A plaintiff's standing to sue is essential to his or her cause of action [Parker v. Bowron (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 344, 351]. A plaintiff who lacks standing cannot state a valid cause of action; therefore, objections based on a plaintiff's lack of standing may not be waived and may be raised at any time in the proceeding [McKinny v. Board of Trustees (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 79, 90, 181 Cal. Rptr. 549, 642 P.2d 460 ; Sherwyn v. Department of Social Services (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 52, 58, 218 Cal. Rptr. 778] . California's constitutional standing requirements are derived from the separation of powers doctrine [Cal. Const., art. III, § 3], which has been interpreted as prohibiting advisory opinions [People ex rel. Lynch v. Superior Court (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 910, 912, 83 Cal. Rptr. 670, 464 P.2d 126] . In individual cases, standing is determined according to the relevant statutory provisions.

Standing under California law generally depends on whether the plaintiff is (1) a "beneficially interested" person under the writ of mandate standard [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086; see [2], below] or (2) an "aggrieved" person under statutes authorizing judicial review of particular agencies' actions [see, e.g., Pub. Res. Code § 30801 (actions under the California Coastal Act)]. A comparison with the more restrictive standing requirements under federal law is contained in California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 11, Preliminary Litigation Issues, § 11.04[2] (Matthew Bender).

PRACTICE TIP:

One of the most important principles for protecting the plaintiffs' standing is the rule applied in the federal cases that only one plaintiff need have standing for the action to proceed [Watt v. Energy Action Educational Foundation (1981) 454 U.S. 151, 159-169, 102 S. Ct. 205, 70 L. Ed. 2d 309] . The plaintiffs' counsel who anticipates that his or her client may have standing problems should encourage the client to solicit participation by others who will not face the same standing hurdles.

[2] Standing to Seek Writ of Mandate

The petitioner in a writ of mandate action must be "beneficially interested" in the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086]. This test requires the plaintiff to show some special interest to be served or some particular right to be preserved over that of the general public [see Carsten v. Psychology Examining Com. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 793, 796-797, 166 Cal. Rptr. 844, 614 P.2d 276] . However, if a party is permitted by statute to appear and take part in the administrative hearing and has done so, he or she is ipso facto sufficiently interested to seek a writ of mandate to review the administrative decision or disposition [Santiago County Water Dist. v. County of Orange (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 818, 832-833, 173 Cal. Rptr. 602] .

Moreover, in a case involving a question of public right and the enforcement of a public duty, the plaintiff need not demonstrate any legal or special interest in the result of the litigation. The plaintiff's interest as a citizen in having the laws executed and the duty in question enforced is sufficient to establish his or her standing [Bd. of Soc. Welfare v. County of L.A. (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 98, 100-101, 162 P.2d 627] . Such "relaxed" standing is available, for example, in actions to force the preparation of, or to challenge the adequacy of, environmental impact reports under the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) [Pub. Res. Code § 21000 et seq.; see Kane v. Redevelopment Agency (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 899, 904, 224 Cal. Rptr. 922 ; Citizens Assn. for Sensible Development of Bishop Area v. County of Inyo (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 151, 158-159, 217 Cal. Rptr. 893 ; Santiago County Water Dist. v. County of Orange (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 818, 829, 173 Cal. Rptr. 602] . Nevertheless, while the cases countenance suit brought by persons with little more than an ideological interest in the subject matter, no case has been found in which the relaxed standing doctrine has been made available to a plaintiff whose motivations were decidedly different from the ostensible purpose of the suit--for example, a competitor of a challenged development project seeking to enforce environmental concerns.

In one case, the court formulated the relaxed standing doctrine essentially as a balancing test between the importance of the public duty and the plaintiff's personal interest, rather than automatically granting standing on a showing of a "public interest" [McDonald v. Stockton Met. Transit Dist. (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 436, 440, 111 Cal. Rptr. 637] :

> The exercise of jurisdiction in mandamus rests to a considerable extent in the wise discretion of the court. In exercising this discretion the courts balance the applicant's need for relief (i.e., his beneficial interest) against the public need for enforcement of the official duty. When the duty is sharp and the public need weighty, the courts will grant a mandamus at the behest of an applicant who shows no greater personal interest than that of a citizen who wants the law enforced. When the public need is less pointed, the courts hold the petitioner to a sharper showing of personal need.

A further limitation on citizen/taxpayer standing is the requirement, articulated by at least one court, that the plaintiff establish "a geographic nexus with the site of the challenged project" [Citizens Assn. for Sensible Development of Bishop Area v. County of Inyo (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 151, 158-159, 217 Cal. Rptr. 893] . A plaintiff who does not allege that he or she is the owner or has any interest in any property within the area affected by the challenged project will not be considered beneficially interested in the litigation, and will thus be denied standing unless he or she presents an especially compelling public interest argument [see, e.g., Silva v. City of Cypress (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 374, 376-377, 22 Cal. Rptr. 453] . For a further discussion of beneficial interest and relaxed standing, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 11, Preliminary Litigation Issues, § 11.04[3][a] and [b], respectively (Matthew Bender).

[3] Associational Standing

Many environmental suits are brought by environmental groups, neighborhood coalitions, or trade associations on behalf of their members [see, e.g., Sea & Sage Audubon Society, Inc. v. Planning Com. (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 412, 194 Cal. Rptr. 357, 668 P.2d 664 ; Friends of Mammoth v. Board of Supervisors (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 247, 104 Cal. Rptr. 761, 502 P.2d 1049] . The California courts have adopted a liberal approach towards "associational standing" for such groups. For example, a nonprofit corporation not owning land or paying taxes may sue on behalf of its members who live in the affected area and who would suffer harm if the challenged project were allowed to proceed [Residents of Beverly Glen, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 117, 121-122, 109 Cal. Rptr. 724] . For further discussion of associational standing, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, § 11.04[4] (Matthew Bender).

[4] Statutory Standing to Review Agency Actions or Enforce Particular Laws

Standing requirements for judicial review of certain agencies' actions or for citizens suits to enforce certain environmental laws are specified by statute. For example, an action seeking judicial review of a decision or action of the Coastal Commission may be maintained by writ of mandamus by "any person aggrieved" by the decision or action [Pub. Res. Code § 30801]. In addition, "any person" may maintain an action for declaratory or equitable relief to restrain any violation of the Coastal Act [Pub. Res. Code § 30803]. Proposition 65, the toxics initiative adopted by California voters in November 1986, includes a broad grant of standing to private persons to enforce the initiative's warning requirements and prohibitions on release or discharge of chemicals known to cause cancer or "reproductive toxicity" [Health & Safety Code § 25249.7].

[5] Private Rights of Action

When there is no "citizen suit" provision and a suit seeks to enforce a statute against a private party or seeks a remedy not expressly authorized by statute, the plaintiffs may have to convince a court not only that they have standing but also that there is an implied private right of action under the statute. There is a substantial body of federal case law dealing with this issue [see California v. Sierra Club (1981) 451 U.S. 287, 101 S. Ct. 1775, 68 L. Ed. 2d 101 ; Middlesex County Sewerage Authority v. National Sea Clammers Association (1981) 453 U.S. 1, 101 S. Ct. 2615, 69 L. Ed. 2d 435] . The issue has not yet arisen in any California environmental case. In other contexts of California law, the general approach of California courts has been to inquire (1) whether the statute was adopted to protect a certain class of individuals, and (2) whether enforcement by those individuals would further the legislative purpose in enacting the statute [see, e.g., R.M. Sherman Co. v. W.R. Thomason, Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 559, 567-568, 236 Cal. Rptr. 577 ; Greenberg v. Equitable Life Assur. Society (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 994, 1001, 110 Cal. Rptr. 470] . For further coverage of private rights of action, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 11, Preliminary Litigation Issues, § 11.04[6] (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityStandingCivil ProcedureJusticiabilityGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJusticiabilityStandingGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJusticiabilityStandingPersonal StakeConstitutional LawThe JudiciaryCase or ControversyGeneral OverviewConstitutional LawThe JudiciaryCase or ControversyAdvisory OpinionsEnvironmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsJurisdiction & Procedure

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Procedural Issues in Environmental Cases

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.12

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.12 Ripeness

The doctrine of "ripeness" focuses on whether the issues in a particular case are ready for judicial review. Although the federal doctrine of ripeness is rooted in the constitutional "case or controversy" requirement [U.S. Const., art. III], California cases have drawn on analogous concepts developed as part of the common law of judicial review, including the admonition against issuing purely advisory opinions [see People ex rel. Lynch v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 910, 912 The leading California case [Pacific Legal Foundation v. California Coastal Com. (1982) 33 Cal. 3d 158, 188 Cal. Rptr. 104, 655 P.2d 306] involved a general, facial challenge to guidelines adopted by the California Coastal Commission interpreting the Coastal Act's public access provisions. In ruling that the action was unripe, the Court applied the federal test for ripeness enunciated by the United States Supreme Court [Abbott Laboratories v. Gardner (1967) 387 U.S. 136, 87 S. Ct. 1507, 18 L. Ed. 2d 681] .

The Abbott Laboratories test involves a two part inquiry into: (1) the fitness of the issues for judicial decision, and (2) the hardship to the parties of withholding court consideration [Abbott Laboratories v. Gardner (1967) 387 U.S. 136, 148-149, 87 S. Ct. 1507, 18 L. Ed. 2d 681 ; see Gardnerv. Toilet Goods Assoc. (1967) 387 U.S. 167, 87 S. Ct. 1526, 18 L. Ed. 2d 704 (companion case to Abbott Laboratories in which claims held unripe)]. In Pacific Legal Foundation v. California Coastal Commission [Pacific Legal Foundation v. California Coastal Com. (1982) 33 Cal. 3d 158, 188 Cal. Rptr. 104, 655 P.2d 306] , the California Supreme Court held that the case was not ripe for judicial review because the plaintiffs were challenging the guidelines in the abstract without application to particular developments. The Court noted that the plaintiffs were "in essence inviting [the Court] to speculate as to the types of developments for which the access conditions might be imposed, and then to express an opinion on the validity and proper scope of such hypothetical exactions" [Pacific Legal Foundation v. California Coastal Com. (1982) 33 Cal. 3d 158, 172, 188 Cal. Rptr. 104, 655 P.2d 306] .

In San Mateo County Coastal Landowners' Association v. County of San Mateo [San Mateo County Coastal Landowners' Assn. v. County of San Mateo (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 523, 545, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 117] , the court reviewed the distinction between constitutional challenges to an ordinance "as applied" and "facial" challenges. The court held that the measure's requirement that landowners dedicate easements was not subject to a challenge as applied because the plaintiffs had not submitted a subdivision plan or applied for a permit or variance from the local authority which had been conclusively denied or in this instance subjected to the easement requirement [see Kinzli v. City of Santa Cruz (9th Cir. 1987) 818 F.2d 1449, 1453] . The court denied the facial challenge because "[a]ppellants have not shown that unconstitutional application of these policies by the county is unavoidable" [San Mateo County Coastal Landowners' Assn. v. County of San Mateo (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 523, 547, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 117] . The case also failed the hardship test of Abbott Laboratories since coastal landowners were not immediately facing the dilemma of either complying with the guidelines or risking penalties for violating them. The landowners could wait until they applied for a development permit and then challenge any invalid imposition of dedication conditions. Although the possibility that they would have to comply with access conditions might tend to inhibit property owners from planning improvements on their land, hardship was not "imminent or significant enough" to compel resolution of the land use regulation controversy [Pacific Legal Foundation v. California Coastal Com. (1982) 33 Cal. 3d 158, 172-173, 188 Cal. Rptr. 104, 655 P.2d 306] .

In determining the ripeness of a controversy under the Pacific Legal Foundation and Abbott Laboratories standard, courts may consider the existence and importance of any public interest in the controversy. The fact of "widespread public interest" may tip the balance in a doubtful case, and cause the court to find that adjudication of the controversy is not premature [Pacific Legal Foundation v. California Coastal Com. (1982) 33 Cal. 3d 158, 170, 188 Cal. Rptr. 104, 655 P.2d 306 ; but see Sherwyn v. Department of Social Services (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 52, 58, 218 Cal. Rptr. 778 (holding plaintiffs lacked standing and case not ripe despite "widespread public interest")]. For a further discussion of ripeness, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 11, Preliminary Litigation Issues, § 11.05 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityRipenessCivil ProcedureJusticiabilityRipenessGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJusticiabilityRipenessTestsConstitutional LawThe JudiciaryCase or ControversyAdvisory OpinionsConstitutional LawThe JudiciaryCase or ControversyRipeness

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Procedural Issues in Environmental Cases

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.13

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.13 Exhaustion of Administrative Remedies

[1] Exhaustion Doctrine

It is settled in California law that a court is without jurisdiction to hear a claim until all available administrative remedies have been exhausted [Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 293, 109 P.2d 942 ; Environmental Law Fund, Inc. v. Town of Corte Madera (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 105, 111, 122 Cal. Rptr. 282 ; Morton v. Superior Court (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 977, 981, 88 Cal. Rptr. 533] , even if the parties to litigation stipulate or agree to circumvent administrative remedies. This "exhaustion" doctrine may also bar the defendant from asserting an affirmative defense to an agency's enforcement action when the defendant could have sought an exemption or a permit exception from the agency before the commencement of the enforcement proceeding [South Coast Regional Com. v. Gordon (1977) 18 Cal. 3d 832, 836-838, 135 Cal. Rptr. 781, 558 P.2d 867] .

California courts require that a litigant not only have availed itself of an administrative process before suing, but also that the particular grounds of suit have been presented to the agency in that process [see, e.g., Citizens Assn. for Sensible Development of Bishop Area v. County of Inyo (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 151, 163, 217 Cal. Rptr. 893] . However, courts have been unclear as to the degree of specificity with which issues must be raised at the administrative level to satisfy the exhaustion requirement. In one case, the court required that the "exact issue" raised in the lawsuit must have been presented to the administrative agency. The court reasoned that this strict requirement was necessary to provide the agency with the opportunity to render the litigation unnecessary [Resource Defense Fund v. Local Agency Formation Com. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 886, 894, 236 Cal. Rptr. 794] . At the other end of the spectrum, a court stated that, although parties must "make known what facts are contested," the fact that parties are generally not represented by counsel in administrative proceedings should absolve them of the requirement to make technical legal objections [Citizens Assn. for Sensible Development of Bishop Area v. County of Inyo (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 151, 163, 217 Cal. Rptr. 893] . For a further discussion of the exhaustion doctrine, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 11, Preliminary Litigation Issues, § 11.06 (Matthew Bender).

PRACTICE TIP:

Specifying Objections to Agency. Commentators suggest that the safest course, given the range of case law, is for the petitioner to raise the issues with enough specificity that the administrative agency has a fair opportunity to consider the legal and factual questions before the petitioner raises those questions in court [Hoffman, Patterson & Shute, Mandate Proceedings Under the California Environmental Quality Act (Cal. C.E.B. 1987)].

[2] Exceptions to Exhaustion Doctrine

A party need not exhaust administrative remedies before filing suit when the agency lacks jurisdiction over the subject matter of the suit. The exhaustion requirement is also inapplicable when an effective administrative remedy is wholly lacking [see Ch. 472B, Review of Agency Rulemaking]. For example, this is true in a case challenging the validity of an agency's determination that it was exempt from CEQA, since there were no administrative procedures to be followed to challenge the Notice of Exemption [Castaic Lake Water Agency v. City of Santa Clarita (1995) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1257, 1265, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 79 ; see City of Pasadena v. California (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 810, 821, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 766] .

A party is also not required to pursue futile administrative remedies to invoke the jurisdiction of the courts. The condition of futility is met when it is clear that the administrative agency's decision would be adverse to the plaintiff if the remedy were pursued [Doyle v. City of Chino (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 673, 683, 172 Cal. Rptr. 844 ; Gantner & Mattern Co. v. California E. Com. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 314, 318, 109 P.2d 932] . An exception is sometimes recognized when irreparable injury to a litigant would result from requiring him or her to pursue an administrative remedy [Sail'er Inn, Inc. v. Kirby (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 1, 7, 95 Cal. Rptr. 329, 485 P.2d 529 (conflict of federal and state statutes placed petitioners in position of incurring penalty under whichever law they chose to disobey); Greenblatt v. Munro (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 596, 607, 326 P.2d 929 (risk of revocation of license which was source of plaintiff's livelihood)].

When the relevant statute provides both an administrative remedy and an alternative judicial remedy, the exhaustion of administrative remedies requirement has no application [City of Susanville v. Lee C. Hess Co. (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 684, 689, 290 P.2d 520] . In State of California v. Superior Court (Veta) [State v. Superior Court of Orange County (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 237, 115 Cal. Rptr. 497, 524 P.2d 1281] , the California Supreme Court held that the petitioner could challenge the constitutionality of the California Coastal Act [Pub. Res. Code § 30000 et seq.] without first presenting the claim to the Coastal Commission for determination. The Court noted that it would be "heroic indeed to compel a party to appear before an administrative body to challenge its very existence and to expect a dispassionate hearing before its preponderantly lay membership on the constitutionality of the statute establishing its status and functions" [State v. Superior Court of Orange County (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 237, 251, 115 Cal. Rptr. 497, 524 P.2d 1281] .

Finally, nonparties to administrative land use decisions may be permitted to seek judicial review of such decisions without first exhausting administrative remedies, if they (1) are acting to vindicate "public rights," and (2) neither received notice of nor attended the public hearing on the matter. The rationale for this exception is that requiring the exhaustion of administrative remedies by nonparties in these situations could have the effect of permanently insulating illegal actions from review, which would be contrary to the public interest [Environmental Law Fund, Inc. v. Town of Corte Madera (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 105, 114, 122 Cal. Rptr. 282] . For further discussion of exceptions to the exhaustion doctrine, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 11, Preliminary Litigation Issues, § 11.06[4] (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityExhaustion of RemediesCivil ProcedureJusticiabilityExhaustion of RemediesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJusticiabilityExhaustion of RemediesAdministrative RemediesCivil

ProcedureJusticiabilityExhaustion of RemediesExceptionsEnvironmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsJurisdiction & Procedure

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Procedural Issues in Environmental Cases

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.14

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.14 Preparation and Use of Administrative Record

[1] Requesting Administrative Record

In proceedings for review of an agency's decision based on an administrative record, the petitioner's counsel should assume responsibility for requesting that the agency prepare the record and for ensuring that it is timely filed with the court. Some statutes, like CEQA, may require that a request for the preparation of the record be filed contemporaneously with the action or within a certain period of time thereafter, and served on the agency within a certain period of time [see Pub. Res. Code § 21167.6(a)]. There may also be time limits on the agency's preparation of the record [see, e.g., Pub. Res. Code § 21167.6(b)(1) (60 days in CEQA action); Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(c); Gov. Code § 11523]. Finally, the defendants' or real parties' time to answer or otherwise respond to the petition may be extended until a period after the completion of the record and its filing with the court [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 1089.5]. CEQA contains a special provision which allows the petitioner to elect to prepare the administrative record [see Pub. Res. Code § 21167.6(b)(2)].

To preserve the statutory scheme and purpose of Pub. Res. Code § 21167.6(b), a public agency that has been asked to prepare the administrative record must itself incur and seek recovery of the costs of record preparation. Thus, a city's delegation to the developer of its responsibility to prepare the administrative record was improper, and the developer could not recover the costs it incurred in preparing the record [Hayward Area Planning Ass'n v. City of Hayward (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 176, 185, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 783] .

For a sample Request for Preparation of the Administrative Record, see § 418.154.

PRACTICE TIP:

Petitioner's Preparation of the Administrative Record. Counsel who choose this option should be careful to make the request in a timely manner and be prepared to demonstrate the ability to prepare the record in fact. Thus, in cases involving a voluminous administrative record, the petitioner should make a request under the Public Records Act for the right to inspect and copy "the administrative record." If these kinds of formalities are not observed, the agency may refuse to grant certification of the record's accuracy, as required by Pub. Res. Code § 21167.6, or may prepare the record itself. As discussed in § 418.14[3], the outcome of this process may determine whether the petitioner is able to avoid a sizable cost bill.

[2] Determining Whether Record Is Complete

For agency decisions subject to the state's Administrative Procedures Act [Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.], the content of the administrative record is prescribed by Gov. Code § 11523. In CEQA actions, the content is also prescribed (but not limited) by Pub. Res. Code § 21167.6(e) [see Protect Our Water v. County of Merced (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 362, 373, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 726 (inadequacy of administrative record required reversal of approval of EIR for mining project)]. In general, there is no statutory or case law that specifies the appropriate content of the administrative record in other cases. One court has stated that "the determination whether the decision was arbitrary, capricious or entirely lacking in evidentiary support must be based on the 'evidence' considered by the administrative agency" [Shapell Industries v. Governing Board (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 218, 233, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 818] . Another case questioned whether there could be an "administrative record" when "no public or evidentiary hearings were conducted or required to be conducted in connection with the issuance of the challenged order, the building permit" [Miller v. City of Hermosa Beach (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 1118, 1133, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 408] .

Two court of appeal decisions have addressed the scope of the administrative record in CEQA cases. One case held that the inadequacy of the administrative record required reversal of the approval of an EIR for a mining project, because the court could not discern the required findings from the record [Protect Our Water v. County of Merced (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 362, 373, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 726] . In that case, the court stated that it was nearly impossible to locate the pertinent documents in the 14-volume administrative record, because the majority of the relevant documents were neither properly indexed nor coherently organized [Protect Our Water v. County of Merced (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 362, 372, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 726] . In addition, it was impossible to identify many of the documents because the county failed to properly label them. Furthermore, some documents appeared incomplete, and it was difficult to differentiate between documents and attachments to those documents. The court noted that it was the county's responsibility to ensure the adequacy of the administrative record, and stated that if it did not hold the county to this responsibility, it would be defeating one of the basic purposes of CEQA--to disclose to the public the reasons for a project's approval if the project has significant environmental effects [Protect Our Water v. County of Merced (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 362, 372-373, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 726] .

Another CEQA decision ruled that the administrative record should contain all material related to CEQA compliance, not just material related to the final EIR [County of Orange v. Superior Court (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1, 11, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 286] . In that case, following litigation the county prepared a new, revised EIR for a housing development. In a court challenge to the revised EIR, the project opponents sought to exclude from the record an addendum prepared for the initial EIR. The court of appeal held that the addendum was properly included in the record. The court stated that Pub. Res. Code § 21167.6(e) sets forth an inclusive view of the record and "contemplates that the administrative record will include pretty much everything that ever came near a proposed development or to the agency's compliance with CEQA in responding to that development," including "[a]ny other written materials relevant to the respondent public agency's compliance with this division or to its decision on the merits of the project..." [County of Orange v. Superior Court (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1, 8, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 286 (emphasis in original)].

One court has held that the disclosure requirements set forth in Pub. Res. Code § 21167.6(e) do not constitute an abrogation of the attorney client privilege or work product doctrine [California Oak Foundation v. County of Tehama (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1217, 1221, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 902] . Thus, in a challenge to the county's approval of a specific plan for residential and commercial development and an associated EIR, the court of appeal upheld the trial court's denial of plaintiff's motion to include in the administrative record documents the county claimed were subject to attorney client privilege and work product protection. Those documents had been sent to the county by an outside law firm retained to provide advice on CEQA compliance issues. In addition, the county did not waive the privilege by disclosing the documents to counsel for the developer [California Oak Foundation v. County of Tehama (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1217, 1222-1223, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 902] .

The California Supreme Court has held that "extra-record evidence can never be admitted merely to contradict the evidence the administrative agency relied on in making a quasi-legislative decision or to raise a question regarding the wisdom of that decision" [Western States Petroleum Assn. v. Superior Court (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 559, 579, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 139, 888 P.2d 1268] . The Court acknowledged that there were potential exceptions in which extra-record evidence could continue to be received in traditional mandamus actions, including its admissibility "only for background information... or for the limited purposes of ascertaining whether the agency considered all the relevant factors or fully explicated its course of conduct or grounds of decision" [Western States Petroleum Assn. v. Superior Court (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 559, 579, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 139, 888 P.2d 1268] . The Court did not decide whether such extra-record evidence is admissible when it is "relevant to (1) issues other than the validity of the agency's quasi-legislative decision, such as the petitioner's standing and capacity to sue, (2) affirmative defenses such as laches, estoppel and res judicata, (3) the accuracy of the administrative record, (4) procedural unfairness, and (5) agency misconduct" [Western States Petroleum Assn. v. Superior Court (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 559, 575 n.5, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 139, 888 P.2d 1268] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Resolving Disputes as to Scope of Record. Invariably, in cases involving an administrative record, counsel confront questions of whether the evidence in the case will be confined to the record, and whether the record is complete. These questions arise because a party believes that there is material important to its case that may not be contained in the record. They should be resolved at the earliest opportunity, particularly if disputed material appears pivotal to the outcome of the case. This is an issue which can appropriately be considered between the parties at the mandatory settlement conference in CEQA actions [see Pub. Res. Code § 21167.8. For a sample Notice of Settlement Meeting, see § 418.157]. Otherwise, motions may be made to augment the record or to limit its scope.

If there is a dispute as to the content or "accuracy" of the administrative record in both traditional and administrative mandamus actions, the Western States Petroleum Association case does not foreclose reliance on extra-record evidence for this purpose. Presumably, counsel could therefore argue for a right to conduct discovery into the scope of the administrative record or whether there are documents missing from it. While there is little authority for such discovery under California law, there is ample precedent in federal cases. Thus, discovery will be permitted to determine if the administrative record submitted by the agency is "self-serving, incomplete or unclear" [Conservation Law Foundation of New England v. Clark (D. Mass. 1984) 590 F. Supp. 1467, 1474 ; see Camp v. Pitts (1973) 411 U.S. 138, 142, 93 S. Ct. 1241, 36 L. Ed. 2d 106 ; Citizens to Preserve Overton Park, Inc. v. Volpe (1971) 401 U.S. 402, 419-420, 91 S. Ct. 814, 28 L. Ed. 2d 136] . For further discussion of matters relating to the administrative record, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 12, Judicial Review of Administrative Decisions, § 12.22[4] (Matthew Bender).

[3] Paying Costs of Record Preparation

The costs of preparing the administrative record may be assessed against the losing party. There is little guidance in the case law about how the costs claimed for the preparation of the record should be measured. In one case, the court held that the trial court must determine in response to a motion to tax costs whether the costs were "reasonable" [Citizens for Quality Growth v. City of Mt. Shasta (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 433, 448, 243 Cal. Rptr. 727] . In that case, the agency's use of an outside law firm's more expensive paralegals to prepare the record in lieu of city employees was remanded to the trial court to determine whether it was necessary to employ these people because of their allegedly greater expertise in putting together such records and the reasonableness of the cost.

When necessary to preserve the statutory purposes of cost-containment and expediting CEQA litigation, the prevailing party in a CEQA action may recover "reasonable costs or fees imposed for the preparation" of the record [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.6(b)(1)] even if the nonprevailing party elected to prepare the record pursuant to Pub. Res. Code § 21167.6(b)(2). To hold otherwise would reward litigants who elected to prepare the record but then ignored the concomitant statutory duty to restrain costs in doing so [St. Vincent's School for Boys, Catholic Charities CYO v. City of San Rafael (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 1426, 1439, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 512]. Thus, in a case where the losing plaintiff in a CEQA action had opted to prepare the record, and its broad and apparently nonessential discovery demands caused city to expend considerable time and resources to respond, plaintiff's actions reflected a complete abandonment of its statutory responsibility to "strive to [prepare the record] at reasonable cost" [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.6(f)] and the ensuing delay to the CEQA litigation process undermined the statutory purpose of expediting CEQA litigation, the trial court properly taxed the costs to reflect what costs would have been incurred if the city had prepared the record itself [St. Vincent's School for Boys, Catholic Charities CYO v. City of San Rafael (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 1426, 1437, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 512].

It is unclear the extent to which the more general provision controlling costs in litigation [Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5] is applicable to the question of the reasonableness of the cost of preparing the administrative record and providing the court with a copy. Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5 requires that the costs set forth must be reasonable, necessary, and actually incurred. One court held that the indirect costs of retrieving records for production under the California Public Records Act were not appropriate charges, but that case dealt with express statutory authority for an agency to charge the "full direct costs of duplication" [North County Parents Organization v. Department of Education (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 144, 147, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 359] .

PRACTICE TIP:

The Risk of Paying Costs. Counsel advising a client whether to pursue environmental litigation based on an administrative record should advise the client of the risk that the costs of preparing the record may be assessed against the client if the agency ultimately prevails. These costs can be considerable. When the agency prepares the administrative record, it may rightfully demand that the petitioners pay the cost of a copy of the record for the court before its filing. More often, the agency may defer the submission of a cost bill to the proceeding's conclusion to expedite the process of getting the matter heard and decided. In these circumstances, the petitioners may find themselves presented with a sizable, unanticipated cost bill.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawJudicial ReviewAdministrative RecordGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewAdministrative RecordDisclosure & DiscoveryEnvironmental LawAssessment & Information AccessPublic ParticipationEnvironmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsDefenses

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Procedural Issues in Environmental Cases

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.15

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.15 Statutes of Limitation

[1] Significance in Environmental Suits

The applicable statute of limitations can be extraordinarily short in environmental cases (for example, 30 days from an agency's decision that is being challenged) [see, e.g., Pub. Res. Code § 21167(c)]. In addition, all necessary and indispensable parties must be named in the suit before the statute of limitations expires [see Sierra Club, Inc. v. California Coastal Com. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 495, 502, 157 Cal. Rptr. 190] . In toxic tort actions for personal injury or property damage, statutes of limitation may be particularly problematic when the pollution exposure or release occurred long ago or over a number of years.

[2] Writ Proceedings

The California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) [Pub. Res. Code § 21000 et seq.; see §§ 418.30 -418.37] contains unusually short statutes of limitations. Suits challenging an agency's negative declaration, environmental impact report (EIR) certification, or other act or omission under CEQA must be filed within 30 days (35 days for determinations that a project is not subject to CEQA) following the agency's filing of notice of its decision [Pub. Res. Code § 21167(a)-(d); see Pub. Res. Code §§ 21108(a), (b), 21152(a), (b); Committee for Green Foothills v. Santa Clara County (2010) 48 Cal. 4th 32, 39, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 181, 224 P.3d 920 (filing of notice of decision triggers 30-day statute of limitations for all CEQA challenges to decision announced in notice); Stockton Citizens for Sensible Planning v. City of Stockton (2010) 48 Cal. 4th 481, 489, 106 Cal. Rptr. 3d 858, 227 P.3d 416 (35-day statute of limitations runs from filing of notice of exemption, whether or not NOE is substantively or procedurally flawed)]. If the agency does not properly file notice of its decision, or begins a project without determining whether it will have a significant effect on the environment, the statute of limitations period is 180 days from either the decision to carry out or approve the project, or after commencement of the project if it is undertaken without a formal decision [Pub. Res. Code §§ 21167(a), (d), 21080.5(g), (h); 14 Cal. Code Reg. § 15112; see Committee for Green Foothills v. Santa Clara County Bd. of Supervisors (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 1204, 1237, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 112 (reasonable possibility that plaintiff in CEQA action could allege facts sufficient to bring proceeding within purview of Pub. Res. Code § 21167(a) by alleging that county board of supervisors approved changes and subsequent activities with respect to trail development and maintenance that might have a significant effect on the environment without having determined whether the project might have a significant effect on the environment; thus, trial court erred in sustaining demurrer without leave to amend on ground the proceedings, commenced more than 30 days after notice of determination was filed, were necessarily time-barred)]. With limited exceptions, an EIR is conclusively presumed to be valid for purposes of use by the responsible agency if it is not challenged within the appropriate limitations period [Pub. Res. Code §§ 21167, 21167.2].

Ninety-day statutes of limitation exist for actions challenging local agency decisions to adopt or amend a zoning ordinance or general or specific plan, or decisions concerning a subdivision map or variances or use permits [Gov. Code §§ 65009(c), 66499.37]. In addition, a 90-day statute of limitations applies to administrative mandamus actions for review of final decisions of local agencies revoking or denying permits [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6]. This section prevails over any conflicting provision in any otherwise applicable law relating to the subject matter, unless the conflicting provision is a state or federal law that provides a shorter statute of limitations [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(g)]. Finally, the enabling statute for an agency rendering an environmental decision should be consulted to determine if there are special limitations periods established for review of that agency's decisions. If there is no applicable special limitations period, a more general statute of limitations will apply [Wind River Min. Corp. v. U.S. (9th Cir. 1991) 946 F.2d 710, 713] . For further discussion of statutes of limitations in writ proceedings, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 11, Preliminary Litigation Issues, § 11.07[2][c] (Matthew Bender)].

[3] Damage Actions

The statute of limitations for injury to real property is three years from the date of injury [Code Civ. Proc. § 338(b)]. The statute of limitations for personal injury is two years from the date of injury [Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1]. In tort actions, court commonly apply a "discovery rule" whereby the statute of limitations does not begin to run until the aggrieved party discovers--or should have discovered in the exercise of reasonable diligence--the injury and its negligent cause. Two cases dealing with contaminated property applied the discovery rule at the pleading stage to bar causes of action for negligence and permanent nuisance, holding that even extending commencement of the statute of limitations until discovery of the harm to the property, the limitations period had run [Mangini v. Aerojet General Corp. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1125, 1152, 281 Cal. Rptr. 827 ; CAMSI IV v. Hunter Technology Corp. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1525, 1533, 282 Cal. Rptr. 80 ; see McCoy v. Gustafson (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 56, 110, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 37 (petroleum contamination of soil and groundwater); see also Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions, § 345.19[3] (Matthew Bender)].

A "continuing nuisance" claim avoids these statute of limitations problems and applies to all contamination situations in which the nuisance is abatable [Capogeannis v. Superior Court (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 668, 676, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 796 ; but see McCoy v. Gustafson (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 56, 90, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 37 (because plaintiffs failed to establish that contamination was reasonably abatable, nuisance was permanent, and action was barred by three-year statute of limitations for injury to real property)]. However, damages are limited to the recovery for actual injury suffered within the limitations period immediately preceding the complaint's filing. For a further discussion of the application of statutes of limitations in environmental damage actions, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 11, Preliminary Litigation Issues, § 11.07[3][a] (Matthew Bender).

For detailed coverage of statutes of limitations, see Guide to Toxic Torts, Ch. 9, Defenses and Offset, § 9.01 (Matthew Bender). For a discussion of the time for commencing an action against public entities and public employees for nuisance or other injury to person or property, see California Torts, Ch. 62, Claims and Actions Against Public Entities and Employees (Matthew Bender).

PRACTICE TIP:

Using Indemnity Claims to Avoid Statutes of Limitation. One way of avoiding the statute of limitations problems when the remedy for pollution is the recovery of the costs of cleanup is by a cause of action for indemnity. There are two kinds of indemnity--contractual or equitable. The advantage of relying on an indemnity claim is that the cause of action does not come into existence until the indemnitee has suffered loss through payment [Mangini v. Aerojet-General Corp. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1125, 1154, 281 Cal. Rptr. 827] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Environmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsDefensesGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime LimitationsReal Property LawTortsNuisanceDefensesStatutes of LimitationsTortsProcedureStatutes of LimitationsGeneral OverviewTortsProcedureStatutes of LimitationsAccrual of ActionsDiscovery RuleTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityClaim PresentationTime Limitations

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Procedural Issues in Environmental Cases

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.16

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.16 Laches

Although delay and prejudice do not amount to a bar in legal actions if the statute of limitations has not yet run, a plaintiff in an equitable action (such as administrative mandamus) who has unduly delayed seeking relief to the prejudice of a defendant may be barred by his or her laches. However, the defense of laches is rarely successful in environmental cases, due to the strong public policy considerations served by judicial review of these cases on their merits [see, e.g., Santiago County Water Dist. v. County of Orange (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 818, 834, 173 Cal. Rptr. 602] .

The defense of laches has been upheld when a plaintiff has unreasonably delayed in challenging the administrative action and the developer has justifiably relied on the administrative approval through substantial monetary investment in his or her project [Holt v. County of Monterey (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 797, 800-802, 180 Cal. Rptr. 514 (citing People v. Department of Housing & Community Dev. (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 185, 195, 119 Cal. Rptr. 266 and Gutknecht v. Paul (1948) 83 Cal. App. 2d 356, 188 P.2d 764); see Concerned Citizens of Palm Desert, Inc. v. Board of Supervisors (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 257, 265-266, 113 Cal. Rptr. 328 (in the nine-month period between granting a conditional use permit and commencing the action, the fact that the developer incurred financial liabilities of $700,000 in relying on the use permit constituted showing of unreasonable delay plus prejudice resulting from delay)]. For further discussion of laches, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 11, Preliminary Litigation Issues, § 11.08 (Matthew Bender).

PRACTICE TIP:

Necessity for Pleading Excuse for Delay. When there has been a prolonged delay in the bringing of the suit, the petitioner should be prepared to affirmatively plead the reasons for the delay in the complaint or for negating prejudice to the defendant--just as the reasons for "delayed discovery" must be affirmatively pleaded to protect against demurrers on statute of limitations grounds [see Kleinclaus v. Dutard (1905) 147 Cal. 245, 250, 81 P. 516 ; Witkin, California Procedure, vol. 5, Pleading §§ 916, 1051 (4th ed. 1997)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesMandamusEnvironmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsDefensesGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Procedural Issues in Environmental Cases

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.17

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.17 Governmental Immunity

The California Tort Claims Act [Gov. Code § 810 et seq.] provides that public entities are not liable for any injury caused by their adoption of or failure to adopt any enactment [Gov. Code § 818.2] including the issuance, denial, suspension, or revocation of governmental permits [Gov. Code § 818.4], or their failure to make an inspection, or by reason of making an inadequate or negligent inspection, of any property, other than their own property. However, the Act does not preclude an action for inverse condemnation for actions by a public entity that result in damage to private property for public use [Cal. Const., art. I, § 19].

A public entity may be liable for maintaining a nuisance [Phillips v. City of Pasadena (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 104, 106, 162 P.2d 625] . However, for the purpose of nuisance actions against governmental agencies, nothing which is done or maintained under the express authority of a statute can be deemed a nuisance [Civ. Code § 3482]. For example, it has been held that the State of California was immune from liability for damaging automobile paint finishes during emergency pesticide spraying to eliminate the Medfly, since the spraying was expressly authorized by statute [Farmers Ins. Exchange v. State of California (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 494, 503, 221 Cal. Rptr. 225] . However, activities authorized by generally worded statutes are not considered "express" authorizations providing statutory immunity. For example, in Varjabedian v. City of Madera, a municipally owned sewage treatment plant was assessed damages for its unpleasant odors even though municipalities are generally authorized by statute to operate sewage treatment plants [Varjabedian v. City of Madera (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 285, 142 Cal. Rptr. 429, 572 P.2d 43] . For a further discussion of governmental immunity, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 11, Preliminary Litigation Issues, § 11.09 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
GovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsClaims By & AgainstTortsPublic Entity LiabilityImmunityGeneral OverviewTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityState Tort Claims

ActsExclusions From LiabilityTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityState Tort Claims ActsRemedies

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Procedural Issues in Environmental Cases

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.18

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.18 Compliance With Notice Requirements

[1] Claims for Damages Against Governmental Entities

Before instituting a court action, a party seeking damages against a local government agency must file a claim with that agency [Gov. Code §§ 905-906]. However, a claim need not be filed in an action for the taking of, or damage to, private property pursuant to Cal. Const., art. I, § 19. As a general rule, claims relating to causes of action for death or for injury to personal property or growing crops must be presented to the governmental agency no later than six months after the cause of action accrues [Gov. Code § 911.2]. For a discussion of the notice requirements for claims for damages against government entities, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 11, Preliminary Litigation Issues, § 11.10[1] (Matthew Bender).

[2] CEQA Notice Requirements

The California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) [Pub. Res. Code § 21000 et seq.] requires that the petitioner [see Pub. Res. Code § 21167.6(a)]:

- Give notice of the intent to sue an agency before the suit's filing;
- Provide notice of the suit's filing and a copy of the complaint to the Attorney General; and
- Personally serve a request for the preparation of the record served on the agency within 10 days thereafter.

Not less than 10 business days following service of the petition or the complaint on the public agency, the public agency must provide the petitioner or plaintiff with a list of responsible agencies and any public agency having jurisdiction over a natural resource affected by the project [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.6.5(b)]. Within 15 days of receiving that list, the petitioner or plaintiff must provide those agencies with notice of the action or proceeding [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.6

.5(c)].

For further coverage of CEQA generally, see §§ 418.30 -418.37. For additional discussion of CEQA's notice requirements, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 11, Preliminary Litigation Issues, § 11.10[2] (Matthew Bender).

[3] Citizen Suit Notices of Intent to Sue

Other statutes may also require that a citizen give notice of intent to sue before the suit's filing. Civ. Code § 1368.5 requires that a homeowners' association intending to sue a developer of a common interest development for design or construction defects in the common areas must provide advance notice to the homeowners in the development and hold a meeting with the homeowners to discuss the problems and options available to address the problem. In addition, Civ. Code § 1375 [inoperative on July, 2017, and repealed as of January 1, 2018; Civ. Code § 1375(s)], requires that the association provide the developer with written notice before bringing suit, stating the alleged defects and other information, and within 180 days of the notice must attempt to resolve the dispute through a mandatory dispute resolution process. Proposition 65, the toxics initiative adopted by California voters in November 1986, allows citizen suits only if (1) the complainant has previously given more than 60 days notice of the violation to the alleged violator and to the Attorney General, the district attorney, and any city attorney in whose jurisdiction the alleged violation has occurred; and (2) none of these public prosecutors has commenced and is diligently prosecuting such an action against the violator [Health & Safety Code § 25294]. There is a substantial body of case law in the federal courts construing similar 60-day notice provisions in federal statutes [see, e.g., Hallstrom v. Tillamook County (1989) 493 U.S. 20, 110 S. Ct. 304, 107 L. Ed. 2d 237] .

For further coverage of citizen suits, see §§ 418.50 -418.52 and California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 11, Preliminary Litigation Issues, § 11.10[3] (Matthew Bender). For a sample 60-day notice of intent to sue under Proposition 65, see § 418.171.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Environmental LawGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsClaims By & Against

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Procedural Issues in Environmental Cases

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.19

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.19 The Complaint or Petition

[1] Practical Consideration When Drafting the Complaint or Petition

Special care should be taken in drafting the complaint or petition in environmental cases. If grounds for challenging agency action are omitted from the complaint, the plaintiff may be foreclosed from arguing these matters on the merits. Thus, it may be useful to allege grounds more broadly than initially anticipated as the basis for challenge. The complaint should allege not only the violations of law, but also the plaintiffs' standing, the court's jurisdiction, the basis for venue, the plaintiffs' exhaustion of administrative remedies, and, when necessary, the reasons for the plaintiffs' delayed discovery of the cause of action to avoid statutes of limitations defenses. Counsel should also determine whether there are any parties who are "indispensable" to the prosecution of the action [see Pub. Res. Code § 21167.6.5 (any recipient of approval that is subject of action or proceeding alleging noncompliance with CEQA must be named as real party in interest)]. Satisfaction of the various procedural prerequisites that are discussed in preceding sections of this chapter, for example, standing [see § 418.11], exhaustion of administrative remedies [see § 418.13], and compliance with applicable notice requirements [see § 418.18], should also be alleged. When notices are required to be given to agencies or private parties before or contemporaneously with the filing of the complaint, copies of those notices should be attached to the complaint and incorporated by reference.

For a more in-depth discussion of the considerations that should be made when drafting a complaint or petition in environmental cases, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 11, Preliminary Litigation Issues, § 11.11 (Matthew Bender).

[2] Fast Track Rules

Before filing a complaint or petition, counsel should determine whether the proceeding will be subject to the Fast Track Rules. The Trial Court Delay Reduction Act is set forth at Gov. Code § 68600 et seq. In general, the Fast Track Rules set the following goals [Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.714]:

- For unlimited civil cases, 75 percent should be disposed of within 12 months, 85 percent within 18 months, and 100 percent within 24 months.

- For limited civil cases, 90 percent should be disposed of within 12 months, 98 percent within 18 months, and 100 percent within 24 months.

For further coverage of fast track rules generally, see Ch. 552, Trial Court Delay Reduction .

[3] Alternative Procedure for Petitions for Writs of Mandate

Ordinarily, copies of the summons and complaint should be served on each of the defendants. An alternative procedure for filing and serving petitions for writs of mandate consists of using an "alternative writ of mandate" in lieu of a summons. The petition, together with the alternative writ, is presented to a Judge ex parte, who orders the clerk of the court to issue the alternative writ, specifying a return date for the response. The petition and alternative writ are then served on the defendants and real parties in interest. For a sample alternative writ of mandate and additional discussion of using this procedure, see § 418.151.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityExhaustion of RemediesCivil ProcedureJurisdictionJurisdictional SourcesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePartiesReal Parties in InterestGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsGeneral OverviewGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & InterpretationGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Procedural Issues in Environmental Cases

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.20

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.20 Class Actions

Class actions in California courts are governed generally by Code Civ. Proc. § 382, and in federal courts by Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 23. When a question is one of a common or general interest of many persons, or when the parties are numerous, and it is impracticable to bring them all before the court, one or more may sue or defend for the benefit of all [Code Civ. Proc. § 382]. Although Code Civ. Proc. § 382 appears to speak in the alternative, it has generally been held that two requirements must be met to sustain any class action [Daar v. Yellow Cab Co. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 695, 704, 63 Cal. Rptr. 724, 433 P.2d 732] :

- There must be an ascertainable class; and
- There must be a well-defined community of interest in the questions of law and fact involved affecting the parties to be represented.

The use of the class action in environmental lawsuits is subject to these requirements. Thus, a class action complaint which fails to allege that plaintiff is a member of the interested class is defective [Greater Westchester Homeowners Assn., Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 523, 526, 91 Cal. Rptr. 720 (class action by homeowners' association on behalf of homeowners residing near airport for damages caused by airport noise as defective)]. In Diamond v. General Motors Corporation, the court refused to accord class action treatment to an action brought on behalf of all residents of Los Angeles County against hundreds of defendants for polluting the air, inter alia, because of the difficulty of resolving the liability issues on an individual basis against each defendant [Diamond v. General Motors Corp. (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 374, 379-383, 97 Cal. Rptr. 639] .

When it appears that a class action cannot be stated, numerous plaintiffs may be joined as individuals [Code Civ. Proc. § 378], or separately filed actions involving common questions of law or fact may be consolidated for trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 1048]. For coverage of class actions in toxic tort cases, see Guide to Toxic Torts, Ch. 2, Effective Case Management, § 2.03 (Matthew Bender). For further discussion and forms relating to class actions generally, see Ch.

120, Class Actions .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureClass ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsPrerequisitesNumerosityEnvironmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsToxic Torts

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Procedural Issues in Environmental Cases

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.21

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.21 SLAPP Suit Provisions

In 1992 the Legislature enacted Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16, creating a special motion to strike actions brought to chill participation by the public in matters of public significance through abuse of the judicial process. The object of the legislation was a phenomenon known as the "SLAPP suit"--that is, "Strategic Lawsuits Against Public Participation." The name was coined by Canan & Pring, Strategic Lawsuits Against Political Participation [35 SoC. PrOBS. 506, 506 (1988)]. SLAPPs may also be described as "public interest intimidation suits" [see Brecher, The Public Interest and Intimidation Suits: A New Approach, 28 Santa Clara L. Rev. 105 (1988)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16 allows for the filing of a motion to strike the complaint within 30 days after its service. The filing of the motion automatically stays all discovery. On a showing by the defendant that his or her conduct comes within the statute's protection, the burden then shifts to the plaintiff to make a prima facie showing that he or she will probably prevail in the action [see Wilcox v. Superior Court (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 809, 823, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 446 . A prevailing defendant is entitled to recover the attorneys fees and costs incurred in the motion. Since the statute is considered to be merely "a procedural screening mechanism" for the plaintiff's demonstration of a prima facie case to permit the matter to go to a trier of fact, it has been held retroactively applicable to actions filed before its effective date [see Robertson v. Rodriguez (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 347, 360-362, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 464] .

An order granting or denying a special motion to strike is immediately appealable [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16(j)].

For further coverage of SLAPP suits, see Ch. 376, Motions to Strike: Anti-SLAPP , and California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 11, Preliminary Litigation Issues, § 11.15 (Matthew Bender).

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Procedural Issues in Environmental Cases

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.22

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.22 Attorney's Fees and Costs

Except as specifically provided by statute, attorney's fees are recoverable only under the express or implied agreement of the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 1021]. The principal exceptions to the general rule are the private attorney general theory, the substantial benefit principle, the common fund principle, and the vexatious litigant theory [Serrano v. Priest (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 25, 26, 34-35, 38, 43, 141 Cal. Rptr. 315, 569 P.2d 1303] .

The private attorney general exception is codified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 [see Woodland Hills Residents Assn., Inc. v. City Council (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 917, 943, 154 Cal. Rptr. 503, 593 P.2d 200] . On motion, the court may award attorney's fees to a successful party, who is not a public entity, against one or more opposing parties in any action which has resulted in the enforcement of an important right affecting the public interest if [Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5]:

- A significant benefit has been conferred on the general public or a large class of persons;
- The necessity and financial burden of private enforcement are such as to make the award appropriate; and
- The attorney's fees should not in the interest of justice be paid out of the recovery, if any.

The important rights that justify a private attorney general claim for attorney's fees include environmental protection [Woodland Hills Residents Assn., Inc. v. City Council (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 917, 935, 154 Cal. Rptr. 503, 593 P.2d 200] .

The substantial benefit theory applies when a litigant, proceeding in a representative capacity, obtains a decision resulting in the conferral of a substantial benefit of a pecuniary or nonpecuniary nature [Serrano v. Priest (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 25, 33-34, 141 Cal. Rptr. 315, 569 P.2d 1303] . However, when the substantial benefit is the effectuation of a statutory policy, the private attorney general theory is the more appropriate basis for evaluating a request for attorney's fees [see Woodland Hills Residents Assn., Inc. v. City Council (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 917, 945-948, 154 Cal. Rptr. 503,

593 P.2d 200] . The substantial benefit theory may be applied, however, in a successful action to prevent an illegal expenditure of public funds [Friends of "B" Street v. City of Hayward (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 988, 996-997, 165 Cal. Rptr. 514] .

The vexatious litigant theory applies against an opponent who has maintained an unfounded action or defense in bad faith, vexatiously, wantonly, or for oppressive reasons [Serrano v. Priest (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 25, 26, 141 Cal. Rptr. 315, 569 P.2d 1303 ; see Residents Ad Hoc Stadium Com. v. Board of Trustees (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 274, 292-293, 152 Cal. Rptr. 585] . Attorneys fees may also be awarded when a challenged award, finding, or determination was the result of arbitrary or capricious action by a public entity or officer [Gov. Code § 800], but courts have declined to award attorney's fees under Gov. Code § 800 unless the public agency failed even to attempt compliance with the law [see, e.g., Whitman v. Board of Supervisors (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 397, 418, 151 Cal. Rptr. 866] .

For a general discussion and forms relating to obtaining an award of attorney's fees in public interest litigation, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees . For detailed coverage of the attorney's fees issue in the environmental context, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 13, Attorneys' Fees and Other Costs (Matthew Bender), and Treatise on Environmental Law, Ch. 14, Attorneys' Fees in Environmental Litigation (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Procedural Issues in Environmental Cases

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 418.23-418.29

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

[Reserved]

§§ 418.23[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA)

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.30

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.30 Scope

This subpart discusses the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) [Pub. Res. Code § 21000 et seq.], including the statute's purpose, the projects and activities to which it applies, the requirements for preparation of an environmental impact report (EIR) or a negative declaration, and actions brought to enforce compliance with CEQA. The discussion in this subpart covers basic elements of an action under CEQA. For sample forms typically involved in CEQA litigation, see §§ 418.150 -418.159. For detailed coverage of all aspects of CEQA, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Chs. 20-23 (Matthew Bender).

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA)

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.31

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.31 Overview of Act

CEQA states that the maintenance of a quality environment for the people of California now and in the future is a matter of statewide concern. CEQA also declares that it is state policy that public agencies should not approve projects as proposed if there are feasible alternatives or feasible mitigation measures available that would substantially lessen the significant environmental effects of the projects [Pub. Res. Code §§ 21002, 21002.1(c); see 14 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 15126(f), 15126.6 (requirement for inclusion of alternatives)]. It establishes procedures for the consideration and mitigation of the environmental impacts of all projects approved or undertaken by state and local agencies. A key feature of CEQA is the requirement that an environmental impact report (EIR) be prepared for any proposed project that may have a significant effect on the environment [see Pub. Res. Code §§ 21100, 21151].

CEQA was modeled on the federal National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) [42 U.S.C. § 4321 et seq.], and therefore judicial interpretations of similar NEPA concepts are persuasive authority in interpreting the state act [No Oil, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 68, 86 n.21, 118 Cal. Rptr. 34, 529 P.2d 66 . For a comparison of NEPA and CEQA, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 20, Background and Implementation of CEQA, § 20.02[6] (Matthew Bender)]. However, the procedural requirements and exemptions in CEQA are far more complicated than NEPA, and CEQA must be carefully consulted to determine its precise application.

CEQA Guidelines have been adopted by the State Resources Agency [14 Cal. Code Reg. § 15000 et seq.]. Provisions in the Guidelines indicating when a project is likely to have a significant effect on the environment are found in 14 Cal. Code Reg. § 15065, Appendix G. Actions to enforce CEQA are brought as traditional mandate proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085 and 1086, and administrative mandate is authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5. For a sample petition for writ of mandate, see § 418.150.

For a further introduction to CEQA, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 20, Background and Implementation of CEQA, § 20.02 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsMandamusEnvironmental LawNational Environmental Policy ActGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawNational Environmental Policy ActEnvironmental Impact StatementsReal Property LawZoning & Land UseState & Regional Planning

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA)

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.32

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.32 Key CEQA Concepts

[1] Project

CEQA applies to "projects" [Pub. Res. Code § 21080(a)]. As a general rule, all discretionary projects of public agencies that will have a direct or ultimate impact on the environment constitute a project within the meaning of Pub. Res. Code § 21065 [City of Livermore v. Local Agency Formation Com. (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 531, 537-538, 230 Cal. Rptr. 867] . This includes an activity directly undertaken by any public agency; or supported, in whole or in part, through contracts, grants, subsidies, loans, or other forms of assistance; or approved through the issuance of a lease, permit, license, certificate, or other entitlement for use [Pub. Res. Code § 21065].

Projects rejected by a public agency are specifically exempted from CEQA requirements [Pub. Res. Code § 21080(b)(5); Sunset Sky Ranch Pilots Assn. v. County of Sacramento (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 902, 905, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 894, 220 P.3d 905] . A county's decision not to renew a conditional use permit for a privately owned airport was not a "public project" under CEQA because the county did not "directly undertake" to close the airport [Pub. Res. Code § 21065(a); Sunset Sky Ranch Pilots Assn. v. County of Sacramento (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 902, 908, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 894, 220 P.3d 905] . Instead, the county decided not to reauthorize a private activity that required "the issuance ... of a ... permit" [see Pub. Res. Code § 21065(c)]. The private airport operation was the "project" in question, and private action is not subject to CEQA unless the action involves governmental participation, financing, or approval [Sunset Sky Ranch Pilots Assn. v. County of Sacramento (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 902, 908, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 894, 220 P.3d 905 ; see 14 Cal. Code. Reg. § 15002(c)].

[2] Significant Effect on Environment

An environmental impact report (EIR) must be prepared under CEQA on any project which will have a "significant effect on the environment," defined as a substantial, or potentially substantial, adverse change in the environment [Pub. Res. Code § 21068; 14 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 15360, 15382]. For additional guidelines regarding the definition and evaluation of a significant effect on the environment, see 14 Cal. Code Reg. § 15064. In addition, special findings must be made by an agency in approving a project which has significant effects even after mitigation [Pub. Res. Code § 21081].

[3] Feasible

In preparing EIRs, agencies are required to consider all "feasible" alternatives to the project and to adopt all "feasible" mitigation measures necessary to mitigate the project's effects to insignificant levels. The term "feasible" means capable of being accomplished in a successful manner within a reasonable period of time, taking into account economic, environmental, social, and technological factors [Pub. Res. Code § 21061.1].

[4] Lead Agency and Responsible Agency

The term "lead agency" means the public agency that has the principal responsibility for carrying out or approving a project that may have a significant effect on the environment [Pub. Res. Code § 21067; 14 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 15051, 15367]. The term "responsible agency" means a public agency, other than the lead agency, which has other responsibilities for carrying out or approving a project [Pub. Res. Code § 21069; 14 Cal. Code Reg. § 15381].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Environmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawNational Environmental Policy ActGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA)

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.33

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.33 Exemptions From Act

Projects and activities that are exempt from the requirements of CEQA, and thus do not require an EIR, include ministerial projects, emergency repairs to public service facilities, and a variety of other projects described in Pub. Res. Code § 21080(b) and 14 Cal. Code Reg. § 15261 et seq. In addition, development projects that consist of the construction, conversion, or use of residential housing of not more than 100 units in an urbanized area that is affordable to low-income households and residential projects on infill sites in urban areas are also exempt from CEQA if they meet certain conditions [see Pub. Res. Code §§ 21159.23, 21159.24]. The agency or the person undertaking an exempt project may--but is not required to--file a notice of exemption for the project with the Office of Planning and Research, in the case of a state agency, or with the county clerk, in the case of a local agency [see Pub. Res. Code §§ 21108(b) (state agency), 21152(b) (local agency); 14 Cal. Code Reg. § 15062]. However, when a local agency determines that a project is not subject to CEQA under exemptions applicable to agricultural housing, affordable housing, and residential infill projects [Pub. Res. Code §§ 21159.22-21159.24; 14 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 15192-15195] and it approves or determines to carry out that project, the local agency or person seeking project approval is required to file a notice of the determination with OPR [Pub. Res. Code § 21152.1; 14 Cal. Code Reg. § 15062(e)].

For discussion of all the exemptions under CEQA, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 21, Preliminary Review, Exemptions, and Negative Declarations, § 21.06 (Matthew Bender).

In addition, certain environmentally oriented state agencies, in the course of their regulatory activities, are already required to consider environmental effects and issue plans or other documents containing environmental information, which they may submit in lieu of an EIR. The Secretary of the Resources Agency is authorized to exempt these agencies from EIR requirements if they meet certain criteria [see Pub. Res. Code § 21080.5(a), (d)]. Agencies with certified regulatory programs are nonetheless subject to the remaining CEQA requirements. For a list of regulatory programs that have been certified as meeting the requirements of Pub. Res. Code § 21080.5, see 14 Cal. Code Reg. § 15251. For further discussion of certified regulating programs under CEQA, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 21, Preliminary Review, Exemptions, and Negative Declarations, § 21.07 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Environmental LawNational Environmental Policy ActGeneral OverviewReal Property LawZoning & Land UseState & Regional Planning

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA)

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.34

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.34 Determination of Necessity for Environmental Impact Report or Negative Declaration

If a project is subject to CEQA requirements, the lead agency must prepare an initial study to determine whether a negative declaration or an environmental impact report (EIR) must be prepared for the project. The initial study may identify environmental effects by using a checklist [see 14 Cal. Code Reg. § 15063(d)-(f); 14 Cal. Code Reg. § 15000 et seq., Appendix G (Environmental Checklist Form)], but must also disclose the data or evidence relied on. If the initial study shows that no significant environmental effects would occur, the agency then prepares a negative declaration--a written statement briefly explaining the reasons for the conclusion that no EIR is required [Pub. Res. Code § 21080(c)]. If otherwise significant effects can be mitigated to levels of insignificance, a "mitigated negative declaration" may be prepared [Pub. Res. Code § 21064]. If the project would still result in one or more significant effects even after mitigation, an EIR must be prepared [see 14 Cal. Code Reg. § 15063(b)]. At various stages of the process, the lead agency is required to consult with, or provide notice to responsible agencies and others [Pub. Res. Code §§ 21080.3(a), 21080.4(a); 14 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 15063(g), 15386].

The standard for determining whether an EIR is required is the "fair argument" test. "If there is substantial evidence of significant environmental impact, evidence to the contrary does not dispense with the need for an EIR if it still can be 'fairly argued' that the project may have a significant impact" [City of Livermore v. Local Agency Formation Com. (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 531, 540, 230 Cal. Rptr. 867] . For detailed discussion of negative declarations, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 21, Preliminary Review, Exemptions, and Negative Declarations, § 21.09 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Environmental LawNational Environmental Policy ActGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawNational Environmental Policy ActEnvironmental Impact StatementsReal Property LawZoning & Land UseJudicial Review

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA)

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.35

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.35 Contents of Environmental Impact Report

[1] General Topics

The general topics that must be considered in an environmental impact report (EIR) are set forth in Pub. Res. Code § 21100(b). Among these are the identification of the project's significant effects on the environment, mitigation measures proposed to minimize such significant effects, any such effects that cannot be avoided, alternatives to the proposed project, and the project's growth-inducing impact. For additional requirements contained in the guidelines relating to the contents of EIRs, see 14 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 15120-15132. For detailed coverage of EIR contents, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 22, Environmental Impact Reports, § 22.04 (Matthew Bender).

[2] Scope of Environmental Impacts Required to Be Considered

In applying CEQA, courts have invalidated EIRs that did not contain an accurate, stable, and finite project description [Mira Monte Homeowners Assn. v. County of Ventura (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 357, 365, 212 Cal. Rptr. 127] . Similarly, when there is a series of smaller projects or phases that are intended to be completed as a whole, the EIR must cover the complete, integrated plan [Environmental Defense Fund, Inc. v. Coastside County Water Dist. (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 695, 706].

Consideration must also be given to the cumulative effects of proposed projects in connection with other projects in the affected area. An EIR must include an analysis of the environmental effects of future expansion or other action if (1) it is a reasonably foreseeable consequence of the initial project; and (2) the future expansion or action will likely change the scope or nature of the initial project or its environmental effects [Laurel Heights Improvement Ass'n v. Regents of University of California (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 376, 396]. However, when future development is unspecified and uncertain, no purpose can be served by requiring an EIR to engage in speculation as to the future environmental consequences of that development [No Oil, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 68, 77 n.5, 118 Cal. Rptr. 34, 529 P.2d 66 (EIR dealing with exploratory drilling must discuss impact of commercial development which may result only when meaningful inquiry into consequences of such development can be made)].

[3] Discussion of Feasible Alternatives

EIRs are required to consider a reasonable range of feasible alternatives [Laurel Heights Improvement Ass'n v. Regents of University of California (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 376, 400]. It is the responsibility of the lead agency--not the project opponents--to identify and discuss the alternatives. In Laurel Heights, the California Supreme Court held an EIR deficient for its failure to analyze the alternative locations for proposed research facilities and the reasons why they were infeasible [Laurel Heights Improvement Ass'n v. Regents of University of California (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 376, 416]. However, in another case, the Court held that an EIR's failure to discuss certain alternative sites for a hotel did not make the EIR inadequate when the agency had determined that a hotel was inconsistent with the local plan for the sites and the sites were not owned by the developer [Citizens of Goleta Valley v. Board of Supervisors (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 553, 572-574, 276 Cal. Rptr. 410, 801 P.2d 1161] . For further discussion on the treatment of alternatives in EIRs, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 22, Environmental Impact Reports, § 22.04[8] (Matthew Bender).

[4] Different Kinds of EIRs

In addition to EIRs on individual development projects, CEQA also allows an agency to prepare EIRs at a more general level of action--such as the adoption of a general plan. These kinds of EIRs include program EIRs, tiered EIRs, and Master EIRs. The distinctions among them are not always clear. The preparation of these kinds of general EIRs may allow for more limited CEQA review of subsequent projects covered in the general EIR [see, e.g., Pub. Res. Code § 21157.1]. If the subsequent project will have no additional significant impact not identified in the prior EIR and no new or additional mitigation or alternatives may be required, no new environmental document is required [see, e.g., Pub. Res. Code § 21157.1(c)].

On the other hand, a subsequent project not within the scope of the project covered by the prior EIR will require either a mitigated negative declaration or an EIR [see, e.g., Pub. Res. Code § 21157.1(d)]. One kind of EIR prepared on a subsequent project is a "focused" EIR, that is, one prepared for a subsequent project identified in a "master" environmental impact report [see Pub. Res. Code § 21158]. Similarly, "tiering" means the coverage of general matters and environmental effects in an EIR prepared for a policy, plan, program, or ordinance followed by narrower or site-specific EIRs that incorporate by reference the discussion in any prior EIR and that concentrate on the environmental effects that (1) are capable of being mitigated, or (2) were not analyzed as significant effects on the environment in the prior EIR [Pub. Res. Code § 21068.5]. For a discussion of different types of EIRs, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 22, Environmental Impact Reports, § 22.02 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Environmental LawGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawNational Environmental Policy ActGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawNational Environmental Policy ActEnvironmental Impact StatementsEnvironmental LawZoning & Land UseComprehensive & General PlansReal Property LawZoning & Land UseJudicial Review

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA)

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.36

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.36 Procedural Requirements for Preparation of Environmental Impact Reports

When an environmental impact report (EIR) is required for a project, the lead agency must immediately send notice of its determination to each responsible agency, the Office of Planning and Research, and to those public agencies having jurisdiction by law over natural resources affected by the project which are held in trust for the people of California [Pub. Res. Code § 21080.4(a)]. Those agencies in turn must provide the lead agency with written information regarding the scope and content of the environmental information which is germane to those agencies' responsibilities in connection with the proposed project and which must be included in the EIR [Pub. Res. Code § 21080.4(a); 14 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 15082(b), 15375]. Before completing the EIR, the lead agency must consult with, and obtain comments from, these agencies and any city or county that borders on a city or county within which the project is located and in the case of certain types of projects, consultation is also needed with transportation planning agencies, the State Air Resources Board, and the Department of Water Resources [Pub. Res. Code §§ 21104 (state agencies), 21153 (local agencies); 14 Cal. Code Reg. § 15086]. Any lead agency that is preparing an EIR or a negative declaration must also provide public notice of the availability of the draft EIR or negative declaration and specify the period during which comments will be received thereon [Pub. Res. Code § 21092].

The public review period for a draft EIR must be not less than 30 days. When it is submitted to the State Clearinghouse for review, the period must be not less than 45 days [Pub. Res. Code § 21091(a)]. CEQA does not require formal public hearings, but the Guidelines require a meaningful opportunity for public participation in the process [14 Cal. Code Reg. § 15087(g)]. The agency must respond to the comments received in the final EIR [Pub. Res. Code. § 21091(d)(2)(A)]. However, an EIR must be recirculated for public comment when new information added to the EIR discloses that the draft EIR was so fundamentally and basically inadequate and conclusory in nature that public comment on the draft was in effect meaningless [Laurel Heights Improvement Assn. v. Regents of University of California (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 1112, 1130, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 231, 864 P.2d 502] . For discussion of other notices or supplementation that may be required for new information added to an EIR, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 22, Environmental Impact Reports, § 22.03[4][i] (Matthew Bender).

If the EIR identifies environmental impacts that remain significant after investigation, the agency must make one or more of the following findings with regard to each significant effect:

- Changes or alterations have been required in, or incorporated into, the project that mitigate or avoid the significant effects on the environment;

- Those changes or alterations are within the responsibility and jurisdiction of another public agency and have been, or can and should be, adopted by that other agency; or

- Specific economic, legal, social, technological, or other considerations, including considerations for the provision of employment opportuni ties for highly trained workers, make infeasible the mitigation measures or alternatives identified in the EIR.

In the latter case, the agency must also find that specific overriding economic, legal, social, technological, or other benefits of the project outweigh the significant effects on the environment [14 Cal. Code Reg. § 15093(a)]. A statement of overriding considerations must make a good faith effort to inform the public and decisionmakers about the consequences of environmental decisions, and the reasons for and against them [Woodward Park Homeowners Association Inc. v. City of Fresno (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 683, 718, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 102] .

The agency must also adopt a mitigation monitoring program, to ensure compliance with mitigation measures imposed by the agency during project implementation [Pub. Res. Code § 21081.6(a)(1)].

Finally, when an agency approves or determines to carry out a project that is subject to the provisions of CEQA, the agency must file notice of its approval or determination [Pub. Res. Code § 21108(a) (state agencies), Pub. Res. Code § 21152(a) (local agencies); 14 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 15094(a), 15096(i) (notice of determination regarding project for which EIR prepared); 14 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 15075(a), 15096(i) (notice of determination regarding project for which negative declaration prepared)]. The filing of the notice of determination starts the 30-day statute of limitations on court challenges to the approval of a project [Pub. Res. Code § 21167(c); see § 418.37[3] (time limits for commencing action)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Environmental LawAssessment & Information AccessPublic ParticipationEnvironmental LawNational Environmental Policy ActGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawNational Environmental Policy ActEnvironmental Impact StatementsGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime Limitations

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA)

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.37

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.37 Judicial Review of Agency Decisions Under CEQA

[1] Review by Writ of Mandate

An action or proceeding may be brought to attack, review, set aside, void, or annul acts or decisions of public agencies on the grounds of noncompliance with CEQA [see Pub. Res. Code § 21167]. CEQA provides for relief through writ of mandate [see Pub. Res. Code §§ 21168, 21168.5]. Mandamus is not the exclusive procedure by which the validity of a governmental action may be challenged for alleged violation of CEQA [see Hills For Everyone v. Local Agency Formation Com. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 461, 468, 164 Cal. Rptr. 420 (declaratory and injunctive relief)]. For a sample Petition for Writ of Mandate, see § 418.150.

[2] Scope of Review

CEQA requires a two-pronged inquiry as to (1) whether or not there is any substantial evidence in light of the whole record to support the administrative decision; and (2) whether or not the agency making the decision abused its discretion by failing to proceed in the manner required by law [see Pub. Res. Code §§ 21168, 21168.5; Long Beach Sav. & Loan Assn. v. Long Beach Redevelopment Agency (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 249, 259-260, 232 Cal. Rptr. 772 ; Dehne v. County of Santa Clara (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 827, 835, 171 Cal. Rptr. 753] . Pub. Res. Code § 21168 applies to agencies required by law to hold hearings, and Pub. Res. Code § 21168.5 applies to agencies that are not required to hold hearings. In determining which section applies, however, the critical issue to be resolved is not whether the public agency was required by law to hold a hearing, but whether the administrative action was quasi-legislative or quasi-judicial in nature--challenged respectively in traditional mandamus proceedings and in administrative mandamus proceedings [Western States Petroleum Assn. v. Superior Court (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 559, 567-568, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 139, 888 P.2d 1268] .

For further discussion and forms relating to traditional mandate proceedings, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition . For further discussion and forms relating to the use of administrative mandamus, see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions . For coverage of the standards of review under CEQA, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 23, CEQA Litigation, § 23.04[3] (Matthew Bender).

PRACTICE TIP:

Standard of Review Virtually the Same. For all practical purposes, the standard of judicial review in CEQA actions is virtually the same under either ordinary or administrative mandamus, and review in both forms of action is largely confined to the administrative record compiled by the agency.

[3] Time Limits for Commencement of Action

An action or proceeding alleging that a public agency is carrying out or has approved a project that may have a significant effect on the environment without having determined whether the project may have a significant effect on the environment must be commenced within 180 days from the date of the public agency's decision to carry out or approve the project, or, if a project is undertaken without a formal decision by the public agency, within 180 days from the date of commencement of the project [Pub. Res. Code § 21167(a)]. Any action or proceeding alleging that a public agency has improperly determined whether a project may have a significant effect on the environment, or alleging that an EIR does not comply with CEQA, or alleging that any other act or omission of a public agency does not comply with CEQA, must be commenced within 30 days from the date of the filing of the notice of approval or determination to carry out the project [Pub. Res. Code § 21167(b), (c), (e); see Committee for Green Foothills v. Santa Clara County (2010) 48 Cal. 4th 32, 39, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 181, 224 P.3d 920 (filing of notice of decision triggers 30-day statute of limitations for all CEQA challenges to decision announced in notice)]. Any action or proceeding alleging that a public agency has improperly determined that a project is not subject to CEQA must be commenced within 35 days from the date of the filing of the notice of approval or determination to carry out the project [Pub. Res. Code § 21167(d); see Stockton Citizens for Sensible Planning v. City of Stockton (2010) 48 Cal. 4th 481, 489, 106 Cal. Rptr. 3d 858, 227 P.3d 416 (35-day statute of limitations runs from filing of notice of exemption, whether or not NOE is substantively or procedurally flawed)].

The 90-day service of summons requirement of Gov. Code § 66499.37 (action seeking review of a public decision concerning a subdivision under the Subdivision Map Act) applies to CEQA causes of action concerning a subdivision [Friends of Riverside's Hills v. City of Riverside (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 743, 754, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 695]. The two statutory schemes are not in conflict, because a plaintiff can comply with the SMA service of summons requirement as well as CEQA service requirements. Thus, in a case challenging a city's approval of tract maps for a development project, the plaintiff's CEQA cause of action concerned a subdivision because it overlapped with other SMA causes of action in the writ petition and could have been brought under the SMA. The trial court therefore did not err when it dismissed the entire petition for failure to comply with Section 66499.37 [Friends of Riverside's Hills v. City of Riverside (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 743, 755-756, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 695].

[4] Timing for Request of Hearing

In any action or proceeding alleging noncompliance with CEQA, the petitioner must request a hearing within 90 days from the date of filing the petition or be subject to dismissal on the court's own motion or on the motion of any interested party [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.4(a)]. To avoid dismissal, the request for hearing must be in writing [County of Sacramento v. Superior Court (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 943, 949, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 449] . In the absence of good cause, briefing must be completed within 90 days from the date the request is filed and the hearing, if feasible, must be held within 30 days thereafter. The parties may stipulate to a different briefing schedule or hearing date if approved by the court [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.4(c)].

The requirement that the petitioner file a request for a hearing within 90 days from the date of filing the petition does not mean that the petitioner must take other affirmative steps sufficient to place the matter on the court's docket within the 90-day period. Rather, under the statute, any party may file an application for a hearing date after the request for a hearing has been filed [Association for Sensible Development at Northstar, Inc. v. Placer County (2004) 122 Cal.

App. 4th 1289, 1294-1295, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 440 , declining to follow McCormick v. Board of Supervisors (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 352, 358, 243 Cal. Rptr. 617 (interpreting former version of § 21167.4 and holding that petitioner was required to take affirmative steps sufficient to place matter on court's docket for hearing, either by filing and serving notice of hearing or utilizing some other method authorized by local rules of court; mere advisory pleading stating that petitioner requests hearing was inadequate)].

In Association for Sensible Development at Northstar, Inc. v. Placer County, the court explained that under the current version of the statute, after the petitioner files a request for a hearing, "any party" may file an "application" for a hearing date, at which point in time the court must set the hearing. Thus, the petitioner controls the timing of the filing of the request for a hearing, and must file that request within 90 days of the filing of the petition. Immediately after filing that document, the petitioner must serve it on all parties. At this point, either the petitioner or the respondent can force the trial court to set a hearing by filing an "application" as soon as the petitioner completes the first step. Either party may move the petition to a hearing on the merits, satisfying the legislative intent that CEQA proceedings be conducted expeditiously [Association for Sensible Development at Northstar, Inc. v. Placer County (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1289, 1294-1295, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 440 ; see also Leavitt v. County of Madera (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1502, 1517, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 578].

For additional discussion of the timing for request of a hearing, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 23, CEQA Litigation, § 23.03[6] (Matthew Bender).

[5] Required Service of Notice and Pleadings

Proof of prior service by mail on the public agency carrying out or approving the project of a written notice of the commencement of any action or proceeding under CEQA must be filed concurrently with the initial pleading in the action or proceeding [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.5]. In addition, the petitioner must furnish a copy of the pleading or a copy of any amended or supplemental pleading to the State Attorney General, and no temporary or permanent relief may be granted until the pleading is furnished to the Attorney General [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.7]. For a discussion of service of notice and pleadings, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 23, CEQA Litigation, § 23.03[2], [3] (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawJudicial ReviewGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewAdministrative RecordGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesMandamusAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewStandards of ReviewGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsJudicial ReviewEnvironmental LawNational Environmental Policy ActEnvironmental Impact StatementsEnvironmental LawZoning & Land UseJudicial ReviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime LimitationsReal Property LawZoning & Land UseAdministrative Procedure

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA)

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 418.38-418.49

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

[Reserved]

§§ 418.38[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Citizen Suits

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.50

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.50 Safe Drinking Water and Toxic Enforcement Act of 1986 (Proposition 65)

[1] Overview of Proposition 65

[a] Background of Proposition 65

Proposition 65, a statewide initiative passed in 1986 by the California electorate, added the Safe Drinking Water and Toxic Enforcement Act of 1986 [Health & Safety Code § 25249.5 et seq.]. Proposition 65 also amended Health & Safety Code § 25189.5(d) (relating to the disposal of hazardous waste at a facility lacking a permit to receive it or at an unauthorized point) to increase the upper limit of the daily penalty imposed from $50,000 to $100,000 and added Health & Safety Code § 25180.7 (defining "designated government employee" and prescribing duties) [Proposition 65 (Nov. 1986), §§ 3, 4]. Both of these statutes are found in the enforcement provisions [Health & Safety Code §§ 25180-25196] of the Hazardous Waste Control Law [Health & Safety Code § 25100 et seq.].

[b] Application of Proposition 65 and Persons Who May Bring Suits

The Act applies to chemicals that are "known to the state to cause cancer or reproductive toxicity," which are required to be compiled in an official list [Health & Safety Code § 25249.8(b)]. For any chemicals listed, the Act prohibits:

- The knowing discharge of such chemicals into sources of drinking water [Health & Safety Code § 25249.5]; and

- The knowing and intentional exposure of any individual to such chemicals without giving advance warning [Health & Safety Code § 25249.6].

There are a number of exemptions from these prohibitions [see [5], below]. In addition, suits against violators may be brought by:

- The Attorney General, a district attorney, or a city attorney or city prosecutor [Health & Safety Code § 25249.7(c)]; and

- "[B]y any person in the public interest" if a 60-day notice is given and if none of the governmental officials listed in the first bulleted item "has commenced and is diligently prosecuting an action against the violation" [Health & Safety Code § 25249.7(d)]. For a sample 60-day notice of intent to sue under Proposition 65, and a checklist of the information that must be included in the notice, see § 418.171.

[c] Notices and Reports to Attorney General

Any person bringing an action in the public interest, or any private person bringing an action in which a violation of the Act is alleged, must notify the Attorney General that such an action has been filed. The plaintiff, or any private person settling a violation of the Act alleged in a 60-day notice [see § 418.171], must also submit to the Attorney General a reporting form that includes the results of settlement or judgment of the action or violation, including financial terms, and the final disposition of the case, even if dismissed [Health & Safety Code § 25249.7(e), (f)]. If there is a settlement of an action brought by a person in the public interest, the plaintiff must submit the settlement to the court for approval on noticed motion [Health & Safety Code § 25249.7(f)(4)]. This requirement does not apply to a voluntary dismissal in which no consideration is received from the defendant. The court may approve the settlement only if (1) it finds that any warning required by the settlement complies with the Act, (2) any award of attorneys' fees is reasonable under California law, an d (3) any penalty amount is reasonable [Health & Safety Code § 25249.7(f)(4)]. The plaintiff has the burden of producing evidence sufficient to sustain each required finding [Health & Safety Code § 25249.7(f)(5)]. The plaintiff must serve the motion and all supporting papers on the Attorney General, who may appear and participate in any proceeding without intervening in the case [Health & Safety Code § 25249.7(f)(5)].

At the time judgment is filed, the plaintiff must file an affidavit verifying that the report was accurately completed and submitted to the Attorney General [Health & Safety Code § 25249.7(f)]. In addition, the plaintiff must submit a report that includes information on any corrective action being taken as a part of the settlement or resolution of the action [Health & Safety Code § 25249.7(f)]. All of the information submitted to the Attorney General must be made available to the public [Health & Safety Code § 25249.7(g)].

[d] Constitutionality of Proposition 65

Private citizen enforcement provisions of the Act have been held not to violate separation of powers and due process principles. The California Constitution does not specify, as does the United States Constitution, that a state's judicial power extends only to "cases and controversies." Thus, the Act's grant of standing to sue to "any person in the public interest" is not unconstitutional and federal cases interpreting standing under the United States Constitution do not purport to impose the same requirements in cases arising under the California Constitution. California authority supports the conclusion that a suit by citizens in the undifferentiated public interest is justiciable, or appropriate for decision in a California court [National Paint & Coatings Assn. v. State of California (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 753

[2] Purpose of Act

The purpose of the Act is to further the rights of the people:

- To protect themselves and the water they drink against chemicals with harmful effects;

- To be informed about exposures to chemicals that cause cancer, birth defects, or other reproductive harm;

- To secure strict enforcement of the laws controlling hazardous chemicals and deter actions that threaten public health and safety; and

- To shift the cost of hazardous waste cleanups more onto offenders and less onto law-abiding taxpayers.

The initiative was the result of the people's findings that [Proposition 65 (Nov. 1986), § 1]:

- Hazardous chemicals pose a serious potential threat to the health and well-being of the people of California;

- State government agencies have failed to provide the people with adequate protection; and

- These failures have been serious enough to lead to investigations by federal agencies of the administration of California's toxic protection programs.

[3] Definitions of Terms Used in Act

[a] Person

"Person" means an individual, trust, firm, joint stock company, corporation, company, partnership, limited liability company, and association [Health & Safety Code § 25249.11(a)].

[b] Person in the Course of Doing Business

"Person in the course of doing business" means a person employing 10 or more employees in his or her business [see Health & Safety Code § 25249.11(b)]. The term does not include [Health & Safety Code § 25249.11(b)]:

- Any person employing fewer than 10 employees in his or her business;

- Any city, county, or district or any department or agency thereof, or the state or any department or agency thereof, or the federal government or any department or agency thereof; or

- Any entity in its operation of a public water system as defined in Health & Safety Code § 116275.

[c] Significant Amount

"Significant amount" means any detectable amount except an amount which would meet the exemption test in Health & Safety Code § 25249.10(c) [see [5][b] and [c], below] if an individual were exposed to such an amount in drinking water [Health & Safety Code § 25249.11(c)].

[d] Source of Drinking Water

"Source of drinking water" means a present source of drinking water or water which is identified or designated in a water quality control plan adopted by a regional board as being suitable for domestic or municipal uses [Health & Safety Code § 25249.11(d)]. In People ex rel. Lungren v. Superior Court, the California Supreme Court held that faucets containing lead constituted a source of drinking water [People ex rel. Lungren v. Superior Court (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 294, 307-308, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 855, 926 P.2d 1042] .

[e] Threaten to Violate

"Threaten to violate" means to create a condition in which there is a substantial probability that a violation will occur [

Health & Safety Code § 25249.11(e)].

[4] Chemicals Known to State to Cause Cancer or Reproductive Toxicity

A chemical is known to the state to cause cancer or reproductive toxicity if [Health & Safety Code § 25249.8(b)]:

- In the opinion of the state's qualified experts the chemical has been clearly shown through scientifically valid testing according to generally accepted principles to cause cancer or reproductive toxicity;

- A body considered to be authoritative by the state's qualified experts has formally identified the chemical as causing cancer or reproductive toxicity; or

- An agency of the state or federal government has formally required that the chemical be labeled or identified as causing cancer or reproductive toxicity.

Listed chemicals are contained in regulations adopted by the Health & Welfare Agency [see 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 12000].

[5] Prohibitions and Exceptions

[a] Discharge of Chemical

Except as provided in Health & Safety Code § 25249.9, the Act prohibits any person in the course of doing business from knowingly discharging or releasing a listed chemical into water or onto or into land when such chemical passes or probably will pass into any source of drinking water [Health & Safety Code § 25249.5]. Health & Safety Code § 25249.9 excepts from this provision:

- Any discharge or release that takes place less than 20 months after the inclusion of the chemical in question on the list required to be published under Health & Safety Code § 25249.8(a); and

- Any discharge or release that (1) will not cause any significant amount of the discharged or released chemical to enter any source of drinking water and (2) is in conformity with all other laws and with every applicable regulation, permit, requirement, and order [Health & Safety Code § 25249.9(b)].

In any action to enforce the provisions of Health & Safety Code § 25249.5, the burden of showing that the discharge or release meets the requirements of Health & Safety Code § 25249.9(b) is on the defendant [Health & Safety Code § 25249.9(b)].

[b] Exposure of Others to Chemical Without Warning

Except as provided in Health & Safety Code § 25249.10, no person in the course of business shall knowingly and intentionally expose any individual to a chemical known to the state to cause cancer or reproductive toxicity without first giving clear and reasonable warning to this individual [Health & Safety Code § 25249.6]. Health & Safety Code § 25249.10 excepts from this provision:

- An exposure for which federal law governs warning in a manner that preempts state authority [Health & Safety Code § 25249.10(a)];

- An exposure that takes place less than 12 months after the inclusion of the chemical in question on the list required to be published under Health & Safety Code § 25249.8(a) [Health & Safety Code §

25249.10(b)]; and

- An exposure for which the person responsible can show that the exposure poses no significant risk assuming lifetime exposure at the level in question for substances known to the state to cause cancer, and that the exposure will have no observable effect assuming exposure at 1,000 times the level in question for substances known to the state to cause reproductive toxicity, based on evidence and standards of comparable scientific validity to the evidence and standards which form the scientific basis for the listing of the chemical under Health & Safety Code § 25249.8(a) [Health & Safety Code § 25249.10(c)]. In any action to enforce the provisions of Health & Safety Code § 25249.6, the burden of showing that an exposure meets this exception is on the defendant [Health & Safety Code § 25249.10(c)].

The warning required by Health & Safety Code § 25249.6, may be provided by general methods such as labels on consumer products, inclusion of notices in mailings to water customers, posting of notices, placing notices in public news media, and the like, provided that the warning accomplished is clear and reasonable. To minimize the burden on retail sellers of consumer products, including foods, regulations implementing Health & Safety Code § 25249.6 must to the extent practicable place the obligation to provide any warning materials (such as labels) on the producer or packager rather than on the retail seller [Health & Safety Code § 25249.11(f)]. However, when the retail seller itself is responsible for introducing a chemical known to the state to cause cancer or reproductive toxicity into the consumer product in question, the retail seller is then required to provide the warning [Health & Safety Code § 25249.11(f)].

[c] Significant Risk Defense

The person responsible for the discharge or exposure of a listed chemical has a defense if it can be shown that it "poses no significant risk assuming lifetime exposure at the level in question" [Health & Safety Code § 25249.10(c)]. The defendant has the burden of proof on this defense. In the case of discharges into drinking water, this defense is available only if the discharge is "in conformity with all other laws, and with every applicable regulation, permit requirement and order" [Health & Safety Code § 25249.9(b)(2)].

[6] Scienter Requirements

Liability under the Act occurs only if the discharge or exposure is done "knowingly." The regulations define "knowingly" as the "knowledge of the fact that a discharge of, release of, or exposure to a chemical listed pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 25249.8(a) is occurring. No knowledge that the discharge, release, or exposure is unlawful is required" [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 12102(n)]. The exposure prohibition in Health & Safety Code § 25249.6 adds the condition that exposure be done "intentionally."

[7] Penalties and Enforcement

Any person violating or threatening to violate Health & Safety Code § 25249.5 or 25249.6 may be enjoined from doing so [Health & Safety Code § 25249.7(a)] and may be liable for a civil penalty not to exceed $2,500 per day for each violation in addition to any other penalty established by law [Health & Safety Code § 25249.7(b)]. Actions for relief may be brought in any court of competent jurisdiction.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Constitutional LawThe JudiciaryCase or ControversyStandingGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawAssessment & Information AccessPublic ParticipationEnvironmental LawWater QualitySafe Drinking Water ActGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawWater QualitySafe Drinking Water ActCoverageEnvironmental LawWater QualitySafe Drinking Water ActEnforcementGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsClaims By & Against

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Citizen Suits

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.51

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.51 Other Private Enforcement and Tort Actions Based on Statutes

Environmental statutes may expressly confer the right to bring a civil action. For example, "any person" may maintain an action for declaratory or equitable relief to restrain any violation of the California Coastal Act [Pub. Res. Code § 30803]. In one case involving a citizen's suit under this provision, the court noted that it was the intent of the Coastal Act to allow broad citizen participation in enforcing the provisions of the Act, and not to limit standing to those with an actual financial stake in the outcome [Sanders v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 661, 673, 126 Cal. Rptr. 415] . Such "citizen suit" provisions are more common under federal environmental statutes [see, e.g., 42 U.S.C. § 7604 (Clean Air Act conferring right to bring civil action on private party)]. Violation of a statute may trigger the presumption of failure to use due care [see Evid. Code § 669; see also § 418.62[3]]. Violation of a statute may also, in itself, constitute a tort [see Czap v. Credit Bureau of Santa Clara Valley (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 1, 6, 86 Cal. Rptr. 417] . For further discussion and a form relating to recovery based on statutory liability generally, see Ch. 531, Statutes and Ordinances .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Environmental LawAir QualityEnforcementGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawAir QualityEnforcementCitizen SuitsTortsNegligenceProofViolations of LawGeneral OverviewTortsNegligenceProofViolations of LawStatutes

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Citizen Suits

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.52

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.52 Suits for "Unlawful Business Practices"

The Business and Professions Code prohibitions against "unfair competition"--defined as "any unlawful, unfair or fraudulent business act or practice" [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200]--create a right to sue for violations of other statutes even when those statutes do not themselves confer any standing for private actions or, perhaps, even when they create more limited standing for actions. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17204 formerly granted standing in "[a]ctions for any relief pursuant to this chapter to any person acting for the interests of itself, its members or the general public." However, in 2004, the electorate approved Proposition 64, which amended Bus. & Prof. Code § 17204 to limit standing to persons who have suffered injury in fact and have lost money or property as a result of unfair competition. Proposition 64 stated that its intent was to prohibit private attorneys from filing lawsuits for unfair competition when they do not have clients who have been injured in fact under the standing requirements of the United States Constitution [Proposition 64, § 1(h) (2004)]. As a result, a person may now pursue representative claims or relief on behalf of others only if the claimant has suffered injury in fact and has lost money or property as a result of such unfair competition [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17203, 17204, 17535].

The remedies under Bus. & Prof. Code § 17203 include injunctive relief, the appointment of a receiver, or such orders or judgments "as may be necessary to restore to any person in interest any money or property, real or personal, which may have been acquired by means of such unfair competition." This provision does not create a private right of action for "damages," but it has been construed to allow for the remedy of "restitution" [see Fletcher v. Security Pacific Bank (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 442, 449, 153 Cal. Rptr. 28, 591 P.2d 51] . When the action is brought for the "general public," restitution in favor of the general public is available [People v. Thomas Shelton Powers, M.D., Inc. (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 330, 339-344, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 34] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJusticiabilityStandingGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJusticiabilityStandingInjury in

FactEnvironmental LawNational Environmental Policy ActEnvironmental Impact StatementsTortsBusiness TortsUnfair Business PracticesGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Citizen Suits

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 418.53-418.59

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

[Reserved]

§§ 418.53[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Common Law Environmental Tort Actions

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.60

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.60 Nuisance

[1] Definition of Nuisance

"Nuisance" is defined as anything that is injurious to health, and includes anything which is indecent or offensive to the senses, or an obstruction to the free use of property, so as to interfere with the comfortable enjoyment of life or property, or unlawfully obstructs the free passage or use, in the customary manner, of any navigable water body, or any public park, square, street, or highway [Civ. Code § 3479]. There are two kinds of nuisance, public and private [see Civ. Code §§ 3480, 3481].

For detailed coverage and forms relating to nuisance generally, see Ch. 391, Nuisance .

[2] Public or Private Nuisance

A public nuisance is one that affects at the same time an entire community or neighborhood, or any considerable number of persons, although the extent of the annoyance or damage inflicted on individuals may be unequal [Civ. Code § 3480]. A private person may maintain an action for a public nuisance only if it is specially injurious to the plaintiff's private property, or to a private right incidental thereto [Civ. Code § 3493; Venuto v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 116, 124, 99 Cal. Rptr. 350] . Thus, the special injury must be different in kind from that suffered by the general public [Venuto v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 116, 124, 99 Cal. Rptr. 350] . Proximity to the source of a public nuisance may constitute the special injury required to bring an action under Civ. Code § 3493 [Wade v. Campbell (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 54, 60, 19 Cal. Rptr. 173 (persons living near dairy who were affected by odors, unpleasant sights and sounds, excessive mosquitoes and flies, and pollution of creek, suffered special injury apart from that suffered by general public)].

The essence of a private nuisance is an interference with the plaintiff's use and enjoyment of land [Venuto v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 116, 124-125, 99 Cal. Rptr. 350] . Plaintiffs who fail to allege any perceptible injury to their individual property interests apart from that associated with the community at large do not have a cause of action for private nuisance [Brown v. Petrolane, Inc. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 720, 727, 162 Cal. Rptr. 551 (operation of liquefied petroleum facilities within 2,000 feet of plaintiffs' homes as insufficient allegation of private nuisance)].

[3] Permanent or Continuing Nuisance

A nuisance is considered permanent when it is of such a character that it will presumably continue indefinitely and, as a practical matter, cannot be abated [Phillips v. City of Pasadena (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 104, 107, 162 P.2d 625] . The clearest case of a permanent nuisance occurs when the offending structure or condition is maintained as a necessary part of the operations of a public utility [Spaulding v. Cameron (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 265, 267, 239 P.2d 625] . A nuisance is considered continuing, rather than permanent, if it may be abated or discontinued at any time. Every repetition of a continuing nuisance is a separate wrong for which the injured person may bring successive actions for damages until the nuisance is abated, even though an action based on the original wrong may be barred by the statute of limitations [Phillips v. City of Pasadena (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 104, 107-108, 162 P.2d 625] . The courts have recognized that in doubtful cases plaintiff should have an election to treat the nuisance as either permanent or not [Spaulding v. Cameron (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 265, 268, 239 P.2d 625 ; Kafka v. Bozio (1923) 191 Cal. 746, 752, 218 P. 753] .

PRACTICE TIP:

The Impact of Distinction Between Permanent and Continuing Nuisance. The important distinctions between continuing and permanent nuisances are the statutes of limitations and the scope of damages. If the statute of limitations has run on a permanent nuisance claim, the plaintiff will be relegated to a claim for continuing nuisance. However, permanent property damages are not recoverable under a claim for continuing nuisance, the plaintiff being limited to the damages incurred during the continuance of the nuisance before the trial, such as lost rentals. In Mangini v. Aerojet-General Corporation [Mangini v. Aerojet-General Corp. (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 1087, 1090, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 272, 912 P.2d 1220] , the California Supreme Court held that proof of a continuing nuisance requires the plaintiff to present substantial evidence that the contaminated condition is one that is both subject to remediation (or cleanup) and that the cost of cleanup is "reasonable." If plaintiff cannot prove that the contamination is capable of being abated at a reasonable cost, the nuisance is a permanent one, which may be barred by the statute of limitations [see McCoy v. Gustafson (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 56, 90, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 37 (because plaintiffs failed to establish that soil and groundwater contamination from neighboring property was reasonably abatable, nuisance was permanent, and action was barred by three-year statute of limitations for injury to real property)].

[4] Nuisances Created or Not Abated by Prior Property Owners

Civ. Code § 3483 provides that "[e]very successive owner of property who neglects to abate a continuing nuisance upon, or in the use of, such property, created by a former owner, is liable therefore in the same manner as the one who first created it." In Mangini v. Aerojet-General Corporation [Mangini v. Aerojet-General Corp. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1125, 281 Cal. Rptr. 827] , the court allowed an action for continuing nuisance against a former lessee of property by the current owner of property for the lessee's deposit of hazardous waste on the property.

[5] Nuisance Actions Against Public Entities

Public entities are not immune from liability based on nuisance [Nestle v. City of Santa Monica (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 920, 936-937, 101 Cal. Rptr. 568, 496 P.2d 480] . A municipality may be found liable for creating or maintaining a nuisance even though a governmental activity is involved [Phillips v. City of Pasadena (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 104, 106, 162 P.2d 625] . For further discussion, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act . For coverage of governmental immunity, see § 418.17.

[6] Types of Pollution Constituting Nuisances

Claims for nuisance may arise from the deposit of hazardous waste or other contamination on property [see, e.g., Mangini v. Aerojet-General Corp. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1125, 281 Cal. Rptr. 827] . An act of pollution, obstruction, or diversion of water may constitute a nuisance under Civ. Code § 3479 [Helix Land Co. v. City of San Diego (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 932, 949, 147 Cal. Rptr. 683] . Thus, a landowner with riparian water rights may have a claim for nuisance for pollution of that watercourse [Peterson v. City of Santa Rosa (1897) 119 Cal. 387, 392, 51 P. 557 ; for discussion and forms relating to the various types of water rights, see Ch. 575, Waters]. Similarly, the pollution of air by the emission of offensive airborne matter may constitute a nuisance [see, e.g., Eaton v. Klimm (1933) 217 Cal. 362, 366 (smoke from asphalt mixing plant); Guttinger v. Calaveras Cement Co. (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 460, 463, 325 P.2d 145 (cement dust); Miles v. Arena & Co. (1937) 23 Cal. App. 2d 680, 683, 73 P.2d 1260 (dust carried over plaintiff's land, poisoning his bees)].

Complaints for property and personal injury damages caused by operation of an airport and the resulting fumes, vibration, and noise from jet aircraft have been held to state a cause of action for nuisance [Nestle v. City of Santa Monica (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 920, 937, 101 Cal. Rptr. 568, 496 P.2d 480] . However, abatement of potential nuisance conditions from properly zoned airports is restricted by Code Civ. Proc. § 731a. In addition, proof that an airport has been in existence for three years constitutes a rebuttable presumption that the airport is not a nuisance [Code Civ. Proc. § 731b]. For further discussion and forms relating to airports, see Ch. 16, Airplanes and Airports .

Noise and odors that unreasonably interfere with neighbors' comfortable enjoyment of life and property constitute a nuisance [see, e.g., Wilson v. Interlake Steel Co. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 229, 232-233, 185 Cal. Rptr. 280, 649 P.2d 922 (noise from steel plant kept plaintiffs from sleeping and interfered with daily use and enjoyment of their property); Varjabedian v. City of Madera (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 285, 293-294, 142 Cal. Rptr. 429, 572 P.2d 43 (sewage treatment plant)].

For further coverage of nuisance in the environmental context, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 1, Nuisance, Trespass, and Strict Liability for Ultrahazardous Activities (Matthew Bender), Guide to Toxic Torts, Ch. 3, Theories of Liability, § 3.06 (Matthew Bender), and Environmental Law Practice Guide, Ch. 16, Common-Law Controls, § 16.02 (Matthew Bender).

[7] Defenses

[a] Activities Expressly Authorized by Statute or Zoning

Nothing which is done or maintained under the express authority of a statute can be deemed a nuisance [Civ. Code § 3482]. The requirements of express statutory authorization has been narrowly construed to sanction only actions where it can be fairly stated that the Legislature contemplated the doing of the very act which occasions the injury [Varjabedian v. City of Madera (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 285, 291, 142 Cal. Rptr. 429, 572 P.2d 43 ; Nestle v. City of Santa Monica (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 920, 938, 101 Cal. Rptr. 568, 496 P.2d 480] .

No person or corporation may be enjoined in a private action from the reasonable and necessary operation of any use expressly permitted in certain local zoning, and the use may not be deemed a nuisance without evidence of the employment of unnecessary and injurious methods of operation [see Code Civ. Proc. § 731a]. However, Code Civ. Proc. § 731a does not apply to actions to abate a public nuisance brought by public authorities, or to the regulation and working hours of refineries and similar establishments whose operation produces offensive odors, or to bar a recovery for damages [McNeill v. Redington (1944) 67 Cal. App. 2d 315, 317 .

[b] Other Defenses

Other defenses that may be used in a nuisance action are the doctrine of balancing of conveniences, comparative negligence, and failure to mitigate damages. For further discussion and forms relating to these defenses, see Ch. 380, Negligence , and Ch. 391, Nuisance .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Environmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsNegligenceEnvironmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsNuisances, Trespasses & Strict LiabilityReal Property LawTortsNuisanceGeneral OverviewReal Property LawTortsNuisanceDefensesGeneral OverviewReal Property LawTortsNuisanceDefensesImmunityReal Property LawTortsNuisanceDefensesStatutory AuthorizationReal Property LawTortsNuisanceElementsReal Property LawTortsNuisanceRemediesGeneral OverviewReal Property LawTortsNuisanceRemediesDamagesGeneral OverviewReal Property LawTortsNuisanceTypesContinuing NuisanceReal Property LawTortsNuisanceTypesPermanent NuisanceReal Property LawTortsNuisanceTypesPrivate NuisanceReal Property LawTortsNuisanceTypesPublic NuisanceReal Property LawZoning & Land UseOrdinancesTortsPremises Liability & PropertyLessees & LessorsNuisance

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Common Law Environmental Tort Actions

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.61

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.61 Trespass

A complaint for damages caused by pollution may be brought under a trespass theory, which requires a wrongful interference with the plaintiff's possession of property [see MacLeod v. Fox West Coast T. Corp. (1937) 10 Cal. 2d 383, 387, 74 P.2d 276] . There is no liability for trespass unless the trespass is intentional, the result of recklessness or negligence, or the result of injuries in an extrahazardous activity [Smith v. Lockheed Propulsion Co. (1967) 247 Cal. App. 2d 774, 784, 56 Cal. Rptr. 128 ; Gallin v. Poulou (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 638, 645, 295 P.2d 958] .

For example, trespass actions will lie when pollutants are deposited on plaintiff's property [see Kornoff v. Kingsburg Cotton Oil Co. (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 265, 270-271, 288 P.2d 507 (cotton dust and lint from cotton gin damaging plaintiff's property); Roberts v. Permanente Corp. (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 526, 529, 10 Cal. Rptr. 519 (dust from operation of cement plant settling on plaintiffs' property)]. Although noise-caused vibrations that result in damage or injury to property may constitute a trespass, ordinarily noise, odor, or light intrusion alone, without damage to property, will not support a tort action for trespass but must be dealt with as a nuisance [Wilson v. Interlake Steel Co. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 229, 232-233, 185 Cal. Rptr. 280, 649 P.2d 922] .

The same distinctions exist between a continuing and permanent trespass as between a continuing and permanent nuisance [Mangini v. Aerojet-General Corp. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1125, 1136, 281 Cal. Rptr. 827 ; see § 418.60[3]]. However, there is a split of authority as to whether a prior property owner or tenant can commit trespass--for example, by deposit of hazardous wastes--actionable by a subsequent owner [compare Newhall Land & Farming Co. v. Superior Court (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 334, 346, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 377 (action against prior landowner) with Capogeannis v. Superior Court (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 668, 674, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 796 (court held that "one cannot commit an actionable interference with one's own possessory right")].

For detailed coverage and forms relating to trespass generally, see Ch. 550, Trespass . For further discussion of a cause of action for trespass in the environmental context, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 1, Nuisance, Trespass, and Strict Liability for Ultrahazardous Activities (Matthew Bender), and Environmental Law Practice Guide, Ch. 16, Common-Law Controls, § 16.03 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Environmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsNuisances, Trespasses & Strict LiabilityReal Property LawTortsTrespass to Real PropertyTortsPremises Liability & PropertyTrespassGeneral OverviewTortsPremises Liability & PropertyTrespassDefensesGeneral OverviewTortsPremises Liability & PropertyTrespassRemediesDamagesGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Common Law Environmental Tort Actions

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.62

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.62 Negligence

[1] Elements of Cause of Action

Everyone is responsible, not only for the result of his or her willful acts, but also for an injury occasioned to another by his or her want of ordinary care or skill in the management of his or her property or person, except so far as the latter has, willfully or by want of ordinary care, brought the injury on himself or herself [Civ. Code § 1714(a)]. The elements of actionable negligence which plaintiff has the burden of pleading and proving are [see Hoyem v. Manhattan Beach City Sch. Dist. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 508, 513-514, 150 Cal. Rptr. 1, 585 P.2d 851] :

- A legal duty of care owed by defendant to plaintiff or to the class of which plaintiff is a member;
- An act or omission of defendant constituting a breach of the duty owed plaintiff;
- Injury and damages to plaintiff; and
- Defendant's breach as a proximate cause of plaintiff's injury and damages.

Negligence actions may be brought to recover damages for injuries caused by polluting activities [see, e.g., Hagy v. Allied Chemical & Dye Corp. (1953) 122 Cal. App. 2d 361, 368, 265 P.2d 86 (negligent operation of chemical plant resulting in release of sulphurous fumes that aggravated plaintiff's preexisting medical condition)]. However, the mere presence of pollution on property, for example, does not establish negligence in the absence of a showing of a violation of a standard of care, or through the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur [see [2], below] or negligence per se [see [3], below].

For complete coverage and forms relating to causes of action for negligence generally, see Ch. 380, Negligence . More detailed coverage of a negligence cause of action in the environmental context can be found in California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 3, Toxic Torts and Environmental Litigation (Matthew Bender), Environmental Law Practice Guide, Ch. 16, Common-Law Controls, § 16.04 (Matthew Bender), and Guide to Toxic Torts, Ch. 3, Theories of Liability, § 3.02 (Matthew Bender).

[2] Res Ipsa Loquitur

The problem of proving causation between defendant's acts or omissions and the damage to plaintiff may be lessened by employing the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur. The doctrine is applicable when the accident is of such a nature that it can be said, in light of past experience, that the accident probably was the result of negligence by someone and that defendant is probably the one responsible [Newing v. Cheatham (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 351, 359 . The doctrine will not be applied when it is equally probable that the negligence causing the accident was that of someone other than defendant [Zentz v. Coca Cola Bottling Co. (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 436, 443, 247 P.2d 344] . For further discussion of the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur generally, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

[3] Negligence Per Se

The discharge of pollutants or other contaminants in such a manner as to violate a statute, ordinance, or regulation of a public entity, and cause injury to person or property, may be sufficient to constitute negligence per se under Evid. Code § 669. Under Evid. Code § 669(a) the failure of a person to exercise due care is presumed if:

- The person violated a statute, ordinance, or regulation of a public entity;
- The violation proximately caused death or injury to person or property;
- The death or injury resulted from an occurrence of the nature which the statute, ordinance, or regulation was designed to prevent; and
- The person suffering the death or the injury to his or her person or property was one of the class of persons for whose protection the statute, ordinance, or regulation was adopted.

The presumption of negligence under Evid. Code § 669(a) may be rebutted by proof, inter alia, that the person violating the statute, ordinance, or regulation did what might reasonably be expected of a person of ordinary prudence, acting under similar circumstances, who desired to comply with the law [Evid. Code § 669(b)(1)].

For further discussion of negligence per se generally, see Ch. 380, Negligence . For further coverage of this cause of action in the environmental context, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 3, Toxic Torts and Environmental Litigation (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Environmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsNegligenceTortsNegligenceActionsGeneral OverviewTortsNegligenceDutyAffirmative Duty to ActFailure to ActTortsNegligenceProofViolations of LawGeneral OverviewTortsNegligenceProofViolations of LawOrdinancesTortsNegligenceProofViolations of LawStatutesTortsNegligenceStandards of CareReasonable CareReasonable Person

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Common Law Environmental Tort Actions

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.63

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.63 Ultrahazardous Activity

If plaintiff can show that the polluting activity of defendant is so dangerous and uncommon as to be ultrahazardous, strict liability is imposed. An activity is ultrahazardous if it (1) necessarily involves a risk of serious harm to the person, land, or chattels of others that cannot be eliminated by the exercise of the utmost care, and (2) is not a matter of common usage. Whether an activity is ultrahazardous is a question of law to be determined by the court [Luthringer v. Moore (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 489, 496, 190 P.2d 1] . The rationale for the imposition of strict liability is that the allocation of a more or less inevitable loss is charged to the party best able to shoulder it, such as a defendant who is engaged in an enterprise for profit [Smith v. Lockheed Propulsion Co. (1967) 247 Cal. App. 2d 774, 785, 56 Cal. Rptr. 128] . Plaintiff's assumption of risk may operate as a complete or partial bar to recovery in a strict liability action [Lipson v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 362, 375, 182 Cal. Rptr. 629, 644 P.2d 822 ; Luthringer v. Moore (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 489, 499, 190 P.2d 1] .

Activities that have found to be ultrahazardous include:

- Fumigation with a poisonous gas [Luthringer v. Moore (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 489, 500, 190 P.2d 1] ;

- Oil drilling in a field where the gas pressure is tremendously high [Green v. General Petroleum Corp. (1928) 205 Cal. 328, 334, 270 P. 952] ; and

- The storage and maintenance of toxic chemicals on a business premises [Lipson v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 362, 377, 182 Cal. Rptr. 629, 644 P.2d 822] .

The Supreme Court in Lipson did not decide if the manufacturing of toxic chemicals by the defendant amounted to an ultrahazardous activity [Lipson v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 362, 377 n.11, 182 Cal. Rptr. 629, 644 P.2d 822] .

For further discussion of abnormally dangerous activities, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 1, Nuisance, Trespass, and Strict Liability for Ultrahazardous Activities (Matthew Bender), Environmental Law Practice Guide, Ch. 16, Common-Law Controls, § 16.04 (Matthew Bender), and Guide to Toxic Torts, Ch. 3, Theories of Liability, § 3.07 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Environmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsToxic TortsReal Property LawTortsInherently Dangerous ActivitiesTortsStrict LiabilityAbnormally Dangerous ActivitiesGeneral OverviewTortsStrict LiabilityAbnormally Dangerous ActivitiesDefensesTortsStrict LiabilityAbnormally Dangerous ActivitiesDeterminations

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Common Law Environmental Tort Actions

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.64

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.64 Inverse Condemnation

Damages to private property caused by the polluting acts of public entities may, in appropriate circumstances, be recovered under the theory of inverse condemnation. Private property may not be damaged or taken for public use without just compensation [Cal. Const., art. I, § 19; see U.S. Const. amend. V]. In such a case, the private property owner may recover just compensation for the value of the property taken by the public entity by bringing an action for inverse condemnation [Griggs v. Allegheny County (1962) 369 U.S. 84, 88, 82 S. Ct. 531, 7 L. Ed. 2d 585 ; United States v. Causby (1946) 328 U.S. 256, 261-262, 66 S. Ct. 1062, 90 L. Ed. 1206] . If plaintiff can establish that his or her property has suffered a direct and peculiar and substantial burden as a result of the government action, and that he or she has been in effect singled out to suffer the detrimental environmental effects of the enterprise, then the policy favoring distribution of the resulting loss of market value is strong and the likelihood that compensation will impede necessary public construction is relatively slight [Varjabedian v. City of Madera (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 285, 298, 142 Cal. Rptr. 429, 572 P.2d 43 (noxious odors from municipal sewage treatment plant blown directly onto plaintiff's farm); see Richards v. Washington Terminal Co. (1914) 233 U.S. 546, 551, 557, 34 S. Ct. 654, 58 L. Ed. 1088 (no taking under 5th amendment when gas and smoke from railway tunnel fanned onto plaintiff's property)].

As distinct from tort causes of action, no claim is required to be filed under the California Tort Claims Act [Gov. Code § 810 et seq.] to maintain an action against a public entity for a taking of, or damage to, private property in the exercise of the eminent domain power under Cal. Const., art. I, § 19. For a discussion of the requirements of the California Tort Claims Act, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act .

For further discussion and forms of complaints and affirmative defenses for use in inverse condemnation actions, see Ch. 247, Eminent Domain . Detailed coverage of inverse condemnation actions can also be found in California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 65, Takings and Other Constitutional Controls (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Environmental LawZoning & Land UseConstitutional LimitsGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsClaims By & AgainstReal Property LawInverse CondemnationGeneral OverviewReal Property LawInverse CondemnationConstitutional ViolationsReal Property LawInverse CondemnationDefensesReal Property LawInverse CondemnationRemediesTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityClaim PresentationGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Common Law Environmental Tort Actions

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.65

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.65 Remedies

[1] Injunctive Relief

Injunction is an equitable remedy that may be used to abate a nuisance or trespass or violation of an environmental statute when an action at law would not suffice. The person seeking an injunction must also show that the threatened injury would be irreparable [Harmon v. DeTurk (1917) 176 Cal. 758, 762, 169 P. 680 ; Uptown Enterprises v. Strand (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 45, 52, 15 Cal. Rptr. 486] . For further discussion and forms relating to injunctive relief generally, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[2] Property and Other Damages

Damages for the diminution in value of plaintiff's property caused by any of the common law torts may be recovered [Alphonzo E. Bell Corp. v. Listle (1946) 74 Cal. App. 2d 638, 650, 169 P.2d 462] . In general, the damages for injury to property are the lesser of the cost to abate or repair the injury or the permanent devaluation of the property [see Raven's Cove Townhomes, Inc. v. Knuppe Development Co. (1981) 114 Cal. App. 3d 783, 802, 171 Cal. Rptr. 334 ; Mozzetti v. City of Brisbane (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 565, 136 Cal. Rptr. 751] . Lost profits may also be recovered under some causes of action [Natural Soda Prod. Co. v. Los Angeles (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 193, 199, 143 P.2d 12] . Nominal damages only may be obtained in the case of a trespass without injury [Cornell v. Sennes (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 126, 136, 95 Cal. Rptr. 728] . Exemplary and punitive damages are also available for intentional torts when defendant is guilty of oppression, fraud, or malice [see Civ. Code § 3294(a)].

[3] Damages for Mental Suffering

Mental distress may provide an additional element of damages when it results from the commission of an intentional or negligent tort [see Capelouto v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 889, 892, 103 Cal. Rptr. 856, 500 P.2d 880] . The injured party may recover for all detriment proximately caused by the tort whether it could have been anticipated or not [Civ. Code § 3333; Gruenberg v. Aetna Ins. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 566, 579, 108 Cal. Rptr. 480, 510

P.2d 1032] . California also allows recovery for negligent infliction of emotional distress when the sole damage is mental suffering, without requiring that the mental distress result directly from, or manifest itself in, physical injury [Molien v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 916, 930-931, 167 Cal. Rptr. 831, 616 P.2d 813] .

Under nuisance or trespass theories, damages for mental distress may be awarded when the tortious conduct is an interference with property rights without any personal injuries apart from the mental distress [Gruenberg v. Aetna Ins. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 566, 579, 108 Cal. Rptr. 480, 510 P.2d 1032] . Thus, the plaintiff may recover damages for the discomfort, inconvenience, and annoyance proximately caused by an invasion of a protectible interest in real property [Acadia California, Ltd. v. Herbert (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 328, 337, 5 Cal. Rptr. 686, 353 P.2d 294 ; Kornoff v. Kingsburg Cotton Oil Co. (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 265, 272-273, 288 P.2d 507] .

A plaintiff in a negligence or nuisance action may not recover damages for fear of cancer or fear of other serious physical illness or injury following exposure to a carcinogen or other toxic substances unless the plaintiff proves either (1) that the fear stems from knowledge, corroborated by reliable medical and scientific opinion, that it is "more likely than not" that the feared cancer will develop in the future due to the toxic exposure [Potter v. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 965, 974, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 550, 863 P.2d 795] , or (2) that the defendant's conduct in causing the exposure amounted to "oppression, fraud, or malice" as defined in Civ. Code § 3294. In the latter instance, the plaintiff must also show that his or her fear of cancer stems from a knowledge, corroborated by reliable medical or scientific opinion, that the toxic exposure caused by the defendant's breach of duty has significantly increased the plaintiff's actual risk of cancer [Potter v. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 965, 999-1000, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 550, 863 P.2d 795] .

For further discussion and forms relating to causes of action for infliction of mental distress and to damages for mental suffering generally, see Ch. 362, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress , and California Environmen TAL LAW AND LAND USE PRACTICE, Ch. 3, Toxic Torts and Environmental Litigation (Matthew Bender).

[4] Medical Monitoring Costs

Expenditures for prospective medical testing and evaluation that would have been unnecessary if the particular plaintiff had not been wrongfully exposed to pollutants are a recoverable item of damages in a toxic exposure action [Potter v. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 965, 1005, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 550, 863 P.2d 795 ; see Civ. Code § 3333; Miranda v. Shell Oil Co. (1993) 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 569] . To recover medical monitoring costs, the plaintiff must show, through reliable expert testimony, that the need for monitoring is a reasonably certain consequence of an exposure to toxic chemicals, and that the recommended monitoring is reasonable [Potter v. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 965, 1009, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 550, 863 P.2d 795] . For further discussion of medical monitoring costs, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 3, Toxic Torts and Environmental Litigation (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsElementsGeneral OverviewReal Property LawTortsNuisanceRemediesDamagesGeneral OverviewReal Property LawTortsNuisanceRemediesInjunctionsGeneral OverviewTortsDamagesGeneral OverviewTortsDamagesCompensatory DamagesMedical ExpensesTortsPremises Liability & PropertyTrespassRemediesGeneral OverviewTortsPremises Liability & PropertyTrespassRemediesDamagesGeneral OverviewTortsPremises Liability & PropertyTrespassRemediesDamagesAward CalculationsTortsPremises Liability & PropertyTrespassRemediesInjunctions

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Common Law Environmental Tort Actions

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 418.66-418.79

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

[Reserved]

§§ 418.66[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Recovery of the Costs of Cleanup

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.80

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.80 Prohibitions on Discharges

California law prohibits discharges of wastes, hazardous substances, or petroleum products into the waters of the state. For example, Health & Safety Code § 5411 prohibits the discharge of "sewage or other waste ... in any manner which will result in contamination, pollution, or a nuisance." The statute defines "waste" to include "any and all other waste substances, liquid, solid, gaseous, or radioactive ... from any producing, manufacturing, or processing operation of whatever nature" [Health & Safety Code § 5410(a)]. Health & Safety Code § 5410(e) and (f) broadly defines "pollution" and "nuisance." Water Code § 13350(a)(3) and Fish & Game Code § 5650 create liability for or make unlawful the deposit of "any residuary product of petroleum" into the waters of the state, except in accordance with waste discharge requirements or other federal or state permits. Proposition 65 [see § 418.50] also prohibits discharges of certain chemicals into sources of drinking water.

In 1983, California enacted the Sher Bill in part "to establish orderly procedures that will ensure that ... existing [underground storage] tanks be properly maintained, inspected, tested, and upgraded so that the health, property, and resources of the people of the state will be protected" [Health & Safety Code § 25280(b)]. The Sher Bill set requirements for the maintenance, reporting of releases, and closure of underground storage tanks.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Environmental LawHazardous Wastes & Toxic SubstancesUnderground Storage TanksEnvironmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsNuisances, Trespasses & Strict LiabilityEnvironmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsToxic Torts

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Recovery of the Costs of Cleanup

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.81

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.81 Reporting and Disclosure Requirements

Under *Water Code § 13260(a)(1), "[a]*ny person discharging waste ... within any region that could affect the quality of waters of the state, other than into a community sewer system," must report the discharge to the Regional Water Quality Control Board. Water Code § 13272(a) provides that "any person who, without regard to intent or negligence, causes or permits any oil or petroleum product to be discharged in or on any waters of the state, or discharged or deposited where it is, or probably will be, discharged in or on any waters of the state, shall, as soon as (1) such person has knowledge of the discharge, (2) notification is possible, and (3) notification can be provided without substantially impeding cleanup or other emergency measures, immediately notify the Office of Emergency Services of the discharge in accordance with the spill reporting provision of the California oil spill contingency plan." Also, Civ. Code § 1102.6, the Real Estate Transfer Disclosure Statement, requires the seller to disclose to the buyer whether the seller is aware of any "[s]ubstances, materials, or products which may be an environmental hazard such as ... contaminated soil or water on the subject property" [Civ. Code § 1102.6(a)(II)(C)(1)].

Health & Safety Code § 25359.7(a) provides that "[a]ny owner of nonresidential real property who knows, or has reasonable cause to believe, that any release of hazardous substance has come to be located on or beneath that real property shall, prior to the sale, lease, or rental of the real property by that owner, give written notice of that condition to the buyer, lessee, or renter of the real property."

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Environmental LawHazardous Wastes & Toxic SubstancesCERCLA & SuperfundRecordkeeping & ReportingEnvironmental LawHazardous Wastes & Toxic SubstancesEmergency Planning & Community Right to KnowEnvironmental LawWater QualityClean Water ActRecordkeeping & ReportingReal Property LawEnvironmental RegulationGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Recovery of the Costs of Cleanup

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.82

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.82 Recovery of Response Costs

[1] Under Hazardous Substance Account Act

California has state counterparts to many of the liability provisions of the federal "Superfund" statute, the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act (CERCLA) [42 U.S.C. § 9601 et seq.]. Thus, the Carpenter-Presley-Tanner Hazardous Substance Account Act (HSAA) authorizes actions for the recovery of the costs of cleaning up contamination. Health & Safety Code § 25363(e) provides that "[a]ny person who has incurred removal or remedial action costs in accordance with this chapter or [CERCLA] may seek contribution or indemnity from any person who is liable pursuant to this chapter. ... "

In addition, in 1999, the Legislature created the Orphan Share Reimbursement Trust Fund within the HSAA [Health & Safety Code §§ 25390-25390.9]. When the Fund becomes operative, a potentially responsible party may, under certain circumstances, file a claim for reimbursement of any part of an orphan share that party has paid [Health & Safety Code §§ 25390.4, 25390.7]. "Orphan share" is defined as "the share of liability for cleanup costs that is attributable to persons who are 'defunct or insolvent' " [Health & Safety Code § 25390(b)]. The article creating the program does not become operative until the operative date of a statute that either appropriates the necessary money to the Fund or establishes a revenue source for the Fund, or both [Health & Safety Code § 25390.9].

[2] Under Water Quality Control Act

The Porter-Cologne Water Quality Control Act authorizes the Regional Water Quality Control Boards to "perform any cleanup, abatement, or remedial work" that "is required by the magnitude of endeavor or urgency of prompt action needed to prevent substantial pollution, nuisance, or injury to any waters of the state" [Water Code § 13304(b)(1)]. The Regional Boards are authorized to enlist the aid of "any other governmental agency" in the cleanup [Water Code § 13304(b)(2)], and a governmental agency may bring a civil action against "the person or persons who discharged the waste, discharges the waste, or threatened to cause or permit the discharge of the waste" to recover "the reasonable costs actually incurred in cleaning up the waste, abating the effects of the waste, supervising cleanup or abatement activities, or taking other remedial action" [Water Code § 13304(c)(1)]. For a further discussion of the Porter-Cologne Water Quality Control Act, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 31, Water Quality Control Planning, Regulation, and Enforcement (Matthew Bender).

[3] For Expenses Incurred During Emergency

Health & Safety Code § 13009.6(a)(1) provides that "[t]hose expenses of an emergency response necessary to protect the public from a real and imminent threat to health and safety by a public agency to confine, prevent, or mitigate the release, escape, or burning of hazardous substances described in subdivision (c) [of this section] are a charge against any person whose negligence causes the incident" if either "[e]vacuation beyond the property where the incident originates is necessary to prevent loss of life or injury" or "[t]he incident results in the spread of hazardous substances or fire posing a real and imminent threat to public health and safety beyond the property of origin." A public agency involved in the emergency response may recover its expenses from the person liable under Health & Safety Code § 13009.6(a)(1) [Health & Safety Code § 13009.6(a)(2), (5)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Environmental LawHazardous Wastes & Toxic SubstancesCERCLA & SuperfundGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawHazardous Wastes & Toxic SubstancesCERCLA & SuperfundEnforcementAbatementEnvironmental LawHazardous Wastes & Toxic SubstancesCERCLA & SuperfundEnforcementCleanup CostsEnvironmental LawHazardous Wastes & Toxic SubstancesCERCLA & SuperfundEnforcementContribution ActionsOrphan SharesEnvironmental LawHazardous Wastes & Toxic SubstancesCERCLA & SuperfundHazardous Substance SuperfundEnvironmental LawHazardous Wastes & Toxic SubstancesCleanupEnvironmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsToxic Torts

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Recovery of the Costs of Cleanup

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 418.83-418.89

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

[Reserved]

§§ 418.83[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
F. Other State and Federal Environmental Laws

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.90

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.90 National Environmental Policy Act

The National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) [42 U.S.C. § 4321 et seq.] establishes procedures for the environmental review of projects similar to that required by the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) [Pub. Res. Code § 21000 et seq.; see §§ 418.30 -418.37 for coverage of CEQA]. Regulations adopted by the federal Council of Environmental Quality (CEQ) implementing NEPA are set forth at 40 C.F.R. § 1500 et seq. NEPA applies to all "major federal actions significantly affecting the quality of the human environment" [42 U.S.C. § 4332]. For these actions, it requires the agency to prepare an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS), which evaluates the environmental impacts of the action and alternatives and mitigation measures. Actions which do not significantly affect the environment may be the subject of the agency's Finding of No Significant Effect or "FONSI" [40 C.F.R. § 1501.4(e)(2)]. For projects subject to both federal and state agency action, joint documentation complying with both NEPA and CEQA may be prepared, and CEQA contains procedures for this [Pub. Res. Code §§ 21083.5, 21083.6, 21083.7; 14 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 15221, 15222, 15224 (implementing regulations)].

For detailed coverage of NEPA, see Treatise on Environmental Law (Matthew Bender) and Environmental Law Practice Guide, State and Federal Law (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Environmental LawNational Environmental Policy ActGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawNational Environmental Policy ActEnvironmental AssessmentsEnvironmental LawNational Environmental Policy ActEnvironmental Impact StatementsGovernmentsFederal GovernmentClaims By & Against

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
F. Other State and Federal Environmental Laws

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.91

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.91 Air Pollution

[1] California Emission Standards

California regulates the emission of air pollutants through a network of agencies operating on a local, regional, and statewide level. Air resources are generally regulated and protected by Health & Safety Code § 39000 et seq. Basic general limitations on such emissions, however, are set forth in Health & Safety Code § 41700. Health & Safety Code § 41700 prohibits discharges of air contaminants or other material that:

- Cause injury, detriment, nuisance, or annoyance to any considerable number of persons or to the public;
- Endanger the comfort, repose, health, or safety of any such persons or the public; or
- Cause, or have a natural tendency to cause, injury or damage to business or property.

Additionally, the discharge into the atmosphere of smoke or other opaque air contaminants (as defined), for more than three minutes in any one hour is prohibited [Health & Safety Code § 41701]. However, Health & Safety Code §§ 41700 and 41701 do not apply to odors emanating from agricultural operations necessary for the growing of crops or the raising of fowl or animals [Health & Safety Code §§ 41704(g), 41705]. In addition, Health & Safety Code § 41700 does not apply to odors emanating from composting operations [Health & Safety Code § 41705(a)(2), (3) (inoperative on April 1, 2003, unless California Integrated Waste Management Board adopts and submits regulations governing operation of organic composting sites to Office of Administrative Law on or before that date)]. Further exemptions to Health & Safety Code § 41701 are listed in Health & Safety Code § 41704.

