The form of order in [1], above, grants leave to the plaintiff to amend his or her complaint to bring in a new party plaintiff or defendant under the provisions of permissive joinder [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 378, 379; see §§ 395.100 and 395.102], or a new party defendant under the provisions of compulsory joinder [Code Civ. Proc. § 389; see § 395.104]. The order may be submitted to the court for signature either with the filing of the notice of motion or after the hearing on the motion. Under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1312, the prevailing party prepares the order. Counsel should check local court practice to determine the appropriate procedure.

For an order bringing in a new party plaintiff, the first alternative paragraph should be used. For an order bringing in a new party defendant, the second alternative paragraph should be used [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 412.10-412.30, 471.5]. [2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by defendant or an omitted party to secure an order requiring the plaintiff to amend his or her complaint to bring in a new party under the provisions of compulsory joinder of parties pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 389. For a form of notice of motion and motion to amend complaint to bring in new party defendant under the compulsory joinder provisions, see § 395.104.

If the motion is made on the ground that in the absence of the omitted party complete relief cannot be accorded among those already parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 389(a)(1)], the first alternative ground should be used. If the motion is made on the ground that the omitted party claims an interest relating to the subject of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 389(a)(2)], the second alternative ground should be used with the appropriate alternative ground [Code Civ. Proc. § 389(a)(2)(i) or (ii)].

There is no specific authority authorizing an omitted party to file a motion for an order bringing him or her into a pending action pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 389. However, in cases in which an omitted party has used this procedure, the courts have not stated that it was an inappropriate method [see Cuneo v. Superior Court (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 452, 454-455, 28 Cal. Rptr. 791 ; Wilson v. Frakes (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 580, 581-583, 3 Cal. Rptr 434] . Other procedures that an omitted party may consider in seeking joinder into a pending action are an ex parte application for an order directing the plaintiff to amend the complaint to bring him or her in as a new party [see Muller v. Robinson (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 511, 514, 345 P.2d 25 ; Crofton v. Young (1941) 48 Cal. App. 2d 452, 456, 119 P.2d 1003] , or by intervention [see Code Civ. Proc. § 387; Crofton v. Young (1941) 48 Cal. App. 2d 452, 456, 119 P.2d 1003 ; see also § 395.30 et seq.].

[3] Accompanying Papers

A memorandum must be filed and a copy served with the foregoing motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010].

[2] Use of Form

The declaration in [1], above, is for use by an attorney, defendant, or an omitted party, in support of a motion by defendant, or an omitted party compelling joinder pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 389. For a form of notice of motion and motion to amend complaint to bring in new party defendant under the compulsory joinder provisions, see § 395.104.

In selecting the appropriate alternative Paragraph 4, counsel should use the alternative paragraph that relates to the particular ground on which joinder is sought. For example, if joinder is sought pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 389(a)(1), on the ground that complete relief cannot be accorded among those already parties in the omitted party's absence, the first alternative Paragraph 4 should be used. On the other hand, if joinder is sought pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 389(a)(2)(i), on the ground that the omitted party has an interest in the subject of the action and as a practical matter the disposition of the action in his or her absence will impair the ability to protect that interest, the second alternative Paragraph 4 should be used. Similarly, if joinder is sought pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 389(a)(2)(ii), on the ground that the omitted party's interest in the subject of the action may subject him or her to substantial risk of incurring inconsistent obligations should the action be disposed in his or her absence, the third alternative Paragraph 4 should be used.

Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 authorizes a declaration under penalty of perjury, as in the above form, in lieu of an affidavit. For a form of affidavit, see Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations .

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a nonparty to secure an order compelling plaintiff to join him or her as a party plaintiff or defendant in an action for the recovery of real or personal property, or to determine conflicting claims thereto. The motion may be made by a person having an interest in the subject of the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 389.5].

[3] Accompanying Papers

A supporting memorandum must be filed and a copy served with the foregoing motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[4] Alternative Procedures

An omitted party may also proceed under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) to intervene in an action to which he or she has a real or personal property interest which is the subject of the action [see § 395.30]. However, intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a), like joinder under Code Civ. Proc. § 389.5, is only discretionary. If the omitted party is united in interest with either the plaintiff or defendant, he or she must be joined as a party plaintiff or defendant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 367]. In this situation, the omitted party should seek the court to compel joinder under Code Civ. Proc. § 389 or grant leave to intervene pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b). Similarly, the omitted party should seek to join or intervene under these sections whenever he or she is a party who should have been joined as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 389(a).

Proc. § 387(a)* on the ground that the intervenor has an interest in the matter in litigation, or in the success of either plaintiff or defendant or against the success of both, the first alternative paragraph setting out the grounds for the motion should be used. If the motion is made under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b) on ground that the intervenor has an unconditional right conferred by law to intervene or that the disposition of the action will impair or impede their interest in the subject of the action, the second alternative paragraph should be used. For discussion of cases which may fall under either permissive (Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a)) or mandatory (Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b)) intervention see §§ 395.34 and 395.35.

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b), a person who has specific statutory authorization to intervene has an unconditional right to do so. For example, such an unconditional right to intervene has been conferred upon either an employer or employee in an action by the other against a third party for personal injury [see Lab. Code § 3853]. For examples of other statutes providing specific authorization to intervene, see § 395.61[2].

[3] Accompanying Papers

A supporting memorandum must be filed and a copy served with the foregoing motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

The notice of motion for leave to intervene must be accompanied by an affidavit or declaration factually setting out the grounds for intervention [see § 395.121 for form and a copy of the proposed complaint in intervention [see § 395.127 for form]. An order granting the motion may also be submitted at this time [see § 395.122 for form].

[4] Alternative Procedures

An intervenor may also file an ex parte application for leave to intervene [see § 395.123 for form], or an application for an order to show cause why intervention should not be permitted [see § 395.124 for form]. An oral application for intervention may also be made [see § 395.126 (form of order granting oral request)].

[5] Filing Fees

On presentation of the notice of motion and accompanying papers for filing, a filing fee is required [see Gov. Code § 70612]. For a discussion of filing fees, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints .

[2] Use of Form

The form of declaration in [1], above, is for use by intervenor in supporting a motion for leave to intervene in a pending action under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) or (b). It is repetitious of the statements of the proposed complaint in intervention [see § 395.127] and for that reason minimum facts may be stated. If the motion is made under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a), permissive intervention, one of the alternative paragraphs numbered 2, 3, and 4 under that banner should be used, depending on the particular legal ground desired. If the motion is made under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(b), mandatory intervention, the appropriate alternative paragraphs in numbers 2, 3, and 4 under that banner should be used.

For a related form of notice of motion and motion for leave of court to intervene, see § 395.120.

Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 authorizes a declaration under penalty of perjury, as in the foregoing form, in lieu of an affidavit. For a form of affidavit, see Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations .

[3] Alternate Uses

The form of declaration in support of a motion to intervene in a pending action may also be used to support an ex parte application for an order granting leave tointervene [see § 395.123] or for an order to show cause why leave should not be granted to intervene [see §§ 395.124, 395.125]. With appropriate modifications, this form may also be used to state the allegations in the complaint in intervention [see § 395.127].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use as an order made by the court after a hearing on a motion for leave to intervene in a pending action. For related forms of notice of motion and motion for leave of court to intervene, see § 395.120. Pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1312, the prevailing party should prepare the order.

[3] Necessity for Complaint in Intervention

The order, if granted, only allows the intervenor to file a complaint inintervention as an intervening party. Such complaint is subject to a motion to strike for failure to state grounds sufficient to justify intervention [see § 395.38[3]; see also § 395.127 and the Comments thereto for a form of Complaint in Intervention] or to a demurrer for failure to state a cause of action [see Jersey Maid Milk Products Co. v. Brock (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 661, 662, 91 P.2d 599 (motion to strike); People v. Brophy (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 15, 23-24, 120 P.2d 946 (demurrer)].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use on ex parte application to the court for an order to show cause why leave to file a complaint in intervention should not be granted. In the application for the show cause order, counsel should select the appropriate alternate paragraph for the applicable interest of the intervenor. Similarly, in preparing the declaration in support of the order, counsel should use the proposed declaration in § 395.121, choosing the appropriate alternate paragraphs in accordance with the applicable interest and supporting facts. For related forms of notice of motion and motion for leave to intervene, and ex parte application for leave to intervene, see §§ 395.120 -395.123.

Because an order to show cause is a form of notice of motion, an application for the order should be supported by a memorandum, as required in support of a motion under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a) [see, e.g., Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1176(b) (requiring memorandum on order to show cause re appointment of receiver); see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

For discussion of the requirement of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204 that an exparte order be supported by affidavit or declaration relating to the giving of or the attempt to give notice or that for specified reasons notice should not be required, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

[4] Filing Fees

On presentation of the form in [1], above, and accompanying papers, a filing fee is payable [Gov. Code § 70612]. The prescribed filing fee will vary, depending upon the jurisdictional level of the court and its location. For a discussion of filing fees, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints .

To _____ [name], plaintiff, and to _____ [name], defendant, in the above-entitled action:

The ex parte application for an order to show cause why _____ [name of intervenor] should not be granted leave to file a complaint in intervention in this action being before this court, and good cause appearing therefor,

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that _____ [name], plaintiff, and _____ [name],

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use for submission to the court with an application for an order to show cause why leave to file a complaint in intervention should not be granted. If granted, the court will fix the time and place for a hearing in this order to show cause.

[3] Order to Show Cause Distinguished

An order to show cause, while a form of notice of motion, is distinct from the statutory notice of motion of Code Civ. Proc. § 1010. It is a creation of the courts, not the Legislature. It is a court order, issued on ex parte application, requiring the party to whom it is directed to appear before the court at a specified time and show cause why the relief sought should not be granted.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use as an order made by the court on an oral application granting leave to intervene in a pending action. [2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use as a complaint in intervention. Code Civ. Proc. § 387 provides that intervention is made by complaint, setting forth the grounds on which the intervention rests, filed by leave of court. To obtain leave of court, a prospective intervenor may request leave to intervene through a notice of motion [see § 395.120], ex parte application [see §§ 395.123, 395.126], or by an application for an order to show cause why intervention should not be granted [see § 395.124].

[3] Requirements for Complaint in Intervention

Since Code Civ. Proc. § 387 specifies a "complaint" as the means of intervening, the intervenor's basic pleading is always entitled a "complaint in intervention" whether he or she is uniting with defendant in resisting the claims of plaintiff, joining with plaintiff in demanding the same or similar relief, or demanding relief adverse to both parties.

The complaint in intervention can include either in the introductory clause of the complaint, or in a numbered paragraph, an allegation that the court has granted leave to intervene, as shown in Paragraph 1. Such an allegation is not necessary and may be omitted since the court order granting leave to intervene speaks for itself [see Code Civ. Proc. § 387].

The complaint in intervention must allege in summary form intervenor's interest by stating facts sufficient, if true, to constitute cause for intervention [Hausmann v. Farmers Ins. Exchange (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 611, 615, 29 Cal. Rptr. 75] as illustrated in Paragraph 3. Thereafter, intervenor pleads all essential allegations of the claim or denials of plaintiff's claim much as any plaintiff or defendant, with the added factor that he or she may have two opposing parties to deal with and must allege their respective acts or omissions if, and as appropriate to, the claimed interest.

The complaint in intervention is complete in itself and does not incorporate by reference any of the paragraphs of plaintiff's complaint or defendant's answer. The prayer is also a complete request for relief and does not incorporate prayers in pleadings already filed.

A. Governing Law and Purpose of Partition

§ 397.11 Purpose of Partition

The object of a partition of property is to enable cotenants to obtain title in severalty to some definite portion of property owned in common, and thereby permanently end all disputes that may have arisen between them concerning the property [see McGillivray v. Evans (1864) 27 Cal. 92] . A decree or judgment in partition has no other effect than to sever the unity of possession, and does not vest in either of the cotenants any new or additional title [Rancho Santa Margarita v. Vail (1938) 11 Cal. 2d 501, 539].

§ 397.31 Revision of Partition Statutes

In 1976 the Legislature enacted Code Civ. Proc. §§ 872.010-872.240, effective on January 1, 1977. These statutes codified, and in some instances amended, the existing law pertaining to the partition of real property. They were adopted pursuant to a Law Revision Commission recommendation and each new section was accompanied by an official comment from the Law Revision Commission or a legislative committee. As indicated in the Law Revision Commission comments, the primary purpose of the commission and of the Legislature was to codify existing law unless it was felt that there was some reason for making a change. When no change was made, it is of assistance to look at decisions decided prior to 1977 [Richmond v. Dofflemyer (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 745, 753, 164 Cal. Rptr. 727] . Therefore, pre-1977 decisions are cited throughout this chapter.

§ 397.32 Applicability of Partition Statutes

The partition statutes (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 872.010-874.240) govern actions for partition of real property and, except to the extent not applicable (e.g., statutes governing lis pendens (Code Civ. Proc. § 872.250) and title report (Code Civ. Proc. § 872.220)), actions for partition of personal property [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.020]. It should be noted that Code Civ. Proc. §§ 872.010-874.240 do not apply to property divisions under the Family Code or in other types of cases specifically governed by other statutes [Assembly Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.020].

As used in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 872.010-874.240, (a) "action" means an action for partition under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 872.010-874.240; (b) "lien" means a mortgage, deed of trust, or other security interest in property whether arising from contract, statute, common law, or equity; (c) "property" includes real and personal property; (d) "remainder" includes a preliminary report, guarantee, binder, or policy of title insurance; and (e) "title report" includes a preliminary report, guarantee, binder, or policy of title insurance [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.010].

The term "lien" is defined broadly in Code Civ. Proc. § 872.010(b) to apply to any encumbrance on property, including security interests in personal property. The term "title report" in Code Civ. Proc. § 872.010(e) is drawn using the terminology employed in the title insurance industry [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.010].

§ 397.34 Applicability of General Civil Statutes

The statutes and rules governing practice in civil actions generally, apply to actions under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 872.010-874.240 except when they are inconsistent with the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 872.010-874.240 [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.030].

Code Civ. Proc. § 872.030 makes it clear that, although partition is nominally a civil action, Code Civ. Proc. §§ 872.010-874.240 contain some special procedural provisions that apply to partition despite general rules to the contrary. For example, the partition provisions governing referees apply in partition actions notwithstanding any general provisions to the contrary that might be found in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638-645.1 (references and trials by referees) [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.030].

Nothing in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 872.010-874.240, however, excuses compliance with any applicable laws, regulations, or ordinances governing the division, sale, or transfer of property [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.040].

Whether a particular law, regulation, or ordinance is applicable in a partitionaction is determined by the terms or a construction of that law, regulation, or ordinance [Assembly Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.040].

Subject to the power of the court to transfer actions [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 396-399], the proper county for the trial of actions under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 872.010-874.240 is as follows [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.110(b)]:

- When the subject of the action is real property or real and personal property, the county in which the real property, or some part of the real property, is situated.

- When the subject of the action is personal property, the county in which the personal property is principally located at the commencement of the action or in which the defendants, or any of them, reside at the commencement of the action.

The statute of limitations never bars relief between tenants in common in an action for partition. It is only if a party has, by operation of the statute of limitations (see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 318-322, 325), lost all right to and in the land and such right has, by prescription, become vested in another, that the statute of limitations has any effect in a partition action [Adams v. Hopkins (1904) 144 Cal. 19, 27, 77 P. 712] . In addition, the bringing of a partition suit will suspend the running of the statute of limitations and will prevent the acquisition of the property subject to the suit by a title by prescription [Christy v. Spring Valley W.W. (1892) 97 Cal. 21, 24, 31 P. 1110] .

B. Partition Actions Generally

35-397 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 397.39

§ 397.39 Powers of Court

[1] Motions, Orders, and Decrees

In the conduct of the partition action, the court may hear and determine all motions, reports, and accounts and may make any decrees and orders necessary or incidental to carrying out the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 872.010-874.240 and to effectuating its decrees and orders [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.120]. The purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 872.120 is to give the broadest possible statutory authorization for powers that the court, to a large extent, apparently had prior to revision of the partition statutes. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 872.130 (see § 397.39[3]) and 872.140 (see § 397.39[5]) elaborate on, but do not exhaust, the court's power in partition actions. Furthermore, the statutory provisions in partition actions are to be liberally construed in aid of the court's jurisdiction [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.120].

[2] Equitable Nature

An action for partition is statutory but the powers conferred on the courts by statute are substantially those formerly exercised by the chancery courts in pursuit of the same object, and the methods employed by the code are, in the main, "a reflex of those pursued under former equity practice." It is equitable practice prescribed by law [Jameson v. Hayward (1895) 106 Cal. 682, 687-688, 39 P. 1078 ; Akley v. Bassett (1922) 189 Cal. 625, 647, 209 P. 576] . Thus, the courts in partition actions dispense relief only on the condition that the equitable rights of a cotenant are respected and safeguarded [Elbert, Ltd. v. Federated Income Properties (1953) 120 Cal. App. 2d 194, 200, 261 P.2d 743] .

[3] Temporary Restraining Orders and Injunctions

In the conduct of the action, the court may issue temporary restraining orders and injunctions, with or without bond, for the purpose of (1) preventing waste; (2) protecting the property or title of the property; and (3) restraining unlawful interference with a partition of the property ordered by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.130]. For further discussion and forms for use in temporary restraining orders and injunctions, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[4] Appointment of Receiver

The superior court has jurisdiction to appoint a receiver as an ancillary remedy in an action for partition of real property among tenants in common and should do so when the circumstances require it [Blodgett v. Haddock (1949) 95 Cal. App. 2d 17, 18, 212 P.2d 26] . The appointment may be made "ex parte" and without notice if the "imperative necessity" or emergency is shown in the petition or supporting affidavits [Lent v. H.C. Morris Co. (1938) 25 Cal. App. 2d 305, 308, 77 P.2d 301] . There is no precedent, however, for the appointment of a receiver in a partitionsuit, when no tenant in common is attempting to oust the plaintiff or is in any way interfering with his or her common possession and use of the property or otherwise endangering the rights of the plaintiff in the property [Reas v. Clemence (1916) 173 Cal. 106, 108, 159 P. 432] .

[5] Compensation Among Parties

[a] In General

The court may, in all cases, order allowance, accounting, contribution, or other compensatory adjustment among the parties according to the principles of equity [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.140]. For example, an equitable adjustment may be made to offset the use value of property against the expense of improvements [Hunter v. Schultz (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 24, 31, 49 Cal. Rptr. 315] .

Code Civ. Proc. § 872.140 makes clear the court's authority to order compensatory adjustment for such items as common improvements, unaccounted rents and profits, and other matters for which contribution may be required [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.140]. For a discussion of the law governing payment of compensation cases of unequal division, see § 397.60[4].

[b] Rents, Profits, and Rental Value

In a partition action, one tenant in common out of possession may compel his or her cotenant in possession to account for rents and profits received by him or her from third persons. The tenant in possession may deduct from the rents and profits any amounts paid for taxes and for necessary and proper repairs and additions on the premises held in common during the period for which the rents were collected [Goodenow v. Ewer (1860) 16 Cal. 461, 472] . On the other hand, if a cotenant who has been in possession or use of the premises seeks to obtain contribution respecting improvements made, or amounts expended in protection or preservation of the property, the court, as incidental to the granting of the relief and by way of adjusting the rights of the parties, may charge the claimant defensively with at least a part of the reasonable value of his or her occupancy or use, and in some cases may hold him or her accountable for profits realized from the premises, even though he or she could not otherwise be required to account or be held liable for any of such benefits [Hunter v. Schultz (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 24, 31-32, 49 Cal. Rptr. 315] .

Chapter 397 PARTITION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Partition Actions Generally

35-397 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 397.40

§ 397.40 Who May Bring Partition Action

A partition action may be commenced and maintained by (1) a co-owner of personal property; or (2) an owner of an estate of inheritance, an estate for life, or an estate for years in real property when the property or estate therein is owned by several persons concurrently or in successive estates [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.210(a)]. Generally, a partition action may be maintained only by a person having the interest described by Code Civ. Proc. § 872.210(a) [see Ryer v. Fletcher Ryer Co. (1899) 126 Cal. 482, 483-484, 58 P. 908 ; Akagi v. Ishioka (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 426, 429, 120 Cal. Rptr. 807] . An equitable interest, however, is sufficient to support a partition action [Watson v. Sutro (1890) 86 Cal. 500, 528, 24 P. 172 ; see § 397.41[1][c]]. For example, a holder of an equity of redemption may maintain an action for partition [Powers v. Powers (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 746, 750, 34 Cal. Rptr. 835] .

Neither actual possession, nor the right to actual or immediate possession, is necessary to enable a cotenant to maintain an action in partition if he or she otherwise falls within the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 872.210 [see Skulich v. Skulich (1931) 213 Cal. 653, 654, 3 P.2d 12 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 752)].

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 872.210(a)(2) (see discussion, above), if property is owned by several persons, whether or not they are joint tenants or tenants in common, partition is available to sever their interests. Thus, Code Civ. Proc. § 872.210(a)(2) permits partition of partnership property. It should be noted, however, that partition of partnership property is subject to the limitations of Code Civ. Proc. § 872.730 [Assembly Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.210; see § 397.41[3][a]].

Chapter 397 PARTITION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Partition Actions Generally

35-397 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 397.41

§ 397.41 Determination of Right to Partition

[1] In General

The court, at either a contested or uncontested trial, determines whether the plaintiff has the right to partition [see Code Civ. Proc. § 872.710(a); Assembly Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.710]. A cotenant need not assign any reason for his or her demand to partition; the only indispensable requirement to the award of partition is that a clear title be shown [De Roulet v. Mitchel (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 120, 124, 160 P.2d 574] .

In order to make the determination that the plaintiff has the right to partition, the court must find that the plaintiff has an interest in the property sufficient to maintain the action (see § 397.41[2]). In addition, the court must find the existence of any special conditions prerequisite to partition of interests in particular types of property, such as a condominium project [Assembly Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.710]. For a discussion of partition of specific types of property, see § 397.41[2].

[2] Sufficiency of Interests

[a] Concurrent Interests

Except as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 872.730 (see § 397.41[2]), partitionas to concurrent interests in the property will be as of right unless barred by a valid waiver [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.710(b); see § 397.134[12]].

The right to partition of concurrent interests, however, is not absolute. As stated in Code Civ. Proc. § 872.710(b), partition of partnership property is one situation where partition of concurrent interests is not a matter of right. In addition, Code Civ. Proc. § 872.710 does not provide an absolute right to partition of cotenancy property on which a homestead has been declared [Assembly Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.710; see discussion of partition of homesteads in § 397.41[3][d]]. Furthermore, as stated in Code Civ. Proc. § 872.710(b), the right to partition may be defeated by a finding that there has been an express or implied waiver of the right. It should be noted, however, that Code Civ. Proc. § 872.710(b) does not provide standards for determining whether a purported waiver of the right to partition is valid but provides only that a valid waiver is a sufficient defense to the right to partition. The validity of a waiver is determined by case law [Assembly Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.710].

[b] Successive Estates

Partition as to successive estates in the property will be allowed if it is in the best interest of all the parties. The court will consider whether the possessory interest has become unduly burdensome by reason of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.710(c)]:

- Taxes or other charges;
- Expense of ordinary or extraordinary repairs;
- Character of the property and change in the character of the property since creation of the estates;
- Circumstances under which the estates were created and change in the circumstances since creation of the estates; and
- All other factors that would be considered by a court of equity having in mind the intent of the creator of the successive estates and the interests and needs of the successive owners.

[c] Equitable Interests

An equitable interest is sufficient to support a partition action [Watson v. Sutro (1890) 86 Cal. 500, 528, 24 P. 172] . For example, a holder of an equity of redemption may maintain an action for partition [Powers v. Powers (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 746, 750, 34 Cal. Rptr. 835] .

[3] Particular Types of Property

[a] Partnership Property

The provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 872.010-872.240 may be applied in a proceeding for partnership accounting and dissolution, or in an action for partition of partnership property, if the rights of unsecured creditors of the partnership will not be prejudiced and to the extent that the court determines that the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 872.010-874.240 are a suitable remedy [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.730].

Code Civ. Proc. § 872.730 is an exception to the rule of Code Civ. Proc. § 872.710 (see § 397.41[1]) that partition as to concurrent interests is a matter of right. Code Civ. Proc. § 872.730 codifies prior case law to the effect that partition is an appropriate remedy where the affairs of the partnership are otherwise sufficiently settled and what remains is the division or sale of the property [Assembly Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.730].

In a partnership dissolution action, a court has authority to make a distribution of partnership real property in kind. This power, however, is conditioned on a finding that it is not necessary to hold a sale to satisfy partnership obligations [Logoluso v. Logoluso (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 523, 530, 43 Cal. Rptr. 678] .

[b] Partition of Community Property

An action between spouses or putative spouses for partition of their community or quasi-community property, or their quasi-marital interest in property, may not be commenced or maintained under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 872.010-874.240 [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.210(b)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 872.210(b) codifies the rule that community property is not subject to partition. It should be noted, however, that Code Civ. Proc. § 872.210(b) only precludes severance of the community interests of spouses; it does not preclude partition of other estates or interests in the property that may exist concurrently or successively with the community interests [Assembly Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.210; see, e.g., In re Marriage of Graves (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 1047, 1050-1052, 244 Cal. Rptr. 110 (discussing need for partition of former community asset held in tenancy in common after marital dissolution)]. For a discusssion of the division of community property, see Ch. 222, Dissolution of Marriage: Property Division and Valuation .

[c] Partition of Condominium Project

The common areas of a condominium project are to remain undivided and not subject to judicial partition except as provided in Civ. Code § 1359 (see discussion, below). There is no bar, however, to partition of a cotenancy in a condominium [Civ. Code § 1359].

A court can order partition of a condominium project under Civ. Code § 1359 but only by sale of the entire project. In such a case, the owner of a condominium in a condominium project may maintain an action for partition by sale of the entire project as if the owners of all of the condominiums in the project were tenants in common in the entire project in the same proportion as their interests in the common areas. A partition by sale of a condominium project, however, shall only be ordered on a showing of one of the following [Civ. Code § 1359]:

(1) More than three years before the filing of the action, the project was damaged or destroyed so that a material part was rendered unfit for its prior use, and the project has not been rebuilt or repaired substantially to its state prior to the damage or destruction.

(2) Three-fourths or more of the project is destroyed or substantially damaged and condominium owners holding in aggregate more than a 50-percent interest in the common areas oppose repair or restoration of the project.

(3) The project has been in existence more than 50 years, is obsolete and uneconomic, and condominium owners holding in aggregate more than a 50-percent interest in the common areas oppose repair or restoration of the project.

(4) The conditions for such a sale, set forth in the declaration, have been met.

[d] Partition of Homesteads

The general rule is that homestead rights of a cotenant in his or her interest in the common property are not a bar to partition [Young v. Hessler (1945) 72 Cal. App. 2d 67, 69, 164 P.2d 65] . However, a court may refuse to include a portion of the common property, which is subject to a probate homestead, in the partition of the common property in order to protect the property rights of a surviving widow during her lifetime [Mills v. Stump (1912) 20 Cal. App. 84, 90-91, 128 P. 349] . In addition, when the common property is held by husband and wife as joint tenants and is subject to a valid homestead, one spouse may be barred from bringing a suit for partition of the homestead [see Walton v. Walton (1943) 59 Cal. App. 2d 26, 36, 138 P.2d 54 ; Kaupe v. Kaupe (1955) 131 Cal. App. 2d 511, 514, 280 P.2d 856] . It should be noted, however, that the declaration of a homestead by a former spouse after a decree of divorce has been entered, does not bar a suit for partition [Squibb v. Squibb (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 766, 770, 12 Cal. Rptr. 346] .

[e] Property Subject to Express Trust

The court may, in its discretion, order to be sold property, or an interest therein, that is subject to an express trust [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.840(a)]. For a discussion and forms relating to partition by sale, see § 397.80 et seq., § 397.270 et seq.. On division or sale of such property, the property or proceeds of sale allotted to the trustee of the express trust will be held by him or her on the trust therein stated, and no further action by the court pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.840 is required [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.840(b)].

One cannot, of course, by a suit for partition, put an end to an express trust or defeat its lawful purposes, nor usurp the functions of the trustee; if, however, the property does not appear to be held under an active trust, a suit for partition is possible [Varni v. Devoto (1909) 10 Cal. App. 304, 307, 101 P. 934] . In addition, two co-owners may maintain a suit for partition as co-owners, despite the fact that one of these co-owners is the self-appointed trustee of the property in question by virtue of a power of attorney from the other co-owner [O'Bryant v. Bosserman (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 353, 355, 210 P.2d 739] .

A co-owner may waive his or her right to partition by agreement [Williams v. Williams (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 648, 651, 63 Cal. Rptr. 354] . This agreement may be either express or implied [Thomas v. Witte (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 322, 327, 29 Cal. Rptr. 412] . For further discusssion, see California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 371, Partition and Other Terminations of Cotenancies .

In addition, a waiver may be implied to prevent unfairness or the frustration of an agreement between the original co-owners [see Pine v. Tiedt (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 733, 738, 43 Cal. Rptr. 184 ; Penasquitos, Inc. v. Holladay (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 356, 358, 103 Cal. Rptr. 717] . Under this principle of fairness, a successor-in-interest of a co-owner must stand in the shoes of his or her transferor and, therefore, is subject to the restrictions of an agreement between the original co-owners. Thus, an original co-owner against whom partition is sought is protected from being forced to lose his or her undivided interest contrary to the agreement under which the undivided interests were obtained [American Medical International, Inc. v. Feller (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 1008, 1015, 131 Cal. Rptr. 270] . For further discussion, see California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 371, Partition and Other Terminations of Cotenancies .

Chapter 397 PARTITION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Partition Actions Generally

35-397 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 397.43

§ 397.43 Parties

[1] Joinder of Interested Persons

The plaintiff must join as defendants in the action all persons having or claiming interests of record (including liens) in the estate as to which partition is sought; these persons must be joined as defendants if they are actually known to the plaintiff or reasonably apparent from an inspection of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.510]. Furthermore, a person who is subject to service of process and whose joinder will not deprive the court of jurisdiction over the subject matter of the action must be joined as a party in the action if either of the following exists [Code Civ. Proc. § 389(a)]:

- His or her absence will prevent complete relief from being accorded among those already parties.

- He or she claims an interest relating to the subject of the action and is so situated that the disposition of the action in his or her absence may either, as a practical matter, impair or impede his or her ability to protect that interest or leave any of the persons already parties subject to a substantial risk of incurring double, multiple, or otherwise inconsistent obligations by reason of his or her claimed interest.

For further discussion of joinder of parties, see Ch. 395, Parties . In a suit for partition it is indispensable that all cotenants who have not united in the complaint be made parties defendant. If one of the co-owners is not bound by the decree in partition, the purpose of the suit fails of accomplishment, for no one will then become a tenant in severalty [Solomon v. Redona (1921) 52 Cal. App. 300, 306, 198 P. 643] .

[2] Known But Unrecorded Interests; BFPs; Encumbrancers

If a person having or claiming an unrecorded interest in the property or a portion of the property was not a party to the action but the existence or claim of the interest was actually known to the plaintiff at any time before entry of the interlocutory judgment or would have been reasonably apparent from an inspection of the property, the judgment does not affect the interest of this person in the portion of the property or the proceeds from sale of the property allocated to the plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 874.225(b)].

The intention of Code Civ. Proc. § 874.225(b) is to implement the requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 872.510 (see § 397.43[1]) that the plaintiff join all persons actually known to the plaintiff or reasonably apparent from an inspection of the property, who have or claim interests in the property or estate as to which partition is sought. It should be noted that Code Civ. Proc. § 874.225(b) is an exception to the rule stated in Code Civ. Proc. § 874.210(c) (see § 397.61[2]), that the judgment binds all persons having unrecorded interests in the property. Code Civ. Proc. § 874.225(b), however, makes the judgment not conclusive only with respect to the share of the plaintiff. The portions of the property allocated to other parties in case of a division, or the entire property in case of a sale to a bona fide purchaser, are free of the unrecorded interests. The introductory portion of Code Civ. Proc. § 874.225 makes clear that, notwithstanding the provisions of this section, a claimant may be bound by the proceeding if the claim was acquired from a party after commencement of the proceeding and with actual knowledge of the proceeding [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comments to Code Civ. Proc. § 874.225; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1908(a)(2)]. Nothing in Code Civ. Proc. § 874.225(b) shall be construed to impair the rights of a bona fide purchaser or encumbrancer for value dealing with the plaintiff or his or her successors in interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 874.225(b)].

[3] Purchaser From Cotenant

Persons who have purchased any portion of property from less than all of the cotenants of the property are necessary parties to a partition action concerning the property [Gates v. Salmon (1868) 35 Cal. 576, 586-589] . However, if such a portion of the property is purchased from all of the cotenants of the property, such a purchaser is not a necessary party to a partition action [Richardson v. Loupe (1889) 80 Cal. 490, 498, 22 P. 227 ; see also Middelcoff v. Cronise (1909) 155 Cal. 185, 189, 100 P. 232 ; see also § 397.47[2]].

[4] Unknown Persons or Interests

If the name of a person described in Code Civ. Proc. § 872.510 (see § 397.43[1]) is not known to the plaintiff, the plaintiff must so state in the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.520(a)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 872.550 states that if partition is sought as to all interests in the property, the plaintiff may join as defendants "all persons unknown claiming any interest in the property," naming them in that manner. Thus, Code Civ. Proc. § 872.550 provides a means whereby the plaintiff may give the partition action an in rem effect [Assembly Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.550]. In addition, the court will on its own motion or on motion of any party, make orders for joinder of additional parties which are necessary or proper [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.520(c)].

[5] Future Interests

Provisions relating to partition are intended to make the one judgment of partition final and conclusive on all persons interested and not to permit the matter to be taken up piecemeal. Accordingly, provision is made for bringing in not only tenants in common but persons having future rights or interests [Withington v. Collins (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 110, 114, 140 P.2d 493 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 872.510 and discussion in § 397.43[1]].

If the ownership or the share or quantity of the interest of a person described in Code Civ. Proc. § 872.510 (see § 397.43[1]) is unknown, uncertain, or contingent, the plaintiff must so state in the complaint. If the lack of knowledge, uncertainty, or contingency is caused by a transfer to an unborn or unascertained person or class member, or by a transfer in the form of a contingent remainder, vested remainder subject to defeasance, executory interest, or similar disposition, the plaintiff must also state in the complaint, so far as known to the plaintiff, the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.520(b)]:

(1) the name, age, and legal disability of the person in being who would be entitled to ownership of the interest; and

(2) the fact that the contingency on which the right of such person depends occurred prior to the commencement of the action.

The court will, on its own motion or on motion of any party, make such ordersfor appointment of guardians ad litem pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 372, 373, and 373.5 (provisions dealing with guardians, conservators, and guardians ad litem) as are necessary and proper [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.520(c)].

[6] Deceased Interested Persons

If a person described in Code Civ. Proc. § 872.510 (see § 397.43[1]) is dead and the plaintiff knows of a personal representative, the plaintiff must join such personal representative as a defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.530(a)]. If a person described in Code Civ. Proc. § 872.510 is dead, or is believed by the plaintiff to be dead, and the plaintiff knows of no personal representative [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.530(b)]:

(1) The plaintiff must state these facts in an affidavit (or declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) filed with the complaint.

(2) If it is stated in the affidavit (or declaration) that such person is dead, the plaintiff may join as defendants "the testate and intestate successors of _____ (naming such deceased person), deceased, and all persons claiming by, through, or under said decedent," naming them in that manner.

(3) If it is stated in the affidavit (or declaration) that such person is believed to be dead, the plaintiff may join such person as a defendant, and he or she may also join "the testate and intestate successors of _____ (naming such person) believed to be deceased, and all persons claiming by, through, or under such person," naming them in that manner.

[7] Persons Holding Oil and Gas Interests

If property is subject to a lease, community lease, unit agreement, or other pooling arrangement with respect to oil or gas or both, the plaintiff need not join as defendants persons whose only interest in the property is that of a lessee, royalty-owner, lessor-owner of other real property in the community, unit, or pooled area, or working-interest-owner, or persons claiming under them. The judgment of partition will not affect the interests of such persons not joined as defendants [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.540]. For a discussion of interests relating to oil and gas, see Ch. 393, Oil and Gas .

§ 397.44 Determination of Interests of Parties

[1] In General

The interests of the parties, plaintiff as well as defendant, may be put in issue, tried, and determined in the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.610]. An action for partition under our statute is, to some extent, sui generis. The parties named in the complaint, whether as plaintiffs or defendants, are all actors, each representing his or her interest. Whether plaintiffs or defendants, they are required to set forth fully and particularly the origin, nature, and extent of their respective interests in the property. This having been done, the interest of each, or all, may be put in issue by the others; and, if so, such issues are to be first tried and determined, and no partition can be made until the respective interests of all the parties have been ascertained and settled by a trial [Morenhout v. Higuera (1867) 32 Cal. 289, 295] .

[2] Interests of Lienholders; Determination by Referee

The court will determine the status and priority of all liens on the property to the extent necessary to grant the relief sought or other appropriate relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.630(a)]. The court may appoint a referee to ascertain the facts necessary for this determination of the status and priority of the liens. On application of the referee or a lienholder, the court will direct the issuance of process to compel attendance of witnesses, the production of books, documents, or things, and the filing of verified claims. The report of the referee must be made in writing to the court and must be confirmed, modified, or set aside and a new reference ordered, as the justice of the case may require [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.630(b)].

It is important to note that two distinct classes of referees may be appointed in a partition action. Pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.630(b), a referee may be appointed to ascertain the facts necessary for the determination of the status and priority of all liens on the property subject to partition. Such a referee is appointed before the interlocutory decree. On the other hand, the referee appointed under Code Civ. Proc. § 873.010 (see is appointed after the interlocutory decree and that referee's sole duty is to divide or sell the property as ordered by the court [Richardson v. Loupe (1889) 80 Cal. 490, 501, 22 P. 227] .

[3] Interests of Unknown Parties

The court may consider the interests of two or more unknown parties together, with respect to the action, but may not consider the interests of the unknown parties between each other [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.640].

To the extent necessary to grant relief sought or other appropriate relief, the court will, on adequate proof, ascertain the state of the title to the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.620]. In contrast with Code Civ. Proc. § 872.610 (see § 397.44), in cases where it is necessary to know the state of the title, Code Civ. Proc. § 872.620 applies regardless of whether a defendant raises the issue in his or her pleadings [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.620].

§ 397.46 Effect of Unpaid Judgment

The existence of an unpaid judgment from one cotenant to another does notprevent partition. If the judgment is not a lien on the cotenant's interest, it is not different from any other extraneous claim. On the other hand, if it is a lien, the interest of the cotenant holding judgment may be protected in settling and determining the rights of the parties in the property [*Lazzarevich v. § 397.47 Joinder of Property

[1] In General

Real and personal property may be partitioned in one action [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.240]. If different parties, however, are interested in real and personal property joined in the action, severance may be appropriate [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.240]. It should be noted that if partition of both real and personal property is alleged in a single cause of action, it is not possible to demur on the ground of misjoinder of causes of actions [Bolan v. Gallagher (1921) 52 Cal. App. 503, 504, 199 P. 57] .

[2] Joinder of Parcels

Real property consisting of several distinct parcels or tracts of land, and situated in different counties, may be joined in one action for partition [Murphy v. Superior Court (1902) 138 Cal. 69, 72, 70 P. 1070] . It is a well-settled rule, however, that, to justify such union in one suit, each parcel of land must be owned by the same persons [Middelcoff v. Cronise (1909) 155 Cal. 185, 189, 100 P. 232] . On the other hand, there is a universally accepted doctrine that one cotenant cannot by a conveyance of his or her interest in a portion of the property held in common prejudice the rights of his or her cotenants. In such a case, the grantee or successor of such a cotenant simply steps into the shoes of his or her grantor, subject to all the rights of the other cotenants and their successors as to partition.

For the purposes of partition, the whole property originally held in common by the cotenants, whether consisting of one or any number of parcels, continues to be a unit--the subject matter of a single action--just as if no change in the ownership had occurred. This means that a grantee may be a necessary party defendant even though a cotenant only as to one of the parcels involved; the fact that he or she is not interested in the other parcels is no ground of objection to the joinder in one action of the various parcels of land. There is but one cause of action stated, the partition of a single lot of real property originally held in common, and, for all purposes of the partition proceeding, still so held [Middelcoff v. Cronise (1909) 155 Cal. 185, 189, 100 P. 232] .

§ 397.50 Determination of Manner of Partition

[1] Division of Property

The court must order that the property be divided among the parties in accordance with their interests in the property as determined in the interlocutory judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.810; see § 397.57]. Code Civ. Proc. § 872.810 continues the preference of prior law for partition by division in kind. In an appropriate case, the court may order partition by sale [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.810]. For a discussion of partition by sale, see § 397.50[2] et seq., § 397.80 et seq. For a discussion of partition by appraisal, see § 397.110 et seq.

As a rule, the law favors partition in kind because it does not disturb the existing form of inheritance or compel a person to sell his or her property against his or her will. Forced sales are strongly disfavored [Richmond v. Dofflemyer (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 745, 757, 164 Cal. Rptr. 727] . It is no objection to a partition in kind that some of the cotenants prefer a sale to a partition [Williams v. Wells Fargo Bank (1943) 56 Cal. App. 2d 645, 647, 133 P.2d 73] .

[2] Partition by Sale

Notwithstanding Code Civ. Proc. § 872.810 (see § 397.50[1]) the court will order that the property be sold and the proceeds be divided among the parties in accordance with their interests in the property as determined in the interlocutory judgment in the following situations [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.820]:

(1) If the parties agree to such relief, by their pleadings or otherwise.

(2) If the court determines that, under the circumstances, sale and division of the proceeds would be more equitable than division of the property.

For the purpose of making the determination, the court may appoint a referee and take into account his or her report.

For further discussion of partition by sale, see § 397.80 et seq.

[3] Partition by Partial Sale

The court may order that a portion of the property be sold and the remainder divided if, in making the determination whether sale would be more equitable than division of the property, the court finds that sale and division of proceeds for that part of the property would be more equitable than division of the whole property [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.830; for further discussion of partition by sale, see § 397.80 et seq.].

[4] Partition by Appraisal

If the interests of all parties are undisputed or have been adjudicated, the parties may agree on a partition by appraisal pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 873.910-873.980 [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.910; for discussion and forms concerning partition by appraisal, see § 397.110 et seq., § 397.290 et seq.

If a title report is necessary and the action has not yet commenced, the plaintiff may procure the title report, and shall, in the complaint, indicate that it has been procured and designate a place where it will be kept for inspection, use, and copying by the parties. Alternatively, the court may, on application of a party, authorize the party to procure a title report; in this case the court shall designate a place where the title report shall be kept for inspection, use, and copying by the parties [*Code Civ. The complaint must set forth all of the following:

(1) A description of the property that is the subject of the action; in the case of tangible personal property, the description must include its usual location; in the case of real property, the description must include both its legal description and its street address or common designation, if any [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.230(a)].

(2) All interests the plaintiff has or claims in the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.230(b)].

(3) All interests of record in the property or all interests in the property actually known to the plaintiff which belong to or are claimed by persons other than the plaintiff, that the plaintiff reasonably believes will be materially affected by the action, whether the names of such persons are known or unknown to the plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.230(c)]; if the plaintiff has knowledge of a defendant's lien on the property, the plaintiff is under a statutory duty to set it forth in his or her complaint [Stewart v. Abernathy (1944) 62 Cal. App. 2d 429, 432, 144 P.2d 844] .

(4) The estate as to which partition is sought and a prayer for partition of the interests in that estate [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.230(d)].

(5) If the plaintiff seeks sale of the property, an allegation of the facts justifying the relief in ordinary and concise language [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.230(e)].

If the plaintiff has a lien on the property as well as an interest sufficient to maintain the action, he or she must allege his or her lien as well as his or her other interest [Assembly Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.230]. Code Civ. Proc. § 872.230(c), however, only requires plaintiff to set out those interests that he or she reasonably believes will be materially affected by the partition action. Incorporation of a title report should be sufficient to satisfy this requirement as to recorded interests but not as to unrecorded interests known to the plaintiff. It should be noted that there may be interests of record in personal property filed to perfect a security interest under the Commercial Code [Assembly Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.230].

A complaint is subject to demurrer if it fails to allege the proportionate interests of the respective parties [Neusted v. Skernswell (1945) 69 Cal. App. 2d 361, 363-364, 159 P.2d 49 (interpreting Code Civ. Proc. § 753, which is substantially similar to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 872.230, 872.520)].

§ 397.54 Summons

[1] Service Generally

The form, content, and manner of service of summons is the same in partition actions as in civil actions generally [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.310(a)]. For service of summons in civil actions generally, see Code Civ. Proc. § 412.10 et seq. and the discussion in Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers . It should be noted that a decree of partition will not be vitiated, despite the fact that the summons fails to contain a description of the property and is directed only to the defendant, absent a showing of prejudice [Rutledge v. Rutledge (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 114, 120, 259 P.2d 79] . Furthermore, the court has power to permit an amendedsummons to issue when new parties are added in a partition action by an amended complaint [Baldwin v. Foster (1910) 157 Cal. 643, 647, 108 P. 714] .

[2] Service by Publication

Service on persons named as parties pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.530(b) (see § 397.43[6]) and Code Civ. Proc. § 872.550 (see § 397.43[4]), and on other persons named as unknown defendants, must be by publication pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50 and the provisions of the partition statutes dealing with summons (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 872.310-872.330) [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.310(b)]. As a condition of establishing that the party to be served pursuant to publication under Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50 cannot with reasonable diligence be served in another manner, the court may not require that a search be conducted of public databases where access by a registered process server to residential addresses is prohibited by law or by published policy of the agency providing the database. These databases include, but are not limited to, voter registration rolls and records of the Department of Motor Vehicles [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50(e)].

If the court orders service by publication, the publication may name only the defendants to be served by the publication and describe only the property in which the defendants to be served thereby have or claim interests [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.330(a)]. Judgment based on failure to appear and answer following service under Code Civ. Proc. § 872.330 is conclusive against the defendants named in the publication only in respect to property described in the publication [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.330(b)].

The order for service by publication is subject to the following conditions [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.320]:

- The plaintiff must post, not later than 10 days after the date the order is made, a copy of the summons and complaint on the real property that is the subject of the action.

- The plaintiff must record, if not already recorded, a notice of the pendency of the action (notice of lis pendens).

- The publication must describe the property that is the subject of the action. In addition to particularly describing the property, the publication must describe the property by giving its street address, if any, or other common designation, if any; but, if a legal description of the property is given, the validity of the publication is not affected by the fact that the street address or other common designation recited is erroneous or that the street address or other common designation is omitted.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Partition Actions Generally

35-397 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 397.55

§ 397.55 Lis Pendens

[1] Recordation and Service

Immediately on filing the complaint for partition, the plaintiff must record a notice of the pendency of the action (lis pendens) in the office of the county recorder of each county in which any real property described in the complaint is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.250]. The recording of the lis pendens is an important step in the partition action. Prompt recording enables the court to deal with the title with certainty. The person required to record might be either the plaintiff or a cross complainant [Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.250]. From the time of filing a lis pendens, all persons are deemed to have notice of that action as to the property described in the notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.250].

Prior to recordation of the notice, the party recording the notice must cause a copy of the notice to be mailed, by registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, to all known addresses of the parties to whom the real property claim is adverse, and to all owners of record of the real property affected by the real property claim as shown by the latest county assessment roll. If there is no known address for service on an adverse party or owner, then as to that party or owner a declaration under penalty of perjury to that effect may be recorded instead of the proof of service, and service on that party shall not be required. Immediately following recordation, a copy of the notice must also be filed with the court in which the action is pending. Service must also be made immediately and in the same manner on each adverse party later joined in the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.22].

Any notice of pendency of action is void and invalid as to any adverse party or owner of record unless mailing requirements are met for that party or owner and a proof of service in the form and content specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a has been recorded with the notice of pendency of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.23].

From the time of recording the notice of pendency of action, a purchaser, encumbrancer, or other transferee of the real property described in the notice, is deemed to have constructive notice of the pendency of the noticed action as it relates to the real property and only of its pendency against parties not fictitiously named. The rights and interest of the claimant in the property, as ultimately determined in the pending noticed action, relate back to the date of the recording of the notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.24].

If the lis pendens is not recorded, the court, on its own motion or on the motion of any party at any time, shall order the plaintiff or person seeking partition of the property, or another party on behalf of the plaintiff or other person, to record the notice and shall stay the action until the notice is recorded [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.250(c)]. The expense of recordation is allowed to the party incurring it [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.250(c)]. A failure to record a lis pendens immediately after filing the complaint, absent a showing of prejudice, will not vitiate a decree of partition [Rutledge v. Rutledge (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 114, 120, 259 P.2d 79] .

For further discussion and forms relating to lis pendens, see Ch. 348, Lis Pendens .

[2] Additional Property

After the filing of the notice of lis pendens, if partition of other real property is sought in the same action, the plaintiff or other person seeking this relief must immediately record a supplemental notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.250(b)]. The duty under Code Civ. Proc. § 872.250(b) to record the notice of lis pendens is on the person seeking to join the additional property; this might be either plaintiff or cross complainant [Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.250].

§ 397.56 Answer

[1] Required Allegations

The answer must set forth (1) any interest that the defendant has or claims in the property; (2) any facts tending to controvert any material allegations of the complaint that the defendant does not wish to be taken as true; and (3) if the defendant seeks sale of the property, an allegation of the facts justifying this relief in ordinary and concise language [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.410; see Stewart v. Abernathy (1944) 62 Cal. App. 2d 429, 432, 144 P.2d 844 (interpreting a portion of Code Civ. Proc. § 758 which is substantially similar to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.410)]. The requirement in Code Civ. Proc. § 872.410(a) that the defendant list his or her interest in the property includes liens as well as other interests claimed by the defendant [Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.410]. An interlocutory decree of partition is conclusive as to any title acquired by defendant after he or she has filed the answer and before rendition of the interlocutory decree, unless the answer is amended so as to include the new title [Christy v. Spring Valley Water-works (1890) 84 Cal. 541, 542-543, 24 P. 307] .

[2] If Defendant Is Lienholder

If the defendant has or claims a lien on the property, the answer must set forth the date, character, and amount remaining due on the lien [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.420]. Further, nothing in Code Civ. Proc. § 872.420 precludes the defendant from alleging any additional costs, fees, and expenses related to the lien that he or she may be entitled to in addition to the amount remaining due on the lien itself [Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.420].

[3] Compensatory Adjustment

The answer may set forth any claim the defendant has for contribution or other compensatory adjustment [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.430]. If the defendant asserts new matter in his or her answer, the answer must be served on all of his or her codefendants as well as on the plaintiff [Tu Junga Co. v. Barlcay (1909) 11 Cal. App. 60, 61, 103 P. 1092] .

[1] In General

If the court finds that the plaintiff is entitled to partition, it will make an interlocutory judgment that determines the interests of the parties in the property and orders the partition of the property and, unless it is to be later determined, the manner of partition [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.720(a)]. This interlocutory judgment has been made expressly appealable by Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(8) and an appeal from an interlocutory decree in partition operates as a stay without bond [Neusted v. Skernswell (1945) 69 Cal. App. 2d 361, 369-370, 159 P.2d 49] . It should be noted that Code Civ. Proc. § 873.290(c) provides that the property division is effective and title vests in accordance with the division on entry of the final judgment [see Richmond v. Dofflemyer (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 745, 766, 164 Cal. Rptr. 727] . For a discussion of final judgments in partition actions, see § 397.61.

An error in an interlocutory decree in partition must be corrected by an appeal or motion for new trial [Tormey v. Allen (1872) 45 Cal. 119, 121] . For example, when an interlocutory judgment for partition in kind has become final, the judgment may not be amended to provide for a sale, despite the fact that it appears from the referee's report that a division of kind cannot be achieved without great prejudice to the owners [Raisin Investment Co. v. Magginetti (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 163, 164-165, 240 P.2d 349] .

[2] Multiple Interlocutory Judgments

If the court determines that it is impracticable or highly inconvenient to make a single interlocutory judgment that determines, in the first instance, the interests of all parties in the property, the court may first ascertain the interests of the original concurrent or successive owners. On ascertaining those interests, the court may make an interlocutory judgment as if such persons were the sole parties in interest and the only parties to the action. Thereafter the court may proceed in the same manner as between the original concurrent or successive owners and the parties claiming under them or may allow the interests to remain without further partition if the parties so desire [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.720(b); see Richmond v. Dofflemyer (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 745, 754, 164 Cal. Rptr. 727] .

[3] Binding on Referee

The trial court has the power to make interlocutory judgments binding not only on the parties, but on the referee as well. The referee may not make recommendations or find values contrary to the interlocutory judgment by virtue of the court's instructions to the referee. Nor may the court change these at the time of final judgment [Richmond v. Dofflemyer (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 745, 757, 164 Cal. Rptr. 727] . For further discussion of referees, see § 397.58.

[4] Costs

The court is not authorized to include in the interlocutory decree a judgment for costs against the defendant. That decree is only a determination of the respective interests of the parties in the land, preliminary to the final judgment of partition, and is, as its terms import, merely interlocutory in the proceedings. It is only after final judgment that costs are to be allowed [Harrington v. Goldsmith (1902) 136 Cal. 168, 170, 68 P. 594 ; see also § 397.63]. For a general discussion of costs, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Partition Actions Generally

35-397 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 397.58

§ 397.58 Appointment of Referee

[1] Types of Referees

Two distinct classes of referees may be appointed in a partition action. Pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.630(b) (see § 397.44[2]), a referee may be appointed to ascertain the facts necessary for the determination of the status and priority of all liens on the property subject to partition. Such a referee is appointed before the interlocutory decree. On the other hand, the referee appointed under Code Civ. Proc. § 873.010 is appointed after the interlocutory decree and his or her sole duty is to divide or sell the property as ordered by the court [see Richardson v. Loupe (1889) 80 Cal. 490, 501, 22 P. 227] .

[2] Procedure for Appointment

The court must appoint a referee to divide or sell the property as ordered by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.010(a)]. The parties may nominate persons to serve as referees but, absent agreement among the parties, the choice of a referee is in the court's discretion [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.040; see also § 397.58[3]]. The court must appoint as referee, however, any person or persons to whose appointment all parties have consented, unless such person (or persons) is ineligible to become a referee [see Code Civ. Proc. § 873.040(a)]. For a discussion of persons ineligible to be referees, see § 397.58[5]. In the case of a minor party or a party for whom a conservator of the estate has been appointed, the guardian or conservator of the estate of the party may consent to an appointment of a referee [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.040(b)].

Furthermore, the court may, with the consent of the parties, appoint three referees to divide or sell the property as ordered by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.030(a)]. The three referees so appointed will have all the powers and may perform all the duties required of one referee [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.030(b)]. It should be noted that Code Civ. Proc. § 873.030, providing for court appointment of three referees only with the consent of the parties, replaces provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 763 that provided for appointment of three referees as a matter of course [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.030]. The court order appointing referee(s) does not, in itself, seem to be an order from which an appeal may be taken [Fallon v. Brittan (1890) 84 Cal. 511, 514, 24 P. 381] .

[3] Discretionary Power to Appoint

The word "shall," as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 873.010 which provides that the court "shall appoint a referee to divide or sell the property as ordered by the court," should be construed to require the appointment of a referee only where it is determined that a referee is necessary or would be desirable or helpful. It should not be so strictly construed as to require the expense and time-consuming services of a referee if the court has adequate evidence before it to render its decision. The function of the interlocutory judgment is to permit the trial court to determine those matters which have been presented to it for determination, and which it can determine on the evidence submitted to it without the necessity of a referee. The only function of a referee is to assist the court in determining those matters which cannot be so determined on the evidence before it [Richmond v. Dofflemyer (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 745, 755, 164 Cal. Rptr. 727] .

[4] On Partial Division and Partial Sale

The court in its discretion may appoint a referee for sale and a referee for division, or may appoint a single referee for both [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.020]. Code Civ. Proc. § 873.020 makes clear the court's discretion to appoint referees with different functions where property in an action is to be both divided and sold [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.020].

[5] Ineligible Persons

The following persons cannot be appointed as referees under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 872.010-874.240 [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.050]:

(1) A clerk or deputy clerk of the court.

(2) A former or present partner or employee of the judge.

(3) A relative within the third degree of the judge or the judge's spouse or spouse of such a relative.

(4) An owner of any interest in the property that is the subject of the action.

[6] Court Authority Over Referee

With respect to the referee, the court may determine whether a referee's bond is necessary and fix the amount of the bond [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.010(b)(1)]. Whether a bond is required depends on the circumstances of the case [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.010]. The court may also instruct the referee, fix the reasonable compensation for the services of the referee, and provide for payment of the referee's reasonable expenses [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.010(b)(2), (3)]. In determining the amount of the referee's compensation, the court is allowed a wide discretion, and on appeal, a plain abuse of that discretion must appear or the judgment will be affirmed [Treadwell v. Treadwell (1901) 134 Cal. 158, 158, 66 P. 197] . The court may also provide for the date of commencement of the lien of the referee allowed by the law [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.010(b)(4)]. In addition, the court may require the filing of interim or final accounts of the referee, settle the accounts of the referee, and discharge the referee [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.010(b)(5)]; this applies particularly in, but is not limited to, sales transactions [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.010]. Finally, the court may remove the referee and appoint a new referee [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.010(b)(6), (7)].

In addition, subject to the limitations of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 873.110-873.160, the court may [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.110]:

(1) Authorize or approve contracts of the referee for the services and expenses of surveyors, engineers, appraisers, attorneys, real estate brokers, auctioneers, and others [see § 395.59[4]].

(2) Allow and direct payment of or reject claims under such contracts.

(3) Provide for the date of commencement of any lien provided by law or contract for such claims. For a discussion of payment of costs by lien, see § 397.63.

The ability to obtain the services of a third party may depend on assurance of security for payment, in order to protect the third party's right to payment despite any later settlement by the parties and dismissal of the action. For this reason, Code Civ. Proc. § 873.110 vests the court with broad discretion to approve contracts for services, with the corresponding duty to provide adequate lien protection for persons who render such services [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.110; for a discussion of liens for payment of costs, see § 397.63].

Code Civ. Proc. § 873.110 recognizes that the court is the supervising entity in carrying out the partition. It removes from the referee, acting alone, the authority to engage the services of third persons for his or her assistance [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.110].

§ 397.59 Authority and Duties of Referee

[1] In General

The referee may perform any acts necessary to exercise the authority conferred by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 872.010-874.240 or by order of the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.060]. Code Civ. Proc. § 873.060 makes explicit the referee's general authority to effectuate the partition [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.060].

On noticed motion, the referee or any party may petition the court for instructions concerning the referee's duties under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 872.010-874.240 [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.070]. Code Civ. Proc. § 873.070 enables the referee and parties to resolve expeditiously any administrative problems that arise in the execution of the referee's duties [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.070].

[2] To Make Report

[a] Filing and Contents

The referee must file with the court a report of the referee's proceedings and give written notice of filing to each party who has appeared in the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.280(a)]. The report must include all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.280(b)]:

(1) A specification of the manner in which the referee has executed the referee's trust.

(2) A description of the property divided and of the share allotted to each party, along with any recommendation as to owelty [see discussion in § 397.60[5]]. It should be noted that the description must be by metes and bounds, or lots and blocks, or such other method as will enable the precise location of each portion [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.280].

(3) Any recommendation as to opening and closing public and private ways, roads, streets, and easements [see § 397.59[3]].

The referee's report is merely advisory and the court is free to make its own findings and to decree accordingly [Machado v. Machado (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 401, 405, 152 P.2d 457] . The referee is not required to report a valuation of the whole or of any allotment, or to hold a hearing for the parties before him or her [Richardson v. Loupe (1889) 80 Cal. 490, 501, 22 P. 227] . If the referee, however, places a value on the property, the court is not bound to adopt the basis used by the referee for his or her calculation as to the value reached, but may in its final decree make its own findings with respect to such matters [MacDonald v. Bernal (1917) 34 Cal. App. 431, 432, 167 P. 902] . Any dispute as to the relative value ofthe several allotments, or as to the justice of the division of the property in any other respect, is to be settled before the court which has full power to confirm, change, modify, or set aside the referee's report [Richardson v. Loupe (1889) 80 Cal. 490, 501, 22 P. 227] .

[b] Confirming, Modifying, or Setting Aside

Any party, on notice to the other parties who have appeared, may move the court to confirm, modify, or set aside the report of the referee [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.290(a)]. It should be noted that if no error appears on the face of the referee's report, none will be presumed; the report will not be set aside unless a party excepting to it shows such a state of facts as will make alleged error affirmatively and clearly appear [Camicia v. Camicia (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 487, 491, 150 P.2d 814] .

At the hearing on the motion, the court may do one of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.290(b)]:

(1) Confirm the report as filed and enter judgment of partition accordingly;

(2) Confirm the report as modified by the court and enter judgment of partition accordingly; or

(3) Set aside the report, order preparation of a new report and, if necessary, appoint a new referee for this purpose.

In the case of appointment of a new referee, it should be noted that the order appointing the referee is not in itself an order from which an appeal may be taken [Fallon v. Brittan (1890) 84 Cal. 511, 514, 24 P. 381] .

[c] Effect

The report of the referee is not final until approved by the court and adopted in its judgment [Cathcart v. Redlands Security Co. (1945) 67 Cal. App. 2d 591, 596, 155 P.2d 60] . On entry of the judgment of partition, the division of the property is effective and title vests according to that division [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.290]. It is the judgment that gives effect to the referee's report [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.290]. For a discussion of judgments in partition actions, see § 397.61.

[3] Designating Property as Way, Road, or Street

In selling or dividing the property, the referee may, if it will be for the advantage of those interested, designate a portion of the property as a public or private way, road, or street [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.080(a)]. In connection with such a designation, the referee may also recommend the closure of any or all other roads on the property and allocation of the portion of the property occupied by such roads to the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.080(a)]. Such a designation and recommendation must be adequate to accommodate public and private needs [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.080(b)].

The referee must report the fact of such a designation and recommendation to the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.080(b)]. The confirmation of the referee's report by the court is subject to any necessary action by the appropriate public entities [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.080(c)].

On confirmation of the referee's report, the following apply: (1) the portion of the property designated as a public way, road, or street must not be allocated to any of the parties, or sold, but must be an open and public way, road, or street; (2) the property designated as a private way, road, or street must be a private way for use of the parties interested; and (3) the roads recommended to be closed must be deemed abandoned on the terms stated in the order of confirmation [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.080(c)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 873.080 makes clear that the actions of the referee in disposing of the property and of the court in confirming the referee's actions must conform to any applicable laws [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.080].

[4] To Enter Into Contracts

[a] In General

The court has the authority to authorize or approve contracts of the referee for the services and expenses of surveyors, engineers, appraisers, attorneys, real estate brokers, auctioneers, and others [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.110; see § 397.58[6]]. Code Civ. Proc. § 873.110 contemplates that the court will authorize or approve contracts of the referees for third-party services and expenses, allow or reject claims thereunder, and in proper cases specify the priority of any lien therefor [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.110]. For a discussion of payment of costs by lien, see § 397.63.

[b] Liability of Referee

The referee is not personally liable on contracts made, or for expenses incurred, unless the referee expressly assumes such liability in writing [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.160]. The contract itself may provide a means of payment, for example, the commission of an auctioneer or a real estate broker from the proceeds of sale. In other cases, particularly where the property is divided, the third person will have lien rights [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.160]. For a discussion of the commission of agents, see § 397.89. For a discussion of the payment of costs by lien, see § 397.63.

[c] Contract Provision for Interest

A contract for the services of an attorney, surveyor, auctioneer, or other thirdpersons may provide for the accrual of interest at a rate not in excess of the legal rate for amounts due under the contract that are not paid within three months after the time they become due and payable [see Code Civ. Proc. § 873.150].

[d] Contracting With Attorney

The referee may employ an attorney only with the approval of the court under Code Civ. Proc. § 873.110 [see § 397.58[6]]. The application for approval must be in writing and must include the name of the attorney whom the referee wishes to employ and the necessity for the employment. The attorney so employed may not be attorney for, or associated with or employed by an attorney for, any party to the action except with the written consent of all the parties to the action. Any claim for compensation for the attorney must detail the services performed by the attorney [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.120].

[e] Contracting With Surveyor

The referee may, with the approval of the court pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.110, discussed in § 397.58[6], employ a surveyor with the necessary assistants to aid in making a sale or division of property [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.130]. Court approval is required since the amounts involved may be substantial and means of payment may present a problem [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.130].

[f] Contracting With Auctioneer

The referee may, with the approval of the court pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.110 (see § 397.58[6]), employ an auctioneer authorized to act as such in the locality, to conduct a public auction and to secure purchasers by such method for any property to be sold at public auction [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.140]. It should be noted that a contract for the services of an auctioneer may provide for the accrual of interest at a rate not in excess of the legal rate; this interest penalty applies to amounts due under the contract that are not paid within three months after the time they become due and payable [see Code Civ. Proc. § 873.150].

B. Partition Actions Generally

35-397 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 397.60

§ 397.60 Division of Property

[1] In General

The referee appointed by the court to make a division of the property divides the property and allots the several portions to the parties. The decision concerning the relative quality and quantity of the allotments is made according to the interests of the parties in the property as determined in the interlocutory judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.210]. Code Civ. Proc. § 873.210 does not mandate, however, that each cotenant should receive his or her fair share of the more valuable parts of the property subject to partition, as well as the less valuable parts. Quality and quantity are to be considered in the allotments by the referee, but the determinative factor is that each party shall receive an allotment equal to his or her interest in the whole of the property [Richmond v. Dofflemyer (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 745, 759, 164 Cal. Rptr. 727] . Contentions that the referee might have made a more just and equitable division of the property are matters for the trial court to determine on the hearing of the referee's report; the determinations of the trial court will not be reversed absent a showing of abuse of discretion [Capuccio v. Caire (1929) 207 Cal. 200, 211, 277 P. 475] .

[2] Division of Improvements

The property must be divided so as to allot a party any portion that embraces improvements made by that party or that party's predecessor in interest, as far as it is practical, and to the extent it can be done without material injury to the rights of other parties. The value of such improvements is excluded from the determination of such a division and allotment [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.220].

If it is not practical to so allot the improvements, the court may take them into account by, for example, making a suitable allowance for them, since an action for partition is essentially equitable in nature [Ventre v. Tiscornia (1913) 23 Cal. App. 598, 604, 138 P. 954 ; Mercola v. Chester (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 140, 143, 217 P.2d 32] . For a discussion of the equitable nature of partition actions, see § 397.39. The other cotenants need not have consented to the improvements, but for such an allowance to be made for them, the improvements must have been (1) made by a cotenant, (2) at his or her own cost, (3) in good faith, (4) necessary to the preservation of the common property, and (5) permanent, and they must have (6) enhanced the value of the common property and (7) benefited the other cotenants [Ventre v. Tiscornia (1913) 23 Cal. App. 598, 604, 138 P. 954 ; Mercola v. Chester (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 140, 143,

It should be noted that the making of expenditures for such improvements will not operate as a bar to bringing a partition action [Lazzarevich v. Lazzarevich (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 48, 50-51, 244 P.2d 1] .

[3] Division With Purported Conveyance

If prior to the commencement of the action a party has executed a deed purporting to convey to a purchaser a portion of the property to be divided, to the extent it can be done without material injury to the rights of the other parties, the property must be so divided as to allot that portion to the purchaser, the purchaser's heirs or assigns, or such other action taken as to make the deed effectual as a conveyance of that portion of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.230].

It should be noted that in such a conveyance the purchaser acquires all the interest of his or her grantor in the portion of the property purchased, and theconveyance does not sever the portion of the property from the general tract owned by the cotenants of the grantor. This means that if the general tract is partitioned, the purchaser takes subject to the contingency that the property purchased will be lost, if on partition of the general tract, that portion is not allotted to his or her grantor [Gates v. Salmon (1868) 35 Cal. 576, 587-588] .

[4] Division of Lots or Parcels

If real property consists of more than one distinct lot or parcel, the property will be divided by such lots or parcels without other internal division. This division will be done to the extent it can be done without material injury to the rights of the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.240]. To facilitate division by individual lots, the parties may join additional property whether by complaint or by cross complaint [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.240].

[5] Compensation to Correct Inequality; Owelty

One party may be required to compensate another, to correct an inequality, if division of the property cannot be made equally among the parties according to their interests without prejudice to the rights of some [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.250(a)]. No compensation, however, is required to be made to others by unknown owners [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.250(b)]. It should be noted that owelty of partition is distinguished from compensatory adjustments made under the ordinary principals of equity, as for accountings, allowances, and the like, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.140 [Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.250; see § 397.39[5]].

In addition, minors are not required to compensate others unless it appears that the minor has personal property sufficient for that purpose and the minor's interest will be promoted by his or her payment of such compensation [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.250(b)]. The bar on requiring owelty of a minor applies to imposition of a lien on the share of the minor as well as to direct payment [Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.250].

An owelty award is based on the value of real property, and therefore the award turns on a question of fact. Thus, in one case the plaintiffs were precluded from challenging the amount of the owelty award on appeal because they did not timely move for a new trial [Jamison v. Jamison (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 714, 720, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 561]. Whether the award is termed owelty or damages, it still requires an evaluation of the amount awarded in light of the evidence presented at trial, an issue that could and should be resolved at the trial court level. Thus, the same reasoning for requiring a motion for a new trial applies to both owelty awards and damage awards. Accordingly, a new trial motion was a prerequisite to the plaintiffs' challenge to the adequacy of the owelty award on appeal [Jamison v. Jamison (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 714, 720, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 561].

[6] Lien on Undivided Interest

On division of the property, a lien on an undivided interest of a party becomes a charge only on the share allotted to that party [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.260]. The lien that is continued will be subordinate to charges on the property for its just proportion of the costs of partition [Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.260; see also § 397.63].

[7] Interests of Unknown Parties

Where the court has determined the combined interests of two or more unknown parties, the entire portion of the property allocated to such parties remains undivided [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.270]. If, during the action, an unknown party becomes known, his or her interest may be determined and his or portion of the undivided property may be allocated to him or her [Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.270].

§ 397.61 Final Judgment

[1] Order for Final Judgment

If the court has ordered a partition [see § 397.57], appointed a referee [see § 397.58], if the referee has made his or her report [see § 397.59], and the referee's report has been confirmed [see § 397.59[1][a]], the court will order a final judgment of partition. The division of the property is effective and title vests in accordance with the division on entry of final judgment of partition [see Code Civ. Proc. § 873.290]. In the case of partition by sale, after (1) the court has ordered the property to be sold, (2) the sale has been made by the referee and confirmed by the court, and (3) the court has made an order directing the referee to execute a conveyance or other instrument of transfer, to collect the proceeds, take security, and perform other acts required to consummate the sale, the court will order a final judgment of partition [see § 397.150[4]].

[2] Persons Bound

The judgment in the action is binding and conclusive on all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 874.210]:

- All persons known and unknown who were parties to the action and who have or claim any interest in the property, whether present or future, vested or contingent, legal or beneficial, or several or undivided.

- All persons not in being or not ascertainable at the time the judgment is entered who have any remainder interest in the property, or in any portion of the property, after the determination of a particular estate in the property and who may be entitled to a beneficial interest in the property by any contingency. The judge, however, must make appropriate provision for the protection of these interests.

- Except as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 874.225, all persons who were not parties to the action [see § 397.61[3]], and who have or claim any interest in the property that was not of record at the time the lis pendens was filed, or if none was filed, at the time judgment was recorded.

[3] Persons Not Bound

Except to the extent provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1908, the judgment does not affect a claim in the property or part of the property of any person who was not a party to the action if either of the following conditions is satisfied [Code Civ. Proc. § 874.225(a), (b)]:

- The claim was of record at the time the lis pendens was filed or, if none was filed, at the time the judgment was recorded.

- The claim was actually known to the plaintiff or would have been reasonably apparent from an inspection of the property at the time the lis pendens was filed or, if none was filed, at the time the judgment was entered. For purposes of this condition, a claim in the property or part of the property of any person means the interest of the person in the portion of the property or proceeds of sale of the property allocated to the plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 874.225(b) (subsection also provides that nothing in it may be construed to impair the rights of a bona fide purchaser or encumbrancer for value dealing with the plaintiff or the plaintiff's successors in interest)].

A claimant may be bound by the proceeding, however, if the claim was acquired from a party after commencement of the proceeding and with actual knowledge of the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1908(a)(2); see Cal. L. Rev. Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 874.225].

[4] Grounds to Set Aside

A final decree or judgment in partition may be set aside to correct a mistake, if the mistake is extrinsic and collateral to the questions examined and determined in the original action and led the court to do what it evidently never intended to do [Sullivan v. Lumsden (1897) 118 Cal. 664, 669, 50 P. 777] . For further discussion and forms of judgments, see Ch. 318, Judgments .

§ 397.63 Costs of Partition

[1] In Partition Action

The costs of partition include the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 874.010]:

(1) Reasonable attorney's fees incurred or paid by a party for the common benefit [see § 397.63[3]].

(2) The fee and expenses of the referee [see § 397.58[6]].

(3) The compensation provided by contract for services of a surveyor or other person employed by the referee in the action [see § 397.59[4]].

(4) The reasonable costs of a title report procured pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.220 [see § 397.52] with interest on that amount at the legal rate from the time of payment or, if paid before commencement of the action, from the time of commencement of the action.

(5) Other disbursements or expenses determined by the court to have been incurred or paid for the common benefit.

The listing in Code Civ. Proc. § 874.010 is illustrative only, and the costs of partition may include other expenses or disbursements, of a like or different kind, found by the court to have been incurred or paid for the common benefit [Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 874.010]. The referee's fee must be a "reasonable sum" pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1023 (fees of referee). Furthermore, the expenses of the referee may include attorney's fees when appropriate [Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 874.010; see § 397.59[4][d]].

[2] In Related Action

The costs of partition include reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, necessarily incurred by a party for the common benefit in prosecuting or defending other actions or other proceedings. These other actions or proceedings must be for the protection, confirmation, or perfection of title, setting the boundaries, or making a survey of the property. The reasonable expenses include interest on these expenses at the legal rate from the time of making the expenditures [Code Civ. Proc. § 874.020].

[3] Apportionment of Costs

Except as otherwise provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 874.010-874.050, the court apportions the costs of partition among the parties in proportion to their interests or makes other apportionments that are equitable [Code Civ. Proc. § 874.040]. For example, if property is partitioned between a 2/3 owner and 1/3 owner, the total attorneys's fees incurred by both parties for the common benefit should be charged to each party at that ratio. Attorney's fees and costs incurred by lienholders, however, cannot be awarded to the lienholders, where the record indicates that their interests were not in danger of being prejudiced during the partition proceeding [Stutz v. Davis (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 1, 175 Cal. Rptr. 701] .

As stated in Code Civ. Proc. § 874.040, usually the costs of partition are apportioned in proportion to the interests of the parties, but there may be cases in which some other arrangement will be equitable. For example, if litigation for the common benefit arises among only some of the parties, or if the interests of the parties in all items, lots, or parcels of property are not identical, the court may segregate the costs of partition to the extent practicable and apportion a partamong particular parties only [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 874.040]. Furthermore the court may order that the share of the costs apportioned to a future interest be paid by other parties to the action or by the persons who are then the presumptive owners of the future interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 874.050(a)]. If the court orders payment in this manner, such payment is subject to a right of reimbursement, with interest at the legal rate, secured by a charge on the future interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 874.050(b)]. If a share of the costs is apportioned to a future interest, however, the amount is discounted based on the present value of the future interest [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 874.050].

[4] Interest

If disbursements have been made by a party under the direction of the court, interest at the legal rate is allowed thereon from the time of making such disbursements [Code Civ. Proc. § 874.030].

[5] Payment of Costs

The costs of partition as apportioned by the court may be ordered paid in whole or in part prior to judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 874.110(a)]. Any costs that remain unpaid must be included and specified in the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 874.110(b)]. The judgment referred to in Code Civ. Proc. § 874.110 is the judgment entered at the conclusion of the case in the trial court [Assembly Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 874.110]. While Code Civ. Proc. § 874.110(a) requires payment by the parties, it should be noted that in the case of sale of the property, the proceeds are to be applied first to discharge the costs of partition before disbursement to the parties [Assembly Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 874.110]. For a discussion of partition by sale, see § 397.80 et seq.

[6] As Lien

The costs of partition are a lien on the share of the party specified in the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 874.120(a)]. On application of a person entitled to a lien for payment of such costs and on a showing of good cause, the court may order a sale of all or a portion of the property before or after judgment for the benefit of all such lien claimants without priority among them [Code Civ. Proc. § 874.130]. The judgment referred to in Code Civ. Proc. § 874.130 is the judgment entered at the conclusion of the case in the trial court [Assembly Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 874.110]. Liens for payment of costs of partition have priority over all other liens but have no priority among themselves [see Code Civ. Proc. § 874.120; see also Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 874.130]. In addition, the remedies provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 874.130 are cumulative [see Cal. L. Rev. Comm.

Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 874.130].

[7] Execution

A judgment for unpaid costs of partition may be enforced by the person entitled to the costs by execution against the share of the party specified in the judgment or against other property of the party [Code Civ. Proc. § 874.140]. The judgment referred to in Code Civ. Proc. § 874.140 is the judgment entered at the conclusion of the case in the trial court [Assembly Legislative Committee Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 874.110]. The remedies provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 874.140 are cumulative [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 874.140].

§ 397.81 Decision to Order Sale

[1] In General

Notwithstanding Code Civ. Proc. § 872.810, which provides for division of the property in kind (see § 397.50), the court will order that the property be sold and the proceeds be divided among the parties in accordance with their interests in the property as determined in the interlocutory judgment in the following situations [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.820]:

(1) If the parties agree to such relief, by their pleadings or otherwise.

(2) If the court determines that, under the circumstances, sale and division of the proceeds would be more equitable than division of the property; for the purpose of making the determination, the court may appoint a referee and take into account his or her report [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.820].

Whether or not a partition by sale would be more equitable than a partition in kind is a question of fact [see Mitchell v. Cline (1890) 84 Cal. 409, 418, 24 P. 164 (interpreting former Code Civ. Proc. § 763)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 872.820 changes the standard for allowing partition of the property by sale from "great prejudice" to "more equitable," thereby preserving the traditional preference for physical division while broadening the use of partition by sale [see Butte Creek Island Ranch v. Crim (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 360, 365, 186 Cal. Rptr. 252 ; Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.820]. For a discussion of the revision of the partition law see § 397.31. There are two types of evidence which will demonstrate that a sale would be more equitable than partition in kind. The firstis evidence that the property is so situated that a division into subparcels of equal value cannot be made. The second is economic evidence to the effect that, due to the particular situation of the land, the partition in kind of the land would substantially diminish the value of each party's interest [Butte Creek Island Ranch v. Crim (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 360, 365-367, 186 Cal. Rptr. 252] .

[2] Partial Sale

The court may order that a portion of the property be sold and the remainder divided if, in making the determination whether sale would be more equitable than division of the property, the court finds that sale and division of proceeds for part of the property would be more equitable than division of the whole property [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.830].

§ 397.84 Sale of Certain Kinds of Property

[1] Separate Sale of Distinct Lots

Unless the interests and rights of the parties will be materially prejudiced thereby, the court must order that distinct lots or parcels of real property be sold separately [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.620].

[2] Sale of Real and Personal Property as Unit

The court may order that the real and personal property or any portion thereof be sold as a unit [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.620(b)]. It should be noted that when real and personal property are sold as a unit, it is subject to a combined offer or "one bid" [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.620].

[3] Sale of Securities or Perishable Personal Property

The court may order securities listed on an established stock or bond exchange, and personal property that is perishable, that will depreciate in value if not promptly disposed of, or that will incur loss or expense by being kept, to be sold on such notice and conditions as may be appropriate [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.660]. Note that Code Civ. Proc. § 873.660 applies notwithstanding the other provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 873.510-873.850 governing sale of property in partition actions [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.620].

§ 397.85 Credit Sales

The court may direct a sale on credit for the property or any part of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.630(a)]. The court also may prescribe such terms of credit as may be appropriate [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.630(b)]. If the court fails to prescribe the terms of credit, however, the referee may accept offers that propose varying terms [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.630]. In addition, the court may approve or prescribe the terms of security to be taken on the sale, including the manner in which title to the security is to be taken, whether in a single instrument or several instruments, according to the interests of the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.630(c)]. If there are minors or unknown owners, the court may direct that a trustee or other fiduciary hold the security for them and act on their behalf [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.630].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Partition By Sale

35-397 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 397.86

§ 397.86 Sales Procedure

[1] By Agreement of Parties

Notwithstanding any other provisions contained in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 872.010-874.240, the court must order sale by such methods and on such terms as are expressly agreed to in writing by all parties to the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.600].

Code Civ. Proc. § 873.600 permits the parties to agree to sales procedures that may vary from the procedures prescribed in the statutes governing sale of property in partition action (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 873.510-873.850). It should be noted that for Code Civ. Proc. § 873.600 to be operative, the consent of all parties is necessary whether or not they have appeared. As a consequence, Code Civ. Proc. § 873.600 cannot be used when unknown owners are made parties unless a guardian ad litem has been appointed for them. On the other hand, the consent of persons named as parties who are not served and who have not appeared isunnecessary since their interests will not be affected by the judgment in the action [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.600].

Code Civ. Proc. § 873.600 only empowers the owners to specify the terms and conditions of sale before the referee's entry into a contract. Thus, property owners could not invoke § 873.600 in connection with a stipulation adopting minimum terms while the motion to confirm was pending [Sullivan v. Dorsa (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 947, 961, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 547] .

[2] By Court Determination

The court may, at the time of trial or thereafter, prescribe such manner, terms, and conditions of sale not inconsistent with the provisions of the statutes governing sale of property in partition actions (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 873.510-873.850), as it deems proper for the particular property or sale [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.610]. In addition, the court may refer the manner, terms, and conditions of sale to the referee for recommendation but must not approve the referee's report except following a hearing on noticed motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.610].

[3] Notice of Sale

[a] In General

Notice of the sale of real or personal property must be given in the manner required for notice of sale of like property on execution [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.640(a)]. Such notice must also be given to every party who has appeared in the action and to such other interested persons as may have in writing requested the referee for special notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.640(a)]. If real and personal property are to be sold as a unit, notice of sale may be in the manner required for notice of sale of real property alone [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.640(b)]. The court may order such additional notice as it deems proper [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.640(c)]. If the court orders a new sale of property pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.730 [see § 397.88[3]] or Code Civ. Proc. § 873.740 [see § 397.88[3][b]], notice of sale must be as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 873.640 [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.640(d)]. Inadequate notice of sale to the parties or persons who have requested notice may be a ground for setting aside the sale [see Code Civ. Proc. § 873.730; see also § 397.88[3]].

The court prescribes the contents of the notice of sale, which must include the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.650(a)]:

- A description of the property;
- The time and place of sale; and
- Either a statement of the principal terms of sale, or an incorporation by reference of an order of the court, or a written statement containing such information which may be inspected at the place of business of the referee or the referee's attorney.

For a discussion of the determination of terms of sale, see § 397.86[2].

It should be noted that the court may permit variation from the published terms of sale if to do so will benefit the parties and will not prejudice the rights of other interested persons [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.650; see also § 397.88[2]].

[b] Private Sales

A notice of private sale must state a place where bids or offers will be received and a day on or after which the sale will be made [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.650(b)]. In the case of a private sale, the place of sale will normally be the place of business of the referee [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.650].

[4] Manner of Sale

[a] Public Auction or Private Sale

The property must be sold at public auction or private sale as the court determines will be more beneficial to the parties. For the purposes of making this determination, the court may refer the matter to the referee and take into account the referee's report [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.520]. In addition, part of the property may be sold at public auction and part at private sale if it appears that to do so will be more beneficial to the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.530]. Code Civ. Proc. § 873.520 makes clear that there is no preference for either public auction or private sale. The reference to a referee for a determination of whether public auction or private sale would be more beneficial may be combined with a reference to determine whether partition by sale is more equitable than partition by division [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.520; for discussion of reference to determine if partition should be by sale, see § 397.81].

[b] Procedure for Public Auction

A sale at public auction to the highest bidder must be held in the county in which the action is pending or such other place as may be specified by the court. Unless otherwise ordered by the court, personal property must be present at the sale. The sale may be postponed by the referee by public declaration as provided for sales on execution [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.670]. Execution is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 699.010-701.830. For a discussion of execution sales, see Ch. 254, Execution and Enforcement of Money Judgments .

[c] Procedure for Private Sale

A sale at private sale must not be made before the day specified in the noticeof sale but can be made within one year thereafter. The bids or offers must be in writing and left at the place designated in the notice at any time after the first publication or, if none, the posting of the notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.680].

§ 397.87 Referees

[1] Duties of Referee

The referee appointed by the court to make a sale of the property must sell the property in the manner and following the procedures provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 873.510-873.850 [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.510].

[2] Report of Referee

On making the sale of property, the referee must report the sale to the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.710(a)]. The referee's report must contain, in addition to such other information as may be appropriate, all of the following information [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.710(b)]:

- A description of the property sold to each purchaser.
- The name of the purchaser.
- The sale price.
- The terms and conditions of the sale and the security, if any, taken.
- Any amounts payable to lienholders.
- A statement as to contractual or other arrangements or conditions as to agents' commissions.
- Any determination and recommendation as to opening and closing public and private ways, roads, streets, and easements.
- Other material facts relevant to the sale and the confirmation proceeding.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Partition By Sale

35-397 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 397.88

§ 397.88 Confirmation on Setting Aside Sale

[1] Motion

A purchaser, the referee, or any party may move the court to confirm or set aside the sale [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.720(a)]. The moving party must give not less than 10 days notice of motion to [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.720(b)]:

- The purchaser, if the purchaser is not the moving party; and
- All other parties who have appeared in the action.

[2] Hearing on Sale

At the hearing, the court will examine the referee's report (see § 397.87[2]) and witnesses in relation to the report; the court then has power to either confirm the sale or vacate it [see Code Civ. Proc. § 873.730; see also § 397.88[2] and [3]].

[3] Confirmation of Sale

[a] By Court

The court may confirm the sale notwithstanding variance from the prescribed terms of sale if to do so will be beneficial to the parties and will not result in substantial prejudice to persons interested in the sale [see Code Civ. Proc. § 873.730(b)]. In the case of confirmation of a credit sale, the judge must determine whether the credit bidder is responsible before confirming the sale [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.730].

[b] Conveyance by Referee

On confirmation of a sale, the court will order the referee to execute a conveyance or other instrument of transfer, to collect the proceeds, take security, and perform other acts required to consummate the sale. In addition, the order may direct the referee concerning the distribution, deposit, or securing of sale deposits and sale proceeds [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.750]. On fulfillment of the terms of sale, the referee must execute a conveyance or other instrument of transfer to the purchaser. The conveyance or transfer of real property and the order authorizing such conveyance or transfer must be recorded in each county in which the property is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.790].

[4] Vacating Sale

[a] In General

The court may vacate the sale and direct that a new sale be made if it determines any of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.730(c)]:

- The proceedings were unfair or notice of sale was not properly given. If there is no finding at the hearing of unfairness or improper notice, the sale may thereafter not be attacked on these grounds.

- The sale price is disproportionate to the value of the property.

- It appears that a new sale will yield a sum that exceeds the sale price by at least 10 percent on the first $10,000 and 5 percent on the amount in excess of the first $10,000, determined after a reasonable allowance for the expenses of a new sale.

Each of these grounds for vacating a sale is independently sufficient [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.730].

[b] Increased Offer

If at the hearing under Code Civ. Proc. § 873.730 (see § 397.88[1]) aresponsible bidder makes a written increased offer that exceeds the sale price by at least 10 percent on the first $10,000 and 5 percent on the amount in excess thereof, the court in its discretion may do either of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.740(a)]:

- Vacate the sale and direct that a new sale be made.

- Vacate the sale, accept the increased offer, and confirm the sale to the offeror.

Except as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 873.740(c), the amount by which an increased offer exceeds the sale price is determined on the basis of the gross amount of the increased offer including any commission on the increased offer to which an agent may be entitled [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.740(b)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 873.740(c) provides that if in advance of sale, the court has so ordered or the parties have so agreed, if an increased offer is made by a party to the action who is not represented by an agent, the amount by which an increased offer of a nonparty exceeds the sale price is determined on the basis of the net amount of the increased offer excluding any commission on the increased offer to which an agent may be entitled [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.740(c)].

C. Partition By Sale

§ 397.89 Agents' Commissions

The amount of agents' commissions on the sale, if any, is fixed by the court and divided or limited in the manner provided for private sales of real property in decedents' estates [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.745]. The statutory provisions governing agents' commissions in private sales of real property in probate are Prob. Code § 10160 et seq. [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.745; for a discussion of these probate statutes, see Ch. 445, Probate: Sale of Estate Property , and Ch. 280, Guardianship and Conservatorship]. Thus, an order awarding a commission to a broker on an unconsummated sale of the partitioned property could not be sustained in light of Prob. Code § 10160, which precludes real estate commissions on unconsummated sales of estate property [Sullivan v. Dorsa (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 947, 959, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 547] .

If the purchaser, after the confirmation of the sale, fails to pay the sale price, the purchaser is subject to the court's jurisdiction and to further proceedings in the action. On such a failure, a party, or the referee, may on notice move the court to order either of the following forms of relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.760]:

- Resale of the property on notice as provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 873.510-873.760. If any loss is occasioned by the resale, the referee may recover the amount of the loss and costs and expenses incurred, including a reasonable attorney's fee, from the purchaser who failed to pay.

- Maintenance by the referee of an action against the purchaser for the amount of the sale price. If the referee recovers judgment, the referee will be awarded a reasonable attorney's fee against the purchaser.

Proc. § 873.780*]. Code Civ. Proc. § 873.780 recognizes that modern transactions often involve, at closing, minor deviations or adjustments and, therefore, expressly authorizes the court to make rulings regarding them [Cal. L. C. Partition By Sale

§ 397.93 Disposition of Proceeds

[1] Disbursement

The court will order the proceeds of sale and any security for such proceeds to be (1) paid, (2) transferred, (3) deposited in court, (4) placed in trust, or (5) invested in State of California or United States government obligations, or interest-bearing accounts. These accounts must be in an institution whose accounts are insured by an agency of the federal government, to or for the benefit of the persons in interest entitled thereto, as may be appropriate or as specifically provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 873.810-873.850 (discussed below) [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.810]. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 873.810, the court must affirmatively specify the disposition of the proceeds, including proceeds for the shares of unknown owners. It should be noted that amounts invested in interest-bearing accounts pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.810 may exceed the amount insured by an agency of the federal government provided that the accounts are in aninstitution that carries such insured accounts [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.810].

[2] Order of Application of Proceeds

The proceeds of sale for any property sold must be applied in the following order [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.820]:

- Payment of the expenses of sale.
- Payment of the other costs of partition in whole or part or to secure any cost of partition later allowed.
- Payment of any liens on the property in their order of priority except liens that under the terms of sale are to remain on the property.
- Distribution of the residue among the parties in proportion to their shares as determined by the court.

[3] Partial Sale; Equitable Setoff

If only a portion of the property is sold, a tenant for life or years in an undivided share of the whole property may have his or her estate equitably set off in any part of the property not sold by way of complete or partial satisfaction of his or her share of the proceeds [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.830].

[4] Successive Estates

Regarding successive estates the court must do the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.840]:

- In the case of a tenant for life or years, ascertain the proportion of the proceeds of sale that will be a just and reasonable sum for the satisfaction of the estate of a tenant for life or years and order the amount distributed to him or her or held for his or her benefit.

- In the case of a contingent future right or estate, ascertain the proportional value of any vested or contingent future right or estate in the property and direct the proportion of the proceeds of sale to be distributed, secured, or held in such a manner as to protect the rights and interests of the parties.

- In the case of a tenant for life or defeasible estate with remainder over, notwithstanding any other provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 873.840, direct that the entire proceeds of sale be placed in trust as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 873.840 on a showing that the establishment of such a trust in economically feasible and will serve the best interests of the parties. The court must appoint a trustee, on security satisfactory to the court, who under court supervision must invest and reinvest the proceeds, pay the income of the investments, if any, to the life tenant or owner of the defeasible interest, and on termination of the life or defeasible estate, deliver or pay the corpus of the trust estate to the remainderman. The court will retain jurisdiction over the settlement of the accounts of the trustee and in all matters necessary for the proper administration of the trust and the final distribution of the trust fund.

Code Civ. Proc. § 873.840(c) makes clear that imposition of a trust under its terms is not mandatory in all cases but is discretionary with the court and then only if the establishment of a trust is both practical and desirable. Furthermore, investment under Code Civ. Proc. § 873.840(c) may be by purchase of other property for use of the parties if appropriate. In the case of successive life or defeasible estates, the court may be required to formulate a more complex formula for investment and distribution than is specified in the statute [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.840].

[5] Continuance Due to Nonallocation

If the proceeds of the sale belonging to persons who are parties to the action, whether known or unknown, have not been allocated among the parties, the action may be continued as between these parties for the determination of their respective claims to the proceeds of sale, which must be ascertained and adjudged by the court. Further testimony may be taken in court, or by a referee, at the discretion of the court, and the court may, if necessary, require the parties to present the facts or law in controversy, by pleadings, as in an original action [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.850].

D. Partition By Appraisal

35-397 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 397.112

§ 397.112 Agreement to Partition by Appraisal

[1] In General

If the interests of all parties are undisputed or have been adjudicated, the parties may agree on a partition by appraisal pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 873.910-873.980 [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.910]. The agreement binds the heirs, executors, administrators, successors, and assigns of the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.970]. A guardian ad litem may be appointed to represent contingent interests and may agree to partition by appraisal on their behalf [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.910].

If the parties cannot agree on partition by appraisal, a statutory procedure based on appraisal by a referee, with court supervision, may in some situations serve the interests of the parties since an acquisition method does not involve the same tax consequences as a partition sale [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.910].

[2] Contents

The agreement must be in writing filed with the clerk of the court and must include all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.920]:

- A description of the property.
- The names of the parties and their interests.
- The names of the parties who are willing to acquire the interests.
- The names or names of a person or persons to whose appointment as referee or referees the parties consent.
- The date or dates as of which the interests to be acquired are to be appraised.

- Other terms mutually agreed on, which may include, but are not limited to, provisions relating to abandonment of the action if the appraised value of the interest to be acquired exceeds a stated amount, required deposits on account of purchase price, terms of any credit, title and objections to title, and payment of the expenses of the procedure authorized by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 873.910-873.980 and of costs of the action.

[3] Court Approval

Any party to the agreement may, on noticed motion, apply to the court for approval of the agreement. If the court determines that the agreement complies with Code Civ. Proc. § 873.920 (see § 397.112[2]) and that the terms and conditions are equitable, it will approve the agreement and stay any pending division or sale of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.930]. It should be noted that the court, as a court of equity, may exercise a sound discretion in approving or refusing to approve a particular agreement [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.930].

§ 397.114 Motion to Confirm, Modify, or Set Aside Report

[1] Motion

Any party to the agreement or the referee, on 10 days notice to the referee (if the referee is not the moving party) and to the other parties to the agreement, may move the court to confirm, modify, or set aside the report [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.950].

[2] Hearing

At the hearing, the court will examine the report and witnesses. If the court determines that the proceedings have been regularly conducted, that transfer of title to the interests may regularly be made, and that no facts appear that would make the transfer inequitable, it will confirm the report and order the interests transferred to the acquiring parties in proportion to their respective interests, or in any other proportion that is set out in the agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.960].

Code Civ. Proc. § 873.960 vests the court with equitable power to refuse to permit consummation of the transaction if it would be inequitable. The parties contract in light of this power of the court [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.960].

[3] Order

The order of the court will be conditioned on payment of the amounts fixed as the purchase price and any other amounts required by the agreement, the giving of any required security, and payment by the parties of the expenses of the procedure authorized by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 873.910-873.980 and of the general costs of the partition or an appropriate share thereof [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.960].

[4] Judgment

On motion of a party to the agreement or of the referee, which is made on not less than 10 days notice to the parties who have appeared, the court will determine whether the conditions have been fulfilled and, if so, will enter judgmentconfirming the transfer. Otherwise, the action or proceeding will be ordered terminated on such further proceedings as may be ordered [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.960].

Proc. §§ 873.910-873.980*, the parties may pursue their other rights of partition, subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.970 [Code Civ. Proc. § 873.980]. If the proceeding aborts or is not carried out, the parties are not prejudiced as to their normal rights of partition except that an innocent party may elect to proceed under the agreement pursuant to *Code Civ. § 397.134 Decisions

Law favors partition over sale. Mitchell v. Cline (1890) 84 Cal. 409, 418, 24 P. 164 (interpreting former statute)

All equities between parties are determined in action for partition. Emeric v. Alvarado (1884) 64 Cal. 529, 610-611, 2 P. 418 (interpreting former statute)

Shares in mutual water company are personal property and, therefore, do not pass on partition of land unless they are appurtenant. Richmond v. Dofflemyer (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 745, 763, 164 Cal. Rptr. 727

Whether division of property between parties to action in partition is fair and equitable is question of fact. Felder v. Felder (1967) 247 Cal. App. 2d 718, 724, 55 Cal. Rptr. 780 (interpreting former statute)

Right to have property partitioned is not conditioned on possibility that market value of property will rise. Cohen v. Karubian (1966) 276 Cal. App. 2d 44, 49, 80 Cal. Rptr. 702 (interpreting former statute)

Final judgment is necessary for entry of costs. Donlon v. Donlon (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 362, 368-369, 318 P.2d 189 (interpreting former statute)

Judgment for partition terminates tenancy. Teutenberg v. Schiller (1955) 138 Cal. App. 2d 18, 22, 291 P.2d 53 (interpreting former statute)

Right of partition is subject to contract rights of parties. Miranda v. Miranda (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 61, 68, 183 P.2d 61 (interpreting former statute)

Record owner is allowed expense of quitclaim deed. Elbert, Ltd. v. Federated Income Properties (1933) 120 Cal. App. 2d 194, 209, 261 P.2d 743 (interpreting former statute)

[2] Allotment of Improvements

co-owner is granted tract on which he or she made improvements. Seale v. Soto (1868) 35 Cal. 102, 105-107

[3] Attorney's Fees

Attorney's fees are proper when services are for common benefit. Randell v. Randell (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 575, 582-583, 50 P.2d 806

Trial court's valuation of attorney's fees is proper when no evidence of this value is provided by either party. Stutz v. Davis (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 1, 5, 175 Cal. Rptr. 701

Attorney's fees incurred by one party for time-consuming and meritless contention are not attorney's fees incurred for common benefit. Forrest v. Elam (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 164, 173, 151 Cal. Rptr. 591

[4] Community Property

Community asset that was unadjudicated at time of marital dissolution was held by former spouses after dissolution as tenants in common and subject to separate partition action. In re Marriage of Graves (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 1047, 1050, 244 Cal. Rptr. 110

Action for partition of community property is not allowed. Jacquemart v. Jacquemart (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 794, 796, 299 P.2d 281

[5] Interlocutory Judgment

Interlocutory decree is necessary whether property is to be sold or partitioned. Grant v. Murphy (1897) 116 Cal. 427, 431, 48 P. 481

Interlocutory judgment has effect of severing joint tenancy so that owners are tenants in common. Milian v. De Leon (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 1185, 1196, 226 Cal. Rptr. 831

Interlocutory judgment dividing part of property and appointing referee to determine division of remainder is proper because court is not required to appoint referee. Richmond v. Dofflemyer (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 745, 755-761, 164 Cal. Rptr. 727

[6] Jurisdiction to Partition Property

"Minimum contacts" analysis set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 410.10 was inapplicable to establish personal jurisdiction over nonresident in action to partition military retirement benefits when federal law established more restrictive jurisdictional standard. In re Marriage of Hattis (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1162, 1167, 1170, 242 Cal. Rptr. 410 .

[7] Lease and Option Agreements

Lease and option agreements are contractual rights and, therefore, not subject to partition. Penasquitos, Inc. v. Holladay (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 356, 359, 103 Cal. Rptr. 717

[8] Proof of Title

Deed from grantor in actual possession at time of transfer is proof of title. Scott v. Beck (1928) 204 Cal. 78, 80 266 P. 951

Probate decree of partial distribution is proof of title. Broome v. Broome (1919) 179 Cal. 638, 645, 178 P. 525

Deed is only item of evidence and not conclusive to prove title in partition action. Cosler v. Norwood (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 665, 666, 218 P.2d 800

Plaintiff's long-term possession of property under deed from previous possessor is proof of title. Snodgrass v. Errengy (1927) 86 Cal. App. 664, 667, 261 P. 497

[9] Referee

Error in valuation by referee did not require equitable adjustment when error did not result in larger share being allotted to defendant co-owners. Randell v. Randell (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 575, 580, 50 P.2d 806

Confirmation of report of referee is adoption by court of facts so stated. Worcester v. Worcester (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 56, 61, 54 Cal. Rptr. 436

[10] Review

Orders determining lien and confirming referee's report are appealable because they are orders made after interlocutory judgment and relate to enforcement of judgment. Heller Properties, Inc. v. Rothschild (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 705, 709-710, 90 Cal. Rptr. 133

[11] Trial

Validity of sale is dependent on confirmation by court. Schoonover v. Birnbaum (1907) 150 Cal. 734, 736, 89 P. 1108 (interpreting former statute)

Order confirming partition sale pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.750 is appealable. Solis v. Vallar (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 710, 713, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 677

[3] Fees

Right of trial court to fix attorney's and referees' fees at the time of confirmation of sale is not subject to attack by purchaser at sale. Hirschberg v. Oser (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 282, 287, 186 P.2d 53

[4] Interlocutory Decree

Interlocutory decree is required to state whether partition by sale should be made instead of partition in kind. Stoffer v. Verhellen (1925) 195 Cal. 317, 318-319, 231 P. 233

[5] Minimum Bid

It is not error to not require minimum bid when there is no evidence that lack of minimum bid caused sale at unfair price. Hummel v. First National Bank (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 489, 494, 236 Cal. Rptr. 449

35-397 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 397.200

§ 397.200 Appointment of Referee to Divide Property After Interlocutory Decree

NOTE:

Two distinct classes of referees may be appointed in a partition action. Before the interlocutory decree, a referee may be appointed to ascertain facts regarding status and priority of liens on property [see Code Civ. Proc. § 872.630(b); discussion in § 397.44[2]]. After the interlocutory decree, the referee is appointed to divide or sell the property as ordered by the court. The procedure for appointing this kind of referee is discussed below [*see Code Civ. The court will only appoint a referee pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.010 if it determines that it is necessary [Richmond v. Dofflemyer (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 745, 755, 164 Cal. Rptr. 727 ; discussion in § 397.58[3]]. If the court determines that a referee is necessary, however, the parties may nominate persons to serve as referee but, absent agreement among the parties, the choice of a referee is in the discretion of the court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 873.040(a); discussion in § 397.58[2]].

1. If the parties agree to the appointment as referee of an eligible person or persons, prepare stipulation to that effect and submit to the court [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 873.030, 873.040; discussion in § 397.58[2]].

2. Referee files report with court describing division and gives written notice of filing to each party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 873.280(b); discussion in § 397.59].

3. Counsel examines report and determines whether to move the court to confirm, modify, or set aside the report [see Code Civ. Proc. § 873.290; discussion in § 397.59[2][b]].

4. Prepare a notice of motion for an order confirming, modifying, or vacating the referees' report and proof of service, in the following number of copies [see Code Civ. Proc. § 873.290; discussion in § 397.59[2][b]; for form of similar motion, see § 397.295].

b. One copy for each party who has appeared in the action.

c. Information copy for each referee.

d. Office copy.

e. Copy for client, if desired.

f. Additional copies as desired.

5. Prepare the affidavit [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2003, 2009], or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5], in support of motion in the same number of copies as the notice.

6. Prepare a memorandum in support of the motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)] in the same number of copies as the notice.

7. Serve and file the notice, affidavit or declaration, and memorandum of points and authorities. For discussion, procedures, and forms relating to noticed motions, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

8. Attend the hearing on the motion and present argument in support of the motion.

9. Prepare the order confirming, modifying, or setting aside the referees' report, and if appropriate, appointing new referees [see Code Civ. Proc. § 873.290; discussion in § 397.59[2][b]].

Proc. § 872.530(a)*] or, if appropriate, that defendant was a co-owner of the property in question and is deceased or believed to be deceased and plaintiff knows of no personal representative (second alternative Paragraph 7) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 872.530(b)] and that the plaintiff joins as defendants the testate and intestate successors of (naming the deceased person or person believed to be deceased), deceased, or, believed to be deceased, naming them in that manner (second alternative Paragraph 8) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 872.530(b)];

- All unrecorded interests the defendant has in the property (Paragraph 9) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 872.230];

- Either that there are no liens or encumbrances or a list of all liens and encumbrances (alternative Paragraphs 10) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 872.230];

- That it is has been necessary for plaintiff to procure a title report (Paragraph 11) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 872.220];

- If the ownership, share, or quantity of the interest of a defendant is unknown, uncertain, or contingent, and if the lack of knowledge, uncertainty, or contingency is caused by a transfer in the form of a contingent remainder, vested remainder subject to defeasance, executory interest, or similar disposition, so far as is known to the plaintiff, the name, age, and legal disability (if any) of the person in being who would be entitled to ownership of the interest and the contingency on which the right of that person depends occurred prior to the commencement of the action (Paragraph 12) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 872.520(b)];

- If appropriate, that the parties have agreed to partition by sale of the property (Paragraph 13) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 872.820(a)], or that sale and division of the proceeds would be more equitable than division of the property (Paragraph 14) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 872.820(b)];

- That partition of the successive estates in the property, if any, is in the best interests of all parties (Paragraph 15) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 872.710(c)];

- That plaintiff has incurred and will incur costs of partition, which include reasonable attorney's fees incurred or paid by a party for the common benefit; the fee and expenses of the referee; compensation provided by contract for services of a surveyor or other person employed by the referee in the action; and, if it is necessary, the reasonable costs of a title report with interest thereon at the legal rate from the time of payment or, if paid before commencement of the action, from the time of commencement of the action, and other disbursements or expenses determined by the court to have been incurred or paid for the common benefit (Paragraph 16) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 874.010; see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 874.020, 874.040].

[4] Verification

Verification of this complaint is not required, but verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446] and precludes a general denial [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[5] Jurisdiction

Superior courts have jurisdiction to try partition cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.110(a); see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Mears v. Jeffry (1947) 80 Cal. App. 2d 610, 615, 182 P.2d 294] .

[6] Venue

Subject to the power of the court to transfer actions, the proper county for the trial of an action for partition, if the subject of the action is either real property or real and personal property, is the county in which the real property, or some portion of the real property, is situated [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.110(b)]. If the subject of the action is personal property, the proper county for the trial of an action for partition is the county in which the personal property is principally located at the commencement of the action or in which the defendants, or any of them, reside at the commencement of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.110].

§ 397.244 Allegations--For Accounting and Appointment of Receiver [Code Civ. Proc. § 564]

[1] FORM Allegations--For Accounting and Appointment of Receiver [Code Civ. Proc. § 564]

1. Between _____ [date] and _____ [date], defendant _____ [specify facts, e.g., collected and received from the tenants in possession of the real property all the rents and profits from the real property, amounting to at least $_____ (specify estimated amount received by defendant)].

2. Plaintiff has heretofore demanded of defendant that he/she account to plaintiff for any and all sums so received by him/her, and that he/she pay to plaintiff his/her share thereof, but defendant has failed and refused to make such accounting or to pay to plaintiff the sums due to him/her and still fails and refuses to do so.

3. Due to defendant's refusal to make an accounting of [specify, e.g., rents collected] or to pay to plaintiff the sums due him/her, as alleged above, _____ [specify effect, e.g., the proceeds from future rents and profits of said real property are in danger of being lost or misappropriated by defendant] unless a receiver is appointed by the court to _____ [specify, e.g., take possession of the real property and to collect the rents until this action is finally determined].

[2] Use of Form

The allegations in this form are for insertion in a complaint for partition [see § 397.243] to allege that the plaintiff is entitled to an accounting and to the appointment of a receiver. A receiver may be appointed by the court in which an action or proceeding is pending in any case in which such court is empowered by law to appoint a receiver [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(a)]. In the conduct of a partition action, the court may hear and determine all motions, reports, and accounts, and may make any decrees and orders necessary or incidental to carrying out the purposes of the partition statutes and to effectuating its decrees and orders [see Code Civ. Proc. § 872.120].

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use in applying for an ex parte order to authorize procurement of a title report. If it is necessary to have a title report, the court may, on application of a party, authorize the party to procure a title report and must designate a place where it will be kept for inspection, use, and copying by the parties [see Code Civ. Proc. § 872.220(b)]. An application for an ex parte order to authorize procurement of a title report must contain facts showing the necessity of a title report (Paragraph 3) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 872.220]. The captions set out in see §§ 397.240-397.242 may be adapted for use in this form. The form should be titled: EX PARTE APPLICATION AND DECLARATION FOR ORDER TO AUTHORIZE PROCUREMENT OF TITLE REPORT [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.220(b)].

[3] Costs of Title Report

It should be noted that the costs of partition include the reasonable costs of a title report with interest thereon at the legal rate from the time of payment or, if paid before commencement of the action, from the time of commencement of the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 874.010].

[4] Ex Parte Applications

An ex parte application for an order must be accompanied by an affidavit or a declaration showing that one of the following is true [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204(b)]:

- Within the applicable time period (described below), the applicant informed the opposing party when and where the application would be made.

- The applicant in good faith attempted to inform the opposing party but was unable to do so, specifying the efforts made to inform the opposing party.

- For reasons specified, the applicant should not be required to inform the opposing party.

To come within the "applicable time period," a party seeking an ex parte order must notify all parties no later than 10 a.m. on the court day before the ex parte appearance, unless the party can show exceptional circumstances that justify a shorter time for notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1203(a); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1205 (clerk must accept ex parte application even if it does not comply with these notification requirements)].

When notice of an ex parte application is given, the person giving notice must state with specificity the nature of the relief to be requested, and the date, time, and place for presentation of the application, and must attempt to determine whether the opposing party will appear to oppose the application [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204(a)]. Every ex parte application must be accompanied by a declaration regarding notice that states one of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204(b)(1)]:

- The notice given, including the date, time, manner, and name of the party informed, the relief sought, any response, and whether opposition is expected.

- Why notice should not be required.

In addition, if notice was provided later than 10 a.m. on the court day before the ex parte appearance, the declaration regarding notice must explain the exceptional circumstances that justify the shorter notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204(c)].

[2] Use of Form

This notice of pendency of action is for use in an action for partition of real property. The captions set out in §§ 397.240-397.242 may be adapted for use in this form. This form should be entitled NOTICE OF PENDING ACTION [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.2] FOR PARTITION [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.250].

Except in actions subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 405.6, the claimant must, prior to recordation of the notice, cause a copy of the notice to be mailed, by registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, to all known addresses of the parties to whom the real property claim is adverse and to all owners of record of the real property affected by the real property claim as shown by the latest county assessment roll. If there is no known address for service on an adverse party or owner, then as to that party or owner a declaration under penalty of perjury to that effect may be recorded instead of the proof of service required above, and the service on that party or owner is not required. Immediately following recordation, a copy of the notice must also be filed with the court in which the action is pending. Service must also be made immediately and in the same manner on each adverse party later joined in the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.22].

[3] Recording Requirement

Immediately on filing the complaint, the plaintiff must record a notice of pendency of the action in the office of the county recorder of each county in which any real property described in the complaint is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.250(a)]. If, thereafter, partition of other real property is sought in the same action, the plaintiff or other person seeking such relief must immediately record a supplemental notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.250(b)]. If the notice is not recorded, the court, on its own motion or on the motion of any party at any time, must order the plaintiff or person seeking partition of the property, or another party on behalf of the plaintiff or other person, to record the notice and must stay the action until the notice is recorded [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.250(c); see § 397.249]. The expense of recordation must be allowed to the party incurring it [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.250(c)]. From the time of filing the notice for record, all persons must be deemed to have notice of the pendency of the action as to the property described in the notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.250(d)]. The requirement of recording a lis pendens is not jurisdictional [see Rutledge v. Rutledge (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 114, 120, 259 P.2d 79] . Failure to so file, however, may result in subsequent bona fide purchasers and encumbrancers of record at the time the judgment is recorded not being bound by the partition judgment [Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 872.250].

[4] Contents

A notice of pendency of action in which a real property claim is alleged must contain the names of all parties to the action and a description of the property affected by the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.20]. For a further discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 405.20 and related provisions, see Ch. 348, Lis Pendens .

[5] Who May Issue and Sign

An attorney of record in an action may sign a notice of pendency of action. Alternatively, a judge of the court in which an action that includes a real property claim is pending may, on request of a party thereto, approve a notice of pendency of action. A notice of pendency of action may not be recorded unless (1) it has been signed by the attorney of record, (2) it is signed by a party acting in propria persona and approved by a judge as provided in this section, or (3) the action is subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 405.6 (eminent domain proceedings) [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.21]. This form assumes that the lis pendens will be issued by the attorney and will have to be adapted if it is issued by the court.

Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

This form for interlocutory judgment is for use in an action for partition of realproperty, personal property, or both if the property is to be divided rather than sold. For a form of interlocutory judgment of partition by sale of the property, see § 397.270. If the court finds that the plaintiff is entitled to partition, it must make an interlocutory judgment that determines the interests of the parties in the property and orders the partition of the property and, unless it is to be later determined, the manner of partition [see Code Civ. Proc. § 872.720]. If the court determines that it is impracticable or highly inconvenient to make a single interlocutory judgment that determines, in the first instance, the interests of all parties in the property, the court may first ascertain the interests of the original concurrent or successive owners and the parties claiming under them or may allow the interests to remain without further partition if the parties so desire [see Code Civ. Proc. § 872.720(b)].

The captions set out in §§ 397.240-397.242 may be adapted for use in this form. The form should be titled: INTERLOCUTORY JUDGMENT [Code Civ. Proc. § 872.720]. The term statement of decision appears in a bracketed phrase in the form because the statement of decision is only issued by the court on the request of a party appearing at trial which is made either within 10 days after the court announces a tentative decision, or, if the trial has lasted less than one day, prior to submission of the matter for decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632]. For discussion and forms concerning statement of decision, see Ch. 529, Statement of Decision .

Note that in a contested action or special proceeding, the party submitting a judgment for entry must prepare and mail a copy of the notice of entry of judgment to all appearing parties and must file with the court the original notice of entry of judgment together with the proof of service by mail [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.5; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a)(2) (service of notice of entry of judgment starts 60-day period for filing notice of appeal)].

[2] Use of Form

This form for interlocutory judgment is for use in an action for partition by sale of real property. The captions set out in §§ 397.240-397.242 may be adapted for use in this form. The form should be titled: INTERLOCUTORY JUDGMENT [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 872.720, 872.820]. The term "statement of decision" appears in a bracketed phrase in this form because the statement of decision is only issued by the court on the request of a party appearing at trial, which is made either within 10 days after the court announces a tentative decision, or, if the trial has lasted less than one day, prior to submission of the matter for decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632]. For discussion and forms concerning statement of decision, see Ch. 529, Statement of Decision . In a contested action or special proceeding, the party submitting a judgment for entry must prepare and mail a copy of the notice of entry of judgment to all appearing parties and must file with the court the original notice of entry of judgment together with the proof of service by mail [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.5; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.104(a), 8.751(a)].

