915, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 784].

Prior to the unification of the superior and municipal courts in 1998, a municipal court had no standing to petition in its own name for a writ of mandate against the superior court because the municipal court had no "beneficial interest" in the outcome of the litigation [Municipal Court v. Superior Court (Gonzalez) (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 1126, 1129-1132, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 504, 857 P.2d 325 ; Municipal Court v. Superior Court (Swenson) (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 957, 962-963, 249 Cal. Rptr. 182 ; Municipal Court v. Superior Court (Sinclair) (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 19, 24-25, 244 Cal. Rptr. 591]. For example, when a municipal court sought a writ to overturn a superior court ruling regarding peremptory challenges under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, the court of appeal held that, although the municipal court may have had an actual interest in limiting the exercise of peremptory challenges against municipal court judges, the policy of preventing a lower court from suing a higher court takes precedence for the sake of proper and harmoniousfunctioning of the judicial system [Municipal Court v. Superior Court (Swenson) (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 957, 962-963, 249 Cal. Rptr. 182].

[c] Public-Interest Exception

The requirement concerning the nature of the petitioner's right is greatly relaxed, if not virtually abandoned, if the question involved is one of public interest [City of Garden Grove v. Superior Court (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 355, 365-371, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 656 ; Residents of Beverly Glen, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1973) 34 Cal.App. 3d 117, 127, 109 Cal. Rptr. 724]. That is, the petitioner is not required to show any legal or special interest in the result when the question is one of public right and the object of the petition is to procure the enforcement of a public duty [Environmental Protection and Information Center v. California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 459, 479-480, 80 Cal. Rptr. 3d 28, 187 P.3d 888 (labor union had standing to sue regarding enforcement of administrative regulations governing logging plan); Common Cause v. Board of Supervisors (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 432, 439, 261 Cal. Rptr. 574, 777 P.2d 610 ; Green v. Obledo (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 126, 144, 172 Cal. Rptr. 206, 624 P.2d 256 ; Timmons v. McMahon (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 512, 518, 286 Cal. Rptr. 620 ("beneficial interest" requirement for mandate satisfied when public right is at stake and relator is citizen interested in having laws executed and duty in question enforced)]. Stated differently, if the respondent's duty is sharp and the public need weighty, mandate will be granted if petitioner is a citizen who is merely seeking the enforcement of the law [Marshall v. Pasadena Unified School District (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 1241, 1252, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 344 (contractor and taxpayer had standing to file petition challenging school district's failure to use competitive bidding procedure when petition sought to protect public fisc); McDonald v. Stockton Met. Transit Dist. (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 436, 440, 111 Cal. Rptr. 637]. This exception remains viable despite United States Supreme Court precedent limiting a similar public interest exception [California Homeless & Housing Coalition v. Anderson (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 450, 457-458, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 639].

Even if a party has a different primary interest, it may have standing under the public-interest exception to compel action of benefit to the public. In one case, a court of appeal found that a hospital had standing to compel a county to adopt standards for care of the indigent, even though the hospital's primary interest was financial, because the hospital was acting as a citizen in seeking to procure the enforcement of a public duty [see Madera Community Hospital v. County of Madera (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 136, 141-146, 201 Cal. Rptr. 768 ; see also Driving Sch. Ass'n of Cal. v. San Mateo Union High Sch. Dist. (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 1513, 1517-1519, 14 Cal. Rptr. 2d 908 (association of for-profit driving schools as having standing to petition for writ directing public school district to stop charging fees for high school students to take driver training course in "adult school" operated by district due to public-interest issue regarding school district's authority to charge tuition)].

The public-duty or public-right exception can be nullified by "competing considerations of a more urgent nature" [Green v. Obledo (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 126, 144, 145, 172 Cal. Rptr. 206, 624 P.2d 256 ; see, e.g., Carsten v. Psychology Examining Com. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 793, 798, 799, 166 Cal. Rptr. 844, 614 P.2d 276 (policy that militates against allowing administrative board member to sue own agency outweighs public right of board member as taxpayer to challenge legality of expenditure of public funds by government agency); Nowlin v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 1529, 1538-1539, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 409 (in case challenging DMV's authority to collect SSN prior to issuing driver's license, legislative aims of streamlining penalty collections to substantially fund trial courts, and locating errant parents for purposes of carrying out child support programs outweigh public duty of DMV to carry out its purposes)].

[4] Inadequacy of Legal Remedy

A writ of mandate must be issued in all cases when there is not a plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086; Phelan v. Superior Court (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 363, 366, 217 P.2d 951 ; Vineyard Springs Estates, LLC v. Superior Court (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 633, 643, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 587 (party had no adequate remedy at law because trial court failed to rule on evidentiary objections before denying summary judgment motion)]. Conversely, the writ does not issue when an adequate remedy exists at law [Betancourt v. Workmen's Comp. App. Bd. (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 408, 412, 94 Cal. Rptr. 9]. For example, mandate in the court of appeal is appropriate if an appeal from the trial court judgment is not an adequate remedy [Tracy Educators Assn. v. Superior Court (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 530, 534, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 916].

The showing that there is no plain, speedy, and adequate remedy at law is therefore crucial to obtaining issuance of a writ of mandate. This requirement, which must also be satisfied when seeking a writ of prohibition, is discussed in detail in § 358.50 et seq.

Chapter 358 MANDATE AND PROHIBITION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Availability of Writ of Mandate

31-358 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 358.32

§ 358.32 Appropriate Applications of Writ of Mandate

[1] Writ to Compel Action by Court

A writ of mandate is proper if the court's discretion can be exercised in only one way [Hurtado v. Superior Court (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 574, 579, 114 Cal. Rptr. 106, 522 P.2d 666 ; Babb v. Superior Court (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 841, 851, 92 Cal. Rptr. 179, 479 P.2d 379] and if the duty of the court to which the writ is directed is absolute [Bales v. Superior Court (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 17, 25, 129 P.2d 685 ; Butler v. Superior Court (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 979, 982, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 403 (writ of mandate proper because trial court failed to comply with appellate court's remand instructions)].

For example, a trial court is under a legal duty to apply the proper law, and it may be directed to perform that duty by writ of mandate [Hurtado v. Superior Court (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 574, 579, 114 Cal. Rptr. 106, 522 P.2d 666 ; Babb v. Superior Court (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 841, 851, 92 Cal. Rptr. 179, 479 P.2d 379] .

[2] Writ to Compel Action by Nongovernmental Party

Mandate can be used to compel a corporation, board, or person to perform a legal duty or to admit or reinstate a party to an office or right from which he or she was illegally removed or expelled [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1085(a)]. Consequently, a writ of mandate is proper to compel a corporation to permit a stockholder to inspect its booksand corporate property [Hobbs v. Tom Reed Gold Min. Co. (1913) 164 Cal. 497, 502, 129 P. 781]; it is the proper proceeding to enforce the plain rights of stockholders or members of corporations in the absence of any other adequate remedy [Miller v. Imperial Water Co. No. 8 (1909) 156 Cal. 27, 29, 103 P. 227]. Mandate is also the proper proceeding to compel a labor union to admit a person to membership [Thorman v. Intl. Alliance etc. Employees (1958) 49 Cal. 2d 629, 634, 320 P.2d 494 (overruled on other grounds in Consolidated Theatres, Inc. v. Theatrical Stage Employees Union (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 713, 721 n.8, 73 Cal. Rptr. 213, 447 P.2d 325)] or to reinstate a suspended member [Cason v. Glass Bottle Blowers Asso. (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 134, 140, 231 P.2d 6]. It may be used to compel a medical association to restore a physician to membership [Bernstein v. Alameda etc. Med. Assn. (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 241, 254, 293 P.2d 862]. Mandate has also been upheld as a valid method of requiring citrus growers to comply with administrative regulations regarding the submission of information to the Agricultural Labor Relations Board [Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. v. Exeter Packers, Inc. (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 483, 489-491, 229 Cal. Rptr. 87].

Likewise, mandate is appropriate to correct the action of a nongovernmental organization if the organization has not followed prescribed procedures in taking action [Hard v. California State Employees Assn. (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 708, 711, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615 (reviewing action of employee organization)]. The court's review under such circumstances is limited to determining whether the organization's decision was arbitrary or whether the organization failed to follow prescribed procedures [Lewin v. St. Joseph Hospital of Orange (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 368, 383, 146 Cal. Rptr. 892 (hospital did not act arbitrarily or fail to follow procedures and give notices required by law)].

[3] Writ to Compel Action by Public Agency

A writ of mandate is proper to compel action by a public entity [see City of Dinuba v. County of Tulare (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 859, 868, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 614, 161 P.3d 1168 (one public entity seeks to force another to release funds); Santa Clara County Counsel Attys. Assn. v. Woodside (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 525, 540, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617, 869 P.2d 1142].

The courts may not frustrate a public agency's statutory duty by refusing to enforce it through normal judicial means [Santa Clara County Counsel Attys. Assn. v. Woodside (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 525, 540, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617, 869 P.2d 1142]. If the Legislature wishes to limit the use of mandamus to enforce a public agency's duty, it must do so affirmatively [Santa Clara County Counsel Attys. Assn. v. Woodside (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 525, 540, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617, 869 P.2d 1142].

[4] Writ to Compel Action by Public Official

A writ of mandate is proper to compel a governmental official to perform a ministerial act [California Educational Facilities Authority v. Priest (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 593, 598, 116 Cal. Rptr. 361, 526 P.2d 513 ; Flora Crane Service, Inc. v. Ross (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 199, 204, 37 Cal. Rptr. 425, 390 P.2d 193 ; Syngenta Crop Protection, Inc. v. Helliker (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 1135, 1181, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 191]. A public official's functions are ministerial when a statute requires him or her to perform a prescribed act on a prescribed contingency. Thus, a statute that clearly defines the specific duties or course of conduct that a governing body must take creates a ministerial duty that is mandatory and eliminates any element of discretion [Rodriguez v. Solis (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 495, 504-505, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 50]. In determining whether an act is ministerial, the word "may" in a rule or statute can be construed as mandatory rather than permissive under certain circumstances [Hollman v. Warren (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 351, 356, 196 P.2d 562 (statute providing that governor "may" appoint notaries in such number as governor deems necessary construed by Court to mean that governor must appoint notaries); Betancourt v. Workmen's Comp. App. Bd. (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 408, 413, 94 Cal. Rptr. 9 ("may" given mandatory construction in worker's compensation rule providing that referee may issue order to show cause)].

[5] Writ to Compel Exercise of Discretion

A writ of mandate is proper to compel the exercise of discretion by a court or a governmental officer [Anderson v. Phillips (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 733, 736, 119 Cal. Rptr. 879, 532 P.2d 1247 ; Ballard v. Anderson (1971) 95 Cal. Rptr. 1, 484 P.2d 1345 ; but see Common Cause v. Board of Supervisors (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 432, 442, 445-446, 261 Cal. Rptr. 574, 777 P.2d 610 (mandate as improper to compel particular course of action committed to discretion of governmental entity by statute)]. For example, mandate is the proper proceeding to compel a court to assume jurisdiction and to exercise its discretion when the court has erroneously refused to act under the mistaken view that it did not have jurisdiction to act [Erlich v. Superior Court (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 551, 556, 47 Cal. Rptr. 473, 407 P.2d 649 ; McMahon v. Municipal Court (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 194, 197, 85 Cal. Rptr. 782], to compel county officials to exercise their discretionary powers in some manner and negotiate with a public employees' union pursuant to the requirements of state and county legislation [Los Angeles County Employees Assn., Local 660 v. County of Los Angeles (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 1, 8, 108 Cal. Rptr. 625], and to compel a medical committee to exercise its discretion either to approve or to disapprove an application for an abortion according to statutory criteria [Ballard v. Anderson (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 873, 884-885, 95 Cal. Rptr. 1, 484 P.2d 1345].

[6] Writ to Control Abuse of Discretion by Agency

A writ of mandate is proper when the action taken by an administrative board is so palpably unreasonable and arbitrary as to indicate that it has abused its discretion as a matter of law [Sanders v. City of Los Angeles (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 252, 261, 90 Cal. Rptr. 169, 475 P.2d 201 ; Walker v. County of Los Angeles (1961) 55Cal. 2d 626, 639, 12 Cal. Rptr. 671, 361 P.2d 247]. Such a situation should be distinguished from that in which petitioner is seeking judicial review of an adjudicatory decision of an administrative agency through the use of administrative mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 [see Golden Drugs Co. v. Maxwell-Jolly (2010) 179 Cal. App. 4th 1455, 1466, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 446 (different review standards for agency mandamus and ordinary mandamus); American Board of Cosmetic Surgery v. Medical Board of California (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 534, 547-548, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 574 ; California Water Impact Network v. Newhall County Water District (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 1464, 1482-1484, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 393 ; Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. City of Turlock (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 273, 299-300 ; Bright Development v. City of Tracy (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 783, 795, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 618]. For a discussion of administrative mandate proceedings, see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , through Ch. 474C, Procedures in Reviewing Agency Decisions .

The only evidence allowed to be presented in an administrative mandate proceeding (absent special circumstances) is the administrative hearing transcript [Vernon Fire Fighters v. City of Vernon (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 802, 808, 810, 165 Cal. Rptr. 908] .

[7] Writ to Control Abuse of Discretion by Court

A court abuses its discretion when it exceeds the bounds of reason, considering all the circumstances before it [State Farm etc. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 428, 432, 304 P.2d 13 ; National Life of Florida Corp. v. Superior Court (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 281, 288, 98 Cal. Rptr. 435]. For instance, a court that has a clear legal duty to grant certain relief abuses its discretion when it refuses to do so, and may be compelled by writ of mandate to grant that relief [San Diego Wholesale Credit Men's Assn. v. Superior Court (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 458, 464, 110 Cal. Rptr. 657 (compelling court to issue writ of attachment); Pacific Indem. Co. v. Superior Court (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 63, 72, 54 Cal. Rptr. 470 (compelling court to issue preliminary injunction)].

A petitioner must, however, make a clear showing of a trial court's abuse of discretion before an appellate court will reverse an order of the court [Big Bear Mun. Water Dist. v. Superior Court (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 919, 925, 75 Cal. Rptr. 580]. A writ of mandate to compel the exercise of discretion in a particular manner by a court lies only when the facts support only one decision [Nathanson v. Superior Court (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 355, 361, 115 Cal. Rptr. 783, 525 P.2d 687 ; Williams v. Superior Court (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 378, 384, 264 Cal. Rptr. 677]. Although a trial court's refusal to sustain a demurrer or grant a judgment on the pleadings is normally reviewed under an abuse of discretion standard, if the issue is (1) tendered on undisputed facts, (2) significant, and (3) purely legal in nature, the appellate court may issue a writ of mandate after an independent review [American Internat. Group, Inc. v. Superior Court (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 749, 755, 285 Cal. Rptr. 765 (purely legal issue of federal preemption properly handled by motion for judgment on pleadings and reviewed by writ of mandate)].

[8] Writ to Prevent Unlawful Performance of Duty by Public Official

Mandate may be used to restrain a public official from the unlawful performance of a duty; in such a case, the writ is known as "prohibitory mandate" [Horwath v. City of East Palo Alto (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 766, 773 n.8, 261 Cal. Rptr. 108]. Such a writ may issue, for example, to prevent the implementation of an invalid statute [see Hotel Employees and Restaurant Employees Intern. Union v. Davis (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 585, 590, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 56, 981 P.2d 990 ; Connerly v. State Personnel Bd. (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 16, 30, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 5 (mandate may be used to test constitutionality of legislative enactment)] or to prohibit enforcement of an opinion of the attorney general that is unconstitutional [Planned Parenthood Affiliates v. Van de Kamp (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 245, 263, 226 Cal. Rptr. 361]. The writ may also issue, for example, to require a public official to enforce a statute that the official believes is unconstitutional, but that the judiciary has not determined is unconstitutional [Lockyer v. City and County of San Francisco (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 1055, 1081, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 225, 95 P.3d 459 (writ issued requiring mayor of San Francisco to enforce statute mandating marriage only between a man and a woman)].

[9] Writ for Expedited Review of Public Agency Decision Regarding Permit Involving Expressive Conduct Protected by First Amendment

If a public agency makes a decision regarding the issuance, revocation, suspension or denial of a permit or other entitlement for expressive conduct protected by U.S. Const., amend. I, either the public agency or the permit applicant or permit holder may bring an action for expedited judicial review of that decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.8]. If the permit applicant or permit holder brings the action, it must be in the form of a petition for writ of mandate pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 or 1094.5 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.8(d)(2)].

For discussion of and a form for a petition for writ of mandate for expedited judicial review of a public agency's decision relating to a permit involving expressive conduct protected by U.S. Const., amend. I, see Ch. 59 Assemblies, Meetings, and Demonstrations .

§ 358.33 Inappropriate Applications of Writ of Mandate

[1] Mandate Not Proper to Control Discretion

Mandate is proper to compel the exercise of discretion [see § 358.32[5]] and even to compel a particular act if the failure to act in that manner constitutes a clear abuse of discretion [see § 358.32[7]]. It is not, however, generally appropriate to require the exercise of discretion in a particular manner:

- By the state [US Ecology, Inc. v. State of California (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 113, 137-139, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 689];

- By a court [Anderson v. Phillips (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 733, 737, 119 Cal. Rptr. 879, 532 P.2d 1247 ; Hurtado v. Superior Court (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 574, 579, 114 Cal. Rptr. 106, 522 P.2d 666];

- By a public officer [Parker v. Dumke (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 237, 243, 172 Cal. Rptr. 577 ; Ballard v. Anderson (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 873, 885, 95 Cal. Rptr. 1, 484 P.2d 1345].

- By an administrative board [Lindell Co. v. Board of Permit Appeals (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 303, 315, 144 P.2d 4 ; California State Auto. Assn. Inter-Ins. Bureau v. Garamendi (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 1409, 1422-1423, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366 ; T.R.E.E.S. v. Department of Forestry & Fire Protection (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1175, 1181-1182, 285 Cal. Rptr. 26 ; Barrett v. Stanislaus County Employees Retirement Assn. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1593, 1613-1614, 234 Cal. Rptr. 900]; or

- By a legislative body [Hutchinson v. City of Sacramento (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 791, 796, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 779].

[2] Mandate Not Proper to Compel Enactment of Legislation

Mandate will not lie to compel the legislature to enact any legislation [City of Sacramento v. California State Legislature (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 393, 397, 231 Cal. Rptr. 686].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Availability of Writ of Mandate

31-358 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 358.34

§ 358.34 Review of Particular Court Orders

In a number of instances, parties are specifically authorized by statute to seek review of a nonfinal court order by means of a petition for writ of mandate, including:

- Right of minor to petition for writ of mandate to review denial of petition for declaration of emancipation [see, e.g., Fam. Code § 7123(a)];

- Petition for writ of mandate to review determination of question of disqualification of judge [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(d)];

- Petition for writ of mandate to review order granting or denying change in venue [see Code Civ. Proc. § 400];

- Petition for writ of mandate to review order relating to motion for coordination of actions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 404.6];

- Petition for writ of mandate to review order granting or denying motion to expunge lis pendens [see Code Civ. Proc. § 405.39];

- Petition for "peremptory writ" to review nonappealable order relating to motion for summary judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(m)(1)];

- Petition for writ of mandate to review order on motion to determine good faith settlement [see Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(e)]; and

- Right to petition for writ of mandate to review resolution of necessity prior to commencement of eminent domain proceeding [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1245.255(a)(1)].

These statutory provisions generally operate simply to impose time limitations or other procedural requirements in obtaining the writ [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(d) (requiring party to file petition for writ of mandate within 10 days after notice to parties of decision relating to disqualification of judge); Civ. Code § 400 (generally requiring party to file petition within 20 days after service of notice of order relating to motion to change venue), Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(m)(1) (generally requiring party to file petition within 20 days after service of notice of entry of order relating to summary judgment)].

Courts have held that time limits imposed by statute for filing writs of mandate are jurisdictional. Thus failure to file within the limit divests the court of jurisdiction to hear and decide the writ [People v. Superior Court (Brent) (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 675, 683-684, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 375]. For discussion of statutory procedural requirements that may apply in seeking a writ of mandate to review a particular court order, see the chapter in which the particular order is discussed [see also generally § 358.100 et seq.].

Although statutes authorizing review of a particular order by petition for writ of mandate may impose procedural limitations, they otherwise generally do no more than codify the right to seek relief by mandate in a particular situation. In other words, they do not otherwise change the standards employed by appellate courts in deciding whether to entertain a writ of mandate on its merits [see, e.g., Parsons Manufacturing Corp., Inc. v. Superior Court (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 1151, 1155 n.1, 203 Cal. Rptr. 419 (review of order relating to motion for summary judgment by petition for "peremptory writ" under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(l) (now Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(m)(1)) is subject to traditional standards applicable to petition for writ of mandate)].

In other instances, the use of a petition for writ of mandate to review a particular nonfinal court order is authorized, not by statute, but by established decisional law. One common example of this is the review of certain discovery orders that allegedly violate a party's privilege or other protection against disclosure [see, e.g., Ombudsman Services of Northern California v. Superior Court (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 1233, 1241, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 456 ; Thomas B. v. Superior Court (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 255, 260, 220 Cal. Rptr. 577 ; for discussion and forms relating to the use of extraordinary writs to review discovery orders generally, see Ch. 200, Discovery: Review of Discovery Orders].

But appellate courts have stated that they do not have the time or resources to police law and motion rulings on the pleadings through the mandamus power and, absent unusual circumstances, will decline to do so, except in such instances of grave nature or significant legal impact that intervention is compelled [James W. v. Superior Court (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 246, 252-253, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 169]. For example, reviewing courts have entertained writs to review an order that involve an important matter of first impression on which trial courts are in conflict [Stavropoulos v. Superior Court (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 190, 193, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 705 ; Friese v. Superior Court (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 693, 701, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 558 (writ relief appropriate because case raised important issue of statutory construction not yet confronted by appellate court or Supreme Court); Smith v. Superior Court (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1014, 1020, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20 (citing also Williamson v. Superior Court (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 829, 833, 148 Cal. Rptr. 39, 582 P.2d 126 ; Oceanside Union School Dist. v. Superior Court (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 180, 185-186, n.4, 23 Cal. Rptr. 375, 373 P.2d 439)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Availability of Writ of Prohibition

31-358 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 358.40

§ 358.40 Jurisdiction in Prohibition Proceedings

[1] Original Jurisdiction

The Supreme Court, courts of appeal, superior courts, and their judges have original jurisdiction in proceedings for extraordinary relief in the nature of prohibition [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10]. In other words, any court may issue a writ of mandate to any inferior tribunal or to any corporation, board, or person [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1103(a)].

The appellate division of the superior court has original jurisdiction in proceedings for extraordinary relief in the nature of prohibition directed to the superior court in causes subject to its appellate jurisdiction [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10]. When the appellate division of the superior court issues a writ of prohibition to the superior court, the superior court is an inferior tribunal for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1102-1105, the provisions governing prohibition generally [Code Civ. Proc. § 1103(b)].

When the superior court has original jurisdiction in a writ proceeding, as distinguished from the appellate division, the court conducts the proceeding pursuant to its general powers and it properly decides the petition through a single judge rather than through a panel of judges sitting as the appellate division [Rosenberg v. Superior Court (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 860, 870, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 365].

[2] Limits on Exercise of Original Jurisdiction by Appellate Courts

Although the appellate courts have original jurisdiction to issue writs of prohibition under Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10, these courts, and the Supreme Court in particular, will exercise this jurisdiction only in cases in which the issues presented are of great public importance and must be resolved promptly [Bramberg v. Jones (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 1045, 1054-1055, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 319, 978 P.2d 1240 ; Wenke v. Hitchcock (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 746, 750, 100 Cal. Rptr. 290, 493 P.2d 1154 (mandate proceeding); Jolicoeur v. Mihaly (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 565, 570 n.1, 96 Cal. Rptr. 697, 488 P.2d 1 (mandate proceeding)]. For further discussion, see § 358.30[2].

For discussion of the appellate jurisdiction, as distinguished from original jurisdiction, of appellate courts, to review the judgment of a lower court granting or denying a petition for writ of prohibition, see § 358.90.

Volume 31: Lis Pendens thru Mandate and Prohibition-Chs. 348-358
Chapter 358 MANDATE AND PROHIBITION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Availability of Writ of Prohibition

31-358 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 358.41

§ 358.41 Requirements for Issuance of Writ of Prohibition

[1] Essential Elements

To obtain a writ of prohibition, the petitioner must generally show the fact of a proceeding of a tribunal, corporation, board, or person exercising judicial functions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1102 and discussion in § 358.41[2]], the fact that the proceeding is without or in excess of the jurisdiction of the tribunal, corporation, board, or person [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1102 and discussion in § 358.41[3]], the petitioner's beneficial interest in arresting that proceeding [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1102, 1103 and discussion in § 358.41[4]], and the inadequacy of other legal remedies [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1103 and discussion in § 358.41[5]].

The petition for a writ of prohibition must be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1103; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(4) (appellate courts)].

Each party must also serve and file a Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons at the time it files its first document in the Court of Appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(d)]. The petitioner's certificate must be included in the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.488(c)(1)]. The certificates of the respondent and real party in interest must be included in their preliminary opposition or, if no such opposition is filed, in their return, if any. The certificate must appear after the cover and before the tables [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.488(c)(3)].

The writ of prohibition may be issued by any court, only to an inferior tribunal or to a corporation, board, or person [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1103]. Thus, one court may issue a writ of prohibition directed to another court only if the latter is a court of inferior jurisdiction [Haldane v. Superior Court (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 483, 485-486, 34 Cal. Rptr. 572]. Therefore, a prayer in a complaint may not requesta superior court to issue prohibition against itself since a superior court has no power, authority, or jurisdiction to do that [Haldane v. Superior Court (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 483, 485, 34 Cal. Rptr. 572].

[2] Judicial-Action Requirement

[a] Judicial Action Narrowly Construed

A writ of prohibition arrests the proceedings of any tribunal, corporation, board, or person exercising judicial functions [Code Civ. Proc. § 1102]. Thus, to justify issuance of a writ of prohibition, it must be shown that the act sought to be restrained is judicial in nature [Housing Authority v. Superior Court (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 550, 556, 219 P.2d 457]. Conversely, a writ of prohibition clearly may not issue except for the purpose of arresting the proceedings of those exercising judicial functions [Walsh v. Railroad Commission (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 691, 694, 107 P.2d 611]. For example, a city attorney who is prosecuting petitioners after having charged them with violating a statute is not exercising any judicial function and a demurrer to a petition seeking to prohibit the prosecution must be sustained [Walsh v. Railroad Commission (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 691, 694, 107 P.2d 611].

[b] Ministerial Acts Not Prohibitable

A writ of prohibition does not lie when an officer or board is exercising purely ministerial functions [Whitten v. California State Board, etc. (1937) 8 Cal. 2d 444, 445, 65 P.2d 1296]. Stated differently, a writ of prohibition is not obtainable to prevent the commission of an act that is merely ministerial, such as [Duke v. Justice's Court (1940) 42 Cal. App. 2d 178, 179, 108 P.2d 707]:

- The issuance of a writ of execution [see Santini v. Justice's Court (1933) 218 Cal. 671, 672, 24 P.2d 761 ; Community Nat. Bank v. Superior Court (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 770, 773, 51 Cal. Rptr. 782];

- The certifying of the result of a registrar's completed examination of voters' signatures on a recall petition [Baines v. Zemansky (1917) 176 Cal. 369, 376, 168 P. 565];

- The collecting of revenues by a tax collector [Hobart v. Tillson (1884) 66 Cal. 210, 212, 5 P. 83];

- The drawing of warrants on the state treasury by the Controller to pay claims arising under a statute [Camron v. Kenfield (1881) 57 Cal. 550, 553];

- The canvassing of election returns by a board of supervisors [Olsen v. Board of Supervisors (1939) 30 Cal. App. 2d 635, 637, 87 P.2d 36]; and

- The delivery of an order confining the petitioner to jail pursuant to a contempt order by the county clerk to the sheriff and the execution of the order by the sheriff [Ames v. Superior Court (1938) 28 Cal. App. 2d 502, 504, 82 P.2d 948].

[c] Threatened Action Required

A writ of prohibition will issue only to enjoin threatened judicial action [Chodos v. Superior Court (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 703, 714, 38 Cal. Rptr. 301]. For instance, when petitioners sought to restrain a court from proceeding with a new trial of an action in which judgment was rendered for petitioners, but then failed to show any threatened action on the part of the trial court to reset the matter for a new trial or to proceed therewith, a petition for a writ of prohibition was denied [Chodos v. Superior Court (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 703, 714-715, 38 Cal. Rptr. 301].

[d] Completed Judicial Action Not Prohibitable

A writ of prohibition is a preventative, rather than a corrective, remedy and issues only to prevent the commission of a future act and not to undo an act already performed. Therefore, prohibition will not lie if the proceedings that petitioner sought to prohibit have already been disposed of by the court and nothing remains to be done either by the court or the parties, the cause having been absolutely dismissed by the inferior tribunal [Havemeyer v. Superior Court (1890) 84

Cal. 327, 394, 24 P. 121]. Thus, completed judicial action cannot be reviewed by prohibition [Big Jim Mines, Inc. v. Superior Court (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 503, 504, 71 P.2d 67 ; King v. Superior Court (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 91, 94, 221 P.2d 120] . For example, prohibition is not a proper remedy to annul a judgment already entered since a writ of prohibition does not lie after judgment is entered when there are no further judicial acts to be performed even though the judgment is erroneous [Crittenden v. Municipal Court (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 811, 812, 31 Cal. Rptr. 280].

[e] Incomplete Judicial Action Prohibitable

If a lower court's action is not completed and ended, its further proceedings may be stayed; if necessary to afford complete and adequate relief, what has been done will be undone. If this were not so, the inferior court, by proceeding expeditiously and arbitrarily, could defeat the remedy [Havemeyer v. Superior Court (1890) 84 Cal. 327, 390-391, 24 P. 121]. Hence, if there is jurisdiction to issue a writ of prohibition, the court granting it can afford complete relief. A party will not be compelled to resort to more than one proceeding or to more than one court for redress of one injury [Havemeyer v. Superior Court (1890) 84 Cal. 327, 394-395, 24 P. 121]. Consequently, if a superior court has issued a temporary restraining order and has made its minute order for mandamus (even though its peremptory writ has not issued), an appellate court is not precluded from issuing a writ of prohibition if the superior court acted in excess of its jurisdiction [see City & County of San Francisco v. Superior Court (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 236, 245, 1 Cal. Rptr. 158, 347 P.2d 294 (writ restraining the superior court from any further proceedings in the action and ordering vacation of temporary restraining order)].

A court may allow a writ of prohibition if the act to be prohibited is a continuing one and the circumstances are so aggravated as to justify immediate relief. Aggravating circumstances may be present if a receiver has been appointed, an injunction has issued, or property has been seized under a void order. Continuing acts also may be subject to prohibition if, because of delay, there would be consequential damages [see Melancon v. Superior Court (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 698, 704-705, 268 P.2d 1050 (denying writ of prohibition on ground that no aggravating circumstances or consequential damages flowed from lower court's order and entry of appealable judgment)].

[3] Lack- or Excess-of-Jurisdiction Requirement

[a] Term of Art as It Pertains to Petition for Writ of Prohibition

A writ of prohibition will issue to arrest the proceeding of a lower tribunal or other entity only if that proceeding is without or in excess of jurisdiction [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1102].

The phrase "lack of jurisdiction" as applied to determining the right to restraint by prohibition means that, it has no jurisdiction (or power) except to act in a particular manner, to give certain kinds of relief, or to act without the occurrence of certain procedural prerequisites [Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 288, 109 P.2d 942 (rule obtains even though the court has jurisdiction over the subject matter and the parties in the fundamental sense)].

Any acts that exceed the defined power of a court in any instance--whether that power is defined by constitutional provision, express statutory declaration, or rules developed by the court and followed under the doctrine of stare decisis--are in excess of jurisdiction in the sense that those acts may be restrained by prohibition [Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 291, 109 P.2d 942 ; see Safer v. Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 230, 242, 124 Cal. Rptr. 174, 540 P.2d 14]. The term "jurisdiction" thus has a broader meaning when used in considering the availability of prohibition to review an order than when used in determining whether a court has jurisdiction over the subject matter and parties [Crittenden v. Superior Court (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 565, 567, 39 Cal. Rptr. 380, 393 P.2d 692 ; Tide Water Assoc. Oil Co. v. Superior Court (1955) 43 Cal. 2d 815, 821, 279 P.2d 35].

[b] Prohibition Not Available if Nonjurisdictional Error Committed

A writ of prohibition never issues to restrain a lower tribunal from committing mere error in deciding a question properly before it. If the lower court has power to make a correct determination of a particular issue, it clearly has power to make an incorrect decision, subject only to appellate review, and not to restraint by prohibition [Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 287, 109 P.2d 942 ; Childress v. Municipal Court (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 611, 613, 87 Cal. Rptr. 383].

[4] Beneficial Interest Requirement

A writ of prohibition may be issued only on the petition of the person beneficially interested [Code Civ. Proc. § 1103(a)]. For example, a petitioner who sought to stop a superior court from further proceedings on a petition for a writ of mandate was "beneficially interested" because he was a voter and taxpayer of the relevant county as well as the person who was claiming title to the office in controversy in the mandate proceeding [Klose v. Superior Court (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 913, 916, 217 P.2d 97].

[5] Inadequate Legal Remedy Requirement

A court may issue a writ of prohibition in all cases lacking a plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1103(a)]. For example, the availability of a right to appeal typically will preclude extraordinary relief by writ of prohibition. Other legal remedies may, however, also be deemed adequate under given circumstances [see, e.g., Barnard v. Municipal Court (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 324, 326, 298 P.2d 679 (claim and delivery provided adequate remedy); Macfarland v. Superior Court (1934) 3 Cal. App. 2d 173, 176, 38 P.2d 800 (intervention was adequate remedy)].

A showing that there is no plain, speedy, and adequate remedy at law is crucial to obtaining issuance of a writ of prohibition. This requirement, which must also be satisfied when seeking a writ of mandate, is discussed in detail in § 358.50.

§ 358.42 Instances in Which Prohibition Is Proper

The following are some common situations in which courts have issued writs of prohibition:

- To restrain a lower appellate court from reviewing on appeal a matter over which it has no jurisdiction [Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 287, 109 P.2d 942].

- When a second tribunal or court has obtained concurrent jurisdiction over the same parties and the same subject matter [Scott v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 76, 81, 293 P.2d 18 ; Maddern v. Superior Court (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 998, 1002, 99 Cal. Rptr. 832 ; Mungia v. Superior Court (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 280, 283, 37 Cal. Rptr. 285 ; see Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter].

- When a summons has not been served and returned within the three-year period prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210 [Coates Capitol Corp. v. Superior Court (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 125, 126-127, 59 Cal. Rptr. 231 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 581a); see Ch. 212, Dismissal].

- When an action has not been brought to trial within the five-year period prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 [J.C. Penney Co. v. Superior Court (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 666, 669, 343 P.2d 919 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 583); Bella Vista Dev. Co. v. Superior Court (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 603, 607, 36 Cal. Rptr. 106 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 583); see Ch. 212, Dismissal].

- When a court is proceeding to act on the basis of a void order [Greene v. Superior Court (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 403, 406, 10 Cal. Rptr. 817, 359 P.2d 249 ; Thompson v. Superior Court (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 702, 710-711, 23 Cal. Rptr. 841].

- When a discovery order violates a privilege [Sav-On Drugs, Inc. v. Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 1, 5, 8, 123 Cal. Rptr. 283, 538 P.2d 739 ; Payless Drug Stores, Inc. v. Superior Court (1976) 54 Cal. App. 3d 988, 989-991, 127 Cal. Rptr. 4 ; Sheets v. Superior Court (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 1, 8, 64 Cal. Rptr. 753 ; see Ch. 200, Discovery: Review of Discovery Orders].

- When dismissal of an action is mandatory for lack of subject matter jurisdiction [River Farms, Inc. v. Superior Court (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 604, 609, 60 Cal. Rptr. 665 ; see Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter].

- When the trial court judge fails to disqualify himself or herself if required to do so on the basis of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 [see Calhoun v. Superior Court (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 257, 262, 331 P.2d 648 ; see Ch. 317, Judges, § 317.130 et seq.].

For a listing and brief discussion of many examples of situations in which a lack of jurisdiction has been found and in which prohibition is therefore properly issued, see Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 288-290, 109 P.2d 942 .

D. Inadequate Legal Remedy Requirement

31-358 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 358.50

§ 358.50 Function of Inadequate Legal Remedy Requirement

The petitioner for a writ of mandate or prohibition must establish by pleading and proof that there is "not a plain, speedy, and adequate remedy, in the ordinary course of law" [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086, 1103(a); Barratt American, Inc. v. City of Rancho Cucamonga (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 685, 704-705, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 149, 124 P.3d 719 (issue in writ of mandate to compel City to review and adjust building permit fees could be determined in validation action); Phelan v. Superior Court (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 363, 370, 217 P.2d 951 ; Vineyard Springs Estates, LLC v. Superior Court (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 633, 643, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 587 (party had no adequate remedy at law because trial court failed to rule on evidentiary objections before denying summary judgment motion)]. The petitioner must show that possible alternatives to the writ procedure, such as appeal, will not afford plain, speedy, and adequate relief.

The requirement is necessary in order to discourage piecemeal litigation and to avoid overburdening the appellate courts [see Johnson v. City and County of San Francisco (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 7, 19, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 8 ; Omaha Indemnity Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1266, 1272-1273, 258 Cal. Rptr. 66]. One court has noted that if reviewing courts made themselves routinely available to intervene by writ whenever a litigant claimed error in law and motion department rulings, trials would be delayed, litigants would be vexed with multiple proceedings, and judgment appeals would be kept waiting [Burrus v. Municipal Court (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 233, 236, 111 Cal. Rptr. 539].

Code Civ. Proc. § 1086 provides that a writ of mandate "must" issue in all cases lacking a plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law. In contrast, Code Civ. Proc. § 1103(a) provides that a writ of prohibition "may" issue if there is not a plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law. As a general rule, however, the requirement of inadequate legal remedies has been construed by the courts to be similar for both mandate and prohibition [see W.A. Rose Co. v. Municipal Court (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 67, 75, 1 Cal. Rptr. 49].

D. Inadequate Legal Remedy Requirement

31-358 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 358.51

§ 358.51 Determining Inadequacy of Legal Remedy

[1] In General

The inadequacy of other remedies in the ordinary course of law is a factual question whose determination lies largely in the discretion of the court considering the writ petition. Therefore, on appeal from the decision either granting or denying the writ, that court's determination regarding adequacy will not be disturbed in the absence of a showing of abuse of discretion [W.A. Rose Co. v. Municipal Court (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 67, 74, 1 Cal. Rptr. 49 ; San Joaquin County Employees Ass'n v. City of Stockton (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 813, 820, 207 Cal. Rptr. 876]. The lack of an adequate alternative remedy is necessarily determined if the court issues a writ [see Langford v. Superior Court,233 Cal. Rptr. 387, 729 P.2d 822 , cert. denied, 484 U.S. 824 (1987)].

[2] Remedies Other Than Appeal

In certain cases, remedies other than appeal may be at least as "plain, speedy, and adequate" as mandamus or prohibition. The petitioner must consider whether such remedies are available, and if so, show why such remedies are inadequate. Examples of such alternative remedies that might be available in addition to mandate or prohibition would include actions at law or equity [see, e.g., Barratt American, Inc. v. City of Rancho Cucamonga (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 685, 704-705, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 149, 124 P.3d 719 (issue in writ of mandate to compel City to review and adjust building permit fees could be determined in validation action); Malibu West Swimming Club v. Flournoy (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 161, 164, 131 Cal. Rptr. 279 (suit for recovery of disputed taxes was proper alternative to mandamus proceeding against State Controller); Ross v. O'Brien (1934) 1 Cal. App. 2d 496, 502, 36 P. 2d 1108 (action for claim and deliveryw as adequate remedy, "equally convenient" to mandamus)] and motions [see, e.g., Neal v. State of California (1960) 55 Cal. 2d 11, 16, 9 Cal. Rptr. 607, 357 P.2d 839 (motion to vacate judgment as proper alternative to mandamus under circumstances of case)].

[3] Direct Appeal

If there is a right to an immediate and direct review by appeal from an order or judgment, that remedy is almost as speedy as a writ proceeding, and the petitioner must show some special reason why such appeal is rendered inadequate by the particular circumstances of his or her case. One such showing is when the petitioner has already "stood in line" in the appellate process through one complete turn, and the review sought by the petition involves a fairly narrow issue. For example, although the issue might be decided by another appeal, one reviewing court granted a writ to review a "dangling issue" raised regarding an award of certain costs as litigation expenses, when that award was issued by the trial court on remand after an initial appeal [see Science Applications Internat. Corp. v. Superior Court (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 1095, 1102, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 332 (petition for writ of mandate proper in such circumstances)]. Otherwise, direct appeal will be deemed to be an adequate remedy and writ relief will not be granted [In re Marriage of Skelley (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 365, 369, 134 Cal. Rptr. 197, 556 P.2d 297 ; Phelan v. Superior Court (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 363, 370, 217 P.2d 951].

[4] Review of Order on Appeal From Final Judgment

[a] Factors Considered in Determining Whether Delay Causes Inadequate Relief

If an order is not appealable directly, but is reviewable only on appeal from a final judgment, the party seeking review must show why appeal from final judgment is an inadequate remedy [Phelan v. Superior Court (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 363, 370, 217 P.2d 951]. However, the presumption of adequacy of remedy by appeal [see [3], above] does not apply if a trial court's nonappealable order can only be reached by appeal from a subsequent final judgment [Tyco Industries, Inc. v. Superior Court (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 148, 154, 211 Cal. Rptr. 540]. Recognizing the possible prejudice that can arise from delaying adjudication of a particular issue until after final judgment, courts consider a wide array of factors in determining whether appeal from a final judgment is adequate relief. Such factors include the following:

- The expense of proceeding with an unnecessary trial [see Hogya v. Superior Court (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 122, 130-131, 142 Cal. Rptr. 325 (mandate proper to remedy denial of class certification motion because expense of proceeding through trial as individual litigant would have been "grossly disproportionate" to damages petitioner might have expected to recover in litigation)];

- Inordinate, unnecessary pretrial expenses [see San Diego Unified Port Dist. v. Superior Court (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 361, 364-365, 136 Cal. Rptr. 557];

- The possibility that the trial court's order will deprive petitioner of an opportunity to present a substantial portion of petitioner's cause of action [see Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 806-807, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964 (trial court sustained demurrers to one of plaintiff's two causes of action without leave to amend; mandate issued by Supreme Court to compel trial court to vacate order sustaining demurrers); see also [c]];

- A trial court's order that is clearly erroneous as a matter of law and substantially prejudicial to petitioner's case [see Babb v. Superior Court (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 841, 851, 92 Cal. Rptr. 179, 479 P.2d 379 (mandate issued by Supreme Court directing trial court to vacate order overruling petitioner's demurrer to cross complaint; Court found cross complaint legally defective "on its face"); City of Ontario v. Superior Court (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 894, 898, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 32 (mandate issued directing trial court to vacate order overruling petitioner's demurrer to complaint; because issue had substantial legal importance and was one of first impression, expense and delay of trial would be avoided if demurrer was well grounded)];

- The likelihood that petitioner will suffer harm or prejudice in a matter that cannot be corrected on appeal [see Roberts v. Superior Court of Butte County (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 330 (prohibition issued by Supreme Court barring production and inspection of psychotherapist'srecords concerning mental condition of personal injury plaintiff)];

- The possibility that the purported error can be corrected by a lower tribunal before or during trial, or that the purported error might otherwise not infect the trial [see People v. Medina (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 484, 491, 99 Cal. Rptr. 630, 492 P.2d 686 ; Rescue Army v. Municipal Court (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 460, 466, 171 P.2d 8 , appeal dismissed, 331 U.S. 549 (1947)]; and

- Resolution on the merits on a writ petition would avoid a multiplicity of appeals on the same issue [County of Santa Clara v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 1686, 1693-1694, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 7 (instant case was one of 14 pending matters raising same issue)].

- Resolution after a final judgment would undermine a party's sovereign immunity [Big Valley Band of Pomo Indians v. Superior Court (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 1185, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 357].

Although the court may consider prejudice resulting from delay [see Phelan v. Superior Court (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 363, 370, 217 P.2d 951 (dictum)], postjudgment appeal will not be deemed inadequate merely because more time would be consumed by pursuing it through the ordinary course of law than would be required in the use of an ordinary writ [see Rescue Army v. Municipal Court (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 460, 466, 171 P.2d 8 , appeal dismissed, 331 U.S. 549 (1947)].

In many cases, the public importance of the litigated issue is the deciding factor in a court's determination regarding the adequacy of postjudgment appeal [see, e.g., Babb v. Superior Court (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 841, 851, 92 Cal. Rptr. 179, 479 P.2d 379].

For discussion of this consideration, see § 358.51[5].

[b] Discovery Orders

As a general policy, courts are reluctant to grant prerogative writs concerning discovery orders; generally a party aggrieved by a trial court's discovery order can only challenge the order on direct appeal from the final judgment [see Oceanside Union School Dist. v. Superior Court (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 180, 185 n.4, 23 Cal. Rptr. 375, 373 P.2d 439]. This general policy rests on the premise that in the great majority of cases, the protracted delay likely to result from interim review of discovery orders would be cause greater harm to the judicial process than the enforcement of possibly improper discovery orders [Sav-On Drugs, Inc. v. Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 1, 5, 123 Cal. Rptr. 283, 538 P.2d 739 ; Perlan Therapeutics, Inc. v. Superior Court (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1333, 1342, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 211] .

Notwithstanding the general rule disfavoring the use of prerogative writs as a method to review discovery orders, courts have authorized the use of prerogative writs in limited discovery situations. A prerogative writ may be proper to expedite review of questions of first impression that are of general importance to the trial courts and to the legal profession, if general guidelines can be laid down for future cases [Oceanside Union School Dist. v. Superior Court (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 180, 186 n.4, 23 Cal. Rptr. 375, 373 P.2d 439 ; Toshiba America Electronics Components v. Superior Court (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 762, 767, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 532 (ruling for first time on question of which party should pay to translate electronic data compilations to obtain usable information responsive to discovery requests); see also discussion under [5]]. Also, a prerogative writ may be proper relief if a trial court order violates a discovery privilege of the petitioning party [Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 161, 170 n.11, 84 Cal. Rptr. 718, 465 P. 2d 854 ; Perlan Therapeutics, Inc. v. Superior Court (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1333, 1342, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 211 ; Ombudsman Services of Northern California v. Superior Court (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 1233, 1241, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 456] .

For general discussion and forms relating to review of discovery orders by extraordinary writ, see Ch. 200, Discovery: Review of Discovery Orders .

[c] Ruling Depriving Party of Opportunity to Plead Cause of Action or Defense

Courts are generally reluctant to extend extraordinary relief at the pleading stage [Coulter v. Superior Court (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 144, 148, 145 Cal. Rptr. 534, 577 P.2d 669], especially if the trial court has overruled a demurrer [State of California v. Superior Court (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 1409, 1412, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 499]. If, however, a trial court has made a ruling at the pleading stage that deprives a party of the opportunity to plead a cause of action or defense, an appeal from final judgment may be inadequate; in such a case, a prerogative writ may be appropriate to prevent a needless and expensive trial and reversal [Holtz v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 296, 301 n.4, 90 Cal. Rptr. 345, 475 P.2d 441 ; Grange Debris Box. & Wrecking Co. v. Superior Court (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 1349, 1354-1357, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 515 (writ issued directing trial court to sustain demurrer against city's indemnity action for construction defect; 10-year limitation period had expired)]. For example, if a plaintiff alleges multiple causes of action and the court erroneously sustains the defendant's demurrer regarding one of the causes of action, the plaintiff may challenge the ruling immediately by petitioning for a prerogative writ, rather than waiting until final judgment [see Coulter v. Superior Court (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 144, 148, 145 Cal. Rptr. 534, 577 P.2d 669 ; Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 806-807, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964 ; see also Foot's Transfer & Storage Co. v. Superior Court (1980) 114 Cal. App. 3d 897, 901-902, 171 Cal. Rptr. 1 (mandate as proper remedy to review trial court's denial of petitioner's right to file cross complaint)].

There are some variances between at least two courts of appeal regarding whether striking a claim for punitive damages deprives the plaintiff of an opportunity to plead a cause of action. Applying the rule that "where a ruling on the pleadings deprives a party of a substantial part of its claim, and where a significant issue of law is involved, extraordinary review is appropriate," the court implicitly equated striking a claim for punitive damages with depriving theplaintiff of an opportunity to plead a cause of action and proceeded to consider the merits of the petition [Courtesy Ambulance Service v. Superior Court (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1504, 1510-1511, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 161 (4th Dist., Div. 2, noting that 2nd Dist., Div. 5, apparently in an unpublished opinion affecting the same defendant, held that in this position the remedy at law is adequate)].

In addition to the exception made for rulings that deny a particular party the opportunity to plead a cause or defense, a court may also depart from the general policy against granting relief by extraordinary writ in pretrial pleading matters if thereis an issue of great public importance [County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1166, 1172-1178, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 860 (recent decisions by United States Supreme Court and California Supreme Court affecting liability of local public entities for alleged violations of the Federal Civil Rights Act and thus affecting many existing and potential causes of action); see also discussion under § 358.51[5]].

[5] Importance of Matter Litigated

The public importance of the matter litigated can be a significant factor affecting a court's determination of the adequacy of alternative legal remedies. Courts may consider whether a case raises an issue of widespread interest [see, e.g., Brandt v. Superior Court (1985) 37 Cal. 3d 813, 816, 210 Cal. Rptr. 211, 693 P.2d 796] or presents a significant and novel constitutional issue [see, e.g., Britt v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 844, 851, 143 Cal. Rptr. 695, 574 P.2d 766]. They also may consider whether conflicting trial court interpretations of the law require an immediate resolution of the conflict at issue [see, e.g., Brandt v. Superior Court (1985) 37 Cal. 3d 813, 816, 210 Cal. Rptr. 211, 693 P.2d 796 ; San Bernardino Associated Governments v. Superior Court (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 1106, 1113, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 293 (compelling county board of supervisors to conduct California Environmental Quality Act review before placing sales tax measure on ballot was issue of public importance); California Highway Patrol v. Superior Court (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 488, 495-496, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 16 (mandate granted for issue of first impression that is of widespread interest)], whether a multiplicity of similar actions would be avoided by granting of the writ [see, e.g., County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1166, 1170, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 860 ; Rivera v. Division of Industrial Welfare (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 576, 581, 71 Cal. Rptr. 584, 487 P.2d 1224]. Related to these factors, a court may also consider whether the questions presented are ones of first impression and general importance to the bench and bar, so that general guidelines can be laid down for future cases [Stavropoulos v. Superior Court (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 190, 193, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 705 ; Friese v. Superior Court (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 693, 701, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 558 (writ relief appropriate because case raised important issue of statutory construction not yet confronted by appellate court or Supreme Court); Simon v. Superior Court (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 63, 68, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 428], or whether there is a conflict of law among the appellate courts regarding an issue of widespread importance [Milwaukee Electric Tool Corp. v. Superior Court (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 547, 554, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 24]. If review is sought by both appeal and extraordinary writ regarding an issue of widespread public importance that should be determined without delay, the reviewing court may elect to proceed on the writ petition and consider the appeal as moot [Los Angeles City Ethics Com. v. Superior Court (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1287, 1298 n.13, 1299, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 150].

§ 358.61 Failure to Exhaust Administrative Remedies

[1] Pleading Fails to Show Petitioner Sought Relief

The doctrine of exhaustion of administrative remedies is the rule that, if an administrative remedy is provided by statute, relief must be sought from the administrative body and this pursuit of this remedy exhausted before the courts will act [Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 292, 109 P.2d 942 (prohibition proceeding); see also Metcalf v. County of Los Angeles (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 267, 269, 148 P.2d 645 (mandate proceeding)]. A split of authority exists as to whether exhaustion of remedies defense implicates subject matter jurisdiction or whether it is a judicially created rule of procedure, with numerous exceptions, which must be applied by the courts equitably and depends on a qualitative analysis on a case-by-case basis of the facts presented at trial [see Cummings v. Stanley (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 493, 506, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 284].

[2] Exceptions to Exhaustion Requirement

There does appear to be a limited exception to the rule requiring the petitionerto allege exhaustion of administrative remedies prior to resorting to judicial relief as a prerequisite to the issuance of a writ of mandate or prohibition: if the pursuit of an administrative remedy would result in irreparable harm [County of San Diego v. State of California (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1787, 1800, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 193 ; Ogo Associates v. City of Torrance (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 830, 834, 112 Cal. Rptr. 761].

Another exception arises if a statute provides both an administrative and judicial remedy, in which case the party challenging the administrative action may choose between these remedies [City of Susanville v. Lee C. Hess Co. (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 684, 689, 290 P.2d 520 ; Syngenta Crop Protection, Inc. v. Helliker (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 1135, 1181, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 191 ; San Elijo Ranch, Inc. v. County of San Diego (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 608, 613, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 601].

[3] Attack on Constitutionality of Statute or Ordinance

If a petitioner wishes to attack the constitutionality of a statute or ordinance that either compels or restrains an act, it may not be necessary to exhaust the administrativeremedies established in the statute or ordinance before petitioning for a writ of mandate or prohibition [see United States v. Superior Court (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 189, 195-196, 120 P.2d 26 (dictum in prohibition proceeding stating that exhaustion may not be required when statute under attack creates administrative board or establishes method of administrative review)].

E. Defenses to Issuance of Writ

31-358 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 358.62

§ 358.62 Failure to Request Lower Court Action or to Raise Objection in Lower Court

A party seeking an appellate court writ of mandate compelling action by a lower court must have first requested the lower court to act, unless it appears that such a demand would have been futile [Phelan v. Superior Court (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 363, 372, 217 P.2d 951 ; Fitch v. Justice Court (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 492, 495, 101 Cal. Rptr. 227].

A petition for a writ of prohibition should affirmatively allege that the petitioner's challenge to jurisdiction was raised in the lower court [Rescue Army v. Municipal Court (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 460, 465, 171 P.2d 8 , appeal dismissed, 331 U.S. 549 (1947)]. However, an objection to jurisdiction in the trial court is not essential to the jurisdiction of an appellate court to grant a writ of prohibition [City Council v. Superior Court (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 68, 72, 21 Cal. Rptr. 896 ; Monterey Club v. Superior Court (1941) 48 Cal. App. 2d 131, 143, 119 P.2d 349]. It is merely a rule of practice based on courtesy to lower courts and on the desire to prevent unnecessary litigation [Citizens Utilities Co. v. Superior Court (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 805, 814, 31 Cal. Rptr. 316, 382 P.2d 356 ; Havemeyer v. Superior Court (1890) 84 Cal. 327, 403-404, 406, 24 P. 121]. Exceptions to the rule occur if the lack of jurisdiction of the lower court is apparent on the face of the record, if that court has persisted in a course of action in such a manner as to indicate that it would be useless to object, or if there was no opportunity to interpose an objection [Hanrahan v. Superior Court (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 432, 434-435, 184 P.2d 157].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Defenses to Issuance of Writ

31-358 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 358.63

§ 358.63 Lapse of Statute of Limitations

There is no general statutory time limit on the application for writs [see State v. Superior Court of San Mateo County (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 396, 399, 69 Cal. Rptr. 683].

In a number of instances, however, if a particular statute expressly authorizes review of a specific court order by petition for writ of mandate or peremptory writ, the petition must be filed within strict time limitations [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(d); § 358.32[12]]. Moreover, some courts have held that if a petition for writ of mandate filed in an appellate court seeks review of a trial court ruling and there is no other statutory time limit, the petition may be denied as untimely if not filed within the 60-day period normally applicable to filing notice of appeal [see Popelka, Allard, McCowan & Jones v. Superior Court (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 496, 499, 165 Cal. Rptr. 748 (court has discretion to deny petition on this basis regardless of actual prejudice)]. However, absent an applicable statute, courts have discretion to hear a writ petition filed beyond the judicially imposed 60-day limit [Bob Parrett Constr., Inc. v. Superior Court (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 1180, 1185, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 250] .

In addition, petitions for writ of mandate have been held to be subject to a statute of limitations, the applicable period being determined by the nature of the right asserted in the petition [see Allen v. Humboldt County Bd. of Supervisors (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 877, 884, 34 Cal. Rptr. 232]. The applicable limitation period begins to run when the petitioner's right first accrues [Monroe v. Trustees of the California State Colleges (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 399, 405, 99 Cal. Rptr. 129, 491 P.2d 1105 ; Barlow v. City Council of Inglewood (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 688, 697, 197 P.2d 721].

Laches is a also proper ground for denying relief in a writ proceeding, even if, in a mandate proceeding, the applicable statute of limitations has been satisfied [Ragan v. City of Hawthorne (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d. 1361, 1368, 261 Cal. Rptr. 219 (mandate proceeding); see also State v. Superior Court of San Mateo County (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 396, 399, 69 Cal. Rptr. 683 (laches not established in prohibition proceeding)]. To defeat a writ petition based on laches, the real party in interest or respondent must show that there was an unreasonable delay in filingthe petition and that prejudice to the real party resulted from the delay [see Peterson v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 147, 163, 181 Cal. Rptr. 784, 642 P.2d 1305 (mandate proceeding)]. The defense of laches is raised very infrequently in prohibition proceedings because these are usually promptly initiated, given thatthe writ will issue only to arrest a threatened but uncompleted judicial action [see § 358.41[2]].

§ 358.65 Mootness

Mandate is not proper if a proceeding has become moot [Genser v. McElvy (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 709, 711, 82 Cal. Rptr. 521] and if issuance of the writ would be useless, unenforceable, or unavailing [Genser v. McElvy (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 709, 711, 82 Cal. Rptr. 521 ; Zagoren v. Hall (1932) 122 Cal. App. 460, 462, 10 P.2d 202]. For example, a decision and order that has been vacated presents a moot question [Crestlawn Memorial Park Asso. v. Sobieski (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 43, 47, 26 Cal. Rptr. 421]. It is also not proper to enforce an abstract right [Slater v. City Council (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 864, 868, 47 Cal. Rptr. 837 ; Clementine v. Board of Civ. Ser. Commrs. (1941) 47 Cal. App. 2d 112, 114, 117 P.2d 369], because mandate issues to protect a party against substantial damages, not to vindicate abstract claims [Rivera v. Division of Industrial Welfare (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 576, 592, 71 Cal. Rptr. 739].

A proceeding is considered moot if respondent either has complied with petitioner's demands after issuance of the alternative writ or is willing to do the act without coercion [Bruce v. Gregory (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 666, 671, 56 Cal. Rptr. 265, 423 P.2d 193 ; Environmental Protection Information Center, Inc. v. State Bd. of Forestry (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 27, 32, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 344 ; State Bd. of Education v. Honig (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 720, 742, 748, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 727 ; Cooke v. Superior Court (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 401, 417, 261 Cal. Rptr. 706]. If a case poses an issue of broad public interest that is likely to recur, however, the court may exercise its inherent discretion to resolve the substantive issue raised by the petition for mandate, even if the matter is moot regarding the particular parties who raised the issue [Municipal Court v. Superior Court (Sinclair) (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 19, 22-23, 25, 244 Cal. Rptr. 591 (drunk driving defendants wishing to enter guilty pleas raised constitutional challenge to court's practice of requiring that uncharged priors be disclosed); Okuda v. Superior Court (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 135, 137 n.1, 192 Cal. Rptr. 388 (court ruled on application of lis pendens to real estate dispute after parties entered stipulation and requested dismissal of action)].

Like mandamus, prohibition is not available when the question involved is moot [Pacific G. & E. Co. v. Superior Court (1938) 10 Cal. 2d 545, 546, 76 P.2d 108 ; Campbell v. Superior Court (1932) 126 Cal. App. 652, 653, 14 P.2d 925]. However, a question involved in a prohibition proceeding will not be treated as moot if it is one of continuing importance to the parties, if the situation is not one in which the parties are no longer interested in the legal issue involved, if no purpose but delay would be served by treating the question as moot, and if the orderly administration of justice compels a determination immediately [DiGiorgio Fruit Corp. v. Dep. of Employment (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 54, 58-59, 13 Cal. Rptr. 663, 362 P.2d 487 (mandate proceeding); *Heavy, Highway Bldg. Constr. Teamsters Committee v. Superior Court (1962) 203 Cal. § 358.66 Res Judicata

The doctrine of res judicata is generally applicable to judgments on the merits in mandate and prohibition proceedings [see Hollywood Circle, Inc. v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 728, 733, 13 Cal. Rptr. 104, 361 P.2d 712 ; Loeb v. Berman (1933) 217 Cal. 716, 720, 20 P.2d 685]. A summary denial of a petition for a writ of mandate, however, is not res judicata [Hagan v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 767, 770, 22 Cal. Rptr. 206, 371 P.2d 982 ; De Bottari v. Melendez (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 910, 914 n.3, 119 Cal. Rptr. 256], regardless of whether the denial is based on the merits or on some other reason [Kowis v. Howard (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 888, 899, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 728, 838 P.2d 250 (discrediting and rejecting long-standing "sole possible ground" exception and disapproving sole case that applied rule and many cases that contain dicta implying existence of exception, including Hagan v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 767, 770, 22 Cal. Rptr. 206, 371 P.2d 982)].

In any case in which the court issues an alternative writ and renders a written decision granting or denying relief, that decision has ordinary res judicata effect. However, if a party has no notice that a peremptory writ is sought or might issue, there is no alternative writ, and the document issued by the court of appeal is not preceded by a decision or order subject to petition for hearing, the doctrine of res judicata will not apply [Palma v. U.S. Industrial Fasteners, Inc. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 171, 182-183, 203 Cal. Rptr. 626, 681 P.2d 893].

If an appellate court has denied a writ of prohibition to prevent a trial court from proceeding with the trial of an action and the appellate court's decision has become final, its adjudication is res judicata as against the same petitioner who later seeks a writ of prohibition (on an application based on a set of facts identical with those previously presented) against the same real parties in interest for the same purpose [Overstreet v. County of Butte (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 504, 506, 20 Cal. Rptr. 631, 370 P.2d 335 ; Calhoun v. Superior Court (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 257, 262, 331 P.2d 648].

For example, a petitioner for awrit of prohibition from a reviewing court who, at the same time, is willfully disobeying an order of the superior court is in contempt of that court and cannot ask the aid and assistance of the reviewing court [*Funfar v. [1] Governing Procedural Law

Proceedings to obtain a writ of mandate or prohibition are initiated by filing a verified petition in the appropriate superior or appellate court [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086, 1103; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a) (petition filed in reviewing court)]. For discussion concerning the determination of the proper court in which to file the petition, see §§ 358.30, 358.40. For discussion of the elements that must be alleged in the petition, see §§ 358.31, 358.41.

The petition may pray for an alternative writ, a peremptory writ, or both [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1088, 1105; for further discussion, see § 358.16]. The prayer may also request an award of damages, if any, sustained by the petitioner, and an award of costs [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1095 and discussion under § 358.87[8]].

For a form of petition for use in a superior court, see § 358.130. For forms of petition for use in an appellate court, see § 358.137 and § 358.138. Forms of specific allegations to be used in these petitions are set out in §§ 358.131 -358.136.

[2] Format and Content Requirements

[a] Superior Court

A petition for writ of mandate or prohibition filed in superior court must include the substantive allegations necessary to support issuance of the writ [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086, 1102, 1103; § 358.82[1]]. It also must comply with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.100 et seq., which specifies the general format of papers presented for filing. Local superior court rules or policies may prescribe additional requirements and should be consulted [see, e.g., Sacramento Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 2.01; San Diego Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Div. II, Rule 8.1].

For further discussion of format and content requirements, see § 358.130.

[b] Appellate Court

In addition to legal requirements necessary to support the petition [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a); see also § 358.82[1]], an original petition for a writ of mandate or prohibition filed in an appellate court is subject to the general format provisions set out in the appellate rules of court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.4].

A number of format and content requirements are contained in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486 et seq., which generally governs original writ proceedings in reviewing courts. Unless otherwise provided in that rule or in other related rules governing such proceedings [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.486-8.493], a writ petition in a reviewing court must also comply with the format and content requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.204 and 8.208, governing appellate briefs [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.485(a)]. Additional format requirements, applicable to all papers filed in a reviewing court, are set out in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.40.

For detailed discussion of the format and content requirements relating to writ petitions, set out in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules, 8.204, 8.40, and 8.490, see §§ 358.137 -358.138.

[3] Verification

[a] Basic Requirements

The petition for a writ of mandate or prohibition must be verified by the beneficially interested party [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1086, 1103(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(4); see also Perlman v. Municipal Court (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 568, 573-574, 160 Cal. Rptr. 567 (circumstances under which attorney can verify petition)]. The verification generally must be prepared in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 446, governing verification in civil actions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1109; [see § 358.80] for discussion and forms relating to verification generally, see Ch. 572, Verification]. For further discussion of this requirement as it applies to petitions filed by public entities, see § 358.82[3][b].

To some degree, verification should be based on personal knowledge, because a verification made solely on information and belief is generally insufficient to support a petition for mandate or prohibition [see Star Motor Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204-205, 151 Cal. Rptr. 721]. A verification made solely on information and belief, however, may be accepted by a court if the petitioner otherwise supplies a sufficient record of the underlying facts and proceedings, thus making judicial reliance on the factual allegations in the petition unnecessary [see Fall River Joint Unified School Dist. v. Superior Court (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 431, 436, 253 Cal. Rptr. 587]. The purpose of the verification requirement is to assure good faith in the averments or statements of the petitioner. Thus, if there is no allegation of counsel's bad faith in verifying the petition on information and belief, a claim of inadequate verification is without merit [League of Women Voters v. Eu (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 649, 656, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 416].

Failure to verify an original petition may be cured if the court permits an amendment of the petition to include a verification [Franchise Tax Bd. v. Municipal Court (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 377, 383-384, 119 Cal. Rptr. 552].

[b] Verification by Public Entity

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 446, which generally governs verification in civil actions, pleadings of public entities need not be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 446]. The California courts of appeal have disagreed concerning the extent to which this provision applies in mandate or prohibition proceedings:

- The First District has held that the provisions requiring verification in mandate proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1086, 1089; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(4)] control over Code Civ. Proc. § 446. Thus, verification is required in mandate proceedings "without exception" [Municipal Court v. Superior Court (Sinclair) (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 19, 25-26, n.1, 244 Cal. Rptr. 591 (First District, Division Four)].

- The Fourth District, however, has taken the opposite view, holding that Code Civ. Proc. § 446 exempts public entities and their officers from the verification requirement in mandate proceedings [Murrieta Valley Unified School Dist. v. County of Riverside (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1212, 1223, 279 Cal. Rptr. 421 (Fourth District, Division Two) ; Verzi v. Superior Court (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 382, 385, 228 Cal. Rptr. 299 (Fourth District, Division Two)] .

- The Sixth District has followed the Fourth District in holding that public entities are exempt from the requirement of verification of a petition for mandate [Fremont Union High Sch. Dist. v. Santa Clara County Board of Education (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1182, 1188, 286 Cal. Rptr. 915].

- The Second District, reviewing the split of authority, has endorsed the First District's view that verification is required, noting that verification is essential when a paper, such as a mandate petition, is to be used as evidence of the facts stated therein [People v. Superior Court (Alvarado) (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 464, 469-470, 255 Cal. Rptr. 46 (Second District, Division Three)].

[4] Record Supporting Petition

[a] In Superior Court

If the petition seeks an extraordinary writ in the superior court, it should, to the extent possible, be accompanied by any record or evidence necessary for the determination of the petition. In any case, the petitioner should consult local superior court rules and practice for requirements relating to the preparation of the record or evidence to be presented in support of the petition [see, e.g., Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 9.31(h) (in writ proceedings other than those for administrative mandate, evidence is presented by declarations, deposition testimony, etc.,--not by oral testimony, unless permitted by the court; record should be prepared before setting the writ for hearing)].

If mandamus is sought against an administrative agency, the parties may present evidence outside the administrative record [Bright Development v. City of Tracy (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 783, 795, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 618].

[b] In Appellate Court

If a petition to a reviewing court seeks review of a trial court ruling, it must be accompanied by a record adequate to permit the review [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(b); see also Sherwood v. Superior Court (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 183, 186]. Specifically, the record must include the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(b); see Pedlow v. Superior Court (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 368, 371, 169 Cal. Rptr. 326]:

(1) A copy of the order or judgment from which relief is sought;

(2) Copies of all documents and exhibits submitted to the trial court supporting and opposing the petitioner's position;

(3) Copies of all other documents submitted to the trial court that are necessary for a complete understanding of the case and the ruling; and

(4) A transcript of the proceedings leading to the order or judgment below or, if a transcript is unavailable:

- A declaration by counsel explaining why a transcript is unavailable and fairly summarizing the proceedings, including arguments by counsel and the basis of the trial court's decision, if stated, or

- A declaration by counsel stating that the transcript has been ordered, the date it was ordered, and the date it is expected to be filed, which must be a date prior to any action requested of the reviewing court other than issuance of a stay supported by other parts of the record.

In exigent circumstances, a petition may be filed without a copy of the order, judgment, or relevant documents, other than the transcript, if a declaration by counsel or by an unrepresented petitioner explains the urgency and the circumstances making the documents unavailable and fairly summarizes their substance [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(b)].

If a petitioner does not submit the required record and explanations, or does notpresent facts sufficient to excuse the failure to submit them, the court may summarily deny the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(b)].

Documents submitted in support of a petition must comply with the following requirements [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(c)]:

- They must be bound together at the end of the petition or in separate volumes not to exceed 300 pages each, with consecutive pagination throughout.

- They must be index-tabbed by number or letter.

- They must begin with a table of contents listing each document by title and its index-tab number or letter.

The appellate court clerk is required to accept for filing petitions and supporting documents not in compliance with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(c), but the court may give the petitioner notice requiring that the petition and documents be brought into compliance within a stated reasonable time of not less than five days, or the petition may be stricken or denied summarily [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(c)].

If a party seeks to seal or unseal all or a portion of the record supporting the petition, that party must follow the procedures of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(d); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(e), (f) (motions to seal, unseal records in reviewing court)]. Rule 8.46 also sets out other requirements relating to sealed records in appeals or writ proceedings in reviewing courts, including the manner of filing a sealed record in a reviewing court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(e)], and the requirement that publically filed documents, including writ petitions and supporting and opposing papers, not disclose material contained in a sealed record or a record proposed to be sealed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(g)]. For detailed discussion and forms relating to sealed records and proceedings in the reviewing court to seal or unseal records under Rule 8.46, see Ch. 44, Appeal: Preparing and Filing the Record, § 44.100 et seq. and § 44.300 et seq.

[5] Points and Authorities

[a] Supporting Petition in Superior Court

Neither the Code of Civil Procedure nor the California Rules of Court expressly requires that points and authorities be filed in support of a petition in the superior court for writs of mandate or prohibition. Such a requirement may nevertheless reasonably be implied. The rules set out in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1101 et seq., apply in proceedings on application for writs of mandate or prohibition [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1101 et seq.; § 358.80]. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a), requires, in turn, that a notice of motion be supported by a memorandum. A petition for a writ of mandate or prohibition may fairly be characterized as a motion, if not a notice of motion [but see § 358.82[6][a]]. The definitions of a motion and order in civil actions apply to similar acts in a proceeding for a writ of mandate or prohibition [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1064], and under Code Civ. Proc. § 1003, a motion is an application for order, which, in turn, is defined as any written direction by a court not included in a judgment [see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1088, 1089, 1090, 1107 (referring to petition as "motion" or "application")].

The advisability of filing points and authorities to support a petition is buttressed not only by statutory language, but also by practical considerations. A court may summarily deny an ex parte petition for an alternative writ if it appears from the face of the petition that an alternative writ will not be issued [see Kingston v. Dept. of Motor Vehicles (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 549, 552, 76 Cal. Rptr. 614]. And although the respondent and real party in interest have the right to file a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the petition [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107], a petitioner has no right to respond to the memorandum. Thus, it is the practice of counsel in many counties throughout California to file points and authorities in support of petitions sought in the superior courts.

For forms of points and authorities that may be used to support a petition for a writ of mandate or prohibition, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition (Matthew Bender). For discussion and a form of skeletal memorandum of points and authorities, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[b] Supporting Petition in Appellate Court

A memorandum in support of a petition for a writ of mandate or prohibition are required when the petition is filed in an appellate court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)]. For forms of memoranda that may be used to support a petition for a writ of mandate or prohibition in an appellate court, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition (Matthew Bender).

[5a] Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons

If a party files a motion, an application, or an opposition to a motion or application in the Court of Appeal before filing its principal brief, the party must serve and file its Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons at the time it files the first such motion, application, or opposition and must include a copy of the certificate in the party's principal brief. If no motion, application, or opposition to such motion or application is filed before the parties file their principal briefs, each party must serve and file a certificate at the time it files its first document in the Court of Appeal. Each party must also include a copy of its certificate in its principal brief [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(d)(1)]. If the identity of any party or any entity or person subject to disclosure has not been publicly disclosed in the proceedings and a party wants to keep that identity confidential, the party may serve and file an application for permission to file its certificate under seal separately from its principal brief, motion, application, or opposition. If the application is granted, the party must file the certificate under seal and without service within 10 days of the court's order granting the application [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(d)(2)].

If a party is an entity, the certificate must list any other entity or person that the party knows has an ownership interest of 10 percent or more in the party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(e)(1)]. All parties must also list any person or entity, other than the parties themselves, that has a financial or other interest in the outcome of the proceeding that the party reasonably believes the justices should consider in determining whether to disqualify themselves under Canon 3E of the Code of Judicial Ethics [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(e)(2)]. If the party knows of no entity or person that is required to bedisclosed under the rule, he or she must so state in the certificate [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(e)(3)]. Furthermore, if a party learns of changed or additional information that must be disclosed under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208, he or she must promptly serve and file a supplemental certificate [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(f)].

For a form of the Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons--Judicial Council Form APP-008, see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs, § 50.83.

The petitioner's certificate must be included in the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.488(c)(1)]. The certificates of the respondent and real party in interest must be included in their preliminary opposition or, if no such opposition is filed, in their return, if any. The certificate must appear after the cover and before the tables [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.488(c)(3)]. If a party fails to file a certificate, the clerk must notify the party by mail that the party must file the certificate within 10 days after the clerk's notice is mailed and that failure to comply may result in one of the following sanctions: (1) If the party is the petitioner, the court may strike the petition; (2) If the party is the respondent or the real party in interest, the court may strike the document [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.488(d)].

[6] Service of Petition

[a] In General

Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010-1020, prescribing appropriate methods of service in civil actions, govern service of a petition for a writ of mandate or prohibition [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; for general discussion and forms relating to service under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010-1020, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers]. If, however, a writ of mandate is sought under Code Civ. Proc. § 1088.5, service of the petition is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 411.10-417.40 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; for discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 1088.5, see § 358.82[6][d]; for general discussion and forms relating to service under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 411.10-417.40, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

Some superior courts prefer to conduct writ proceedings by way of the noticed-motion procedure. Under this procedure, the petitioner serves with the petition a notice of motion specifying a hearing date, the opposing party files a return, a hearing is held, and the court decides whether or not to issue a peremptory writ [see, e.g., Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 9.31(d)(1); San Diego Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Div. II, Rule 10.11; see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005, 1006 (noticed motion procedure)]. No alternative writ is sought or issued. If noticed-motion procedure is followed, the petitioner must prepare a notice of motion form to accompany the petition [for a form of notice, see § 358.142].

[b] Service on Board or Commission

If the real party in interest is a board or commission, service must be made on the presiding officer, or on the secretary, or on a majority of the members, of the board or commission [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107].

[c] Service in Unfair Competition Cases

Service of petitions filed in the Court of Appeal or Supreme Court in unfair competition cases under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq. must comply with the service requirements applicable to appellate briefs under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17209. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17209 requires service of each brief or petition in an unfair competition case to be made on the Attorney General and the district attorney of the county in which the action was originally filed, with such service to be made within three days of the filing the brief or petition.

For discussion and forms relating to unfair competition cases under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq., generally, see Ch. 565, Unfair Competition, § 565.10 et seq.

[d] Timing and Proof of Service

Generally, a petition for a writ of mandate or prohibition must be accompaniedby proof of service on the respondent and real party in interest. In other words, copies of the petition must generally be served on interested parties before the petition is actually filed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct. Rule 8.486(e)].

A court may, however, in its discretion and for good cause, grant a petition ex parte, without notice or service of the petition on the respondent or real party in interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(e); see also Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 9.31(a) (permitting petition to be filed without proof of service)].

If a petition to a superior court for a writ of mandate or prohibition does not seek an alternative writ (that is, if only a peremptory writ is sought or if the noticed motion procedure is used), the petitioner is not required to serve copies of the petition on interested parties prior to filing [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1088.5 (proof of service as not required to accompany petition), 1105 (provisions governing mandate as applicable in prohibition proceedings)]. The petitioner, however, must provide proof of service before a hearing or any action by the court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1088.5].

Courts of appeal and the Supreme Court may permit the filing of a petition accompanied by a defective proof of service, provided that the petitioner files a proper proof of service within five days after the clerk gives notice of the defective proof of service [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(e) (permitting striking of the petition and lesser sanctions if the improper proof of service is not remedied within five-day period)].

In addition to complying with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.25, the proof of service must give the telephone number of each attorney served [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(e)]. Although there is no similar express requirement for proofs of service filed in superior court, it is good practice to identify which attorney represents which party.

[7] Filing Petition

A petitioner should not delay in filing the petition for a writ of mandate or prohibition. The real party in interest or respondent may be able to assert a defense to the petition based on laches or on the lapse of a limitation period [see Peterson v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 147, 163-164, 181 Cal. Rptr. 784, 642 P.2d 1305 ; § 358.63]. Furthermore, when a statute authorizes the petition of writ to review a particular court order, the petition may be subject to strict time limitations [see § 358.32[12]].

If the petition challenges a judicial ruling, and there is no other statutory time limit, the petition may be denied as untimely if it is not filed within 60 days after the entry of the order of which review is sought [see Popelka, Allard, McCowan & Jones v. Superior Court (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 496, 499 165 Cal. Rptr. 748 (filing beyond that time as untimely by analogy to period for filing notice of appeal); but see Peterson v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 147, 163, 181 Cal. Rptr. 784, 642 P.2d 1305 (laches as requiring actual prejudice to real party, in addition to unreasonable delay)]. However, absent an applicable statute, courts have discretion to hear a writ petition filed beyond the judicially imposed 60-day limit [Bob Parrett Constr., Inc. v. Superior Court (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 1180, 1185, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 250] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
F. Procedure for Obtaining Writ

31-358 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 358.83

§ 358.83 Notice to Parties If Peremptory Writ Sought in First Instance

A petitioner who intends to seek a peremptory writ in the first instance in the superior court must provide at least 10 days' notice to the parties. With the notice, a copy of the petition must be served on each person against whom the writ is sought [Code Civ. Proc. § 1088].

In Palma v. U.S. Industrial Fasteners, Inc. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 171, 203 Cal. Rptr. 626, 681 P.2d 893 , the California Supreme Court held that a peremptory writ may not be issued by an appellate court in the first instance unless the respondent and real party in interest have "due notice" that the procedure is being considered, or at least requested, and have either filed a response on the merits or been given the opportunity to do so [Palma v. U.S. Industrial Fasteners, Inc. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 171, 176, 203 Cal. Rptr. 626, 681 P.2d 893]. The parties adversely affected by the writ must receive 10 days' notice, from the petitioner or from the court, that the issuance of such a writ in the first instance is being sought or considered [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1088, 1105; Palma v. U.S. Industrial Fasteners, Inc. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 171, 180, 203 Cal. Rptr. 626, 681 P.2d 893].

Unless there are exceptional circumstances, the reviewing court is required to receive or solicit opposition from the party or parties adversely affected by issuance of the writ [see Palma v. U.S. Industrial Fasteners, Inc. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 171, 180, 203 Cal. Rptr. 626, 681 P.2d 893]. Opposition from the party adversely affected, if any, will enable to the court to determine whether it is proper to grant a peremptory writ. While the court must solicit opposition, it need not permit opposition in the form of oral argument, given the urgent and exceptional circumstances in which the peremptory writ procedure is typically utilized [see Lewis v. Superior Court (1999) 19 Cal. 4th 1232, 1252-1253, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 85, 970 P.2d 872].

If the opposition presents any reasonable argument that the applicable law is unsettled or does not govern the precise issue presented in light of the particular undisputed facts, or if the application of legal principles set out in various sources of law might lead to different results and there is no compelling need for an expedited decision, the court must follow the usual writ procedure and issue an alternative writ or order to show cause [Lewis v. Superior Court (1999) 19 Cal. 4th 1232, 1261, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 85, 970 P.2d 872 ; Kernes v. Superior Court (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 525, 530, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 765].

It is unclear whether a petition that merely states in the prayer of the petition a request for a peremptory writ in the first instance satisfies the Palma notice requirement [see Palma v. U.S. Industrial Fasteners, Inc. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 171, 177, 179, 203 Cal. Rptr. 626, 681 P.2d 893 (because petitioner's prayer did not seek peremptory writ in first instance, Supreme Court did not directly address issue of whether prayer seeking such writ would provide adequate notice); see also City of Santa Cruz v. Superior Court (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1669, 1675, 236 Cal. Rptr. 155 (seemingly finding notice adequate because petitioner prayed for peremptory writ in first instance, real party in interest was duly served with petition, and real party in interest filed opposition)].

Apparently, it is common practice for appellate courts to assume responsibility for providing Palma notice [see, e.g., Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 4th App. Dist., Rule 3 (Division One, Fourth Appellate District; court notifies parties by telephone and confirmation letter of possibility of peremptory writ in first instance); Swaithes v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1082, 1089-1090, 261 Cal. Rptr. 41 ; Trailmobile, Inc. v. Superior Court (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1451, 1458, 259 Cal. Rptr. 100 ; see also Nissan Motor Corp. v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 980, 981, 261 Cal. Rptr. 80 (court provided Palma notice and requested opposition in letter to opposing parties)].

An appellate court may issue a "suggestive" Palma notice whereby the court provides notice that the court intends to issue a peremptory writ in the first instance granting the relief requested by the petitioner; a discussion of the merits of the writ petition, with a suggestion that the trial court erred in the manner claimed by the petitioner; a specific grant to the trial court of "power and jurisdiction" to change the disputed interim order and enter in its place a new order consistent with the views of the appellate court, in which event the writ petition will be vacated as moot; and a solicitation of opposition to the issuance of a peremptory writ in the first instance, should the trial court elect not to follow the appellate court's recommendation [Brown, Winfield & Canzoneri, Inc. v. Superior Court (2010) 2010 Cal. LEXIS 588, 2-3] . If a trial court decides on its own motion to revisit its interim ruling in response to a suggestive Palma notice, that court must inform the parties of its intent to do so, and provide them with an opportunity to be heard [Brown, Winfield & Canzoneri, Inc. v. Superior Court (2010) 47 Cal. 4th 1233, 2010 Cal. LEXIS 588, 2-35] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
F. Procedure for Obtaining Writ

31-358 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 358.84

§ 358.84 Preliminary Opposition to Petition

[1] If Petition Filed in Superior Court

If the petition is filed in the superior court, the respondent, the real party in interest, or both, may file with the court and serve on the petitioner a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the granting of the writ within five days after being served with the petition [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107]. If, however, the petition is one for a writ of mandate filed under Code Civ. Proc § 1088.5 [see § 358.82[6][d]], the respondent must answer or otherwise respond to the petition within 30 days after service of the petition so long as a record of the proceedings to be reviewed has been filed with the petition or when no record is required. Otherwise, the party on whom the petition has been served, including any real party in interest, must answer or otherwise respond within 30 days following receipt of a copy of the record [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1089.5].

The five-day time period granted to the respondent and real party in interest has been held to be jurisdictional in the superior court; a judgment directing the issuance of an alternative writ may be reversed when the trial court fails to afford the respondent or the real party in interest the five days to file points and authorities in opposition to the petition as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1107 [see City of Culver City v. State Bd. of Equalization (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 404, 412, 105 Cal. Rptr. 602 (mandate proceeding)].

[2] If Petition Filed in Appellate Court

If the petition is filed in an appellate court, the respondent or any real party in interest, separately or jointly, may serve and file a preliminary opposition within 10 days after the petition is filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(a)(1)]. An opposition mustcontain a memorandum and a statement of any material fact not included in the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(a)(2)]. Within 10 days after an opposition is filed, the petitioner may serve and file a reply [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(a)(3)].

In addition, if a party files a motion, an application, or an opposition to a motion or application before filing its principal brief, the party must serve and file a Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons at the time it files the first such motion, application, or opposition and must include a copy of this certificate in the party's principal brief. If no motion, application, or opposition to such motion or application is filed before the parties file their principal briefs, each party must serve and file a certificate at the time it files its first document in the Court of Appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(d)]. If the identity of any party or any entity or person subject to disclosure has not been publicly disclosed in the proceedings and a party wants to keep that identity confidential, the party may serve and file an application for permission to file its certificate under seal separately from its principal brief, motion, application, or opposition. If the application is granted, the party must file the certificate under seal and without service within 10 days of the court's order granting the application [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(d)(2)].

If a party is an entity, the certificate must list any person or entity, other than the parties themselves, that the party knows has an ownership interest of 10 percent or more in the party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(e)(1)]. All parties must also list any other person or entity that has a financial or other interest in the outcome of the proceeding that the party reasonably believes the justices should consider in determining whether to disqualify themselves under Canon 3E of the Code of Judicial Ethics [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(e)(2)]. If the party knows of no entity or person that is required to be disclosed under the rule, he or she must so state in the certificate [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(e)(3)]. Furthermore, if a party learns of changed or additional information that must be disclosed under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208, he or she must promptly serve and file a supplemental certificate [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(f)]. The certificates of the respondent and real party in interest must be included in their preliminary opposition or, if no such opposition is filed, in their return, if any. The certificate must appear after the cover and before the tables [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.488(c)].

For a form of the Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons--Judicial Council Form APP-008, see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs, § 50.83.

The court has discretion to grant or deny a request for temporary stay, deny the petition, issue an alternative writ or order to show cause, or notify the parties that it is considering issuing a peremptory writ in the first instance, without requesting opposition or waiting for a reply [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(a)(4)].

If the respondent and real party in interest, if any, have received Palma notice from the petitioner or the court [see § 358.83], it is in the interest of the party opposing the writ to provide as detailed a preliminary opposition as possible, raising all matters that might be raised in a demurrer or answer. At least 10 days after Palma notice is provided, the court may issue a peremptory writ without having issued an alternative writ and without having waited for a full-scale return [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1088, 1105; see Palma v. U.S. Industrial Fasteners, Inc. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 171, 178, 203 Cal. Rptr. 626, 681 P.2d 893]. Thus, if Palma notice is provided, the preliminary opposition may be the respondent's or real party in interest's only opportunity to block issuance of the writ [see Palma v. U.S. Industrial Fasteners, Inc. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 171, 178, 180, 203 Cal. Rptr. 626, 681 P.2d 893].

In order to encourage full review of the issue presented and to preserve for later review the issue of the propriety of using the expedited writ process, the opposing party should also raise in its preliminary opposition any reasons the court should not grant expedited relief by issuing a peremptory writ in the first instance [see Alexander v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 1218, 1223, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 397, 859 P.2d 96].

An appellate court may issue a "suggestive" Palma notice whereby the court provides notice that the court intends to issue a peremptory writ in the first instance granting the relief requested by the petitioner; a discussion of the merits of the writ petition, with a suggestion that the trial court erred in the manner claimed by the petitioner; a specific grant to the trial court of "power and jurisdiction" to change the disputed interim order and enter in its place a new order consistent with the views of the appellate court, in which event the writ petition will be vacated as moot; and a solicitation of opposition to the issuance of a peremptory writ in the first instance, should the trial court elect not to follow the appellate court's recommendation [Brown, Winfield & Canzoneri, Inc. v. Superior Court (2010) 2010 Cal. LEXIS 588, 2-3] . If a trial court decides on its own motion to revisit its interim ruling in response to a suggestive Palma notice, that court must inform the parties of its intent to do so, and provide them with an opportunity to be heard

[Brown, Winfield & Canzoneri, Inc. v. Superior Court (2010) 47 Cal. 4th 1233, 2010 Cal. LEXIS 588, 2-35] .

§ 358.85 Return to Writ by Demurrer or Answer

[1] In General

A party on whom an alternative writ or notice of motion has been served may make a return by demurrer, verified answer, or both [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1089, 1105]. A return must be in the form of a demurrer or verified answer, not a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to the petition; otherwise, all facts pleaded in the petition are accepted as true [Caliber Bodyworks, Inc. v. Superior Court (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 365, 372 n.5, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 31]. In an appellate court, if the court issues an alternative writ or order to show cause, then the respondent or real party in interest, or both, separately or jointly, may make a return by demurrer, by verified answer, or by both [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(b)(1)].

The demurrer asserts that the petition for writ fails to state a claim on which relief may be granted. If a demurrer and answer both allege only that issues of law preclude the relief requested, there is no need to consider the demurrer and answer separately [StorMedia Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 449, 455, n.7, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 976 P.2d 214].

For forms of answer and demurrer to a petition for an extraordinary writ, see § 358.144 and § 358.145.

[2] Verification of Answer

An answer by the respondent or real party in interest must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1089, 1105; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(b)(1)]. When an unverified opposition contains new or different facts not contained in the verified petition or the record, those facts will be ignored [Motion Picture & Television Fund Hosp. v. Superior Court (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 488, 492, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 872]. For discussion of the verification requirement in mandate and prohibition proceedings, see § 358.82[3].

[3] Time to Make Return

If the court issues an alternative writ, the return must be made on or before the date specified in the writ [see Code Civ.

Proc. §§ 1089, 1105]. If local rules allow the determination of writ relief on noticed motion [see § 358.82[6][a]], and such procedure is followed, then the return generally must be made before the datescheduled for the hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1089, 1105].

If a petition for a writ of mandate or prohibition, not seeking an alternative writ, is filed in a trial court pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1088.5, without proof of prior service of a copy of the petition, the respondent must answer or otherwise respond within 30 days after service of the petition if a record of the proceeding to be reviewed has been filed with the petition or if no record of a proceeding is required. If, however, a record of the proceeding to be reviewed has been requested pursuant to Gov. Code § 11523 or otherwise, and has not been filed with the petition, the party on whom the petition has been served, including any real party in interest, must answer or otherwise respond within 30 days after receiving a copy of the record [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1089.5, 1105].

If the proceeding is in an appellate court for an alternative writ, then the return or opposition must be served and filed within 30 days after the court issues the alternative writ or order to show cause or notifies the parties that it is considering issuing a peremptory writ in the first instance [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(b)(2)].

[4] Effect of Filing Return by Demurrer Only

If the return is by demurrer alone and the demurrer is overruled, the overruling court may allow an answer to be filed within such time as it may designate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1089, 1105]. The overruling court, however, may also refuse to allow the filing of an answer, in which case it may issue a peremptory writ without leave to answer [Rhyne v. Municipal Court (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 807, 819, 170 Cal. Rptr 312 (discretion of superior court to refuse filing of answer); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(b)(4) (discretion of appellate court to refuse filing of answer)]. It is good practice to file an answer with a demurrer to avoid the possibility that a demurrer filed alone will be overruled without leave to file an answer.

§ 358.86 Replication

Code Civ. Proc. § 1091 provides that, on the trial, the petitioner is not precluded by the return from any valid objection to its sufficiency; the return may be countervailed by either direct proof or proof by way of avoidance. This provision has been interpreted to permit a replication denying the affirmative averments of the answer in addition to controverting them at the hearing [see Lotus Car Ltd. v. Municipal Court (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 264, 268, 69 Cal. Rptr. 384 (mandate proceeding); Day v. City of Los Angeles (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 415, 418, 11 Cal. Rptr. 325 (mandate proceeding)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 1091 applies to prohibition proceedings as well as mandate proceedings [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1105].

For a form of replication, see § 358.146.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
F. Procedure for Obtaining Writ

31-358 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 358.87

§ 358.87 Determination of Petition

[1] Initial Grant or Denial

If the court grants the petition, it may issue either an alternative writ or a peremptory writ [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1087 (mandate), 1104 (prohibition)]. A peremptory writ may be issued in the first instance only on satisfaction of certain procedural requirements [see § 358.83]. More commonly, courts granting a petition will issue an alternative writ, which is essentially an order to show cause at some later hearing why a specified act should not be absolutely compelled or enjoined [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1087 (mandate), 1104 (prohibition)]. In an appellate court, the issuance of the alternative writ, or order to show cause, is a necessary prerequisite both for setting the matter for oral argument and for issuing a written opinion in the matter [Santa Clara County Local Transportation Authority v. Guardino (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 220, 228, n.2, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 207, 902 P.2d 225].

The court may of course deny the petition summarily, whenever the petition fails to satisfy the requirements for issuance of a writ. Thus, a court may summarily deny a petition for an alternative writ, even though the respondent has not appeared by answer or demurrer, if it appears from the face of the petition that a peremptory writ will not be issued [Kingston v. Dept. of Motor Vehicles (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 549, 552, 76 Cal. Rptr. 614 (mandate proceeding)]. Summary denial of a petition is neither precedent nor res judicata [see People v. Medina (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 484, 490-492, 99 Cal. Rptr. 630, 492 P.2d 686 (prohibition proceeding); De Bottari v. Melendez (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 910, 914, n.3, 119 Cal. Rptr. 256 (mandate proceeding); see also § 358.65], and it does not establish the law of the case, regardless of whether the denial is intended to be on the merits or is based on some other reason [Varian Medical Systems, Inc. v. Delfino (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 180, 200-201, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 298 (rejecting argument that court of appeal's summary denial of defendants' earlier petition for writ of supersedeas seeking a stay pending appeal was law of the case); Kowis v. Howard (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 888, 899, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 728, 838 P.2d 250 (discrediting and rejecting long-standing "sole possible ground" exception, and disapproving the one case that applied the rule and the many cases that contain dicta implying the existence of the exception, including Hagan v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 767, 770, 22 Cal. Rptr. 206, 371 P.2d 982)].

[2] On Demurrer

A showing on demurrer that the petition for writ does not state facts sufficient to justify relief is a complete answer to the petition, and the court is warranted in discharging the order to show cause and dismissing the proceeding [StorMedia Inc. v. Superior Court (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 449, 455, n.7, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 976 P.2d 214].

[3] Motion for Judgment on Peremptory Writ

If a petition that does not seek an alternative writ is filed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1088.5 and presents no triable issue of fact or is based solely on an administrative record, the matter may be determined by the court by noticed motion of any party for a judgment on the peremptory writ [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1105]. For forms of noticed motion and judgment, see § 358.152 and § 358.153, below .

[4] Factual Hearing by Jury or Court

[a] Trial of Factual Questions

If a return is made raising a question of fact essential to the determination of thepetition that affects the substantial rights of the parties, and on the supposed truth of which the petition is based, the court has discretion to order the question be tried before a jury. It may then postpone a hearing on the petition until the trial of the factual question occurs [Code Civ. Proc. § 1090; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1105].

[b] Factual Hearing in Mandate Proceeding

If a question of fact is raised by an answer to a petition for writ of mandate, the matter is heard in the same manner as any other trial [Lotus Car Ltd. v. Municipal Court (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 264, 268, 69 Cal. Rptr. 384 ; Lassen v. City of Alameda (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 44, 48, 309 P.2d 520]. In a law and motion evidentiary hearing in the trial court, the court has the discretion to decide a writ of mandate petition on the basis of declarations and other documents, as well as oral testimony [California School Employees Assn. v. Del Norte County Unified Sch. Dist. (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 1396, 1405, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35 ; see also § 358.82[4][a]].

Trial courts have the discretionary power in mandate proceedings to try controverted factual questions of an essential nature before a jury [McDonough v. Garrison (1945) 68 Cal. App. 2d 318, 322, 156 P.2d 983 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1290]. There is no discretion to deny a hearing, however, if a petitioner presents a factual issue that, if determined favorably, would require the entry of judgment; the petitioner is entitled as a matter of right to a trial by either the court or, in the court's discretion, by a jury [English v. City of Long Beach (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 311, 316, 250 P.2d 298].

Thus, if a trial court must review an administrative proceeding in determining whether or not a peremptory writ of mandate should issue, it is clearly not limited to reviewing the administrative record alone. Unlike proceedings for administrative mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5, it may receive additional evidence at the hearing [see No Oil, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 68, 79, n.6, 118 Cal. Rptr. 34, 529 P.2d 66 ; City of Pasadena v. State of California (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 810, 821, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 766].

There are limitations, however. Extra-record evidence is generally not admissible when a quasi-legislative administrative decision is challenged in a traditional mandamus action [Golden Drugs Co. v. Maxwell-Jolly (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 1455, 1468-1469, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 446 ; Western States Petroleum Assn. v. South Coast Air Quality (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 1012, 1024-1025, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 354]; but extra-record evidence is admissible in challenging ministerial or informal administrative actions [SN Sands Corp. v. City & County of San Francisco (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 185, 194, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 885]. A narrowly construed exception to inadmissibility in challenges to quasi-legislative administrative decisions applies in the following situation [Western States Petroleum Assn. v. Superior Court (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 559, 576-578, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 139, 888 P.2d 1268]:

- If the evidence in question existed before the agency made its decision; and

- It was not possible in the exercise of reasonable diligence to present this evidence to the agency before it made its decision.

An appellate court may not hold a factual hearing under Code Civ. Proc. § 1090; that section provides for the trial of factual issues by jury, a provision that is singularly inappropriate for appellate courts [Mooney v. Pickett (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 669, 682-683, 94 Cal. Rptr. 279, 483 P.2d 1231]. Since most petitions for writs of mandate that invoke the original jurisdiction of the appellate courts are presented either on a demurrer or on a stipulation of the relevant facts, cases in which a question of fact is raised by the answer are rare. In the few cases in which a genuine factual issue is raised by the answer [see Reber v. Superior Court (1961) 189 Cal. App.2d 622, 624, 11 Cal. Rptr. 534 (holding there was no genuine factual issue requiring a trial under Code Civ. Proc. § 1090)], it is possible for the appellate court to refer the question to a trial court for determination [Mash v. Superior Court (1923) 192 Cal. 258, 259, 219 P. 742]. It would also be possible for an appellate court to refer the question to a referee [see Code Civ. Proc. § 639 (grounds for court appointment of referee); for discussion relating to the appointment of referees generally, see Ch. 38, Reference].

[c] Factual Hearing Generally Unnecessary in Prohibition Proceeding

Factual issues to be resolved by a jury seldom arise in prohibition proceedings, since prohibition primarily involves a legal question of a lack or excess of jurisdiction, not factual questions for resolution by a jury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1102].

[d] Order for Jury Trial

If the court decides to try the issue before a jury, the question to be tried must be distinctly stated in the order for trial and the county must be designated in which the trial is to be held [Code Civ. Proc. § 1090; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1105].

[e] Countervailing the Return at Trial

At the trial, the petitioner is not precluded from making any valid objection to the sufficiency of the return. The return may be countervailed by proof either in direct denial of it or by way of avoidance [Code Civ. Proc. § 1091; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1105]. Hence, the petitioner can file a replication denying the affirmative allegations of the answer or can controvert them by proof presented at the hearing [see Lotus Car Ltd. v. Municipal Court (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 264, 268, 69 Cal. Rptr. 384 (mandate proceeding); for a form of replication, see § 358.146].

[f] Burden of Proof

The burden of proof in a mandate proceeding is on the petitioner to prove every foundational fact except such allegations as are admitted by the answer [Lotus Car Ltd. v. Municipal Court (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 264, 270, 69 Cal. Rptr. 384]. If the petitioner presents a prima facie case or if the petition contains a presumption, however, the burden of proof shifts [Lotus Car Ltd. v. Municipal Court (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 264, 270, 271, 69 Cal. Rptr. 384].

A petitioner who seeks a writ of prohibition to restrain a lower court's action has the burden to show that the lower court's action is in excess of that court's jurisdiction [Franklin v. Superior Court (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 292, 294, 220 P.2d 8].

[g] Motion for New Trial

A party who is aggrieved by a judgment involving a writ of mandate or prohibition may move for a new trial [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1092, 1105, 1110]. A motion for anew trial must be made in the court in which the issue of fact was tried [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1092, 1105]. For discussion and forms relating to motions after trial generally, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial, § 357.60 et seq.