For specific provisions dealing with lead compound emissions from nonvehicular sources, portable internal combustion engines, agricultural and nonagricultural burning, sandblasting, gasoline vapor control, gasoline cargo tanks, and incineration of toxic waste materials, see Health & Safety Code §§ 41706-41983.

In 2006, the California Legislature passed landmark legislation relating to greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions. The California Global Warming Solutions Act of 2006 [2006 Stats., ch. 488 (AB 32); Health & Safety Code § 38500 et seq.] establishes the first comprehensive GHG regulatory program in the United States. The legislation defines "greenhouse gas" as including carbon dioxide, methane, nitrous oxide, hydrofluorocarbons, and other gases [see Health & Safety Code § 38505(g)]. The legislation requires California's GHG emissions to be reduced to 1990 levels by 2020 [Health & Safety Code § 38550]. The method for achieving this reduction is through an enforceable statewide cap on GHG emissions, which is planned to be phased in beginning 2012 [see Health & Safety Code § 38562(a)]. The legislation also sets out steps in furtherance of the 2020 goal, and charges the state Air Resources Board (ARB) with responsibility for monitoring and regulating sources of GHG emissions that cause global warming [see Health & Safety Code § 38510]. On October 16, 2006, Governor Schwarzenneger announced an Executive Order to begin implementation of the Act. The Order gives a leading role to the Secretary of Environmental Protection rather than the ARB in implementing the Act, and promotes a market-based compliance program [see http://gov.ca.gov/index.php?/press-release/4447/ for text of order].

For detailed coverage of California's emission standards, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 41, Stationary and Other Nonvehicular Sources of Pollution , and Ch. 42, Federal and State Regulation of Motor Vehicles (Matthew Bender). For coverage of greenhouse gas reduction and other climate change issues, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 85, Climate Change (Matthew Bender).

[2] State Air Resources Board--State Implementation Plan

The State Air Resources Board is the designated air pollution control agency for all purposes set forth in federal law [see Health & Safety Code § 39510], and is responsible for the preparation of the state implementation plan ("SIP") required by the Clean Air Act [42 U.S.C. § 7401 et seq.]. To this end, the board coordinates the activities of all districts necessary to comply with that Act [Health & Safety Code § 39602]. Notwithstanding any other provision of Health & Safety Code § 39000 et seq. (division dealing with air resources), the state implementation plan is only able to include those provisions necessary to meet the requirements of the federal Clean Air Act [Health & Safety Code § 39602]. For detailed coverage of the State Air Resources Board, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 40, Federal Requirements and the Goals and Structure of California's Air Regulatory Program (Matthew Bender).

For a discussion of the preparation of plans to attain state ambient air quality standards, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 41, Stationary and Other Nonvehicular Sources of Pollution (Matthew Bender).

[3] Pollution Control Districts

Local and regional air pollution control districts have the primary responsibility for the control of air pollution in California from all sources except the emissions from motor vehicles [Health & Safety Code § 40000]. These districts are the county air pollution control districts [see Health & Safety Code § 40100 et seq.], the unified air pollution control districts [see Health & Safety Code § 40150 et seq.], the Bay Area Air Quality Management District [see Health & Safety Code § 40200 et seq.], the regional air pollution control districts [see Health & Safety Code § 40300 et seq.], and the South Coast Air Quality Management District [see Health & Safety Code § 40400 et seq.].

[4] Federal Clean Air Act

Under the federal Clean Air Act [42 U.S.C. § 7401 et seq.] each state has the primary responsibility for assuring air quality within its boundaries by submitting an implementation plan which will specify the manner in which national primary and secondary ambient air quality standards will be achieved and maintained within each air quality control region in the state [42 U.S.C. § 7407(a); see § 418.91[2] (state implementation plan)]. The air quality control regions are designated by the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), and by the governor of the state with the approval of the administrator [42 U.S.C. § 7407(c), (e)].

The federal Clean Air Act also provides standards for emissions from cars and engines [see 42 U.S.C. § 7521 et seq.; 40 C.F.R. pts. 85, 86]. The Act preempts state control in the field, although EPA may waive application of the preemptive provision in a state with equally strict or stricter standards [see 42 U.S.C. § 7543(a), (b)]. There has been such a waiver with respect to California [see 40 C.F.R. § 52.220 et seq.; 13 Cal. Code Reg. § 1900 et seq.]. For a further discussion of the federal Clean Air Act, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 40, Federal Requirements and the Goals and Structure of California's Air Regulatory Program (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Environmental LawAir QualityGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawAir QualityEmission StandardsMobile SourcesEnvironmental LawAir QualityEmission StandardsStationary SourcesGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawAir QualityNational Ambient Air Quality StandardsEnvironmental LawAir QualityState Implementation PlansTransportation LawCommercial VehiclesEmission Control

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
F. Other State and Federal Environmental Laws

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.92

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.92 Water Pollution

[1] California's Porter-Cologne Water Quality Control Act

[a] Purpose of Act

The basic legislation controlling water pollution in California is the Porter-Cologne Water Quality Control Act [Water Code § 13000 et seq.]. The Act seeks to attain the highest water quality which is reasonable by regulating activities and factors which may affect the water quality [see Water Code § 13000].

[b] Authority of State Water Resources Control Board

[i] Formulation and Adoption of State Policies

The State Water Resources Control Board (State Board) is charged with formulation and adoption of state policy for water quality control [Water Code § 13140]. It is also designated as the state water pollution control agency for all purposes stated in the Federal Water Pollution Control Act [33 U.S.C. § 1251 et seq.] and any other federal act [Water Code § 13160]. State policies are to consist of water quality principles and guidelines for long range resource planning, water quality objectives at key locations for planning and operation of water resource development projects and for water quality control activities, and any other principles and guidelines deemed essential by the state board for water quality control [Water Code § 13142]. Water Code § 13142.5 establishes guidelines for state policy with regard to water quality as it relates to the coastal marine environment, and the State Board is required to adopt a water quality control plan for ocean waters [Water Code § 13170.2(a)]. A public hearing must be held before state policy for water quality control is adopted by the State Board [Water Code § 13147].

[ii] Regulatory Responsibilities

The State Board also has regulatory responsibility for the siting, operation, and closure of waste disposal sites. Except for sewage treatment plants or those sites which primarily contain fertilizer or radioactive material, the State Board [Water Code § 13172]:

- Classifies wastes according to the risk of impairment to water quality;

- Classifies the types of disposal sites according to the level of protection provided for water quality; and

- Adopts standards and regulations to implement Water Code §§ 13226 and 13227 (relating to review and classification of waste disposal sites and review of facility closure and postclosure plans).

In addition, the State Board adopts standards and regulations that apply and ensure compliance with the federal Resource Conservation and Recovery Act of 1976 (RCRA) [42 U.S.C. § 6901 et seq.], and any more stringent requirements necessary to implement Water Code § 13000 et seq. (water quality) and Health & Safety Code § 25208 et seq. (surface impoundments). For discussion of federal hazardous waste disposal law, see § 418.94.

The State Board also establishes general procedures for the adoption and implementation by regional boards of water quality control plans [Water Code § 13164; see [c], below]. Approval by the State Board is required before any plan becomes effective [Water Code § 13245]. For further discussion of the State Water Resources Control Board, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 30, Agencies Regulating Water Quality (Matthew Bender).

[c] Authority of Regional Boards

[i] Adoption of Plans and Guidelines

For the purpose of administering the Porter-Cologne Act, a regional water quality control board was established for each of nine regions of the state to formulate and adopt a water quality plan for all areas within the region [Water Code §§ 13220, 13201, 13240]. The plan is required to comply with state policy formulated by the State Board [Water Code § 13240]. It must include such water quality objectives as will insure the reasonable protection of beneficial uses and the prevention of nuisance [Water Code § 13241]. In addition, each regional board may adopt guidelines, which do not become effective unless and until approved by the State Board [Water Code § 13245.5]. The requirements for the program of implementation to achieve water quality objectives are stated in Water Code § 13242. A public hearing must be held before the adoption of any plan [Water Code § 13244].

[ii] Waste Discharge Requirements

The regional boards prescribe waste discharge requirements regarding any proposed discharge, or change in the nature of a discharge, except discharges into a community sewer system [see Water Code § 13263(a)]. Waste includes sewage and any and all other waste substances, liquid, solid, gaseous, or radioactive, associated with human habitation, or of human or animal origin, or from any producing manufacturing, or processing operation, including waste placed within containers of whatever nature for disposal purposes [Water Code § 13050(d)]. Any person discharging or proposing to discharge waste within any region that could affect the quality of the state's waters, other than into a community sewage system, must file a report of the discharge with the regional board [Water Code § 13260(a)(1)].

[iii] Issuance of Cease and Desist and Other Orders

A regional board may issue a cease and desist order when the board finds that a discharge of waste is taking place or threatening to take place in violation of requirements or discharge prohibitions prescribed or issued by a regional board or the State Board [Water Code § 13301]. The regional board may order a violator to clean up the waste discharge or abate the effects of the discharge, or the state may take remedial action and charge the violator for the reasonable cleanup costs [see Water Code § 13304(a)]. If the regional board determines there is a threatened or continuing violation of any cleanup or abatement order, cease and desist order, or any order issued under Water Code §§ 13267 or 13383, the regional board may issue an order establishing a time schedule and prescribing a civil penalty that becomes due if compliance is not achieved in accordance with that time schedule [Water Code § 13308(a)].

[iv] Pollution Prevention Plans

The State Water Board, a regional board, or a publicly-owned treatment works (POTWs) may require a discharger to complete and implement a pollution prevention plan if the discharger is determined by the State Board to be a chronic violator of water quality requirements and (1) the State Board, regional board, or POTW determines that pollution prevention could assist in achieving compliance; (2) the discharger significantly contributes, or has the potential to significantly contribute, to the creation of a toxic hot spot [Water Code § 13391.5]; (3) the State Board, regional board, or POTW determines that pollution prevention is necessary to achieve a water quality objective [Water Code § 13263.3(d)]; or (4) the discharger is subject to a cease and desist order [Water Code § 13301] or a time schedule order [Water Code §§ 13300, 13308; see [iii], above (Issuance of Cease and Desist and Other Orders)]. A discharger who fails to complete a pollution prevention plan, submits a plan that does not comply with statutory requirements, or does not implement the plan, is subject to civil liability [Water Code § 13263.3(g), (h)].

[2] Federal Water Pollution Control Act

The Federal Water Pollution Control Act [33 U.S.C. § 1251 et seq.] is administered by the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). The objective of the Act is to restore and maintain the chemical, physical, and biological integrity of the nation's waters [33 U.S.C. § 1251(a)]. The scheme of the Act allows the states to adopt water quality standards for both interstate and intrastate waters which must be filed with and approved by the Administrator [see 33 U.S.C. § 1313(a)]. If the state does not adopt adequate standards, the Administrator will do so [see 33 U.S.C. § 1313(a)(3)(C)]. The Administrator, after consultation with appropriate federal and state agencies and other interested persons, develops and publishes criteria for water quality and other information and guidelines relating to water pollution [see 33 U.S.C. § 1314(a)(1)].

The Act also establishes the National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (NPDES), which requires that anyone discharging pollutants into navigable waters obtain an NPDES permit, which establishes limits for discharges for particular pollutants [33 U.S.C. § 1342]. In California, the EPA has delegated responsibility to administer the NPDES permit system to the State Water Resources Control Board and the Regional Water Quality Control Boards [see 40 C.F.R. § 123.24]. For discussion of California's implementation of the NPDES program, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 31, Water Quality Control Planning, Regulation, and Enforcement (Matthew Bender).

[3] Pollution From Oil or Hazardous Substances

Section 1321 of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act [33 U.S.C. § 1251 et seq.] deals specifically with discharges of oil or hazardous substances into or on the navigable water of the United States, adjoining shorelines, or into or on the waters of the contiguous zone, or in connection with activities under the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act [43 U.S.C. § 1331 et seq.], or the Deepwater Port Act of 1974 [33 U.S.C. § 1501 et seq.], or which may affect natural resources of the United States [33 U.S.C. § 1321(b)(1)]. Discharge of oil or hazardous substances in those areas in quantities determined by the President to be harmful is in most cases prohibited [see 33 U.S.C. § 1321(b)(3)]. A person in charge of a vessel or of an onshore facility or an offshore facility must report any discharge of oil or hazardous substances from the vessel or facility which violates the Act to the appropriate agency of the United States government. Failure to report subjects the person to a fine and imprisonment, or both [see 33 U.S.C. § 1321(b)(5)]. The Act also provides for the assessment of civil penalties for unlawful discharges of oil or hazardous substances [33 U.S.C. § 1321(b)(6)(A)]. The President is authorized to undertake cleanup of the oil or hazardous substance [33 U.S.C. § 1321(c)(1)] and the owner or operator responsible for the discharge may be liable for the amount of the cleanup costs [see 33 U.S.C. § 1321(f)].

[4] Marine Protection, Research, and Sanctuaries Act

The Marine Protection, Research, and Sanctuaries Act of 1972 [16 U.S.C. § 1431 et seq.; 33 U.S.C. § 1401 et seq.] regulates the dumping of all types of material into ocean waters. The Act declares it to be United States policy to prevent or strictly limit the dumping into ocean waters of any material that would adversely affect human health, welfare, or amenities, or the marine environment, ecological systems, or economic potentialities [see 33 U.S.C. § 1401]. Violators of the Act are liable for civil and criminal penalties, and the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency may request the Attorney General to bring an action for appropriate relief [see 33 U.S.C. § 1415(a)-(c)]. The Attorney General may also bring an action for injunctive relief [33 U.S.C. § 1415(d)].

[5] Other Related Federal Legislation

[a] Fish and Wildlife Coordination Act

The Fish and Wildlife Coordination Act [16 U.S.C. § 661 et seq.] establishes a national policy recognizing the vital contribution of wildlife resources to the nation and providing that wildlife conservation receive equal consideration and be coordinated with other features of water-resource development programs [see 16 U.S.C. § 661].

[b] Coastal Zone Management Act

The Coastal Zone Management Act of 1972 [16 U.S.C. § 1451 et seq.] encourages the states to develop, in cooperation with federal and local government, programs for more effective protection and use of the land and water resources of the coastal zone [see 16 U.S.C. § 1452(2)-(4)]. The Act provides for partial matching of federal funds to states for development and administration of these coastal zone management programs [see 16 U.S.C. §§ 1454-1455a]. California's federally-approved Coastal Zone Management Program is administered by the State Coastal Commission under the authority of the California Coastal Act of 1976 [Pub. Res. Code § 30000 et seq.]. For detailed coverage of the California Coastal and the federal Coastal Zone Management Act, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 66, Coastal Zone Regulation (Matthew Bender). For general coverage of the federal Coastal Zone Management Act, see Environmental Law Practice Guide, Ch. 23, Oceans and Coasts (Matthew Bender).

[c] Safe Drinking Water Act

The Safe Drinking Water Act [42 U.S.C. § 300f et seq.] requires the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to establish mandatory drinking water standards for public water supplies, for both bacterial and chemical contaminants, and to regulate underground injection of wastes to protect groundwater quality. The states have the primary enforcement responsibility for public water systems and underground injection control programs [42 U.S.C. §§ 300g-1, 300h-1]. If a state fails to adequately enforce the national standards, however, the Administrator of the EPA may commence a civil action in the appropriate federal district court to require compliance [see 42 U.S.C. §§ 300g-3, 300h-2]. In addition, any person may commence a civil action against any person (including the United States) who is alleged to be in violation of the Act or against the Administrator when the plaintiff alleges that the Administrator failed to perform any nondiscretionary act or duty under the Act [see 42 U.S.C. § 300j-8(a), (b)].

For a further discussion of the Safe Drinking Water Act, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 50, Administration of Hazardous Waste Laws: Federal /State Interrelationship (Matthew Bender), Environmental Law Practice Guide, Ch. 20, Safe Drinking Water Act (Matthew Bender), and The Law of Hazardous Waste, Ch. 15, Non-CERCLA Statutory Liability for Environmental Contamination (Matthew Bender).

[d] Refuse Act of 1899

The Refuse Act of 1899 [33 U.S.C. § 407] prohibits the discharge into any navigable water of the United States of any refuse matter other than that flowing in a liquid state from streets and sewers. The Act also prohibits placing material on the bank of any navigable water where it is liable to be washed into the water and impede or obstruct navigation [33

U.S.C. § 407].

[e] Submerged Lands Act

The Submerged Lands Act [43 U.S.C. § 1301 et seq.] declares that title and ownership of the lands beneath navigable waters within the boundaries of each state, and the natural resources within those lands and waters, and the right and power to manage, administer, lease, develop, and use these resources, is vested in each of the states in which the land is located, and their respective grantees, lessees, or successors in interest [see 43 U.S.C. § 1311(a)].

[f] Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act

The Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act [43 U.S.C. § 1331 et seq.] defines the "Outer Continental Shelf" as all submerged lands lying seaward and outside of the area of lands beneath navigable waters, and of which the subsoil and seabed appertain to the United States and are subject to its jurisdiction and control [43 U.S.C. § 1331(a)]. The Secretary of the Interior administers the provisions of the Act relating to the leasing of the outer Continental Shelf and is authorized to prescribe and amend rules and regulations that are necessary and proper for the prevention of waste and conservation of natural resources of the area [43 U.S.C. § 1334(a)]. The Secretary is required to conduct environmental studies of any area or region included in any oil and gas lease sale to assess the impact of oil and gas development on the human, marine, and coastal environments [see 43 U.S.C. § 1346].

For a general discussion of laws relating to the outer continental shelf, see Treatise on Environmental Law, Ch. 12, Public Lands and Conservation (Matthew Bender).

[g] International Agreement for Prevention of Pollution From Ships

The 1973 International Convention for the Prevention of Pollution from Ships, as modified by the MARPOL Protocol of 1978, is implemented in the United States by 33 U.S.C. § 1901 et seq. These statutes generally apply to ships of United States registry or nationality, except government vessels in noncommercial service, and to other ships within the navigable waters of the United States [33 U.S.C. § 1902(a), (b)]. Both criminal and civil penalties may be imposed for violations of the MARPOL Protocol [33 U.S.C. §§ 1907, 1908].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Environmental LawWater QualityClean Water ActGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawWater QualityClean Water ActCoverage & DefinitionsGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawWater QualityClean Water ActCoverage & DefinitionsNavigable WatersEnvironmental LawWater QualityClean Water ActEnforcementGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawWater QualityClean Water ActEnforcementCivil PenaltiesEnvironmental LawWater QualityClean Water ActEnforcementGovernment Civil ActionsEnvironmental LawWater QualityClean Water ActEnforcementInjunctive ReliefEnvironmental LawWater QualitySafe Drinking Water ActGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawWater QualitySafe Drinking Water ActEnforcementEnvironmental LawWater QualitySafe Drinking Water ActNational Drinking Water RegulationsEnvironmental LawWater QualitySafe Drinking Water ActUnderground Sources

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
F. Other State and Federal Environmental Laws

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.93

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.93 Noise Pollution

[1] State Law--California Noise Control Act

The California Noise Control Act [Health & Safety Code § 46000 et seq.] provides for the coordination of state activities necessary to provide an environment for all Californians free from noise that jeopardizes their health or welfare [see Health & Safety Code § 46000(g)]. The Act establishes the Office of Noise Control [Health & Safety Code § 46040]. The duties of the office are set forth in Health & Safety Code §§ 46050 and 46050.1. No provision of the Act or ruling of the Office of Noise Control is a limitation or expansion of the authority of governments or the State Attorney General to control noise or abate nuisances [Health & Safety Code § 46001]. Noise standards have been set specifically for motor vehicles [see Veh. Code §§ 27150, 27150.2, 27151], aircraft and aircraft engines [see Pub. Util. Code § 21669], and pneumatic tires [see Veh. Code §§ 27502, 27503]. For a further discussion of the California Noise Control Act, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 83, Controls on Noise (Matthew Bender).

[2] Federal Law

The Office of Noise Abatement and Control is established within the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to carry out a full and complete investigation and study of noise and its effect on public health and welfare [42 U.S.C. § 7641(a)]. The Administrator of the EPA consults with any federal department or agency carrying out or sponsoring any activity resulting in noise that is a public nuisance or otherwise objectionable to determine possible means of abating the noise [42 U.S.C. § 7641(c)]. For further coverage of federal legislation regarding noise, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 83, Controls on Noise (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Environmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsNuisances, Trespasses & Strict LiabilityEnvironmental LawNoiseReal Property LawTortsNuisanceTypesPublic NuisanceTransportation LawAir TransportationNoise Control

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
F. Other State and Federal Environmental Laws

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.94

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.94 Hazardous Substances

[1] Federal Resource Conservation and Recovery Act

Subchapter III [42 U.S.C. § 6921 et seq.] of the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act of 1976 [42 U.S.C. § 6901 et seq.] deals with hazardous waste management. The Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency has authority to set standards for and regulate the transportation, treatment, storage, and disposal of hazardous wastes [see 42 U.S.C. § 6921 et seq.]. For detailed coverage of RCRA, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Chs. 50, Administration of Hazardous Waste Laws: Federal /State Interrelationship, and 90, Solid Waste Management and Planning (Matthew Bender), Guide to Toxic Torts, Ch. 16, Hazardous Waste Legislation and Superfund--An Overview (Matthew Bender), and The Law of Hazardous Waste, Ch. 1, Introduction to Hazardous Waste Management (Matthew Bender).

[2] Superfund Act

The Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (CERCLA) [42 U.S.C. § 9601 et seq.], popularly known as the Superfund Act, imposes liability for cleanup costs, response costs, and damages on persons who release or threaten to release hazardous substances into the environment [see 42 U.S.C. § 9607]. The Act establishes procedures for the cleanup of hazardous substances released into the environment and for emergency response to threatened releases of hazardous substances into the environment [see 42 U.S.C. §§ 9604-9606]. The Act establishes trust funds to be used to satisfy claims made for damages caused by the release of hazardous substances, including the cleanup of hazardous substances from inactive hazardous waste disposal sites [see 42 U.S.C. §§ 9611-9612, 9634 et seq.]. For further discussion of CERCLA, see California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 50, Administration of Hazardous Waste Laws: Federal /State Interrelationship (Matthew Bender), Treatise on Environmental Law, Ch. 4A, Disposal of Hazardous Waste--The "Superfund Law" (Matthew Bender), Guide to Toxic Torts, Ch. 16, Hazardous Waste Legislation and Superfund--An Overview (Matthew Bender), and The Law of Hazardous Waste, Ch. 12, Introduction to Hazardous Substance Cleanup and Liability (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Environmental LawHazardous Wastes & Toxic SubstancesGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawHazardous Wastes & Toxic SubstancesCERCLA & SuperfundGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawHazardous Wastes & Toxic SubstancesCERCLA & SuperfundEnforcementCleanup CostsEnvironmental LawHazardous Wastes & Toxic SubstancesCERCLA & SuperfundEnforcementCost Recovery ActionsPotentially Responsible PartiesTransportersEnvironmental LawHazardous Wastes & Toxic SubstancesCERCLA & SuperfundHazardous Substance SuperfundEnvironmental LawHazardous Wastes & Toxic SubstancesResource Conservation & Recovery ActGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawSolid WastesDisposal PlanningEnvironmental LawSolid WastesDisposal Standards

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
F. Other State and Federal Environmental Laws

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 418.95-418.99

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

[Reserved]

§§ 418.95[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
A. Procedural Issues in Environmental Cases

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.100

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.100 Related Matthew Bender Publications

[1] California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice

For discussion of state administrative law, see Ch. 10, State Administrative Law Issues

For discussion of preliminary litigation issues, see Ch. 11, Preliminary Litigation Issues

For discussion of judicial review of administrative decisions, see Ch. 12, Judicial Review of Administrative Decisions

For discussion of attorneys' fees and costs, see Ch. 13, Attorneys' Fees and Other Costs

[2] California Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities relating to costs and attorney's fees, see Ch. 60, Costs

For memoranda of points and authorities relating to actions for declaratory relief, see Ch. 67, Declaratory Relief

For memoranda of points and authorities relating to actions for injunctive relief, see Ch. 116, Injunctions

For memoranda of points and authorities relating to judicial review by traditional mandamus, see Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition

For memoranda of points and authorities relating to judicial review by administrative mandamus, see Ch. 195, Public Administrative Law

[3] Treatise on Environmental Law

For discussion of attorney's fees, see Ch. 14, Attorneys' Fees in Environmental Litigation

[4] Environmental Law Practice Guide, State and Federal Law

For coverage of issues involved in environmental litigation, including sample complaints, answers, and discovery pleadings, see Ch. 11B, Environmental Litigation

For discussion of attorney's fees, see Ch. 13, Attorney's Fees and Conflicts of Interest

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawJudicial ReviewGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesDeclaratory JudgmentsAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesInjunctive ReliefAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesMandamusCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPreliminary & Temporary InjunctionsEnvironmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsJudicial ReviewReal Property LawZoning & Land UseJudicial Review

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
A. Procedural Issues in Environmental Cases

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.101

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.101 State Statutes

[1] Jurisdiction and Venue

Local actions are tried in superior court of county in which subject real property is located. Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)

Action against public officer or his or her agent for performing an official act is triable where cause of action arises. Code Civ. Proc. § 393(b)

Actions that may be tried in Sacramento may alternatively be commenced and tried in any California city in which the Attorney General has an office. Code Civ. Proc. § 401(1)

Superior Courts have jurisdiction over petitions for writs of mandate. Code Civ. Proc. § 1085

[2] Statutes of Limitation

Actions challenging decision of a legislative body to adopt, amend, or modify a development agreement must be brought within 90 days after the decision. Gov. Code § 65009(c)(1)(D)

Certain actions in support of housing and housing projects must be commenced within one year and cannot be maintained until 60 days have expired following notice to the city specifying deficiencies in the general plan, specific plan, or zoning ordinance. Gov. Code § 65009(d)

Actions attacking imposition of fees, dedications, and other exactions imposed on residential housing developments must be commenced within 180 days after establishment of the imposition, and a protest must be filed within 90 days after date of establishment of the exaction. Gov. Code § 66020(d)

Actions to contest or question San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission's denial of a permit application or attachment of conditions to a permit approval must be commenced within 90 days following the date of the Commission's action. Gov. Code § 66632(i)

Aggrieved persons must seek judicial review of decision of the Energy Conservation and Development Commission within 30 days after Commission issues its determination. Pub. Res. Code § 25901

Any aggrieved person can challenge any decision or action of the California Coastal Commission by filing a petition for a writ of administrative mandamus within 60 days after decision becomes final. Pub. Res. Code § 30801

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityStandingCivil ProcedureVenueGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsMandamusEnvironmental LawZoning & Land UseComprehensive & General PlansGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime LimitationsGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsClaims By & Against

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
A. Procedural Issues in Environmental Cases

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.102

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.102 Decisions

[1] Jurisdiction and Venue

Action for declaratory relief was appropriate to challenge Coastal Zone Conservation Act as facially unconstitutional but was not proper for the purpose of challenging application of the Act to complainants, who were denied a permit and were in essence seeking review of the validity of that administrative action. State v. Superior Court of Orange County (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 237, 251, 115 Cal. Rptr. 497, 524 P.2d 1281

In actions to enforce public rights under CEQA, venue is proper under Code Civ. Proc. § 393(b) where some or all of the cause of action arose. California State Parks Found. v. Superior Court (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 826, 834, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 715

Landowner's sole remedy for review of the denial of a zoning variance was administrative mandamus and landowner therefore had no right to declaratory relief. PMI Mortgage Ins. Co. v. City of Pacific Grove (1981) 128 Cal. App. 3d 724, 732, 179 Cal. Rptr. 185

Higher courts take original jurisdiction over writ of mandate petitions only in cases involving issues of statewide impact which require prompt judicial review. Planned Parenthood Affiliates v. Van de Kamp (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 245, 264, 226 Cal. Rptr. 361

Actions for declaratory relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 are within superior court's jurisdiction regardless of amount of claim. Mills v. Mills (1956) 147 Cal. App. 2d 107, 116, 305 P.2d 61

[2] Standing

Citizen suit provision of the Endangered Species Act, 16 U.S.C. § 1540(g), does not confer standing to raise a generalized grievance; to have standing to bring suit under that provision, plaintiffs must have suffered distinct, concrete harm. Lujan v. Defenders of Wildlife (1992) 504 U.S. 555, 572, 112 S. Ct. 2130, 119 L. Ed. 2d 351

Federal "case or controversy" requires that plaintiff show he or she has personally suffered some actual or threatened injury that can be traced to defendant's putatively illegal conduct and is likely to be redressed by a favorable decision. Valley Forge College v. Americans United (1982) 454 U.S. 464, 472, 102 S. Ct. 752, 70 L. Ed. 2d 700 ; Lujan v. Defenders of Wildlife (1992) 504 U.S. 555, 112 S. Ct. 2130, 119 L. Ed. 2d 351

Federal courts will not generally adjudicate claims based on the legal rights or interests of third parties or on abstract questions of wide public significance that amount to generalized grievances most appropriately addressed in the representative branches, or claims that fall outside "the zone of interests to be protected or regulated by the statute or constitutional guarantee in question." Valley Forge College v. Americans United (1982) 454 U.S. 464, 474-475, 102 S. Ct. 752, 70 L. Ed. 2d 700

It was sufficient to establish standing that plaintiffs were seeking to procure enforcement of a public duty. Bozung v. Local Agency Formation Com. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 263, 272, 118 Cal. Rptr. 249, 529 P.2d 1017

Nonresident owners of land adjoining the city had standing to challenge city's zoning decisions that affected their property. Scott v. City of Indian Wells (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 541, 549, 99 Cal. Rptr. 745, 492 P.2d 1137

A plaintiff's standing to sue is essential to his or her cause of action. Parker v. Bowron (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 344, 351

Safe Drinking Water and Toxic Enforcement Act's [Health & Safety Code § 25249.5 et seq.] grant of standing to sue to "any person in the public interest" is not unconstitutional as violating separation of powers and due process principles; California Constitution does not specify, as does United States Constitution, that state's judicial power extends only to "cases and controversies." National Paint & Coatings Assn. v. State of California (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 753, 760, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360

Geographical nexus for standing can extend beyond city limits since the effects of environmental abuse "are not contained by political lines." Citizens Assn. for Sensible Development of Bishop Area v. County of Inyo (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 151, 158-159, 217 Cal. Rptr. 893

Standing was granted to residents seeking to exclude a residential care facility from their neighborhood by attacking the constitutionality of a state statute that invalidated restrictive covenants prohibiting such facilities. McCaffrey v. Preston (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 422, 431 n.4, 201 Cal. Rptr. 252

Petitioner lacked beneficial interest because order sought would not provide an effective remedy. De La Cuesta v. Superior Court (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 945, 950, 200 Cal. Rptr. 1

Sufficient causal relationship for standing exists in plaintiffs' allegations that city's zoning practices had excluded them from residency in the city or had raised their housing costs outside the city by adversely affecting the regional housing market. Stocks v. City of Irvine (1981) 114 Cal. App. 3d 520, 532, 170 Cal. Rptr. 724

In granting standing to an unincorporated association the court relied on the fact that association's primary organizational purpose was to protect the unique environment of a park, and that its members included property owners living on the park's edge. Simons v. City of Los Angeles (1979) 100 Cal. App. 3d 496, 500-501, 161 Cal. Rptr. 67

Court rejected contentions that pine trees blocking a neighbor's scenic easement could not be cut down because they possessed independent legal rights and standing to assert them. Ezer v. Fuchsloch (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 849,

863-864, 160 Cal. Rptr. 486

Local residents who were not landowners were sufficiently "aggrieved" to challenge issuance of construction permit under Coastal Act. Pillsbury v. South Coast Regional Com. (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 740, 749, 139 Cal. Rptr. 760

The intent of the Coastal Act is to allow broad citizen participation in enforcing the provisions of the Act, and not to limit standing to those with an actual financial stake in the outcome. Sanders v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 661, 673, 126 Cal. Rptr. 415

Landowners adjacent to proposed development were aggrieved for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 663 and had right of appeal from lower court's ruling regarding exemption from Coastal Act's permit requirements. Aries Dev. Co. v. California Coastal Zone Conservation Com. (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 534, 541, 122 Cal. Rptr. 315

California beneficial interest criterion applied without regard to petitioner's standing to maintain an equity action in a federal court. McDonald v. Stockton Met. Transit Dist. (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 436, 440 n.4, 111 Cal. Rptr. 637 ; City & County of San Francisco v. Western Air Lines, Inc. (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 105, 121-126, 22 Cal. Rptr. 216

The societal importance of environmental issues justified the application of the relaxed standing doctrine to suits seeking the protection of environmental concerns. Residents of Beverly Glen, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 117, 122, 109 Cal. Rptr. 724

California authority grants citizens or taxpayers standing to challenge government action on environmental and other issues. Taschner v. City Council (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 48, 55-56, 107 Cal. Rptr. 214

[3] Ripeness

"Hardship factor" satisfied when manufacturers were forced to choose at once between complying with the regulations of questionable validity and risking civil and criminal penalties. Abbott Laboratories v. Gardner (1967) 387 U.S. 136, 148-149, 87 S. Ct. 1507, 18 L. Ed. 2d 681

In action challenging general validity of public access guidelines adopted by California Coastal Commission, when no specific application of guidelines involved, ripeness requirement that is prerequisite to judicial review of administrative acts was not met. Pacific Legal Foundation v. California Coastal Com. (1982) 33 Cal. 3d 158, 169-171, 188 Cal. Rptr. 104, 655 P.2d 306

[4] Exhaustion of Administrative Remedies

If party fails in its attempts to obtain permit from or block project approval by subordinate agency, party must exhaust any right of appeal to appellate body that oversees its functioning before seeking judicial review. Sea & Sage Audubon Society, Inc. v. Planning Com. (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 412, 417-418, 194 Cal. Rptr. 357, 668 P.2d 664

No exhaustion required when superior court had concurrent original jurisdiction with State Water Resources Board over certain water rights claims. National Audubon Society v. Superior Court (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 419, 448-451, 189 Cal. Rptr. 346, 658 P.2d 709 ; Environmental Defense Fund, Inc. v. East Bay Mun. Utility Dist. (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 183, 200, 161 Cal. Rptr. 466, 605 P.2d 1

Property owner's claim of exemption from coastal zone regulations because of preexisting vested rights must be raised with California Coastal Commission before courts will consider matter, since Commission has established administrative procedure for determining such exemptions. South Coast Regional Com. v. Gordon (1977) 18 Cal. 3d

832, 834-835, 135 Cal. Rptr. 781, 558 P.2d 867

Although particular issues included in CEQA suits must have been raised in proceedings before agency sued, the issues need not have been contested by particular plaintiffs involved in suit. Friends of Mammoth v. Board of Supervisors (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 247, 267-268, 104 Cal. Rptr. 761, 502 P.2d 1049

Futility exception to exhaustion doctrine is narrow and cannot be raised unless petitioner can positively establish that administrative agency has declared what its ruling will be in particular case. Gantner & Mattern Co. v. California E. Com. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 314, 318, 109 P.2d 932 ; People ex rel. State Pub. Wks. Bd. v. Superior Court (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 95, 102, 154 Cal. Rptr. 54

Plaintiffs challenging adoption of mitigated negative declaration under CEQA were excused from exhaustion of administrative remedies requirement by county's failure to provide Department of Fish and Game notice of its intent to adopt mitigated negative declaration, pursuant to Pub. Res. Code § 21177(e) (exemption to exhaustion requirement when agency failed to give notice required by law). Fall River Wild Trout Foundation v. County of Shasta (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 482, 489, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 705

Pub. Res. Code § 21177 allows any alleged grounds for noncompliance with CEQA to be raised by any person before close of public hearing on project before issuance of notice of determination; therefore any party may bring action under Pub. Res. Code § 21167 if it has raised objection to adequacy of EIR before certification. Galante Vineyards v. Monterey Peninsula Water Management Dist., 57 Cal. App. 4th 13, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 547

Suits brought by persons who did not appear in administrative proceedings at all or who seek to raise issues not raised in administrative proceedings during court proceedings will be dismissed. Resource Defense Fund v. Local Agency Formation Com. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 886, 894-895, 236 Cal. Rptr. 794 ; Kane v. Redevelopment Agency (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 899, 904, 224 Cal. Rptr. 922 ; Coalition for Student Action v. City of Fullerton (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 1194, 1197, 200 Cal. Rptr. 855

Exhaustion requirement met by objections to City Council despite lack of participation before Planning Commission. Browning-Ferris Industries v. City Council (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 852, 859-861, 226 Cal. Rptr. 575

Court held that "less specificity is required to preserve issue for appeal in an administrative proceeding than in a judicial proceeding." Citizens Assn. for Sensible Development of Bishop Area v. County of Inyo (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 151, 163, 217 Cal. Rptr. 893

Exhaustion requirement satisfied when petitioners raised objections before Board of Supervisors but had not participated in earlier environmental review board hearings. San Bernardino Valley Audubon Society, Inc. v. County of San Bernardino (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 738, 748, 202 Cal. Rptr. 423

Landowners are required to apply for zoning variances, building permits, or conditional use permits before filing action attacking the validity of zoning ordinance itself. Pan Pacific Properties, Inc. v. County of Santa Cruz (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 244, 249, 146 Cal. Rptr. 428 ; Igna v. City of Baldwin Park (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 909, 914, 88 Cal. Rptr. 581

Petitioners had brought dilemma of losing use of billboards on themselves by not applying for administrative variances and thus no exception existed from exhaustion requirement. Mountain View Chamber of Commerce v. City of Mountain View (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 82, 90-91, 143 Cal. Rptr. 441

Developer failed to exhaust remedies before filing takings claim because he withdrew permit application after regional coastal commission imposed challenged permit conditions and he did not appeal to the State Coastal Commission. Frisco Land & Mining Co. v. State of California (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 736, 754, 141 Cal. Rptr. 820

Exhaustion was not required for parties who had no notice and did not attend public hearings, despite failure to appeal to town council. Environmental Law Fund v. Town of Corte Madera (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 105, 113, 122 Cal. Rptr. 282

[5] Statutes of Limitation

Although county landfill built on leased property was "improvement" within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 337.15, statute did not bar lessor's contractual and indemnification claims or claims to recover remediation costs arising out of contamination from landfill. San Diego Unified School Dist. v. County of San Diego (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 288, 309-311, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 796

Ninety-day limitations period (Gov. Code § 65009(c)) applied to proceeding challenging decision of Board of Supervisors granting conditional use permit on ground one supervisor had conflict of interest in violation of Political Reform Act. Ching v. San Francisco Bd. of Permit Appeals (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 888, 891, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 700

Injury to property that starts statute of limitations running is release of hazardous substances and not diminution in property value that occurs when contamination becomes evident. CAMSI IV v. Hunter Technology Corp. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1525, 1534-1535, 282 Cal. Rptr. 80

Administrative mandamus petition is timely if filed within 30 days after agency's delivery of administrative record and petitioner requested that agency prepare administrative record within 10 days after last day on which reconsideration can be ordered. Liberty v. California Coastal Com. (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 491, 498, 170 Cal. Rptr. 247

Cause of action for injury to property does not accrue until "the point in time when plaintiff becomes aware of defendant's negligence as a cause, or could have become so aware through the exercise of reasonable diligence." Leaf v. City of San Mateo (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 398, 408, 163 Cal. Rptr. 711

Challenge to agency decision to approve private development that is filed within limitations period may still be dismissed if private developer is not named within that period and is determined to be necessary and indispensable party. Sierra Club, Inc. v. California Coastal Com. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 495, 502, 157 Cal. Rptr. 190

In actions "based on progressively developing or continuing wrongs where nature, extent or permanence of the harm are difficult to discover" running of statute is postponed "until the time of discovery of (or opportunity to discover) the facts." Bradler v. Craig (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 466, 471-472, 79 Cal. Rptr. 401

[6] Laches

Whether claim is barred by laches is ordinarily question of fact, and trial court exercises considerable discretion in determining whether defense should be sustained. Miller v. Eisenhower Medical Center (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 614, 624, 166 Cal. Rptr. 826, 614 P.2d 258 ; Conti v. Board of Civil Service Commissioners (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 351, 366, 82 Cal. Rptr. 337, 461 P.2d 617

To support laches defense, prejudice to defendant from delay must be affirmatively proved and will not be presumed. Conti v. Board of Civil Service Commissioners (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 351, 360-362, 82 Cal. Rptr. 337, 461 P.2d 617

Laches barred taxpayers from raising environmental questions related to alternative locations for building. Bresnahan v. City of Pasadena (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 297, 305-306, 121 Cal. Rptr. 750

Delay resulting in economic expense to Department of Highways did not result in any legally cognizable prejudice since Legislature had clearly subordinated economy in government to environmental considerations through adoption of CEQA. People ex rel. Dept. Pub. Wks. v. Bosio (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 495, 525-526, 121 Cal. Rptr. 375

Administrative mandamus is proceeding in which equitable doctrines are applicable and in which defense of laches may be invoked; in nine-month period between granting conditional use permit and commencing action, fact that developer incurred financial liabilities of $700,000 in relying on use permit constituted showing of unreasonable delay plus prejudice resulting from delay. Concerned Citizens of Palm Desert, Inc. v. Board of Supervisors (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 257, 265, 113 Cal. Rptr. 328

[7] Class Action

Class action was not allowed as method of asserting claims of numerous persons against polluters, when objective sought was beyond capability of court. Diamond v. General Motors Corp. (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 374, 381-383, 97 Cal. Rptr. 639

Homeowners' association was improper party to bring class action when it was not member of the interested class of residents who sustained damage from aircraft flights. Greater Westchester Homeowners Assn., Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 523, 526

[8] SLAPP Suit Provisions

Evidence submitted by plaintiff in response to motion to dismiss action as SLAPP suit must be legally sufficient; declaration submitted on information and belief, or hearsay statements, will not suffice for plaintiff to carry his or her burden. Evans v. Unkow (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1490, 1497-1498, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 624

SLAPP suit provisions are not limited to environmental or other public interest groups, including newspaper publisher or reporters. Lafayette Morehouse, Inc. v. Chronicle Publishing Co. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 855, 862-864, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 46

SLAPP suit provisions apply to defendant's prior initiation of lawsuit and encouragement or funding by defendant of lawsuits filed by third parties. Ludwig v. Superior Court (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 8, 18, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 350

SLAPP suit provisions apply because defendant's challenged statements were made in connection with public review process. Dixon v. Superior Court (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 733, 743-744, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 687

[9] Attorney's Fees and Costs

Prevailing party in CEQA action may be entitled to attorney's fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5, which provides specific statutory authority for court-awarded attorney's fees under private attorney general theory. Woodland Hills Residents Assn., Inc. v. City Council (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 917, 925-926, 935-936, 154 Cal. Rptr. 503, 593 P.2d 200 ; Friends of "B" Street v. City of Hayward (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 988, 996-997, 165 Cal. Rptr. 514

In action challenging approval of permit and mitigated negative declaration for expansion of parochial school, real party in interest, a nonprofit organization that owned and operated the school, was not entitled to award of attorneys' fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 because its pecuniary interest in expansion of school facilities outweighed any public benefit it might have conveyed in defending action. Jobe v. City of Orange (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 412, 419, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 782

Litigant's environmental and aesthetic interests may be taken into account when weighing financial burden against the litigant's personal stake in matter in determining entitlement to award of private attorney general fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5. Families Unafraid to Uphold Rural El Dorado County (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 505, 514, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 205

Prevailing defendant in CEQA action is not entitled to attorney's fees under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 998 and 1021.1 when relief sought by plaintiff was essentially injunctive in nature. McDowell v. Watson (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1155, 1160, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 692

Plaintiff who has successfully challenged adequacy of EIR is not entitled to award of attorney's fees under vexatious litigant theory when there is no finding of defendant's bad faith. County of Inyo v. City of Los Angeles (1978) 78 Cal. App. 3d 82, 91-93, 144 Cal. Rptr. 71

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityExhaustion of RemediesAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityRipenessCivil ProcedureVenueGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureClass ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsMandamusConstitutional LawThe JudiciaryCase or ControversyStandingGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawHazardous Wastes & Toxic SubstancesCERCLA & SuperfundRecordkeeping & ReportingEnvironmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsDefensesEnvironmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsJudicial ReviewEnvironmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsJurisdiction & ProcedureEnvironmental LawWater QualitySafe Drinking Water ActEnforcementEnvironmental LawZoning & Land UseConstitutional LimitsGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime LimitationsTortsProcedureStatutes of LimitationsAccrual of ActionsContinuous Torts

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
A. Procedural Issues in Environmental Cases

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 418.103-418.109

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

[Reserved]

§§ 418.103[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
B. California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA)

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.110

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.110 Related Matthew Bender Publications

[1] California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice

For detailed coverage of CEQA, see Chs. 20-23

[2] California Real Estate

For discussion of the preparation and use of environmental impact reports, see California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 303, Requirements of the California Environmental Quality Act (Matthew Bender)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
B. California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA)

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.111

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.111 California Statutes and Regulations

CEQA. Pub. Res. Code § 21000 et seq.

CEQA Guidelines. 14 Cal. Code Reg. § 15000 et seq.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
B. California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA)

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.112

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.112 Decisions

[1] Key CEQA Concepts

Federal judicial interpretations of NEPA are relevant to state judicial interpretations of CEQA; however, such interpretations are relevant only to extent that provisions of federal Act may be fairly said to parallel state Act. Wildlife Alive v. Chickering (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 190, 201-202, 132 Cal. Rptr. 377, 553 P.2d 537

CEQA is interpreted broadly so as to afford fullest possible protection to environment within reasonable scope of statutory language. Friends of Mammoth v. Board of Supervisors (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 247, 259, 104 Cal. Rptr. 761, 502 P.2d 1049 ; City of Antioch v. City Council (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1325, 1330, 232 Cal. Rptr. 507 ; People ex rel. Younger v. Local Agency Formation Com. (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 464, 476, 146 Cal. Rptr. 400

[2] Exemptions From Act

Exemption for measures submitted to voters for approval [14 Cal. Code Reg. § 15378(b)(3)] applies only to voter-sponsored measures placed on ballot as ministerial act required by law; measures proposed and placed on ballot by public agency are subject to CEQA requirements. Friends of Sierra Madre v. City of Sierra Madre (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 165, 191, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 214, 19 P.3d 567

Airport land use compatibility plan that could potentially result in displaced development due to effect on local land use planning came within common sense exemption [14 Cal. Code Reg. § 15061(b)(3)] because record showed that local agencies had already restricted residential development to same extent. Muzzy Ranch Co. v. Solano County Airport Land Use Com. (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 372, 383, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 247, 160 P.3d 116

Approval of design plan application for large warehouse distribution facility on former military base for which master

EIR had been prepared was ministerial act exempt from CEQA review. Health First v. March Joint Powers Authority (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 1135, 1144, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 290

City improperly relied on categorical exemption for minor alteration to land use limitation [14 Cal. Code. Reg. § 15305] in approving specific plan exception for wooden fence constructed by homeowner atop historic granite wall in Hollywoodland housing tract. Committee to Save the Hollywoodland Specific Plan v. City of Los Angeles (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 1168, 1187, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 665

Categorical exemption for urban in-fill projects [14 Cal. Code Reg. § 15332] applied to proposed development of 14-story residential building near Balboa Park in San Diego. Banker's Hill, Hillcrest, Park West Community Preservation Group v. City of San Diego (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 249, 270, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 537

Exemption for government funding mechanisms or other government fiscal activities that do not involve commitment to specific project [14 Cal. Code Reg. § 15378(b)(4)] applied to Memorandum of Understanding between city and Native American Tribe concerning funding of possible public improvements for proposed casino on tribal land. Citizens to Enforce CEQA v. City of Rohnert Park (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 1594, 1600, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 208

Public agency may not rely on mitigation measures to grant categorical exemption from CEQA; only projects having no significant effect on environment may be categorically exempt. Salmon Protection & Watershed Network v. County of Marin (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1098, 1107, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 321

CEQA emergency exemption applied to application for permit to build seawall on bluff that was in danger of collapsing; to qualify for exemption, an emergency need not be unexpected when the project's purpose is to prevent the emergency. CalBeach Advocates v. City of Solana Beach (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 529, 537, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1

Legislation creating large, residents-only permit parking district came within CEQA categorical exemption applicable to activities involving operation, repair, maintenance, or minor alteration of existing facilities [14 Cal. Code Reg. § 15301(c)]. Santa Monica Chamber of Commerce v. City of Santa Monica (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 786, 793, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 731

City properly determined that housing code enforcement program requiring inspection and repair of residential rental units was categorically exempt under city's CEQA guideline exempting projects consisting of "restoration or rehabilitation of deteriorated or damaged structures, facilities or mechanical equipment systems to meet current standards of public health, safety and environmental protection." Further, once agency determines, based on substantial evidence in record, that project falls within categorical exemption, burden shifts to challenging party to produce substantial evidence that project has potential for substantial adverse environmental impa ct. Apartment Assn. of Greater Los Angeles v. City of Los Angeles (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 1162, 1174-1175, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 504

CEQA exemption for small commercial buildings as amended in 1998 [14 Cal. Code Reg. § 15303(c)] applied retroactively by court of appeal to hold retail/office building project exempt. Fairbank v. City of Mill Valley (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 1243, 1251, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 233

Exemption for actions taken by regulatory agencies to maintain, restore, or enhance natural resource [14 Cal. Code Reg. § 15307] was not applicable to decision to remove species from threatened species list under California Endangered Species Act. Mountain Lion Federation v. Fish & Game Com. (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 241, 254, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 408

Emergency exemption from EIR requirement [Pub. Res. Code § 21080(b)(3), (4)] was inapplicable to recovery plan adopted after Northridge Earthquake that provided for redevelopment and economic revitalization of project area. Castaic Lake Water Agency v. City of Santa Clarita (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1257, 1265-1266, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 79

Approval of building permit for large hotel adjacent to public beach is discretionary, not ministerial, when approval of project could not be legally compelled without changes in design that might alleviate adverse environmental consequences and public agency shaped project in ways that might be identified in EIR. Miller v. City of Hermosa Beach (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 1118, 1138-1141, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 408

EIR was not required for special election called by city council on zoning change. Lee v. City of Lompoc (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1515, 1518

Proposed harvesting plan prepared under the Forest Practice Act of 1973 [Pub. Res. Code § 4511 et seq.] is exempt under Pub. Res. Code § 21080.5 from the EIR requirement; nevertheless, Department of Forestry was still required to undertake environmental inquiry into the plan, including consideration of plan's significant cumulative impacts. Laupheimer v. State of California (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 440, 462, 246 Cal. Rptr. 82

Adoption of sphere of influence that is virtually coextensive with city's existing boundaries, with exception of addition of one tract area, is exempt under Pub. Res. Code §§ 21080(b)(10), 21083, and 21084, and 14 Cal. Code Reg. § 15378. City of Agoura Hills v. Local Agency Formation Com. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 480, 493-496, 243 Cal. Rptr. 740

Building permit process was discretionary if city has discretion to require changes that would mitigate environmental problems that EIR might conceivably uncover. Friends of Westwood, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 259, 273, 235 Cal. Rptr. 788

EIR was not required in connection with timber harvesting operations when regulation of operations by Department of Forestry was certified as exempt from EIR requirements under Pub. Res. Code § 21080.5; such certification exempts regulatory program from EIR requirements imposed by local as well as state public entities. Seghesio v. County of Napa (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 371, 376-377, 185 Cal. Rptr. 224

EIR was not required for demolition of building in redevelopment area when EIR was already prepared for entire redevelopment area and demolition was ministerial. Environmental Law Fund, Inc. v. City of Watsonville (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 711, 714-716, 177 Cal. Rptr. 542

Replacement of cement plant on same site with same capacity was entitled to categorical exemption from EIR requirements for replacement of existingstructure. Dehne v. County of Santa Clara (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 827, 837-842, 171 Cal. Rptr. 753

Discretionary act of public official, for purposes of CEQA, was act which requires personal deliberation, decision, and judgment, while ministerial act amounts only to performance of duty in which official left no personal choice. Natural Resources Defense Council, Inc. v. Arcata Nat. Corp. (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 959, 969, 131 Cal. Rptr. 172

[3] Determination of Necessity for EIR or Negative Declaration

CEQA is construed as requiring agency to render written determination whether project requires EIR before giving final approval to project, and as requiring preparation of either EIR if project may have significant effect on environment, or negative declaration if it will not; failure of city council to render written determination of environmental impact before approving drilling project violated CEQA. No Oil, Inc. v. Los Angeles (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 68, 79-81, 118 Cal. Rptr. 34, 529 P.2d 66

City's conditional agreement to sell land for private development, coupled with financial support, public statements, and other actions by its officials committing city to development, constituted project approval that was required under

CEQA to have been preceded by preparation of EIR. Save Tara v. City of West Hollywood (2008) 45 Cal. 4th 116, 133-134, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 614, 194 P.3d 344

Agency not required to complete CEQA review before rejecting project; if agency at any time decides not to proceed with a project, CEQA is inapplicable from that time forward. Las Lomas Land Co. LLC v. City of Los Angeles (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 837, 850-851, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 503

Payment of mitigation pursuant to county ordinance did not entitle developer to negative mitigated declaration; to satisfy duty to mitigate, in-lieu fee system must either be evaluated under CEQA (two-tier approval for later, more specific, projects) or on project-specific basis. California Native Plant Society v. County of El Dorado (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 1026, 1055, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 530

City council abused its discretion in failing to consider whether 90-year-old apartment buildings were historical resources for purposes of CEQA, even though it had previously denied application to list buildings in city's historic register. Valley Advocates v. County of Fresno (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 1039, 1062-1063, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 690

Potential significant impact from construction of high density senior project was not merely obstruction of views of a few adjacent homeowners; project created change in the aesthetic environment and interfered with scenic views of the public in general by introducing into the primarily single-family, residential neighborhood a large, high-density residential building that included mixed two-story and three-story structures. Citizens for Responsible and Open Government v. City of Grand Terrace (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 1323, 1337, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 202

Subsequent EIR required for subdivision project that was initially approved with mitigated negative declaration but languished in litigation for so long its tentative map expired; subdivision was not a new project for purposes of CEQA but additional environmental review was required based on new information about potentially significant impacts on water supply and protected species. Moss v. County of Humboldt (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1041, 1057-1058, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 428

Comments by neighbors without supporting evidence or expertise did not raise fair argument that there was substantial evidence that development project could have significant effects on environment. Porterville Citizens for Responsible Hillside Development v. City of Porterville (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 885, 890, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 105

When large commercial real estate development was modified to include residential use, city properly prepared addendum to EIR for original project because substantial evidence supported conclusion that changes would lessen many impacts that had been deemed significant and unavoidable; however, subsequent EIR was required on issue of police services. Mani Brothers Real Estate Group v. City of Los Angeles (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1385, 1403-1404, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 79

Further environmental review required when Wal-Mart Supercenter was substituted for smaller retail stores in proposed development for which mitigated negative declaration had been prepared; city failed to proceed as required by law when it refused to consider urban decay effects that might result from store closures in neighboring cities caused by economic competition. American Canyon Community United for Responsible Growth v. City of American Canyon (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 1062, 1082, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 312

New information occurring after final EIR is released but before certification need not be included in EIR before agency determines whether such information is significant enough to trigger revision and recirculation. Western Placer Citizens for an Agricultural & Rural Environment v. County of Placer (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 890, 902, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 799

Independent environmental review rather than addendum to previous mitigated negative declaration required for new project with many of same characteristics as earlier project approved for same site. Save Our Neighborhood v. Lishman (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 1288, 1301, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 306

Although initial study was inadequate, existing administrative record did not contain evidence supporting fair argument that project may have significant effect on environment; thus, once informational requirements of complete initial study had been met, city could determine whether EIR was required. Lighthouse Field Beach Rescue v. City of Santa Cruz (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 1170, 1202, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 901

City's adoption of mitigated negative declaration for residential development was improper because substantial evidence in form of comments by local residents supported fair argument that project would have significant, unmitigated environmental impacts on animal wildlife and traffic. Mejia v. City of Los Angeles (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 322, 340-341, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 788

Comments by neighbors concerning proposed housing development's aesthetic impacts and inconsistency with city's land use policies and regulations constituted substantial evidence to support fair argument project may have significant effect on environment requiring preparation of EIR. Pocket Protectors v. City of Sacramento (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 903, 936-937, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 791

County properly approved negative declaration for reclamation plan for surface mining that included expansion of the mining operation, even though negative declaration did not address effects of expansion; negative declaration properly addressed only impacts from reclamation activity. El Dorado County Taxpayers for Quality Growth v. County of El Dorado (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1591, 1595, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 224

Demolition of historic building is substantial adverse impact requiring preparation of EIR; impact not mitigated by archival documentation or placement of plaque. Architectural Heritage Assn. v. County of Monterey (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1095, 1113 ; League for Protection of Oakland's etc. Historic Resources v. City of Oakland (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 896, 908-909, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 821

Opinions of neighbors that project was "out of character" with neighborhood did not constitute substantial evidence requiring preparation of EIR; in enacting CEQA, Legislature did not intend to require EIR when sole environmental impact is aesthetic merit of building in highly developed area. Bowman v. City of Berkeley (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 572, 592-593, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 814

Construction of 21 hillside houses constituted single project for which EIR was required; developer could not avoid environmental review by filing serial permit applications for two or three houses at a time. Arviv Enterprises, Inc. v. South Valley Planning Commission (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 1333, 1346, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 140

County required to prepare EIR rather than negative declaration with regard to general plan amendments; project description erroneously characterized amendments as mere clarifications of existing general plan provisions and initial study failed to consider reasonably anticipated growth and development resulting from amendments. City of Redlands v. County of San Bernardino (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 398, 407-408, 414, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 582

After action was remanded for preparation of full EIR, trial court erred in severing mitigation bank portion of project without making findings on severability as required by Pub. Res. Code § 21168.9(b) and by allowing rest of project to continue without requiring preparation of EIR. San Bernardino Valley Audubon Society v. Metropolitan Water Dist. (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 1097, 1106, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108

Social and economic effects of Borders bookstore tenancy is not potentially significant change in environment requiring preparation of supplemental or subsequent EIR. Friends of Davis v. City of Davis (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 1004, 1019, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 413

Department of Water Resources, as state agency charged with responsibility for State Water Project, should have been lead agency for purposes of environmental review of Monterey Agreement (concerning revision of long-term contracts between Department and local water contractors) rather than a local agency. Planning and Conservation League v. Department of Water Resources (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 892, 904-905, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 173

Mitigated negative declaration for mitigation banking project was improper because there was a fair argument that there would be significant environmental effects as to every aspect of project and mitigated negative declaration did not ensure a direct correlation between impacts and mitigation measures. San Bernardino Valley Audubon Society v. Metropolitan Water Dist. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 382, 390

During initial study, lead agency was required only to determine whether project's incremental contribution of cumulative impacts is considerable and was not required to fully evaluate cumulative impact of such projects unless agency concludes that EIR is required. San Joaquin Raptor/Wildlife Rescue Center v. County of Stanislaus (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 608, 623-624, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 494

Deferred mitigation measures are permissible in mitigated negative declaration if agency commits itself to devising measures that will satisfy specific performance criteria articulated at time of project approval. Gentry v. City of Murrieta (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1359, 1396-1397, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 170

Negative declaration for general plan amendment was proper when it provided that specific developments would have to mitigate traffic effects. Schaeffer Land Trust v. San Jose City Council (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 612, 625-626, 263 Cal. Rptr. 813

CEQA does not require recirculation for public review and comment of negative declaration after addition of two mitigation measures proposed in response to comments by opponents of project. Long Beach Sav. & Loan Assn. v. Long Beach Redevelopment Agency (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 249, 263, 232 Cal. Rptr. 772

Agency is required to prepare EIR whenever it perceives some substantial evidence that project may have significant environmental effect or action arguably will have adverse environmental impact. Citizens for Non-Toxic Pest Control v. Department of Food & Agriculture (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1575, 1583, 232 Cal. Rptr. 729

Conformity of public works project with general plan for area does not insulate project from EIR requirement when it may be fairly argued that project will generate significant environmental effects. City of Antioch v. City Council (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1325, 1331, 232 Cal. Rptr. 507

Local agency is required to compare newly authorized land use with actually existing conditions in assessing whether EIR is required for general plan amendment changing land use designation; comparison of potential impacts under amendment with potential impacts under existing general plan was insufficient. Christward Ministry v. Superior Court (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 180, 190, 228 Cal. Rptr. 868

Lead agency's division of shopping center project into two parts, for which two separate environmental documents for same project were then filed, was prejudi cial abuse of discretion with regard to agency's determination of whether or not EIR was required, because action was inconsistent with CEQA's mandate that large project not be divided into little ones that can result in improper submergence of aggregate environmental considerations of total project. Citizens Assn. for Sensible Development of Bishop Area v. County of Inyo (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 151, 165-168, 217 Cal. Rptr. 893

Agency decision to issue "mitigated negative declaration" (statement that project as mitigated after initial proposal would have no significant environmental impact) rather than require EIR was proper when significant effects of project identified in initial study are mitigated so that no significant environmental effects will occur. Perley v. Board of Supervisors (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 424, 431, 187 Cal. Rptr. 53

[4] Procedural Requirements for Preparation of Environmental Impact Reports

Consultant hired by county to prepare EIR for development project could not be held liable to project applicant on theories of breach of contract (third-party beneficiary) or negligence, based on failure to timely prepare EIR. Lake Almanor Associates L.P. v. Huffman Broadway Group Inc. (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1194, 1201-1203, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 71

Mandatory relief from dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) for failure to timely request hearing under Pub. Res. Code § 21167.4 is unavailable when failure is due to attorney's inexcusable neglect. Nacimiento Regional Water Management Advisory Committee v. Monterey County Water Resources Agency (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 961, 968, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 921

Amended CEQA guidelines invalidated. Communities for a Better Enviroment v. California Resources Agency (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 98, 108, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 441

Tiering of EIRs is authorized only when previous EIR has been certified; thus, EIR that tiered to program EIR that was decertified was fatally defective and had to be decertified. Friends of the Santa Clara River v. Castaic Lake Water Agency (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 1373, 1384, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 54

Allegations that agency failed to issue initial studies within time required by CEQA Guidelines is not sufficient to state cause of action for "deemed approval" of billboard permit applications. Eller Media Co. v. City of Los Angeles (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 1217, 1221, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 262

Appeal from certification of EIR by unelected planning commission must be decided by majority vote of elected body; thus, county Board of Supervisors could not validly certify EIR by tie vote. Vedanta Society of Southern California v. California Quartet, Ltd. (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 517, 530, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 889

Lead agency's failure to certify EIR within one year of accepting application as complete does not result in automatic certification of environmental document under "deemed approved" provisions of Permit Streamlining Act [Gov. Code § 65950]. Riverwatch v. County of San Diego (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1428, 1440-1441, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 322

Mandamus was proper remedy for city's failure to complete process of preparing and certifying EIR within one year from date on which development application was accepted as complete [Pub. Res. Code § 21151.5(a)(1)]. Sunset Drive Corp. v. City of Redlands (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 215, 222, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 209

[5] Contents of EIR

EIR for development project may satisfy CEQA if it (1) acknowledges degree of uncertainty involved with regard to future water sources, (2) discusses reasonably foreseeable alternatives including alternative water sources and option of curtailing development, and (3) discloses significant foreseeable environmental effects of each alternative as well as mitigation measures to minimize adverse impacts. Vineyard Area Citizens for Responsible Growth, Inc. v. City of Rancho Cordova (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 412, 434, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 821, 150 P.3d 709

Voluntary payment of funds by state university to mitigate offsite impacts of expansion not infeasible. City of Marina v. Bd. of Trs. (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 341, 359-362, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 355, 138 P.3d 692

EIR was required to contain facts and analysis, not only agency's bare conclusions or opinions, to enable decisionmakers and public to make independent, reasoned judgment about proposed project. Concerned Citizens of Costa Mesa, Inc. v. 32nd Dist. Agricultural Ass'n (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 929, 932 , 231 Cal. Rptr. 748, 727 P.2d 1029

EIR dealing with exploratory drilling was only required to discuss impact of commercial development which may result when meaningful inquiry into consequences of such development can be made. No Oil, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 68, 77 n.5, 118 Cal. Rptr. 34, 529 P.2d 66

Revision of site development plan to expand size of retail space to "superstore" did not require subsequent or supplemental EIR; inclusion in project of retail store called "supercenter" does not automatically trigger requirement that project's EIR include examination of possible urban decay effects. Melom v. City of Madera (2010) 183 Cal. App. 4th 41, 54, 106 Cal. Rptr. 3d 755

City did not improperly defer mitigation when it identified habitat loss as impact of project and identified specific measure to mitigate that impact--preservation or creation of replacement habitat offsite in specific ratio to habitat lost as result of project; city was not required to identify any proposed specific mitigation site. California Native Plant Society v. City of Rancho Cordova (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 603, 622, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 571

City did not fail to proceed in lawful manner when it relied on California Building Energy Efficiency Standards [Title 24, Part 6, Cal. Code. Reg.] in determining that project would not have significant energy impact, as required by Pub. Res. Code § 21100(b)(3). Tracy First v. City of Tracy (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 912, 933-934, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 621

Groundwater supplier has substantial discretion in determining how to measure groundwater sufficiency for purposes of water supply assessment to be included in EIR; supplier not required to analyze groundwater pumping by all users in entire basin. O.W.L. Foundation v. City of Rohnert Park (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 568, 592, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1

Combined EIR/supplemental EIR for development of 6,800 acres into four planned communities adequately discussed water quality impacts in technical documents contained in appendices to EIR. Sierra Club v. City of Orange (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 523, 540, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1

EIR for large-scale development adequately identified and analyzed future water supplies. Santa Clarita Organization for Planning the Environment v. County of Los Angeles (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 149, 162-163, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 449

Statement of overriding considerations engaged in serious misrepresentation by claiming that proposed project would have economic benefits superior to three alternatives considered in EIR because those alternatives "generally propose no development or development to a lesser degree"; in reality, alternatives were as large as or larger than proposed project, and record contained no reason to think their economic benefits would be smaller. Woodward Park Homeowners Association Inc. v. City of Fresno (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 683, 691, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 102

Description of environmental baseline was inadequate when EIR measured commercial development project's impacts by comparing it to maximum buildout under existing zoning instead of to vacant land that actually existed at project site. Woodward Park Homeowners Association Inc. v. City of Fresno (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 683, 708-709, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 102

No substantial evidence supported conclusion that alternatives based on restoration of historic dwelling were economically infeasible; homeowner declined to provide plans or specifications of new residence and without knowing cost of new construction it was not possible to determine whether cost of renovating existing historic structure was reasonable or feasible. Uphold Our Heritage v. Town of Woodside (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 587, 598-599, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 366

Mitigation by community college district of off-campus impacts on traffic from expansion of college campus not legally infeasible. County of San Diego v. Grossmont-Cuyamaca Cmty. Coll. Dist. (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 86, 103-104, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 674

EIR for Wal-Mart Supercenter not required to consider urban decay when issue was adequately considered in prior EIR for development area. Gilroy Citizens for Responsible Planning v. City of Gilroy (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 911, 933-934, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 102

EIR for development of industrial park in Santa Clarita Valley failed to adequately consider availability of water supplies for project. California Oak Found. v. City of Santa Clarita (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 1219, 1226-1227, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434

Lead agency could eliminate previously adopted mitigation conditions from EIR only after conducting another CEQA review and then adopting finding that conditions were no longer feasible. Lincoln Place Tenants Assn. v. City of Los Angeles (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1491, 1508

EIR for commercial development project that included Wal-Mart supercenter adequately evaluated impact of urban decay. Anderson First Coalition v. City of Anderson (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1173, 1186, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 738

Fair-share mitigation fee imposed on project in connection with improvements to freeway interchange was inadequate; city was required to make fee part of reasonable, enforceable plan or program tied to actual mitigation of traffic impacts at issue. Anderson First Coalition v. City of Anderson (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1173, 1189, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 738

EIRs for proposed shopping centers located less than four miles apart that included Wal-Mart supercenters as main tenants were inadequate because they failed to consider projects' individual and cumulative potential to indirectly cause urban/suburban decay. Bakersfield Citizens for Local Control v. City of Bakersfield (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 1184, 1204, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 203

EIR satisfied requirements of 14 Cal. Code Reg. § 15148 (lead agency must "cite all documents" used in preparation of EIR), even though it did not specifically reference each of technical studies and reports by title, author, and date, but instead referred to them only by general subject matter. El Morro Community Assn. v. California Dept. of Parks & Recreation (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1341, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 445

Economic feasibility of alternatives need not be discussed in EIR, so long as discussion and supporting evidence are present somewhere in administrative record. Sierra Club v. County of Napa (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1490, 1502-1503, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1

CEQA does not require disclosure of name of project's end user; town did not violate CEQA by certifying EIR that did not identify Wal-Mart as end user of proposed distribution center. Maintain Our Desert Environment v. Town of Apple Valley (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 396, 419

Program EIR for general plan amendment and zone change for 7,000-acre development adequately addressed effects of project on housing/job ratio, agricultural resources, and biological resources on site and properly deferred mitigation of those effects. Defend the Bay v. City of Irvine (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 1261, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 176

Agency abused its discretion in certifying EIR for project to replace irrigation canal with pipeline, because EIR did not contain statement indicating why resulting reduction in surface flow of local streams would not be significant as required by Pub. Res. Code § 21100(c) and 14 Cal. Code Reg. § 15128. Protect the Historic Amador Waterways v. Amador Water Agency (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 1099, 1112, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 104

EIR description of environmental setting for increased withdrawal of water from Russian River was deficient because it did not disclose either impact on salmonid species of diverting water from Eel River, part of water supply system, or fact that FERC was considering proposals to curtail those diversions; incomplete description of environmental setting failed to set stage for discussion of cumulative impacts of FERC proceeding and project. Friends of the Eel River v. Sonoma County Water Agency (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 859, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 322

CEQA does not compel compliance with any particular survey methods or protocols, thus county was not required to conduct protocol level study following methodologies established by Department of Fish and Game in determining effects on protected species of construction and operation of large commercial dairy. Association of Irritated Residents v. County of Madera (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 1383, 1396, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 718

Fact that EIR includes more than one project is not violation of CEQA. Neighbors of Cavitt Ranch v. County of Placer (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 1092, 1103, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 379

EIR that used state water project "entitlements" to calculate available water supply for large development violated CEQA; draft EIR did not consider differences between entitlement and actual supply, and final EIR contained inadequate response to concerns about reliability of water supply. Santa Clarita Org. for Planning the Environment v. County of Los Angeles (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 705, 721-722, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 186

EIR for airport expansion (1) failed to analyze adequately noise impacts from planned additional nighttime flights; (2) erred in using outdated information in assessing emissions of toxic air contaminants (TACs) from jet aircraft; and (3) failed to support decision not to evaluate health risks associated with emission of TACs with meaningful analysis. Berkeley Keep Jets Over the Bay Committee v. Board of Commissioners (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 1344, 1350, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 598

EIR for updated specific plan for area around Napa County airport was inadequate in failing to identify and analyze alternative sources for water and resources for treatment of wastewater. Napa Citizens for Honest Government v. Napa County Board of Supervisors (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 342, 373-374, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 579

Baseline determination must be first rather than last step in environmental review process, but date for establishing baseline cannot be rigid, because environmental conditions may vary from year to year and in some cases it may be necessary to consider conditions over range of time periods. Save Our Peninsula Committee v. Monterey County Bd. of Supervisors (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 99, 125, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 326

City violated CEQA when it adopted transportation mitigation measures but did not require they be implemented as condition of development and made no provision to ensure they would actually be implemented or be "fully enforceable." Federation of Hillside & Canyon Associations v. City of Los Angeles (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 1252, 1261, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 301

EIR for Monterey Agreement (statement of principles to be incorporated into revision of long-term contracts between Department of Water Resources and local water contractors governing supply of water under State Water Project) was inadequate because it failed to discuss existing mechanisms for addressing permanent water shortage as a "no project" alternative. Planning and Conservation League v. Department of Water Resources (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 892, 916, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 173

EIR failed to describe environmental setting adequately because it failed to discuss volume of groundwater in aquifer underlying proposed landfill site, particularly potable water, a valuable and relatively scarce resource in region. Cadiz Land Co. v. Rail Cycle, L.P. (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 74, 92, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 378

EIR for development of new water supplies did not satisfy CEQA because it was predicated on population projections in draft general plan that had not been adopted and was subsequently held to be judicially inadequate. County of Amador v. El Dorado County Water Agency (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 931, 948

General "conceptual" description of water diversion structures in EIR for expansion of surface mining operation was adequate because it provided sufficient information to understand environmental impacts of proposed project. Dry Creek Citizens Coalition v. County of Tulare (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 20, 36, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 398

EIR properly used environmental setting and baseline consisting of future environmental conditions at surface mining operation if existing conditional use permit was extended. Fairview Neighbors v. County of Ventura (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 238, 242-243, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436

EIR was not required to discuss alternatives when no other feasible site existed in area that project was to serve. Save Our Residential Environment v. City of West Hollywood (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 1745, 1751-1754, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 308

EIR that failed to consider cumulative impact of all regional energy projects was inadequate; projects had significant collective impact even though specific project had limited impact. Kings County Farm Bureau v. City of Hanford (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 692, 718-723, 270 Cal. Rptr. 650

EIR was not required to consider all possible alternatives of proposed project; statutory requirements for consideration of alternatives is judged against rule of reason. Long Beach Sav. & Loan Assn. v. Long Beach Redevelopment Agency (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 249, 263-264, 232 Cal. Rptr. 772 ; Village Laguna of Laguna Beach, Inc. v. Board of Supervisors (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 1022, 1028-1029, 185 Cal. Rptr. 41 ; Foundation for San Francisco's Architectural Heritage v. City and County of San Francisco (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 893, 910, 165 Cal. Rptr. 401

EIR that fails to analyze cumulative air pollution impact of proposed addition to coast shore oil refinery impeded meaningful public discussion and skewed decisionmaker's perspective regarding environmental consequences of project, necessity for mitigation measures, and appropriateness of project approval. Citizens to Preserve the Ojai v. County of Ventura (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 421, 431-432, 222 Cal. Rptr. 247

EIR does not have to resolve disagreement between experts if it discloses disagreement and responds to arguments. Greenebaum v. City of Los Angeles (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 391, 412-415, 200 Cal. Rptr. 237

EIR was inadequate in treatment of cumulative impacts of probable downtown development because it did not consider cumulative impacts of projects undergoing environmental review but not approved. San Franciscans for Reasonable Growth v. City and County of San Francisco (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 61, 72-81, 198 Cal. Rptr. 634

CEQA does not mandate choice of environmentally best feasible project if through imposition of feasible mitigation measures alone public agency has reduced environmental damage from project to acceptable level. Laurel Hills Homeowners Assn. v. City Council (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 515, 521, 147 Cal. Rptr. 842

Accurate, stable, and finite project description was essential to informative and legally sufficient EIR. County of Inyo v. Los Angeles (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 185, 199, 139 Cal. Rptr. 396

When scope of larger project was unknown until initial smaller project was completed, and when initial project does not commit responsible agency tolarger project, EIR for initial project was not required to address itself to scope of larger project. Lake County Energy Council v. County of Lake (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 851, 854, 139 Cal. Rptr. 176

[6] Limitations Period

If lead agency makes substantial changes to a project after EIR approval, and fails to prepare a subsequent EIR, a lawsuit may be filed under CEQA within 180 days after petitioner "knew or reasonably should have known that the project differs substantially from the one described in the EIR." Concerned Citizens of Costa Mesa, Inc. v. 32nd Dist. Agricultural Ass'n (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 929, 939 ; Citizens for Non-Toxic Pest Control v. Department of Food & Agriculture (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1575, 1580-1581, 232 Cal. Rptr. 729

Challenge to Coastal Commission approval of coastal development permits were timely under Pub. Res. Code § 21080.5(g) (action must be filed within 30 days after notice of approval is filed with California Resources Agency) to extent plaintiffs challenged Commission's alleged noncompliance with CEQA requirements for certified regulatory programs, even though challenge was untimely under Coastal Act. Strother v. California Coastal Commission (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 873, 881-882, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 831

Action five months after city adopted mitigated negative declaration (MND) and disposition and development agreement (DDA) was untimely as challenge to MND because adoption of DDA was a "project" under CEQA; action therefore was governed by Pub. Res. Code § 21166 (subsequent and supplemental environmental impact reports) and the "substantial evidence" standard applied. Citizens for a Megaplex-Free Alameda v. City of Alameda (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 91, 108-109, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 728

Petition challenging issuance of conditional use permit on CEQA grounds must be personally served on agency within 90 days after challenged action pursuant to Gov. Code § 65009(c)(1)(E). Royalty Carpet Mills, Inc. v. City of Irvine (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1110, 1123, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 282

Notice of exemption whose wording was too vague to start the 35-day limitation period under CEQA had to be challenged within the 180-day period applicable to defective notices. City of Chula Vista v. County of San Diego (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1713, 1720, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 89

180-day limitations period under CEQA was applicable notwithstanding the agency's proper filing of notice to invoke 30-day limitations period, because the county clerk failed to properly post the notice. Lewis v. Seventeenth Dist. Agricultural Assn. (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 823, 834-835, 211 Cal. Rptr. 884

30-day limitations period under CEQA does not start running until notice ofdetermination is posted in office of county clerk. Citizens of Lake Murray Area Assn. v. City Council (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 436, 439-440, 181 Cal. Rptr. 123

[7] Judicial Review of Agency Decisions Under CEQA

Water Supply Assessment prepared for inclusion in an EIR is a technical, informational, advisory opinion; it therefore is not "final" act or determination subject to direct mandamus review, and must be challenged as part of CEQA review. California Water Impact Network v. Newhall County Water District (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 1464, 1477-1478, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 393

In actions to enforce public rights under CEQA, venue is proper under Code Civ. Proc. § 393(b) where some or all of the cause of action arose. California State Parks Found. v. Superior Court (2007) 150 Cal. App. 4th 826, 834, 58 Cal. Rptr. 3d 715

City improperly delegated to developer its responsibility to prepare administrative record pursuant to Pub. Res. Code § 21167.6(b)(1). Hayward Area Planning Assn. v. City of Hayward (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 176, 186

Inadequacy of administrative record required reversal of EIR approval for mining project. Protect Our Water v.

County of Merced (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 362, 373, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 726

Corporation in the business of solid waste disposal lacked standing to raise CEQA challenge to modification of competitor's permit; its interests in the litigation were competitive and commercial and therefore did not come within the zone of interests protected by CEQA. Waste Management of Alameda County, Inc. v. County of Alameda (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 1223, 1234-1235, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 740

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Environmental LawAir QualityEnforcementCitizen SuitsEnvironmental LawAssessment & Information AccessPublic ParticipationEnvironmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsJudicial ReviewEnvironmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsJurisdiction & ProcedureEnvironmental LawNational Environmental Policy ActEnvironmental AssessmentsEnvironmental LawNational Environmental Policy ActEnvironmental Impact StatementsEnvironmental LawNatural Resources & Public LandsEndangered Species ActRecovery PlansEnvironmental LawNatural Resources & Public LandsMineral Resources & MiningEnvironmental LawSolid WastesDisposal StandardsEnvironmental LawZoning & Land UseComprehensive & General PlansTransportation LawAir TransportationNoise Control

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
B. California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA)

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 418.113-418.119

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

[Reserved]

§§ 418.113[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
C. Citizen Suits

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.120

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.120 Related Matthew Bender Publications

[1] Environmental Law Practice Guide, State and Federal Law

For a sample citizen suit complaint for injunctive relief and civil penalties, see Ch. 11B, Environmental Litigation, § 11B.11

[2] The Law of Hazardous Waste: Management, Cleanup, Liability, and Litigation

For discussion of citizen suits applicable in hazardous waste litigation, see Ch. 16, Statutory Liability for Private Party Cleanup of Hazardous Waste, § 16.03

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Environmental LawHazardous Wastes & Toxic SubstancesCleanupEnvironmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
C. Citizen Suits

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.121

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.121 State Statutes

[1] Safe Drinking Water and Toxic Enforcement Act of 1986

Prohibition against contaminating drinking water with chemicals known to cause cancer or reproductive toxicity. Health & Safety Code § 25249.5

Warnings required. Health & Safety Code § 25249.6

Enforcement of prohibitions. Health & Safety Code § 25249.7

Publication of chemicals known to cause cancer or reproductive toxicity. Health & Safety Code § 25249.8

Exemptions from prohibitions. Health & Safety Code § 25249.9

Exemptions from warning requirement. Health & Safety Code § 25249.10

Definition of terms. Health & Safety Code § 25249.11

Implementation of Act. Health & Safety Code § 25249.12

Preservation of existing rights, obligations, and penalties. Health & Safety Code § 25249.13

[2] Unlawful Business Practices

Unfair competition defined. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
C. Citizen Suits

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.122

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.122 Decisions

[1] Safe Drinking Water and Toxic Enforcement Act of 1986

Notice of intention to file citizen suit under Proposition 65 must state specific facts to enable alleged violators and appropriate governmental agencies to undertake meaningful investigations and remedy alleged violations before citizen intervention. Yeroushalmi v. Miramar Sheraton (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 738, 745

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Environmental LawWater QualitySafe Drinking Water ActGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawWater QualitySafe Drinking Water ActEnforcement

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
C. Citizen Suits

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 418.123-418.129

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

[Reserved]

§§ 418.123[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
D. Common Law Environmental Tort Actions

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.130

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.130 Related Matthew Bender Publications

[1] California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice

For discussion of common law environmental causes of action, see Ch. 1, Nuisance, Trespass, and Strict Liability for Ultrahazardous Activities

For coverage of the public trust doctrine, see Ch. 2, Public Trust Doctrine

For coverage of toxic tort causes of action, including strict products liability, negligence, and abnormally dangerous activities, see Ch. 3, Toxic Torts and Environmental Litigation

[2] Environmental Law Practice Guide, State and Federal Law

For discussion and forms relating to common law causes of action, see Ch. 16, Common-Law Controls

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Environmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsNegligenceEnvironmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsNuisances, Trespasses & Strict LiabilityEnvironmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsToxic TortsReal Property LawTortsInherently Dangerous Activities

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
D. Common Law Environmental Tort Actions

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.131

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.131 State Statutes

Nuisance defined. Civ. Code § 3479

Public nuisance defined. Civ. Code § 3480

Private nuisance defined. Civ. Code § 3481

Abatement of nuisance does not prejudice right to recover damages. Civ. Code § 3484

Remedies against public nuisance. Civ. Code § 3491

Private person is allowed to maintain action for public nuisance only if it is speciallyinjurious to him or her. Civ. Code § 3493

Right of private person to abate public nuisance. Civ. Code § 3495

Remedies for private nuisance. Civ. Code §§ 3501-3503

Persons entitled to bring actions for damages, injunction, and abatement of nuisance. Code Civ. Proc. § 731

No injunction for nuisance resulting from certain manufacturing, commercial, or airport uses when districts are expressly zoned for such uses. Code Civ. Proc. § 731a

Operation of airport for three years creates rebuttable presumption that airport is not a nuisance. Code Civ. Proc. § 731b

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Real Property LawTortsNuisanceDefensesStatutory AuthorizationReal Property LawTortsNuisanceRemediesGeneral OverviewReal Property LawTortsNuisanceRemediesDamagesGeneral OverviewReal Property LawTortsNuisanceRemediesInjunctionsGeneral OverviewReal Property LawTortsNuisanceTypesPrivate NuisanceReal Property LawTortsNuisanceTypesPublic Nuisance

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
D. Common Law Environmental Tort Actions

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.132

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.132 Decisions

[1] Nuisance

[a] Nuisance Actions Generally

Action for private nuisance based on odors emitted from neighboring hog farm is not barred by fact that odors affected others in community in same manner. Johnson v. V.D. Reduction Co. (1917) 175 Cal. 63, 65-66, 164 P. 1119

Landlord is not liable to third party for continuing nuisance created by tenant unless landlord engaged in some form of negligence. Resolution Trust Corp. v. Rossmoor Corp. (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 93, 100, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 328

Plaintiffs' allegations that air pollution created by the defendant caused plaintiffs and the general public to suffer from the same kind of ailments, but that plaintiffs suffered from the air pollution to a greater degree, merely allege damages different in degree, but not in kind, from those shared by the general public, and thus do not support an action based on public nuisance. Venuto v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 116, 125, 99 Cal. Rptr. 350

Fact that others contribute to pollution is no defense. Ingram v. City of Gridley (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 815, 819-820, 224 P.2d 798

[b] Public or Private Nuisance

Allegations of maintenance of liquified petroleum gas storage facilities near plaintiff's home is not sufficient to state cause of action for public nuisance when no showing is made of special damage to plaintiff different than toothers in vicinity. Brown v. Petrolane, Inc. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 720, 726-727, 162 Cal. Rptr. 551

Essence of private nuisance is interference with use and enjoyment of land; mere fact of personal injury or of interference with some purely personal right is not sufficient for private nuisance. Venuto v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 116, 124-125, 99 Cal. Rptr. 350

[c] Permanent or Continuing Nuisance

Recovery is allowed for contamination of property under continuing nuisance theory when statute of limitations has run on permanent nuisance claim; plaintiff is required to show that contamination is subject to remediation or cleanup and that cost of cleanup is reasonable. Mangini v. Aerojet-General Corp. (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 1087, 1097

Nuisance is considered permanent when it is of such a character that it will presumably continue indefinitely. Phillips v. City of Pasadena (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 104, 107, 162 P.2d 625

Nuisance is continuing if it may be discontinued at any time; every repetition of continuing nuisance is considered a separate wrong for which injured person may bring successive actions for damages until nuisance is abated, even though action based on original wrong may be barred. Phillips v. City of Pasadena (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 104, 107-108, 162 P.2d 625

[d] Nuisance Actions Against Public Entities

Gov. Code § 815 (immunity of public entity) does not bar nuisance actions against public entities to extent founded on Civ. Code § 3479 (defining nuisance) or other applicable statutory provision. Nestle v. City of Santa Monica (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 920, 937, 101 Cal. Rptr. 568, 496 P.2d 480

Municipality may be held liable for creating or maintaining nuisance even though governmental activity was involved. Phillips v. City of Pasadena (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 104, 106, 162 P.2d 625

[2] Trespass

Intangible intrusions such as noise, odor, or light alone, without damage to property, do not support action for trespass; such intrusions are treated as nuisance actions. Wilson v. Interlake Steel Co. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 229, 233, 185 Cal. Rptr. 280, 649 P.2d 922, 160 Cal. Rptr. 733, 603 P.2d 1329 ; Greater Westchester Homeowners Asso. v. Los Angeles (1979) 26 Cal. 3d 86, 94

In action to recover damages for groundwater and soil contamination caused by leakage of gasoline from pipeline, jury improperly awarded $14,275,237 to plaintiff pursuant to Civ. Code § 3334 (recovery of benefits obtained by person wrongfully occupying property); trespass must result in something advantageous for trespasser or it does not qualify as a "benefit," and pipeline leakage and resulting contamination could not be considered advantageous to defendant. Watson Land Co. v. Shell Oil Co. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 69, 79, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 343

Deposit of particulate matter on plaintiffs' property constitutes a trespass. Kornoff v. Kingsburg Cotton Oil Co. (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 265, 266, 288 P.2d 507 ; Roberts v. Permanente Corp. (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 526, 529, 10 Cal. Rptr. 519

Noise-caused vibrations resulting in damage or injury constitutes a trespass. Gallin v. Poulou (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 638, 641-642, 295 P.2d 958 ; McNeill v. Redington (1944) 67 Cal. App. 2d 315, 316, 319, 154 P.2d 428

[3] Negligence

Under negligence per se doctrine, violation of statute gives rise to presumption ofnegligence in absence of justification or excuse, provided that person suffering injury is member of class of persons for whose protection statute was adopted. Walters v. Sloan (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 199, 206-207, 142 Cal. Rptr. 152, 571 P.2d 609

Administrative code safety orders have been given same effect as statutes as basis for finding negligence per se. Solgaard v. Guy F. Atkinson Co. (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 361, 366-367, 99 Cal. Rptr. 29, 491 P.2d 821

Doctrine of res ipsa loquitur was successfully used as basis for liability in action brought to recover damages for personal injuries caused by poisoning from fluorides emanating from industrial plant. Reynolds Metals Co. v. Yturbide (1958) 258 F.2d 321, 330

Doctrine of res ipsa loquitur was denied application in action alleging damage to a well due to noise and vibration from rocket testing. Smith v. Lockheed Propulsion Co. (1967) 247 Cal. App. 2d 774, 782, 56 Cal. Rptr. 128 (liability based on ultrahazardous activity instead)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Environmental LawHazardous Wastes & Toxic SubstancesCERCLA & SuperfundEnforcementCleanup CostsReal Property LawTortsNuisanceGeneral OverviewReal Property LawTortsNuisanceDefensesImmunityReal Property LawTortsNuisanceElementsReal Property LawTortsNuisanceRemediesGeneral OverviewReal Property LawTortsNuisanceTypesPermanent NuisanceTortsPremises Liability & PropertyLessees & LessorsNuisanceTortsPremises Liability & PropertyTrespassGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
D. Common Law Environmental Tort Actions

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 418.133-418.139

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

[Reserved]

§§ 418.133[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
E. Other State and Federal Environmental Laws

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.140

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.140 Related Matthew Bender Publications

[1] California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice

For discussion of water quality control, including coverage of the agencies that regulate water quality, water quality control planning, and ground water cleanups, see Chs. 30-33

For discussion of air quality control, including coverage of vehicular and nonvehicular (i.e., stationary) sources of air pollution, see Chs. 40-43

For discussion of hazardous waste and toxic substances, see Chs. 50-59

For discussion of noise pollution, see Ch. 83, Controls on Noise

[2] Treatise on Environmental Law

For coverage of air pollution, see Ch. 2, Air Pollution

For coverage of water pollution, see Ch. 3, Water Pollution

For coverage of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act ("CERCLA"), see Ch. 4A, Disposal of Hazardous Waste --The "Superfund Law"

For coverage of noise pollution, see Ch. 5, Noise

For discussion of the National Environmental Policy Act ("NEPA"), see Ch. 9, The National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 and Related Provisions

[3] Environmental Law Practice Guide, State and Federal Law

For discussion relating to procedures involved when practicing environmental law, including the use of environmental impact statements and practice before the Environmental Protection Agency, see Chs. 1-15

For coverage and forms relating to environmental quality generally, including air, water, and noise pollution, see Chs. 16-24

For coverage and forms relating to hazardous waste and other waste issues, see Chs. 25-40

[4] The Law of Hazardous Waste: Management, Cleanup, Liability, and Litigation

For discussion of hazardous waste management, see Chs. 1-11

For discussion of hazardous waste cleanup and liability, including liability under CERCLA, see Chs. 12-20

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Environmental LawHazardous Wastes & Toxic SubstancesCERCLA & SuperfundGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawHazardous Wastes & Toxic SubstancesCleanupEnvironmental LawNational Environmental Policy ActGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawNational Environmental Policy ActEnvironmental Impact Statements

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
E. Other State and Federal Environmental Laws

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.141

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.141 State Statutes

[1] Air Pollution

[a] General Provisions

General provisions and definitions relating to air resources. Health & Safety Code § 39000 et seq.

State Air Resources Board. Health & Safety Code § 39500 et seq.

Air Pollution Control Districts. Health & Safety Code § 40000 et seq.

Air pollution control officer. Health & Safety Code §§ 40750-40753

Inventory of air toxic emissions and health risk assessment of emitting facilities; civil penalties. Health & Safety Code § 44300 et seq.

Regulations of Air Pollution Control and Air Quality Management Boards. Health & Safety Code §§ 40725-40728

Identification and regulation of toxic air contaminants. Food & Agric. Code §§ 14021-14027; Health & Safety Code § 39650 et seq.

[b] Air Basins

Creation of air basins. Health & Safety Code § 39606

Basinwide air pollution control council. Health & Safety Code § 40900

Basinwide mitigation for cogeneration and resource recovery projects. Health & Safety Code § 41600 et seq.

[c] Emissions Standards

California Global Warming Solutions Act of 2006. Health & Safety Code § 38500 et seq.

Stricter standards than those set by law or state board are permitted to be established by local or regional authorities. Health & Safety Code § 41508

Discharge of air contaminants causing injury, detriment, nuisance, or annoyance to or endangering of others are prohibited. Health & Safety Code § 41700

Nonvehicular emissions standards generally. Health & Safety Code § 41700 et seq.

Prohibition of contaminant discharge darker than specified shade. Health & Safety Code § 41701

Limitations on emissions from agricultural and nonagricultural burning, sandblasting, stationary and cargo gasoline vapor control, and incineration of toxic waste materials. Health & Safety Code § 41800 et seq.

California Climate Action Registry for registration of voluntary greenhouse gas emission reductions. Health & Safety Code § 42800 et seq. (repealed on January 1, 2008, unless later-enacted statute deletes or extends that date; Health & Safety Code § 42871)

[d] Enforcement Powers

Enforcement powers generally. Health & Safety Code § 41500 et seq.

State board review of local and regional air pollution control. Health & Safety Code §§ 41500-41505

Additional remedies are not limited by provisions relating to air pollution control. Health & Safety Code § 41509

Establishment of permit system for attainment and maintenance of air quality standards. Health & Safety Code § 42300 et seq.

Variances. Health & Safety Code § 42350 et seq.

Penalties for violation of any provision of Health & Safety Code § 41500 et seq. (nonvehicular air pollution control). Health & Safety Code § 42400 et seq.

Civil penalties and injunctive relief for violation of vehicular air pollution control statute, order, rule, or regulation. Health & Safety Code §§ 43016, 43017

[e] Smoke

California Indoor Clean Air Act. Health & Safety Code § 118875 et seq.

[f] Vehicular Air Pollution

Vehicular air pollution control. Health & Safety Code § 43000 et seq.

Waiver of air pollution laws for disabled vehicle. Health & Safety Code § 43002.2

Right of entry on premises of new or used car dealer to inspect vehicles for emissions standards compliance; civil penalties. Health & Safety Code § 43012

Prohibition of sale of new motor vehicles not meeting required emission standards. Health & Safety Code § 43105

Civil penalty for sale of new motor vehicle not meeting emission standards. Health & Safety Code § 43211

Certification of devices required for used motor vehicles. Health & Safety Code § 43600 et seq.

Biennial motor vehicle inspection program. Health & Safety Code § 44000 et seq.

Inspection of commercial vehicles for smoke emissions. Veh. Code §§ 2813, 2813.5

Inspection by highway patrol for correct installation of air pollution device. Veh. Code § 2814

Compliance with state motor vehicle air pollution laws is prerequisite to registration or transfer of ownership of vehicle. Veh. Code §§ 4000-4000.2, 24007(b)

Motor vehicle exhaust systems. Veh. Code § 27150 et seq.

[2] Water Pollution

[a] Porter-Cologne Water Quality Control Act

Porter-Cologne Water Quality Control Act. Water Code § 13000 et seq.

State policy for water quality control. Water Code § 13140 et seq.

Regional water quality control. Water Code § 13200 et seq.

Regional water quality control plans. Water Code § 13240 et seq.

Waste discharge requirements. Water Code § 13260 et seq.

Penalties for violation of Act. Water Code §§ 13265, 13271, 13272

Enforcement. Water Code § 13300 et seq.

Liability for violation of Act. Water Code § 13350

No private action to enforce Act. Water Code § 13361

Municipal waste water treatment. Water Code § 13625 et seq.

Discharges from houseboats into state waters. Water Code § 13900 et seq.

Minor violations subject to notice to comply. Water Code § 13399 et seq.

Water quality control plan for ocean waters, to be known as California Ocean Plan. Water Code § 13170.2

State Board and regional board notice to record owners of fee title before considering cleanup or site closure proposals from primary or active responsible discharger, issuing closure letter, or making determination that no further action is required with respect to site subject to cleanup or abatement order under Water Code § 13304. Water Code § 13307.1(a)

State Board and regional board accommodation of responsible landowner participation in cleanup or site closure process. Water Code § 13307.1(b)

Recordation of land use restriction before issuance of closure letter or determination that no further action is required with regard to site that is subject to cleanup or abatement order pursuant to Water Code § 13304. Water Code § 13307.1(c)

Administrative civil liability for violation of Act. Water Code § 13323 et seq.

Notification requirements for unauthorized discharges of recycled water. Water Code § 13529 et seq.

[b] Miscellaneous Provisions

Prohibition on unauthorized deposit of any substance deleterious to fish, plant, mammal, or bird life in state waters. Fish & Game Code § 5650(a)(6)

Prohibition on deposit of garbage, motor vehicles, and animal carcasses in state waters. Fish & Game Code § 5652

Prevention of pesticide pollution in groundwater supplies. Food & Agric. Code § 13141 et seq.

Prevention of contamination of water from underground injection of waste. Health & Safety Code § 25159.10 et seq.

Cleanup of methyl tertiary-butyl ether (MTBE) discharges posing contamination threat to drinking water, groundwater, or surface water that may reasonably be used for drinking water, or to coastal waters. Health & Safety Code §§ 25232.5, 116366; Water Code § 13285

Prohibition of lead content in pipe joints and fittings used in potable water supply systems. Health & Safety Code §§ 116875, 116880

Pollution of waters and public places. Health & Safety Code § 117475 et seq.

Drainage from abandoned mines. Water Code § 13397 et seq.

[3] Noise Pollution

Noise Control Act. Health & Safety Code § 46000 et seq.

[4] Hazardous Substances

Environmental Responsibility Acceptance Act cleanup agreements and mediation program. Civ. Code § 850 et seq.

Oil spill contingency plan. Gov. Code § 8574.1 et seq.

Solid Waste Disposal Site Hazard Reduction Act. Gov. Code § 66799 et seq.

Solid waste management and resource recovery. Pub. Res. Code § 40000 et seq.; Health & Safety Code § 117575 et seq.; Health & Safety Code §§ 25143.5, 25143.6

Expenses of emergency response necessary to protect public from threat to health and safety from release, escape, or burning of hazardous substance as recoverable from negligent person. Health & Safety Code § 13009.6

Hazardous waste control regulations. Health & Safety Code § 25100 et seq.

Regulation of storage of hazardous substances in underground containers. Health & Safety Code §§ 25150.1, 25280-25299.5

Use of Toxic Substances Control Account to ameliorate damages caused by hazardous substances. Health & Safety Code § 25173.6

Hazardous Waste Treatment Reform Act of 1995. Health & Safety Code § 25179.1 et seq.

Civil actions for violation of regulations brought by city attorney, district attorney, or state Attorney General. Health & Safety Code § 25182

Surface impoundments of liquid hazardous wastes. Health & Safety Code § 25208.1 et seq.

Lead plumbing monitoring and compliance testing. Health & Safety Code § 24214.4.3

Hazardous waste disposal land use. Health & Safety Code § 25220 et seq.

Toxics Information Clearinghouse. Health & Safety Code § 25251 et seq.

Chemicals of concern. Health & Safety Code § 25252 et seq.

Oversight cost recovery program. Health & Safety Code § 25269 et seq.

Notice to record owners of fee title before local agency, State Water Resources Control Board, or Regional Water Quality Control Board may consider cleanup or site closure proposals from the primary or active responsible party, issue a closure letter, or make a determination that no further action is required with respect to a site on which there was an unauthorized release of hazardous substances or petroleum from an underground storage tank. Health & Safety Code §§ 25297.15, 25299.37.2

Information that must be provided to Department of Toxic Substances Control by person requesting preliminary endangerment assessment or letter stating that no further action is necessary with regard to property. Health & Safety Code § 25355.8

Liability of nonresidential real property owner for failure to provide buyers, lessees, or renters with written notice of presence of hazardous substance on or beneath property; civil penalty. Health & Safety Code § 25359.7

Orphan Share Reimbursement Trust Fund. Health & Safety Code §§ 25390-25390.9

"Cleanup Loans and Environmental Assistance to Neighborhoods Program" for financing of response actions at brownfields and other underutilized property. Health & Safety Code §§ 25395.20-25395.32

Financial Assurance and Insurance for Redevelopment Program (environmental insurance to stimulate redevelopment of brownfields). Health & Safety Code § 25395.40 et seq.

California Land Environmental Restoration and Reuse Act (authorizing local governments to compel investigation and cleanup of brownfields sites). Health & Safety Code § 25401 et seq.

Liability of lenders and fiduciaries for hazardous material contamination. Health & Safety Code § 25548 et seq.

County health emergency as created by accidental release of hazardous waste. Health & Safety Code § 101075 et seq.

[5] Radioactive Materials

Radiation Control Law. Health & Safety Code § 25800 et seq.

Program for controlling radioactive contamination of environment administered by State Department of Health Services. Health & Safety Code § 114705 et seq.

Prevention of dumping radioactive waste in Pacific Ocean. Health & Safety Code § 114780

Radiation monitoring devices for nuclear powerplants. Health & Safety Code § 114785 et seq.

Transportation of radioactive materials. Health & Safety Code § 114820 et seq.; Veh. Code §§ 33000, 33002

[6] Herbicides and Pesticides

Manufacture, sale, and registration of pesticides, defoliating agents, or other economic poisons. Food & Agric. Code § 12751 et seq.

Pesticides and worker safety. Food & Agric. Code §§ 12980-12982

Violations in use, handling, delivery, or sale of economic poisons. Food & Agric. Code §§ 13101-13102

Agricultural use of restricted materials. Food & Agric. Code § 14001 et seq.

Identification and regulation of pesticides which are toxic air contaminants. Food & Agric. Code § 14021 et seq.

Agricultural use of environmentally harmful materials. Food & Agric. Code §§ 14101-14103

[7] Land Conservation

Open Space Maintenance Act. Gov. Code § 50575 et seq.

Open space easements. Gov. Code § 51050 et seq.

California Land Conservation Act of 1965. Gov. Code § 51200 et seq.

California Coastal Act of 1976. Pub. Res. Code § 30000 et seq.

California Coastal Conservancy. Pub. Res. Code § 31000 et seq.

[8] Natural Resources

Geothermal resources. Pub. Res. Code §§ 3700 et seq., 6901-6925.2

Z'berg-Nejedly Forest Practices Act of 1973. Pub. Res. Code § 4511 et seq.

Energy conservation and development. Gov. Code § 4217.10 et seq.; Pub. Res. Code § 25000 et seq.

[9] Oil Pollution

Department of Fish and Game is authorized to clean up, abate, or cause to be cleaned up or abated petroleum spill in waters and to recover any costs incurred from responsible party. Fish & Game Code § 5655

Civil penalty for deposit of oil in state waters; violator liable for cleanup costs to appropriate state agency. Harb. & Nav. Code § 151

Civil penalty for deposit of oil in state marine waters; violator liable for damages and cleanup costs. Harb. & Nav. Code § 294

Control of oil sumps. Pub. Res. Code § 3780 et seq.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Environmental LawAir QualityEnforcementGovernment Civil ActionsEnvironmental LawHazardous Wastes & Toxic SubstancesRadioactive SubstancesFederal & State Regulatory AuthorityEnvironmental LawNatural Resources & Public LandsOil Pollution ActGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawNatural Resources & Public LandsOil Pollution ActOil Spill Liability Trust FundEnvironmental LawWater QualityClean Water ActDischarge PermitsState Water Quality CertificationsEnvironmental LawWater QualityClean Water ActEnforcementGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawWater QualityClean Water ActEnforcementCivil PenaltiesEnvironmental LawWater QualityClean Water ActEnforcementGovernment Civil ActionsEnvironmental LawWater QualityOcean DumpingReal Property LawEnvironmental RegulationGeneral OverviewReal Property LawEnvironmental RegulationUnderground Storage TanksReal Property LawZoning & Land UseState & Regional Planning

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
E. Other State and Federal Environmental Laws

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.142

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.142 Federal Statutes

Fish and Wildlife Coordination Act. 16 U.S.C. § 661 et seq.

Coastal Zone Management Act of 1972. 16 U.S.C. § 1451 et seq.

Obstruction of navigable waters generally. 33 U.S.C. § 403 (Rivers and Harbors Appropriation Act of 1899)

Prohibition against discharge of refuse into or on banks of navigable waters of United States. 33 U.S.C. § 407 (Refuse Act of 1899)

Federal Water Pollution Control Act. 33 U.S.C. § 1251 et seq.

Prohibition against discharge of oil or hazardous substances, in harmful quantities, into or on navigable waters of United States, adjoining shorelines, or waters of contiguous zone, or which may affect natural resources of United States. 33 U.S.C. § 1321

Marine Protection, Research, and Sanctuaries Act of 1972. 33 U.S.C. § 1401 et seq.

International Agreement for Prevention of Pollution from Ships. 33 U.S.C. § 1901 et seq.

Safe Drinking Water Act. 42 U.S.C. § 300f et seq.

Resource Conservation and Recovery Act of 1976. 42 U.S.C. § 6901 et seq.

Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (Superfund Act). 42 U.S.C. § 9601 et seq.

Clean Air Act. 42 U.S.C. § 7401 et seq.

Title to lands beneath navigable waters of states, and natural resources within such lands as vested in states (Submerged Lands Act). 43 U.S.C. § 1301 et seq.

Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act. 43 U.S.C. § 1331 et seq.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Environmental LawHazardous Wastes & Toxic SubstancesCERCLA & SuperfundGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawHazardous Wastes & Toxic SubstancesCERCLA & SuperfundHazardous Substance SuperfundEnvironmental LawNatural Resources & Public LandsOil Pollution ActGeneral OverviewEnvironmental LawSolid WastesResource Recovery & RecyclingEnvironmental LawWater QualityOcean DumpingInternational Trade LawTrade AgreementsEnvironmental ProvisionsGeneral OverviewTransportation LawWater TransportationState & Local Regulation

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE
E. Other State and Federal Environmental Laws

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 418.143-418.149

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

[Reserved]

§§ 418.143[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART IV. FORMS
A. California Environmental Quality Act

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.150

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.150 Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1060, 1085, 1094.5]--Inadequate EIR [Pub. Res. Code §§ 21168, 21168.5]

[1] FORM Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1060, 1085, 1094.5]--Inadequate EIR [Pub. Res. Code §§ 21168, 21168.5]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Petitioner,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE
Respondents.	)
	)
	)

_____

[EITHER]

1. Petitioner(s) _____ [name(s)] is _____ [set forth legal capacity, e.g., a California nonprofit membership corporation duly organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of California which has approximately _____ (insert number) members who reside in _____ (identify locality affected by decision or project)].

[AND/OR]

2. Petitioner(s) _____ [name(s) of individual petitioner] is a citizen and taxpayer of the State of California who resides in _____.

[CONTINUE]

3. Petitioners bring this action on their own behalf and on behalf of the _____ [name of organization] members, and/or supporters who are citizens and taxpayers in the State of California. Petitioner _____ [name(s) of individual petitioners] and members and/or supporters of the _____ [name of organization] live, engage in recreational activities, and/or travel in the vicinity of the proposed _____ [identify project or development challenged]. Petitioners and their members and/or supporters would suffer adverse impacts from the respondents' actions in approving this development. Such adverse impacts would include _____ [set forth facts, e.g., loss of productive agricultural land, increased urbanization of a rural area, impacts on the air quality in the air basin, impacts on ground water resources, impacts on wildlife habitat, impacts on the floodplain and riparian habitat along the river, and serious growth inducement in this rural, agricultural portion of the County.]

4. The _____ [name of City, County, or State agency] is a government agency of the State of California.

5. The _____ [board of supervisors or city council] is the governing body of the _____ [name of City, County, or State agency] and is authorized and required by law to hold public hearings and to determine the adequacy of and certify environmental documents under the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) and to take other actions with respect to the approval of the development within its jurisdiction.

6. Real Party in Interest _____ [name] is _____ [state legal capacity, e.g., a California corporation] and is the project applicant for _____ [name of project].

7. The true names and capacities of DOES 1 through _____, inclusive, are unknown to petitioners. Petitioners will amend this complaint to set forth the true names and capacities of said DOE real parties in interest as soon as the same have been ascertained. Plaintiffs are informed and believe and thereon allege that each of said DOE parties 1 through _____ has jurisdiction by law over one or more aspects of the Project and its approval, and that each of said DOE parties _____ through _____ claims an ownership interest in the property which is the subject of this action, or an interest in its development or the actions of the defendants challenged herein.

8. _____ [Describe project, e.g., Project would be a major residential development on land previously used for agriculture and open space. The Project would consist of 700 single family homes on a 200 acre site and would increase the area's population by approximately 2,800.]

9. The project will have the following environmental impacts: _____ [describe environmental impacts of project, e.g., reduction of already diminished agricultural lands, increased traffic and air pollution, and impacts on groundwater, wildlife, and soil erosion.]

10. Approval of the Project is inconsistent _____ [list any inconsistencies with an adopted agency plan, e.g., with the County's plan to reduce air pollution and improve air quality].

11. On or about _____ [date], the _____ [name of City, County, or State agency] issued a Notice of Preparation notifying all other responsible agencies, interested parties, and surrounding landowners that it was going to prepare an Environmental Impact Report (EIR) to analyze the environmental impacts of the Project.

12. On or about _____ [date], the _____ [name of City, County, or State agency] issued a Draft EIR on the Project. Petitioner(s) _____ [name(s)] and others submitted written and/or oral comments on the Draft EIR.

13. On or about _____ [date], the _____ [name of City, County, or State agency] issued its "response to comments" on the Draft EIR, which purported to respond to the comments received on the Draft EIR. That document, along with the Draft EIR, constitutes the Final EIR.

14. The EIR and the various actions necessary for approval of the Project were considered by the _____ [name of City, County, or State agency] at a public hearing on _____ [date]. Petitioner(s) and others presented detailed testimony concerning the inadequacy of the EIR and the Project's inconsistency with _____ [identify any adopted plan with which Project claimed to be inconsistent].

15. On or about _____ [date], the _____ [name of City, County, or State agency] certified the EIR as legally adequate and approved the Project, including _____ [describe request for action made to respondent, e.g., the General Plan Amendment, rezoning, and tentative subdivision map]. The _____ [name of City, County, or State agency] adopted finding relative to the Project. Its findings included a Statement of Overriding Consideration and other findings in purported compliance with CEQA.

16. On or about _____ [date], the _____ [name of City, County, or State agency] caused a Notice of Determination regarding the approval of the Project to be filed.

17. This action has been brought within 30 days of the filing of the Notice of Determination as required by Public Resources Code Section 21167(c).

18. On _____ [date], before the commencement of this action, petitioners served written notice of the commencement of this action on respondents in accordance with the requirements of Public Resources Code Section 21167.5.

19. On _____ [date], petitioners notified the Attorney General of the State of California of the filing of this complaint and petition and furnished him/her with a copy of the complaint and petition in accordance with the requirements of Public Resources Code Section 21167.7.

20. The action of the respondents in approving the Project, including _____ [describe request for action made to respondent, e.g., the General Plan Amendment, rezoning, and tentative subdivision map] and purporting to comply with CEQA constitute a prejudicial abuse of discretion because the respondents failed to proceed in a manner required by law and made findings which are not supported by substantial evidence, in each of the respects enumerated below.

21. Petitioners have exhausted all administrative remedies in that these determinations by the respondent are final and no further administrative appeal procedures are provided by state or local law. Petitioners and other members of the public presented orally and/or in writing their specific objections to the decisions of _____ [name of City, County, or State agency] at the public meetings and hearings, including but not limited to the matters set forth in paragraphs _____ of this Complaint and Petition below.

22. Petitioners do not have a plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law because the petitioners [and their members] and the public will be irreparably harmed by the ensuing environmental damage and by the respondents' violations of CEQA and state planning and zoning laws.

FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION
[California Environmental Quality Act]

23. Petitioners incorporate by this reference paragraphs _____ through _____ as though they were set forth in full herein.

[Inadequate Description of the Environmental Setting]

24. 14 California Code of Regulations Section 15125 requires that EIRs "must include a description of the physical environmental conditions in the vicinity of the project, as they exist at the time the notice of preparation is published, or if no notice of preparation is published, at the time environmental analysis is commenced, from both a local and regional perspective."

25. The subject EIR failed to include an adequate description of the Project's environmental setting in that _____ [set forth facts, e.g., it failed to discuss the existence of a major wetlands and wildlife preservation area in the immediate vicinity, failed to discuss the Project's location within the Pacific Flyway for migratory waterfowl, and failed to discuss existing and planned wildlife refuges in the project vicinity.]

26. These failures precluded the EIR from meaningfully analyzing the impacts of the Project on the existing environmental setting, including those features of the existing environment described above, and deprived the public, including petitioners [and petitioner's members], of an opportunity to meaningfully comment on the Project and its impacts on the existing environment.

[Inadequate Project Description]

27. Public Resources Code Sections 21151 and 21065 and 14 California Code of Regulations Section 15378(a) requires that EIRs fully disclose and analyze projects, meaning "the whole of an action." In addition, according to 14 California Code of Regulations Section 15378(c), " 'Project' does not mean each separate government approval."

28. An integral part of the Project is the _____ [identify feature of project, e.g., expansion of the existing sewage treatment plant]. The EIR does not describe the scope of that expansion, its impacts, or any way to mitigate those impacts.

29. The plan for _____ [identify feature of project] has shifted over the course of the Project approval and remains uncertain. This shifting description is particularly unacceptable since the proposed park is located in an especially environmentally sensitive portion of the Project site.

30. These deficiencies and shifts in the project description deprived the public, including petitioners [and petitioner's members], of an opportunity to understand and meaningfully comment on the Project and its impacts, and rendered the analyses in the EIR of the Project and its impacts inadequate.

[Inadequate Evaluation of Project Impacts]

31. Public Resources Code Section 21100(a) and 14 California Code of Regulations Sections 15126(a) and 15126.2 provide that an EIR must identify and focus on the significant environmental effects of a proposed project, giving due consideration to both short- and long-term effects. 14 California Code of Regulations Section 15151 provides that an EIR must contain a "sufficient degree of analysis to provide decision makers with information which allows them to make a decision which intelligently takes account of environmental consequences."

32. The subject EIR fails to adequately consider the significant impacts of the Project including but not limited to the respects identified in this Petition.

[EITHER]

a. Land Use and Zoning. 14 California Code of Regulations Section 15125(d) provides that EIRs must discuss any inconsistencies between a proposed project and the applicable _____ [identify plan adopted by agency]. The EIR fails to analyze whether and to what extent the Project is inconsistent with important goals and policies contained in the _____ [identify plan adopted by agency]. It does not recognize or evaluate the adverse impacts that stem from such inconsistencies.

[AND/OR]

b. Agricultural Land Conversion. The EIR fails to adequately analyze the impacts of the loss of productive agricultural land, and fails to adequately consider the impacts of the proposed Project on the continued viability of agriculture in the area due to growth inducement and conflicts between development and agricultural practices.

[AND/OR]

c. Air Quality. The EIR fails to analyze the impacts that the Project would have on the policies and goals contained in the existing Air Quality Plan adopted by _____ [specify administrative agency] adopted pursuant to the Federal and State Clean Air Acts.

[AND/OR]

d. Impacts to Wildlife and Wildlife Habitat. The EIR fails to adequately address the Project's impacts on wildlife and habitat, particularly wetland and riparian habitat within the area adjacent to the Project site. The EIR also fails to adequately address the Project's impacts on endangered species and species of special concern.

[AND/OR]

e. Impacts on Ground Water. The EIR fails to adequately analyze the Project's impacts on the supply and quality of ground water.

[AND/OR]

f. Impacts on Surface Water Quality. The EIR fails to adequately consider the impacts on surface water quality stemming from run off from the Project.

[AND/OR]

g. Traffic. The EIR fails to adequately address the traffic impacts that would be caused by the Project.

[CONTINUE]

33. Growth Inducing Impacts. Public Resources Code Section 21100 (g) and 14 California Code of Regulations Section 15126(g) also require that an EIR must disclose and analyze a project's growth inducing impacts. The subject EIR fails to adequately consider the growth inducing impacts of the Project or of the extension of public services necessary to serve the Project.

34. Cumulative Impacts. 14 California Code of Regulations Section 15130 also specifically requires that an EIR must discuss significant cumulative impacts in conjunction with other planned or proposed projects. The subject EIR violates CEQA in that it does not adequately discuss cumulative impacts of the proposed Project in connection with other development projects which are foreseeable, planned, approved or have been recently constructed, including but not limited to _____ [identify other related development].

[Inadequate Analysis of Alternatives]

35. Public Resources Code Section 21100(b)(4) and 14 California Code of Regulations Sections 15126(f) and 15126.6 require that EIRs must describe a range of alternatives to the proposed project which could feasibly attain the project's basic objectives, and evaluate the comparative merits of the alternatives.

36. The subject EIR's analysis of alternatives is inadequate because it fails to adequately describe alternatives so that an adequate evaluation of the comparative merits of those alternatives could be conducted. [Describe inadequacy of alternative analysis, e.g., The purported alternatives are vague and uncertain, which allows for only a cursory consideration of their comparative environmental impacts, or the EIR fails to identify or analyze any alternative sites for the Project which could mitigate the Project's impacts].

37. Further, the EIR fails to identify an environmentally superior alternative as required by 14 California Code of Regulations Section 15126.6(e)(2), and fails to consider other reasonable alternatives, such as _____ [insert description], that would have reduced the Project's adverse impacts.

[Inadequate Consideration of Mitigation Measures]

38. Public Resources Code Section 21100(c) and 14 California Code of Regulations Sections 15126(e) and 15126.4 require that EIRs contain adequate evaluations of measures to mitigate adverse environmental impacts. In addition, 14 California Code of Regulations Section 15092(b) provides that a public agency shall not approve or carry out a project which has one or more significant environmental effects unless it has "[e]liminated or substantially lessened all significant effects on the environment where feasible."

39. The EIR's discussion of mitigation measures is inadequate in numerous respects, including but not limited to the following:

[EITHER]

a. The EIR does not include any evaluation of the likelihood that the mitigation measures for _____ [insert description of impact] will actually be adopted, and even if they are adopted, whether or not they will be effective in mitigating _____ [insert description of impact].

[AND/OR]

b. A number of the measures discussed in the EIR as a means of mitigating _____ [insert description of impact] are not in fact "mitigation measures" at all, since they merely consist of further study of an impact or are too vague and conclusory to qualify as mitigation measures for the purposes of CEQA.

[AND/OR]

c. Respondents refused to consider in the EIR other measures which were within respondents' jurisdiction to impose and which could have achieved substantially greater mitigation of _____ [insert description of impact].

[CONTINUE]

[Inadequate Response to Comments on the EIR]

40. 14 California Code of Regulations Section 15088(c) provides that agencies must provide a "good faith, reasoned analysis in response" to comments received on the EIR and "conclusory statements unsupported by factual information will not suffice." Agencies must address recommendations and objections in detail and explain why specific comments and suggestions were not accepted.

41. The EIR violates CEQA because respondents failed to adequately respond to comments, suggestions, and recommendations made by petitioners and others with regard to _____ [insert facts, e.g., the Project's description, impacts, mitigation measures, alternatives, and other matters, as alleged above].

[Inadequacy of Respondents' CEQA Findings]

42. Respondents were required by CEQA to determine in written findings whether each of the Project's impacts are significant or not, and whether any significant effects can be avoided. With respect to any significant environmental effects which could not be avoided or mitigated, respondents were further required by 14 California Code of Regulations Section 15091 to make findings that the mitigation measures necessary to reduce project impacts are either (1) solely within the responsibility and jurisdiction of another public agency which can and should adopt those measures, or (2) are made infeasible, along with any alternatives which could reduce impacts, by specific economic, social or other consideration. In such circumstances, 14 California Code of Regulations Sections 15092 and 15093 further requires respondents to find that the benefits of the proposed project outweigh the unavoidable adverse environmental effects.

43. Respondents' actions certifying the EIR and approving the Project constitute an abuse of discretion in addressing the above-described subjects, are not supported by substantial evidence in the record, and fail to comply with CEQA and CEQA Guidelines. Specifically, respondents' actions are invalid because they failed to make proper written findings as required by CEQA, including but not limited to the following:

[EITHER]

a. The findings are conclusory, internally inconsistent, and fail to bridge the analytic gap between the raw evidence and the findings, including but not limited to _____ [insert facts, e.g., respondents' findings regarding the community's purported need for this Project, although the EIR contains no information whatsoever on the existing condition of the community].

[AND/OR]

b. Respondents found that the Project's impacts on _____ [describe environmental impacts, e.g., air quality] were not significant when there was not substantial evidence in the record supporting the finding.

[AND/OR]

c. Respondents found that the Project's impacts on _____ [describe environmental impacts, e.g., air quality] were considered mitigatable to insignificance without actually adopting any mitigation measures.

[AND/OR]

d. Respondents failed to even adopt all of the mitigation measures that were identified as feasible in the final EIR to address the Project's impacts on _____ [describe environmental impacts, e.g., air quality].

[AND/OR]

e. Respondents failed to make any findings at all concerning the Project's impacts on _____ [describe environmental impacts, e.g., air quality].

[AND/OR]

f. Respondents failed to make an adequate statement of overriding considerations as required by CEQA for any unavoidable impacts, because their purported findings as to which impacts were unavoidable were not based on substantial evidence in the record, and because the statement which sets forth the alleged benefits of the Project is not supported by an adequate statement of facts explaining the benefits based on substantial evidence in the EIR or other substantial evidence in the record.

[CONTINUE]

44. In each of the respects enumerated above, respondents have violated their duties under CEQA, abused their discretion, failed to proceed in a manner required by law, and have decided the matters complained of without the support of substantial evidence. Accordingly, the certification of the EIR and the approval of the Project must be set aside.

[SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION]

[Declaratory Relief]

45. Petitioners incorporate by reference paragraphs _____ through _____ as though they were set forth in full herein.

46. An actual controversy exists between the parties. Petitioners contend that respondents have acted in violation of CEQA and state planning law and must vacate and set aside their certification of the EIR and approval of the Project and prepare, circulate, and consider a new and adequate EIR. Respondents dispute these contentions. A judicial resolution of this controversy is necessary and appropriate.

[THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION]
[Injunctive Relief]

47. Petitioners incorporate by reference paragraphs _____ through _____ as though they were set forth in full herein.

48. Petitioners have exhausted their administrative remedies.

49. Unless petitioners are granted injunctive relief they will suffer irreparable harm in that the implementation of the Project will cause permanent harm to petitioners and will create adverse environmental impacts previously described in this Petition, to the detriment of petitioners [and the members of petitioner].

50. Petitioners lack an adequate remedy at law because monetary damages cannot be ascertained and petitioners [and the members of petitioner] cannot be compensated for the environmental degradation caused by this project.

WHEREFORE, petitioners pray as follows:

1. As to all Causes of Action herein, that this court enter judgment determining or declaring that the approval of Project by respondents was illegal and therefore is null and void;

2. As to the First Cause of Action herein, that this court enter judgment determining or declaring that respondents failed to comply with CEQA and therefore the approval of the Project was illegal and is null and void;

3. As to the Second Cause of Action, that this court enter a declaratory judgment in the respects stated in paragraphs 1 and 2 of this prayer.

4. As to the Third Cause of Action, that this court enter a temporary restraining order and a preliminary injunction (a) restraining respondents from granting any permits for or executing any agreements relating to the Project, or otherwise approving any development, demolition, construction, or other activities or undertaking pursuant to or in furtherance of the Project, pending the court's judgment on the matters raised herein; and (b) restraining Real Parties in Interest from commencing or undertaking any development, demolition, construction, or other activities or undertaking pursuant to or in furtherance of the Project, pending the court's judgment on the matters raised herein;

5. That petitioners be awarded their costs of suit herein, including reasonable attorneys fees; and

6. For such other and further relief as the court may deem just and proper.

Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name of petitioner] am one of the Petitioners in this action. I have read the foregoing Petition for Writ of Mandate. I am informed and believe that the matters in it are true, and on that ground allege that the matters stated in the Petition are true, and that the documents attached hereto are true and correct copies.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a petition for a writ of mandate. It should be used when filing an action under the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) [Pub. Res. Code § 21000 et seq.] to set aside the approval of a proposed development project. With modification of the project's description, this form could also be used in a CEQA action to set aside other governmental actions, for example, the adoption of a plan. This petition is a general form--in this case alleging that the environmental impact report prepared by the respondent agency was inadequate. Because the issues will necessarily vary from one case to another, the inadequacies alleged in this form may not be applicable, and care should be taken to ensure that the details alleged fit the particular circumstances of the case. In addition, because a petition may be denied summarily, care must be taken in adapting the form to make certain that no essential allegations are inadvertently omitted.

A petition for writ of mandate must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086]. There are two methods of commencing the action: (1) obtaining an alternative writ from the court [see § 418.151] or (2) service of this petition with a summons. Unless required by a local rule, it is not typical for practitioners to file points and authorities with the petition.

[3] Checklist for Filing CEQA Actions

CEQA has its own distinctive filing requirements (in addition to those applicable to writs of mandate or other civil actions in general). The CEQA requirements are as follows:

- Ascertain Applicable Statute of Limitations: Immediately on being contacted by the client, counsel should determine the applicable statute of limitations, which can be as short as 30 days from the date that the respondent filed a notice of determination that the EIR had been certified and the project approved [see Pub. Res. Code § 21167(c)].

- Identify Real Parties in Interest: Counsel should also ensure that all real parties in interest (e.g., the project applicant for the permit or approval which was the subject of the CEQA action) have been properly identified and that they are named as such in the complaint. Otherwise, the court may treat them as indispensable parties and dismiss the action for failure to name them within the period of the statute of limitations [see Sierra Club, Inc. v. California Coastal Com. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 495, 502, 157 Cal. Rptr. 190] .

- Personally Serve Notice of Suit: A notice that the respondent has been sued under CEQA must be served on the respondent preceding the suit's filing [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.5]. This is usually done by mailing a letter to the respondent advising it of the parties suing, the action challenged, and the court in which the action will be filed.

- Serve Complaint: A copy of the complaint must be served by mail on the Attorney General after the suit's filing [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.7].

- Allege Service of Notices: The service of the above two notices should be alleged in the complaint, preferably with the notice letters attached as exhibits to the complaint.

- Serve Petition: The petition, together with a request for preparation of the administrative record, must be served on the respondent within 10 days of the complaint's filing [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.6(a)].

- Obtain Date for Hearing: The petitioner must obtain a date for the hearing on the merits of the petition within 90 days of the petition's filing [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.4(a)]. Although the hearing date itself need not fall within that 90 days, the failure to obtain a hearing date within that period may lead to an automatic dismissal of the petition [McCormick v. Board of Supervisors (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 352, 357, 243 Cal. Rptr. 617] .