[3] Procedure Surrounding Sale

The court must order that the property be sold and the proceeds be divided among the parties in accordance with their interests in the property as determined in the interlocutory judgment if (1) the parties agree to such relief, by their pleadings or otherwise, or (2) the court determines that, under the circumstances, sale and division of the proceeds would be more equitable than division of the property (Paragraphs 1 and 3) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 872.820]. For the purpose of making the determination, the court may appoint a referee and take into account his or her report (Paragraph 4) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 872.820].

The property must be sold at public auction or private sale as the court determines will be more beneficial to the parties (Paragraph 4) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 873.520]. For the purpose of making this determination, the court may refer the matter to the referee and take into account the referee's report (Paragraph 4) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 873.520]. The court must order sale by any methods and on any terms that are expressly agreed to in writing by all parties to the action (Paragraph 5) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 873.600]. The court may, at the time of trial or thereafter, prescribe any manner, terms, and conditions of sale that it deems proper for the particular property or sale (Paragraph 5) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 873.610].

On confirmation of a sale, the court must order the referee to execute aconveyance or other instrument of transfer, to collect the proceeds, take security, and perform other acts required to consummate the sale (Paragraph 6) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 873.750(a)].

The proceeds of sale for any property sold must be applied in the following order [see Code Civ. Proc. § 873.820]:

- Payment of the expenses of sale.

- Payment of the other costs of partition in whole or in part or to secure any cost of partition later allowed.

- Payment of any liens on the property in their order of priority except liens which under the terms of sale are to remain on the property.

- Distribution of the residue among the parties in proportion to their shares as determined by the court (Paragraph 7).

[2] Use of Form

This notice of motion is for use by either party to move the court for an order confirming the sale of real property. The captions set out in §§ 397.240-397.242 may be adapted for use in this form. The form should be titled: NOTICE OF MOTION FOR ORDER CONFIRMING SALE OF REAL PROPERTY [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 873.720, 873.730].

A purchaser, the referee, or any party may move the court to confirm or set aside the sale [see Code Civ. Proc. § 873.720(a)]. The moving party must give not less than 10 days notice of motion to the purchaser if the purchaser is not the moving party; and to all other parties who have appeared in the action [*see Code Civ. The court may vacate the sale and direct that a new sale be made if it determines that(1) the proceedings were unfair or notice of sale was not properly given (if there is no finding at the hearing of unfairness or improper notice, the sale may thereafter not be attacked on such grounds), (2) the sale price is disproportionate to the value of the property, or (3) it appears that a new sale will yield a sum that exceeds the sale price by at least 10 percent on the first $10,000 and 5 percent on the amount in excess of the first $10,000, determined after a reasonable allowance for the expenses of a new sale [*see Code Civ. I, _____ [name], declare:

1. I am _____ [identify declarant, e.g., an attorney at law duly admitted to practice before all the courts of the State of California and the attorney of record herein for _____ (party) or other statement as appropriate].

2. On _____ [date], notice of sale was properly given to _____ [identify party(s) to whom notice was given]. Copies of the notice of sale and proof of service are attached to this declaration as Exhibits A and B and made a part of this declaration.

3. On _____ [date], the real property that is the subject of the above-entitled action was sold by [public or private sale] by _____ [name of referee] [, _____ (name of referee), and _____ (name of referee), and each of them,] at _____ [state location of sale] to _____ [name of purchaser] [who was the highest bidder].

3. 4. _____ [Set forth facts showing that sale price is proportionate to value of property and sale was conducted in a fair manner, e.g., The appraised value of the property was $100,000 as shown in the appraisal of January 1, 1983, a copy of which is attached to this declaration as Exhibit C and all bids of $100,000 or more were considered as shown in the document entitled "Record of Bids," a copy of which is attached to this declaration as Exhibit D].

[2] Use of Form

This form of notice is for use when any party or referee moves to set aside, confirm, or modify the referee's report. Any party to the agreement or the referee, on 10 days notice to the referee (if the referee is not the moving party), and to the other parties to the agreement, may so move the court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 873.950]. At the hearing, the court must examine the report and witnesses. If the court determines that the proceedings have been regularly conducted, that transfer of title to the interests may regularly be made, and that no facts appear which would make such transfer inequitable, it must confirm the report and order the interests transferred to the acquiring parties in proportion to their respective interests, or in such other proportion as is set out in the agreement [see Code Civ. Proc. § 873.960]. Code Civ. Proc. § 873.960 vests the court with equitable power to refuse to permit consummation of the transaction if it would be inequitable [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Code Civ. Proc. § 873.960].

The captions set out in §§ 397.240-397.242 may be adapted for use in this form. The form should be titled: NOTICE OF MOTION TO _____ [CONFIRM or MODIFY or SET ASIDE] REPORT OF REFEREE(S) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 873.950, 873.960].

A supporting memorandum must be served and filed with this notice of motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005, 1010; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)]. For general discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

The purpose of this chapter is to describe, in general terms, the applicability of the several California laws that govern general partnerships, limited partnerships, and limited liability partnerships. Also covered are the statutory definitions that will be referred to in subsequent chapters dealing with partnership litigation [see Chs. 401-406]. Since by analogy partnership law also governs joint ventures, that entity is briefly discussed as well.

A. Governing Statutes

35-400 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 400.10

§ 400.10 Uniform Partnership Act (Pre-'97 Act)

[1] In General

The Uniform Partnership Act [former Corp. Code § 15001 et seq.] governed California general partnerships that were formed before January 1, 1997, the operative date of the Uniform Partnership Act of 1994 [see Corp. Code § 16100 et seq.; for more detailed discussion, see § 400.11]. For this reason, the Uniform Partnership Act is referred to in this and subsequent chapters (see Chs. 401-406) as the "pre-'97 Act." Partnerships formed under the pre-'97 Act remained subject to it only until the earlier of (1) the date when they elected to be governed by the Uniform Partnership Act of 1994, or (2) January 1, 1999 [Corp. Code § 16111]. As of that date, the pre-1997 Act was repealed, and its successor, the Uniform Partnership Act of 1994 (UPA'94) [Corp. Code § 16100 et seq.] governs all general partnerships regardless of their date of formation [Corp. Code § 16111(a), (b); see Stats. 1996, ch. 1003, § 18 (repealing the pre-'97 Act operative January 1, 1999)].

Repeal of the pre-'97 Act, however, did not affect actions or proceedings commenced, or rights accrued, prior to the effective date of the UPA'94 [Corp. Code § 16112]. For that reason, discussion of the pre-'97 Act has been retained in the partnership coverage in this publication. All references to Corp. Code §§ 15001-15045 in Chapters 400-406 are to the repealed provisions of the pre-'97 Act.

When the two acts have the same or similar provisions, this chapter and Chapters 401-406 will cite the pre-'97 Act first, followed by the corresponding UPA'94 provision. When the two Acts differ, the distinction will be pointed out in context and the appropriate act cited.

[2] Application to Other Partnership Forms

The pre-'97 Act also applied to all special, limited, and mining partnerships [see Pub. Res. Code §§ 3940-3950 (statutory provisions governing mining partnerships)], except for specific provisions in statutes governing those partnerships that were inconsistent with provisions of the pre-'97 Act [former Corp. Code § 15006(2)]. Limited partnerships governed by the California Revised Limited Partnership Act ("CRLPA") [former Corp. Code § 15611 et seq.; see ch. 403], were specifically made subject to the pre-'97 Act in cases for which the CRLPA did not provide

Under the pre-'97 Act, every partnership that was not formed under the laws for special, limited, or mining partnerships was a general partnership.In addition, any special or limited partnership was a general partnership with respect to any partner who was not a special partner [former Corp. Code § 15044]. If read literally, former Corp. Code § 15044 would have made limited partnerships impossible because there are no "special partners" in limited partnerships; however, the statutory intent to exclude limited as well as special partners from the rules governing general partners was made clear from the next sentence in that code section, which provided that every partner who was not a special or limited partner or a member of a mining partnership was a general partner. Thus, for example, if an intended limited partnership was defectively formed so that it did not achieve that status, it would be a general partnership and its partners would be treated as general partners [Security Pac. Nat. Bank v. Matek, 175 Cal. App. 3d 1071, 1075, 223 Cal. Rptr. 288 (1985) ; see American Alternative Energy Partners II v. Windridge, Inc., 42 Cal. App. 4th 551, 560-562, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 686 (1996) (limited partnership that was defectively formed at time of filing lawsuit had capacity to sue as general partnership)].

[3] Rules for Construction and Interpretation

Former Corp. Code §§ 15004 and 15005 set forth the general rules for construction and interpretation of the pre-'97 Act. Under these sections, the rule requiring statutes in derogation of the common law to be strictly construed was deemed inapplicable to the pre-'97 Act; in addition, it was to be interpreted to effect its general purpose of making the law uniform in the states that enacted it [former Corp. Code § 15004(1), (4)]. The laws of agency and estoppel were applicable under the pre-'97 Act [former Corp. Code § 15004(2), (3)], and, in any case the pre-'97 Act did not provide for, the rules of law and equity, including the law merchant, were to govern [former Corp. Code § 15005; Ellis v. Mihelis, 60 Cal. 2d 206, 217, 32 Cal. Rptr. 415, 384 P.2d 7 (1963)] .

Chapter 400 PARTNERSHIPS: GOVERNING STATUTES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Governing Statutes

35-400 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 400.11

§ 400.11 Uniform Partnership Act of 1994 (UPA'94)

[1] Enactment

The Uniform Partnership of 1994 [Corp. Code § 16100 et seq.] was enacted in 1996 [Stats. 1996, ch. 1003] and will be referred to in this and subsequent chapters (see Chs. 401-406) as "UPA'94."

[2] Operative Dates

UPA'94 initially applied to (1) partnerships formed on or after January 1, 1997, and (2) partnerships formed prior to January 1, 1997, that elected to be governed by the provisions of the UPA'94 instead of the pre-'97 Act [Corp. Code § 15611(a)]. On January 1, 1999, this two-year grace period expired, and since that date all partnerships have been subject to UPA'94, regardless of when they were formed [Corp. Code § 15611(b)]. UPA'94, however, does not affect actions or proceedings commenced, or rights accrued, prior to its effective date [Corp. Code § 15612(a)].

If a partnership formed under the pre-'97 Act elected to be governed by UPA'94 before January 1, 1999, to the extent that UPA'94's provisions limit partners' liabilities to third parties, those limitations applied to third parties who had done business with the partnership within one year preceding the partnership's election to be governed by UPA'94, but only if the third party knew or received notification of the partnership's election to be governed by UPA'94 [Corp. Code § 16111(c); see Corp. Code § 16102 (defining "notice" and "notification")]. This rule does not apply, however, to any of the UPA'94 provisions that specifically apply to the liability of registered limited liability partnerships [Corp. Code § 16111(c)].

[3] Application to Other Partnership Forms

UPA'94 governs all general partnerships, including limited liability partnerships [Corp. Code § 16101(9) (defining "partnership")]. The definition of "partnership" excludes any partnership formed under the ULPA [Corp. Code § 15501 et seq.] or CLRPA [Corp. Code § 16101(7); see Corp. Code § 15611 et seq.; see also § 400.20[8]]. However, limited partnerships, to the extent the law governing them is not inconsistent, are also governed by UPA'94 [Corp. Code § 15722].

[4] Application of Rules of Law and Equity; Interest Rates

UPA'94's provisions regarding rights and duties of surviving partners, legal representatives of deceased partners, creditors of either, and creditors of the partnership all supersede any conflicting provisions in the Probate Code [Corp. Code § 16109]. Unless displaced by particular provisions of UPA'94, the principles of law and equity supplement UPA'94 [Corp. Code § 16104(a)]. When UPA'94 imposes an obligation to pay interest (e.g., on the amount owed a dissociating partner for that partner's partnership interest), and the rate is not specified, the rate is the one specified in Civ. Code § 3289 [Corp. Code § 16104(b)].

[5] Summary of Changes From Pre-'97 Act

[a] Brief Review

For those familiar with the law governing general partnerships before the effective date of UPA'94, the following brief review of the changes made by UPA'94 will aid in understanding the most important changes affecting the partnership's and the partners' liabilities, both to each other and to third parties.

[b] Entity Theory Adopted

First, UPA'94 expressly recognizes a partnership as an entity distinct from its partners, thereby mooting the old debate over whether a partnership is legally an entity or merely an aggregation of individuals [Corp. Code § 16201]. Adoption of the entity approach means that each partner has separate legal interests and that the ownership of the partnership assets is in the entity, not as undivided interests of the partners. The pre-'97 Act, in contrast, provided that partners were co-owners with other partners of specific partnership property, holding as "tenants in partnership" [former Corp. Code § 15025]. UPA'94 makes it clear that property acquired by a partnership becomes property of the partnership as an entity and not of the partners as tenants in partnership [Corp. Code § 16203].

[c] Fiduciary Duty

The pre-'97 Act contained very few explicit provisions on the fiduciary duties of partners to each other or to the partnership. As a result, case law was largely responsible for defining the scope of those duties. In contrast, UPA'94 has express provisions respecting the partners' duties of loyalty and care [see Corp. Code § 16404]. The duty of loyalty relates to appropriation of partnership opportunities, self-dealing, and competing with the partnership [Corp. Code § 16404(b)]. The duty of care requires partners to refrain from conduct that is grossly negligent, reckless, or constitutes intentional misconduct or knowing violation of law, and imposes an obligation of good faith and fair dealing [Corp. Code § 16404(c), (d)]. UPA'94 also prohibits the waiver of the duties of loyalty, due care, and good faith and fair dealing in the partnership agreement, except when it would not be unreasonable to do so [Corp. Code § 16103(b)(3)-(5)].

See Ch. 401, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners and Partnership , for a discussion and forms relating to actions involving breaches of partners' fiduciary duties.

[d] Dissociation and Dissolution

UPA'94 ends the distinctions under the pre-'97 Act between partners who withdraw, those who retire, and those who die. "Dissociation," a term UPA'94 uses generically to describe any cessation of a person's partnership status [see Corp. Code § 16601], may be voluntary (e.g., retirement) or involuntary (e.g., death or expulsion), or rightful or wrongful, but in no case does a partner's dissociation require the partnership to dissolve if the remaining partners want to continue.

UPA'94 changes the rule that any change in the membership of a partnership causes its dissolution. As originally enacted, the pre-'97 Act followed the theory that any change in the membership of the partnership causes dissolution.

Later amendments to the Act liberalized the rule, but only to the extent of providing that a partnership can avoid dissolution if the partners have agreed in advance of the withdrawal or addition of a partner that the partnership will not dissolve [see former Corp. Code § 15031(4), (7)]. If the partnership continued after the withdrawal or addition of a partner, but not pursuant to a preexisting agreement not to dissolve, then a new partnership had to be formed or the business was treated as if it were operating as a dissolved but unliquidated enterprise [see former Corp. Code § 15041].

Under UPA'94 changes in the composition of the partnership do not necessarily dissolve the partnership, despite the absence of a prior agreement not to dissolve. Even in a partnership for a definite term or for a particular purpose, dissolution and winding up are not required when a partner dissociates before the expiration of the term if a majority in interest of the remaining partners agree within 90 days to continue the partnership and avoid dissolution and winding up [Corp. Code § 16801(2)(A)]. Similarly, in an at will partnership, the dissociation of a partner will not dissolve the partnership unless at least half of the partners decide to do so [Corp. Code § 16801(1)]. Thus, the dissociation of a partner, by itself, no longer constitutes an event of dissolution. Instead, it will trigger the buyout provisions of Article 7 of UPA'94. These buyout provisions are mandatory absent a provision to the contrary in the partnership agreement [see Corp. Code § 16103(b); see also the discussion in Ch. 403, Partnerships: Actions by and Against Dissociated Partners]. The pre-'97 Act also required a buyout, but limited it to the interests of retiring or deceased partners [see former Corp. Code § 15042]. Moreover, UPA'94's buyout provisions are fairly detailed concerning the valuation of a dissociated partner's interest and the timing of payment, whereas the pre-'97 Act merely spoke of "the value of his interest at the date of dissolution."

[e] Joint and Several Liability

UPA'94 provides that a partnership may sue and be sued in the partnership name [Corp. Code § 16307(a)]. This follows the entity approach and is declarative of California law under Code Civ. Proc. § 369.5(a).

Under UPA'94, partners are jointly and severally liable for all partnership obligations and not only for tort-type liabilities as under the pre-'97 Act [Corp. Code § 16306(a); but see United States v. Galletti (2004) 541 U.S. 114, 124 S.Ct. 1548, 158 L. Ed. 2d 279 (general partners' joint and several liability for partnership debts was irrelevant to determining primary liability for "employer's" liability for employment taxes; proper assessment of unpaid employment tax against partnership sufficed to extend statute of limitations for collection of tax from general partners who were secondarily liable for payment of partnership's debts)]. Generally, joint and several liability permits a creditor to proceed immediately against any of the joint and several judgment debtors. Under UPA'94, however, subject to certain exceptions,creditors are required to first exhaust the partnership assets before levying against a partner to satisfy a judgment based on a claim against the partnership [Corp. Code § 16307(d)]. For example, a judgment creditor may proceed directly against the assets of a partner who is liable independently as a primary tortfeasor, but must exhaust the partnership's assets before proceeding against the separate assets of the other partners who are liable only as partners.

For discussion and forms relating to the joint and several liability of partners, see Ch. 402, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners or Partnership and Third Parties .

[f] Partnership Agreements

UPA'94 has an extensive set of rules to govern the relations among partners and between the partners and the partnership. A great many of these rules, however, can be varied by express agreement of the parties [see Corp. Code § 16103]. Thus, UPA'94 may have its greatest impact on partnerships that are subject to UPA'94's rules because they do not have detailed, written partnership agreements, or the agreements they do have do not vary the statutory rules as permitted by UPA'94.

[g] Partnership Conversions

The pre-'97 Act authorized general partnerships to convert to limited liability partnerships [former Corp. Code § 15051], but its provisions did not treat the conversion of general partnerships into other entities, such as domestic or foreign limited partnerships and limited liability companies. UPA'94 contains detailed provisions [see Corp. Code §§ 16901-16909] covering conversions of partnerships (other than registered limited liability partnerships) into domestic or foreign other business entities (i.e., limited partnerships, LLCs, corporations, and certain other business entities) [see Corp. Code §§ 16901(12) (definition of "other business entity"); 16902 (enumerating permissible conversions)]. These provisions include conditions for conversion, plan of conversion, approvals required for conversion, the effect of conversion on titles to real property and on the rights and liabilities of partners and the partnership, and the filing of statements of conversion.

[h] Mergers

While the pre-'97 Act authorized merger between partnerships and with limited liability companies provided the laws governing those parties to a merger permitted such a merger [former Corp. Code § 15046], these provisions were somewhat rudimentary, dealing primarily with the vote required for the general partnership to merge with another organization. The UPA'94 provisions [see Corp. Code §§ 16910-16917] are far more detailed, covering merger agreements, the law governing the surviving partnership, the effect of merger on title to real property, creditors rights and the liabilities of the members of the surviving entity, and, finally, the requirement of filing a statement of merger.

[i] Partnership Statements

UPA'94 refines and expands the role of partnership statements. The pre-'97 Act also provided for partnership statements, but their only function was to memorialize record title to real property [see former Corp Code §§ 15010.5-15010.7]. The pre-'97 Act also provided for public notice of a partnership dissolution in the form of newspaper publication and filing with the appropriate county clerk [see former Corp. Code § 15035.5], but did not specify the effect of such publication and filing. The partnership statements provided for under UPA'94 combine the functions of memorializing record title and giving constructive notice of changes in the partnership. These statements can limit a partner's or a partnership's liability to third parties in certain circumstances.

For discussion and forms related to the effect of filing partnership statements on third party liability, see Ch. 402, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners or Partnership and Third Parties .

[6] Correlation Table

This table compares and correlates the pre-'97 Act [former Corp. Code §§ 15001-15058] ("old UPA") with UPA'94 [Corp. Code §§ 16100-16962]. Use this table to determine the sections of the pre-'97 Act that correspond to those in the UPA'94, and vice versa. The table indicates whether or not a section was revised by UPA'94, and, if so, whether the revision was minor or major. Classification of revisions as "minor" or "major" obviously is a matter of degree involving the judgment of the authors of this table.

§ 400.12 Limited Partnership Laws Before 2008

[1] Uniform Limited Partnership Act

Until January 1, 2010, the Uniform Limited Partnership Act (ULPA) [Corp. Code § 15501 et seq.] generally governed limited partnerships formed before July 1, 1984, the operative date of the California Revised Limited Partnership Act (CRLPA) [Corp. Code §§ 15534 (ULPA), 15711 (CRLPA); see Corp. Code § 15611 et seq. (CRLPA); see also [2], below].

On or after July 1, 1984, a limited partnership formed under the ULPA could elect to be governed by CRLPA [Corp. Code § 15712(b)(1) (CRLPA); see [2], below]. On or after January 1, 2008, a limited partnership originally formed under the ULPA could elect to be governed by the Uniform Limited Partnership Act of 2008 (ULPA '08) [Corp. Code § 15912.06(a)(2) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15900 et seq. (ULPA '08); see also § 400.13[1]].

Effective January 1, 2010, the ULPA is repealed [Corp. Code § 15534 (ULPA)], and all limited partnerships, regardless of the date of formation, are governed by the ULPA '08, except as specified by the ULPA '08 [Corp. Code § 15912.06(b) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15912.06(c) (ULPA '08) (exceptions); see also § 400.13[1]]. However, the ULPA '08 does not affect an action commenced, proceeding brought, or right accrued before January 1, 2008 [Corp. Code § 15912.07 (ULPA '08)].

[2] California Revised Limited Partnership Act

Until January 1, 2010, the California Revised Limited Partnership Act (CRLPA) [Corp. Code § 15611 et seq.] generally governed limited partnerships formed on or after July 1, 1984, and before January 1, 2008, the operative date of the Uniform Limited Partnership Act of 2008 (ULPA '08) [Corp. Code §§ 15711, 15714, 15724 (CRLPA), 15912.06(a)(1) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15900 et seq. (ULPA '08)].

In addition, a limited partnership formed before July 1, 1984, could elect to be governed by CRLPA if all partners, or a lesser number as required by the partnership agreement, consented in writing to the election [Corp. Code § 15712(b)(1) (CRLPA) (election was prospective only and did not affect preexisting rights of third parties)].

Whether or not it elected to be governed by the CRLPA, a limited partnership formed before July 1, 1984, was required to file a new certificate of limited partnership in conformity with the CRLPA [Corp. Code § 15712(b)(2) (CRLPA); see Corp. Code § 15621(a) (CRLPA) (filing requirement)], and it could not maintain an action, suit, or proceeding in any California court until the certificate was filed [Corp. Code § 15712(b)(4) (CRLPA)]. After filing the certificate, a limited partnership could no longer make filings under the ULPA, and was governed by CRLPA with respect to filing certificates of dissolution and cancellation, amendments to certificates, and the formalities for executing or filing certificates [Corp. Code §§ 15711, 15712(b)(2) (CRLPA); see Corp. Code §§ 15621-15628 (CRLPA) (filing requirements under CRLPA)]. No person may rely on the accuracy or completeness of information filed or recorded pursuant to the ULPA once a CRLPA certificate has been filed [Corp. Code § 15712(b)(2) (CRLPA)]. After a new certificate was filed by a ULPA limited partnership, that certificate, or an amendment to it, controlled the rights and obligations of the partners and the limited partnership between themselves except (1) to the extent they were affected by an amendment of the partnership agreement or by the partnership's election to be governed by CRLPA; or (2) with respect to mergers, which were governed by CRLPA regardless of when the limited partnership was formed [Corp. Code § 15712(a), (c) (CRLPA); see Corp. Code §§ 15678.1-15678.10 (CRLPA) (merger provisions)].

On or after January 1, 2008, any limited partnership governed by the CRLPA could elect to be governed by the ULPA '08 [Corp. Code § 15912.06(a)(2) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15900 et seq. (ULPA '08); see also § 400.13[1]].

Effective January 1, 2010, CRLPA is repealed [Corp. Code § 15724 (CRLPA)], and all limited partnerships, regardless of the date of formation, are governed by the ULPA '08, except as specified by the ULPA '08 [Corp. Code § 15912.06(b) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15912.06(c) (ULPA '08) (exceptions); see also § 400.13[1]]. However, the ULPA '08 does not affect an action commenced, proceeding brought, or right accrued before January 1, 2008 [Corp. Code § 15912.07 (ULPA '08)].

[3] Application of General Partnership Law

Limited partnerships governed by the ULPA and the CRLPA were subject to general partnership law on matters not specifically covered by the ULPA or CRLPA [Corp. Code § 15722 (CRLPA); see Corp. Code § 16111 (UPA '94)]. The ULPA '08 adopts a different approach and does not rely on general partnership law or any other source for the rules governing limited partnerships [see § 400.13[2][c]].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Governing Statutes

35-400 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 400.13

§ 400.13 Uniform Limited Partnership Act of 2008

[1] Coverage of Act

The Uniform Limited Partnership Act of 2008 (ULPA '08) [see Stats. 2006, ch. 495, § 20; Corp. Code § 15900 et seq. (ULPA '08)], became operative on January 1, 2008 [Corp. Code § 15912.04 (ULPA '08)]. Through the end of 2009, the ULPA '08 generally governed the following limited partnerships [Corp. Code § 15912.06(a) (ULPA '08)]:

- Limited partnerships formed on or after January 1, 2008.

- Limited partnerships formed before January 1, 2008, that elected to be subject to the ULPA '08. However, the election did not change the law governing the limited partnership's liability to a third party on an obligation incurred between the time of the election and the end of 2009, if the third party did business with the partnership during the year preceding the election and had no knowledge or notice of the election at the time the obligation was incurred [Corp. Code § 15912.06(d) (ULPA '08)].

Effective January 1, 2010, all limited partnerships, regardless of the date of formation, generally are governed by the ULPA '08 [Corp. Code § 15912.06(b) (ULPA '08)]. However, with respect to a limited partnership formed before January 1, 2008, the following rules apply unless the partners elect otherwise [Corp. Code § 15912.06(c) (ULPA '08)]:

- The perpetual duration possessed by limited partnerships formed under the ULPA '08 [see Corp. Code § 15901.04(c) (ULPA '08); see § 400.13[3][b]] does not apply, and the limited partnership has whatever duration it had under the law applicable immediately before January 1, 2008.

- The ULPA '08 provisions governing dissociation of limited partners [see Corp. Code §§ 15906.01, 15906.02 (ULPA '08)] do not apply, and a limited partner has the same right and power to dissociate from the limited partnership, with the same consequences, as existed immediately before January 1, 2008.

- The ULPA '08 provision for the expulsion of a general partner by unanimous vote of the other partners [see Corp. Code § 15906.03(d) (ULPA '08)] does not apply.

- The ULPA '08 provision for the expulsion by court order [see Corp. Code § 15906.03(e) (ULPA '08)] does not apply, and a court has the same power to expel a general partner as the court had immediately before January 1, 2008.

- The ULPA '08 provision specifying the circumstances in which the dissociation of a general partner dissolves a limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15908.01(c) (ULPA '08)] does not apply, and the connection between a general partner's dissociation and the dissolution of the limited partnership is the same as existed immediately before January 1, 2008.

Moreover, the ULPA '08 does not affect an action commenced, proceeding brought, or right accrued before January 1, 2008 [Corp. Code § 15912.07 (ULPA '08)]. Thus, because litigation involving California limited partnerships formed before 2008 may be governed by the ULPA or the CRLPA, this publication will continue to provide forms for use in litigation under those laws as well as under the ULPA '08. All references to Corp. Code § 15501 et seq. (ULPA) and to Corp. Code § 15611 et seq. (CRLPA) in this chapter are to provisions repealed as of 2010.

[2] Basic Approach of Act

[a] Background Considerations--Overview

The ULPA '08 extensively recasts and revises the provisions governing the organization and governance of limited partnerships. These changes are best understood in light of two important considerations underlying the Act, which was based large part on the Uniform Limited Partnership Act (2001) promulgated by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws [see Unif. Limited Partnership Act (2001), 6A U.L.A. (2003)].

[b] Current Role of Limited Partnerships

A basic consideration underlying the major changes made by the ULPA '08 is the recognition that entities such as limited liability general partnerships [see § 400.14], limited liability companies [see Ch. 346, Limited Liability Companies], and S corporations [see I.R.C. §§ 1361(a), 1362] have come to occupy many of the roles previously filled by limited partnerships. Those entities, however, do not lend themselves to two important roles that are still best accomplished through the use of limited partnerships.

First, a limited partnership is particularly appropriate as a vehicle for a sophisticated business enterprise with relatively entrenched management and relatively passive investors whose investment is essentially committed to the enterprise indefinitely. In such a case, a limited partnership provides the passive investors with the benefit of "pass-through" income tax treatment while affording them some control over management [see Unif. Limited Partnership Act (2001), Prefatory Note, 6A U.L.A. § 4.01[1] (2003); see also R. Bradbury Clark, California'S Uniform Limited Partnership Act of 2008--Summary and Analysis of the Act's Major Provisions, § 4.01[1] (LexisNexis 2007)].

A second situation in which a limited partnership is particularly appropriate is when a family seeks to manage intergenerational ownership and transfer of family assets, with one group of family members initially providing management and control, while other family members start out as essentially passive holders of interests but over time succeed to larger interests and more management control. Again, "pass-through" income tax treatment is ordinarily available to all limited and general partners [see Unif. Limited Partnership Act (2001), Prefatory Note, 6A U.L.A. 2-4 (2003); see also R. Bradbury Clark, California's Uniform Limited Partnership Act of 2008--Summary and Analysis of the Act's Major Provisions, § 4.01[1] (LexisNexis 2007)].

In either of the circumstances described above, a limited partnership can be especially useful when there is a relatively large or potentially unwieldy membership and carefully tailored managerial control, limited liability and pass-through tax treatment are required. Limited liability can also be achieved even for the management group, which can operate through a general partner that is organized as a corporation or limited liability company [see R. Bradbury Clark, California's Uniform Limited Partnership Act of 2008--Summary and Analysis of the Act's Major Provisions, § 4.01[1] (LexisNexis 2007)].

[c] Stand-Alone Nature of Act

Another consideration underlying the ULPA '08 (and the Uniform Limited Partnership Act (2001), which served as the basis for much of the ULPA '08) was the desire to eliminate the need to refer to general partnership law for any matters pertaining to limited partnerships [see Unif. Limited Partnership Act (2001), Prefatory Note, 6A U.L.A. 2-4 (2003)]. Accordingly, unlike its predecessors [see § 400.12], the ULPA '08 is a stand-alone law that does not rely on general partnership law or any other source for the rules governing limited partnerships. Thus, the ULPA '08 is the only source that needs to be consulted for the statutory rules governing formation, filings, contributions and distributions, rights of transferees and creditors, dissociation, dissolution, actions by partners, conversion and merger, dissenting limited partners' rights, and foreign limited partnerships.

The stand-alone nature of the ULPA '08 means that it is longer and more complex than its predecessors. For example, the ULPA '08 provides default rules (which apply unless superseded by the partners' agreement) for many aspects of limited-partnership duration, governance, management, and operation that were not covered in the ULPA or CRLPA. Therefore, counsel drafting partnership documents or considering an election to be governed by the ULPA '08 should carefully examine the Act and determine whether any of those default rules should be expressly overridden [see R. Bradbury Clark, California's Uniform Limited Partnership Act of 2008--Summary and Analysis of the Act's Major Provisions, § 4.01[2] (LexisNexis 2007)].

[3] Significant Changes Made by Act

[a] Partnership Purpose

The ULPA '08 authorizes the formation of a limited partnership for any lawful purpose, and a limited partnership may engage in any lawful business activity, whether or not for profit, except the banking business, the business of issuing insurance policies and assuming insurance risks, and the trust company business [Corp. Code § 15901.04(b) (ULPA '08)]. This represents a significant change from the CRLPA, which required limited partnerships to have an overall profit-making purpose [see Corp. Code §§ 15616, 16202(a) (CRLPA)]. The new law thus is tailored to facilitate the intergenerational family-ownership role identified for limited partnerships [see [2][b], above], and it opens the door for the use of limited partnerships to conduct nonprofit enterprises [see R. Bradbury Clark, California's Uniform Limited Partnership Act of 2008--Summary and Analysis of the Act's Major Provisions, § 4.02[2] (LexisNexis 2007).

[b] Partnership Duration

A limited partnership formed under the ULPA '08 has perpetual duration unless the partnership agreement provides otherwise [Corp. Code §§ 15901.04(c), 15901.10(a) (ULPA '08)]. A limited partnerships formed under previous law, however, has whatever duration it had under the law applicable immediately before January 1, 2008 [see Corp. Code § 15912.06(c)(1) (ULPA '08)].

[c] Partnership Agreement

The ULPA '08 is a stand-alone act and expressly provides default rules for many aspects of limited-partnership duration, governance, management, and operation that previous laws left to the parties' agreement [see [2][c], above]. Under the ULPA '08 the partnership agreement may override many of the default provisions, except that an agreement may not do any of the following [Corp. Code § 15901.10(b) (ULPA '08)]:

- Vary a limited partnership's power under ULPA '08 to sue, be sued, and defend in its own name [see Corp. Code § 15901.05 (ULPA '08)].

- Override the ULPA '08 provision that California law governs relations among the partners and between the partners and the limited partnership, and the liability of partners as partners for an obligation of the limited partnership [see Corp. Code § 15901.06 (ULPA '08)].

- Vary the provisions of the ULPA '08 prescribing requirements for the signing of documents filed with the Secretary of State [see Corp. Code § 15902.04 (ULPA '08)].

- Vary the information required to be maintained at the limited partnership's office [see Corp. Code § 15901.11 (ULPA '08)] or unreasonably restrict partners' right to information [see Corp. Code §§ 15903.04, 15904.07 (ULPA '08)], although the partnership agreement may impose reasonable restrictions on the availability and use of information and may define appropriate remedies, including liquidated damages, for a breach of any reasonable restriction on use.

- Eliminate general partners' duty of loyalty [see Corp. Code § 15904.08 (ULPA '08)], although partnership agreement may identify specific types or categories of activities that do not violate the duty of loyalty, if not manifestly unreasonable; and/or specify the number or percentage of partners that may authorize or ratify, after full disclosure to all partners of all material facts, a specific act or transaction that otherwise would violate the duty of loyalty.

- Unreasonably reduce general partners' duty of care [see Corp. Code § 15904.08(c) (ULPA '08)].

- Eliminate the partners' obligation of good faith and fair dealing [see Corp. Code §§ 15903.05(b), 15904.08(d) (ULPA '08)], although the partnership agreement may prescribe the standards by which the performance of the obligation is to be measured, if the standards are not manifestly unreasonable.

- Vary the power of a person to dissociate as a general partner [see Corp. Code § 15906.04(a) (ULPA '08)], except to require that the notice of intent to dissociate be in a record [see Corp. Code § 15906.03(a) (ULPA '08)].

- Eliminate the power of a court to decree dissolution when it is not reasonably practicable to carry on the activities of the limited partnership in conformity with the partnership agreement [see Corp. Code § 15908.02(a) (ULPA '08)].

- Vary the requirement to wind up the partnership's business [see Corp. Code § 15908.03 (ULPA '08)].

- Unreasonably restrict any partner's right to maintain a direct action against the partnership or another partner [see Corp. Code § 15910.01 (ULPA '08)].

- Restrict the right of a partner to approve a conversion or merger.

- Vary the provisions governing the rights of dissenting limited partners in conversions, mergers, or other reorganizations of the limited partnership [see Corp. Code § 15911.20 et seq. (ULPA '08)], except to the extent expressly permitted by those provisions.

- Restrict rights of a person other than a partner or a transferee.

[d] Partners' Fiduciary Duties

The ULPA '08 delineates, with more specificity than previous law, the fiduciary duties of general partners, which are the following [Corp. Code § 15904.08(a) (ULPA '08)]:

- A duty of loyalty to the limited partnership and the other partners, which is limited to (1) a duty to account to the limited partnership and hold as trustee for it any property, profit, or benefit derived by the general partner in the conduct and winding up of the limited partnership's activities or derived from a use by the general partner of limited partnership property, including the appropriation of a limited partnership opportunity; (2) a duty to refrain from dealing with the limited partnership in the conduct or winding up of the limited partnership's activities as or on behalf of a party having an interest adverse to the limited partnership; and (3) a duty to refrain from competing with the limited partnership in the conduct or winding up of the limited partnership's activities [Corp. Code § 15904.08(b) (ULPA '08)]. This specification of the general partners' duty of loyalty to a limited partnership is similar to that specified for partners in a general partnership under the Uniform Partnership Act of 1994, except that the ULPA '08 says the duty of loyalty is "limited" to the matters specified, while the Uniform Partnership Act of 1994 says the duty of loyalty "includes" the matters specified [compare Corp. Code § 15904.08(b) (ULPA '08) with Corp. Code § 16404(b) (UPA '94)].

- A duty of care to the limited partnership and the other partners in the conduct and winding up of the limited partnership's activities, which is limited to refraining from engaging in grossly negligent or reckless conduct, intentional misconduct, or a knowing violation of law [Corp. Code § 15904.08(c) (ULPA '08)].

In addition, both general partners and limited partners have a general obligation of good faith and fair dealing in exercising any rights and in discharging their duties to the partnership and the other partners under the ULPA '08 and under the partnership agreement [Corp. Code §§ 15903.05(b), 15904.08(d) (ULPA '08)]. Otherwise, the ULPA '08 itself imposes no fiduciary duties on limited partners [Corp. Code § 15903.05(a) (ULPA '08)].

[e] Limited Partners' Access to Partnership Information

The ULPA '08 provides limited partners with access to more information than was available under pervious law [compare Corp. Code § 15903.04 (ULPA '08) with Corp. Code § 15634 (CRLPA)]. However, the ULPA '08 permits the partnership to place certain restrictions on limited partners' access to and use of that information [see Corp. Code § 15903.04(g), (h), (i) (ULPA '08)].

[f] Judicial Dissolution

The ULPA '08 provides that when a partner applies for a judicial dissolution of a limited partnership, a nonapplying partner may buy out the partnership interest of the applying partner [Corp. Code § 15908.02(b)-(f) (ULPA '08)]. This option was not available under previous law [see R. Bradbury Clark, California's Uniform Limited Partnership Act of 2008--Summary and Analysis of the Act's Major Provisions, § 4.02[13] (LexisNexis 2007)].

[g] Transfer of Partnership Interests

The ULPA '08 provides a default rule that the only interest of a partner that is transferable is the right to receive distributions [Corp. Code §§ 15901.02(ak), 15907.01 (ULPA '08)]. Under previous law, a partner's interest was assignable in whole or in part, and it could encompass the right to receive distributions as well as the assigning partner's entitlement to allocations of income, gain or loss, deductions, credits, and other items [see Corp. Code § 15672(a) (CRLPA)]. As a default rule, the ULPA '08 rule can be overridden, but only by an express provision in the limited partnership agreement [see R. Bradbury Clark, California's Uniform Limited Partnership Act of 2008--Summary and Analysis of the Act's Major Provisions, § 4.02[14] (LexisNexis 2007)].

[4] Correlation Table

This table compares and correlates the provisions of the ULPA '08 with those of previous laws, the ULPA and the CRLPA, both of which are repealed as of January 1, 2010 [see Corp. Code §§ 15534 (ULPA), 15724 (CRLPA); see also § 400.12[1],[2]]. Because the ULPA '08 is a stand-alone law, while the previous laws relied on general partnership law for many of the rules governing limited partnerships [see [2][c], above], many of the ULPA '08 provisions have no clear parallel in the ULPA or CRLPA.

§ 400.14 Limited Liability Partnerships

A limited liability partnership is a general partnership governed by UPA'94 in the same manner as other general partnerships. The only types of limited liability partnerships recognized under either the pre-'97 Act or UPA'94 are registered limited liability partnerships and foreign limited liability partnerships [Corp. Code § 16951; former Corp. Code § 15047; see § 400.20[5], [15] (defining these partnerships)]. The distinguishing feature of the registered limited liability partnership is that partners are not jointly and severally liable for the debts of the partnership or other partners [Corp. Code § 16306; former Corp. Code § 15015]. This is discussed in Ch. 402, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners or Partnership and Third Parties , and Ch. 403, Partnerships: Actions By and Against Dissociated Partners .

§ 400.15 Joint Ventures

Joint ventures, to the extent that courts treat them as partnerships, are governed by applicable partnership statutes [see Orlopp v. Willardson Co. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 750, 754, 43 Cal. Rptr. 125 ; Milton Kauffman, Inc. v. Superior Court (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 8, 17, 210 P.2d 88] . Courts occasionally treat joint ventures as distinct entities, however, in which case, they are governed by specific judicial opinions [see, e.g., Elsbach v. Mulligan (1943) 58 Cal. App. 2d 354, 369, 136 P.2d 651 (remedies of joint venturers as among themselves as different from those of partners)]. The decisional law applicable to joint ventures is discussed in connection with partnership litigation in the chapters to follow [see Chs. 401-406].

B. Definitions

35-400 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 400.20

§ 400.20 Definitions Pertaining to General Partnerships

[1] Scope

Both the pre-'97 Act and UPA'94 contain various definitional sections [see, e.g., Corp. Code § 16101, 16102; former Corp. Code § 15002, 15003]. Those definitions that are relevant to the litigation issues discussed in Chs. 401-406 are set out below so that they may be easily referenced in those chapters. When the definitions under the two Acts are identical or virtually the same, both Acts are cited. The pre-'97 Act and UPA'94 do, however, define some terms differently, or one Act may include a definition not found in the other. In such cases, either only one statute is cited in these materials and any differences between the two Acts identified or, if the language is not the same but it is clear that there is no substantive difference, only UPA'94 is cited along with a "see" reference to the pre-'97 Act.

Several UPA'94 definitions that relate solely to the conversion and merger of general partnerships have been omitted from the following list. Those definitions, to the extent they are relevant, are discussed in connection with actions by dissociated partners against a merged or converted partnership to enforce buy-out rights, or actions by creditors against those partners [see Ch. 403, Partnerships: Actions By and Against Dissociated Partners].

These definitions apply to all general partnerships, including limited liability partnerships, and to limited partnerships to the extent they are compatible with the limited partnership statutes. The ULPA and the CRLPA, which apply specifically to limited partnerships, also contain their own definitions, and these definitions are set out in § 400.21.

[2] "Business"

"Business" includes every trade, occupation, and profession [Corp. Code § 16101(1); former Corp. Code § 15002(b)].

[3] "Bankrupt" and "Debtor in Bankruptcy"

The pre-'97 Act defined "bankrupt" as including a debtor under Chapter 7 of the federal bankruptcy law or an insolvent under any state insolvency act [former*Corp. Code § 15002(d)*]. Under UPA'94, "debtor in bankruptcy" means a person who is the subject of either (a) an order for relief under Title 11 of the United States Code or a comparable order under a successor statute of general application; or (b) a comparable order under federal, state, or foreign law governing insolvency [Corp. Code § 16101(2)].

[4] "Distribution"

Under UPA'94, a "distribution" is a transfer of money or other property from a partnership to a partner in the partner's capacity as a partner or to the partner's transferee [Corp. Code § 16101(3)].

[4A] "Electronic Transmission by the Partnership"

"Electronic transmission by the partnership" means a communication that is delivered to a recipient who has provided an unrevoked consent to the use of one of the following [Corp. Code § 16101(4)(a),(b)]:

- Facsimile telecommunication or electronic mail when directed to the facsimile number or electronic mail address, respectively, for that recipient on record with the partnership;

- Posting on an electronic message board or network that the partnership has designated for those communications, together with a separate notice to the recipient of the posting; or

- Another means of electronic communication.

The transmission must create a record that is capable of retention, retrieval, and review, and that thereafter may be rendered into clearly legible tangible form. However, an electronic transmission by a partnership to an individual partner is not authorized unless, in addition to satisfying the above requirements, the transmission satisfies the requirements applicable to consumer consent to electronic records as set forth in the Electronic Signatures in Global and National Commerce Act [Corp. Code § 16101(4)(c); see 15 U.S.C. § 7001(c)(1)].

[4B] "Electronic Transmission to the Partnership"

"Electronic transmission to the partnership" means a communication delivered by one of the following [Corp. Code § 16101(5)(a)]:

- Facsimile telecommunication or electronic mail when directed to the facsimile number or electronic mail address, respectively, that the partnership has provided from time to time to partners for sending communications to the partnership;

- Posting on an electronic message board or network that the partnership has designated for those communications; or

- Another means of electronic communication.

The partnership must have placed in effect reasonable measures to verify that the sender is the partner (in person or by proxy) purporting to send the transmission [Corp. Code § 16101(5)(b)]. Furthermore, the transmission must create a record that is capable of retention, retrieval, and review, and that thereafter may be rendered into clearly legible tangible form [Corp. Code § 16101(5)(c)].

[5] "Foreign Limited Liability Partnership"

"Foreign limited liability partnership" means a partnership, other than a limited partnership, formed pursuant to an agreement governed by the laws of another jurisdiction and denominated or registered as a limited liability partnership or registered limited liability partnership under the laws of that jurisdiction (1) in which each partner is a licensed person or a person licensed or authorized to provide professional limited liability partnership services in a jurisdiction or jurisdictions other than California; (2) which is licensed under the laws of the state to engage in the practice of public accountancy, the practice of architecture [see Corp. Code § 16101(19) (architecture included only until January 1, 2012)], or the practice of law; or (3) which (a) is related to a registered limited liability partnership that practices public accountancy or, to the extent permitted by this State Bar, practices law or is related to a foreign limited liability partnership, and (b) provides services related or complementary to the professional limited liability partnership services provided by, or provides services or facilities to, that registered limited liability partnership or foreign limited liability partnership [Corp. Code § 16101(6)(A); former Corp. Code § 15002(j)(1)].

A partnership is "related to" a registered limited liability partnership or foreign limited liability partnership if (1) at least a majority of the partners in one partnership are also partners in the other partnership, or (2) at least a majority in interest in each partnership hold interests in or are members of another person, except an individual, and each partnership renders services pursuant to an agreement with that other person, or (3) one partnership, directly or indirectly through one or more intermediaries, controls, is controlled by, or is under common control with, the other partnership [Corp. Code § 16101(6)(B); former Corp. Code § 15002(j)(2)].

[a] Pre-'97 Act

A person has "knowledge" of a fact not only when the person has actual knowledge of that fact, but also when the person has knowledge of such other facts as in the circumstances shows bad faith [former Corp. Code § 15003(1)]. A person has "notice" of a fact when the person who claims the benefit of the notice either (1) states the fact to that person, or (2) delivers through the mail, or by other means of communication, a written statement of the fact to that person or to a proper person at that person's place of business or residence [former Corp. Code § 15003(2)].

[b] UPA'94

The definitions of "knowledge" and "notice" under UPA'94 are more precise than under the pre-'97 Act, especially with respect to imputed knowledge or notice, and are tied to the contents of limited liability partnership registrations and to partnership statements, which, as noted in § 400.11[5][i], serve to put third parties on notice of certain facts concerning the partnership.

A person knows a fact if the person has actual knowledge of it [Corp. Code § 16102(a)]. A person has "notice" of a fact if any of the following apply [Corp. Code § 16102(b); see Corp. Code §§ 16953(f), 16959(f)]:

- The person knows of it.
- The person has received a notification of it.
- The person has reason to know it exists from all of the facts known to the person at the time in question.
- The facts are contained in a registration filed by a registered limited liability partnership or foreign limited liability partnership.

A person notifies or gives a notification to another by taking steps reasonably required to inform the other person in ordinary course, whether or not the other person knows of it [Corp. Code § 16102(c)]. A person receives a notification when either of the following apply [Corp. Code § 16102(d)]:

- The person knows of the notification.

- The notification is duly delivered at the person's place of business or at any other place held out by the person as a place for receiving communications.

A person other than an individual knows, has notice, or receives a notification of a fact for purposes of a particular transaction when the individual conducting the transaction knows, has notice, or receives a notification of the fact, or in any event when the fact would have been brought to the individual's attention if the person had exercised reasonablediligence. The person exercises reasonable diligence if it maintains reasonable routines for communicating significant information to the individual conducting the transaction and there is reasonable compliance with the routines. Reasonable diligence does not require an individual acting for the person to communicate information unless the communication is part of the individual's regular duties or the individual has reason to know of the transaction and that the transaction would be materially affected by the information [Corp. Code § 16102(e)]. This rule essentially attributes to an entity the notice or knowledge of individuals conducting its transactions, and requires the entity to make sure the person conducting the transaction is kept informed.

A different and stricter rule applies, however, when the entity is a partnership and it is the partner who has knowledge, notice, or receives notification of a fact relating to the partnership. In such a case, the partner's knowledge, notice or receipt of notification is effective immediately as knowledge by, notice to, or receipt of a notification by the partnership, except in the case of a fraud on the partnership committed by or with the consent of that partner [Corp. Code § 16102(f)].

[7] "Licensed Person"

"Licensed person" means any person who is duly licensed, authorized, or registered under the Business and Professions Code to provide professional limited liability partnership services, or who is lawfully able to render professional limited liability partnership services in California [Corp. Code § 16101(7); former Corp. Code § 15002(h)].

[8] "Partnership"

"Partnership" means an association of two or more persons to carry on as coowners a business for profit formed under the pre-'97 Act or UPA'94, a predecessor law, or comparable law of another jurisdiction, and includes, for all purposes of the laws of California, a registered limited liability partnership [Corp. Code § 16101(9); former Corp. Code § 15006(1); see also Corp. Code § 16202]. It excludes any partnership formed under the Uniform Limited Partnership Act [Corp. Code § 15501 et seq.] or California Revised Limited Partnership Act [Corp. Code § 16101(9); see Corp. Code § 15611 et seq.].

[9] "Partnership Agreement"

"Partnership agreement" means the agreement, whether written, oral, or implied, among the partners concerning the partnership, including amendments to the partnership agreement [Corp. Code § 16101(10)]. This definition is a general codification of case law and the pre-'97 Act has no comparable provision.

[10] "Partnership at Will"

"Partnership at will" means a partnership in which the partners have not agreed to remain partners until the expiration of a definite term or the completion of a particular undertaking [Corp. Code § 16101(11)]. The pre-'97 Act contained no comparable definition, but its dissolution provisions distinguished between partnerships at will and those for a particular term or undertaking [see former Corp. Code § 15031].

[11] "Partnership Interest"

Under the pre-'97 Act, a partner's interest in the partnership was defined as the partner's share of the profits and surplus, which is personal property [former Corp. Code § 15026; see Tinseltown Video, Inc. v. Transportation Insurance Company (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 184, 196-197, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 371 (partnership interest in video stores was interest in personalty, not realty, for purposes of insurance coverage for trespass)]. The property rights of a partner under the pre-'97 Act consisted of rights in specific partnership property, the partner's interest in the partnership, and the right to participate in management [former Corp. Code § 15024].

Under UPA'94, "partnership interest" and "partner's interest in the partnership" are defined inclusively but, because UPA'94 dispenses with the concept of tenancy in partnership, without reference to property rights in specific partnership property. Thus, these terms include all of a partner's interests in the partnership, including the partner's transferable interest and all management and other rights [Corp. Code § 16101(12)].

[12] "Person"

"Person" means an individual, corporation, business trust, estate, trust, partnership, limited partnership, limited liability partnership, limited liability company, association, joint venture, government, governmental subdivision, agency, or instrumentality, or any other legal or commercial entity [Corp. Code § 16101(13); see former Corp. Code § 15002(c)].

[13] "Professional Limited Liability Partnership Services"

"Professional limited liability partnership services" means the practice of public accountancy, the practice of architecture [see Corp. Code § 16101(19) (architecture included in this definition only until January 1, 2012)], or the practice of law [Corp. Code § 16101(14); former Corp. Code § 15002(g)].

[14] "Property"

"Property" means all property, real, personal, or mixed, tangible or intangible, or any interest therein [Corp. Code § 16101(15)].

[15] "Registered Limited Liability Partnership"

"Registered limited liability partnership" means a partnership, other than a limited partnership, formed pursuant to an agreement governed by Article 8 [former Corp. Code § 15047 et seq.] or Article 10 [Corp. Code § 16951 et seq.] of the Corporations Code, and that is registered with the Secretary of State [see Corp. Code § 16953; former Corp. Code § 15049]. In addition, a registered limited liability partnership must meet one of the following requirements [Corp. Code § 16101(8)(A); former Corp. Code § 15002(i)(1)]:

- Each of the partners is either a "licensed person" [see [7], above] or a person who is licensed or authorized to provide professional limited liability partnership services in a jurisdiction(s) other than California.

- The partnership is licensed under California law to engage in the practice of public accountancy, the practice of architecture [see Corp. Code § 16101(19) (architecture included only until January 1, 2012)], or the practice of law. The California Board of Accountancy licenses accounting partnerships, and the State Bar of California licenses law partnerships.

- The partnership is (1) related to a registered limited liability partnership that practices public accountancy or, to the extent permitted by the State Bar, practices law or is related to a foreign limited liability partnership; and (2) provides services related or complementary to the professional limited liability partnership services provided by, or provides services or facilities to, that registered limited liability partnership or foreign limited liability partnership.

A partnership is related to a registered limited liability partnership or foreign limited liability partnership if [Corp. Code § 16101(8)(B); former Corp. Code § 15002(i)(2)]:

- At least a majority of the partners in one partnership are also partners in the other partnership;

- At least a majority in interest in each partnership hold interests in or are members of another person, other than an individual, and each partnership renders services pursuant to an agreement with that other person; or

- One partnership, directly or indirectly through one or more intermediaries, controls, is controlled by, or is under common control with, the other partnership.

[16] "Statement"

Under UPA'94, "statement" means a statement of [Corp. Code § 16101(17)]:

- Partnership authority [see Corp. Code § 16303].

- Denial of partnership authority [see Corp. Code § 16304].

- Dissociation [see Corp. Code § 16704].

- Dissolution [see Corp. Code § 16805].

- Conversion [see Corp. Code § 16906].

- Merger [see Corp. Code § 16915].

- An amendment or cancellation of any of the foregoing.

There is no comparable definition of "statement" under the pre-'97 Act. As noted above [see § 400.11[5][i]]. However, statements of partnership may be recorded under that Act to memorialize partnership title to real property and/or to limit the authority of individual partners to convey or encumber partnership real property [see former Corp. Code §§ 15010.5-15010.7].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

35-401 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 401.10

§ 401.10 Governing Law

[1] Under Uniform Acts

Since January 1, 1999, all partnerships have been governed by the Uniform Partnership Act of 1994 (UPA'94) [Corp. Code § 16111(b); see Corp. Code § 16100 et seq.], regardless of when they were formed. Prior to that date, partnerships formed before January 1, 1997, were governed by the earlier of (1) the date when they elected to be governed by the UPA'94, or (2) January 1, 1999 [Corp. Code § 16111]. As of January 1, 1999, the pre-1997 version of the UPA (pre-'97 Act) was repealed [Stats. 1996 ch. 1003, §§ 1.2, 18, operative Jan. 1, 1999]. Repeal of the pre-'97 Act, however, did not affect actions or proceedings commenced, or rights accrued, prior to the effective date of the UPA'94 [Corp. Code § 16112]. For that reason, discussion of the pre-'97 Act has been retained in the partnership coverage in this publication. All references to Corp. Code §§ 15001-15045 in this chapter are to the repealed provisions of the pre-'97 Act. For more detailed discussion see Ch. 400, Partnerships: Governing Statutes, §§ 400.10, 400.11.

Prior to partnership dissolution or the dissociation of a partner, the relations between general partners, and between the partnership and the partners, are governed by Corp. Code §§ 16401-16406. The pre-'97 Act specifically provided for actions to rescind a partnership agreement [former Corp. Code § 15039], but that provision was not carried over to UPA'94. Instead, the latter Act broadly authorizes partners to maintain an action to enforce rights and protect interests, including rights and interests arising independently of the partnership relationship [Corp. Code § 16405].

[2] Joint Ventures

As in the case of partners, the relationship between joint venturers is fiduciary, and the rights of joint venturers are governed by the same principles and rules of law that govern partnerships [see Zeibak v. Nasser (1938) 12 Cal. 2d 1, 12, 82 P.2d 375 ; Butler v. Union Trust Co. (1918) 178 Cal. 195, 198, 172 P. 601 ; Cahill Bros., Inc. v. Clementina Co. (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 367, 388, 25 Cal. Rptr. 301] . Pre-'97 Act decisions involving actions between joint venturers routinely cite that Act as governing the relations between partners and between the partners and the partnership [see, e.g., Leff v. Gunter (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 508, 514, 189 Cal. Rptr. 377, 658 P.2d 740] .

Chapter 401 PARTNERSHIPS: ACTIONS BETWEEN GENERAL PARTNERS AND PARTNERSHIP
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

35-401 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 401.11

§ 401.11 Enforcement of Partners' Rights and Duties Under Pre-'97 Act

[1] Partnership's Right to Accounting

Every partner must account to the partnership for any benefit, and hold as trustee for it any profits, derived without the consent of the other partners from any transaction connected with the formation, conduct, or liquidation of the partnership or from any use of partnership property [former Corp. Code § 15021(1)]. This rule also applies to a representatives of a deceased partner when they are liquidating the partnership as representatives of the last surviving partner [former Corp. Code § 15021(2)].

[2] Partner's Right to Accounting

Other than actions for dissolution or to enforce the rights of withdrawing partners, partners in partnerships governed by the pre-'97 Act are given the right to a formal account as to partnership affairs when [former Corp. Code § 15022(a)-(d)]:

- The partner is wrongfully excluded from the partnership business or possession of its property by copartners.
- The right exists under the terms of any agreement.
- A copartner has a duty to account for benefits received from use of partnership property without the consent of the other partners [see former Corp. Code § 15201].
- Other circumstances render it just and reasonable.

[3] Actions at Law Between Partners

[a] General Rule

[i] Partnerships

The general rule, in cases decided under the pre-'97 Act, is that in the absence of statutory authority, no action at law may be maintained between partners with respect to partnership transactions [Johnstone v. Morris (1930) 210 Cal. 580, 583-584, 292 P. 970 ; Malott v. Seymour (1950) 101 Cal. App. 2d 245, 246, 225 P.2d 310] . One partner suing another must bring an equitable suit for dissolution and for an accounting [Hosking v. Spartan Properties, Inc. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 152, 156, 79 Cal. Rptr. 893] . The reason for the general rule is that it cannot be known whether the partner suing is in fact indebted to the partnership, or that the other members may not also be creditors of the partnership, or that there may not be outstanding firm debts entitled to preference over the debt due the partners themselves sufficient to exhaust the firm assets [Malott v. Seymour (1950) 101 Cal. App. 2d 245, 246-247, 225 P.2d 310] . In addition, in a partnership transaction, a partner usually becomes the creditor or debtor of the partnership rather than the creditor or debtor of his or her copartner [Long v. Newlin (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 509, 513, 301 P.2d 271] .

[ii] Joint Ventures

As with partnerships, generally a joint venturer cannot maintain an action at law against other joint venturers arising out of any transaction of the joint venture. The proper remedy is an equitable action for dissolution and accounting of the affairs of the enterprise [Barlin v. Barlin (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 390, 393, 302 P.2d 457] . The partnership exceptions to the general rule, however, also apply to joint ventures [see Gherman v. Colburn (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 544, 557, 140 Cal. Rptr. 330 ; Mayo v. Pacific Project Consultants, Inc. (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 1013, 1019, 82 Cal. Rptr. 117 ; see also [b], below].

Some cases treat joint ventures somewhat differently than partnerships with respect to actions between joint venturers. At least one court has held that the partnership rule requiring an equitable action for an accounting rather than an action at law does not apply with the same force to joint venturers, who may sue each other at law for damages [Elsbach v. Mulligan (1943) 58 Cal. App. 2d 354, 369, 136 P.2d 651 ; see also Keyes v. Nims (1919) 43 Cal. App. 1, 9, 184 P. 695 ; contra Cunningham v. De Mordaigle (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 620, 621, 186 P.2d 423] . However, the cases treating joint ventures differently from partnerships are in the minority.

The general rule is subject to exceptions that arise when reasons for denying a legal action do not exist, e.g., the transaction in question is not connected with the partnership business [Hosking v. Spartan Properties, Inc. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 152, 157, 79 Cal. Rptr. 893] . Similarly, an action for damages is appropriate when, although the partnership came into existence, a partner had caused a wrongful dissolution of the partnership by converting its assets to his own use [Laughlin v. Haberfelde (1946) 72 Cal. App. 2d 780, 788, 165 P.2d 544] , or by refusing to perform a severable undertaking in the partnership agreement relating solely to a transaction between the partners [Van Fleet-Durkee, Inc. v. Oyster (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 739, 247 P.2d 403 ; Blonder v. Gentile (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 869, 309 P.2d 147] .

The general rule also is inapplicable when the very existence of the partnership is at issue [Long v. Newlin (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 509, 512, 301 P.2d 271] . For example, one partner may seek to rescind the partnership agreement on the basis of fraud [Weltman v. Kaye (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 607, 612-613, 334 P.2d 917 ; Long v. Newlin (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 509, 512, 301 P.2d 271] ; or, when a partner repudiates the partnership agreement and converts the partnership assets, the other partner or partners may bring an action for damages for fraud or conversion [Navarro v. Perron, (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 797, 802, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 198 ; see Gherman v. Colburn (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 544, 562-563, 140 Cal. Rptr. 330 (involving joint venture); Boyd v. Bevilacqua (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 272, 294-295, 55 Cal. Rptr. 610 (involving joint venture)]. If there is a breach of the partnership agreement, the test for determining whether or not a partner may bring an action at law against the breaching copartner is whether or not damages resulting from the breach belong exclusively to other partners and not to the partnership, and whether or not damages can be assessed without taking account of the partnership business [Long v. Newlin (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 509, 513-514, 301 P.2d 271] . It is also proper to combine an action at law with an accounting and dissolution of the partnership, when circumstances require, in order to afford full and adequate relief to the parties [Prince v. Harting (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 720, 736-737, 2 Cal. Rptr. 545] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

35-401 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 401.12

§ 401.12 Enforcement of Partners' Rights and Duties Under UPA'94

[1] By Partnership Against Partner

A partnership may maintain an action against a partner for a breach of the partnership agreement or a violation of a duty to the partnership that causes harm to the partnership [Corp. Code § 16405(a)]

[2] Actions by Partners

Apart from the rights a partner has to commence an action to dissolve the partnership or to enforce that partner's rights as a dissociating partner, a partner in a partnership governed by UPA'94 may maintain an action against the partnership or another partner for legal or equitable relief, with or without an accounting as to partnership business, to do any of the following [Corp. Code § 16405(b)]:

- Enforce the partner's rights under the partnership agreement.

- Enforce the partner's rights granted under UPA'94, including the rights specified in Corp. Code § 16401.

- Enforce the rights and protect the interests of the partner, including those that arise independently of the partnership.

Note that the language of Corp. Code § 16405(b) gives a partner the right to sue for an accounting in conjunction with the enforcement of any of these rights. Former Corp. Code § 15022 in the pre-'97 Act also gives a partner the right to an accounting independent of an action to dissolve the partnership. It can be argued that unless that section is construed to permit a partner to seek an accounting prior to dissolution, it would appear to be merely duplicative of other sections of the pre-'97 Act that permit a partner seek a court-supervised dissolution [see former Corp. Code § 15032], to wind up partnership affairs [see former Corp. Code § 15037], and to obtain an accounting in accordance with the rules for settling accounts between partners [see former Corp. Code § 15040]. Thus, former Corp. Code § 15022 can only be saved from being an "idle act" if it permits a partner to enforce the right to an accounting in circumstances not requiring dissolution. The same observations apply with respect to Corp. Code § 16405(b). As a practical matter, however, it seems likely that a partnership in which a partner is forced to seek the aid of equity to enforce his or her rights has deteriorated to the point where dissolution is imminent.

Corp. Code § 16405(b) permits a partner to maintain an action to enforce the partner's rights without an accounting. This raises the question of whether decisions under the pre-'97 Act--requiring, with some exceptions [see § 401.11[3][b]], an action for accounting between partners or the partnership--remain good law under UPA'94. Since the reason for the general rule--that an accounting is necessary because it is impossible to determine the indebtedness of the parties until partnership accounts have been settled--have not changed, it is likely that pre-'97 Act case law will continue to apply and that, as a rule, courts will not entertain actions at law for damages unless they include a prayer for an accounting as well.

§ 401.13 Actions Related to Partnership Formation

[1] Issues Arising in Partnership Formation

[a] Generally

A threshold issue in partnership litigation, often involving those claiming either to be or not to be partners, is whether or not a partnership was actually formed. Whether or not a partnership has been formed may in turn determine the remedies available to partners in the event of disagreements between them.

[b] Objective Intent to Form Partnership

A partnership [see Corp. Code § 16101(9), 16202; former Corp. Code § 15006 (defining "partnership"); see also Ch. 400, Partnerships: Governing Statutes] may be formed whether or not the persons intend to form one [Corp. Code § 16202(a)], and its existence does not depend on a formal written agreement [Cochran v. Board of Supervisors (1978) 85 Cal. App.3d 75, 81, 149 Cal. Rptr. 304] . For example, a partnership formed for the purpose of buying and selling real property may be created by oral agreement, and is not voidable under the provisions of the statute of frauds that requires a contract for the creation, sale, or transfer of an interest in land to be in writing [Sadugor v. Holstein (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 477, 480, 18 Cal. Rptr. 859 ; En Taik Ha v. Kang (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 84, 90-91, 9 Cal. Rptr. 425 ; see Civ. Code § 1624(a)(3)]. A partnership may also be inferred from the acts and declarations of the parties [Cochran v. Board of Supervisors (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 75, 81, 149 Cal. Rptr. 304] .

[c] Intent to Carry On Business for Profit

Although a partnership may be formed without the parties' subjective intent to form one [Corp. Code § 16202(a)], the parties nevertheless must have the intention of carrying on a business as coowners for a profit [see Corp. Code § 16202(a); former Corp. Code § 15006(1); Cochran v. Board of Supervisors (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 75, 81, 149 Cal. Rptr. 304 ; In re Marino, 813 F.2d 1562, 1565 (9th Cir. [Cal.] 1987)]. This intention may be determined from the terms of the parties' agreement or from surrounding circumstances [Security Pac. Nat. Bank v. Matek (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 1071, 1075, 223 Cal. Rptr. 288] . Under both UPA'94 and its immediate predecessor, an express agreement to divide profits is not a prerequisite to prove the existence of a partnership [Holmes v. Lerner (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 442, 453-454, 457, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d. 130 ; see former Corp. Code § 15006; Corp. Code § 16202(a) (statutory definitions of partnership); see also former Corp. Code § 15018; Corp. Code § 16401(b) (rules for situation in which the partners have not expressly stated an agreement regarding sharing of profits)]. For discussion of the significance of sharing profits and losses, see [f], below.

[d] Community of Interest

Courts have used the term "community of interest" to refer either to the parties' joint interest in the capital, profit, and loss of the business, or to the parties' right to make contracts, incur liabilities, and otherwise manage the affairs of the business [Moulin v. Der Zakarian (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 184, 189, 12 Cal. Rptr. 572 ; People v. Woolson (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 657, 669, 5 Cal. Rptr. 766] .

Numerous cases interpreting the pre-'97 Act have held that one of the essential elements of a partnership is that each partner must have some control over the management of the enterprise [People v. Park (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 550, 564, 151 Cal. Rptr. 146 ; Bank of California v. Connolly (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 350, 364, 111 Cal. Rptr. 468 ; Billups v. Tiernan (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 372, 379, 90 Cal. Rptr. 246] . It is not necessary, however, that the partners' duties be equal [Cochran v. Board of Supervisors (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 75, 81, 149 Cal. Rptr. 304 (1978)] . Furthermore, partners may by agreement entrust the management of the business to one or more of the partners, the making of such an agreement being itself an exercise of the requisite right of control [see Corp. Code § 16401(f); former Corp. Code § 15018(e) (all partners have equal right to manage); Moulin v. Der Zakarian (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 184, 190, 12 Cal. Rptr. 572 ; Singleton v. Fuller (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d 733, 741 ; Constans v. Ross (1951) 106 Cal. App. 2d 381, 388-389, 235 P.2d 113] .

[e] Contributions to Capital

Although it is assumed that each partner ordinarily will contribute capital to the partnership [see Corp. Code § 16401(a)(1); former Corp. Code § 15018(a) (partner's account credited for contributions)], an equal (or any) contribution to capital by each partner is not necessarily required to find the existence of a partnership [Galardi v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 683, 691, 238 Cal. Rptr. 774, 739 P.2d 134 (rule stated for joint venture); Sandberg v. Jacobson (1967) 253 Cal. App. 2d 663, 667-668, 61 Cal. Rptr. 436 (1967)] . For example, some partners may contribute their labor and skill to the venture in lieu of capital [Galardi v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 683, 691, 238 Cal. Rptr. 774, 739 P.2d 134 ; Okun v. Morton (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 805, 250 Cal. Rptr. 220] .

[f] Agreement for Division of Profits and Losses

The basic statutory definition of a partnership is the association of two or more persons to carry on as co-owners a business for profit [Corp. Code § 16202(a); former Corp. Code § 15006]. Under definitions in earlier versions of the UPA, which placed greater emphasis on the division of profits and losses, there is case law stating that agreement to share profits and losses is an essential element of a partnership [see, e.g., People v. Park (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 550, 563, 151 Cal. Rptr. 146] . More recently, however, it was held that under the version of the UPA that immediately preceded UPA'94, profit sharing is evidence of a partnership, rather than a required element of the definition of a partnership. The actual sharing of profits therefore was prima facie evidence which was to be considered, in light of any other evidence, when determining if a partnership exists [Holmes v. Lerner (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 442, 453-454, 457, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d. 130 ; see also former Corp. Code § 15018 (provides rules for situation in which the partners have not expressly stated an agreement regarding sharing of profits)].

UPA'94, like its immediate predecessor, does not expressly require profit sharing as an essential element of a partnership [see Corp. Code § 16202(a)]. Under the UPA'94, the sharing of profits is recharacterized as an evidentiary presumption, rather than prima facie evidence [Corp. Code § 16202(c)(3); Holmes v. Lerner (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 442, 454 n. 14, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d. 130] . A person who receives a share of the profits of a business is presumed to be a partner in the business, except as noted below [Corp. Code § 16202(c)(3)].

The inference of partnership from an agreement to share profits, however, must be accompanied by some evidence that the agreement is in furtherance of the parties' intention to carry on a business together. Thus, a landowner's agreement to share with another profits to be derived from sale of the land does not, without more, establish a prima facie case for a partnership [Bank of California v. Connolly (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 350, 111 Cal. Rptr. 468] . Similarly, the presumption is overcome when substantial evidence is introduced showing the relationship to be that of lender and borrower with the profits being paid for services rendered or money advanced [Dills v. Delira Corp. (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 124, 131, 302 P.2d 397] .

The presumption of a partnership relation does not apply if profits were received in payment for [Corp. Code § 16202(c)(3)(A)-(F); former Corp. Code § 15007(4)]:

- A debt by installments or otherwise.
- Services as an independent contractor.
- Wages.
- Rent to a landlord.
- An annuity to a surviving spouse or representative of a deceased or retired partner.
- Interest on a loan, even though the amount of the payment varies with the profits of the business, including a direct or indirect present or future ownership of the collateral, rights to income, proceeds, or increase in value derived from the collateral.
- The consideration for the sale of the goodwill of a business or other property by installments or otherwise.

With respect to losses, subject to their agreement and except for limitations with respect to preexisting liabilities and limited liability partnership liabilities, partners must contribute toward the losses of the partnership, whether capital or otherwise, according to their shares of the profits [Corp. Code § 16401(b); former Corp. Code § 15018(a)]. Further, an agreement for a division of the profits implies an agreement to also bear the losses of the enterprise [Sandberg v. Jacobson (1967) 253 Cal. App. 2d 663, 668, 61 Cal. Rptr. 436] , which may be used to rebut a contention that, because there is no provision in the parties' agreement for sharing losses, the party charged with the debts of an alleged partnership must be merely an investor in the business and therefore not liable to its creditors [Meirelles v. Good (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 40, 49, 13 Cal. Rptr. 215] . The implied agreement to share losses may also be used to aid parties claiming status as partners by virtue of an agreement that is silent regarding the division of losses [Martyn v. Leslie (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 41, 61, 290 P.2d 58] . As with the division of profits, the division of losses may be left to the agreement of the parties [Corp. Code § 16103; former Corp. Code § 15018; Sandberg v. Jacobson (1967) 253 Cal. App. 2d 663, 668, 61 Cal. Rptr. 436] .

[g] Partnership Agreement

A partnership can be formed only with the consent of the parties [Solomont v. Polk Development Co. (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 488, 497, 54 Cal. Rptr. 22] . Consequently, some kind of partnership agreement, whether express or implied, oral or written, is necessary [Leff v. Gunter (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 508, 518, 189 Cal. Rptr. 377, 658 P.2d 740] . "Partnerships by estoppel" [see Ch. 402, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners or Partnership and Third Parties] are not an exception to this rule because they involve only the treatment of persons as if they were partners based on their conduct; that conduct, however, does not actually result in the formation of a partnership.

Whether an agreement is express or implied, its provisions define the respective rights and duties of the parties within statutory limits [Corp. Code § 16103; former Corp. Code § 15018]. When interpreting partnership agreements, the courts follow the rules governing the interpretation of contracts generally [Corp. Code § 16104(a); former Corp. Code § 15005; DeSimoni v. Brusco (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 914, 916, 236 Cal. Rptr. 711] . Interpretation of a partnership agreement presents a question of law that may be decided de novo by an appellate court [Broffman v. Newman (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 252, 257, 261 Cal. Rptr. 532] . For a discussion of the role of the partnership agreement in regulating relations between partners, see § 401.14.

[h] Licensing Requirements

The need to comply with licensing statutes can present litigation issues that go to the existence of a partnership. Licensing statutes regulating certain trades and professions may require that a partnership obtain a license as an entity apart from any licenses or permits held by its members [CH & M Associates v. City of El Centro (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 399, 409, 167 Cal. Rptr. 392 ; see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 5072 (accountants), 7029.1, 7067.6-7068.2 (contractors), 8561, 8562, 8569 (structural pest control operators), 23951-23953 (on-sale liquor businesses)]. Furthermore, some professional partnerships are required to notify the appropriate regulatory board when the partnership is formed or dissolved.

The settled rule is that when the object of a statute requiring a license for the privilege of carrying on a business is to prevent improper persons from engaging in that business or to protect the public, the imposition of a penalty [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 5120, 5536, 7028, 16240] amounts to a prohibition against doing the business without a license and a contract made by an unlicensed person in violation of the statute is void [Wilson v. Steele (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 1053, 1059, 259 Cal. Rptr. 851] . The taint of illegality can affect not only the relationships between unlicensed or defectively licensed partnerships and third parties, but can also affect the contract of partnership as well. Thus, in Hooper v. Barranti [Hooper v. Barranti (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 570, 184 P.2d 688] , an ousted partner could not establish his interest under a partnership agreement that the parties, in pari delicto, knew was illegal from its inception because it contemplated operation of an on-sale liquor business without the required partnership license that under the circumstances could not have been obtained. Later decisions distinguished Hooper on its facts and carved out exceptions that indicate that the extent to which an illegal contract will be enforced will depend on the policy of the law transgressed, the kind of illegality, and the particular circumstances. For example, the fact that a partnership formed to acquire property and construct residences thereon lacks a contractor's license at the time the partnership agreement is made does not affect the validity of that agreement, because the license could be subsequently obtained or the construction work let to another contractor [McNichols v. Nelson Valley Bldg. Co. (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 266, 271, 253 P.2d 744] . Furthermore, when a business that has been illegally conducted for want of a license that could have been obtained, as distinguished from an unlawful enterprise, is voluntarily terminated, the transaction has been consummated and a plaintiff's right to share in the proceeds of the partnership business does not depend on the court's enforcement of an illegal contract [Denning v. Taber (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 253, 257, 160 P.2d 900 ; Norwood v. Judd (1949) 93 Cal. App. 2d 276, 285, 209 P.2d 24 ; Greene v. Brooks (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 161, 168-169, 45 Cal. Rptr. 99] . This rule applies with special force when the plaintiff is clearly less culpable in failing to secure a license or when the partieshave entered an agreement to divide the assets of the business after its voluntary termination [Denning v. Taber (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 253, 257, 160 P.2d 900 ; Norwood v. Judd (1949) 93 Cal. App. 2d 276, 285, 209 P.2d 24] .

A partner who performs professional services for the partnership may be required to be licensed. For example, a partner who negotiates leases of partnership property, or who performs other real estate services for the partnership, is required to be licensed as a real estate broker, because in such transactions the partner is not acting on his or her own account, but on behalf of another. A partner's failure to obtain such a license, however, does not make the partnership agreement illegal [Broffman v. Newman (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 252, 261-262, 261 Cal. Rptr. 532] .

[i] Burden of Proof

Determining whether a partnership has been created is primarily a matter of deciding whether the parties intended to do those things that would make them partners irrespective of their awareness of the legal consequences of their conduct [Westcott v. Gilman (1915) 170 Cal. 562, 569, 150 P. 777] . The burden of proving the existence of a partnership rests with the party alleging that fact [Toney v. Nolder (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 791, 796, 219 Cal. Rptr. 497] . In the absence of a written partnership agreement, proof of partnership must be by a preponderance of the evidence [Weiner v. Fleischman (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 476, 490, 286 Cal. Rptr. 40, 816 P.2d 892] . The presumptions of general application set forth in Evid. Code §§ 600-670 apply in all legal actions involving partnerships [Evid. Code § 300]

The determination of whether a partnership has been created is a mixed question of law and fact [Halperin v. Raville (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 765, 773, 222 Cal. Rptr. 350] . Appellate review is limited to a determination of whether substantial evidence supports the trial court's conclusion [Cochran v. Board of Supervisors (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 75, 81, 149 Cal. Rptr. 304] .

[2] Commencement of Partnership

In general, and absent an intention to the contrary, a partnership commences at the time the parties enter into the partnership agreement. When the parties intend that the partnership is not to come into being until some future time, or until the occurrence of a condition precedent, then the partnership is not created until the time has arrived or the condition has been satisfied [Solomont v. Polk Development Co. (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 488, 496, 54 Cal. Rptr. 22] . For example, when the parties intended that an employee's capital contribution to an existing partnership be a condition precedent to his retroactive acquisition of a partnership interest, no new partnership between the parties was created because the employee failed to make the required contribution [Hollis v. Rock Creek Pack Station (D. Nev. 1984) 594 F. Supp. 156, 160 (applying California law)].

[3] Breach of Agreement to Form Partnership

[a] Action for Damages Is Proper Remedy

Under pre-'97 Act case law, when one party breaches an agreement to form a partnership, the other party's remedy is an action at law for damages rather than one for dissolution and accounting; the latter remedy is appropriate only when the partnership has actually come into being [Braxdale v. Bange (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 399, 402, 333 P.2d 420 ; Triplett v. Triplett (1931) 117 Cal. App. 466, 469, 4 P.2d 238 ; Taylor v. Nelson (1915) 26 Cal. App. 681, 682, 147 P. 1189] . For example, an action for damages is proper when the parties agree that on the happening of a condition precedent a partnership will be formed, but one of the parties prevents that condition from happening [Barry v. Barton (1922) 189 Cal. 183, 186, 207 P. 902 ; Greene v. Vargas (1935) 7 Cal. App. 2d 127, 129, 45 P.2d 347] . The condition, however, must clearly be a condition precedent, and the failure of a partner to make the agreed contribution to the partnership after business has commenced will not necessarily mean that the partnership does not exist or that the defaulting partner has forfeited the right to an accounting [Bowen v. Velliquette (1957) 153 Cal. App. 2d 847, 851, 315 P.2d 95 ; Whitley v. Bradley (1910) 13 Cal. App. 720, 729, 110 P. 596] . Similarly, when the memorandum of a preliminary oral agreement recites the parties' intention to be bound by a later written contract, execution of that contract is not a condition precedent to the creation of the partnership when the parties indicate otherwise by performance under the oral agreement [Laughlin v. Haberfelde (1946) 72 Cal. App. 2d 780, 785, 165 P.2d 544] .

These decisions are based on contract law and appear to be good law under UPA'94.

[b] Measure of Damages

In the absence of any means of determining the value of prospective profits of the partnership business, the proper measure of damages in an action for breach of an agreement to form a partnership is the loss sustained by the plaintiff in preparing to join the partnership. This loss includes the loss of profits and any loss in value of the plaintiff's existing business [Overstreet v. Merritt (1921) 186 Cal. 494, 505-506, 200 P. 11] . The plaintiff is also entitled to recover for services performed pursuant to the agreement [Braxdale v. Bange (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 399, 403, 333 P.2d 420] .

[4] Rescission of Partnership Agreement

[a] Under Pre-'97 Act

Under the pre-'97 Act, when a partnership contract was rescinded on the ground of the fraud or misrepresentation of one of the parties to the contract, the party entitled to rescind was entitled to the following, without prejudice to any other right [former Corp. Code § 15039(a)-(c); see, e.g., Sy First Family Limited Partnership v. Cheung (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1334, 1339-1340, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 340 (in investors' action for breach of contract, fraud, and relief under Corp. Code § 15039, lien for each plaintiff against partnership's assets was imposed and general partner was ordered to indemnify each plaintiff in same amount)]:

- To a lien on, or right of retention of, the surplus of the partnership property after satisfying the partnership liabilities to third persons for any sum of money paid by him or her for the purchase of an interest in the partnership and for any capital or advances contributed by him or her.

- To stand, after all liabilities to third persons have been satisfied, in the place of the creditors of the partnership for any payments made by him or her in respect of the partnership liabilities.

- To be indemnified by the person guilty of the fraud or making the representation against all debts and liabilities of the partnership.

[b] Need for Accounting

Although decisions under the pre-'97 Act held that because the very existence of the partnership is at issue, an equitable action for accounting is not necessary when rescission is sought [Long v. Newlin (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 509, 513, 301 P.2d 271] , the foregoing remedies, with the possible exception of indemnification of the plaintiff, would seem to require an accounting because they specifically require partnership liabilities to third parties be satisfied, e.g., to determine what portion of the partnership property the plaintiff could assert a lien on. UPA'94 does not mention rescission of the partnership agreement or any remedies flowing from rescission, but it does give any partner the right to maintain an action against the partnership or another partner, with or without an accounting as to partnership business, to, among other things [Corp. Code § 16405(b)(1)-(3)]:

- Enforce the partner's rights under the partnership agreement.

- Enforce fiduciary duties each partner owes the other [see Corp. Code § 16404; see also discussion in § 401.20].

- Enforce the rights and otherwise protect the interests of the partner, including rights and interests arising independently of the partnership relation.

This grant of enforcement rights seems broad enough to include actions for rescission that were specifically sanctioned under the pre-'97 Act, and suggests that pre-'97 Act decisions permitting actions for damages by the injured partner will apply under UPA'94. Again, however, to afford complete relief it is likely that an action for accounting would be joined with the wronged partner's claim for damages.

[c] Grounds

A partnership contract is subject to rescission in the same manner and for the same causes as other contracts [Weltman v. Kaye (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 607, 613, 334 P.2d 917 ; Long v. Newlin (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 509, 512, 301 P.2d 271] . It is thus subject to rescission for fraud or mistake [see Brown v. Klein (1928) 89 Cal. App. 153, 154, 156, 264 P. 496] . Rescission of contracts, in general, is governed by Civ. Code §§ 1688-1693.

[d] Effect

The effect of rescinding a partnership agreement is that the partnership never existed, although any person holding himself or herself out as a partner is not excused from liability to creditors of the partnership [Weltman v. Kaye (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 607, 614, 334 P.2d 917] .

When a partnership agreement is rescinded on grounds of fraud, a partner may continue to use the partnership name, but the rescinding partner is entitled to compensation for any contributions that enhanced the value of that name [Neptune Society Corp. v. Longanecker (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1233, 1245-1246, 240 Cal. Rptr. 117] .

[e] Measure of Damages

When one party effectively rescinds a partnership agreement on the ground of fraudulent inducement by the other party to enter into the agreement, the rescinding party may recover any money or property owed to him or her by the other party, including sums advanced to purchase an interest in the partnership [Civ. Code § 1692; Long v. Newlin (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 509, 512-513, 301 P.2d 271] , or amounts due for the value of his or her services [Weltman v. Kaye (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 607, 614, 334 P.2d 917] .

[5] Repudiation of Partnership Agreement

[a] Action for Damages

Under pre-'97 Act decisions, the general rule that a partner may not sue his or her copartner in an action at law prior to obtaining an accounting does not apply when the copartner's wrongful act is not only breach of contract, but also is tortious and results in termination of the partnership and conversion of its assets [Boyd v. Bevilacqua (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 272, 288, 55 Cal. Rptr. 610] . Thus, when one partner excludes the other, repudiates the existence of the partnership, and converts partnership assets, the victim is permitted to sue the copartner who wrongfully caused dissolution for damages, without seeking judicial dissolution and an accounting [Corp. Code § 16405(b)(1) and former Corp. Code § 15038; see Gherman v. Colburn (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 544, 557, 140 Cal. Rptr. 330 (involving joint venture)]. The victim in such a case also has alternative remedies: the innocent partner may waive the tort or breach and sue specifically to enforce the agreement and obtain a judicial dissolution and an accounting and, if necessary, imposition of a trust on partnership or joint venture property; or the partner may sue for damages for conversion of his or her interest in the partnership assets; or he or she may sue for damages for breach of the agreement, including profits that might have been made, the same as for any other action for damages for breach of any other contract. That the victim partner may sue for damages without seeking dissolution does not mean he or she is required to; the choice of remedy is vested in the victim, not in the wrongdoing partner [Navarro v. Perron (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 797, 802, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 198 ; Gherman v. Colburn (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 544, 564, 140 Cal. Rptr. 330] . In such a case, the wronged partner can plead cumulative or inconsistent causes of action [Gherman v. Colburn (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 544, 564-565, 140 Cal. Rptr. 330] .

In addition to the remedies just described, UPA'94 permits the wronged partner to maintain an action against a partner, with or without an accounting as to partnership business, for the latter's breach of the fiduciary duties of loyalty and care [Corp. Code § 16405(b)(2)(A)]. Repudiation of the partnership agreement and conversion of the partnership assets would specifically be a breach of the duty of care, which requires partners to refrain from engaging in intentional misconduct, among other things [Corp. Code § 16404(c)].

[b] Measure of Damages

The proper measure of damages for repudiation of a partnership agreement and conversion of its assets depends on which theory of liability is applied. Thus, the appropriate measure of damages might be conversion damages pursuant to Civ. Code § 3336 [see Wilson v. Brown (1929) 96 Cal. App. 140, 143, 273 P. 847] , damages for fraud or tortious conduct generally, pursuant to Civ. Code §§ 1709 and 3333 [see Boyd v. Bevilacqua (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 272, 294-295, 55 Cal. Rptr. 610] , or damages for breach of contract pursuant to Civ. Code § 3300 [see Gherman v. Colburn (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 544, 562-563, 140 Cal. Rptr. 330] . Depending on the facts of a case of partnership repudiation, however, there may be little practical difference in the measure of damages applied [Gherman v. Colburn (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 544, 562-563, 140 Cal. Rptr. 330] . For example, the loss of prospective profits that is a natural and direct consequence of the breach of contract is a recoverable element of damages in an action for breach of contract [Nelson v. Reisner (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 161, 171, 331 P.2d 17 ; James v. Herbert (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 741, 749, 309 P.2d 91] , or in an action for tortious conduct by a copartner [Ellis v. Navarro (1943) 61 Cal. App. 2d 755, 759-760, 143 P.2d 735] .

35-401 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 401.14

§ 401.14 Role of Partnership Agreement in Regulating Relations Between Partners

[1] As Alternative to Statutory Provisions

In most cases, the partnership agreement governs relations among partners and between partners and the partnership [see Corp. Code § 16103(a); former Corp. Code § 15018]. This allows the partners to vary certain statutory default rules that apply in the absence of an agreement to the contrary.

[2] Statutory Variances Generally

Unlike the pre-'97 Act, UPA'94 provides a specific list of limitations on the partners' ability to vary by agreement the rules governing the partnership relation [see Corp. Code § 16103(b)]. In some instances UPA'94 places limits on the degree to which rights and duties may be varied, rather than giving the partners unfettered discretion to substitute rules of their own. In contrast, under the pre-'97 Act the particular statute conferring rights or imposing duties contained language such as "subject to any agreement between the partners" [see, e.g., former Corp. Code § 15019 (concerning access to partnership books)], which, if read literally, would permit certain statutory rights or duties of partners (as between themselves) to be abolished by agreement. In reality, however, the fiduciary duties of partners would dictate that only reasonable incursions on certain statutory rights and duties, e.g, the partners' right to access partnership books, could be imposed by agreement [see discussion in § 401.20 (fiduciary duties)].

[3] Variance Under Pre-'97 Act

The ability of the partners to vary certain rules of the pre-'97 Act by agreement will be dealt with in connection with the specific rights and duties, discussed in § 401.20.

[4] Variance Under UPA'94

Under UPA'94, the partnership agreement cannot do the following, among other things [Corp. Code § 16103(b)]:

- Impose unreasonable restrictions on the rights of partners under Corp. Code § 16403(b) and (c) to access books and records or to be furnished with information [see § 401.21].

- Eliminate a partner's duty of loyalty under Corp. Code § 16404(b) [see § 401.20], or Corp. Code § 16603(b)(3) (duties of dissociated partners), although the agreement may (a) establish types or categories of activities that do not violate the duty, or (b) allow, with full disclosure, for ratification of acts that would violate the duty.

- Reduce unreasonably a partner's duty of care under Corp. Code § 16404(c) [see § 401.20].

- Eliminate a partner's obligation of good faith and fair dealing under Corp. Code § 16404(d), but a partnership agreement may prescribe standards by which performance of the obligation is be measured so long as the standards are not manifestly unreasonable [see § 401.20].

- Vary the power of a partner to dissociate under Corp. Code § 16602(a) [see Ch. 403, Partnerships: Actions By and Against Dissociated Partners], except to require that the notice of dissociation be in writing.

- Vary the right of a court to expel a partner under the circumstances specified by Corp. Code § 16601(5) [see Ch. 403, Partnerships: Actions By and Against Dissociated Partners].

- Vary the rule that provides that UPA'94 governs registered limited liability partnerships with respect to (a) relations among partners and between the partners and the partnership, and (b) the partners' liability for partnership obligations [see Corp. Code § 16106(b)].

Chapter 401 PARTNERSHIPS: ACTIONS BETWEEN GENERAL PARTNERS AND PARTNERSHIP
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

35-401 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 401.15

§ 401.15 Partnership Accounts

[1] Pre-'97 Act

Former Corp. Code § 15018 contains rules governing the rights and duties of partners in relation to the partnership, which apply subject to any contrary agreement between the partners. That section provides that each partner must be repaid his or her contributions, whether by way of capital or advances to the partnership property. In addition, each partner shares equally in the profits and surplus remaining after all liabilities, including those to partners, are satisfied.

Except as provided in former Corp. Code § 15015(b), which provides an exception for partners in limited liability partnerships, each partner must also contribute towards the losses, whether of capital or otherwise, sustained by the partnership, according to his or her share in the profits [former Corp. Code § 15018(a); see former Corp. Code § 15015(b)-(e), (g) (rules governing limitation of liability of partners in limited liability partnerships); see also Wall v. Siegel (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 875, 879-880, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 102 (determination of each general partner's obligation on loan)]. In the absence of an agreement to the contrary, an equal participation in profits and losses is presumed, regardless of any inequality in amounts contributed by each partner to the partnership and regardless of whether or not a partner contributed only services to the partnership [Kovacik v. Reed (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 166, 169, 315 P.2d 314] .

The partnership, to the extent of its partnership assets, must indemnify every partner for any payments made and personal liabilities reasonably incurred by that partner in the ordinary and proper conduct of the partnership business or for the preservation of partnership business or property [former Corp. Code § 15018(b)]. A partner who, in aid of the partnership, makes any payment or advance beyond the amount of capital that he or she agreed to contribute, must be paid interest from the date of the payment or advance [former Corp. Code § 15018(c)]. A partner is entitled to interest on his or her capital contributions only from the date when repayment should have been made [former Corp. Code § 15018(d)].

[2] Under UPA'94

[a] Credits and Charges

Unless the partnership agreement provides otherwise, each partner is deemed to have an account that is subject to both of the following [Corp. Code § 16401(a)]:

- Credited with an amount equal to the money, and the value of any other property, net of liabilities, that the partner contributes to the partnership, plus the partner's share of the partnership profits.

- Charged with an amount equal to the money and the value of any other property, net of liabilities, distributed by the partnership to the partner, plus the partner's share of partnership losses.

Corp. Code § 16401(a)(2) states that the charges against a partner's account for distributions and losses are "subject to Sections 16306 and 16957," referring to the fact that partners in registered limited liability partnerships are not personally liable for partnership obligations or partnership losses unless a majority in interest of the partners agree otherwise [see Corp. Code § 16306(c)-(f)]. The purpose of the reference to Corp. Code § 16957 is not as clear since that section simply defines what an illegal distribution from a limited liability partnership is but says nothing about how it might be treated in a recipient partner's account. It does, however, provide that a cause of action with respect to an obligation to return any distribution is extinguished unless the action is brought within 4 years after the distribution is made [Corp. Code § 16957(b)]. Neither that provision, however, nor any other provision of UPA'94, sets forth who may bring an action with respect to an obligation to return a distribution or under what circumstances a recipient may be required to return it.

[b] Profits and Losses

Subject to the partnership agreement, each partner is entitled to an equal share of partnership profits and chargeable with a share of partnership losses in proportion to the partner's share of profits [Corp. Code § 16401(b)]. Again, the reference in Corp. Code § 16401(b) to partnership losses is "subject to Sections 16306 and 16957," referring to the fact that partners in registered limited liability partnerships are not personally liable for partnership obligations or partnership losses unless they and a majority in interest of the partners agree otherwise [see Corp. Code § 16306(c)-(f)]. The purpose of the reference to Corp. Code § 16957 is not as clear since that section simply deals with what an illegal distribution from a limited liability partnership is. Presumably it means that if a distribution is made of profits, that distribution is subject to Corp. Code § 16957, with whatever obligations it may impose for return of such a distribution [see, [a], above].

[c] Payments and Advances

Subject to the partnership agreement, a partner is entitled to be reimbursed for payments made and indemnified for liabilities incurred in the ordinary course of business or for the preservation of the partnership business or property [Corp. Code § 16401(c)]. Similarly, a partner is entitled to be reimbursed for advances to the partnership in excess of the capital the partner agreed to contribute [Corp. Code § 16401(d)].

Payments or advances that become partnership obligations are loans that accrue interest from the date of the payment or advance [Corp. Code § 16401(e)]. If an obligation to pay interest arises under UPA'94 and the rate is not specified, the rate is that specified in Civ. Code § 3289 [Corp. Code § 16104(b)]. Since the right to receive interest on payments and advances may be altered or eliminated by the agreement of the partners [see Corp. Code § 16103], however, a partner who makes payments on partnership real property that another partner is supposed to make will not be entitled to interest on these payments when the partnership agreement provides that no partner is entitled to interest on contributions to capital [In re Stanton (9th Cir. B.A.P. 1984) 38 B.R. 746, 753 , appeal dismissed, 766 F.2d 1283 (1985)] .

Subject to the partnership agreement, a partner is not entitled to receive remuneration for services performed for the partnership, except for reasonable compensation for services rendered in winding up the partnership business [Corp. Rptr. 186] . Under the pre-'97 Act, the exception to the "no remuneration" rule extends only to "surviving partners" [see former Corp. Code § 15018(f); see also Chazan v. Most (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 519, 523-524, 25 Cal. Rptr. 864] . The fact that one partner contributes greater skill and takes over management of the partnership business does not give rise to a right to extra compensation, absent agreement [Vangel v. Vangel (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 615, 631, 254 P.2d 919] .

Whether or not an agreement for compensation exists is a question of fact [Busick v. Stoetzl (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 736, 738-740, 70 Cal. Rptr. 581] and may be implied by a course of conduct or found in an express agreement [Broffman v. Newman (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 252, 259, 261 Cal. Rptr. 532] . For example, a partner's failure to object to the compensation of another partner can constitute an implied agreement and estoppel [Broffman v. Newman (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 252, 260, 261 Cal. Rptr. 532] .

§ 401.17 Management and Control

Subject to the partnership agreement, each partner has equal rights in the management and conduct of the partnership business [Corp. Code § 16401(f); former Corp. Code § 15018(e)], and all partners may use and possess partnership property on the partnership's behalf [Corp. Code § 16401(g)].

A difference arising as to a matter in the ordinary course of business may be decided by a majority of partners. Under the pre-'97 Act, this is subject to the proviso that no act in contravention of any partnership agreement may be rightfully done without the consent of all partners [former Corp. Code § 15018(h)]. Under UPA'94, the majority rule exceptions requiring unanimous consent are for acts outside the ordinary course of business and any amendment of the partnership agreement [Corp. Code § 16401(j)]. The partnership agreement, of course, may allocate voting power generally or with respect to specific issues. For example, a provision in a partnership agreement that vested all control, management, and direction of the partnership business in the Class A partners was held to have granted them the right to hire and fire the managing partner, and the vote of all of the partners was not required [DeSimoni v. Brusco (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 914, 916-917, 236 Cal. Rptr. 711] .

§ 401.20 Partner Fiduciary Duties

[1] Pre-'97 Act Contrasted With UPA'94

Although many cases decided under the pre-'97 Act articulate the scope of partners' fiduciary duties to one another and the partnership, the Act itself contains only passing references to these matters [see, e.g., former Corp. Code §§ 15020 (duty to disclose information affecting partnership), 15021 (duty to account for benefits derived from partnership transactions)].

UPA'94, in contrast, does define in more or less detail the fiduciary duties partners owe each other and the partnership, including the obligation of good faith and fair dealing. It also provides that the partnership agreement can modify the extent of these duties if to do so would not be manifestly unreasonable [see Corp. Code § 16103(b)(3) (modification of duty of loyalty)].

Since UPA'94's fiduciary duty rules are largely codifications of cases decided prior to its enactment, the following discussion annotates UPA'94's provisions with cases decided under the pre-'97 Act. Note, however, that the extent to which a case decided under the pre-'97 Act imposes a higher level of loyalty or care, it may be in conflict with the specific provisions of UPA'94.

[2] Duties and Obligations Owed

Under UPA'94, a partner owes the fiduciary duties of loyalty and care to the partnership and the other partners [Corp. Code § 16404(a)]. These duties, whether imposed by UPA'94 or the partnership agreement, must be discharged, or any rights exercised, consistently with the obligation of good faith and fair dealing [Corp. Code § 16404(d)]. In cases decided under the pre-'97 Act, a partner's duties to copartners were likened to the duties owed by a fiduciary. Thus, partners are deemed trustees for each other in the conduct of the partnership business, and each is required to act in the highest good faith and may not seek to obtain any advantage in partnership affairs by the slightest misconduct, misrepresentation, concealment, threat, or adverse pressure of any kind [Leff v. Gunter (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 508, 514, 189 Cal. Rptr. 377, 658 P.2d 740 (involving joint venture); Page v. Page (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 192, 197, 10 Cal. Rptr. 643, 359 P.2d 41 ; Oliker v. Gershunoff (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1288, 1305, 241 Cal. Rptr. 415 ; Wortham & Van Liew v. Superior Court (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 927, 932, 233 Cal. Rptr. 725 ; see BT-I v. Equitable Life Assurance Society (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 1406, 1411-1414, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 811 (general partner's fiduciary duty not to purchase partnership debt and foreclose out a partner cannot be contracted away in partnership agreement)]. For example, in one case a limited partnership merged into a new entity, the interests of the limited partners were cashed out, and the general partner retained an equity interest in the post-merger entity, which then sold the limited partnership assets to third parties for more than their cash-out valuation. The limited partners claimed that the general partners breached their fiduciary duties by actions that benefitted themselves at the expense of the limited partners. The court held that the claims of the limited partners were individual rather than derivative in nature; the gravamen of the claims asserted were injuries to the interests of the limited partners, and not to the interests of the partnership or the general partner [Everest Investors 8 v. McNeil Partners (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 411, 424, 429, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 31] .

The obligation of good faith and fair dealing cannot be abrogated by the partnership agreement. However, the partnership agreement may prescribe standards to measure a partner's performance of the obligation [Corp. Code § 16103(b)(5)].

A partner does not violate a duty or obligation under UPA'94 or the partnership agreement simply because the partner's conduct furthers his or her own interest [Corp. Code § 16404(e); see, e.g., Jones v. Wagner (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 466, 473-474, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669 (no breach of fiduciary duty for partner to bid on and purchase partnership real property at foreclosure sale which took place after other partners failed to fulfill their obligation to make mortgage payments on property)]. The apparent purpose of this provision [Corp. Code § 16404(e)] is to excuse partners from accounting for incidental benefits obtained in the course of partnership activities when there is no detriment to the partnership. The statute cannot be invoked to justify a partner's substantial use of partnership property at the expense of the partnership [Enea v. Superior Court (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 1559, 1566, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 513] . In addition, under pre-'97 Act case law, one partner is not liable for a breach of fiduciary duty by another partner unless the former is personally in some way at fault, either by participating in the breach of duty by the other partner through consent or otherwise, or by negligence in permitting it to occur [Kazanjian v. Rancho Estates Ltd. (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1621, 1627, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 534] .

In a case in which a partnership incorporated, and one shareholder who sold his shares to the other shareholder pursuant to a buyout agreement claimed breach of fiduciary duties relative to the sale, the court held that generally after a partnership is incorporated, the rights or obligations that partners can enforce against each other no longer exist. In the absence of a pre-incorporation agreement or evidence that the corporate form was disregarded, shareholders in a duly formed corporation operating in accordance with legal requirements do not become de facto partners, and thereby acquire fiduciary duties to each other, simply because they earn the same salary and refer to each other for convenience as partners. They have the rights and obligations of shareholders, not partners [Persson v. Smart Inventions, Inc. (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1141, 1159, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 335] .

[3] Duty of Loyalty

The duty of loyalty requires partners [Corp. Code § 16404(b)]:

- To account to the partnership and hold as trustee for it any property, profit, or benefit obtained in the conduct and winding up of partnership business or derived from the use of partnership property or information, including the appropriation of a partnership opportunity.

- To refrain from dealing with the partnership during the conduct or winding up of the business as, or on behalf of, a party having an adverse interest to the partnership.

- To refrain from competing with the partnership business prior to the partnership's dissolution.

The list of loyalty-related obligations in Corp. Code § 16404(b) is not exclusive; the statute provides that "loyalty to the partnership and the other partners includes all of" the listed obligations (emphasis added). Thus, the statute leaves further articulation of the duty of loyalty to traditional common law processes [Enea v. Superior Court (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 1559, 1565, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 513 (one partner could not occupy partnership's real property and pay below-market rent over objection of other partner)].

In cases decided under the pre-'97 Act, it was held that the fiduciary duty owed by one partner to another extends to all partnership transactions, including transactions contemplated by the partnership and constituting the object or purpose for which the partnership was formed [Leff v. Gunter (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 508, 514, 189 Cal. Rptr. 377, 658 P.2d 740 (partner seized joint venture opportunity)]. The duty of loyalty can arise even during negotiations for the partnership [Solomont v. Polk Development Co. (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 488, 495, 54 Cal. Rptr. 22] .

For a discussion of the partners' duties during the winding up of the partnership business, see Ch. 406, Partnerships: Dissolution . For a discussion of the partners' duties after a partner has dissociated, see Ch. 403, Partnerships: Actions By and Against Dissociated Partners .

[4] Modification of Duty of Loyalty

The duty of loyalty is imposed by law. It does not depend on any provision in the partnership agreement [Enea v. Superior Court (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 1559, 1566-1567, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 513] . It may not be eliminated by the partnership agreement; however, the agreement may, if not manifestly unreasonable [Corp. Code § 16103(b)(3)(A), (B)]:

- Identify specific types or categories of activities that do not violate the duty of loyalty, or

- Provide for ratification by all partners or a specified number or percentage, after full disclosure of all material facts, of acts or transactions that would violate the duty of loyalty by all or some lesser number of partners [see, e.g., Skone v. Quanco Farms (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 237, 241, 68 Cal. Rptr. 26] .

[5] Duty of Care

A partner's duty of care requires that the partner refrain from engaging in grossly negligent or reckless conduct, intentional misconduct, or a knowing violation of law in conducting partnership business or winding up the partnership [Corp. Code § 16404(c)]. This duty of care may not be unreasonably reduced by the partnership agreement [Corp. Code § 16103(b)(4)].

[6] Fiduciary Duties of Partner's Personal or Legal Representative

The duties and obligations discussed above apply to a person winding up the partnership business as the personal or legal representative of the last surviving partner as if the person were a partner [Corp. Code § 16404(g)].

35-401 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 401.21

§ 401.21 Access to Books and Records

[1] Pre-'97 Act

[a] Inspection of Partnership Books

The partnership books must be kept, subject to any agreement between the partners, at the principal place of business of the partnership. At all times every partner must have access to, and may inspect and copy, any of the partnership books [former Corp. Code § 15019; see [2][a], below (discussing pre-'97 Act decision)].

[b] Partners' Duty to Inform

On demand by any partner or legal representative of a deceased partner or partner under legal disability, partners must render true and full information of all things affecting the partnership [former Corp. Code § 15020]. Every partner must account to the partnership for any benefit, and hold as trustee for it, any profits derived by him or her without the consent of the other partners from any transaction connected with the formation, conduct, or liquidation of the partnership or from any use by him or her of partnership property [former Corp. Code § 15021(1)].

For discussion of disclosure requirements as interpreted under pre-'97 Act decisions, see [2][b], below.

[2] UPA'94

[a] Partnership's Duties

A partnership must keep its books and records, in writing or in any other form capable of being converted into clearly legible tangible form, at its chief executive office [Corp. Code § 16403(a)]. This rule is one that can be changed by the partnership agreement but cannot be changed in a way which would unreasonably restrict partners' access to books and records [see Corp. Code § 16103(b)(2)]. The partnership must provide access to its books and records to partners and their agents and attorneys. Access must also be provided to former partners and their agents and attorneys, but only as to records for the period during which they were partners. Right to access generally means providing an opportunity to inspect and copy books and records during ordinary business hours. The partnership may impose a reasonable charge, covering the cost of labor and material, for copies of documents furnished [Corp. Code § 16403(b)]. The partnership agreement may not unreasonably restrict any of the rights of access just described [Corp. Code § 16103(b)(2)].

In a case decided under the pre-'97 Act, it was held that a partner's statutory right to inspect and copy any of the partnership books may be exercised without a showing of either good cause or proper purpose [McCain v. Phoenix Resources, Inc. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 575, 579, 230 Cal. Rptr. 25] . UPA'94 does not require that a partner have or demonstrate any particular purpose for wanting access. On the other hand, the duty of loyalty set forth in Corp. Code § 16404(b) and the duty to exercise partnership rights consistently with the obligation of good faith and fair dealing probably impose some limitations on purposes for which a partner may access records and use the information obtained from them.

[b] Obligation to Furnish Information

Each partner and the partnership must provide to a partner, and to the legal representative of a deceased partner or partner under a legal disability, both of the following, which may be transmitted by electronic transmission by the partnership [Corp. Code § 16403(c); see Corp. Code § 16101(4) ("electronic transmission by the partnership" defined)]:

- Without demand, any information concerning the partnership's business and affairs, reasonably required for the proper exercise of the partner's rights and duties under the partnership agreement or UPA'94; and

- On demand, any other information concerning the partnership's business and affairs, except to the extent the demand or information demanded is unreasonable or otherwise improper under the circumstances.

This obligation to provide information cannot be unreasonably restricted by the partnership agreement [Corp. Code § 16103(b)(2)].

In cases decided under the pre-'97 Act, it was held that its disclosure requirement extends to any information in the possession of the partnership's attorney that is related to partnership business [Wortham & Van Liew v. Superior Court (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 927, 932, 233 Cal. Rptr. 725 ; McCain v. Phoenix Resources, Inc. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 575, 581, 230 Cal. Rptr. 25] . An attorney for the partnership has a fiduciary obligation to all of the partners that requires disclosure to all of them of all matters concerning the partnership [Wortham & Van Liew v. Superior Court (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 927, 931-932, 233 Cal. Rptr. 725] . For example, under Evid. Code § 962 (the joint client exception to the attorney-client privilege), an attorney for the partnership may be properly compelled to testify about information received from one partner concerning partnership transactions in an action by a second partner seeking dissolution of the partnership and an accounting. The attorney-client privilege will not bar disclosure of matters related to partnership business simply because that business was conducted through a law firm. Only matters involving purely private or personal interests of one of the partners may be privileged [Wortham & Van Liew v. Superior Court (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 927, 931-933, 233 Cal. Rptr. 725 ; McCain v. Phoenix Resources, Inc. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 575, 580-581, 230 Cal. Rptr. 25] .

§ 401.22 Continuation of Term Partnership

A partnership that is created for a definite term or particular undertaking may be continued after the expiration of the term or completion of the undertaking. If the partnership is continued and there is no express agreement to do so, the rights and duties of the partners remain the same as they were at the expiration of the term or completing of the undertaking so far as consistent with a partnership at will [Corp. Code § 16406(a); former Corp. Code § 15023(1)]. Partners who acted in the partnership business and who continue the business without settlement or dissolution are presumed to have agreed that the partnership will continue [*Corp. PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

35-401 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 401.32

§ 401.32 Decisions

[1] Action for Accounting Generally

Accounting between partners is governed by partnership agreement. Mervyn Investment Co. v. Biber (1921) 184 Cal. 637, 644, 194 P. 1037

Accounting action brought pursuant to former Corp. Code § 15021 or 15022 is governed by four year statute of limitations of Code Civ. Proc. § 343. Manok v. Fishman (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 208, 213, 107 Cal. Rptr. 266

[2] Actions Between Partners

[a] General Rule

One partner suing another must bring equitable action for accounting rather than action at law. Hosking v. Spartan Properties, Inc. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 152, 156, 79 Cal. Rptr. 893

Action for accounting required because partnership dispute ordinarily involves taking of partnership account to determine whether or not plaintiff is liable to refund more than he or she claims in action, and because in partnership transactions partner does not usually become creditor or debtor of copartner but of partnership. Long v. Newlin (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 509, 513, 301 P.2d 271

Test for whether or not partner may bring action at law against copartner is whether damages resulting from breach of partnership agreement belong exclusively to other partners and not to partnership, and whether damages can be assessed without taking account of partnership business. Long v. Newlin (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 509, 513-514, 301 P.2d 271

[b] Exceptions

Rule against actions at law inapplicable when transaction not connected with partnership business. Hosking v.

Spartan Properties, Inc. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 152, 157, 79 Cal. Rptr. 893

General rule inapplicable when very existence of partnership is in issue. Long v. Newlin (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 509, 512, 301 P.2d 271

When no complex account involving variety of partnership transactions is involved, accounting is not prerequisite to suit between partners. Van Fleet-Durkee, Inc. v. Oyster (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 739, 748, 247 P.2d 403

[c] Alternative Remedies

When partnership has been dissolved by one partner purchasing other partner's interest, without full accounting, and buying partner later discovers selling partner fraudulently hid assets or misappropriated partnership funds, purchasing partner may elect to rescind purchase and sue for accounting or affirm purchase and sue at law for damages resulting from fraud. Johnstone v. Morris (1930) 210 Cal. 580, 584, 292 P. 970

When one partner repudiates partnership and converts partnership assets, victim partner may elect between remedies of damages, on the one hand, or dissolution, liquidation of partnership assets and distribution of proceeds, on the other. Navarro v. Perron (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 797, 802, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 198

Wronged partner may plead cumulative or inconsistent causes of action by waiving tort or breach and sue specifically to enforce the agreement and obtain judicial dissolution and an accounting and, if necessary, a trust on partnership or joint venture property; or partner may sue for damages for conversion of his or her interest in the partnership assets; or partner may sue for damages for breach of agreement, including profits that might have been made. Gherman v. Colburn (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 544, 564-565, 140 Cal. Rptr. 330

Combining action for damages for fraud of partners committed against partnership with accounting and dissolution of partnership is proper when circumstances so require in order to afford full and adequate relief. Prince v. Harting (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 720, 736-737, 2 Cal. Rptr. 545

[3] Breach of Executory Agreement to Form Partnership

In absence of any means of determining value of prospective profits of partnership business, proper measure of damages in action for breach of agreement to form partnership is loss sustained by plaintiff in preparing to join partnership, including loss of profits and loss in value of plaintiff's existing business. Overstreet v. Merritt (1921) 186 Cal. 494, 505-506, 200 P. 11

Action at law permitted for breach of agreement to form partnership when its terms are not void for uncertainty or want of mutuality. Braxdale v. Bange (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 399, 402, 333 P.2d 420

In action for breach of contract to form partnership, plaintiff entitled to recover for services performed pursuant to contract. Braxdale v. Bange (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 399, 403, 333 P.2d 420

[4] Conspiracy

Partners entitled to maintain action at law against other partners for civil conspiracy. Olivet v. Frischling (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 831, 839-840, 164 Cal. Rptr. 87

When partner is deprived of possession of partnership business through conspiracy of copartner and third person, partner is permitted either to sue both copartner and third person for damages or to sue copartner alone based on breach of fiduciary relationship. Ellis v. Navarro (1943) 61 Cal. App. 2d 755, 759, 143 P.2d 735 ; Sterman v. Ziem (1936) 17 Cal. App. 2d 414, 419-420, 62 P.2d 160

[5] Damages

Loss of prospective profits that is natural and direct consequence of breach of contract is recoverable element of damages in action for breach of contract. Nelson v. Reisner (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 161, 171, 331 P.2d 17 ; James v. Herbert (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 741, 749, 309 P.2d 91 (involving joint venture)

Damages consisting of loss of anticipated profits not required to be established with certainty; showing of reasonable probability that profits would have been earned except for breach is sufficient. Nelson v. Reisner (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 161, 171-172, 331 P.2d 17 ; James v. Herbert (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 741, 749, 309 P.2d 91 (involving joint venture)

Punitive damages proper in action for conspiracy against joint venturers who excluded one joint venturer from participation in venture and profits. James v. Herbert (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 741, 749-750, 309 P.2d 91

In action by one partner against others for conspiracy and conversion of partnership property, damages are not limited to actual value of property to which plaintiff was deprived, but include prospective profits lost as consequence of wrongful conduct of defendants. Ellis v. Navarro (1943) 61 Cal. App. 2d 755, 759-760, 143 P.2d 735

Evidence of past and present profits admissible to determine compensation recoverable by plaintiff partner in action for conspiracy and conversion of partnership property by copartners. Ellis v. Navarro (1943) 61 Cal. App. 2d 755, 760, 143 P.2d 735

[6] Declaratory Relief

Action for declaratory relief to construe partnership agreement. Jacoby v. Feldman (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 432, 435-436, 441-442, 146 Cal. Rptr. 334 ; Moreno v. Jessup Buena Vista Dairy (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 438, 445, 123 Cal. Rptr. 393 ; Page v. Page (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 527, 528, 532-533, 18 Cal. Rptr. 897

[7] Evidence

Correctness of private books of one partner must be established by extrinsic proof. Riley v. Brown (1925) 72 Cal. App. 468, 474, 237 P. 833

[8] Joint Ventures

[a] Accounting

Despite failure of joint venture, defaulting party is generally entitled to accounting of property interests. Alfinito v. Sater (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 362, 377, 54 Cal. Rptr. 636

Representative of deceased party to joint venture has right to accounting on dissolution. Davis v. California Motors (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 241, 246, 166 P.2d 52

[b] Actions Between Joint Venturers

In case of joint venturers, one of whom holds note made by other to effectuate their venture, usury law does not prevent enforcement of note even though its terms would violate usury law if note had been made to memorialize loan; since note is part of transaction that is not "loan or forbearance of any money, goods or things in action" [see Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1], usury law does not apply; whether transaction is joint venture or loan is question of fact. Junkin v. Golden West Foreclosure Serv., Inc. (2010) 180 Cal. App. 4th 1150, 1155-1158, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 582 (review of facts supported conclusion that parties to promissory note were joint venturers, not lender and borrower)

Evidence supported verdict and damages for plaintiff in action against joint venturer for breach of fiduciary duty based on defendant's ouster of plaintiff from real estate development venture, with proffered compensation that was grossly inadequate in view of potential value of venture. Pellegrini v. Weiss (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 515, 524-527, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 387

Remedies of joint venturers and partners when joint venturer or partner repudiates agreement are not exclusively governed by former Corp. Code § 15038 (damages for breach of partnership agreement). Gherman v. Colburn (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 544, 557, 140 Cal. Rptr. 330

When one party to joint venture agreement has partly performed by rendering services and advancing money in furtherance of joint enterprise and other coadventurer repudiates agreement, former is permitted to sue for breach of contract, is not limited to action for dissolution and accounting, and by common count can recover value of services rendered and amount of money advanced. Mayo v. Pacific Project Consultants, Inc. (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 1013, 1019, 82 Cal. Rptr. 117

Fact that party breaching joint venture agreement did not benefit from part performance of party suing for breach is no defense to action. Mayo v. Pacific Project Consultants, Inc. (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 1013, 1019, 82 Cal. Rptr. 117

One venturer cannot sue another in law relative to joint venture transaction, but is required to resort to equitable suit for dissolution and accounting; exceptions. Hosking v. Spartan Properties, Inc. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 152, 156-157, 79 Cal. Rptr. 893

Joint venturer permitted to bring action against coventurer for breach of agreement, share of profits or losses, or contributions in excess of share, when amount to be recovered is certain and accounting is not required. Tufts v. Mann (1931) 116 Cal. App. 170, 183, 2 P.2d 500 ; Iron etc. Co. v. American Milling etc. Co. (1931) 115 Cal. App. 238, 249, 1 P.2d 1008

Existence of partnership not dependent on formal written agreement. Cochran v. Board of Supervisors (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 75, 81, 149 Cal. Rptr. 304

Intention to form partnership may be determined from the terms of the parties' agreement or from surrounding circumstances. Security Pac. Nat. Bank v. Matek (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 1071, 1075, 223 Cal. Rptr. 288 .