[h] Certifying the Verdict

If no notice of a motion for a new trial is given or if the motion is denied, then within five days after rendition of the verdict or denial of the motion, the clerk must transmit a certified copy of the verdict attached to the order of trial to the court in which the application for the writ is pending. After transmission of the certified verdict, either party may give reasonable notice to the adverse party and proceed to bring on the argument of the petition [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1093, 1105].

[i] Statement of Decision

A statement of decision is required if requested by any party appearing to the trial. The request must be made within 10 days after the court announces a tentative decision unless the trial is concluded within one calendar day or in less than eight hours over more than one day, in which event the request must be made prior to the submission of the matter for decision. The statement of decision must explain the factual and legal basis for the court's decision as to each of the principal controverted issues at trial. The request for a statement of decision must specify those controverted issues as to which the party is requesting a statement of decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 632].

[5] Hearing If No Return Made

[a] In General

If no return is made, the case must be heard on the papers of the petitioner. If the return raises only questions of law or puts in issue immaterial statements not affecting substantial rights of the parties, the court must proceed to hear or fix a day for hearing the argument in the case [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1105].

[b] No Default Permitted

A peremptory writ of prohibition or mandate may not be granted by default. The case must be heard by the court whether or not the adverse party appears [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1088, 1105].

[6] Peremptory Writ After Hearing

If a judgment is in favor of the petitioner after the hearing, a peremptory writ must be awarded without delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 1095; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1105; but see Palma v. U.S. Industrial Fasteners, Inc. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 171, 181 n.9, 203 Cal. Rptr. 626, 681 P.2d 893 (court of appeal precluded from issuing writ before judgment or order directing that writ issue has been filed and has become final)].

A decision by a court of appeal or the Supreme Court to issue a peremptory writ is a determination of a "cause" within the meaning of Cal. Const., art. VI, § 14. Consequently, the writ must be in writing with reasons stated [Palma v. U.S. Industrial Fasteners, Inc. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 171, 178 n.6, 203 Cal. Rptr. 626, 681 P.2d 893 ; La Paglia v. Superior Court (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1322, 1324 n.1, 264 Cal. Rptr. 63 ; see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 14].

[7] Service of Peremptory Writ

A peremptory writ of mandate or prohibition must be served in the same manner as a summons in a civil action except when otherwise expressly directed by order of the court. Service on a majority of the members of any board or body is considered service on the board or body, whether or not at the time of the service the board or body was in session [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1096, 1105]. Service of summons in civil actions is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 413.10-417.40. For a discussion of the requirements governing service of summons in civil actions, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[8] Damages and Costs After Hearing

[a] In General

If a judgment in favor of the petitioner allows the petitioner to recover the damages that the jury, court, or referee determines that petitioner has sustained, together with any costs [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1095, 1105]. The term "costs" in Code Civ. Proc. § 1095 means those fees and charges that are required by law to be paid to the courts or to some of their officers or an amount fixed by law [Escrow Guar. Co. v. Savage (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 595, 597, 28 Cal. Rptr. 889 (mandate proceeding)].

[b] Execution May Issue After Hearing

Execution may issue for damages and costs incurred after hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1095, 1105].

[c] Award Against Public Entity

[i] Basic Rules

In all cases in which the respondent is an officer of a public entity, all damages and costs that may be recovered or awarded must be recovered or awarded against the public entity represented by the respondent officer that appears in the proceeding. Such damages are a proper claim against the public entity for which the officer has appeared and are payable as are other claims against the public entity. In cases involving such an officer, the court must first determine that the officer appeared and made a defense in the proceeding in good faith. The term "public entity" includes the state, a county, city, district, or other public agency or public corporation; the term "officer" includes any officer, agent, or employee [Code Civ. Proc. § 1095; see Code Civ. Proc § 1105]. A court is not a "state, county, or municipal officer" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 1095 [McCarthy v. Superior Court (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 42, 43-45, 149 P.2d 871].

[ii] Damage and Cost Rules Inapplicable in Certain Prohibition Proceedings

The provisions for both damages and costs in Code Civ. Proc. § 1095 [see § 358.87[8][c][i]] do not apply to a prohibition proceeding brought against a superior court to restrain the erroneous exercise of judicial power in litigation between private individuals to which the state is not a party, in which it is in no way interested, and wherein it has no right of representation [McCarthy v. Superior Court of SanFrancisco, (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 42, 43-44, 149 P.2d 871].

[d] Award of Costs Discretionary

The awarding of costs under Code Civ. Proc. § 1095 is subject to the court's discretion [Kramer v. State Board of Accountancy (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 163, 177, 19 Cal. Rptr. 226 (mandate proceeding)].

[e] Award of Costs in Original Writ Proceeding in Appellate Court

[i] In General

Cal. Rule of Ct., Rule 8.493, governs the recovery of costs in an original writ proceeding brought in an appellate court. This rule was adopted to establish a uniform procedure for the recovery of costs in such proceedings, and is patterned after the procedure for recovering costs on civil appeals from the superior court set out in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.278 [cf. discussion regarding recovery of costs on appeal in Ch. 51, Appeal: Hearing and Decision].

Except as otherwise specified in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.493, the prevailing party in the original proceeding is entitled to costs if the reviewing court resolves the original proceeding by written opinion after issuing an alternative writ, order to show cause, or peremptory writ in the first instance [Campbell v. Superior Court (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 904, 922, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 68 (although party waived right to contest adverse trial court ruling regarding fees by failing to take cross-appeal, appellate court ruled she was entitled to costs pursuant to rules governing original proceedings in appellate court)]. The appellate court, in any case in which the interests of justice require it, may also make any award or apportionment of costs it deems proper, or, it may decline to award costs. The award or denial of costs must be provided for in the court's opinion or order on the granting or denial of the writ [Cal. Rule of Ct., Rule 8.493(a) (but these provisions do not apply in proceedings in which party is entitled to court-appointed counsel)].

[ii] Recoverable Items

The items recoverable as costs are those specified in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.278 (costs on civil appeals from superior court) and may include the cost of preparing and providing the record used in the writ proceeding [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.493]. For discussion regarding items recoverable as costs under Rule 8.278, see Ch. 53, Appeal: Remittitur and Costs on Appeal, § 53.30 et seq.

[iii] Memorandum of Costs

A party who claims costs awarded by the reviewing court must, within 40 days after the opinion of the reviewing court becomes final as to that court, serve and file in the trial court a memorandum of costs, verified as prescribed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1700(a)(1) [see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.10 et seq.].

[iv] Motion to Tax Costs and Enforcement of Award

A party may move to have costs taxed in the same manner and within a like time after service of a copy of the memorandum of costs, as prescribed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1700(b). After the costs have been taxed, or after the time for taxing the costs has expired, the award of costs may be enforced in the same manner as a money judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.493; cf. similar provision for costs on appeal in Ch. 53, Appeal: Remittitur and Costs on Appeal]. For forms and discussion relating to proceedings to tax costs under Cal. Rules of Ct. Rule 3.1700(b), see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.10 et seq. For forms and discussion relating to the enforcement of money judgments, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments, § 254.40 et seq.

§ 358.88 Notification of Issuance of Writ or Order

If a writ or order issues from an appellate court that is directed to any judge, court, board, or other officer, the clerk of the reviewing court must promptly send a certified copy of the writ or order to the entity or person to whom it is addressed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.489(a)].

If the writ or order stays or prohibits proceedings scheduled to occur within seven days of its issuance, or if it requires that action be taken by the respondent within seven days, or in any other urgent situation, the clerk of the reviewing court must make a reasonable effort to give telephone notice to the clerk of the respondent court. The clerk of the respondent court must then notify the judge or other officer most directly concerned. Telephone notice of the summary denial of a writ is not required, whether or not a stay was previously issued [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.489(b)].

A decision in an original writ proceeding in a reviewing court is filed with the clerk, who then transmits copies of the decision to the lower court or tribunal and to the parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.264(a), 8.532(a)].

A decision of a court of appeal becomes final as to that court 30 days after filing. The decision becomes final as to that court immediately after filing upon the denial of a writ of supersedeas [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.264(b)(2)].

A decision of the Supreme Court becomes final 30 days after filing unless the court orders a shorter time or, prior to the expiration of the 30-day period or any extension, orders one or more additional periods not to exceed a total of 60 additional days [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.532(b)(1)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
F. Procedure for Obtaining Writ

31-358 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 358.90

§ 358.90 Appellate Review of Grant or Denial of Writ Petition

[1] In General

Even if no final judgment has been entered, an order granting or denying a petition for a writ of mandate or prohibition is generally appealable [see Charles S. v. Board of Education (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 83, 87, 97 Cal. Rptr. 422 , appeal denied, 405 U.S. 1005 (1972) (mandate proceeding); Daggs v. Personnel Commission (1969) 1 Cal.App. 3d 925, 930, 82 Cal. Rptr. 157 (mandate proceeding); see also Save the Welwood Murray Memorial Library Com. v. City Council (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1003, 1011, 263 Cal. Rptr. 896 (appeal lies from judgment directing issuance of writ; peremptory writ itself is not appealable)].

If an order granting or denying a petition for writ of mandate or prohibition is appealable, the proper procedure is to appeal from that order, rather than pursue another writ in the higher court [see Lambert v. Municipal Court (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 601, 602, 345 P.2d 98 (order denying petition for writ of prohibition)]. The higher court may nevertheless review such an order by means of another petition, rather than on appeal, in exceptional cases in which an appeal would not be an adequate remedy. For example, since a writ of prohibition lies to restrain the issuance of court orders based on unconstitutional statutes, an appellate court is justified in deciding that an appeal is not a speedy or adequate remedy by which to determine important constitutional issues [Mihans v. Municipal Court (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 479, 483, 87 Cal. Rptr. 17 (whether an appeal is a speedy or adequate remedy in a given case is a question for the appellate court)].

In some instances, however, review by appeal is not an option. An appeal may not be taken from a judgment of the appellate division of a superior court granting or denying a petition for issuance of a writ of mandamus or prohibition directed to the superior court, or a judge of the superior court, in a limited civil case or a misdemeanor or infraction case [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1]. If an order is not appealable under these circumstances, an appellate court has discretion to review the order on a petition to that court for an extraordinary writ [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1; see also Nassif v. Municipal Court (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1294, 1297, 263 Cal. Rptr. 195 ; Shortridge v. Municipal Court (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 611, 615, 198 Cal. Rptr. 749].

A petition for a writ of mandate or prohibition is a special proceeding and, as such, any order that is the final determination of the rights of the parties is a "judgment" [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1064, 1084-1105]. Courts of appeal will hear appeals from the denial of, the sustaining of, and a demurrer to petitions for the writs even though other causes of action remain undetermined [Elmore v. Imperial Irrigation Dist. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 185, 190-192, 205 Cal. Rptr. 433 (appeal from denial of mandate petition while actions for damages and injunctive relief pending); California Teachers Assn. v. Board of Education (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 738, 751, 167 Cal. Rptr. 429 (appeal from denial of mandate petition while actions for injunctive and declaratory relief pending)]. For example, a reviewing court may consider an appeal from a judgment granting or denying a writ of mandate even though a count seeking injunctive relief remains undecided [Sierra Club v. County of Sonoma (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 1307, 1312 n. 1, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 473]. It may also hear an appeal from a separate judgment severed from the plaintiff's damage claims, notwithstanding the one-judgment rule and the unresolved state of the damage claims [Greenwood Addition Homeowners Ass'n v. City of San Marino (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1360, 1366 n.4, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 350].

Review of a court of appeal's granting or denial of a writ petition may be sought by filing a petition for review in the California Supreme Court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.500]. A party desiring to bring the case before the Supreme Court usually should petition for review and not file another original petition for a writof mandate or prohibition if it has already been before a court of appeal [see Paige Co. of N. Cal. v. Superior Court (1924) 194 Cal. 795, 796, 231 P. 344 (prohibition proceeding)].

An order of the California Supreme Court reversing a summary denial of the court of appeal and directing issuance of an alternative writ is a determination that the petitioner is without an adequate remedy at law. It is not, however, a determination on the merits, which is left to the court of appeal [TRW, Inc. v. Superior Court (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1834, 1843 n.5, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 460].

For discussion of review by the Supreme Court, see Ch. 54, Appeal: California Supreme Court Review .

[2] Scope of Review of Mandate Proceeding

[a] In General

The scope of appellate review in a mandate proceeding is limited to a determination of whether substantial evidence exists in the record to support the decision or order from which relief in mandate was sought [Vineyard Area Citizens for Responsible Growth, Inc. v. City of Rancho Cordova (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 412, 427, n.4, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 821, 150 P.3d 709 ; Norton v. San Bernardino City Unified School District (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 749, 763, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 917 ; Veguez v. Governing Board of Long Beach Unified School District (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 406, 414, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 526 (review of trial court order); American Federation of State, County & Municipal Employees v. Metropolitan Water Dist. (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 247, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 285 (upholding trial court's denial of petition for writ of mandate); Armando D. v. State Department of Health Services (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 13, 15, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 66 (reviewing writ of mandate regarding child health and disability prevention program and termination of benefits to respondents); Jackson v. Gourley (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 966, 970, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 72 (review of trial court order); Taylor Bus Service, Inc. v. San Diego Bd. of Education (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1331, 1340, 241 Cal. Rptr. 379 (review of administrative decision)]. All factual conflicts are resolved in favor of the prevailing party [National Life of Florida Corp. v. Superior Court (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 281, 285, 98 Cal. Rptr. 435]. Factual conflicts are resolved in favor of the trial court's express or implicit findings that are supported by substantial evidence [City of Pasadena v. State of California (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 810, 821, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 766].

Out of deference to the agency's authority and presumed expertise, the scope of review is limited [Johnston v. Sonoma County Agricultural Preservation and Open Space District (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 973, 984, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 226]. Nevertheless, an appellate court is not bound by a trial court's finding and granting of a writ if the finding was a question of law that involved the proper application of a statute or administrative regulation [City of Fremont v. Board of Administration (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1026, 1030, 263 Cal.Rptr. 164 ; Shoban v. Board of Trustees (1969) 276

Cal. App. 2d 534, 541, 81 Cal. Rptr. 112 ; see Baker v. Aubry (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1259, 1262, 265 Cal. Rptr. 381]. If a purely legal question is involved, the reviewing court will exercise its independent judgment, notwithstanding whether the issue arises by traditional or administrative mandate [Jackson v. Gourley (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 966, 970, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 72 (question of law whether DMV may refuse driver education certificates of completion for correspondence courses); McIntosh v. Aubry (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1576, 1584, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 680].

If a petition for review is filed in the Supreme Court, after a court of appeal denies a writ of mandate relating to quashing service of summons, the time for filing a responsive pleading in the trial court under Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(c) is extended until 10 days after the Supreme Court files an order denying the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.49l; for discussion relating to motions to quash service of summons, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal].

[b] Presumptions

The presumptions usually made by an appellate court in considering appeals are applicable to mandate proceedings. A judgment is presumed correct and the burden is on the appellant to show reversible error [Jackson v. Carleson (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 12, 16, 113 Cal. Rptr. 890 ; Cosgrove v. County of Sacramento (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 45, 50, 59 Cal. Rptr. 919]. Similarly, an administrative action is presumed to be supported by substantial evidence, and the appellant has the burden to show that there is no substantial evidence whatsoever to support the findings of the administrative body [Taylor Bus Service, Inc. v. San Diego Bd. of Education (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1331, 1341, 241 Cal. Rptr. 379]. The presumption that public officials have performed their duties as required by law is also applicable to an appeal from a decision in a mandate proceeding [Cosgrove v. County of Sacramento (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 45, 50-51, 59 Cal. Rptr. 919].

[3] Scope of Review of Prohibition Proceeding

The appellant from a superior court's denial of a petition for a writ of prohibition has a burden to convince the appellate court that the judgment was rendered through error. Under this rule, it is necessary for the appellant to demonstrate that the denial of the writ did not result from a failure on his or her part to support the petition by proof. In the absence of such a showing, the appellate court is bound to assume that the writ was denied for that reason, and that the evidence that was heard justified the finding of the trial court that it was not sufficient to warrant the issuance of the writ [Jaquith v. Justice's Court (1926)77 Cal. App. 542, 548, 247 P. 224 ; see also W.A. Rose Co. v. Municipal Court (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 67, 74, 1 Cal. Rptr. 49 ; Ertman v. Municipal Court (1945) 68 Cal. App. 2d 143, 149, 155 P.2d 908 (on appeal from decision of trial court either granting or denying the writ of prohibition, its determination will not be disturbed in the absence of a showing of abuse of discretion)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
F. Procedure for Obtaining Writ

31-358 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 358.91

§ 358.91 Enforcement of Writ

[1] Special Statutory Procedure

When a peremptory writ of mandate or prohibition has been issued and directed to any inferior tribunal, corporation, board, or person, if it appears to the court that any member of such tribunal, corporation, board, or such person on whom the writ has been personally served, has, without just excuse, refused or neglected to obey the writ, then the court may, on motion, impose a fine not exceeding $1,000. In case of persistence in a refusal of obedience, the court may order the party to be imprisoned until the writ is obeyed, and it may make any orders necessary and proper for the complete enforcement of the writ [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1097, 1105]. Thus, the remedy in cases of refusal or neglect to obey a peremptory writ is in the nature of sanctions for contempt [Carroll v. Civil Service Commission (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 727, 733, 90 Cal. Rptr. 128 (mandate proceeding)].

For a form of order to show cause for noncompliance with a peremptory writ, see § 358.151.

[2] Contempt Proceeding

It would also be possible to enforce a peremptory writ of prohibition through a contempt proceeding since the failure to obey such a writ would constitute the disobedience of a lawful order or process of the court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1209(a)(5)]. For discussion and forms concerning contempt proceedings, see Ch. 135, Contempt .

§ 358.107 Decisions

[1] Combination of Mandate With Prohibition for Complete Relief

Single writ as not always granting relief required; writ of prohibition as capable of issuing to prevent lower court from acting in excess of its jurisdiction and writ of mandate as issuing to compel mandatory act. W.A. Rose Co. v. Municipal Court (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 67, 75, 1 Cal. Rptr. 49

[2] Defenses

[a] Adequacy of Legal Remedy

[i] In General

There is an adequate remedy at law when statute specifically provides for appeal. Nguyen v. Superior Court (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 1006, 1009-1010, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 802

Relief by petition for mandate as available when party had no adequate remedy at law when trial court failed to rule on evidentiary objections before denying summary judgment motion. Vineyard Springs Estates, LLC v. Superior Court (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 633, 643, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 587

Relief by extraordinary writ as available when legal remedy inadequate due to specter of expensive trial and ultimate reversal. City of Glendale v. Superior Court (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 1768, 1776, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305

Requirement of inadequacy of legal remedy as relaxed when issue raised in writ petition is of widespread public importance. City of Glendale v. Superior Court (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 1768, 1776, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305

In proceeding for writ to prevent deposition of opposing counsel prior to hearing on issue of good faith settlement, availability of right to challenge trial court's finding on good faith of settlement as not adequate remedy, because damage done by improperly allowing such discovery cannot readily be cured. Spectra-Physics, Inc. v. Superior Court (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 1487, 1493, 244 Cal. Rptr. 258

Mandate as not applicable to review decision of Board of Control because adequate legal remedy of action at law exists after rejection of claim by Board. Teresi v. State of California (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 239, 245, 225 Cal. Rptr. 517

[ii] Appeal

Aggrieved party as allowed to bypass appellate process and pursue extraordinary relief if remedy by appeal is inadequate. California Trial Lawyers Assn. v. Superior Court (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 575, 578-579, 231 Cal. Rptr. 725

Review by mandate of declaratory relief decision affecting rights of multiple parties as unwarranted when petition for mandate is brought by only one affected individual, appellate remedy appears to be adequate, and claims of others would remain for piecemeal determination after issue was determined as to petitioner. Augustyn v. Superior Court (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1221, 1225-1226, 231 Cal. Rptr. 298

Although injunctions are specifically made appealable under former Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(f) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(6)), mandamus as available to review orders relating to preliminary injunctions when appeal is not plain, speedy, and adequate. County of Butte v. Superior Court (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 693, 697, 222 Cal. Rptr. 429

Party as not entitled to review by extraordinary writ after waiving right to review by appeal. McConnell v. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc. (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 480, 492 n.5, 222 Cal. Rptr. 228

[iii] Damages

Court as not abusing discretion in granting peremptory writ of mandate when effect of party's unlawful action could not be calculated with reasonable economic certainty so that damage remedy at law was inadequate. San Joaquin County Employees Ass'n v. City of Stockton (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 813, 820, 207 Cal. Rptr. 876

Exception to rule that claim for money damages is adequate legal remedy precluding writ of mandamus as existing when obligation to pay such money rests on governing boards and depends on interpretation of statute or ordinance. California Teachers' Assn. v. Governing Board (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 735, 747, 193 Cal. Rptr. 650

[iv] Enforcement of Contract

Civil action to enforce contract as normally adequate remedy that precludes availability of mandate. ABI, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 669, 687-688, 200 Cal. Rptr. 563

[v] Failure to Exhaust Administrative Remedies

Exception to exhaustion requirement when administrative remedy inadequate as applying when petitioner was not given proper notice of right to administrative hearing, ruling in administrative hearing was foregone conclusion, and agency did not respond to petitioner's request for hearing. Haller v. Burbank Community Hospital Foundation (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 650, 657-658, 197 Cal. Rptr. 45

As general rule, prior to seeking judicial relief from erroneous assessment, taxpayer as required to exhaust remedies before administrative body empowered initially to correct error, but rule as having no application to proceeding in mandate seeking increase in assessments of other property owners rather than reduction of plaintiffs' assessments since there are no administrative remedies available. TRIM, Inc. v. County of Monterey (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 539, 544, 150 Cal. Rptr. 351

Rule that party must exhaust administrative remedies prior to seeking relief in courts as inapplicable when administrative remedy not available or inadequate. Diaz v. Quitoriano (1969) 268 Cal. App. 2d 807, 812, 74 Cal. Rptr. 358

[b] Financial Distress

Financial distress as no defense to issuance of writ of mandate; thus, health care department may not ignore duty to act because it foresees purported financial difficulties on horizon. California Assn. of Health Facilities v. Kizer (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 1109, 1114-1115, 224 Cal. Rptr. 247

[c] Laches

Petition for mandate as untimely if, under circumstances of case, it is not filed in reasonable time and no statute of limitation governs filing. In re Twighla T. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 799, 802-803, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 752

[d] Mootness

[i] Generally

Writ of mandate as not proper when facts arise after petition filed that prevent writ from serving any useful purpose. Bruce v. Gregory (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 666, 671, 56 Cal. Rptr. 265, 423 P.2d 193

Petition for writ of mandate as moot when respondent has complied with petitioner's demands after issuance of alternative writ. Bruce v. Gregory (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 666, 671, 56 Cal. Rptr. 265, 423 P.2d 193 ; Environmental Protection Information Center, Inc. v. State Bd. of Forestry (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 27, 32, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 344

Appeal from denial of petition for writ of mandate as dismissed when original justiciable controversy had become moot. Environmental Coalition of Orange County, Inc. v. Local Agency Formation Com. (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 164, 170, 167 Cal. Rptr. 735

Writ of mandate not proper when all contentions raised in petition had already been raised and decided in appeal arising out of same litigation. County of Sacramento v. Superior Court (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 315, 316, 79 Cal. Rptr. 139

[ii] Public Interest

Mandate proceedings concerning election procedures as properly reviewable by appellate courts, even though election in question has already taken place and issuance of writ would be meaningless remedy when issues raised are of general public interest and likely to occur in future elections in a manner evasive of timely appellate review. Gebert v. Patterson (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 868, 872, 231 Cal. Rptr. 150

Purity of elections and full disclosure of contributions and expenditures are matters of public interest for purposes of determining whether matter is moot. Californians for Fair Representation--No on 77 v. Superior Court (2006) 138

Event that would normally render action moot as not depriving court of discretion to resolve matter of continuing public interest. Okuda v. Superior Court (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 135, 137 n.1, 192 Cal. Rptr. 388

Mandate proceeding as not moot when public interest in orderly administration of justice requires determination of issues on the merits. Montgomery v. Superior Court (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 657, 665, 121 Cal. Rptr. 44

[e] No Beneficial Interest

Under public interest exception, labor union had standing to sue regarding enforcement of administrative regulations governing logging plan. Environmental Protection and Information Center v. California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 459, 479-480, 80 Cal. Rptr. 3d 28, 187 P.3d 888

Member of medical examining board as lacking beneficial interest in proceedings challenging actions of board on which he or she sits. Carsten v. Psychology Examining Com. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 793, 795-797, 166 Cal. Rptr. 844, 614 P.2d 276

No beneficial interest when relevant statute did not create standing to promote petitioner's commercial or competitive interests. Regency Outdoor Advertising, Inc. v. City of West Hollywood (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 825, 829, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 287

Contractor and taxpayer as having public interest to file petition challenging school district's failure to use competitive bidding procedure when petition sought to protect public fisc. Marshall v. Pasadena Unified School District (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 1241, 1252, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 344

In negligence action by named insured vehicle owner against permissive driver, plaintiff as not having requisite beneficial interest for issuance of writ to remove attorney who was provided by insurer to defendant as potential insured; right to insurer-provided independent attorney as belonging to insured, not insured's adversary. McGee v. Superior Court (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 221, 228, 221 Cal. Rptr. 421

Surety of defendant as having beneficial interest in proceedings and thus as having standing to sue. Bakkebo v. Municipal Court (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 229, 233-234, 177 Cal. Rptr. 239

[f] Pendency of Same Action Elsewhere

Writ of mandate as denied if similar petition between same parties on same matter already pending before another court; pendency of another action as not defense unless it is between same parties for same cause of action. Perry v. Jordan (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 87, 90, 207 P. 2d 47

[g] Statute of Limitations

Nature of right asserted in mandate proceeding as determining applicable statute of limitations and period of limitation. Green v. Obledo (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 126, 140-141 n.10, 172 Cal. Rptr. 206, 624 P.2d 256 ; Allen v. Humboldt County Board of Supervisors (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 877, 884, 34 Cal. Rptr. 232

Statute of limitations in mandate proceeding as beginning to run when petitioner's right first accrues. Monroe v. Trustees of the California State Colleges (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 399, 405, 99 Cal. Rptr. 129, 491 P.2d 1105

[3] Evidence

In traditional mandamus review of quasi-legislative action by agency, evidence not contained in administrative record is not admissible to show that quasi-legislative administrative decision was prejudicial abuse of discretion; proposed "all relevant factors" exception would place unworkable qualification on general rule of admissibility. Western States Petroleum Assn. v. Superior Court (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 559, 567, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 139, 888 P. 2d 1268

Extra-record evidence is generally inadmissible in traditional mandamus actions challenging quasi-legislative administrative decisions, though extra-record evidence may be admitted in traditional mandamus actions challenging ministerial or informal administrative actions. Golden Drugs Co. v. Maxwell-Jolly (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 1455, 1468-1469, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 446

Extra-record evidence is not admissible in traditional mandamus actions challenging quasi-legislative administrative decisions, except in traditional mandamus actions challenging ministerial or informal administrative actions if the facts are in dispute. SN Sands Corp. v. City & County of San Francisco (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 185, 194, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 885

Extra-record evidence may not be admitted to contradict the evidence the administrative agency relied on in making a quasi-legislative decision or to raise a question regarding the wisdom of that decision. Western States Petroleum Assn. v. South Coast Air Quality (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 1012, 1024-1025, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 354

Court entertaining original proceeding for writ of mandate as properly considering all relevant evidence, including facts not existing until after petition for writ was filed. Cooke v. Superior Court (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 401, 407, 261 Cal. Rptr. 706

When answer of defendant in mandate proceeding raises only questions of law, taking of testimony by trial court as not required. Ellerbroek v. Saddleback Valley Unified School Dist. (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 348, 35/1-/283, 177 Cal. Rptr. 910

Party seeking writ of mandate to compel performance of act as having burden of proving that official body that fails to perform act has thus violated its duty toward him or her by denying him or her clear and present right. Fair v. Fountain Valley School Dist. (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 180, 186, 153 Cal. Rptr. 56 (burden not sustained)

Party seeking writ of mandate to correct abuse of discretion as required to make some showing that body invested with discretion has acted arbitrarily, capriciously, fraudulently, or without due regard for his or her rights and that action was prejudicial to him or her. Fair v. Fountain Valley School Dist. (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 180, 187, 153 Cal. Rptr. 56 (showing not made)

Factual issues presented in mandate proceeding as normally resolved by introduction of evidence according to rules governing ordinary civil trials; factual issues as also subject to being resolved by evidence in written declarations that parties stipulate court may consider. Fair v. Fountain Valley School Dist. (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 180, 188 n.6, 153 Cal. Rptr. 56

[4] Examples of Uses of Mandate

[a] To Compel Action by Nongovernmental Party

[i] Corporations

Mandate as proper proceeding by which stockholder can compel corporation to permit inspection of books and corporate property; when right given by statute, unless statute imposes restrictions then such right is absolute regardless of purposes or motives of stockholder or existence of good cause. Hobbs v. Tom Reed Gold Min. Co. (1913) 164 Cal. 497, 502, 129 P. 781 ; Johnson v. Langdon (1902) 135 Cal. 624, 625-626, 67 P. 1050

Mandate as proper proceeding to enforce plain rights of stockholders or members ofcorporations in absence of any other adequate remedy. Miller v. Imperial Water Co. No. 8 (1909) 156 Cal. 27, 29, 103 P. 227

[ii] Labor Unions

Mandate as proper proceeding to compel local labor union to admit person to membership. Thorman v. Intl. Alliance etc. Employees (1958) 49 Cal. 2d 629, 631, 634, 320 P.2d 494 (overruled on other grounds in Consolidated Theatres, Inc. v. Theatrical Stage Employees Union (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 713, 721 n.8, 73 Cal. Rptr. 213, 447 P.2d 325)

Writ of mandate as proper to compel labor union either to reinstate suspended member or to give member full and fair hearing. Cason v. Glass Bottle Blowers Asso. (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 134, 140, 147, 231 P.2d 6

Writ of mandate as proper to compel reinstatement to membership in labor union of one who has been illegally expelled. Smetherham v. Laundry Workers' Union (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 131, 135, 111 P.2d 948

[iii] Other Associations

Writ of mandate as proper to compel admission of physician to membership on medical staff of hospital maintained by local hospital district. Rosner v. Eden Township Hospital Dist. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 592, 599, 25 Cal. Rptr. 551, 375 P.2d 431

Writ of mandate as proper to compel fraternal society to reinstate person to membership. Taboada v. Sociedad Espanola etc. (1923) 191 Cal. 187, 194, 215 P. 673

Mandate as proper action to compel hearing that organization improperly refused to hold in making membership decision adverse to petitioner. Haller v. Burbank Community Hospital Foundation (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 650, 657-659, 197 Cal. Rptr. 45

Mandate as proper proceeding by which to compel medical association to restore physician to membership. Bernstein v. Alameda etc. Med. Assn. (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 241, 243, 254, 293 P.2d 862

[b] To Compel Action by Public Agency or Official

Mandate available where one public entity seeks to force another to release funds in accordance with a statutory duty. City of Dinuba v. County of Tulare (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 859, 868, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 614, 161 P.3d 1168

Writ of mandate as proper to require public official to enforce statute that official believes is unconstitutional, but that judiciary has not determined is unconstitutional. Lockyer v. City and County of San Francisco (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 1055, 1081,17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 225, 95 P.3d 459

[ii] Appeal

Mandate as appropriate to compel appellate court to accept appeal from order of lower trial court, which it erroneously refused to entertain. Newman v. Superior Court (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 620, 621, 63 Cal. Rptr. 284, 432 P.2d 972 (appeal from municipal court to appellate department of superior court)

[iii] Application of Proper Law

Writ of mandate as proper to direct trial court to apply proper law. Hurtado v. Superior Court (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 574, 579, 114 Cal. Rptr. 106, 522 P.2d 666

[iv] Assumption of Jurisdiction

Writ of mandate as proper to compel court to assume or exercise jurisdiction when it has jurisdiction and has refused to proceed on ground of lack of jurisdiction. Wisely v. Superior Court (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 267, 270, 220 Cal. Rptr. 893

[v] Contempt Proceeding

Mandate as proper to compel trial court to entertain contempt proceedings when applicant has clear right and no other specific and adequate remedy to compel compliance with prior court judgments, and trial court dismisses contempt proceeding on lack of jurisdiction. Butler v. Butler (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 132, 136, 62 Cal. Rptr. 825

[vi] Cross Complaint

Writ of mandate as proper to compel court to permit filing of cross complaint if denial of defendant's motion for leave to file cross complaint was abuse of discretion. Foot's Transfer & Storage Co. v. Superior Court (1980) 114 Cal. App. 3d 897, 901-902, 171 Cal. Rptr. 1

[vii] Demurrer

Discretionary writ review of an order overruling a demurrer is appropriate where the issue is a matter of public importance and requires immediate resolution. San Bernardino Associated Governments v. Superior Court (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 1106, 1113, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 293

Mandamus is available to prevent needless and expensive trial followed by reversal when demurrer sustained without leave to amend with respect to fewer than all causes of action and it appears the trial court deprived a party of the opportunity to plead cause of action. Campbell v. Superior Court (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 1308, 1314-1315, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 385

Writ of mandate as proper to direct trial court to overrule defendant's demurrer to complaint when plaintiff unable to appeal because of one final judgment rule, and when refusal to consider petition would result in piecemeal disposition of case. Wallis v. Superior Court (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 1109, 1114 n.1, 207 Cal. Rptr. 123

Writ of mandate as proper to direct respondent court to vacate order sustaining demurrer based on petitioner's lack of standing when standing did exist. Pearce v. Superior Court (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 1058, 1068, 197 Cal. Rptr. 238 (shareholder's derivative action)

Mandate as proper to review ruling on demurrer when court's discretion could be exercised in only one way. Outboard Marine Corp. v. Superior Court (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 30, 38, 124 Cal. Rptr. 852

Writ of mandate as proper to compel court to vacate order sustaining demurrers to several causes of action when court's ruling was erroneous and if case went to trial there would be eventual appeal and reversal on basis of such error. U.S. Financial v. Sullivan (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 5, 12, 112 Cal. Rptr. 18

[viii] Discovery

Although writ review of discovery rulings is generally disfavored, interlocutory review by writ is the only adequate remedy when a court compels the disclosure of documents or information that may be subject to a privilege, because once privileged matter has been disclosed there is no way to undo the harm which consists in the very disclosure. Ombudsman Services of Northern California v. Superior Court (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 1233, 1241, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 456

Appellate courts rarely review discovery orders by way of extraordinary writ, except if appellate remedies are inadequate or if discretionary review is necessary to answer question of first impression of general importance to trial courts and legal profession. Toshiba America Electronic Components, Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 762, 76/1-/268, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 532

Mandamus is available to review discovery order when it presents a matter of first impression and lack of review would result in a new, unduly burdensome discovery tactic. Catanese v. Superior Court (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1159, 1163-1164, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 280

Writ of mandate as proper to compel dismissal when there is a failure to bring action to trial within period prescribed in Code Civil Procedure. J.C. Penney Co. v. Superior Court (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 666, 669, 343 P.2d 919

[x] Distribution of Estate

Mandate as appropriate to direct probate court to distribute estate in accordance with applicable statute. Mannheim v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 678, 685-686, 91 Cal. Rptr. 585, 478 P.2d 17

[xi] Opening Court Records

Writ of mandate as proper remedy to review failure or refusal of court to open court records to public view. Copley Press, Inc. v. Superior Court (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 106, 108, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841

[xii] Proceed With Stayed Action

Writ of mandate as proper to compel court to proceed with action when order has been entered staying proceedings. Bailey v. Fosca Oil Co., Ltd. (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 307, 308, 27 Cal. Rptr. 454

[xiii] Summary Judgment

Writ of mandate as proper to review and correct erroneous partial summary judgment, since partial summary judgment is not appealable order. Mason v. Superior Court (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 989, 994, 210 Cal. Rptr. 63

Writ of mandate as properly issued to vacate order granting partial summary judgment when order erroneously bars substantial portion of petitioner's case from being tried on merits. Bundren v. Superior Court (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 784, 787 n.1, 193 Cal. Rptr. 671 Mandate as proper when party legally entitled to judgment moved for summary judgment and trial court denied motion. Aetna Casualty & Surety Co. v. Superior Court (1980) 114 Cal. App. 3d 49, 54-55, 170 Cal. Rptr. 527

Mandate proper to compel trial court to reverse denial of summary judgment when at issue was whether informer's communication to enforcement agency concerning possible perpetration of tax fraud fell within scope of absolute privilege under former Civ. Code § 47(2) (now see Civ. Code § 47(b)). Tiedemann v. Superior Court (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 918, 923-924, 148 Cal. Rptr. 242

Writ of mandate as proper to compel trial court to grant motion for summary judgment when affidavits in support of moving party are sufficient to sustain judgment in moving party's favor and opponent does not by counter-affidavit show facts sufficient to present triable issue of fact. Roman Catholic Archbishop v. Superior Court (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 405, 410, 93 Cal. Rptr. 338

Writ of mandate as proper to correct abuse of discretion in denial of motion for summary judgment. Roman Catholic Archbishop v. Superior Court (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 405, 410-412, 93 Cal. Rptr. 338

Granting of summary judgment by way of writ of mandate as used sparingly, with doubts resolved in favor of denial of review; affidavits of moving party as required to be strictly construed and those of opponent liberally construed. Roman Catholic Archbishop v. Superior Court (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 405, 410-411, 93 Cal. Rptr. 338

[xiv] Vacate Discretionary Order

Mandate as not issuing to control judicial discretion unless discretion is abused or may be exercised only one way. Gertner v. Superior Court (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 927, 930, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 47

Writ of mandate as proper to compel court to vacate discretionary order when no rational basis in record supports decision. Lyle v. Superior Court (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 470, 479, 175 Cal. Rptr. 918

[xv] Venue

Writ of mandate as appropriate to compel court to vacate order denying motion for change of venue and enter new order granting motion. State of California v. Superior Court (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 328, 330, 238 Cal. Rptr. 315

[5] Examples of Uses of Prohibition

Writ of prohibition issues when discovery order violates a privilege. Sav-On Drugs, Inc. v. Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 1, 5, 123 Cal. Rptr. 283, 538 P.2d 739

Writ of prohibition issues when court is proceeding to act on basis of void order. Greene v. Superior Court (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 403, 406, 10 Cal. Rptr. 817, 359 P.2d 249

Writ of prohibition issues when action has not been brought to trial within five-year period prescribed by former Code Civ. Proc. § 583 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310). J.C. Penney Co. v. Superior Court (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 666, 669, 343 P.2d 919

Writ of prohibition issues when Agricultural Labor Relations Board acts in excess of its jurisdiction and petitioner has no other plain, speedy, and adequate remedy. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. v. Superior Court (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 688, 693, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 546

Writ of prohibition issues when second tribunal or court has obtained concurrent jurisdiction over same parties and same subject matter. Scott v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 76, 81, 293 P.2d 18 ; Maddern v. Superior Court (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 998, 1002, 99 Cal. Rptr. 832

Situations in which lack of jurisdiction exists and, therefore, in which prohibition properly issues. Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 288-290, 109 P.2d 942

Writ of prohibition issues when court is attempting to proceed in an action without presence of indispensable parties. Bank of California v. Superior Court (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 516, 522-523, 106 P.2d 879 ; Peabody Seating Co. v. Superior Court (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 537, 542, 20 Cal. Rptr. 792

Writ of prohibition issues when dismissal of an action is mandatory. River Farms, Inc. v. Superior Court (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 604, 609, 60 Cal. Rptr. 665

Writ of prohibition issues when summons has not been served and returned within three-year period prescribed by former Code Civ. Proc. § 581a (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210). Coates Capitol Corp. v. Superior Court (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 125, 126-127, 59 Cal. Rptr. 231

[6] Original Jurisdiction of Court of Appeal

If a trial court decides on its own motion to revisit its interim ruling in response to a suggestive Palma notice, that court must inform the parties of its intent to do so, and provide them with an opportunity to be heard. Brown, Winfield & Canzoneri, Inc. v. Superior Court (2010) 47 Cal. 4th 1233, 2010 Cal. LEXIS 588, 2-35

Issuance of alternative writ by appellate court as determining absence of another adequate remedy. Nathanson v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 355 ; Mannheim v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 678, 686, 91 Cal. Rptr. 585, 478 P.2d 17

Issuance of mandate by court of appeal as reviewable on petition for hearing to Supreme Court. Nathanson v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 355, 360, 115 Cal. Rptr. 783, 525 P.2d 687

Fact respondent fails to object to court of appeal exercising its original jurisdiction as factor in that court's decision to exercise its original jurisdiction. East Bay Mun. Util. Dist. v. Sindelar (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 910, 917, 94 Cal. Rptr. 431

Courts of appeal as possessing coequal jurisdiction with Supreme Court to administer extraordinary relief without regard to existence of appellate jurisdiction over pending lawsuit. Rivera v. Division of Industrial Welfare (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 576, 581, 71 Cal. Rptr. 739

[7] Original Jurisdiction of Supreme Court

[a] Effect of Issuing Alternative Writ

Issuance of alternative writ of mandate by Supreme Court as necessarily including determination that no adequate remedy exists in ordinary course of law and that case is proper for exercise of court's original jurisdiction. Mills v. Municipal Court (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 288, 297, 110 Cal. Rptr. 329, 515 P.2d 273

[b] If Original Jurisdiction Exercised

Supreme Court as exercising its original jurisdiction in mandate proceedings only in cases in which issues presented are of great public importance and require prompt resolution. Wenke v. Hitchcock (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 746, 750, 100 Cal. Rptr. 290, 493 P.2d 1154

[8] Parties Against Whom Mandate Will Lie

Writ of mandate as capable of issuing against county, city, other public body, or public officer. People ex rel. Younger v. County of El Dorado (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 480, 491, 96 Cal. Rptr. 553, 487 P.2d 1193

Writ of mandate as properly running against administrative agency and not individual members or staff personnel when agency's action sought. Memorial Hosp. of So. Cal. v. State Health Planning Council (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 167, 177, 104 Cal. Rptr. 492

When mandate is sought to compel act by lower tribunal, that court and not the trial judge as proper party respondent in petition. Pettie v. Superior Court (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 680, 682, 3 Cal. Rptr. 267

[9] Pleadings

[a] Answer

Verified return containing affirmative factual statement and declaration of counsel as procedurally sufficient. Department of Corrections v. Superior Court (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 245, 250, 182 Cal. Rptr. 294

Although uncontroverted matters in return to alternative writ accepted as true, such matters as required to be both relevant and allegations of ultimate fact, not conclusions. Most v. First Nat. Bank of San Diego (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 425, 432, 54 Cal. Rptr. 669

[b] Demurrer to Test Sufficiency of Petition

Allegation that petitioner for writ of mandate "has exhausted his administrative remedies" as sufficient allegation to withstand demurrer to petition for writ of mandate. Wong v. Regents of University of California (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 823, 829, 93 Cal. Rptr. 502

[10] Procedural Issues

[a] Appeals

Postjudgment order relating to enforcement of final judgment granting peremptory relief as constituting appealable order, although minute order is technically nonappealable. Stoneham v. Rushen (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 302, 306 n.1, 203 Cal. Rptr. 20

[b] Continuing Jurisdiction After Peremptory Writ

Trial court as retaining inherent power to make any orders necessary and proper for complete enforcement of peremptory writ it had issued; trial court as having jurisdiction to determine adequacy of regulations promulgated in compliance with writ. Stoneham v. Rushen (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 302, 310-311, 203 Cal. Rptr. 20

Court as able to reserve jurisdiction to make further award of damages when it anticipates that there will be delay in compliance with peremptory writ. Gonzales v. International Asso. of Machinists (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 817, 820, 29 Cal. Rptr. 190

[c] Costs

Award of sanctions against respondent under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 as proper when respondent fails to comply with peremptory writ of prohibition; fact that writ of prohibition is being appealed as not excusing respondent's failure to comply. Union Pacific R.R. Co. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 138, 157-158, 260 Cal. Rptr. 565, 776 P.2d 267

Sanctions for frivolous and bad faith maintenance of mandate proceeding as not warranted even though petition is devoid of merit, when evidence fails to show that petition was filed purely to spite counsel or for other improper purpose. McGee v. Superior Court (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 221, 229, 221 Cal. Rptr. 421

Successful petitioner for writ of mandate as precluded from contending trial court ought to have made award of costs when petitioner failed to apply for an award of costs after granting of peremptory writ and failed to prepare findings of fact and conclusions of law as requested by trial court. Ellis v. City Council (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 490, 501, 35 Cal. Rptr. 317

Evidence outside the administrative record as admissible in mandamus proceeding against administrative agency. Bright Development v. City of Tracy (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 783, 795, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 618

[e] Filing Against Clerk in Superior Court

Proceeding for writ of mandate in superior court as capable of being filed against clerk of that court but not against court itself. Miller v. Hamm (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 860, 865 n.3, 88 Cal. Rptr. 538

[f] Hearing

Judge hearing mandate proceeding as properly considering, in deciding whether to issue peremptory writ, all relevant evidence, including facts not existing until after petition filed, because mandamus is action in which equitable principles apply. Bruce v. Gregory (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 666, 670-671, 56 Cal. Rptr. 265, 423 P.2d 193

Court as required in mandate proceeding to apprise itself of facts that arise after pleading that render dispute moot or make remedy useless. Bruce v. Gregory (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 666, 671, 56 Cal. Rptr. 265, 423 P.2d 193

In absence of return, all proper allegations of petition for writ of mandate as deemed admitted and only legal issues as subject to decision. Coppinger v. Superior Court (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 883, 885, 185 Cal. Rptr. 24

Hearing under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1088, 1094 as hearing to try questions of law and not issues of fact when there are only the admitted factual allegations contained in petition. Rodriguez v. Municipal Court (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 521, 526, 102 Cal. Rptr. 45

Petitioner as having right to countervail question of fact raised in answer to petition by proof either in direct denial or by way of avoidance; question of fact in mandate proceeding heard in same manner as in any other trial. Lotus Car Ltd. v. Municipal Court (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 264, 268, 69 Cal. Rptr. 384

Court in mandate proceeding as permitted to hear the matter on the papers filed when only a question of law is raised. Lotus Car Ltd. v. Municipal Court (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 264, 267, 69 Cal. Rptr. 384

[g] Judgment Required

Proceeding for mandate as terminated by a judgment, not by a minute order signed by the clerk. Hadley v. Superior Court (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 389, 394, 105 Cal. Rptr. 500

[h] Late Filing

Court of appeal as authorized to grant relief under equitable principles or under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (relief from default) for late filing of petition for writ of mandate to compel trial court to quash summons (see Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(c), requiring petition to be filed within 10 days after denial of motion to quash). Quattrone v. Superior Court (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 296, 301, 118 Cal. Rptr. 548

[i] Relation of Peremptory to Alternative Writ

General rule as being that peremptory writ will not issue when it legally cannot follow the directions set forth in alternative writ; exception to rule as being that when principles of justice and fairness may require its issuance, writ may issue in appropriate case despite provisions of alternative writ. Johnson v. Fontana County F.P. Dist. (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 380, 391-392, 101 P.2d 1092

Peremptory writ that departs from alternative writ as proper when petition not entitled to complete relief sought and peremptory writ more limited in scope than alternative writ. Olney v. Municipal Court (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 455, 459 n.3, 184 Cal. Rptr. 78

[j] Stay Pending Appeal

Mandatory peremptory writ as stayed by notice of appeal; prohibitory peremptory writ as not stayed by notice of appeal; test for whether writ mandatory or peremptory as whether writ was designed to preserve status quo between parties. Union Pacific R.R. Co. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 138, 158, 260 Cal. Rptr. 565, 776 P.2d 267

[k] Summary Denial

Court of appeal's summary denial of defendants' earlier petition for writ of supersedeas seeking a stay pending appeal was not law of the case. Varian Medical Systems, Inc. v. Delfino (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 180, 200-201, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 298

Summary denial of petition for writ of mandate or prohibition as not precedent, not res judicata, and not law of the case, regardless of whether denial is intended to be on merits or is based on some other ground. Kowis v. Howard (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 888, 899, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 728, 838 P.2d 250 (rejecting "sole possible ground" exception); People v. Medina (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 484, 490-492, 99 Cal. Rptr. 630, 492 P.2d 686 (prohibition proceeding); Hagan v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 767, 770, 22 Cal. Rptr. 206, 371 P.2d 982 (mandate proceeding); De Bottari v. Melendez (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 910, 914 n.3, 119 Cal. Rptr. 256 (mandate proceeding)

Court as allowed to deny ex parte petition for alternative writ of mandate out of hand when it appears from face of petition that peremptory writ will not be issued; court as allowed to do so even though defendant has not appeared by answer or demurrer; denial must not, however, constitute abuse of discretion. Kingston v. Dept. of Motor Vehicles (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 549, 552, 76 Cal. Rptr. 614

Motion for summary judgment as not applicable to mandate proceeding. Loveland v. City of Oakland (1945) 69 Cal. App. 2d 399, 401-402, 159 P.2d 70

[m] Time to Respond

Judgment directing issuance of writ of mandate reversed when trial court lacked any discretion to exercise because it issued writ without affording respondent five days to file points and authorities in opposition to petition as required by Code Civ.Proc. § 1107. City of Culver City v. State Bd. of Equalization (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 404, 412, 105 Cal. Rptr. 602

[11] Requirements for Issuance of Writ of Mandate

[a] Beneficial Interest of Petitioner

Clear, present, and beneficial right of petitioner as necessary prerequisite to issuance of writ of mandate. Santa Clara County Counsel Attys. Assn. v. Woodside (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 525, 539-540, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617, 869 P.2d 1142

No beneficial interest when relevant statute did not create standing to promote petitioner's commercial or competitive interests. Regency Outdoor Advertising, Inc. v. City of West Hollywood (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 825, 829, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 287

A beneficial interest means the petitioner has a special interest over and above the interest of the public at large. This is equivalent to the federal injury in fact test, which requires a party to prove by a preponderance of the evidence that it has suffered an invasion of a legally protected interest that is (a) concrete and particularized, and (b) actual or imminent, not conjectural or hypothetical. California Association for Health Services at Home v. State Department of Health Services (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 696, 706-707, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 102

Standing to seek a writ of mandate ordinarily requires that a party be beneficially interested, i.e., have some special interest to be served or some particular right to be preserved or protected over and above the interest held in common with the public at large. Savient Pharmaceuticals, Inc. v. Department of Health (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 1457, 1465, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 689

Member of government entity does not necessarily have a beneficial interest in the operation of that entity. Holbrook v. City of Santa Monica (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 1242, 1251-1252, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 181

To have standing to seek a writ of mandate, a party must be beneficially interested, i.e., have some special interest to be served or some particular right to be preserved or protected over and above the interest held in common with the public at large. Syngenta Crop Protection, Inc. v. Helliker (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 1135, 1181, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 191

An advisory committee to a governmental entity, such as a local assessment committee appointed by a county, does not have a sufficient beneficial interest independent of the governmental entity to seek mandate on its own behalf. Laidlaw Environmental Services, Inc. Local Assessment Committee v. Kern County (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 346, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 666

Persons permitted by statute and administrative regulations to take part in administrative proceedings and who appeared and presented oral and written evidence at original hearing as persons "beneficially interested" within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 1086. Memorial Hosp. of So. Cal. v. State Health Planning Council (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 167, 178-179, 104 Cal. Rptr. 492

[b] Duty of Respondent

Clear, present, and usually ministerial duty on the part of respondent as necessary prerequisite to issuance of writ of mandate. Santa Clara County Counsel Attys. Assn. v. Woodside (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 525, 539, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617, 869 P.2d 1142

Plaintiff's failure to allege agency had duty to act in certain way was fatal to cause of action for mandate. Galbiso v. Orosi Public Utility Dist. (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 652, 673-674, 107 Cal. Rptr. 3d 36

Because city had no clear, present and ministerial duty to provide credit for private open space, trial court erred when it granted writ of mandate. Branciforte Heights, LLC v. City of Santa Cruz (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 914, 933-939, 42

Cal. Rptr. 3d 96

Fiscal difficulty as not generally applicable excuse from performance of mandatory official duty. King v. Martin (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 791, 796, 98 Cal. Rptr. 711

Writ of mandate as denied when public officer named as respondent is not the officer whose duty is involved. Wenzler v. Municipal Court (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 128, 132, 45 Cal. Rptr. 54

[12] Requirements for Issuance of Writ of Prohibition

[a] Judicial Action Requirement

Writ of prohibition as proper to restrain enforcement of order compelling arbitration, but not to restrain commencement of arbitration, as arbitrator's act is not judicial action subject to such writ. International Film Investors v. Arbitration Tribunal of Directors Guild (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 699, 704, 199 Cal. Rptr. 690

[13] Specific Situations in Which Mandate Not Appropriate

[a] To Compel Action Outside Court's Jurisdiction

Writ of mandate purporting to hold all of specific type of property exempt from local rent control as beyond court's jurisdiction when action was brought by single plaintiff and was not declaratory relief or class action. Bayside Manor, Inc. v. City of Santa Monica (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 51, 53, 190 Cal. Rptr. 76

Mandate as not proper to compel municipal court to process parking violations since filing of complaint is necessary to invoke municipal court's jurisdiction in matters involving parking violations. City of San Diego v. Municipal Court (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 775, 778, 162 Cal. Rptr. 420

Mandate as not proper to compel action that is not within court's jurisdiction. Franklin v. Municipal Court (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 884, 898, 103 Cal. Rptr. 354

Trial court as required as matter of law to deny petition to vacate arbitration award when none of grounds under Code Civ. Proc. § 1286.2 are alleged; granting of petition in such a case as an act in excess of court's jurisdiction. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 568, 573, 60 Cal. Rptr. 535

[b] To Compel Entry of Judgment on Ambiguous Stipulation

Writ of mandate as not lying to compel clerk or judge to enter judgment on ambiguous stipulation that requires clerk or judge to exercise legal discretion as to meaning of stipulation. Glende Motor Co. v. Superior Court (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 389, 395, 205 Cal. Rptr. 682

[c] To Compel Legislative Act

Mandate as not proper to compel legislative act of establishing speed limits by local jurisdiction. Hutchinson v. City of Sacramento (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 791, 796, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 779

Rescinding of resolution by board of supervisors as legislative act beyond court's power to command; writ of mandate commanding board to rescind resolution as violating doctrine of separation of powers. Eller Outdoor Advertising Co.

v. Board of Supervisors (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 76, 83, 152 Cal. Rptr. 358

[d] To Compel Performance of Act Law Does Not Enjoin

Mandamus as not lying to compel performance of act that law does not enjoin and that respondent has no present duty to perform. King v. Berkeley Unified School Dist. (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 1016, 1024, 152 Cal. Rptr. 782 (trial court properly refused to issue writ of mandate to compel school district to hire laid-off teacher subject to preferential employment rights under former Educ. Code § 13448, if position sought no longer existed)

[e] To Enforce Contractual Obligation Against Public Entity

Writ of mandate as not proper when there is no cause for reinstatement of public employee but merely claim for damages for breach of contract. Tevis v. City & County of San Francisco (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 190, 198, 272 P.2d 757

General rule that mandate not proper for enforcement of contractual obligation against public entity as relaxed in cases involving dispute as to proper construction of statute or ordinance defining or giving rise to exercise of official duty. Tevis v. City & County of San Francisco (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 190, 198, 272 P.2d 757 ; City of Culver City v. State Bd. of Equalization (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 404, 409, 105 Cal. Rptr. 602

Relief by writ of mandate against public body as not defeated by availability of specific performance for breach of contract if performance of public acts by public officials is sought. California Teachers Assn. v. Nielsen (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 25, 28-29, 149 Cal. Rptr. 728

Writ of mandate as not proper remedy to enforce contractual obligation against public entity because civil action is adequate and because mandamus enforces official duty, not contractual duty. Wenzler v. Municipal Court (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 128, 132, 45 Cal. Rptr. 54

[f] To Recover Money

Writ of mandate as not proper to recover money. Wenzler v. Municipal Court (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 128, 133, 45 Cal. Rptr. 54

[14] Specific Situations In Which Prohibition Not Appropriate

Prohibition as inappropriate when it stayed rent control board decisions decreasing rent during pendency of appeal because administrative mandamus was available in each particular case to stay execution of board's administrative action. Sterling v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 176, 186-187, 214 Cal. Rptr. 71

[15] Standard of Review

Review of quasi-legislative actions is limited to an inquiry into whether the action was arbitrary, capricious or entirely lacking in evidentiary support, and the petitioner has the burden of proof to show that the decision is unreasonable or invalid as a matter of law. California Correctional Peace Officers' Assn. v. California (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 1454, 1459-1460, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 566

In ordinary mandamus actions, the scope of review is limited, out of deference to the agency's authority and presumed expertise. The court may not reweigh the evidence or substitute its judgment for that of the agency. In general the inquiry is limited to whether the decision was arbitrary, capricious, or entirely lacking in evidentiary support. *Polster v. Sacramento County Office of Education (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 649, 2009 Cal. App. LEXIS 2048, 34

Whether agency action is entirely lacking in evidentiary support is not the same as a substantial evidence test. Golden Drugs Co. v. Maxwell-Jolly (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 1455, 1466, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 446

In traditional mandamus actions, an agency's action must be upheld upon review unless it constitutes an abuse of discretion. O.W.L. Foundation v. City of Rohnert Park (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 568, 585, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1

Judicial review of quasi-legislative decision under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 limited to examination of proceedings before agency to determine whether its actions have been arbitrary or capricious, entirely lacking in evidentiary support, or whether it failed to follow proper procedures or failed to give notice as required by law. SN Sands Corp. v. City & County of San Francisco (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 185, 191, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 885

In determining whether to uphold trial court's denial of writ of mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085, appellate court applies substantial evidence standard of review. American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees v. Metropolitan Water District of Southern California (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 247, 260-270, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 285

In reviewing trial court's ruling on writ of mandate, court of appeal considers whether findings and judgment are supported by substantial evidence. However, when facts are undisputed and issue turns on statutory interpretation, appellate review is de novo. Veguez v. Governing Board of Long Beach Unified School District (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 406, 414, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 526

On appeal following trial court's decision on petition for writ of mandate, reviewing court need only review record to determine whether trial court's findings are supported by substantial evidence. Armando D. v. State Department of Health Services (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 13, 15, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 66

In reviewing decision on petition for administrative mandamus, appellate court stands in same shoes as trial court, applying substantial evidence rule. Court does not reweigh evidence; it indulges all presumptions and resolves all conflicts in favor of agency's decision. California Department of Corr. v. State Pers. Bd. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1601, 1611, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 390

In traditional mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085, judicial review as limited to examination of proceedings before agency to determine whether its actions have been arbitrary, capricious, entirely lacking in evidentiary support, or whether it failed to follow proper procedures or to give notice as required by law. Taylor Bus Service, Inc. v. San Diego Bd. of Education (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1331, 1340, 241 Cal. Rptr. 379 ; Court House Plaza Co. v. City of Palo Alto (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 871, 880, 173 Cal. Rptr. 161 , cert. denied, 454 U.S. 1074, 102 S. Ct. 623, 70 L. Ed. 2d 607

In determining whether evidentiary support is present in traditional mandate proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085, applicable standard of review as being substantial evidence test; court as not permitted to reweigh evidence but as required to view evidence in light most favorable to agency's actions and to indulge all reasonable inferences in support of them; substantial evidence as defined as relevant evidence that reasonable mind might accept as adequate support for conclusion. Taylor Bus Service, Inc. v. San Diego Bd. of Education (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1331, 1340, 241 Cal. Rptr. 379

Scope of appellate court review of superior court judgment on petition for writ of mandate as limited to determination of whether evidence, viewed in light most favorable to respondent, sustains findings of trial court; any reasonable doubts as resolved in favor of findings of trial court. O'Toole v. Retirement Board (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 600, 602, 188 Cal. Rptr. 853

In determining whether court abused its discretion, reviewing court governed by same principles concerning scope of review as in appeal. Winton v. Municipal Court (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 228, 237, 121 Cal. Rptr. 561

When superior court reviews municipal court proceedings and does not itself take evidence or make independent factual determination, scope of review of court of appeal as coextensive with that of superior court since only pure question of law involved. Winton v. Municipal Court (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 228, 237, 121 Cal. Rptr. 561

[16] Substitution of Mandate for Other Remedies

[a] Appeal

Petition for mandate proper when appeal from final judgment would undermine party's sovereign immunity. Big Valley Band of Pomo Indians v. Superior Court (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 1185, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 357

Purported appeal from order sustaining demurrer as properly treated as petition for writ of mandate when question of public importance and statewide concern is presented, parties have fully briefed propriety of trial court's ruling, and respondent did not challenge appealability of order. Mounger v. Gates (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1248, 1254, 239 Cal. Rptr. 18

Court as having power to treat improvident appeal as petition for mandate when all conditions necessary for issuing writ of mandate are present and refusal to decide issues raised by appeal would result in unnecessarily dilatory and circuitous litigation. Southern Pacific Land Co. v. Westlake Farms, Inc. (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 807, 826, 233 Cal. Rptr. 794

Order granting summary judgment as not appealable when judgment never entered; however, plaintiff's appeal treated as petition for writ of mandate because Code Civ. Proc. § 437c provides that decision is reviewable by mandate, issues were fully briefed and argued, and no protest to appeal was made by defendants. Witchell v. De Korne (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 965, 969 n.1, 225 Cal. Rptr. 176 (abrogated on another ground by 1990 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 437c [see Stats. 1990, ch. 1561, § 1])

Appellate court as permitted to treat appeal from denial of motion for relief from judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 as application for writ of mandate if fundamental due process rights involved, even though time for appeal from order imposing discovery sanctions has expired. In re Marriage of Fuller (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1070, 1076, 210 Cal. Rptr. 73

Court of appeal as capable of treating record on appeal as petition for writ of mandate when parties so stipulated and circumstances are compelling enough to indicate propriety of such petition in the first instance. U. S. Financial v. Sullivan (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 5, 12, 112 Cal. Rptr. 18

Appeal from nonappealable interlocutory judgment as not capable of being construed by appellate court as petition for writ of prohibition or mandate when trial court not party to the action. People ex rel. Dept. of Public Works v. Rodoni (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 771, 775, 52 Cal. Rptr. 857

[b] Certiorari

Writ of mandate as more appropriate than writ of certiorari when court erroneously refuses to assume jurisdiction; appropriate writ granted when complete record before court. Morrison Drilling Co., Inc. v. Superior Court (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 740, 744, 25 Cal. Rptr. 682

[c] Declaratory Relief

Complaint for declaratory relief and petition for writ of mandate as frequently combined in single action. Taschner v. City Council (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 48, 56, 107 Cal. Rptr. 214 (disapproved on other grounds in Associated HomeBuilders etc., Inc. v. City of Livermore (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 582, 596 n.14, 135 Cal. Rptr. 41, 557 P.2d 473)

Mandate as an available alternative remedy to declaratory relief action. Leahey v. Department of Water & Power (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 281, 284, 285, 173 P.2d 69

[d] Prohibition

Mandate as issuing to prohibit official conduct when prohibition would not lie because threatened official act was not judicial but ministerial in nature. Sail'er Inn, Inc. v. Kirby (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 1, 7, 95 Cal. Rptr. 329, 485 P.2d 529

Mandate as capable of being substituted for prohibition when warranted by circumstances. Babb v. Superior Court (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 841, 850, 92 Cal. Rptr. 179, 479 P.2d 379 ; Powell v. Superior Court (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 704, 705, 312 P.2d 698

Writ of mandate as opposed to writ of prohibition proper when writ of prohibition uncalled for but when facts warrant positive relief. Williams v. Superior Court (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 666, 668, 38 Cal. Rptr. 291 ; Proctor & Gamble Co. v. Superior Court (1954) 124 Cal. App. 2d 157, 162, 268 P.2d 199

[17] Substitution of Other Remedies for Prohibition

[a] Certiorari

General rule as being that prohibition lies only to prevent and restrain commission of future judicial acts, not to undo or review action that has already been performed. Chase v. Superior Court (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 872, 878, 27 Cal. Rptr. 383 ; O'Brien v. Olson (1941) 42 Cal. App. 2d 449, 457, 109 P.2d 8

Writ of prohibition as not capable of being used to serve purpose of writ of certiorari for review and nullification of judicial act already performed. Duke v. Justice's Court (1940) 42 Cal. App. 2d 178, 179, 108 P.2d 707

Appellate court as capable of treating writ of prohibition that is insufficient for that purpose as application for writ of review when entire record of inferior tribunal, including evidence on which it acted, is presented. Donner Finance Co. v. Municipal Court (1938) 28 Cal. App. 2d 112, 115, 81 P.2d 1054

[b] Supersedeas

Appellate court as treating application for writ of prohibition as one for writ of supersedeas if appropriate. Rogers v. Superior Court (1910) 158 Cal. 467, 468-469, 111 P. 357

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

31-358 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 358.120

§ 358.120 Petitioner's Checklist

NOTE:
The following checklist is for use in a mandate or prohibition proceeding in the Supreme Court, a court of appeal, or a superior court; it is illustrative only.

[1] Facts to Be Ascertained

NOTE:
The following facts ordinarily will be within the knowledge of counsel representing petitioner.

1. Respondent and real party in interest.

NOTE:
The court, not an individual judge, is the proper party respondent to a petition for a writ of mandate seeking an order for the court to act [Beltone Electronics Corp. v. Superior Court (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 452, 454, 151 Cal. Rptr. 109]. Similarly, when a petitioner seeks to prohibit a tribunal's action by way of a writ of prohibition, the proper respondent is the tribunal as such, not the judge [Lois R. v. Superior Court (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 895, 903, 97 Cal. Rptr. 158].

a. Name and address of respondent.

b. Name and address of real party in interest if applicable.

2. Facts relating to cause of action.

a. In mandate proceeding.
(1) Type of act sought to be compelled.

(2) Remedies other than mandate that would be available, such as appeal, certiorari, a civil action, declaratory relief, or prohibition.

(3) Circumstances, if any, which would justify filing petition in appellate court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)].

b. In prohibition proceeding.

(1) Type of threatened judicial action sought to be restrained.

(2) Manner in which jurisdictional challenge was made in lower tribunal and ruling thereon.

(3) Remedies other than prohibition that might be available, such as appeal, certiorari, declaratory relief, or mandate.

(4) Circumstances, if any, that would justify filing petition in appellate court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)].

[2] Documents to Be Obtained

Obtain copies of all pleadings, affidavits, minutes, rulings, transcripts, or other documentary evidence necessary to make a complete record [see forms at § 358.130 and § 358.138].

If review is sought of a trial court ruling, copies of the order or judgment, all documents and exhibits, and a transcript must be attached to the petition. If a stay is requested, prepare an explanation of the reasons for its urgency and all relevant time constraints [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(b); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(c) (format for supporting documents)].

NOTE:
Clerk's fees for preparing copies of records, proceedings, or papers are set forth in Gov. Code §§ 26831-26837, court reporter's fees for preparation of transcripts are set forth in Gov. Code § 69950.

[3] Preliminary Determinations

1. In both mandate and prohibition proceedings.

a. Petitioner must be a party beneficially interested in the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1086, 1103].

b. Determine whether another remedy such as an appeal exists that is plain, speedy, and adequate.

NOTE:
It is critical to set forth and emphasize to the court that no plain, speedy, and adequate remedy exists [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1086, 1103(a)]. Many petitions are summarily denied because they lack this allegation entirely, or because the allegation is insufficient.

c. Determine proper court in which to file petition.

NOTE:

The petition is usually filed in the superior court of the county in which the lower tribunal, board, corporation, or officer is situated. The Supreme Court and courts of appeal also have original jurisdiction to issue the writ [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085(a), 1103(a)]; thus, the petition may be filed in any one of those courts. When filed in a court of appeal, it is filed in the court of the appellate district in which the lower tribunal, board, corporation, or officer is situated.

If the petition is filed in a reviewing court and might lawfully have been filed in a lower court in the first instance, it must set forth the circumstances that, in the opinion of the petitioner, render it proper that the writ should issue originally from the reviewing court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(1); see basic form of petition to appellate court at § 358.138]. Absent such a showing, the petition may be summarily denied or, if filed in the Supreme Court, transferred to a court of appeal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 10.1000].

2. In mandate proceeding.

a. Respondent must have failed to perform a clear, present, and ministerial duty or have abused its discretion or have failed or refused to exercise its discretion [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1085(a); allegation re duty of respondent in § 358.131].

b. Petitioner must have a clear, present, and substantial right to the performance of respondent's duty if the question is private or, if the question is public in nature, the petitioner must be a citizen [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1085(a); allegation re judicial action in § 358.133].

c. Petitioner must have performed all conditions precedent to maintaining the proceeding, such as exhausting administrative remedies [see basic form of petition to superior court in § 358.130].

d. Petitioner must have made a demand if respondent's duty is conditionalon a demand [see basic form of petition to superior court in § 358.130].

3. In prohibition proceeding.

a. Respondent must be exercising a judicial function [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1102; allegation re judicial action in § 358.133].

b. Respondent must be threatening to act in a manner either in which it lacks jurisdiction or in excess of its jurisdiction [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1102; allegation re threatened action in § 358.135; allegation re lack or excess of jurisdiction in § 358.136].

[4] Preparation of Petition for Writ

1. Review essential allegations [see forms at §§ 358.130-358.136, 358.138

2. Draft petition.

For the number of copies to prepare and the format requirements of a petition, see § 358.130 and § 358.138. For a cover for use in filing a petition in an appellate court, see § 358.137.

3. Signing.

Whether the petition is to be filed in the superior or appellate court, it is signed by the attorney, or by the party if he or she is not represented by an attorney [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 128.7(a), 446(a), 1109].

4. Verification.

For a sample form of verification and for discussions of verification in superior courts and appellate courts, see § 358.130 and § 358.138.

[5] Preparation of Points and Authorities

Draft a memorandum of points and authorities in the same number of copies as the petition, and attach a copy to each copy of the petition. For discussions of preparing a memorandum, see § 358.130 and § 358.138. For forms of memoranda of points and authorities for use in supporting a petition for writ of mandamus or prohibition, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition .

[6] Preparation of Alternative Writ, Notice of Motion, or Order to Show Cause

For a proceeding in a superior court, depending on which method of giving notice of a hearing for a peremptory writ is being followed [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1088, 1105], prepare either the alternative writ of mandate and the order [see § 358.139 and § 358.140], the notice of motion for a peremptory writ [see § 358.142], or the order to show cause why a peremptory writ should not issue [see § 358.144]. Counsel should draft the alternative writ and order as one document [see § 358.139], or separately [see § 358.140], depending on local practice.

For a proceeding in the Court of Appeal or in the Supreme Court, the court generally prepares the alternative writ or order to show cause.

NOTE:

A peremptory writ should not be issued in the first instance by an appellate court unless the respondent, and real party in interest, have notice that the procedure is being considered or requested, and have either filed a response on the merits or been given the opportunity to do so. The notice provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1088 and 1107 apply if the Court of Appeal is requested to issue a peremptory writ in the first instance [see Palma v. U.S. Industrial Fasteners, Inc. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 171, 176, 203 Cal. Rptr. 626, 681 P.2d 893] . It is common practice for appellate courts to take primary responsibility for providing notice and for soliciting opposition [see, e.g., Nissan Motor Corp. v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 980, 981, 261 Cal. Rptr. 80 (court of appeal provided notice and requested opposition in letter to opposing parties before granting peremptory writ in first instance)].

[7] Service of Petition and Points and Authorities

If the proceeding is an original one in an appellate court or if local practice so requires, serve a copy of the petition and a copy of the memorandum on respondent and a copy of each on the real party in interest. In addition, each party must serve and file a Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons at the time it files its first document in the court of appeal and must include a copy of the certificate in its principal brief [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(d)]. The provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010-1020, governing the service of papers in civil actions, apply to the service of the petition and accompanying papers [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107]. If the real party in interest is a board or commission, service is made on the presiding officer, on the secretary, or on a majority of the members of the board or commission [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107]. For discussion of various methods of service, see § 358.130.

NOTE:

The sequence of service and filing of a petition for writ of mandate or prohibition is usually in the reverse order of the filing and service of a complaint in an ordinary civil action. Thus, in a mandate or prohibition proceeding, the petition, with accompanying points and authorities, generally is served on respondent and real party in interest before it is presented to the clerk for filing; proof of service is then filed with the petition [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.386(e)].

If no alternative writ is sought pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1088.5, the action may be filed and served in the same manner as an ordinary civil action under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 411.10-417.40 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107]. In a trial court, if no alternative writ is sought, proof of service of a copy of the petition need not accompany the application for a writ at the time of filing, but proof of service of a copy of the filed petition must be lodged with the court prior to a hearing or to any action by the court [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1088.5, 1105].

The court in its discretion, however, may permit the filing of the petition without prior service [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.386(e)(6)]. The practice in superior courts varies throughout the state and should be checked before serving the petition. If, as a matter of general practice, the court permits the filing of petitions without prior service and then orders the issuance of alternative writs ex parte whenever a petition appears meritorious, petitioner will be able to serve the petition and the alternative writ simultaneously and thus avoid the costs of double service. Double service may also be avoided when there is a bona fide emergency that would permit the issuance of an alternative writ without prior service of the petition. For discussion of issuance of ex parte writs, see § 358.139.

[8] Preparation of Proof of Service of Petition

In the general situation in which proof of service is required before the petition can be filed, prepare the affidavit [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 417.10, 1013a, 1109, 2009]or declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5] of service of the petition by either personal service or by mail, in as many copies as the court requires [see forms at §§ 358.130, 358.138], plus one office copy. Append the original and copies to the original petition and copies thereof. For forms of proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

NOTE:

Service of the petition before filing is, of course, not necessary when the practice of the court is to grant alternative writs ex parte on showing of good cause or when there is a justified emergency. See Note in § 358.120[7].

In the Supreme Court or in a court of appeal, the proof of service must name each party represented by each attorney served. A petition accompanied by a defective proof of service shall be filed, but if a proper proof of service is not filed within five days after the clerk gives notice of the defect, the court may strike the petition or impose a lesser sanction [Cal Rules of Ct., Rule 8.386(e)].

[9] Filing Petition

When the proceeding is an original one in an appellate court, file the petition and the required number of copies [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.44, and §§ 358.130, 358.138], the supporting memorandum of points and authorities, the Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons, and the proof of service with the clerk of the proper court. When the proceeding is in a superior court, local practice must be checked to ascertain the applicable procedure. Some courts permit the filing of the petition after a judge (usually the Presiding Judge or the Law and Motion Judge) has signed an order ex parte directing the clerk to issue an alternative writ. Other courts adhere more closely to the procedure followed in the appellate courts. See generally § 358.139, for discussion of the issuance of ex parte alternative writs. For a discussion of the manner of filing when no alternative writ is sought, see § 358.120[7].

NOTE:

A filing fee of $655, payable to the clerk of the court, must accompany the filing of a petition for a writ of mandate or prohibition in a court of appeal [Gov. Code §§ 68926 (requires $485), 68926.1(b) (requires $170 for deposit in appellate court trust fund)].

The fee is $590 for a filing with the Supreme Court [Gov. Code § 68927 (requires $420); Gov. Code § 68926.1 (requires $170 for deposit in appellate court trust fund)].

For a form of waiver of filing fees in proceedings in forma pauperis, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.110 et seq.

[10] Consideration and Ruling on Petition

1. Hearing of petition.

A superior court judge may hear and dispose of the writ petition in chambers [Code Civ. Proc. § 166(a)(1)]. Appellate courts usually determine in conference whether to grant the petition and issue the alternative writ or to deny the petition.

2. Summary denial.

Denial of the petition is usually by minute order. Summary denial is neither precedent nor res judicata [see People v. Medina (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 484, 490-492, 99 Cal. Rptr. 630, 492 P.2d 686 (prohibition proceeding); Hagan v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 767, 770, 22 Cal. Rptr. 206, 371 P.2d 982 (mandate proceeding); De Bottari v. Melendez (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 910, 914 n.3, 119 Cal. Rptr. 256 (mandate proceeding)], and it does not establish the law of the case, regardless of whether the denial is intended to be on the merits or is based on some other reason [Kowis v. Howard (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 888, 899, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 728, 838 P.2d 250].

3. Motion for judgment on peremptory writ.

If a petition for a writ of mandate does not seek an alternative writ pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1088.5, and presents no triable issue of fact or is based solely on an administrative record, the matter may be determined by the court by noticed motion of any party for a judgment on the peremptory writ [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094; see §§ 358.152, 358.153].

4. Review of denial.

The usual method of review of an order denying a petition for a writ of mandate or prohibition filed in the superior court is appeal to a court of appeal. If this method is inadequate, a new petition invoking the original jurisdiction of an appellate court may be filed [see Farley v. Healey (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 325, 326-327, 62 Cal. Rptr. 26, 431 P.2d 650 (mandate proceeding); Mihans v. Municipal Court (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 479, 483, 87 Cal. Rptr. 17 (prohibition proceeding)].

NOTE:

If the denied petition sought a writ directed to a municipal court, relating to a pending matter therein, appeal is unavailable; review in such a case may, however, be obtained by filing a new petition for extraordinary writ in an appellate court [

Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)*].

5. Granting of order to issue alternative writ.

If the superior court grants an order commanding an alternative writ to issue [see forms at §§ 358.139 and 358.139], the clerk then issues the writ. In a superior court proceeding counsel will have drafted [see § 358.120[6]] the alternative writ and order as one document [see forms at §§ 358.139, 358.140] or separately [see form at § 358.139], depending on what the local practice is. Appellate courts draft their own alternative writs or orders to show cause.

6. Date for hearing.

The date for hearing on the alternative writ is supplied by the judge or the clerk. A hearing date may be set at any time [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1108]. When the date is supplied by the clerk, counsel should obtain the date prior to filing the alternative writ. When the noticed-motion procedure is used by petitioner, the hearing date is determined by counsel with attention to the10-day prior notice requirement [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1088].

[11] Service of Alternative Writ

NOTE:

If it appears that the parties adversely affected by the writ have been provided with due notice, the petition and opposing papers on file adequately address the issues raised by the petition, no factual dispute exists, and additional briefing that would follow issuance of an alternative writ is unnecessary to disposition of the petition, the peremptory writ may be issued in the first instance [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1088, 1105; Palma v. U.S. Industrial Fasteners, Inc. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 171, 178, 180, 203 Cal. Rptr. 626, 681 P.2d 893].

The court may issue a peremptory writ in the first instance only if it determines the petitioner's relief is so obvious that no purpose could reasonably be served by issuance of an alternative writ requesting full review, or if there is a compelling and unusual urgency requiring acceleration of the process [Alexander v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 1218, 1223, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 397, 859 P.2d 96]. This principle seems confined to the issuance of a peremptory writ by an appellate court. Superior courts do not appear to issue ex parte peremptory writs.

1. Parties to be served.

If the alternative writ is issued, a copy must be served on respondent and each real party in interest in the same manner as a summons in a civil action unless otherwise directed by the court [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1096, 1105]. If not already served, petitioner must serve a copy of the petition and memorandum of points and authorities on each person against whom the writ is sought [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1088, 1105]. See § 358.139 for methods of service on certain types of parties.

2. Method of service.

See § 358.139, for discussion of the various methods of service.

3. Proof of Service.

See discussion in §§ 358.120[8], 358.130.

[12] Preparation of Petitioner's Response to Actions by Respondent and Real Party in Interest

1. Replication to answer.

If a replication is to be served and filed [see form at § 358.146], draft the replication in the same number of copies as required for filing in the case of the petition plus an additional copy for serving on the party to whose answer replication is made or a copy for each adverse party and an office copy. Sign it as counsel for petitioner [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 128.7(a), 446(a), 1109].

2. Response to demurrer to petition.

If respondent, real party in interest, or both demur to the petition [Code Civ. Proc. § 1089; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(b)], prepare a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition to it in the same number of copies as required for filing the petition.

3. Response to other motions.

If any other motions are filed, prepare a memorandum of points and authorities in opposition in the same number of copies as above.

[13] Service and Filing of Petitioner's Responses

1. Serve papers.

See § 358.130.

2. Proof of service.

See discussion in § 358.120[8].

3. Filing.

See discussion in § 358.120[9].

[14] Hearing and Determination

NOTE:

The peremptory writ of mandate cannot be issued by default; the case must be heard by the court whether the adverse party appears or not [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1088, 1105]. If a return is not made by respondent or real party in interest, the case is heard on the papers of petitioner [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1094, 1105]. If the return raises only questions of law or puts in issue immaterial statements that do not affect the substantial rights of the parties, the court must proceed to hear or fix a day for hearing the argument of the case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1094, 1105].

1. Consider requesting jury trial.

Counsel for petitioner should consider requesting the judge to exercise his or her discretion and order a key factual issue tried by a jury [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1090, 1105].

2. Preparing and presenting evidence.

Counsel for petitioner must be careful to put in issue all affirmative allegations raised in the return to the petition, either through the replication or at the hearing. Naturally, if there is a hearing the evidence also must be presented persuasively to the judge or jury.

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

31-358 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 358.121

§ 358.121 Checklist for Respondent and Real Party in Interest

[1] Preliminary Opposition

NOTE:

Although no statement in opposition to the petition is required unless requested by the court, Code Civ. Proc. § 1107 and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(a)(1) provide that respondent or real party in interest may file an initial opposition to the petition within 10 days after it is filed. This opportunity is, of course, negated when a court issues an alternative writ or order to show cause immediately with the filing of the petition. If counsel receives a copy of the petition and an alternative writ or order to show cause has not issued, however, consideration should be given to an initial opposition stating the reasons why an alternative writ or order ought not issue. If the petition appears obviously flawed, counsel may want to save the respondent or real party in interest the expense of the drafting of an initial opposition, since, many times, a court will summarily deny thepetition even without the benefit of counsel's opposing points and authorities.

If respondent and real party in interest, if any, have received notice that a peremptory writ may issue in the first instance [see § 358.120[6]], counsel must provide as detailed a preliminary opposition as possible, raising all matters that might be raised in a demurrer or answer. At least 10 days after notice is provided that a peremptory writ may issue in the first instance, the court may issue the writ without having issued an alternative writ without hearing oral argument, and without having waited for a full scale return [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1088, 1105; see Palma v. U.S. Industrial Fasteners, Inc. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 171, 178-180, 203 Cal. Rptr. 626, 681 P.2d 893 ; Lewis v. Superior Court (1999) 19 Cal. 4th 1232, 1243-1261, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 85, 970 P.2d 872]. Thus, when notice is provided that a peremptory writ may issue in the first instance, the preliminary opposition may be the respondent's or real party in interest's only opportunity to block issuance of the writ [see Palma v. U.S. Industrial Fasteners, Inc. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 171, 178, 180, 203 Cal. Rptr. 626, 681 P.2d 893].

In order to encourage full review of the issue presented and to preserve for later review the issue of the propriety of using the expedited writ process, the opposing party should also raise in its preliminary opposition any reasons the court should not grant expedited relief by issuing a peremptory writ in the first instance [see Alexander v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 1218, 1223, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 397, 859 P.2d 96].

1. Points and authorities.

If counsel decides to oppose the petition, draft the memorandum in opposition to the granting of the writ in the same number of copies for filing as is required for the petition [see §§ 358.130, 358.138], plus an additional copy for service on petitioner and an office copy.

NOTE:
If the alternative writ issues, the foregoing memorandum may not subsequently be adopted as a return to the writ [see Pacific Indem. Co. v. Superior Court of San Francisco (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 63, 65 , 54 Cal. Rptr. 470] .

2. Statement of fact in appellate court.

When the petition has been filed in an appellate court, draft a statement of any material fact not included in the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(a)(2)]. There should be the same number of copies as the memorandum.

3. Service of papers.

Serve a copy of the memorandum of points and authorities, a Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(d)], and any statement of fact on petitioner. Service may be made by delivering a copy to him or her personally or by mail [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1011-1013a, 1109]. If petitioner is represented by counsel, the papers are served on him or her rather than on petitioner [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1015, 1109].

4. Proof of service.

Prepare proof of service of the memorandum [see § 358.120[8]].

5. Filing.

Within 10 days after service and filing of the petition [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(a)], file with the clerk of the court either in person or by mail the original of the memorandum of points and authorities, the statement of fact if there is one, the proof of service, and the required number of copies if the proceeding is in an appellate court.

[2] Return to Alternative Writ

1. Drafting pleadings and papers.

a. Answer [see form at § 358.145].

Draft the answer in the same number of copies for filing as is required for the petition [see forms at §§ 358.130, 358.138], plus an additional copy for service on petitioner and an office copy.

b. Verification [see form at § 358.145].

Draft the verification required for the answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1089, 1105; Cal. Rules of Ct, Rule 8.487(b)(1)], either in affidavit form or in the form of a declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446, 1109, 2015.5].

c. Demurrer [see form at § 358.144].

Draft the demurrer if there is to be one in the same number of copies as required for the answer.

NOTE:
If the return is by demurrer alone, and the demurrer is overruled, the overruling court may refuse to allow the subsequent filing of an answer, in which case it may issue a peremptory writ without leave to answer [Rhyne v. Municipal Court (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 807, 819, 170 Cal. Rptr 312 (discretion of superior court to refuse filing of answer); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(b)(4) (discretion of appellate court to refuse filing of answer)]. It is good practice to file an answer with a demurrer to avoid the possibility that a demurrer filed alone will be overruled without leave to file an answer.

d. Points and authorities.

Draft the memorandum in support of the demurrer [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)] in the same number of copies as the demurrer.

2. Execution of pleadings.

a. Answer and demurrer.

Sign the answer and demurrer as counsel for respondent or real party in interest [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 128.7(a), 446(a), 1109].

b. Verification of answer.

If the verification is in the form of a declaration under penalty of perjury, have it signed by the party making the answer. If it is in affidavit form, have it acknowledged by an appropriate officer such as a notary public.

3. Service of pleadings and papers.

See § 358.121[1].

4. Proof of service.

See § 358.121[1].

5. Filing.

File either in person or by mail the original of the pleadings and papers with proof of service together with the required number of copies if the proceeding is in an appellate court. The pleadings and papers are, of course, filed with the clerk of the court that issued the writ.

6. Time of filing.

The alternative writ will ordinarily set forth the time within which the return must be made.

NOTE:
With proceedings in appellate courts, the return must be served and filed within 30 days after the court issues the alternative writ or order to show cause or notifies the parties that it is considering issuing a peremptory writ in the first instance [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(b)(2)].

7. Time of filing when no alternative writ is sought in a trial court.

If no alternative writ is sought in the trial court pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1088.5, and if a record of the proceedings to be reviewed has been filed with the petition or if no record is required, the respondent must answer or otherwise respond within 30 days after service of the petition. If, however, a record has been requested pursuant to Gov. Code § 11523 or otherwise, and has not been filed with the petition, the party on whom the petition has been served, including any real party in interest, must answer or otherwise respond within 30 days following receipt of a copy of the record [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1089.5, 1105].

§ 358.122 Hearing Procedure

NOTE:

When respondent or real party in interest fails to make a return, the hearing mentioned in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1088, 1094 is to try only questions of law and not issues of fact [see Rodriguez v. Municipal Court (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 521, 526, 102 Cal. Rptr. 45 (mandate proceeding)]. When there is a question of fact in a mandate or prohibition proceeding that is raised either in the replication or the hearing, the matter is heard in the same manner as any other trial [see Lotus Car Ltd. v. Municipal Court of Southern Judicial Dist. (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 264, 269, 69 Cal. Rptr. 384 (mandate proceeding)]. Because of these facts, there is nothing peculiar about hearings in mandate or prohibition proceedings. Hence, this guide offers no specific suggestions for presenting the argument and the evidence, if there is any, at the hearing.

§ 358.123 Post-hearing Procedure

[1] Superior Court

1. Judgment

a. Proposed judgment.

If no party requests or is ordered to prepare a statement of decision and a written judgment is required, the court must prepare and serve a proposed judgment on all parties that appeared at the trial within 20 days after the announcement or service of the tentative decision or the court may order a party to prepare, serve, and submit the proposed judgment to the court within 10 days 10 after the date of the order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(h)]. If the court orders that the statement of decision is deemed waived and a written judgment is required, the court must, within 10 days of the order deeming the statement of decision waived, either prepare and serve a proposed judgment on all parties that appeared at the trial or order a party to prepare, serve, and submit the proposed judgment to the court within 10 days [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(i); for procedure when statement of decision is requested, see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(d)]. For a form of judgment, see § 358.147.

b. Preparation of objections to proposed judgment.

When served with a proposed judgment, prepare, serve, and file any objections to it within 10 days [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(j)].

2. Peremptory writ [see form at § 358.149].

a. Preparation.

If the judgment grants the peremptory writ, petitioner must prepare the writ in three or four copies (original for filing, copy for service on respondent, copy for service on real party in interest if there is any, and office copy).

b. Service

Serve a copy of the writ in the same manner as a summons in a civil action on the respondent and real party in interest [Code Civ. Proc §§ 1096, 1105]. Serve on a majority of the members of any board or body is service on the board or body whether at the time of the service the board or body was in session or not [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1096, 1105].

3. Costs.

NOTE:
The term "costs" in Code Civ. Proc. § 1095 means those fees and charges which are required by law to be paid to the courts or some of their officers or an amount fixed by law [Escrow Guar. Co. v. Savage (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 595, 597, 28 Cal. Rptr. 889]. The court has discretion in deciding whether to award costs under Code Civ. Proc. § 1095 [Kramer v. State Board of Accountancy (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 163, 177, 19 Cal. Rptr. 226].

a. Memorandum.

Counsel for the prevailing party prepares a verified memorandum of his costs [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1032-1034, 1095, 1105, 1109; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1700 et seq.] in three or four copies (one for filing, copy for respondent, copy for real party in interest if there is any, and office copy).

For discussion, procedural checklist, and forms for use in obtaining costs generally, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees .

b. Service.

Within 15 days after the date of mailing of the notice of entry of judgment or the date of service of written notice of entry of judgment or within 180 days after entry of judgment, whichever is earlier [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1700(a)(1)], serve a copy of the memorandum on each party or on his attorney if he or she is represented by counsel [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1015, 1109] and file the original memorandum with the superior court clerk.

4. Motion for new trial.

Code Civ. Proc. § 1110 makes applicable to mandate and prohibition proceedings the provisions of Part Two of the Code of Civil Procedure relating to new trial [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 655-662.5] except insofar as they are inconsistent with the provisions relating to mandamus and/or prohibition. Code Civ. Proc. § 1092 (made applicable to prohibition proceedings by Code Civ. Proc. § 1105) provides that a motion for new trial must be made in the court in which the issue of fact was tried.

5. Appeal.

Code Civ. Proc. § 1110 makes applicable to mandate and prohibition proceedings the provisions of Part Two of the Code of Civil Procedure relating to appeals. Hence, either party aggrieved by the judgment, or both parties if both are aggrieved, may appeal from the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 902, 904.1, 1110] to the proper court of appeal.

Except as otherwise provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 870 (relating to validation proceedings) or other statute, notice of appeal from a superior court judgment must be filed within 60 days after the date of serving notice of entry of judgment by the clerk of the court pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 664.5, or within 60 days after the date of service of written notice of entry of judgment by any party on the party filing the notice of appeal, or within 180 days after the date of entry of the judgment, whichever is earliest, unless the time is extended as provided in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a)].

For discussion, procedural guide, and forms for use in appealing from judgments and orders of the superior court in civil actions generally, see Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview .

NOTE:

If the remedy of appeal from a judgment denying a writ is inadequate, petitioner may file an original petition for writ of mandate with the proper court of appeal or the Supreme Court [see Farley v. Healey (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 325, 32/1-/227, 62 Cal. Rptr. 26, 431 P.2d 650 (mandate proceeding); Mihans v. Municipal Court (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 479, 483, 87 Cal. Rptr. 17 (prohibition proceeding)].

Appeal will be unavailable if the denied petition sought a writ directed to a municipal court or justice court, relating to a pending matter therein; review in such a case may, however, be obtained by filing a new petition for extraordinary writ in an appellate court [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)].

[2] Court of Appeal and Supreme Court

1. Judgment.

a. Preparation.

The written opinion of the court constitutes its judgment and therefore counsel does not prepare a form of judgment.

b. Service.

The clerk files all opinions and orders of the court. The clerk then promptly sends copies showing the filing date to the parties and, when relevant, to the lower court or tribunal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.264(a)(1), 8.532(a)].

2. Peremptory writ.

Ordinarily, the court's opinion serves as sufficient direction to the respondent or real party in interest. If the respondent or real party in interest fails to comply, petitioner should draft a peremptory writ, have it issued by the clerk of the court, and serve it in the same manner as a summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 1096, 1105].

3. Costs.

NOTE:

When a mandate or prohibition proceeding is commenced in an appellate court, if the prevailing petitioner desires an allowance for costs and the judgment does not allow them, he or she should apply to the court for allowance within such time as will enable the court to pass upon the application. If costs are allowed, the court will then have time to modify the judgment before it becomes final [Union Trust Co. v. Superior Court (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 541, 543, 90 P.2d 582 (mandate proceeding)].

a. Preparation of motion for costs.

If the opinion fails to mention costs and the prevailing party wishes to apply for them, counsel should prepare a motion for modification of the opinion to include an award of costs. Copies should be prepared for service on respondents and real party in interest, if any, and for use as office copies as needed. In addition to filing the original, eight filing copies are required in the Supreme Court, and three in the court of appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.44(b)].

b. Service.

Serve a copy of the motion on each party or the party's attorney [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1015, 1109]. File the original, together with the required number of copies, with the clerk of the court in sufficient time to enable the court to act on the motion before the court's judgment becomes final [see Union Trust Co. v. Superior Court (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 541, 543-544, 90 P.2d 582 (mandate proceeding)].

NOTE:

If a court or judge is named as respondent, the award of costs cannot run against it or him if it be found that the proceeding was defended in good faith. This, however, does not preclude an award of costs against an unsuccessful real party in interest [Oksner v. Superior Court (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 672, 690-691, 40 Cal. Rptr. 621 (mandate proceeding)].

4. Petition for rehearing.

Either the Supreme Court or a court of appeal may grant a rehearing after its decision if a petition therefor is filed within 15 days after the filing of the decision [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.268, 8.536].

5. Petition for review in Supreme Court.

A party seeking review in the Supreme Court, after decision in a court of appeal, serves and files a petition for review within 10 days after the decision of the court of appeal becomes final regarding that court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.500(e)]. The petition should contain allegations establishing that Supreme Court review is necessary to secure uniformity of decision or the settlement of important questions of law [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.500(b)]. An answer to the petition may be served and filed within 20 days after the petition is filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.500(e)]. A party desiring to bring the case before the Supreme Court should, under ordinary circumstances, petition for review and should not file another original petition for a writ of mandate or prohibition when it has already been before a court of appeal [see Paige Co. of N. Cal. v. Superior Court (1924) 194 Cal. 795, 796, 231 P. 344 (prohibition proceeding)]. For discussion of review in the California Supreme Court, see Ch. 54, Appeal: California Supreme Court Review .

[3] Enforcement

Code Civ. Proc. § 1097 (made applicable to prohibition proceedings by Code Civ. Proc. § 1105) provides sanctions in the nature of contempt in cases of either refusal or neglect to obey a peremptory writ. For a form of an order to show cause re failure to obey a peremptory writ, see § 358.151.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above is a general form for use in filing a petition for a writ of mandate, prohibition, or for either writ in the alternative. The form is necessarily very general because of the multitude of factual situations in which mandate and prohibition are appropriate remedies. Thus, counsel may adapt the form to meet the facts peculiar to the situation. Because a petition may be denied summarily, however, care must be taken in adapting the form to make certain that no essential allegations are inadvertently omitted.

[3] Requesting Specific Writ

The prayer in this form does not request a specific writ. If it is clear in a particular case that either mandate or prohibition is the appropriate remedy, the petitioner may wish to modify the foregoing form to specify the particular writ requested. If, however, it is unclear whether one remedy or the other is appropriate, or if only both remedies combined will afford complete relief, counsel need not couch the petition in terms of a specific writ [see Peck's Liquors, Inc. v. Superior Court (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 772, 775, 34 Cal. Rptr. 735].

If the petitioner seeks the wrong writ, the court may treat the petition as one for the proper writ [see, e.g., Owens v. Superior Court (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 822, 345 P.2d 921 ; see also Peck's Liquors, Inc. v. Superior Court (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 772, 775, 34 Cal. Rptr. 735 ("neither mislabeling nor a defective prayer will bar relief justified by proper allegations and proof")].

Apparently, ex parte peremptory writs are rarely issued in the superior courts. Before the court can issue a peremptory writ in the first instance, the respondent and real party in interest, if any, must be provided with at least 10 days' notice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1088]. Counsel may serve a separate paper on the opposing parties to provide the required notice [see form at § 358.141].

[4] Allegations

[a] In General

Although mandate and prohibition share certain requirements (i.e., the petitioner must be "beneficially interested" [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1086, 1103(a)]), the requisite allegations for obtaining the writs differ in many respects. For the sake of convenience, the allegations in the petition applicable to the two writs will be discussed separately below.

[b] Mandate

A petition for a writ of mandate should allege the following:

- The identity of respondent as inferior tribunal, corporation, board, or person (Paragraph 2) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1085(a)].

- The identity of the real party in interest, if any (Paragraph 3) [cf. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a) (applicable only to petitions filed in reviewing courts)].

- The action sought to be compelled, that is, either the performance of an act that the respondent is specially enjoined by law to do (Paragraph 4; form at § 358.131) or the admission of the petitioner to the use and enjoyment of a right, or to an office, to which he or she is entitled (Paragraph 4) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1085(a)].

- The petitioner's beneficial interest (Paragraph 5; form at § 358.132) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086; California Association for Health Services at Home v. State Department of Health Services (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 696, 704-707, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 102 ; Taschner v. City Council (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 48, 55-56, 107 Cal. Rptr. 214 (disapproved on other grounds in Associated Home Builders etc., Inc. v. City of Livermore (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 582, 596 n.14, 135 Cal. Rptr. 41, 557 P.2d 473)].

- The performance of all conditions precedent, if any (Optional Paragraph 6) [see Igna v. City of Baldwin Park (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 909, 914, 88 Cal. Rptr. 581].

- The making of a demand on respondent if the duty was conditioned on demand (Optional Paragraph 7) [see Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Rolph (1920) 184 Cal. 557, 559, 194 P. 1005].

- The ability of respondent to perform the duty or exercise the discretion when the writ seeks to compel performance of duty or exercise of discretion (Optional Paragraph 8) [see Treber v. Superior Court (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 128, 134, 65 Cal. Rptr. 330, 436 P.2d 330].

- The lack of an adequate legal remedy (Paragraph 9) [see Phelan v. Superior Court (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 363, 366, 217 P.2d 951 ; for detailed discussion of this crucial allegation, see §§ 358.50 -358.51].

- Damages, if any (Optional Paragraph 10) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1095].

[c] Prohibition

A petition for a writ of prohibition should allege the following:

- The identity of respondent as inferior tribunal, corporation, board, or person (Paragraph 2) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1103(a); Haldane v. Superior Court (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 483, 485-486, 34 Cal. Rptr. 572].

- Identity of real party in interest, if any (Paragraph 3) [cf. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(b)(2) (applicable only to petitions filed in reviewing courts)].

- The facts that respondent is exercising a judicial function and is threatening to take judicial action without or in excess of its jurisdiction (Paragraph 4; see forms at §§ 358.133, 358.135, 358.136) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1102].

- The fact that petitioner objected to respondent's exercise of jurisdiction (and the court's ruling on the objection), that respondent's lack of jurisdiction was apparent on the face of the relevant pleading, or that such an objection would have been useless (Paragraph 4; see form at § 358.134) [see Rescue Army v. Municipal Court (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 460, 465, 171 P.2d 8 , appeal dismissed, 331 U.S. 549 (1947) ; Hanrahan v. Superior Court (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 432, 434-435, 184 P.2d 157].

- The beneficial interest of petitioner (Paragraph 5; see allegation at § 358.132) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1103(a); Seven Up Bottling Co. v. Superior Court (1951) 107 Cal. App. 2d 75, 76, 236 P.2d 623].

- Facts indicating the absence of an adequate legal remedy (Paragraph 9) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1103(a); Peebler v. Superior Court (1944) 63 Cal. App. 2d 651, 653, 147 P.2d 34 ; for detailed discussion of this crucial allegation, see §§ 358.50 -358.51].