[4] Cross References

For discussion, procedural guide, and forms related to writ of mandate proceedings, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition

For discussion, procedural guide, and forms related to proceedings seeking declaratory relief, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief

For discussion, procedural guide, and forms for use in petitioning a court to review a decision of a public administrative agency through the use of administrative mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5, see Chs. 474B, Standards in Reviewing Agency Decisions , and 474C, Procedures in Reviewing Agency Decisions

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART IV. FORMS
A. California Environmental Quality Act

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.151

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.151 Alternative Writ of Mandate and Order

[1] FORM Alternative Writ of Mandate and Order

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Petitioner,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	ALTERNATIVE WRIT OF MANDATE; ORDER
Respondents.	)
	)
	)

TO: RESPONDENTS _____ [name(s)]

Good cause appearing from the verified petition of _____ [name(s)] for a writ of mandate on file herein,

YOU ARE COMMANDED, on receipt of this writ, to vacate the _____ [describe the decision or action to be vacated], or

IN THE ALTERNATIVE, to show cause before this court on _____, at _____ in Department _____ of this court at the _____ [address of court], why you have not done so.

Dated: _____.

_____, Clerk

_____, Deputy

[seal]

ORDER

Let the foregoing writ issue.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that a copy of this alternative writ and a copy of the Petition for Writ of Mandate and supporting memorandum of points and authorities be served on Respondent on or before _____ and that Respondent's return and any papers opposing issuance of a peremptory writ shall be due on or before _____.

Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
JUDGE OF THE SUPERIOR COURT

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an alternative writ of mandate for use when a CEQA action is commenced by application to the court for issuance of an alternative writ. It is similar in effect to an Order to Show Cause [see § 418.153], which commands the respondent to either take or vacate certain action or show cause why it has not done so on a specified hearing date. This form is used in conjunction with the Petition for Writ of Mandate [see § 418.150]. Its purpose is similar to that of a summons; that is, it serves to assert the court's jurisdiction over the respondent and to bring the respondent before the court. It is issued by the clerk of the court, just as a summons is. It differs from a summons in that a summons specifies only the period in which an answer must be filed by the respondent, while the Alternative Writ of Mandate specifies a hearing date for the court's consideration of the merits of the Petition for Writ of Mandate. It also differs from a summons in that the Alternative Writ of Mandate will not typically be issued by the clerk of the court without an order of the court to do so.

Typically, counsel presents to a judge of the superior court the petition [see § 418.150], points and authorities, the alternative writ, and an application (which may be in the form of a declaration of counsel) for an ex parte order requiring the issuance of the writ. Usually, the application for the ex parte order simply states the nature of the action challenged in the petition, the circumstances justifying the dates set in the alternative writ for a hearing (and the briefing schedule if requested), and compliance with local rules governing such ex parte applications. The local rules must be consulted to determine whether and how this procedure may be employed in commencing a CEQA action. However, although a court is authorized to issue the writ ex parte [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107], a party seeking an ex parte order must notify all parties no later than 10:00 a.m. the court day before the ex parte appearance [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1203(a)]. The safest course is to serve the respondent and the real party in interest or their counsel well in advance of the application with a full set of the papers to be filed, and provide the court with proof of this service.

This form contains an order at the end by which the court directs the clerk of the court to issue the Alternative Writ and establishes the briefing schedule for the hearing. In some instances, the local rules may specify that the Order to issue the writ must be on a separate document and the next form below has been included for that purpose.

[3] Alternative Procedure of Service With Summons and Setting Hearing With a Noticed Motion

The main advantage of getting an alternative writ of mandated issued is that it affords an opportunity for the setting of an earlier hearing date than might otherwise occur in the ordinary course. However, the method is cumbersome compared to the typical method of commencing an action--that is, filing the complaint, obtaining a summons, and serving the complaint with the summons. This latter method is expressly authorized by statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1088.5]. For a form noticing a hearing on the merits after service of the petition, see § 418.158.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART IV. FORMS
A. California Environmental Quality Act

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.152

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.152 Order Directing Issuance of Alternative Writ of Mandate

[1] FORM Order Directing Issuance of Alternative Writ of Mandate

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	ORDER DIRECTING ISSUANCE OF ALTERN-Plaintiff,	)	ATIVE WRIT OF MANDATE
vs.	)	Date: _____
_____ [name],	)	Time: _____
Defendant.	)	Location: _____
	)	Judge: _____
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
	)	Trial Date: _____

_____

Good cause appearing on the face of the verified petition on file in this action,

IT IS ORDERED that an alternative writ of mandate issue under the seal of this court directed to the _____ [name(s)], respondents in this action, commanding then immediately on receipt of the alternative writ to desist and refrain from taking any further action to implement the _____ [name of project] including but not limited to, _____ [specify action, e.g., performing any demolition, construction, improvement work, or initiating the bidding process for such work] until further order of this court, or

IN THE ALTERNATIVE, to show cause before this court on _____, at _____ in Department _____ of this court at the _____ County Superior Courthouse [address of court] why they have not done so.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that a copy of the alternative writ and a copy of this order be served at least _____ days before the hearing on the above Order to show cause.

Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
JUDGE OF THE SUPERIOR COURT

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an order directing the issuance of an alternative writ of mandate for use in an action under CEQA. In those circumstances when the court requires that the order directing issuance of the alternative writ be separate from the writ itself, this form should be used for the order. That portion of the form in § 418.151 before the order would be used as the Alternative Writ of Mandate separate from the order in the form in [1], above. The local rules should be consulted to determine if the order requiring issuance of the alternative writ must be separate from the alternative writ itself. To be safe, counsel should check with the clerk of the court to determine what practice is acceptable in that office, since it is the clerk who must issue the Alternative Writ of Mandate. It should be noted that there is no difference between the practices applicable to CEQA cases in this regard and all other writs of mandate proceedings.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART IV. FORMS
A. California Environmental Quality Act

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.153

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.153 Stay, Temporary Restraining Order, and Order to Show Cause

[1] FORM Stay, Temporary Restraining Order, and Order to Show Cause

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name(s)],	)
Petitioners,	)
vs.	)
_____ [name(s)],	)
and DOES I through _____	)	NO. _____
Respondents,	)	STAY, TEMPORARY RESTRAINING ORDER,
and	)	AND ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE
_____ [name(s)],	)
Real Parties in Interest.	)
	)
	)

_____

On reading the verified Petition in the above-entitled action, the Memorandum of Points and Authorities in Support of Stay, Temporary Restraining Order and Preliminary Injunction, the supporting declarations, and the exhibits filed therewith, and it appearing that this is a proper case for issuance of a stay and a temporary restraining order, and that unless a stay and temporary restraining order issue, Petitioner(s) will suffer irreparable injury before this matter can be heard on notice.

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that Respondents and Real Parties in Interest _____ [name(s)] appear before Department _____ [insert department number] of this court, located at _____ [address] on _____ [date and time], or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard, then and there to show cause why _____ [describe the government action to be stayed, e.g., the permit for the project and all proceedings and activities thereunder] should not be stayed, and why a preliminary injunction should not be issued restraining Respondents and Real Parties in Interest, their agents and employees, and any persons acting for them, at their direction, in concert with them, or on their behalf, from entering into binding commitments to construct, constructing, or organizing any other activity directed at construction or further planning of, the proposed _____ [name of project], including but not limited to:

[EITHER]

1. Demolishing any existing structures of any kind on the site of the proposed _____ [name of project];

[AND/OR]

2. Site preparation;

[AND/OR]

3. Destroying or removing any trees or vegetation;

[AND/OR]

4. Preparing notices, or awarding any notice of bid contracts concerning any aspect of the proposed _____ [name of project] or any activity related to such project;

[AND/OR]

5. Evicting, attempting to evict, ending the tenancy, or in any other way interfering with or affecting the possession of tenants in any buildings located on the site of the proposed _____ [name of project].

[CONTINUE]

STAY AND TEMPORARY RESTRAINING ORDER

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that pending determination of the Order to Show Cause, _____ [describe the action to be stayed, e.g., the permit issued by Respondents for the project and all proceedings and activities thereunder] is hereby stayed, and Respondents and Real Parties in Interest, their agents and employees, and any persons acting for them, at their direction, in concert with them, or on their behalf, are enjoined from:

1. Demolishing any existing structures of any kind on the site of the proposed _____ [name of project];

[AND/OR]

2. Site preparation;

[AND/OR]

3. Destroying or removing any trees or vegetation;

[AND/OR]

4. From soliciting bids concerning any aspect of the proposed _____ [name of project] or any activity related to such project unless all prospective bidders are given written notice of the pendency of this lawsuit;

[AND/OR]

5. Evicting, attempting to evict, ending the tenancy of tenants in any buildings located on the site of the proposed _____ [name of project].

[CONTINUE]

IT IS FURTHER AND FINALLY ORDERED that copies of the Petition, Memorandum of Points and Authorities in Support of Stay, Temporary Restraining Order and Preliminary Injunction, the supporting declarations, and the exhibits filed therewith, shall be served on Respondents and Real Parties in Interest not later than _____ [date]. A copy of this Stay, Temporary Restraining Order and Order to Show Cause shall be served on Respondents and Real Parties in Interest not later than _____ [date]. Any opposition to the motion for preliminary injunction must be served and filed in Department _____ [number of department] five court days before the hearing. Any reply papers must be served and filed two court days before the hearing.

Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
JUDGE OF THE SUPERIOR COURT

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a sample stay, temporary restraining order, and order to show cause for use when litigating under CEQA. It should be used to preserve the status quo pending the court's determination of the merits of the Petition for Writ of Mandate [see § 418.150]. For example, if the agency action challenged by the Petition for Writ of Mandate is the issuance of a permit for the construction of a private development, the construction of that development may commence and even be completed before the court acts on the Petition for Writ of Mandate. If that happened, then environmental damage that the Petition for Writ of Mandate sought to avert may become a reality in advance of the court's adjudication of the petition. A "stay" of the government permit for the project may be sought to suspend the authority of the agency to issue any further permits that may be required for the project (for example, a grading permit) and otherwise to suspend the authority for the developer to proceed with construction of the project, pending the court's judgment.

The relief sought in this form also includes a temporary restraining order directed specifically at preventing the construction, for example. The issuance of the temporary restraining order would have the additional effect of making any further construction in this example a contempt of the court's order, whereas the stay means only that the construction would be undertaken without proper governmental authorization. If petitioner's counsel is concerned that construction may proceed even in the face of a stay, the temporary restraining order should also be requested.

The Order to Show Cause serves to set a hearing date for the court to determine whether the stay should be made permanent and a preliminary injunction issued.

[3] When Stay Is Appropriate

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(g), a stay of a government agency's action may be issued unless "it is against the public interest." The California Supreme Court has articulated the strong "public interest" served by stay orders during judicial review of government actions affecting the environment--to preserve the status quo and so ensure that the petitioners can be granted effective judicial relief if they prevail [People ex rel. San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission v. Town of Emeryville (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 533, 537, 72 Cal. Rptr. 790, 446 P.2d 790] .

[4] Is a Bond Required?

When granting a preliminary injunction, courts must require that an undertaking or "bond" be posted by the person seeking the injunction that indemnifies the person enjoined from damages resulting from the injunction in the event the court later reaches a final decision that the injunction should not have been granted [see Code Civ. Proc. § 529(a)]. In the case of a stay, Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(g) does not require a bond, although the court has discretion in appropriate circumstances to require one. In cases involving preliminary injunctive relief to preserve the environmental status quo pending the determination of the merits of allegations of serious violations of statutes enacted to protect the environment, there is a well-established judicial practice of requiring a nominal bond, if any bond is required at all [see Wilderness Soc. v. Tyrrel, 701 F. Supp. 1473, 1492 (1988) (in suit by four nonprofit citizens organizations to enjoin timber sales pending compliance with environmental protection statute, court set injunction bond at $100 dollars, expressing unwillingness "to close the courthouse door in public interest litigation by imposing a burdensome security requirement"); see also cases cited in Wilderness Society v. Tyrrel, 701 F. Supp. 1473, 1492 (1988)].

179 of 197 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART IV. FORMS
A. California Environmental Quality Act

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.154

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.154 Petitioners' Request for Preparation of Administrative Record

[1] FORM Petitioners' Request for Preparation of Administrative Record

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name(s)],	)
Petitioners,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name(s)],	)	PETITIONERS' REQUEST FOR PREPARATION and DOES I through _____	)	OF ADMINISTRATIVE RECORD
Respondents.	)
	)
	)

_____

To Respondents _____ [name(s)]:

Petitioners _____ [name(s)] hereby request that Respondent _____ [name(s)] prepare the record of proceedings relating to the subject matter of this action, _____ [list action(s), e.g., the certification of the Final Environmental Impact Report] regarding _____ [describe the Project and government approvals for the project]. The Final EIR was certified and the Project was approved on _____ [date] and the Notice of Determination was filed on _____ [date].

Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a request to the respondent agency to prepare the administrative record. It should be used by the petitioners in litigation under CEQA to request that the respondent agency prepare the administrative record underlying the action challenged. Although the request is not required to be filed as a formal pleading, this is recommended in view of the CEQA requirement that a copy of the request must be personally served on the respondent within 10 days of the filing of the Petition for Writ of Mandate [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.6(a); see § 418.150]. Filing of a copy of the request with a proof of service provides documentation of fulfillment of the requirement.

For a sample notice that the administrative record is available for lodging with the court, see § 418.156. For a sample notice of election to prepare the administrative record, see § 418.155.

[3] Using the Administrative Record in CEQA Actions

The Petition for Writ of Mandate, like a complaint, describes the nature of the action challenged and the grounds for relief against that action. Since the government action challenged will usually be based on a record of the proceedings before the agency--the "administrative record"--it is necessary that the record be prepared before the court has an appropriate basis for reviewing the petitioners' challenge to that action.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART IV. FORMS
A. California Environmental Quality Act

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.155

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.155 Petitioners' Notice of Election to Prepare Administrative Record [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.6(b)(2)]

[1] FORM Petitioners' Notice of Election to Prepare Administrative Record [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.6(b)(2)]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name(s)],	)
Petitioners,	)
vs.	)
_____ [name(s)],	)
and DOES I through _____	)	NO. _____
Respondents,	)	PETITIONERS' NOTICE OF ELECTION TO PRE-
and	)	PARE ADMINISTRATIVE RECORD
_____ [name(s)],	)
Real Parties in Interest.	)
	)
	)

_____

Petitioners in this case hereby give notice of their election to prepare the record of proceedings herein in accordance with Public Resources Code Section 21167.6(b)(2). As part of that election, petitioners have requested that the Respondent _____ [name] provide certified copies of the _____ [specify relevant documents, e.g., Final EIR] and all documents pertaining to the subject matter of this case.

Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a notice of election to prepare the administrative record in an action under CEQA. It should be used to give notice to the respondent agency that the petitioner intends to prepare the administrative record rather than requesting that it be prepared by the respondent [see § 418.154]. Typically, the petitioner may choose to prepare the administrative record to save the anticipated cost that the agency may charge if it prepares the administrative record. Also, when the record is very short and the petitioner wants to seek an early disposition of the matter in court, the petitioner may elect to prepare the administrative record to avoid the delay that may accompany the agency's preparation of the record. The attorney should note that this election may not be available in non-CEQA actions.

[3] Election

CEQA provides that "[t]he plaintiff or petitioner may elect to prepare the record of proceedings ... subject to certification of its accuracy by the public agency, within the time limit specified in this subdivision" [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.6(b)(2)]. CEQA does not specify how the petitioner is supposed to make that election, but since petitioner is required to personally serve a copy of a request to prepare the administrative record on the respondent agency within 10 days after filing of the petition [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.6(a)], the respondent should be served with the Notice of Election to Prepare Administrative Record within that period of time. Since the administrative record prepared by the petitioner is "subject to certification of its accuracy by the public agency" [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.6(b)(2)], the petitioner must ensure that the documents compiled conform to the agency's understanding of the scope of the record.

181 of 197 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART IV. FORMS
A. California Environmental Quality Act

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.156

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.156 Notice of Availability of Administrative Record

[1] FORM Notice of Availability of Administrative Record

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name(s)],	)
Petitioners,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name(s)],	)	NOTICE OF AVAILABILITY OF ADMINISand DOES I through _____,	)	TRATIVE RECORD
Respondents.	)
	)
	)

Notice to Petitioner(s) in the above-captioned case and to their attorney of record:

The Administrative Record in the above-captioned case is completed and is available for lodging with the court on payment of the costs incurred in preparation.

Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Respondent _____ [name]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a notice to the petitioner in an action under CEQA for use by the respondent to notify the other parties that the administrative record has been completed and is available for lodging with the court. The form specifies that it will be lodged on the payment of certain costs. In some circumstances, the respondent may choose simply to lodge the administrative record with the court to expedite the proceeding.

For a sample request to prepare the administrative record, see § 418.154. For a sample notice of election to prepare the administrative record, see § 418.155.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART IV. FORMS
A. California Environmental Quality Act

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.157

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.157 Notice of Settlement Meeting [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.8]

[1] FORM Notice of Settlement Meeting [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.8]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name(s)],	)
Petitioners,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name(s)],	)	NOTICE OF SETTLEMENT MEETING
and DOES I through _____,	)
Respondents.	)
	)
	)

_____

TO ALL PARTIES AND THEIR ATTORNEYS:

Please take notice that on _____ [date] at _____ [time] at _____ [address], _____ [city], California, all parties shall meet and attempt to settle this litigation. The failure of petitioner to participate in the settlement process set forth in Public Resources Code Section 21167.8 without good cause may result in dismissal with prejudice of this action.

Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Respondent _____ [name]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a notice of a settlement meeting for the respondents' use in noticing a settlement conference required under CEQA [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.8]. A notice of the settlement meeting is required to be filed with the court within 20 days after service of the petition [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.8(a)]. The meeting must be scheduled and held within 45 days of service of the petition [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.8(a)].

[3] Settlement Meetings

At the settlement meeting the parties must attempt in good faith to settle the litigation and the dispute that forms the basis of the litigation [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.8(b)]. The discussion must be comprehensive in nature and focus on the legal issues raised by the parties concerning the project that is the subject of the litigation [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.8(c)]. The settlement meeting may be continued without postponing or otherwise delaying other applicable time limits in the litigation [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.8(c)]. If the litigation is not settled, the court may in its discretion, or at the request of any party must, schedule a further settlement conference before a superior court judge [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.8(d)]. Any party who was notified of the settlement meeting and who fails to participate in the settlement process, without good cause, is subject to the imposition of sanctions by the court [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.8(e)]. However, Pub. Res. Code § 21167.8 requires only the litigants' lawyers, and not the actual litigants themselves, to attend the settlement meeting [McDowell v. Watson (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1155, 1166, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 692] .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART IV. FORMS
A. California Environmental Quality Act

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.158

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.158 Notice of Hearing on Writ of Mandate [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.4]

[1] FORM Notice of Hearing on Writ of Mandate [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.4]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name(s)],	)
Petitioners,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name(s)],	)	NOTICE OF HEARING ON WRIT OF MANDATE
and DOES I through _____	)
Defendants.	)
	)
	)

_____

TO RESPONDENTS _____ [names] AND REAL PARTIES IN INTEREST _____ [names] AND THEIR ATTORNEYS OF RECORD:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that on _____ [date], at _____ [time], or as soon thereafter as the matter can be heard, in Department _____ of the Superior Court of _____ County, _____ [address], California, a hearing will be held on the merits of the Petition for Writ of Mandate. Petitioner(s) will also move the court for the issuance of a peremptory writ of mandate ordering respondent(s) to set aside their _____ [describe decision or order sought to be vacated, e.g., approval of the Project], as more particularly described in the Petition for Writ of Mandate on file herein. This motion will be made in accordance with Public Resources Code Section 21000 et seq. and Code of Civil Procedure Sections 1085 and 1094.5 et seq.

This motion is based on all pleadings, papers, and records filed in this action, the subsequent briefing of the parties on the merits of the petition, the record of the proceedings, and on such evidence and argument as may be presented at the hearing.

Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a notice of hearing on a petition for a writ of mandate. The form is for the petitioners' use in noticing a motion setting a hearing date for the court's consideration of the merits of the petition. Local rules may permit other means of obtaining the hearing date. In any event, the petitioner must obtain a date for the hearing on the merits of the petition within 90 days of the filing of the petition [Pub. Res. Code § 21167.4]. Although the hearing date itself need not fall within that 90 days, the failure to obtain a hearing date within that period may lead to the petition's automatic dismissal [McCormick v. Board of Supervisors (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 352, 357, 243 Cal. Rptr. 617] .

For a sample Petition for Writ of Mandate, see § 418.150.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART IV. FORMS
A. California Environmental Quality Act

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.159

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.159 Final Judgment for Petitioner

[1] FORM Final Judgment for Petitioner

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name(s)],	)
Petitioners,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name(s)],	)	FINAL JUDGMENT
and DOES I through _____	)
Respondents.	)
	)
	)

_____

The above-entitled action came regularly for hearing before Department _____ of the above entitled court on _____ [date], the Honorable _____ [name of Judge], Judge, presiding without a jury. _____ [Name(s)] appeared for petitioners. _____ [Name(s)] appeared for respondent _____ [name(s)]. _____ [Name(s)] appeared for real party in interest _____ [name(s)].

The administrative record was received by the court. After consideration of the administrative record, the briefs filed by counsel, _____ [identify any other papers considered], and the oral arguments of counsel,

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED, AND DECREED that judgment shall be for and in favor of petitioners

_____ [name(s)].

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, ADJUDGED, AND DECREED that:

1. The writ of mandate prayed for by petitioners is GRANTED. The proceedings are remanded to the respondent _____ [name]. Respondent _____ [name], you are hereby commanded immediately after receipt of this Judgment

(a) to vacate and set aside your decision of _____ [date] certifying the final EIR on the _____ [name of project].

[AND/OR]

(b) to vacate and set aside your decision of _____ [date] approving the _____ [name of project],

[AND/OR]

(c) not to recertify any environmental document or reissue _____ [identify project approval, e.g., the use permit] dealing with the _____[name of project] until and unless a full and complete environmental impact report is prepared which fully addresses all issues set forth in _____ [identify court opinion or order, if any, e.g., the Order on Writ of Mandate] issued by this court on _____ [date] and which fully complies with all requirements of the California Environmental Quality Act, Public Resources Code Section 21000 et seq.

2. Petitioners shall recover their costs in this action, as allowed by law.

Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
JUDGE OF THE SUPERIOR COURT

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a final judgment when the court has ruled in the petitioner's favor on a petition for writ of mandate under CEQA [see § 418.150]. The form contains not only the confirmation of that ruling but also a stay or injunction against the respondent's further implementation of the decision challenged. CEQA contemplates use of injunctive relief or a stay as a means of effectuating its provisions after a final determination on the merits [see Pub. Res. Code § 21168.9(a)]. In the case of a judgment in the defendant's favor, the form could be revised to state that the judgment is in favor of the defendant and that costs are awarded to the defendant.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART IV. FORMS
A. California Environmental Quality Act

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 418.160-418.169

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

[Reserved]

§§ 418.160[Reserved]

186 of 197 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART IV. FORMS
B. Citizen Suits

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.170

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.170 Petition for Writ of Mandate--Judicial Review of Administrative Agency Action

[1] FORM Petition for Writ of Mandate--Judicial Review of Administrative Agency Action

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Petitioner,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE
Respondents.	)
	)
	)

_____

THE PARTIES

[EITHER]

1. Petitioner(s) _____ [names(s) of individual petitioners] is a citizen and taxpayer of the State of California. Petitioner _____ [describe interest in subject of action, e.g., is a life-long recreational fisherman, and engages in this and other recreational activities in areas which include the habitat of the fish species at issue in this case]. Petitioner's interests will be adversely affected by the decision of the agency at issue herein in that _____ [describe adverse effects, e.g., the population of the species will continue to decline and face extinction without the protection afforded endangered species under state law and petitioner's enjoyment of related recreational activities will be diminished].

[AND/OR]

2. Petitioner(s) _____ [name(s)] is, and at all times relevant hereto was, _____ [set forth legal capacity, e.g., a national environmental group organized as a not-for-profit membership corporation under the laws of New York and registered to do business in California.] Petitioner has over _____ members who are citizens and taxpayers of the State of California and who [describe interests, e.g., have a direct interest in the survival and perpetuation of their state's wildlife and wildlife habitat, including the instant fish species and its diminishing habitat, in that petitioner's members use rivers and streams that provide habitat for the instant fish species, for reasons such as recreation and wilderness experiences.] Petitioner participated in the administrative proceedings below. Petitioner brings this action on its own behalf and on behalf of its members

[CONTINUE]

3. Respondent _____ [name of agency, e.g., California Fish and Game Commission] is, and at all times relevant hereto was, _____ [describe legal status, e.g., a state administrative body entrusted with specific regulatory and adjudicatory duties relating to the protection of wildlife, including endangered species in particular.]

4. The true names and capacities of DOES 1 through _____, inclusive, are unknown to Petitioners at this time. Petitioners will amend this complaint to set forth the true names and capacities of said DOE respondents and defendants as soon as the same have been ascertained. Petitioners are informed and believe and thereon allege that each of said DOE respondents or defendants 1 through _____ has jurisdiction by law over _____ [describe subject matter of suit, e.g., the fish species at issue herein] or activities affecting it, and that DOES _____ through _____ otherwise have an interest in _____ [describe subject matter of suit, e.g., the fish species at issue herein] or activities affecting it.

5. The beneficiary of this Petition for Writ of Mandate is _____ [describe subject matter of suit, e.g., the fish species at issue herein], which has been a major cultural, biological, and economic asset in this state but is now nearing extinction].

6. On _____ [date] _____ [describe request submitted to agency, e.g., petitioner submitted a Petition to the California Fish and Game Commission to list the fish species as an endangered species under Fish & Game Code Section 2074.2].

7. On _____ [date] _____ [describe agency's actions, e.g., the Fish and Game Commission held a hearing to consider the Petition to list the species as endangered, and voted to reject the Petition and deny the species status as a candidate for endangered species listing].

8. Petitioners have exhausted their administrative remedies by submissions to and appearances before Respondent Commission, advising it of its public duties, and requesting compliance therewith. Further exhaustion and demand would have proved futile.

9. Petitioners do not have any plain, speedy, or adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law. Petitioners' only recourse is the relief provided by _____ [state basis for judicial review, e.g., Fish & Game Code Section 2076, which provides for judicial review under Code of Civil Procedure Section 1094.5 and Code of Civil Procedure Section 1097].

10. Petitioners have a clear and present right and an immediate and beneficial interest in _____ [describe subject of action, e.g., the Fish and Game Commission's compliance with the California Endangered Species Act].

11. If Respondent's action is allowed to stand, Petitioners will suffer irreparable harm, including _____ [describe irreparable harm, e.g., the fish species' continuing decline and eventual extinction]. No money damages or other legal remedy could adequately compensate Petitioners for the harm the Respondent's conduct has caused and continues to cause.

FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION FOR ABUSE OF DISCRETION

12. Petitioner(s) reallege and incorporate by reference herein the allegations set for in Paragraphs 1 through _____ of this Petition, as though fully set forth below.

13. In its decision challenged herein, Respondent failed to base its decision on substantial evidence, to apply the proper evidentiary standard, and to comply with the procedures prescribed in the Fish & Game Code. In particular, _____ [describe deficiencies in agency's decision, e.g., under the evidence presented by Petitioners and others regarding the species' condition, and the low threshold standard for acceptance of a petition for listing under the California Endangered Species Act, the Commission had a mandatory duty under Fish & Game Code Section 2074.2 to accept the Petition because it provided "sufficient information to indicate that the petitioned action may be warranted."].

14. As a result Respondent prejudicially abused its discretion and failed to proceed in the manner required by law in _____ [describe action challenged, e.g., denying the petition to list the species as endangered.]

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION FOR INADEQUATE FINDINGS

15. Petitioners reallege and incorporate by reference herein the allegations set forth in Paragraphs 1 through _____ of this Petition, as though fully set forth below.

16. Contrary to the requirements of _____ [identify legal authority, e.g., Fish & Game Code Section 2074.2], the Respondent failed to make and release adequate findings supporting its decision, including but not limited to the following:

[EITHER/OR]

(a) There was no express finding _____ [identify finding omitted, e.g., whether the Petition provided "sufficient information to indicate that the petitioned action may be warranted" in accordance with Fish & Game Code Section 2074.2].

[AND/OR]

(b) There was no finding purporting to evaluate the information presented against any of the ultimate standards required to be complied with _____ [identify finding omitted, e.g., when the Petition provided "sufficient information to indicate that the petitioned action may be warranted" under Fish & Game Code Section 2074.2].

[AND/OR]

(c) Respondent applied erroneous legal standards in the findings it did make, in that _____ [identify deficiency in findings, e.g., Respondent's finding that under Fish & Game Code Section 2074.2 "there was insufficient evidence to find there was an immediate threat to the continued existence" of the species is not the proper standard for determining candidacy].

[AND/OR]

17. The findings are inadequate as a matter of law because they do not exhibit any weighing of the evidence, or otherwise bridge the analytical gap between the evidence and the Respondent's decision, in that _____ [identify deficiency in findings, e.g., the findings do not show any consideration of the evidence presented by Petitioners and others concerning conditions and circumstances within the last 20 years which support the species' candidacy, including any of the population trends or environmental changes occurring during that period, or the opinion of the Department and the other scientific opinion supporting candidacy presented in the proceeding].

[AND/OR]

18. Respondent's findings are internally inconsistent in that _____ [identify inconsistency, e.g., Respondent's findings present inconsistent conclusions regarding population trends].

[CONTINUE]

19. In each of the above respects and others, the Respondent's decision is not supported by the findings, its findings are not supported by the evidence, and its findings fail to bridge the analytic gap between the evidence and its ultimate decision. As a result, Respondent has prejudicially abused its discretion, and it has failed to proceed in the manner required by law.

THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION FOR DECLARATORY RELIEF

20. Petitioners reallege and incorporate by reference herein the allegations set forth in Paragraphs 1 through _____ of this Petition, as though fully set forth below.

21. Petitioners contend that the Respondent's decision _____ [describe actions challenged, e.g., denying the species status as a candidate for endangered species listing and Respondent's failure to prepare adequate findings in support of that decision] constitute a prejudicial abuse of Respondent's lawful discretion.

22. Respondent contends that its decision above described was and is lawful and proper.

23. An actual controversy has arisen and now exists between Petitioners and Respondent concerning their respective rights and duties under _____ [identify legal authority, e.g., Fish & Game Code Section 2074.2].

24. Petitioners desire a judicial determination and declaration of Petitioners' and Respondent's respective rights and duties, including _____ [state declaration sought, e.g., a declaration of whether the Fish & Game Commission's decision denying candidacy status to the species and its failure to make and release adequate findings in support of that decision violate Fish & Game Code Section 2074.2 and other legal requirements]. Such a declaration is necessary and appropriate at this time.

PRAYER FOR RELIEF

WHEREFORE, Petitioners respectfully pray as follows:

1. On the First and Second Causes of Action, that the court issue a writ of mandate commanding Respondent to set aside its prejudicial action of _____ [date] and issue a new decision _____ [describe new decision sought, e.g., advancing the instant fish species to candidacy for endangered species listing].

2. On the Third Cause of Action, that the court declare Petitioners' and Respondent's respective rights and duties;

3. On all Causes of Action, for fees and costs incurred herein, including reasonable attorney's fees; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court deems just and proper.

Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Petitioner _____ [name]

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name of petitioner] am one of the Petitioners in this action. I have read the foregoing Petition for Writ of Mandate. I am informed and believe that the matters in it are true, and on that ground allege that the matters stated in the Petition are true, and that the documents attached hereto are true and correct copies.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a petition for a writ of mandate for judicial review of a decision of an administrative agency--in this case a decision of the Fish & Game Commission denying a petition for a species to become a candidate for listing under the California Endangered Species Act [Fish & Game Code § 2074.2]. Because the issues will necessarily vary from one case to another, the kinds of deficiencies alleged in this form in the agency's decision may not be applicable, and care should be taken to ensure that the details alleged fit the particular circumstances of the case. In addition, because a petition may be denied summarily, care must also be taken in adapting the form to make certain that no essential allegations are inadvertently omitted.

A Petition for Writ of Mandate must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1086, 1103]. There are two methods of commencing the action: (1) obtaining an alternative writ from the court or (2) service of the petition with a summons. Unless required by a local rule, it is not typical for practitioners to file points and authorities with the petition.

For a sample petition for writ of mandate applicable for use in an action under the California Environmental Quality Act [Pub. Res. Code § 21000 et seq.], see § 418.150.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART IV. FORMS
B. Citizen Suits

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.171

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.171 60-Day Notice of Intent to Sue Under Proposition 65

[1] FORM 60-Day Notice of Intent to Sue Under Proposition 65

_____ [Letterhead]

_____ [date]

_____ [name]

California Attorney General

_____ [address of Attorney General]

_____ [name]

District Attorney

_____ [name of County or City and County]

_____ [address of District Attorney]

_____ [name]

City Attorney

_____ [name of City or City and County]

_____ [address of City Attorney]

Re: 60-Day Notice for Failure to Warn Public About Chemicals Listed Under Health & Safety Code Section 25249.6

Dear Prosecutors:

I represent _____ [name, address, and telephone number of person or organization intending to sue]. This letter constitutes notification that _____ [name of violator] whose offices are at _____ [address] has violated Proposition 65, the Safe Drinking Water and Toxic Enforcement Act (commencing with Health & Safety Code Section 25249.5).

In particular, _____ [name of violator] _____ [describe nature of violation, e.g., has exposed and continues to expose numerous individuals within the residential neighborhood immediately adjacent to its facility] to _____ [identify chemical, e.g., lead], a chemical subject to Proposition 65 and listed as a carcinogen on _____ [date of listing]. The time period of this violation commenced on or about [date], more than one year after the listed date for _____ [identify chemical, e.g., lead] and has continued to the present. The route of exposure has been _____ [identify route of exposure, e.g., inhalation].

While in the course of doing business, _____ [name of violator] is knowingly and intentionally exposing people to this chemical which has been designated by the state to cause cancer without first giving clear and reasonable warning to such persons (Health & Safety Code Section 25249.6). The method of warning is specified in the regulation (22 California Code of Regulations Section 12601). The geographic location of the violation is _____ [identify area of exposure, e.g., within one-half mile of the company's manufacturing facility].

Proposition 65 requires that notice and intent to sue be given to a violator 60-days before the suit is filed. With this letter, _____ [name of person or organization intending to sue] gives notice of the alleged violation to _____ [name of violator] and the appropriate governmental authorities. This notice covers all violations of Proposition 65 that are currently known to _____ [name of person or organization intending to sue] from information now available to us.

With the copy of this notice submitted to the _____ [name of violator], a copy is provided of The Safe Drinking Water and Toxic Enforcement Act of 1986 (Proposition 65): A Summary.

If you have any questions, please contact my office at your earliest convenience.

Sincerely,

_____ [name of attorney]

cc: _____ [name and address of alleged violators]

Proof of Service [attached to the above letter]

I, _____ [name], hereby declare as follows:

I am a citizen of the United States; am over the age of 18 years and am not a party to the within action. My business address is _____ [address].

On _____ [date], I served copies of the attached 60-Day Notice for Failure to Warn Public About Chemicals Listed Pursuant to Health & Safety Code Section 25249.6 on the parties listed below by placing true and correct copies of the same in sealed envelopes with first class postage fully prepaid thereon and deposited in the U.S. Mail at _____ [city], California:

_____ [name]
California Attorney General
_____ [address of Attorney General]

_____ [name]
District Attorney
_____ [name of County or City and County]
_____ [address of District Attorney]

_____ [name]
City Attorney
_____ [Name of City or City and County]
_____ [address of City Attorney]

_____ [name of violator]
_____ [address of violator]

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a 60-day notice of intent to sue under Proposition 65 [Health & Safety Code § 25249.6]. It is intended for use as notice to violators of Proposition 65 and specified public prosecutors, which is required to be sent 60 days before the filing of a complaint alleging violations of Proposition 65. The above form has been styled as one from an attorney representing the person or organization sending the notice, but it could also be issued directly by that person or organization.

This form alleges violations of the warning requirement in Health & Safety Code § 25249.6, but it could be reworded to serve as notice of a violation of the prohibition in Health & Safety Code § 25249.5 of discharges or releases of listed chemicals into a source of drinking water. As noted in [3], below, there are specific regulatory requirements for a notice under Proposition 65. Therefore, while this form could be modified to serve as a notice of intent to sue under other citizen suit provisions, the particular statute and regulations should be consulted for any different requirements for the content of such a notice. It is important to recognize that statutes requiring such notices have been construed as making the notice an absolute prerequisite to the filing of a suit [Hallstrom v. Tillamook County (1989) 493 U.S. 20, 26-28, 110 S. Ct. 304, 107 L. Ed. 2d 237] . Under the Hallstrom rule, the plaintiff cannot file suit and then comply with the 60-day notice requirement.

For discussion of the Safe Drinking and Toxic Enforcement Act of 1986 (Proposition 65), including coverage of the purpose of the Act and prohibitions and exceptions under the Act, see § 418.50.

[3] Checklist for Contents of Proposition 65 Notice

The California Department of Health Services has established by regulation specific requirements for the contents of Proposition 65 notices. The notices must contain the following to the extent applicable to the alleged violation [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 12903]:

- The name, address, and telephone number of the noticing individual or a responsible individual within the noticing entity and the name of the entity.

- The name of the alleged violator or violators.

- The approximate time period during which the violation is alleged to have occurred;

- The name of each listed chemical involved in the alleged violation.

- For notices of violations of Health & Safety Code § 25249.5, a general identification of the discharge or release and of the source of drinking water into which the discharges are alleged to have occurred, to be occurring, or to be likely to occur.

- For all notices of violation of Health & Safety Code § 25249.6, the route of exposure by which exposure is alleged to occur (e.g., by inhalation, ingestion, or dermal contact).

- For notices of violation of Health & Safety Code § 25249.6 involving consumer product exposures, the name of the consumer product or service, or the specific type of consumer product or services, that cause the violation, with sufficient specificity to inform the recipients of the nature of the items allegedly sold in violation of the law and to distinguish those products or services from others sold or offered by the alleged violator for which no violation is alleged. The identification of a chemical under 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 12903(b)(2)(A)4 must be provided for each product or service identified in the notice.

- For notices of violation of Health & Safety Code § 25249.6 involving occupational exposures: (1) the general geographic location of the unlawful exposure to employees, or where the exposure occurs at many locations, a description of the occupation or type of task performed by the exposed persons; (2) where the alleged violator is the manufacturer or distributor of the chemical or products causing the exposure, the notice must identify products in the same manner as set forth for consumer product exposures above.

- For notices of violation of Health & Safety Code § 25249.6 involving environmental exposures as defined in 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 12601(d), the notice must identify, the location of the source of the exposure. When numerous sources of the exposure are alleged, the location need not be listed if the notice identifies each facility or source of exposure by stating those common characteristics that result in the allegedly unlawful exposure in a manner sufficient to distinguish those facilities or sources from others for which no violation is alleged. The notice must also state whether the exposure for which a warning allegedly is required occurs beyond the property owned or controlled by the alleged violators.

In addition to the above, each notice to an alleged violator must include as an attachment a copy of "The Safe Drinking Water and Toxic Enforcement Act of 1986 (Proposition 65): A Summary" prepared by the Department of Health Services. A copy of this attachment may be obtained by writing to the Office of Environmental Health Hazard Assessment at P.O. Box 942732, Sacramento, CA 94234-7320.

[4] Certificate of Merit

If the notice of intent to sue alleges a violation of the warning requirement set forth in Health & Safety Code § 25249.6, it must include a certificate of merit executed by the attorney for the noticing party or by the noticing party if that party is not represented by an attorney [Health & Safety Code § 25249.7(d)(1)]. The certificate of merit must state that the person executing the certificate has consulted with one or more persons with relevant and appropriate experience or expertise who has reviewed facts, studies, or other data regarding the exposure to the listed chemical that is the subject of the action and that, based on that information, the person executing the certificate believes there is a reasonable and meritorious case for the private action. Factual information sufficient to establish the basis of the certificate of merit must be attached to the certificate of merit served on the Attorney General [Health & Safety Code § 25249.7(d)(1)]. The Attorney General may provide that factual information on request to any district attorney, city attorney, or prosecutor within whose jurisdiction the violation is alleged to have occurred, or to any other state or federal government agency, but in all other respects must maintain, and ensure that all recipients maintain, the submitted information as confidential [Health & Safety Code § 25249.7(i)].

The basis for the certificate of merit is not discoverable [Health & Safety Code § 25249.7(h)(1)]. However, if at the conclusion of the action the trial court determines that there was no actual or threatened exposure to a listed chemical, it may, on the motion of the alleged violator or on the court's own motion, review the basis for the certificate of merit. The information in the certificate, including the identity of the persons consulted with and relied on by the certifier and the facts, studies, or other data reviewed by those persons, must be disclosed to the court in an in-camera proceeding at which the moving party may not be present. If the court finds there was no credible factual basis for the certifier's belief that an exposure to a listed chemical had occurred or was threatened, the action will be deemed frivolous within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 128.6 or 128.7, whichever is applicable to the action [Health & Safety Code § 25249.7(h)(2)]. Note that Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 applies to sanctions for frivolous tactics in actions commenced in 1995 through 2005 unless the Legislature changes the ending date [for discussion, see Ch. 510, Sanctions].

[5] Service of Proposition 65 Notice

Notices must be served (with a certificate of service attached) by first class mail or in any manner that would be sufficient for service of a summons and complaint under the California Code of Civil Procedure on (1) each alleged violator, (2) the Attorney General, (3) the district attorney of every county in which a violation is alleged to have occurred, and (4) on the city attorneys of any cities with populations according to the most recent decennial census of over 750,000 and in which the violation is alleged to have occurred [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 12903(c)(3)]. When the alleged violator has a current registration with the California Secretary of State that identifies a Chief Executive Officer, President, or General Counsel of the corporation, the notice must be addressed to one of those persons [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 12903(c)(4)].

188 of 197 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART IV. FORMS
B. Citizen Suits

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 418.172-418.179

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

[Reserved]

§§ 418.172[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART IV. FORMS
C. Common Law Environmental Tort Actions

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.180

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.180 Complaint for Damages, Declaratory Relief, Equitable Indemnity, Preliminary and Permanent Injunction (Negligence, Nuisance, Trespass) for Contamination of Property

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages, Declaratory Relief, Equitable Indemnity, Preliminary and Permanent Injunction (Negligence, Nuisance, Trespass) for Contamination of Property

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [names],	)	COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES, DECLARATORY
and DOES I through _____,	)	RELIEF, EQUITABLE INDEMNITY, PRELIMIN-Defendants.	)	ARY AND PERMANENT INJUNCTION
	)	(Negligence, Nuisance, Trespass)
	)

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is _____ [set forth legal capacity, e.g., a resident of a specified County]. Plaintiff is and at all times herein mentioned was, the _____ [specify proprietary interest, e.g., owner] and in possession and control of certain real property consisting of land and _____ [describe improvements, e.g., a single family house] at _____ [address], _____ County, California, and more particularly described as follows: _____ [give legal description].

2. Defendant _____ [name] is _____ [set forth legal capacity, e.g., a California corporation]. Defendant is and at all times herein mentioned was, the _____ [specify proprietary interest or other capacity, e.g., owner] and in possession and control of certain real property consisting of land and _____ [describe improvements, e.g., a gasoline station including underground storage tanks containing gasoline, other petroleum hydrocarbons, and benzene and other carcinogens used in the operation of its gasoline station] at _____ [address], _____ County, California, and more particularly described as follows: _____ [give legal description].

3. The true names or capacities, whether individual, corporate, associate, or otherwise, of defendants DOES 1-_____, inclusive, are unknown to plaintiff, who therefore sues these defendants by such fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the contamination herein referred to and thereby proximately caused injuries and damages to the plaintiff as herein alleged.

4. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that at all times mentioned in this complaint each of the defendants was the agent and employee of each of the remaining defendants, and in doing the things alleged below, was acting within the course and scope of such agency and employment.

5. Plaintiff's property and the property of defendants, and each of them, are _____ [describe relative locations, e.g., adjoining each other at plaintiff's north and defendants' south boundaries]. Defendants' _____ [describe business or operation which is source of contamination, e.g., underground storage tanks containing gasoline, other petroleum hydrocarbons, and benzene and other carcinogens used in the operation of its gasoline station] are located approximately _____ [specify distance, e.g., 150 feet] from plaintiff's _____ [describe property improvement, e.g., dwelling].

6. At all times mentioned in this complaint, and since _____ [date], defendants, and each of them, have occupied, used, and maintained their premises in such a manner that _____ [allege facts, e.g., gasoline and other petroleum hydrocarbons have leaked from the underground storage tanks on defendant's property and have migrated into and contaminated the soil on plaintiff's land and the groundwater thereunder].

[EITHER]

7. As a proximate result of the Defendants' acts or omissions, Plaintiff has suffered damages including, but not limited to, an interference with Plaintiff's use of his/her residential property, a diminution in the property's value, and substantial other costs and expenses. Plaintiff is informed and believes and based thereon alleges that he/she has suffered damages in excess of $25,000.00 in diminution of property value as a result of the presence of the contaminants _____ [describe location, e.g., in the soil of Plaintiff's property and subjacent groundwater].

[AND/OR]

8. As a further proximate result of Defendants' acts and omissions, Plaintiff has suffered physical damage to his/her property as a result of the contaminants _____ [describe location, e.g., in the soil of Plaintiff's property and subjacent groundwater]. Such physical damage is _____ [specify areas damaged, e.g., to the structures on such lot and to the lot itself,] in the respects _____ [specify facts, e.g., that the presence of such contaminants makes such structure less suitable for habitation, induces build up of harmful air pollutants and potentially explosive gases in the confined spaces of such structure, and renders the lot unusable or less usable for the normal purposes such as gardening, providing a safe play area for children, or a place for Plaintiff to relax and entertain].

[AND/OR]

9. As a result of purchasing the real property, Plaintiff made certain improvements on the property, the cost and reasonable value of which exceeds $_____. Were it not for the presence of contaminants in the property, the real property would have increased in its fair market value by such amount. Also, Plaintiff has incurred other expenses in the amount of $ _____ in addition to those alleged above, including, without limitation, closing costs, title insurance, casualty and liability insurance, principal and interest on obligations outstanding, taxes, fees for engineers, and moving expenses. Plaintiff will continue to incur them in an amount unknown to Plaintiff at this time. Plaintiff prays leave of court to amend this complaint to insert herein the full amount of those expenses when they are ascertained. All of these expenses were necessary, and all were made in the good faith reliance that the property was free from contamination.

[AND/OR]

10. As a further proximate cause of the Defendant's acts and omissions, Plaintiff has incurred great mental and nervous suffering and pain due _____ [describe causes of emotional distress, e.g., to nervousness, fright, worry and anxiety about the certain and potential financial and/or health damages caused by Defendant's acts and omissions]. As a result of such injuries, Plaintiff has suffered general damages in an amount according to proof.

[AND/OR]

11. In engaging in the acts set forth above, Defendants each were guilty of malice, fraud, and oppression as defined in Civil Code Section 3294, and Plaintiff should recover, in addition to actual damages, damages to make an example of and punish Defendants, in an amount to be determined.

[AND/OR]

12. Plaintiff has incurred and, during the pendency of this action, will incur expenses for attorneys' fees and costs herein. Such attorneys' fees are necessary for the prosecution of this action. The exact sum of such attorneys' fees and costs is presently unascertained and Plaintiff request the court's permission to amend this claim for costs and attorneys' fees when the amounts are determined.

[CONTINUE]

FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION FOR NEGLIGENCE
[Damages for Negligence]

13. Plaintiff realleges and incorporates herein by reference the allegations contained in Paragraphs 1 through _____ above.

14. Defendants, while owning or occupying or conducting operations on their property, had a duty at all times to avoid handling, storing, disposing of, or releasing the contaminants in a manner which would cause injury to plaintiff, the public, and the environment.

15. Defendants negligently failed to exercise due care in storing, using, or disposing of, or causing to be disposed of, the contaminants on its property, causing the contaminants to be released _____ [describe location, e.g., onto and into the ground of plaintiff's property and into the subjacent groundwater].

16. As a direct and proximate result of the negligent acts or omissions of defendants, plaintiff has been injured incurring the costs and suffering the damages alleged in Paragraphs _____ through _____ above, and incorporate herein by this reference those allegations.

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION FOR NUISANCE
[Damages for Private Nuisance]

17. Plaintiff realleges and incorporates herein by reference the allegations contained in Paragraphs _____ through _____ above.

18. At various times beginning in _____ [date] and through the present date, defendants caused or permitted the release of the contaminants on its property and failed to clean up the contamination, or otherwise remedy the situation so that the contaminants migrated _____ [describe location, e.g., into the soil and subjacent groundwater of plaintiff's property] and in such a manner as to be injurious to health and property, to obstruct plaintiff's free use of _____ [describe areas damaged, e.g., his/her lot and home], to obstruct plaintiff's comfortable enjoyment of life and property, thereby constituting a nuisance under California Civil Code Sections 3479-3503.

19. The contamination caused by such defendants, as alleged in this complaint, has continuously migrated and spread _____ [describe location, e.g., in the soils of the defendants property and onto plaintiff's property] since it was initially released and its impact has varied over time.

20. Defendants have caused or permitted the nuisance on the property as a result of unnecessary, unreasonable, and injurious methods of conducting their operations and activities thereon.

21. In creating the nuisance, defendants acted with full knowledge of the consequences and damages that would foreseeably be caused by their actions, and their conduct is willful, oppressive, and malicious.

22. As a direct and proximate result of the continuing private nuisance on property caused by defendants, plaintiff has been injured, incurring the costs and suffering the damages alleged in Paragraphs _____ through _____ above.

THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION
[Damages for Trespass]

23. Plaintiff realleges and incorporates herein by reference the allegations contained in Paragraphs _____ through _____ above.

24. At various times, and through the present date, Defendants caused or permitted the release of the contaminants on the property and failed to clean up the contamination or to otherwise remove the contaminants from their property in such a manner as to cause a physical invasion of plaintiff's property and to interfere with plaintiff's possession of _____ [describe areas damaged, e.g., his/her lot and home], thereby constituting a trespass.

25. The contamination caused by such defendants, as alleged herein, has continuously migrated and spread in the soils of the property since it was initially released and its impact has varied over time.

26. Defendants caused or permitted the trespass on the property as a result of unnecessary, unreasonable and injurious methods of their operations and activities thereon.

27. As a direct and proximate result of the continuing trespass on the property caused by defendants, Plaintiff has been injured, incurring the costs and suffering the damages alleged in Paragraphs _____ through _____ above.

FOURTH CAUSE OF ACTION
[Declaratory Relief and Equitable Indemnity]

28. Plaintiff realleges and incorporates herein by reference the allegations contained in Paragraphs _____ through _____ above.

29. An actual controversy has arisen and now exists between Plaintiff and Defendants concerning the parties' respective obligations and liabilities arising from the presence of the contaminants at and around the property and the hazard to the public and the environment posed by these substances.

30. Plaintiff contends and said defendants denies that:

(a) As between plaintiff and defendants, any legal liability which has been, is now, or may in the future be asserted by any individual or entity, public or private, arising from or related to the presence of the contaminants at the property is the responsibility of defendants.

(b) As between plaintiff and defendants, any violations of local, state, or federal law arising from or related to the presence of the contaminants at the property is the responsibility of defendants.

(c) As a result, defendants are obligated to indemnify plaintiff in full for all sums which plaintiff may be compelled to pay as a result of any violations, penalties, judgments, or other awards arising from or related to the presence of the contaminants at the property.

31. Unless all the rights, duties, and obligations of plaintiff and said defendants related to the presence of the contaminants at the property, whether arising out of federal, state, or local statutory or common law, are determined in this action, there would be a multiplicity of actions to determine those rights, duties, and obligations. Plaintiff is therefore entitled to a judicial declaration of the duties and obligations of said defendants to plaintiff and to all other persons, private or public, who have suffered or may suffer damages or assert claims arising from or related to the presence of the contaminants at the property.

32. Plaintiff, as a non-responsible holder of interests in land on which defendants have created a hazardous condition, is entitled to a judicial declaration that:

(a) As between plaintiff and defendants, defendants are solely liable in any legal or administrative actions which have been brought or may be brought by any private persons concerning or related to the presence of the contaminants at or around the property.

(b) As between plaintiff and defendants, defendants are solely liable in any legal or administrative actions concerning or related to the presence of the contaminants at or around the property which have been brought or may be brought by any agencies of the United States government, the State of California, or any other governmental body.

(c) In the event that plaintiff is adjudged liable for any or all relief requested in any judicial or administrative action, arising out of or related to the presence of the contaminants at or around the property, brought against Plaintiff by any persons or entities, public or private, such liability is purely secondary, imputed, or technical. Primary and actual liability attaches to defendants and is a direct and proximate result of the acts and omissions of defendants.

(d) Defendants are liable to plaintiff to contribute to and reimburse plaintiff or, in the alternative, to indemnify plaintiff for all damages and costs suffered by plaintiff as a result of the presence of the contaminants at or around the property, such damages and costs including, but not limited to costs required to determine the extent of contamination and to eliminate or mitigate the contamination, costs or damages awarded in legal or administrative actions, costs of compliance with any judicial or administrative order, and costs of litigation including attorneys' fees.

FIFTH CAUSE OF ACTION
[Preliminary and Permanent Injunction, and Abatement of Nuisance]

33. Plaintiff realleges and incorporates herein by reference the allegations contained in Paragraphs _____ through _____ above.

34. To date, the contaminants in _____ [describe locations, e.g., the soils and groundwater of the properties] have not been removed or the property remediated, and the nuisance has not been abated by defendants.

35. Plaintiff is informed and believes and based thereon alleges that said defendants may not abate such nuisance unless affirmatively required to do so by an order of this court requiring such abatement or by preliminary or permanent injunction herein.

36. Unless said defendants are so ordered by this court, it will be necessary for plaintiff to commence successive actions against defendants, to secure compensation for damages sustained, thus requiring a multiplicity of suits and plaintiff will suffer irreparable injury in that _____ [describe injuries, e.g, the usefulness and economic value of plaintiff's property will be substantially diminished and plaintiff will be deprived of the comfortable enjoyment of his/her property].

37. Plaintiff has no plain, speedy, or adequate remedy at law, and injunctive relief is expressly authorized by Code of Civil Procedure Sections 526 and 731.

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff prays judgment against defendants as follows:

1. For compensatory and consequential damages in an amount to be determined at trial, but in excess of $25,000.

2. For punitive damages.

3. For declaratory relief.

4. For preliminary and/or permanent injunctive relief requiring abatement of nuisance.

5. For costs of suit herein incurred, including reasonable attorney fees.

6. For such other relief as the court deems just and proper.

Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name of plaintiff] am the Plaintiff in this action. I have read the foregoing complaint. The matters stated therein are true, except as to those matters that are alleged to be true on information and belief, and as to those matters I am informed and believe that they are true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a complaint for use in seeking damages and a preliminary and permanent injunction under various common law tort causes of action, including nuisance, trespass, and negligence arising out of pollution. Not all of these causes of action may be supported by the facts of the particular case. For example, a private person may not maintain a cause of action for public nuisance unless he or she alleges facts showing special injury to himself or herself [Civ. Code § 3493; Venuto v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 116, 124, 99 Cal. Rptr. 350] . In addition, trespass may be committed by consequential and indirect injury as well as by direct and forcible injury, but there is no cause of action for trespass unless defendant's activity results in direct physical infringement of plaintiff's interest in the exclusive possession of his or her property [Wilson v. Interlake Steel Co. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 229, 232, 185 Cal. Rptr. 280, 649 P.2d 922] .

A cause of action for negligence may be brought in concurrence with a cause of action for nuisance or trespass [see, e.g., Smith v. Lockheed Propulsion Co. (1967) 247 Cal. App. 2d 774, 782-784, 56 Cal. Rptr. 128 (trespass and negligence); Bright v. East Side Mosquito etc. Dist. (1959) 168 Cal. App. 2d 7, 335 P.2d 527 (nuisance and negligence)]. It should also be noted that the plaintiff will typically be required ultimately to make an election between injunctive relief and damages to the extent that the granting of both would produce a windfall or double recovery--for example, abatement of the nuisance and permanent damages for its existence.

To obtain a preliminary injunction under the Fifth Cause of Action in this form, the complaint must be either verified or accompanied by affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) in support of the allegations of the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)].

For a discussion of various common law tort causes of action as they apply to environmental lawsuits, including coverage of remedies available, see §§ 418.60 -418.65.

[3] Cross References

For discussion and forms relating to nuisances between adjoining landowners, see Ch. 11, Adjoining Landowners

For discussion, procedural guide, and forms related to proceedings seeking declaratory relief, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief

For discussion, procedural guide, and forms relating to preliminary and permanent injunctions, see Ch. 303, Injunctions

For discussion and forms relating to negligence in general, see Ch. 380, Negligence

For discussion and forms relating to actions for trespass generally, see Ch. 550, Trespass

[4] California Points and Authorities

For memoranda of points and authorities supporting and opposing the issuance of injunctions, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 116, Injunctions

For memoranda of points and authorities relating to negligence actions, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 165, Negligence

For memoranda of points and authorities relating to nuisance in general, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 167, Nuisance

For memoranda of points and authorities relating to actions for trespass, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 225, Trespass

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART IV. FORMS
C. Common Law Environmental Tort Actions

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 418.181-418.189

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

[Reserved]

§§ 418.181[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART IV. FORMS
D. Recovery of the Costs of Cleanup

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.190

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.190 Complaint for Recovery of Response Costs

[1] FORM Complaint for Recovery of Response Costs

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

[or other as appropriate]

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [names],	)	COMPLAINT FOR RECOVERY OF RESPONSE and DOES I through _____,	)	COSTS
Defendants.	)
	)
	)

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Plaintiff _____ [name] is _____ [set forth legal capacity, e.g., a resident of the County of _____]. Plaintiff is and at all times herein mentioned was, the _____ [specify proprietary interest, e.g., owner] and in possession and control of certain real property consisting of land and _____ [describe improvements, e.g., a shopping center] at _____ [address], _____ County, California, and more particularly described as follows: _____ [give legal description].

2. Defendant _____ [name] is _____ [set forth legal capacity, e.g., a California corporation]. Defendant is and at all times herein mentioned was, the _____ [specify proprietary interest or other capacity, e.g., owner] and in possession and control of certain real property consisting of land and _____ [describe improvements, e.g., a gasoline station including underground storage tanks containing gasoline, other petroleum hydrocarbons, and benzene and other carcinogens used in the operation of its gasoline station] at _____ [address], _____ County, California, and more particularly described as follows: _____ [give legal description].

3. The true names or capacities, whether individual, corporate, associate, or otherwise, of defendants DOES 1-_____, inclusive, are unknown to plaintiff, who therefore sues these defendants by such fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the contamination herein referred to and thereby proximately caused injuries and damages to the plaintiff as herein alleged.

4. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that at all times mentioned in this complaint each of the defendants was the agent and employee of each of the remaining defendants, and in doing the things hereinafter alleged, was acting within the course and scope of such agency and employment.

5. Plaintiff's property and the property of defendants, and each of them, are _____ [describe relative locations, e.g., adjoining each other at plaintiff's north and defendants' south boundaries]. Defendants' _____ [describe business or operation which is source of contamination e.g., underground storage tanks containing gasoline, other petroleum hydrocarbons, and benzene and other carcinogens used in the operation of its gasoline station] are located approximately _____ [specify distance, e.g., 150 feet] from plaintiff's _____ [describe property improvement, e.g., shopping center].

6. At all times mentioned in this complaint, and since _____ [date], defendants, and each of them, have occupied, used, and maintained their premises in such a manner that _____ [allege facts, e.g., gasoline and other petroleum hydrocarbons have leaked from the underground storage tanks on defendant's property and have migrated into and contaminated the soil on plaintiff's land and the groundwater thereunder].

7. In engaging in the acts set forth above, defendants each were guilty of malice, fraud, and oppression as defined in Civil Code Section 3294, and plaintiff should recover, in addition to actual damages, damages to make an example of and punish defendants, in an amount to be determined.

[AND/OR]

8. Plaintiff has incurred and, during the pendency of this action, will incur expenses for attorneys' fees and costs herein. Such attorneys' fees are necessary for the prosecution of this action. The exact sum of such attorneys' fees and costs is presently unascertained and plaintiff request the court's permission to amend this claim for costs and attorneys' fees when the amounts are determined.

[CONTINUE]

FIRST CLAIM FOR RELIEF
RECOVERY OF COSTS OF RESPONSE

9. Plaintiff incorporates by reference herein paragraphs 1 through _____ as though set forth in full.

10. Plaintiff has incurred costs in an amount exceeding $_____ for _____ [specify items of costs incurred, e.g., testing, sampling, removing, cleaning up and in preventing further contamination of plaintiff's property] by hazardous materials, substances, or wastes deposited by defendants. [If costs will continue to be incurred, add: Plaintiff is incurring and will continue to incur such costs]. Plaintiff is entitled to recovery of these expenditures from defendants.

11. The materials are "hazardous substances" under the provisions of Health & Safety Code Section 25636(e).

12. The materials released into the environment constituted a release within the meaning of Health & Safety Code Section 25320. The release of said materials into the environment poses a threat to public health or to the environment.

13. Defendants are persons described in Health & Safety Code Section 25319 and are responsible parties as described in Health & Safety Code Section 25323.5.

14. Defendants are jointly and severally liable to plaintiff for all costs of response, removal, and remedial action incurred by the plaintiff.

SECOND CLAIM FOR RELIEF UNJUST ENRICHMENT

15. Plaintiff incorporates by reference herein paragraphs 1 through _____ as though set forth in full.

16. Defendants have failed to perform their duty _____ [describe duty breached, e.g., to remove hazardous materials from the premises and to remedy the public nuisance there existing]. Defendants' failure to take action has forced plaintiff _____ [describe burden to plaintiff, e.g., to enter into contracts to accomplish the removal and remedy the dangerous situation].

17. Plaintiff has expended in excess of $_____ and will incur additional expenditures _____ [describe burden to plaintiff, e.g., for contract or other services to remedy the danger presented by defendants' hazardous materials] and has thereby conferred a benefit on defendants which would be unjust and inequitable for defendants to retain.

18. Each defendant is jointly and severally liable for all costs of removal and remedial and preventative actions at the site.

19. Plaintiff is entitled to restitution from each defendant for all costs of removal and remedial and preventive actions at that site.

THIRD CAUSE OF ACTION
DECLARATORY RELIEF

(California Code of Civil Procedure Section 1060)

20. Plaintiff incorporates by reference herein paragraphs _____ through _____ as though set forth in full.

21. There is and now exists an actual controversy between the plaintiff on one part and defendants on the other part relating to the liability and responsibility of these parties for costs of response necessary to abate the release of hazardous materials, substances, or wastes on the premises and protect the public health and safety and the environment. Plaintiff has asserted and asserts that defendants bear full and strict liability for response and remediation costs occasioned by the presence of hazardous materials, substances, or wastes on the premises. Defendants have refused to acknowledge their sole and entire liability for costs of response and have taken inadequate measures to initiate at their own expense implementation of a plan to remedy the hazardous condition.

22. Judicial determination of the liability of defendants is necessary and appropriate at this time in order that plaintiffs may ascertain their rights as against defendants.

23. By this cause of action for declaratory relief plaintiff seeks a declaration of this court that defendants are solely and entirely liable for all costs necessary to respond to and abate the release and threatened release of hazardous materials, substances, or wastes at the site.

FOURTH CAUSE OF ACTION
REIMBURSEMENT FOR COST OF ABATEMENT

(California Water Code Section 13304)

24. Plaintiff incorporates by reference herein paragraphs _____ through _____ as though set forth in full.

25. Defendants have caused or permitted waste to be discharged or deposited which may have entered into the waters of the state or where it will probably be discharged into the waters of the state and have created a condition of pollution or nuisance.

26. Plaintiff has spent funds and will spend additional funds to clean up, abate, and remedy the conditions of pollution or nuisance created by defendants.

27. Under the provisions of California Water Code Section 13304, defendants, and each of them, are liable to plaintiff to the extent of costs incurred in cleaning up the waste discharged by defendants, and each of them, and abating the effects thereof.

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff prays for judgment against defendants as follows:

1. For recovery from defendants of the necessary costs heretofore incurred by plaintiff in response to the release and threatened release of hazardous materials at the site in an amount subject to proof.

2. For compensatory damages for losses resulting from defendants' conduct.

3. For punitive damages, according to proof.

4. For a declaration of this court that defendants are solely and entirely liable for all costs of response necessary to respond to and abate the release and threatened release of hazardous materials, substances, or wastes at the site.

5. For an order requiring defendants to clean up, remove, and abate the hazardous wastes handled, stored, and disposed of by defendants.

6. For retention of jurisdiction of this action by the court after entry of the requested declaratory judgment for the purpose of granting further relief as may be necessary or proper to effectuate the declaration of the court.

7. For costs of suit.

8. For attorneys' fees.

9. For such other and further relief as this court deems just and proper.

Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff _____ [name]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a complaint to recover the costs and damages associated with investigation and clean up of hazardous substances. The causes of action are statutory ones. Typically, they are joined with common law causes of action such as nuisance, trespass, and negligence [see § 418.180]. Allegations for these kinds of causes of action are set forth above and could be inserted with modification into the complaint using the instant form.

The form is for use in those situations in which the plaintiff is or may be liable for cleanup of contamination on his or her property and has or will incur costs for this cleanup. Thus, these causes of action do not seek damages for any depreciation of property values, loss of the value of improvements, or emotional distress that may have been suffered by the plaintiff. To the extent that these damages have occurred they should also be alleged and appropriate causes of action included for that purpose [see § 418.180]. Typically, the owner of a single family dwelling which has suffered contamination as the result of another person's activities will not be expected to conduct the cleanup of the property. Rather, the regulatory agency with responsibility for overseeing the investigation and cleanup of the contamination (for example, a Regional Water Quality Control Board) will order that the cleanup be done by the responsible parties. However, in other instances, the property owner may itself be held liable for the cleanup, and this complaint will serve as a basis for recovering the costs of the cleanup from the parties most directly responsible for the contamination.

For a general discussion of actions seeking to recover costs of cleanups, see §§ 418.80 -418.82.

[3] Discharge of Pollutants Into Waters of State

The Fourth Cause of Action is available only when there has been a discharge of pollutants to the waters of the state, which would include both surface water and groundwater. California law prohibits discharges of wastes, hazardous substances, or petroleum products into the waters of the state. For example, Health & Safety Code § 5411 prohibits the discharge of "sewage or other waste ... in any manner which will result in contamination, pollution, or a nuisance."

"Waste" is defined to include "any and all other waste substances, liquid, solid, gaseous, or radioactive ... from any producing, manufacturing, or processing operation of whatever nature" [Health & Safety Code § 5410(a)]. Health & Safety Code § 5410(e) and (f) broadly defines "pollution" and "nuisance." Water Code § 13350(a)(3) and Fish & Game Code § 5650 create liability for or make unlawful the deposit of "any residuary product of petroleum" into the waters of the state, except in accordance with waste discharge requirements or other federal or state permits.

[4] California's Hazardous Substance Account Act and the Federal Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act

The provisions of the Health & Safety Code set forth in the First Cause of Action of the form are not limited to discharges to the waters of the state. This cause of action relies on the Hazardous Substance Account Act (HSAA) [Health & Safety Code § 25300 et seq.], which was enacted in part to expedite cleanup of contaminated properties. The HSAA includes rights of indemnification and contribution to those parties who engage in such cleanup from those parties who are responsible for the cleanup. The HSAA states that "[a]ny person who has incurred removal or remedial costs in accordance with this chapter or the federal act may seek contribution or indemnity from any person who is liable pursuant to this chapter ... " [Health & Safety Code § 25363(e)]. Because the HSAA is modeled after the federal Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act (CERCLA) [42 U.S.C. § 9601 et seq.], the elements in a cost recovery action generally follow those in a CERCLA cost recovery claim. In general, under CERCLA a cost recovery action requires [42 U.S.C. § 9607(a)(1)-(4)]:

- That the waste disposal site is a "facility" within the meaning of 42 U.S.C. § 9601(9);

- That a "release" or "threatened release" of a "hazardous substance" from the facility has occurred [42 U.S.C § 9607(a)(4)];

- That any expenditure of costs in responding to the release are consistent with the national contingency plan [42 U.S.C. § 9607(a)(4) and (a)(4)(B)]; and

- That the defendant is within the statutory classes of persons who are liable.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART IV. FORMS
D. Recovery of the Costs of Cleanup

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.191

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.191 Affirmative Defenses

[1] FORM Affirmative Defenses

[EITHER]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that Plaintiffs' claims against defendant _____ [name of defendant] are each barred by the doctrine of laches.

[AND/OR]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that Plaintiffs' claims against defendant _____ [name of defendant] are each barred by the doctrine of estoppel.

[AND/OR]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that Plaintiffs' claims against defendant _____ [name of defendant] are each barred by the doctrine of waiver.

[AND/OR]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that Plaintiffs' claims against defendant _____ [name of defendant] are each barred by the doctrine of unclean hands.

[AND/OR]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that Plaintiffs' claims are barred by applicable statutes of limitations, including California Code of Civil Procedure § 338 (injury to real property) and CERCLA § 113(g) [42 U.S.C. § 9613(g)].

[AND/OR]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that Plaintiffs' claims against defendant _____ [name of defendant] are each barred because Plaintiffs have failed and refused to avoid or mitigate their alleged damages.

[AND/OR]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that

Defendant _____ [name of defendant] is informed and believes and on that basis alleges that the harm and damages alleged by Plaintiffs were directly and proximately causes and contributed to by the intentional, negligent, and/or other acts or omissions of Plaintiffs and/or by others at the direction of Plaintiffs and/or Plaintiffs' shareholders, directors, officers, employees, agents, and affiliates (collectively, "Plaintiffs and/or their agents"), over whom or which defendant _____ [name of defendant] had no control. Therefore, any recovery by Plaintiffs on their claims against defendant _____ [name of defendant] must be reduced in an amount equivalent to the harm and damages caused by Plaintiffs and/or their agents based on the principles of comparative negligence and equitable apportionment.

[AND/OR]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that

There has been no release or threatened release of hazardous substances within the meaning of 42 U.S.C. Section 9607(a).

[AND/OR]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that

Defendant _____ [name of defendant] is informed and believes and on that basis alleges that the intentional, negligent, and/or other acts and omissions of persons and entities other than defendant _____ [name of defendant], and over whom defendant _____ [name of defendant] had no control, were intervening and/or supervening causes of the harm and damages allegedly incurred by Plaintiffs, thereby eliminating or lessening any harm allegedly caused by defendant _____ [name of defendant].

[AND/OR]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that Plaintiffs and/or their agents knew, or in the exercise of ordinary care should have known, of the risk of the injuries or damages alleged in the Complaint, if any, and nevertheless freely and voluntarily assumed said risk, which proximately contributed to and proximately cause Plaintiffs' injuries or damages, if any.

[AND/OR]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that Defendant _____ [name of defendant] is not liable because Plaintiffs and/or their agents consented to all of the activities of defendant _____ [name of defendant].

[AND/OR]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that

The release or threatened release of hazardous substances which is alleged in plaintiff's complaint was caused solely by one or more acts of God, an act of war, or by the acts or omissions of a third party or third parties other than an employee or agent of defendant _____ [name of defendant] and with whom defendant _____ [name of defendant] had no contractual relationship (except where the sole contractual arrangement, if any, arose from a published tariff and acceptance for carriage by a common carrier by rail) and in connection therewith defendant _____ [name of defendant] exercised due care and took adequate precautions against foreseeable acts and omissions by any such third parties. Thus, under 42 U.S.C. Section 9607(b), defendant _____ [name of defendant] is not liable for any of the claims asserted against such defendant.

[AND/OR]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that

The Complaint, insofar as the "hazardous substances" allegedly released or which threatened to be released at Plaintiffs' property are petroleum or natural gas products, fails to state a claim on which relief may be granted under CERCLA. Petroleum, including crude oil or any fraction thereof which is not otherwise specifically listed or designated as a hazardous substance under 42 U.S.C. Section 9601(14)(A)-(F), is not a "hazardous substance" within the meaning of CERCLA, 42 U.S.C. Section 9601 et seq.

[AND/OR]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that

The Complaint, insofar as it is purported to arise under CERCLA and apply to conduct before CERCLA's enactment, is barred on the grounds that retroactive application of CERCLA would violate rights guaranteed defendant _____ [name of defendant] by the United States Constitution.

[AND/OR]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that

Any response costs incurred by Plaintiffs were neither "necessary" nor consistent with the national contingency plan, in accordance with CERCLA, 42 U.S.C. § 9607(a)(4)(B).

[AND/OR]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that

Defendant _____ [name of defendant] is not jointly and severally liable for any damage alleged in the Complaint because any effect of any act or omission by defendant _____ [name of defendant] is divisible and distinct from any compensable damage incurred by Plaintiffs.

[AND/OR]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that

Defendant _____ [name of defendant] is not jointly and severally liable for any damage alleged in the Complaint because there is a reasonable basis on which to apportion any liability among the parties to the captioned action.

[AND/OR]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that Plaintiffs' CERCLA § 107(a) claim [42 U.S.C. § 9607(a)] is barred because Plaintiffs are potentially responsible parties.

PRAYER FOR RELIEF

WHEREFORE, defendant _____ [name of defendant] prays as follows:

1. That Plaintiffs take nothing by this action, and that their Complaint be dismissed with prejudice;

2. That defendant _____ [name of defendant] be awarded costs, expenses, and disbursements incurred in defending this action;

3. That defendant _____ [name of defendant] be awarded the attorneys' fees incurred in defending this action;

4. For prejudgment interest; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem just and proper.

Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, sets forth some of the typical affirmative defenses that are asserted in an answer to a complaint for recovery of response costs. Not all of them may be applicable to the particular circumstances of the case. While in practice the affirmative defenses are often asserted in the kind of conclusory fashion used in the above form, counsel should be aware that without allegation of facts supporting the defenses in each instance, they may be subject to a demurrer for uncertainty [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.20].

[3] Use of Affirmative Defenses

The Hazardous Substance Account Act (HSAA) [Health & Safety Code § 25300 et seq.] provides that "the defenses available to a responsible party or liable person shall be those defenses specified in ... the federal act" [Health & Safety Code § 25323.5(b)], referring to the federal Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act (CERCLA) [42 U.S.C. § 9601 et seq.]. Some of the principle defenses under CERCLA are the so-called "Third Party" Defenses when the damages arise from a release of a hazardous substance that is caused solely by certain specified acts or omissions of third parties [see 42 U.S.C. § 9607(b)(3)]. In addition, the HSAA does not specify the statutes of limitation for private cost recovery actions under Health & Safety Code § 25363(e).

With regard to the traditional tort equitable defenses such as waiver, estoppel, laches, and unclean hands, many courts have held that these are not available under CERCLA [see, e.g., Town of Munster, Ind. v. Sherwin-Williams (7th Cir. 1994) 27 F.3d 1268, 1270] , while other courts have allowed some room for the assertion of these defenses [see, e.g., U.S. v. Marisol, Inc. (M.D. Pa. 1989) 725 F. Supp. 833, 843] .

[4] Cross References

For discussion of mitigation of damages, see Ch. 177, Damages .

For general coverage of laches and statutes of limitation, see Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions .

For specific coverage of laches in environmental litigation, see § 418.16 and California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 11, Preliminary Litigation Issues, § 11.08 (Matthew Bender).

For specific coverage of the statutes of limitation as a defense in environmental litigation, see § 418.15 and California Environmental Law and Land Use Practice, Ch. 11, Preliminary Litigation Issues, § 11.07 (Matthew Bender).

For discussion of the elements of negligence and defenses to a cause of action for negligence, including comparative negligence, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

For coverage of defenses available in hazardous waste litigation, see The Law of Hazardous Waste: Management, Cleanup, Liability, and Litigation (Matthew Bender).

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART IV. FORMS
D. Recovery of the Costs of Cleanup

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.192

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.192 Allegations for Cross-Complaint for Contribution

[1] FORM Allegations for Cross-Complaint for Contribution

1. Defendant _____ [name of defendant] incorporates the allegations of the preceding paragraphs of these counterclaims by this reference as though fully set forth here.

2. If Plaintiffs' allegations are true, Plaintiffs own and operate a "facility," within the meaning of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act of 1980, as amended (CERCLA) [42 U.S.C. Section 9601(9)], from which there have been and are "releases" and "threatened releases," within the meaning of CERCLA, 42 U.S.C. Section 9601(22), of "hazardous substances," within the meaning of CERCLA, 42 U.S.C. Section 9601(14).

3. As a result of the above, Plaintiffs are "covered persons" within the meaning of CERCLA, 42 U.S.C. Section 9607 and are, therefore, strictly liable for any removal, remedial, and response costs incurred by Plaintiffs or others in connection with the property.

4. Under 42 U.S.C. Sections 9607(a) and 9613(f)(1), Plaintiffs are liable for all response costs and damages, if any, alleged in the Complaint.

5. If and to the extent that defendant _____ [name of defendant] incurs or is found liable for any response costs, defendant _____ [name of defendant] is entitled to total contribution from Plaintiffs or contribution in such other percentage as this court deems appropriate, pursuant to 42 U.S.C. Section 9613(f)(1).

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a counterclaim or cross-complaint for contribution for assertion by a defendant in an action for recovery of response costs. Its principal use is to bring in third parties whom the defendant contends may be wholly or partially liable to the defendant for the damages that the defendant may be adjudged liable to the plaintiff. For example, in an action for recovery of costs by the current owner of contaminated property against a prior owner of the property who is alleged to be responsible for the contamination, the latter might sue one of its prior tenants on the property (or yet another former owner of the property) who also contributed in some manner to the contamination. In essence the cross-complaint alleges that the cross-defendant is responsible for all or part of the damages that the cross-complainant may be forced to pay.

This form asserts causes of action for contribution under the federal Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act (CERCLA) [42 U.S.C. § 9601 et seq.] for use in an action in federal court. However, with some modifications, the same allegations could be made under California's Hazardous Substance Account Act (HSAA) [Health & Safety Code § 25300 et seq.] for filing in state court. The HSAA states that "[a]ny person who has incurred removal or remedial costs in accordance with this chapter or the federal act may seek contribution or indemnity from any person who is liable pursuant to this chapter ... " [Health & Safety Code § 25363(e)].

For a sample complaint for recovery of response costs, see § 418.190.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART IV. FORMS
D. Recovery of the Costs of Cleanup

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.193

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.193 Allegations for Cross-Complaint for Comparative Equitable Indemnity

[1] FORM Allegations for Cross-Complaint for Comparative Equitable Indemnity

1. Defendant _____ [name of defendant] incorporates the allegations of the preceding paragraphs of these counterclaims by this reference as though fully set forth here.

2. As a direct and proximate result of Plaintiffs' acts or omissions, defendant _____ [name of defendant] has been required to act in the protection of his/her own interests by defending against the Complaint filed in this action and bringing these counterclaims. Defendant _____ [name of defendant] is without fault with respect to the matters alleged in the Complaint, and any other claim or action arising directly or indirectly from contamination of the property or adjoining properties. If and to the extent defendant _____ [name of defendant] has any liability for any relief sought in any judicial or administrative proceedings brought against such defendant by any persons or entities with regard to contamination of the property or adjoining properties, including without limitation, the pending Complaint in this action, such liability is purely secondary, imputed, vicarious, or technical, and primary liability attaches to Plaintiffs, and is attributable to their acts and omissions.

3. Plaintiffs are liable to defendant _____ [name of defendant] for indemnity for all costs, including but not limited to, costs, expenses, and damages awarded in legal or administrative actions, clean-up costs, and consultants' and attorneys' fees and costs of litigation resulting from contamination of the property or adjoining properties.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a cross complaint for equitable indemnity for assertion by a defendant in an action for recovery of response costs. Its principal use is to bring in third parties whom the defendant contends may be wholly or partially liable to the defendant for the damages that the defendant may be adjudged liable to the plaintiff.

For a sample complaint for recovery of response costs, see § 418.190.

[3] Indemnity Claims

Indemnity claims are in general available to a party who has paid a judgment or incurred a liability, and seeks "indemnity" for that liability or payment from a third party who is primarily at fault. Thus, indemnity has been defined as "a right which inures to a person who, without active fault on his part, has been compelled by reason of some legal obligation, to pay damages occasioned by the initial negligence of another, and for which he himself is only secondarily liable" [Alisal Sanitary Dist. v. Kennedy (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 69, 75, 4 Cal. Rptr. 379 ; see Herrero v. Atkinson (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 69, 74, 38 Cal. Rptr. 490] . The cause of action for indemnity does not come into existence until the indemnitee has suffered loss through payment [Mangini v. Aerojet-General Corp. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1125, 1154, 281 Cal. Rptr. 827] . One of the advantages of a claim for equitable indemnity is that it may avoid the statute of limitations problems when the remedy for pollution is the recovery of the costs of cleanup. In addition to claims for equitable indemnity there may also be specific provision for indemnity in contracts between the parties.

195 of 197 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART IV. FORMS
D. Recovery of the Costs of Cleanup

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.194

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.194 Allegations for Cross-Complaint for Declaratory Relief Regarding Response Costs

[1] FORM Allegations for Cross-Complaint for Declaratory Relief Regarding Response Costs

1. Defendant _____ [name of defendant] incorporates the allegations of the preceding paragraphs of these counterclaims by this reference as though fully set forth here.

2. Defendant _____ [name of defendant] is informed and believes and therefore alleges that an actual controversy has arisen and now exists between defendant _____ [name of defendant] and Plaintiffs in that defendant _____ [name of defendant] contends, and Plaintiffs deny, that: (1) Defendant _____ [name of defendant] is not liable to Plaintiffs for costs, expenses, and damages awarded in legal or administrative actions, investigation and remediation costs, consultants' and attorneys' fees, and costs of litigation, arising directly or indirectly from any contamination of the soil and/or groundwater at or beneath the property or adjoining properties; and (2) Plaintiffs are liable to defendant _____ [name of defendant] for costs, expenses, and damages awarded in legal or administrative actions, investigation and remediation costs, consultants' and attorney' fees, and costs of litigation, arising directly or indirectly from any contamination of the soil and/or groundwater at or beneath the property or adjoining properties.

3. Therefore, pursuant to 28 U.S.C. Section 2201 and 42 U.S.C. Section 9613(g)(2), defendant _____ [name of defendant] is entitled to a judicial declaration of his/her rights and the obligations of Plaintiffs.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a cross complaint for declaratory relief for assertion by a defendant in an action for recovery of response costs. Its principal use is to bring in third parties whom the defendant contends may be wholly or partially liable to the defendant for the damages that the defendant may be adjudged liable to the plaintiff. It should be coupled with the forms containing allegations for a cross complaint for contribution [see § 418.192] and for comparative equitable indemnity [see § 418.193].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 418 POLLUTION AND ENVIRONMENTAL MATTERS
PART IV. FORMS
D. Recovery of the Costs of Cleanup

36-418 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 418.195

AUTHOR: By Roger Beers

§ 418.195 Allegations for Prayer for Relief in Cross-Complaint

[1] FORM Allegations for Prayer for Relief in Cross-Complaint

WHEREFORE, defendant _____ [name of defendant] prays for judgment as follows on his/her counterclaims:

1. For a declaratory judgment that:

(a) Plaintiffs are solely liable for all costs and expenses associated with the investigation and remediation of any contamination at the property;

(b) Plaintiffs are obligated under principles of common law to indemnify, hold harmless and release defendant _____ [name of defendant] from and against any and all past and future claims arising out of any contamination at the property;

(c) Defendant _____ [name of defendant] is no liable to Plaintiffs for costs, expenses, and damages awarded in legal or administrative actions, investigation and remediation costs, consultants' and attorneys' fees, and costs of litigation, arising directly or indirectly from any contamination of the soil and/or groundwater at or beneath the property or adjoining properties; and

(d) Plaintiffs are liable to defendant _____ [name of defendant] for costs, expenses and damages awarded in legal or administrative actions, investigation and remediation costs, consultants' and attorneys' fees, and costs of litigation, arising directly or indirectly from any contamination of the soil and/or groundwater at or beneath the property or adjoining properties;

2. For contribution, pursuant to 42 U.S.C. Section 9613(f) as set forth above;

3. For equitable indemnification by Plaintiffs according to principles of comparative fault and equitable allocation of loss, in an amount to be determined by the court in the event defendant is found to be liable in any amount to Plaintiffs;

4. For attorneys' fees, prejudgment interest, costs of suit (including without limitation expert and consultant fees), expenses and disbursements; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem just and proper.

Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, contains the allegations of the prayer in a cross-complaint for contribution, equitable indemnity, and declaratory relief [see §§ 418.192, 418.193, 418.194]. The cross-complaint and this prayer are for use by a defendant in an action for recovery of response costs. The principal use of the cross-complaint is to bring in third parties whom the defendant contends may be wholly or partially liable to the defendant for the damages that the defendant may be adjudged liable to the plaintiff.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 419 [RESERVED]

36-419 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated Chapter 419

[RESERVED]

Chapter 419[RESERVED]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated 420.syn

§ 420.syn Synopsis to Chapter 420: PRAYERS

§ 420.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 420.02 Cross References

§§ 420.03-420.09 [Reserved]

§ 420.10 Governing Statutes

§ 420.11 Definition

§ 420.12 Prayer Required

§ 420.13 Contents of Prayer

§ 420.14 Effect of Prayer on Complaint and Cause of Action

§ 420.15 Prayer as Establishing Court's Jurisdiction

[1] Nature of Action; Damages

[2] Reclassification or Transfer of Action When Amount Demanded Exceeds Jurisdictional Limits

[3] Remittance of Excess in Amount Demanded to Comply With Jurisdictional Limits

§ 420.16 Effect of Prayer on Relief Granted

[1] Defaults

[2] Contested Cases

[a] In General

[b] Interest

§ 420.17 Absence of Prayer

§ 420.18 Amendment of Prayer

§§ 420.19-420.39 [Reserved]

§ 420.40 Related Texts From LexisNexis Publishing

§ 420.41 State Statutes

§ 420.42 Federal Rules of Civil Procedure

§ 420.43 Decisions

[1] Amendment of Prayer

[2] Contested Cases

[3] Default Judgments

[4] Defective Prayer

[5] Effect on Complaint and Cause of Action

[6] Equitable Proceeding

[7] Exemplary Damages

[8] Interest

[9] Jurisdiction

[10] Motion to Increase Amount of Prayer

[11] Relief Nonspecifically or Wrongly Requested

[12] Uses of Prayer

§ 420.44 Law Reviews

§ 420.45 Text References

§§ 420.46through 420.49 [Reserved]

§ 420.50 Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Damages, Costs, and General Relief--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 420.51 Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] for Damages, Costs, and General Relief--In Personal Injury or Wrongful Death Action

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 420.52 Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Damages, Costs, and General Relief--Multiple Plaintiffs or Cross Complainants Suing Single Defendant or Cross Defendant for Different Relief

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 420.53 Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Damages, Costs, and General Relief--By Single Plaintiff or Cross Complainant Against Multiple Defendants or Cross Defendants for Different Relief

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 420.54 Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Damages, Costs, and General Relief--Multiple Causes of Action

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§ 420.55 Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Exemplary and Punitive Damages [Civ. Code §§ 3294, 3295]--In Addition to General and Special Damages, Costs, and General Relief--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§ 420.56 Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Principal Amount Plus Interest [Civ. Code § 3287]--At Legal [or Agreed] Rate [Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1; Code Civ. Proc. § 685.010]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 420.57 Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Principal Amount Plus Interest [Civ. Code § 3287]--On Each Amount From Different Dates at Legal or Agreed Rate [Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1; Code Civ. Proc. § 685.010]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§ 420.58 Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Liquidated Damages According to Agreement of Parties [Civ. Code § 1671], Plus Interest [Civ. Code § 3287]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 420.59 Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Damages Plus Interest [Civ. Code §§ 3288, 3291]--At Legal Rate [Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1; Code Civ. Proc. § 685.010]--In Personal Injury or Wrongful Death Action

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§ 420.60 Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Attorney's Fees in Addition to General and Special Damages, Costs, and General Relief

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 420.61 Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Declaratory Relief

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 420.62 Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Injunctive Relief

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 420.63 Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Specific Performance

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 420.64 Prayer in Answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§ 420.65 Notice of Motion to Amend Prayer of Complaint or Cross Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 420.66 Order Granting or Denying Motion to Amend Prayer of Complaint or Cross Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART I. SCOPE

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.01

§ 420.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the use and effect of prayers in civil pleadings. It includes forms of prayers for use in complaints and cross complaints, including prayers for the following:

- Damages, costs, and general relief [see §§ 420.50 -420.54].
- Exemplary damages [see § 420.55].
- Principal plus interest [see §§ 420.56, 420.57].
- Liquidated damages [see § 420.58].
- Damages plus interest [see § 420.59].
- Attorney's fees [see § 420.60].
- Declaration of rights [see § 420.61].
- Injunctive relief [see § 420.62].
- Specific performance [see § 420.63].

The chapter also includes a form of a prayer for use in the answer to a complaint or cross complaint [see § 420.64], a notice of motion to amend a prayer [see § 420.65], and an order permitting such amendment [see § 420.66].

For forms of prayers for use in complaints and answers generally, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints , and Ch. 26, Answers , respectively.

For alternative forms of prayers for use in particular types of actions and proceedings, see the chapters pertaining to the particular actions or proceedings.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsAmended PleadingsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsCross-ComplaintsCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentMotions to Alter & Amend

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART I. SCOPE

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.02

§ 420.02 Cross References

For forms of prayers in specific actions, see specific chapters relating to those actions.

For discussion of the treatment of attorney's fees as costs, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees .

For a form of notice of motion to amend a complaint to increase the amount of damages sought and for a form of notice of motion for an order compelling responsive statement as to damages sought in personal injury or wrongful death action in superior court, see Ch. 177, Damages .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsAmended PleadingsGeneral OverviewTortsDamagesCosts & Attorney FeesGeneral OverviewTortsWrongful Death & Survival ActionsRemediesAward Calculations

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART I. SCOPE

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 420.03-420.09

[Reserved]

§§ 420.03[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.10

§ 420.10 Governing Statutes

The requirement that a complaint or cross complaint contain a demand for judgment for the relief to which the pleader claims he or she is entitled is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2).

Remission of the amount of money in excess of the subject matter jurisdiction for a limited civil case so that an action may continue in that jurisdictional classification is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 403.040(f).

Code Civ. Proc. § 580 limits the relief granted to that demanded in the complaint, Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages, or the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement reserving the right to punitive damages.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsCross-ComplaintsCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsRequirements

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.11

§ 420.11 Definition

The term "prayer," used in a legal sense, is the part of a pleading that "specifies the relief sought" [Webster's Third New International Dictionary, p. 1782 (1976)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.12

§ 420.12 Prayer Required

A complaint or cross complaint is required to contain a demand for judgment for the relief to which the pleader claims he or she is entitled [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2) (with the exceptions discussed under Contents of Prayer, see § 420.13)].

Thus, one court has held that a plaintiff is entitled to prosecute a cause of action only by first pleading the nature of the relief sought and the ultimate facts by which the plaintiff deems him or herself entitled to that relief under the law [Roberts v. Roberts (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 871, 185 P.2d 381] . However, it has been said that the prayer is not essential in a contested case, that it may be corrected or supplied by amendment, and that recovery may be allowed even in the absence of a prayer [Estate of Kalal (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 841, 845 n.3, 175 Cal. Rptr. 582] .

Nevertheless, a prayer may be necessary for determining the jurisdictional classification of the case and which court has subject matter jurisdiction if jurisdiction depends on the nature of the controversy (for example, whether the action is at law or in equity) or the amount in controversy [see § 420.15], and it will define the scope of a default judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)-(c); see also Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments]. Consequently, the better practice is to include a prayer, whether or not it is required by statute.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsCross-ComplaintsCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsRule Application & Interpretation

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.13

§ 420.13 Contents of Prayer

The prayer shows the nature and amount of the relief sought [Browne v. Ulrich (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 367, 371, 195 P.2d 804 ; Platnauer v. Forni (1933) 131 Cal. App. 393, 397, 21 P.2d 638] .

If the recovery of money or damages is demanded, the amount demanded must be stated [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)], with two exceptions [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b); Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

Under the first exception, if the action is brought to recover actual or punitive damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the amount demanded may not be stated [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

In these cases, the defendant may, at any time, request a Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages. If no request is made, plaintiff must give defendant notice of the amount of special and general damages sought to be recovered (1) before a default may be taken or (2) when an answer is filed, at least 60 days prior to the date set for trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11]. For discussion of requesting and serving a statement of damages, see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq. For discussion of the statement of damages in relation to defaults, see Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments .

Under the second exception, no claim for punitive damages may state an amount [Civ. Code § 3295(e)]. For discussion of the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 procedure for a statement reserving the right to seek punitive damages on default, see Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments .

However, one court has held that the complaint must state the specific dollar amount sought only when a default judgment is to be entered. In any other case, the court may grant the plaintiff any relief consistent with the case made by the complaint and embraced within the issue. Hence, the absence of a specific amount from the complaint is not necessarily fatal as long as the pleaded facts entitle the plaintiff to relief [Furia v. Helm (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 945, 957, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 357] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsCross-ComplaintsCivil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsDefaultRelief From DefaultCivil ProcedureRemediesDamagesPunitive DamagesTortsDamagesGeneral OverviewTortsWrongful Death & Survival ActionsRemediesPunitive Damages

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.14

§ 420.14 Effect of Prayer on Complaint and Cause of Action

The prayer is not a part of the cause of action, and the issues involved are determinable from the facts alleged rather than from the prayer [Weber v. Superior Court (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 144, 147-148, 156 P.2d 923 ; Berg v. Investors Real Estate Loan Co. (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 808, 815, 24 Cal. Rptr. 701] . A defective prayer in a complaint, therefore, will not destroy an otherwise sufficiently stated cause of action [Carney v. Simmonds (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 84, 96, 315 P.2d 305] . The court may, however, if it desires, consider a statement in a prayer when determining the probability of the pleader's being able to amend an insufficient complaint to state a cause of action [Central Surety & Ins. Corp. v. Foley (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 738, 22 Cal. Rptr. 504 ; Lane v. Davis (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 302, 310, 342 P.2d 267] .

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.15

§ 420.15 Prayer as Establishing Court's Jurisdiction

[1] Nature of Action; Damages

The question of whether a particular court has jurisdiction of an action normally is determined by the demand or prayer of the complaint [Gardiner v. Royer (1914) 167 Cal. 238, 244, 139 P. 75] . The omission of a prayer from an otherwise sufficient complaint, however, will not destroy jurisdiction [Hoffman v. Pacific Coast Constr. Co. (1918) 37 Cal. App. 125, 129-132, 173 P. 776] . This is because the nature of the action and amount in controversy, for purposes of determining jurisdiction of the subject matter, may be ascertained from an examination of the complaint as a whole [Sellery v. Ward (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 300, 305, 131 P.2d 550 ; Davis v. Superior Court (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 596, 599, 102 Cal. Rptr. 238] .

In calculating the amount of the demand to determine the existence of the court's jurisdiction based on the amount in controversy, a plea of punitive damages must be added to a plea of actual damages [Gold v. Los Angeles Democratic League (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 365, 375, 122 Cal. Rptr. 732 ; see also Block v. Tobin (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 214, 222, 119 Cal. Rptr. 288] . Although punitive damages are recoverable only when there are actual damages, the actual damages need not be more than nominal; therefore, a request for punitive or exemplary damages above the superior court minimum is sufficient to establish jurisdiction, even though the actual damages sustained are comparatively slight [James v. Public Finance Corp. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 995, 1000, 121 Cal. Rptr. 670 ; Schwartz v. Cal. Claim Service (1942) 52 Cal. App. 2d 47, 56, 125 P.2d 883] . The actual damages need not be prayed for or awarded, they need only be proven [Weiss v. Blumencranc (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 536, 542-543, 131 Cal. Rptr. 298] .

Costs, however, like interest, are not deemed a part of the substantive demand to determine the amount in controversy for purposes of testing the jurisdiction of the court [Henigan v. Ervin (1895) 110 Cal. 37, 40, 42 P. 457] .

Attorney's fees may be recovered only when authorized by statute or by agreement of the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 1021; Reid v. Valley Restaurants, Inc. (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 606, 610, 311 P.2d 473 ; In re Marriage of Reyes (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 876, 879, 159 Cal. Rptr. 84] . When a statute permits the recovery of attorney's fees and by its language specifies that such fees be treated as damages, the fees may be added to other damages demanded in the prayer to bring the amount of the controversy within the superior court's jurisdictional limits [Garcia v. Ebeling Motor Co. (1949) 89

Cal. App. 2d 688, 694-695, 201 P.2d 854 ; see also Woodward v. Bruner(1951) 104 Cal. App. 2d 83, 85, 86, 230 P.2d 861] . All other attorney's fees permitted by contract, statute, or law are treated as costs [Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(a)(10); see also Woodward v. Bruner (1951) 104 Cal. App. 2d 83, 85, 86, 230 P.2d 861] .

A demand for reasonable attorney's fees which are authorized by contract, providing that attorney's fees are to be awarded when incurred to enforce the provisions of that contract, are to be treated only as costs [Civ. Code § 1717(a); Moulin Electric Corp. v. Roach (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 1067, 1069, 175 Cal. Rptr. 111] .

When no exact figure is specified in the pleading as a reasonable amount of attorney's fees as damages, the court can assume a figure that will support the subject matter jurisdiction of the court [Allstate Leasing Corp. v. Smith (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 128, 131, 47 Cal. Rptr. 636] .

Such items of special damage as expenses incurred in recovering converted property as authorized by Civ. Code § 3336 may also be added to damages in determining amount for jurisdiction of the court [Greenbaum v. Martinez (1890) 86 Cal. 459, 462, 25 P. 12] .

The demand for relief must be made in good faith and be reasonably supported by the allegations on which it is founded [Gardiner v. Royer (1914) 167 Cal. 238, 244, 139 P. 75] . An assertion in bad faith of an unfounded claim will not vest jurisdiction. If, however, the plaintiff overstates his case in good faith, the court will not lose jurisdiction, but the plaintiff may be penalized by loss of costs [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1033; see also Davis v. Superior Court (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 596, 600-601, 102 Cal. Rptr. 238 (applying prior law); for further discussion, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees].

Jurisdiction attaches at the commencement of the action [Gardiner v. Royer (1914) 167 Cal. 238, 244, 139 P. 75] . Once the court's jurisdiction attaches, the court retains jurisdiction to render a judgment for less than the jurisdictional amount even though a prayer for that amount would have lodged the action within the original jurisdiction of another court [Sellery v. Ward (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 300, 304, 131 P.2d 550 ; People v. Argonaut Ins. Co. (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 994, 996, 139 Cal. Rptr. 795] .

For discussion of the determination of the amount in controversy, see Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter .

[2] Reclassification or Transfer of Action When Amount Demanded Exceeds Jurisdictional Limits

If an action is erroneously classified as a limited civil case or otherwise in the initial pleading, or if it later appears that the case will necessarily involve the determination of questions inconsistent with the jurisdictional classification of the case, the court on its own motion, or the motion of the defendant or cross defendant, may reclassify the case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 403.040]. The plaintiff, cross-complainant, or petitioner may file a motion for reclassification within the time allowed for that party to amend the initial pleading [Code Civ. Proc. § 403.040].

If an appeal or petition is commenced in or transferred to a superior court that lacks jurisdiction, and a court of appeal or the Supreme Court would have jurisdiction, the appeal or petition shall be transferred to the court having jurisdiction upon terms as to costs or otherwise as may be just, and proceeded with as if regularly filed in the court having jurisdiction [Code Civ. Proc. § 396; see also Security Pac. Nat. Bank v. Lyon (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 8, 12, 165 Cal. Rptr. 95 , 105 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 8, 165 Cal. Rptr. 95 ; Babcock v. Antis (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 823, 829, 156 Cal. Rptr. 673] .

For discussion of Section 396 and 403.040 motions, see Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter .

[3] Remittance of Excess in Amount Demanded to Comply With Jurisdictional Limits

In any case where the erroneous jurisdictional classification or lack of jurisdiction is due solely to an excess in the amount of the demand, the excess may be remitted, and the action may continue as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 396, 403.040(f)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesReasonable FeesCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesStatutory AwardsCivil ProcedureRemediesDamagesPunitive DamagesCivil ProcedureRemediesDamagesSpecial DamagesTortsDamagesPunitive DamagesAward CalculationsGeneral OverviewTortsDamagesPunitive DamagesAward CalculationsJurisdictional Amounts

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.16

§ 420.16 Effect of Prayer on Relief Granted

[1] Defaults

The relief granted to the plaintiff, if there is no answer to his or her complaint, cannot exceed that which was demanded in the complaint, the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages, or the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement reserving the right to punitive damages [Code Civ. Proc. § 580; see Becker v. S.P.V. Construction Co. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 489, 493, 165 Cal. Rptr. 825, 612 P.2d 915 ; Burtnett v. King (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 805, 808, 809, 205 P.2d 657] .

A prayer for damages according to proof passes muster in a default under Code Civ. Proc. § 580 only if a specific amount of damages is alleged in the body of the complaint [Becker v. S.P.V. Construction Co. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 489, 494, 165 Cal. Rptr. 825, 612 P.2d 915 ; Furia v. Helm (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 945, 957, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 357] . Where no specific amount of damages is requested, any amount would be in excess of that demanded [Petty v. Manpower, Inc. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 794, 798, 156 Cal. Rptr. 622] .

For discussion of this limitation of relief on default, see Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments .

[2] Contested Cases

[a] In General

In a contested case, the court may grant any relief justified by the allegations of the complaint and the evidence, even though the relief may be greater than or different from the relief asked for in the prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 580 (subject to restriction that certain relief may not be granted in limited civil cases); see Nevada County & Sacramento Canal Co. v. Kidd (1869) 37 Cal. 282, 305] . When, however, the pleading specifies a particular sum as damages, the court may not award an amount in excess of that sum without an amendment of the prayer [Crofoot v. Blair Holdings Corp. (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 156, 195, 260 P.2d 156] .

[b] Interest

In a contested action, interest may be awarded, if the plaintiff is entitled thereto, even though the complaint contains no prayer for interest [Sanders v. City of Los Angeles (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 252, 263, 90 Cal. Rptr. 169, 475 P.2d 201 ; Sears, Roebuck & Co. v. Blade (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 580, 595, 294 P.2d 140 ; Deaux v. Trinidad Bean & Elevator Co. (1935) 8 Cal. App. 2d 149, 152, 47 P.2d 535] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsRequirementsTortsDamagesPunitive DamagesAward CalculationsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.17

§ 420.17 Absence of Prayer

If an answer is filed, the absence of a prayer is not fatal. The prayer is no longer an essential part of the complaint as the court under Code Civ. Proc. § 580 is charged with the duty of granting any relief consistent with the case made by the complaint and embraced within the issue [Furia v. Helm (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 945, 957, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 357 ; Kudokas v. Balkus (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 744, 755, 103 Cal. Rptr. 318 ; Smith v. Chin Chew (1927) 81 Cal. App. 704, 707, 254 P. 599] .

In a default situation, because Code Civ. Proc. § 580 states that the relief granted to the plaintiff cannot exceed that which he or she shall have demanded in his or her complaint, the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages, or the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement reserving the right to punitive damages, a default judgment that gives relief where no demand is made therefor is void as in excess of the court's jurisdiction and not res judicata [Becker v. S.P.V. Constr. Co. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 489, 493, 165 Cal. Rptr. 825, 612 P.2d 915, 612 P. 915 ; Burtnett v. King (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 805, 808, 205 P.2d 657] . If a judgment only partially exceeds the court's jurisdiction, the judgment can be modified to save that portion which is not void [Becker v. S.P.V. Construction Co. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 489, 495, 165 Cal. Rptr. 825, 612 P.2d 915] .

For further discussion, see § 420.16[1].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsRequirementsCivil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsDefaultGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsPreclusion & Effect of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.18

§ 420.18 Amendment of Prayer

A prayer may be amended [Miller v. Superior Court (1922) 59 Cal. App. 334, 339, 210 P. 832] . It may be amended to conform to proof, and mistakes may be corrected before or after judgment [Babcock v. Antis (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 823, 830, 156 Cal. Rptr. 673] . It is, however, error to sustain a motion made in the presence of the jury to increase the amount of the prayer [see Sanguinetti v. Moore Dry Dock Co. (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 812, 819, 228 P.2d 557] .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 420.19-420.39

[Reserved]

§§ 420.19[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.40

§ 420.40 Related Texts From LexisNexis Publishing

For a memorandum in support of a general demurrer to a complaint alleging negligence on the ground that it failed to allege damages, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 65, Damages

For a memorandum in support of a demurrer to a complaint on the ground that the court lacks jurisdiction of the subject of the action when the prayer seeks relief exceeding the power of the court to grant, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsDemurrersCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsRequirementsCivil ProceduresPretrial JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPretrial JudgmentsJudgment on the Pleadings

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.41

§ 420.41 State Statutes

Attorney's fees specifically provided for in contract treated as costs. Civ. Code §§ 1717(a), 1717.5(a)

Specific, injunctive, and compensatory relief. Civ. Code §§ 3274-3423

Motion for reclassification when it appears case will involve determination of issues inconsistent with its jurisdictional classification. Code Civ. Proc. § 403.040

Remission of excess of prayer over jurisdictional limit for limited civil case to allow case to retain its jurisdictional classification. Code Civ. Proc. § 403.040(f)

Superior court lacking jurisdiction as required to transfer appeal or petition to court of appeal or the Supreme Court having jurisdiction upon terms as to costs or otherwise as may be just, and proceeded with as if regularly filed in the court having jurisdiction. Code Civ. Proc. § 396

Remission of excess of prayer over jurisdictional limit of court as enabling case to continue therein. Code Civ. Proc. § 403.040(f)

Demand for relief as necessary part of complaint or cross complaint. Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)

Amount of money or damages demanded as required to be stated; exceptions. Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)

Amendment of pleadings. Code Civ. Proc. § 473(a)

Relief as not limited to that demanded in prayer, except in case of default. Code Civ. Proc. § 580

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsAmended PleadingsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsCross-ComplaintsCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsRequirements

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.42

§ 420.42 Federal Rules of Civil Procedure

Demand for relief as necessary part of claim. Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 8(a)(3)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsRequirements

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.43

§ 420.43 Decisions

[1] Amendment of Prayer

Trial court as committing error by sustaining motion made in presence of jury to increase amount of prayer. Sanguinetti v. Moore Dry Dock Co. (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 812, 819, 228 P.2d 557

In unlawful detainer action, demand for rental value of premises for each day occupied or for other generalized damages in unenumerated amounts, which could be interpreted as potentially escalating the amount of demand above municipal court's jurisdiction, as correctable by amendment after judgment to conform to proof. Babcock v. Antis (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 823, 830, 156 Cal. Rptr. 673

Court as allowed to consider prayer when determining if pleader is able to amend insufficient complaint to state cause of action. Lane v. Davis (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 302, 310, 342 P.2d 267

Prayer as amended. Miller v. Superior Court (1922) 59 Cal. App. 334, 339, 210 P. 832

[2] Contested Cases

Court as allowed, in contested case, to grant any relief justified by allegations of complaint and evidence, although relief greater than or different from relief asked for in prayer. Nevada County & Sacramento Canal Co. v. Kidd (1869) 37 Cal. 282, 305 ; Lawrence v. Shutt (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 749, 767, 75 Cal. Rptr. 533

In equitable action, prayer for general relief as providing basis for grant of relief greater than or different from that asked for in prayer. Lawrence v. Shutt (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 749, 767, 75 Cal. Rptr. 533

Court in equitable action as allowed, under prayer for general relief, to grant any relief conformable to case made by pleadings and evidence, although not relief asked by special prayer. Lachman Bros. v. Muenzer (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 520, 524-525, 300 P.2d 295 ; Knox v. Wolfe (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 494, 505, 167 P.2d 3

[3] Default Judgments

Default judgment as not permitted to include award in excess of that prayed for in complaint. Greenup v. Rodman (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 822, 826-829, 231 Cal. Rptr. 220, 726 P.2d 1295 ; Becker v. S.P.V. Construction Co. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 489, 493, 165 Cal. Rptr. 825, 612 P.2d 915 ; Burtnett v. King (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 805, 808, 809, 205 P.2d 657 ; Wilkinson v. Wilkinson (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 1164, 1166-1167, 91 Cal. Rptr. 372

Inclusion of punitive damages in default judgment as error when only compensatory damages prayed for. Gudarov v. Hadjieff (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 412, 416-417, 240 P.2d 621

Where complaint adequately notified defendant that the amount of damages sought was $245,000--the amount of an uncollected judgment--plaintiffs were not required to reiterate that sum in the prayer in order to comply with Code of Civ. Proc. § 580. However, because neither the body of the complaint nor the prayer for relief identified the amount of attorney fees being sought as $15,000, that amount must be stricken from the judgment. Hearn v. Howard (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1193, 1209, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 642

Reversible error to grant judgment for $20,000 on default in personal injury or wrongful death action in superior court when defendant not served with notice of damages by pleading or as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11. Stevenson v. Turner (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 315, 320, 156 Cal. Rptr. 499

Award to putative wife of monetary sum in lieu of her interest in quasi-community property as in excess of jurisdiction and void when complaint demanded award of property and husband defaulted; relief as not permitted under Code Civ. Proc. § 580 to exceed demand of complaint. Wilkinson v. Wilkinson (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 1164, 1166-1167, 91 Cal. Rptr. 372

Allegation of damage in sum of $10,000 plus prayer for damages according to proof and such other relief as the court may deem equitable as giving adequate notice to defendant that in addition to restitutional relief demanded, plaintiffs also requested money damages. Thorson v. Western Development Corp. (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 206, 212-213, 59 Cal. Rptr. 299 (sustaining with unrelated modification denial of motion to vacate default judgment)

Default judgment granting relief not prayed for as in excess of jurisdiction and void. Lee v. Ski Run Apartments Associates (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 293, 295, 57 Cal. Rptr. 496

Rule that judgment in excess of prayer is void when default taken as inapplicable when complaint contained prayer for an accounting and judgment granted was after and in accordance with accounting. Wyoming Pacific Oil Company v. Preston (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 735, 745, 341 P.2d 732

[4] Defective Prayer

Defective prayer in complaint as not destroying otherwise sufficiently stated cause of action. Carney v. Simmonds (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 84, 96, 315 P.2d 305

The absence of a specific amount from the complaint is not necessarily fatal as long as the pleaded facts entitle the plaintiff to relief. Furia v. Helm (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 945, 957, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 357

[5] Effect on Complaint and Cause of Action

Prayer as not part of cause of action and issues involved in case as determinable from facts alleged rather than from prayer. Weber v. Superior Court (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 144, 147-148, 156 P.2d 923 ; Berg v. Investors Real Estate Loan Co. (1962) 207 Cal. App. 2d 808, 815, 24 Cal. Rptr. 701

Cause of action as stated if from facts alleged it can be determined that plaintiff is entitled to any relief even though plaintiff demanded relief other than that to which he or she was entitled. Spurr v. Spurr (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 614, 617, 151 Cal. Rptr. 813

[6] Equitable Proceeding

Court in contested case as permitted to grant any relief justified by allegations of complaint and evidence, even though relief is greater than or different from that requested. Lawrence v. Shutt (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 749, 767, 75 Cal. Rptr. 533 (court granted relief in equitable proceeding under prayer for general relief)

Declaratory relief as awardable by court under prayer for general relief when justified by the case. Lachman Bros. v. Muenzer (1956) 143 Cal.C App. 2d 520, 524-525, 143 Cal. App. 2d 520, 300 P.2d 295

[7] Exemplary Damages

Actual damages as required to be proven, but not prayed for or awarded, for punitive damages. Weiss v. Blumencranc (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 536, 542-543, 131 Cal. Rptr. 298

Complaint showing affirmatively that no actual damages can be recovered as vulnerable to demurrer despite allegation of and prayer for exemplary damages. Kluge v. O'Gara (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 207, 209, 38 Cal. Rptr. 607

[8] Interest

In contested action, interest as awardable, even if not specifically prayed for in complaint, if plaintiff entitled thereto. Sanders v. City of Los Angeles (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 252, 263, 90 Cal. Rptr. 169, 475 P.2d 201 ; Sears Roebuck & Co. v. Blade (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 580, 595, 294 P.2d 140 ; Deaux v. Trinidad Bean & Elevator Co. (1935) 8 Cal. App. 2d 149, 152, 47 P.2d 535

Judgment for $6,359.11 as not exceeding prayer for $6,022.71 plus interest from specified date where interest accrued amounts to more than difference between the two figures. Boyle v. Hawkins (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 229, 240, 78 Cal. Rptr. 161, 455 P.2d 97

[9] Jurisdiction

Mere fact that subsequent judgment rendered for lesser amount than jurisdictional minimum of court as not depriving court of jurisdiction previously acquired by virtue of prayer. Sellery v. Ward (1921) 21 Cal. 2d 300, 304, 131 P.2d 550 ; People v. Argonaut Ins. Co. (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 994, 996, 139 Cal. Rptr. 795

Jurisdiction of superior court over subject matter of action as determinable from prayer. Gardiner v. Royer (1914) 167 Cal. 238, 244, 139 P. 75

Addition of special damages for expenses incurred in recovering converted property to other damages demanded in prayer as determining whether case is within superior court's jurisdiction. Greenbaum v. Martinez (1890) 86 Cal. 459, 462, 25 P. 12

When cross complaint filed in municipal court asking for damages in excess of jurisdictional limit, court as losing jurisdiction and any subsequent order or judgment as void unless (1) pleading was not filed in good faith or was frivolous or vexatious, (2) there has been express or implied waiver of any recovery in excess of monetary subject matter limits, or (3) allegations of pleading do not support relief prayed for. Security Pac. Nat. Bank v. Lyon (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 8, 12-14, 165 Cal. Rptr. 95 , 105 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 8, 165 Cal. Rptr. 95

Where pleadings technically vulnerable to construction that they contained potential for exceeding jurisdictional limit, failure to amend to conform to proof as not defeating jurisdiction. Babcock v. Antis (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 823, 830-831, 156 Cal. Rptr. 673

In determining existence of court's jurisdiction, plea of punitive damages as required to be added to plea of actual damages. Gold v. Los Angeles Democratic League (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 365, 375, 122 Cal. Rptr. 732 ; see also Block v. Tobin (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 214, 222, 119 Cal. Rptr. 288

Request for punitive damages above jurisdiction minimum of superior court as sufficient to establish jurisdiction in that court, even though actual damages sustained are comparatively slight. James v. Public Finance Corp. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 995, 1000, 121 Cal. Rptr. 670 ; Muller v. Reagh (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 99, 102, 309 P.2d 826

Assertion in bad faith of unfounded claim as not vesting jurisdiction; overstated case as not defeating jurisdiction. Davis v. Superior Court (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 596, 600-601, 102 Cal. Rptr. 238

Addition of attorney's fees, permitted by statute, to other damages demanded in prayer as determining whether case within superior court's jurisdiction. Garcia v. Ebeling Motor Co. (1949) 89 Cal. App. 2d 688, 694-695, 201 P.2d 854

Omission of prayer from otherwise sufficient complaint as not destroying jurisdiction. Hoffman v. Pacific Coast Constr. Co. (1918) 37 Cal. App. 125, 130-132, 173 P. 776

[10] Motion to Increase Amount of Prayer

Error to sustain motion made before jury to increase amount of prayer. Sanguinetti v. Moore Dry Dock Co. (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 812, 819, 228 P.2d 557

Motion not made before jury to increase amount of prayer when defense counsel mentioned amount of prayer in presence of jury. Russell v. Geis (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 560, 570-571, 59 Cal. Rptr. 569

[11] Relief Nonspecifically or Wrongly Requested

Prayer seeking easement over defendants' lands as sufficient ground for finding on issue even though prescriptive easement is not specifically pleaded in complaint. Hails v. Martz (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 775, 777-778, 172 P.2d 52

Court in contested case as permitted to grant any relief justified by allegations of complaint and evidence even though relief is greater or different from that requested. Lawrence v. Shutt (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 749, 767, 75 Cal. Rptr. 533

Effect of plaintiff's mistake as to form of relief to which he is entitled. Canby v. Council of City of Los Angeles (1931) 114 Cal. App. 94, 96, 299 P. 732

[12] Uses of Prayer

Use of prayer to bring in party on cross complaint as permitted. Eureka v. Gates (1898) 120 Cal. 54, 58, 52 P. 125

Prayer as indicating theory of action. Browne v. Ulrich (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 367, 371, 195 P.2d 804

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsAmended PleadingsConforming Pleadings to EvidenceCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsRule Application & InterpretationCivil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsDefaultDefault JudgmentsCivil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsDefaultRelief From DefaultCivil ProcedureRemediesDamagesPunitive DamagesReal Property LawTitle QualityAdverse Claim ActionsUnlawful DetainerTortsDamagesPunitive DamagesGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.44

§ 420.44 Law Reviews

Review of Selected 1979 California Legislation, Civil Procedure; Punitive Damages, 11 Pacific L.J. 352 (1980)

Review of Selected 1974 California Legislation, Civil Procedure; Pleading, 6 Pacific L.J. 216 (1975)

Note, "Default Judgments in Excess of Prayer," 4 Stan. L. Rev. 278 (1952)

Note, "Amendment of Prayer in Jury's Presence," 4 Stan. L. Rev. 154 (1951)

Note, "Code Pleading: Vulnerability of Default Judgment to Collateral Attack Because Relief Granted Was Not Demanded in Complaint," 38 Cal. L. Rev. 313 (1950)

Note, "Award of Alimony in a Default Action Without Express Prayer for Such Relief," 15 So. Cal. L. Rev. 375 (1942)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsAmended PleadingsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsRequirementsCivil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsDefaultDefault JudgmentsCivil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsDefaultRelief From DefaultCivil ProcedureRemediesDamagesPunitive Damages

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.45

§ 420.45 Text References

MOORE' S FEDERAL PRACTICE, Ch. 8, Ch. 54, Ch. 55 (3rd ed. Matthew Bender)

Frumer, BENDER' S FEDERAL PRACTICE FORMS, Vols. 1A, 1B

Witkin, California Procedure, Vol. 4, Pleading, §§ 412, 432, 456-459 (4th ed. 1997)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 420.46through 420.49

[Reserved]

§§ 420.46[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART IV. FORMS

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.50

§ 420.50 Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Damages, Costs, and General Relief--General Form

[1] FORM Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] for Damages, Costs, and General Relief--General Form

WHEREFORE, _____ [plaintiff(s) or cross complaint(s)] pray(s) judgment against _____ [defendant(s) or cross defendant(s)] [, and each of them,] as follows:

1. For general damages in the sum of $_____;

2. For _____ [specify special damages, if any, e.g., damages for loss of earnings] _____ [in the sum of $_____ or according to proof];

3. For _____ [specify other legal or equitable relief sought (see, e.g., §§ 420.55 -420.63)];

4. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of prayer in [1], above, is for use by plaintiff or cross complainant in a complaint or cross complaint for damages, costs, and general relief, except in personal injury or wrongful death actions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2), (b)].

For a form of prayer for use in an action, other than a limited civil case, brought in superior court for actual or punitive damages for personal injury or wrongful death, see § 420.51.

For a general discussion of costs and damages, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees , and Ch. 177, Damages , respectively.

[3] Cross References

Necessity of demand for relief in complaint or cross complaint. Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)

Amount of money or damages demanded as required to be stated. Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART IV. FORMS

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.51

§ 420.51 Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] for Damages, Costs, and General Relief--In Personal Injury or Wrongful Death Action

[1] FORM Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] for Damages, Costs, and General Relief--In Personal Injury or Wrongful Death Action in Superior Court in Other Than Limited Civil Case

WHEREFORE, _____ [plaintiff(s) or cross complainant(s)] pray(s) judgment against _____ [defendant(s) or cross defendant(s)] [, and each of them,] as follows:

1. For general damages according to proof;

2. For _____ [specify special damages, if any, e.g., damages for loss of earnings], according to proof;

3. For _____ [specify other legal or equitable relief sought (see §§ 420.55 -420.63)];

4. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of prayer in [1], above, is for use in a a complaint or cross complaint for damages, costs, and general relief in personal injury or wrongful death actions. In an action to recover actual or punitive damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the amount demanded shall not be stated [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)]. Since the amount to be awarded will be determined from the evidence presented, the prayer requests relief according to proof.

A statement of the nature and amount of damages being sought may be requested by the defendant, from the plaintiff, at any time. If no request is made, the plaintiff must give the defendant notice of the amount of special and general damages sought (1) before a default may be taken; or (2) when an answer is filed, at least 60 days prior to the date set for trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11]. For a form of request for a statement of damages, see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq.

For a prayer that includes interest on damages in a personal injury or wrongful death action, see § 420.59.

[3] Cross References

In actions filed after January 1, 2005, and fully adjudicated, 75% of any punitive damages awarded pursuant to a final judgment are allocated to the Public Benefit Trust Fund and 25% to the plaintiff(s) [Civ. Code § 3294.5(b) (in effect until July 1, 2006)]. For discussion, see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART IV. FORMS

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.52

§ 420.52 Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Damages, Costs, and General Relief--Multiple Plaintiffs or Cross Complainants Suing Single Defendant or Cross Defendant for Different Relief

[1] FORM Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] for Damages, Costs, and General Relief--Multiple Plaintiffs or Cross Complainants Suing Single Defendant or Cross Defendant for Different Relief

WHEREFORE, _____ [plaintiffs or cross complainants] pray judgment against _____ [defendant or cross defendant] as follows:

_____ [Plaintiff or Cross Complainant] _____ [name] prays:

1. For general damages in the sum of $_____; and

2. For _____ [specify special damages, if any, e.g., damages for loss of earnings] _____ [according to proof or in the sum of $_____];

_____ [Plaintiff or Cross Complainant] _____ [name] prays:

3. For general damages in the sum of $_____; and

4. For _____ [specify special damages, if any, e.g., damages for loss of earnings] _____ [according to proof or in the sum of $_____];

_____ [Plaintiffs or Cross Complainants] _____ [List all plaintiffs or cross complainants] pray:

5. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

6. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of prayer in [1], above, is for use in a complaint or cross complaint for damages, costs, and general relief when there are multiple plaintiffs or cross complainants suing a single defendant or cross defendant and some or each of the plaintiffs or cross complainants is requesting different relief from the defendant or cross defendant. For a form of prayer for use when all plaintiffs or cross complainants are requesting the same relief of the defendant or cross defendant, see § 420.50.

This form may be adapted for use in personal injury or wrongful death actions by deleting the amount of money or damages [see § 420.51].

For a discussion of, and forms relating to, joinder of plaintiffs, see Ch. 395, Parties .

[3] Cross References

Permissive joinder of plaintiffs. Code Civ. Proc. § 378

Compulsory joinder of parties. Code Civ. Proc. § 389

Joinder of parties in cross complaint. Code Civ. Proc. § 428.20

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART IV. FORMS

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.53

§ 420.53 Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Damages, Costs, and General Relief--By Single Plaintiff or Cross Complainant Against Multiple Defendants or Cross Defendants for Different Relief

[1] FORM Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] for Damages, Costs, and General Relief--By Single Plaintiff or Cross Complainant Against Multiple Defendants or Cross Defendants for Different Relief

WHEREFORE, _____ [plaintiff or cross complainant] prays judgment against _____ [defendants or cross defendants], and each of them, as follows:

1. For general damages against _____ [defendant(s) or cross defendant(s)] _____ [name(s)] in the sum of $_____;

2. For _____ [specify special damages, if any, e.g., damages for loss of earnings against _____ (defendant(s) or cross defendant(s) _____ (name(s)] _____ [according to proof or in the sum of $_____];

3. For general damages against _____ [defendant(s) or cross defendant(s) _____ [name] in the sum of $_____;

4. For _____ [specify special damages, if any, e.g., damages for loss of earnings] _____ [according to proof or in the sum of $_____];

5. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

6. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of prayer in [1], above, is for use in a complaint or cross complaint for damages, costs, and general relief when there is one plaintiff or cross complainant against more than one defendant or cross defendant and different relief is sought from some or each of the defendants or cross defendants. For a form of prayer for use when the same relief is demanded of all defendants or cross defendants, see § 420.50.

This form can be adapted for use in personal injury or wrongful death actions by deleting the amount of damages [see § 420.51].

For a discussion of, and forms relating to, joinder of defendants, see Ch. 395, Parties .

[3] Cross References

Permissive joinder of defendants. Code Civ. Proc. § 379

Compulsory joinder of parties. Code Civ. Proc. § 389

Joinder of parties in cross complaint. Code Civ. Proc. § 428.20

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART IV. FORMS

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.54

§ 420.54 Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Damages, Costs, and General Relief--Multiple Causes of Action

[1] FORM Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] for Damages, Costs, and General Relief--Multiple Causes of Action

WHEREFORE, _____ [plaintiff or cross complainant] prays judgment against _____ [defendant(s) or cross defendant(s)] as follows:

On the FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION:

1. For general damages [in the sum of $_____ or according to proof];

2. For special damages [in the sum of $_____ or according to proof];

On the SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION:

3. For general damages [in the sum of $_____ or according to proof];

4. For special damages [in the sum of $_____ or according to proof];

On all CAUSES OF ACTION:

5. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

6. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of prayer in [1], above, is for use in a complaint or cross complaint for damages, costs, and general relief when more than one cause of action is alleged. This form can be adapted for use in personal injury or wrongful death actions by deleting the amount of damages [see § 420.51].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART IV. FORMS

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.55

§ 420.55 Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Exemplary and Punitive Damages [Civ. Code §§ 3294, 3295]--In Addition to General and Special Damages, Costs, and General Relief--General Form

[1] FORM Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Exemplary and Punitive Damages [Civ. Code §§ 3294, 3295]--In Addition to General and Special Damages, Costs, and General Relief--General Form

WHEREFORE, _____ [plaintiff or cross complainant] prays judgment against _____ [defendant or cross defendant] as follows:

1. For general damages in the sum of $_____;

2. For _____ [specify special damages, if any, e.g., damages for loss of earnings] _____ [according to proof or in the sum of $_____];

3. For exemplary and punitive damages;

4. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of prayer in [1], above, is for use in a complaint or cross complaint for exemplary and punitive damages in addition to general and special damages, costs, and general relief. No claim for exemplary damages may state an amount or amounts [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of exemplary damages, see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq., and for discussion of the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement reserving the right to seek punitive damages on default, see Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART IV. FORMS

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.56

§ 420.56 Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Principal Amount Plus Interest [Civ. Code § 3287]--At Legal [or Agreed] Rate [Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1; Code Civ. Proc. § 685.010]--General Form

[1] FORM Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Principal Amount Plus Interest [Civ. Code § 3287]--At Legal [or Agreed] Rate [Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1; Code Civ. Proc. § 685.010]--General Form

WHEREFORE, _____ [plaintiff or cross complainant] prays judgment against _____ [defendant or cross defendant] as follows:

[EITHER]

1. For the [principal] sum of $_____;

2. For interest on that [principal] sum at _____ [specify legal or agreed rate] percent per annum from _____ [date];

3. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[OR]

1. For the [principal] sum of $_____ with interest thereon at _____ [specify legal or agreed rate] percent per annum from _____ [date];

2. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of prayer in [1], above, is for use in a complaint or cross complaint praying for prejudgment interest on damages in an action on a contract claiming liquidated [see Civ. Code § 3287(a)] or unliquidated [see Civ. Code § 3287(b)] damages.