Partners' "community of interest" refers to either joint interest in capital, profit, and loss of the business, or to partners' right to make contracts, incur liabilities, and otherwise manage business. Moulin v. Der Zakarian (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 184, 189, 12 Cal. Rptr. 572 ; People v. Woolson (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 657, 669, 5 Cal. Rptr. 766 .

[c] Agreement for Division of Profits and Losses

Express agreement to divide profits is not prerequisite to prove existence of partnership; profit sharing is prima facie evidence of being a partner, rather than required element of definition of partnership. Holmes v. Lerner (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 442, 453-454, 457, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130

Agreement to share profits and losses is essential element of partnership. People v. Park (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 550, 564, 151 Cal. Rptr. 146

Inference of partnership from agreement to share profits must be accompanied by some evidence that agreement is in furtherance of intention to carry on a business. Bank of California v. Connolly (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 350, 364, 111 Cal. Rptr. 468

[d] Partnership Agreement

Some kind of partnership agreement, whether express or implied, oral or written, is necessary to prove partnership' existence. Leff v. Gunter (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 508, 518, 189 Cal. Rptr. 377, 658 P.2d 740

Taber (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 253, 257, 160 P.2d 900* ; Norwood v. Judd (1949) 93 Cal. App. 2d 276, 285, 209 P.2d 24

Failure of a partner to obtain license to perform partnership's work does not make partnership agreement illegal. Broffman v. Newman (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 252, 261-262, 261 Cal. Rptr. 532

[f] Burden of Proof

Whether partnership has been created depends primarily on whether parties intended to do those things that would make them partners irrespective of their awareness of legal consequences of their conduct. Westcott v. Gilman (1915) 170 Cal. 562, 569, 150 P. 777]

Burden of proving partnership existence rests with the party alleging that fact. Toney v. Nolder (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 791, 796, 219 Cal. Rptr. 497

Absent written partnership agreement, proof of partnership must be by preponderance of the evidence. Weiner v. Fleischman (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 476, 490, 286 Cal. Rptr. 40, 816 P.2d 892

Perron (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 797, 802, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 198*

When one partner excludes other, repudiates existence of partnership, and converts partnership assets, victim is permitted to sue for damages without seeking judicial dissolution and accounting. Gherman v. Colburn (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 544, 557, 140 Cal. Rptr. 330 (involving joint venture)

When joint venturer has partly performed by rendering services and advancing money in furtherance of joint enterprise, and co-venturer repudiates agreement, former can sue for breach of contract and by common count can recover value of services rendered and money advanced. Mayo v. Pacific Project Consultants, Inc. (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 1013, 1018-1019, 82 Cal. Rptr. 117

When partners exclude copartner and appropriate partnership property to their use, excluded partner may bring action for conversion and obtain personal judgment for damages against offending partners. Wilson v. Brown (1929) 96 Cal. App. 140, 143, 273 P. 847

[c] Damages

Damages for repudiation of joint venture agreement and conversion includes profits that venture could reasonably have been expected to earn during period of joint venture, computed in accordance with agreement of parties. Gherman v. Colburn (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 544, 571-572, 140 Cal. Rptr. 330

Proper measure of damages for repudiation of partnership agreement and conversion of assets depends on whether plaintiff proceeds on theory of breach of contract, conversion, or tortious conduct generally. Gherman v. Colburn (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 544, 562-563, 140 Cal. Rptr. 330

[d] Fraud

In case of repudiation of partnership or joint venture agreement and conversion of assets, fraud action seeking damages under Civ. Code §§ 1709 and 3333 is proper. Boyd v. Bevilacqua (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 272, 294-295, 55 Cal. Rptr. 610

[12] Rescission

Pursuant to former Corp. Code § 15039, arbitration award rescinded investment agreement, imposed lien for each plaintiff against partnership's assets, and ordered general partner to indemnify each plaintiff. Sy First Family Limited Partnership v. Cheung (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1334, 1339-1340, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 340

Effect of rescinding partnership agreement is that partnership has never existed, although person holding himself or herself out as partner is not excused from liability to creditors of partnership. Weltman v. Kaye (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 607, 614, 334 P.2d 917

Pursuant to former Corp. Code § 15039(c), party entitled to rescind partnership agreement is also entitled to indemnification by person guilty of fraud or misrepresentation against all partnership debts and liabilities. Long v. Newlin (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 509, 512-513, 301 P.2d 271

Absent agreement to contrary, fact that one partner contributes greater skill and takes over management of business does not entitle partner to extra compensation. Vangel v. Vangel (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 615, 631, 254 P.2d 919

Agreement providing for compensation of partner for services may be oral and either express or implied. Neilsen v. Holmes (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 315, 324, 186 P.2d 197

[b] Disclosure

Fiduciary duty of disclosure terminates on formation of contract for sale of partnership interest; that is, when selling partner accepts offer to purchase, after which matters affecting value of interest sold need not be disclosed. Stone v. Millstein (9th Cir. 1986) 804 F.2d 1434, 1437-1438 (diversity case applying California law, distinguishing Estate of Witlin (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 167, 175-176, 147 Cal. Rptr. 265, 348 P.2d 873 as involving special duties owed during dissolution and liquidation)

Attorney for partner represents all partners in partnership business; thus, joint client rule of Evid. Code § 962 is applicable to communication by one partner to attorney not made in presence of other partners. Wortham & Van Liew

v. Superior Court (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 927, 931-933, 233 Cal. Rptr. 725 ; McCain v. Phoenix Resources, Inc. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 575, 581, 230 Cal. Rptr. 25 ; see also Hecht v. State Bar (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 683, 693, 238 Cal. Rptr. 774, 739 P.2d 134 (concerning joint venturers)

Generally after incorporation of partnership, the rights or obligations that partners can enforce against each other no longer exist; without preincorporation agreement or evidence that corporate form was disregarded, shareholders in duly-formed corporation operating in accordance with legal requirements do not become de facto partners and acquire fiduciary duties to each other simply because they earn same salary and refer to each other as partners. Persson v. Smart Inventions, Inc. (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1141, 1159, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 335

Limited partners' claims that general partners breached fiduciary duties by engaging in wrongful actions related to merger transaction that benefitted general partners at expense of limited partners were individual rather than derivative in nature. Everest Investors 8 v. McNeil Partners (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 411, 424, 429, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 31

No breach of fiduciary duty occurred when partner bid on and purchased partnership real property at foreclosure sale which took place after other partners failed to fulfill their obligation to make mortgage payments on property. Jones v. Wagner (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 466, 473-474, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669

Brobeck, Phleger & Harrison (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1509, 1551, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 94*

Good faith is presumed, and, in absence of evidence of bad faith, firing managing partner is proper under provisions of partnership agreement vesting all control, management, and direction of business of partnership in Class A partners. DeSimoni v. Brusco (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 914, 916-917, 236 Cal. Rptr. 711

[d] Unfair Competition

Partner's secret competition with partnership, exploiting partnership opportunity for personal benefit, breaches fiduciary duty to copartners by unfair competition, even after partner's withdrawal from partnership. Leff v. Gunter (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 508, 513-517, 189 Cal. Rptr. 377, 658 P.2d 740 (case involved joint venture)

Partner who agrees to give personal attention to partnership business may not engage in any other business that gives partner an interest adverse to partnership or prevents partner from giving partnership all attention that would be advantageous to it. Olivet v. Frischling (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 831, 843, 164 Cal. Rptr. 87 (disapproved on other grounds by Applied Equipment Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 521, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454)

[14] Partnership Accounts

Former Corp. Code § 15018(a) controlled determination of each general partner's obligation on loan taken out by limited partnership; each was liable on losses of partnership according to respective share in profits. Wall v. Siegel (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 875, 879-880, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 102

2. On or about _____[date], in _____, California, plaintiff and defendant entered into _____ [a written or an oral] contract to carry on, as partners, a business known as _____[name of partnership], located in _____[city], _____ County,

4. Defendant made that representation _____ [knowing it to be false or with no reasonable ground for believing it to be true] and with the intent to induce plaintiff to enter into the aforementioned contract.

5. Plaintiff, at the time the representation was made by defendant, and at the time plaintiff entered into the contract in reliance on that representation, was ignorant of its falsity, and believed it to be true. In reliance on the representation, plaintiff was induced to, and did, enter into the partnership contract, and _____ [specify injury, e.g., pay consideration for his/her one-half interest to defendant in the total amount of $_____].

6. Plaintiff had no knowledge of the aforementioned injury caused to him/her by defendant until on or about _____[date], at which time plaintiff discovered the falsity of defendant's representation.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, may be used by a partner who is rescinding a partnership contract on the ground of fraudulent misrepresentation to obtain restitution of benefits conferred by him or her as a result of the contract [see Civ. Code §§ 1689(b)(1), 1692]. A partnership contract is subject to rescission in the same manner and for the same causes as other contracts, and a partner may bring an action for rescission and restitution without first seeking an accounting [Weltman v. Kaye (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 607, 613, 334 P.2d 917 ; Long v. Newlin (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 509, 512, 301 P.2d 271] . This form assumes a fact situation in which the plaintiff has bought a partnership interest and soon discovers that he or she has been deceived concerning its actual worth [see, e.g., Weltman v. Kaye (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 607, 613, 334 P.2d 917 (partnership lasts less than five months)]. The complaint here also assumes there are no issues concerning the plaintiff's liability to third parties that would require an accounting.

This form does not include a prayer for either of the following, both of which are remedies set forth in former Corp. Code § 15039 (inapplicable after January 1, 1999): (1) that the plaintiff have a lien on the surplus partnership property after creditors are satisfied; or (2) that to the extent the plaintiff has paid partnership liabilities, he or she be granted the status of a partnership creditor. These remedies would appear to be appropriate only in the context of an action for accounting to determine what partnership liabilities were incurred, by whom, and what surplus remains. This form does, however, include a prayer that the plaintiff be indemnified by the defendant against all debts and liabilities of the partnership, a remedy also included in former Corp. Code § 15039 [former Corp. Code § 15039(c)], and one that it appears could be granted without the need to determine what partnership obligations, if any, the plaintiff might be liable for. For further discussion, see § 401.13[4].

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges:

- Existence of the agreement to be rescinded (Paragraph 2).

- The misrepresentation made by defendant (Paragraph 3) [Civ. Code § 1689(b)(1); see Weltman v. Kaye (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 607, 609-610, 334 P.2d 917] .

- Defendant's intent to induce plaintiff to enter into the partnership contract (Paragraph 4) [see Civ. Code §§ 1567, 1571, 1572; South Tahoe Gas Co. v. Hofmann Land Improvement Co. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 750, 765, 102 Cal. Rptr. 286] .

- Plaintiff's reliance on the misrepresentation, to his or her damage (Paragraph 5) [see South Tahoe Gas Co. v. Hofmann Land Improvement Co. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 750, 765, 102 Cal. Rptr. 286] .

- Date that plaintiff discovered the falsity of the representation (Paragraph 6) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 337(3)].

- Plaintiff's notice of rescission and offer to restore defendant's consideration or plaintiff's intent that the service of summons of the complaint serve as that notice and offer to restore (alternative Paragraphs 7) [Civ. Code § 1691].

[4] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified also, if the action is in the superior court and is not a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial except in a limited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

[5] Venue

The superior court in the county of defendant's residence at the commencement of the action is the proper court for trial of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)].

[Plaintiff also lost profits that would have been earned by the partnership but for defendant's breach, in the sum of $_____.]

SECOND COUNT
(Breach of Fiduciary Duty)

6. Plaintiff refers to and herein incorporates Paragraphs 2-4 of the First Count.

7. By intentionally repudiating the existence of the partnership and denying plaintiff's interest in the partnership business, and by converting partnership assets to his/her own use, defendant has breached the duty of care imposed by Corporations Code Section 16404(c) to the partnership and to plaintiff.

8. As a proximate result of defendant's breach of his/her duty of care to the partnership and to plaintiff, _____ [specify damages proximately caused by breach, e.g., plaintiff suffered damage in that he/she contributed $_____ to the partnership business and he/she contributed services in management of the partnership business, with a value of $_____]. [Plaintiff also lost profits that would have been earned by the partnership but for defendant's breach, in the sum of $_____.]

THIRD COUNT
(Conversion)

9. Plaintiff refers to and herein incorporates Paragraphs 2-4 of the First Count.

10. At all times herein mentioned, and in particular on or about _____[date], plaintiff was, as a partner at the time the property was acquired by the partnership, and still is, an owner, and was, and still is, entitled to the possession of the following property: _____ [describe property, e.g., the partnership interest in real property, owned by the partnership, described as _____ (address or location)].

11. On or about _____[date], and at _____[city], _____ County, California, the above-mentioned property had a value of $_____.

14. In doing the acts herein alleged, defendant acted with oppression, fraud, and malice, and plaintiff is entitled to punitive damages.

FOURTH COUNT
(Actual Fraud)

15. Plaintiff refers to and herein incorporates Paragraphs 2-4 of the First Count, and Paragraph 14 of the Third Count.

16. By entering into the partnership agreement, defendant promised, on _____[date], that defendant and plaintiff would share equally in the ownership of the partnership business and assets and in the profits and losses of the partnership business.

17. At the time defendant made the promise to plaintiff, defendant had no intention of performing that promise.

18. The promise was made by defendant with the intent to induce plaintiff to _____ [specify, e.g., contribute $_____ and services to the partnership] from which defendant could gain profits and benefits for himself/herself.

19. Plaintiff, at the time the promise was made and at the time plaintiff took the actions herein alleged, was ignorant of defendant's secret intention not to perform and could not, in the exercise of reasonable diligence, have discovered defendant's secret intention. In reliance on defendant's promise, plaintiff _____ [specify, e.g., contributed $_____ and services to the partnership]. If plaintiff had known of defendant's actual intention, plaintiff would not have taken that action.

20. As a proximate result of defendant's fraud and the facts alleged in this complaint, plaintiff was induced to, and did, _____ [specify, e.g., pay $_____ to the partnership and contribute services to the partnership business with a value of $_____] by reason of which plaintiff has been damaged in the sum of $_____.

FIFTH COUNT
(Constructive Fraud)

21. Plaintiff refers to and herein incorporates Paragraphs 2-4 of the First Count, and Paragraph 14 of the Third Count.

22. By virtue of the partnership agreement, the relationship between plaintiff and defendant was fiduciary in nature. Defendant thereby owed plaintiff the fiduciary duties of loyalty and care, and the obligation to conduct the partnership business in good faith and fair dealing. Because plaintiff's confidence in defendant's integrity caused plaintiff to entrust defendant with the authority to act for the partnership, a confidential relationship existed at all times herein mentioned between plaintiff and defendant.

23. Defendant breached his/her fiduciary duties to plaintiff and violated the relationship of trust and confidence by excluding plaintiff from his/her interest in the partnership business and assets and by securing an advantage over plaintiff by misleading plaintiff to his/her prejudice.

24. Plaintiff placed confidence in and relied on defendant until on or about _____[date], when plaintiff discovered defendant's acts committed in breach of his/her fiduciary duties. Until that date, plaintiff had reasonably relied on defendant in view of their relationship as partners under the partnership agreement.

25. As a result of defendant's fraud as herein alleged, plaintiff has been damaged in the sum of $_____.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

[Verification if desired. See § 401.40[1] .]

The form in [1], above, is for use by a partner whose copartner has repudiated the partnership and converted the partnership assets. In such a case, the wronged partner may bring an action at law for damages for breach of the partnership agreement [Corp. Code § 16405(b)(1); former Corp. Code § 15038(b)(1)(B)]. The plaintiff has a choice of legal theories under which to seek damages: breach of contract, breach of the fiduciary duty of care [Corp. Code §§ 16404(c), 16405(b)(2)(A)] conversion, actual fraud, and constructive fraud [Navarro v. Perron (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 797, 802, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 198 ; see Gherman v. Colburn (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 544, 564-565, 140 Cal. Rptr. 330 ; Boyd v. Bevilacqua (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 272, 290, 294-295, 55 Cal. Rptr. 610 ; Wilson v. Brown (1929) 96 Cal.

App. 140, 143, 273 P. 847 ; see also the discussion in § 401.13[5]]. The plaintiff may also bring an action for dissolution and an accounting, although those remedies are not required [Gherman v. Colburn (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 544, 564-565, 140 Cal. Rptr. 330 ; see Corp. Code § 16405(b)]. If a plaintiff seeks an accounting, he or she may combine the allegations in this complaint with those found in § 401.42. For forms of complaints for dissolution and an accounting, see Ch. 406, Partnerships: Dissolution .

The Judicial Council has promulgated pleading forms that may be used for a complaint for breach of contract and fraud [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12]. These optional forms may be used in lieu of the form in [1], above.

The form in [1], above, is for use by a partner seeking a partnership accounting because he or she has been wrongfully excluded by copartners from the partnership business or possession of partnership property. The excluded partner may also seek declaratory relief as to all the partners' rights and duties with respect to the partnership business or assets. Although the complaint contains both causes of action, the plaintiff may wish to allege only one of them, depending on the facts of the case. The optional language referring the partnership agreement giving partners equal management rights (Paragraph 3) should be included if in fact the agreement does so provide [see Corp. Code § 16401(f); former Corp. Code § 15018(e) (partners have equal management rights)].

The pre-'97 Act expressly gave any wrongfully excluded partner the right to a formal accounting as to partnership affairs [former Corp. Code § 15022(a); see § 401.11[2] (other circumstances where partner entitled to accounting)]. There is no cognate provision under UPA'94, but a partner generally may enforce his or her rights under the partnership agreement by seeking legal or equitable relief, with or without an accounting [Corp. Code § 16405(b)(1)]. Moreover, UPA'94's specification of fiduciary duties owed by partners permits the excluded partner to seek the same relief under any of several theories based on allegations of breach of the duties of loyalty and care and failure to meet the obligation of good faith and fair dealing [see Corp. Code §§ 16404(b), (c), (d), 16405(b)(2)(A) (enforcement of fiduciary duties)]. For further discussion, see §§ 401.12, 401.20.

[3] Breach of Contract and Fraud

Using the allegations in § 401.41[1], counts for breach of contract and fraud could be could be added to the form in [1], above. Under both the pre-'97 Act and UPA'94, the wronged partner is given the option of seeking legal or equitable relief, with or without an accounting [Corp. Code § 16405(b); former Corp. Code § 15038(b)(1)(B); Navarro v. Perron (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 797, 802, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 198 ; Gherman v. Colburn (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 544, 564-565, 140 Cal. Rptr. 330 ; Prince v. Harting (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 720, 736-737, 2 Cal. Rptr. 545 (action for damages for fraud combined with action for dissolution and accounting)]. Note that under UPA'94 an action for accounting on dissolution will not revive any other claim for relief barred by law [Corp. Code § 16405(c)].

[4] Allegations

[a] First Count

The first cause of action alleges:

- The existence of a written or oral partnership agreement (Paragraph 2) [see Corp. Code § 16405(b)(1); former Corp. Code § 15022],

- Wrongful exclusion of plaintiff from partnership business or property by defendant(s) in violation of the partnership agreement and of the fiduciary duties owed the plaintiff (Paragraph 3) [Corp. Code § 16405(b)(1), (2)(A); former Corp. Code § 15022(a)], and

- That there has as yet been no dissolution or accounting of the partnership (Paragraph 4).

[b] Second Count

The second cause of action incorporates Paragraphs 1-4 of the first cause of action and also alleges:

- In an optional paragraph, facts showing how the controversy has arisen (Paragraph 6),

- Existence and nature of actual controversy between the parties (Paragraph 7) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060],

- The specific declaratory relief sought by plaintiff (Paragraph 8) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]; and

- Why a judicial declaration is necessary and appropriate at the time of the action (Paragraph 9) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1061].

[5] Statute of Limitations for Accounting

An accounting action brought pursuant to Corp. Code § 16405(b) or former Corp. Code § 15021 or 15022 is governed by the statute of limitations found in Code Civ. Proc. § 343 [Manok v. Fishman (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 208, 213, 107 Cal. Rptr. 266 ; see Corp. Code § 16405(c)]. That section provides that the action must be commenced within four years after the cause of action has accrued.

[6] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446], and will also preclude a general denial [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

[7] Venue

In an action for accounting and declaratory relief, the proper court is the superior court either in the county where the defendant(s) or some of them reside, where the contract was to be performed, or where the contract was entered into [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use in a complaint for accounting, such as the one in § 401.42[1], by a partner when his or her copartner or copartners received a benefit from a partnership transaction or partnership property without his or her consent [former *Corp. [2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use in a complaint for accounting, such as the one in § 401.42[1], by a partner when his or her copartner(s) have taken a partnership opportunity for themselves prior to the partnership's dissolution. This allegation may be inserted in place of Paragraph 3 in § 401.42[1]. Under UPA'94 and case law construing the pre-'97 Act, it is a breach of a partner's fiduciary duty to copartners to compete with the partnership prior to its dissolution [Corp. Code § 16404(b)(3); former Corp. Code § 15021(1); Leff v. Gunter (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 508, 513-517, 189 Cal. Rptr. 377, 658 P.2d 740 (involving joint venture)].

For a discussion of the duty of partners to account to the partnership for any profits obtained without the consent of the other partners, see § 401.11[1]. The fiduciary duties of partners are discussed in § 401.20. [1] FORM Allegation for Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10] By One Joint Venturer Against Another

2. On or about _____[date], at _____[city], _____ County, California, plaintiff and defendant formed a joint venture by _____ [an oral or a written] agreement, for the purpose of _____ [specify, e.g., building a residence]. [A copy of the agreement is attached as Exhibit _____ and made a part hereof.]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a joint venturer in an action against another joint venturer, to allege the existence of the joint venture, by agreement, between the parties. Actions between joint venturers are governed by the same law governing actions between partners [see Orlopp v. Willardson Co. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 750, 754, 43 Cal. Rptr. 125 ; Milton Kauffman, Inc. v. Superior Court (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 8, 17, 210 P.2d 88] . Therefore, the foregoing allegation may be substituted for the allegation of the existence of a partnership in any of the complaint forms in this chapter, Ch. 402, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners or Partnership and Third Parties , Ch. 403, Partnerships: Actions By and Against Dissociated Partners, or Ch. 406, Partnerships: Dissolution .

[3] Need to Allege Joint Venture

Although it would be appropriate to specifically allege the existence of a joint venture, failure to do so is not fatal to the complaint. In an action between partners or joint venturers, if an agreement is alleged, it is unnecessary to specifically refer to it as a joint venture or a partnership, as the case may be [see Nelson v. Abraham (1947) 29 Cal. 2d 745, 749-750, 177 P.2d 931] . When a complaint alleges a partnership, relief will not be denied if proof establishes a joint venture instead [Hupfeld v. Wadley (1948) 89 Cal. App. 2d 171, 174, 200 P.2d 564] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 402.10 Governing Statutes

UPA'94 statutes governing relations of partners to third parties dealing with the partnership generally are contained in Corp. Code §§ 16301-16308. Comparable statutes for the pre-'97 Act generally are contained in former Corp. Code §§ 15009-15017. Statutes setting forth the requirements for fictitious names generally are contained in Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17910-17923.

Since January 1, 1999, all partnerships have been governed by the Uniform Partnership Act of 1994 (UPA'94) [Corp. Code § 16111(b); see Corp. Code § 16100 et seq.], regardless of when they were formed. Prior to that date, partnerships formed before January 1, 1997, were governed by the earlier of (1) the date when they elected to be governed by the UPA'94, or (2) January 1, 1999 [Corp. Code § 16111]. As of January 1, 1999, the pre-1997 version of the UPA (pre-'97 Act) was repealed [Stats. 1996 ch. 1003, §§ 1.2, 18, operative Jan. 1, 1999]. Repeal of the pre-'97 Act, however, did not affect actions or proceedings commenced, or rights accrued, prior to the effective date of the UPA'94 [Corp. Code § 16112]. For that reason, discussion of the pre-'97 Act has been retained in the partnership coverage in this publication. All references to Corp. Code §§ 15001-15045 in this chapter are to the repealed provisions of the pre-'97 Act. For more detailed discussion see §§ 400.10, 400.11 in Ch. 400, Partnerships: Governing Statutes.

Chapter 402 PARTNERSHIPS: ACTIONS BETWEEN GENERAL PARTNERS OR PARTNERSHIP AND THIRD PARTIES

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

35-402 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 402.11

§ 402.11 Suits by Partnerships

[1] In Partnership Name

UPA'94 specifically provides that a partnership may bring an action in the partnership name [Corp. Code § 16307(a)]. Although not provided for under the pre-'97 Act, the UPA'94 provision is declarative of Code Civ. Proc. § 369.5(a), which allows a partnership to sue in the name it has assumed or by which it is known.

A partnership that is transacting business under a fictitious business name, however, may not maintain any action on or on account of any contract made, or transaction had, in the fictitious business name in any state court until a fictitious business name statement has been executed, filed, and published [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17918].

[2] Fictitious Business Name

The Business and Professions Code specifies requirements for executing, filing with the Secretary of State, and publishing the fictitious business name statement [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17910-17917]. The statement expires every five years, or on a change in certain facts set forth in the statement, or when a statement of abandonment of the fictitious business name is filed [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17920]. A general partner who withdraws from the partnership may file a statement of withdrawal from the partnership operating under a fictitious business name [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17923(a)].

[3] Failure to Comply With Fictitious Business Name Requirements

For a partnership, other than a limited partnership that has filed a certificate of limited partnership with the California Secretary of State under Corp. Code §§ 15621 or 15902.01, a foreign limited partnership that has filed an application for registration with the California Secretary of State under Corp. Code §§ 15692 or 15902.02, a registered limited liability partnership that has filed a registration under Corp. Code § 16953 or former Corp. Code § 15049, or a foreign limited liability partnership that has filed an application for registration under Corp. Code § 16959 or former Corp. Code § 15055, a fictitious business name is a name that does not include the surname of each general partner or a name that suggests the existence of additional owners, as described in Corp. Code §§ 17900(c) (discussed below) and 17901

("general partner" defined) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900(b)(2)]. For a limited partnership that has filed a certificate of limited partnership under Corp. Code §§ 15621 or 15902.01, or a foreign limited partnership that has filed an application for registration under Corp. Code §§ 15692 or 15902.02, a fictitious business name is any name other than the name of the limited partnership as on file with the California Secretary of State [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900(b)(4)]. A name that suggests the existence of additional owners is one that includes such words as "Company," "& Company," "& Son," "& Sons," "& Associates," "Brothers," and the like, but not words that merely describe the business being conducted [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900(c)].

The penalty for a partnership's failure to comply with the fictitious business name requirements is that the partnership may not, as plaintiff or cross complainant, maintain an action on any contract or transaction made under the fictitious business name [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17918; Vance v. Gilbert (1918) 178 Cal. 574, 578, 174 P. 42 ; see Hixson v. Boren (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 547, 554, 301 P.2d 615 (decided under former fictitious name statutes)]. A partnership may, however, maintain a tort action without filing a fictitious business name statement [Thompson v. Byers (1931) 116 Cal. App. 214, 216-217, 2 P.2d 496 (decided under former fictitious name statutes)]. In addition, a noncomplying partnership may still be sued as a defendant [Vance v. Gilbert (1918) 178 Cal. 574, 578, 174 P. 42] .

A partnership's noncompliance with the fictitious business name requirements is not a jurisdictional defect [Tyrone v. Kelley (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 1, 13-14, 106 Cal. Rptr. 761, 507 P.2d 65] . It is merely a matter of abatement, and compliance is sufficient if it occurs at any time before the trial [Tyrone v. Kelley (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 1, 14, 106 Cal. Rptr. 761 ; Rudneck v. Southern California M. & R. Co. (1920) 184 Cal. 274, 281-282, 193 P. 775 (decided under former fictitious name statutes); Kadota Fig Asso. of Producers v. Case-Swayne Co. (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 796, 804-805, 167 P.2d 518 (decided under former fictitious name statutes)].

§ 402.12 Suits Against Partnership and Partners

[1] Naming the Partnership and Partners as Defendants

[a] Partnership Name

A partnership may be sued in the partnership name, a name that it has assumed, or the name by which it is known [Corp. Code § 16307(a); Code Civ. Proc. § 369.5(a)].To acquire jurisdiction over a partnership, the partnership entity must be designated as the defendant; naming only the individual partners in the complaint is not sufficient [Epstein v. Frank (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 111, 119-120, 177 Cal. Rptr. 831 ; Hildebrand v. Stonecrest Corp. (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 158, 169, 344 P.2d 378 ; Potts v. Whitson (1942) 52 Cal. App. 2d 199, 207, 125 P.2d 947] .

[b] Joining Individual Partners

Any member of a partnership, other than a registered limited liability partnership [see Corp. Code § 16306(g); see also § 402.22 for further discussion of registered limited liability partnerships], may be joined as a party in an action against the partnership, and a personal judgment against that partner may be obtained [Corp. Code § 16307(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 369.5(b)]. Under UPA'94, a judgment against a partnership is not a judgment against a partner. Furthermore, a judgment against a partnership may not be satisfied from a partner's assets unless there is also a judgment against the partner [Corp. Code § 16307(c)]. Similarly, under case law decided before UPA'94, if an individual partner was not named as a defendant, he or she was liable only to the extent of his or her interest in partnership property, but not as an individual [Fazzi v. Peters (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 590, 595-598, 68 Cal. Rptr. 170, 440 P.2d 242 ; Promotus Enterprises, Inc. v. Jiminez (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 560, 566-567, 98 Cal. Rptr. 571] .

[2] Service

[a] Partnership

The statement of partnership authority may designate an individual or a corporation as agent for service of process [Corp. Code § 16309(a); see Corp. Code § 16310]. Certain foreign partnerships are required to file a statement with the Secretary of State designating an agent for service of process [Corp. Code § 15800]. In addition, a limited partnership formed on or after July 1, 1984, must maintain an agent in California for service of process and designate the name of the agent in the certificate of limited partnership [Corp. Code §§ 15614(b), 15621(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code §§ 15901.14(a)(2), 15902.01(a)(3) (ULPA '08)]. If a partnership does not have a designated agent for service of process, however, service on the partners is adequate service on the partnership [Vance v. Gilbert (1918) 178 Cal. 574, 576-577, 174 P. 42] .

For additional discussion of service of summons on a partnership and service requirements generally, as well as forms for service of summons, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[b] Individual Partners

Service must be made on at partner individually, regardless of whether or not the partner was served on behalf of the partnership, in order to obtain a personal judgment against that partner [see Code Civ. Proc. § 369.5(b); Dillard v. McKnight (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 209, 215, 209 P.2d 387] . If service of process is made on a partner individually, a judgment of personal liability may be obtained whether that liability is joint, joint and several, or several [Code Civ. Proc. § 369.5(b)].

[3] Venue

If an unincorporated association has filed a statement with the Secretary of State pursuant to statute, designating its principal office in California, the proper county for trial of an action against the association is the same as it would be for a corporation [Code Civ. Proc. § 395.2]. Subject to the court's power to change the place of trial, a corporation may be sued in the county where the contract is made or is to be performed, or where the obligation or liability arises, or the breach occurs, or in the county where the principal place of business of such corporation is situated [Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5]. The county of the partnership's principal place of business is the county of the principal office listed in the filed statement [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395.2].

When a plaintiff sues the members of an association under the association's common name and seeks to make an individual member a party to the action regardless of the liability of the association, the action must be transferred to the county of residence of one of the defendants, either the association or an individual member, if the individual member so insists [Carruth v. Superior Court (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 215, 221, 145 Cal. Rptr. 344 ; Mosby v. Superior Court (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 219, 226, 117 Cal. Rptr. 588] .

Chapter 402 PARTNERSHIPS: ACTIONS BETWEEN GENERAL PARTNERS OR PARTNERSHIP AND THIRD PARTIES

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

35-402 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 402.13

§ 402.13 Partners' Relation to Third Parties Dealing With Partnership

[1] Partner as Agent

[a] Authority to Bind Partnership

Each partner is an agent of the partnership for purpose of the partnership business, subject to the effect of a statement of partnership authority [Corp. Code § 16301(1); see former Corp. Code § 15009; see [3], below]. The acts of a partner for apparently carrying on the ordinary course of business bind the partnership unless the partner had no authority to act in a particular matter and the person with whom the partner was dealing knew or received notification [see Corp. Code § 16102 (knowledge and notice construed)] that the partner lacked authority [Corp. Code § 16301(1); see former Corp. Code § 15009(1); Security Pac. Nat. Bank v. Matek (1985), 175 Cal. App. 3d 1071, 1076, 223 Cal. Rptr. 288 ; see also Tsakos Shipping & Trading, S.A. v. Juniper Garden Town Homes, Ltd. (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 74, 91, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 585 , describing the agency powers of a general partnership in the context of the applicability of pre-'97 Act to a limited partnership].

The effect of this statutory imposition of agency is that a partner, without more, has authority to bind the partnership with respect to acts for apparently carrying on its business in the ordinary course without a showing of express authority, either oral or written, from the other members of the partnership [Ellis v. Mihelis (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 206, 217, 32 Cal. Rptr. 415, 384 P.2d 7] . Thus, when a partner's conduct is limited to matters apparently within the ordinary course of the partnership business, the partner can bind the other partners without obtaining their written consent [Ellis v. Mihelis (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 206, 218, 32 Cal. Rptr. 415, 384 P.2d 7 ; Owens Palos VerdesMonaco (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 855, 865, 191 Cal. Rptr. 381] .

[b] Scope of Partnership Business

The apparent scope of the partnership business primarily depends on the conduct of the partnership and its partners and what they cause third parties to believe about the partners' authority [Blackmon v. Hale (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 548, 557, 83 Cal. Rptr. 194, 463 P.2d 418 ; Owens v. Palos Verdes Monaco (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 855, 865, 191 Cal. Rptr. 381] . Ostensible agency or acts within the scope of the partnership business are presumed when the business done by the supposed agent, so far as open to the observation of third parties, is consistent with the existence of an agency, and when, as to the transaction in question, the third party was justified in believing that an agency existed [Blackmon v. Hale (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 548, 557, 83 Cal. Rptr. 194, 463 P.2d 418] . For example, when the nature of a partnership business implies borrowing money to accommodate necessities of the business, a partner has the authority to borrow and binds the partnership in so doing even if the partner signs the loan documents as an individual, if the partner has told the lender that the loan is needed for the partnership business and the lender understands that the partner is borrowing for that purpose [Security Pac. Nat. Bank v. Matek (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 1071, 1076-1077, 223 Cal. Rptr. 288] . Similarly, when two attorneys practiced law in a partnership under both of their names and held themselves out to the public as partners, both partners were liable to a client for misappropriation of that client's funds by one of the partners [Blackmon v. Hale (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 548, 558, 83 Cal. Rptr. 194, 463 P.2d 418] . In such a case, public policy dictates that a partnership must inform those who deal with its members in the course of its business of any special restrictions on a particular partner's authority because a person dealing with a partnership is usually in no position to know of special agreements between the partners and thus cannot be charged with knowledge of these agreements absent specific notice [Blackmon v. Hale (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 548, 558, 83 Cal. Rptr. 194, 463 P.2d 418 ; but see Corp. Code § 16303(e) (in certain situations third party deemed to know of limitations on partner authority contained in recorded statement of partnership authority)].

If the act of a partner is within the apparent scope of the partner's authority, an objecting copartner has the burden of proving both the acting partner's lack of authority and knowledge of this lack of authority on the part of the person with whom the acting partner dealt [Barton v. Ludy (1938) 11 Cal. 2d 1, 3, 76 P.2d 654] .

[c] Limitation on Authority

A partner is not the agent of the partnership, and the partner's acts do not bind the partnership, if the acts are not for carrying on the ordinary course of the partnership business or business of the kind carried on by the partnership [Corp. Code § 16301(2); see former Corp. Code § 15009(2)]. Thus, a partner, without the consent of all other partners, has no authority to do any act destructive of the partnership or not apparently done for the purpose of carrying on the partnership in the usual manner [Milazo v. Gulf Ins. Co. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1528, 1538, 274 Cal. Rptr. 632] . In one case, a court refused to enforce a contract for the sale of all partnership assets that would make it impossible for the partnership to continue, without the consent of all the partners to the sale, even when the partnership agreement provided that such a sale could be approved by less than all of the partners [Patel v. Patel (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 6, 9-10, 260 Cal. Rptr. 255] .

[d] Partner Acts May Be Authorized

The acts of a partner outside the ordinary course of partnership business may bind the partnership if the other partners authorize those acts [Corp. Code § 16301(2); see former Corp. Code § 15009(2)].

[e] Wrongful Acts

A partnership is liable for loss or injury caused to a person, or for a penalty incurred, as a result of a wrongful act or omission, or other actionable conduct, of a partner acting in the ordinary course of partnership business or with the authority of the partnership [Corp. Code § 16305(a); see former Corp. Code § 15013]. The principle of liability is the same as that applicable to a principal and agent [Madsen v. Cawthorne (1938) 30 Cal. App. 2d 124, 126, 85 P.2d 909] . Similarly, a partnership is liable for any loss resulting from the misapplication of any money or property received by a partner acting in the course of the partnership business or with authority of the partnership [Corp. Code § 16305(b); see former Corp. Code § 15014] However, a partnership may be relieved from liability for the wrongs of any of its partners acting individually if the third party with whom the partner is dealing knows it is dealing with the partner in an individual capacity [Blackmon v. Hale (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 548, 557, 83 Cal. Rptr. 194, 463 P.2d 418] .

[2] Transfers of Partnership Property

[a] Authorized Transfers

A partner may authorize a transfer of property if acting as an agent for the partnership or if the partnership is otherwise bound by the partner's acts [see [1], above]. The method of authorized transfer depends on how the property is held. Partnership property may be held in the partnership name, in a partner's name with an indication of the partner's status as a partner or of the existence of the partnership, or solely in the a partner's name with no reference to the partner's status or the existence of the partnership. In the first instance, a partner may transfer property by signing a transfer instrument in the partnership's name [Corp. Code § 16302(a)(1) (UPA'94 applies to all property); see former Corp. Code § 15010(1) (pre-'97 Act applied to real property conveyances)]. In the second and third instances, a partner may transfer property by signing a transfer instrument in the partner's name [Corp. Code § 16302(a)(2), (3); former Corp. Code § 15010(2),(3)].

If one person holds all partners' interest in the partnership, all partnership property vests in that person. That person may execute a document in the name of the partnership to evidence vesting of the property in that person and may file or record the document [Corp. Code § 16302(d); see former Corp. Code § 15010(5)].

[b] Recovering Property From Unauthorized Transfers

A partnership may recover its property from a transferee only if it proves that theperson who transferred it was not an agent of the partnership and that the partnership was not bound by the person's acts [see [1] (partner as agent of partnership), above, and [3], below (effect of partnership statement on authorized real property transfers)]. In addition, the partnership must prove either that a subsequent transferee for value knew or received notification that the person who signed the transfer instrument lacked authority to bind the partnership or, as to a transferee for value, when the property was held solely in the name of the partner with no indication of the partner's status or the existence of the partnership, that the transferee knew or received notification that the property was partnership property and that the person who signed the transfer instrument lacked authority to bind the partnership [Corp. Code § 16302(b); see former Corp. Code § 15010(3)].

A partnership may not recover partnership property from a subsequent transferee if the partnership would not meet the above rule to recover property from an earlier transferee [Corp. Code § 16302(c); see former Corp. Code § 15010(3)].

Under the pre-'97 Act, a partnership could not recover real property sold by a contract executed by fewer than all of the partners when the partnership was in the business of buying and selling real estate and the property offered by the contract was part of the stock held for sale, because the sale was in the ordinary course of partnership business [Ellis v. Mihelis (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 206, 218, 32 Cal. Rptr. 415, 384 P.2d 7 ; Patel v. Patel (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 6, 9, 260 Cal. Rptr. 255 ; Owens v. Palos Verdes Monaco (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 855, 865, 191 Cal. Rptr. 381 ; see [1], above; but see Corp. Code § 16303(e) (third party deemed to know of limitation on partner's authority to transfer real property if certified copy of partnership statement of authority is recorded in county recorder's office)].

[3] Statement of Partnership Authority

[a] Effect

A statement of partnership authority under UPA'94 may protect third parties dealing with partners in a partnership, and also protect the partnership and partners against liability from the unauthorized acts of partners, by giving notice of the authority of partners in the partnership. Except as to transfers of real property, third parties without notice to the contrary may rely conclusively on a filed statement if it is uncontradicted by later filed statements. Third parties who purchase real property held in the name of the partnership without knowledge to the contrary may conclusively rely on a filed statement that is not limited by another filed statement, and are deemed to know of any limitations on the authority of a partner to act if the statement of partnership authority is on record in the recording office [Corp. Code §

16303(d)(1), (e); see former Corp. Code § 15010.7]. However, UPA'94 specifically provides that third parties are not deemed to know of a limitation on the authority of a partner because the limitation is contained in a filed statement, except to the extent UPA'94 so provides [Corp. Code § 16303(f)].

[b] Specify Partner Authority or Limitations on Authority

A statement of partnership authority may be used to specify the authority, or limitations on the authority, of some or all of the partners to enter into transactions on behalf of the partnership, and any other matter [Corp. Code § 16303(a)(2); see former Corp. Code § 15010.7 (pre-'97 Act applied only to real property)]. The statement's effect on dealings between third parties and the partnership and individual partners depends on the extent to which the third parties have notice and knowledge of the statement [see Corp. Code § 16102 (knowledge and notice construed)].

[c] Real Property

A grant of authority to transfer real property held in the name of a partnership contained in a certified copy of a filed statement of partnership authority recorded in the office of the county recorder where the real property is located, is conclusive in favor of a person who gives value without knowledge to the contrary, as long as and to the extent that a certified copy of a filed statement containing a limitation on that authority is not then of record in that office. The recording in that office of a certified copy of a filed cancellation of a limitation on authority revives the previous grant of authority [Corp. Code § 16303(d)(2); see former Corp. Code § 15010.7; see also Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. v. Superior Court (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 337, 345-348, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 713 (interpreting former Corp. Code § 15010.5, the predecessor statute under former UPA)]. A third party is deemed to know of a limitation on the authority of a partner to transfer real property held in the name of the partnership if a certified copy of the filed statement containing the limitation on authority is recorded in the county recorder's office where the real property is located [Corp. Code § 16303(e); see former Corp. Code § 15010.7].

[d] Property Other Than Real Property

A third person dealing with a partner on behalf of a partnership may rely conclusively on a grant of authority in a filed statement of partnership authority for all transfers for value other than transfers of real estate with the following exceptions [Corp. Code § 16303(d)(1) (UPA'94 only, no comparable provision under pre-'97 Act)]:

- If there was a subsequent statement on file that limited the authority granted to the partner (a filed cancellation of a limitation revives a previous grant of authority); or

- If the third party had knowledge that the partner was not authorized to take the actions prescribed in the statement.

[4] Statement of Denial

Under UPA'94, a partner or third person named as a partner in a statement of partnership authority may file a statement of denial to deny the partner's authority or status as a partner [Corp. Code § 16304]. There was no comparable provision under the pre-'97 Act.

A partnership is liable for loss or injury caused to a person, or for a penalty incurred for the wrongful act or omission, or other actionable conduct of a partner acting in the ordinary course of the partnership business or with the authority of the partnership[Corp. Code § 16305(a); former Corp. Code § 15013]. Chapter 402 PARTNERSHIPS: ACTIONS BETWEEN GENERAL PARTNERS OR PARTNERSHIP AND THIRD PARTIES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

35-402 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 402.15

§ 402.15 Partner Liability for Partnership Obligations

[1] Basic Rule

Under UPA'94, partners are jointly and severally liable for all partnership obligations unless otherwise agreed by the claimant or provided by law [Corp. Code § 16306(a)]. The UPA'94 joint and several liability differs from the pre-'97 Act, under which partners were jointly and severally liable only for tort liabilities and only were jointly liable for other obligations [former Corp. Code § 15015(a)(1), (2)].

[2] Newly-Admitted Partners

Under UPA'94, a newly admitted partner is not personally liable for partnership obligations incurred before the partner's admission to the partnership [Corp. Code § 16306(b)]. Under the pre-'97 Act, a newly-admitted partner was liable for all obligations of the partnership arising before admission as though he or she were a partner when the obligation arose. However, under the pre-'97 Act, the liability for the partnership obligations could be satisfied only from partnership property [former Corp. Code § 15017].

[3] Applications of Partner Liability

Under the pre-'97 Act, which had the same standard of liability as UPA'94 with respect to tort liabilities, all partners in a partnership have been found liable for any injury to an innocent third party occasioned by the fraud of any of the partners acting within the scope of their authority in a partnership transaction with the party, whether or not the partners knew of the fraud [Stout v. Turney (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 718, 723, n.6, 150 Cal. Rptr. 637, 586 P.2d 1228 ; Zemelman v. Boston Ins. Co. (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 15, 18, 84 Cal. Rptr. 206 ; Grant v. Weatherholt (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 34, 46, 266 P.2d 185] .

An incident of a partner's liability for debts and obligations of the partnership is that, at least under some circumstances, a partner may be bound individually by agreements of the partnership. For example, a general partner of a limited partnership was held bound by an agreement of the partnership to arbitrate disputes [Keller Construction Co. v. Kashani (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 222, 228, 269 Cal. Rptr. 259] . The partnership had entered into a contract that required all disputes to be settled by arbitration. A dispute arose and the other party commenced an arbitration proceeding against the partnership and its sole general partner, who had signed the contract on behalf of the partnership. The court held that the arbitration provision obligated the partner as well as the partnership and confirmed an arbitration award.

Partners need not be separately assessed for a partnership tax debt for which they are secondarily liable in order for an extended statute of limitations for collection [26 U.S.C. § 6502] to apply to them. In a case in which the IRS timely assessed unpaid employment taxes against a partnership that never satisfied the debt, the IRS filed a proof of claim for those taxes in the general partners' Chapter 13 petitions under the Bankruptcy Code. The partners argued that the assessment extended the statute of limitations only against the partnership; the IRS had not separately assessed the general partners within the limitations period. The U.S. Supreme Court held that because the partnership was only relevant taxpayer for purposes of the assessment and collection statutes, proper assessment of the tax against the partnership sufficed to extend the statute of limitations for collection of the tax from the general partners, who were liable for the payment of the partnership's debts. Timely assessment against the partnership was sufficient to extend the statute of limitations to collect the tax in a judicial proceeding, whether from the partnership itself or from those liable for its debts [United States v. Galletti (2004) 541 U.S. 114, 123, 124 S.Ct. 1548, 158 L. Ed. 2d 279] .

Partners of a partnership that has filed a Chapter 11 petition under the Bankruptcy Code [11 U.S.C. §§ 1101 et seq.] continue to incur individual liability for post-petition debts of the partnership [In re Safren (Bankr. S.D. Cal. 1986) 65 B.R. 566, 572] .

[4] Effect of Leaving the Partnership

UPA'94 specifically provides that dissociating from or leaving a partnership does not of itself discharge a partner's liability for partnership obligations incurred before the dissociation [Corp. Code § 16703; see Alioto v. U.S. (N.D. Cal. 1984) 593 F. Supp. 1402, 1413 (decided under pre-'97 Act, which had no specific provision); see also Ch. 403, Partnerships: Actions By and Against Dissociated Partners].

A partner who withdraws may be liable for subsequent partnership obligations to third parties having no knowledge of the withdrawal [Marsh Wall Products, Inc. v. Henry Marcus Building Specialties (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 371, 379, 328 P.2d 259] , but UPA'94 clarifies that the failure to amend a partnership statement of authority or file a statement of dissociation after a partner dissociates may not be used to hold a dissociating partner liable as a partner [Corp. Code § 16308(d); see § 402.18, below, for further discussion of how a person who is not a partner may be held liable as a partner].

[5] Effect of Partner Agreements on Liability

An agreement between general partners that neither will be liable for the others' debts [Gardiner v. Gaither (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 607, 617, 329 P.2d 22] or that liability will be limited to the amount of their original contributions [McClung v. Saito (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 143, 150, 84 Cal. Rptr. 44] cannot change their liability to third persons. Although joint obligors may seek contribution among themselves [Civ. Code § 1432; see Corp. Code § 16401(c)], each partner is liable for the entire amount of the debt [Webster v. San Joaquin Fruit etc. Assn. (1916) 32 Cal. App. 264, 265, 162 P. 654 ; Brazil v. Azevedo (1916) 32 Cal. App. 364, 368, 162 P. 1049] . Thus, in an action on a joint partnership obligation a court may render a several judgment against thosepartners served, although when all partners are served a joint judgment is proper [Merchants Nat. Bank v. Clark-Parker Co. (1932) 215 Cal. 296, 299, 9 P.2d 826 ; but see De Martini v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1949) 90 Cal. App. 2d 139, 151, 202 P.2d 828 (1949) (several judgments may be had against partners on a joint liability for worker's compensation if all partners are parties to the action)].

[6] Insurance and Indemnity

Although a partner is liable for the wrongful acts of copartners committed in the ordinary course of business, a partner may be insured against that liability [American States Ins. Co. v. Borbor (9th Cir. [Cal.] 1987) 826 F.2d 888, 892-893] . Thus, a comprehensive liability policy insuring all partners against any claims arising out of their operation of the partnership business will cover a partner for any claims arising out of the wrongful acts of another partner, as long as the partner did not encourage, aid, or abet the partner who committed the wrongful acts [American States Ins. Co v. Borbor (9th Cir. [Cal.] 1987) 826 F.2d 888, 892-895] . Furthermore, while all partners are jointly liable to third parties for the wrongful acts of any partner, an innocent partner is entitled to indemnity from the partner who committed the wrong without the innocent partner's knowledge or authorization [In re Flick (Bankr. S.D. Cal. 1987) 75 B.R. 204, 206] .

§ 402.16 Fraud and Misrepresentation

All partners are jointly and severally liable for the fraud of one of the partners in contracts relating to the partnership, regardless of whether they knew of the fraud [Stewart v. Levy (1868) 36 Cal. 159, 165 ; Pearson v. Norton (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 1, 14-15, 40 Cal. Rptr. 634 ; Grant v. Weatherholt (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 34, 46, 266 P.2d 185 ; B.F. Goodrich Co. v. Naples (S.D. [Cal] 1954) 121 F. Supp. 345, 353] , and even though the object of the partner in doing the fraudulent act was personal enrichment [Wagner v. Shapona (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 451, 457, 267 P.2d 378 , disapproved on other grounds in Neff v. Ernst (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 628, 311 P.2d 849] . Thus, a partner innocent of making fraudulent insurance claims will nevertheless be precluded from receiving any portion of the proceeds of fire policies insuring the firm's property when his or her copartner has made such claims within the scope of his or her authority, thereby voiding the policies in accordance with their terms [Zemelman v. Boston Ins. Co. (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 15, 19, 84 Cal. Rptr. 206] .

The scope of a partnership's activities, and thus its liabilities for fraud and misrepresentation, may be extended beyond its dissolution. For example, a partner who appoints a copartner to wind up the affairs of the partnership, knowing that funds must be procured to release pledged securities, is liable as a principal for the fraudulent acts of the partner in procuring the funds [Gift v. Ahrnke (1951) 107 Cal. App. 2d 614, 622, 237 P.2d 706 (citing Civ. Code § 2338); see also Blackmon v. Hale (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 548, 558-559, 83 Cal. Rptr. 194, 463 P.2d 418 (Supreme Court held that partnership liability was created when, after dissolution of law partnership, one partner diverted a client's money held in firm's trust account to his own uses)]. However, the partnership is relieved from liability for the wrongs of its partners acting individually when the third person knows that he or she is dealing with the partner in an individual capacity [Blackmon v. Hale (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 548, 559, 83 Cal. Rptr. 194, 463 P.2d 418] . The court in Blackmon held that because the client whose funds were misappropriated was not notified that the partner with whom he was dealing was acting in his individual capacity, the client's testimony indicating he thought he was dealing only with the absconding partner was not conclusive on the issue of whether he was knowingly a client of the firm; it merely reflected confusion as to what is an attorney-client relationship.

Negligence of a partner or agent of a partnership is imputed to the other partners [Buckley v. Chadwick (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 183, 190, 289 P.2d 242 ; Cahill Bros., Inc. v. Clementina Co. (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 367, 376, 25 Cal. Rptr. 301] . Acts characterized as willful and malicious, as well as simple negligence, will give rise to partnership liability [Madsen v. Cawthorne (1938) 30 Cal. App. 2d 124, 126, 85 P.2d 909] . A partner's contributory negligence will bar recovery in a wrongful death suit brought by a deceased copartner's representative [Buckley v. Chadwick (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 183, 192-193, 289 P.2d 242] . In addition, one partner's knowledge of the unsafe condition of an instrumentality used in the partnership business will be imputed to all partners in an action for damages resulting from injuries caused by the unsafe condition [Fererira v. Silvey (1918) 38 Cal. App. 346, 349-350, 176 P. 371] . A partner's knowledge or receipt of notification of a fact relating to the partnership is effective immediately as knowledge by or notification to the partnership except in the case of a fraud on the partnership committed by or with the consent of that partner [*Corp. Because partners are jointly and severally liable for wrongful acts or omissions of a partner acting in the ordinary course of the partnership business [Corp. Code § 16305, 16306(a); former *Corp. § 402.18 Misrepresentation of Person as Partner

[1] Statutory Standard

If a person who is not a partner purports to be a partner, or consents to be represented to be a partner, in a partnership, that person will be liable to anyone who enters into a transaction with the partnership or purported partnership based on that representation. Misrepresentations that are made in a public manner may increase liability to include persons who rely on the misrepresentation, even though the purported partner did not know that those persons relied on the misrepresentation [Corp. Code § 16308(a); see former Corp. Code § 15016(1); see also Armato v. Baden (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 885, 897-899, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 294 (assuming that former Corp. Code § 15016 applied, independent contractor doctors for medical group were not jointly liable under ostensible partnership theory for allegedly negligent treatment plaintiff received from group's physician assistant)].

The partnership may be liable to a third person who enters into a transaction with the partnership based on the misrepresentation if all the partners consent to the representation. If fewer than all of the partners consent to the representation, then those partners become jointly and severally liable [Corp. Code § 16308(b); see former Corp. Code § 15016(2)].

[2] "Partnership by Estoppel"

The term "partnership by estoppel" traditionally is used to describe the legal consequence of misrepresentations about a person being a partner to third parties who rely on those misrepresentations in extending credit. This term is accurate insofar as it reflects the operation of the law of estoppel in prohibiting the person misrepresented as a partner fromdenying liability to the same extent as if that person were a partner. To the extent that the term implies that an actual partnership, or a partnership liability, necessarily will result from such a misrepresentation, however, the term is misleading. The requirements for liability are statutory and are explained in [1], above.

[3] Question of Fact

Whether an individual is deemed a partner by estoppel is usually a question of fact. It becomes a question of law only when the evidence is not in conflict and is susceptible of only one reasonable inference [Redman v. Walters (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 448, 455, 152 Cal. Rptr. 42] .

[4] Acts and Conduct Must Lead to Belief That Person Is Partner

When it is claimed that a person who is not a partner is liable as such, the issue is whether that person's acts and conduct were sufficient to lead the creditor to believe that the person was a partner and assumed responsibility as a partner [J & J Builders Supply v. Caffin (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 292, 297, 56 Cal. Rptr. 365] . For example, a defendant's status as a partner was held to be established by estoppel when he was introduced to the plaintiff as a partner, he signed payroll checks for employees in the partnership name, and he signed a letter referring to joint responsibility for the merchandise plaintiff delivered to the partnership [Wirta v. Vergona (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 365, 366-367, 15 Cal. Rptr. 804] . An intent to deceive is not required [Crabbe v. Mires (1952), 112 Cal. App. 2d 456, 459, 246 P.2d 991] . All that is required to establish an individual's status as a partner is a showing that the person's actions would induce a reasonable and prudent person to believe that the individual is a partner [Crabbe v. Mires (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 456, 459, 246 P.2d 991] .

[5] Pleading Must Include Representation of Partnership and Reliance

A plaintiff relying on the doctrine of estoppel to establish the existence of a partnership obligation must plead a representation of partnership and a reliance on this representation [Moen v. Art's Cafe (1950) 95 Cal. App. 2d 577, 579, 213 P.2d 393] .

[6] Being Named in Statement of Partnership Is Not Enough

A person is not liable as a partner merely because the person is named by another in a statement of partnership [Corp. Code § 16308(c)] or by an unauthorized declaration of someone else that an individual was a partner [Hunter v. Croysdill (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 307, 316, 337 P.2d 174] . In one case decided under the pre-'97 Act, for instance, the insertion of an individual's name as a partner on a partnership tax return did not make that individual a partner by estoppel when the individual had no part in that insertion on the return and knew nothing about it [United States v. Coson (9th Cir. [Cal.] 1961) 286 F.2d 453, 462] .

[7] Liability of Partner by Estoppel

When a partnership liability results, a partner by estoppel is liable as though that person were an actual member of the partnership. When no partnership liability results, a partner by estoppel is liable jointly with any other person who consented to the contract or made representations in any way that would incur liability; otherwise the liability is separate [Corp. Code § 16308(a); see former Corp. Code § 15016(1)(a), (b)].

[8] Third Person as Agent

When a person represents to anyone, or consents to another representing, either that the person is a partner in an existing partnership or is a partner with one or more other persons who are not actual partners, the person becomes an agent of the persons consenting to the representation. The person may thus bind the other persons to the same extent and in the same manner as could a partner in fact with respect to persons who rely on the representation [Corp. Code § 16308(b); see former Corp. Code § 15016(2)].

[9] Former Partners

UPA'94, which introduced the concepts of partnership statements of authority and statements of dissociation, clarifies that the failure to amend a partnership statement of authority or file a statement of dissociation after a partner dissociates may not be used to hold that partner liable as a partner [Corp. Code § 16308(d)].

[10] No Liability If Statutory Standard Is Not Met

UPA'94 clarifies that persons who are not partners are not liable as partners to other persons [Corp. Code § 16308(e)], other than for misrepresentations of partnership status meeting the statutory standard [see [1], above].

§ 402.19 Judgments

Under UPA'94, a judgment against a partnership is not a judgment against a partner and may not be satisfied from a partner's assets without a judgment against the partner [Corp. Code § 16307(c)]. Similarly, a judgment creditor of a partner may not execute against the assets of the partner to satisfy a judgment based on a claim against the partnership unless [Corp. Code § 16307(d)]:

- A judgment based on the same claim has been obtained against the partnership and execution is returned unsatisfied in whole or in part;
- The partnership is in bankruptcy;
- The partner agrees that the creditor does not need to exhaust partnership assets;
- The court grants permission to levy against the partner after finding that partnership assets are clearly insufficient, the exhaustion of partnership assets is excessively burdensome, or that the court's permission is an appropriate exercise of its equity powers; or
- Liability is imposed on the partner by law or contract independent of the existence of the partnership.

These same rules apply to purported partners [Corp. Code § 16307(e); see § 402.18, above].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

35-402 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 402.20

§ 402.20 Charging Orders

UPA'94 provides the exclusive remedy by which a judgment creditor of a partner or a partner's transferee may satisfy a judgment out of the partner's transferable interest in the partnership [Corp. Code § 16504(a), (e)]. Under this remedy, a judgment creditor of a partner or of a partner's transferee may apply for a court order charging that interest to satisfy the judgment. The court has the power to appoint a receiver of partnership distributions and to make all other orders, directions, accounts, and inquiries the judgment debtor might have made or that the circumstances of the case may require [Corp. Code § 16504(a)].

UPA'94 specifically provides that a charging order is a lien on the judgment debtor-partner's transferable interest and that the court may order a foreclosure of an interest subject to a charging order at any time. The purchaser at the foreclosure sale has the rights of a transferee [Corp. Code § 16504(b)]. At any time before foreclosure, an interest charged may be redeemed by the partner judgment debtor, by other partners out of their separate property, or out of partnership property with the consent of all the partners whose interests are not charged [Corp. Code § 16504(c)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 708.310 (contained in Chapter 6 of Division 2 to Title 9, entitled Miscellaneous Creditors' Remedies) specifically provides that if a money judgment is rendered against a partner but not against the partnership, the judgment debtor's interest in the partnership may be applied toward the satisfaction of the judgment by an order charging the judgment debtor's interest pursuant to Corp. Code § 16504.

[2] Pre-'97 Act

[a] Partner's Right in Specific Partnership Property

Under the pre-'97 Act, a partner's right in specific partnership property (UPA'94 eliminates a partner's specific right in partnership property [Corp. Code § 16203; see Ch. 401, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners and Partnership]) was not subject to enforcement of a money judgment, except on a claim against the partnership [former Corp. Code § 15025(2)(c)]. In addition, the statutes governing writs of execution and levy provide that the interest of a partner in a partnership is not a type of property subject to enforcement of a money judgment when the partnership is not a judgment debtor [Code Civ. Proc. § 699.720(a)(2)]. Therefore, as a general rule, a creditor with a judgment against a partner but not against the partnership ordinarily cannot execute directly on partnership assets or on the partner's interest in the partnership.

[b] Partner's Partnership Interest

Under the pre-'97 Act, as under UPA'94, a judgment creditor of a partner or a partner's transferee could satisfy a judgment out of the partner's transferable interest in the partnership [former Corp. Code § 15028]. The pre-'97 Act implied, but did not specifically provide, that a debtor/partner's partnership interest may be foreclosed upon [former Corp. Code § 15028; see 402.21, below].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

35-402 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 402.21

§ 402.21 Foreclosing Partnership Interest

[1] Available as Remedy

UPA'94 specifically provides for foreclosure of a partner's transferable interest in a partnership based on the lien created by a charging order at any time by a court having jurisdiction [Corp. Code § 16504(b)]. The pre-'97 Act did not specifically provide for foreclosure as a remedy, but implied its existence [see former Corp. Code § 15028(2)] and that remedy has been judicially determined to exist [Hellman v. Anderson (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 840, 844-848, 284 Cal. Rptr. 830] .

For forms for use by a judgment creditor to obtain an order for sale of the judgment debtor's partnership interest, see §§ 402.45-402.47.

[2] Foreclosure and Execution

Debtor partners have argued that Code Civ. Proc. § 699.720(a)(2), which exempts a partner's interest in a partnership from execution, also protects their interests from foreclosure. The courts have rejected this argument. The courts note the exception under Code Civ. Proc. § 699.720(b) allowing the satisfaction of a money judgment by any procedure other than an execution, and further note the difference between an execution sale (pursuant to a writ of execution) and a foreclosure sale of a debtor partner's interest. The issuance of a writ of execution is a ministerial act and the clerk has no discretion to refuse it. Once the writ is issued, the levying officer discharges the writ, and no court intervention is required. In contrast, both court supervision and discretion are involved in orderinga sale to foreclose the lien created by a charging order on a partnership interest. Thus, under the court analysis, Code Civ. Proc. § 699.720 does not apply [Hellman v. Anderson (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 840, 848-850, 284 Cal. Rptr. 830 ; see also Crocker Nat. Bank v. Perroton (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1, 5-6, 255 Cal. Rptr. 794 (distinguishing execution and charging order)].

[3] Conditions for Granting Foreclosure

Because foreclosure is permissive under both acts, case law has developed criteria for determining when foreclosure is appropriate. The case law, which was developed under the Pre-'97 Act and should also apply under UPA'94, articulates the following criteria for granting foreclosure [Hellman v. Anderson (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 840, 852-853, 284 Cal. Rptr. 830 ; see also Crocker Nat. Bank v. Perroton (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1, 6-7, 255 Cal. Rptr. 794] :

- A charging order under Corp. Code § 16504 or former Corp. Code § 15028 must have been issued;
- A charging order remains and for a reasonable time is likely to remain unsatisfied; and
- The nondebtor partners consent to foreclosure, or foreclosure will not unduly interfere with partnership business regardless of those partners' consent.

The First District holds that the nondebtor partners' consent is always required [Crocker Nat. Bank v. Perroton (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1, 9-10, 255 Cal. Rptr. 794 (limited partner's interest was being sold, general partner consented)]. The Third District holds that the court has discretion to decide whether or not the nondebtor partners' consent is required. The court's discretion must be exercised in accordance with equitable principles, and consent is required only if the foreclosure will unduly interfere with the partnership business [Hellman v. Anderson (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 840, 850-853, 284 Cal. Rptr. 830] . An example of undue interference is a foreclosure of the interest of a partner with essential managerial skills, which causes that partner to abandon the partnership [see Hellman v. Anderson (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 840, 852, 284 Cal. Rptr. 830] .

[4] Burden of Proof of Undue Interference

The burden of proving undue interference with the partnership business is on the debtor partner because the debtor partner has particular knowledge of the facts relevant to the issue. This is an exception to the ordinary allocation of burdens of proof [Hellman v. Anderson (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 840, 853, 284 Cal. Rptr. 830] .

[5] Order May Not Increase Purchaser's Rights

A supplementary order for sale of a judgment debtor's partnership interest cannot allow the purchaser to acquire more rights in the partnership than the debtor partner possessed [Crocker Nat. Bank v. Perroton (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1, 10, 255 Cal. Rptr. 794] . Thus, the creditor or purchaser at foreclosure usually will only acquire the right to profits, surplus, and distributions attributable to the debtor partner's interest, but will have no interest in partnership property or management participation [see Hellman v. Anderson (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 840, 852, 284 Cal. Rptr. 830 ; Corp. Code § 16503; former Corp. Code § 15027].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

35-402 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 402.22

§ 402.22 Limiting Partner's Liability in Registered Limited Liability Partnerships

[1] Generally

Under UPA'94 and the pre-'97 Act, a partner in a registered limited liability partnership is not liable or accountable, directly or indirectly, including by way of indemnification, contribution, assessment, or otherwise, for debts, obligations, or liabilities chargeable to the partnership or another partner in the partnership, whether arising in tort, contract, or otherwise, that are incurred, created, or assumed by the partnership while the partnership is a registered limited liability partnership, by reason of being a partner or acting in the conduct of the business or activities of the partnership [Corp. Code § 16306(c); former Corp. Code § 15015(b)].

[2] Limitation on Liability May Be Changed by Agreement

All or certain specified partners of a registered limited liability partnership, if the specified partners agree, may be liable in their capacity as partners for all or specified debts, obligations, or liabilities of the limited liability partnership if the partners possessing a majority of the interests of the partners in the current profits of the partnership, or a different vote if required in the partnership agreement, specifically agreed to the specified debts, obligations, or liabilities in writing, before the debt, obligation, or liability was incurred. Such an agreement may be modified or revoked, but a modification or revocation will not affect a partner's liability for any debts, obligations, or liabilities of a registered limited liability partnership incurred, created, or assumed by the limited liability partnership before the modification or revocation [Corp. Code § 16306(d); former Corp. Code § 15015(c)].

[3] Individual Liability May Still Apply

A partner in a registered limited liability partnership remains personally liable to third parties for that partner's tortious conduct [Corp. Code § 16306(e); former Corp. Code § 15015(d)].

[4] Partner May Not Be Named in Suit Against Partnership Unless Personal Liability Applies

A partner in a registered limited liability partnership is not a proper party to a proceeding by or against the partnership if personal liability for partnership debts, obligations, or liabilities is asserted unless the partner is personally liable by agreement [see [2], above] or the tortious conduct of the partner [Corp. Code § 16306(g); former Corp. Code § 15015(f); see [3], above].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

35-402 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 402.23

§ 402.23 Liability of Joint Venturers to Third Parties

[1] Contract Liability

The relations of joint venturers, whether between themselves or with third parties, generally are the same as those of partners and, to that extent, are governed by partnership law [Orlopp v. Willardson Co. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 750, 754, 43 Cal. Rptr. 125 ; Milton Kauffman, Inc. v. Superior Court (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 8, 17, 210 P.2d 88] . Therefore, former Corp. Code § 15009 (pre-'97 Act), and Corp. Code § 16301 (UPA'94) providing that every partner is an agent of the partnership for the purpose of carrying on the business of the partnership, also governs a joint venturer's authority to bind the other venturers [see Medak v. Cox (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 70, 76, 90 Cal. Rptr. 452 ; see also § 402.13[1]]. Each joint venturer thus has authority to bind the others in making contracts reasonably necessary to carry out the enterprise [Smalley v. Baker (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 824, 837, 69 Cal. Rptr. 521] . If a joint venturer is acting beyond the scope of his or her authority, the other venturers are not bound when the third party had no knowledge of the existence of a joint venture [Block v. D. W. Nicholson Corp. (1947) 77 Cal. App. 2d 739, 745, 176 P.2d 739] .

There have been occasional cases holding that in certain joint ventures, one joint venturer may not have the power to bind another [see Stilwell v. Trutanich (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 614, 619, 3 Cal. Rptr. 285 ; Nels E. Nelson, Inc. v. Tarman (1958) 163 Cal. App. 2d 714, 726, 329 P.2d 953] . These cases however, appear to rest on factual situations involving ventures of a limited scope, in which the joint venturers did not have equal control of the venture [see Smalley v. Baker (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 824, 837, 69 Cal. Rptr. 521] .

For discussion of a partner's authority to bind a partnership, see §§ 402.13-402.15.

[2] Ostensible Joint Venturer

As with a partner, a person who represents himself or herself as a joint venturer, or who consents to a representation by another that he or she is a joint venturer, may be liable as a joint venturer by estoppel [see Rivett v. Nelson (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 268, 276, 322 P.2d 515] . For discussion of misrepresentation of a person as a partner and partnership by estoppel, see § 402.18, and for forms that may be modified for use by a third party against an ostensible joint venturer, see §§ 402.43-402.44.

[3] Tort Liability

As with partners, the liability of joint venturers for tortious acts of other joint venturers is governed by the law governing principals and agents, under which a principal whose agent has committed a tort in the transaction of the agency's business is jointly and severally liable to an injured party [Cahill Bros., Inc. v. Clementina Co. (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 367, 388, 25 Cal. Rptr. 301 ; see § 402.13[1]; see also generally Ch. 427, Principal and Agent]. Therefore, the negligence of one joint venturer is imputable to the others [Hupfeld v. Wadley (1948) 89 Cal. App. 2d 171, 175, 200 P.2d 564] . Similarly, when one joint venturer, acting within the scope of the venture and in furtherance of its agreed purpose, fraudulently procures benefits retained by the joint venturers, all the joint venturers are liable for compensatory damages caused by the fraud [Rickless v. Temple (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 869, 893-894, 84 Cal. Rptr. 828] .

[7] Liability of Partners

[a] Partnerships

Proper assessment of unpaid employment tax against partnership sufficed to extend statute of limitations for collection of tax from general partners who were liable for payment of partnership's debts; timely assessment of tax against partnership was sufficient to extend statute of limitations to collect tax in judicial proceeding, whether from partnership itself or from those liable for its debts. United States v. Galletti (2004) 541 U.S. 114, 124 S.Ct. 1548, 158 L. Ed. 2d 279, 285 .

Partner who withdraws from partnership and whose name is deleted from partnership name is not liable for later misapplication of third party's money by another partner. Blackmon v. Hale (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 548, 560, 83 Cal. Rptr. 194, 463 P.2d 418

Although under Corp. Code § 16306(a) all partners were jointly and severally liable for bank loan on real property, after foreclosure and entry of deficiency judgment, assignment of judgment to partnership and 11 of 12 partners extinguished the debt; the 11 partners could not acquire bank's right to collect balance of judgment from 12th partner, their co-obligor. Great Western Bank v. Kong (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 28, 31-33, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 266

Under successor liability provisions of municipal code, general partner of partnership to which hotel was transferred is jointly liable with partnershipand other partners [see former Corp. Code § 15015] for city transient occupancy taxes for period before hotel was transferred to partnership. City of San Diego v. DeLeeuw (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 10, 13, 15 Cal Rptr. 2d 98 (taxes should be been paid from "hold back" in escrow on transfer but were not)

When partnership is named in action, but individual partners are not named as defendants, individual partners are liable to extent of their interests in partnership property but not as individuals. Fazzi v. Peters (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 590, 595-598, 68 Cal. Rptr. 170, 440 P.2d 242 ; Promotus Enterprises, Inc. v. Jiminez (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 560, 566-567, 98 Cal. Rptr. 571

Former Corp. Code § 15015 not applied to permit third party to recover against individual partner who entered into separate obligation to perform partnership contract because individual partner's obligation was extinguished by judgment in favor of partnership and against third party on partnership's cross complaint. Hughes Tool Co. v. Max Hinrichs Seed Co. (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 194, 205, 169 Cal. Rptr. 160

Partner who withdraws from partnership is liable for subsequent partnership obligations when third party has no knowledge of withdrawal. Marsh Wall Products, Inc. v. Henry Marcus Building Specialties (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 371, 379, 328 P.2d 259

[b] Joint Ventures

Payment of judgment in favor of plaintiffs, former joint venturers, without any further allocation of their interests creates tenancy in common, under which each was presumed to have one-half interest; party seeking more has burden of proving entitlement to it. Parker v. Walker (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 1173, 1182-1183, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 908

Former Corp. Code § 15009 (partner's authority to bind partnership) governs joint venturer's authority to bind other joint venturers. Medak v. Cox (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 70, 76 n.2, 90 Cal. Rptr. 452

Joint venturer binds other joint venturer by contracts reasonably necessary to carry out enterprise. Smalley v. Baker (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 824, 837, 69 Cal. Rptr. 521

Negligent conduct of one joint venturer may be imputed to other joint venturers. Cahill Bros., Inc. v. Clementina Co. (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 367, 387, 25 Cal. Rptr. 301

Joint venturer does not have power to bind other joint venturers when venture is of limited scope and powers of venturers are delegated or unequal. Stilwell v. Trutanich (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 614, 619, 3 Cal. Rptr. 285 ; Nels E. Nelson, Inc. v. Tarman (1958) 163 Cal. App. 2d 714, 726, 329 P.2d 953

[8] Dormant Partner

When one partner holds himself or herself out as sole owner, that ostensible partner is agent of dormant one, and dormant partner is bound by ostensible partner's representations. Nels E. Nelson, Inc. v. Tarman (1958) 163 Cal. App. 2d 714, 728, 329 P.2d 953 ; Bissell v. King (1928) 91 Cal. App. 420, 423, 267 P. 356

Transaction entered into by one partner on behalf of partnership creates joint obligation of undisclosed or dormant partner when transacting partner has authority to make transaction, which is for benefit of partnership. Schwaegler Co. v. Marchesotti (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 738, 743

Because liability of partners on contract is joint, judgment obtained against fewer than all partners extinguishes claim against all, even when partners not made defendants were dormant and unknown to plaintiff at time action was commenced. Iwanaga v. Hagopian (1919) 39 Cal. App. 584, 584-585, 179 P. 523

[9] Incoming Partner

Express or implied agreement is necessary to create liability of incoming partner for existing partnership obligations. Griffin v. Williamson (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 308, 315, 290 P.2d 361

Contract permissible to define incoming partner's liability. Pecarovich v. Becker (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 309, 316, 248 P.2d 123

[10] Libel

Partners may recover damages caused to them individually by libel, but may not recover for any damage resulting to partnership. Lewis v. Hayes (1918) 177 Cal. 587, 589-590, 171 P. 293

[11] Ostensible Partner

[a] Liability

Liability of ostensible partner is founded on equitable doctrine of estoppel. Dodd v. Tebbetts (1926) 198 Cal. 333, 340, 244 P. 1081

Independent contractor doctors who worked part-time for medical group were not jointly liable under ostensible partnership theory for allegedly negligent treatment plaintiff received from group's physician assistant; even if former Corp. Code § 15016 applied, it did not support imposition of liability since defendants did not represent themselves (or consent to another representing them) as "partners in an existing partnership" or as a partner "with one or more persons not actual partners." Armato v. Baden (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 885, 897-899, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 294

Mere listing of independent contractor doctors' names on door to medical group's office and on appointment cards and prescription pads does not reasonably induce belief that doctors and group's physician assistant, or doctors and medical group, were copartners. Armato v. Baden (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 885, 898-899, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 294

Whether or not individual was ostensible partner depends on whether or not his or her conduct was factually and legally sufficient to lead another person to believe he or she was copartner and assumed responsibility as copartner, as determined by trial court from all evidence presented. J & J Builders Supply v. Caffin (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 292, 297, 56 Cal. Rptr. 365 ; J.C. Wattenbarger & Sons v. Sanders (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 495, 500-501, 30 Cal. Rptr. 910

Unauthorized declarations made outside the presence of ostensible partner does not establish ostensible partnership. J & J Builders Supply v. Caffin (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 292, 297, 56 Cal. Rptr. 365

Declarations of partnership made by another in presence of ostensible partner, when ostensible partner must have known that response negating representation should be made to avoid misleading plaintiff, is adoptive admission of partner. J & J Builders Supply v. Caffin (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 292, 297, 56 Cal. Rptr. 365

Reliance on actual or apparent representation of partnership is essential element to be proved in order to find defendant is ostensible partner. J.C. Wattenbarger & Sons v. Sanders (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 495, 501, 30 Cal. Rptr. 910

Use of word "partnership" not necessary to representation of ostensible partner, as long as representation indicates current association with another, with division of responsibilities. Hunter v. Croysdill (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 307, 314-315, 337 P.2d 174

Plaintiff not required to have made exhaustive inquiries into background of person claiming to be partner; inquiries regarding ostensible partner's ability to meet financial obligations is sufficient. Hunter v. Croysdill (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 307, 315, 337 P.2d 174

Declarations of alleged partner that another is his or her copartner corroborated copartner's representations, and therefore were admissible on issue of reliance once fact of copartner's representations had been independently established. Hunter v. Croysdill (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 307, 316, 337 P.2d 174

To create liability of ostensible partner, intent to deceive is not required, as long as under particular circumstances reasonably prudent person would be induced to believe person was partner. Crabbe v. Mires (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 456, 459, 246 P.2d 991

[b] Liability of Dormant Partner

Three requirements necessary before principal is held liable for act of ostensible agent: person dealing with agent must do so with reasonable belief in agent's authority, belief must be generated by some act or neglect of principal, and third person relying on agent's apparent authority must not be guilty of negligence. Associated Creditors' Agency v. Davis (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 374, 399, 118 Cal. Rptr. 772, 530 P.2d 1084

[c] Pleading

Plaintiff relying on doctrine of equitable estoppel is required to plead representation of partnership and reliance on that representation. Moen v. Art's Cafe (1950) 95 Cal. App. 2d 577, 579, 213 P.2d 393

[d] Proof Required

Person asserting ostensible partnership is required to prove that acts, acquiescenses, and representations of party warranted conclusion of partnership and justifiable reliance on representations. Kloke v. Pongratz (1940) 38 Cal. App. 2d 395, 403, 101 P.2d 522

[12] Partnership as Legal Entity

[a] Generally

Limited partnership is separate entity from limited partners for purposes of suing and being sued. Evans v. Galardi (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 300, 311, 128 Cal. Rptr. 25, 546 P.2d 313

Unincorporated association not recognized as jural entity except when specifically provided by statute. Juneau etc. Corp. v. Intl. Longshoremen (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 760, 763, 235 P.2d 607

Partnership is not legal entity except when exceptional circumstances exist. Reed v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1937) 10 Cal. 2d 191, 192-193, 73 P.2d 1212 ; J & J Builders Supply v. Caffin (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 292, 296, 56 Cal. Rptr. 365

Authorities do not clearly delineate when partnership is treated as separate entity; each case as determined by policy considerations and fairness. Epstein v. Frank (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 111, 119, 177 Cal. Rptr. 831

In procedural matters, partnership is treated like corporation, and entity concept predominates. Epstein v. Frank (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 111, 119, 177 Cal. Rptr. 831

Recent trend of case law recognizes unincorporated associations as separate legal entities. People v. Sobiek (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 458, 467, 106 Cal. Rptr. 519 ; see People v. Farsight (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1402, 1408, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 858 (partner can be guilty of fraudulently appropriating partnership property for purposes of claim of title defense to embezzlement under Pen. Code § 511)

[b] Partners as Plaintiffs

Objection that plaintiff was operating as partnership and did not join other partners as plaintiffs is waived by defendants if not raised in answer to complaint. Tyrone v. Kelley (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 1, 14, 106 Cal. Rptr. 761, 507 P.2d 65

Associated individuals required to sue in their individual names. Case v. Kadota Fig Asso. of Producers (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 596, 602, 220 P.2d 912 ; see Oliver v. Swiss Club Tell (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 528, 540, 35 Cal. Rptr. 324 (cases decided prior to 1967 amendment to former Code Civ. Proc. § 388 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 369.5) providing that partners may sue in partnership name)

[c] Partnership as Defendant

For purpose of being sued, partnership is separate legal entity distinct from its members. Artana v. San Jose Scavenger Co. (1919) 181 Cal. 627, 629-630, 185 P. 850

Action contemplated by Code Civ. Proc. § 388 is against partners to enforce claim against partnership, not against partners as individuals, unless they are made parties as individuals. Artana v. San Jose Scavenger Co. (1919) 181 Cal. 627, 629, 185 P. 850

Interest of individual partner in partnership assets is not subject to enforcement except on claim against partnership entity. Epstein v. Frank (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 111, 120, 177 Cal. Rptr. 831

To acquire jurisdiction over partnership, partnership entity is required to be designated as defendant; naming individual partners is insufficient. Epstein v. Frank (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 111, 119-120, 177 Cal. Rptr. 831 ; Hildebrand v. Stonecrest Corp. (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 158, 169, 344 P.2d 378 ; Potts v. Whitson (1942) 52 Cal. App. 2d 199, 207, 125 P.2d 947

Action against association sued in its common name is action against single defendant. Barr v. United Methodist Church (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 259, 273, 153 Cal. Rptr. 322 ; Potts v. Whitson (1942) 52 Cal. App. 2d 199, 205, 125 P.2d 947

When partners sued as individuals and partnership is not named in action, judgment against partnership is improper.

[13] Privacy

Partnership permitted to state cause of action for invasion of privacy. H & M Associates v. City of El Centro (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 399, 409-410, 167 Cal. Rptr. 392

[14] Res Judicata

Judgment against one partner in action brought against him or her personally on tort arising out of partnership business is not res judicata as to subsequent litigation against another partner. Dillard v. McKnight (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 209, 214, 209 P.2d 387

When partners are joined in suit against partnership, resulting in paid, satisfied judgment against jointly liable partners, later suit against partnership is barred. Minehan v. Silveria (1936) 11 Cal. App. 2d 266, 267, 53 P.2d 770

[15] Revivor

Capacity of limited partnership that mistakenly filed certificate of cancellation [see Corp. Code § 15623 (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15902.03 (ULPA '08)] was revived when Secretary of State canceled cancellation certification; revivor validated partnership's earlier motion to vacate sister state judgment so as to render motion timely, although it could not be heard until after revivor. Tsakos Shipping & Trading, S.A. v. Juniper Garden Town Homes, Ltd. (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 74, 86, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 585 (court had not dismissed motion, but took it off calendar to allow time for reinstatement)

[16] Service

Judgment entered after service on fewer than all partners is not personal judgment against partners not actually served. Dillard v. McKnight (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 209, 215, 209 P.2d 387

Service against partners is adequate service against partnership. Vance v. Gilbert (1918) 178 Cal. 574, 576-577, 174 P. 42

[17] Statute of Limitations

Statute of limitations on claims against limited partnership is not tolled pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 351, when general partner is absent from state. Epstein v. Frank (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 111, 120, 177 Cal. Rptr. 831 (note that Abramson v. Brownstein (9th Cir. 1990) 897 F.2d 389, 391-393 , held Code Civ. Proc. § 351 unconstitutional, as violating the Commerce Clause; applied to nonresident defendant who could have been served under long-arm statute).

[18] Tort Liability

In bankruptcies of individual partners, one partner's withholding of creditor's funds on behalf of partnership and in ordinary course of business is conversion and requires imputation of that partner's knowledge and intentto other partner so as to make debt nondischargeable as to both partners. In re Cecchini (9th Cir. 1986) 780 F.2d 1440, 1444)

All partners liable for fraud of one partner in contracts relating to partnership made with innocent third parties, whether or not all partners knew of that fraud. Zemelman v. Boston Ins. Co. (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 15, 18, 84 Cal. Rptr. 206

Punitive damages awarded against both partner and partnership proper when partner acted maliciously. Black v. Shearson, Hammill & Co. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 362, 369, 72 Cal. Rptr. 157

Mere membership in unincorporated association does not make all members liable for unlawful acts of other members without their participation, knowledge, or approval. Orser v. George (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 660, 670-671, 60 Cal. Rptr. 708

Tort liability of partnership and partner is based on same principles as tort liability of principal and agent. Madsen v. Cawthorne (1938) 30 Cal. App. 2d 124, 126, 85 P.2d 909

Partnership liable for willful misconduct of partner while engaged in business of partnership. Madsen v. Cawthorne (1938) 30 Cal. App. 2d 124, 125-126, 85 P.2d 909

In tort action, partners may be joined or sued severally. Rogers v. Ponet (1913) 21 Cal. App. 577, 581, 132 P. 851

[19] Venue

When plaintiff sues members of association under common name and seeks to make individual member of association party to action regardless of liability of association, action is required to be transferred to county of residence of one of defendants, if individual defendant so insists. Carruth v. Superior Court (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 215, 221, 145 Cal. Rptr. 344 ; Mosby v. Superior Court (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 219, 226, 117 Cal. Rptr. 588

When venue provisions conflict, preference given to right of individual defendant to trial in county of his or her residence. Mosby v. Superior Court (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 219, 226, 117 Cal. Rptr. 588

§ 402.40 Affirmative Defense Allegation--To Partnership's Action Based on Contract or Transaction--Partnership's Noncompliance With Fictitious Business Name Statutes

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense Allegation--To Partnership's Action Based on Contract or Transaction--Partnership's Noncompliance With Fictitious Business Name Statutes

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], Defendant alleges:

Plaintiffs are partners doing business under the fictitious name of _____. The _____ [contract or transaction] that is the subject of the cause of action of plaintiff's complaint in the above-entitled action was entered into by plaintiffs under that fictitious name. Plaintiffs have not filed and published a fictitious business name statement with the County Clerk of _____ County, the county of plaintiffs' principal place of business, as required by Business and Professions Code Sections 17915 and 17917. Plaintiffs thus lack capacity to maintain a cause of action on the above-mentioned _____ [contract or transaction] under the fictitious business name.

[2] Use of Form

[a] Generally

The form in [1], above, is for use as an affirmative defense in an answer to a complaint filed by a partnership under its fictitious business name in an action based on a contract or transaction, when the plaintiff partners have neither filed a fictitious business name statement in the county of the partnership's principal place of business nor published the statement in a newspaper of general circulation in that county [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17915, 17917]. The plaintiffs in such a case may not maintain the action until they have executed, filed, and published the required statement [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17918].

When using the contract action answer form approved by the Judicial Council [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45], the form would be inserted in the paragraph in the answer form that provides for alleging affirmative defenses.

[b] Demurrer

If the complaint shows on its face that the partnership name is fictitious and does not show compliance with the statutory provisions, the objection may be raised by demurrer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b)]. For discussion and forms of demurrers generally, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings , and Ch. 371, Motions After Trial .

[c] Abatement of Action

Noncompliance with the fictitious business name statutes is not a jurisdictional defect [Tyrone v. Kelley (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 1, 13-14, 106 Cal. Rptr. 761, 507 P.2d 65] . Noncompliance is merely a matter of abatement, and compliance is sufficient if accomplished at any time before the trial [Tyrone v. Kelley (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 1, 14, 106 Cal. Rptr. 761, 507 P.2d 65 ; Rudneck v. Southern California M. & R. Co. (1920) 184 Cal. 274, 281-282, 193 P. 775 (decided under former fictitious name statutes Civ. Code §§ 2466, 2468); Kadota Fig Asso. of Producers v. Case-Swayne Co. (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 796, 804-805, 167 P.2d 518 (decided under former fictitious name statutes Civ. Code §§ 2466, 2468)].

[2] Use of Form

[a] Generally

The form in [1], above, is for use as an affirmative defense in an answer to a complaint based on a contract or transaction involving a partnership, when the complaint has been filed by an individual partner and the other partner or partners have not been joined. If an action is based on a claim by a partnership, the partners must sue either in the partnership name [see Code Civ. Proc. § 369.5(a) and Corp. Code § 16307(a)] or as individual partners with all partners joined [see Williams v. Southern P. R. Co. (1895) 110 Cal. 457, 459, 42 P. 974] . The objection that an individual plaintiff was operating as a partnership and did not join other partners as plaintiffs must be raised by the defendant in the answer to the complaint, or it is waived [Tyrone v. Kelley (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 1, 14, 106 Cal. Rptr. 761, 507 P.2d 65 ; see Williams v. Southern P. R. Co. (1895) 110 Cal. 457, 461-462, 42 P. 974] .

When using the contract action answer form approved by the Judicial Council [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45], the language in this form should be inserted in the paragraph in the answer form that provides for alleging affirmative defenses.

[b] Demurrer

If it appears on the face of the complaint that the action is based on the claim of a partnership of which the plaintiff is a member and that other partners are not parties, the objection to the nonjoinder is grounds for a demurrer [see Code Civ.Proc. § 430.10(d)]. For discussion and forms fordemurrers generally, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

[3] Allegations

The essential allegations of this affirmative defense are [see Code Civ. Proc. § 389(a)]:

- That the persons to be added are subject to service of process;

- That joining the persons as parties will not deprive the court of jurisdiction over the subject matter of the action; and

- That failure to join the persons will either result in incomplete relief to those already parties or, because of a specified interest relating to the subject matter of the action, may result in a disposition of the action in their absence to their detriment or may adversely affect obligations of those who are already.

See Ch. 3, Abatement of Actions, § 3.70 et seq.

[2] Use of Form

[a] Contents

This complaint is for use against a partnership and the partners individually, by a party whose money or property has been misapplied by one of the partners. A partnership is liable for a loss that occurs when a partner in the course of partnership business or while acting with the authority of the partnership receives or causes the partnership to receive money or property of a third person and the money or property is misapplied [Corp. Code § 16305(b); see former Corp. Code § 15014].

[b] Conversion Action

It is unclear whether the damages recoverable under Corp. Code § 16305(b) or former Corp. Code § 15014 are the same as those recoverable for conversion [see Civ. Code § 3336]. It appears, however, that because the tort of conversion is an intentional act involving substantial interference with the plaintiff's right of possession [see Jordan v. Talbot (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 597, 610, 12 Cal. Rptr. 488, 361 P.2d 20] , and conversion may involve the misappropriation of money [see Haigler v. Donnelly (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 674, 681, 117 P.2d 331] , the misapplication of money or property under Corp. Code § 16305(b) and former Corp. Code § 15014 may be pleaded as an action for conversion.

In a conversion action, a plaintiff may recover either the value of the converted property at the time of the conversion, with the interest from that time, or an amount sufficient to indemnify the party injured for the loss that is the natural, reasonable, and proximate result of the wrongful act complained of and that a proper degree of prudence on plaintiff's part would not have averted [Civ. Code § 3336]. The alternative damage provision, allowing for recovery of the natural, reasonable, and proximate result of the act applies when awarding damages based on the property's value would be manifestly unjust [Myers v. Stephens (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 104, 116, 43 Cal. Rptr. 420] . Further, in a conversion action the plaintiff may recover fair compensation for the time and money properly expended in pursuit of the property [Civ. Code § 3336]. In addition, exemplary damages may be recovered in a conversion action, as well as in tort actions generally [see Civ. Code § 3294; Haigler v. Donnelly (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 674, 681, 117 P.2d 331] .

If counsel for plaintiff seeks the damages available in a conversion action, he or she should include Paragraphs 10 and 11 in the form. For further discussion of conversion actions and for additional complaint forms, see Ch. 150, Conversion .

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above alleges:

- That the partnership is sued in the name it has assumed or by which it is known (Paragraph 1) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 369.5(a) and Corp. Code § 16307(a)];

- The basis of venue for the action (Paragraph 2);

- That the individual partners are joined as defendants and are sued as members of the partnership and as individuals (Paragraph 3) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 369.5(b) and Corp. Code § 16307(b) (action may be brought against partnership and partners in same or separate actions); Fazzi v. Peters (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 590, 595-598, 68 Cal. Rptr. 170, 440 P.2d 242 ; Promotus Enterprises, Inc. v. Jiminez (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 560, 566-567, 98 Cal. Rptr. 571] ;

- Plaintiff's ownership of money or property misapplied by defendant (Paragraph 5) [see Corp. Code § 16305(b); former Corp. Code § 15014];

- The value of the money or property at the time it was misapplied (Paragraph 6) [see Civ. Code § 3336];

- The individual partner or partnership received the property or money and either that the property or money was transferred within the course of the partnership's business (Paragraph 7) or that it was transferred while the partner acted with the authority of the partnership [Corp. Code § 16305(b), see former Corp. Code § 15014(b)];

- The individual partner (or any partner) misapplied the money or property (Paragraph 8) [Corp. Code § 16305(b); see former Corp. Code § 15014];

- Plaintiff's demand for the return of the money or property (Paragraph 9) [see Flennaugh v. Heinrich (1948) 89 Cal. App. 2d 214, 222, 200 P.2d 580 (required in conversion action)];

- Damages proximately caused by the misapplication (Paragraph 10) [see Civ. Code § 3336 (alternative damages for conversion)];

- The costs incurred in plaintiff's pursuit of the money or property (Paragraph 11) [see Civ. Code § 3336 (conversion damages)]; and

- That defendant individual partner's acts were willful, wanton, malicious, oppressive, and fraudulent, and justify an award of punitivedamages against both the defendant individual partner and the defendant partnership (Paragraph 12) [see Civ. Code § 3294; Corp. Code § 16305(a); former Corp. Code § 15013; Haigler v. Donnelly (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 674, 681, 117 P.2d 331 (conversion action); Black v. Shearson, Hammill & Co. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 362, 369, 72 Cal. Rptr. 157] .

Factual examples in the allegations of this form are based generally on the facts found in Blackmon v. Hale (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 548, 83 Cal. Rptr. 194, 463 P.2d 418 .

[4] Jurisdiction

To acquire jurisdiction over a partnership, the partnership entity must be designated as a defendant [Epstein v. Frank (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 111, 119-120, 177 Cal. Rptr. 831 ; Hildebrand v. Stonecrest Corp. (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 158, 169, 344 P.2d 378 ; Potts v. Whitson (1942) 52 Cal. App. 2d 199, 207, 125 P.2d 947] . A partnership may be sued in its name or the name it has assumed, or the name by which it is known [Corp. Code § 16307(a); Code Civ. Proc. § 369.5(a)]. Individual partners must also be named, however, in order to obtain personal judgments against them. A judgment against a partnership is not a judgment against a partnership. A judgment may not be satisfied from a partner's assets without a judgment against the partner [Corp. Code § 16307(c); see Fazzi v. Peters (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 590, 595-598, 68 Cal. Rptr. 170, 440 P.2d 242 ; Promotus Enterprises, Inc. v. Jiminez (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 560, 566-567, 98 Cal. Rptr. 571] .

[5] Punitive Damages

In an action for the breach of an obligation not arising from contract, when the defendant has been guilty of oppression, fraud, or malice, the plaintiff may recover punitive damages [Civ. Code § 3294(a)]. Specifically, punitive damages are recoverable in an action for conversion [Haigler v. Donnelly (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 674, 681, 117 P.2d 331] . When, by any wrongful act or omission of any partner acting in the ordinary course of the partnership business or with the authority of the partnership, loss or injury is caused to any person not being a partner in the partnership, or any penalty is incurred, the partnership is liable [Corp. Code § 16305(a); see former Corp. Code § 15013]. Therefore, if the defendant partner is liable for punitive damages, and if the defendant was acting within the ordinary course of partnership business or with partnership authority, punitive damages may be recovered against the partnership as well [see Black v. Shearson, Hammill & Co. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 362, 369, 72 Cal. Rptr. 157] .

[6] Venue

If a partnership has filed a statement with the Secretary of State containing the location of its principal place of business pursuant to statute an action against the partnership may be brought in the county of its principal place of business [Code Civ. Proc. § 395.2]. If the partnership has not filed such a statement, the proper place for trial is the county where the contract was made or is to be performed, or where the obligation or liability arises or the breach occurs, subject to the power of the court to change the place of trial as in other cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5; see § 402.12[3]].

[7] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified also, if the action is in the superior court and is not a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial except in a limited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use in an action by a party who has extended credit to an actual or apparent partnership on the basis of representations by an apparent partner, and with the consent of a partner or partners in an existing partnership or one or more individuals not actually partners. When a person, by words spoken or written or by conduct, represents himself or herself as a partner in an existing partnership or with one or more persons not actual partners, or when he or she consents to that representation, he or she is liable to any such person to whom that representation has been made, who has, relying on the representation, given credit to the actual or apparent partnership [see Corp. Code § 16308(a); former Corp. Code § 15016(1)].

If the apparent partner made the representation or consented to its being made in a public manner, he or she is liable to the person extending credit, whether the representation has or has not been made or communicated to the person giving credit by or with the knowledge of the apparent partner who made or consented to the representation [Corp. Code § 16308(a); former Corp. Code § 15016(1)].

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges:

- That defendant apparent partner represented to plaintiff that he or she was in fact a partner in an existing partnership or with one or more individuals not actually partners (Paragraph 4) [Corp. Code § 16308(a); former Corp. Code § 15016(1)];

- Consent by one or more defendants, as individuals if they are not actual partners, as individuals if they are actual partners but do not represent all the partners, or as individuals and on behalf of a partnership if they constitute all partners in an actual partnership, to those representations (Paragraph 5) [Corp. Code § 16308(a); former Corp. Code § 15016];

- Plaintiff's extension of credit to the apparent partnership in reliance on the representations (Paragraph 6) [Corp. Code § 16308(a); former Corp. Code § 15016(1); see J.C. Wattenbarger & Sons v. Sanders (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 495, 501, 30 Cal. Rptr. 910] and facts alleging justifiable reliance [see Crabbe v. Mires (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 456, 459, 246 P.2d 991 ; Kloke v. Pongratz (1940) 38 Cal. App. 2d 395, 403, 101 P.2d 522] ;

- The amount unpaid and owed to plaintiff by the apparent partnership (Paragraph 7) [see Corp. Code § 16308(a); former Corp. Code § 15016(1)]; and

- When plaintiff became aware that the apparent partnership did not exist or that the apparent partner was not actually a partner and ceased extending credit (Paragraph 8) [see Corp. Code § 16308(a); former Corp. Code § 15016(1)].

[4] Joint or Partnership Liability

If a person is represented to be a partner in an existing partnership or with one or more persons who are not actual partners, he or she is an agent of the persons consenting to the representation and may bind them in the same manner as if he or she were a partner in fact, with respect to persons who rely on the representation. If all members of the existing partnership consent to the representation, a partnership act or obligation results. In all other cases, the act or obligation is the joint act or obligation of the person acting and the persons consenting to the representation [Corp. Code § 16308(b); former Corp. Code § 15016(2)].

If partnership liability results from the representations of apparent partnership, the apparent partner who makes or consents to the representations is liable as though he or she were an actual member of the partnership [Corp. Code § 16308(a); former Corp. Code § 15016(1)(a)]. If no partnership liability results, he or she is liable jointly with the other persons, if any, who consent to the contract or representation so as to incur liability [Corp. Code § 16308(a); former Corp. Code § 15016(1)(b) (joint and several liability)].

The representations were made with the consent of defendant _____[name of apparent partner] by _____ [allege facts showing consent, e.g., his/her presence at the time the representations were made, and his/her failure to make any response negating the representations under circumstances in which he/she was aware that a statement negating the representations was necessary to avoid misleading plaintiff to plaintiff's detriment].

[2] Use of Form

The allegations in [1], above, are for use in a complaint, such as the one in § 402.43[1], by a person who has extended credit to an actual or apparent partnership in reliance on false representations of partnership [see Corp. Code § 16308; former Corp. Code § 15016]. These allegations may be inserted in place of Paragraphs 4 and 5 in the form at § 402.43[1], in a case in which the representations are made by the individuals or partners and the apparent partner merely consents to those representations.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by the judgment creditor of an individual partner in obtaining an order to charge that partner's interest in the partnership with payment of the unsatisfied portion of the judgment. A charging order may be obtained on due application to the court that entered the judgment or to any other court. At the time of making the order, or at a later time, the court may also appoint a receiver of the judgment debtor's share of partnership profits or any other money due or to fall due to the judgment debtor in respect to the partnership. The court may also make all other orders, directions, accounts, and inquiries that the debtor partner might have made or that the circumstances of the case may require [Corp. Code § 16504; former Corp. Code § 15028(1)].

Appointment of a receiver may facilitate implementation of the charging order and eventual sale of the debtor partner's interest [see § 402.46]. A receiver has authority to sell the debtor's interest on the notice and in the manner of an execution sale as prescribed by Code Civ. Proc § 701.510 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 567 (oath and undertaking of receiver)].

Although this form is for use in the court in which the judgment was rendered, Corp. Code § 16504(a) and former Corp. Code § 15028(1) provide that a judgment creditor may also apply for a charging order in other courts having jurisdiction. In such a case, the judgment creditor would not use this form of noticed motion, but rather would file an application with the court. Although not specified in the statute, it appears that the application would take the form of a petition.

A memorandum must be filed and a copy served with this notice of motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a judgment creditor to obtain an order for sale of a judgment debtor's partnership interest when the creditor has obtained a charging order [see § 402.45] against the partnership interest but has not yet received payment in satisfaction of the judgment.

Whether counsel should use the statement regarding consent or the statement that the sale will not cause any undue interference with the partnership business is a function of which district the case is in or which strategy counsel wishes to employ [compare Hellman v. Anderson (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 840, 850-853, 284 Cal. Rptr. 830 and Crocker Nat. Bank v. Perroton (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1, 9-10, 255 Cal. Rptr. 794 ; see discussion in § 402.21].

If a receiver has been appointed, usually at the time the charging order was imposed, he or she will have authority to sell the debtor's interest on the notice and in the manner of an execution sale as prescribed by Code Civ. Proc § 701.510 et seq. The sale is not final until confirmed by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5].

Although the cases distinguish between an execution sale and foreclosure of a debtor's interest under a charging order [see Hellman v. Anderson (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 840, 847-850, 284 Cal. Rptr. 830 ; Crocker Nat. Bank v. Perroton (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1, 6-7, 255 Cal. Rptr. 794] , the order for the sale that was upheld in Crocker referred to it as an execution sale and authorized the sheriff to conduct the sale [Crocker Nat. Bank v. Perroton (1989) 208 Cal. App.

3d 1, 9 n.6, 255 Cal.Rptr. 794] . Counsel should consult with the sheriff in the county where the sale will be conducted to determine if the creditor can conduct the sale itself or if the sheriff will conduct it, and if so, what formalities will be required.

This chapter does not cover actions between former partners of a dissolved partnership, which are covered in Ch. 406, Partnerships: Dissolution .

This chapter contains the following forms:

- A complaint and allegation by a partner to enforce his or her contractual or statutory buyout provisions [see §§ 403.40, 403.41].

- Affirmative defenses to actions to enforce buyout provisions [see §§ 403.42, 403.43].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

35-403 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 403.10

§ 403.10 Governing Law

[1] Former and Current Law

Since January 1, 1999, all partnerships have been governed by the Uniform Partnership Act of 1994 (UPA'94) [Corp. Code § 16111(b); see Corp. Code § 16100 et seq.], regardless of when they were formed. Prior to that date, partnerships formed before January 1, 1997, were governed by the earlier of (1) the date when they elected to be governed by the UPA'94, or (2) January 1, 1999 [Corp. Code § 16111]. As of January 1, 1999, the pre-1997 version of the UPA (pre-'97 Act) was repealed [Stats. 1996 ch. 1003, §§ 1.2, 18, operative Jan. 1, 1999]. Repeal of the pre-'97 Act, however, did not affect actions or proceedings commenced, or rights accrued, prior to the effective date of the UPA'94 [Corp. Code § 16112]. For that reason, discussion of the pre-'97 Act has been retained in the partnership coverage in this publication. All references to Corp. Code §§ 15001-15045 in this chapter are to the repealed provisions of the pre-'97 Act. For more detailed discussion, see §§ 400.10, 400.11 in Ch. 400, Partnerships: Governing Statutes.

[2] Pre-'97 Act

As originally enacted, the pre-'97 Act [see Legal Background in Ch. 400, Partnerships: Governing Statutes] provided that the withdrawal of a partner from the partnership, whether voluntary or because of death, bankruptcy, or expulsion, was an event that caused the partnership to dissolve. Under the pre-'97 Act, "dissolution" was defined as the change in the relation of the partners caused by any partner ceasing to be associated in the carrying on, as distinguished from the winding up, of the business [former Corp. Code § 15029]. The pre-'97 Act was later liberalized to permit the partners to agree in advance of the death or withdrawal of a partner not to dissolve [see former Corp. Code §§ 15031(4), (7)], and although no specific provision addressed the continuation of a partnership by agreement after a partner's bankruptcy or expulsion, cases decided under the pre-'97 Act held that a partnership could be continued by agreement after the expulsion of a partner [Heller v. Pillsbury Madison & Sutro (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1367, 1385, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 336 ; Cagnolatti v. Guinn (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 42, 48, 189 Cal. Rptr. 151] .

The pre-'97 Act did not have unified or complete provisions for the status, rights, or duties of partners that withdrew from a partnership that had not dissolved. Generally speaking, for the purpose of fixing the rights and duties of partners after loss of a partner, the pre-'97 Act treated the departed partner and the partnership as if a dissolution had occurred and a partnership accounting was necessary [see, e.g., former Corp. Code §§ 15034(liability of partners for post-dissolution acts), 15036 (discharge of liabilities on dissolution)]. In sum, under the pre-'97 Act, if the partnership continued after the withdrawal or addition of a partner, but not pursuant to a preexisting agreement not to dissolve, then theoretically a new partnership had to be formed or the business was treated as if it were operating as an unliquidated enterprise [see former Corp. Code §§ 15041 (rights of creditors against those continuing partnership), 15042 (right of retiring or deceased partner to have partnership interest purchased), 15043 (right to accounting against partners continuing business)]. As a practical matter, however, a continuing but unliquidated partnership would remain, de facto, a partnership.

UPA'94 ended the distinctions under the pre-'97 Act between partners who withdraw, become bankrupt, retire, or die [see Corp. Code §§ 16601-16603]. "Dissociation," a term UPA'94 uses generically to describe any cessation of a person's partnership status [see Corp. Code § 16601], may be voluntary (e.g., retirement) or involuntary (e.g., death or expulsion), or rightful or wrongful, but in no case does a partner's dissociation require the partnership to dissolve if the remaining partners want to continue. Thus, changes in the composition of the partnership do not dissolve the partnership, despite the absence of a prior agreement not to dissolve. Even in a partnership for a definite term or for a particular purpose, dissolution and winding up are not required when a partner dissociates before the expiration of the term if a majority in interest of the remaining partners may agree within 90 days to continue the partnership and avoid dissolution and winding up [Corp. Code § 16801]. In an at will partnership, the dissociation of a partner will dissolve the partnership only if at least half of the partners vote affirmatively to dissolve [Corp. Code § 16801(1)].

Instead of causing dissolution, the withdrawal of a partner will trigger the buyout provisions of Article 7 of UPA'94 [Corp. Code §§ 16701-16705]. These buyout provisions are mandatory absent a provision to the contrary in the partnership agreement [see Corp. Code § 16103(b)], and are fairly detailed concerning the valuation of a dissociated partner's interest and the timing of payment.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

35-403 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 403.11

§ 403.11 Events Triggering a Partner's Dissociation Under UPA'94

[1] Subject to Agreement

The events noted in this section as triggering a partner's dissociation, except the judicial determination discussed in [5], below, are all subject to contrary provisions in the partnership agreement [see Corp. Code § 16103(b)].

[2] Partner's Giving Notice

A partner may dissociate from a partnership voluntarily at any time by giving notice to the partnership of withdrawal as a partner on that date or on a stated later date [Corp. Code § 16601(1)]. A voluntary dissociation may be rightful or wrongful with quite different consequences, which are discussed in § 403.12.

[3] Provision in Partnership Agreement

A partner is dissociated on the occurrence of an event specified in the partnership agreement as causing the partner's dissociation [Corp. Code § 16601(2)]. For example, a professional partnership agreement would commonly require dissociation if a partner's license to practice is revoked. The range of possible events that could be specified is exceptionally wide and could be almost anything that would not violate some applicable law, such as laws prohibiting discrimination that apply to the partnership. A partner may also be expelled if the partnership agreement so provides [Corp. Code § 16601(3)].

[4] Unanimous Vote of Other Partners

Absent an agreement providing otherwise, a partner may be expelled by the unanimous vote of the other partners if any of the following apply [Corp. Code § 16601(4)]:

- It is unlawful to carry on the partnership business with that partner.

- There has been a transfer of all or substantially all of that partner's transferable interest in the partnership, other than a transfer for security purposes, or a court order charging the partner's interest, that has not been foreclosed.

- Within 90 days after the partnership notifies a corporate partner that it will be expelled because it has filed a certificate of dissolution or the equivalent, its charter has been revoked, or its right to conduct business has been suspended by the jurisdiction of its incorporation, and the certificate of dissolution has not been revoked or the corporation's charter or its right to conduct business has not been reinstated.

- A partnership, limited partnership, or limited liability company that is a partner has been dissolved and its business is being wound up.

[5] Judicial Determination

On application by the partnership or another partner, a court may order a partner's expulsion for any of the following reasons [Corp. Code § 16601(5)]:

- The partner engaged in wrongful conduct that adversely and materially affected the partnership business.

- The partner willfully or persistently committed a material breach of the partnership agreement or of a duty owed to the partnership or the other partners [see Corp. Code § 16404; see also Ch. 401, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners and Partnership].

- The partner engaged in conduct relating to the partnership business that makes it not reasonably practicable to carry on the business in partnership with that partner.

[6] Financial Problems

If the partner acts or fails to act in any of the following instances, that partner is dissociated from the partnership unless the partnership agreement provides otherwise [Corp. Code § 16601(6)]:

- By becoming a debtor in bankruptcy [see Corp. Code § 16101(2) (definition); see also Ch. 400, Partnerships: Governing Statutes].

- By executing an assignment for the benefit of creditors.

- By seeking, consenting to, or acquiescing in the appointment of a trustee, receiver, or liquidator of that partner or all or substantially all of that partner's property.

- By failing, within 90 days after the appointment, to have vacated or stayed the appointment of a trustee, receiver, or liquidator of the partner or of all or substantially all of the partner's property obtained without the partner's consent or acquiescence, or failing within 90 days after the expiration of a stay to have the appointment vacated.

[7] Death or Incapacity

A partner who is an individual is dissociated from the partnership by death, the appointment of a guardian or general conservator of that partner, or a judicial determination that the partner has otherwise become incapable of performing the partner's duties under the partnership agreement [Corp. Code § 16601(7)].

[8] Distribution of Transferable Interest in Partnership by Trust or Estate

A partner that is a trust or acting as a partner by virtue of being a trustee of a trust is dissociated upon the distribution of the trust's entire transferable interest in the partnership, but not merely upon the substitution of a successor trustee [Corp. Code § 16601(8)]. A partner that is an estate or acting as a partner by virtue of being a personal representative of an estate is dissociated when the estate's entire transferable interest in the partnership is distributed, but not merely upon the substitution of a successor personal representative [Corp. Code § 16601(9)].

[9] Partners Dissenting From Conversion or Merger Under UPA'94

[a] Conversions

If a partner in a general partnership that is converting into another kind of entity, such as limited liability company, does not vote in favor of the conversion and does not agree to become a partner, member, shareholder, or holder of an interest in the converted other business entity, that partner may rightfully dissociate from the partnership as of the date the conversion takes effect [Corp. Code § 16909(e)].

Within 10 days after the other partners' approval of conversion, the converting partnership must send notice of the approval to each partner that has not approved the conversion, accompanied by copies of Corp. Code § 16701 (the mandatory buyout provisions) and a brief description of the procedure to be followed under that section if the partner wishes to dissociate from the partnership. A partner that wants to dissociate must send written notice of dissociation within 30 days after the date of the notice of the approval of the conversion. The converting partnership must then cause the partner's interest in the entity to be purchased in accordance with Corp. Code § 16701 [Corp. Code § 16909(e); see § 403.13 (buyout of partner's interest)].