- Damages, if any (Optional Paragraph 10) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1095, 1105; McCarthy v. Superior Court (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 42, 43, 149 P.2d 871].

[5] Verification

The requirement that the petition be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1086, 1103(a)] may be met by affidavit or by declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446, 1109, 2015.5]. The declaration under penalty of perjury is executed by the petitioner if an individual is involved. It is executed by counsel if petitioner is out of the county in which counsel has his or her office or for some cause is unable to verify it or if the facts are within counsel's knowledge. An officer of a corporation executes the declaration if the corporation is the petitioner. The Code of Civil Procedure fails to state who is to verify a pleading filed by a partnership or other unincorporated association [see Code Civ. Proc. § 369.5 (authorizing suits by and against such entities)]. Nevertheless, a pleading by such entity apparently may be verified in the case of a partnership by any partner and, in the case of an unincorporated association, by any officer who has knowledge of the facts.

If the verification is to be by affidavit, the affidavit must be prepared foracknowledgment by the appropriate officer such as a notary public. Although the verification is expressly permitted to be by affidavit [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446, 1109, 2009], it is usually made by declaration under penalty of perjury when executed in California [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446, 1109, 2015.5].

A split of authority among the courts of appeal makes it somewhat unclear whether the general rule that a public entity does not need to verify pleadings [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446] applies in a mandate or prohibition proceeding. For further discussion, see § 358.82[3][b].

[5a] Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons

If a party files a motion, an application, or an opposition to a motion or application before filing its principal brief, the party must serve and file a Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons at the time it files the first such motion, application, or opposition and must include a copy of this certificate in the party's principal brief. If no motion, application, or opposition to such motion or application is filed before the parties file their principal briefs, each party must serve and file a certificate at the time it files its first document in the Court of Appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(d)]. If the identity of any party or any entity or person subject to disclosure has not been publicly disclosed in the proceedings and a party wants to keep that identity confidential, the party may serve and file an application for permission to file its certificate under seal separately from its principal brief, motion, application, or opposition. If the application is granted, the party must file the certificate under seal and without service within 10 days of the court's order granting the application [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(d)(2)]. The petitioner's certificate must be included in the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.488(c)(1)]. The certificates of the respondent and real party in interest must be included in their preliminary opposition or, if no such opposition is filed, in their return, if any. The certificate must appear after the cover and before the tables [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.488(c)(3)].

[6] Naming Respondent in Petition

When a writ seeks to prohibit action by a tribunal, the respondent is the tribunal as such, not the judge or referee as a person [Lois R. v. Superior Court (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 895, 903, 97 Cal. Rptr. 158 ; Lawson v. Superior Court (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 755, 761, 318 P.2d 812]. It should be observed, however, that in those cases in which a petitioner is seeking to prohibit a judge from proceeding based on his or her peremptory disqualification under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6, the judge as a person is also a proper respondent in addition to the court [see Calhoun v. Superior Court (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 257, 260, 331 P.2d 648].

[7] Attaching Complete Record

If the basis for the petition is a proceeding before an inferior tribunal, corporation, board, or person, and a partial or complete record of those proceedings was made, the petitioner should attach as exhibits all pleadings, affidavits, declarations, stipulations, minutes, orders, rulings, transcripts, or other documents comprising that record [see Sherwood v. Superior Court (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 183, 186-187, 154 Cal. Rptr. 917, 593 P.2d 862]. Whether the court is persuaded to issue an alternative writ might depend on how thorough a record is attached to the petition. For further discussion, see § 358.82[4].

[8] Number of Copies

The petition should be drafted in the following number of copies:

(1) Original for filing;

(2) Copy for service on respondent;

(3) Copy for service on real party in interest;

NOTE:
If there are two or more respondents or real parties in interest, a copy for service on each such party should be prepared.

(4) Office copy;

(5) Copy for petitioner, if desired; and

(6) Additional copies as desired.

[9] Supporting Memorandum

A supporting memorandum is not generally required when the petition is filed in a superior court, even though it is required to support a notice of motion or demurrer in a proceeding on a writ of mandate or prohibition [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1103(a)(2), 3.1113(a)]. Local rules of court, however, might impose a requirement, or it might be the local practice to file such a memorandum. Because the court may deny the petition summarily if it does not show a prima facie case for issuance of a peremptory writ [see Kingston v. Dept. of Motor Vehicles (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 549, 552, 76 Cal. Rptr. 614], it is advisable to take every opportunity to strengthen the petition. Therefore, the filing of a supporting memorandum is recommended. For further discussion, see § 358.82[5][a].

For general discussion and a form of skeletal memorandum, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[10] Filing in Los Angeles County

A petition for a writ of mandate or prohibition may be filed in either the Central District or the local district if the "defendant functions wholly therein." All other petitions are filed in the Central District [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 2.0(b), (c)]. The department in which they should be filed depends on the nature of the proceeding or who the respondent is.

A civil petition involving class action proceedings (prior to adjudication regarding class certification) is filed in the Class Action Department [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 2.5(j)]. All other petitions for writs of mandate and prohibition are filed inthe Writs and Receivers Department [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 2.5(i)].

[11] Service Before Filing Petition

Code Civ. Proc. § 1107 requires that a petition that seeks an alternative writ be accompanied by proof of service of a copy on the respondent and the real party in interest named in the petition. It also contains an exception that the court in which the petition is filed may grant the petition ex parte in its discretion and for good cause without notice or service [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107]. The practice in California varies widely with regard to how loosely or strictly this exception is followed and, consequently, how easy it is to obtain an ex parte alternative writ [see discussion of the varying practices in § 358.139]. In a trial court, if no alternative writ is sought, proof of service of a copy of the petition need not accompany the application for the writ at the time of filing, but proof of service of a copy of the filed petition must be lodged with the court prior to a hearing or any action by the court [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1088.5, 1105].

For discussion and forms relating to a declaration of proof of service of papers and pleadings generally, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[12] Methods of Service

Service of a copy of the petition and a memorandum of points and authorities on respondent and on each real party in interest may be made by delivering a copy to each person personally or by mail [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1011-1013a, 1109].

[13] Communication Between Trial Court and Respondent Court

When a petition for an original writ names a court as a party, there must be no communication, directly or indirectly, between any judge hearing the petition and the judge or judicial officer of the court named as a party, except written communications of which copies are transmitted to all other parties [Gov. Code § 68070.5(b), (c)].

[2] Use of Form

The alternative allegations in [1], above, may be inserted in the basic petition in § 358.130 (see Paragraph 5) to show the petitioner's beneficial interest. The first three alternative paragraphs illustrate possible situations in which the petitioner has a beneficial interest in the issuance of a writ of mandate [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086 and § 358.31[3]], whereas the last alternative paragraph illustrates a possible situation in which the petitioner has a beneficial interest in the issuance of a writ of prohibition [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1102, 1103 and § 358.41[4]].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, illustrates the format of a cover for a petition for a writ of mandate or prohibition to be filed in the Supreme Court or in a court of appeal.

[3] Format

A petition to a reviewing court for a writ of mandate, certiorari, or prohibition, or for any other writ within its original jurisdiction must, on its cover, contain the title of the case, the name, address, and telephone number of the attorney filing the petition, the name of the trial judge, and the number of the case in the trial court, if any [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204].

The cover must also contain the California State Bar membership number of the attorney filing the petition and of every attorney who joins in the petition. California State Bar membership numbers of the supervisors in a law firm or public law office of the attorney responsible for the case need not be stated [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204].

So far as practicable, the cover of any petition for an original writ should be red incolor [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.40(b)]. The court will accept a petition with the wrong color cover for filing but, in the case of repeated violations by an attorney or party, may order the petition returned or stricken until corrected within a specific time [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.204(e), 8.40(b)]. The use of recycled paper for the cover is encouraged [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)].

[4] Related Appeal Pending

If the petition seeks review of trial court proceedings that are also the subject of a pending appeal, the title of the petition must include the notation "Related Appeal Pending." In such a case, this form should be modified accordingly [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(3)].

[5] Request for Stay

If the petition for writ of mandate or prohibition is bound with or includes a petition for writ of supersedeas or other request for stay, this form of cover of the petition must be modified to include the conspicuous notation "STAY REQUESTED" and identify the nature and date of the proceeding or act sought to be stayed. Otherwise, the reviewing court may decline to consider the request or petition for the stay [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.116; for discussion and forms relating to petitions for writ of supersedeas pending review, see Ch. 43, Appeal: Stay of Proceedings].

For additional requirements to be included in the petition itself when a stay is requested, see the basic form of petition to the appellate court at § 358.138.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[Verification. See form at § 358.130.]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use when filing a petition for writ of mandate,prohibition, or both, in either a court of appeal or in the Supreme Court.

[3] Allegations

If the petition seeks review of trial court proceedings that are also the subject of a pending appeal, the title of the petition must include the notation "Related Appeal Pending," and the first paragraph must set forth the title, superior court docket number, and appellate court docket number, if any, of the pending appeal (Paragraph 1) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(3)].

If the petition might lawfully have been made to a lower court in the first instance, it must set forth the circumstances that, in the opinion of the petitioner, render it proper that the writ should issue originally from the reviewing court (Paragraph 2) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(1)].

The form must set forth the matters required by law to support the petition (Paragraph 3) [set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)]. Allegations to support a petition for a writ of mandate or prohibition are § 358.130 (Paragraphs 1 through 10), and §§ 358.131-358.136. These allegations may be inserted in the form in [1], above, in support of the petition.

A petitioner who requests an immediate stay must explain in the petition the reasons for the urgency and set forth all relevant time constraints (Paragraph 4) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(7)].

[4] Real Party in Interest

If any judge, court, board, or other officer, or tribunal in the discharge of duties of a public character is named in the petition as a respondent, the petition must disclose the name of the real party in interest, if any, or the party whose interest would be directly affected by the proceeding (see form at § 358.130, Paragraph 3) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(2); see also Tracy Press, Inc. v. Superior Court (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 1290, 1296, 80 Cal. Rptr. 3d 464 (failure to name real party in interest is not mere defect, but a failure to include the individual not named as a party); Inland Counties Regional Center, Inc. v. Office of Administrative Hearings (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 700, 704-705, 238 Cal. Rptr. 422 (body of petition must disclose capacity of real party in interest)].

[5] Verification

A petition filed in an original proceeding in an appellate court must be verified [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(4)]. For a discussion of verification by either a declaration under penalty of perjury or by affidavit, see § 358.130[5].

[6] Format of Petition

[a] Generally Subject to Requirements for Appellate Briefs

Except as otherwise provided in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.486-8.493, a petition must, insofar as practicable, comply with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.485(a)]. Rule 8.204 sets out the format requirements governing appellate briefs. Accordingly, in the following discussion of the requirements of Rule 8.204, the term "petition" has been substituted for the term "brief."

[b] Headings, References, Index, and Tables

Each point in a petition must appear separately under an appropriate heading, with subheadings if desired. Such headings should be concise headings which are generally descriptive of the subject matter covered [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(a)(1)(B); San Joaquin River Exchange Contractors Water Authority v. State Water Resources Control Board (2010) 183 Cal. App. 4th 1110, 1135, 108 Cal. Rptr. 3d 290 (party waived argument by failing to separately head it)].

The statement of any matter in the record must be supported by appropriate reference to the record [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(a)(1)(C)].

A petition must be prefaced by a topical index of its contents and a table of authorities, separately listing cases, statutes, court rules, constitutional provisions, and other authorities [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(a)(1)(A)].

For a form of appellate brief illustrating compliance with the heading, index, and tables requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(a)(1), see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs .

[c] Format Requirements

A petition may be reproduced by any process that produces a clear, black image of letter quality. The paper must be white or unbleached, recycled, 81/2 by 11 inches, and of at least 20-pound weight [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(1)]. Any conventional typeface may be used. The typeface may be either proportionally spaced or monospaced [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(2)]. The type style must be roman; but for emphasis, italics or boldface may be used, or the text may be underscored. Case names must be italicized or underscored. Headings may be in uppercase letters [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(3)]. The type size, including footnotes, must not be smaller than 13-point, and both sides of the paper may be used [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(4)]. The lines of text must be unnumbered and at least one-and-a-half spaced. Headings and footnotes may be single-spaced. Quotations may be block-indented and single-spaced. Single-spaced means six lines to a vertical inch [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(5)]. The margins must be at least 11/2 inches on the left and right and 1 inch on the top and bottom [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(6)]. The pages must be consecutively numbered. The tables and the body of the petition may have different numbering systems [Cal. Rules of

Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(7)].

A typewritten original and carbon copies may be filed only with the presiding justice's permission, which will ordinarily be given only to unrepresented parties proceeding in forma pauperis. All other typewritten petitions must be filed as photocopies [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(11)(A)]. Both sides of the paper may be used if a photocopy is filed; only one side may be used if a typewritten original and carbon copies are filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.2044(b)(11)(B)]. The type size, including footnotes, must not be smaller than standard pica, 10 characters per inch. Unrepresented incarcerated litigants may use elite type, 12 characters per inch, if they lack access to a typewriter with larger characters [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.2044(b)(11)(C)]. In all other respects, the typewritten motion must conform to the requirements for all other papers [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)].

[d] Word or Page Limit

A petition produced on a computer must not exceed 14,000 words, including footnotes. Such a petition must include a certificate by appellate counsel or anunrepresented party stating the number of words in the petition. The person certifying may rely on the word count of the computer program used to prepare the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(c)(1)]. A petition produced on a typewriter must not exceed 50 pages [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(c)(2)].

The following items are not included in the word or page limit [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(c)(3)]:

- The tables.

- The certificate stating the number of words in the petition.

- Any attachment, not to exceed 10 pages, except with permission from the presiding justice, consisting of copies of exhibits or other materials in the appellate record [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(d)].

- A copy of an opinion required to be attached to the brief under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1115(c) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(d)].

[e] Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons

If a party files a motion, an application, or an opposition to a motion or application before filing its principal brief, the party must serve and file a Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons at the time it files the first such motion, application, or opposition and must include a copy of this certificate in the party's principal brief. If no motion, application, or opposition to such motion or application is filed before the parties file their principal briefs, each party must serve and file a certificate at the time it files its first document in the Court of Appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(d)]. If the identity of any party or any entity or person subject to disclosure has not been publicly disclosed in the proceedings and a party wants to keep that identity confidential, the party may serve and file an application for permission to file its certificate under seal separately from its principal brief, motion, application, or opposition. If the application is granted, the party must file the certificate under seal and without service within 10 days of the court's order granting the application [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(d)(2)]. The petitioner's certificate must be included in the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.488(c)(1)]. The certificates of the respondent and real party in interest must be included in their preliminary opposition or, if no such opposition is filed, in their return, if any. The certificate must appear after the cover and before the tables [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.488(c)(3)].

For a form of the Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons--Judicial Council Form APP-008, see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs, § 50.83.

[7] Copies

Format requirements applicable generally to appellate papers, include the requirement that copies be clear and legible [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(1) (the clerk or the court may reject for filing or strike any petition that is not clearly legible, or that appears to be printed with the characters artificially close to each other)].

The petition must be drafted in the following number of copies:

- Original and 13 copies for filing if petition is filed in Supreme Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.44(a)(1)]; original and four copies for filing if petition is filed in Court of Appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.44(b)(1)].

- Copy for service on respondent.

- Copy for service on real party in interest. When there are two or more respondents or two or more real parties in interest, a copy for service on each such party will be prepared.

- Office copy.

- Copy for petitioner, if desired.

- Additional copies as desired.

[8] Attach Complete Record

Whenever a petition for a writ of mandate in an appellate court seeks review of a trial court ruling, it must be accompanied by a record adequate to permit the review, including the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(b)]:

- A copy of the order or judgment from which relief is sought;

- Copies of all documents and exhibits submitted to the trial court supporting and opposing the petitioner's position;

- Copies of all other documents submitted to the trial court that are necessary for a complete understanding of the case and the ruling; and

- A transcript of the proceedings leading to the order or judgment below or, if a transcript is unavailable, a declaration by counsel explaining why a transcript is unavailable and fairly summarizing the proceedings, including arguments by counsel and the basis of the trial court's decision, if stated; or a declaration by counsel stating that the transcript has been ordered, the date it was ordered, and the date it is expected to be filed, which must be a date prior to any action requested of the reviewing court other than issuance of a stay supported by other parts of the record.

In exigent circumstances, a petition may be filed without a copy of the order,judgment, or relevant documents, other than the transcript, if a declaration by counsel explains the urgency and the circumstances making the documents unavailable and fairly summarizes their substance [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(b)].

All copies of documents must be legible [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204].

Documents submitted in support of a petition must comply with the following requirements [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule

8.486(c)]:

- They must be bound together at the end of the petition or in separate volumes not to exceed 300 pages each, with consecutive pagination throughout.

- They must be index-tabbed by number or letter.

- They must begin with a table of contents listing each document by title and its index-tab number or letter. If a document has attachments, the table of contents must give the title of each attachment and a brief description of its contents.

The appellate court clerk is required to accept for filing petitions and supporting documents not in compliance with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(c), but the court may give the petitioner notice requiring that the petition and documents be brought into compliance within a stated reasonable time of not less than five days, or the petition may be stricken or denied summarily [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(c)].

[9] Service and Filing

If the respondent is the Superior Court or a judge of that court, the petition and one set of supporting documents must be served on any named real party in interest, but only the petition must be served on the respondent. If the respondent is not the Superior Court or a judge of that court, both the petition and one set of supporting documents must be served on the respondent and on any named real party in interest [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(e)(1), (2)]. The proof of service must name each party represented by each attorney served along with each attorney's telephone number. A petition accompanied by a defective proof of service shall be filed, but if a proper proof of service is not filed within five days after the clerk gives notice of the defect, the court may strike the petition or impose a lesser sanction [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(e)(3), (5)].

For discussion of proof of service and filing requirements under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(e), see § 358.82[6][d].

[10] Filing in Supreme Court

Original proceedings should be filed in the Supreme Court only in cases of overwhelming public importance. Although counsel may be tempted to consider the case at hand as a case of overwhelming significance, in fact, such cases are considered rare by the Court. Thus, when counsel files a case that the Supreme Court refuses to accept, it is transferred to the appropriate court of appeal. Not only does counsel lose time, more petitions than necessary are filed. Counsel already will have filed at least the original and 13 copies with the Supreme Court when only an original and four could have been filed with the court of appeal. Moreover, if there is an unfavorable decision in the court of appeal, counsel will have to file an additional original and 13 copies if a decision is made to petition for another hearing in the Supreme Court.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use as an alternative writ of mandate or prohibition issued by a superior court. Use of the attached order depends on local practice; it is used only if the local practice permits or requires the combining of the writ and the order. For a form of a separate order, see § 358.140.

The alternative writ usually is not prepared by counsel when it is being sought from an appellate court because appellate courts generally prepare their own writs or orders to show cause.

For further discussion of alternative writs, see § 358.16.

[3] Order Directing Issuance of Alternative Writ

The second paragraph in the order in [1], above, is optional. The court may want to direct that a copy of the petition be served together with the writ. It may also want to direct that service occur a certain time before a hearing on the merits.

[4] Preparation of Alternative Writs

When seeking an alternative writ in a superior court, the proposed writ is written to conform with the petition.

[5] Time for Filing

Ordinarily, a proposed writ and order are submitted at the same time that the petition is filed. Except in cases in which the issuance of an alternative writ is sought ex parte [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1107], the respondent and real party in interest will have five days to file points and authorities in opposition to the granting of an alternative writ [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1107]. Thus, in such cases the proposed writ may be submitted at any time within that five-day period.

[6] Issuance of Ex Parte Alternative Writs

Code Civ. Proc. § 1107 provides that a petition for a writ of mandate must be accompanied by proof of service of a copy of it on the respondent and real party in interest. The section also provides an exception that the court may, in its discretion and for good cause, grant the petition ex parte without notice or service of the petition. The practice with regard to how narrowly or broadly this exception is interpreted varies throughout the state. Thus, local court rules and local practice should be consulted before a petition is served. If the court grants ex parte writs routinely or if there is an emergency that precludes prior service of the petition, counsel should obtain issuance of the alternative writ and then serve the petition, memorandum of points and authorities, and writ simultaneously; petitioner may thus avoid the double service that is involved in prior service of the petition. Also, when the writ has been issued and the petition filed, the proceeding has been given a number by the clerk. This number will, of course, make it easier for counsel representing respondent and real party in interest to obtain information about the proceeding from the clerk if the need arises.

[7] Service of Writs

[a] Generally

The writ must be served in the same manner as a summons in a civil action unless the court expressly directs otherwise. Service of the writ on a majority of the members of any board or body is service on the board or body whether at the time of the service the board or body was in session or not [Code Civ. Proc. § 1096]. See generally Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[b] Personal Service

Code Civ. Proc. § 1088 requires that a copy of the petition be served with the alternative writ or notice of motion on each person against whom the writ is sought. Whether this section requires personal service is debatable, but practice seems well established in the state that personal service is preferred. Code Civ. Proc. § 1109 provides that the rules of practice governing civil actions constitute the rules of practice for mandate proceedings; thus, Code Civ. Proc. § 415.30, which permits service of summons and complaint by mail, is applicable to mandate proceedings. Nevertheless, courts prefer personal service because of the certainty that notice of the hearing has been received by the respondent and real party in interest.

[c] Methods of Service

Service may be effected by counsel, provided that he or she is not a party to the action, or by any other person over the age of 18 who is not a party to the action [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 414.10, 1109]. If service is made by counsel, he or she must deliver a copy of the alternative writ to respondent and a copy to each real party in interest [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1015]. If service is to be made by any other person, counsel must deliver, either personally or by mail, sufficient copies to the person who is to effect service to serve on respondent and each real party in interest. For requirements for transmitting the writ by telegraph for service, see Code Civ. Proc. § 1017.

[d] Whom to Serve

The writ must be served not only on the respondent but also on any real party in interest [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)]. It may not be served on counsel for respondent or real party in interest as a substitute for such service [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1015]. If a real party in interest is not served, the court may hold such a party to be an indispensable party and refuse to proceed to a hearing on the merits [see Younger v. Jordan (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 757, 758-759, 269 P.2d 616].

[e] Serving Particular Types of Parties

Special methods are provided for service of summons on certain entities and persons, such as corporations [Code Civ. Proc. § 416.10], unincorporated associations [Code Civ. Proc. § 416.40], minors [Code Civ. Proc. § 416.60], persons residing within this state for whom a guardian or conservator has been appointed [Code Civ. Proc. § 416.70], public entities [Code Civ. Proc. § 416.50], candidates for public office [Code Civ. Proc. § 416.80], and persons authorized to receive service [Code Civ. Proc. § 416.90]. In all other cases service should be effected by personal service on respondent and real party in interest [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 415.10, 1109].

The motion will be made on the grounds that _____ [state the legal bases on which the writ may be granted as discussed in the memorandum of points and authorities that will accompany the notice].

[CONTINUE]

The motion will be based on this notice of motion, on the verified petition in the action, a copy of which is served with this notice, on the memorandum served and filed herewith, on the papers and records on file herein, and on such oral and documentary evidence as may be presented at the hearing of the motion.

[2] Use of Form

The notice of motion in [1], above, is a variation of the notice of application for a peremptory writ set out in § 358.141, above. It is intended for use in those courts that prefer that petitioner use the noticed-motion procedure for a peremptory writ, as authorized under Code Civ. Proc. § 1088 (made applicable to prohibition proceedings by Code Civ. Proc. § 1105), in all proceedings for writ of mandate or prohibition [see Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule § 9.31(d); San Diego Co. Coordinated Ct. Rules, Div. II, Rule 10.11]. Under this procedure, the petitioner serves with the petition a notice of motion specifying a hearing date, the opposing party files a return, a hearing is held, and the court decides whether or not to issue a peremptory writ [see, e.g., Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule § 9.31(d); San Diego Co. Coordinated Ct. Rules, Div. II, Rule 10.11; see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005, 1006 (noticed motion procedure)]. No alternative writ is sought or issued.

Although the noticed-motion procedure is employed less frequently than the alternative writ procedure, counsel should consider utilizing when feasible or when it is preferred by the court, as it is more direct than the alternative writ procedure [see also § 358.82[6]].

[3] Appellate Courts

Although there is no statutory authority that would prevent a petitioner from noticing a motion for the issuance of a peremptory writ, such a procedure seems never to be followed in the appellate courts.

[4] Parties to Be Served

Copies of the notice and petition must be served "on each person against whom the writ is sought" [Code Civ. Proc. § 1088]. The respondent is certainly such a person; and, because the writ is sought against the interests of a real party in interest, it is apparent that each real party in interest must also be served. This view is supported by Code Civ. Proc. § 1107, which requires proof of service on both the respondent and each real party in interest, and by some decisions [see also Younger v. Jordan (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 757, 758-759, 269 P.2d 616 (real party in interest as indispensable party and, thus, entitled to service)].

[5] Proof of Service

In a trial court, when no alternative writ is sought, proof of service of a copy of the petition need not accompany the application for a writ at the time of filing, but proof of service of a copy of the filed petition must be lodged with the court prior to a hearing or any action by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1088.5].

[6] Time Required

Petitioner must give at least 10 days notice to respondent and real party in interest [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1088]. Petitioner must give lengthier notice to respondent, however, when no alternative writ is sought and proof of service of a copy of the petition is not filed at the same time as the petition pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1088.5. In that case, when a record of the proceedings to be reviewed has been filed with the petition in the trial court or when no record is required, respondent has 30 days after service of the petition to answer or otherwise respond. When a record of the proceeding to be reviewed has been requested but has not been filed with the petition, the party on whom the petition has been served, including any real party in interest, has 30 days following receipt of a copy of the record to answer or otherwise respond [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1089.5].

[2] Use of Form

The order to show cause in [1], above, may be used to give the notice required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1088 when petitioning for a writ of mandate or prohibition in a superior court. It is used in place of the noticed motion set out in § 358.142 [see also § 358.141]. It is for use in superior courts and not in appellate courts since appellate courts prepare their own orders to show cause or alternative writs.

[Respondent or Real Party in Interest or both]

[2] Use of Form

The demurrer set forth in [1], above, is for use in either a superior or an appellate court when either respondent or real party in interest demurs to a petition for a writ of mandate [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1089].

A party filing a demurrer must serve with it a notice of hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(c)] and a memorandum in support of each of its grounds [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)]. For discussion and forms regarding a memorandum of points and authorities, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[3] Time for Return

The demurrer must be filed on the date for the return of the alternative writ or, if the noticed-motion procedure is used and proof of service is filed with the petition, the date on which the application is noticed to be heard [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1089, 1105].

When a petition filed in the trial court pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1088.5 (no alternative writ sought and proof of service not filed with petition), and when a record of the proceedings to be reviewed has been filed with the petition or when no record is required, the respondent must answer or otherwise respond within 30 days after service of the petition. If, however, a record of the proceeding to be reviewed has been requested pursuant to Gov. Code § 11523 (Administrative Procedure Act), or otherwise, and has not been filed with the petition, the party on whom the petition has been served, including any real party in interest, must answer or otherwise respond within 30 days following receipt of a copy of the record [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1089.5, 1105].

The demurrer must be filed within 30 days after the court issues the alternative writ or order to show cause or notifies the parties that it is considering issuing a peremptory writ in the first instance [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(b)(2)].

[4] Joint Filing

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(h)(1) expressly allows the respondent and real party in interest to file a joint demurrer in an original proceeding. Such filing is not expressly permitted in a superior court, but there seems to be no reason for prohibiting it.

[5] Effect of Filing Demurrer Alone

In a superior court, if the return is by demurrer alone, and the demurrer is overruled, the court may allow an answer to be filed within such time as it may designate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1089]. Nevertheless, the court may also refuse to allow the subsequent filing of an answer, in which case it may issue a peremptory writ without leave to answer [Rhyne v. Municipal Court (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 807, 819, 170 Cal. Rptr. 312 (discretion of superior court to refuse filing of answer); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(b)(4) (discretion of appellate court to refuse filing of answer)]. Thus, it is good practice generally to file an answer with a demurrer, to avoid the possibility that a demurrer filed alone will be overruled without leave to file an answer.

[6] Motion to Quash as Recognized Alternative Procedure

A court has statutory authority and inherent power to recall and quash an alternative writ that has been issued inadvertently on a misapprehension of the facts involved [Joerger v. Superior Court (1934) 2 Cal. App. 2d 360, 363, 37 P.2d 1084]. A motion to quash a writ of mandamus or prohibition is the equivalent of a demurrer [Motors Ins. Corp. v. Division of Fair Employment Practices (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 209, 216, 173 Cal. Rptr. 332 (mandate proceeding); Joerger v. Superior Court (1934) 2 Cal. App. 2d 360, 364, 37 P.2d 1084 (prohibition proceeding)].

[2] Use of Form

The answer in [1], above, is for use in either a superior or an appellate court when a respondent or real party in interest files a verified answer to a petition for a writ of mandate or prohibition [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1089; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(b)(1)].

[3] Time for Answer

The answer must be filed on the date for the return of the alternative writ or, if the notice motion procedure is being followed by petitioner, on the date on which the motion has been noticed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1089]. The answer must be filed within 30 days after the court issues the alternative writ or order to show cause or notifies the parties that it is considering issuing a peremptory writ in the first instance [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(b)(2)]. For discussion of when the respondent must answer a petition that does not seek an alternative writ, see § 358.144[3], above.

[4] Joint Filing

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(b)(1) expressly allows the respondent and real party in interest to file a joint answer in an original proceeding. Such filing is not expressly permitted in a superior court, but there seems to be no reason for prohibiting it.

[5] Verification

The return to a petition by use of an answer must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 1089; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(b)(1)]. The verification of the petition presented in § 358.130 may be modified for this purpose.

[5a] Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons

Each party to an appeal must serve and file a Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons at the time it files its first document in the Court of Appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.208(c)] and must include a copy of the certificate in its principal brief [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(d)]. The petitioner's certificate must be included in the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.488(c)(1)]. The certificates of the respondent and real party in interest must be included in their preliminary opposition or, if no such opposition is filed, in their return, if any. The certificate must appear after the cover and before the tables [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.488(c)(3)].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by petitioner in replying to the answer of respondent or real party in interest. It is important for petitioner to file and serve such a replication whenever an answer containing affirmative allegations has been made by respondent, real party in interest, or both, because affirmative averments contained in the answer to the petition are accepted as true unless they are controverted by either pleading or proof [Lotus Car Ltd. v. Municipal Court (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 264, 268, 69 Cal. Rptr. 384].

[3] Verification

There is no express requirement that a replication be verified. Because the petition and answer must be verified, however, it may be assumed that a verification of the replication ought to be included. The verification of the petition presented in § 358.130 may be modified for this purpose by changing the word "petition" to "replication."

[4] Service

Unless the court orders otherwise, the petitioner may serve and file a reply within 15 days after the return or opposition is filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(b)(3)]. Either service by mail or personal service would be acceptable [see generally Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

[5] Continuance

It may be necessary for petitioner's counsel to seek a continuance of the hearing so that a replication can be prepared to controvert the affirmative allegations of the answer. Counsel may also need time to gather evidence that will sufficiently countervail the allegations of the answer.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a petitioner in whose favor the superior court has decided the matter and for whom, consequently, a judgment will be rendered. The appellate courts will include the judgment in the opinion embodying the decision in the case; therefore, this form will not be used when the mandate or prohibition proceeding has been in one of those courts.

[3] Preparation of Written Judgment

In the superior courts of most counties, it is customary for the judge to order counsel for one of the parties to prepare, serve on the others, and submit to the court a proposed judgment. If a statement of decision has been requested, the court may prepare the statement of decision and proposed judgment or order a party to do so [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(a)-(f)]. If a statement of decision has not been requested or has been waived and a written judgment is required, the court may prepare the proposed judgment or may order a party to prepare it [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(h)]. In either case, any party may object to the proposed statement of decision and/or proposed judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(g), (j)].

For discussion and forms relating to statements of decision generally, see Ch. 529, Statement of Decision . For discussion and forms related to judgments generally, see Ch. 318, Judgments .

[4] Notice of Entry of Judgment

Except for specified family law proceedings, small claims actions, and actions and proceedings in which a prevailing party is not represented by counsel, the prevailing party is required to serve notice of entry of judgment on all the parties and file the original of the notice with proof of service [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.5(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1109].

Judge

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a respondent or real party in interest in whose favor the superior court has decided the matter and for whom, consequently, a judgment will be rendered. The appellate courts will include the judgment in the opinion embodying the decision in the case; therefore, the foregoing form will not be used when the mandate or prohibition proceeding has been in one of those courts.

For a judgment for petitioner, see § 358.147.

To _____ [name], Respondent:

[EITHER, if writ is peremptory writ of mandate]

WHEREAS petitioner served and filed herein his/her/its duly verified petition for a writ of mandate [, an alternative writ of mandate issued herein on _____ (date),] and a hearing was held herein on _____ (date);

[OR, if writ is peremptory writ of prohibition]

WHEREAS petitioner served and filed herein his/her/its duly verified petition for a writ of prohibition, _____ [an alternative writ of prohibition issued herein on _____ (date) or notice having been given], and a hearing having been held herein on _____ (date);

[CONTINUE]

WHEREAS it appears to this court that petitioner has no other plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law;

[EITHER, if writ is peremptory writ of mandate]

WHEREAS it appears to this court that you _____ [have failed to perform your legal duty or have abused your discretion or have failed to exercise your discretion by _____ (specify facts constituting grounds for relief)];

THEREFORE, you _____ [name of respondent] are hereby commanded, _____ [immediately after receipt of this writ or on or before _____ (date)], to _____ [set forth with particularity what the judgment orders respondent to do].

Witness the Honorable _____ [name], Judge of the Superior Court.

Attest my hand and the seal of this court his _____ day of _____ [date].

_____ [signature]
Clerk
By _____ [signature]
Deputy Clerk

[2] Use of Form

The form of peremptory writ in [1], above, is for use by a petitioner who has prevailed in a mandate or prohibition proceeding in a superior court. The use of the paragraph requiring a return is optional and, since the respondent will usually be another court, is not included ordinarily.

In the Supreme Court and the courts of appeal, the court's opinion constitutes its judgment and thus ordinarily serves as sufficient direction to the respondent and real party in interest. If the respondent fails to comply, petitioner should draft a peremptory writ, have it issued by the clerk of the court, and serve it on respondent [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1015] in the same manner as a summons [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1096].

Chapter 359 MARRIAGE
PART I. SCOPE

32-359 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 359.01

§ 359.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the regulation of marriage by the state, possible constitutional grounds for challenging state regulation of marriage and family life, and the right to marry and legal restrictions on that right. The legal effects of marriage are also discussed, including spousal rights to contract regarding property, the mutual obligation of support owed by one spouse to the other, evidentiary privileges arising from marriage, the effect of marriage on minority status and the right to parental support, and the effect of marriage on credit. This chapter includes a form of complaint for an action brought against both spouses by a creditor who supplied necessaries to one spouse while the spouses were living together (see § 359.230).

For a complete discussion of the effect of marriage on property rights and the characterization of property, see Ch. 122, Community Property . For discussion of the procedures for dissolution of a marriage, see Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure . For discussion of the procedures for annulment of a void marriage, see Ch. 25, Annulment (Nullity) of Marriage and Related Spousal Rights .

This chapter also discusses the formal requirements for a valid marriage, including the issuance of marriage licenses to adults and minors, and the process of solemnizing and authenticating a valid marriage. It also covers criminal penalties for certain wrongful acts done in connection with marriage licensing, solemnization, and authentication, and the effect of deviations from the formal requirements on the validity of a marriage. A sample marriage license application and certificate of registry is provided (see § 359.250), as are an application for an order granting permission for a minor's marriage (see § 359.251) and various forms of order granting such permission (see §§ 359.252 -359.254).

This chapter also discusses common law marriages, proxy marriages, tribal alliances, and other unconventional marriage arrangements. It discusses the general rule that out-of-state marriages are recognized in California if they were valid in the place they were contracted [Fam. Code § 308], and the various exceptions to the rule. It also covers confidential marriages contracted under the California Confidential Marriage Act [Fam. Code § 500 et seq.].

This chapter also discusses the effect of marriage between an alien and a United States citizen or a permanent resident on the alien's visa status. It covers the preferential visa status accorded spouses of United States Citizens and resident aliens, the conditional residency period that may be imposed on the alien spouse under specified circumstances, the investigatory power of the Immigration and Naturalization Service concerning marriages involving aliens, and the penalties for marriage fraud perpetrated in order to obtain an alien's entry into the United States.

For discussion of immigration and naturalization generally, see Gordon & Mailman, Immigration Law and Procedure (Matthew Bender).

This chapter also discusses proof of a marriage other than a marriage with an alien. The presumption that a ceremonial marriage is valid, the exceptions to the hearsay rule that may be useful in proving the existence of a marriage, and procedures for establishing the existence and validity of a marriage are covered. A petition to have the validity of a marriage judicially established (see § 359.270), and a petition to establish an official record of marriage (see § 359.271), are included in this part.

Chapter 359 MARRIAGE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Legal Aspects Of Marriage

32-359 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 359.10

§ 359.10 State Regulation of Marriage

[1] Marriage as State-Regulated Status

The Legislature has defined marriage as a personal relation arising out of a civil contract between a man and a woman [Fam. Code § 300]. The rights, duties, and obligations of that relation [see discussions in § 359.17[1], [3], and [4]] rest not on their agreement but on the general law of the state, statutory or common, which defines and prescribes those rights, duties, and obligations [Ikuta v. Ikuta (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 787, 790, 218 P.2d 854] . Marriage is, therefore, a status, based on and arising out of a preexisting contract [Vaughn v. Vaughn (1944) 62 Cal. App. 2d 260, 267, 144 P.2d 658] .

A frequently quoted dictum by the United States Supreme Court in 1888 expresses the view of marriage that has been generally accepted by courts since the turn of the century [Maynard v. Hill (1888) 125 U.S. 190, 210-211, 8 S. Ct. 723, 31 L. Ed. 654] :

> It is also to be observed that, whilst marriage is often termed by text writers and in decisions of courts a civil contract--generally to indicate that it must be founded upon the agreement of the parties, and does not require any religious ceremony for its solemnization--it is something more than a mere contract. The consent of the parties is of course essential to its existence, but when the contract to marry is executed by the marriage, a relation between the parties is created which they cannot change. Other contracts may be modified, restricted, or enlarged, or entirely released upon the consent of the parties. Not so with marriage. The relation once formed, the law steps in and holds the parties to various obligations and liabilities. It is an institution, in the maintenance of which in its purity the public is deeply interested, for it is the foundation of the family and of society, without which there would be neither civilization nor progress.

[2] Power of State to Regulate Marriage

The power of the state to regulate marriage is justified as an exercise of the police power [see Stokes v. County Clerk (1953) 122 Cal. App. 2d 229, 232, 264 P.2d 959] . The police power is the power inherent in a government to enact laws within constitutional limits to protect the order, safety, health, morals, and general welfare of society. [In re Rameriz (1924) 193 Cal. 633, 649-650, 226 P. 914 ; see In re Quinn (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 473, 486, 110 Cal. Rptr. 881 (Legislature has "any power it chooses to exercise unless it is restricted by the federal or state Constitution")].

Most cases dealing with the state power to regulate the creation, incidents, and termination of marriage have failed to articulate explicitly the basis of the state's exclusive regulatory power. Instead, they have relied on categorical statements to the effect that regulation of marriage is solely within the province of the Legislature [see, e.g., Lockyer v. City & County of San Francisco (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 1055, 1074, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 225, 95 P.3d 459 ; Beeler v. Beeler (1954) 124 Cal. App. 2d 679, 682, 268 P.2d 1074] , or that the state has a vital interest in the institution of marriage, and plenary power to fix the conditions under which the marital status may be created or terminated [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Walton (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 108, 113, 104 Cal. Rptr. 472] .

The courts have been more explicit in articulating their views on the impact of the institution of marriage on the general welfare of society. The California Supreme Court has declared that the structure of society itself depends largely upon the institution of marriage, and that the joining of a man and woman in marriage is at once the most socially productive and individually fulfilling relationship that one can enjoy in the course of a lifetime [Marvin v. Marvin (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 660, 684, 134 Cal. Rptr. 815, 557 P.2d 106] . The courts have also said that marriage and procreation are "fundamental to the very existence and survival of the race" [Skinner v. Oklahoma (1942) 316 U.S. 535, 541, 62 S. Ct. 1110, 86 L. Ed. 1655 ; see Perez v. Sharp (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 711, 715, 198 P.2d 17] , and that marriage accomplishes the following social purposes [De Burgh v. De Burgh (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 858, 863-864, 250 P.2d 598 ; Woodworth v. Woodworth (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 301, 304, 51 Cal. Rptr. 410] :

- Channeling biological drives that might otherwise become socially destructive.
- Ensuring the care and education of children in a stable environment.
- Establishing continuity from one generation to another.
- Nurturing and developing the individual initiative that distinguishes free people.

Given the importance that the courts have traditionally attached to the institution of marriage, it is not surprising that the California Supreme Court has declared it to be the public policy of the state to foster and protect marriage, to encourage spouses to live together, and to prevent separation [Glickman v. Collins (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 852, 857, 120 Cal. Rptr. 76, 533 P.2d 204 ; see Evid. Code § 605].

Nevertheless, the intensive state regulation aimed at preserving the institution of marriage [see discussion in § 359.10[1]] may be subject to certain constitutional challenges, as discussed in § 359.10[4][a] and [b], below.

[3] Extent of State Regulation of Marriage

The state has appropriated the right to regulate virtually every aspect of the institution of marriage. State authority over the incidents of marriage includes almost exclusive control and regulation of the following matters [see Maynard v. Hill (1888) 125 U.S. 190, 205, 8 S. Ct. 723, 31 L. Ed. 654 ; In re Marriage of Walton (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 108, 112, 104 Cal. Rptr. 472] :

- Who may marry [see discussion in § 359.13[1]].
- The procedure for contracting a valid marriage [see discussion in § 359.40 et seq].
- The rights and duties imposed on married persons [see discussions in § 359.17[1], [3], and [4]].

- The procedure for dissolving marriage and the rights and duties imposed on former spouses by virtue of the fact that they were once married.

[4] Constitutional Challenges to State Regulation of Marriage

[a] Impairment of Contracts

Because marriage is a contractual relationship [Fam. Code § 300], it has been argued that state regulation of various aspects of the marital relationship, such as prescribing the grounds for dissolution, constitutes an impairment of contractual freedom in violation of the United States and California constitutions [see U.S. Const., art. I, § 10; Cal. Const., art. I, § 9]. Such contentions have been rejected on the ground that marital rights and obligations are not contractual rights and obligations within the meaning of the constitutional provisions prohibiting impairment. As discussed in § 359.10[1], marriage is considered more than an ordinary civil contract because of the interest of the state in the marital relationship and the consequent public policy surrounding the marital status [In re Marriage of Walton (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 108, 112, 104 Cal. Rptr. 472] .

[b] Right to Privacy

The United States Supreme Court recognizes the existence of a constitutional right of personal privacy [e.g., Zablocki v. Redhail (1978) 434 U.S. 374, 384, 98 S. Ct. 673, 54 L. Ed. 2d 618 ; Roe v. Wade (1973) 410 U.S. 113, 152, 93 S. Ct. 705, 35 L. Ed. 2d 147 ; Griswold v. Connecticut (1965) 381 U.S. 479, 485, 85 S. Ct. 1678, 14 L. Ed. 2d 510] . The court was originally in doubt as to the exact constitutional provision giving rise to the right of privacy [see Griswold v. Connecticut (1965) 381 U.S. 479, 484, 486-502, 85 S. Ct. 1678, 14 L. Ed. 2d 510] , but it has since established that the right of privacy is an aspect of the liberty guaranteed by the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution [Roe v. Wade (1973) 410 U.S. 113, 153, 93 S. Ct. 705, 35 L. Ed. 2d 147] .

Only personal rights that can be deemed fundamental or implicit in the concept of ordered liberty fall within the "zones of protection" afforded by the right of privacy. If a fundamental right is involved, regulation limiting the right may be justified only by a compelling state interest [Roe v. Wade (1973) 410 U.S. 113, 152, 155, 93 S. Ct. 705, 35 L. Ed. 2d 147] . As discussed in § 359.11, marriage is considered a fundamental right [Perez v. Sharp (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 711, 714, 198 P.2d 17] .

Many of the cases invalidating specific state statutes or local ordinances on privacy grounds have involved marriage and the family. For example, privacy considerations have been involved in the invalidation of laws prohibiting abortion [Roe v. Wade (1973) 410 U.S. 113, 152-166, 93 S. Ct. 705, 35 L. Ed. 2d 147] , miscegenation [Loving v. Virginia (1967) 388 U.S. 1, 12, 87 S. Ct. 1817, 18 L. Ed. 2d 1010] , and the dispensing of contraception information or devices [Carey v. Population Services International (1977) 431 U.S. 678, 684-692, 97 S. Ct. 2010, 52 L. Ed. 2d 675 ; Griswold v. Connecticut (1965) 381 U.S. 479, 484-486, 85 S. Ct. 1678, 14 L. Ed. 2d 510] . The right to privacy also served as the basis for striking down a city ordinance prohibiting occupancy of a dwelling unit by members of an extended family [Moore v. East Cleveland (1977) 431 U.S. 494, 505-506, 97 S. Ct. 1932, 52 L. Ed. 2d 531] and a state law that forbade issuance of a marriage license to a noncustodial parent whose child support payments were in arrears [Zablocki v. Redhail (1978) 434 U.S. 374, 390-391, 98 S. Ct. 673, 54 L. Ed. 2d 618] .

§ 359.11 Marriage as Fundamental Right

Marriage has been declared a fundamental right of free men and women. Thus, no prohibitions can be imposed on the right to marry except for an important social objective and by reasonable means [Loving v. Virginia (1967) 388 U.S. 1, 12, 87 S. Ct. 1817, 18 L. Ed. 2d 1010 ; Perez v. Sharp (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 711, 714, 198 P.2d 17.] . This test was applied to invalidate California's former antimiscegenation statutes [former Civ. Code §§ 60, 69], which had declared marriage between Caucasians and members of other races to be illegal and void and had prohibited county clerks from issuing marriage licenses to such couples [Perez v. Sharp (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 711, 715-718, 198 P.2d 17] .

Not every state regulation that relates in any way to the incidents of or requirements for marriage must be subjected to rigorous scrutiny. Reasonable regulations that do not significantly interfere with the decision to marry may legitimately be imposed. However, when a statute significantly interferes with the exercise of the right to marry, it cannot be upheld unless it is supported by important state interests and is closely tailored to effectuate only those interests [Zablocki v. Redhail (1978) 434 U.S. 374, 388, 98 S. Ct. 673, 54 L. Ed. 2d 618 ; see Turner v. Safley (1987) 482 U.S. 78, 94-99, 107 S. Ct. 2254, 96 L. Ed. 2d 64] . The United States Supreme Court struck down a Wisconsin statute that forbade a noncustodial parent of a minor child from marrying unless his or her child support payments were not in arrears and the child was not likely to become a public charge. The court held this statute to be a direct and substantial interference with the fundamental right to marry. The court invalidated the statute because it did not appear designed to achieve either of the purported state interests of providing counseling for the nonsupporting parent and protecting the welfare of out-of-custody children, even if it were assumed that both of these objectives constitute legitimate and substantial state interests [Zablocki v. Redhail (1978) 434 U.S. 374, 390-391, 98 S. Ct. 673, 54 L. Ed. 2d 618] .

This prohibition does not affect limitations when the intent was not to forbid marriage, but only to give the use of property until marriage [Civ. Code § 710].

§ 359.13 Absolute Prohibitions on Right to Marry

[1] Bigamous, Incestuous, and Same-Sex Marriages

There are only three absolute prohibitions on the right to marry in California. These are the prohibitions against bigamy [Fam. Code § 2201(a); see Penal Code §§ 281-284; discussion in § 359.13[2]], incestuous marriage [Fam. Code § 2200; see Penal Code § 285; discussion in § 359.13[3]], and same-sex marriage [see Fam. Code § 300; Lockyer v. City & County of San Francisco (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 1055, 1075-1076, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 225, 95 P.3d 459 ; see discussion in § 359.13[4]]. In all three cases, even assuming compliance with statutory requirements, the purported marriages would be void from the beginning [see, e.g., Lockyer v. City & County of San Francisco (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 1055, 1113-1114, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 225, 95 P.3d 459 (same-sex marriages performed by city officials acting outside their authority are void from inception)]. Furthermore, in the case of an incestuous or bigamous marriage, criminal penalties could be imposed [see Penal Code §§ 281-285].

[2] Bigamous Marriages

A bigamous marriage occurs if one of the spouses already has a living spouse, a previous marriage not having been dissolved or adjudged a nullity before the date of the bigamous marriage [Fam. Code § 2201; Penal Code §§ 281(a), 282(b)]. Ordinarily bigamous marriages are void [Fam. Code § 2201(a)]. However, a bigamous marriage is voidable, in a nullity proceeding, rather than void if (1) the preexisting spouse has been absent for five successive years immediately preceding the bigamous marriage and is not known to be living by the petitioner, and (2) the preexisting spouse was generally reputed to be dead or was believed by the petitioner to be dead at the time of the bigamous marriage [Fam. Code §§ 2201(a)(2), (b), 2210(b), 2211(b)].

When a bigamous marriage is voidable rather than void, a proceeding to declare the marriage a nullity may be brought by either spouse during the life of the other or by the preexisting spouse [Fam. Code § 2211(b)].

The prohibition against bigamy does not prevent bigamous marriages from taking place. The fact that one person entering into a marriage is already married is unlikely to be evident to one who issues a marriage license [see discussions in § 359.44[1] et seq.], solemnizes a marriage, or files a certificate of registry [see discussions in § 359.47[1] et seq.], unless this fact is voluntarily revealed by one of the spouses. Thus, bigamous marriages may be contracted and become a part of the public record. However, as discussed above, the public policy against bigamy is such that the legal incidents of such a marriage will, with a few limited exceptions, be nonexistent. Furthermore, the marriage will be subject to collateral attack in any proceeding in which its validity is raised [Estate of Karau (1938) 26 Cal. App. 2d 606, 607-608, 80 P.2d 108 ; cf. Estate of Anderson (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 436, 439, 442-444, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 266 (undivorced, bigamous spouse was prevented by doctrine of estoppel from asserting inheritance rights as surviving spouse against estate of legally recognized first spouse who died intestate)].

Any person who knowingly enters into a bigamous marriage is guilty of a crime [Penal Code §§ 281(a), 283, 284]. The crime of bigamy is punishable by a fine or by imprisonment in a county jail or in the state prison [Penal Code § 283]. The previously unmarried partner to a bigamous marriage is also subject to criminal punishment if he or she enters the bigamous marriage knowingly and willfully. The punishment is a fine or imprisonment in the state prison [Penal Code § 284]. However, in the case of a bigamous marriage entered into when the preexisting spouse has been absent for five successive years and is not known to the bigamous spouse to be living, the bigamous spouse and the new spouse will not be subject to criminal penalties [Penal Code § 282(a)]. Unlike the Family Code provision [Fam. Code § 2201(a)(2); see Fam. Code § 2210(b)(2)], the criminal statute does not require that the preexisting spouse be "generally reputed or believed" to be dead. Every person authorized to solemnize marriage who willfully and knowingly solemnizes any bigamous or other marriage forbidden by law is punishable by fine or by imprisonment in the county jail or by both [Penal Code § 359].

The prohibition against bigamy has been challenged on First Amendment grounds as an unconstitutional limitation on the free exercise of religion. However, the United States Supreme Court has ruled that a state legislature may declare monogamy to be the law of social life under its dominion, even though such a rule may curtail certain religious practices [Davis v. Beason (1890) 133 U.S. 333, 10 S. Ct. 299, 33 L. Ed. 637] .

Nullity proceedings are discussed in further detail in Ch. 25, Annulment (Nullity) of Marriage and Related Spousal Rights .

[3] Incestuous Marriages

An incestuous marriage is a marriage between persons who have one of the following relationships to each other [Fam. Code § 2200]:

- Parent and child.
- Ancestor and descendant.
- Brother and sister of the whole or half blood.
- Uncle and niece of the whole blood.
- Aunt and nephew of the whole blood.

An incestuous marriage is void from the beginning [Fam. Code § 2200], and contracting an incestuous marriage or engaging in an incestuous sexual relationship in California is a crime [Penal Code § 285]. If a marriage that would be incestuous under California law is validly contracted in another state or country, the spouses' vulnerability to prosecution for engaging in a sexual relationship in California would depend on whether the marriage is recognized in California under the general rule that marriages are valid here if they would be valid where they were performed [see Fam. Code § 308], or denied recognition for being "incestuous by the laws of nature" [see McDonald v. McDonald (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 457, 459-460, 58 P.2d 163] . For further discussion, see § 359.74[2]. In cases involving incestuous marriages illegally contracted in other states or countries, California lacks jurisdiction to prosecute for the act of contracting the marriage, but may prosecute after the spouses return to California for acts of sexual intercourse that occur in the state [see People v. MacDonald (1938) 24 Cal. App. 2d 702, 711, 76 P.2d 121] . In order to find a defendant guilty of incestuous marriage, the jury must find not only that the spouses were related within the proscribed degree of consanguinity but also that the defendant knew that they were so related when the marriage or sexual act took place [People v. Russell (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 330, 336, 99 Cal. Rptr. 277] .

The prohibition against incestuous marriages does not appear to have been challenged in California on constitutional grounds.

As with bigamous marriages [see discussion in § 359.13[2]], incestuous marriages may be contracted and become a part of the public record [see People v. MacDonald (1938) 24 Cal. App. 2d 702, 711, 76 P.2d 121 (marriage contracted in Arizona between father and daughter)]. However, the incestuous marriage, because completely void [Fam. Code § 2200], will be subject to collateral attack in any proceeding in which its validity is raised, and the legal incidents of the marriage will be nonexistent.

[4] Same-Sex Marriages

In the 2009 case of Strauss v. Horton [Strauss v. Horton (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 364, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591, 207 P. 3d 48] , the California Supreme Court addressed the question of whether same-sex marriage may be prohibited under California law. The Court began by summarizing California law relating to marriage and same-sex couples, namely

- Fam. Code § 300, which defines marriage as a personal relation arising from a civil contract between a man and a woman.

- Fam. Code § 308.5, which codifies Proposition 22 approved by California voters in March 2000, and states that only marriage between a man and a woman is valid or recognized in California. It follows federal legislation (the Defense of Marriage Act) [Pub. L. No. 104-199, § 3(a)], which defines "marriage" and "spouse" under federal law to include only partners of the opposite sex [1 U.S.C. § 7], and provides that a state is not required to recognize same-sex marriages performed in other states [28 U.S.C. § 1738C].

- Lockyer v. City & County of San Francisco, in which the Court held that Fam. Code § 300 limits marriage in California to marriage between a man and a woman, and prohibits persons of the same sex from lawfully marrying in California [Lockyer v. City & County of San Francisco (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 1055, 1117, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 225, 95 P.3d 459] . In this case, the Court was faced with the question of whether public officials in the City and County of San Francisco acted lawfully in issuing marriage licenses to same-sex couples in the absence of a judicial determination that the California statutes limiting marriage to a union between a man and a woman were unconstitutional. It concluded that the public officials acted unlawfully in issuing licenses in the absence of such a judicial determination, but emphasized that the substantive question of the constitutional validity of the marriage statutes was not before the court in this proceeding.

- In re Marriage Cases, in which the Court addressed the constitutional validity of the California marriage statutes (Fam. Code §§ 300, 308.5) that limit marriage to a union between a man and a woman. The Court held that these statutes were unconstitutional insofar as they exclude same-sex couples from the designation of marriage [In re Marriage Cases (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 757, 848-856, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 683, 183 P.3d 384] . The Court concluded that same-sex couples, as well as opposite-sex couples, enjoy the protection of the constitutional right to marry that is embodied in the privacy and due process provisions of the California Constitution. By granting access to the designation of "marriage" to opposite-sex couples, while denying this access to same-sex couples, the California marriage statutes impinge on the privacy and due process rights of same-sex couples and violate their right to equal protection of the laws that is guaranteed by the California Constitution. To remedy these constitutional violations, the California marriage statutes should be interpreted to grant both opposite-sex and same-sex couples access to the designation of marriage and to the rights inherent in that institution [In re Marriage Cases (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 757, 829, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 683, 183 P.3d 384] .

- Proposition 8, an initiative approved by voters in November 2008, which adds a new section [Cal. Const. art. I, § 7.5) to article I of the California Constitution. It provides that "[o]nly marriage between a man and a woman is valid or recognized in California."

In Strauss v. Horton, the Court was asked to decide whether Proposition 8 constitutes a permissible change to the California Constitution, and, if it does, the effect, if any, that it has on the estimated 18,000 same-sex marriages that were performed after In Re Marriage was issued in May 2008 and the adoption of Proposition 8 in November 2008 [Strauss v. Horton (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 364, 385, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591, 207 P.3d 48] . The Court concluded that Proposition 8 is a permissible constitutional amendment, not an impermissible constitutional revision, and that it does not violate the separation of powers doctrine and is not invalid under an "inalienable rights" theory [Strauss v. Horton (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 364, 390-391, 474, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591, 207 P.3d 48] . It applies both to marriages performed in California and to those performed in other jurisdictions [Strauss v. Horton (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 364, 405-406, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591, 207 P.3d 48] . The Court observed that if there is to be a change to the state constitutional rule embodied in that measure, it must "find its expression at the ballot box" [Strauss v. Horton (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 364, 474-475, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591, 207 P.3d 48] . The Court also concluded that Proposition 8 does not apply retroactively. Therefore, the marriages of same-sex couples that were performed between the time of the Court's decision in In re Marriage Cases and the effective date of Proposition 8 (November 5, 2008), remain valid in all respects and must continue to be recognized in this state [Strauss v. Horton (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 364, 470-474, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591, 207 P. 3d 48] .

The Court noted that Proposition 8 did not entirely repeal or abrogate a same-sex couple's state constitutional rights of privacy, due process, and equal protection that the Court had previously recognized in In re Marriage Cases. In that case, the Court noted that same-sex couples have a constitutional right to "choose one's life partner and enter with that person into a committed, officially recognized, and protected family relationship that enjoys all of the constitutionally based incidents of marriage" [In re Marriage Cases (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 757, 829, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 683, 183 P.3d 384] . Instead, the Court concluded that Proposition 8 carves out a narrow and limited exception to these state constitutional rights by reserving the official designation of the term "marriage" for the union of opposite-sex couples as a matter of state constitutional law, while leaving undisturbed all of the other extremely significant substantive aspects of a same-sex couple's state constitutional rights to establish an officially recognized and protected family relationship with the person of one's choice and to raise children within that family [Strauss v. Horton (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 364, 387-388, 390-391, 408-409, 411-412, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591, 207 P.3d 48]. Section 7.5 of article I that was added by Proposition 8 does not affect the continued validity of the provisions of the California Constitution that protect the familial rights of same-sex couples, except to the extent that those rights include access to the designation of "marriage" [Strauss v. Horton (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 364, 409, 411-412, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591, 207 P.3d 48] .

[5] Domestic Partnerships

Although same-sex couples are not permitted to marry under California law, if they register as domestic partners under the California Domestic Partner Rights and Responsibilities Act of 2003 (the Domestic Partner Act) (Fam. Code §§ 297-299.6), which became effective January 1, 2005 [Stats. 2003, ch. 421, § 2], they have the same rights, protections, and benefits, and are subject to the same responsibilities, obligations, and duties under law, whether derived from statutes, administrative regulations, court rules, government policies, common law, or any other provisions or sources of law, as are granted to and imposed on spouses [Fam. Code § 297.5(a)]. These rights and responsibilities are extended to current domestic partners, former domestic partners, and surviving domestic partners [Fam. Code § 297.5(a)-(c)]. As the California Supreme Court has noted, by enacting the Domestic Partner Act, the legislature has made clear its intention to substantially equalize the status of registered domestic partners and spouses [Koebke v. Bernardo Heights Country Club (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 824, 836, 839, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 565, 115 P.3d 1212] . To couples who meet the requirements of establishing a domestic partnership under the Domestic Partner Act and who have registered under that Act, the legislature has granted legal recognition comparable to marriage both procedurally and in terms of the substantive rights and obligations granted to and imposed on partners, which are supported by policy considerations similar to those that favor marriage [Koebke v. Bernardo Heights Country Club (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 824, 845, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 565, 115 P.3d 1212] . Registered domestic partners are granted significant rights and bear important responsibilities toward one another by virtue of the Domestic Partner Act, which are not shared by couples who cohabit or who have not registered as domestic partners [Koebke v. Bernardo Heights Country Club (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 824, 845, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 565, 115 P.3d 1212] .

The Supreme Court has also noted that the practical considerations served by the policy favoring marriage are now also promoted by the Domestic Partner Act. For example, the required declaration of domestic partnership provides a readily verifiable method of proof for determining eligibility for services and benefits; and the mutual obligations undertaken by registered domestic partners, comparable to those of spouses, minimizes any economic risk to third parties that extend services and benefits to domestic partners [Koebke v. Bernardo Heights Country Club (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 824, 845, 847, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 565, 115 P.3d 1212 (registered domestic partners occupy legal status that, like marital status, is formalized, public, and verifiable)].

The Supreme Court has held that in light of the legislature's intent to create a policy favoring domestic partnerships similar to the policy favoring marriage, the Unruh Act (Civ. Code § 51) requires businesses to treat registered domestic partners the same as married couples, and precludes them from granting married couples benefits they deny to persons registered as domestic partners [Koebke v. Bernardo Heights Country Club (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 824, 836-837, 845-846, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 565, 115 P.3d 1212] . Subsequent to this decision, Civ. Code § 51 was amended to prohibit discrimination based on marital status or sexual orientation [Stats. 2005, ch. 420, § 3].

By enacting the Domestic Partner Act, however, the legislature has not created a "same-sex marriage" by another name [Knight v. Superior Court (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 14, 19, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 687] . The Act does not violate Proposition 22, which was intended only to limit the status of marriage to heterosexual couples and to prevent the recognition in California of same sex marriages that have been, or may in the future be, legitimized by laws of other jurisdictions [Knight v. Superior Court (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 14, 18, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 687] . Proposition 22 was not intended to protect the institution of marriage by precluding the legislature from giving the rights and benefits of marriage to alternative relationships [Knight v. Superior Court (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 14, 22, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 687] .

There are still a number of dissimilarities between the rights conferred by marriage and domestic partnership. Domestic partners are not entitled to many of the benefits the federal government provides to married couples, such as marital benefits related to social security, Medicare, federal housing, food stamps, veterans' benefits, military benefits, and federal employment benefit laws [Knight v. Superior Court (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 14, 21, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 687] . Registered domestic partners are entitled to file their California income tax returns jointly or separately on terms similar to those governing spouses [Rev. & Tax. Code § 18521(c)-(f)]. The earned income of registered partners may be recognized as community property. Registered partners who file separate income tax returns must each report one-half of their combined earned income, rather than their respective individual incomes for the taxable year [Rev. & Tax. Code § 17024.5(h)(2)(B)].

A same-sex union, other than a marriage, that is validly formed in another jurisdiction, and that is substantially equivalent to a domestic partnership under the Domestic Partner Act, will be recognized as a valid domestic partnership in California regardless of whether it bears the name domestic partnership [Fam. Code § 299.2]. It will not, however, be recognized as a marriage [Fam. Code § 308.5].

A growing number of cities, in California and other states, have adopted ordinances designed to extend some of the employee benefits enjoyed by married city employees to same-sex couples and other unmarried couples. These "domestic partners" ordinances, as they are often called, typically require the couple to file an affidavit or declaration stating that they have lived together for at least the minimum number of months required by the ordinance, share the common necessaries of life, and are each other's sole domestic partner, before claiming the benefits [Note, Domestic Partnership Recognition in the Workplace: Equitable Employee Benefits for Gay Couples (and Others), 51 Ohio State L. J. 1067 (1990)]. Some private employers also have benefits plans designed to provide equitable coverage for unmarried employees with nonmarital partners.

Same-sex couples and other unmarried couples may also use powers of attorney and powers of attorney for health care to secure for themselves the rights to manage one another's property and to be involved with one another's health care decisions [see Prob. Code §§ 4000 et seq., 4400 et seq., 4600 et seq. (Power of Attorney Law; Uniform Statutory Form Power of Attorney Act; Health Care Decisions Law)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Legal Aspects Of Marriage

32-359 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 359.14

§ 359.14 Defects Rendering Marriage Voidable

[1] Minority

In addition to the absolute prohibitions on bigamous, incestuous, and same-sex marriages, there are certain defects in the capacity to marry that may neither prevent the parties from satisfying the formal requirements for marriage nor render the marriage void. One of these defects is minority [see Fam. Code §§ 301, 302, 2210(a)]. Minority is not a complete bar to contracting a valid marriage. A minor may secure the issuance of a valid marriage license by obtaining and filing parental and court consents in accordance with statutory procedures [see Fam. Code §§ 302, 353; discussion in § 359.45[1] et seq.]. If a minor evades these requirements and obtains a license and enters into a marriage without having filed the appropriate consents, the marriage thus contracted is voidable at the request of the minor, the minor's parent, guardian, or conservator, or the person having charge of the minor [Fam. Code § 2211(a)]. An action to void a minor's marriage may be brought by the minor at any time within four years after he or she reaches the age of consent (18) [Fam. Code § 2211(a)(1)]. If the action is brought by a person other than the minor, it must be brought before the minor reaches the age of consent [Fam. Code § 2211(a)(2)]. A minor's marriage cannot be voided if the minor freely cohabits with his or her spouse for any length of time after reaching the age of consent [Fam. Code § 2210(a)].

The right to marry without parental and judicial consent is not one of the rights conferred by emancipation, regardless of whether the emancipation occurs under the terms of the Emancipation of Minors Law [Fam. Code § 7000 et seq.] or under pre-1978 case law [see Fam. Code § 7001]. Emancipation of minors is discussed in Ch. 364, Minors .

[2] Force and Fraud

The use of force or fraud in the procurement of either spouse's consent to the marriage will render the marriage voidable [Fam. Code § 2210(d), (e); see In re Marriage of Liu (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 143, 155-156, 242 Cal. Rptr. 649 (marriage annulled when wife fraudulently entered into marriage to obtain green card and had no intention of consummating marriage); see also In re Marriage of Meagher & Maleki (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 1, 6-7, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663 (marriage may only be annulled for fraud that relates to matter which state deems vital to marriage relationship)]. No specific statutory provision prohibits the issuance of a marriage license to a person whose consent to the marriage was obtained by force or fraud. In any case, these defects may easily escape the notice of both the person issuing the license and the person solemnizing the marriage. If a license is obtained and the marriage is solemnized, the marriage will be valid, although subject to the right of the injured spouse to seek a judgment of nullity [Fam. Code § 2210(d), (e)].

A proceeding to annul a marriage due to the use of force in the procurement of the marriage must be brought within four years after the marriage [Fam. Code § 2211(e)]. The injured spouse's right to bring such a proceeding terminates if he or she freely cohabits with the other spouse after the marriage [Fam. Code § 2210(e)]. A proceeding to annul a marriage due to fraud in the procurement of the marriage must be brought within four years after discovery of the facts constituting the fraud [Fam. Code § 2211(d)], and the injured spouse's right to bring the proceeding terminates if he or she freely cohabits with the other spouse after obtaining full knowledge of the facts constituting the fraud [Fam. Code § 2210(d)].

[3] Unsound Mind and Incurable Disability to Consummate Marriage

A marriage contracted by a person of unsound mind is voidable at the request of that person or his or her relative or conservator [Fam. Code §§ 2210(c), 2211(c)]. A proceeding to adjudge the marriage a nullity may be commenced at any time before the death of either spouse [Fam. Code § 2211(c)], unless the person of unsound mind has freely cohabited with the other spouse after coming to reason [Fam. Code § 2210(c)]. The few reported cases concerning annulment for reasons of unsound mind do not set forth a precise definition of this term. It seems likely that, at the very least, competent medical testimony would be required to establish the existence of the purported illness or condition [see Vitale v. Vitale (1957) 147 Cal. App. 2d 665, 305 P.2d 690] .

The marriage of a person who is physically incapable of entering into the marriage state is voidable within four years after the marriage takes place, if the incapacity continues and appears to be incurable [Fam. Code §§ 2210(f), 2211(f)]. The term "physically incapable of entering into the marriage state" refers to the ability to consummate the marriage, not the ability to procreate [Stepanek v. Stepanek (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 760, 762, 14 Cal. Rptr. 793 ; see Aufort v. Aufort (1935) 9 Cal. App. 2d 310, 311, 49 P.2d 620 (marriage may be voidable for fraud if one spouse has concealed his or her inability to procreate)]. A proceeding to annul a marriage on the basis of a spouse's physical incapability to enter into the marriage state may be brought by "the injured party" [Fam. Code § 2211(f)]. Apparently, this means the normal spouse [see, e.g. Stepanek v. Stepanek (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 760, 762, 14 Cal. Rptr. 793] .

A marriage license may not be issued when either applicant lacks the capacity to enter into a valid marriage [Fam. Code § 352]. This prohibition would not seem to apply to persons of unsound mind, since such persons are not incapacitated from marrying, but may marry subject to their right to obtain an annulment. No statute specifically prohibits the issuance of a marriage license to a person who lacks the capability to consummate the marriage.

Chapter 359 MARRIAGE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Legal Aspects Of Marriage

32-359 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 359.15

§ 359.15 Marriage of Persons Convicted of Crimes

California does not consider the fact that a person has been convicted of a crime to constitute a defect in the person's capacity to marry. The right to marry is one of the civil rights guaranteed to inmates in state prisons [Penal Code § 2601(e)].

Although conceding that inmate marriages pose special security problems and that prison security is an important state interest, the United States Supreme Court held that a prison regulation permitting inmates to marry only if they obtained permission from the Superintendent of Prisons, and providing that such permission should be granted only in the case of a pregnancy or the birth of a child to an unmarried woman, was impermissible under both the strict-scrutiny test generally applicable to fundamental rights and the reasonable-relationship test urged by prison officials [Turner v. Safley (1987) 482 U.S. 78, 97, 107 S. Ct. 2254, 96 L. Ed. 2d 64] .

Nevertheless, while the right to marry survives imprisonment, many attributes of marriage, such as cohabitation, physical intimacy, and bearing and raising children, do not [Gerber v. Hickman (9th Cir. 2002) 291 F.3d 617, 621] . Thus, the constitutional rights of a married prisoner are not violated by the refusal of a state prison to allow him to provide his wife with a sperm specimen for artificial insemination [Gerber v. Hickman (9th Cir. 2002) 291 F.3d 617, 620-623] .

§ 359.16 Marriage of Conservatees

The appointment of a conservator of the person or estate or both does not affect the capacity of the conservatee to marry [Prob. Code § 1900]. However, on the petition of the conservator, the conservatee, any relative or friend of the conservatee, or any interested person, a court may determine whether a conservatee has the capacity to enter into a valid marriage [Prob. Code § 1901(a), (b)].

A limited conservator may be granted the power to consent or withhold consent to the marriage of the limited conservatee, if a request for such authority is made in the petition for appointment of a limited conservator [Prob. Code § 2351.5(b)(3)].

A. Legal Aspects Of Marriage

32-359 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 359.17

§ 359.17 Legal Rights and Duties Incident to Marriage

[1] General Rights

The marriage relation gives rise to reciprocal rights and obligations between the parties, and also affects their status in society at large [Estate of Axcelrod (1944) 23 Cal. 2d 761, 767, 147 P.2d 1] . The rights incident to married status include the following:

- The right to live together as husband and wife, and to hold oneself out to the public as married;

- The right to submit joint income tax returns [I.R.C. § 6013];

- The right to bring tort actions for loss of consortium [see discussion in § 359.17[3]] or wrongful death if a third party injures or kills the other spouse [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60; Rodriguez v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 382, 408, 115 Cal. Rptr. 765, 525 P.2d 669] ;

- The right to refuse to be called as a witness against or to testify against one's spouse in certain actions and proceedings [Evid. Code §§ 970 et seq., 980 et seq.; see discussions in § 359.18[1] et seq.];

- The right to division of community property on dissolution of the marriage [see Fam. Code § 2500 et seq.];

- The right to seek spousal support on termination of the marriage [see Fam. Code § 4300 et seq.];

- The power of testamentary disposition over half of the community property of the marriage [Prob. Code §§ 100, 6101(b)];

- The right to take all community property and a portion of the decedent's separate property if a spouse dies intestate [Prob. Code § 6401(a), (c)];

- The right to half of the spouses' quasi-community property on the death of a spouse [Prob. Code § 101], and the right to succeed to all of the quasi-community property of the marriage when a spouse dies intestate [Prob. Code § 6401(b)];

- The right of a surviving spouse in some cases to a probate homestead and family allowance from the estate of a decedent spouse [see Prob. Code §§ 6520 et seq., 6540 et seq.; discussion in § 359.17[5][g]]; and

- The right to priority in the receipt of certain government payments and benefits.

[2] Right to Contract Regarding Property and Other Matters

Spouses (and prospective spouses) may enter into binding property agreements between themselves that, if otherwise valid under the law of contracts, generally will be given effect by courts in later family law or other proceedings, so long as they are not unconscionable or have an improper purpose, or otherwise violate public policy [see Fam. Code §§ 721, 1500, 1620; In re Marriage of Dawley (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 342, 357-358, 131 Cal. Rptr. 3, 551 P.2d 323 ; see also In re Marriage of Mehren & Dargan (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1167, 1171, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 522 (spouses' unenforceable contract in which husband promised to grant wife all of his interest in their community property if he used illicit drugs); Diosdado v. Diosdado (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 470, 473-474, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 494 (spouses' unenforceable contract for liquidated damages in event of sexual infidelity contravened public policy)].

Specific statutory schemes govern various types of agreements. For example, premarital agreements that have been executed on or after January 1, 1986, are subject to the provisions of Fam. Code § 1500 et seq. and to Fam. Code § 1600 et seq. (Uniform Premarital Agreement Act) [see Fam. Code § 1601]. Premarital agreements executed before that date remain subject to the provisions of former law [see Fam. Code § 1503; former Civ. Code §§ 1624(3), 5133-5137 (applicable to premarital agreements executed before January 1, 1986)]. For a complete discussion of premarital agreements and forms for drafting such agreements, see California Family Law Practice and Procedure, Ch. 201 (Matthew Bender 2d ed.).

Property agreements between spouses that are entered into during an ongoing marriage are subject to certain general provisions, including Fam. Code §§ 721, 1500 et seq., and 1620. In general, except as otherwise provided by law, spouses cannot by a contract "alter their legal relations" except with respect to property [Fam. Code § 1620]. Spouses are permitted, for example, to change or "transmute" the character of property from separate to community, or otherwise [see Fam. Code § 850 et seq.]. However, they cannot "alter their legal relations" by, for example, contracting to waive or limit the right to support from one another, except in the context of an agreement for their separation or for the termination of their marriage [see generally Fam. Code §§ 3580, 4302; Estate of Kalal (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 841, 851, 175 Cal. Rptr. 582 ; see additional discussion, in § 359.17[5][d]].

In transactions between themselves, spouses are subject to the general rules governing fiduciary relationships that control the actions of persons occupying confidential relations with each other. This confidential relationship imposes a duty of the highest good faith and fair dealing [Fam. Code § 721(b)]. Nevertheless, subject to this duty, they may enter into any transaction with one another or any other person that either might if unmarried [see Fam. Code § 721(a); see also Fam. Code § 1100(e)].

For a general discussion of spousal fiduciary duties and rights to manage and control property, see Ch. 122, Community Property . For discussion of agreements between spouses made in contemplation of dissolution of marriage in general, see Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation . For discussion of agreements concerning child custody, child support, and spousal support that are made in the context of dissolution proceedings, see Ch. 223, Dissolution of Marriage: Child Custody and Ch. 224, Dissolution of Marriage: Child Support . For a complete discussion of postnuptial agreements and forms for drafting such agreements, see California Family Law Practice and Procedure, Ch. 210 (Matthew Bender 2d ed.).

[3] Consortium

Consortium is the right of one spouse to have the company, affection, and service of the other [e.g., Borelli v. Brusseau (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 647, 653, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16] . As each spouse has such a right, each spouse also has the corresponding duty. Spouses owe each other a mutual duty to provide personal attention and care. For example, each is bound "to offer ... sympathy, confidence, and fidelity" to the other [In re Marriage of Rabie (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 917, 922, 115 Cal. Rptr. 594] . Each spouse is obligated to provide nursing-type care to the other when the other is sick [Borelli v. Brusseau (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 647, 652, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16] .

One important legal consequence of consortium is that a separate contract (apart from the marriage contract) by which one spouse is to receive compensation from the other for providing the personal attention and care that consortium comprises would be void as against public policy (as well as unsupported by consideration) [Borelli v. Brusseau (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 647, 652, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16] . In addition, a spouse is entitled to recover damages from a third person whose wrongful acts cause a loss of consortium [Elden v. Sheldon (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 267, 277, 250 Cal. Rptr. 254, 758 P.2d 582 ; but see Zwicker v. Altamont Emergency Room Physicians Medical Group (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 26, 35, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 912 (no loss of consortium action for premarital injury)].

[4] General Duties

The obligations and limitations inherent in the marital status include:

- The spouses' mutual duty of support [Fam. Code §§ 720, 4300; see discussions in § 359.15[5][a] et seq.];

- The prohibition against contracting a second marriage before the first has terminated [Fam. Code § 2201(a); see Penal Code §§ 281(a), 283, 284; discussion in § 359.13[2]];

- In the absence of an enforceable contract providing otherwise [see Fam. Code §§ 1500 et seq., 1600 et seq.], the operation of the community property system [see Fam. Code § 760 et seq.] on the spouses' property;

- The prohibition against spouses contracting to alter their legal relations [Fam. Code § 1620]; and

- The obligation of spouses, in their property contracts with each other, to adhere to the rules regulating contracts between persons in a confidential relationship [Fam. Code § 721(b)].

The fact of marriage also gives rise to presumptions regarding the parent-child relation [Fam. Code §§ 7540, 7611 (presumption that child of wife cohabiting with her husband is child of husband; other facts giving rise to presumption of paternity)], which in turn give rise to duties of support [Fam. Code §§ 3900, 3910] and inheritance rights [Prob. Code § 6402(a)].

[5] Mutual Obligation of Support

[a] Binding Duty of Support

Upon entering into the marital relationship, the husband and wife assume mutual obligations of support [Fam. Code §§ 720, 4300]. The obligation of support is an implicit term of the marriage relationship, and has been said to be as binding on husband and wife as if an express avowal of the obligation had been made [Boyd v. Boyd (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d

374, 379, 39 Cal. Rptr. 400] .

The duty of spousal support in the context of dissolution and legal separation is discussed in Ch. 225, Dissolution of Marriage: Spousal Support .

[b] Support Defined

The term "support" is usually defined in monetary terms, and has been said to be synonymous with "maintenance" [In re Lazar (1940) 37 Cal. App. 2d 327, 332, 99 P.2d 342 , disapproved on other grounds, Bradley v. Superior Court (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 509, 522, 310 P.2d 634] . At minimum, the obligation of support means that each spouse must supply the other with the "necessaries of life," if he or she is able to do so and the other spouse is in need [see Fam. Code § 914(a)].

Support can be viewed both as an obligation owing from spouse to spouse and as an obligation to pay creditors when the other spouse contracts debts for the necessaries of life [see Fam. Code § 914(a)]. Necessaries of life generally include all goods and services reasonably incurred for and on account of the family, such as wearing apparel, furniture, food, habitation, and medical treatment [see Department of Mental Hygiene v. Kolts (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 154, 157, 55 Cal. Rptr. 437] . There is authority for the view that the mutual obligation of support encompasses not only those items that constitute necessaries, but includes an obligation to support the other spouse according to the spouses' station in life and means [Nielsen v. Richards (1925) 75 Cal. App. 680, 685, 243 P. 697] .

[c] Sources of Support

When the spouses are living together, one spouse must support the other out of his or her separate property if there is no community or quasi-community property [Fam. Code § 4301; In re Marriage of Epstein (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 76, 83, 154 Cal. Rptr. 413, 592 P.2d 1165 ; see Fam. Code § 914]. If one spouse incurs a debt for the necessaries of life [see discussion in § 359.17[5][b]], the separate property of the other spouse is liable for payment of the debt; however, the liability attaches only to debts for the "common necessaries of life" if the spouses were living separately when the debt was incurred [Fam. Code § 914(b)].

For further discussion of the liability of community and separate property for debts incurred before and during marriage, see Ch. 122, Community Property .

[d] Waiver of Support

Under the general rule that spouses are prohibited from contracting to alter their legal relations [Fam. Code § 1620], spouses are generally prohibited from contracting either to waive or to limit spousal support obligations during marriage [In re Marriage of Higgason (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 476, 485, 110 Cal. Rptr. 897, 516 P.2d 289] .

Agreements to waive or limit support on dissolution or legal separation are discussed in Ch. 225, Dissolution of Marriage: Spousal Support .

[e] Duration of Support Obligation

The mutual obligation of support between spouses arises with the creation of the marital relationship, and exists during the mutual lifetime of the spouses [see generally Fam. Code §§ 720, 4300; In re Marriage of Dawley (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 342, 352, 131 Cal. Rptr. 3, 551 P.2d 323] . A person is not liable for support of his or her spouse when the spouses are living separate by agreement, unless support is stipulated in the agreement [Fam. Code § 4302]. Such an agreement must be in writing in order to be enforceable [Fam. Code § 3580]. As of this writing, there were no reported cases dealing with the question of whether the duty to support one's spouse continues when the separation is not by agreement, such as when one spouse abandons the other.

The authority of the court to order spousal support during the pendency of an action for dissolution or legal separation [see Fam. Code § 3600], and after the entry of a judgment of dissolution or legal separation [see Fam. Code § 4330], is discussed in Ch. 225, Dissolution of Marriage: Spousal Support .

[f] Support of Incompetent Spouse

The duty to support one's spouse does not cease when the spouse becomes incompetent [Guardianship of Thrasher (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 768, 776, 234 P.2d 230] or is institutionalized [Department of Mental Hygiene v. Kolts (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 154, 156-158, 165, 55 Cal. Rptr. 437] . When a spouse has been hospitalized in a state mental institution, the other spouse is liable for the cost of his or her care [Welf. & Inst. Code § 7275]. This liability may be enforced by the Department of Health Services [Welf. & Inst. Code § 7282].

When one spouse has a conservator and the other spouse has the management or control of the spouses' community property, a petition may be brought in the court in which the conservatorship proceeding is pending to compel the spouse who has the management or control of the community property to apply the community property to the support of the conservatee [Prob. Code § 3080].

[g] Right to Family Allowance and Homestead on Death of Spouse

On the death of a spouse, the surviving spouse and children are entitled to such reasonable family allowance out of the estate as is necessary for their maintenance, according to their circumstances, during administration of the estate [Prob. Code § 6540(a)]. The right to a family allowance is conditioned on the surviving spouse's entitlement to support from the decedent at the time of the decedent's death [Estate of Kalal (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 841, 847, 175 Cal. Rptr. 582] . For further discussion, see Ch. 448, Probate: Family Allowance .

A decedent's surviving spouse and minor children are entitled to remain in possession of the family home until 60 days after the inventory of the estate is filed or for such other period as is ordered by the probate court [Prob. Code § 6500]. They may also petition the court to set aside, for a limited time, a probate homestead out of the decedent's estate [Prob. Code §§ 6520, 6524]. For further discussion, see Ch. 294, Homesteads , and Ch. 449, Probate: Exempt Personal Property and Probate Homesteads .

[h] Enforcement of Support Obligation

The duty to support one's spouse may be enforced during the marriage through a civil proceeding against the supporting spouse brought by the supported spouse or, in some situations, by the county [Fam. Code § 4303; see Fam. Code § 4800 et seq. (Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act)]. The county obtains a right to reimbursement from one spouse for the support of the other spouse when one spouse has received public assistance from the county [In re Marriage of Shore (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 290, 296, 139 Cal. Rptr. 349] .

It is a misdemeanor for a spouse to fail to provide the necessary food, clothing, shelter, and medical attention for the other spouse when he or she has the ability to provide for such support, unless there was justification for the failure to provide support [Penal Code § 270a; see Fam Code §§ 4810, 4811].

[6] Prohibited "Heartbalm" Actions

Although married persons are free to bring civil actions against one another, there is a group of legal actions that are statutorily prohibited from being brought by spouses or any other persons. These actions, whether based on contract or tort theories of recovery, are collectively referred to as "heartbalm" actions because of their historic use to redress the emotional pain caused by a breakup of the parties' interpersonal relationship, often as the result of the involvement of a third person [see Askew v. Askew (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 942, 954-957, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 284 ; see also Diosdado v.

Diosdado (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 470, 473-474, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 494 (spouses' unenforceable contract for liquidated damages in event of sexual infidelity)]. The "anti-heartbalm" statutes, Civ. Code §§ 43.4 and 43.5, prohibit a person from bringing a civil action based on any of the following grounds [see Civ. Code §§ 43.4, 43.5; Askew v. Askew (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 942, 953-957, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 284 ; Boyd v. Boyd (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 374, 378, 39 Cal. Rptr. 400 ; Jacks v. Jacks (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 852, 853, 295 P.2d 921] :

(1) Alienation of affection;

(2) Criminal conversation;

(3) Seduction of a person over the age of legal consent;

(4) Breach of promise of marriage; or

(5) Fraudulent promise to marry or to cohabit after marriage.

Courts look to the substance of the action, rather than to how the action is characterized or plead by the plaintiff, in determining whether it is, in reality, a "heartbalm" action. For example, a court will not permit an action for "fraud," when it actually constitutes one of the prohibited actions [see Askew v. Askew (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 942, 953-957, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 284 (husband's action for wife's purported "fraudulent" misrepresentations of attraction before marriage was subject to dismissal as improper "breach of promise" action)].

For a general discussion of tort actions between spouses, including the abolition of the former interspousal disability in maintaining actions for certain personal torts, see Levy, Golden & Sacks, California Torts, Ch. 58 (Matthew Bender) [see Klein v. Klein (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 692, 693-694, 26 Cal. Rptr. 102, 376 P.2d 70 ; Self v. Self (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 683, 689, 26 Cal. Rptr. 97, 376 P.2d 65] .

Chapter 359 MARRIAGE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Legal Aspects Of Marriage

32-359 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 359.18

§ 359.18 Evidentiary Privileges Arising From Marriage

[1] Two Distinct Privileges

Two separate evidentiary privileges arise as the result of a marital relationship. The first protects confidential communications between spouses from disclosure [see Evid. Code § 980 et seq.]. The other is a testimonial privilege [see Evid. Code § 970 et seq.], which has two aspects: (1) the privilege not to testify against one's spouse [Evid. Code § 970] and (2) the privilege not to be called as a witness against one's spouse [Evid. Code § 971].

These marital evidentiary privileges are based on the public policy to preserve the confidence that is held to arise naturally from the relationship of husband and wife [People v. Peak (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 894, 903, 153 P.2d 464 , disapproved on other grounds, People v. Hood (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 444, 454, 82 Cal. Rptr. 618, 462 P.2d 370] . The social benefits arising from these privileges are held to justify any risk that an unjust decision may occur as the result of either of the privileges being invoked [see People v. Flores (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 559, 565, 139 Cal. Rptr. 546] .

A spouse who seeks to suppress evidence by virtue of the marital privileges has the burden of proving that he or she comes within the terms of the privileges as set forth in the Evidence Code [Tanzola v. De Rita (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 1, 6, 285 P.2d 897] .

[2] When Privileges May Be Asserted

The privilege not to testify against a spouse may be asserted by a married person in any proceeding [Evid. Code § 970], and the privilege not to be called as a witness by a party adverse to one's spouse may be asserted by a married person whenever the spouse is a party to a proceeding [Evid. Code § 971]. The privilege to prevent disclosure of confidential marital communications may be asserted in any proceeding, except as otherwise provided by statute [Evid. Code § 910].

"Proceeding" means any action, hearing, investigation, inquest, or inquiry in which, pursuant to law, testimony can be compelled to be given, whether conducted by a court, administrative agency, hearing officer, arbitrator, legislative body, or any other person authorized by law [Evid. Code § 901]. The privileges are applicable in civil proceedings [Evid. Code § 970; see Evid. Code § 902] and, with certain exceptions [see Evid. Code §§ 972(e), (f), 985, 987], criminal proceedings [Evid. Code §§ 902, 903]. They may also be asserted in out-of-court proceedings such as depositions and interrogatories [Frey v. Superior Court (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 201, 203, 46 Cal. Rptr. 747] .

Statutes making the rules of evidence inapplicable in particular proceedings or limiting the applicability of rules of evidence in particular proceedings do not affect the rules of evidence relating to privilege [Evid. Code § 910]. Therefore, although the Evidence Code does not generally apply in grand jury proceedings [Evid. Code § 300], the privileges are available in such proceedings [see Ex parte McDonough (1915) 170 Cal. 230, 235, 149 P. 566] . However, because a potential defendant under investigation in a grand jury proceeding does not have the status of a party [In re Lemon (1936) 15 Cal. App. 2d 82, 84-85, 59 P.2d 213] , his or her spouse cannot invoke the privilege not to be called as a witness in a grand jury investigation. The privilege not to testify against one's spouse and the confidential communications privilege are applicable to grand jury proceedings, because they do not require that either spouse be a party to the proceeding [see Evid. Code §§ 970, 980; see also In re Grand Jury Investigation of Hugle (9th Cir. 1985) 754 F.2d 863, 864-865] .

[3] Testimonial Privilege

[a] Dual Nature of Testimonial Privilege

The testimonial privilege has two aspects. First, except as otherwise provided by statute, a married person has a privilege not to testify against his or her spouse in any proceeding [Evid. Code § 970; see Sabado v. Moraga (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1, 5 n.4, 234 Cal. Rptr. 249] . Second, except as otherwise provided by statute, a married person whose spouse is a party to a proceeding has a privilege not to be called as a witness by an adverse party in that proceeding without the prior express consent of the spouse having the privilege [Evid. Code § 971]. Thus, the first aspect of the privilege, while not protecting a spouse from being called as a witness, protects the spouse from being compelled to testify against the other spouse regardless of whether the other spouse is a party to the proceeding. The second aspect of the privilege is broader in that it protects a spouse from being called as a witness rather than merely from testifying, but it is narrower in that it applies only when the other spouse is a party to the proceeding.

Limitations on the application of the testimonial privilege discussed under the subsections, below, apply equally to the two aspects of the privilege unless otherwise indicated.

[b] Who May Invoke Testimonial Privilege

The privilege to refuse to testify or to refuse to be called as a witness belongs only to the spouse whose testimony is sought [People v. Bradford (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 333, 342-343, 74 Cal. Rptr. 726, 450 P.2d 46 , cert. denied, 399 U.S. 911 (1970)] , and may not be claimed by the spouse against whom the testimony is to be offered [People v. Dorsey (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 706, 120 Cal. Rptr. 508] . Thus, with regard to both aspects of the privilege, the spouse about whom the testimony is to be given cannot prevent the other spouse from testifying or from being called as a witness [People v. Chavez (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 422, 429, 68 Cal. Rptr. 759] .

[c] Requirement of Valid Marriage

The testimonial privilege extends only to a person who is legally married at the time the privilege is asserted. The privilege does not apply in the case of a void marriage because the relationship that exists between the parties to a void marriage is not one that the law has traditionally desired to protect [People v. Mabry (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 430, 439-440, 78 Cal. Rptr. 655, 455 P.2d 759 , cert. denied, 406 U.S. 972 (1972)] . Thus, for example, the privilege does not apply to bigamous or incestuous marriages [People v. Keller (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 419, 423, 332 P.2d 174 ; see discussions in §§ 359.13[2], [3]].

A spouse who is in a marriage that is moribund, abandoned, or no longer viable, may nevertheless claim the testimonial privilege so long as the marriage is still legally intact. Hence, a wife who had not even seen her husband for 17 years prior to his charged commission of a double murder, could assert the privilege not to testify against him at the preliminary hearing [Jurcoane v. Superior Court (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 886, 900, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 483 (construing Evid. Code §§ 970-973)].

The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals held that mere suspicious timing of a marriage does not support a finding of a sham marriage that would preclude a witness from asserting the marital privilege against adverse spousal testimony. The court reversed a district court order that had held a wife in civil contempt for refusing to testify in grand jury proceedings that concerned her husband. The wife had lived with the husband for two years and had married him after being subpoenaed, but before appearing in court [In re Grand Jury Proceedings (9th Cir. 1985) 777 F.2d 508, 508-509] .

Note, however, that federal courts interpreting Federal Rules of Evidence are expressly permitted to engage in common-law development of privileges and exceptions, while courts construing the privileges under the California Evidence Code are not. Unlike the California statutory scheme, federal rules provide an extremely broad exception to privileges. Therefore, a federal court's liberal interpretation of an exception to a privilege under federal common law may not apply to California law [see Jurcoane v. Superior Court (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 886, 892-900, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 483 (spousal testimonial privilege applied even though spouses were estranged for 17 years prior to husband's charged crimes)].

[d] Scope of Testimonial Privilege

The privilege of a married person not to testify applies only to testimony against his or her spouse [Evid. Code § 970]. Thus, for example, in a case in which a husband and wife were joined as defendants and plaintiff sought to depose the wife regarding her name, address, and ownership of an automobile, the privilege not to testify did not apply because such information did not constitute testimony against her husband [Dean v. Superior Court (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 892, 893, 230 P.2d 362] . Similarly, spouses joined as defendants could not invoke the testimonial privilege to refuse to answer interrogatories relating to their own personal liability. The answers to the interrogatories did not require either spouse to testify against the other [Frey v. Superior Court (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 201, 203-204, 46 Cal. Rptr. 747] . A married person has no privilege to refuse to testify for his or her spouse [People v. Coleman (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 1159, 1167, 80 Cal. Rptr. 920, 459 P.2d 248] .

The testimonial privilege applies only in proceedings in which the witness's spouse is a party and in which the person is called as a witness by a party adverse to his or her spouse [Evid. Code § 971]. Thus, a married person cannot avoid being called as a witness by his or her own spouse or by a party who is not adverse to the party spouse.

The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals has held that a witness's grand jury testimony may be admissible hearsay at trial even if the witness subsequently married the defendant and invoked the spousal privilege not to testify at the spouse's later trial [United States v. Marchini (9th Cir. 1986) 797 F.2d 759, 762-765 , cert. denied, 479 U.S. 1085 (1987) ; see Fed. Rules of Evid., Rule 804].

[e] Exceptions to Testimonial Privilege

Exceptions to the testimonial privilege are limited to those expressly created by the Legislature, and no other exceptions to the applicability of the privilege may be added by judicial construction [Stein v. Superior Court (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 21, 24, 344 P.2d 406] . The Legislature has determined that a married person may not invoke the testimonial privilege in the following proceedings [Evid. Code § 972]:

(1) Proceedings brought by or on behalf of one spouse against the other spouse;

(2) Proceedings to commit or otherwise place a spouse or a spouse's property, or both, under the control of another because of the spouse's alleged mental or physical condition;

(3) Proceedings brought by or on behalf of a spouse to establish his or her competence;

(4) Juvenile court proceedings [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 200 et seq.];

(5) Criminal proceedings in which one spouse is charged with:

(a) A crime against the person or property of the other spouse or of a child, including a foster child [see Dunn v. Superior Court (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 721, 725-726, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 365] , parent, relative, or cohabitant of either, whether committed before or during marriage;

(b) A crime against a third person or the property of a third person committed in the course of committing a crime against the person or property of the other spouse, whether committed before or during marriage [see People v. Sinohui (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 205, 220, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 783, 47 P.3d 629] ;

(c) Bigamy [see discussion in § 359.13[2]]; or

(d) Neglect or abandonment of child or destitute spouse [see Penal Code §§ 270, 270a];

(6) Proceedings resulting from a criminal act that occurred before legal marriage of the spouses to each other regarding knowledge acquired before that marriage, if before the legal marriage, the witness spouse was aware that his or her spouse had been arrested for or had been formally charged with the crime or crimes about which the spouse is called to testify;

(7) Proceedings brought against the spouse by a former spouse so long as the property and debts of the marriage have not been adjudicated, or in order to establish, modify, or enforce a child, family, or spousal support obligation arising from the marriage to the former spouse;

(8) Proceedings brought against a spouse by the other parent in order to establish, modify, or enforce a child support obligation for a child of a nonmarital relationship of the spouse;

(9) Proceedings brought against a spouse by the guardian of a child of that spouse in order to establish, modify, or enforce a child support obligation of the spouse; and

(10) Proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. § 708.110 et seq. for the examination of a judgment debtor [Code Civ. Proc. § 708.130(b)].

In the described proceedings against the other spouse, the married person does not have a privilege to refuse to provide information relating to the issues of income, expenses, assets, debts, and employment of either spouse, but may assert the privilege not to testify against his or her spouse if other information is requested by the former spouse or the guardian or other parent of the child [Evid. Code § 972(g)]. Any person demanding the otherwise privileged information in any of the described proceedings against the other spouse, who also has an obligation to support the child for whom an order to establish, modify, or enforce child support is sought, waives his or her marital privilege to the same extent as the spouse from whom the privileged information is demanded [Evid. Code § 972(g)].

[f] Waiver of Testimonial Privilege

A married person waives the privilege not to testify and not to be called as a witness against his or her spouse whenever he or she either (a) testifies in a proceeding to which the other spouse is a party or (b) testifies against the other spouse in any proceeding [Evid. Code § 973(a)].

Once a spouse has waived either aspect of the testimonial privilege in a given proceeding, neither aspect of the privilege may be reasserted in that proceeding [Evid. Code § 973(a)]. Thus, for example, a spouse who testifies against his or her spouse at a preliminary hearing may not later refuse to testify at the trial [People v. Lankford (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 203, 210, 127 Cal. Rptr. 408 , disapproved on other grounds, People v. Collins (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 687, 695 n.4, 131 Cal. Rptr. 782, 552 P.2d 742] . Likewise, once the testimonial privilege has been waived, the spouse cannot rely on it to limit the extent of questioning on cross-examination [People v. Odmann (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 693, 696-697, 325 P.2d 495] .

There is no waiver when the married person was erroneously compelled to testify [Evid. Code § 973(a)], or when waiver of the privilege was involuntary or coerced [see People v. Lankford (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 203, 210, 127 Cal. Rptr. 408 , disapproved on other grounds, People v. Collins (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 687, 695 n.4, 131 Cal. Rptr. 782, 552 P.2d 742] .

[4] Privilege for Confidential Marital Communications

[a] Nature of Privilege

A spouse (or a spouse's guardian or conservator, if applicable), whether or not he or she is a party to the relevant proceeding, has a privilege to refuse to disclose and to prevent another from disclosing a communication made in confidence to or by the other spouse while they were husband and wife [Evid. Code § 980]. The privilege protecting confidential marital communications from disclosure may be invoked after, as well as during, the marriage and may be asserted by either or both of the spouses or by a former spouse. Thus this privilege differs from the testimonial privilege in two major respects.

[b] Meaning of Communication

The privilege for confidential marital communications primarily protects verbal exchanges between the spouses. It does not prevent disclosure of physical facts that one spouse observed about the other [see People v. Dorsey (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 706, 120 Cal. Rptr. 508] , nor does it prevent one spouse from being compelled to identify the handwriting of the other [see People v. Saidi-Tabatabai (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 981, 986, 86 Cal. Rptr. 866] . Similarly, a married person cannot rely on the privilege to refuse to disclose information such as the delivery of a deed, the passing of letters between husband and wife, or the actions that were taken as the result of a conversation [Tanzola v. De Rita (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 1, 6-7, 285 P.2d 897] .

There is no requirement that confidential marital communications must be oral. The privilege may be applied to written communications if, under the circumstances, oral communications would be entitled to protection from disclosure [see People v. Daniels (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 367, 377, 81 Cal. Rptr. 675] .