For a discussion of interest on unliquidated claim see Ch. 177, Damages . For a discussion of contracting for payment of interest, see Ch. 568, Usury .

[3] Cross References

Contractual stipulation of legal rate of interest. Civ. Code § 3289(a)

Waiver of claim to interest. Civ. Code § 3290

Interest rates on judgments as set by Legislature at 10 percent per annum. Code Civ. Proc. § 685.010

Interest after breach of contract that does not stipulate legal rate. Civ. Code § 3289(b)

Inclusion of prejudgment interest by clerk of court in entry of judgment. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1802

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART IV. FORMS

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.57

§ 420.57 Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Principal Amount Plus Interest [Civ. Code § 3287]--On Each Amount From Different Dates at Legal or Agreed Rate [Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1; Code Civ. Proc. § 685.010]

[1] FORM Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Principal Amount Plus Interest [Civ. Code § 3287]--On Each Amount From Different Dates at Legal or Agreed Rate [Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1; Code Civ. Proc. § 685.010]

WHEREFORE, _____ [plaintiff or cross complainant] prays judgment against _____ [defendant or cross defendant] as follows:

1. For the sum of $_____, with interest thereon at _____ [specify legal or agreed rate] percent per annum from _____ [date];

2. For the sum of $_____, with interest thereon at _____ [specify legal or agreed rate] percent per annum from _____ [date];

3. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of prayer in [1], above, is for use in a complaint or cross complaint for prejudgment interest on damages in an action on contract when interest is to begin on different dates.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART IV. FORMS

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.58

§ 420.58 Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Liquidated Damages According to Agreement of Parties [Civ. Code § 1671], Plus Interest [Civ. Code § 3287]

[1] FORM Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Liquidated Damages According to Agreement of Parties [Civ. Code § 1671], Plus Interest [Civ. Code § 3287]

WHEREFORE, _____ [plaintiff or cross complainant] prays for judgment against _____ [defendant or cross defendant] as follows:

1. For liquidated damages according to the agreement of the parties in the sum of $_____;

2. For interest on those liquidated damages at _____ percent per annum from _____ [date];

3. For cost of suit herein incurred; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of prayer in [1], above, is for use in a complaint or cross complaint when liquidated damages were stipulated in the contract breached by defendant.

[3] Cross References

Note, "Damages--Liquidated Damages and Penalties," 27 So. Cal. L. Rev. 209 (1954)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART IV. FORMS

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.59

§ 420.59 Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Damages Plus Interest [Civ. Code §§ 3288, 3291]--At Legal Rate [Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1; Code Civ. Proc. § 685.010]--In Personal Injury or Wrongful Death Action

[1] FORM Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Damages Plus Interest [Civ. Code §§ 3288, 3291]--At Legal Rate [Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1; Code Civ. Proc. § 685.010]--In Personal Injury or Wrongful Death Action

WHEREFORE, _____ [plaintiff or cross complainant] prays judgment against _____ [defendant or cross defendant] as follows:

1. For general damages according to proof;

2. For _____ [specify special damages, if any, e.g., damages for loss of earnings] _____ [according to proof];

3. For interest on the damages at _____ [specify legal rate] percent per annum from _____ [date];

4. For cost of suit herein incurred; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of prayer in [1], above, is for use in a complaint or cross complaint for prejudgment interest on damages in a personal injury or wrongful death action. Interest may be claimed in such an action when a plaintiff or cross complainant makes an offer pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 998 which the defendant or cross defendant does not accept prior to trial and within 30 days, and the plaintiff or cross complainant subsequently obtains a more favorable judgment. Interest, pursuant to Civ. Code § 3291, will be calculated from the date of plaintiff's or cross complainant's first offer that was exceeded by the judgment until satisfaction of judgment [Civ. Code § 3291].

Interest may also be claimed when the tort involves malice [see Civ. Code § 3288]. It appears that interest pursuant to

Civ. Code § 3288 may be awarded at the discretion of the jury from the date of the tort until the entry of judgment [see Morgan v. French (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 785, 788, 161 P.2d 800] .

For a prayer that includes other legal or equitable relief sought in a personal injury or wrongful death actions, see § 520.51.

For further discussion, see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART IV. FORMS

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.60

§ 420.60 Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Attorney's Fees in Addition to General and Special Damages, Costs, and General Relief

[1] FORM Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Attorney's Fees in Addition to General and Special Damages, Costs, and General Relief

WHEREFORE, _____ [plaintiff or cross complainant] prays judgment against _____ [defendant or cross defendant] as follows:

1. For general damages in the sum of $_____;

2. For _____ [enumerate items of special damages, if any] _____ [in the sum of $_____ or according to proof];

3. For reasonable attorney's fees _____ [in the sum of $_____ (pursuant to Section _____ of the _____ (specify code).) or in an amount to be determined by the court];

4. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of prayer in [1], above, is for use in a complaint or cross complaint for attorney's fees, in addition to general and special damages, costs, and general relief, when an amount is known or unspecified. Attorney's fees demanded must be authorized by contract or statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1021].

This form may be adapted for use in personal injury or wrongful death actions by deleting the amount of damages requested [see § 420.51].

[3] Cross References

For allegation that contract specifies attorney's fees in event of breach, see Ch. 140, Contracts

For a discussion of attorney's fees as costs, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.50 et seq.

Prevailing party in action on contract specifically providing for attorney's fees as entitled to same whether he or she is party specified in contract or not. Civ. Code § 1717(a)

Attorney's fees on contract specifically providing for attorney's fees treated as costs. Civ. Code §§ 1717(a), 1717.5(a)

Attorney's fees as matter of agreement, unless provided for by statute. Code Civ. Proc. § 1021

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART IV. FORMS

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.61

§ 420.61 Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Declaratory Relief

[1] FORM Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] for Declaratory Relief

WHEREFORE, _____ [plaintiff or cross complainant] prays judgment against _____ [defendant or cross defendant] as follows:

1. For _____ [specify declaratory relief sought, e.g., a declaration by the court of the rights and duties of the parties herein, and specifically for a declaration that _____ (specify declaratory judgment sought)];

2. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of prayer in [1], above, is for use in a complaint or cross complaint for declaratory relief. This form may be adapted for incorporation into a prayer for damages when the complaint or cross complaint contains allegations stating a cause of action for damages [see § 420.50].

For additional forms of prayers for declaratory judgment, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief .

[3] Cross References

Declaratory relief actions generally. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1060-1062a

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART IV. FORMS

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.62

§ 420.62 Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Injunctive Relief

[1] FORM Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Injunctive Relief

WHEREFORE, _____ [plaintiff or cross complainant] prays judgment against _____ [defendant or cross defendant] as follows:

1. For _____ [specify injunctive relief sought, e.g., a temporary restraining order, a preliminary injunction, and a permanent injunction, all enjoining _____ (defendant or cross defendant) and his/her/its agents, servants, and employees, and all such persons acting under, in concert with, or for him/her/it from _____ (specify acts enjoined)];

2. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of prayer in [1], above, is for use in a complaint or cross complaint for injunctive relief. The prayer may be adapted for incorporation into a demand for damages when the complaint or cross complaint contains allegations stating a cause of action for damages [see § 420.50].

For additional forms of prayers for injunctive relief, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[3] Cross References

Permanent injunctions generally. Civ. Code §§ 3420-3423

Provisional injunctive relief generally. Code Civ. Proc. § 525 et seq.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART IV. FORMS

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.63

§ 420.63 Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Specific Performance

[1] FORM Prayer [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] for Specific Performance

WHEREFORE, _____ [plaintiff or cross complainant] prays judgment against _____ [defendant or cross defendant] as follows:

1. That defendant be ordered to _____ [specify conduct desired, e.g., execute and deliver to _____ (plaintiff or cross complainant) the deed to the property described herein];

2. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of prayer in [1], above, is for use in a complaint or cross complaint when seeking specific performance as relief. This form may be adapted for incorporation in a prayer for damages when the complaint or cross complaint contains allegations stating a cause of action for damages [see § 420.50].

For additional forms of prayers for specific performance, see Ch. 528, Specific Performance .

[3] Cross References

Specific performance generally. Civ. Code §§ 3384-3395

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART IV. FORMS

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.64

§ 420.64 Prayer in Answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30]

[1] FORM Prayer in Answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30]

WHEREFORE, _____ [defendant or cross defendant] prays:

1. That _____ [plaintiff or cross complainant] _____ [be granted no relief in or take nothing by] this action;

2. For costs of suit incurred herein; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of prayer in [1], above, is for use in the answer to the complaint or cross complaint to request that plaintiff not receive relief and that defendant be awarded costs and other general relief. A prayer may be included in the answer, but it is not required by statute.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART IV. FORMS

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.65

§ 420.65 Notice of Motion to Amend Prayer of Complaint or Cross Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(a)]

[1] FORM Notice of Motion to Amend Prayer of Complaint or Cross Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(a)]
SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name], _____ [Plaintiff or Cross Defendant]. vs. _____ [name], _____ [Defendant or Cross Defendant].	))))))))))	NO. _____ NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION TO AMEND PRAYER OF _____ [COMPLAINT or CROSS COMPLAINT] Date: _____ Time: _____ Location: _____ Judge: _____ Date Action Filed: _____ Trial Date: _____

To _____ [specify party, e.g., defendant] and to _____ [name], his/her/its attorney of record:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on _____ [date], at _____ [time];, or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard in [_____ (Department or Division) _____ of] this court, located at _____ [address], _____ [city], _____ [specify party, e.g., plaintiff] will, and hereby does, move for leave to amend the prayer of the _____ [complaint or cross complaint] in this action so as to _____ [state addition, deletion, or alteration, e.g., include a request for attorney's fees]. The motion will be made under Code of Civil Procedure section 473(a) on the grounds that _____ [state reason for amendment].

The motion will be based on this notice of motion, on the declaration of _____ [name] and the supporting memorandum served and filed herewith, on the papers and records and file herein, and on such evidence as may be presented at the hearing of the motion.
Date: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [Plaintiff or

Cross Complainant]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use to move to amend the prayer of a complaint or cross complaint in any type of action when any addtional relief is sought.

A supporting memorandum must be filed and a copy served with this motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[3] Cross References

For discussion and forms relating to amending a complaint generally, see Ch. 21, Amended and Supplemental Pleadigns

For memoranda in support of a motion to amend a complaint, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 16, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings (Matthew Bender)

Amendment of pleadings. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 473(a), 576

Witkin, California Procedure, Vol. 4, Pleading, § 456-459 (4th ed. 1997)

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 420 PRAYERS
PART IV. FORMS

36-420 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 420.66

§ 420.66 Order Granting or Denying Motion to Amend Prayer of Complaint or Cross Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(a)]

[1] FORM Order Granting or Denying Motion to Amend Prayer of Complaint or Cross Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(a)]
SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
_____ [Plaintiff or Cross Com-	)	NO. _____ plainant],	)	ORDER
vs.	)
_____ [name],	)
_____ [Defendant or Cross Defendant].

The motion of _____ [name of moving party] for an order permitting amendment of the prayer of the _____ [complaint or cross complaint] came on regularly for hearing by the court this date. _____ [Plaintiff or Cross Complainant] appeared by counsel _____ [name]; _____ [Defendant or Cross Defendant] appeared by counsel _____ [name].

On proof made to the satisfaction of the court that the motion ought to be _____ [granted or denied],

[EITHER]

IT IS ORDERED that the motion be, and it hereby is, granted and that the prayer in _____ [plaintiff's or cross complainant's] _____ [complaint or cross complaint] which reads as follows: _____ [set out original prayer], be amended and corrected to read: _____ [set out amended prayer].

[OR]

IT IS ORDERED that the motion be, and hereby is, denied.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

Judge of the _____ Court

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use as an order by the court to permit amendment of the prayer in the complaint or cross complaint.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated 421.syn

§ 421.syn Synopsis to Chapter 421: PREMISES LIABILITY

§ 421.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 421.02 Cross References

§§ 421.03-421.09 [Reserved]

§ 421.10 Governing Law

§ 421.11 Liability to Persons on Premises

[1] Former Duties of Owner or Possessor

[2] Definitions of Invitee, Licensee, and Trespasser

[3] Negligence Standard

[4] Relationship Between Former Duties and Negligence Standard

[5] No Liability for Injury Incurred During or After Commission of Felony

[6] No Liability for Injuries Incurred During Gleaning

§ 421.12 Persons Liable

[1] Requirement of Control

[2] Between Owners and Contractors

[3] Condominium Owners and Associations

[a] Unit Owners

[b] Condominium Associations

[c] Directors of Condominium Associations

[4] Possessors

[5] Owners Not in Possession

[a] Landlords' Responsibility Not Abrogated by Signing Lease

[b] Landlords' Liability to Tenants

[c] Landlords' Liability to Nontenants

[6] Former Owners

[7] Owners or Possessors of Adjacent Property

[8] Owners of Easement Rights

§ 421.13 Premises

§ 421.14 Duty to Maintain Premises in Safe Condition

[1] Dangerous Condition

[2] Obvious Danger

[3] Trivial Defects

[4] Effect of Comparative Negligence

[a] Inclusion of Assumption of Risk

[b] Supreme Court's Attempt in Knight v. Jewett to Resolve Conflict Regarding Assumption of Risk

[c] Primary and Secondary Assumption of Risk Versus Consent-Based Analysis

§ 421.15 Duty to Control Conduct of Third Persons

[1] Persons to Whom Duty Owed

[2] Foreseeability and Prior Similar Incidents Rule

[a] Duty to Protect Against Reasonably Foreseeable Risks

[b] Scope of Duty to Take Precautions

[c] Increase in Plaintiff's Burden of Proof

[d] Satisfying Duty to Control Third Persons if Risk of Injury Not Highly Foreseeable

[3] No Liability if No Degree of Protection Would Prevent Conduct

[4] Duty When Responding to Presently Occurring Criminal Conduct

[5] No Liability in Residential Setting for Failure to Warn of Third Party's Past Criminal Convictions for Molestation

§ 421.16 "Firefighter's" Rule

[1] Bar to Recovery for Injuries

[2] Rule Not Applicable to Private Safety Employees

[3] Exception to Rule for Independent Act of Misconduct or Unrelated Risk

[a] Scope of Exception

[b] Exception Not Applicable to Firefighters or Police Officers Encountering Hazards by Chance

[4] Exceptions to Rule Under Civ. Code § 1714.9

§ 421.17 Duty to Persons Outside Premises

[1] No Distinction Between Artificial and Natural Conditions

[2] Distracting Activities on Premises

§§ 421.18-421.19 [Reserved]

§ 421.20 Governing Statutes

§ 421.21 Landowner's Immunity From Liability to Recreational Users

§ 421.22 Recreational Purpose Defined

§ 421.23 Exceptions to Immunity

[1] Public Entities

[2] Insufficient Ownership Interest

[3] Willful or Malicious Failure to Guard or Warn

[4] Permission to Enter Premises Granted for Consideration

[5] Persons Expressly Invited to Enter Premises

[6] Navigable Waters

[7] Property Not Suitable for Recreational Purpose

§§ 421.24-421.29 [Reserved]

§ 421.30 Governing Law

§ 421.31 Employer's Liability for Acts of General Contractor

§ 421.32 Peculiar Risk

[1] Scope of Employer's Liability

[2] Employee of Independent Contractor Cannot Recover From Hirer

§ 421.33 Nondelegable Duty to Maintain Premises in Safe Condition

§ 421.34 Collateral Negligence

§§ 421.35-421.39 [Reserved]

§ 421.40 Definitions

§ 421.41 General Rights and Duties Concerning Waters

§ 421.42 Flood Waters

§ 421.43 Surface Waters

[1] Duty of Reasonable Care

[2] Upper Landowner's Easement

[3] Lower Landowner's Duty

§ 421.44 Waters in Watercourse

[1] Discharge of Surface Waters

[2] Obstructing or Diverting Flow

§ 421.45 Escape of Impounded Waters

[1] Theory of Liability

[2] Reservoirs

§ 421.46 Diversion Through Artificial Channel

[1] Need Not Be Greater Than Natural Channel

[2] Reliance on Long-Continued Diversion

§ 421.47 Liability in Tort

§ 421.48 Determining Damages

§ 421.49 Duty to Minimize Damages

§ 421.50 Injunctive Relief

§ 421.51 Statute of Limitations

§ 421.52 Inverse Condemnation

§ 421.53 Easement to Discharge Water

§§ 421.54-421.59 [Reserved]

§ 421.60 Related LexisNexis/Matthew Bender Publications

§ 421.61 State Statutes

[1] General Principles of Liability

[a] Crimes

[b] Liability to Gleaner

[c] Liability to Public Employee

[d] Negligence

[2] Liability to Recreational Users

§ 421.62 Decisions

[1] Adjacent Property Owner or Possessor

[2] Assumption of Risk

[3] Complaints

[4] Conditions of Liability

[5] Conduct of Third Persons

[6] Dangerous Condition

[a] Generally

[b] Obvious Danger

[7] "Firefighter's" Rule

[8] Independent Contractors

[9] Invitees

[10] Liability to Persons on Premises

[11] Liability to Persons Outside Premises

[12] Licensee

[13] Persons Liable

[a] Former Owner

[b] Landlord Out of Possession

[c] Possessor

[d] Street Vendors

[14] Premises

[15] Recreational Users

[16] Trespasser

[17] Waters

[a] Damages

[b] Diversion

[c] Drainage and Drainage Systems

[d] Easement to Discharge Water

[e] Flood Waters

[f] Injunction

[g] Negligence

[h] Owner's Duties

[i] Reasonable Use Doctrine

[j] Reliance on Continued Diversion

[k] Surface Waters

[l] Watercourse

§ 421.63 Law Reviews

§§ 421.64-421.69 [Reserved]

§ 421.70 Complaint for Damages Based on Negligence [Civ. Code § 1714(a)]--By Person on Premises Against Owner or Possessor of Premises--Negligent Maintenance, Management, and Operation--Judicial Council Trial Court Pleading Form With Premises Liability Attachment [Cal. Judicial Council Forms PLD-PI-001, PLD-PI-001(4)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Filling Out Complaint Form

[4] Filling Out Premises Liability Attachment to Complaint Form

[a] Plaintiff's Name

[b] Description of Premises and Circumstances of Injury (Paragraph Prem.L-1.)

[c] Negligence Count (Paragraph Prem.L-2.)

[d] Liability to Recreational Users (Paragraph Prem.L-3)

[e] Dangerous Condition of Public Property (Paragraph Prem.L-4.)

[f] Agency Allegations (Prem.L-5.a.)

[g] Additional Basis of Liability (Paragraph Prem.L-5.b.)

[5] Verification

[6] Cross References

§ 421.71 Complaint for Damages for Personal Injury (and Property Damage) Based on Negligence [Civ. Code § 1714(a)]--By Person on Premises Against Owner or Possessor of Premises--Negligent Maintenance, Control, Management, and Operation of Premises--Dangerous Condition

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Venue

[5] Specification of Damages

[6] Cross References

§ 421.72 Allegations--By Person on Premises Against Owner or Possessor of Premises--Failure to Protect Person From Noncriminal Acts of Third Party

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§ 421.73 Allegations--By Person on Premises Against Owner or Possessor of Premises--Failure to Protect Person From Criminal Acts of Third Party

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Prior Similar Incidents Rule

[4] Cross References

§ 421.74 Allegations--By Person on Premises Against Security Guard Retained by Owner or Possessor of Premises--Failure to Protect Person From Acts of Third Party

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§ 421.75 Allegations--By Person on Premises Against Contractor Working on Premises--Negligence [Civ. Code § 1714(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§ 421.76 Allegations--By Person on Premises Against Possessor or Owner Employing Independent Contractor--Negligence of Contractor--Peculiar Risk of Harm

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 421.77 Allegations--By Person on Premises Against Owner or Possessor of Adjoining Property--Liability Arising From Control of Premises

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§ 421.78 Allegations--By Person Off Premises Against Owner or Possessor of Premises--Dangerous Condition on Premises

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§§ 421.79-421.89 [Reserved]

§ 421.90 Allegation of Liability to Recreational User [Civ. Code § 846]--Premises Liability Attachment to Judicial Council Complaint--Cal. Judicial Council Form PLD-PI-001(4)

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Filling Out Premises Liability Attachment

[a] Negligence (Paragraph Prem.L-2)

[b] Willful Failure to Warn (Paragraph Prem.L-3)

[c] Punitive Damages

§ 421.91 Complaint for Damages for Personal Injury (and Property Damage) Based on Negligence [Civ. Code § 1714(a)]--By Recreational User Against Owner of Real Property [Civ. Code § 846]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§ 421.92 Allegations--By Recreational User Against Owner of Real Property--Willful or Malicious Failure to Warn or Guard [Civ. Code § 846]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§§ 421.93-421.99 [Reserved]

§ 421.100 Affirmative Defense Allegation--Comparative Negligence of Plaintiff--Obvious Danger

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Pleading Comparative Negligence

[4] Cross References

§ 421.101 Affirmative Defense Allegation--Comparative Negligence of Plaintiff--Assumption of Risk

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§ 421.102 Affirmative Defense Allegation--Plaintiff as Recreational User [Civ. Code § 846]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§ 421.103 Affirmative Defense Allegation--Plaintiff as Felon [Civ. Code § 847(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§ 421.104 Affirmative Defense Allegation--Plaintiff as Gleaner [Civ. Code § 846.2]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§§ 421.105-421.109 [Reserved]

§ 421.110 Complaint for Damages for Property Damage Based on Negligence [Civ. Code § 1714(a)]--By Person Off Premises Against Owner or Possessor of Premises--Injury to Real Property Resulting From Condition on Premises

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Venue

§ 421.111 Allegations--Defendant's Negligent Impoundment of Water Flooded Plaintiff's Property

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Alternative Recovery on Nuisance Theory

§ 421.112 Allegations--Defendant's Unreasonable Discharge of Surface Water Onto Plaintiff's Property

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Alternative Recovery on Nuisance Theory

§ 421.113 Allegations--Defendant's Unreasonable Discharge of Surface Waters--Discharge Into Natural Watercourse

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§ 421.114 Allegations--Changing Natural Course of Surface Water Drainage

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Alternative Recovery on Nuisance Theory

§ 421.115 Allegations--Obstruction of Natural Watercourse

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Alternative Recovery on Nuisance Theory

§§ 421.116-421.119 [Reserved]

§ 421.120 Affirmative Defense--Protection From Flood Waters

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§ 421.121 Affirmative Defense--Plaintiff Unreasonably Failed to Protect Property from Watercourse Flow

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART I. SCOPE

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.01

§ 421.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses actions against owners or possessors of real property by persons on or outside the premises for personal injuries and damages due to conditions on the property, liability for injury to recreational users, liability for acts of an independent contractor, and liability for damage caused by water. The chapter contains the following forms:

- Forms of complaint for damages for personal injury based on negligence, by a person on the premises against the owner or possessor of the premises, and forms of special allegations for those complaints [see §§ 421.70 -421.78].

- Forms of complaint for damages for personal injury based on negligence, by a recreational user against the owner of real property, and forms of special allegations for and affirmative defenses to those complaints [see §§ 421.90 -421.104].

- Forms of complaint for property damages from water, and forms of special allegations for and affirmative defenses to those complaints [see §§ 421.110 -421.121].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART I. SCOPE

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.02

§ 421.02 Cross References

- For discussion and forms relating to the liability of an owner or operator of an airport, see Ch. 16, Airplanes and Airports .

- For discussion and forms relating to the liability of a tavern owner to a patron for injuries caused by intoxicated person on the premises, see Ch. 19, Alcoholic Beverages: Civil Liability .

- For a form of complaint against the owner of a vicious dog by a person injured on the owner's premises, see Ch. 23, Animals: Civil Liability .

- For a form of complaint for injuries due to the negligent maintenance of a church building, see Ch. 110, Churches and Religious Organizations .

- For discussion and forms relating to the liability of a possessor of premises for injuries sustained due to the negligent maintenance of an elevator or escalator, see Ch. 244, Elevators and Escalators .

- For discussion and a form relating to inverse condemnation based on water damage, see Ch. 247, Eminent Domain, § 247.190 et seq..

- For discussion and forms relating to the liability of a possessor of premises for fires, see Ch. 267, Fires .

- For discussion of the firefighter's rule, see Ch. 267, Fires , and Ch. 380, Negligence .

- For discussion and forms relating to injuries to spectators at sporting events, see Ch. 273, Games, Sports, and Athletics .

- For discussion and forms relating to the liability of a service station operator to a customer for negligent maintenance of the premises see Ch. 274, Garages and Gas Stations .

- For discussion and forms relating to the liability of an innkeeper to a guest for negligent maintenance of the premises and negligent failure to protect from the acts of third parties, see Ch. 297, Hotels and Motels .

- For discussion and forms relating to a landlord's failure to provide adequate security against criminal activities and negligent maintenance of premises, see Ch. 334, Landlord and Tenant: Claims for Damages .

- For discussion of the law of negligence generally and forms for use in negligence actions, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

- For general forms of complaints for damages and injunctive relief based on private nuisance, and a form of allegations based on diversion of naturally accumulated waters, see Ch. 391, Nuisance .

- For discussion and forms relating to the liability of public entities and public employees for dangerous conditions of public property, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act .

- For discussion and forms relating to slips and falls due to the dangerous condition of premises, see Ch. 525, Slip and Fall .

- For discussion and forms relating to the liability of owners and operators of theaters and other public amusement places for injuries to patrons due to negligent maintenance of the premises and negligent failure to control the conduct of third parties, see Ch. 547, Theaters, Shows, and Amusement Places .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART I. SCOPE

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 421.03-421.09

[Reserved]

§§ 421.03[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. General Principles of Liability

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.10

§ 421.10 Governing Law

The liability of every person for harm caused by his or her want of ordinary care is governed by Civ. Code § 1714(a). The liability of a possessor of premises to persons on the premises is governed by the principles set forth in Rowland v. Christian [Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 119, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561] . The liability of an owner or possessor of premises to persons outside the premises is governed by the principles set forth in Sprecher v. Adamson Cos. [Sprecher v. Adamson Cos. (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 358, 178 Cal. Rptr. 783, 636 P.2d 1121] .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. General Principles of Liability

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.11

§ 421.11 Liability to Persons on Premises

[1] Former Duties of Owner or Possessor

Prior to the Supreme Court's decision in Rowland v. Christian [Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561] , the duty of an owner or a possessor of premises to persons on the premises depended on the status of the person on the premises.

An owner or possessor of premises owed, and still owes, the following duties to an invitee: (1) to use reasonable care not to injure the invitee by any negligent activity; (2) to make the premises reasonably safe by inspecting the premises to discover any dangerous condition and remedy it or warn the invitee of any unknown dangerous condition; and (3) to control the conduct of third persons on the premises [Chance v. Lawry's, Inc. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 368, 373, 24 Cal. Rptr. 209, 374 P.2d 185 ; Wingard v. Safeway Stores, Inc. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 37, 41, 176 Cal. Rptr. 320 ; see § 421.11[3]].

Licensees and trespassers, on the other hand, were obliged to take the premises as they found them. Any liability for injuries caused by a dangerous condition was only based on willful or wanton conduct, or, in the case of licensees, on a dangerous condition that amounted to a trap. In addition, licensees were further protected by a duty on the part of the possessor to use reasonable care in active operations [Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 114-115, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561] .

[2] Definitions of Invitee, Licensee, and Trespasser

An invitee is either a business visitor or a public invitee. A business visitor is a person who is invited or permitted to enter or remain on the premises of the owner or possessor for a purpose directly or indirectly connected with the business dealings between them. A public invitee is a person who is invited to enter or remain on the premises as a member of the public for a purpose for which the land is held open to the public [O'Keefe v. South End Rowing Club (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 729, 735-739, 51 Cal. Rptr. 534, 414 P.2d 830] .

A licensee is a person, such as a social guest, who is not an invitee, but who is privileged to enter and remain on the premises by virtue of the owner or possessor's consent [Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 113-114, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561] .

A trespasser is a person who enters or remains on the premises without the express or implied consent of the owner or possessor [Hamakawa v. Crescent Wharf & Warehouse Co. (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 499, 501-503, 50 P.2d 803] .

[3] Negligence Standard

The Supreme Court in Rowland v. Christian [Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 113-114, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561] was faced with a situation in which a social guest (licensee) of a tenant was injured by a broken faucet, but the tenant (who knew of the condition but failed to warn the guest) would not have been liable under common law rules. The Court held that the proper test to be applied is whether the owner or possessor of the premises has acted as a reasonable person in the management of those premises in light of the probability of injury to others. The Court stated that the fundamental principle, codified in Civ. Code § 1714(a), that every person is liable for injury to another by his or her want of ordinary care should not be departed from unless clearly supported by public policy. The factors that are to be weighed in departing from this principle are: (1) the foreseeability of harm to the plaintiff; (2) the degree of certainty of injury; (3) the closeness of the connection between the defendant's conduct and the injury suffered; (4) the moral blame attached to the defendant's conduct; (5) the policy of preventing future harm; and (6) the burden to the defendant and the consequences to the community in imposing a duty and liability for breach of that duty [Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 113, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561] .

Although a possessor's liability for injuries to persons on the premises has traditionally been founded on negligence, a landlord is under certain circumstances strictly liable for injuries caused by defects in the rented premises [see Becker v. IRM Corp. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 454, 464, 213 Cal. Rptr. 213, 698 P.2d 116] . One court of appeal, however, has refuse to extend strict liability protection to a commercial invitee [see Ernest W. Hahn, Inc. v. Superior Court (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 1448, 1452] . For further discussion of strict liability in the landlord-tenant context, see Ch. 334, Landlord and Tenant: Claims for Damages .

[4] Relationship Between Former Duties and Negligence Standard

The effect of the Supreme Court's decision in Rowland v. Christian [Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561] is that the extent of the general duty of the owner or possessor is no longer controlled by the status of the plaintiff at the time of injury, but by the foreseeability of the risk created by the conduct of the owner or possessor in the management of his or her property [Beard v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 129, 136, 84 Cal. Rptr. 449] .

Although the status of the plaintiff is not determinative, it has some bearing on the question of liability. For instance, using the factors enunciated in Rowland [see § 421.11[3]], the foreseeability of harm is ordinarily greater to an invitee as opposed to a trespasser, and the burden on the defendant and the consequences to the community in imposing a duty and liability for breach of that duty may be greater if a trespasser is involved rather than an invitee. In many instances, however, the conduct necessary to meet the duty to invitees will also meet the duty to trespassers [Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 117-119, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561] .

Courts after Rowland have used the factors set forth in that decision in determining whether or not a duty is owed by the owner or possessor of premises in the fact situation before the court [see, e.g., Donnell v. California W. School of Law (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 715, 719, 725, 246 Cal. Rptr. 199 (law school had no duty to student attacked on city-owned sidewalk running alongside school building and over which school had no control or management); Jamison v. Mark C. Bloome Co. (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 570, 575, 169 Cal. Rptr. 399 (no duty to passersby to control conduct of third persons); Totten v. More Oakland Residential Hous., Inc. (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 538, 544-545, 134 Cal. Rptr. 29 (landlord had no duty to protect social guest of tenant from acts of third party)].

In addition, in determining whether or not a duty is owed in a particular situation, the established duties toward invitees that existed prior to Rowland are still pertinent. Rowland did not jettison them, but held that persons lacking invitee status were, under appropriate circumstances, entitled to the same protection [Jamison v. Mark C. Bloome Co. (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 570, 576, 169 Cal. Rptr. 399 ; Beauchamp v. Los Gatos Golf Course (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 20, 26, 77 Cal. Rptr. 914] .

Therefore, the common law definitions of invitee, licensee, and trespasser, as well as prior case law defining the duties owed to invitees, are relevant to any determination of duty after Rowland. Accordingly, the specific duties discussed in this chapter are those duties that, before Rowland, were imposed on owners or possessors only toward invitees. If the injured person's status is other than an invitee, counsel should not only look to these duties, but should also consider the factors set forth in Rowland [see § 421.11[3]].

[5] No Liability for Injury Incurred During or After Commission of Felony

An owner (including, but not limited to, a public entity as defined in Gov. Code § 811.2) of any estate or any other interest in real property, whether possessory or nonpossessory, is not liable to any person for any injury or death that occurs on that property during the course of or after the commission, by the injured or deceased person, of any of the felonies set forth in Civ. Code § 847(b) [Civ. Code § 847(a)]. This statutory limitation on liability is not restricted merely to injuries related to the physical conditions, uses, structures, or activities of the property, nor is it restricted to negligent conduct [Calvillo-Silva v. Home Grocery (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 714, 735, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 506, 968 P.2d 65] .

The limitation on liability conferred by Civ. Code § 847(a) arises at the moment the injured or deceased person commences the felony or attempted felony and extends to the moment the injured or deceased person is no longer on the property [Civ. Code § 847(c)]. The limitation applies only to a felony listed in Civ. Code § 847(b) and the subsequent conviction of that felony, or a lesser included felony or misdemeanor arising from a charge of a felony listed in Civ. Code § 847(b). During the pendency of any such criminal action, a civil action alleging this liability is abated, and the statute of limitations on the civil cause of action is tolled [Civ. Code § 847(e)]. The limitation on liability provided by Civ. Code § 847(a) is in addition to any other available defense [Civ. Code § 847(g)].

The limitation on liability conferred by Civ. Code § 847(a) applies only if the injured or deceased person's conduct in furtherance of the commission of a felony listed in Civ. Code § 847(b) proximately or legally causes the person's injury or death [Civ. Code § 847(d)]. Additionally, Civ. Code § 847(a) does not limit the liability of an owner or an owner's agent that otherwise exists for willful, wanton, or criminal conduct, or for willful or malicious failure to guard or warn against a dangerous condition, use, structure, or activity [Civ. Code § 847(f)]. Although this exception for "willful" or "wanton" conduct applies to intentional conduct, it applies only to intentional conduct that is wrongful--that is, done either with a knowledge that serious injury to another will probably result or with a wanton and reckless disregard of the possible results [Calvillo-Silva v. Home Grocery (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 714, 735, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 506, 968 P.2d 65] . Thus, for example, the statutory immunity may apply to the intentional use of deadly force, if that force is justifiable [Calvillo-Silva v. Home Grocery (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 714, 735, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 506, 968 P.2d 65] .

[6] No Liability for Injuries Incurred During Gleaning

No cause of action arises against the owner, tenant, or lessee of land or premises for injuries to any person who has been expressly invited on that land or premises to glean agricultural or farm products for charitable purposes, unless the gleaner's injuries were caused by the gross negligence or willful and wanton misconduct of the owner, tenant, or lessee. However, this immunity does not apply if the owner, tenant, or lessee received any consideration for permitting the gleaning activity [Civ. Code § 846.2].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. General Principles of Liability

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.12

§ 421.12 Persons Liable

[1] Requirement of Control

Liability to persons on the premises extends to owners as well as to those persons in possession or occupation of the premises who have the right to control the property. In determining who is liable in a specific situation, the crucial factor is the element of control [Schwartz v. Helms Bakery Ltd. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 232, 239, 60 Cal. Rptr. 510, 430 P.2d 68 ; Marshall v. United Airlines (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 84, 88, 110 Cal. Rptr. 416 ; see, e.g., Johnston v. De La Guerra Props., Inc. (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 394, 399-401, 170 P.2d 5 (landlord liable for dangerous condition on common area of leased premises and tenant liable for same dangerous condition on approach to restaurant because both exercised control over area); Jones v. Deeter (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 798, 803-806, 199 Cal. Rptr. 825 (owner of sidewalk not liable for dangerous condition caused by roots of trees because sidewalk area was dedicated to city, and city had planted trees and habitually maintained them)].

The issue of who controls particular premises must be distinguished from the issue of whether a defendant is liable for injuries occurring on adjoining premises that are owned or possessed by another because the defendant has exercised some degree of control over those adjoining premises [see § 421.12[5]].

[2] Between Owners and Contractors

A contractor is not liable to third persons injured by dangerous conditions resulting from the contractor's negligent construction, if the owner discovers the defect after accepting the structure and if the defect is patent rather than latent [Sanchez v. Swinerton & Walberg Co. (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 1461, 1471, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 415 ; see also Jones v. P.S. Development Co., Inc. (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 707, 717-718, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 882] .

[3] Condominium Owners and Associations

[a] Unit Owners

Condominium unit owners are tenants in common of the common areas [White v. Cox (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 824, 829, 95 Cal. Rptr. 259] . Typically, the individual unit owners delegate management of the common areas to a separate legal entity, such as a homeowner's association. Delegation of the control and management of the property to a separate legal entity does not, however, immunize the tenants in common, including owners of individual condominium units, from liability to third parties for tortious conduct [Davert v. Larson (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 407, 412, 209 Cal. Rptr. 445 ; see also Ruoff v. Harbor Creek Cmty. Ass'n (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1624, 1628-1629, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 755] .

[b] Condominium Associations

Condominium associations are generally held to the same standard of care as a landlord in areas of the premises over which they exercise control, and thus they may be liable for negligence in maintaining the common areas of the premises [Frances T. v. Village Green Owners Ass'n (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 490, 499, 229 Cal. Rptr. 456, 723 P.2d 573 ; White v. Cox (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 824, 830, 95 Cal. Rptr. 259] . For example, an individual condominium owner had a cause of action against the condominium association for negligently failing to provide adequate lighting in the common areas that the association controlled and for wrongfully ordering the individual owner to remove the additional lighting that she had provided on her own initiative [Frances T. v. Village Green Owners Ass'n (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 490, 501, 229 Cal. Rptr. 456, 723 P.2d 573] .

[c] Directors of Condominium Associations

Individual directors of a condominium association who are specifically aware of a dangerous condition and unreasonably fail to take action to avoid harm while actually participating in decisions of the association are subject to liability in their personal capacity [see Frances T. v. Village Green Owners Ass'n (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 490, 504-511, 229 Cal. Rptr. 456, 723 P.2d 573] .

While a condominium association may be liable as a entity under normal negligence and premises liability principles, a stricter rule analogous to the "business judgment" rule applicable to corporate directors applies to resolve questions as to the individual liability of the condominium association directors when their conduct involves only ministerial decisions pertaining to repair and maintenance. Under this rule, if a duly constituted community association, upon reasonable investigation, in good faith, and with regard for the best interests of the association and its members, exercises discretion within the scope of its authority under the relevant statutes, covenants, and restrictions, to select among means for discharging an obligation to maintain and repair a development's common areas, courts should defer to the board's authority and presumed expertise [Lamden v. La Jolla Shores Clubdominium Homeowners Assn. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 249, 265, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 237, 980 P.2d 940 ; Ritter & Ritter, Inc. Pension & Profit Plan v. The Churchill Condominium Assn. (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 103, 122, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 389 ; cf. Corp. Code § 7231]. Thus, even though an association acts through its directors, the directors may escape personal liability under the rule described above even though the association may be liable for the same conduct under general negligence principles [Ritter & Ritter, Inc. Pension & Profit Plan v. The Churchill Condominium Assn. (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 103, 123-124, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 389] .

Under the circumstances described in Civ. Code § 1365.7, a volunteer officer or director of an association that manages an exclusively residential common interest development is immunized from civil tort liability in excess of specified insurance coverage. The immunity, however, is expressly limited to the volunteer officer or director and does not immunize condominium owners from liability for tortious acts or omissions in the management and control of commonly held property [Ruoff v. Harbor Creek Cmty. Ass'n (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1624, 1628-1629, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 755 ; see Civ. Code §§ 1351(a), 1365.7]. For purposes of this immunity, the scope of a volunteer officer's or director's duties includes the decision to conduct an investigation of the property for latent deficiencies before the expiration of the statute of limitations, and the decision whether to commence a civil action against a builder for design or construction defects [Civ. Code § 1365.7(f)]. Therefore, condominium owners may be liable to a third person who is injured as a result of a tort stemming from a defect in a common area [Ruoff v. Harbor Creek Cmty. Ass'n (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1624, 1628-1629, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 755 ; Davert v. Larson (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 407, 412, 209 Cal.

Rptr. 445] .

For further discussion of the statutory immunity of a volunteer officer or director of a condominium association, see Ch. 124, Condominiums and Other Common Interest Developments .

[4] Possessors

A possessor of land is one who occupies the premises with the intent to control those premises. Because possession brings with it the right to supervision and control, the duty owed to persons on the premises is owed by the possessor, whether the possessor is an owner or an occupier [O'Shea v. Claude C. Wood Co. (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 903, 911, 159 Cal. Rptr. 125] . A franchisee, a tenant, or a trespasser is held to the same standard of conduct toward third persons as an owner if the franchisee, tenant, or trespasser has a right to control the premises [Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 116-119, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561 (tenant); Palmquist v. Mercer (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 92, 103, 272 P.2d 26 (franchisee); Yee Chuck v. Board of Trs. (1960) 179 Cal. App. 2d 405, 410-411, 3 Cal. Rptr. 825 (trespasser)]. However, the duty of an independent contractor working on the premises is to use reasonable care to prevent damage to persons whom the contractor may reasonably expect to be affected by his or her work [Chance v. Lawry's, Inc. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 368, 378, 24 Cal. Rptr. 209, 374 P.2d 185] .

[5] Owners Not in Possession

[a] Landlords' Responsibility Not Abrogated by Signing Lease

An owner out of possession may also be liable to persons on the premises. The most prevalent examples of this are landlords who are liable to either a tenant or a third person [Becker v. IRM Corp. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 454, 467, 213 Cal. Rptr. 213, 698 P.2d 116 ; Krongos v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 387, 392, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 124] . Landlords cannot abrogate their responsibilities as landowners merely by signing a lease. At the time the lease is executed and on renewal, a landlord has a right to re-enter the property, has control of the property, and must inspect the premises to make the premises reasonably safe. However, the landlord's responsibility to inspect is limited to those matters that would have been disclosed by a reasonable inspection [Mora v. Baker Commodities, Inc. (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 771, 781-782, 258 Cal. Rptr. 669] .

For example, a landlord was liable for injuries suffered by a person making a delivery to a liquor store, who was attacked by a guard dog owned and kept on the premises by the tenant operating the store [Portillo v. Aiassa (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1132-1133, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 755] . Before renewing the tenant's lease nearly a year before the attack, the landlord had not conducted an inspection of the premises, but knew that the tenant was keeping the dog at the store. A sign in the store warned of a guard dog on the premises, and a copy of a newspaper article about the dog's recent attack on a robber and its "rotten disposition" was posted near the door of the store [Portillo v. Aiassa (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1132-1133, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 755] . Lack of actual knowledge of the dog's dangerous propensities was not a defense to liability because a reasonable inspection of the premises would have enabled the landlord to discover those propensities by, for example, asking why the sign had been posted or whether the newspaper article was accurate [Portillo v. Aiassa (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1134-1135, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 755] .

The court in this case distinguished earlier cases requiring actual knowledge [see, e.g., Lundy v. California Realty (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 813, 821, 216 Cal. Rptr. 575 ; Uccello v. Laudenslayer (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 504, 514, 118 Cal. Rptr. 741] , because those cases involved family pets kept in single-family residences, and the risk of injury from a guard dog in a store open to the public is far greater. Moreover, although they may be necessary in some neighborhoods, guard dogs, unlike family pets, cannot be classified as "an important part of our way of life" [Portillo v. Aiassa (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1137-1138, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 755] .

[b] Landlords' Liability to Tenants

The liability of a landlord to a tenant rests on general principles of negligence in the ownership and operation of property. It is no longer predicated on common law exceptions to the rule of nonliability, such as concealment of a known danger, an express covenant to repair, or a statutory duty to repair [Golden v. Conway (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 948, 955, 128 Cal. Rptr. 69 ; Brennan v. Cockrell Invs., Inc. (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 796, 800-801, 111 Cal. Rptr. 122] . For further discussion and forms relating to the relationship between a landlord and tenant, see Ch. 334, Landlord and Tenant: Claims for Damages .

[c] Landlords' Liability to Nontenants

A landlord is liable for injuries to third persons on the premises at the invitation of a tenant if the injuries are due to a dangerous condition in an area over which the landlord exerts control. This is true whether or not the tenant also exerts control [Johnston v. De La Guerra Props., Inc. (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 394, 399-401, 170 P.2d 5] .

A landlord may also owe a duty to protect third persons from the acts of a tenant if the landlord has knowledge of those acts and retains some type of control over the premises. For example, a landlord owed a duty to a neighbor of a tenant to protect the neighbor from attack by the tenant's dog if the landlord knew of the dangerous propensity of the animal and could have refused to renew the month-to-month tenancy unless the tenant removed the dog [Uccello v. Laudenslayer (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 504, 513-515, 118 Cal. Rptr. 741 ; see Rosales v. Stewart (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 130, 135, 169 Cal. Rptr. 660 (cause of action stated if knowledge of dangerous activity preceded renewal of tenancy or tenancy could have been terminated prior to injury); cf. Portillo v. Aiassa (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1136-1138, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 755 (actual knowledge of dog's dangerous propensities not required if tenant commercial rather than residential and if reasonable inspection would have disclosed propensities); Leakes v. Shamoun (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 772, 778, 232 Cal. Rptr. 171 (no cause of action stated if landlord was trying to evict tenants for nonpayment of rent at time of injury)]. However, evidence that a particular breed of dog generally has certain characteristics, by itself, does not establish that a landlord had actual knowledge that a tenant's dog had any dangerous propensities [Chee v. Amanda Goldt Property Management (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1360, 1371-1372, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 40] .

In the absence of actual knowledge of the danger posed by a tenant's dog, a landlord cannot be held vicariously liable for an injury caused by the dog merely because the covenants, conditions, and restrictions (CC&Rs) governing the residence purport to make the landowner responsible for the acts and omissions of the owner's delegates. CC&Rs are private recorded restrictions on the use of property and, in the absence of some other established principle for imposing vicarious liability, cannot be used to impose tort liability for the conduct of another [Chee v. Amanda Goldt Property Management (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1360, 1375-1376, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 40] .

Landlords who knew that their tenant both misused alcohol and possessed firearms were not liable to a visitor to the premises who was accidentally shot by the tenant. These two factors (alcohol misuse and gun possession) did not create a dangerous condition because there was no evidence that the tenant had ever harmed anyone due to either factor or had ever handled firearms unsafely while drunk [Sturgeon v. Curnutt (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 301, 307, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 498 (rejecting analogy to tenant's vicious dog in Uccello)]. However, if a landlord has knowledge that a specific tenant poses a threat to others, such as when a landlord knows that the tenant has brandished firearms at others while threatening them with harm, the landlord has a duty to take reasonable precautions to prevent harm, although the precise scope of that duty will depend on the particular facts and may under the appropriate circumstances be satisfied by minimally burdensome measures such as calling the police [see Barber v. Chang (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 1456, 1466-1469, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 760 ; see generally § 421.15].

A landlord's liability does not depend on the status of the third person, and the landlord may be liable to a trespasser injured on the land possessed by the tenant [see Bisetti v. United Refrigeration Corp. (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 643, 648, 220 Cal. Rptr. 209] .

A premises owner is not generally liable for an injury sustained by an employee of a tenant business that was caused by the work conditions created by the tenant. In one case, the landowner was a large petroleum company, and the tenant was a facility that performed tests on the petroleum company's gasoline, although the tenant and the landowner were separate entities. The plaintiff alleged that he acquired a disease through toxic exposure to benzene while performing his work for the testing facility. The court of appeal held that the petroleum company could not be liable for failing to take steps to prevent the dangerous condition that caused the plaintiff's illness, a dangerous condition that did not exist independent of the tenant's business. The court pointed to the lack of evidence that the landowner had any control over the property at the time of the injury, had any knowledge of the dangerous testing methods used, had any right to inspect the premises or testing procedures, or had any ability to discover and remedy the hazard that caused the plaintiff's illness [Laico v. Chevron U.S.A., Inc. (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 649, 670, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 307] .

In situations in which a tenant in possession has defaulted on a lease, the tenant may lack the incentive to maintain the property in a safe condition. In recognition of this problem, a landlord that has instituted a successful unlawful detainer action has a duty to inspect the property that attaches upon entry of judgment in the unlawful detainer action, even if the tenant has not yet vacated the premises, and includes a duty to make subsequent inspections at reasonable intervals [Stone v. Center Trust Retail Prop., Inc. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 608, 613, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 556]. However, the imposition of liability in such cases will still depend in part on whether reasonable inspections would have revealed the dangerous condition to the landlord [see Stone v. Center Trust Retail Prop., Inc. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 608, 614, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 556].

In a case not involving a landlord-tenant relationship, the court of appeal held that a bank that purchased real property at a foreclosure sale owed no duty of care to a third party who was attacked by dogs on the property because when the attack occurred, the possessors of the property were refusing to vacate and were contesting the bank's unlawful detainer proceeding. Analogizing to existing dog-bite cases, the court concluded that under the undisputed facts in the record before it, the bank lacked actual knowledge of the danger posed by the dogs [Martinez v. Bank of Am. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 883, 891-892, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 576] . Moreover, the bank also lacked the ability to prevent the attack, because the bank had no leasewith the possessors to use in leveraging removal of the dogs and would not obtain the right to directly and promptly control the premises until a judgment was obtained in the unlawful detainer action [Martinez v. Bank of Am. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 883, 892-893, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 576] . The court also concluded that the bank owed no duty of care after considering the Rowland v. Christian factors for determining whether to impose a duty of care [Martinez v. Bank of Am. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 883, 894-897, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 576] .

[6] Former Owners

As a general rule, the liability of a former owner of land ends with the transfer of possession and control of the land [Preston v. Goldman (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 108, 110, 124-126, 227 Cal. Rptr. 817, 720 P.2d 476 ; see Lorenzen-Hughes v. MacElhenny, Levy & Co. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1684, 1688, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 210] . The rule applies even if the former owner was actively negligent in creating a dangerous condition on the land [Preston v. Goldman (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 108, 115-119, 227 Cal. Rptr. 817, 720 P.2d 476 ; see Lorenzen-Hughes v. MacElhenny, Levy & Co. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1684, 1687-1688, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 210] .

The general rule does not apply, however, if the former owner was the contractor or builder of the entire property [Sweeney v. Stone (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 693, 695-696, 71 Cal. Rptr. 497 ; see Preston v. Goldman (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 108, 117 n.3, 227 Cal. Rptr. 817, 720 P.2d 476] . Another exception applies if a seller knows of a dangerous condition on the land of which the buyer is unaware, and if the seller has reason to believe that the buyer will not discover this condition [see Preston v. Goldman (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 108, 113 n.2, 126, 227 Cal. Rptr. 817, 720 P.2d 476 (approving application of Restatement (Second) of Torts § 353); see also Lorenzen-Hughes v. MacElhenny, Levy & Co. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1684, 1688-1689, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 210 (applying Restatement (Second) of Torts § 353)]. Furthermore, the Supreme Court has implied that an exception to the general rule may apply in cases involving public property [see Preston v. Goldman (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 108, 116, 227 Cal. Rptr. 817, 720 P.2d 476 (out-of-state case imposed liability on former owner of public property)].

[7] Owners or Possessors of Adjacent Property

A person is not liable for a defective or dangerous condition on property that the person does not own, possess, or control [Isaacs v. Huntington Mem'l Hosp. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 112, 134, 211 Cal. Rptr. 356, 695 P.2d 653] . The concept of control is somewhat elastic and is not necessarily limited to premises that are owned or possessed by the person. Circumstances that would indicate sufficient control to make a person liable for conditions on adjacent property that the person does not possess or own include receiving a commercial advantage from the use of the adjacent property, knowing of its use, having some legal right to use it, passively encouragingits use, and attempting to affect or influence conditions on the adjacent property [Southland Corp. v. Superior Court (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 656, 666-667, 250 Cal. Rptr. 57 ; see also Swann v. Olivier (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1324, 1333, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 23 (homeowners' association not liable to partygoer injured in ocean surf off private beach owned by association; idea of anyone's controlling seas and tides characterized as "ludicrous"); but see Alcaraz v. Vece (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1149, 1162-1166, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 448, 929 P.2d 1239 (rejecting contention that commercial benefit is required to impose liability and disapproving any contrary language in Princess Hotels Int'l, Inc. v. Superior Court (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 645, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 457 , and Swann v. Olivier (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1324, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 23)].

For example, the Supreme Court has held that a homeowner's conduct in mowing the grass on an adjoining strip of land and, after the plaintiff's injury, constructing a fence that enclosed the entire lawn, was sufficient to raise a triable issue of fact over whether the homeowner exercised control over the adjoining strip that would support a duty to protect or warn against the dangers presented by a broken cover to a utility main box [Alcaraz v. Vece (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1149, 1153, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 448, 929 P.2d 1239] . The Court emphasized that if the defendant controlled the property on which the danger was present, the defendant could be liable even if the defendant did not own or control the instrumentality that caused the danger. Therefore, the fact that the defendant did not control the dangerous utility box did not necessarily preclude liability for failing to warn or protect persons on the land [Alcaraz v. Vece (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1149, 1156, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 448, 929 P.2d 1239] .

In another case, a store owner may have had sufficient control over an adjoining parking lot, which the owner did not own or possess, to be liable for injuries suffered by customers attacked by loiterers in the lot, because parking space on the store's premises was inadequate and store customers regularly used the adjacent lot to park while shopping at the store, the store's lease authorized nonexclusive use of the lot for customer parking, the store owner knew that customers were parking in the adjacent lot and did not limit or discourage them from doing so, and store employees had called the police to remove the loiterers [Southland Corp. v. Superior Court (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 656, 666-667, 250 Cal. Rptr. 57] .

However, an owner or possessor of property is not liable for dangerous conditions on adjoining property if the owner or possessor has taken no action to influence or affect the condition of the adjoining property [Donnell v. California W. Sch. of Law (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 715, 720, 246 Cal. Rptr. 199 ; Lucas v. George T.R. Murai Farms, Inc. (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1578, 1590-1591, 19 Cal Rptr. 2d 436] . For example, a law school was not liable for injuries suffered by a plaintiff who left the law school's library, encountered someone breaking into a car on the street near the library, and was stabbed during a confrontation with the criminal [Donnell v. California W. Sch. of Law (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 715, 720, 246 Cal. Rptr. 199] . Similarly, farm owners were not liable to farm workers, employed by one of the farm owners, who were living in a camp on adjoining property and who were injured when their makeshift housing, which they lighted with candles, caught fire. One farm owner did not even know about the existence of the camp. Although a security service hired by the farm owners regularly patrolled the camp as well as the farm owners' property, the farm owners had never requested the service to patrol the camp. Allowing the farm workers to use water and toilet facilities at the farm owners' property and receive their mail there did not encourage the camp to exist [Lucas v. George T.R. Murai Farms, Inc. (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1578, 1590-1591, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436] .

A charter city, through a valid exercise of its police powers, may pass an ordinance that imposes a duty on landowners to keep adjacent public sidewalks in a safe condition, and it may impose liability on the property owner for injuries that occur to a pedestrian if the landowner fails to do so [Gonzales v. City of San Jose (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1127, 1139, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 178 (upholding constitutionality and application of San Jose ordinance)].

For a form of allegations that the owner or possessor of property is liable for harm occurring on adjacent property, see § 421.77.

[8] Owners of Easement Rights

The right of control that accompanies an easement interest in property is narrower than the right of control that accompanies fee ownership of real property. Therefore, the corresponding duty to third parties in managing the property interest that is imposed on an easement holder is also narrower in scope and must be tied to the reason for which the easement was granted [Cody F. v. Falletti (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 1232, 1246, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 593] . For example, an electric utility company may be liable, based on an easement granted specifically to maintain and operate power lines, if the injury is caused by the presence of the electrical fixtures for which the easement was granted [see, e.g., Dunn v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 265, 275, 272 P.2d 745] .

In contrast, members of an incorporated property owners association that had an access easement over the streets within a large planned development subdivision were not liable for a dog attack that occurred on one of the streets when dogs escaped from the yard of one of the residents. In that case, the easement right of access over the roads had no relationship to the danger that caused the injury [Cody F. v. Falletti (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 1232, 1242-1244, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 593] .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. General Principles of Liability

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.13

§ 421.13 Premises

The physical area encompassed by the term "premises" does not always coincide with the area that the invitor occupies, but is sometimes less orgreater. Premises includes such reasonable means of ingress and egress as an invitee has employed due to allurement or inducement, either express or implied [Schwartz v. Helms Bakery Ltd. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 232, 239, 60 Cal. Rptr. 510, 430 P.2d 68 ; Beauchamp v. Los Gatos Golf Course (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 20, 25, 77 Cal. Rptr. 914] . This is true even though the area is also used not only by invitees, but also by members of the general public [Johnston v. De La Guerra Props., Inc. (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 394, 400-401, 170 P.2d 5] . For example, street vendors may be liable for injuries sustained by a child in crossing the street to make a purchase if they do not exercise reasonable care for the child's safety in an area in the immediate vicinity of the truck [Schwartz v. Helms Bakery Ltd. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 232, 242, 243, 60 Cal. Rptr. 510, 430 P.2d 68 ; Ellis v. Trowen Frozen Prods., Inc. (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 499, 503, 70 Cal. Rptr. 487 ; but see Nevarez v. Thriftimart, Inc. (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 799, 806, 87 Cal. Rptr. 50 (not extending liability of street vendors to grocery store holding opening day carnival)].

Possessors, however, does not owe a duty to protect users in an area of egress and ingress against a risk that is obvious to both the possessors and the users, if the possessors can prove that they did not have sufficient control over the area to justify the imposition of the duty based on foreseeability of the type of accident suffered by the users [see Gray v. America W. Airlines, Inc. (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 76, 84-85, 256 Cal. Rptr. 877] .

The issue of what constitutes particular premises should be distinguished from the issue of whether a defendant is liable for injuries occurring on adjoining premises that are owned or possessed by another because the defendant has exercised some degree of control over those adjoining premises [see § 421.12[7]].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. General Principles of Liability

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.14

§ 421.14 Duty to Maintain Premises in Safe Condition

[1] Dangerous Condition

An owner or possessor of premises who knows of, or by the exercise of reasonable care could discover, an artificial or natural condition on the premises that the possessor could foresee would expose invitees to an unreasonable risk, and who has no basis for believing that the invitees will discover the condition or realize the risk involved, has a duty to exercise ordinary care either to make the condition reasonably safe or to give a warning adequate to enable the invitees to avoid the harm [Chance v. Lawry's, Inc. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 368, 373, 24 Cal. Rptr. 209, 374 P.2d 185 ; Austin v. Riverside Portland Cement Co. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 225, 233, 282 P.2d 69] .

A landlord engaged in the business of leasing dwellings is strictly liable in tort for injuries resulting from a latent defect in the premises, if the defect existed at the time the premises were let to the tenant [Becker v. IRM Corp. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 454, 469, 213 Cal. Rptr. 213, 698 P.2d 116 ; for discussion of the factors involved in imposing strict liability, see Ch. 460, Products Liability]. A landlord may also be liable to a tenant for the breach of the duty to inspect for dangerous conditions that existed in the premises at the time the premises were leased [Becker v. IRM Corp. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 454, 469, 213 Cal. Rptr. 213, 698 P.2d 116 ; for discussion of the factors involved in imposing liability on a landlord for the breach of this duty, see Ch. 334, Landlord and Tenant: Claims for Damages].

If the condition is brought about by natural wear and tear or by third persons, the possessor is not liable unless the possessor either has actual or constructive knowledge of the condition or has been able to discover it by the exercise of ordinary care [Bridgman v. Safeway Stores, Inc. (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 443, 447, 2 Cal. Rptr. 146, 348 P.2d 696 ; Olsen v. Roos-Atkins (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 259, 263, 25 Cal. Rptr. 190] . An owner or possessor must make reasonable inspections of those portions of the premises open to invitees, and the absence of inspections within a particular period of time prior to an accident may warrant an inference that a person exercising reasonable care would have discovered the condition [Ortega v. Kmart Corp. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 1200, 1212-1213, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 470,36 P.3d 11 (jury question whether lack of inspection is sufficient to support liability); Bridgman v. Safeway Stores, Inc. (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 443, 447, 2 Cal. Rptr. 146, 348 P.2d 696] .

If a dangerous condition has been created by the negligence of the owner or possessor or his or her employee in the course of employment, knowledge of the condition is imputed to the owner or possessor [Hatfield v. Levy Brothers (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 798, 806, 117 P.2d 841 ; McKenney v. Quality Foods, Inc. (1957) 156 Cal. App. 2d 349, 352-353, 319 P.2d 448] . Therefore, even though there is no failure to inspect, liability can be predicated on either negligence in creating a dangerous condition or negligence in failing to take precautions to protect an invitee from the dangerous condition [Henderson v. McGill (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 256, 259, 34 Cal. Rptr. 897] .

However, the court of appeal has specifically rejected the argument that a store is liable if the store's use of a particular business model creates a greater risk that a particular hazard will arise more frequently, but the store does not have knowledge or constructive knowledge of the dangerous condition that actually caused the injury. In that case, a department store was not liable to a patron who slipped on a french fry merely because the store leased space to a fast food restaurant and allowed patrons to take food and drink from the restaurant into the department store, absent a showing that the store knew or should have known of the french fry in time to prevent the injury [Moore v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 472, 478-479, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 813] .

[2] Obvious Danger

Courts have traditionally stated that an owner or possessor is not liable for injury to an invitee resulting from a danger that is obvious or that could have been observed by the exercise of reasonable care [Florez v. Groom Dev. Co. (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 347, 355, 1 Cal. Rptr. 840, 348 P.2d 200 ; but see Chance v. Lawry's, Inc. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 368, 373-374, 24 Cal. Rptr. 209, 374 P.2d 185 (invitee not obliged to make critical examination of area, but may assume possessor exercised due care in inspection and took proper precautions for safety); Henderson v. McGill (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 256, 260-265, 34 Cal. Rptr. 897 (liability possible if invitee's attention is likely to be distracted from obvious danger)].

Under the negligence standard of Rowland v. Christian, however, it is a factual issue whether the possessor acted reasonably and whether the entrant used the property reasonably in view of the obvious danger. In other words, under the Rowland approach, the obviousness of the danger would appear to be only one factor in determining whether or not a duty of care was owed and whether or not that duty was breached under the circumstances [see Rowland v. Christian (1969) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 112-113, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561] .

The obviousness of a danger may obviate the duty to warn of its existence, because the condition itself serves as a warning [see Osborn v. Mission Ready Mix (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 104, 122, 273 Cal. Rptr. 457 ; Danieley v. Goldmine Ski Assocs., Inc. (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 111, 121-122, 266 Cal. Rptr. 749] . Nevertheless, if it is foreseeable that the danger may cause injury despite its being obvious (for example, if necessity requires persons to encounter it), a duty to remedy the danger may exist, and the breach of that duty may in turn form the basis for liability if the breach of duty was the proximate cause of an injury [Osborn v. Mission Ready Mix (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 104, 122, 273 Cal. Rptr. 457 ; see also Martinez v. Chippewa Enters., Inc. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1179, 1184-1185, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 152 ; Donohue v. San Francisco Hous. Auth. (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 658, 665-666] .

For a form of affirmative defense allegation of plaintiff's comparative negligence regarding obvious danger, see § 421.100.

[3] Trivial Defects

The duty of care imposed on a property owner, even one with actual notice, does not require the repair of minor defects. The trial court may determine "triviality" as a matter of law, rather than submitting the issue to a jury [Caloroso v. Hathaway (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 922, 929, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 254 (walkway crack that created rise less than half inch high was trivial defect as matter of law); Ursino v. Big Boy Rests. (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 394, 397-399, 237 Cal. Rptr. 413 (section of concrete sidewalk raised less than one inch above adjoining section was trivial defect as matter of law); see also Gov. Code § 830.2 (trivial defect defense as applicable to governmental entity defendants)]. If determined as a matter of law, however, a reviewing court is not bound by the trial court's conclusions [see Kasparian v. AvalonBay Communities, Inc. (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 11, 28-30, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 885] .

While some court opinions have treated triviality of the defect as an affirmative defense to be asserted by a landowner [see Ursino v. Big Boy Rests. (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 394, 398, 237 Cal. Rptr. 413] , other court opinions have treated the lack of triviality as an element of the cause of action to be pleaded and proved by the plaintiff [Kasparian v. AvalonBay Communities, Inc. (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 11, 27, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 885] . Even if treated as an element of the cause of action, a defendant may of course argue triviality of defect to defeat a plaintiff's claim.

[4] Effect of Comparative Negligence

[a] Inclusion of Assumption of Risk

The California Supreme Court has replaced the all-or-nothing rule of contributory negligence with a rule of comparative negligence, under which liability for damages is apportioned in accordance with the fault of the persons whose negligence caused the injuries. Under comparative negligence, a plaintiff's contributory negligence does not bar recovery, but damages awarded must be diminished in proportion to the amount of negligence attributable to the plaintiff [Li v. Yellow Cab Co. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 804, 828-829, 119 Cal. Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226] .

Assumption of the risk, as a variant of contributory negligence, has been subsumed under the general process of assessing liability in proportion to fault. A plaintiff assumes the risk if the plaintiff unreasonably undertakes to encounter a specific known risk imposed by the defendant's negligence. Although the plaintiff may encounter that risk in a prudent manner, the plaintiff's conduct is in reality a form of contributory negligence [Li v. Yellow Cab Co. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 804, 826, 119 Cal. Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226] . Before Li, courts viewed as contributory negligence the failure of a user of premises to exercise ordinary care to discover obvious dangers, and they viewed as assumption of the risk the act of a user who encountered a risk despite knowing the risk and appreciating its magnitude [see Beauchamp v. Los Gatos Golf Course (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 20, 33-34, 77 Cal Rptr. 914] .

[b] Supreme Court's Attempt in Knight v. Jewett to Resolve Conflict Regarding Assumption of Risk

After Li, courts of appeal disagreed regarding the proper application of assumption-of-the-risk principles in light of the adoption of comparative fault [compare Ordway v. Superior Court (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 98, 102-107, 243 Cal. Rptr. 536 (doctrine of reasonable implied assumption of risk provides complete defense to action for personal injuries); with Segoviano v. Housing Auth. (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 162, 169-175, 191 Cal. Rptr. 578 (implied reasonable assumption of risk is not defense to liability nor does it reduce plaintiff's recovery under comparative fault principles)].

In Knight v. Jewett [Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696] , the California Supreme Court undertook to resolve the question, but rendered a decision without a clear majority. The lead opinion in Knight held that if the defendant has not breached any duty of care toward the plaintiff, the plaintiff is barred from recovery under "primary assumption of the risk." If the defendant has breached a duty toward the plaintiff, the plaintiff's damages are apportioned by comparative fault principles under "secondary assumption of the risk" [Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 315-316, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696 (opinion by George, J., with Lucas, C.J., and Arabian, J. concurring in the analysis, and Mosk, J. concurring "generally" with lead opinion's approach)]. Therefore, it appears that although a defendant may argue that he or she is not liable because the danger was obvious, once it has been established that the defendant has breached a duty of care toward the plaintiff, the court will apply the rule of comparative negligence under secondary assumption of the risk and reduce any damages awarded in proportion to the amount of negligence attributable to the plaintiff [see Curties v. Hill Top Developers, Inc. (1993) 14 Cal. App 4th 1651, 1656, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 445 ; see also Donohue v. San Francisco Hous. Auth. (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 658, 665-666] .

Three justices who did not join in the lead opinion (Kennard, J., Baxter, J., and Panelli, J.) supported an implied consent approach based on the subjective knowledge of the plaintiff. Under this approach, a plaintiff is barred from recovery if the plaintiff is shown to have "truly appreciated" and made a "considered and deliberate choice" to encounter the risk, as demonstrated by the obvious nature of the risk. However, if the plaintiff was "merely careless and could not have truly appreciated and voluntarily consented to the risk," the plaintiff's damages are reduced in proportion to the amount of negligence attributable to the plaintiff [see Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 332, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696 (dissenting opinion by Kennard, J.)].

Although the lead opinion in Knight was a plurality opinion, a unanimous Supreme Court has subsequently reaffirmed that the basic principles of that lead opinion are the controlling law [see Cheong v. Antablin (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 1063, 1067, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 859, 946 P.2d 817] .

For further discussion, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

[c] Primary and Secondary Assumption of Risk Versus Consent-Based Analysis

Decisions after Knight have, almost without exception, adopted and applied the lead opinion's doctrine of primary versus secondary assumption of the risk. For example, an owner and operator of a ski resort was not liable to a skier who skied over the edge of a ravine and fell onto the rocks below. The skier had seen a gap between two groups of trees, thought the gap was a place to cross over to another ski run, skied toward the gap, realized too late that the run bordered a ravine filled with boulders, and was unable to stop. The court held that primary assumption of the risk barred recovery because the defendant had no duty to protect the plaintiff against risks inherent in the sport of skiing (such as trees, rocks, rough terrain, or ravines) by, in effect, changing the entire mountain to ensure the plaintiff's safety [O'Donoghue v. Bear Mountain Ski Resort (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 188, 192-193, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467] .

Even under the doctrine of primary assumption of the risk, a defendant has a duty to use due care not to increase the risks to a sports participant over and above those inherent in the sport [Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 315-316, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696 ; see, e.g., Huffman v. City of Poway (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 975, 995, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 325 (premises owner had duty to avoid making stage with trapdoors used by actors more dangerous by failing to include proper markings or warning devices)]. However, this duty is generally imposed only on those persons who have some organized relationship with the sports participant and the sporting activity [see Parsons v. Crown Disposal Co. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 456, 481, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 291, 936 P.2d 70] .

In one case, for example, the plaintiff was skateboarding in the driveway of the defendants' home when he tripped and impaled himself on a pipe inside a planter located in the driveway. Although the plaintiff argued that the defendants increased the risk of his injury by concealing a pipe in the planter, the court of appeal held that under the doctrine of primary assumption of the risk, the defendants did not have a duty to the plaintiff not to increase the risks to the plaintiff while he was skateboarding. Unlike a commercial facility that might provide a course for skateboarding, the defendants did not hold out their driveway as an appropriate or safe place to skateboard and did not otherwise have any organized relationship with the plaintiff's skateboarding [Calhoon v. Lewis (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 108, 116-117, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 394] .

A case applying secondary assumption of the risk involved the liability of the owner of an apartment complex to a tenant who slipped and fell on a sloping lawn. In that case, the court held that the plaintiff's recovery was not completely barred because the defendant had a duty of care to the plaintiff to eliminate dangerous conditions on the defendant's property [Curties v. Hill Top Developers, Inc. (1993) 14 Cal. App 4th 1651, 1655-1656, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 445 ; see also Bush v. Parents Without Partners (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 322, 329, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178 (secondary assumption of risk applied because premises owner and dance sponsor breached duty to plaintiff by applying soap flakes to make dance floor slippery)].

For a form of affirmative defense allegation of the plaintiff's comparative negligence due to assumption of the risk, see § 421.101. For further discussion of comparative negligence and assumption of the risk, see Ch. 380, Negligence.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. General Principles of Liability

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.15

§ 421.15 Duty to Control Conduct of Third Persons

[1] Persons to Whom Duty Owed

An owner or possessor of premises who holds the premises out to the public for a business purpose has a duty to persons on the premises for that purpose to protect them from harm caused by the acts of third persons [Taylor v. Centennial Bowl, Inc. (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 114, 121, 52 Cal. Rptr. 561, 416 P.2d 793 ; Musgrove v. Ambrose Props. (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 44, 51, 150 Cal. Rptr. 722 ; but see Kentucky Fried Chicken of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 814, 817, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 756, 927 P.2d 1260 (shopkeeper has no duty to comply with unlawful demand of armed robber to avoid increasing risk of harm to patrons)]. The effect of Rowland v. Christian [Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 119, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561] was not to abolish this duty, but merely to subsume it in the more comprehensive duty to act as a reasonable person to those coming on the premises [Wingard v. Safeway Stores, Inc. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 37, 41, 176 Cal. Rptr. 320] . It appears that even under the factors set forth in Rowland, there must be a special relationship between the possessor and the injured person. Therefore, although the duty exists between the proprietor of a business and a patron of that business, and between a landlord and a tenant, at least one court has held that it does not exist between a landlord and the social guest of a tenant [Totten v. More Oakland Residential Housing, Inc. (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 538, 541-542, 63 Cal. App. 3d 538, 542, 134 Cal. Rptr. 29 ; see also Ann M. v. Pacific Plaza Shopping Ctr. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 666, 675, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 137, 863 P.2d 207 (duty of shopping mall owner extending to employees of mall tenants); but see § 421.12[5] for different rule concerning liability for a dangerous condition].

For a form of allegations regarding the failure of an owner or possessor of premises to protect persons on the premises from the acts of third parties, see §§ 421.72 and 421.73.

[2] Foreseeability and Prior Similar Incidents Rule

[a] Duty to Protect Against Reasonably Foreseeable Risks

The duty to control third persons is not absolute, because an owner or possessor of land is not an insurer of the safety of persons on the premises. It is a duty of reasonable care to protect against known or reasonably foreseeable risks. An owner or possessor is not required to take precautions against the conduct of third persons, if there is no reason to anticipate that conduct [Riley v. Marcus (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 103, 109, 177 Cal. Rptr. 827 (intruder raping tenant in apartment); Jamison v. Mark C. Bloome Co. (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 570, 577, 169 Cal. Rptr. 399 (vandals overturning oil barrels)].

Criminal conduct by a third party must generally be foreseeable before a duty to take preventative measures may be imposed on a landowner or a person in possession of the premises [see Delgado v. Trax Bar & Grill (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 224, 237, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 145, 113 P.3d 1159] . However, the degree of foreseeability needed to impose a particular duty to prevent harm varies, depending on the burden of imposing the preventative measures suggested by the plaintiff in the particular case [Delgado v. Trax Bar & Grill (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 224, 243-244 , 113 P.3d 1159] . A heightened degree of foreseeability is necessary to impose a duty on a defendant to take great or onerous preventative security measures, which would include a duty to provide security guards, install bright lighting, activate and monitor security cameras, provide periodic "walk-throughs" with existing personnel, or provide stronger fencing. To establish this heightened degree of foreseeability, a plaintiff must provide evidence of prior similar criminal incidents or other indications of a reasonably foreseeable risk of violent criminal assaults in that location [Delgado v. Trax Bar & Grill (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 224, 243-244 , 113 P.3d 1159] . By contrast, a lesser degree of foreseeability, one not requiring evidence of prior similar incidents on or near the premises, is all that is required if the plaintiff seeks to impose a duty to take preventative measures that are simple or create only a minimal burden on the defendant [Delgado v. Trax Bar & Grill (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 224, 243-244 & n.24 , 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 145, 113 P.3d 1159] .

To prove foreseeability, all that is required is proof of prior similar incidents, not proof of prior identical incidents [Claxton v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 327, 339, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 425] . For example, a patron assaulted at a gas station provided substantial evidence of prior violent crime on the premises, even though his assault was racially motivated and the earlier criminal activity may not have been. The evidence showed that the gas station had been the site of many recent robberies and attacks and that violent gang activity was rampant on the premises and in the neighborhood [Claxton v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 327, 338-339, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 425] .

The requirements for establishing premises liability based on the foreseeability of third-party criminal conduct cannot be avoided by recasting the claim as one based on another theory of negligence liability, such as an action for negligent failure toproperly train employees [Alvarez v. Jacmar Pac. Pizza Corp. (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 1190, 1212, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 890] .

[b] Scope of Duty to Take Precautions

As described in § 421.15[2][a], the degree of foreseeability affects the scope of the duty to take precautions [see Delgado v. Trax Bar & Grill (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 224, 243-244 & n.24, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 145, 113 P.3d 1159] . An owner or possessor does not have a duty to provide burdensome or highly expensive protection, such as security guards, unless the risk of injury from the criminal acts of third persons is highly foreseeable. Establishing this high degree of foreseeability requires a showing of prior similar incidents of crime on the owner's or possessor's premises [Ann M. v. Pacific Plaza Shopping Ctr. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 666, 679, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 137, 863 P.2d 207] .

This high degree of foreseeability also applies to noncriminal acts of third persons, such as so-called "curb jumping" cases, in which a patron of a business is struck by a car that jumps a curb and comes onto the sidewalk. In these cases, the owner of the business premises generally is not liable because such accidents are insufficiently likely, as a matter of law, if all of the following conditions are met: the business has provided both curbs and wheel stops, the parking lot design is typical of most businesses and meets local standards and regulations, there were no prior similar incidents, and nothing required customers to remain in a fixed location adjacent to the parking area. For example, a convenience store whose parking lot had a raised curb and concrete wheel stops did not have a duty to install metal posts at the end of each parking space, because imposing such a duty would be unreasonably burdensome in the absence of any prior similar incidents [Jefferson v. Qwik Korner Mkt., Inc. (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 990, 995-996, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 171] .

The status and resources of the premises owner may also affect the scope of the duty to take precautions. For example, one court of appeal, following the reasoning in Ann M. v. Pacific Plaza Shopping Center, held that three family members who owned a single condominium unit and the four-member condominium association had no duty to the unit's tenant, who was raped in the unit by an intruder, to install increased security measures in the unit or the building, because no prior similar incidents made the rape foreseeable. The court noted that providing greatly increased security would be as burdensome for the defendants as providing security guards would be for the owner of a large shopping center or apartment building [Pamela W. v. Millsom (1994), 25 Cal. App. 4th 950, 958-959, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 690] .

However, in determining whether to impose a duty of care under the particular circumstances of the case, a lesser degree of foreseeability is required if simple means could prevent the harm [Delgado v. Trax Bar & Grill (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 224, 243-244 & n.24, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 145, 113 P.3d 1159 ; Vasquez v. Residential Invs., Inc. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 269, 286, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 846 ; see, e.g., Barber v. Chang (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 1456, 1466-1469, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 760 (landlord with knowledge that tenant had brandished shotgun while voicing threats at others on property had duty to take some protective measures, although measures required under circumstances of case was for determination of trial court on remand)].

In one case, for example, a landlord had a duty to replace a glass pane in the front door of an apartment because the burden to make the replacement was minimal and the risk of harm sufficiently foreseeable. The tenants had previously complained to the landlord that the missing pane was a security risk, an intruder had made at least one aborted attempt to enter the apartment, and there had been other reported assaults in other apartments in the building [Vasquez v. Residential Invs., Inc. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 269, 286-287, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 846 ; see also Ambriz v. Kelegian (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 1519, 1534-1535, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d700 (requiring apartment complex owners to maintain existing outside gates and locks in working condition)].

In another case, the court of appeal held that the owners of a large apartment complex had a duty of care either to move existing security gates so that they provided protection around the leasing office and its adjacent parking lot, which was used as an overflow lot for nightly parking by tenants, or to install a similar gate around that area, which according to evidence would require a minor gate extension over a small area [Tan v. Arnel Management Co. (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 1087, 1098-1100, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 754] . Because the court concluded that these security measures proposed by plaintiff would not be very burdensome, the court held that heightened foreseeability of the attempted carjacking that resulted in serious injury to plaintiff was not required. Therefore, evidence of three violent assaults in ungated parking areas on the apartment grounds in the two years prior to plaintiff's assault was sufficient to meet plaintiff's burden of showing a reasonably foreseeable risk of violent criminal assaults on the property, even though his attack involved a gun and the other violent assaults did not [Tan v. Arnel Management Co. (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 1087, 1099-1101, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 754].

[c] Increase in Plaintiff's Burden of Proof

The California Supreme Court described its decision in Ann M. v. Pacific Plaza Shopping Center as a "refinement" of an earlier decision, Isaacs v. Huntington Memorial Hospital [Isaacs v. Huntington Mem'l Hosp. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 112, 130-131, 211 Cal. Rptr. 356, 695 P.2d 653] , which held that prior similar incidents were not required to establish any degree of foreseeability and that foreseeability was determined in light of the totality of the circumstances [Ann M. v. Pacific Plaza Shopping Ctr. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 666, 678, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 137, 863 P.2d 207] . It appears that the holding of Ann M. creates a more onerous burden of proof for plaintiffs seeking to recover from property owners for injuries caused by the criminal acts of third parties. According to the Court in Ann M., assaults, purse snatchings, and bank robberies, which the plaintiff claimed had previously occurred on the premises, were not sufficiently similar to the violent rape of the plaintiff to satisfy the prior similar incidents rule, nor were the presence of transients loitering on the premises and the high statistical rate of violent crime in the area where the premises were located [Ann M. v. Pacific Plaza Shopping Ctr. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 666, 679-680, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 137, 863 P.2d 207] .

Subsequent to the opinion in Ann M., the California Supreme Court held in Sharon P. v. Arman, Ltd. that neither the owner of a commercial building nor the parking services company owed a legal duty of care to prevent a sexual assault on the plaintiff in the building's underground parking garage [Sharon P. v. Arman, Ltd. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1181, 1185, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35, 989 P.2d 121] . Relying extensively on their earlier opinion in Ann M., the Court held as a matter of law that the occurrence of a violent third-party sexual assault was not sufficiently foreseeable to impose a duty of care under the circumstances [Sharon P. v. Arman, Ltd. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1181, 1191, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35, 989 P.2d 121] . In Sharon P. v. Arman, Ltd., no assaults had occurred in the parking garage in the preceding ten years, and although numerous bank robberies had occurred in the bank on the ground floor of the building, the Court concluded that these incidents were not sufficiently similar to the sexual assault on the plaintiff to establish the requisite foreseeability [Sharon P. v. Arman, Ltd. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1181, 1191, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35, 989 P.2d 121] . In addition, although the plaintiff provided police statistics of criminal activity, including sexual assaults, in the surrounding 50-block area for the 15 months prior to the attack in question, she provided no evidence showing the proximity of these crimes to the parking garage [Sharon P. v. Arman, Ltd. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1181, 1198, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35, 989 P.2d121] . The Court also specifically rejected the argument that underground parking garages were so inherently dangerous that a duty of care to provide security measures exists even in the absence of prior similar incidents [Sharon P. v. Arman, Ltd. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1181, 1191, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35, 989 P.2d 121 ; see also Lopez v. Baca (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 1008, 1017, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 281 (plaintiff failed to provide evidence that nightclubs and bars, including those violating statutes prohibiting payment for solicitation of beverages, are inherently dangerous)].

One court of appeal, citing Ann M. v. Pacific Plaza Shopping Center, has held that the owners of a condominium unit and the condominium association had no duty to provide increased security measures to protect the unit's tenant, who was raped in the unit by an intruder, because neither the plaintiff nor the defendants were aware of any specific criminal acts in the vicinity, other than a daytime burglary of the unit upstairs [Pamela W. v. Millsom (1994), 25 Cal. App. 4th 950, 953, 959, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 690] .

In another case, the California Supreme Court held that neither a child care facility nor the owner of the premises owed a duty of care to protect against the criminal actions of a man who intentionally drove his car through a four-foot-high chain link fence that surrounded a playground, killing two children [Wiener v. Southcoast Childcare Ctrs., Inc. (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 1138, 1141-1142, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 615, 88 P.3d 517] . The Court in that case held that the foreseeability of the injury-causing conduct had to be analyzed under the Ann M. test for determining the foreseeability of third-party criminal conduct, and not under the less stringent test for foreseeability that would be used in a case of ordinary negligence involving a "curb-jumping" accident. Under the Ann M. standard, the Court concluded, the criminal assault that occurred was unforeseeable, given the absence of any prior acts of violence at the child care center, or at any other similar business in the area, and the complete impossibility of anticipating the driver's outrageous conduct [Wiener v. Southcoast Childcare Ctrs., Inc. (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 1138, 1150, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 615, 88 P.3d 517] .

Absent circumstances showing extraordinary foreseeability, a landlord owes no duty to existing tenants not to rent to suspected gang members, nor to screen the criminal records of suspected gang members before renting. The California Supreme Court has concluded that recognition of such a duty would place landlords in a position in which they would tend to deny rentals to those who fit a perceived profile for gang membership, likely leading to potential liability for racial, ethnic, or other types of illegal discrimination [Castaneda v. Olsher (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 1205, 1216-1217, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 99, 162 P.3d 610] . While it is unclear what evidence would support a showing of "extraordinary foreseeability," the Court concluded that mere suspicion that a potential renter was a gang member was insufficient to meet this test [Castaneda v. Olsher (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 1205, 1218, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 99, 162 P.3d 610] . Having rented to a tenant, however, a landlord may have a duty to evict when the threat of violence is highly foreseeable, although a plaintiff would have to establish that it was highly foreseeable that the particular tenant sought to be evicted, or guests of that tenant, would commit violence against other tenants, as demonstrated by the behavior of that particular tenant as reported to or observed by the landlord or his or her agents [Castaneda v. Olsher (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 1205, 1221, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 99, 162 P.3d 610] .

[d] Satisfying Duty to Control Third Persons if Risk of Injury Not Highly Foreseeable

If the risk of injury is less than highly foreseeable, an owner or possessor could satisfy the duty to control the conduct of third persons by expressly prohibiting the anticipated conduct, constructing impediments, repairing a defective condition, or giving oral or written warnings [see, e.g., Frances T. v. Village Green Owners Ass'n (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 490, 499-503, 229 Cal. Rptr. 456, 723 P.2d 573 (providing adequate lighting); Vasquez v. Residential Invs., Inc. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 269, 286-287, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 846 (replacement of missing glass pane in apartment door); Kwaitkowski v. Superior Trading Co. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 324, 333, 176 Cal. Rptr. 494 (repair of defective lock); Musgrove v. Ambrose Props. (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 44, 50, 150 Cal. Rptr. 722 (posting signs prohibiting bicycle riding); Barker v. Wah Low (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 710, 721, 97 Cal. Rptr. 85 (erecting barrier to prevent car from jumping guard rail); Taylor v. Centennial Bowl, Inc. (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 114, 124, 52 Cal. Rptr. 561, 416 P.2d 793 (warning)]. However, a warning does not satisfy the duty unless it is adequate to enable the person to avoid the harmful conduct [Taylor v. Centennial Bowl, Inc. (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 114, 118-124, 52 Cal. Rptr. 561, 416 P.2d 793 (warning patron of bar not to enter parking lot because "that goofball is out there" as not adequate to protect patron from violent assault)].

Additionally, under the appropriate circumstances, a lack of sufficient foreseeability may preclude the imposition of civil liability for the criminal acts of third parties, even in the absence of lesser security precautions such as those already discussed. For example, in a case brought by the victim of a sexual assault that occurred in an underground parking garage, the California Supreme Court refused to impose a duty on the owners and operators of the garage to provide improved lighting and maintenance, operational surveillance cameras, and periodic walk-throughs by existing personnel, because there had not been any prior similar incidents or other indications of a reasonably foreseeable risk of violent criminal assaults in that particular parking garage [Sharon P. v. Arman, Ltd. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1181, 1195-1196, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35, 989 P.2d 121 ; see also Lopez v. Baca (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 1008, 1017-1018 & n.8, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 281 (although nightclub voluntarily provided security guard on weekends, nightclub did not have duty to provide guard on week nights in absence of prior acts of violence on premises)].

In another case, the court of appeal held that a restaurant had no duty to protect against a murder that took place on its premises, even though the murderer had gotten into a fight on the premises earlier in the evening with the patron that he eventually killed. In that case, in which the murderer and his companions had left, but made vague threats about returning, it was unforeseeable that the earlier verbal and physical altercation would lead to the departed party returning with a gun to shoot the other patron. Any duty owed to the other patron was fulfilled when, after the initial altercation, the restaurant called the police, who arrived at the scene and then left when they determined that the fight was over. Also, three earlier violent incidents on the premises in the previous two and a half years did not constitute prior similar incidents, because those incidents were dissimilar in nature to the attack on the other patron[Alvarez v. Jacmar Pac. Pizza Corp. (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 1190, 1210-1212, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 890] .

The court of appeal in another case held that the defendants were not liable to the plaintiff, who reported to a clerk at a fast-food restaurant, and to a mall security guard who was standing in line with her, that a man outside the restaurant had been eying her and making allegedly suggestive facial expressions. When the security guard and clerk looked toward where the man had been, however, the man could not be seen in the area. Subsequently, the man sexually assaulted the plaintiff in the restaurant's restroom. The court of appeal concluded that in the absence of a more definite threat beyond the plaintiff's vague suspicions, the defendants could not have foreseen the sexual assault and were under no duty to take further steps to protect the plaintiff under the circumstances [Roe v. McDonald's Corp. (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 1107, 1119, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 127] .

In another case, the court of appeal held that the owner of agricultural land used for orchards owed no duty to post a warning sign at the spot that a private farm road intersected a public road just because an unauthorized driver who was using the farm road failed to recognize the transition to the public road, drove from the farm road to the public road at an excessive rate of speed, and caused a collision with another vehicle on the public road. The court noted that unless the owner's workers were using the farm road, access to the farm road was usually barred by a cable, there was no evidence that unauthorized drivers were using the farm road generally, let alone at unsafe speeds, and the owner's vegetation did not encroach on the right-of-way for the public road. According to the court, imposing a duty to place warning signs on defendant would essentially impose a duty to post warning signs on all such farm roads and require rural landowners to engage in constant monitoring to ensure the signs remained in place, thus placing a huge burden on rural landowners generally [Garcia v. Paramount Citrus Assn., Inc. (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 1448, 1456-1460, 80 Cal. Rptr. 3d 512].

[3] No Liability if No Degree of Protection Would Prevent Conduct

Security measures that are inadequate to protect against harm by third persons, such as rape or assault, may nonetheless not subject the owner or possessor to liability if it cannot be proved that additional or different measures would have prevented the crime. In this situation, the issue is not whether the owner or possessor had a duty or breached it, but whether the conduct of the owner or possessor was not the proximate or legal causeof the victim's injuries because the crime could have occurred no matter what measures the owner or possessor took to prevent it [Nola M. v. University of S. Cal. (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 421, 426-427, 435, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 97 ; see also Thai v. Stang (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1264, 1274, 263 Cal. Rptr. 202 ; Lopez v. McDonald's Corp. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 495, 512, 238 Cal. Rptr. 436 ; Noble v. Los Angeles Dodgers, Inc. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 912, 916-918, 214 Cal. Rptr. 395] . A plaintiff in these cases need only show that the proposed security measures would more likely than not have prevented the attack, not that they absolutely would have prevented the attack [Sandoval v. Bank of Am. (2002) 94 Cal. App. 4th 1378, 1387, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 128] .

For example, in a case involving a daytime assault and attempted rape by unknown assailants at a large apartment complex, the California Supreme Court upheld summary judgment for the owners of the apartment complex. The owners provided nighttime security personnel and daytime inspections to ensure that security gates were operating properly, but the gates were not all secured properly. The plaintiff, who had been making a delivery at the apartment complex, argued that daytime security guards would have prevented the assault. Assuming for the sake of analysis that the owners may have breached a duty to provide reasonable security measures, the Court concluded that the plaintiff could not prove that this breach was the actual cause of the assault and attempted rape. The plaintiff admitted that she could not prove the identity or background of the three men who assaulted her nor how they got on the apartment complex premises. Absent any evidence that the attackers were unauthorized intruders, rather than authorized residents, or that it was more probable than not the attack would not have occurred if there had been an increased security presence, the Court held that the plaintiff could not prove that any breach of duty on the part of the defendants actually caused the harm [Saelzler v. Advanced Group 400 (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 763, 775-776, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617, 23 P.3d 1143] .

According to the Court, the opinion testimony of the plaintiff's expert--that the attack would not have occurred if the defendants had provided daytime securityguards and made a better effort to maintain the security gates in proper working condition--was speculation and did not raise a triable issue of fact on causation [Saelzler v. Advanced Group 400 (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 763, 781, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617, 23 P.3d 1143] .

Similarly, three family members who owned a condominium unit and the four-member condominium association were not liable to the unit's tenant, who was raped in the unit by an intruder who had been stalking her. The court held that no level of security short of armed guards could have prevented this type of crime, and that it was unreasonable to expect this level of protection from defendants [Pamela W. v. Millsom (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 950, 959, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 690] .

In another case, by contrast, the court of appeal held that a woman raped in her apartment complex by a known transient had provided sufficient evidence to show a triable issue of fact on causation. In that particular case, while there was no conclusive evidence as to how the rapist gained access to the complex, the evidence demonstrated that a number of entry gates to the complex were not closing properly or not locking, tenants had complained to the security guard about this, and this had been reported to management. In addition, there were numerous prior reports of unauthorized male intruders gaining access to the complex, apparently through these gates, and the rapist himself had been reported on the grounds numerous times. Given that the rapist was known to be an unauthorized transient, and there was no evidence of a forced entry anywhere on the premises at the time of the rape, the court held that a reasonable person could conclude that it was more likely than not that the rapist used the malfunctioning gates to gain access to the complex [Ambriz v. Kelegian (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 1519, 1536-1538, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 700] .

If a plaintiff is assaulted inside an individual apartment, lack of clear evidence showing exactly how the assailant gained access to the apartment complex will not defeat a claim against the landlord if there is evidence sufficient to support a claim that the landlord was negligent in securing the individual apartment and this negligence was a substantial factor in the assault [Raven H. v. Gamette (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 1017, 1027-1030, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 897]. In one case, for example, while the plaintiff did not know exactly how her assailant gained access to her apartment complex, the court of appeal held that the evidence was sufficient to support a finding that the landlord's failure to provide bars or locks on her first-story windows, which were provided to other tenants, and the landlord's failure to control vegetation growth around her windows, allowing the intruder to enter through a window shrouded in darkness, were a cause of plaintiff's injury [Raven H. v. Gamette (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 1017, 1028, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 897].

[4] Duty When Responding to Presently Occurring Criminal Conduct

Store or restaurant employees have a duty to protect invitees, including customers and potential customers who are in an area under the establishment's control, fromcriminal conduct that is presently occurring or about to occur. That duty is to take reasonable and minimally burdensome measures, such as issuing a warning or calling 911 for assistance, if those measures can be undertaken without increasing the risk of harm to the employees [Morris v. De La Torre (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 260, 277-278, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 173, 113 P.3d 1182] .

A shopkeeper does not have a duty to comply with the unlawful demands of an armed robber that property be surrendered [Kentucky Fried Chicken of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 814, 817, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 756, 927 P.2d 1260] . In reaching this result, the California Supreme Court rejected the contention that such a duty should be imposed to lessen the danger to others on the premises, stating that the existence of such a duty could in fact encourage robbers [Kentucky Fried Chicken of Cal., Inc. v. Superior Court (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 814, 829-830, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 756, 927 P.2d 1260 (case before court involved only failure to obey robber's demand, not active resistance)].

[5] No Liability in Residential Setting for Failure to Warn of Third Party's Past Criminal Convictions for Molestation

Although most cases involving a landowner's duty to protect others from the criminal acts of a third person have involved commercial or public settings, the issue may arise in a nonpublic residential setting, such as a social guest's being injured by a third party. For example, in a case brought under general premises liability principles, a minor was sexually molested by his mother's boyfriend while visiting the boyfriend's relatives, who had failed to warn the mother that the boyfriend had in the past been convicted for child molestation. The court of appeal held that the relatives were not liable [Eric J. v. Betty M. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 715, 726-727, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 549] . In that particular case, the relatives had no knowledge that the boyfriend was molesting the child, and even though some of the molestations took place at their residences when the boyfriend was alone with the child, the relatives did nothing to facilitate the molestations and made no representations as to the safety of the child if left alone with the boyfriend [Eric J. v. Betty M. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 715, 718-720, 729, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 549] . The court of appeal concluded that the boyfriend's prior convictions did not mean that for purposes of tort liability, he should be treated as the functional equivalent of a dangerous animal, because he had been released from prison under a parole program that had as its premise the belief that rehabilitation was possible [Eric J. v. Betty M. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 715, 725-726, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 549] . The court then noted that the facts in this case did not support any of the othertraditional bases for imposing premises liability, such as the nature of the activity conducted on the property or any relationship of entrustment of the child [Eric J. v. Betty M. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 715, 727, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 549] .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. General Principles of Liability

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.16

§ 421.16 "Firefighter's" Rule

[1] Bar to Recovery for Injuries

The "firefighter's" rule bars a firefighter or police officer from recovery for injuries sustained because of the very conduct that created the situation necessitating the presence of the firefighter or police officer [Lipson v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 362, 378, 182 Cal. Rptr. 629, 644 P.2d 822] . The rule developed in the context of premises liability as a limitation on the duty of possessors of property, under the rationale that there is no liability for a dangerous condition known to the person coming on the premises [Walters v. Sloan (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 199, 203, 142 Cal. Rptr. 152, 571 P.2d 609] , that a firefighter or police officer has chosen an occupation that by its very nature exposes him or her to risk and receives special benefits in consideration of doing so, and that freedom fromliability encourages those needing assistance to summon it [Seibert Sec. Servs., Inc. v. Superior Court (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 394, 406, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 514] .

The "firefighter's" rule bars recovery of damages from property owners for personal injuries suffered by an off-duty deputy sheriff who assumes responsibility for apprehending a criminal suspect on the property owners' premises. The rule applies to volunteer as well as paid officers. Also, no nexus is required between a law enforcement officer's presence at the scene and his or her law enforcement employment. A public safety officer's original reason for being on the premises is irrelevant; the firefighter's rule is triggered because the officer reacted as a police officer to a disturbance and deliberately encountered the danger [Hodges v. Yarian (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 973, 981-984, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 130] .

The "firefighter's" rule is actually not a separate concept, but instead is an example of the application of the primary versus secondary assumption of the risk doctrine set forth in Knight v. Jewett [Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 313, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696] : a legal determination of whether, based on the nature of the activity involved and the relationship of the parties to that activity, the defendant owed the plaintiff a duty of care [Neighbarger v. Irwin Indus., Inc. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 532, 538, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 630, 882 P.2d 347] .

For further discussion of the "firefighter's" rule, see Ch. 267, Fires , and Ch. 380, Negligence .

[2] Rule Not Applicable to Private Safety Employees

The California Supreme Court has distinguished between publicly employed firefighters and private safety employees and held that the "firefighter's" rule does not preclude a private safety employee from stating a cause of action against a third party who is not his or her employer for injuries caused by that third party's negligence in starting a fire [Neighbarger v. Irwin Indus., Inc. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 532, 534-535, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 630, 882 P.2d 347] . The Court reasoned that by establishing public fire departments and taxing themselves to pay for their services, the public in effect has purchased exoneration from the duty of care and does not have to pay twice, through taxation and individual liability, for those services [Neighbarger v. Irwin Indus., Inc. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 532, 542-543, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 630, 882 P.2d 347] .

In contrast, a defendant whose negligence injures private safety employees employed by another does not have the same relationship with those private safety employees as a member of the public has with publicly employed firefighters, because the defendant has not paid in any way to be relieved of the duty of care owed to the private employees. Another consideration supporting the distinction between publicly employed firefighters and private safety employees is that actions by publicly employed firefighters would involve costly litigation over subrogation that would ultimately be financed by the public and that would not benefit the firefighters, who receive retirement or workers' compensation benefits, whereas actions by private safety employees shift the loss from the innocent employees and their employer to the third party whose negligence caused the injuries [Neighbarger v. Irwin Indus., Inc. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 532, 543, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 630, 882 P.2d 347] . A third distinction is that the public good is best served by a quick response to fires without questions about the fire's cause, which warrants eliminating the public's duty of care to publicly employed firefighters, but no similar concern justifies eliminating the duty of care owed by third parties to private safety employees [Neighbarger v. Irwin Indus., Inc. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 532, 544, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 630, 882 P.2d 347] .

[3] Exception to Rule for Independent Act of Misconduct or Unrelated Risk

[a] Scope of Exception

The "firefighter's" rule does not, however, preclude liability for injuries sustained as a result of conduct that is independent of the act that created the need for the firefighter's or police officer's presence. A possessor is liable for failure to warn of a known, hidden danger on the premises or for misrepresenting the nature of the risk [Lipson v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 362, 378, 182 Cal. Rptr. 629, 644 P.2d 822 (misrepresenting nature of toxic chemicals); Boon v. Rivera (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1322, 1328-1330, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 276 (deceiving police officer about violent tendencies of husband barricaded in house); Donohue v. San Francisco Hous. Auth. (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 658, 663 (slippery steps on property being inspected for fire code violations); Kocan v. Garino (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 291, 295-296, 165 Cal. Rptr. 712 (dilapidated fence on property)].

The rationale for this exception is that firefighters or police officers who suffer injury in this situation are in the same position as anyone venturing onto the premises; their occupations compel them to face felons or fires, not faulty fences [Seibert Sec. Servs., Inc. v. Superior Court (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 394, 407, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 514] .

For further discussion of exceptions to the "firefighter's" rule, see Ch. 267, Fires , and Ch. 380, Negligence .

[b] Exception Not Applicable to Firefighters or Police Officers Encountering Hazards by Chance

Firefighters and police officers who have not been called to the scene of a fire or other emergency, but who have been injured while responding to a hazard that they encounter by chance in the course of their duties, have claimed that the independent act exception to the "firefighter's" rule applies to them because they were at a particular location for reasons unrelated to the hazard to which they responded. However, the courts have ruled that the exception does not apply in this situation. Firefighters and police officers who respond to perceived risks in their professional capacity in order to protect the public cannot claim, simply because their presence at the scene was fortuitous rather than the result of a radio call or other summons, that their presence was independent of or unrelated to the cause of their injuries [Kelhi v. Fitzpatrick (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1149, 1158-1159, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 182 ; Seibert Sec. Servs., Inc. v. Superior Court (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 394, 411, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 514] .

For example, a highway patrol officer in uniform who was driving to work on his official motorcycle was barred by the "firefighter's" rule from recovering for injuries caused by tires that broke off a pickup truck on the highway ahead of him. When the officer saw the truck lose its tires, he responded by turning on his flashers, checking traffic behind him to ensure that no vehicles ran into the tires, and asking the truck's driver to move onto the shoulder. After he moved around the truck to look for the tires, which were rolling down the highway, they veered, bounced off a retaining wall, and hit him. The risk that caused his injuries, the runaway tires, was not the conduct that brought him to that highway at that moment, but it was the risk that prompted his response as a police officer. His actions were the same as those he would have taken had he been summoned to the scene, and an officer called to the scene would have been barred from recovery by the "firefighter's" rule for a similar injury. Therefore, the exception for unrelated or independent acts did not apply to allow his recovery for any negligence (on the part of the truck's owner, driver, or manufacturer) that caused the tires to come off the truck [Kelhi v. Fitzpatrick (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1149, 1152, 1158-1159, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 182] .

Similarly, the "firefighter's" rule barred recovery by a police officer who brought a suspect into a hospital for examination, was doing paperwork when he heard a cry for help from a private security guard being attacked in a holding cell by a mental patient, and was injured when he went into the holding cell to assist the guard. The guard's negligence in failing to restrain the mental patient was independent of and unrelated to the conduct that brought the officer to the hospital, but it was the immediate cause of his presence in the holding cell where the patient was attacking the guard [Seibert Security Services, Inc. v. Superior Court (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 394, 411, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 514] .

[4] Exceptions to Rule Under Civ. Code § 1714.9

Under Civ. Code § 1714.9, notwithstanding statutory or decisional law to the contrary, any person is responsible not only for the results of that person's willful acts causing injury to a peace officer, a firefighter, or any emergency medical personnel employed by a public entity, but is also responsible for any injury occasioned to that person by the want of ordinary care or skill in the management of the person's property or person, in any of the following situations [Civ. Code § 1714.9(a)]:

- The conduct causing injury occurs after the person knows or should have known of the presence of the peace officer, the firefighter, or emergency medical personnel [see, e.g., Boon v. Rivera (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1322, 1330-1333, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 276 (wife of man who shot police officer after wife misrepresented to officer that her husband was not violent, even though she knew otherwise, had duty under statute not to misrepresent nature of hazard, because officer relied on representations in making tactical decisions)];

- The conduct causing injury violates a statute, ordinance, or regulation, and the conduct causing injury was itself not the event that precipitated either the response or presence of the peace officer, the firefighter, or emergency medical personnel;

- The conduct causing injury was intended to injure the peace officer, the firefighter, or emergency medical personnel; or.

- The conduct causing the injury is arson as defined by Penal Code § 451.

Although Civ. Code § 1714.9 uses the phrase "that person" to refer both to the person willfully injuring a peace officer, a firefighter, or emergency medical personnel, as well as to the person injured by negligence, it was intended to create, and has been applied as creating, an exception to the "firefighter's" rule for both willful and negligent acts that fall into any of its four categories [see, e.g., Seibert Sec. Servs., Inc. v. Superior Court (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 394, 408-410, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 514 ; Gibb v. Stetson (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1008, 1014-1016, 245 Cal. Rptr. 283 ; City of Redlands v. Sorensen (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 202, 208-211, 221 Cal. Rptr. 728] .

Conduct occurring after a defendant knew or should have known of the presence of a peace officer, a firefighter, or emergency medical personnel does not include conduct that occurs before the peace officer, the firefighter, or emergency medical personnel have undertaken their duties [Seibert Sec. Servs., Inc. v. Superior Court (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 394, 408-409, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 514] .

For further discussion of exceptions to the "firefighter's" rule under Civ. Code § 1714.9, see Ch. 267, Fires , and Ch. 380, Negligence .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. General Principles of Liability

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.17

§ 421.17 Duty to Persons Outside Premises

[1] No Distinction Between Artificial and Natural Conditions

Prior to the Supreme Court's decision in Sprecher v. Adamson Cos. [Sprecher v. Adamson Cos. (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 358, 178 Cal. Rptr. 783, 636 P.2d 1121] , the duty of an owner or possessor of premises to persons outside the premises turned on the distinction between artificial and natural conditions. A possessor was not liable for harm caused to persons outside the premises if the harm was caused by a natural condition on the premises [see, e.g., Boarts v. Imperial Irrigation Dist. (1947) 80 Cal. App. 2d 574, 578, 182 P.2d 246 (natural vegetation)]. If, however, the harm was caused by an artificial condition, the owner or possessor was liable if his or her conduct was negligent [see, e.g., Coates v. Chinn (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 304, 308, 332 P.2d 289 (planted row of trees); Potter v. Empress Theatre Co. (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 4, 12, 204 P.2d 120 (theater marquee)].

The court in Sprecher held that the immunity of an owner or possessor for harm caused by natural conditions was no longer justified, because possession of premises with the attendant right to control conditions on those premises is a sufficient basis for imposition of an affirmative duty to act [Sprecher v. Adamson Cos. (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 358, 369-371, 178 Cal. Rptr. 783, 636 P.2d 1121] . Therefore, a possessor of premises owes a duty to persons outside the premises to exercise reasonable care in the management of the possessor's property. In imposing liability, the factors to be considered in evaluating the reasonableness of a defendant's conduct are the likelihood and the probable seriousness of injury to the plaintiff, the burden of reducing or avoiding the risk, the location of the premises, and the possessor's degree of control over the risk-creating condition [Sprecher v. Adamson Cos. (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 358, 369-371, 178 Cal. Rptr. 783, 636 P.2d 1121] .

[2] Distracting Activities on Premises

An owner or possessor of premises has no duty to users of adjacent public streets either to refrain from holding activities on the premises that would distract passing motorists or to erect or maintain distraction barriers to hide those activities from passing motorists. Motorists have a duty to exercise reasonable care, which includes not permitting their attention to be so distracted by sights or sounds as to interfere with the safe operation of their vehicles. If a motorist is exercising due care, events in progress on property pose no risk of harm to anyone (pedestrians, bicyclists, or motorists) on the adjacent public streets [Lompoc Unified Sch. Dist. v. Superior Court (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1688, 1694, 1697, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 122 (school district not liable to bicyclist struck by car who claimed football game on district's property distracted attention of car's driver)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. General Principles of Liability

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 421.18-421.19

[Reserved]

§§ 421.18[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Liability to Recreational Users

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.20

§ 421.20 Governing Statutes

Civ. Code § 846 sets forth the liability of an owner of an estate or any interest in real property for injuries to recreational users.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Liability to Recreational Users

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.21

§ 421.21 Landowner's Immunity From Liability to Recreational Users

An owner of an estate or any other interest in real property, whether possessory or nonpossessory, owes no duty of care to keep the premises safe for entry or use by others for any recreational purpose or to give persons any warning of hazardous conditions, structures, uses of, or activities on the premises, except as provided by Civ. Code § 846 [Civ. Code § 846; see § 421.23]. The property interests protected by the statute are broad. For example, a homeowner's right of way to construct a driveway over an adjacent public trail fits within the definition of an "interest in real property" under the statute if someone is injured while using the trail at the point where it intersects the driveway [Miller v. Weitzen (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 732, 738-739, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 73] . For a discussion of the meaning of recreational purpose, see § 421.22.

An owner who gives permission to another for entry or use for a recreational purpose does not extend any assurance that the premises are safe for that purpose, grant to that person the legal status of an invitee nor licensee, or assume responsibility for or incur liability for any injury to person or property caused by any act of the person to whom permission has been granted, except as provided by Civ. Code § 846 [Civ. Code § 846].

The purpose of Civ. Code § 846 is to encourage owners to allow the general public to use land for recreational purposes by relieving those owners of tort duties that might otherwise apply [Paige v. North Oaks Partners (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 860, 863, 184 Cal. Rptr. 867 ; Gerkin v. Santa Clara Valley Water Dist. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 1022, 1026, 157 Cal. Rptr. 612] . The Ninth Circuit has held that the legislative goal of encouraging property owners to open their land to the public does not mean that immunity applies only to landowners who allow anyone and everyone free access to their property. Indeed, Civ. Code § 846 does not use the word "public" or any equivalent synonym. Therefore, the United States government could claim immunity in a case involving a picnic held at a park that was located entirely within the grounds of a military facility and was not open to the general public [Mansion v. United States (9th Cir. 1991) 945 F.2d 1115, 1117-1118] .

The protection afforded to landowners under Civ. Code § 846 is not limited to dangers presented by the premises per se, but extends to the negligent conduct of persons, including dangers presented by negligent drivers [Shipman v. Boething Treeland Farms, Inc. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1424, 1427-1431, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 566] . In addition, a plaintiff may not overcome the immunity conferred on a landowner by Civ. Code § 846 by arguing that the landowner may nonetheless be liable as an employer because the injury is caused by the negligent conduct of an employee or the landowner's negligent supervision of an employee [Shipman v. Boething Treeland Farms, Inc. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1424, 1431, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 566] .

The immunity granted by Civ. Code § 846 is not limited to immunity from claims based on simple negligence, but also shields a defendant from liability for negligence per se--that is, negligence presumed to exist by virtue of the defendant's violation of a statute, ordinance, or regulation [Jackson v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 1110, 1121, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 831] .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Liability to Recreational Users

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.22

§ 421.22 Recreational Purpose Defined

The term "recreational purpose" includes fishing, hunting, camping, water sports, hiking, spelunking, sport parachuting, riding (including animal riding), snowmobiling, and all other types of vehicular riding, rock collecting, sightseeing, picnicking, nature study, nature contact, recreational gardening, gleaning, hang gliding, winter sports, and viewing or enjoying historical, archaeological, scenic, natural, or scientific sites [Civ. Code § 846]. This list is merely illustrative of the activities included in the term "recreational purpose." Under the usual, ordinary import of the plain meaning of the section, other recreational uses similar to those listed fall within its purview [Valladares v. Stone (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 362, 369, 267 Cal. Rptr. 57 (tree climbing)]. However, uses dissimilar to those listed may not be considered recreational under the meaning of the statute. For example, eating lunch in a restaurant, although arguably recreational in nature, is not a recreational purpose under this statute [Gordon v. Havasu Palms, Inc. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 244, 256-257, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 816] .

An activity that falls within the provisions of the statute must be one that is commonly understood to be recreational. Therefore, a person who walks across the defendant's property in an effort to reach a destination, cannot be said to be engaging in the recreational activity of hiking as a matter of law. A determination of recreational use depends on the totality of the attendant circumstances, including the topography of the land, the previous use of the land, the length of the activity, and the intent of the user [Gerkin v. Santa Clara Valley Water Dist. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 1022, 1027, 157 Cal. Rptr. 612] .

In addition, the purpose of use at the time of entry on the land controls, rather than the underlying purpose of the entire trip [Smith v. Scrap Disposal Corp. (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 525, 529, 158 Cal. Rptr. 134 ; see also Mattice v. United States Dep't of Interior (9th Cir. 1992) 969 F.2d 818, 821 (no liability to teenager who entered park to congregate with friends in picnic area, but was injured while taking test drive in friend's car before driving him home)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Liability to Recreational Users

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.23

§ 421.23 Exceptions to Immunity

[1] Public Entities

Immunity from liability under Civ. Code § 846 does not apply to landowners that are public entities [Delta Farms Reclamation Dist. v. Superior Court (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 699, 710, 190 Cal. Rptr. 494, 660 P.2d 1168 ; Nelsen v. City of Gridley (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 87, 96-97, 169 Cal. Rptr. 757] .

[2] Insufficient Ownership Interest

The immunity of Civ. Code § 846 applies to an owner of an interest in real property. Therefore, a business invitee of a landowner does not have a sufficient ownership interest to be immune under Civ. Code § 846 [Jenson v. Kenneth I. Mullen (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 653, 658, 259 Cal. Rptr. 552] . Similarly, immunity does not extend to the agents of a landlord [Jenson v. Kenneth I. Mullen (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 653, 658-659, 259 Cal. Rptr. 552 ; but see Shipman v. Boething Treeland Farms, Inc. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1424, 1426-1429, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 566 (although court did not specifically address issue of applicability to agents of landowner, Civ. Code § 846 immunized both landowner and his employee)].

[3] Willful or Malicious Failure to Guard or Warn

Although Civ. Code § 846 provides immunity from liability for injuries caused by mere negligence [Shipman v. Boething Treeland Farms, Inc. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1424, 1431, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 566] , it does not limit liability that otherwise exists for willful or malicious failure to guard or warn against a dangerous condition, use, structure, or activity [Civ. Code § 846]. The terms "willful" and "malicious" are given their standard tort definition [New v. Consolidated Rock Products Co. (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 681, 692, 217 Cal. Rptr. 522] . Therefore, willful or wanton misconduct is intentional wrongful conduct, done either with a knowledge that serious injury to another will probably result, or with a wanton and reckless disregard of the possible results [Nazar v. Rodeffer (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 546, 552, 229 Cal. Rptr. 209 ; New v. Consolidated Rock Prods. Co. (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 681, 689-690, 217 Cal. Rptr. 522] .

To raise a negligent act to the level of "willful" misconduct, there must be actual or constructive knowledge of the peril, actual or constructive knowledge that injury is a probable result of the peril, and conscious failure to act to avoid the peril. Constructive knowledge is measured by an objective standard, which is whether a reasonable person under the same or similar circumstances would be aware of the dangerous character of his or her conduct [New v. Consolidated Rock Prods. Co. (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 681, 689-690, 217 Cal. Rptr. 522 ; see also Termini v. United States (9th Cir. 1992) 963 F.2d 1264, 1267-1268 (reasonable person would have realized probability of accident occurring on road leading without warning to edge of cliff); cf. Mattice v. United States Dep't of Interior (9th Cir. 1992) 969 F.2d 818, 821 (previous accidents along road did not demonstrate actual or constructive knowledge that car would crash through guardrail)]. "Malicious" conduct is not limited to situations in which a defendant acts with a subjectively culpable state of mind. Malice, for the purposes of tort law, is defined as conduct that is intended to cause injury or that is carried on with a conscious disregard for the safety of others [New v. Consolidated Rock Prods. Co. (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 681, 691, 217 Cal. Rptr. 522] .

In one case, for example, a power company attempted to refute a 13-year-old plaintiff's allegation of willful or malicious failure to maintain an electrical transmission tower or warn or guard against a dangerous condition of the tower, by presenting evidence that it placed barbed wire and a warning sign at the tower and that the sign and barriers existed at the time the plaintiff climbed the tower. Although the plaintiff argued that the warning sign and barriers were in a state of disrepair, the court determined that the evidence showed, at most, that the defendant's conduct was negligent, and negligence was insufficient to overcome immunity under Civ. Code § 846 [Bacon v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 854, 859, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16] . In a similar case, an electric utility company that placed anticlimbing guards on an electric tower, even if they were installed incorrectly, did not engage in willful misconduct such that the company could be liable when a teenager was electrocuted when she climbed the tower [Manuel v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 927, 947, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 9] .

[4] Permission to Enter Premises Granted for Consideration

Under Civ. Code § 846, a landowner is not immune from liability that otherwise exists if the landowner grants permission to enter the premises for recreational purposes for a consideration other than the consideration, if any, paid to the landowner by the state, or if the landowner has received consideration from others for an entry for recreational purposes [Civ. Code § 846].

Both the California and federal courts have refused to interpret the term "consideration" broadly. The California court of appeal has held that the consideration must be some immediate and reasonably direct advantage, usually in the form of an entrance fee [Miller v. Weitzen (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 732, 739-740, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 73 (exception did not apply because trail maintenance fee was not consideration for permission to enter property where injury occurred)]. It cannot be merely a potential reimbursement, but must be a present actual benefit bestowed or detriment suffered. For example, the signing of an agreement including a hold harmless clause indemnifying a landowner against claims and the costs incurred in connection with those claims was not sufficient consideration to overcome the immunity granted by Civ. Code § 846. Ruling otherwise would encourage an injured recreational user to claim that nearly any rule or restriction imposed by a landowner, such as being required to empty trash, was consideration, which would defeat the purpose of the statute [Johnson v. Unocal Corp. (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 310, 316-317, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 148] . Similarly, the Ninth Circuit rejected a plaintiff's claim that by attending the picnic at which he was injured, he was conferring the benefit of improved labor relations on his former employer and that this benefit was adequate consideration to defeat immunity [Mansion v. United States (9th Cir. 1991) 945 F.2d 1115, 1118-1119] .

[5] Persons Expressly Invited to Enter Premises

Under Civ. Code § 846, a landowner is not immune from liability that otherwise exists if the landowner expressly invited, rather than merely permitted, the injured person to come on the premises [Civ. Code § 846]. This statutory exception applies even if the person is not invited expressly for the purpose of engaging in the recreational activity [

Calhoon v. Lewis (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 108, 114, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 394] .

In one case interpreting this exception, the injured person was the employee of a company that held a company picnic on grounds belonging to an unrelated corporation. Employees did not need a formal invitation, but could attend the picnic by purchasing a ticket. The corporation that owned the picnic grounds permitted groups to use the property without consideration, but required each group to execute an agreement containing various rules and restrictions regarding the use of the grounds. The court of appeal rejected the injured employee's claim that execution of the agreement made him an express invitee, holding instead that execution of the agreement was not a direct, personal request from the corporation to the employee to attend the picnic [Johnson v. Unocal Corp. (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 310, 313-314, 317, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 148 ; see also Ravell v. United States (9th Cir. 1994) 22 F.3d 960, 963 (following Johnson)].

Because an easement holder cannot "expressly invite" persons onto the premises, the "landowner" that may extend an express invitation onto the premises under the statute refers only to the owner of the fee [Jackson v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 1110, 1118, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 831] . However, an express invitation from the fee owner, although extinguishing the recreational use immunity of the fee owner, does not extinguish the immunity of other owners of estates in the land. Therefore, for example, the recreational use immunity of an electric utility company that possessed an easement for power lines was not extinguished by an express invitation onto the land extended by the owner of the real property [Jackson v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 1110, 1116-1119, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 831] .

[6] Navigable Waters

Immunity under Civ. Code § 846 may be qualified by the public trust doctrine in actions in which the defendant's property borders on navigable waters. The public trust doctrine refers to the public's constitutionally protected right to the free and unimpeded use of navigable waterways [Cal. Const. art. X, § 4; for further discussion of the public trust doctrine, see Ch. 575, Waters, § 565.10 et seq.]. Civ. Code § 846 does not confer immunity from negligence liability on contiguous or subjacent owners of real property fronting or underlying navigable waters if persons are injured while using the public waterways. If a person is injured while using a navigable waterway as a consequence of an affirmative act, tending to obstruct or impede the public's use of those waters, by a private owner of land underlying or adjacent to the navigable waters, the landowner is not entitled to the protection of Civ. Code § 846 to the extent that the injured person did not trespass on the landowner's real property in pursuit of his or her recreational purposes [Charpentier v. Von Geldern (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 101, 108-110, 236 Cal. Rptr. 233] . On the other hand, a landowner has no duty to inspect or warn of natural hazards in navigable waters subject to recreational use abutting the landowner's property, or to make that water safe for recreational uses by trespassers or by those on the water by means other than access over the abutting land [Charpentier v. Von Geldern (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 101, 111, 236 Cal. Rptr. 233] .

[7] Property Not Suitable for Recreational Purpose

Prior to the Supreme Court's decision in Ornelas v. Randolph [Ornelas v. Randolph (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 1095, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 594, 847 P.2d 560] , several court of appeal decisions had held that immunity under Civ. Code § 846 required that the property in question must have been "suitable" for a recreational pursuit [see, e.g., Myers v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 752, 759, 274 Cal. Rptr. 122 ; Wineinger v. Bear Brand Ranch (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1003, 1008-1010, 251 Cal. Rptr. 681] . In other words, if a person entered land to engage in one of the enumerated recreational activities, but the court determined that the land was inappropriate for that use, the statute would not have applied, and the landowner would have been liable if the person was injured [Ornelas v. Randolph (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 1095, 1103, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 594, 847 P.2d 560] . The suitability requirement was in addition to the statutory requirements of interest in land and recreational purpose [see Civ. Code § 846]. In Ornelas, the Supreme Court disapproved of the suitability exception on the grounds that the concept was a "purely judicial construct, without any basis or support in the statutory language," was elusive and unpredictable, and had resulted in the anomaly that landowners who made the most effort to safeguard their property were the least likely to benefit from the statute [Ornelas v. Randolph (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 1095, 1107, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 594, 847 P.2d 560 ; see also Ravell v. United States (9th Cir. 1994) 22 F.3d 960, 963 (noting breadth of immunity set forth in Ornelas and declining to find exception beyond express language of Civ. Code § 846)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Liability to Recreational Users

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 421.24-421.29

[Reserved]

§§ 421.24[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Liability for Acts of Independent Contractor

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.30

§ 421.30 Governing Law

The liability for injuries caused by the negligence of an independent contractor or his or her employees is governed by the principles set forth in two California Supreme Court decisions [Privette v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 689, 696, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 72, 854 P.2d 721 ; Van Arsdale v. Hollinger (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 245, 252, 66 Cal. Rptr. 20, 437 P.2d 508] .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Liability for Acts of Independent Contractor

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.31

§ 421.31 Employer's Liability for Acts of General Contractor

The general rule is that one who employs an independent contractor is not liable for injuries caused by negligence of the independent contractor or his or her employees. This general rule, however, has been so riddled with exceptions that it has been termed a mere preamble to the exceptions [Van Arsdale v. Hollinger (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 245, 252, 66 Cal. Rptr. 20, 437 P.2d 508] . The two principal exceptions to the rule that arise in the area of premises liability involve (1) work that creates a peculiar risk of harm to others and (2) a contractor that was engaged to perform a possessor's nondelegable duty to maintain the premises in safe condition.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Liability for Acts of Independent Contractor

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.32

§ 421.32 Peculiar Risk

[1] Scope of Employer's Liability

An employer who employs an independent contractor to do work that the employer should recognize as likely to create a peculiar risk of harm to others unless special precautions are taken is subject to liability for physical harm caused by the contractor's failure to exercise reasonable care in taking precautions [Aceves v. Regal Pale Brewing Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 502, 508-509, 156 Cal. Rptr. 41, 595 P.2d 619] . A peculiar risk is a risk that is peculiar to the work to be done and arises out of its character or the place where it is to be done, and is one that a reasonable person would recognize as requiring the taking of precautions [Griesel v. Dart Indus. (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 578, 586, 153 Cal. Rptr. 213, 591 P.2d 503] . For example, although the risk in a demolition project that someone may be hurt by falling buildings is a peculiar risk that a landowner should take precautions against, a risk that a fellow employee will remove a window washer's means of attachment is collateral negligence and not a peculiar risk [compare Aceves v. Regal Pale Brewing Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 502, 510, 156 Cal. Rptr. 41, 595 P.2d 619 (demolition project); with Salinero v. Pon (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 120, 137, 177 Cal. Rptr. 204 (window washer); see § 421.34].

[2] Employee of Independent Contractor Cannot Recover From Hirer

California was one of a minority of jurisdictions that expanded the traditional peculiar risk doctrine to permit an employee of an independent contractor to seek recovery from the nonnegligent hirer for injuries caused by the contractor's negligence [Privette v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 689, 696, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 72, 854 P.2d 721 ; see also Woolen v. Aerojet Gen. Corp. (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 407, 410-411, 20 Cal. Rptr. 12, 369 P.2d 708 (case cited in Privette as initially expanding doctrine)]. However, in Privette v. Superior Court, the California Supreme Court reexamined this extension of the doctrine, in light of the policies advanced by the workers' compensation laws, and concluded that those policies supported precluding employees of negligent independent contractors from recovering damages from the hirer under the peculiar risk doctrine [Privette v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 689, 701-702, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 72, 854 P.2d 721] . The courts have applied Privette retroactively [see, e.g., Smith v. ACandS, Inc. (1994) 31 Cal. App. 4th 77, 94-95, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 457] .

The court of appeal has held that Privette bars peculiar risk claims by employees of any contractor working on the premises, not only claims by employees of the negligent contractor whose acts injured an employee [Smith v. ACandS, Inc. (1994) 31 Cal. App. 4th 77, 95-96, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 457] .