[b] Mergers

If a partner in a California partnership that will not survive a merger does not vote in favor of the merger and does not agree to become a partner, member, shareholder, or holder of interest of equity securities of the surviving partnership or surviving other business entity, that partner has the right to dissociate from the partnership as of the date the merger takes effect [Corp. Code § 16914(e)].

Within 10 days after the other partners' approval of a merger, the partnership must send notice of the approval to each partner that has not approved the conversion, accompanied by copies of Corp. Code § 16701 (the mandatory buyout provisions) and a brief description of the procedure to be followed under that section if the partner wishes to dissociate from the partnership. A partner who wants to dissociate must send written notice of dissociation within 30 days after the date of the notice of the approval of the merger. The disappearing partnership must then cause the partner's interest in partnership to be purchased [Corp. Code § 16914(e); see § 403.13 (buyout of partner's interest)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

35-403 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 403.12

§ 403.12 Power of Partner to Dissociate Under UPA'94

[1] In General

A partner has the power to dissociate at any time, rightfully or wrongfully, by giving the partnership the notice of that intent, effective when thepartnership has notice [see Corp. Code § 16102(b) (defining "notice"); see also Ch. 400, Partnerships: Governing Statutes] or as of a specified later date [Corp. Code § 16602(a)]. The partnership agreement cannot vary a partner's power to dissociate, except to require the dissociating partner to notify the partnership in writing [Corp. Code § 16103(b)(6)]. It appears, however, that the partnership agreement can impose conditions, restrictions, or other requirements on dissociation before it is rightful. If a partner's dissociation does not comply with the partnership agreement, it would then be wrongful [see Corp. Code § 16602(b)(1)].

[2] Wrongful Dissociation

As noted in [1], above, a partner's dissociation will be wrongful if it is in breach of an express provision of the partnership agreement. In addition, subject to contrary provisions in the partnership agreement of a partnership for a definite term or a particular undertaking, dissociation is also wrongful if the partner dissociates before the expiration of the term or the completion of the undertaking and any of the following apply [Corp. Code § 16602(b)(2)]:

- The partner withdraws by express will, unless the withdrawal follows within 90 days after another partner's dissociation by death or otherwise under Corp. Code § 16601(6)-(10), inclusive, or wrongful dissociation under Corp. Code § 16602(b).

- The partner has been expelled by judicial determination [see Corp. Code § 16601(5); see also § 403.11[5]].

- The partner is dissociated by reason of becoming a debtor in bankruptcy.

- A partner that is not an individual, trust or estate is expelled or otherwise dissociated because it willfully dissolves or terminates.

UPA'94 distinguishes between rightful and wrongful dissociation for the purpose of allocating rights and liabilities [see discussion in § 403.13]. For example, a wrongfully dissociating partner is liable to the partnership and the other partners for damages caused by the dissociation, in addition to any other obligation that partner may have to them [Corp. Code § 16602(c)]. A wrongfully dissociating partner also is not permitted a voice in determining whether a partnership should waive dissolution and continue in business [see Corp. Code § 16802(b)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

35-403 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 403.13

§ 403.13 Buyout of Dissociating Partners Under UPA'94

[1] Terms of Buyout

Under UPA'94, when a partner dissociates, whether rightfully or wrongfully, that partner's interest in the partnership must be bought out by the partnership at a price determined by a formula set forth in UPA'94, except and to the extent otherwise provided in the partnership agreement [Corp. Code § 16701(a)].

The buyout price under UPA'94 is the amount that would have been distributable to the dissociating partner on dissolution and winding up, i.e., after creditors have been paid and accounts settled [see Corp. Code § 16807 (order of distribution); see also Ch. 406, Partnerships: Dissolution] if, on the date of dissociation, the assets of the partnership were sold at a price equal to the greater of: (1) the liquidation value, or (2) the value based on the sale of the entire business as a going concern (without the dissociated partner), and the partnership was wound up as of that date [Corp. Code § 16701(b)]. Interest must be paid from the date of dissociation to the date of payment [Corp. Code § 16701(b)]. If the rate of interest is not specified in the partnership agreement or otherwise, the interest rate is as specified in Civ. Code 3289 [Corp. Code § 16104(b)].

Damages for wrongful dissociation and any other amounts owing, whether or not presently due, to the partnership by the dissociating partner must be offset against the buyout price, with interest from the date the amount owed is due until the date of payment [Corp. Code § 16701(c)].

UPA'94's buyout provisions do not apply to a partner who dissociates within 90 days prior to the partnership's dissolution. Instead, such a partner is treated as any other partner and must wait for the winding up of the partnership, with the amount distributable to that partner taking into account any amounts owed by the partner to the partnership (whether or not presently due), including damages for wrongful dissociation [Corp. Code § 16701.5].

[2] Accounting for Goodwill

As noted in [1], above, the buyout price is subject to provisions of the partnership agreement, which may or may not specifically provide for payment of a dissociating partner's share of partnership goodwill. Under the pre-'97 Act, it was held that if some of the partners continue to operate the partnership business after withdrawal of a partner, they must account to the retiring partner for the goodwill of the business and pay that partner his, her or its share of the goodwill in an accounting [Driskill v. Thompson (1956) 141 Cal. App. 2d 479, 484, 296 P.2d 834 (1956)] . The same rule appears to apply, absent a contrary agreement, under the buyout provisions of UPA'94, when the partnership is valued as a going concern for purposes of calculating the buyout price for a dissociated partner's interest.

An exception to the requirement that goodwill be included is based on case law under the pre-'97 Act holding that a law partnership does not have goodwill that can be legally divided on dissolution, since the goodwill attaches to the individual partners and not to the partnership. Payment for goodwill following dissolution of a law partnership was held barred byCalifornia Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 2-200(A), which prohibits the division of fees for legal services among lawyers who are not partners or associates within the same firm, unless the client consents in writing and the fee bears a reasonable relationship to the services rendered by all of them. Thus, the goodwill of a law partnership cannot be assigned a monetary value or be distributed as an asset on dissolution of the partnership [Fraser v. Bogucki (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 604, 607-610, 250 Cal. Rptr. 41 ; see Lyon v. Lyon (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 519, 524, 54 Cal. Rptr. 829] . In the context of the buyout of a dissociated partner under UPA'94, this rule means that a withdrawing law partner cannot receive an allocation of partnership goodwill as part of the buyout price.

[3] Payment or Tender of Buyout Price on Failure to Reach Agreement

If no agreement for the purchase of a dissociated partner's interest is reached within the 120 days of a written demand for payment, the partnership must pay, or cause to be paid, in cash, to the dissociated partner the amount the partnership estimates to be the buyout price with accrued interest, less any offsets, including those arising out of damages for wrongful dissociation [Corp. Code § 16701(e)].

A partner who has wrongfully dissociated from a partnership for a definite term or particular undertaking [see Corp. Code § 16602(b)(2); see also § 403.12[2]] is not entitled to payment of any portion of the buyout price until the expiration of the term or completion of the undertaking, unless the partner establishes to the satisfaction of a court that earlier payment will not cause undue hardship to the business of the partnership. If the payment is deferred it must be adequately secured and bear interest [Corp. Code § 16701(h)]. If the payment may be deferred, the partnership may tender a written offer to pay the estimated amount of the deferred buyout price, with interest but reduced by offsets, stating the time payment, type of security, and the other terms and conditions of the obligation [Corp. Code § 16701(f)].

Either payment or tender of an offer to pay a dissociated partner the buyout price must be accompanied by [Corp. Code § 16701(g)]:

- A statement of partnership assets and liabilities as of the date of dissociation.
- The latest available partnership balance sheet and income statement, if any.
- An explanation of how the estimated amount of the payment was calculated.
- Written notice that the payment is in full satisfaction of the obligation to purchase unless, within 120 days after the written notice, the dissociated partner commences an action to determine the buyout price and any offsets or other terms of the obligation to purchase.

[4] Court Action to Determine Buyout Price

In addition to a dissociated partner's right to maintain an action to enforce any buyout provision in the partnership agreement [Corp. Code § 16405(b)(1)], a dissociated partner may also maintain an action pursuant to Corp. Code § 16405(b)(2)(B) against the partnership to determine the buyout price of that partner's interest, including any offsets or other terms of the obligation to purchase. That action must be commenced within 120 days after the partnership has tendered payment or an offer to pay, or within one year after written demand for payment if the partnership has not paid or tendered an offer of payment. The court must determine the buyout price, offsets, and accrued interest, and enter a judgment for any additional payment or refund. The court must also determine the security for payment and other terms of the obligation [Corp. Code § 16701(i)].

The court may assess reasonable attorney's fees and the fees and expenses of appraisers or experts, in amounts that the court finds equitable, against a party that the court finds acted arbitrarily, vexatiously, or not in good faith. That finding may be based on the partnership's failure to tender payment or an offer to pay or to furnish the statement [see [3], above] that must accompany an offer to pay or tender of payment [Corp. Code § 16701(i)].

[5] Duty Owed Dissociated Partners Respecting Buyout

Although it is difficult to imagine circumstances in which a dissociated partner might attempt to invoke the former partners' duty of loyalty and care, at least with respect to events occurring after the partner's dissociation, the other partners' obligation of good faith and fair dealing remains an obligation until the dissociating partner's interest has been purchased. This is the holding of cases decided before UPA'94 was enacted and can be inferred from its provisions for the buyout of dissociated partners.

For example, when a partnership is dissolved by the death of a partner, the surviving partners owe a fiduciary duty to the deceased partner's estate to make a full and fair disclosure of all matters substantially affecting the fair market value of the partnership then known to them from the commencement of the buy-out negotiations until consummation of the buyout [Estate of Witlin (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 167, 175, 147 Cal. Rptr. 723] . On the other hand, decisions under the pre-'97 Act also held that because a partner's interest in the partnership is terminated by a sale of that interest [Vai v. Bank of America (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 329, 339, 15 Cal. Rptr. 71, 364 P.2d 247] , the fiduciary duty owed to this partner by the remaining partners ceases on the date of sale, even if the actual transfer of the interest occurs at a later date [Stone v. Millstein (9th Cir. [Cal.] 1986) 804 F.2d 1434, 1438 ; see also Lund v. Albrecht (9th Cir. [Cal.] 1991) 936 F.2d 459, 463 (partner's fiduciary duty to a selling partner ends when the partieshave formed and signed a contract to purchase the partnership interests of the selling partner)].

When an offer to purchase partnership property was made one month after the contract to purchase the selling partner's interest was made, the remaining partners had no duty to inform the selling partner of the later offer since the seller's interest had been terminated on the date of the contract of sale, even though the offer was received before the partnership interest was actually transferred [Stone v. Millstein (9th Cir. [Cal.] 1986) 804 F.2d 1434, 1438 ; but see Lund v. Albrecht (9th Cir. [Cal.] 1991) 936 F.2d 459, 464 (partner found to have breached fiduciary duty by failing to disclose to other partner offers to purchase partnership property at prices greater than value partners had decided on during negotiations to dissolve and sell partnership interest, the court holding that even though offers had been received after proposed terms of dissolution and buyout were agreed to in writing, that writing was not definitive agreement)].

Under UPA'94, the partners' obligation of good faith and fair dealing to dissociated partners may be inferred from the provisions of Corp. Code § 16701(g), which requires, at the time a payment or an offer to pay for a dissociated partner's interest in made, full disclosure of partnership financial matters and of how the buyout price was calculated. Furthermore, if a dissociated partner decides to refuse the partnership's offer and commence an action to have the buyout price determined by a court, the court may assess fees of attorneys, appraisers, and other experts against a party that the court finds acted arbitrarily, vexatiously, or not in good faith [Corp. Code § 16701(i)].

[6] Fiduciary Duties of Partner's Personal or Legal Representative

The duties and obligations discussed above apply to a person winding up the partnership business as the personal or legal representative of the last surviving partner as if the person were a partner [Corp. Code § 16404(g)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

35-403 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 403.14

§ 403.14 Termination of Rights and Duties of Dissociating Partner

[1] Management of Partnership Business

A dissociating partner's rights and duties with respect to the partnership and its property generally come to an end on dissociation. Thus, when a partner dissociates, either rightfully or wrongfully, the partner's right to participate in the management and conduct of the business terminates [Corp. Code § 16603].

[2] Duty Not to Compete With Partnership

The partner's duty under Corp. Code § 16404(b)(3) to refrain from competing with the partnership terminates on dissociation [Corp. Code § 16603]. Within limits, however, the partnership agreement may continue a partner's obligation to refrain from competing with the partnership. Bus. & Prof. Code § 16602 allows a partner, on or in anticipation of a dissolution of the partnership or dissociation of the partner from the partnership, to agree not to carry on a similar business within a specified geographic area where the partnership business has been conducted as long as any other partner, or anyone deriving title to the business or its goodwill from another partner, carries on a like business. The California Supreme Court has held that Bus. & Prof. Code § 16602 applies to partners in law firms as well as to other professional partnerships, that an agreement among law partners imposing a reasonable toll on departing partners who compete with the firm is enforceable, and that such an agreement is not inconsistent with Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 1-500, which prohibits attorneys from entering agreements that restrict the right to practice [Howard v. Babcock (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 409, 412, 418-419, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 80, 863 P.2d 150] .

An agreement pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 16602 does not require the partners to pay the withdrawing partner for goodwill [South Bay Radiology Medical Associates v. Asher (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1092, 220 Cal. App. 3d 1074, 1084, 269 Cal. Rptr. 15] .

[3] Duties of Loyalty and Care

Only with respect to matters arising and events occurring before the partner's dissociation, the partner's duties of loyalty [see Corp. Code § 16404(b)(1), (2); see also Ch. 401, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners and Partnership], and care [see Corp. Code § 16404(c)] as to the conduct of the partnership business are generally continued after dissociation [Corp. Code § 16603]. This means, for example, that a dissociated partner could not assist a person with a claim against the partnership that arose before the partner's dissociation; nor could a dissociated partner make any recklessly false accusation against a partnership with respect to a transaction occurring before dissociation.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

35-403 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 403.15

§ 403.15 When Liability of Dissociated Partners Is Discharged

[1] Partnership Obligations Incurred Prior to Dissociation

A partner's dissociation does not, of itself, discharge that partner's liability for a partnership obligation incurred before dissociation [Corp. Code § 16703(a)]. Sometimes, however, the partnership agreement or a buyout agreement will indemnify a dissociated partner against past and future partnership liabilities. UPA'94 expressly requires, subject to the provisions of such an agreement, that a dissociating partner be indemnified against all partnership liabilities, except liabilities of the partner to the partnership for any damage caused to the partnership arising from an obligation incurred by the dissociated partner after dissociation for whichthe partnership is liable pursuant to Corp. Code § 16702(a) [Corp. Code § 16701(d); see § 403.16].

If there is no indemnification agreement, a separate agreement between the creditor or client can be used to discharge the withdrawing partner's liability. The pre-'97 Act expressly provided that on dissolution of a partnership, an individual partner's liability for preexisting matters was not terminated except by performance of the agreement creating the liability or by the express or implied consent of the other contracting party that the partner need not perform the agreement [former Corp. Code § 15036(1); see Redman v. Walters (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 448, 453, 152 Cal. Rptr. 42 (law partner's failure to obtain clients' agreement that partner could withdraw from representation meant partner remained liable for any negligent act of partnership or of one or more of the remaining partners with respect to representation)]. Although the pre-'97 Act referred to the liability of a partner on dissolution, that is because, generally speaking, withdrawal (dissociation) of a partner caused dissolution under that Act.

UPA'94 also provides that by entering an agreement with a partnership creditor and the partners continuing the business, a dissociated partner may be released from liability for a partnership obligation [Corp. Code § 16703(c)].

[2] Partnership Obligations Incurred After Dissociation

Although discharge from post-dissociation partnership obligations is the rule, a partner's dissociation does not of itself discharge the partner's liability for a partnership obligation incurred after dissociation. Except for partners in domestic and foreign registered limited liability partnerships, a partner who dissociates is liable as a partner to the other party in a transaction entered into by the partnership, including a partnership surviving a conversion or merger, that took place within two years after the partner dissociates, if at the time of entering into the transaction all of the following apply to the other party [Corp. Code § 16703(a)]:

- The other party reasonably believed that the dissociated partner was a partner;

- The other party had no notice [see Corp. Code § 16102(b) (defining "notice"); see also Ch. 400, Partnerships: Governing Statutes] of the partner's dissociation;

- The other party is not deemed to have knowledge of the partner's dissociation under Corp. Code § 16303(e), which provides that third parties are deemed to have knowledge of limitations of authority contained in partnership statements recorded in the county recorder's office [see Ch. 402, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners or Partnership and Third Parties]; and

- The other party is not deemed to have notice under Corp. Code § 16704(c), which provides that third parties are deemed to have notice of a dissociation 90 days after a statement of dissociaton [see Corp. Code § 16704] is filed with the Secretary of State by the partner or the partnership.

A two-year overhang of liability may be avoided by giving actual notice to persons who might have claims for which the dissociated partner might be liable within the two year period, and by giving constructive notice by filing and, as appropriate, recording a statement of dissociation. In the alternative, by agreement with a partnership creditor and the partners continuing the business, a dissociated partner may be released from liability for a post-dissociation partnership obligation [Corp. Code § 16703(c)].

[3] When Partnership Obligation Altered

UPA'94 relieves a dissociated partner from liability for a partnership obligation, regardless of when incurred, if the partnership's creditor, having notice of the partner' dissociation [see Corp. Code § 16102(b) (defining "notice"); see also Ch. 400, Partnerships: Governing Statutes], but without the dissociated partner's consent, agrees to a material alteration in the nature or time of payment of a partnership obligation [Corp. Code § 16703(d)].

[4] Placing Third Persons on Notice of Dissociation

As noted in [2], above, a dissociating partner and/or the partnership can notify third parties of the dissociation and can give constructive notice to the world by filing and, if appropriate, recording, a statement of dissociation.

The partner or the partnership may file a statement of dissociation with the Secretary of State. The statement of dissociation must state the name of the partnership, any identification number issued by the Secretary of State, and that the partner is dissociated [Corp. Code § 16704(a)]. The filed statement is a "limitation" on the dissociating partner's authority [Corp. Code § 16704(b)], which means that any person dealing with the dissociated partner who knows of the limitation or has been notified of it cannot bind the partnership in those dealings. With respect to real property transactions, a filed and recorded statement of dissociation will give third persons immediate constructive knowledge of the limitation on authority under Corp. Code § 16303(e). With respect to all other transactions, a filed statement will give notice to third parties 90 days after the statement has been filed with the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 16704(c)].

Since the circumstances of the partner's dissociation may make a 90-day window of joint and several liability for non-real property transactions undesirable from the points of view of both the dissociating partner and the partnership, most partnerships, in addition to filing a statement ofdissociation, will give actual notice of a partner's dissociation to partnership creditors at the earliest possible time.

§ 403.16 Liability of Partnership and Partners for Acts of Dissociated Partner

Corp. Code § 16702(a) provides that for two years after a partner dissociates, the partnership, including a partnership that survives a conversion or merger, remains bound by the acts of a dissociated partner only if the third party reasonably believed the dissociated partner was still a partner, had no notice [see Corp. Code § 16102(b) (defining "notice"); see also Ch. 400, Partnerships: Governing Statutes] of the dissociation, and is not deemed to have knowledge or notice of the dissociation based on a recorded partnership statement [see Corp. Code § 16303(e)] or a filed statement of dissociation [see Corp. Code § 16704(c)]. The same rules respecting the effect of the filing and, if appropriate, recording a statement of dissociation that apply to a dissociated partner's liability also apply to the partnership's and remaining partners' liability [Corp. Code § 16704(c); see discussion in § 403.15[4] .

A buyout agreement governed by UPA'94 is not required to indemnify the dissociated partner for that partner's post-dissociation actions that bind the partnership [see Corp. Code § 16701(d)]. Furthermore, if the partnership is liable for an act of the dissociated partner within the two-year period, that partner is liable to the partnership for any damages arising out of the obligation the partner incurred [Corp. Code § 16702(b)].

PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

35-403 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 403.32

§ 403.32 Decisions

[1] Action by Personal Representative of Deceased Partner

Administrator or executor of deceased partner has no power to handle partnership property or affairs, since right to possession, control, and disposition of partnership property vests in surviving partner. Minifie v. Rowley (1921) 187 Cal. 481, 483-484, 202 P. 673

Executor of will of last surviving partner is entitled to bring action for recovery of partnership property without joining executors of wills of earlier deceased partners. Minifie v. Rowley (1921) 187 Cal. 481, 484, 202 P. 673

[2] Dissolution Not Caused by Dissociation Under Pre-'97 Act

Expulsion of a partner does not cause dissolution if partnership agreement provides for continuation in that event. Heller v. Pillsbury Madison & Sutro(1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1367, 1385, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 336 (1996) ; Cagnolatti v. Guinn (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 42, 48, 189 Cal. Rptr. 151

Sale, conveyance, transfer, or assignment by partner of his or her interest in partnership or property to copartner or third party does not of itself dissolve partnership, although entire circumstances connected with transfer may be sufficient to cause dissolution. Chatten v. Martell (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 545, 551, 333 P.2d 364

Partner who has parted with his or her partnership interest is not permitted to join in action for dissolution of partnership. Chatten v. Martell (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 545, 552, 333 P.2d 364

Partnership for particular undertaking is not dissolved by express will of partner. Zeibak v. Nasser (1938) 12 Cal. 2d 1, 13, 82 P.2d 375

Death of partner does not necessarily dissolve partnership. Zeibak v. Nasser (1938) 12 Cal. 2d 1, 17, 82 P.2d 375

[3] Liability of Dissociating Partner for Partnership Obligations

Individual partner's liability for existing partnership liability is not terminated on dissolution except by performance of agreement creating that liability or by express or implied consent of other contracting party that he or she need not perform. Redman v. Walters (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 448, 453, 152 Cal. Rptr. 42

In suit brought by creditor of partnership against partnership and surviving partner, neither executor nor heirs of deceased partner were indispensable or necessary parties. Pearson v. Norton (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 1, 18, 40 Cal. Rptr. 634

[4] Notice of Dissociation or Dissolution

Defendant partner is required to show that creditor had actual notice of partnership dissolution if creditor had had prior credit dealings with partnership. Credit Bureaus of Merced County v. Shipman (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 673, 678, 334 P.2d 1036

Publication of notice of dissolution of partnership alone does not compel finding of creditor's actual knowledge of dissolution. Credit Bureaus of Merced County v. Shipman (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 673, 678, 334 P.2d 1036

Partnership is not bound if creditor had actual notice of dissolution at time of transaction, even though notice of dissolution had not been published pursuant to former Corp. Code § 15035.5. Carvalho v. McCoy (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 702, 705, 276 P.2d 21

Partner seeking to avoid liability has burden of showing that creditor of partnership had notice of dissolution of partnership prior to transaction. Epley v. Hiller (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 100, 104, 274 P.2d 696

Creditor must know of existence of partnership prior to its dissolution and has burden of proving that knowledge in order to bind partnership for acts of partner after dissolution, pursuant to former Corp. Code § 15035. Vogler v. Ingrao (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 341, 344, 266 P.2d 826

[5] Purchase of Dissociating Partner's Interest

[a] Buy-Sell Agreements

Partners' agreement to partial division in kind of partnership assets are valid and must be honored by court, as long as agreement is proved and not assailed on grounds of mistake or fraud. Logoluso v. Logoluso (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 523, 528, 43 Cal. Rptr. 678

Partners are permitted to agree that partnership will not be dissolved by death of partner; that interest of deceased partner may be purchased by surviving partners for stated sum or formula; or that investment of deceased partner will continue, and statutes do not control partnership liquidation under those circumstances. Wood v. Gunther (1949) 89 Cal. App. 2d 718, 727, 201 P.2d 874

[b] Duties of Continuing Partners

Although partners have fiduciary duties towards each other, selling partner has no cause of action against buying partner based on buying partner's stated intent not to resell to third persons when seller could not rely on statement as matter of law because it was made after seller decided to sell and buyer's resale to others was motivated by changes in circumstances that occurred after statement was made. Edmunds v. Valley Circle Estates (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 1290, 1297-1304, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 701

Fiduciary duty of disclosure terminates on formation of contract for sale of partnership interest, contract being formed when selling partner communicates to buying partner acceptance of offer to purchase, after which matters affecting value of interest sold need not be disclosed. Stone v. Millstein (9th Cir. 1986) 804 F.2d 1434, 1437-1438 (diversity case applying California law, distinguishing Estate of Witlin (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 167, 176, 147 Cal. Rptr. 723 , as involving special duty to deceased partner's estate and Laux v. Freed (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 512, 517, 2 Cal. Rptr. 265, 348 P.2d 873 , as involving special duties owed during dissolution and liquidation)

Surviving or liquidating partner is, if not trustee, at least quasi trustee for former partners. Metzenbaum v. Metzenbaum (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 395, 398, 252 P.2d 31

Surviving partner is trustee of partnership property and owes maximum of good faith and personal confidence to decedent and decedent's beneficiaries. Sibert v. Shaver (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 833, 839, 245 P.2d 514

[6] Use of Partnership Name After Dissociation

On dissolution of partnership, remaining partner has right to continue business under original partnership name. Speka v. Speka (1954) 124 Cal. App. 2d 181, 190, 268 P.2d 129

[7] Valuation of Dissociated Partner's Interest

[a] Assessment of Costs and Fees

Court has discretion to tax partners proportionately for appraisers' fee. Zeibak v. Nasser (1938) 12 Cal. 2d 1, 19-20, 82 P.2d 375

Fee of expert accountant appointed by and acting under direction of court is chargeable cost in partnership dissolution action. ABC Egg Ranch v. Abdelnour (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 12, 19, 35 Cal. Rptr. 487

Assessment of receiver's costs, fees, and expenses are within sound discretion of trial court, and assessment of those costs against party whose conduct made appointment of receiver necessary is proper. Luchs v. Ormsby (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 377, 389, 340 P.2d 702

[b] Generally

Retiring partner who waits too long to compel liquidation and distribution of any net proceeds under former Corp. Code § 15038(a) while remaining partners continue business has waived rights under that section and is left only with right to accounting under former Corp. Code § 15042. Oliker v. Gershunoff (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1288, 1295-1298, 241 Cal. Rptr. 415 (waited three years)

Value of retiring partner's share for purpose of former Corp. Code § 15042 is required to be determined as of date of partnership dissolution. Casida v. Roberts (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 853, 856, 337 P.2d 829

[c] Goodwill

Good will is partnership asset, even in case of partnership at will. Driskill v. Thompson (1956) 141 Cal. App. 2d 479, 484, 296 P.2d 834

Partners are competent witnesses as to value of partnership property. Vangel v. Vangel (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 615, 627, 254 P.2d 919

When one partner becomes disabled and unable to participate in partnership business, copartner continuing business has appropriated good will and has duty to account to retired partner for its value. Miller v. Hall (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 200, 205-206, 150 P.2d 287

Leasehold interests, permits to do business, and good will of partnership are partnership assets. Ruppe v. Utter (1925) 76 Cal. App. 19, 24-25, 243 P. 715

[d] Interest

Under former Corp. Code § 15042, departing partner is required to elect share of post-dissolution profits attributable to use of partner's share of assets of former partnership or payment of prejudgment interest and by electing to claim share of profits for nine years of post-dissolution litigation between former partners, departing partner is barred from seeking prejudgment interest. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman v. Cohen (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1055-1056, 237 Cal. Rptr. 14

When accounting and distribution of partnership assets are delayed through fault of partner having possession, interest is allowed from date when balance should have been ascertained and paid. Chazan v. Most (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 519, 524, 25 Cal. Rptr. 864

Partner is permitted to collect interest when partnership funds have been wrongfully withheld or when partner in charge of partnership books wrongfully makes overdraft. Luchs v. Ormsby (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 377, 388, 340 P.2d 702

When conduct of partner warrants, court has discretion to penalize such partner by charging interest from date of dissolution. Speka v. Speka (1954) 124 Cal. App. 2d 181, 187, 268 P.2d 129

[e] Profits

Application of former Corp. Code § 15042 entitling deceased partner's estate to interest or profits attributable to decedent's share in partnership "unless otherwise agreed," is not precluded by partnership agreement that only provides for appraisal of decedent's share but is silent on issue of payment of interest or profits. Estate of Zucker (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1198, 1204, 268 Cal. Rptr. 4

Delay in appraising value of deceased partner's interest in partnership does not justify refusal to pay estate interest on value under former Corp. Code § 15042, absent findings that estate either acted in bad faith or was more than partially responsible for delay. Estate of Zucker (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1198, 1205, 268 Cal. Rptr. 4

In real estate investment partnership, profits accruing under former Corp. Code § 15042 on retired partner's interest used by continuing partners prior to settlement of account did not include post-dissolution appreciation of value of realty owned on date of dissolution and later sold; facts that retired partner, an attorney, joined competing business and never told continuing partners of legal consequences of failure to settle account were equitable considerations. Oliker v. Gershunoff (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1288, 1303-1307, 241 Cal. Rptr. 415

Retiring partner is entitled to have accounting made before being compelled to choose between profits and interest pursuant to former Corp. Code § 15042. Casida v. Roberts (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 853, 857, 337 P.2d 829

[f] Unfinished Business

Remaining partners' bad faith in connection with dissolution (failure to properly account for income from unfinished business, repudiation of agreement settling compensation dispute) does not bar their right to accounting and share of profits from unfinished business completed by withdrawing partners. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman v. Cohen (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1063, 237 Cal. Rptr. 14

Absent partnership agreement, attorneys' fees received on cases in progress on dissolution are post-dissolution income of unfinished business to be allocated to former partners according to their respective ownership interests in former partnership. Jewel v. Boxer (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 171, 177-178, 203 Cal. Rptr. 13

Court are required to look at circumstances existing on date of dissolution of partnership, and not to events occurring thereafter, to determine whether business of dissolved partnership is unfinished business. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman v. Cohen (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 200, 217, 194 Cal. Rptr. 180

Case in progress on date of dissolution of law partnership is unfinished business. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman v. Cohen (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 200, 217, 194 Cal. Rptr. 180

Surviving partner's expenditure of time, labor, and skill in administration of partnership assets incident to successful termination of unfinished business entitles him or her to remuneration under former Civ. Code § 2412 (now Corp. Code § 16401(h)). Jacobson v. Wikholm (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 24, 29, 172 P.2d 878

[8] Venue

Defendant partner in partnership dissolution action not permitted to have venue changed to his or her county of residence when any other defendant partner resides in county in which suit was brought. Rudnick v. Delfino (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 260, 265-266, 294 P.2d 983

Action for accounting is personal and defendant is entitled to have trial in county of his or her residence despite fact that plaintiff was seeking order compelling defendant to convey real property located in different county. Hays v. Cowles (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 514, 518, 141 P.2d 26 ; see Coe v. Kessler (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 536, 541, 294 P.2d 83

[2] Use of Form

[a] Partner's Right to Buyout Price

The form in [1], above, may be used by a dissociated partner who is seeking to recover from the partnership the value of his or her partnership interest after either the partnership has refused to pay the value of that interest or the parties cannot agree on its value. Although UPA'94 refers to an action "to determine the buyout price of [a] partner's interest" [Corp. Code § 16701(i)], the Act also authorizes the dissociated partner to maintain an action to "enforce ... the partner's right on dissociation to have the partner's interest in the partnership purchased" [Corp. Code § 16405(b)(2)(B)]. Thus, the relief sought includes not only a determination of the buyout price, but a judgment against the defendants for that amount. For discussion of the right of dissociated partners to receive a buyout of their interests and how those interests are valued, see § 403.13. In the event the dissociation of the partner is the result of his or her death, this form should be modified to indicate the plaintiff's capacity as the decedent's legal representative [see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used].

[b] Wrongfully Dissociating Partners

This complaint assumes that the plaintiff's dissociation did not occur before the expiration of the partnership's limited term or undertaking and therefore that it was not wrongful [see Corp. Code § 16602(b) (defining wrongful dissociation)]. When dissociation is wrongful because it is premature, the partnership is not required to pay the buyout price within 120 days of dissociation, but within the same period it must make tender of an estimate of the buyout price, adequately secured and interest-bearing, payable on the expiration of the term or undertaking [Corp. Code § 16701(h)]. If the plaintiff is a wrongfully dissociating partner, the form in [1], above, should be modified to indicate that, rather than failure to pay, no buyout price estimate was tendered to the plaintiff, or that it was not adequately secured. A prematurely dissociating partner, however, may avoid a deferred buyout if he or she alleges and proves that earlier payment would not cause undue hardship to the partnership business [Corp. Code § 16701(h)]. In that event, the form in [1], above, must be modified to make such an allegation. For an affirmative defense to a complaint by a wrongfully dissociating partner alleging nonpayment of the buyout price, see § 403.42[1].

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges:

- The capacity of a defendant partnership [see Code Civ. Proc. § 369.5(a)], that it is being sued in its name [Corp. Code § 16307(a)], and that the partners are also defendants [see Corp. Code § 16307(b) (partnership and partners may be sued in same action)] (Paragraph 1).

- The plaintiff's dissociation from the partnership and his or her demand for payment of a buyout price [Corp. Code § 16701(e)] (Paragraph 2).

- Either that the defendants have not paid the buyout price as required by Corp. Code § 16701(e) [see Corp. Code § 16701(i) (action must be commenced within one year of failure to tender or offer to pay buyout price)], or that plaintiff did not agree to defendants' offer (Paragraph 3).

- That the defendants' conduct was arbitrary, vexatious, and not in good faith, based on the failure to make any offer to pay or to provide the required documentation of an offer [see Corp. Code § 16701(g) (documents required to accompany a payment or tender of payment)], thus permitting the court to award the plaintiff attorneys', appraisers' and other experts' fees [Corp. Code § 16701(i)] (Paragraph 4).

[4] Prayer

The form in [1], above, gives the plaintiff the option of seeking various kinds of relief, depending on the circumstances. For example, the court could be asked to appoint appraisers to determine the buyout price (Paragraph 1), or the plaintiff may request an accounting of the partnership business as part of the action to determine the buyout price (Paragraph 2) [Corp. Code § 16405(b)]. The prayer for a judgment against defendants in the amount of the buyout price includes a prayer for interest from the date of dissociation to the date of payment, which the dissociating partner is entitled to under UPA'94 (Paragraph 4) [Corp. Code § 16701(b)]. The partnership must also indemnify the dissociated partner against all partnership liabilities, whether incurred before or after dissociation (Paragraph 5) [Corp. Code § 16701(d), see § 403.16 (acts of dissociated partner creating partnership liability)].

[5] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified also, if the action is in the superior court and is not a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial except in a limited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

[6] Venue

The superior court in the county in which the defendants, or some of them, reside at the commencement of the action is the proper court for trial of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)].

2. 3. Within 30 days of the date of the notice referred to in Paragraph 2, above, plaintiff sent written notice to defendants that plaintiff desired to dissociate from defendant partnership, and included in that notice a demand for payment of plaintiff's interest in the partnership, hereinafter referred to as "the buyout price." [A copy of the notice is attached as Exhibit _____ and incorporated by reference.]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use in a complaint for enforcement of a dissenting partner's right to have his or her interest in a partnership purchased when he or she does not vote for a merger or conversion of the partnership and does not agree to become a partner, member, shareholder, or holder of interest of equity securities in the surviving entity [*see Corp. [A copy of the agreement is attached as Exhibit _____ and incorporated by reference.]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a partnership that is a defendant in an action to determine the buyout price of a dissociating partner's interest in the partnership. It should be used when the partnership agreement or an ancillary agreement between the parties fixes the formula for arriving at the buyout price.

Both the pre-'97 Act and UPA'94 contemplate that the partners will arrive at their own agreement concerning their respective rights in the partnership, including the right to a buyout of their interests [see former Corp. Code § 15043 (right of dissociating partner to accounting subject other agreement), Corp. Code § 16103 (partnership agreement generally governs relations between partners); see also former Corp. Code § 15040 (court's power to settle partnership accounts subject to partners' agreement)]. Under pre-'97 Act decisions, any agreement by the parties settling partnership accounts barred an action for accounting by the court [Cayton v. Walker (1858) 10 Cal. 450, 456 ; Pilch v. Milikin (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 212, 223, 19 Cal. Rptr. 334] .

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by either a retired partner or the legal representative of a deceased partner of a partnership governed by the pre-'97 Act. Subject to any agreement to the contrary, the pre-'97 Act specifically entitled any partner, or the partner's legal representative, to an accounting of the partner's interest at the date of dissolution against the persons or partners continuing the business [former Corp. Code § 15043]. Furthermore, a retired partner or the legal representative of a deceased partner had the right to become the dissolved partnership's creditor to the extentof the retired or deceased partner's interest in the partnership [former Corp. Code § 15042; see [3], below].

This form should not be used in proceedings governed by the UPA'94. The UPA'94 established a completely new scheme governing the purchase of the interest of a dissociating partner [Corp. Code § 16701]. Under this scheme, payment or tender of the value of a dissociating partner's interest must be accompanied by (1) a statement of partnership assets and liabilities as of the date of dissolution; (2) the latest available partnership balance sheet and income statement, if any, and (3) an explanation of how the estimated amount of the payment was calculated [Corp. Code § 16701(g)]. For a form for use in proceedings governed by UPA'94, see § 403.40. For an explanation of the limited circumstances in which the pre-'97 Act remains applicable, see § 403.10[1]; see also §§ 400.10, 400.11 in Ch. 400, Partnerships: Governing Statutes.

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges:

- If the action is brought by the legal representative of a deceased partner, the plaintiff's capacity as legal representative (Paragraph 1) [former Corp. Code §§ 15042, 15043].

- The existence of the partnership and dissolution on either the plaintiff's retirement or the decedent's death (Paragraph 3) [see former Corp. Code §§ 15031(4),(7), 15042].

- The continuance of the partnership business subsequent to dissolution, and the lack of an accounting between plaintiff and defendant(s) (Paragraph 4) [former Corp. Code § 15042].

- Plaintiff's or deceased partner's share of property of the dissolved partnership (Paragraph 5) [see former Corp. Code § 15042].

- The necessity of an accounting by defendant(s) of the partnership and the continuing business (Paragraph 6) [see former Corp. Code § 15042; Casida v. Roberts (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 853, 857, 337 P.2d 829] .

[4] Rights of Retiring Partner or Partner's Estate When Business Continued

Under the pre-'97 Act, unless the parties agreed otherwise, a retired partner or the legal representative of a deceased partner could have the value of the partner's interest ascertained as of the date of dissolution, and could receive that amount as an ordinary creditor from those who continued the business without settling accounts. In addition, that partner or his or her legal representative could recover interest on that amount or, at the option of that partner or his or her legal representative, could recover profits made by the continuing business attributable to the use of that partner's right to the property of the dissolved partnership. Creditors of the dissolved partnership, however, had priority over separate creditors or the representative of the retired or deceased partner on any such claims [former Corp. Code §

[5] Right to Accounting Before Choosing Between Interest and Profits

The retired or deceased partner's right to an accounting accrued as against the partner or partners continuing the business at the date of dissolution, in the absence of any agreement to the contrary [former Corp. Code § 15043]. In an action against the partner or partners continuing the partnership business to obtain an accounting and to recover the retired or deceased partner's interest, the retiring partner or deceased partner's representative was entitled to have an accounting made before being compelled to choose between (1) interest on the value of the partnership interest, or (2) profits attributable to the use of the partner's right in the property of the partnership [see Casida v. Roberts (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 853, 857, 337 P.2d 829 (retiring partner)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

35-404 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 404.10

§ 404.10 Governing Law

[1] Limited Partnership Laws Before 2008

[a] Uniform Limited Partnership Act (ULPA)

Until January 1, 2010, the Uniform Limited Partnership Act (ULPA) [Corp. Code § 15501 et seq.] generally governed limited partnerships formed before July 1, 1984, the operative date of the California Revised Limited Partnership Act (CRLPA) [Corp. Code §§ 15534 (ULPA), 15711 (CRLPA); see Corp. Code § 15611 et seq. (CRLPA); see also [b], below].

On or after July 1, 1984, a limited partnership formed under the ULPA could elect to be governed by CRLPA [Corp. Code § 15712(b)(1) (CRLPA); see [b], below]. On or after January 1, 2008, a limited partnership originally formed under the ULPA could elect to be governed by the Uniform Limited Partnership Act of 2008 (ULPA '08) [Corp. Code § 15912.06(a)(2) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15900 et seq. (ULPA '08); see also [2][a], below].

Effective January 1, 2010, the ULPA is repealed [Corp. Code § 15534 (ULPA)], and all limited partnerships, regardless of the date of formation, are governed by the ULPA '08, except as specified by the ULPA '08 [Corp. Code § 15912.06(b) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15912.06(c) (ULPA '08) (exceptions); see also [2][a], below]. However, the ULPA '08 does not affect an action commenced, proceeding brought, or right accrued before January 1, 2008 [Corp. Code § 15912.07 (ULPA '08)].

[b] California Revised Limited Partnership Act (CRLPA)

Until January 1, 2010, the California Revised Limited Partnership Act (CRLPA) [Corp. Code § 15611 et seq.] generally governed limited partnerships formed on or after July 1, 1984, and before January 1, 2008, the operative date of the Uniform Limited Partnership Act of 2008 (ULPA '08) [Corp. Code §§ 15711, 15714, 15724 (CRLPA), 15912.06(a)(1) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15900 et seq. (ULPA '08)].

In addition, a limited partnership formed before July 1, 1984, could elect to be governed by CRLPA if all partners, or a lesser number as required by the partnership agreement, consented in writing to the election [Corp. Code § 15712(b)(1)

(CRLPA) (election was prospective only and did not affect preexisting rights of third parties)].

On or after January 1, 2008, any limited partnership governed by the CRLPA could elect to be governed by the ULPA '08 [Corp. Code § 15912.06(a)(2) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15900 et seq. (ULPA '08); see also [2][a], below].

Effective January 1, 2010, CRLPA is repealed [Corp. Code § 15724 (CRLPA)], and all limited partnerships, regardless of the date of formation, are governed by the ULPA '08, except as specified by the ULPA '08 [Corp. Code § 15912.06(b) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15912.06(c) (ULPA '08) (exceptions); see also [2][a], below]. However, the ULPA '08 does not affect an action commenced, proceeding brought, or right accrued before January 1, 2008 [Corp. Code § 15912.07 (ULPA '08)].

[c] Application of General Partnership Law

Limited partnerships governed by the ULPA and the CRLPA were subject to general partnership law on matters not specifically covered by the ULPA or CRLPA [Corp. Code §§ 15722, 16111 (CRLPA); see former Corp. Code § 15006(2)]. The ULPA '08 adopts a different approach and does not rely on general partnership law or any other source for the rules governing limited partnerships [see [2][b], below].

[2] Uniform Limited Partnership Act of 2008 (ULPA '08)

[a] Application of ULPA '08

The Uniform Limited Partnership Act of 2008 (ULPA '08) [see Stats. 2006, ch. 495, § 20; Corp. Code § 15900 et seq. (ULPA '08)], became operative on January 1, 2008 [Corp. Code § 15912.04 (ULPA '08)]. Through the end of 2009, the ULPA '08 generally governed the following limited partnerships [Corp. Code § 15912.06(a) (ULPA '08)]:

- Limited partnerships formed on or after January 1, 2008.

- Limited partnerships formed before January 1, 2008, that elected to be subject to the ULPA '08. However, the election did not change the law governing the limited partnership's liability to a third party on an obligation incurred between the time of the election and the end of 2009, if the third party did business with the partnership during the year preceding the election and had no knowledge or notice of the election at the time the obligation was incurred [Corp. Code § 15912.06(d) (ULPA '08)].

Effective January 1, 2010, all limited partnerships, regardless of the date of formation, generally are governed by the ULPA '08 [Corp. Code § 15912.06(b) (ULPA '08)]. However, with respect to a limited partnership formed before January 1, 2008, the following rules apply unless the partners elect otherwise [Corp. Code § 15912.06(c) (ULPA '08)]:

- The perpetual duration possessed by limited partnerships formed under the ULPA '08 [see Corp. Code § 15901.04(c) (ULPA '08)] does not apply, and the limited partnership has whatever duration it had under the law applicable immediately before January 1, 2008.

- The ULPA '08 provisions governing dissociation of limited partners [see Corp. Code §§ 15906.01, 15906.02 (ULPA '08)] do not apply, and a limited partner has the same right and power to dissociate from the limited partnership, with the same consequences, as existed immediately before January 1, 2008.

- The ULPA '08 provision for the expulsion of a general partner by unanimous vote of the other partners [see Corp. Code § 15906.03(d) (ULPA '08)] does not apply.

- The ULPA '08 provision for the expulsion by court order [see Corp. Code § 15906.03(e) (ULPA '08)] does not apply, and a court has the same power to expel a general partner as the court had immediately before January 1, 2008.

- The ULPA '08 provision specifying the circumstances in which the dissociation of a general partner dissolves a limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15908.01(c) (ULPA '08)] does not apply, and the connection between a general partner's dissociation and the dissolution of the limited partnership is the same as existed immediately before January 1, 2008.

Moreover, the ULPA '08 does not affect an action commenced, proceeding brought, or right accrued before January 1, 2008 [Corp. Code § 15912.07 (ULPA '08)]. Thus, because litigation involving California limited partnerships formed before 2008 may be governed by the ULPA or the CRLPA, this chapter will continue to provide discussion of those laws, and forms for use in litigation under those laws, as well as discussion and forms relevant to the ULPA '08. All references to Corp. Code § 15501 et seq. (ULPA) and to Corp. Code § 15611 et seq. (CRLPA) in this chapter are to provisions repealed as of 2010.

[b] Inapplicability of General Partnership Law

Unlike its predecessors [see [1], above], the ULPA '08 is a stand-alone law that does not rely on general partnership law or any other source for the rules governing limited partnerships [see R. Bradbury Clark, California's Uniform Limited Partnership Act of 2008--Summary and Analysis of the Act's Major Provisions, § 4.01[2] (LexisNexis 2007)]. Thus, the ULPA '08 is the only source that needs to be consulted for the statutory rules governing formation, filings, contributions and distributions, rights of transferees and creditors, dissociation, dissolution, actions by partners, conversion and merger, dissenting limited partners' rights, and foreign limited partnerships.

Chapter 404 PARTNERSHIPS: ACTIONS BETWEEN LIMITED PARTNERS AND PARTNERSHIPS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

35-404 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 404.11

§ 404.11 Formation of Limited Partnerships

[1] ULPA '08

To form a limited partnership under the ULPA '08, the partners must (1) enter into a partnership agreement and (2) file a certificate of limited partnership with the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 15902.01(a) (ULPA '08)]. The partnership agreement may be made before or after the filing of the certificate of limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15902.01(a) (ULPA '08)]. The certificate of limited partnership must be prepared on a form prescribed by the Secretary of State and must state all of the following [Corp. Code § 15902.01(a) (ULPA '08)]:

- The name of the limited partnership [see Corp. Code § 15901.08 (ULPA '08) (requirements for name)].

- The address of the limited partnership's initial designated office.

- The name and address of the initial agent for service of process [see Corp. Code § 15901.16(1)(d) (ULPA '08) (requirements for agent)].

- The name and the address of each general partner.

In addition, the certificate of limited partnership may contain any other matters, but it may not contain any provisions that are inconsistent with the restrictions on the contents of the limited partnership agreement [Corp. Code § 15902.01(b) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15901.10(b) (ULPA '08) (restrictions on contents of limited partnership agreement)].

Generally, the limited partnership is formed when the Secretary of State files the certificate of limited partnership, unless the certificate specifies a delayed effective date [Corp. Code § 15902.01(c) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15902.06(c) (ULPA '08) (procedure to revoke certificate before delayed effective date); see also Corp. Code § 15902.01(f) (ULPA '08) (Secretary of State may cancel filing of certificate of limited partnership if filing fee is not paid)].

Generally, if any provision of a limited partnership agreement is inconsistent with the filed certificate of limited partnership, the agreement prevails as to partners and transferees, and the filed certificate prevails as to persons, other than partners and transferees, that reasonably rely on the filed certificate to their detriment [Corp. Code § 15902.01(d) (ULPA '08)].

A limited partnership may record in the office of the county recorder of any county in this state a certified copy of the certificate of limited partnership, or any amendment thereto, which has been filed by the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 15902.01(e) (ULPA '08)].

[2] CRLPA

Under the CRLPA, a limited partnership was formed by the partners executing a partnership agreement and the general partners executing, acknowledging, and filing a certificate of limited partnership. The certificate must be filed in the office of, and on a form prescribed by, the Secretary of State. The certificate was required to state all of the following [Corp. Code § 15621(a) (CRLPA)]:

- The name of the partnership.
- The street address of the principal executive office [see Corp. Code § 15614(a) (CRLPA) (requiring office to be maintained in California and certain records to be kept there)].
- The names and addresses of the general partners.
- The name and address of an agent for service of process or a corporate agent [see Corp. Code § 15614(b) (CRLPA) (requiring agent for service of process to be maintained in California)].
- Any other matters that the person filing the certificate determined to include.

The limited partnership was formed at the time the certificate was filed in the office of the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 15621(b) (CRLPA)]. For all purposes, a copy of the certificate of limited partnership duly certified by the Secretary of State is conclusive evidence of the formation of a limited partnership and prima facie evidence of its existence [Corp. Code § 15621(c) (CRLPA)]. A limited partnership that is defectively formed due to its failure to file a certificate of limited partnership may still have the capacity to sue as a general partnership [American Alternative Energy Partners II v. Windridge, Inc. (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 551, 560-562, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 686 (partnership's noncompliance with certificate requirement held to have rendered it a general partnership under former Corp. Code § 15044 with capacity to sue at time of filing complaint)].

[3] ULPA

Before July 1, 1984, under the ULPA, a limited partnership was formed by filing a certificate of limited partnership with the county recorder [Corp. Code § 15502(1)(b), (2) (ULPA)]. The certificate was required to contain all of the following [Corp. Code § 15502(1)(a) (ULPA)]:

- The name of the partnership.
- The character of the business.
- The location of the principal place of business.

- The name and place of residence of each member, with general and limited partners designated as such.

- The partnership's term of existence.

- The amount of cash and a description of and the agreed value of the other property contributed by each limited partner.

- The additional contributions, if any, agreed to be made by each limited partner and the times at which, or the events on the happening of which, additional contributions must be made.

- The time, if agreed upon, when the contribution of each limited partner is to be returned.

- The share of the profits or the other compensation by way of income that each limited partner will receive by reason of his or her contribution.

- The right, if given, of a limited partner to substitute an assignee as contributor in his or her place, and the terms and conditions of the substitution.

- The right, if given, of the partners to admit additional limited partners.

- The right, if given, of one or more of the limited partners to priority over other limited partners, as to contributions or as to compensation by way of income, and the nature of such priority.

- The right, if given, of the remaining general partner or partners to continue the business on the death, retirement, or insanity of a general partner.

- The right, if given, of a limited partner to demand and receive property other than cash in return for his or her contribution.

- The right, if given, of a limited partner to vote on certain matters affecting the basic structure of the partnership [see Corp. Code § 15507(b) (ULPA)], and the vote required for election or removal of general partners, or to cause other action to be effective as to the limited partnership.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

35-404 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 404.12

§ 404.12 Foreign Limited Partnerships

[1] ULPA'08

[a] Laws Governing Foreign Limited Partnership

The laws of the state or other jurisdiction under which a foreign limited partnership is organized govern relations among the partners of the foreign limited partnership and between the partners and the foreign limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15909.01(a) (ULPA '08)]. Those same laws govern the liability of partners as partners for an obligation of the foreign limited partnership, except as to foreign limited liability limited partnerships, which are treated as if they were foreign limited partnerships [Corp. Code § 15909.01(a) (ULPA '08)].

[b] Registration of Foreign Limited Partnership

A foreign limited partnership may apply for a certificate of registration to transact business in California [Corp. Code § 15909.02(a) (ULPA '08); see [c], below (activities that constitute transacting business in California)]. An application must be prepared on a form prescribed by the California Secretary of State, signed and acknowledged by a general partner of the foreign limited partnership, and filed with the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 15909.02(a) (ULPA '08)]. The application must state all of the following [Corp. Code § 15909.02(a) (ULPA '08)]:

- The name of the foreign limited partnership and, if the name does not comply with the requirements for the name of a California limited partnership [see Corp. Code § 15901.08 (ULPA '08) (name requirements)], an alternate name adopted pursuant to ULPA '08 naming requirements for foreign limited partnerships [see Corp. Code § 15909.05(a) (ULPA '08)].

- The name of the state or other jurisdiction under whose law the foreign limited partnership is organized, and the date of its formation.

- The address of the foreign limited partnership's designated office and, if the laws of the jurisdiction under which the foreign limited partnership is organized require the foreign limited partnership to maintain an office in that jurisdiction, the address of the required office.

- The name and address of the foreign limited partnership's initial agent for service of process in California [see Corp. Code § 15901.16(d)(1) (ULPA '08)].

- The name and address of each of the foreign limited partnership's general partners.

- Whether the foreign limited partnership is a foreign limited liability limited partnership.

A foreign limited partnership must deliver with the completed application a certificate of existence or a record of similar import signed by the Secretary of State or other official having custody of the foreign limited partnership's publicly filed records in the state or other jurisdiction under whose law the foreign limited partnership is organized [Corp. Code § 15909.02(b) (ULPA '08)].

A foreign limited partnership may not be denied a certificate of registration by reason of any difference between the laws of the jurisdiction under which the foreign limited partnership is organized and the laws of California [Corp. Code § 15909.01(b) (ULPA '08)]. A certificate of registration does not authorize a foreign limited partnership to engage in any business or exercise any power that a limited partnership may not engage in or exercise in California [Corp. Code § 15909.01(c) (ULPA '08)].

A foreign limited partnership may record in the office of the county recorder of any county in California a certified copy of the application for registration to transact business, together with the certificate of registration, that has been filed by the Secretary of State. The recording creates a conclusive presumption in favor of any bona fide purchaser or encumbrancer for value of the partnership real property located in the county in which the certified copy has been recorded, that the persons named as general partners in the application are the general partners of the partnership, and that they are all of the general partners of the partnership [Corp. Code § 15902.01(e) (ULPA '08)].

[c] Transacting Business in California

Transacting business in California, for purposes of registration, refers to entering into repeated and successive transactions of business in California, other than interstate or foreign commerce [Corp. Code § 15901.02(ai)(1) (ULPA '08)]. Transacting business in California generally includes the ownership in California of income-producing real property or tangible personal property, other than property involved in one of the activities described below that are excluded from the statutory definition of transacting business in California [Corp. Code § 15909.03(b) (ULPA '08)].

A foreign limited partnership is not considered to be transacting business in California for this purpose solely because of its status as one or more of the following [Corp. Code § 15901.02(ai)(2) (ULPA '08); see also Corp. Code § 15611(ag)(2) (CRLPA)]:

- A shareholder of a foreign corporation transacting intrastate business.

- A shareholder of a domestic corporation.

- A limited partner of a foreign limited partnership transacting intrastate business.

- A limited partner of a domestic limited partnership.

- A member or manager of a foreign limited liability company transacting intrastate business.

- A member or manager of a domestic limited liability company.

In addition, without excluding other activities that may not constitute transacting intrastate business, a foreign limited partnership is not considered to be transacting intrastate business solely by reason of carrying on in California one or more of the following activities [Corp. Code § 15901.02(ai)(3) (ULPA '08); see also Corp. Code § 15611(ag)(3) (CRLPA)]:

- Maintaining or defending any action or suit or any administrative or arbitration proceeding, or effecting the settlement thereof or the settlement of claims and disputes.

- Holding meetings of its partners or carrying on other activities concerning its internal affairs.

- Maintaining bank accounts.

- Maintaining offices or agencies for the transfer, exchange, and registration of its securities or depositories with relation to its securities.

- Effecting sales through independent contractors.

- Soliciting or procuring orders, whether by mail or through employees or agents or otherwise, where the orders require acceptance outside California before becoming binding contracts.

- Creating or acquiring evidences of debt or mortgages, liens, or security interests on real or personal property.

- Securing or collecting debts or enforcing mortgages and security interests in property securing the debts.

- Conducting an isolated transaction completed within a period of 180 days and not in the course of a number of repeated transactions of like nature.

- Transacting business in interstate commerce.

Further, a person is not be deemed to be transacting intrastate business in California solely because of the person's status as a limited partner of a domestic limited partnership or a foreign limited partnership registered to transact intrastate business in California [Corp. Code § 15901.02(ai)(4) (ULPA '08); see also Corp. Code § 15611(ag)(4) (CRLPA)].

The foregoing definitions of transacting business in California do not apply in determining the contacts or activities that may subject a foreign limited partnership to service of process, taxation, jurisdiction, or other regulation under any other law of California [Corp. Code §§ 15901.02(ai), 15909.03(c) (ULPA '08)].

[d] Consequences of Failure to Register

A foreign limited partnership transacting business in California may not maintain an action or proceeding in California unless it has a certificate of registration to transact business in California [Corp. Code § 15909.07(b) (ULPA '08)]. However, the lack of a certificate of registration to transact business in California does not impair the validity of a contract or act of the foreign limited partnership or prevent the foreign limited partnership from defending an action or proceeding in California [Corp. Code § 15909.07(d) (ULPA '08)].

Any foreign limited partnership that transacts intrastate business in California without registration is subject to a penalty of $20 for each day that the unauthorized intrastate business is transacted, up to a maximum of $10,000 [Corp. Code § 15909.07(c) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 2258 (procedure to collect penalty)].

A partner of a foreign limited partnership is not liable for the obligations of the foreign limited partnership solely by reason of the foreign limited partnership's having transacted business in California without a certificate of registration [Corp. Code § 15909.07(e) (ULPA '08)].

If a foreign limited partnership transacts business in California without a certificate of registration or cancels its certificate of registration, it appoints the California Secretary of State as its agent for service of process for rights of action arising out of the transaction of business in California [Corp. Code § 15909.07(f) (ULPA '08)].

[2] CRLPA

Under the CRLPA, a foreign limited partnership seeking to transact intrastate business in California was required to obtain a certificate of registration from the California Secretary of State [Corp. Code §§ 15692, 15693 (CRLPA)]. The CRLPA definition of transacting business in California for this purpose was substantially similar to the ULPA '08 definition [compare Corp. Code § 15611(ag)(1) (CRLPA) with Corp. Code § 15901.02(ai)(1) (ULPA '08); see [1][c], above].

A certificate of registration issued before January 1, 2008 (the effective date of the ULPA '08), remains valid, since the ULPA '08 does not affect any right accrued before that date [Corp. Code § 15912.07 (ULPA '08)].

A foreign limited partnership transacting intrastate business in California before January 1, 2008, could not maintain any action, suit, or proceeding in any California court if it was not registered in California [Corp. Code § 15697(a) (CRLPA)]. A partnership that had not registered was deemed to have appointed the California Secretary of State as its agent for service of process with respect to causes of action arising out of a transaction of business in California [Corp. Code § 15697(e) (CRLPA)]. Any action commenced or proceeding brought before January 1, 2008, continues to be governed by CRLPA [Corp. Code § 15912.07 (ULPA '08)].

Under the ULPA '08, on 10 days' demand made in a writing or other "record" received by the limited partnership [see Corp. Code § 15901.02(ac) (ULPA '08) ("record" means information that is inscribed on tangible medium or that is stored in electronic or other medium and is retrievable in perceivable form)], a limited partner may inspect and copy any information required to be maintained by the limited partnership [see Corp. Code § 15901.11], during regular business hours in the limited partnership's designated office. The limited partner need not have any particular purpose for seeking the information [Corp. Code § 15903.04(a) (ULPA '08)].

In addition, during regular business hours and at a reasonable location specified by the limited partnership, a limited partner generally may obtain from the limited partnership, which may transmit the information electronically, and inspect and copy true and full information regarding the state of the activities and financial condition of the limited partnership and other information regarding the activities of the limited partnership as is just and reasonable if all of the following circumstances exist [Corp. Code § 15903.04(b) (ULPA '08)]:

- The limited partner seeks the information for a purpose reasonably related to the partner's interest as a limited partner.

- The limited partner makes a demand in a record received by the limited partnership, describing with reasonable particularity the information sought and the purpose for seeking the information.

- The information sought is directly connected to the limited partner's purpose.

Within 10 days after receiving a demand from a limited partner under the foregoing procedure, the limited partnership must, in a record, inform the limited partner (1) what information the limited partnership will provide in response to the demand; (2) when and where the limited partnership will provide the information; and (3) if the limited partnership declines to provide any demanded information, the limited partnership's reasons for declining [Corp. Code § 15903.04(c) (ULPA '08)].

A person dissociated as a limited partner generally has a similar right to inspect and copy information about the limited partnership during regular business hours in the limited partnership's designated office if (1) the information pertains to the period during which the person was a limited partner, (2) the person seeks the information in good faith, and (3) the person otherwise meets the requirements for a limited partner to obtain access to the information [Corp. Code § 15903.04(d),(e) (ULPA '08); but see Corp. Code §§ 15903.04(f), 15907.04 (ULPA '08) (inspection rights of representative of deceased limited partner)]. For discussion of dissociation of limited partners, see § 404.18.

Despite the foregoing, a limited partnership has the right to keep confidential from limited partners, for a period of time the limited partnership deems reasonable, any information (1) that the limited partnership reasonably believes to be in the nature of trade secrets or other information the disclosure of which the limited partnership in good faith believes is not in the best interest of the limited partnership or could damage the limited partnership or its business, or (2) that the limited partnership is required by law or by agreement with a third party to keep confidential [Corp. Code § 15903.04(g) (ULPA '08)].

A limited partnership may impose reasonable restrictions on the use of information obtained under the foregoing procedures. In a dispute concerning the reasonableness of such a restriction, the limited partnership has the burden of proving reasonableness [Corp. Code § 15903.04(h) (ULPA '08)].

A limited partnership may charge a person that makes a demand for information under the foregoing procedures reasonable costs of copying, limited to the costs of labor and material [Corp. Code § 15903.04(i) (ULPA '08)].

Whenever the ULPA '08 or a partnership agreement provides for a limited partner to give or withhold consent to a matter, before the consent is given or withheld, the limited partnership must, without demand, provide the limited partner with all information material to the limited partner's decision that the limited partnership knows [Corp. Code § 15903.04(j) (ULPA '08)].

A limited partner or person dissociated as a limited partner may exercise the foregoing rights through an attorney or other agent. Any confidentiality or restriction imposed on the use of the information applies both to the attorney or other agent and to the limited partner or person dissociated as a limited partner [Corp. Code § 15903.04(k) (ULPA '08)].

The foregoing rights to obtain information do not extend to a person as transferee, but they may be exercised by the legal representative of an individual under a legal disability who is a limited partner or person dissociated as a limited partner [Corp. Code § 15903.04(l) (ULPA '08)].

[2] CRLPA

[a] In General

In a limited partnership governed by the CRLPA, a limited partner has the right to receive specific partnership information. Under CRLPA, any request, inspection, or copying by a limited partner may be made by the limited partner or by the limited partner's agent or attorney [Corp. Code § 15634(i) (CRLPA)]. On the request of a limited partner, the general partners must promptly deliver to the limited partner, at the expense of the partnership, a copy of all partnership information required by the CRLPA to be maintained by the partnership [Corp. Code § 15634(a) (CRLPA); see Corp. Code § 15615(a), (b), (d) (CRLPA) (information required to be maintained by CRLPA)]. On reasonable request, each limited partner may also inspect and copy during normal business hours any of the partnership records required to be maintained by the partnership under Corp. Code § 15615 (CRLPA) [Corp. Code § 15634(b)(1) (CRLPA)].

[b] Tax Information

In a limited partnership governed by the CRLPA, each limited partner has the right, on reasonable request, to obtain from the general partners a copy of the limited partnership's federal, state, and local tax or information returns for each year, promptly after the returns become available [Corp. Code § 15634(b)(2) (CRLPA)]. In addition, the general partners must send to each of the partners, within 90 days after the end of each taxable year, such information as is necessary to complete federal and state income tax or information returns. In the case of a limited partnership with 35 or fewer limited partners, a copy of the partnership's federal, state, and local income tax or information returns for the year must also be furnished [Corp. Code § 15634(e) (CRLPA)].

[c] Amendment to Agreement

In a limited partnership governed by the CRLPA, the general partners must promptly furnish to a limited partner a copy of any amendment to the partnership agreement executed by a general partner pursuant to a power of attorney from the limited partner [Corp. Code § 15634(d) (CRLPA)].

[d] Partnership With More Than 35 Limited Partners

In a limited partnership governed by the CRLPA and having more than 35 limited partners, the general partners must send an annual report to each of the partners not later than 120 days after the close of the fiscal year. The report must contain a balance sheet as of the end of the fiscal year and an income statement and statement of cash flows for the fiscal year. In addition, in a limited partnership with more than 35 limited partners, the limited partners representing at least 5 percent of the interests of the limited partners may make a written request to a general partner for an income statement of the limited partnership for the initial 3-month, 6-month, or 9-month period of the current fiscal year ended more than 30 days prior to the date of the request and a balance sheet of the partnership as of the end of that period. The statement must be delivered or mailed to the limited partners within 30 days after the request [Corp. Code § 15634(c) (CRLPA)].

[e] Waiver of Right Is Unenforceable

Any waiver of the rights of limited partners to receive, inspect, or copy partnership books and information under CRLPA is unenforceable [Corp. Code § 15634(h) (CRLPA)].

[f] Enforcing Right to Partnership Information

In addition to any other remedies, a court of competent jurisdiction may enforce the duty of general partners to make, mail, or deliver the information and financial statements that limited partners are entitled to receive, inspect, and copy. For good cause shown, the court may also extend the time that the general partners have to comply [Corp. Code § 15634(f) (CRLPA)]. In any such action, if the court finds that the failure of the partnership to comply was without justification, the court may award an amount sufficient to reimburse the partners bringing the action for reasonable expenses incurred by the partners, including attorney's fees [Corp. Code § 15634(g) (CRLPA); see Berti v. Santa Barbara Beach Properties (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 70, 74-76, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 364 (statute allows court to award attorney's fees incurred in post-judgment proceedings for enforcement of judgment in action brought under that statute)].

[3] ULPA

The ULPA merely provides that a limited partner has the same rights as a general partner to have the partnership books kept at the principal place of business of the partnership, and to inspect and copy any of them at all times [Corp. Code § 15510(1)(a) (ULPA)]. ULPA does not specify the rights of general partners regarding partnership books, but states that general partners have the same rights, in general, as partners in a general partnership [see Corp. Code § 15509(1) (ULPA)]. The law governing general partnerships provides that partnership books and records, in writing or in any other form capable of being converted into clearly legible tangible form, must be kept at the partnership's chief executive office, and that all partners have the right to inspect and copy them [Corp. Code § 16403].

§ 404.14 Right to Vote

[1] ULPA '08

The ULPA '08 provides that the partnership agreement may provide to all or certain specified classes of limited partners the right to vote, separately or with all or any class or the general partners, on any matter [Corp. Code § 15903.07(b) (ULPA '08)].

[2] CRLPA and ULPA

Both the CRLPA and the ULPA provide that the limited partners have the right to vote on matters of general partnership administration [see Corp. Code §§ 15632(b)(5), 15636(f) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15507(b) (ULPA); see also discussion of the effects of control of a business in Ch. 405, Partnerships: Actions Between Limited Partners or Partnerships and Third Parties].

§ 404.15 Loans

[1] ULPA '08 and CRLPA

A limited or general partner in a limited partnership governed by the ULPA '08 or the CRLPA may lend money to and transact other business with the partnership. A partner making a loan to or transacting business with the partnership generally has the same rights and obligations with respect to the loan or other transaction as a person that is not a partner [Corp. Code § 15901.12 (ULPA '08); Corp. Code § 15617 (CRLPA)]. However, this general power to transact business with the partnership does not affect a general partner's fiduciary duty not to purchase partnership debt and foreclose out a partner [see BT-I v. Equitable Life Assurance Society (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 1406, 1415, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 811 (decided under Corp. Code § 15617 (CRLPA))].

[2] ULPA

The ULPA is more restrictive than the ULPA '08 or the CRLPA with respect to a limited partner's right to loan money to the partnership. Like the ULPA '08 and the CRLPA, the ULPA permits a limited partner to lend money to and transact other business with the limited partnership. Unless the limited partner is also a general partner, he or she may also receive on account of resulting claims against the partnership, with general creditors, a pro rata share of the assets. If, however, at the time of receipt the assets of the partnership are not sufficient to discharge partnership liabilities to persons not claiming as general or limited partners, no limited partner may, with respect to any such claim, receive any partnership property as collateral security or receive any payment, conveyance, or release from liability from a general partner [Corp. Code § 15513(a) (ULPA)].

Under the ULPA, a limited partner may not make a loan on the security of partnership property if, at the time the loan is made, the assets of the partnership are not sufficient to discharge partnership liabilities to persons not claiming as general or limited partners [Corp. Code § 15513(b)]. Making a secured loan, receiving collateral security, or a payment, conveyance, or release in violation of these provisions is a fraud on the creditors of the limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15513(c) (ULPA)].

§ 404.16 Partners' Contributions

Under the ULPA '08, a partner's contribution to a limited partnership may consist of tangible or intangible property or other benefit to the partnership, including money, services performed, promissory notes, other agreements to contribute cash or property, and contracts for services to be performed [Corp. Code § 15905.01 (ULPA '08)].

A partner's obligation to contribute money or other property or other benefit to, or to perform services for, a limited partnership is not excused by the partner's death, disability, or other inability to perform personally [Corp. Code § 15905.02(a) (ULPA '08)].

If a partner does not make a promised nonmonetary contribution, the partner is obligated at the option of the limited partnership to contribute money equal to the value of that portion, as stated in the required information, of the stated contribution that has not been made [Corp. Code § 15905.02(b) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15901.02(ad) ("required information" refers to information limited partnership is required to maintain under Corp. Code § 15901.11 (ULPA '08)].

The obligation of a partner to make a contribution or return money or other property paid or distributed in violation of the ULPA '08 may be compromised only by consent of all partners. If, without notice of any such compromise, a creditor of the limited partnership extends credit or otherwise acts in reliance on a partner's contribution obligation that is not fulfilled because of the partner's death, disability, or other inability to perform personally, the creditor may enforce the original obligation [Corp. Code § 15905.02(c) (ULPA '08)].

A partnership agreement may provide that the interest of a partner who fails to make any required contribution or other payment will be subject to specific remedies for, or specific consequences of, the failure. A provision will be enforceable in accordance with its terms unless the partner seeking to invalidate the provision establishes that the provision was unreasonable under the circumstances existing at the time the agreement was made. The specific remedies or consequences may include loss of voting, approval, or other rights, loss of the partner's ability to actively participate in the management and operations of the partnership, liquidated damages, or a reduction of the defaulting partner's economic rights. The reduction of the defaulting partner's economic rights may include one or more of the following provisions [Corp. Code § 15905.02(d) (ULPA '08)]:

- Diluting, reducing, or eliminating the defaulting partner's proportionate interest in the partnership.
- Subordinating the defaulting partner's interest in the partnership to that of nondefaulting partners.
- Permitting a forced sale of the partnership interest.
- Permitting the lending or contribution by other partners of the amount necessary to meet the defaulting partner's commitment.
- Adjusting the interest rates or other rates of return, preferred, priority, or otherwise, with respect to contributions by or capital accounts of the other partners.
- Fixing the value of the defaulting partner's interest in the partnership by appraisal, formula and redemption, or sale of the defaulting partner's interest in the partnership at a percentage of that value.

The foregoing list of remedies for a partner's default does not affect (1) the rights of third-party creditors of the partnership to seek equitable remedies or (2) any rights existing under the Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act [Corp. Code § 15905.02(d)(7) (ULPA '08); see Civ. Code § 3439 et seq. (Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act)].

[2] CRLPA

Under the CRLPA, a limited or general partner need not make any contribution in money, property, or services, or other obligation to contribute money or property or to render services to acquire a partnership interest [Corp. Code § 15651 (CRLPA)].

Subject to the terms of the limited partnership agreement, a partner is not excused from an obligation to perform any promise to contribute cash or property or to perform services for any reason, including death or disability. If the partner does not make the required contribution of property or services, the partner is obligated at the option of the limited partnership to contribute cash equal to the portion of the fair market value, or the agreed value if stated in the partnership agreement, of the contribution that has not been made [Corp. Code § 15655 (CRLPA)]. This option is in addition to, and not in lieu of, any other rights, including the right of specific performance, that the limited partnership may have against the partner under the partnership agreement or applicable law [Corp. Code § 15655 (CRLPA)].

Under the CRLPA, the obligation of a partner to make a contribution may be compromised only by the written consent of all the partners [Corp. Code § 15636(c) (CRLPA)]. No limited partner may be required to make any additional contribution to the partnership, however [Corp. Code § 15636(a) (CRLPA)].

[3] ULPA

Under the ULPA, the contribution of a limited partner may be in cash or other property, but not services [Corp. Code § 15504 (ULPA)].

The ULPA specifically provides that a limited partner is liable to the partnership for the difference between his or her contribution as actually made and that stated in the certificate as having been made. He or she is also liable for any unpaid contribution that he or she agreed in the certificate to make in the future at the time and on the conditions stated in the certificate [Corp. Code § 15517(1) (ULPA)]. A limited partner holds as trustee for the partnership specific property stated in the certificate as contributed by that limited partner, but that was not contributed or that has been wrongfully returned, and money or other property wrongfully paid or conveyed to that partner on account of his or her contribution [Corp. Code § 15517(2)(b) (ULPA)]. These liabilities of a limited partner may be waived or compromised only by the consent of all partners. A waiver or compromise does not affect the right of a partnership creditor to enforce such a liability if the creditor was one who extended credit or whose claim arose after the filing and before cancellation or amendment of the certificate of limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15517(3) (ULPA)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

35-404 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 404.17

§ 404.17 Distributions

[1] ULPA '08

[a] Partners' Right to Distributions

Any distribution by a limited partnership governed by the ULPA '08 must be shared among the partners on the basis of the value, as stated in the partnership's required records when the partnership decides to make the distribution, of the contributions the limited partnership has received from each partner [Corp. Code § 15905.03 (ULPA '08)].

A partner does not have a right to any distribution before the dissolution and winding up of the limited partnership unless the limited partnership decides to make an interim distribution [Corp. Code § 15905.04 (ULPA '08)]. A person who has been dissociated from the partnership does not have a right to receive a distribution on account of dissociation [Corp. Code § 15905.05 (ULPA '08)].

A partner does not have a right to demand or receive any distribution from a limited partnership in any form other than cash. Subject to the partnership's obligation to pay its creditors on the winding up of the partnership's activities [see Corp. Code § 15908.09(b) (ULPA '08)], a limited partnership may distribute an asset in kind to the extent each partner receives a percentage of the asset equal to the partner's share of distributions [Corp. Code § 15905.06 (ULPA '08)].

The profits and losses of a limited partnership must be allocated among the partners in the manner provided in the partnership agreement. If the partnership agreement does not otherwise provide, profits and losses must be allocated in the same manner as the partners' share distributions [Corp. Code § 15905.035 (ULPA '08)].

When a partner or transferee becomes entitled to receive a distribution, the partner or transferee has the status of, and is entitled to all remedies available to, a creditor of the limited partnership with respect to the distribution. However, the limited partnership's obligation to make a distribution is subject to an offset for any amount owed to the limited partnership by the partner or dissociated partner on whose account the distribution is made [Corp. Code § 15905.07 (ULPA '08)].

The limited partnership agreement may impose further limitations on distributions by the partnership [see Corp. Code §

15905.08(a) (ULPA '08)].

[b] Amount of Distributions

A limited partnership may not make a distribution if, after the distribution, (1) the partnership would not be able to pay its debts as they become due in the ordinary course of the partnership's activities; or (2) the partnership's total assets would be less than the sum of its total liabilities plus the amount that would be needed, if the partnership were to be dissolved, wound up, and terminated at the time of the distribution, to satisfy the preferential rights upon dissolution, winding up, and termination of partners whose preferential rights are superior to those of the persons receiving the distribution [Corp. Code § 15905.08(b) (ULPA '08)]. A limited partnership's indebtedness, including indebtedness issued in connection with or as part of a distribution, is not considered a liability for purposes of this provision if the terms of the indebtedness provide that payment of principal and interest are made only to the extent that a distribution could then be made to partners under this provision [Corp. Code § 15905.08(f) (ULPA '08)]. To determine that the foregoing provision does not prohibit a given distribution, a limited partnership may use (1) financial statements prepared on the basis of accounting practices and principles that are reasonable in the circumstances, or (2) a fair valuation or other method that is reasonable in the circumstances [Corp. Code § 15905.08(c) (ULPA '08)]. Generally, the effect of such a distribution is measured as follows [Corp. Code § 15905.08(d) (ULPA '08)]:

- In the case of distribution by purchase, redemption, or other acquisition of a transferable interest in the limited partnership, as of the date money or other property is transferred or debt incurred by the limited partnership.

- In all other cases, as of the date (1) the distribution is authorized, if the payment occurs within 120 days after that date; or (2) the payment is made, if payment occurs more than l20 days after the distribution is authorized.

However, if indebtedness is issued as a distribution, each payment of principal or interest on the indebtedness is treated as a distribution, the effect of which is measured on the date the payment is made [Corp. Code § 15905.08(g) (ULPA '08)].

A limited partnership's indebtedness to a partner incurred by reason of a distribution made in accordance with the foregoing is at parity with the limited partnership's indebtedness to its general unsecured creditors [Corp. Code § 15905.08(e) (ULPA '08)].

[c] Postdistribution Liability

A general partner that consents to a distribution made in violation of the restrictions described in [b], above, is personally liable to the limited partnership for the amount of the distribution that exceeds the amount that could have been distributed without the violation, if it is established that in consenting to the distribution the general partner breached his or her or its fiduciary duties [Corp. Code § 15905.09(a) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15904.08 (ULPA '08) (fiduciary duties of general partner)]. A partner or transferee that received a distribution knowing that the distribution to that partner or transferee was made in violation of the foregoing provisions is personally liable to the limited partnership but only to the extent that the distribution received by the partner or transferee exceeded the amount that could have been properly paid [Corp. Code § 15905.09(b) (ULPA '08)].

An action to enforce the general partner's personal liability for excess distributions must be commenced within four years after the distribution [Corp. Code § 15905.09(d) (ULPA '08)]. In such an action, the general partner may (1) implead any other person who is liable and compel contribution from the person, and (2) implead any person who received an excess distribution and compel contribution from the person in the amount of the excess received by that person [Corp. Code § 15905.09(c) (ULPA '08)].

[2] CRLPA

[a] Partners' Right to Distributions

Distributions of the money or property of a limited partnership governed by the CRLPA must be made to the partners in the manner provided in the partnership agreement. If the agreement does not provide otherwise, distributions that are a return of capital must be made in proportion to the contributions of each partner and distributions that are not a return of capital must be made in proportion to the allocation of profits [Corp. Code § 15654 (CRLPA)]. The profits and losses of a limited partnership must be allocated among the partners in the manner provided in the partnership agreement. If the agreement does not provide otherwise, profits and losses must be allocated in proportion to the contributions of each partner [Corp. Code § 15653 (CRLPA)]. Subject to the rights of a withdrawing partner or a contrary partnership agreement, no limited partner has priority over any other limited partner as to return of contributions or as to compensation as a limited partner by way of income [Corp. Code § 15636(b) (CRLPA); see Corp. Code § 15664].

Subject to the rights of creditors when a partnership is wound up [see Corp. Code § 15684], once a partner becomes entitled to receive a distribution, that partner has the status of, and is entitled to all remedies available to, a creditor of the limited partnership with respect to the distribution [Corp. Code § 15665 (CRLPA)]. Subject to any contrary provision in the partnership agreement, no limited partner has the right to receive property other than money on distribution [Corp. Code § 15636(d) (CRLPA)], and a partner may not be compelled to accept a distribution of any asset in kind from a limited partnership in lieu of a proportionate distribution of money being made to other partners [Corp. Code § 15636(e) (CRLPA)].

A partner is entitled to receive distributions on withdrawal from the partnership [see Corp. Code § 15664 (CRLPA); see also § 404.18[2]], and on dissolution of the partnership [see Corp. Code § 15684 (CRLPA); see also Ch. 406, Partnerships: Dissolution]. In addition, except as otherwise provided by the CRLPA, a partner is entitled to receive distributions from a limited partnership before his or her withdrawal and before the dissolution and winding up of the partnership, to the extent and at the times or on the happening of the events specified in the partnership agreement [see Corp. Code § 15661 (CRLPA)].

[b] Postdistribution Liability

A partner is obligated to return a distribution from a limited partnership to the extent that, at the time of the distribution, the partner knew that immediately after giving effect to the distribution, all liabilities of the limited partnership, other than liabilities to partners on account of their interests in the partnership and liabilities as to which recourse of creditors is limited to specified property of the limited partnership, exceed the fair value of the partnership assets other than that specified property [Corp. Code § 15666(a) (CRLPA)].

Any action with respect to an obligation to return such a distribution must be brought within four years after the distribution is made [Corp. Code § 15666(b) (CRLPA)].

[3] ULPA

[a] Partners' Right to Distributions

In a limited partnership governed by the ULPA, a limited partner has the right to receive a share of the profits or other compensation by way of income and a right to the return of his or her contribution [Corp. Code § 15510(2) (ULPA)]. The partners may agree that one or more limited partners will have priority over other limited partners as to return of their contributions, their compensation by way of income, or any other matter. If such an agreement is made, it must be stated in the certificate of limited partnership. In the absence of such a statement, all limited partners stand on equal footing [Corp. Code § 15514 (ULPA)].

A limited partner may receive from the partnership the share of the profits or other compensation by way of income stipulated for in the certificate, provided that after such a payment is made, whether from the property of the partnership or that of a general partner, the partnership assets exceed all liabilities of the partnership except liabilities to limited partners on account of their contributions and to general partners [Corp. Code § 15515 (ULPA)]. A limited partner is not entitled to receive any part of his or her contribution until all of the following have occurred [Corp. Code § 15516(1) (ULPA)]:

- All liabilities of the partnership, except those to general partners and limited partners for their contributions, have been paid or there remains partnership property sufficient to pay them.

- The consent of all members is had, unless the return of the contribution may be rightfully demanded without it under other statutory provisions.

- The certificate of limited partnership is canceled or amended to set forth the withdrawal or reduction.

A limited partner may also demand the return of his or her contribution on dissolution of the partnership, on the date specified in the certificate for its return, or after he or she has given six months' notice in writing to all other partners, if no time is specified in the certificate either for the return of the contribution or for the dissolution of the partnership [Corp. Code § 15516(2) (ULPA)].

In the absence of any statement in the certificate to the contrary or the consent of all members, a limited partner, irrespective of the nature of his or her contribution, has only the right to demand and receive cash in return for his or her contribution [Corp. Code § 15516(3) (ULPA)].

[b] Postdistribution Liability

A limited partner who has rightfully received a return of his or her capital contribution is liable to the partnership for any sum, not in excess of the return with interest, necessary to discharge partnership liabilities to all creditors who extended credit or whose claims arose before that return [Corp. Code § 15517(4) (ULPA)].

§ 404.18 Dissociation or Withdrawal of Limited Partner

[1] ULPA '08

[a] Causes of Dissociation

A limited partner generally does not have a right to dissociate from the limited partnership before the termination of the partnership [Corp. Code § 15906.01(a) (ULPA '08)]. However, a person will be dissociated as a limited partner on the occurrence of any of the following events [Corp. Code § 15906.01(b) (ULPA '08)]:

- The limited partnership's having notice of the person's express will to withdraw as a limited partner or on a later date specified by the person.

- An event agreed to in the partnership agreement as causing the person's dissociation as a limited partner.

- The person's expulsion as a limited partner pursuant to the partnership agreement.

- The person's expulsion as a limited partner by the unanimous consent of the other partners if any of the following circumstances exists:

  - It is unlawful to carry on the limited partnership's activities with the person as a limited partner;

  - There has been a transfer of all of the person's transferable interest in the limited partnership, other than a transfer for security purposes, or a court order charging the person's interest, which has not been foreclosed;

  - The person is a corporation and, within 90 days after the limited partnership notifies the person that it will be expelled as a limited partner because it has filed a certificate of dissolution or the equivalent, its charter has been revoked, or its right to conduct business has been suspended by the jurisdiction of its incorporation, there is no revocation of the certificate of dissolution or no reinstatement of its charter or its right to conduct business; or

- The person is a limited liability company or partnership that has been dissolved and whose business is being wound up.

- On application by the limited partnership, the person's expulsion as a limited partner by judicial order for any of the following reasons:

  - The person engaged in wrongful conduct that adversely and materially affected the limited partnership's activities;

  - The person willfully or persistently committed a material breach of the partnership agreement or of the obligation of good faith and fair dealing [see Corp. Code § 15903.05(b) (ULPA '08)]; or

  - The person engaged in conduct relating to the limited partnership's activities that makes it not reasonably practicable to carry on the activities with the person as limited partner.

- In the case of a person who is an individual, the person's death.

- In the case of a person that is a trust or is acting as a limited partner by virtue of being a trustee of a trust, distribution of the trust's entire transferable interest in the limited partnership, but not merely by reason of the substitution of a successor trustee.

- In the case of a person that is an estate or is acting as a limited partner by virtue of being a personal representative of an estate, distribution of the estate's entire transferable interest in the limited partnership, but not merely by reason of the substitution of a successor personal representative.

- Termination of a limited partner that is not an individual, partnership, limited liability company, corporation, trust, or estate.

- The limited partnership's participation in a conversion or merger [see Corp. Code § 15911.01 et seq.; see also § 404.20[2]], if the limited partnership (1) is not the converted or surviving entity; or (2) is the converted or surviving entity but, as a result of the conversion or merger, the person ceases to be a limited partner.

[b] Effect of Dissociation

On dissociation as a limited partner in a limited partnership governed by the ULPA '08, a person generally has no further rights as a limited partner [Corp. Code § 15906.02(a)(1) (ULPA '08)]. However, if dissociation is caused by the limited partner's death, the deceased partner's personal representative or other legal representative may exercise the powers of a transferee of the partner's interest, or the powers of a current limited partner for purposes of settling the deceased partner's estate [Corp. Code §§ 15906.02(a)(1), 15907.04 (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code §§ 15903.04, 15907.02 (ULPA '08)].

On dissociation as a limited partner, the person's obligation of good faith and fair dealing as a limited partner [see Corp. Code § 15903.05(b) (ULPA)] continues only as to matters arising and events occurring before the dissociation [Corp.

Code § 15906.02(a)(2) (ULPA '08)]. Further, any transferable interest owned by the person in the person's capacity as a limited partner immediately before dissociation generally is owned by the person as a mere transferee [Corp. Code § 15906.02(a)(3) (ULPA '08)]. However, special rules apply if the dissociation is the result of the limited partner's death or the conversion or merger of the partnership [Corp. Code § 15906.02(a)(3) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code §§ 15907.04, 15911.01 et seq.].

A person's dissociation as a limited partner does not of itself discharge the person from any obligation to the limited partnership or the other partners which the person incurred while a limited partner [Corp. Code § 15906.02(b) (ULPA '08)].

The Secretary of State is not required to verify that the person withdrawing or dissociating was ever actually named in an official filing as a general or limited partner [Corp. Code § 15902.04(c) (ULPA '08)].

[2] CRLPA

A limited partner may withdraw from a limited partnership governed by the CRLPA only at the time specified in the partnership agreement or on the happening of events in the agreement [Corp. Code § 15663 (CRLPA)]. On withdrawal, a limited partner is entitled to receive any distribution to which he or she is entitled under the partnership agreement, and is also entitled to receive, within a reasonable time after withdrawal, the fair value of the limited partner's interest in the partnership as of the date of the withdrawal based on the limited partner's right to share in distributions [Corp. Code § 15664 (CRLPA)].

[3] ULPA

The ULPA does not expressly address "dissociation" or "withdrawal," but it contains provisions governing a limited partner's demand for the return of his or her contribution, including a return made prior to dissolution or termination of the partnership. A limited partner in a partnership governed by the ULPA may not receive any part of his or her contribution until all of the following conditions are met [Corp. Code § 15516(1) (ULPA)]:

- All liabilities of the partnership have been paid, or there remains property sufficient to pay them.

- The consent of all members is obtained, unless the return of the contribution may otherwise be rightfully demanded.

- The certificate is canceled or amended to set forth the withdrawal or reduction.

A limited partner may demand the return of his or her contribution under any of the following circumstances [Corp. Code § 15516(2) (ULPA)]:

- On the dissolution of the partnership.

- On a date specified for such a return in the certificate.

- After the limited partner has given six months' notice in writing to all the other partners, if no time is specified in the certificate either for the return or for dissolution of the partnership.

§ 404.19 Death of Limited Partner

[1] ULPA '08

If a partner in a limited partnership governed by the ULPA '08 dies, the deceased partner's personal representative or other legal representative may exercise the rights of a transferee of the partnership interest [Corp. Code § 15907.04 (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15907.02 (ULPA '08); see also § 404.21[1] (rights of transferees)]. For the purposes of settling the estate, the deceased partner's personal representative or other legal representative may exercise the rights of a current limited partner to inspect and copy information pertaining to the partnership [Corp. Code § 15907.04 (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15903.04 (ULPA '08); see also § 404.13[1]].

[2] CRLPA and ULPA

Under both the CRLPA and the ULPA, a deceased limited partner's executor or administrator may exercise all the partner's rights for the purpose of settling the partner's estate [Corp. Code § 15675(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15521 (ULPA)]. The ULPA also provides that the executor or administrator may exercise such power as the deceased had to constitute the deceased's assignee as a substituted limited partner. The ULPA also provides that the estate of a deceased limited partner is liable for all his or her liabilities as a limited partner [Corp. Code § 15521 (ULPA)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

35-404 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 404.20

§ 404.20 Conversions and Mergers of Limited Partnerships

[1] Governing Law

The ULPA '08 and the CRLPA contain essentially identical provisions governing conversions and mergers of limited partnerships and the rights of limited partners who dissent from those reorganizations [compare Corp. Code § 15677.1 et seq. (CRLPA) (conversions), Corp. Code § 15678.1 et seq. (CRLPA) (mergers), and Corp. Code § 15679.1 et seq. (CRLPA) (dissenters' rights) with Corp. Code § 15911.01 et seq. (ULPA '08) (conversions), Corp. Code § 15911.11 et seq. (ULPA '08) (mergers), and Corp. Code § 15911.20 et seq. (ULPA '08) (dissenters' rights)]. Accordingly, for purposes of accomplishing a conversion or merger, including satisfying the rights of dissenting limited partners, it is immaterial whether a limited partnership is otherwise subject to the ULPA '08 or the CRLPA.

The ULPA does not contain any provisions for the conversion or merger of limited partnerships. Thus, if conversion or merger of a limited partnership governed by the ULPA is desired, the partnership should first make an election to be governed by the ULPA '08 [see Corp. Code § 15912.06(a)(2) (ULPA '08) (on or after January 1, 2008, limited partnership originally formed under prior law may elect to be governed by ULPA '08); see also § 404.10[1][a], [2][a]].

[2] Conversion

[a] When Conversion Is Permitted

A limited partnership may be converted into an "other business entity" (that is, a corporation, general partnership, limited liability company, business trust, real estate investment trust, or an unincorporated association other than a nonprofit association [see Corp. Code § 15611(v) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15901.02(u) (ULPA '08)]), a foreign other business entity (that is, an "other business entity" formed under the laws of any state other than California or under the laws of a foreign country) [see Corp. Code 15611(m); Corp. Code § 15901.02(l) (ULPA '08)], or a foreign limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15911.02(a)]. Pursuant to a conversion into a domestic or foreign partnership or limited liability company, or into a foreign limited partnership, each of the partners of the converting limited partnership must receive a percentage interest in the profits and capital of the converted entity, equal to that partner's percentage interest in profits and capital of the converting limited partnership as of the effective time of the conversion [Corp. Code § 15677.2(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.02(a)(1) (ULPA '08)]. Pursuant to a conversion into an other business entity or foreign other business entity not specified above, each limited partnership interest of the same class must be treated equally with respect to any distribution of cash, property, rights, interests, or securities of the converted entity, unless all limited partners of the class consent, and the nonredeemable limited partnership interest of the converting limited partnership are converted only into nonredeemable interests or securities of the converted entity unless all holders of the nonredeemable interests consent [Corp. Code § 15677.2(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.02(a)(2) (ULPA '08)]. The conversion of a limited partnership to an other business entity or a foreign limited partnership may be effected only if both of the following conditions are satisfied [Corp. Code § 15677.2(b) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.02(b) (ULPA '08)]:

- The law under which the converted entity will exist expressly permits the formation of that entity pursuant to a conversion.

- The limited partnership complies with all other requirements of any other law that applies to conversion to the converted entity.

[b] When Conversion Is Effective

A conversion into an other business entity, foreign other business entity, or a foreign limited partnership will become effective on the earliest date that all of the following occur [Corp. Code § 15677.4(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.04(a) (ULPA '08)]:

- The approval of the plan of conversion by the partners of the converting limited partnership as provided in Corp. Code § 15677.3 (CRLPA) or Corp. Code § 15911.03 (ULPA '08) [see [d], below].

- The filing of all documents required by law to create the converted entity, which documents will also contain a statement of conversion, if required under Corp. Code § 15677.6 (CRLPA) or Corp. Code § 15911.06 (ULPA '08) [see [i], below].

- The occurrence of the effective date, if set forth in the plan of conversion.

A copy of the statement of partnership authority or articles of organization complying with Corp. Code § 15677.6 (CRLPA) or Corp. Code § 15911.06 (ULPA '08) [see [i], below] if applicable, duly certified by the Secretary of State, is conclusive evidence of the conversion of the limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15677.4(b)].

[c] Applicable Definitions

The following special definitions apply for purposes of conversion procedures:

- "Converted entity" means the other business entity, foreign other business entity, or foreign limited partnership that results from a conversion of a domestic limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15677.1(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.01(a) (ULPA '08)].

- "Converted limited partnership" means a domestic limited partnership that results from a conversion of an other business entity, foreign other business entity, or a foreign limited partnership pursuant to Corp. Code § 15677.8 (CRLPA) or Corp. Code § 15911.08 (ULPA '08) [Corp. Code § 15677.1(b) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.01(b) (ULPA '08); see [h], below].

- "Converting limited partnership" means a domestic limited partnership that converts to an other business entity, foreign other business entity, or a foreign limited partnership pursuant to the CRLPA or the ULPA '08 [Corp. Code § 15677.1(c) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.01(c) (ULPA '08)].

- "Converting entity" means an other business entity, foreign other business entity, or foreign limited partnership that converts to a domestic limited partnership pursuant to the terms of Corp. Code § 15677.8 (CRLPA) or Corp. Code § 15911.08 (ULPA '08) [Corp. Code § 15677.1(d) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.01(d) (ULPA '08); see [h], below].

[d] Plan of Conversion

A limited partnership that desires to convert to an other business entity, foreign other business entity, or a foreign limited partnership must approve a plan of conversion that states the terms and conditions of the conversion as well as other information required by statute [Corp. Code § 15677.3(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.03(a) (ULPA '08)].

The plan of conversion must be approved by all general partners of the converting limited partnership and by a majority in interest of each class of limited partners of the converting limited partnership, unless a greater or lesser approval is required by the partnership agreement of the converting limited partnership. However, if the limited partners of the limited partnership would become personally liable for any obligations of the converted entity as a result of the conversion, the plan of conversion must be approved by all of the limited partners of the converting limited partnership, unless the plan of conversion provides that all limited partners will have dissenters' rights under Corp. Code § 15679.1 et seq. (CRLPA) or Corp. Code § 15911.20 et seq. (ULPA '08) [Corp. Code § 15677.3(b) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.03(b) (ULPA '08); see [4], [5], below (dissenters' rights)].

When the conversion becomes effective, every partner of the converting limited partnership, except those that exercise dissenters' rights, is deemed a party to any governing documents for the converted entity adopted as part of the plan of conversion, whether or not the partner has executed the plan of conversion or the governing documents for the converted entity. Any adoption of governing documents made pursuant to a plan of conversion will be effective at the effective time or date of the conversion [Corp. Code § 15677.3(c) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.03(c) (ULPA '08)].

[e] Amending Plan of Conversion

A plan of conversion may be amended before the conversion takes effect if the amendment is approved by all general partners of the converting limited partnership and, if the amendment changes any of the principal terms of the plan of conversion, the amendment is approved by the limited partners of the converting limited partnership in the same manner and to the same extent as required for the approval of the original plan of conversion [Corp. Code § 15677.3(d) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.03(d) (ULPA '08)].

[f] Abandoning Conversion

The general partners of a converting limited partnership, by unanimous approval at any time before the conversion is effective, may in their discretion abandon a conversion, without further approval by the limited partners, subject to the contractual rights of third parties other than limited partners [Corp. Code § 15677.3(e) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.03(e) (ULPA '08)].

[g] Conversion of Limited Partnership Into Foreign Limited Partnership or Foreign Other Business Entity

The conversion of a limited partnership into a foreign limited partnership or foreign other business entity must comply with Corp. Code § 15677.2 (CRLPA) or Corp. Code § 15911.02 (ULPA '08) [Corp. Code § 15677.5(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.05(a) (ULPA '08); see [a], above]. If the limited partnership is converting into a foreign limited partnership or foreign other business entity, those conversion proceedings must be in accordance with the laws of the state or place of organization of the foreign limited partnership or foreign other business entity and the conversion will become effective in accordance with that law [Corp. Code § 15677.5(b) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.05(b) (ULPA '08)].

To enforce an obligation of a limited partnership that has converted to a foreign limited partnership or foreign other business entity, the Secretary of State will be the agent for service of process in an action or proceeding against that converted foreign entity, if the agent designated for the service of process for that entity is a natural person and cannot be found with due diligence or if the agent is a corporation and no person, to whom delivery may be made, can be located with due diligence, or if no agent has been designated and if no one of the officers, partners, managers, members, or agents of that entity may be located after diligent search, and it is so shown by affidavit to the satisfaction of the court [Corp. Code § 15677.5(c)(1) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.05(c)(1) (ULPA '08)]. The court may then make an order that service be made by personal delivery to the Secretary of State or to an assistant or deputy Secretary of State of two copies of the process together with two copies of the order, and the order will set forth an address to which the process will be sent by the Secretary of State. Service in this manner is deemed complete on the 10th day after delivery of the process to the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 15677.5(c)(1) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.05(c)(1) (ULPA '08)]. Upon receipt of the process and order and the fee set forth in Gov. Code § 12206, the Secretary of State will provide notice to that entity of the service of the process by forwarding by certified mail, return receipt requested, a copy of the process and order to the address specified in the order [Corp. Code § 15677.5(c)(2) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.05(c)(2) (ULPA '08)].

[h] Conversion of Other Business Entity, Foreign Other Business Entity, or Foreign Limited Partnership to Domestic Limited Partnership

An other business entity, foreign other business entity, or a foreign limited partnership may be converted to a domestic limited partnership only if the converting entity is authorized by the laws under which it is organized to effect the conversion [Corp. Code § 15677.8(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.08(a) (ULPA '08)]. An other business entity, foreign other business entity, or a foreign limited partnership that desires to convert into a domestic limited partnership must approve a plan of conversion or an other instrument as is required to be approved to effect the conversion pursuant to the laws under which that entity is organized [Corp. Code § 15677.8(b) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.08(b) (ULPA '08)]. The conversion of an other business entity, foreign other business entity, or a foreign limited partnership into a domestic limited partnership must be approved by the number or percentage of the partners, members, shareholders, or holders of interest of the converting entity as is required by the law under which that entity is organized, or a greater or lesser percentage, subject to applicable laws, as set forth in the converting entity's partnership agreement, articles of organization, operating agreement, articles or certificate of incorporation, or other governing document [Corp. Code § 15677.8(c) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.08(c) (ULPA '08)].

The conversion by an other business entity, foreign other business entity, or a foreign limited partnership into a domestic limited partnership will be effective under Article 7.4 at the time the conversion is effective under the law under which the converting entity is organized, as long as a certificate of limited partnership containing a statement of conversion has been filed with the Secretary of State. If the converting entity's governing law is silent as to the effectiveness of the conversion, the conversion will be effective upon the completion of all acts required under California law to form a limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15677.8(d) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.08(d) (ULPA '08)].

The filing with the Secretary of State of a certificate of conversion or a certificate of limited partnership containing a statement of conversion pursuant to Corp. Code § 15677.8(a) (CRLPA) or Corp. Code § 15911.08(a) (ULPA '08) has the effect of filing a certificate of cancellation by the converting foreign limited partnership or foreign limited liability company. No converting foreign limited partnership or foreign limited liability company that has made the filing is required to file a certificate of cancellation under Corp. Code §§ 15696 (CRLPA), 15902.03 (ULPA '08), or 17455 as a result of that conversion. If a converting other business entity is a foreign corporation qualified to transact business in California, the foreign corporation, by virtue of the filing, will automatically surrender its right to transact intrastate business [Corp. Code § 15677.8(e) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.08(e) (ULPA '08)].

[i] Statement of Conversion

Upon conversion of a limited partnership, one of the following applies [Corp. Code § 15677.6(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.06(a) (ULPA '08)]:

- If the limited partnership is converting into a domestic limited liability company, a statement of conversion must be completed on the articles of organization for the converted entity and filed with the Secretary of State.

- If the limited partnership is converting into a domestic partnership, a statement of conversion must be completed on the statement of partnership authority for the converted entity. If no statement of partnership authority is filed, a certificate of conversion must be filed separately.

- If the limited partnership is converting into a domestic corporation, a statement of conversion must be completed on the articles of incorporation for the converted entity and filed with the Secretary of State.

- If the limited partnership is converting to a foreign limited partnership or foreign other business entity, a certificate of conversion must be filed with the Secretary of State.

Any certificate or statement of conversion must be executed and acknowledged by all general partners, unless a lesser number is provided in the certificate of limited partnership, and must set forth required information [Corp. Code § 15677.6(b) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.06(b) (ULPA '08)].

The filing with the Secretary of State of a certificate of conversion or a statement of partnership authority, articles of organization, or articles or certificate of incorporation containing a statement of conversion as set forth in Corp. Code § 15677.6(a) (CRLPA) or Corp. Code § 15911.06(a) (ULPA '08) has the effect of the filing of a certificate of cancellation by the converting limited partnership. No converting limited partnership that has made the filing is required to file a certificate of dissolution or a certificate of cancellation under Corp. Code § 15623 (CRLPA) or Corp. Code § 15902.03 (ULPA '08) as a result of that conversion [Corp. Code § 15677.6(c) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.06(c) (ULPA '08)].

[j] Converting Entity Unchanged

An entity that converts into another entity is for all purposes the same entity that existed before the conversion [Corp. Code § 15677.9(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.09(a) (ULPA '08)]. When the conversion takes effect, all of the following apply [Corp. Code § 15677.9(b) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.09(b) (ULPA '08)]:

- All the rights and property, whether real, personal, or mixed, of the converting entity or converting limited partnership are vested in the converted entity or converted limited partnership.

- All debts, liabilities, and obligations of the converting entity or converting limited partnership continue as debts, liabilities, and obligations of the converted entity or converted limited partnership.

- All rights of creditors and liens upon the property of the converting entity or converting limited partnership are preserved unimpaired and remain enforceable against the converted entity or converted limited partnership to the same extent as against the converting entity or converting limited partnership as if the conversion had not occurred.

- Any action or proceeding pending by or against the converting entity or converting limited partnership may be continued against the converted entity or converted limited partnership as if the conversion had not occurred.

[k] Liabilities of Partners

A partner of a converting limited partnership is liable for all of the following [Corp. Code § 15677.9(c) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.09(c) (ULPA '08)]:

- All obligations of the converting limited partnership for which the partner was personally liable before the conversion.

- All obligations of the converted entity incurred after the conversion takes effect. Those obligations, however, may be satisfied only out of property of the entity if that partner is a limited partner; or a shareholder in a corporation; or unless expressly provided otherwise in the articles of organization or other governing documents, a member of a limited liability company; or a holder of equity securities in an other converted entity if the holders of equity securities in that entity are not personally liable for the obligations of that entity under the law under which the entity is organized or its governing documents [Corp. Code § 15677.9(c)(2) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.09(c)(2) (ULPA '08)].

A partner of a converted limited partnership remains liable for any and all obligations of the converting entity for which the partner was personally liable before the conversion, but only to the extent that the partner was liable for the obligations of the converting entity prior to the conversion [Corp. Code § 15677.9(d) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.09(d) (ULPA '08)]. If the other party to a transaction with the limited partnership reasonably believes when entering the transaction that the limited partner is a general partner, the limited partner is liable for an obligation incurred by the limited partnership within 90 days after the conversion takes effect. The limited partner's liability for all other obligations of the limited partnership incurred after the conversion takes effect is that of a limited partner [Corp. Code § 15677.9(e) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.09(e) (ULPA '08)].

[3] Merger

[a] Entities That May Be Merged

The following entities may be merged [Corp. Code § 15678.1 (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.11 (ULPA '08)]:

- Two or more limited partnerships into one limited partnership.

- One or more limited partnerships and one or more other business entities into one of those other business entities.

- One or more limited partnerships and one or more other business entities into one limited partnership.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, the merger of any number of limited partnerships with any number of other business entities may be effected only if the other business entities that are organized in California are authorized by the laws under which they are organized to effect the merger and (1) if a limited partnership is the surviving limited partnership, the foreign other business entities are not prohibited by the laws under which they are organized from effecting the merger; and (2) if a foreign limited partnership or foreign other business entity is the survivor of the merger, the merger is authorized by the laws of the jurisdiction under which the survivor is organized [Corp. Code § 15678.1 (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.11 (ULPA '08)].

[b] When Merger Is Effective

A merger is effective on the filing of a certificate of merger, or the agreement of merger, if one is required under Corp. Code § 15678.4 (CRLPA) or Corp. Code § 15911.14 (ULPA '08), in the office of the Secretary of State, unless the certificate provides for a future effective date. For all purposes, a copy of the certificate or agreement of merger duly certified by the Secretary is conclusive evidence of the merger [Corp. Code § 15678.5(a), (b) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.15(a), (b) (ULPA '08); for discussion of the procedure for filing a certificate, see [j], below].

For discussion of the effect of merger on the rights of creditors, see Ch. 405, Partnerships: Actions Between Limited Partners or Partnerships and Third Parties . For discussion of enforcement by dissenting partners of their right to have the merging limited partnership purchase their partnership interests, see [4], [5], below.

[c] Applicable Definitions

A limited partnership that is merged with or into one or more other limited partnerships or other business entities is referred to as a "constituent limited partnership" [Corp. Code § 15611(e) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.01(f) (ULPA '08)]. An other business entity that is merged with or into one or more limited partnerships is a "constituent other business entity" [Corp. Code § 15611(f) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.01(g) (ULPA '08)]. A corporation that is merged with or into one or more limited partnerships or other business entities is a "constituent corporation" [Corp. Code § 15611(d) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.01(e) (ULPA '08)]. Constituents include all of the following:

- A "surviving corporation," "surviving limited partnership," or "surviving other business entity," with or into which one or more other limited partnerships or other business entities have been merged [Corp. Code § 15611(d)-(f), (ad), (ae) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.01(e), (f), (g); see Corp. Code § 15911.01(l), (m) (ULPA '08)].

- "Disappearing limited partnership or partnerships" or "disappearing other business entity or entities," which do not survive the merger [Corp. Code § 15611(h), (i) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.01(h), (i) (ULPA '08)].

[d] Merger Agreement

Each limited partnership and each other business entity desiring to merge must approve an agreement that states the terms and conditions of the merger as well as other information required by statute [Corp. Code § 15678.2(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.12(a) (ULPA '08) (required contents of merger agreement)]. Other persons, including a "parent" of a constituent partnership, may be parties to the merger agreement [Corp. Code § 15678.2(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.12(a) (ULPA '08)]. A "parent" of a specified limited partnership means [Corp. Code § 15611(w) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15901.02(v) (ULPA '08)]:

- Each general partner of the limited partnership;

- Each person possessing, directly or indirectly, the power to direct or cause the direction of the management and policies of a general partner of the partnership; and

- A person owning, directly or indirectly, limited partnership interests possessing more than 50 percent of the aggregate voting power of the specified limited partnership.

Any other details or provisions that are required by the laws under which any constituent other business entity is organized must be included in the agreement of merger. Any California corporation that is a constituent in the merger, as well as each limited partnership, will have to approve the merger and incorporate into the merger agreement, the details and provisions required by Corp. Code § 1113(b), which is discussed in Ch. 169, Corporations: Reorganizations [Corp. Code § 15678.2(a)(4) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.12(a)(4) (ULPA '08)].

The requirements of Corp. Code § 1113(b) are substantially similar to the approval requirements for limited partnerships [cf. Corp. Code § 15678.2(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.12(a) (ULPA '08); for discussion of approval requirements for limited partnerships, see [g], below)], except that votes required for approval are as defined for corporations in Corp. Code §§ 152, 1200, 1201, and 1300. Corp. Code § 1113(b)(5), in turn, incorporates the requirements of Corp. Code § 15678.2(a) (CRLPA) and Corp. Code § 15911.12(a) (ULPA '08) when a California limited partnership is a party in the merger, Corp. Code § 16911 if a domestic partnership is a party, Corp. Code § 6019.1 if a public benefit or religious corporation is a party to the merger, Corp. Code § 8019.1 if a mutual benefit corporation is a party to the merger, Corp. Code § 12540.1 if a consumer cooperative corporation is a party to the merger, or Corp. Code § 17551(a) when a domestic limited liability company is a party in the merger [Corp. Code § 1113(b)(5)].

[e] Right to Request Copy of Merger Agreement

At the request of a limited partner of a constituent partnership, or a holder of shares, interests, or other securities of a constituent other business entity, the general partners of the surviving limited partnership or the authorized person of the surviving other business entity must promptly deliver, at the surviving partnership's or surviving other business entity's expense, a copy of the merger agreement to the limited partner or holder of shares or other securities. The right to receive a copy may not be waived [Corp. Code § 15678.2(f) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.12(f) (ULPA '08)].

[f] Limitations on Conversion of Partnership Interests

Each limited partnership interest of the same class within any constituent limited partnership that has more than 35 limited partners must be treated equally with respect to any distribution of cash, property, rights, interests, or securities, unless all partners of the class consent. This does not apply, however, to a limited partnership interest in another constituent limited partnership that is being canceled and that is held by (1) a constituent limited partnership, (2) its parent, or (3) a limited partnership of which the constituent limited partnership is a parent [Corp. Code § 15678.2(b) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.12(b) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15611(w) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15901.02(v) (ULPA '08) ("parent" defined), discussed in [d], above].

Notwithstanding this equal-treatment requirement, except in a merger of a limited partnership with a limited partnership in which it controls at least 90 percent of the limited partnership interests entitled to vote with respect to the merger, unless all of the limited partners of the class consent, the unredeemable limited partnership interests of a constituent limited partnership may be converted only into unredeemable interests or securities of the surviving limited partnership or other business entity or a parent if the merger is one in which a constituent limited partnership with more than 35 limited partners or a constituent other business entity (or its parent) owns, directly or indirectly, prior to the merger, any of the following [Corp. Code § 15678.2(b) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.12(b) (ULPA '08)]:

- Limited partnership interests of another constituent limited partnership or interests or securities of a constituent other business entity representing more than 50 percent of the interests or securities entitled to vote with respect to the merger of the other constituent limited partnership or constituent other business entity, or

- More than 50 percent of the voting power, as defined in Corp. Code § 194.5, of a constituent other business entity that is a California corporation.

These limitations on conversions do not apply to any transaction if the Commissioner of Corporations has approved the terms and conditions of the transaction and their fairness, pursuant to Corp. Code § 25142 [Corp. Code § 15678.3 (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.13 (ULPA '08); for discussion of the qualification of sales of securities by the Commissioner of Corporations, see Ch. 515, Securities and Franchise Regulation].

[g] Requirements for Approval

Unless the partnership agreement of a constituent limited partnership requires a greater approval, the merger agreement must be approved by all general partners of each constituent partnership, and the principal terms of the merger must be approved by a majority in interest of each class of limited partners of each constituent limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15678.2(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.12(a) (ULPA '08)]. Notwithstanding this requirement, if as a result of the merger the limited partners of any constituent limited partnership become personally liable for any obligations of a constituent limited partnership or constituent other business entity, the principal terms of the agreement of merger must be approved by all of the limited partners of the constituent limited partnership, unless the agreement of merger provides that all limited partners may have the dissenters' rights provided by the CRLPA or ULPA '08 [Corp. Code § 15678.2(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.12(a) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15679.1 et seq. (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.20 et seq. (ULPA '08) (dissenters' rights)]. The agreement of merger must be approved on behalf of each constituent other business entity by those persons required to approve the merger by the laws under which it is organized [Corp. Code § 15678.2(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.12(a) (ULPA '08)].

An agreement of merger approved in the manner noted above may either (1) effect any amendment to the partnership agreement of any constituent limited partnership, or (2) effect the adoption of a new partnership agreement for a constituent limited partnership if it is the surviving limited partnership in the merger. Any amendment to a partnership agreement or adoption of a new partnership agreement becomes effective at the effective time or date of the merger [Corp. Code § 15678.2(e) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.12(e) (ULPA '08)]. Notwithstanding these requirements, if a greater number of limited partners is required to approve an amendment to the partnership agreement of a constituent limited partnership than is required to approve the agreement of merger [see Corp. Code § 15678.2(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.12(a) (ULPA '08)], and the number of limited partners that approve the agreement of merger is less than the number of limited partners required to approve an amendment to the partnership agreement of the constituent limited partnership, any amendment to the partnership agreement or adoption of a new partnership agreement of that constituent limited partnership becomes effective only if the agreement of merger provides that all of the limited partners have the dissenters' rights provided by the CRLPA or the ULPA '08 [Corp. Code § 15678.2(e) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.12(e) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15679.1 et seq. (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.20 et seq. (ULPA '08) (dissenters' rights)].

In addition, if any limited partners have a right to require the partnership to buy their partnership interests for cash, the partnership must mail to each such limited partner a notice of approval of the merger by the requisite vote or consent of the limited partners, within 10 days after the date of approval. The notice must be accompanied by (1) a copy of the statutes governing the right to payment for a dissenting interest; (2) a statement of the price that the partnership has determined represents the fair market value of its outstanding interests; and (3) a brief description of the procedure to be followed if the limited partner wishes to exercise the right to sell a dissenting interest. The statement of price constitutes an offer by the partnership to buy at the price stated any dissenting interests [Corp. Code § 15679.3(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.22(a) (ULPA '08)]. For discussion of the procedures for purchasing the interest of a dissenting partner, see [4], [5], below.

[h] Abandoning Merger

The general partners of a constituent limited partnership, in their discretion, may abandon a merger, subject to the any contractual rights of third parties, including other constituent limited partnerships and constituent other business entities, without further approval by the limited partnership interests, at any time prior to the effective date of the merger [Corp. Code § 15678.2(d) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.12(d) (ULPA '08)]. The effective date of the merger is the date on which a certificate of merger or the agreement of merger, as is applicable, is filed in the office of the Secretary of State, unless the certificate or agreement provides for a future date [Corp. Code § 15678.5(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.15(a) (ULPA '08); for discussion of the procedure for filing a certificate, see [j], below].