[c] Presumption of Confidentiality and Rebuttal of Presumption

The privilege exempting marital communications from disclosure applies only to those communications between a husband and wife that are confidential [Evid. Code § 980]. The critical factor in determining whether or not a marital communication qualifies as confidential is whether the spouses had a reasonable expectation of confidentiality at the time the communication was made [People v. Carter (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 748, 753, 110 Cal. Rptr. 324 , cert. denied, 419 U.S. 846 (1974)] . The presence or absence of third parties is not always of critical importance in determining whether or not the spouses had a reasonable expectation of confidentiality. The spouses may have a reasonable expectation of confidentiality in the presence of an eavesdropper [see North v. Superior Court (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 301, 310-311, 104 Cal. Rptr. 833, 502 P.2d 1305] and yet not have an expectation of confidentiality when only the two of them are present. For example, a reasonable expectation of confidentiality did not exist where a husband made verbal threats against third persons (who were not present) while criminally assaulting his wife, particularly since the privilege would not have applied had the husband been prosecuted for the assault on his wife [People v. Carter (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 748, 752-753, 110 Cal. Rptr. 324 , cert. denied, 419 U.S. 846 (1974) ; see Evid. Code § 985].

In another case, a husband's statement, made while beating his wife, that "what happened to [his first wife] will happen to you" was held to be admissible at the husband's trial for murdering his first wife. The court's rationale for admitting the statement was that the second wife had testified concerning the statement at the preliminary hearing, at which time the husband was also charged with attempting to murder her, and the privilege was thus not applicable [see Evid. Code § 985]. Once the evidence was properly disclosed at the preliminary hearing, it lost its confidential character. However, the court also stated in dicta that it was doubtful that statements made by a spouse while that spouse is abusing the relationship on which the privilege is predicated are protected by the privilege [People v. Johnson (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 425, 437-438, 284 Cal. Rptr. 579 , cert. denied, 118 L. Ed. 2d 213 (1992)] .

Whenever a privilege is claimed on the ground that the matter sought to be disclosed is a confidential marital communication, the communication is presumed to be confidential and the opponent of the claim of privilege has the burden of proving that the communication was not confidential [Evid. Code § 917; North v. Superior Court (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 301, 310, 104 Cal. Rptr. 833, 502 P.2d 1305] . The presumption of confidentiality cannot be overcome merely by showing that good cause exists for the discovery or introduction of the evidence [see Romo v. Southern Pac. Transportation Co. (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 909, 922, 139 Cal. Rptr. 787] . A communication does not lose its privileged character for the sole reason that it is communicated by electronic means or because persons involved in the delivery, facilitation, or storage of electronic communication may have access to it [Evid. Code § 917(b)]. However, evidence of any of the following facts may be useful in rebutting the presumption of confidentiality:

(1) Other persons were openly present at the time of the communication [see People v. Castiel (1957) 153 Cal. App. 2d 653, 659, 315 P.2d 79] .

(2) The communication was made for the purpose of disclosing information to a third person [Solon v. Lichtenstein (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 75, 79, 244 P.2d 907] .

(3) The substance of the communication was repeated to others [Solon v. Lichtenstein (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 75, 80, 244 P.2d 907] .

[d] Jailhouse Conversations

In the absence of unusual circumstances, such as a deliberate attempt on the part of police officers to create an expectation of privacy, a jailhouse conversation between spouses is not deemed to be confidential [People v. Hill (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 731, 764-765, 117 Cal. Rptr. 393, 528 P.2d 1 , disapproved on other grounds, People v. De Vaughn (1977) 18 Cal. 3d 889, 896 n.5, 135 Cal. Rptr. 786, 558 P.2d 872] . For example, a communication is clearly not confidential when a prisoner is aware that the conversation is being monitored and even warns his or her spouse that the visiting room is bugged [People v. Santos (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 397, 401-402, 102 Cal. Rptr. 678] . However, there are circumstances under which a prisoner could reasonably believe that communications to his or her spouse were being made in confidence and that no officials could overhear the conversation. Under such circumstances, governmental intrusion, without prior judicial approval, may constitute an unreasonable search and seizure within the meaning of the Fourth Amendment [North v. Superior Court (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 301, 308-311, 104 Cal. Rptr. 833, 502 P.2d 1305] . In one such case, a jail officer gave a husband and wife his private office, left them alone, and shut the door so that they could talk. These circumstances, taken together with the presumption that spousal communications are confidential, constituted a sufficient showing of a reasonable expectation of confidentiality and made a secret tape recording of the conversation inadmissible [North v. Superior Court (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 301, 309-312, 104 Cal. Rptr. 833, 502 P.2d 1305] . Even in prison, relationships that the law has endowed with particularized confidentiality, such as that of husband and wife, must continue to receive protection [Lanza v. New York (1962) 370 U.S. 139, 143-144, 82 S. Ct.

1218, 8 L. Ed. 2d 384] .

[e] Who May Invoke Confidential Communications Privilege

The privilege to prevent disclosure of confidential marital communications may be asserted by either spouse, by the guardian or conservator of either spouse, or, if the communication occurred before termination of a former valid marriage, by either spouse from the former marriage [Evid. Code § 980].

The confidential marital communications privilege only extends to spouses who have been validly married [People v. Mabry (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 430, 440, 78 Cal. Rptr. 655, 455 P.2d 759 , cert. denied, 406 U.S. 972 (1972)] , but this includes persons who have entered into an out-of-state "common-law marriage" (see § 359.70, and § 359.74[2] below) that is in fact valid under the law of the state in which it was contracted. However, it is not applicable if such a purported common law marriage does not meet the requirements of the sister state in which it was contracted [People v. Badgett (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 330, 363-366, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 635, 895 P.2d 877 ; see Fam. Code § 308], and otherwise is not applicable when the marriage is void from the beginning [People v. Mabry (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 430, 439, 78 Cal. Rptr. 655, 455 P.2d 759 , cert. denied, 406 U.S. 972 (1972)] . However, the privilege arguably applies when a marriage is merely voidable, to protect confidential marital communication made before the marriage is adjudged a nullity [see People v. Mabry (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 430, 440, 78 Cal. Rptr. 655, 455 P.2d 759 , cert. denied, 406 U.S. 972 (1972) ; see also People v. Godines (1936) 17 Cal. App. 2d 721, 727, 62 P.2d 787] .

The confidential communication privilege differs from the testimonial privilege in that it is vested in each spouse [Evid. Code § 980]. Before either spouse is permitted to testify as to the contents of a confidential communication both spouses must consent to the disclosure. Thus, either spouse may claim the privilege on his or her own behalf, and may also prevent the other spouse from disclosing a confidential communication [People v. Dorsey (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 706, 120 Cal. Rptr. 508] .

The confidential communication privilege also differs from the testimonial privilege in that it survives the termination of a marriage--that is, it may be asserted both during and after the marriage [Evid. Code § 980; see In re Grand Jury Investigation of Hugle (9th Cir. 1985) 754 F.2d 863, 865] . It makes no difference whether the marriage relationship terminated by death [see Hixson v. International Harvester Co. (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 88, 96, 32 Cal. Rptr. 905] , dissolution [see People v. Dorsey (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 706, 120 Cal. Rptr. 508] , or annulment [People v. Godines (1936) 17 Cal. App. 2d 721, 727, 62 P.2d 787] , as long as the marriage was valid. Although the privilege may be asserted after the marriage has ended, it protects only those communications that were made during the period when the marriage was in effect [People v. Dorsey (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 706, 120 Cal. Rptr. 508] .

[f] Scope of Confidential Communications Privilege

The confidential communications privilege not only permits a spouse to refuse to disclose confidential marital communications, but also permits him or her to prevent another from disclosing such communications [Evid. Code § 980]. This means that the privilege may be asserted to prevent testimony by anyone, including an eavesdropper, as long as the communication in question is determined to be confidential [North v. Superior Court (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 301, 310, 104 Cal. Rptr. 833, 502 P.2d 1305] .

The privilege protects only the substance of confidential marital communications. It does not apply to relieve a spouse from disclosing whether or not an act of communication occurred between the spouses [People v. Saidi-Tabatabai (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 981, 986, 86 Cal. Rptr. 866] , nor does it give a spouse the right to ignore a subpoena, since at that point disclosure of a confidential communication is not yet at issue [see People v. Villarino (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 56, 62, 86 Cal. Rptr. 338] .

The privilege against disclosure of confidential marital communications has been closely limited by statute. The privilege does not apply to communications made, in whole or in part, to enable or aid anyone to commit or plan to commit a crime or fraud [Evid. Code § 981], nor does it apply in any of the following proceedings:

(1) A proceeding to commit either spouse or otherwise to place the spouse or his or her property in control of another because of the spouse's alleged mental condition [Evid. Code § 982];

(2) A proceeding brought by or on behalf of a spouse to establish his or her competence [Evid. Code § 983];

(3) A proceeding brought by one spouse against the other [Evid. Code § 984];

(4) A proceeding between a surviving spouse and a person who claims through the deceased spouse [Evid. Code § 984];

(5) A proceeding in which one spouse is charged with a crime committed against the person or property of the other spouse or a child of either, or with a crime committed against the person or property of a third party in the course of committing a crime against the person or property of the other spouse [Evid. Code § 985];

(6) A proceeding in which one spouse is charged with bigamy, child neglect, or abandonment of a destitute spouse [Evid. Code § 985];

(7) A proceeding brought under the Juvenile Court Law [Evid. Code § 986; see Welf. & Inst. Code § 200 et seq.]; or

(8) A proceeding in which the communication is offered in evidence by a defendant-spouse charged with a criminal offense [Evid. Code § 987].

As discussed in § 359.18[4][c], there is dicta to support the position that the privilege should not apply when the statement in question was made while the declarant spouse was physically abusing the other spouse, even if the proceeding in which disclosure is sought does not concern that abuse [see People v. Johnson (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 425, 437-438, 284 Cal. Rptr. 579 , cert. denied, 118 L. Ed. 2d 213 (1992)] .

[g] Waiver of Confidential Communications Privilege

The confidential marital communications privilege is waived if the holder of the privilege discloses a significant portion of the communication to someone other than his or her spouse or if the holder of the privilege has consented to such disclosure by someone else [Evid. Code § 912(a); see Feldman v. Allstate Insurance Co. (2003) 322 F.3d 660, 667-669 (limited waiver at deposition waived privilege); but see Eisendrath v. Superior Court (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 351, 362, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 716 , waiver principles applicable to Evid. Code privileges are inapplicable to confidential mediation communications)]. Consent may be manifested by any statement or conduct of the holder of the privilege indicating his or her consent to disclosure, including the failure to claim the privilege in any proceeding in which he or she has the standing and opportunity to claim the privilege [Evid. Code § 912(a)]. A waiver of the privilege by one spouse does not constitute a waiver by the other spouse and does not affect the right of the other to claim the privilege [Evid. Code § 912(b)].

To effect a waiver of the privilege, a disclosure must involve a significant part of the communication. The mere disclosure of the existence of a communication or of the confidential relationship is not sufficient [see Roberts v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 330, 340, 107 Cal. Rptr. 309, 508 P.2d 309] .

It would appear that the privilege must be asserted at the earliest possible time or else the privilege is waived as to that particular communication for the duration of the proceeding [see Evid. Code § 912(a)]. It has also been held that disclosure of a communication at a point in the proceedings when it is not protected strips the communication of its confidential character, with the result that the privilege cannot be asserted as to that communication at a later point in the proceedings even if it would otherwise be protected at that time [People v. Johnson (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 425, 437-438, 284 Cal. Rptr. 579 , cert. denied, 118 L. Ed. 2d 213 (1992)] .

§ 359.19 Parties' Names

Parties to a marriage are not required to have the same name [Fam. Code § 306.5(a)]. Neither party is required to change his or her name, and a person's name does not change on marriage unless that person elects to change his or her name [Fam. Code § 306.5(a)].

On or after January 1, 2009, one or both parties to a marriage may elect to change the middle or last names by which that party wishes to be known after solemnization of the marriage by entering the new name in the spaces provided on the marriage license application without intent to defraud [Fam. Code § 306.5(b)(1)]. A person may adopt the current last name of the other spouse, the last name of either spouse given at birth, a name combining into a single last name all or a segment of the current last name or the last name of either spouse given at birth, or a hyphenated combination of last names [Fam. Code § 306.5(b)(2)]. Such an election serves as a record of the name change, and a certified copy of a marriage certificate containing the new name, or retaining the former name, constitutes proof that the use of the new name or retention of the former name is lawful [Fam. Code § 306.5(b)(3)(A)].

The adoption of a new name, or the choice not to adopt a new name, by means of a marriage license application, may only be made at the time the marriage license is issued [Fam. Code § 306.5(b)(4)]. After a marriage certificate is registered by the local registrar, it may not be amended to add a new name or change an adopted name [Fam. Code § 306.5(b)(4)].

§ 359.20 Emancipation of Minors Through Marriage

A minor who enters into a valid marriage is thereby emancipated, even if the marriage is later dissolved [Fam. Code § 7002(a)]. Emancipation, whether by marriage, assumption of active military duty [see Fam. Code § 7002(b)], or judicial emancipation proceedings [see Fam. Code §§ 7002(c), 7110 et seq.], removes many of the legal disabilities of minority [see Fam. Code § 7050]. It also terminates the minor's right to be supported by his or her parents [Fam. Code § 7050(a); see discussion in § 359.21].

For discussion of the requirements that must be satisfied in order for a minor's marriage to be valid, see § 359.45[1] et seq..

§ 359.21 Effect of Marriage on Authority and Duties of Parent or Guardian

Parental authority over a minor ceases on the marriage of the minor [Fam. Code § 7505(b)]. The following aspects of the parent-child relationship also cease with emancipation of the minor through marriage (or otherwise):

(1) The minor's right to be supported by the parents [Fam. Code § 7050(a)]. However, a parent is obligated to support his or her emancipated minor child who is incapacitated from earning a living and without sufficient means [Fam. Code § 3910(a); see Chun v. Chun (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 589, 596, 235 Cal. Rptr. 553] .

(2) The right of the minor's parents to the minor's earnings [Fam. Code § 7050(b)].

(3) The vicarious or imputed liability of the minor's parents for the minor's torts [Fam. Code § 7050(d)].

(4) The right of the minor's parents to establish the minor's residence [Fam. Code § 7050(e)(15)].

(5) The necessity for the minor to obtain parental consent for a work permit [Fam. Code § 7050(e)(16); see Educ. Code § 49110].

(6) The right of the state to make the minor a ward of the court for being beyond the control of his or her parents, guardian, or custodian, or for refusing to obey the reasonable and proper orders or his or her parents, guardian, or custodian [Fam. Code § 7050(c); Welf. & Inst. Code § 601(a)].

A guardianship of the person of a minor terminates on the marriage of the minor [see Prob. Code § 1600(b) (also providing for termination of guardianship through minor's adoption or other emancipation)]. However, a guardianship of the estate of a minor continues, despite the minor's marriage, until the minor attains majority [Prob. Code § 1600(a)]. No guardian of the person may be appointed for a minor who is married or whose marriage has been dissolved, although a guardian may be appointed for a minor whose marriage has been annulled [Prob. Code § 1515].

§ 359.22 Effect of Marriage on Credit

No person may be denied credit or offered credit on less favorable terms because of his or her marital status or gender. Both federal law [15 U.S.C. § 1691 et seq. (Equal Credit Opportunity Act)] and state law [Civ. Code §§ 1747.80(a), 1812.30(c), (d)] prohibit such credit discrimination. Regardless of marital status, a person cannot be denied credit in his or her own name if the earnings and property over which he or she has management and control are such that a person of the opposite gender managing and controlling the same amount of earnings and property would receive credit [Civ. Code § 1812.30(a)]. Likewise, a person, regardless of marital status, who manages and controls earnings and other property cannot be offered credit on terms less favorable than those offered to a person of the opposite gender seeking the same type of credit and managing and controlling the same amount of earnings and other property [Civ. Code § 1812.30(b)].

All credit reporting agencies receiving information on both spouses on a joint credit account must file the information in a manner that would enable either spouse automatically to gain access to the credit history without having to refer to the other person, and the agency must provide access to all information about the account in the name of each spouse [Civ. Code § 1812.30(e); see Civ. Code § 1812.30(f) (slightly different requirements applicable to accounts established before 1977)].

For purposes of credit eligibility, spousal, family, and child support payments must be included in a married person's earnings and considered in the same manner as earnings from a salary or wages where they are received pursuant to a written agreement or court decree [Civ. Code § 1812.30(h)]. Although the creditor may evaluate the reliability of earnings in determining whether or not to extend credit, such an evaluation must be made without regard to the gender or marital status of the applicant, and the fact that an applicant is of child-bearing age is not relevant and cannot be considered [Civ. Code § 1812.30(i)]. Credit applications must clearly state that married applicants may apply for separate accounts [Civ. Code § 1812.30(j)].

A creditor who has violated these provisions may be liable to the aggrieved person for damages, costs, and attorney's fees and may be enjoined by the court from continuing the prohibited practices [Civ. Code §§ 1812.31-1812.35].

If a credit card issuer has determined to issue a card to a married woman, the woman may direct that either her married name or birth name appear on the card [Civ. Code § 1747.81(a)]. If the woman directs that the card bear her birth name, the issuer may require that she open a new account in that name [Civ. Code § 1747.81(b)].

Code § 910*; see, e.g., Fam. Code § 1000 (exceptions)].

A court enforcing a judgment against one spouse only is not empowered to add the other spouse as a judgment debtor solely because of the marriage relation [Oyakawa v. Gillett (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 628, 631-632, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 469] .

§ 359.40 Governing Statutes

The procedural requirements for a marriage in California are set forth primarily in Fam. Code § 300 et seq. Special requirements relating to confidential marriage are set forth in Fam. Code § 500 et seq.

Additional provisions relating to the licensing and authentication of marriages are set forth in the Health and Safety Code. Fee provisions are set forth in the Government Code, and penalties for crimes relating to marriage formalities are set forth in the Penal Code.

§ 359.41 General Requirements for Valid Marriage

Because the Legislature has full control of the subject of marriage [see discussion in § 359.10[2]], it may fix the conditions under which the marital status may be created [Estate of Gregorson (1911) 160 Cal. 21, 24, 116 P. 60] . It is possible to have a confidential marriage; that is, an unmarried man and an unmarried woman who are not minors and who are living together as husband and wife may have their marriage solemnized without first obtaining a license [see Fam. Code § 500 et seq.; discussions in § 359.71[1] et seq.]. In most cases, however, the only way to contract a valid marriage in California is by complying with the statutory requirements to (1) obtain a marriage license, (2) participate in a ceremony of solemnization [but see Fam. Code § 307 (inapplicability of solemnization requirements to certain religious societies or denominations not having clergy for purpose of solemnizing marriages)], and (3) authenticate the marriage by filing a certificate of registry of marriage [Fam. Code § 306; Estate of DePasse (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 92, 99-101, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 143] . The following sections deal with each formal requirement separately.

§ 359.42 Effect of Failure to Comply With Requirements on Validity of Marriage

In general, all of the statutory requirements for a marriage must be met [see Fam. Code § 306; discussion in § 359.44[1]], otherwise no marriage results [e.g., Estate of DePasse (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 92, 101-103, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 143 (license required for valid marriage); Estate of Shipp (1914) 168 Cal. 640, 641, 144 P. 143 (participation in marriage ceremony but failure to obtain license)]. However, in view of the strong public policy in favor of promoting and protecting marriage, a technical failure to meet all of the requirements will not necessarily invalidate a marriage [see Argonaut Ins. Co. v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 805, 810, 23 Cal. Rptr. 1] . The public policy of promoting and protecting marriage is so strong that a marriage may be determined to be valid even when the spouses used false names in applying for the marriage license, in obvious violation of the governing law [Argonaut Ins. Co. v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 805, 810, 23 Cal. Rptr. 1 ; see Fam. Code § 351(b)].

Noncompliance with the licensing, solemnization, authentication, or filing requirements by a person other than the spouses will not invalidate the marriage [Fam. Code § 306].

The effects of specific technical and substantive defects are discussed in the sections below dealing with the specific licensing, solemnization, authentication, and filing requirements.

32-359 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 359.43

§ 359.43 Criminal Penalties for Noncompliance With Requirements

[1] Perjury

If either spouse makes false statements or misrepresents facts under oath in connection with obtaining a marriage license or satisfying any of the other formal requirements for a valid marriage, such as by a false affidavit to the marriage license clerk, he or she is guilty of perjury [Penal Code § 118; e.g., People v. Brown (1954) 125 Cal. App. 2d 83, 84-85, 269 P.2d 918] . Perjury is punishable by imprisonment in the state prison [Penal Code § 126].

[2] Knowingly Solemnizing Prohibited Marriage

Every person authorized to solemnize marriages [see discussion in § 359.47[2]] who willfully and knowingly [see Penal Code § 7] solemnizes any incestuous marriage [see Fam. Code § 2200; Penal Code § 285; discussion in § 359.13[3]] or other marriage forbidden by law, such as a bigamous marriage [see Fam. Code § 2201; Penal Code §§ 281-284; discussion in § 359.13[2]], is guilty of a misdemeanor [Penal Code § 359].

[3] Other Improper Solemnization Activities

Any person authorized to solemnize a marriage who does any of the following acts is guilty of a misdemeanor [Penal Code § 360]:

(1) Solemnizes a marriage without first being presented with the marriage license [see Fam. Code § 421];

(2) Solemnizes a confidential marriage [see Fam. Code § 500 et seq.] without the authorization required by statute [see Fam. Code §§ 501-505]; or

(3) Willfully makes a false return of any marriage or pretended marriage to the recorder or clerk [see Fam. Code § 423].

[4] Making False Record of Marriage

Any person, whether or not authorized to solemnize marriages, who willfully makes a false record of any marriage return is guilty of a misdemeanor [Penal Code § 360]. In most cases this liability falls on the county recorder, who is responsible for recording the certificate of registry [see Fam. Code § 423].

Chapter 359 MARRIAGE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Formal Requirements For Valid Marriage

32-359 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 359.44

§ 359.44 Marriage License

[1] License Requirements

All persons who wish to marry or who are about to declare a marriage [see Fam. Code § 425; discussion in § 359.112] must first obtain a marriage license from a county clerk [Fam. Code §§ 350, 501]. Issuance of a marriage license is a mandatory requirement for a valid marriage in California [Estate of DePasse (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 92, 95, 101-103, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 143] . The license must be obtained within 90 days before the date of the ceremony [see Fam. Code § 356]. It may be obtained in any county, and it need not be obtained either in the county where the applicants reside or in the county where the marriage ceremony will take place. (A confidential marriage license may be used only in the county where the license was issued [Fam. Code § 504].)

A marriage license is required to set forth each spouse's identity, real and full name and place of residence, and age [Fam. Code § 351]. The application for a marriage license, of which the marriage license forms an integral part, also requires that other information be supplied by the applicants under oath.

[2] Effect of Incapacity, Influence of Liquor or Drugs, or Illegality

A marriage license may not be issued when either applicant lacks the capacity to enter into a valid marriage or is, at the time of applying for the license, under the influence of an intoxicating liquor or narcotic drug [Fam. Code § 352]. Additionally, if either of the applicants for a marriage license is a minor, the clerk may not issue the license unless the minor files required parental and court consents [Fam. Code § 302].

No statute expressly prohibits the county clerk from issuing a marriage license to persons attempting to enter a bigamous or incestuous marriage, or to persons of the same sex. However, in view of the absolute prohibitions on such marriages contained in other statutes [Fam. Code §§ 2200, 2201; see Fam. Code § 300] and the criminal penalties attached to such marriages [Penal Code §§ 281-285], it would appear that the clerk is forbidden to issue a license to such a couple, if he or she is aware of the nature of their relationship [see Lockyer v. City & County of San Francisco (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 1055, 1118-1119, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 225, 95 P.3d 459 (city officials who issued marriage licenses to same-sex couples required to correct city records, to notify couples of invalidity of marriages, and to refund license fees)].

Writ of mandate for improper refusal to issue a license is discussed in § 359.44[7].

[3] License to Remarry Not Necessary or Proper

It is neither necessary nor proper for the clerk to issue a marriage license to enable persons already validly married to each other to remarry. This situation may arise in the case of persons who were married outside California in a jurisdiction having laws differing from those of California, so that the marriage is valid where contracted but would have been void if performed in California. Such marriages might include a common-law marriage [see discussion in § 359.74[1]] and a marriage between persons under the age of 18 without parental or court consent in a state permitting such marriages. The rationale for not requiring remarriage in California is that it would serve no purpose, since California recognizes the validity of a marriage validly contracted elsewhere even if the marriage would be invalid if contracted in California [see Fam. Code § 308].

[4] License Application Process

[a] General Requirements

Applicants for a marriage license must:

- Appear in person together at the office of the county clerk [see Fam. Code §§ 350, 354];
- Answer the clerk's questions and, if necessary, supply documentary evidence to support their answers [Fam. Code § 354; see discussion in § 359.44[4][b]];
- Sign and swear to the truth of the facts stated in the application [Fam. Code § 354(b); see discussion in § 359.44[5][d]];
- Pay a fee [Gov. Code § 26840; see discussion in § 359.44[5][d]]; and
- Receive a brochure, which provides information about genetic counseling (including information on Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome--AIDS) and concerning domestic violence [Fam. Code § 358; see discussion in § 359.4[5][e]].

[b] Completion of Application Form

The process of applying for a marriage license consists in large part of the clerk's filling out the application for marriage license using information supplied by the applicants in response to the clerk's questions. As shown in § 359.250, the clerk will ask for the following information from each applicant:

- Name;
- Date of birth;
- Residence address, including city and county;
- State of birth;
- The number of the proposed marriage, that is, whether it is the applicant's first, second, and so forth;

- When last marriage, if any, was terminated, and whether by death, dissolution, or annulment;
- Occupation;
- Highest grade of school completed;
- Father's name and state of birth; and
- Mother's birth name and state of birth.

This information goes beyond the information that must be contained in a marriage license, namely the identities of the spouses and their real and full names, places of residence, and ages [Fam. Code § 351]. However, at least arguably, all of the above information pertains to the identity of the spouses, and its compilation is thus authorized by statute [see Fam. Code §§ 351, 354]. Furthermore, the additional information is required by statute to be set forth in the certificate of registry of marriage [see Health & Safety Code § 103175], which must be filled out by the spouses in the presence of the clerk issuing the marriage license and returned after the marriage by the person who solemnized the marriage [Fam. Code § 359(c), (e), (f)]. The application for license to marry, the license to marry, and the certificate of registry are all incorporated in a single multipage form. Thus, the above information is elicited by the clerk to satisfy both the statute specifying the contents of the marriage license [Fam. Code § 351] and the statute prescribing the contents of the certificate of registry of marriage [Health & Safety Code § 103175].

Each applicant for a marriage license may be required to present proof of identification as to name [Fam. Code § 354(a)]. While a birth certificate would serve as such identification, the presentation of a birth certificate is not a statutory requirement.

When the marriage ceremony is unconventional [see Fam. Code § 307], registration of the marriage and the content of the required License and Certificate of Declaration of Marriage are governed by separate statutory provisions [see Health & Safety Code § 103180.].

No applicant for a marriage license may be required to state, for any purpose, his or her race or color [Fam. Code § 354(d)].

[5] Oath and Signature

[a] In General

After the applicants have furnished the required information [see discussion in § 359.44[4][b]] to the clerk, and the information has been inserted in the marriage license application form, the applicants must sign the application and swear that the information given is true to the best of their knowledge and belief. There does not appear to be any statutory authority for requiring that the applicants swear to the veracity of the information they furnish. As discussed in § 359.44[5][a], the clerk's authority to examine an applicant for a marriage license under oath, with the examination subsequently reduced to writing and signed by the applicant, appears limited to ascertaining the truth regarding the applicants' identities, names, places of residence, and ages (the information required to be set forth in the marriage license itself) [see Fam. Code §§ 351, 354(b)]. However, applicants for a marriage license are routinely required to swear to the veracity of all information that they furnish the clerk.

The application form for license to marry must include an affidavit on the back that the bride and groom must sign, which affirms that they have received the brochure provided for in Family Code Section 358 dealing with domestic violence, genetic counseling and information on acquired immune deficiency syndrome (AIDS) [Fam. Code § 355(b)].

[b] Further Examination Under Oath

If it is necessary for the purpose of ascertaining the facts required for issuance of a marriage license, the clerk may examine the applicants under oath [Fam. Code § 354(b)]. The examination must be reduced to writing by the clerk and subscribed by the applicants [Fam. Code § 354(b)]. If necessary, the clerk may also request additional documentary proof of the accuracy of the facts stated [Fam. Code § 354(c)]. Documents that might be requested include:

- Passport;
- Copy of court order changing name;
- Copy of adoption decree;
- Copy of birth certificate;
- Permanent residence visa [see, e.g., 8 U.S.C. § 1184(d)];
- Citizenship papers; and
- Driver's license.

This authorization to the clerk to take the affidavit of an applicant for marriage license appears to apply only to information required for the marriage license itself, namely the applicants' identities, names, places of residence, and ages [see Fam. Code § 351]. The clerk does not ordinarily have the authority to require affidavits on other questions regarding vital statistics, which are asked in the marriage license application to comply with the statutory requirements for completion of the certificate of registry of marriage [Health & Safety Code § 103175; see discussion in § 359.44[4][b]].

The Attorney General has stated that, ordinarily, if an applicant for a marriage license is willing to answer those other vital statistics questions unqualifiedly and under oath, the clerk has no authority to require the applicant to submit a supporting affidavit [29 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 103, 105 (1957)] . However, in one case, the Attorney General reasoned that the clerk was authorized to take an affidavit on a vital statistics subject other than the applicant's name, address, and identity. In that case, although her husband had been missing and presumed dead for over five years, the applicant was unwilling to declare under oath that she was a "widow" in response to the clerk's question regarding marital status. The Attorney General ruled that the clerk had the authority to take her affidavit based upon the woman's refusal unqualifiedly to complete the application for license to marry. However, once it appeared from the affidavit that the marriage would be valid under the applicable statute [see Fam. Code § 2201; discussion in § 359.13[2]], notwithstanding the fact that the woman's first husband was not conclusively known to be dead, the clerk had a duty to issue the marriage license [29 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 103, 105 (1957)] .

[c] Effect of Supplying False Information

Making a false statement under oath in connection with obtaining a marriage license constitutes perjury [Penal Code § 118; see People v. Brown (1954) 125 Cal. App. 2d 83, 84-85, 269 P.2d 918 (false information about marital status); People v. Torterice (1924) 66 Cal. App. 115, 119, 225 P. 760 (false information about age)]. However, such acts as giving false names and ages (except for concealing an applicant's minority) should not affect the validity of the marriage. Such acts will be viewed by a court as defects in form; they do not constitute such serious noncompliance with the legal requirements for a valid marriage as to render the license and the subsequent marriage void [Argonaut Ins. Co. v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 805, 806-810, 23 Cal. Rptr. 1] . Supplying a false place of residence should be viewed in the same light, since there is no residency requirement for marriage.

[d] Fees

A modest fee is collected at the time the license is issued [Gov. Code § 26840]. An additional small fee may be charged if the board of supervisors of a particular county provides for the issuance of marriage licenses outside of normal business hours [Gov. Code § 26840.2]. County clerks are required to collect an additional fee upon issuance of a marriage license, for distribution under the Domestic Violence Centers Act [Gov. Code § 26840.7; see Welf. & Inst. Code § 18290 et seq. (Domestic Violence Centers Act)].

Counties are authorized by statute to increase the marriage license fee by a small amount, to help support the family conciliation court and for conciliation and mediation services [Gov. Code § 26840.3(a)(1)].

There is no provision for waiving the license fee in any circumstances. This fact could raise a constitutional question, since marriage is considered a fundamental right [see discussion in § 359.11].

[e] Health Information Brochure

The clerk is responsible for distributing to each applicant for a marriage license a brochure combining, to the extent possible, all information required by statute to be given to marriage license applicants [Fam. Code § 358(a), (b), (d)]. The brochure must include information on the possibilities of genetic defects and diseases and must list centers available for testing and treatment of those defects and diseases. The brochure must also provide information concerning acquired immune deficiency syndrome (AIDS), including the availability of testing for antibodies to the probable causative agent of AIDS [Fam. Code § 358(a)]. In addition, the brochure must contain information concerning domestic violence, including resources available to victims and a statement concerning the illegality of various forms of abuse. The Department of Health Services is responsible for preparing and publishing this brochure [Fam. Code § 358(a)].

[6] Expiration of License

A marriage license expires 90 days after it is issued. The expiration date appears on the face of the license [Fam. Code § 356]. As a reminder to the applicants, the county recorder must notify applicants whose certificates have not been returned within 60 days after the date of issuance of the license that the license will expire on the date shown on the face of the license [Fam. Code § 357(b)]. The recorder's notice also must state that the person solemnizing the marriage is required to return the certificate of registry and endorsed license to the recorder's office within 10 days after the ceremony [Fam. Code § 357(c)].

[7] Writ of Mandate for Refusal to Issue License

When all statutory requirements are met, the county clerk is required to issue a marriage license. If the clerk improperly refuses to issue a license, the applicants may petition for a writ of mandate from the superior court to compel the clerk to issue the license [see Perez v. Sharp (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 711, 712, 198 P.2d 17] or to test the validity of the clerk's grounds for refusing to do so [see Stokes v. County Clerk (1953) 122 Cal. App. 2d 229, 229-230, 264 P.2d 959] . Forms and procedures for a mandate proceeding are discussed in Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Formal Requirements For Valid Marriage

32-359 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 359.45

§ 359.45 Issuance of Marriage License to Minor

[1] General Requirements

Minority is not a complete bar to contracting a valid marriage [see Fam. Code § 2210(a)]. However, if either applicant for a marriage license is a minor, the county clerk will not issue a marriage license unless the applicants file both (1) the written consent of a parent or guardian of the minor [see discussion in § 359.45[2]] and (2) an order of the superior court granting the minor permission to marry [Fam. Code § 302; see discussion in § 359.45[3]].

If a minor manages to obtain a license and marry without obtaining and filing the proper consents and court order, the marriage is voidable [Fam. Code § 2210(a); see discussion in § 359.14[1]].

There is no statutory minimum age for marrying with parental consent and court permission. However, the court may in its discretion deny permission for a marriage involving a minor who, in the court's opinion, is too young to marry even with parental consent [see Fam. Code § 302(b)].

[2] Consent of Parent or Guardian

The statutory requirement that a minor obtain parental consent before marrying does not require the minor to obtain the consent of both parents. Either parent's consent is sufficient [Fam. Code § 302(a)]. There is no provision allowing a parent to prevent the marriage of a minor when the other parent has given consent, even when the nonconsenting parent has sole custody and control of the minor. However, the superior court, which must also give its permission for a minor to marry [Fam. Code § 302(b)], may in its discretion refuse to grant permission for a marriage that is opposed by one of the minor's parents. The objecting parent may be able to bring his or her objection before the superior court at the hearing on the minor's motion for court permission to marry [see discussion in § 359.45[3]]. However, there is no requirement that formal notice of the hearing be given to anyone, and, in consequence, the objecting parent may lose this opportunity to be heard unless he or she has independent knowledge of the hearing. Should the court decide in favor of permitting the minor to marry, the objecting parent probably has no right of appeal since the statute requiring parental consent does not require the consent of both parents [see Fam. Code § 302(a)].

Since a parent's authority over a minor child is terminated by the appointment of a guardian of the person of the child [Fam. Code § 7505(a)], it appears that the guardian, rather than the parent, would be required to consent to the minor's marriage when such an appointment has been made. As with the case in which one parent consents to the marriage over the objection of the other parent, the court may in its discretion refuse to grant permission for a marriage that is opposed by the parents but consented to by the guardian.

The form for consent of a parent to the issuance of a marriage license to his or her minor child is part of the multipurpose Department of Health Services Form VS-117, which also contains the license application, the license itself, and the certificate of registry.

[3] Permission of Superior Court

In addition to obtaining the consent of his or her parent or guardian, a minor who wishes to marry in California must obtain an order of the superior court granting permission for the marriage [Fam. Code § 302(b)]. Normally, no fee is charged for issuing such an order.

Before issuing an order permitting a minor to marry, the court may require a showing of any facts or evidence it deems necessary to justify issuance of the order [Fam. Code § 302(b)]. As discussed in § 359.45[2], the minor may be called upon to show why he or she should be permitted to marry in spite of the objections of one parent, when consent was granted by the other parent, or both parents, when consent was granted by the minor's guardian. There is no provision for giving notice to any persons interested in the hearing.

In counties having family conciliation court services, the court often delegates the duty of soliciting information and making recommendations relating to marriages of minors [see Fam. Code § 1814(b)(5)]. If the court solicits the information itself, it will ordinarily do so in chambers to preserve the confidentiality of the persons involved.

[4] Combined Consent and Permission of Superior Court When No Parent Capable of Consenting

If a minor who wishes to marry in California has no parent, or no parent capable of consenting to the marriage, the minor may file a verified application in the court from which the permission to marry is sought [see discussion in § 359.45[3]], seeking an order consenting to the issuance of a marriage license [Fam. Code §§ 212, 303]. A filing fee is not normally required for filing the application. If the court is satisfied that its consent should be given, the order will issue. The minor must file the order with the county clerk at the time the marriage license is issued [Fam. Code § 303].

The Judicial Council forms of Request of Minor to Marry [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-910] and Order on Request of Minor to Marry [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-915] are set forth in §§ 359.251 and 359.252.

There is no statutory distinction between, on the one hand, a minor who has no parents and no guardian and, on the other hand, a minor who has no parents but does have a guardian. Thus, a minor who has no parent or no parent capable of consenting to the marriage but does have a guardian may, apparently, elect to seek the court's consent rather than the guardian's consent to the marriage. However, the court may in its discretion refuse to consent to a marriage that is opposed by the guardian [see Fam. Code § 303].

As in cases in which the minor has parental permission to marry, the court may refer the matter to the county's family conciliation court services, if any, before issuing its ruling on the application [see Fam. Code § 1814(b)(5)].

[5] Premarital Counseling Orders

As part of its order granting permission or permission and consent for a minor to marry, the court may require the prospective spouses to participate in premarital counseling concerning the social, economic, and personal responsibilities of marriage. In determining whether to require counseling the court must consider, among other factors, the ability of the prospective spouses (not of their parents) to pay for the counseling. The court may impose a reasonable fee to cover the cost of any counseling provided by the county. These fees must be used exclusively to cover the cost of the counseling services [Fam. Code § 304].

When a court orders premarital counseling, it will usually provide a list of public and private counseling agencies from which to choose. The prospective spouses may not be required without their consent to confer with counselors provided by religious organizations of any denomination [Fam. Code § 304].

Some counties have promulgated guidelines for premarital counseling.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Formal Requirements For Valid Marriage

32-359 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 359.46

§ 359.46 Former Health Certificate Requirement

Before January 1, 1995, in order to obtain a marriage license, each applicant had to present to the county clerk when applying for the license either a properly completed health certificate or a court order waiving the certificate requirement [former Fam. Code §§ 580, 591 (repealed, operative January 1, 1995)]. The certificate had to state that the applicant was given an examination by a licensed physician and surgeon for discovery of syphilis not more than 30 days before the issuance of the license, and that the applicant was either not infected with syphilis or, if infected, was not in a stage of the disease that could be communicable to a marital partner [former Fam. Code §§ 580, 581 (repealed, operative January 1, 1995)]. The certificate also had to state whether the female applicant showed laboratory evidence of immunological response to rubella (German measles) [former Fam. Code § 582 (repealed, operative January 1, 1995)]. The health certificate requirement was repealed in 1994, operative January 1, 1995 [Stats. 1994, ch. 197 (repealing Fam. Code § 580 et seq.)].

Note that health certificates neither presently are, nor previously were, required in the case of "confidential marriages" [Fam. Code § 500; see discussion in § 359.71[1]].

Chapter 359 MARRIAGE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Formal Requirements For Valid Marriage

32-359 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 359.47

§ 359.47 Solemnization of Marriage

[1] General Requirements

Solemnization is essential to a marriage in California [Fam. Code § 300; Estate of Shipp (1914) 168 Cal. 640, 641, 144 P. 143] . A man and a woman may agree to marry and may make preparations to marry, but without a license and a ceremony, there is no marriage [People v. MacDonald (1938) 24 Cal. App. 2d 702, 708-709, 76 P.2d 121] . Moreover, unless they participate in a marriage ceremony performed by an authorized person before witnesses as authorized by the Family Code, the marriage is not valid [Estate of Abate (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 282, 292-293, 333 P.2d 200] .

[2] Who May Solemnize

A marriage may be solemnized by any of the following who is an adult [Fam. Code § 400]:

(1) A priest, minister, or rabbi of any religious denomination [see 64 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 409 (1981) (persons certified to perform marriages by Fellowship of Christian Ministry may solemnize marriage in California even though Fellowship of Christian Ministry is not incorporated in California)];

(2) A judge or retired judge, a commissioner of civil marriages [see Fam. Code § 401 (county clerks as commissioners of civil marriages and authorized to appoint deputy commissioners)] or retired commissioner of civil marriages, a commissioner or retired commissioner, or an assistant commissioner of a court of record or a court of justice in California;

(3) A judge or magistrate who has resigned from office; or

(4) Any of the following judges or magistrates of the United States:

(a) A justice or retired justice of the United States Supreme Court;

(b) A judge or retired judge of a court of appeals, a district court, or a court created by an act of Congress the judges of which are entitled to hold office during good behavior;

(c) A judge or retired judge of a bankruptcy court or a tax court; or

(d) A United States magistrate or retired magistrate.

Additionally, a county may license officials of nonprofit religious institutions whose articles of incorporation are registered with the Secretary of State to solemnize marriages of members or affiliates of that religious institution. A person licensed under this provision must have a doctor of philosophy degree and must perform religious services or rites for the institution on a regular basis [Fam. Code § 402].

A marriage ceremony may not be solemnized by a county sheriff, assessor, or supervisor [82 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 172 (1999)] .

Prohibited solemnization activities and criminal penalties for those activities are discussed in § 359.43[2], [3].

[3] Solemnization Fees

Every commissioner or deputy commissioner of civil marriages who accepts any money or other thing of value for performing a marriage, including money or things tendered voluntarily by the spouses, other than (1) a fee expressly imposed by law for performing the ceremony, or (2) a fee for performing a marriage on a Saturday, Sunday, or legal holiday, is guilty of a misdemeanor. No proof of extortion or other criminal intent is required. This prohibition does not apply to retired commissioners of civil marriage or retired court commissioners [Penal Code § 70.5].

Every judge, justice, commissioner, or assistant commissioner of a court of this state who accepts any money or other thing of value for performing any marriage, including any money or thing of value voluntarily tendered by the persons about to be married or who have been married by the judge, justice, commissioner, or assistant commissioner, whether the acceptance occurs before or after performance of the marriage and whether or not performance of the marriage is conditioned on the giving of the money or the thing of value by the persons being married, is guilty of a misdemeanor. No intent to commit extortion or other criminal intent is required. This prohibition does not apply to (1) fees imposed by law, (2) fees requested or accepted for performing a marriage on a Saturday, Sunday, or holiday, or (3) fees requested or accepted by a retired judge, justice, or commissioner. For this purpose a judge or justice is not considered to be retired if he or she is sitting on assignment in court [Penal Code § 94.5].

Solemnizations performed by licensed officials of nonprofit religious institutions for members or affiliates of the institution must be performed without a fee to the spouses [Fam. Code § 402]. However, donations are not prohibited.

[4] Where Solemnization May Take Place

A person authorized to solemnize a marriage [see Fam. Code § 400; discussion in § 359.47[2]] may do so anywhere in the state. Solemnization of marriage is not a judicial function, although judicial officers are among those authorized to perform the ceremony. Thus, judicial officers may perform marriage ceremonies outside their normal geographical jurisdictions and outside the county in which the license was issued [13 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 250, 251-254 (1949) ; see People v. Lininger (1937) 22 Cal. App. 2d 440, 441, 71 P.2d 306 ; but see Fam. Code § 504 (confidential marriages may be performed only in county where license issued); discussion in § 359.72[1]]. There is no provision of law requiring a person solemnizing a marriage to register with the county clerk before performing the ceremony. However, the person is required to state his or her official position or the denomination of which he or she is a priest or minister in the certificate of registry of marriage [Health & Safety Code § 103175; 2 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 134 (1943)] .

[5] Presentation of License

The person who will solemnize a marriage is bound, first, to require the bride and groom to present a marriage license [Fam. Code § 421; see Fam. Code § 359(c); Penal Code § 360 (misdemeanor to solemnize marriage without prior presentation of license); discussion in § 359.43[2], [3]]. The person solemnizing the marriage must be satisfied, before performing the ceremony, that the facts stated in the marriage license are correct. If he or she doubts the correctness of any of the facts stated, he or she may administer oaths and examine the prospective spouses and witnesses just as the county clerk may do before issuing the license [Fam. Code § 421; see discussion in § 359.44[5]].

[6] Form of Ceremony

No particular form is required for a marriage ceremony, but the prospective spouses must declare, in the presence of the person solemnizing the marriage and the necessary witnesses, that they take each other as husband and wife [Fam. Code §§ 359(d), 420(a)]. A procedure is provided for a member of the armed forces, who is stationed overseas and serving in a conflict or a war and is unable to appear for the licensure and solemnization, to enter into marriage by the appearance of an attorney-in-fact [Fam. Code § 420(b); see Fam. Code §§ 350(b), 354(e), 355(b)]. No contract of marriage, if otherwise duly made, can be invalidated for want of conformity to the requirements of any religious sect [Fam. Code § 420(c)].

[7] Witnesses

A marriage ceremony must be witnessed by at least one person other than the person who performs the solemnization [see Fam. Code §§ 359(d), 422(b)]. An unconventional marriage ceremony (that is, one not involving solemnization by a judge, member of the clergy, or other person authorized to solemnize marriages) must be witnessed by at least two persons [see Fam. Code § 307(a)(2); discussion in § 359.47[8]]. The Family Code does not specify any qualifications for witnesses to the solemnization of a marriage [see Fam. Code §§ 307(a)(2), 359(d), 422(b)]. There is no prohibition, for example, on using minors as witnesses. Every person, regardless of age, is qualified to be a witness unless he or she is either (a) incapable of expressing himself or herself concerning the matter so as to be understood, either directly or through interpretation by one who can understand him or her, or (b) incapable of understanding the duty of a witness to tell the truth [Evid. Code §§ 700, 701(a)].

Confidential marriages (discussed in § 359.170 et seq.) are not required to be witnessed.

[8] Unconventional Religious Ceremonies

Some religious groups may have unconventional forms for solemnizing marriage that do not involve the participation of a priest, minister, rabbi, or other person authorized to solemnize marriages [see 57 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 397, 398-401 (1974)] . The provisions of the Family Code relating to the solemnization of marriage [Fam. Code § 400 et seq.] are not applicable to members of any particular religious society or denomination not having clergy for the purpose of solemnizing marriage or entering the marriage relation, if the following requirements are met [Fam. Code § 307; Health & Safety Code § 103180(b), (c)(5)]:

> (1) The spouses must sign, and endorse on, or attach to, their marriage license a statement in the form prescribed by the Department of Health Services, showing (a) the fact, time, and place of entering into the marriage, (b) the signatures and addresses of two witnesses to the ceremony, and (c) the religious society or denomination of the spouses and that the marriage was entered into in accordance with the rules and customs of that religious society or denomination.
> (2) The License and Certificate of Declaration of Marriage, endorsed as described in paragraph (1), is returned to the county recorder of the county in which the license was issued within a prescribed number of days after the ceremony [Fam. Code § 307(b) (requiring return of License and Certificate of Declaration of marriage within 30 days after ceremony to county recorder); Health & Safety Code § 103180(b) (requiring registration of marriage with local registrar of marriages within four days after ceremony)].

The statement of the spouses that the marriage was entered into in accordance with the rules and customs of a particular religious society or denomination is conclusively presumed to be true [Fam. Code § 307(a)(3)].

The License and Certificate of Declaration of Marriage may be obtained by the spouses from the county clerk in their county of residence, in the same manner as a conventional marriage license [see Fam. Code § 425]. The information required for the license portion of the form consists of personal data about the spouses, such as their full names, birthplaces, residences, names and birthplaces of their parents, birth name of their mothers, number of previous marriages, marital status, and the birth name of the woman, if different from her current surname [Health & Safety Code § 103180(c)].

In an opinion interpreting prior law, the Attorney General ruled that the county recorder must refuse to record a declaration of marriage tendered pursuant to the then-applicable statute when a marriage license had not been issued [65 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 321, 325 (1982)] . That policy would not appear to have changed under the current statute. However, since a combination license-and-declaration form is now used [see Fam. Code §§ 307, 425; Health & Safety Code § 103180], the problem is unlikely to arise.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Formal Requirements For Valid Marriage

32-359 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 359.48

§ 359.48 Authentication of Marriage

[1] Function of Certificate of Registry

The function of the certificate of registry of marriage is to provide a permanent record of the fact of the marriage and permanently to record certain vital statistics about the spouses [see Fam. Code §§ 359, 422, 423; Health & Safety Code §§ 102100, 102140].

When a couple obtains a marriage license from the county clerk, they will also receive a certificate of registry of marriage [Fam. Code § 359(a)]. The form for certificate of registry of marriage is part of Department of Health Services Form VS-117, which also includes the license to marry and the application for license to marry. A sample form VS-117 is set forth in § 359.250.

The bride and groom must present the certificate to the person solemnizing the marriage [Fam. Code § 421]. That person must complete the certificate and have at least one of the witnesses to the marriage sign it [see Fam. Code §§ 359(d), 422].

The fact that there are two statutes in the Family Code governing certificates of registry [Fam. Code §§ 359, 422] might make it appear that there are two separate pieces of paper to be returned by the person solemnizing the ceremony, one containing the vital statistics data required by the Health and Safety Code [see Health & Safety Code § 103175] and one containing the certification by the person solemnizing the marriage. In practice, form VS-117 provides spaces for all of the information required by both statutes.

[2] Contents of Certificate

The certificate of registry of marriage consists of four parts.

(1) Vital statistics on the spouses are required by law [Health & Safety Code § 103175]. For a complete list of the required information, see § 359.44[4][b].

(2) The signatures of the spouses are required. When applying for the marriage license, the applicants must sign the combined application/license/certificate and swear before the county clerk that the vital statistics data is correct to the best of their knowledge and belief and that no legal objection to the marriage or to the issuance of a license is known to them [see Penal Code §§ 118, 126; (criminal penalties for making false affidavit); discussion in § 359.44[5][b]].

(3) The marriage license is a part of the certificate of registry. It consists of a small printed statement that the applicants are authorized to marry, followed by the signature of the county clerk and specification of the county of issuance, the dates of issuance and expiration of the license, and the marriage license number.

(4) A prescribed statement signed by the person solemnizing the marriage must show all of the following [Fam. Code § 422; see Fam. Code § 359(d)]:

(a) The fact, date (month, day, and year), and place (city and county) of solemnization;

(b) The names and places of residence of witnesses to the ceremony (at least one witness);

(c) The official position of the person solemnizing the marriage or the denomination of which that person is a priest, minister, rabbi, or member of the clergy; and

(d) The typed or printed name and address of the person solemnizing the marriage.

[3] Lost or Destroyed Certificate

When a certificate of registry is lost or destroyed after the marriage ceremony but before it is returned to the county recorder [see discussion in § 359.48[4]], the person solemnizing the marriage must obtain a duplicate certificate by filing an affidavit setting forth relevant facts concerning the loss or destruction with the county clerk of the county in which the license was issued [Fam. Code § 360(a)]. The duplicate certificate of registry may not be issued more than one year after issuance of the original license and must be returned by the person solemnizing the marriage to the county recorder within 10 days after issuance [Fam. Code § 360(b)]. The fee for a duplicate certificate is set by statute [Fam. Code § 360(c)].

[4] Filing of Certificate

The person who solemnized the marriage must return the completed certificate of registry to the county recorder in the county in which the license was issued, within 10 days after the ceremony [Fam. Code §§ 359(e), (f), 423; Health & Safety Code § 103150]. It is the recorder's duty to examine each certificate before accepting it for registration. If a certificate is presented that is incomplete or unsatisfactory, the recorder must require any further information to be furnished as may be necessary to make the record satisfactory before accepting the certificate [Health & Safety Code § 102310]. However, it is not the duty of the recorder to determine the validity of the marriage. This is a judicial function [see 2 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 532, 533 (1943)] . The validity of a marriage is not affected by the failure of the person who solemnized the marriage to return the certificate of registry [Fam. Code § 306].

The recorder will prepare a copy of the certificate of registry and then forward the original certificate to the State Registrar of Vital Statistics.

[5] Certified Copies of Certificate

If for any reason a certified copy of the certificate of registry is needed by any person, it may be obtained upon payment of a modest fee [see Health & Safety Code § 103625(c)] to either the county recorder of the county in which the license was issued or the State Registrar of Vital Statistics [Health & Safety Code § 103525]. A person who changes his or her surname after becoming married may need a certified copy of the certificate in order to change his or her name on bank accounts and various documents of title.

Code § 424*]. This certificate has no official significance and serves primarily as a keepsake, although it may be used in some circumstances as evidence of the marriage in subsequent litigation [see discussion in § 359.111[2]]. The certificate is normally supplied as a matter of course. The form used is Department of Health Services Form VS-118.

On request of an applicant, the state registrar may provide a decorative heirloom marriage certificate on payment of a special fee [see Health & Safety Code § 103595].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Unconventional and Out-Of-State Marriages

32-359 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 359.70

§ 359.70 Common-Law Marriages

California has not recognized the validity of common-law marriages contracted in the state since 1895 [see Stats. 1895, ch. 129 § 3]. However, California does recognize common-law marriages validly contracted in other states [Knight v. Superior Court (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 14, 19, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 687] . This policy reflects the general rule that all marriages contracted outside California that would be valid by the laws of the jurisdiction in which they were contracted are valid in California [Fam. Code § 308; People v. Badgett (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 330, 363, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 635, 895 P.2d 877 ; Colbert v. Colbert (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 276, 280, 169 P.2d 633 ; see § 359.74[1]].

The least that is necessary to establish a valid common-law marriage in any jurisdiction is mutual consent of the spouses. However, the weight of authority seems also to require some evidence of consummation or a holding out that the spouses are married, by their living together or in some way showing that the marriage relationship exists [Estate of Keig (1943) 59 Cal. App. 2d 812, 816, 140 P.2d 163] .

For example, in Texas a common-law marriage may be recognized upon proof that the spouses (1) agreed to be married, (2) lived together in Texas as husband and wife, and (3) represented to others that they were married. An agreement to marry may be inferred from proof that the spouses lived together as husband and wife and represented to others that they were married [People v. Badgett (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 330, 363-366, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 635, 895 P.2d 877 (recognizing rule, but finding defendant did not have valid common-law marriage under Texas law)].

Although California does not recognize common-law marriages, there is a statutory procedure whereby unmarried adults who have been living together as husband and wife may marry and obtain a confidential marriage certificate [see § 359.71[1]].

C. Unconventional and Out-Of-State Marriages

32-359 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 359.71

§ 359.71 Confidential Marriages

[1] Nature and Purpose of Confidential Marriage Act

The California Confidential Marriage Act [Fam. Code § 500 et seq.], like its statutory predecessor [former Civ. Code § 79] was enacted at a time when health certificates were ordinarily required to obtain a marriage license [see former Fam. Code § 580 et seq. (repealed January 1, 1995); former Civ. Code § 4300 et seq. (repealed January 1, 1994)]. Under the California Confidential Marriage Act, an unmarried man and an unmarried woman, not minors, who are living together as husband and wife may marry without first obtaining and filing health certificates [Fam. Code § 500; see People v. Hassan (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1306, 1314-1315, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 314 ("living together" means actually residing in same dwelling)]. The original purpose of the California Confidential Marriage Act was to encourage persons who had been living together without marriage, perhaps having had children, to legalize their relationship by allowing them to do so with a minimum of publicity and embarrassment [Encinas v. Lowthian Freight Lines (1945) 69 Cal. App. 2d 156, 163, 158 P.2d 575 (construing former Civ. Code § 79)]. Because the official record of a confidential marriage, including the date of the marriage, may not be disclosed except by court order [Fam. Code § 511(a), (c), (d); see § 359.72[3][d]], the confidential marriage procedure may be attractive to couples who, because of children born to or conceived by them before their marriage, do not wish to make a public record of the date of their marriage.

However, many of the persons who used the procedure may have done so simply to avoid the health certificate requirements imposed by former law to obtain a marriage license. Because of the 1994 repeal of the premarital examination and health certificate requirements for "conventional" marriage license applicants, this aspect of the Confidential Marriage Act is no longer a compelling reason for seeking a marriage license under the Act [see former Fam. Code § 580 et seq. (repealed January 1, 1995); see § 359.46]. Nevertheless, because of the Act's provisions for confidentiality of marriage certificates, discussed in § 359.72[2][d], some persons may still choose to utilize its provisions [see Fam. Code § 511].

[2] Eligibility for Confidential Marriage

In order to be eligible to be married pursuant to the California Confidential Marriage Act [Fam. Code § 500 et seq.], the spouses must be adults [see Fam. Code § 6501] and unmarried, and they must have been living together as husband and wife [Fam. Code § 500]. Unlike the situation with conventional marriages, there are no provisions authorizing a minor to contract a confidential marriage by obtaining parental consent and judicial permission [see Fam. Code § 302].

In 1931 the California Supreme Court stated that cohabitation conforming to the intent of the confidential marriage statute (former Civ. Code § 79, which contained the same "living together" language as the current statute) would consist of holding forth to the world by the manner of daily life, conduct, demeanor, and habit, that the man and woman who live together have agreed to take each other in marriage and to stand in the mutual relation of husband and wife. The court stated that such cohabitation may be evidenced by general repute or belief among relatives, neighbors, and acquaintances that the spouses are husband and wife, and that occasional sexual intercourse between the man and woman will not, by itself, furnish the basis for a confidential marriage [People v. McIntyre (1931) 213 Cal. 50, 54-55, 1 P.2d 443] . Changing social mores have made it much less common than it was in 1931 for cohabiting couples to hold themselves out as being married, with the result that relatively few modern couples would be eligible for a confidential marriage license under the standards formerly articulated by the court. However, as a practical matter, it is unusual for a couple applying for a confidential marriage license to be questioned concerning whether they have lived together as husband and wife. Evidence that they have the same address, together with their willingness to sign an affidavit stating that they meet the requirements for confidential marriage, is probably sufficient in most cases.

§ 359.72 Confidential Marriage License

[1] In General

To obtain a license for a confidential marriage, the spouses must personally appear before the county clerk in a county of their choice, complete the license application, and pay the required fees [Fam. Code §§ 501, 504; see Gov. Code §§ 26840.1, 26840.3, 26840.8 (fees)]. The fee for filing the certificate of confidential marriage [see discussion in § 359.48[4]], as well as the license fees, must be paid at the time the license is obtained [Fam. Code § 501; Gov. Code § 26840.1]. If either or both of the spouses is physically unable to appear in person to obtain the license, the clerk must issue the license to the person solemnizing the marriage if he or she presents to the clerk an affidavit signed by him or her and the spouses and explaining the reason for the inability to appear [Fam. Code § 502]. Confidential marriage licenses may also be obtained through a notary public approved by the county clerk to authorize confidential marriages [Fam. Code § 503; see Fam. Code § 530 et seq.]. If the spouses obtain a license through a notary public, they must reimburse the notary public for the license and filing fees [Fam. Code § 503; see Gov. Code §§ 26840.1, 26840.8].

The form of the confidential marriage license is prescribed by the State Registrar of Vital Statistics [Fam. Code § 505(a)]. The form, which includes a certificate of marriage, requires the spouses to declare or affirm that they meet all of the requirements of the Confidential Marriage Act [Fam. Code § 505(b), (c)]. The form includes an affidavit, which must be signed by the spouses, affirming that they have received a brochure published by the Department of Health Services that sets forth information concerning genetic defects and diseases and acquired immune deficiency syndrome (AIDS) [Fam. Code § 505(d), (e); see Fam. Code § 358]. This brochure is the same one distributed to applicants for conventional marriage licenses [see discussion in § 359.44[5][e]].

A confidential marriage license is valid for a period of 90 days after its issuance. Unlike a conventional marriage license, it may only be used in the county in which it was issued [Fam. Code § 504].

[2] Solemnization of Confidential Marriages

As with conventional marriages [see discussion in § 359.47[1]], the bride and groom must participate in a ceremony of solemnization to validate the confidential marriage [see Fam. Code §§ 505(c), 506-508]. The ceremony may be performed by any person authorized to solemnize marriages [see Fam. Code § 400; discussion in § 359.47[2]]. The confidential marriage license must be presented to the person performing the ceremony [Fam. Code § 506(a)].

[3] Confidential Marriage Certificate

[a] Completion of Certificate

On performance of the marriage ceremony, the bride and groom must complete the certificate of marriage portion of the confidential marriage license, which then must be authenticated by the person who solemnized the marriage [Fam. Code §§ 505(c), 506(a), (b)]. The combination license and certificate form is printed in duplicate, so that the person solemnizing the marriage can simply separate the copy from the original and give it to the spouses at the time of the ceremony. On issuance of the confidential marriage certificate, the county clerk will provide the parties with an application to obtain a certified copy of the confidential marriage certificate [Fam. Code § 508].

[b] Filing of Certificate

The person solemnizing the confidential marriage must return the certificate of marriage to the county clerk in the county in which the license was issued, within 30 days after the ceremony [Fam. Code § 506(c); see Penal Code § 360]. The filing fee is set by statute. [see Gov. Code § 26840.1]. This fee is payable at the time the confidential marriage license is issued [Gov. Code § 26840.1(a)].

The county clerk must keep all original certificates of confidential marriages for one year from the date of filing. After one year, the clerk may microfilm the certificate and dispose of the original certificate, or microfilm the certificate and send the original certificate to the Office of the State Registrar [Fam. Code § 511(b)]. The county clerk is also required to file copies of confidential marriage certificates with the State Registrar of Vital Statistics at least quarterly. The State Registrar may destroy these copies after they have been recorded and indexed [Fam. Code § 511(d)].

[c] Obtaining Additional Copies of Certificate

Either spouse may obtain a certified copy of the confidential marriage certificate from the county clerk of the county in which the certificate is filed in any of the following ways [Fam. Code § 509(a)]:

(1) Submit the application for a certified copy of the confidential marriage certificate that was provided to the spouses at the time of the marriage [see Fam. Code § 508; see also § 359.72[2]].

(2) Personally appear before a notary public or at the county clerk's office in the spouse's county of residence, produce proper identification, obtain a certificate attesting to the spouse's identity from the notary public or county clerk, and transmit that certificate, together with a request for the certified copy of the confidential marriage certificate, to the county clerk of the county in which the certificate is filed.

(3) Personally appear at the county clerk's office where the certificate is filed and produce proper identification.

Copies of a confidential marriage certificate may be issued to the spouses on the payment of a fee equivalent to that charged for copies of a conventional certificate of marriage [Fam. Code § 509(b)].

In the event that a confidential marriage certificate is lost, damaged, or destroyed after the performance of the marriage and before it is returned, the county clerk may issue a replacement on the payment of a modest fee [Fam. Code § 510(a)]. The duplicate license may not be issued more than one year after issuance of the original license and must be returned by the person solemnizing the marriage to the county recorder within 10 days after issuance [Fam. Code § 510(b)].

[d] Confidentiality of Certificate Information

Confidential marriage certificates are maintained in the county in which the marriage license was issued as permanent, but confidential, records. The records are not open to public inspection except on a court order issued on a showing of good cause [Fam. Code § 511(a)]. The county clerk may conduct a search for a confidential marriage certificate for the purpose of confirming the existence of a marriage; however, the date of the marriage and any other information contained in the certificate must not be disclosed except by court order [Fam. Code § 511(c)]. Similarly, the State Registrar of Vital Statistics may respond to an inquiry as to the existence of a confidential marriage, but may not disclose the date of the marriage [Fam. Code § 511(d)].

§ 359.73 Proxy Marriages

A proxy marriage is a marriage in which one, or conceivably each, of the spouses is represented at the marriage ceremony by another person, in lieu of being present. Generally, the other requirements for a valid marriage in the particular jurisdiction (for example, license and health certificate requirements) must be satisfied by the spouses themselves. In the past there have been strong policy reasons in favor of recognition of proxy marriages, the foremost being the legitimation of children born out of wedlock. This situation has most frequently arisen where a serviceman on active duty has sought to legitimize a child born to a woman left at home, or to a woman met overseas after the serviceman has been transferred to another duty station. Such marriages have often been arranged by the Red Cross [see Comment, Persons --Marriage-- Validity of Proxy Marriage, 25 So. Cal. L. Rev. 181 (1952)].

California statutory law expresses no policy on proxy marriages, and case law presents no authority on the validity of proxy marriages performed in California. The only statements concerning the validity in California of such marriages have involved proxy marriages performed outside of the state. Both the Attorney General and the courts have ruled that such marriages are valid in California if they are valid in the jurisdiction in which they were performed, under the general rule that all marriages that are valid by the laws of the jurisdiction in which they are contracted are valid in California [5 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 104, 104-105 (1945) ; Barrons v. United States (9th Cir. 1951) 191 F.2d 92, 95 ; see Fam. Code § 308; discussion in § 359.74[1]]. Dicta in the Attorney General opinion stated without discussion that proxy marriages may not be consummated in California because California law requires marriages contracted in this state to be licensed, solemnized, and authenticated [see Fam. Code § 300], which cannot be done without the personal presence of both spouses [5 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 104 (1945)] . However, the Ninth Circuit has held that there exists no strong policy in California against proxy marriages [Barrons v. United States (9th Cir. 1951) 191 F.2d 92, 95] . Given the general policy favoring the validity of marriage, especially when the legitimacy of children is a motivating factor, there is a strong argument in favor of recognizing the validity of proxy marriages contracted in California [see Comment, Persons --Marriage--Validity of Proxy Marriages, 25 So. Cal. L. Rev. 181, 187-189 (1952)]. Nevertheless, no reported California decision has yet so held.

32-359 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 359.74

§ 359.74 Out-of-State Marriages

[1] General Rule of Validity

In general, all marriages contracted outside California that would be valid by the laws of the jurisdiction in which they were contracted are valid in California [Fam. Code § 308]. Thus, the law of the place of the marriage controls the question of its validity in California.

This rule has been applied to validate the following kinds of marriages that, if contracted in California, would be invalid or of dubious validity:

(1) Common-law marriage [e.g., Colbert v. Colbert (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 276, 280, 169 P.2d 633 ; In re Marriage of Smyklo (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 1095, 1099, 226 Cal. Rptr. 174 ; see discussion in § 359.74[2]];

(2) Proxy marriage, the validity of which has not been formally recognized in California [Barrons v. United States (9th Cir. 1951) 191 F.2d 92, 95 ; see discussion in § 359.73]; and

(3) Polygamous marriage, for the limited purpose of determining inheritance rights [Estate of Bir (1948) 83 Cal. App. 2d 256, 261-262, 188 P.2d 499 ; see discussion in § 359.74[3]].

In addition, the rule that a marriage is valid in California if valid where performed might conceivably be applied to validate the following types of out-of-state marriages:

(1) Marriages between persons, at least one of whom is under age 18 and who lacked parental consent and judicial permission to marry [see Fam. Code § 302; discussion in §§ 359.14[1] and 359.45[1]];

(2) Marriages not considered incestuous where performed but incestuous under California law [see Fam. Code § 2200; discussion in § 359.13[3]]; or

(3) Marriages between persons of the same sex in a jurisdiction recognizing the validity of such marriages [see Fam. Code § 300; discussion in § 359.13[4]].

The general rule recognizing marriages validly contracted elsewhere operates to validate an out-of-state marriage between California residents even though they married outside the state for the avowed purpose of evading the laws of California. Such a motive will not invalidate the marriage [Estate of Perez (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 121, 122, 219 P.2d 35 (out-of-state marriage to avoid health certificate requirements)].

The burden of proof rests on the party claiming the validity of the marriage to show that it was performed or contracted under some recognized law. If no such law is shown, the validity of the marriage will be judged by the law of the domicile of the spouses. Thus, a marriage ceremony performed on the high seas by the captain of a vessel between citizens and residents of California, who went there for the avowed purpose of evading the license requirement in California, was void, since the party with the burden of proof could show no recognized law to which the marriage conformed [Norman v. Norman (1898) 121 Cal. 620, 626-627, 54 P. 143] .

If a marriage is invalid under the laws of the place where it was contracted, it will not be valid in California even if it could have been validly contracted in California. For example, the marriage in Nevada of first cousins, which would have been valid if performed in California, was not valid under Nevada law and thus was not recognized in California [Estate of Levie (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 572, 576, 123 Cal. Rptr. 445] .

A legal relationship that is recognized out of state that does not confer on the parties all of the rights and duties of marriage, for example, a concubinage under Mexican law, will not be recognized in California as a common law marriage [see Rosales v. Battle (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1178, 1184, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 13] .

[2] Out-of-State Common-Law Marriages

Although California does not recognize the validity of common-law marriages contracted within the state [see discussion in § 359.70], it will recognize a common-law marriage contracted outside the state if it would be valid under the laws of the jurisdiction where it was contracted [Fam. Code § 308; see Colbert v. Colbert (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 276, 280, 169 P.2d 633 ; Coefield v. Coefield (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 959, 961 n.2, 155 Cal. Rptr. 335] . This policy holds even when the spouses are California residents at the time the validity of the common-law marriage is at issue [Tatum v. Tatum (9th Cir. 1957) 241 F.2d 401, 407 ; Estate of McKanna (1951) 106 Cal. App. 2d 126, 234 P.2d 673] .

[3] Out-of-State Polygamous and Incestuous Marriages

Generally, marriages validly contracted in other countries as well as elsewhere in the United States will be recognized in California [Fam. Code § 308; see Toshiko Inaba v. Nagle (9th Cir. 1929) 36 F.2d 481, 481 ; Estate of Bir (1948) 83 Cal. App. 2d 256, 261-262, 188 P.2d 499 (polygamous marriage)]. However, a marriage that is regarded as "odious by common consent of nations, e.g., where it is polygamous or incestuous by the laws of nature," probably would not be recognized in California, even though it might be valid where contracted [see McDonald v. McDonald (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 457, 459-460, 58 P.2d 163] . Any marriage between a parent and his or her biological child would probably be considered incestuous "by the laws of nature." However, marriages between aunts and nephews, or uncles and cousins, validly contracted in another state or country, would probably be accepted in California.

The policy against the recognition of polygamous marriages validly contracted elsewhere in the world has been circumvented only for the limited purpose of allowing successive spouses to share equally in the estate of the deceased bigamous spouse. When a decedent had two wives--both of whom were legal under the law of Punjab Province of India, but with whom he had not cohabited in California--the court of appeals, in recognition of the equities involved, held the public policy of California against polygamous marriages would not be injured by recognizing the validity of both marriages for inheritance purposes only [Estate of Bir (1948) 83 Cal. App. 2d 256, 261-262, 188 P.2d 499] . The rationale of this case could be used to support recognition for similar limited purposes of the validity of a marriage that was valid where performed but incestuous if performed in California.

Given the relatively liberal nature of the California incestuous-marriage statute [see Fam. Code § 2200], a more likely situation would be one involving a marriage that was incestuous and thus void where performed but that would have been valid if performed in California. This issue arose in a case involving a marriage contracted in Nevada between two California residents who were first cousins. The marriage was incestuous and thus void under Nevada law but would have been valid if performed in California. The alleged husband died intestate and the wife, as surviving spouse, contested the application of the husband's daughter for letters of administration. Failing in that effort, she then petitioned for a determination of heirship, again alleging she was decedent's surviving spouse and thus entitled to a surviving spouse's share of the deceased's property [see Prob. Code §§ 100, 101, 6401]. The court of appeals refused to recognize the validity of the attempted Nevada marriage, basing its decision on the general rule that the law of the jurisdiction where a marriage is performed controls its validity [see Fam. Code § 308]. However, the court accorded the petitioner the rights of a putative spouse, that is, a person who believes erroneously, but in good faith, that he or she is legitimately married. Thus, the putative wife was treated as the decedent's spouse for purposes of intestate succession [Estate of Levie (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 572, 576-577, 123 Cal. Rptr. 445] .

As discussed in § 359.47, tribal alliances and other unconventional marriage arrangements contracted within California without solemnization by a member of the clergy or another person authorized to solemnize marriages [see Fam. Code § 400] will be recognized in California if certain requirements are met [Fam. Code § 307; see Fam. Code § 295 (recognition of tribal alliances entered into before 1958)]. The statute authorizing such marriages only relieves the spouses from the statutory solemnization requirements [Fam. Code § 307]. It does not authorize or validate incestuous, bigamous, or same-sex marriages, or other marriages prohibited under California law [see Fam. Code §§ 300, 2200, 2201].

A tribal alliance or other unconventional marriage arrangement entered into outside California will be valid in California if it would be valid by the laws of the jurisdiction in which it was contracted [*Fam. § 359.91 Preferential Visa Status

An alien who marries a citizen of the United States or marries an alien lawfully residing within the United States generally acquires preferential status for purposes of entering and remaining in the United States. However, with limited exceptions [see 8 U.S.C. § 1186a(g)(1)], such an alien may be subject to a period of conditional status if the marriage was entered into less than 24 months before the date the alien obtained his or her admission status by virtue of the marriage [see 8 U.S.C. § 1186a(a)(1), (g)(1); discussion in § 359.92].

An alien who is engaged to a citizen of the United States and who gains entry into the country intending to marry the citizen within 90 days after entry is accorded the status of a nonimmigrant alien [8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(K)]. The alien's intended spouse may petition for a visa for the alien on the basis of that status. The petition may only be approved after the petitioner submits satisfactory evidence establishing that he or she previously met the alien within two years before the date of filing the petition, that they have a bona fide intention to marry, and that they are legally able and actually willing to conclude a valid marriage in the United States within 90 days after the alien's arrival. The requirement to have personally met is subject to waiver, at the discretion of the Attorney General [8 U.S.C. § 1184(d)]. If the marriage is concluded within the 90-day period, the alien may be granted conditional permanent residence status, subject to later petition to obtain final permanent residency [8 U.S.C. § 1186a(a)(1), (g)(1)].

An immigrant alien who is already the spouse of a United States citizen is considered an immediate relative of a citizen and may enter the country without regard to the limitations set by Congress on the number of immigrants who may lawfully enter the United States [8 U.S.C. § 1151(b)(2)(A)(i)]. In addition, naturalization preferences are accorded aliens who are married to United States citizens [8 U.S.C. § 1430(a)]. An immigrant alien who is married to an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence within the United States occupies the second most preferred category in the priority schedule for permanent residency [8 U.S.C. § 1153(a)(2)]. The immigrant spouse may be subject to a period of conditional residency [see 8 U.S.C. § 1186a(a)(1), (g)(1)].

An alien who does not enter the country solely to marry a United States citizen is classified as an immigrant [see 8 U.S.C. § 1101(a)(15)(K)]. If an immigrant alien is not already married to a citizen of the United States, he or she will ordinarily be subject to the numerical limitations on immigration [see 8 U.S.C. §§ 1151, 1152] and will be allotted a visa according to the statutory categories of preference [see 8 U.S.C. § 1153].

The period of conditional residency is two years [8 U.S.C. § 1186a(b)(1)], and the spouses must jointly petition the Attorney General to have the conditional status removed. The petition must be filed during the last 90 days of the two-year period [8 U.S.C. § 1186a(c)(1), (d)(2); see 8 U.S.C. § 1186a(d)(2)(B) (late petitions may be considered if good cause and extenuating circumstances are shown)]. Because of an increase in the number of persons seeking preferential visa status as the spouses of United States citizens or permanent residents, the Immigration and Naturalization Service has established procedures and regulations for the investigation of marriages between aliens and citizens or permanent residents. In order to establish that such a marriage was entered into in good faith and not for the purpose of procuring the alien's entry into the United States as an immigrant, a citizen or permanent resident petitioning the INS to obtain preferential immigration status for an alien spouse must submit to the INS evidence such as [8 C.F.R. § 204.2(a)(1)(iii)(E)]:

(1) Documentation showing joint ownership of a home or other property;

(2) A lease showing joint tenancy of a common residence;

(3) Documentation showing commingling of financial resources;

(4) Birth certificates of children born to the petitioner and the alien spouse;

(5) Affidavits of third parties having knowledge of the bona fides of the marital relationship; or

(6) Other documentation establishing that the marriage was not entered into in order to evade the immigration laws of the United States.

The precise nature and amount of evidence required in a given case will depend on the facts of the case.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Marriages Involving Aliens

32-359 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 359.94

§ 359.94 Effect of Dissolution, Annulment, or Bad Faith

[1] Duration of Marriage and Bad Faith

Marriages of relatively short duration involving aliens are subject to special statutory provisions that may affect the alien's ability to retain a given status, such as permanent residency. Under these provisions, if a marriage between an alien and a United States citizen or permanent resident is dissolved or annulled within two years after the alien enters the United States, and was entered into within two years before the entry, the alien may be subject to deportation unless he or she establishes to the satisfaction of the Attorney General that the marriage was not contracted for the purpose of evading any provisions of the immigration laws [8 U.S.C. § 1251(a)(1)(G)(i); see Sideropoulos v. Immigration & Naturalization Service (6th Cir. 1966) 357 F.2d 642, 643-644 (burden on alien to prove marriage not contracted to evade immigration laws, once substantial evidence of prima facie case shown)].

[2] Deportation for Failure to Fulfill Marital Agreement

Even if the marriage is not dissolved or annulled within two years after the alien enters the United States, the alien can be deported if it appears to the satisfaction of the Attorney General that he or she has failed or refused to fulfill the marital agreement and that the marital agreement was made for the purpose of procuring the alien's entry into the country as an immigrant [8 U.S.C. § 1251(a)(1)(G)(ii)]. The term "marital agreement" as used in the statute involves more than merely going through a marriage ceremony. In order to fulfill the marital agreement, the spouses must at least begin in good faith to live together as husband and wife [Giannoulias v. Landon (9th Cir. 1955) 226 F.2d 356, 359] . It would appear that the type of evidence that can be relied on to establish fraud in a nullity proceeding, such as statements by a spouse indicating an intent never to fulfill the spousal obligations of respect, fidelity, and support [see In re Marriage of Rabie (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 917, 922, 115 Cal. Rptr. 594 (marriage between alien and United States citizen annulled when alien's statements indicated he married merely to remain in United States and had no bona fide intention of fulfilling spousal duties)], could also be relied on in a deportation proceeding to demonstrate that the alien married in bad faith to evade the immigration laws.

[3] Revocation of Conditional Residency Status

During the two-year conditional residency period imposed on aliens who married United States citizens or aliens lawfully residing within the United States less than 24 months before obtaining preferential admission to the United States by virtue of the marriage [see 8 U.S.C. § 1186a(a)(1), (g)(1); discussion in § 359.92], the Attorney General has authority to terminate the alien's conditional status and commence deportation proceedings upon determining that either (a) the marriage was entered into for the purpose of procuring the alien's entry as an immigrant, (b) the marriage has been judicially annulled or terminated, other than by a spouse's death, or (c) a fee or other consideration was improperly given to file a petition on the alien's behalf under 8 U.S.C. § 1154(a) or 1184(d) (for a fiance/fiancee), except for a fee or consideration given for assistance by an attorney in preparation of a lawful petition. The alien may request a hearing to review the Attorney General's determination [8 U.S.C. § 1186a(b)(2)].

The alien spouse may be deported at the end of the two-year period if the spouses failed to timely file a petition to remove the conditional status or complete the personal interview required by law [see 8 U.S.C. § 1186a(c)(2); but see 8 U.S.C. § 1186a(c)(4) (waiver of requirements for extreme hardship)], or if the Attorney General determines that the facts and information revealed in the required personal interview or in the spouses' petition to remove the conditional status [see discussion in § 359.92] are untrue [see 8 U.S.C. § 1186a(c)(3)(C)]. The alien may request a review of a determination that the facts and information revealed in the interview or petition are untrue. During the review, the burden is on the Attorney General to establish, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the facts and information are untrue [8 U.S.C. § 1186a(c)(3)(D)].

[4] Criminal Penalties and Restriction of Immigration

There are criminal penalties for fraudulent marriage [see 8 U.S.C. § 1325(b)] and restrictions on future entry into the United States by aliens involved with marriage fraud [see 8 U.S.C. §§ 1154(c), 1182(a)(6)(C)]. In addition, there are restrictions on the adjustment of status or approval of petitions for immediate relative or preference status based on a marriage that takes place during deportation proceedings [8 U.S.C. §§ 1154(g), 1255(e)].

E. Proof Of Marriage

32-359 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 359.110

§ 359.110 Presumption of Validity of Ceremonial Marriage

[1] Nature and Effect of Presumption

A ceremonial marriage is presumed to be valid [Evid. Code § 663]. This rule is a codification of the common-law presumption recognized in California case law that dictates that when a marriage is shown in evidence, a strong presumption of its validity arises [In re Pusey (1916) 173 Cal. 141, 143, 159 P. 433] .

The statutory presumption that a ceremonial marriage is valid is a presumption affecting the burden of proof [Evid. Code § 660]. The effect of the presumption is to require the party against whom the presumption operates to prove the invalidity of the marriage in question [Evid. Code § 606; see In re Marriage of Recknor (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 539, 547, 187 Cal. Rptr. 887] . A presumption affecting the burden of proof is established to implement some public policy other than to facilitate the determination of the particular action in which the presumption is applied [Evid. Code § 605]. The public policy implemented by the presumption that ceremonial marriages are valid is the general policy favoring marriage [see Glickman v. Collins (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 852, 857, 120 Cal. Rptr. 76, 533 P.2d 204] .

The fact of ceremonial marriage may be established under the same general rules of evidence as facts are proved in other cases [Fam. Code § 305]. Some of the more common forms of proof include the admission into evidence of:

(1) A certificate of registry [see discussion in § 359.48[1]];

(2) A License and Certificate of Declaration of Marriage [see Fam. Code § 425; discussion in § 359.112];

(3) Testimony of the spouses;

(4) Testimony of a witnesses to the ceremony;

(5) Testimony of the person performing the ceremony; and

(6) Evidence admissible under hearsay exceptions [see discussion in § 359.111 et seq.].

[2] Operation of Presumption on Surviving Spouse Controversies

The presumption that a ceremonial marriage is valid [Evid. Code § 663; see discussion in § 359.110[1]] is often raised when a decedent has entered into two successive marriages and the two surviving spouses both claim the status and benefits of lawful spouse. In this situation, the second marriage is initially presumed valid and the first spouse has the burden of proving that it was not valid [Evid. Code §§ 606, 663]. Usually, this is done by showing that the first marriage was neither dissolved nor annulled [Vargas v. Superior Court (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 470, 473-474, 88 Cal. Rptr. 281] . If the first spouse presents sufficient evidence that the first marriage has not been dissolved or annulled, the presumption is rebutted and the burden of proof shifts to the second spouse to establish that the first marriage was in fact dissolved or annulled. If the second spouse does not meet this burden of proof, the first spouse is deemed to have established his or her status as the lawful spouse [see Spearman v. Spearman (5th Cir. 1973) 482 F.2d 1203, 1205 ; Estate of Smith (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 279, 281, 201 P.2d 539 ; Vargas v. Superior Court (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 470, 473-474, 88 Cal. Rptr. 281] .

Evidence other than a record search was sufficient to rebut the presumption of a valid second marriage when a decedent's first and second wives both claimed to be his surviving legal spouse. The first wife failed to show she had made any search of court records for a divorce judgment. However, she testified that there had never been a divorce, that she had written a note to the decedent some years earlier referring to herself as his wife, and that she and the decedent had reconciled for a short period of time after the decedent's separation from his second wife. This constituted substantial evidence to support the trial court's finding that the first wife was the decedent's legal wife and the second wife was only his putative wife [Patillo v. Norris (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 209, 216, 135 Cal. Rptr. 210] .

[3] Use of Presumption for Estoppel Purposes

A court of appeal has applied the common-law theory of estoppel and the statutory presumption that ceremonial marriages are valid [Evid. Code § 663] to uphold the validity of a bigamous marriage [see Fam. Code § 2201; discussion in § 359.13[2]]. The bigamous spouses had separated after being married for 15 years and having two children together. The wife had sued for temporary support, which was opposed by the husband on the ground that he had never been validly married to the wife. The court found that the parties had married while an action to dissolve the wife's first marriage was pending but not final. There was conflicting evidence as to whether the husband knew, at the time of the marriage, that the wife was still married to her previous husband. However, he apparently knew this within a short time after the bigamous marriage. The court found that, in these circumstances, the husband was estopped to deny the validity of the bigamous marriage. Therefore, he could not produce evidence to overcome the statutory presumption that the marriage was valid; and, therefore, the wife was entitled to temporary support [In re Marriage of Recknor (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 539, 546-547, 187 Cal. Rptr. 887] .

Chapter 359 MARRIAGE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Proof Of Marriage

32-359 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 359.111

§ 359.111 Hearsay Exceptions Relevant to Proof of Marriage

[1] Recorded Statistical Information Exception

Proof of marriage may call into play several exceptions to the hearsay rule, which may allow the admission of various forms of evidence. The hearsay rule does not, for example, prohibit the admission of evidence of a writing made as a record of marriage, provided the maker of the writing was required by law to file the writing in a designated public office and the writing was in fact made and filed as required [Evid. Code § 1281]. The most obvious examples of such a writing include a properly filed certificate of registry of marriage [see Fam. Code § 359; discussion in § 359.48[1]] and a properly filed License and Certificate of Declaration of Marriage [see Fam. Code §§ 307, 425; discussion in § 359.112].

Arguably, the writing should be inadmissible if it has any substantial defects. Possible defects [see Estate of Cooper (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 186, 192-193, 217 P.2d 499] include late filing [see Fam. Code §§ 359(e), 423; discussion in § 359.48[4]], improper witnessing [see Fam. Code §§ 307, 359(d), 422(b); discussion in § 359.47[7]] and use of false names in the certificate of registry [see Fam. Code § 351(b); but see Argonaut Ins. Co. v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 805, 810, 23 Cal. Rptr. 1 (marriage determined to be valid even when spouses used false names in applying for marriage license)]. However, it may be argued that defects that would not affect the validity of the marriage, such as late filing [see Fam. Code § 306], should not affect the admissibility of the writing.

[2] Ceremonial Marriage Certificate Exception

The hearsay rule will not prevent the admission of evidence of a written statement concerning a person's marriage or divorce, if (1) the statement is contained in a certificate stating the maker performed a marriage or other ceremony or administered a sacrament, (2) the maker was a member of the clergy, civil officer, or other person authorized to perform the acts reported in the certificate by law or by the rules, regulations, or requirements of a church, religious denomination, or religious society, and (3) the certificate was issued by the maker at the time and place of the ceremony or sacrament or within a reasonable time thereafter [Evid. Code § 1316].

The most obvious example of such a written statement is the ceremonial marriage certificate that may be issued to a couple at their request by the person performing the marriage ceremony [see Fam. Code § 424; discussion in § 359.111[2]]. Arguably, a certificate of registry or License and Certificate of Declaration of Marriage that is inadmissible under the recorded statistical information exception because it was never filed or was improperly filed [see discussion in § 359.111[1]] could also be admitted under this exception to the hearsay rule.

[3] Exception for Prior Statements of Spouses

The hearsay rule will not prevent the admission of evidence of a statement by a declarant who is currently unavailable as a witness [see Evid. Code § 240] concerning his or her own marriage or divorce, even though the declarant had no means of acquiring personal knowledge of the matter declared [Evid. Code § 1310(a)]. Such evidence is inadmissible, however, if the statement was made under circumstances that indicate its lack of trustworthiness [Evid. Code § 1310(b)].

[4] Exception for Prior Statements of Relatives and Friends

The hearsay rule will not prevent the admission of evidence of a statement of a person concerning the marriage or divorce of a person other than the declarant when the declarant is unavailable as a witness [see Evid. Code § 240] and the declarant either was related to the other person by blood or marriage or was so intimately associated with the other person's family as to be likely to have had accurate information concerning the matter declared [Evid. Code § 1311(a)]. The evidence is only admissible in this situation if the declarant made the statement upon information received from the other person or from a relative of that person, or upon repute in the other person's family [Evid. Code § 1311(a)]. The evidence is inadmissible if the statement was made under circumstances indicating its lack of trustworthiness [Evid. Code § 1311(b)]. This exception covers a situation in which the declarant was a family housekeeper or doctor or a friend so close as to be included in discussions of family history.

[5] Family Records Exception

Evidence of the following family records is not made inadmissible by the hearsay rule when the evidence is offered to prove the marriage or divorce of a member of the family by blood or marriage [Evid. Code § 1312]:

(1) Entries in family Bibles;

(2) Entries in other family books or charts;

(3) Engravings on rings;

(4) Family portraits;

(5) Engravings on urns, crypts, or tombstones; and

(6) Other like records.

These types of evidence are admissible on the principle that they are the natural effusions of a person who is acquainted with the truth and who records the facts on an occasion when his or her mind stands in an even position without any temptation to exceed or fall short of the truth [Estate of Monticelli (1951) 107 Cal. App. 2d 90, 91-92, 236 P.2d 661] .

[6] Exception for Evidence of Reputation in Family or Community

The hearsay rule will not prevent the admission of evidence of reputation among members of a family, when the reputation concerns the marriage or divorce of a member of the family by blood or marriage [Evid. Code § 1313]. The hearsay rule also will not prevent the admission of evidence of reputation in a community, when the evidence concerns the date or fact of marriage, divorce, or death of a person living in the community at the time the reputation arose [Evid. Code § 1314].

[7] Church Records Exception

The hearsay rule will not prevent the admission of evidence of a statement concerning a person's marriage or divorce that is contained in a writing made as a record of a church, religious denomination, or religious society, if (1) the statement is contained in a writing made as a record of an act, condition, or event that would be admissible as evidence of the act, condition, or event under the business records rule [see Evid. Code § 1271], and (2) the statement is of a kind customarily recorded in connection with the act, condition, or event recorded in the writing [Evid. Code § 1315].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Proof Of Marriage

32-359 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 359.112

§ 359.112 Declaration of Unrecorded Marriage

If no record of the solemnization of a marriage previously contracted is known to exist, the spouses may obtain a License and Certificate of Declaration of Marriage from the county clerk in the spouses' county of residence [Fam. Code §§ 350, 425]. This is the same form used to declare an unconventional religious ceremony not involving solemnization [see Fam. Code § 307; discussion in § 359.47[8]]. The license and certificate must be returned to the county recorder of marriages in the county where the license was issued [Fam. Code § 425].

In an opinion interpreting prior law, the Attorney General ruled that the county recorder must refuse to record a declaration of marriage tendered pursuant to the then-applicable statute when a marriage license had not been issued [65 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 321, 325 (1982)] . That policy would not appear to have changed under the current statute. However, since a combination license-and-declaration form is now used [see Fam. Code §§ 307, 425; Health & Safety Code § 103180], the problem is unlikely to arise.

If one spouse is deceased, or there is some other reason the spouses cannot both participate in the declaration of marriage procedure, either spouse acting alone may bring a proceeding to establish a record of the marriage under Health & Safety Code § 103450 et seq. For further discussion, see § 359.113

§ 359.113 Action to Establish Validity of Marriage

If either spouse denies the marriage or refuses to join in a declaration of the marriage [see Fam. Code § 425; discussion in § 359.112], the other spouse may proceed, by action in the superior court, to have the validity of the marriage determined and declared [Fam. Code §§ 200, 309].

The action could conceivably be used in connection with a petition for dissolution or for legal separation. However, it would seem that the issue of the validity of the marriage would be raised in the original proceeding without the necessity of a separate action. Other possibilities for use of this action would be where no record of the marriage exists and one spouse denies the marriage ever took place, where two persons both claim to be the legal spouse of a third person, or where a spouse seeks a judicial declaration that the marriage was validly contracted and a determination of the spouses' property rights [e.g., Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 210, 215, 317 P.2d 613] .

Chapter 359 MARRIAGE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Proof Of Marriage

32-359 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 359.114

§ 359.114 Proceeding to Establish Record of Marriage

[1] Nature of Proceeding

A proceeding to establish a record of marriage may be brought when no record of the fact, time, and place of a marriage is obtainable [Health & Safety Code § 103450 et seq.], such as when the record of the marriage was destroyed in a fire or by wartime bombing [see 3 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 86, 88 (1944)] . Proceedings to establish a record of marriage differ from actions to establish the validity of a marriage [see discussion in § 359.113] in two important respects. First, the purpose of a proceeding to establish a record of marriage is to establish the fact of the marriage, rather then to establish its validity [see Health & Safety Code § 103450]. Second, a proceeding to establish a record of marriage is not required to be brought by one of the spouses but may be brought by any beneficially interested person [Health & Safety Code § 103450; see Fam. Code § 309 (action to establish validity of marriage as required to be brought by one of spouses)]. This also means that either spouse alone may bring a proceeding to establish a record of marriage. Thus, the procedure may be used when the declaration of marriage procedure [see Fam. Code § 307] is unavailable to a spouse because the other spouse is deceased or otherwise unable to participate in the declaration procedure.

An ex parte order establishing the fact of marriage as of a certain date under Health and Safety Code § 103450 et seq. has been held to be merely a statistical record acknowledging the late registration of marriage. It is not proof of the fact of marriage, and has no evidentiary effect in a proceeding involving third parties who may have had contractual dealings with the spouses but were not privy to the ex parte proceeding. The statutory scheme under the Health and Safety Code does not accord to ex parte "marriage record" orders conclusive [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1908(a)] or even prima facie effect, and to give these orders any evidentiary weight in an action involving such a third party would infringe that party's due process rights [see Schmidt v. Retirement Board (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1204, 1210, 1215-1216, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 297 ; see also Estate of DePasse (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 92, 105, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 143 (procedure designed to cure failure to register marriage, not failure to obtain marriage license); cf. Mah Toi v. Brownell (9th Cir. 1955) 219 F.2d 642, 643-644 , cert. denied, 350 U.S. 823 (1955) ; see United States v. Casares-Moreno (N.D. Cal. 1954) 122 F. Supp. 375, 378 , aff'd, 226 F.2d 873 (1955)] . Thus, ex parte "marriage record" orders under the Health and Safety Code should be viewed as being in the nature of administrative functions or acts of recordation that the Legislature has authorized the courts to perform, rather than as orders or judgments to which effect must be given under the Code of Civil Procedure [Schmidt v. Retirement Board (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1204, 1210, 1215-1216, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 297 ; cf. Code Civ. Proc. § 1908(a)(1) (providing that judgment or final order of court having jurisdiction over matter is conclusive on "title to the thing ... or the condition or relation of the person")].

[2] Where Proceeding May Be Brought

A proceeding to establish a record of marriage may be brought in any of the following places [Health & Safety Code § 103450]:

- The county where the marriage is alleged to have occurred;
- The county of residence of the person whose marriage is sought to be established; or
- If the person whose marriage is sought to be established is dead, the county of his or her domicile at the time of death.

[3] Contents of Petition

A petition to establish a record of marriage must contain all the facts necessary to enable the court to determine the fact, time, and place of the marriage upon the proofs adduced on behalf of the petitioner at the hearing. The petition must also be verified [Health & Safety Code § 103455]. A sample petition to establish a record of marriage is set out in § 359.271.

[4] Fee for Filing Petition

There is a modest fee for filing the petition, in addition to the law library fee of the county in which the petition is filed [Health & Safety Code § 103470].

[5] Hearing on Petition

On the filing of the petition a hearing must be fixed by the clerk of the court, and set at a time at the convenience of the court at least five days but not more than 10 days after the petition is filed [Health & Safety Code § 103465]. In counties having more than one superior court judge, the petition may be heard by any judge hearing probate matters. If a probate department has been designated for hearing probate matters, the clerk must assign the matter to the probate department [Health & Safety Code § 103470].

[6] Order Granting Petition

If, upon the hearing, the allegations of the petition are established to the satisfaction of the court, the court may make an order determining that the marriage did in fact occur at the time and place shown by the proofs adduced at the hearing [Health & Safety Code § 103475]. The order must be made in the form and upon the blank prescribed and furnished by the State Registrar of Vital Statistics. It will become effective only on the filing of a certified copy of the order with the State Registrar [Health & Safety Code § 103485].

[7] Distribution of Copies of Petition

Once the State Registrar of Vital Statistics has filed the court order [see discussion in § 359.114[6]], the State Registrar must send certified copies of the order (termed a "delayed certificate") to the local registrar and the county recorder in the county where the marriage took place and in whose offices copies of records for the year of the marriage are on file. If the marriage took place outside California, a certified copy of the order must be sent to the county recorder of the county where the petitioner resides [Health & Safety Code § 103490].

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a creditor supplying necessaries to a spouse while the spouses are living together. The complaint is for use for goods sold and delivered for an agreed price or for reasonable value. It names as defendants both spouses since creditors, to whom amounts are owing for necessaries provided to a spouse while the spouses are living together, may sue the other spouse directly to reach that spouse's separate property [see In re Marriage of Higgason (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 476, 488, 110 Cal. Rptr. 897, 516 P.2d 289] .

[3] Allegations

The complaint contains the following allegations: (1) that the defendants were husband and wife (Paragraph 1) [Fam. Code § 914(a); Credit Bureau of Santa Monica Bay Dist., Inc. v. Terranova (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 854, 860, 93 Cal. Rptr. 538 (spouse not contracting for necessaries as necessary party to action)]; (2) capacity and residence of defendants (Paragraph 2); (3) that articles were sold or furnished to defendant (Paragraph 3) [Nissen v. Bendixsen (1886) 69 Cal. 521, 523, 11 P. 29] ; (4) that the spouses were living together at the time the goods were supplied to one of them (Paragraph 4) [Fam. Code § 4301; In re Marriage of Higgason (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 476, 488, 110 Cal. Rptr. 897, 516 P.2d 289] ; (5) that the debt incurred was for necessaries (Paragraph 5) [Fam. Code § 914; Nissen v. Bendixsen (1886) 69 Cal. 521, 522, 11 P. 29 ; Credit Bureau of Santa Monica Bay Dist., Inc. v. Terranova (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 854, 860, 93 Cal. Rptr. 538] ; (6) an optional allegation for use when the creditor seeks the reasonable value of the goods sold and delivered (Paragraph 6); (7) that no part or some part of the price of the goods has been paid and the amount still due on the obligation (Paragraph 7) [Nissen v. Bendixsen (1886) 69 Cal. 521, 523, 11 P. 29] ; and (8) an optional allegation that the noncontracting spouse owns separate property from which a judgment in favor of plaintiff could be satisfied (Paragraph 8) [Credit Bureau of Santa Monica Bay Dist., Inc. v. Terranova (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 854, 860, 93 Cal. Rptr. 538 (plaintiff as permitted to allege that separate property exists from which judgment may be satisfied, although not required to do so)].

[4] Jurisdiction, Venue, and Procedural Requirements

If this action is brought under the Family Code, jurisdiction is in the superior court [Fam. Code § 200]. Proper venue for this action is established by the allegation concerning the defendants' residence (Paragraph 2) [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)].

Pleadings filed under the Family Code must be verified [Fam. Code § 212].

[2] Use of Form

This form is a sample of Department of Health Services Form VS-117, which is distributed to the counties by the State Registrar of Vital Statistics. This form serves as the application for license to marry, the license to marry, and the certificate of registry of marriage [see Fam. Code § 359]. The first three sections of the form (Groom Personal Data, Bride Personal Data, and Affidavit) constitute the application for license to marry. The personal data sections are filled out by the court clerk, using information and documents provided by the applicants [see Fam. Code § 354]. The bride and groom must both sign the application (lines 23, 24) after the personal data sections have been completed. The fourth section of the form (lines 25A-25F) constitutes the license to marry, which is to be completed by the clerk.

The license application process and the requirements for issuance of a marriage license are discussed in § 359.44[4][a] et seq.

The fifth through seventh sections of the form (lines 26A-31) constitute the certificate of registry of marriage. These sections will still be blank when the applicants receive the form from the clerk. The applicants must take the form with them to the person who is to perform the marriage ceremony [Fam. Code § 421]. That person must complete the certification section of the form (lines 28-29F), obtain the signature and address of at least one witness to the ceremony (lines 26A-27C), and return the form to the county recorder of the county where the license was issued within 10 days after the ceremony [Fam. Code §§ 359(d)-(f), 422, 423]. The form may be hand delivered or mailed to the recorder.

After checking the form to ascertain that it has been completely and correctly filled out, the recorder will sign and date the certificate of registry (lines 30A-31), prepare a copy of the certificate, and forward the original certificate to the State Registrar.

The married couple does not permanently retain any part of Form VS-117. They may, on request, obtain a ceremonial (that is, unofficial) marriage certificate from the person who performs the marriage ceremony [Fam. Code § 424; see discussion in § 359.49]. If, after the ceremony has been performed and the certificate of registry has been returned, either spouse needs proof of the marriage, he or she may obtain a certified copy of the certificate of registry from the county recorder or the State Registrar [Health & Safety Code § 103525; see discussion in § 359.48[5]].