Privette and its progeny are discussed in greater detail in Ch. 248, Employer's Liability for Employee's Torts.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Liability for Acts of Independent Contractor

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.33

§ 421.33 Nondelegable Duty to Maintain Premises in Safe Condition

The duty of an owner or possessor of premises to maintain the premises in reasonably safe condition is nondelegable and if an independent contractor is employed to perform that duty, the possessor is liable for harm caused by the contractor's negligent failure to do so [Brown v. George Pepperdine Found. (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 256, 260, 143 P.2d 929 ; Lilienthal v. Hastings Clothing Co. (1955) 131 Cal. App. 2d 343, 347, 280 P.2d 824] .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Liability for Acts of Independent Contractor

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.34

§ 421.34 Collateral Negligence

The liability of an owner or possessor of premises for the negligence of an independent contractor or his or her employee does not extend to collateral negligence. Collateral negligence is negligence in the operative detail of the work that is unusual or foreign to the normal contemplated risks of doing the work [Salinero v. Pon (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 120, 137-138, 177 Cal. Rptr. 204 (removing window washer's means of attachment); Smith v. Lucky Stores, Inc. (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 826, 830, 132 Cal. Rptr. 628 (releasing grasp on sign leaning against truck after it had been removed from building)]. For further discussion relating to an employer's liability for acts of an independent contractor, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Liability for Acts of Independent Contractor

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 421.35-421.39

[Reserved]

§§ 421.35[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Liability for Damage Caused by Water

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.40

§ 421.40 Definitions

"Surface waters" are those waters diffused over the surface of land, or contained in depressions in that surface, that are the result of rain, snow, or the surface risings of springs. Surface waters are distinguishable from water flowing in a fixed channel, constituting a watercourse, or water collected in an identifiable body, such as a river or lake [Keys v. Romley (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 396, 400, 50 Cal. Rptr. 273, 412 P.2d 529] . When surface waters gather together in a flowing channel, they lose their character as surface waters and become stream waters or waters in a watercourse [Mogle v. Moore (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 1, 8-9, 104 P.2d 785 , opinion qualified, Everett v. Davis (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 389, 394-395, 115 P.2d 821] .

A "watercourse" is a stream usually flowing in a particular direction, although it need not flow continually and may sometimes be dry. It must flow in a definite channel, having a bed, sides, or banks, and usually discharges itself into some other stream or body of water [Van Zyl v. Spiegelberg (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 367, 374, 82 Cal. Rptr. 689] .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Liability for Damage Caused by Water

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.41

§ 421.41 General Rights and Duties Concerning Waters

Every landowner has a burden to receive on his or her land those surface waters that fall naturally on the land above it and flow naturally to it. This burden carries with it a corresponding right to have surface waters that naturally fall on or flow to the land flow freely onto lower adjoining land, as they would flow under natural conditions. The landowner may be able to recover damages for interference with natural conditions and the discharge of surface waters in greater quantity or in a different manner than would occur under natural conditions [LeBrun v. Richards (1930) 210 Cal. 308, 313-314, 291 P. 825] .

A landowner has no right to obstruct the flow of waters, falling on the land by precipitation or rising on the land in springs, onto his or her land. Nor may a landowner obstruct or divert the flow of a natural watercourse [Mogle v. Moore (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 1, 10, 104 P.2d 785 , qualified on another ground, Everett v. Davis (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 389, 394-395, 115 P.2d 821] .

Additionally, a landowner has no right to disperse waters that have naturally accumulated in ponds or depressions on his or her land onto the land of a lower landowner [Galbreath v. Hopkins (1911) 159 Cal. 297, 301-302, 113 P. 174] .

For forms of allegations based on negligent impoundment, diversion, discharge, and obstruction of waters, see §§ 421.111 -421.115. For discussion and forms relating to irrigation waters, see Ch. 315, Irrigation .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Liability for Damage Caused by Water

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.42

§ 421.42 Flood Waters

Flood waters are a common enemy, and they may be guarded against or warded off by one whose property is invaded or threatened, even to the detriment of a neighbor, by obstructions that are merely defensive in nature and are not calculated to interfere with the current of the water in its natural channel [Everett v. Davis (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 389, 393, 115 P.2d 821 ; Weinberg Co. v. Bixby (1921) 185 Cal. 87, 95, 196 P. 25 ; Costello v. Bowen (1947) 80 Cal. App. 2d 621, 630, 182 P.2d 615] . However, the common enemy doctrine does not apply to public entities. A public entity that undertakes construction or operation of a flood control project is liable for unreasonable conduct. Therefore, if the public entity's design, construction, or maintenance of a flood control project posed an unreasonable risk of harm to the plaintiffs, and that unreasonable design, construction, or maintenance was a substantial cause of the damages suffered by the plaintiffs, the plaintiffs may recover even though the project's purpose was to contain the common enemy of floodwaters [Belair v. Riverside County Flood Control Dist. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 550, 559-560, 253 Cal. Rptr. 693, 764 P.2d 1070] .

In determining the reasonableness of a public flood control project, courts must balance public need against the gravity of private harm. In balancing these interests, courts must weigh the following factors [Bunch v. Coachella Valley Water Dist. (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 432, 446, 451, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 89, 935 P.2d 796 (applying reasonableness rule developed in context of flood control improvements along natural watercourses to cases in which public entity diverts and re-channels water under flood control system of dikes and levees that fail in severe rainstorm, causing damage to properties historically subject to flooding); see also Locklin v. City of Lafayette (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 327, 368-369, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 613, 867 P.2d 724 ; § 421.44[1]]:

- The overall public purpose being served by the improvement project;
- The degree to which the plaintiff's loss is offset by reciprocal benefits;
- The availability to the public entity of feasible alternatives with lower risks;
- The severity of the plaintiff's damage in relation to risk-bearing capabilities;

- The extent to which damage of the kind the plaintiff sustained is generally considered a normal risk of land ownership; and

- The degree to which similar damage is distributed at large over other beneficiaries of the project or is peculiar only to the plaintiff.

Flood waters are waters that, because of their height, escape from a stream or other body of water and overflow the adjacent territory. Implicit in the definition of flood waters is the element of abnormality: they are flood waters because of their escape from the usual channels under conditions that do not ordinarily occur [Everett v. Davis (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 389, 393, 115 P.2d 821 ; LeBrun v. Richards (1930) 210 Cal. 308, 318, 291 P. 825] .

For a form of affirmative defense to an action for damage to property caused by water, based on protection from flood waters, see § 421.120. For discussion regarding the overflow of reservoirs due to flooding, see § 421.45[2].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Liability for Damage Caused by Water

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.43

§ 421.43 Surface Waters

[1] Duty of Reasonable Care

Every person must take reasonable care in using his or her property to avoid injury to adjacent property through the flow of surface waters, and a failure to do so may result in liability. Any person threatened with injury to his or her property by the flow of surface waters has the duty to take reasonable precautions to avoid or reduce any actual or potential injury. If the actions of both the upper and lower landowners are reasonable and necessary, then any injury resulting from a change in the natural drainage of surface waters must be borne by the upper landowner [Keys v. Romley (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 396, 408-409, 50 Cal. Rptr. 273, 412 P.2d 529 ; Sheffet v. County of Los Angeles (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 720, 728, 84 Cal. Rptr. 11 (summarizing Keys into three rules: (1) if upper owner is reasonable and lower owner is unreasonable, upper owner wins; (2) if upper owner is unreasonable and lower owner is reasonable, lower owner wins; (3) if both upper and lower owners are reasonable, lower owner wins); see also Gdowski v. Louie (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 1395, 1402-1405, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 609 (reaffirming continued vitality of Keys rules)].

Reasonableness of conduct is not related solely to the particular landowner's interest, however legitimate. Instead, it must be weighed against the effect of that conduct on others. The issue of reasonableness is a question of fact to be determined in each case by a consideration of all the relevant circumstances, including the amount of harm caused, the foreseeability of the resulting harm, the possessor's purpose or motive, and a comparative weighing of the utility of the diversion against the gravity of the harm caused by it [Keys v. Romley (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 396, 409-410, 50 Cal. Rptr. 273, 412 P.2d 529 ; Marment v. Castlewood Country Club (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 483, 485, 105 Cal. Rptr. 853] .

[2] Upper Landowner's Easement

An upper landowner has a natural easement or servitude permitting that landowner to discharge surface waters through the drainage mechanism of a natural swale, hollow, or depression. That easement right is limited to disposition of the water through natural channels and does not allow an increase in the volume or velocity by collecting the water in pipes or artificial ditches [LeBrun v. Richards (1930) 210 Cal. 308, 315-316, 291 P. 825] . If the upper landowner uses artificial devices to discharge surface waters to the damage of the lower landowner, the upper landowner may be liable if those actions are unreasonable [Sheffet v. County of Los Angeles (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 720, 730, 84 Cal. Rptr. 11] .

[3] Lower Landowner's Duty

All that is required of a lower landowner in protecting his or her property from the flow of surface waters is to act reasonably. The issue of reasonableness is a question of fact and is determined by a consideration of all the same factors that determine reasonableness generally [Sheffet v. County of Los Angeles (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 720, 728-730, 84 Cal. Rptr. 11 ; see § 421.43[1]].

Reasonable conduct may or may not require affirmative action by the lower landowner, depending on all the circumstances. The social utility of the upper landowner's conduct must be weighed against the burden that the conduct would impose on the lower landowner. Usually, the lower landowner's unreasonable conduct will consist not of failure to take affirmative steps to protect the property, but of affirmative conduct increasing the danger to that property, thereby permitting the land to be flooded [Sheffet v. County of Los Angeles (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 720, 730, 84 Cal. Rptr. 11 ; see also Keys v. Romley (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 396, 410, 50 Cal. Rptr. 273, 412 P.2d 529 (lower landowner's act of removing dirt wall, permitting land to be flooded, was weighed against upper landowners' acts in changing contours of their property)].

A landowner may make any lawful use of his or her land, and it is not contributory negligence to neglect to take precautions to avoid future injury that can only occur as the result of another's negligence. A landowner is not obliged to anticipate the negligent flooding of his or her land by another [Western Salt Co. v. City of Newport Beach (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 397, 401, 76 Cal. Rptr. 322 ; Goodwin v. Braden (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 34, 38-39, 285 P.2d 330] . However, although a lower landowner's failure to take affirmative action to protect his or her property does not necessarily preclude recovery of damages against the upper landowner, that lack of action may be relevant in the computation of those damages [Sheffet v. County of Los Angeles (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 720, 731 n.8, 84 Cal. Rptr. 11] .

Although a landowner is not obliged to anticipate negligent flooding, many of the cases dealing with water discharge involve recurrent invasions resulting from continuing conduct. The first invasion may be unexpected, but the others are not, and in determining liability, a court must consider the burden on the landowner of avoiding the harm in subsequent invasions [Western Salt Co. v. City of Newport Beach (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 397, 403-404, 76 Cal. Rptr. 322] .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Liability for Damage Caused by Water

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.44

§ 421.44 Waters in Watercourse

[1] Discharge of Surface Waters

A property owner may be liable if alterations or improvements on upstream property discharge an increased volume of surface water into a natural watercourse, and the increased volume or velocity of the stream waters or the method of discharge into the watercourse causes downstream property damage [Locklin v. City of Lafayette (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 327, 337, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 613, 867 P.2d 724 , overruling Archer v. City of Los Angeles (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 19, 119 P.2d 1] . The test of liability is whether, under all the circumstances, the property owner's conduct was reasonable. The rule of reasonableness applies to both private and public landowners and also requires reasonable conduct on the part of the downstream landowners [Locklin v. City of Lafayette (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 327, 337, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 613, 867 P.2d 724] . Therefore, if the upstream landowner acts reasonably, or the lower landowner has not acted reasonably to protect his or her property, the downstream landowner must continue to accept the burden of damage caused by the stream water [Locklin v. City of Lafayette (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 327, 360, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 613, 867 P.2d 724] . The reasonableness test also applies if damage to downstream property results from improvements or alterations to the stream bed [Locklin v. City of Lafayette (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 327, 360, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 613, 867 P.2d 724] . However, an upstream landowner is not liable for any damage caused by the stream flow beyond the proportion attributable to that landowner's conduct [Locklin v. City of Lafayette (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 327, 360, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 613, 867 P.2d 724] .

[2] Obstructing or Diverting Flow

A person obstructing or diverting the flow of a natural watercourse is under a continuing duty to provide proper facilities for handling the waters of the stream so as to prevent damage to the property of others. The obstructor is under a duty not to interrupt the natural habits of the stream so as to cause an overflow beyond the overflow that would have occurred in the absence of the obstruction [Van Zyl v. Spiegelberg (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 367, 374, 82 Cal. Rptr. 689] . Even if a landowner was not liable for damage to a neighbor's land caused by an embankment built on his or her land, due to the unforeseeability of the flood that caused the damage, that landowner might be liable in the future unless that landowner takes reasonable corrective steps to prevent the damage due to flooding that the landowner now knows about [Williams v. Pacific Coast Aggregates, Inc. (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 777, 783-784, 276 P.2d 28] .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Liability for Damage Caused by Water

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.45

§ 421.45 Escape of Impounded Waters

[1] Theory of Liability

The law is unclear as to whether the doctrine of strict liability applies to water escaping from reservoirs or irrigation ditches. In an early case involving the overflow of a reservoir due to a flood, the California Supreme Court limited the rule of strict liability to cases in which the very manner of the construction, maintenance, or use of a structure constitutes or works an invasion of a neighbor's property and rights and is a nuisance per se. Otherwise, the owner of the reservoir is not liable [Sutliff v. Sweetwater Water Co. (1920) 182 Cal. 34, 36-39, 186 P. 766 (proximate cause of damage was flooding beyond human control)]. In a later case, the Court intimated that the issue was still open, but did not find it necessary to determine whether strict liability was applicable to escaping waters because the flooding in that case was caused by the plaintiff's own acts [Rozewski v. Simpson (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 515, 520-521, 71 P.2d 72 (jury instructions on both negligence and strict liability were fair)].

No Supreme Court case since Rozewski has decided the specific liability for escaping waters. One appellate court, citing Sutliff, said that the doctrine of strict liability for escaping waters controls, with the modification that an act of God, such as extraordinary breaking of ditches and reservoirs resulting from floods and earthquakes, may be interposed as a defense. It found a tendency among the courts to give effect to this rule by finding negligence in some form and basing the decision on that finding [Kall v. Carruthers (1922) 59 Cal. App. 555, 558, 211 P. 43] .

However, a subsequent court of appeal decision reached a different result, noting that strict liability has been applied only in cases involving an ultrahazardous activity. Certain activities, including irrigation of farm land, may be so generally carried on as to be regarded as customary, and do not constitute an ultrahazardous undertaking or carry with them the risk of absolute liability [Clark v. Di Prima (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 823, 827-829, 51 Cal. Rptr. 49] . The court confined its finding to liability arising from the usual and ordinary transportation of irrigation water by ditch or canal and the normal and customary application of irrigation water to the land for usual irrigation procedures, specifically declining to decide whether strict liability applies to impounding waters, whether by damming the flow of a natural stream or by collecting water in a reservoir [Clark v. Di Prima (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 823, 827-829, 51 Cal. Rptr. 49] . An earlier court of appeal decision had reached the same conclusion and applied it to reservoirs [see Smith

v. East Bay Mun. Util. Dist. (1954) 122 Cal. App. 2d 613, 618-619, 265 P.2d 610 (plaintiff entitled to recover based on defendant's negligence in operating dam, thereby allowing excessive amounts of water to flood plaintiff's property)]. For discussion of strict liability for ultrahazardous activities, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

[2] Reservoirs

The owner of a reservoir may permit flood waters to flow over a reservoir in those quantities that naturally flow into the reservoir. The owner is under a duty not to worsen the condition of a downstream landowner, but is under no duty to improve that owner's situation by using the dam for flood control. Unless the reservoir owner imports water from outside the watershed that causes or substantially contributes to flooding, the owner is not liable if the flow has not been augmented beyond the flow that would have occurred in the absence of the reservoir [Kambish v. Santa Clara Valley Water Conservation Dist. (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 107, 110, 8 Cal. Rptr. 215 ; Smith v. East Bay Mun. Util. Dist. (1954) 122 Cal. App. 2d 613, 619-620, 265 P.2d 610] .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Liability for Damage Caused by Water

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.46

§ 421.46 Diversion Through Artificial Channel

[1] Need Not Be Greater Than Natural Channel

Often an artificial channel will be constructed to replace a natural channel, quite frequently for flood control purposes. If at the time of its construction the artificial channel is adequate to care for all reasonably anticipated storm or flood waters under the then-existing landscape conditions, it is adequate. There is no obligation to construct an artificial channel so large and so efficient that it will carry excess storm and flood waters that may flow into it because of subsequent artificial conditions, such as the building of cities and highways, that prevent absorption by the lands of waters and so artificially increase their flow. Through the lapse of time an artificial watercourse may come to be regarded as a natural one [Weck v. Los Angeles County Flood Control Dist. (1951) 104 Cal. App. 2d 599, 609-611, 232 P.2d 293 (artificial channel in existence for 36 years no longer seen as diversion)].

[2] Reliance on Long-Continued Diversion

A new natural condition may be established because of a long-continued diversion of water [see Smith v. East Bay Mun. Util. Dist. (1954) 122 Cal. App. 2d 613, 621, 265 P.2d 610] . An owner who invests substantial expenditures in reliance on that condition has the right to have the diversion continued if that investment would otherwise be destroyed [Natural Soda Prod. Co. v. City of Los Angeles (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 193, 197, 143 P.2d 12 ; Kambish v. Santa Clara Valley Water Conservation Dist. (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 107, 111, 8 Cal. Rptr. 215] .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Liability for Damage Caused by Water

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.47

§ 421.47 Liability in Tort

Liability for interfering with surface waters is tort liability. An unjustified invasion of a possessor's interest in the use and enjoyment of his or her land through the medium of surface waters, or through any other type of waters, is as much a tort as a trespass or a private nuisance produced by smoke or smells [Keys v. Romley (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 396, 407-408, 50 Cal. Rptr. 273, 412 P.2d 529] . An act of obstruction or diversion of water is a nuisance under Civ. Code § 3479 [Helix Land Co. v. City of San Diego (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 932, 949-951, 147 Cal. Rptr. 683] . No essential legal difference is usually recognized between cases involving surface overflow and cases involving direct percolation or seepage [see Kall v. Carruthers (1922) 59 Cal. App. 555, 559, 211 P. 43] . For discussion of liability for impounded waters escaping, see § 421.45[1].

For a general form of complaint for damages for injury of property off premises based on a negligent condition on premises, see § 421.110. For forms of allegations based on negligent impoundment, diversion, discharge, and obstruction of waters, see §§ 421.111 -421.115. For a form of complaint for damages and injunctive relief to abate a private nuisance based on the diversion of naturally accumulated waters, see Ch. 391, Nuisance , Form 8.1.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Liability for Damage Caused by Water

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.48

§ 421.48 Determining Damages

There is no fixed, inflexible rule for determining the measure of damages for injury to or destruction of property, and whatever formula is most appropriate in the particular case will be adopted. Generally, however, in a case involving property damages resulting from negligence, if the cost of repairing the injury and restoring the premises to their original condition amounts to less than the diminution in value of the property, that cost is the proper measure of damages. If the cost of restoration will exceed the diminution in value, then the diminution in value of the property is the proper measure [Mozzetti v. City of Brisbane (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 565, 576, 136 Cal. Rptr. 751] .

If the intrusion of water is the result of a trespass or a nuisance, and the facts show oppression, fraud, or malice, punitive damages are available [Civ. Code § 3294]. For example, punitive damages were appropriate in a case in which an individual maliciously placed hoses and drained stagnant, mosquito-infested swimming pool water onto the land of another [Goshgarian v. George (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 1214, 1223-1226, 208 Cal. Rptr. 321 (trespass action)].

Damages may be apportioned between two or more defendants who acted independently in creating or maintaining a tortious invasion of a landowner's interest in the use and enjoyment of land by interfering with flowing water [see Griffith v. Kerrigan (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 637, 639-641, 241 P.2d 296] .

For discussion and forms relating to damages in tort actions generally, see Ch. 177, Damages .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Liability for Damage Caused by Water

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.49

§ 421.49 Duty to Minimize Damages

The person who can minimize damages and fails to do so cannot recover for the excess damages that occur. The costs of reasonable acts to minimize damages may be recovered. Although failure to take affirmative action to protect property does not preclude relief, that inaction may be relevant in computing the damages [Sheffet v. County of Los Angeles (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 720, 730-731, 731 n.8, 84 Cal. Rptr. 11] . The duty to minimize damages does not extend to a duty to anticipate damages [Lourence v. West Side Irrigation Dist. (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 532, 539-540, 43 Cal. Rptr. 889] .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Liability for Damage Caused by Water

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.50

§ 421.50 Injunctive Relief

One who wrongfully causes water to flow onto another's land that would not flow there naturally creates a nuisance per se. It is an injury that cannot be continued, whether the damage is great or small. The act is wrongful per se in its inception and is actionable without any special damages. A preliminary injunction restraining the flow or interference with the natural flow of water pending the litigation is appropriate [Allen v. Stowell (1905) 145 Cal. 666, 669, 79 P. 371 (mandatory injunction compelling removal of dam); Heil v. Sawada (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 633, 637-638, 10 Cal. Rptr. 61] . Injunctive relief is equally appropriate if the intruding water is in the form of seepage rather than overflow [see Fredericks v. Fredericks (1951) 108 Cal. App. 2d 242, 244, 238 P.2d 643] . However, anything short of a reasonable probability of injury is insufficient to warrant an injunction against any proposed use of property or water on that property by the property's owner [Galbreath v. Hopkins (1911) 159 Cal. 297, 303-304, 113 P. 174] . Moreover, the danger must be probable and imminent, and therefore a risk of future flooding does not warrant injunctive relief [Helix Land Co. v. City of San Diego (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 932, 949-951, 147 Cal. Rptr. 683] . However, a single act of flooding may constitute a nuisance for which damages may be recovered [Granone v. County of Los Angeles (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 629, 650-651, 42 Cal. Rptr. 34 (flooding destroyed crops)].

For a form of complaint for injunctive relief to abate a private nuisance based on the diversion of naturally accumulated waters, see Ch. 391, Nuisance , Form 8.1.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Liability for Damage Caused by Water

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.51

§ 421.51 Statute of Limitations

An action for trespass or injury to real property must be brought within three years [Code Civ. Proc. § 338(b)]. That period of limitations runs from the date the cause of action accrues, which is the date of the injury, not the date on which the act of diversion was committed [Polin v. Chung Cho (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 673, 676-677, 87 Cal. Rptr. 591 (action for damages for diversion of water)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Liability for Damage Caused by Water

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.52

§ 421.52 Inverse Condemnation

Inverse condemnation may result from invasions of water or other liquid effluents caused by a public entity [Varjabedian v. City of Madera (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 285, 297, 142 Cal. Rptr. 429, 572 P.2d 43] . A public entity may be liable if alterations or improvements to upstream public property discharge an increased volume of surface water into a natural watercourse, and the increased volume or velocity of the stream waters or the method of discharge into the watercourse causes downstream property damage [Locklin v. City of Lafayette (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 327, 337, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 613, 867 P.2d 724 , overruling Archer v. City of Los Angeles (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 19, 119 P.2d 1] . However, the public agency is liable only if its conduct posed an unreasonable risk of harm and that conduct was a substantial cause of the damage to the downstream property [Locklin v. City of Lafayette (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 327, 367, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 613, 867 P.2d 724] . A public entity may also be liable in inverse condemnation for damage caused by public improvements constructed in or on a watercourse for the purpose of improving surface water drainage, if its conduct posed an unreasonable risk of harm and was a substantial cause of the damage [Locklin v. City of Lafayette (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 327, 366-367, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 613, 867 P.2d 724] . Action in inverse condemnation is available only if the taking results in property damage, destruction, or other depreciation in market value, or if it unlawfully dispossesses the owner. "Taking" requires an act, and the risk of future flooding is not an act [Olson v. County of Shasta (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 336, 341, 85 Cal. Rptr. 77 ; for discussion and forms relating to inverse condemnation, see Ch. 247, Eminent Domain, § 247.190 et seq.].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Liability for Damage Caused by Water

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.53

§ 421.53 Easement to Discharge Water

The privilege of discharging imported water into a natural channel may ripen into an easement, but only if there is an interference with the rights of another, as might be indicated by substantial damage to the lower landowner [see Phillips v. Burke (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 700, 704, 284 P.2d 809] . To obtain an easement by prescription there must be a hostile and actual infringement of the owner's rights for a period of time each year, for the statutory period of five years, and the infringement must have been known or reasonably inferred by the owner [Nelson v. Robinson (1941) 47 Cal. App. 2d 520, 526-528, 118 P.2d 350 ; for discussion and forms relating to prescriptive easements, see Ch. 13, Adverse Possession].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Liability for Damage Caused by Water

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 421.54-421.59

[Reserved]

§§ 421.54[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.60

§ 421.60 Related LexisNexis/Matthew Bender Publications

- For memoranda of points and authorities relating to negligence actions generally, see California Points and Authorities, Negligence (Matthew Bender)

- For memoranda of points and authorities relating to premises liability, see California Points and Authorities, Premises Liability (Matthew Bender)

- For forms of interrogatories relating to actions involving spectator injuries at sporting events, see Bender's Forms of Discovery, Athletics, Games, and Sports (Matthew Bender)

- For forms of interrogatories relating to actions involving plaster falling from ceiling, see Bender's Forms of Discovery, Ceilings (Matthew Bender)

- For forms of interrogatories relating to control and custody of premises, see Bender's Forms of Discovery, Control and Custody (Matthew Bender)

- For forms of interrogatories relating to actions involving the defective condition of elevators or escalators, see Bender's Forms of Discovery, Elevators and Escalators (Matthew Bender)

- For forms of interrogatories relating to actions involving falls in an excavation, see Bender's Forms of Discovery, Excavations (Matthew Bender)

- For forms of interrogatories relating to actions involving falls in an unlighted hallway, see Bender's Forms of Discovery, Hallways and Passageways (Matthew Bender)

- For forms of interrogatories relating to actions between innkeepers and guests for dangerous conditions and inadequate security, see Bender's Forms of Discovery, Hotels and Motels (Matthew Bender)

- For forms of interrogatories to determine independent contractor status, see Bender's Forms of Discovery, Independent Contractors (Matthew Bender)

- For forms of interrogatories to determine the status of plaintiff as an invitee, trespasser, or licensee, see Bender's Forms of Discovery, Negligence (Matthew Bender)

- For forms of interrogatories relating to the ownership of real property, see Bender's Forms of Discovery, Owners and Ownership (Matthew Bender)

- For forms of interrogatories relating to actions involving recreational areas, see Bender's Forms of Discovery, Parks, Playgrounds and Other Recreational Areas (Matthew Bender)

- For forms of interrogatories relating to actions involving personal injuries, see Bender's Forms of Discovery, Personal Injuries (Matthew Bender)

- For forms of interrogatories to establish the existence of prior accidents and conditions, see Bender's Forms of Discovery, Prior Accidents and Conditions (Matthew Bender)

- For forms of interrogatories relating to repairs made subsequent to an accident, see Bender's Forms of Discovery, Repairs Subsequently Made (Matthew Bender)

- For forms of interrogatories relating to actions involving a defective roof, see Bender's Forms of Discovery, Roofs (Matthew Bender)

- For forms of interrogatories relating to actions involving a fall on premises, see Bender's Forms of Discovery, Slip and Fall (Matthew Bender)

- For a discussion of premises liability, see California Real Estate Law and Practice, Ch. 381, Tort Liability of Property Owners (Matthew Bender)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.61

§ 421.61 State Statutes

[1] General Principles of Liability

[a] Crimes

Owner of property is not liable for injury or death proximately caused by conduct in furtherance of commission of felony. Civ. Code § 847

Failure to cover, fill, or fence abandoned excavation is misdemeanor. Health & Safety Code § 115700

[b] Liability to Gleaner

Owner of property is not liable for injuries to persons invited onto premises to glean agricultural or farm products. Civ. Code § 846.2

[c] Liability to Public Employee

Liability to peace officers, firefighters, and emergency medical personnel employed by a public entity. Civ. Code § 1714.9

Owner of property is not liable if employee of Fish and Game Department is injured during work on behalf of endangered or threatened species. Fish & Game Code § 2056

[d] Negligence

Liability for negligence. Civ. Code § 1714(a)

Operator of automated teller machine is required to provide lighting during hours of darkness. Fin. Code §§ 13040, 13041

[2] Liability to Recreational Users

Liability to recreational users. Civ. Code § 846

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.62

§ 421.62 Decisions

[1] Adjacent Property Owner or Possessor

Liability for injury suffered on adjoining property may be based on control of that property, even absent control of instrumentality of danger; control does not depend on defendant obtaining commercial benefit from adjoining property. Alcaraz v. Vece (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 1149, 1156, 1162-1166, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 448, 929 P.2d 1239 (disapproving any language requiring commercial benefit in Princess Hotels Int'l, Inc. v. Superior Court (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 645, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 457 , and Swann v. Olivier (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1324, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 23)

Homeowners' association is not liable to partygoer injured in ocean surf off private beach owned by association; idea of anyone's controlling seas and tides characterized as "ludicrous." Swann v. Olivier (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1324, 1333, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 23

Farm owners are not liable for injuries suffered by farm workers in fire in migrant workers' camp on adjoining property, because farm owners had no control over camp; patrol of camps by farm owners' security service was conducted at service employees' own behest and without authorization or request by farm owners. Lucas v. George T.R. Murai Farms, Inc. (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1578, 1590-1591, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436

Owner of store was liable for attack by loiterer on store patron in adjoining parking lot because store owner had control over adjacent property; circumstances indicating control included knowledge that patrons were using lot and that loiterers were present, receipt of economic benefit from use of lot due to shortage of parking on store's property, authorization in lease of nonexclusive right to use lot, passive encouragement of use of lot by patrons, and complaints by store employees to police requesting removal of loiterers. Southland Corp. v. Superior Court (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 656, 666-667, 250 Cal. Rptr. 57

Mere possibility of influencing or affecting conditions on property adjacent to landowner's premises was not sufficient control to make landowner liable for dangerous condition on adjacent property; law school was not liable to student attacked on public street for failure to install lighting or monitors to give better view of street and sidewalk. Donnell v. California W. School of Law (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 715, 720, 246 Cal. Rptr. 199

[2] Assumption of Risk

Question whether defendant owed legal duty to protect plaintiff from particular risk is not answered by reference to reasonableness of plaintiff's conduct, but by reference to nature of activity in which defendant is engaged and relationship of defendant and plaintiff to that activity. Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 309, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696

Secondary assumption of risk, which is applicable if defendant owes duty of care to plaintiff and is merged as defense into comparative fault scheme, is distinguished from primary assumption of risk, which is applicable if defendant owes no duty of care to plaintiff and bars plaintiff's recovery completely. Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 314-315, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696

Plaintiff's walking down wet concrete steps does not completely bar plaintiff's recovery if defendant breached duty of care to maintain public areas of its building in safe condition. Donohue v. San Francisco Hous. Auth. (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 658, 665-666

Plaintiff's using sloping lawn where plaintiff knew others had slipped and fallen does not completely bar plaintiff's recovery if defendant breached its duty of care to plaintiff to eliminate dangerous conditions on its property. Curties v. Hill Top Developers, Inc. (1993) 14 Cal. App 4th 1651, 1656, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 445

[3] Complaints

Although complaint must allege (1) defendant's legal duty, (2) defendant's breach of that duty, (3) injury to plaintiff as result of breach, and (4) damage to plaintiff, no strict requirements exist for form of allegations in premises liability action. Pultz v. Holgerson (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1110, 1116-1117, 229 Cal. Rptr. 531

[4] Conditions of Liability

Premises liability is based on ownership, possession, or control of property; landowner is not liable for defective or dangerous condition of property that landowner does not own, possess, or control; summary judgment is proper if absence of ownership, possession, or control has been unequivocally established. Isaacs v. Huntington Mem'l Hosp. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 112, 134, 211 Cal. Rptr. 356, 695 P.2d 653 ; Donnell v. California W. School of Law (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 715, 720, 725-726, 246 Cal. Rptr. 199

Third party's conduct is foreseeable only if it is sufficiently likely and not simply imaginable or conceivable; owner of convenience store was not liable to customer struck by curb-jumping automobile in absence of prior similar incidents. Jefferson v. Qwik Korner Mkt., Inc. (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 990, 995-996, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 171

Proprietor of place where intoxicating liquors are dispensed has duty to patrons to exercise reasonable care to protect them from injury from fellow patrons, whether drunk or sober; proprietor who breaches this duty is not immune from liability under Bus. & Prof. Code § 25602 for injuries sustained as proximate result of breach, because license to sell alcoholic beverages does not confer grant of immunity to innkeeper who permits premises to be used as arena for aggressive tortfeasors. Cantwell v. Peppermill, Inc. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1797, 1801-1803, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 246

Landowner is not liable merely because its property exists next to adjoining dangerous property and it took no action to influence or affect condition of adjoining property. Lucas v. George T.R. Murai Farms, Inc. (1993) 15 Cal.App. 4th 1578, 1590, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 436 ; Donnell v. California W. School of Law (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 715, 720, 246 Cal. Rptr. 199

[5] Conduct of Third Persons

Neither owner of commercial building nor parking services company owed legal duty of care to prevent sexual assault in building's underground parking garage by providing security guard, improved lighting and maintenance, operational surveillance cameras, or periodic walk-throughs by existing personnel; as matter of law, given absence of assaults in garage for extended period of years, occurrence of violent third-party sexual assault was not sufficiently foreseeable to impose duty of care under circumstances of case. Sharon P. v. Arman, Ltd. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1181, 1195-1196, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35, 989 P.2d 121

Shopping mall owner has no duty to hire security guards to prevent violent criminal acts against tenants and their employees if no prior similar incidents made violent crime highly foreseeable; burdensome measures not required to satisfy landowner's duty of care absent high degree of foreseeability, and prior similar incidents required to show high degree of foreseeability. Ann M. v. Pacific Plaza Shopping Ctr. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 666, 678-679, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 137, 863 P.2d 207 ("refining" abandonment of prior similar incidents rule in Isaacs v. Huntington Mem'l Hosp. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 112, 126-127, 211 Cal. Rptr. 356, 695 P.2d 653)

Warning to bowling alley patron about "goofball" in parking lot was inadequate to discharge duty to protect against third persons because warning did not enable invitee to avoid harm. Taylor v. Centennial Bowl, Inc. (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 114, 122-124, 52 Cal. Rptr. 561, 416 P.2d 793

When worker was assaulted in unlit, unfenced parking lot at trucking facility, few prior sightings of nonthreatening transients on or near property were insufficient to establish reasonable foreseeability of plaintiff's injury even when security measures advocated by plaintiff would not have been unduly burdensome. Ericson v. Federal Express Corp. (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1291, 1306-1307, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1

Injury to 10-year-old member of after-school club caused by rock thrown by unidentified non-member, characterized by court as criminal assault, was not reasonably foreseeable under Ann M. standards, and even assuming foreseeability of attack, lack of additional supervision could not be shown to have been cause of attack. Rinehart v. Boys & Girls Club of Chula Vista (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 419, 434-435, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 677

Plaintiff's landlord owed duty of care to plaintiff to take steps to protect her from assault by another tenant because plaintiff had warned building manager on multiple occasions that other tenant had physically or verbally assaulted and threatened plaintiff and her mother in landlord's apartment building. Madhani v. Cooper (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 412, 415-416, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 778

In absence of prior similar incidents, store was not liable for clerk's rescuing person being beaten outside store by bringing him inside store, even though one attacker then fired gun into store, striking plaintiff, who was store customer. Hassoon v. Shamieh (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 1191, 1195, 1199, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 658

Low lighting and overgrown bushes did not make open store parking lot inherently dangerous and, absent prior similar incidents, were insufficient cause to hold store liable for attempted assault. Nicole M. v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1238, 1248, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 922

Owners of condominium unit and condominium association had no duty to unit's tenant, who was raped in unit by intruder, to increase securityprecautions, because lack of criminal activity in or around building, other than one burglary, made rape unforeseeable. Pamela W. v. Millsom (1994), 25 Cal. App. 4th 950, 953, 959, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 690

Public entity owes no duty to post signs warning of criminal activity if only result of requiring warnings would be to keep people away from area. Turner v. State of California (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 883, 893-895, 284 Cal. Rptr. 349

Degree of foreseeability necessary to warrant finding of duty varies from case to case; if burden of preventing future harm is great, high degree of foreseeability may be required, but if there are strong policy reasons for preventing harm or harm can be prevented by simple means, lesser degree of foreseeability may be required. Thai v. Stang (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1264, 1271, 263 Cal. Rptr. 202

Generally, person has no duty to control another's conduct or to warn those who may be endangered by that conduct; although existence of special relationship between landowner and invitees may give rise to duty, relationship between law school and adult law students does not constitute special relationship. Donnell v. California W. School of Law (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 715, 719-720, 246 Cal. Rptr. 199

No special relationship existed between custodian of sapphire ring for sale and insurance company from whose premises ring was stolen by third party, who pretended to be buyer and took ring from custodian for purported purpose of having it photographed, so as to impose on insurance company affirmative duty to aid custodian in summoning help; therefore, insurance company's refusal to allow custodian to use company telephone to report theft was not negligence on its part. Stangle v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 971, 974-975, 244 Cal. Rptr. 103

Hotel proprietor has no duty to protect tenant from another tenant if proprietor has no advance warning of other tenant's dangerous propensities; noise complaints against tenant did not put hotel proprietor on notice that tenant would be dangerous. Gray v. Kircher (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1069, 1074-1075, 236 Cal. Rptr. 891

Fast food restaurant owner owes no duty of care to patron who was shot by restaurant robber after patron chased robber, if it was not reasonably foreseeable that patron would follow robber from restaurant's premises, patron was not shot on restaurant's premises, and minimal moral blame attached to restaurant worker's cry to patron to stop the robber. Forrand v. Foodmaker, Inc. (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 196, 200-202, 227 Cal. Rptr. 74

Proprietors of rest home, like those of private hospital, are under duty to exercise reasonable care to avoid injury to residents; in action by rest home resident who was injured by fellow resident who had previously demonstrated violent behavior, principles of ordinary negligence applied to defendants. Mast v. Magpusao (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 775, 778-780, 225 Cal. Rptr. 689

Convenience store owed no duty to protect patron from injury by gang attack in store if store owners could not reasonably foresee or anticipate attack and possibility of injury resulting from the attack. Gregorian v. Nat'l Convenience Stores, Inc. (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 944, 949, 220 Cal. Rptr. 302 (distinguishing Cohen v. Southland Corp. (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 130, 141, 203 Cal. Rptr. 572)

Baseball stadium owner's liability for failure to prevent injuries inflicted by patrons against other patrons in parking lot is dependent on whether stadium owner could have taken reasonable steps to prevent plaintiffs' injuries; causal connection between negligence and injury was necessary to sustain judgment for plaintiff. Noble v. Los Angeles Dodgers, Inc. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 912, 917-918, 214 Cal. Rptr. 395

Restaurateur is not under duty to give money to armed robber to prevent robber from shooting patron. Vandermost v. Alpha Beta Co. (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 771, 778-780, 210 Cal. Rptr. 613

Security guard, hired by owner of premises in response to owner's duty to protect business customers, has special relationship with customers requiring affirmative action to protect customers while they are on business premises and is required to act reasonably in response to acts of third persons. Marois v. Royal Investigation & Patrol, Inc. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 193, 199-200, 208 Cal. Rptr. 384

Convenience store has duty to use reasonable measures to protect patrons from injury by robbers. Cohen v. Southland Corp. (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 130, 137-143, 203 Cal. Rptr. 572

Plaintiff stated cause of action against landlord for assault on plaintiff by third parties if complaint alleged landlord was aware of crimes on premises and in neighborhood and was also aware of tenant complaints and requests for protective measures. Penner v. Falk (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 858, 862-866, 200 Cal. Rptr. 661

Minimal duty of care to provide first line of defense against criminal acts in parking garage exists if trier of fact found assault foreseeable. Gomez v. Ticor (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 622, 628-632, 193 Cal. Rptr. 600

Duty of landlords to protect tenant from criminal acts of third party arises if, despite no history of prior rapes in building, landlords were on notice of prior assault and robbery, knew that building was located in high crime area, and knew of defective lobby entrance lock. Kwaitkowski v. Superior Trading Co. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 324, 326-333, 176 Cal. Rptr. 494

Absence of prior accidents or prior similar accidents does not dispose of question of foreseeability; test is whether reasonable person could, in light of circumstances, have foreseen accident happening. Kwaitkowski v. Superior Trading Co. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 324, 329, 176 Cal. Rptr. 494 ; Musgrove v. Ambrose Props. (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 44, 52, 150 Cal. Rptr. 722 ; Barker v. Wah Low (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 710, 721, 97 Cal. Rptr. 85

Owner of shopping center has duty to protect patron from accident caused by bicyclist even though no history of prior bicycle accidents at center. Musgrove v. Ambrose Props. (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 44, 52, 150 Cal. Rptr. 722

Determination of duty to control conduct of third persons is question of law, and foreseeability is question of fact. Musgrove v. Ambrose Props. (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 44, 52, 150 Cal. Rptr. 722

Landlord is liable to tenant for negligence in failing to take adequate security precautions after several previous rapes occurred in apartment complex, in misrepresenting security precautions, and in failing to warn of likelihood of criminal conduct by suspected assailant. O'Hara v. W. Seven Trees Corp. (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 798, 803-806, 142 Cal. Rptr. 487

Duty of landlord to protect social guest of tenant from harm caused by third person does not arise if no special relationship between plaintiff and landlord and if third party conduct could not reasonably have been anticipated. Totten v. More Oakland Residential Hous., Inc. (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 538, 542-544, 134 Cal. Rptr. 29

Duty to protect against acts of third party does not arise unless possessor has reasonable cause to anticipate conduct; in absence of prior incidents landlord was not bound to anticipate criminal activities of third persons. Totten v. More Oakland Residential Hous., Inc. (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 538, 543-544, 134 Cal. Rptr. 29

Duty to control conduct of third persons is question of fact, and summary judgment not proper on question of whether proprietor of drive-in was negligent in failing to erect barriers to prevent cars from jumping guard rail. Barker v. Wah Low (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 710, 723, 97 Cal. Rptr. 85

Duty of proprietor of business to control conduct of third persons does not arise if no reason to expect that perpetrator of robbery would be in parking lot and would harm pursuing employee. Young v. Desert View Mgmt. Corp. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 294, 298-299, 79 Cal. Rptr. 848

[6] Dangerous Condition

[a] Generally

Occupier of land may be negligent if aware of concealed condition involving unreasonable risk of harm to person on premises and fails to warn person about to come into contact with condition or repair condition. Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 119, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561

Invitor has duty to warn invitee of dangerous condition existing on public street or sidewalk adjoining invitor's business that creates danger because of invitor's special benefit, convenience, or use of public way. Schwartz v. Helms Bakery, Ltd. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 232, 239, 240, 60 Cal. Rptr. 510, 430 P.2d 68 ; Ellis v. Trowen Frozen Prods., Inc. (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 499, 503, 70 Cal. Rptr. 487

Business proprietor has duty to exercise ordinary care to discover dangerous condition and either warn business visitor or make condition reasonably safe. Chance v. Lawry's, Inc. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 368, 373, 24 Cal. Rptr. 209, 374 P.2d 185 ; Bridgman v. Safeway Stores, Inc. (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 443, 446, 2 Cal. Rptr. 146, 348 P.2d 696

Actual or constructive knowledge of dangerous condition or fact that discovery of condition could be made in exercise of reasonable care is required if third persons or ordinary wear and tear brought about condition. Bridgman v. Safeway Stores, Inc. (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 443, 447, 2 Cal. Rptr. 146, 348 P.2d 696 ; Olsen v. Roos-Atkins (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 259, 263, 25 Cal. Rptr. 190

Reasonable inspection of premises is required and absence of inspections is inference that person exercising ordinary care would have discovered dangerous condition. Bridgman v. Safeway Stores, Inc. (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 443, 447, 2 Cal. Rptr. 146, 348 P.2d 696 ; Olsen v. Roos-Atkins (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 259, 263, 25 Cal. Rptr. 190

Dangerous condition can be either artificial or natural. Austin v. Riverside Portland Cement Co. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 225, 233, 282 P.2d 69

Knowledge of dangerous condition is imputed if condition created by possessor or employee. Hatfield v. Levy Bros. (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 798, 806, 117 P.2d 841 ; McKenney v. Quality Foods, Inc. (1957) 156 Cal. App. 2d 349, 352, 353, 319 P.2d 448

Primary assumption of risk barred recovery by skier who went through gap between trees, thinking he could cross over to another ski run, and skied over edge of ravine onto rocks below; owner and operator of ski resort has no duty to protect plaintiff against risks inherent in sport of skiing (such as trees, rocks, rough terrain, or ravines) by, in effect, changing entire mountain to ensure plaintiff's safety. O'Donoghue v. Bear Mountain Ski Resort (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 188, 192-193, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467

Trial court commits prejudicial error in refusing to instruct jury that business proprietor has duty either to remove dangerous condition on premises or to warn of its presence, because, without instruction, jury could not have determined if dangerous condition existed, and if so, whether warning was adequate to enable plaintiff to foresee full extent of hazard of slippery floor. Williams v. Carl Karcher Enters., Inc. (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 479, 483, 488, 227 Cal. Rptr. 465

Private road to plant heavily traveled by trucks does not constitute hazardous natural or artificial condition on property requiring signs or warning devices that would have been contrary to Vehicle Code provisions. A. Teichert & Son, Inc. v. Superior Court (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 657, 663-664, 225 Cal. Rptr. 10

In absence of agreement or special circumstances, defendant not liable for dangerous condition of premises if defendant did not own or have right to control premises. Marshall v. United Airlines (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 84, 88, 110 Cal. Rptr. 416

[b] Obvious Danger

Whether danger is obvious is question of fact; maintenance of open box in narrow foyer of restaurant is dangerous condition if foyer is likely to be crowded and patron's attention is likely to be diverted. Chance v. Lawry's, Inc. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 368, 373-374, 24 Cal. Rptr. 209, 374 P.2d 185

Invitee has no duty to make critical inspection of premises and has right to assume possessor made inspection made and took reasonable precautions. Chance v. Lawry's, Inc. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 368, 373-374, 24 Cal. Rptr. 209, 374 P.2d 185 ; Celli v. Sports Car Club of Am., Inc. (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 511, 523, 105 Cal. Rptr. 904

Injury resulting from obvious danger is foreseeable if practical necessity of encountering danger, weighed against apparent risk involved, is such that person might choose to encounter danger; owner or possessor of land has duty of care only after court considers foreseeability of injury and other policy considerations, such as extent of burden to owner or possessor and consequences to community of imposing duty to remedy danger. Osborn v. Mission Ready Mix (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 104, 118-119, 273 Cal. Rptr. 457

No liability for injury of invitee due to obvious danger. Beauchamp v. Los Gatos Golf Course (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 20, 27-28, 77 Cal. Rptr. 914 ; Henderson v. McGill (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 256, 259-260, 34 Cal. Rptr. 897

Faucet protruding from building is not obvious as matter of law if invitee's attention could have been diverted from seeing it. Henderson v. McGill (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 256, 260-265, 34 Cal. Rptr. 897

No liability for injuries sustained by neighbor checking on mail who tripped over lawnmower, because third party caused condition, landowner had no opportunity to discover it, and danger was obvious. Holcombe v. Burns (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 811, 815, 7 Cal. Rptr. 366

[7] "Firefighter's" Rule

"Firefighter's" rule did not bar recovery by private safety employees injured in fire negligently started by employees of third party; by establishing public fire departments and taxing themselves to pay for their services, public in effect purchases exoneration from duty of care and not required to pay twice, through taxation and individual liability, for those services; in contrast, defendant whose negligence injures private safety employees employed by another does not have same relationship with those private safety employees as member of public has with publicly-employed firefighters, because defendant has not paid in any way to be relieved of duty of care owed toward private employees. Neighbarger v. Irwin Indus., Inc. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 532, 542-543, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 630, 882 P.2d 347

"Firefighter's" rule is not separate concept, but example of application of assumption of risk doctrine set forth in Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 313, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696 ; proper basis for rule is not plaintiff's voluntary acceptance of known risk of injury in course of employment, but rather public policy determination that person who negligently starts fire does not owe duty of care to protect responding firefighter from very danger that requires firefighter's presence. Neighbarger v. Irwin Indus., Inc. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 532, 538, 541, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 630, 882 P.2d 347

"Firefighter's" rule bars firefighter or police officer from recovery for injuries sustained due to very conduct that created risk to which police officer or firefighter responded. Lipson v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 362, 378, 182 Cal. Rptr. 629, 644 P.2d 822

"Firefighter's" rule does not preclude liability for injuries due to conduct independent from act that created risk;

possessor liable for failure to warn of known, hidden danger on premises or for misrepresentation of nature of risk. Lipson v. Superior Court (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 362, 378, 182 Cal. Rptr. 629, 644 P.2d 822 ; Terhell v. American Commonwealth Assocs. (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 434, 437, 218 Cal. Rptr. 256 (rule does not bar statement of cause of action); Kocan v. Garino (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 291, 295-296, 165 Cal. Rptr. 712

Exception to rule for independent act of misconduct or unrelated risk is not applicable merely because firefighter or police officer encountered risk that caused injuries by chance rather than by being summoned to scene by radio call. Kelhi v. Fitzpatrick (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1149, 1152, 1158-1159, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 182

"Firefighter's" rule developed in context of premises liability as limitation on duty of possessors of property, and rationale for rule is absence of liability for dangerous condition known to person coming on premises. Walters v. Sloan (1977) 142 Cal. Rptr. 152, 571 P.2d 609

[8] Independent Contractors

Employees of negligent independent contractors are precluded from recovering damages from hirer under peculiar risk doctrine. Privette v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 689, 701-702, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 72, 854 P.2d 721 ; see also Smith v. ACandS, Inc. (1994) 31 Cal. App. 4th 77, 94-95, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 457 (Privette applied retroactively)

Risk in demolition project that someone could be hurt by falling buildings is peculiar risk. Aceves v. Regal Pale Brewing Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 502, 508-509, 156 Cal. Rptr. 41, 595 P.2d 619

Employer is liable for failure of contractor to take special precautions if work of independent contractor likely to create peculiar risk of harm to others unless special precautions taken; peculiar risk is risk peculiar to work to be done and arising out of character of work or place where it is to be done, and one that reasonable person would recognize necessity of taking precautions to avoid. Griesel v. Dart Indus., Inc. (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 578, 586, 153 Cal. Rptr. 213, 591 P.2d 503

Possessor employing independent contractor is liable to persons on premises for dangerous condition on premises created by independent contractor if possessor retains control of premises. Chance v. Lawry's, Inc. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 368, 374, 24 Cal. Rptr. 209, 374 P.2d 185

Employee of independent contractor is invitee, and possessor is liable for injuries to employee for failure to maintain premises in safe condition. Austin v. Riverside Portland Cement Co. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 225, 232-233, 282 P.2d 69

Possessor's duty to maintain premises in reasonably safe condition is nondelegable, and possessor for negligent failure of independent contractor to do so. Brown v. George Pepperdine Foundation (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 256, 260, 143 P.2d 929 ; Lilienthal v. Hastings Clothing Co. (1955) 131 Cal. App. 2d 343, 347, 280 P.2d 824

Privette bars peculiar risk claims by employees of any contractor working on premises, not only claims by employees of negligent contractor whose acts injured employee. Smith v. ACandS, Inc. (1994) 31 Cal. App. 4th 77, 95-96, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 457

Negligence of independent contractor (truck driver) in colliding with bicyclist is nothing more than ordinary failure to exercise due care in operation of motor vehicle, and thus not subject to peculiar risk doctrine. A. Teichert & Son, Inc. v. Superior Court (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 657, 662, 225 Cal. Rptr. 10

Risk that fellow employee will remove window washer's means of attachments is not peculiar risk for which employer is responsible. Salinero v. Pon (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 120, 135-136, 177 Cal. Rptr. 204

Liability of possessor of premises for negligence of independent contractor or contractor's employee does not extend to collateral negligence. Salinero v. Pon (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 120, 137-138, 177 Cal. Rptr. 204 ; Smith v. Lucky Stores (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 826, 830, 132 Cal. Rptr. 628

Collateral negligence is negligence in operative detail of work that is unusual or foreign to normal contemplated risks of doing work. Salinero v. Pon (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 120, 137-138, 177 Cal. Rptr. 204 ; Smith v. Lucky Stores (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 826, 830, 132 Cal. Rptr. 628

[9] Invitees

Mature, as opposed to minor, students are generally considered business invitees of school. Donnell v. California W. School of Law (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 715, 719, 246 Cal. Rptr. 199

Invitee is one who by express or implied invitation is brought or comes on to premises for possessor's advantage or for mutual or common interest of possessor and invitee. Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 113-114, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561 ; Beauchamp v. Los Gatos Golf Course (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 20, 27, 77 Cal. Rptr. 914

Invitee is either business invitee or public invitee. O'Keefe v. South End Rowing Club (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 729, 737-739, 51 Cal. Rptr. 534, 414 P.2d 830

Public invitee is person invited to enter or remain on premises as member of public for purpose for which land is held open to public. O'Keefe v. S. End Rowing Club (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 729, 737-739, 51 Cal. Rptr. 534, 414 P.2d 830

Employee of independent contractor working on premises is possessor's invitee; possessor liable for injuries to employee if possessor fails to maintain premises in safe condition. Austin v. Riverside Portland Cement Co. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 225, 232-233, 282 P.2d 69

Prospective tenant inquiring about availability of apartment is business visitor. Oettinger v. Stewart (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 133, 136, 148 P.2d 19

Business visitor is person who comes on possessor's premises for purpose connected with business conducted on premises. Oettinger v. Stewart (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 133, 136, 148 P.2d 19

Person checking on mail while neighbor away is invitee. Holcombe v. Burns (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 811, 814, 7 Cal. Rptr. 366

[10] Liability to Persons on Premises

Government entity owed duty to trespassers at water tank area of missile site because reasonable landowner would have been placed on notice by rampant trespassing at nearby missile test site that water tank area was also subject to unauthorized visitation; however, government entity did not owe duty to trespassers and thieves of copper wires atop power poles on site, because climbing poles to steal wires was not foreseeable. Henderson v. United States (9th Cir. 1988) 846 F.2d 1233, 1235

Possessor of land open to public for entry for business purposes is liable to members of public for physical harm caused by accidental, negligent, or intentionally harmful acts of third persons while members of public are on land for business purposes; possessors liable for failing to exercise reasonable care (1) to discover that those acts are being done or are likely to be done, or (2) to give warning adequate to enable visitors to avoid harm or otherwise to protect them against

it. Peterson v. San Francisco Cmty. Coll. Dist. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 799, 807, 205 Cal. Rptr. 842, 685 P.2d 1193

Proper test of liability to persons on premises is whether possessor, in management of property, acted as reasonable person in view of probability of injury to others; plaintiff's status is relevant, but not controlling. Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 119, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561 ; Jamison v. Mark C. Bloome Co. (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 570, 575, 169 Cal. Rptr. 399

Fundamental principle codified in Civ. Code § 1714(a), that every person liable for injury to another occasioned by that person's want of ordinary care, applies unless public policy clearly mandates otherwise; factors weighed in creating exception to principle are foreseeability of harm to plaintiff, degree of certainty of harm, closeness of connection between defendant's conduct and injury suffered, moral blame attached to defendant's conduct, policy of preventing future harm, and burden to defendant and consequences to community in imposing duty and liability for breach. Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 113, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561

Homeowners with swimming pool in backyard had no duty to supervise 2-year-old child who drowned after being left in front yard with child's own mother, who knew of pool and that no other adults were in yard to watch child but nonetheless left child under care of two older children and went into homeowners' house for five minutes; homeowners' failure to install self-latching mechanism on one outside gate leading into pool area could not support liability, as plaintiff could not prove that child used gate, rather than one of several other available doors, to access pool. Padilla v. Rodas (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 742, 747-753, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 114

Remodeling homeowner, although absent at time of attack, owed duty of care to protect construction worker from attack by pit bulls owned by another worker; with knowledge that dogs were guard dogs and could be dangerous, homeowner had specifically given dog owner permission to let dogs roam free in backyard and given plaintiff permission to retrieve boards stored in that yard. Salinas v. Martin (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 404, 415-416, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 735

Landlord has duty to take reasonable precautions to prevent young children from falling out of windows in common areas of apartment building; whether landlord breached duty by maintaining low, open, unguarded window in common area where children were likely to play was triable issue of fact. Amos v. Alpha Prop. Mgmt. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 895, 898, 906-907, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 34

Homeowner liable to visitor claiming to have contracted Lyme disease from tick carried by homeowner's dog; homeowner had no duty to warn visitor not to allow dog to sit on her lap because evidence showed that homeowner did not know, and could not reasonably be expected to have known, that ticks carrying disease were present in area. Butcher v. Gay (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 388, 405-406, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 771

Landlords not liable to visitor shot accidentally by tenant, despite landlords' knowledge that tenant had drinking problem and owned firearms; shooting was not foreseeable risk because there was no evidence that tenant had ever harmed anyone due to either his drinking problem or his possession of firearms and no evidence that tenant handled firearms unsafely while drunk. Sturgeon v. Curnutt (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 301, 307, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 498

Landlord liable for injuries to deliveryman caused by commercial tenant's guard dog, despite no actual knowledge of dog's disposition, if landlord could have discovered dog's nature by reasonable inspection; distinction between guard dogs on commercial premises and family pets at single family residences. Portillo v. Aiassa (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1134-1135, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 755

Owner of private residence has no duty of care to plaintiff to prevent injury as result of spider bite if, as matter of law, injury was unforeseeable by owner, burden on owner of preventing injury would be great, and task of defining scope of duty and measures required by homeowners would be extremely difficult. Brunelle v. Signore (1989) 215 Cal. App.

3d 122, 125, 263 Cal. Rptr. 415

Owner of restaurant not liable for mass-murder assault on customers by third party; restaurant's general duty to take reasonable precautions to protect patrons from reasonably foreseeable criminal conduct of unknown third parties does not encompass burden to prevent once-in-a-lifetime massacres Lopez v. McDonald's (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 495, 504-512, 238 Cal. Rptr. 436

Landowner not liable for injury caused by trivial defect on property; raised edge in walkway of no more than three fourths of inch is trivial defect as matter of law. Ursing v. Big Boy Rests. (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 394, 397-399, 237 Cal. Rptr. 413

Property owners, who had no previous knowledge of vicious nature or dangerous propensities of dog owned by their tenant, not liable for injuries suffered by cable company employee who was attacked by dog while lawfully on premises. Lundy v. California Realty (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 813, 821, 216 Cal. Rptr. 575

Landowner not liable for injuries resulting from dogs jumping against chain link fence that frightened pedestrian, causing her to run into street where she was hit by passing automobile. Nava v. McMillan (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 262, 265-267, 176 Cal. Rptr. 473

Duties toward invitees existing prior to Rowland as highest imposed on possessor; Rowland not suggesting departure from them, but instead giving persons lacking invitee status same protection under appropriate circumstances. Jamison v. Mark C. Bloome Co. (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 570, 576, 169 Cal. Rptr. 399

Attractive nuisance doctrine is no longer necessary after Rowland. Smith v. Americania Motor Lodge (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 1, 7, 113 Cal. Rptr. 771 ; Beard v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 129, 136-137, 84 Cal. Rptr. 449

Duty of care toward persons on premises after Rowland is controlled by foreseeability of risk and not status of plaintiff. Beard v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 129, 136, 84 Cal. Rptr. 449

Duties existing in favor of invitees prior to Rowland are not jettisoned by Rowland and are consonant with Civ. Code § 1714(a). Beauchamp v. Los Gatos Golf Course (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 20, 26, 77 Cal. Rptr. 914

[11] Liability to Persons Outside Premises

Plaintiff stated cause of action against landowner for negligence in allowing sign and trees to obstruct view at intersection and make it unsafe. Carson v. Facilities Dev. Co. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 830, 846-847, 206 Cal. Rptr. 136, 686 P.2d 656

Liability for harm caused by natural conditions is measured in terms of ordinary principles of negligence and no longer distinct from liability for harm caused by artificial conditions; plaintiff stated cause of action against defendants for damages to residence of person outside premises due to movement of landslide located on defendants' property. Sprecher v. Adamson Cos. (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 358, 371, 178 Cal. Rptr. 783, 636 P.2d 1121

Liability for harm to passerby due to fall of limb from planted row of trees on defendants' property is based on negligence principles, and question of reasonableness of defendants' conduct is not properly subject of nonsuit. Coates v. Chinn (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 304, 308-309, 332 P.2d 289

In suit brought by plaintiff who tripped over upturned, jagged piece of sidewalk, nonsuit in favor of landowner in possession of adjacent condominium was improper because evidence showed landowner planted and maintained trees that were source of sidewalk defect, installed sprinklers on both sides of sidewalk, and had prior knowledge of sidewalk condition. Alpert v. Villa Romano Homeowners Assn. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1320, 1335-1337, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 364

Owner or possessor of premises has no duty to users of adjacent public streets either to refrain from holding activities that would distract passing motorists or to erect or maintain barriers to hide those activities from passing motorists. Lompoc Unified Sch. Dist. v. Superior Court (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1688, 1694, 1697, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 122

Extent to which landowner receives exclusive benefit from construction or alteration of abutting walkway is significant in determination of whether it is reasonable to impose duty on landowner to maintain walkway in reasonably safe condition. Seaber v. Hotel Del Coronado (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 481, 492, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 405

Plaintiff is not required to show that condition of disrepair on defendant's property directly inflicted injury on plaintiff; connection between dilapidated fence at apartment complex and injury to child in creek on property adjacent to complex was sufficiently close to impose duty as matter of law. McDaniel v. Sunset Manor Co. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1, 9, 269 Cal. Rptr. 196

No liability for failure to maintain abutting sidewalk or planting strip properly, in absence of statute or ordinance, if defendant does not possess or own street easement and does not undertake maintenance of it. Williams v. Foster (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 510, 521, 265 Cal. Rptr. 15

Apartment complex owner owes no duty to provide fencing or other means of confinement to keep children on property. Brooks v. Eugene Burger Mgmt. Corp. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1611, 1622, 264 Cal. Rptr. 756 ; but see Barnes v. Black (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1473, 1479-480, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 634 (apartment building owner may have duty to install fence around private sidewalk that young children were known to use for riding wheeled toys because sidewalk bordered steeply sloped driveway that emptied into busy street); McDaniel v. Sunset Manor Co. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1, 9, 269 Cal. Rptr. 196 (once fencing is erected, duty may exist to maintain it with due care)

Supermarket owes no duty to customer who was injured by negligence of third party in public street adjacent to supermarket premises; no liability based on theories that natural or artificial condition of supermarket property had caused injuries or that customer was invitee, because customer had been injured on public street outside of supermarket's control; no liability based on "street vendor" theory, because supermarket was operating at fixed location. Owens v. Kings Supermarket (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 379, 384-388, 243 Cal. Rptr. 627

Landlord liable to motorist for shrubbery on premises obscuring traffic sign, regardless of actual knowledge of dangerous condition. Swanberg v. O'Mectin (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 325, 329-332, 203 Cal. Rptr. 701

Summary judgment improper in action involving fall on break in sidewalk allegedly due to roots of tree on defendant's property, if defendant failed to negate theory of liability under Sprecher v. Adamson Cos. (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 358, 178 Cal. Rptr. 783, 636 P.2d 1121 . Moeller v. Fleming (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 241, 245, 186 Cal. Rptr. 24

Failure of theater operators to make marquee safe following demolition of neighboring building on which marquee was anchored is negligence creating liability for injuries to pedestrians. Potter v. Empress Theatre Co. (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 4, 12-13, 204 P.2d 120

[12] Licensee

Licensee is person like social guest who is privileged to enter or remain on land by virtue of possessor's consent. Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 113-114, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561

[13] Persons Liable

[a] Former Owner

Former owner not liable for defective or dangerous condition of property because no longer owns, possesses, or controls property; ownership of property is fundamental requirement of liability. Preston v. Goldman (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 108, 119, 227 Cal. Rptr. 817, 720 P.2d 476 ; see Lorenzen-Hughes v. MacElhenny, Levy & Co. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1684, 1688, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 210

Exceptions to rule of nonliability of former owner apply to prior landowner that is contractor or builder of entire property, such as commercial developer, and to vendor who conceals or fails to disclose known dangerous condition to vendee who is unaware of condition. Preston v. Goldman (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 108, 117 n.3, 122-123, 227 Cal. Rptr. 817, 720 P.2d 476 ; Lorenzen-Hughes v. MacElhenny, Levy & Co. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1684, 1688-1689, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 210

Former premises owner who had sold building and relinquished all control eight years earlier not liable to plaintiff injured by defective copper pipe that burst. Lewis v. Chevron U.S.A., Inc. (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 690, 697-698, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 636

Former owner of office building that had installed in minor remodeling project not liable to worker in building injured 9 years later when cabinet fell off wall, because no one, including former owner, could have known that cabinet had not been properly attached. Lorenzen-Hughes v. MacElhenny, Levy & Co. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1684, 1686, 1689, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 210

[b] Landlord Out of Possession

Landlord retaining control over part of premises is liable for injuries caused by dangerous condition. Di Mare v. Cresci (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 292, 297, 23 Cal. Rptr. 772, 373 P.2d 860

Landlord not liable for attack by residential tenant's dog, in absence of actual knowledge of dog's alleged vicious tendencies; mere fact that landlord may have observed dog barking and jumping at inside door of tenant's residence did not establish that landlord had actual knowledge of dog's vicious propensities. Yuzon v. Collins (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 149, 164, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 18

Landlord has no duty to warn prospective tenant of presence of vicious dog in neighborhood. Wylie v. Gresch (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 412, 414, 236 Cal. Rptr. 552

Commercial landlord not liable for shooting of third person by tenants' security guard on inadequately lit premises in high-crime neighborhood because landlord, who had instituted unlawful detainer proceedings against tenants for nonpayment of rent, had insufficient control over premises at time of shooting. Leakes v. Shamoun (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 772, 776, 232 Cal. Rptr. 171

Landlord not liable to trespasser who fell into vats containing caustic chemical maintained by tenant if trespasser unable to show that landlord was aware of existence of vats, of any prior break-ins to premises, of any prior injuries, or of any holes in fence surrounding perimeter of premises. Bisetti v. United Refrigeration Corp. (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 643, 649, 220 Cal. Rptr. 209

Landlord out of possession had no duty to protect neighbor of tenant from actions of tenant in occasionally discharging firearm, if landlord had no knowledge of conduct and no control over property other than termination of tenancy.

Rosales v. Stewart (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 130, 135, 169 Cal. Rptr. 660

Landlord liable for defective kitchen outlet under ordinary principles of negligence if landlord knew of defective outlet and exercised control over premises by right of re-entry contained in lease. Evans v. Thomason (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 978, 985, 140 Cal. Rptr. 525

Liability of landlord to tenant rests on principles of negligence and is no longer predicated on common law exceptions to rule of nonliability, such as concealment of known danger, express covenant to repair, or statutory duty to repair. Golden v. Conway (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 948, 955, 128 Cal. Rptr. 69

Landlord out of possession had duty to protect neighbor of tenant from injuries from attack by tenant's dog if landlord knew of vicious propensity of dog and could have conditioned renewal of month-to-month tenancy on removal of dog. Uccello v. Laudenslayer (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 504, 513-515, 118 Cal. Rptr. 741

Landlord's duty to tenant for dangerous condition of common area is based on principles of negligence. Brennan v. Cockerell Invs., Inc. (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 796, 801-802, 111 Cal. Rptr. 122

[c] Possessor

Oil company with right to maintain trestle is akin to holder of franchise and legal possessor of property with liability coextensive with that of possessor of property. Palmquist v. Mercer (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 92, 102-103, 272 P.2d 26

Tenant liable to business invitee for dangerous condition of common walkway that tenant exerted control over and impliedly invited invitees to use. Johnston v. De La Guerra Props., Inc. (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 394, 399-401, 170 P.2d 5

Stevedoring concern loading material on ship is possessor of portion of premises used. Hamakawa v. Crescent Wharf & Warehouse Co. (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 499, 503-504, 50 P.2d 803

Absent lessee of premises used for both residential and business purposes may be liable for injury caused by third person on premises, even though incident occurred without lessee's knowledge, if liability based on occurrence of dangerous activity on premises, lessee's knowledge of activity, and lessee's opportunity and ability to eliminate activity. Anaya v. Turk (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 1092, 1103, 199 Cal. Rptr. 187

Trespasser who takes and holds possession of another's land has same liabilities to third persons as owner. Yee Chuck v. Board of Trs. (1960) 179 Cal. App. 2d 405, 410-411, 3 Cal. Rptr. 825

[d] Street Vendors

Street vendor liable for injuries sustained by child in crossing street to make purchase because vendor did not exercise reasonable care for child's safety in immediate vicinity of vendor's truck. Schwartz v. Helms Bakery, Ltd. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 232, 242, 243, 60 Cal. Rptr. 510, 430 P.2d 68 ; Ellis v. Trowen Frozen Products, Inc. (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 499, 503, 70 Cal. Rptr. 487

Liability of street vendors does not extend to grocery store holding opening day carnival, because store owner, unlike street vendor, does not control own movement and avenues of approach, and patrons do not arrive along reasonably predictable routes of approach. Nevarez v. Thriftimart, Inc. (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 799, 805-806, 87 Cal. Rptr. 50

[14] Premises

Physical area encompassed by term "premises" does not always coincide with area for which invitor possesses title or lease, is sometimes less or greater than invitor's property, and includes reasonable means of ingress and egress. Schwartz v. Helms Bakery, Ltd. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 232, 239, 60 Cal. Rptr. 510, 430 P.2d 68

Possessor owes no duty to protect user in area of egress and ingress against obvious danger if limited extent of possessor's control over area does not justify imposition of duty based on foreseeability of type of accident suffered by user. Gray v. America W. Airlines, Inc. (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 76, 85, 256 Cal. Rptr. 877

Landowner has no duty of care to invitee for injury occurring on premises landowner neither owns nor controls. Steinmetz v. Stockton City Chamber of Commerce (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 1142, 1147, 214 Cal. Rptr. 405 (invitee returning to car parked off owners' premises)

[15] Recreational Users

Because purpose at time of entry controls whether immunity applies, no recovery by teenager who entered park to congregate with friends in picnic area and who was injured while taking test drive in friend's car before driving him home. Mattice v. United States Dep't of Interior (9th Cir. 1992) 969 F.2d818, 821; see also Smith v. Scrap Disposal Corp. (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 525, 529, 158 Cal. Rptr. 134

Immunity provisions of Civ. Code § 846 apply to paved public roads within recreational land. Mattice v. United States Dep't of Interior (9th Cir. 1992) 969 F.2d 818, 821

Legislative goal of encouraging property owners to open their land to public does not mean that immunity applies only to owners who allow anyone and everyone free access to their property, because Civil Code section 846 does not use word "public" or any equivalent synonym; therefore, government entity could claim immunity for injuries suffered in park located entirely within grounds of military facility and not open to general public. Mansion v. United States (9th Cir. 1991) 945 F. 2d 1115, 1117-1118

Consideration does not include alleged benefit of improved labor relations conferred on former employer by plaintiff's attendance at employer-sponsored picnic. Mansion v. United States (9th Cir. 1991) 945 F. 2d 1115, 1118-1119

Immunity is applicable to premises even if not "suitable" for recreational purposes; judicially created "suitability" exception to Civ. Code § 846 is disapproved. Ornelas v. Randolph (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 1095, 1108, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 594, 847 P.2d 560

Holder of permit to graze livestock on federal lands in California is owner of interest in real property sufficient to come within immunity afforded by Civ. Code § 846. Hubbard v. Brown (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 189, 197, 266 Cal. Rptr. 491, 785 P.2d 1183

Kite flying, including act of entering property to retrieve wayward kite, was recreational activity covered by Civ. Code § 846. Jackson v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 1110, 1115, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 831

Consideration necessary to deny immunity is some immediate and reasonably direct advantage, usually in form of entrance fee, that is not merely potential reimbursement, but is present actual benefit bestowed or detriment suffered; hold harmless clause indemnifying landowner against claims and costs incurred in connection with those claims is not sufficient consideration to overcome immunity granted by Civ. Code § 846. Johnson v. Unocal Corp. (1993) 21 Cal. App. 4th 310, 316-317, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 148

Public trust doctrine, which protects public's right to free and unimpeded use of navigable waterways, qualifies immunity of contiguous or subjacent owners of real property fronting or underlying navigable waters from liability to persons injured while using public waterways. Charpentier v. Von Geldern (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 101, 108-110, 236 Cal. Rptr. 233

Owner of property immunized by Civ. Code § 846 from liability to person on beach subject to public easement for recreational use, who was injured by piece of gunite falling from overlooking cliff. Collins v. Tippett (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 1017, 1019-1020, 203 Cal. Rptr. 366

Immunity of Civ. Code § 846 does not apply to owner of real property underlying navigable waterway if injuries allegedly sustained by boater were due to contact with power line overhanging water. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. v. Superior Court (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 253, 259, 193 Cal. Rptr. 336

Purpose of Civ. Code § 846 is to encourage owners to allow general public to use land for recreational purposes by relieving owners of tort duties that might otherwise apply. Paige v. N. Oaks Partners (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 860, 863, 184 Cal. Rptr. 867 ; Gerkin v. Santa Clara Valley Water Dist. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 1022, 1026, 157 Cal. Rptr. 612

Legislative policy underlying Civ. Code § 846 reduces growing tendency of landowners to withdraw land from recreational access by removing risk of gratuitous tort liability that landowner might run unless landowner successfully barred any entry onto property for enumerated recreational uses. Paige v. N. Oaks Partners (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 860, 863, 184 Cal. Rptr. 867

Immunity provisions of Civ. Code § 846 do not apply to public entities. Delta Farms Reclamation Dist. v. Superior Court (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 699, 710, 190 Cal. Rptr. 494, 660 P.2d 1168 ; Blakley v. State of California (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 971, 974-976, 167 Cal. Rptr. 1

Willful or wanton misconduct is intentional wrongful conduct, done either with knowledge that serious bodily injury to another will probably result, or with wanton and reckless disregard of probable results. New v. Consolidated Rock Prods. Co. (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 681, 689-692, 217 Cal. Rptr. 522 ; O'Shea v. Claude C. Wood Co. (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 903, 912, 159 Cal. Rptr. 125 ; Lostritto v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 737, 744, 140 Cal. Rptr. 905

Defendant's declaration that defendant did not know plaintiff was using property and did not willfully or maliciously fail to guard plaintiff from or warn plaintiff of danger was sufficient to negate allegation of willful misconduct and to support partial summary judgment on issue in absence of any evidence showing such misconduct. O'Shea v. Claude C. Wood Co. (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 903, 913, 159 Cal. Rptr. 125

Applicability of Civ. Code § 846 depends on plaintiff's purpose at time of entering defendant's land and not on underlying purpose of entire trip. Smith v. Scrap Disposal Corp. (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 525, 529, 158 Cal. Rptr. 134

Walking across bridge on property to get to store does not, as matter of law, fall within term "hiking" as used in Civ. Code § 846. Gerkin v. Santa Clara Valley Water Dist. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 1022, 1027, 157 Cal. Rptr. 612

Activity required to be within commonly understood meaning of "recreational," and determination of whether or not walking is "hiking" depends on totality of circumstances, including path taken, length and purpose of journey, topography of property, prior use of land, and state of mind of plaintiff. Gerkin v. Santa Clara Valley Water Dist. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 1022, 1027, 157 Cal. Rptr. 612 , disapproved on other grounds, Delta Farms Reclamation v. Superior Court (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 699, 190 Cal. Rptr. 494, 660 P.2d 1168

Provisions of Civ. Code § 846 do not violate equal protection in distinguishing between recreational and nonrecreational users and between paying and nonpaying users. Parish v. Lloyd (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 785, 788, 147 Cal. Rptr. 431

In action by diver for injuries sustained in diving off trestle, evidence that defendant knew that practice of diving from trestle into popular swimming hole was common and that prior similar injuries had occurred was sufficient to support jury finding of defendant's willful misconduct. Lostritto v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 737, 744-745, 140 Cal. Rptr. 905

[16] Trespasser

Trespasser is one who enters or remains on land of another without privilege to do so. Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 113-114, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561

Status as trespasser is not determinative of landlord's liability to third person injured on premises, but is factor to be considered in determination of liability. Bisetti v. United Refrigeration Corp. (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 643, 648, 220 Cal. Rptr. 209

Attorney investigating accident in railroad yard without knowledge or consent of railroad personnel is trespasser. Jarvis v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 246, 253, 191 Cal. Rptr. 29

Court properly refused to give jury instruction that trespasser entitled to damages for injury if injury foreseeable and avoidable. Jarvis v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 246, 254, 191 Cal. Rptr. 29

Status (as trespasser, invitee, or licensee) of attorney investigating accident is relevant to issue of contributory negligence. Jarvis v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 246, 253, 191 Cal. Rptr. 29

[17] Waters

[a] Damages

Civ. Code § 3283, which permits award of damages for detriment resulting after commencement of action, applies to action to recover damages for discharge of surface water. Keys v. Romley (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 396, 411, 50 Cal. Rptr. 273, 412 P.2d 529

[b] Diversion

Person responsible for diversion or obstruction of natural watercourse is liable for damages resulting to property. Granone v. County of Los Angeles (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 629, 646, 42 Cal. Rptr. 34

[c] Drainage and Drainage Systems

Construction of artificial drainage systems by upper landowner is permitted to increase velocity, but not volume, of discharge. Martinson v. Hughey (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 318, 328, 244 Cal. Rptr. 795

[d] Easement to Discharge Water

Right to flood land could be appurtenant to ownership of water; physical assets of water system could be located wholly on easements and rights-of-way on lands owned by someone other than owner of water system; plaintiff was unable to recover damages for flooding of land after city had acquired easement right to flood plaintiff's land. Security Pac. Nat'l Bank v. City of San Diego (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 421, 428-429, 435, 97 Cal. Rptr. 61

Prescriptive easement right to discharge surface waters requires proof of use that is actual, open, notorious, hostile, and adverse to title of party against whom adverse claim is being made, and continuous and uninterrupted for statutory period under claim of right. Wanders v. Nelson (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 267, 269-270, 219 P.2d 852

Claim of easement cannot be predicated on draining imported water into channel of stream if there is no interference with another's rights. Fell v. M. & T. Inc. (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 692, 695, 166 P.2d 642

[e] Flood Waters

Upstream landowner has no absolute right to protect his or her land from floodwaters by constructing structures that increase downstream flow of water into its natural watercourse; instead, conduct is governed by ordinary principles of negligence. Ektelon v. City of San Diego (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 804, 810, 246 Cal. Rptr. 483

Flood water is defined as extraordinary overflow of rivers and streams. Martinson v. Hughey (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 318, 325, 244 Cal. Rptr. 795

Property owner must act reasonably under all circumstances when building barriers to protect property from damage from floodwaters; question of reasonableness presents triable factual issue precluding summary judgment. Linvill v. Perello (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 195, 198-200, 234 Cal. Rptr. 392

Injunction enjoining defendant from erecting or maintaining any obstruction to deflect flood waters is inappropriate. Lukrich v. Rodgers (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 1, 6-10, 1 Cal. Rptr. 30

[f] Injunction

Water caused to flow onto another's land onto which it would not naturally flow is invasion and injury to property right and nuisance per se; continuance or maintenance of nuisance per se is enjoinable. Galbreath v. Hopkins (1911) 159 Cal. 297, 301-302, 113 P. 174

Injunction enjoining defendant from erecting or maintaining any obstruction to deflect flood waters is inappropriate. Lukrich v. Rodgers (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 1, 6-10, 1 Cal. Rptr. 30

Injunction is available to prevent injury caused by irrigation waters. Fredericks v. Fredericks (1951) 108 Cal. App. 2d 242, 244, 238 P.2d 643

Noninjurious and reasonable use by landowner of waters imported onto lands and allowed to drain into natural watercourse is not enjoinable. Fell v. M. & T. Inc. (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 692, 694-695, 166 P.2d 642

Valid to enjoin lower riparian owner from maintaining dam and impounding water of stream resulting in injurious flooding of upper riparian owner's land. Callison v. Mt. Shasta Power Corp. (1932) 123 Cal. App. 247, 255-256, 11 P.2d 60

[g] Negligence

If injury is allegedly caused by natural condition, imposition of liability on nuisance theory requires finding of negligence. Lussier v. San Lorenzo Valley Water Dist. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 92, 102, 253 Cal. Rptr. 470

To avoid answer alleging that damage was caused by sudden flood, pleading must allege some act, omission, or dereliction of duty by defendant resulting in invasion of plaintiff's property right. Curci v. Palo Verde Irrigation Dist. (1945) 69 Cal. App. 2d 583, 584-585, 159 P.2d 674

Landowners failure to consider injury caused by water if allowed to escape is material to question of liability for injuries from water escaping from artificial use; injury itself is evidence of negligence. Kall v. Carruthers (1922) 59 Cal. App. 555, 559-560, 211 P. 43

[h] Owner's Duties

Reasonableness test determines landowner's liability if alterations or improvements to upstream property discharge increased volume of surface water into natural watercourse, and increased volume or velocity of stream waters or method of discharge into watercourse caused downstream property damage. Locklin v. City of Lafayette (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 327, 337, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 613, 867 P.2d 724

Downstream riparian landowner is required to have acted reasonably in protecting property to recover for damages caused by upstream landowners' increased discharge of surface waters into natural watercourse. Locklin v. City of Lafayette (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 327, 357-358, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 613, 867 P.2d 724

Lower landowner under legal duty to receive reasonable and noninjurious amounts of runoff water from adjacent upper parcels of land is precluded from limiting rights of upslope landowners by blocking compensating ditch on lower property built by predecessor in interest after lower landowner and predecessors built berm that effectively obliterated natural watercourse by which they were bound to receive waters from above. Martinson v. Hughey (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 318, 329, 244 Cal. Rptr. 795

Rule applying to discharge of water into natural watercourse is extended to include interference with artificially created channel if substantial sums have been expended in reliance on continued presence of watercourse; if creator of artificial watercourse intended that it be permanent, and adjoining landowners or water users were allowed to adjust themselves to its presence and to rely on its continuation, new condition is then regarded as natural, and law disregards its artificial origin with respect to discharge into it of runoff waters. Martinson v. Hughey (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 318, 329-330, 244 Cal. Rptr. 795

Every person is required to take reasonable care in using property to avoid injury to adjacent property through flow of surface waters; failure to exercise reasonable care may result in liability of upper landowner to lower landowner. Keys v. Romley (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 396, 409, 50 Cal. Rptr. 273, 412 P.2d 529 ; Pagliotti v. Acquistapace (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 873, 874, 50 Cal. Rptr. 282, 412 P.2d 538 ; Ektelon v. City of San Diego (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 804, 808, 246 Cal. Rptr. 483

If nearby landowner is exercising right of removing and disposing of surface waters, and is doing so entirely on own land, adjoining landowner is not required to bring action to prevent that act; adjoining landowner is not thereby precluded from bringing legal action if and when act does cause injury. Galbreath v. Hopkins (1911) 159 Cal. 297, 303-304, 113 P. 174

Owner who causes diversion of water resulting in inundation of his or her property is guilty of contributory negligence. Western Salt Co. v. City of Newport Beach (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 397, 402, 76 Cal. Rptr. 322

Landowner may level land for agricultural purposes, but has duty to make adequate provision for natural flow of drainage waters; adjoining landowners have right to protection against changes in surface water drainage caused by interference with natural conditions. County of Colusa v. Strain (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 472, 481-482, 30 Cal. Rptr. 415 ; People v. Stowell (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 728, 733, 294 P.2d 474

Owner of land is under no duty to go into natural watercourse to remove debris, sand, and boulders that interfere with free flow of waters, if owner of land has not erected or placed any obstruction to that flow in that watercourse. Weck v. Los Angeles County Flood Control Dist. (1951) 104 Cal. App. 2d 599, 613, 232 P.2d 293

Upper riparian owner had right to have lower riparian owner receive surface water falling on upper owner's land; lower owner was not entitled to dam up channel so as to obstruct flow of waters across upper owner's land. Wanders v. Nelson (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 267, 269, 219 P.2d 852

[i] Reasonable Use Doctrine

Reasonableness test of discharge of surface waters determines landowner's liability if alterations or improvements to upstream property discharge an increased volume of surface water into a natural watercourse, and the increased volume or velocity of the stream waters or the method of discharge into the watercourse causes downstream property damage. Locklin v. City of Lafayette (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 327, 356-357, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 613, 867 P.2d 724 ; see also Keys v. Romley (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 396, 410, 50 Cal. Rptr. 273, 412 P.2d 529

Under reasonable use doctrine followed in California, issue of reasonableness of discharge of surface waters is question of fact to be determined in each case on consideration of all relevant circumstances, including amount of harm caused, foreseeability of harm that results, and purpose or motive with which possessor acted; in land development problems, proper consideration is whether utility of possessor's use of land outweighs gravity of harm that results from his or her alteration of flow of surface waters. Keys v. Romley (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 396, 410, 50 Cal. Rptr. 273, 412 P.2d 529 ; Martinson v. Hughey (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 318, 326-327, 244 Cal. Rptr. 795

Doctrine of reasonable use is based more on concepts of tort liability than on traditional concepts of property law. Keys v. Romley (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 396, 408-409, 50 Cal. Rptr. 273, 412 P.2d 529 ; Martinson v. Hughey (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 318, 327, 244 Cal. Rptr. 795

Civil law rule in its pure form provides servitude or easement for natural drainage so that lower landowner must accept surface water that drains onto his or her land, but upper landowner has no right to alter natural system of drainage so as to increase burden; California finds it unreasonable to apply civil law doctrine in its rigid form, and therefore has adopted civil law rule as modified by doctrine of reasonable use, which attempts to determine rights of parties with respect to disposition of surface waters by assessment of all relevant factors. Martinson v. Hughey (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 318, 325-326, 244 Cal. Rptr. 795 ; see also Keys v. Romley (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 396, 402, 50 Cal. Rptr. 273, 412 P.2d 529

[j] Reliance on Continued Diversion

Apparent permanent change in stream flow usually leads to costly adjustments by interested persons; those interested persons are entitled to receive as much protection as if condition were natural. Natural Soda Prods. Co. v. City of Los Angeles (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 193, 197, 143 P.2d 12

One who makes substantial expenditures in reliance on long-continued diversion of water has right to have diversion continued if that investment would otherwise be destroyed. Granone v. County of Los Angeles (1965) 231 Cal. App.

2d 629, 646, 42 Cal. Rptr. 34

[k] Surface Waters

Reasonableness test is applicable to determine public entity liability in tort and inverse condemnation for damage to downstream property resulting from discharge of surface waters to natural watercourse from upstream public property. Locklin v. City of Lafayette (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 327, 337-338, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 613, 867 P.2d 724

Surface water is water diffused over surface of land, or contained in depressions in that land, that results from rain or snow or rises to surface in springs; surface waters are thus distinguishable from water flowing in fixed channel so as to constitute watercourse, or water collected in identifiable body such as river or lake. Keys v. Romley (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 396, 400, 50 Cal. Rptr. 273, 412 P.2d 529 ; Ektelon v. City of San Diego (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 804, 808 n.3, 246 Cal. Rptr. 483 ; Martinson v. Hughey (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 318, 325, 244 Cal. Rptr. 795

Landowner has no right to obstruct flow of surface waters onto landowner's property. Mogle v. Moore (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 1, 10, 104 P.2d 785

Every landowner is required to bear burden of receiving surface water naturally falling on land above property and naturally flowing to property. LeBrun v. Richards (1930) 210 Cal. 308, 313, 291 P. 825

[l] Watercourse

Channel is natural watercourse if it has defined banks, with characteristics causing water to flow in definite direction, and has stream bed that manifests continued action of flowing waters. Hellman Commercial Trust & Sav. Bank. v. Southern Pac. Co. (1923) 190 Cal. 626, 632, 214 P. 46

Person who negligently constructed obstruction to watercourse is liable if obstruction causes overflow beyond overflow that would have occurred in absence of obstruction. Van Zyl v. Spiegelberg (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 367, 372-375, 82 Cal. Rptr. 689

Injunction is appropriate remedy against downstream riparian owner whose maintenance of dam at base of river and whose impounding and releasing of stream water results in injurious flooding or drying up of water on upper riparian owner's land. Callison v. Mt. Shasta Power Corp. (1932) 123 Cal. App. 247, 255-256, 11 P.2d 60

Deliberate flooding through needlessly raising water level in lake and then releasing water into ditch with no legitimate or useful purpose was indicative of malice and supported punitive damages award. Baruh v. Kuhl (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 266, 273-274, 28 Cal. Rptr. 573

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.63

§ 421.63 Law Reviews

Comment, Extension of Premises Liability for Injuries Resulting from the Criminal Acts of Third Parties on Adjacent Land, 30 Santa Clara L. Rev. 977 (1990)

Comment, Vendors of Real Estate: When Does Liability for Dangerous Conditions End? 17 Sw. U.L. Rev. 23 (1987)

Comment, The Peculiar Risk Doctrine: High Rise Benefits for California Construction Workers, 19 Loy. L.A. L. Rev. 1495 (1986)

Note, The Duty of a Landlord to Exercise Reasonable Care in the Selection and Retention of Tenants, 30 Stan. L. Rev. 725 (1978)

Comment, Tort Liability of Agricultural Landowners to Recreational Entrants: A Critical Analysis, 11 U.C. Davis L. Rev. 367 (1978)

Comment, An Examination of the California Fireman's Rule, 6 Pac. L.J. 660 (1975)

Comment, A Landlord's Duty to Protect His Tenants from the Criminal Acts of Third Persons, 5 U.S.F. L. Rev. 378 (1971)

Comment, Landlord's Liability for Criminal Acts Committed Against His Tenants, 7 Cal. West L. Rev. 197 (1970)

Comment, Giorgi v. Pacific Gas and Electric Co.: The "Fireman's Rule" in California, an Anachronism? 4 U.S.F. L. Rev. 125 (1969)

Comment, California Applies Negligence Principles in Determining Liability of a Land Occupier, 9 Santa Clara Law. 179 (1969)

Comment, Rowland v. Christian: New Protections Afforded a Social Guest in California, 3 U.S.F. L. Rev. 170 (1968)

Comment, Liability of Landowners Resultant from Their Employment of Independent Contractors, 13 Hastings L.J. 147 (1961)

82 of 196 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 421.64-421.69

[Reserved]

§§ 421.64[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART IV. FORMS

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.70

§ 421.70 Complaint for Damages Based on Negligence [Civ. Code § 1714(a)]--By Person on Premises Against Owner or Possessor of Premises--Negligent Maintenance, Management, and Operation--Judicial Council Trial Court Pleading Form With Premises Liability Attachment [Cal. Judicial Council Forms PLD-PI-001, PLD-PI-001(4)]

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages Based on Negligence [Civ. Code § 1714(a)]--By Person on Premises Against Owner or Possessor of Premises--Negligent Maintenance, Management, and Operation--Judicial Council Trial Court Pleading Form With Premises Liability Attachment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 982.1(a); Cal. Judicial Council Forms PLD-PI-001, PLD-PI-001(4)]

Click here to view image.

[2] Use of Form

These forms are a filled-in illustration of Cal. Judicial Council Form PLD-PI-001, the general form of complaint for personal injury, property damage, or wrongful death, along with Cal. Judicial Council Form PLD-PI-001(4), the one-page premises liability attachment. Use of these forms is optional [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12].

The forms have been filled out to illustrate their use by a person seeking damages from the possessor of premises for injuries and property damage sustained on the premises due to the possessor's negligent maintenance, management, and operation of the premises. The fact situation is based on Chance v. Lawry's, Inc. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 368, 24 Cal. Rptr. 209, 374 P.2d 185 .

These forms are available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Filling Out Complaint Form

For detailed comments regarding the completion of the complaint form, see the comments to the Judicial Council complaint form in Ch. 380, Negligence . For a general discussion regarding using Judicial Council complaint forms and attachments, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints . The three-page Judicial Council complaint form must be used with the appropriate Judicial Council attachment form.

[4] Filling Out Premises Liability Attachment to Complaint Form

[a] Plaintiff's Name

The attachment states, "Use a separate cause of action form for each cause of action." If there is more than one plaintiff in the action, each plaintiff has a separate cause of action. If this direction is strictly adhered to, a separate premises liability attachment for each plaintiff would have to be attached to the complaint. It is not clear if this is what is intended by the direction at the top of the attachment, because the complaint form, although referring to "plaintiff" (singular) in the caption, seems intended for use by more than one plaintiff due to the wording of Paragraph 2. If the allegations are the same or substantially similar for all plaintiffs, using separate attachments would make the pleading longer than seems necessary.

[b] Description of Premises and Circumstances of Injury (Paragraph Prem.L-1.)

Paragraph Prem.L-1 is completed by inserting the plaintiff's name, the date of the injury, and a brief description of the premises, including its address, and the circumstances surrounding the incident.

It appears that Paragraph Prem.L-1. is directed at the liability of a possessor of property for injuries to a plaintiff while on the premises. However, the form can easily be adapted for use if the plaintiff's injuries occurred while off the premises due to a condition on the defendant's premises. The test of liability is now the same as that for injuries occurring on the premises [see Sprecher v. Adamson Cos. (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 358, 368-372, 178 Cal. Rptr. 783, 636 P.2d 1121] . It is therefore recommended that if the plaintiff's injuries occurred while off the premises, the words "on the following premises" be omitted.

Many practitioners prefer to plead these facts as generally as possible to avoid tying themselves down to a specific set of narrow facts at the pleading stage. By pleading the facts generally, the plaintiff may avoid the necessity of amending the complaint if additional or slightly different facts are revealed through discovery or at trial. Because the basic elements of the cause of action may be generally alleged, there is no apparent benefit to the plaintiff in pleading the facts any more specifically than in the example [see Hoyem v. Manhattan Beach City Sch. Dist. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 508, 513-514, 150 Cal. Rptr. 1, 585 P.2d 851] .

[c] Negligence Count (Paragraph Prem.L-2.)

In Paragraph Prem.L-2, if the plaintiff contends that his or her injury was proximately caused by the defendant's negligence in the ownership, maintenance, management, or operation of the premises described in Paragraph Prem.L-1., the plaintiff should check the box to the left of "Count One-Negligence" and insert the name of each defendant whose negligence may have contributed to the plaintiff's injury.

It is also recommended that the plaintiff check the box to the left of "Does" and insert a sufficient number of Doe defendants so that the complaint may be subsequently amended to include any additional defendants discovered to be potentially liable for the plaintiff's injury. For a discussion of the use of fictitious names and for forms of allegations of fictitious names see Ch. 21, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings , and Ch. 108, Captions and Introductions .

[d] Liability to Recreational Users (Paragraph Prem.L-3)

Paragraph Prem.L-3 is used if the plaintiff's injuries occurred while engaged in a recreational activity on the premises of the defendant and the plaintiff contends that the immunity provisions of Civ. Code § 846 do notapply. For a form of further allegation to attach in this circumstance, see § 421.90.

[e] Dangerous Condition of Public Property (Paragraph Prem.L-4.)

Paragraph Prem.L-4. should be used if the plaintiff was injured as a result of the dangerous condition of public property [see Gov. Code §§ 830-840.6]. If this paragraph is applicable, the box to the left of "Count Three" should be checked, the names of the public entities that owned the land should be inserted, the box to the left of "Does" should be checked, and a number should be inserted for potential Doe public entities.

The boxes preceding Paragraph Prem.L-4.a., Prem.L-4.b., or both should also be checked if applicable. Paragraph Prem.L-4.a. applies if the public entity had actual or constructive notice of the dangerous condition under Gov. Code § 835.2 a sufficient time prior to the injury to have taken measures to protect against the dangerous condition [see Gov. Code § 835]. In using Paragraph Prem.L-4a., counsel should also check the appropriate box for actual or constructive notice. Paragraph Prem.L-4.b. applies if a negligent or wrongful act or omission of an employee of the public entity, acting within the scope of his or her employment, created the dangerous condition [see Gov. Code § 835].

If the plaintiff is suing a public entity, the plaintiff must comply with the appropriate claims statute, which necessitates the completion of Paragraph 9. of the main complaint form.

For a more complete discussion of the liability of a public entity for the dangerous condition of public property and for related forms, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act

[f] Agency Allegations (Prem.L-5.a.)

If individual defendants who contributed to the plaintiff's accident were acting within the scope of their employment at the time, the plaintiff should check the box to the right of Paragraph Prem.L-5.a., insert the names of the individual defendants, check the box to the left of "Does," and insert a sufficient number to be able to amend and insert the names of any other individual employees who may be subsequently discovered to have contributed to the accident. Even if the plaintiff is unaware of the contribution by any employees of any defendant to his or her accident, it is recommended that this paragraph be checked and alleged exclusively against Doe defendants as shown here.

Under the doctrine of respondeat superior, any employer is vicariously liable for the torts of its employees committed within the scope of their employment [Rodgers v. Kemper Constr. Co. (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 608, 617-618, 124 Cal. Rptr. 143 ; see also Civ. Code § 2338]. This is a type of vicarious liability in which the employer can be liable only if the agentor employee is liable. For a more complete discussion of this type of liability, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

[g] Additional Basis of Liability (Paragraph Prem.L-5.b.)

Paragraph Prem.L-5.b. should be checked and an attachment made, if necessary, to allege liability on a basis other than those already discussed.

[5] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude the defendant from using a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case if the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[6] Cross References

For allegations commonly used in pleadings, see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used

For a discussion and forms relating to suing defendants under fictitious names, see Ch. 21, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings , and Ch. 108, Captions and Introductions

For a discussion and alternative forms of complaints, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints

For a discussion and forms relating to liability for the dangerous condition of public land, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Clailms Act

For alternative forms of verification, see Ch. 572, Verification

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART IV. FORMS

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.71

§ 421.71 Complaint for Damages for Personal Injury (and Property Damage) Based on Negligence [Civ. Code § 1714(a)]--By Person on Premises Against Owner or Possessor of Premises--Negligent Maintenance, Control, Management, and Operation of Premises--Dangerous Condition

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages for Personal Injury (and Property Damage) Based on Negligence [Civ. Code § 1714(a)]--By Person on Premises Against Owner or Possessor of Premises--Negligent Maintenance, Control, Management, and Operation of Premises--Dangerous Condition

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____ [name],

_____ [name], Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	COMPLAINT FOR PERSONAL INJURY [AND
[; and DOES 1 through _____, in-	)	PROPERTY DAMAGE] (Negligence)
clusive],	)	[amount demanded _____ (exceeds
Defendant(s).	)	or does not exceed) $10,000]
	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

_____

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant _____ [name] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [state capacity and residence of defendant or other basis of venue, e.g., a resident of _____ County, California or a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of California with its principle place of business in _____ [city], _____ County, California].

[2. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued herein as DOES 1-_____, inclusive, and therefore sues these defendants by such fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and based thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants is negligently responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's injuries as herein alleged were proximately caused by that negligence.)]

[3. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that) (A)t all times herein mentioned each of the defendants was the agent and employee of each of the remaining defendants, and in doing the things hereinafter alleged, was acting within the course and scope of such agency and employment.]

4. At all times herein mentioned, defendant[s, and each of them,] _____ [allege facts showing defendant's possession and control of the premises on which the accident occurred, e.g., owned, maintained, controlled, managed, and operated the business premises known as _____ (name), located at _____ (street address and city), _____ County, California].

5. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff was _____ [allege facts showing status and activity of plaintiff placing him/her in class of persons to whom defendant owed a duty and the location of the accident, e.g., in the foyer of defendant's restaurant waiting to be seated at a table].

6. At the aforementioned time and place, defendant[s, and each of them,] negligently maintained, managed, controlled, and operated _____ [describe premises, e.g., the restaurant], in that _____ [allege acts or omissions of defendant(s) constituting breach of duty to plaintiff, e.g., located in the foyer of defendant's restaurant was an empty, uncovered, and unmarked planter box that defendant(s) knew, or in the exercise of reasonable care should have known, constituted a dangerous condition and unreasonable risk of harm of which plaintiff was at all times herein mentioned unaware. Defendant negligently failed to take steps to either make the condition safe or warn plaintiff of the dangerous condition, all of which caused plaintiff to trip and fall into the open planter box in the foyer and to suffer the injuries and damages hereinafter described].

7. As a proximate result of the negligence of defendant[s, and each of them], plaintiff was hurt and injured in his/her health, strength, and activity, sustaining injury to his/her nervous system and person, all of which injuries have caused, and continue to cause, plaintiff great mental, physical, and nervous pain and suffering. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that such injuries will result in some permanent disability to him/her.] As a result of such injuries, plaintiff has suffered general damages in an amount according to proof.

8. As a further proximate result of the negligence of defendant[s, and each of them], plaintiff has incurred[, and will continue to incur,] medical and related expenses in an amount according to proof.

9. As a further proximate result of the negligence of defendant[s, and each of them], plaintiff's earning capacity has been greatly impaired, both in the past and in the present in an amount according to proof.

[10. As a further proximate result of the negligence of defendant(s, and each of them), plaintiff's _____ (describe personal property) was _____ (damaged or destroyed), all to plaintiff's damage in _____ (the sum of $_____ (, which is the reasonable value of the repairs necessitated by the damages) or an amount according to proof).]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant[s, and each of them,] as follows:

1. For general damages according to proof;

2. For medical and related expenses according to proof;

3. For loss of earnings according to proof;

[4. For damage to personal property _____ (according to proof or in the sum of $_____);]

5. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

6. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification, if desired. See § 421.70.]

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use by a person seeking damages from the possessor of premises for injuries and property damage sustained on those premises due to the negligence of the possessor in the maintenance, management, or operation of the premises. Depending on the facts of the case, counsel may wish to delete paragraphs of the complaint that do not apply. For instance, if counsel is certain that no property damage is involved, Paragraph 10 of the complaint, as well as Paragraph 4 of the prayer, should be omitted. Paragraph 5 sets forth not only the fact of plaintiff's presence on the premises, but the reason for it. Although the status of the plaintiff as an invitee, licensee, or trespasser is no longer determinative on the issue of duty, it is relevant [Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 119, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561] . Therefore, counsel should allege facts showing the status of the person on the premises. A duty to warn of or remedy a dangerous condition on the premises was, under the common law rules, owed solely to an invitee. Because a possessor's liability is now based on negligence, this duty may, however, in the appropriate circumstances, apply to licensees and trespassers.

This form is based on the fact situation in Chance v. Lawry's, Inc. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 368, 24 Cal. Rptr. 209, 374 P.2d 185 .

For the Judicial Council form for this type of complaint, see § 421.70.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges (1) the residence of the defendant (Paragraph 1) and the place of the accident (Paragraphs 4, 5), either one of which may be the basis for venue [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]; (2) the negligence and fictitious names of the defendants sued pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 474 (Paragraph 2); (3) the requisite agency relationship to establish vicarious liability, if applicable (Paragraph 3); (4) facts regarding the plaintiff's status and activity on the premises (Paragraph 5) and facts showing the defendant's ownership or possession and control of the premises (Paragraph 4), both of which establish the duty owed by the defendant to the plaintiff; (6) the actions or omissions of the defendant that constitute the breach of duty and that proximately caused the plaintiff's damages (Paragraph 5); and (6) the plaintiff's damages, consisting of general damages for pain and suffering (Paragraph 7), as well as medical expenses (Paragraph 8), loss of earnings and earning capacity (Paragraph 9), and damages to personal property, if applicable (Paragraph 10). For a discussion of the elements of negligence generally, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

[4] Venue

In an action for injury to person or personal property or for death from wrongful act or negligence, either the county in which the injury occurs or the county in which the defendants, or some of them, reside at the commencement of the action is a proper county for the trial of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]. If venue is based on the situs of the accident, then the allegation of the defendant's residence in Paragraph 1 is not needed.

[5] Specification of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included--for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case or whether it is a limited civil case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115], see Ch. 177, Damages , and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments .

[6] Cross References

For alternative allegations as to agency, capacity, and residence of parties, and fictitious name allegations, see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used

For a discussion of the law and forms relating to damages recoverable in tort actions, see Ch. 177, Damages

For alternative forms of captions and introductions, see Ch. 108, Captions and Introductions

For alternative forms of prayers, see Ch. 420, Prayers

For a discussion of the law and forms relating to slips and falls due to the dangerous condition of premises, see Ch. 525, Slip and Fall

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART IV. FORMS

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.72

§ 421.72 Allegations--By Person on Premises Against Owner or Possessor of Premises--Failure to Protect Person From Noncriminal Acts of Third Party

[1] FORM Allegations--By Person on Premises Against Owner or Possessor of Premises--Failure to Protect Person From Noncriminal Acts of Third Party

1. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff was _____ [allege facts showing status and activity of plaintiff placing him/her in class of persons to whom defendant owed a duty and the location of the accident, e.g., shopping at defendant's shopping mall located at _____, California].

2. At the aforementioned time and place, defendant[s, and each of them,] _____ [allege acts or omissions of defendant(s) constituting breach of duty to plaintiff, e.g., negligently maintained, controlled, managed, and operated the shopping mall, so as to fail to protect plaintiff from injury from _____ (allege noncriminal acts of third party, e.g., being struck by a person riding a bicycle through the corridor of the shopping mall), in that defendant(s) _____ (allege reasonable foreseeability of risk, e.g. knew, or in the exercise of reasonable care, should have known that persons frequently rode bicycles through the corridors of the shopping mall while shoppers were walking through those corridors, but failed to take any precautions to avoid injury to shoppers)].

[2] Use of Form

This form contains allegations for use in a complaint for damages and personal injuries sustained by the plaintiff on the possessor's premises due to the noncriminal actions of a third party on the premises if it is contended that the possessor was negligent in failing to control the actions of the third party. These allegations are adapted from the fact situation in Musgrove v. Ambrose Properties (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 44, 150 Cal. Rptr. 722 .

The allegations may be inserted in the form in § 421.71 in place of Paragraphs 5 and 6. They may also be adapted for use in the premises liability attachment to the Judicial Council form of complaint for personal injury, property damage, or wrongful death [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12]. For a filled-in example of the Judicial Council complaint form, see § 421.70. For a form of allegations involving criminal acts of third persons, see § 421.73. For discussion of a defendant's duty to control the conduct of third persons, see § 421.15.

Counsel should be cautious when using these allegations. Negligence need only be generally pleaded, and a pleading that is overly specific may foreclose the presentation of arguments and evidence or may create difficulties in proving particular facts.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART IV. FORMS

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.73

§ 421.73 Allegations--By Person on Premises Against Owner or Possessor of Premises--Failure to Protect Person From Criminal Acts of Third Party

[1] FORM Allegations By Person on Premises Against Owner or Possessor of Premises--Failure to Protect Person From Criminal Acts of Third Party

1. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff was _____ [allege facts showing the location of the incident and the status and activity of plaintiff placing him/her in the class of persons to whom defendants owed a duty, e.g., in the lobby of defendant's office building located at _____, California, on her way to work in an office in that building].

2. At that time and place, defendant[s, and each of them,] _____ [allege acts or omissions of defendant(s) constituting breach of duty to plaintiff and resulting injury, e.g., negligently maintained, controlled, managed, and operated the office building so as to fail to protect plaintiff from injury from criminal acts of third persons in that defendants _____ (allege reasonable foreseeability of risk, e.g. knew, or in the exercise of reasonable care should have known, that transients and others with no legitimate business in the building frequented the lobby, which was accessible by an unlocked door, but failed to provide adequate security measures to avoid injury to persons working in the building). As a proximate result of defendants' negligence, plaintiff was beaten and robbed at gunpoint in the lobby of the office building, thereby causing the injuries alleged below].

[2] Use of Form

This form contains allegations for use in a complaint for personal injuries, sustained by the plaintiff on premises owned or possessed by the defendant, due to the criminal acts of a third party on the premises. They may be inserted in the form in § 421.71 in place of Paragraphs 5 and 6. They may also be adapted for use in the premises liability attachment to the Judicial Council form of complaint for personal injury, property damage, or wrongful death [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12]. For a filled-in example of the Judicial Council complaint form, see § 421.70. For a form of allegations involving noncriminal acts of third persons, see § 421.72. For discussion of a defendant's duty to control the conduct of third persons, see § 421.15.

Counsel should be cautious when using these allegations, Negligence need only be generally pleaded, and a pleading that is overly specific may foreclose the presentation of arguments and evidence or may create difficulties in proving particular facts [see, e.g., § 421.73[3]].

[3] Prior Similar Incidents Rule

A premises owner or possessor has a duty to protect persons on the premises from the criminal acts of third persons that are reasonably foreseeable [Ann M. v. Pacific Plaza Shopping Ctr. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 666, 676, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 137, 863 P.2d 207] . If the risk of injury from those acts is highly foreseeable, only very burdensome or expensive precautions, such as hiring security guards, may satisfy this duty. In this situation, a plaintiff will almost always be required to establish prior similar incidents of crime on the premises to show that the premises owner or possessor could have reasonably anticipated that this particular type of crime would reoccur [Sharon P. v. Arman, Ltd. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 1181, 1190, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35, 989 P.2d 121 (prior incidents of bank robberies in ground floor bank were insufficient to impose duty on building owner and building's underground parking garage managers to prevent sexual assault in garage); Ann M. v. Pacific Plaza Shopping Ctr. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 666, 678-680, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 137, 863 P.2d 207 (prior incidents of bank robberies and purse snatching not sufficiently similar to establish foreseeability of violent rape)]. If the risk of injury is less than highly foreseeable, other less burdensome or expensive precautions, including oral or written warnings, could satisfy the owner's or possessor's duty [see, e.g., Frances T. v. Village Green Owners Ass'n (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 490, 499-503, 229 Cal. Rptr. 456, 723 P.2d 573 (providing adequate lighting); Kwaitkowski v. Superior Trading Co. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 324, 333, 176 Cal. Rptr. 494 (repair of defective lock)].

[4] Cross References

For a form of complaint by a patron against a tavern owner for failure to protect the patron against the acts of an intoxicated patron, see Ch. 19, Alcoholic Beverages: Civil Liability

For a form of complaint by a tenant against a landlord for personal injuries for failure to provide adequate security against criminal activities, see Ch. 334, Landlord and Tenant: Claims for Damages

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART IV. FORMS

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.74

§ 421.74 Allegations--By Person on Premises Against Security Guard Retained by Owner or Possessor of Premises--Failure to Protect Person From Acts of Third Party

[1] FORM Allegations--By Person on Premises Against Security Guard Retained by Owner or Possessor of Premises--Failure to Protect Person From Acts of Third Party

1. Defendant _____ [name of security guard] was hired by defendant _____ [name of owner or possessor of premises] to provide security on the premises. [(Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that) (A)t all times mentioned herein, defendant _____ (name of security guard) was acting in the course and scope of his/her employment (and with the permission and consent of defendant _____ (name of owner or possessor)).]

2. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff was _____ [allege facts showing status and activity of plaintiff placing him/her in class of persons to whom defendants owed a duty and the location of the accident, e.g., waiting in his car at the drive-up service window of defendant owner's fast food restaurant].

3. At the aforementioned time and place, defendant[s, and each of them,] _____ [allege acts or omissions of defendant(s) constituting breach of duty to plaintiff, e.g., negligently failed to protect the customers from a situation involving third persons who defendant security guard knew, or in the exercise of reasonable care should have known, constituted a danger to plaintiff].

[2] Use of Form

This form contains allegations for use in a complaint for damages and personal injuries sustained by plaintiff on the owner's or possessor's premises due to the actions of a third party on the premises. These allegations are adapted from the fact situation in Marois v. Royal Investigation & Patrol, Inc. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 193, 208 Cal. Rptr. 384 .

The liability of the defendant security guard is based on the contention that the owner or possessor had hired a security service to protect its customers and that the security guard was negligent because he or she failed to act as a reasonable security guard would under similar circumstances [see Marois v. Royal Investigation & Patrol, Inc. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 193, 199-200, 208 Cal. Rptr. 384 (security guard hired by owner of premises has special relationship with customers that requires affirmative action to protect customers while on the business premises, including reasonable actions in response to acts of third persons)]. The negligence of the security guard may also serve as the basis for the liability of the owner or possessor of the premises to the plaintiff, under the theory of respondeat superior, if the negligent security guard was acting in the scope and course of his or her employment at the time.

These allegations may be inserted in the form in § 421.71 in place of Paragraphs 5 and 6. The allegations may also be adapted for use in the premises liability attachment to the Judicial Council form of complaint for personal injury, property damage, or wrongful death [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12]. For a filled-in example of the Judicial Council complaint form, see § 421.70. For discussion of a defendant's duty to control the conduct of third persons, see § 421.15.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART IV. FORMS

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.75

§ 421.75 Allegations--By Person on Premises Against Contractor Working on Premises--Negligence [Civ. Code § 1714(a)]

[1] FORM Allegations--By Person on Premises Against Contractor Working on Premises--Negligence [Civ. Code § 1714(a)]

1. On or about _____ [date], defendants _____ [names of employees] were the agents, servants, and employees of defendant _____ [specify, e.g., construction company] and were acting within the course and scope of their agency, service, and employment in doing the things herein alleged.

2. At such time and place, defendants, and each of them, _____ [allege facts showing activity of defendants on the premises that establishes a duty to persons thereon, e.g., were remodeling the foyer in the restaurant known as _____ (name), located at _____ (street and city), _____ County, California].

3. At the aforementioned time and place, plaintiff was _____ [allege facts showing status and activity of plaintiff placing him/her in class of persons to whom defendants owed a duty and the location of the accident, e.g., walking on the pathway leading to the entrance of the restaurant to eat lunch at the restaurant].

4. At the aforementioned time and place, defendants, and each of them, _____ [allege acts or omissions of defendants constituting breach of duty to plaintiff, e.g., failed to use reasonable care to prevent damage to plaintiff whom defendants knew or should have known would be affected by the work being performed by defendants, in that defendants negligently left a planter box uncovered and unguarded and negligently failed to install a warning sign at or near the planter box. As a result of the negligence of defendants, and each of them, plaintiff fell into the open planter box and sustained the injuries and damages hereinafter described].

[2] Use of Form

This form contains allegations for use in a complaint against a contractor working on the premises for injuries and damages sustained on the premises due to the contractor's negligence. These allegations are adapted from the fact situation in Chance v. Lawry's, Inc. 58 Cal. 2d 368, 24 Cal. Rptr. 209, 374 P.2d 185 .

Although the liability of a contractor working on premises to persons on those premises is not strictly premises liability, these allegations may be inserted in the form in § 421.71 in place of Paragraphs 4-6. Prior to the decision of Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 119, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561 , which held that a possessor's duty of care was governed by principles of negligence, the California Supreme Court held that the duty of a contractor working on the premises was not that of a possessor of premises and was therefore not governed by the status of the person on the premises. Instead, a contractor's duty is to use reasonable care to prevent damage to persons whom the contractor may reasonably expect to be affected by the contractor's work [Chance v. Lawry's, Inc. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 368, 378, 24 Cal. Rptr. 209, 374 P.2d 185] . These allegations may also be adapted for use in the general negligence attachment to the Judicial Council form of complaint for personal injury, property damage, or wrongful death [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12]. For a filled-in example of the Judicial Council complaint form, see § 421.70. For discussion of liability for the acts of independent contractors, see §§ 421.30 -421.34.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART IV. FORMS

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.76

§ 421.76 Allegations--By Person on Premises Against Possessor or Owner Employing Independent Contractor--Negligence of Contractor--Peculiar Risk of Harm

[1] FORM Allegations--By Person on Premises Against Possessor or Owner Employing Independent Contractor--Negligence of Contractor--Peculiar Risk of Harm

1. At all times mentioned herein, _____ [name of independent contractor] was _____ [allege facts showing the employment of the contractor by defendant(s) and the work the contractor was employed to perform, e.g., employed by defendant(s) to remodel the foyer of the restaurant and install a planter box in the foyer and was engaged in such employment].

2. At all times mentioned herein, defendant(s) knew or should have known that _____ [describe activity of independent contractor on premises, e.g., the remodeling work] was likely to create during its progress a peculiar risk of harm to _____ [specify persons on the premises, e.g., patrons of the restaurant] unless special precautions were taken, in that _____ [allege facts showing that the harm to plaintiff was a peculiar risk of harm, e.g., during the course of the remodeling work, the planter box being installed was empty and if left unguarded or unmarked would constitute a hazard to persons in the foyer of the restaurant].

3. Defendant(s) negligently maintained, managed, controlled, and operated the premises, in that defendant(s) and _____ [name of independent contractor] _____ [allege failure to take special precautions against the peculiar risk of harm and resulting harm to plaintiff, e.g., negligently failed to take precautions to guard against the risk of patrons of the restaurant falling into the empty planter box, because the planter box was uncovered, unguarded, and unmarked, all of which caused plaintiff to fall into the planter box, proximately causing the damages and injuries hereinafter described].

[2] Use of Form

This form contains allegations for use in a complaint against a possessor of premises employing an independent contractor to do work on the premises for injuries and damages sustained by a person on the premises due to the negligence of the independent contractor in failing to take precautions against a peculiar risk of harm [see Griesel v. Dart Indus., Inc. (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 578, 586, 153 Cal. Rptr. 213, 591 P.2d 503] . They may be inserted in the form in §

421.71 in place of Paragraph 6. They may also be adapted for use in the premises liability attachment to the Judicial Council form of complaint for damages resulting from personal injury, property damage, or wrongful death [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12]. For a filled-in example of the Judicial Council complaint form, see § 421.70.

The rule in California had been that an employee of an independent contractor, who was injured due to the negligence of the contractor, could sue the hirer under the peculiar risk doctrine [Privette v. Superior Court(1993) 5 Cal. 4th 689, 696, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 72, 854 P.2d 721 ; see also Woolen v. Aerojet Gen. Corp. (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 407, 410-411, 20 Cal. Rptr. 12, 369 P.2d 708 (case initially expanding expanded doctrine)]. However, the California Supreme Court has subsequently held that an employee in this situation is limited to recovery of workers' compensation benefits and is not entitled to recover from the hirer under the peculiar risk doctrine [Privette v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 689, 701-702, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 72, 854 P.2d 721] .

For further discussion of the peculiar risk doctrine, see § 421.32.

[3] Cross References

For a discussion of the law relating to liability for acts of an independent contractor, see Ch. 380, Negligence

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART IV. FORMS

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.77

§ 421.77 Allegations--By Person on Premises Against Owner or Possessor of Adjoining Property--Liability Arising From Control of Premises

[1] FORM Allegations--By Person on Premises Against Owner or Possessor of Adjoining Property--Liability Arising From Control of Premises

1. At all times mentioned herein, defendant[s, and each of them,] _____ [allege facts showing ownership or possession by defendant(s) of property adjoining premises, e.g., owned, maintained, controlled, managed, and operated the premises located at _____ (street address and city), _____ County, California].

2. On _____ [date], plaintiff _____ [allege facts showing the status and activity of plaintiff and the nature and location of the accident, e.g., drove her car into the parking lot of defendant's store. Because this lot was full, she proceeded into the adjoining lot, where she had previously observed persons parking their cars and then patronizing defendant's store. She parked her car, went into defendant's store, purchased several items, and proceeded to her car in the adjoining lot. Before she reached her car, she was attacked by an unknown person who pushed her to the ground and took her purse].

3. At all times mentioned herein, defendant[s, and each of them,] _____ [allege facts showing control by defendant(s) of premises on which injury occurred, e.g., knew that customers of its store were using the adjoining lot as a parking area while patronizing the store, and also knew that persons were loitering in the lot. On several prior occasions, employees of defendant(s) had called the police to complain about the presence of these persons and to request the police to remove them. The lease for the store contained provisions authorizing nonexclusive use of the lot by defendant(s) for customer parking. Defendant(s) had neither warned customers about the persons loitering in the lot nor discouraged customers from using the lot as a parking area].

[2] Use of Form

This form contains allegations for use in a complaint by a person injured on premises against the owner or possessor of adjoining property who controlled the premises where the injury occurred. They may be inserted in the form in § 421.71 in place of Paragraphs 4 and 5. They may also be adapted for use in the premises liability attachment to the Judicial Council form of complaint for personal injury, property damage, or wrongful death [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12]. For a filled-in example of the Judicial Council complaint form, see § 421.70.

For discussion of the premises liability of owners and possessors of adjoining property, see § 421.12[7].

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART IV. FORMS

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.78

§ 421.78 Allegations--By Person Off Premises Against Owner or Possessor of Premises--Dangerous Condition on Premises

[1] FORM Allegations--By Person Off Premises Against Owner or Possessor of Premises--Dangerous Condition on Premises

1. At all times mentioned herein, defendant[s, and each of them,] _____ [allege facts showing possession and control of the premises by defendant(s), e.g., owned, maintained, controlled, managed, and operated the premises located at _____ (street address and city), _____ County, California].

2. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff was _____ [allege facts showing status and activity of plaintiff placing him/her in a class of persons to whom defendant(s) owed a duty, and nature and location of the accident, e.g., walking on the sidewalk past the premises described above when a limb from a tree located on the premises and overhanging the sidewalk fell on plaintiff].

3. At the aforementioned time and place, defendant[s, and each of them,] _____ [allege acts or omissions of defendant(s) constituting breach of duty to plaintiff, e.g., negligently maintained, controlled, managed, and operated the premises, in that defendant(s) knew or in the exercise of reasonable care should have known that the overhanging tree, if not properly maintained, constituted an unreasonable risk of harm to passersby. Defendant(s) negligently failed to maintain the tree in safe condition, all of which proximately caused plaintiff's injuries and damages, which are described below].

[2] Use of Form

This form contains allegations are for use in a complaint against a possessor by a person injured while off the possessor's premises due to a condition on the possessor's property. They may be inserted in the form in § 421.71 in place of Paragraphs 4 through 6. They may also be adapted for use in the premises liability attachment to the Judicial Council form of complaint for personal injury, property damage, or wrongful death [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12]. For a filled-in example of the Judicial Council complaint form, see § 421.70. For discussion of the duty to persons outside the premises, see § 421.17.

[3] Cross References

For discussion relating to the liability of a possessor of abutting property for the negligent maintenance of sidewalks, see Ch. 525, Slip and Fall

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART IV. FORMS

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 421.79-421.89

[Reserved]

§§ 421.79[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART IV. FORMS

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.90

§ 421.90 Allegation of Liability to Recreational User [Civ. Code § 846]--Premises Liability Attachment to Judicial Council Complaint--Cal. Judicial Council Form PLD-PI-001(4)

[1] FORM Allegation of Liability to Recreational User [Civ. Code § 846]--Premises Liability Attachment to Judicial Council Complaint--Cal. Judicial Council Form PLD-PI-001(4)

Click here to view image.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an attachment to be used together with the Judicial Council form of complaint for personal injury, property damage, or wrongful death [see § 421.70] if the plaintiff sustained injuries and damages on the defendant's property while engaged in a recreational use of the property and contends that theimmunity provisions of Civ. Code § 846 do not apply to bar recovery.

The immunity provisions of Civ. Code § 846 do not limit the liability that otherwise exists: (1) for a willful failure to warn or guard against a dangerous condition, use, structure, or activity; (2) for injury suffered in any case in which permission to enter for a recreational purpose was granted for a consideration other than the consideration, if any, paid by the state, or if consideration has been received from others for the same purpose; or (3) to any persons who are expressly invited rather than merely permitted to come on the premises by the landowner [Civ. Code § 846].

For discussion of liability to recreational users, see §§ 421.20 -421.23.

[3] Filling Out Premises Liability Attachment

[a] Negligence (Paragraph Prem.L-2)

If liability is predicated on negligence alone and not willful failure to warn, Paragraph Prem.L-2 should be checked. To predicate liability on negligence alone, either the plaintiff must be an invited guest or consideration must have been paid by the plaintiff or others for the same purpose [see Civ. Code § 846]. Not only are the allegations as to the status of the plaintiff contained only in Paragraph Prem.L-3, these allegations only address the status of the plaintiff as a "paying guest" or "invited guest" and not the situation in which consideration is received from others for the same purpose. It is therefore recommended that if liability is predicated on negligence alone and only Paragraph Prem.L-2 is used, counsel should insert the appropriate allegation as to the plaintiff's status as a paying or invited guest or an allegation as to the receipt of consideration from others in Paragraph Prem.L-1, together with the description of the premises and the circumstances of the injury.

[b] Willful Failure to Warn (Paragraph Prem.L-3)

If liability is predicated on a willful failure to warn or guard against a dangerous condition, use, structure, or activity, Paragraph Prem.L-3 should be checked. A possessor may be liable for willful failure to warn or guard against a dangerous condition, use, structure, or activity, even if the plaintiff is not an invited guest and if no consideration has been paid by the plaintiff or received by others [see Civ. Code § 846]. Therefore, counsel need not check the boxes opposite "paying guest" or "invited guest" if Paragraph Prem.L-3 is used.

[c] Punitive Damages

It appears that if liability is predicated on malicious failure to warn or guard against a dangerous condition, use, structure, or activity, punitive damages may be recoverable in the appropriate case [see Civ. Code § 3294]. If so, the Judicial Council exemplary damages attachment should be used. For an example of a completed exemplary damages attachment form, see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.10 et seq.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART IV. FORMS

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.91

§ 421.91 Complaint for Damages for Personal Injury (and Property Damage) Based on Negligence [Civ. Code § 1714(a)]--By Recreational User Against Owner of Real Property [Civ. Code § 846]

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages for Personal Injury (and Property Damage) Based on Negligence [Civ. Code § 1714(a)]--By Recreational User Against Owner of Real Property [Civ. Code § 846]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR PERSONAL INJURY [AND
_____ [name]	)	PROPERTY DAMAGE] (Negligence)
[; and DOES 1 through _____, in-	)	[amount demanded _____ (exceeds clusive],	)	or does not exceed) $10,000]
Defendant(s).	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]
	)

_____

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity of defendant(s) and, if appropriate, residency allegation. See § 421.71[1], Paragraph 1].

2. [Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 421.71[1], Paragraph 2].

3. [Agency allegation, if appropriate. See § 421.71[1], Paragraph 3].

4. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff was _____ [allege facts showing status and activity of plaintiff and the location of the accident, e.g., hunting deer on real property located in _____ County, California, described as _____ [describe property], when plaintiff

_____ [describe circumstances of injury or damage, e.g., fell through the wooden planks in the bridge located on the premises].

5. At the aforementioned time and place, defendant[s, and each of them,] _____ [allege facts showing possession and control of the premises on which the accident occurred by defendant(s), e.g., owned, maintained, controlled, managed, and operated the premises].