[i] Amending Merger

Notwithstanding its prior approval, a merger agreement may be amended before filing the certificate of merger or the agreement of merger, as is provided in Corp. Code § 15678.4 (CRLPA) or Corp. Code § 15911.14 (ULPA '08), if the amendment is approved by the general partners of each constituent partnership in the same manner as required for approval of the original merger agreement. If the amendment changes any of the principal terms of the agreement, the amendment must also be approved by the limited partners of each constituent limited partnership in the same manner and to the same extent as required for the approval of the original agreement, and by each constituent other business entity [Corp. Code § 15678.2(c) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.12(c) (ULPA '08)].

[j] Filing of Certificate of Merger

If the surviving entity is a limited partnership or an other business entity (other than a corporation in a merger in which a domestic corporation is a constituent party), after approval of a merger, the constituent limited partnerships and any constituent other business entities must file a certificate of merger, on an official form, in the office of the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 15678.4(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.14(a) (ULPA '08)]. The required contents of the certificate are set out in Corp. Code § 15678.4(a) (CRLPA) and Corp. Code § 15911.14(a) (ULPA '08).

If the surviving entity is a domestic corporation or a foreign corporation in a merger in which a domestic corporation is a constituent party, the surviving corporation must file a copy of the agreement of merger and attachments required under Corp. Code § 1113(g)(1) in the office of the Secretary of State, after the merger is approved by the constituent limited partnerships and constituent other business entities. The certificate of merger must be executed and acknowledged by all general partners of each domestic constituent limited partnership, unless a lesser number is provided in its certificate of limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15678.4(b) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.14(b) (ULPA '08)].

The merger becomes effective on filing of the certificate or agreement of merger (if an agreement of merger is required under Corp. Code § 15678.4(b) (CRLPA) or Corp. Code § 15911.14(b) (ULPA '08)), unless the certificate or agreement provides for a future effective date. In the case of a certificate, any future effective date must not be more than 90 days after the filing date [Corp. Code §§ 15678.4(a)(4), 15678.5(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code §§ 15911.14(a)(4), 15911.15(a) (ULPA '08)]. In addition, filing the certificate or agreement, as applicable, has the effect of filing a certificate of cancellation for each disappearing limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15678.4(c) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.14(c) (ULPA '08)].

[k] Assumption of Tax Liability

Upon a merger pursuant to Corp. Code § 15678.1 et seq. (CRLPA), a surviving domestic or foreign limited partnership or other business entity will be deemed to have assumed the liability of each disappearing domestic or foreign limited partnership or other business entity that is taxed under Rev. & Tax. Code § 17001 et seq. or Rev. & Tax. Code § 23001 et seq. for the following [Corp. Code § 15678.10(a) (CRLPA)]:

- To prepare and file, or to cause to be prepared and filed, tax and information returns otherwise required of that disappearing entity as specified in Rev. & Tax. Code § 18501 et seq.

- To pay any tax liability determined to be due.

The Secretary of State's office will notify the Franchise Tax Board of the merger [Corp. Code § 15678.10(b) (CRLPA)].

[4] Purchase of Dissenting Limited Partner's Interest

[a] In General

If approval of outstanding limited partnership interests is required for a limited partnership to participate in a "reorganization," which includes a merger or conversion [see Corp. Code § 15679.1(a)(1), (2) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.20(a)(1), (2) (ULPA '08)], pursuant to the partnership agreement or otherwise, each limited partner holding an outstanding interest may require the partnership to purchase that partner's dissenting interest for cash at its fair market value. The fair market value is determined as of the day before the first announcement of the terms of the proposed reorganization, excluding any appreciation or depreciation caused by the proposed reorganization [Corp. Code § 15679.2(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.21(a) (ULPA '08)].

[b] Reorganization

In addition to referring to conversions and mergers [see Corp. Code § 15679.1(a)(1), (2) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.20(a)(1), (2) (ULPA '08)], a "reorganization" that triggers dissenters' rights also includes the acquisition by one limited partnership of a controlling interest in all or substantially all of the assets of another limited partnership or other business entity in exchange for the partnership interests or equity securities of the acquiring partnership or other business entity or for certain of its debt securities [see Corp. Code § 15679.1(a)(3), (4) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.20(a)(3), (4) (ULPA '08)].

[c] Dissenting Interest Defined

A "dissenting limited partner" is the record holder of a dissenting interest, and includes an assignee of record of such an interest [Corp. Code § 15679.2(c) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.21(c) (ULPA '08)]. A "dissenting interest" is the interest of a limited partner that satisfies all of the following conditions [Corp. Code § 15679.2(b) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.21(b) (ULPA '08)]:

- Either (A) immediately before the reorganization, the interest was not either (i) listed on any certified national securities exchange, or (ii) listed on the Federal Reserve's list of OTC margin stocks, provided that, in either instance, the limited partnership whose outstanding interests are so listed provides a summary of the rights of dissenting partners in its notice to limited partners requesting their approval of the proposed reorganization; or (B) demands for payment are filed with respect to 5 percent or more of the outstanding interests of any class of interests described in (A)(i) or (ii) (interest not listed and dissenting partners received notice of rights);

- The interest was outstanding on the date for the determination of limited partners entitled to vote on the reorganization;

- The interest was not voted in favor of the reorganization or, if the interest is described in (A)(i) or (ii) of the first paragraph listed above (interest not listed and dissenting partners received notice of rights), it was voted against the reorganization. If the approval for the proposed reorganization is sought by written consent rather than at a meeting, the former of these conditions applies, that is, the interest was not voted in favor of the reorganization;

- The limited partner has demanded that the limited partner purchase the interest at its fair market value; and

- The limited partner submits the interest for endorsement, if applicable.

A dissenting interest loses its status as a dissenting interest, and the holder of the interest ceases to be entitled to require the partnership to purchase the interest, when any of the following events occur [Corp. Code § 15679.11 (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.30 (ULPA '08)]:

- The partnership abandons the reorganization, in which case the partnership must pay, on demand, reasonable expenses and attorney's fees to any dissenting partner who initiated a proceeding in good faith under Corp. Code § 15679.1 et seq. (CRLPA) or Corp. Code § 15911.20 et seq. (ULPA '08);

- The interest is transferred before its submission for endorsement [see [d], below];

- The dissenting partner and the partnership do not agree on the status of the interest as a dissenting interest or on the purchase price of the dissenting interest, and neither files a complaint or intervenes in a pending action within six months after the date on which notice of approval was mailed to the partner [see [5], below]; or

- The dissenting partner, with the consent of the partnership, withdraws the demand for purchase of the dissenting interest.

[d] Demand for Payment

To receive payment for a dissenting interest, the dissenting partner must make a written demand for purchase and payment in cash of its fair market value, which is determined as of the day before the first announcement of the terms of the proposed reorganization, excluding any appreciation or depreciation caused by the proposed reorganization [Corp. Code §§ 15679.2(a), 15679.3(b) (CRLPA); Corp. Code §§ 15911.21(a), 15911.22(b) (ULPA '08)]. The demand is not effective for any purpose until the partnership or its transfer agent receives it at the following times [Corp. Code § 15679.3(b) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.22(b) (ULPA '08)]:

- If the limited partner's interest is described by Corp. Code § 15679.2(b)(1)(A) (CRLPA) or Corp. Code § 15911.21(b)(1)(A) (ULPA '08) (interest not listed and dissenting partners received notice of rights), no later than the date of the limited partners' meeting to vote on the reorganization; or

- In any other case, within 30 days after the date the partnership mails notice that the reorganization was approved [see Corp. Code § 15679.3(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.22(a) (ULPA '08) (mailing of notice of approval and offer to purchase dissenting interests), discussed in [3][g], above].

The demand must state the number or amount of the limited partner's interest, and state what the limited partner claims to be the fair market value of that interest on the day before the announcement of the proposed reorganization. The statement of value constitutes an offer to sell the interest at that price [Corp. Code § 15679.3(c) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.22(c) (ULPA '08)].

A dissenting partner may not withdraw a demand for payment unless the partnership consents to withdrawal of the demand [Corp. Code § 15679.10 (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.29 (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15679.11(d) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.30(d) (ULPA '08) (withdrawal, with consent, destroys dissenting interest)]. Except as expressly limited by Corp. Code § 15679.1 et seq. (CRLPA) and Corp. Code § 15911.20 et seq. (ULPA '08), dissenting partners continue to have all the rights and privileges incident to their interests immediately before the reorganization, including limited liability, until the partnership pays for their dissenting interests [Corp. Code § 15679.10 (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.29 (ULPA '08)].

Within 30 days after the date the partnership mails notice that the reorganization was approved [see Corp. Code § 15679.3(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.22(a) (ULPA '08) (mailing of notice of approval and offer to purchase dissenting interests), discussed in [3][g], above], the dissenting partner must also submit to the partnership the certificate representing the interest for sale, to be stamped or endorsed with a statement that the interest is a dissenting interest or exchanged for certificates of appropriate denominations so stamped or endorsed [Corp. Code § 15679.4

(CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.23 (ULPA '08)]. If there is no certificate, written notice of the number or amount of interest for sale must be submitted [Corp. Code § 15679.4 (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.23 (ULPA '08)].

[e] Payment

If the partnership and dissenting partner agree that the limited partner's interest is a dissenting interest, and agree on the price to be paid for the dissenting interest, the dissenting partner is entitled to the agreed price, together with legal interest from the date the reorganization is consummated. All agreements fixing the fair market value of any dissenting partner's interest as between the partnership and the partner must be in writing and filed in the records of the partnership [Corp. Code § 15679.5(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.24(a) (ULPA '08)].

Payment of the fair market value for a dissenting interest must be made within 30 days after the amount has been agreed on, or within 30 days after any statutory or contractual conditions to the reorganization are satisfied, whichever is later. In the case of dissenting interests evidenced by certificates, the payment is subject to surrender of the certificates, unless provided otherwise by agreement [Corp. Code § 15679.5(b) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.24(b) (ULPA '08)].

No payment or portion of a payment may be made, however, to the extent it violates Corp. Code § 15666 (CRLPA) or Corp. Code § 15905.09 (ULPA '08) or Civ. Code § 3439 et seq., which prohibit payments that defraud creditors or cause partnership liabilities to exceed assets. In these circumstances, the dissenting partners become creditors of the partnership for the amount not paid, together with legal interest until the date of payment, but are subordinate to all other creditors in any proceeding relating to the winding up and dissolution of the limited partnership. The debt is to be paid when permissible [Corp. Code § 15679.8 (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.27 (ULPA '08)].

Any cash distributions made by a partnership to a dissenting partner after the date the reorganization is consummated, but before any payment by the partnership for the partner's dissenting interest, must be credited against the total amount to be paid by the partnership for the dissenting interest [Corp. Code § 15679.9 (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.28 (ULPA '08)].

For discussion of a dissenting partner's right to bring an action if the partnership denies that the partner's interest is a dissenting interest or fails to agree on the fair market value of the partner's interest, see [5], below.

[f] Limited Partnerships Subject to Buy-Out Provisions

Dissenters' rights apply to the following limited partnerships [Corp. Code § 15679.13(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.32(a) (ULPA '08)]:

- A domestic limited partnership formed on or after January 1, 1991;

- A foreign limited partnership if (A) the foreign limited partnership was formed on or after January 1, 1991, or filed an application to qualify to do business on or after January 1, 1991, and (B) limited partners holding more than 50 percent of the voting power held by all limited partners of the foreign limited partnership reside in California; and

- A limited partnership if the partnership agreement so provides or if all general partners and a majority in interest of the limited partners determine that the provisions apply.

[g] Limited Partnerships to Which Buy-Out Provisions Do Not Apply

Dissenters' rights do not apply to the following limited partnerships or interests [Corp. Code § 15679.13(b) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.32(b) (ULPA '08)]:

- Limited partnership interests governed by limited partnership agreements whose terms and provisions specifically set forth the amount to be paid for such interests in the event of a reorganization of the limited partnership; or

- Limited partnerships with 35 or fewer limited partners, unless the partnership agreement provides that the provisions will apply or unless all general partners and a majority in interest of the limited partners determine that the provisions apply.

[5] Action to Compel Purchase of Dissenting Interest

[a] Complaint and Limitation Period

If the partnership denies that a partner's interest is a dissenting interest [see [4][c], above], or the partnership and a dissenting partner fail to agree on the fair market value of the dissenting interest, the limited partner or any interested limited partnership may file a complaint in the superior court of the proper county to determine whether the interest is a dissenting interest or the fair market value of the dissenting interest, or both, or may intervene in any action pending on such a complaint [Corp. Code § 15679.6(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.25(a) (ULPA '08); for discussion of intervention, see Ch. 395, Parties]. The complaint must be filed within six months after the date on which notice of the approval of the "reorganization" (which includes a conversion or merger) by the requisite vote or consent of the limited partners was mailed to the limited partner [Corp. Code § 15679.6(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.25(a) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15679.1(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.20(a) (ULPA '08) (defining "reorganization")]. Two or more dissenting partners may join as plaintiffs or be joined as defendants in any such action, and two or more such actions may be consolidated [Corp. Code § 15679.6(b) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.25(b) (ULPA '08)].

For a complaint for payment of the fair market value of a dissenting partner's interest after reorganization, see § 404.45.

[b] Appointment of Appraiser

The court may appoint one or more appraisers to determine the fair market value per interest of the partnership's outstanding limited partnership interests, by class if necessary. Within the time fixed by the court, the appraisers, or a majority of them, must make and file a report with the court clerk. Then, on the motion of any party, the report must be submitted to the court and considered, along with such additional evidence as the court considers relevant. If the court finds the report reasonable, the court may confirm it [Corp. Code § 15679.7(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.26(a) (ULPA '08)]. If a majority of the appraisers appointed fails to make and file a report within 30 days from the date of their appointment, or within any further time as may be allowed by the court, or the report is not confirmed by the court, the court must determine the fair market value per interest of the outstanding limited partnership interests, by class if necessary [Corp. Code § 15679.7(b) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.26(b) (ULPA '08)].

[c] Trial

In the trial of the action, the court must determine the issues. If the status of the partnership interest as a dissenting interest is in issue, the court first must determine that issue. If the fair market value of the dissenting interest is at issue, the court must determine, or must appoint one or more impartial appraisers to determine, the fair market value of the dissenting interest [Corp. Code § 15679.6(c) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.25(c) (ULPA '08)].

[d] Judgment and Review

Judgment must be rendered against the partnership for payment of an amount equal to the fair market value, as determined by the court, of each dissenting interest that any dissenting partner who is a party, or has intervened, is entitled to require the partnership to purchase, plus interest at the legal rate from the date of consummation of the reorganization [Corp. Code § 15679.7(c) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.26(c) (ULPA '08)]. However, the judgment cannot require any payment that would defraud creditors or cause partnership liabilities to exceed assets under Corp. Code § 15666 (CRLPA) or Corp. Code § 15905.09 (ULPA '08) or Civ. Code § 3439 et seq. [Corp. Code § 15679.7(c) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.26(c) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15679.8 (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.27 (ULPA '08)].

The court must assess and apportion costs of the action as it considers equitable, including reasonable compensation for the appraisers, to be fixed by the court. The partnership must pay the costs, however, if the appraisal exceeds the price offered by the partnership. If the value awarded by the court for the dissenting interest is more than 125 percent of the price offered by the partnership, the court, in its discretion, may include attorney's fees and fees of expert witnesses in the costs award [Corp. Code § 15679.7(e) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.26(e) (ULPA '08)].

Any judgment must be payable forthwith. With respect to partnership interests evidenced by transferable certificates of interest, however, the judgment is payable only on endorsement and delivery to the partnership of those certificates representing the interests described in the judgment [Corp. Code § 15679.7(d) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.26(d) (ULPA '08); see [4][d], above, for discussion of endorsement of certificates].

Any party may appeal from the judgment [Corp. Code § 15679.7(d) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.26(d) (ULPA '08); see generally Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview , et seq.].

[e] Attacking Validity of Reorganization

No limited partner who has a right to demand payment of cash for the partner's interest has any right at law or in equity to attack the validity of a reorganization or to have the reorganization set aside or rescinded, except in an action to test whether the vote or consent of the partners required to authorize or approve the reorganization has been obtained in accordance with the procedures established by the partnership agreement [Corp. Code § 15679.14(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.33(a) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15679.1(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.20(a) (ULPA '08) (defining "reorganization" to include mergers, conversions, and other acquisitions of limited partnerships)].

If one of the parties to a reorganization is directly or indirectly controlled by, or under common control with, another party to the reorganization, Corp. Code § 15679.14(a) (CRLPA) and Corp. Code § 15911.33(a) (ULPA '08) do not apply to any limited partner of the controlled party who has not demanded cash payment for a dissenting interest. However, if the partner institutes any action to attack the validity of the reorganization or to have the reorganization set aside or rescinded, the partner thereafter has no right to demand payment for a dissenting interest [Corp. Code § 15679.14(b) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.33(b) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15679.1(b) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.20(b) (ULPA '08) ("control" defined)]. Additionally, in any action to attack the validity of the reorganization or to have the reorganization set aside or rescinded, (1) a party to a reorganization that controls another party to a reorganization has the burden of proving that the transaction is just and reasonable as to the limited partners of the controlled party; and (2) a person who controls two or more parties to a reorganization has the burden of proving that the transaction is just and reasonable as to the limited partners of any party so controlled [Corp. Code § 15679.14(c) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.33(c) (ULPA '08)].

Corp. Code § 15679.14(b) and (c) (CRLPA) and Corp. Code § 15911.33(b) and (c) (ULPA '08) do not apply if a majority in interest of the limited partners, other than those who are directly or indirectly controlled by, or under common control with, another party to the reorganization, approve or consent to the reorganization [Corp. Code § 15679.14(d) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.33(d) (ULPA '08)].

Corp. Code § 15679.14 (CRLPA) and Corp. Code § 15911.33 (ULPA '08) do not prevent a limited partner of a limited partnership that is a party to a reorganization from bringing an action, at law or in equity and as to any matters other than to attack the validity of the reorganization or to have it set aside or rescinded, against (1) a general partner of the partnership, (2) the partnership, or (3) any person controlling a general partner [Corp. Code § 15679.14(e) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.33(e) (ULPA '08)].

If litigation is instituted to test the sufficiency or regularity of the vote or consent of the limited partners in authorizing a reorganization, any proceedings on a cause of action for refusal to purchase a dissenting interest must be suspended until final determination of that litigation [Corp. Code § 15679.12 (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.31 (ULPA '08)].

§ 404.21 Transfer or Assignment of Partnership Interest

[1] ULPA '08

In a limited partnership governed by the ULPA '08, the only interest of a partner that is transferable is the partner's transferable interest [Corp. Code § 15907.01 (ULPA '08)]. "Transferable interest" refers to the partner's right to receive distributions [Corp. Code § 15901.02(ak) (ULPA '08)], and it is considered personal property [Corp. Code § 15907.01 (ULPA '08)].

A transfer of all or part of a partner's transferable interest is permissible and does not by itself cause the partner's dissociation or a dissolution and winding up of the limited partnership's activities [Corp. Code § 15907.02(a)(1), (2) (ULPA '08)]. Also, a transfer does not, as against the other partners or the limited partnership, entitle the transferee to participate in the management or conduct of the limited partnership's activities, to require access to information concerning the limited partnership's transactions (other than an account of the limited partnership's transactions on the dissolution and winding up of the limited partnership), to inspect or copy the required information or the limited partnership's other records, or to exercise any other rights or powers of a partner [Corp. Code § 15907.02(a)(3), (c) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15901.02(ad) ("required information" refers to information a limited partnership is required to maintain under Corp. Code § 15901.11 (ULPA '08))].

A transferee has a right to receive, in accordance with the transfer, distributions to which the transferor would otherwise be entitled [Corp. Code § 15907.02(b) (ULPA '08)]. However, the transferor retains all duties and obligations of a partner and retains the rights of a partner other than the interest in distributions transferred [Corp. Code § 15907.02(d) (ULPA '08)].

A limited partnership need not give effect to a transferee's rights until the limited partnership has notice of the transfer [Corp. Code § 15907.02(e) (ULPA '08)].

A transfer of a partner's transferable interest in the limited partnership in violation of a restriction on transfer contained in the partnership agreement is ineffective as to any person having notice of the restriction at the time of transfer [Corp. Code § 15907.02(f) (ULPA '08)].

A transferee that becomes a partner with respect to a transferable interest is liable for the transferor's obligations under Corp. Code § 15905.02 (ULPA '08) and 15905.09 (ULPA '08) [Corp. Code § 15907.02(g) (ULPA '08)]. However, the transferee is not obligated for liabilities unknown to the transferee at the time the transferee became a partner [Corp. Code § 15907.02(g) (ULPA '08)].

A transferee of a partnership interest, including a transferee of a general partner, may become a limited partner if and to the extent that (1) the partnership agreement provides or (2) all general partners and a majority in interest of the limited partners consent [Corp. Code § 15907.02(h) (ULPA '08)].

If a partner dies, the deceased partner's personal representative or other legal representative may exercise the rights of a transferee [see Corp. Code § 15907.02 (ULPA '08)] and, for the purposes of settling the estate, may exercise the rights of a current limited partner to inspect and copy information pertaining to the partnership [Corp. Code § 15907.04 (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15903.04 (ULPA '08); see also § 404.13[1]].

[2] CRLPA

Under the CRLPA, a limited partnership interest is assignable in whole or in part [Corp. Code § 15672(a) (CRLPA)]. The partnership agreement may provide that the interest of a partner or assignee in a limited partnership may be evidenced by a certificate of interest issued by the limited partnership, may provide for the assignment or transfer of any interest represented by such a certificate and the admission of transferees of the certificates as additional or substituted limited partners, and may make other provisions with respect to the form of those certificates not inconsistent with Corp. Code § 15611 et seq. [Corp. Code § 15638 (CRLPA)]. A certificate of interest may be, but is not required to be, a security as defined in Com. Code § 8102(a)(15) [Corp. Code § 15638 (CRLPA)].

The assignment does not dissolve the limited partnership. Except as provided in CRLPA, the assignment does not entitle the assignee to become a limited partner or to exercise any rights of a partner. An assignment entitles the assignee to receive, to the extent assigned, only the distributions and the allocations of income, gain, loss, deduction, credit, or similar item to which the assignor would be entitled [Corp. Code § 15672(a) (CRLPA)]. Except as otherwise provided in the assignment, an assignee of a limited partnership interest in a limited partnership with over 100 limited partners is also entitled to all of the rights granted to limited partners pursuant to Corp. Code § 15634 [Corp. Code § 15672(a) (CRLPA); see § 404.13[2]]. A limited partner remains a partner on assignment of all or part of his or her interest, with the rights that the assignee does not acquire or possess, subject to the assignee becoming a limited partner [Corp. Code § 15672(a) (CRLPA)].

The pledge, or granting, of a security interest, lien, or other encumbrance in or against any or all of the partnership interest of a partner will not cause the partner to cease to be a partner, nor will it grant to anyone else the power to exercise any rights or powers of a partner [Corp. Code § 15672(b)].

An assignee of a partnership interest, including an assignee of a general partner, may become a limited partner if and to the extent that (1) the partnership agreement provides, or (2) all general partners and a majority in interest of the limited partners consent [Corp. Code § 15674(a) (CRLPA)]. An assignee who becomes a limited partner has, to the extent assigned, the rights and powers of a limited partner, and is subject to the restrictions and liabilities of a limited partner, under the partnership agreement and other provisions of CRLPA. An assignee who becomes a limited partner is liable also for the obligations of the assignor to make contributions under Corp. Code § 15651 et seq. The assignee is not obligated, however, for liabilities that were unknown to the assignee at the time he or she became a limited partner and that could not be ascertained from the partnership agreement [Corp. Code § 15674(b) (CRLPA)].

If an assignee becomes a limited partner, the assignor is not released from the assignor's liability to the limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15674(c) (CRLPA); see Corp. Code §§ 15624(c), 15652, 15666 (CRLPA)]:

- For a false statement in a certificate relating to the partnership.
- For preexisting claims of creditors.
- To return distributions made to him or her that were made when partnership liabilities to creditors exceeded partnership assets.

A majority in interest of the limited partners may remove a general partner who assigns all of that general partner's interest in the partnership to a third party [Corp. Code § 15674(d) (CRLPA)].

[3] ULPA

The ULPA provides that a limited partner's interest is assignable [Corp. Code § 15519(1) (ULPA)]. An assignee who does not become a substituted limited partner does not have the same rights as a limited partner to inspection of partnership books, accounts of partnership transactions, or to vote on partnership matters. Such an assignee is entitled only to receive the share of profits, compensation, or return of contributions, to which his or her assignor would be otherwise entitled [Corp. Code § 15519(3) (ULPA)].

An assignee has the right to become a substituted limited partner if all the partners consent, or if the assignor is empowered by the certificate to give the assignee that right, and does so [Corp. Code § 15519(4) (ULPA)]. When the assignee becomes a substituted limited partner, the general partners are required to add his or her name to the list of limited partners kept at the principal office of the partnership [see Corp. Code §§ 15621, 15711, 15712(b) (CRLPA) (requirements of CRLPA relating to certificates and information as applicable to partnerships governed by ULPA)].

A substituted limited partner has all the rights and powers of, and is subject to all the restrictions and liabilities of, his or her assignor, except those liabilities of which he or she was ignorant at the time he or she became a limited partner, and that could not be ascertained from the certificate [Corp. Code § 15519(6) (ULPA)]. The substitution of an assignee as a limited partner does not release the assignor from liability to the partnership for false statements in certificates or from the obligation to return distributions [Corp. Code § 15519(7) (ULPA); see Corp. Code §§ 15622(c), 15712(b) (CRLPA)].

§ 404.22 Execution of Records and Certificates

[1] ULPA '08

[a] Signing and Filing of Documents

Documents (or "records" [see Corp. Code § 15901.02(ac) (ULPA '08)]) delivered to the Secretary of State for filing pursuant to the ULPA '08 must be signed in the following manner [Corp. Code § 15902.04(a) (ULPA '08]:

- An initial certificate of limited partnership must be signed by all general partners listed in the certificate.

- An amendment designating as general partner a person admitted under Corp. Code § 15908.01(c)(2) (ULPA '08) following the dissociation of a limited partnership's last general partner must be signed by that person.

- An amendment required by Corp. Code § 15908.03(c) (ULPA '08) following the appointment of a person to wind up a dissolved limited partnership's activities must be signed by that person.

- Any other amendment must be signed by (1) at least one general partner listed in the certificate of limited partnership; (2) each other person designated in the amendment as a new general partner; and (3) each person that the amendment indicates has dissociated as a general partner, unless (a) the person is deceased or a guardian or general conservator has been appointed for the person and the amendment so states; or (b) the person has previously delivered to the Secretary of State for filing a certificate of dissociation.

- A restated certificate of limited partnership must be signed by at least one general partner listed in the certificate, and, to the extent the restated certificate effects a change addressed by any other requirement listed here, the restated certificate must be signed in a manner that satisfies that requirement.

- A certificate of cancellation must be signed by all general partners listed in the certificate of limited partnership or, if the certificate of limited partnership of a dissolved limited partnership lists no general partners, by the person appointed pursuant to Corp. Code § 15908.03(c) or (d) (ULPA '08) to wind up the dissolved limited partnership's activities.

- Certificates of conversion must be signed as provided in Corp. Code § 15911.06(b) (ULPA '08).

- Certificates of merger must be signed as provided in Corp. Code § 15911.14(a) (ULPA '08).

- Any other record delivered on behalf of a limited partnership to the Secretary of State for filing must be signed by at least one general partner listed in the certificate of limited partnership.

- A certificate of dissociation by a person pursuant to Corp. Code § 15906.05(a)(4) (ULPA '08) stating that the person has dissociated as a general partner must be signed by that person.

- A certificate of withdrawal by a person pursuant to Corp. Code § 15903.06 (ULPA '08) must be signed by that person.

- A record delivered on behalf of a foreign limited partnership to the Secretary of State for filing must be signed by at least one general partner of the foreign limited partnership.

- Any other record delivered on behalf of any person to the Secretary of State for filing must be signed by that person.

A record authorized or required to be delivered to the Secretary of State for filing under the ULPA '08 must be completed on a form prescribed by and in a medium permitted by the Secretary of State, and must be delivered to the Secretary of State. Unless the Secretary of State determines that a record does not comply with the filing requirements of the ULPA '08, and if all requisite fees have been paid, the Secretary of State must file the record [Corp. Code § 15902.06(a) (ULPA '08)]. If the Secretary of State determines that a record delivered for filing does not conform to the law and returns it to the person delivering it, the record may be resubmitted accompanied by a written opinion of the member of the State Bar of California delivering the record or representing the person delivering it, to the effect that the specific provisions of the record objected to by the Secretary of State do conform to law and stating the points and authorities on which the opinion is based [Corp. Code § 15902.06(d) (ULPA '08)]. The Secretary of State must rely, with respect to any disputed point of law, other than the application of Corp. Code §§ 15901.08, 15901.09, 15909.02, 15909.05, on that written opinion in determining whether the record conforms to law. When filed by the Secretary of State on resubmission, the record is effective retroactively as of the date that the original record was delivered to the Secretary of State for filing [Corp. Code § 15902.06(d) (ULPA '08)].

Any person may sign by an attorney in fact any record to be filed pursuant to the ULPA '08 [Corp. Code § 15902.04(b) (ULPA '08)].

Any person, other than a general partner, delivering a record to the Secretary of State for filing, must state the statutory authority for such action after the signature on the appropriate record [Corp. Code § 15902.05(d) (ULPA '08)].

A record filed without a signature is effective without being signed [Corp. Code § 15902.05(c) (ULPA '08)].

[b] Action to Compel Signature or Filing

If a person required by the ULPA '08 to sign a record or deliver a record to the Secretary of State for filing fails to do so, any other person aggrieved by that failure may petition the superior court to issue one or more of the following orders [Corp. Code § 15902.05(a) (ULPA '08)]:

- An order that the person sign the record.
- An order that the person deliver the record to the Secretary of State for filing.
- An order that the Secretary of State file the record unsigned.

If the aggrieved person is not the limited partnership or foreign limited partnership to which the record pertains, the aggrieved person must make the limited partnership or foreign limited partnership a party to the action [Corp. Code § 15902.05(b) (ULPA '08)]. In any action under this provision, if the court finds the failure of the person to comply with the requirement to sign a record or deliver a record to the Secretary of State for filing to have been without justification, the court may award an amount sufficient to reimburse the aggrieved persons bringing the action for the reasonable expenses incurred by those persons, including attorney's fees, in connection with the action or proceeding [Corp. Code § 15902.05(b) (ULPA '08)].

[c] False Information

If a record delivered to the Secretary of State for filing under the ULPA '08 and filed by the Secretary of State contains false information, a person that suffers loss by reliance on the information may recover damages for the loss as follows [Corp. Code § 15902.08(a) (ULPA '08)]:

- From a person that signed the record, or caused another to sign it on the person's behalf, and knew the information to be false at the time the record was signed; and
- From a general partner that has notice that the information was false when the record was filed or has become false because of changed circumstances, if the general partner had notice for a reasonably sufficient time before the information was relied upon to enable the general partner to effect an amendment [see Corp. Code § 15902.02 (ULPA '08)], file a petition to compel a signature of a record [see Corp. Code § 15902.05 (ULPA '08)], or deliver to the Secretary of State for filing a certificate of correction [see Corp. Code § 15902.07 (ULPA '08)].

Signing a record authorized or required to be filed under the ULPA '08 constitutes an affirmation under the penalties of perjury that the facts stated in the record are true [Corp. Code § 15902.08(b) (ULPA '08)].

[2] CRLPA

[a] In General

If a general partner who is required under the CRLPA to execute or file a certificate of limited partnership fails to do so after demand within a reasonable time, or refuses to do so, any other partner, or any person appointed by a court of competent jurisdiction, may prepare, execute, and file a certificate of limited partnership with the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 15625(a) (CRLPA)].

If a general partner who is required to execute any certificate fails to do so within a reasonable time, or refuses to do so, or if there is any dispute concerning the filing of a certificate of amendment, a certificate of continuation, a certificate of dissolution, or a certificate of cancellation of limited partnership, any partner may petition the superior court to direct the execution of the certificate. If the court finds that it is proper for the certificate to be executed, and that any person so designated has failed or refused to execute the certificate, or if the court determines that any certificate should be filed, it must order a party to file a certificate. If the general partner's failure or refusal to comply with the requirement to file any certificate was without justification, the court may award to the partners bringing the action an amount sufficient to reimburse them for their reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees incurred in connection with the action or proceeding [Corp. Code § 15625(b) (CRLPA)].

Any person, other than a general partner, filing any certificate must state the statutory authority after the signature on the appropriate certificate [Corp. Code § 15625(c) (CRLPA)].

[b] False Statements

If a limited partner executes a certificate of limited partnership pursuant to Corp. Code § 15633, that limited partner is liable for any false statement in the certificate or for a statement in the certificate that is materially inconsistent with the partnership agreement. The limited partner is liable to any party who suffers loss in reliance on such a statement if the limited partner knew, or should have known, the statement was false when he or she executed the certificate and an amendment was not filed [Corp. Code §§ 15622(e), 15624(c); see Corp. Code § 15712(b) (applying certificate requirements of CRLPA to all limited partnerships, including those governed by ULPA)].

[c] Inconsistent Statements

Any general partner, or any limited partner executing a certificate pursuant to Corp. Code § 15633 is liable for any statement in the certificate of limited partnership that is materially inconsistent with the partnership agreement, if the partner knew or should have known that the statement was false when made and an amendment was not filed, and if the person suffering the loss relied on the statement or misstatement [Corp. Code § 15624(c) (CRLPA)]. A partner executing such a certificate is also liable to a party relying on any material misstatements of fact contained in the certificate. A general partner may be liable even if he or she did not execute the certificate if he or she knew or should have known that the statement was false or inconsistent at the time or became false or inconsistent and failed to file an amendment [Corp. Code § 15624(c) (CRLPA); see Ch. 405, Partnerships: Actions Between Limited Partners or Partnerships and Third Parties , for discussion and forms for third party actions based on partners' liability].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

35-404 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 404.23

§ 404.23 Rights and Duties of General Partners

[1] ULPA '08

[a] General Partner's Authority

In a limited partnership governed by the ULPA '08, each general partner is an agent of the partnership for the purposes of its activities [Corp. Code § 15904.02(a) (ULPA '08)]. An act of a general partner, including the signing of a record in the partnership's name, for apparently carrying on in the ordinary course the limited partnership's activities or activities of the kind carried on by the limited partnership, binds the limited partnership, unless the general partner did not have authority to act for the limited partnership in the particular matter and the person with which the general partner was dealing knew, had received a notification, or had notice under Corp. Code § 15901.03(d) (ULPA '08) that the general partner lacked authority [Corp. Code § 15904.02(a) (ULPA '08)].

An act of a general partner that is not apparently for carrying on in the ordinary course the limited partnership's activities, or activities of the kind carried on by the limited partnership, binds the limited partnership only if the act was actually authorized by all the other partners [Corp. Code § 15904.02(b) (ULPA '08)].

All general partners ordinarily have equal rights in the management and conduct of the limited partnership's activities [Corp. Code § 15904.06(a) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15904.07 (ULPA '08) (general partner's access to information pertaining to limited partnership)]. Except as expressly provided in the ULPA '08, any matter relating to the activities of the limited partnership may be exclusively decided by the general partner or, if there is more than one general partner, by a majority of the general partners [Corp. Code § 15904.06(a) (ULPA '08)]. For example, the consent of all partners is necessary (1) to amend the partnership agreement; and (2) to sell, lease, exchange, or otherwise dispose of all, or substantially all, of the limited partnership's property, with or without the good will, other than in the usual and regular course of the limited partnership's activities [Corp. Code § 15904.06(b) (ULPA '08)].

A partnership agreement may provide for the creation of classes of general partners, defining define the rights, powers, and duties of those classes, including rights, powers, and duties senior to other classes of general partners [Corp. Code § 15904.09(a) (ULPA '08)]. The partnership agreement may provide to all or certain specified classes of general partners the right to vote separately or with all or any class of the general partners on any matters [Corp. Code § 15904.09(b)

(ULPA '08)].

A general partner is not entitled to remuneration for services performed for the partnership [Corp. Code § 15904.06(f) (ULPA '08)]. However, a limited partnership must reimburse a general partner for payments made and indemnify a general partner for liabilities incurred by the general partner in the ordinary course of the activities of the partnership or for the preservation of its activities or property [Corp. Code § 15904.06(c) (ULPA '08)]. A limited partnership must also reimburse a general partner for an advance to the limited partnership beyond the amount of capital the general partner agreed to contribute [Corp. Code § 15904.06(d) (ULPA '08)]. A payment or advance made by a general partner that gives rise to one of these reimbursement obligations constitutes a loan to the limited partnership that accrues interest from the date of the payment or advance [Corp. Code § 15904.06(e) (ULPA '08)].

[b] General Partner's Fiduciary Duties

A general partner's fiduciary duties to the limited partnership and the other partners consist of a duty of loyalty and a duty of care [Corp. Code § 15904.08(a) (ULPA '08)].

The duty of loyalty to the limited partnership and the other partners is limited to the following [Corp. Code § 15904.08(b) (ULPA '08)]:

- A duty to account to the limited partnership and hold as trustee for it any property, profit, or benefit derived by the general partner in the conduct and winding up of the limited partnership's activities or derived from a use by the general partner of limited partnership property, including the appropriation of a limited partnership opportunity.

- A duty to refrain from dealing with the limited partnership in the conduct or winding up of the limited partnership's activities as or on behalf of a party having an interest adverse to the limited partnership.

- A duty to refrain from competing with the limited partnership in the conduct or winding up of the limited partnership's activities.

The duty of care to the limited partnership and the other partners in the conduct and winding up of the limited partnership's activities is limited to refraining from engaging in grossly negligent or reckless conduct, intentional misconduct, or a knowing violation of law [Corp. Code § 15904.08(c) (ULPA '08)].

A general partner must discharge the duties to the partnership and the other partners under the ULPA '08 or under the partnership agreement and exercise any rights consistently with the obligation of good faith and fair dealing [Corp. Code § 15904.08(d) (ULPA '08)]. A general partner does not violate a duty or obligation under the ULPA '08 or under the partnership agreement merely because the general partner's conduct furthers the general partner's own interest [Corp. Code § 15904.08(e) (ULPA '08)].

[c] Liability of Partnership and General Partner

A limited partnership is liable for loss or injury caused to a person, or for a penalty incurred, as a result of a wrongful act or omission, or other actionable conduct, of a general partner acting in the ordinary course of activities of the limited partnership or with authority of the limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15904.03(a) (ULPA '08)]. If, in the course of the limited partnership's activities or while acting with authority of the limited partnership, a general partner receives or causes the limited partnership to receive money or property of a person not a partner, and the money or property is misapplied by a general partner, the limited partnership is liable for the loss [Corp. Code § 15904.03(b) (ULPA '08)].

Generally, all general partners are liable jointly and severally for all obligations of the limited partnership unless otherwise agreed by the claimant or provided by law [Corp. Code § 15904.04(a) (ULPA '08)]. However, a person that becomes a general partner of an existing limited partnership is not personally liable for an obligation of a limited partnership incurred before the person became a general partner [Corp. Code § 15904.04(b) (ULPA '08)].

[2] CRLPA and ULPA

[a] In General

Under both the CRLPA and the ULPA, general partners in a limited partnership have the same rights and powers, and are subject to the same liabilities, as are partners in a general partnership [Corp. Code § 15643 (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15509 (ULPA); see Ch. 401, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners and Partnership , and Ch. 402, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners or Partnership and Third Parties].

Under the ULPA, the authority of the general partners in a limited partnership is limited in that they may not do any of the following without the written consent or ratification of the specific act by all the limited partners [Corp. Code § 15509(1)]:

- Perform any act in contravention of the certificate.
- Perform any act that would make it impossible to carry on the ordinary business of the partnership.
- Confess a judgment against the partnership.
- Possess partnership property, or assign their rights in specific partnership property for other than a partnership purpose.
- Admit a person as a general partner.
- Admit a person as a limited partner, unless the right to do so is given in the certificate of limited partnership.
- Continue the business with partnership property on the death, retirement, or insanity of a general partner, unless the right to do so is given in the certificate.

[b] General Partner Who Is Also Limited Partner

A general partner of a limited partnership governed by the CRLPA may make contributions to the limited partnership and share in the profits and losses of, and in distributions from, the limited partnership as a general partner. A general partner may also make contributions, and share in the profits, losses, and distributions, as a limited partner, if the general partner's interest as a limited partner is separately designated in the partnership agreement. A person who is both a general and a limited partner has the rights and powers, and is subject to the restrictions and liabilities, of a general partner. Except as otherwise provided in the partnership agreement, he or she also has the powers, and is subject to the restrictions, of a limited partner to the extent of his or her participation as a limited partner [Corp. Code § 15644 (CRLPA)].

Similarly, under the ULPA a person may be a general partner and a limited partner in the same partnership at the same time [Corp. Code § 15512(1) (ULPA)]. A person who is a general and a limited partner has all the rights and powers and is subject to all the restrictions of a general partner, except that with respect to his or her contribution, he or she has all the rights against the other partners that he or she would have if he or she were not also a general partner [Corp.

Code § 15512(2) (ULPA)].

[c] Withdrawal

Under the CRLPA, a partnership agreement may provide that a general partner may withdraw from a limited partnership at the time, or on the happening, of events specified in the partnership agreement, or that a general partner may not have the right to withdraw as a general partner of a limited partnership. Notwithstanding any restriction on a general partner's right to withdraw, a general partner may withdraw from a limited partnership at any time by giving written notice to the other partners. If the withdrawal violates the partnership agreement, however, the limited partnership may recover from the withdrawing general partner damages for breach of the partnership agreement. In addition to other remedies, the partnership has the right to offset the damages against any amounts otherwise distributable to the general partner. In the case of a partnership for a fixed term, a withdrawal by a general partner prior to the expiration of that term is a breach of the partnership agreement [Corp. Code § 15662(a) (CRLPA)].

Subject to any liability for breach of the partnership contract, a general partner who ceases to be a general partner has all of the following rights and liabilities [Corp. Code § 15662(b) (CRLPA)]:

- He or she retains the same interest in his or her capital account and distributions, but the interest is that of a limited partner.

- He or she is not personally liable for partnership debts incurred after he or she ceases to be a general partner, other than debts incurred by reason of being deemed to be acting as a general partner [see Corp. Code § 15642].

- He or she will be entitled to vote as a limited partner on all matters except the admission and compensation of a general partner.

- He or she will have his or her interest in profits, losses, and distributions reduced pro rata with all other partners to provide compensation or an interest in the partnership, or both, to a new general partner.

[3] Exercising Business Judgment

In any partnership, including a limited partnership, the relationship between partners is fiduciary in nature, imposing on partners a duty of good faith and fair dealing, and requiring that no partner may take unfair advantage [see Corp. Code § 15904.08 (ULPA '08); see also Nelson v. Abraham (1947) 29 Cal. 2d 745, 750-751, 177 P.2d 931 ; Everest Investors 8 v. McNeil Partners (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 411, 424, 429, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 31 (limited partners' claims that general partners breached fiduciary duties by engaging in wrongful actions related to merger transaction that benefitted general partners at expense of limited partners were individual rather than derivative in nature); Wind v. Herbert (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 276, 284, 8 Cal. Rptr. 817]. Limited partnerships are also governed to some extent by the rules relating to corporations. The characteristics of limited partners, which include limited investor liability, delegation of authority to management, and the fiduciary duty owed by management to investors, are similar to those existing in corporate investment. In the latter context, it has long been the rule that directors are not liable to stockholders for mistakes made in exercising honest business judgment, or for losses incurred in the good faith performance of their duties when they have used the standard of care of an ordinarily prudent person. By this standard, a general partner may not be held liable for mistakes made or losses incurred in the good faith exercise of reasonable business judgment [see Corp. Code § 15904.08(c) (ULPA '08) (general partner's duty of care is limited to refraining from engaging in grossly negligent or reckless conduct, intentional misconduct, or knowing violation of law); Wyler v. Feuer (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 392, 402, 149 Cal. Rptr. 626 (decided under ULPA); but see Everest Investors 8 v. McNeil Partners (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 411, 429-432, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 31 (triable issues of fact existed regarding general partner's business judgment rule defense in limited partners' action for breach of fiduciary duty; summary judgment could not be upheld based on theory that general partner conducted good faith and reasonable investigation into whether merger transaction was in best interests of limited partners)].

Chapter 404 PARTNERSHIPS: ACTIONS BETWEEN LIMITED PARTNERS AND PARTNERSHIPS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

35-404 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 404.24

§ 404.24 Actions by Partners

[1] ULPA '08

[a] Partner's Direct Action

A limited or general partner in a partnership governed by the ULPA '08 may maintain a direct action against the limited partnership or another partner for legal or equitable relief, with or without an accounting as to the partnership's activities, to enforce the rights and otherwise protect the interests of the partner, including rights and interests under the partnership agreement or under the ULPA '08 or arising independently of the partnership relationship [Corp. Code § 15910.01(a) (ULPA '08)]. A partner bringing a direct action must plead and prove an actual or threatened injury that is not solely the result of an injury suffered or threatened to be suffered by the limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15910.01(b) (ULPA '08)].

The accrual of, and any time limitation on, a right of action by a partner under the ULPA '08 is governed by other law [Corp. Code § 15910.01(c) (ULPA '08)]. A right to an accounting on the dissolution and winding up of a partnership does not revive a claim barred by law [Corp. Code § 15910.01(c) (ULPA '08)].

[b] Partner's Derivative Action

A limited or general partner in a limited partnership governed by the ULPA '08 may bring a derivative action to enforce a right of the partnership if either (1) the partner first makes a demand on the general partners, requesting that they cause the limited partnership to bring an action to enforce the right, and the general partners do not bring the action within a reasonable time; or (2) a demand on the general partners would be futile [Corp. Code § 15910.02 (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15910.04 (ULPA '08) (complaint must state with particularity date and content of plaintiff's demand and general partners' response to the demand, or why demand is excused as futile)].

A derivative action may be maintained only by a person that is a partner at the time the action is commenced and (1) was a partner when the conduct giving rise to action occurred, or (2) whose status as a partner devolved on the person by operation of law or pursuant to the terms of the partnership agreement from a person that was a partner at the time of that conduct [Corp. Code § 15910.03(a) (ULPA '08)]. However, any partner that does not meet the foregoing requirements may nevertheless be allowed in the discretion of the court to maintain a derivative action if the court determines that (1) there is a strong prima facie case in favor of the claim asserted on behalf of the partnership, (2) no other similar action has been or is likely to be instituted, (3) the plaintiff acquired an interest in the partnership before there was disclosure to the public and to the plaintiff of the wrongdoing of which the plaintiff complains, (4) unless the action can be maintained the defendant may retain a gain derived from the defendant's willful breach of a fiduciary duty, and (5) the requested relief will not result in unjust enrichment of the partnership or any partner [Corp. Code § 15910.03(b) (ULPA '08)]. The court's determination may be made only on motion by the plaintiff and after a hearing at which the court considers such evidence, by affidavit or testimony, as it deems material [Corp. Code § 15910.03(b) (ULPA '08)].

In any derivative action, the court may, on motion of the limited partnership or a general partner, require the plaintiff to furnish a bond of up to $50,000 if (1) there is no reasonable possibility that the prosecution of the cause of action alleged in the complaint against the moving party will benefit the limited partnership or its partners; or (2) the moving party, if other than the partnership, did not participate in the transaction complained of in any capacity [Corp. Code § 15910.06 (ULPA '08)]. The motion generally must be made within 30 days after service of the summons on the limited partnership or the general partner, but the court may extend that period by up to 60 days [Corp. Code § 15910.06(a)(2) (ULPA '08)].

Generally, any proceeds or other benefits of a derivative action, whether by judgment, compromise, or settlement, belong to the limited partnership and not to the derivative plaintiff [Corp. Code § 15910.05(a)(1) (ULPA '08)]. If the derivative plaintiff receives any of those proceeds, the derivative plaintiff must immediately remit them to the limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15910.05(a)(2) (ULPA '08)]. If a derivative action is successful in whole or in part, the court may award the plaintiff reasonable expenses, including reasonable attorney's fees, from the recovery of the limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15910.05(b) (ULPA '08)].

[2] CRLPA

[a] Class Action

Any limited partner of a foreign or domestic limited partnership governed by the CRLPA may bring a class action on behalf of all or a class of limited partners to enforce any claim common to those limited partners. The action is governed by the law governing class actions generally, except that to maintain the class action there is no requirement that the class be so numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable [Corp. Code § 15701 (CRLPA)]. For discussion of class actions generally, see Ch. 120, Class Actions .

[b] Derivative Action

Limited partners may bring or defend actions on behalf of the partnership if two conditions are met [Corp. Code § 15702(a) (CRLPA)]. First, the plaintiff must allege either of the following in the complaint [Corp. Code § 15702(a)(1) (CRLPA)]:

- That he or she was a partner of record or beneficially, at the time of the transaction or any part thereof of which plaintiff complains [see, e.g., Jones v. Wells Fargo Bank (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1527, 1534, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 835 (plaintiff who alleged that bank's loan and forbearance agreement were usurious was not limited partner when original loan was made, but alleged that he was partner when defendants arranged forbearance agreement; allegation was sufficient to challenge forbearance agreement)].

- That plaintiff's interest thereafter devolved on plaintiff by operation of law from a partner who was a partner at the time of the transaction, or any part of the transaction, of which plaintiff complains.

Any partner who does not meet this first condition nevertheless may be allowed, at the discretion of the court, to maintain the action. In order to do so, the partner must make a preliminary showing to the court, and obtain a court determination, that certain factors exist. The showing and determination must be made by motion and after a hearing at which the court must consider any evidence by affidavit or testimony that it deems material. For the partner to maintain the action, the court must determine that (1) there is a strong prima facie case in favor of the claim asserted on behalf of the limited partnership, (2) no other similar action has been or is likely to be instituted, (3) the plaintiff acquired the interest before there was disclosure to the public or to the plaintiff of the wrongdoing of which plaintiff complains, (4) unless the action is maintained the defendant may retain a gain derived from the defendant's willful breach of a fiduciary duty, and (5) the requested relief will not result in unjust enrichment of the limited partnership or of any partner the following factors exist [Corp. Code § 15702(a)(1) (CRLPA)].

The second condition for any partner of a limited partnership to institute or maintain a derivative action is that the plaintiff must allege in the complaint, with particularity, his or her efforts to secure from the general partners the action that the plaintiff desires, or the reasons for not making that effort. The plaintiff must further allege that he or she has either informed the limited partnership or the general partners in writing of the ultimate facts of each cause of action against each defendant, or delivered to the limited partnership or the general partners a true copy of the complaint that plaintiff proposes to file [Corp. Code § 15702(a)(2) (CRLPA)].

In an action brought by limited partners under CRLPA on behalf of the limited partnership, the limited partnership or any defendant who is a general partner or who was a general partner at the time of the acts complained of may move for an order, on notice and hearing, requiring that the plaintiff furnish security. The motion may be brought at any time within 30 days after service of summons on the limited partnership or on any such defendant, although the court may, for good cause shown on application of the limited partnership or any defendant, extend the 30-day period for an additional period not exceeding 60 days. The motion must be based on one or both of the following grounds [Corp. Code § 15702(b) (CRLPA)]:

- There is no reasonable possibility that prosecution of the cause of action alleged in the complaint against the moving party will benefit the limited partnership or its partners.

- The moving party, if it is someone other than the limited partnership, did not participate in the transaction complained of in any capacity.

At the hearing on a motion for security, the court must consider oral or written evidence, by witnesses or affidavit, that may be material (1) to the ground on which the motion is based, or (2) to a determination of the probable reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, of the limited partnership and the moving party that will be incurred in the defense of the action. If the court determines after hearing the evidence that the moving party has established a probability in support of any of the grounds on which the motion is based, the court must fix the nature and amount of security, not to exceed $50,000, to be furnished by plaintiff for reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, that may be incurred by the moving party and the limited partnership in connection with the action. A ruling by the court on the motion is not a determination of any issue in the action or of the merits of any such issue [Corp. Code § 15702(c) (CRLPA)].

The amount of the security thereafter may be increased or decreased at the court's discretion on a showing that the security provided has or may become inadequate or excessive, but the court may not increase the total amount of the security beyond $50,000 in the aggregate for all defendants. If the court, on such a motion, determines that plaintiff must furnish security as to one or more defendants, the action must be dismissed as to those defendants unless the security required by the court has been furnished within any reasonable time fixed by the court. The limited partnership and the moving party will have recourse to the security in an amount that the court determines on the termination of the action [Corp. Code § 15702(c) (CRLPA)].

For forms relating to the motion for security that may be adapted for use in a derivative action by limited partners, see Ch. 168, Corporations: Derivative Actions .

If the plaintiff, either before or after a motion for security is made or any order or determination is made pursuant to such a motion, posts good and sufficient bond or bonds in the aggregate amount of $50,000 to secure the reasonable expenses of the parties entitled to make the motion, the plaintiff has complied with the security requirements and with any order for security previously made. Any motion for security then pending will be dismissed and no further or additional bond or other security will be required [Corp. Code § 15702(d) (CRLPA)].

If a motion for security is filed, no pleadings need be filed by the limited partnership or any other defendant. The prosecution of the action will be stayed until 10 days after the court has disposed of the motion [Corp. Code § 15702(e) (CRLPA)].

For further discussion of security and bonds generally, see Ch 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings .

[3] ULPA

Under the ULPA, a limited partner is not a proper party to an action by or against a limited partnership, except when the object is to enforce his or her right against or liability to the partnership [see Corp. Code § 15526 (ULPA)]. Cases decided under ULPA, however, provide that limited partners may intervene and file cross complaints in suits against limited partnerships when the general partners refuse to defend the action [see Kobernick v. Shaw (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 914, 918-920, 919, 139 Cal. Rptr. 188 ; Linder v. Vogue Investments, Inc. (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 338, 340-341, 48 Cal. Rptr. 633 ; for forms relating to intervention generally, see Ch. 395, Parties].

PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

35-404 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 404.32

§ 404.32 Decisions

[1] Assignment of Interest

Assignees of limited partners who are not substituted limited partners have no right to interfere in management of partnership business and no voice in internal management; such assignees have no standing to bring action against general partners for breach of fiduciary duty, declaratory relief, and injunction. Kellis v. Ring (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 854, 860, 155 Cal. Rptr. 297 (decided under ULPA)

Assignee has right only to income, profits, and return of contribution, and may only bring action against general partners relating to interference with those rights. Kellis v. Ring (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 854, 860, 155 Cal. Rptr. 297 (decided under ULPA)

[2] General Partner's Rights and Liabilities

Dismissal of limited partner/investor's common law claim against general partner for negligent mismanagement is proper in view of failure to introduce evidence of industry standard for management and in view of evidence that partnership's catches and revenues were comparable to those of other fishing ventures in area, based on consultation with industry expert and preparation of projections with aid of industry journals and publications. Toombs v. Leone (9th Cir. 1985) 777 F.2d 465, 470

Dismissal of limited partner/investor's claim against general partner for breach of fiduciary duty is proper in view of failure to establish that general partner had gained any advantage over him. Toombs v. Leone (9th Cir. 1985) 777 F.2d 465, 470

Limited partners' claims that general partners breached fiduciary duties by engaging in wrongful actions related to merger transaction that benefitted general partners at expense of limited partners were individual rather than derivative in nature. Everest Investors 8 v. McNeil Partners (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 411, 424, 429, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 31

Triable issues of fact existed regarding general partner's business judgment rule defense in limited partners' action for breach of fiduciary duty; summary judgment could not be upheld based on theory that general partner conducted good faith and reasonable investigation into whether merger transaction was in best interests of limited partners. Everest Investors 8 v. McNeil Partners (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 411, 429-432, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 31

General partner's fiduciary duty not to purchase partnership debt and foreclose out a partner cannot be contracted away in partnership agreement; limited partnership agreement cannot relieve general partner of its fiduciary duties in matters fundamentally related to partnership business. BT-I v. Equitable Life Assurance Society (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 1406, 1415, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 811

Innocent general partner required by former Corp. Code §§ 15018(b), 15040(d) to reimburse limited partner for proportionate share of sums expended to repay unauthorized loan obtained by other general partner (who was insolvent and misappropriated proceeds) and secured by partnership property. Kazanjian v. Rancho Estates, Ltd. (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1621, 1627-1630, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 534 (dissent noted that no claim for "secondary" liability on contribution theory was before trial or appellate court, and limited partner waived any claim by ratification implicit in approving repayment of loan)

General partner is not liable to limited partners for mistakes or losses incurred in the good faith exercise of reasonable business judgment. Wyler v. Feuer (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 392, 402, 149 Cal. Rptr. 626 (decided under ULPA)

Partnership agreement provision denying general partner right to accounting and forfeiting his or her investment on termination of partnership agreement is unenforceable. Moldovan v. Fischer (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 600, 611, 308 P.2d 844 (decided under ULPA)

[3] Limited Partner's Rights and Liabilities

Claims of limited partners that general partners breached fiduciary duties by engaging in wrongful actions related to merger transaction that benefitted themselves at expense of limited partners were individual rather than derivative in nature; trial court erred in granting summary judgment on ground that claims were derivative. Everest Investors 8 v. McNeil Partners (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 411, 424, 429, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 31

Limited partner is proper party to bring derivative actions under Corp. Code § 15526 against general partners for self dealing and breach of fiduciary duties. Wallner v. Parry Professional Bldg., Ltd. (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1446, 1449-1450

Limited partner's derivative action under Corp. Code § 15526 is inappropriate to challenge decisions of general partner in exercise of good business judgment. Wallner v. Parry Professional Bldg., Ltd. (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1446, 1453-1454

Attorney for partner represents all partners in matters of partnership business; thus joint client rule of Evid. Code § 962 applies to communication by one partner to attorney not made in presence of other partners. Wortham & Van Liew v. Superior Court (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 927, 931-933, 233 Cal. Rptr. 725

Right of limited partners under Corp. Code § 15510(1)(a), (b) (ULPA) to inspect partnership books and to have true and full information of all things affecting partnership on demand is exercisable without showing of good cause or proper purpose. McCain v. Phoenix Resources, Inc. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 575, 579-580, 230 Cal. Rptr. 25

Right of limited partners under Corp. Code § 15510(1)(b) (ULPA) to information and inspection applies to documents and information relating to partnership business in possession of attorney for general partner. McCain v. Phoenix

Limited partnership may bring action in its own name. Diamond View Limited v. Herz (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 612, 614 n.1, 225 Cal. Rptr. 651

Although limited partners are prohibited from bringing actions on behalf of limited partnership (under ULPA only), they are not precluded from filing cross complaint under circumstances in which it would be proper for them to intervene. Kobernick v. Shaw (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 914, 918-920, 139 Cal. Rptr. 188 (decided under ULPA)

Although limited partner is not proper party in action against limited partnership, limited partner may intervene in suit against limited partnership when general partner refuses to defend unmeritorious action. Linder v. Vogue Investments, Inc. (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 338, 340-341, 48 Cal. Rptr. 633 (decided under ULPA)

Action for forcible detainer is permitted against limited partner holding lease of business premises, by general partner who is entitled to exclusive control of business and all benefits of lease. Moldovan v. Fischer (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 600, 608, 308 P.2d 844 (decided under ULPA)

Action for declaratory relief to determine limited partner's right to share of partnership profits. Lissman v. McDonald (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 228, 258 P.2d 1057 (decided under ULPA)

[4] Nature of Limited Partner's Interest

Limited partner's interest in partnership is personalty and does not entitle limited partner to interest in partnership real property; thus, limited partner's action against partnership formed by general partners and to which limited partnership real property was conveyed does not support filing of lis pendens. North Coast Business Park v. Superior Court (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 858, 860, 205 Cal. Rptr. 81

[2] Use of Form

The petition in [1], above, is for use in obtaining a writ of mandate to enforce the right of a limited partner to have partnership information and financial statements made and mailed or delivered to him or her [see Corp. Code § 15634(f) (CRLPA)]. It may be used only by a limited partner in a limited partnership that is formed on or after July 1, 1984, or is otherwise governed by CRLPA [Corp. Code § 15611 et seq.; see Corp. Code §§ 15711, 15712, 15714; see also § 404.10[1][b]].

[3] Allegations

This petition alleges the following:

- The capacity and principal place of business of respondent limited partnership (Paragraph 1) [see Corp. Code § 15634 (CRLPA)];

- The capacity of respondents as general partners in the partnership (Paragraph 2) [see Corp. Code § 15634 (CRLPA)];

- Petitioner's status as a limited partner in respondent partnership (Paragraph 3) [see Corp. Code § 15634 (CRLPA)];

- That respondents failed either (1) to deliver to petitioner, on reasonable request, either at the petitioner's address or at the partnership's office for petitioner's inspection and copying, the partnership records required to be kept at a partnership office pursuant to Corp. Code §§ 15614 and 15615 (CRLPA), (2) to deliver to petitioner, on reasonable request, a copy of partnership federal, state, and local income tax or information returns, after those returns have become available, (3) to deliver or mail to petitioner a copy of any amendment to the partnership agreement that was executed by a general partner pursuant to a power of attorney from petitioner, or (4) to mail to petitioner within 90 days after the end of the taxable year information necessary for petitioner to complete income tax or information returns and, in the case of a partnership with 35 or fewer limited partners, copies of partnership income tax or information returns (Paragraph 4) [see Corp. Code § 15634(a), (b), (d), (e) (CRLPA)];

- The reason why respondents' failure to comply with the statutory requirements is without justification (Paragraph 5) [see Corp. Code § 15634(g) (CRLPA)]; and

- The absence of any plain, speedy, and adequate remedy, in the ordinary course of law (Paragraph 6) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086].

The allegations in any of the Paragraph 4 alternatives may be modified to allege that the request or demand for the particular records was made by an agent or attorney of the petitioner [see Corp. Code § 15634(i) (CRLPA)].

[4] Verification

A petition for writ of mandate must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086]. Proof of service of a copy of the petition on each respondent and real party in interest must accompany the petition when it is offered for filing, except when, in the court's discretion and for good cause, the court has granted the application for the writ ex parte [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107]. A supporting memorandum is required to accompany a petition for writ of mandate filed in a superior court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1103(a)(2), 3.1113; for discussion and forms, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition].

[5] Limited Partner's Right to Partnership Information

A limited partner in a limited partnership governed by CRLPA has rights entitling him or her to receive or to inspect and copy partnership information and financial records specified in Corp. Code § 15634 (CRLPA). Any waiver by a partner of these rights is unenforceable [Corp. Code § 15634(h) (CRLPA)]. In addition to any other remedies pertaining to those rights, a court of competent jurisdiction may enforce the duty of the partnership and general partners to make and mail or deliver the specified information and financial statements [see Corp. Code § 15634(f) (CRLPA)].

[6] Extending Time for Respondents to Comply

For good cause shown, the court may extend the time respondents have to comply with the requirements imposed by Corp. Code § 15634(a)-(e) (CRLPA) [Corp. Code § 15634(f) (CRLPA)]. For discussion and forms relating to extensions of time generally, see Ch. 524, Shortening and Extension of Time .

[7] Costs and Attorney's Fees

In any proceeding to enforce a limited partner's right of access to partnership information, if the court finds that the failure of the partnership to comply with the requirements of Corp. Code § 15634(a)-(e) (CRLPA) to have been without justification, the court may award an amount sufficient to reimburse the petitioning partner or partners for reasonable expenses incurred, including attorney's fees, in connection with the proceeding [see Corp. Code § 15634(g) (CRLPA); see also Berti v. Santa Barbara Beach Properties (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 70, 74-76, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 364 (statute allows court to award attorney's fees incurred in post-judgment proceedings for enforcement of judgment in action brought under that statute)].

§ 404.41 Allegation for Petition for Writ of Mandate Under CRLPA--By Limited Partner in Partnership Having More Than 35 Limited Partners to Compel Mailing of Partnership's Annual Report [Corp. Code § 15634(c)(1)(CRLPA)]

[1] FORM Allegation for Petition for Writ of Mandate Under CRLPA--By Limited Partner in Partnership Having More Than 35 Limited Partners to Compel Mailing of Partnership's Annual Report [Corp. Code § 15634(c)(1)(CRLPA)]

4. _____ [date] was the close of respondent partnership's fiscal year. Although respondent partnership has more than 35 limited partners, respondents have failed to mail to petitioner an annual report within 120 days of the close of the fiscal year, as required by Corporations Code Section 15634(c)(1), despite petitioner's demand[s] that they do so.

5. Respondents' failure to mail the annual report to petitioner is without justification in that _____ [specify, e.g., respondent general partners have met several times during the 120 days since the expiration of respondent partnership's fiscal year, and have had ample opportunity to prepare an annual report].

[2] Use of Form

The allegations in [1], above, are for use by a limited partner in a limited partnership governed by CRLPA that has more than 35 limited partners. These allegations are designed to be inserted in a petition for writ of mandate to compel the general partners to mail an annual report to the limited partner, as required by Corp. Code § 15634(c)(1) (CRLPA) [Corp. Code § 15534(f)]. The allegations may be substituted for Paragraphs 4 and 5 in the form in § 404.40[1].

These allegations should be used only by limited partners in limited partnerships governed by CRLPA (Corp. Code § 15611 et seq.). A limited partnership formed prior to July 1, 1984, may be governed instead by ULPA (Corp. Code § 15501 et seq.). The ULPA '08, which generally governs limited partnerships formed on or after January 1, 2008, does not impose an annual-report requirement that these allegations address under CRLPA. For discussion of the application of the ULPA '08, the CRLPA, and the ULPA generally, see § 404.10.

[3] Limited Partners' Right to Annual Report

Under CRLPA, in the case of any limited partnership with more than 35 limited partners, the general partners must send an annual report to each of the partners no later than 120 days after the close of the fiscal year. The report must contain a balance sheet as of the end of the fiscal year, and an income statement and statement of cashflows for the fiscal year [Corp. Code § 15634(c)(1) (CRLPA)]. Any financial statements must be accompanied by a report, if any, of the independent accountants engaged by the partnership or, if there is no such report, the certificate of a general partner of the partnership that these financial statements were prepared without audit from the books and records of the limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15634(c)(3) (CRLPA)].

[A copy of the request is attached as Exhibit _____, and incorporated by reference.] Although 30 days have passed since the request was made, respondents have not delivered or mailed the statement to petitioner.

[3] Right to Income Statements

Under CRLPA, in the case of any limited partnership with more than 35 limited partners, limited partners representing at least 5 percent of the interests of limited partners may make a written request to a general partner for an income statement of the limited partnership for the initial three-month, six-month, or nine-month period of the current fiscal year ended more than 30 days prior to the date of the request and a balance sheet of the partnership as of the end of that period. Code § 15634(c)(3)* (CRLPA)].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a skeletal complaint to which causes of action may be added according to the facts of the individual case. It is for use by a limited partner to bring an action on behalf of all, or a class of, the limited partners in a limited partnership.

Under the CRLPA, any limited partner of a foreign or domestic limited partnership may bring a class action on behalf of all or a class of limited partners to enforce any claim common to those limited partners. The action is governed by the law governing class actions generally, except that to maintain the class action, there is no requirement that the class be so numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable [Corp. Code § 15701 (CRLPA); see Code Civ. Proc. § 382 (requirements of class actions in general)]. The ULPA '08 and the ULPA do not expressly authorize such class actions. It appears, however, that a limited partner in a partnership governed by the ULPA '08 or the ULPA may bring a class action under the Code Civ. Proc. § 382, which allows for class actions generally, as long as he or she can satisfy the requirements for class actions [for general discussion of class actions, see Ch.120, Class Actions].

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following:

- The capacity and residence of defendant(s) as domestic or foreign limited partnership and/or general partner(s) (Alternative Paragraphs 1) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395.2, 395.5; Corp. Code § 15701 (CRLPA)];

- Plaintiff's capacity as a limited partner (Paragraph 2) [see Corp. Code § 15701 (CRLPA)];

- That plaintiff is bringing the action on behalf of a class of limited partners (Paragraph 3) [see Corp. Code § 15701 (CRLPA)];

- A community of interest with the members of the class, and the adequacy of plaintiff's representation of the interests of the class (Paragraph 4) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 382; Corp. Code § 15701 (CRLPA); Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 809, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964 ; Daar v. Yellow Cab Co. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 695, 704, 63 Cal. Rptr. 724, 433 P.2d 732]; and

- If appropriate, that a class action is the only remedy available because damage to each plaintiff is so small (Paragraph 5) [see Daar v. Yellow Cab Co. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 695, 702, 63 Cal. Rptr. 724, 433 P.2d 732].

It may also be adapted for use by a limited partnership to obtain a court determination of the status of a limited partner's interest and the value of that interest [see Corp. Code § 15679.6(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.25(a) (ULPA '08); see also [7], below]. This complaint is for use by a limited partner only when Corp. Code § 15679.1 et seq. (CRLPA) or Corp. Code § 15911.20 et seq. (ULPA '08) (rights of dissenting limited partners) applies. For example, these provisions usually apply to a domestic limited partnership that has more than 35 limited partners and was formed on or after January 1, 1991 [see Corp. Code § 15679.13 (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.32 (ULPA '08)]. For discussion of the applicability of Corp. Code § 15679.1 et seq. (CRLPA) and Corp. Code § 15911.20 et seq. (ULPA '08), see § 404.20[1].

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following:

- The capacity and residence of the limited partnership and its general partners (Paragraph 1).

- The disappearance of the limited partnership after merger, if applicable (Paragraph 2) [Corp. Code § 15678.6 (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.16 (ULPA '08)].

- The applicability of Corp. Code § 15679.1 et seq. (CRLPA) and Corp. Code § 15911.20 et seq. (ULPA '08) to defendant (Paragraphs 3, 4) [Corp. Code § 15679.13 (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.32 (ULPA '08)].

- Plaintiff's right to vote on merger or conversion (Paragraph 5) [Corp. Code §§ 15678.2(a), 15679.2(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code §§ 15911.12(a), 15911.21(a) (ULPA '08)];

- Defendant's announcement of proposed merger or conversion (Paragraph 6) [Corp. Code § 15679.2(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.21(a) (ULPA '08) (fair market value determined as of day before announcement)].

- The approval of the conversion [Corp. Code § 15677.3(b) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.03(b) (ULPA '08)] or merger [Corp. Code § 15678.2(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.12(a) (ULPA '08)] and the status of plaintiff's interest as an outstanding interest (Paragraph 7) [Corp. Code § 15679.2(b)(2) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.21(b)(2) (ULPA '08)].

- Plaintiff's dissenting vote (Paragraph 8) [Corp. Code § 15679.2(b)(3) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.21(b)(3) (ULPA '08)].

- The mailing of notice of approval of the merger and offer to buy dissenting interests (Paragraph 9) [Corp. Code § 15679.3(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.22(a) (ULPA '08)].

- When the conversion or merger became effective (Paragraph 10) [Corp. Code §§ 15677.4, 15678.5 (CRLPA); Corp. Code §§ 15911.04, 15911.15 (ULPA '08)].

- The status of plaintiff's dissenting interest (Paragraph 11) [Corp. Code § 15679.2(b)(1) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.21(b)(1) (ULPA '08)].

- Plaintiff's timely demand for payment (Paragraph 12) [Corp. Code §§ 15679.2(b)(4), 15679.3(b)

- Plaintiff's submission of certificates for endorsement or written notice of interest for sale (Paragraph 13) [Corp. Code §§ 15679.2(b)(5), 15679.4 (CRLPA); Corp. Code §§ 15911.21(b)(5), 15911.23 (ULPA '08)].

- Defendant's refusal to recognize the dissenting interest or pay fair market value for it (Paragraph 14) [Corp. Code § 15679.6 (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.25 (ULPA '08)].

[4] Time for Commencing Action

A dissenting interest loses its status as a dissenting interest, and the holder of the interest ceases to be entitled to require the partnership to purchase the interest, if the dissenting partner and the partnership do not agree on the status of the interest as a dissenting interest, or on the purchase price of the dissenting interest, and neither files a complaint or intervenes in a pending action within six months after the date on which notice of approval was mailed to the partner [Corp. Code § 15679.11(c) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.30(c) (ULPA '08)].

[5] Appraisal

The court may appoint one or more appraisers to determine the fair market value per interest of the partnership's outstanding limited partnership interests, by class if necessary [Corp. Code § 15679.7(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.26(a) (ULPA '08)]. For discussion of the procedure for obtaining a court-ordered appraisal, see § 404.20[5][b].

[6] Costs and Attorney's Fees

The court must assess and apportion costs of the action as it considers equitable. This includes reasonable compensation for the appraisers, in an amount to be fixed by the court. The partnership must pay the costs, however, if the appraisal exceeds the price offered by the partnership. If the value awarded by the court for the dissenting interest is more than 125 percent of the price offered by the partnership, the court may, in its discretion, include attorney's fees and fees of expert witnesses in the costs award [Corp. Code § 15679.7(e) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.26(e) (ULPA '08)].

[7] Action Brought by Limited Partnership

If the partnership denies that a partner's interest is a dissenting interest, or the partnership and a dissenting partner fail to agree on the fair market value of the dissenting interest, any interested limited partnership may file an action seeking a determination of the status of the interest or the fair market value of the dissenting interest, or both. Either the limited partner or any interested limited partnership may also intervene in any action pending on a complaint by a limited partner or an interested limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15679.6(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.25(a) (ULPA '08)].

Two or more dissenting partners may join as plaintiffs or be joined as defendants in any such action, and two or more such actions may be consolidated [Corp. Code § 15679.6(b) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.25(b) (ULPA '08)].

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, may be used by a limited partner in a limited partnership governed by the ULPA '08 to bring a derivative action to enforce a right of the partnership. Generally, such an action cannot be brought unless either (1) the partner first makes a demand on the general partners, requesting that they cause the limited partnership to bring an action to enforce the right, and the general partners do not bring the action within a reasonable time; or (2) a demand on the general partners would be futile [Corp. Code § 15910.02 (ULPA '08)]. In the complaint, the plaintiff must state with particularity the date and content of plaintiff's demand and general partners' response to the demand, or why demand is excused as futile [Corp. Code § 15910.04 (ULPA '08)].

Furthermore, a derivative action generally may be maintained only by a person that is a partner at the time the action is commenced and (1) was a partner when the conduct giving rise to action occurred, or (2) whose status as a partner devolved on the person by operation of law or pursuant to the terms of the partnership agreement from a person that was a partner at the time of that conduct [Corp. Code § 15910.03(a) (ULPA '08)]. However, under certain circumstances the court may authorize a partner who does not meet these requirements to maintain a derivative action [Corp. Code § 15910.03(b) (ULPA '08)]. For a form for a motion for an order authorizing a derivative action by partner who was not a partner at the time of the events giving rise to the action, see § 404.62].

For further discussion of derivative actions under the ULPA '08, see § 404.24[1][b].

For a complaint that may be used to bring a limited partner's derivative action under the CRLPA, see § 404.61.

Limited partners in partnerships governed by ULPA are not proper parties to actions by the partnership, unless the object of the action is to enforce the limited partner's rights against or liability to the partnership [Corp. Code § 15526 (ULPA)]. For further discussion, see § 404.24[3].

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following:

- That the plaintiff was limited partner at the time of the transaction complained of, or that his or her status as partner devolved on him or her by operation of law from one who was a partner at the time of that transaction, or, if plaintiff plans to seek an order excepting him or her from the requirement of contemporaneous status as partner, that plaintiff is at present a partner of record or a beneficial partner (Alternative Paragraphs 5) [see Corp. Code § 15910.03 (ULPA '08)].

- The cause of action that has accrued to the partnership (Paragraph 6) [see Corp. Code § 15910.02 (ULPA '08)].

- Plaintiff's efforts to secure the desired action from the general partners, his or her written notice informing the partnership or the general partners of the ultimate facts of each cause of action or delivery of a copy of the proposed complaint, and the reasons for his or her failure to obtain that action, or the reasons for not making that effort (Alternative Paragraphs 7) [see Corp. Code § 15910.02, 15910.04 (ULPA '08)].

[4] Proceeds of Derivative Action; Costs and Attorney's Fees

Generally, any proceeds or other benefits of a derivative action, whether by judgment, compromise, or settlement, belong to the limited partnership and not to the derivative plaintiff [Corp. Code § 15910.05(a)(1) (ULPA '08)]. If the derivative plaintiff receives any of those proceeds, the derivative plaintiff must immediately remit them to the limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15910.05(a)(2) (ULPA '08)]. However, if a derivative action is successful in whole or in part, the court may award the plaintiff reasonable expenses, including reasonable attorney's fees, from the recovery of the limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15910.05(b) (ULPA '08)].

The general partners and the partnership refused, and continue to refuse, to prosecute this action, and plaintiff's efforts to obtain such action have failed for the following reasons: _____ [set forth reasons general partners failed to act on the claim]. In so refusing to prosecute this action, the general partners did not act in good faith or in any reasonable belief that their refusal to commence this action was good business judgment or in the best interest of the partnership.

Rather, the refusal by the general partners was in bad faith and breached their fiduciary duty to maintain and defend the interests of the partnership.

[Add verification, if desired. See § 404.40 for form that may be adapted.]

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is a skeletal form for use by a partner in bringing a derivative action on behalf of a limited partnership governed by the CRLPA or a foreign limited partnership [see Corp. Code § 15702 (CRLPA)]. Specific causes of action should be added according to the facts of the particular case.

For a complaint for use in a derivative action on behalf of a limited partnership governed by the ULPA '08 [see Corp. Code § 15910.02 et seq.], see § 404.60.

Limited partners in partnerships governed by ULPA are not proper parties to actions by the partnership, unless the object of the action is to enforce the limited partner's rights against or liability to the partnership [Corp. Code § 15526 (ULPA)]. For further discussion, see § 404.24[3].

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following:

- That the plaintiff was partner of record or beneficial partner at the time of the transaction complained of, or that his or her status as partner devolved on him or her by operation of law from one who was a partner at the time of that transaction, or, if plaintiff plans to seek an order excepting him or her from the requirement of contemporaneous status as partner, that plaintiff is at present a partner of record or a beneficial partner (Alternative Paragraphs 5) [see Corp. Code § 15702(a)(1) (CRLPA)].

- The cause of action that has accrued to the partnership (Paragraph 6) [see Corp. Code § 15702(a) (CRLPA)].

- Plaintiff's efforts to secure the desired action from the general partners, his or her written notice informing the partnership or the general partners of the ultimate facts of each cause of action or delivery of a copy of the proposed complaint, and the reasons for his or her failure to obtain that action, or the reasons for not making that effort (Alternative Paragraphs 7) [see Corp. Code § 15702(a)(2) (CRLPA)].

[4] Attorney's Fees

In a shareholder's derivative suit pursuant to Corp. Code § 800, attorney's fees may be recovered against the corporation if the plaintiff's success in prosecuting the action results in a substantial benefit to the corporation [Fletcher v. A. J. Industries, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 313, 323-324, 72 Cal. Rptr. 146]. There is no direct authority permitting the recovery of attorney's fees in a partner's derivative suit. Because such a suit is similar in nature to the shareholder's derivative suit, however, attorney's fees may possibly be recovered on the same grounds. Counsel therefore may wish to add an allegation to that effect to this complaint.

[2] Use of Form

The notice of motion in [1], above, may be used to move for an order allowing a partner to pursue a derivative action on behalf of a limited partnership governed by the ULPA '08 or the CRLPA even though the partner did not have an interest in the partnership at the time of the events complained of. For forms of complaints for derivative actions, see §§ 404.60 (ULPA '08), 404.61 (CRLPA).

Generally, a derivative action on behalf of a limited partnership may be maintained only by a person that is a partner at the time the action is commenced and (1) was a partner when the conduct giving rise to action occurred, or (2) whose status as a partner devolved on the person by operation of law or pursuant to the terms of the partnership agreement from a person that was a partner at the time of that conduct [Corp. Code § 15702(a)(1) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15910.03(a) (ULPA '08)]. However, any partner that does not meet the foregoing requirements may nevertheless be allowed in the discretion of the court to maintain a derivative action if the court determines that all of the following conditions exist [Corp. Code § 15702(a)(1) (CRLPA), Corp. Code § 15910.03(b) (ULPA '08)]:

- There is a strong prima facie case in favor of the claim asserted on behalf of the partnership.

- No other similar action has been or is likely to be instituted.

- The plaintiff acquired an interest in the partnership before there was disclosure to the public and to the plaintiff of the wrongdoing of which the plaintiff complains.

- Unless the action can be maintained, the defendant may retain a gain derived from the defendant's willful breach of a fiduciary duty.

- The requested relief will not result in unjust enrichment of the partnership or any partner.

The court's determination may be made only on motion by the plaintiff and after a hearing at which the court considers such evidence, by affidavit or testimony, as it deems material [Corp. Code § 15702(a)(1) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15910.03(b) (ULPA '08)].

For further discussion of derivative actions by limited partners, see § 404.24[1][b],[2][b].

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use in an action by a limited partnership under the CRLPA or the ULPA '08 against a general partner who has breached the partnership agreement by withdrawing or dissociating from the partnership [see Corp. Code § 15662(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15906.04(b) (ULPA '08)]. This form may be for use by a limited partnership governed by the ULPA by citing Corp. Code § 15712(b)(2) (ULPA) instead of Corp. Code § 15621 (CRLPA) or Corp. Code § 15902.01 in Paragraph 3, deleting the allegations in Paragraph 7 of the complaint and Paragraph 3 of the Prayer, and using general contract law [see Ch. 140, Contracts] as authority for the form. For discussion of the application of the ULPA '08, the CRLPA, and the ULPA in general, see § 404.10.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following:

- Plaintiffs' capacity as a limited partnership and its general partners (Paragraph 1) [see Corp. Code § 16301 (UPA '94); see also Corp. Code § 15643 (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15904.02 (ULPA '08)].

- The partnership agreement, by which defendant became a general partner (Paragraph 3) [see Corp. Code § 15662(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15901.10 (ULPA '08); Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 830, 69 Cal. Rptr. 321, 442 P.2d 377].

- Plaintiff general partners' performance or excusable nonperformance of the agreement (Paragraph 4) [see Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 830, 69 Cal. Rptr. 321, 442 P.2d 377].

- Defendant's breach by withdrawing or dissociating from the partnership (Paragraph 5) [Corp. Code § 15662(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15906.04 (ULPA '08)].

- Damages proximately caused by the breach (Paragraph 6) [see Civ. Code § 3300; Corp. Code § 15662(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15906.04 (ULPA '08)].

- Plaintiffs' right to offset the damages caused by the breach against any distributions owed by the partnership to defendant as a withdrawing or dissociating general partner (Paragraph 7) [Corp. Code §

15662(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15905.07 (ULPA '08)].

[4] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified also, if the action is in the superior court and is not a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial except in a limited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[5] General Partner's Liability for Wrongful Withdrawal or Dissociation

Under the CRLPA, a general partner may withdraw from a limited partnership at any time by giving written notice to the other partners. If the withdrawal violates the partnership agreement, however, the limited partnership may recover from the withdrawing general partner damages for breach of the partnership agreement. In the case of a partnership for a fixed term, a withdrawal by a general partner prior to the expiration of the term is a breach of the partnership agreement. In addition to any other remedies, the limited partnership may offset the damages from the breach against any amounts otherwise distributable to the general partner [Corp. Code § 15662(a) (CRLPA)].

Under the ULPA '08, a general partner may dissociate from the partnership by express will at any time, but the dissociation is wrongful if it is in breach of an express provision of the partnership agreement or if it occurs before the termination of the limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15906.04(a),(b) (ULPA '08)]. A person that wrongfully dissociates as a general partner is liable to the limited partnership for damages caused by the dissociation [Corp. Code § 15906.04(c) (ULPA '08)]. In addition, the person will be liable for damages to any partner who suffers injury that is not solely the result of an injury suffered by the partnership [Corp. Code §§ 15906.04(c), 15910.01(b) (ULPA '08)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

35-405 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 405.10

§ 405.10 Governing Law

[1] Limited Partnership Laws Before 2008

[a] Uniform Limited Partnership Act (ULPA)

Until January 1, 2010, the Uniform Limited Partnership Act (ULPA) [Corp. Code § 15501 et seq. (ULPA)] generally governed limited partnerships formed before July 1, 1984, the operative date of the California Revised Limited Partnership Act (CRLPA) [Corp. Code §§ 15534 (ULPA), 15711 (CRLPA); see Corp. Code § 15611 et seq. (CRLPA); see also [b], below].

On or after July 1, 1984, a limited partnership formed under the ULPA could elect to be governed by CRLPA [Corp. Code § 15712(b)(1) (CRLPA); see [b], below]. On or after January 1, 2008, a limited partnership originally formed under the ULPA could elect to be governed by the Uniform Limited Partnership Act of 2008 (ULPA '08) [Corp. Code § 15912.06(a)(2) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15900 et seq. (ULPA '08); see also [2][a], below].

Effective January 1, 2010, the ULPA is repealed [Corp. Code § 15534 (ULPA)], and all limited partnerships, regardless of the date of formation, are governed by the ULPA '08, except as specified by the ULPA '08 [Corp. Code § 15912.06(b) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15912.06(c) (ULPA '08) (exceptions); see also [2][a], below]. However, the ULPA '08 does not affect an action commenced, proceeding brought, or right accrued before January 1, 2008 [Corp. Code § 15912.07 (ULPA '08)].

[b] California Revised Limited Partnership Act (CRLPA)

Until January 1, 2010, the California Revised Limited Partnership Act (CRLPA) [Corp. Code § 15611 et seq. (CRLPA)] generally governed limited partnerships formed on or after July 1, 1984, and before January 1, 2008, the operative date of the Uniform Limited Partnership Act of 2008 (ULPA '08) [Corp. Code §§ 15711, 15714, 15724 (CRLPA), 15912.06(a)(1) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15900 et seq. (ULPA '08)].

In addition, a limited partnership formed before July 1, 1984, could elect to be governed by CRLPA if all partners, or a lesser number as required by the partnership agreement, consented in writing to the election [Corp. Code § 15712(b)(1) (CRLPA) (election was prospective only and did not affect preexisting rights of third parties)].

On or after January 1, 2008, any limited partnership governed by the CRLPA could elect to be governed by the ULPA '08 [Corp. Code § 15912.06(a)(2) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15900 et seq. (ULPA '08); see also [2][a], below].

Effective January 1, 2010, CRLPA is repealed [Corp. Code § 15724 (CRLPA)], and all limited partnerships, regardless of the date of formation, are governed by the ULPA '08, except as specified by the ULPA '08 [Corp. Code § 15912.06(b) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15912.06(c) (ULPA '08) (exceptions); see also [2][a], below]. However, the ULPA '08 does not affect an action commenced, proceeding brought, or right accrued before January 1, 2008 [Corp. Code § 15912.07 (ULPA '08)].

[c] Application of General Partnership Law

Limited partnerships governed by the ULPA and the CRLPA were subject to general partnership law on matters not specifically covered by the ULPA or CRLPA [Corp. Code §§ 15722, 16111 (CRLPA); see former Corp. Code § 15006(2)]. The ULPA '08 adopts a different approach and does not rely on general partnership law or any other source for the rules governing limited partnerships [see [2][b], below].

[2] Uniform Limited Partnership Act of 2008 (ULPA '08)

[a] Application of ULPA '08

The Uniform Limited Partnership Act of 2008 (ULPA '08) [see Stats. 2006, ch. 495, § 20; Corp. Code § 15900 et seq. (ULPA '08)] became operative on January 1, 2008 [Corp. Code § 15912.04 (ULPA '08)]q. Through the end of 2009, the ULPA '08 generally governed the following limited partnerships [Corp. Code § 15912.06(a) (ULPA '08)]:

- Limited partnerships formed on or after January 1, 2008.

- Limited partnerships formed before January 1, 2008, that elected to be subject to the ULPA '08. However, the election did not change the law governing the limited partnership's liability to a third party on an obligation incurred between the time of the election and the end of 2009, if the third party did business with the partnership during the year preceding the election and had no knowledge or notice of the election at the time the obligation was incurred [Corp. Code § 15912.06(d) (ULPA '08)].

Effective January 1, 2010, all limited partnerships, regardless of the date of formation, generally are governed by the ULPA '08 [Corp. Code § 15912.06(b) (ULPA '08)]. However, with respect to a limited partnership formed before January 1, 2008, the following rules apply unless the partners elect otherwise [Corp. Code § 15912.06(c) (ULPA '08)]:

- The perpetual duration possessed by limited partnerships formed under the ULPA '08 [see Corp. Code § 15901.04(c) (ULPA '08)] does not apply, and the limited partnership has whatever duration it had under the law applicable immediately before January 1, 2008.

- The ULPA '08 provisions governing dissociation of limited partners [see Corp. Code §§ 15906.01, 15906.02 (ULPA '08)] do not apply, and a limited partner has the same right and power to dissociate from the limited partnership, with the same consequences, as existed immediately before January 1, 2008.

- The ULPA '08 provision for the expulsion of a general partner by unanimous vote of the other partners [see Corp. Code § 15906.03(d) (ULPA '08)] does not apply.

- The ULPA '08 provision for the expulsion of a general partner by court order [see Corp. Code § 15906.03(e) (ULPA '08)] does not apply, and a court has the same power to expel a general partner as the court had immediately before January 1, 2008.

- The ULPA '08 provision specifying the circumstances in which the dissociation of a general partner dissolves a limited partnership for dissolution [Corp. Code § 15908.01(c) (ULPA '08)] does not apply, and the connection between a general partner's dissociation and the dissolution of the limited partnership is the same as existed immediately before January 1, 2008.

Moreover, the ULPA '08 does not affect an action commenced, proceeding brought, or right accrued before January 1, 2008 [Corp. Code § 15912.07 (ULPA '08)]. Thus, because litigation involving California limited partnerships formed before 2008 may be governed by the ULPA or the CRLPA, this chapter will continue to provide discussion of those laws, and forms for use in litigation under those laws, as well as discussion and forms relevant to the ULPA '08. All references to Corp. Code § 15501 et seq. (ULPA) and to Corp. Code § 15611 et seq. (CRLPA) in this chapter are to provisions repealed as of 2010.

[b] Inapplicability of General Partnership Law

Unlike its predecessors [see [1], above], the ULPA '08 is a stand-alone law that does not rely on general partnership law or any other source for the rules governing limited partnerships [see R. Bradbury Clark, California's Uniform Limited Partnership Act of 2008--Summary and Analysis of the Act's Major Provisions, § 4.01[2] (LexisNexis 2007)]. Thus, the ULPA '08 is the only source that needs to be consulted for the statutory rules governing formation, filings, contributions and distributions, rights of transferees and creditors, dissociation, dissolution, actions by partners, conversion and merger, dissenting limited partners' rights, and foreign limited partnerships.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

35-405 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 405.11

§ 405.11 Definitions

A limited partnership generally is a partnership formed by two or more persons under California law, having one or more general partners and one or more limited partners [Corp. Code § 15501 (ULPA); Corp. Code § 15611(r) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15901.02(q) (ULPA '08)]. A limited partner is a partner who is admitted to the limited partnership in accordance with the partnership agreement without participating in control of the partnership business and without being liable for partnership obligations [see Corp. Code §§ 15501, 15504, 15510 (ULPA); Corp. Code §§ 15611(q), 15632, 15651 (CRLPA); Corp. Code §§ 15901.02(p), 15903.01, 15903.03(a), 15907.02(g) (ULPA '08)]. Chapter 405 PARTNERSHIPS: ACTIONS BETWEEN LIMITED PARTNERS OR PARTNERSHIPS AND THIRD PARTIES

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

35-405 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 405.12

§ 405.12 Liability

In a limited partnership governed by the ULPA '08, each general partner is an agent of the limited partnership for the purposes of its activities. An act of a general partner for apparently carrying on in the ordinary course the limited partnership's activities, or activities of the kind carried on by the limited partnership, binds the limited partnership, unless the general partner did not have authority to act for the partnership in the particular matter and the person dealing with the general partner knew, had received a notification, or had notice [see Corp. Code § 15901.03(d) (ULPA '08)] that the general partner lacked authority [Corp. Code § 15904.02(a) (ULPA '08)].

A limited partnership is liable for loss or injury caused to a person, or for a penalty incurred, as a result of a wrongful act or omission, or other actionable conduct, of a general partner acting in the ordinary course of activities of the limited partnership or with authority of the limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15904.03(a) (ULPA '08)]. If, in the course of the limited partnership's activities or while acting with authority of the limited partnership, a general partner receives or causes the limited partnership to receive money or property of a person not a partner, and the money or property is misapplied by a general partner, the limited partnership is liable for the loss [Corp. Code § 15904.03(b) (ULPA '08)].

[b] CRLPA and ULPA

In a partnership governed by the CRLPA or the ULPA, a general partner has all of the rights, powers, and duties of a partner in a partnership without limited partners [Corp. Code § 15509(1) (ULPA); Corp. Code § 15643 (CRLPA)]. Therefore, the acts of a general partner in conducting partnership business bind the limited partnership [see Corp. Code § 16301 (UPA '94); see also discussion in Ch. 402, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners or Partnership and Third Parties relating to general partner's authority to bind partnership]. For example, a limited partnership is bound by a contract executed on its behalf by a general partner [Coronet Constr. Co., Inc. v. Palmer (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 603, 608, 15 Cal. Rptr. 601 (decided under ULPA)]. Similarly, the limited partnership is liable for the wrongs of a general partner committed in the ordinary course of the business of the partnership or with the authority of copartners [see Corp. Code § 16305(a) (UPA '94)]. The limited partnership will also be liable for a general partner's misapplication of money or property, either when acting with apparent authority or after that money or property has been received by the partnership in the ordinary course of partnership business [see Corp. Code § 16305(b) (UPA '94)].

[2] Limited Partners

As a general rule, a limited partner is not liable for any obligation of the limited partnership unless he or she participates in the control of the partnership business [see Corp. Code § 15507(a) (ULPA); Corp. Code § 15632(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15903.03(a) (ULPA '08); but see [4]-[8] and § 405.16, below].

[3] General Partners

[a] ULPA '08

In a limited partnership governed by the ULPA '08, a general partner ordinarily is personally liable for all obligations of the limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15904.04(a) (ULPA '08) (general partners jointly and severally liable)]. However, a person that becomes a general partner of an existing limited partnership is not personally liable for an obligation of a limited partnership incurred before the person became a general partner [Corp. Code § 15904.04(b) (ULPA '08)].

To the extent not inconsistent with the preceding paragraph, a general partner may be joined in an action against the limited partnership or named in a separate action [Corp. Code § 15904.05(a) (ULPA '08)].

A judgment against a limited partnership is not by itself a judgment against a general partner. A judgment against a limited partnership may not be satisfied from a general partner's assets unless there is also a judgment against the general partner [Corp. Code § 15904.05(b) (ULPA '08)].

A judgment creditor of a general partner may not levy execution against the assets of the general partner to satisfy a judgment based on a claim against the limited partnership, unless the partner is personally liable for the claim and one of the following circumstances exists [Corp. Code § 15904.05(c) (ULPA '08)]:

- A judgment based on the same claim has been obtained against the limited partnership, and a writ of execution on the judgment has been returned unsatisfied in whole or in part.

- The limited partnership is a debtor in bankruptcy.

- The general partner has agreed that the creditor need not exhaust limited partnership assets.

- A court grants permission to the judgment creditor to levy execution against the assets of a general partner based on a finding that limited partnership assets subject to execution are clearly insufficient to satisfy the judgment, that exhaustion of limited partnership assets is excessively burdensome, or that the grant of permission is an appropriate exercise of the court's equitable powers.

- Liability is imposed on the general partner by law or contract independent of the existence of the limited partnership.

[b] CRLPA and ULPA

In a limited partnership governed by the CRLPA or the ULPA, a general partner is subject to all the same liabilities as a partner in a partnership without limited partners [see Corp. Code § 15509(1) (ULPA); Corp. Code § 15643 (CRLPA)]. Therefore, actions by third parties against such limited partnerships generally involve only the general partners and are governed by the law applying to general partnerships [see Corp. Code § 15509(1) (ULPA); Corp. Code § 15643

(CRLPA); see also Ch. 402, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners or Partnership and Third Parties].

[4] Dual Capacity as General and Limited Partner

[a] ULPA '08

In a limited partnership governed by the ULPA '08, a person may be both a general partner and a limited partner [Corp. Code § 15901.13 (ULPA '08)]. A person that is both a general and limited partner has the rights, powers, duties, and obligations provided by the ULPA '08 and the partnership agreement in each of those capacities [Corp. Code § 15901.13 (ULPA '08)]. When the person acts as a general partner, the person is subject to the obligations, duties and restrictions under the ULPA '08 and the partnership agreement for general partners [Corp. Code § 15901.13 (ULPA '08)]. When the person acts as a limited partner, the person is subject to the obligations, duties and restrictions under the ULPA '08 and the partnership agreement for limited partners [Corp. Code § 15901.13 (ULPA '08)].

[b] CRLPA and ULPA

In a limited partnership governed by the CRLPA or the ULPA, a person may be both a general and a limited partner at the same time. He or she has all the rights and powers and is subject to all the restrictions of a general partner, except that he or she also has the powers and is subject to the restrictions of a limited partner to the extent of his or her contribution to the limited partnership as a limited partner [see Corp. Code § 15512 (ULPA); Corp. Code § 15644 (CRLPA)].

[5] Limited Partner Whose Name Is in Partnership Name

[a] ULPA '08

The name of a partnership governed by the ULPA '08 may contain the name of a limited partner [Corp. Code § 15901.08(a) (ULPA '08)]. The ULPA '08 imposes no special liability requirements on a limited partner whose name is included in the partnership's name.

[b] CRLPA

The name of a limited partnership governed by the CRLPA may contain the name of a limited partner [Corp. Code § 15612(b)]. Before January 1, 1991, a limited partner who knowingly permitted his or her name to be used in the name of a limited partnership was liable for obligations of the limited partnership to persons who reasonably believed that the person was a general partner at the time of the transaction, unless (1) the name was also the name of a general partner, or (2) the business of the limited partnership had been carried on under a name in which the limited partner's name appeared before the admission of that limited partner [see former Corp. Code §§ 15612(b) (amended by Stats. 1990, ch. 1088, § 2), 15632(d) (repealed by Stats. 1990, ch. 1088, § 4)].

[c] ULPA

If a limited partner's name appears in the name of a limited partnership governed by the ULPA, the limited partner is liable as a general partner to partnership creditors who extend credit to the partnership without actual knowledge that he or she is not a general partner [Corp. Code § 15505(2) (ULPA)].

[6] False Information in Filed Record or Certificate

[a] ULPA '08

Signing a record authorized or required to be filed under the ULPA '08 [see Corp. Code § 15901.02(ac) (ULPA '08) ("record" defined)] constitutes an affirmation under the penalties of perjury that the facts stated in the record are true [

Corp. Code § 15902.08(b) (ULPA '08)]. If a record delivered to the Secretary of State for filing under the ULPA '08 and filed by the Secretary of State contains false information, a person that suffers loss by reliance on the information may recover damages for the loss from both of the following [Corp. Code § 15902.08(a) (ULPA '08)]:

- A person that signed the record, or caused another to sign it on the person's behalf, and knew the information to be false at the time the record was signed.

- A general partner that has notice that the information was false when the record was filed or has become false because of changed circumstances, if the general partner has notice for a reasonably sufficient time before the information is relied upon to enable the general partner to effect an amendment [see Corp. Code § 15902.02], seek a court order for a proper filing [see Corp. Code § 15902.05], or deliver to the Secretary of State for filing a certificate of correction [see Corp. Code § 15902.07 (ULPA '08)].

For a form for a complaint based on false statements in a record filed for a limited partnership, see § 405.40.

[b] CRLPA

A limited partner in a partnership governed by the CRLPA may be liable for a false statement in the certificate of limited partnership if he or she is named as a general partner in the certificate [Corp. Code § 15632(a) (CRLPA)]. In addition, any general or limited partner executing a certificate of limited partnership [see Corp. Code § 15633 (CRLPA)] is liable for any statement materially inconsistent with the partnership agreement or any material misstatement of fact contained in the certificate if the partner knew or should have known that the statement was false when made and an amendment was not filed, and if the person suffering the loss relied on the statement or misstatement [Corp. Code § 15624(c) (CRLPA); for a complaint based on false statements, see § 405.41].

Any general partner is liable for any statement materially inconsistent with the partnership agreement or any material misstatement of fact contained in the certificate if the general partner knew or should have known that the statement became false and an amendment was not filed, and if the person suffering the loss relied on the statement or misstatement [Corp. Code § 15624(c) (CRLPA); see § 405.41[1]].

[7] Erroneous Belief in Limited Partner Status

[a] ULPA '08

Generally, a person that makes an investment in a business enterprise that would otherwise be governed by the ULPA '08, and erroneously but in good faith believes that the person has become a limited partner in the enterprise, is not liable for the enterprise's obligations by reason of making the investment, receiving distributions from the enterprise, or exercising any rights of or appropriate to a limited partner, if, on ascertaining the mistake, the person does one of the following [Corp. Code § 15903.06(a) (ULPA '08)]:

- Causes an appropriate certificate of limited partnership, amendment, or certificate of correction to be signed and delivered to the Secretary of State for filing.

- Withdraws from future participation as an owner in the enterprise by signing a certificate of withdrawal, on a form prescribed by the Secretary of State, and delivering the certificate to the Secretary of State for filing.

If a person makes a diligent effort in good faith to comply with paragraph (1) above and is unable to cause the appropriate certificate of limited partnership, amendment, or certificate of correction to be signed and delivered to the Secretary of State for filing, the person has the right to withdraw from the enterprise pursuant to paragraph (2) above even if the withdrawal would otherwise breach an agreement with others that are or have agreed to become co-owners of the enterprise [Corp. Code § 15903.06(c) (ULPA '08)].

In any event, a person that makes an investment as described above is liable to the same extent as a general partner to any third party that enters into a transaction with the enterprise, believing in good faith that the person is a general partner, before the Secretary of State files a certificate of withdrawal, certificate of limited partnership, amendment, or certificate of correction to show that the person is not a general partner [Corp. Code § 15903.06(b) (ULPA '08)].

[b] CRLPA

If a certificate of limited partnership has not been filed for an enterprise that would otherwise be governed by the CRLPA, a person who makes a contribution to the purported limited partnership and in good faith believes that he or she has become a limited partner is not liable for the obligations of the purported limited partnership if, on ascertaining that the certificate has not been filed and after a failure of the general partners to file the certificate within a reasonable time after request, that person promptly files the certificate of limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15633(a) (CRLPA)]. A limited partner executing and filing a certificate of limited partnership must send a copy of the certificate to each general partner at the general partner's last known address [Corp. Code § 15633(a) (CRLPA)]. A person who makes a contribution to the purported limited partnership and in good faith believes that he or she has become a limited partner is liable only to any third party who transacted business with the purported limited partnership before the certificate is filed and who reasonably believed that the person was a general partner at the time of the transaction [Corp. Code § 15633(b) (CRLPA)].

[c] ULPA

A person who has contributed to the capital of a business conducted by a person or partnership erroneously believing that he or she has become a limited partner in a limited partnership that would otherwise be governed by the ULPA is not liable as a general partner if, on ascertaining the mistake, he or she promptly renounces his or her interest in the profits of the business or other compensation by way of income [Corp. Code § 15511 (ULPA); see Tiburon Nat. Bank v. Wagner (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 868, 876-877, 71 Cal. Rptr. 832]. It has been held that six months from the time that the limited partner learns of his or her possible liability, to the time he or she renounces any interest in partnership profits or compensation is not "prompt" for this purpose [Vidricksen v. Grover (9th Cir. 1966) 363 F.2d 372, 373].

[8] Fraud

Any partner authorizing the fraud of a general partner is liable for the resulting injury to a third party, whether or not the authorizing partner is a limited partner [Russell v. Warner (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 986, 988-989, 217 P.2d 43 (decided under ULPA)]. In addition, under the ULPA, every member of a special or limited partnership who commits any fraud in the affairs of the partnership is guilty of a misdemeanor [Corp. Code § 15531 (ULPA)].

§ 405.13 Service on Limited Partnership

[1] ULPA '08

In addition to the generally applicable methods of service [see Code Civ. Proc. § 413.10 et seq.], process may be served on a limited partnership or foreign limited partnership governed by the ULPA '08 as follows [Corp. Code § 15901.16(a) (ULPA '08)]. Personal service of a copy of any process against the limited partnership or foreign limited partnership constitutes valid service on the limited partnership if delivered either [Corp. Code § 15901.16(b) (ULPA '08)]:

- To any individual designated by it as agent or to any general partner.

- If the designated agent or, if a limited partnership, general partner is a corporation, to any person named in the latest certificate of the corporate agent [see Corp. Code § 1505] at the office of the corporate agent or to any officer of the general partner.

No change in the address of the agent for service of process if the agent is an individual, or appointment of a new agent for service of process, is effective (1) for a limited partnership until an amendment to the certificate of limited partnership is filed, or (2) for a foreign limited partnership until an amendment to the application for registration is filed [Corp. Code § 15901.16(b) (ULPA '08)].

In the case of a foreign limited partnership that has appointed the Secretary of State as agent for service of process [see Corp. Code § 15909.07(f)], service of process may be accomplished by hand-delivery to the Secretary of State (or to any person employed in the capacity of assistant or deputy) of one copy of the process for each defendant to be served, together with a copy of the court order authorizing the service and the fee for service. The order must include and set forth an address to which process must be sent by the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 15901.16(b) (ULPA '08)].

If an agent for service of process has resigned and has not been replaced, or if the agent designated cannot with reasonable diligence be found at the address designated for personal delivery of the process, and it is shown by affidavit to the satisfaction of the court that process against a limited partnership or foreign limited partnership cannot be served with reasonable diligence on the designated agent or, if a foreign limited partnership, upon any general partner by hand in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 415.10, 415.20(a), or 415.30(a), the court may make an order that the service be made on a domestic limited partnership that has filed a certificate or on a foreign limited partnership that has a certificate of registration to transact business in California by hand-delivery to the Secretary of State (or to any person employed in the Secretary of State's office in the capacity of assistant or deputy) of one copy of the process for each defendant to be served, together with a copy of the order authorizing the service. Service in this manner will be deemed complete on the 10th day after delivery of the process to the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 15901.16(c)(1) (ULPA '08)]. On receipt of any such copy of process and the fee for service, the Secretary of State must give notice of the service of the process to the limited partnership or foreign limited partnership, at its principal office, by forwarding to that office, by registered mail with request for return receipt, the copy of the process [Corp. Code § 15901.16(c)(2) (ULPA '08)]. The Secretary of State must keep a record of all process served on the Secretary of State under the ULPA '08, recording the time of service and the action taken by the Secretary of State. A certificate under the Secretary of State's official seal, certifying to the receipt of process, the giving of notice to the limited partnership or foreign limited partnership, and the forwarding of the process, is competent and prima facie evidence of the matters stated in the certificate [Corp. Code § 15901.16(c)(3) (ULPA '08)].

The certificate of a limited partnership and the application for a certificate of registration of a foreign limited partnership must designate, as the agent for service of process, an individual residing in California or a corporation that has complied with Corporations Code Section 1505 and whose capacity to act as an agent has not terminated. If an individual is designated, the statement must set forth that person's complete business or residence address in California. If a corporate agent is designated, no address for it need be set forth [Corp. Code § 15901.16(d)(1) (ULPA '08)].

An agent designated for service of process may file with the Secretary of State a signed and acknowledged written statement of resignation as an agent. The authority of the agent to act in that capacity will then cease, and the Secretary of State must immediately give written notice of the filing of the certificate of resignation by mail to the limited partnership or foreign limited partnership, addressed to its designated office [Corp. Code § 15901.16(d)(2) (ULPA '08)].

If an individual who has been designated the agent for service of process for a domestic or foreign limited partnership dies or resigns or no longer resides in California, or if the corporate agent for that purpose resigns, dissolves, withdraws from the state, forfeits its right to transact intrastate business, has its corporate rights, powers and privileges suspended, or ceases to exist, (1) the domestic limited partnership must promptly file an amendment to the certificate designating a new agent, or (2) the foreign limited partnership must promptly file an amendment to the application for registration [Corp. Code § 15901.16(d)(3) (ULPA '08)].

[2] CRLPA and ULPA

The CRLPA provides statutory requirements relating to service of process on all limited partnerships, including those otherwise governed by ULPA after they have filed the certificate required by Corp. Code §§ 15621(a), 15712(b)(2) [Corp. Code §§ 15614, 15621(a), 15627, 15711, 15712(b) (CRLPA)]. The CRLPA requires that every limited partnership continuously maintain an agent in California for service of process on the limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15614(b) (CRLPA)]. The name and address of that agent or, if a corporate agent is designated, only the name of the agent must appear in the certificate of limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15621(a)(4) (CRLPA)].

A partnership already in existence and otherwise governed by the ULPA may not maintain any action, suit, or proceeding in any California court until it has complied with these requirements [see Corp. Code § 15712(b)(4) (CRLPA)].

§ 405.14 Effect of Conversion of Limited Partnership or Conversion of Other Entity Into Limited Partnership

Under both the ULPA '08 and the CRLPA, a limited partnership may be converted into another business entity or a foreign other business entity or a foreign limited partnership under certain conditions [Corp. Code § 15677.2 (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.02 (ULPA '08)]. Similarly, an other business entity or a foreign other business entity or a foreign limited partnership may be converted to a domestic limited partnership under certain conditions [Corp. Code § 15677.8 (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.08 (ULPA '08)]. For discussion of conversion requirements and procedures, see Ch. 404, Partnerships: Actions Between Limited Partners and Partnerships .

An entity that converts into another entity is for all purposes the same entity that existed before the conversion [Corp. Code § 15677.9(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.09(a) (ULPA '08)]. When the conversion takes effect, all of the following apply [Corp. Code § 15677.9(b) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.09(b) (ULPA '08)]:

- All the rights and property, whether real, personal, or mixed, of the converting entity or converting limited partnership are vested in the converted entity or converted limited partnership.

- All debts, liabilities, and obligations of the converting entity or converting limited partnership continue as debts, liabilities, and obligations of the converted entity or converted limited partnership.

- All rights of creditors and liens upon the property of the converting entity or converting limited partnership are preserved unimpaired and remain enforceable against the converted entity or converted limited partnership to the same extent as against the converting entity or converting limited partnership as if the conversion had not occurred.

- Any action or proceeding pending by or against the converting entity or converting limited partnership may be continued against the converted entity or converted limited partnership as if the conversion had not occurred.

A partner of a converting limited partnership is liable for all of the following [Corp. Code § 15677.9(c) (CRLPA);

Corp. Code § 15911.09(c) (ULPA '08)]:

- All obligations of the converting limited partnership for which the partner was personally liable before the conversion.

- All obligations of the converted entity incurred after the conversion takes effect. Those obligations, however, may be satisfied only out of property of the entity if that partner is a limited partner; or a shareholder in a corporation; or unless expressly provided otherwise in the articles of organization or other governing documents, a member of a limited liability company; or a holder of equity securities in an other converted entity if the holders of equity securities in that entity are not personally liable for the obligations of that entity under the law under which the entity is organized or its governing documents [Corp. Code § 15677.9(c)(2) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.09(c)(2) (ULPA '08)].

A partner of a converted limited partnership remains liable for any and all obligations of the converting entity for which the partner was personally liable before the conversion, but only to the extent that the partner was liable for the obligations of the converting entity prior to the conversion [Corp. Code § 15677.9(d) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.09(d) (ULPA '08)]. If the other party to a transaction with the limited partnership reasonably believes when entering the transaction that the limited partner is a general partner, the limited partner is liable for an obligation incurred by the limited partnership within 90 days after the conversion takes effect. The limited partner's liability for all other obligations of the limited partnership incurred after the conversion takes effect is that of a limited partner [Corp. Code § 15677.9(e) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.09(e) (ULPA '08)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

35-405 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 405.15

§ 405.15 Effect of Merger on Surviving or Disappearing Partnerships

[1] ULPA '08

On the merger of limited partnerships or limited partnerships and other business entities pursuant to the ULPA '08 [see Ch. 404, Partnerships: Actions Between Limited Partners and Partnerships], the separate existence of the disappearing limited partnerships and disappearing other business entities ceases [Corp. Code § 15911.16(a) (ULPA '08)]. The surviving limited partnership or surviving other business entity succeeds, without other transfer, act or deed, to all the rights and property, whether real, personal, or mixed, of each of the disappearing limited partnerships and disappearing other business entities [Corp. Code § 15911.16(a) (ULPA '08)]. The surviving limited partnership or surviving other business entity also will be subject to all the debts and liabilities of each of the disappearing limited partnerships and disappearing other business entities in the same manner as if the surviving limited partnership or surviving other business entity had itself incurred them [Corp. Code § 15911.16(a) (ULPA '08)].

All rights of creditors, and all liens on the property of each of the constituent limited partnerships and constituent other business entities are preserved unimpaired, and they may be enforced against the surviving limited partnership or the surviving other business entity to the same extent as if the debt, liability, or duty that gave rise to that lien had been incurred or contracted by the surviving limited partnership or the surviving other business entity. However, such liens on the property of a disappearing limited partnership or disappearing other business entity are limited to the property affected by the liens immediately prior to the time the merger is effective [Corp. Code § 15911.16(b) (ULPA '08)].

Any action or proceeding pending by or against any disappearing limited partnership or disappearing other business entity may be prosecuted to judgment, and the judgment will bind the surviving limited partnership or surviving other business entity [Corp. Code § 15911.16(c) (ULPA '08)]. Alternatively, the surviving limited partnership or surviving other business entity may be proceeded against or be substituted in the place of the disappearing limited partnership or disappearing other business entity [Corp. Code § 15911.16(c) (ULPA '08)].

Nothing in the ULPA '08 provisions governing mergers is intended to affect the liability a general partner of a disappearing limited partnership may have in connection with the debts and liabilities of the disappearing limited partnership existing prior to the time the merger is effective [Corp. Code § 15911.16(d) (ULPA '08)].

[2] CRLPA

A merger involving a limited partnership governed by the CRLPA generally becomes effective on the filing of a certificate of merger with the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 15678.5(a) (CRLPA)]. In such a merger, one limited partnership or other business entity survives and the other limited partnership or partnerships or other business entity or entities disappear [see Corp. Code §§ 15611(h), (i), (ad), (ae) (CRLPA); for further discussion of merger of limited partnerships, see Ch. 404, Partnerships: Actions Between Limited Partners and Partnerships]. The separate existence of the disappearing partnerships and other business entities ceases, and the surviving partnership or other business entity succeeds, without other transfer, act, or deed, to all the rights and property, whether real, personal, or mixed, of each of the disappearing partnerships and other business entities and are subject to all the debts and liabilities of each in the same manner as if the surviving partnership or other business entity had itself incurred them [Corp. Code § 15678.6(a) (CRLPA)].

All rights of creditors and all liens on the property of each of the constituent partnerships and constituent other business entities to a merger are preserved unimpaired and may be enforced against the surviving partnership or other business entity to the same extent as if the debt, liability, or duty that gave rise to the lien had been incurred or contracted by it. Liens on the property of a disappearing partnership or other business entity are limited, however, to the property affected by the liens immediately prior to the time the merger is effective [Corp. Code § 15678.6(b) (CRLPA)]. Any action or proceeding pending by or against any disappearing partnership or disappearing other business entity may be prosecuted to judgment. The judgment binds the surviving partnership or other business entity. Alternatively, the action or proceeding may be prosecuted against the surviving partnership or other business entity by substitution of the surviving limited partnership or the surviving other business entity in the disappearing partnership's or disappearing other business entity's place [Corp. Code § 15678.6(c) (CRLPA)].