When the marriage ceremony is unconventional [see Fam. Code § 307], registration of the marriage and the content of the required License and Certificate of Declaration of Marriage are governed by Health & Safety Code § 103180. An unconventional marriage must be registered by the spouses, or by a witness who signed the License and Certificate of Declaration of Marriage, within 4 days after the ceremony with the local registrar of marriages for the county in which the License and Certificate was issued, and the endorsed License and Certificate must be returned to the county recorder of the county in which it was issued within 10 days after the ceremony [Fam. Code § 307(b); Health & Safety Code § 103180(b)]. In these cases, a different Department of Health Services form would be used instead of Form VS-117 [see Fam. Code § 307(a); Health & Safety Code § 103180(a)].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a reproduction of the optional Judicial Council form of Request of Minor to Marry [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-910]. This form is available in an interactive electronic format in LexisNexis Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

An unmarried male or female under 18 years of age who wishes to marry must obtain a court order granting permission to marry [see Fam. Code § 302(a); § 359.252]. When a minor has no parent or has no parent who is capable of consenting to the marriage, the court may make an order consenting to the issuance of a marriage license and granting the minor permission to marry [Fam. Code § 303].

When a minor has written permission to marry from a parent or guardian, this permission must be attached to the form [see Fam. Code § 302(b)].

An application for a court order permitting a minor to marry must be verified [Fam. Code § 212].

[3] State Statutes

Minor as capable of consenting to and consummating marriage if both written consent of parent or parents and court order granting permission for marriage filed with court. Fam. Code § 302

Superior court as authorized to consent to marriage of minor if minor has no parent capable of giving such consent. Fam. Code § 303

Superior court as authorized to require both prospective spouses to participate in premarital counseling if either one is minor. Fam. Code § 304

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a reproduction of the optional Judicial Council form of Order on Request of Minor to Marry [Cal. Judicial Council Form FL-915]. This form is available in an interactive electronic format in LexisNexis Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

An unmarried male or female under 18 years of age who wishes to marry must obtain a court order granting permission to marry [see Fam. Code § 302(a)]. The court order and written consent of the parents of each underage person must be filed with the clerk of the court and a certified copy of the order must be presented to the county clerk at the time the marriage license is issued [Fam. Code § 302(b)].

When a minor has no parent or has no parent who is capable of consenting to the marriage, the court may make an order consenting to the issuance of a marriage license and granting the minor permission to marry [Fam. Code § 303]. The order must be filed with the clerk of the court and a certified copy of the order must be presented to the county clerk at the time the marriage license is issued [Fam. Code § 303].

As part of the court order granting permission to marry, the court must require the parties to the prospective marriage to participate in premarital counseling concerning the social, economic, and personal responsibilities incident to marriage, when the court considers the counseling to be necessary [Fam. Code § 304]. In determining whether to order the parties to participate in premarital counseling, the court must consider, among other factors, the parties' ability to pay for the counseling [Fam. Code § 304]. Without their consent, the parties cannot be required to confer with counselors provided by religious organizations of any denomination [Fam. Code § 304].

When a court order is not obtained, a marriage of a minor is voidable and may be adjudged a nullity [see Fam. Code § 2210].

A parent's authority over a minor child ceases on the child's marriage [Fam. Code § 7505(b)].

Petitioner alleges:

1. Respondent is now and at all times herein mentioned was a resident of _____ County, California [or allege other basis for venue].

2. On _____ [date], the county clerk of _____ County, California, issued a marriage license to petitioner and respondent, who were both over the age of 18 and otherwise capable of consenting to marriage under the laws of the State of California.

3. Pursuant to the terms of the marriage license, and by the mutual and freely given consent of petitioner and respondent, petitioner and respondent were married in _____ County on _____ [date

]. The marriage was solemnized by _____ [name, title, and other pertinent information, e.g., Reverend Jane C. Pope of the Ecumenical Church at 1320Page Street, San Francisco, California]. The ceremony was witnessed by _____ [name and current address of witness or witnesses].

4. The marriage of petitioner and respondent has not been annulled or dissolved, and there has been no legal separation of the parties.

[5. No record of the solemnization of the marriage is known to exist.]

[EITHER]

6. Respondent refuses to join in a written declaration of the marriage, as provided for by Family Code Section 425.

[OR/AND]

7. Respondent denies the marriage _____ [specify context of denial, if applicable, e.g., and has refused to support petitioner and to recognize petitioner's community property rights].

[2] Use of Form

This form is a petition designed to be used by a spouse who brings an action to determine the validity of the marriage. If either spouse denies the marriage or refuses to join in a declaration of the marriage [see Fam. Code § 425; discussion in § 359.112], the other spouse may proceed, by action, to have the validity of the marriage determined and declared [Fam. Code § 309].

The form includes an optional provision stating that there is no known record of the marriage (Paragraph 5). Ordinarily, an action to establish the validity of a marriage would not be necessary when there is an official record of the marriage. However, the lack of an official record is not a prerequisite to commencing such an action [see Fam. Code § 309].

The pleading is designated as a petition and the parties as petitioner and respondent [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.22]. This action is governed by the provisions of law applicable to civil actions generally [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.22]. Thus, the petition must be filed with the superior court in the county in which the respondent resides at the commencement of the action, unless the respondent resides outside California or his or her county of residence is unknown to the petitioner. In either of these cases, the petitioner may file the petition in the county of his or her choice. If the respondent is about to depart from California, the action may be filed where either spouse resides or where service on the respondent is made [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a); see Fam. Code § 200 (superior court has jurisdiction of proceedings under Family Code)].

The petition must be verified [Fam. Code § 212]. The response, if any, must be filed within 30 days after service upon the respondent of the summons and a copy of the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 5.22] and must be verified [Fam. Code § 212].

If neither spouse disputes the validity of the marriage, but no record is known to exist of the solemnization of the marriage, the spouses should obtain and return a License and Certificate of Declaration of Marriage [Fam. Code § 425; see discussion in § 359.112] rather than bring a validation action. If one spouse is deceased, or there is some other reason the spouses cannot both participate in the declaration of marriage procedure, either spouse alone may bring a proceeding to establish a record of the marriage under Health & Safety Code § 103450 et seq. [see § 359.271]. This type of proceeding may also be brought by someone other than one of the spouses, if the petitioner is a legitimately interested person [Health & Safety Code § 103450]. Like the declaration of marriage procedure, it establishes only the fact of the marriage and not its validity.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a petition designed to be used by a person who brings an action to establish the fact, time, and place of a marriage that is not registered or for which a certified copy of the registration is not available. Such a proceeding may be brought by either spouse or by any other interested person [Health & Safety Code § 103450]. This form is designed to be used by a spouse.

A petition to establish the fact, time, and place of a marriage may be filed in the superior court in the county where the marriage is alleged to have occurred, the county where the person whose marriage is sought to be established resides, or the county where that person was domiciled at the date of death, if he or she is deceased [Health & Safety Code § 103450]. The petition must be verified, and must contain all the facts necessary to enable to the court to determine the fact, time, and place of the marriage upon the proofs adduced on behalf of the petitioner at the hearing [Health & Safety Code § 103455]. There is a modest filing fee, in addition to the county's law library fee [Health & Safety Code § 103470].

The form of the order establishing a record of marriage is prescribed by the State Registrar of Vital Statistics. The order must be entered on a blank form provided by the State Registrar [Health & Safety Code § 103485].

If both spouses are available to assist in establishing a record of the marriage, they may establish such a record through a declaration procedure [see Fam. Code § 425] rather than through a court proceeding. This procedure is discussed in § 359.112.

SPECIAL ALERT TO CHAPTER 359 SPECIAL ALERT--CALIFORNIA SUPREME COURT RULING ON PROPOSITION 8: STRAUS v. HORTON

32-359SA California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated Scope

Scope

The California Supreme Court ruled for the third time on the validity of same-sex marriages in Strauss v. Horton (May 26, 2009) 2009 Cal. LEXIS 4626, commonly referred to as the Prop 8 challenge. In a densely reasoned decision, it upheld the right of the people to reverse the Court's 2008 decision in In re Marriage Cases (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 757 by voter initiative, prospectively eliminated the rights of same-sex partners to marry in California and upheld the validity of 18,000 marriages performed prior to the enactment of Proposition 8.

This case presents profoundly difficult questions that go far beyond the validity of same-sex marriage in California. One significant question is: Who is the final authority on an issue of equal protection?

The majority opinion minimizes the effect of Proposition 8, interpreting it as limiting use of the designation of "marriage" and not the substantive rights of property, parenting and the like, thus gutting much of the Court's 2008 decision that the core of the deprivation was of the respect and recognition accorded the status of marriage itself. Strauss v. Horton contradicts the Court's 2008 holding that the right of marriage per se was constitutionally required under the privacy, due process, and equal protection clauses of the California Constitution.

Acknowledging all constitutional provisions establishing individual rights serve as a countermajoritarian check, the majority also acknowledged the people's right to delimit individual rights. This is the essence of the difficulty of the case. In a concurring opinion, Justice Werdegar noted the majority's definition of "revision" "avoids the daunting task of reconciling with our constitutional tradition a voter initiative clearly motivated at least in part by group bias."

This opinion should spark debate on whether California should revise its initiative system--perhaps to curtail the power of initiatives to limit core individual rights such as privacy and equal protection.

This opinion will be incorporated into this chapter and other chapters in future releases.

NOTE:
SB 189, which was introduced in February 2009 as a two-year bill, would comprehensively revise the law governing mechanics' liens and associated construction remedies. If enacted, the legislation will be operative January 1, 2011. For further information, see the Special Alert preceding Ch. 361, Mechanics' Liens.

This chapter discusses mechanics' liens, stop notices, and payment bonds insofar as these remedies apply to private works of improvements and private site improvement. The forms include the following:

- Forms for the enforcement of mechanic's liens [see §§ 361.190 -361.209].
- Forms for the enforcement of stop notices [see §§ 361.220 -361.225].
- Forms for recovery on payment bonds [see §§ 361.230 -361.232].
- Forms of demands, waivers, releases, demurrers, and affirmative defenses that may be asserted in the above actions [see §§ 361.240 -361.258].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Definitions and General Matters

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.10

§ 361.10 Governing Laws

The statutes that generally govern mechanics' liens, stop notices, and payment bonds in connection with private works of improvement and private site improvements are set forth in Civ. Code §§ 3082-3175, 3225-3242, 3258-3267. Mechanics' liens are specifically governed by Civ. Code §§ 3109-3153, stop notices by Civ. Code §§ 3156-3175, and payment bonds by Civ. Code §§ 3235-3242.

Except as otherwise provided in Civ. Code §§ 3082-3267 (mechanics' lien law), the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 307-1062a (rules governing civil actions) are applicable to, and constitute the rules of practice in, the proceedings mentioned in the mechanics' lien law. The provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 307 et seq. which relate to new trials and appeals, except insofar as they are inconsistent with the provisions of the mechanics' lien law or with rules adopted by the Judicial Council, also apply to proceedings mentioned in the mechanics' lien law [Civ. Code § 3259].

Because of the remedial character of the mechanics' lien law, its provisions should be liberally construed in their entirety with a view to effecting their objects and to promoting justice [Hendrickson v. Bertelson (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 430, 432-433, 35 P.2d 318 ; Nolte v. Smith (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 140, 144, 11 Cal. Rptr. 261] .

Chapter 361 MECHANICS' LIENS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Definitions and General Matters

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.11

§ 361.11 Definitions

[1] In General

The definitions set forth below govern the construction of the provisions of the mechanics' lien law unless the context otherwise requires a different construction [Civ. Code § 3082].

[2] Claimant

A claimant is any person entitled to record a claim of mechanics' lien, to give a stop notice in connection with any work of improvement, or to recover on any payment bond, or any combination of the above [Civ. Code § 3085].

[3] Work of Improvement

[a] Definition

A work of improvement includes but is not restricted to the construction, alteration, addition to, or repair in whole or in part of any building, wharf,bridge, ditch, flume, aqueduct, well, tunnel, fence, machinery, railroad, or road; the seeding, sodding, or planting of any lot or tract of land for landscaping purposes; the filling, leveling, or grading of any lot or tract of land; the demolition of buildings; and the removal of buildings [Civ. Code § 3106]. Except as otherwise provided in Civ. Code §§ 3082-3266, "work of improvement" means the entire structure or scheme of improvement as a whole [Civ. Code § 3106]. However, the sentence at the end of Civ. Code § 3106 regarding "the entire structure or scheme of improvement as a whole" does not mean that the removal or demolition of buildings is not a work of improvement unless it is part of a larger project leading to an outcome beyond mere removal or demolition. The sentence about a "scheme" only says that the term "work of improvement" refers to the entirety of a work of improvement. Since "work of improvement" is defined to include demolition and removal of buildings, the entirety of a work of improvement can consist of the demolition or removal of a building. There is no basis for the view that removal of a building--or anything else included in the definition--only counts if something else is done to the land in addition [United Rentals Northwest, Inc. v. Snider Lumber Products, Inc. (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1479, 1485, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 471] .

[b] Separate Residential Units

If a work of improvement consists of the construction of two or more residential units, defined as residential structures, including a residential structure containing multiple condominium units together with any common area or garage or other improvements appurtenant to the structures, each residential unit is considered a separate work of improvement [Civ. Code § 3131]. Materials delivered to or on or furnished to be used in any portion of such a work of improvement and ultimately used or consumed in one of the residential units are deemed for all purposes of Civ. Code §§ 3082-3267 (mechanics' liens, stop notices, and payment bonds) to have been furnished to be used or consumed in the separate residential unit in which they have actually been used or consumed [Civ. Code § 3131].

The completion of a residential structure containing multiple condominium units, together with any common area, or any garage or other improvements appurtenant thereto, does not operate to impair the rights of a union trust fund lien claimant if the claim is recorded within 120 days of the completion [Civ. Code § 3131].

[4] Site Improvement

A site improvement includes the demolishing or removing of improvements, trees, or other vegetation located thereon; the drilling of test holes on or grading, filling, or otherwise improving of any lot, tract of land, or street, highway, or sidewalk in front of, or adjoining, any lot or tract of land; the constructing or installing of sewers or other public utilities therein; or the constructing of any areas, vaults, cellars, or rooms under such sidewalks, or the making of any improvements thereon [Civ. Code § 3102].

[5] Laborer

A laborer is any person who, acting as an employee, performs labor on or bestows skill or other necessary services on any work of improvement [Civ. Code § 3089(a)]. "Laborer" also includes any person or entity, including an express trust fund [see Civ. Code § 3111], to whom a portion of the compensation of a laborer, as defined in Civ. Code § 3089(a), is paid by agreement with that laborer or the laborer's collective bargaining agent. To the extent that such a person or entity has standing to maintain a direct legal action to collect any portion of compensation owed for a laborer, that person or entity has standing to enforce any rights under the Mechanics' Lien Law to the same extent as the laborer. The intent of this statutory provision is to give effect to the public policy in favor of protecting laborers' entire compensation on works of improvement, regardless of the form in which that compensation is to be paid [Civ. Code § 3089(b)].

[6] Materialman

A materialman is any person who furnishes materials or supplies to be used or consumed in any work of improvement [Civ. Code § 3090].

[7] Contract

A contract is an agreement between the owner and any original contractor providing for the work of improvement or any part thereof [Civ. Code § 3088].

[8] Owner

The term "owner" is not given a general definition under any code provision of the mechanics' lien law. However, for purposes of recording a notice of completion or a notice of cessation following the completion or cessation of labor on any work of improvement, an owner is the one who causes a building, improvement, or structure to be constructed, altered, or repaired, whether the owner's interest or estate is in fee, as vendee under a contract of purchase, is as a lessee, or is as the holder of any other interest or estate which is less than fee [Civ. Code § 3092(g); for a form of notice of completion, see § 361.200].

For purposes of the owner's duty to notify the original contractor and any claimants who have provided a preliminary 20-day notice that a notice of completion or cessation has been recorded [see Civ. Code § 3259.5(a)], an "owner" is a person who has an interest in real property, or the person's successor in interest on the date the notice of completion or cessation from labor is recorded, who causes a building, improvement, or structure, to be constructed, altered, or repaired on the property. If the property is owned by two or more persons as joint tenants or tenants in common, any one of the cotenants may be deemed to be the owner. However, "owner" does not include a person who occupies the property as a personal residence and the dwelling contains not more than four residential units, nor does it include a person who has a security interest in the property or obtains an interest by virtue of a court order, a default on a mortgage, or a transfer by a fiduciary in the course of administering a decedent's estate, guardianship, conservatorship, or trust [Civ. Code § 3259.5(b); see Civ. Code § 1102.2(b)-(d)].

[9] Original Contractor

An original contractor is any contractor who has a direct contractual relationship with the owner [Civ. Code § 3095].

[10] Subcontractor

A subcontractor is any contractor who has no direct contractual relationship with the owner [Civ. Code § 3104].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Definitions and General Matters

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.12

§ 361.12 Constitutional Guarantee of Mechanics' Lien

The right to a mechanics' lien is guaranteed by Cal. Const., art. XIV, § 3. It provides that mechanics, persons furnishing materials, artisans, and laborers have a lien on property on which they have bestowed labor or furnished materials. The lien is for the value of the labor done and materials furnished [Cal. Const., art. XIV, § 3].

Since the Legislature must provide for the speedy and efficient enforcement of such a lien [Cal. Const., art. XIV, § 3], the constitutional right to a mechanics' lien is not self-executing and must be supplemented by legislative action [Spinney v. Griffith (1893) 98 Cal. 149, 151-152, 32 P. 974] . It should be noted, though, that the constitutional guarantee is a two-way street; the Legislature must balance the interests both of lien claimants and of property owners [Borchers Bros. v. Buckeye Incubator Co. (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 234, 238-239, 28 Cal. Rptr. 697, 379 P.2d 1] . The words "speedy and efficient" have been interpreted to mean that the Legislature must arrange for lien claimants to receive their money as soon as possible after supplying labor or materials. However, at the same time it must arrange for property owners, whose interests must also be protected, to have their titles cleared as soon as possible so that they will have some marketability [Borchers Bros. v. Buckeye Incubator Co. (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 234, 239, 28 Cal. Rptr. 697, 379 P.2d 1] . The Legislature thus is empowered to adopt legislation which will relieve the owner of the burden of the lien while at the same time affording the lien claimant reasonable assurance that his or her claim, if valid, will be paid in full [Frank Curran Lumber Co. v. Eleven Co. (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 175, 183-184, 76 Cal. Rptr. 753 (constitutionality of release bonds freeing property subject to mechanics' liens)].

A statute exempting certain property from legal process [see, e.g., Gov. Code § 31452 (county employees' retirement association's property)] may not be applied so as to interfere with the constitutional right to mechanics' liens [Parsons Brinckerhoff Quade & Douglas, Inc. v. Kern County Employees Retirement Assn. (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 1264, 1269-1270, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 456] .

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.13

§ 361.13 Mechanics' Lien Law Remedies

The use of the phrase "mechanics' lien law" to describe the various statutory remedies available to claimants who have furnished labor or materials to private works of improvement or private site improvements actually is a misnomer. The remedy of a mechanics' lien, which is the nature of a mortgage and which is a charge on the land [Mercantile Collection Bureau v. Roach (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 355, 357, 15 Cal. Rptr. 710] , is a separate remedy from that of the stop notice or the payment bond. The remedy of a stop notice is in the nature of an equitable garnishment of funds held by an owner or construction lender for use in defraying the costs of a work of improvement [see Civ. Code §§ 3083, 3103]. The remedy of a payment bond, as set forth in Civ. Code §§ 3225-3242, is a bond for the protection of the owner of property subject to a mechanics' lien; it inures to the benefit of mechanics' lien claimants so as to give them a right of action to recover on the bond [see Civ. Code § 3096]. These three remedies are cumulative and independent of each other [see Civ. Code §§ 3096, 3242 (payment bonds); A-1 Door & Materials Co. v. Fresno Guar. Sav. & L. Ass'n (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 728, 732, 40 Cal. Rptr. 85, 394 P.2d 829 (stop notices)] since the right to recover on a stop notice claim or on any bond provided for in the mechanics' lien law is not dependent on the establishment of a mechanics' lien [A-1 Door & Materials Co. v. Fresno Guar. Sav. & L. Ass'n (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 728, 732, 40 Cal. Rptr. 85, 394 P.2d 829 (stop notice); see Civ. Code § 3226 (sole condition of recovery on any bond is that person is entitled to claim mechanics' lien and has not been paid full amount of claim)].

Nothing in the mechanics' lien law which provides for the remedies of the mechanics' lien, stop notice, and payment bond may be construed to impair or affect the right of any claimant to maintain a personal action to recover his or her debt against the person liable therefor either in a separate action or in the action to foreclose his or her lien [Civ. Code § 3152]. Any personal judgment obtained in the personal action does not impair or merge any mechanics' lien held by the plaintiff. However, any money collected on the judgment must be credited on the amount of the lien [Civ. Code § 3152].

Thus it is possible and, in fact, customary, to pursue simultaneously the three remedies provided in the mechanics' lien law together with the personal remedy a claimant may have on his or her contract in a law suit. Actions are often brought against the person with whom the claimant contracted, against the owner to foreclose his or her mechanics' lien, against the construction lender if there was one, against the owner to enforce his or her stop notice, and against the sureties on a payment bond. In addition, Civ. Code § 3152 is permissive, not prohibitive, and does not prohibit a mechanic's lien claimant from enforcing a personal debt after foreclosing or releasing the lien [Paykar Construction, Inc. v. Spilat Construction Corp. (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 488, 495, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 863] .

§ 361.20 Governing Statutes

Mechanics' liens are governed by Civ. Code §§ 3109-3154, 3259-3262. Definitions of terms used in these code provisions are contained in Civ. Code §§ 3082-3106.

Design professionals' liens are governed by Civ. Code §§ 3081.1-3081.10.

The statutes governing mechanics' liens do not apply to any public work [Civ. Code § 3109]. A public work is defined as any work of improvement that is contracted for by a public entity [Civ. Code § 3100].

Because of principles of sovereign immunity, any right to impress a mechanic's lien on public property must be expressly, not implicitly, provided for by statute [Mayrhofer v. Board of Education (1891) 89 Cal. 110, 112, 26 P. 646 ; see North Bay Construction, Inc. v. City of Petaluma (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 552, 557, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 455] . Thus, a paving contractor who contracted with a developer to perform grading work on property leased by the developer from the city could not enforce a mechanic's lien against the city's property, even though the express exemption for public work provided by Civ. Code § 3109 did not apply. No statute imposes liability on a public entity for debts incurred by a lessee for improving property owned by and leased from the public entity [North Bay Construction, Inc. v. City of Petaluma (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 552, 557-558, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 455] .

The mechanics' lien itself is in the nature of a mortgage and is a charge on the land [Mercantile Collection Bureau v. Roach (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 355, 357, 15 Cal. Rptr. 710] . It proceeds on the theory that the laborer and the materialman have an equitable right to follow their labor and materials into a building of which such labor and materials have become a component part [*Humboldt Lumber Mill Co. v. B. Mechanics' Liens

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.22

§ 361.22 Personal Liability of Owner

An action to foreclose a mechanics' lien is in rem and is local in nature since the plaintiff is resorting primarily to his or her security for the payment of the indebtedness [see Central Bank v. Superior Court (1973) 106 Cal. Rptr. 696] . No personal liability arises on the part of an owner of property that is subject to a mechanics' lien unless a contract, either express or implied, exists between the owner and the lien claimant [R.D. Reeder Lathing Co. v. Allen (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 373, 376, 57 Cal. Rptr. 841, 425 P.2d 785 ; Golden Gate Bldg. Materials Co. v. Fireman (1928) 205 Cal. 174, 177-178, 270 P. 214] . For a contract to exist, there must be privity between the owner and the claimant [see Blackmore Equip. Co. v. Braddock, Logan & Valley (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 12, 15, 74 Cal. Rptr. 484] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Mechanics' Liens

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.23

§ 361.23 Types of Liens

[1] In General

Two types of mechanics' liens are provided for in Civ. Code §§ 3110-3112. A lien is granted (1) to persons who have furnished labor or materials in connection with works of improvement as described in Civ. Code § 3110 and (2) to persons who have made site improvements [see Civ. Code § 3112]. Design professionals' liens for professional architectural, engineering, or surveying services rendered prior to construction are discussed § 361.24. For forms of claim of lien, see §§ 361.192 -361.194.

[2] Liens on Works of Improvement

Mechanics, materialmen, contractors, subcontractors, lessors of equipment, artisans, architects, registered engineers, licensed land surveyors, machinists, builders, teamsters, draymen, and all persons and laborers of every class who, at the instance of an owner of property or his or her agent, perform labor or bestow skill or other necessary services on, furnish materials or leasing equipment to be used or consumed in, or furnish appliances, teams, or power that contribute to a work of improvement are entitled to liens on the property on which they have performed or furnished such labor, services, materials, or equipment [Civ. Code § 3110].

The list of occupations in Civ. Code § 3110 is not exclusive [see Contractors Dump Truck Serv., Inc. v. Gregg Constr. Co. (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 1, 4-5, 46 Cal. Rptr. 738 (transportation motor broker)]. However, whether or not a person occupies a position specifically listed in Civ. Code § 3110, that person must also bring his or her case clearly within the terms of the statute; a mechanics' lien is a creature of the statute, and it must be looked to both for the right to the lien and for the mode by which it is enforced [see Reese v. Bald Mountain Consol. Gold Mining Co. (1901) 133 Cal. 285, 290, 65 P. 578 (construing former Code Civ. Proc. § 1183)].

The mechanics' lien law contemplates that the "mechanic" and the "owner" will be two different persons. The law does not entitle an owner to claim a lien for materials furnished under another name [Superior Lbr. Co. v. Sutro (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 954, 957-958, 155 Cal. Rptr. 333 (owner who lost property through trustee's sale is not entitled to assert priority lien against property for value of materials that owner furnished)].

[3] Site Improvement Liens

Any person who, at the instance of the owner of any lot or tract of land, has made any site improvement has a lien on the lot or tract of land for work done or materials furnished [Civ. Code § 3112].

[4] Union Trust Fund Liens

For purposes of the Mechanics' Lien Law, an express trust fund to which a portion of a laborer's total compensation is to be paid pursuant to an applicable employment agreement or a collective bargaining agreement for the provision of benefits (including, but not limited to, employer payments for health and welfare, pension, vacation, travel time, and subsistence pay, apprenticeship or other training programs, specified worker protection and assistance programs or committees, industry advancement and collective bargaining agreement administrative fees, and similar purposes [see Lab. Code § 1773.1]) is entitled to assert the same rights and claims as laborers performing labor on, or bestowing skill or other necessary services on, a work of improvement, to the extent of the compensation agreed to be paid to that express trust fund for labor on that improvement only [Civ. Code § 3111]. As amended in 1999 [see Stats. 1999, ch. 795, § 7], Civ. Code 3111 is intended to reinstate the ability of laborers and employee trust funds to use mechanics' liens and creditor priorities to obtain payment of unpaid wages and fringe benefits. The amendment was drafted in an attempt to avoid having state remedies for collection of those wages and fringe benefits be preempted by the federal Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA) [24 U.S.C. § 1001 et seq.]. Prior to this amendment, the California Supreme Court held that Civ. Code § 3111 was preempted by ERISA [see Carpenters So. Cal. Admin. Corp. v. El Capitan Development Co. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 1041, 1049-1054, 282 Cal. Rptr. 277, 811 P.2d 296] .

ERISA does not preempt an action under § Civ. Code § 3110, a mechanic's lien law of general application that does not itself refer to ERISA plans [Betancourt v. Storke Housing Investors (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1157, 1166, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 259] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Mechanics' Liens

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.24

§ 361.24 Design Professionals' Lien

[1] In General

A design professional has a lien on real property for which a work of improvement is planned to be constructed, notwithstanding the absence of commencement of actual construction of the planned work of improvement, if the landowner contracted for the design professional's services and is also the owner of the real property at the time of recordation of the lien [Civ. Code § 3081.2]. The lien is not applicable, however, to a work of improvement relating to a single-family owner-occupied residence when the construction costs are less than $100,000 [Civ. Code § 3081.10].

A "design professional" is any certificated architect, registered professional engineer, or licensed land surveyor who furnishes services pursuant to a written contract with a landowner for the design, engineering, or planning of a work of improvement [Civ. Code § 3081.1].

For a design professional's claim of lien, see § 361.194.

[2] Amount of Lien

The lien is for the amount of the design professional's fee for any services rendered prior to commencement of the work of improvement or the reasonable value of those services, whichever is less. The amount of the lien must be reduced by the amount of any deposit or prior payments, as specified by a written contract entered into by the design professional and by the landowner or his or her agent. However, no lien arises unless a building permit or other governmental approval in furtherance of the work of improvement has been obtained in connection with or utilizing the services rendered by the design professional [Civ. Code § 3081.2].

[3] Procedure for Obtaining Lien

[a] Demand for Payment

A design professional is entitled to a lien only if the landowner defaults in a payment required pursuant to the terms of the written contract or refuses to pay on the demand of the design professional made in accordance with the written contract [Civ. Code § 3081.3(a)]. Then, at least 10 days prior to recording a notice of lien (discussed under [b], below), the design professional must mail by first-class registered or certified mail, postage prepaid, addressed to the landowner, a written demand for payment specifying that a default has occurred pursuant to the contract or agreement and the amount of the default [Civ. Code § 3081.3(b)].

[b] Recording Notice of Lien

No later than 90 days after the design professional knows or has reason to know that the landowner is not commencing the work of improvement, he or she must record a notice of lien with the county recorder in the county where the property is located. [Civ. Code §§ 3081.3(c), 3081.7]. The notice must specify that a lien is created in favor of the named design professional, specify the amount of the lien, identify the current owner of record of the real property, provide a legal description of the real property to be improved, and specify the building permit or other governmental approval for the work of improvement required as a condition of the lien [Civ. Code § 3081.3(c); for a form, see § 361.194].

Recording a notice of lien creates a lien in favor of the named design professional [Civ. Code § 3081.4(a)].

[4] Priority of Lien

A design professionals' lien does not affect or take priority over the interest of record of a purchaser, lessee, or encumbrancer, if the interest of the purchaser, lessee, or encumbrancer in the real property was duly recorded before recordation of the design professionals' lien [Civ. Code § 3081.9(a)]. The lien also does not affect or take priority over an encumbrance of a construction lender that funds the loan to commence the work of improvement for which the design professional furnished services at the request of the landowner [Civ. Code § 3081.9(b)].

[5] Automatic Expiration

A design professionals' lien automatically expires and is null, void, and of no further force or effect on the occurrence of either of the following [Civ. Code § 3081.4(b)]:

- Commencement of the work of improvement for which the design professional furnished services at the request of the landowner; or

- Expiration of 90 days after recordation of the notice of lien, unless a suit is filed to enforce the lien within 90 days.

[6] Release of Lien on Satisfaction by Owner

If the landowner partially or fully satisfies the lien, the design professional must execute and record a document that evidences a partial or full satisfaction and release of the lien [Civ. Code § 3081.4(c)].

[7] Enforcement

A perfected design professionals' lien must be enforced in the same manner as a mechanics' lien [Civ. Code § 3081.5]. For discussion of enforcement of mechanics' liens, see § 361.31. For procedural checklist of an action to foreclose a lien, see § 361.162.

[8] Other Remedies Not Affected

The right to a design professionals' lien does not affect a design professional's ability to obtain a mechanics' lien [Civ.

Code § 3081.6], or to pursue other remedies [Civ. Code § 3081.8]. In the case of contracts entered into on or after January 1, 1996, those other remedies include the right to negotiate and enforce a late payment penalty provision in lieu of any interest otherwise due for late payment under a private works contract [Civ. Code § 3319], and the right to receive a penalty for late payment of progress payments or a final retention payment under a public works contract [Civ. Code § 3320]. For further discussion, see Ch. 57, Architects .

Chapter 361 MECHANICS' LIENS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Mechanics' Liens

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.25

§ 361.25 Prerequisites to Entitlement

[1] Attachment of Lien

The general rule is that a mechanics' lien does not attach unless and until construction has been undertaken by the doing of actual visible work on, or delivery of construction materials to, the land on which there is a work of improvement [Walker v. Lytton Sav. & L. Ass'n (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 152, 156-157, 84 Cal. Rptr. 521, 465 P.2d 497] . This rule is derived from the language of Civ. Code § 3110 (former Code Civ. Proc. § 1181), which specifies that services giving rise to a mechanics' lien are those bestowed on or contributing to any work of improvement. Once actual construction commences on the ground or material for the construction is delivered to the site, the lien of the laborer or materialman then attaches for all services rendered by him or her, including services rendered before commencement of construction and that contributed to the construction [Walker v. Lytton Sav. & L. Ass'n (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 152, 156 n.5, 84 Cal. Rptr. 521, 465 P.2d 497] .

The slightest visible work taking place on property on which a work of improvement is to be constructed is sufficient for a finding that the work had commenced. Thus the setting of permanent monuments in the ground, for land subdivision, following extensive engineering services, is a commencement of the improvement, because it is an essential part of the "scheme of improvement" as those terms are used in Civ. Code § 3106 defining work of improvement [Design Associates, Inc. v. Welch (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 165, 174, 36 Cal. Rptr. 341] .

[2] Furnishing Materials

No lien may be claimed for materials furnished or delivered for a work of improvement unless a lien claimant shows that the materials were furnished or delivered for a particular work of improvement [Ensele v. Jolley (1922) 188 Cal. 297, 300, 204 P. 1085] . It is not enough that materials be sold or leased and then in fact used in a work of improvement; it must also be shown that in furnishing or delivering the materials the vendor or lessor intended that they be used or consumed in the work of improvement [see W.P. Fuller & Co. v. Fleisher (1923) 63 Cal. App. 78, 79-80, 218 P. 53 ; see also Consolidated Elec. Distributors, Inc. v. Kirkham, Chaon & Kirkham, Inc. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 54, 58, 95 Cal. Rptr. 673] .

In addition to the requirement that a lien claimant show an intent to furnish or deliver materials for a particular improvement, the claimant must show that the materials were actually used or consumed in the improvement [Ensele v. Jolley (1922) 188 Cal. 297, 300, 204 P. 1085] . In this regard, no presumption exists that because the materials were delivered to the improvement site the materials were used in the improvement [Consolidated Elec. Distributors, Inc. v. Kirkham, Chaon & Kirkham, Inc. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 54, 58, 95 Cal. Rptr. 673] .

[3] Permanency of Improvement

Because the mechanics' lien is a charge on the real property of the owner, before a lien can be claimed for labor and materials furnished in connection with the installation of a chattel on the owner's property it must be shown that the chattel installed became a fixture attached to the realt y [R. Barcroft & Sons Co. v. Cullen (1933) 217 Cal. 708, 711-712, 20 P.2d 665 ; Cornell v. Sennes (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 126, 131, 95 Cal. Rptr. 728] . Whereas Civ. Code § 660, the common law definition of a fixture, emphasizes the manner of the chattel's annexation, more recent decisions hold that the manner of annexation is not the sole or the most important test [Cornell v. Sennes (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 126, 132, 95 Cal. Rptr. 728] . Three main factors are used in determining whether the chattel has become a fixture: (1) physical annexation; (2) adaptation to use with real property; and (3) intention to annex to realty [Cornell v. Sennes (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 126, 132, 95 Cal. Rptr. 728] . Intention is considered the most important factor, but the manner of annexation and the use to which the property is put are relevant in determining such intention. Other factors, including the relationship of the claiming parties, the relative difficulty of removal, the nature of the article annexed, and whether the fact of annexation is open and apparent are used if the three main factors do not suffice in the particular fact situation [Cornell v. Sennes (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 126, 132, 95 Cal. Rptr. 728] .

Although all the factors listed above may be taken into consideration, the status of the lien claimant is generally favored in determining whether or not a disputed item, attached to real estate, is personalty or real estate. Therefore, the rules governing fixture law between vendor-vendee or between mortgagor-mortgagee are applicable when the rights with respect to fixtures are construed most strongly in favor of the vendee or mortgagee; to the contrary, the rules governing fixture law between landlord and tenant are generally not applicable [R. Barcroft & Sons Co. v. Cullen (1933) 217 Cal. 708, 714, 20 P.2d 665] .

Although the controlling factor in determining whether the property is permanently attached to the land is the intent of the parties, if the rights of a person who is unconnected with the transaction are being determined, the question of the permanency of the attachment is one of apparent intent as it would appear to a third person [Kruse Metals Mfg. Co. v. Utility Trailer Mfg. Co. (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 176, 183, 23 Cal. Rptr. 514] .

[4] Permanency of Contribution to Improvement

[a] General Requirement

The character of the work done and materials furnished for a work of improvement for which a mechanics' lien is claimed must be of a structural or permanent nature [Ogden v. Byington (1926) 198 Cal. 151, 157 ; Howard A. Deason & Co. v. Costa Tierra, Ltd. (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 742, 753, 83 Cal. Rptr. 105] . This does not mean that the work or materials furnished must be a visible part of the work of improvement, because a lien may be claimed for materials consumed in the work [Civ. Code § 3110; see Pacific Sash & Door Co. v. Bumiller (1912) 162 Cal. 664, 667, 124 P. 230 (lien allowed for lard oil applied to threads of joints of pipe)]. It does mean that the work or material must have added to the construction of the work of improvement. For example, a lien may be claimed for landscaping and maintenance that is necessary to insure that planting is well established on the ground, but not for maintenance work such as the mowing and watering of a lawn that takes place after the permanence of the lawn is insured [Howard A. Deason & Co. v. Costa Tierra Ltd. (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 742, 753, 83 Cal. Rptr. 105] .

[b] Destruction or Abandonment of Improvement

If a work of improvement is destroyed before completion and delivery to the owner through no fault of the owner or if the improvement project is abandoned by mutual agreement between the owner and the potential lien claimant, then no lien can be claimed in connection with the work because no unjust benefit has been conferred on the owner [Humboldt Lumber Mill Co. v. Crisp (1905) 146 Cal. 686, 688, 81 P. 30 ; McDonald v. Filice (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 613, 618, 60 Cal. Rptr. 832] . A person otherwise entitled to a mechanics' lien may enforce his or her lien claim against the owner, however, if the destruction of the improvement, or abandonment of the project after work has commenced, was the fault of the owner [McIntosh v. Funge (1930) 210 Cal. 592, 599-602, 292 P. 960 ; McDonald v. Filice (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 613, 620, 60 Cal. Rptr. 832] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Mechanics' Liens

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.26

§ 361.26 Scope of Owner's Responsibility

[1] Required Owner's Authorization

No person is entitled to a lien unless the labor or materials have been furnished in connection with a work of improvement or site improvement at the instance of the owner or any other person acting by the owner's authority or under him or her as contractor or otherwise [Civ. Code §§ 3110, 3112].

[2] Statutory Agents of Owner

For the purposes of conferring mechanics' liens rights under Civ. Code §§ 3109-3153, a contractor, subcontractor, sub-subcontractor, architect, builder, or other person having charge of a work of improvement or any portion of the improvement is held to be an agent of the owner [Civ. Code § 3110].

[3] Subcontractor Distinguished From Materialman

Subcontractors must be distinguished from materialmen, because a subcontractor is both entitled to a lien and is, for the purposes of conferring liens on other persons, a statutory agent of the owner. Therefore, those who work under him or her are entitled to the benefits of the mechanic's lien [see Civ. Code §§ 3110, 3112]. However, a materialman who furnishes materials or supplies to be used or consumed in a work of improvement [Civ. Code § 3090] cannot confer lien rights on those who have furnished him or her materials or supplies [see Blakemore Equip. Co. v. Braddock, Logan & Valley (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 12, 15, 74 Cal. Rptr. 484 ; Tarter, Webster Johnson, Inc. v. Windsor Developers, Inc. (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 875, 878-887 9, 31 Cal. Rptr. 452] .

Despite the fact that a subcontractor is defined generally as any contractor who has no direct relationship with the owner [Civ. Code § 3104], for the purposes of being determined to be a statutory agent of the owner a subcontractor must be one who agrees with the original contractor to perform a substantial, specified portion of a work of improvement pursuant to the original contract in accord with the plans and specifications by which the original contractor is bound [Theisen v. Los Angeles County (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 170, 183, 5 Cal. Rptr. 161, 352 P.2d 529] . Construction of a definite, substantial part of the improvement in accord with the original contract's plans and specifications, rather than incorporation of a portion of a projected structure into the improvement on the job site as some earlier cases had held, is the essential feature that makes one a subcontractor rather than a materialman [Theisen v. County of Los Angeles (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 170, 183, 5 Cal. Rptr. 161, 352 P.2d 529] .

[4] Owner's Knowledge of Improvement

[a] Effect of Knowledge

If an owner or any person who has or claims an estate in some real property knows either of a work of improvement being constructed on the property or of labor or materials furnished in connection with the work of improvement that was originally contracted for by one having some interest in the property less than a fee simple, then the construction, labor performed, and materials furnished are held to be at the instance of the owner or person having or claiming an estate in the property [see Civ. Code § 3129; Blakemore Equip. Co. v. Braddock, Logan & Valley (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 12, 17, 74 Cal. Rptr. 484 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1183.1(a))]. The basis of this provision is estoppel. Because the owner has received the benefit of the improvement, the noncontracting owner is placed in the position of a party to the contract by the conclusive presumption that the work was done at his or her instance and request [M. Arthur Gensler, Jr., & Associates, Inc. v. Larry Barrett, Inc. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 695,708, 103 Cal. Rptr. 247, 499 P.2d 503 ; Nolte v. Smith (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 140, 144, 11 Cal. Rptr. 261] .

The interest or claimed interest in the land is subject to any recorded mechanics' lien that a claimant may be entitled to assert under Civ. Code §§ 3110-3112 [Civ. Code § 3129]. To be subject to a recorded mechanics' lien, the owner or person claiming an interest must either have actual knowledge of the work of improvement or furnished labor and materials, or have received a preliminary 20-day notice under Civ. Code § 3097. Constructive knowledge is not sufficient [Kim v. JF Enterprises (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 849, 856-859, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 141] . For an outline of procedures related to the preliminary 20-day notice, see § 361.160. For a form for preliminary 20-day notice, see § 361.190.

[b] Notice of Nonresponsibility

If the owner of or person having or claiming an interest in the estate records a notice of nonresponsibility and posts it at some conspicuous place on the construction site within 10 days after obtaining knowledge of a work of improvement being constructed on the estate, he or she will not be responsible for any mechanics' liens claims arising from the improvement so long as he or she has not caused the improvement to be constructed or performed [Civ. Code § 3129; see Civ. Code § 3094; for a form of notice of nonresponsibility by owner, see § 361.199].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Mechanics' Liens

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.27

§ 361.27 Property Subject to Lien

[1] Works of Improvement

Mechanics' liens attach to the work of improvement and the land on which it is situated, together with as much of the property surrounding the work as is required for its convenient use and occupation, if at the commencement of the work or of the furnishing of materials for the work the land belonged to the person who caused the work to be constructed [Civ. Code § 3128]. If the person who caused the work to be constructed owns less than a fee simple in the land, then only his or her interest in the land is subject to mechanics' liens [Civ. Code § 3128]. Hence, a lien that is claimed for work or materials furnished in connection with a work of improvement attaches primarily to the superstructure, the work of improvement, and only to the land as it is embraced in common ownership with the superstructure [English v. Olympic Auditorium, Inc. (1933) 217 Cal. 631, 639, 20 P.2d 946] .

In determining the area that is required for the necessary and convenient use of the erected structure, the intended use of the structure must be considered [Anselmo v. Sebastiani (1933) 219 Cal. 292, 297-298, 26 P.2d 1] . For example, in the case of a separate and distinct unit, the only area that may be subject to a mechanics' lien is that area necessary for ingress and egress. But if the uses of the structure require the entire tract of land on which it is situated or even adjacent structures, the lien may attach to the whole tract of land or such other structures [Anselmo v. Sebastiani (1933) 219 Cal. 292, 298, 299, 26 P.2d 1] . The lien attaches to the whole of the structure and land required for its necessary and convenient use as distinct from a part of the structure or land [see A.A. Baxter Corp. v. Home Owners & Lenders (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 725, 732, 86 Cal. Rptr. 854] .

For the lien to attach to the adjacent property, the purpose for which the building or improvement in question is erected must be so intimately and directly connected with the operations carried on in the adjacent buildings as to constitute it an essential part and parcel of the improvement [Pacific Coast Refrigeration, Inc. v. Badger (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 233, 244, 124 Cal. Rptr. 786] . In one case, the general contractor for construction of a public golf course and flood channel brought a breach of contract and foreclosure action against the owners of the golf course property as well as adjacent property owners. The trial court found that the contractor's mechanics' lien attached to the golf course property and to the adjacent property. The court of appeal reversed, concluding that the mechanics' lien did not attach to the entirety of the adjacent property because not all of the adjacent property was required for the convenient use and occupation of the golf course. The evidence established that the lien attached only to a limited part of the adjacent property, such as the area where a tee box was located outside the golf course property, and the part of the property where the contractor installed irrigation, provided landscaping, and performed grading and leveling in connection with removal of topsoil transported to the golf course [Forsgren Associates Inc. v. Pacific Golf Community Development LLC (2010) 182 Cal. App. 4th 135, 154, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 654] .

In one case, when a contractor who built a street in a development filed nine individual mechanics' liens for the full amount claimed to be owed on nine separate parcels, the trial court should have granted the developers' ex parte application for an order permitting them to release all nine parcels from the liens by posting a single surety bond in an amount equal to one and one-half times the total amount claimed [Civ. Code § 3141]. The surety bond would not extinguish the contractor's lien or affect its priority, but would only substitute the bond for the land as the object to which the lien attached. This result avoided both the absurdity of requiring multiple bonds to release duplicative liens securing a single debt and the absurdity of forfeiting all security for the payment of that debt [T.O. IX, LLC v. Superior Court (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 140, 148, 80 Cal. Rptr. 3d 602].

[2] Site Improvements

A person who has a site improvement lien has a lien on the entire lot or tract of land. It is not on any single part of the lot or tract unless the claimant has waived his or her lien on only a portion of the lot [A.A. Baxter Corp. v. Home Owners & Lenders (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 725, 732, 86 Cal. Rptr. 854] .

[3] Condominiums

Any labor performed or services or material furnished with the consent of or at the request of a condominium owner or his or her agent or contractor or subcontractor may not be the basis for filing a lien against the condominium of any other condominium owner, or against any part thereof, or against any other property of any other condominium owner, unless the other owner has expressly consented to or requested the performance of the labor or the furnishing of the materials or services. An owner is deemed to have given express consent in the case of emergency repairs to his or her condominium. Labor performed or services or materials furnished for the common areas, if duly authorized by the management body provided for in a declaration of restrictions governing the property, is deemed to be performed or furnished with the express consent of each condominium owner. The owner of any condominium may remove his or her condominium from a lien against two or more condominiums or any part thereof by payment to the holder of the lien of the fraction of the total sum secured by the lien that is attributable to his or her condominium [Civ. Code § 1369; see Ch. 124, Condominiums and Other Common Interest Developments]. For a form of claim of lien with an allegation of segregated amounts for work or materials furnished to multiple works of improvement, see § 361.193.

[4] Homesteads Not Exempt From Lien

Homesteads [see Code Civ. Proc. § 704.710 et seq.] are subject to execution or forced sale in satisfaction of judgments obtained on debts secured by mechanics' liens [see Code Civ. Proc. § 703.010(b)].

Chapter 361 MECHANICS' LIENS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Mechanics' Liens

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.28

§ 361.28 Amount of Lien

[1] In General

Mechanics' liens are direct liens either for the reasonable value of the labor, services, equipment, or materials furnished or for the price agreed on by the claimant and the person with whom he or she contracted, whichever is less [Civ. Code § 3123].

Once the lien has attached, that is, once construction on the work of improvement or site improvement has commenced, the claim of lien may include a demand for the reasonable or contract value of all services that the lien claimant has rendered, including services rendered before commencement if they contributed to the construction [see Walker v. Lytton Sav. & L. Ass'n (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 152, 156 n.5, 84 Cal. Rptr. 521, 465 P.2d 497] .

A mechanics' lien may not include attorney's fees awarded pursuant to a contractual clause for attorney's fees to the prevailing party; the amount of the lien is limited by Civ. Code § 3123(a) to the value added to the property by the lien claimant [Abbett Electric Corp. v. California Fed. Savings & Loan Assn. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 355, 359-360, 281 Cal. Rptr. 362] . Likewise, a mechanics' lien may not include delay or interest damages [Lambert v. Superior Court (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 383, 387-388, 279 Cal. Rptr. 32] .

[2] Limitation of Owner's Liability

[a] Filing Contract and Recording Bond

The amount of a lien is not limited by the contract between the owner and original contractor unless the owner files the original contract and records a payment bond under Civ. Code §§ 3235, 3236 [Civ. Code § 3123] and thereby limits his or her liability to the measure of the contract price [Civ. Code § 3236; see Part III, below].

The claimant is not precluded from including in the lien any amount due for labor, services, equipment, or materials furnished based on a written modification of the contract or as a result of the rescission, abandonment, or breach of the contract. In the event of rescission, abandonment, or breach of the contract, however, the amount of the lien may not exceed the reasonable value of the labor, services, equipment, and materials furnished by the claimant [Civ. Code § 3123(b)].

[b] Work Not Included in Original Contract

In any case in which the claimant was employed by a contractor or subcontractor, his or her claim of lien does not extend to any labor, services, equipment, or materials not included in the original contract between the owner and the original contractor or any modification thereof, if the claimant had actual knowledge or constructive notice of the contract [see Civ. Code § 3088], or in any modification of the contract before he or she furnished the labor, service, equipment, or materials. The filing of a contract or a modification of a contract for a work of improvement with the county recorder of the county where the property is situated, before the commencement of work, is equivalent to the giving of actual notice of its provisions by the owner to all persons performing work or furnishing materials under the contract [Civ. Code § 3124].

[c] Liens of Original Contractors and Subcontractors

Any original contractor or subcontractor who has recorded a claim of lien is entitled to recover only such an amount as may be due him or her according to the terms of the contract after deducting all the claims of other claimants for labor, services, equipment or materials furnished and embraced within his or her contract [Civ. Code § 3140].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Mechanics' Liens

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.29

§ 361.29 Lien Priorities

[1] Nonsite Improvement Liens

Unless a holder of any mortgage or deed of trust procures a payment bond as provided in Civ. Code § 3138, all mechanics' liens other than site improvement liens are preferred to any lien, mortgage, deed of trust, or other encumbrance on the work of improvement and the site that attaches subsequent to the commencement of the work of improvement. They are also preferred to any lien, mortgage, deed of trust, or other encumbrance of which the claimant had no notice and that was unrecorded at the time of commencement of the work of improvement [Civ. Code § 3134].

[2] Site Improvement Liens

Unless the owner or holder of any mortgage or deed of trust procures a payment bond as provided in Civ. Code § 3139, site improvement liens are preferred (a) to any mortgage, deed of trust, or other encumbrance that attaches subsequent to the commencement of the site improvement work; (b) any mortgage, deed of trust, or other encumbrance of which the claimant had no notice and that was unrecorded at the time of the commencement of the site improvement; and (c) to any mortgage, deed of trust, or other encumbrance recorded before the commencement of the site improvement given for the sole or primary purpose of financing the site improvements, unless the load proceeds are, in good faith, placed in the control of the lender under a binding agreement with the borrower to the effect that the proceeds are to be applied to the payment of claims of claimants and that no portion of the proceeds will be paid to the borrower in the absence of satisfactory evidence that all claims have been paid orthat the time for recording claims of liens had expired and no claims have been recorded [Civ. Code § 3137].

[3] Commencement of Work Required

[a] No Priority Until Commencement

The condition precedent to acquiring any priority is the commencement of the work of improvement or site improvement; that is, there is no priority unless or until construction has been undertaken either by the doing of actual visible work on the land or by the delivery of construction materials to the land [see Walker v. Lytton Sav. & L. Ass'n

(1970) 2 Cal. 3d 152, 156-157, 158, 84 Cal. Rptr. 521, 465 P.2d 497] . For example, an architect who prepares plans according to which a building is later constructed has not done work that is of a structural character but only work in anticipation of a structure being built. Only when the building operation has commenced on the ground can it be held under the statutory priority rules that it has commenced so as to give preference to the lien of an architect who prepared the plans [Walker v. Lytton Sav. & L. Ass'n (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 152, 159, 84 Cal. Rptr. 521, 465 P.2d 497 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1188.1, now Civ. Code § 3134); see D'Orsay Int'l Partners v. Superior Court (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 836, 844, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 399 (general contractor who performed design-related services for proposed hotel/commercial development could not record mechanic's lien against property because no construction had ever commenced on project)].

[b] Separate Contract for Site Improvements

If a contract for a site improvement is provided for separately from a contract for the erection of residential units or other structures on the site, then the commencement of the site improvement does not constitute commencement of the erection of the residential units or other structures [Civ. Code § 3135]. The date on which any lien attaches to work or materials furnished in connection with a site improvement is, thus, separate from the date on which any lien attaches in connection with an erection of a unit or structure.

The phrase "residential units or other structures" as used in Civ. Code § 3135 does not limit the application of that statute to residential construction; instead, it refers to other types of structures in addition to residential units. Thus, when a contract for site improvement and a contract for the erection of a structure exist in a given construction project, Civ. Code § 3135 applies, regardless of whether the project is residential or commercial [Lambert Steel Co. v. Heller Financial, Inc. (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 1034, 1039-1042, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 453] .

[4] Advancements From Secured Lender

When a loan agreement that is secured by a mortgage or deed of trust recorded before commencement of a work of improvement on the secured property provides for obligatory advancements to be made for the construction of the improvement, the mortgage or deed of trust for the advances retains priority over mechanics' liens even though the advances are made after the commencement of the improvement [Hayward Lbr. & Inv. Co. v. Corbett (1934) 138 Cal. App. 644, 648, 33 P.2d 41] . The mortgage or deed of trust also retains its priority for nonobligatory advances when they are used in payment of any claim of lien recorded at the date or dates of the advances and thereafter in payment of costs of the work of improvement [Civ. Code § 3136]. Otherwise, the mortgage or deed of trust for the advances under the loan agreement is postponed to the dates on which the optional advances are actually made [see Hayward Lbr. & Inv. Co. v. Corbett (1934) 138 Cal. App. 644, 649, 33 P.2d 41] .

Even if the secured loan holder actively promotes the making of improvements on the property, the priority of the security is not lost so long as such promotion is for the purpose of increasing the security [Rheem Mfg. Co. v. United States (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 621, 625, 21 Cal. Rptr. 802, 371 P.2d 578] . However, if the beneficiary under a deed of trust is either found to be a joint venturer who is sharing in the profits derived from improvements or acts in bad faith or fraudulently, then the priority given to the security might be denied [see Rheem Mfg. Co. v. United States (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 621, 626-627, 21 Cal. Rptr. 802, 371 P.2d 578] .

§ 361.30 Effect of Agreement to Arbitrate

If a lien claimant is a party to an agreement to arbitrate that governs the case, arbitration must generally be pursued before an action is begun; however, the right to arbitrate is not waived by bringing an action first, if the claimant (1) includes an allegation in the complaint that he or she does not intend to waive any right of arbitration, and intends to move the court, within 30 days after service of the summons and complaint, for an order to stay further proceedings; and (2) when the complaint is filed, files an application for stay pending arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.5(a)]. If the claimant fails to request the stay, the right to compel arbitration is waived [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.5(b)]. B. Mechanics' Liens

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.31

§ 361.31 Perfection and Foreclosure of Lien

Before a lien claimant is entitled to enforce his or her lien, he or she must first (1) give a preliminary 20-day notice (private work), if required under Civ. Code § 3097 [see §§ 361.160 (procedural checklist), 361.190 (form of preliminary 20-day notice)], and (2) record a claim of lien within the time periods prescribed by Civ. Code §§ 3115-3117 [see §§ 361.161 (checklist to record claim of lien), 361.192 (form of claim of lien)].

An action to foreclose must be commenced within 90 days after the recording of the claim of lien unless credit has been extended by the lienclaimant or the time period has been waived [see Civ. Code § 3114; see also §§ 361.162 (procedural checklist), 361.201 and 361.202 (forms of complaints to foreclose liens), 361.203-361.205 (allegations that can be included in complaint)].

A judgment resulting from foreclosure of a mechanics' lien is not enforceable against a person who has an interest in the property but is not named as a defendant and served with process. For example, when property was owned by a limited partnership, a preliminary 20-day notice given to a general partner did not constitute notice on the owner and a resulting judgment of foreclosure did not bind the limited partnership when the limited partnership was not a designated defendant [see Barr Lumber Co. v. Old Ivy Homebuilders, Inc. (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 1, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 717] . For a judgment of foreclosure of lien, see § 361.207.

If the claimant fails to commence an action to foreclose the lien within the time limitation provided, the lien automatically is null and void and of no further force and effect [Civ. Code § 3144(b)]. However, if the period for recording a lien is still open, the inchoate right to the lien is not terminated and a subsequent claim of lien for the same work may be recorded [Solit v. Tokai Bank (1999) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1435, 1447-1448, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 243 ; *Koudmani v. Ogle Enterprises, Inc. (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 1650, 1657-1658, 55 Cal. 32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.32

§ 361.32 Releasing Property From Lien When No Foreclosure Action Filed

[1] Petition and Controversion of Petition

At any time after expiration of the time period specified by Civ. Code § 3144 with regard to the period during which property is bound by a lien after recordation of a claim of lien, when no action has been brought to enforce the lien, the owner of the property or the owner of any interest in it may petition the proper court for a decree to release the property from the lien [Civ. Code § 3154(a)]. The petition must be verified and allege the matters set forth in Civ. Code § 3154(b) [see § 361.208 (form of petition)]. The petition is deemed controverted by the lien claimant [Civ. Code § 3154(b)(5)].

[2] Inapplicability of Arbitration Provisions

The provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1141.10-1141.31 (judicial arbitration) do not apply to causes commenced pursuant to Civ. Code § 3154 to have property released from a mechanic's lien [Civ. Code § 3154(i)].

[3] Order Fixing Hearing Date and Continuances

On the filing of the petition, and before any further proceedings are held, the clerk, or if there is no clerk, the judge, will set a hearing date, which must be not more than 30 days after the petition is filed. The court may continue the hearing beyond the 30-day period, but good cause must be shown for any continuance [Civ. Code § 3154(c)].

[4] Service of Petition and Order

A copy of the petition and the order fixing the hearing date must be served on the lien claimant at least 10 days prior to the date set for hearing. Service is made either in the manner in which a summons is required to be served [see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers], or by certified or registered mail, postage prepaid, return receipt requested, addressed to the lien claimant at the claimant's address as shown (1) on the preliminary 20-day notice served by the claimant pursuant to Civ. Code § 3097, (2) in the records of the registrar of contractors, (3) on the contract on which the lien is based, or (4) on the claim of lien itself [Civ. Code § 3154(d)]. Service by mail is complete on the fifth day following the day of mailing [Civ. Code § 3154(e)].

[5] Proof of Compliance With Service Requirement

No decree may issue in favor of the petitioner unless he or she proves that service of the petition and the order fixing the hearing date was made in compliance with Civ. Code § 3154(d) [see [4], above]. The issue of compliance is deemed to be controverted by the lien claimant [Civ. Code § 3154(e)].

[6] Judgment and Decree

In the event judgment is rendered in favor of the petitioner, the decree must indicate all of the matters set forth in Civ. Code § 3154(e) [see § 361.209 (form of judgment)].

[7] Attorney Fees

The prevailing party is entitled to attorney's fees not to exceed $2,000 [Civ. Code § 3154(g)].

[8] Release of Lien on Recordation of Decree

On the recordation of a certified copy of the decree, the property described in the decree is released from the lien [Civ. Code § 3154(f)(4)]. Once a decree releasing the property has been granted, the lien is extinguished, and there is no lien on which to base a new claim of lien. If such a second claim of lien is recorded, it can be cancelled [Maris Management Corp. v. Assured Drywall & Textures (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 268, 273-275, 199 Cal. Rptr. 309 (overruled on other grounds in Solit v. Tokai Bank (1999) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1435, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 243)].

[9] Other Causes of Action or Claims for Relief Not Barred

Nothing in Civ. Code § 3154 is to be construed to bar any other cause of action or claim for relief by the owner of the property or an interest in the property, nor shall a decree canceling a claimant's lien bar the lien claimant from bringing any other cause of action or claim for relief other than an action foreclosing the lien. However, no other action or claim may be joined with the claim for relief established by Civ. Code § 3154 [Civ. Code § 3154(h)].

C. Stop Notices

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.41

§ 361.41 Nature of Stop Notice Remedy

[1] In General

The stop notice is a remedy that permits most mechanics' liens claimants, on the giving of the notice, in effect equitably to garnish any construction funds the proceeds of which are being held by either an owner or construction lender to defray the costs of a work of improvement, when the claimants are entitled to assert mechanics' liens in connection with the improvement [see Civ. Code §§ 3083, 3161, 3162; A-1 Door & Materials Co. v. Fresno Guar. Sav. & L. Ass'n (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 728, 732-733, 40 Cal. Rptr. 85, 394 P.2d 829] . The remedy involves a proceeding against the construction fund and is, thus, different than and in addition to the mechanics' lien remedy [Calhoun v. Huntington Park First Sav. & L. Ass'n (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 451, 459, 9 Cal. Rptr. 479] . Hence, the right to recover on the stop notice claim is not dependent on the establishment of a mechanics' lien [A-1 Door & Materials Co. v. Fresno Guar. Sav. & L. Ass'n (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 728, 732, 40 Cal. Rptr. 85, 394 P.2d 829] .

If there is no property against which a mechanics' lien can be asserted, as when the lien has been wiped out by a trust deed foreclosure because the trust deed had priority over the lien, the stop notice is an effective remedy for receiving payment for labor performed or materials furnished [Rossman Mill & Lbr. Co. v. Fullerton Sav. & L. Ass'n (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 705, 708, 34 Cal. Rptr. 644] . Even if there is no money due to the original contractor or the owner under a lender's agreement with the owner, a lien claimant still has a right to serve a stop notice which may require the construction lender to withhold sufficient funds to answer his or her claims [A-1 Door & Materials Co. v. Fresno Guar. Sav. & L. Ass'n (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 728, 733-735, 40 Cal. Rptr. 85, 394 P.2d 829] .

The stop notice remedy may not be applied to construction funds held and administered in California for private works of improvement on sites located outside California [see Mechanical Wholesale Corp. v. Fuji Bank, Ltd (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1647, 1656, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 466] .

For a form of stop notice, see § 361.220.

[2] Stop Notice as Sole Remedy

Before 1967, persons who had not filed stop notices were not precluded from going against construction loan funds if they could establish the requisite facts for imposition of an equitable lien. These facts were that an owner or construction lender must have directly induced a supplier to supply materials or labor in reliance on the existence of a loan fund and that the funds to which the lien was applied must represent a surplus left in the fund after completion of the project [see Boyd & Lovesee Lumber Co. v. Western Pacific Financial Corp. (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 460, 464, 118 Cal. Rptr. 699] . In 1967, the Legislature enacted Civ. Code § 3264 to provide that no person may assert any legal or equitable right with respect to a construction fund for the payment of construction costs other than a right created by direct written contract between the persons and the person holding the funds except pursuant to the provisions of Civ. Code §§ 3156-3175 governing stop notices and that the rights of all persons furnishing labor, services, equipment, or materials for any work of improvement, with respect to such a fund, are to be governed by those provisions governing stop notices [Civ. Code § 3264].

The language of Civ. Code § 3264 did not completely satisfy the court of appeal in Swinerton & Walberg Co. v. Union Bank (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 259, 101 Cal. Rptr. 665 . In a dictum, it expressed the opinion that equitable liens may still be asserted in particular situations. However, in Boyd & Lovesee Lumber Co. v. Western Pacific Financial Corp. (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 460, 465, 118 Cal. Rptr. 699 , the court of appeal held that Civ. Code § 3264 abolished all theories of equitable liens or trust funds.

Civ. Code § 3264 applies to claims of general contractors even though they do not have stop notice rights [Nibbi Brothers, Inc. v. Home Federal Sav. & Loan Assn. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1415, 1420-1421, 253 Cal. Rptr. 289 ; Sofias v. Bank of America (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 583, 585-587,218 Cal. Rptr. 388] . Civ. Code § 3264 bars all claims of the general contractor against the construction lender, not just those against the construction loan funds [Nibbi Brothers, Inc. v. Home Federal Sav. & Loan Assn. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1415, 1420-1421, 253 Cal. Rptr. 289] . If a contractor signs the construction loan agreement between the lender and the owner, agreeing to be bound by certain of its provisions, but the agreement is not made expressly for the contractor's benefit, the contractoris not a third party beneficiary of the construction loan agreement, and cannot satisfy the requirement of Civ. Code § 3264 that claims be based on the written contract with the construction fund's holder [Sofias v. Bank of America (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 583, 586-587, 218 Cal. Rptr. 388] .

It does not follow, however, that Civ. Code § 3264 bars a supplier of labor and materials from recovering from a construction lender on a theory of unjust enrichment. Although the equitable principle of unjust enrichment is part of the doctrinal underpinning of the equitable lien, the law of restitution may give a supplier a cause of action against a lender for unjust enrichment under a broad range of circumstances distinct from those on which an equitable lien was predicated [Nibbi Brothers, Inc. v. Home Federal Sav. & Loan Assn. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1415, 1421-1422, 253 Cal. Rptr. 289] . For example, a contractor who confers a benefit on a construction lender by doing additional construction in reliance on the lender's fraudulent misrepresentations may have a valid cause of action to recover the value of the benefit conferred on the lender if the lender is in fact unjustly enriched by the contractor's performance [Nibbi Brothers, Inc. v. Home Federal Sav. & Loan Assn. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1415, 1423, 253 Cal. Rptr. 289] . In Nibbi Brothers, however, the alleged misrepresentations were not actionable because they did not amount to actual promises of payment, but only vague assurances and opinions regarding the developer's capacity to pay [Nibbi Brothers, Inc. v. Home Federal Sav. & Loan Assn. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1415, 1423-1426, 253 Cal. Rptr. 289] .

§ 361.42 Service on Owner

[1] Persons Entitled to Serve

Any person who is entitled to claim a mechanics' lien under Civ. Code §§ 3110 (furnishers of labor or material to work of improvement), or 3112 (site improvements), other than an original contractor, may serve on the owner a stop notice [Civ. Code § 3158] at any time after the agreement is made for the furnishing of labor or materials for which a mechanics' lien may be claimed [Miller v. Mountain View Sav. & L. Ass'n (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 644, 653, 48 Cal. Rptr. 278 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1190.1(b), now Civ. Code §§ 3158, 3159)].

[2] Owner's Demand for Notice

The owner may demand in writing that any person entitled to serve a stop notice actually serve him or her with one [see Civ. Code § 3158]. If the person fails to serve the notice after such a demand, he or she forfeits the right to a mechanics' lien [Civ. Code § 3158].

[3] Owner's Duty to Withhold

Once the owner receives a stop notice given pursuant to Civ. Code § 3158, he or she must withhold from the original contractor, or from any person acting under his or her authority and to whom labor or materials, or both, have been furnished or would be furnished by prior agreement, sufficient money due or to become due to such contractor to answer any claim and claim of lien that may be recorded therefor, unless a payment bond has been recorded [see Civ. Code § 3235], in which case the owner may, but is not obligated to, withhold such money [Civ. Code § 3161].

If the owner elects not to withhold pursuant to a stop notice by reason of a payment bond having been previously recorded, the owner must, within 30 days after receipt, give a written notice to the claimant at the address shown in the stop notice that the bond has been recorded and furnish to the claimant a copy of that bond [Civ. Code § 3161]. For a form of notice, see § 361.222.

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.43

§ 361.43 Service on Construction Lender

[1] Construction Lender Defined

A construction lender is any mortgagee or beneficiary under a deed of trust lending funds with which the cost of a work of improvement is wholly or partly to be defrayed, or any assignee or successor in interest of either, or any escrow holder or other party holding any funds furnished or to be furnished by the owner, lender, or any other person as a fund from which to pay construction costs [Civ. Code § 3087].

Typically, a construction lender is the holder of a construction loan fund through an assignment of the loan funds by the owner in the original loan agreement. Under the loan agreement, it is the duty of the lender to maintain a construction loan account from which progress payments are made to the contractor or contractors on a work of improvement [see A-1 Door & Materials Co. v. Fresno Guar. Sav. & L. Ass'n (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 728, 731, 40 Cal. Rptr. 85, 394 P.2d 829 ; Idaco Lumber Co. v. Northwestern S. & L. Assn. (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 490, 493, 71 Cal. Rptr. 422] . The construction loan fund is ordinarily secured by a deed of trust that has priority over any mechanics' liens that may attach to the work of improvement, because the lender and owner entered into the loan agreement before the commencement of the work of improvement [see § 361.29]. Thus, the proceeds of the construction loan for a claimant who is entitled to serve a stop notice are often substituted for the real property against which a mechanics' lien might be claimed, since the remedy of a mechanics' lien has been rendered inadequate because of the prior deed of trust [see Miller v. Mountain View Sav. & L. Ass'n (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 644, 658, 48 Cal. Rptr. 278] .

[2] Service of Stop Notice

A construction lender may be given either a stop notice or a bonded stop notice at any time after the agreement is made for the furnishing ofmaterials or labor [Miller v. Mountain View Sav. & L. Ass'n (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 644, 653, 48 Cal. Rptr. 278 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1190.1(b), now Civ. Code §§ 3158, 3159)].

[3] Bonded Stop Notice Defined

A bonded stop notice is a stop notice accompanied by a bond with good and sufficient sureties. The bond must be in a penal sum equal to 1.25 times the amount of the claim conditioned that, if the defendant recovers judgment in an action brought on the verified claim or on the lien filed by the claimant, the claimant will pay all costs that may be awarded against the owner, original contractor, construction lender, or any of them, and all damages that such owner, original contractor, or construction lender may sustain by reason of the equitable garnishment effected by the claim or by reason of the claim, not exceeding the sum specified in the bond [Civ. Code § 3083]. When the proffered bond is only in the amount of the claim, the lender is not required to withhold funds. There is no statutory basis for the claim that the lender is required to withhold a proportionate amount of funds [Manos v. Degen (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 1237, 1239-1241, 250 Cal. Rptr. 493] . For a general form of a statutory undertaking, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings .

[4] Persons Entitled to Serve

Any person entitled to serve the owner a stop notice may serve the construction lender a stop notice or bonded stop notice except that the notice may only be given for materials, equipment, or services furnished or labor performed [Civ. Code § 3159(a)].

[5] Lender's Duty to Withhold

A construction lender who has been properly served with a stop notice is required to withhold funds when (1) the stop notice is a bonded stop notice filed by an original contractor, regardless of whether a payment bond has been previously recorded [Civ. Code §§ 3159(a)(1), 3162(a)(1); see Civ. Code § 3235 (effect of recording payment bond)]; or (2) the stop notice is a bonded stop notice filed by any person entitled to do so [see Civ. Code § 3159(a)] other than an original contractor and a payment bond was not recorded pursuant to Civ. Code § 3235 before the first stop notice was served [Civ. Code §§ 3159(a)(2), 3162(a)(2), (3)].

A construction lender may, but is not required to, withhold funds on receipt of a stop notice when (1) the stop notice is not bonded, regardless of who gives it [Civ. Code § 3161(a)]; or (2) the stop notice is a bonded stop notice filed by any person entitled to do so [see Civ. Code § 3159(a)] other than an original contractor and a payment bond was recorded pursuant to Civ. Code § 3235 before the first stop notice was served [Civ. Code §§ 3159(a)(2), 3162(a)(2), (3)].

In relevant situations, the lender must furnish the claimant with notice of its election not to withhold funds within 30 days after it so elects; provided that, at the time it gives the lender the stop notice or bonded stop notice, the claimant includes a written request for notice of the election accompanied by a preaddressed, stamped envelope. The lender will not be liable for failing to furnish a copy of the bond if (1) the failure was not intentional and resulted from a bona fide error, (2) the lender maintains reasonable procedures to avoid such errors, and (3) the error was corrected not more than 20 days from the date the violation was discovered [Civ. Code §§ 3159(a)(3), 3162(a)(3)].

For further details related to the service of stop notices, see the procedural checklist in § 361.170.

[6] Amount Withheld

When an owner or lender is required to withhold funds pursuant to a proper stop notice, the amount withheld must generally be one that is sufficient to answer the claim and any lien that may be recorded for the claim [see Civ. Code §§ 3161, 3162(a) (owners and construction lenders, respectively); see also Idaco Lumber Co. v. Northwestern S. & L. Assn. (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 490, 500-501, 71 Cal. Rptr. 422] . In the case of a stop notice or bonded stop notice filed by the original contractor or by a subcontractor, the recovery is limited to the net amount due the claimant after deducting the stop notice claims of all subcontractors or material suppliers who have filed bonded stop notices for work done on behalf of the original contractor or subcontractor [Civ. Code §§ 3159(b), 3162(b)]. In no event is a construction lender required to withhold more than this net amount in connection with a bonded stop notice. This amount represents the limit of the lender's liability [Civ. Code §§ 3159(c), 3162(c)]. Within the limits of this statutory liability, if the lender fails to withhold sufficient funds as directed in a stop notice, the lender will be personally liable for the full amount plus interest at the legal rate accruing from the date the stop notice claimant should have been paid [Idaco Lumber Co. v. Northwestern S. & L. Assn. (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 490, 499-500, 71 Cal. Rptr. 422 ; see Westinghouse Electric Corp. v. County of Los Angeles (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 771, 777-778, 181 Cal. Rptr. 332] .

Funds that the construction lender is required to withhold to answer stop notice claims must be from the actual funds furnished or to be furnished to pay construction costs. The lender's duty is not limited to amounts due and payable under the loan agreement at the time the stop notice is serviced, such as progress payments for work completed. Private arrangements between the borrower and lender of construction funds determining disbursement of such funds do not limit the rights of a stop notice claimant to garnish the fund itself to the extent necessary to cover its claim [A-1 Door & Materials Co. v. Fresno Guar. Sav. & L. Ass'n (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 728, 733-734, 40 Cal. Rptr. 85, 394 P.2d 829] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Stop Notices

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.44

§ 361.44 Priority Over Assignments

No assignment by the owner or contractor of contruction loan funds, whether made before or after a stop notice or bonded stop notice is given to a construction lender, is held to take priority over the stop notice or bonded stop notice, and any assignment has no effect insofar as the rights of the claimants who give the stop notice or bonded stop notice are concerned [Civ. Code § 3166].

By virtue of this code provision, an owner's default under a construction loan agreement, followed by the construction lender's charging back to itself the unexpended balance of the fund and recording notices of default under its deed of trust before receipt of a stop notice, cannot defeat the rights of the stop notice claimant [Miller v. Mountain View Sav. & L. Ass'n (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 644, 657, 48 Cal. Rptr. 278] . The assertion of the lender's right by virtue of his or her contract with the borrower must await the running of the period in which claims may be filed; it then must yield priority to such claims as are filed since the asserted right to continued possession of the funds depends entirely on the assignment made to it by the owner, which assignment is invalidated by the terms of former Code Civ. Proc. § 1190.1(h) (now Civ. Code § 3166) [Miller v. Mountain View Sav. & L. Ass'n (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 644, 655, 48 Cal. Rptr. 278] .

A lender's preallocation of construction loan funds and periodic disbursements to itself for interest, loan fees, and other expenses constitutes an assignment; thus the lender is not entitled to priority for those funds over stop notice claimants [Familian Corp. v. Imperial Bank (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 681, 688, 262 Cal. Rptr. 101] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Stop Notices

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.45

§ 361.45 Action on Stop Notice Claim

[1] In General

The stop notice claimants' right to payment does not arise simply on their giving notice of their claims. The claimant must commence an action against the owner or construction lender to enforce the payment of the claim within the time periods set forth in Civ. Code § 3172 [A-1 Door & Materials Co. v. Fresno Guar. Sav. & L. Ass'n (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 728, 736, 40 Cal. Rptr. 85, 394 P.2d 829 ; for a form of complaint to enforce a stop notice, see § 361.223].

In an action to effect recovery on the withheld funds, the person withholding must account for the full amount that is required to be withheld. If he or she fails to do so, a personal judgment may be entered against him or her for the difference between what was withheld and what was required to be withheld [Calhoun v. Huntington Park First Sav. & L. Ass'n (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 451, 459-460, 9 Cal. Rptr. 479] . If the holder of the funds pays out the money that was required to be withheld to other claimants on a pro rata basis, a claimant who did not share in the distribution is entitled to a personal judgment against the holder for the full amount of the claim [Idaco Lumber Co. v. Northwestern S. & L. Assn. (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 490, 497, 71 Cal. Rptr. 422] . Thus, the holder of construction funds may not invalidate the effect of a notice given by thereafter transferring those funds to creditors or by using them to advance his or her own interests [Calhoun v. Huntington Park First Sav. & L. Ass'n (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 451, 459, 9 Cal. Rptr. 479] , unless no action is commenced in the stop notice claim within the time period set forth in Civ. Code § 3172 [see Civ. Code § 3172].

[2] Claim Coextensive With Owner's Obligation

The equitable garnishment effected through stop notice proceedings is as extensive as the claim that it is intended to protect. To the extent that construction loan funds are available, the fundholder must pay whatever the owners owe the stop notice claimants [A-1 Door & Materials Co. v. Fresno Guar. Sav. & L. Ass'n (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 728, 737, 40 Cal. Rptr. 85, 394 P.2d 829 (awarding interest before judgment found due under Civ. Code § 3287 authorizing such an award)].

[3] Insufficient Funds for Claims

If the money withheld or required to be withheld pursuant to any stop notice or bonded stop notice is insufficient to pay in full the valid claims of all persons by whom notices were given, it is to be distributed among these persons in the same ratio that their respective claims bear to the aggregate of all of the valid claims. This pro rata distribution is made among the persons entitled to share therein without regard to the order of time in which either their respective notices may have been given or their respective actions, if any, commenced [Civ. Code § 3167].

For further details relating to actions on stop notices, see the procedural checklist in § 361.171 .

Chapter 361 MECHANICS' LIENS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Payment Bonds

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.61

§ 361.61 Payment Bonds

[1] Defined

A payment bond is a bond with good and sufficient sureties which is conditioned for the payment in full of any mechanics' lien claimant and which also by its terms is made to inure to the benefit of all such claimants so as to give these persons a right of action to recover on the bond in any suit brought to foreclose the liens provided for in Civ. Code §§ 3110-3112 or in a separate suit brought on the bond. Either an owner, an original contractor, or a subcontractor may be the principal on any payment bond [Civ. Code § 3096].

[2] Performance Bond Distinguished

A performance bond is an undertaking furnished by a contractor for the faithful performance of the contract by the contractor guaranteeing that the work undertaken will be done according to the terms of the contract [see Gordy v. United Pacific Ins. Group (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 445, 448, 52 Cal. Rptr. 438] . In contract, the payment bond guarantees the satisfaction of the obligations of all lien claimants who have furnished labor or materials to a work of improvement or site improvement [see Civ. Code § 3096; Gordy v. United Pacific Ins. Group (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 445, 448-449, 52 Cal. Rptr. 438] . If the bond by its terms guarantees performance by the contractor and payment by the contractor of all obligations for material, equipment, and labor required in the work contracted for, the bond is both a performance and a payment bond [Gordy v United Pacific Ins. Group (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 445, 448-449, 52 Cal. Rptr. 438] .

[3] Construction

Any payment bond is construed most strongly against the surety and in favor of all persons for whose benefit the bond is given [Civ. Code § 3226].

[4] Sole Condition of Recovery

The sole condition of recovery on any payment bond for any lien claimant is that the claimant has not been paid the full amount of his claim [Civ. Code § 3226]. In substance, the surety on a payment bond guarantees the integrity and solvency of the contractor. The inefficiency of the claimant, such as the failure to require a contractor to authorize the claimant to retain an owner's check in payment of the contractor's indebtedness to him or her, is considered a risk incident to the surety's undertaking and does not relieve him or her of liability [Ferry v. Ohio Farmers Ins. Co. (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 651, 659, 27 Cal. Rptr. 471] . Under no circumstances is a surety released from liability to a lien claimant by reason of a breach of contract between the owner and original contractor [Civ. Code § 3226].

[5] Exoneration or Release of Sureties

The surety or sureties on any payment bond may not be exonerated or released from the obligation of the bond by any of the following [Civ. Code § 3225]:

- Changes, alterations, or modifications in or of any contract, plans, specifications or agreement pertaining or relating to the furnishing of labor materials or equipment therefor.

- Changes or modifications of any terms of payment or extension of the time for any payment pertaining or relating to any scheme or work of improvement.

- A rescission or attempted rescission of any contract, agreement or bond.Conditions precedent or subsequent in the bond attempting to limit the right of recovery of claimants otherwise entitled to recover under any contract, agreement, or bond.

- Any fraud practiced by any person other than the claimant seeking to recover on the bond where the bond is given for the benefit of the claimants.

[6] Preference for Subordinated Secured Encumbrances

Payment bonds may be procured in order to have subordinated mortgages or deeds of trust preferred to mechanics' liens that have attached for labor and materials furnished to works of improvement and site improvements under Civ. Code §§ 3134, 3137 [Civ. Code §§ 3138, 3139].

[7] Site Improvement Liens

Civ. Code § 3139 provides that any mortgage or deed of trust which is subordinate to any site improvement lien will be preferred to any such lien if the owner or holder of the mortgage or deed of trust procures a payment bond in an amount not less than 50 percent of the principal amount of the mortgage or deed of trust and records the bond in the office of the county recorder in the county where the site is located before completion of the improvement.

[8] Works of Improvement Liens

If a holder of a mortgage or deed of trust which is subordinate to any lien for labor or materials furnished to a work of improvement which has attached under Civ. Code § 3110 procures a payment bond which refers to the mortgage or deed of trust, in an amount not less than 75 percent of the principal amount of the mortgage or deed of trust and records the bond in the office of the county recorder in the county where the site is located, then the mortgage or deed of trust will be preferred to all liens for labor, services, equipment, or materials furnished after the recording [Civ. Code § 3738].

[9] Limitation of Owner's Liability

An owner's liability for work and materials furnished to a work of improvement by a subcontractor, materialman, or laborer is ordinarily not limited by the original contract price unless such a claimant had actual or constructive notice of the contract or any modification thereof before he or she furnished the labor or materials [see Civ. Code § 3124; Union Supply Co. v. Morris (1934) 220 Cal. 331, 335, 30 P.2d 394] . Civ. Code §§ 3235-3241 provide a procedure whereby an owner may exact a payment bond from the original contractor in order to limit the owner's liability in all cases to the measure of the original contract price, thus protecting the owner from any failure of the contractor to perform his or her contract and make full payment to all claimants for all work done and materials furnished [see Civ. Code § 3236].

[10] Prerequisites for Limiting Recovery

To gain the benefits of a contractor's payment bond, the owner must have filed the original contract for the work of improvement before commencement of the work and have recorded the payment bond exacted from the original contractor in an amount not less than 50 percent of the contract price in the office of the county recorder of the county in which the property is situated [Civ. Code § 3235].

[11] Effect of Recording Bond and Contract

When the original contract has been filed and the payment bond recorded as required by Civ. Code § 3235, the court must, when it would be equitable to do so, restrict the recovery under lien claims to an aggregate amount equal to the amount found to be due from the owner to the original contractor. It must also render judgment against the original contractor and his or her sureties on the bond for any deficiency or difference that may remain between the amount found to be due and the whole amount found to be due the claimants [Civ. Code § 3235].

[12] Failure to Record Bond

If the payment or original contract has not been recorded as required by Civ. Code § 3235, the owner's property is subject to the full amount of the lien that the lien claimant is entitled to assert under Civ. Code § 3123 [see Culbertson v. Cizek (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 451, 467, 37 Cal. Rptr. 548 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1185.1)]. Furthermore, the surety remains equally liable since the bond is still valid as a common law bond furnished for the benefit of all persons named as beneficiaries, unless the bond provides that recording is a prerequisite to its validity [Culbertson v. Cizek (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 451, 467, 468, 37 Cal. Rptr. 548] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Payment Bonds

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.62

§ 361.62 Suit on Bond

[1] Independent Remedy

The right to bring suit on a contractor's payment bond does not prevent mechanics' lien claimants from proceeding against the owner's property on their claims. The remedies of a foreclosure of the lien and a personal suit against the surety are independent and cumulative and may be pursued simultaneously, so long as any money collected on the personal judgment is credited on the amount of the lien [Culbertson v. Cizek (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 451, 468, 37 Cal. Rptr. 548] . Thus, the waiver of a right to assert a mechanics' lien against an owner's property in connection with a work of improvement does not in any way impair a lien claimant's right to proceed against a surety on a contractor's payment bond posted in connection with the work [Ferry v. Ohio Farmers Ins. Co. (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 651, 655, 27 Cal. Rptr. 471 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1181-1203.1, now Civ. Code §§ 3082-3267)].

[2] Invalidity of "Pay If Paid" Provision

A surety's liability to pay a subcontractor's unsatisfied claim for work performed was not affected by the facts that (1) the owner had not paid the general contractor, and (2) the contract between the subcontractor and general contractor included a "pay if paid" provision that purported to make payment by the owner to the general contractor a condition precedent to the general contractor's obligation to pay the subcontractor. The California Supreme Court held that the "pay if paid" provision was void because it violated the public policy that underlies the anti-waiver provisions of the mechanics' lien laws. Once the subcontractor successfully performed the work, the general contractor became liable under the subcontract for payment and the surety was likewise liable on the payment bond [Wm. R. Clarke Corp. v. Safeco Ins. Co. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 882, 886, 896-897, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 578, 938 P.2d 372] .

In response to the Supreme Court's decision in Safeco, the Legislature enacted Civ. Code § 3110.5, which requires an owner of property who contracts for a private work of improvement in an amount exceeding $5 million if the owner's interest is a fee simple absolute interest or $1 million if the owner's interest is less than a fee simple absolute interest, to provide one of three specified forms of security for the project to be used only when the owner defaults on his or her contractual obligations to the original contractor. The security requirement does not apply to single-family residences, public works projects, housing developments eligible for a density bonus, or certain publicly-traded and qualified private companies [Civ. Code § 3110.5].

For further details of actions on payment bonds, see the procedural checklist in § 361.180. For forms of complaints against surety on contractor's or subcontractor's payment bond, see §§ 361.231, 361.232.

[3] Performance Required by Claimant

No provision of Civ. Code §§ 3082-3267 (mechanics' liens, stop notices, and payment bonds) may be construed to give to any person any right of action on any contractor's payment bond, unless the work forming the basis for his or her claim was performed by that person for the principal on the bond, or one of his or her subcontractors, pursuant to the contract between the original contractor and the owner [Civ. Code § 3267]. As long as the basic requirements for filing a claim against a payment bond are satisfied, it makes no difference how far down the ladder a potential claimant finds himself or herself. For example, in the face of an argument that claims should be limited to first tier material suppliers and second tier subcontractors, the Court of Appeal held that such an interpretation was in conflict with the mechanics' lien statutes, which give lien rights to all subcontractors, and that there is no basis in the statutes themselves, or in the legislative history to deny third-tier subcontractors the right to file a claim against a payment bond [Union Asphalt, Inc. v. Planet Ins. Co. (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1762, 1765-1767, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371] .

§ 361.63 Payment Bond's Effect on Stop Notice

If a payment bond has been recorded along with the original contract as provided in Civ. Code § 3235, a construction lender has the option of not withholding on a bonded stop notice given by anyone other than the original contractor. If requested, the construction lender must furnish the claimant a copy of the bond within 30 days after electing not to withhold [Civ. Code §§ 3159(a)(3), 3161, 3162(a)(3)]. A form of election and notice of payment bond is set forth in § 361.222.

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.64

§ 361.64 Subrogation of Surety

A surety who has paid the claims of valid lien claimants pursuant to the provisions of a contractor's payment bond has the right to be subrogated to the rights of the claimants as against the principal on the bond. However, the surety may not proceed against the property of the owner unless the owner has fraudulently conspired with the contractor to have the payment bond issued. Although the surety is not released or exonerated from liability to the claimants in case of an owner's fraud, the surety is subrogated to the lien rights of the claimant and thus may foreclose on the owner's property [see Filippi v. McMartin (1960) 188 Cal. App. 2d 135, 139, 10 Cal. Rptr. 180] .

To be entitled to the rights of subrogation, the surety must have paid the claimants to protect his or her own interest, must not have acted as a volunteer, must not have been primarily liable for the debt paid, and must have paid the entire debt. In addition, the subrogation must not work an injustice to other persons' rights [Filippi v. McMartin (1960) 188 Cal. App. 2d 135, 140, 10 Cal. Rptr. 180] .

For further discussion and forms relating to subrogation and sureties, see Ch. 536, Subrogation , and Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings , respectively.

Provisions for the forfeiture of mechanics' liens and the right to pro rata distribution of money withheld are contained in Civ. Code §§ 3118, 3158, 3168. Waiver of the provisions of the mechanics' lien law is governed by Civ. Code §§ 3262, 3268. Licensing of contractors is governed by Bus. & Prof. Code § 7000 et seq. Bonds for the release of property subject to mechanics' liens and for the release of funds required to be withheld to respond to stop notices or bonded stop notices are governed by *Civ. [1] False Claim of Lien

A claimant forfeits his or her lien if he or she willfully includes in the claim of lien any labor, services, equipment, or materials not furnished to the property described in the claim [Civ. Code § 3118].

[2] False Stop Notice

Any person who willfully gives a false stop notice or bonded stop notice or willfully includes in his or her notice any labor, services, equipment, or materials not furnished for the property described in the notice forfeits all right to participate in the pro rata distribution of any money withheld [see Civ. Code § 3167] and all right to any mechanics' lien [Civ. Code § 3168].

[3] Refusal to Give Stop Notice

A mechanics' lien may be forfeited if the claimant has refused to give a stop notice on the owner's written demand therefor [Civ. Code § 3158]. For a form of owner's demand for stop notice, see § 361.240.

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.72

§ 361.72 Laches

An action to foreclose a mechanics' lien and an action to enforce a stop notice are both considered equitable actions; hence, equitable defenses may be raised against these actions [see A.A. Baxter Corp. v. Home Owners & Lenders (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 725, 734-735, 86 Cal. Rptr. 854 ; A-1 Door& Materials Co. v. Fresno Guar. Sav. & L. Assn. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 728, 732-733, 40 Cal. Rptr. 85, 394 P.2d 829 (stop notice effects equitable garnishment)]. Thus, despite the fact that a plaintiff commences an action to foreclose within the statutory time limits, when the plaintiff delays in order to advance his or her financial interests at the expense of innocent homeowners and lenders, the doctrine of laches is applicable as a basis for denying the equitable relief of foreclosing his or her lien [A. A. Baxter Corp. v. Home Owners & Lenders (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 725, 734-735, 86 Cal. Rptr. 854] .

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.73

§ 361.73 Waiver

Neither the owner nor the original contractor, by any term of the contract between them, or otherwise, may waive, affect, or impair the claims and liens of other persons except by their written consent, and any term of the contract providing to the contrary will be null and void. Any written consent given by any claimant is null, void, and unenforceable unless and until the claimant executes and delivers a waiver and release. Such a waiver and release is binding and effective to release the owner, construction lender, and surety on a payment bond from claims and liens only if the waiver and release follows substantially one of the forms set forth in Civ. Code § 3262 [for forms of waivers and releases, see §§ 361.241 -361.244] and is signed by the claimant or authorized agent, and in the case of a conditional release, there is evidence of payment to the claimant. Evidence of payment may be by the claimant's endorsement on a single or joint payee check that has been paid by the bank upon which it was drawn or by written acknowledgment of payment given by the claimant [Civ. Code § 3262(a); for a form of endorsement on a joint check, see § 361.245].

No oral or written statement purporting to waive, release, impair or otherwise adversely affect a claim is enforceable or creates any estoppel or impairment of a claim unless (1) it is pursuant to a waiver and release prescribed in Civ. Code § 3262 [for forms of waiver and release, see §§ 361.241 -361.244], or (2) the claimant had actually received payment in full for the claim [Civ. Code § 3262(b)(1)]. However, a stop notice claimant is not precluded from reducing the amount of, or releasing in its entirety, a stop notice that has been served on an owner. The reduction or release of a stop notice may be served in a form other than the statutory forms of release required for use in a mechanics' lien context [Civ. Code § 3262(b)(2)].

A "pay if paid" provision in a construction subcontract, which makes payment by the owner to the general contractor a condition precedent to the general contractor's obligation to pay the subcontractor for work the subcontractor has performed, is contrary to public policy and therefore unenforceable because it effects an impermissible indirect waiver or forfeiture of the subcontractor's constitutionally protected mechanic's lien rights in the event of nonpayment by the owner [Wm. R. Clarke Corp. v. Safeco Ins. Co. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 882, 885-886, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 578, 938 P.2d 372 ; but see Civ. Code § 3110.5 (requiring owner of property who contracts for certain private work of improvement to provide security for project)].

The statutory provisions governing waiver, discussed above, do not affect the enforceability of either an accord and satisfaction regarding a bona fide dispute or any agreement made in settlement of an action pending in any court, provided the accord and satisfaction or agreement and settlement make specific reference to the mechanics' lien, stop notice, or bond claims [Civ. Code § 3262(c)]. Additionally, a contractor is not prohibited from releasing its own mechanics' lien claim by a written release that is recorded [Santa Clara Land Title Co. v. Nowack & Associates, Inc. (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1558, 1568-1569, 277 Cal. Rptr. 497] . For forms of release of lien or a partial release, see §§ 361.246, 361.247.

§ 361.74 Requirement of Contractor's License--Allegation of Licensure

No person who is in the business or acts in the capacity of a contractor may bring or maintain any action for compensation for performance for an act or contract for which a license is required under Bus. & Prof. Code § 7000 et seq., except joint venture licenses, unless he or she alleges that at all times during the performance he or she was a duly licensed contractor [Bus. & Prof. Code § 7031]. This requirement that a contractor allege being licensed applies to contractors who bring actions under the mechanics' lien law [see Lewis & Queen v. N.M. Ball Sons (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 141, 145-148, 308 P.2d 713 (action by contractor to enforce stop notice claim); Famous Builders v. Bolin, Inc. (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 37, 39-43, 70 Cal. Rptr. 17 (action to foreclose mechanics' lien)].

Who qualifies as a contractor is determined by Bus. & Prof. Code § 7026. Although the term includes subcontractors and specialty contractors [Bus. & Prof. Code § 7026], one may be a subcontractor for purposes of conferring mechanics' lien rights on those the subcontractor may employ or contract with [see Theisen v. County of Los Angeles (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 170, 183-184, 5 Cal. Rptr. 161, 352 P.2d 529] but nevertheless be exempt from the licensing requirements. This is true because the mechanics' lien law is designed in part to provide financial security for suppliers who do no installation work, but whose custom-made products have little economic value except as part of the improvements for which they were designed, whereas the contractors' licensing law has as its objective the protection of the public from incompetent and unreliable contractors [Steinbrenner v. J. A. Waterbury Constr. Co. (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 661, 666, 28 Cal. Rptr. 204] .

Persons who only furnish materials or supplies without fabricating them into, or consuming them in the performance of, the work of a contractor, and persons who engage in regulated licensing activities under Bus. & Prof. Code § 7000 et seq. as employees with wages as their sole compensation, but who do notcustomarily engage in an independently established business, and do not have the right to control or discretion as to the manner of performance so as to determine the final results of the work performed, are not required to have contractors' licenses in bringing and maintaining actions under the mechanics' lien law [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 7052, 7053]. A materialman or manufacturer who furnishes finished products, materials, or articles of merchandise and does not install or contract for the installation of these items is not required to be licensed under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 7000-7161 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 7045].

For complete discussion of the licensing and bond requirements for contractors, see Ch. 104, Building Contracts .

§ 361.75 Release Bonds

[1] Release of Property Subject to Lien

An owner of property or of any interest in the property sought to be charged with a claim of lien, or any original contractor or subcontractor who disputes the correctness or validity of any claim of lien, may have the property released from the lien and from any action brought to foreclose the lien by recording a bond as prescribed in Civ. Code § 3143.

Any person who obtains a lien release bond that is recorded must give notice of the recording to the lienholder by mailing a copy of the bond to the lienholder at the address appearing on the lien. Service of the notice must be by certified or registered mail, return receipt requested. Failure to give the notice does not affect the validity of the lien release bond, but the statute of limitations on any action on the bond is tolled until the notice is given. Any action on the lien release bond must be commenced by the claimant within six months of the recording of the lien release bond [Civ. Code § 3144.5].

If, however, the release bond is recorded after a foreclosure action has been commenced, the six-month limitation period is not applicable, because there is only a single cause of action for recovery against either the property or the bond. The action is timely against the surety because it is in the position of a successor to the property. Therefore, the surety does not have to be served with a supplemental complaint within six months [Hutnick v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 456, 463-466, 253 Cal. Rptr. 236, 763 P.2d 1326] . Similarly, if the plaintiff obtains a judgment and then learns of the release bond, the six-month statute of limitations is not applicable to an action against the surety because the second action is pursuing the same cause of action [Dennis Electric, Inc. v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1228, 1232-1236, 269 Cal. Rptr. 26] .

Because an action against the surety on a Civ. Code § 3143 release bond and an action to foreclose a mechanics' lien are one and the same cause of action, the bar against recovery of attorneys' fees in a mechanics' lien foreclosure action also applies in a release bond recovery action [Royster Construction Co. v. Urban West Communities (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1158, 1164-1167, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 684] .

[2] Landowner's Liability

If the landowner is a principal on the bond and is thus personally liable, he or she is not entitled to dismissal from the action after the release bond has been recorded [Hutnick v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 456, 469, 253 Cal. Rptr. 236, 763 P.2d 1326] . However, if the landowner is not a principal on the bond, he or she is entitled to dismissal after the recording of the bond because he or she is not personally liable [Frank Curran Lbr. Co. v. Eleven Co. (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 175, 184-185, 76 Cal. Rptr. 753] .

If the plaintiff in the foreclosure action does not serve the principal on the bond, the surety can notify the principal and offer an opportunity to join the defense. The principal will be personally liable even if he or she does not join the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1912; Hutnick v. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 456, 469, 253 Cal. Rptr. 236, 763 P.2d 1326] .

[3] Release of Withheld Funds

An owner, construction lender, or any original contractor or subcontractor who disputes the correctness or validity of any stop notice or bonded stop notice may have the funds required to be withheld to respond to the stop notice or bonded stop notice released by recording a bond prescribed in Civ. Code § 3171.

[4] Summary Enforcement

A mechanic's lien or stop notice release bond is considered to be "given in an action or proceeding" for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 996.440(a) (motion to enforce liability on bond without need for independent action) and thus may be enforced by the summary procedures set forth in the Bond and Undertaking Law [Grade-Way Construction Co. v. Golden Eagle Ins. Co. (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 826, 830-835, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 649 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.010 et seq.]. The summary enforcement procedure provides for a motion made after entry of final judgment in the action in which the bond is given. Judgment must be entered against the surety unless the surety files affidavits showing a triable issue of fact [see Code Civ. Proc. § 996.440]. A stop notice release bond issued before the commencement of litigation, however, is not "given in an action or proceeding." Therefore, the summary enforcement procedures of the Bond and Undertaking Lawdo not apply [National Technical Systems v. Commercial Contractors, Inc. (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 1000, 1009-1010, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 67] .

For a discussion and forms regarding the summary procedure, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings .

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.76

§ 361.76 Obligation to Make Timely Progress Payments

[1] 30-Day Limit

Unless the construction contract specifies otherwise, the owner must pay to the contractor, within 30 days following receipt of a demand for payment in accordance with the contract, any progress payment due as to which there is no good faith dispute between the parties. If there is such a dispute, the owner may withhold from the progress payment an amount equal to no more than 150 percent of the disputed amount. If any amount is wrongfully withheld, the contractor will be entitled to a specified penalty [Civ. Code § 3260.1(b); see Civ. Code § 3260(g) (penalty)].