6. Prior to the aforementioned _____ [allege facts showing status of plaintiff placing him/her in class of persons to whom defendant(s) owed a duty and taking the action out of the immunity provisions of Civ. Code § 846, e.g., plaintiff was expressly invited by defendant(s) to enter the premises to hunt or plaintiff paid defendant a fee of $_____ specifically for the right to enter the premises to hunt].

7. At the aforementioned time and place, defendant[s, and each of them,] negligently maintained, controlled, managed, and operated the premises, in that _____ [allege acts or omissions of defendant(s) constituting breach of duty to plaintiff, e.g., defendant(s) knew or, in the exercise of reasonable care, should have known that the wooden bridge was at all times in a dangerous condition and constituted an unreasonable risk of harm to plaintiff of which plaintiff was at all times unaware. Defendant(s) negligently failed to maintain the bridge in safe condition or warn plaintiff of its unsafe condition, so that plaintiff, in crossing the bridge, fell through the rotting wooden planks and suffered the injuries hereinafter described].

8. [General damages allegation. See § 421.71[1], Paragraph 7].

9. [Allegation of medical expenses. See § 421.71[1], Paragraph 8].

10. [Allegation of impairment of earning capacity. See § 421.71[1], Paragraph 9].

11. [Allegation of property damage, if appropriate. See § 421.71[1], Paragraph 10].

[Prayer. See § 421.71[1]]

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification, if desired. See § 421.70.]

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use if the plaintiff, as a recreational user, sustains injuries and damages on the defendant's premises due to the negligence of the defendant and if the plaintiff contends that the immunity provisions of Civ. Code § 846 do not apply because either the plaintiff was an invited guest or consideration was paid by the plaintiff or received by the defendant from others for permission to enter on the premises for a recreational purpose [see Civ. Code § 846].

For the Judicial Council form for this type of complaint, see § 421.70. For special allegations to add when using the Judicial Council form, see § 421.90. For discussion of liability to recreational users who are expressly invited to enter the premises or enter those premises in exchange for consideration, see § 421.23[4]] and 421.23[5].

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART IV. FORMS

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.92

§ 421.92 Allegations--By Recreational User Against Owner of Real Property--Willful or Malicious Failure to Warn or Guard [Civ. Code § 846]

[1] FORM Allegations--By Recreational User Against Owner of Real Property--Willful or Malicious Failure to Warn or Guard [Civ. Code § 846]

1. At the aforementioned time and place, defendant[s, and each of them,] failed to warn plaintiff of and guard against _____ [allege dangerous condition, use, activity, or structure, e.g., the dangerous condition and structure of the deteriorating and rotting condition of the wooden planks on the bridge located on the premises], of which plaintiff was at all times unaware.

2. Such conduct on the part of defendant(s) was at all times willful and malicious, in that _____ [allege facts showing willful or malicious failure to warn e.g., defendant(s) knew that persons hunting deer on the property were required to use the bridge in the course of hunting to cross the stream on the property, knew that on three previous occasions deer hunters had fallen through the planks on the bridge and suffered serious injuries, and knew that persons attempting to cross the bridge could not ascertain that the bridge was in a dangerous and deteriorating condition before crossing it].

[3. Notwithstanding the above-mentioned knowledge on the part defendant(s), the failure of defendant(s) to warn was done _____ (allege facts justifying punitive damages, if appropriate, e.g., in willful and conscious disregard of the safety of deer hunters or with knowledge that serious injury to deer hunters would result).]

[2] Use of Form

This form contains allegations for use if the plaintiff, as a recreational user, sustains injuries and damages on the defendant's premises and contends that the immunity provisions of Civ. Code § 846 do not apply because the injuries and damages were due to the defendant's willful or malicious failure to warn or guard against a dangerous condition, use, structure, or activity on the premises [see Civ. Code § 846]. These allegations may be inserted in the form in § 421.91 in place of Paragraphs 5 and 6. If the plaintiff is also alleging negligence on the part of defendant, these allegations should be used in addition to the allegations in the form in § 421.91. These allegations may also be adapted for use in the premises liability attachment to the Judicial Council form of complaint for personal injury, property damage, or wrongful death [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12; see §§ 421.70, 421.90].

In alleging that the defendant's conduct was willful and malicious (Paragraph 2), the plaintiff should be sure to allege facts demonstrating that: (1) the defendant had actual or constructive knowledge of the peril to be apprehended; (2) the defendant had actual or constructive knowledgethat injury was a probable result of the danger; and (3) the defendant exhibited a conscious failure to act to avoid the peril [see Nazar v. Rodeffer (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 546, 552, 229 Cal. Rptr. 209 (plaintiff's "mere conclusory general statement that defendants acted willfully and maliciously in failing to warn about [danger]" was not sufficient pleading); see also Termini v. United States (9th Cir. 1992) 963 F.2d 1264, 1267-1268] .

It appears that punitive damages may also be recovered in appropriate circumstances [see Civ. Code § 3294(a), (c)(1)]. If plaintiff is seeking punitive damages, the allegation in Paragraph 3 should be used as well as a prayer for punitive damages.

For discussion of liability to recreational users for willful or malicious failure to guard or warn, see § 421.23[3].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART IV. FORMS

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 421.93-421.99

[Reserved]

§§ 421.93[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART IV. FORMS

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.100

§ 421.100 Affirmative Defense Allegation--Comparative Negligence of Plaintiff--Obvious Danger

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense Allegation--Comparative Negligence of Plaintiff--Obvious Danger

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES:

Plaintiff failed to exercise reasonable and ordinary care, caution, or prudence for his/her own safety in order to avoid the alleged accident. The resulting injuries and damages, if any, sustained by plaintiff were proximately caused and contributed to by the negligence of plaintiff[, in that, among other things, _____ (set out acts or omissions of plaintiff constituting negligence, e.g., the open planter box in the foyer of the restaurant and any possible danger from it was obvious to anyone using reasonable care in walking in the foyer, and plaintiff failed to look where s/he was stepping)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is an affirmative defense for insertion in an answer to a complaint based on the negligence of the defendant in the management of the defendant's property.

The Judicial Council has approved a form of an answer to the complaint for personal injury, property damage, and wrongful death. For an example of a filled-in answer form, see Ch. 380, Negligence . If using the answer form provided by the Judicial Council, this paragraph should be inserted in Paragraph 4.

If more than one affirmative defense is set forth in the answer, each defense must be separately stated [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(g)] and numbered [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.112(1)]. If the complaint sets forth more than one cause of action, the affirmative defense must refer to the cause of action it is intended to answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(g)].

For discussion of the effect of comparative negligence on the duty to maintain premises in a safe condition, see § 421.14[4].

[3] Pleading Comparative Negligence

Many practitioners prefer to plead facts as generally as possible to avoid tying themselves down to a specific set of narrow facts at the pleading stage. The basic elements of negligence may be generally alleged in a complaint or answer [see Hoyem v. Manhattan Beach City Sch. Dist. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 508, 513-514, 150 Cal. Rptr. 1, 585 P.2d 851 ; Singer v. Superior Court (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 318, 323, 5 Cal. Rptr. 697, 353 P.2d 305] . Therefore, it is likely that a defendant can plead the plaintiff's comparative fault generally and omit the allegations of the specific actions of the plaintiff set out as optional language in the example.

[4] Cross References

For discussion, forms, and a list of many affirmative defenses, see Ch. 26, Answers

For discussion and forms relating to comparative negligence, see Ch. 380, Negligence

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART IV. FORMS

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.101

§ 421.101 Affirmative Defense Allegation--Comparative Negligence of Plaintiff--Assumption of Risk

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense Allegation--Comparative Negligence of Plaintiff--Assumption of Risk

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES:

Plaintiff failed to exercise reasonable and ordinary care, caution, or prudence for his/her own safety to avoid the alleged accident. The negligence of plaintiff proximately caused and contributed to the resulting injuries and damages, if any, sustained by plaintiff, in that, among other things, _____ (set out acts or omissions of plaintiff constituting negligence, e.g., plaintiff walked down the wet sloping lawn area between his/her apartment and the garbage dumpster wearing rubber-soled sandals. Plaintiff had previously lost his/her balance in this area, thought the area was dangerous, and knew that other people had previously slipped and/or fallen in this area. Plaintiff could have taken other routes to the garbage dumpster, but chose this route as most convenient to him/her)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is an affirmative defense for insertion in an answer to a complaint based on the negligence of the defendant in the management of his or her property, if it is the contention of the defendant that the plaintiff assumed the risk and comparative fault principles therefore apply.

For discussion of assumption of risk and comparative negligence as defenses to an action for failure to maintain premises in a safe condition, see § 421.14[4].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART IV. FORMS

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.102

§ 421.102 Affirmative Defense Allegation--Plaintiff as Recreational User [Civ. Code § 846]

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense Allegation--Plaintiff as Recreational User [Civ. Code § 846]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES:

The action is barred by the provisions of Civil Code Section 846, in that at the time and place of the alleged accident, plaintiff was on the property for a recreational purpose, and permission to enter on the premises was not granted for consideration nor was plaintiff expressly invited to come on the premises.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an affirmative defense for insertion in an answer to the complaint based on the negligence of a defendant in the management of his or her property, if it is the contention of the defendant that there was no duty to the plaintiff pursuant to Civ. Code § 846. It may also be used as a ground for demurrer to the complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30; see also Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings].

For discussion of immunity from liability to recreational users, see §§ 421.20 -421.23.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART IV. FORMS

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.103

§ 421.103 Affirmative Defense Allegation--Plaintiff as Felon [Civ. Code § 847(a)]

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense Allegation]--Plaintiff as Felon [Civ. Code § 847(a)]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action stated, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that defendant is not liable to plaintiff pursuant to the provisions of Civil Code Section 847(a), in that _____ [plaintiff was injured or plaintiff's decedent was killed] on defendant's property as the proximate result of _____ [plaintiff's or plaintiff's decedent's] conduct _____ [in the course of or after] the commission of a felony specified in Civil Code Section 847(a). _____ [Plaintiff or Plaintiff's decedent] was convicted of _____ [specify felony, or misdemeanor that is a lesser included offense arising from a charge of a felony, listed in Civ. Code § 847(b), e.g., burglary] on _____ [date], in the action entitled _____ [specify title of criminal action in which plaintiff was convicted] in the Superior Court of California, _____ County, Case number _____.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an affirmative defense for insertion into an answer to a complaint based on the negligence of a defendant in the management of his or her property, if it is the contention of the defendant that the plaintiff was injured during or after the commission of a felony, and that liability is therefore precluded by Civ. Code § 847(a).

Although Civ. Code § 847(a) precludes liability for both injury and death, if the person alleged to be a felon was killed during the commission of the alleged felony, it seems unlikely that the defense will be successful because of the requirement that the person have been charged and convicted of the felony (or a lesser included crime) [Civ. Code § 847(e)]. The statute does not provide for any alternative means of establishing that the plaintiff's decedent was guilty of a crime specified in Civ. Code § 847(b) if no criminal proceeding was instituted.

For discussion of the lack of liability for injuries incurred during or after the commission of a felony, see § 421.11[5].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART IV. FORMS

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.104

§ 421.104 Affirmative Defense Allegation--Plaintiff as Gleaner [Civ. Code § 846.2]

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense Allegation--Plaintiff as Gleaner [Civ. Code § 846.2]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that he or she is not liable to plaintiff pursuant to the provisions of Civil Code Section 846.2, in that plaintiff was expressly invited onto defendant's property to glean _____ [agricultural or farm] products for charitable purposes.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an affirmative defense for insertion into an answer to a complaint based on the negligence of the defendant in the management of his or her property, if it is the contention of the defendant that the plaintiff was invited onto the defendant's property to glean agricultural or farm products, and that liability is therefore precluded by Civ. Code § 846.2. This immunity does not apply if the owner received any consideration for permitting the gleaning activity [Civ. Code § 846.2].

For discussion of the lack of liability for injuries incurred during gleaning, see § 421.11[6].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART IV. FORMS

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 421.105-421.109

[Reserved]

§§ 421.105[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART IV. FORMS

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.110

§ 421.110 Complaint for Damages for Property Damage Based on Negligence [Civ. Code § 1714(a)]--By Person Off Premises Against Owner or Possessor of Premises--Injury to Real Property Resulting From Condition on Premises

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages for Property Damage Based on Negligence [Civ. Code § 1714(a)]--By Person Off Premises Against Owner or Possessor of Premises--Injury to Real Property Resulting From Condition on Premises

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name], Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	COMPLAINT FOR PROPERTY DAMAGE
[and DOES 1 through _____,]	)	(Negligence)
Defendant(s).	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]
	)	[amount demanded _____ (exceeds
	)	or does not exceed) $10,000]

_____

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Plaintiff is, and at all times herein mentioned was, the owner of _____ [describe real property, e.g., a residence] located at _____ [street address], _____ County, California.

2. [Capacity and residence of defendant(s). See § 421.71[1], Paragraph 1.]

[3. Fictitious name allegation. See § 421.71[1], Paragraph 2.]

[4. Agency allegation. See § 421.71[1], Paragraph 3.]

5. At all times herein mentioned, defendant[s, and each of them,] _____ [allege facts showing possession and control of the premises by defendant(s), e.g., owned, maintained, controlled, managed, and operated the premises located at _____ (street address and city), _____ County, California].

6. On or about _____ [date], _____ [allege facts showing the nature of the condition causing the damage, e.g., a landslide located on the premises of defendant(s) moved and caused plaintiff's residence to rotate and press against the neighboring residence located at _____ (street address)].

7. At the aforementioned time and place, defendant[s, and each of them,] negligently maintained, controlled, managed, and operated their premises, in that _____ [allege acts or omissions of defendant(s) constituting breach of duty to plaintiff, e.g., defendant(s) knew or should have known that the landslide located on the premises constituted an unreasonable risk of harm to neighboring residences if not properly corrected or controlled. Defendant(s) negligently failed to correct or control the landslide, all of which proximately caused the damages to plaintiff which are described below].

8. As a proximate result of the negligence of defendant[s, and each of them,] plaintiff's _____ [describe property, e.g., residence] has been _____ [damaged or destroyed], all to plaintiff's damage in _____ [an amount of $_____ or an amount according to proof].

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant[s, and each of them,] as follows:

1. For general damages _____ [in the sum of $_____ or according to proof];

2. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification, if desired. See § 421.70.]

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use against a possessor of premises for damages to the plaintiff's real property resulting from a condition on the premises of the possessor. If the plaintiff has also sustained personal injuries from the condition, the allegations in the form in § 421.78 may be added to the complaint.

This form is adapted from the fact situation in Sprecher v. Adamson Cos. (1981) 30 Cal. 3d 358, 361, 178 Cal. Rptr. 783, 636 P.2d 1121 .

Counsel may also initiate the action through use of the Judicial Council form of complaint for personal injury, property damage, or wrongful death, using the premises liability attachment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12]. For a filled-in example of a Judicial Council form of complaint, see § 421.70.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges (1) facts showing the plaintiff's status as a property owner and the defendant's ownership or possession and control of nearby premises (Paragraphs 4 and 5), thereby establishing a duty owed by the defendant to the plaintiff [see § 421.17]; (2) a description of the condition of the defendant's premises that caused the damage to the plaintiff (Paragraph 6); (3) actions or omissions of the defendant that constitute the breach of duty and that proximately caused the plaintiff's damages (Paragraph 7); and (4) damages to the plaintiff's real property (Paragraph 8) [see Civ. Code § 3333].

[4] Venue

Venue for actions for injuries to real property is the county in which the real property is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)]. For further discussion about pleading venue, see Ch. 571, Venue .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART IV. FORMS

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.111

§ 421.111 Allegations--Defendant's Negligent Impoundment of Water Flooded Plaintiff's Property

[1] FORM Allegations--Defendant's Negligent Impoundment of Water Flooded Plaintiff's Property

1. From _____ [date], to _____ [date], defendant[s, and each of them], _____ [set forth facts indicating the creation, maintenance, or control of impounded waters, e.g., dredged a portion of a canal and pumped the water from the canal into an earthen levee adjoining plaintiff's property].

2. The aforementioned actions of defendant[s, and each of them], were negligent in that _____ [describe the acts or omissions indicating a breach of duty to plaintiff, e.g., the walls of the levee rose five feet higher than the ground, noticeable seepage of water from the levee to plaintiff's land occurred as soon as the pumping began, water flowed from the levee to plaintiff's land as soon as the level of the levee water reached ground level, and pumping was continued until the water was within six inches of the top of the levee].

[2] Use of Form

This form contains allegations for use in a complaint if the condition on the defendant's premises that caused injury to the plaintiff's property is an impoundment of waters, such as a reservoir, dike, or levee. The allegations may be inserted in the form in § 421.110 in place of Paragraphs 6 and 7. There is some case law suggesting that there may be strict liability for the escape of impounding waters [see § 421.45[1]].

This form is adapted from the fact situation in Kleinclaus v. Marin Realty Co. (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 733, 735-736, 211 P.2d 582 .

[3] Alternative Recovery on Nuisance Theory

Injury based on impoundment of water may also support recovery on a theory of private nuisance, as well as on a theory of negligence, in which case injunctive relief may be available in addition to damages [see, e.g., Callison v. Mt. Shasta Power Corp. (1932) 123 Cal. App. 247, 255-256, 11 P.2d 60] . Therefore, in an appropriate case this form may be combined with a form of complaint for damages and injunctive relief based on private nuisance [see § 421.50]. For general forms of complaint for damages and injunctive relief to abate a private nuisance, and for a form of allegations based on the diversion of naturally accumulated waters, see Ch. 391, Nuisance .

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART IV. FORMS

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.112

§ 421.112 Allegations--Defendant's Unreasonable Discharge of Surface Water Onto Plaintiff's Property

[1] FORM Allegations--Defendant's Unreasonable Discharge of Surface Water Onto Plaintiff's Property

1. From _____ [date], to _____ [date], defendant[s, and each of them], _____ [set forth facts describing procedures by which surface waters were discharged onto plaintiff's property, e.g., leveled and paved the western portion of defendant's land where it adjoined plaintiff's property, resulting in a much sharper drop off to plaintiff's property, and later installed downspouts through which rainwater from defendant's entire parcel of land was collected and discharged onto plaintiff's property].

2. The aforementioned actions of defendant[s, and each of them], in discharging the surface water were unreasonable in that _____ [describe facts indicating unreasonableness, e.g., the amount of surface water discharged onto plaintiff's property was increased tenfold due to the angle of the slope being changed from 30 degrees to 75 degrees, and due to the discharge of the entire amount of surface water from defendant's parcel, instead of merely that amount that would naturally flow onto plaintiff's property].

[2] Use of Form

This form contains allegations for use in a complaint if the condition on the defendant's premises causing injury to plaintiff's property is an unreasonable discharge of surface waters. Each landowner must take reasonable care in using his or her property to avoid injury to adjacent property through the flow of surface waters [Keys v. Romley (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 396, 406-409, 50 Cal. Rptr. 273, 412 P.2d 529 ; see § 421.43[1]]. The allegations may be inserted in the form in § 421.110 in place of Paragraphs 6 and 7.

This form is adapted from the fact situation in Keys v. Romley (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 396, 398-399, 50 Cal. Rptr. 273, 412 P.2d 529 .

[3] Alternative Recovery on Nuisance Theory

Injury based on the discharge of water may also support recovery on a theory of private nuisance, as well as on a theory of negligence, in which case injunctive relief may be available in addition to damages [see, e.g., Callison v. Mt. Shasta

Power Corp. (1932) 123 Cal. App. 247, 255-256, 11 P.2d 60 (flooding caused by impoundment of water)]. Therefore, in an appropriate case this form may be combined with a form of complaint for damages and injunctive relief based on private nuisance [see § 421.50]. For general forms of complaint for damages and injunctive relief to abate a private nuisance, and for a form of allegations based on the diversion of naturally accumulated waters, see Ch. 391, Nuisance .

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART IV. FORMS

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.113

§ 421.113 Allegations--Defendant's Unreasonable Discharge of Surface Waters--Discharge Into Natural Watercourse

[1] FORM Allegations--Defendant's Unreasonable Discharge of Surface Waters--Discharge Into Natural Watercourse

1. At all times herein mentioned, _____ [specify watercourse, e.g., Muddy River] was and now is a natural watercourse flowing in a generally [specify direction, e.g., southerly] direction along the above-described properties of the plaintiff and the defendant.

2. From _____ [date], to _____ [date], defendant _____ [set forth facts describing improvements and uses of defendant's upper riparian property that resulted in an increased volume of surface waters discharged into the natural watercourse, e.g., installed storm drains and culverts.]

3. The aforementioned actions of defendant were unreasonable in that _____ [describe facts indicating unreasonableness, e.g., as a result of those actions, the volume of runoff from the Muddy River increased by _____ (specify amount) over the volume that normally would flow into the watercourse, the benefit to defendant from drainage of a small area of defendant's property was far outweighed by the severity of the flooding and erosion of plaintiff's property caused by the increased volume of water, and defendant could have but failed to place the drains and culverts in locations where they would have adequately drained defendant's property and created only a _____ (specify amount) increase in the volume of runoff volume.]

[2] Use of Form

This form contains allegations for use in a complaint if the condition on the defendant's premises causing injury to the plaintiff's property consists of improvements resulting in an increased discharge of surface waters into a natural watercourse. The allegations may be inserted in the form in § 421.110 in place of Paragraphs 6 and 7.

For discussion of the liability of upstream owners who discharge surface waters into a natural watercourse, see § 421.44[1].

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART IV. FORMS

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.114

§ 421.114 Allegations--Changing Natural Course of Surface Water Drainage

[1] FORM Allegations--Changing Natural Course of Surface Water Drainage

[1. The above-described properties of plaintiff and defendant are adjacent and abut each other along a common boundary line running generally in an _____ (specify, e.g., westerly) direction to a point terminating at the bank of the _____ (specify watercourse, e.g., Muddy River)].

2. The _____ [specify, e.g., western] boundaries of the above-described parcels of real property belonging to the parties abut the bank of the _____ [specify watercourse, e.g., Muddy River]. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that the natural flow of surface waters draining from the lands of the parcels of property belonging to plaintiff and defendant into the _____ [specify watercourse, e.g., Muddy River] was in a _____ [specify, e.g., northerly] direction across and on the property of defendant because the elevation of defendant's property was lower than that of the land of plaintiff.

3. On or about _____ [date], defendant caused his/her land to be elevated _____ [describe acts changing the elevation, e.g., by filling his/her land with large amounts of dirt and sand], resulting in an elevation higher than that of the land of plaintiff. This changed elevation changed the natural course of the _____ [specify watercourse, e.g., Muddy River] and the drainage of the surface waters thereto. [Describe any additional action by defendant affecting the previous drainage patterns, e.g., Defendant constructed covered drainage pipes to collect surface waters on defendant's land and placed them to drain and open directly onto plaintiff's land.]

4. The conduct of the defendant was unreasonable in that _____ [specify, e.g., it caused continuous flooding on plaintiff's property, and its only purpose, that of preventing a small amount of surface water from plaintiff's land from crossing defendant's land before draining into the Muddy River, is far outweighed by the burden to plaintiff's land caused by the continuous flooding].

[2] Use of Form

This form contains allegations for use in a complaint if the injury to plaintiff's property was caused by a lower landowner's obstructing the flow of surface waters from his or her property. They may be inserted in the form in § 421.110 in place of Paragraphs 6 and 7. Optional Paragraph 1 may be used if the parties are adjoining landowners.

For a discussion of landowners' duties regarding obstruction of the flow of surface waters, see § 421.41.

This form is adapted from the fact situation in Mogle v. Moore (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 1, 4-7, 104 P.2d 785 .

[3] Alternative Recovery on Nuisance Theory

Injury based on the obstruction of the flow of surface waters may also support recovery on a theory of private nuisance, as well as on a theory of negligence, in which case injunctive relief may be available in addition to damages [see, e.g., Callison v. Mt. Shasta Power Corp. (1932) 123 Cal. App. 247, 255-256, 11 P.2d 60 (flooding caused by impoundment of water)]. Therefore, in an appropriate case this form may be combined with a form of complaint for damages and injunctive relief based on private nuisance [see § 421.50]. For general forms of complaint for damages and injunctive relief to abate a private nuisance, and for a form of allegations based on the diversion of naturally accumulated waters, see Ch. 391, Nuisance .

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART IV. FORMS

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.115

§ 421.115 Allegations--Obstruction of Natural Watercourse

[1] FORM Allegations--Obstruction of Natural Watercourse

1. At all times herein mentioned, _____ [specify watercourse, e.g., the Muddy River] was, and now is, a natural watercourse flowing in its natural course in a generally _____ [specify direction, e.g., southerly] direction along the above-described properties of plaintiff and defendant.

2. From _____ [date], to _____ [date], defendant[s, and each of them], _____ [set forth facts describing the obstruction of the natural watercourse and the diversion of water therefrom onto plaintiff's property, e.g., built a solid-fill driveway across the stream that dams the stream except for the small amount able to flow through a 1 foot-diameter pipe. During the rainy season so much water accumulates above the driveway that the excess water overflows the banks of the stream, flows over defendant's land, and continues onto plaintiff's land.]

3. The aforementioned actions of defendant[s, and each of them], were negligent in that _____ [describe the acts or omissions to act indicating a breach of duty to plaintiff, e.g., the solid-fill driveway caused the water to dam up in an amount that the small discharge pipe was unable to release, resulting in an overflow onto plaintiff's land that would not have otherwise occurred].

[2] Use of Form

This form contains allegations for use in a complaint if the condition on the defendant's premises causing injury to the plaintiff's property is an obstruction of a natural watercourse. These allegations may be inserted in the form in § 421.110 in place of Paragraphs 6 and 7.

This form is adapted from the fact situation in Van Zyl v. Spiegelberg (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 367, 82 Cal. Rptr. 689 .

[3] Alternative Recovery on Nuisance Theory

Injury based on the obstruction of a watercourse may also support recovery on a theory of private nuisance, as well as on a theory of negligence, in which case injunctive relief may be available in addition to damages [see, e.g., Callison v. Mt. Shasta Power Corp. (1932) 123 Cal. App. 247, 255-256, 11 P.2d 60 (flooding caused by impoundment of water)]. Therefore, in an appropriate case this form may be combined with a form of complaint for damages and injunctive relief based on private nuisance [see § 421.50]. For general forms of complaint for damages and injunctive relief to abate a private nuisance, and for a form of allegations based on the diversion of naturally accumulated waters, see Ch. 391, Nuisance .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART IV. FORMS

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 421.116-421.119

[Reserved]

§§ 421.116[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART IV. FORMS

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.120

§ 421.120 Affirmative Defense--Protection From Flood Waters

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense--Protection From Flood Waters

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that any waters that might have flowed onto plaintiff's property were flood waters, a common enemy, against which defendant has the right to protect himself/herself/itself. Any action that defendant took to protect his/her/its property from these flood waters was reasonable.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an affirmative defense for use by a defendant in an answer to a complaint for damages for intruding waters if the intruding waters were flood waters. Flood waters, which are waters escaping from a stream or other body of water and overflowing the adjacent territory, are a common enemy. Landowners may protect their land from flood waters even to the detriment of neighbors by obstructions that are merely defensive in nature and are not calculated to interfere with the current of the water in its natural channel [Everett v. Davis (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 389, 393, 115 P.2d 821] . Landowners may use every reasonable precaution to avert injury to their land from flood waters [Weinberg Co. v. Bixby (1921) 185 Cal. 87, 96, 196 P. 25] .

For discussion of flood waters, see § 421.42.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapter 421 PREMISES LIABILITY
PART IV. FORMS

36-421 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 421.121

§ 421.121 Affirmative Defense--Plaintiff Unreasonably Failed to Protect Property from Watercourse Flow

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense--Plaintiff Unreasonably Failed to Protect Property from Watercourse Flow

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state: TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that plaintiff must bear the burden of any damage caused by increased flow in _____ [specify watercourse, e.g., the Muddy River], a natural watercourse, because plaintiff failed to act reasonably to protect plaintiff's property from damage from the stream waters.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an affirmative defense allegation for use by a defendant in an answer to a complaint alleging that improvements on the defendant's premises resulted in an increased discharge of surface waters to a natural watercourse that caused injury to the plaintiff's property.

For discussion of the liability of upstream owners who discharge surface waters into a natural watercourse, see § 421.44[1]. For discussion of a landowner's duty to minimize damages, see § 421.49.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 36: Personal Property Leases thru Premises Liability-Chs. 413-424
Chapters 422-424 [RESERVED]

36-422 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated Chapters 422-424

[RESERVED]

Chapters 422[RESERVED]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated 425.syn

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.syn Synopsis to Chapter 425: PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS

§ 425.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 425.02 Cross References

§§ 425.03-425.09 [Reserved]

§ 425.10 Governing Law

§ 425.11 The Pleading Stage

[1] Overview

[2] Initial Filing Requirements

[a] General Pleading Requirements of the Complaint

[b] Special Pleading Requirements of the Complaint

[i] Personal Injury

[ii] Punitive Damages

[iii] Actions Against Healthcare Providers--Prior Notice

[iv] Actions Against Engineers, Architects, and Land Surveyors--Certificate of Merit

[c] Mandatory Civil Case Cover Sheet

[i] Required When First Paper Filed

[ii] Exception for Small Claims, Probate, and Family Law Cases

[iii] Information Required on Civil Case Cover Sheet

[iv] Failure to Include Cover Sheet

§ 425.12 Obtaining the Summons

§ 425.13 Service of Summons and Complaint--Establishing Jurisdiction Over the Defendant

[1] Effect of the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act

[2] Time Requirements for Service of Summons and Complaint [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110]

[a] 2002 Amendments to California Rules of Court

[b] Service of Complaint Required Within 60 Days

[c] Service of Amended Complaint Required Within 30 Days

[d] Service of Cross-Complaint

[i] Types of Cross-Complaints

[ii] Service of Cross-Complaints Against Parties Who Have Appeared

[iii] Service of Cross-Complaint Against New Parties

[3] Extending Time to Serve Complaint

[a] One Extension Allowed Within 60-Day Period Without Leave of Court

[b] Leave of Court Required if Beyond 60-Day Period

[c] Ex Parte Application for Leave of Court

[d] Required Showing To Obtain Additional Extension

[e] Standard for Granting Additional Extensions to Serve Complaint

§ 425.14 Methods of Service of Summons

[1] Types of Service

[2] Personal Service

[3] Substituted Service

[a] In General

[b] Corporations, Associations, and Public Entities

[c] Minors, Conservatees and "Other Persons"

[i] Method of Substituted Service

[ii] "Reasonable Diligence" Not Defined by Statute

[d] Service of Summons Effective the Tenth Day After Mailing

[4] Service by Mail

[a] When Authorized

[b] Party Residing Out of State

[c] Service By Mail with Notice and Acknowledgment

[d] Service by Mail When Party Has Appeared

[5] Service by Publication

[a] Required Showing

[b] Different Reasonable Diligence Standard

[c] Court Order Required

[d] Required Publication

[6] Unlawful Detainer and Actions for Abandonment of Leased Real Property

[7] Who May Serve Summons

[8] Persons Who May Be Served

[9] Interplay Between Service of Process Statutes and TCDRA Rules

§ 425.15 Responding to the Complaint

[1] Defendant's Options

[2] Entry of Default

[3] Objection to Jurisdiction

[a] Motion to Quash

[b] Time For Objecting to Jurisdiction

[c] Time to Plead Automatically Extended

[4] Answering the Complaint

[a] Requirements of Answer

[b] Verification

[c] Denials on Information and Belief or by Specific Reference

[d] Material Allegations Admitted If Not Denied

[e] General Denial Sufficient if Complaint Not Verified

[f] Defenses Must Be Separately Stated

[5] Objecting to the Complaint

[a] Methods for Objecting

[b] Demurrers

[i] Time to Demur or Move To Strike

[ii] Grounds for Demurrer--General Versus Special

[iii] Ruling on Demurrer

[iv] Time to Plead Following Demurrer

[c] Motions to Strike

[i] Grounds for Motion to Strike

[ii] Motion to Strike for SLAPP Suits

[iii] Attorney's Fees Ordered to Prevailing Party

[iv] Time for Filing

[6] Time to Respond to Complaint

[a] 30-Day Period

[b] Time to Respond Not Increased For Service by Mail

§ 425.16 Filing Proof of Service

§ 425.17 Failure to Comply With Service and Filing Requirements

[1] Effect of 2002 Amendments

[2] Sanctions For Failure to Serve Complaint and File Proof of Service

[3] Sanctions for Failure to Take Defendant's Default

[4] Enforcement of Sanctions

[a] Issuance of Order to Show Cause

[b] Written Notice Required

[c] Limits on Court's Power

[d] Response to Order to Show Cause

§§ 425.18-425.29 [Reserved]

§ 425.30 Overview

§ 425.31 Effect of the 2002 and 2003 Amendments

§ 425.32 Differential Case Management Framework

[1] Mandatory Court Review--Assignment to Case Management Program or Exemption From Program Within 180 Days of Complaint

[2] Differential Case Management Applicable to "General Civil Cases" Only

[3] Case Disposition

[a] Disposition Time Goals

[b] Factors Considered

[4] Exceptions to Differential Case Management

[a] Exceptional or Complex Cases

[b] Short Cause Cases

[c] Simple Cases

[d] Specified Collection Cases

§ 425.33 Setting Case Management Conference

[1] Initial Case Management Conference Must Be Set by Court; Scheduling and Notice

[2] Special Request for Case Management Conference

§ 425.34 Preparing the Case Management Statement

[1] Case Management Statement Required

[2] Mandatory Use of Judicial Council Form

[3] Parties May File A Joint Statement

[4] Meet and Confer Requirement For Case Management Statement

[5] Case Management Statement Must Contain Representation Regarding Meet and Confer

[6] Prior Case Management Orders Must Be Attached

[7] Case Management Statement Requires Representative of Authority to Enter into Stipulation

§ 425.35 Appearance Requirements at Case Management Conference

[1] General Rule and Excusing Appearance

[2] Personal Appearance

[3] Telephone Appearance

[a] Option of Counsel

[b] Service Provider and Fees for Conference Call

[c] Audibility

[d] Recording of Proceedings

[e] Local Procedure

[f] Notice of Telephone Appearance

[g] Retraction of Notice of Telephone Appearance

[h] Court Order for Appearance in Person After Notice of Telephone Appearance Has Been Given

§ 425.36 Conduct of Case Management Conference

[1] Familiarity, Discussion, and Commitment Requirements

[2] Subjects to be Considered at Conference

§ 425.37 The Case Management Order

[1] Subjects Addressed

[2] Effect of Case Management Order

[3] Modification of Case Management Order

[a] Order Governs Unless Modified

[b] On Motion of Party Before or at Trial

[c] Discretion of Judge

§§ 425.38-425.49 [Reserved]

§ 425.50 Trial Setting

[1] Calendaring System

[2] Exempt and Non-Exempt Cases

[3] Short Cause and Simple Cases

[4] Complex Cases

[5] Case to Be Tried, Ordered Off Calendar, Dismissed or Reassigned

[6] Duties of Transferee Judge

[7] Assignment to One Judge for All or Limited Purposes

[8] Trial Setting Factors

§ 425.51 Pretrial Alternative Dispute Resolution

[1] Preliminary Determinations and Requirements

[2] Private Alternative Dispute Resolution

[3] Mandatory Judicial Arbitration

[a] Overview

[b] Determining Amount in Controversy

§ 425.52 Complex Litigation

[1] What Constitutes Complex Litigation

[2] Procedure for Designating Case as Complex or Not Complex

[a] Designation by Plaintiff

[b] Counterdesignation

[c] Joint Complex Designation

[d] Court Decision on Designation of Complex Case

[e] Motion at Any Time to Redesignate Case as Complex or Not Complex

[f] Case Assignment

[g] Early and Active Case Management by Court

§ 425.53 Sanctions for Noncompliance With Local Rules

§§ 425.54-425.59 [Reserved]

§ 425.60 Relation to Case Management Rules

§ 425.61 Purpose of Bifurcation

§ 425.62 Separate Trial of Special Defense

[1] Statutory Authority

[2] When to Make Motion for Separate Trial of Special Defense

[3] Procedure When Special Defense Is Tried Separately

[4] Right to Jury Trial

§ 425.63 Separate Trial of Issues

[1] Statutory Authority

[2] Procedure for Obtaining Separate Trial of Issues

[3] Procedure When Issue Is Tried Separately

[a] Trial of General Liability Issues

[b] Trial of Liability for Punitive Damages

[4] Procedure for Severance

§§ 425.64-425.69 [Reserved]

§ 425.70 Governing Law

§ 425.71 [Reserved]

§ 425.72 Statutory Precedence of Cases

[1] Examples

[2] Injunctive Relief

[3] Declaratory Relief

[4] After Judicial Arbitration or Civil Action Mediation

[5] Review of Adverse Medical Licensing Decision

§ 425.73 Code Civ. Proc. § 36 Motion for Preference

[1] Statutory Authority

[2] Party 70 Years of Age or Older

[a] Availability

[b] Legislative Intent

[c] Impact on Power of Courts to Regulate Order of Business

[d] Impact on Judicial Arbitration

[e] Applicability to Probate Cases

[3] Party Under Age 14 in Wrongful Death or Personal Injury Action

[4] Party Terminally Ill or Injured

[5] Interests of Justice

[a] In General

[b] Preference to Avoid Mandatory Dismissal for Delay in Prosecution

[i] No Cause as a Matter of Law

[ii] Discretionary Dismissal Criteria Applicable

[6] Service of Notice of Motion

[7] Setting for Trial and Continuances When Motion Is Granted

§ 425.74 Preference for Action Brought by Victim of Crime

§ 425.75 Procedures Relating to Precedence and Preference

§ 425.76 Motions to Continue, Advance, or Reset Trial

§ 425.77 Relationship to Other Time Limits

§§ 425.78-425.89 [Reserved]

§ 425.90 Settlement Conference Procedure

[1] Purpose

[2] Governing Law

[3] Judge's Role at Settlement Conference

[4] Mandatory Settlement Conferences

§ 425.91 Settlement Conference Statement

§ 425.92 Who Must Attend Conference

§ 425.93 Additional Considerations

[1] Sanctions

[2] Local Court Rules Relating to Preparation for and Attendance at Settlement Conference

[a] Who Must Attend

[b] Written Statement of Facts and Contentions

[3] Duty to Notify Court and Others If Case Is Resolved

§ 425.94 Special Procedures Relating to Settlement

[1] Two Procedures to Consider

[2] Offers to Compromise

[a] 998 Offers

[b] Operation of Statute

[c] What Constitutes a Statutory Offer

[d] When Made

[e] Acceptance

[f] Operation of Cost Shifting Provisions

[i] Different for Plaintiff and Defendants

[ii] Rule Applicable to Plaintiffs

[iii] Rule Applicable to Defendants

[g] Special Considerations Relating to Experts

[h] Inapplicable to Plaintiffs in Eminent Domain Cases

[3] Stipulated Settlements

§§ 425.95-425.99 [Reserved]

§ 425.100 Preliminary Considerations

§ 425.101 Initial Investigation

[1] Prefiling Investigation

[2] Jurisdictional Considerations

[3] Developing Litigation Strategy

[4] Litigation Budget

[5] The Discovery Plan

[6] Anticipating Motions

[7] Bifurcation, Coordination, and Preferences

§ 425.102 Alternatives to Trial

§ 425.103 Internal Case Management

[1] Calendaring

[2] Timing

[a] Prefiling Timing Considerations

[b] Court Controls After Action Filed

[3] Trial Setting Stage

§§ 425.104-425.109 [Reserved]

§ 425.110 Related Matthew Bender Publications

§ 425.111 California Constitution

§ 425.112 State Statutes

[1] Bringing Cases to Trial Generally

[2] Superior Court Procedures

[3] Trial Setting

[4] Pretrial Conference

[5] Bifurcation

[6] Motions for Precedence or Preference and Motions to Continue, Advance, Reset, or Specially Set

§ 425.113 California Rules of Court

[1] Bringing Cases to Trial Generally

[2] Superior Court Procedures

[3] Trial Setting

[a] Short and Long Causes

[b] Case Management Conference

[4] Settlement Conference

[5] Motions for Precedence of Preference and Motions to Continue, Advance, Reset, or Specially Set

§ 425.114 Local Rules of Court

[1] [Reserved]

[2] [Reserved]

[3] Alameda County

[4] Contra Costa County

[5] Los Angeles County

[6] Marin County

[7] Sacramento County

[8] San Bernardino County

[9] San Diego County

[10] San Francisco City & County

[11] Santa Clara County

§ 425.115 Decisions

[1] Pretrial Conference

[a] Pretrial Conference Order

[i] Amendment of Order

[ii] Effect of Order on Amendment of Pleadings

[b] Purposes of Pretrial Conference

[c] Review

[d] Role of Pretrial Conference Judge

[e] Sanctions

[f] Stipulations

[2] Settlement Conference

[a] Judges

[b] Participants

[c] Power of Court

[3] Bifurcation of Issues for Trial

[a] Conduct of Bifurcated Trials

[b] Entry of Judgment

[c] Liability and Damages

[d] Review

[4] Motions for Precedence or Preference and Motions to Continue, Advance, Reset, or Specially Set

[a] Priority and Preference

[i] Age

[ii] Mandatory Dismissal

[iii] Mistitled Action

[iv] Declaratory Relief

[v] Unlawful Detainer

[vi] Other Bases for Preference

[b] Remedy to Require Trial Court to Give Case Precedence

[c] Motions to Specially Set

[d] Renewed Motions and Motions for Reconsideration

[e] Other Factors to Consider

§ 425.116 Law Reviews

[1] Bringing Cases to Trial Generally

[2] Bifurcation

§§ 425.117-425.119 [Reserved]

§ 425.120 Plaintiff's Checklist

[1] Preliminary Considerations

[a] Initial Investigation

[b] Timing

[c] Alternatives to Trial

[2] Internal Case Management

[a] Calendaring

[b] Discovery Stage

[c] Motion Practice

[3] Case Management Conference

[4] Settlement Conference

[5] Bifurcation

[a] Separate Trial of Special Defense

[b] Separate Trial of Issue or Part of Issue

[6] Motions for Precedence or Preference

[7] Motions to Continue, Advance, Reset, or Specially Set

§ 425.121 Defendant's Checklist

[1] Preliminary Considerations

[a] Initial Investigation

[b] Timing

[c] Alternatives to Trial

[2] Internal Case Management

[3] [Reserved]

[4] Case Management Conference

[5] Settlement Conference

[6] Bifurcation

[7] Motions for Precedence or Preference

[8] Motions to Continue, Advance, Reset, or Specially Set

§§ 425.122-425.129 [Reserved]

§ 425.130 Civil Case Cover Sheet [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.220, 3.400-3.403]--Judicial Council Form CM-010

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Exception for Small Claims, Probate, and Family Law Cases

[4] Cross References

§ 425.131 Case Management Conference Statement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.725]--Judicial Council Form CM-110

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Contents of Statement

[4] Cross References

§ 425.132 Case Management Conference Order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.728]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Preparation and Contents of Order

[4] Cross References

§ 425.133 Stipulation for Amendment, Correction, or Modification of Case Management Conference Order [Code Civ. Proc. § 576] and Order

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 425.134 Notice of Motion and Supporting Declaration to Amend Case Management Conference Order [Code Civ. Proc. § 576]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 425.135 Order to Amend Case Management Conference Order [Code Civ. Proc. § 576]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§§ 425.136-425.139 [Reserved]

§ 425.140 Notice of Time Set for Trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 594(b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§§ 425.141-425.149 [Reserved]

§ 425.150 Notice of Motion and Declaraton for Separate Trial of Issue or Part of Issue Before Trial of Other Issues or Part of Issue in Case [Code Civ. Proc. § 598]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Service and Filing

[4] Cross References

§ 425.151 Order Granting Motion for Separate Trial of Issue or Part of Issue Before Trial of Other Issues or Part of Issue in Case

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Notice of Order

[4] Cross References

§ 425.152 Order Setting Remaining Issues or Part of Issue for Trial After Separate Trial of Issue or Part of Issue

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Proceedings After Separate Trial

[4] Cross References

§§ 425.153-425.159 [Reserved]

§ 425.160 Notice of Motion and Supporting Declaration to Establish Precedence or Preference of Case for Case Management Conference or Trial [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.723, 3.1335]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Supporting Declaration

[4] Declaration for Preference Based on Party's Age

[5] Cross References

§ 425.161 Order Establishing Precedence or Preference of Case for Case Management Conference or Trial [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.723, 3.1335]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 425.162 Notice of Motion and Supporting Declaration to Advance, Reset, or Specially Set Case for Case Management Conference or Trial [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.723, 3.1335]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Supporting Declaration

[4] Motions to Advance, Reset, or Specially Set

[5] Cross References

§ 425.163 Order to Advance, Reset, or Specially Set Case for Case Management Conference or Trial [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.723, 3.1335]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§§ 425.164-425.169 [Reserved]

§ 425.170 Joint Request to Have Case Placed on Settlement Conference Calendar [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1380(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] When Settlement Conference Is Mandatory

[4] Cross References

§ 425.171 Settlement Conference Statement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1380(c)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Contents of Statement

[4] Cross References

§ 425.172 Notice of Settlement of Entire Case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1385]--Judicial Council Form CM-200

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

Evelio M. Grillo
Editorial Consultant n*

FOOTNOTES:
(n91)Footnote *. Evelio M. Grillo is Judge of the Alameda County Superior Court and a former managing partner of Grillo & Stevens, a civil litigation practice located in Oakland, California. He is the past Chairman of the Continuing Education Committee of the Alameda County Bar Association and has served on the Committee on Procedures and Rules of Court of the State Bar of California. He is a 1985 graduate of Harvard Law School and holds a Masters of Public Policy from the University of California at Berkeley (1980). Teresa Ozoa, formerly a civil litigator in the Bay Area, and currently a freelance writer in Southern California, also made a substantial contribution to this chapter.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART I. SCOPE

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.01

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter covers the procedures for bringing a civil action to trial, including civil case management under the California Rules of Court as amended effective July 1, 2002. The amended rules have fundamentally changed pre-trial proceedings by eliminating many obsolete provisions relating to case management and by providing a framework for the comprehensive management of civil cases in the trial courts.

This chapter provides analysis of pretrial procedure for bringing cases to trial with specific review of initiating and responding to complaints [see § 425.10 et seq.], the new case management system [see § 425.30 et seq.], and issues involving trial setting, ADR, complex cases and sanctions [see § 425.50 et seq.]. Additional pretrial procedures are addressed such as bifurcation [see § 425.60 et seq.], motions for precedence of preference and motions to continue, advance, reset, or specially set cases [see § 425.70 et seq.], and settlements [see § 425.90 et seq.]. An separate part discusses pretrial considerations and strategies to effectively plan pretrial proceedings [see § 425.100 et seq.].

Among the major changes brought about by the July 1, 2002 changes to California Rules of Court discussed in this chapter are:

- New rules prescribing the time for service of pleadings [see § 425.10 et seq.].
- Requirements for mandatory case management by the court [see § 425.30 et seq.].
- Requirements for the court to issue a case management order that will govern the subsequent proceedings in every case, including the pleadings and discovery phases, procedural motions, evidentiary motions, trial setting, arbitration and settlement [see § 425.30 et seq.].

This chapter also discusses mandatory forms which must be used during the pre-trial phase, such as:

- Required Judicial Council Civil Case Cover Sheet (Form CM-010) [see § 425.130].

- Required Judicial Council Case Management Conference Statement (Form CM-110) [see § 425.131].

- Case management conference order [see § 425.132].

- Stipulation for amendment, correction, or modification of a case management conference order [see § 425.133].

- Notice of motion and order to amend a case management conference order [see §§ 425.134, 425.135].

- Notice of time set for trial [see § 425.140].

- Notice of motion and order for bifurcation, and an order setting remaining issue for trial after separate trial [see §§ 425.150 -425.152].

- Notice of motion and order to establish precedence of case for case management conference or trial [see §§ 425.160, 425.161].

- Notice of motion and order to advance, reset, or specially set a case for case management conference or trial [see §§ 425.162, 425.163].

- Joint request for case to be placed on the settlement conference calendar [see § 425.170].

- A settlement conference statement [see § 425.171].

- Required Judicial Council Notice of Settlement (Form CM-200) [see 425.172].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticePleadingsGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPretrial MattersConferencesGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementCivil ProceduresPretrial MattersConferencesSanctionsCivil ProceduresPretrial MattersSeparate Trials

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART I. SCOPE

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.02

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.02 Cross References

- For discussion and forms for use in service of process, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

- For discussion of amendments to and amended pleadings, see Ch. 21, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings .

- For discussion and forms for use in securing separate trial of affirmative defenses, see Ch. 3, Abatement of Actions, § 3.110 et seq.

- For forms for use in judicial arbitration proceedings and arbitration determination conferences, see Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration .

- For a discussion of severance of actions, see Ch. 125, Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions .

- For discussion and forms relating to continuances, see Ch. 136, Continuances .

- For discussion and forms relating to counsel's duty to inform the court of related litigation and of change of address, see Ch. 137, Continuing Duties During Litigation .

- For forms for use in discovery proceedings, see Ch. 190-200, Discovery .

- For discussion and forms for use in demanding jury trials, see Ch. 322, Juries and Jury Selection .

- For discussion and forms for use in submitting jury instructions to the court, see Ch. 326, Jury Instructions .

- For discussion and forms relating to compromise and settlement of actions, see Ch. 520, Settlement and Release .

- For a discussion of the order and other aspects of trial, see Ch. 551, Trial .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticePleadingsGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPretrial MattersSeparate Trials

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART I. SCOPE

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 425.03-425.09

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 425.03[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Bringing Cases to Trial
1. Initiating and Responding to a Complaint

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.10

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.10 Governing Law

Pre-trial procedure, including pleading and discovery practice, law and motion practice and trial setting is governed by the Code of Civil Procedure [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 575.1, 575.2], the Government Code [see Gov. Code §§ 68612, 68616], the California Rules of Court [Cal. Rules of Ct, Rules 1.1-1.150, 2.1-2.1100, 3.1-3.2120, 10.1-10.1030], and local court rules. Amendments in 2002 to the California Rules of Court and the Code of Civil Procedure have fundamentally changed the management of civil cases in California courts. Prior to the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act ("TCDRA") and the 2002 Amendments to the Rules of Court, attorneys for civil litigants had a significant role in determining how and how fast a case proceeded through the pre-trial process, including determining when a complaint was served, the timing of discovery and motion practice, and trial setting. The TCDRA, in conjunction with the 2002 Rule changes, has changed pretrial procedure from a system of attorney management to a system of court management by imposing procedural deadlines on the litigants and specific management duties on the courts. The most significant areas of change are: initial filing and service of process requirements, case classification, and case management and requirements.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Bringing Cases to Trial
1. Initiating and Responding to a Complaint

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.11

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.11 The Pleading Stage

[1] Overview

A civil action is commenced by filing a complaint or petition with the court. After the initial filing of the complaint or petition and payment of all applicable fees, the court issues an original and one or more copies of the summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 412.10]. The summons must contain the title of the court, the names of the parties, and a notice, in English and Spanish, for the defendant to file a written response to the complaint within 30 days after the summons is served on him or her, and stating that unless the defendant responds to the complaint, his or her default will be entered upon application of the plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 412.20]. Though not required by statute, virtually all summons issued in California state courts are issued on a Judicial Council form.

[2] Initial Filing Requirements

[a] General Pleading Requirements of the Complaint

To initiate a civil action the plaintiff or petitioner must file the original complaint or petition and a civil case cover sheet [for form, see § 425.130]. At a minimum, the complaint must contain both a statement of the facts constituting the cause of action, in ordinary and concise language, and a demand for judgment for relief to which the pleader claims to be entitled [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10]. If the recovery of money or damages is demanded, the amount demanded must be stated [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10].

[b] Special Pleading Requirements of the Complaint

[i] Personal Injury

In personal injury cases and wrongful death cases, the amount of actual punitive damages may not be stated [Code Civ.

Proc. § 425.10(b)]. For discussion of personal injury actions, see Ch. 177, Damages, 177.40 et seq.; Ch. 460, Product Liability .

[ii] Punitive Damages

Special rules of pleading apply when seeking punitive damages from a childcare provider, religious corporation or directors or officer of a non-profit corporation [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.13-425.15]. Generally, no claim for punitive damages may be included in the complaint or other pleading filed against a healthcare provider, a religious corporation, or a director or officer of a non-profit corporation unless the court first enters an order allowing the pleading to include that claim to be filed with the court [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.13-425.15]. Since a party may not obtain a court order before initiating a civil action, the procedure to be followed when seeking punitive damages against healthcare providers, religious corporations and non-profit directors and officers is to file an action first and then to amend the complaint to state a claim for punitive damages. Depending on the defendant, the standard for allowing such a motion to be granted is varied depending on whether the defendant is a healthcare provider, religious corporation or volunteer director or officer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.13-425.15]. For additional discussion of punitive damages, see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq.

[iii] Actions Against Healthcare Providers--Prior Notice

In actions against healthcare providers, the plaintiff must give at least 90 days' prior notice of the intention to commence the action to the healthcare provider [Code Civ. Proc. § 364]. Failure to comply with the 90-day notice provision does not invalidate the proceeding, but it will subject an attorney to discipline by the State Bar.

[iv] Actions Against Engineers, Architects, and Land Surveyors--Certificate of Merit

In actions against engineers, architects, and land surveyors, including cross-complaints for damages or indemnity against persons holding a valid license or registration as an architect, engineer or land surveyor, the plaintiff must serve a "certificate of merit" on or before the date of service of the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35]. The requirements of a certificate of merit are set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35(a)-(d) and generally include a statement of the attorney that the attorney has received the opinion of a licensed architect, engineer, or land surveyor that there is reasonable and meritorious cause for filing the cause, or a statement that the attorney has been unable to obtain the required opinion, or that an opinion is not required, under one of the exceptions enumerated in the statute.

The failure to file a certificate of merit is grounds for a demurrer or motion to strike [Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35(g)]. A violation of the certificate of merit requirement may constitute unprofessional conduct and grounds for discipline against the attorney. [Code Civ. Proc. § 411.35(f)].

[c] Mandatory Civil Case Cover Sheet

[i] Required When First Paper Filed

At the time the first paper is filed in an action or proceeding (most often the complaint), the plaintiff must file a Civil Case Cover Sheet on the prescribed Judicial Council Form [see Cal. Judicial Council Form CM-010; for form, see § 425.130] and the Judicial Council's civil case cover sheet is required in addition to any cover sheet required by local rule [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.220(a)]. The requirement of a Civil Case Cover Sheet is a fairly new development in California state courts.

[ii] Exception for Small Claims, Probate, and Family Law Cases

The California Rules of Court do not require a civil case cover sheet for cases filed under the Probate Code, Family Code, Welfare and Institutions Code or in small claims court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.220(b)(1)]. Some jurisdictions by local rule do, however, require a civil case cover sheet to be filed in one or more of these types of cases. The Judicial Council has indicated that case cover sheets will be added for use in additional areas of the law as the data collection program expands [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.220(b)(2)].

[iii] Information Required on Civil Case Cover Sheet

The information required in a civil cover sheet includes the name of the parties, the type of case, whether the case is limited or unlimited case, whether the case is a complex case and if so, the reasons for the complexities, the type of remedies sought, the number of causes of action and whether the case is a class action lawsuit. [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.220(b); see Cal. Judicial Council Form CM-010; for form, see § 425.130].

[iv] Failure to Include Cover Sheet

If a party is required to file a civil case cover sheet or similar local rule and fails to do so or provides a defective or incomplete cover sheet, the clerk must file the paper, but the party and/or the party's counsel may be subject to sanctions under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.30 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.220(c)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsFiling FeesCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticePleadingsRule Application & InterpretationCivil ProceduresRemediesDamagesPunitive DamagesTortsProceduresCommencement & ProsecutionGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Bringing Cases to Trial
1. Initiating and Responding to a Complaint

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.12

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.12 Obtaining the Summons

After the clerk accepts the complaint or petition and Civil Cover Sheet for filing and all fees are paid, the summons is issued by the clerk of the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 412.10]. The common practice in the State of California is for the summons to be prepared on a Judicial Council Form by plaintiff's counsel and for the summons to be "issued" by the clerk of the court by placing the court's seal and the clerk's initials on the summons. For additional discussion of summons, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeService of ProcessSummonsContent & FormGovernmentsCourtsClerks of Court

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Bringing Cases to Trial
1. Initiating and Responding to a Complaint

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.13

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.13 Service of Summons and Complaint--Establishing Jurisdiction Over the Defendant

[1] Effect of the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act

To obtain jurisdiction over the defendant requires service of the summons and complaint must be made on the defendant. For discussion of personal jurisdiction, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction .

Prior to the TCDRA, the time for serving the summons and complaint and the responsive pleading was specified by local court rule, or left to the discretion of the parties. One common practice followed by plaintiff's counsel prior to the TCDRA was to postpone service of the complaint after filing, pending counsel's completion of his or her investigation, or to grant the defendant an open extension of time to plead pending the defendant's investigation of the claim. These practices, and any other practice that delays service of the complaint or the responsive pleading are prohibited under TCDRA without leave of court.

[2] Time Requirements for Service of Summons and Complaint [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110]

[a] 2002 Amendments to California Rules of Court

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110 provides a complete set of time requirements that establish the outside time limitations for service of the summons and complaint, filing of a responsive pleading, the entry of default, and default judgments.

The time requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110 apply to all civil cases except for unlawful detainer actions, proceedings under the Family Code, and other proceedings for which different service requirements are prescribed by law [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110(a)]. The specific time requirements for civil cases are discussed below.

[b] Service of Complaint Required Within 60 Days

The summons and complaint must be served on all named defendants and proof of service on those defendants must be filed with the court within 60 days after the filing of the complaint [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110(b)].

[c] Service of Amended Complaint Required Within 30 Days

When a complaint is amended to add a defendant, the new defendant must be served and the proof of service must be filed within 30 days of the filing of the amended Complaint [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110(b)].

[d] Service of Cross-Complaint

[i] Types of Cross-Complaints

A cross-complaint is a pleading filed by a party against whom a cause of action has been filed in which the party being sued asserts a cause of action against the party suing him or her, or against third parties who may be liable to the party being sued. At the time the party answers the complaint, any compulsory cross-complaint must be filed against the party or parties who filed the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.50]. Cross-complaints against other parties may be filed at any time before the courts have set a trial date [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.50]. A compulsory cross-complaint is a cross-complaint containing a related cause of action which the defendant has against the plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30(a)]. Compulsory cross-complaints must be asserted in the action unless the court does not have jurisdiction to render a personal judgment against the person against whom the cross-complaint is asserted [Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30(b)]. Different rules apply to the filing and service of cross-complaints depending on the status of the cross-defendant, and are discussed below.

For additional discussion of cross-complaints, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints .

[ii] Service of Cross-Complaints Against Parties Who Have Appeared

A cross-complaint against the party who filed the complaint or against parties who have appeared in the action must be filed at the same time as the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.50(a); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110(c)]. A proof of service of the cross-complaint must accompany the cross-complaint at the time it is filed. In other words, a cross-complaint against a party who has appeared must be served before it is filed, and it must be served and filed within the time allowed for filing the answer, i.e., 30 days from the date of service unless otherwise extended by agreement of the parties or of the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110(c)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Summons Not Required For Parties Who Have Appeared. Because a party who has filed a complaint has already submitted to the jurisdiction of the court, it is not necessary to obtain a summons and serve the summons with the cross-complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.60(2)].

[iii] Service of Cross-Complaint Against New Parties

If the cross-complaint adds new parties, or names a party who has not yet appeared, the cross-complaint and a summons on cross-complaint must be served on the new party or the party who has not yet appeared, and proof of service on the new parties must be filed within 30 days of the filing of the cross-complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.60(1); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110(c)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Summons on Cross-Complaint Required For New Parties. Because the court does not have jurisdiction over a party who has not yet appeared, it is necessary to obtain a summons on cross-complaint before the cross complaint is served. The summons on cross complaint is obtained by following the same procedure as for obtaining a summons on the complaints, i.e., by filing the cross-complaint, paying any fees and presenting the clerk with a copy of a summons containing the names of the parties for issuance by the clerk of the court.

[3] Extending Time to Serve Complaint

[a] One Extension Allowed Within 60-Day Period Without Leave of Court

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110(d) limits the parties to a stipulation of one 15-day extension for service of a responsive pleading without leave of court. This means that if the complaint is served, the time for service of the complaint may be extended up to a maximum of 45 days within the 60-day period provided the extension does not take the date for answering beyond the 60-day period for filing a proof of service of the complaint.

[b] Leave of Court Required if Beyond 60-Day Period

Extensions of time to serve the complaint beyond the 60-day period must be by leave of court, i.e., a court order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110(d), (e)]. An application for a court order extending the time to serve a pleading must be filed before the time for service has elapsed, that is before 60 days have elapsed from the filing of the complaint.

[c] Ex Parte Application for Leave of Court

In most jurisdictions, the application for an extension of time may be obtained on the plaintiff's ex parte application. Check local rules for applicable procedure.

[d] Required Showing To Obtain Additional Extension

An application for an extension must be accompanied by a declaration saying why service has not been completed, documenting the efforts that have been made to effect service, and specifying the date by which service is proposed to be effected [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110(e)].

[e] Standard for Granting Additional Extensions to Serve Complaint

Neither the TCDRA nor the California Rules of Court contain a generic "good cause" standard for granting the extension of time to serve a complaint beyond the 45 days allowed by statute, i.e., the 30 days allowed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 plus the 15-day extension allowed as a matter of course by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110. The rule instead specifies the information that must be included to obtain an extension of time, i.e., that service has not been completed and that sufficient efforts have been made to effect service such that an extension is warranted under the facts and circumstances [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110(e)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Avoiding Improper Disclosure. When preparing a declaration in support of an application for an extension of time to serve a complaint or file a responsive pleading, be careful not to include any statement in the declaration that could have the effect of waiving the attorney-client privilege, or disclose other information that might be prejudicial to the client.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionPersonal Jurisdiction & In Rem ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsAnswersCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsRequirementsCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeService of ProcessSummonsGeneral OverviewGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Bringing Cases to Trial
1. Initiating and Responding to a Complaint

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.14

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.14 Methods of Service of Summons

[1] Types of Service

There are four methods for serving the summons and complaint on the defendant:

- Personal service [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.10].
- Substituted service [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20].
- Service by mail [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 415.30, 415.40].
- Service by publication [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50].

[2] Personal Service

Personal service is effected by personal delivery of a copy of the summons and complaint to the person to be served [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.10]. Service of the summons by personal service is deemed complete as of the time of such delivery. For additional discussion of service of summons, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[3] Substituted Service

[a] In General

Substituted service is the leaving of the summons at the office or home of the person being served and mailing, by first class mail, a copy of the summons and complaint to the place where the summons and complaint were left [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20]. The availability of substituted service or personal service depends in part on whether the entity to be served is a corporation, stock company association, unincorporated association or public entity, or if an individual, whether the party is a minor, person on whom a guardian or conservator has been appointed or other persons. These topics are discussed below. For additional discussion of service of summons, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[b] Corporations, Associations, and Public Entities

Corporations, associations, public entities and other entities described in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 416.10-416.50 may, in lieu of personal delivery of the summons and complaint to the entity, be served by substituted service. For corporations, associations and public entities, the summons may be served without a showing of reasonable diligence, by leaving a copy of the summons and complaint during usual office hours, with the person who is apparently in charge of the office and, by mailing a copy of the summons and complaint to the person to be served at the place where the summons and complaint were left [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20]. If no physical address for the office is known, the summons may be served at the usual mailing address [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20].

[c] Minors, Conservatees and "Other Persons"

[i] Method of Substituted Service

Substituted service on a minor, conservatee (other than a minor) or person for whom a guardian has been appointed, or other persons may be made only if the complaint cannot, with reasonable diligence, be served on the person. If after attempting service with reasonable diligence, personal service cannot be effected, the summons may be served by leaving a copy of the summons and complaint at the person's dwelling house, usual place of abode or business, a usual mailing address other than a post office box in the presence of a competent member of the household, the person in charge of his or her office or place of business, or mailing address, and who is at least 18 years of age, and by mailing the copy of the summons and complaint to the person to be served at the place where a copy of the summons and complaint were left [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(b)].

[ii] "Reasonable Diligence" Not Defined by Statute

"Reasonable diligence" for the purpose of substituted service is not defined by statute. The appellate courts have held the "reasonable diligence" standard contemplates that a good-faith effort be made to personally serve a natural person before substitute service is attempted. Although there is no set standard, ordinarily, two or three attempts at personal service with a proper address should satisfy the requirement of reasonable diligence and allow substituted service to be made [see Bein v. Brechtel-Jochim Group, Inc. (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 1387, 1391-1392, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 351] .

[d] Service of Summons Effective the Tenth Day After Mailing

In the case of substituted service whether on an entity or other person, service of the summons is deemed complete on the tenth day after mailing [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(b)].

[4] Service by Mail

[a] When Authorized

Service by mail is authorized in three circumstances [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 415.30, 415.40, 428.60(2)], which are:

- When a party resides out of state.
- When a party acknowledges receipt of service by mail.

- When a party has appeared.

[b] Party Residing Out of State

Parties residing out of the state may be served by sending a copy of the summons and complaint to the person to be served, first class mail, postage prepaid, requiring a return receipt [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.40]. Service by mail on person outside of the state is deemed to be complete on the tenth day after mailing [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.40].

[c] Service By Mail with Notice and Acknowledgment

A summons also may be served by mail on persons residing within the state by serving a copy of the summons and complaint by first class mail together with two copies of a Notice and Acknowledgment and a return envelope postage prepaid, addressed to the sender [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.30(a)]. A Notice and Acknowledgment is statutory form of notice to the defendant advising the defendant that an attempt is being made to serve the defendant by mail and that if a defendant does not accept service by mail by completing the Notice and Acknowledgment and returning it to the sender within 20 days, the party being served may be liable for the payment of any expenses served in serving the summons in any other manner permitted by law. The party to whom a Notice and Acknowledgment is directed has 20 days from the date of mailing within which to complete and return the acknowledgment form [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.40(d)]. Service of the summons is deemed complete on the date a written acknowledgment of receipt of summons is executed if the acknowledgment is returned to the sender [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.30(c)].

[d] Service by Mail When Party Has Appeared

If a party has appeared in an action, the party may be served with a cross-complaint, by service of the cross-complaint on his attorney by mail [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.60(2)].

[5] Service by Publication

[a] Required Showing

To obtain service by publication, the party seeking to effect service must show by affidavit the party to be served cannot, with reasonable diligence, be served personally, by mail or by substitute service and that (1) a cause of action exists against the party upon whom service is to be made or that he/she is the necessary or proper party to the action; or (2) the party to be served has or claims an interest in real or personal property in the state that is subject to the jurisdiction of the court, or the relief demanded in the action consists wholly or in part of excluding the party from any interest in the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50(a)].

[b] Different Reasonable Diligence Standard

Reasonable diligence for the purpose of service by publication contemplates a higher standard than reasonable diligence for the purpose of substituted service. For the purpose of service by publication, the term "reasonable diligence" [d]enotes a thorough, systematic investigation and inquiry conducted in good faith by the party or his agent or attorney [Watts v. Crawford (1995)10 Cal. 4th 743, 749, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 81] .

[c] Court Order Required

To effect service by publication, the plaintiff must obtain a court order specifying that the summons is to be published in a named newspaper, published in this state that is most likely to give actual notice to the party to be served and direct that a copy of the summons and complaint and the order for publication shall be mailed to the party if his or her address is ascertained before expiration of the time required for publication of the summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50(a)].

[d] Required Publication

For service by publication, publication of the summons and complaint must be made as provided in Gov. Code § 6064, i.e., once per week for four successive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50(b)]. Service of the summons by publication is deemed complete the 28th day from the first publication. There must be five days between each attempt at publication. When service is effected by publication, a proof of service by the affidavit of the publisher or printer showing the time and place of publication and showing the time and place a copy of the summons was mailed to the party to be served, if in fact mailed, must be filed with the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.70(b)].

[6] Unlawful Detainer and Actions for Abandonment of Leased Real Property

There are special provisions for service of the summons and complaint in unlawful detainer actions and in actions for abandonment of leased real property [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 415.45-415.47]. For additional discussion of these statutes, see Ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Actions .

[7] Who May Serve Summons

A summons may be served by any person who is at least 18 years of age and not a party to the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 414.10].

[8] Persons Who May Be Served

The persons upon whom a summons may be served varies depending on whether a corporation, unincorporated association, public entity, minor or person for whom a guardian has been appointed is served. [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 416.10-416.80]. For additional discussion of these statutes, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[9] Interplay Between Service of Process Statutes and TCDRA Rules

Under the TCDRA rules [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.700 et seq.], litigants must be mindful of the time required to effect service of process and take pains to make sure that service is timely effected. For example, the Code of Civil Procedure requires an answer or responsive pleading to be filed within 30 days after service is complete, irrespective of the method of the service of process utilized (personal service, service by mail, substituted service or publication) unless otherwise extended by the parties or the court. However, the date of service is different depending on the method of service used. For example, personal service is deemed complete when the complaint is personally served. Substituted service is deemed complete ten days after mailing. Service by mail with an accompanying Notice of Acknowledgment and Receipt is not deemed complete until 30 days after the Notice of Acknowledgment and Receipt is signed, and the party accepting service has 20 days from the date the Complaint was received to sign the Acknowledgment and Receipt. Service by publication requires publication not less than four times over a four week period and service is not deemed complete until the final publication or at least 28 days after publication pursuant to court order. The TCDRA requirements to serve a Complaint within 60 days may therefore conflict with the longer time allowed for service via mail with a Notice of Acknowledgment and Receipt and publication, since the time required to effect service other than personal service may be longer than the time allowed to file a proof of service under the TCDRA.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeService of ProcessGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeService of ProcessSummonsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Bringing Cases to Trial
1. Initiating and Responding to a Complaint

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.15

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.15 Responding to the Complaint

[1] Defendant's Options

After the complaint has been served, the defendant may respond to the complaint in one of four ways:

- Do nothing and allow default to be taken by the claimant.
- Object to jurisdiction.
- File a pleading or pleadings such as an answer or an answer and a cross-complaint.
- Object to the pleading by filing a demurrer, a motion to strike, or a motion for judgment on the pleadings.

[2] Entry of Default

In certain types of actions, a defendant may elect to allow a default judgment to be entered in lieu of defending a case on the merits. For example, in a limited jurisdiction case in which a fixed amount is claimed on a breach of contract claim, the cost of defending a lawsuit could exceed the amount of the judgment that could be entered on a default. In such cases, the defendant may elect to allow his or her default to be entered. Under the TCDRA rules, if a defendant has not answered the complaint or otherwise filed a responsive pleading, then unless otherwise ordered by the court, the plaintiff must take the defendant's default within 10 days, following the 60 days allowed to file a responsive pleading, i.e., 70 days from the filing of the complaint [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110(g)]. For additional discussion of defaults, see Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments .

[3] Objection to Jurisdiction

[a] Motion to Quash

A defendant may elect to object to jurisdiction of the court by serving a notice of motion and motion to quash service of summons on the ground of lack of jurisdiction, or to dismiss the action on the ground of inconvenient forum or for failure to prosecute [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 418.10(a)(1)-(3)]. For additional discussion of objecting to jurisdiction, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances .

[b] Time For Objecting to Jurisdiction

A motion objecting to jurisdiction must be filed on or before the last day of the defendant's time to plead or within any further time that the court may allow for good cause. The motion must designate a time for hearing not more than 30 days after filing of the notice of motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a), (b)].

[c] Time to Plead Automatically Extended

Service and filing of a notice, motion to quash, or to dismiss for inconvenient forum or lack of prosecution extends the defendant's time to plead until 15 days after service of a written notice of entry order denying the motion, or within any shorter time not exceeding 20 days allowed by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(b)].

[4] Answering the Complaint

[a] Requirements of Answer

In most cases, the defendant will answer the complaint or answer the complaint and file a cross-complaint either to assert claims against the plaintiff or against third parties who should be properly brought into the action.

The answer to a complaint must contain a general or specific denial of material allegations of the complaint as worded by the defendant, and a statement of any new matter constituting a defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.30]. For additional discussion of answering a complaint, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[b] Verification

The answer to the complaint must be verified when the complaint is verified or when the plaintiff is the state, county or other public agency, or the officer of the state or public agency appointed in the official capacity [Code Civ. Proc. § 446(a)].

[c] Denials on Information and Belief or by Specific Reference

It is sufficient to deny allegations of the complaint on information and belief if the defendant has no information on the subject sufficient to enable the defendant to answer an allegation of the complaint. The defendant may also controvert specific paragraphs as part of the complaint, or especially admit certain allegations with a general denial of all allegations not admitted or by denying some of the allegations on information and belief [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(f)].

[d] Material Allegations Admitted If Not Denied

The material allegation of a complaint or a cross-complaint which is not controverted by the answer is for the purposes of the action taken as true [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.20]. A material allegation is an allegation essential to the claim or defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.10].

[e] General Denial Sufficient if Complaint Not Verified

If the complaint is not verified or is a limited jurisdiction case, a general denial may be interposed [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30]. A general denial controverts all material allegations of the complaint at issue [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30].

[f] Defenses Must Be Separately Stated

When the answer includes affirmative defenses, the defenses must be separately stated, and should refer to the causes of action for which they are intended to answer in a manner by which they can be intelligibly distinguished [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(g)].

[5] Objecting to the Complaint

[a] Methods for Objecting

A fourth means of response to the complaint is to file an objection to the complaint in the form of a demurrer, a motion to strike, or motion for judgment on the pleadings. For additional discussion of methods for objecting to a complaint, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings , and Ch. 375, Motions to Strike: Pleadings , and Ch. 376, Motions to Strike: Anti-SLAPP .

[b] Demurrers

[i] Time to Demur or Move To Strike

A demurrer or a motion to strike must be filed within the time allowed to respond to a pleading, i.e., 30 days after service of the complaint or the cross-complaint unless otherwise extended by the court or the parties. If a motion to strike and a demurrer are filed contemporaneously, the hearings on both motions must be set concurrently [Code Civ. Proc. § 435(2)].

[ii] Grounds for Demurrer--General Versus Special

The grounds for an objection to a complaint by a demurrer are contained in Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10. Demurrers are of two types: general demurrers, or demurrers which attack the substance of a pleading; and special demurrers, or demurrers which attack a pleading based on uncertainty [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(a)-(i)].

The grounds for a general demurrer are lack of jurisdiction, lack of legal capacity to sue, another action pending between the same parties on the same cause of action, defect or misjoinder of parties, failure to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action and failure to file a certificate in an action for professional negligence against an architect engineer or land surveyor [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(a)-(e), (h)].

Grounds for special demurrer are uncertainty, which includes ambiguity and unintelligibility, and in an action founded upon contract, that it may not be ascertained from the pleading whether the contract is written, oral or implied by conduct [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f), (g)].

[iii] Ruling on Demurrer

When a demurrer to a pleading is sustained or overruled, the time to amend the answer, if given, runs from the date of the service of notice of the decision or order. If the demurrer is sustained, unless the court is otherwise, 10 days leave to amend is deemed granted. The same rule applies if a demurrer is overruled [Code Civ. Proc. § 472(b)].

[iv] Time to Plead Following Demurrer

Unless the court orders otherwise, the answer is due within 10 days [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(g)]. If the demurrer is sustained in part and overruled in part, the defendant's subsequent pleading and the remaining causes of action are due within 10 days [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(j)].

[c] Motions to Strike

[i] Grounds for Motion to Strike

A motion to strike may be filed with the demurrer to strike out any irrelevant, false, or improper matter inserted in any pleading, or to strike out all or any part of any pleading not drawn or filed with conformity with the laws of the state, a court rule or an order of the court.

A motion to strike is most often used to attack defects in the complaint that cannot be reached by a demurrer. The failure to file an attorney's certification in a action based on professional negligence of an engineer or the failure to verify a complaint that is required by statute to be verified are two examples of pleadings not filed in conformity with the laws of this State.

[ii] Motion to Strike for SLAPP Suits

If a claim against a person is predicated on any act of that person in furtherance of a person's right of petition and free speech under the United States or California Constitution in connection with the public issue, the cause of action may be subject to a special motion to strike, otherwise known as a motion to strike a SLAPP suit (Strategic Litigation Against Public Participation) [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16]. The court must grant the motion unless the court determines that the plaintiff has established that there is a probability that the plaintiff will prevail in the claim [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16(b)].

All discovery proceedings in an action are stayed upon the filing of the notice of motion to strike under the SLAPP suit statute. The stay of discovery remains in effect until notice of the entry of the order ruling on the motion has been served [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16(g)].

For additional discussion of SLAPP suits, see Ch. 376, Motions to Strike: Anti-SLAPP .

[iii] Attorney's Fees Ordered to Prevailing Party

If a special motion to strike is filed, and the defendant prevails, the defendant is entitled to recover his or her attorney's fees and costs [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16]. If the court finds that the special motion to strike is frivolous or solely intended to cause unnecessary delay, the court must award costs and reasonable attorney's fees to plaintiff prevailing on motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 (sanctions for frivolous tactics in actions commenced after January 1, 1995; for discussion, see Ch. 510, Sanctions).

[iv] Time for Filing

A special motion to strike may be filed within 60 days of the service of the complaint or any later time upon the terms the court deems proper. The motion must be noticed for hearing not more than 30 days after service of the motion unless the court's calendar requires a later hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16(f)].

[6] Time to Respond to Complaint

[a] 30-Day Period

Service of responsive pleadings, answers, demurrers, and motions to strike is required 30 days from the date service is complete [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.40; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110]. The defendant's failure to serve and file a responsive pleading within 30 days from the date service is complete, unless otherwise extended by the parties or the court, will subject the defendant to having his or her default taken by the plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 585].

[b] Time to Respond Not Increased For Service by Mail

The 30-day time limitation within which to file a responsive pleading is not increased by five days for service by mail [Code Civ. Proc. § 413.20].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionJurisdiction Over ActionsGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsDefects of FormCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to DismissCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to StrikeGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsMotions to StrikeIrrelevant MattersCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticePleadingsAnswersCivil ProceduresPartiesJoinderMisjoinderCivil ProceduresDismissalsInvoluntary DismissalsMotionsCivil ProceduresPretrial JudgmentsDefaultEntry of Default Judgments

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Bringing Cases to Trial
1. Initiating and Responding to a Complaint

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.16

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.16 Filing Proof of Service

Proof of service of the summons is required to be made on the Judicial Council Form for proof of service and must comply with the requirements of the statute under which the summons was served, i.e., personal service, service by mail, substituted service or publication [Code Civ. Proc. § 417.10]. After the summons has been served, the original summons must be returned together with proof of service, unless the defendant previously made a general appearance [Code Civ. Proc. § 417.30].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeService of ProcessMethodsPersonal DeliveryCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeService of ProcessProofGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeService of ProcessSummonsIssuance

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Bringing Cases to Trial
1. Initiating and Responding to a Complaint

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.17

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.17 Failure to Comply With Service and Filing Requirements

[1] Effect of 2002 Amendments

Prior to the TCDRA, there were few, if any, sanctions imposed on counsel who either failed to serve and file a complaint within 60 days, or a defendant who failed to answer within 30 days. In contrast to pre-TCRDA procedure, the Rules of Court now impose sanctions on the plaintiff's counsel if the complaint is not served and proof of service of the complaint is not filed within the 60 days required by Cal. Rul es of Ct., Rule 201.7, or if the complaint is served within 60 days and no responsive pleading has been filed within 70 days of the original filing of the complaint [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110(g)]. The sanctions which may be imposed are discussed below.

[2] Sanctions For Failure to Serve Complaint and File Proof of Service

If the plaintiff fails to serve and file the pleadings within the 60-day time limitation imposed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110, then unless the plaintiff obtains an extension from the court, the court may issue an order to show cause why sanctions should not be imposed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110(f)]. Sanctions imposed by the court may include the imposition of monetary sanctions or dismissal of the case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110(f)].

[3] Sanctions for Failure to Take Defendant's Default

If the plaintiff serves the complaint and files proof of service within 60 days and a responsive pleading is not served within time limitations imposed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110, and no extension of time has been granted by the court, plaintiff must, within 10 days after the time for service has elapsed, file a request for entry of default [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110(g)]. When a default has been entered, the party who requested the entry of default must obtain a default judgment against the defaulting party within 45 days after the entry of the default unless and extension from the court is obtained [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110(h)]. Failure to obtain entry of a default or a default judgment within the applicable 45-day time period may result in an order to show cause why sanctions should not be imposed; and sanctions imposed may include monetary sanctions or dismissal of the action [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110(g)].

[4] Enforcement of Sanctions

[a] Issuance of Order to Show Cause

When issued by the court, an order to show cause acts as a summons to appear in court on a certain day, and as the name suggests, to show cause why a certain thing should not be done [Morelli v. Superior Court (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 262, 269 , 68 Cal. Rprt. 572]. The court's authority to impose sanctions for violating local rules under California Rules of Court is contained in Code Civ. Proc. § 177.5 and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.30. The issuance of an order to show cause is, therefore, notice by the court of counsel's failure to comply with the applicable rule or rules and that sanctions will be imposed if the attorney, law firm, or party cannot show why sanctions should not be imposed violating the rule [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.30(c)].

[b] Written Notice Required

An order to show cause must be in writing and must (1) set forth the rule that has been violated, (2) describe the specific conduct that appears to have violated the rule and (3) direct the attorney, law firm, party, witness, or other person to show cause why sanctions should not be imposed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.30(c)].

[c] Limits on Court's Power

The failure to comply with court rules is the responsibility of counsel and not the party. The court may not impose a penalty upon the party that adversely affects the party's cause of action or defense [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110(b)]. In such cases, the penalty shall be imposed on counsel, and not the party. The imposition of sanctions is a matter within the discretion of the trial court [Winikow v. Superior Court (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th, 719, 726 , 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 413] .

[d] Response to Order to Show Cause

When a court issues an order to show cause pursuant to Cal. Rule of Ct., Rule 3.110, responsive papers to the order to show cause must be filed and served at least five calendar days before the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.110(i)]. The written response should include, at a minimum, counsel's declaration with a factual showing of why sanctions should not be imposed for violating the rule, and if applicable, a brief memorandum of points and authorities setting forth any relevant case law, statutes, and court rules.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeService of ProcessProofGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeService of ProcessSummonsIssuanceCivil ProceduresPretrial JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPretrial JudgmentsDefaultDefault JudgmentsLegal EthicsSanctionsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Bringing Cases to Trial
1. Initiating and Responding to a Complaint

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 425.18-425.29

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 425.18[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Bringing Cases to Trial
2. Case Management System

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.30

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.30 Overview

This part addresses case management by the court under the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act (TCDRA) after the complaint and answer have been filed and served on the parties to the litigation. Other than scheduling, case management under the TCDRA has not changed discovery or dispositive motion practice in state court. The case management rules, however, have changed the speed with which cases move through the court, as well as non-dispositive motion practice. This section first discusses the classification of civil cases by the court for the purpose of pre-trial management, including the courts' managerial powers during the pre-trial process, the specific case management deadlines imposed by the TCDRA, and the interplay between the court's case management authority under TCDRA and procedural deadlines independently imposed by statute, such as the discovery and motion cut-offs. The final section discusses Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR) and exceptions to the differential case management process. [see, e.g., San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 3.0].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Bringing Cases to Trial
2. Case Management System

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.31

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.31 Effect of the 2002 and 2003 Amendments

Prior to the 2002 amendments to the TCDRA rules, a civil case would be placed on the civil active list and set for trial when either the court determined the case to be at issue or when one or both parties served and filed a joint at-issue memorandum [former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 209]. After the filing of the at-issue memorandum or the entry of an order deeming a case to be at issue, the case would be placed on the civil active list [former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 210], and arranged in the order in which the at-issue memoranda and orders were filed. In most jurisdictions, the case would then be scheduled for an arbitration status conference, or be removed from the civil active list, or placed on the arbitration hearing list, or set for a trial setting conference, a pre-trial conference, or a status conference [former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 217-221]. These rules have been abolished. Local rules may still provide for the procedures for setting a case for trial; as these local rules are not preempted [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.20], they must be consulted.

The California Rules of Court effective July 1, 2002 dispensed with the hodgepodge of local rules governing local case management, status conferences, at-issue memoranda,and pre-trial statements, in favor of a mandatory statewide standard that imposes differential case management conference requirements on the court, sets disposition time goals, and requires the court to review of all general civil actions and to issue a case management order in every case that will govern the procedural posture and establish the deadlines to be followed in the case to the trial date [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.722 and 3.728].

Amendments to the TCDRA rules in 2003 state that the goals of the TCDRA program are to secure the fair, timely and efficient disposition of every civil case in a fair, practical and flexible manner [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.700]. The 2002 amendments had set forth a plan requiring most civil cases to be classified in to one of three classifications for disposition at the time of filing. However, the 2003 amendments dispensed with the three tier classification system and instead implemented disposition time goals [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.714]. The goals are intended to promote prompt disposition of all cases and are not meant to create deadlines for individual cases [Cal. Rules of Ct., Stds. Jud. Admin., Std. 2.2].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Bringing Cases to Trial
2. Case Management System

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.32

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.32 Differential Case Management Framework

[1] Mandatory Court Review--Assignment to Case Management Program or Exemption From Program Within 180 Days of Complaint

After a case is filed, the court evaluates each general civil case and assigns it to a case management program for review of disposition time goals, or exempts the case on the basis of exceptional circumstances that will prevent compliance with the program [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.714(a), (c), (d)]. The court must review a general civil case within 180 days after the filing of the initial complaint, unless the case is a complex case, or an exempt short cause, uninsured motorist case, a case included in a petition for coordination, exceptional case, or is classified as a simple case to be disposed of quickly under local rule [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.721]. Disposition time goals will be reviewed at the case management conference [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.714(a), (b) and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.722]. For expedited case disposition, the court may by local rule adopt a case management plan that establishes a goal for disposing of appropriate cases within six to nine month of filing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.714(d)]. No one factor or set of factors is controlling [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.715].

[2] Differential Case Management Applicable to "General Civil Cases" Only

The differential case management rules are applicable only to "general civil cases." A "general civil case" for the purpose of TCDRA includes all civil cases, with the following exceptions [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.712(b)-(d); see also Rule 1.6(4)]:

- Probate.
- Guardianship and conservatorship.
- Family law.

- Juvenile court.
- Small claims proceedings.
- Other civil petitions as defined by the Judicial Branch Statistical Information Data Collection Standards.
- Uninsured motorist.
- Cases included in petitions for coordination.
- Collections cases.

All courts have adopted some system of case differentiation classification based on the relative complexity of cases, which provide longer periods for the timely disposition of more complex cases [see Gov. Code § 68603(c); Cal. Rules of Ct., Stds. Jud. Admin., Std. 2.2(g)].

[3] Case Disposition

[a] Disposition Time Goals

After a general civil case is filed, the court, by local rule, must evaluate each case on its own merits and assign the case to the case management program for review under California Rules of Court, Rule 3.722 (case management conferences) for disposition under certain case disposition time goals [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.714(a)]. Civil cases are to be managed so as to achieve the following goals [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.714(b)]:

- Unlimited Civil Cases: 75 percent disposed of within 12 months; 85 percent disposed of within 18 months; 100 percent disposed of within 24 months.
- Limited Civil Cases: 90 percent disposed of within 12 months; 98 percent disposed of within 18 months; 100 percent disposed of within 24 months.

These goals are guidelines for the court's disposition of all unlimited and limited civil cases. In managing individual civil cases, the court must consider each case on its merits. Each case should be set for trial as soon as appropriate for that trial under trial setting guidelines set forth in California Rules of Court, Rule 3.729 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.714(b)]. Definitions of limited and unlimited civil cases are found in Code of Civ. Proc. § 85 et seq.

[b] Factors Considered

In determining how to assign the case, the court is required to consider the following factors, as well as any other relevant information [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.715]:

- Type and subject matter of the action.
- Number of causes of action or affirmative defenses alleged.
- Number of parties with separate interests.
- Number of cross complaints and the subject matter.

- Complexity of issues, including issues of first impression.
- Difficulty in identifying, locating, and serving parties.
- Nature and extent of anticipated discovery.
- Number and location of percipient and expert witnesses.
- Estimated length of trial.
- Whether some or all issues can be arbitrated.
- Statutory priority of the issues.
- Likelihood of review by writ or appeal.
- Amount in controversy and the type of remedy sought, including measures of damages.
- Pendency of other actions or proceedings that may affect the case.
- Nature and extent of anticipated law and motion proceedings.
- Nature and extent of the injuries and damages.
- Pendency of underinsured claims.
- Any other factor that would affect the time for disposition of the case.

In addition to the factors listed above, in determining whether an exceptional case should be exempted from the time disposition goals, the court is to be guided by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.400 regarding complex cases [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.714(c); for discussion of Rule 3.400, see § 425.52].

[4] Exceptions to Differential Case Management

[a] Exceptional or Complex Cases

General civil cases that involve exceptional circumstances that will prevent the court and the parties from meeting the deadlines imposed by the TCDRA, may in the interests of justice, be exempted from the case disposition/time goals. The standards for exempting an exceptional case are the TCDRA case evaluation standards in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.715, and complex case standards found in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.400 that are exempted from fast-track management are, for classification purposes, often referred to as "Complex Litigation" [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.714(c); for discussion of procedure in complex cases, see § 425.52]. Complex cases may be handled differently from fast-track cases, including being assigned to a single judge for all or limited purposes.

[b] Short Cause Cases

A short cause case is a civil case in which the time estimated for trial by allparties or the court is five hours or less; all other civil cases are long cause cases [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.735(a)]. The court may order, on the stipulation of all the parties or on the court's own motion, that a case is a short cause case exempted from the requirements of case management review and set the case for trial [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.735(b)]. If a short cause case is not completely tried within five hours, the judge may declare a mistrial or, in the judge's discretion, may complete the trial. In the event of a mistrial, the case will be treated as a long cause case and must promptly be set either for a new trial or for a case management conference [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.735(c)].

[c] Simple Cases

The TCDRA court rules permit courts to adopt a case management plan for disposing of simple cases within six to nine months [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.714(d)]. The TCDRA rules do not define "simple case," but instead require the court, by local rule, to establish a procedure to identify the cases to be assigned to the plan [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.714(d)]. The simple case designation must be used only for uncomplicated cases amenable to early disposition that do not need a case management conference or review or similar event to guide the case to early resolution [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.714(d)].

[d] Specified Collection Cases

Collections cases, as defined in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.740(a), and in which the defendant does not file a responsive pleading, are exempt from differential case management rules [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.712(d), 3.740(c)(1)]. A "collections case" is an action for recovery of not more than $25,000, exclusive of interest and attorney fees, arising from a credit transaction for property, services, or money. The action may not seek [Cal. Rules Ct, Rule 3.740(a)]:

- Tort damages.
- Punitive damages.
- Recovery of real property.
- Recovery of personal property.
- Prejudgment writ of attachment.

For discussion of the exemption of these type of collections cases from the 60-day service of summons requirement, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers, § 518.15[4].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesPretrial ConferencesCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesScheduling ConferencesGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Bringing Cases to Trial
2. Case Management System

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.33

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.33 Setting Case Management Conference

[1] Initial Case Management Conference Must Be Set by Court; Scheduling and Notice

The court must review a general civil case within 180 days after the filing of the initial complaint, unless the case is a complex case, or an exempt short cause, uninsured motorist case, a case included in a petition for coordination, exceptional case, or is classified as a simple case to be disposed of quickly under local rule [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.721]. The review process contemplated by the statute requires an initial case management conference to be set by the court, for the parties to submit information about the case to the court in a mandatory form of case management statement, and for a case management order to be issued by the court setting forth the pretrial deadlines established by the court's review.

In each general civil case, the court must set an initial case management conference to review the case. Notice of the date of the case management conference is given to all parties no later than 45 days before the conference or as otherwise ordered by the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.722(a), (b)]. Local rules may provide the time and manner of giving notice [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.722(b)].

Although the statute mandates a review of each case and the setting of an initial case management conference within 180 days from the date of filing, the case management conference itself is conducted in the manner provided by Local Rule. The rules will vary from jurisdiction to jurisdiction. Case management conferences are governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 575-576, Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.722, and local court rules and policies. The Code of Civil Procedure continues to refer to the conference as a pretrial conference [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 575, 576]. At the initial conference, the court must review the case comprehensively and must, among other things, decide whether to assign the case to an alternative dispute resolution process and whether to set the case for trial. The initial case management conference should generally be the first case management event conducted by court order in each case, except for orders to show cause [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.722(a)].

For a Judicial Council form that includes an order to reschedule the case management conference upon the granting of an ex parte application for an extension of time to serve pleadings, see § 524.53A in Ch. 524, Shortening and Extension of Time.

[2] Special Request for Case Management Conference

The court on its own motion may order, or a party or parties may request, that an aditional case management conference be held at any time [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.723].

PRACTICE TIP:

Requesting a Case Management Conference Date: The wording of Cal. Rules Ct., Rule 3.723, that a party may request "an additional case management conference be held at any time," is quite broad. However, a partyshould be required to participate at an additional conference only if an appearance is necessary for the effective management of the case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.723(c)]. A motion to request a case management conference date might be brought, inter alia:

- To request a case management conference date before the date normally set by local rule, or to change the scheduled case management date, because the party will move for an order to advance, reset, or specially set the case management conference and trial date due to precedence, preference, or other grounds [see § 425.70 et seq.].

- To request an additional case management conference due to new developments. More than one case management conference is permitted [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.723, 3.728(11), (12)].

- To extend the initially scheduled case management date when a party is unable to comply with the meet-and-confer requirement 30 days before the scheduled date due to calendar conflicts [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.724] or if more time is needed to adequately prepare the case management statement, which must be filed 15 days before the conference [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.725(a)]. In this instance, a noticed motion to continue is theappropriate procedure, and must be supported with good cause [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1332]. When offering the later date to the court, recognize that the case management conference must be held no later than 180 days after the initial complaint is filed and the court needs at least 45 days to notice the conference unless otherwise ordered [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.721, 3.723]. Check local rules for other possible restrictions.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticePleadingsTime LimitationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticePleadingsTime LimitationsExtensionsCivil ProceduresPretrial MattersGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPretrial MattersConferencesGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPretrial MattersConferencesCase Management

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Bringing Cases to Trial
2. Case Management System

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.34

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.34 Preparing the Case Management Statement

[1] Case Management Statement Required

Each party must file a case management statement not later than 15 days before the date set for the case management conference or case management review [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.725(a)]. The case management statement must be filed with the court and served on all other parties in the case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.725(a)].

[2] Mandatory Use of Judicial Council Form

Unlike the old case management conference statement which could take many forms depending on local practice and rules, under the TCDRA court rules effective July 1, 2002, the case management statement must be submitted on Cal. Judicial Council Form CM-110 [for form, see § 425.131]. The use of Form CM-110 is mandatory, and all applicable items on the form must be completed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.725(c)].

The information required to be included in the case management statement includes:

- The names of the parties.
- The status of service and of the pleadings.
- Whether a jury or non jury trial is requested.
- If a trial date has not been set, the date the case will be ready for trial.
- The estimated length of trial and counsels' availability for trial.

- Whether the case is entitled to a preference.
- ADR status.
- Whether and what types of ADR the parties are willing to participate in.
- Whether the parties are willing to participate in early settlement.
- The availability of insurance.
- Matters that affect jurisdiction.
- Whether there are related cases.
- Disclosure of motions that will or may be filed, including motions for consolidation, coordination and bifurcation.
- The status of discovery and the anticipated completion date for discovery
- Whether the case is a limited civil case and if so, whether the case should be exempted from the economic litigation procedures governing limited civil cases.
- A statement identifying any issues counsel requests to be considered or determined at the case management conference.

[3] Parties May File A Joint Statement

In lieu of filing separate case management statements, one or more parties may file a joint statement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.725(b)].

[4] Meet and Confer Requirement For Case Management Statement

Not later than 30 calendar days before the date set for the first case management conference, the parties must meet and confer in person or by telephone to consider issues to be discussed during the case management conference and to consider all of the following matters [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.724]:

1. Resolving discovery disputes and setting the discovery schedule.

2. Identifying and if possible informally resolving anticipated motions.

3. Identifying facts and issues in the case that are uncontested and may be the subject of stipulation.

4. Identifying the facts and the issues in the case that are in dispute.

5. Determining whether the issues in the case can be narrowed by eliminating claims and defenses by motions or otherwise.

6. Possible settlement.

7. Identifying the dates on which all parties and their attorneys are available or not available for trial, including the reasons for unavailability.

8. Any issues relating to the discovery of electronically stored information.

9. Other relevant matters.

[5] Case Management Statement Must Contain Representation Regarding Meet and Confer

The parties must include a representation in the case management statement that the parties have met and conferred on all subjects required by Rule of Court 3.724, or explain why the meet and confer has not taken place. If the parties agree on any of the matters which were the topic of the meet and confer session, the parties may advise the court of the areas of agreement by including a statement in the Case Management Statement.

[6] Prior Case Management Orders Must Be Attached

Any case management orders previously entered in a case must be attached to the Case Management Statement Form [Cal. Judicial Council Form CM-110].

[7] Case Management Statement Requires Representative of Authority to Enter into Stipulation

The signature of the attorney or a party on the Case Management Statement contains a representation that counsel or the party is completely familiar with the case and will be fully prepared to discuss the status of discovery and ADR, as well as other issues raised by the statement and will possess the authority to enter into stipulations on the issues raised by the statement including written authority of the party where required.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesPretrial ConferencesCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesScheduling ConferencesGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Bringing Cases to Trial
2. Case Management System

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.35

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.35 Appearance Requirements at Case Management Conference

[1] General Rule and Excusing Appearance

As a general rule, counsel for each party and each self-represented party must appear personally or by telephone, if permitted [see Code Civ. Proc § 367.5; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.670; for detailed discussion of telephone appearance, see § 372.21[16]], and must be familiar with the case and be prepared to discuss and commit to the party's position on the issues [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.722(c)]. A party that has provided notice may appear by telephone at a case management conference, provided the party has made a good faith effort to meet and confer before the conference as required by law and has timely served and filed a case management statement [Code Civ. Proc. § 367.5(b)(1)]. However, if based on its review of the parties' written submissions [see § 425.24 (case management statement)] and other available information, the court determines that appearances at the conference are not necessary, the court may notify the parties that no appearance is required and issue a case management order without appearances [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.722(d)]. In addition, local rules may provide that counsel and self-represented parties are not to attend a case management conference in limited civil cases, unless ordered to do so by the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.722(e)].

[2] Personal Appearance

Personal appearances are required in the following proceedings [Code Civ. Proc § 367.5; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.670(d)]:

- Trials and hearings at which witnesses are expected to testify;
- Hearings on temporary restraining orders;
- Trial management conferences;

- Hearings on motions in limine;
- Hearings on petitions to confirm the sale of property under the Probate Code;
- Settlement conferences, unless the court orders otherwise;
- Case management conferences, unless the court permits telephone appearances at those conferences; and
- Any hearing or conference for which the court, in its discretion, determines that a personal appearance would materially assist in a determination of the proceeding or in resolution of the case; the court must make this determination on a case-by-case basis.

[3] Telephone Appearance

[a] Option of Counsel

In general civil cases [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.6(4) (definition of general civil case)], unlawful detainer, and probate proceedings, counsel has the option of appearing by telephone at certain conferences, hearings, and proceedings as specified by Code Civ. Proc. § 367.5 and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.670, except as noted in [2], above [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.670(a), (b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 367.5. The Judicial Council Standard of Judicial Administration for teleconferencing among other provisions, recommends that a court should consider, in awarding attorney's fees under any provision of law, whether an attorney is claiming fees for appearing in person in a proceeding in which that attorney could have appeared by telephone [Cal. Rules of Ct., Stds. Jud. Admin., Std. 3.1(c)]. For further discussion of the Standard, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders . For detailed discussion of telephone appearance and forms, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders, §§ 372.21[16], 372.63.

[b] Service Provider and Fees for Conference Call

A court may provide teleconferencing for court appearances by entering into a contract with a private vendor. The contract may provide that the vendor may charge the party appearing by telephone a reasonable fee, specified in the contract, for its services [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.670(i)]. A court may designate by local rule a particular conference call provider that must be used for telephone appearances [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.670(l)].

[c] Audibility

The court must ensure that the statements of participants are audible to all other participants and must also ensure that a participant's statements are identified as being made by that participant [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.670(j)].

[d] Recording of Proceedings

All proceedings involving telephone appearances must be reported to the same extent and in the same manner as if the participants appeared in person [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.670(k)].

[e] Local Procedure

Counsel should contact the clerk of the superior court in the county in which an action is brought to ascertain the court's rules and policies governing telephone appearances [see, e.g., San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 8.2(A)(3)]. Each court is required to publish notice providing parties with the particular information necessary for them to appear by telephone at conferences and hearings in that court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.670(m)].

[f] Notice of Telephone Appearance

A party choosing to appear by telephone at a hearing must either [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.670(g)(1)(A), (B)]:

- Place the phrase "Telephone Appearance" below the title of the moving papers, or

- At least three court days before the appearance, notify the court and all other parties of the party's intent to appear by telephone. If the notice is oral, it must be given either in person or by telephone. If the notice is in writing, it must be given by filing a "Notice of Intent to Appear by Telephone" with the court at least three court days before the appearance and by serving the notice at the same time on all other parties by personal delivery, fax transmission, express mail, or other means reasonably calculated to ensure delivery to the parties no later than the close of the next business day.

If after receiving notice from another party as provided above a party that has not given notice also decides to appear by telephone, the party may do so by notifying the court and all other parties that have appeared in the action, no later than noon on the court day before the appearance, of its intent to appear by telephone [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.670(g)(2)].

The court, on a showing of good cause, may permit a party to appear by telephone at a conference, hearing, or proceeding even if the party has not given the notice required [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.670(g)(4)].

For a form including a caption for use in first-filed moving or opposition papers to indicate "Telephone Appearance," see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders, § 372.60; for a form for a separate notice of intent to appear by telephone, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders, § 372.63.

[g] Retraction of Notice of Telephone Appearance

If a party has given notice that it intends to appear by telephone subsequently chooses to appear in person, the party must so notify the court and all other parties that have appeared in the action, by telephone, at least two court days before the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.670(g)(3)].

[h] Court Order for Appearance in Person After Notice of Telephone Appearance Has Been Given

If, after a party has requested a telephone appearance under Rule 3.670(g), the court requires the personal appearance of the party, the court must, give reasonable notice to all parties before the hearing. If the court uses a telephonic tentative ruling system for law and motion matters, the notification that parties must appear in person may be given as part of the tentative ruling on a specific law and motion matter if the notification is given one court day before the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.670(h)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPartiesSelf-RepresentationGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementCivil ProceduresPretrial MattersConferencesPretrial ConferencesCivil ProceduresPretrial MattersConferencesScheduling Conferences

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Bringing Cases to Trial
2. Case Management System

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.36

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.36 Conduct of Case Management Conference

[1] Familiarity, Discussion, and Commitment Requirements

Whether appearing personally or by telephone, counsel for each party and each self-represented party must be familiar with the case, and must be prepared to discuss and commit to the party's position on the issues to be considered at the conference, including the meet-and-confer requirements [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.722(c)]. For a list of subjects that must be considered, see [2], below.

[2] Subjects to be Considered at Conference

The case management conference must be conducted in a manner provided by local rule. The matters that the court may consider include any matters that should be considered by the court or addressed in a case management order including the following issues [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.727]:

1. Whether there are related cases;

2. Whether all parties have been served, appeared, or been dismissed;

3. Whether any additional parties may be added or the pleadings may be amended;

4. If the case is a limited civil case, whether the case will be exempted from the economic litigation procedures under Code of Civil Procedure section 90 by the court or on motion of a party;

5. Other matters (e.g., the bankruptcy of a party) that may affect the court's jurisdiction of the case;

6. Whether the parties have stipulated to, or the case should be referred to, judicial arbitration or any other form of Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR);

7. Scheduling an early settlement conference, if appropriate;

8. Whether discovery has been completed and, if not, the date by which it will be completed;

9. Anticipated discovery issues;

10. Bifurcation of the case;

11. Whether any cross-complaints filed are ready to be set for trial or whether they should be severed;

12. Whether the case is entitled to any statutory preferences and, if so, the statute granting the preference;

13. Whether a jury trial is demanded, and, if so, the identity of each party requesting a jury trial;

14. If the trial date has not been previously set, the date by which the case will be ready for trial and the available trial dates;

15. The estimated length of trial;

16. The nature of the injuries;

17. The amount of damages, including any special or punitive damages;

18. Any additional relief sought;

19. Whether there are any insurance coverage issues that may affect the resolution of the case; and

20. Any other matters that should be considered by the court or addressed in its case management order.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePartiesSelf-RepresentationGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersSeparate TrialsCivil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsRight to Jury Trial

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Bringing Cases to Trial
2. Case Management System

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.37

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.37 The Case Management Order

[1] Subjects Addressed

The case management order is the vehicle by which the trial date is set, cases are referred to arbitration or other alternative dispute resolution, settlement conferences are scheduled, and other pre-trial deadlines are established by the court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.728]. The case management order is issued after the court conducts the case review, at or after the case management conference is conducted, or if no case management conference is held, before the date of the case management conference and mailed to the parties by the court. The case management order controls the subsequent course of the action or proceeding unless modified by a subsequent case management order or amended case management order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.730].

Subjects to be addressed in the case management order include [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.728]:

1. Referral of the case to judicial arbitration or some other form of Alternative Dispute Resolution;

2. A date for completion of the arbitration process or other form of Alternative Dispute Resolution process if the case has been referred to such a process;

3. In the event that a trial date has not previously been set, a date certain for trial if the case is ready to be set for trial;

4. Whether the trial will be a jury trial or a non-jury trial;

5. The identity of each party demanding a jury trial;

6. The estimated length of trial;

7. Whether all parties necessary to the disposition of the case have been served or have appeared;

8. The dismissal or severance of unserved or not appearing defendant from the action;

9. The names and addresses of the attorneys who will try the case;

10. The date, time and place for a mandatory settlement conference as provided in Rule 3.1380;

11. The date, time and place for a final case management conference before trial if such a conference is required by the court or the judge assigned to the case;

12. The date, time and place of any further case management conferences or review; and

13. Any additional orders that may be appropriate, including orders on matters listed in Rules 3.724 and 3.727.

[2] Effect of Case Management Order

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.728 affords the case management judge a high degree of control over the proceedings, including the scheduling of discovery and of dispositive and procedural motions, and other pre-trial deadlines. In some jurisdictions, the case management order will specify a specific date for completing discovery, the time for expert witness disclosure, the date by which dispositive or procedural motions must be filed, and set other pre-trial deadlines, such as the date for the exchange of trial exhibit lists, witness lists and motions in limine, and the designation of video or other audiovisual presentations that may be used at trial. In other jurisdictions, the case management order will specify the cut-offs for discovery, motion practice, expert witness disclosure and the deadlines for other dates, such as the exchange of witness lists, exhibit lists and other pre trial deadlines to be "by code," that is, the procedural deadlines to be imposed on the litigants are the deadlines that are established by statue, or the Rules of Court or local court rules, and not by the case management order. Among the critical cut-off dates that may be specified by code are the expert witness disclosure, discovery cut-off, summary judgment and other law and motion cut-offs, the deadline for statutory compromise, and the exchange of witness lists, exhibit lists, jury instructions and motions in limine.

[3] Modification of Case Management Order

[a] Order Governs Unless Modified

The order issued after the case management conference or review controls the subsequent course of the action or proceeding unless it is modified by a subsequent order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.730].

[b] On Motion of Party Before or at Trial

The trial has the discretion to allow an oral amendment of a pretrial conference order at any time during the trial if the adverse party is not prejudiced by it [Robinson v. Thornton (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 605, 615, 76 Cal. Rptr. 835] . A trial court may, in effect, modify a pretrial conference order without a motion when its failure to do so would result in injustice to one party and its doing so would not cause prejudice to the other party [see Fresno Air Serv. v. Wood (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 801, 804, 43 Cal. Rptr. 276 (trial court refused to give instructions on defense of assumption of risk or allow defendant to argue it, although assumption of risk was listed in pretrial conference order as issue to be tried)].

[c] Discretion of Judge

The same principles that govern the exercise of a court's discretion in allowing amendments to the pleadings under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 apply with respect to motions to modify or amend pretrial conference orders [Del Pino v. Gualtieri (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 912, 916, 71 Cal. Rptr. 716 ; see Ch. 21, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings]. The granting or denial of a motion to modify a pretrial conference order is committed to the sound discretion of the trial court and the decision will not be reversed unless an abuse of discretion is shown [Universal Underwriters Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 722, 727, 732, 58 Cal. Rptr. 870 ; see Godfrey v. Steinpress (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 154, 170, 180 Cal. Rptr. 95 ; Del Pino v. Gualtieri (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 912, 916, 71 Cal. Rptr. 716] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDiscretionCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementCivil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsJury InstructionsGeneral OverviewEvidenceTestimonyPresentation of Evidence

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Bringing Cases to Trial
2. Case Management System

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 425.38-425.49

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 425.38[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Bringing Cases to Trial
3. Trial Setting, ADR, Complex Cases, and Sanctions

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.50

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.50 Trial Setting

[1] Calendaring System

The trial setting process differs depending on whether (1) the case is a general civil case or is a case exempted from the case management process under the TCDRA, and (2) whether the case has been assigned to one judge for all purposes (Independent (or Direct) Calendar) or is being assigned through a Master Calendar. In a Direct Calendar system, a case is assigned to a judge who hears all pre-trial motions in addition to serving the trial judge. Under a Master Calendar system, cases not assigned to a specific judge but proceed through the pre-trial process with motions being heard by the law and motion judge, the writs and receivers judge, or the presiding judge, as provided by local rules. Under the TCDRA, most jurisdictions follow a hybrid of the two systems. The system followed by most counties contain the elements of a direct calendar jurisdiction in that the case management judge may have broad responsibility for hearing motions, case management and other administrative and management duties associated with the direct calendar system, as well as elements of a master calendar system because the case is assigned a trial date, placed on a master calendar and, when the trial date arises, the case is transferred to a trial department [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 10.910].

[2] Exempt and Non-Exempt Cases

For both exempt and non-exempt civil cases under the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act [see § 425.13[3], [5]], the case may be set for trial at the case management conference [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.728].

[3] Short Cause and Simple Cases

The court may exempt a short cause case from case management review and set it for trial on its own initiative [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.735; see § 425.26]. The procedure for setting short cause and simple cases, varies from jurisdiction to jurisdiction. In some jurisdictions, short cause cases and simple cases are reviewed as part of the case management process and set internally for trial by the court and the parties are notified of the trial date with no further input from the parties. The determination as to whether the case is at issue is made by the court based on the court's review of the civil case cover sheet and/or the case management statement.

[4] Complex Cases

Complex cases may be set by trial by the case management judge, or by the presiding judge depending on the local rules of the jurisidiction. The procedure varies from jurisdiction to jurisdiction. For discussion of complex cases, see § 425.52.

[5] Case to Be Tried, Ordered Off Calendar, Dismissed or Reassigned

In a county employing the master calendar, each case transferred to a trial department must be tried, ordered off the calendar, or dismissed, unless for good cause arising after the commencement of the trial the judge of the trial department continues the case for further hearing or, with the consent of the judge supervising the master calendar, reassigns the case to the judge supervising the master calendar for further disposition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 10.910(a)].

[6] Duties of Transferee Judge

The judge sitting in the department to which a cause is assigned for trial or for hearing must accept the assignment unless he or she is disqualified or, for other good cause stated to the judge supervising the master calendar, the judge supervising the master calendar determines that in the interest of justice the cause should not be tried or heard before the judge [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 10.910(b); for discussion of disqualification, see Ch. 317, Judges].

A judge who has refused a cause and is not disqualified must state the reasons in writing unless the judge supervising the master calendar has concurred [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 10.910(b)].

When a judge finishes or continues the trial of a case or any special matter, he or she must immediately notify the judge supervising the master calendar [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 10.910(b)].

[7] Assignment to One Judge for All or Limited Purposes

The presiding judge may, on the noticed motion of a party or on the court's motion, order the assignment of any case to one judge for all or such limited purposes as will promote the efficient administration of justice. In determining the suitability of assignment, the presiding judge is to be guided by the standards recommended in Standard 3.10 of the Standards of Judicial Administration, set forth in the California Rules of Court.

[8] Trial Setting Factors

In setting a case for trial, the court, at the initial case management conference or at any other case setting proceeding, must consider all relevant facts and circumstances [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.729]. These factors may include the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.729]:

- Type and subject matter of the action to be tried.
- Whether the case has statutory priority.
- Number of causes of action, cross-actions, and affirmative defenses that will be tried.
- Whether any significant amendments to the pleadings have been made recently or are likely to be made before trial.

- Whether the plaintiff intends to bring a motion to amend the complaint to seek punitive damages.
- Number of parties with separate interests who will be involved in the trial.
- The complexity of the issues to be tried, including issues of first impression.
- Any difficulties in identifying, locating or serving parties.
- Whether all parties have been served and, if so, the date by which they were served.
- Whether all parties have appeared in the action and, if so, the date by which they appeared.
- How long the attorneys who will try the case have been involved in the action.
- The trial date or dates proposed by the parties and their attorneys.
- The professional and personal schedules of the parties and their attorneys, including any conflicts with previously assigned trial dates or other significant events.
- The amount of discovery, if any, that remains to be conducted in the case.
- The nature and extent of law and motion proceedings anticipated, including whether any summary judgment motions will be filed.
- Whether any other actions or proceedings that are pending may affect the case.
- The amount in controversy and the type of remedy sought.
- The nature and extent of the injuries or damages, including whether these are ready for determination.
- The court's trial calendar.
- Whether the trial will be a jury or a nonjury trial.
- The anticipated length of the trial.
- The number, availability, and locations of witnesses.
- Whether there have been any previous continuances or delays of the trial.
- The achievement of a fair, timely, and efficient dispositon of the case.
- Any other factor that would significantly affect the determination of the appropriate date for trial.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDiscretionCivil

ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersContinuancesGovernmentsCourtsJudges

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Bringing Cases to Trial
3. Trial Setting, ADR, Complex Cases, and Sanctions

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.51

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.51 Pretrial Alternative Dispute Resolution

[1] Preliminary Determinations and Requirements

Pre-trial alternative dispute resolution, either by agreement of the parties, or by order of the court, is an established part of the pre-trial process, and even if not required by statute or local rule in a particular case, is encouraged by the court. In many venues, the plaintiff is required to serve with the complaint and summons, copies of information on available ADR resources provided by the local court. The parties may, by local rule of court, be required to review the ADR materials with the client and to agree to a form of non-binding alternative dispute resolution, such as arbitration, mediation or early neutral evaluation. The Case Management Statement in fact requires the parties to specify the forms of alternative dispute resolution to which the parties are willing to stipulate, if any. The court when issuing the case management order, will consider the preferences of the parties, and specify the type of ADR and a deadline for completing ADR in the case management order. If the parties agree to use an Alternative Dispute Resolution process, they must jointly complete an ADR stipulation form and file it with the court.

[2] Private Alternative Dispute Resolution

Even in jurisdictions which may not have an ADR program suitable for all cases, the number of private mediation and arbitration providers continues to expand, and the courts often encourage the parties to stipulate to alternative dispute resolution relating to all or part of an action. For example, defendants and cross-defendants in a personal injury action may agree to settle issues raised in the cross actions through a private ADR process, so as not to "make plaintiffs' cases for them" in open court. Similarly, indemnity issues between co-defendants also lend themselves to arbitration.

Complex cases in particular lend themselves to alternative means of management. For example, it has become more common in multiparty construction defect litigation for the court to appoint a special master to meet regularly with the parties, direct phases of discovery and motion practice, find facts, and to recommend pretrial orders that are signed by the court. The appointment of a special master to supervise a phase or phases of a case, either at the request of the parties or on the court's own motion, may be appropriately viewed as somewhat of a hybrid between more traditional forms of ADR and the normal court processes.

For discussion of the forms of arbitration which are available to assist in dispute resolution see Ch. 30, Using Alternative Dispute Resolution . Court programs encouraging, and in some cases mandating, participation in mediation [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1730 et seq. and 1775 et seq.], are discussed in Ch. 37, Judicially Mandated Civil Action Mediation .

[3] Mandatory Judicial Arbitration

[a] Overview

Civil actions filed in superior courts with 18 or more judges are subject to mandatory judicial arbitration if, in the court's opinion, the amount in controversy will not exceed $50,000 for each plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11(a)]. Superior courts with fewer than 18 judges are authorized to adopt this mandatory judicial arbitration program [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11(b)]. All superior courts are authorized to provide by local rule that all nonexempt, limited civil cases be submitted to arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11(c)]. If the parties agree to use an Alternative Dispute Resolution process, they must jointly complete an ADR stipulation form and file it with the court. The court need not make the determination of the case's value if the parties stipulate either that the amount exceeds $50,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.16(a)] or that the case be submitted to arbitration regardless of the amount. [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.12(a)].

[b] Determining Amount in Controversy

The determination of the amount in controversy may be made at any conference at which all parties are present or represented by counsel [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.16(a)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Impact of Judicial Arbitration. Judicial arbitration impacts smaller cases in two significant ways. These are cost shifting and accelerated discovery cutoff dates. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.822, provides for a discovery cut-off 15 days prior to the date set for the arbitration hearing, and Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.24 and Code Civ. Proc. § 2024(b) [Code Civ. Proc. § 2024.040(a) operative July 1, 2005] prohibit discovery, other than expert discovery, after an arbitration award has been rendered, absent a stipulation of the parties. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.826, and Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21 require the court to impose costs incurred (including the cost of experts) on the party requesting a trial de novo following judicial arbitration if the requesting party does not obtain a more favorable verdict at trial. Timely completion of discovery in cases referred to arbitration (or obtaining a stipulation from opposing counsel to keep discovery open after the arbitration award) and being realistic about the value of a case following arbitration both should be considered upon the assignment of a case to judicial arbitration. By Evelio Grillo

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersMastersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsStipulationsCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMandatory ADRCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMediationsCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesCase Management

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Bringing Cases to Trial
3. Trial Setting, ADR, Complex Cases, and Sanctions

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.52

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.52 Complex Litigation

[1] What Constitutes Complex Litigation

A "complex case" is an action that requires exceptional judicial management to avoid placing unnecessary burdens on the court or the litigants and to expedite the case, keep costs reasonable, and promote effective decision making by the court, the parties, and counsel [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.400(a)].

In deciding whether an action is a complex case under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.400(a), the court must consider, among other things, whether the action is likely to involve [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.400(b)]:

- Numerous pretrial motions raising difficult or novel legal issues that will be time-consuming to resolve;
- Management of a large number of witnesses or a substantial amount of documentary evidence;
- Management of a large number of separately represented parties;
- Coordination with related actions pending in one or more courts in other counties, states, or countries, or in a federal court; or
- Substantial postjudgment judicial supervision.

Except as provided in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.400(d), an action is provisionally a complex case if it involves one or more of the following types of claims [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.400(c)]:

- Antitrust or trade regulation claims;
- Construction defect claims involving many parties or structures;
- Securities claims or investment losses involving many parties;
- Environmental or toxic tort claims involving many parties;
- Claims involving mass torts;
- Claims involving class actions; or
- Insurance coverage claims arising out of any of the claims listed in above.

The exception provided by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.400(d) is that despite Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.400(c), an action is not provisionally complex if the court has significant experience in resolving like claims involving similar facts and the management of those claims has become routine. A court may declare by local rule that certain types of cases are or are not provisionally complex pursuant to Rule 3.400(d) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.400(d)].

[2] Procedure for Designating Case as Complex or Not Complex

[a] Designation by Plaintiff

A plaintiff may designate an action a complex case by filing and serving with the initial complaint the Civil Case Cover Sheet [Cal. Judicial Council Form CM-010; for form, see § 425.130] required by rule 3.220 that is marked to indicate the action is a complex case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.401].

[b] Counterdesignation

If a Civil Case Cover Sheet [Cal. Judicial Council Form CM-010; for form, see § 425.130] designating an action as a complex case was filed and served and the court has not previously declared the action to be a complex case, a defendant may file and serve no later than its first appearance a counter Civil Case Cover Sheet designating the action as not a complex case. The court must decide, with or without a hearing, whether the action is a complex case within 30 days after the filing of the counterdesignation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.402].

[c] Joint Complex Designation

A defendant may join the plaintiff in designating an action as a complex case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.402].

[d] Court Decision on Designation of Complex Case

Except when the defendant joins the plaintiff in designating an action as a complex case under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.402, if the Civil Case Cover Sheet [Cal. Judicial Council Form CM-010; for form, see § 425.130] that has been filed and served designates an action as a complex case or checks a case type described as provisionally complex civil litigation, the court must decide as soon as reasonably practicable, with or without a hearing, whether the action is a complex case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.403(a)].

[e] Motion at Any Time to Redesignate Case as Complex or Not Complex

With or without a hearing, the court may decide on its own motion, or on a noticed motion by any party, that a civil action is a complex case or that an action previously declared to be a complex case is not a complex case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.403(b)].

[f] Case Assignment

The Rules of Court provide that complex litigation should be assigned to one judge for all purposes. If that is not possible, a single judge should be assigned to hear law and motion and discovery matters [Cal. Rules of Ct., Stds. Jud. Admin., Std. 3.10].

In selecting the judges for complex litigation assignments, the presiding judge should consider the court's needs and the judge's ability, interest, training, experience, and willingness to participate in educational programs related to the management of complex cases [Cal. Rules of Ct., Stds. Jud. Admin., Std. 3.10].

Commissioners should not be employed in any phase of complex litigation, except under the judge's direct supervision to assist in the management of the case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Stds. Jud. Admin., Std. 3.10; see Lu v. Superior Court (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 1264, 1267, 1269-1271, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 561 (upholding use of discovery referee and referee to conduct settlement conferences in complex case)].

[g] Early and Active Case Management by Court

The Judicial Council has adopted rules and a standard of judicial administration relating to complex litigation [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.400 et seq.; Cal. Rules of Ct., Stds. Jud. Admin., Std. 3.10(b) or (c)]. As a basic principle, judicial management should begin early and be applied continuously and actively based on knowledge of the circumstances of each case [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Stds. Jud. Admin., Std. 3.10(b) or (c)].

Time limits should be regularly used to expedite major phases of complex litigation. The time limits should be established early, tailored to the circumstances of each case, firmly and fairly maintained, and accompanied by other methods of sound judicial management [Cal. Rules of Ct., Stds. Jud. Admin., Std. 3.10(d)].

The complex litigation procedure is intended to facilitate pretrial resolution of evidentiary and other issues, and to minimize the time and expense of lengthy or multiple trials [Rutherford v. Owens-Illinois, Inc. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 953, 966, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16, 941 P.2d 1203] . The Judicial Council recommends that litigants in complex litigation cases be required to minimize evidentiary disputes and to organize efficiently their exhibits and other evidence before trial. The Council cautions that judges involved in such litigation should be sensitive to dilatory or abusive litigation tactics and should be prepared to invoke disciplinary procedures for violations [Cal. Rules of Ct., Stds. Jud. Admin., Std. 3.10(g), (h)].

A case that is classified as complex under the complex litigation standard will frequently also be exempt from the time standards contained in the differential case management rules adopted by the Judicial Council under a mandate of the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act [Lu v. Superior Court (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 1264, 1268, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 561] . When a case is exempted from the time standards, Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.714(c) requires the court to establish a case-progression plan and monitor the case to ensure timely disposition consistent with the case's exceptional circumstances, with a goal of disposition within three years. A detailed case management order satisfies the requirement for a case progression plan and enables the judge to comply with the requirement they monitor the case to ensure timely disposition [Lu v. Superior Court (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 1264, 1268-1269, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 561 (listing items typically covered in a case management order)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDiscretionCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersRefereesAppointmentsCivil

ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementEnvironmental LawLitigation & Administrative ProceedingsToxic TortsGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & InterpretationGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsClaims By & Against

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Bringing Cases to Trial
3. Trial Setting, ADR, Complex Cases, and Sanctions

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.53

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.53 Sanctions for Noncompliance With Local Rules

Local rules adopted under Code Civ. Proc. § 575.1 (basic authority for promulgation of local court rules) may provide for sanctions for failure of any counsel, party represented by counsel, or pro se party to comply with any local rule requirements [Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2(a)].

Sanctions are also authorized under the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act by Gov. Code § 68608(b). Under that section, judges have all the powers to impose sanctions authorized by law, which can extend to dismissing actions or striking pleadings [Gov. Code § 68608(b)].

In addition, the failure of any person to comply with the California Rules of Court, local rules, or a court order, unless good cause is shown, or failure to participate in good faith in any conference required by the rules or by court order may result in sanctions for unlawful interference with the proceedings of the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.30]. An unlawful interference with the proceedings of the court may also subject the person to prosecution for contempt [Code Civ. Proc. § 1209(a)(8)].

For discussion of sanctions, including which may be imposed under these different authorities, see Ch. 510, Sanctions . For discussion of appealable orders, including the appealability of sanction orders, see Ch. 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPartiesSelf-RepresentationSanctionsCivil ProcedureCounselGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementCivil ProcedureSanctionsGeneral OverviewGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & InterpretationLegal EthicsSanctionsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Bringing Cases to Trial
3. Trial Setting, ADR, Complex Cases, and Sanctions

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 425.54-425.59

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 425.54[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Bifurcation

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.60

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.60 Relation to Case Management Rules

The case management rules require counsel to specify in the case management statement whether a case is entitled to a preference, whether a motion for consolidation or coordination will be filed and whether a party intends to file a motion for an order bifurcating, severing or coordinating issues or causes of action [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.725]. Although the court may, on its own motion, issue an order to obtain preference, coordinating or bifurcating a case, unless both parties agree to preference, consolidation or bifurcation, the motion must be filed by counsel.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersSeparate Trials

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Bifurcation

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.61

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.61 Purpose of Bifurcation

Bifurcation refers to the procedure whereby the court allows a separate trial of an issue or issues of a case preliminary to the trial of the remaining issues in a case, if any. The ordinary order of proof at trial is regulated by the Evidence Code which generally provides the court with discretion to regulate the order of proof at trial [Evid. Code § 320].

Statutory exceptions to the ordinary order of proof fall into three classes:

- Statutes authorizing the prior and separate trial of certain special defenses [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 597, 597.5, discussed in § 425.62].