After the merger, the surviving domestic or foreign limited partnership or other business entity will be deemed to have assumed the liability of each disappearing domestic or foreign limited partnership or other business entity that is taxed under the Personal Income Tax Law [Rev. & Tax. Code § 17001 et seq.)] or the Corporation Tax Law [Rev. & Tax. Code § 23001 et seq.)] for both of the following [Corp. Code § 15678.10(a) (CRLPA)]:

- To prepare and file, or to cause to be prepared and filed, tax and information returns otherwise required of that disappearing entity as specified in Rev. & Tax. Code § 18501 et seq.

- To pay any tax liability determined to be due.

The Secretary of State's office will notify the Franchise Tax Board of the merger [Corp. Code § 15678.10(b) (CRLPA)].

If a disappearing partnership or other business entity owned real property in California and the merger was governed by either California law or the law of a jurisdiction providing substantially that the making and filing of a merger agreement or certificate vests in the surviving partnership or other business entity all the real property of the disappearing partnership or other business entity, the filing of a certified certificate of merger, or a certified copy of the merger agreement or certificate of merger, is evidence of record ownership by the surviving partnership or other business entity of the real property [Corp. Code § 15678.8 (CRLPA); see Ch. 404, Partnerships: Actions Between Limited Partners and Partnership , for discussion of filing of the certificate under California law]. The certificate or agreement of merger must be filed in the office of the county recorder in any county in California in which any real property of the disappearing limited partnership or disappearing other business entity is located [Corp. Code § 15678.8 (CRLPA)]. Recording creates a conclusive presumption that the merger was validly completed, and the presumption operates in favor of bona fide purchasers or encumbrancers for value [Corp. Code § 15678.9 (CRLPA)].

For allegations for use when a surviving partnership is subject to a liability incurred by a disappearing partnership in a merger governed by the CRLPA, see § 405.44.

§ 405.16 Control of Partnership Business

[1] Limited Partner

[a] ULPA '08

A limited partner in a limited partnership governed by the ULPA '08 may incur liability as a general partner for obligations of the limited partnership if he or she participates in the control of the partnership business [Corp. Code § 15903.03(a) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15903.03(b) (ULPA '08) (acts that do not constitute participation in control of business); see also [2], below]. However, a limited partner who participates in the control of the business without being named as a general partner may be held liable as a general partner only to persons who transact business with the limited partnership with actual knowledge of that partner's participation in control and with a reasonable belief, based upon the limited partner's conduct, that the partner is a general partner at the time of the transaction [Corp. Code § 15903.03(a) (ULPA '08)]. Nothing in the ULPA '08 is intended to affect the liability of a limited partner to third parties for the limited partner's participation in tortious conduct [Corp. Code § 15903.03(a) (ULPA '08)].

[b] CRLPA and ULPA

As a general rule, a limited partner in a limited partnership governed by the CRLPA or the ULPA is liable as a general partner if he or she participates in the control of the business, or if he or she participates in tortious conduct [Corp. Code § 15507(a) (ULPA); Corp. Code § 15632(a) (CRLPA); Refinite Sales Co. v. Fred R. Bright Co. (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 56, 64, 258 P.2d 1116 (decided under ULPA)]. Under CRLPA, however, even a limited partner who exercises control of the business and is not named as a general partner is not liable to persons transacting business with the limited partnership unless those persons transact the business with actual knowledge of that partner's participation in control and with a reasonable belief, based on the limited partner's conduct, that the limited partner is a general partner at the time of the transaction. Nothing in CRLPA will be construed to affect the liability of a limited partner to third parties for the limited partner's participation in tortious conduct [Corp. Code § 15632(a) (CRLPA)].

[2] Activity Not Considered Participation in Control of Business

[a] ULPA '08

A limited partner in a limited partnership governed by the ULPA '08 does not participate in the control of the business solely by doing, attempting to do, or having the right or power to do, one or more of the following [Corp. Code § 15903.03(b) (ULPA '08)]:

- Being any of the following:
  - An independent contractor for, an agent or employee of, or a person that transacts business with, the limited partnership or a general partner of the limited partnership.
  - An officer, director, or shareholder of a corporate general partner of the limited partnership.
  - A member, manager, or officer of a limited liability company that is a general partner of the limited partnership.
  - A limited partner of a partnership that is a general partner of the limited partnership.
  - A trustee, administrator, executor, custodian, or other fiduciary or beneficiary of an estate or trust that is a general partner.
  - A trustee, officer, advisor, shareholder, or beneficiary of a business trust that is a general partner.
- Consulting with and advising a general partner with respect to the business of the limited partnership.
- Acting as surety for the limited partnership or for a general partner, guaranteeing one or more specific debts of the limited partnership, providing collateral for the limited partnership or general partner, borrowing money from the limited partnership or a general partner, or lending money to the limited partnership or a general partner.
- Approving or disapproving an amendment to the partnership agreement.
- Voting on, proposing, or calling a meeting of the partners.
- Winding up the partnership pursuant to the ULPA '08 [see Corp. Code § 15908.03 (ULPA '08)].
- Executing and filing a certificate pursuant to court order [see Corp. Code § 15902.05 (ULPA '08)], a certificate of withdrawal [see Corp. Code § 15902.04(a)(11) (ULPA '08)], or a certificate of cancellation of the certificate of limited partnership [see Corp. Code § 15902.04(a)(6) (ULPA '08)].
- Serving on an audit committee or committee performing the functions of an audit committee.
- Serving on a committee of the limited partnership or the limited partners for the purpose of approving actions of the general partner.
- Calling, requesting, attending, or participating at any meeting of the partners or the limited partners.

- Taking any action required or permitted by law to bring, pursue, settle, or terminate a derivative action on behalf of the limited partnership.

- Serving on the board of directors or a committee of, consulting with or advising, being or acting as an officer, director, stockholder, partner, member, manager, agent, or employee of, or being or acting as a fiduciary for, any person in which the limited partnership has an interest.

- Exercising any right or power permitted to limited partners under the ULPA '08 and not specifically listed above.

The fact that ULPA '08 states that the preceding activities do not constitute participation in the control of partnership business does not mean that any other conduct, or the possession or exercise of any other power, by a limited partner does constitute participation in the control of the business of the limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15903.03(c) (ULPA '08)].

[b] CRLPA

A limited partner in a partnership governed by the CRLPA does not participate in the control of the business for the purpose of liability solely by doing, attempting to do, or having the right or power to do one or more of the following [Corp. Code § 15632(b) (CRLPA)]:

- Being any of the following:

  - An independent contractor for, or an agent or employee of, or one who transacts business with, the limited partnership or a general partner of the limited partnership.

  - An officer, director, or shareholder of a corporate general partner of the limited partnership [see, e.g., Gruendl v. Oewel Partnership (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 654, 659, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 217 (limited partner not deemed to have participated in control merely because he exercised his duties as president of corporate general partner)].

  - A member, manager, or officer of a limited liability company that is a general partner of the limited partnership.

  - A limited partner of a partnership that is a general partner of the limited partnership.

  - A trustee, administrator, executor, custodian, or other fiduciary or beneficiary of an estate or trust that is a general partner.

  - A trustee, officer, advisor, shareholder, or beneficiary of a business trust that is a general partner.

- Consulting with and advising a general partner with respect to the business of the limited partnership.

- Acting as surety for the limited partnership or for a general partner, guaranteeing one or more specific debts of the limited partnership, or providing collateral for the limited partnership or for a general partner, or borrowing money from the limited partnership or from a general partner, or lending money to the limited partnership or to a general partner [see, e.g., Gruendl v. Oewel Partnership (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 654, 659, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 217 (limited partner not deemed to have participated in control merely because he acted as surety or lent money to limited partnership)].

- Approving or disapproving an amendment to the partnership agreement.

- Voting on, proposing, or calling a meeting of the partners for one or more of the following matters [Corp. Code § 15636(f) (CRLPA)]:

    - The dissolution and winding up of the limited partnership.

    - The merger of the limited partnership or the sale, exchange, lease, mortgage, pledge, or other transfer of all or a substantial part of, or granting or a security interest in, the assets of the limited partnership other than in the ordinary course of its business.

    - The incurrence of indebtedness by the limited partnership other than in the ordinary course of its business.

    - A change in the nature of the business.

    - Transactions in which the general partners have an actual or potential conflict of interest with the limited partners or partnership.

    - An election to continue the business of the limited partnership under circumstances other than when there is no remaining or surviving general partner [see also Corp. Code § 15636(f)(3) (CRLPA), noted below].

    - The admission of a general partner under circumstances under than when there is no remaining or surviving general partner [see also Corp. Code § 15636(f)(3) (CRLPA), noted below].

- Having the right to vote on any of the following matters:

    - The removal of a general partner [see Corp. Code § 15636(f)(2) (CRLPA)].

    - The admission of a general partner or an election to continue the business of the limited partnership after the general partner ceases to be a general partner, when there is no remaining or surviving general partner [see Corp. Code § 15636(f)(3) (CRLPA)].

    - With respect to a limited partnership that is registered as an investment company under the Investment Company Act of 1940, or the SEC rules and regulations under that Act, any matter to be approved by the holders of beneficial interests in the investment company, including the election of directors or trustees of the investment company, the approving or terminating of investment advisory or underwriting contracts, and the approving of auditors [see Corp. Code § 15636(f)(4)(A) (CRLPA)].

    - Other matters related to the business of the limited partnership that the partnership agreement states in writing may be subject to the approval or disapproval of the limited partners [see Corp. Code § 15636(f)(4)(B) (CRLPA)].

- Winding up the partnership [see Corp. Code § 15683 (CRLPA)].

- Executing and filing a certificate of limited partnership [see Corp. Code § 15625 (CRLPA)], certificate of dissolution [see Corp. Code § 15624(a)(3) (CRLPA)], or certificate of cancellation of certificate of limited partnership [see Corp. Code § 15624(a)(4) (CRLPA)].

- Serving on an audit committee or committee performing the functions of an audit committee.

- Serving on a committee of the limited partnership or of the limited partners for the purpose of approving actions of the general partner.

- Calling, requesting, attending, or participating at any meeting of the partners or of the limited partners.

- Taking any action required or permitted by law to bring, pursue, settle, or terminate a derivative action on behalf of the limited partnership.

- Serving on the board of directors or on a committee of, consulting with, or advising, being, or acting as an officer, director, stockholder, partner, member, manager, agent, or employee of, or being or acting as a fiduciary for, any person in which the limited partnership has an interest.

- Exercising any other right or power permitted to limited partners under the CRLPA [see Corp. Code § 15611 et seq. (CRLPA)].

The enumeration of the activities listed above does not mean that any other conduct, or the possession or exercise of any other power by a limited partner, necessarily constitutes participation by the limited partner in the control of the business of the limited partnership [see Corp. Code § 15632(c) (CRLPA)].

[c] ULPA

A limited partner in a limited partnership governed by the ULPA is not deemed to have exercised control of the partnership business by possessing or exercising his or her power to vote on matters affecting the basic structure of the partnership, including the following matters or matters of a similar nature [Corp. Code § 15507(b) (ULPA)]:

- Election or removal of general partners.

- Termination of the partnership.

- Amendment of the partnership agreement.

- Sale of all or substantially all of the assets of the partnership.

The foregoing matters are not exclusive, and the ULPA's listing of them does not indicate that any other powers possessed or exercised by a limited partner are sufficient to cause him or her to be deemed to have taken part in the control of the partnership business [Corp. Code § 15507(c) (ULPA)]. Thus, for example, a limited partner is not subject to liability as a general partner if, although he or she participates in the partnership business as its employee, he or she has no control over management of it and does not make loans or other business transactions with it [Grainger v. Antoyan (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 805, 807-813, 313 P.2d 848 (decided under ULPA)]. As another example, a limited partner is not liable for partnership obligations when he or she acts as an agent of a corporation that is the sole general partner of the partnership [Western Camps, Inc. v. Riverway Ranch Enterprises (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 714, 729-730, 138 Cal. Rptr. 918 (decided under ULPA)].

On the other hand, limited partners were held liable to creditors as general partners under the ULPA in a case in which they had the power to withdraw partnership funds without the knowledge or consent of the general partner, to limit the general partner's control of the business, and to make business decisions [Holzman v. De Escamilla (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 858, 860, 195 P.2d 833 (decided under ULPA)]. In the factual context of a specific case, the dominant consideration in determining the personal liability of a limited partner for partnership liabilities is reliance of the third party rather than actual control exercised by the limited partner [Western Camps, Inc. v. Riverway Ranch Enterprises (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 714, 729, 138 Cal. Rptr. 918 (decided under ULPA)].

[1] ULPA '08

On application to a court of competent jurisdiction by any judgment creditor of a partner or transferee of an interest in a limited partnership governed by the ULPA '08, the court may charge the transferable interest of the judgment debtor with payment of the unsatisfied amount of the judgment with interest. To the extent of the charging order, the judgment creditor has only the rights of a transferee. The court may appoint a receiver of the share of the distributions due or to become due to the judgment debtor from the limited partnership and make all other orders, directions, accounts, and inquiries that the judgment debtor might have made or that the circumstances of the case may require to give effect to the charging order [Corp. Code § 15907.03(a) (ULPA '08)].

A charging order constitutes a lien on the judgment debtor's transferable interest. The court may order a foreclosure on the interest subject to the charging order at any time. The purchaser at the foreclosure sale has the rights of a transferee [Corp. Code § 15907.03(b) (ULPA '08)].

At any time before foreclosure, an interest charged may be redeemed by any of the following [Corp. Code § 15907.03(c) (ULPA '08)]:

- The judgment debtor.
- One or more of the other partners, using property other than limited partnership property.
- The limited partnership, using limited partnership property, if all partners whose interests are not so charged consent to the redemption.

The foregoing provisions provide the exclusive remedy by which a judgment creditor of a partner or transferee may satisfy a judgment out of the judgment debtor's transferable interest [Corp. Code § 15907.03(e) (ULPA '08)]. No creditor of a partner has any right to obtain possession or otherwise exercise legal or equitable remedies with respect to the property of the limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15907.03(f) (ULPA '08)].

The foregoing provisions of the ULPA '08 do not deprive any partner or transferee of the benefit of any exemption laws applicable to the partner's or transferee's transferable interest [Corp. Code § 15907.03(d) (ULPA '08)].

[2] CRLPA

On application to a court of competent jurisdiction by any judgment creditor of a partner in a limited partnership governed by the CRLPA, the court may charge the limited partnership interest of the partner with payment of the unsatisfied amount of the judgment, with interest. To the extent so charged, the judgment creditor has only the rights of an assignee of the limited partnership interest [Corp. Code § 15673 (CRLPA); for forms for obtaining judgment creditor's charging order, see Ch. 402, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners or Partnership and Third Parties ; for discussion of an assignee's rights, see Ch. 404, Partnerships: Actions Between Limited Partners and Partnership].

[3] ULPA

The judgment creditor of a limited partner in a partnership governed by the ULPA may apply to a court of competent jurisdiction for an order charging that partner's interest in the limited partnership with payment of the unsatisfied amount of the claim. The court may also appoint a receiver and make all other orders, directions, and inquiries that the circumstances of the case might require. The interest may be redeemed with the separate property of any general partner, but may not be redeemed with the partnership property [Corp. Code § 15522 (ULPA)]. Although the ULPA, unlike the ULPA '08 or the CRLPA [see [1], [2], above], does not specifically provide for a charging order against the interest of a general partner, the Uniform Partnership Act of 1994 does provide for a charging order against a general partner's interest [see Corp. Code § 16504 (UPA '94)].

If a judgment creditor has obtained an order charging a limited partnership with payment of an unsatisfied judgment and the judgment nevertheless remains unsatisfied, the judgment creditor may obtain a further order for sale of the debtor's partnership interest, as long as all partners other than the debtor consent to the sale of the interest [Crocker Nat'l Bank v. Perroton (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1, 8-9, 255 Cal. Rptr. 794 (decided under ULPA)]. For further discussion of execution sale of a judgment debtor's partnership interest and forms for use by a judgment creditor to obtain a charging order, see Ch. 402, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners or Partnership and Third Parties .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 405.18 Withdrawal or Dissociation of General Partner

[1] Amendment of Certificate of Limited Partnership

When a general partner ceases to be a general partner of a limited partnership governed by the CRLPA, the general partners must file a certificate of amendment to the certificate of limited partnership with the Secretary of State within 30 days [Corp. Code § 15622(b)(5) (CRLPA)]. Except as provided in Corp. Code § 15642 (CRLPA), no person has any liability because the amendment has not been filed to reflect the withdrawal if the amendment is filed within 30 days of the withdrawal [see Corp. Code §§ 15624(d), 15712(b)(2) (CRLPA)]. The limited partners are not liable for any failure to file such an amendment [see Corp. Code § 15624(e) (CRLPA)].

Like the CRLPA, the ULPA '08 requires the filing of an amendment to the certificate of limited partnership when a general partner dissociates from the partnership [Corp. Code § 15902.02(b)(2) (ULPA '08)]. However, the ULPA '08 does not contain a provision exonerating the remaining partners for a failure to file the amendment. Rather, the ULPA '08 provides a procedure for an aggrieved person to obtain a court order requiring the filing of the amendment [see Corp. Code § 15902.05 (ULPA '08)].

[2] Effect of Withdrawal or Dissociation of General Partner

[a] ULPA '08

After a person is dissociated as a general partner in a limited partnership governed by the ULPA '08, and before the limited partnership is dissolved, converted, or merged out of existence, the limited partnership is bound by an act of the person only if both of the following circumstances exist [Corp. Code § 15906.06(a) (ULPA '08)]:

- The act would have bound the limited partnership under Section 15904.02 before the dissociation.

- At the time the other party enters into the transaction, (1) less than two years have passed since the dissociation, and (2) the other party does not have notice of the dissociation and reasonably believes that the person is a general partner.

If a limited partnership is bound as described above, the person dissociated as a general partner that caused the limited partnership to be bound is liable to the limited partnership for any damage caused to the limited partnership arising from the obligation [Corp. Code § 15906.06(b)(1) (ULPA '08)]. The dissociated person is also liable for any damage caused by the dissociation to a general partner or another person dissociated as a general partner who becomes liable for the obligation of the limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15906.06(b)(2) (ULPA '08)].

A person's dissociation as a general partner does not of itself discharge the person's liability as a general partner for an obligation of the limited partnership incurred before dissociation. Generally, the person is not liable for a limited partnership's obligation incurred after dissociation [Corp. Code § 15906.07(a) (ULPA '08)]. However, a person whose dissociation as a general partner resulted in a dissolution and winding up of the limited partnership's activities is liable to the same extent as a general partner [see Corp. Code § 15904.04 (ULPA '08)] on an obligation incurred by the limited partnership after dissolution [Corp. Code § 15906.07(b) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15908.04 (ULPA '08)]. Also, a person that has dissociated as a general partner but whose dissociation did not result in a dissolution and winding up of the limited partnership's activities is liable on a transaction entered into by the limited partnership after the dissociation only if (1) a general partner would be liable on the transaction; and (2) at the time the other party enters into the transaction, less than two years have passed since the dissociation, and the other party does not have notice of the dissociation and reasonably believes that the person is a general partner [Corp. Code § 15906.07(c) (ULPA '08)].

By agreement with a creditor of a limited partnership and the limited partnership, a person dissociated as a general partner may be released from liability to the creditor for an obligation of the limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15906.07(d) (ULPA '08)]. Also, a person dissociated as a general partner is released from liability for an obligation of the limited partnership if the limited partnership's creditor, with notice of the person's dissociation as a general partner but without the person's consent, agrees to a material alteration in the nature or time of payment of the obligation [Corp. Code § 15906.07(e) (ULPA '08)].

[b] CRLPA

A general partner who withdraws from a limited partnership governed by the CRLPA is not personally liable for partnership debts incurred after the person ceases to be a general partner, other than any debts incurred by reason of that person's being deemed to be acting as a general partner under Corp. Code § 15642 (CRLPA) [Corp. Code § 15662(b)(2) (CRLPA)].

35-405 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 405.32

§ 405.32 Decisions

[1] Arbitration

Sole general partner is bound by agreement between limited partnership and third party to arbitrate disputes. Keller Construction Co. v. Kashani (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 222, 228, 269 Cal. Rptr. 259

[2] Authority of General Partner

Limited partnership is bound by contract executed on its behalf by general partner. Coronet Constr. Co., Inc. v. Palmer (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 603, 608, 15 Cal. Rptr. 601 (decided under ULPA)

Whether or not certificate of limited partnership is recorded at time partnership commences its business, partnership complies with statutory requirements and has status of limited partnership with respect to any creditor with whom it deals after certificate is recorded. Stowe v. Merrilees (1935) 6 Cal. App. 2d 217, 221-222, 44 P.2d 368 (decided under ULPA)

[3] Fraud

Nonfiduciary third party that purchased partnerships from general partners of limited partnership, allegedly at below fair market value, could not be liable to limited partners for conspiring with general partners to breach general partners' duty to limited partners; only duty allegedly breached was fiduciary duty owed by general partners to limited partners; cause of action for civil conspiracy does not arise if alleged conspirator was not personally bound by duty violated by the wrongdoing. Everest Investors 8 v. Whitehall Real Estate Limited Partnership XI (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 1102, 1106-1108, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 297

Dominant consideration in determining personal liability of limited partner for partnership liabilities is reliance of third party rather than actual control exercised by limited partner. Western Camps, Inc. v. Riverway Ranch Enterprises (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 714, 729, 138 Cal. Rptr. 918 (decided under ULPA)

Duty is imposed on limited partners to make sure that limited partnership has been properly formed; sanction for failure to perform that duty is liability as general partner. Tiburon Nat. Bank v. Wagner (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 868, 875, 71 Cal. Rptr. 832 (decided under ULPA)

Failure to record certificate of limited partnership may subject limited partners to individual liability for debts of partnership. Tiburon Nat. Bank v. Wagner (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 868, 875-876, 71 Cal. Rptr. 832 (decided under ULPA)

Failure of limited partner to renounce his or her interest in partnership when he or she discovers his or her status is not that of limited partner may subject partner to individual liability for partnership debts. Tiburon Nat. Bank v. Wagner (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 868, 876-877, 71 Cal. Rptr. 832 (decided under ULPA)

If limited partnership is not formed in compliance with limited partnership statutes or if limited partner takes part in control of the business, he or she is subject to liability of general partner. Refinite Sales Co. v. Fred R. Bright Co. (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 56, 64, 258 P.2d 1116 (decided under ULPA)

Partner authorizing fraud of general partner is liable for injury to third party, whether or not authorizing partner is limited partner. Russell v. Warner (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 986, 988-989, 217 P.2d 43 (decided under ULPA)

Limited partners are liable to creditors as general partners in case in which they had power to withdraw partnership funds without knowledge or consent of general partner and could limit general partner's control of business, in addition to making business decisions. Holzman v. De Escamilla (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 858, 860, 195 P.2d 833 (decided under ULPA)

[4] Limited Partner Not Liable for Partnership Obligations

Limited partner is not subject to liability of general partner if, although he or she participates in business as its employee, he or she has no control over management of it and does not make loans or other business transactions with it. Grainger v. Antoyan (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 805, 807-813, 313 P.2d 848 (decided under ULPA)

Limited partner is not liable for partnership obligation when he or she acts as agent of corporation that is sole general partner of the partnership. Western Camps, Inc. v. Riverway Ranch Enterprises (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 714, 729-730, 138 Cal. Rptr. 918 (decided under ULPA)

Fictitious business name statement failing to disclose partner's status as limited partner does not by itself mandate that partner be liable to creditor as general partner. J. C. Wattenbarger & Sons v. Sanders (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 495, 500, 30 Cal. Rptr. 910 (decided under ULPA)

[5] Statute of Limitations

Code Civ. Proc. § 351 violates Commerce Clause when applied to nonresident defendant who could have been served under long-arm statute. Abramson v. Brownstein (9th Cir. 1990) 897 F.2d 389, 391-393

Statute of limitations on claims against limited partnership is not tolled pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 351 when general partner is absent from state. Epstein v. Frank (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 111, 120, 177 Cal. Rptr. 831 (decided under ULPA)

[6] Suit Against Limited Partners in Individual Capacity

Individual partnership assets are unavailable to satisfy judgment against limited partner in his or her individual capacity. Evans v. Galardi (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 300, 307, 128 Cal. Rptr. 25, 546 P.2d 313 (decided under ULPA)

Limited partner is not proper party to proceedings by or against limited partnership and limited partnership is not involved in suits against limited partners in their individual capacity. Evans v. Galardi (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 300, 311, 128 Cal. Rptr. 25, 546 P.2d 313 (decided under ULPA)

Interest of individual partner in partnership assets is not subject to attachment or execution except on claim against partnership entity. Epstein v. Frank (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 111, 120, 177 Cal. Rptr. 831 (decided under ULPA)

[7] Suit Against Partnership Entity

Limited partnership is entity separate from its partners when sued and served with process, and when executing on its assets, and is considered permanently within state, regardless of whereabouts of general partners. Epstein v. Frank (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 111, 120, 177 Cal. Rptr. 831 (decided under ULPA)

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use by a person suffering a loss as a result of relying on a misstatement in a limited partnership certificate or other record filed for a partnership governed by the ULPA '08 [see Corp. Code § 15901.02(ac) (ULPA '08) ("record" defined)]. Generally, signing a record constitutes an affirmation under the penalties of perjury that the facts stated in the record are true [Corp. Code § 15902.08(b) (ULPA '08)]. If a record delivered to the Secretary of State for filing under the ULPA '08 and filed by the Secretary of State contains false information, a person that suffers loss by reliance on the information may recover damages for the loss from both of the following [Corp. Code § 15902.08(a) (ULPA '08)]:

- A person that signed the record, or caused another to sign it on the person's behalf, and knew the information to be false at the time the record was signed.

- A general partner that has notice that the information was false when the record was filed or has become false because of changed circumstances, if the general partner has notice for a reasonably sufficient time before the information is relied upon to enable the general partner to effect an amendment [see Corp. Code § 15902.02], seek a court order for a proper filing [see Corp. Code § 15902.05], or deliver to the Secretary of State for filing a certificate of correction [see Corp. Code § 15902.07 (ULPA '08)].

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following:

- The capacity of defendant(s) as general or limited partner(s) in a limited partnership (Paragraph 2) [Corp. Code §§ 15903.03, 15904.02-15904.04 (ULPA '08)].

- That a record was signed and filed for the limited partnership (Paragraph 3) [see Corp. Code §§ 15901.02(ac), 15902.06 (ULPA '08)].

- That a specified statement was made in the record, and that the statement is false (Paragraph 4) [Corp. Code § 15902.08(a) (ULPA '08)].

- Either that the statement was false at the time the record was filed, or that the statement became false and no amendment to the record or certificate of correction was filed (Paragraph 5) [Corp. Code §

15902.08(a) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code §§ 15902.02, 15902.07 (ULPA '08)].

- Plaintiff's reliance on the misstatement (Paragraph 6) [see Corp. Code § 15902.08(a) (ULPA '08)].

- The loss incurred by plaintiff as a result of his or her reliance on the misstatement (Paragraph 7) [Corp. Code § 15902.08(a) (ULPA '08)].

[4] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified also, unless the action is a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial, except in a limited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use by a person suffering a loss as a result of relying on a misstatement in a limited partnership certificate filed for a partnership governed by the CRLPA. The action may be brought against the partner or partners, whether general or limited, who executed the partnership certificate and who knew, or should have known, of the misstatement at the time the certificate was filed and failed to file an amendment to the certificate. A general partner may be liable even if he or she did not execute the certificate. A general partner may also be liable for failing to file an amendment if he or she knew or should have known that a statement in the certificate became inconsistent with the partnership agreement or false [see Corp. Code § 15624(c) (CRLPA), discussed in Ch. 404, Partnerships: Actions Between Limited Partners and Partnership].

Although a limited partner may file a certificate of limited partnership pursuant to Corp. Code § 15625 (CRLPA) (discussed in Ch. 404, Partnerships: Actions Between Limited Partners and Partnership), a limited partner is liable under Corp. Code § 15624(c) only if he or she filed the certificate of limited partnership pursuant to Corp. Code § 15633(a) (CRLPA) [see Corp. Code § 15624(c) (CRLPA)]. Corp. Code § 15633(a) (CRLPA) provides that a person who makes a contribution to a limited partnership believing that he or she has become a limited partner and later learns that no certificate of partnership has been filed may do so if the general partners fail to file one within a reasonable time [Corp. Code § 15633(a) (CRLPA)].

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following:

- The capacity of defendant(s) as general or limited partner(s) in a limited partnership (Paragraph 2) [Corp. Code § 15624(c) (CRLPA)].

- That a certificate of limited partnership was filed, either by a general partner or partners or by a limited partner pursuant to Corp. Code § 15633 (Paragraph 3) [see Corp. Code §§ 15624(c), 15633(a) (CRLPA)].

- That a specified statement was made in the certificate, and that the statement is false (Paragraph 4) [Corp. Code § 15624(c) (CRLPA)].

- Either that the statement was false at the time the certificate was filed or that it became false and an amendment to the certificate was not filed (Paragraph 5) [Corp. Code § 15624(c) (CRLPA)].

- Plaintiff's reliance on the misstatement (Paragraph 6) [Corp. Code § 15624(c) (CRLPA)].

- The loss incurred by plaintiff as a result of his or her reliance on the misstatement (Paragraph 7) [Corp. Code § 15624(c) (CRLPA)].

[4] Persons Executing Certificates of Limited Partnership and Certificates of Amendment

The general partners are required to execute and file a certificate of limited partnership [Corp. Code §§ 15621(a), 15624(a)(1) (CRLPA)]. If a certificate of limited partnership has not been filed, however, and if the general partners fail to comply within a reasonable time after request, a certificate may be filed by a limited partner [see Corp. Code §§ 15624(a)(1), 15633 (CRLPA)] or by any person authorized to do so under Corp. Code § 15625 [Corp. Code § 15624(a)(1) (CRLPA)]. Any other partner or any person appointed by a court of competent jurisdiction is authorized to execute and file a certificate of limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15625(a) (CRLPA)]. Furthermore, if the general partners refuse to execute the certificate, or fail to file it within a reasonable time after demand, any partner may petition the superior court to direct the execution and filing of the certificate [Corp. Code § 15625(b) (CRLPA)].

Normally a certificate of amendment must be executed by all general partners (or fewer than all, as may be provided in the certificate of limited partnership) and by each general partner designated in the certificate as a new general partner [Corp. Code § 15624(a)(2)]. If the amendment states that a general partner ceases to be a general partner, it need not be signed by that general partner. However, the certificate of amendment may be executed by that former general partner if the remaining general partners fail after demand to do so within a reasonable time, or refuse to do so, or if there are no remaining general partners and the limited partners winding up the limited partnership's affairs fail after demand to execute the amendment within a reasonable time, or refuse to do so [Corp. Code § 15624(a)(2)]. If the amendment is filed in accordance with Corp. Code § 15622(c), concerning when a person other than a general partner is authorized to wind up the affairs of a limited partnership, the certificate of amendment must be executed by each person authorized to wind up the limited partnership's affairs and need not be signed by any former general partner or any general partner not winding up the limited partnership's affairs [Corp. Code § 15624(a)(2)]. Further, if the general partners refuse to execute and file a certificate, or fail to file one within a reasonable time after demand, or if there is any dispute concerning the filing of the certificate of amendment, any partner may petition the superior court to direct the execution of the certificate [see Corp. Code § 15625(b) (CRLPA)].

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use by a party who seeks to recover damages based on a transaction with a limited partnership governed by the ULPA '08 or the CRLPA. It is for use against the partnership, the general partners, and a limited partner, based on a transaction entered into prior to the time that the certificate of limited partnership was filed. A partner in such a partnership is liable for partnership transactions when, although the partner may be a limited partner, the third party transacting with the partnership reasonably believed that the partner was a general partner at the time of the transaction [Corp. Code § 15633(b) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15903.06(b) (ULPA '08)]. Although the complaint assumes an agreement with the partnership, such a partner is liable for any business transaction of the partnership under these circumstances [see Corp. Code § 15633(b) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15903.06(b) (ULPA '08)].

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges the following:

- The capacity of defendants as a partnership and as individual partners (Paragraph 1) [see Corp. Code §§ 15632, 15633, 15643 (CRLPA); Corp. Code §§ 15903.03, 15904.02-15904.04 (ULPA '08)].

- The agreement between plaintiff and defendants (Paragraph 3) [see Corp. Code § 15633(b) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15903.06(b) (ULPA '08); Reichert v. General Ins. Co. of Am. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 830, 69 Cal. Rptr. 321, 442 P.2d 377].

- Plaintiff's performance or excusable nonperformance of the contract (Paragraph 4) [see Reichert v. General Ins. Co. of Am. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 830, 69 Cal. Rptr. 321, 442 P.2d 377].

- Defendants' breach (Paragraph 5) [see Reichert v. General Ins. Co. of Am. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 830, 69 Cal. Rptr. 321, 442 P.2d 377].

- Damages proximately caused by the breach (Paragraph 6) [Civ. Code § 3300; Nelson v. Reisner (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 161, 171, 331 P.2d 17 ; see Corp. Code § 15633(b) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15903.06(b) (ULPA '08)].

- Plaintiff's reasonable belief that a specific partner was a general partner at the time of the transaction (Paragraph 7) [Corp. Code § 15633(b) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15903.06(b) (ULPA '08)].

- That the transaction occurred prior to the filing of the certificate of limited partnership (Paragraph 8) [Corp. Code § 15633(b) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15903.06(b) (ULPA '08)].

[4] Liability of Mistaken Limited Partner

[a] ULPA '08

Generally, a person that makes an investment in a business enterprise that would otherwise be governed by the ULPA '08, and erroneously but in good faith believes that the person has become a limited partner in the enterprise, is not liable for the enterprise's obligations by reason of making the investment, receiving distributions from the enterprise, or exercising any rights of or appropriate to a limited partner, if, on ascertaining the mistake, the person does one of the following [Corp. Code § 15903.06(a) (ULPA '08)]:

- Causes an appropriate certificate of limited partnership, amendment, or certificate of correction to be signed and delivered to the Secretary of State for filing.

- Withdraws from future participation as an owner in the enterprise by signing a certificate of withdrawal, on a form prescribed by the Secretary of State, and delivering the certificate to the Secretary of State for filing.

If a person makes a diligent effort in good faith to comply with the first option listed above and is unable to cause the appropriate certificate of limited partnership, amendment, or certificate of correction to be signed and delivered to the Secretary of State for filing, the person has the right to withdraw from the enterprise pursuant to the second option listed above even if the withdrawal would otherwise breach an agreement with others that are or have agreed to become co-owners of the enterprise [Corp. Code § 15903.06(c) (ULPA '08)].

[b] CRLPA

A person who contributes to a partnership for which a certificate of limited partnership has not been filed, and who in good faith believes that he or she is a limited partner, may avoid liability as a general partner. In order to do so, such a partner, on ascertaining that the certificate has not been filed and after failure of the general partners to file it within a reasonable time after request, must promptly file the certificate himself or herself and send a copy of the certificate to each general partner at the partner's last known address [Corp. Code § 15633(a) (CRLPA)].

A person who makes a contribution to the purported limited partnership and in good faith believes that he or she has become a limited partner is liable only to third parties who transacted business with the purported limited partnership before the certificate was filed and who reasonably believed that the person was a general partner at the time of the transaction [Corp. Code § 15633(b) (CRLPA)].

[5] Applicability to Partnership Governed by ULPA

The complaint in [1], above, may be used against a partner in a partnership governed by the ULPA. Nevertheless, a partner in such a partnership who erroneously believes that he or she is a limited partner may escape liability to third parties if, when he or she discovers his or her mistake, he or she promptly renounces his or her interest in the profits of the partnership or other compensation by way of income [Corp. Code § 15511 (ULPA)]. It is unclear what form the renunciation is required to take.

§ 405.43 Allegations for Complaint Under ULPA '08 or CRLPA for Damages Against Limited Partnership and Partners--Limited Partner Participated in Control of Business [Corp. Code § 15632(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15903.03(a) (ULPA '08)]

[1] FORM Allegations for Complaint Under ULPA '08 or CRLPA for Damages Against Limited Partnership and Partners--Limited Partner Participated in Control of Business [Corp. Code § 15632(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15903.03(a) (ULPA '08)]

[7]. Defendant _____ [name of limited partner], [does now, and] at all times herein mentioned did[,] participate in the control of the business of the limited partnership known as _____ [name of partnership], and is therefore liable as a general partner, in that he/she _____ [specify, e.g., negotiated with plaintiff on behalf of defendant limited partnership and signed the agreement between plaintiff and defendants on behalf of defendant limited partnership].

[8]. Plaintiff knew of defendant _____ [name]'s participation in the control of the partnership business at the time of the transaction, and at that time believed that defendant _____ [name] was a general partner. Plaintiff's belief was reasonable in that _____ [specify, e.g., defendant _____ (name) was the only partner who dealt with plaintiff on behalf of the limited partnership, and defendant _____ (name) represented to plaintiff that he/she had authority to make decisions regarding partnership transactions].

[2] Use of Form

These allegations are for use in a complaint against a limited partnership and against a limited partner who participated in the control of the partnership business. Such a limited partner may be liable for obligations of the partnership to a person who had actual knowledge of the limited partner's participation in control of the partnership business and reasonably believed, based on the limited partner's conduct, that the limited partner was a general partner [Corp. Code § 15632(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15903.03(a) (ULPA '08)]. If used in a complaint based on the form in § 405.42[1], the allegations should be inserted in place of paragraphs 7 and 8 of that form.

The allegations in [1], above, are for use against a partner in a limited partnership governed by the ULPA '08 or the CRLPA. For a complaint for use against a limited partner in a partnership governed by the ULPA, see § 405.45. Although these allegations may be used against a partner in a limited partnership governed by the ULPA, the standards governing when a limited partner is liable under the ULPA are broader. Under the ULPA, a limited partner may be held liable for partnership obligations if he or she takes part in the control of the business, but unlike the ULPA '08 or the CRLPA, the ULPA does not impose a requirement that the plaintiff have been aware of the limited partner's participation or that the plaintiff have had a reasonable belief that the limited partner was in fact a general partner [compare Corp. Code § 15507(a) (ULPA) with Corp. Code § 15632(a) (CRLPA) and Corp. Code § 15903.03(a) (ULPA '08)]. Thus, the second paragraph in the form in [1], above, would be unnecessary in an action against a limited partner under the ULPA.

For further discussion of limited partners' liability, see § 405.16.

[3] Limited Partner's Liability for Controlling Business

Except for liability for his or her participation in tortious conduct, a limited partner generally is not liable for any obligation of a limited partnership unless he or she is either named as a general partner in the certificate or, in addition to the exercise of the rights and powers of a limited partner, he or she participates in the control of the business. If a limited partner participates in control of the business, he or she may be held liable as a general partner only to persons who transact business with the limited partnership with actual knowledge of that limited partner's participation in control and with a reasonable belief, based on the limited partner's conduct, that the partner is a general partner at the time of the transaction [Corp. Code § 15632(a) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15903.03(a) (ULPA '08)].

A limited partner may exercise certain rights with respect to the partnership without having participated in control of the partnership business for the purpose of liability as a general partner [see Corp. Code § 15632(b),(c) (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15903.03(b),(c) (ULPA '08)]. For a list of activities that do not constitute participation in control of the partnership business, see § 405.16[2][a] (ULPA '08) and § 405.16[2][b] (CRLPA).

On or about _____ [date after cause of action accrued], a certificate of merger was filed with the Secretary of the State of California evidencing that defendant _____ [name of limited partnership that exists at time action is filed] was the "surviving" limited partnership within the meaning of _____ [Corporations Code Section 15911.01(l) or Corporations Code Section 15611(ad)], and that defendant _____ [name of limited partnership that engaged in transaction giving rise to liability] was the "disappearing" limited partnership within the meaning of _____ [Corporations Code Section 15911.01(h) or Corporations Code Section 15611(h)]. [The certificate provided that the merger took effect on _____ (date).] A copy of the certificate, certified by the Secretary of State, is attached to this complaint as Exhibit "_____" and incorporated by reference.

[2] Use of Form

The allegation in [1], above, is for use in a complaint, such as the one in § 405.42, against a limited partnership that merged pursuant to the ULPA '08 or the CRLPA [see Corp. Code § 15678.1 et seq. (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15911.10 et seq. (ULPA '08)] with the limited partnership that engaged in the transaction giving rise to plaintiff's cause of action [*Corp. AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges:

[2] Use of Form

The affirmative defense allegations in [1], above, are for use by a limited partner who has been sued in an action based on the obligation of a limited partnership. The general rule in all limited partnerships, whether governed by the ULPA '08, the CRLPA, or the ULPA, is that a limited partner is not liable for partnership obligations [*see Corp. A limited partner may be liable for obligations of the limited partnership under certain circumstances, such as when the limited partner is also named as a general partner in the limited partnership certificate, or when the limited partner participates in control of the partnership business [see Corp. Code § 15507 (ULPA); Corp. Code § 15632 (CRLPA);

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. General Partnerships

35-406 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 406.10

§ 406.10 Governing Law

The dissolution and winding up of general partnerships subject to UPA'94 is governed by Corp. Code §§ 16801-16807. Events causing dissolution and winding up are set forth in Corp. Code § 16801. The rights and liabilities of the partnership and partners are governed by Corp. Code §§ 16804 and 16806. The authorization of partners to wind up business, and the distribution of partnership assets, are set forth in Corp. Code §§ 16803 and 16807.

Since January 1, 1999, all general partnerships have been governed by the Uniform Partnership Act of 1994 (UPA'94) [Corp. Code § 16111(b); see Corp. Code § 16100 et seq.], regardless of when they were formed. Prior to that date, partnerships formed before January 1, 1997, were governed by the earlier of (1) the date when they elected to be governed by the UPA'94, or (2) January 1, 1999 [Corp. Code § 16111]. As of January 1, 1999, this transition period expired and the pre-1997 version of the UPA (pre-'97 Act) was repealed [Stats. 1996 ch. 1003, §§ 1.2, 18, operative Jan. 1, 1999].

Repeal of the pre-'97 Act, however, did not affect actions or proceedings commenced, or rights accrued, prior to the effective date of the UPA'94 [Corp. Code § 16112]. Thus, if the dissolution of a general partnership occurred prior to January 1, 1997, pending actions or proceedings pertaining to that dissolution continue to be governed by the pre-'97 Act. Similarly, the dissolution, prior to January 1, 1999, of a general partnership that was formed before January 1, 1997, and had not elected to be governed by the UPA'94 during the transition period that ended on December 31, 1998, is governed by the pre-'97 Act. For these reasons, detailed discussion of the dissolution provisions of the pre-'97 Act has been retained in this chapter. All references to Corp. Code §§ 15001-15045 in this chapter are to the repealed provisions of the pre-'97 Act. For more detailed discussion see §§ 400.10, 400.11 in Ch. 400, Partnerships: Governing Statutes .

The rights of a deceased partner's legal representative are specified in Prob. Code §§ 9651, 9761, 9763. The partners' right to execute an agreement not to compete on dissolution is provided by Bus. & Prof. Code § 16602.

§ 406.11 Distinction Between Dissolution and Termination

Under both UPA'94 and the pre-'97 Act, a partnership continues after dissolution only for the purpose of winding up its affairs, and is terminatedat the conclusion of the winding up [Corp. Code § 16802(a); former Corp. Code § 15030; see Jewel v. Boxer (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 171, 176, 203 Cal. Rptr. 13 ; *Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman v. Cohen (1983) 146 Cal. "Termination" denotes the cessation of any business activity on the part of the dissolved partnership. For income tax purposes, termination occurs if no part of any business, financial operation, or venture of the partnership continues to be carried on by any ofits partners in the partnership, or within a 12-month period there is a sale or exchange of 50 percent or more of the total interest in partnership capital and profits [see I.R.C. § 708; Rev. & Tax. Code § 17851].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. General Partnerships

35-406 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 406.12

§ 406.12 Causes of Dissolution

[1] UPA'94

[a] Effect of Dissociation; Partnership Agreement

Under UPA'94, in contrast to the pre-'97 Act, changes in the composition of a partnership do not necessarily trigger its dissolution [see [2], below, and Ch. 403, Partnerships: Actions By and Against Dissociated Partners]. A partner's dissociation from a partnership is treated separately from partnership dissolution, although the dissociation of a partner may cause dissolution in the case of a partnership for a definite term or particular purpose [see Corp. Code § 16801; see also [c], below]. Absent a judicial determination that a partnership must be dissolved and wound up [see § 406.13], partnerships at will subject to UPA'94 are not automatically dissolved by either the rightful or wrongful dissociation of a partner. Except in the case of a judicial determination that a partnership must be wound up, a partnership agreement may control when and if a partnership dissolves [see Corp. Code § 16103].

[b] Partnership at Will

[i] By Express Will of Partners

A partnership at will [see Corp. Code § 16101(11) (definition) and Ch. 400, Partnerships: Governing Statutes] may be dissolved and the partnership business wound up by the express will of at least half the partners, other than wrongfully dissociating partners [Corp. Code § 16801(1)].

[ii] Dissociating Partners

Wrongfully dissociating partners [see Corp. Code § 16602(b)] may not vote on whether to dissolve [see Ch. 403, Partnerships: Actions By and Against Dissociated Partners], but those who have rightfully dissociated within the preceding 90 days and whose dissociation is an expression of their will to dissolve and wind up the partnership business may participate in the vote [Corp. Code § 16801(1)].

[iii] Partnership Agreement May Vary Statutory Rule

The partnership agreement may vary the statutory rule and specify a lower or higher voting requirement and base it either on the number of partners or on the percentage of the partnership interests they own [see Corp. Code § 16103(a)].

[c] Partnership for a Definite Term or Particular Undertaking

[i] By Agreement, Expiration of Term or Undertaking

Absent an agreement to the contrary, a partnership for a definite term or particular undertaking is dissolved and its business wound up if [Corp. Code § 16801(2)(B), (C)]:

- All the partners expressly agree to do so;
- The partnership term has expired; or
- The undertaking has been completed.

The determination of whether there is a definite term or particular undertaking may be difficult if the partners have no written agreement, or the agreement is silent as to the length of the partnership's existence. A court may imply such a term or purpose from the facts and circumstances. For example, under the pre-'97 Act, a court determined that a partnership financed by a loan from one partner to be repaid from profits was intended to be continued at least until the loan was repaid, and thus was for a definite term [Owen v. Cohen (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 147, 150, 119 P.2d 713] .

[ii] By Dissociation of Partner

Under UPA'94, a partnership for a definite term or particular undertaking ("term partnership") is treated differently than a partnership at will. Unless there is a contrary provision in the partnership agreement, a term partnership is dissolved and its business must be wound up after the expiration of 90 days after a partner's wrongful dissociation or dissociation by death, bankruptcy or becoming subject to certain other insolvency related proceedings, incapacity, distribution of the partner's entire transferable interest in the case of a partner that is a trust or estate, or termination of a partner that is not an individual partnership, corporation, trust, or estate [Corp. Code § 16801(2)(A); see Corp. Code § 16601(6)-10].

Dissolution can be avoided, however, if a majority in interest of the other partners agree to continue the partnership. For this purpose, "other partners" includes partners dissociating by express will but whose dissociation is not wrongful because the dissociation follows within 90 days another partner's wrongful dissociation or dissociation by death or pursuant to Corp. Code § 16601(6)-(10), inclusive [see Corp. Code § 16602(b)(2)(A); see also Ch. 403, Partnerships: Actions by and Against Dissociated Partners]. For example, if a partner dissociates from the partnership within 90 days after one of the partners has died, the former's dissociation is not wrongful and that partner's interest is counted in computing the requiredmajority of interests and if voted in favor of continuation, is counted in determining whether the necessary majority agreement has been obtained.

[d] All Partnerships

[i] Event Specified in Partnership Agreement

Any partnership, whether at will or term, is dissolved and its business must be wound up if there is a provision in the partnership agreement specifying an event requiring that result [Corp. Code § 16801(3)]. This provision is not self-executing, but UPA'94 gives partners the power to enforce their rights under the partnership agreement [Corp. Code § 16405(b)(1), (2)(C)].

[ii] Event Makes Continuation of Partnership Business Unlawful

Any partnership is dissolved and its business must be wound up if an event makes it unlawful for all or substantially all of the partnership business to be continued, but a cure of illegality within 90 days after notice to the partnership of the event is effective retroactively to the date of the event (i.e., the cure avoids dissolution) [Corp. Code § 16801(4)]. The partnership agreement cannot waive illegality as a basis for compelling the dissolution and winding up of the business [Corp. Code § 16103(b)(8)].

[2] Pre-'97 Act

[a] Definition

The pre-'97 Act specifically defines dissolution of a partnership as a change in the relation of the partners caused by any partner ceasing to be associated in the carrying on, as distinguished from the winding up, of the business [former Corp. Code § 15029]. On dissolution, the partnership is not terminated, but continues until the winding up of partnership affairs is completed [former Corp. Code § 15030; see also Cotten v. Perishable Air Conditioners (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 575, 577, 116 P.2d 603] .

[b] Dissolution Without Court Decree

Under the pre-'97 Act, partners in either at will or term partnerships may cause dissolution without violating the partnership agreement under the following circumstances [former Corp. Code § 15031(1)]:

- By termination of the definite term or particular undertaking specified in the partnership agreement;
- By the express will of any partner when no definite term or particular undertaking is specified in the agreement;
- Before or after the termination of a specified term or undertaking, by the express will of all partners who have not assigned their interests or had their interests charged for their separate debts; or
- By the expulsion of any partner from the business bona fide in accordance with such power conferred by the partnership agreement.

A partnership will also be dissolved in contravention of the partnership agreement by the express will of any partner at any time [former Corp. Code § 15031(2)]. Additional circumstances causing dissolution under the pre-'97 Act include [see former Corp. Code § 15031(3),(4),(5),(7)]:

- Any event that makes carrying on the partnership business unlawful;
- The bankruptcy of any partner or of the partnership;
- The withdrawal of a partner, or the admission of a new partner unless all partners have previously agreed that the withdrawal, or admission would not cause dissolution; and
- The death of a partner, unless otherwise provided in a written agreement signed by all the partners before the death or in a court order made pursuant to Prob. Code § 9762.

The conveyance by a partner of his or her interest in the partnership does not of itself dissolve the partnership [former Corp. Code § 15027(1)]. The entire circumstances connected with the transfer, however, may be sufficient to cause dissolution [Chatten v. Martell (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 545, 551, 333 P.2d 364] . The assignment of all the partnership assets by all the partners does dissolve the partnership, as well as implying a winding up of all partnership affairs [Wells v. Ellis (1885) 68 Cal. 243, 244-245, 9 P. 80] . Similarly, the transfer of one partner's interest to his or her sole copartner dissolves the partnership [Wood v. Waterman (1929) 102 Cal. App. 516, 520, 283 P. 143] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. General Partnerships

35-406 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 406.13

§ 406.13 Dissolution by Judicial Decree

[1] Bases for Dissolution

[a] UPA'94

Regardless of anything in the partnership agreement to the contrary, [see Corp. Code § 16103(b)(8)], either a partnership at will or a term partnership is dissolved and its business must be wound up if, on the application of a partner, a court determines one of the following applies [Corp. Code § 16801(5); see Corp. Code § 16405(b)]:

- The economic purpose of the partnership is likely to be unreasonably frustrated. Under the pre-'97 Act, which provides for judicial dissolution when the partnership business can only be carried on at a loss, it was held that if the loss from a partnership's business has beenslight and a reasonable prospect exists of an immediate increase of the business and in the value of the partnership property, the partnership will not be judicially dissolved. The reasoning behind this decision may well apply under UPA'94 as well [see Shannon v. Hudson (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 44, 48, 325 P.2d 1022] .

- Another partner has engaged in conduct relating to the partnership business that makes it not reasonably practicable to carry on the business in partnership with that partner. Dissolution on the ground that a partner's conduct prejudicially affects the carrying on of the partnership business has been historically decreed when a partner misappropriated partnership funds, took secret profits, sold partnership assets without the consent of the other partners, or otherwise defrauded the other partners [Jacoby v. Feldman (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 432, 443, 146 Cal. Rptr. 334 (1978) ; McAtee v. McAtee (1930) 105 Cal. App. 555, 559, 288 P. 114 (sale of all partnership assets by a partner)]. Misappropriation of partnership assets is not the only breach of fiduciary duty owed to other partners that can justify a dissolution. Dissolution was held to be the appropriate remedy when, for example, the managing partners used questionable accounting procedures to falsify the assets and liabilities of the partnership and a close corporation owned by the partners. "Considering the intricacy of present tax reporting requirements, it seemed essential that a partner be assured that proper accounting techniques were being employed to report partnership income to the tax authorities" [Jacoby v. Feldman (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 432, 443,

146 Cal. Rptr. 334] .

- It is not otherwise reasonably practicable to carry on the partnership business in conformity with the partnership agreement. An example, taken from a case decided under the pre-'97 Act, might be the exclusion of a partner from control of partnership property or from management [Zeibak v. Nasser (1938) 12 Cal. 2d 1, 14, 82 P.2d 375] .

[b] Pre-'97 Act

Under the pre-'97 Act, a partnership may be dissolved by a court decree. On application by or for a partner, the court must decree a dissolution under the following circumstances [former Corp. Code § 15032(1)]:

- When a partner has been declared a lunatic in any judicial proceeding, or is shown to be of unsound mind;

- When a partner becomes in any other way incapable of performing his or her part of the partnership contract;

- When a partner has been guilty of conduct that tends to affect prejudicially the carrying on of the partnership business;

- When a partner wilfully or persistently commits a breach of the partnership agreement or otherwise so conducts himself or herself in matters relating to the partnership business that it is not reasonably practicable to carry on the business in partnership with him or her;

- When the partnership business can only be carried on at a loss; or

- When other circumstances render a dissolution equitable.

A transferee of a partner's interest [former Corp. Code § 15027] or judgment creditor of a partner [see former Corp. Code § 15028] may apply for dissolution of a partnership under the pre-'97 Act after termination of a specified term or particular undertaking of the partnership or at any time if the partnership was at will at the time the interest was assigned or when the charging order was issued [former Corp. Code § 15032(2)].

[2] Dissolution Is Mandatory

[a] Generally

Under both UPA'94 and the pre-'97 Act, the grounds for a judicial dissolution serve as a mandatory direction to the court [see Corp. Code § 16801; former Corp. Code § 15032; see Wallace v. Sinclair (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 220, 228, 250 P.2d 154] . Thus, for example, under the pre-'97 Act it was held that if a partnership would continue to lose money, regardless of the measure or speed of the loss, a partner had the right to judicial dissolution under former Corp. Code § 15032(1)(e) [see Wallace v. Sinclair (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 220, 231, 250 P.2d 154] . Similarly, when there are bitter, antagonistic feelings between the partners. and cooperation is needed to carry on the partnership business to their mutual advantage, dissolution may be decreed pursuant to Corp. Code § 16801(5) or former Corp. Code § 15032(1)(c), (d), and (f) [see Owen v. Cohen (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 147, 152, 119 P.2d 713 (decided under former Civ. Code § 2426); Wallace v. Sinclair (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 220, 228, 250 P.2d 154] .

[b] Equitable Principles Apply

It has been held that no partnership is indissoluble [Bates v. McTammany (1938) 10 Cal. 2d 697, 701, 76 P.2d 513 ;

Wallace v. Sinclair (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 220, 232, 250 P.2d 154] . Nevertheless, equitable principles apply in determining the rights of partners to a dissolution. Therefore, equity may refuse to grant the premature dissolution of a partnership formed for a specific undertaking when the partner requesting it is at fault and a dissolution would cause losses to the partnership or destruction of the value of partnership assets [Bates v. McTammany (1938) 10 Cal. 2d 697, 700-701, 76 P.2d 513 ; Oliker v. Gershunoff (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1288, 1306, 241 Cal. Rptr. 415] . Equity, however, will not protect a partner trying to avoid dissolution if that partner acted fraudulently, regardless of whether the partnership is for a fixed term and dissolution is premature [Cottle v. Leitch (1868) 35 Cal. 434, 439] .

[3] Judgment of Dissolution Is Interlocutory

A judgment directing the dissolution of a partnership is an interlocutory judgment, and therefore any appeal from that judgment must be dismissed under the "one final judgment" rule [Kinoshita v. Horio (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 959, 965, 231 Cal. Rptr. 241] .

[4] Effective Date of Dissolution

The court has discretion as to the effective date of dissolution [Vangel v. Vangel (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 615, 626, 254 P.2d 919] . Generally the court will order the dissolution to be effective as of the date of its order [Zeibak v. Nasser (1938) 12 Cal. 2d 1, 14, 82 P.2d 375] , but the court can order dissolution to be effective as of the date of the breach of a partnership agreement, especially when the breach is serious and unequivocal [Moore v. Moore (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 129, 133, 11 Cal. Rptr. 659 ; Vangel v. Vangel (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 615, 626, 254 P.2d 919 ; McAtee v. McAtee (1930) 105 Cal. App. 555, 558, 288 P. 114] . The date of dissolution is important because it will be the date for determining the respective interests of the partners [see Vangel v. Vangel (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 615, 626, 254 P.2d 919 (decided under pre-'97 Act)] and determining the extent of the partners' liabilities for pre- and post-dissolution acts [see Corp. Code § 16804; see also § 406.15, below].

[5] Partners' Rights to Judicial Dissolution

If a partnership that is dissolved under judicial dissolution does not commence proceedings for its winding up, one or more of its partners have the right to bring an action for dissolution of the partnership to protect their interests in the partnership and to compel its and the winding up of its business. These actions are usually denominated an action for dissolution and accounting (under pre-'97 Act) or an action for dissolution and winding up (under UPA'94) [see Corp. Code § 16405(b)(2)(C); former Corp. Code § 15022; see also Ch. 401, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners and Partnership , for discussion of a partner's right to judicial enforcement of his, her or its partnership rights generally].

[6] Transferee's Rights to Compel Dissolution

A transferee (assignee or judgment creditor) of a partner's transferable interest (i.e., the partner's interest in profits, losses, and distributions) [see Corp. Code § 16502; former Corp. Code § 15026] in a term partnership (and under the pre-'97 Act, but not UPA'94, at any time for an at will partnership) may apply for a judicial determination that it is equitable to wind up the partnership business at the expiration of the term or completion of the undertaking, despite anything in the partnership agreement to the contrary [Corp. Code § 16801(6); former Corp. Code § 15032(2); see Corp. Code § 16103(b)(8)]. Under UPA'94, but not the pre-'97 Act, this right to seek winding up is dependent on the partnership's status at the time of the partner's transfer or the entry of a charging order against the partner's interest. Thus, if a partnership for a definite term or particular undertaking is continued after the expiration of the term or completion of the undertaking, it becomes a partnership at will [see Corp. Code § 16406]. A transfer after its change of status would not give the transferee the right to seek winding up [see Corp. Code § 16801(6)].

Chapter 406 PARTNERSHIPS: DISSOLUTION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. General Partnerships

35-406 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 406.14

§ 406.14 Procedural Matters

[1] Parties

Under both UPA'94 and the pre-'97 Act, an action for partnership dissolution may be brought by one or more of the partners [see Corp. Code § 16801(5); former Corp. Code § 15032; Behlow v. Fischer (1894) 102 Cal. 208, 216, 36 P. 509] , and a transferee of a partner's interest may also apply for dissolution [Corp. Code § 16801(6); former Corp. Code § 15032(2)]. Under the pre-'97 Act, a court held that a partner who disposed of his or her partnership interest is not permitted to join in an action for dissolution of the partnership [Chatten v. Martell (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 545, 552, 333 P.2d 364 ; but see Corp. Code § 16801(1), (2) (votes of dissociating partners may be counted toward dissolution vote in certain circumstances)].

Generally, all partners are not only necessary, but indispensable parties to an action to dissolve a partnership and wind up its affairs. Without all the partners as parties, a court could not make a decree that would finally dispose of all the questions involved [Rudnick v. Delfino (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 260, 267, 294 P.2d 983] . Although this decision was made under the pre-'97 Act, it also appears to be applicable under UPA'94.

[2] Statute of Limitations and Other Defenses

The accrual of, and any time limitation on, a right of action for a remedy under both UPA'94 and the pre-'97 Act is governed by other law [Corp. Code § 16405(c); see former Corp. Code §§ 15004, 15005]. Under the pre-'97 Act, it was held that a cause of action for an accounting accrues when the partnership is dissolved by the death of a partner, and that therefore the statute of limitations begins to run on the death of a partner [Estate of Peebles (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 163, 166, 103 Cal. Rptr. 560 ; see former Corp. Code §§ 15031, 15043]. It was also held under the pre-'97 Act that an action for accounting based on wrongful exclusion of a partner from the partnership accrues when the partner is wrongfully excluded [Manok v. Fishman (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 208, 211, 107 Cal. Rptr. 266 ; see also Mashon v. Haddock (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 151, 178, 11 Cal. Rptr. 865] .

Because an action for an accounting is essentially an equitable action, the correct statute of limitations is the four-year, catch-all statute of limitations that applies when no specific statute of limitations applies [Code Civ. Proc. § 343;

Manok v. Fishman (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 208, 213, 107 Cal. Rptr. 266] .

[3] Sale of Partnership Property

A judgment of dissolution may order the partnership property sold by a commissioner appointed by the court and may authorize some of the partners to use partnership indebtedness to them in lieu of cash at a sale to them of partnership property [Price v. Slawter (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 608, 612, 26 Cal. Rptr. 227 (decided under pre-'97 Act)]. However, a partnership creditor cannot use an unliquidated debt from one partner as a part of the purchase price at such a sale on the dissolution of the partnership [Mendelsohn v. Miller (1958) 156 Cal. App. 2d 664, 667, 320 P.2d 155] .

[4] Partnership Creditor Must Be Paid First

Under the pre-'97 Act, it was held that it is improper to render a personal judgment against one partner in favor of another partner until the partnership creditors have been paid and the partnership assets have been converted to cash [Rice v. Watkins (1948) 85 Cal. App. 2d 44, 51, 191 P.2d 810 ; Olmo v. Olmo (1943) 56 Cal. App. 2d 590, 594, 133 P.2d 866] . This appears to be the rule under UPA'94 as well [see Corp. Code § 16807; see § 406.16[4]]. It was also held under the pre-'97 Act that it is not proper to render a judgment in favor of one partner for one third of the appraised value of the partnership assets before the assets are actually sold [Pluth v. Smith (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 818, 828, 23 Cal. Rptr. 550] . This ruling does not appear to be changed by UPA'94.

[5] Combined With Other Relief Under Pre-'97 Act

Because, under the pre-'97 Act, a partner is entitled to an accounting at the time of dissolution, an action for dissolution is usually combined with an action for an accounting [Cottle v. Leitch (1868) 35 Cal. 434, 440-441 ; see former Corp. Code § 15043]. A court will usually grant dissolution, accounting, and a decree for payment of any balance due between the partners [see Rudnick v. Delfino (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 260, 264, 294 P.2d 983] . In addition, pending the final judgment, the court will often appoint a receiver [see Paola v. Huston (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 206, 212, 309 P.2d 529] , or order a temporary injunction to preserve the status quo [Kendall v. Foulks (1919) 180 Cal. 171, 173, 179 P. 886] . It is also proper, under appropriate circumstances, to combine an action at law for damages with an action for dissolution and an accounting [Prince v. Harting (1960)177 Cal. App. 2d 720, 736-737, 2 Cal. Rptr. 545 ; see Ch. 401, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners and Partnership].

When combined with an action for an accounting, a judgment of dissolution may be interlocutory and the court may reserve jurisdiction to approve and settle the account or otherwise finally determine the rights of the partners [Bakewell v. Bakewell (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 224, 227, 130 P.2d 975 ; Shirley v. Cook (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 220, 221-222, 259 P.2d 25] . In order to effect a proper accounting between the partners, a court may also decree dissolution of the partnership as of a date prior to the judgment, when the partners' conduct had effectively dissolved the partnership [see Vangel v. Vangel (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 615, 626, 254 P.2d 919] .

Chapter 406 PARTNERSHIPS: DISSOLUTION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. General Partnerships

35-406 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 406.15

§ 406.15 Rights and Liabilities of Partnership and Partners

[1] Waiver of Dissolution

Under UPA'94, at any time after dissolution but before winding up is completed, all of the partners, including a dissociating partner other than one who has wrongfully dissociated, can waive the right to have the business wound up and terminated and resume carrying on business as if dissolution had never occurred. In that event, any liability incurred by the partnership or a partner after dissolution and before the waiver is determined as if dissolution never occurred. Furthermore, the partnership will be bound by a partner's acts that were appropriate to winding up the business, and the rights of a third party arising out of conduct in reliance on the dissolution before the third party knew or received notification of the waiver may not be adversely affected [Corp. Code § 16802(b)]. This means, for example, that a third party is protected when it relies on its knowledge that the partnership is being dissolved and has no notice of a waiver of dissolution, even though the transaction would be inappropriate to a partnership that is continuing its business.

[2] Partnership's Liability for Partners' Post-Dissolution Acts

[a] UPA'94

A partnership is bound by a partner's post-dissolution acts that are either [Corp. Code § 16804; see former Corp. Code § 15035]:

- Appropriate for the winding up of the business; or

- Would have bound the partnership before dissolution if the other party did not have notice of the dissolution [see Ch. 400, Partnerships: Governing Statutes , for discussion of what constitutes "notice"].

A partner's act that would have bound the partnership before dissolution under Corp. Code § 16301 [see Ch. 402, Partnerships: Actions betweenGeneral Partners or Partnership and Third Parties] is one that is apparently in the ordinary course of business, unless the partner lacked authority to act and the other party had received notification of the lack of authority. If an act is not apparently in the ordinary course of business, the partner's post-dissolution act would only bind the partnership if it was authorized by the other partners [Corp. Code § 16301].

[b] Pre-'97 Act

[i] Partner's Authority

Dissolution terminates a partner's authority to act for the partnership, with respect to the partners, except so far as is necessary to wind up partnership affairs or complete unfinished partnership transactions [former Corp. Code § 15033(1)(a)]. When the acting partner caused the dissolution but had no notice of the dissolution, however, the other partners will be bound by his or her acts [former Corp. Code §§ 15033(1)(b), 15034(a)]. Similarly, when dissolution is caused by the act, death, or bankruptcy of a partner, acts by any partner who has no knowledge of the death or bankruptcy bind the other partners [former Corp. Code §§ 15033(1)(b), 15034(b)]. In these cases, each partner is liable to the other partners for his or her share of any liability created by any partner acting for the partnership, as if the partnership had not been dissolved [former Corp. Code § 15034(c); but see former Corp. Code § 15015(b) (limitations on liability for partners in limited liability partnerships)]:

A partnership is not bound by any act of a partner after dissolution when the partnership is dissolved because it is unlawful to carry on the partnership business, unless the act is appropriate for winding up partnership affairs [former Corp. Code § 15035(3)(a)]. The partnership also will not be bound by the act of a partner after dissolution when the partner has become bankrupt [former Corp. Code § 15035(3)(b)].

[ii] Creditors Without Notice

After dissolution, a partner can bind the partnership by any transaction with a third person when the third person had extended credit to the partnership before the dissolution and had no knowledge or notice of the dissolution. A partner can also bind the partnership with respect to a third party who had known of the partnership before its dissolution and had no knowledge or notice of the dissolution, when the dissolution was not advertised in a newspaper of general circulation in the places at which the partnership business was regularly carried on. The transaction must be one that would have bound the partnership if dissolution had not taken place [former Corp. Code § 15035(1)(b)].

In order to bind the partnership, the creditor who had never extended credit to the partnership before its dissolution has the burden of showing that the creditor had knowledge of the partnership before its dissolution [Vogler v. Ingrao (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 341, 344, 266 P.2d 826] . With respect to notice of the dissolution, however, the partners seeking to avoid liability have the burden of showing that the creditor had such notice before the transaction [Epley v. Hiller (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 100, 104, 274 P.2d 696] . Once actual notice is shown, the partnership will not be bound, regardless of whether notice of the dissolution was published, as required by former Corp. Code § 15035.5 [Carvalho v. McCoy (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 702, 705, 276 P.2d 21] .

[3] Limiting Partners' Authority to Bind Partnership by Statement of Dissolution

UPA'94 provides a means to place third parties on notice of the dissolution by permitting any partner (other than a wrongfully dissociating partner) to file a statement of dissolution with the Secretary of State, stating the name of the partnership as filed with the Secretary of State, any identification number issued by the Secretary of State, and the fact that the partnership has dissolved and is winding up its business [Corp. Code § 16805(a)].

This statement has the effect of canceling a filed statement of partnership authority, and constitutes a limitation on the authority of partners to enter transactions on behalf of the partnership [Corp. Code § 16805(b); see Corp. Code § 16303(d); for a discussion of the effect of filing partnership statements of authority, see Ch. 402, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners or Partnership and Third Parties]. Except for transfers of real property, however, third persons are not deemed to have notice of the dissolution or a limitation on a partner's authority until 90 days after the statement is filed [Corp. Code § 16805(c)]. Consequently, immediate actual notice to partnership creditors is important. This notice can be given by any means, but should be a means providing objective verification of receipt such as certified mail, courier delivery, facsimile transmission if receipt is verified and the like.

If the statement of dissolution is also recorded in the county where the partnership holds real property, it will give immediate constructive notice of the limitation on the authority of a partner to transfer that property [Corp. Code § 16805(b); see Corp. Code § 16303(e)].

After filing and, if appropriate, recording the statement of dissolution, a dissolved partnership may file and record a new statement of partnership authority that will give one or more partners authority to act on behalf of the partnership in transactions with third parties [Corp. Code § 16805(d)].If such a statement is filed and recorded, it will have the effect of immediately giving constructive notice of to third persons in transactions involving the partnership's real property, whether or not those transactions are appropriate to winding up the business [Corp. Code § 16805(d); see Corp. Code § 16303(e)].

[b] Pre-'97 Act

Although the pre-'97 Act requires that a notice of the dissolution be published at least once in a newspaper of general circulation in the place or places in which the partnership business was regularly carried on when a partnership is dissolved, there is no provision for limiting liability or giving constructive notice as there is under UPA'94. Nevertheless, an affidavit showing the publication of such notice must be filed with the county clerk within 30 days after the publication [former Corp. Code § 15035.5].

[4] Partners' Liability for Post-Dissolution Acts

[a] UPA'94

[i] Liability for Acts of Others

UPA'94 specifically provides that after dissolution, with the exceptions described below, each partner is liable to the other partners for that partner's share of any partnership liability that (1) was appropriate for the winding up of the business, or (2) would have bound the partnership had it been incurred before dissolution, as long as the other party had no notice of the dissolution [Corp. Code § 16806(a); see Corp. Code § 16804 and the discussion of post-dissolution acts that bind the partnership in [2], above]. The burden of proof to establish knowledge of the creditor is on the partner seeking to escape liability [see Marsh Wall Products, Inc. v. Henry Marcus Building Specialties, 162 Cal. App. 2d 371, 379, 328 P.2d 259 (1958) (decided under pre-'97 Act)].

[ii] Liability for Partner's Own Act

Partners who, with knowledge of the dissolution, bind the partnership after dissolution by acts that are not appropriate to the winding up of the business are liable to the partnership for any damage to the partnership that arises from the partnership liability they incurred [Corp. Code § 16806(b)].

[iii] Rules Do Not Apply to Registered Limited Liability Partnerships

The rules pertaining to a partner's liability to other partners or the partnership do not apply to partners of registered limited liability partnerships [Corp. Code § 16806].

[b] Pre-'97 Act

[i] Generally

The pre-'97 Act does not provide specific rules for a partner's liability for acts of other partners or his or her own acts after dissolution. However, it does provides that after dissolution a partner can bind the partnership and presumably the other partners by any act appropriate for winding up partnership affairs or completing transactions unfinished at the time of dissolution [former Corp. Code § 15035(1)(a)]. Therefore, for example, a partner winding up partnership affairs may bind the partnership on a promissory note, executed after dissolution, to obtain funds for paying off partnership debts [Stump v. Tipps (1953) 120 Cal. App. 2d 418, 422, 261 P.2d 315] . The partnership will not be bound, however, by the act of a partner who has no authority to wind up partnership affairs, unless the transaction is with a third person who extended credit to the partnership prior to dissolution and had no knowledge or notice of the partner's lack of authority, or who had no knowledge or notice of the acting partner's lack of authority when that lack of authority was not advertised in a newspaper of general circulation in the places at which the partnership business was regularly carried on [former Corp. Code § 15035(3)(c)].

The pre-'97 Act, however, does provide specific rules for the discharge of a partner's liability under former Corp. Code § 15036 [see [ii]-[iv], below].

[ii] Third Party Rights

Under the pre-'97 Act, dissolution does not of itself discharge the existing liability of any partner [former Corp. Code § 15036(1)]. Under case law, dissolution does not affect the rights of third parties who have had dealings with the partnership without the consent of those parties [Rassaert v. Mensch (1911) 17 Cal. App. 637, 641, 120 P. 1072] .

[iii] Discharge From Personal Liability

Under the pre-'97 Act, a partner may be discharged from any existing liability on dissolution of the partnership by an agreement to that effect between himself or herself, the partnership creditor, and the person or partnership continuing the business. Such agreement may be inferred from the course of dealing between a creditor having knowledge of the dissolution and the person or partnership continuing the business [former Corp. Code § 15036(2)].

A partner also may be discharged from personal liability on an existing partnership liability by the express or implied consent of the party to whom the partnership is liable [Redman v. Walters (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 448, 453, 152 Cal. Rptr. 42] .

[iv] Deceased Partner

The pre-'97 Act specifies that the individual property of a deceased partner is liable for those obligations of the partnership incurred while he or she was a partner, and for which he or she is liable under former Corp. Code § 15015 (joint and several liability), but subject to prior payments of his or her separate debts [former Corp. Code § 15036(4)].

§ 406.16 Winding Up Partnership Affairs

[1] Persons Authorized to Wind Up Business

After dissolution, any partner who has not dissociated may participate in winding up the partnership's business [Corp. Code § 16803(a)], subject to any limitation on that partner's authority in a statement of partnership authority filed and/or recorded after a statement of dissolution has been filed [Corp. Code § 16805(d); see Corp. Code § 16303(d),(e)]. UPA'94 does not require that all partners participate in the winding up. In a case decided under the pre-'97 Act, it was held that each partner has a duty to wind up and complete the dissolved partnership's unfinished business and, thus, each partner has an obligation to ensure that a disproportionate burden of completing the unfinished business does not fall on one partner or one group of partners, unless the partners agree otherwise [Jewel v. Boxer (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 171, 179, 203 Cal. Rptr. 13 ; Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman v. Cohen (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 200, 216, 194 Cal. Rptr. 180 (disapproved on other grounds in Applied Equipment Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Limited (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454)]. Given the specification in UPA'94 of partner's duties of loyalty and care, it is not clear that these decisions will apply to partnerships governed by UPA'94. Unless otherwise agreed, a partner is entitled to reasonable compensation for services rendered in winding up the business of the partnership [Corp. Code § 16401(h)].

The legal representative of the last surviving partner may also wind up the partnership's business [Corp. Code § 16803(b)]. On the application of any partner, or a partner's legal representative, or a transferee, a court, for good cause shown, may order judicial supervision of the winding up [Corp. Code § 16803(a)].

[2] Scope of Authority of Person Winding Up Business

[a] UPA'94

In general, the duty of a liquidating partner is to wind up the affairs of the partnership, pay its debts out of its assets, and divide the residue, if any, among those entitled to receive it. Specifically, under UPA'94, a person winding up a partnership's business may [Corp. Code § 16803(c)]:

- Preserve the partnership business or property as a going concern for a reasonable time.

- Prosecute and defend actions and proceedings, whether civil, criminal, or administrative [see Leh v. General Petroleum Corporation (1958 S.D. Cal) 165 F. Supp. 933, 938 (federal antitrust action is an act appropriate to winding up and can be brought by partner with authority to wind up, without joining other partner as a plaintiff)].

- Settle and close the partnership's business.

- Dispose of and transfer the partnership's property.

- Discharge the partnership's liabilities (borrowing funds to pay partnership debts and securing them with partnership properties may be appropriate for winding up, and if so the partnership will be bound by the acts of the partner who is winding up) [Stump v. Tipps (1953) 120 Cal. App. 2d 418, 422, 261 P.2d 315] .

- Distribute the assets of the partnership pursuant to Corp. Code § 16807 [see § 406.16[4]].

- Settle disputes by mediation or arbitration.

- Perform other necessary acts.

[b] Pre-'97 Act

[i] Generally

Unless otherwise agreed, the partners who have not wrongfully dissolved the partnership, or the legal representative of the last surviving partner not bankrupt, have the right to wind up the partnership affairs [former Corp. Code § 15037]. When a partner dies, the surviving partner has the right to continue in possession of the partnership and to settle the partnership affairs [see former Corp. Code §§ 15025(2)(d) (rights in specific property on death of partner), 15037 (right to wind up partnership affairs)]. When a partner becomes bankrupt, the nonbankrupt partner has the right to wind up [Security First Nat. Bank v. Whittaker (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 554, 557, 50 Cal. Rptr. 652] . If one partner sells his or her partnership interest to a third party, the right to disposition of the partnership assets vests in the remaining partners [Mervyn Investment Co. v. Biber (1921) 184 Cal. 637, 644, 194 P. 1037] . Any partner or his or her legal representative or assignee may, however, obtain winding up by the court on cause shown [former Corp. Code § 15037].

[ii] Duty of Liquidating Partner

The winding up, or liquidating, partner has the duty to wind up the partnership affairs, pay partnership debts with partnership assets, if sufficient, and divide the residue, if any, among those entitled to it [Glassell v. Prentiss (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 599, 605, 346 P.2d 895] . He or she has the authority to bind the partnership and former partners by any act that is appropriate to the winding up of partnership affairs [former Corp. Code § 15035(1)(a); see former Corp. Code § 15033(1)(a)]. He or she may also bring legal actions, including tort actions, on behalf of the dissolved partnership [see Berson v. Ewing (1890) 84 Cal. 89, 94, 23 P. 1112] .

A partner charged with the duty of liquidating the partnership business, if not a trustee, is at least a quasi trustee for former partners. He or she is required to act in such a manner as to conserve the interests of all the partners, and is obliged to exercise good faith. He or she must be diligent in the performance of his or her tasks, and must settle the partnership affairs within a reasonable time [Metzenbaum v. Metzenbaum (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 395, 398, 399, 252 P.2d 31] . The liquidating partner also has the duty to defend against claims adverse to the partnership [Metzenbaum

v. Metzenbaum (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 395, 399, 252 P.2d 31] .

The liquidating partner may bring an action against third parties to recover property fraudulently assigned to them by other partners. Such an action is personal to the liquidating partner, either in his or her individual capacity or as the liquidating partner of the partnership, and other partners need not be joined as parties [see Moropoulos v. C.H. & O.B. Fuller Co. (1921) 186 Cal. 679, 687-688, 200 P. 601 (sole remaining partner need not join former partner who wrongfully withdrew as plaintiff)].

Subject to any agreement between the partners, a surviving partner is entitled to reasonable compensation for his or her services in winding up partnership affairs [former Corp. Code § 15018(f)]. Furthermore, although he or she derives personal benefits from defending any adverse claims to partnership assets, the liquidating partner is entitled to reimbursement from former partners for costs, such as reasonable attorney's fees, incurred in any such defenses [see Metzenbaum v. Metzenbaum (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 395, 400, 252 P.2d 31] .

[3] Duty of Partners During Winding Up

Under both UPA'94 and the pre-'97 Act, a partner's duties of loyalty and care to the partnership and the other partners continue during winding up of the partnership [see Corp. Code § 16404; Laux v. Freed (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 512, 522, 2 Cal. Rptr. 265, 348 P.2d 873 ; Oliker v. Gershunoff (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1288, 1305, 241 Cal. Rptr. 415 ; Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman v. Cohen (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 200, 216, 194 Cal. Rptr. 180 (disapproved on other grounds in Applied Equipment Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Limited (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454); for discussion of a partner's duties of loyalty and care under UPA'94, see Ch. 401, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners and Partnership]. These cases and those discussed in the remainder of this subsection were decided under the pre-'97 Act. They may continue to apply to partnerships governed by UPA'94, but, in view of the specific definitions of the duties of loyalty and care of partners contained in UPA'94, [see Corp. Code § 16404], their authority may be diminished.

Under the pre-'97 Act, a liquidating partner was held to have the duty to act in the highest good faith in liquidating a partnership and accounting to the other partners [Mashon v. Haddock (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 151, 166, 11 Cal. Rptr. 865] . A partner who violated fiduciary duties to the other partners with respect to the winding up and completion of unfinished business was found to be liable to the other partners for this breach [Leff v. Gunter (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 508, 513-518, 189 Cal. Rptr. 377, 658 P.2d 740 ; Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman v. Cohen (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 200, 217, 194 Cal. Rptr. 180 (disapproved on other grounds in Applied Equipment Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Limited (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454)].

An attorney for the partnership was held to have a fiduciary obligation to all of the partners that continues until the winding up of partnership affairs is completed [Wortham & Van Liew v. Superior Court (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 927, 931-932, 233 Cal. Rptr. 725] . This decision was based not on partnership law but the ethical duties of an attorney and probably continues to be applicable. The attorney's fiduciary duty requires that the attorney disclose to all partners all matters concerning the partnership within the attorney's knowledge, including the formation of a new entity by one partner and transfer of partnership property to it [Wortham & Van Liew (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 927, 931-932, 233 Cal. Rptr. 725] .

[4] Order of Distribution of Partnership Assets and Settlement of Accounts

[a] UPA'94

The assets of the partnership, including contributions the partners must make to satisfy an excess of charges over credits to their respective accounts, must be applied to discharge the partnership obligations to creditors, including partner-creditors to the extent permitted by law. Any surplus must be applied to pay in cash the net amount distributable to partners [Corp. Code § 16807(a)].

It should be remembered that the rules just stated and those following in this section, except as to the rights of third party creditors, are subject to provisions of the partnership agreement of the partnership, [see Corp. Code § 16103 and Ch. 401, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners and Partnership], and, with respect to limited liability partnerships, to the rules regarding when partners are liable for partnership obligations [see Corp. Code § 16306(c)-(h)].

Each partner is entitled to a settlement of all partnership accounts on winding up, with the profits and losses that result from liquidation of partnership assets being credited and charged to the partners' accounts. The partnership must distribute an amount equal to any excess of the credits over the charges in each partner's account, but a partner must contribute to the partnership any excess of charges over credits in that partner's account [Corp. Code § 16807(b); see O'Flaherty v. Belgum (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 1044, 1047, 1056-1061, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 286 (arbitrator exceeded authority by declaring forfeiture of withdrawing partners' capital accounts; forfeiture was contrary to partnership law, partnership agreement, and decisional law)]. If such a contribution is not made, then the other partners (and the estate of a deceased partner) must contribute in the proportions in which they share partnership losses, the additional amount necessary to satisfy partnership obligations for which they are liable under Corp. Code § 16306. Under Corp. Code § 16306, with some exceptions, partners are liable jointly and severally for all obligations of their partnership unless otherwise agreed by the claimant or provided by law. A partner, or a partner's personal representative may recover from other partners any amount the partner contributed to the extent it exceeds that partner's share of the joint and several obligations of the partnership [Corp. Code § 16807(c), (e)].

After settlement of accounts, each partner (and the estate of a deceased partner) must contribute, proportionally to that partner's share of partnership losses, the amount necessary to satisfy joint and several partnership obligations unknown at the time accounts were settled [Corp. Code § 16807(d), (e)].

In all the instances discussed above, an assignee for the benefit of creditors of a partnership or a partner, or a court-appointed creditor representative of a partnership or a partner, may enforce a partner's obligation to contribute to the partnership [Corp. Code § 16807(f)].

[b] Pre-'97 Act

[i] Distribution Generally

The debts of a partnership must be first discharged from partnership property before any distribution may be made to the partners [Ohio Cas. Ins. Co. v. Harbor Ins. Co. (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 207, 216, 66 Cal. Rptr. 340] . In settling accounts between the partners, subject to any agreement to the contrary, the partnership liabilities rank in order of payment as follows [former Corp. Code § 15040(b)]:

- First, Those owing to partnership creditors other than partners;
- Second, those owing to partners other than for capital and profits;
- Third, those owing to partners in respect of capital; and
- Fourth, those owing to partners in respect of profits.

Partnership assets that may be applied to discharge liabilities include partnership property and, except as provided in former Corp. Code § 15015(b) (exception for partners in limited liability partnership), the partners' contributions necessary for payment of the liabilities [former Corp. Code § 15040(a); see former Corp. Code § 15018(a) (partner must contribute to payment of partnership liabilities according to partner's share of partnership profits)]. The partnership assets will be applied to satisfy partnership liabilities first by the partnership property and second by partners' contributions [former Corp. Code § 15040(c)]. If the assets of the partnership are insufficient, the partners are required to contribute toward the partnership's losses, whether of capital or otherwise, sustained by the partnership according to their respective shares in the profits [former Corp. Code §§ 15018(a), 15040(c), (d)]. If one or more (but less than all) of the partners are insolvent, or are not subject to process and refuse contribute their share of the liabilities, the remaining partners must contribute, in the relative proportion in which they share the profits, the additional amount necessary to pay those liabilities [former Corp. Code § 15040(d)].

When partnership property and individual property of the partners is in the court's possession for distribution, partnership creditors have priority on partnership property and separate creditors have priority on separate property, except for the rights of lien or secured creditors [former Corp. Code § 15040(h); see also former Corp. Code § 15036(4) (deceased partner)].

When a partner has become bankrupt or his or her estate is insolvent, the claims against his or her separate property rank in the following order [former Corp. Code § 15040(i)]:

- First, those owing to separate creditors;
- Second, those owing to partnership creditors; and
- Third, those owing to partners by way of contribution.

[ii] Partnership Assets

Leasehold interests, permits to do business, and goodwill are all partnership assets [Ruppe v. Utter (1925) 76 Cal. App. 19, 24-25, 243 P. 715] . Real property acquired by the partnership is a partnership asset, and will be treated in equity as personalty, whether the partnership was formed by a written or oral contract [Bates v. Babcock (1892) 95 Cal. 479, 487, 30 P. 605] . When partners contribute land to the partnership, that land becomes a partnership asset despite any agreement between the partners that each should retain his or her separate title. In such a case, the partners hold legal title to the property in trust for the partnership [Chapman v. Hughes (1894) 104 Cal. 302, 304-305, 37 P. 1048] . In an accounting action, the court will not inquire into the source of title of partnershipassets, whether realty or personalty [Bates v. Babcock (1892) 95 Cal. 479, 487, 30 P. 605] .

[iii] Distribution Among Partners

Subject to agreement between the partners, each partner must be repaid his or her contributions, whether by way of capital or advances to the partnership property. Each partner must also share equally in profits and surplus remaining after all liabilities, including those to partners, are satisfied, and, except as provided in former Corp. Code § 15015(b) (exception for partners in limited liability partnerships), each must contribute towards the losses, whether of capital or otherwise, sustained by the partnership according to his or her share in the profits [former Corp. Code § 15018(a); see former Corp. Code § 15015(b), (e), (g) (rules governing limitation of liability of partners in limited liability partnerships)]. Profits will be distributed equally even if one partner contributed more, or all, of the capital, and others merely contributed services, unless the partners have specifically agreed otherwise [Griggs v. Clark (1863) 23 Cal. 427, 429] . A division and distribution of profits into equal parts is erroneous, however, when made prior to returning capital to those partners who advanced it [Tiffany v. Short (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 531, 534] .

A partner who dissolves the partnership by abandonment of the business is entitled only to his or her share in the business at the date of dissolution, with interest from that date. He or she is not entitled to profits received by the business thereafter, when the profits were attributable to copartners' work rather than to the dissolving partner's interest [Moore v. Moore (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 129, 133-134, 11 Cal. Rptr. 659] .

[iv] Division of Partnership Property

The rules of partition are applicable to property division aspects of a partnership dissolution and accounting action [Logoluso v. Logoluso (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 523, 530, 43 Cal. Rptr. 678] . The general rule on dissolution is that after taking an accounting, the court should require partnership property to be sold and after costs, expenses, and debts are paid, should divide the balance [Swarthout v. Gentry (1943) 62 Cal. App. 2d 68, 83, 144 P.2d 38] . There is an exception to the rule, however, when there are no debts and division of the property in kind may be fairly and equitably made [Hooper v. Barranti (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 570, 578, 184 P.2d 688] . When there are partnership debts, the court has the authority to make distribution of partnership property in kind, conditioned on a finding that it is not necessary to hold a sale to satisfy the partnership obligations [Logoluso v. Logoluso (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 523, 530, 43 Cal. Rptr. 678] . Dividing the property in kind does not obviate the need for an accounting and complete winding up of partnership affairs, however, before partners may receive the partnership assets [Hooper v. Barranti (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 570, 579, 184 P.2d 688] .

[v] Interest

The general rule is that except when there has been a fraudulent retention or an improper application of partnership money, it is not the practice of the courts to charge a partner with interest on money in his or her hands after dissolution. In addition, under ordinary circumstances, a partner is not charged with interest on sums drawn out by him or her or advanced to him or her [Forsyth v. Butler (1907) 152 Cal. 396, 402-403, 93 P. 90 ; Mashon v. Haddock (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 151, 180, 11 Cal. Rptr. 865] .

When a partner's conduct warrants, however, the court has discretion to penalize that partner by charging interest from the date of dissolution [Speka v. Speka (1954) 124 Cal. App. 2d 181, 187, 268 P.2d 129] . For example, when the partner in charge of partnership books wrongfully makes an overdraft, interest may be charged [Luchs v. Ormsby (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 377, 388, 340 P.2d 702] . As another example, when accounting and distribution of partnership assets are delayed through the fault of the partner having possession, interest may be charged from the date when the balance should have been ascertained and paid [Chazan v. Most (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 519, 524, 25 Cal. Rptr. 864] . If there is no unnecessary delay, however, the delay incidental to winding up partnership affairs is not ascribed to one partner over another and interest ordinarily is not allowable [Speka v. Speka (1954) 124 Cal. App. 2d 181, 186, 268 P.2d 129] .

[vi] Costs

Disposition of costs in an action for partnership dissolution and accounting is within the discretion of the court [Speka v. Speka (1954) 124 Cal. App. 2d 181, 187, 268 P.2d 129] . The court may tax partners proportionately for an appraiser's fee, for example [Zeibak v Nasser (1938) 12 Cal. 2d 1, 19-20, 82 P.2d 375] . The court may also assess a receiver's costs against the party whose conduct made appointment of the receiver necessary [Luchs v. Ormsby (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 377, 389, 340 P.2d 702] .

[vii] Agreement Between Partners

Any accounting between the partners is governed by any pertinent agreement between the partners [see Mervyn Investment Co. v. Biber (1921) 184 Cal. 637, 644, 194 P. 1037] . The partners are permitted to accomplish an accounting and final settlement of the partnership without any formal judicial proceeding. When the partners have agreed on an accounting, the court is not permitted to undo that agreement [Pilch v. Milikin (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 212, 223, 19 Cal. Rptr. 334] . An agreement between the partners completely settling partnership accounts bars an action of accounting [Cayton v. Walker (1858) 10 Cal. 450, 456] . When there has been a partialsettlement between the partners, the accounting by the court is limited to the unsettled portion of the partnership business [Stretch v. Talmadge (1884) 65 Cal. 510, 511, 4 P. 513] .

An account stated between the partners may be oral [Fisher v. Fisher (1948) 83 Cal. App. 2d 357, 361, 188 P.2d 802] . An account stated may also be implied from the acts of the partners. For example, when one partner purchases the interest of another, the transaction presumptively includes a final settlement of all partnership indebtedness existing between them [Wilbur v. Wilbur (1925) 197 Cal. 1, 14, 239 P. 332 ; Barnes v. Moore (1947) 80 Cal. App. 2d 39, 43, 180 P.2d 740] .

An agreement between the partners to settle partnership affairs may be set aside for fraud or mistake [Altamirano v. Cheo (1925) 72 Cal. App. 222, 225, 236 P. 960] . However, inadequacy of consideration is not a proper ground for setting aside such an agreement [Frank v. Dominick (1953) 122 Cal. App. 2d 45, 49-50, 264 P.2d 161] . Partners also have a cause of action for fraud against copartners who induced the plaintiff partners to enter into a dissolution agreement by false representations as to how partnership assets would be divided [Zimmerman v. Straus (1954) 124 Cal. App. 2d 141, 143, 268 P.2d 186] .

[viii] Contribution

Except as provided in former Corp. Code § 15015(b) (exception for partners in limited liability partnerships), each partner must contribute the amount necessary to satisfy the partnership liabilities according to his or her share of partnership profits. If any, but not all, of the partners are insolvent, or, not being subject to process, refuse to contribute, the other partners must contribute their share of the liabilities and, in relative proportions in which they share profits, the additional amount necessary to pay the liabilities [former Corp. Code § 15040(d); see former Corp. Code § 15018(a)]. An assignee for the benefit of creditors or any person appointed by the court has the right to enforce those contributions [former Corp. Code § 15040(e)].

Any partner, or his or her legal representative, has the right to enforce the other partners' contributions to the extent of the amount that the partner has paid in excess of his or her share of the liability [former Corp. Code § 15040(f)]. After dissolution and full settlement of accounts, a partner may bring an action at law against his or her copartner for contribution [Pilch v. Milikin (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 212, 222, 19 Cal. Rptr. 334] . A partner also has a cause of action in assumpsit against his or her copartner for contribution, even if the plaintiff partner gave an individual note for the partnership debt and the copartner did not expressly promise to repay [Sears v. Starbird (1889) 78 Cal. 225, 231, 20 P. 547 ; Kazman v. Light (1921) 53 Cal. App. 732, 734, 200 P. 768] .

[5] Treatment of Unfinished Partnership Business

After dissolution, a partnership continues only for the purpose of winding up its business [Corp. Code § 16802(a)]. This is also the rule under the pre-'97 Act, and has been construed to mean that the partnership continues until its unfinished business is completed [Jewel v. Boxer (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 171, 174, 203 Cal. Rptr. 13] . To determine whether the business of a dissolved partnership is unfinished, a court must look to the circumstances existing on the date of dissolution, and not to events occurring thereafter [Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman v. Cohen (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 200, 217-218, 194 Cal. Rptr. 180 (disapproved on other grounds in Applied Equipment Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Limited (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454)]. For example, the unfinished business of a law partnership is any business covered by contracts of employment between the partnership and its clients for the performance of services by the partnership that existed at the time of dissolution, and is not affected by a client's discharge of the partnership following dissolution [Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman v. Cohen (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 200, 217, 194 Cal. Rptr. 180 (disapproved on other grounds in Applied Equipment Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Limited (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454); see also Rothman v. Dolin (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 755, 759, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 571 , defining the unfinished business of a law partnership or corporation as all matters in progress that have not been completed at the time the firm is dissolved, regardless of whether the matters were hourly rate cases or contingency fee cases].

In another case, a law partnership's unfinished business was held to include processing a lawsuit that did not actually begin until after the partnership's dissolution, but was the product of a settlement of an earlier case handled by the partnership. Since the partnership's fees were determined on the basis of its "net recovery" in the case, the later claim was held to be unfinished business of the partnership [Grossman v. Davis (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1833, 1837, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 355] .

A partner cannot cut off the rights of the other partners in the partnership's unfinished business by entering into a new contract to complete that business [Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman v. Cohen (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 200, 219, 194 Cal. Rptr. 180 (disapproved on other grounds in Applied Equipment Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Limited (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454)]. A partner may take for his or her own account new business, even when this business emanates from clients of the dissolved partnership, but a partner may not seize for his or her own account the business that was in existence during the term of the partnership [Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman v. Cohen (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 200, 220, 194 Cal. Rptr. 180 (disapproved on other grounds in Applied Equipment Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Limited (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454); see Comment, Winding Up Dissolved Law Partnerships: the No-Compensation Rule and Client Choice, 73 Calif. L. Rev. 1597 (1985); Note, When Partnerships Dissolve It's Not Easy to Figure Out Who Gets What and Which Clients, 5 Cal. Lawyer, No. 2, p. 15 (1985)].

Because a partnership continues after dissolution and before it is wound up, the partners who have not dissociated continue to be subject to the duties of loyalty and care [see Corp. Code § 16404; see also Ch. 401, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners and Partnership]. A dissociated partner's duties of loyalty are limited to those set forth in Corp. Code § 16404(b)(1), (2). These are the duties to account to the partnership and hold as trustee for it any property, profit or benefit derived by the partner in the conduct and winding up of the partnership business or derived from the use by the partner of partnership property or information, including the appropriation of a partnership opportunity and the duty to refrain from dealing with the partnership in the conduct or winding up of the partnership business as or on behalf of a party having an adverse interest to the partnership. The duty of care, which is limited to refraining from engaging in grossly negligent or reckless conduct, intentional misconduct, or a knowing violation of law [Corp. Code § 16404(c)] continues in each case with respect only to matters arising and events occurring before the partner's dissociation [Corp. Code § 16603(3))]. The duties of loyalty and care of partners apply to a person winding up the partnership business as the personal or legal representative of the last surviving partner as if the person were a partner [Corp. Code § 16404(g)].

[6] Allocation of Unfinished Business Receipts

Under the pre-'97 Act, no partner, except a surviving partner, is entitled to extra compensation for services given to complete unfinished business [former Corp. Code § 15018(f); Jewel v. Boxer (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 171, 174, 203 Cal. Rptr. 13] . From this, at least one court has reasoned, it follows that absent a contrary provision in a partnership agreement, any income generated through the completion of unfinished business is allocated according to the former partners' shares in the former partnership [Jewel v. Boxer (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 171, 174, 203 Cal. Rptr. 13] . Under UPA'94, however, a partner is entitled to reasonable compensation for services rendered in winding up the business of the partnership, absent an agreement to the contrary [Corp. Code § 16401(h)]. Whether or not a partner is entitled to compensation for winding up the business would seem irrelevant to the question of whether income from unfinished business of the partnership should be allocated according to the partnership agreement, except that such compensation would be payable out of partnership assets, including post-dissolution receipts, thereby diminishing pro tanto remaining amounts distributable to partners.

In the absence of a partnership agreement providing otherwise, attorney's fees received for cases in progress on the dissolution of a law partnership are to be shared by the former partners according to their right to fees in the dissolved partnership, regardless of which partner provides the legal services in the case after dissolution [Jewel v. Boxer (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 171, 174, 203 Cal. Rptr. 13] . The fact that the client substitutes one of the former partners as attorney of record in place of the dissolved partnership does not affect this result [Jewel v. Boxer (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 171, 174, 203 Cal. Rptr. 13] . Furthermore, the fact that one matter is to be compensated at an hourly rate and another on a contingency basis is of no consequence in determining whether a matter is unfinished business [Rothman v. Dolin, 20 Cal. App. 4th 755, 759, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 571 (1993)] .

In an action for an accounting brought by two former partners in a law partnership that was dissolved following their withdrawal, the withdrawing partners were held entitled to use the gross amount of the percentage fee income owed to the partnership as the basis for computing their share of attorney's fees on projects negotiated by the partnership prior to its dissolution, when the remaining partners failed to differentiate between pre- and post-dissolution percentage fee income [Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman v. Cohen (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1050-1052, 237 Cal. Rptr. 14] . A partner has no right, however, to share in the proceeds from future business from the dissolved partnership's former clients who elected to retain the services of a new partnership formed by former copartners [Fraser v. Bogucki (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 604, 611, 250 Cal. Rptr. 41] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. General Partnerships

35-406 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 406.17

§ 406.17 Continuing Partnership Business Under Pre-'97 Act

[1] Expiration of Fixed Term

When a partnership for a fixed term or particular undertaking is continued, without any express agreement, after the termination of that term or undertaking, the rights and duties of the partners remain the same as they were at termination, so far as is consistent with a partnership at will [former Corp. Code § 15023(1)]. If there is no settlement or liquidation of partnership affairs after termination of the term or undertaking, continuation of the partnership business is prima facie evidence of a continuation of the partnership [former Corp. Code § 15023(2)].

[2] After Dissolution

Any partners who have not wrongfully caused the dissolution may continue the business of a dissolved partnership, for the agreed term, in the same name, either by themselves, or jointly with others, provided that they pay outgoing partners (or secure payment by bond) the value of theirpartnership interests at dissolution, less any damages for breach of the partnership agreement, and indemnify the outgoing partners against all present or future partnership liabilities [former Corp. Code § 15038(b)(2)].

Creditors of the partnership remain creditors of any person or any new partnership continuing the original partnership's business [see former Corp. Code § 15041(1), (3), (6)]. The liability of any third person becoming a partner in the partnership continuing the business of a dissolved partnership will be satisfied only out of partnership property. The new partner's individual property will not be reached by creditors, absent some new consideration given by them, or some prejudice suffered by them and induced by representations that the new partner would be liable to them [see Wood v. Waterman (1929) 102 Cal. App. 516, 521, 283 P. 143] .

If all but one of the partners retire and assign their rights in partnership property to the remaining partner, who continues the business, any creditors of the dissolved partnership are also creditors of the partner continuing the business [former Corp. Code § 15041(2)].

On dissolution, a partner is discharged from any existing partnership liability by an agreement to that effect among himself or herself, the partnership creditor, and the person or partnership continuing the business. The agreement may be inferred from the course of dealing between the creditor having knowledge of the dissolution and the person or partnership continuing the business [former Corp. Code § 15036(2)]. When a person agrees to assume the existing obligations of a dissolved partnership, the partners whose obligations have been assumed will also be discharged from any liability to any creditor of the partnership who, knowing of the agreement, consents to a material alteration in the nature or time of payment of the obligations [former Corp. Code § 15036(3)]. A retiring partner will be liable, however, to a creditor of the continuing partnership when the partner does not give the creditor notice of his or her retirement [Williams v. Bowers (1860) 15 Cal. 321, 321-322] .

[3] Agreement Not to Compete

Any partner may agree, on or in anticipation of the partnership's dissolution or dissociation of the partner from the partnership, that he or she will not carry on a similar business within a specified geographic area where the partnership business has been transacted, as long as any other member of the partnership, or any person deriving title to the business or its goodwill, continues the partnership business [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16602]. Similarly, Bus. & Prof. Code § 16601 allows (1) any person who sells the goodwill of a business, (2) any owner of a business entity selling or otherwise disposing of all of his or her ownership in the business entity, or (3) any owner of a business entity that sells all or substantially all of its operating assets together with the goodwill of the business entity, all or substantially all of the operating assets of a division or a subsidiary of the business entity together with the goodwill of that division or subsidiary, or all of the ownership interest of any subsidiary, to agree with the buyer to refrain from carrying on a similar business within a specified geographic area in which the business is so sold as long as the buyer, or anyone deriving title to the goodwill or from the buyer, carries on a like purpose. For purposes of that section, "business entity" includes any partnership, including a limited partnership or limited liability partnership [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16601]. In the case of a business entity that is a partnership (including a limited partnership or limited liability partnership),"owner of a business entity" includes any partner, and "ownership interest" includes a partnership interest [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16601].

The statutory allowance for agreements not to compete is an exception to the general rule that a contract that restrains any person from engaging in a lawful profession, trade, or business is void to that extent [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 16600]. An agreement not to carry on a similar business, within the meaning of the statute, includes an agreement not to conduct, manage, or operate such a business, wholly or in part, or as the agent of another [Stephens v. Bean (1924) 65 Cal. App. 779, 785-786, 224 P. 1022] .

California has a settled policy in favor of open competition [see, e.g., Advanced Bionics Corporation v. Medtronic, Inc. (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 697, 706-708, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 172, 59 P.3d 231 (although California has strong interest in protecting its employees from noncompetition agreements under Bus. & Prof. Code § 16600, even if California court might find contractual provision void under that section, its policy interest does not necessarily justify issuance of temporary restraining order against parties pursuing action to enforce noncompetition agreement in another state's court)]. Nonetheless, it has long been the law that a partnership agreement may provide against competition by withdrawing partners in a limited geographical area. However, not every agreement between partners restraining competition is permitted. The common law "rule of reason" is applied to evaluate noncompetition agreements under Bus. & Prof. Code § 16602 [Howard v. Babcock (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 409, 416, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 80, 863 P.2d 150] . A restraint against competition is valid to the extent reasonably necessary for the protection of the covenantee [Swenson v. File (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 389, 396, 90 Cal. Rptr. 580, 475 P.2d 852] . An absolute ban on competition with a former partnership would be unreasonable [Howard v. Babcock (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 409, 425, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 80, 863 P.2d 150] .

Reasonable agreements not to compete are valid as to law partnerships as well as other types of partnerships [Howard v. Babcock (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 409, 418, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 80, 863 P.2d 150] . Rules of Professional Conduct, Rule 1-500, which prohibits agreements restricting the practice of law, does not prevent law partnerships from drafting reasonable noncompetition agreements under Bus. & Prof. Code § 16602 as any other partnership [Howard v. Babcock (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 409, 419-426, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 80, 863 P.2d 150] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. General Partnerships

35-406 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 406.18

§ 406.18 Deceased or Retired Partner Under Pre-'97 Act

[1] Dissolving Partnership

Under the pre-'97 Act, the death of a partner dissolved the partnership unless otherwise provided in a written agreement signed by all the partners before the death or in a court order made pursuant to Prob. Code § 9762 [former Corp. Code § 15031(4); see Zeibak v. Nasser (1938) 12 Cal. 2d 1, 17, 82 P.2d 375] . Similarly, the withdrawal or retirement of a partner dissolved a partnership unless otherwise provided in an agreement in writing signed by all of the partners, including the retiring partner, before the retirement [former Corp. Code § 15031(7)].

[2] Rights in Continuing Partnership Business

On dissolution, a retired partner or the legal representative of a deceased partner has the right to an accounting of that partner's interest as against the winding up partners or surviving partners or against the person or partnership continuing the business [former Corp. Code § 15043]. When any partner retires or dies, and the partnership business is continued without any settlement of accounts, unless otherwise agreed he or she, or his or her legal representative, may have the value of that partner's interest ascertained as of the date of dissolution. He or she, or his or her legal representative, will receive as an ordinary creditor an amount equal to the value of his or her interest, with interest. In the alternative, at his or her option or the option of his or her legal representative, in lieu of interest, he or she or his or her legal representative will receive the partnership profits attributable to the use of his or her right in the property of the dissolved partnership [former Corp. Code § 15042]. The retiring partner or deceased partner's representative is entitled to have an accounting made before being compelled to choose between profits and interest [see Casida v. Roberts (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 853, 857, 337 P.2d 829 (retiring partner)]. The creditors of the dissolved partnership, however, have priority over the partner's separate creditors, the retired partner, or the representative of the deceased partner on any such claim [former Corp. Code §§ 15041(8), 15042].

[3] Right of Survivor to Partnership Business

A court may authorize the personal representative of the deceased partner to continue as a partner in the partnership. The court order may specify any terms and conditions of participation deemed to be in the best interests of the interested persons, but any terms and conditions inconsistent with a written partnership agreement are subject to the written consent of all of the surviving partners [Prob. Code § 9762(a)]. Notice of the hearing on the petition for a court order authorizing the decedent's personal representative to continue in the partnership must be given as provided in Prob. Code § 1220. Additionally, this notice must also be given by mail to each of the surviving general partners [Prob. Code § 9762(d)]. Absent court authorization, however, the surviving partner has the right to continue in possession of the partnership, and to settle its business, and the administrator or executor of a deceased partner has no power to handle partnership property or its affairs [former Corp. Code §§ 15025(2)(d) (rights in specific property on death of partner), 15037 (right to wind up partnership affairs); see Minifie v. Rowley (1921) 187 Cal. 481, 483-484, 202 P. 673] . In the event that the surviving partner fails to exercise his or her right to continue in possession of the partnership, the deceased partner's representative is required to take possession of the deceased partner's interest [Normart v. Safer (1924) 67 Cal. App. 507, 515, 227 P. 943] .

Because the surviving partner has authority to wind up partnership affairs, he or she has no action for an accounting against the administrator or executor of a deceased partner [Wrightson v. Dougherty (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 257, 264, 54 P.2d 13 ; McKay v. Joy (1886) 70 Cal. 581, 582, 11 P. 832] . The surviving partner may, however, bring an action against the deceased partner's legal representative for claim and delivery of partnership property [Wrightson v. Dougherty (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 257, 261-262, 54 P.2d 13] .

[4] Right to Specific Partnership Property

On the death of a partner, his or her right in specific partnership property vests in the surviving partner or partners. If the deceased was the last surviving partner, however, his or her right in specific partnership property vests in his or her legal representative. The surviving partner or partners or legal representative has no right to possess that property for anything but partnership business [former Corp. Code § 15025(2)(d)].

[5] Duty of Survivor to Account

The personal representative of the deceased partner may apply to the court for an order that the surviving partner render an account. Such an order may be enforced by the court's power to punish for contempt [former Corp. Code § 15043; see Prob. Code § 9761]. The personal representative may also bring any action against the surviving partner that the deceased partner could have commenced and maintained [Prob. Code § 9763(a); see Prob. Code § 58 (definition of personal representative)].

The surviving partner may be authorized to continue the partnership business by assignment from, or consent of, the deceased partner's representative [Jay v. Clark (1948) 85 Cal. App. 2d 88, 93, 192 P.2d 462] . Indefinite continuation of the partnership business without the consent of the deceased's representative, however, is contrary to the surviving partner's duty to wind up, and the fact that representatives of the deceased did not object is irrelevant [King v. Stoddard (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 708, 712-713, 104 Cal. Rptr. 903] . If the business is continued, the survivingpartner continues as a trustee, subject to the obligations of a voluntary trustee [Sibert v. Shaver (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 833, 840, 245 P.2d 514] . When the surviving partner uses partnership assets without winding up the business, he or she is required to account for the profits earned subsequent to the death of his or her copartner [Sibert v. Shaver (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 833, 842, 245 P.2d 514 ; see [2], above].

Expenditure of time, labor, and skill in the administration of partnership assets incident to successful termination of unfinished business entitles the surviving partner to remuneration [former Corp. Code § 15018(f); Jacobson v. Wikholm (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 24, 29, 172 P.2d 878] . The surviving partner has the burden of proof to establish his or her compensation claim for such services [Jacobson v. Wikholm (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 24, 32, 172 P.2d 878] .

[6] Actions Against Surviving Partner

In actions on claims for or against the partnership, the surviving partner is permitted to sue or be sued alone, and executors, administrators, or heirs of deceased partners are not indispensable or necessary parties [Pearson v. Norton (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 1, 18, 40 Cal Rptr 634 ; see Minifie v. Rowley (1921) 187 Cal. 481, 484, 202 P. 673] . If there are no surviving partners, the legal representative of the last surviving party is entitled to bring any actions on behalf of the partnership, and the representatives of earlier deceased partners are unnecessary parties [see Minifie v. Rowley (1921) 187 Cal. 481, 484-485, 202 P. 673] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. General Partnerships

35-406 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 406.19

§ 406.19 Accounting Action Under Pre-'97 Act

[1] When Available

Any partner has the right to a formal account as to partnership affairs whenever circumstances render it just and reasonable [former Corp. Code § 15022(d)]. Absent an agreement to the contrary, the right to an account of a partner's interest accrues, at the date of dissolution, to the partner, or his or her legal representative, as against the winding up partners, surviving partners, or partners continuing the business [former Corp. Code § 15043]. An accounting is a necessary incident to dissolution, following as a matter of course [Cottle v. Leitch (1868) 35 Cal. 434, 440-441] . In a single action, a court will often grant a dissolution, an accounting, and a decree for payment of any balance due between the partners [see Rudnick v. Delfino (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 260, 264, 294 P.2d 983] . An accounting action may be maintained separately, however, such as when the dissolution occurred earlier by mutual consent of the partners [Lytle v. Kroenke (1945) 67 Cal. App. 2d 596, 602, 154 P.2d 919] . An action for accounting may be barred by laches when the partnership was dissolved many years earlier [Harris v. Hillegass (1884) 66 Cal. 79, 80, 4 P. 987 ; Loupias v. Rosen (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 781, 783-784, 228 P.2d 611] .

A cause of action for an accounting may be combined with an action at law for damages under appropriate circumstances [Prince v. Harting (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 720, 736-737, 2 Cal. Rptr. 545] . A cause of action in equity against partners to recover partnership property is properly joined with a cause of action at law against the administrator of the estate of a deceased partner to recover partnership property when the single purpose of the action is to subject all partnership property to an accounting [Fong Sing v. O'Dell (1920) 50 Cal. App. 55, 60-62, 194 P. 745] .

[2] Ancillary Remedies

[a] Receiver

In an action for a partnership accounting, the court may appoint a receiver to preserve partnership property pending litigation, so that the relief awarded by the court will be effective [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1); Steinberg v. Goldstein (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 682, 686, 278 P.2d 22 ; see Paola v. Huston (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 206, 212, 309 P.2d 529] . A partner's mere request for a receiver is insufficient; the court must be satisfied that partnership property is in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured [McCaslin v. Kenney (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 87, 95, 223 P.2d 94 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]. The receiver has power, under the control of the court, to bring and defend actions in his or her own name as receiver, to take and keep possession of the partnership property, to receive rents, collect debts, to compound for and compromise the rents and debts, to make transfers, and generally to do any acts respecting the property that the court may authorize [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]. The court may also direct the receiver to sell partnership assets if necessary to preserve other assets for distribution [Steinberg v. Goldstein (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 692, 700, 303 P.2d 80] . The court has the power and jurisdiction to determine the extent of the property embraced by the receivership and to determine whether particular property is or is not involved in the action [Steinberg v. Goldstein (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 682, 686, 278 P.2d 22] .

For further discussion of receivers generally, see Ch. 486, Receivers .

[b] Referee

The court may appoint a referee in an action for partnership dissolution and accounting to make an accounting and report back to the court [Chapman v. Gipson (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 585, 588, 229 P.2d 834] . When the parties do not consent, the court may appoint a referee pursuant to the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 640(b) regarding selection of referees upon the written motion of any party, or on its own motion whenever the taking of an account is necessary for the information of the court before judgment or for carrying a judgment or order into effect [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(2)]. When a partner asks for an accounting and the court appointsa referee, the partner is not entitled to insist on any specific method of accounting by the referee [Berker v. Barnes (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 294, 301, 293 P.2d 821] .

For further discussion, a procedural guide, and forms relating to referees generally, see Ch. 38, Reference .

[c] Preliminary Injunction

In an action for partnership dissolution and an accounting, a temporary injunction is a proper ancillary remedy to preserve the status quo pending the outcome of the case on its merits [Kendall v. Foulks (1919) 180 Cal. 171, 173, 179 P. 886] . The preliminary injunction will be granted in the proper circumstances to assure that partnership assets remain intact pending the accounting [Wind v. Herbert (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 276, 285-286, 8 Cal. Rptr. 817] .