[2] 10-Day Stop Work Order

For private construction project contracts entered into on or after January 1, 1999, an original contractor who is not paid within 35 days from the date a payment is due, when there is no dispute as to the contractor's satisfactory performance, may serve the owner with a "10-day stop work order" stating that work will stop on the project unless all amounts then due the original contractor are paid within 10 days from the date notice is provided. At least five days before the notice is served on the owner, the contractor must post at the job site a notice that the original contractor intends to file a 10-day stop work order. At the same time the stop work order is served on the owner, a copy must also be served on all subcontractors with whom the original contractor has a direct contractual relationship on the project. Within five days of receiving the stop work notice, the owner must forward a copy to the construction lender by first class mail. If the dispute is resolved or the 10-day notice is canceled, the original contractor must post at the job site, and serve the subcontractors with, a notice of the resolution or cancellation [Civ. Code § 3260.2(a); see Civ. Code § 3260.2(g) (service requirements)].

If payment is not made within 10 days from the date the notice is served, the original contractor or his or her surety may seek a judicial determination of liability for the unpaid amount in an expedited proceeding in the superior court in the county in which the work of improvement is located [Civ. Code § 3260.2(d)].

The original contractor's right to stop work by serving a 10-day notice is in addition to any and all other rights the contractor may have under the law [Civ. Code § 3260.2(b)]. Any contractual waiver of this right to stop work is against public policy [Civ. Code § 3260.2(e)].

The original contractor or his or her surety, or a subcontractor or his or her surety, will not be liable for any delays or damages that the owner or contractor of a subcontractor may suffer as a result of the original contractor serving the owner with a 10-day stop work order, and subsequently stopping work for nonpayment if all of the posting and notice requirements have been met [Civ. Code § 3260.2(c)]. An original contractor's or original subcontractor's liability to a subcontractor or material supplier resulting from the cessation of work is not limited to the amount of monetary damages the subcontractor or material supplier could recover under the mechanics' lien law for goods and services provided up to the date the subcontractor ceases work, provided that [Civ. Code § 3260.2(c)]:

- Liability continues for work performed and materials supplied up to and including the 10-day notice period and not beyond; and

- There is no limitation on monetary damages for custom work, including materials that have been fabricated, manufactured, or ordered to unique specifications.

§ 361.94 Decisions

[1] Mechanics' Lien Law

Mechanics' lien law [Civ. Code §§ 3082-3267] insures that both lien claimants have an immediate remedy for materials and labor furnished and unpaid for, and owners may clear titles to their property as soon as possible. Borchers Bros. v. Buckeye Incubator Co. (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 234, 238, 28 Cal. Rptr. 697, 379 P.2d 1

Mechanics' lien law is remedial in character, and must be liberally construed in its entirety with a view to effect its objects and to promote justice. Hendrickson v. Bertelson (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 430, 432-433, 35 P.2d 318 ; Nolte v. Smith (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 140, 144, 11 Cal. Rptr. 261

Mechanics' lien law is based on theory that claimant has equitable right to follow labor and materials into building of which these have become component part. Humboldt Lumber Mill Co. v. Crisp (1905) 146 Cal. 686, 687, 81 P. 30

Former Cal. Const., art. XX, § 15 (renumbered Cal. Const., art. XIV, § 3, in 1976), granting laborers and materialmen of every class a mechanics' lien for labor done and materials furnished is not self-executing and must be supplemented by Legislature. Spinney v. Griffith (1893) 98 Cal. 149, 151-152, 32 P. 974

Mechanics' lien law is based on theory that owner receives benefit that he or she is estopped to deny. Nolte v. Smith (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 140, 147, 11 Cal. Rptr. 261

[2] Mechanics' Liens

Mechanics' lien law protects property owners as well as lien claimants. R.D. Reeder Lathing Co. v. Allen (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 373, 379, 57 Cal. Rptr. 841, 425 P.2d 785

Duty of Legislature is to balance interests of lien claimants and property owners. Borchers Bros. v. Buckeye

Incubator Co. (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 234, 238-239, 28 Cal. Rptr. 697, 379 P.2d 1

Former Cal. Const., art. XX, § 15 (renumbered Cal. Const., art. XIV, § 3, in 1976), empowers Legislature to adopt legislation that will relieve property owner of burden of lien and at same time afford lien claimant reasonable assurance that his or her claim, if valid, will be paid in full. Frank Curran Lbr. Co. v. Eleven Co. (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 175, 183-184, 76 Cal. Rptr. 753

Mechanics' lien itself is in nature of mortgage and is charge on land. Mercantile Collection Bureau v. Roach (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 355, 357, 15 Cal. Rptr. 710

[3] Stop Notices

Right to recover on stop notice claim is not dependent on establishment of mechanics' lien because remedies are independent and cumulative. A-1 Door & Materials Co. v. Fresno Guar. Sav. & L. Ass'n (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 728, 732, 40 Cal. Rptr. 85, 394 P.2d 829

[1] Mechanics' Lien

Mechanics' lien is creature of statute; hence, statute must be looked to, both for right to lien and mode by which it is enforced. Reese v. Bald Mountain Consol. Gold Mining Co. (1901) 133 Cal. 285, 290, 65 P. 578

Mechanics' lien itself is in nature of mortgage and is charge on land. Mercantile Collection Bureau v. Roach (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 355, 357, 15 Cal. Rptr. 710

[2] Bestowers of Labor and Materials

Former Code Civ. Proc. § 1183 (now Civ. Code § 3110) made no distinction between claimant who performed work personally and one who furnished persons to the work. Myers v. Alta Constr. Co. (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 739, 742, 235 P.2d 1

Mechanics' lien law did not extend lien rights to contractor who without personal liability advanced funds for furnishing of labor and materialspursuant to agreement with owner. Glassco v. El Sereno Country Club, Inc. (1932) 217 Cal. 90, 94, 17 P.2d 703

Complaint for enforcement of lien for materials furnished to work of improvement must contain substantial allegations to effect that materials were furnished for, to be used in, and were used in improvement. Ensele v. Jolley (1922) 188 Cal. 297, 300, 204 P. 1085

In claiming lien for materials to be used in work of improvement as provided in former Code Civ. Proc. § 1183 (now Civ. Code § 3110), materials furnished for or delivered to particular improvement must be actually used in the improvement. Ensele v. Jolley (1922) 188 Cal. 297, 300, 204 P. 1085

Right to mechanics' lien for materials furnished and used in improvement is not affected by contractor's failure to conform to requirements of agreement between contractor and owner. Howe v. Schmidt (1907) 151 Cal. 436, 441, 90 P. 1056

Lien for bestowers of skill and materials under Civ. Code § 3110 attaches to whole structure and not part of structure. Bringham v. Knox (1899) 127 Cal. 40, 43, 59 P. 198

Transporter of materials to building site may assert mechanic's lien if transporter was hired by owner's agent, such as contractor or subcontractor. Ivy Trucking Inc. v. Creston Brandon Corp. (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 85, 88-89, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 582

Proof of delivery of materials to building site does not create presumption of their use in improvement; claimant must prove additionally that materials were actually used in improvement. Consolidated Elec. Distributors, Inc. v. Kirkham, Chaon & Kirkham, Inc. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 54, 58, 95 Cal. Rptr. 673

No lienable work was performed when architect did "pre-preliminary" work intended principally as prospectus for corporation's public stock-selling campaign. Design Associates, Inc. v. Welch (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 165, 173, 174, 36 Cal. Rptr. 341

Category of persons entitled to mechanics' liens have liens if their services are bestowed on the structure or land in any phase of the scheme or improvement as a whole. Nolte v. Smith (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 140, 147, 11 Cal. Rptr. 261

Lien rights were not defeated for materials furnished to and actually used in improvement when at instance of owner's architect materials were installed defectively and had to be torn out. Johnson v. Smith (1929) 97 Cal. App. 752, 754-755

Suit to enforce materialman's lien must not only allege that material was actually used or consumed in work of improvement but also that material was furnished for particular work of improvement. W.P. Fuller & Co. v. Fleisher (1923) 63 Cal. App. 78, 79-80, 218 P. 53

[3] Improvements

The sentence at the end of Civ. Code § 3106 regarding "the entire structure or scheme of improvement as a whole" does not mean that the removal or demolition of buildings is not a work of improvement unless it is part of a larger project leading to an outcome beyond mere removal or demolition. The sentence about a "scheme" only says that the term "work of improvement" refers to the entirety of a work of improvement. Since "work of improvement" is defined to include demolition and removal of buildings, the entirety of a work of improvement can consist of the demolition or removal of a building. There is no basis for the view that removal of a building--or anything else included in the definition--only counts if something else is done to the land in addition. United Rentals Northwest, Inc. v. Snider Lumber Products, Inc. (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1479, 1485, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 471

Test applied in determining whether article is fixture is (1) manner of annexation, (2) adaptability to use and purpose of realty, and (3) intention of party annexing; intent is crucial and overriding factor, with remaining criteria considered only as subsidiary ingredients relevant to determination of intent. Allstate Ins. Co. v. County of Los Angeles (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 877, 885-886, 207 Cal. Rptr. 888

Structure on land does not become a fixture of the land when owner is held nonresponsible for improvement until all mechanic lien claimants are paid. English v. Olympic Auditorium, Inc. (1933) 217 Cal. 631, 643, 20 P.2d 946 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1183, 1185, 3129, now Civ. Code §§ 3110, 3112, 3129)

Demolition of building does not defeat mechanics' lien rights when destruction of building is due to fault of owner. McIntosh v. Funge (1930) 210 Cal. 592, 601, 292 P. 960

No benefit is conferred on owner by placing labor or materials in his or her building if building is destroyed before completion and delivery to owner. Humboldt Lumber Mill Co. v. Crisp (1905) 146 Cal. 686, 688, 81 P. 30

Wood-drying kilns that were 68 and 120 feet long, made of steel frame, and bolted to concrete slabs were "buildings" whose removal constituted a work of improvement within meaning of Civ. Code § 3106. United Rentals Northwest, Inc. v. Snider Lumber Products, Inc. (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1479, 1484, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 471

Test applied in determining whether article is fixture is (1) manner of annexation, (2) adaptability to use and purpose of realty, and (3) intention of party annexing; intent is crucial and overriding factor, with remaining criteria considered only as subsidiary ingredients relevant to determination of intent. Allstate Ins. Co. v. County of Los Angeles (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 877, 885-886, 207 Cal. Rptr. 888

Real property is subject to mechanics' lien for labor and materials only if chattels installed become fixtures attached to realty and labor performed results in permanent improvement to realty. Cornell v. Sennes (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 126, 131, 95 Cal. Rptr. 728

Main factors used in determining if chattel has become fixture are (1) physical annexation, (2) adaptation to use with real property, and (3) intention to annex realty; other factors are relationship of claiming parties, relative difficulty of removal, nature of article annexed, and whether annexation is open and apparent. Cornell v. Sennes (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 126, 132, 95 Cal. Rptr. 728

Necessity for determination of site improvement work, substantial in nature, being contemplated under original contract rather than separate contract for purposes of former Code Civ. Proc. § 1189.1 (now Civ. Code § 3135) when claim of lien not timely filed following completion of work. Howard A. Deason & Co. v. Costa Tierra Ltd. (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 742, 757, 83 Cal. Rptr. 105

Yard lights used to illuminate paths, walks, or plantings are integral part of landscaping scheme or design and under proper circumstances are both a site improvement under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1184.1 (now Civ. Code § 3112) and separate work of improvement under Code Civ. Proc. § 1189.1 (now Civ. Code § 3135). Howard A. Deason & Co. v. Costa Tierra Ltd. (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 742, 755, 83 Cal. Rptr. 105

Furnishing labor and material for installation of streets, curbs, gutters, and sidewalks in tract of land is separate work of improvement under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1189.1 (now Civ. Code § 3135). Howard A. Deason & Co. v. Costa Tierra Ltd. (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 742, 752, 83 Cal. Rptr. 105

[4] Permanency of Contribution to Improvement

Character of work done and materials furnished for which lien is sought to be established must be structural or permanent. Ogden v. Byington (1926)198 Cal. 151, 157, 244 P. 332 ; Howard A. Deason & Co. v. Costa Tierra Ltd. (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 742, 753, 83 Cal. Rptr. 105

Maintenance work (such as mowing and watering lawn) when not necessary to ensure its permanence does not entitle laborer to mechanics' lien. Howard A. Deason & Co. v. Costa Tierra Ltd. (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 742, 753, 83 Cal. Rptr. 105

Landscaping and maintenance as necessary to ensure that planting is well established on ground is work of improvement. Howard A. Deason & Co. v. Costa Tierra Ltd. (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 742, 753, 83 Cal. Rptr. 105

No mechanics' lien attaches to land if project contemplated by employment agreement is abandoned by mutual agreement. McDonald v. Filice (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 613, 620, 60 Cal. Rptr. 832

Whether property is permanently attached to land or retains its identity as personalty is generally determined by controlling criterion of the intent of parties. Kruse Metals Mfg. Co. v. Utility Trailer Mfg. Co. (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 176, 183, 23 Cal. Rptr. 514

When rights of person unconnected to transaction are concerned, question of permanency of attachment of improvement is one of apparent intent as it would appear to third person. Kruse Metals Mfg. Co. v. Utility Trailer Mfg. Co. (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 176, 183, 23 Cal. Rptr. 514

Rights of innocent materialman are not defeated when material furnished is rendered useless by act of owner. Nolte v. Smith (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 140, 146, 11 Cal. Rptr. 261

Furnishing and planting of seeds, trees, and shrubs, and caring for them for such period of time to insure they are well settled on ground, constitute improvements for which lien may be had. California P.C. Co. v. Wentworth Co. (1911) 16 Cal. App. 692, 707, 118 P. 103

[5] Amount of Lien

Lien attaches for reasonable or contract value of all services that lien claimant has rendered, including services rendered before commencement if they contributed to construction. Walker v. Lytton Sav. & L. Ass'n (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 152, 156 n.5, 84 Cal. Rptr. 521, 465 P.2d 497

Lien claimant has burden of establishing validity of lien, including reasonable value of work and/or materials, but actual amount due on lien presents a question of fact for trial court. Basic Modular Facilities, Inc. v. Ehsanipour (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1480, 1485, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 462

Reasonable value as used in Civ. Code § 3123 (amount of lien) is limited to proportion of contract price reflecting amount of progress made toward completion of work. University Casework Sys., Inc. v. Superior Court (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 263, 267, 115 Cal. Rptr. 836 (deciding value of stop notice claim for public work)

[6] Property Subject to Lien

Lien attaches primarily to superstructure on land and only to land itself as it is embraced in common ownership with superstructure. English v. Olympic Auditorium, Inc. (1933) 217 Cal. 631, 639, 20 P.2d 946

When purpose for which building is erected is so intimately connected with operation carried on in adjacent buildings as to constitute essential part and parcel of building, lien claimed for work done on building attaches to adjacent buildings. Anselmo v. Sebastiani (1933) 219 Cal. 292, 299, 26 P.2d 1

In determining area required for necessary and convenient use of erected building, intended use of building must be considered. Anselmo v. Sebastiani (1933) 219 Cal. 292, 297-298, 26 P.2d 1

Area required for necessary and convenient use varies from that area necessary for ingress and egress, in case of a separate and distinct unit, to all of larger tract of land if uses of building on land require whole tract. Anselmo v.

Sebastiani (1933) 219 Cal. 292, 298, 26 P.2d 1

Site improvement lien attaches to entire tract of land and not part of tract. Warren v. Hopkins (1895) 110 Cal. 506, 42 P. 986

Lien for work and materials furnished to work of structure may not be claimed on part of structure as distinct from whole improvement. A. A. Baxter Corp. v. Home Owners & Lenders (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 725, 732, 86 Cal. Rptr. 854

[7] Scope of Owner's Responsibility

Civ. Code § 3129, making owner responsible for ordered improvement if owner had knowledge of improvement, places noncontracting owner in position of party to contract by conclusive presumption that work was done at his or her instance and request. M. Arthur Gensler, Jr., & Associates, Inc. v. Larry Barrett, Inc. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 695, 707, 103 Cal. Rptr. 247, 499 P.2d 503

Subcontractor has charge of construction for purposes of former Code Civ. Proc. § 1182(c) (now Civ. Code § 3110) if subcontractor agrees with original contractor to perform substantial, specified portion of work of improvement pursuant to original contract in accord with plans and specifications by which original contractor is bound. Theisen v. Los Angeles County (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 170, 183, 5 Cal. Rptr. 161, 352 P.2d 529

Commencement of work is some work or labor on ground, effects of which are apparent, i.e., easily seen by everybody. English v. Olympic Auditorium, Inc. (1933) 217 Cal. 631, 637, 20 P.2d 946

Notice of nonresponsibility posted and recorded by property owner did not insulate property from lien for construction work; undisputed evidence showed that contractor was likely to succeed in claim that property owner participated in construction work through lease provisions requiring tenant to make improvements on property. Howard S. Wright Construction Co. v. Superior Court (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 314, 326, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 641

In absence of contract between lien claimant and property owner, right to enforce mechanics' lien against real property owner does not give rise to personal liability of owner. Halbert's Lumber, Inc. v. Burdett (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 14, 20 , 249 Cal. Rptr. 285

Unpaid materialman was not able to recover from owner on theory of unjust enrichment without allegation of promise to pay on part of owner and allegation that contractor was not paid. Truestone, Inc. v. Simi West Industrial Park II (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 715, 723-724, 209 Cal. Rptr. 757

Owner was not liable for improvements made by tenant when owner posted notice of nonresponsibility and did not authorize construction, require construction, or contribute towards cost of construction. Baker v. Hubbard (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 226, 234-237, 161 Cal. Rptr. 551

Notice of nonresponsibility is effective even though not verified. Baker v. Hubbard (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 226, 232-234, 161 Cal. Rptr. 551 ; but see Los Banos Gravel Co. v. Freeman (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 785, 130 Cal. Rptr. 180 (notice is not effective if not verified)

Notice of nonresponsibility was not effective when owner caused work of improvement to be performed within meaning of Civ. Code § 3090 in that its lease required construction of service station, and rents were based on percent of profits from business, and property was to be surrendered at end of three years. Los Banos Gravel Co. v. Freeman (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 785, 791-798, 130 Cal. Rptr. 180

Conclusive presumption that materials furnished with owner's knowledge are at owner's instance and request is applicable only when person originally contracting for materials has some interest in property less than fee simple. Blakemore Equip. Co. v. Braddock, Logan & Valley (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 12, 16-17, 74 Cal. Rptr. 484

Knowledge of owner that piece of equipment used on improvement was rented by claimant to materialman of owner did not entitle claimant to lien on improvement. Blakemore Equip. Co. v. Braddock, Logan & Valley (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 12, 15, 74 Cal. Rptr. 484

Subcontractor for purposes of mechanics' lien law distinguished from subcontractor for purposes of contractor licensing law. Steinbrenner v. J. A. Waterbury Constr. Co. (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 661, 666, 28 Cal. Rptr. 204

[8] Priority of Mechanics' Liens

General rule that liens have priority according to time of creation governs fixing of priorities under mechanics' lien law. Walker v. Lytton Sav. & L. Ass'n (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 152, 158, 84 Cal. Rptr. 521, 465 P.2d 497

Condition precedent for priority is commencement of construction. Walker v. Lytton Sav. & L. Ass'n (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 152, 158, 84 Cal. Rptr. 521, 465 P.2d 497 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1188.1; now see Civ. Code § 3134)

Mechanics' lien does not attach to land unless and until construction has been undertaken by doing of actual work on or delivery of construction materials to the land. Walker v. Lytton Sav. & L. Ass'n (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 152, 157, 84 Cal. Rptr. 521, 465 P.2d 497

Deed of trust had priority over architect's mechanics' lien when no visible work had commenced on land when deed of trust was recorded. Walker v. Lytton Sav. & L. Ass'n (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 152, 158-159, 84 Cal. Rptr. 521, 465 P.2d 497 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1188.1; now see Civ. Code § 3134)

One who records trust deed with knowledge that owner plans to construct improvements on land based on architect's plans does not waive priority rights under trust deed against architect's potential lien. Walker v. Lytton Sav. & L. Ass'n (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 152, 158, 84 Cal. Rptr. 521, 465 P.2d 497 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1188.1; now see Civ. Code § 3134)

Lien for advances has priority over mechanics' liens even though advances are made after attachment of mechanics' liens if loan agreement secured by deed of trust makes payments obligatory and deed of trust is recorded before commencement of improvements. Rheem Mfg. Co. v. United States (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 621, 625, 21 Cal. Rptr. 802, 371 P.2d 578

Apportionment by court of amounts of liens when lien claimant failed to do so under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1188 (now Civ. Code § 3130) thereby preserving priority over liens of trust deeds was proper. Hendrickson v. Bertelson (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 430, 434, 35 P.2d 318

Encumbrance recorded prior to commencement of work of improvement is superior to mechanics' lien on improvement as well as on land on which improvement situated. Barr Lbr. Co. v. Shaffer (1951) 108 Cal. App. 2d 14, 16, 23, 238 P.2d 99

If advances made under loan agreement secured by mortgage or deed of trust are optional, lien of deed of trust or mortgage is postponed to dates on which advances actually made. Hayward Lbr. & Inv. Co. v. Corbett (1934) 138 Cal. App. 644, 649, 33 P.2d 41

[9] Preliminary 20-Day Notice

Claimant under direct contract with owner is not required to give preliminary notice if claimant has direct contract with owner's lessee and owner fails to post and record effective notice of nonresponsibility. M. Arthur Gensler, Jr., & Associates, Inc. v. Larry Barrett, Inc. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 695, 707, 103 Cal. Rptr. 247, 499 P.2d 503

Estimate of total price of labor, service, equipment, or materials must be "a derived figure, arrived at by rational analysis;" preliminary notice giving estimate of $10,000 was fatally defective when contractor filed mechanic's lien for $159,898. Rental Equipment, Inc. v. McDaniel Builders, Inc. (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 445, 449-450, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 922

Failure of subcontractor to serve preliminary notice on contractor is not fatal to cause of action against owner when notice is properly served on owner. Industrial Asphalt, Inc. v. Garrett Corp. (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 1001, 1005-1009, 226 Cal. Rptr. 17

Owner is liable despite defective notice if materialman is known to owner and makes delivery in reliance on owner's promise to pay. Truestone, Inc. v. Simi West Industrial Park II (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 715, 722-723, 209 Cal. Rptr. 757

Notice that did not contain statutorily required notice to property owner in proper language or in bold face was insufficient and precluded enforcement of mechanic's lien. Harold L. James, Inc. v. Five Points Ranch, Inc. (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 1, 6-7, 204 Cal. Rptr. 494

Twenty-day notice requirement of Civ. Code § 3097 does not specify initial date for serving preliminary notice or date before which notice may not be given; instead, it provides deadline after which notice may not be given. Brown Co. v. Appellate Department (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 891, 897-898, 196 Cal. Rptr. 258

Preliminary 20-day notice mailed by first-class mail but not registered or certified is insufficient. IGA Aluminum Products, Inc. v. Manufacturers Bank (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 699, 702-705, 181 Cal. Rptr. 859

Lien claimant contracted directly with owner for purposes of serving preliminary 20-day notice (private work) if claimant contracted directly with owner'sagent. Frank Pisano & Associates v. Taggart (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 1, 17, 105 Cal. Rptr. 414

Preliminary notice must be given to owner of property at time claimant is required to give notice, except when claimant has entered into direct contract with person who was owner of property at time contract was made for performance of work or furnishing of materials. Schrader Iron Works, Inc. v. Lee (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 621, 630, 103 Cal. Rptr. 106

Oral preliminary notice is insufficient. Windsor Mills v. Richard B. Smith, Inc. (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 336, 77 Cal. Rptr. 300

Purpose of preliminary notice is to advise owner before claim of lien is recorded that owner's property may be subjected to lien arising out of contract to which owner is not party. Windsor Mills v. Richard B. Smith, Inc. (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 336, 340, 77 Cal. Rptr. 300

[10] Recording of Claim of Lien

[a] Completion of Work of Improvement

Occupancy and use for purposes of Civ. Code § 3086 (completion of work) signals an equivalent to completion of the job only if not co-existing with labor throughout or is not inconsistent with further work by mechanic. M. Arthur Gensler, Jr., & Associates, Inc. v. Larry Barrett, Inc. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 695, 706, 103 Cal. Rptr. 247, 499 P.2d 503

Contractor's recording of mechanic's lien not premature because contract was "completed" within meaning of Civ. Code § 3115 on anticipatory breach of other contracting party. Howard S. Wright Construction Co. v. BBIC Investors LLC (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 228, 243, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 769

Notice of completion not filed within 10-day period has no effect on statutory 90-day lien filing period. Fontana Paving, Inc. v. Hedley Brothers, Inc. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 146, 155-156, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 295

When subcontractor had separate subcontracts for work on separate shops in shopping center, completion of work on individual shop started time period for that shop even though subcontractor was still working on other shops. Insul-Acoustics, Inc. v. Lee (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 552, 555, 186 Cal. Rptr. 324

Between owner and contractor, notice of completion is valid even though owner's name is inserted as original contractor. Gary C. Tanko Well Drilling, Inc. v. Dodds (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 588, 594, 172 Cal. Rptr. 829

Determination of date of completion of work of improvement is question of fact. E. D. McGillicuddy Constr. Co. v. Knoll Recreation Assn., Inc. (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 891, 896, 107 Cal. Rptr. 899

"Subject to acceptance" as that phrase is used in former Code Civ. Proc. § 1193.1(e) (now see Civ. Code § 3086) is not to be equated with inspection and approval or issuance of certificates of occupancy under building regulations. Howard A. Deason & Co. v. Costa Tierra Ltd. (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 742, 751, 83 Cal. Rptr. 105

Notice of completion filed before actual completion of work of improvement is premature and does not limit times within which claims of lien must be filed. Scott, Blake, & Wynne v. Summit Ridge Estates, Inc. (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 347, 357, 59 Cal. Rptr. 587

[b] Separate Residential Units

Time for filing claim of lien for completion of each residential unit is not applicable to units in condominium. E. D. McGillicuddy Constr. Co. v. Knoll Recreation Assn., Inc. (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 891, 897-898, 107 Cal. Rptr. 899

Filing of notices of completion of individual units, when contract was for integrated complex and entire work was far from completion, was premature and of no effect. Scott, Blake & Wynne v. Summit Ridge Estates, Inc. (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 347, 357, 59 Cal. Rptr. 587

[c] Conformity With Lien Claim Demand

Technical doctrine of variance has no application to claim of lien, when all that is required is that statement of terms of contract be substantially true. Star Mill & Lbr. Co. v. Porter (1906) 4 Cal. App. 470, 474, 88 P. 497

[d] Prerequisite Fees

Gov. Code § 27387, providing that county recorder collect fee from lienor for recordation of document creating involuntary lien (within meaning of Gov. Code § 27297) affecting title to real property, does not require lien claimants to pay additional fee as prerequisite to recording, when address of person against whom involuntary lien is recorded is not contained in recording document. Carpenters Health & Welfare Trust Fund v. Shafer (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 504, 507, 509, 194 Cal. Rptr. 266

[11] Foreclosure of Lien

[a] Actions to Foreclose Lien

Complaint to foreclose mechanics' lien must show substantial compliance with Civ. Code §§ 3115-3117 (former Code Civ. Proc. § 1193.1) as to contents of claim of lien, including by direct allegation or attached copy on allegations, that claim contains name of owner or reputed owner, sufficient description of property, due verification, and allegation that claim was filed within prescribed period. M. Arthur Gensler, Jr., & Associates, Inc. v. Larry Barrett, Inc. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 695, 703, 103 Cal. Rptr. 247, 499 P.2d 503 ; Clements v. T.R. Bechtel Co. (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 227, 238, 273 P.2d 5

Mechanics' lien is in nature of mortgage with same procedural and substantive principles for foreclosure of mortgages applying to foreclosure of lien. Laubisch v. Roberdo (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 702, 709, 277 P.2d 9

Action to foreclose mechanics' lien is in rem action and local in nature as plaintiff is resorting primarily to security for payment of indebtedness. Central Bank v. Superior Court (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 913, 917, 106 Cal. Rptr. 696

If main relief sought in complaint by lien claimant is personal, fact that title or possession of real property is incidentally involved in cause of action to foreclose mechanics' lien does not change character of complaint as transitory action. Central Bank v. Superior Court (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 913, 917, 106 Cal. Rptr. 696

Requirement that action to foreclose name and serve purchaser of property who records his or her title after lien attaches but before suit is filed. Flintkote Co. v. Lisa Constr. Co. (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 606, 611, 74 Cal. Rptr. 136

Claimant must observe and comply strictly, or at least substantially, with provisions of mechanics' lien law, none of which may be regarded as unessential, in action to foreclose lien. Holm v. Bramwell (1937) 20 Cal. App. 2d 332, 334, 67 P.2d 114

[b] Defenses

When contractor and subcontractor conspire to defraud owner, unclean hands is equitable defense to subcontractor's lien. Burton v Sosinsky (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 562, 570-574, 250 Cal. Rptr. 33

Owner's lack of knowledge is matter of defense. Dixon v. Fredericks (1933) 129 Cal. App. 703, 706-707, 19 P.2d 272

[c] Time Limitations

[i] Ninety-Day Statute of Limitations

Bankruptcy stay only operates to suspend 90-day statute of limitations for foreclosing mechanic's lien until property leaves estate; thus, action to foreclose mechanic's lien was barred when not timely brought after creditor obtained relief from stay and foreclosed on property under deed of trust; fact that claim based on mechanic's lien was filed in bankruptcy action without objection to it and was therefore prima facie evidence of its validity in that bankruptcy proceeding did not relieve plaintiff from necessity of instituting foreclosure action on lien. Sawyer Nurseries v. Galardi (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 663, 670-672, 226 Cal. Rptr. 502

Civ. Code § 3144, requiring lien claimant to foreclose his or her lien within 90 days of recording claim of lien, is a procedural statute of limitations, which may be waived and does not affect a substantive right. Petersen v. W. T. Grant Co. (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 217, 221-222, 115 Cal. Rptr. 874

Mechanics' lien expires within 90 days if recordation of lien suit is not filed against all persons owning or holding encumbrances on property. Packard Bell Electronics Corp. v. Theseus, Inc., (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 355, 359, 53 Cal. Rptr. 300

[ii] Indispensable Parties

Failure to join indispensable party within 90 days after recordation of claim of lien requires dismissal of mechanics' lien foreclosure action. Frank Pisano & Associates v. Taggart (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 1, 23, 105 Cal. Rptr. 414

Persons whose interest, rights, or duties will inevitably be affected by any decree that can be rendered in action are indispensable parties. Frank Pisano & Associates v. Taggart (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 1, 22, 105 Cal. Rptr. 414

Junior encumbrancer is indispensable party and must be afforded opportunity to defend interest within 90-day period for commencing foreclosure action or else be allowed to plead bar of statute of limitations. Packard Bell Electronics Corp. v. Theseus, Inc. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 355, 360, 53 Cal. Rptr. 300

Persons who purchase property either before claim of lien is recorded or after recordation and before commencement of suit are indispensable parties. Packard Bell Electronics Corp. v. Theseus, Inc. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 355, 361, 364-365, 53 Cal. Rptr. 300

Persons who purchase property subject to mechanics' lien after foreclosure proceedings have commenced are not indispensable parties because plaintiff in subsequent suit may prove their actual or constructive knowledge of pendency of foreclosure proceedings. Packard Bell Electronics Corp. v. Theseus, Inc. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 355, 363-364, 53 Cal. Rptr. 300

[d] Lis Pendens

Actual knowledge takes place of constructive notice imparted by filing of notice of lis pendens. Packard Bell Electronics Corp. v. Theseus, Inc. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 355, 363, 53 Cal. Rptr. 300

When no notice of lis pendens has been filed that would impart constructive knowledge to purchaser who acquired title after foreclosure action filed, only actual knowledge by such purchaser of pending action would bind him or her to foreclosure decree. Packard Bell Electronics Corp. v. Theseus, Inc. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 355, 363, 53 Cal. Rptr. 300

[12] Extension of Credit

Extension of credit recorded after lien terminates for failure to commence enforcement proceedings revives right to foreclose. Richards v. Hillside Dev. Co. (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 776, 781, 2 Cal. Rptr. 693

Mutual agreement is requisite to extension of credit. Richards v. Hillside Dev. Co. (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 776, 779, 2 Cal. Rptr. 693

Multiple extensions of credit are permitted as long as extending beyond one year of recording of claim. Richards v. Hillside Dev. Co. (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 776, 780-781, 2 Cal. Rptr. 693

Computation of time following recording of claim of lien or extension of credit must exclude date of recording and commence with following day. Ziganto v. Taylor (1961) 198 Cal. App. 2d 603, 609, 18 Cal. Rptr. 229

Agreement to waive statutory limitation on time for commencement of foreclosure proceedings is valid. Hill v. Hesse (1932) 126 Cal. App. 171, 173, 15 P.2d 526

[13] Interest Before Judgment

Interest before judgment is recoverable on foreclosure of mechanics' lien when Civ. Code § 3287 (providing for recovery of interest before judgment) applies. Meda v. Lawton (1933) 217 Cal. 282, 285, 18 P.2d 665

[14] Personal Actions

Lien claimant who furnishes material at instance of contractor is entitled to deficiency judgment against contractor but not owner unless implied or express contract found between owner and claimant. Golden Gate Bldg. Materials Co. v. Fireman (1928) 205 Cal. 174, 177-178, 270 P. 214

Right to enforce mechanics' lien against real property does not give rise to personal liability of owner in absence of contract between lien claimant and owner. R.D. Reeder Lathing Co. v. Allen (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 373, 376, 57 Cal. Rptr. 841, 425 P.2d 785

C. Stop Notices

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.132

§ 361.132 Decisions

[1] Nature of Remedy

[a] In General

Stop notice provisions are remedial in nature and must be liberally construed to effect their objects and promote justice. Miller v. Mountain View Sav. & L. Ass'n (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 644, 655, 48 Cal. Rptr. 278

Stop notice provisions are designed to protect mechanics and materialmen who furnish labor and materials that go to enhance value of owner's property, an enhancement to be paid for out of building fund. Miller v. Mountain View Sav. & L. Ass'n (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 644, 655, 48 Cal. Rptr. 278

[b] Equitable Garnishment

Equitable garnishment effected through stop notice proceedings ias extensive as claim that it is intended to protect. A-1 Door & Materials Co. v. Fresno Guar. Sav. & L. Ass'n (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 728, 737, 40 Cal. Rptr. 85, 394 P.2d 829

Former Code Civ. Proc. § 1190.1(h) (now see Civ. Code § 3162) indicates that compliance with its provisions on receipt of bonded stop notice effects an equitable garnishment. Calhoun v. Huntington Park First Sav. & L. Ass'n (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 451, 459, 9 Cal. Rptr. 479

Equitable garnishment procedure of former Code Civ. Proc. § 1190.1(h) is enforceable through an action in equity. Calhoun v. Huntington Park First Sav. & L. Ass'n (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 451, 459, 9 Cal. Rptr. 479

[c] Compared to Mechanics' Lien

Remedies of mechanics' lien and stop notice are independent and cumulative. A-1 Door & Materials Co. v. Fresno

Guarantee Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 728, 732, 40 Cal. Rptr. 85, 394 P.2d 829

Provisions for filing stop notice claims by those who furnish labor or materials reach construction fund directly while mechanics' lien is against property and extinguished by foreclosure of construction lender's first deed of trust, which has priority. Idaco Lumber Co. v. Northwestern Sav. & Loan Assn. (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 490, 499, 71 Cal. Rptr. 422

Construction loan fund substituted lender's promised money for real property that lender's prior deed of trust had rendered inadequate for any realistic relief for lien claimant. Miller v. Mountain View Sav. & L. Ass'n (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 644, 658, 48 Cal. Rptr. 278

[d] Abolition of Equitable Lien

Civ. Code § 3264, abolishing all theories of equitable liens or trusts against fund for payment of construction costs, does not apply to claims of personal liability against construction lenders on account of intentially wrongful diversion of construction loan funds. Cal-West Nat. Bank v. Superior Court (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 96, 99-100, 229 Cal. Rptr. 431

Civ. Code § 3264, making statutory stop notice remedy sole remedy for claimants with respect to construction funds, abolishes all theories of equitable liens and trust funds. Boyd & Lovesee Lumber Co. v. Western Pacific Financial Corp. (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 460, 465, 118 Cal. Rptr. 699

[2] Duty to Withhold

[a] In General

Fundholder must withhold from funds furnished to pay construction costs or arising out of construction loan sufficient money to answer bonded stop notice claims, regardless of terms of its contract with owner. A-1 Door & Materials Co. v. Fresno Guarantee Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 728, 734,40 Cal. Rptr. 85, 394 P.2d 829 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1190.1(h), now Civ. Code § 3162)

Construction lender is not permitted to defeat rights of stop notice claimant by transfer of fund to itself or by overpayment of fund. Idaco Lumber Co. v. Northwestern Sav. & Loan Assn. (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 490, 496-497, 71 Cal. Rptr. 422

Assertion of lender's rights by virtue of its contract with borrower-owner must await running of period in which claims may be filed, and then must yield priority to such claims as are filed. Miller v. Mountain View Sav. & L. Ass'n (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 644, 657, 48 Cal. Rptr. 278

Statutory remedy provided in former Code Civ. Proc. § 1190.1(h) (now see Civ. Code § 3162, duty of construction lender on receipt of stop or bonded stop notice) is in derogation of generally acknowledged right of lender to contract for lien superior to rights of lien claimants in property. Miller v. Mountain View Sav. & L. Ass'n (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 644, 661, 48 Cal. Rptr. 278

When there are building loan funds or construction funds within the meaning of former Code Civ. Proc. § 1190.1(h) (now see Civ. Code § 3087), against which notices to withhold could take effect, the fundholder has an unqualified duty to withhold if notices accompanied by bond. H.O. Bragg Roofing, Inc. v. First Fed. Sav. & L. Ass'n (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 24, 27, 37 Cal. Rptr. 775

[b] Estoppel

Construction lender was estopped to deny stop notice claim and had duty to withhold when it had assured claimant it would be paid, and claimant relied on assurances to its prejudice by not perfecting other available remedies. H.O. Bragg Roofing, Inc. v. First Fed. Sav. & L. Ass'n (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 24, 26-27, 28, 37 Cal. Rptr. 775

[c] Assignment

Language of Civ. Code § 3166 (former Code Civ. Proc. § 1190.1(h)) is unequivocal; no exception is made when owner assigns borrowed fund back to lender. Rossman Mill & Lbr. Co. v. Fullerton Sav. & L. Ass'n (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 705, 710, 34 Cal. Rptr. 644

[d] Time for Service

Stop notice may be given to owner at any time after agreement is made for the furnishing of labor or materials. Miller v. Mountain View Sav. & L. Ass'n (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 644, 653, 48 Cal. Rptr. 278

[3] Actions to Enforce Claim

[a] In General

Stop notice claimant's right to payment does not arise simply on giving notice of claims but on compliance with Civ. Code § 3172 providing for suit on claim. A-1 Door & Materials Co. v. Fresno Guarantee Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 728, 736, 40 Cal. Rptr. 85, 394 P.2d 829 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1197.1(a))

[b] Independent Remedy

Right to recover on stop notice claim is not dependent on establishing mechanics' lien. A-1 Door & Materials Co. v. Fresno Guarantee Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 728, 732, 40 Cal. Rptr. 85, 394 P.2d 829

[c] Interest Before Judgment

Fundholder must pay whatever owners owe stop notice claimants including interest before judgment under Civ. Code § 3287, if allowed, to extent that construction loan funds are available. A-1 Door & Materials Co. v. Fresno Guarantee Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 728, 737, 40 Cal. Rptr. 85, 394 P.2d 829

[d] Commencement

Premature commencement of stop notice action is a matter of abatement that must be pleaded in proper time or be waived. Miller v Mountain View Sav. & L. Ass'n (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 644, 654, 48 Cal. Rptr. 278

[e] Necessary Party

Owner is necessary party to proceeding to enforce stop notice claim, and is necessary party to complete settlement of entire controversy. A-1 Door & Materials Co. v. Fresno Guarantee Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 728, 736 n.3, 40 Cal. Rptr. 85, 394 P.2d 829

Owner is necessary party if entitled to fund after payment of all claims or in event of failure of stop notice claimants to prove their claims by court adjudication. Idaco Lumber Co. v. Northwestern S. & L. Assn. (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 490, 496, 71 Cal. Rptr. 422

[f] Right to Personal Judgment

Personal judgment may be entered against holder of funds in action to effect recovery from funds subjected to stop notice claim if such holder does not account for amount of claim from funds in his or her possession. Calhoun v. Huntington Park First Sav. & L. Ass'n (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 451, 460, 9 Cal. Rptr. 479

[4] Preliminary Notice

Construction lender was not liable on stop notice if it was never given preliminary 20-day notice even though subcontractor did not have actual notice of construction lender and did give notice to owner. Romak Iron Works v. Prudential Ins. Co. of America (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 767, 773-778, 163 Cal. Rptr. 869

[5] Recovery on Bond

Subcontractor who is claimant on stop notice release bond entitled to recover attorneys' fees from surety based on attorneys' fee clause in subcontract, so long as total recovery against surety does not exceed penal sum of bond. National Technical Systems v. Superior Court (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 415, 424-425, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 465 ; T&R Painting Constr. v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 738, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 199

D. Payment Bonds

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.142

§ 361.142 Decisions

[1] Payment Bonds

[a] Nature of Remedy

Price limitation in agreement between owner and contractors is not binding on materialman and subcontractors if latter have in good faith and without notice of agreement furnished materials or labor. Union Supply Co. v. Morris (1934) 220 Cal. 331, 335, 30 P.2d 394

Suspension of contractor's corporate status resulting in inability to defend itself in action against it by subcontractor did not preclude bond surety from raising contractor's valid defenses and set-offs to defeat subcontractor's action on public works payment bond. Kalfountzos v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1655, 1660, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 714

Third-tier subcontractors and material suppliers are not precluded from right of action on payment bond, provided work forming basis for claim was performed by claimants for bond principal pursuant to contract between original contractor and owner in accordance with Civ. Code § 3267. Union Asphalt, Inc. v. Planet Ins. Co. (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1762, 1765-1767, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371

Remedies of foreclosure of lien and personal suit against surety on payment bond are independent and cumulative and may be pursued simultaneously as long as money collected on personal judgment is credited to amount of lien. Culbertson v. Cizek (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 451, 468, 37 Cal. Rptr. 548

Materialman's waiver of lien against property that is subject of construction work for which he or she has furnished materials does not in any way impairmaterialman's right to proceed against surety on contractor's bond posted in connection with work pursuant to Civ. Code §§ 3082-3267 (mechanics' liens law). Ferry v. Ohio Farmers Ins. Co. (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 651, 655, 27 Cal. Rptr. 471 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1181-1203.1)

[b] Construction of Bonds

Surety's liability is primary obligation to materialmen and laborers and not true suretyship. Bonded Prod. Co. v. R.C. Gallyon Constr. Co., Inc. (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 186, 190-191, 39 Cal. Rptr. 347

Undertaking furnished to original contractor for faithful performance of contract with subcontractor for supply of labor and materials is not pledge for sole benefit of original contractor but inures to benefit of any person performing labor or furnishing materials. Gordy v. United Pacific Ins. Group (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 445, 448-449, 52 Cal. Rptr. 438

Bond for benefit of laborers and materialmen is not geared to specific terms of particular agreement that contractor has or may execute with any particular workman, supplier, or materialman. Bonded Prod. Co. v. R. C. Gallyon Constr. Co., Inc. (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 186, 190-191, 39 Cal. Rptr. 347

Repayment of money advanced to contractor by materialman is not secured by contractor's bond given pursuant to provisions of Civ. Code §§ 3082-3267 (mechanics' liens law). Peoples Nat'l Bank v. Southern Surety Co. (1930) 105 Cal. App. 731, 735, 288 P. 827 ; Ferry v. Ohio Farmers Ins. Co. (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 651, 27 Cal. Rptr. 471

[2] Recording of Contractor's Payment Bond

Provisions for recording payment bond and contract are for benefit of owner and not surety. Meda v. Lawton (1933) 217 Cal. 282, 284-285, 18 P.2d 665

Failure to record payment bond pursuant to Civ. Code § 3235 (former Code Civ. Proc. § 1185.1) does not render bond wholly void but instead makes owners' property liable for full reasonable value of labor done or materials furnished. Culbertson v. Cizek (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 451, 467, 37 Cal. Rptr. 548

Surety on contractor's bond guarantees integrity and solvency of its principal, the contractor; probability that it might not be protected against loss because of inefficiency of materialman is risk incident to its undertaking. Ferry v. Ohio Farmers Ins. Co. (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 651, 659, 27 Cal. Rptr. 471

[3] Statute of Limitations

Bond required by owner to provide statutory protection was given pursuant to statute and therefore statute of limitations on bond was four years despite short statute of limitations contained in bond because it was not recorded. Progress Glass Co. v. American Ins. Co. (1980) 100 Cal. App. 3d 720, 724-729, 161 Cal. Rptr. 243

[4] Subrogation

Requisites of subrogation are: (1) payment must have been made by subrogee to protect his or her own interest; (2) subrogee must not have acted as volunteer; (3) subrogee must not have been primarily liable for debt paid; (4) entire debt must have been paid; and (5) subrogation must not work injustice to rights of others. Filippi v. McMartin (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 135, 140, 10 Cal. Rptr. 180

Absent owner's fraud in bringing about issuance of bond, surety who has paid claims of valid lien claimants is subrogated to lien claimants' rights against principal but not against property. Filippi v. McMartin (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 135, 139, 10 Cal. Rptr. 180

Surety has right to proceed against owner's property whose fraud gave rise to surety's liability to laborers or materialmen. Filippi v. McMartin (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 135, 139, 10 Cal. Rptr. 180

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.151

§ 361.151 Decisions

[1] Estoppel

Lien claimant has duty to speak; silence supported inference of guile when claimant made contract with contractor extending imprudent credit without bearing risk, counting on lien law to leave risk to innocent and unsuspecting owner and knowing that owner was relying on lien releases supplied by contractor in authorizing payments to contractor. R.D. Reeder Lathing Co. v. Allen (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 373, 378, 57 Cal. Rptr. 841, 425 P.2d 785

Materialman who gives contractor waiver of lien, false receipt of payment, or promise to look only to contractor for his or her money is estopped to assert mechanic's lien against owner. R.D. Reeder Lathing Co. v. Allen (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 373, 378, 57 Cal. Rptr. 841, 425 P.2d 785

Stop notice claimant is estopped from asserting or enforcing claim if circumstances of particular case give rise to doctrine of estoppel as applied to mechanics's liens claimants. Ware Supply Co. v. Sacramento Sav. & Loan Asso. (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 398, 406, 54 Cal. Rptr. 674

[2] Joint Checks

Materialman is not obliged to credit proceeds of check against possible future delivery of materials not yet made or contracted for. J. S. Schirm Co. v. Rollingwood Homes Co. (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 789, 794-795, 17 Cal. Rptr. 1, 366 P.2d 444

If materialman furnished materials at same time to contractor for construction of buildings on property of different owners, materialman is permitted, in absence of notice of source of funds, to accept funds from contractor and apply them on any agreed account. Modesto Lumber Co. v. Wylde (1933) 217 Cal. 421, 425, 19 P.2d 238

If materialman, by endorsement, has acknowledged payment for materials supplied and has waived mechanics' lien rights, materialman then is not permitted to render nugatory protection provided to owner by endorsement and rely instead on lien rights. Bohannan Bros., Inc. v. Lo Jean Dev. Co. (1969) 3 Cal. App. 3d 200, 203-204, 82 Cal. Rptr. 922

Holding that materialman has waived lien rights is not dispositive of issue of whether materialman has waived stop notice rights because latter remedy is independent of and cumulative to lien rights. Bohannan Bros., Inc. v. Lo Jean Dev. Co. (1969) 3 Cal. App. 3d 200, 205, 82 Cal. Rptr. 922

Burden of proving particular application of payment by either debtor or creditor is on party claiming such application was made. Ferry v. Ohio Farmers Ins. Co. (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 651, 656, 27 Cal. Rptr. 471

Materialman is permitted to waive lien rights without impairing in any way his or her right to proceed against surety on contractor's payment bond. Ferry v. Ohio Farmers Ins. Co. (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 651, 655, 27 Cal. Rptr. 471

Owner's joint checks endorsed by materialman to subcontractor discharged owner's liability to materialman. Westwood Bldg. Materials Co. v. Valdez (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 107, 108-109, 322 P.2d 79

When payment by general contractor of subcontractor and materialman was made by joint checks, materialman was held to have been paid even though materialman diverted part of proceeds of joint checks to other purpose. Edwards v. Curry (1956) 152 Cal. App. 2d 726, 730, 313 P.2d 613

[3] Laches

Laches was applicable in claimant's action to foreclose on lien when claimant commenced an action within statutory period but delayed in order to advance its financial interests at expense of innocent homeowners and lenders. A.A. Baxter Corp. v. Home Owners & Lenders (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 725, 735, 86 Cal. Rptr. 854

[4] License Requirement

Bus. & Prof. Code § 7031, requiring contractor to allege that at all times of performance of contract he or she was licensed, applies to actions brought under mechanics' lien law. Lewis & Queen v. N.M. Ball Sons (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 141, 145-148, 308 P.2d 713 (stop notice action); Famous Builders v. Bolin, Inc. (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 37, 39-43, 70 Cal. Rptr. 17 (foreclosure of mechanics' lien)

Bus. & Prof. Code § 7031 represents legislative determination that the importance of deterring unlicensed persons from engaging in the contracting business outweighs any harshness between the parties, and applies even when a person for whom work was performed knew the contractor was unlicensed. Goldstein v. Barak Construction (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 845, 854, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 603

A subcontractor who is unlicensed cannot maintain an action against a general contractor for work performed under a construction service agreement. Great West Construction, Inc. v. WSS Industrial Construction, Inc. (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 581, 587, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 8

Lab. Code § 2750.5 is not applicable to determinations of whether one is employee or unlicensed contractor under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 7031 and 7053. Fillmore v. Irvine (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 649, 657, 194 Cal. Rptr. 319

Necessity for determination of whether lien claimant is employee-materialman under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 7052, 7053 or independent contractor under Bus. & Prof. Code § 7053 in landscaping work performed for owner when no license obtained by claimant. Vaughn v. De Kreek (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 671, 677, 679, 83 Cal. Rptr. 144

[4A] Progress Payments

When contract provided for "50% Deposit/Net upon Satisfactory Completion of Project" and homeowner did not pay total amount due, Civ. Code § 3260.1 (imposing penalty for wrongful withholding of progress payments) was inapplicable because payment due when project is completed is final payment rather than "progress payment." Murray's Iron Works Inc. v. Boyce (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1279, 1299, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 317

[5] Res Judicata

Plaintiff was barred by res judicata on second suit foreclosing mechanics' lien filed on two parcels after first suit had held parcels not subject to mechanics' lien, because mechanics' lien was filed only as to two other connected parcels. Sukut Construction, Inc. v. Cabot, Cabot & Forbes Land Trust (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 527, 531-532, 157 Cal. Rptr. 289

[6] Waiver

Waiver of or estoppel to assert mechanics' lien rights does not require formal contract, but is inferrable from circumsta nces and conduct of parties. E. K. Wood Lbr. Co. v. Higgins (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 91, 94, 4 Cal. Rptr. 523, 351 P.2d 795

Retention of note given by contractor and intended as substitute for mechanics' lien on owner's improved property constituted waiver of rights to file mechanics' lien against property. E. K. Wood Lbr. Co v. Higgins (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 91, 97, 4 Cal. Rptr. 523, 351 P.2d 795

Waiver by materialman of lien against property subject of construction work for which labor or materials furnished did not impair right to proceed against surety on payment bond. Ferry v. Ohio Farmers Ins. Co. (1963) 211 Cal. App. 2d 651, 655, 27 Cal. Rptr. 471

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

NOTE:

The following is a checklist of procedures required in enforcing rights under claims of liens. is not exhaustive and other procedures may be required. This checklist does, however, attempt to set forth those procedures most commonly utilized.

This checklist is designed to cover those procedures set forth in Civ. Code §§ 3109-3153 which govern mechanics' liens generally. In addition to the procedures set forth in these provisions, the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 307 et seq. (governing procedure in civil actions), except as otherwise provided, are applicable to, and constitute the rules of practice in, the proceedings relating to the mechanics' lien law. The provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 307-1062a, relative to new trials and appeals, except insofar as they are inconsistent with the provisions of the mechanics' lien law or with rules adopted by the Judicial Council, apply to the proceedings mentioned in the mechanics' lien law [Civ. Code § 3257].

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.160

§ 361.160 Preliminary 20-Day Notice (Private Work)

[1] When Notice Is Required

NOTE:

The determination of to whom a preliminary notice must be given is normally made at the time the notice must be given [Schrader Iron Works, Inc. v. Lee (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 621, 630, 103 Cal. Rptr. 106 ; see [3], below]. However, if the claimant is under direct contract with the owner, he or she need not give a notice to the owner [see Paragraph 4, below]; the claimant is also not required to give a preliminary notice to the owner's successor in interest, even though at the time he or she is required to give the notice, the claimant is not under direct contract with the successor in interest [Schrader Iron Works, Inc. v. Lee (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 621, 630, 103 Cal. Rptr. 106] .

1. Actual laborers for wages are not required to give a preliminary notice [Civ. Code § 3097(a), (b); see Civ. Code 3089(a) ("laborer" defined for these purposes)].

2. A person or entity to whom a portion of a laborer's compensation is paid by agreement with that laborer or the collective bargaining agent of that laborer is not required to give preliminary notice [Civ. Code 3097(a), (b); see Civ. Code 3089(b) ("laborer" defined for these purposes)].

3. The original contractor is not required to give a preliminary notice [Civ. Code § 3097(a), (b)].

4. All persons under direct contract with the owner, except the original contractor, who furnish labor, service, equipment or materials for which a mechanics' lien can be claimed under Civ. Code §§ 3110, 3112 must cause to be given to the construction lender, if any, or to the reputed construction lender, if any, a written preliminary notice [Civ. Code § 3097(b)]. Such persons are not required to give preliminary notices to either the owner or original contractor [Civ. Code § 3097(a), (b)].

NOTE:

A claimant is considered under direct contract with the owner and, hence, is not required to give a preliminary notice if the claimant has a direct contract with the owner's lessee and the owner fails to file and post a notice of nonresponsibility within 10 days after knowing of the construction taking place under the contract [M. Arthur Gensler, Jr., & Associates, Inc. v. Larry Barrett, Inc. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 695, 707, 103 Cal. Rptr. 247, 499 P.2d 503] . When a noncontracting owner has actual knowledge of improvements being made to his or her property and fails to timely file a notice of nonresponsibility under Civ. Code § 3129, a lien claimant is excused from giving preliminary notice [Kim v. JF Enterprises (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 849, 856, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 141] .

The claimant is only on constructive notice of construction liens recorded when work is commenced. It does not have to give notice to a construction lender whose lien was recorded after work commenced but during the 20-day period [Kodiak Industries, Inc. v. Ellis (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 75, 82-84, 229 Cal. Rptr. 418] .

A reputed construction lender is a person or entity reasonably and in good faith believed by the claimant to be the construction lender. The fact that the claimant could have discovered that the lender made other construction loans to the owner does not make the lender a reputed lender [Kodiak Industries, Inc. v. Ellis (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 75, 86-88, 229 Cal. Rptr. 418] .

5. Any person not described in Paragraphs 1-4, above, who furnishes labor, service, equipment, or material for which a lien can be claimed under Civ. Code §§ 3110-3112 must cause a written preliminary notice to be given to the owner or reputed owner; to the original contractor, or reputed contractor; and to the construction lender, if any, or reputed construction lender, if any [Civ. Code § 3097(a)].

NOTE:

The failure of a subcontractor who is licensed under Bus. & Prof. Code § 7000 et seq. to give a preliminary notice constitutes grounds for disciplinary action by the Registrar of Contractors if the contract price to be paid to the subcontractor exceeds $400 [Civ. Code § 3097(h)].

Service is proper on a reputed owner when service is made on a person represented by the contractor to the claimant as being the owner, even though that person is not actually the owner [Brown Co. v. Appellate Department (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 891, 898-903, 196 Cal. Rptr. 258] .

When property is owned by a limited partnership, a preliminary 20-day notice given to a general partner will not constitute noticeon the owner and a resulting judgment of foreclosure will not bind the limited partnership when the limited partnership is not a designated defendant [see Barr Lumber Co. v. Old Ivy Homebuilders, Inc. (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 1, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 717] .

NOTE:

A certified architect, registered engineer, or licensed land surveyor who has furnished services for the design of the work of improvement and who gives a preliminary notice that complies with the requirements of this form not later than 20 days after the work of improvement has commenced will be deemed to have complied with the preliminary notice requirements with respect to architectural, engineering, or surveying services furnished, or to be furnished [Civ. Code § 3097(c)].

[2] Preparation of Notice

1. Contents.

See § 361.190 for preliminary 20-day notice; Civ. Code § 3097(c).

2. Execution.

Although there is no express requirement that the notice be signed and dated, both are recommended to show that the claimant has given the notice within the required time period [see Civ. Code § 3097(d)].

3. Verification.

Not required.

4. Copies.

a. One for each person required to be notified under Civ. Code § 3097(a) or (b).

NOTE:
Only one notice needs to be given to the owner, original contractor, any subcontractors, and/or construction lender with respect to all materials, service, labor, or equipment furnished for a work of improvement, meaning the entire structure or scheme of improvements as a whole. However, when such materials, services, labor, or equipment is furnished under contracts with more than one subcontractor, separate notices must be given to each subcontractor [Civ. Code § 3097(g)].

b. Three or more if the notice is to be used as an exhibit to a complaint for foreclosure or to enforce a stop notice claim.

c. One office copy.

[3] Time for Service

1. Furnishers of labor or materials generally.

Service of the preliminary notice must be made not later than 20 days after a claimant has furnished labor, services, equipment, or materials to the jobsite [Civ. Code § 3097(c), (d)].

NOTE:
Only if a claimant has served a notice not later than 20 days after he or she has first furnished labor, services, equipment, or materials may he or she then be entitled to a claim of lien or to a notice to withhold for all that he or she has furnished or will furnish to the jobsite. A notice given at any later time entitles the claimant only to a claim of lien or notice to withhold for such labor, equipment, services, or materials furnished within 20 days before the service of the notice and at any time thereafter [see Civ. Code § 3097(c), (d)]. A notice is not premature and is valid if served before labor or materials are furnished [Brown Co. v. Appellate Department (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 891, 896-898, 196 Cal. Rptr. 258] .

2. Certified architects, registered engineers, or licensed land surveyors who have furnished services for the design of a work of improvement.

If a preliminary notice is served not later than 20 days after the work of improvement has commenced, these claimants are deemed to have complied with Civ. Code § 3097(a), (b) (who must give a preliminary notice) with respect to architectural, engineering, or surveying services furnished or to be furnished [Civ. Code § 3097(c)].

[4] Place and Manner of Service

1. Personal delivery.

Personal delivery may be made to a resident of California by delivery to the person to be notified, by leaving the notice at his or her residence, or by leaving it with some person in charge at his or her place of business [Civ. Code § 3097(f)(1)].

NOTE:
Every written contract entered into between a property owner and an original contractor must provide a space for the owner to enter his or her name, residence address, and place of business, if any. The original contractor must make available the name and residential address of the owner to any person seeking to serve notice as required by Civ. Code § 3097 [Civ. Code § 3097(l)]. To facilitate service of preliminary notice, every contract entered into between an original contractor and subcontractor, and between subcontractors, must provide a space for the name and address of the owner, original contractor, and any construction lender [see Civ. Code § 3097(m)].

2. Delivery by mail.

Service may be made by mail to a resident of California by first class registered or certified mail, postage prepaid, addressed to any one of the following:

a. The residence of the person to be notified.

NOTE:
See NOTE to Paragraph 1, above.

b. The address of the place of business of the person to be notified.

NOTE:
See NOTE to Paragraph 1, above.

c. The address shown by the building permit on file with the authority issuing a building permit for the improvement work [Civ. Code § 3097(f)(1)].

NOTE:
Every city, county, city and county, or other governmental authority must, in its application form for a building permit, provide a space and designation for the applicant to enter the name, branch designation, if any, and address of the construction lender and keep the information on file open for public inspection during the regular business hours of the authority. If there is no known construction lender, that fact must be noted in the designated space [Civ. Code § 3097(i)].

Any failure to indicate the name and address of the construction lender on the application, however, does not relieve any person from the obligation to give to the construction lender a preliminary notice if one is required [Civ. Code § 3097(i)].

d. The address of the construction lender or owner of real property described in any recorded instrument securing a loan, any of the proceeds of which may be used for the purpose of construction improvements on the property to which the lien claimant serving a preliminary notice has furnished or will furnish labor or materials [Civ. Code § 3097(f)(1)].

NOTE:

A mortgage, deed of trust, or other instrument securing a loan, any of the proceeds of which may be used for the purpose of constructing improvements on real property, must bear the designation "Construction Trust Deed" prominently on its face and state (1) the name and address of the lender and the name and address of the owner of the real property described in the instrument, and (2) a legal description of the property that secures the loan and, if known, the street address of the property. However, any failure to so designate the loan or provide the required information does not affect the validity of the instrument. Further, a failure to provide the above information on the instrument when it is recorded will not relieve persons subject to this requirement from the duty of serving a preliminary notice [Civ. Code § 3097(j)].

The county recorder of the county in which the instrument is recorded must indicate in the general index of the official records of the county that the instrument secures a construction loan [Civ. Code § 3097(j)].

Every written contract entered into between a property owner and an original contractor, except home improvement contracts and swimming pool contracts, must provide space for the owner to enter the name and address of the construction lender or lenders. The original contractor must make the name and address of the construction lender or lenders available to any person seeking to serve the preliminary notice [Civ. Code § 3097(m)]. When one or more construction loans are obtained after commencement of construction, the property owner must provide the name and address of the construction lender or lenders to each person who has given the property owner the preliminary notice [Civ. Code § 3097(n)].

3. Delivery to nonresident.

If the person to be notified does not reside in California, any of the methods that may be used to serve a resident may also be used to serve the nonresident. If the nonresident cannot be served by any of those methods, then notice may be given by first class certified or registered mail which is addressed to the construction lender or to the original contractor [Civ. Code § 3097(f)(2)].

NOTE:

If service is made by first class certified or registered mail, whether service is to a resident or nonresident, it is complete at the time of the deposit of the registered or certified mail [Civ. Code § 3097(f)(3)].

[5] Proof of Service

See § 361.191 for declaration of proof of service of preliminary 20-day notice.

[6] File With Recorder

The notice may be filed with the recorder. When a notice of completion or notice of cessation is recorded, the recorder will notify the claimant that the notice of completion or cessation has been filed within five days of its filing [Civ. Code § 3097(o)].

NOTE:

Filing the preliminary notice with the recorder does not give rise to actual or constructive notice of the existence or contents of the notice [Civ. Code § 3097(o)(5)].

§ 361.161 Preparation, Recording, and Service of Claim of Lien

[1] Preparation of Claim of Lien

1. Contents.

See §§ 361.192 -361.194 for claim of lien [Civ. Code § 3984(a)].

2. Execution.

Must be signed by claimant or his or her agent [Civ. Code § 3084(a)].

3. Verification.

Must be verified by claimant or his or her agent [Civ. Code § 3084(a)].

4. Copies.

a. One for recording [see Civ. Code §§ 3115-3117; see also [3], below].

b. One for service on owner or reputed owner [see Civ. Code § 3084(c); see also [4], below].

c. At least one copy if claim of lien is to be incorporated by reference into notice of extension of credit [see Civ. Code § 3144; for notice of extension of credit, see § 361.195].

d. At least three copies if claim of lien is to be used as exhibit to complaint for foreclosure of lien [see §§ 361.201, 361.202 for complaints].

e. One office copy.

[2] Place of Recording

Claim of lien must be recorded with county recorder's office of county where property is located [see Civ. Code § 3084(a)(6), (b)].

[3] Time to Record

NOTE:
The code provisions governing the time limits for recording a claim of lien relate only to liens which attach to works of improvement and not to liens attaching to property on which site improvement work has been exclusively performed. No case has clarified the issue of when a claimant must record if his or her lien is for site improvement work.

1. Commencement of time within which claim must be recorded.

a. Original contractor: after he or she completes contract [Civ. Code § 3115].

NOTE:
An "original contractor" is defined as any contractor who has a direct contractual relationship with the owner [Civ. Code § 3095]. This means that if the owner contracts directly with one who would be normally considered a subcontractor, the subcontractor for purposes of recording his or her claim is an original contractor [Benson Elec. Co. v. Hale Bros. Assoc., Inc. (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 686, 691, 55 Cal. Rptr. 73] .

A contract is "complete" for purposes of commencing the recordation period under Civ. Code § 3115 when all work under the contract has been performed, excused, or otherwise discharged [Howard S. Wright Construction Co. v. BBIC Investors LLC (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 228, 241, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 769 (recording of mechanic's lien was not premature because contract was "completed" on anticipatory breach of other contracting party)].

b. All mechanics' liens claimants other than the original contractor: after they have ceased to furnish labor, services, equipment, or materials [Civ. Code § 3116].

NOTE:
A lien filed by a subcontractor after completion of its work but before completion of the project is not premature [Century Superior Gunite, Inc. v. Rodriguez (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 12, 14-15].

c. Any claimant filing a claim for a work of improvement consisting of two or more separate residential units.

On completion of each residential unit [Civ. Code § 3131].

NOTE:
A separate work of improvement is one residential structure, including a residential structure containing multiple condominium units, together with any common area, garage, or other appurtenant improvements [Civ. Code § 3131]. Individual units of a condominium are not separate residential units within the meaning of Civ. Code § 3131 , since they are not self-contained but are merely areas within walls and under a roof now owned by the residents [E. D. McGillicuddy Constr. Co. v. Knoll Recreation Assn., Inc. (1973), 31 Cal. App. 3d 891* ; see also § 361.11[3][b]].

Each separate residential unit is considered a separate work of improvement [Civ. Code § 3131]. Thus the expiration of the time within which any claimant other than the original contractor must record [see § 361.162[2]*] for the completion of such a residential unit is presumably controlled by this provision although no cases have so held.

2. Expiration of time for recording.

a. Original contractor.

(1) If no notice of completion or cessation has been recorded by the owner [see § 361.200 for notice of completion]: 90 days after the completion of the work of improvement as defined in Civ. Code § 3106 [Civ. Code § 3115].

NOTE:
For a discussion of the time a work of improvement is considered completed, see § 361.200[5].

(2) If a notice of completion or notice of cessation has been recorded: 60 days after the recording [Civ. Code § 3115].

NOTE:
If a site improvement is provided for in separate contract from any contract for the erection of residential units or other structures, the site improvement is considered a separate work of improvement [Civ. Code § 3135]; and a notice of completion may be recorded to effectively shorten the time a claim of lien must be recorded if the site improvement has been completed [see Howard A. Deason & Co. v. Costa Tierra Ltd. (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 742, 754-755, 83 Cal. Rptr. 105] .

(3) Works of improvement made pursuant to two or more original contracts each covering a particular portion of a work of improvement: 60 days after the owner has recorded a d a notice of completion following completion of any one of the original contracts [Civ. Code § 3117].

b. All mechanics' liens claimants other than original contractor.

(1) If no notice of completion or cessation has been recorded by the owner: 90 days after completion of the work of improvement [Civ. Code § 3116].

(2) If a notice of completion or notice of cessation has beenrecorded: 30 days after the recording of either notice [Civ. Code § 3116].

(3) Works of improvement made pursuant to two or more original contracts each covering a particular portion of a work of improvement: 30 days after the owner has recorded a notice of completion following completion of any one of the original contracts [Civ. Code § 3117].

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLISTS
A. Mechanics' Liens

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.162

§ 361.162 Action to Foreclose Lien

[1] Commencement of Time to File Action

An action may be commenced after the mechanics' lien claimant has recorded his or her claim of lien [Civ. Code § 3144].

[2] Expiration of Time to File Action

1. If no extension of lien by agreement or extension of credit.

Within 90 days after the recording of the mechanics' lien claimant's claim of lien [see § 361.161].

NOTE:

No mechanics' lien binds any property for a longer period of time than 90 days after the recording of the claim of lien unless within that time an action to foreclose the lien is commenced in a proper court [Civ. Code § 3144]. If the claimant fails to commence an action to foreclose the lien within the time limitation provided, the lien automatically is null and void and of no further force and effect [Civ. Code § 3144(b)]. However, if the period for recording a lien is still open, the inchoate right to the lien is not terminated and a subsequent claim of lien for the same work may be recorded and foreclosed [Solit v. Tokai Bank (1999) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1435, 1447-1448, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 243 ; Koudmani v. Ogle Enterprises, Inc. (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 1650, 1657-1658, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 330 ; Coast Central Credit Union v. Superior Court (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 703, 711, 257 Cal. Rptr. 468] .

Because of the shortness of the time period within which an action to foreclose must be commenced, counsel is advised to determine all indispensable parties to the action. A determination of indispensability after the 90-day period has expired prevents a claimant from foreclosing his or her lien, since the court is without jurisdiction [see Frank Pisano & Associates v. Taggart (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 1, 23, 105 Cal. Rptr. 414] .

All interested parties must be joined within the 90 days; however, if Doe defendants are named, the complaint may be amended after the 90 days to substitute a defendant that was unknown at the time the complaint was filed. The fact that the plaintiff had constructive knowledge of the interest of the defendant through the recording laws does not preclude the use of the Doe defendant procedure because the ignorance of a defendant's identity required for the use of the Doe procedure is actual ignorance [Grinnell Fire Protection Systems Co. v. American Sav. & Loan Assn. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 352, 357-362, 228 Cal. Rptr. 292] . Designation as a Doe defendant after the expiration of 90 days is proper if the plaintiff did not have actual knowledge of the interest of the party when the complaint was filed. Mere knowledge of the existence of the party without knowledge of facts giving rise to the cause of action is not sufficient to preclude use of a Doe defendant. A plaintiff is not required to conduct a title search to determine a person's interest in the property before filing a complaint [Westfour Corp. v. California First Bank (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 1554, 1558-1560, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 394] . However, if the plaintiff had knowledge of the interest of a defendant when the complaint was filed, the complaint may not be amended to substitute the defendant for a Doe defendant [John G. Goetten Consulting Civil Engineers, Inc. v. Crocker Nat. Bank (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1184, 1188-1190, 240 Cal. Rptr. 17] .

The limitation period of 90 days for bringing a mechanics' lien action is not applicable to amending the complaint to substitute for a Doe defendant; the amendment may be made more than 90 days after learning the identity of a previously designated Doe defendant [Sobeck & Associates, Inc. v. B & R Investments No. 24 (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 861, 867-870, 264 Cal. Rptr. 156] .

2. Extension of time by giving of credit.

If credit is given and if notice of the fact and terms of the credit are recorded in the office of the county recorder after the recording of the claim of lien and before the expiration of the 90-day period, then the lien continues in force until 90 days after the expiration of the credit; however, in no case does it continue in force longer than one year from the time of completion of the work of improvement [Civ. Code § 3145; see §§ 361.195, 361.196 for notices of extension of credit].

NOTE:

An extension of credit given after the lien has terminated because foreclosure proceedings were not commenced within the statutory period revives the right to foreclose [Richards v. Hillside Dev. Co. (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 776, 781, 2 Cal. Rptr. 693] . Also, multiple extensions of credit may be given under Civ. Code § 3144 (former Code Civ. Proc. § 1198.1) [Richards v. Hillside Dev. Co. (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 776, 781, 2 Cal. Rptr. 693] .

3. Extension of time by agreement.

An agreement between the owner and a lien claimant whereby the owner grants the claimant an extension of time within which an action to foreclose the lien may be commenced is valid despite the fact that there was no compliance with the requirements of Civ. Code § 3144 providing for an extension of credit [Hill v. Hesse (1932) 126 Cal. App. 171, 173, 15 P.2d 526 ; see § 361.197 for waiver of statute of limitations by owner].

NOTE:

However, if the main relief sought in the complaint by the lien claimant is personal, that is, based on contract, the fact that title to or possession of real property is incidentally involved in the cause of action to foreclose the lien does not change the character of the complaint as essentially one of a transitory action [Central Bank v. Superior Court (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 913, 917, 106 Cal. Rptr. 696] .

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(6)]. In limited civil cases, the caption muststate whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000. The caption must also identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

When a foreclosure action was brought in an improper court, the transfer of the action to a proper court after the 90-day period had expired was considered fatal to the cause of action, because the property became "unbound" under Civ. Code § 3144. Future purchasers and encumbrancers could then rely on the record in the county where the land was located, even though no such third persons were in fact complaining [States Shingle Co. v. Kaufman (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 830, 835 (action originally filed in improper county); see Halbert's Lumber, Inc. v. Burdett (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 14, 18-19 (action originally filed in proper county but improper judicial district)].

[3] Preparation of Complaint

1. Essential allegations.
The essential allegations of a complaint for foreclosure of a mechanics' lien are:

a. Capacity or residence of plaintiff (generally optional, unless plaintiff is suing in a representative capacity or it is necessary to establish plaintiff's right to maintain the action). See complaint in § 361.201[1], First Cause of Action, Paragraph 1.

b. Name and capacity (and residence, when venue is to be based thereon) of defendant or each defendant when there is more than one. See § 361.201[1], First Cause of Action, Paragraph 3.

c. Fictitious name allegations, if appropriate. See § 361.201[1], First Cause of Action, Paragraph 4.

d. Agency allegations, if appropriate. See Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used .

e. Facts establishing the right of the plaintiff to foreclosure of a mechanics' lien. See § 361.201[1], Second Cause of Action, Paragraphs 1-4.
(1) If plaintiff is a contractor, that he or she is licensed as such.

(2) A definite description of the property.

(3) That defendant has a lienable interest in the property [e.g., owner, lessee, etc.].

(4) That the owner or his or her agent entered into a contract for a work of improvement, or, in the case of a noncontracting owner, that the owner had knowledge of a work of improvement and did not post a notice of nonresponsibility [see § 361.204 for allegation of noncontracting owner's responsibility].

(5) That material or labor were furnished for and actually used in the improvement.

(6) Dates in which material or labor were furnished.

(7) Full performance of the contract (or, if not entirely performed, the excuse provided therefor in the contract).

(8) Date of completion or cessation of work of improvement (to show claim of lien was filed on time).

(9) Amount due plaintiff on contract.

(10) That a preliminary 20-day notice (private work) was given if required by Civ. Code § 3097(a) or (b) [see § 361.190 for preliminary 20-day notice].

(11) That a claim of lien was recorded in substantial compliance with Civ. Code §§ 3115-3117, including the fact that it was timely recorded [see § 361.192 for claim of lien]. It is best to attach a copy of the claim of lien and to incorporate it by reference in the complaint.

2. Drafting.
The complaints in §§ 361.201 and 361.202 are for use in actions for foreclosure of mechanics' liens brought either by an original contractor [see § 361.201] or by any lien claimant other than the original contractor [see § 361.202].

a. Form, typing, paper, and style requirements are set forth in the California Rules of Court [see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints].

b. Copies to be prepared.

The following copies are required:

(1) Original for filing.

(2) One or more copies for services on each defendant.

NOTE:
When service is made under Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(a) or (b) (leaving copy of summons at defendant's office or home), two copies are necessary to effect service on each defendant so served, except if defendant is a minor under 18 years of age and over 12, or an incompetent, in which case four copies are required. See also Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

(3) Copy for office file.

(4) Copy for client, if desired.

(5) Additional copies as desired.

3. Signing.

The complaint must be signed by at least one attorney of record in the attorney's individual name (or by the party if he or she is not represented). It must also state the signer's address and telephone number [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)].

4. Verification [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446, 2009, 2015.5].

NOTE:

There is no requirement that a complaint for foreclosure of a mechanics' lien be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a) (unless otherwise required by law, pleadings not required to be verified)], and many attorneys prefer not to verify these complaints. If, however, the complaint is verified, the defendant is required to file a verified answer in superior court actions [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446(a)]. In addition, a verified complaint precludes a general denial in superior court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)].

a. Prepare the verification by execution by:

(1) Plaintiff, if an individual.

(2) Counsel, if plaintiff is out of the county in which counsel has his or her office, or for some cause is unable to verify it, or when facts are within attorney's knowledge.

(3) If plaintiff is a corporation, by an officer thereof.

NOTE:

The code fails to state who is to verify a pleading filed by a partnership or other unincorporated association [see Code Civ. Proc. § 388]. It would seem nevertheless that such pleading may be verified in the case of a partnership by any partner and, in the case of an unincorporated association, by any officer thereof.

When the complaint is verified, verification may be by affidavit [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446, 2009]. However, it is usually in the form of a declaration under penalty of perjury when it is executed in California [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446, 2009]. For form of verification under penalty of perjury executed in California, see § 361.201; for alternative forms of verification, see Ch. 572, Verification .

b. Have the verification executed (signed) by the person making it.

[4] Preparation and Service of Summons

Counsel must use the form of summons adopted by the California Judicial Council [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.30-1.35; Gov. Code § 68511]. Copies may be obtained from the clerk of the court. For a further discussion of the procedures and forms for use in the preparation and service of the summons, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[5] Joinder of Indispensable Parties

A court may not order foreclosure of the property subject to the mechanics' lien without giving the owners, including owners and encumbrancers who have acquired their rights after filing of the claim of lien and before the filing of the foreclosure suit, an opportunity to contest the amount, validity, and priority of the claimed lien [see Packard Bell Electronics Corp. v. Theseus, Inc. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 355, 358-361, 53 Cal. Rptr. 300] . These parties are indispensable parties, and failure to join them within the statutory time period is a jurisdictional defect that cannot be cured [Frank Pisano & Associates v. Taggart (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 1, 22-23, 105 Cal. Rptr. 414] .

NOTE:

If the rights of a purchaser or encumbrancer are acquired after the filing of the suit and no notice of lis pendens is recorded, a judgment may be entered against the former owner alone without joinder of either party. Such a party may be bound by the judgment if the holder of the judgment can later prove that the party had actual or constructive knowledge of the foreclosure proceedings [Packard Bell Electronics Corp. v. Theseus, Inc. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 355, 364, 53 Cal. Rptr. 300] .

[6] Venue

The action must be filed in a proper court [see Civ. Code § 3144]. The proper court is the county in which the property is found [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(2),(b)]. If the action was commenced in the wrong county or judicial district and transferred to the proper county or judicial district after the 90-day period, the action is barred [Automatic Sprinkler Corp. v. Southern Cal. Edison (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 627, 634, 266 Cal. Rptr. 662 (county); Douglas v. Donner Pines, Inc. (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 268, 271-272, 140 Cal. Rptr. 839 (county); Halbert's Lumber, Inc. v. Burdett (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 14 , 249 Cal. Rptr. 285 (judicial district)].

[7] Claimant's Right to Join in Pending Action

Any number of persons claiming liens on the same property may join in the same action to foreclose their liens [Civ. Code § 3149].

[8] Consolidation of Action

When separate actions for foreclosure are commenced, the court may consolidate them [Civ. Code § 3149].

[9] Notice of Lis Pendens

After the filing of the complaint in the proper court, the plaintiff may record in the office of the county recorder of the county, or of the several counties in which the property is situated, a notice of the pendency of the proceedings (a lis pendens), as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 405.22 [Civ. Code § 3146]. For a form of lis pendens to be filed in a mechanics' lien foreclosure action, see Ch. 348, Lis Pendens .

NOTE:

Before recordation of the notice, the party recording the notice must cause a copy of the notice to be mailed, by registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, to all known addresses of the parties to whom the real property claim is adverse and to all owners of record of the real property affected by the real property claim as shown by the latest county assessment roll. If there is no known address for service on an adverse party or owner, then as to that party or owner a declaration under penalty of perjury to that effect may be recorded instead of the proof of service and service on that owner or party shall not be required. Immediately following recordation, a copy of the notice must also be filed with the court in which the action is pending. Service must also be made immediately and in the same manner on each adverse party later joined in the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.22].

Any notice of pendency of action is void and invalid as to any adverse party or owner of record unless mailing requirements are met for that party or owner and a proof of service in the form and content specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a has been recorded with the notice of pendency of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.23].

From the time of recording the notice of pendency of action, a purchaser, encumbrancer, or other transferee of the real property described in the notice is deemed to have constructive notice of the pendency of the noticed action as it relates to the real property and only of its pendency against parties not fictitiously named. The rights and interest of the claimant in the property, as ultimately determined in the pending noticed action, relate back to the date of the recording of the notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.24].

[10] Jury Trial

An action to foreclose a mechanics' lien is considered a suit in equity. A party to such action is not entitled to a jury trial [Distefano v. Hall (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 657, 662 n.6, 32 Cal. Rptr. 770] .

NOTE:

However, if a personal judgment is sought against the defendant as well as foreclosure of the defendant's property, a jury trial is proper [see Distefano v. Hall (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 657, 662 n.6, 32 Cal. Rptr. 770] .

[11] Defense of Action

In all cases in which a claim of lien is recorded for labor, services, equipment, or materials furnished to any contractor, the contractor must defend any action brought thereon at his or her own expense [Civ. Code § 3153].

NOTE:

During the pendency of the action, the owner has the right to withhold from the original contractor the amount of money for which the claim is recorded [Civ. Code § 3153].

[12] Dismissal

1. For want of prosecution.

The court may dismiss an action to foreclose if it is not brought to trial within two years after it was commenced [Civ. Code § 3147].

2. Effect of dismissal.

In all cases, the dismissal of an action to foreclose a mechanics' lien (unless it is expressly stated to be without prejudice) is equivalent to the cancellation and removal from the record of the lien [Civ. Code § 3148].

NOTE:

The general dismissal for lack of prosecution statutes (Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq.) are applicable to mechanics' lien proceedings except as they are inconsistent with the mechanics' lien statutes [Civ. Code § 3259]. Therefore, apparently all those general provisions are applicable except when they conflict with the specific two-year discretionary dismissal. Since the five-year mandatory dismissal provisions (Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 et seq.) do not conflict, they should be applicable in mechanics' liens proceedings.

[13] Judgment

1. Effect of judgment rendered finding no lien exists.

Equivalent to the cancellation and removal from the record of the mechanics' lien [Civ. Code § 3148].

2. Deficiency judgment.

Whenever, on the sale of the property under a judgment of foreclosure of a mechanics' lien, there is a deficiency of proceeds, judgment for the deficiency may be entered against any party personally liable therefor in like manner and with like effect as in an action for the foreclosure of a mortgage [Civ. Code § 3151].

3. Requirements of judgment.

The judgment need only determine the amount of the debt, determine the defendant who is personally liable therefor, direct a sale of the liened lands, and apply the proceeds to satisfy the debt [see Laubisch v. Roberdo (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 702, 711, 277 P.2d 9] .

NOTE:

A provision in the judgment for foreclosure is ineffective to transfer title. A writ of enforcement, or an order of sale as it is often denominated, is the only process which may be used for the enforcement of a judgment directing the sale of the liened property [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 712.010, 716.010; Laubisch v. Roberdo (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 702, 711, 712, 277 P.2d 9] .

A. Mechanics' Liens

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.163

§ 361.163 Petition to Release Property From Lien

[1] Time to File Petition

If no action is brought to enforce a mechanic's lien, the owner of the property or the owner of any interest in it may, at any time after expirationof the time period specified by Civ. Code § 3144 (period during which property is bound by a lien after recordation of a claim of lien), petition the court for a decree to release the property from the lien [Civ. Code § 3154(a)]. A petition to release a mechanics' lien is a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(6)].

[2] Venue

Although no statute specifically prescribes the county in which a proceeding to have property released from a mechanic's lien must be brought, it would appear that, inasmuch as an action to foreclose a lien would have to be tried in the county in which the real property is situated, a special proceeding to have the property released from the lien when no action is brought to foreclose it, would, likewise, be in the county in which the real property is situated [see Civ. Code § 3259; Code Civ. Proc. § 392].

[3] Preparation of Petition

1. Essential allegations.

In addition to general allegations [see § 361.162[3], Paragraphs 1a--d], a petition to have property released from a mechanic's lien must allege the matters specified in Civ. Code § 3154(b) [see § 361.208[3]].

NOTE:
The petition is deemed controverted by the lien claimant [Civ. Code § 3154(b)(5)].

2. Papers to Attach to Petition.

A certified copy of the claim of lien must be attached to the petition [Civ. Code § 3154(b)(5); see §§ 361.192 -361.194 for claims of lien].

3. Drafting.

For drafting requirements, see § 361.162[3], Paragraph 2.

4. Signing.

The petition must be subscribed by the petitioner or by the petitioner's attorney [see Civ. Code § 3259; Code Civ. Proc. § 446].

5. Verification.

The petition must be verified [Civ. Code § 3154(b)]. Verification may be by affidavit [see Civ. Code § 3259; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446, 2009]. However, it is normally in the form of a declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]. For a form of verification under penalty of perjury, see § 361.208. For alternative forms of verification and further discussion, see Ch. 572, Verification .

[4] Service of Petition and Order for Hearing

NOTE:

On the filing of the petition, and before any further proceedings are had, the clerk will set a hearing date, which must be not more than 30 days after the petition is filed. The court may continue the hearing beyond the 30-day period, but good cause must be shown for any continuance [Civ. Code § 3154(c)].

A copy of the petition and of the order fixing the date for hearing must be served on the lien claimant at least 10 days prior to the date set for the hearing [see Civ. Code § 3154(d)]. Service must be made either in the manner in which a summons is required to be served [see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers], or by certified or registered mail, postage prepaid, return receipt requested, addressed to the lien claimant at the claimant's address as shown on or in any of the following: (1) the preliminary 20-day notice served by the claimant pursuant to Civ. Code § 3097, (2) the records of the registrar of contractors, (3) the contract on which the lien is based, or (4) the claim of lien itself [Civ. Code § 3154(d)]. When service is made by mail, service is complete on the fifth day following the day of mailing [Civ. Code § 3154(e)].

[5] Judgment

If judgment is rendered in favor of the petitioner, the decree must indicate the matters set forth in Civ. Code § 3154(f) [see § 361.209[3]].

B. Stop Notices

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.170

§ 361.170 Service of Stop Notice and Bonded Stop Notice

[1] Preparation

1. Contents.

See § 361.220 for stop notice [Civ. Code § 3103].

2. Execution.

Must be signed by the claimant or his or her agent [Civ. Code § 3103].

3. Verification.

Must be verified by the claimant or his or her agent [Civ. Code § 3103].

4. Copies.

a. One for service on the owner [Civ. Code § 3158].

NOTE:
If only the construction lender is being served a stop notice, there is no additional requirement that the owner be notified as the preliminary 20-day notice (private work) is designed to serve this function [see Civ. Code § 3097; procedural checklist in Part A; § 361.190 for 20-day preliminary notice]. However, if desired, a courtesy copy may be mailed to the owner.

b. One for service on the construction lender [Civ. Code § 3159].

NOTE:

The construction lender may be given either a stop notice or a bonded stop notice [see Civ. Code § 3159; see also* discussion in § 361.43].

c. One courtesy copy to be mailed to the original contractor if desired.

NOTE:
The original contractor is not required to be notified of the giving of a stop notice as the preliminary 20-day notice is intended to serve this function [see Civ. Code § 3097].

d. Three or more additional copies if the notice is to be used as an exhibit to a complaint to enforce the stop notice under Civ. Code § 3172.

[2] Service

1. Prerequisite for effective service.

A stop notice claimant must have given a preliminary 20-day notice (private work) when required by Civ. Code § 3097(a), (b) [Civ. Code § 3160(a); see § 361.190 for preliminary 20-day notice]. For requirements relating to service of the preliminary notice, see § 361.160.

2. Place of service.

a. On owner.
(1) At his or her residence;

(2) At his or her place of business left with some person in charge; or

(3) Delivered to his or her architect.

b. On construction lender.

(1) Stop notice.

At the office or a branch of the office holding the construction funds served or given to the manager or other responsible officer or person who is administering or holding the construction funds.

(2) Bonded stop notice.

On the manager or other responsible officer or person at the office of the construction lender. If the bonded stop notice is being given to any institution or organization maintaining branch offices, it is not effective unless delivered or sent to the office administering or holding the construction funds [Civ. Code § 3083].

3. Manner of service.

A stop notice or bonded stop notice may be served personally, or by registered or certified mail with the same effect as personal service [Civ. Code §§ 3083, 3103].

4. By whom made.

See Civ. Code §§ 3158, 3159; see also discussion in §§ 361.42[1], 361.43[4].

5. Time limits.

a. Commencement of time within which notice must be served.

(1) Owner.

At any time after an agreement to perform labor for or furnish materials to a work of improvement or site improvement [see Civ. Code §§ 3110, 3112 (liens for works of improvement and site improvements)] has been executed [Miller v. Mountain View Sav. & L. Ass'n (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 644, 653, 48 Cal. Rptr. 278] .

(2) Construction lender.

At any time after a stop notice claimant has furnished materials, equipment, or services to or performed labor for a work of improvement or site improvement [Civ. Code § 3159; see Civ. Code §§ 3110, 3112 (liens for works of improvement and site improvements)].

b. Expiration of time.

Prior to the expiration of the period within which the stop notice claimant's claim of lien must be recorded under Civ. Code §§ 3115, 3116, or 3117 [Civ. Code § 3160(b); see § 361.161].

NOTE:
This code provision does not imply that a stop notice claimant must first record a claim of lien. The right to recover on a stop notice claim does not depend on the establishment of a lien [Idaco Lumber Co. v. Northwestern S. & L. Assn. (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 490, 498, 71 Cal. Rptr. 422] .

6. Affidavit of service by mail.

Not required or recommended.

NOTE:
Service by certified or registered mail is sufficient proof of service if the fact of service should become an issue.

[3] Effect

See Civ. Code §§ 3161, 3162; see also discussion in §§ 361.42[3], 361.43[5].

B. Stop Notices

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.171

§ 361.171 Enforcement of Payment of Claim in Stop Notice or Bonded Stop Notice

[1] Commencement of Time to File Action Against Owner or Construction Lender

At any time after 10 days from the date of the service of the notice on either the owner or construction lender [Civ. Code § 3172].

[2] Expiration of Time to File Action

Not later than 90 days following the expiration of the period within which claims of lien must be recorded under Civ. Code §§ 3115-3117 [Civ. Code § 3172; § 361.162[2]].

NOTE:

Civ. Code § 3172*, which provides for the limitations on bringing an action to enforce a stop notice claim, is a matter of abatement and must be pleaded in proper time or it is waived [*see Miller v. Mountain View Sav. & L. Ass'n (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 644, 654-655, 48 Cal. Rptr. 278 (premature filing of stop notice action under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1190.1(h)].

No money can be withheld by reason of the stop notice claim longer than the expiration of the 90-day period unless an action to enforce the claim is commenced. If no such action is commenced, the notice ceases to be effective and all funds withheld are to be paid or delivered to the contractor or other person to whom they are due [Civ. Code § 3172].

[3] Preparation of Complaint

1. Essential allegations.

The essential allegations of a complaint for enforcement of a stop notice are:

a. Capacity or residence of plaintiff (generally optional, unless plaintiff is suing in a representative capacity or it is necessary to establish plaintiff's right to maintain the action). See § 361.201[1], First Cause of Action, Paragraph 1.

b. Name and capacity (and residence, where venue is based thereon) of defendant or each defendant where there is more than one. See § 361.201[1], First Cause of Action, Paragraph 3.

c. Fictitious name allegations, if appropriate. See 361.201[1], First Cause of Action, Paragraph 4.

d. Agency allegations, if appropriate. See Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used .

e. Facts establishing the right of the plaintiff to enforce a stop notice. See § 361.201, Second Cause of Action, Paragraphs 1-4.

(1) If plaintiff is a contractor, that he or she is licensed as such.

(2) That materials were furnished for and actually used in a work of improvement.

(3) That the labor or materials were furnished at the instance of the owner or his or her agent.

(4) Dates on which materials or labor were furnished.

(5) Full performance of the contract (or, if not entirely performed, the excuse therefor accorded in the contract).

(6) Date of completion or cessation of work of improvement (to show stop notice claim was filed on time).

(7) Amount due plaintiff on the contract.

(8) That a preliminary 20-day notice (private work) was given if one was required by Civ. Code § 3097 [see § 361.190 for preliminary 20-day notice].

(9) That a stop notice or bonded stop notice was served on the owner or construction lender within the time for recording a claim of lien. (A copy of the stop notice or bonded stop notice should be attached to the complaint and incorporated by reference.) [See § 361.220 for stop notice.]

2. Drafting, signing, verification.

See § 361.162[3], Paragraphs 2-4.

[4] Preparation and Service of Summons

See § 361.162[4].

[5] Indispensable Parties

The owner is a necessary party to a proceeding to enforce a stop notice claim and to the complete settlement of the entire controversy because he or she has an interest in the loan funds [A-1 Door & Materials Co. v. Fresno Guarantee Sav. & Loan Ass'n (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 728, 736, 40 Cal. Rptr. 85, 394 P.2d 829] .

[6] Venue

The action is to be filed in the county where the contract was performed, in which it was entered into, or in the county in which a defendant resides [Code Civ. Proc. § 395].

NOTE:

If the action to enforce the stop notice is joined with an action to foreclose a claimant's lien, then venue is governed by Civ. Code § 3144 (action to foreclose lien) [see § 361.162[6]].

[7] Notice of Commencement

Notice of the commencement of the action must be given to the same persons and in the same manner as provided for service of a stop notice or bonded stop notice within five days [Civ. Code § 3172; see also § 361.224 for notice of commencement of action]. Personal service or service by registered or certified mail is recommended.

NOTE:

In Sunlight Elec. Supply Co. v. McKee (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 47, 50, 37 Cal. Rptr. 782 , a notice filed 14 days after the commencement of an action to enforce a stop notice claim for a public work did not require a dismissal of the action since no showing was made that the defendant suffered any detriment because of the claimant's failure to give timely notice.

[8] Prosecution of Action

1. Commencement of time within which action must be brought to trial:

Not before the expiration of the 90-day period following the expiration of the period within which claims of lien must be recorded under Civ. Code §§ 3115-3117 [Civ. Code § 3172; see § 361.162[2], Paragraph 1].

NOTE:

A judgment may not be entered on the stop notice claim before the expiration of this same 90-day period [Civ. Code § 3172].

2. Dismissal of action for want of prosecution:

A court may dismiss an action in its discretion if the action is commenced as provided in Civ. Code § 3172 but is not brought to trial within two years after commencement [Civ. Code § 3173].

[9] Claimants' Right to Join in Pending Action

Any number of persons who have given stop notices or bonded stop notices may join in the same action [Civ. Code § 3175].

[10] Consolidation of Actions

1. By court first acquiring jurisdiction.

When separate actions are commenced, the court may consolidate them [Civ. Code §

3175].

2. On motion of owner or construction lender.

The court must require all claimants to the monies withheld pursuant to stop notices or bonded stop notices to be impleaded in one action to the end that all parties may be adjudicated in the one action [Civ. Code § 3175; see § 361.225 for complaint in interpleader].

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.180

§ 361.180 Action on Payment Bond [Civ. Code §§ 3239-3242]

[1] Time Limitations

1. If payment bond is not recorded, action on obligation stated in bond must be brought within four years of completion of work [Code Civ. Proc. § 337].

2. Except as provided in Paragraph 3, below, payment bond provision limiting period for commencement of actions on bond is valid insofar as actions brought by claimants are concerned if, before work is commenced, bond is recorded with recorder of county in which subject property is situated [Civ. Code § 3239].

NOTE:
Regardless of whether a bond is recorded, any bond provision that purports to limit the four-year period prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 337 to less than six months from the completion of work is invalid [Civ. Code § 3239].

3. Notwithstanding any bond provision purporting to otherwise limit period for commencement of actions on bond as specified in Paragraph 2, above, if payment bond is recorded by surety before completion of work of improvement, any action against surety or sureties must be commenced no later than six months after completion of work [Civ. Code § 3240].

NOTE:
For purposes of Paragraphs 2 and 3, above, a payment bond must be recorded with the recorder in the county in which the subject property is located [Civ. Code §§ 3239, 3240].

[2] Notice Requirements (Contracts Entered Into On or After January 1, 1995)

NOTE:

Bond enforcement related to contracts entered into before January 1, 1995, require compliance with former Civ. Code § 3240 [repealed by Stats. 1994, ch. 974, § 5].

1. Claimant must give 20-day private work preliminary notice as provided in Civ. Code § 3097 [Civ. Code § 3242(a); see § 361.190 for preliminary notice].

NOTE:
The preliminary notice must be given to the owner or reputed owner, the original contractor, or reputed contractor, and the construction lender or reputed construction lender, if any [Civ. Code § 3097(a)]. It is not required to be given to the surety.

2. If 20-day preliminary notice required by Civ. Code § 3097 is not given [Civ. Code § 3242(b); see § 361.230 for post-completion bond notice]:

a. Claimant may enforce claim against bond by giving written notice to surety and bond principal as provided by Civ. Code § 3227 within 15 days after notice of completion is recorded.

b. If no notice of completion is recorded, time for giving written notice to surety and bond principal is extended to 75 days after work of improvement is completed.

NOTE:
This seemingly inconsistent notice alternative was enacted, effective January 1, 1995 [see Stats. 1994, ch. 974, § 7], to protect the rights of "unsophisticated" laborers and materialmen who may not be aware of the 20-day preliminary notice requirement described in Paragraph 1, above.

[3] Preparation of Complaint

1. Essential allegations.

The essential allegations of a complaint for recovery on a contractor's payment bond are:

a. Capacity or residence of plaintiff (generally optional, unless plaintiff is suing in a representative capacity or it is necessary to establish plaintiff's right to maintain the action).

b. Name and capacity (and residence, when venue is to be based thereon) of defendant or each defendant when there is more than one. See § 361.201[1], First Cause of Action, Paragraph 3.

c. Fictitious name allegations, if appropriate. See § 361.201[1], First Cause of Action, Paragraph 4.

d. Agency allegations, if appropriate. See Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used .

e. Facts establishing the right of the plaintiff to bring an action on a contractor's payment bond. See § 361.231[1], Second Cause of Action, Paragraphs 7-11.

(1) If plaintiff is a contractor, that he or she is licensed as such.

(2) That the plaintiff performed labor or furnished material for and actually used in or consumed in a work of improvement.

(3) That the labor performed or materials furnished were at the instance of the owner.

(4) Dates on which labor or materials were furnished.

(5) Full performance of the contract (or, if not entirely performed, the excuse therefor accorded in the contract).

(6) Amount due plaintiff on contract.

(7) That the owner or original contractor, as principal, and a surety executed a bond that by its terms was made to inure to the benefit of the plaintiff, as a claimant, and gave him or her a right to recover on the bond.

(8) That the plaintiff had previously served on the sureties and bond principals a notice in compliance with the requirements of Civ. Code § 3242.

2. Drafting, signing, verification.

See § 361.162[3], Paragraphs 2-4.

[4] Preparation and Service of Summons

See § 361.162[4].

[5] Venue

A defendant surety corporation may be sued in the county where the contract is made or is to be performed or where the obligation or liability arises or the breach occurs; it may also be sued in the county where the principal place of business of the corporation is situated [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395, 395.5].

NOTE:

If the action on the payment bond is joined with an action to foreclose a claimant's lien, then venue is governed by Civ. Code § 3144 [see § 361.162[6]].

§ 361.190 Preliminary 20-Day Notice (Private Work) [Civ. Code § 3097]

[1] FORM Preliminary 20-Day Notice (Private Work) [Civ. Code § 3097]

To: _____ [name of owner or reputed owner, original contractor or reputed original contractor, or construction lender or reputed construction lender].

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the undersigned has furnished [and will furnish] _____ [describe labor, service, equipment, or materials furnished or to be furnished to the job site; if person being notified is a construction lender, add:, the estimated total price of which is $_____,] in connection with improvement work taking place at _____ [describe job site sufficiently for identification].

_____ [Name and address of contractor] contracted for the purchase of the above-mentioned _____ [labor, services, equipment or materials] on or about _____ [date].

[add if appropriate (see Civ. Code § 3097(c)(6))] Payments are also due to _____ [identity and address of any laborer and any express trust fund to whom employer payments are due].

NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER

If bills are not paid in full for the labor, services, equipment, or materials furnished or to be furnished, a mechanic's lien leading to the loss, through court foreclosure proceedings, of all or part of your property being so improved may be placed against the property even though you have paid your contractor in full. You may wish to protect yourself against this consequence by (1) requiring your contractor to furnish a signed release by the person or firm giving you this notice before making payment to your contractor, or (2) any other method or device that is appropriate under the circumstances. Other than residential homeowners of dwellings containing fewer than five units, private project owners must notify the original contractor and any lien claimant who has provided the owner with a preliminary 20-day lien notice in accordance with Section 3097 of the Civil Code that a notice of completion or notice of cessation has been recorded within 10 days of its recordation. Notice shall be by registered mail, certified mail, or first-class mail, evidenced by a certificate of mailing. Failure to notify will extend the deadlines to record a lien.

Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

_____ [typed name and address]

[2] Use of Form

The notice in [1], above, must be given when required by Civ. Code § 3097(a) or (b) before a claimant is entitled to enforce a mechanics' lien and in order that service of a stop notice be effective for any labor, service, equipment, or material furnished to a work of improvement or a site improvement [Civ. Code §§ 3114 (mechanics' lien), 3160 (stop notice); see Civ. Code §§ 3110 (work of improvement), 3112 (site improvement)]. The above notice also may be given when required by Civ. Code § 3097(a) or (b) before a claimant asserts a claim against a payment bond [Civ. Code § 3242(a); see Civ. Code §§ 3227, 3242(b), setting forth form and timing of alternative post-completion bond notice that may be given instead of a 20-day preliminary notice before asserting a claim against a payment bond; for a form of post-completion bond notice, see § 361.230]. Although the foregoing only describes the fact that the improved property may be subject to a mechanics' lien, it is sufficient to put the person to be notified on notice that a stop notice or claim on a payment bond may also be given in connection with the furnished labor or materials [see Civ. Code § 3097(c)]. For a complete outline describing when this notice must be given, to whom the notice is served, and the place and manner of service, see § 361.160 et seq.

A certified architect, registered engineer, or licensed land surveyor who has furnished services for the design of the work of improvement and who gives a preliminary notice that complies with the requirements of this form not later than 20 days after the work of improvement has commenced will be deemed to have complied with the preliminary notice requirements with respect to architectural, engineering, or surveying services furnished, or to be furnished [Civ. Code § 3097(c)].

[3] Contents of Notice

[a] General Requirements

Civ. Code § 3097(c) requires that the preliminary notice (private work) contain the following information:

- A general description and estimate of the total price of the labor, service, equipment, or materials furnished or to be furnished by the claimant. A construction lender must also be furnished an estimate of the total price of that which the claimant has or will furnish;

- The name and address of the person furnishing the labor, service, equipment, or materials;

- The name of the person who contracted for purchase of the labor, service, equipment, or materials;

- A description of the jobsite sufficient for identification;

- A statement in boldface type as prescribed in Civ. Code § 3097(c)(5), which is incorporated in the form in [1], above, entitled NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER; and

- If the notice is given by a subcontractor who has failed to pay all compensation due to his or her laborers on the job, the identity and address of any laborer and any express trust fund to whom employer payments are due.

[b] Description of Labor or Materials

If a preliminary notice contains a general description of the materials, services, labor, or equipment furnished to the date of notice, it is not defective because, after this date, the person giving the notice furnishes materials, services, labor, or equipment not within the scope of the general description [Civ. Code § 3097(g)].

[c] Invoice as Substitute for Notice

If an invoice for materials that have been furnished by a claimant or certified payroll contains the information required in the preliminary notice [see Civ. Code § 3097(c)], a copy of the invoice, if served in the manner required by Civ. Code § 3097(f), is sufficient notice [Civ. Code § 3097(c)].

[4] Waiver by Owner

Any agreement made or entered into by an owner whereby the owner agrees to waive the rights or privileges conferred on him or her with respect to preliminary notices is void and of no effect [Civ. Code § 3097(e)].

[1] FORM Declaration of Proof of Service of Preliminary 20-Day Notice [Civ. Code § 3097.1]

I, _____ [name of person making the service], declare that, in compliance with Section 3097(f) of the Civil Code:

[Either, if notice was mailed]

I served the Preliminary 20-Day Notice on _____ [date], by depositing the notice in the United States mail in _____, California, enclosed in a sealed envelope, with postage fully prepaid for first-class _____ [registered or certified] mail, addressed to _____ [name of person to whom notice was given], _____ [if appropriate, state title or capacity in which person was served], _____ [state person's address; may be person's residence, business address, or address shown on filed building permit or recorded as provided in Civ. Code § 3097(j)].

[Or, if notice was personally delivered]

I served the Preliminary 20-Day Notice on _____ [date], by personally delivering the notice to _____ [name and capacity, if appropriate, of person to whom notice was given] at _____ [place or address where notice was personally delivered].

[Or, if notice was left at residence or business]

I served the Preliminary 20-Day Notice on _____ [date], by leaving the notice at _____ [address of residence or place of business] of _____ [name of person to be served] with _____ [name of person in charge], a person who was in charge and authorized to receive this notice on behalf of _____ [name of person to be served].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

[2] Use of Form

The form of declaration of proof of service in [1], above, must be completed after the claimant has served a preliminary 20-day notice (private work) on an owner, original contractor, or construction lender as a prerequisite to enforcement of the claim of lien [for a form of preliminary 20-day notice, see § 361.190]. An affidavit (or declaration [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) must be completed by the person making the service, and it must show the time, place, and manner of service and facts showing thatthe service was made in accordance with Civ. Code § 3097. The affidavit shouldalso show the name and address of the person on whom a copy of the preliminary 20-day notice was served, and, if appropriate, the title or capacity in which he or she was served [Civ. Code § 3097.1(c)]. For a detailed outline of the alternative means of serving the preliminary 20-day notice provided for in Civ. Code § 3097(f), see § 361.160[4].

If service was made by mail, the proof of service affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury must be accompanied either by the return receipt of the certified or registered mail, or by a photocopy of the record of delivery and receipt maintained by the post office, showing the date of delivery and to whom delivered, or, in the event of nondelivery, by the returned envelope itself [Civ. Code § 3097.1(a)].

[3] Declaration Under Penalty of Perjury as Substitute for Affidavit

Although Civ. Code § 3097.1 requires that proof that the preliminary 20-day notice was served be made by affidavit, any matter that is required under California law to be supported by affidavit may be supported by a declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]. For a discussion of the use of affidavits and declarations under penalty of perjury and for general forms of affidavits and declarations, see Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations .

§ 361.192 Claim of Lien [Civ. Code § 3084]

[1] FORM Claim of Lien [Civ. Code § 3084]

[EITHER]

_____ [Name], a mechanics' lien claimant doing business as _____ [specify], claims for _____ [labor or services rendered in connection with or equipment or materials furnished for and _____ (used or consumed in)] a work of improvement consisting of _____ [describe work of improvement, e.g., the construction of a residential unit], a lien on this improvement and on the real property on which the improvement is situated, as is required for the convenient use and occupation of the improvement. The real property is located in the City of _____, County of _____, and described specifically as follows: _____ [describe property sufficiently for identification; a legal description is recommended]. The owner or reputed owner of the improvement and property is _____ [name].

[OR]

_____ [Name], a mechanics' lien claimant doing business as _____ [specify], claims, for _____ [labor or services or equipment or materials] furnished to a site improvement consisting of _____ [describe site improvement work e.g., the grading of real property in preparation for the construction of residential units], a lien on the real property. The real property is located in the City of _____, County of _____, and described specifically as follows: _____ [describe property sufficiently for identification; a legal description is recommended]. The owner or reputed owner of this property is _____ [name].

The contract price, which is the reasonable value of the _____ [labor or services or equipment or materials or use of the equipment or materials], consisting of _____ [describe labor or services rendered or equipment or materials furnished], is $_____, of which sum $_____ has not been paid after deduction of all just credits and offsets.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, must be recorded in the office of the county recorder in order to enforce any original contractor's, subcontractor's, laborer's, materialman's, or other claimant's lien in a subsequent foreclosure action [see Civ. Code §§ 3115-3117]. For a complete outline of the time limits within which the claim of lien must be recorded and the effect of recording see § 361.161. The acknowledgment at the end of the form is no longer required by law [Civ. Code § 3084; Gov. Code § 27287].

[3] Contents of Claim of Lien

[a] In General

The claim of lien must contain the following information [Civ. Code § 3084]:

- A statement of the claimant's demand after deducting all just credits and offsets;
- The name of the owner or reputed owner, if known;
- A general statement of the kind of labor, services, equipment, or materials furnished by the claimant;
- The name of the person by whom the claimant was employed or to whom he or she furnished the labor, services, equipment, or materials; and
- A description of the site sufficient for identification.

[b] Errors in Claim

[i] Prohibition

No mistake or errors in the statement of the demand, in the statement of the amount of credits and offsets allowed, in the statement of the balance asserted to be due the claimant, or in the description of the property against which the lien is recorded invalidates the lien unless the court finds that the mistake or error in the statement of the demand, credits, and offsets or of the balance due was made with the intent to defraud or that an innocent third party, without notice, direct or constructive, has, since the claim was recorded, become the bona fide owner of the property and that the claim was so deficient that it did not put the party on further inquiry in any manner [Civ. Code § 3261; Howard A. Deason & Co. v. Costa Tierra Ltd. (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 742, 754, 83 Cal. Rptr. 105] .

[ii] Property Description Errors

The question of the sufficiency of the description of the property contained in a claim of lien is considered one of fact [Borello v. Eichler Homes, Inc. (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 487, 494, 34 Cal. Rptr. 648] . Generally, the description is considered sufficient if it enables a party familiar with the locality to identify the property with reasonable certainty to the exclusion of other properties, and extrinsic evidence may be admitted in order to determine that the property can be so identified when the description is otherwise vague or inaccurate [Borello v. Eichler Homes, Inc. (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 487, 492, 493, 34 Cal. Rptr. 648] . However, because Civ. Code § 3261, above, omits mistakes in the owner's namefrom listed mistakes which do not otherwise invalidate claims of liens, describing property that belongs to several owners is insufficient and invalidates the lien where the claimant does not insert the owner's name [H & L Supply, Inc. v. Ewing (1967) 253 Cal. App. 2d 283, 285, 61 Cal. Rptr. 289 ; but see Frank Pisano & Associates v. Taggart (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 1, 19, 105 Cal. Rptr. 414 (name of reputed owner in claim of lien as sufficient if such name included in good faith, and claimant does not lose claim of lien if it is subsequently determined some other individual is actual owner)].

[iii] Willful Errors

A person who willfully includes in his or her claim of lien labor, services, equipment, or materials not furnished for the property described in the claim forfeits the lien [Civ. Code § 3118].

[iv] Preliminary Notice or Complaint

If the owner has no actual notice of claim of lien, any imperfections in the recorded claim that otherwise invalidate the lien cannot be remedied by reference to the preliminary notice given by the claimant to the owner [H & L Supply, Inc. v. Ewing (1967) 253 Cal. App. 2d 283, 287, 61 Cal. Rptr. 289] . Similarly, an otherwise defective claim is not cured by an averment in a complaint for foreclosure of the lien correcting the errors [see Madera Flume & Trading Co. v. Kendall (1898) 120 Cal. 182, 183, 52 P. 304] .

[c] Variance in Complaint

While it was once held that a fatal variance, requiring dismissal of the complaint, was presented in cases where a claim of lien had stated an express contract to pay fixed amount but where the complaint set out a contract implied by law to pay the reasonable value of the work done [Wagner v. Hansen (1894) 103 Cal. 104, 107, 37 P. 195] , later decisions have held that if the owner has not been misled to his or her prejudice, a technical variance as expressed in the common law has no application to a claim of lien. This is true since all that is required is that the statement of the terms of the contract be substantially true [Cargill v. Achziger (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 220, 224, 331 P.2d 774] .

[4] Acknowledgment

The form contains a form of acknowledgment [Civ. Code § 1189] for use when counsel wishes to have the claim of lien acknowledged. However, acknowledgment is no longer a prerequisite to recording a claim of lien [Civ. Code §§ 3084, 3093; Gov. Code § 27287].

32-361 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 361.193

§ 361.193 Claim of Lien [Civ. Code § 3084]--Allegation of Segregated Amounts for Work or Materials Furnished to Multiple Works of Improvement

[1] FORM Claim of Lien [Civ. Code § 3084]--Allegation of Segregated Amounts for Work or Materials Furnished to Multiple Works of Improvement

[EITHER]

The contract price of the _____ [labor or services or equipment or materials or use of the equipment or materials], consisting of _____ [describe labor or services rendered or equipment or materials furnished], furnished to the _____ [describe one of two or more works of improvement against which a lien is being claimed] is $_____, of which $_____ has not been paid after deduction of all just credits and offsets. [Repeat for each work of improvement as described in the claim of lien where the contract has designated the amount due on each improvement.]

[OR]

The contract price for the _____ [labor or material or service or equipment or use of the equipment or material] is $_____, which sum represents the lump sum to be paid claimant for all the works of improvement as described and of which sum $_____ has not been paid after deduction of all just credits and offsets. Claimant has estimated an equitable distribution of this sum due him/her after deduction of all just credits and offsets over all the works of improvement based on the proportionate amount of _____ [labor or equipment or materials or services] furnished to each improvement as follows: _____ [describe each work of improvement and the sum due on each work].

[2] Use of Form

The form of allegation in [1], above, should be included in a claimant's claim of lien if the claim has been filed against two or more buildings or other works of improvement owned or reputedly owned by the same person or, regardless of whether the works of improvement are owned by the same person, if the claimant has been employed by the same person to do the work or furnish the materials. For a form of claim of lien, see § 361.192.

[3] When Claimant Must Segregate

[a] In General

In every case in which one claim is filed against two or more buildings or other works of improvement owned or reputed to be owned by the same person or on which the claimant has been employed by the same person to do the work or furnish the materials, whether the works of improvement are owned by one or more owners, the claimant must at the same time designate the amount due to him or her on each of the works [Civ. Code § 3130].

If the claimant has been employed to furnish labor or materials on the works as a whole, and the contract does not segregate the amount due for the work done and materials furnished on the works separately, then the claimant may estimate an equitable distribution of the sum due him or her over all the works based on the proportionate amount of work done or materials furnished on the respective works of improvement [Civ. Code § 3130].

[b] Separate Residential Units

Materials delivered to or on any portion of a work of improvement, consisting of the construction of two or more separate residential units, or furnished to be used in such a work of improvement and ultimately used or consumed in one of the separate residential units, are for all purposes of the provisions relating to mechanics' liens deemed to have been furnished to be used or consumed in the separate residential unit in which the same have actually been used or consumed. However, if the claimant is unable to segregate the amounts used or consumed in the separate unit, he or she is entitled to all the benefits of Civ. Code § 3130, above [Civ. Code § 3131].

[c] Failure to Segregate When Required

If the person filing a claim of lien fails to designate the amounts due to him or her on each work of improvement when such designation required, the lien of the claim is postponed to other liens [Civ. Code § 3130]. This is the only penalty a claimant must incur for the failure to designate the amount due to him or her on each building or improvement [Flintkote Co. v. Lisa Constr. Co. (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 606, 609, 74 Cal. Rptr. 136] .

In the context of a blanket lien [see Civ. Code § 3130] against an entire condominium project, when a blanket lien has been filed, the contractor must notify each owner of the fraction of the total sum secured by the lien that is attributable to his or her condominium. The information is statutorily required so that any owner may remove his or her unit from the lien by making payment to the lienholder of the owner's fractional share [Civ. Code § 1369]. In such a situation, the lienholder must notify each unit owner of his or her unit's apportioned share of a blanket lien, and the lienholder's failure or refusal to do so may render the entire lien unenforceable [see ECC Construction v. Ganson (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 572, 578, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 292] .

[4] Single Structure on Multiple Parcels

If there is a single structure on more than one parcel of land owned by one or more owners, the lien claimant is not required to segregate the proportion of materials or labor entering into the structure on any one of the parcels. However, in a foreclosure action on the lien, the court may,where it deems it equitable, distribute the lien equitably among the several parcels involved [Civ. Code § 3130].

[5] Binding Effect of Designated Amounts

The amount of the lien claimed against two or more works of improvement when they are owned or reputedly owned by the same person or on which a lien claimant was employed by the same person to furnish the work or materials does not extend beyond the amount designated as against other creditors having liens by judgment, mortgage, or otherwise either on the works of improvements or on the land on which the same are situated [Civ. Code § 3130].

§ 361.194 Claim of Design Professionals' Lien [Civ. Code §§ 3081.2, 3081.3]

[1] FORM Claim of Design Professionals' Lien [Civ. Code §§ 3081.2, 3081.3]

_____ [Name], a design professionals' lien claimant doing business as _____ [specify], claims for services rendered as a design professional _____ [describe services, e.g., drawing architectural plans] in connection with a work of improvement planned to be constructed for real property located in the City of _____, County of _____, described specifically as follows: _____ [legal description].

The contract price, which is the reasonable value of the services, is $_____, of which sum $_____ has not been paid after deduction of all just credits and offsets.

_____ [Name of claimant] furnished the services based on a written contract to _____ [name], who is the current owner of record of the above-described property.

On _____ [date at least 10 days prior to date of recording lien], _____ [name of claimant] mailed by _____ [first-class registered or certified] mail, postage prepaid, addressed to _____ [name of property owner], a written demand for payment. A copy of this written demand is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.

A _____ [building permit or other governmental approval] was issued by _____ [name of public entity] to construct the improvement in the plans on the above-described property on _____ [date]. A copy of the _____ [building permit or other governmental approval] is attached hereto as Exhibit B and made a part hereof.

Actual construction of the planned work of improvement has not yet commenced.

Therefore _____ [name of claimant] claims a lien on the above-described property for $_____ under Sections 3081-3081.10 of the Civil Code relating to design professionals' liens.

_____ [signature of claimant]

[Acknowledgment. See § 361.192[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, must be recorded in the office of the county recorder for the county where the property is located [Civ. Code § 3081-3081.10]. A design professionals' lien is for use when the design professional provides services but actual construciton of the work of improvement has not commenced. For a complete discussion of the right to a lien, see § 361.24.

[3] Acknowledgement

The lien must be acknowledged to be recorded [see Gov. Code § 27287].

[4] Time to Record

The lien must be recorded no later than 90 days after the design professional knows or has reason to know that the landowner is not commencing the work of improvement [Civ. Code § 3081.7].

[5] Contents of Claim of Lien

The notice of lien must specify that a lien is created in favor of the named design professional, specify the amount thereof, identify the current owner of record of the real property, provide a legal description of the real property to be improved, and specify the building permit or other governmental approval for the work of improvement required as a condition of the lien [Civ. Code § 3081.3(c)].

§ 361.195 Extension of Credit and Notice Thereof [Civ. Code § 3144]--Between Claimant and Owner

[1] FORM Extension of Credit and Notice Thereof [Civ. Code § 3144]--Between Claimant and Owner

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that _____ [name], as a mechanics' lien claimant, claiming under a claim of lien recorded on _____ [date], in Book _____, page _____, of the Official Records in the office of the county recorder of _____ County, California, a lien against a work of improvement and real property of the following description, _____ [give legal description], has agreed and does hereby agree with _____ [name(s)], owner(s) of the above-described real property and improvement, that a credit of _____ [number] days from and after the date of this instrument shall be given and is hereby given.

Pursuant to Section 3144 of the Civil Code, the lien claimed in the claim of lien as described above shall continue in force for 90 days after expiration of the credit. The owners will not object to any action to foreclose the claimed lien which may be brought within this 90-day period on the ground that the action is barred by the limitation period specified in Section 3144 of the Civil Code for foreclosure of mechanics' liens.
Dated: _____.

_____ [lien claimant's signature]

_____ [owner(s) signature(s)]

[Acknowledgment. See § 361.192[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is to be recorded in the office of the county recorder whenever the owner of the property and improvement subject to the claim of lien and the lien claimant have agreed to an extension of credit whereby the time within which a lien must be foreclosed may be extended [see Civ. Code § 3144].

[3] Extension of Credit

If credit is given and notice of the fact and terms of the credit recorded in the office of the county recorder subsequent to the recording of a claim of lien and prior to the expiration of the 90-day period which commences with the recording of the claim and limits the time within which a lien must be foreclosed, the lien continues in force until 90 days after the expiration of the credit. However, it never continues in force longer than one year from the time of the completion of the work of improvement [Civ. Code § 3144].

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that _____ [name], as a mechanics' lien claimant, claiming under a claim of lien recorded on _____ [date], in Book _____, page _____, Official Records in the office of the county recorder of _____ County, California, a lien against a work of improvement and the real property on which the improvement is situated of the following description, _____ [give legal description], has been granted and is granted _____ [number] days extension of time from and after the date of this instrument within which to foreclose his lien by _____ [name], the owner of the above-described premises. It is understood that this extension of time does not admit the validity of the claim of lien but is simply a privilege being granted to the above-described claimant of the capacity to foreclose his lien within the time which has been extended as provided herein.
Dated: _____.

_____ [lien claimant's signature]

_____ [owner's signature]

[Acknowledgment. See § 361.192[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is to be recorded in the office of the county recorder following an agreement between an owner of property subject to a mechanics' lien and a lien claimant whereby the owner agrees to waive the time limitation within which a lien must be foreclosed as provided in Civ. Code § 3144. While no code provision requires the recording of the waiver agreement or a notice thereof, Civ. Code § 3145 provides that any extension of the time to enforce a claimant's lien is ineffective against a purchaser or encumbrancer for value and in good faith whose rights are acquired subsequent to the 90-day period following the recording of the claim of lien and prior to the extension agreement unless the agreement is recorded in the office of the county recorder.

For a form to use whenever the owner and the lien claimant have agreed to an extension of credit, see § 361.195.

§ 361.198 Assignment of Debt and Lien

[1] FORM Assignment of Debt and Lien

The undersigned, _____ [name of claimant], _____ [in consideration of the sum of $_____ or for a valuable consideration], receipt of which is hereby acknowledged, hereby sells and assigns to _____ [name of assignee] all rights and interests he/she may have arising out of that certain contract entered into between the undersigned and _____ [name of contractor or owner] by which the undersigned agreed to and did furnish _____ [describe labor, services, equipment, or materials furnished] to _____ [describe work of improvement] situated on real property located in _____ County, California and described as follows: _____ [give legal description]. It is understood by the undersigned that this assignment of all rights and interests arising out of the above-described obligation includes the mechanics' lien securing the payment of this obligation, the claim for which was recorded on _____ [date], in Book _____, page _____, Official Records in the office of the County Recorder of _____ County, California.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature of claimant]

[Acknowledgment. See § 361.192[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is to be used by a mechanics' lien claimant who has recorded a claim of lien where the claimant has assigned the obligation owed him or her as demanded in the claim of lien.

[3] Assignment of Debt Secured by Mechanics' Lien

A mechanics' lien, like a mortgage or judgment lien, is a mere incident of the debt secured and cannot be transferred apart from the debt [Union Supply Co. v. Morris (1934) 220 Cal. 331, 338, 30 P.2d 394] . The lien, as an incident of the debt, passes with the debt by operation of law. Thus, an express assignment of the security is not required [Union Supply Co. v. Morris (1934) 220 Cal. 331, 339, 30 P.2d 394] .

However, while it is uniformly held that the assignment of the debt will carry with it the lien given for its security, in order that this result can accrue in favor of an assignee so that the assignee may enforce the lien, the lien must have been perfected prior to the time the assignment was made [California P.C. Co. v. Wentworth Co. (1911) 16 Cal. App. 692, 711, 118 P. 103] . That is, it must have been perfected by the recording of the claim of lien. Otherwise, the lien is an inchoate right having no tangible existence as property [see Duncan v. Hawn (1894) 104 Cal. 10, 14, 37 P. 626] .

§ 361.199 Notice of Nonresponsibility by Owner [Civ. Code § 3094]

[1] FORM Notice of Nonresponsibility by Owner [Civ. Code § 3094]

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the undersigned, _____ [name], is the owner of _____ [describe name and nature of title or interest in real property, e.g., a fee simple] in the real property located in _____ County, California, and described specifically as follows: _____ [describe property sufficiently for identification; a legal description is recommended].

That _____ [name] is _____ [the purchaser under contract or if known the lessee] of the above-described real property.

That on _____ [date], the undersigned first obtained knowledge that _____ [describe work of improvement] was being _____ [performed or constructed] on the above-described real property.

That the undersigned owner will not be responsible for _____ [describe work or improvement] or for any mechanics' lien that may be claimed for any labor or services rendered or to be rendered to, or any materials or equipment furnished or to be furnished for use or consumption in the _____ [describe work of improvement].
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

[Verification. See § 361.192[1].]

[Acknowledgment. See § 361.192[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, must be posted in some conspicuous place on the land on which a work of improvement is being constructed or performed within 10 days after a person, owning or claiming an interest in the site, who has not caused the improvement to be constructed or performed, has obtained knowledge of the improvement [see Civ. Code § 3094]. Within the same 10-day period, this person must also record the notice in the office of the county recorder of the county on which the site or some part of it is located [see Civ. Code § 3094].

If the notice is posted and recorded in proper time, it is a bar to the enforcement of any lien on such person's property. Otherwise, it is not effective for any purpose [Hayward Lbr. & Inv. Co. v. Orondo Mines (1939) 34 Cal. App. 2d 697, 699-700, 94 P.2d 380] .

[3] Contents of Notice

The notice of nonresponsibility must contain all of the following:

- A description of the site sufficient for identification.
- The name and nature of the title or interest of the person giving the notice.
- The name of the purchaser under contract, if any, or lessee, if known.
- A statement that the person giving the notice will not be responsible for any claims arising from the work of improvement [Civ. Code § 3094].

[4] Requirements for Effective Posting

[a] Knowledge

A notice of nonresponsibility in order to be effective, can be recorded and posted only after knowledge of an actual, not an intended, construction has been obtained. A notice which is posted and recorded before a work of improvement commences is premature and ineffective to relieve the owner or person from liability [Arthur B. Siri, Inc. v. Bridges (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 599, 601, 11 Cal. Rptr. 322 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1183.1, now Civ. Code § 3094], since a work of improvement has commenced only when actual work has begun on the ground. That is, some labor or work must be seen on the ground, the effects of which are apparent and easily seen by everybody [English v. Olympic Auditorium, Inc. (1933) 217 Cal. 631, 637, 20 P.2d 946] .

Knowledge need not be actual before the time period within which a notice must be recorded and posted commences to run. Constructive knowledge, that is, the notice of circumstances which would put a prudent man on inquiry, is enough to start the time period running [Harmon Lbr. Co. v. Brown (1913) 165 Cal. 193, 197, 131 P. 368] .

[b] When Notice May Be Given

A notice of nonresponsibility may only be given by an owner having or claiming an interest in property subject to a mechanics' lien before the completion of the work of improvement [Schrader Iron Works, Inc. v. Lee (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 621, 632-634, 103 Cal. Rptr. 106] . If a person becomes an owner of the property after the work of improvement is completed, and before a claim of lien is recorded, his interest will be subject to the mechanics' lien since the provisions relating to the notice of nonresponsibility are not for such an owner's benefit [see Schrader Iron Works, Inc. v. Lee (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 621, 633-634, 103 Cal. Rptr. 106] .

[5] Responsibility for Improvement

[a] Owner's Responsibility

Whether or not an owner posts and records a timely notice of nonresponsibility, if the person whose interest is otherwise subject to mechanics' liens is making the improvements as an agent of the owner, then the owner'sinterest will also be subject to the mechanics' liens claimed in connection with the improvements [see Ott Hardware Co. v. Yost (1945) 69 Cal. App. 2d 593, 597-598, 159 P.2d 663] . Thus, a lease obligating the lessee to make improvements and providing that the owner will pay for the cost of the improvements makes the owner a statutory agent of the lessee for the purposes of the mechanics' liens law [Ott Hardware Co. v. Yost (1945) 69 Cal. App. 2d 593, 599, 159 P.2d 663] .

However, a statutory agency relationship does not exist for the seller and buyer under a land purchase contract, even where the buyer is obligated to make improvements. Because this is true in such a situation the improvements vest in the buyer and the seller is benefited only insofar as his security interest is enhanced [American Transit Mix Co. v. Weber (1951) 106 Cal. App. 2d 74, 78-79, 234 P.2d 732 ; see also Rheem Mfg. Co. v. United States (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 621, 625, 21 Cal. Rptr. 802, 371 P.2d 578] .

[b] Holder of Deed of Trust

A person is not an owner and does not have or claim any estate in property for the purpose of Civ. Code § 3129 (former Code Civ. Proc. § 1183.1) where his only interest in the property is a security interest conveyed by a deed of trust [Rheem Mfg. Co. v. United States (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 621, 625, 21 Cal. Rptr. 802, 371 P.2d 578] .

[If notice is being given for an original contract for a particular portion of improvement, add That the following labor was actually performed and materials actually furnished pursuant to the terms of the above-described original contract: _____ (state generally work done and materials furnished).

That on or about _____ [date], the _____ [work of improvement or particular portion of the work of improvement] was actually completed by _____ [name of original contractor].

That the nature of the _____ [interest or estate] of the undersigned _____ [is or are] _____ [describe] in the above-described real property.

That the name and address of the undersigned [if this notice is being signed by fewer than all of the coowners or cotenants or their agents, add and of all other _____ (coowners or cotenants or both) of the above-described property _____ (is or are)]: _____ [list names and addresses], [if the owner or his agent signing is a successor in interest of the contracting owner, add and the name(s) and address(es) of such owner's transferors _____ (is or are): _____].
Dated: _____.

[signature]

[Acknowledgment, if desired. See § 361.192[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The notice of completion in [1], above, should be recorded in the office of the county recorder in the county in which the improvement site is located within 10 days of the completion of an original contract for a work of improvement or a particular portion of a work of improvement [see Civ. Code § 3093], thereby shortening the time within which a lien claimant must record his or her lien [see Civ. Code §§ 3115-3117; § 361.161[3], Paragraph 2]. However, some owners will lose this advantage if they do not follow up the recording of a notice of completion with a notice to the original contractor and other claimants informing them that the notice of completion has been recorded [see Civ. Code § 3259.5; see also [6], below].

[3] Contents of Notice

The notice of completion must be written, signed, and verified by the owner or his agent and contain all of the following:

- The date of completion (other than a cessation of labor). The recital of an erroneous date of completion does not, however, affect the validity of the notice if the true date of completion is within 10 days preceding the date of the recording of the notice.

- The name and address of the owner.

- The nature of the interest or estate of the owner.

- A description of the site sufficient for identification, containing the street address of the site, if any. If a sufficient legal description of the site is given, the validity of the notice is not affected by the fact that the street address recited is erroneous or that the street address is omitted.

- The name of the original contractor, if any, or, if the notice is given only of completion of a contract for a particular portion of the work of improvement, as provided in Civ. Code § 3117 (recording of claim of lien where portion of work is completed for two or more original contracts), then the name of the original contractor under the contract, and a general statement of the kind of work done or materials furnished pursuant to the contract [Civ. Code § 3093].

If there is more than one owner, any notice of completion signed by fewer than all of the coowners must recite the names and addresses of the coowners. If a notice of completion is signed by a successor in interest, he or she must also recite the names and addresses of his or her transferor or transferors [Civ. Code § 3093].

[4] Owner Defined

An owner, for the purposes of a recorded notice of completion or cessation, is the owner who causes a building, improvement, or structure to be constructed, altered, or repaired (or his or her successor in interest at the date of a notice of completion of or cessation from labor is filed for record) whether the interest or estate of the owner is in fee, is as vendee under a contract of purchase, is as lessee, or is as any other interest or estate less than the fee. When the interest or estate is held by two or more persons as joint tenants or tenants in common, any one or more of the cotenants may be deemed an owner. Any notice of completion or cessation signed by less than all the cotenants must recite the names and addresses of all of the cotenants [Civ. Code §§ 3092(g), 3093].

[5] Completion of Work

[a] Defined

Completion means, in the case of any work of improvement, actual completion of the work of improvement [Civ. Code § 3086].

[b] Use or Occupation

The use or occupation of a work of improvement by the owner, or his or her agent, accompanied by cessation of labor, is deemed equivalent to a completion [Civ. Code § 3086(a)]. Occupancy or use constitutes a completion only if it does not coexist with the labor throughout or is somehow inconsistent with further work by the laborer. If the occupancy does coexist with the performance of labor or is consistent with further work by the laborer, there is no constructive completion [M. Arthur Gensler, Jr., & Associates, Inc. v. Larry Barrett, Inc. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 695, 706, 103 Cal. Rptr. 247, 499 P.2d 503] .

[c] Acceptance

The acceptance by the owner or his or her agent of the work of improvement is equivalent to a completion [Civ. Code § 3086(b)].

[d] By Public Entity

If the work of improvement is subject to acceptance by a public entity, completion of the work is deemed to be the date of acceptance [Civ. Code § 3086]. A work of improvement is subject to acceptance if it is required to be accepted by a public authority [A.J. Raisch Paving Co. v. Mountain View Sav. & Loan Assn. (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 832, 837, 105 Cal. Rptr. 96] . However, this is not to be equated with an inspection or the approval or issuance of certificates of occupancy under building regulations [Howard A. Deason & Co. v. Costa Tierra Ltd. (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 742, 751, 83 Cal. Rptr. 105] .

[e] Cessation of Labor

Under Civ. Code § 3086(c), after a work of improvement has commenced, a cessation of labor thereon for a continuous period of 60 days or for 30days or more if the owner files a notice of cessation, is deemed equivalent to a completion. However, it should be noted that a notice of cessation has the same effect as a notice of completion for purposes of shortening the time period within which a claim of lien must be filed in all cases except that of cessation of work under an original contract for a particular portion of a work of improvement [see Civ. Code §§ 3115-3117]. Thus the important date for determining when a claim of lien must be recorded is the date that the notice of cessation was recorded.

[6] Owner's Duty to Notify Claimants That Notice of Completion or Cessation Has Been Recorded

The owner of a private work of improvement has a duty to notify the original contractor, and any other claimant who has provided a preliminary 20-day notice [see Civ. Code § 3097], that a notice of completion or notice of cessation has been recorded. The notification must be sent by registered or certified mail, or first class mail evidenced by a certificate of mailing, within 10 days after the notice of completion or cessation was recorded [Civ. Code § 3259.5(a)]. If the owner fails to give the required notice within the specified 10-day period following the recording of the notice of completion or cessation, the contractor's or other claimant's period of time in which to file a mechanics' lien or stop notice is extended to 90 days beyond the date the notice of completion or cessation was recorded [Civ. Code § 3259.5(a)].

For these purposes, "owner" does not include a person who occupies the property as a personal residence and the dwelling contains not more than four residential units, nor does it include a person who has a security interest in the property or obtains an interest by virtue of a court order, a default on a mortgage, or a transfer by a fiduciary in the course of administering a decedent's estate, guardianship, conservatorship, or trust [Civ. Code § 3259.5(b); see Civ. Code § 1102.2(b)-(d)].

Plaintiff alleges:

FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION

(Breach of Contract)

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation, organized and existing under the laws of California.

2. At all times herein mentioned, plaintiff was a _____ [specify type of contractor, e.g., general building contractor], and was duly licensed to do business as such in the State of California.

3. Defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of California [or allege other capacity and residence of defendant].

4. [Defendants DOES I-_____, inclusive, are sued herein under fictitious names. Their true names and capacities are unknown to plaintiff. When the true names and capacities are ascertained, plaintiff will amend this complaint by inserting their true names and capacities herein. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants claims an interest or estate in the property herein mentioned)].

5. At all times herein mentioned, defendant was the owner or reputed owner of [all] the certain real property situated in _____ County, California, described as follows: _____ [set forth legal description of parcel or parcels of property].

6. On or about _____ [date], in [_____ (city),] _____ County, California, plaintiff entered into a written contract with defendant for the _____ [construction or performance] of a _____ [work of improvement or particular portion of a work of improvement] located on the above-mentioned property and consisting of _____ [describe work of improvement, e.g., the erection of a residential unit or particular portion of a work of improvement]. Under this contract, plaintiff was to furnish all necessary labor, services, materials, and equipment to be used or consumed in the construction [performance] of the [particular portion of] work of improvement, for all of which defendant agreed to pay $_____. A copy of the contract is attached hereto as Exhibit _____ and made a part hereof.

7. Pursuant to this contract, plaintiff, between the date of the contract and its conclusion on _____ [date], performed the work and labor for, and furnished all necessary services, materials, and equipment to be used or consumed in and which were actually used or consumed in the work of improvement, and performed all other conditions, covenants, and promises under the contract, on his part to be performed [, except _____ (condition not performed), the performance of which was excused on the ground that _____ (specify)].

8. Plaintiff has paid the claims of all claimants who have furnished labor, services, equipment, and materials as required under the above-alleged original contract [or allege the deduction of all unpaid claims from the original contract price or any other facts indicating that the defendant will not be subject to double liability for any labor, material, services, or equipment furnished pursuant to the original contract]. Copies of receipts showing the receipt of payment by such claimants for all labor, services, equipment, or materials they furnished are attached hereto as Exhibits _____ and made a part hereof.

9. Plaintiff has performed all other conditions, covenants, and promises under the contract, on his part to be performed [, except _____ (specify condition not performed), the performance of which was excused on the ground that _____ (specify)].

10. The whole of the real property mentioned above on which the work of improvement is situated is required for the convenient use and occupation of the work of improvement.

11. Although demand therefor has been made since the work was performed and all necessary services, materials, and equipment were furnished, no part of the contract price has been paid [except the sum of $_____], and the sum of $_____ is still due and owing thereon to plaintiff.

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION

(Foreclosure of Mechanics' Lien)

1. Plaintiff refers to and incorporates, as though fully set forth herein, Paragraphs 1-11, inclusive, of the First Cause of Action.

2. After plaintiff finished his contract, on or about _____ [date], plaintiff duly filed and recorded in Book _____, page _____ of the Official Records of _____ County, California, his claim of lien duly verified by the oath of _____, a full and correct copy of which is attached hereto, marked Exhibit _____, and made a part hereof by reference. This claim of lien was recorded within _____ days of _____ [date], this date being the date of _____ [the completion of the work of improvement or the recording of a notice of completion by the defendant].

3. In this claim of lien, plaintiff claimed a mechanics' lien on the work of improvement and real property for the amount of the unpaid contract price alleged above which price is the reasonable value of all labor, materials, services, and equipment plaintiff has furnished. Plaintiff has further incurred indebtedness in the sum of $_____, the necessary costs of recording and verifying the claim of lien.

4. Defendant(s) _____ [name(s)], [and each of them,] _____ [has or have] or claim(s) to have some right, title, or interest in the above-described real property, the exact nature of which claims is unknown to plaintiff, but which claims are subject and subordinate to the claim of lien of plaintiff.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For the sum of $_____ principal on the First Cause of Action, together with interest at the rate of _____ percent per day from _____ [date], to date of entry of judgment.

2. Adjudging on the Second Cause of Action that the rights, claims, ownership, liens, titles, and demands of defendants, and each of them, in the above-described real property are subsequent to and subject to the lien of plaintiff.

3. Adjudging on the Second Cause of Action that the mechanics' lien claimed in the claim of lien, referred to above as Exhibit _____, be foreclosed, and that the usual judgment be made for the sale of the property according to law by a commissioner to be appointed by the court; that the proceeds of the sale be applied in payment of the amounts including interest at the rate of _____ percent per day from _____ [date], to date of entry of judgment due to plaintiff; that each of the defendants and all persons claiming under any of them, subsequent to the mechanics' lien of the plaintiff, whether as lien claimants, judgment creditors, purchasers, encumbrancers, or otherwise, be barred and foreclosed from all rights, claims, interests, or equity of redemption in the property and every part of the property when time for redemption has passed.

4. Adjudging on the Second Cause of Action that if there is a deficiency of proceeds to satisfy the amounts due to the plaintiff, judgment for the deficiency be entered against the defendant following proceedings prescribed by law.

5. Permitting plaintiff to become a purchaser at the foreclosure sale.

6. For costs of suit herein incurred.

7. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint by an original contractor for damages for breach of a written contract for performance or construction of a work of improvement or a portion of a work of improvement and for foreclosure of a mechanics' lien based on labor and materials furnished under the contract.

For a form of claim of lien, see § 361.192.

[3] Essential Allegations

The complaint alleges in its First Cause of Action:

- That plaintiff was a contractor duly licensed under California law (Paragraph 2) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 7031].

- A definite description of the property (Paragraph 5).

- That defendant was the owner of property on which plaintiff constructed or performed a work of improvement or a portion of a work of improvement under the contract (Paragraphs 5, 6).

- The existence of a contract (Paragraph 6).

- The performance of all conditions on plaintiff's part including the furnishing of all labor and materials, or if not entirely performed, the excuse provided therefor in the contract (Paragraphs 7-9).

- That plaintiff furnished all labor and materials which were to be used or consumed in the work of improvement pursuant to the contract and which were actually used or consumed in such work (Paragraphs 7-9) [see Ensele v. Jolley (1922) 188 Cal. 297, 300, 204 P. 1085] .

- That all of defendant's property is required for the convenient use and occupation of the work of improvement (Paragraph 10) [see Civ. Code § 3128].

- The nonpayment of the contract price (breach) by the defendant and the amount due (Paragraph 11).

In addition, the complaint alleges in the Second Cause of Action, in pertinent part,

- That plaintiff duly recorded his claim of lien within the statutory time periods (Paragraph 2) [see Civ. Code §§ 3115-3117; Clements v. T.R. Bechtel Co. (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 227, 238, 273 P.2d 5] .

- That plaintiff's claim of lien is superior and has priority over any of the defendants' rights or claims (Paragraph 4) [see Clements v. T.R. Bechtel Co. (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 227, 238, 273 P.2d 5] .

For an outline of the time within which a claim of lien must be recorded and procedural requirements for actions brought to enforce the lien, see §§ 361.161, 361.162.

[4] Defendants

All persons with an interest in the subject property at the time suit is brought must be made parties to the suit. If they are not, they are not bound by the judgment or proceedings [Monterey S.P. Partnership v. W. L. Bangham, Inc. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 454, 459, 261 Cal. Rptr. 587, 777 P.2d 623] . Service on the trustee of a deed of trust does not constitute service on the beneficiaries of the deed of trust, and the beneficiaries must be named and served or the judgment will not be binding on them [Civ. Code § 2937.7; Monterey S.P. Partnership v. W. L. Bangham, Inc. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 454, 459-463, 261 Cal. Rptr. 587, 777 P.2d 623] .

[5] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case in the superior court [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial in an unimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[6] Jurisdiction and Venue

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. § 85, 86(a)(6)]. In limited civil cases, the caption must state whether the demand exceedsor does not exceed $10,000. The caption must also identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)]. When an action to enforce the lien affects property that is also affected by a similar pending action that is not a limited civil case, or when the total amount of the liens sought to be foreclosed against the same property exceeds $25,000, the action is not a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(6)].

The county in which all or part of the real property is located is the proper county for the trial of an action for the foreclosure of a lien on the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(2); see § 361.162[6]].

§ 361.203 Allegation--Segregated Amounts for Labor or Materials Furnished to Separate Works of Improvement [Civ. Code § 3130]

[1] FORM Allegation--Segregated Amounts for Labor or Materials Furnished to Separate Works of Improvement [Civ. Code § 3130]

[EITHER]

Pursuant to the hereinbefore alleged contract, plaintiff furnished _____ [describe labor, materials, services, and/or equipment] to _____ [describe one of two or more works of improvement against which plaintiff claimed a lien] at the contract price of $_____, of which sum $_____ has not been paid after deduction of all just credits and offsets. [Repeat for each work of improvement as described in complaint.]

[OR]

Plaintiff estimates an equitable distribution of the above-alleged contract price based on the proportionate amount of _____ [describe labor, materials, equipment, and/or services] furnished to each work of improvement, that is due him/her after deduction of all just credits and offsets, as follows: _____ [describe each work of improvement and the sum due on each work].

[2] Use of Form

The form of allegation in [1], above, should be included in a complaint for foreclosure of a mechanics' lien based on labor or materials furnished to separate works of improvement if the works of improvement are owned by the same person or if the plaintiff has been employed by the same person to do his or her work or furnish his or her materials, whether or not the works of improvement are owned by one or more persons [see Civ. Code § 3130].

For an allegation of segregated amounts for work or materials in a claim of lien, see § 361.193. For forms of complaint to foreclose mechanics' liens, see §§ 361.201, 361.202.

§ 361.204 Allegations--Noncontracting Owner-Lessor's Responsibility for Work of Improvement Constructed by Lessee [Civ. Code § 3129]

[1] FORM Allegations--Noncontracting Owner-Lessor's Responsibility for Work of Improvement Constructed by Lessee [Civ. Code § 3129]

1. On or about _____ [date], defendant _____ [owner] leased to defendant _____ [name of person who has caused a work of improvement to be constructed or performed] the above-described real property under a lease in writing [, a copy of which is attached hereto, marked Exhibit _____ and made a part hereof].

2. Subsequent to the commencement of the work of improvement pursuant to the terms of the above-alleged contract between defendant _____ [name] and _____ [plaintiff or defendant _____ (name of original contractor)], defendant _____ [owner] obtained actual knowledge that the work of improvement had commenced and failed [within 10 days after first obtaining such knowledge] to post and record a notice of nonresponsibility in accordance with Civil Code Section 3094. This knowledge was based on the following facts: _____ [allege, e.g., that, under the terms of the lease between defendant _____ (name), as lessor, and defendant _____ (name), as lessee, the lessee had the right to erect improvements on the property and the lessor had a beneficial interest in any such improvement since the lessor became the owner of the improvement if it were not removed within a specified time after termination of the lease and, in addition, the improvement at once became security for the performance of all covenants of the lessee. Moreover, the lessor approved plans and specifications for the work of improvement submitted to it by lessee and personally monitored the progress of the work improvement by visiting the premises during the time work was in progress.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, consists of allegations that must be included in a complaint for foreclosure of both the lessor's and lessee's interest in real property on which a work of improvement is being constructed or performed if the lessor who has otherwise not caused the improvement to be constructed or performed has obtained actual knowledge of the improvement and did not post a notice of nonresponsibility within 10 days of first obtaining such knowledge in accordance with Civ. Code §§ 3094, 3129 [see Civ. Code §§ 3094, 3129; Kim v. JF Enterprises (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 849, 856-859, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 141 ; see also Truestone, Inc. v. Simi West Industrial Park II (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 715, 722, 209 Cal. Rptr. 757] . Even though the contract for work of improvement is with a lessee, and not the owner, no preliminary notice is required because of the owner's knowledge. When a noncontracting owner has actual knowledge of theimprovement being made to his or her property and fails to exempt his or her interest from liability for the work provided by Civ. Code § 3094, the landlord is estopped to deny that the work was done at his or her instance and request [Kim v. JF Enterprises (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 849, 856, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 141 ; see Scott, Blake & Wynne v. Summit Ridge Estates, Inc. (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 347, 353, 59 Cal. Rptr. 587] . When estoppel is an element of the action, it must be especially pleaded in the complaint with sufficient accuracy to disclose the facts relied on and the plaintiff must prove all of the essential elements constituting it [Frank Pisano & Associates v. Taggart (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 1, 18, 105 Cal. Rptr. 414] .

This form may be used in a situation in which either the owner has recorded a notice of nonresponsibility but has recorded or posted it more than 10 days after obtaining knowledge of the improvement or the owner has failed to post any notice after obtaining such knowledge.

For a form of notice of nonresponsibility, see § 361.199. For complaints to foreclose mechanics' liens, see §§ 361.201, 361.202.

[1] FORM Allegation--Notice of Completion Ineffective to Shorten Time Period Required for Recording of Claim of Lien

On or about _____ [date], defendant _____ [name of owner] recorded a notice of completion in Book _____, page _____, Official Records in the office of the county recorder of _____ County, California, reciting in part that the work of improvement was actually completed on _____ [date]. [A copy of this notice is attached hereto, marked as Exhibit _____ and made a part hereof.] This notice was invalid and ineffective and failed to impose the _____ [30 or 60]-day time limitation on the time period within which the plaintiff must record his claim of lien as prescribed in Section _____ [3116 or 3115] of the Civil Code in that _____ [state facts showing invalidity, e.g., that the work of improvement was actually completed on _____ (date), more than 10 days preceding the date on which the notice of completion was recorded].

[2] Use of Form

The form of allegation in [1], above, should be included in a complaint to foreclose a mechanics' lien if the owner recorded a notice of completion which was ineffective to shorten the time period within which the plaintiff must record his claim of lien [see Civ. Code § 3093].

§ 361.206 Statement of Decision

[1] FORM Statement of Decision

[Caption. As on papers previously filed in action.]

The action for foreclosure of a mechanics' lien on real property came on regularly for trial before the court this date. Plaintiff appeared by counsel _____; defendant appeared by counsel _____ [; specify other appearances, if any].

Evidence, both oral and documentary, was introduced on behalf of [all] parties and the cause was argued and submitted for decision. The court, having considered the evidence and heard the arguments of counsel, and being fully advised, issues the following Statement of Decision:

FACTUAL DETERMINATIONS

1. On _____ [date], defendant [name], as owner of real property in _____ County, California and described as follows: _____ [legal description], entered into a contract with _____ [plaintiff or state name of original contractor], as original contractor, for the _____ [construction or performance] of a [portion of a] work of improvement consisting of _____ [describe].

[2. State other contracts to show defendant's authorization or agency and the terms of plaintiff's contract with defendant original contractor or subcontractor.]

3. Under this contract, plaintiff was to furnish and perform between _____ [date], and _____ [date], and did so furnish and perform the following: _____ [describe labor, materials, services, and/or equipment]. The contract price of the foregoing was $_____, which sum was the reasonable value of all that was _____ [performed or furnished or both], and of which sum, $_____ remains due and owing to plaintiff after deduction of just credits and offsets, except as may be mentioned hereafter.

[4. If materials or equipment were furnished, add The foregoing _____ (materials or equipment) which were to be furnished and _____ (used or consumed) in the work of improvement were so actually furnished and _____ (used or consumed) in the work of improvement.]

[5. If plaintiff is original contractor or subcontractor, add Plaintiff has paid, or caused to be discharged or released, all mechanics' liens and other claims arising out of the construction (performance) of defendant's work of improvement by plaintiff (, except the following: _____ (describe outstanding claims), which together amount to the sum of $_____).]

[6. Defendant is allowed a credit in the amount of $_____ against the sums found to be owing pursuant to the interlocutory judgment, that is, $_____, by reason of a payment by defendant in the sum of $_____ to a previous lien claimant.]

7. All of the above-described real property owned by the defendant _____ [name] is necessary for the convenient use and occupation of the work of improvement.

[8. Within 20 days after plaintiff first _____ (performed or furnished) the above-mentioned _____ (labor or materials or services or equipment or combination), plaintiff caused to be given to the defendant _____ (name), owner, (defendant) _____ (name), original contractor, and _____ (name), the construction lender for the work of improvement, a preliminary 20-day notice (private work) as described in and in accordance with Section 3097 of the Civil Code.]

9. On _____ [date], plaintiff recorded his claim of lien which date was within _____ days of _____ [date], the date on which _____ [the work of improvement was completed or defendant _____ (name), owner, recorded a notice of completion (cessation)]. This claim of lien was recorded in Book _____, page _____, of the Official Records of _____County, California, was duly verified, and contained all of the required information as prescribed by Section 3084 of the Civil Code.

10. Plaintiff incurred an indebtedness in the sum of $_____, the necessary costs of recording and verifying his claim of lien.

11. The rights, claims, ownership, liens, titles, and demands of defendants, and each of them, in the above-described real property are subsequent to and subject to the lien of plaintiff.

LEGAL CONCLUSIONS

From the foregoing factual determinations, the court concludes that:

1. Plaintiff is entitled to a final judgment against defendant _____ [owner or contractor] in the sum of $_____ [less the sum of $_____, heretofore paid by defendant for the benefit of plaintiff, or a net sum of $_____,] together with interest thereon at the rate of _____ percent per annum from _____ [date], until paid, together with all accruing costs, including $_____, the cost of recording and verifying plaintiff's claim of lien.

2. The plaintiff has a lien on the above-described work of improvement and on all the above-described real property in the amount of the sum found due and owing to plaintiff.

3. The real property and work of improvement of the defendant _____ [name] shall be sold forthwith by the sheriff of _____ County, according to law, and the proceeds of the sale shall be applied as follows: to the payment of the cost of the sale and, thereafter, to the payment of plaintiff's final judgment herein; and, if any deficiency shall remain after applying all of the proceeds of the sale applicable to the satisfaction of plaintiff's final judgment, plaintiff shall have judgment and execution against defendant _____ [name of owner or contractor] for the amount of such deficiency.

4. Any party to this action is permitted to be a purchaser at the sale.

5. A deed to the purchasers at the sale shall be executed after the time allowed for redemption has expired, and the purchasers shall be let into possession and in aid thereof may have the assistance of the sheriff of _____ County.

6. Each of the defendants and all persons claiming under any of them, subsequent to the lien of the plaintiff, whether as lien claimants, judgment creditors, purchasers, encumbrancers, or otherwise, are barred and foreclosed from all rights, claims, interests, or equity of redemption in the property and every part of the property when time for redemption has passed.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a statement of decision explaining the bases for the court's decision in an action for foreclosure of a mechanic's lien. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 632, on the request of any party appearing at the trial, made within 10 days after the court announces a tentative decision, or if the trial has lasted less than one calendar day, or less than eight hours over more than one day, made prior to submission of the matter for decision, the court shall issue a statement of decision explaining the factual and legal basis for its decision as to each of the principal controverted issues at trial. The request for a statement of decision must specify those controverted issues as to which the party is requesting a statement of decision. After a party has requested such a statement, any party may make proposals as to the content of the statement of decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]. For further discussion and forms relating to statements of decision, see Ch. 529, Statement of Decision .

[1] FORM Judgment of Foreclosure of Mechanics' Lien and Order of Sale

[Caption. As on papers previously filed in action.]

This action for foreclosure of a mechanics' lien came on regularly for trial before the court this date. Plaintiff appeared by counsel _____ [name]; defendant _____ [name] appeared by counsel _____ [; specify other appearances, if any].

Evidence, both oral and ducumentary, was introduced on behalf of [all] parties and the cause was argued and submitted for decision. _____ _____ [The court having heretofore made and caused to be filed its written statement of decision or A statement of decision not having been requested],

IT IS ORDERED AND ADJUDGED as follows:

1. That the amount due plaintiff _____ from defendant _____ [name of owner or contractor] is the sum of $_____, with interest thereon at the rate of _____ percent per annum from _____ [date], amounting to the sum of $_____; for the additional sum of $_____ for certifying and recording plaintiff's claim of lien, also cost herein in the amount of $_____.

2. That the plaintiff has a lien on the hereinafter described real property owned by defendant _____ [name] for all of the total sum of $_____.

3. That the property mentioned in the complaint and hereinafter described, or so much thereof as may be necessary to sell, be sold at public auction in the manner prescribed by law by the sheriff of _____ County, California, where the property is situated, and that any party to this action may be a purchaser at such sale; the sheriff, after the time allowed by law has expired, shall execute a deed to the purchaser or purchasers at the sale; and, if any of the parties to this action who may be in possession of said premises, or any part thereof, or any person who, since the commencement of this action has come into possession under them, or either of them, refuses to deliver possession thereof to such purchaser or purchasers on production of the deed for such premises, or any part thereof, a writ of assistance may, without further notice, be issued to compel such delivery to the purchaser or purchasers.

4. The proceeds of this sale shall be applied first, to the payment of sheriff's fees, disbursements and commissions on the sale; second, to the payment to plaintiff of the total sum of $_____, for principal, interest and costs of suit, with interest thereon from the date of this decree at the rate of _____ percent per annum; and if there be any surplus remaining after making these payments, he shall pay the same to defendant _____ [name], and if the proceeds of the sale be insufficient to pay the amountso found due to plaintiff, with interest, costs and expenses of sale, that plaintiff recover from defendant $_____, the amount of such deficiency, with interest thereon at the rate of _____ percent per annum from the date of such sale.

5. Defendant and all persons claiming under him/her, and all persons having liens subsequent to plaintiff's lien described in the complaint, by judgment, decree or otherwise, on the lands and property described in the complaint and hereinafter described, or their personal representatives, and all persons claiming under them, and all persons having any lien or claim by or under such subsequent judgment or decree, and their heirs and personal representatives, and all persons claiming under them, and all persons claiming to have acquired any estate, interest, or lien or mortgage on or in these premises subsequent to the lien of plaintiff, as found in the findings of fact herein, be forever barred and foreclosed of, and from, all equity of redemption and claim in, of and to the property, hereinafter described, and every part and parcel thereof, from and after the delivery of said sheriff's deed.

6. The lands and premises directed to be sold by this decree are situated in _____ County, California, and are more particularly described as follows: _____ [set out description of property, e.g.,

All those lands within the boundary lines of the subdivision as shown on the map entitled "Amended Map of _____, _____, _____ County, California," which map was filed in the office of the Recorder of _____ County, California, on _____ [date], in Book _____ of Maps at pages _____ and _____.

[2] Use of Form

The judgment in [1], above, is for use in an action brought by any mechanics' lien claimant when one or more defendants appear in the action.

[3] Order of Sale

After entry of judgment, an order of sale is prepared and issued by the clerk of the court [see California Land Security and Development (Cal. CEB 1960), Ch. 30, Mechanics' Liens, § 30.78]. Without a writ of enforcement, or order of sale as it is often denominated, the sheriff or an appointed commissioner has no authority to execute the judgment [Laubisch v. Roberdo (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 702, 713, 277 P.2d 9 ; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 712.010, 716.010].

I, _____ [name], am the [attorney for the] petitioner in this proceeding. I have read the foregoing petition and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

The petition in [1], above, is for use to secure release of property from a mechanic's lien when no action to foreclose the lien has been filed. The proceeding may be filed at any time after expiration of the time period specified by Civ. Code §

3144 with regard to the period during which property is bound by a lien after the claim of lien is recorded [Civ. Code § 3154(a)].

For discussion, see § 361.32.

[3] Allegations

The petition in [1], above, alleges all of the matters required by Civ. Code § 3154(b). It describes the property subject to the claim of lien (Paragraph 1) [Civ. Code § 3154(b)(2)]. It alleges:

- The date the claim of lien was recorded (Paragraph 3) [Civ. Code § 3154(b)(1)].

- That no action has been filed to foreclose the lien, no extension of credit has been recorded, and the time period during which suit can be brought to foreclose the lien has expired (Paragraph 4) [Civ. Code § 3154(b)(3)].

- That the lien claimant is unable or unwilling to execute a release of the lien or cannot with reasonable diligence be found (Paragraph 5) [Civ. Code § 3154(b)(4)].

- That petitioner has not filed for relief under any law governing bankrupts and that there exists no other restraint to prevent the lien claimant from filing to foreclose the lien (Paragraph 6) [see Civ. Code § 3154(b)(5)].

In addition, it alleges the incurring of attorney's fees [see Civ. Code § 3154(g)].

[4] Verification

The petition must, as indicated in the form in [1], above, be verified [Civ. Code § 3154(b)].

[5] Petition as Deemed Controverted

The petition is deemed controverted by the lien claimant [Civ. Code § 3154(b)(5)]. Hence, the lien claimant is not required to file any response to the petition.

[6] Attorney's Fees

The prevailing party is entitled to attorney's fees not to exceed $2,000 [Civ. Code § 3154(g)].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use when the judgment in a proceeding brought by the owner of property or of an interest in it to secure releaseof the property from a mechanic's lien when no action has been brought to foreclose the lien is rendered in favor of the petitioner [see Civ. Code § 3154].

[3] Contents of Judgment

A judgment in favor of the petitioner in a proceeding to secure release of property from a mechanic's lien when no action to foreclose the lien has been filed must indicate (1) the date the lien was recorded; (2) the county and city, if any, in which the lien was recorded; (3) the book and page of the place in the official records where the lien is recorded; and (4) the legal description of the property affected [Civ. Code § 3154(f)]. In addition, the prevailing party is entitled to attorney's fees not to exceed $2,000 [Civ. Code § 3154(g)].

[4] Proof of Service Required

No decree shall issue in favor of the petitioner unless the petitioner proves that service of the petition and the order fixing the date for hearing was made in compliance with the provisions of Civ. Code § 3154(d). The issue of compliance is deemed controverted by the lien claimant [Civ. Code § 3154(e)].

For a form of petition to release property from mechanics' lien, see § 361.208.

[1] FORM Stop Notice [Civ. Code §§ 3103, 3158, 3159]

To: _____ [name of construction lender or owner]

YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED that _____ [on _____ (date) or between the dates of _____, and _____], I _____ [name], the undersigned, _____ [performed or agreed to perform or furnished or agreed to furnish] _____ [labor or materials or services or equipment] _____ [to or for] _____ [name of contractor to or for whom the labor, materials, services, or equipment was done or furnished] _____ [to be used in or used in] the work of improvement consisting of the _____ [performance or construction] of _____ [describe work of improvement], which work of improvement is situated on real property, owned or reputedly owned by _____ [you or state name of owner], located in _____ County, California and described specifically as follows: _____ [give address or legal description].

The following _____ [labor or materials or services or equipment] _____ [has or have] been _____ [performed or funished]: _____ [state in general terms].

The _____ [contract price or reasonable value] of the _____ [labor or services or equipment or materials or use of the equipment], being the whole of the amount in value agreed to be _____ [performed or furnished], is $_____, of which sum $_____ plus interest at the rate of _____ percent per year from _____ [date], has not been paid after deduction of all just credits and offsets. The amount in value of that already _____ [performed or furnished] is $_____.

My name is _____ [name] and my address is _____ [address].

Therefore, the undersigned hereby requests [if this notice is being given to the owner or is bonded, add: and demands] that you withhold sufficient funds to satisfy this claim of the undersigned as _____ [permitted or required] under Section _____ [3161 or 3162] of the Civil Code relating to stop notices for private works of improvement.

[If the person giving the notice to a construction lender wants (1) notice of the construction lender's election not to withhold because a payment bond was recorded and (2) a copy of the payment bond [Civ. Code §§ 3159(a)(3), 3162(a)(3)], add:]

I request notice of an election not to withhold and a copy of the payment bond. A stamped, self-addressed envelope is attached.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature of claimant]

[Verification. See § 361.192.]

[Acknowledgment. See 361.192.]

[2] Use of Form

The form of stop notice in [1], above, should be given by a stop notice claimant either to an owner or a construction lender holding funds with which the cost of a work of improvement is wholly or partly to be defrayed [see Civ. Code §§ 3161, 3162]. An owner who is served with a stop notice, whether or not it is bonded, has a mandatory duty to withhold funds unless a payment bond has been previously recorded [Civ. Code § 3161; Civ. Code §§ 3159(a)(1), (2), 3161, 3162(a)(1), (2)]. A construction lender's withholding responsibilities, that is, whether a lender has a duty to withhold funds or merely discretion to do so, depend on various factors, including whether or not the stop notice is bonded [see Civ. Code § 3162(a), discussed in § 361.43[5]]. The optional paragraph near the end of the form is for use in a stop notice against a construction lender to request notice of an election not to withhold. A stamped, preaddressed envelope must accompany such a request [Civ. Code § 3159(a)(3); see also § 361.222 (form of notice of election not to withhold)].

The claim made in the form in [1], above, if given to the owner, may be for both materials and labor that have been furnished and that will be furnished to the work of improvement [Civ. Code § 3161]. However, if given to a construction lender, the claim may be only for materials, equipment, or services furnished or labor performed [Civ. Code § 3159(a)(3)].

For a complete outline relating to the service of the stop notice, see § 361.170.

[3] Contents of Notice

A stop notice must be in writing, signed and verified by the claimant or his or her agent, and state in general terms all of the following [Civ. Code § 3103]:

- The kind of labor, services, equipment, or materials furnished or agreed to be furnished by the claimant;

- The name of the person to or for whom the same was done or furnished;

- The amount in value, as near as may be determined, of that already done or furnished and of the whole agreed to be done or furnished; and

- The name and address of the claimant.

The undersigned hereby demands that you substitute for this undertaking an undertaking executed by a corporate surety licensed to write such bonds in the State of California as provided in Section 3163 of the Civil Code.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature of construction lender]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, must be given to a stop notice claimant within 20 days after the service of the claimant's bonded stop notice by a construction lender who objects to the sufficiency of the sureties on the bond accompanying the notice. On receipt of the form, the claimant may within 10 days substitute for the initial bond a bond in like amount executed by a corporate surety licensed to write such bonds in California. If the claimant fails to do so, the construction lender may disregard the bonded stop notice and release all funds withheld in response to the notice [see Civ. Code § 3163].

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION
(Enforcement of Stop Notice)

1. Plaintiff refers to and incorporates, as though fully set forth herein, Paragraphs 1-7, inclusive, of the First Cause of Action.

2. Defendant _____ [name of construction lender] was at all times mentioned herein the holder of certain funds with which the cost of the work of improvement, as described above, was wholly or in part to be defrayed.

3. [Allegation of service of preliminary 20-day notice. See § 361.202[1], Second Cause of Action, Paragraph 2.]

4. On or about _____ [date], prior to the expiration of _____ days from _____ [date], which date is the date of _____ [the completion of the work of improvement or the recording of a notice of completion (notice of cessation) by the above named owner], plaintiff served on defendant _____ [name of construction lender] a verified stop notice accompanied by a bond with good and sufficient sureties in the amount of $_____ [one and one-quarter times the amount of plaintiff's claim] in accordance with the provisions of Section 3083 of the Civil Code. Service of the stop notice and bond was by _____ [specify method]. A copy of the stop notice and the bond is attached hereto, marked Exhibit _____ and made a part hereof.

5. In this stop notice plaintiff demanded that defendant withhold sufficient funds to answer the plaintiff's claim contained in the stop notice, which claim was for the sum of $_____, the sum that remains unpaid under plaintiff's contract with defendant _____ [contractor], as alleged above.

6. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that on the date that defendant _____ [lender] received the stop notice accompanied by the bond, as alleged above, he/she had in his possession sufficient funds from which he/she was obligated to make payment or advancements to defray the cost of the work of improvement.

7. Defendants, and each of them, claim an interest in or right to the construction fund from which defendant _____ [construction lender] was obligated to make payments or advancements to defray the cost of the work of improvement. Such claims are subordinate and subject to plaintiff's right to so much of the fund as will satisfy his/her demand as set forth in the above-mentioned stop notice.

WHEREFORE plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For the sum of $_____ principal on the First Cause of Action, together with interest at the rate of _____ percent per day from _____ [date], to date of judgment.

2. That the funds withheld by defendant _____ [lender] in accordance with the demand made in the stop notice be paid to the plaintiff on account of this judgment.

3. That in the event that defendant _____ [lender] disbursed funds in his/her possession at the time he/she received the stop notice which were to be used to defray the costs of the work of improvement so that insufficient funds remain to be paid plaintiff, personal judgment for any deficiency be entered against this defendant.

4. For costs of suit herein incurred.

5. For such other further relief as the court may deem proper.

[Verification. See § 361.201.]

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use in an action brought by a person otherwise entitled to assert a mechanics' lien, other than the original contractor, for labor or materials furnished to a work of improvement against that person's contractor and the construction lender for the work of improvement who is holding funds with which the costs of the improvement are wholly or in part to be defrayed.

This form is not appropriate for use by someone other than the original contractor if a payment bond was recorded before the stop notice was served. Under those circumstances, the lender has no duty to withhold funds [see Civ. Code §§ 3159(a)(2), 3162(a)(2)].

For a form of complaint in interpleader, see § 361.225.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges, in addition to the allegations for breach of plaintiff's contract by his or her contractor [see § 361.201[3]]:

- That there was a construction lender for the work of improvement (Second Cause of Action, Paragraph 2) [see Civ. Code § 3087].

- That plaintiff gave to the owner, original contractor, and construction lender a preliminary 20-day notice (private work), which is a prerequisite for effective service of plaintiff's stop notice (Second Cause of Action, Paragraph 3) [see Civ. Code §§ 3097, 3160].

- That plaintiff, within the time period his or her claim of lien could have been recorded, served the construction lender a bonded stop notice (Second Cause of Action, Paragraphs 4, 5) [see Civ. Code §§ 3083, 3159, 3160].

- That on the date of service, the construction lender has within his or her possession sufficient construction funds to answer the bonded stop notice claim and that the plaintiff has priority over other claimants to the construction fund to the extent necessary to satisfy his or her stop notice demand (Second Cause of Action, Paragraph 7) [see Idaco Lumber Co. v. Northwestern Sav. & Assn. (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 490, 496, 71 Cal. Rptr. 422] .

It is not necessary to allege the refusal of the construction lender to pay the plaintiff in the complaint in [1], above, since the only obligation of the construction lender on receipt of the stop notice is to withhold sufficient funds; only in an action against the lender can the plaintiff enforce the payment of his or her claim stated in the notice [see Civ. Code § 3162; A-1 Door & Materials Co. v. Fresno Guarantee Sav. & Loan Ass'n. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 728, 736, 40 Cal. Rptr. 85, 394 P.2d 829] . For discussion relating to the service of and actions on a stop notice, see §§ 361.170, 361.171.

[4] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case in the superior court [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial in an unimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[5] Jurisdiction and Venue

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(6)]. In limited civil cases, the caption must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000. The caption must also identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

The action must be filed in the county where the contract was performed, in the county in which the contract was entered into, or in the county in which a defendant resides [Code Civ. Proc. § 395; see § 361.171[6]].

4. [Allegation of ownership of real property. See § 361.201[1], First Cause of Action, Paragraph 5.]

5. On or about _____ [date] plaintiff made, executed, and delivered a construction loan numbered _____ to the defendant _____ [name of owner], which loan was secured by the real property described above.

6. Pursuant to the terms of the construction loan agreement, defendants assigned the proceeds of the loan to the plaintiffs from which disbursements were to be made to defray the costs of a work of improvement to be _____ [constructed or performed] on the real property described above.

7. On or about _____ [date], defendant _____ [name of owner] and _____ [name], as original contractor, entered into an original contract for the construction of a work of improvement consisting of _____ [describe]. A copy of the contract is attached hereto, marked Exhibit _____ and made a part hereof.

8. There remains due and owing to _____ [original contractor] from the plaintiff on the construction loan account for all work, services,materials and equipment performed and furnished under the original contract, the sum of $_____. This sum represents the full and complete indebtedness of the plaintiff to _____ [name] or to any other person or persons whether individual or corporate, arising out of this contract.

9. The defendants _____ [names] served the plaintiff with written stop notices pursuant to Sections 3158-3162, 3172 of the Civil Code, in the amounts and on the dates shown therein. The notices were verified, properly served, contained the statement required by law and were accompanied by bonds with good and sufficient sureties in accordance with Section 3083 of the Civil Code. Copies of these stop notices and bonds are attached hereto, marked as Exhibits _____ through _____, and made a part hereof. Plaintiff has released no funds whatsoever held to the account of _____ [name] under the contract described in Paragraph 7, since the date on which the first of these notices was filed with the plaintiff.

10. The total sum represented by the stop notices is $_____, which sum greatly exceeds the sum withheld. As _____ [among or between] the parties who filed stop notices, plaintiff is in doubt as to whom he/she should pay the funds withheld, or whether any of the parties are entitled to any of the funds withheld, or whether the parties are entitled under Section 3167 of the Civil Code to only a pro rata portion of the funds withheld.

11. _____ [Name(s)] _____ [has or have] brought suit against the plaintiff in the Superior Court of the _____ County to enforce payment of _____ [a or the] stop notice(s) filed with the plaintiff. The above-named suit(s) bear the following number(s): _____.

12. Plaintiff is holding the sum of $_____ under the construction loan agreement with _____ [name(s)]. Plaintiff is required to withhold this sum pursuant to Section 3162 of the Civil Code. Plaintiff does not know which of the defendants _____ [is or are] entitled to the funds withheld and cannot safely determine which claims are right and lawful or entitled to priority. [Plaintiff is ready and willing to deposit or On filing this complaint, plaintiffs have deposited] with the clerk of this court, the funds withheld in the amount of $_____.

13. This action is brought by the plaintiff without any collusion with any of the defendants.

WHEREFORE plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. That the defendants be required to interplead and litigate _____ [among or between] themselves their respective claims to the funds withheld by the plaintiffs.

2. That the court adjudge and declare the mutual and legal rights and liabilities of the parties with reference to the funds in question.

3. That each defendant be enjoined from bringing any action or pursuing any action under Section 3172 of the Civil Code.

4. That the plaintiff be discharged from all liability to all of the defendants.

5. That the plaintiff be awarded his costs and reasonable attorney's fees.

YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED that _____ [on _____ (date), or between the dates of _____ (date) and _____ (date)], I, _____ [name], the undersigned, _____ [performed or agreed to perform or furnished or agreed to furnish] _____ [to or for] _____ [name of contractor to or for whom the labor, services, materials, or equipment was done or furnished] _____ [to be used in or used in] the work of improvement consisting of _____ [describe work of improvement], which work of improvement is situated on real property, owned or reputedly owned by _____ [name(s)], located in _____ County, California and described specifically as follows: _____ [give address or legal description].

The following _____ [labor or materials or services or equipment] _____ [has or have] been _____ [performed or furnished]: _____ [describe].

The amount in value of the [labor or material or services or equipment] already furnished is $_____.
The amount in value of the [labor or materials or services or equipment] to be furnished is $_____.
Dated: _____.

[signature of claimant]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, may be given to the surety and the bond principal within 15 days after recording a notice of completion, or if no notice of completion has been recorded, within 75 days after completing the work of improvement [Civ. Code § 3242(b)]. Alternatively, notice to a surety and bond principal may be given by using the preliminary 20-day notice procedure provided in Civ. Code § 3097 [Civ. Code § 3242(a); for a form of preliminary 20-day notice, see § 361.190]. Failure to give either this notice or a preliminary 20-day notice prevents any action from being maintained on a payment bond [see Civ. Code § 3242]. For further details relating to actions on payment bonds, see § 361.180.

[3] Contents of Notice

The notice in [1], above, must be in writing and must contain all of the following:

- The kind of labor, services, equipment, or materials furnished or agreed to be furnished by the claimant.
- The name of the person to whom the labor, services, equipment, or materials were furnished.
- The amount in value, as near as may be determined, of any labor, services, equipment, or materials already furnished or to be furnished [Civ. Code § 3227(b)].

[4] Service of Written Notice

The post-completion bond notice (private work) may be served by personal delivery, or by depositing the notice in the mail, postage prepaid, certified or registered, and addressed in accordance with any of the following that may be applicable [Civ. Code § 3227(a)]:

- If to an individual surety, at his or her residence or place of business, if known.
- If to an individual surety whose residence is unknown, then in care of the clerk of the county in which the bond has been recorded.
- If to a corporate surety, at the office of or in care of the agent designated by the surety in the bond as the address to which notice shall be sent.
- At the office of or in care of any officer of the surety in California.
- At the office of or in care of the statutory agent of the surety in California.
- To the bond principal at the last known address.
- By service in the manner provided by law for the service of a summons in a civil action.

Plaintiff alleges:

FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION (Breach of Contract)

[1. Allegation of license if plaintiff is a subcontractor. See § 361.201[1], First Cause of Action, Paragraph 1.]

[2. Capacity and residence of plaintiff. See § 361.201[1], First Cause of Action, Paragraph 2.]

[3. Capacity and residence of defendant original contractor. See § 361.201[1], First Cause of Action, Paragraph 3.]

4. On or about _____ [date], _____ [name of original owner], as owner of real property herein described, and defendant, _____ [name], made and entered into a contract in writing under the terms of which the defendant, hereinafter referred to as original contractor, convenanted and agreed to do all of the work and furnish all of the materials necessary to _____ [construct or perform] a work of improvement consisting of _____ [describe work of improvement], which work of improvement is located on real property situated in _____ County, California, and described specifically as follows: _____ [give legal description]. [A copy of this contract is attached hereto, marked Exhibit _____, and made a part hereof.]

5. After the execution of the contract referred to above, the original contractor then entered into a contract with the plaintiff herein for the _____ [describe work or materials to be furnished for or to work of improvement e.g., delivery of materials and supplies to be used by the defendant in _____ (construction or performance) of the above-mentioned work of improvement].

6. Between _____ [date], and _____ [date], plaintiff _____ [furnished to or performed for] the original contractor the following _____ [state and describe labor, materials, supplies and/or equipment performed or furnished; if materials, supplies or equipment were furnished, add to be used, and which were actually used, in the _____ (construction or performance) of the work of improvement contracted to be done as aforesaid]. The total contract value of the _____ [labor or materials or supplies or equipment or any combination] so _____ [furnished or performed] [and used] as aforesaid, which sum is the reasonable value of the _____ [labor or materials or supplies or equipment or combination], amounts to the sum of $_____. No part of this sum has been paid and the whole amount remains due, owing, unpaid over and above all just credits and offsets.

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION

(On Contractor's Payment Bond)

7. Plaintiff refers to and incorporates, as though fully set forth herein, Paragraphs 1-6, inclusive, of the First Cause of Action.

8. At all times mentioned herein, defendant _____ [name], hereinafter called surety, was, and now is, a corporation authorized to engage and is engaged under, and by virtue of the laws of the State of California, making, guaranteeing, and becoming a surety on bonds and undertakings required or authorized by law.

9. Contemporaneously with the making of the aforesaid contract between the owner of the real property and the original contractor, pursuant to the terms thereof, and before the original contractor entered into the performance of the work of improvement, the original contractor, as principal, and defendant, _____ [name], as surety, made and executed their bond and undertaking, designated as payment bond for the purpose of complying with Civil Code Sections 3096, 3235-3242. This bond was in the sum of $_____, was conditioned, and provided that if the original contractor or any of [his/her] subcontractors failed to pay for any materials, provisions, provender, or other supplies, used in, upon, for, or about the _____ [construction or performance] of the work of improvement, or for any work or labor done thereon of any kind, that the surety on the bond would pay the same. [A copy of the payment bond is attached hereto, marked as Exhibit _____, and made a part hereof.]

10. [As a further condition of the payment bond, the principal and surety promised and agreed to pay reasonable attorney's fees to be fixed by the court in case suit was brought on the bond and undertaking. The sum of $_____ constitutes reasonable attorney's fees to be allowed for plaintiff's attorney's fees herein.]

[EITHER]

11. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff gave to defendant _____ [name of surety] and _____ [name of bond principal] _____ [in person or by United States certified (registered) mail, postage prepaid, addressed to this defendant at _____ (address) and bond principal at _____ (address)] as provided in Civil Code Section 3227, the written notice as required by Civil Code Section 3242(b), in the form prescribed by Civil Code Section 3227(b). [A copy of this notice is attached to this complaint as Exhibit _____ and made a part of this complaint.]

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use in an action brought by a subcontractor, materialman, or laborer against the original contractor on a work of improvement and the surety on a payment bond in situations where the original contractor, as principal, and the surety have made and executed the payment bond pursuant to the orginal contractor's promise in his or her original contract with the owner. The complaint may be used in a separate action on the payment bond or may be joined with the plaintiff's action to foreclose his or her mechanics' lien [see Civ. Code § 3096].

[3] Allegations

This form alleges as part of the plaintiff's cause of action against the surety on the contractor's payment bond:

- If plaintiff is a contractor, that he or she is licensed as such (Paragraph 1).
- The contract between the original contractor and plaintiff (Paragraph 5).
- Its performance (Paragraph 6).
- Dates on which labor or materials were furnished (Paragraph 6).
- Amount due plaintiff on contract (Paragraph 6).
- The execution of a payment bond, pursuant to the original contract (see Paragraph 4), designed to inure to the benefit of the plaintiff (Paragraph 9 of the Second Cause of Action) [see Civ. Code §§ 3096, 3226 (owner as permitted to exact payment bond from original contractor)].
- That plaintiff has served on the sureties and bond principal a notice in compliance with Civ. Code § 3242 (Paragraph 11).

[4] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case in the superior court [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial in an unimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[5] Jurisdiction and Venue

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(6)]. In limited civil cases, the caption must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000. The caption must also identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

A defendant surety corporation may be sued in the county where the contract is made or is to be performed or where the obligation or liability arises or the breach occurs. It may also be sued in the county where the principal place of business of the corporation is situated [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395, 395.5; see § 361.180[5]].

For a form of post-completion bond notice, see § 361.230.

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use in an action brought by a subcontractor, materialman, or laborer against the subcontractor on a work of improvement and the surety on a payment bond in situations when the subcontractor, as principal, and the surety have made and executed the payment bond in accordance with the subcontractor's promise in his or her contract with the original contractor. The above may be used in a separate action on the payment bond or may be joined with the plaintiff's action to foreclose on a mechanics' lien [see Civ. Code § 3096].

For a form of complaint against the original contractor, see § 361.231.

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges as part of the plaintiff's cause of action against the surety on the subcontractor's payment bond:

- The execution of a payment bond, under the original contract (see Paragraph 4 of the First Cause of Action), designed to inure to the plaintiff's benefit (Paragraph 9 of the Second Cause of Action) [see Civ. Code § 3096 (subcontractor as principal of payment bond)].

- The contract between the subcontractor and the plaintiff (Paragraph 5).

- Its performance (Paragraph 6 of the First Cause of Action).

[1] FORM Owner's Demand for Stop Notice [Civ. Code § 3158]

To: _____ [name]
_____ [address]

You are hereby notified that I, _____ [name], the undersigned, am the owner of the property located in _____ City, County of _____, and described specifically as follows: _____ [give address or legal description]. I have been informed that you have _____ [performed or promised to perform or furnished or promised to furnish _____ (materials or services or equipment)] _____ [used in or to be used in] a work of improvement consisting of _____ [describe improvement] which is in progress on the above-described property. Under Civil Code Section 3158, I have the right to demand, and do hereby demand, that you immediately furnish me, at the address set forth below, a stop notice which must contain the following information:

1. Kind of _____ [labor performed or to be performed or _____ (materials or services or equipment) furnished or to be furnished];

2. Amount in value of what you have _____ [done or furnished] and amount in value of the whole of what you have agreed to _____ [do or furnish]; and

3. Name of person _____ [for or to] whom the _____ [labor was performed or _____ (materials or service or equipment) _____(was or were) furnished].

Failure to comply with this demand will result in a forfeiture of all rights you may have to a mechanics' lien against the above-described property for all the labor, materials, services, or equipment you may have performed on or furnished to or will have performed on or furnished to the above-described work of improvement.

[2] Use of Form

The form of demand in [1], above, by an owner who holds funds being used for the purpose of the construction of a work of improvement on his or her property may be made on any claimant entititled to claim a mechanics' lien under Civ. Code §§ 3110-3112. Its apparent purpose is to make such a claimant aware of any stop notice rights he or she may have, and also to protect the owner's property from mechanics' lien foreclosure whenconstruction funds may provide sufficient security for any claims that may arise. Once the demand is made, a claimant's failure to serve a stop notice on the owner results in a forfeiture of the claimant's mechanics' lien rights under Civ. Code §§ 3110-3112 [Civ. Code § 3158]. Under Civ. Code § 3158, it appears that no demand may be made by an owner on a lien claimant to serve a stop notice on a construction lender.

[1] FORM Conditional Waiver and Release on Progress Payment [Civ. Code § 3262(d)(1)]

CONDITIONAL WAIVER AND RELEASE
UPON PROGRESS PAYMENT

Upon receipt by the undersigned of a check from _____ [maker of check] in the sum of $_____ payable to _____ [payee or payees of check], and when the check has been properly endorsed and has been paid by the bank upon which it is drawn, this document shall become effective to release pro tanto any mechanic's lien, stop notice, or bond right the undersigned has on the job of _____ [name of owner] located at _____ [job description] to the following extent. This release covers a progress payment for labor, services, equipment, or material furnished to _____ [name of customer] through _____ [date] only and does not cover any retentions retained before or after the release date; extras furnished before the release date for which payment has not been received; extras or items furnished after the release date. Rights based upon work performed or items furnished under a written change order which has been fully executed by the parties prior to the release date are covered by this release unless specifically reserved by the claimant in this release. This release of any mechanic's lien, stop notice, or bond right shall not otherwise affect the contract rights, including rights between parties to the contract based upon a rescission, abandonment, or breach of the contract, or the right of the undersigned to recover compensation for furnished labor, services, equipment, or material covered by this release if that furnished labor, services, equipment, or material was not compensated by the progress payment. Before any recipient of this document relies on it, said party should verify evidence of payment to the undersigned.

[2] Use of Form

The form of waiver in [1], above, is required by statute to be used when the claimant is required to execute a waiver and release in exchange for, or in order to induce the payment of, a progress payment, and the claimant is not, in fact, paid in exchange for the waiver and release or a single payee check or joint payee check is given in exchange for the waiver and release [Civ. Code § 3262(d)(1)]. If this form is not used, any such waiver or release is null, void, and unenforcable [Civ. Code § 3261(d)].

A conditional lien waiver and release under Civ. Code § 3262(d)(1) waives mechanic's lien rights, bond rights, and stop notice rights for servicesrendered and materials provided up to the date stated on the receipt, even if those services and materials were not compensated by the progress payment. However, waiver is limited only to those express lien rights. By executing the release, the subcontractor or materialman does not waive his or her rights to pursue compensation for unpaid services and materials under the terms of the contract or as otherwise provided by law or equity [Tesco Controls, Inc. v. Monterey Mech. Co. (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 780, 797, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 751] .

For a form of unconditional waiver and release on progress payment, see § 361.242.

§ 361.245 Endorsement on Joint Check

[1] FORM Endorsement on Joint Check

By endorsement, the undersigned acknowledges receipt of full payment for all materials furnished or labor performed under the _____ [subcontract or original contract] prior to the billing attached as to property and buildings described on the billing. The undersigned further acknowledges the extinguishment of all liens and claims of liens, all rights to any stop notice or bonded stop notice, and any other rights under the provisions of the mechanics' lien law for the amount paid by this check, and that there are no bills for labor or material under the _____ [subcontract or original contract] unpaid as the date of the billing other than set forth on the billing.

_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

The endorsement in [1], above, may be used by an owner on joint checks made out to both the contractor and a subcontractor or materialman or to both a subcontractor and a materialman. Joint checks may be used to make sure that the contractor or subcontractor uses funds to pay the subcontractors and materialmen, who will have mechanics' lien rights if they are not paid, even though the prime contractor or subcontractor is paid. The billings of the subcontractor or materialman that are paid by the check should be attached to the check.

Issuance of a joint check with no further instructions is at least sufficient to require a subcontractor or materialman to inquire as to the intended application of the funds [Westwood Bldg. Materials Co. v. Valdez (1958) 322 P.2d 79] . Issuance of a joint check to a subcontractor and materialman only requires the materialman to obtain funds from the check to pay for sites specified in the check and does not require the materialman to obtain funds from the check for other sites [Rodeffer Industries, Inc. v. Chambers Estates, Inc. (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 116, 118-119, 69 Cal. Rptr. 551] .

[3] Effect of Endorsement

When a subcontractor or materialman endorses a joint check, he or she is deemed to have received the money due from the check. Inclusion of the subcontractor or materialman makes it clear that the maker of the check intends to discharge obligations owed to the subcontractor or materialman [Post Bros. Constr. Co. v. Yoder (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 1, 5-6, 141 Cal. Rptr. 28, 569 P.2d 133 ; Bohannan Bros. Inc. v. Lo Jean Dev. Co. (1969) 3 Cal. App. 3d 200, 204-205, 82 Cal. Rptr. 922] . The joint check rule also applies when there are more than two payees or when the subcontractor or materialman is working for a contractor on several job sites. The burdenis on the subcontractor or materialman to determine for which project the joint check is payment. Endorsement of a joint check also precludes the subcontractor or materialman from proceeding against a surety because he or she is deemed to have been paid [Post Bros. Constr. Co. v. Yoder (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 1, 7-8, 141 Cal. Rptr. 28, 569 P.2d 133] .

The claim of lien recorded by _____ [name of claimant] on _____ [date], in Book _____, page _____ of Official Records of _____ County, California, is hereby released and discharged. The property affected by the claim of lien is located in _____ County, California, and is described as follows: _____ [give legal description].

[If this release is recorded, add The name of the person whose interest in the above-described property is hereby relieved from the claim of lien is _____ (name).]
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature of claimant]

[Acknowledgment. See § 361.192.]

[2] Use of Form

The form of release in [1], above, may be demanded from a lien claimant by an owner or contractor under the same circumstances as a waiver may be demanded from a claimant after the claimant has recorded his claim of lien. Unlike a waiver, however, a release does not require a recital of the receipt of consideration [see Civ. Code § 1541].

For a form of claim of lien, see § 361.192. For a form of partial release, see § 361.247.

[2] Use of Form

The demurrer in [1], above, is for use in a mechanics' lien foreclosure action where the ground for objection is that the complaint fails to allege that a preliminary 20-day notice (private work) was given to those persons required to be served preliminary notices by mechanics' lien claimants under Civ. Code § 3097(a), (b) [Borchers Bros. v. Buckeye Incubator Co. (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 234, 236-237, 28 Cal. Rptr. 697, 379 P.2d 1 ; Windsor Mills v. Richard B. Smith, Inc. (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 336, 337-341, 77 Cal. Rptr. 300 (both cases decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1193 which required preliminary notices to be given 15 days prior to recording of claim of lien)].

With appropriate modifications, the demurrer may also be used by a defendant in an action to enforce a stop notice claim where the complaint fails to allege that a preliminary 20-day notice (private work) was given when required under Civ. Code § 3097(a), (b) [see Civ. Code § 3160(a)].

[2] Use of Form

The demurrer in [1], above, is for use in a mechanics' lien foreclosure action where the ground for objection is that the complaint fails to allege that the plaintiff was a duly licensed contractor at all times during the performance of his/her contract [see Famous Builders v. Bolin, Inc. (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 37, 39-43, 70 Cal. Rptr. 17] .

With appropriate modifications, the demurrer may also be used by a defendant in an action to enforce a stop notice or an action on a payment bond brought by a plaintiff contractor [*see Lewis & Queen v. [1] FORM Demurrer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] to Complaint to Foreclose Mechanics' Lien--Brought by Materialman--Failure of Complaint to Contain Substantial Allegations That Materials Were Furnished to Be Used in, and Were Used in Work of Improvement

[Caption, introduction. See § 361.248.]

Defendant demurs to the complaint herein on the following ground:

The complaint herein does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that there are no substantial allegations to the effect that the materials which the plaintiff allegedly furnished to the work of improvement, were actually furnished to be used in and were actually used in the work of improvement in question.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Defendant

[2] Use of Form

The demurrer in [1], above, is for use in a mechanics' lien foreclosure action where the ground for objection is that the plaintiff materialman's complaint to foreclose a mechanics' lien for materials furnished to a work of improvement does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that it does not contain substantial allegations to the effect that the materials were furnished to be used in, and that they were actually used in, the work of improvement [see Ensele v. Jolley (1922) 188 Cal. 297, 300, 204 P. 1085] .

With appropriate modifications, this demurrer may be used by a defendant in an action to enforce a stop notice claim or an action on any bond which inures to the benefit of any claimant under the mechanics' lien law, since in either of these actions a claimant must show in order to recover that he or she is a person entitled to claim a lien under Civ. Code §§ 3110-3112 [see Civ. Code §§ 3158, 3159(a) (stop notices), 3226 (bonds)].

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)] in Action to Foreclose Mechanics' Lien--Chattel Installed Is Not Fixture Attached to Realty

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

The defendant owner's property against which the plaintiff is asserting a claim of mechanics' lien, as alleged in his complaint, is not subject to this lien because the chattel installed _____ [by the plaintiff or in connection with which the plaintiff furnished his materials and performed his labor] is not a fixture attached to the realty. This chattel consists of _____ [describe chattel, and if appropriate state facts indicating it was not adapted for use with real property]. Its installation involved _____ [describe manner of annexation, showing, e.g., lack of physical annexation, relative ease of its removal, and/or that annexation was not open or apparent]. [If appropriate, add The plaintiff and defendant (orally) agreed that the above-described chattel would remain personalty for all purposes, including any claims of mechanics' liens that the plaintiff might be entitled to. (A copy of this agreement is attached hereto, and made a part hereof.) (Or allege other facts showing the intention of the parties that the chattel would would remain personalty)].

[2] Use of Form

The affirmative defense in [1], above, is for use by a defendant owner in an action to foreclose a mechanics' lien for materials furnished and labor performed in connection with the installation of a chattel either by the plaintiff [see Cornell v. Sennes (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 126, 129-131, 95 Cal. Rptr. 728] , or by a third party [see R. Barcroft & Sons Co. v. Cullen (1933) 217 Cal. 708, 708-712, 20 P.2d 665] . For discussion of the requirement that in order for real property to be subject to a mechanics' lien for labor and materials furnished, the chattel installed must be a fixture attached to the realty, see § 361.25[3]. For other forms of affirmative defenses, see §§ 361.254 -361.258.

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)] in Action to Foreclose Mechanics' Lien--Labor Performed Did Not Result in Permanent Improvement to Realty

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

The defendant owner's property against which the plaintiff is asserting a claim of mechanics' lien, as alleged in his complaint, is not subject to this lien because the labor performed by the plaintiff did not result in a permanent improvement to the property. The labor performed by the plaintiff consisted of _____ [describe]. No portion of this work consisted of a permanent improvement to the defendant's property, since _____ [described impermanence of improvement, e.g., the plaintiff only performed labor which contributed to the maintenance of the improvement alleged in his complaint and was not labor necessary for the establishment of the permanence of the improvement].

[2] Use of Form

The affirmative defense in [1], above, is for use by a defendant owner in his answer to a complaint to foreclose a mechanics' lien for labor performed on a work of improvement where the labor did not result in a permanent improvement to the realty [see Ogden v. Byington (1926) 198 Cal. 151, 157, 244 P. 332 ; Howard A. Deason & Co. v. Costa Tierra, Ltd. (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 742, 753, 83 Cal. Rptr. 105] . [1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Recordation of Notice of Nonresponsibility by Owner [Civ. Code §§ 3097, 3129]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that

1. On or about _____ [date], this defendant first obtained knowledge of the work of improvement alleged in plaintiff's complaint which was being _____ [constructed or performed] on the real property in which defendant _____ [has or claims] _____ [describe interest or estate]. Defendant did not by lease or contract or any other kind of agreement cause this work of improvement to be _____ [constructed or performed].

2. In accordance with the requirements set forth in Section 3094 of the Civil Code, within 10 days of the date on which defendant first obtained knowledge, defendant recorded a notice of nonresponsibility in Book _____, page _____, of the Official Records of _____County, California, in which defendant, in part, stated that he/she would not be responsible for any claims arising from the work of improvement. Within the same 10-day period, defendant posted this notice of nonresponsibility in a conspicuous place on the construction site as follows: _____ [describe place of posting]. Plaintiff thereby had actual or constructive knowledge of the fact that defendant was not responsible for any claims that may arise out of the work of improvement being _____ [constructed or performed].

[2] Use of Form

The affirmative defense in [1], above, is for use in an answer to a complaint for foreclosure of owner's property in situations in which the owner had or claims an interest or an estate in real property on which a work of improvement is being constructed or performed and who has not caused the work of improvement to be constructed or performed [see

Civ. Code §§ 3094, 3129].

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Senior Lien of Trust Deed Holder [Civ. Code § 1214]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that

1. On or about _____ [date], defendant _____ [name of owner], for valuable consideration made, executed, and delivered to this defendant a written promissory note for the sum of $_____, plus interest. A copy of this note is attached hereto, marked Exhibit _____ and made a part hereof.

2. To secure payment of the principal sum and interest as provided in the promissory note and as part of the same transaction, defendant _____ [name of owner] executed and delivered for a valuable consideration to this defendant, as beneficiary, a deed of trust dated _____ [date], by the terms of which deed of trust defendant _____ [name], as trustor, conveyed to _____ [name], as trustee, the real property described in plaintiff's complaint.

3. On _____ [date], the deed of trust was duly acknowledged, so as to entitle it to be recorded, and on _____ [date], was duly recorded in Book _____, page _____, of the Official Records in the office of the county recorder of _____ County, California. A copy of the deed of trust is attached hereto, marked Exhibit _____ and made a part hereof.

4. This defendant's deed of trust attached to the real property prior to _____ [date], the date of the commencement of _____ [construction or performance] of the work of improvement on which plaintiff claims a mechanics' lien for labor and materials furnished to the work of improvement, and is prior and senior to any mechanics' lien that the plaintiff may be adjudged to have on the real property.

[2] Use of Form

The affirmative defense in [1], above, is for use in an answer to a complaint to foreclose a mechanics' lien if the defendant holder of a deed of trust or mortgage has recorded his deed of trust or mortgage before the commencement of the work of improvement on which a mechanics' lien is being claimed [see Civ. Code § 3134].

For an allegation when the notice of completion was ineffective to shorten the time period required for recording the claim of lien, see § 361.205. For other affirmative defenses, see §§ 361.253 -361.256, 361.258.

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)] in Action to Foreclose Mechanics' Lien--Execution by Original Contractor of Bond Releasing Property From Claim of Mechanics' Lien [Civ. Code § 3143]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

1. Prior to _____ [date], the defendant herein entered into a written contract with defendant _____ [name], the original contractor, for the work of improvement as alleged in plaintiff's complaint. The latter agreed to construct the work of improvement and to keep the real property free from liens. Following the recording of the plaintiff's claim of lien on _____ [date], defendant _____ [name of original contractor] disputed the correctness and validity of the plaintiff's claim and lien, and in compliance with Section 3143 of the Civil Code, caused to be executed, delivered, and recorded in the county recorder's office of _____ County where the real property is located, a surety bond in the principal sum of $_____ dated _____, executed by the defendant _____ [name of original contractor], as principal, and the _____ [name of surety company], as surety. [A copy of this bond is attached hereto, marked Exhibit _____, and made a part hereof.]

2. By reason of the execution, delivery, and recording of this bond, the real property, described in the bond, in the plaintiff's complaint, as well as in the plaintiff's claim of lien, is freed from the effect of such claim of lien and any action brought to foreclose such lien, including the pending action.

[2] Use of Form

The affirmative defense in [1], above, is for use by a defendant owner in his answer to a complaint to foreclose a mechanics' lien where the original contractor, pursuant to his obligation contained in the original contract, has had executed and recorded as prescribed in Civ. Code § 3143 a bond releasing the property from the claim of mechanics' lien and from any action brought to foreclose such lien [see Civ. Code § 3143; Frank Curran Lbr. Co. v. Eleven Co. (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 175, 179-182, 76 Cal. Rptr. 753] .

With appropriate modifications, the affirmative defense in [1], above, may be used in an action to enforce a stop notice or bonded stop notice where the original contractor has disputed the correctness or validity of the stop notice or bonded stop notice and has had executed a bond releasing thefunds required to be withheld to respond to the stop notice or bonded stop notice [see Civ. Code § 3171].

For a form of complaint to enforce a stop notice, see § 361.223. For other affirmative defenses, see §§ 361.253 -361.257.

[3] Bond Releasing Property Subject to Lien

If the owner of property, or the owner of any interest therein, sought to be charged with a claim of lien, or any original contractor or subcontractor disputes the correctness or validity of any claim of lien, he or she may record in the office of the county recorder in which such claim of lien was recorded, either before or after the commencement of an action to enforce such claim of lien, a bond executed by a corporation authorized to issue surety bonds in the State of California, in a penal sum equal to one and one-half times the amount of the claim or one and one-half times the amount allocated in the claim of lien to the parcel or parcels of real property sought to be released. This bond must be conditioned for payment of any sum which the claimant may recover on the claim together with his costs of suit in the action, if the claimant recovers therein. On the recording of such bond the real property is released from the lien and from any action brought to foreclose such lien. The principal on such bond may be either the owner of the property or the owner of any interest therein, or any original contractor, subcontractor, or sub-subcontractor affected by such claim of lien [Civ. Code § 3143].

[4] Bonds Releasing Funds Subject to Stop Notice

If the owner, construction lender or any original contractor or subcontractor disputes the correctness or validity of any stop notice or bonded stop notice, he or she may file with the person on whom such notice was served a bond executed by good and sufficient sureties in a penal sum equal to one and one-quarter times the amount stated in such notice. The bond must be conditioned for payment of any sum not exceeding the penal obligation of the bond which the claimant may recover on the claim, together with his costs of suit in the action, if the claimant recovers therein. On the filing of such bond, the funds withheld to respond to the stop notice or bonded stop notice must be forthwith released [Civ. Code § 3171].

PART I. SCOPE

32-362 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 362.01

§ 362.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses and contains forms relating to mental suffering and emotional distress in the context of actions for intentional infliction of emotional distress and also as an aspect of damages in other causes of action, including negligence actions in which the only damages alleged are for emotional distress. Included are a Judicial Council intentional tort allegation form [see § 362.70], and forms of complaints for damages for the intentional infliction of emotional distress [see §§ 362.71 -362.74], complaints for damages for the negligent infliction of emotional distress [see §§ 362.75 -362.77], and affirmative defenses based on privilege [see §§ 362.78, 362.79].