- Statutes authorizing the prior and separate trial of an issue or a part of an issue before any other issue in the case [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 598, 1048; Fam. Code §§ 3023(b), 4003, discussed in Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure].

- Civil Code § 3295(d), which, in cases with a punitive damages claim, requires the court on a defendant's motion to preclude admission of evidence of the defendant's financial condition until such time as the trier of fact has returned a verdict finding that the defendant is liable and guilty of malice, oppression or fraud [see Civ. Code § 3295(d)].

In the case of true bifurcation the major objective of a bifurcated trial is to expedite and simplify the presentation of evidence [Foreman & Clark Corp. v. Fallon (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 875, 888, 92 Cal. Rptr. 162, 479 P.2d 362] . When a case is bifurcated under Civil Code § 3295(d) the purpose of bifurcation is to avoid prejudice to the defendant [see Las Palmas Associates v. Las Palmas Center Associates (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1220, 1241, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 301] .

For a discussion of the trial of issues of law before issues of fact and of equitable before legal issues in a jury trial, see Ch. 551, Trial, § 551.50 et seq.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersSeparate Trials

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Bifurcation

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.62

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.62 Separate Trial of Special Defense

[1] Statutory Authority

When the answer to a complaint or cross-complaint pleads that the action is barred by the statute of limitations or a prior judgment, or that another action is pending on the same cause, or sets up any other defense not involving the merits of the action but constituting a bar or ground of abatement to its prosecution, the court may, on its own motion or the motion of a party, proceed to the trial of the defense before the trial of any other issue in the case [Code Civ. Proc. § 597]. For discussion of the separate trial of the statute of limitations issue in a medical malpractice action under Code Civ. Proc. § 597.5, see Ch. 414, Physicians: Medical Malpractice . For discussion of the limitations on the admission of evidence in a punitive damages case under Civ. Code § 3295(d), see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq.

[2] When to Make Motion for Separate Trial of Special Defense

Neither Code Civ. Proc. § 597 nor 597.5 states how or when the motion for separate trial of a defense not going to the merits of the action must be made. Three practices appear to be followed by litigants and the courts. The first is for counsel desiring a separate trial to make the motion before trial on written notice. In that event, the court may grant the motion, deny the motion, or deny the motion without prejudice to a party's right to have the motion heard in limine by the trial judge. The second practice is for the motion for bifurcation to be brought in limine, and heard by the trial judge. The third is for the court, on its own motion, to order a separate trial of the defense preliminary to the trial of any other issue in the case [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 597, 597.5]. Whether a separate trial of a special defense would be appropriate, if not already decided on a pretrial motion, is a matter inquired into by the judge at the case management conference [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.727(10)]. Moreover, the court may order that the issue or issues involved in a defense, whether or not the defense goes to the merits of the action, be tried first either (1) pursuant to its power to regulate the order of proof under Evid. Code § 320 [see Meyer Koulish Co. v. Cannon (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 419, 429-430, 28 Cal. Rptr. 757] , or (2) pursuant to its power to order the separate trial of issues under Code Civ. Proc. § 598.

For further discussion and forms for use in moving for separate trial of a special defense not involving the merits of the action, see Ch. 3, Abatement of Actions, § 3.110 et seq.; for discussion of statutes of limitation and a form of notice of motion for separate trial of the defense when the action is barred by the statute of limitations, see Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions .

[3] Procedure When Special Defense Is Tried Separately

If the defense separately tried is that another action is pending on the same cause and the defense is sustained (and no other special defense is sustained), an interlocutory judgment is entered suspending trial of all other issues in the case until the other action is finally determined. In all other cases, for example, when the defense is that the action is barred by the statute of limitations or a prior judgment, a decision or verdict in favor of the defendant after trial of the special defense ends the action and final judgment is entered for the defendant. If the decision after trial of the special defense is in the plaintiff's favor, trial of the other issues is thereafter had either on the court's own motion or on the motion of any party; judgment is entered on such trial in the same manner and with the same effect as if all the issues in the case had been tried at one time [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 597, 597.5].

[4] Right to Jury Trial

Even in an action at law for damages, there is no right to a jury trial on affirmative defenses that can be tried separately and first. Factual issues relating to these defenses are naturally tried to the court. For example, when the determination is as to whether the same parties are involved, or the same claim raised, this mixed fact-law question is properly determined by the court sitting without a jury [Windsor Square Homeowners Assn. v. Citation Homes (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 547, 558, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 818] . The rule that the facts underlying a res judicata defense are tried to the court, and not to a jury, even though it is a legal and not an equitable defense, is well settled. The reason for this is that the facts to be determined are fairly simple and are often mixed fact-law determinations better made by the court alone. Although the issues, such as what claims were or could have been raised in the prior action, who were the parties sued, whether the party against whom the bar is asserted was in privity with a party in the prior action, and whether the prior adjudication was on the merits, may have factual predicates, they are peculiarly legal determinations [Windsor Square Homeowners Assn. v. Citation Homes (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 547, 557, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 818] .

Similarly, in a statute of limitations defense, the court would seem to be in a better position to determine when a cause of action accrued than a jury, even though there are factual underpinnings to this finding [Windsor Square Homeowners Assn. v. Citation Homes (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 547, 558, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 818 (dicta; case involved res judicata)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDiscretionCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersSeparate TrialsCivil ProcedureJudgmentsPreclusion & Effect of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsGeneral OverviewHealthcare LawActions Against Healthcare WorkersDoctors & PhysiciansTortsDamagesPunitive DamagesAward CalculationsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Bifurcation

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.63

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.63 Separate Trial of Issues

[1] Statutory Authority

The court may, when the convenience of witnesses, the ends of justice, or the economy and efficiency of handling the litigation would be promoted thereby, order [for a form, see § 425.150] that the trial of any issue or any part of an issue shall precede the trial of any other issue or part of an issue in the case, except for special defenses which may be tried first pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 597 and 597.5 [Code Civ. Proc. § 598]. Additional authority for the separate trial of issues is provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 1048 which allows the court in furtherance of convenience or to avoid prejudice, or when separate trials will be conducive to expedition and economy, to order a separate trial of any cause of action, including a cause of action asserted in a cross complaint, or of any separate issue or of one or more causes of action or issues [Code Civ. Proc. § 1048(b); see also Finley v. Superior Court (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1152, 1162, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 128 (even if defense did not meet Code Civ. Proc. § 597 prerequisites for bifurcation, authority for bifurcation exists under Code Civ. Proc. § 1048(b); discretion to regulate order of proof under Evid. Code § 320 also affords sufficient authority to order separate trial of affirmative defense)].

For discussion of the preference given and separate trial of child support and child custody issues [see Fam. Code §§ 3023, 4003], see Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure .

[2] Procedure for Obtaining Separate Trial of Issues

The order for a separate trial of issues is made on the motion of a party after notice [for a form see § 425.151] and hearing, not later than the close of the pretrial conference in cases in which a pretrial conference is held or, in other cases, not later than 30 days before the trial date [Code Civ. Proc. § 598].

To enable the court to make a timely order under Code Civ. Proc. § 598 when the order is not made in the case management order, the notice of motion and its supporting papers must be served sufficiently in advance of the specified times to allow the necessary period of notice and the filing of opposition [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b)], as well as the hearing on the motion.

However, the court, on its own motion, may make the order at any time [Code Civ. Proc. § 598]. Since the court may make the order on its own motion at any time, the court may at the conference with counsel immediately before trial (or at any other time) order that the trial of an issue or part of an issue precede trial of the other issue, part of an issue, or issues in the case [see Ch. 551, Trial, § 551.41 et seq.].

When an order for a separate trial is made on the court's own motion, no formal motion by a party is necessary. Thus, a court may order bifurcation after a party offers a "suggestion" as to the order of proof [Grappo v. Coventry Financial Corp. (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 496, 503-504, 286 Cal. Rptr. 714] .

[3] Procedure When Issue Is Tried Separately

[a] Trial of General Liability Issues

When the liability issue is tried before the other issues in the case, and the decision or verdict is in favor of the party on whom liability is sought to be imposed, judgment in favor of that party is entered. No trial of the other issues in the action is had against the party unless the judgment is reversed on appeal or otherwise set aside or vacated [Code Civ. Proc. § 598].

If the decision or verdict on the liability issue is against the party on whom liability is sought to be imposed, or if the decision or verdict on any other issue or part of an issue so tried does not result in a judgment being entered, trial of the other issues or parts of issues is thereafter held at a time ordered by the court either on its own motion or on the motion of any party. In the case of a jury trial, the further trial may be before the same or another jury [Code Civ. Proc. § 598]. Judgment is thereafter entered in the same manner and with the same effect as if all the issues in the case had been tried at one time [Code Civ. Proc. § 598].

[b] Trial of Liability for Punitive Damages

A bifurcated trial involving a claim for punitive damages is similar to a bifurcated trial involving general liability in that the trier of fact must first make a determination as to a liability, and then the remaining issue, damages, is tried. In the case of a punitive damages trial, however, the trial proceeds in all respects as a non-bifurcated trial except the only evidence excluded relates to the financial condition of the defendant. In this respect, a trial bifurcated under Civil Code § 3295(d) in which all relevant evidence relating to damages (other than the defendant's financial condition) is admissible, may be contrasted to a case in which the issue of general liability is tried first, in which case most evidence relating to damages would, on motion of the defendant, be excluded.

[4] Procedure for Severance

There is no procedure set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1048 for a party to bring a motion to sever an issue, a cause of action or a cross-complaint. Based on analogous language in Code Civ. Proc. § 598 it may be argued that a party who desires severance of a cause of action, issue or cross-complaint should bring the motion not later than 30 days prior to the trial date [see Code Civ. Proc. § 598]. In practice, however, motions to sever are routinely brought by parties to litigation to sever cross-complaints or a cause of action from the main action, and rarely to sever issues. A motion to sever should be brought at the earliest possible date in order to avoid the situation where the opposing party has conducted discovery and prosecuted a cross-complaint or cause of action, only to have the cause of action or cross-complaint severed close to the trial date. For discussion, see Ch. 125, Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions .

PRACTICE TIP:

Bifurcation Can Be a Tool for Managing Introduction of Evidence. Bifurcation is a very powerful tool when used properly, particularly when a case involves large damages, but questionable liability. By bifurcating the trial, counsel may set the stage for excluding evidence in limine which though arguably prejudicial, is not so prejudicial as to be excludable under Evid. Code § 352. For example, in a personal injury case involving a particularly gruesome injury or a contract case involving the loss of a family business, bifurcation of the liability issues may allow counsel to exclude very sympathetic testimony concerning pain and suffering or loss of good will which, though relevant only to damages issues, would be viewed sympathetically by the jury. By Evelio Grillo

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersSeparate TrialsFamily LawMarital Termination & Spousal SupportDissolution & DivorceProceduresGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime LimitationsTortsDamagesPunitive DamagesGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Bifurcation

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 425.64-425.69

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 425.64[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Motions for Precedence or Preference and Motions to Continue, Advance, Reset, or Specially Set

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.70

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.70 Governing Law

Cases entitled to precedence in trial setting as a matter of law are covered by specific statutes governing the particular action or special proceeding to which precedence is given [see § 425.72].

Cases that may be granted preference by court order based on the age or physical condition of a party or the interests of justice are covered by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 36, 36.5.

The granting of a preference to cases for damages caused by a defendant in the commission of a felony for which he or she is criminally convicted is authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 37.

Motions to request a case management conference to be held at any time are governed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.723. Motions before or during trial to continue a trial are governed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1332. Motions to advance, reset, or specially set cases for trial are governed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1335. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1322 and 3.1335 apply in all trial courts [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1100].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersSeparate Trials

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Motions for Precedence or Preference and Motions to Continue, Advance, Reset, or Specially Set

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.71

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§ 425.71[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Motions for Precedence or Preference and Motions to Continue, Advance, Reset, or Specially Set

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.72

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.72 Statutory Precedence of Cases

[1] Examples

Various statutes give specific actions and special proceedings precedence over other cases in setting the case for trial. Important examples are:

- Code Civ. Proc. § 35 (case involving voter registration or certification of candidates or ballot measures, and election contests).
- Code Civ. Proc. § 460.5(c) (defamation action in which likelihood of continuous publication is shown).
- Code Civ. Proc. § 460.7(c) (certain actions involving defamation during political campaign).
- Code Civ. Proc. § 526a (taxpayer's action to enjoin public improvement project).
- Code Civ. Proc. § 1062.3(a) (declaratory relief action) [see [3], below].
- Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20 (trial de novo after judicial arbitration) [see [4], below].
- Code Civ. Proc. § 1179a (proceeding in unlawful detainer, forcible entry, or forcible detainer) [see Mobil Oil Corp. v. Superior Court (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 486, 494, 145 Cal. Rptr. 17] .
- Code Civ. Proc. § 1260.010 (eminent domain proceeding).
- Fam. Code § 7870 (proceeding to free child from parental control).

- Gov. Code § 66499.37 (action to attack, review, set aside, void, or annul decision of advisory agency, appeal board, or legislative body under Subdivision Map Act).

- Gov. Code § 83121 (judicial review of action of Fair Political Practices Commission relating to pending election).

- Health & Safety Code § 42404 (action by State to recover penalties for air pollution).

- Pub. Res. Code § 21167.1 (actions or proceedings under Pub. Res. Code §§ 21167, 21168, and 21168.5 to enforce compliance with the California Environmental Quality Act).

- Rev. & Tax. Code § 5149 (action to recover, or for refund of, property taxes or assessments).

[2] Injunctive Relief

Code Civ. Proc. § 527, relating to pendente lite injunctive relief, provides that on the day on which the order to show cause is made returnable, the hearing shall take precedence of all other matters on the calendar of the day, except older matters of the same character, and matters to which special precedence may be given by law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(e)]. This provision applies only to the time for hearing specified in an order to show cause issued on ex parte application. If the plaintiff proceeds by noticed motion for pendente lite injunctive relief, the motion is heard at a time pursuant to the statutes and rules governing motions [Mobil Oil Corp. v. Superior Court (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 486, 495, 145 Cal. Rptr. 17] . Code Civ. Proc. § 527(e) further provides, however, that when the cause is at issue, "it shall be set for trial at the earliest possible date and shall take precedence of all other cases, except older matters of the same character, and matters to which special precedence may be given by law."

[3] Declaratory Relief

Declaratory relief actions are entitled to precedence under Code Civ. Proc. § 1062.3(a). If, however, any relief is sought in addition to a declaration of rights and duties, the action does not take precedence over other cases unless the court so orders on noticed motion and a showing that the action requires a speedy trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 1062.3(b)]. Thus, only a conditional priority is accorded causes of action for declaratory relief when the cause of action is combined with requests for other relief [Mobil Oil Corp. v. Superior Court (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 486, 494, 145 Cal. Rptr. 17] .

[4] After Judicial Arbitration or Civil Action Mediation

After judicial arbitration under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.10 et seq., if a party elects trial de novo, the matter is to be calendared for trial, insofar as possible, so that the trial will receive the same place on the active list as it had prior to arbitration, or shall receive priority on the next setting calendar [Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20(b)].

A parallel provision applies after an unsuccessful mediation under Code Civ. Proc. § 1775 et seq., which is a pilot project alternative to judicial arbitration in Los Angeles and in other counties that elect to participate [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.9(b)]. For discussion, see Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration , and Ch. 37, Judicially Mandated Civil Action Mediation .

[5] Review of Adverse Medical Licensing Decision

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, superior court review of a Division of Medical Quality or California Board of Podiatric Medicine decision revoking, suspending, or restricting a license takes preference over all other civil actions in the matter of setting the case for hearing or trial. The hearing or trial must be set not later than 180 days from the filing of the action. A continuance may be granted only on a showing of good cause [Bus. & Prof. Code § 2337].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMediationsCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersSeparate TrialsCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPreliminary & Temporary InjunctionsHealthcare LawBusiness Administration & OrganizationLicensesRevocation & Suspension

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Motions for Precedence or Preference and Motions to Continue, Advance, Reset, or Specially Set

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.73

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.73 Code Civ. Proc. § 36 Motion for Preference

[1] Statutory Authority

In addition to the cases expressly given precedence by statute [see § 425.72], the trial court may grant preferences in setting for trial under Code Civ. Proc. § 36, discussed in [2] et seq., below.

[2] Party 70 Years of Age or Older

[a] Availability

A civil case "shall" be entitled to preference on the petition of a party to the action who is over the age of 70 years if the court finds both [Code Civ. Proc. § 36(a)]:

- That the party has a substantial interest in the action as a whole.
- That the health of the party is such that a preference is necessary to prevent prejudicing the party's interest in the litigation.

As used in Code Civ. Proc. § 36(a), "shall" is mandatory and not merely directory [Miller v. Superior Court (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1200, 1204, 270 Cal. Rptr. 766 ; Sprowl v. Superior Court (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 777, 781, 268 Cal. Rptr. 592 ; Swaithes v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1082, 1085, 261 Cal. Rptr. 41 (all decided under version in effect prior to January 1, 1991)].

[b] Legislative Intent

The intent of the Legislature is to safeguard litigants who qualify under Code Civ. Proc. § 36(a) against the acknowledged risk that death or incapacity might deprive them of the opportunity to have their case effectively tried and to obtain the appropriate recovery [Swaithes v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1082, 1085, 261 Cal. Rptr. 41] .

[c] Impact on Power of Courts to Regulate Order of Business

The application of Code Civ. Proc. § 36(a) does not violate the power of trial courts to regulate the order of their business, and mere inconvenience to the court or to other litigants is irrelevant. Failure to complete discovery or other pretrial matters does not affect the absolute substantive right to trial preference for those litigants who qualify for preference under the statute, and the trial court has no power to balance the differing interests of opposing litigants in applying the statute [Swaithes v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1082, 1085, 261 Cal. Rptr. 41] . Nor does it have any discretion to strike a fair balance between the plaintiff's rights to a preferential trial and the interest of the court to avoid potentially wasteful serial trials [Miller v. Superior Court (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1200, 1204-1205, 270 Cal. Rptr. 766] . The express legislative mandate for trial preference is a substantive public policy concern that supersedes such considerations [Swaithes v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1082, 1085-1086, 261 Cal. Rptr. 41] . Accordingly, Code Civ. Proc. § 36(a) is mandatory and absolute in its application in civil cases whenever the litigants are 70 years of age or older [Swaithes v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1082, 1086, 261 Cal. Rptr. 41 ; see also Sprowl v. Superior Court (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 777, 781, 268 Cal. Rptr. 592] .

[d] Impact on Judicial Arbitration

The preference granted by Code Civ. Proc. § 36(a) controls over the conflicting provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11(a), mandating arbitration of civil actions involving $50,000 or less. Hence, arbitration under the statute is not possible if a motion for preference by a qualified litigant is filed [Vinokur v. Superior Court (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 500, 503, 243 Cal. Rptr. 683] .

[e] Applicability to Probate Cases

Code Civ. Proc. § 36(a) applies in probate proceedings under Prob. Code § 1000 (application of rules of practice applicable to civil actions to proceedings under Probate Code) [Swaithes v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1082, 1086, 261 Cal. Rptr. 41 (holding that Code Civ. Proc. § 36(a) applies to will contest)].

[3] Party Under Age 14 in Wrongful Death or Personal Injury Action

A civil action to recover damages for wrongful death or personal injury shall be entitled to preference on the motion of any party to the action who is under 14 years of age unless the court finds that the party does not have a substantial interest in the case as a whole [Code Civ. Proc. § 36(b)]. "Shall" as used in Code Civ. Proc. § 36(b) is mandatory [Peters v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 218, 224-226, 260 Cal. Rptr. 426] (section does not violate separation of powers doctrine [Cal. Const., art. III, § 3] or equal protection guaranties of federal and state constitutions [U.S. Const., amend. XIV; Cal. Const., art. I, § 7] by unconstitutionally discriminating against 14-year-old to 69-year-old class)]. However, actions entitled to trial setting preference under Code Civ. Proc. § 36(a) must be given preference over these cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 36(b)]. Moreover, although Code Civ. Proc. § 36(b) is mandatory, it does not divest the court of its discretion to dismiss a case for delay in prosecution under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.410 and 583.420(a)(2) [Landry v. Berryessa Union School Dist. (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 691, 695-697, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 119 ; for discussion of discretionary dismissal, see Ch. 212, Dismissal].

When a motion for preference pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 36(b) is granted, a party in an action based on a health provider's alleged professional negligence as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 364 must receive a trial date not sooner than six months and not later than nine months from the date that the motion is granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 36(g); for discussion of "professional negligence" as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 364, see Ch. 414, Physicians: Medical Malpractice].

[4] Party Terminally Ill or Injured

The court may in its discretion grant a motion for preference that is accompanied by clear and convincing medical documentation that concludes that one of the parties suffers from an illness or condition raising substantial medical doubt of survival of that party beyond six months, and that satisfies the court that the interests of justice will be served by granting the preference [Code Civ. Proc. § 36(d)].

Because Code Civ. Proc. § 36(d) does not limit trial preferences to cases based only on the moving party's ill health, a party may move for a trial preference due to the ill health of another party [Heda v. Superior Court (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 525, 527-528, 275 Cal. Rptr. 136] .

[5] Interests of Justice

[a] In General

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the court may in its discretion grant a motion for preference that is supported by a showing that satisfies the court that the interests of justice will be served by granting this preference [Code Civ. Proc. § 36(e)].

[b] Preference to Avoid Mandatory Dismissal for Delay in Prosecution

[i] No Cause as a Matter of Law

Frequently, a plaintiff invokes Code Civ. Proc. § 36(e) (discussed in [a], above) to obtain a trial preference for the purpose of avoiding mandatory dismissal of his or her action under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 et seq., particularly for failure to bring the action to trial within five years of its commencement [see, e.g., Dick v. Superior Court (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 1159, 1168, 230 Cal. Rptr. 297 (mandate proceeding to compel the lower court to set case specially for trial before the expiration of the five-year period for bringing an action to trial); see also National Secretarial Service, Inc. v. Froehlich (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 510, 521, 258 Cal. Rptr. 506] .

The Supreme Court has held, however, that "cause" justifying a discretionary grant of preference under Code Civ. Proc. § 36(e) is not established as a matter of law simply by the fact that the preference is necessary to avoid mandatory dismissal [Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 440, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469 ; Salas v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 342, 346, 228 Cal. Rptr. 504, 721 P.2d 590 (construing former Code Civ. Proc. § 36(d) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 36(e)) and disapproving contrary holdings in Campanella v. Takaoka (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 504, 206 Cal. Rptr. 745 , and Kotoff v. Efseaff (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 991, 218 Cal. Rptr. 499)].

Moreover, under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1335, a motion to specially set requires a showing of good cause. A mere showing that the statutory period for bringing an action to trial would run unless the case were specially set is not enough to compel the trial court to grant the motion [Nye v. 20th Century Ins. Co. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1041, 1045, 275 Cal. Rptr. 319] . In this context, the fact that the delay did not prejudice the adverse party neither compels the trial court to grant a motion to specially set nor prevents it from granting a motion to dismiss [Nye v. 20th Century Ins. Co. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1041, 1046, 275 Cal. Rptr. 319] .

[ii] Discretionary Dismissal Criteria Applicable

In this situation, the trial court, in exercising its discretion under Code Civ. Proc. § 36(e), must take the "total picture" into account, including the condition of the court calendar, dilatory conduct by plaintiff, prejudice to defendant of an accelerated trial date, and the likelihood of eventual mandatory dismissal if the early trial date is denied [Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 441, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469 ; Salas v. Sears,

Roebuck & Co. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 342, 349, 228 Cal. Rptr. 504, 721 P.2d 590] . Thus, a motion to specially set to avoid the bar of the five-year statute for bringing a case to trial (Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310) raises the same issues as a motion for discretionary dismissal based on delay in prosecution (Code Civ. §§ 583.410, 583.420), and the court should consider the criteria listed in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(e) when deciding a motion to specially set under Code Civ. Proc. § 36(e) [Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 441, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469 ; Biondi, Flemming & Gonzales v. Braham (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 842, 847, 267 Cal. Rptr. 365] .

Although the interests of justice weigh heavily against disposing of litigation on procedural grounds, the general policy in favor of trial on the merits will necessarily prevail only if a plaintiff makes some showing of excusable delay [Salas v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 342, 347, 228 Cal. Rptr. 504, 721 P.2d 590] . On the other hand, if the plaintiff shows that he or she was diligent in prosecuting the action and the defendant makes no showing of prejudice, it may be an abuse of discretion for a trial court to refuse to grant a preference that would prevent a mandatory dismissal [Dick v. Superior Court (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 1159, 1164-1169, 230 Cal. Rptr. 297 ; see also Schmitt v. Superior Court (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 453, 456-457, 264 Cal. Rptr. 806] .

When the trial to be set is a trial de novo after judicial arbitration, the motion may be characterized as a belated attempt to compel the trial court to fulfill its duty under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20 to recalendar the case, rather than merely an attempt to regain time lost by plaintiff's procrastination. In this situation, the Code Civ. Proc. § 583.130 preference for disposition of an action on the merits is reinforced by the Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20 mandate that plaintiffs not be penalized for undergoing arbitration [Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 441-442, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469] . However, although a trial may use a motion to specially set to correct its own failure to calendar or recalendar a case after arbitration, these considerations can be outweighed by the plaintiff's unreasonable delay, either before or after arbitration, as well as by prejudice to the defendant [Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 443, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469] .

For further discussion and forms relating to discretionary and mandatory dismissal, see Ch. 212, Dismissal .

[6] Service of Notice of Motion

Unless the court orders otherwise, a party may file and serve a motion for preference supported by a declaration of the moving party that all essential parties have been served with process or have appeared [Code Civ. Proc. § 36(c)(1)]. At any time during the pendency of the action, a party who reaches 70 years of age may file and serve a motion for preference [Code Civ. Proc. § 36(c)(2)].

[7] Setting for Trial and Continuances When Motion Is Granted

On the granting of a motion for preference, the clerk must set the matter for trial not more than 120 days from that date [Code Civ. Proc. § 36(f)].

There may be no continuance beyond 120 days from the granting of the motion for preference except for physical disability of a party or a party's attorney, or on a showing of good cause stated in the record. No such continuance may be for more than 15 days, nor may more than one continuance for physical disability be granted to any party [Code Civ. Proc. § 36(f)]. These limits are mandatory [Sprowl v. Superior Court (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 777, 780, 781, 268 Cal. Rptr. 592] .

The practice of a court to give written notices of continuance to a date certain after a preference has been granted and a trial date has been set is not authorized, even though it may save the waste of attorneys' time and money that would result when attorneys appear on the date set for trial only to have the matter trail indefinitely to await an open court. Code Civ. Proc. § 36 is mandatory, leaving no room for such courtesy and no discretion to the court [Sprowl v. Superior Court (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 777, 781, 268 Cal. Rptr. 592] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDismissalsInvoluntary DismissalsFailures to ProsecuteCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMandatory ADRCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementHealthcare LawActions Against Healthcare WorkersDoctors & PhysiciansTortsMalpractice & Professional LiabilityHealthcare ProvidersTortsProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionTortsWrongful Death & Survival ActionsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Motions for Precedence or Preference and Motions to Continue, Advance, Reset, or Specially Set

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.74

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.74 Preference for Action Brought by Victim of Crime

In addition to the preferences authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 36 [see § 425.73], a civil action is entitled to preference if the action is one in which the plaintiff is seeking damages that were alleged to have been caused by the defendant during the commission of a felony offense for which the defendant has been criminally convicted, and the court is to endeavor to try the action within 120 days of the grant of preference [Code Civ. Proc. § 37].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Motions for Precedence or Preference and Motions to Continue, Advance, Reset, or Specially Set

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.75

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.75 Procedures Relating to Precedence and Preference

In certain cases in which a preference is sought, a motion is expressly required by statute [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 36, discussed in § 425.73].

However, cases entitled to precedence in setting will normally be placed at the top of the civil active list by the court clerk. If it is clear that the case is entitled to precedence, a motion to establish it is usually unnecessary. The necessary facts and law establishing the precedence or preference are already before the court, since the case management order required to state, among other things, the nature of the case, whether it is entitled to legal preference, and, if it is, the citation of the law granting the preference [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.727(12), 3.728(13)].

Moreover, a mere statement of the nature of the case will in many situations reveal whether it is entitled to legal precedence. If it does not, or when the right to preference has to be established by evidence outside the court's records, counsel may wish to use a noticed motion to seek an order establishing the preference [for a form, see § 425.160].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesPretrial OrdersGovernmentsCourtsClerks of Court

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Motions for Precedence or Preference and Motions to Continue, Advance, Reset, or Specially Set

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.76

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.76 Motions to Continue, Advance, or Reset Trial

The power of the court to advance, reset, or specially set cases is exercised principally (1) when the case is entitled to statutory precedence or priority and (2) when the five-year period for mandatory dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 and 583.360 is about to expire [see Weeks v. Roberts (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 802, 806-807, 69 Cal. Rptr. 305, 442 P.2d 361 ; for discussion of the motion when it relates to mandatory dismissal, see § 425.73[5][b]].

A motion before trial to continue a trial date must be made on written notice to all other parties. The notice must be given and the motion made promptly on ascertaining the necessity for the continuance. A continuance before or during trial shall not be granted except on an affirmative showing of good cause [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1332]. For further discussion and forms for use in moving for a continuance, see Ch. 136, Continuances .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementCivil ProceduresPretrial MattersConferencesPretrial OrdersCivil ProceduresPretrial MattersContinuances

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Motions for Precedence or Preference and Motions to Continue, Advance, Reset, or Specially Set

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.77

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.77 Relationship to Other Time Limits

Granting a trial preference may make it impossible for a party to comply with other statutory time limits. When recognizing the rights under one statute can only be done at the expense of the loss or impairment of the benefits of the other, the statutes should be harmonized to avoid an absurd and clearly anomalous result. In such a situation, the court should balance the competing goals of the statutes in a way that gives recognition to both while achieving a just result [Looney v. Superior Court (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 521, 535-536, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 182] . For example, in Looney, the court resolved conflict between a Code Civ. Proc. § 36 preference and Code Civ. Proc. § 425.13 (requiring the motion to claim punitive damages in actions arising out of medical malpractice to be filed not less than nine months prior to the initial trial setting) by implying an exception to Section 425.13 to allow the granting of a motion brought less than nine months prior to the first assigned trial date when it is necessary to protect a plaintiff's right to a preferential trial date and the defendant receives or has had a reasonable opportunity to conduct discovery regrading the punitive damage claim [Looney v. Superior Court (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 521, 536, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 182 ; for further discussion of Section 425.13, see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq.].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesPretrial OrdersCivil ProcedureRemediesDamagesPunitive Damages

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Motions for Precedence or Preference and Motions to Continue, Advance, Reset, or Specially Set

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 425.78-425.89

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 425.78[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Settlement

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.90

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.90 Settlement Conference Procedure

[1] Purpose

Settlement is an integral part of the pre-trial process. All courts attempt to facilitate settlement of civil cases either by referring civil cases to ADR, by holding a court supervised settlement conference, or both.

[2] Governing Law

Settlement conferences are governed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1380, 3.1385 and by local court rules and policies. For the effect of local court rules and policies, see § 425.93[2]. For general discussion relating to settling a case and discussion of enforcement of settlement agreements, see Ch. 520, Settlement and Release .

[3] Judge's Role at Settlement Conference

All sorts of issues are discussed in confidence at a settlement conference, including the strengths and weaknesses of each party's case and what the party is willing to pay or receive in settlement. The settlement judge does not, however, decide anything. Rather, the settlement judge uses his or her judicial status to help the parties reach a settlement if reasonably possible [Cho v. Superior Court (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 113, 125, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 863] .

Judicial participation often creates a climate that expedites productive negotiations for settlement. The settlement conference judge contributes the views of an outsider who usually enjoys considerable prestige. As a consequence, the settlement conference presided over by an impartial judge often constitutes a practical substitute for trial [Mezzetti v. Superior Court (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 987, 992, 156 Cal. Rptr. 802 , quoting California Pretrial and Settlement Procedures, § 7.3 (Cal. C.E.B. 1963)].

[4] Mandatory Settlement Conferences

On the court's own motion or at the request of any party, the court may set one or more mandatory settlement conferences [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1380(a)]. If a mandatory settlement conference is to be held, the court assigns a settlement conference date in the case management order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.728(10) (case management order); for a form, see § 425.131].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSettlementsSettlement AgreementsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSettlementsSettlement AgreementsEnforcementGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPretrial MattersConferencesGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Settlement

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.91

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.91 Settlement Conference Statement

No later than five days before the initial date set for the settlement conference, each party must submit to the court and serve on each party a mandatory settlement conference statement containing a good faith settlement demand, an itemization of economic and non-economic damages by each plaintiff, and a good faith offer of settlement by each defendant. The statement must set forth and discuss in detail all facts and law pertinent to the issues of liability and damages involved in the case as to that party, and comply with any additional requirement imposed by local rule [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1380(c); for a form, see § 425.171].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureSettlementsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSettlementsSettlement AgreementsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSettlementsSettlement AgreementsModifications

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Settlement

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.92

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.92 Who Must Attend Conference

Trial counsel, parties, and persons with full authority to settle the case must personally attend the conference, unless excused by the court for good cause. If any consent to settle is required for any reason, the party with that consensual authority must be personally present at the conference [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1380(b)]. Local rule may provide more specific requirements regarding who must attend the conference [see Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.9(b)(4); for discussion, see § 425.35].

Although a court may not compel a litigant to settle a case, it may direct the litigant to engage personally in settlement negotiations, provided the conditions for such negotiations are otherwise reasonable. The fact that the court may not force a party to be personally present at the trial of a civil action does not mean that it may not compel the party's attendance in person at a mandatory settlement conference. A civil trial may proceed expeditiously without the presence of a party, but the presence of all parties personally at settlement negotiations enhances their chances of success [Wisniewski v. Clary (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 499, 505, 120 Cal. Rptr. 176 ; Sigala v. Anaheim City Sch. Dist. (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 661, 669, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 38] .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Settlement

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.93

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.93 Additional Considerations

[1] Sanctions

The court may impose sanctions as provided by law for failure to comply with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1380 regarding settlement conferences [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.30]. For discussion of sanctions, see Ch. 510, Sanctions .

[2] Local Court Rules Relating to Preparation for and Attendance at Settlement Conference

[a] Who Must Attend

Local rules may elaborate on the Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1380(b) requirement regarding who must attend the conference. For example, under Los Angeles County Superior Court rules, the persons with authority to settle who must attendunless expressly excused by the judge for good cause, include [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.9(d)(1)]:

- The litigants (unless consent of the particular litigant is not required for the settlement).
- An authorized representative of any insurance company that has coverage involved in the case.
- An authorized representative of a corporation or other business or government entity that is a litigant.

These persons must have full authority to make decisions or negotiate concerning the settlement of the case [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.9(d)(1)].

Los Angeles County Superior Court Rules further provide a procedure for making any request to excuse attendance of a person. Under the Los Angeles procedure, the request must be by written stipulation of the parties or by an ex parte application. Moreover, a person excused by the court must be available for telephone communication with counsel and the court at the time set for the settlement conference [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.9(d)(2); see also Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 9.9 (procedure on ex parte application)].

Attorneys for all parties appearing in the action must at tend the conference and be intimately familiar with the pertinent available evidence involving liability and damages. Each attorney must be prepared to discuss the case in depth and, except for good cause shown, must be the attorney who will try the case [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.9(d)(3)].

Los Angeles County Superior Court Rules also require the plaintiff's attorney to ascertain whether there are liens which bear on a potential settlement and, if so, request the claimants or their representatives to attend the conference or be available for telephone communication during the conference [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.9(d)(4)].

[b] Written Statement of Facts and Contentions

Los Angeles County Superior Court also requires a written statement from each party. The statement must contain a concise statement of the material facts of the case and the factual and legal contentions in dispute. It must also identify all parties and their capacities in the action and contain citations of authorities that support legal propositions important to resolution of the case. The written statement of a party claiming damages must list all special damages claimed as well as stating any amounts claimed as general and punitive damages and the total amount claimed as damages. In a personal injury action the special damages must be listed. The list must include all such expenses incurred to the time of the settlement conference. The statements must also include the general status of the case including offers for settlement in place [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.9(e)].

Each party must submit a written statement to the court and serve it on adversaries not later than five calendar days before the conference. It must be submitted directly to the courtroom in which the settlement conference is calendared, and not to the court generally or to the clerk's office. The written statements will not be filed since they are used only at the settlement conference and will be returned to counsel at the conclusion of the conference [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.9(e); for a form of statement, see § 425.131].

[3] Duty to Notify Court and Others If Case Is Resolved

If an entire case is settled or otherwise disposed of, each plaintiff must immediately file written notice of the settlement or other disposition with the court and serve the notice on all parties any arbitrator or other court-connected ADR neutral involved in the case. Each plaintiff must also give immediate oral notice to the court and any arbitrator or other neutral if a hearing, conference, or trial is scheduled to take place within 10 days [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1385]. Failure to notify an arbitrator or other neutral of a settlement at least 2 days before a scheduled hearing or session may result in the court ordering the party to compensate the arbitrator or neutral for the scheduled hearing time [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1385(a)(2)]. Although this rule is binding in all superior courts, courts by local rule frequently impose a similar duty. For example, the Los Angeles County Superior Court has provided that on reaching settlement of a case other than at a settlement conference with a judge present, each party seeking any affirmative relief in the action must immediately notify the court of the fact of settlement [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.9(f)].

An unlawful interference with the proceedings of the court may subject the attorney or party to a contempt of court proceeding [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1209(a)(8)]. Additional sanctions may be provided by local court rule [see, e.g., Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.13]. For discussion of sanctions, see § 425.53 and Ch. 510, Sanctions .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureCounselGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSettlementsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSettlementsSettlement AgreementsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesCase

ManagementCivil ProcedureSanctionsGeneral OverviewGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & InterpretationTortsProcedureSettlementsMultipartiesGeneral OverviewTortsProcedureSettlementsOffers

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Settlement

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.94

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.94 Special Procedures Relating to Settlement

[1] Two Procedures to Consider

There are two special statutory procedures relating to settlement which should always be considered by counsel during the pretrial phase of litigation. They are offers to compromise under Code Civ. Proc. § 998; and stipulated settlements under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6. Each procedure will be discussed and distinguished below.

[2] Offers to Compromise

[a] 998 Offers

Offers to compromise under Code Civ. Proc. § 998, which are often referred to as "998 Offers" are a cost shifting device designed to encouragesettlement between the parties before trial. The statue operates by imposing certain of the opposing party's court costs on a litigant who does not accept a statutory offer to compromise and who fails to obtain a more favorable result at trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(c)-(e)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 998 thus may operate as a severe sanction against a party who unreasonably declines to accept a statutory offer of settlement. Code Civ. Proc. § 998 is strictly construed in favor of the party sought to be subjected to its operation [Garcia v. Hyster Co. (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 724, 732, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 283] .

[b] Operation of Statute

Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b) allows any party to serve on any other party to the action not less than 10 days prior to trial a written offer to allow judgment to be taken in accordance with the terms and conditions stated at that time. If the offer is accepted, the offer with proof of acceptance is filed with the court and judgment is entered in accordance with the terms of the offer [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)(1)]. If the offer is not accepted prior to trial, or within 30 days after it is made, whichever comes first, the offer is deemed withdrawn and cannot be given in evidence upon the trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)(2)].

[c] What Constitutes a Statutory Offer

A statutory offer to compromise must be in writing and must include a statement of the offer, containing the terms and conditions of the judgment or award, and a provision that allows the accepting party to indicate acceptance of the offer by signing a statement that the offer is accepted [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)].

For forms of an offer to compromise under Code Civ. Proc. § 998, see Ch. 520, Settlement and Release, §§ 520.110, 520.110A.

[d] When Made

A statutory offer to compromise may be made at anytime during the litigation up to ten days prior to the trial, and is deemed withdrawn as of the commencement of the trial, or within 30 days after the offer is made, whichever comes first [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)]. For the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 998 the trial commences at the beginning of the opening statement of the plaintiff or counsel, or if there is no opening statement, at the time the first witness is sworn in, or the introduction of any evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)(3)].

[e] Acceptance

Any acceptance of a statutory offer to compromise, whether made on the document containing the offer or on a separate document, must be in writing and signed by counsel for the accepting party or, if not represented by counsel, by the accepting party [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)].

For forms of an acceptance to an offer to compromise under Code Civ. Proc. § 998, see Ch. 520, Settlement and Release, §§ 520.110A, 520.111.

[f] Operation of Cost Shifting Provisions

[i] Different for Plaintiff and Defendants

The cost shifting provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 998 operate differently for plaintiffs and defendants.

[ii] Rule Applicable to Plaintiffs

If an offer made by the defendant is not accepted by the plaintiff, and the plaintiff does not obtain a more favorable judgment, then the plaintiff shall not recover his or her postoffer costs and shall pay the defendants costs from the time of the offer [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(c)]. The judgment obtained by the plaintiff is calculated exclusive of postoffer costs and attorney's fees [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(c)(2)(A), (B)]. The court in its discretion, in cases other than eminent domain, may require the plaintiff to pay a reasonable sum to cover the costs of expert witnesses, who are not regular employees of any party, actually incurred and reasonably necessary in either, or both, preparation for trial or arbitration, or during trial or arbitration, of the case by the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(c)(1)]. If a plaintiff does not obtain a more favorable judgment following withdrawal or rejection of an offer under Code Civ. Proc. § 998, the defendant's costs are deducted from any damages awarded to the plaintiff, and if the costs awarded to the defendant exceed the damages awarded to the plaintiff, the net amount is awarded to the defendant and judgment is awarded in the defendant's favor for the net amount [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(e)].

[iii] Rule Applicable to Defendants

If the defendant does not accept an offer by the plaintiff, and the defendant fails to obtain a more favorable judgment, then the court in its discretion may require the defendant to pay a reasonable sum to cover the costs of expert witnesses, who are not regular employees of any party, actually incurred and reasonably necessary in either, or both, preparation for trial or arbitration, or during trial or arbitration, of the case by the plaintiff, in addition to the plaintiff's costs [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(d)].

[g] Special Considerations Relating to Experts

"Expert witnesses" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 998 include police officers [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(f)]. The costs for services of experts for the purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 998(c) and (d) may not exceed those specified in Gov. Code § 68092.5 [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(h)].

[h] Inapplicable to Plaintiffs in Eminent Domain Cases

Code Civ. Proc. § 998 is not applicable to offers made by plaintiffs in eminent domain actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(g)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Evaluate Offer Versus Potential Judgment Carefully. Counsel should be very careful when evaluating an offer to compromise and should conduct independent research to determine how the judgment will be calculated for the purpose of determining whether the judgment exceeds the amount of the statutory offer, and also confirm whether in a case involving multiple plaintiffs or defendants, an offer must be accepted by only one or all of the parties subject to the offer. Pre-offer costs, the availability of prejudgment interest and the present value of a judgment when measured against the original offer all may impact the calculation of the size of the judgment for the purpose of applying the Code Civ. Proc. § 998 cost shifting provisions. By Evelio Grillo

PRACTICE TIP: Communicate Settlement Offers to Client. Counsel should always communicate a 998 offer to the client immediately with a letter explaining the potential impact of cost shifting on the outcome of the case. Counsel's failure to do so, particularly in cases involving high costs and the extensive uses of experts, may result in an unhappy client, and could potentially result in a malpractice action against the attorney if the defendant's costs exceed the plaintiff's judgment in a case where the plaintiff has rejected an offer and receives a less favorable verdict at trial. By Evelio Grillo

For discussion and forms relating to Code Civ. Proc. § 998, see Ch. 520, Settlement and Release .

[3] Stipulated Settlements

If the parties agree on settlement terms before or during trial, they may stipulate, in a writing signed by the parties outside the court's presence or orally before the court, for the settlement of the case, or a part thereof [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6]. The advantage to stipulating to settlement pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 is twofold. First, if a party breaches the terms of the settlement, the court may, on noticed motion, enforce the settlement by entry of judgment pursuant to the terms of the settlement [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6]. Second, the court may retain jurisdiction to enforce the settlement if the parties so request [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6].

PRACTICE TIP:

Make Clear, Specific Record of Settlement With Client Involvement. Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6, when used properly, is a very powerful tool for settling cases. In order to avoid any misunderstanding, however, is important for counsel to be as specific as is practicable under the circumstances when placing a settlement on the record. Work out the specifics of all of the terms of settlement before the settlement is placed on the record, and always recite in the presence of the client that the settlement has been explained to the client, recite any disadvantageous provisions of the settlement, and allow the client to ask questions on the record. Doing so will avoid any future misunderstandings between the parties to the settlement, as well as between attorney and client. By Evelio Grillo

For discussion and forms relating to Section 664.6, including the requirement of the party's signature when the stipulation is written [see Levy v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 578, 584-586, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 878, 896 P. 2d 171 ; Robertson v. Chen (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 1290, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 264 (mandatory settlement conference statement signed by counsel for one side, rather than one writing signed by both sides, held insufficient to allow enforcement under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6)], see Ch. 520, Settlement and Release , and for forms for obtaining entry of judgment under Section 664.6, see Ch. 318, Judgments .

The time during which a settlement agreement is in effect tolls the five-year period for bringing a case to trial under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 [Canal Street, Ltd. v. Sorich (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 602, 608, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 811] . The computation of that five-year period specifically excludes the time during which bringing the action to trial was impossible, impracticable, or futile [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340(c)], and attempting to bring an action to trial when all issues have been resolved through settlement would be futile [Canal Street, Ltd. v. Sorich (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 602, 608, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 811] . Therefore, a motion pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 to enter judgment according to the terms of the settlement agreement need not be made before five years have passed after the action was commenced to avoid dismissal for want of prosecution. For further discussion of dismissal for want of prosecution, see Ch. 212, Dismissal .

Even if the summary procedures of Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 are unavailable, a settlement agreement might be enforceable by summary judgment, a suit for breach of contract (prosecuted perhaps by way of a supplemental pleading), or a suit in equity [Levy v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 578, 586 n.5, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 878, 896 P. 2d 171 ; Robertson v. Chen (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 1290, 1293, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 264] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSettlementsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSettlementsOffers of JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSettlementsOffers of JudgmentAcceptancesCivil ProcedureSettlementsSettlement AgreementsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSettlementsSettlement AgreementsEnforcementGeneral OverviewCivil ProceduresPretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementCivil ProcedureJudgmentsEntry of JudgmentsEnforcement & ExecutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesCostsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Settlement

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 425.95-425.99

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 425.95[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Pretrial Strategy

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.100

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.100 Preliminary Considerations

Since pretrial strategy is something that requires extensive research to understand the roadmap ahead, the factors in the following sections are place here after the previous discussions of pretrial procedure.

Bringing a case to trial requires consideration of many strategic factors at each stage of the proceedings. For procedural checklists that summarize the discussion below, see §§ 425.120, 425.121.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Pretrial Strategy

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.101

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.101 Initial Investigation

[1] Prefiling Investigation

Counsel should conduct sufficient investigation before filing either a complaint or a responsive document to ensure that the action or response warrants a legal filing. The failure to do so may result in the imposition of sanctions if the court determines that the complaint was filed primarily for an improper purpose [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 (sanctions for frivolous tactics in actions commenced after January 1, 1995. For discussion, see Ch. 510, Sanctions)]. For discussion, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints , and Ch. 26, Answers .

PRACTICE TIP:

Pretrial Investigation. Pretrial investigation should be conducted as a matter of course in all cases. Requesting the client to provide documents and insurance policies and to identify witness in the pretrial investigation, and interviewing witnesses as appropriate, not only helps to fulfill counsel's ethical obligations under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 and the Code of Professional Responsibility, but may also aid in screening cases-an important malpractice consideration--as well as suggesting additional defenses or theories of liability or sources of recovery (such as insurance which may pay for damages or defense costs), as well as providing an early start on organizing discovery. By Evelio Grillo

PRACTICE TIP: Pretrial Research. Pretrial research should be conducted at the first available opportunity, preferably even before counsel agrees to representation, if for no other reason than to confirm the applicable limitations period and applicable claims statutes (for litigation potentially involving governmental agencies) for the potential causes of action. Limitations periods and substantive law constantly change. Protect your client and avoid potential malpractice claims by verifying in every case the applicable limitations periods and the substantive law applicable to the case. And do not forget that where insurance is involved, there may be internal statutes of limitations or claims procedures in the policy which bear on the right to recovery. By Evelio Grillo

[2] Jurisdictional Considerations

Smaller cases may be brought as limited civil cases in the superior court [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85-86 (limited civil cases)]. Filing the smaller case as a limited civil case not only allows the parties to take advantage of discovery limitations and shorter trial calendars, but may also reduce the costs of litigation [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 93, 94]. Filing the case with the appropriate jurisdictional classification [see Code Civ. Proc. § 32.5] also avoids the potential for costs to be awarded against the prevailing party when a judgment obtained in the superior court is $25,000 or less, i.e. less than the jurisdictional minimum for a case other than a limited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1033(a); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 85]. For discussion, see Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter . In transitory actions, counsel should select a convenient but appropriate venue to minimize inconvenience to parties and witnesses and to avoid an unnecessary motion for change of venue which may result in the imposition of costs and attorneys fees against the party who initiated the action [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395, 396b(b)]. For discussion, see Ch. 571, Venue .

[3] Developing Litigation Strategy

Counsel should consider using consultants or experts early in the litigation to assist in formulating litigation and discovery plans. Consulting experts during the early stages of a litigation is often easier, more effective, and potentially less costly than retaining an expert during the later stage of a case after significant discovery has been taken.

PRACTICE TIP:

Retaining Experts. Early retention of experts is often the most cost effective means of focusing discovery, developing facts and identifying industry standards and the applicable standards of care. Experienced experts can provide a wealth of information at a nominal cost that could cost many thousands of dollars if developed independently by counsel, and if retained early, may ultimately cost less than the expert who is required to wade through voluminous deposition testimony in order to gear "up to speed." By Evelio Grillo

[4] Litigation Budget

A consideration that drives most litigation is cost. A budget should be developed as early in the litigation as is practical, and dialogue with the client concerning litigation strategy and issues relating to costs should be initiated at the first opportunity, preferably when the attorney-client relationship is established. Frequent and candid communication with the client minimizes problems and the potential for misunderstanding as the litigation evolves, and may help counsel identify problem areas or problem clients which may signal potential malpractice concerns.

[5] The Discovery Plan

For any size litigation, a discovery plan helps to frame the issues, reduce the chances of spoliation of evidence, and minimize costs. Whether written discovery or depositions are the most cost effective in a particular case will depend on the nature of the case as well as the type of information sought. For example, because counsel and the parties are under a duty to disclose in the answers to interrogatories all information reasonably available to the responding party, interrogatories are generally the most effective means of identifying witnesses, the location of documents and policies and practices which may bear on the location of additional evidence during the early stages of litigation [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2030 (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2030.010-2030.410 operative July 1, 2005); Deyo v. Kilbourne (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 771, 149 Cal. Rptr. 499] . Similarly, in cases which involve voluminous documents and numerous witnesses, or medical records, many counsel believe written discovery such as requests for production of documents, third party subpoenas, and interrogatories must be propounded before the first deposition is noticed in order to be able to take an effective deposition. Conversely, when a case involves few documents, the best choice may be to notice the deposition of the plaintiff or defendant immediately, before the opposing party's theory of the case is well developed. There is no hard and fast rule of decision concerning the timing and use of discovery other than to think through how the various methods of discovery may complement each other before propounding the first discovery.

PRACTICE TIP:

Effective Discovery Plan. When developing your discovery plan, do not fall prey to the temptation to utilize a shotgun approach to discovery. Overly broad inspection demands or interrogatories may result in a huge volume of irrelevant material. Conversely, well-crafted interrogatories regarding the adverse party's record keeping practices, or a request for copies of documents reflecting those record keeping practices may result in a road map for subsequent written discovery or depositions. In matters of written discovery, at least during the early stages of a litigation, simpler discovery may be the most effective discovery. By Evelio Grillo

Finally, if there is any question in counsel's mind that data or documents may be destroyed, a letter to opposing counsel cautioning against the otherwise routine destruction or backing up of computerized data, or an appropriate interrogatory requesting identification of all documents destroyed or backed up, may prevent inadvertent loss of relevant information. For discussion, see Ch. 190-200, Discovery , and DeMeo, California Deposition and Discovery Practice , Ch. 2 (Matthew Bender).

[6] Anticipating Motions

When developing a litigation strategy and budget, counsel should anticipate law and motion matters [see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders]. While certain actions and issues lend themselves to active motion practice, more often the necessity for pretrial motions becomes apparent as the litigation progresses. Whether or not to bring a motion also depends on the likelihood and the relative value of a favorable ruling weighed against the costs of bringing a motion and the consequences of an unfavorable ruling. For example, a defendant may consider demurring to all or part of the complaint, but should weigh the fact that an unsuccessful demurrer precludes a later motion for judgment on the pleadings during a later stage of the litigation on the same ground absent a material change in the law [see Code Civ. Proc § 438(g)(1)]. Counsel must therefore evaluate the probability of an unsuccessful demurrer with due consideration given to the impact of being barred from filing a motion for judgment on the pleadings as the trial date approaches. For discussion, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders , and Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

Similarly, because certain issues may lend themselves to summary proceedings such as a motion for summary judgment or summary adjudication, it is usually a good idea to evaluate the opposing party's pleading to determine whether the pleading is sufficiently clear to allow a summary judgment or adjudication motion to be framed, and if not, to file a general or special demurrer, or a motion to strike, as appropriate. Although extensive discovery is often required before a summary judgment or adjudication motion can be brought, in some instances, provided the pleadings are sufficiently clear to frame the legal issues of the case, a summary adjudication motion may be brought early, which if successful, may limit the scope of the action. Thus, counsel's failure to consider the impact of the initial pleadings on law and motion matters during the early stages of the litigation may as a practical matter limit the options for resolution of a case without trial during later stages of the litigation. For discussion, see Ch. 537, Summary Judgment .

[7] Bifurcation, Coordination, and Preferences

A final consideration when developing litigation strategy is to consider whether an action may lend itself to coordination or consolidation with other pending actions, to the bifurcation of issues, or is entitled to any trial preference.

As a practical matter, except in cases where the matters to be consolidated clearly arise out of the same tort or occurrence, the decision to consolidate an action may have to await the development of facts through discovery which either lend support for consolidation, or suggest that consolidation should be avoided for strategic reasons. Nevertheless, coordination and consolidation motions (as with other pretrial motions) should be given due consideration when developing a pretrial strategy. For discussion, see Ch. 125, Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions .

Counsel should also consider early on in the case whether an action is one which may lend itself to the bifurcation of issues. Bifurcation may be strategically desirable when there appears to be a strong procedural defense to an action, such as the statute of limitations, or when a there is a strong possibility of prevailing on a substantive defense which requires minimal fact finding by the trier of fact, for example, issues such as agency, duty, or ownership or control of property. The same types of issues which lend themselves to bifurcation also tend to be prime candidates for summary adjudication and judgment. Accordingly, as with summary judgment motions, bifurcation should be considered early in the pretrial process, rather than as an afterthought.

Motions for trial preferences are another form of procedural motion which should be considered by counsel during the prefiling and earliest stages of litigation for several reasons. For some preferences, the ability to claim the preference on motion may be lost if the motion is not timely filed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 36]. In many cases trial preferences make good strategic sense by either bringing the case to trial sooner and thereby preserving critical testimony which is in danger of being lost, or simply forcing an earlier settlement in a clear liability case. In all events, preferences should be considered and explored early on.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureVenueGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureVenueMotions to TransferConvenience of WitnessesCivil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsJudgment on the PleadingsCivil ProcedureSummary JudgmentStandardsAppropriatenessCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementEvidenceTestimonyGeneral OverviewTortsProcedureDiscovery

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Pretrial Strategy

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.102

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.102 Alternatives to Trial

In all cases in which the amount in controversy is $50,000 or less, counsel must consider the impact of mandatory judicial arbitration on the management of the case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.11; for discussion, see [4], below]. Regardless of the amount in controversy, counsel may wish to consider whether, depending on the nature of the action, the case is appropriate for resolution by some other means than a trial, even before filing an action. Virtually all courts offer arbitration as a form of alternative dispute resolution, and increasingly, many courts offer mediation as a supplement to, or in lieu of, arbitration and, in the case of family law, participation in mediation is mandatory. For discussion of the Code Civ. Proc. § 1775 et seq. mediation pilot project in Los Angeles County that acts as an alternative to judicial arbitration, see Ch. 37, Judicially Mandated Civil Action Mediation . This program may be adopted by other jurisdictions as well [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1775.2].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMandatory ADRCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMediationsCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementFamily LawAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationFamily LawAlternative Dispute ResolutionMediation

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Pretrial Strategy

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.103

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.103 Internal Case Management

[1] Calendaring

Effective case management requires a dependable calendaring system. Minimally, a calendaring system must apprize the attorney of deadlines imposed by delay reduction statutes and local rules, as well as the Code of Civil Procedure. Most critical are procedural deadlines which are jurisdictional or preclude the court or the parties from further consideration of an issue if an act is not done within a statutory deadline. For example, when counsel anticipates a challenge to a judge in a single assignment case, the challenge must be brought within ten days of the notice of assignment of a single judge for all purposes, or a challenge to that judge will be precluded [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6(2)]. For discussion, see Ch. 317, Judges . Similarly, counsel's failure to file timely motions for reconsideration is another example of a critical jurisdictional deadline which may be missed if not properly and accurately calendared [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1008].

A calendaring system should also do the following at a minimum:

- Flag the dates by which pretrial work, especially discovery, must be completed in order to meet court deadlines for discovery or motion cutoff.

- Identify critical trial deadlines, such as the last day for filing jury instructions and voir dire with the court (if required by local rule).

- Specify case management dates and deadlines such as status conferences, case management conferences, and the last day for making or accepting offers to compromise.

An effective calendaring system and case management will also help counsel to avoid the all-too common case management problems such as leaving too much discovery uncompleted until just before the cutoff, which may result in multiple tracks of depositions, and require the utilization of attorneys who are unfamiliar with the case, or scrambling to retain experts. For discussion of discovery plans and deadlines, see Ch. 190, Discovery: Scope, Regulation, and Timing and DeMeo, California Deposition and Discovery Practice, Chs. 2 and 3 (Matthew Bender).

PRACTICE TIP:

Responsibility for Meeting Deadlines Remains on Attorney. There are several good computer generated calendaring systems available for litigation practice, at minimal cost. Some of these calendars may be upgraded to provide for variation in local rules and practice at a nominal cost. Particularly for counsel who practice in more than one venue or jurisdiction, computer generated calendaring systems are an invaluable aid in keeping counsel apprized of important deadlines. Remember, though, the responsibility for meeting important deadlines always rests with the attorney with responsibility for the case, and not the calendar clerk or secretary. By Evelio Grillo

[2] Timing

[a] Prefiling Timing Considerations

Considerations affecting when a complaint should be filed may include whether the action is entitled to precedence or preference [see § 425.70 et seq.], or whether an issue or special defense should be bifurcated for trial [see § 425.60 et seq.].

[b] Court Controls After Action Filed

Counsel exert the most control over the timing of an action before it is filed. Under the Trial Delay Reduction Act, once a complaint is filed, the courts, and not the litigants, are charged with managing the litigation process through resolution of the case [see Gov. Code § 68607]. Therefore, counsel should consider carefully when an action should be filed so as to maximize his or her ability to develop the case as fully as possible within the existing time constraints.

Under the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act (TCDRA) [see § 425.10 et seq.], cases move very quickly under differential case management [see § 425.30 et seq.]. The time to develop facts and legal theories, and to conduct discovery is shorter.

[3] Trial Setting Stage

If an action has not settled by time of the case management conference, counsel should be prepared to try the case. This includes keeping the calendar clear of other matters during the intensive, time-consuming task of trial preparation, notifying and subpoenaing witnesses, and rechecking the many crucial cutoff dates that occur at or after the trial setting stage, including the:

- Discovery cutoff.
- Deadline for hearing summary judgment motions.
- Deadlines relating to demands for compromise.
- Posting of jury fees.
- Noticing of party witnesses to appear at trial.

For checklists and organizational aids to help in trial preparation, see Johnson, California Trial Guide (Matthew Bender). For discussion, see Ch. 190-200, Discovery and Ch. 537, Summary Judgment .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureVenueGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSummary JudgmentHearingsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesPretrial OrdersCivil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsJurorsSelectionVoir DireCivil ProcedureTrialsJury TrialsJury InstructionsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Pretrial Strategy

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 425.104-425.109

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 425.104[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.110

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.110 Related Matthew Bender Publications

For memoranda of points and authorities related to forms in this chapter, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 180, Pretrial Proceedings (Matthew Bender)

For discussion and forms relating to trial procedures, see California Trial Guide (Matthew Bender).

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.111

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.111 California Constitution

Power of Judicial Council to adopt rules for court administration, practice, and procedure not inconsistent with statute. Cal. Const., art. VI, § 6

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.112

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.112 State Statutes

[1] Bringing Cases to Trial Generally

Legislative confirmation of Judicial Council's constitutional power to promulgate rules governing pretrial proceedings. Code Civ. Proc. § 575

Authority to adopt local court rules. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 575.1, 575.2; Gov. Code §§ 68070, 68608(b)

Definition of issues in pleadings. Code Civ. Proc. § 588

When issue of law arises. Code Civ. Proc. § 589

Bringing case to trial. Code Civ. Proc. § 594

Arbitration determination conference in cases subject to mandatory judicial arbitration. Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.16

Effective date of rules adopted by superior courts and Judicial Council. Gov. Code §§ 68071, 68072

[2] Superior Court Procedures

Functioning assistive listening system or computer-aided transcription system as required to be provided by court at request of any party, witness, attorney, judicial employee, judge, juror, or other participant who is hearing impaired, in any civil or criminal proceeding. Civ. Code § 54.8

Providing for telephone appearances at certain conferences, hearings, and proceedings. Code Civ. Proc. § 367.5

[3] Trial Setting

Power of courts to promulgate local rules for supervision and management of actions. Code Civ. Proc. § 575.1

Sanctions for noncompliance with local court rules promulgated pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 575.1. Code Civ. Proc. § 575.2

Notice of trial. Code Civ. Proc. § 594

Providing for telephone appearances at trial setting conferences, and other conferences, hearings, and proceedings. Code Civ. Proc. § 367.5

[4] Pretrial Conference

Legislative confirmation of power of Judicial Council to promulgate rules governing pretrial proceedings in superior courts. Code Civ. Proc. § 575

Power of superior courts to promulgate court rules for supervision and management of actions and for sanctions. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 575.1, 575.2

Providing for telephone appearances at case management conferences, arbitration or mediation status conferences, and other conferences, hearings, and proceedings. Code Civ. Proc. § 367.5

Amendment of pretrial conference orders. Code Civ. Proc. § 576

Postponement of proceeding in court, including pretrial conferences. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 595, 595.1

Trial Court Delay Reduction Act. Gov. Code § 68600 et seq.

[5] Bifurcation

Separate trial of special defenses. Code Civ. Proc. § 597

Special defense not going to merits of action but constituting bar or ground of abatement to prosecution. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 597, 597.5

Issue or part of issue before other issue or part of issue in case. Code Civ. Proc. § 598

Separate trial of issues. Code Civ. Proc. § 1048(b)

Issue of child custody. Fam. Code § 3023(b)

Issue of child support. Fam. Code § 4003

[6] Motions for Precedence or Preference and Motions to Continue, Advance, Reset, or Specially Set

Preferences in civil actions. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 36, 37

Postponement of proceeding in court. Code Civ. Proc. § 595

Motions defined. Code Civ. Proc. § 1003

Motions and orders generally. Code Civ. Proc. § 1003 et seq.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMandatory ADRCivil ProceduresPretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementCivil ProcedureTrialsGeneral OverviewCriminal Law & ProcedureDiscovery & InspectionPretrial ConferencesGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.113

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.113 California Rules of Court

[1] Bringing Cases to Trial Generally

Pretrial proceedings to have cases set for trial in superior courts. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.700 et seq. and 10.900 et seq.

Motions and grounds for continuance and motions to advance, reset, or specially set. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1332

Adoption, filing, distribution, and maintenance of local court rules. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 10.613

Judicial arbitration rules for civil cases. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.810-3.830

Differential case management rules under Trial Court Delay Reduction Act. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.710 et seq.

Exemption from differential case management. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.714(c)

Case evaluation factors for determining exemption from differential case management. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.715

[2] Superior Court Procedures

Proceedings for having civil case management. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.720-3.730

Complex litigation. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.400, Cal. Rules of Ct., Stds. Jud. Admin., Std. 3.10

Standard of judicial administration relating to continuances. Cal. Rules of Ct., Stds. Jud. Admin., Std. 3.10

[3] Trial Setting

[a] Short and Long Causes

Definition of short and long causes. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.735(a)

Exemption from case management review for short cause on stipulation or court's own motion. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.735(b)

New trial or case management review if short cause is not completely tried within five hours. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.735(c)

[b] Case Management Conference

Initial case management review. Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.721

Notice of and attendance at case management conference. Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.722

Special order or request for case management conference. Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.723

Subjects to be considered at case management conference. Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.727

Meet and confer requirement. Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.724

Case management statement. Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.725

Case management conference order. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.728

Setting the trial date. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.729

[4] Settlement Conference

Mandatory and other settlement conferences. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1380

Duty to notify court and others if case resolved. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1385

Sanctions in respect to California Rules of Court, local courts, and court orders. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.30

[5] Motions for Precedence of Preference and Motions to Continue, Advance, Reset, or Specially Set

Grounds and motions for continuance of cases before or during trial. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100

Motions to advance, reset, or specially set cases for trial. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1335

Motions to request case management conference to be held at any time. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.723(c)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsStipulationsCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersContinuancesCriminal Law & ProcedurePretrial Motions & ProceduresGeneral OverviewGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.114

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.114 Local Rules of Court

[1] [Reserved]

[2] [Reserved]

[3] Alameda County

Initial Case Management-ADR Evaluation Conference Statement. Alameda Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rules 4.2(1), 4.3(1)

Status and setting conference. Alameda Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rules 4.2-4.5

Settlement in general, trial settlement conference, and notification regarding settled cases. Alameda Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 4.4

[4] Contra Costa County

Case management conference procedures. Contra Costa Co. Local Ct. Rules, Rule 5(h)

Issue conferences. Contra Costa Co. Local Ct. Rules, Rule 5(j)

Settlement conferences. Contra Costa Co. Local Ct. Rules, Rule 8(b)

[5] Los Angeles County

Assignments to Central District departments. Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 2.5

Status conferences. Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.9

Attendance and excuse from attendance at mandatory settlement conference. Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.9(d)

Duty of attorneys with respect to mandatory settlement conference. Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.9(d)

Written statements required for all settlement conferences. Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.9(e)

Court to be notified of settlement of case other than at settlement conference with judge present. Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.9(f)

Sanctions for violation of Trial Court Delay Reduction rules. Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.13

Assignment of a case for all purposes. Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.3(i)

[6] Marin County

Administration of civil litigation. Marin Co. Rules, Civil 1.18 et seq.

Status/ADR assessment conference. Marin Co. Rules, Civil 1.25

Settlement conferences and settlement conference statements. Marin Co. Rules, Civil 1.26

Issue conference and issue conference statements and orders. Marin Co. Rules, Civil 1.27

[7] Sacramento County

Conduct and setting of settlement conference; settlement conference calendar. Sacramento Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rules 4.00, 4.01

Setting cases for trial and trial setting conference. Sacramento Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 6.00 et seq.

[8] San Bernardino County

Case management conferences. San Bernardino Co. Rules, Rule 408

Exceptional cases. San Bernardino Co. Rules, Rule 412

Trial ready lists. San Bernardino Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 415

Settlement conferences. San Bernardino Co. Rules, Rule 610 et seq.

[9] San Diego County

Case management conference. San Diego Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Div. II, Rule 2.9

Cases "at issue." San Diego Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Div. II, Rule 2.10

Trial readiness conference. San Diego Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Div. II, Rule 2.15

Settlement conferences. San Diego Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Div. II, Rules 2.20-2.23

[10] San Francisco City & County

Assignment of cases to departments. San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 2.0

Counsel's duty of diligence to bring action to trial; sanctions. San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 3.0

Civil case management plans. San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 3.0, 3.1

Assignment to single trial judge for trial and other matters. San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rules 3.0(C), 3.5(A)

Case Management conferences. San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rules 3.4, 3.5

Assignment of trial date. San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rules 3.4(C), 6.1

Assignment for trial of default or uncontested cases. San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 8.13

Settlement conference and settlement calendar. San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 5.0

Early settlement conference program. San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 4.3

[11] Santa Clara County

Differential civil case management. Santa Clara Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 1 (Civil)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureCounselGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsGeneral OverviewLegal EthicsSanctionsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.115

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.115 Decisions

[1] Pretrial Conference

[a] Pretrial Conference Order

[i] Amendment of Order

Inquiry on appeal is whether trial court abused its discretion in ruling on motion to amend pretrial conference order. Godfrey v. Steinpress (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 154, 170, 180 Cal. Rptr. 95

Pretrial conference orders as subject to amendment under Code Civ. Proc. § 576 in furtherance of justice and on such terms as may be proper at any time before commencement of trial. Godfrey v. Steinpress (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 154, 170, 180 Cal. Rptr. 95

Trial courts have discretion to allow oral amendment of pretrial conference order at any time during trial if adverse party is not prejudiced by it. Robinson v. Thornton (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 605, 615, 76 Cal. Rptr. 835

Same principles govern exercise of court's discretion in allowing amendments to pleadings under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 as apply with respect to motions to modify or amend pretrial conference orders. Del Pino v. Gualtieri (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 912, 916, 71 Cal. Rptr. 716

Motion for order modifying pretrial conference order to reinstate certain fictitiously named defendants and for permission to amend complaint to substitute named corporation in place of fictitiously named defendant as proper. Gilmore v. Lick Fish & Poultry, Inc. (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 106, 110-111, 71 Cal. Rptr. 212

Trial court committed reversible error in granting defendant's motion made at trial for judgment on pleadings on ground pretrial conference order specified issue involved as negligence and complaint did not state cause of action for negligence and denying plaintiff's countermotion to amend complaint to allege negligence and to amend pretrial conference order to include strict liability in tort as issue where complaint stated cause of action based on this latter theory and defendant would not have been prejudiced by including issue in pretrial conference order. Read v. Safeway Stores, Inc. (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 404, 406-409, 70 Cal. Rptr. 454

Granting or denial of motion to modify pretrial conference order as matter committed to sound discretion of trial court whose decision will not be reversed unless abuse of discretion is shown. Universal Underwriters Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 722, 727, 732, 58 Cal. Rptr. 870

Modification in effect of pretrial conference order by trial judge without motion by party. Fresno Air Service v. Wood (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 801, 804, 43 Cal. Rptr. 276

Filing by stipulation of parties and court order of amended pleading as equivalent to amendment of pretrial conference order. Arthur v. New House Building Corp. (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 526, 534, 31 Cal. Rptr. 868

When pretrial conference order does not foreclose trial court from permitting amendment to pleadings, modification of order may be effectuated by amendment to pleadings raising new issues. Feykert v. Hardy (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 67, 74, 28 Cal. Rptr. 510

[ii] Effect of Order on Amendment of Pleadings

Pretrial conference order as not doing away with trial court's power to permit amendments to pleadings to conform to proof. Lieberman v. Aetna Ins. Co. (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 515, 530, 57 Cal. Rptr. 453 ; Texaco, Inc. v. Robinson (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 450, 452, 25 Cal. Rptr. 923 ; Atkins v. Atkins (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 207, 211, 2 Cal. Rptr. 104

[b] Purposes of Pretrial Conference

Pretrial conferences as designed to relieve members of legal profession and judiciary from legal technicalities, trivia, details, and unessentials, and to have case tried at early date on real and substantial issues in case. Barnhouse v. City of Pinole (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 171, 194, 183 Cal. Rptr. 881 ; Dell'Orto v. Dell'Orto (1959) 166 Cal. App. 2d 825, 829-830, 334 P.2d 97 ; Baird v. Hodson (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 687, 689, 327 P.2d 215

Principal purposes of pretrial as being to determine what lawsuit is about, to simplify and define issues, and to give notice of matters not necessarily revealed bypleadings when such matters are issues in case. Estate of Cooper (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1122, 90 Cal. Rptr. 283

Principal purposes of pretrial conference as being to find out what lawsuit is about, to simplify and define issues, and to determine how trial may proceed most expeditiously. Samuels v. Superior Court (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 264, 268 n.3, 81 Cal. Rptr. 216

Purpose of pretrial conference as being to place case in focus so that defined and precise issues may be resolved as quickly as possible. Sweeney v. Pozarelli (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 585, 593, 39 Cal. Rptr. 601 ; Palmer v. Financial Indem. Co. (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 419, 434, 30 Cal. Rptr. 204

Purpose of pretrial conference as being to expedite proceedings and facilitate correct determination of issues. Mays v. Disneyland, Inc. (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 297, 300, 28 Cal. Rptr. 689

Evolution of pretrial conferences as means of expediting litigation. Cantillon v. Superior Court (1957) 150 Cal. App.

2d 184, 186, 309 P.2d 890

[c] Review

Reviewing court in its role as parens patriae as having power to order copy of pretrial conference order made part of record on appeal when it appears that consideration of order is necessary to determination of appeal. Patrick J. Ruane, Inc. v. Parker (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 488, 492, 8 Cal. Rptr. 379

[d] Role of Pretrial Conference Judge

Judge cannot be disqualified from presiding at a case management conference. Grant v. Superior Court (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 518, 526, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 825

Pretrial conference judge as permitted to define issues but not to exclude competent evidence relevant to any issue in trial. Bradbeer v. Scott (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 575, 577, 14 Cal. Rptr. 458

[e] Sanctions

Plaintiff's failure to appear at case management conference regarding defendant's default or subsequent order to show cause re dismissal as warranting dismissal of case. California Casualty Indemnity Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 678, 681, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 258

Failure to prepare for, appear at, or participate in pretrial conference as subjecting counsel to contempt proceeding. Cantillon v. Superior Court (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 184, 187-188, 309 P.2d 890

Sanctions for nonappearance, or failure to prepare for or participate in pretrial conference, as constituting contempt by individual attorney only, and not by firm to which attorney belongs. Cantillon v. Superior Court (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 184, 190, 309 P.2d 890

[f] Stipulations

Stipulation to extend pretrial conference as not extending time for trial beyond five-year limit of Code Civ. Proc. § 583 (now Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310), unless express extension or waiver of limit appears in it. J.C. Penney Co. v. Superior Court (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 666, 669, 343 P.2d 919 ; Gentry v. Nielsen (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 27, 31, 176 Cal. Rptr. 385

[2] Settlement Conference

[a] Judges

Trial court may not use the threat of sanctions against counsel to coerce parties to reach settlement. Barrientos v. City of Los Angeles (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 63, 72, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 520

Role of judge in settlement conference. Mezzetti v. Superior Court (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 987, 992, 156 Cal. Rptr. 802

Judge against whom challenge under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6 (automatic disqualification) has been filed in particular case as not disqualified from thereafter setting and conducting mandatory settlement conference in that case; however arguable that such a judge should not conduct settlement conference, and in multi-judge court problem readily avoidable but practical difficulties existed in one-judge courts. Mezzetti v. Superior Court (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 987, 988, 993, 156 Cal. Rptr. 802 (one-judge court)

[b] Participants

Obligation of school board to send chairperson or authorized subcommittee to mandatory settlement conference. Sigala v. Anaheim City School Dist. (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 661, 672, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 38

[c] Power of Court

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1380 as not applying to voluntary settlement conference held without use of court facilities and at no cost to county. Raygoza v. Betteravia Farms (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1592, 1595-1596, 239 Cal. Rptr. 188

Legal profession as aware that written policies of Los Angeles County Superior Court pertaining to pretrial settlement conferences published in its civil trial manual are requirements and not guidelines, and thus, are enforceable as general court rules. City of El Monte v. Takei (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 244, 247-248, 204 Cal. Rptr. 559

Court as having no power to compel litigant to settle case at any stage of legal proceedings. Mezzetti v. Superior Court (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 987, 991-992, 156 Cal. Rptr. 802 ; People v. Cimarusti (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 314, 321, 146 Cal. Rptr. 421

[3] Bifurcation of Issues for Trial

[a] Conduct of Bifurcated Trials

In case of bifurcated trial pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 598, motion for judgment notwithstanding verdict after liability phase of trial as proper if liability verdict was for defendant (that is, court may grant plaintiff's motion) but improper (court may not grant defendant's motion) if liability verdict was for plaintiff. Meyser v. American Bldg. Maintenance, Inc. (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 933, 935-937, 149 Cal. Rptr. 808 ; Walton v. Magno (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1237, 1241, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 815

Evidence introduced at first stage of bifurcated trial as subject to consideration at second stage without being reintroduced. Foreman & Clark Corp. v. Fallon (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 875, 888, 92 Cal. Rptr. 162, 479 P.2d 362

Procedure after prior trial of separate issue in bifurcated trial under Code Civ. Proc. § 598, relating to trial of separate issues. Lauderdale v. U & I Equip. Co. (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 140, 141-143, 76 Cal. Rptr. 483

Motion by defendant for new trial after trial on issue of liability but before trial on issue of damages as premature. Mays v. Disneyland, Inc. (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 297, 298-299, 28 Cal. Rptr. 689

[b] Entry of Judgment

Entry of judgment when plaintiff prevails on liability issue in bifurcated trial as inappropriate. City of Huntington Beach v. Superior Court (1978) 78 Cal. App. 3d 333, 339, 144 Cal. Rptr. 236

Code Civ. Proc. § 598, providing for bifurcated trials, as not permitting "judgment" of any sort against party on whom liability is imposed until conclusion of damages trial. Walton v. Magno (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1237, 1240, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 815 ; Plaza Tulare v. Tradewell Stores, Inc. (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 522, 524, 254 Cal. Rptr. 792 (applying Code Civ. Proc. § 598 as amended in 1977); Horton v. Jones (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 952, 956, 103 Cal. Rptr. 399

Authority to enter judgment in favor of party on whom liability is sought to be imposed under Code Civ. Proc. § 598, relating to separate trials of issues, as extending only to parties who would be entitled to separate final judgment under one final judgment rule. Fleuret v. Hale Constr. Co. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 227, 231, 90 Cal. Rptr. 557

[c] Liability and Damages

Mistrial on issue of damages as not requiring new trial on issue of liability when issues were tried separately. Little v. Superior Court (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 642, 645, 12 Cal. Rptr. 481, 361 P.2d 13

Trial court as permitted by Code Civ. Proc. § 598 to bifurcate trial to determine liability for compensatory damages before trial as to exemplary damages. Hilliard v. A.H. Robins Co. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 374, 392-393, 196 Cal. Rptr. 117

[d] Review

Whether there should be severance and separate trials on issues in single action as matter within discretion of trial court, whose ruling will not be disturbed on appeal absent manifest abuse of discretion; when evidence relates to both issues, and issues are not complex, denial of motion as proper. Downey Savings & Loan Ass'n v. Ohio Casualty Ins. Co. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1072, 1086, 234 Cal. Rptr. 835

[4] Motions for Precedence or Preference and Motions to Continue, Advance, Reset, or Specially Set

[a] Priority and Preference

[i] Age

Failure of attorney representing client who is over 70 years of age to move for trial preference pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 36(a) as subjecting attorney to malpractice suit by client's personal representative when client dies before trial; measure of damages in malpractice action as being amount client would have received had case been brought to trial while client was still alive. Granquist v. Sandberg (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 181, 184-188, 268 Cal. Rptr. 109

Eighty-year-old plaintiff as entitled to trial preference pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 36(a), even though she had obtained preferential trial date in prior identical action but relinquished it when her counsel dismissed that action, filed present action, and sought preference solely to circumvent refusal of master calendar judge in prior action to grant one-week continuance until petitioner's physical condition improved sufficiently for her to be present at trial. Rice v. Superior Court (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 81, 84, 86-87, 185 Cal. Rptr. 853

[ii] Mandatory Dismissal

Trial court not subject to mandatory duty to set preferential trial date, even when five-year deadline for bringing case to trial is approaching; approaching limit is critical, but not exclusive, consideration in making discretionary ruling on motion for trial preference under Code Civ. Proc. § 36(e). Salas v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 342, 346, 349, 228 Cal. Rptr. 504, 721 P.2d 590 ; Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 440, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469

Trial court as having discretion under Code Civ. Proc. § 36(e) to grant motion to set case specially for trial just before five-year mandatory dismissal period runs. National Secretarial Service, Inc. v. Froehlich (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 510, 521, 258 Cal. Rptr. 506

[iii] Mistitled Action

Trial court as having power, by appropriate order or procedure, to prevent party's obtaining preference on calendar by mistitling case as one entitled to statutory preference. Kessloff v. Pearson (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 609, 613-614, 233 P.2d 899

[iv] Declaratory Relief

Declaratory relief action seeking relief in addition to declaratory relief as having only conditional priority in trial setting under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1062a(b) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 1062.3(b)). Mobil Oil Corp. v. Superior Court (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 486, 494, 145 Cal. Rptr. 17

[v] Unlawful Detainer

Unlawful detainer proceeding is entitled under Code Civ. Proc. § 1179a to unqualified preference in trial setting. Mobil Oil Corp. v. Superior Court (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 486, 494, 145 Cal. Rptr. 17

Plaintiff's failure in unlawful detainer proceeding to pursue Code Civ. Proc. § 1166a (to secure immediate possession of premises) does not destroy or affect plaintiff's right to priority under Code Civ. Proc. § 1179a. Kartheiser v. Superior Court (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 617, 622, 345 P.2d 135

[vi] Other Bases for Preference

Delay in prosecution is possibly excusable for purposes of motion for trial preference under former Code Civ. Proc. § 36(d) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 36(e)] (interests of justice) when delay resulted from reasonable belief, induced by mutual bona fide settlement negotiations, that trial could probably be avoided. San Bernardino City Unified School Dist. v. Superior Court (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 233, 239-240, 235 Cal. Rptr. 356 (dictum)

[b] Remedy to Require Trial Court to Give Case Precedence

Mandate is appropriate remedy to require trial court to specially set dental malpractice action for trial before expiration of five-year period specified by Code of Civ. Proc. § 583.310 when plaintiff acted with diligence to bring case to trial, but was repeatedly stymied by cumulative errors committed by the defendant. Schmitt v. Superior Court (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 453, 456-457, 264 Cal. Rptr. 806

Mandate is appropriate remedy to require trial court to give precedence on pretrial calendar to unlawful detainer proceeding in order to expedite setting it for trial. Cohen v. Superior Court (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 551, 554, 56 Cal. Rptr. 813 (citing Code Civ. Proc. § 1179a)

[c] Motions to Specially Set

Trial court abused discretion by denying motion to specially set dental malpractice action for trial to avoid mandatory dismissal under Code of Civ. Proc. § 583.310 when plaintiff acted with diligence to bring case to trial, but was repeatedly stymied by cumulative errors committed by the defendant. Schmitt v. Superior Court (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 453, 456-457, 264 Cal. Rptr. 806

Error to deny motion to specially set case for trial to avoid mandatory dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 for failure to bring case to trial within five years on ground that insufficient time remained in which to give 15-day notice of trial required by Code Civ. Proc. § 594 after deducting period during which statute was tolled; although less than six months remained within which to bring case to trial after subtracting time during which five-year period was tolled, Code Civ. Proc. § 583.350 extends that period for six months. Him v. Superior Court (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 35, 36-39, 228 Cal. Rptr. 839

Order denying with prejudice plaintiff's motion to specially set case for trial is not an appealable order. People v. Cimarusti (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 314,318-319, 81 Cal. App. 3d 314, 319, 146 Cal. Rptr. 421 (nevertheless, treating appeal as petition for writ of certiorari and determining issue raised on its merits)

Court is without power, in absence of grounds for dismissal, to refuse to set matter for trial entirely, although it may properly deny motion for special setting on a particular date. People v. Cimarusti (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 314, 324, 146 Cal. Rptr. 421

Order specially setting trial to commence two hours after order is valid when continuance is granted after commencement to prepare for trial. Elliano v. Assurance Co. of America (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 170, 175, 119 Cal. Rptr. 653

[d] Renewed Motions and Motions for Reconsideration

Order by second judge, on motion made before five-year period for mandatory dismissal for failure to bring action to trial had passed and granted after that period had passed, dismissing action and vacating trial date as error when first judge had granted plaintiff's motion to advance and had set case for trial within five-year period; although trial court has jurisdiction to reconsider prior ruling or to entertain renewal of previous motion, one trial court judge as not permitted to reconsider and overrule ruling of another judge absent showing that first judge is unavailable; considerations on motion for preferential trial setting as same as considerations on motion for discretionary dismissal; both as addressed to discretion of trial court; both as governed by factors set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1342(e). Curtin v. Koskey (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 873, 874, 876-878, 282 Cal. Rptr. 706

[e] Other Factors to Consider

In ruling on motion to advance case for trial, court is required to consider condition of court calendar and rights of other litigants. Salas v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 342, 346, 228 Cal. Rptr. 504, 721 P.2d 590 ; Rim Forest Lumber Co. v. Woodside Constr. Co. (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 454, 472, 235 Cal. Rptr. 443

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsAmended PleadingsConforming Pleadings to EvidenceCivil ProcedureDeclaratory Judgment ActionsState JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureCounselGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDiscretionCivil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSanctionsGeneral OverviewCriminal Law & ProcedurePretrial Motions & ProceduresGeneral OverviewGovernmentsCourtsAuthority to AdjudicateGovernmentsCourtsJudgesLegal EthicsSanctionsGeneral

OverviewTortsMalpractice & Professional LiabilityProfessional ServicesTortsProcedureCommencement & ProsecutionDismissalTortsProcedureStatutes of LimitationsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.116

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.116 Law Reviews

[1] Bringing Cases to Trial Generally

Steiner, The Case Management Order: Use and Efficacy in Complex Litigation and the Toxic Tort, 6 Hastings W.-N.W. J. Envtl. L. & Pol'y 71 (1999)

Cordray, Settlement Agreements and the Supreme Court, 48 Hastings L.J. 9 (1996)

Gross & Syverud, Don't Try: Civil Jury Verdicts in a System Geared to Settlement, 44 UCLA L. Rev. 1 (1996)

Note, Rule 16 and Pretrial Conferences: Have We Forgotten the Most Important Ingredient? 63 S. Cal. L. Rev. 1449 (1990)

[2] Bifurcation

Maskin, Litigating Claims for Punitive Damages: The View From The Front Line, 31 Loy. L.A. L. Rev. 489 (1998)

Pepek, TXO v. Alliance: Due Process Limits and Introducing a Defendant's Wealth When Determining Punitive Damages Awards, 25 Pac. L.J. 1191 (1994)

Colbert, Bifurcation of Civil Rights Defendants: Undermining Monell in Police Brutality Cases, 44 Hastings L.J. 499 (1993)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSettlementsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSettlementsSettlement AgreementsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConferencesCase ManagementCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersSeparate TrialsTortsProcedureSettlementsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 425.117-425.119

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 425.117[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.120

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.120 Plaintiff's Checklist

[1] Preliminary Considerations

[a] Initial Investigation

☐ Conduct sufficient investigation and research for informed complaint [see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints].

☐ Ascertain the presence of insurance and comply with internal policy requirements, including statutes of limitations.

☐ Select appropriate jurisdiction [see Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter] and venue [see Ch. 571, Venue].

☐ File and serve complaint and proof of service [see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints , and Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

☐ Develop litigation strategy.

☐ Consult early with experts.

☐ Develop draft litigation budget.

☐ Develop preliminary discovery plan

☐ Communicate often and openly with client.

[b] Timing

☐ Evaluate complexity of case and probable classification for differential case management purposes [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.714, 3.715].

☐ Determine whether precedence or preference [see § 425.70 et seq.], or bifurcation [see § 425.50 et seq.] issues may arise.

☐ Anticipate motion practice.

☐ Identify issues for potential summary disposition [see Ch. 537, Summary Judgment].

☐ Anticipate defensive motions.

☐ Evaluate potential for coordination, severance or consolidation [see Ch. 125, Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions].

[c] Alternatives to Trial

☐ Consider posturing case for alternative dispute resolution of all or some issues.

☐ Court-referred arbitration or mediation where available.

☐ Private arbitration or mediation service [see Ch. 37, Judicially Mandated Civil Action Mediation].

☐ Determine availability and expertise.

☐ Determine cost.

☐ Special master for discovery or other issues.

☐ Arbitration.

☐ Judicial arbitration [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.10 et seq.; for discussion and considerations, see Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration].

☐ Post-dispute agreement to arbitrate [for discussion and considerations, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration , through Ch. 34, Contractual Arbitration: Judicial Review].

☐ Voluntary court early settlement program, where available.

☐ Determine when and how to obtain agreement of necessary parties to alternative dispute resolution.

[2] Internal Case Management

[a] Calendaring

☐ Calendar statutorily prescribed court dates.

☐ Calendar deadlines prescribed by local rule.

☐ Calendar dates by which work must be completed in order to meet court deadlines, e.g.:

☐ Service of summary judgment motion, which must be heard 30 days prior to trial, and therefore must be served not later than 105 days before trial, if service is by hand, or 110 days before trial if service is by mail [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a)].

☐ Completion of discovery in order to notice motion for summary judgment.

☐ Completion of interviews of experts in order to exchange expert witness information.

[b] Discovery Stage

☐ Develop discovery plan [see Ch. 190-200, Discovery].

☐ Confer with experts or consultants and client.

☐ Evaluate relative costs of methods of discovery.

☐ Ensure preservation of evidence:

☐ Conventional documentary evidence.

☐ Electronic evidence.

☐ Early interrogatories.

☐ Letter to counsel cautioning against otherwise routine backup or destruction of electronic data.

☐ Witnesses.

☐ Ascertain periods of availability and unavailability.

☐ Consider best means to preserve testimony, e.g. informal interview, declaration.

[c] Motion Practice

☐ Evaluate particular motions.

☐ Determine strategic benefits of favorable ruling.

☐ Determine strategic cost of unfavorable ruling.

☐ Determine monetary cost of motion.

☐ Prepare and file motions as warranted.

[3] Case Management Conference

☐ Consult local rules regarding case management conference.

☐ Determine if case is entitled to precedence or preference or other grounds to accelerate case; if so, move to advance case management conference [see § 425.70 et seq., Forms 425.160 -425.163].

☐ Calendar notice of case management conference on receiving notice from court clerk.

☐ Determine if appearance has been excused from case management conference.

☐ Meet and confer as required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.724.

☐ Prepare case management statement on mandatory Cal. Judicial Council Form CM-110 [see § 425.131, Form CM-110].

☐ Attend and participate in conference in manner provided by local rule.

☐ Evaluate case management order for accuracy and completeness.

☐ If appropriate, move for amendment of order.

☐ If appropriate, move for amendment of pleadings to conform to order.

[4] Settlement Conference

☐ Consult local rules for requirements of settlement conferences.

☐ Prepare settlement conference statement in manner provided in local rule.

☐ Serve and deliver settlement conference statement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1380(c)].

☐ Attend settlement conference with persons required by local rule.

☐ If entire case is resolved, inform court and others [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1385].

[5] Bifurcation

[a] Separate Trial of Special Defense

☐ Determine whether separate trial of special defense before trial of any other issue in the case is available and desirable [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 597, 597.5; for discussion, see § 425.51].

☐ If so, see Ch. 3, Abatement of Actions, § 3.110 et seq., for Procedural Checklist and forms.

[b] Separate Trial of Issue or Part of Issue

☐ Determine whether separate trial of issue or part of issue before trial of other issues or part of an issue is available and desirable [see Code Civ. Proc. § 598; see § 425.62]. Consider:

☐ Whether it would promote convenience of witnesses, the ends of justice, or the economy and efficiency of handling the litigation.

☐ Whether it is expressly authorized by statute [see, e.g., Fam. Code §§ 3023, 4003] (separate trial of child custody and child support issues).

☐ Time motion so that [see Code Civ. Proc. § 598]:

☐ Court may make the order no later than the close of pretrial conference, or

☐ If no pretrial conference is held, no later than 30 days before the trial date.

☐ If appropriate, prepare papers:

☐ Notice of motion and supporting declaration [for a form, see § 425.150].

☐ Memorandum of points and authorities.

☐ Proposed order [for a form, see § 425.151].

☐ Proof of service [for a form, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

☐ File and serve motion and supporting papers at least 16 court days before hearing on motion, with extensions depending on manner of service [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(a)(13), (b); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6) (extension that may apply in case of electronic service); for discussion and a Procedural Checklist, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders].

☐ Lodge proposed order with court as required by local rule or practice.

NOTE:

More Detailed Checklist. For a more detailed checklist for noticed motion procedure, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

[6] Motions for Precedence or Preference

☐ Determine whether any statute authorizes precedence for the type of case involved [see § 425.72].

☐ Determine whether any grounds exist for preference:

☐ Party 70 years of age or older [Code Civ. Proc. § 36(a); see § 425.73[2]].

☐ Party under age 14 in wrongful death or personal injury action [Code Civ. Proc. § 36(b); see § 425.73[3]].

☐ Party terminally ill or injured [Code Civ. Proc. § 36(d); see § 425.73[4]].

☐ Warranted by interests of justice [Code Civ. Proc. § 36(e); see § 425.73[5]].

☐ Victim of crime [Code Civ. Proc. § 37].

☐ Prepare papers:

☐ Notice of motion and supporting declaration [for a form, see § 425.160].

☐ Memorandum of points and authorities.

☐ Proposed order [for a form, see § 425.161].

☐ Proof of service [for a form, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

☐ File and serve motion and supporting papers at least 16 court days before hearing on motion, with extensions depending on manner of service [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(a)(13), (b); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6) (extension that may apply in case of electronic service); for discussion and a Procedural Checklist, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders].

☐ Lodge proposed order with court as required by local rule or practice.

NOTE:

More Detailed Checklist. For a more detailed checklist for noticed motion procedure, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

[7] Motions to Continue, Advance, Reset, or Specially Set

☐ Determine whether circumstances require that the trial date be continued, advanced, reset or specially set [see § 425.76].

☐ File and serve motion, supporting papers, and order.

☐ Prepare papers:

☐ Notice of motion and supporting declaration [for a form, see § 425.162].

☐ Memorandum of points and authorities.

☐ Proposed order [for a form, see § 425.163].

☐ Proof of service [for a form, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

☐ File and serve motion and supporting papers [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1332, 3.1335 (not providing for any specific period of notice)].

☐ Lodge proposed order with court as required by local rule or practice.

☐ Make motion before assigned judge.

NOTE:

More Detailed Checklist. For a more detailed checklist for noticed motion procedure, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

☐ Determine effect of granting of motion on other time limits.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureVenueGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSummary JudgmentBurdens of Production & ProofGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSummary JudgmentMotions for Summary JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSummary JudgmentNoticesCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMandatory ADRCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionMediationsGovernmentsCourtsClerks of CourtGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsGeneral OverviewTortsProcedureDiscovery

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.121

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.121 Defendant's Checklist

[1] Preliminary Considerations

[a] Initial Investigation

☐ Conduct sufficient investigation and research for informed response [see Ch. 26, Answers].

☐ Determine whether jurisdiction [see Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter] and venue [see Ch. 571, Venue] are proper.

☐ File and serve response (e.g., answer, demurrer, motion to quash) [see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

☐ Develop litigation strategy.

- ☐ Consult early with experts.
- ☐ Develop rough litigation budget.
- ☐ Communicate often and openly with client.
- ☐ Develop discovery plan.

[b] Timing

☐ Determine whether precedence or preference [see § 425.70 et seq.], or bifurcation [see § 425.60 et seq.] issues may arise.

☐ Anticipate motion practice.

☐ Identify issues for potential summary disposition [see Ch. 537, Summary Judgment].

☐ Anticipate motions by adverse party.

☐ Evaluate potential for coordination or consolidation.

[c] Alternatives to Trial

☐ See § 425.120[1][c].

[2] Internal Case Management

☐ See § 425.120[2].

[3] [Reserved]

[4] Case Management Conference

☐ See § 425.120[4].

[5] Settlement Conference

☐ See § 425.120[5].

[6] Bifurcation

☐ See § 425.120[6].

[7] Motions for Precedence or Preference

☐ See § 425.120[7].

[8] Motions to Continue, Advance, Reset, or Specially Set

☐ See § 425.120[8].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJurisdictionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureVenueAgentsCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeMotion PracticeTime LimitationsCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticePleadingsCross-ClaimsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureSummary JudgmentMotions for Summary JudgmentGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 425.122-425.129

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 425.122[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART V. FORMS
A. Bringing Cases to Trial

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.130

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.130 Civil Case Cover Sheet [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.220, 3.400-3.403]--Judicial Council Form CM-010

[1] FORM Civil Case Cover Sheet [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.220, 3.400-3.403]--Judicial Council Form CM-010

Click here to view image.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, Cal. Judicial Council Form CM-010 must be filed with the first papers filed in an action or proceeding; and the Judicial Council's civil case cover sheet is required in addition to any cover sheet required by local rule [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.220(a)].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Exception for Small Claims, Probate, and Family Law Cases

The California Rules of Court do not require a civil case cover sheet for cases filed under the Probate Code, Family Code, Welfare and Institutions Code or in small claims court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.220(b)(1)]. Some jurisdictions by local rule do, however, require a civil case cover sheet to be filed in one or more of these types of cases.

[4] Cross References

For further discussion of this Civil Case Cover Sheet, see § 425.11[2][c]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART V. FORMS
A. Bringing Cases to Trial

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.131

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.131 Case Management Conference Statement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.725]--Judicial Council Form CM-110

[1] FORM Case Management Conference Statement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.725]--Judicial Council Form CM-110

Click here to view image.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, Cal. Judicial Council Form CM-110, Case Management Conference Statement, must be used as of January 1, 2005 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.725]. In lieu of each party filing a separate statement, any two or more parties may file a joint statement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.725(b)].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Contents of Statement

All applicable items on the form must be completed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.725(c)]. The form requires a brief statement of the case, including any damages. If personal injury damages are sought, the nature of the injury and damages claimed must be specified along with estimated future medical expenses, lost earnings to date, and estimated future lost earnings. If equitable relief is sought, the statement must describe the nature of that relief [see item 4b of the form].

The statement must also indicate whether counsel has provided the client with the Alternative Dispute Resolution information package and reviewed ADR options with the client [see item 10a of the form; see also Cal. Rules of Ct.,

Rule 3.221 (information about Alternative Dispute Resolution)]. If the parties are willing to participate in any form of ADR, the statement must indicate that agreement [see [1], item 10d, above]. Other matters that must be disclosed include any applicable insurance, any matters that may affect the court's jurisdiction (such as bankruptcy), any intention to file a motion for an order bifurcating, severing, or coordinating any causes of action, the status of discovery, and a statement that the parties have met and conferred as required or an explanation of why they have not, along with a statement of what the parties agree on.

[4] Cross References

For further discussion of the Case Management Conference Statement see § 425.34

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART V. FORMS
A. Bringing Cases to Trial

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.132

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.132 Case Management Conference Order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.728]

[1] FORM Case Management Conference Order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.728]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	CASE MANAGEMENT CONFERENCE ORDER
Defendant.	)
	)
	)

A case management conference in this case was held in Department _____ of this Court on _____ [date]. _____ [Specify name of each attorney appearing and party represented and name of each party appearing in person, e.g.: (Name) appeared as counsel for plaintiff and _____ (name) appeared as counsel for defendant]. This shall constitute the case management order for this action unless superseded or amended.

[SET FORTH nature of case and matters resolved at conference, e.g.:]

1. Nature of Case. This is _____ [an action or a special proceeding] for _____ [set forth concise and descriptive statement of case].

2. Matters Agreed on or Admitted. The following matters have been agreed on or admitted by the parties: _____ [specify, setting forth each matter in a separately lettered subparagraph].

3. Exhibits. The following is a list of exhibits marked in evidence or for identification or as authenticated by consent of the parties: _____ [specify, describing each exhibit in a separately lettered subparagraph].

4. Witnesses. The parties stipulated that _____ [number] persons would be called as witnesses.

5. Disputed Issues and Contentions. The following are the issues remaining in dispute and the factual and legal contentions made by each party with respect to them: _____ [list each disputed issue in a separately lettered subparagraph followed by factual and legal contentions of each party with respect to it].

6. Rulings and Orders. The following rulings and orders were made at the pretrial conference: _____ [specify, setting forth concise and descriptive statement of each ruling or order in a separately lettered subparagraph].

7. No further case management conference or review is required.

[EITHER]

8. Neither plaintiff nor defendant has demanded a jury trial.

[OR]

8. _____ [Identify party, e.g., Defendant _____ (name)] has demanded a jury trial.

[CONTINUE]

9. All parties necessary to the disposition of this case have been served or have appeared.

[10. The following _____ (unserved or not appearing or unserved and not appearing) _____ (fictitious or named or fictitious and named) defendant(s) are to be _____ (dismissed or severed or dismissed and severed) from the action (as follows: _____ [specify]).]

11. The names and addresses of counsel who will try this case are: _____ [name] for plaintiff and _____ [name] for defendant.

[12. This case is set for a settlement conference pursuant to Rule 3.1380 of the California Rules of Court on _____ (date) at _____ (time).]

13. This case is set for trial on _____ (date).

14. The time estimated for trial is _____ days.

[CONTINUE, setting forth any additional matters required by local court rule]

15. Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, outlines the format and content of the case management conference order [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.728]. Local court rule may require additional matters to be contained in the order.

Optional Paragraph 12 should be included if a settlement conference will be held [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1380]. The settlement conference is discussed in § 425.90.

[3] Preparation and Contents of Order

The conference judge is required to enter sign a conference order including, as appropriate, the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.728]:

- Referral of the case to judicial arbitration or some other form of Alternative Dispute Resolution;

- A date for completion of the arbitration process or other form of Alternative Dispute Resolution process if the case has been referred to such a process;

- In the event that a trial date has not previously been set, a date certain for trial if the case is ready to be set for trial;

- Whether the trial will be a jury trial or a nonjury trial;

- The identity of each party demanding a jury trial;

- The estimated length of trial;

- Whether all parties necessary to the disposition of the case have been served or have appeared;

- The dismissal or severance of unserved or not appearing defendants from the action;

- The names and addresses of the attorneys who will try the case;

- The date, time, and place for a mandatory settlement conference [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1380; see also § 425.90[4]];

- The date, time, and place for the final case management conference before trial if such a conference is required by the court or the judge assigned to the case;

- The date, time, and place of any further case management conferences or review; and

- Any additional orders that may be appropriate, including orders on matters considered when the parties met and conferred or at the case management conference.

[4] Cross References

For further discussion of the Case Management Order, see § 425.37

179 of 196 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART V. FORMS
A. Bringing Cases to Trial

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.133

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.133 Stipulation for Amendment, Correction, or Modification of Case Management Conference Order [Code Civ. Proc. § 576] and Order

[1] FORM Stipulation for Amendment, Correction, or Modification of Case Management Conference Order [Code Civ. Proc. § 576] and Order

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	STIPULATION FOR ORDER
Plaintiff,	)	_____ [AMENDING or COR-
vs.	)	RECTING or MODIFYING] CASE MANAGE-
_____ [name],	)	MENT CONFERENCE ORDER
Defendant.	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	Judge: _____
		Date Action Filed: _____
		Trial Date: _____

_____

The parties hereto, by and through their respective counsel, hereby stipulate and agree that the case management conference order dated _____ [date], and served on _____ [date], be _____ [amended or corrected or modified] without further hearing in the following matters:

1. _____ [Set forth each proposed amendment, correction, or modification in a separately numbered paragraph].

_____ [This or These] _____ [amendment(s) or correction(s) or modification(s)] is/are necessary in the furtherance of justice for the following reasons: _____ [specify].
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
By_____ [typed name]
By Attorney for Plaintiff
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant

ORDER

IT IS SO ORDERED.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use when all the attorneys for the parties stipulate to a correction or modification of the case management conference order. A stipulation may be presented at any time before or at the trial when the amendment is sought in furtherance of justice under Code Civ. Proc. § 576. A stipulation at trial is, however, normally made orally. For a form of notice of motion for an order under Code Civ. Proc. § 576 to amend or modify a case management conference order, see § 425.134.

[3] Cross References

For discussion and forms relating to stipulations generally, see Ch. 533, Stipulations

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART V. FORMS
A. Bringing Cases to Trial

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.134

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.134 Notice of Motion and Supporting Declaration to Amend Case Management Conference Order [Code Civ. Proc. § 576]

[1] FORM Notice of Motion and Supporting Declaration to Amend Case Management Conference Order [Code Civ. Proc. § 576]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION FOR OR-Plaintiff,	)	DER AMENDING CASE MANAGEMENT CON-
vs.	)	FERENCE ORDER, SUPPORTING DECLARA-
_____ [name],	)	TION OF _____ [name] AND SUP-
Defendant.	)	PORTING MEMORANDUM
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
		Judge: _____
		Date Action Filed: _____
		Trial Date: _____

_____

To _____ [identify party, e.g., defendant] _____ [name] and to his/her attorney of record:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on _____ [date], at _____ [time], or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in _____ [Department or Room] _____ of this court, located at _____ [street address], _____ [city], _____ [specify party, e.g., plaintiff] will, and hereby does, move the court for an order amending the case management conference order in this case as follows: _____ [specify]. The motion will be brought pursuant to _____ [cite statutory authority here] and will be made on the ground that the requested amendment is necessary in the furtherance of justice.

The motion will be based on this notice of motion, on the declaration(s) of _____ [name(s)] [if applicable, add: _____ (plaintiff's or defendant's) request for judicial notice], and the supporting memorandum served and filed herewith, and on such further and additional evidence as may be presented at the hearing of the motion.
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

SUPPORTING DECLARATION OF _____ [name]

I, _____ [name], declare:

1. I am the _____ [identify declarant, e.g., (attorney of record for) _____ (specify moving party, e.g., plaintiff)] herein and make this declaration in support of _____ [specify party, e.g., plaintiff's] motion for an order _____ [amending or modifying] the case management conference order in this case. I have personal knowledge of the facts set forth herein, and if called to testify, would and could testify competently thereto.

2. _____ [Set forth probative facts within declarant's personal knowledge establishing that granting motion would be in furtherance of justice or would prevent manifest injustice].

3. I hereby request _____ [state the relief requested from the court, i.e., that plaintiff's or defendant's motion for an order _____ (amending or modifying) the case management conference order in this case be granted as follows: _____ (specify)].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____[date]
_____ [signature]

SUPPORTING MEMORANDUM
[Add memorandum supporting motion]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a party to move for an order amending a case management conference order in the furtherance of justice [Code Civ. Proc. § 576]. The motion may be made either before or after the commencement of trial, although a motion made at trial is normally made orally. For a form of stipulation that may be used when the parties agree to the amendment, see § 425.133.

[3] Cross References

For discussion and forms for use in amending pleadings, see Ch. 21, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings

For discussion of notices of motion and motion procedure generally, related forms, and a procedural guide, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders

For manners of serving notices of motion and a form of proof of service by mail, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers

For discussion and forms of affidavits and declarations generally, see Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART V. FORMS
A. Bringing Cases to Trial

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.135

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.135 Order to Amend Case Management Conference Order [Code Civ. Proc. § 576]

[1] FORM Order to Amend Case Management Conference Order [Code Civ. Proc. § 576]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	ORDER
Defendant.	)
	)
	)

The motion of _____ [identify party, e.g., plaintiff] for an order amending the case management conference order in this case came on regularly for hearing by the court on _____ [date]. Plaintiff appeared by counsel _____ [name]; defendant appeared by counsel _____ [name].

The matter having been argued and submitted, and it appearing to the satisfaction of the court that the amendment is necessary in the furtherance of justice,

IT IS ORDERED that the motion be and is granted and that the case management conference order herein be and is amended as follows: _____ [specify].
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use when a motion for an order amending a case management conference order pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 576 is granted. The form may also be used, with appropriate modifications, if the motion is denied, although orders denying motions are often in the form of a minute order only. Unless the court otherwise orders, notice of the court's order granting or denying the motion must be given by the prevailing party to all other parties or their attorneys, unless notice is waived by all parties in open court and entered in the minutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 1019.5(a)].

[3] Cross References

For discussion and a form of notice of the court's decision or order, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders

For the notice of motion related to this order, see § 425.134

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART V. FORMS
A. Bringing Cases to Trial

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 425.136-425.139

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 425.136[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART V. FORMS
B. Trial Setting

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.140

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.140 Notice of Time Set for Trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 594(b)]

[1] FORM Notice of Time Set for Trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 594(b)]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	NOTICE OF TIME SET FOR TRIAL
Defendant.	)
	)
	)

_____

To _____ [identify party, e.g., plaintiff] _____ [name] and to his/her attorney of record:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that this action has been set for trial on _____ [date] at _____ [time] in [_____ (Department or Division) _____ of] this court, located at _____ [street address], _____ [city].
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Attorney for_____ [party's status and name]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [a], above, is for use by a party to an action to give the other party notice of the trial date [see Code Civ. Proc. § 594; and Ch. 551, Trial, § 551.20 et seq.]. Many courts provide their own form of notice of trial, and if provided, the local form should be used.

[3] Cross References

For discussion of trial setting, see § 425.50

For points and authorities in support of motion for new trial when defendant's nonappearance resulted from failure to receive notice of trial, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 70, Defaults, Default Judgments, and Relief From Judgments and Orders

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART V. FORMS
B. Trial Setting

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 425.141-425.149

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 425.141[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART V. FORMS
C. Bifurcation

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.150

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.150 Notice of Motion and Declaraton for Separate Trial of Issue or Part of Issue Before Trial of Other Issues or Part of Issue in Case [Code Civ. Proc. § 598]

[1] FORM Notice of Motion and Declaraton for Separate Trial of Issue or Part of Issue Before Trial of Other Issues or Part of Issue in Case [Code Civ. Proc. § 598]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION FOR ORDER GRANTING PRIOR SEPARATE TRIAL OF ISSUE OF _____ [specify, e.g., LIABILITY], SUPPORTING DECLARATION OF _____ [name], AND SUPPORTING MEMORANDUM
vs.	)
_____ [name],	)
Defendant.	)
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	Judge: _____
	)	Date Action Filed: _____
	)	[Trial Date: _____]

_____

To _____ [identify party, e.g., Plaintiff] _____ [name] and to his/her attorney of record:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on _____ [date] at _____ [time], or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in [_____ (Department or Division) _____ of] this court, located at _____ [street address], _____ [city], _____ [specify party, e.g., Defendant] will, and hereby does, move for an order that the issue of _____ [specify, e.g., liability] be tried before the issue of _____ [specify, e.g., damages] in this case. The motion will be brought pursuant to _____ [cite statutory authority here] and will be made on the ground that the _____ [convenience of the witnesses or the ends of justice or the economy and efficiency of handling the litigation or any combination of these] will be promoted thereby.

The motion will be based on this notice of motion, on the declaration(s) of _____ [name(s)], [if applicable, add: _____ (plaintiff's or defendant's) request for judicial notice] and the supporting memorandum served and filed herewith, on the records and file herein, and on such further and additional evidence as may be presented at the hearing of the motion.
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for_____ [party's status and name]

SUPPORTING DECLARATION OF _____ [name]

I, _____ [name], declare:

1. I am _____ [identify declarant, e.g., an attorney at law duly admitted to practice before all the courts of the State of California and the attorney of record herein for _____ (moving party) or other statement as appropriate]. I have personal knowledge of the facts set forth herein, and if called to testify, would and could testify competently thereto.

[SET FORTH, in successively numbered paragraphs, facts within declarant's personal knowledge establishing that granting the motion would promote the convenience of witnesses, the ends of justice, or the economy and efficiency of handling the litigation, or any combination of these, e.g.:]

2. Plaintiff's complaint prays judgment against defendant in the sum of $ _____ for _____ [specify, e.g., personal injuries therein alleged to have been sustained by plaintiff as the proximate result of defendant's negligence].

3. Defendant has filed an answer in which he/she has _____ [specify, e.g., denied he/she was negligent, denied his/her alleged negligence was the proximate cause of plaintiff's alleged injuries, alleged plaintiff was negligent and that such negligence was the proximate cause of plaintiff's injuries, and denied that plaintiff's alleged injuries are of the nature and extent alleged in the complaint].

4. _____ [Plaintiff or Defendant] has demanded a jury trial.

5. The cause is now at issue and ready for _____ [pretrial conference or trial], and _____ [e.g., two] major issues of fact remain to be tried as follows: _____ [specify, e.g., (a) whether defendant is liable for plaintiff's alleged injuries, and (b) if defendant is liable, the amount of damages recoverable by plaintiff].

6. The _____ [specify ground of motion, e.g., convenience of the witnesses] will be promoted by trying the issue of _____ [e.g., liability] before the issue of _____ [e.g., damages] for these reasons:

[SPECIFY, e.g.]

a. I estimate the trial of this action will take approximately _____ days.

b. I estimate trial of the issue of _____ [e.g., liability] will take approximately _____ days.

c. I estimate trial of the issue of _____ [e.g., damages] will take approximately _____ days.

d. I know of no witnesses who are competent to testify as to _____ [specify, e.g., defendant's alleged negligence or plaintiff's negligence] who are also competent to testify as to _____ [specify, e.g., the nature or extent of plaintiff's alleged injuries].

e. I anticipate that _____ [number] witnesses will be called to testify as to the issue of _____ [specify, e.g., the nature and extent of plaintiff's alleged injuries], none of whom is competent to testify as to _____ [specify, e.g., defendant's alleged negligence or plaintiff's negligence].

f. I know of no special defense herein that is entitled to be tried pursuant to [Code of Civil Procedure Section 597 or Code of Civil Procedure Section 597.5] before trial of the issue of _____ [e.g., liability] herein.

[CONTINUE]

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

SUPPORTING MEMORANDUM

[Add memorandum supporting motion]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a party to move the court for an order under Code Civ. Proc. § 598 that issues, an issue, or part of an issue in the case be tried before the other issues, issue, or part of an issue in the case. For discussion of bifurcation under Section 598, see § 425.60 et seq.

[3] Service and Filing

The notice of motion and its supporting papers must be served and filed and the hearing held in time to enable the court to co mply with the requirement that the order granting the motion be made no later than the close of the pretrial conference in cases in which a pretrial conference is held or 30 days before the trial date in other cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 598].

The court, on its own motion, as opposed to a motion of a party, may at any time make an order that the trial of an issue or part of an issue precede the trial of any other issue or part of an issue in the case [Code Civ. Proc. § 598].

[4] Cross References

For discussion and format requirements of notices of motion, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders

For discussion and forms for use in moving for separate trial of an affirmative defense not going to the merits of the action, see Ch. 3, Abatement of Actions, § 3.110 et seq., and Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions

LexisNexis®

186 of 196 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART V. FORMS
C. Bifurcation

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.151

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.151 Order Granting Motion for Separate Trial of Issue or Part of Issue Before Trial of Other Issues or Part of Issue in Case

[1] FORM Order Granting Motion for Separate Trial of Issue or Part of Issue Before Trial of Other Issues or Part of Issue in Case

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	ORDER
Defendant.	)
	)
	)

The motion of _____ [identify party, e.g., defendant] for an order requiring trial of the issue of _____ [specify, e.g., liability] before trial of the issue of _____ [specify, e.g. damages] in this case came on regularly for hearing by the court on _____ [date]. Plaintiff appeared by counsel _____ [name]; defendant appeared by counsel _____ [name].

On proof made to the satisfaction of the court that the _____ [convenience of the witnesses or ends of justice or economy and efficiency of handling the litigation or any combination of these] will be promoted thereby and that the motion ought to be granted,

IT IS ORDERED that the motion be, and it is hereby, granted and that the issue of _____ [e.g., liability] shall be tried separately [_____ (by the Court or before a duly impaneled and sworn jury)] before trial of the issue of _____ [e.g., damages] in this case.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use when the motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 598 for separate trial of an issue or part of an issue before trial of any other issue or part of an issue in the case is granted. For additional discussion of bifurcation, see § 425.60 et seq.

[3] Notice of Order

When a motion is granted or denied, unless the court otherwise orders, notice of the court's decision or order must be given by the prevailing party to all other parties or their attorneys, unless notice is waived by all parties in open court and the waiver is entered in the minutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 1019.5(a)].

[4] Cross References

For a form of notice motion and declaration initiating the proceedings for this order, see § 425.150

For discussion and format requirements of notices of motion, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders

For discussion and forms for use in moving for separate trial of an affirmative defense not going to the merits of the action, see Ch. 3, Abatement of Actions, § 3.110 et seq., and Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions

For discussion and a form of notice of the court's decision or order, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART V. FORMS
C. Bifurcation

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.152

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.152 Order Setting Remaining Issues or Part of Issue for Trial After Separate Trial of Issue or Part of Issue

[1] FORM Order Setting Remaining Issues or Part of Issue for Trial After Separate Trial of Issue or Part of Issue

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	ORDER
Defendant.	)
	)
	)

Pursuant to an order of this Court entered on _____ [date], the issue of _____ [e.g., liability] in this cause came on regularly for trial before _____ [this court or a jury] on _____ [date]. Plaintiff appeared by counsel _____ [name]; defendant appeared by counsel _____ [name]. _____ [The Court, having rendered its decision, or A jury of _____ (number) persons, duly impaneled and sworn to try the issue, having returned a verdict] _____ [specify, e.g., finding defendant liable on the cause of action alleged in the complaint],

IT IS ORDERED that _____ [the issue of _____ (e.g., damages) or all other issues] in this case be and is/are set for trial on _____ [date] at _____ [time], before [_____ (the Court or the same jury that tried the issue of _____ (e.g., liability) or a new jury of _____ (number) persons to be impaneled and sworn at that time)].

Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use when the court on its own motion sets for trial the issues, issue, or part of an issue remaining after the prior separate trial of an issue or part of an issue pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 598 that did not result in a final disposition of the action. For discussion of giving notice of the order see Code Civ. Proc. § 1019.5(a).

[3] Proceedings After Separate Trial

If the issue of liability as to all causes of action is tried before other issues and the court's decision or jury's verdict is in favor of any party on whom liability is sought to be imposed, judgment in that party's favor is entered [Code Civ. Proc. § 598].

If the court's decision or jury's verdict on the liability issue is against any party on whom liability is sought to be imposed or if the decision or verdict on the issue or part of an issue so tried does not result in a judgment being ordered, then the trial of the other issues or parts of issues will be had at a time ordered by the court. If it is a jury trial, the case may proceed before the same or another jury, as ordered by the court. The order may be made by the court on its own motion or on the motion of any party. The subsequent judgment is entered in the same manner and with the same effect as if all the issues in the case had been tried at one time [Code Civ. Proc. § 598].

[4] Cross References

For a form of notice motion and declaration initiating the proceedings for this order, see § 425.151

188 of 196 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART V. FORMS
C. Bifurcation

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 425.153-425.159

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 425.153[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART V. FORMS
D. Motions for Precedence or Preference and Motions to Continue, Advance, Reset, or Specially Set

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.160

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.160 Notice of Motion and Supporting Declaration to Establish Precedence or Preference of Case for Case Management Conference or Trial [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.723, 3.1335]

[1] FORM Notice of Motion and Supporting Declaration to Establish Precedence or Preference of Case for Case Management Conference or Trial [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.723, 3.1335]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION FOR OR-
vs.	)	DER _____ [ESTABLISHING
_____ [name],	)	PRECEDENCE or GRANTING PREFERENCE]
Defendant.	)	AND SETTING CASE FOR _____ )	[CASE MANAGEMENT CONFERENCE or TRI-)	AL], SUPPORTING DECLARATION OF
	)	_____ [name], AND SUPPORTING )	MEMORANDUM
		Date: _____
		Time: _____
		Location: _____
		Judge: _____
		Date Action Filed: _____
		Trial Date: _____

_____

To _____ [identify party, e.g., defendant] _____ [name] and to his/her attorney of record:

[EITHER, if seeking preference based on Code Civ. Proc. § 36(a)]

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on _____ [date], at _____ [time], or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in [_____ (Department or Division) _____ of] this court, located at _____ [street address], _____ [city], California, _____ [specify party, e.g., plaintiff] will, and hereby does, move the court for an order granting this case a preference and setting it for _____ [a case management conference or trial] at the earliest possible date. The motion will be brought pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 36(a) and will be made on the ground(s) that _____ [identify party, e.g., plaintiff] is _____ [70 or specify number more than 70] years of age.

[OR, if seeking preference based on Code Civ. Proc. § 36(b)]

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on _____ [date], at _____ [time], or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in [_____ (Department or Division) _____ of] this court, located at _____ [street address], _____ [city], California, _____ [specify party, e.g., plaintiff] will move the court for an order granting this case a preference and setting it for _____ [a case management conference or trial] at the earliest possible date. The motion will be brought pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 36(b) and will be made on the ground(s) that this is an action to recover damages for _____ [wrongful death or personal injury] and _____ [identify moving party, e.g., plaintiff] is _____ [specify number under 14] years of age.

OR, if seeking preference based on Code Civ. Proc. § 36(d)]

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on _____ [date], at _____ [time], or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in [_____ (Department or Division) _____ of] this court, located at _____ [street address], _____ [city], California, _____ [specify party, e.g., plaintiff] will move the court for an order granting this case a preference and setting it for _____ [a case management conference or trial] at the earliest possible date. The motion will be brought pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 36(d) and will be made on the ground(s) that _____ [identify party, e.g., plaintiff] _____ suffers from an _____ [illness or condition] raising substantial medical doubt that he/she will survive beyond six months from now and the interests of justice will be served by the granting of the preference.

[OR, if seeking preference based on Code Civ. Proc. § 36(e)]

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on _____ [date], at _____ [time], or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in [_____ (Department or Division) _____ of] this court, located at _____ [street address], _____ [city], California, _____ [specify party, e.g., plaintiff] will move the court for an order granting this case a preference and setting it for _____ [a case management conference or trial] at the earliest possible date. The motion will be brought pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 36(e) and will be made on the ground(s) that the interests of justice will be served by the granting of the preference.

[OR, if seeking preference based on Code Civ. Proc. § 37]

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on _____ [date], at _____ [time], or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in [_____ (Department or Division) _____ of] this court, located at _____ [street address], _____ [city], California, _____ [specify party, e.g., plaintiff] will move the court for an order granting this case a preference and setting it for _____ [a case management conference or trial] at the earliest possible date. The motion will be brought pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 37 and will be made on the ground(s) that this is an action in which plaintiff is seeking damages for personal injuries caused by defendant during the commission of a felony offense for which defendant has been criminally convicted.

[OR, if seeking precedence under Code Civ. Proc. § 1062.3(b) for action that seeks both declaratory and other relief]

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on _____ [date], at _____ [time], or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in [_____ (Department or Division) _____ of] this court, located at _____ [street address], _____ [city], California, _____ [specify party, e.g., plaintiff] will move the court for an order establishing that this case has precedence and setting it for _____ [a case management conference or trial] at the earliest possible date. The motion will be brought pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1062.3(b) and will be made on the ground(s) that this case is an action for declaratory relief and, although judicial relief in addition to declaratory relief is sought, the action requires a speedy trial.

[OR, to establish other statutory precedence]

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on _____ [date], at _____ [time], or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in [_____ (Department or Division) _____ of] this court, located at _____ [street address], _____ [city], California, _____ [specify party, e.g., plaintiff] will move the court for an order establishing that this case has precedence and setting it for _____ [a case management conference or trial] at the earliest possible date. The motion will be brought pursuant to _____ [cite statutory authority, e.g.,] and will be made on the ground(s) that this case is _____ [an action or a proceeding] _____ [specify, e.g., by a taxpayer to enjoin a public improvement project] and is entitled to precedence in setting for trial pursuant to _____ [specify code section, e.g., Code of Civil Procedure Section 526a].

[CONTINUE]

The motion will be based on this notice of motion, on the declaration(s) of _____ [name(s)] [if applicable, add: _____ (plaintiff's or defendant's) request for judicial notice], and the supporting memorandum served and filed herewith, and on such further and additional evidence as may be presented at the hearing of the motion.
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]

Attorney for_____ [party's status and name]

SUPPORTING DECLARATION OF _____ [name]

I, _____ [name], declare:

1. I am the _____ [identify declarant, e.g., (the attorney of record for) _____ (identify moving party, e.g., plaintiff)] herein and make this declaration in support of _____ [identify party, e.g., plaintiff's] motion for an order that this case _____ [is entitled to precedence or be granted preference] and setting it for _____ [a case management conference or trial]. I have personal knowledge of the facts set forth herein, and if called to testify, would and could testify competently thereto.

[EITHER, if seeking preference based on Code Civ. Proc. § 36(a)]

2. As shown by the certified copy of the birth certificate attached as Exhibit A and made a part hereof, _____ [identify party, e.g., plaintiff _____ (name)] was born on _____ [date] and is _____ [70 or more] years of age.

3. _____ [Identify party, e.g., Plaintiff _____ (name)] has a substantial interest in the case in that _____ [specify].

4. In addition to advanced age, [I am informed and believe and thereon allege that] _____ [identify party, e.g., plaintiff _____ (name)] suffers _____ [describe state of health that requires preference to prevent prejudicing party's interest in the litigation].

[OR, if seeking preference based on Code Civ. Proc. § 36(b)]

2. As shown by the complaint herein, this is an action to recover damages for _____ [wrongful death or personal injury], and, in addition, as shown by the certified copy of the birth certificate attached as Exhibit A and made a part hereof, _____ [identify party, e.g., plaintiff] was born on _____ [date] and is _____ [specify number under 14] years of age.

3. _____ [Identify party, e.g., Plaintiff _____ (name)] has a substantial interest in the case in that _____ [specify].

[OR, if seeking preference based on Code Civ. Proc. § 37]

2. As shown by the complaint herein, this is an action in which plaintiff is seeking to recover damages sustained on _____ [date] as a result of _____ [specify, e.g., being shot by defendant while he/she was in the course of committing an armed robbery].

3. As shown by the Clerk's Certificate attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof, defendant was convicted of the felony of _____ [specify] on _____ [date], in the Superior Court of the State of California, County of _____, in the case of People vs. _____ [name], number _____. The court is hereby requested to take judicial notice of this criminal conviction.

[OR, if seeking precedence under Code Civ. Proc. § 1062.3(b) for action that seeks both declaratory and other relief]

2. As shown by the complaint herein, this is an action for declaratory relief in which plaintiff(s) also seeks/seek _____ [specify additional relief sought]. A speedy trial of this action is required for the following reason(s): _____ [set forth probative facts within declarant's personal knowledge].

[OR, in other cases]

2. _____ [Set forth facts establishing ground for granting motion].