For discussion and forms relating to preliminary injunctions generally, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[3] Parties

In an action for dissolution and an accounting, all partners are necessary and indispensable parties [Rudnick v. Delfino (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 260, 264-265, 294 P.2d 983] . The grantee of a partner's interest in partnership property is also a necessary party in an accounting action [Secondo v. Superior Court (1930) 105 Cal. App. 179, 181, 286 P. 1089] .

In addition to any partner, the purchaser or assignee of a partner's interest ordinarily is entitled to a partnership accounting [former Corp. Code § 15027(2); see Chatten v. Martell (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 545, 551, 333 P.2d 364] . The creditor of an individual partner, however, is not permitted to intervene in a partnership accounting action [Isaacs v. Jones (1898) 121 Cal. 257, 262-263, 53 P. 793] .

The heirs of a deceased partner are improper parties for bringing an accounting action [Robertson v. Burrell (1895) 110 Cal. 568, 574, 42 P. 1086] . Rather, the deceased partner's legal representative may bring an action to compel an accounting from the surviving partner [Prob. Code § 9761; see § 406.18[5]]. The surviving partner, on the other hand, has no cause of action for an accounting against the deceased partner's legal representative, since ordinarily the representative has no right to possession of the partnership property [see McKay v. Joy (1886) 70 Cal. 581, 582, 11 P. 832 ; see Prob. Code § 9761].

For discussion and forms relating to joinder of parties and intervention, see Ch. 395, Parties .

[4] Statute of Limitations

An action for a partnership accounting is based not on contract, but on the relationship of the parties and their fiduciary duties. The period of limitations is therefore four years, under Code Civ. Proc. § 343 [Manok v. Fishman (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 208, 213, 107 Cal. Rptr. 266] . The cause of action accrues as of the time of dissolution, regardless of whether or not the amount of the partners' interests can be ascertained at that time [see former Corp. Code § 15043; Estate of Peebles (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 163, 169, 103 Cal. Rptr. 560] .

[5] Venue

Venue for a partnership accounting action is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 395, which provides that trial must be held in the county of the defendants' residence [Rudnick v. Delfino (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 260, 265-266, 294 P.2d 983] . The plaintiff is not permitted to deprive a defendant of this right by also seeking an order compelling the defendant to convey real property located in a different county [Hays v. Cowles (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 514, 518, 141 P.2d 26 ; see Coe v. Kessler (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 536, 541, 294 P.2d 83] . A defendant partner is not permitted, however, to have venue changed to his or her county of residence when any other defendant partner resides in the county in which the suit was brought [Rudnick v. Delfino (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 260, 265-266, 294 P.2d 983] .

[6] Judgment

Equity will adjust all the differences between partners, and the accounting and decree must leave nothing open for future litigation or controversy [Griggs v. Clark (1863) 23 Cal. 427, 429 ; Rassaert v. Mensch (1911) 17 Cal. App. 637-642, 120 P. 1072] . The account and judgment must include a settlement of all debts owing to partnership creditors [Rassaert v. Mensch (1911) 17 Cal. App. 637-638, 641-642, 120 P. 1072] . As to settling accounts between the partners, in the absence of a reference by the court a mere statement of the balance due in the court's findings is an improper disposition of the action, although any procedure of record from which it can be intelligently ascertained what the issues were as to controverted items and how those issues were disposed of is sufficient [Whann v. Doell (1923) 192 Cal. 680, 684, 221 P. 899 ; Davis v. California Motors (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 241, 246, 166 P.2d 52] . The findings are required to set forth partnership assets, their value, and the capital balances of partners, although there is no requirement that assets be particularly described [ABC Egg Ranch v. Abdelnour (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 12, 16, 35 Cal. Rptr. 487] .

The judgment is final when no further judicial action is necessary to a final determination of the parties' asserted rights and when any unresolved issues relate solely to an ascertainment of the amount of money to be paid from the net proceeds of a sale to third parties, partnership creditors, and the receiver's and referee's expenses, with the remainder divided between the partners as the judgment specifies [Zappettini v. Buckles (1914) 167 Cal. 27, 33-34, 138 P. 696 ; but see Gunder v. Gunder (1929) 208 Cal. 559, 561, 282 P. 794 ; Kinoshita v. Horio (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 959, 964-968, 231 Cal. Rptr. 241 (questioning Zappettini and holding interlocutory judgment that orders accounting but does not fix interests of partners or specify how expenses of winding up are to be allocated is not final for purposes of appeal)].

As a general rule, no personal judgment may be rendered against any partner until all the partnership assets have been converted into money, all partnership debts paid, and the final balance ascertained [Hooper v. Barranti (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 570, 578, 184 P.2d 688 ; Olmo v. Olmo (1943) 56 Cal. App. 2d 590, 594, 133 P.2d 866] .

§ 406.30 Governing Law

On and after January 1, 2010, the Uniform Limited Partnership Act of 2008 (ULPA '08) governs the dissolution of any limited partnership, regardless of the date on which the partnership was formed [Corp. Code § 15912.06(b) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15908.01 et seq. (ULPA '08) (dissolution provisions)]. However, the ULPA '08 does not affect an action commenced, proceeding brought, or right accrued before January 1, 2008 [Corp. Code § 15912.07]. Thus, because litigation involving California limited partnerships formed before 2008 may be governed by the ULPA or the CRLPA, this publication continues to provide forms for use in litigation under those laws as well as under the ULPA '08. All references to Corp. Code § 15501 et seq. (ULPA) and to Corp. Code § 15611 et seq. (CRLPA) in this chapter are to provisions repealed as of 2010.

Through the end of 2009, the dissolution of a limited partnership was governed by the ULPA '08 or by one of its predecessor laws, the California Revised Limited Partnership Act (CRLPA) [Corp. Code § 15611 et seq. (CRLPA); see Corp. Code § 15681 et seq. (CRLPA) (dissolution provisions)] and the Uniform Limited Partnership Act (ULPA) [Corp. Code § 15501 et seq.; see Corp. Code §§ 15510, 15516, 15520, 15520.5, 15523 (ULPA) (dissolution provisions)], as follows:

- If the limited partnership was formed on or after January 1, 2008, its dissolution is governed by the ULPA '08 [see Corp. Code § 15912.06(a)(1) (ULPA '08)].

- If the limited partnership was formed on or after July 1, 1984, and before January 1, 2008, its dissolution was governed by the CRLPA [see Corp. Code §§ 15711, 15714 (CRLPA); Corp. Code § 15912.06(a)(1) (CRLPA)] unless the partnership elected to be governed by the ULPA '08 [see Corp. Code § 15912.06(a)(2) (ULPA '08)].

- If the limited partnership was formed before July 1, 1984, its dissolution was governed by the ULPA [see Corp. Code §§ 15711, 15714 (CRLPA)] unless the partnership elected to be governed by the CRLPA or the ULPA '08 [see Corp. Code §§ 15712(b)(1) (CRLPA), 15912.06(a)(2) (ULPA '08)]. Limited partnerships existing on July 1, 1984, were required to file new certificates of limited > partnership in conformity with Corp. Code § 15621(a) (CRLPA). After filing, their certificates of dissolution, continuation, and cancellation, amendments to certificates, and formalities for executing or filing certificates were governed by Corp. Code §§ 15621, 15628 (CRLPA). Once a certificate was filed pursuant to Corp. Code §§ 15621-15628 (CRLPA), the limited partnership was not required to make any further filings or record any documents pursuant to the ULPA, and no one could rely on the accuracy or completeness of any information filed or recorded pursuant to the ULPA subsequent to the filing by the partnership of the certificate pursuant to Corp. Code § 15621(a) [Corp. Code § 15712(b)(2) (CRLPA)].

The ULPA '08 is a stand-alone law that does not rely on general partnership law or any other source for the rules governing limited partnerships. Thus, for the dissolution of a limited partnership governed by the ULPA '08, other laws generally need not be consulted for relevant rules. However, if the dissolution is governed by the ULPA or the CRLPA, matters not provided for by those statutes are governed by the general partnership laws, Corp. Code §§ 16801-16807 (UPA '94) or former Corp. Code §§ 15029-15043 (pre-'97 Act) [see Corp. Code § 15722 (CRLPA)]. For discussion and forms relating to dissolution of general partnerships, see §§ 406.10 -406.19, 406.60 -406.69, respectively.

[1] ULPA '08

Unless a partner has applied to a court to dissolve the limited partnership [see Corp. Code § 15908.02 (ULPA '08); see also § 406.32[1]], a limited partnership is dissolved, and its activities must be wound up, only on the occurrence of one of the following [Corp. Code § 15908.01 (ULPA '08)]:

- The happening of an event specified in the partnership agreement.

- The consent of all general partners and of limited partners owning a majority of the rights to receive distributions as limited partners at the time the consent is to be effective.

- After the dissociation of a person as a general partner:

  - If the limited partnership has at least one remaining general partner, and a consent to dissolve the limited partnership is given within 90 days after the dissociation by partners owning a majority of the rights to receive distributions as partners at the time the consent is to be effective; or

  - If the limited partnership does not have a remaining general partner, the passage of 90 days after the dissociation, unless before the end of the period (a) consent to continue the activities of the limited partnership and admit at least one general partner is given by limited partners owning a majority of the rights to receive distributions as limited partners at the time the consent is to be effective; and (b) at least one person is admitted as a general partner in accordance with the consent.

- The passage of 90 days after the dissociation of the limited partnership's last limited partner, unless before the end of the period the limited partnership admits at least one limited partner.

[2] CRLPA

Under the CRLPA, a limited partnership is dissolved and its affairs must be wound up on the happening of the first to occur of the following [Corp. Code § 15681 (CRLPA)]:

- At the time or on the happening of events specified in the partnership agreement;

- Except as otherwise provided in the partnership agreement, by written consent of all general partners and a majority in interest of the limited partners;

- When a general partner ceases to be a general partner under Corp. Code § 15642 (CRLPA), unless (a) at the time there is at least one general partner and the partnership agreement permits the business of the partnership to be continued by the remaining general partner or partners, if any, and the partner or partners do so, or (b) at the time there is no remaining general partner and a majority in interest of the limited partners or the greater interest provided in the partnership agreement agree in writing to continue the business of the limited partnership and, within six months after the last remaining general partner has ceased to be a general partner, to admit one or more general partners; or

- The entry of a decree of judicial dissolution.

Absent an agreement to the contrary, limited partners have the right to vote on whether or not to dissolve the limited partnership and wind up its affairs [Corp. Code § 15636(f)(1)(A) (CRLPA); see Corp. Code § 15632(b)(5) (CRLPA)]. Unless an agreement provides otherwise, the general partners may not dissolve the partnership and wind up its affairs unless they have an affirmative vote of a majority in interest of the limited partners [see Corp. Code § 15636(f)(3) (CRLPA)].

[3] ULPA

[a] Generally

Under ULPA, the retirement, death, insanity, removal, or failure of reelection of a general partner dissolves the partnership, unless the business is continued by the remaining general partners and/or the replacement general partner or partners under a right to do so as stated in the certificate or with the consent of all members [Corp. Code § 15520 (ULPA)]. Alternatively, if a partnership governed by ULPA is formed on or after November 1, 1973, or if the partnership is formed prior to that date and amends its certificate to elect to be governed by this provision, the retirement, death, or insanity of a general partner, but not the failure of the general partner's reelection, dissolves the partnership, unless the business is continued by the remaining general partners under a right to do so stated in the certificate or with the consent of all members [see Corp. Code § 15520.5 (ULPA)].

[b] Limited Partners

A limited partner of a partnership that was in existence on July 1, 1984, and did not elect to be governed by the CRLPA has the same rights as a general partner to have dissolution and winding up by a court decree and have on demand a formal account of partnership affairs whenever circumstances render it just and reasonable [Corp. Code § 15510(1)(b), (c) (ULPA)]. In addition, a limited partner may have the partnership dissolved and its affairs wound up when the limited partner rightfully but unsuccessfully demands the return of his, her, or its contribution, or when the other liabilities of the partnership have not been paid or the partnership property is insufficient for their payment and the limited partner would otherwise be entitled to the return of his, her, or its contribution [Corp. Code § 15516(4) (ULPA)].

§ 406.32 Dissolution by Decree

[1] ULPA '08

[a] Application for Judicial Dissolution

On application by a partner, a court of competent jurisdiction may order dissolution of a limited partnership if it is not reasonably practicable to carry on the activities of the limited partnership in conformity with the partnership agreement [Corp. Code § 15908.02(a) (ULPA '08)].

[b] Avoidance of Dissolution by Purchase of Interests

In any suit by a partner or partners for judicial dissolution, the other partners may avoid the dissolution of the limited partnership by purchasing for cash the partnership interests owned by the partners initiating the proceeding (the moving parties) at their fair market value. In fixing the value, the amount of any damages resulting if the initiation of the dissolution is a breach by any moving party or parties of an agreement with the purchasing party or parties, including, without limitation, the partnership agreement, may be deducted from the amount payable to the moving party or parties [Corp. Code § 15908.02(b) (ULPA '08)].

If the purchasing parties (1) elect to purchase the partnership interests owned by the moving parties, (2) are unable to agree with the moving parties upon the fair market value of the partnership interests, and (3) give bond with sufficient security to pay the estimated reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, of the moving parties if the expenses are recoverable under paragraph (3), the court, on application by the purchasing parties, either in the pending action or in a proceeding initiated in the superior court of the proper county by the purchasing parties, must stay the winding up and dissolution proceeding and must proceed to ascertain and fix the fair market value of the partnership interests owned by the moving parties [Corp. Code § 15908.02(c) (ULPA '08)].

The court must appoint three disinterested appraisers to appraise the fair market value of the partnership interests owned by the moving parties. The court's order referring the matter to the appraisers must prescribe the time and manner of producing evidence, if evidence is required [Corp. Code § 15908.02(d) (ULPA '08)]. The valuation must be made as of the date on which the action for judicial dissolution was commenced, unless the court on motion and hearing, and for good cause shown, designates some other date as the valuation date [Corp. Code § 15908.02(f) (ULPA '08)].

The award of the appraisers, or a majority of them, when confirmed by the court, will be final and conclusive on all parties. The court must enter a decree providing in the alternative for winding up and dissolution of the limited partnership unless payment is made for the partnership interests within the time specified by the decree. If the purchasing parties do not make payment for the partnership interests within the time specified, judgment will be entered against them and the surety or sureties on the bond for the amount of the expenses, including attorney's fees, of the moving parties. Any member aggrieved by the action of the court may appeal [Corp. Code § 15908.02(d) (ULPA '08)].

If the purchasing parties pay the moving parties the value of their partnership interests as decreed by the court, the moving parties must transfer their partnership interests to the purchasing parties [Corp. Code § 15908.02(e) (ULPA '08)].

[2] CRLPA

Pursuant to an action filed by a partner, a court of competent jurisdiction may decree the dissolution of a limited partnership whenever any of the following occurs [Corp. Code § 15682 (CRLPA)]:

- It is not reasonably practicable to carry on the business in conformity with the partnership agreement;

- The general partners have been guilty of or have knowingly countenanced persistent and pervasive fraud or abuse of authority or persistent unfairness toward any partner or the property of the limited partnership is being misapplied or wasted by the general partners; or

- Dissolution is reasonably necessary for the protection of the rights or interests of the complaining partners.

[1] ULPA '08

A limited partnership continues after dissolution only for the purpose of winding up its activities [Corp. Code § 15908.03(a) (ULPA '08)]. In winding up its activities, the limited partnership may amend its certificate of limited partnership to state that the limited partnership is dissolved, preserve the limited partnership business or property as a going concern for a reasonable time, prosecute and defend actions and proceedings, whether civil, criminal, or administrative, transfer the limited partnership's property, settle disputes by mediation or arbitration, file a certificate of cancellation [see Corp. Code § 15902.03 (ULPA '08)], and perform other necessary acts [Corp. Code § 15908.03(b)(1) (ULPA '08)]. The limited partnership must discharge its liabilities, settle and close its activities, and marshal and distribute its assets [Corp. Code § 15908.03(b)(2) (ULPA '08)].

If a dissolved limited partnership does not have a general partner, a person to wind up the dissolved limited partnership's activities may be appointed by the consent of limited partners owning a majority of the rights to receive distributions as limited partners at the time the consent is to be effective [Corp. Code § 15908.03(c) (ULPA '08)]. The person appointed has the powers of a general partner in winding up the partnership's activities [Corp. Code § 15908.03(c)(1) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15908.04 (ULPA '08)]. The person appointed must promptly amend the certificate of limited partnership to state (1) that the limited partnership does not have a general partner, (2) the name of the person that has been appointed to wind up the limited partnership; and (3) the address of the person [Corp. Code §§ 15902.02(b)(3), 15908.03(c)(2) (ULPA '08)].

On the application of any partner, the appropriate court may order judicial supervision of the winding up, including the appointment of a person to wind up the dissolved limited partnership's activities, if (1) a limited partnership does not have a general partner and within a reasonable time following the dissolution no person has been appointed by consent of the limited partners, or (2) the applicant establishes other good cause [Corp. Code § 15908.03(d) (ULPA '08)].

Unless otherwise provided in the partnership agreement, limited partners winding up the affairs of the partnership pursuant to the foregoing procedures are entitled to reasonable compensation [Corp. Code § 15908.03(e) (ULPA '08)].

[2] CRLPA and ULPA

Under both CRLPA and ULPA, the affairs of a limited partnership are automatically wound up at the time of dissolution [see Corp. Code §§ 15681, 15683 (CRLPA); see also Corp. Code §§ 15510(1)(c), 15516(4) (ULPA)]. CRLPA also provides for a separate decree ordering the winding up of a limited partnership. Under CRLPA, on the petition of limited partners representing 5 percent or more of the interests of the limited partners, or on the petition of three or more creditors, a court may enter a decree ordering winding up if it appears necessary for the protection of any parties in interest. The court's decree must designate the partners who are to wind up [Corp. Code § 15683(b) (CRLPA)]. Unless otherwise provided in the partnership agreement, the limited partners winding up the affairs of the partnership pursuant to such decree are entitled to reasonable compensation [Corp. Code § 15683(c) (CRLPA)].

Under CRLPA, except as provided in the partnership agreement, and subject to any court decree regarding winding up, the general partners who have not wrongfully dissolved the partnership, or if none, the limited partners, have the right to wind up partnership affairs [Corp. Code § 15683(a) (CRLPA)].

§ 406.34 Disposition of Claims Against Dissolved Partnership

[1] Notice to Known Claimants

Under the ULPA '08, a dissolved limited partnership generally may dispose of known claims against it by using the following procedure [Corp. Code § 15908.06(a) (ULPA '08)]. First, the partnership may notify any of its known claimants of the dissolution in a written or electronic notice that includes all or the following [Corp. Code § 15908.06(b) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15901.02(ac) (ULPA '08)]:

- A specification of the information that must be included in a claim.
- The mailing address to which the claim is to be sent.
- The deadline for receipt of the claim, which may not be less than 120 days after the date the notice is received by the claimant.
- A statement that the claim will be barred if not received by the deadline.

After the foregoing notice is provided, a claim against the dissolved limited partnership will be barred if either of the following occurs [Corp. Code § 15908.06(c) (ULPA '08)]:

- The claim is not received by the specified deadline.
- In the case of a claim that is timely received but rejected in writing by the dissolved limited partnership, the claimant does not commence an action to enforce the claim against the limited partnership within 90 days after the receipt of a written notice of the rejection.

A claim against a dissolved limited partnership that is barred pursuant to the foregoing procedure may not be enforced against a general partner [Corp. Code § 15908.08 (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15904.04 (ULPA '08) (liability of general partners)].

The foregoing procedure does not apply to (1) any claim that is based on events occurring after the effective date of dissolution, or (2) any liability that is contingent on effective date of dissolution [Corp. Code § 15908.06(d) (ULPA '08)].

[2] Published Notice

Under the ULPA '08, a dissolved limited partnership may publish notice of its dissolution and request persons having claims against the limited partnership to present them in accordance with the notice [Corp. Code § 15908.07(a) (ULPA '08)]. The notice must meet be published at least once in a newspaper of general circulation in the county in which the dissolved limited partnership's principal office is located or, if it has none in California, in the county in which the limited partnership's designated office is or was last located [Corp. Code § 15908.07(b)(1) (ULPA '08)].

The published notice must describe the information required to be contained in a claim and provide a mailing address to which the claim is to be sent [Corp. Code § 15908.07(b)(2) (ULPA '08)]. The notice must also state that a claim against the limited partnership will be barred unless an action to enforce the claim is commenced within four years after publication of the notice [Corp. Code § 15908.07(b)(3) (ULPA '08)].

If a dissolved limited partnership publishes a notice in accordance with the foregoing requirements, the claim of each of the following claimants is barred unless the claimant commences an action to enforce the claim against the dissolved limited partnership within four years after the publication date of the notice [Corp. Code § 15908.07(c) (ULPA '08)]:

- A claimant that did not receive the direct written or electronic notice described in [1], above [see Corp. Code § 15908.06(b) (ULPA '08)].

- A claimant whose claim was timely sent to the dissolved limited partnership but not acted on.

- A claimant whose claim is contingent or based on an event occurring after the effective date of dissolution.

A claim against a dissolved limited partnership that is barred pursuant to the foregoing procedure may not be enforced against a general partner [Corp. Code § 15908.08 (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15904.04 (ULPA '08) (liability of general partners)].

A claim that is not barred may be enforced against the dissolved limited partnership, to the extent of its undistributed assets [Corp. Code § 15908.07(d)(1) (ULPA '08)]. If the assets have been distributed in liquidation, the claim may be enforced against a partner or transferee to the extent of that person's proportionate share of the claim or the limited partnership's assets distributed to the partner or transferee in liquidation, whichever is less, but a person's total liability for all claims may not exceed the total amount of assets distributed to the person as part of the winding up of the dissolved limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15908.07(d)(2) (ULPA '08)]. The claim may also be enforced against any person who was a general partner at the time the partnership incurred the obligation on which the claim is based [Corp. Code § 15908.07(d)(3) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15904.04 (ULPA '08)].

Publication of a notice of dissolution of a limited partnership pursuant does not bar the collection of any tax, interest, penalty or addition to tax under the California franchise, personal income tax, and corporation tax law [Corp. Code § 15908.07(e) (ULPA '08); see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 17001 et seq., 18401 et seq., 23001 et seq.].

[1] ULPA '08

In winding up a limited partnership's activities, the assets of the limited partnership must be applied to satisfy the limited partnership's obligations to creditors, including, to the extent permitted by law, partners that are creditors [Corp. Code § 15908.09(a) (ULPA '08)]. Any surplus remaining after paying creditors must be returned to the partners as they share in distributions [Corp. Code § 15908.09(b) (ULPA '08)].

If a limited partnership's assets are insufficient to satisfy all of its obligations to creditors, the following rules apply [Corp. Code § 15908.09(c) (ULPA '08)]:

> (1) Each person that was a general partner when the obligation was incurred and that has not been released from the obligation [Corp. Code § 15906.07 (ULPA '08)] must contribute to the limited partnership for the purpose of enabling the limited partnership to satisfy the obligation. The contribution due from each of those persons is in proportion to the right to receive distributions in the capacity of general partner in effect for each of those persons when the obligation was incurred.
> (2) If a person does not contribute the full amount required under paragraph (1), the other persons required to contribute by paragraph (1) must contribute the additional amount necessary to discharge the obligation. The additional contribution due from each of those other persons is in proportion to the right to receive distributions in the capacity of general partner in effect for each of those other persons when the obligation was incurred.
> (3) If a person does not make the additional contribution required by paragraph (2), further additional contributions are determined and due in the same manner as provided in that paragraph.

Any person that makes an additional contribution as required above may recover from any person whose failure to contribute necessitated the additional contribution. In such a case, a person who made an additional contribution may not recover more than the amount additionally contributed, and the person whose failure to contribute necessitated the additional contribution will not be liable for more than the amount the person failed to contribute [Corp. Code § 15908.09(d) (ULPA '08)].

The estate of a deceased individual is liable for the person's obligations to contribute when the limited partnership's assets are insufficient to satisfy all of its obligations [Corp. Code § 15908.09(e) (ULPA '08)].

An assignee for the benefit of creditors of a limited partnership or a partner, or a person appointed by a court to represent creditors of a limited partnership or a partner, may enforce a person's obligation to contribute [Corp. Code § 15908.09(f) (ULPA '08)].

[2] CRLPA

Under CRLPA, on the winding up of a limited partnership, the assets must be distributed in the following order [Corp. Code § 15684 (CRLPA)]:

- First, to creditors, including partners who are creditors to the extent permitted by law, in satisfaction of liabilities of the partnership other than liabilities for distributions to partners of their interests in the partnership;

- Second, except as provided in the partnership agreement, to specific partners and former partners in satisfaction of specific liabilities for distributions of their interests in the partnership on withdrawal; and

- Third, to the partners in accordance with their rights under the partnership agreement and their rights to distribution generally.

Generally, no limited partner has priority over any other limited partner as to return of contributions or compensation by way of income [Corp. Code § 15636(b) (CRLPA)]. The profits and losses of a limited partnership must be allocated among the partners in the manner provided in the partnership agreement. If the agreement does not so provide, profits and losses are allocated in proportion to the contributions of each partner [Corp. Code § 15653 (CRLPA)]. Distributions of partnership money or property are also made in accordance with the partnership agreement. If the agreement does not so provide, distributions that are a return of capital are made in proportion to contributions of each partner, and distributions that are a not a return of capital, are made in proportion to the allocation of profits [Corp. Code § 15654 (CRLPA)].

[3] ULPA

Under ULPA, in settling accounts after dissolution, liabilities are paid in the following order [Corp. Code § 15523(1) (ULPA)]:

- First, those to creditors, in the order of priority provided by law, except those to limited partners on account of their contributions, and to general partners;

- Second, those to limited partners in respect to their share of the profits and other compensation by way of income on their contributions;

- Third, those to limited partners in respect to the capital of their contributions;

- Fourth, those to general partners other than for capital and profits;

- Fifth, those to general partners in respect to profits; and
- Sixth, those to general partners in respect to capital.

A limited partner may rightfully demand return of his, her, or its contribution on dissolution [Corp. Code § 15516(2)(a) (ULPA)]. Subject to any statement in the certificate or to subsequent agreement, limited partners share in the partnership assets in respect to their claims for capital, and in respect to their claims for profits or for compensation by way of income on their contributions respectively, in proportion to the respective amounts of such claims [Corp. Code § 15523(2); see Corp. Code §§ 15514, 15515 (ULPA)].

Chapter 406 PARTNERSHIPS: DISSOLUTION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Limited Partnerships

35-406 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 406.36

§ 406.36 Dissolution and Certificates

[1] Certificate of Dissolution

Under CRLPA, on dissolution of the limited partnership, a certificate of dissolution must be filed with the Secretary of State, on a form prescribed by the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 15623(a)(1) (CRLPA)]. The certificate must be filed by the person authorized to execute the certificate of cancellation in accordance with Corp. Code § 15624 [Corp. Code § 15623(a)(1) (CRLPA); see Corp. Code § 15624(a)(4) (CRLPA)]. The certificate of dissolution must set forth the name of the limited partnership along with the Secretary of State's file number, the event causing the dissolution, and the date of the dissolution. It may also set forth any other information which the partners filing the certificate of dissolution determine to include [Corp. Code § 15623(a)(2) (CRLPA)].

The dissolution procedure under the ULPA '08 does not require the filing of a certificate of dissolution [see Corp. Code § 15908.01 et seq. (ULPA '08)].

[2] Certificate of Continuation

Under CRLPA, after the filing of a certificate of dissolution, the general partners may file a certificate of continuation in any of the following circumstances [Corp. Code § 15623(c)(1) (CRLPA)]:

- The business of the partnership is to be continued pursuant to the written consent of all the partners.

- The dissolution of the partnership was by written consent of all the partners pursuant to Corp. Code § 15681(b), and each partner who consented to the dissolution has agreed in writing to revoke the partner's consent to the dissolution.

- The partnership was not in fact dissolved.

The continuation statement must set forth the name of the limited partnership, the Secretary of State's file number, and the grounds provided in Corp. Code § 15623(c)(1) that are the basis for the filing of the certificate of continuation [

Corp. Code § 15623(c)(2)]. On the filing of the certificate of continuation, the certificate of dissolution becomes ineffective effective as of the time the certificate of dissolution was filed, except to the extent provided in Corp. Code § 15624(c) [Corp. Code § 15623(c)(3) (CRLPA); see Ch. 405, Partnerships: Actions Between Limited Partners or Partnerships and Third Parties].

The dissolution procedure under the ULPA '08 does not provide for the filing of a certificate of continuation [see Corp. Code § 15908.01 et seq. (ULPA '08)].

[3] Certificate of Cancellation

[a] ULPA '08

A dissolved limited partnership that has completed winding up must deliver to the Secretary of State for filing a certificate of cancellation that states (1) the name of the limited partnership and the Secretary of State's file number, (2) the date of filing of its initial certificate of limited partnership, and (3) any other information as determined by the general partners filing the certificate or by any other person appointed to wind up the affairs of the partnership [Corp. Code § 15902.03 (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15908.03(c), (d) (ULPA '08) (appointment of person, in absence of general partner, to wind up affairs of limited partnership)]. The certificate of cancellation must be prepared on a form prescribed by the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 15902.03 (ULPA '08)].

[b] CRLPA

Once the winding up of partnership affairs has been completed, the person authorized to execute the certificate of cancellation in accordance with Corp. Code § 15624 must file a certificate of cancellation of certificate of limited partnership. The certificate of cancellation is filed on a form prescribed by the Secretary of State [see Corp. Code §§ 15623(b)(1), 15624(a)(4) (CRLPA)]. The certificate of cancellation of certificate of limited partnership must set forth the name of the limited partnership along with the Secretary of State's file number and any other information the filing partners determine to include [Corp. Code § 15623(b)(2) (CRLPA)].

[4] Restated Certificate of Limited Partnership

Under CRLPA, if the partnership has filed several different certificates with the Secretary of State, a "restated certificate of limited partnership" that embodies in a single certificate all of the operative and in-effect provisions contained in the different certificates may be filed [Corp. Code § 15622(e)(1) (CRLPA)]. The restated certificate replaces the initial certificate and all amendments previously filed with the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 15622(e)(3) (CRLPA)]. A restated certificate may include an amendment of the certificate of limited partnership not previously filed [Corp. Code § 15622(e)(2) (CRLPA)]. However, any amendment effected in connection with the restatement and integration of the certificate of limited partnership is subject to any other provision of the CRLPA, not inconsistent with this provision, that would apply if a separate certificate of amendment were filed to effect that amendment [Corp. Code § 15622(e)(4) (CRLPA)].

The restated certificate of limited partnership may be executed as any other certificate of amendment, as provided in Corp. Code § 15624(a)(2) [Corp. Code § 15624(a)(8) (CRLPA)]. Normally a certificate of amendment must be executed by all general partners (or fewer than all, as may be provided in the certificate of limited partnership) and by each general partner designated in the certificate as a new general partner [Corp. Code § 15624(a)(2)]. If the amendment states that a general partner has ceased to be a general partner, it need not be signed by that general partner. However, if the remaining general partners fail after demand to do so within a reasonable time, or refuse to do so, or if there are no remaining general partners and the limited partners winding up the limited partnership's affairs fail after demand to execute the amendment within a reasonable time, or refuse to do so, the certificate of amendment may be executed by that former general partner [Corp. Code § 15624(a)(2)(A)]. If the amendment is filed in accordance with Corp. Code § 15622(c), concerning when a person other than a general partner is authorized to wind up the affairs of a limited partnership, the certificate of amendment must be executed by each person authorized to wind up the limited partnership's affairs, and need not be signed by any former general partner or any general partner not winding up the limited partnership's affairs [Corp. Code § 15624(a)(2)(B)]. Further, if the general partners refuse to execute and file a certificate, or fail to file one within a reasonable time after demand, or if there is any dispute concerning the filing of the certificate of amendment, any partner may petition the superior court to direct the execution of the certificate [see Corp. Code § 15625(b) (CRLPA)].

[5] Execution of Certificates

[a] ULPA '08

A certificate of cancellation must be signed by all general partners listed in the certificate of limited partnership or, if the certificate of limited partnership of a dissolved limited partnership lists no general partners, by the person appointed to wind up the dissolved limited partnership's activities [Corp. Code § 15902.04(a)(6) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15908.03(c), (d) (ULPA '08) (appointment of person, in absence of general partner, to wind up affairs of limited partnership)].

[b] CRLPA

Certificates of dissolution, cancellation, and continuation must be executed by all general partners, or a lesser number if provided in the certificate of limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15624(a)(3), (5) (CRLPA)]. However, if the limited partners are winding up the partnership's affairs, the certificate of dissolution or the certificate of cancellation may only be executed by the person authorized by a majority in interest of the limited partners [Corp. Code § 15624(a)(3), (4)].

[6] Partnerships in Existence on July 1, 1984

Generally, a partnership in existence on July 1, 1984, is governed by ULPA, unless it elects to be governed by CRLPA [see Corp. Code §§ 15533, 15711, 15712(b)(1); see also § 406.30 and Ch. 404, Partnerships: Actions Between Limited Partners and Partnerships]. All partnerships in existence on July 1, 1984, however, must file a certificate of limited partnership with the Secretary of State, pursuant to Corp. Code § 15621(a) under the CRLPA, and are thereafter governed by those provisions of the CRLPA pertaining to the filing, cancellation, and amendment of certificates of limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15712(b)(2); but see Tsakos Shipping & Trading, S.A. v. Juniper Garden Town Homes, Ltd. (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 74, 92, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 585 (partnership dissolved on December 6, 1984, on expiration of terms specified in partnership agreement)]. Once a certificate has been filed pursuant to Corp. Code §§ 15621, 15628, the limited partnership is not required to make any further filings or record any documents pursuant to ULPA, and no one may rely on the accuracy or completeness of any information filed or recorded pursuant to ULPA subsequent to the filing by the partnership of the certificate pursuant to Corp. Code § 15621(a) [Corp. Code § 15712(b)(2) (CRLPA); see Corp. Code §§ 15621, 15628 (CRLPA)].

Chapter 406 PARTNERSHIPS: DISSOLUTION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Limited Partnerships

35-406 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 406.37

§ 406.37 Authority of General Partner

[1] ULPA '08

After dissolution, a limited partnership is bound by any act of a general partner that (1) is appropriate for winding up the limited partnership's activities; or (2) that would have bound the limited partnership before dissolution [see Corp. Code § 15904.02 (ULPA '08)] if, at the time the other party enters into the transaction, the other party does not have notice of the dissolution [Corp. Code § 15908.04(a) (ULPA '08)].

If a general partner having knowledge of the dissolution causes a limited partnership to incur an obligation by an act that is not appropriate for winding up the partnership's activities, the general partner is liable to the limited partnership for any damage caused to the limited partnership arising from the obligation [Corp. Code § 15908.05(a)(1) (ULPA '08)]. If another general partner or a person dissociated as a general partner becomes liable for the obligation, the general partner whose act caused the obligation to be incurred is liable to that other general partner or person for any damage caused to that other general partner or person arising from the liability [Corp. Code § 15908.05(a)(2) (ULPA '08)].

A person dissociated as a general partner binds a limited partnership through an act occurring after dissolution if both [Corp. Code § 15908.04(b) (ULPA '08)]:

- At the time the other party enters into the transaction, less than two years have passed since the dissociation, and the other party does not have notice of the dissociation and reasonably believes that the person is a general partner; and

- The act (1) is appropriate for winding up the limited partnership's activities; or (2) would have bound the limited partnership before dissolution [see Corp. Code § 15904.02 (ULPA '08)] and, at the time the other party enters into the transaction, the other party does not have notice of the dissolution.

If a person dissociated as a general partner causes a limited partnership to incur an obligation through an act occurring after dissolution, the person is liable to the limited partnership for any damage caused to the limited partnership arising from the obligation [Corp. Code § 15908.05(b)(1) (ULPA '08)]. If another general partner or another person dissociated as a general partner is liable for the obligation, the person causing the obligation to be incurred is liable to the general partner or other person for any damage caused to the general partner or other person arising from the liability [Corp. Code § 15908.05(b)(2) (ULPA '08)].

[2] CRLPA

After dissolution, a general partner can bind the partnership by any act appropriate for winding up partnership affairs or completing transactions unfinished at dissolution. Under the CRLPA, the general partner may also bind the partnership by any transaction that would have bound the partnership if dissolution had not taken place, if the other party to the transaction either (1) had extended credit to the partnership prior to the dissolution and had no actual knowledge or notice of the dissolution, or (2) had known of the partnership prior to dissolution and had no actual knowledge or notice of the dissolution and a certificate of dissolution has not been filed [Corp. Code § 15685 (CRLPA)].

[3] ULPA

ULPA is silent on the issue of when a general partner may bind the limited partnership after dissolution. Therefore, the law relating to generalpartnerships applies [see former Corp. Code § 15006(2) (pre-'97 Act); Tsakos Shipping & Trading, S.A. v. Juniper Garden Town Homes, Ltd. (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 74, 91, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 585] . Corp. Code § 16804 and former Corp. Code § 15035, governing general partnerships, generally provide that a general partner may bind a partnership in transactions appropriate for winding up the partnership business or in transactions where the general partner could have bound the partnership before the dissolution and the other party had no notice of the dissolution. A partner's authority in a general partnership may be limited by filing a certificate of dissolution or under the pre-'97 Act publication of a notice of dissolution [see Corp. Code § 16805; former Corp. Code § 15035(1)(b)(II)].

Applying the pre-'97 Act, a general partner of a ULPA partnership that had dissolved on December 6, 1984, in accordance with the terms of the partnership agreement, had no authority to bind the partnership after that date for a transaction unrelated to the winding up of its affairs [Tsakos Shipping & Trading, S.A. v. Juniper Garden Town Homes, Ltd. (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 74, 91-94, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 585 (general partner borrowed money for personal business and had partnership purportedly guaranty repayment)].

For discussion of a general partner's power to bind a general partnership after dissolution, see § 406.15[2].

35-406 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 406.52

§ 406.52 Decisions

[1] Accounting

[a] Generally

Right to accounting established prima facie by dissolution of partnership. Ferem v. Olson & Mahony (1917) 176 Cal. 652, 656, 169 P. 386

Accounting necessary incident to dissolution, following as matter of course. Cottle v. Leitch (1868) 35 Cal. 434, 440-441

Equity adjusts all differences between partners; accounting and decree required to leave nothing open for future litigation or controversy. Griggs v. Clark (1863) 23 Cal. 427, 429 ; Rassaert v. Mensch (1911) 17 Cal. App. 637, 641-642, 120 P. 1072

Division of partnership assets or arrangement for such division is not required to be contemporaneous with agreement for dissolution of partnership. Fisher v. Fisher (1948) 83 Cal. App. 2d 357, 361, 188 P.2d 802

General rule is that personal judgment cannot be entered against partner in suit for accounting and settlement until all partnership assets have been converted into money, debts paid, and final balance ascertained. Hooper v. Barranti (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 570, 578, 184 P.2d 688 ; Rassaert v. Mensch (1911) 17 Cal. App. 637, 641, 120 P. 1072

Personal judgment is not rendered against partner until all partnership debts are paid. Olmo v. Olmo (1943) 56 Cal. App. 2d 590, 594, 133 P.2d 866

Grantee of partner's interest in partnership realty is necessary party to accounting. Secondo v. Superior Court (1930) 105 Cal. App. 179, 181, 286 P. 1089

[b] Action Improper

Heirs of deceased partner are improper parties for bringing suit for partnership accounting. Robertson v. Burrell (1895) 110 Cal. 568, 574, 42 P. 1086

Laches prevents partner from bringing action for accounting, when partnership had been dissolved more than twenty years earlier. Harris v. Hillegass (1884) 66 Cal. 79, 80, 4 P. 987

Partner does not properly plead action for accounting when complaint alleged dissolution by agreement had occurred two years earlier, and complaint did not allege any subsequent transactions or partnership assets or liabilities. Loupias v. Rosen (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 781, 783-784, 228 P.2d 611

[c] Costs and Fees

Court has discretion to tax partners proportionately for appraisers' fee. Zeibak v. Nasser (1938) 12 Cal. 2d 1, 19-20, 82 P.2d 375

Fee of expert accountant appointed by and acting under direction of court is chargeable cost in partnership dissolution action. ABC Egg Ranch v. Abdelnour (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 12, 19, 35 Cal. Rptr. 487

Assessment of receiver's costs, fees, and expenses is within sound discretion of trial court, and assessment of such costs against party whose conduct made appointment of receiver necessary is proper. Luchs v. Ormsby (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 377, 389, 340 P.2d 702

[d] Default Judgment

Because amount of money due cannot be specified in complaint for dissolution and accounting, plaintiff must give postcomplaint and predefault notice to defendant stating amount plaintiff will seek to prove due in case of default, with adequate time for defendant to respond before default is entered. Ely v. Gray (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1257, 1263-1264, 274 Cal. Rptr. 536

[e] Injunction

In action for accounting and dissolution of partnership, temporary injunction to preserve status quo pending outcome of case on its merits is proper ancillary remedy. Kendall v. Foulks (1919) 180 Cal. 171, 173, 179 P. 886

Granting or denying of preliminary injunction does not amount to adjudication of ultimate rights in controversy, but only determines that court concludes that, pending trial, defendant should or should not be restrained from exercising rights claimed by him or her. Kendall v. Foulks (1919) 180 Cal. 171, 175, 179 P. 886

[f] Interest

Except when there has been fraudulent retention or improper application of partnership money, court does not charge partner with interest on partnership money in his or her hands. Forsyth v. Butler (1907) 152 Cal. 396, 403, 93 P. 90

When accounting and distribution of partnership assets are delayed through fault of partner having possession, interest is allowed from date when balance should have been ascertained and paid. Chazan v. Most (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 519, 524, 25 Cal. Rptr. 864

Partner is not entitled to interest on his or her capital contribution to partnership, absent special agreement among partners. Luchs v. Ormsby (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 377, 387, 340 P.2d 702

Partner is permitted to collect interest when partnership funds have been wrongfully withheld or when partner in charge of partnership books wrongfully makes overdraft. Luchs v. Ormsby (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 377, 388, 340 P.2d 702

When conduct of partner warrants, court has discretion to penalize partner by charging interest from date of dissolution. Speka v. Speka (1954) 124 Cal. App. 2d 181, 187, 268 P.2d 129

[g] Judgment

In absence of reference, mere statement of balance due in findings of court is improper disposition of action for accounting, although any procedure of record from which it can be intelligently ascertained what issues were as to controverted items and how issues were disposed of by court is sufficient. Whann v. Doell (1923) 192 Cal. 680, 684, 221 P. 899 ; Davis v. California Motors (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 241, 246, 166 P.2d 52

Court should make sufficient statement of account to show main features of account and disposition of various controversies arising thereon in action for accounting. Whann v. Doell (1923) 192 Cal. 680, 686, 221 P. 899

In action for accounting between partners, judgment is final when no further judicial action is necessary to final determination of asserted rights of respective parties and unresolved issues relate solely to ascertainment of amount of money to be paid from net proceeds of sale to third parties, creditors of partnership, and expenses of receiver and referee, remainder to be divided between partners is specified in judgment. Zappettini v. Buckles (1914) 167 Cal. 27, 33-34, 138 P. 696

Interlocutory judgment that orders accounting but does not fix interests of partners or specify how expenses of winding up are to be allocated is not final for purposes of appeal. Gunder v. Gunder (1929) 208 Cal. 559, 561, 282 P. 794 ; Kinoshita v. Horio (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 959, 964-968, 231 Cal. Rptr. 241 (questioning Zappettini)

When surviving partners finished some and departing partners finished other unfinished business and other claims were litigated between surviving and departing partners, no partner required to pay claims before final adjudication of offsetting claims; proper procedure is to resolve all competing claims and then render net judgment. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman v. Cohen (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1049, 1063-1064, 237 Cal. Rptr. 14 (staying implementation of earlier judgments until last accounting resolved)

In suit for partnership accounting, findings of court are required to set forth partnership assets, their value, and capital balances of partners, although there is no requirement that assets be particularly described. ABC Egg Ranch v. Abdelnour (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 12, 16, 35 Cal. Rptr. 487

[h] Partnership Assets

When partners contribute land to partnership, land as partnership asset, despite agreement between partners that each should retain his or her title; partners as holding legal title in trust for partnership. Chapman v. Hughes (1894) 104 Cal. 302, 304-305, 37 P. 1048

In action for partnership accounting, court does not inquire into source of title of partnership assets, whether realty or personalty. Bates v. Babcock (1892) 95 Cal. 479, 487, 30 P. 605

Although under recognized accounting principles each partner's interest in partnership's physical assets would be reflected in that partner's capital account, no double recovery results from separate allocation for payment of share of physical assets when dissolved firm's capital accounts reflected only draw entitlement for year. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman v. Cohen (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1053, 237 Cal. Rptr. 14

Attorney's fees generated by cases in progress at time of dissolution of law partnership constitute unfinished business that is asset of dissolved partnership. Jewel v. Boxer (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 171, 174, 203 Cal. Rptr. 13

[k] Settlement Among Partners

[i] Generally

When there has been partial settlement between partners, accounting by court is properly limited to unsettled portion of partnership business. Stretch v. Talmadge (1884) 65 Cal. 510, 511, 4 P. 513

Agreement between partners settling partnership accounts bars action for accounting. Cayton v. Walker (1858) 10 Cal. 450, 456

P.2d 939

Arbitrator exceeded authority by declaring forfeiture of withdrawing partners' capital accounts; arbitration clause in partnership agreement precluded arbitrator from granting any remedy prohibited by agreement or not available in court of law; forfeiture was contrary to partnership law, partnership agreement, and decisional law. O'Flaherty v. Belgum (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 1044, 1047, 1056-1061, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 286

Division in kind of partnership assets on dissolution may be conditioned on satisfaction of all partnership obligations to third parties. Logoluso v. Logoluso (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 523, 527, 43 Cal. Rptr. 678

Partners' agreement to partial division in kind of partnership assets is valid and must be honored by court, as long as agreement is proved and not assailed on grounds of mistake or fraud. Logoluso v. Logoluso (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 523, 528, 43 Cal. Rptr. 678

Rules of partition apply to property division aspects of partnership dissolution action. Logoluso v. Logoluso (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 523, 530, 43 Cal. Rptr. 678

For court to partition partnership assets on dissolution, partner is required to establish that partition can be made without serious loss to partners. Swarthout v. Gentry (1943) 62 Cal. App. 2d 68, 84, 144 P.2d 38

[2] Action for Contribution

When partner pays partnership debt existing after dissolution, he or she may maintain action in assumpsit against copartner for contribution, even if paying partner gave individual note for debt due from partnership and copartner did not expressly promise to repay partner. Sears v. Starbird (1889) 78 Cal. 225, 231, 20 P. 547 ; Kazman v. Light (1921) 53 Cal. App. 732, 734, 200 P. 768

Partner who in substance made capital contributions to partnership by purchasing unsecured partnership debt from bank, as permitted by the partnership agreement, was entitled to indemnification from partnership; partnership's obligation to indemnify that partner then could be enforced against other partner personally as a matter of that partner's partnership obligations. AB Group v. Wertin (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1022, 1039, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 652

When partner filed complaint for dissolution based on partner's breach of partnership agreement and firm petitioned to compel arbitration, language of arbitration clause was held to extend to plaintiff's action which "arose out of or related to" the partnership agreement [Larkin v. Williams, Woolley, Cogswell, Nakazawa & Russell (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 227, 230-231, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 195 (reversing order denying petition to compel arbitration)].

Combining action at law for damages with action for partnership dissolution and accounting is proper. Prince v. Harting (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 720, 736-737, 2 Cal. Rptr. 545

When partnership is shown, court of equity may grant, in single action, dissolution, accounting, and decree for payment of any balance due. Rudnick v. Delfino (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 260, 264, 294 P.2d 983

Sale, conveyance, transfer, or assignment by partner of his or her interest in partnership or property to copartner or third party does not of itself dissolve partnership, although entire circumstances connected with transfer may be sufficient to cause dissolution. Chatten v. Martell (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 545, 551, 333 P.2d 364

In determining what rights or interests pass under assignment, intent of parties as manifested in instrument is controlling. Chatten v. Martell (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 545, 551, 333 P.2d 364

Waterman (1929) 102 Cal. App. 516, 521, 283 P. 143*

[6] Death or Retirement of Partner

[a] Actions by Remaining Partner

Surviving partner's expenditure of time, labor, and skill in administration of partnership assets incident to successful termination of unfinished business entitles him or her to remuneration under former Civ. Code § 2412 (now see Corp. Code § 16401(h)). Jacobson v. Wikholm (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 24, 29, 172 P.2d 878

Action by surviving partner against estate of deceased partner for recovery of possession of partnership property constitutes action for claim and delivery, not for accounting, and any accounting requested is incidental to demand for possession. Wrightson v. Dougherty (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 257, 261-262, 54 P.2d 13

Surviving partner has no action in equity for accounting against administrator of deceased partner, because statute gives him or her that power anyway. Wrightson v. Dougherty (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 257, 264, 54 P.2d 13

Application of former Corp. Code § 15042, which entitled deceased partner's estate to interest or profits attributable to decedent's share in partnership "unless otherwise agreed,' is not precluded when partnership agreement sets out method for appraising value of decedent's share, but is silent on issue of payment of interests or profits. Estate of Zucker (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1198, 1204, 268 Cal. Rptr. 4

Delay in appraising value of deceased partner's share in partnership does not justify refusal to pay estate interest on value under former Corp. Code § 15042, absent findings that estate either acted in bad faith or was more than partially responsible for delay. Estate of Zucker (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1198, 1204, 268 Cal. Rptr. 4

Code § 15042* on retired partner's interest used by continuing partners before settlement of account does not include postdissolution appreciation of value of realty owned on date of dissolution and later sold; facts that retired partner, an attorney, joined competing business and never told continuing partners of legal consequences of failure to settle account as equitable considerations. Oliker v. Gershunoff (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1288, 1303-1307, 241 Cal. Rptr. 415

Cohen (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1055-1056, 237 Cal. Rptr. 14*

[7] Dissolution Improper

Equity will refuse dissolution when it will prevent loss to partnership and dissolution would require later action for breach of contract. Bates v. McTammany (1938) 10 Cal. 2d 697, 700, 76 P.2d 513

Although there is no such thing as indissoluble partnership, grounds for premature dissolution are required to be serious and dissolution is unjustifiable when it will cause losses to partnership or destruction of value of partnership assets or property. Bates v. McTammany (1938) 10 Cal. 2d 697, 701, 76 P.2d 513

[8] Dissolution Proper

On fraud of partner, copartner is entitled to judicial dissolution even if partnership was for fixed term. Cottle v. Leitch (1868) 35 Cal. 434, 439

Sufficient grounds for dissolving partnership under former Corp. Code § 15032(1)(d), (f) exist when partners engaged in questionable accounting procedures, subjecting estate of deceased partner to possible tax liability, and when representative of deceased partner's estate, as nonvoting member of partnership, had no authority to have accounting procedures changed. Jacoby v. Feldman (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 432, 443, 146 Cal. Rptr. 334

Misconduct that is injurious to partnership constitutes grounds for judicial dissolution. Chatten v. Martell (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 545, 551, 333 P.2d 364

If partnership will continue to lose money, partner entitled to insist on dissolution. Wallace v. Sinclair (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 220, 231, 250 P.2d 154

No partnership is indissoluble. Wallace v. Sinclair (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 220, 232, 250 P.2d 154

[9] Dissolution by Partners

Partner not permitted to dissolve partnership to gain benefits of business for himself or herself unless he or she fully compensates copartner for share of prospective business opportunity. Page v. Page (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 192, 197, 10 Cal. Rptr. 643, 359 P.2d 41

Partner has power to dissolve partnership by express notice to copartner, although if partner acts in bad faith and violates fiduciary duty by attempting to appropriate new partnership prosperity to his or her own use without compensating copartner, he or she will be liable for wrongful dissolution under former Corp. Code § 15038(b)(1)(B). Page v. Page (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 192, 197, 10 Cal. Rptr. 643, 359 P.2d 41

Partnership for particular undertaking not dissolved by express will of partner. Zeibak v. Nasser (1938) 12 Cal. 2d 1,

13, 82 P.2d 375

Death of partner does not necessarily dissolve partnership. Zeibak v. Nasser (1938) 12 Cal. 2d 1, 17, 82 P.2d 375

[10] Dissolution Decree

Judgment in partnership dissolution action is interlocutory and not subject to appeal when further audit of partnership books is required and receiver is directed to report to court so that court may ascertain amounts due between partners and when court did not finally determine relative rights ofpartners in partnership assets. Bakewell v. Bakewell (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 224, 227, 130 P.2d 975

Dissolution may be decreed under prayer for general relief if dissolution is one purpose of action and sufficient facts are stated in complaint to warrant it. Sager v. Estergren (1937) 18 Cal. App. 2d 382, 384

Court may decree dissolution of partnership before date of judgment. McAtee v. McAtee (1930) 105 Cal. App. 555, 559, 288 P. 114

[11] Effect of Dissolution

[a] Generally

Dissolution operates only with respect to future transactions; as to everything past, partnership continues until all preexisting matters are terminated. Cotten v. Perishable Air Conditioners (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 575, 577, 116 P.2d 603

Dissolution does not destroy authority of partner to act for his or her former partners in matters in which they still have common interest and are under common liability. Cotten v. Perishable Air Conditioners (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 575, 577, 116 P.2d 603

Service of process on partner pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 388 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 369.5), after dissolution of partnership but before its termination, vests court with jurisdiction to render valid and binding judgment against partnership. Cotten v. Perishable Air Conditioners (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 575, 577, 116 P.2d 603

Law firm's conduct in breaching lease was chargeable to departing partner as act within scope of winding up firm's affairs; lease was partnership obligation that came into being before dissolution and was matter in which all partners had common interest and were under common liability. Principal Mutual Life Insurance Company v. Vars, Pave, McCord & Freedman (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1469, 1489-1490, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 479 , citing Cotten v. Perishable Air Conditioners (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 575, 577, 116 P. 2d 603 , above

Individual partner's liability for existing partnership liability is not terminated on dissolution except by performance of agreement creating that liability, or by express or implied consent of other contracting party that he or she need not perform. Redman v. Walters (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 448, 453, 152 Cal. Rptr. 42

When partnership is dissolved, authority of partner to bind copartner is revoked and agency is ended. Vogler v. Ingrao (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 341, 343, 266 P.2d 826

Dissolution does not by itself affect rights of third parties who have previously dealt with partnership, unless third parties consent. Rassaert v. Mensch (1911) 17 Cal. App. 637, 641, 120 P. 1072

Dissolution has no effect on property of partners or their interests, except that they lose power to act for each other.

Rassaert v. Mensch (1911) 17 Cal. App. 637, 644, 120 P. 1072

[b] Notice of Dissolution

Defendant partner required to show that creditor had actual notice of partnership dissolution if creditor had prior credit dealings with partnership. Credit Bureaus of Merced County v. Shipman (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 673, 678, 334 P.2d 1036

Publication of notice of dissolution of partnership does not alone compel finding of creditor's actual knowledge of dissolution. Credit Bureaus of Merced County v. Shipman (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 673, 678, 334 P.2d 1036

Partnership is not bound if creditor had actual notice of dissolution at time of transaction, even though notice of dissolution had not been published pursuant to former Corp. Code § 15035.5. Carvalho v. McCoy (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 702, 705, 276 P.2d 21

Partner seeking to avoid liability has burden of showing that creditor of partnership had notice of dissolution of partnership prior to transaction. Epley v. Hiller (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 100, 104, 274 P.2d 696

Creditor required to know of existence of partnership prior to its dissolution, and has burden of proving that knowledge, in order to bind partnership for acts of partner after dissolution, pursuant to former Corp. Code § 15035. Vogler v. Ingrao (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 341, 344, 266 P.2d 826

[12] Expulsion of Partner

Expulsion of a partner will not cause dissolution if the partnership agreement provides for continuation in that event. Heller v. Pillsbury, Madison & Sutro (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1367, 1385 n.6, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 336

[13] Judicial Dissolution

Act that is sufficient grounds for a judicial dissolution does not of itself dissolve partnership, and court decree is necessary to dissolve partnership. Vangel v. Vangel (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 615, 626, 254 P.2d 919

[14] Liquidating Partner

If one partner sells his or her interest in partnership to third party, right to control and disposition of firm assets vests in remaining partners and receiver is not appointed in absence of showing of prejudice to retiring partners in permitting remaining partners to liquidate. Mervyn Investment Co. v. Biber (1921) 184 Cal. 637, 644, 194 P. 1037

Liquidating partner has duty to wind up affairs of partnership, pay its debts out of assets, if sufficient, and divide residue, if any, among those entitled to it. Glassell v. Prentiss (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 599, 605, 346 P.2d 895

Surviving or liquidating partner, if not trustee, is at least quasi trustee for former partners. Metzenbaum v. Metzenbaum (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 395, 398, 252 P.2d 31

Although liquidating partner derives personal benefit from defending adverse claims to partnership assets, he or she is entitled to reimbursement from retired partner for reasonable attorney's fees incurred in defense. Metzenbaum v. Metzenbaum (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 395, 400, 252 P.2d 31

[15] Parties

[16] Partnership Creditors

Debts of partnership must be settled before distributing partnership assets to partners. Ohio Casualty Ins. Co. v. Harbor Ins. Co. (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 207, 216, 66 Cal. Rptr. 340

Creditors of partnership have priority to partnership assets over creditors of individual partners. Ohio Casualty Ins. Co. v. Harbor Ins. Co. (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 207, 216, 66 Cal. Rptr. 340

[17] Partnership for Fixed Term

When partnership has leased property for purpose of carrying on particular business and no fixed period is set for duration of partnership, partnership deemed by implication to continue during term of lease and thus for fixed term. Zeibak v. Nasser (1938) 12 Cal. 2d 1, 12-13, 82 P.2d 375

[18] Receiver

Arbitrator had no jurisdiction to adjudicate claims of partnership in receivership, in view of receiver's objection to attorney's filing of action and counter-demand for arbitration on behalf of partnership. O'Flaherty v. Belgum (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 1044, 1047, 1061-1063, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 286

In action to dissolve partnership, court properly appoints receiver to carry out interlocutory decree ordering accounting. Paola v. Huston (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 206, 212, 309 P.2d 529

Court has power to direct receiver to take and keep possession of property. Steinberg v. Goldstein (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 692, 698, 303 P.2d 80

In action for dissolution of partnership, request by partner is insufficient grounds for court appointment of receiver; to appoint receiver, court must be satisfied that property is in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured. McCaslin v. Kenney (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 87, 95, 223 P.2d 94

[19] Res Judicata

Claims based on same facts and theories as those asserted in other action as affirmative defense of unclean hands is barred by res judicata effect of judgment in other action. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman v. Cohen (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1060-1062, 237 Cal. Rptr. 14

[20] Statute of Limitations

Partner's assertion of rights and ownership of partnership business to exclusion of copartner constitutes sufficient repudiation of latter's rights to start running of statute of limitations on personal claim or on any theory of trust. Middleton v. Newport (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 57, 62, 56 P.2d 508

Limitation period on former partners' cause of action against other former partners for fraud based on concealment of profit is derived from sale and rental of property to dissolved partnership is postponed by fraudulent concealment and does not commence until plaintiffs had actual or inquiry notice. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman v. Cohen (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1059-1060, 237 Cal. Rptr. 14

Action for partnership accounting is based not on contract but on relationship of parties and fiduciary duties; therefore, period of limitations is four years under Code Civ. Proc. § 343. Manok v. Fishman (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 208, 213, 107 Cal. Rptr. 266

Cause of action for accounting accrues at death of partner, even though amount of deceased partner's interest may not then be ascertainable, giving estate representative maximum of four years after death of partner to commence action, or two years if Code Civ. Proc. § 339 applies. Estate of Peebles (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 163, 169, 103 Cal. Rptr. 560

[21] Unfinished Business

Remaining partners' bad faith in connection with dissolution (failure to properly account for income from unfinished business, repudiation agreement settling compensation dispute) does not bar right to accounting and share of profits from unfinished business completed by withdrawing partners. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman v. Cohen (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1060-1062, 237 Cal. Rptr. 14

Absent partnership agreement, attorney's fees received on cases in progress on dissolution is postdissolution income of unfinished business to be allocated to former partners according to their respective ownership interests in former partnership. Jewel v. Boxer (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 171, 177-178, 203 Cal. Rptr. 13

Court must look at circumstances existing on date of dissolution of partnership, and not to events occurring thereafter, to determine whether business of dissolved partnership is unfinished business. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman v. Cohen (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 200, 200, 217, 194 Cal. Rptr. 180 (disapproved on other grounds in Applied Equipment Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Limited (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454)

[22] Venue

Action for accounting is personal action and defendant entitled to have trial in county of his or her residence; plaintiff not permitted to deprive defendant of such right by also seeking order compelling defendant to convey real property located in different county. Hays v. Cowles (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 514, 518, 141 P.2d 26 ; see Coe v. Kessler (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 536, 541, 294 P.2d 83

Venue for dissolution of partnership governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 395. Rudnick v. Delfino (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 260, 264, 294 P.2d 983

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use by a partner seeking a decree dissolving the partnership, an accounting, and, optionally, the appointment of a receiver. On application of a partner, the court must decree a dissolution in any of the situations set forth in Corp. Code § 16801(5). See former Corp. Code § 15032 for the law applicable to partnerships governed by the pre-'97 Act. For discussion of the grounds for judicial dissolution, see § 406.13.

This form seeks an accounting along with the dissolution. A partner may bring an action to compel a dissolution with or without an accounting [Corp. Code § 16405(b); see; former Corp. Code §§ 15022(d), 15043 and discussion in § 406.19 for partner actions for accounting under the pre-'97 Act]. As an option, the form also seeks the appointment of a receiver, which the court may appoint if the partner whose right to or interest in partnership property or assets is probable and the property or assets are in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)].

The action for partnership dissolution and accounting may be brought against one or more partners who are winding up or otherwise in possession of the partnership assets [see Corp. Code § 16405(b); former Corp. Code §§ 15022, 15043]. Therefore, counsel may wish to modify the form to include more than one defendant if the partnership contains more than two partners.

- Plaintiff's performance or excusable nonperformance of partnership agreement (if plaintiff is alleging defendant's breach of agreement) (Optional Paragraph 3) [see Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 830, 69 Cal. Rptr. 321, 442 P.2d 377] ;

- Defendant's conduct or other factual circumstances providing grounds for dissolution (Paragraph 4) [see Corp. Code § 16801(5); former Corp. Code § 15032];

- That plaintiff has demanded an accounting, and that defendant refuses to account (Paragraph 8) [see Wooster v. Nevills (1887) 73 Cal. 58, 60, 14 P. 390] ; and

- Appointment of a receiver is necessary to avoid loss, removal of, or material injury to partnership assets or property (Optional Paragraph 9) [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1); see McCaslin v. Kenney (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 87, 95, 223 P.2d 94] .

The factual examples in this form are based on the facts of Owen v. Cohen (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 147, 119 P.2d 713 (decided under former Civ. Code § 2426).

[4] Jurisdiction and Venue

Jurisdiction for equitable actions is in the superior court [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; see also Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter]. The actions are not limited civil cases unless the total assets of the partnership do not exceed $25,000 [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(2), (b)]. Venue for an action to dissolve a partnership and for an accounting is in the county of defendant's residence, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 395 [Rudnick v. Delfino (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 260, 264, 294 P.2d 983] . The county of defendant's residence is proper even when the accounting involves real property located in another county [Hays v. Cowles (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 514, 518, 141 P.2d 26 ; see Coe v. Kessler (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 536, 541, 294 P.2d 83] . If there is more than one defendant in the action, and the suit is brought in the county of one defendant'sresidence, another defendant may not have the venue changed to his or her county of residence [Rudnick v. Delfino (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 260, 265-266, 294 P.2d 983] .

[5] Verification

If a complaint is used as an application for the appointment of a receiver, the complaint must be verified [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175]. Verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 446] and precludes a general denial [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[6] Receiver

The court may appoint a receiver in an action for a partnership accounting [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1); Paola v.

Huston (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 206, 212, 309 P.2d 529] . The court must be satisfied, however, that the partnership property or assets are in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured [McCaslin v. Kenney (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 87, 95, 223 P.2d 94 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]. The appointment of a receiver is ancillary to and in aid of the accounting action, with the purpose of preserving property pending litigation so that relief awarded by the judgment may be effective [Steinberg v. Goldstein (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 682, 686, 278 P.2d 22] .

The court has the power and jurisdiction to determine the extent of the property subject to the receivership. The receiver is an agent and officer of the court, and property in his or her hands remains under the control and continuous supervision of the court [Steinberg v. Goldstein (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 682, 685-686, 278 P.2d 22] . The court may thus direct that the receiver take and keep possession of the partnership property, or that he or she sell the partnership assets [Steinberg v. Goldstein (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 692, 698, 700, 303 P.2d 80] .

For discussion and forms relating to the appointment of receivers generally, see Ch. 486, Receivers .

[7] Referee

The court may properly appoint a referee in an action for partnership dissolution and accounting, to hear evidence and render an accounting [see Chapman v. Gipson (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 585, 588, 229 P.2d 834] . A referee may be appointed by agreement of the parties or by an order of the court [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 638, 639]. When the court appoints a referee, no partner is entitled to insist on any particular method of accounting [Berker v. Barnes (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 294, 301, 293 P.2d 821] .

For further discussion and forms relating to references in accounting actions,see the Ch. 7, Accounting, Action for. For discussion and forms relating to references in general, see Ch. 38, Reference .

[8] Injunction

The court may also grant a preliminary injunction pending the outcome of an action for partnership dissolution and accounting, in order to preserve the status quo and prevent partnership assets from being lost [Kendall v. Foulks (1919) 180 Cal. 171, 173, 179 P. 886 ; see discussion in § 406.19[2]; see also Ch. 303, Injunctions].

[2] Use of Form

The ex parte application in [1], above, is for use by a partner who is a plaintiff in an action for a partnership dissolution and accounting to obtain a temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction against the defendant partner or partners, in order to assure that partnership assets will remain intact pending the accounting [see Wind v. Herbert (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 276, 285-286, 8 Cal. Rptr. 817] . The form may also be used in an action for partnership accounting only. See Ch. 401, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners and Partnership .

The form would be submitted with a temporary restraining order and order to show cause re preliminary injunction [see § 406.62].

The form may be modified for use as complaint allegations, if the plaintiff wishes to ask for a temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction in his or her complaint for dissolution and accounting [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527]. In this case, allegations taken from this form could be combined with those found in the form in § 406.60. For a general form for a complaint seeking a temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

An injunction may be granted at any time before judgment on a verified complaint, or on affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]), if the complaint or affidavits show that sufficient grounds exist under Code Civ. Proc. § 526 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)].

[3] Temporary Restraining Order and Order to Show Cause

No preliminary injunction or temporary restraining order will be granted without notice to the opposite party, unless it appears from facts shown by affidavit or verified complaint that great or irreparable injury would result to the plaintiff before the matter can be heard on notice. In addition, the plaintiff's attorney must certify to the court under oath: (1) that within a reasonable time prior to the application he or she informed the opposing party or his or her attorney at what time and where the application would be made, (2) that he or she in good faith attempted to inform the opposing party and his or her attorney but was unable to do so, specifying his or her efforts to do so, or (3) that for reasons specified, he or she should not be required to so inform the opposing party or his or her attorney [Code Civ. Proc. § 527].

[4] Contents of Application

A request for ex parte relief must be in writing and must include all of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1201]:

- An application containing the case caption and stating the relief requested.

- A declaration in support of the application making the factual showing required under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1202(c) [discussed below].

- A declaration based on personal knowledge of the notice given under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204 [discussed below].

- Accompanying papers [discussed in [6], below].

The first page of each paper must specify, immediately below the case number, the following information [Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1110(b)]:

- The date, time and location, if ascertainable, of any scheduled hearing and the name of the hearing judge, if ascertainable;

- The nature or title of any attached document other than an exhibit;

- The date of filing of the action; and

- The trial date, if set.

This form contains space for all of the above information.

Although the declaration in support of the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009, 2015.5] may be set forth separately, when the application and declaration are made by the same person, they are sometimes combined into a single paper.

The application must include a full disclosure of any previous applications of the same character or for the same relief that have been refused by the court in whole or in part, even if the current application is made on an alleged different state of facts. Both the previous applications and the court's actions must be disclosed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1202(b)]. The three optional sentences enclosed in brackets in unnumbered paragraph at the end of the form should be used if there have been prior applications that must be disclosed.

The application must state the name, address, and telephone number of any attorney known to the applicant to be an attorney for any party or, if no such attorney is known, the name, address, and telephone number of any unrepresented parties, if known to the applicant [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1202(a)]. Paragraph 2 of the declaration includes this information. Paragraph 2 reflects only one party. The form should be modified to list this information with respect to all parties where there is more than one that must be listed.

Every ex parte application must be accompanied by a declaration regarding notice that states the notice given, including the date, time, manner, and name of the party informed, the relief sought, any response, whether opposition is expected, and that within the applicable time under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1203 [see [5], below], the applicant informed the opposing party where and when the application would be made; or why notice should not be required [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204(b)]. The form includes this information in the alternative Paragraphs 3. If notice was provided later than 10:00 a.m. the court day before the ex parte appearance [see [5], below], the declaration regarding notice must explain the exceptional circumstances that justify the shorter notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204(c)]. The form includes this information in the alternative Paragraph 4.

The application must make an affirmative factual showing in a declaration containing competent testimony based on personal knowledge of irreparable harm, immediate danger, or any other statutory basis for granting ex parte relief [Cal.

Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1202(c)]. This form contains a separate declaration by plaintiff containing this information.

[5] Notice Requirement

When notice of an ex parte application is given, the person giving notice must state with specificity the nature of the relief to be requested and the date, time, and place for the presentation of the application. That person must also attempt to determine whether the opposing party will appear to oppose the application [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204(a)].

A party seeking an ex parte order must notify all parties no later than 10:00 a.m. on the court day before the ex parte appearance, absent a showing of exceptional circumstances that justify a shorter time for notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1203(a)]. The clerk must not reject an ex parte application for filing and must promptly present the application to the appropriate judicial officer for consideration, notwithstanding the failure of an applicant to comply with this notification requirement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1205].

An ex parte application for an order must be accompanied by an affidavit or a declaration showing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204(b)]:

- That, within the applicable time period under Rule 3.1203, the applicant informed the opposing party when and where the application would be made; or
- That the applicant in good faith attempted to inform the opposing party but was unable to do so, specifying the efforts made to inform the opposing party; or
- That for reasons specified, the applicant should not be required to inform the opposing party.

[6] Accompanying Papers

Ex parte applications must be supported by a memorandum [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1201].

The application must include a proposed order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1201]. For a sample proposed order, see § 406.62.

[7] Local Court Rules

Local court rules frequently impose requirements on the manner of presenting ex parte motions and should be checked if counsel is unfamiliar with them. Any local rules relating to the form or format of the application, however, are preempted by the California Rules of Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.20].

[8] Service of Papers

Parties appearing at the ex parte hearing must serve the ex parte application or any written opposition on all other appearing parties at the first reasonable opportunity. Absent exceptional circumstances, no hearing may be conducted unless service has been made [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1206].

[9] Personal Appearance Requirements

An ex parte application will be considered without an applicant's personal appearance only in the following circumstances [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1207]:

- Applications to file a memorandum in excess of the applicable page limits.

- Applications for extensions of time to serve pleadings.
- Setting of hearing dates on alternative writs and orders to show cause.
- Stipulations by the parties for an order.

[2] Use of Form

The order to show cause and temporary restraining order in [1], above, is for use by plaintiff in obtaining relief before the hearing on an order to show cause why a preliminary injunction should not be issued. It may be submitted along with the ex parte application illustrated in § 406.61 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527].

The order to show cause and temporary restraining order must be stated separately, with the order to show cause stated first. The restraining language sought in an order to show cause and a temporary restraining order must be separately stated in the order to show cause and the temporary restraining order, and may not be incorporated by reference. The order to show cause must describe the injunction to be sought at the hearing. The temporary restraining order must describe the activities to be enjoined pending the hearing. A proposed order to show cause must contain blank spaces for the time and manner of service on responding parties, the date on which the proof of service must be delivered to the court hearing the order to show cause, a briefing schedule, and if applicable, the expiration date of the temporary restraining order [*Cal. [3] Undertaking

Although an undertaking is not required as a prerequisite to the obtaining of atemporary restraining order, it is the better practice for the court to require an undertaking during the period of effectiveness of a temporary restraining order [Biasca v. Superior Court (1924) 194 Cal. 366, 367, 228 P. 861] . An undertaking will be required, however, on the court grantinga preliminary injunction [see Code Civ. Proc. § 529]. Judge of the _____ Court

[2] Use of Form

The interlocutory judgment in [1], above, is for use by a plaintiff when the court has adjudged a dissolution of the partnership and has rendered an accounting, reserving jurisdiction for any further accounting or settlement of accounts that may be necessary. The form may be used either for partnership subject to UPA'94 or the pre-'97 Act. For an interlocutory judgment ordering an accounting and a reference, see Ch. 7, Accounting, Action For .

[3] Judgment of Accounting Without Reference

In the absence of a reference, the mere statement of balance due in the court's findings is an improper disposition of an action for accounting. Any procedure of record, however, from which it can be intelligently ascertained what the issues were as to controverted items and how those issues were disposed of by the court is sufficient [Whann v. Doell (1923) 192 Cal. 680, 684, 221 P. 899 ; Davis v. California Motors (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 241, 246, 166 P.2d 52] . The court should make a sufficient statement of account to show the main features of account and disposition of various controversies arising thereon [Whann v. Doell (1923) 192 Cal. 680, 686, 221 P. 899] . Specifically, the judgment should set forth partnership assets, their value, and the capital balances of partners, although there is no requirement that the assets be particularly described [ABC Egg Ranch v. Abdelnour (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 12, 16, 35 Cal. Rptr. 487] .

2. On or about _____[date], plaintiff and defendant entered into _____ [a written or an oral] partnership agreement at _____[city], _____ County, California, for the purpose of carrying on the business of _____[specify], under the name of _____[name of partnership]. 3. On _____[date], as part of the settlement of accounts between plaintiff and defendant following dissolution, plaintiff and defendant were each required to contribute the amount necessary to satisfy partnership liabilities, which totaled the sum of $_____. Under _____ [Corporations Code Section 16807(b) or, for partnerships governed by pre-'97 Act: former Corporations Code Section 15040] [and by order of this court on _____ (date)], defendant was required to contribute _____ [specify share, e.g., one-half] the amount necessary to satisfy partnership liabilities, according to his/her share of partnership profits under the partnership agreement. [2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use by a partner who, after dissolution and on settling accounts, has contributed more than his or her share of the amount necessary to satisfy partnership liabilities. This complaint may be modified for use by the legal representative of a partner [see Corp. Code § 16807(c); former Corp. Code § 15040(f)].

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges:

- Formation of the partnership by oral or written partnership agreement, and dissolution of the partnership (Paragraph 2) [see Corp. Code § 16807; former Corp. Code § 15040];

- Defendant's obligation to contribute his or her share to partnership liabilities, and plaintiff's contribution of more than his or her share (Paragraph 3) [Civ. Code § 1432; Corp. Code §§ 15040(d), 16807(c); former Corp. Code § 15040(d); see Corp. Code § 16401; former Corp. Code § 15018(a)]; and

- Defendant's refusal to contribute his or her share, and the amount of his or her share due to plaintiff (Paragraph 4) [see Civ. Code § 1432; Corp. Code § 16807(c); former Corp. Code § 15040(d),(f); Hosking v. Spartan Properties, Inc. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 152, 157, 79 Cal. Rptr. 893] .

[4] Action for Contribution

A party to a joint or joint and several obligation who satisfies more than his or her share of the claim against all the parties, may require a proportionate contribution from all the parties joined with him or her [Civ. Code § 1432; see Jans v. Nelson (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 848, 858-859, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 106 (in circumstance in which all limited partners execute guaranties of partnership debt and there is no other express agreement concerning rights of contribution, equity requires proportionate obligation for contribution to be based upon ownership interest of various guarantors)]. On the settlement of partnership accounts subsequent to dissolution, the partners are required, absent an agreement to the contrary, to contribute to the amount necessary to satisfy partnership liabilities. Except as provided in Corp. Code § 16807(b) or former Corp. Code § 15015(b) (exception for partner in limited liability partnership), each partner is required to contribute a share according to his or her share of the partnership profits [Corp. Code § 16807(c); former Corp. Code § 15040(d)]. Under the pre-'97 Act, If any, but not all, of the partners are insolvent, or, not being subject to process, refuse to contribute, the other partners must contribute their share of the liabilities and the additional amount necessary to pay the liabilities [former Corp. Code §§ 15040(d)]. Under UPA'94, if a partner fails to contribute the full amount that the partner is obligated to contribute, the other partners must contribute the additional amount necessary [Corp. Code § 16807(c)].

Any partner or his or her legal representative has the right to enforce the contributions of other partners, to the extent of the amount that he or she or his or her estate has paid in excess of his or her share of the liability [see Corp. Code § 16807(c); former Corp. Code § 15040(f)]. To enforce the contribution, a partner may bring an action at law against his or her copartner for contribution [Pilch v. Milikin (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 212, 222, 19 Cal. Rptr. 334] . It is also permissible for a partner to bring an equitable action for assumpsit [see Sears v. Starbird (1889) 78 Cal. 225, 231, 20 P. 547 ; Kazman v. Light (1921) 53 Cal. App. 732, 734, 200 P. 768] . An action for contribution will lie even if the paying partner gave an individual note for a partnership liability, and the copartner did not expressly promise to repay the paying partner [Sears v. Starbird (1889) 78 Cal. 225, 231, 20 P. 547 ; Kazman v. Light (1921) 53 Cal. App. 732, 734, 200 P. 768] .

[5] Venue

Although defendants in a contribution action may generally be sued in their place of residence, venue also lies in the county where the defendants' debt was due to the plaintiff and where, accordingly, the liability ofdefendants to contribute arose [see Pacific Freight Lines v. Pioneer Exp. Co. (1940) 39 Cal. App. 2d 609, 615, 103 P.2d 1056] .

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use by a partner who has continued the business of a dissolved partnership, against a former partner who has violated an agreement, made at the time of dissolution, not to compete with the partnership business. The complaint seeks damages for the breach, in addition to a temporary restraining order and preliminary and permanent injunction. This form may be used for partnerships governed by either UPA'94 or the pre-'97 Act. For discussion and forms pertaining to actions against a dissociating partner under UPA'94 when the partnership is not dissolved, see Ch. 401, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners and Partnership .

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges:

- Existence of the partnership (Paragraph 2) [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 16602];

- An agreement not to compete on dissolution of partnership (Paragraph 3) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16602];

- Plaintiff's performance or excusable nonperformance of the dissolution agreement (Paragraph 4) [see Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 830, 69 Cal. Rptr. 321, 442 P.2d 377] ;

- Defendant's breach of the noncompetition agreement (Paragraph 5) [see Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 830, 69 Cal. Rptr. 321, 442 P.2d 377] ;

- Damages incurred as a result of defendant's breach (Paragraph 6) [Civ. Code § 3300];

- Past and continuing injury to plaintiff's business as the result of defendant's breach (Paragraph 7) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 526];

- Plaintiff's demand that defendant stop the unfair competition (Paragraph 8);

- Irreparable injury that will result if defendant's unfair competition is not enjoined or restrained (Paragraph 9) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 526, 527]; and

- Plaintiff's lack of an adequate remedy at law (Paragraph 10) [see Civ. Code § 3422(1), (3)].

[4] Agreement Not to Compete

Any partner, on or in anticipation of a dissolution of the partnership or dissociation of the partner from the partnership, may agree that he or she will not carry on a similar business within a specified geographic area where the partnership business has been transacted, as long as any other member of the partnership, or any person deriving title to the business or its goodwill from any other member of the partnership, carries on a like business in that area [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16602]. An agreement not to carry on a similar business, within the meaning of the statute, includes an agreement not to conduct, manage, or operate such a business, wholly or in part, or as the agent of another [Stephens v. Bean (1924) 65 Cal. App. 779, 785-786, 224 P. 1022] .

Similarly, Bus. & Prof. Code § 16601 allows (1) any person who sells the goodwill of a business, (2) any owner of a business entity selling or otherwise disposing of all of his or her ownership in the business entity, or (3) any owner of a business entity that sells all or substantially all of its operating assets together with the goodwill of the business entity, all or substantially all of the operating assets of a division or a subsidiary of the business entity together with the goodwill of that division or subsidiary, or all of the ownership interest of any subsidiary, to agree with the buyer to refrain from carrying on a similar business within a specified geographic area in which the business is so sold as long as the buyer, or anyone deriving title to the goodwill or from the buyer, carries on a like purpose. For purposes of that section, "business entity" includes any partnership, including a limited partnership or limited liability partnership [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16601]. In the case of a business entity that is a partnership (including a limited partnership or limited liability partnership),"owner of a business entity" includes any partner, and "ownership interest" includes a partnership interest [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16601].

[A copy of the agreement is attached as Exhibit _____ and made a part hereof.] Pursuant to the agreement, on or about _____[date], plaintiff(s) and defendant(s) finally settled all partnership accounts _____ [between or among] themselves.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a partner who is a defendant in an action to compel a partnership accounting under the pre-'97 Act or enforce a partner's rights under UPA'94 subsequent to dissolution of the partnership. A written agreement signed by the partners is a defense to an accounting or an enforcement of rights to an accounting [see Corp. Code §§ 16103(a), 16807; former Corp. Code §§ 15040, 15043]. have agreed to an accounting, the court is not permitted to undo it [Pilch v. Milikin (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 212, 223, 19 Cal. Rptr. 334] . When there has been a partial settlement between the partners, an accounting by the court is limited to the unsettled portion of the partnership business [Stretch v. Talmadge (1884) 65 Cal. 510, 511, 4 P. 513] .

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Plaintiff _____[name] is the duly appointed, qualified, and acting _____ [administrator or executor] of the estate of _____[name of deceased partner], deceased. Decedent died on _____[date].

2. [Capacity and residence of defendant(s). See form in § 406.60[1], Paragraph 1.]

The principal place of business of the partnership was located in _____[city], _____ County, California. [A copy of the agreement is attached as Exhibit _____ and made a part hereof.] The partnership, under that name, conducted the aforementioned business from that time until _____[date]; the decedent's death dissolved the partnership as of that date.

4. Since that date, defendant(s), as surviving partner(s), has/have failed to wind up the partnership affairs, and still continue(s) to carry on the partnership business, without plaintiff's consent. 3. For the appointment of a receiver to take over management and control of partnership property and assets, to wind up partnership affairs and control partnership business until winding up is completed, and to keep partnership assets until their division between the partners;

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by the legal representative of a deceased partner to obtain winding up of a partnership governed by the pre-'97 Act after dissolution, and to compel an accounting by surviving partners who have continued the partnership business.

Under the pre-'97 Act, a partnership is dissolved on the death of any partner unless the partnership agreement or other writing signed by all partners provides otherwise [former Corp. Code § 15031(4)]. Under UPA'94 the partnership is not dissolved by the death of a partner, but a deceased partner is dissociated from the partnership and statutory or partnership agreement buy-out provisions apply [see Corp. Code §§ 16601(7), 16701; Ch. 401, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners and Partnership].

Under the pre-'97 Act any partner who has not wrongfully dissolved the partnership, or his or her legal representative, may obtain a winding up of the dissolved partnership by the court [former Corp. Code § 15037]. Any partner, or his or her legal representative, is also entitled to an accounting on dissolution of the partnership [former Corp. Code § 15043]. A receiver may be appointed to carry into effect the judgment for winding up [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(3)].

If the partnership business is continued after dissolution without any accounting, the retired partner or legal representative of a deceased partner may also recover that partner's interest in the partnership at the time of dissolution, plus interest, or, alternatively, the profits made by the continuing partnership that are attributable to that partner's interest in the dissolved partnership [see former Corp. Code § 15042; see also Ch. 403, Partnerships: Actions by and Against Dissociated Partners, § 403.44[1] (form)].

This form may be modified to be used when a partnership under UPA'94 is dissolved for other reasons than the death of the partner. Paragraph 3 of the form would be modified to include the reasons for dissolution [see form in § 406.60 (paragraphs 4 and 5)]. Under UPA'94 a partner's legal representative has the right to apply for judicial supervision of a partnership's winding up on a showing of good cause [Corp. Code § 16803(a)].

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges:

- Plaintiff's capacity as legal representative of a deceased partner (Paragraph 1) [see former Corp. Code §§ 15037, 15043];

- Existence of the partnership and dissolution on the death of a deceased partner (Paragraph 3) [see former Corp. Code § 15031(4)];

- The surviving partner's or partners' failure to wind up or account to plaintiff (Paragraph 4) [see former Corp. Code § 15043];

- Provisions, if any, in the partnership agreement governing division of profits or assets (Optional Paragraph 5) [see former Corp. Code § 15040 (statutory rules for settling accounts, applicable in absence of agreement to the contrary); Mervyn Investment Co. v. Biber (1921) 184 Cal. 637, 644, 194 P. 1037 (accounting granted by partnership agreement)];

- That defendants control the partnership books, and that an accounting is necessary to determine decedent's interest (Paragraph 6) [see Whann v. Doell (1923) 192 Cal. 680, 684, 221 P. 899] ; and

- That appointment of a receiver is necessary to effect the winding up of the partnership by the court (Paragraph 7) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(3)].

[4] Rights of Deceased Partner's Representative

Under the pre-'97 Act, a personal representative of a deceased partner may apply to the court for an order that the surviving partner render an account. Such an order may be enforced by the court's power to punish for contempt [former Corp. Code § 15043; see Prob. Code § 9761]. The personal representative may also bring any action against the surviving partner that the deceased partner could have commenced and maintained [Prob. Code § 9763(a); see Prob. Code § 58].

The principal place of business of the partnership was located in _____[city], _____ County, California. [A copy of the agreement is attached as Exhibit _____ and made a part hereof.] The partnership, under that name, conducted the aforementioned business from that time until _____[date]; _____ [plaintiff's retirement or the decedent's death] dissolved the partnership as of that date.

4. Since that date, defendant(s) has/have continued to carry on the partnership business. There has been no settlement of accounts between plaintiff and defendant(s).

5. The partnership agreement provides that _____ [plaintiff or decedent] has a _____ [specify, e.g., one-third] interest in the partnership assets.

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use by either a retired partner or the legal representative of a deceased partner to obtain an accounting and the retired partner or deceased partner's interest in the partnership business, either with interest on that amount or with profits that were made by the continuing partnership business subsequent to the death or retirement and that are attributable to that partner's right in partnership property.

When any partner retires or dies, and the business is continued without any settlement of accounts as between that partner or his or her legal representative and the continuing partner or partners, then unless otherwise agreed, the retired or deceased partner or his or her legal representative may have the value of his or her interest ascertained as of the date of dissolution, and may receive that amount as an ordinary creditor. In addition, that partner or his or her legal representative may recover interest on that amount, or may recover in lieu of interest, at the option of that partner or his or her legal representative, profits made by the continuing business that are attributable to the use of that partner's right to the property of the dissolved partnership. Creditors of the dissolved partnership, however, have priority over separate creditors or the representative of the retired or deceased partner on any such claims [former Corp. Code § 15042].

For discussion and forms concerning buy-out provisions for deceased partners under UPA'94, when a partnership is not dissolved and the partner is instead treated as dissociated, see Ch. 401, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners and Partnership .

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges:

- If the action is brought by the legal representative of a deceased partner, the plaintiff's capacity as legal representative (Paragraph 1) [see former Corp. Code §§ 15042, 15043];

- The existence of the partnership, and dissolution on either the plaintiff's retirement or the decedent's death (Paragraph 3) [see former Corp. Code §§ 15031(4), (7), 15042];

- The continuance of the partnership business subsequent to dissolution, and the and lack of an accounting between plaintiff and defendant(s) (Paragraph 4) [former Corp. Code § 15042];

- Plaintiff's or the deceased partner's share of property of the dissolved partnership (Paragraph 5) [see former Corp. Code § 15042]; and

- The necessity of an accounting by defendant(s) of the partnership and the continuing business (Paragraph 6) [see former Corp. Code § 15042; Casida v. Roberts (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 853, 857, 337 P.2d 829 (retiring partner)].

[4] Right to Accounting Before Choosing Between Interest and Profits

Under the pre-'97 Act, a retired or deceased partner's right to an accounting accrues as against the partner or partners continuing the business atthe date of dissolution, in the absence of any agreement to the contrary [former Corp. Code § 15043]. In an action against the partner or partners continuing the partnership business to obtain an accounting and to recover the retired or deceased partner's interest, the retiring partner or deceased partner's representative is entitled to have an accounting made before being compelled to choose between profits and interest pursuant to former Corp. Code § 15042 [see Casida v. Roberts (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 853, 857, 337 P.2d 829 (retiring partner)].

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use by any partner seeking a decree of dissolution of a limited partnership that is governed by the CRLPA. Generally, the CRLPA governed limited partnerships formed on or after July 1, 1984, and before January 1, 2008, the operative date of the ULPA '08 [Corp. Code §§ 15711, 15714 (CRLPA), 15912.06(a)(1) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15900 et seq. (ULPA '08)]. In addition, a limited partnership formed before July 1, 1984, could elect to be governed by CRLPA if all partners, or a lesser number as required by the partnership agreement, consented in writing to the election [Corp. Code § 15712(b)(1) (CRLPA)]. Effective January 1, 2010, CRLPA is repealed [Corp. Code § 15724 (CRLPA)], and all limited partnerships, regardless of the date of formation, are governed by the ULPA '08, except as specified by the ULPA '08 [Corp. Code § 15912.06(b) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15912.06(c) (ULPA '08) (exceptions)]. However, the ULPA '08 does not affect an action commenced, proceeding brought, or right accrued before January 1, 2008 [Corp. Code § 15912.07 (ULPA '08)]. For further discussion of the coverage of the CRLPA and the ULPA '08, see Ch. 400, Partnerships: Governing Statutes .

Under the CRLPA, effective July 1, 1984, any partner may bring an action for a decree of dissolution on specified statutory grounds [see Corp. Code § 15682 (CRLPA)]. Winding up is decreed at the same time [see Corp. Code §§ 15681(d), 15683(a) (CRLPA)]. If the plaintiff seeks the appointment of a receiver to wind up partnership affairs, the allegations found in the form in § 406.60[1] pertaining to the appointment of a receiver may be combined with the allegations in this form.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges:

- Plaintiff's capacity as a general or limited partner in a limited partnership (Paragraph 1) [see Corp.

Code § 15682 (CRLPA)];

- Identification of defendants as general and limited partners (Paragraphs 2 and 3);

- Formation of the partnership by execution of the partnership agreement and filing of the certificate of limited partnership with the Secretary of State (Paragraph 4) [see Corp. Code § 15621(a), (c) (CRLPA)];

- Factual circumstances providing grounds for decree of dissolution under Corp. Code § 15682 (Paragraph 5) [Corp. Code § 15682 (CRLPA)];

- The reason why these facts necessitate the decree of dissolution pursuant to Corp. Code § 15682 (Paragraph 6);

- That the partnership be wound up and, if appropriate, the necessity that the winding up be accomplished other than by the general partners (Paragraph 7) [see Corp. Code § 15683(a) (CRLPA)]; and

- That the general partners in control of partnership records be compelled to turn over the records if the general partners are not winding up, or copies of the records if the general partners are winding up (Paragraph 8) [see Corp. Code § 15683(a) (CRLPA)].

[4] Jurisdiction and Venue

A suit for partnership dissolution is equitable in nature [Stowe v. Matson (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 678, 682, 211 P.2d 591] . Jurisdiction for equitable actions is in the superior court [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; see also Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter ;]. Unless the law specifically governing limited partnerships provides otherwise, the law governing general partnerships will also apply to limited partnerships [see former Corp. Code § 15006(2)]. Venue for an action to dissolve a general partnership is in the county of defendant's residence, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 395 [Rudnick v. Delfino (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 260, 264, 294 P.2d 983] . If there is more than one defendant in the action, and the suit is brought in the county of one defendant's residence, another defendant may not have the venue changed to his or her county of residence [Rudnick v. Delfino (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 260, 265-266, 294 P.2d 983] .

[5] Decree of Dissolution Under CRLPA

Under the CRLPA, a court may decree the dissolution of a limited partnership when any of the following occur [Corp. Code § 15682 (CRLPA); see § 406.31[2]]:

- It is not reasonably practicable to carry on the business in conformity with the partnership agreement;

- The general partners have been guilty of or have knowingly countenanced persistent and pervasive fraud or abuse of authority or persistent unfairness toward any partner;

- The property of the limited partnership is being misapplied or wasted by the general partners; or

- Dissolution is reasonably necessary for the protection of the rights or interests of the complaining partners.

Any partner may bring an action for dissolution of a limited partnership. Unlike an action for dissolution of a general partnership, however, the court has discretion to decree dissolution once the grounds for dissolution have been established [compare Corp. Code § 16801(5) and former Corp. Code § 15032 (dissolution of general partnerships by court decree) with Corp. Code § 15682 (dissolution of limited partnership by court decree under CRLPA)].

[6] Winding Up

A decree ordering the winding up of the partnership is made at the same time as the decree dissolving the partnership [see Corp. Code §§ 15681(d), 15583(a) (CRLPA)]. Except as provided in the partnership agreement, the general partners who have not wrongfully dissolved a limited partnership or, if there are none, the limited partners, may wind up the limited partnership's affairs. If the dissolution is by court decree, however, winding up is conducted in accordance with the decree of dissolution [Corp. Code § 15683(a) (CRLPA)]. Therefore, the plaintiff should seek any appropriate orders regarding who should wind up at the time plaintiff seeks the decree of dissolution, including an order that the general partners turn over the financial records so that the amounts owed in settling accounts can be ascertained [see Corp. Code § 15684 (CRLPA)]. For discussion of the limited partners' rights to inspect partnership books generally, see Ch. 404, Partnerships: Actions Between Limited Partners and Partnership .

[7] Certificates of Dissolution and Cancellation

On dissolution of a limited partnership, the person authorized to execute the certificate in accordance with Corp. Code § 15624 [see § 406.36[5][b]] must file with the Secretary of State, on a form prescribed by the Secretary of State, a certificate of dissolution [Corp. Code § 15623(a)(1) (CRLPA)]. A certificate of dissolution may be expunged by filing a certificate of continuation in any of the circumstances set forth in Corp. Code § 15623(c)(1) [see Corp. Code § 15623(c)(1) (CRLPA); § 406.36[2]]. After winding up of the partnership affairs has been completed, the person authorized to execute the certificate in accordance with Corp. Code § 15624 [see § 406.35[6]] must file a certificate of cancellation of certificate of limited partnership [Corp. Code § 15623(b)(1) (CRLPA); see § 406.36[3][b]].

[2] Use of Form

The petition in [1], above, is for use under the CRLPA by either the limited partners representing five percent or more of the interests of limited partners or three or more creditors of the limited partnership, to obtain an order to wind up the limited partnership following dissolution. Such an order may be obtained by petition if it appears necessary for the protection of any parties in interest [Corp. Code § 15683(b) (CRLPA)].

The CRLPA governed limited partnerships formed on or after July 1, 1984, and before January 1, 2008, the operative date of the ULPA '08 [Corp. Code §§ 15711, 15714 (CRLPA), 15912.06(a)(1) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15900 et seq. (ULPA '08)]. In addition, a limited partnership formed before July 1, 1984, could elect to be governed by CRLPA if all partners, or a lesser number as required by the partnership agreement, consented in writing to the election [Corp. Code § 15712(b)(1) (CRLPA)]. Effective January 1, 2010, CRLPA is repealed [Corp. Code § 15724 (CRLPA)], and all limited partnerships, regardless of the date of formation, are governed by the ULPA '08, except as specified by the ULPA '08 [Corp. Code § 15912.06(b) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15912.06(c) (ULPA '08) (exceptions)]. However, the ULPA '08 does not affect an action commenced, proceeding brought, or right accrued before January 1, 2008 [Corp. Code § 15912.07 (ULPA '08)]. For further discussion of the coverage of the CRLPA and the ULPA '08, see Ch. 400, Partnerships: Governing Statutes .

[3] Contents of Petition

The petition in [1], above, alleges:

- That respondents are general partners (Paragraph 2) [see Corp. Code § 15683(a),(b) (CRLPA)];

- That the limited partnership has been dissolved (Paragraph 3) [see Corp. Code §§ 15681, 15683 (CRLPA)];

- The necessity for an order to wind up the partnership to protect any parties in interest, and designation of the person who should accomplish the winding up (Paragraph 4) [Corp. Code § 15683(b) (CRLPA)]; and

- The necessity for ordering the respondents to turn over the partnership records to the winding up petitioners or copies of the partnership records if the respondents are to wind up (Paragraph 5) [see Corp. Code § 15683 (CRLPA)].

[4] Designation and Compensation of Persons Winding Up

The decree ordering winding up must designate who will accomplish the winding up [Corp. Code § 15683(b) (CRLPA)]. Any limited partners who areto wind up are entitled to reasonable compensation for doing so [Corp. Code § 15683(c) (CRLPA)].

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use by a limited partner in a limited partnership governed by the ULPA [Corp. Code § 15501 et seq. (ULPA)]. Generally, the ULPA governed limited partnerships formed before July 1, 1984, the operative date of the California Revised Limited Partnership Act (CRLPA) [Corp. Code § 15711 (CRLPA); see Corp. Code § 15611 et seq. (CRLPA)]. On or after July 1, 1984, a limited partnership formed under the ULPA could elect to be governed by CRLPA [Corp. Code § 15712(b)(1) (CRLPA)]. Also, on or after January 1, 2008, a limited partnership originally formed under the ULPA could elect to be governed by the Uniform Limited Partnership Act of 2008 (ULPA '08) [Corp. Code § 15912.06(a)(2) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15900 et seq. (ULPA '08)]. Effective January 1, 2010, ULPA is repealed [Corp. Code § 15534 (ULPA)], and all limited partnerships, regardless of the date of formation, are governed by the ULPA '08, except as specified by the ULPA '08 [Corp. Code § 15912.06(b) (ULPA '08); see Corp. Code § 15912.06(c) (ULPA '08) (exceptions)]. However, the ULPA '08 does not affect an action commenced, proceeding brought, or right accrued before January 1, 2008 [Corp. Code § 15912.07 (ULPA '08)]. For further discussion of the coverage of the ULPA and the ULPA '08, see Ch. 400, Partnerships: Governing Statutes .

A limited partner in a partnership governed by the ULPA is entitled to have the partnership dissolved and its affairs wound up when he or she rightfully but unsuccessfully demands a return of his or her contribution to the partnership or when the other liabilities of the partnership have not been paid or the partnership property is insufficient for their payment and the limited partner would otherwise be entitled to the return of his or her contribution [Corp. Code § 15516(4) (ULPA)].

Under ULPA, a limited partner also has the same rights as a general partner to have a dissolution and winding up by court decree or to have a formal account of partnership affairs whenever circumstances render it just and reasonable [Corp. Code § 15510(1) (ULPA)]. For discussion of when a general partner may obtain a decree of dissolution, see § 406.31[3][a].

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges:

- Plaintiff's capacity as a limited partner in a limited partnership (Paragraph 1) [see Corp. Code § 15516(4) (ULPA)];

- That defendants are general and limited partners of that partnership (Paragraphs 2 and 3);

- Formation of the partnership by execution of the partnership agreement and filing of the certificate of limited partnership with Secretaryof State, as required by Corp. Code § 15712(b)(2) (CRLPA) of all existing partnerships, effective January 1, 1984 (Paragraph 4) [see Corp. Code § 15712(b)(2) (CRLPA)];

- Plaintiff's demand for return of his/her/its contribution, or plaintiff's entitlement to return of his/her/its contribution but the partnership's failure or inability to pay its other liabilities first (Paragraph 5) [Corp. Code § 15516(4) (ULPA)];

- Plaintiff's right to have the partnership dissolved and its affairs wound up (Paragraph 6) [Corp. Code § 15516(4) (ULPA); see also Corp. Code § 15510(1)(c) (ULPA)];

- The necessity for an accounting from the defendant general partners (Paragraph 7) [see Corp. Code § 15510(1)(b) (ULPA)]; and

- Plaintiff's share of partnership profits or other entitlement to compensation above his, her, or its contribution to the partnership (Paragraph 8) [see Corp. Code §§ 15510(2), 15516 (ULPA)].

[4] Jurisdiction and Venue

An action for a partnership dissolution is equitable in nature [Stowe v. Matson (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 678, 682, 211 P.2d 591] . Jurisdiction for equitable actions is in the superior court [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; see also Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter]. The actions are not limited civil cases unless the total assets of the partnership do not exceed $25,000 [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(2), (b)]. Unless the law specifically governing limited partnerships provides otherwise, the law governing general partnerships will also apply to limited partnerships [see former Corp. Code § 15006(2) (pre-'97 Act)]. Venue for an action to dissolve a general partnership is in the county of defendant's residence, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 395 [Rudnick v. Delfino (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 260, 264, 294 P.2d 983] . If there is more than one defendant in the action, and the suit is brought in the county of one defendant's residence, another defendant may not have the venue changed to his or her county of residence [Rudnick v. Delfino (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 260, 265-266, 294 P.2d 983] .

[5] Decree of Dissolution Under ULPA

ULPA does not have specific provisions listing the grounds for dissolution of a limited partnership. Aside from a limited partner's right to have dissolution and winding up on failure to receive a return of his, her, or its contribution, the act merely provides that a limited partner has the same rights as a general partner to have dissolution and winding up of the partnership by court decree and to have a formal account of partnership affairs whenever circumstances render it just and reasonable [Corp. Code § 15510(1)(b), (c) (ULPA)]. The statutory provisions governing general partnerships also govern limited partnerships in the absence of conflictingprovisions relating specifically to limited partnerships [former Corp. Code § 15006(2) (pre-'97 Act)]. For discussion of when a general partner may obtain a decree of dissolution, see § 406.31[3][a].

PART I. SCOPE

35-411 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 411.01

§ 411.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the assignment of patent rights, patent licensing agreements, and the invention rights of employers and employees to inventions made by employees.

Forms include complaints for breach of patent licensing agreements [see § 411.110, 411.111], a complaint for declaratory relief adjudicating an employer's right to use an employee's invention [see § 411.112], and an employee's affirmative defenses against suits by employers asserting rights to the employee's invention [§§ 411.113, 411.114].

Except for a general discussion of federal patent law and its relationship to state court actions involving patent matters, this chapter does not deal with federal patent law or patent infringement actions, which are brought in federal court [see 28 U.S.C. §§ 1338, 1400]. Federal patent matters normally are handled by legal specialists having a technical knowledge of patents and patent law procedures, and an attorney who is not a specialist may be subject to malpractice liability for failing to refer his or her client to a specialist when it is appropriate to do so [see Horne v. Peckham (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 404, 414, 415, 158 Cal. Rptr. 714] . An adequate treatment of this complex and specialized area would be beyond the scope of this chapter. For a detailed treatment of federal patent law, see Adelman, Patent Law Perspectives (2d ed. Matthew Bender); Chisum, Chisum on Patents (Matthew Bender); and Horwitz, Patent Office Rules and Practice (Matthew Bender)

This chapter also deals with the special statutory remedies provided under Bus. & Prof. Code Chapter 17 (Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22370-22394), regulating invention development services. It includes discussion of the scope and coverage of Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22370-22394, requirements imposed on invention developers and invention development contracts, and remedies available to customers and other injured persons on an invention developer's violation of Bus. & Prof. Code Chapter 17. It also includes forms of complaints by a customer or injured person for special action for statutory damages [see §§ 411.130 -411.133], forms of complaints by a customer against the invention developer and the in vention developer's surety under an action on a bond [§§ 411.134, 411.135], and affirmative defenses that the plaintiff is not a "customer" within the meaning of Chapter 17 [see § 411.136], that the defendant is not an "invention developer" within the meaning of Chapter 17 [see § 411.137], that the invention development services contract is void for noncompliance with Chapter 17 [§§ 411.139, 411.140], and that the invention development services contract is voidable by the customer on the failure of the invention developer to make required disclosures [§§ 411.141, 411.142].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. PATENT RIGHTS AND AGREEMENTS

35-411 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 411.11

§ 411.11 Patent Rights

[1] Overview of Federal Patent Law

The United States Constitution grants Congress the power to promote the progress of science and useful arts by giving inventors exclusive rights to their inventions for a limited time [U.S. Const., art. I, § 8, cl 8]. Under federal patent law, whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent, with certain specified exceptions [35 U.S.C. § 101; see 35 U.S.C. § 102]. A patent grants the patentee and his or her heirs and assigns the right to exclude others from making, selling, or using the patented article throughout the United States for a term of 17 years [35 U.S.C. § 154].

Except as otherwise provided in 35 U.S.C. § 1 et seq., whoever, without authorization, makes, uses, or sells any patented invention within the United States during the term of the patent, infringes the patent [35 U.S.C. § 271]. A patent holder may bring a civil action in federal court for infringement of the patent [35 U.S.C. § 281; see 28 U.S.C. § 1338(a)]. Remedies for patent infringement include injunction, compensatory damages, and attorney's fees [35 U.S.C. §§ 283-285].

[2] Federal Preemption

Under the Supremacy Clause of the Constitution [U.S. Const., art. VI], federal law controls the field of patents. A state may not pass laws that encroach directly on federal patent laws, nor may it pass laws, such as those forbidding unfair competition, that give protection that clashes with the objectives of federal patent law [Sears, Roebuck & Co. v. Stiffel Co. (1964) 376 U.S. 225, 229, 231, 84 S. Ct. 784, 11 L. Ed. 2d 661] . Therefore, a plaintiff cannot bring an action based on a state unfair competition statute if the statute endows the plaintiff with rights against the world, similar in scope and operation to the rights accorded a patent holder [Bonito Boats v. Thunder Craft Boats (1989) 489 U.S. 141, 109 S. Ct. 971, 103 L. Ed. 2d 118, 130, 139 (striking Florida unfair competition statute that paralleled Bus. & Prof. Code § 17300)]. Nevertheless, the states may regulate the area of patents to the extent that such regulation does not conflict with the operation of federal patent law [Kewanee Oil Co. v. Bicron Corp. (1974) 416 U.S. 470, 479, 94 S. Ct. 1879, 40 L. Ed. 2d 315] . For example, a state may control the labeling and trademarks of an invention, whether patented or not, but it may not prohibit the copying of an unpatented invention or award damages for such copying [Sears, Roebuck & Co. v. Stiffel Co. (1964) 376 U.S. 225, 232-233, 84 S. Ct. 784, 11 L. Ed. 2d 661] .

Federal law does not govern nonpatentable subject matter, which the states are free to regulate [Kewanee Oil Co. v. Bicron Corp. (1974) 416 U.S. 470, 482-483, 94 S. Ct. 1879, 40 L. Ed. 2d 315] . Federal law also does not preempt a state's trade secret laws or contract laws governing patent licensing agreements [Aronson v. Quick Point Pencil Co. (1978) 440 U.S. 257, 262, 265-266, 99 S. Ct. 1096, 59 L. Ed. 2d 296 ; Kewanee Oil Co. v. Bicron Corp. (1974) 416 U.S. 470, 474, 94 S. Ct. 1879, 40 L. Ed. 2d 315] . A state statute, however, cannot provide patent-like protection for subject matter for which patent protection has been denied or has expired, or for designs that have been freely revealed to the consuming public and therefore are no longer patentable [Bonito Boats v. Thunder Craft Boats (1989) 489 U.S. 141, 109 S. Ct. 971, 103 L. Ed. 2d 118, 140, 145] .

[3] Jurisdiction Over Patent Rights

The U.S. district courts have original and exclusive jurisdiction in cases in which a well-pleaded complaint establishes that federal patent law creates the cause of action--for instance, the plaintiff sues on a claim of patent infringement or seeks a declaratory judgment on the validity of a patent--or establishes that the plaintiff's right to relief necessarily depends on resolution of a substantial question of federal patent law, in that patent law is a necessary element of one of the well-pleaded claims [28 U.S.C. § 1338(a); Christianson v. Colt Indus. Operating Corp. (1988) 486 U.S. 800, 808-809, 108 S. Ct. 2166, 100 L. Ed. 2d 811]. For instance, patent law was a necessary element of an inventor's claims in a complaint alleging malicious prosecution, intentional interference with prospective economic relations, fraudulent misrepresentations, and unfair competition, because all of the inventor's claims were based on the defendant's request to the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office for reexamination of the validity of two of the inventor's patents, on the ground that the claims of the patents were anticipated by prior patents or publications. Therefore, the case was within the exclusive jurisdiction of the federal courts [Lockwood v. Sheppard, Mullin, Richter & Hampton (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 675, 678, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 220].

An action for damages based on breach of a patent licensing agreement [see § 411.12] has usually been considered as arising under state law, notwithstanding the potential for adjudication of patent issues [H.J. Heinz Co. v. Superior Court (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 164, 173, 266 P.2d 5]. While it could be possible for such a case to fall within the exclusive jurisdiction of federal courts [see Applera Corp. v. MP Biomedicals, LLC (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 769, 782, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 178], a case does not arise under the patent laws merely because questions of patent law may arise in the course of interpreting a contract [Linear Tech. Corp. v. Applied Materials, Inc. (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 115, 125, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 221]. The jurisdictional issue comes down to whether, looking at only the essential allegations in the complaint, it is possible to conclude that the plaintiff could be entitled to the requested relief for a reason completely unrelated to the provisions and purposes of the patent laws. If so, then a state court can have jurisdiction because, although patent law issues conceivably could arise in the action, relief would not necessarily depend on the resolution of those issues [Applera Corp. v. MP Biomedicals, LLC (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 769, 783-785, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 178 (right to collect royalties owed under patent licensing agreement can be validly assigned under Civ. Code §§ 954 and 1044 without also assigning underlying patent rights, and state court had jurisdiction of assignee's action for contract damages based on alleged failure to pay royalties on products sold under patent licensing agreement)].

[4] Assignability of Patent Rights

Patents have the attributes of personal property. Applications for patents, or any interests in patents are assignable in law by an instrument in writing. A patent applicant, patent holder, or his or her assigns or legal representatives may grant and convey an exclusive right under the application or patent itself. That right may extend to the whole or any specified part of the United States [35 U.S.C. § 261]. Any assignment less than an exclusive right or an undivided part or share of an exclusive right conveys a license only, giving the licensee no title in the patent and no right to sue for a patent infringement [Fruit Machinery Co. v. F.M. Ball & Co. (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d 748, 759, 258 P.2d 852 ; see discussion § 411.12].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. PATENT RIGHTS AND AGREEMENTS

35-411 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 411.12

§ 411.12 Patent Licensing Agreements

[1] Generally

A patent holder may grant a license to make, sell, or use the patented invention [Pendleton v. Ferguson (1940)15 Cal. 2d 319, 323 ; Braun, Bryant & Austin v. McGuire (1927) 201 Cal. 134, 141, 255 P. 808] . An inventor applying for a patent may also make a contract granting a license to make, sell, or use the invention although the patent has not yet been issued [see Kittle Mfg. Co. v. Davis (1935) 8 Cal. App. 2d 504, 506-511, 47 P.2d 1089 ; Fenn v. Pickwick Corp. (1931) 117 Cal. App. 236, 238, 243, 4 P.2d 215] . If a patent is jointly owned, one co-owner may make an agreement with a third party, granting the third party a license to make, sell, or use the article, without the consent of the other co-owner [Ragan v. Sirigo (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 832, 833-834, 326 P.2d 26] .

The fundamental difference between a license and an assignment by a patent holder is that in granting a license, the patent holder retains title to the patent, but by an assignment, the patent holder transfers title to the patent. While the federal patent statutes unequivocally deal with assignments, those statutes contain no provisions governing licenses [SuperBrace, Inc. v. Tidwell (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 388, 393, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 404] .

The license conferred by a licensing agreement may be limited to a right to make the article, or it may be the right to make and use the article without the right to sell it, or it may be only the right to sell the article [see Braun, Bryant & Austin v. McGuire (1927) 201 Cal. 134, 142, 255 P. 808 ; Fruit Machinery Co. v. F.M. Ball & Co. (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d 748, 759, 258 P.2d 852] . If the license conveyed is the right to sell the patented article, the terms of the licensing agreement may limit the methods and prices of sale, and the patent holder may retain for himself or herself a right to sell the article also [Fruit Machinery Co. v. F.M. Ball & Co. (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d 748, 759, 258 P.2d 852] .

A licensee may be bound under the terms of the licensing agreement to pay royalties to the patent holder or he or she may be required to perform some other condition, such as manufacturing a specified number of articles per year [see Fenn v. Pickwick Corp. (1931) 117 Cal. App. 236, 239, 240, 4 P.2d 215] .

Whenever a person who owns a patent transfers that patent to another person so that the transferee can make and sell a product embodying that patent, the value of the patent interest is exempt from sales and use tax under Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 6011(c)(10) and 6012(c)(10) [see Preston v. State Bd. of Equalization (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 197, 214, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 407, 19 P.3d 1148 (construction and application of those code sections, which apply to both patents and copyrights, in case involving copyright in works of art)].

[2] Assignability of Benefits or Obligations Under Agreement

Because the federal patent statutes contain no provisions governing licenses, federal courts have fashioned a rule of federal common law to apply in cases concerning transfers of patent licenses. However, in California, the Supreme Court has determined that state law, not federal common law, should be applied in deciding whether a patent license is assignable [SuperBrace, Inc. v. Tidwell (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 388, 394, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 404 (extensive review of Dopplmaier opinion, cited below, and more-recent federal cases invites conclusion that Dopplmaier remains controlling)].

The rights or benefits under a patent licensing contract are freely transferable by assignment unless the contract terms indicate another intent or unless assignment would materially impair the nonassigning party's chance of obtaining performance [Farmland Irrigation Co. v. Dopplmaier (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 208, 222, 308 P.2d 732] . Although the benefits of a licensing agreement are generally assignable, a licensee's duties or obligations are nonassignable if the duties are of such a personal nature thattheir performance by someone else would deprive the other party of his or her bargain [Farmland Irrigation Co. v. Dopplmaier (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 208, 222, 308 P.2d 732 ; see Fenn v. Pickwick Corp. (1931) 117 Cal. App. 236, 242, 4 P.2d 215] .

[3] Actions on Licensing Agreements

Rights under patent licensing agreements arise from contract law, rather than from the fact that patent rights are involved [Farmland Irrigation Co. v. Dopplmaier (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 208, 220, 308 P.2d 732] . Therefore, the usual contract remedies apply, and a party to the contract may bring an action in state court to set aside, specifically enforce, or recover royalties on the contract [see Farmland Irrigation Co. v. Dopplmaier (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 208, 217, 308 P.2d 732] . For example, if the licensee fails to pay royalties as required under the agreement, the patentee elects either to treat the contract as terminated and sue for damages, or to sue for the royalties under the terms of the contract [Kittle Mfg. Co. v. Davis (1935) 8 Cal. App. 2d 504, 511, 47 P.2d 1089 ; see §§ 411.110, 411.111]. A licensing agreement may be reformed when, for example, there has been a mutual mistake of the contracting parties [Holmes v. Anderson (1928) 90 Cal. App. 276, 281, 282, 265 P. 1010] .