For forms alleging general damages for pain and suffering arising from other tort causes of action, see Ch. 177, Damages . For discussion and forms regarding preemption by the exclusive-remedy principle of workers' compensation law of actions for intentional and negligent infliction of emotional distress against an employer, see Ch. 577, Workers' Compensation . For discussion and for forms relating to orders prohibiting harassment, see Ch. 293, Harassment and Domestic Violence .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

32-362 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 362.10

§ 362.10 Intentional Infliction of Emotional Distress

[1] In General

The intentional infliction of severe mental or emotional distress by willful and outrageous conduct, in the absence of privilege, constitutes an actionable tort for which the victim may recover damages [State Rubbish Collectors Ass'n v. Siliznoff (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 330, 336-339, 240 P.2d 282 ; Spackman v. Good (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 518, 528-529, 54 Cal. Rptr. 78] .

Conduct that constitutes the tort of intentional infliction of emotional distress is often actionable under another theory of liability [see, e.g., Stoiber v. Honeychuck (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 903, 913-926, 162 Cal. Rptr. 194 (same conduct constituted breach of contract, nuisance, negligence, constructive eviction, and intentional infliction of emotional distress)]. A plaintiff, however, may recover only one measure of damages for emotional distress arising from particular conduct. If one recovers general damages for emotional distress pursuant to another tort cause of action (see § 362.13), he or she cannot also recover for the same damages under a theory of intentional infliction of emotional distress. Thus, one cannot recover for emotional distress caused by negligent conduct (see § 362.11) and also recover for the same distress a second time under the theory that it was intentionally caused [see Holliday v. Jones (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 102, 121, 264 Cal. Rptr. 448] . A properly pleaded cause of action for intentional infliction of emotional distress, however, will support a claim for punitive damages [see, e.g., Agarwal v. Johnson (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 932, 947, 160 Cal. Rptr. 141, 603 P.2d 58] , which might not be recoverable under other causes of action such as negligence or breach of contract. Punitive damages issues are discussed under § 362.10[10].

[2] Elements of Tort

The elements of a prima facie case of intentional infliction of emotional distress are the following:

- Outrageous conduct by the defendant;

- The defendant's intention of causing, or reckless disregard of the probability of causing, emotional distress;

- The plaintiff's suffering severe or extreme emotional distress; and

- Actual and proximate causation of the emotional distress by the defendant's outrageous conduct [Hernandez v. General Adjustment Bureau (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 999, 1007, 245 Cal. Rptr. 288 ; Fletcher v. Western Nat'l Life Ins. Co. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 376, 394, 89 Cal. Rptr. 78 ; see Davidson v. City of Westminster (1982) 32 Cal.3d 197, 209, 185 Cal. Rptr. 252, 649 P.2d 894 ; Agarwal v. Johnson (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 932, 946, 160 Cal. Rptr. 141, 603 P.2d 58 ; Cervantez v. J. C. Penney Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 579, 593, 156 Cal. Rptr. 198, 595 P.2d 975] .

In addition, the conduct must be directed at the plaintiff, or occur in the presence of a plaintiff of whom the defendant is aware [Christensen v. Superior Court (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 868, 903, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 79, 820 P.2d 181 ; see § 362.10[4]]. It is not sufficient that the defendant had to have realized that its misconduct was almost certain to cause severe emotional distress to any person who might foreseeably be affected by the misconduct; the defendant must have been aware of the particular plaintiffs [see Potter v. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 965, 1001-1003, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 550, 863 P.2d 795 (intentional infliction of emotional distress cause of action remanded because findings of trial court were ambiguous regarding defendant's awareness of particular plaintiffs)].

Whether treated as an element of the prima facie case or as a matter of defense, it must also appear that the defendant's conduct was unprivileged [Fletcher v. Western Nat'l Life Ins. Co. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 376, 394, 89 Cal. Rptr. 78 ; see Davidson v. City of Westminster (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 197, 209, 185 Cal. Rptr. 252, 649 P.2d 894 ; Cervantez v. J.C. Penney Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 579, 593, 156 Cal. Rptr. 198, 595 P.2d 975 ; see also § 362.32[2][j]].

The requirement that, to warrant recovery for mental distress, the conduct must be outrageous or that the mental distress must be severe is intended to apply only to the independent tort of intentional infliction of emotional distress. To be distinguished are those cases in which emotional distress may be an element of damages when other interests have been invaded, and tort liability has arisen apart from the emotional distress. The more exacting requirements of outrageousness and severity are applied to the independent tort (that is, intentional infliction of emotional distress) because of the fear of fictitious or trivial claims, distrust of the proof offered, and the difficulty of setting up any satisfactory boundaries to liability [Gruenberg v. Aetna Ins. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 566, 579-580, 108 Cal. Rptr. 480, 510 P.2d 1032] .

[3] Outrageous Conduct

[a] Reasonable Bounds of Decency

Liability for intentional infliction of emotional distress exists only if the defendant's conduct has been so outrageous in character and so extreme in degree as to go beyond all possible bounds of decency and to be regarded as atrocious and utterly intolerable in a civilized community [Trerice v. Blue Cross of Cal. (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 878, 883, 257 Cal. Rptr. 338 ; see Agarwal v. Johnson (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 932, 946, 160 Cal. Rptr. 141, 603 P.2d 58 ; Kraslawsky v. Upper Deck Co. (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 179, 182,194, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 297 (employer's request, that employee take urinalysis test that employee admitted was not overly intrusive, was not conduct that went beyond all bounds of decency)]. Behavior may be considered outrageous if a defendant: (1) abuses a relation or position that gives him or her power to damage the plaintiff's interest; (2) knows the plaintiff is susceptible to injuries through mental distress; or (3) acts intentionally or unreasonably with the recognition that the acts are likely to result in illness through mental distress [Agarwal v. Johnson (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 932, 946, 160 Cal. Rptr. 141, 603 P.2d 58 ; Robinson v. Hewlett-Packard Corp. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1108, 1130, 228 Cal. Rptr. 591] .

Whether any particular conduct is sufficiently outrageous to constitute the element of the tort is a mixed question of law and fact. It is for the court to determine, in the first instance, whether the defendant's conduct may reasonably be regarded as so extreme and outrageous that recovery is permissible [Tollefson v. Roman Catholic Bishop (1990) 219

Cal. App. 3d 843, 858, 268 Cal. Rptr. 550] . If reasonable persons might differ, it is for the jury to determine whether the conduct was, in fact, outrageous [Alcorn v. Anbro Eng'g, Inc. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 493, 499, 86 Cal. Rptr. 88, 468 P.2d 216 ; see Cross v. Bonded Adjustment Bureau (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 266, 284, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 801] .

[b] Relationship Between Parties

The relationship between the parties is significant in determining whether liability should be imposed [Alcorn v. Anbro Eng'g, Inc. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 493, 498, 86 Cal. Rptr. 88, 468 P.2d 216] . The extreme and outrageous character of the conduct may arise from the actor's abuse of a position or a relation that gives him or her actual or apparent authority over the other or power to affect his or her interests. Police officers, school authorities, collecting creditors [Cross v. Bonded Adjustment Bureau (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 266, 276, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 801 ; Golden v. Dungan (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 295, 303 n.5, 97 Cal. Rptr. 577] , insurers [Fletcher v. Western Nat'l Life Ins. Co. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 376, 403, 89 Cal. Rptr. 78] , hospitals [Bundren v. Superior Court (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 784, 791-792, 193 Cal. Rptr. 671] , attorneys [McDaniel v. Gile (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 363, 372-375, 281 Cal. Rptr. 242] , and landlords [Aweeka v. Bonds (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 278, 281-282, 97 Cal. Rptr. 650] have been liable for extreme abuse of their positions.

Such a relationship might exist if the immediate actor proceeds under color of process issued in a lawsuit [see Golden v. Dungan (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 295, 303-305, 97 Cal. Rptr. 577] . The necessary relationship may also arise between a religious organization and those persons whose lives it was promising to make more meaningful [Molko v. Holy Spirit Ass'n (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1092, 1122-1123, 252 Cal. Rptr. 122, 762 P.2d 46] . The special obligation of public utilities and other enterprises affected with the public interest has been noted as significant in the imposition of liability on such defendants, even in the absence of outrageous conduct, apparently on a policy basis of encouraging fair treatment of the public whom the enterprises serve [Fletcher v. Western Nat'l Life Ins. Co. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 376, 403, 89 Cal. Rptr. 78] .

An employee is entitled to a greater degree of protection from insult and outrage from an employer than if he or she were a stranger [Alcorn v. Anbro Eng'g, Inc. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 493, 498, 86 Cal. Rptr. 88, 468 P.2d 216 ; Robinson v. Hewlett-Packard Corp. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1108, 1130, 228 Cal. Rptr. 591 ; see Prevost v. First W. Bank (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1492, 1503, 239 Cal. Rptr. 161] . However, the particular conduct alleged to be outrageous must be in the context of an abuse of position as a superior in the workplace [Yurick v. Superior Court (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1116, 1129, 257 Cal. Rptr. 665] . Further, the exclusive-remedy principle of workers' compensation law bars actions for intentional infliction of emotional distress by an employee against his or her employer in most cases [see Cole v. Fair Oaks Fire Prot. Dist. (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 148, 159-161, 233 Cal. Rptr. 308, 729 P.2d 743 , discussed in § 362.12[2]].

Although the relationship between insured and insurer may involve outrageous abuse, the insurer's failure to accept an offer of settlement or the violation of statutory duties under Ins. Code § 790.03 does not, in itself, constitute the type of outrageous conduct that will support a cause of action for intentional infliction of emotional distress [Lee v. Travelers Cos. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 691, 694-695, 252 Cal. Rptr. 468] . The plaintiff must allege specific acts of the insurer that are so extreme that they exceed all bounds of what is usually tolerated in a civilized society [Schlauch v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 926, 936, 194 Cal. Rptr. 658] . In one case, for example, while a health insurance company may have been within its rights to seek rescission of a policy based on alleged misrepresentations in the policy application, the insurance company acted in an outrageous manner if it obtained the knowledge necessary to justify rescission but waited until after the insured had suffered a serious injury requiring substantial medical treatment before seeking to rescind [Hailey v. California Physicians' Service (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 452, 475-476, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 789].

[c] Special Susceptibility

A defendant's awareness of the plaintiff's susceptibility to emotional distress is a significant factor in determining liability [Alcorn v. Anbro Eng'g, Inc. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 493, 498, 86 Cal. Rptr. 88, 468 P.2d 216] . Thus, the extreme and outrageous character of the conduct may arise from the actor's knowledge that the other is peculiarly susceptible to emotional distress, by reason of some physical or mental condition or peculiarity [Golden v. Dungan (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 295, 303 n.6, 97 Cal. Rptr. 577 (dictum)]. For example, a minority group member may be particularly susceptible to emotional distress from discriminatory conduct or racial slurs [see Alcorn v. Anbro Eng'g, Inc. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 493, 498, 86 Cal. Rptr. 88, 468 P.2d 216 ; Robinson v. Hewlett-Packard Corp. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1108, 1128-1130, 228 Cal. Rptr. 591] . However, even if the other is particularly susceptible, the mere fact that the actor knows that the other will regard the conduct as insulting or will have his or her feelings hurt is not enough. Major outrage is essential to the tort [Golden v. Dungan (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 295, 303 n.6, 97 Cal. Rptr. 577 (dictum)].

Although a pet owner may be emotionally involved in the pet's health and especially susceptible to emotional distress should the pet die, a veterinarian's medical care is directed solely at the pet and malpractice by a veterinarian will not support recovery by the pet owner for intentional infliction of emotional distress [McMahon v. Craig (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1502, 1516-1517, -- Cal. Rptr. 3d --]. In addition, efforts on the part of the veterinarian to cover up the fact that the death of the pet may have been caused by malpractice will not be considered outrageous enough to support a cause of action for intentional infliction of emotional distress, at least when the fact that the pet has died while undergoing treatment is not concealed from the pet owner [McMahon v. Craig (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1502, 1517, -- Cal. Rptr. 3d --].

[d] Words Alone

There is no remedy in the form of tort damages for all intended mental disturbance, and a plaintiff may not recover merely because of hurt feelings. Ordinarily, one is not liable for profanity, obscenity, or abuse, without circumstances of aggravation, or for insult, indignity, or threats that are considered to amount to nothing more than mere annoyance, because such conduct is not sufficiently "outrageous" [Yurick v. Superior Court (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 1116, 1128-1129, 257 Cal. Rptr. 665] . However, the existence of aggravating circumstances can make the use of language sufficiently outrageous to support a cause of action [Alcorn v. Anbro Eng'g, Inc. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 493, 499, 86 Cal. Rptr. 88, 468 P.2d 216] . And if mere words, oral or written, result in physical injury to another, they are actionable under the tort of intentional infliction of emotional distress as long as the act is intentional and unreasonable and the actor should recognize it as likely to result in illness [Golden v. Dungan (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 295, 305, 97 Cal. Rptr. 577 ; Bowden v. Spiegel, Inc. (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 793, 794-795, 216 P.2d 571] . However, if the actor was required by law to transmit a message, the actor's conduct is not unreasonable [Mason v. Western Union Tel. Co. (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 429, 440, 125 Cal. Rptr. 53] .

[4] Intentional or Reckless Conduct

Liability attaches only if the actor intentionally or recklessly causes severe emotional distress to another [Spackman v. Good (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 518, 530, 54 Cal. Rptr. 78 ; Taylor v. Vallelunga (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 107, 109, 339 P.2d 910] . An actor's conduct is reckless if he or she knows that severe emotional distress is certain, or substantially certain, to result [Golden v. Dungan (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 295, 311, 97 Cal. Rptr. 577] . In other words, if the conduct was not undertaken for the purpose of causing the resulting harm, proof of the intent of the actor to cause such harm may be supplied by proof of circumstances showing that the conduct was of a nature that reasonably should have been recognized as likely to cause the harm sustained [Spackman v. Good (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 518, 530, 54 Cal. Rptr. 78] .

To justify recovery, the egregious conduct must be directed toward the plaintiff. The only exception to this rule is if the defendant is aware of, but acts with reckless disregard of, the plaintiff and the probability that the conduct will cause severe emotional distress to that plaintiff. If reckless disregard is the basis of recovery, the plaintiff is usually present at the time of the conduct, and the defendant knows the plaintiff is present. The presence of the plaintiff at the time of the outrageous conduct is the element that establishes a higher degree of culpability, which, in turn, justifies recovery of greater damages by a broader group of plaintiffs than is allowed on a negligent infliction of emotional distress theory [Christensen v. Superior Court (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 868, 905-906, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 79, 820 P.2d 181 (relying on Restatement (Second) of Torts § 868, cmt. g)].

[5] Severe Emotional Distress

The emotional distress required for liability for intentional infliction of emotional distress must in fact exist, and it must be severe. The intensity and duration of the distress are factors to be considered in determining its severity. Severe means, therefore, substantial or enduring as distinguished from trivial or transitory. Severe emotional distress denotes emotional distress of such substantial quantity or enduring quality that no reasonable person in a civilized society should be expected to endure it. It is for the court to determine whether on the evidence severe emotional distress can be found; it is for the jury to determine whether, on the evidence, it has in fact existed [Fletcher v. Western Nat'l Life Ins. Co. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 376, 397, 89 Cal. Rptr. 78 ; see also Schild v. Rubin (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 755, 762-763, 283 Cal. Rptr. 533 ("severe emotional distress" means highly unpleasant mental suffering or anguish from socially unacceptable conduct that entails such intense, enduring, and nontrivial emotional distress that no reasonable person in a civilized society should be expected to endure it)]. Emotional distress includes all highly unpleasant mental reactions, such as fright, horror, grief, shame, humiliation, embarrassment, anger, chagrin, disappointment, worry, and nausea [Golden v. Dungan (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 295, 311, 97 Cal. Rptr. 577 ; Fletcher v. Western Nat'l Life Ins. Co. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 376, 397, 89 Cal. Rptr. 78] .

[6] Distress Without Physical Injury

[a] In General

One who has been wrongfully and intentionally subjected to embarrassment, humiliation, fear, or other forms of mental anguish may recover compensatory damages even though he or she has suffered no physical injury, and the right to compensation exists even though no monetary loss has been sustained [Grimes v. Carter (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 694, 699, 50 Cal. Rptr. 808 ; Leavy v. Cooney (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 496, 502, 29 Cal. Rptr. 580] . However, if physical harm has not resulted from the emotional distress, the courts tend to look for more in the way of extreme outrage as an assurance that the mental disturbance claimed is not fictitious [Golden v. Dungan (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 295, 308, 97 Cal. Rptr. 577 ; Grimes v. Carter (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 694, 699, 50 Cal. Rptr. 808 ; Perati v. Atkinson (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 472, 474, 28 Cal. Rptr. 898] .

[b] Resultant Physical Injury

One who, by extreme and outrageous conduct, intentionally or recklessly causes severe emotional distress to another is subject to liability not onlyfor such emotional distress but also for bodily harm of which the distress is a legal cause [Golden v. Dungan (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 295, 302, 97 Cal. Rptr. 577] . This is true although the person has no intention of inflicting such physical harm, and irrespective of whether the act is directed against the other or a third person. The important elements are that the act is intentional, that it is unreasonable, and that the actor should recognize it as likely to result in illness [Bowden v. Spiegel, Inc. (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 793, 794-795, 216 P.2d 571] . The physical consequences of shock or other disturbance to the nervous system are sufficient to show that the plaintiff has suffered physical injury from the defendant's conduct [Alcorn v. Anbro Eng'g, Inc. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 493, 498, 86 Cal. Rptr. 88, 468 P.2d 216] .

[7] Proximate Cause

Proximate cause is a question of law in the first instance. It becomes a question of fact when conflicting inferences or conclusions can be drawn from the evidence within the area of proximate cause as legally defined [Golden v. Dungan (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 295, 311, 97 Cal. Rptr. 577 ; Tate v. Canonica (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 898, 901, 5 Cal. Rptr. 28] . If the defendant intended by his or her conduct to cause serious emotional distress, and the resulting distress is shown by the evidence to be a substantial factor in bringing about other injury, the defendant is liable for the additional injury [Tate v. Canonica (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 898, 909, 5 Cal. Rptr. 28] .

[8] Privilege

To impose liability for the intentional infliction of mental distress, it must appear that the defendant's conduct was unprivileged [Kachig v. Boothe (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 626, 641, 99 Cal. Rptr. 393] .

The privileges recognized in connection with the tort of intentional infliction of emotional distress include those recognized in defamation actions, as set out in Civ. Code § 47 [Kachig v. Boothe (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 626, 641, 99 Cal. Rptr. 393] . The cause of action may not be based on communications made in the course of any official proceeding because these communications are absolutely privileged under Civ. Code § 47(b) [Silberg v. Anderson (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 205, 215-216, 266 Cal. Rptr. 638, 786 P.2d 365 ; Ribas v. Clark (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 355, 364, 212 Cal. Rptr. 143, 696 P.2d 637 (both cases decided under former Civ. Code § 47(2))]. The privilege applies, however, only to torts arising from statements or publications. It does not apply to tortious noncommunicative conduct, even if it occurs in preparation for or in the course of a judicial proceeding [Kimmel v. Goland (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 202, 211-212, 271 Cal. Rptr. 191, 793 P.2d 524] . The privileges of Civ. Code § 47 are discussed further in Ch. 340, Libel and Slander .

One is privileged in pursuing one's own economic interests, to assert in a permissible way his or her legal rights and to communicate his or her position in good faith to the other party, even though it is substantially certain that in so doing some emotional distress will be caused [Cantu v. Resolution Trust Corp. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 857, 888, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151 ; Fletcher v. Western Nat'l Life Ins. Co. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 376, 395, 89 Cal. Rptr. 78] . However, the exercise of this privilege must be done in a permissible way and with a good faith belief in the existence of the rights asserted. One who, in exercising the privilege of asserting his or her own economic interests, acts in an outrageous manner may be held liable for intentional infliction of emotional distress even if the interest is asserted in good faith [Fletcher v. Western Nat'l Life Ins. Co. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 376, 395, 89 Cal. Rptr. 78 ; Vargas v. Ruggiero (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 709, 718-719, 17 Cal. Rptr. 568] .

For example, a creditor possesses a qualified privilege to protect its economic interest by collecting a debt, but the privilege may be lost if the creditor uses outrageous and unreasonable means in seeking payment [Symonds v. Mercury Savings & Loan Assn. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1458, 1469, 275 Cal. Rptr. 871 ; Bowden v. Spiegel, Inc. (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 793, 795, 216 P.2d 571] . The applicable test is whether or not the creditor goes beyond all reasonable bounds of decency in attempting to collect the debt. The creditor's knowledge that the debtor is susceptible to emotional distress because of some physical or mental condition is a relevant factor in the determination [Symonds v. Mercury Savings & Loan Assn. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1458, 1469, 275 Cal. Rptr. 871 ; see Bundren v. Superior Court (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 784, 789-792, 193 Cal. Rptr. 671 (20-30 minute telephone call from hospital business office to patient during visiting hours on day after surgery was performed)].

One may also be privileged to act on the advice of counsel. It is a complete defense to a claim of extreme and outrageous conduct if the evidence shows that (1) the defendant acted on the opinion and advice of counsel; (2) counsel's advice was based on full disclosure of all facts by the defendant, or the advice was initiated by counsel based on counsel's familiarity with the case; and (3) the defendant's reliance on the advice of counsel was in good faith [Melorich Builders, Inc. v. Superior Court (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 931, 936-937, 207 Cal. Rptr. 47] .

Constitutional privileges arising under U.S. Const. amend. I may also apply to actions for intentional infliction of emotional distress. For example, the constitutional requirement of "actual malice" must be satisfied before a claimant can prevail in an action for intentional infliction of emotional distress, at least when the offensive conduct at issue involved statements made in the context of a public debate about a public figure [Hustler Magazine, Inc. v. Falwell (1988) 485 U.S. 46, 108 S. Ct. 876, 99 L. Ed. 2d 41, 49-50] .

[9] Accrual of Cause of Action

The tort of intentional infliction of emotional distress is not complete until the defendant's conduct causes the plaintiff severe emotional distress [Cantu v. Resolution Trust Corp. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 857, 889, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151] . Therefore, the two-year (one-year, prior to January 1, 2003) limitation period [Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1; see former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3); Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions, § 345.14] does not begin to run until the plaintiff's distress reaches the requisite severity [Holliday v. Jones (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 102, 120, 264 Cal. Rptr. 448 ; Kiseskey v. Carpenters' Trust for S. Cal. (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 222, 232, 192 Cal. Rptr. 492 ; see also § 362.10[5]].

[10] Punitive Damages

The tort of intentional infliction of emotional distress requires outrageous conduct, and punitive damages awards under Civ. Code § 3294 are often recovered based on that conduct [see, e.g., Agarwal v. Johnson (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 932, 947, 160 Cal. Rptr. 141, 603 P.2d 58] . For discussion of punitive damages, see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

32-362 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 362.11

§ 362.11 Negligent Infliction of Emotional Distress

[1] In General

California recognizes a right to recover damages for serious emotional distress in a negligence action [Molien v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 916, 930, 167 Cal. Rptr. 831]. A plaintiff who has suffered physical injury may recover general damages for emotional distress, pain, and suffering, along with other compensatory damages [Merrill v. Los Angeles Gas & Elec. Co. (1910) 158 Cal. 499, 511-513, 111 P. 534 ; Niles v. City of San Rafael (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 230, 244, 116 Cal. Rptr. 733 ; see § 362.13]. In contrast, negligent infliction of emotional distress refers to the recovery of damages by a plaintiff who has not otherwise suffered any physical or bodily injury, for emotional distress arising from a defendant's negligent conduct [see Molien v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 916, 924-925, 167 Cal. Rptr. 831, 616 P.2d 813 (discussion of prior rule requiring physical injury)].

In 1980, the California Supreme Court abolished the "physical injury" requirement, thereby significantly expanding the potential right to recover for negligent infliction of emotional distress [see Molien v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 916, 930-931, 167 Cal. Rptr. 831, 616 P.2d 813 ; see also Potter v. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 965, 986, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 550, 863 P.2d 795 (reiterating that physical injury is not required in either bystander or direct-victim actions); see generally § 362.11[2]]. Before that time, the right of recovery had been limited to a few special situations [see discussion § 362.11[3]].

Negligent infliction of emotional distress is not a tort or a cause of action in and of itself. Instead, it is simply a recovery of damages under the tort of negligence. The traditional elements of a negligence cause of action--duty, breach of duty, causation, and damages--must be present [Marlene F. v. Affiliated Psychiatric Med. Clinic, Inc. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 583, 588, 257 Cal. Rptr. 98, 770 P.2d 278] .

[2] Physical Impact or Injury Not Required

Damages may be recovered for the negligent infliction of serious emotional distress if the sole damage is mental suffering. California has discarded the rule that damages for negligent infliction of emotional distress will not be awarded unless that distress resulted directly from, or manifested itself in, physical injury. The genuineness of claims, formerly ensured by the physical injury requirement, is to be safeguarded by the general standard of proof using the jurors' own experience to determine whether or not and to what extent the defendant's conduct caused emotional distress, as well as by expert medical testimony if the emotional injury is objectively ascertainable [Molien v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 916, 930-931, 167 Cal. Rptr. 831, 616 P.2d 813] . Nevertheless, the emotional injury must be severe, that is, substantial or enduring, as distinguished from trivial or transitory [Twaite v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 239, 257-258, 264 Cal. Rptr. 598] .

However, some courts have refused to apply this rule of Molien with regard to emotional distress suffered because of negligent injury to property [see Sher v. Leiderman (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 867, 883-885, 226 Cal. Rptr. 698 ; Cooper v. Superior Court (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 1008, 1012, 200 Cal. Rptr. 746] . For further discussion, see § 362.13[2].

[3] Fear for Personal Well-Being

[a] In General

Under the modern rule of liability, one may recover for emotional distress suffered as the result of a negligent act that placed the plaintiff in fear for his or her personal well-being, regardless of whether there is any physical impact and regardless of whether the emotional distress is accompanied by any physical manifestations of injury [Molien v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 916, 924-930, 167 Cal. Rptr. 831, 616 P.2d 813 ; Webb v. Francis J. Lewald Coal Co. (1931) 214 Cal. 182, 184, 4 P.2d 532] . All of the elements of the tort of negligence must be present, including a duty on the part of the defendant toward the plaintiff. Duty is analyzed under traditional negligence principles involving reasonable foreseeability of the risk toward the particular person who suffered the distress [Carney v. Rotkin, Schmerin & McIntyre (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1513, 1525, 254 Cal. Rptr. 478] .

In one case, for example, the court of appeal applied the factors traditionally used to determine whether a duty of care existed and concluded that the operator of an airline did not have a legal duty to avoid the infliction of emotional trauma on physically untouched spectators of a plane crash, even those spectators who momentarily reasonably feared for their own safety [Lawson v. Management Activities, Inc. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 652, 655, 657-660, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745 (disagreeing with Ninth Circuit holding in In re Air Crash Disaster Near Cerritos, Cal. (9th Cir. 1992) 973 F.2d 1490)]. The court distinguished earlier cases that had established a rule permitting recovery for emotional distress stemming from fear for one's own safety triggered in a bystander by a negligent automobile driver [see, e.g., Wooden v. Raveling (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1035, 1036, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 891] . The court noted that unlike the constant concern with the safety of bystanders that may be associated with ground travel, the safety of bystanders in air travel is usually irrelevant and only arises when a crash is about to occur [Lawson v. Management Activities, Inc. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 652, 667-668, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 745] . For further discussion of the elements of negligence causes of action generally, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

The extent to which recovery for negligently caused fear for safety extends to one not in a "zone of danger" or situation of imminent peril is not clear. Recovery has been allowed for emotional distress arising from fear of arrest due to a negligent misrepresentation that a bench warrant for the person was outstanding [Carney v. Rotkin, Schmerin & McIntyre (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1513, 1524-1525, 254 Cal. Rptr. 478] . However, as discussed in § 362.11[3][b], the recovery of damages for emotional distress caused by a fear of cancer, resulting from an exposure to toxic or carcinogenic substances, has been limited. In addition, one court has denied recovery for fear of future injury to a plaintiff who had received an artificial heart-valve implant that had not yet malfunctioned, but was discovered to have a high statistical rate of failure [Khan v. Shiley Inc. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 848, 857 n.12, 266 Cal. Rptr. 106] . However, the California Supreme Court has pointed out that this result was based on the plaintiff's failure to show that the defendant had breached any duty to the plaintiff, as the valve at issue had not been shown to be defective, and that therefore a legally cognizable injury under products liability law had not yet occurred [Potter v. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 965, 986 n.11, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 550, 863 P.2d 795] . Thus, Khan should be seen as dealing not with the recoverability of emotional distress damages based on fear for one's personal well-being, but with the issues of duty and breach.

[b] Fear of Cancer

The California Supreme Court has established limits on recovery of emotional distress damages based on a fear that future cancer will result from an exposure to a toxic or carcinogenic substance that has not yet caused any present physical injury or illness [see Potter v. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 965, 977, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 550, 863 P.2d 795] . The Court enunciated two standards, one as the general rule, and one specific exception to that general rule.

In the absence of a present physical injury or illness, damages for fear of cancer generally may be recovered in a negligence action only if the plaintiff pleads and proves the following [Potter v. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 965, 997, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 550, 863 P.2d 795] :

- As a result of the defendant's negligent breach of a duty owed to the plaintiff, the plaintiff was exposed to a toxic substance that threatens cancer; and

- The plaintiff's fear stems from a knowledge, corroborated by reliable medical and scientific opinion, that it is more likely than not that the plaintiff will develop the cancer in the future due to the toxic exposure.

Under this rule, a plaintiff must do more than simply establish knowledge of a toxic ingestion and a significant increased risk of cancer. The plaintiff must further show that, based on reliable scientific or medical opinion, the plaintiff harbors a serious fear that the toxic ingestion or exposure was of such magnitude and proportion as to likely result in the feared cancer [Potter v. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 965, 997, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 550, 863 P.2d 795] .

A plaintiff may recover damages for negligently inflicted emotional distress engendered by a fear of cancer without meeting the more likely than not threshold if the plaintiff pleads and proves the following [Potter v. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 965, 999-1000, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 550, 863 P.2d 795] :

- As a result of the defendant's negligent breach of a duty owed to the plaintiff, the plaintiff was exposed to a toxic substance that threatens cancer;

- The defendant, in breaching its duty to the plaintiff, acted with oppression, fraud, or malice as defined in Civ. Code § 3294; and

- The plaintiff's fear of cancer stems from a knowledge, corroborated by reliable medical or scientific opinion, that the toxic exposure caused by the defendant's breach of duty has significantly increased the plaintiff's risk of cancer and has resulted in an actual risk of cancer that is significant.

Even under this standard, the plaintiff must demonstrate that his or her fear of cancer is reasonable, genuine, and serious in order to recover damages [Potter v. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 965, 999, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 550, 863 P.2d 795] . It is not enough for a plaintiff to show simply an ingestion of a carcinogen or a significant increase in the risk of cancer. In addition, the plaintiff must show that his or her actual risk of cancer is significant before recovery will be allowed [Potter v. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 965, 999, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 550, 863 P.2d 795] .

The Court also noted that the definitions of "significant risk" and "no significant risk" in environmental statutes and regulations, such as 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 12701 et seq. (defining risk levels requiring notice of potential toxins in water supplies), do not pertain to recovery of fear of cancer damages and are therefore not relevant on the issue of significant risk in this context [Potter v. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 965, 999 n.19, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 550, 863 P.2d 795] . A plaintiff's fear is not compensable if the risk of cancer is significantly increased, but remains a remote possibility [Potter v. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 965, 999, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 550, 863 P.2d 795] .

[c] Fear of Other Diseases

Courts of appeal have applied the reasoning of Potter v. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. [Potter v. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 965, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 550, 863 P.2d 795 , discussed in § 362.11[3][b]]] to cases alleging that the defendants' conduct caused the plaintiffs emotional distress based on fear of contracting AIDS [see Kerins v. Hartley (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1062, 1073-1075, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 172 ; Herbert v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 782, 785-788, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 709] . Thus, a failure to show that the plaintiff is likely to contract AIDS as a result of the plaintiff's alleged negligence precludes recovery of damages based on the fear of AIDS [Kerins v. Hartley (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1062, 1073-1075, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 172 ; Herbert v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 782, 785-788, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 709] .

[4] Negligent Handling of Human Remains

Another category of cases in which recovery for negligent infliction of emotional distress has long been allowed involves the negligent handling of human remains. Before 1980, damages for emotional distress suffered because of negligently performed funeral-related services were allowed as an element of contract damages [see Chelini v. Nieri (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 480, 196 P.2d 915 ; see also § 362.13[3]], and breach of contract remains a valid theory of recovery for a contracting party [see Saari v. Jongordon Corp. (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 797, 802-804, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 82 (reaffirming right of recovery)]. However, other parties may now recover in tort under a negligence cause of action [Christensen v. Superior Court (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 868, 882-884, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 79, 820 P.2d 181 ; see Allen v. Jones (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 207, 163 Cal. Rptr. 445] .

The negligent mishandling of human remains is not an independent tort; instead, it is simply an application of the tort of negligence to facts involving the disposition of remains [Christensen v. Superior Court (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 868, 884, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 79, 820 P.2d 181] . The elements of duty, breach of duty, causation, and damages must be pleaded and proved [Christensen v. Superior Court (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 868, 882, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 79, 820 P.2d 181] .

The mortuary or other provider assumes a duty with regard to the disposition of remains under the agreement to provide funeral or other related services. It thereby creates a special relationship, obligating it to perform those services properly and nonnegligently [Christensen v. Superior Court (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 868, 886-888, 890-891, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 79, 820 P.2d 181] .

Therefore, these services are performed for the benefit of the living family members. Thus, the duty extends to close family members who were aware that the services were being performed and on whose behalf or for whose benefit the services were rendered [Christensen v. Superior Court (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 868, 890, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 79, 820 P.2d 181 ; see also Quesada v. Oak Hill Improvement Co. (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 596, 610, 261 Cal. Rptr. 769] . The duty is not limited to the contracting party or to the holder of the statutory right to control the disposition of the decedent's remains [Christensen v. Superior Court (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 868, 887, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 79, 820 P.2d 181 ; see Saari v. Jongordon Corp. (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 797, 804-807, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 82 (family members may recover even if contracting party was nonfamily member); see also Health & Safety Code § 7100 (classes of persons with right to control disposition of remains)].

Close family members include relatives residing in the same household, or parents, siblings, children, and grandparents of the decedent. Exceptional circumstances may enlarge the group to include other relatives [Quesada v. Oak Hill Improvement Co. (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 596, 610, 261 Cal. Rptr. 769 (allowing niece opportunity to prove that she was within group); see Christensen v. Superior Court (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 868, 882 n.12, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 79, 820 P.2d 181 ; Thing v. La Chusa (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 644, 668 n.10, 257 Cal. Rptr. 865, 771 P.2d 814 ; see also § 362.11[6][c][ii]].

Health & Safety Code § 7104 imposes a duty of interment on the coroner if no other accommodations for interment of a decedent have been made and if the duty of interment has not devolved to another person who can be located with reasonable diligence within the state [Health & Safety Code § 7104(a)]. However, this statute does not impose a duty on the person having custody of the remains of a decedent that is enforceable in tort by persons who in fact have the right of interment of those remains [Spates v. Dameron Hospital Assn. (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 208, 218, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 597] . In one case, for example, a hospital that turned a decedent's body over to the coroner for cremation owed no duty under Health & Safety Code § 7104 to contact the decedent's daughter and was not liable for failing to contact her. The hospital, which had taken custody of the decedent from a nursing home and had no preexisting relationship with the daughter, had tried unsuccessfully to locate the daughter before turning the decedent's body over to the coroner. The court of appeal held that Health &Safety Code § 7104 creates a condition of last resort with respect to the expense of interment of an unclaimed decedent and was designed to protect the county treasury, not the family members of the decedent [Spates v. Dameron Hospital Assn. (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 208, 219, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 597] .

While a mortuary or crematorium may be liable for emotional distress for negligent mishandling of a corpse, a research institution that obtains willed bodies for medical dissection, research, and teaching purposes, and does not purport to provide funeral-related services, does not owe the same duties to the family members of donated corpses [Melican v. Regents of University of California (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 168, 179, 59 Cal. Rptr. 3d 672] . A research institution that contractually agrees only to dispose of a decedent's remains in accordance with state law has no duty to return any remains to the decedent's family [see Conroy v. Regents of University of California (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 1244, 1253, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 532, 203 P.3d 1127] . It may voluntarily undertake to do so, however, although such a voluntary undertaking will not support the imposition of liability if the remains returned have been commingled with the remains of another corpse [Melican v. Regents of University of California (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 168, 180-181, 59 Cal. Rptr. 3d 672] . Evidence of a general pattern of mishandling of donated bodies by a willed-body program will not support liability for negligence absent evidence demonstrating to a "well-founded substantial certainty" that the body of plaintiff's decedent was actually mishandled [Conroy v. Regents of University of California (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 1244, 1251, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 532, 203 P.3d 1127] .

[5] Professional Negligence

In Molien v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals, the California Supreme Court held that the husband of a patient could recover damages for emotional distress resulting from the doctor's misdiagnosis that his wife had a venereal disease [Molien v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 916, 928-930, 167 Cal. Rptr. 831, 616 P.2d 813 ; see § 362.11[6][d]]. Implicit in this holding is the right of the wife, the actual patient, to recover damages for emotional distress as well, even if she were not physically injured by the misdiagnosis. At least one court has assumed this to be the case [see Holliday v. Jones (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 102, 114, 264 Cal. Rptr. 448 (noting that Molien would clearly permit one to recover damages for emotional distress caused by negligent psychiatric diagnosis)]. The recovery of emotional distress damages must be based on the defendant's liability in tort. If a physician has not breached his or her duty of care toward a patient, but has instead only breached a contract, the breach of contract cannot be the basis for recovery of emotional distress damages [Selden v. Dinner (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 166, 174-176, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 153 (liability based on defendant's failure to perform operation on date required by contract)].

Before Molien, the rule with regard to legal malpractice precluded recovery of emotional distress damages in a legal malpractice action except on a showing of affirmative misconduct or bad faith [Quezada v. Hart (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 754, 761, 136 Cal. Rptr. 815] . In light of Molien's elimination of any physical-injury requirement, this limitation apparently no longer applies, and one court has so held on two occasions [Holliday v. Jones (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 102, 112-114, 264 Cal. Rptr. 448 ; Betts v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 688, 717, 201 Cal. Rptr. 528] .

Even if Molien is not construed to permit emotional distress damages in all professional negligence actions, one court has still rejected the Quezada rule to the extent that it focuses on the attorney's conduct rather than on the client's interest that is affected. The court stated that the recovery of damages for emotional distress in a legal malpractice action, if limited at all, should turn on the nature of the plaintiff's interest that is harmed and not merely on the reprehensibility of the defendant's conduct. If only a property interest is affected, recovery might be denied; if a fundamental and personal right is involved, such as the client's personal liberty, recovery should be allowed [Holliday v. Jones (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 102, 264 Cal. Rptr. 448] .

Following this line of reasoning further, another appellate court reaffirmed the result in Quezada in light of Molien and rejected emotional distress damages in a legal malpractice action. In the view of this court, the focus should be on the nature of the interest invaded and whether it naturally entails significant emotional distress [see Merenda v. Superior Court (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 1, 7-8, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 87] . Because legal malpractice typically involves only an invasion of the plaintiff's economic interest [see § 362.13[2]] in recovering damages in the underlying action, serious emotional distress is not an inevitable consequence of the tortious conduct. Therefore, damages for emotional distress should not ordinarily be allowed in a legal malpractice action [Smith v. Superior Court (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1033, 1037-1041, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 133 ; Merenda v. Superior Court (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 1, 10-11, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 87 ; see also Pleasant v. Celli (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 841, 854, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 663 (agreeing that Quezada is no longer good law, but that emotional distress damages were not recoverable in malpractice action based on attorney's negligence in permitting statute of limitations to expire on plaintiff's civil action)].

The Good-Samaritan statutes [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 2395, 2396] preclude liability for any civil liability on account of emergency medical treatment rendered, including liability for negligent infliction of emotional distress [Breazeal v. Henry Mayo Newhall Mem'l Hosp. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 1329, 1342, 286 Cal. Rptr. 207] .

[6] Injuries to Third Persons

[a] Bystander and Direct-Victim Theories of Recovery

Under certain circumstances, one person may recover damages for emotional distress suffered due to an injury to another person that is caused by the defendant's negligent conduct. Such a recovery is available to two categories of plaintiffs. Under the longer-established theory, recovery is available to personswho are percipient witnesses (bystanders) to injuries caused to third persons. Under a more recent theory, recovery is also available to persons who are considered to be "direct victims" of the defendant's negligence [see Molien v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 916, 922-923, 167 Cal. Rptr. 831, 616 P.2d 813] .

A direct victim is one who has a cause of action against the defendant based on the defendant's breach of a duty owed to him or her, and who also suffers emotional distress as a result of witnessing injuries suffered by another person in the same accident. The plaintiff in such a situation may recover all reasonably foreseeable damages, including damages for emotional distress caused by observing the negligently inflicted injury of the third person [Long v. PKS, Inc. (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 1293, 1298-1300, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 103 (direct victim need not establish "close family relationship" with injured person; damages based on witnessing injuries to foster daughter affirmed)].

[b] Liability to Physically Injured Person Required

Under both bystander and direct-victim theories of liability, if the defendant's conduct is found not to be negligent with regard to the injured party, there can be no liability for negligent infliction of emotional distress on a noninjured party [

Osborn v. Irwin Memorial Blood Bank (1992) 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101] . For example, if there is no breach of duty to the physically injured person, there is also no breach of duty to a bystander [Wynne v. Orcutt Union Sch. Dist. (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 1108, 1111, 95 Cal. Rptr. 458] .

If the injured person is an employee who is injured by his or her employer in the course and scope of employment, any cause of action that a percipient witness would otherwise be able to maintain is barred by the exclusive remedy principle of workers' compensation law [Williams v. Schwartz (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 628, 630-632, 131 Cal. Rptr. 200 ; see Lab. Code § 3600(a) (workers' compensation is in lieu of liability to any person for injury to employee in scope of employment); see also Bell v. Macy's Cal. (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1442, 1453, 261 Cal. Rptr. 447 (following Williams in case involving negligent medical treatment of industrial injury)]. For further discussion of the exclusive remedy principle, see Ch. 577, Workers' Compensation .

[c] Recovery by Percipient Witnesses

[i] In General

Percipient witnesses to negligent acts are within the class of persons to whom the defendant owes a general duty of care, subject to certain express limitations required by public policy. A plaintiff may recover damages for emotional distress caused by observing the negligently inflicted injury to a third person only if the plaintiff: (1) is closely related to the injury victim; (2) is present at the scene of the injury-producing event at the time when it occurs; (3) is then aware that it is causing injury to the victim; and (4) as a result, suffers serious emotional distress. Serious emotional distress is a reaction beyond the reaction that would be anticipated in a disinterested witness and that is not an abnormal response to the circumstances [Thing v. La Chusa (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 644, 667-668, 257 Cal. Rptr. 865, 771 P.2d 814] .

[ii] Close Relationship

In most cases, no justification exists for permitting recovery for negligent infliction of emotional distress by persons who are only distantly related to the injury victim. Absent exceptional circumstances, recovery should be limited to relatives residing in the same household, or parents, siblings, children, and grandparents of the victim [Thing v. La Chusa (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 644, 668 n.10, 257 Cal. Rptr. 865, 771 P.2d 814] . A bystander who is not actually related to the injured person, such as by blood or marriage, cannot recover regardless of how close the relationship between the persons may be [Rodriguez v. Kirchhoefel (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 427, 433, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 891] .

One court of appeal opinion has concluded that this means that absent exceptional circumstances or same-household residency, only members of the immediate family may recover and that in-laws are not included even if a close, loving relationship with the victim is demonstrated [Moon v. Guardian Postacute Servs., Inc. (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 1005, 1011-1013, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 218 (son-in-law not proper plaintiff, despite evidence of close, loving relationship with victim)]. Meeting the requirement of same-household residency requires residency for a substantial period of time, and an allegation that the victim resided in the plaintiff's household for an undisclosed period of time is insufficient [Moon v. Guardian Postacute Servs., Inc. (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 1005, 1012-1013, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 218] .

In Elden v. Sheldon, the California Supreme Court rejected the claim that an unmarried cohabitant in a "stable" relationship that allegedly had many attributes of a marriage could recover for negligent infliction of emotional distress [Elden v. Sheldon (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 267, 274-277, 250 Cal. Rptr. 254, 758 P.2d 582] . In reaching this conclusion, the Court noted that policy considerations--specifically, the need to limit the consequences of a negligent act in order to avoid an intolerable burden on society--can justify precluding liability even for foreseeable injuries [Elden v. Sheldon (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 267, 274, 250 Cal. Rptr. 254, 758 P.2d 582] .

However, there is at least one statutory exception to the holding in Elden. Beginning in 2002, members of unmarried couples meeting the statutory criteria of domestic partners may sue for negligent infliction of emotional distress to the same extent as spouses [Civ. Code § 1714.01]. "Domestic partners" are defined as two adults who have chosen to share one another's lives in an intimate and committed relationship of mutual caring. However, the definition is also limited to members of the same sex over the age of 18 and opposite-sex couples in which at least one person is over the age of 62 and meets the eligibility criteria for old-age social security benefits [Fam. Code § 297(a), (b)(4), (5)].

Although Elden dealt only with a plaintiff who had alleged that his relationship with the injured party was "parallel to a marital relationship," the Court disapproved the holdings of two cases to the extent that they were inconsistent with its holding [Elden v. Sheldon (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 267, 277, 250 Cal. Rptr. 254, 758 P.2d 582 , disapproving Ledger v. Tippitt (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 625, 210 Cal. Rptr. 814 , and Mobaldi v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 573, 127 Cal. Rptr. 720)]. One of these cases permitted a cause of action for negligent infliction of emotional distress by afoster parent whose foster child died in her arms [Mobaldi v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 573, 582-583, 127 Cal. Rptr. 720] . Although it appears clear that adoption would be sufficient to create a family relationship under the decision in Elden [see Fam. Code § 8616 (adopted child and adopting parent have all rights and are subject to all duties of parent-child relationship)], it remains to be seen whether the Court's "exceptional circumstances" language in Thing v. La Chusa may encompass the foster parent relationship in future cases [see Thing v. La Chusa (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 644, 668 n.10, 257 Cal. Rptr. 865, 771 P.2d 814] .

[iii] Presence at Injury-Producing Event

Actual presence at the injury-producing event is required. It is insufficient if the plaintiff arrives after the event but in time to view the immediate consequences of the act [Thing v. La Chusa (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 644, 666, 668, 257 Cal. Rptr. 865, 771 P.2d 814 (disapproving cases holding to contrary); Johnson v. County of Ventura (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1400, 1405, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 150 (witnessing result or effect of event, but not event itself is insufficient); see Fife v. Astenius (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1090, 1092-1093, 284 Cal. Rptr. 16] .

The fact that the plaintiff was present voluntarily at the scene of the event does not preclude a recovery [Ochoa v. Superior Court (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 159, 170-171, 216 Cal. Rptr. 661, 703 P.2d 1] . However, observation of the event electronically is not "presence," at least if the plaintiff does not see the actual injury to the person with whom he or she has the requisite close relationship [see Scherr v. Hilton Hotels Corp. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 908, 910-911, 214 Cal. Rptr. 393 (plaintiff's observation on television of hotel fire, in which husband was injured, was insufficient absent observation of husband's injury)].

It is not necessary that the injury have been the result of a brief or sudden occurrence. The injury-producing event may continue over a period of time, and in such a case, the plaintiff's presence at any time within the period is sufficient [Ortiz v. HPM Corp. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 178, 183-186, 285 Cal. Rptr. 728] . The event may involve multiple acts or omissions occurring over an extended period of time, as long as the plaintiff is aware of and observing the conduct that constitutes the negligence [Ochoa v. Superior Court (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 159, 167-170, 216 Cal. Rptr. 661, 703 P.2d 1 (negligent refusal to provide medical treatment to critically ill child while parents were present and aware of gravity of situation, and aware of refusal of defendants to act); see Thing v. La Chusa (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 644, 688, 257 Cal. Rptr. 865, 771 P.2d 814 (reaffirming all prior California Supreme Court decisions upholding recovery)].

[iv] Contemporaneous Awareness of Injury

The plaintiff must be aware at the time of the injury-producing event that the injury is occurring [Thing v. La Chusa (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 644, 668, 257 Cal. Rptr. 865, 771 P.2d 814] . If the plaintiff observes the event, but is not aware that an injury is being incurred until informed of the fact at a later time, no cause of action is stated [Justus v. Atchison (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 564, 585, 139 Cal. Rptr. 97, 565 P.2d 122 ; see Fife v. Astenius (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1090, 1092-1093, 284 Cal. Rptr. 16 (even if parents who heard without seeing accident might be considered to be present at event, they did not contemporaneously perceive it because they were unaware at that time that daughter was involved); see also Breazeal v. Henry Mayo Newhall Mem'l Hosp. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 1329, 1342, 286 Cal. Rptr. 207 ;

Hurlbut v. Sonora Cmty. Hosp. (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 388, 400-401, 254 Cal. Rptr. 840] .

Visual perception of the impact causing the injury is not required. It is sufficient if the shock that the plaintiff suffered resulted from the sensory and contemporaneous observance of the accident [Krouse v. Graham (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 59, 75-76, 137 Cal. Rptr. 863, 562 P.2d 1022 (wife was struck and killed while removing groceries from back seat, while husband was seated in driver's seat); see Thing v. La Chusa (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 644, 668, 257 Cal. Rptr. 865, 771 P.2d 814 (reaffirming all prior Supreme Court decisions upholding recovery); see also Wilks v. Hom (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 1264, 1271, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 803 (following Krouse; mother was in trailer when explosion occurred and then aware that children were also in trailer, although in different rooms)]. Plaintiff's contemporaneous awareness of injury must be reasonably certain, however, and a mere belief that it is more likely than not that a close relative has suffered an injury is not enough to support recovery as a bystander [Ra v. Superior Court (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 142, 150-153, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 539 (recovery denied when wife heard loud crash emanating from nearby area of store, believed more likely than not that husband had been injured, but did not otherwise observe or contemporaneously perceive injury as it occurred)].

Although a plaintiff need not contemporaneously understand that a defendant's conduct constitutes legal negligence, the plaintiff must have a contemporaneous understanding that the conduct that is being observed is conduct that is actually causing harm [Bird v. Saenz (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 910, 920, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 465, 51 P.3d 324 (rejecting holding of Mobaldi v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 573, 127 Cal. Rptr. 720); Golstein v. Superior Court (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1415, 1423, 1427, 273 Cal. Rptr. 270] . Therefore, in the context of medical malpractice cases, bystanders cannot sue for negligent infliction of emotional distress based on unperceived medical errors hidden within a course of treatment [Bird v. Saenz (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 910, 921, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 465, 51 P.3d 324] . Most misdiagnoses, unsuccessful treatments, or treatments that turn out to be inappropriate only in retrospect will not be contemporaneously observable by a lay person, and thus will usually be insufficient to support a bystander's claim for negligent infliction of emotional distress. However, under some extreme situations, even a lay person may contemporaneously perceive that incorrect medical treatment is causing an injury, such as if a patient's family member observes a surgeon amputate the wrong limb of the patient [Bird v. Saenz (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 910, 918, 920-921, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 465, 51 P.3d 324] .

[v] Special Susceptibility

A plaintiff may recover damages for emotional distress caused by observing the negligently inflicted injury to a third person only if the plaintiff suffers "serious emotional distress." Serious emotional distress is a reaction beyond the reaction that would be anticipated in a disinterested witness, and that is not an abnormal response to the circumstances [Thing v. La Chusa (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 644, 668, 668 n.12, 257 Cal. Rptr. 865, 771 P.2d 814] . Thus, the susceptibility of a particular plaintiff to emotional distress is not considered by the court in a bystander case.

[d] Recovery by Direct Victims

[i] Rule of Molien v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals

One who cannot recover as a bystander for emotional distress suffered as a result of an injury to a third person [see § 362.11[6][c]], may be able to recover as a direct victim of the defendant's negligence. The direct-victim theory of recovery was set forth in Molien v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals [Molien v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 916, 923, 167 Cal. Rptr. 831, 616 P.2d 813] . In that case, a husband sought recovery for mental suffering resulting from a physician's misdiagnosis that his wife had a venereal disease. Although the husband could not recover as a bystander [see § 362.11[6][c][iii]], the California Supreme Court held that he could nevertheless recover, because he was a direct victim of the defendant's negligence. The tortious conduct was directed at him, as well as at the wife, and the risk of harm to him was reasonably foreseeable. Therefore, the defendant owed him a duty of due care [Molien v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 916, 923, 167 Cal. Rptr. 831, 616 P.2d 813] .

[ii] Limitations on Duty and Foreseeability

Molien strongly suggested that a direct victim can be anyone to whom the risk of emotional distress would be reasonably foreseen by the defendant. However, in subsequent cases, the Court has rejected this view, holding that foreseeability of the injury alone is not a useful guideline or a meaningful restriction on the scope of an action for damages for negligently inflicted emotional distress [Burgess v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1064, 1074, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615, 831 P.2d 1197 ; see also Huggins v. Longs Drug Stores Cal., Inc. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 124, 130-132, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 587, 862 P.2d 148 ; Marlene F. v. Affiliated Psychiatric Med. Clinic, Inc. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 583, 589-590, 257 Cal. Rptr. 98, 770 P.2d 278 (rejecting contention that foreseeability alone could serve as basis for recovery); Krupnick v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 185, 201, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 39 (calling foreseeability "essentially useless" in determining duty with regard to purely emotional injury)]. Therefore, later cases that relied on the expansive language of Molien are no longer controlling.

In Marlene F. v. Affiliated Psychiatric Medical Clinic, Inc., two mothers sued for damages for negligently inflicted emotional distress arising from the sexual molestation of their sons by a therapist with whom the mothers and sons were being treated in family counseling. In finding the mothers to be direct victims of the therapist, the Court nevertheless stated that Molien did not purport to create a cause of action for the negligent infliction of emotional distress based solely on the foreseeability that serious emotional distress might result. Rather, damages for severe emotional distress are recoverable in a negligence action if they result from the breach of a duty owed to the plaintiff that is assumed by the defendant or imposed on the defendant as a matter of law, or that arises out of a relationship between the two [Marlene F. v. Affiliated Psychiatric Med. Clinic, Inc. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 583, 590, 257 Cal. Rptr. 98, 770 P.2d 278 ; see also Khan v. Shiley Inc. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 848, 856, 266 Cal. Rptr. 106] . This language suggests that there are three possible sources of a duty sufficient to constitute one as a direct victim.

Subsequently, in Burgess v. Superior Court, the Court reaffirmed certain principles from Molien, while rejecting the view that duty could arise from foreseeability alone. The court affirmed that (1) damages for negligently inflicted emotional distress may be recovered in the absence of physical injury or impact; and (2) a cause of action to recover damages for negligently inflicted emotional distress will lie in cases in which a duty arising from a preexisting relationship is negligently breached (emphasis added). It is this latter principle that defines the phrase "direct victim" [Burgess v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1064, 1074, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615, 831 P.2d 1197] . One court views, as dicta, any references in Burgess or Marlene F. to alternatives beyond a preexisting relationship as characterizing the origin of a duty of care to one claiming damages for negligent infliction of emotional distress [see Krupnick v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 185, 206, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 39] .

[iii] Duty to Third Persons in Professional Negligence Cases

In Marlene F.v. Affiliated Psychiatric Medical Clinic, Inc. [see § 362.11[6][d][i], all the justices agreed that the doctor-patient relationship between the mother and the therapist created a duty, the breach of which could be the basis for the mother's recovery of damages for the therapist's injury to the child [Marlene F. v. Affiliated Psychiatric Med. Clinic, Inc. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 583, 599-601, 257 Cal. Rptr. 98, 770 P.2d 278 (Eagleson, J., concurring in result)]. In the absence of such a professional relationship, courts have generally not construed Molien to establish any duty on the part of a professional to one not in contractual privity, such as a nonclient or nonpatient [see Huggins v. Longs Drug Stores Cal., Inc. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 124, 132-133, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 587, 862 P.2d 148 (pharmacist not liable for emotional distress suffered by parents due to injury to child, caused by pharmacist's negligence); Burger v. Pond (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 597, 606-607, 273 Cal. Rptr. 709 (attorney not liable to client's spouse for emotional distress suffered by spouse arising from negligently provided legal services to client); Holliday v. Jones (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 102, 106-112, 264 Cal. Rptr. 448] . For discussion of an attorney's duty to nonclients, see Ch. 76, Attorney Professional Liability . For discussion of the duty of a medical professional toward nonpatients, see Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice .

To establish the existence of a professional relationship sufficient to impose a duty that can be the basis of liability, the defendant must have assumed a duty to provide professional services to the plaintiff himself or herself [see Huggins v. Longs Drug Stores Cal., Inc. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 124, 131-132, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 587, 862 P.2d 148 ; see also Burgess v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1064, 1074, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615, 831 P.2d 1197 (characterizing direct-victim liability as based on defendant's breach of duty arising from preexisting relationship)]. The fact that a professional relationship existed with the child or spouse of the plaintiff, standing alone, is insufficient to support a cause of action [see Huggins v. Longs Drug Stores Cal., Inc. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 124, 131-132, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 587, 862 P.2d 148 ; Schwarz v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 149, 162-168, 276 Cal. Rptr. 470] .

A professional relationship with a plaintiff that can give rise to liability for emotional distress based on negligent injury to another has been found to exist between a doctor and a pregnant woman, permitting the woman to recover damages for the emotional distress suffered as a result of the doctor's negligent injury of the child during the birth [Burgess v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1064, 1075-1078, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615, 831 P.2d 1197 (also citing prior court of appeal cases permitting recovery)]. A sufficient relationship has also been found between a psychotherapist and a parent of a patient, when the therapy was for the purpose of treating intrafamily dysfunction and the plaintiff was also being treated by the defendant, permitting the plaintiff to recover damages for the emotional distress suffered due to the therapist's sexual misconduct toward the child [Marlene F. v. Affiliated Psychiatric Med. Clinic, Inc. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 583, 590-592, 257 Cal. Rptr. 98, 770 P.2d 278 ; see also Jacoves v. United Merch. Corp. (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 88, 109, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 468 (triable issue of fact existed regarding existence of patient-therapist relationship between defendant and parents of psychiatric patient who committed suicide after release from defendant's care)].

The plaintiff's participation in the treatment of another is not sufficient to create a duty that can be the basis of direct-victim liability. Thus, the fact that a parent must administer prescription medicine to his or her child does not make the pharmacist liable to the parent for damages for emotional distress suffered when the child is injured due to a negligent mistake in the dosage instructions [Huggins v. Longs Drug Stores Cal., Inc. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 124, 132-133, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 587, 862 P.2d 148 (also refusing to base liability on plaintiff's foreseeable distress at being instrument of child's injury)]. Nor is the fact that a parent participates in therapy, intended to benefit the child sufficient to permit the parent to recover from the therapist if the treatment was solely for the benefit of the child [Schwarz v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 149, 162-168, 276 Cal. Rptr. 470] . Using a similar rationale, the court of appeal held that a skilled nursing facility owed no duty of care to the sister of one of the facility's patients when the patient was sexually assaulted by an intruder, even though the sister had previously cared for the patient and the facility knew that injury to the patient would probably cause distress to the sister [Ess v. Eskaton Props., Inc. (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 120, 128-129, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 240] .

The California Supreme Court has also stated in dictum that a father is ordinarily not in a physician-patient relationship with a physician whose negligence in prenatal or birth care injures his child, and therefore can recover damages for emotional distress only under a bystander theory [Burgess v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1064, 1078 n.8, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615, 831 P.2d 1197 ; see § 362.11[6][c] regarding bystander liability].

One court of appeal has stated in dictum that there may be a distinction between negligent treatment of a child (for which a parent could recover emotional distress damages only under a bystander theory), and negligent diagnosis of a child, for which recovery could be possible because the diagnosis is necessarily directed at the parents [see Schwarz v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 149, 166, 276 Cal. Rptr. 470] . However, this analysis should be considered suspect after Huggins v. Longs Drug Stores California, Inc. [Huggins v. Longs Drug Stores Cal., Inc. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 124, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 587, 862 P.2d 148] , in which the California Supreme Court required the plaintiffs to establish that they were the patients of the defendant in order to recover, regardless of the parents' participation in the provision of care [Huggins v. Longs Drug Stores Cal., Inc. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 124, 132-133, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 587, 862 P.2d 148] .

Although a veterinarian is hired by the owner of a pet and the pet owner may be emotionally involved in the pet's health, a veterinarian's medical care is directed solely at the pet. Thus, malpractice by a veterinarian does not directly harm the pet owner and will not support recovery by the pet owner for negligent infliction of emotional distress [McMahon v. Craig (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 1502, 1510, -- Cal. Rptr. 3d --].

[iv] Duty to Third Persons Arising From Other Relationships

Although Marlene F. limited duty to third persons based on mere foreseeability, the Court stated that such a duty might arise from a special relationship between the tortfeasor and the third person [Marlene F. v. Affiliated Psychiatric Med. Clinic, Inc. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 583, 590, 257 Cal. Rptr. 98, 770 P.2d 278 ; see Burgess v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1064, 1074, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615, 831 P.2d 1197 (referring to preexisting relationship rather than special relationship); see also § 362.11[6][d][ii]]. Therefore, the results of some earlier cases in which a duty to the third person was found may still be valid to the extent the result rests on the relationship and not simply on foreseeability.

In one such case, it was held that a public entity that voluntarily assumes a duty toward a certain member of the public and undertakesaction on behalf of that member, thereby inducing reliance, is held to the same standard of care as a private person or organization, and is liable for damages for severe mental and emotional distress resulting from a breach of that duty. In that case, the wife of a man killed in a hit-and-run accident sued a county for severe mental and emotional distress and consequent physical injury resulting from the county's negligent failure to identify the husband's body promptly and to notify the wife that her husband was dead, after county employees had undertaken to assist the wife in finding her husband and after they had received data from the State of California identifying the husband as a victim of an accident [see Bock v. County of Los Angeles (1983) 150 Cal. App. 3d 65, 68, 72, 197 Cal. Rptr. 470] .

In another case, the manufacturer of a defective product was held to owe a duty of care not only to a person who is injured by the product, but also to the user of the defective product who sustains emotional trauma through the sensory perception of the death of the person injured or killed [Kately v. Wilkinson (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 576, 587-589, 195 Cal. Rptr. 902 ; see § 362.13[5]]. However, unlike the duty owed to a user, a manufacturer does not owe a duty of care to prevent causing emotional distress to a buyer of a defective product, if that buyer is not the party using the product at the time of the injury and if that buyer does not witness the injury-causing event [Gu v. BMW of N. Am., LLC (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 195, 210, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 617] .

A school district and school authorities had a special relationship with the pupils and their parents and therefore owed a duty to a pupil's mother to advise her that her daughter had been sexually molested by a fellow pupil both on and off the school grounds. In this particular case, the school authorities knew of the molestations, subjected the daughter to counseling by the school psychologist without the mother's knowledge or consent, and advised the molester that his parents would be notified if he continued to bother the victim [Phyllis P. v. Superior Court (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1193, 1196-1197, 228 Cal. Rptr. 776] .

However, the key element supporting liability for the emotional distress suffered by the parents in that case was the deliberate attempt by the school to conceal the molestation from the child's parents, an act of concealment that was directly aimed at the parents [see Steven F. v. Anaheim Union High Sch. Dist. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 904, 915, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 105] . In another case, by contrast, a school district was not liable for the emotional distress caused to a high school student's parents when the parents discovered, prior to the school district's doing so, that their daughter had engaged in a sexual relationship with a teacher. In that particular case, the student had gone to great lengths to conceal the relationship from her family and friends, there was no evidence that the district or any teacher or supervisory employee had knowledge of a sexual relationship, and there was nothing to warn the district of a propensity on the part of the teacher to engage in such a relationship with a student. Under those circumstances, even assuming that the district may have been negligent in supervising the teacher, there was no conduct by school officials that was aimed at the parents that would support holding the school liable for the emotional distress suffered by the parents [Steven F. v. Anaheim Union High Sch. Dist. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 904, 906, 910, 914-915, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 105] .

Bad-faith insurance third-party claims practices do not fall within the scope of negligent infliction of emotional distress direct-victim cases. There is no special or preexisting relationship between a tortfeasor's insurer and his or her victim that would impose a duty on the insurer toward the victim-claimant with regard to the insurer's conduct in handling the claim [see Krupnick v. Hartford Accident & Indem. Co. (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 185, 198-210, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 39] . The result is the same even if the tortfeasor's insurer is also the insurer for the third party. The claim is made under the tortfeasor's policy, and the insurer owes no duty to the third-party claimant under the tortfeasor's policy [Coleman v. Republic Indem. Ins. Co. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 403, 416, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 744] .

[7] Defense of Privilege

The qualified privilege under Civ. Code § 47(c), which applies in a defamation action to a communication made without malice to an interested person by one who is also interested, also applies in an action based on negligent infliction of emotional distress [see Kelly v. General Tel. Co. (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 278, 286, 186 Cal. Rptr. 184 (construing former Civ. Code § 47(3)); see generally Ch. 340, Libel and Slander].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

32-362 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 362.12

§ 362.12 Defenses to Intentional and Negligent Infliction of Emotional Distress

[1] Freedom of Religion

A church or other religious organization is protected from tort liability by the free exercise clause of U.S. Const. amend. I, under some circumstances [Molko v. Holy Spirit Ass'n (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1092, 1112-1114, 252 Cal. Rptr. 122, 762 P.2d 46] . Tort liability may not be imposed on conduct that qualifies as an expression of the religion unless the state has a compelling secular interest in discouraging the conduct [Wollersheim v. Church of Scientology (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 872, 887, 260 Cal. Rptr. 331] .

Counsel should note that the United States Supreme Court granted certiorari in Wollershiem, vacated the judgment, and remanded the case to the Court of Appeal of California, Second Appellate District, for further consideration in light of Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Co. v. Haslip [see Church of Scientology of California v. Wollersheim, cert. granted, March18, 1991, 499 U.S. 914, 111 S. Ct. 1298, 113 L. Ed. 2d 234 ; see also Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Haslip (1991) 499 U.S. 1, 111 S. Ct. 1032, 113 L. Ed. 2d 1] . However, the issue in Pacific Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Haslip was the constitutionality of a state's punitive damages law [see Ch. 177, Damages]. On remand, the appellate court reaffirmed its prior determination of the religious freedom issue and incorporated it into its second opinion [see Wollersheim v. Church of Scientology (1992) 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 532] . The California Supreme Court then granted review in Wollersheim II without limiting issues (review granted July 23, 1992, S011790). Unless otherwise ordered by the Supreme Court, no opinion that is superseded by a grant of review may be published [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1105(e)(1)]. An unpublished opinion may not be cited or relied on in any other action or proceeding [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1115(a)]. Therefore, Wollersheim II is not citable as authority for Wollersheim I's freedom of religion discussion. Wollersheim I, however, may be citable for its discussion of freedom of religion as a defense to tort liability; in any event, the arguments relied on by the court may be used in a similar case.

With regard to negligent conduct by a religious organization that causes emotional distress, one court has held that religious freedom considerations outweigh any interest that the state may have in imposing tort liability. Therefore, as a matter of law, there is no duty on behalf of religious leaders to exercise due care toward members or former members in the conduct of religious activities [Wollersheim v. Church of Scientology (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 872, 900-901, 260 Cal. Rptr. 331 ; see Nally v. Grace Cmty. Church (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 278, 292-300, 253 Cal. Rptr. 97, 763 P.2d 948

(no duty on part of minister engaged in pastoral counseling to prevent member's suicide); Jacqueline R. v. Household of Faith Family Church, Inc. (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 198, 207, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 264 (pastor providing unpaid marriage counseling to church members not liable for engaging in consensual sexual conduct with woman receiving counseling)].

Protected tortious conduct must qualify as an expression of the religion and not just as an activity that religious people happen to be doing [Wollersheim v. Church of Scientology (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 872, 886-887, 260 Cal. Rptr. 331 ; see Molko v. Holy Spirit Ass'n (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1092, 1114, 252 Cal. Rptr. 122, 762 P.2d 46 (religious groups may be held liable in tort for secular acts)]. Thus, emotional distress that is caused by a religious leader's secular conduct, such as negligent driving, is actionable, subject to the same requirements and limitations applicable to any other defendant [see Wollersheim v. Church of Scientology (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 872, 886-887, 260 Cal. Rptr. 331 ; see, e.g., Malloy v. Fong (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 356, 372, 232 P.2d 241] .

Intentional conduct that is alleged to be outrageous has less constitutional protection. For example, the intentional and improper disclosure of personal information obtained from a member in the course of religious activity is not protected religious expression [Wollersheim v. Church of Scientology (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 872, 899-900, 260 Cal. Rptr. 331 ; see Snyder v. Evangelical Orthodox Church (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 297, 309-310, 264 Cal. Rptr. 640] .

Even if a particular intentional activity qualifies as religious expression, tort liability may still be imposed if the state has a compelling secular interest in discouraging the conduct [Wollersheim v. Church of Scientology (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 872, 887-891, 260 Cal. Rptr. 331 ("fair game" policy of church to bring economic and possibly psychological ruin to persons who abandon religion is not entitled to constitutional protection)]. Religious activity that involves an element of coercing participation or of making continued participation involuntary is less likely to qualify for constitutional protection. The state has a compelling interest in allowing its citizens to recover from serious emotional injuries that they suffer through religious practices that they are coerced into accepting. This conduct is too outrageous to be protected under the Constitution and too unworthy to be privileged under the law of torts [Wollersheim v. Church of Scientology (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 872, 892-897, 260 Cal. Rptr. 331] .

A member of the clergy who causes emotional distress through sexually inappropriate conduct with a consenting adult parishioner may be subject to tort liability under the theory that the conduct has breached a fiduciary duty arising out of a confidential relationship, if the alleged injurious conduct was not dictated by a sincerely held religious belief or carried out in accordance with established beliefs and practices of the religion to which the pastor belongs and if no other reason exists to prevent the issues from being framed for the trier of fact in secular rather than sectarian terms [Richelle L. v. Roman Catholic Archbishop (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 257, 279, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 601] . However, to show that a confidential relationship existed that created a fiduciary duty on the part of the defendant, a plaintiff will normally need to show that the misconduct occurred while the defendant was providing counseling services to the plaintiff [Richelle L. v. Roman Catholic Archbishop (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 257, 280, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 601] . In addition, a claim by the plaintiff that the depth of his or her religious faith rendered the plaintiff vulnerable to the defendant's advances can be fatal to a tort claim, because such a claim cannot be adjudicated without reference to the nature of the plaintiff's religious beliefs and the doctrines of that particular religion [Richelle L. v. Roman Catholic Archbishop (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 257, 280-281, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 601] .

[2] Preemption Under Workers' Compensation Law

Claims for infliction of emotional distress against an employer or coworker aregenerally preempted by the exclusive remedy principle of workers' compensation law [Livitsanos v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 744, 755, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 808, 828 P.2d 1195 ; see Lab. Code §§ 3600, 3601(a), 3602(a)].

There are exceptions to this rule if the employer's conduct contravenes fundamental public policy or exceeds the inherent risks of the employment [Livitsanos v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 744, 755, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 808, 828 P.2d 1195] . For example, an action to recover for emotional distress based on wrongful termination in violation of public policy, or based on illegal discrimination or harassment, is not necessarily barred [Murray v. Oceanside Unified Sch. Dist. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 1338, 1362-1363, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 28 ; Fretland v. County of Humboldt (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1478, 1492, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 359 ; Kovatch v. Cal. Cas. Mgmt. Co. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1256, 1277-1278, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 217] .

For further discussion, see Ch. 577, Workers' Compensation , Part IV.

[3] Preemption Under Federal Labor Law

State tort law claims against an employer or a labor union by an employee or member whose employment is governed by a collective bargaining agreement may be preempted by federal labor law [see Dunton v. United Ass'n of Journeymen & Apprentices of Plumbing & Pipefitting Indus. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 44, 49, 131 L.R.R.M. (BNA) 2677, 253 Cal. Rptr. 374 ; Friday v. Hughes Aircraft Co. (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 117, 236 Cal. Rptr. 291] . However, where factual questions about an employer's conduct do not involve interpreting the collective bargaining agreement, an action for intentional infliction of emotional distress is not preempted [Soldinger v. Northwest Airlines (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 345, 377, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 747 (factual dispute involving employer's motives for denying plaintiff's request to allow her to observe Jewish holiday of Passover did not involve interpretation of collective bargaining agreement, thus emotional distress claim was not preempted)].

[4] Preemption Under Airline Deregulation Act

Emotional injury claims against an airline stemming from the negligent rendition of services and conduct of the flight crew are preempted by Section 105 of the Federal Aviation Act [49 U.S.C.S. § 41713(b)(1)], commonly referred to as the Airline Deregulation Act (ADA). Safety related personal injury or death claims concerning airline operations or maintenance are not preempted by the ADA. A claim that may be fairly characterized as relating both to service and operations should not be preempted [Gee v. Southwest Airlines (9th Cir. 1997) 110 F.3d 1400, 1406-1407 (preempting emotional distress claims related to the service of alcoholic beverages to passengers, the crew's in-flight conduct towards unruly passengers, and the conduct of employees who failed to provide a passenger assistance with her disability)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

32-362 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 362.13

§ 362.13 Mental Suffering in Other Causes of Action

[1] In General

In a cause of action other than one for the infliction of mental distress, damages may be given for mental suffering naturally ensuing from the acts complained of [Molien v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 916, 924, 167 Cal. Rptr. 831, 616 P.2d 813 ; Capelouto v. Kaiser Found. Hosp. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 889, 892, 103 Cal. Rptr. 856, 500 P.2d 880 ; State Rubbish Collectors Ass'n v. Siliznoff (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 330, 338, 240 P.2d 282] . Compensation for mental suffering is within the scope of general damages, which are the damages that are deemed to necessarily result from tortious conduct [Beeman v. Burling (1990) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1586, 1599-1600, 265 Cal. Rptr. 719 ; Niles v. City of San Rafael (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 230, 244, 116 Cal. Rptr. 733 ; see Myers v. Stephens (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 104, 120-121, 43 Cal. Rptr. 420] .

With regard to general damages for mental suffering, the general rule of damages in tort applies: the injured party may recover for all detriment proximately caused whether it could have been anticipated or not [Gruenberg v. Aetna Ins. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 566, 579, 108 Cal. Rptr. 480, 510 P.2d 1032 ; Crisci v. Security Ins. Co. (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 425, 433, 58 Cal. Rptr. 13, 426 P.2d 173 ; Deevy v. Tassi (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 109, 130 P.2d 389] . In this connection, mental suffering includes fright, nervousness, grief, anxiety, worry, mortification, shock, humiliation, and indignity, as well as physical pain [Deevy v. Tassi (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 109, 130 P.2d 389] . For example, fear for another, even in the absence of resulting physical injury, can be part of the damages in aggravation of an established tort [Dillon v. Legg (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 728, 738, 69 Cal. Rptr. 72, 441 P.2d 912 ; see Acadia Cal., Ltd. v. Herbert (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 328, 337, 5 Cal. Rptr. 686, 353 P.2d 294] . And mental suffering occasioned by any reasonable apprehension of future disability or deformity resulting naturally and proximately from the plaintiff's injury is an element to be considered by the jury in assessing damages [Boa v. San Francisco-Oakland Terminal Ry. (1920) 182 Cal. 93, 106, 187 P. 2] .

Mental suffering frequently constitutes the principal element of tort damages and awards that fail to compensate for pain and suffering have been held inadequate as a matter of law [Capelouto v. Kaiser Foundation Hosp. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 889, 893, 103 Cal. Rptr. 856, 500 P.2d 880] . The most common example of the award of damages for mental suffering in addition to other damages is probably when the plaintiff suffers personal injuries in addition to mental distress as a result of either negligent or intentional misconduct by the defendant [see, e.g., Di Mare v. Cresci (1962)

58 Cal. 2d 292, 300-301, 23 Cal. Rptr. 772, 373 P.2d 860] .

General damages for emotional distress are not confined to cases in which the award is an addition to an award for personal injuries or of other compensatory damages. Damages for mental suffering may be awarded as a consequence of intentional or negligent conduct even in the absence of physical injury [Molien v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 916, 924-930, 167 Cal. Rptr. 831, 616 P.2d 813] . One court has held, however, that, in order to recover general damages for emotional distress, a plaintiff must have substantial damages apart from the emotional distress [Andersen v. Pacific Bell (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 277, 284-285, 251 Cal. Rptr. 66 (involving tort of "retaliatory employment discipline")]. This holding has been criticized by another court of appeal as clearly in conflict with California Supreme Court authority [Pintor v. Ong (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 837, 845, 259 Cal. Rptr. 577 (citing Marlene F. v. Affiliated Psychiatric Med. Clinic, Inc. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 583, 257 Cal. Rptr. 98, 770 P.2d 278 ,and Molien v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 916, 167 Cal. Rptr. 831, 616 P.2d 813 , as examples of cases in which recovery was permitted for emotional distress alone)].

If recovery of damages for emotional distress, without any recovery for physical injury, is sought as a result of negligent conduct, it is often labeled as a separate tort or cause of action for "negligent infliction of emotional distress." However, this label is incorrect. Such a recovery is simply the application of the rule that, with regard to the tort of negligence, damages for emotional distress may be recovered even in the absence of physical injury [Marlene F. v. Affiliated Psychiatric Med. Clinic, Inc. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 583, 588, 257 Cal. Rptr. 98, 770 P.2d 278] . For further discussion, see § 362.11.

Damages for mental distress may also be awarded in cases in which the tortious conduct is an interference with property rights without any personal injuries apart from the mental distress [Gruenberg v. Aetna Ins. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 566, 579, 108 Cal. Rptr. 480, 510 P.2d 1032 ; Crisci v. Security Ins. Co. (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 425, 433, 58 Cal. Rptr. 13, 426 P.2d 173] . For discussion, see § 362.13[2].

For further discussion of general damages for mental suffering and for forms alleging general damages, see Ch. 177, Damages .

[2] Injury to Property Interest or Financial Injury

A plaintiff may recover damages for emotional distress caused by an intentional tortious interference with property rights, whether or not he or she suffered any personal injuries apart from the mental distress. Thus, a plaintiff who as a result of a defendant's intentional tortious conduct loses property and suffers mental distress may be able to recover damages not only for pecuniary loss, but also for mental distress [Gruenberg v. Aetna Ins. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 566, 579, 108 Cal. Rptr. 480, 510 P.2d 1032 ; Crisci v. Security Ins. Co. (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 425, 433-434, 58 Cal. Rptr. 13, 426 P.2d 173 ; see Lacher v. Superior Court (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1038, 1049-1050, 281 Cal. Rptr. 640] . Damages for emotional distress may also be recoverable in connection with a financial loss or risk of financial loss [Richardson v. Allstate Ins. Co. (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 8, 13, 172 Cal. Rptr. 423] .

Thus, emotional distress is compensable if it results from a trespass or a nuisance [Kornoff v. Kingsburg Cotton Oil Co. (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 265, 271-275, 288 P.2d 507 ; Herzog v. Grosso (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 219, 225, 226, 259 P.2d 429 ; Lew v. Superior Court (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 866, 871-874, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 42 (small claims actions for nuisance against owners of "drug house"); Armitage v. Decker (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 887, 905, 267 Cal. Rptr. 399 (trespass); Smith v. County of Los Angeles (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 266, 287-288, 262 Cal. Rptr. 754 (nuisance)]; from other tortious conduct that impairs the beneficial use and enjoyment of real property [Acadia, Cal., Ltd. v. Herbert (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 328, 337-338, 5 Cal. Rptr. 686, 353 P.2d 294 (shutting off of water supply); Tooke v. Allen (1948) 85 Cal. App. 2d 230, 237-238, 192 P.2d 804 (interfering with tenant's enjoyment of leased property)]; or from the conversion or damaging of personal property [Schroeder v. Auto Driveaway Co. (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 908, 921, 114 Cal. Rptr. 622, 523 P.2d 662 ; Gonzales v. Personal Storage, Inc. (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 464, 477, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 473] . Recovery has also been allowed for emotional distress resulting from a breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing in an insurance contract [Gruenberg v. Aetna Ins. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 566, 579, 108 Cal. Rptr. 480, 510 P.2d 1032 ; Crisci v. Security Ins. Co. (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 425, 433-434, 58 Cal. Rptr. 13, 426 P.2d 173] and from tortious interference with contractual relations [Mouchette v. Board of Educ. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 303, 315, 266 Cal. Rptr. 1] , disapproved on other grounds, Caldwell v. Montoya, 10 Cal. 4th 972, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 842, 897 P.2d 1320 .

Courts have generally limited the right to recover for emotional distress concurrent with property damage or economic loss if the damage or loss was caused only by negligent conduct [see Sher v. Leiderman (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 867, 883-885, 226 Cal. Rptr. 698 ; State of California ex rel. Dep't of Transp. v. Superior Court (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 331, 337-338, 205 Cal. Rptr. 518 ; Cooper v. Superior Court (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 1008, 1012, 200 Cal. Rptr. 746 ; see also Lee v. Bank of America (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 914, 920, 267 Cal. Rptr. 387 (stating that California courts have limited emotional suffering damages to cases involving either physical impact and injury to plaintiff, or intentional wrongdoing by defendant)]. Under this view, there can be no recovery for emotional distress arising solely from property damage, absent a threshold showing of some preexisting relationship or intentional tort [Erlich v. Menezes (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 543, 554, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 886, 981 P.2d 978 ; Cooper v. Superior Court (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 1008, 1012, 200 Cal. Rptr. 746] . Another court has refused to allow emotional-distress damages resulting from insurance claims practices that were merely negligent, without rising to the level of bad faith [see Soto v. Royal Globe Ins. Co. (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 420, 434, 229 Cal. Rptr. 192 ; see also Andre v. Superior Court (1991) 2 Cal. App. 4th 11, 20 n.9, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 815] . Yet another has refused damages for emotional distress with regard to negligent misrepresentation of conditions of employment [Branch v. Homefed Bank (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 793, 797-801, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 182] . The California Supreme Court has held that homeowners were not entitled to recover emotional distress damages for the negligent performance of a contract to build their home. The Court stressed that a contractual relationship, without more, is insufficient to support an award of damages for emotional distress if the negligent conduct resulted only in economic injury to the plaintiff [Erlich v. Menezes (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 543, 554-557, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 886, 981 P.2d 978] .

These holdings are arguably inconsistent with Molien v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals, in which the California Supreme Court abolished physicalimpact or injury as a requirement for recovery of damages for emotional distress suffered because of negligent conduct [Molien v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 916, 924-931, 167 Cal. Rptr. 831, 616 P.2d 813] . However, one court has tried to harmonize Molien with standards that would not automatically allow damages for emotional distress arising from negligent injury to property or financial interests. In the view of this court, the focus should be on the nature of the interest invaded. If the interest invaded does not naturally entail significant emotional distress, and if precedent has not established the availability of damages for consequential emotional distress, the matter should be resolved as a question of policy [Merenda v. Superior Court (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 1, 8, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 87] . This approach would be consistent with the approach taken by the California Supreme Court in a case in which the Court held that homeowners were not entitled to recover emotional distress damages for the negligent performance of a contract to build their home. In that particular case, the Supreme Court concluded that public policy concerns, including a concern with promoting commercial stability, supported a rule that prohibited the recovery of emotional distress damages in that context [Erlich v. Menezes (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 543, 554-558, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 886, 981 P.2d 978] .

Therefore, emotional distress damages arising from invasions of property interests such as nuisance or trespass are appropriate because in these cases, the emotional distress could be said naturally to ensue from an act that invaded an interest protected by the established tort. In contrast, recovery should be denied if the interest protected is essentially economic, as is typically the case in legal malpractice [Merenda v. Superior Court (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 1, 9-10, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 87 ; see § 362.11[5]].

For a discussion of, and forms for use in, actions for nuisance or trespass, see Ch. 380, Nuisance , and Ch. 550, Trespass .

[3] Breach of Contract

Damages for mental suffering resulting from a breach of contract are not normally recoverable. These damages may be recoverable, however, if the contract, by its nature, puts the defendant on notice that a breach would result in emotional and mental suffering by the plaintiff. Thus, it has been held that a husband's complaint stated a cause of action for damages for financial, physical, and emotional harm resulting from the destruction of his marriage proximately caused by the defendants' breach of their contract to exclude the plaintiff's wife, a compulsive gambler, from their gambling establishments and to deny her further check cashing privileges in consideration of the husband's reimbursement to them of the amounts of checks previously cashed for the wife that had been dishonored for insufficiency of funds [Wynn v. Monterey Club (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 789, 801, 168 Cal. Rptr. 878 ; see Windeler v. Scheers Jewelers (1970) 8 Cal. App.3d 844, 851-852, 88 Cal. Rptr. 39 (breach of bailment contract involving jewelry with great sentimental value)].

In addition, there are contracts that so affect the vital concerns of the individual that severe mental distress is a foreseeable result of the breach. For many years, the California courts have recognized that damages for mental distress may be recovered for a negligent breach of a contract of this nature [Allen v. Jones (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 207, 211, 163 Cal. Rptr. 445 (mortuary's negligent loss of corpse); see Cobler v. Stanley, Barber, Southard, Brown & Assocs. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 518, 531, 265 Cal. Rptr. 868 (service contract for professional career consultation not within exception to general rule of nonrecovery)].

However, those cases arguably dealt with contracts that specifically contemplated that a breach would be accompanied by severe emotional distress. If still valid, those holdings should be seen as exceptions to the general rule that damages for emotional distress will generally not be permitted for what is essentially a breach of contract. Conduct amounting to a breach of contract becomes tortious only if it also violates a duty independent from the contract that arises from principles of tort law [Erlich v. Menezes (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 543, 551, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 886, 981 P.2d 978] . Moreover, a negligent breach of contract alone will generally be insufficient to support an award of tort damages, at least outside of the insurance context [Erlich v. Menezes (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 543, 553-554, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 886, 981 P.2d 978] .

For example, the California Supreme Court has made clear that emotional distress damages are not recoverable for a negligent breach of contract if the only injury to the plaintiff is economic and if policy concerns argue against allowing recovery for emotional distress. Therefore, even if it was foreseeable that breach of a contract to build a house would result in emotional distress to the homeowners, the Supreme Court held that, to promote commercial stability, the homeowners were not entitled to recover emotional distress damages for negligent performance of the contract [Erlich v. Menezes (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 543, 552-557, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 886, 981 P.2d 978] . However, a tortious breach of contract may be found if: (1) the breach is accompanied by a common law tort such as fraud or conversion; (2) the means used to breach the contract are tortious by use of deceit or undue coercion; or (3) one party intentionally breaches the contract, intending or knowing that such a breach will cause severe, unmitigable harm in the form of mental anguish, personal hardship, or substantial consequential damages [Erlich v. Menezes (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 543, 553-554, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 886, 981 P.2d 978] .

For example, in an action founded on fraud by the buyer of a car against the dealer for intentionally, falsely, and fraudulently representing that it would make the proper repairs each of the numerous times the plaintiff returned the car for repairs under the warranty, the court of appeal held that the action sounded in deceit and the proper measure of damages wasthe measure for the tort of deceit as defined by Civ. Code §§ 1709 and 3333 and included recovery for mental pain and suffering [Sprague v. Frank J. Sanders Lincoln Mercury, Inc. (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 412, 417-418, 174 Cal. Rptr. 608 ; see Rosener v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 740, 754-755, 168 Cal. Rptr. 237 (action based on fraud for compensatory and punitive damages for financial losses and emotional distress against nationally known retail merchandiser by homeowners who had entered into home improvement contracts with contractor licensed by defendant, who defaulted in work)].

Although it may well be foreseeable that a physician's breach of a contract with a patient may result in emotional distress, the fact that the physician owes a general duty of care to his or her patient, and the possibility that this duty of care and the contractual obligations may conflict, precludes recovery of emotional distress damages for the breach of a contract in this situation [Selden v. Dinner (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 166, 172-174, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 153 (doctor's breach of contract to perform surgery by specified date, without any breach of duty of professional care, cannot be basis for emotional distress damages award; court noted that doctor could have breached duty of care had he performed surgery when he did not feel he could do so properly)].

The tort of intentional infliction of emotional distress is frequently pleaded as an alternative cause of action in a complaint alleging torts arising directly from the contractual relationship. The two torts with which it is most frequently alleged are the breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing, and the tort arising out of a contract breach combined with one party's attempt to shield itself from liability by denying, in bad faith and without probable cause, that the contract exists [see, e.g., Rulon-Miller v. International Bus. Machs. Corp. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 241, 254-255, 208 Cal. Rptr. 524 (complaint alleged wrongful discharge based on employer's breach of covenant of good faith and fair dealing, and intentional infliction of emotional distress); Wallis v. Superior Court (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 1109, 1115-1120, 207 Cal. Rptr. 123 (complaint alleged bad faith breach of contract, breach of covenant of fair dealing, and intentional infliction of emotional distress)].

If the same act is both a breach of contract and a tort, the plaintiff may elect to sue in tort, in which event general damages for mental pain and suffering may be recoverable [Sprague v. Frank J. Sanders Lincoln Mercury, Inc. (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 412, 417-418, 174 Cal. Rptr. 608] . Therefore, if the breach is tortious, damages for emotional distress may be recovered despite the fact that the conduct also involved a breach of contract [Crisci v. Security Ins. Co. (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 425, 432-434, 58 Cal. Rptr. 13, 426 P.2d 173 ; Fletcher v. Western Nat'l Life Ins. Co. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 376, 400, 89 Cal. Rptr. 78] .

[4] Defamation

Although the gravamen of a defamation action is injury to reputation, libel or slander also inflicts on a plaintiff humiliation, mortification, and emotional distress. In circumstances in which a plaintiff states a case of libel or slander, such personal distress is a matter that may be taken into account in determining the amount of damages to which the plaintiff is entitled, but it does not give rise to an independent cause of action on the theory of a separate tort [Grimes v. Carter (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 694, 702, 50 Cal. Rptr. 808 ; see also Behrendt v. Times-Mirror Co. (1938) 30 Cal. App. 2d 77, 84, 85 P.2d 949] .

[5] Products Liability

The court of appeal has held that one who uses a product that proves to be defective, and injures a third person as a direct result of the use of the defective product, is a direct victim and may recover damages for the emotional distress caused by the injury from the manufacturer regardless of the relationship between the plaintiff and the injured party and regardless of whether the user suffers physical injury [Kately v. Wilkinson (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 576, 587-588, 195 Cal. Rptr. 902] . This case was decided on the ground that the manufacturer should have foreseen that the user of a defective product would suffer emotional distress if injury results from the defect [Kately v. Wilkinson (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 576, 588-589, 195 Cal. Rptr. 902 ; see Molien v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 916, 923, 167 Cal. Rptr. 831, 616 P.2d 813 (limited on issue of duty to direct victim versus bystander in Burgess v. Superior Court (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 1064, 1074, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615, 831 P.2d 1197)]. However, this broad standard of duty has now been limited by the California Supreme Court, and foreseeability alone is no longer a sufficient basis for imposing a duty [see Marlene F. v. Affiliated Psychiatric Med. Clinic, Inc. (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 583, 589-590, 257 Cal. Rptr. 98, 770 P.2d 278] , and it is not clear whether Kately has any continued viability. For further discussion of the prerequisites for recovery under the more restrictive rules for determining duty, see § 362.11[6][d].

In a subsequent case, the court suggested that under a products liability theory, a duty would arise that meets the standards of Marlene F., but held that no cause of action arises until a defective product actually malfunctions. Emotional distress arising from the fear that the product will malfunction in the future is not a basis for recovery [Khan v. Shiley Inc. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 848, 856-857, 266 Cal. Rptr. 106] .

Regardless of the precise scope of the duty owed to a user of a product, a manufacturer does not owe a duty of care to prevent causing emotional distress to the buyer of a defective product, if that buyer is not the party using the product at the time of the injury and if that buyer does not witness the injury-causing event [Gu v. BMW of N. Am., LLC (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 195, 210, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 617] .

[6] Fraud or Deceit

Damages for emotional distress may be recovered in a tort action for fraud, deceit, and breach of fiduciary relationship [Branch v. Homefed Bank (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 793, 799, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 182 ; Jahn v. Brickey (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 399, 406, 214 Cal. Rptr. 119 ; Sprague v. Frank J. Sanders Lincoln Mercury, Inc. (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 412, 417, 174 Cal. Rptr. 608 ; see Schroeder v. Auto Driveaway Co. (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 908, 921, 114 Cal. Rptr. 622, 523 P.2d 662 ; Lacher v. Superior Court (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1038, 1049-1050, 281 Cal. Rptr. 640 ; see also Civ. Code § 1709]. However, one court has held that damages for emotional distress arising from fraudulent conduct may be allowed only as an aggravation of other damages [Nagy v. Nagy (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1262, 1269, 258 Cal. Rptr. 787 (husband may not recover for emotional distress suffered because of wife's fraud in misrepresenting that he was father of child)]. One judge dissented on this point [Nagy v. Nagy (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1262, 1273 n.1, 258 Cal. Rptr. 787 (Johnson, J., concurring in judgment)].

Damages for emotional distress are not allowed for fraud in the purchase, sale, or exchange of property, under Civ. Code § 3343 [Adriana Int'l Corp. v. Thoeren (9th Cir. 1990) 913 F.2d 1406 ; O'Neil v. Spillane (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 147, 159, 119 Cal. Rptr. 245 ; see Branch v. Homefed Bank (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 793, 798, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 182] . Damages for emotional distress have also been denied in the case of negligent misrepresentation [Branch v. Homefed Bank (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 793, 797-801, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 182 ; see § 362.11].

[7] Breach of Statutory Duty

All detriment proximately caused by the breach of a duty imposed by statute is compensable, including damages for emotional distress [Pintor v. Ong (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 837, 841-842, 259 Cal. Rptr. 577] . It is not necessary that the plaintiff suffer other injury in addition to the emotional distress. However, the emotional injury suffered must be severe, that is, substantial or enduring as distinguished from trivial or transitory [Pintor v. Ong (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 837, 845-846, 259 Cal. Rptr. 577 ; see Lee v. Bank of Am. (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 914, 920, 267 Cal. Rptr. 387] .

Under this rule, damages for emotional distress have been awarded for a breach of the duty imposed by Civ. Code § 2941, requiring reconveyance of real property after a debt secured by a deed of trust has been satisfied [Pintor v. Ong (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 837, 841-846, 259 Cal. Rptr. 577] ; for a breach of duty imposed by the Credit Card Act [Young v. Bank of Am. (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 108, 113-115, 190 Cal. Rptr. 122 ; see Civ. Code § 1747 et seq.]; for the breach of duties imposed on a notary public under Government Code and Civil Code provisions [McComber v. Wells (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 512, 520, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 376 ; see Gov. Code § 8205 et seq.;Civ. Code § 1185 et seq.]; and for a breach of duty under Com. Code § 4402, which authorizes an award of damages proximately caused by the wrongful dishonor of a check [Kendall Yacht Corp. v. United California Bank (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 949, 957-958, 123 Cal. Rptr. 848 ; see Lee v. Bank of Am. (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 914, 920, 267 Cal. Rptr. 387] .

[8] Other Actions

If a cause of action for assault, battery, or false imprisonment is otherwise established, damages may be given for mental suffering naturally ensuing therefrom [State Rubbish Collectors Ass'n v. Siliznoff (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 330, 338, 240 P.2d 282 (dictum)]. One court has stated that it could not conceive of a circumstance under which a cause of action for sexual assault, battery, or harassment could accrue devoid of any consequential emotional distress [see Mendez v. Superior Court (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 557, 573, 253 Cal. Rptr. 731] . Emotional distress damages are also allowed for wrongful eviction [Richardson v. Pridmore (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 124, 129, 217 P.2d 113 ; see also Emden v. Vitz (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 313, 316-319, 198 P.2d 696] , abuse of process [Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 210, 233, 317 P.2d 613 ; James v. Public Fin. Corp. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 995, 1000, 121 Cal. Rptr. 670] , invasion of privacy [Diaz v. Oakland Tribune, Inc. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 118, 137, 188 Cal. Rptr. 762] , and the malicious prosecution of a criminal or civil proceeding [Bertero v. National Gen. Corp. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 43, 59-64, 118 Cal. Rptr. 184, 529 P.2d 608 ; Allard v. Church of Scientology (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 439, 451, 129 Cal. Rptr. 797] .

For a discussion of, and forms for use in, causes of action in which damages for mental distress and suffering may be recovered, see Ch. 58, Assault and Battery ; Ch. 257, False Imprisonment ; Ch. 340, Libel and Slander ; Ch. 357, Malicious Prosecution and Abuse of Process ; and Ch. 429, Privacy .

[9] Pain and Suffering

[a] Unitary Concept

In general, courts have not attempted to draw distinctions between the elements of pain on the one hand, and suffering on the other; rather, the unitary concept of pain and suffering has served as a convenient label under which a plaintiff may recover not only for physical pain but also for fright, nervousness, grief, anxiety, worry, mortification, shock, humiliation, indignity, embarrassment, apprehension, terror, or ordeal. Although these terms refer to subjective states, representing a detriment that can be translated into monetary loss only with great difficulty, the detriment is a genuine one that requires compensation [Capelouto v. Kaiser Found. Hosp. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 889, 893, 103 Cal. Rptr. 856, 500 P.2d 880] .

[b] Proof

The absence of medical testimony does not foreclose recovery for pain and suffering; expert testimony is not a prerequisite to the framing of a question for the jury on this issue. Although the plaintiff's own testimony commonly establishes his or her damages for pain and suffering, the testimony of other persons, including that of lay witnesses relating observations of the sufferer's involuntary declarations and expressions of pain are admissible. Even in the absence of any explicit evidence showing pain, the jury may infer pain if the injury is such that the jury in its common experience knows it is normally accompanied by pain [Capelouto v. Kaiser Found. Hosp. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 889, 895-896, 103 Cal. Rptr. 856, 500 P.2d 880] .

[c] Amount

No definite standard or method of calculation is prescribed by law by which to fix compensation for pain and suffering. It is required only that the award be just and reasonable in light of the evidence [Garfoot v. Avila (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 1205, 1210-1213, 261 Cal. Rptr. 924 (verdict may not be impeached by evidence that jury reduced award for future pain and suffering to present value); see Civ. Code § 3359; see also BAJI No. 14.13 (7th ed.)]. The chief guarantees of reaching reasonable results in attempting to value suffering in terms of money are the restraint and common sense of the jury [Beagle v. Vasold (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 166, 172, 53 Cal. Rptr. 129, 417 P.2d 673] .

A disproportionate ratio of special to general damages, alone, is not unreasonable [see Damele v. Mack Trucks, Inc. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 29, 37-38, 267 Cal. Rptr. 197 (ratio of general to special damages of nearly 7 to 1 so clearly reasonable that question of frivolous appeal was raised)]. An appellate court may not disturb an award of general damages for pain and suffering unless the amount is so disproportionate to the injuries suffered that the result reached may be said to shock the conscience [Daggett v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 655, 666, 313 P.2d 557] .

[d] Per Diem Measurement

An attorney may argue and the jury may compute pain and suffering damages by the per diem method by which damages are measured in terms of a stated number of dollars for specific period of time [Beagle v. Vasold (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 166, 173-175, 53 Cal. Rptr. 129, 417 P.2d 673] .

[10] Particular Situations

An infant plaintiff may recover for pain and suffering incurred as the result of negligently caused injury [Capelouto v. Kaiser Found. Hosp. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 889, 893, 103 Cal. Rptr. 856, 500 P.2d 880] .

An award of damages for physical pain and mental suffering reasonably certain to be suffered in the future is proper [Oliveira v. Warren (1938) 24 Cal. App. 2d 712, 713-714, 76 P.2d 113] .

If a person having a cause of action dies before judgment, the damages recoverable by his or her personal representative do not include damages for pain or suffering [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.34].