Other remedies may also apply. For example, when a licensee uses a patented article after the contract has been cancelled, the patentee may seek an injunction in state court on the theory of liability under an implied contract [Seagren v. Smith (1944) 63 Cal. App. 2d 733, 738 .

[1] Employer's Rights to Invention

An employer who discovers or conceives of a new principle or improvement in a machine is the owner of the resulting invention and is entitled to the patent, even if he or she is required to employ others to perfect the details or make improvements, as long as those improvements do not depart from the original principle and purpose of the employer [Banner Metals, Inc. v. Lockwood (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 643, 659-660, 3 Cal. Rptr. 421 ; Famous Players-Lasky Corp. v. Ewing (1920) 49 Cal. App. 676, 679-680, 194 P. 65] .

Even if the employee's improvements do depart from the original invention conceived by the employer, the employee may have contracted away his or her rights to his or her invention by an employment contract [Banner Metals, Inc. v. Lockwood (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 643, 658-659, 3 Cal. Rptr. 421] . An employment contract may expressly require the employee to assign patent rights in his or her inventions to the employer, with certain specific exceptions [see Banner Metals, Inc. v. Lockwood (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 643, 659, 3 Cal. Rptr. 421 ; but see Lab. Code § 2870 and discussion § 411.13[2]]. When the agreement incorporates the employer's separately stated policy on dividing royalty payments between the employer and employees, the employer may not subsequently change that policy unilaterally to the employee's detriment [Shaw v. Regents of the University of California (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 44, 53-56, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 850] .

When no express agreement exists requiring an employee to assign his or her invention rights to an employer, a court may infer one from the circumstances of the employment. If the employee is hired to invent, such an agreement is implied, but if the employee is hired merely to design, construct, or devise methods of manufacture no such agreement is implied [see Banner Metals, Inc. v. Lockwood (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 643, 658-659, 3 Cal. Rptr. 421] .

An employer may also have a shop right or nonexclusive license to use an employee's invention. Like assignments of patent rights, a license may be granted by an express agreement, or it may be implied from the circumstances of the employment, either on the theory of an implied agreement to be determined by the intention of the parties or on the theory of an implication of law from the existing facts [Banner Metals, Inc. v. Lockwood (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 643, 655, 3 Cal. Rptr. 421] . A shop right will be inferred by a court when an employee during his or her hours of employment, working with the employer's materials and appliances, conceives, and perfects an invention for which the employee obtains a patent [Banner Metals, Inc. v. Lockwood (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 643, 661, 3 Cal. Rptr. 421 ; see § 411.112]. An employer has no rights to an employee's invention, however, when the employer has rejected the invention as impractical [Banner Metals, Inc. v. Lockwood (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 643, 660-661, 3 Cal. Rptr. 421 ; see § 411.113].

[2] Employee's Rights

Any provision in an employment agreement that provides that an employee must assign, or offer to assign, any of his or her rights in an invention to his or her employer does not apply to an invention that the employee developed entirely on his or her own time, without using the employer's equipment, supplies, facilities, or trade secret information, except for inventions that either (1) relate at the time of conception or reduction to practice of the invention to the employer's business, or actual or demonstrably anticipated research or development of the employer or (2) result from any work performed by the employee for the employer [Lab. Code § 2870(a); see Cubic Corp. v. Marty (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 438, 452, 229 Cal. Rptr. 828 (construing former Lab. Code § 2870)]. To the extent a provision in an employment agreement purports to require an employee to assign an invention otherwise excluded from being requiredto be assigned under Lab. Code § 2870(a), the provision is against public policy and is unenforceable [Lab. Code § 2870(b); see § 411.114].

An employer may not require such a provision as a condition of employment or continued employment. Nevertheless, an employer may include in an employment contract provisions requiring disclosure of all of an employee's inventions, made solely or jointly with others, during the term of his or her employment, so long as these disclosures are received in confidence. An employer may also provide for a review process to determine these issues that may arise regarding the inventions, and may provide for full title to certain patents and inventions to be in the United States as required by contracts between the employer and the United States or any of its agencies [Lab. Code § 2871].

Any employment agreement that requires the employee to assign or offer to assign to the employer the employee's rights to any invention must also contain a written notification to the employee that the agreement does not apply to an invention qualifying under the terms of Lab. Code § 2870. In any action arising from the provisions of Lab. Code § 2870 the burden of proof is on the employee claiming the benefits of those provisions [Lab. Code § 2872].

§ 411.14 Unpatented Inventions Generally

Under California law, the inventor of an invention or design has exclusive ownership of it and of the representation or expression of it, which continues so long as the invention or design and representations or expressions remain in his or her possession [Civ. Code § 980(b)]. Such an inventor is entitled to injunctive relief and compensatory and punitive damages against anyone who misappropriates the protected invention, but the inventor's rights are lost once he or she intentionally makes the invention public [see Zachary v. Western Publishing Co. (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 911, 918, 143 Cal. Rptr. 34 (decided prior to amendment of Civ. Code §§ 980-983 deleting references to literary property governed by Federal Copyright Act of 1976 (17 U.S.C. §§ 101-702); see also Civ. Code § 983]. Because California legislation protects only inventions that are in the inventor's possession and not inventions that are made public, it is outside the purview and objectives of federal patent law [see Kewanee Oil Co. v. Bicron Corp. (1974) 416 U.S. 470, 479, 94 S. Ct. 1879, 40 L. Ed. 2d 315 ; *Sears, Roebuck & Co. v. Stiffel Co. (1964) 376 U.S. 225, 229, 231, 84 S. Ct. 784, 11 L. § 411.31 Subject of Regulation

[1] Invention Developer

Chapter 17 of the Business and Professions Code (Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22370-22394), enacted in 1975, regulates the business and transactions of invention developers. An invention developer is a person, firm, corporation, or association, and his, her, or its agents, employees, or representatives, that develops or promotes or offers to develop or promote an invention [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22371(d)]. An invention developer generally offers his, her, or its services for sums ranging from $500 to $5,000, plus either a percentage of the income derived from marketing the invention or a partial ownership interest in the invention [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22370(a)].

The term "invention developer" does not include any government department or agency, any charitable, scientific, educational, religious, or other nonprofit organization, any person or business entity whose gross receipts from invention development services do not exceed 10 percent of its total gross receipts during the fiscal year preceding the year in which any invention development services contract is signed, or any person or business entity that does not charge a fee for invention development services [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22371(d)]. The Legislature also expressly stated that it did not intend Chapter 17 to interfere with or further regulate persons who provide researching, marketing, surveying, or other consulting services to professional manufacturers, marketers, publishers, or others, as an adjunct to the traditional commercial enterprises in which they engage as a livelihood [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22370(b)].

[2] Protected Customer

For the purposes of Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22370-22394, a customer is any person, firm, corporation, or other entity that is solicited by, inquires about or seeks the services of, or enters into a contract for invention development services with an invention developer. The term "customer," as used in Chapter 17, however, does not include any government agency, any charitable, scientific, educational, religious, or other nonprofit organization, or any person or entity regularly engaged in a trade, business, or profession that has either a net worth of $100,000 or more, or grossreceipts from any source of $50,000 or more during the calendar year in which any invention development services contract is signed [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22371(b)].

[3] Contract for Invention Development Services

A contract for invention development services, for the purposes of Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22370-22394, includes a contract by which an invention developer undertakes to develop or promote an invention for a customer [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22371(a)]. An "invention," as used in Chapter 17, means an invention, an idea, a concept, or any combination thereof [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22371(c)]. The term "invention development services" includes acts required or promised to be performed, or acts actually performed, or both, by an invention developer for a customer [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22371(e)].

35-411 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 411.32

§ 411.32 Legislative Intent in Regulating Invention Development Services

The Legislature expressly stated its finding that in California there are members of the general public who are inventors, who do not have the resources or expertise necessary to develop, manufacture, or market their ideas or inventions, and who generally do not earn their livelihood by developing, manufacturing, promoting, or marketing ideas or inventions. The Legislature has also found that there is a significant number of persons who, realizing that such inventors are willing to expend substantial sums for services represented to promote their ideas or inventions, offer invention development services, but who rarely effectively promote or market the inventions. These invention developers have worked fraud, deceit, imposition, and financial hardship on many people. The Legislature stated that legal protection to consumers prior to 1975 has been inadequate to prevent such abuses [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22370(a)].

The purpose of Chapter 17, as stated by the Legislature, is to safeguard the public against fraud and to foster and encourage competition, fair dealing, and prosperity in the field of invention development services, by prohibiting false and misleading advertising, onerous contract terms, harmful financial practices, and other unfair or dishonest practices in connection with invention development services [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22370(b)].

§ 411.33 Statutory Disclosure Requirements

[1] Prior to Contract for Invention Development Services

Chapter 17 requires invention developers to make certain disclosures prior to entering into a contract for invention development services [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22380, 22381]. Failure to make these disclosures will render any contracts subsequently entered into between the customer and the invention developer voidable by the customer [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22388].

[2] Fees

[a] In General

Any invention developer who charges a fee or requires any consideration for his, her, or its invention development services must clearly and conspicuously disclose the required fee or consideration in every advertisement of such services [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22380]. In the first written or oral communication with a customer, other than for the purpose of arranging an appointment, the invention developer is required to disclose to the customer (1) a statement of the fee or approximate range of fees charged, (2) if applicable, a statement that a portion of the charged fee will be paid as a commission to the person inducing the customer to contract for the invention developer's services, and (3) a statement of the approximate portion of the charged fee, if any, that will be expended for services relating to patent matters [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22381(a)].

[b] Other Required Disclosures

In the first written or oral communication with a customer, other than to arrange an appointment, the invention developer must include, in addition to disclosures regarding fees, the following:

- A statement that the invention developer does not intend to expend more for the invention development services than the fee charged the customer, or, if the invention developer does intend to expend more than the fee charged, a statement of estimated expenditures in excess of the fee received [

Bus. & Prof. Code § 22381(b)];

- A single statement setting forth the total number of customers who have contracted with the invention developer excluding those contracting within the last 30 days, and the number of customers that have received money in excess of the amount paid to the invention developer as a result of the invention developer's services [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22381(c)]; and

- The following statement: "Your potential patent rights may be adversely affected by any attempt to commercialize your idea or invention before a patent application covering it is filed. Nonconfidential disclosures of your idea or invention may also trigger certain statutory deadlines for filing a patent application in the United States and would prevent you from obtaining valid patent rights in countries whose law provides that patent applications must be filed before there is a public disclosure. Any contract for inventiondevelopment services between you and our firm will be regulated by law. Our firm is not qualified or permitted to advise you whether protection of your idea or invention is available under the patent, copyright or trademark laws of the United States or any other law. The contract does not provide any patent, copyright or trademark protection for your idea or invention. If your idea or invention is patentable, copyrightable or subject to trademark protection, or infringes an existing valid patent, copyright or trademark or a patent, copyright or trademark for which application has been made, your failure to inquire into these matters may affect your rights to your idea or invention."

[3] On Contract Cover Sheet

A distinctive and conspicuous cover sheet is required on every contract for invention development services. The cover sheet is required to contain a specific statement, set forth in the statute, disclosing that the customer has an unconditional right to cancel the contract within seven days, the method for cancelling the contract, that the invention developer is required to return the customer's money by mail within five days of cancellation, and that the contract is unrelated to patent, copyright, or trademark protection for the customer's invention or idea [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22374].

The cover sheet is also required to disclose that the customer's potential patent rights may be adversely affected by the customer's attempt to commercialize the idea or invention before a patent application is filed. A disclosure is also required stating that nonconfidential disclosures could trigger statutory deadlines for filing patent applications [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22374].

[4] In Contract

Every contract for invention development services is required to contain, among other information, disclosures regarding the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22379]:

- Specific acts or services intended to be performed on the customer's behalf;

- Any intention by the invention developer to construct or sell prototypes or models of the invention or idea;

- The invention developer's address, agent for service of process and custodian of records;

- Fees charged and expenditures related to fees;

- The basis for any projected or estimated customer earnings;

- Information regarding prior customers and income received by them;

- That the invention developer is required to maintain all records relating to the invention for three years after the contract expires;

- Availability of records and correspondence regarding the invention;

- Expected date of completion of invention development services; and

- A specified statement, set forth by statute, that the contract is unrelated to patent, copyright, or trademark protection, and that the customer's potential patent rights could be affected by attempts to commercialize the idea or invention and by nonconfidential disclosures made to the invention developer.

The contract is also required to inform the customer of his or her cancellation rights and the method of cancellation, and is required to contain a specific statement, set forth by statute, informing the customer of the expiration date for the period of cancellation [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22373, 22379(a)]. A copy of the contract must be given to the customer at the time he or she signs the contract [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22372(a)].

[5] Notification of Subsequent Contracts

If the invention developer plans one or more subsequent contracts with the customer, a written statement to that effect must be supplied to the customer, together with a copy of the subsequent contract or a written summary of the general terms of every such subsequent contract, including the amount of fees required from the customer. The written statement must be given to the customer at the time he or she signs the first contract [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22372(b)].

[6] After Contract

With respect to every invention development services contract, the invention developer is required to deliver to the customer, at the address specified in the contract, a written quarterly statement of the services performed to date. The first such statement need not be delivered until 180 days after the contract is executed [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22378].

§ 411.34 Confidentiality

An invention developer must maintain as confidential all disclosures made to it by a customer seeking invention development services, except for [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22395]:

- Information that at the time of disclosure is in the public domain.

- Information that, after disclosure, becomes part of the public domain by publication or otherwise, independently of any act or omission by the invention developer.

- Information that the invention developer can establish by competent proof was in its possession at the time of disclosure by the customer, and was not acquired, directly or indirectly, from the customer.

- Information that the invention developer receives from a third party; provided, however, that such information was not obtained in confidence by said third party, directly or indirectly, from the customer.

This duty of confidentiality includes the duty on the part of the invention developer to take reasonable steps to prevent disclosure of confidential information to third parties. This confidential relationship cannot be waived by a customer without an express written waiver by the customer of the invention developer's obligation of confidentiality, and no waiver may be entered into until after the disclosures described in Bus. & Prof. Code § 22381 have been made [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22395].

§ 411.35 Other Requirements

[1] Bond

Every invention developer in California is required to maintain a bond issued by a surety company admitted to do business in California [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22389]. The principal sum of the bond must be five percent of the invention developer's gross income from the invention development business in the state during the developer's last fiscal year, and must not be less than $25,000 in any year of operation. A copy of the bond must be filed with the Secretary of State before the time the invention developer first commences business in California. The invention developer has 90 days after the end of each fiscal year within which to change the bond to conform to these requirements [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22389].

The required bond must be in favor of the state, for the benefit of any person who, after contracting with the invention developer, is damaged by fraud, dishonesty, or failure to provide the services of the invention developer under the contract [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22390].

Under statutory provisions governing bonds generally, the beneficiary under a bond may bring a civil action to enforce a bond against the surety and the principal [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 996.410, 996.430]. The surety's liability may not exceed the amount of the bond [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.470].

For further discussion and forms relating to bonds generally, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings .

[2] Deposit in Lieu of Bond

Until 1999, in lieu of maintaining a bond, the invention developer could make a deposit with the Secretary of State in the same amount as required for the bond [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.710(a)]. The deposit could be made in cash, maintained by the Secretary of State in an interest-bearing trust account, bearer bonds or bearer notes of the United States or the State of California, certificates of deposit, savings accounts assigned to the Secretary of State, investment certificates or share accounts assigned to the Secretary of State issued by savings and loan associations, and certificates for funds or share accounts assigned to the Secretary of State issued by a credit union [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.710(a)].

Any invention developer who made a deposit before 1999 may continue to use that deposit in lieu of a bond. However, the deposit cannot be renewed [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.710(e)].

If an invention developer made a deposit in lieu of a bond, a person asserting a claim against the deposit must, in lieu of the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 996.430, establish the claim by furnishing evidence to the Secretary of State of a money judgment entered by a court together with evidence that the claimant is a person described in Bus. & Prof. Code § 22390 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22391(a)]. When the established claim has been approved by the Secretary of State, if it is the first claim to be asserted, it must be paid from the deposit after the expiration of 240 days. Any subsequent claim approved within that 240-day period must be paid at the end of that 240-day period. Payment will be either in full or proportional in view of other claims if the deposit is insufficient to pay them all [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22391(c)]. A new claim made after the expiration of the 240-day period will start a new 240-day period and apply to the amount remaining in the deposit account [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22391(d)]. After a deposit account is exhausted, no further claims can be paid. Claimants who have received payment may not be required to make a contribution back to the deposit account for the benefit of other claimants [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22391(e)]. Attachment, garnishment, and execution against the amount of the deposit are restricted [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22391(f)].

For further discussion of deposits generally, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings .

[3] Maintenance of Records

The invention developer is required to maintain all records and correspondence relating to performance of each invention development services contract for a period of not less than three years after expiration of the term of the contract [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22392]. The invention developer must disclose this requirement to the customer in the contract, along with a disclosure that the records and correspondence will be available to the customer or his or her representative for review and copying [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22379(l)].

The invention developer is prohibited from acquiring any interest in the title to the customer's invention, unless the developer contracts to manufacture the invention and acquires such interest for that purpose, at or about the time the contract for manufacture is executed. An invention developer is not prohibited, however, from contracting with a customer to receive a portion of proceeds accruing to the customer as a result of the performance of the invention development services [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22375].

[2] Note Cutting Off Third Party's Rights

The contract must not require or entail the execution of any note or series of notes by the customer that, when separately negotiated, will cut off a third party's right to action or defense against the invention developer [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22376].

[3] Advertisement of Compliance

An invention developer may not make, or authorize the making of, any reference to the invention developer's compliance with Bus. & Prof. Code § 22370 et seq. in any advertisement [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22393].

[1] Unenforceable Contract or Waiver

A contract for invention development services that does not comply with Bus. & Prof. Code § 22370 et seq. is void and unenforceable, unless the invention developer proves that the noncompliance was unintentional and resulted from a bona fide error notwithstanding the use of reasonable procedures adopted to avoid such errors, and corrects the error [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22383; see §§ 411.138, 411.139]. (Although Bus. & Prof. Code § 22383 does not explicitly remove mistakes of law from the scope of the "bona fide error" defense--whereas some other statutes allowing the same defense do exclude mistakes of law--the defense probably does not cover a violation that arose from the defendant's mistaken interpretation of statutory requirements [*cf. Any waiver by the customer of the provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code § 22370 et seq. is void and unenforceable [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22385]. An invention development services contract is also void and unenforceable if it is entered into by the customer in reliance on any willful and false, fraudulent, or misleading representation by the invention developer [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22384; see § 411.140].

[2] Special Action for Damages

Any person injured by the invention developer's violation of the terms of Bus. & Prof. Code § 22370 et seq., false or fraudulent statement, representation, or omission of material fact, or failure to make disclosures required to be included in the contract, may bring a civil action against the invention developer. The plaintiff may seek recovery of either $3,000 or three times the amount of actual damages, if any, sustained by the plaintiff, whichever is greater, and the court may award reasonable attorney's fees to the plaintiff [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22386; see §§ 411.130 -411.133].

[a] Joint Action Against Invention Developer and Surety

The invention developer's bond is for the benefit of any person who, after entering into an invention development services contract, is damaged by fraud, dishonesty, or failure to provide the services of the invention developer in performance of the contract [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22390]. A beneficiary claiming against the bond may maintain an action against the invention developer and the surety [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 996.410, 996.430]. The aggregate liability of the surety for all breaches of conditions of the bond will in no event exceed the amount of the bond [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.470; see §§ 411.134, 411.135].

[b] Choice of Actions

[i] Plaintiff

A customer of an invention developer may bring either a special action for damages against the invention developer only, or an action on the bond against the invention developer and the surety, depending on the grounds for the action. Although the action on the bond may be brought only by a customer who has entered into a contract with an invention developer, the special action for damages may be brought by any person, whether or not a customer, who has been injured by some conduct of the invention developer [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22386; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22390; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 996.410, 996.430].

[ii] Injury or Damage

The special statutory action for damages against the invention developer may be brought by any person who has been injured by the invention developer. The statute provides that the injured person may bring an action for the greater of either $3,000 or three times the amount of actual damages incurred, if any, in addition to attorney's fees [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22386]. The statutory language therefore suggests that the plaintiff need not have sustained actual money damages in order to recover from the invention developer. Thus for example, a plaintiff who lost the opportunity to have his or her invention developed or promoted because of the invention developer's conduct, but who could not prove the worth of his or her invention, could bring a special action against the invention developer under Bus. & Prof. Code § 22386. The joint action on the bond, however, requires not only that the plaintiff have entered into a contract with the invention developer, but that the plaintiff have suffered actual damage as a result [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22390; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 996.410, 996.430].

[iii] Grounds

The precise area of overlap between the grounds for the special statutory action against invention developers and for the joint action on the surety bond is unclear. It would seem that both types of actions provide remedies for fraudulent statements, representations, or omissions of material fact by the invention developer. Nevertheless, while the special action permits recovery for a violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 22370 et seq., generally, forfalse or fraudulent statement, representation, or omission of material fact, and for failure of the invention developer to make required disclosures in the contract, the bond action permits recovery for fraud, dishonesty, or failure of the invention developer to provide services in performance of the contract [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22386, 22390; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 996.410, 996.430]. Whether "dishonesty" is meant to encompass more than fraud, and thus to provide an independent ground for the bond action is not clear, since the term "dishonesty" has no one precise definition, and its meaning depends on the circumstances of a particular case [see Cvrcek v. State Personnel Bd. (1967) 247 Cal. App. 2d 827, 830, 56 Cal. Rptr. 84 (appeal of state employee's dismissal for "dishonesty"); Wayne v. Bureau of Private Investigators & Adjusters (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 427, 436, 20 Cal. Rptr. 194 (administrative proceeding to suspend or revoke license of private investigator for act constituting "dishonesty or fraud")].

It would appear that when the invention developer's conduct does not involve fraud, the customer's choice of action is clearer. If the invention developer violated Bus. & Prof. Code § 22370 et seq., for example, if it did not advertise its fees, or if the invention developer did not make the disclosures in the contract required by statute, the customer would bring the special action for $3,000 or treble damages [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22380, 22386; see § 411.130]. On the other hand, if the invention developer did not perform the services it promised to perform in the contract, the customer would bring an action on the bond against the invention developer and the surety [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22390; Code Civ. Proc.

[iv] Time of Injury

The bond action is authorized by statute to apply to a customer who, after entering into a contract for invention development services, is injured by the invention developer's conduct [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22390]. If a customer is damaged before executing the contract, it appears that the customer would not bring the joint action, but instead bring a special action for damages under Bus. & Prof. Code § 22386 against the invention developer only, since Bus. & Prof. Code § 22386 has no stated limitation as to the time of damage [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22386, 22390; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 996.410, 996.430]. Such a situation could arise, for example, if the customer presents an invention to the invention developer, but the invention developer falsely states to the customer that the invention is worthless and proceeds to promote the invention without the customer's knowledge.

Any invention developer who willfully violates any provision of Bus. & Prof. Code § 22370 et seq., or who willfully enters an invention development contract that omits any duty or disclosure required by Bus. & Prof. Code § 22370 et seq., is guilty of a misdemeanor. In addition, any state superior court has jurisdiction in equity to enjoin such violations, and the duty to institute an action for such an injunction is vested in the attorney general, district attorneys, county counsels, and city attorneys [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22387].

The prosecution of a misdemeanor action or a suit in equity for injunction does not preclude an action for damages against the invention developer by a customer or other injured person [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22387].

§ 411.55 Decisions

[1] Actions Between Co-owners of Patent

Under terms of agreement between co-owners of patent, forfeiture provision is not favored by law and is considered waived by conduct of nonforfeiting co-owner. Haserot v. Keller (1924) 67 Cal. App. 659, 669-670, 228 P. 383

One co-owner of patent who fraudulently obtains entire ownership of patent from co-owner and who then grants manufacturing rights to innocent licensees is held accountable to defrauded co-owner for profits from licensing agreements. Haserot v. Keller (1924) 67 Cal. App. 659, 668, 228 P. 383

[2] Assignment of Patent Rights

35 U.S.C. § 261 requires patent assignment to be in writing. United States v. Solomon (9th Cir. 1987) 825 F.2d 1292, 1296 , cert. denied, 484 U.S. 1046 (1988)

Owner of patent is permitted to assign it to another and convey exclusive rights to invention, or to assign any undivided part or share of exclusive rights to invention, or to assign exclusive rights within specified part of United States; any lesser assignment or transfer conveys license only. Fruit Machinery Co. v. F.M. Ball & Co. (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d 748, 758-759, 258 P.2d 852

Fraud is ground for rescission of assignment of patent rights. Haserot v. Keller (1924) 67 Cal. App. 659, 673, 228 P. 383 ; Bechtold v. Coney (1919) 42 Cal. App. 563, 564-566, 183 P. 841

[3] Creditor's Action

Action against patentee in court of equity acting in personam to compel patentee to make assignment is only method whereby creditor may subject patent rights to satisfaction of judgment against patentee; patent rights are not advertised and sold under common execution. Peterson v. Sheriff of San Francisco (1896) 115 Cal. 211, 213, 46 P. 1060

[4] Federal Patent Law

[a] Generally

Objective of federal patent laws is promoting progress of science and useful arts. Kewanee Oil Co. v. Bicron Corp. (1974) 416 U.S. 470, 480, 94 S. Ct. 1879, 40 L. Ed. 2d 315

Enforceable patent rights do not exist until patent is issued. Durham v. Seymour (1896) 161 U.S. 235, 238, 16 S. Ct. 452, 40 L. Ed. 682

[b] Preemption

Federal patent law does not preempt state contract law so that enforcement of contract to pay royalties to patent applicant is not precluded. Aronson v. Quick Point Pencil Co. (1978) 440 U.S. 257, 262, 265-266, 99 S. Ct. 1096, 59 L. Ed. 2d 296

Federal patent law does not preempt state's trade secret laws. Kewanee Oil Co. v. Bicron Corp. (1974) 416 U.S. 470, 474, 94 S. Ct. 1879, 40 L. Ed. 2d 315

Only limitation on states in regulating area of patents and copyrights is that they do not conflict with operation of laws in such areas passed by Congress. Kewanee Oil Co. v. Bicron Corp. (1974) 416 U.S. 470, 479, 94 S. Ct. 1879, 40 L. Ed. 2d 315

Because federal law does not regulate nonpatentable subject matter no reason exists why states should not be free to regulate it. Kewanee Oil Co. v. Bicron Corp. (1974) 416 U.S. 470, 482-483, 94 S. Ct. 1879, 40 L. Ed. 2d 315

Under Supremacy Clause (U.S. Const., art VI), federal law controls field of patents and state law is not permitted, directly or indirectly, to encroach on federal patent law. Sears, Roebuck & Co. v. Stiffel Co. (1964) 376 U.S. 225, 229, 231, 84 S. Ct. 784, 11 L. Ed. 2d 661

State is permitted to control labeling and trademarks but not copying of unpatented or uncopyrighted articles. Sears, Roebuck & Co. v. Stiffel Co. (1964) 376 U.S. 225, 232-233, 84 S. Ct. 784, 11 L. Ed. 2d 661

Federal policies favoring early adjudication of patent validity prevail over state law right of licensee under invalid patent; licensee was required to pay royalties that accrued under invalid patent before licensee notified licensor of challenge to patent, notwithstanding contrary state law [Civ. Code § 1689]. Rite-Nail Packaging Corp. v. Berryfast, Inc. (9th Cir. 1983) 706 F.2d 933, 936-937

Federal patent law is preemptive, and state is not allowed to encroach on federal patent laws either directly or through another theory, such as unfaircompetition. National Subscription Television v. Formula International, Inc. (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 308, 313, 200 Cal. Rptr. 213

Appropriation by copying of unpatented or uncopyrighted material is lawful under federal patent law and does not create cause of action for misappropriation under state law. Sammons & Sons v. Ladd-Fab, Inc. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 306, 310, 187 Cal. Rptr. 874

[5] Invalidity of Patent as Defense in Action on Licensing Agreement

Licensee is permitted to assert invalidity of patent as defense. Lear v. Adkins (1969) 395 U.S. 653, 674, 89 S. Ct. 1902, 23 L. Ed. 2d 610

Licensee was required to pay royalties that accrued under invalid patent before licensee notified licensor of challenge to patent, notwithstanding contrary state law [Civ. Code § 1689]. Rite-Nail Packaging Corp. v. Berryfast, Inc. (9th Cir. 1983) 706 F.2d 933, 936-937

[6] Injunction

Decision whether to grant or deny injunctive relief rests within equitable discretion of trial court, and that discretion must be exercised consistently with traditional principles of equity, in patent disputes no less than in other cases governed by those standards. eBay Inc. v. MercExchange, L.L.C. (2006) 547 U.S. 388, 126 S. Ct. 1837, 164 L. Ed. 2d 641, 647-648

In contempt proceeding, court-ordered destruction of goods produced in violation of injunction and another's patent rights is proper method of preventing further violation. H.J. Heinz Co. v. Superior Court (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 164, 176, 266 P.2d 5

Grant of injunctive relief to employer permanently restraining employee from exploiting any rights under patent did not violate 28 U.S.C. § 1498 (permitting patent owner to bring action against government for reasonable royalty) because trial court properly ruled that patent did not belong to employee; injunction therefore properly directed employee to recognize employer's ownership of patent and not to exploit or infringe patent. Cubic Corp. v. Marty (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 438, 456, 229 Cal. Rptr. 828

In action against former licensee of patented article for continued use of article after cancellation of licensing contract, injunction is proper remedy. Seagren v. Smith (1944) 63 Cal. App. 2d 733,

[7] Interpretation of Patent at Trial

Meaning, scope, and validity of patent are issues for court to decide, even though infringement is jury question. Markman v. Westview Instruments, Inc. (1996) 517 U.S. 370, 116 S. Ct. 1384, 134 L. Ed. 2d 577, 583

Expert testimony interpreting patent is no substitute for language of patent itself in determining scope of patent. Rogers v. Hensley (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 486, 491, 14 Cal. Rptr. 870

Duty to construe patent resides with court and court is not permitted to delegate such duty to expert witness. Rogers v. Hensley (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 486, 491, 14 Cal. Rptr. 870

[8] Inventions Made by Employees

In employer's action against employee for specific enforcement of invention and secrecy agreement that required employee to assign invention rights toemployer, agreement was condition of employment and employment, together with employee's raise and promotion arising out of invention, was adequate consideration for agreement. Cubic Corp. v. Marty (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 438, 448, 229 Cal. Rptr. 828

Even though invention and secrecy agreement requiring employee to assign invention rights to employer was adhesive because employer drafted agreement, gave employee no opportunity to negotiate agreement's terms, and made agreement condition of employment, agreement was enforceable and not unconscionable because employee's position encompassed inventive duties and employee was adequately compensated by terms of employment. Cubic Corp. v. Marty (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 438, 449-450, 229 Cal. Rptr. 828

Employer did not breach implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing in employment contract by discouraging submission and consideration of employee's invention under employee suggestion program when program was intended to cover only noncreative side of the business and when compensation for inventions was provided by salary and through employer's program granting employee bonuses for patent applications executed and patents obtained. Cubic Corp. v. Marty (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 438, 454-455, 229 Cal. Rptr. 828

Lab. Code §§ 2870-2872 are not intended to award invention to employee who presents invention to employer, represents that invention is for employer's benefit, actively seeks and obtains company funding to refine invention, and uses company time and funding to develop invention, meanwhile secretly intending to patent invention for himself or herself. Cubic Corp. v. Marty (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 438, 453, 229 Cal. Rptr. 828 (construing Lab. Code § 2870 prior to its 1986 amendment)

Employee is bound to assign rights to invention by terms of employment contract. Treu v. Garrett Corp. (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 432

Employer has right to assignment of employee's invention rights either when employee is hired to invent or when employment contract contains provision requiring assignment. Aero Bolt & Screw Co. v. Iaia (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 728, 736, 5 Cal. Rptr. 53

Employer has power to contract away shop right to employee's invention. Aero Bolt & Screw Co. v. Iaia (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 728, 739-740, 5 Cal. Rptr. 53

Employee does not give up rights to his or her invention merely by entering employment, even if employment furnishes him or her with opportunity for conception of idea leading to invention or if he or she invents patentable article that improves device or process used by employer. Banner Metals, Inc. v. Lockwood (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 643, 654, 3 Cal. Rptr. 421

One who discovers new principle or improvement in machine or device is not deprived of discovery if he or she employs others to perfect details, so long as such improvements do not depart from original principle. Banner Metals, Inc. v. Lockwood (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 643, 659-660, 3 Cal. Rptr. 421 ; Famous Players-Lasky Corp. v. Ewing (1920) 49 Cal. App. 676, 679-680, 194 P. 65

Employer has right to employee's invention by implied agreement if employee is hired to invent, but not if employee is hired to design, construct, or devise methods of manufacture. Banner Metals, Inc. v. Lockwood (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 643, 658-659 3 Cal. Rptr. 421

Employer has nonexclusive right to use invention of employee by express agreement, agreement implied in fact, or agreement implied by law. Banner Metals, Inc. v. Lockwood (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 643, 655, 3 Cal. Rptr. 421

Shop rights doctrine is applied when employee (1) during his or her hours of employment, (2) working with employer's materials and appliances (3) conceives, and (4) perfects invention for which employee obtains patent, so that employee must accord employer with nonexclusive right to practice invention. Banner Metals, Inc. v. Lockwood (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 643, 661, 3 Cal. Rptr. 421 ; see also Aero Bolt & Screw Co. v. Iaia (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 728, 736-737, 5 Cal. Rptr. 53

[9] Jurisdiction of Patent Matters

[a] Generally

Action involving United States patent is not for that reason governed exclusively by federal law. Farmland Irrigation Co. v. Dopplmaier (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 208, 216, 308 P.2d 732

Action to set aside, specifically enforce, or recover royalties on patent license contract is action not arising under United States patent laws, and state courts have jurisdiction over such action, inabsence of diversity of citizenship. Farmland Irrigation Co. v. Dopplmaier (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 208, 217, 308 P.2d 732

Existence of federal cases establishing rule of construction of patent licenses is not indication of federal policy excluding state law on subject. Farmland Irrigation Co. v. Dopplmaier (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 208, 219, 308 P.2d 732

Federal courts have exclusive jurisdiction over actions arising under patent laws, but state courts have jurisdiction over actions to enforce patent licensing agreements or interpret agreements conveying title to patents. Pendleton v. Ferguson (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 319, 326

Jurisdiction of state court founded on contract or tort is not defeated because existence, validity, or construction of patent is involved. Miller v. Lucas (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 774, 776, 124 Cal. Rptr. 500 (dictum)

State courts have broad jurisdiction over matters affecting patents, and federal courts have exclusive jurisdiction only over cases arising under federal patent laws, not cases merely involving patent questions. Miller v. Lucas (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 774, 777, 124 Cal. Rptr. 500 (dictum)

Patent matters primarily concerned with either consensual relations, such as actions to enforce patent licensing agreements, or tortious wrongdoing are permitted to be tried in state courts, and when such case a is brought, a state court has jurisdiction to decide on meaning, scope, or validity of patent or its infringement. Miller v. Lucas (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 774, 776, 124 Cal. Rptr. 500 ; Rogers v. Hensley (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 486, 491, 14 Cal. Rptr. 870

[b] Specific Examples

Licenses have no statutory basis and rights under them arise from contract rather than from fact that patent rights are involved. Farmland Irrigation Co. v. Dopplmaier (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 208, 220, 308 P.2d 732

Assignability of license contract is issue for state court. Farmland Irrigation Co. v. Dopplmaier (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 208, 220, 308 P.2d 732

Federal court does not have jurisdiction when action involves licensing contract or restoring unclouded title to patent, even if complainant also seeks injunction to prevent future patent infringement. H.J. Heinz Co. v. Superior Court (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 164, 173, 266 P.2d 5 (quoting fromLuckett v. Delpark (1926) 270 U.S. 496, 510, 46 S. Ct. 397, 70 L. Ed. 703)

State court has jurisdiction to determine invalidity of license and grant injunction against infringement of patent. H.J. Heinz Co. v. Superior Court (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 164, 172, 266 P.2d 5

No subject matter jurisdiction in state court when, although complaint alleged tort causes of action, only act alleged against defendant was filing patent applications in United States Patent and Trademark Office which conflicted with and cast doubt on patent previously issued to plaintiff, and when proceedings were still pending in patent office involving same issues of fact and law. Miller v. Lucas (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 774, 777, 124 Cal. Rptr. 500

In action against licensee who cancels contract for royalties pursuant to contract terms, reassigns patent rights to patentee, and subsequently uses patented article, state court has jurisdiction on theory of liability on implied contract rather than federal court having jurisdiction on theory of patent infringement. Seagren v. Smith (1944) 63 Cal. App. 2d 733,

[10] Licensing Agreements

[a] Generally

Rights under patent licensing contract are freely transferable by assignment unless contract terms indicate other intent or unless assignment would materially impair nonassigning party's chance of obtaining performance. Farmland Irrigation Co. v. Dopplmaier (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 208, 222, 308 P.2d 732 ; Fenn v. Pickwick Corp. (1931) 117 Cal. App. 236, 242, 4 P.2d 215

Duties under licensing agreement are not permitted to be delegated if of such personal nature that performance by someone else would deprive other party of his or her bargain. Farmland Irrigation Co. v. Dopplmaier (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 208, 222, 308 P.2d 732 ; see Fenn v. Pickwick Corp. (1931) 117 Cal. App. 236, 242, 4 P.2d 215

Rights to make, sell, or use patent are permitted to be granted or conferred. Pendleton v. Ferguson, (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 319, 323 Braun, Bryant & Austin v. McGuire (1927) 201 Cal. 134, 140-141, 255 P. 808

Right to make patented article is separate from right to use so that right to make does not pass by assignment of right to use unless license to use would otherwise not benefit licensee. Braun, Bryant & Austin v. McGuire (1927) 201 Cal. 134, 142, 255 P. 808

Joint owner of patent is permitted to make licensing agreement with third party without consent of co-owner. Ragan v. Sirigo (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 832, 833-834, 326 P.2d 26

Patentee is permitted to grant license to make and use patented article without license to sell it. Fruit Machinery Co. v. F.M. Ball & Co. (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d 748, 759, 258 P.2d 852

Patentee is permitted to license right to sell patented articles, limiting methods and prices of sales. Fruit Machinery Co. v. F.M. Ball & Co. (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d 748, 759, 258 P.2d 852

[b] Consideration

Minimum royalties are good consideration supporting patent licensing contract. Brawley v. Crosby Research Foundation, Inc. (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 103, 112, 166 P.2d 392

[c] Remedies in Action on Licensing Agreement

Patentee is permitted to rescind provision in licensing contract to pay royalties to third-party beneficiary, while retaining remainder of contract terms. Simmons v. Cal. Institute of Technology (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 264, 275-276, 209 P.2d 581

Specific performance is proper action to enforce contract to convey patent rights. Hercules Glue Co. v. Littooy (1938)

25 Cal. App. 2d 182, 186, 76 P.2d 700 ; Coleman v. Dawson (1930) 110 Cal. App. 201, 211, 294 P. 13

When licensee fails to pay royalties under patent licensing contract, patentee is permitted either to treat contract as terminated and sue for damages or seek to enforce the contract and recover royalties due, but patentee is not permitted to do both. Kittle Mfg. Co. v. Davis (1935) 8 Cal. App. 2d 504, 511, 47 P.2d 1089

Patentee seeking to enforce licensing agreement is not excused for nonperformance of contract. Kittle Mfg. Co. v. Davis (1935) 8 Cal. App. 2d 504, 511, 47 P.2d 1089

Licensee is bound under terms of contract to manufacture stated number of patented articles each year for specified number of years. Fenn v. Pickwick Corp. (1931) 117 Cal. App. 236, 239, 4 P.2d 215

Complaint states facts sufficient to constitute cause of action by alleging that due to mutual mistake patent licensing contract should be reformed to include word "exclusive" with regard to license. Holmes v. Anderson (1928) 90 Cal. App. 276, 281, 282, 265 P. 1010

[d] Defense to Contract Action

Failure of licensor to prosecute patent application, when required to do so by terms of contract, excuses performance of contract by licensee. Fenn v. Pickwick Corp. (1931) 117 Cal. App. 236, 243, 4 P.2d 215

[2] Judicial Council Trial Court Forms

Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12 (Stats. 1979, ch. 843) requires that the Judicial Council develop and approve official forms for use in California trial courts for any complaint, cross complaint, or answer in any action based on personal injury, property damage, wrongful death, unlawful detainer, breach of contract, or fraud. Use of these forms is optional [see

Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12].

These forms are available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. Noninteractive versions in PDF format also are available at www.lexisone.com at no charge. For general information relating to the use of Judicial Council complaint forms, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints .

[3] Use of Form

This form is a filled in sample complaint for use by a patentee who has entered into a patent licensing agreement containing provisions for fixed minimum royalties by the licensee, to recover damages for the licensee's failure to pay under the terms of the contract. The form may be used by the inventor, or the inventor's assignee, who holds title to the patent on the invention.

This form is the Judicial Council contract complaint to which a Judicial Council breach of contract cause of action has been attached [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45(a), (b); Cal. Judicial Council Forms PLD-C-001, PLD-C-001(1)]. In this example, the form also provides for the attachment of the patent licensing contract as an exhibit. It also provides for the attachment of a verification, for a total of five pages.

[4] Allegations

Allegations in this complaint include:

- The existence of the patent (Paragraph 8).
- The existence of the written patent licensing agreement (Paragraph BC-1).
- Defendant's breach of the patent licensing agreement by failing to pay minimum royalties (Paragraph BC-2).
- The resulting damage to plaintiff (Paragraph BC-4).

For more complete instructions on filling out the Judicial Council contract complaint form with breach of contract attachment generally, see Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.100[3].

[5] Verification

Counsel may attach the verification to this complaint, if desired. Verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], but verification will require that any answer also be verified, if the action is an unlimited civil case in superior court [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

[6] Contract Action

Patent licensing agreements have no statutory basis. The rights under such agreements arise from contract law, rather than from the fact that patent rights are involved [Farmland Irrigation Co. v. Dopplmaier (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 208, 220, 308 P.2d 732] . Therefore, the usual contract remedies apply, including a breach of contract action for the recovery of royalties due [see Kittle Mfg. Co. v. Davis (1935) 8 Cal. App. 2d 504, 511, 47 P.2d 1089] . As with other contract actions, the measure of damages is the amount which will compensate the party aggrieved for all detriment proximately caused by the breach, or which, in the ordinary course of things, would be likely to result therefrom [see Civ. Code §

3300]. For discussion and forms relating to actions for breach of contract generally, see Ch. 140, Contracts .

[7] Jurisdiction

Although federal courts have exclusive jurisdiction over actions arising under patent laws, state courts have jurisdiction over actions to enforce patent licensing agreements or interpret agreements conveying title to patents [Pendleton v. Ferguson (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 319, 323 . In addition, once such an action is brought in state court, the state court also has jurisdiction to decide on the meaning, scope, validity, or infringement of the patent [Rogers v. Hensley (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 486, 491, 14 Cal. Rptr. 870] .

[8] Defense--Invalidity of Patent

A licensee is permitted to avoid the payment of royalties on a patent licensing agreement if he or she can prove the invalidity of the patent [Lear v. Adkins (1969) 395 U.S. 653, 674, 89 S. Ct. 1902, 23 L. Ed. 2d 610] . Although the invalidity of a patent is a question of federal law, a state court has jurisdiction to determine the issue when the action arises under the patent licensing agreement [Rogers v. Hensley (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 486, 491, 14 Cal. Rptr. 870] .

For discussion relating to the validity of patents, see Dunner, Gambrell, Adelman, and Lipsey, Patent Law Perspectives (2d Ed.) Ch. 2, Validity, §§ 2.1-2.10.

[9] Federal Statutes

Presumption of patent validity; defenses. 35 U.S.C. § 282

[10] Decisions

Assignability of patent rights. Fruit Machinery Co. v. F.M. Ball & Co. (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d 748, 758-759, 258 P.2d 852

Minimum royalties are good consideration in support of patent licensing agreement. Brawley v. Crosby Research Foundation, Inc. (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 103, 112, 166 P.2d 392

[2] Judicial Council Trial Court Forms

Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12 (Stats. 1982, ch. 272) requires that the Judicial Council develop and approve official forms for use in California trial courts for any complaint, cross complaint, or answer in any action based on personal injury, property damage, wrongful death, unlawful detainer, breach of contract, or fraud. Use of these forms is optional [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12].

These forms are available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. Noninteractive versions in PDF format also are available at www.lexisone.com at no charge. For general information relating to the use of Judicial Council complaint forms, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints .

[3] Use of Form

This form is a filled in sample complaint for use by a patentee who has entered into a patent licensing agreement containing provisions for payment of royalties by the licensee, when the licensee is required to submit regular reports or statements to the patentee containing information on amounts received by the licensee from sales of the invention. The patentee in such a case does not know the amount of damages suffered, because without the accounting or report, he or she does not know the amount of royalties owed. In a case in which the amounts owed were known, plaintiff would file a modified version of the complaint set out in § 411.110.

[4] Allegations

Allegations in this complaint include:

- The existence of the patent, and its issuance to plaintiff (Paragraph 8).
- The existence of the written patent licensing agreement (Paragraph BC-1).
- Defendant's breach of the patent licensing agreement by failing to submit the required accounting or report, and by failing to pay any royalties due (Paragraph BC-2).
- The resulting damage to plaintiff (Paragraph BC-4).

The prayer requests that the court order the defendant to submit a report or accounting to plaintiff, and that damages be awarded in an amount to be determined from such accounting or report (Paragraph 10).

[5] Accounting

An accounting may be sought in a prayer as an auxiliary remedy to the main action [see Hays v. Cowles, 60 Cal. App. 2d 514, 60 Cal. App. 2d 514, 516-517, 141P.2d 26]. An accounting will not be ordered, however, when allegations in the complaint indicate a known amount of damages sought to be recovered [Kinley v. Thelen (1910) 158 Cal. 175, 182, 110 P. 513 ; St. James Church v. Superior Court (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 352, 359, 287 P.2d 387] .

§ 411.112 Complaint for Declaratory Relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060] to Determine Employer's Shop Rights to Employee's Invention Under Agreement Implied in Fact or by Law and for Damages [Civ. Code § 3300]

[1] FORM Complaint for Declaratory Relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060] to Determine Employer's Shop Rights to Employee's Invention Under Agreement Implied in Fact or by Law and for Damages [Civ. Code § 3300]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF_____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR DECLARATORY RELIEF
_____ [name],	)	(Employer's Shop Rights to Employee's Invention) Defendant.	)

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was a resident of _____ County, California.

2. On or about _____ [date], defendant _____ [employee], while employed by plaintiff, conceived and perfected an invention, _____ [specify invention, e.g., a machine that could simultaneously measure, cut, mark, and stack piping material]. Defendant made the invention during his/her hours of employment with plaintiff and while working with plaintiff's materials and appliances. Defendant subsequently obtained a patent on the invention, on or about _____ [date], Patent No. _____.

[EITHER, if implied in fact contract]

3. Defendant perfected the invention as part of his/her job, _____ [specify, e.g., which included devising methods for storing pipes and other equipment,] and with the understanding that his/her salary was consideration for any such invention he/she might make.

[OR, if contract implied by law]

3. Defendant, by working on the invention during his/her hours of employment, while being paid by plaintiff, and by extensively using plaintiff's materials, appliances, and working space, has been unjustly enriched, at plaintiff's expense. As a result, a contract should be implied by law, imposing on defendant the obligation of granting plaintiff a license to use the invention.

[CONTINUE:]

4. An actual controversy has arisen and now exists between plaintiff and defendant concerning their respective rights and duties in that plaintiffcontends that he/she/it is entitled to an exercise of his/her/its shop right to use defendant's invention by virtue of _____[the implied contract between plaintiff and defendant or the obligation imposed on defendant by law, arising from a contract implied by law], whereas defendant disputes these contentions, and contends that plaintiff has no shop right, or license to use that invention, as imposed by any agreement implied _____ [in fact or by law].

5. Plaintiff desires a judicial determination of his/her/its rights and duties, and a declaration as to whether plaintiff has a shop right to the use of plaintiff's invention, by virtue of a contract _____ [implied in fact or implied by law], imposing on defendant the obligation to grant plaintiff such a license.

6. A judicial interpretation is necessary and appropriate at this time under the circumstances in order that plaintiff may ascertain his/her/its rights with respect to the use of such patented invention. [_____ (Allege any financial or other burden being caused plaintiff by the unsettled state of affairs, e.g., plaintiff is being forced to use methods for cutting and storing piping that are slower and that require more employee time, space, and equipment than is required by defendant's invention, which is a considerable financial burden to plaintiff).]

[7. As a result of defendant's refusal to grant plaintiff a license to use defendant's invention, plaintiff has _____ (specify damages, e.g., been forced to make unnecessary expenditures of money, employee time, and equipment, to measure, cut, mark, and stack piping material without the benefit of the cheaper method in using defendant's invention) to plaintiff's damage in the sum of $_____.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For a declaration that plaintiff has a shop right in defendant's invention, by virtue of a contract _____ [implied in fact or implied by law] and thereby has a license to use that invention;

[2. For damages in the sum of $_____;]

3. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[Verification. See § 411.110[1].]

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use by an employer seeking an adjudication of his, her, or its shop right in an employee's invention. A shop right is a nonexclusive license to use the invention, and when it has not been expressly granted by written agreement, such a right will be implied by a court from the circumstances of the employment, either on a theory of a contract implied in fact, or a contract implied by law [Banner Metals, Inc. v. Lockwood (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 643, 654-655, 3 Cal. Rptr. 421] . A shop right arises when the employee (1) during his or her hours of employment (2) working with the employer's materials and appliances, (3) conceives and (4) perfects an invention for which he or she obtains a patent [Banner Metals, Inc. v. Lockwood (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 643, 661, 3 Cal. Rptr. 421] .

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges:

- That defendant, while an employee of plaintiff conceived and perfected an invention during working hours, with plaintiff's materials, or appliances, for which defendant obtained a patent [Banner Metals, Inc. v. Lockwood (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 643, 661, 3 Cal. Rptr. 421] (Paragraph 2) .

- Circumstances from which a contract could be implied, in fact or at law, that imposes on defendant the obligation to grant plaintiff a license to use the invention [Banner Metals, Inc. v. Lockwood (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 643, 655, 3 Cal. Rptr. 421] (Paragraph 3) .

- Facts showing the existence of an actual controversy between the parties, setting forth the parties' conflicting contentions with regard to plaintiff's shop right [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060] (Paragraph 4).

- That plaintiff desires a declaration of his, her, or its rights under the circumstances [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060] (Paragraph 5).

- Facts showing why the declaration is necessary and appropriate at the time (Paragraph 6).

- Damages suffered by plaintiff, if damages are sought in addition to declaratory relief (Paragraph 7).

Although the theories of implied in fact contract and implied at law contract are presented as alternatives in this form, counsel may wish to plead them both in one complaint, as separate counts for the same cause of action. For discussion of and forms for use in pleading separate theories and counts in a complaint, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints .

[4] Action for Declaratory Relief

Any person who desires a declaration of his or her rights or duties with respect to another, may in cases of actual controversy relating to the legal rights and duties of the respective parties, bring an action for a declaration of his or her rights and duties, including a determination of any question of construction or validity arising under a contract. He or she may ask for a declaration of rights or duties, either alone or with other relief, and thecourt may make a binding declaration of these rights or duties, whether or not further relief is or could be claimed at the time. The declaration may be either affirmative or negative in form and effect, and such a declaration has the force of a final judgment. Such a declaration may be had before there has been any breach of the obligation in respect to which such declaration is sought [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060].

For further discussion and forms relating to declaratory relief actions in general, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief .

[5] Jurisdiction

An original action or cross complaint for declaratory relief may be brought in the superior court as an unlimited civil case. The action may only be brought as a limited civil case in a few situations [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 86(a)(7), 1060]. For further discussion of jurisdiction in declaratory relief actions, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief .

[6] Employer's Right to Assignment of Employee's Patent

Under the appropriate circumstances, an employer might compel an employee to assign his or her patent rights to the employer by a complaint for breach of express or implied contract. When an employee is hired to invent, and does make an invention, the employee is bound to assign to his or her employer any patent obtained in the invention, either by an express employment contract, or by a contract implied by the terms and nature of the employment [Banner Metals, Inc. v. Lockwood (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 643, 654, 658, 3 Cal. Rptr. 421] . Courts are reluctant to infer contracts compelling such assignment, however, and will not do so when an employee is hired to design, construct, or devise methods of manufacture, rather than to invent, or when the employee invents something that departs in principle from the invention he or she was hired to make [Banner Metals, Inc. v. Lockwood (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 643, 658, 659-660, 3 Cal. Rptr. 421] .

[7] State Statutes

Action for declaratory relief. Code Civ. Proc. § 1060

[8] Decisions

Action on contract implied in fact distinguished from action on contract implied by law. Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 778, 794, 256 P.2d 947

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense to Employer's Action for Shop Rights to Employee's Invention--Employer Rejected Invention as Impractical

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES that at and subsequent to the time defendant perfected the invention alleged in the complaint in the above-entitled action, plaintiff rejected such invention as worthless and impractical, despite demonstrations by defendant of the value of such invention. Plaintiff is therefore not entitled to shop rights or any other rights in defendant's invention.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense is for use by a defendant employee inventor against whom the employer has filed a complaint asserting shop rights to the invention [see § 411.112]. An employer has no rights to an employee's invention when the employer has rejected the invention as impractical [*Banner Metals, Inc. v. Lockwood (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 643, 660-661, 3 Cal. [1] FORM Affirmative Defense to Employer's Action to Enforce Employment Contract--Employment Contract Provision Requiring Assignment of Employee's Invention Rights to Employer Is Unenforceable [Lab. Code § 2870]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES that the contractual assignment of rights to defendant's invention on which plaintiff bases the cause(s) of action in the complaint in the above-entitled action is unenforceable under Labor Code Section 2870 insofar as it purports to apply to defendant's invention because (1) no equipment, supplies, facilities, or trade secret information belonging to plaintiff was used for the invention, (2) the invention was developed entirely on defendant's own time, and (3) the invention _____ [did not relate, at the time of its conception or reduction to practice, to plaintiff's business or to plaintiff's actual or demonstrably anticipated research or development or does not result from any work performed by defendant for plaintiff].

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense is for use by a defendant employee in any action by the employer to enforce the employer's rights to the employee's invention, pursuant to the terms of an express employment contract. Any provision in an employment contract that provides that an employee must assign, or offer to assign, any of his or her rights in an invention to his or her employer does not apply to an invention that the employee developed entirely on his or her own time, without using the employer's equipment, supplies, facilities, or trade secret information, except for inventions that either (1) relate at the time of conception or reduction to practice of the invention to the employer's business, or actual or demonstrably anticipated research or development of the employer or (2) result from any work performed by the employee for the employer [Lab. Code § 2870(a)]. To the extent a provision in an employment contract purports to require an employee to assign an invention otherwise excluded from being required to be assigned under Lab. Code § 2870(a), the provision is against public policy and is unenforceable [Lab. Code § 2870(b)].

If an employment agreement entered into after January 1, 1980, contains a provision requiring the employee to assign or offer to assign any of his or her rights in any invention to his or her employer, the employer must also, at the time the agreement is made, provide a written notification to the employee that the agreement does not apply to an invention which qualifies fully under the provisions of Lab. Code § 2870. In any action arising from the provisions of Lab. Code § 2870 the burden of proof is on the employee claiming the benefits of those provisions [Lab. Code § 2872].

[3] Decisions

Under Lab. Code § 2872, employee bears burden of establishing that invention comes within Lab. Code § 2870. Cubic Corp. v. Marty (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 438, 451, 229 Cal. Rptr. 828

Invention not entirely developed on employee's own time was not within Lab. Code § 2870 when portions of invention were developed by another employee on employer's time under program funded by employer. *Cubic Corp. v. Marty (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 438, 452-453, 229 Cal. - Actual damages or entitlement to statutory damages (Paragraph 8).

[4] Damages

The plaintiff may bring an action for either $3,000 or three times the amount of actual damages suffered, if any, whichever amount is greater [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22386]. The plaintiff is required to have been injured but is not required to have suffered actual damages [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22386]. For example, the plaintiff may have lost the opportunity to sell his or her invention because of the invention developer's conduct, and although the plaintiff could not prove the worth of the invention, the plaintiff could recover the statutory damages. For a discussion of pleading compensatory damages generally, see Ch. 177, Damages .

[5] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case in the superior court [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch.

26, Answers .

[6] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive ofinterest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)], and the first page of the paper must state whether or not the demand exceeds $10,000 [Gov. Code § 70613(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9) (statement regarding amount of demand must appear "below the character of the action or proceeding")].

[7] Statute of Limitations

Bus. & Prof. Code § 22386, which provides for the type of action alleged in this complaint, does not prescribe a particular period of limitation within which the action must be brought. Generally, an action by an individual on a statute for a penalty or forfeiture must be brought within one year, unless the statute prescribes a different limitation period [Code Civ. Proc. § 340(a)]. The general statute of limitations for an action on a liability created by statute, other than a penalty or forfeiture, is three years from the time the cause of action accrues [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 312, 338(a)].

Therefore, whether the period of limitation is one year or three years depends on whether or not the recovery of a flat fee or three times the amount of actual damages, as provided in the statute, constitutes a penalty. There have as yet been no cases interpreting Bus. & Prof. Code § 22386. Nevertheless, in considering other statutes that provide for specific damages, at least one case has held that a penalty includes any law compelling a defendant to pay the plaintiff other than what is necessary to compensate for actual damage [see Miller v. Municipal Court (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 818, 837-840, 142 P.2d 297] . Therefore, since Bus. & Prof. Code § 22386 provides for recovery of the greater of either $3,000 or three times the amount of actual damages, it would appear to provide for a penalty, and the statute of limitations would be one year. Although it is not certain that the one-year period of limitation would apply, a safer practice would be to bring an action within one year of its accrual.

[8] Attorney's Fees

The statute under which this action may be brought permits the recovery of reasonable attorney's fees to the plaintiff [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22386]. When attorney's fees are awarded pursuant to a statute, they are recoverable as costs [see T.E.D. Bearing Co. v. Walter E. Heller & Co. (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 59, 62, 112 Cal. Rptr. 910 ; see also Civ. Code § 1717]. Therefore, although no cases have interpreted Bus. & Prof. Code § 22386, it would appear that attorney's fees would properly be listed as costs, and that it would be unnecessary to plead and prove them as damages. For a more detailed discussion of attorney's fees as costs generally, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees .

[2] Judicial Council Trial Court Forms

Counsel should note that Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12 (Stats. 1979, ch. 843) requires that the Judicial Council develop and approve official forms for use in California trial courts for any complaint, cross complaint, or answer in any action based on fraud. It is possible that an action under Bus. & Prof. Code § 22386 or an action based on Bus. & Prof. Code § 22390 would be considered an action based on fraud for the purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12. In that case, the Judicial Council complaint form could be used [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.30 et seq.; Cal. Judicial Council Form PLD-C-001(3)]. Use of the Judicial Council form is optional [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12].

These forms are available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. Noninteractive versions in PDF format also are available at www.lexisone.com at no charge. For general information relating to the use of Judicial Council complaint forms, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints .

[3] Use of Form

This complaint is for use in the special statutory action for damages for a false statement or representation of material fact by an invention developer. This form may be used by any person who is injured by such a statement or representation, whether or not the person has entered into a contract with the invention developer [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22386]. For a complaint based on an omission of material fact, see § 411.133.

[4] Alleging Fraudulent Statement Compared

Bus. & Prof. Code § 22386 provides that a special action for damages may be brought when a person is injured by an invention developer's false or fraudulent statement, representation, or omission of material fact. This form alleges a false, rather than a fraudulent statement or representation. If a fraudulent statement or representation is alleged, the invention developer's intent to deceive plaintiff and the plaintiff's justifiable reliance on the statement or representation must apparently be alleged as elements of a cause of action for fraud [see Civ. Code § 1709; Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 811, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964 ; Harazim v. Lynam (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 127, 130, 72 Cal. Rptr. 670] . If alleging a false statement, however, it is unclear whether or not allegations of fraudulent intent or justifiable reliance are required. It appears that those allegations are not required, since the statute treats a false statement as a separate alternative to a fraudulent statement [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22386].

In an action based on the invention developer's fraudulent statement or representation, punitive damages may be available, as long as the plaintiff could allege and prove by clear and convincing evidence the invention developer's knowing misrepresentation, made with the intent of causing injury to the plaintiff [see Civ. Code § 3294(a),(c)(3)].

[5] Action on Bond Compared

An action under Bus. & Prof. Code § 22386 may be brought when the invention developer makes either a false or a fraudulent statement or representation [see § 411.132[4]]. A joint action against the invention developer and its surety based on the damages described in Bus. & Prof. Code § 22390, however, requires an allegation of the invention developer's fraud or dishonesty. It also requires that the invention developer has maintained a bond [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22389, 22390; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 996.410, 996.430; see also § 411.134]. In addition, the joint action may only be brought by a customer of an invention developer who, after entering into a contract with the invention developer, has suffered damage, whereas the special action on which this complaint is based may be brought by any person who is injured by the invention developer, whether or not that person has entered into a contract or has suffered actual damage [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22386, 22390].

In some circumstances, the plaintiff might wish to sue under the authority of both statutes. Thus, for example, when the plaintiff is a customer who entered into a contract, and has suffered actual damages as a result of the invention developer's fraudulent statement, plaintiff may wish to bring an action under both Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22386 and 22390. In such a case, counsel may wish to combine the allegations of this complaint with those of § 411.134.

[6] Allegations

This complaint alleges [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22386]:

- That defendant is an invention developer within the meaning of Bus. & Prof. Code § 22371(d) and, if plaintiff executed a contract with the invention developer, the existence of a contract by which defendant agrees to perform invention development services (Paragraph 4).
- Defendant's false statement or representation (Paragraph 5).
- The falsity of the statement or representation (Paragraph 6).
- Plaintiff's reliance, resulting in his or her injury (Paragraph 7).

[2] Judicial Council Trial Court Forms

Counsel should note that *Code Civ. [3] Use of Form

[a] Generally

This complaint is for use by the customer of a bonded invention developer who, after entering into a contract with the invention developer, suffers damage as a result of the invention developer's fraud in making a fraudulent misreprentation. The customer, as the beneficiary of the bond, is authorized by statute to enforce the liability on the bond, which covers the damages, against both the invention developer and the surety, who must both be joined as parties to the action [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22389, 22390; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 996.410, 996.430].

An invention developer doing business in California is required to maintain a bond [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22389; see generally Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings, § 538.40 et seq.]. Before 1999 an invention developer could make a cash deposit with the Secretary of State in lieu of a bond [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.160, 995.710]. A customer may make a claim for enforcement of liability on a deposit by providing the Secretary of State with evidence of a money judgment against the invention developer, along with evidence that the claimant is a person described in Bus. & Prof. Code § 22390 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22391].

[b] Dishonesty or Breach of Contract

The joint action on the bond is also permitted by statute on the invention developer's dishonesty, or failure to perform under the contract for invention development services [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22390; see also § 411.135]. Whether or not "dishonesty" is meant to encompass more than fraud, and thus to provide an independent ground for the bond action is not clear, since the term "dishonesty" has no one precise definition, and its meaning depends on the circumstances of a particular case [see Cvrcek v. State Personnel Bd. (1967) 247 Cal. App. 2d 827, 830, 56 Cal. Rptr. 84 ; Wayne v. Bureau of Private Investigators & Adjusters (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 427, 436, 20 Cal. Rptr. 194] . This form could be modified to allege dishonesty by the invention developer, rather than fraud.

[c] Special Action Against Invention Developer Only

When the invention developer has made a false or fraudulent statement, representation, or omission of material fact, a person injured thereby may also bring an special action for damages against the invention developer for the greater of $3,000 or three times the amount of actual damages. The special action for damages, unlike the bond action on which the foregoing complaint is based, does not require that the plaintiff have entered into a contract with the invention developer [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22386].

The special action for damages also differs from the bond action in several other respects: (1) it allows a cause of action for a false statement by the invention developer, in which case fraudulent intent and the plaintiff's justifiable reliance need not be alleged [see § 411.132[4]], (2) actual damages are not required, and (3) attorney's fees are available [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22386].

A plaintiff who qualifies to bring either a special action for damages or a joint action on the bond may wish to combine the two actions. In such a case, the allegations in this form may be combined with those in § 411.132.

[4] Allegations

This complaint alleges:

- Existence of invention developer's bond and condition to pay on bond in the event of invention developer's fraud [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22390] (Paragraph 5).
- Execution of a contract for invention development services, which is a prerequisite to maintaining an action on the bond [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22390] (Paragraph 6).
- Invention developer's fraud, subsequent to entering into contract with plaintiff (Paragraph 7).
- Falsity of developer's representation (Paragraph 8).
- Invention developer's intent to defraud plaintiff (Paragraph 9).
- Plaintiff's justifiable reliance (Paragraph 10).
- Damages (Paragraph 11).
- Punitive damages (Paragraph 12).

[5] Damages

[a] In General

One who willfully deceives another with the intent to induce him or her to alter his or her position to his or her injury or risk is liable for any damages which the injured party thereby suffers [Civ. Code § 1709]. In addition, for the breach of an obligation not arising from a contract, the measure of damages, except where otherwise expressly provided by the Civil Code, is the amount which will compensate for all the detriment proximately caused thereby, whether it could have been anticipated or not [Civ. Code § 3333].

[b] Punitive Damages

In an action for fraud, the plaintiff may recover punitive damages in addition to actual damages [see Civ. Code § 3294]. Punitive damages may not be awarded, however, unless actual damages are suffered [Mother Cobb's Chicken Turnovers, Inc. v. Fox (1937) 10 Cal. 2d 203, 206, 73 P.2d 1185 ; Esparza v. Specht (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 1, 6, 127 Cal. Rptr. 493] . For further discussion of punitive damages, and for alternative allegations of punitive damages, see Ch. 177, Damages .

[c] Limitation on Surety's Liability

The aggregate liability of a surety to all persons for all breaches of the condition of a bond is limited to the amount of the bond [Code Civ. Proc. § 996.470(a)].

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use by the customer of a bonded invention developer who, after entering into a contract with the invention developer, suffers damage as a result of the invention developer's failure to provide invention development services under the contract. The customer, as the beneficiary of the bond, is authorized by statute to enforce the liability on the bond, which covers such damages, against both the invention developer and the surety, who must both be joined as parties to the action [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22389, 22390; *Code Civ. [3] Allegations

This complaint alleges:

- Existence of the invention developer's bond and the condition to pay in event of failure to provide invention development services [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22390] (Paragraph 5).

- Execution of invention development services contract between plaintiff and invention developer, which gives rise to duty to performservices and which is prerequisite to maintaining action on bond [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22390] (Paragraph 6)

- Performance of obligations by plaintiff, or excused nonperformance (Paragraph 7).

- Defendant invention developer's failure to perform services under the contract (Paragraph 8).

- Plaintiff's damages as a result of the failure to perform (Paragraph 9). The requirements for pleading a cause of action for breach of contract are further discussed in Ch. 140, Contracts .

Proc. §§ 996.410, 996.430]--Plaintiff Inventor Not Within Class Protected by Invention Development Services Law [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22371(a),(b)]--Excepted Business

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES:

Plaintiff, during the calendar year in which the document attached as Exhibit _____ to the complaint in the above-entitled action was signed, was not a "customer" within the meaning of the invention development services law, in that plaintiff was then regularly engaged in a _____ [trade or business or profession] which had _____ [a net worth of $100,000 or gross receipts from any source of $50,000] or more. Therefore, such plaintiff was not within the class of persons designated for protection under such law, and such document is not properly an invention development services contract as contemplated under such law.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense is for use by an invention developer either in a special action for damages [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22386] or in an action on the invention developer's bond [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22390; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 996.410, 996.430], or by the surety in an action on the invention developer's bond, when the plaintiff has alleged the existence of an invention development services contract [see §§ 411.131 -411.135]. This affirmative defense alleges that the plaintiff does not qualify as one to receive protection under Bus. & Prof. Code Chapter 17 (Bus. & Prof. Code § 22370 et seq.), and therefore is not entitled to bring the cause of action against the defendant.

To bring an action on an invention developer's bond, the plaintiff must have entered into an invention development services contract [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22390]. And although the special action for damages may be brought by any person injured by the invention developer's conduct, the action would often depend on the existence of an invention development services contract or invention development services [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22386]. Such a contract or such services are defined as being entered into with or for the benefit of a customer [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22371(a),(e)]. A customer, for the purposes of Bus. & Prof. Code Chapter 17, does not include any person, firm, corporation, or other entity regularly engaged in a trade, business, or profession that has either a net worth of $100,000or more or gross receipts from any source of $50,000 or more during the calendar year in which any contract for invention development services is signed [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22371(b)].

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES:

Defendant was not an invention developer within the meaning of the invention development services law at the time of execution of the document attached as Exhibit _____ to the complaint in the above-entitled action, in that during the fiscal year preceding the year in which such document was signed, defendant's gross receipts from contracts for invention development services did not exceed 10 percent of gross receipts from all sources. Therefore, de fendant was not within the class of persons designated for regulation under such law, and such document is not properly an invention development services contract as contemplated under such law.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense is for use by an invention developer in a special action for damages [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22386], or in a joint action against the invention developer and its surety [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22390; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 996.410, 996.430], when the plaintiff has alleged the existence of an invention development services contract [see § 411.131]. The foregoing form alleges that the defendant does not qualify as one designated to be regulated under Bus. & Prof. Code Chapter 17 (Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22370-22394), and that therefore plaintiff is not entitled to bring the cause of action against the defendant.

The special action for damages may be brought against an "invention developer," and is often based on an invention development services contract [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22386]. The joint action aginst the "invention developer" and and the surety requires the existence of the invention development services contract [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22390]. Such a contract is defined as including a contract between an invention developer and a customer [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22371(a)]. An "invention developer," for the purposes of Chapter 17, however, does not include a person, firm, corporation, association, or other entity whose gross receiptsfrom contracts for invention development services do not exceed 10 percent of its gross receipts from all sources during the fiscal year preceding the year in which any such contract is signed. Governmental agencies, charitable organizations, or persons or entities that do not charge a fee for invention development services also do not qualify as "invention developers." A "fee" includes any customer payment, including reimbursements for expenditures or costs, but does not include payments made from a portion of income the customer might receive by virtue of invention development services performed [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22371(d)].

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES:

The noncompliance with *Sections 22370-22394 of the Business and Professions Code*of the contract attached as Exhibit _____ to the complaint in the above-entitled action, such noncompliance specifically being _____ [specify, e.g., the absence of a statement of the expected date of completion of the invention development services required by Section 22379 of the Business and Professions Code], was unintentional on the defendant's part, and was the result of defendant's bona fide error. Such error was made notwithstanding the normal procedure(s) used by defendant to avoid such errors, specifically, _____ [specify defendant's reasonable procedures, e.g., two persons other than the person preparing the contract reading the entire contract and checking its contents to insure that all required information is included]. In addition, defendant _____ [has made or is willing and able to make] the appropriate correction of the error by _____ [specify acts constituting correction of error, e.g., preparing an addendum to the contract, to be signed by both parties to the contract, stating the expected date of completion of the invention development services]. Therefore, the contract attached as Exhibit _____ to the complaint in the above-entitled action is not void or unenforceable as alleged in such complaint.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense is for use by an invention developer in an action by an inventor customer to rescind the invention development services contract on the grounds that the contract is void and unenforceable because it does not comply with Chapter 17 [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22383]. The foregoing defense alleges that the contract is not void and unenforceable because defendant's noncompliance was the unintentional result of a bona fide error notwithstanding the use of reasonable procedures used by de fendant to avoid the error, and defendant has made or will make the appropriate correction [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22383].

_____ [The contract on which plaintiff bases the cause(s) of action in the complaint or The document attached to the complaint as Exhibit _____] does not comply with the applicable provision(s) of the invention development services law, specifically Business and Professions Code Section(s) _____ [specify, e.g., 22373 and 22374] which require(s) that _____ [specify, e.g., the contract for invention development services contain information relating to the customer's right to cancel the contract and that such information be printed in boldface type of at least 10-point size, both above the signatory section of the contract and on a cover sheet accompanying the contract]. As a result, such alleged contract is void and unenforceable as contrary to public policy.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense is for use by the customer of an invention developer, when the invention developer is suing the cus tomer to enforce or make a claim under an invention development services contract. This form alleges that because the plaintiff's contract for invention development services does not comply with the applicable provisions of the invention development services law, it is void and unenforceable as contrary to public policy. The contract is not void and unenforceable, however, if the noncompliance resulted from the invention developer's bona fide error, notwithstanding the use of reasonable procedures adopted to avoid such errors, and was corrected.

This affirmative defense may also be used as the grounds for a demurrer to a complaint by the invention developer, provided that the invention developer's noncompliance appears on the face of the complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30].

[3] Action for Rescission

Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22383 and 22384, providing that contracts for invention development services are void and unenforceable on the invention developer's noncompliance with Chapter 17 or fraud, may also providethe inventor or customer with the basis for an action to rescind the contract and obtain restitution of any amounts paid under the contract [see Civ. Code §§ 1689, 1692]. Fraud is also a separate ground for rescission of a contract [*see Civ. AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES:

On or about _____ [date], plaintiff in the above-entitled action made the willful and _____ [false and/or fraudulent and/or misleading] representation that _____ [specify, e.g., the contract for invention development services would result in complete patent protection for defendant's invention], whereas in fact _____ [specify, e.g., plaintiff's services and contract were not designed to provide, and could not provide, patent protection for defendant's invention]. Plaintiff made the representation, _____ [knowing it to be _____ (false and/or fraudulent and/or misleading) or without having any reasonable ground for believing it to be true], and with the intent to induce defendant to enter the contract attached to the complaint as Exhibit _____. Defendant entered into such contract in reliance on such representation, ignorant of its nature as a misrepresentation, and believing it to be true. As a result, such contract is void and unenforceable.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense is for use by the customer of an invention developer, when the invention developer is suing the customer to enforce or make a claim under an invention development services contract. This form alleges that the defendant entered into the contract in reliance on a willful and false, fraudulent, or misleading representation by the plaintiff. As a consequence, the contract is void and unenforceable [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22384].

[3] Cross Complaint

When an invention developer makes a false or fraudulent statement, representation, or omission of material fact, any person injured thereby may bring an action for damages, whether or not a contract has been entered into [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22386; see §§ 411.132 and 411.133]. In addition, if a customer has entered into a contract with an invention developer and is subsequently injured by the invention developer's fraud, the customer may bring an action for damages against the invention developer and the invention developer's surety [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22390; Code*Civ. Proc. §§ 996.410, 996.430*; see § 411.134]. Therefore, under appropriate circumstances, the customer might have grounds for a cross complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 426.30, 428.10].

[4] State Statutes

Contract for invention development services, entered into in reliance on willful and false, fraudulent, or misleading representation of invention developer is void and unenforceable. Bus. & Prof. Code § 22384

§ 411.141 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--To Action by Invention Developer to Enforce Invention Development Services Contract--Failure of Invention Developer in Advertisement to Disclose Requirement of Fee or Consideration [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22380, 22388]

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--To Action by Invention Developer to Enforce Invention Development Services Contract--Failure of Invention Developer in Advertisement to Disclose Requirement of Fee or Consideration [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22380, 22388]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES:

On or about _____, [date], plaintiff advertised invention development services by _____ [specify, e.g., placing an advertisement in the classified pages of the telephone directory for _____ (name of city)]. A copy of such advertisement is attached hereto as Exhibit _____. Although plaintiff was required by law clearly and conspicuously to disclose the fact of charging a fee or requiring any consideration for his/her/its invention development services, plaintiff failed to make such disclosure in such advertisement. Subsequent to viewing the advertisement, plaintiff contacted defendant, under the impression from the advertisement that no fee was involved and that _____ [specify belief, e.g., that plaintiff would be paid by manufacturers to whom plaintiff promoted the inventions]. Thereafter, on or about _____, [date], defendant signed the document attached to the complaint as Exhibit _____. [Defendant notified plaintiff on or about _____, [date], that defendant had elected to treat such document as void.] Defendant hereby elects to treat such document as void, as is defendant's option under Section 22388 of the Business and Professions Code.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense is for use by the customer of an invention developer, when the invention developer is suing the customer to enforce or make a claim under an invention development services contract. This form alleges that the invention developer failed to disclose, in an advertisement of his, her, or its services, that he, she, or it charges a fee or other consideration for invention development services. When such disclosure is not made, any contract subsequently entered into between the customer and the invention developer is voidable by the customer [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22380, 22388]. The applicable statute refers to a remedy by "the customer," rather than "any customer," which might suggest that the customer would have to plead his or her personal reliance on the advertisement, in addition to the failure to disclose by the invention developer.

[3] Cross Complaint

When an invention developer commits some violation of the invention development services law (Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22370-22394), any person injured thereby may bring an action for damages, whether or not a contract has been entered into [see § 411.130]. Therefore the customer might have grounds for a cross complaint as well [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 426.30, 428.10].

[4] Action for Rescission

Bus. & Prof. Code § 22388may also provide the basis for an action by the inventor to rescind the invention development services contract and to obtain restitution of any amounts paid under the contract [see Civ. Code §§ 1689, 1692; see also Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution].

[5] State Statutes

Fact that invention developer charges fee or requires consideration as required disclosure in advertisement of invention development services. Bus. & Prof. Code § 22380

Failure to make disclosure in advertisement, that fee or consideration required, as rendering subsequent contract voidable by customer. Bus. & Prof. Code § 22388

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--To Action by Invention Developer to Enforce Invention Development Services Contract--Failure of Invention Developer to Make Precontractual Disclosures [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22381, 22388]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES:

1. On or about _____, [date], defendant _____ [was in oral communication with plaintiff by virtue of _____ (specify, e.g., a telephone call placed by defendant to plaintiff) or received a first written response to an inquiry made to plaintiff by defendant _____ (specify, e.g., by letter on or about _____, [date date])]. The subject of such _____ [communication or written response] was _____ [specify, e.g., the nature of plaintiff's invention development services], and the primary purpose of such _____ [communication or written response] was not to arrange an appointment with plaintiff for presentation of plaintiff's invention development services. Plaintiff was obligated under Section 22381 of the Business and Professions Code at the time of such _____ [communication or written response] to make certain disclosures to defendant regarding fees, expenditures, past customers, and patent rights, but plaintiff failed to make _____ [any of such disclosures or specify particular disclosure(s) not made, e.g., a disclosure setting forth (1) the total number of past customers, excluding those who contracted with plaintiff within the preceding 30 days, and (2) the number of customers that had received, by virtue of the invention developer's performance of invention development services, an amount of money in excess of the amount of money paid by such customers to the invention developer].

2. Thereafter, defendant consulted plaintiff to retain the latter for invention development services, ignorant of the facts involved in the matters required to have been disclosed, and on or about _____, [date], signed the document attached to the complaint herein as Exhibit _____. [Defendant notified plaintiff on or about _____, [date], that defendant had elected to treat such document as void.] Defendant hereby elects to treat such document as void, as is defendant's option under Section 22388 of the Business and Professions Code.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense is for use by the customer of an invention developer, when the invention developer is suing the customer to enforce or make a claim under an invention development services contract. Thisaffirmative defense alleges that because the invention developer did not make one or more required disclosures in the first substantive communication with defendant, the contract subsequently entered into is voidable by defendant [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 22381, 22388].

The invention developer must disclose to each customer, in the first substantive oral or written communication with the customer, all of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22381]]

- Fees charged, including what portion will be commission to any agent and what portion will be spent on patent matters;

- Whether or not the invention developer intends to expend more for services than the customer is charged, and if so, a statement of such estimated expenditures;

- A single statement setting forth the total number of the invention developer's customers, excluding those who have contracted with the invention developer within the past 30 days, and the number of such past customers who received more money as a result of the invention developer's services, than they paid to the invention developer; and

- A specific statement, set forth by statute, that the invention development services contract is unrelated to patent rights for the customer's invention.

Failure to make the above disclosures renders any subsequent contract voidable by the customer [Bus. & Prof. Code § 22388].

[3] State Statutes

Specified disclosures as required on first substantive communication with customer. Bus. & Prof. Code § 22381

Failure to make precontractual disclosures by invention developer as rendering subsequent contracts voidable by customer. Bus. & Prof. Code § 22388

Chapter 412 PATERNITY
PART I. SCOPE

35-412 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 412.01

§ 412.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the establishment of the parent-child relationship, with focus on the Uniform Parentage Act (UPA) [Fam. Code § 7600 et seq.]. The Introduction is divided into four parts.

§ 412.10 et seq. presents an overview of the UPA and the other actions in which parentage may be established. It also discusses the effect of the UPA on intestate succession.

§ 412.30 et seq. covers the statutory presumptions of paternity.

§ 412.50 et seq. discusses the subject of the scientific evidence to prove parentage, including blood testing and other genetic testing.

§ 412.70 et seq. presents the procedures for establishing parentage under the UPA.

This chapter includes the following forms:

- Illustration of the Judicial Council form of petition to establish parental relationship, with summons and standard restraining order [see § 412.130].

- Petition to establish nonpaternity [see § 412.131].

- Illustration of the Judicial Council form of response to petition to establish parental relationship [see § 412.132].

- Affirmative defenses to a paternity action [see Forms 4, 5].

- Notice of a paternity action [see § 412.135].

- Notice of motion, declaration, and an illustration of the Judicial Council form of order for genetic (parentage) testing [see §§ 412.136-412.138].

- Declaration in support of motion for pendente lite support [see § 412.139].

- Judicial Council form of judgment establishing parentage, with support, custody, and other orders [see § 412.140].

- Judicial Council form of declaration for default or uncontested judgment [see § 412.141].

- Judicial Council forms of stipulation for entry of judgment and for advisement and waiver of rights regarding establishment of a parental relationship [see § 412.142].

- Judicial Council forms to set aside a voluntary declaration of paternity [see §§ 412.143-412.145].

- Judicial Council forms to set aside a judgment of paternity [see §§ 412.146-412.148].

- Judicial Council form to appoint a guardian ad litem to represent a minor in a paternity action [see § 412.149].

The rights and duties arising from the parent-child relationship are discussedgenerally in Ch. 394, Parent and Child. The use of the UPA's presumptions of paternity in other areas of law, including constitutionalissues, is discussed generally in that chapter; and is discussed specifically with regard to termination of parental rights and adoption in Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights .

Proceedings to establish paternity and establish and enforce child support obligations by district attorneys and other support agencies are discussed in Ch. 259, Family Law Enforcement: Special Remedies for Support Enforcement .

A. Overview of Parentage Determinations

35-412 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 412.10

§ 412.10 Illegitimacy Abolished

The concept of illegitimacy was abolished in California on January 1, 1976, when the original Uniform Parentage Act (UPA) was adopted [Stats. 1975, ch. 1244]. The current version of the Uniform Parentage Act [see Fam. Code § 7600 et seq.] sets forth a procedure for determining the existence or nonexistence of the parent-child relationship and replaces illegitimacy with presumptions of paternity [see Fam. Code § 7611, discussed in § 412.30 et seq.].

The UPA broadly states that the parent-child relationship extends equally to every child and to every parent, regardless of the marital status of the parents [Fam. Code § 7602]. With regard to rights of children, California law does not substantively differentiate between children on the basis of the marital status of their parents [cf. Prob. Code § 6453, discussed in § 412.14 (different evidentiary burden under intestacy law)]. However, with regard to parents, the broad proclamation of Fam. Code § 7602 is not consistently carried forth in the UPA and other California law. All parents do not have the same rights, regardless of marital status and regardless of gender. There are a number of areas of California law in which the statutory rights of unmarried fathers may be less than those of mothers and married fathers. For further discussion, see General Applicability and Constitutionality of Presumptions of Paternity in Part B, below.

The elimination of the concept of illegitimacy is consistent with United States Supreme Court cases that have held that state and federal statutes conferring economic rights on legitimate children while denying them to illegitimate children are unconstitutional as denying due process, equal protection of the laws, or both [see, e.g., Trimble v. Gordon (1977) 430 U.S. 762, 769-776, 97 S. Ct. 1459, 52 L. Ed. 2d 31 (Illinois intestate succession statute, see § 412.14); see also Jimenez v. Weinberger (1974) 417 U.S. 628, 634-638, 94 S. Ct. 2496, 41 L. Ed. 2d 363 (federal Social Security Act); but see Mathews v. Lucas (1976) 427 U.S. 495, 497-516, 96 S. Ct. 2755, 49 L. Ed. 2d 651 (distinguishing Jimenez, above, and holding there is no unconstitutional discrimination under federal Social Security Act in presuming legitimate children were dependent on decedent but requiring illegitimate children in certain cases to prove dependency)]. The Supreme Court has also held that an Illinois statute that deprived the father of a right to custody of his illegitimate child after the death of the mother, without notice, hearing, or proof of neglect, violated both the due process and equal protection clauses of the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution [Stanley v. Illinois (1972) 405 U.S. 645, 656-659, 92 S. Ct. 1208, 31 L. Ed. 2d 551] . For further discussion of the constitutional protections of the parent-child relationship, see Ch. 394, Parent and Child , Pt. I.

[1] Biological Children

The UPA provides for a judicial action to establish the existence or nonexistence of the father-child relationship [Fam. Code § 7610(b); see Fam. Code § 7630 et seq.; In re Jesusa V. (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 588, 604-606, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 205, 85 P.3d 2 ; In re Nicholas H. (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 56, 58-59, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 146, 46 P.3d 932] or the mother-child relationship [Fam. Code § 7610(a); see Fam. Code § 7650, discussed in § 412.13]. Paternity may also be established by the district attorney or other local child support agency, representing the public interest, in a child support enforcement action [Fam. Code § 17400; see Ch. 259, Family Law Enforcement: Special Remedies for Support Enforcement]. The district attorney or other local child support agency may also enter into an agreement with a putative father for entry of a judgment of paternity without action [see Fam. Code § 17416]. Whether or not a married person is the legal parent of a child of his or her spouse has been determined in a proceeding for dissolution of the marriage [see In re Marriage of Buzzanca (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1410, 1418, 1421, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 280 ; In re Marriage of Groner (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 115, 116-117, 99 Cal. Rptr. 765] , and statutory authority exists for such a determination [see Fam. Code § 2330.1 (dissolution petition may list children born before marriage to same parties and, pursuant to UPA, a determination of paternity may be made)]. Paternity may also be established in a juvenile court proceeding [see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 316.2, 903.41(b)(2)].

A previous determination of paternity made by another state must be given full faith and credit by California courts, whether the determination was established through voluntary acknowledgment procedures or an administrative or judicial process. It has the same effect as a paternity determination made in California, and may be enforced and satisfied in the same manner [Fam. Code § 5604].

This chapter sets forth the procedures of the UPA; the procedures for district attorney paternity and support actions are discussed in Ch. 259, Family Law Enforcement: Special Remedies for Law Enforcement . Many of the substantive considerations in establishing paternity, including presumptions and scientific evidence, are equally applicable in paternity determinations in a district attorney proceeding [see County of Orange v. Leslie B. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 976, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 797] .

[2] Adopted Children

The status of parent-child between a child and an adoptive parent must be established by proof of adoption [Fam. Code § 7610(c)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Overview of Parentage Determinations

35-412 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 412.12

§ 412.12 Purposes for Bringing Parentage Action

In many cases, there may never be any need for a formal adjudication of parentage, particularly if the parents and child are cohabiting as a family unit [see Fam. Code § 7611(d), presumption of paternity arising from cohabitation, discussed in § 412.32[4]]. However, in any area of law in which rights depend on whether a given person is or is not the legal parent of a particular child, a judgment of parentage may be important.

The most common reason historically for bringing a parentage action has been to establish paternity as a basis for obtaining child support from the defendant father [see, e.g., Everett v. Everett (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 65, 69, 129 Cal. Rptr. 8 ; Van Buskirk v. Todd (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 680, 685-687, 75 Cal. Rptr. 280 (both decided under predecessor statutes)]. Today, most paternity actions to obtain child support are brought by the public agency responsible for establishing and enforcing support obligations. Historically, this has been the family support division of county district attorney offices, but this responsibility is now being transferred to separate, local child support agencies under the State Department of Child Support Services, as discussed in Ch. 259, Family Law Enforcement: Special Remedies for Support Enforcement . Criminal enforcement will remain with district attorneys. The responsible support agency is required to take action to establish, modify, and enforce child support orders when a child is receiving public assistance. The agency may also take the same actions on behalf of a child who is not receiving public assistance [Fam. Code § 17400].

A UPA paternity action may also be brought by a man who alleges that he is the father of a child as a way of obtaining parental rights, including custody and visitation, with the child [see Fam. Code § 7630]. The action may even be brought by a man who has stipulated to his paternity in another action in order to obtain an adjudication of visitation rights [County of San Joaquin v. Woods (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 56, 61, 258 Cal. Rptr. 110 (visitation may not be litigated in action initiated by district attorney to establish parentage and fix child support obligation)].

Following is a list of other types of cases in which the issue of parentage may be relevant:

> (1) A proceeding for dissolution of marriage, in which the court's jurisdiction is limited to children of the marriage, including children born to the same parties before marriage [see Fam. Code §§ 2010(b), 2330.1; see also In re Marriage of Valle (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 837, 840-843, 126 Cal. Rptr. 38] .

(2) A proceeding to determine rights of intestate succession, in which establishment of the parent-child relationship may be a condition precedent to the right to inherit [see Prob. Code § 6453; Estate of Chambers (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 891, 895-897, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 651 ; Estate of Burden (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 1021, 1029-1031, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 390 ; Estate of Sanders (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 462, 465, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 536 ; § 412.14].

(3) A juvenile court dependency proceeding under Welf. & Inst. Code § 300 et seq., in which numerous rights are afforded those who can establish that they are the parents of the dependent child [see, e.g., In re Jesusa V. (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 588, 603-608, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 205, 85 P.3d 2 (involving competing rebuttable presumptions of paternity); In re R. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 636, 640, 644, 647-651, 119 Cal. Rptr. 475, 532 P.2d 123 (involving conclusive presumption of paternity); In re J.O. (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 139, 146-151, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 276 ; In re A.A. (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 771, 779-784, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 755 ; In re Salvador M. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 1353, 1357-1359, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 705 ; In re Sarah C. (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 964,971-973, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 414] .

(4) Any proceeding in which the custody of a child is at issue [see, e.g., Prob. Code § 1514 (guardianship); In re Reyna (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 288, 295, 126 Cal. Rptr. 138 (habeas corpus)] in which a parent has a preferential right to the custody of his or her child [see Fam. Code § 3041]. Child custody jurisdiction is discussed in Ch. 394, Parent and Child ; the parental preference doctrine is discussed in Ch. 223, Dissolution of Marriage: Child Custody .

(5) An adoption proceeding, in which whether one's consent to the adoption is required depends on determination of parentage [see Fam. Code § 7660 et seq., 8604, 8605; In re Kyle F. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 538, 542, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 190 (unwed father's rights regarding adoption of child depend on whether he is presumed or natural father); but see Adoption of Michael D. (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 122, 129-132, 256 Cal. Rptr. 884 (judgment of paternity, alone, does not entitle father to veto adoption by withholding consent)]. Termination of parental rights is discussed in Ch. 12A, Adoptions: Termination of Parental Rights .

(6) A criminal prosecution for failure to support a child [see In re Clarke (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 802, 808, 309 P.2d 142 ; see also Lyons v. Municipal Court (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 829, 836-837, 142 Cal. Rptr. 449] .

(7) A proceeding under the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act (UIFSA) [see Fam. Code § 4965]. UIFSA is discussed in Ch. 260, Family Law Enforcement: Foreign Judgment .

(8) A proceeding under the Domestic Violence Prevention Act [see Fam. Code §§ 6200 et seq.] that includes the issuance of orders regarding custody and visitation of minor children [see Fam. Code § 6323(a) (court may make ex parte orders regarding temporary custody and visitation of minor children when party establishes parent-child relationship); Gonzalez v. Munoz (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 413, 422-423, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 317 (when court has issued ex parte custody and visitation orders at request of one party, it must elicit evidence under Fam. Code § 6340(a) as to whether other party can demonstrate parent-child relationship with minor children and, if so, whether earlier custody and visitation orders should be modified to ensure mutual safety of children and party having custody)].

(9) A deportation proceeding involving a person born out of wedlock and abroad to a citizen father and a noncitizen mother [see Tuan Anh Nguyen v. INS (2001) 121 S. Ct. 2053, 2057-2058, 150 L. Ed. 2d 115 (noncitizen adult child was deportable under federal statute, when citizen father failed to formally establish parentage during child's minority)].

[1] Action to Establish Mother-Child Relationship

Any interested party may bring an action to determine the existence or nonexistence of a mother-child relationship [Fam. Code § 7650; see Elisa B. v. Superior Court (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 108, 113, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 46, 117 P.3d 660 (district attorney had standing to bring action to establish that former lesbian partner of child's birth mother was child's presumed mother and thus obligated to pay support for child); K.M. v. E.G. (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 130, 142-144, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 61, 117 P.3d 673 (woman who provides ova to her lesbian partner so that partner can bear child who will be raised in their joint home is also child's mother based on her genetic relationship to child); Wynn v. Superior Court (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 346, 350, 353-355, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 86 (child is necessarily interested party in proceeding to determine biological mother and may bring action to adjudicate parentage); Charisma R. v. Kristina S. (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 361, 367-377, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 26 ; Charisma R. v. Kristina S. (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 301, 307-308, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 332 (registered domestic partner of birth mother is entitled to bring petition to establish parental relationship with child born to birth mother by artificial insemination from anonymous donor); see also Kristine H. v. Lisa R. (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 156, 166, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 81, 117 P.3d 690 (lesbian mother of child is estopped from challenging validity of stipulated judgment declaring that she and her lesbian partner were child's parents); but see Scott v. Superior Court (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 540, 544-547, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 843 (woman who had intimate relationship with father of minor children did not have standing to join parents' UPA action to seek custody and visitation rights as presumed or de facto mother when parental rights of natural mother had not been terminated); Robert B. v. Susan B. (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1109, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 785 (intended recipient of embryos mistakenly implanted into another woman lacked standing to seek maternity); Prato-Morrison v. Doe (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 222, 229-230, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 509 (alleged genetic mother, lacked standing to bring parentage action)].

Insofar as practicable, the provisions of the Uniform Parentage Act apply in such an action [Fam. Code § 7650; Elisa B. v. Superior Court (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 108, 116, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 46, 117 P.3d 660 ; In re Salvador M. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 1353, 1357, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 705 (legal principles concerning presumed father apply equally to woman seeking presumed mother status); see Johnson v. Calvert (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 84, 89, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 494, 851 P.2d 776 (surrogacy); see also In re Karen C. (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 932, 938, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 677 (presumed mother under Fam. Code § 7611(d))].

The mother-child relationship may be established by proof of the natural mother's having given birth to the child [Fam. Code § 7610(a)]. Because childbirth in modern society is almost always attended and witnessed by medical professionals, there has been little need for judicial determinations of maternity. However, technological advances have created a need for such determination, where none previously existed [see Prato-Morrison v. Doe (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 222, 232 n.10, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 509] . For example, the California Supreme Court has held that when a woman provides ova to her lesbian partner so that the partner can bear a child who will be raised in their joint home, both women are considered to be the child's parents [K.M. v. E.G. (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 130, 134, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 61, 117 P.3d 673] . The egg donor's genetic relationship with the resulting child constitutes evidence of a mother and child relationship under the UPA, and the circumstances that her partner gave birth to the child also constitutes evidence of a mother and child relationship. Thus, both women are mother of the child under the UPA [K.M. v. E.G. (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 130, 142-143, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 61, 117 P.3d 673]. Fam. Code § 7613(b), which creates an exception to the usual rules governing parentage that applies when a man donates semen to inseminate a woman who is not his wife [see [3], below], does not apply when a woman supplies ova to impregnate her lesbian partner in order to produce a child who would be raised in their joint home [K.M. v. E.G. (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 130,143, 33 Cal.Rptr. 3d 61, 117 P.3d 673].

The legal principles concerning presumed fathers apply equally to women seeking presumed mother status [Elisa B. v. Superior Court (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 108, 113, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 46, 117 P.3d 660] . Under Fam. Code § 7611(d), a woman may be a presumed mother of a child of her lesbian partner if they agree to raise the child together, she receives the child into her home, and she holds the child out as her natural child [Elisa B. v. Superior Court (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 108, 113, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 46, 117 P.3d 660 (as child's presumed mother, she has obligation to support child)]. Although a child can have only one natural mother, this does not mean that a child cannot have two parents, both of whom are mothers [Elisa B. v. Superior Court (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 108, 117-118, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 46, 117 P.3d 660] . This result is now possible under the domestic partnership statutes, specifically Fam. Code § 297.5(d), which provides that the rights and obligations of registered domestic partners with respect to a child of either of them are the same as those of spouses. The California Supreme Court has also recognized in an adoption case that a child can have two mothers [Sharon S. v. Superior Court (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 417, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 699, 73 P.3d 554] . The Court held in Elisa B. that this action--an action by the district attorney to establish that the former lesbian partner of the child's birth mother was the child's presumed mother and thus obligated to pay support for the child--was not an appropriate action in which to rebut the presumption of presumed motherhood with proof that the former partner was not the child's biological parent. The former partner had actively consented to, and participated in, the artificial insemination of the birth mother with the understanding that the resulting child would be raised by both of them as coparents, they did, in fact, act as coparents for a substantial time period, and there were no competing claims to her being the child's second parent. Because she had helped to cause the child to be born and had raised the child as her own, the former partner was not permitted to abandon the child merely because her relationship with the birth mother had dissolved [Elisa B. v. Superior Court (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 108, 122-125, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 46, 117 P.3d 660] .

A registered domestic partner of the birth mother is entitled to bring a petition under Fam. Code § 7611(d) to establish her parental relationship with a child born to the birth mother by artificial insemination from an anonymous donor. The court must determine first, whether the petitioner is a presumed parent of the child under Fam. Code § 7611(d), and then, whether this is an appropriate action in which to rebut the presumption that the petitioner is the child's parent [Charisma R. v. Kristina S. (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 301, 309, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 332] . Presumed parent status depends on affirmative findings that the petitioner received the child into her home and openly held the child out as her natural child. If the trial court finds that the petitioner is a presumed parent, then it should determine (1) whether the petitioner actively participated in causing the child to be conceived with the understanding that she would raise the child as her own with the birth mother, (2) whether she voluntarily accepted the rights and obligations of parenthood after the child was born, and (3) whether anyone else claims to be the child's second parent [Charisma R. v. Kristina S. (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 301, 309-310, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 332] . Evidence that the petitioner has no biological tie to the child does not rebut the presumption of the petitioner's parenthood [Charisma R. v. Kristina S. (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 301, 310, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 332] . Moreover, the fact that the birth mother opposes presumed parent status for the petitioner does not control the determination of whether presumed parent status arises under Fam. Code § 7611(d). Such a rule would be contrary to the public policy in favor of a child having two parents rather than one, and might implicate the constitutional rights of the person seeking presumed parent status and of the child in the establishment of the parent-child relationship [Charisma R. v. Kristina S. (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 301, 310, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 332] .

The plaintiff is not required to receive the child in her home for a "significant period of time" to be considered a presumed parent under Fam. Code § 7611(d) [Charisma R. v. Kristina S. (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 361, 370-374, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 26] . The "receiving" requirement of Fam. Code § 7611(d) is a necessary formality, but not one that requires "receipt" for any particular duration [Charisma R. v. Kristina S. (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 361, 372, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 26] . Instead, the plaintiff's receipt of the child in her home must be sufficiently unambiguous as to constitute a clear declaration regarding the nature of their relationship, but it need not continue for any specific duration. Although cohabitation for an extended period may strengthen a claim for presumed parent status, Fam. Code § 7611(d) does not require that cohabitation or coparenting continue for any particular period of time [Charisma R. v. Kristina S. (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 361, 374, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 26] .

When a woman provides ova to her lesbian partner so that the partner can bear a child who will be raised in their joint home, both women are considered to be the child's parents [K.M. v. E.G. (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 130, 134, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 61, 117 P.3d 673] . An egg donor's genetic relationship with the resulting child constitutes evidence of a mother-child relationship under the Uniform Parentage Act and the circumstance that her partner gave birth to the child also constitute evidence of a mother-child relationship. Thus, both women are mothers of the child under the UPA [K.M. v. E.G. (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 130, 142-143, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 61, 117 P.3d 673] . Fam. Code § 7613(b), which creates an exception to the usual rules governing parentage that applies when a man donates semen to inseminate a woman who is not his wife [see [3], below], does not apply when a woman supplies ova to impregnate her lesbian partner in order to produce a child who would be raised in their joint home [K.M. v. E.G. (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 130, 143, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 61, 117 P.3d 673] .

The lesbian mother of a child is estopped from challenging the validity of a stipulated judgment declaring that she and her lesbian partner are the child's parents. Because the mother invoked the jurisdiction of the court to determine the child's parentage under the UPA, stipulated to the issuance of a judgment, and enjoyed the benefits of that judgment, it would be unfair to the partner and the child to permit the mother to challenge the validity of that judgment. It would also contravene the public policy that favors a child having two parents rather than one [Kristine H. v. Lisa R. (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 156, 166, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 81, 117 P.3d 690] .

In a mother's action for custody and visitation rights to her biological child, who has been raised by the biological father and his wife, the wife is not entitled to be joined as a party nor is she entitled to bring a separate action to be declared the child's presumed mother. The wife is not the child's presumed mother under either Fam. Code § 7611(a) by virtue of being married to the child's father, or under Fam. Code § 7611(d) because she received the child into her home and held him out as her own child. The presumptions set forth in Fam. Code § 7611 do not apply in maternity cases when the child's birth mother is present and asserts legal parenthood. Because the child's natural father was known and present in the action, the child could have only one additional parent. Cases in which the courts have applied Fam. Code § 7611 to recognize a presumed mother have all involved circumstances in which there was no competing claim to be the child's mother or second parent. When both the child's biological father and biological mother have identified themselves and come forward to assert their legal parentage, it is not appropriate to invoke a gender-neutral readingof the paternity presumptions to provide the child with another mother [Amy G. v. M.W. (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 297] .

When a mother's parental rights over her biological child have been terminated in a dependency action, the mother cannot bring a subsequent motion under Fam. Code § 7611(d) to be declared the child's presumed mother because the child continued to live with her and she held the child out as her biological child. Welf. & Inst. Code § 366.26(i)(1) provides that any order permanently terminating parental rights is conclusive and binding, and the court lacks jurisdiction to modify or revoke the order once it has become final. Fam. Code § 7630(b) does not give a court jurisdiction to reconsider the termination of parental rights, merely because it provides that any interested person may bring an action at any time for the purpose of determining the existence or nonexistence of the parent and child relationship presumed under Fam. Code § 7611(d). Proceedings under Fam. Code § 7630(b) may be brought at any time before parental rights have been terminated under Welf. & Inst. Code § 366.26. If Fam. Code § 7630(b) were interpreted to allow a parent to seek presumed parent status after termination of parental rights, Welf. & Inst. Code § 366.26(i)(1) would be meaningless, and the goals of stability and finality within a reasonable time would be substantially undermined [In re Cody B. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1004, 1009-1011, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 652] .

Even though a child has been adopted, a court still has the authority to adjudicate facts concerning a possible biological relationship between the birth mother and the child in an action to adjudicate the child's parentage for purposes of correcting the child's original birth certificate to state the actual names of the birth parents in place of the fictitious names the birth mother used when the original certificate was prepared [Wynn v. Superior Court (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 346, 350, 354-355, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 86] .

[2] In Vitro Fertilization and Gestational Surrogacy

In vitro fertilization is the fertilization of a human egg outside the human body in a laboratory. Through this process, an egg can be removed from one woman, fertilized with the intended father's sperm in a petri dish, and then implanted into the uterus of a different woman who carries the fetus and gives birth to the child [see Johnson v. Calvert (1993) 5 Cal 4th 84, 105-106, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 494, 851 P.2d 776 (opinion of Kennard, J., dissenting)].

Thus, if one woman is unable to give birth to a child, another can contribute the component of the birth process that the first is unable to achieve. For example, a woman who wants a child might be unable to carry the fetus; in which case, her fertilized egg is implanted in the uterus of a gestational surrogate. Conversely, the woman desiring the child might be unable to ovulate; in which case, the fertilized egg of another woman would be implanted in her uterus [see Johnson v. Calvert (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 84, 93 n.10, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 494, 851 P.2d 776] .

Another variation on the in vitro procedure, which arose in at least one reported decision, involves implantation into a surrogate of fertilized ovum in which both sperm and egg come from anonymous donors. In such a case, although neither the couple contracting for the child nor the surrogate mother are genetically related to the child, the couple will be deemed the child's parents [In re Marriage of Buzzanca (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1410, 1421, 1428, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 280] .

In vitro fertilization must be distinguished from a surrogacy arrangement in which the surrogate provides all of the female reproductive roles of childbirth, including egg and womb [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Moschetta (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1218, 1221-1222, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 893 ; Adoption of Matthew B. (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1239, 284 Cal. Rptr. 18] . In the latter case, the surrogate is uncontestably the biological mother of the child, and the legal issue is usually whether she can be compelled to perform her contractual promise to consent to the adoption of the child by the intended mother. This kind of surrogacy arrangement necessarily involves an adoption [see In re Marriage of Moschetta (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1218, 1221-1222, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 893] and is discussed in Ch. 12, Adoptions: Nature and Effect . In vitro fertilization involves the even more basic question of whether the egg donor or the child bearer is the biological mother of the child.

In Johnson v. Calvert (1993) 5 Cal 4th 84, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 494, 851 P.2d 776 , the California Supreme Court resolved this question by looking first to the maternity action under the UPA [Fam. Code § 7650; see § 412.32[1])], and then considering the effect of the contract. The court found statutory authority under the UPA supporting the claim of both the egg donor and the child bearer to biological maternity. In support of the child bearer is the provision that the mother-child relationship may be established between a child and the natural mother by proof of her having given birth to the child [Fam. Code § 7610(a); Johnson v. Calvert (1993) 5 Cal 4th 84, 89-90, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 494, 851 P.2d 776] . However, proof of giving birth is not the exclusive fact that proves maternity; the relationship may also be established by other means provided for in the UPA [see Fam. Code § 7610(a)]. Thus, the court held that blood test evidence, which is admissible to prove the biological fact of paternity under the Uniform Act on Blood Tests to Determine Paternity [Fam. Code § 7550 et seq.; see § 412.50 et seq.], is also admissible to establish maternity [Johnson v. Calvert (1993) 5 Cal 4th 84, 91-92, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 494, 851 P.2d 776 ; see Fam. Code § 7554; see also § 412.33]. Genetic test evidence (including certain blood-based evidence) will obviously point to the egg donor as the mother, and often will exclude the child bearer [see Fam. Code § 7555, discussed in § 412.33. However, the policy-based presumptions of paternity of Fam. Code § 7611 do not apply to the determination of maternity [Johnson v. Calvert (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 84, 90-91, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 494, 851 P.2d 776] . These presumptions are discussed in § 412.32.

Given that there is statutory support for considering the claims of both women, the court first rejected the suggestion that a child may have two natural mothers [Johnson v. Calvert (1993) 5 Cal 4th 84, 92 n.8, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 494, 851 P.2d 776] . It then resolved the conflict by looking to the intent of surrogacy arrangement. If genetic consanguinity and child bearing do not coincide in one woman, the parties' intention, as expressed in the surrogacy contract, is determinative. She who was intended to rear the child as her own (in this case the egg donor) is the natural mother under California law. This rule affirms the essential validity and enforceability of the surrogacy contract [Johnson v. Calvert (1993) 5 Cal 4th 84, 93, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 494, 851 P.2d 776] .

In reaching this result, the court rejected arguments that such surrogacy arrangements are unenforceable as in violation of public policy. Instead, the court broadly upheld the right of a woman to knowingly and intelligently agree to gestate and deliver a baby for intending parents. It stated that to hold otherwise would be to both foreclose a personal and economic choice on the part of the surrogate mother, and to deny intending parents what may be their only means of procreating a child of their owngenes [Johnson v. Calvert (1993) 5 Cal 4th 84, 97, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 494, 851 P.2d 776] . The court also rejected all constitutional challenges to the determination that the child bearer was not the natural mother [Johnson v. Calvert (1993) 5 Cal 4th 84, 98-100, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 494, 851 P.2d 776] .

[3] Artificial Insemination of Unmarried Woman

Fam. Code § 7613(b), a part of California's Uniform Parentage Act, provides that the donor of semen provided to a licensed physician and surgeon or to a licensed sperm bank for use in artificial insemination or in vitro fertilization of a woman other than the donor's wife is not the legal father of the child. The Uniform Act restricts the effect of the statute to married women. By omitting this restriction in California, the legislature has indicated that the state has no public policy bar to the artificial insemination of an unmarried woman [Hecht v. Superior Court (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 836, 852-855, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 275 ; Jhordan C. v. Mary K. (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 386, 392, 397-398, 224 Cal. Rptr. 530] . Therefore, whether or not the procedures of the statute are followed to avoid paternal rights in the sperm donor [see Jhordan C. v. Mary K. (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 386, 389, 224 Cal. Rptr. 530] , the reproductive technology of artificial insemination is available to all women in California regardless of marital status [Hecht v. Superior Court (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 836, 854, 861, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 275 (testamentary disposition of sperm deposited in sperm bank for use in post mortem artificial insemination of unmarried woman not in violation of public policy)].

Fam. Code § 7613(b) applies even if the sperm donor and the woman who conceives the child are known to each other and the woman acknowledges that the donor is the child's father. This statute does not make an exception for known sperm donors or for cases in which the parties have an intimate relationship [Steven S. v. Deborah D. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 319, 324-326, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 482] .

For further discussion of the effect of this statute on the paternity of the sperm donor, see § 412.35. For discussion of the possible effect of this statute on surrogate birth arrangements, see Ch. 12, Adoptions: Nature and Effect .

An agreement between an unmarried man and woman to conceive a child by artificial insemination with an anonymous donor, and to provide the man with parentage, custody, and visitation rights to the child, is a valid and enforceable agreement to the extent of an action by the man against the woman for unjust enrichment, even though the man does not qualify as either a presumed or a natural father of the child under the Uniform Parentage Act (Fam. Code § 7600 et seq.). After entering into such a contractual arrangement, although the man does not acquire custody or visitation rights, he can seek compensation under a theory of unjust enrichment: essentially, restitution for benefits the man conferred by reason of the contract [Dunkin v. Boskey (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 171, 186-190, 195-198, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 44] .

[4] Child In Utero at Death

A woman is presumed to be the natural mother of a child if the child is in utero after the woman's death and the following conditions are satisfied [Fam. Code § 7650(b); Prob. Code § 249.5]:

(a) The woman, in writing, specified that her genetic material would be used for the posthumous conception of a child of hers, subject to the following:

(1) The specification was signed by the woman and at least one competent witness.

(2) The specification could be revoked or amended only by a writing, signed by the woman and at least one competent witness.

(3) The person designated by the woman to use the genetic material was either of the following:
(A) Her spouse or registered domestic partner, as of her date of death.

(B) Some other person named in the specification as approved by the woman to be the person designated by her to use the genetic material for posthumous conception.

(b) The child or the child's representative has given written notice by certified mail, return receipt requested, that the woman's genetic material was available for the purpose of posthumous conception. The notice must have been given to a person who had the power to control the distribution of either the woman's property or death benefits payable by reason of her death, within four months of the date of issuance of a certificate of the death or entry of a judgment determining the fact of the death, whichever event occurred first.

(c) The child was in utero using the woman's genetic material and was in utero within two years of the date of issuance of a certificate of her death or entry of a judgment determining the fact of the death, whichever event occurred first. This does not apply to a child who shares all of his or her nuclear genes with the person donating the implanted nucleus as a result of the application of somatic nuclear transfer technology commonly known as human cloning.

§ 412.14 Establishing Parent-Child Relationship for Purpose of Intestate Succession

For decedents dying on or after January 1, 1985, Prob. Code § 6450 et seq. set forth the rules for determining whether there is a parent-child relationship between the decedent and another person for purposes of inheritance by intestate succession [see Prob. Code § 6414(a)].

With the exception of situations involving adoption [see Prob. Code § 6451, discussed in the General Introduction to Ch. 12, Adoptions: Nature and Effect], the parent-child relationship exists between a person and his or her natural parents, regardless of the marital status of the natural parents [Prob. Code § 6450(a); see Trimble v. Gordon (1977) 430 U.S. 762, 770-773, 97 S. Ct. 1459, 52 L. Ed. 2d 31 (total statutory disinheritance of children born out of wedlock violates equal protection); see also Lozano v. Scalier (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 843, 846, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 346 (distinction between legitimate and illegitimate children has been eliminated)].However, the difficult issue is determining who is the natural father of a child. Historically, there has been a problem with persons claiming to be the natural child of a decedent only after the person's death solely for the purpose of claiming inheritance [see Estate of Chambers (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 891, 896, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 651 ; Estate of Sanders (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 462, 474 n.15, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 536] .

For this reason, Prob. Code § 6453 contains rules for determining who is a "natural parent" based on the Uniform Parentage Act. A natural parent and child relationship is established if the relationship is presumed and not rebutted under the UPA [Prob. Code § 6453(a)]. Most of the presumptions of paternity under the UPA arise from the marital status of the parents [see Fam. Code § 7611, discussed in § 412.32]. If the relationship is based on a presumption of paternity, no formal adjudication during the decedent's lifetime of paternity based on the presumption is required; the relationship exists before death even though no use is made of it until afterwards [see Gabehart v. Simonsen (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 672, 677, 222 Cal. Rptr. 336 (construing prior law)].

The parent-child relationship may also be established under any other provision of the UPA, as well as by the res judicata effect of a dissolution judgment in which a finding of parentage was made [Prob. Code § 6453(b); Weir v. Ferreira (Estate of Kelm) (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1509, 1515-1521, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 33] . However, it may not be established by an action to determine parentage brought under Fam. Code § 7630(c) (to determine the existence of the father-child relationship with regard to a child who has no presumed father) unless at least one of the following conditions exists [Prob. Code § 6453(b); Cheyanna M. v. A.C. Nielsen Co. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 855, 874, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 335 ; cf. Hecht v. Superior Court (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 836, 856-857 n.8, 859-860, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 275 (involving children conceived from frozen sperm after decedent's death)]:

(1) A court order declaring paternity was entered during the father's lifetime;

(2) Paternity is established by clear and convincing evidence that the father has openly held out the child as his own [see Estate of Chambers (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 891, 895-897, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 651 (parent-child relationship must be shown by clear and convincing evidence, not preponderance of evidence; higher burden of proof is to discourage dubious paternity claims made after man's death for sole purpose of inheritance); Estate of Burden (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 1021, 1029-1031, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 390 (Prob. Code § 6453(b)(2), which permits child born out of wedlock to establish father-child relationship for intestate succession purposes by providing clear and convincing evidence that father has openly held out child as his own, is satisfied by evidence of father's acknowledgments of child as his own during his lifetime)]; or

(3) It was impossible for the father to hold out the child as his own, and paternity is established by clear and convincing evidence.