[CONTINUE]

3. I hereby request _____ [state the relief requested from the court, e.g., that the trial date be advanced or a preference to be granted for this action].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

SUPPORTING MEMORANDUM

[Add memorandum supporting motion]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a party to move for an order that the case is entitled to precedence or a preference in setting it for trial. The form may also be used to move for an order that the case is entitled to precedence or a preference in setting a case management conference.

In certain cases in which a preference is sought, a motion is expressly required by statute [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 36 (party who is elderly, critically ill, etc.), Code Civ. Proc. § 1062.3(b) (declaratory relief with additional relief sought), discussed in [c], below]. In other cases, no motion is necessary, although counsel may wish to seek an order establishing the preference if the right to preference has to be established by evidence outside the court's records. For further discussion, see § 425.70 et seq.

[3] Supporting Declaration

A supporting declaration would not normally be required when the ground of the motion is that the case is entitled to statutory precedence. The nature of the action would be established by the allegations of the complaint, and the fact that the case is entitled to statutory precedence would be established by the supporting points and authorities. An exception exists when the action is for declaratory relief. Although a declaratory relief action is normally entitled to precedence under Code Civ. Proc. § 1062.3(a), if plaintiff seeks any relief in addition to a declaration of rights and duties, the case will take precedence only on noticed motion and a showing that the action requires a speedy trial [see Code Civ. Proc. §

1062.3(b)].

On the other hand, if the motion is based, for example, on the age or poor physical condition of a party, the ground would not appear from the court's records and would have to be established by extrinsic evidence set forth in a supporting declaration [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 36(a), (b), (d), 36.5].

The showing should be made by a supporting affidavit [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2009] or declaration under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5], as in the form in [1], above.

[4] Declaration for Preference Based on Party's Age

An affidavit submitted in support of a motion for preference under Code. Civ. Proc. § 36(a) (party over 70 years of age) may be signed by the attorney for the party seeking preference based on information and belief as to the medical diagnosis and prognosis of any party. The affidavit is not admissible for any purpose other than a motion for preference under Code. Civ. Proc. § 36(a) [Code. Civ. Proc. § 36.5].

[5] Cross References

For a discussion of precedence in pretrial proceedings, see §§ 425.73 -425.75

For memoranda of points and authorities relating to this form, see California Points and Authorities , Ch. 180, Pretrial Proceedings, §§ 180.50 -180.81

190 of 196 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART V. FORMS
D. Motions for Precedence or Preference and Motions to Continue, Advance, Reset, or Specially Set

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.161

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.161 Order Establishing Precedence or Preference of Case for Case Management Conference or Trial [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.723, 3.1335]

[1] FORM Order Establishing Precedence or Preference of Case for Case Management Conference or Trial [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.723, 3.1335]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	ORDER
Defendant.	)
	)
	)

The motion of _____ [identify party, e.g., plaintiff] for an order _____ [establishing that this case is entitled to precedence or granting this case a preference] and setting it for _____ [a case management conference or trial] came on regularly for hearing by the court on _____ [date]. Plaintiff appeared by counsel _____ [name]; defendant appeared by counsel _____ [name].

[EITHER, without findings]

On proof made to the satisfaction of the court that the motion ought to be granted,

[OR, with findings (see Code Civ. Proc. § 36(a))]

The Court, having considered the _____ [affidavit(s) or declaration(s)] and other documents in support of and in opposition to the motion, having heard the arguments of counsel, and being fully advised in the matter, finds as follows:

[SET OUT specific findings in as many paragraphs as appropriate, e.g.:]

1. _____ (Identify party, e.g., Plaintiff) has a substantial interest in this action as a whole; and

2. _____'s (Identify party, e.g., Plaintiff's) health is such that a preference is necessary to prevent prejudicing his/her interest in this litigation.

Therefore,

[CONTINUE]

IT IS ORDERED that the motion be and is granted and that this case is _____ [entitled to precedence or granted a preference] in setting.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the case be and is set for _____ [a case management conference or trial] on _____ [date], at _____ [time], in [_____ (Department or Division) _____ of] this court located at _____ [street address], _____ [city], California.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use when a motion for an order establishing the precedence of a case or granting it a preference in setting and setting it for a case management conference or trial is granted [for a form of notice of motion and discussion of grounds, see § 425.160].

In the case of a motion to grant a preference based on the age of a party, the court must grant the motion if it makes all of the following findings [Code Civ. Proc. § 36(a)]:

- The party has a substantial interest in the action as a whole; and

- The party's health is such that a preference is necessary to prevent prejudicing the party's interest in the litigation.

[3] Cross References

For a form of notice motion and declaration initiating the proceedings for this order, see § 425.160

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART V. FORMS
D. Motions for Precedence or Preference and Motions to Continue, Advance, Reset, or Specially Set

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.162

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.162 Notice of Motion and Supporting Declaration to Advance, Reset, or Specially Set Case for Case Management Conference or Trial [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.723, 3.1335]

[1] FORM Notice of Motion and Supporting Declaration to Advance, Reset, or Specially Set Case for Case Management Conference or Trial [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.723, 3.1335]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION FOR OR-
vs.	)	DER _____ [ADVANCING or RE-
_____ [name],	)	SETTING or SPECIALLY SETTING] CASE FOR Defendant.	)	_____ [CASE MANAGEMENT
	)	CONFERENCE or TRIAL], SUPPORTING DE-)	CLARATION OF _____ [name],
	)	AND SUPPORTING MEMORANDUM
	)	Date: _____
		Time: _____
		Location: _____
		Judge: _____
		Date Action Filed: _____
		Trial Date: _____

_____

To _____ [identify party, e.g., defendant] _____ [name] and to his/her attorney of record:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on _____ [date] at _____ [time], or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in [_____ (Department or Division) _____ of] this court, located at _____ [street address], _____ [city], _____ [specify party, e.g., plaintiff] will, and hereby does, move the court for an order _____ [advancing or resetting or specially setting] this case for _____ [a case management conference or trial] _____ [from _____ (date) at _____ (time) to _____ (date) at _____ (time) or on _____ (date) at _____ (time)]. The motion will be made on the ground that _____ [specify, e.g., this case is entitled to precedence in setting pursuant to _____ (specify code section) or this case must be brought to trial on or before _____ (date) to avoid mandatory dismissal under the provisions of Sections 583.310 and 583.360 of the Code of Civil Procedure].

The motion will be based on this notice of motion, on the [declaration(s) of _____ (name(s)) and] supporting memorandum served and filed herewith, on the records and file herein, and on such further and additional evidence as may be presented at the hearing of the motion.
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

SUPPORTING DECLARATION OF _____ [name]

I, _____ [name], declare:

1. I am the _____ [identify declarant, e.g., attorney of record for _____ (specify moving party, e.g., plaintiff)] herein and make this declaration in support of _____ [specify party, e.g., plaintiff's] motion to _____ [advance or reset or specially set] this case for _____ [a trial setting conference or trial]. I have personal knowledge of the facts set forth herein, and if called to testify, would and could testify competently thereto.

2. This is an action for _____ [briefly describe the action in two or three sentences, including the parties, the basic facts and the issues pertinent to the motion].

3. It is necessary that this case be _____ [advanced or reset or specially set] because _____ [specify probative facts within declarant's personal knowledge].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

SUPPORTING MEMORANDUM

[Add memorandum of points and authorities supporting motion]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a party to a case to move for an order advancing, resetting, or specially setting the case for trial. The form may also be used to move for an order advancing, resetting, or specially setting a trial setting conference [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1335].

Technically, a case would be (1) advanced when a date has already been set; (2) reset when it has been dropped from the calendar; and (3) specially set when no date has been set. These terms, however, are not always precisely used.

[3] Supporting Declaration

A declaration must be used in support of a motion to advance, reset, or specially set a case for trial [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1335].

Extrinsic evidence would not normally be required when the ground of the motion is that the case is entitled to statutory precedence. The nature of the action would be established by the allegations of the complaint; the fact the case is entitled to statutory precedence would be established by the supporting points and authorities.

On the other hand, if the motion is based, for example, on the age or poor physical condition of a party, the ground would not appear from the court's records and would have to be established by extrinsic evidence set forth in a supporting declaration [see Code Civ. Proc. § 36(a), (b), (d)].

If the motion is required to avoid mandatory dismissal for delay in prosecution [see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.360], the supporting declaration will need to show facts explaining why the case was not brought to trial at an earlier date. The factors to be developed are the same as on a motion for discretionary dismissal for failure to prosecute [see Howard v. Thrifty Drug & Discount Stores (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 424, 441, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362, 895 P.2d 469 ; for discussion, see § 425.73].

[4] Motions to Advance, Reset, or Specially Set

A motion to advance, reset, or specially set a case for trial in the superior court, unless the case has been assigned for all purposes to a specific judge or department, in which case the motion must be made before the assigned judge or in the assigned department [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1335]. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1335 requires notice to all other parties [Mesler v. Bragg Management Co. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 983, 991, 268 Cal. Rptr. 522] .

An ex parte application under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1200 et seq. may also be brought [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1335].

[5] Cross References

For discussion of advancing, resetting, or specially setting a case for trial, see §§ 425.76, 425.77

For memoranda relating to this form, see California Points and Authorities , Ch. 180, Pretrial Proceedings, §§ 180.50 -180.81

192 of 196 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART V. FORMS
D. Motions for Precedence or Preference and Motions to Continue, Advance, Reset, or Specially Set

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.163

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.163 Order to Advance, Reset, or Specially Set Case for Case Management Conference or Trial [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.723, 3.1335]

[1] FORM Order to Advance, Reset, or Specially Set Case for Case Management Conference or Trial [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.723, 3.1335]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	ORDER
Defendant.	)
	)
	)

The motion of _____ [identify party, e.g., plaintiff]] for an order _____ [advancing or resetting or specially setting] this case for _____ [a case management conference or trial] came on regularly for hearing by the court on _____ [date] in Department _____ of this Court. Plaintiff appeared by counsel _____ [name]; defendant appeared by counsel _____ [name].

On proof made to the satisfaction of the court that the motion ought to be granted,

IT IS ORDERED that the motion be and is hereby granted and the _____ [trial setting conference or trial] is _____ [advanced or reset or set] _____ [from _____ (date) at _____ (time) to _____ (date) at _____ (time) or on _____ (date) at _____ (time)].

Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use when a motion for an order advancing, resetting, or setting the date for a case management conference or trial is granted. The form may also, with appropriate modifications, be used if the motion is denied, although orders denying motions are normally in the form of a minute order only.

[3] Cross References

For a form of notice motion and declaration initiating the proceedings for this order, see § 425.162

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART V. FORMS
D. Motions for Precedence or Preference and Motions to Continue, Advance, Reset, or Specially Set

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 425.164-425.169

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

[Reserved]

§§ 425.164[Reserved]

194 of 196 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART V. FORMS
E. Settlement

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.170

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.170 Joint Request to Have Case Placed on Settlement Conference Calendar [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1380(a)]

[1] FORM Joint Request to Have Case Placed on Settlement Conference Calendar [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1380(a)]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	JOINT REQUEST TO HAVE CASE PLACED ON Defendant.	)	SETTLEMENT CONFERENCE CALENDAR
	)
	)

Plaintiff and defendant jointly request that this case be placed on the court's settlement conference calendar. The case is set for trial on _____ [date] at _____ [time] [in Department _____ of the above-entitled court].

[The following date and time are open on the settlement calendar and are convenient to counsel for each party and the persons who will attend: _____ (date) at _____ (time) in (Department _____ of) the above-entitled court.]

Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for_____ [party, e.g., Plaintiff]
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for_____ [party, e.g., Defendant]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by the parties to jointly request that a case be placed on the settlement conference calendar [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1380(a)].

Counsel should consult the rules and policies of the court in which the case is pending to ascertain any local requirements that may be imposed on the format or content of the request. Some courts provide their own preprinted forms and if this is done the local form must be used.

[3] When Settlement Conference Is Mandatory

On the court's own motion or at the request of any party, the court may set one or more mandatory settlement conferences [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1380(a)].

[4] Cross References

For discussion of settlement conference procedure, see § 425.90

For discussion of offers to compromise, in general, see Ch. 520, Settlement and Release

195 of 196 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART V. FORMS
E. Settlement

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.171

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.171 Settlement Conference Statement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1380(c)]

[1] FORM Settlement Conference Statement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1380(c)]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	SETTLEMENT CONFERENCE STATEMENT
Defendant.	)
	)
	)

_____ [Plaintiff or Cross Complainant] _____ [name] represents:

1. Nature of case. This is an action for _____ [specify, e.g., damages for personal injuries and property damage sustained by _____ (party, plaintiff) in an automobile accident].

2. Facts. The material facts of the case are as follows: _____ [set forth concise statement of material facts].

3. Parties. The parties and their capacities in this action are as follows: _____ [specify].

4. Agreed or Admitted Matters. The parties agree or admit that the following matters are true: _____ [ specify, including matters admitted by pleadings, answers to interrogatories, or requests for admission].

5. Contentions. The factual and legal contentions in dispute are as follows: _____ [concisely state, identifying first the party making the contention(s), then the contention(s), and lastly the party disputing the contention(s)].

6. Legal Propositions and Authorities. _____ [Specify each legal proposition important to resolution of the case and cite appropriate authority that supports it].

[ADD, if statement is filed by party claiming damages]

7. Damages. [As of this date,] _____ [identify party, e.g., plaintiff _____ (name)] [has] sustained damages in the total amount of $ _____. These damages consist of special and general damages as follows: _____ [itemize special damages by category and then general damages].

8. Punitive Damages. The amount claimed as punitive damages is $_____.]

9. Settlement Demand. _____ [Identify party, e.g., Plaintiff _____ (name)] demands the sum of $ _____ to settle this case without trial.

10. Settlement Offers in Place. _____ [Identify party, e.g., Plaintiff _____ (name)] has received [no settlement offers or the following settlement offers: _____ (specify)].

[OR, if statement is filed by defendant]

7. Settlement Offer. _____ [Identify party, e.g., Defendant _____ (name)] offers the sum of $_____ to settle this case without trial.
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, illustrates the kinds of matters that must or may be included in the settlement conference statement. For the purpose of illustration, the form combines the requirements imposed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1380(c) and the additional requirements imposed by the Los Angeles County Superior Court for statements filed in that court [see Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.9(e)]. If the court in which the action is pending provides a printed form of settlement conference statement for use by the parties, the form must be used.

Each party must, no later than five days before the date set for the initial settlement conference, submit to the court and serve on each party a settlement conference statement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1380(c)].

[3] Contents of Statement

The statement must contain a good faith settlement demand and an itemization of economic and non-economic damages by each plaintiff and a good faith offer of settlement by each defendant. In addition the statement must set forth and discuss in detail all facts and law pertinent to the issues of liability and damages as to that party and comply with any additional requirement imposed by local rule [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1380(c)]. The Los Angeles County Superior Court, for example, requires that the statement identify all parties and their capacities in the action and contain the following [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.9(b)(5)]:

- A concise statement of the material facts of the case.
- A concise statement of the factual and legal contentions in dispute.
- Citations of authorities which support legal propositions important to resolution of the case.
- If the statement is filed by a party claiming damages, a list of all special damages, as well as a statement of any amounts claimed as general and punitive damages and the total amount claimed as damages.

In a personal injury action, the special damages must be listed. The list must include all such expenses incurred to the time of the settlement conference. The statements must also include the general status of the case including offers for settlement in place [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 7.9(e)].

[4] Cross References

For discussion of a settlement conference statement, see § 425.91

For discussion of offers to compromise, in general, see Ch. 520, Settlement and Release

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 425 PRETRIAL PROCEEDINGS
PART V. FORMS
E. Settlement

37-425 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 425.172

AUTHOR: Evelio M. Grillo Editorial Consultant

§ 425.172 Notice of Settlement of Entire Case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1385]--Judicial Council Form CM-200

[1] FORM Notice of Settlement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1385]--Judicial Council Form CM-200

Click here to view image.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, Cal. Judicial Council Form CM-200, Notice of Settlement of Entire Case, has been adopted by the California Judicial Council as a mandatory form [Cal. Rules Ct, Rule 1.31] and is to be used to provide the court, all parties and any arbitrator or other court-connected ADR neutral with notice of settlement or other disposition of an entire case as required under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1385. When a case is settled each plaintiff or other party seeking affirmative relief must immediately file written notice with the court and serve the notice on all parties and any arbitrator or other court-connected ADR neutral [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1385(a)]. Complete all applicable items on the form.

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Form s, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Cross References

For discussion of the duty to provide notice of a settlement, see § 425.93[3]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 426 [RESERVED]

37-426 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated Chapter 426

[RESERVED]

Chapter 426[RESERVED]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated 427.syn

§ 427.syn Synopsis to Chapter 427: PRINCIPAL AND AGENT

§ 427.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 427.02 Cross References

§§ 427.03through 427.09 [Reserved]

§ 427.10 Governing Law

§ 427.11 Definitions

[1] Agent and Agency

[2] Special and General Agents

[3] Actual Agency

[4] Ostensible Agency

§ 427.12 Nature of Agency Relationship

[1] Primary Characteristics

[2] Ability to Alter Principal's Legal Relationships

[3] Agent Acts as Fiduciary

[4] Principal's Right to Control Agent

§ 427.13 Other Relationships Compared

[1] Employment

[2] Independent Contractor

§ 427.14 Creation of Agency Relationship

[1] In General

[2] Manner of Creation

[3] Factual Examples

[4] Actual Agency

[5] Ostensible Agency

§ 427.15 Equal Dignities Rule

[1] Generally

[2] Exceptions

[3] Lack of Writing Not Defense to Action by Agent

[4] Estoppel to Assert Rule

§ 427.16 Authority of Agents

[1] In General

[2] Actual

[3] Ostensible

[4] Statutory and Implied

[5] Specific Types of Agencies

[6] Delegation to Subagent

[a] Powers Delegable

[b] Authorized Delegation

[c] Effect of Unauthorized Delegation

[d] Determining Effectiveness of Delegation

[7] Limitations on Authority

§ 427.17 Third Party's Duty of Inquiry

§ 427.18 Ratification

[1] Generally

[2] Acts Constituting

[3] Knowledge of Principal

[4] Effect of Partial Ratification

[5] Principal's Power to Authorize

[6] Consent of Third Parties

[7] Rescission of Ratification

§ 427.19 Agent's Knowledge Imputed to Principal

[1] Generally

[2] Rule Designed to Protect Third Parties

[3] Facts Must Relate to Subject of Agency

[4] Acquired During Course of Agency

[5] Reasonable Time for Communication Allowed

[6] Communication When Agent Acting Adversely to Principal

§ 427.20 Termination of Agency Relationship

[1] Generally

[2] Expiration of Term

[3] Extinction of Subject of Agency

[4] By Actions of Parties

[a] In General

[b] Revocation by Principal

[c] Contractual Limitations on Right to Terminate

[5] Incapacity of Agent

[6] Death of Principal

[7] Incapacity of Principal to Contract

[8] Agency Coupled With Interest

§ 427.21 Liability of Principal to Agent

[1] Compensation

[2] Wrongful Termination and Interference

§ 427.22 Liability of Principal to Third Party

[1] Authorized Acts of Agent

[2] Acts Under Ostensible Authority

[3] Unauthorized Acts of Agent

[4] Incomplete Execution of Authority

[5] Torts of Agents

[a] Liability of Principal for Acts of Employee Agents Under Respondeat Superior

[b] Liability of Principal for Acts of Nonemployee Agent Based on Right to Control

[c] Limitations on Tort Liability of Principal for Acts of Nonemployee Agent

[d] Misrepresentation and Other Fraudulent Acts

[6] Exemplary Damages

§ 427.23 Liability of Agent to Principal

[1] Breach of Fiduciary Duty

[2] Accounting

[3] Negligence

[4] Breach of Contract

§ 427.24 Liability of Agent to Third Party

[1] Breach of Warranty of Authority

[2] Wrongful Delivery of Third Party's Property

[3] As Principal

[4] For Principal's Fraud

§ 427.25 Rights of Indemnity Between Principal and Agent

§ 427.26 Undisclosed Agency

[1] Liability of Undisclosed Principal

[2] Third Party's Election Against Parties Liable

[a] When Required

[b] Defendant's Demand

[c] Timing of Plaintiff's Election

[3] Action Against Agent

[4] Rights of Principal

§ 427.27 Valid Power of Attorney

[1] Basic Requirements

[2] Requirements for Springing Power of Attorney

[3] Durable Power of Attorney

[a] Requirements

[b] Use of Commercial Printed Form

[4] Use of Statutory Form

[5] Compliance With Other Law

[6] Passage of Time

[a] Effect Generally

[b] Application of Power to After-Acquired Property

[c] Printed Form or Statutory Form Power of Attorney Under Former Law

§ 427.28 Modification or Revocation of Power of Attorney

[1] Minimum Sufficient Acts

[2] Authorization for Fiduciary to Act

[3] Subsequent Execution of Power of Attorney

[4] Power to Execute Instruments Affecting Real Property

§ 427.29 Cessation of Authority of Attorney in Fact

[1] Terminating Event

[2] Dissolution or Annulment of Marriage

[3] Revocation

§ 427.30 Resignation of Attorney in Fact

§ 427.31 Succession of Attorney in Fact

§ 427.32 Duties of Attorney in Fact

[1] Duty to Exercise Authority

[2] Duty to Use Special Skills

[3] Duty of Care Respecting Principal's Property

[4] Duty to Keep Principal's Property Separate

[5] Duty to Act in Principal's Interest

[6] Duty to Communicate With Principal and Follow Instructions

[7] Duty to Keep Records and Render Accounting

[8] Duty to Disclose Records

[9] Duty to Deliver Property and Records on Termination

§ 427.33 Authority of Attorney in Fact

[1] Effect of Grant

[2] Grant of General Authority

[3] Grant of Limited Authority

[4] Incorporation by Reference to Statute

§ 427.34 Duty to Honor Power of Attorney (Except Powers of Attorney for Health Care [Advance Health Care Directives])

[1] Scope and Limits of Duty

[2] Right to Impose Conditions

[3] Right to Refuse for Cause

[4] Financial Institution

[a] Right to Refuse

[b] Right to Continue Dealing With Attorney in Fact

[5] Acts Not Authorized

[a] Statutory Prohibitions

[b] Construction of Power of Attorney

[6] Probate Court

§ 427.35 Duty of Third Person to Disclose Information

[1] Confidential Information Generally

§ 427.36 Immunity From Liability

[1] Limitations in Power of Attorney

[2] Unqualified Attorney in Fact

[3] Springing Power of Attorney

[4] Modified or Revoked Power of Attorney

[5] Revoked or Terminated Authority of Attorney in Fact

[6] Termination of Authority by Principal's Incapacity

[7] Two or More Attorneys in Fact or Powers of Attorney

[8] Successor Attorney in Fact

[9] Uncompensated Attorney in Fact

[10] Principal's Special Status

[a] Missing in Military or Civilian Government Service

[b] Medi-Cal Patient Admitted to Nursing Facility

[11] Third Person

[a] Reliance on Power of Attorney

[b] Death of Principal

[c] Incapacity of Principal

[d] Reliance on Attorney's Affidavit

[e] Failure to Demand Affidavit

[f] Failure to Demand Certified Copy

[g] Imputation of Employee's Knowledge to Employer

§ 427.37 Probate Code Proceedings

[1] Policy Against Judicial Intervention

[2] Procedural Rules

[3] Grounds for Petitions

[4] Standing to File Petition

[5] Dismissal of Petition

[6] Appeal From Final Order

§ 427.38 Liability for Attorney's Fees

[1] Attorney in Fact

[2] Third Person

[a] Groundless Action Against Attorney in Fact

[b] Refusal to Accept Affidavit

[c] Refusal to Honor Statutory Form Power of Attorney

§ 427.39 Other Specific Agencies

[1] Auctioneers

[2] Factors

[a] Defined

[b] Duties and Authority

[c] Personal Liability

[3] Health Care Decisions Law

[a] Purpose and Scope

[b] Advance Health Care Directives

[c] Duties, Immunities, and Liabilities

[d] Limited Judicial Proceedings

§§ 427.40-427.59 [Reserved]

§ 427.60 California Points and Authorities

§ 427.61 State Statutes

[1] Authority of Agents

[2] Creation of Agency

[3] Definitions

[4] Delegation of Agency

[5] Duties of Agent to Principal

[6] Liability of Principal and Agent to Third Parties

[7] Ratification

[8] Termination of Agency

[9] Other Specific Agencies

[10] Powers of Attorney

[a] In General

[a] Attorneys in Fact

[b] Statutory Form Power of Attorney

[c] Power of Attorney for Health Care /Advance Health Care Directive

[d] Judicial Proceedings

[e] Medi-Cal Patients

[f] Missing Military and Civilian Personnel

[g] Special Power of Attorney Under Multiple-Party Accounts Law

§ 427.62 Decisions

[1] Agent's Knowledge Imputed to Principal

[2] Authority of Agent

[a] Actual

[b] Implied

[c] Limitations

[d] Ostensible

[e] Third Party's Duty of Inquiry

[3] Creation of Agency Relationship

[4] Delegation of Agent's Authority

[5] Equal Dignities Rule

[6] Liability of Principal

[a] To Agent

[b] To Third Party

[7] Liability of Agent

[a] To Principal

[b] To Third Party

[8] Nature of Principal and Agent Relationship

[9] Other Relationships Distinguished

[10] Power of Attorney

[11] Ratification

[12] Termination of Agency

[13] Undisclosed Agency

§ 427.63 Law Reviews

§ 427.64 Text References

§ 427.80 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3300]--Breach of Agency Contract--By Discharged Agent Against Principal

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Jurisdiction

[5] Venue

[6] Damages

[7] Interest

[8] Verification

[9] Cross References

[10] Statutes

[11] Decisions

§ 427.81 Allegations--Principal's Breach of Exclusive Sales Contract--Action by Agent Against Principal

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Decisions

[5] Cross Reference

§ 427.82 Complaint for Money (Common Count)--For Compensation--By Agent Against Principal

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Decisions

[5] Cross Reference

§ 427.83 Complaint for Indemnity--Agent Held Liable on Contract Executed for Principal--By Agent Against Principal

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] State Statutes

[5] Decisions

[6] Cross Reference

§ 427.84 Complaint for Declaratory Relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]--Agency Not Terminable by Principal Because Coupled With Interest--By Agent Against Principal

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Jurisdiction

[5] Cross References

[6] State Statutes

[7] Decisions

§§ 427.85-427.99 [Reserved]

§ 427.100 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] and Secret Profits--Agent's Breach of Fiduciary Duty--By Principal Against Agent

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Jurisdiction

[5] Cross References

[6] State Statutes

[7] Decisions

§ 427.101 Complaint for Accounting From Agent--By Principal Against Agent

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] State Statutes

[5] Decisions

[6] Cross Reference

§ 427.102 Complaint for Implied Equitable Indemnity--Principal's Payment of Third Party's Judgment Against Principal for Agent's Tort--By Principal Against Agent

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Decisions

§ 427.103 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3300]--Breach of Agency Agreement--By Principal Against Agent

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] State Statutes

[5] Decisions

[6] Cross Reference

§§ 427.104through 427.119 [Reserved]

§ 427.120 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3318]--Agent's Breach of Warranty of Authority [Civ. Code § 2342]--By Third Party Against Agent

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Jurisdiction

[5] State Statutes

[6] Decisions

[7] Cross Reference

§ 427.121 Allegations--Agent Liable to Third Party as Principal for Damages for Breach of Contract [Civ. Code § 3300] or for Tort [Civ. Code § 3333]--Action by Third Party Against Agent

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] State Statutes

[5] Decisions

§ 427.122 Allegation--Imputing Liability for Torts of Agent to Principal [Civ. Code §§ 2338, 2339]--Action by Third Party

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Cross References

[5] State Statutes

[6] Decisions

§ 427.123 Allegation--Punitive Damages [Civ. Code § 3294]--Principal Liable for Acts of Agent--Action By Third Party Against Principal

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] State Statutes

[5] Decisions

§ 427.124 Allegation--Principal Liable for Agent's Acts Under Ostensible Agency [Civ. Code § 2300] or Ostensible Authority [Civ. Code §§ 2317, 2334]--Action by Third Party Who Dealt With Agent

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Judicial Council Trial Forms

[4] Allegations

[5] State Statutes

[6] Decisions

§ 427.125 Allegation--Principal and/or Agent Liable for Agent's Acts Under Actual Authority [Civ. Code § 2316]--Action by Third Party Who Dealt with Agent

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] State Statutes

[5] Decisions

§ 427.126 Allegation--Undisclosed Principal Liable for Transaction Entered Into by Agent--Action by Third Party Who Dealt With Agent Without Knowledge of Agency Relationship

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] State Statutes

[5] Decisions

§ 427.127 Allegation--Knowledge of or Notice to Agent Imputed to Principal [Civ. Code § 2332]--Action by Third Party Against Principal and/or Agent

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] State Statutes

[5] Decisions

§§ 427.128through 427.139 [Reserved]

§ 427.140 Petition for Determination of Whether Power of Attorney Is in Effect [Prob. Code § 4541(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Jurisdiction

[5] Venue

[6] Ground for Petition

[7] Standing to File Petition

[8] Nonlimitable Right to Petition

[9] Elimination of Right to Petition

[10] Signature and Verification

[11] Procedure

[a] Governing Rules

[b] Service of Petition and Notice of Hearing

[c] Dismissal of Petition

[d] Right to Jury Trial

[e] Appeal

[12] Cross References

[13] State Statutes

§ 427.141 Petition for Determination of Whether Act of Attorney in Fact Is Proper [Prob. Code §§ 4541(b), 4766(c), 4770]--By Attorney in Fact

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Ground for Petition

[4] Nonlimitable Right to Petition

[5] Temporary Order Prescribing Health Care

[6] Appeal

[7] State Statutes

[8] Cross Reference

§ 427.142 Petition for Determination of Whether Attorney's Act Is Proper [Prob. Code §§ 4766(c), 4942(b)]--By Person Other Than Attorney in Fact

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Attorney in Fact Subject to Personal Jurisdiction

[4] Attorney's Fees

[5] Appeal

[6] State Statutes

[7] Cross Reference

§ 427.143 Petition for Order Compelling Attorney in Fact to Submit Accounting or Report [Prob. Code §§ 4541(c)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Ground for Petition

[4] Duty of Attorney in Fact to Submit Accounting or Report

[5] Nonlimitable Right to Petition

[6] Attorney's Fees

[7] Order Not Appealable

[8] State Statutes

[9] Cross Reference

§ 427.144 Petition for Order That Durable Power of Attorney Is Revoked or Terminated [Prob. Code §§ 4541(d), 4766(d)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Ground for Petition

[4] Nonlimitable Right to Petition

[5] Appeal

[6] Cross Reference

§ 427.145 Petition for Approval of Resignation by Attorney in Fact (Except Power of Attorney for Health Care [Advance Health Care Directive]) [Prob. Code §§ 4941(e)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Ground for Petition

[4] Nonlimitable Right to Petition

[5] Duty to Honor Commitments

[6] Appeal

[7] State Statutes

[8] Cross Reference

§ 427.146 Petition for Order Compelling Third Person to Honor Power of Attorney or Advance Health Care Directive [Prob. Code §§ 4541(f), 4766(e)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Ground for Petition

[a] Powers of Attorney Generally

[b] Statutory Form Power of Attorney

[c] Power of Attorney for Health Care or Advance Health Care Directive

[4] Nonlimitable Right to Petition

[5] Essential Allegation

[a] Principal's Rights Against Third Person

[b] Principal as Depositor or Borrower at Financial Institution

[6] Attorney's Fees

[a] Respondent's Refusal to Accept Affidavit

[b] Respondent's Refusal to Honor Statutory Form Power of Attorney

[7] Notice of Time and Place of Hearing

[8] Appeal

[9] Cross Reference

§ 427.147 Affirmative Defense--Previous Breach of Agreement by Attorney in Fact [Prob. Code § 4309]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Ground for Defense

[4] Cross Reference

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART I. SCOPE

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.01

§ 427.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter covers actions by and against a principal or an agent involving issues related to the agency relationship and issues related to powers of attorney.

Topics discussed in the introduction include the nature of the relationship between a principal and an agent, the means of creating and terminating the relationship, the methods of conferring authority on an agent, and how a principal may limit an agent's authority.

The discussion includes the legal consequences when a third party who deals with an agent has incomplete knowledge of limitations on the agent's authority; the legal consequences of an agent's acts that are undertaken without disclosure to third parties of the fact that the agent is acting as an agent; and the rights and liabilities of principals, agents, and third parties that arise from dealings among them.

The introduction also provides an overview of the law governing powers of attorney, including powers of attorney for health care, also known as "advance health care directives." The introduction concludes with a brief discussion of the duties of specific types of agents such as auctioneers and factors.

Forms provided for use in actions by an agent against a principal are:

- Complaints for compensation and damages resulting from breach of the agency contract [see §§ 427.80 -427.82].

- A complaint for implied contractual indemnity [see § 427.83].

- A complaint for a declaratory judgment that the agency is not terminable, on the ground that it is coupled with an interest [see § 427.84].

Forms for use in actions by a principal against an agent are:

- A complaint for damages and secret profits arising from the agent's breach of fiduciary duty [see § 427.100].

- A complaint seeking an accounting by the agent [see § 427.101].

- A complaint for implied equitable indemnity because of the principal's liability for the agent's wrongful acts [see § 427.102].

- A complaint for damages resulting from the agent's breach of the agency agreement [see § 427.103].

Forms for use in actions by third persons against a principal or an agent are:

- A complaint for damages for breach of an agent's warranty of authority [see § 427.120].

- Allegations for holding an agent liable as a principal [see § 427.121].

- An allegation for use in imputing liability for the torts of an agent to the principal [see § 427.122].

- Allegations for holding a principal liable for punitive damages for the acts of an agent [see § 427.123].

- Allegations for establishing an ostensible agency and ostensible and actual authority of an agent [see Forms 34, 35].

- Allegations for establishing an agency relationship between an agent who contracted in the agent's own name and an undisclosed principal [see § 427.126].

- Allegations for imputing the knowledge of an agent to the principal [see § 427.127].

Forms provided for use in Probate Code proceedings concerning powers of attorney are also provided, including:

- A petition to obtain a determination of whether a power of attorney is in effect [see § 427.140].

- A petition for a determination of whether the acts of the attorney in fact are proper [see §§ 427.141 and 427.142].

- An order compelling the attorney in fact to submit an accounting or a report [see § 427.143].

- A peitition for a determination and order that a power of attorney is revoked or terminated [see § 427.144].

- A petition for approval of the resignation of the attorney in fact [see § 427.145].

- An order compelling a third person to honor a power of attorney other than one for health care [see § 427.146].

- An affirmative defense for use by the respondent to the petition for an order compelling a third person to honor a power of attorney [see § 427.147].

For discussion and forms relating to principals and agents in other contexts, see the following chapters: Ch. 7, Accounting, Action for; Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used; Ch. 77, Auctions and Auctioneers; Ch. 103, Brokers; Ch. 253, Escrows; Ch. 308, Insurance; Ch. 248, Employer's Liability for Employee's Torts; and Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActActual AuthorityGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActActual AuthorityImplied AuthorityGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActApparent AuthorityGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsCauses of Action & RemediesGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsCauses of Action & RemediesBreach of ContractBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsCauses of Action & RemediesCompensatory DamagesBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesIndemnityBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesKnowledge & NoticeGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesKnowledge & NoticeAgent KnowledgeBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesNegligent Acts of AgentsGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesNegligent Acts of AgentsLiability of PrincipalsBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsTerminationsGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsTypesGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsTypesEmployee & Employer

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART I. SCOPE

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.02

§ 427.02 Cross References

For discussion and forms relating to accounting actions, see Ch. 7, Accounting, Action for.

For discussion and forms relating to actions for vicarious liability involving automobiles, see Ch. 82, Automobiles: Causes of Action, § 82.16.

For discussion and forms relating to real estate brokers, see Ch. 103, Brokers .

For discussion and forms relating to common counts, see Ch. 121, Common Counts .

For discussion and forms relating to the interpretation of agreements, see Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.30 et seq.

For discussion and forms relating to damages, see Ch. 177, Damages, §§ 177.40 et seq., 177.140 et seq.

For discussion and forms relating to actions involving employers and employees, see Ch. 248, Employer's Liability for Employee's Torts ; Ch. 249, Employment Law: Termination and Discipline ; and Ch. 250, Employment Law: Wage and Hour Disputes .

For discussion and forms relating to the duties and liabilities of escrow holders, see Ch. 253, Escrows .

For discussion and forms relating to indemnity, see Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution .

For discussion and forms relating to insurance agents, see Ch. 308, Insurance, § 308.10 et seq.

For discussion and forms relating to actions involving public entities and officers, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Insurance LawIndustry RegulationInsurance Company OperationsRepresentativesBrokersLabor & Employment LawEmployer LiabilityThird Party InsurersReal Property LawBrokersDiscipline, Licensing & RegulationTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART I. SCOPE

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 427.03through 427.09

[Reserved]

§§ 427.03[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.10

§ 427.10 Governing Law

Agency in general is governed by Civil Code provisions defining agency [see Civ. Code § 2295 et seq.]; prescribing the authority of agents [see Civ. Code § 2304 et seq.], principals' obligations to third parties dealing with agents [see Civ. Code § 2330 et seq.], and agents' obligations to third parties [see Civ. Code § 2342 et seq.]; and governing delegation of agents' duties [see Civ. Code § 2349 et seq.] and termination of an agency [see Civ. Code § 2355 et seq.]. Additional provisions governing the duties of agents are in Civ. Code § 2019 et seq. Particular provisions govern the agency relationships of auctioneers [see Civ. Code § 2362 et seq.], factors [see Civ. Code §§ 2026 et seq., 2367 et seq.], and agents in residential real property transactions [see Civ. Code § 2079.12 et seq.].

Powers of attorney are governed by the Power of Attorney Law [see Prob. Code § 4000 et seq.], the Health Care Decisions Law [see Prob. Code § 4600 et seq.], and, with respect to judicial proceedings, the general procedural provisions in Prob. Code § 1000 et seq. [Prob. Code §§ 4505, 4750 (judicial proceedings under Power of Attorney Law and Health Care Decisions Law, respectively); see Civ. Code § 2400]. The Power of Attorney Law applies to applicable powers of attorney regardless of when it was executed [Prob. Code § 4054(a)]; however, a power of attorney may limit the application of any provision of the Power of Attorney Law [Prob. Code § 4101(a)], except certain provisions [Prob. Code § 4101(b)]. To the extent that the Power of Attorney Law does not provide a governing rule in a particular case, the general law of agency [see Civ. Code §§ 2019 et seq., 2295 et seq.] governs powers of attorney [Prob. Code § 4051]. The Power of Attorney Law applies to durable powers of attorney, other than powers of attorney for health care [see § 427.34], statutory form powers of attorney [see § 427.27[4]], and any other power of attorney that incorporates or refers to the Power of Attorney Law [Prob. Code § 4050(a)]. It does not apply to a power of attorney to the extent that the authority of an attorney in fact is coupled with an interest in the subject of the power of attorney; to reciprocal or interinsurance exchanges and their contracts, subscribers, attorneys in fact, agents, and representatives; or to a proxy given by an attorney in fact to another person to exercise voting rights [Prob. Code § 4050(b)]. The Power of Attorney Law is not intended to affect the validity of any instrument or arrangement that is not statutorily described as subject to it [see Prob. Code § 4050(c)].

The Multiple-Party Accounts Law [see Prob. Code § 5100 et seq.] authorizes a special power of attorney for accounts at financial institutions [see Prob. Code § 5204]. For discussion of that law, see Ch. 95, Banks, Deposits, and Checks, § 95.180 et seq.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesCare, Good Faith & Reasonable SkillDuty of Care & Reasonable SkillReal Property LawOwnership & TransferPowers of Attorney

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.11

§ 427.11 Definitions

[1] Agent and Agency

An agent is one who represents another, called the principal, in dealings with third persons. The representation is called agency [Civ. Code § 2295; Shultz Steel Co. v. Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 513, 518, 231 Cal. Rptr. 715] . An agent undertakes to transact some business or manage some affair for another, by authority of and on account of the latter, and to render an account of the transactions [Woolley v. Embassy Suites, Inc. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 1520, 1531, 278 Cal. Rptr. 719] .

[2] Special and General Agents

An agent for a particular act or transaction is a special agent, and all other agents are general agents [Civ. Code § 2297].

[3] Actual Agency

An agency is actual when the agent is really employed by the principal [Civ. Code § 2299].

[4] Ostensible Agency

An agency is ostensible when the principal intentionally, or by want of ordinary care, causes a third person to believe that another is the principal's agent, who is not really employed by the principal [Civ. Code § 2300].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAgents DistinguishedGeneral AgentsBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAgents DistinguishedSpecial AgentsBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActActual AuthorityGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActApparent AuthorityGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsEstablishmentEstoppel, Ostensible Agency

& NecessityGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsEstablishmentEstoppel, Ostensible Agency & NecessityOstensible Agency

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.12

§ 427.12 Nature of Agency Relationship

[1] Primary Characteristics

Three primary characteristics define an agency relationship [Alvarez v. Felker Mfg. Co. (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 987, 999, 41 Cal. Rptr. 514 ; see Woolley v. Embassy Suites, Inc. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 1520, 1531, 278 Cal. Rptr. 719] :

- First, an agent has the power to alter legal relationships between the principal and third persons, and between the principal and the agent.

- Second, the agent occupies the position of a fiduciary with respect to matters within the scope of the agency.

- Third, the principal has the right to control the agent's conduct regarding matters entrusted to the agent.

[2] Ability to Alter Principal's Legal Relationships

An agent may alter the principal's legal relationships in a number of ways, some of which are obvious. For example, an agent acting within the scope of authority may enter into a contract that will be binding on the principal and so create legal obligations that the principal must fulfill [see Lippert v. Bailey (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 376, 382, 50 Cal. Rptr. 478 ; see also CPI Builders, Inc. v. Impco Technologies, Inc. (2002) 94 Cal. App. 4th 1167, 1174, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 851 (offer of binding arbitration communicated by offeror's attorney acting within scope of authority to offeree's attorney resulted in formation of contract, despite failure of offeror's attorney to communicate revocation of offer before acceptance)].

A principal may be liable in tort for wrongful acts committed by an agent [see Spahn v. Guild Industries Corp. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 143, 155-157, 156 Cal. Rptr. 375] , as an employer may be liable for wrongful acts by an employee, but with this difference: an agent acts in the principal's place, whereas an employee may only act for the employer [Wallace v. Sinclair (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 220, 230, 250 P.2d 154 ; see discussion under § 427.13].

[3] Agent Acts as Fiduciary

The second distinguishing feature of an agency is the fact that the agent acts as the fiduciary of his or her principal [Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 979-980, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903 (employer that negotiates group medical benefits for its employees acts as agent for employees during period of negotiation); Fischer v. Machado (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1069, 1072, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 213 ; Michelson v. Hamada (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1566, 1579, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 343 ; Pollack v. Lytle (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 931, 940, 175 Cal. Rptr. 81] . A fiduciary duty exists as to all agents, regardless of the form of compensation, whether certain, contingent, or gratuitous [Byron Culver & Associates v. Jaoudi Industrial & Trading Corp. (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 300, 304, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 680 ; Zalk v. General Exploration Co. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 786, 793, 164 Cal. Rptr. 647] . An agent is prohibited from doing any act forbidden to trustees by Prob. Code §§ 16002, 16004, 16005, 16009 (obligations of trustees with respect to trusts in general) [Civ. Code § 2322(c)]. This provision has imposed on agents the duty to act as a fiduciary with the same obligations of diligence and faithful service as a trustee [Pollack v. Lytle (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 931, 940, 175 Cal. Rptr. 81] . Other duties of agents as fiduciaries include the duty not to act on behalf of any person whose interests are adverse to, or in competition with, those of the principal [Zalk v. General Exploration Co. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 786, 793, 164 Cal. Rptr. 647 ; Rezos v. Zahm & Nagel Co. (1926) 78 Cal. App. 728, 731, 246 P. 564] . In addition, the agent must make the fullest disclosure of all material facts that might affect the principal's decision making [Byron Culver & Associates v. Jaoudi Industrial & Trading Corp. (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 300, 304, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 680 ; Pollack v. Lytle (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 931, 940, 175 Cal. Rptr. 81] . If a principal questions his or her agent's acts, the burden of proof is on the agent to show the utmost good faith and disclosure of all facts relating to the questioned transaction[Batson v. Strehlow (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 662, 675, 68 Cal. Rptr. 589, 441 P.2d 101] .

An agent also has a duty of confidentiality to the principal. The agent may not use or communicate confidential information received from the principal or acquired during the course of, or on account of, the agency in violation of his or her duties as agent, in competition with or to the injury of the principal, on the agent's own account, or on behalf of another, even though the information does not relate to the transaction in which the agent is employed [Church of Scientology v. Armstrong (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1060, 1072, 283 Cal. Rptr. 917] .

[4] Principal's Right to Control Agent

The third important factor in determining whether or not an agency exists is the principal's right to control and supervise the work of the agent. The principal must possess the right to control and supervise the agent, although this right need not actually be exercised. The mere existence of the right is sufficient for the finding of an agency [Malloy v. Fong (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 356, 370, 232 P.2d 241 ; Woolley v. Embassy Suites, Inc. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 1520, 1531, 278 Cal. Rptr. 719 ; Stevens v. Roman Catholic Bishop of Fresno (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 877, 884, 123 Cal. Rptr. 171] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAgents DistinguishedFiduciary RelationshipsFiduciary ResponsibilitiesBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAgents DistinguishedFiduciary RelationshipsFormationBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActContracts & ConveyancesGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesAuthorized Acts of AgentsGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesAuthorized Acts of AgentsLiability of PrincipalBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesAuthorized Acts of AgentsScope of AuthorityBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesCare, Good Faith & Reasonable SkillGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesCare, Good Faith & Reasonable SkillDuty of Care & Reasonable SkillBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesCare, Good Faith & Reasonable SkillDuty of Loyalty, Good Faith & Fair DealingBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsEstablishmentElementsRight to Control by Principal

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.13

§ 427.13 Other Relationships Compared

[1] Employment

Agency may encompass the employment relationship so that an employee may also be an agent of the employer [Estate of Levinthal (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 691, 699, 164 Cal. Rptr. 628] . However, agency and employment are distinct relationships. One may be an employee but not the agent of the employer with regard to a given transaction [Wallace v. Sinclair (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 220, 230, 250 P.2d 154] . Similarly, an agency relationship that gives rise to liability of the principal for acts of the agent can exist even if the agent would not be considered as an employee of the principal under the Labor Code or other employment law [see, e.g., Gudger v. Manton (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 537, 547-550, 134 P.2d 217 (California attorney may be agent of New York attorney for purposes of collecting judgment; disapproved on other grounds in Albertson v. Raboff (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 375, 381, 295 P.2d 405); Garton v. Title Ins. & Trust Co. (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 365, 376, 165 Cal. Rptr. 449 (employee of real estate broker may be agent of title company with regard to preparation of escrow documents); Clark Equipment Co. v. Wheat (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 503, 523-524, 154 Cal. Rptr. 874 (attorney may be agent of client); Gipson v. Davis Realty Co. (1963) 215 Cal App. 2d 190, 204-207, 30 Cal. Rptr. 253 (real estate salesperson is agent of broker regardless of characterization of relationship under employment law); Clark v. Andrews (1952) 109 Cal App. 2d 193, 199, (collection agency is agent of creditor)]. One may also be the employee of one and the agent of another with regard to a particular transaction [Garton v. Title Ins. & Trust Co. (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 365, 376, 165 Cal. Rptr. 449] .

An agent works not only for, but in the place of, the principal [see Civ. Code § 2330]. Agency involves representative character and derivative authority, elements that need not be present in an employer-employee relationship. It may involve the conduct of a single transaction with a third person, whereas employment is an ongoing relationship. An agent is entitled to exercise a degree of discretion in effecting the purpose of the principal. An employee remains entirely under the control and direction of the employer [Gipson v. Davis Realty Co. (1963) 215 Cal App. 2d 190, 205-206, 30 Cal. Rptr. 253] .

[2] Independent Contractor

The interrelationship between agents and independent contractors is the subject of considerable confusion in California. The concept of an independent contractor arises in employment law. One cannot be both an employee and an independent contractor with regard to the same person [City of Los Angeles v. Meyers Bros. Parking System, Inc. (1975) 54 Cal. App. 3d 135, 138, 126 Cal. Rptr. 545] . The determination that one is an independent contractor signifies that the person is not to be treated as an employee under the Labor Code or other applicable employment law [see Grubb & Ellis Co. v. Spengler (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 890, 192 Cal. Rptr. 637 (noting applicability of distinction in workers' compensation, Labor Commission jurisdiction, unemployment insurance, federal employment taxes, and minimum wage cases)]. For purposes of vicarious liability, the general rule (subject to many exceptions) is that one who hires an independent contractor is not liable for the acts or omissions of the contractor [Schmidlin v. Alta Planing Mill Co. (1915) 170 Cal. 589, 591, 150 P. 983 ; Anderson v. Chancellor Western Oil Dev. Corp. (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 235, 239, 125 Cal. Rptr. 640] . In contrast, an employer is liable for all acts and omissions of an employee done within the scope of the employment relationship (respondeat superior) [Perez v. Van Groningen & Sons, Inc. (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 962, 967, 227 Cal. Rptr. 106, 719 P.2d 676 ; Rodgers v. Kemper Constr. Co. (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 608, 617-618, 124 Cal. Rptr. 143] . For discussion of when one is acting within the scope of employment, see Ch. 248, Employer's Liability for Employee's Torts .

California courts have often applied the employment law standards used to determine whether or not one is an independent contractor to agency law [see, e.g., Flores v. Brown (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 622, 628-629, 248 P.2d 922 ; Malloy v. Fong (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 356, 370-372, 232 P.2d 241 ; Cislaw v. Southland Corp. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1284, 1288-1296, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 386 ; Wickham v. Southland Corp. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 49, 54-59, 213 Cal. Rptr. 825 ; see also CACI No. 3704 (California Judicial Council jury instruction on whether employment relationship exists)]. The primarystandard is the extent of the right of the hirer or employer to control the manner and means of accomplishing the result desired [Dorsic v. Kurtin (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 226, 238-239, 96 Cal. Rptr. 528 ; see Restatement (Second) of Agency, § 220; see also Ch. 248, Employer's Liability for Employee's Torts , for further discussion of the standards that determine whether one is an employee or independent contractor].

Under these cases, if one has sufficient control over the activities of another, an agency relationship is established, even if the parties would not be considered employer-employee under the Labor Code or other employment law [see Malloy v. Fong (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 356, 370-372, 232 P.2d 241 ; Dorsic v. Kurtin (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 226, 238, 96 Cal. Rptr. 528 ; Housewright v. Pacific Far East Line, Inc. (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 259, 265-267, 40 Cal. Rptr. 208 ; Shoopman v. Pacific Greyhound Lines (1959) 169 Cal App. 2d 848, 853-856, 338 P.2d 3 ; Lewis v. Constitution Life Co. (1950) 96 Cal App. 2d 191, 193-196, 215 P.2d 55] . Conversely, if the purported principal does not have sufficient control over the activities of the purported agent, there is no agency relationship and therefore no vicarious liability [see Flores v. Brown (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 622, 628-629, 248 P.2d 922 ; Cislaw v. Southland Corp. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1284, 1288-1296, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 386 ; Weiss v. Chevron, U.S.A., Inc. (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1094, 1100, 251 Cal. Rptr. 727 ; Wickham v. Southland Corp. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 49, 54-59, 213 Cal. Rptr. 825 ; Rogers v. Whitson (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 662, 671-673, 39 Cal. Rptr. 849] . These cases often then label the parties depending on the determination of the control issue. The courts describe the relationship as one of principal-agent if there is sufficient control or as hirer-independent contractor if there is not, and conclude that agents and independent contractors are mutually exclusive categories [see Malloy v. Fong (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 356, 370-372, 232 P.2d 241 ; Cislaw v. Southland Corp. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1284, 1288-1296, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 386 ; Wickham v. Southland Corp. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 49, 54-59, 213 Cal. Rptr. 825 ; Dorsic v. Kurtin (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 226, 238, 96 Cal. Rptr. 528 ; Housewright v. Pacific Far East Line, Inc. (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 259, 265-267, 40 Cal. Rptr. 208 ; Rogers v. Whitson (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 662, 671-673, 39 Cal. Rptr. 849 ; Shoopman v. Pacific Greyhound Lines (1959) 169 Cal App. 2d 848, 853-856, 338 P.2d 3 ; Lewis v. Constitution Life Co. (1950) 96 Cal App. 2d 191, 193-196, 215 P.2d 55] .

This treating of agents and independent contractors as mutually exclusive is contrary to generally accepted principles of agency law [APSB Bancorp v. Thorton Grant (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 926, 930, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 736 ; see Restatement (Second) of Agency §§ 2(3), 14N (independent contractor may or may not also be agent)]. In other cases that consider whether an agency relationship exists between persons who are not employees of the principal under the Labor Code or other employment law, courts have noted that one may be both an agent and an independent contractor [

Mottola v. R. L. Kautz & Co. (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 98, 108,244 Cal. Rptr. 737 ; City of Los Angeles v. Meyers Bros. Parking System, Inc. (1975) 54 Cal. App. 3d 135, 138, 126 Cal. Rptr. 545 ; Automatic Canteen Co. v. State Board of Equalization (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 372, 385, 47 Cal. Rptr. 848 ; see Restatement (Second) of Agency §§ 1, 2, 14N]. One case has framed the issue as whether there should be a departure from the general rule of nonliability for the acts of an independent contractor based on the existence of a right to control [Weiss v. Chevron, U.S.A., Inc. (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1094, 1100, 251 Cal. Rptr. 727] .

Whether or not these nonemployee agents are labeled as independent contractors is arguably beside the point. The important point is that the existence of sufficient control over the manner and means of accomplishing a desired result creates an agency relationship that results in liability of the principal for the torts of the agent, limited only by the requirement that there be some connection between the agent's tortious act and the principal-agent relationship [Malloy v. Fong (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 356, 370-372, 232 P.2d 241 ; Cislaw v. Southland Corp. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1284, 1288-1296, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 386 ; Dorsic v. Kurtin (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 226, 238, 96 Cal. Rptr. 528 ; see §§ 427.22[5][b], [c]].

Some courts have also taken this approach to vicarious tort liability in analyzing the potential liability of a franchisor for the torts of its franchisee [see Cislaw v. Southland Corp. (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1284, 1288-1296, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 386 (and cases cited therein)].For example, the fact that a franchisor received a royalty based on a franchisee's gross receipts did not create a true agency relationship because the franchisor did not control the day-to-day operation of the franchisee's real estate office [Kaplan v. Coldwell Banker Residential Affiliates, Inc. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 741, 746, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 640 (real estate broker franchisee independently owned and operated franchise, hired and fired employees, set office wages and commissions, and determined business hours; franchise agreement recited that franchisee was an independent contractor, and required franchisee to hold real estate office out as independently owned and operated business)]. For further discussion, see N. Levy, M. Golden & L. Sacks, eds., California Torts, ch. 8 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAgents DistinguishedGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAgents DistinguishedIndependent Contractors, Masters & ServantsGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAgents DistinguishedIndependent Contractors, Masters & ServantsIndependent ContractorsBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesAuthorized Acts of AgentsScope of AuthorityBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesNegligent Acts of AgentsLiability of PrincipalsBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsEstablishmentElementsFactors Inconsistent With AgencyBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsTypesGeneral OverviewLabor & Employment LawEmployment RelationshipsIndependent ContractorsTortsVicarious LiabilityEmployersScope of EmploymentFactorsTortsVicarious LiabilityIndependent ContractorsGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.14

§ 427.14 Creation of Agency Relationship

[1] In General

Any person having the capacity to contract may appoint an agent to act for him or her, and any person may be an agent [Civ. Code § 2296; for discussion of capacity to contract, see Ch. 140, Contracts]. However, there is no presumption that an agency exists; rather, it is generally presumed that a person is acting for himself or herself and not as an agent for another. The burden of proving agency rests on the party asserting the existence of the agency and seeking to charge the principal with therepresentations of the agent [Inglewood Teachers Assn. v. Public Employment Relations Bd. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 767, 780, 278 Cal. Rptr. 228] .

The existence of an agency relationship ordinarily is a question of fact, unless the evidence permits only one inference [Pistone v. Superior Court (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 672, 679, 279 Cal. Rptr. 173 ; Inglewood Teachers Assn. v. Public Employment Relations Bd. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 767, 780, 278 Cal. Rptr. 228] . In resolving the issue, the trier of fact may draw inferences from the conduct of the parties [Rubens v. Texas Oil Corp. (1965) 239 Cal. App. 2d 78, 82, 48 Cal. Rptr. 411] . Contract recitals of the existence or absence of agency, although relevant, are never determinative. Parties may contradict "clear" contract language and show the actual relationship [Pistone v. Superior Court (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 672, 680-681, 279 Cal. Rptr. 173] . Thus, agency may be proved by circumstantial evidence [Whittaker v. Otto (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 619, 622-623, 10 Cal. Rptr. 689] .

[2] Manner of Creation

An agency may be created by either a precedent authorization or a subsequent ratification [Civ. Code § 2307; see discussion under § 427.62[11]].

An agency relationship need not be formally created; neither particular words nor consideration is necessary. In most situations, it is sufficient that the conduct of the alleged principal and agent manifests acceptance of a relationship when the agent acts for the principal [Civ. Code § 2308; Malloy v. Fong (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 356, 370, 232 P.2d 241 ; Frank Pisano & Associates v. Taggart (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 105 Cal. Rptr. 414 ; see also discussion of when written authorization is required § 427.62[5]]. However, a person does not become an agent of another simply by offering help or making a suggestion [Edwards v. Freeman (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 589, 591-592, 212 P.2d 883 ; Violette v. Shoup (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 611, 620, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 358 (both cases finding that one's conduct in performing favor, without being subject to any legal duty of service or assenting to right of control, does not create agency)].

The breadth of this test for determining when an agency has been created by the parties' conduct leaves few situations in which a dispute arises over whether an instrument creates an agency relationship. In virtually every case, the courts look to the actual conduct of the parties, rather than the language of any agreement between them or the parties' characterization of their relationship, when any inconsistency exists between the agreement and the parties' conduct [see, e.g., Pacific Grove-Asilomar Operating Corp. v. County of Monterey (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 675, 687, 117 Cal. Rptr. 874 ; Nichols v. Arthur Murray, Inc. (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 610, 613, 56 Cal. Rptr. 728] .

When a written agreement exists between the principal and the agent a court will give it some weight as an expression of the parties' intent. If the agreement's description does not coincide with the parties' conduct, however, courts have shown themselves quite willing to look behind the agreement to discern the true intent of the parties [Automatic Canteen Co. v. State Board of Equalization (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 372, 389, 47 Cal. Rptr. 848 ; Anderson v. Badger (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 736, 742, 191 P.2d 768] . For these reasons, counsel should carefully analyze not only any agreements entered into by the parties, but the manner in which the parties carried them out. If the relationship has the characteristics of agency, an agency may be found notwithstanding assertions to the contrary in the agreement. For discussion of the role of the agreement in defining the authority of an agent, see § 427.16.

[3] Factual Examples

One area in which courts have examined the factors relevant to the creation of an agency relationship involves the use of an automobile belonging to the purported principal. In a typical situation, one person lets another borrow his or her car, and an accident occurs; the injured third party then sues both the driver and the owner of the car, alleging that the driver was acting as the agent of the owner.

The injured party's action ordinarily may be based on both general principal-agent theories and on the vicarious liability provisions of the Vehicle Code [see Veh. Code §§ 17150, 17707, 17708]. The vicarious liability statutes impose liability for damages as a matter of public policy on owners of vehicles and parents or guardians of minor drivers [see Veh. Code §§ 17150, 17707, 17708]. For example, an injured party seeking to recover from the vehicle owner need only prove that the driver was operating the vehicle with the owner's express or implied permission [see Veh. Code § 17150; see also Veh. Code §§ 17707 (liability of person who signed and verified minor's appli cation for driver's license), 17708 (liability of minor's parents or guardians if minor was driving with express or implied permission of parent, guardian, or person having custody)]. The amount of damages that may be recovered against an owner or parent under the vicarious liability provisions, however, is specifically limited to certain statutory amounts [see Veh. Code §§ 17151 (owner), 17709 (parent)]. In contrast, an action based on the theory that the driver acted as the agent of the vehicle owner would permit recovery against the principal-owner for all damages caused by the agent-driver in the scope of his or her authority [see Civ. Code §§ 2338 and 2339; see also 427.22[5]]. For further discussion of vicarious liability under the Vehicle Code, see Ch. 82, Automobiles: Causes of Action § 82.16.

A vehicle owner's or parent's liability under the principal-agent theory requires satisfaction of a more difficult standard of proof, and the courts have considered agency determinations separately from vicarious liability issues under the Vehicle Code [see, e.g., Souza v. Corti (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 454, 455-461, 461, 139 P.2d 645 , and Johnson v. Peterson (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 619, 621, 622-623, 113 Cal. Rptr. 445] . California courts havedecided many cases in the context of actions involving use of automobiles, both finding agency and declining to find agency [Flores v. Brown (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 622, 628-629, 248 P.2d 922 (no agency found); Edwards v. Freeman (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 589, 591-592, 212 P.2d 883 (no agency found); Souza v. Corti (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 454, 461, 139 P.2d 645 (agency found); Perry v. McLaughlin (1931) 212 Cal. 1, 14, 297 P. 554 (agency found); DeSuza v. Andersack (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 694, 699-700, 133 Cal. Rptr. 920 (no agency found); and Johnson v. Peterson (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 619, 622-623, 113 Cal. Rptr. 445 (agency found)].

In the cases holding that an agency was created, the courts generally concluded that the principal controlled or had the legal right to control the actions of the agent [Johnson v. Peterson (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 619, 623, 113 Cal. Rptr. 445 ; see also Flores v. Brown (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 622, 628, 248 P.2d 922] . For example, in one case the court of appeal found that an agency relationship was created when a mother suggested that her daughter drive to the store to buy shoes for another daughter, because the mother had a right to control the actions of the daughter [Johnson v. Peterson (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 619, 623, 113 Cal. Rptr. 445] .

Conversely, when the right to control the actions of the vehicle driver is absent, an agency has been held not to exist even though the purported agent was acting for the owner-principal. For example, in one case, the driver was hauling a trailer that belonged to the defendant who was sued as the driver's principal. The court held that the evidence did not support any inference that the owner of the trailer had any right to control the manner in which the trailer was hauled, and without that right of control, no agency was found [Flores v. Brown (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 622, 628-629, 248 P.2d 922] . The right to control the actions of the agent is a necessary prerequisite for the creation of an agency relationship; unless a showing is made that the principal has the right to control the actions of the agent, as for example by agreement between principal and agent that the latter will act at the direction of the former, no agency will be found to exist [see Edwards v. Freeman (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 589, 592, 212 P.2d 883 ; DeSuza v. Andersack (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 694, 699, 133 Cal. Rptr. 920] .

For discussion of vicarious liability, § 427.22[1], [5].

[4] Actual Agency

The conduct of a principal is sufficient to create an actual agency if the principal intentionally, or by want of ordinary care, allows the agent to believe that he or she has the authority to act on behalf of the principal [Civ. Code § 2316]. Thus, if the principal's conduct causes the agent reasonably to believe that authority to act exists, an actual agency has been created and transactions entered into with third parties will bind the principal [Tomerlin v. Canadian Indemnity Co. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 638, 644, 39 Cal. Rptr. 731, 394 P.2d 571 ; Mannion v. Campbell Soup Co. (1966)243 Cal. App. 2d 317, 320, 52 Cal. Rptr. 246] . For example, when an employee purports to act for his or her employer in the belief that he or she is authorized to do so, and the employer does nothing to indicate to the employee that no such authority exists, the employer cannot later deny that an agency was created in order to avoid the consequences of the employee's acts [see Gaine v. Austin (1943) 58 Cal. App. 2d 250, 259-260, 136 P.2d 584 ; Tomerlin v. Canadian Indemnity Co. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 638, 643-644, 39 Cal. Rptr. 731, 394 P.2d 571] .

[5] Ostensible Agency

An ostensible agency is created when conduct by the principal leads a third party reasonably to believe that the agent has the authority to bind the principal [Civ. Code § 2300]; Mejia v. Community Hospital of San Bernardino (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1448, 1457-1458, 1460, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 233 (trial court erred in granting nonsuit when there was triable issue as to whether negligent doctor was ostensible agent of hospital) Petersen v. Securities Settlement Corp. (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1445, 1452, 277 Cal. Rptr. 468] . No agreement of the parties is necessary and the acts of the principal alone are sufficient to create such an agency for the purposes of transactions between third parties and the ostensible agent [Mannion v. Campbell Soup Co. (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 317, 320, 52 Cal. Rptr. 246] . It is not necessary that the principal be in direct contact with the third party. The manifestation of the principal may be to the community at large, as for example by appointing the agent to a particular position within a corporation [Meyer v. Ford Motor Co. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 90, 102, 79 Cal. Rptr. 816] . However, ostensible agency must be based on the acts or declarations of the principal and not on the conduct or representations of the alleged agent [Pagarigan v. Libby Care Center, Inc. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 298, 301-302, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 892 (person cannot become agent of another merely by representing himself or herself as such); Lindsay-Field v. Friendly (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1728, 1734, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 71 ; Petersen v. Securities Settlement Corp. (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1445, 1452, 277 Cal. Rptr. 468] .

Both ostensible agency and actual agency based on the agent's reasonable belief depend on the principal's conduct. Conduct that reasonably persuades a person that he or she is authorized to act as an agent may also persuade a third party with whom the agent is dealing that the agency exists. Thus, the finding of either an actual or ostensible agency does not exclude the existence of the other [see Tomerlin v. Canadian Indemnity Co. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 638, 644, 39 Cal. Rptr. 731, 394 P.2d 571] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActActual AuthorityGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsEstablishmentGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsEstablishmentElementsGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsEstablishmentElementsManifestation by PrincipalBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsEstablishmentElementsRight to Control by PrincipalBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsEstablishmentEstoppel, Ostensible Agency & NecessityOstensible AgencyBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsEstablishmentProof of AgencyGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.15

§ 427.15 Equal Dignities Rule

[1] Generally

The only requirement of formality imposed in the creation of agency relationships is the "equal dignities rule," which provides that an authorityto enter into a contract required by law to be in writing can only be given by a written instrument [Civ. Code § 2309; see Ripani v. Liberty Loan Corp. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 603, 609, 157 Cal. Rptr. 272] . For a discussion of Civ. Code § 2310, which imposes a writing requirement for ratification when a writing would have been required to confer authority originally, see 427.18.

As with the statute of frauds generally, Civ. Code § 2309 is construed restrictively [Ripani v. Liberty Loan Corp. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 603, 610, 157 Cal. Rptr. 272 ; see generally Ch. 530, Statute of Frauds]. Civ. Code § 2309 requires a written authorization only when the agent enters into a contract required by law to be in writing. Thus, for example, a written lease providing that exercise of an option to extend the lease for two years must be in writing could be exercised by an agent with only an oral authorization. The lease was written as required by Civ. Code § 1624 (requiring writing for lease longer than one year), but the lease itself, not the statute of frauds, required a written exercise of the option. Therefore, the agent who exercised the option was not entering into a contract required by law to be in writing and was not required by Civ. Code § 2309 to have a written authorization [Ripani v. Liberty Loan Corp. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 603, 610, 157 Cal. Rptr. 272] .

[2] Exceptions

Numerous exceptions to the equal dignities rule have been recognized, and the rule has been interpreted so restrictively that relatively few situations remain in which the rule applies. Two basic exceptions to the rule have been judicially recognized. First, no written authorization is required when the agent is not given any discretionary power but is authorized only to perform a mechanical task for the principal, such as signing a document [Ellis v. Mihelis (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 206, 214, 32 Cal. Rptr. 415, 384 P.2d 7 ; Dufresne v. Elite Insurance Co. (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 916, 923, 103 Cal. Rptr. 347] . This is an expansion of the exception to the rule, originally recognized by the courts, that when an agent acts in the presence of, and at the direction of, the principal, a written authorization is unnecessary [Karns v. Olney (1889) 80 Cal. 90, 97-98 ; Lathrop v. Gauger (1954) 127 Cal. App. 2d 754, 764, 274 P.2d 730] . In either situation, the act of the agent is deemed to be the act of the principal, and no written authorization is required [Ellis v.

Mihelis (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 206, 214, 32 Cal. Rptr. 415, 384 P.2d 7] .

Second, written authorization is unnecessary when an agent is an executive officer of a corporation and acts on behalf of the corporation. An executive officer is more than an agent of the corporation. He or she may be more accurately described as a representative of an entity that can only act through natural persons. Thus, no written authorization is necessary for an executive officer of a corporation to act on behalf of the corporation [Jeppi v. Brockman Holding Co. (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 11, 17-18, 206 P.2d 847] .

[3] Lack of Writing Not Defense to Action by Agent

The defense of the lack of a writing required by the equal dignities rule has been limited to an action brought by a third party who has dealt with the agent. The principal may not assert the rule as a defense in an action brought by the agent. Thus, a principal who has avoided liability on a contract entered into by his or her agent, because the agent did not have the required written authority, cannot successfully defend, on the ground that the equal dignities rule was violated, the agent's action for indemnity brought after the agent satisfied a judgment obtained by the third party against the agent [Sunset-Sternau Food Co. v. Bonzi (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 834, 842-843, 36 Cal. Rptr. 741, 389 P.2d 133] .

[4] Estoppel to Assert Rule

A principal may also be estopped from asserting the equal dignities rule as a defense if his or her own conduct lulls the third par ty into believing that the agent has written authority or that written authority is not needed [Kerner v. Hughes Tool Co. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 924, 934, 128 Cal. Rptr. 839 (estoppel found); McGirr v. Gulf Oil Corp. (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 246, 258, 115 Cal. Rptr. 902 (no estoppel found)]. For example, a principal who referred all inquiries regarding contract negotiations to his agent without notifying third parties of any limitations on the agent's authority was held estopped from asserting the equal dignities rule as a defense to an action for breach of a contract entered into by the agent [Kerner v. Hughes Tool Co. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 924, 934, 128 Cal. Rptr. 839] .

Estoppel to assert the equal dignities rule should not be confused with estoppel to rely on the statute of frauds [see Civ. Code § 1624]. A contract may be required by law to be in writing under Civ. Code § 1624, yet may be enforced without a writing because of one party's change of position in reliance on the other party's representations [see Monarco v. Lo Greco (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 621, 625-626, 220 P.2d 737] . Thus, an agent who negotiates with a third party a contract that would ordinarily require a writing, but who has represented to the third party that no writing will be required, may be estopped from using the statute of frauds as a defense in an action for breach of contract. But a finding that the contract is enforceable generally is insufficient to bind the principal, because under Civ. Code § 2309 unless a writing authorizing the agent to execute the contract existed, the third party must also have relied on the principal's express or implied representations regarding the agent's authority. The principal will be estopped only if his or her own conduct lulls the third party into believing that the agent has written authority or that written authority is not needed [McGirr v. Gulf Oil Corp. (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 246, 254-256, 115 Cal. Rptr. 902] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActActual AuthorityOral & Written AuthorityBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActContracts & ConveyancesGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActContracts & ConveyancesEnforcement & ExecutionBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActStatutes of FraudsBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesAuthorized Acts of AgentsUnauthorized ActsBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesUnlawful Acts of AgentsGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesUnlawful Acts of AgentsFraud & Misrepresentation

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.16

§ 427.16 Authority of Agents

[1] In General

An agent has the authority the principal, actually or ostensibly, confers on him or her [Civ. Code § 2315]. Thus, the agent's authority depends on the conduct of the principal and in many instances, the principal has conferred both actual and ostensible authority on the agent [see Hartong v. Partake, Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 942, 963-964, 72 Cal. Rptr. 722 ; discussion under § 427.16[2], [3]]. The extent of authority delegated to an agent is an essential part of determining the principal's liability to third parties for acts of the agent [see discussion under § 427.22].

The extent of the agent's authority is ordinarily a question of fact [Inglewood Teachers Assn. v. Public Employment Relations Bd. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 767, 780, 278 Cal. Rptr. 228] . In resolving the question, the trier of fact may draw inferences from the conduct of the parties [Rubens v. Texam Oil Corp. (1965) 239 Cal. App. 2d 78, 82, 48 Cal. Rptr. 411] . The burden of proving the scope of the agent's authority rests on the party seeking to charge the principal with the representations of the agent [Inglewood Teachers Assn. v. Public Employment Relations Bd. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 767, 780, 278 Cal. Rptr. 228] . Mere surmise as to the authority of an agent is insufficient to impose liability on the principal [Inglewood Teachers Assn. v. Public Employment Relations Bd. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 767, 782, 278 Cal. Rptr. 228] .

[2] Actual

An agent's actual authority is the authority a principal intentionally confers or intentionally, or by want of ordinary care, allows the agent to believe he or she possesses [Civ. Code § 2316]. When the agent's authority is based on an express contract, either written or oral, the extent of the authority is determined through the use of the ordinary methods of interpreting contracts [see Civ. Code §§ 1635, 1636; see also discussion of contract interpretation in Ch. 140, Contracts, General Introduction, Subpt. B]. When no express contract exists, the determination of the extent of actual authority conferred depends on the conduct of the principal and the reasonable belief of the agent engendered by that conduct [see Tomerlin v. Canadian Indemnity Co. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 638, 643, 39 Cal. Rptr. 731, 394 P.2d 571] .

Conduct of the principal that can be sufficient to allow the agent to believe authority exists includes apparent acquiescence in prior acts of agency, such as holding money in a personal account [Vertex Inv. Co. v. Schwabacher

(1943) 57 Cal. App. 2d 406, 418, 134 P.2d 891 , cert. denied, 320 U.S. 754] . Authority to exercise an option to renew a lease has also been found when the principal told the agent that a new building need not be sought because the current quarters would be retained [Ripani v. Liberty Loan Corp. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 603, 611-612, 157 Cal. Rptr. 272] . When the principal consistently requires that a certain type of contract be executed by a certain party, however, a subordinate does not have actual authority to execute a contract without approval, even if the agent actually believes that authority exists [South Sacramento Drayage Co. v. Campbell Soup Co. (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 851, 856-857, 34 Cal. Rptr. 137] .

A finding of implied actual authority also depends on a finding that the agent believed that authority existed. When an agent must receive authorization from superiors in the company before acting to alter contracts with third parties, the agent does not have the requisite belief in his or her authority to do so unilaterally [Columbia Outfitting Co. v. Freeman (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 216, 219, 223 P.2d 21] .

[3] Ostensible

An agent's ostensible authority is authority that a principal, intentionally or by want of ordinary care, causes or allows a third party to believe the agent possesses [Civ. Code § 2317; see C.A.R. Transp. Brokerage Co. v. Darden Restaurants, Inc. (9th Cir. 2000) 213 F.3d 474, 479-481 (finding truck drivers had ostensible authority to sign waivers of right to payment from shipper)]. The basic policy underlying the concept of ostensible authority is to prevent the principal from avoiding a contract entered into by an agent in violation of a secret agreement limiting the powers of the agent; the authority of the agent is that which the principal allowed the third party to believe it was [see Leavens v. Pinkham & McKevitt (1912) 164 Cal. 242, 247-248, 128 P. 399 ; Case v. McConnell & Forrester (1935) 5 Cal. App. 2d 688, 692, 44 P.2d 414] .

For discussion of the prerequisites for holding a principal liable to a third party based on an agent's ostensible authority, see § 427.22[2].

[4] Statutory and Implied

Every agent has the authority defined in Civ. Code § 2295 et seq., unless specially deprived of that authority by the principal, and even then has that authority ostensibly, except as to persons who have actual or constructive knowledge of the restriction on the agent's authority [Civ. Code § 2318; see discussion under § 427.62[2][d]]. Specifically, an agent has authority to do everything necessary or proper and usual, in the ordinary course of business, for effecting the purpose of the agency [Civ. Code § 2319(1)]. An agent also has authority to make representations about facts on which the right to use the authority depends and which are not known to the third party to whom the representations are made. However, an agent cannot make representations about the terms of his or her authority itself [Civ. Code § 2319(2)].

An agent has the power to disobey instructions in dealing with the subject of the agency, when it is clearly for the interest of the principal thatthe instructions be disobeyed, and there is not time to communicate with the principal [Civ. Code § 2320].

The courts have also recognized an agent has implied authority, similar to the authority provided in Civ. Code § 2319, to use any means incidental to and reasonably proper in the performance of an assigned task [Garber v. Prudential Ins. Co. (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 693, 701, 22 Cal. Rptr. 123] . These implied powers permit an agent who is acting in the course of his or her duties to react to conditions that are not usually met in the agency. The agent does not lose the power to act when faced with unusual conditions, but may act in a manner that appears to be reasonably appropriate. If the agent was engaged strictly in an endeavor to bring about the result for which the agency was created, the act will be held to have been within the agent's implied authority [Garber v. Prudential Ins. Co. (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 693, 702-703, 22 Cal. Rptr. 123] . When acting in furtherance of the purposes of the agency, this implied authority includes, for example, the power to waive by contract the principal's right to proceed with a malpractice action by agreeing to arbitrate all disputes arising from a medical insurance contract [Madden v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 699, 707-709, 131 Cal. Rptr. 882, 552 P.2d 1178 ; Hawkins v. Superior Court (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 413, 419, 152 Cal. Rptr. 491 ; for further discussion of this waiver power, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration, § 32.21, Ch. 295, Hospitals , and Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice]. An agent also has the right to delegate his or her powers to a subagent in certain circumstances unless specifically forbidden by the principal from doing so [see Civ. Code § 2349; Leno v. Young Men's Christian Assn. (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 651, 658, 95 Cal. Rptr. 96 ; Garber v. Prudential Ins. Co. (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 693, 702, 22 Cal. Rptr. 123 ; see also discussion § 427.16[6][a]].

[5] Specific Types of Agencies

Agents are also given specific powers by statute when exercising certain types of agencies. Thus, an agent with authority to sell personal property also has authority to warrant the title of the principal, and the quality and quantity of the property [Civ. Code § 2323]. An agent with authority to sell real property has authority to give the usual covenants of warranty [Civ. Code § 2324]. A general agent to sell, who is entrusted by the principal with the possession of the thing to be sold, has authority to receive the price [Civ. Code § 2325]. A special agent to sell has authority to receive the price on delivery of the thing sold, but not afterwards [Civ. Code § 2326; see also the definition of special and general agents § 427.11[2]].

[6] Delegation to Subagent

[a] Powers Delegable

An agent may delegate his or her powers to another person only when any of the following is true [Civ. Code § 2349; see Seneca Ins. Co. v. Countyof Orange (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 611, 619-620, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 (agent of surety that had undertaken bail bond could not lawfully delegate authority to police detective to seek extension of time from court on bail forfeiture)]:

- The act to be done is purely mechanical.
- The act cannot be done by the agent but the subagent can lawfully perform it.
- It is the usage of the place to delegate these powers.
- Delegation is specially authorized by the principal.

The principal, however, may specially forbid delegation of these powers [Civ. Code § 2349].

[b] Authorized Delegation

A lawfully appointed subagent represents the principal in like manner as the original agent, and the original agent is not responsible to third persons for the acts of the subagent [Civ. Code § 2351]. Thus, for example, supervising employees are liable to third parties for the acts of their subordinates only when the supervising employees themselves act wrongfully [see Holland v. Nelson (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 308, 313-314, 85 Cal. Rptr. 117 ; Towt v. Pope (1959) 168 Cal. App. 2d 520, 530, 336 P.2d 276 ; see also discussion § 427.22].

[c] Effect of Unauthorized Delegation

If an agent employs a subagent without authority, the agent is a principal and the subagent is his or her agent. The principal of the agent, however, has no connection with the subagent [Civ. Code § 2350; see Civ. Code § 2022 (mere agent of agent is not responsible as such to principal of agent)]. An unauthorized subagent cannot look to the original principal for compensation [Hasekian v. Krotz (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 311, 318, 74 Cal. Rptr. 410 ; Goodwin v. Glick (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 936, 939-940]. In addition, because a subagent appointed without authority has no connection with the principal, the subagent has no duty to disclose knowledge of fraud to the principal, even a fraud that is perpetrated by the original agent [Kavanagh v. Wade (1940) 42 Cal. App. 2d 92, 97, 108 P.2d 475 ; see Civ. Code § 2350; see discussion under § 427.62[2][c]]. A principal may be liable to third parties, however, for the willful fraud of an unauthorized subagent [Eye v. Kafer, Inc. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 449, 454, 20 Cal. Rptr. 841 ; see discussion under § 427.22].

[d] Determining Effectiveness of Delegation

Courts take a rather expansive view of an agent's authority to appoint subagents when the issue of the propriety of an agent's delegation of authority arises in an action by a third party seeking damages from theprincipal. Thus, courts have held that, in addition to the agent's authority under Civ. Code § 2349 to delegate his or her powers, an agent has authority to appoint subagents stemming from the agent's authority to use any means that are incidental to and reasonably proper in the performance of an assigned task [Leno v. Young Men's Christian Assn. (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 651, 658, 95 Cal. Rptr. 96 ; Garber v. Prudential Ins. Co. (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 693, 702, 22 Cal. Rptr. 123 ; see § 427.16[6][a]].

However, when a subagent seeks compensation from the principal, the original agent's authority is examined more closely to determine whether the agent had authority on behalf of the principal to create an agency relationship between the subagent and the principal, or whether the agent merely had the authority (express or implied) to use subagents to perform the agent's duties for the principal. The difference is between being authorized to create a contractual relationship of agency between the principal and another agent, and being authorized to contract with another, on the agent's own behalf, to assist the agent in carrying out the business of the agency. While the latter authority may readily be implied, the former requires a showing that the principal intended to allow the agent to appoint other agents who would be in a contractual relationship with the principal. Unless such a showing is made, the subagent must look to the agent rather than to the principal for compensation [Hasekian v. Krotz (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 311, 318, 74 Cal. Rptr. 410 ; Goodwin v. Glick (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 936, 939-940].

[7] Limitations on Authority

An authority expressed in general terms, however broad, does not authorize an agent to do any of the following [Civ. Code § 2322]:

- Act in his or her own name unless it is the usual course of business to do so.
- Define the scope of the agency.
- Violate a duty to which a trustee is subject pursuant to Prob. Code §§ 16002, 16004, 16005, and 16009.

Nor can an agent have authority, either actual or ostensible, to do an act that is, and is known or suspected by the person with whom he or she deals to be, a fraud on the principal [Civ. Code § 2306; see Saks v. Charity Mission Baptist Church (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 1116, 1137-1140, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 45 (in real estate investor's action for breach of contract and fraud, church held not liable on promissory notes signed by pastor, when plaintiff acquiesced in scheme to wrongfully use church's name to obtain financial benefit for himself and his partners)]. Agents also must not exceed the limits of their actual authority, as defined by Civ. Code § 2295 et seq. [Civ. Code § 2019]. Finally, a principal may specially deprive an agent of certain authority [see Civ. Code § 2318; see § 427.16[4]].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActActual AuthorityGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActActual AuthorityExpress AuthorityBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActActual AuthorityImplied AuthorityGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActActual AuthorityImplied AuthorityConduct of PartiesBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActActual AuthorityImplied AuthorityCustoms & UsagesBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActActual AuthorityImplied AuthorityKnowledge of the PrincipalBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActActual AuthorityInherent AuthorityBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActApparent AuthorityGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActBusiness TransactionsGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActBusiness TransactionsPropertyBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActContracts & ConveyancesEnforcement & ExecutionBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesAuthorized Acts of AgentsGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesAuthorized Acts of AgentsScope of Authority

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.17

§ 427.17 Third Party's Duty of Inquiry

When a third party deals with an agent whose authority is unclear, the third party must attempt to clarify the extent of the agent's authority in order to bind the principal. This duty is related to the finding required to establish ostensible authority. In other words, when the agent lacks actual authority, the principal can be bound by the acts of the agent only if the third party with whom the agent deals reasonably believes that the agent possesses authority to act, and that belief is based on the conduct of the principal [see Civ. Code § 2334; see also § 427.62[2][d]]. The third party's reliance on an agent's ostensible authority must be reasonable and not negligent, and any question as to the agent's authority makes inquiry the reasonable course of action [see Ernst v. Searle (1933) 218 Cal. 233, 240, 22 P.2d 715 ; United States Credit Bureau, Inc. v. Cheney (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 357, 361, 45 Cal. Rptr. 525 ; South Sacramento Drayage Co. v. Campbell Soup Co. (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 851, 858, 34 Cal. Rptr. 137 ; Civ. Code § 2334; see also § 427.62[2][d]].

The third party's failure to make an inquiry when the circumstances would lead a reasonable person to do so permits action against the principal only to the extent of the agent's actual authority [United States Credit Bureau, Inc. v. Cheney (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 357, 361, 45 Cal. Rptr. 525] . When an agent acts within his or her actual authority, no inquiry is necessary, and when the acts of the principal are sufficient to establish ostensible authority, the third party's reasonable reliance on the principal's acts in the absence of any conduct warranting inquiry will bind the principal notwithstanding any undisclosed limits on the agent's authority [Beck v. Arthur Murray, Inc. (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 976, 981, 54 Cal. Rptr. 328 ; Myers v. Stephens (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 104, 115, 43 Cal. Rptr. 420] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActActual AuthorityGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActApparent AuthorityGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesAuthorized Acts of AgentsBurden of Inquiry

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.18

§ 427.18 Ratification

[1] Generally

In addition to precedent authorization, an agency may be created, and an authority may be conferred by a subsequent ratification [Civ. Code § 2307]. Ratification assumes that no authority existed at the time of the act, but the act must have been undertaken on behalf of the principal. An act of a purported agent not acting on behalf of the principal cannot be ratified [Jacks v. Taylor (1917) 34 Cal. App. 95, 97-98, 166 P. 858] . For discussion of when an undisclosed principal may ratify an agent's unauthorized act, see § 427.26.

[2] Acts Constituting

A ratification can be made only in the manner that would have been necessary to confer an original authority for the act ratified, or when anoral authorization would suffice, by accepting or retaining the benefit of the act with notice thereof [Civ. Code § 2310; see discussion under § 427.62[5]]. When a written authorization would not have been required by Civ. Code § 2309, because the principal did not confer an authority to enter into a contract required by law to be in writing, the unauthorized act of an agent may be ratified either expressly or by implication from the principal's conduct [Union Trust and Realty Co. v. Best (1911) 160 Cal. 263, 267, 116 P. 737 ; see Bescos v. Bank of America (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 378, 391, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 423 (assignee bank that financed lease but was not agent of dealer in lease transaction was not responsible as lessor for misrepresentations made by dealer that were unknown to lender and not apparent on face of lease)].

Generally, an unauthorized act of an agent may be ratified by conduct of the principal from which an intention to consent to or to adopt the act is inferable, including conduct inconsistent with any other reasonable intention [Rakestraw v. Rodrigues (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 67, 73, 104 Cal. Rptr. 57, 500 P.2d 1401 ; see Fretland v. County of Humboldt (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1478, 1489-1491, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 359 (in tort action against employer county, former employee failed to produce evidence that employer ratified conduct of fellow employee who assaulted plaintiff by promoting and condoning work environment in which conduct was tolerated)]. For example, a principal who brought suit on a settlement agreement that his attorney as agent executed without authorization was held to have ratified not only the unauthorized settlement agreement, but the attorney's authority to receive the payment called for in the settlement [Navrides v. Zurich Ins. Co. (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 698, 703-704, 97 Cal. Rptr. 309, 488 P.2d 637] . Ratification has also been found when a principal retained the benefits of an unauthorized transaction with knowledge of the source of the benefit or when the principal should have known of the source of the benefit [Reusche v. California Pac. Title Ins. Co. (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 731, 737, 42 Cal. Rptr. 262] . The principal's conduct, however, must be voluntary, and even voluntary conduct will not constitute ratification if the principal cannot rescind the transaction or merely acts to minimize losses from the agent's acts [Rakestraw v. Rodrigues (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 67, 73, 104 Cal. Rptr. 57, 500 P.2d 1401 ; Pacific Vinegar etc. Works v. Smith (1907) 152 Cal. 507, 511-512, 93 P. 85 ; Pacific Bone etc. Co. v. Bleakmore (1927) 81 Cal. App. 659, 664, 254 P. 618] .

[3] Knowledge of Principal

When an oral authorization is sufficient, a principal does not ratify an agent's unauthorized act by accepting or retaining the benefit of the act unless the principal has notice of the act [Civ. Code § 2310]. The notice necessary for ratification includes not only knowledge of the agent's acts, but also the legal effect of those acts. A principal is not bound by ratification unless he or she acts with knowledge of all the material facts involved in the unauthorized transaction, particularly with knowledge of the acts of the person who assumed to act as the principal's agent [Bate v. Marsteller (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 573, 582-583, 346 P.2d 903 ; Estate of Fletcher (1940) 36 Cal. App. 2d 567, 573, 97 P.2d 1039] . If the principal's ignorance of the facts arises from a failure to investigate when a reasonable person would do so, however, ratification may be found despite a lack of full knowledge [Reusche v. California Pac. Title Ins. Co. (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 731, 737, 42 Cal. Rptr. 262 ; Volandri v. Hlobil (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 656, 659, 339 P.2d 218] .

[4] Effect of Partial Ratification

Ratification of part of an indivisible transaction is a ratification of the entire transaction [Civ. Code § 2311; Shultz Steel Co. v. Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 513, 523, 231 Cal. Rptr. 715] . This rule precludes a principal from ratifying the beneficial parts of the agent's unauthorized transaction while disavowing the burdens of the same transaction [Navrides v. Zurich Ins. Co. (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 698, 704, 97 Cal. Rptr. 309, 488 P.2d 637] ; [Friddle v. Epstein (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 1649, 1656, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 85 ; Price v. McConnell (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 660, 666, 7 Cal. Rptr. 695] . Similarly, when separate transactions are closely related, as when one would not have been agreed to without the other, a ratification of one will constitute a ratification of all [Vanciel v. Kumle (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 732, 735, 160 P.2d 802] .

[5] Principal's Power to Authorize

A ratification is not valid unless, at the time of ratifying the act done, the principal has power to confer authority for such an act [Civ. Code § 2312]. For example, if a municipality's power to award a contract is limited by a requirement that a competitive bidding process determine the contract award, the bidding requirement cannot be avoided by an unauthorized award of a contract without bidding and a later ratification of the contract [see Los Angeles Dredging Co. v. Long Beach (1930) 210 Cal. 348, 353, 291 P. 839] . Similarly, a lessor who has granted a lease to one party cannot later attempt to ratify a previous, unauthorized lease, because no power to lease the property existed once the lease was executed [Borderre v. Den (1895) 106 Cal. 594, 600, 39 P. 946] .

[6] Consent of Third Parties

An unauthorized act cannot be made valid retroactively to the prejudice of third persons without their consent [Civ. Code § 2313]. For example, one court held that when a bank attempted to meet the 10-day statute of limitations in Fin. Code § 3101 by filing a lawsuit without the requisite approval of the board of directors, the ratification by the board of directors after the 10 days had expired was held ineffective under Civ. Code § 2313.The court noted that the superintendent of banks had the right to order the action dismissed because of the failure of the bank to file properly the action, and that the dismissal right could not be taken away by ratification without the superintendent's consent [Dominguez v. Superior Court (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 692, 694-695, 189 Cal. Rptr. 5 ; see also Malinski v. Wegman's

Nursery & Landscaping, Inc. (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 282, 289-290, 162 Cal. Rptr. 287 (insurer cannot ratify insured's partial payment to plaintiff as insurer's own in order to prevent a statute of limitations from having been tolled as to plaintiff's action, to plaintiff's prejudice); Hooker v. American Indemnity Co. (1936) 12 Cal. App. 2d 116, 123, 54 P.2d 1128 (agent's unauthorized cancellation of insurance policy cannot be ratified to prejudice of beneficiaries of policy)].

[7] Rescission of Ratification

A ratification may be rescinded only if made with imperfect knowledge of the material facts of the transaction ratified, or if made without the consent required in a contract [Civ. Code § 2314; see Civ. Code §§ 1565-1590 (governing consent to contract); see also § 427.18[3]; Ch. 140, Contracts , Ch. 488, Reformation of Instruments , and Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution]. A principal who has deliberately stayed ignorant of material facts, however, may be precluded from rescinding on the basis of imperfect knowledge [Hutchinson Co. v. Gould (1919) 180 Cal. 356, 358, 181 P. 651] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActApparent AuthorityGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesIndemnityBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsRatificationGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsRatificationExpress & Implied RatificationBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsRatificationIllegal ActsBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsTypesEmployee & Employer

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.19

§ 427.19 Agent's Knowledge Imputed to Principal

[1] Generally

As against a principal, both principal and agent are deemed to have notice of whatever either has notice of and ought, in good faith and the exercise of ordinary care and diligence, to communicate to the other [Civ. Code § 2332; see Form 37 and comments]. This rule recognizes an agent's duty to communicate with his or her principal, but does not depend on the agent's exercise of that duty. The rule is not a presumption that may be rebutted, or even a presumption at all, but rather a finding that in dealings with third parties, the agent acts in place of the principal [Columbia Pictures Corp. v. DeToth (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 620, 630, 197 P.2d 580 ; but see Freeman v. Superior Court (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 533, 537-538, 282 P.2d 857 (principal's knowledge disputable presumption for purposes of criminal contempt action); Snook v. Netherby (1954) 124 Cal. App. 2d 797, 801-802, 269 P.2d 195 (imputed knowledge insufficient when subjective knowledge is required for bad faith damages under Civ. Code § 3306)].

This general rule, however, does not apply when the principal must have actual knowledge. For example, with respect to Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6 (time for filing petition for review of local agency decisions), the 90-day limitations period applies only if the required notice is served on the party. The express language of Section 1094.6, the overall statutory context, its legislative history, and the lack of burden compel the conclusion that service on the party's lawyer does not trigger the 90-day period [Herman v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 819, 828-830, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144 (after county agency mailed letter to public employee's attorney indicating that employee was being terminated, employee filed writ petition several days beyond 90-day period)].

[2] Rule Designed to Protect Third Parties

The purpose of the rule requiring communication is to protect third parties who deal with an agent in the reasonable belief that the agent will act faithfully in carrying out the duty to communicate with his or her principal. When the third party seeking to impute knowledge is acquainted with circumstances plainly indicating that the agent will not advise the principal, the knowledge will not be imputed [Sands v. Eagle Oil & Refining Co. (1948) 83 Cal. App. 2d 312, 319-320, 188 P.2d 782] . The rule does not create any duty between the principal and one who has no dealings with the principal through an agent or otherwise [Lucas v. Pollock (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 668, 674-675, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 918] .

[3] Facts Must Relate to Subject of Agency

An agent's knowledge can be imputed to the principal only when the facts that became known to the agent relate to the subject of the agency. An agent's knowledge of facts outside the scope of his or her authority cannot be imputed to the principal [Redman v. Walters (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 448, 454, 152 Cal. Rptr. 42] . The scope of the agency, and whether a particular fact known to the agent was within that scope, are issues of fact that must be resolved in individual cases [Lucas v. Pollock (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 668, 673, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 918 ; Maron v. Swig (1952) 115 Cal. App. 2d 87, 90, 251 P.2d 770] .

[4] Acquired During Course of Agency

It is usually held that to be imputable, the knowledge must be acquired by the agent in the course of the agency, as no duty to disclose information to the principal arises at any prior time [see Redman v. Walters (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 448, 454, 152 Cal. Rptr. 42] . However, knowledge acquired before creation of the agency may be imputed to the principal if it is shown that the knowledge was used by the agent in acting for the principal [see O'Riordan v. Federal Kemper Life Assur. Co. (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 281, 288-289, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 507, 114 P.3d 753 ; Lucas v. Pollock (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 668, 673, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 918 ; Columbia Pictures Corp. v. DeToth (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 620, 631, 197 P.2d 580] .

[5] Reasonable Time for Communication Allowed

Knowledge acquired by an agent is not imputed to the principal immediately on receipt by the agent. Rather, a lapse of time reasonable for the communication of the knowledge is allowed before the principal is charged [Kelley v. British Coml. Ins. Co. (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 554, 561, 34 Cal. Rptr. 564] . Thus, a principal is not affected by the knowledge of an agent until it is communicated to him or her or until the one having the knowledge has committed a fault either in transacting something for the principal or in failing to communicate the knowledge to others who are to act on it [Civil Service Employees Ins. Co. v. Blake (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 196, 199-200, 53 Cal. Rptr. 701 ; Kelley v. British Coml. Ins. Co. (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 554, 561, 34 Cal. Rptr. 564] .

[6] Communication When Agent Acting Adversely to Principal

An agent acting on behalf of the principal has the duty, notwithstanding any undisclosed personal interest, to communicate with the principal [McKenney v. Ellsworth (1913) 165 Cal. 326, 329, 132 P. 75 ; Wagner v. Benson (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 27, 35, 161 Cal. Rptr. 516 ; Maron v. Swig (1952) 115 Cal. App. 2d 87, 91, 251 P.2d 770 ; see discussion of agent's liability to principal for breach of duty to communicate under § 427.23[1]]. Thus, when an agent acts in a capacity adverse to the principal, the agent's knowledge will not be imputed [Meyer v. Glenmoor Homes, Inc. (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 242, 264, 54 Cal. Rptr. 786, 55 Cal. Rptr. 502] .

The courts will examine whether the third party knew or should have known that the agent occupied a position adverse to the principal and therefore would be unlikely to communicate with the principal. An adverse capacity exists when an agent does not act for the principal alone but acts in his or her own interest or for another principal as well [People v. Park (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 550, 566, 151 Cal. Rptr. 146] . For example, an adverse position may exist when the agent represents more than one party to a transaction [People v. Park (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 550, 566, 151 Cal. Rptr. 146] . It may also exist when the agent and the third party are acting collusively to defraud the principal [see Sands v. Eagle Oil & Refining Co. (1948) 83 Cal. App. 2d 312, 319-320, 188 P.2d 782] .

This is not to say that a principal cannot be bound by the knowledge of an agent secretly acting in his or her own interest. The key concept in the general rule is that of capacity; an agent acting for the principal, even if seeking to defraud the principal, has a duty to communicate with the principal, and knowledge acquired while so acting will be imputed to the principal [McKenney v. Ellsworth (1913) 165 Cal. 326, 329, 132 P. 75] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesAuthorized Acts of AgentsGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesKnowledge & NoticeGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesKnowledge & NoticeAgent KnowledgeBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesKnowledge & NoticeExceptionsBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesKnowledge & NoticeUncommunicated InformationBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsTerminationsNotice Requirements

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.20

§ 427.20 Termination of Agency Relationship

[1] Generally

An agency is terminated as to every person having notice of the following [Civ. Code § 2355]:

- The expiration of the term of the agency;
- The extinction of the subject of the agency;
- The death of the agent;
- The agent's renunciation of the agency; or
- The incapacity of the agent to act as such.

Additionally, unless the power of an agent is coupled with an interest in the subject of the agency, it is terminated by its revocation by the principal, the death of the principal, or the incapacity of the principal to contract [Civ. Code § 2356(a); see § 427.20[8]]. Notwithstanding Civ. Code § 2356(a), any bona fide transaction entered into with such agent by any person acting without actual knowledge of the principal's revocation, death, or incapacity is binding on the principal, his or her heirs, devisees, legatees, and other successors in interest [Civ. Code § 2356(b)]. For the purposes of Civ. Code § 2356(b) in the case of a principal who is an absentee as defined in Prob. Code § 1403, a person is deemed to be without actual knowledge of the following [Civ. Code § 2357]:

- The principal's death or incapacity while the absentee continues in missing status and until the person receives notice of the determination of the death of the absentee by the secretary concerned or the head of the department or agency concerned or the delegate of the secretary or head; and
- Revocation by the principal during the period described in Civ. Code § 2357(a).

Nothing in Civ. Code § 2356 affects the provisions of Civ. Code § 1216, which require that any power contained in an instrument to convey or execute instruments affecting real property can be revoked only by an instrument that is also acknowledged and proved, certified, and recorded in the same office in which the instrument containing the power was recorded [Civ. Code § 2356(c)]. Any California statute pertaining to a proxy given to another person relating to the exercise of voting rights that conflicts with or contravenes any provision of Civ. Code § 2356 prevails over that provision of Civ. Code § 2356 [Civ. Code § 2356(d)].

[2] Expiration of Term

When an agency is created by an agreement providing a specific term for the agency, the agency terminates when the term expires [Civ. Code § 2355(a); Preston v. Carnation Co. (1961) 196 Cal. App. 2d 43, 46, 16 Cal. Rptr. 240] .

[3] Extinction of Subject of Agency

An example of when an agency terminates because of the extinction of its subject is an agency for the purpose of selling a parcel of real property. When the parcel is sold, the agency relationship terminates [Civ. Code § 2355(b); E.A. Strout Western Realty v. Gregoire (1950) 101 Cal. App. 2d 512, 519, 225 P.2d 585] . For discussion of the relationship between a principal and a real estate broker, see Ch. 103, Brokers, § 103.12.

[4] By Actions of Parties

[a] In General

Because an agency depends on the mutual assent of the parties, it may be renounced by either the principal or the agent at any time [Woolley v. Embassy Suites, Inc. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 1520, 1529-1530, 278 Cal. Rptr. 719] . It may be terminated by the agent's renunciation [Civ. Code § 2355(d)], or, except in the case of an agency "coupled with an interest," by the principal's revocation [Civ. Code § 2356(a)(1); see § 427.20[4][b] and § 427.20[8]].

The parties may also mutually abandon an agency relationship, even if the relationship is not terminable by the act of one party alone [Preszler v. Dudley (1957) 153 Cal. App. 2d 120, 123-124, 314 P.2d 138] . The general body of contract law applies to agency agreements as well, so that rescission is available to the same extent as it is in contract law generally [Coleman v. Mora (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 137, 146, 69 Cal. Rptr. 166 ; see Civ. Code § 1689 (grounds for rescission); see also discussion of rescission in Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution].

[b] Revocation by Principal

Unless an agency is coupled with an interest [see § 427.20[8]], a principal has the power to revoke an agent's authority at any time before the agent has completed performance [Civ. Code § 2356(1); Elevator Operators etc. Union v. Newman (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 799, 807, 186 P.2d 1 ; Woolley v. Embassy Suites, Inc. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 1520, 1529, 278 Cal. Rptr. 719] . It should always be within the power of the principal to manage his or her own business, and that includes the power of the principal to reassume the control over the business that has been delegated to the agent [Woolley v. Embassy Suites, Inc. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 1520, 1530-1531, 278 Cal. Rptr. 719] .

[c] Contractual Limitations on Right to Terminate

If the agency was created by contract, the parties may provide that the agency will last for a particular period of time or otherwise restrict the right of either party to terminate the agency [see, e.g., Woolley v. EmbassySuites, Inc. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 1520, 1530, 278 Cal. Rptr. 719] . However, that provision is ineffective to curtail the principal's power to revoke the agency. The principal's power of revocation is absolute and applies even if doing so is a violation of the contract, or the agency is characterized as "irrevocable." Although revocation may not be prevented by the agent, the agent's remedy for wrongful termination is damages, as in any other breach of contract action [Woolley v. Embassy Suites, Inc. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 1520, 1530, 278 Cal. Rptr. 719 ; see Long Beach Drug Co. v. United Drug Co. (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 158, 174, 89 P.2d 386 ; see also Form 1]. A court may not order the agency reestablished [Stoll v. Stoll (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 687, 691-693, 56 P.2d 226 ; Woolley v. Embassy Suites, Inc. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 1520, 1529-1533, 278 Cal. Rptr. 719 ; see § 427.21].

[5] Incapacity of Agent

An agency is terminated as to every person having notice thereof by the incapacity of the agent to act as such [Civ. Code § 2355(e)]. One issue raised by Civ. Code § 2355(e) is the effect of an agent's temporary incapacity to contract on the agent's subsequent exercise of an authority given before the incapacity. Despite apparently clear statutory language that the agent's incapacity terminates the agency, at least one court has held that an agent's temporary incapacity does not terminate the agency for all purposes. The court noted that the adjudication of the agent's incompetency was somehow collusive and relied on that fact, and the equitable nature of the quiet title action in which it was raised, to hold that the agent's incapacity did not absolutely terminate the agency relationship [Clay v. Saute (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 681, 685-686, 295 P.2d 914] . The persuasiveness of that holding may, however, be diminished by the court's reliance on the conduct of the principal and the agent, both of whom continued to act as though the agency existed after the agent was restored to capacity; it may be argued that this conduct created an implied-in-fact agency, making the court's discussion of the effect of the incapacity unnecessary to the result reached [see Clay v. Saute (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 681, 686, 295 P.2d 914] .

[6] Death of Principal

The death of the principal terminates the agency unless the power of the agent is coupled with an interest in the subject of the agency [Civ. Code § 2356(a)(2); see discussion under § 427.20[8]]. The agency terminates immediately on the principal's death, except as to bona fide transactions entered into by third parties without knowledge of the principal's death [see Civ. Code § 2356(b)]. For example, the principal's estate is not liable to the agent under the agency agreement for actions of the estate that violate the agreement after the principal's death [Charles B. Webster Real Estate v. Rickard (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 612, 614-617, 98 Cal. Rptr. 559] .

[7] Incapacity of Principal to Contract

Unless the power of an agent is coupled with an interest in the subject of the agency, it is terminated by the incapacity of the principal to contract [Civ. Code § 2356(a)(3); see Civ. Code §§ 1556, 1557; see also Civ. Code §§ 38-40; for discussion of capacity, see Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.21]. An agency not coupled with an interest is terminated immediately on the incapacity of the principal, even when the agent has contracted to continue as agent for a definite time. The contract creating the agency, however, does not necessarily terminate at the same time [Capital Nat. Bk. of Sacramento v. Stoll (1934) 220 Cal. 260, 266, 30 P.2d 411 (incapacity of principal terminated agency but did not preclude liability for breach of agency contract); see discussion § 427.20[4][c]].

[8] Agency Coupled With Interest

The power of an agent coupled with an interest in the subject of the agency is not terminated by the revocation, death, or incapacity of the principal [see Civ. Code § 2356(a)]. This rule differentiates between the ordinary agency, instituted for the benefit of the principal, and an agency created for the benefit of the agent in order to protect some title or right of the agent, or to secure some performance to the agent [Becket v. Welton Becket & Associates (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 815, 820, 114 Cal. Rptr. 531] . For an agency agreement to be coupled with an interest, it must be all of the following [Becket v. Welton Becket & Associates (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 815, 820, 114 Cal. Rptr. 531 , citing Restatement of Agency § 138; see § 427.84 and comments to the form]:

- Held for the benefit of the agent rather than the principal.

- Created to secure the performance of a duty to the agent or to protect a title in the agent.
- Created at the same time that the duty or title is created or be created for consideration.

Perhaps the most common and clear example of a power coupled with an interest is a mortgage giving the mortgagee a power of sale. The power of sale is clearly held for the benefit of the mortgagee; it is created to protect the mortgagee's title; and it is created at the same time that the mortgage interest is created. The power is therefore not terminated by the death of the mortgagor [see New York Life Ins. Co. v. Doane (1936) 13 Cal. App. 2d 233, 237-239, 56 P.2d 989] .

Another type of agency coupled with an interest is one given as security for a duty, such as a debt, owed by the principal to the agent. For example, the creation of an agency relationship, by granting management of a business as security for loans made to the business, has been held irrevocable as coupled with an interest [MacDonald v. Rosenfeld (1948) 83 Cal. App. 2d 221, 236-237, 188 P.2d 519] . An agency to manage a building given with a 20-year lease on part of the building has also been held to be a power coupled with an interest in that the management permitted the lessee to protect itself against the potential forfeiture of the lessor's land lease [Lane Mortgage Co. v. Crenshaw (1928) 93 Cal. App. 411, 428-429, 269 P. 672] .

It must be emphasized that for an agency to be coupled with an interest, the interest must be a specific, present, and coexisting interest in the subject of the agency; the interest cannot be obtained by the exercise of the agency [O'Connell v. Superior Court (1935) 2 Cal. 2d 418, 422, 41 P.2d 334 ; Jay v. Dollarhide (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 1001, 1023, 84 Cal. Rptr. 538] . Monetary compensation for the agent, in whatever form it may take, does not create a power coupled with an interest that would make the agency irrevocable [Woolley v. Embassy Suites, Inc. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 1520, 1532, 278 Cal. Rptr. 719] . Thus, an agency whereby the agent is to acquire property or to collect money and take compensation from what is obtained is not coupled with an interest. The agent's interest in such a case is a future rather than present interest at the time the agency is created and is therefore revocable by the principal. Such an agency immediately terminates on the death of the principal [see Jay v. Dollarhide (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 1001, 1023, 84 Cal. Rptr. 538] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActBusiness TransactionsGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesKnowledge & NoticeGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsEstablishmentConsentBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsTerminationsGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsTerminationsConsentBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsTerminationsExpiration of TimeBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsTerminationsOperation of LawContracts LawPerformanceDischarges & Terminations

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.21

§ 427.21 Liability of Principal to Agent

[1] Compensation

As with contracts of employment generally, a promise of compensation in a reasonable amount is implied in an agreement to act as an agent for the benefit of another unless the parties intended that the services were to be performed gratuitously [see Toomy v. Dunphy (1890) 86 Cal. 639, 643, 25 P. 130 ; Spinelli v. Tallcott (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 589, 595, 77 Cal. Rptr. 481 ; § 427.82 and comments to the form; see also Ch. 121, Common Counts , and Ch. 250, Employment Law: Wage and Hour Disputes].

If an agency agreement provides for compensation, any dispute under the agreement will be resolved by resort to the basic rules of contract interpretation [Monroe v. Grolier Society (1929) 208 Cal. 447, 451, 281 P. 604 ; for discussion of contract interpretation, see Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.30 et seq.]. For discussion of the specific rules applcable to agreements for the sale of property, see Ch. 103, Brokers .

An agency relationship must exist between the principal and the agent for the agent to be entitled to compensation from the principal. If the purported agent is in fact only a subagent appointed by an agent who lacks authority to appoint new agents for the principal, the subagent must look to the agent for compensation [Goodwin v. Glick (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 936, 938-939 ; see discussion under § 427.16[6][c]].

[2] Wrongful Termination and Interference

If an agency agreement provides a specific term for agency, any earlier termination by the principal is within his or her power but may give rise to a cause of action for breach of contract [Stoll v. Stoll (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 687, 691-693, 56 P.2d 226 ; see discussion § 427.20[4][c]]. If an agency relationship is also that of employer and employee, a growing body of law limits the situations in which an employer may discharge an employee without infringing the employee's rights. For additional discussion of the law of wrongful discharge, see Ch. 249, Employment Law: Termination and Discipline .

Short of termination, a principal may interfere with an agent's ability to realize the benefits of an agency agreement. An agreement that makes an agent's compensation contingent on some result that the principal can affect is especially susceptible to the principal's interference. For example, when a principal interferes with an agent's exclusive sales contract by making sales directly, the agent has a cause of action for profits that would have been earned if the agent had made the sales [Hacker etc. Co. v. Chapman V. Mfg. Co. (1936) 17 Cal. App. 2d 265, 267-268, 61 P.2d 944 ; see § 427.81].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesCompensationBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsTerminationsGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsTerminationsConsentBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsTypesEmployee & EmployerLabor & Employment LawWrongful TerminationBreach of ContractImplied Contracts

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.22

§ 427.22 Liability of Principal to Third Party

[1] Authorized Acts of Agent

An agent represents his or her principal for all purposes within the scope of the agent's actual or ostensible agency, and all the rights and liabilities that would accrue to the agent from transactions within that limit, if they had been entered into on the agent's own account, accrue to the principal [Civ. Code § 2330]. This provision recognizes the basic agency concept that an agent can alter the legal relationships of the principal [see Lippert v. Bailey (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 376, 382, 50 Cal. Rptr. 478 ; see also discussion § 427.12]. Thus, the acts of an agent within the scope of his or her authority are considered the acts of the principal, even if not specifically authorized by or known to the principal, and third parties with whom an agent deals are entitled to enforce contracts entered into by the agent on behalf of a principal [see Madden v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 699, 707-709, 131 Cal. Rptr. 882, 552 P.2d 1178 ; see §§ 472.122, 427.124, 427.125; see also § 427.61[1]].

[2] Acts Under Ostensible Authority

A principal is bound by the acts of his or her agent, under a merely ostensible authority, to those persons only who have in good faith and without want of ordinary care incurred a liability or parted with value on the faith thereof [Civ. Code § 2334]. In applying Civ. Code § 2334, courts have held that there are three requirements for holding a principal liable to a third party for the acts of an agent under an ostensible authority [Associated Creditors' Agency v. Davis (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 374, 399, 118 Cal. Rptr. 772, 530 P.2d 1084 ; Mejia v. Community Hospital of San Bernardino (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1448, 1456-1457, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 233 (in action against hospital, injured patient argued there was sufficient evidence that negligent physician was ostensible agent of hospital to survive motion for nonsuit); see Civ. Code § 2334; see also §§ 427.122, 427.124; see also § 427.17]:

- The third party dealing with the agent must believe in the agent's authority and the belief must be reasonable.
- The belief must be generated by some act or neglect of the principal sought to be charged.
- The third person, in relying on the agent's apparent authority, must not be guilty of negligence.

Implicit in the third requirement is the necessity of reliance by the third party on the ostensible agency. Ostensible agency is based on a theory of estoppel, requiring that the third party justifiably and without negligence rely on the representation, express or by conduct, of the principal and either change position or suffer injury because of the reliance [People v. Surety Ins. Co. (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 556, 562, 186 Cal. Rptr. 385 ; Van Den Eikhof v. Hocker (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 900, 905-906, 151 Cal. Rptr. 456 (citing Restatement (Second) of Agency, § 265); Kelley v. R.F. Jones Co. (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 113, 120-121, 77 Cal. Rptr. 170 ; see Civ. Code § 2334; see also Associated Creditors' Agency v. Davis (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 374, 403, 118 Cal. Rptr. 772, 530 P.2d 1084] .

While the representations relied on by the third party must be those of the principal rather than the agent, there need not be direct contact between the principal and the third party. The manifestation of the agent's authority by the principal may be to the community at large, as for example by appointing the agent to a particular position within a corporation [Meyer v. Ford Motor Co. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 90, 102, 79 Cal. Rptr. 816 ; see discussion under § 427.14[5] and 427.16[3]]. In one case, a real estate purchaser raised a triable issue of fact that a franchisor was liable for fraud allegedly committed by a franchisee under an ostensible agency theory. Although the franchisor made no specific representations to the purchaser, it did make representations to the public in general on which the purchaser reasonably relied. The purchaser did not notice the small print disclaimer on the franchisor's advertising and instead relied on the large print and believed that he was dealing with the franchisor [Kaplan v. Coldwell Banker Residential Affiliates, Inc. (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 741, 747, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 640] .

A third party may not attribute a corporate employee's acts to the corporation under the ostensible authority doctrine when the third party is engaged in a conspiracy with the employee to use the corporation toobtain a benefit for himself [Saks v. Charity Mission Baptist Church (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 1116, 1139-1140, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 45] . Thus, in an action for breach of contract and fraud, a church was held not liable on promissory notes signed by its pastor when the plaintiff, a real estate investor, acquiesced in a scheme to wrongfully use the church's name to obtain a financial benefit for himself and his partners. In this situation, the doctrines of respondeat superior, ostensible authority, and equitable estoppel did not provide a ground for imposition of liability on a fraud theory [Saks v. Charity Mission Baptist Church (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 1116, 1137-1140, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 45] .

A principal who knows that the agent holds himself or herself as clothed with certain authority and remains silent, may be liable for the acts of the agent within the scope of the authority [Preis v. American Indemnity Co. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 752, 761, 269 Cal. Rptr. 617] .

[3] Unauthorized Acts of Agent

When an agent exceeds his or her authority in dealing with a third party, the principal ordinarily is not liable to the third party for the agent's unauthorized act, unless the principal's conduct created ostensible authority in the agent or the unauthorized act was later ratified by the principal [see Grasslands etc. Assn. v. Lucky etc. Co. (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 776, 779, 247 P.2d 380 ; Civ. Code § 2339; discussion under § 427.22[5]; see also discussion § 427.61[1]]. When an agent exceeds his or her authority, the principal is liable for the agent's authorized acts only so far as they can be plainly separated from the unauthorized acts [Civ. Code § 2333].

[4] Incomplete Execution of Authority

A principal is bound by an incomplete execution of an authority when it is consistent with the whole purpose and scope of the authority, but not otherwise [Civ. Code § 2331].

[5] Torts of Agents

[a] Liability of Principal for Acts of Employee Agents Under Respondeat Superior

If an agent is also the principal's employee [see 427.13[1]], the employer-principal is liable under the doctrine of respondeat superior for all of the employee-agent's torts that are done in the scope of employment [see Perez v. Van Groningen & Sons, Inc. (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 962, 967, 227 Cal. Rptr. 106, 719 P.2d 676 ; see also In re Exxon Valdez (9th Cir. 2001) 270 F.3d 1215, 1233-1236 (corporation could be held vicariously liable for punitive damages based on ship captain's actions resulting in ship running aground and causing oil spill)]. Under respondeat superior, if the numerous requirements for determining whether one is acting within the scope of employment are met, it is unnecessary to determine whether the employee was acting with actual or ostensible authority in doing the particular tortious act [Johnson v. Monson (1920) 183 Cal. 149, 150-151, 190 P. 635 ; see Rodgers v. Kemper Constr. Co. (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 608, 617-618, 124 Cal. Rptr. 143 (employer liable for battery committed by employees within scope of employment; policy behind respondeat superior does not require that act be expressly authorized by employer)]. For further discussion of respondeat superior in the employer-employee context, including the rules for determining whether one is acting within the scope of employment, see Ch. 248, Employer's Liability for Employee's Torts .

[b] Liability of Principal for Acts of Nonemployee Agent Based on Right to Control

The line of cases that conclude that agents and independent contractors are mutually exclusive [§ 427.13[2]] stand for the proposition that if one requests the services of another and retains the right to control the manner and means of accomplishing the desired result, an agency relationship is created, whether or not the agent would be considered an employee under employment law. Pursuant to that relationship, the principal is liable for all torts of the agent committed within the scope of the relationship [see Malloy v. Fong (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 356, 370-372, 232 P.2d 241 (church denomination is liable for acts of its financially supported mission churches); Dorsic v. Kurtin (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 226, 238-239, 96 Cal. Rptr. 528 (service station owner may be agent of oil company based on pro visions of lease agreement giving company certain control over operation of station); Shoopman v. Pacific Greyhound Lines (1959) 169 Cal App. 2d 848, 853-856, 338 P.2d 3 (ticket agent is agent of bus company); Lewis v. Constitution Life Co. (1950) 215 P.2d 55 (general insurance agent is agent of particular insurer while conducting business for that insurer); see also Wickham v. Southland Corp. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 49, 54-59, 213 Cal. Rptr. 825 (agency between franchisee and franchisor is question of fact)].

Under this rule, if the requisite degree of control is found, the agency relationship is treated as if it were an employer-employee relationship [Lewis v. Constitution Life Co. (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 191, 193, 215 P.2d 55 ; see Restatement (Second) of Agency § 250, comment a]. The limitation in agency law on the liability of a principal for physical harm caused by the physical conduct of a nonservant agent [see Restatement (Second) of Agency § 250, see also § 427.22[5][c]] does not apply [see Malloy v. Fong (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 356, 370-372, 232 P.2d 241 ; Lewis v. Constitution Life Co. (1950) 215 P.2d 55 (both finding principal liable for agent's negligent driving while on the business of the agency)].

However, whether the concept of "within the scope of agency" in that case is coterminous with "within the scope of employment" is not clear [see Dorsic v. Kurtin (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 226, 238 n. 11, 96 Cal. Rptr. 528 (jury instruction affirmed that treated "scope of authority" similarly to "scope of employment")]. For example, one may be within the scope of employment without any actual or ostensible authority to do the act giving rise to liability based on a foreseeability standard [see Rodgers v. Kemper Constr. Co. (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 608, 617-618, 124 Cal. Rptr. 143 ; see also Ch. 248, Employer's Liability for Employee's Torts]. To date, no case appears to have applied a broad standard to the scope of agency arising from a right to control. But neither has any case adopted any limitations on principal liability apart from the applicable standards under employer-employee respondeat superior [see Malloy v. Fong (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 356, 370-372, 232 P.2d 241 (minister within scope of agency for denomination while transporting bible school pupils); Dorsic v. Kurtin (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 226, 238, 96 Cal. Rptr. 528 (service station owner within scope of agency for oil company with regard to premises liability); Housewright v. Pacific Far East Line, Inc. (1964) 40 Cal. Rptr. 208 (one corporation within scope of agency for another during jointly conducted test of equipment); Shoopman v. Pacific Greyhound Lines (1959) 169 Cal App. 2d 848, 853-856, 338 P.2d 3 (ticket agent within scope of agency for bus line with regard to false arrest over baggage dispute); Lewis v. Constitution Life Co.

(1950) 96 Cal App. 2d 191, 193-196, 215 P.2d 55 (insurance agent within scope of agency for insurer while on errand pursuant to instructions to tender check in exchange for receipt)].

Another uncertainty involves the question of the reliance requirement if the principal is to be charged for an act of an agent under ostensible authority [see Civ. Code §§ 2298, 2330, 2334, see also § 427.22[2]]. To date, no case appears to have considered whether this limitation on principal liability exists in an agency relationship arising from a right to control. Ostensible agency is a concept unique to agency law and relevant primarily to the agent's representative authority in business transactions. It does not create any limitations on employer tort liability under employer-employee respondeat superior [see Clark Equipment Co. v. Wheat (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 503, 521, 154 Cal. Rptr. 874 (cases do not always distinguish between agency theories of actual and ostensible authority and tort doctrine of respondeat superior)].

[c] Limitations on Tort Liability of Principal for Acts of Nonemployee Agent

In the case of agency between a principal and a nonemployee agent based on grounds other than a right to control [see discussion under § 427.13[2] and 427.22[5][b]], there are limitations on the scope of the tort liability of the principal for the acts of the agent. Ordinarily, a principal is not liable for physical harm caused by the negligent physical conduct of a nonemployee agent, even if the conduct occurred during the performance of the principal's business. Liability is limited because the principal does not have the right of control over the details of the nonemployee agent's conduct [Van Den Eikhof v. Hocker (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 900, 905, 151 Cal. Rptr. 456 (citing Restatement (Second) of Agency § 250 and Prosser, Torts, § 70 (West 4th ed. 1971)]. Therefore, al though an employer is liable to third persons who are injured by the employee's negligent driving within the scope of employment, a principal is not similarly liable for the acts of a nonemployee agent [compare Van Den Eikhof v. Hocker (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 900, 905, 151 Cal. Rptr. 456 (principal-agent), with Lazar v. Thermal Equipment Corp. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 458, 462-467, 195 Cal. Rptr. 890 (employer-employee)].

This limitation applies only if the principal does not control or have the right to control the details of the agent's physical movements while the agent is conducting the authorized transaction. If the principal retains a right of control, the relationship is treated as that of employer-employee, and the limitation is inapplicable [see Restatement (Second) of Agency § 250, comment a; § 427.22[5][b]].

[d] Misrepresentation and Other Fraudulent Acts

A principal's liability for an agent's acts includes responsibility for misrepresentations or other fraudulent acts perpetrated by the agent on a third party [see Spahn v. Guild Industries Corp. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 143, 155-156, 156 Cal. Rptr. 375] . It is not necessary that a principal be a party to the fraud or authorize an agent to make misrepresentations, although a finding that a principal authorized or ratified the misrepresentation will support a principal's liability [Spahn v. Guild Industries Corp. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 143, 155-156, 156 Cal. Rptr. 375 ; see § 427.18].

If the authority granted to an agent puts the agent in a position to commit a fraud while apparently acting within his or her authority, the agent's knowledge of the falsity of his or her representations will be imputed to the principal even if the agent is acting adversely to the principal. Therefore, the principal may be held liable for the fraud of his or her agent against an innocent third party, and it is immaterial that the principal received no benefits from the transaction [Spahn v. Guild Industries Corp. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 143, 155-156, 156 Cal. Rptr. 375 ; see also discussion § 427.62[1]]. The principal's liability is based on the fact that the agent's position facilitates the commission of the fraud, since the third person views the transaction as regular on its face and the agent appears to be acting in the ordinary course of the business confided to him or her [Rutherford v. Rideout Bank (1938) 11 Cal. 2d 479, 484, 80 P.2d 978 ; Spahn v. Guild Industries Corp. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 143, 155-156, 156 Cal. Rptr. 375] .

[6] Exemplary Damages

An employer is not liable for exemplary damages under Civ. Code § 3294(a), based on acts of an employee of the employer, unless the employer hadadvance knowledge of the unfitness of the employee and employed him or her with a conscious disregard of the rights and safety of others or authorized or ratified the wrongful conduct for which the damages are awarded or was personally guilty of oppression, fraud, or malice [Civ. Code § 3294(b)]. With respect to a corporate employer, the advance knowledge and conscious disregard, authorization, ratification or act of oppression, fraud, or malice must be on the part of an officer, director, or managing agent of the corporation [Civ. Code § 3294(b); see White v. Ultramar, Inc. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 563, 566-567, 573, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 19, 981 P.2d 944 (construing "managing agent" to include only corporate employees who exercise substantial independent authority and judgment in corporate decision making so that their decisions ultimately determine corporate policy)].

Although Civ. Code § 3294 refers only to employers, it has been held that the 1981 amendment to Civ. Code § 3294 that inserted the rule as to employers was based on previous judicial definitions of the liability of principals and employers for the acts of agents and employees [Chodos v. Insurance Co. of North America (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 86, 102, 178 Cal. Rptr. 831 ; see Egan v. Mutual of Omaha Ins. Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 809, 822-823, 157 Cal. Rptr. 482, 598 P.2d 452 , cert. denied, (1980) 445 U.S. 912, 100 S. Ct. 1271, 63 L. Ed. 2d 597 ; Merlo v. Standard Life & Acc. Ins. Co. (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 5, 18, 130 Cal. Rptr. 416] . Thus, the statute probably also applies to the principal-agent relationship outside of the employment context (see § 427.13[1]).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActContracts & ConveyancesLiability of PrincipalBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsCauses of Action & RemediesGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesAuthorized Acts of AgentsLiability of PrincipalBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesNegligent Acts of AgentsLiability of PrincipalsBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesUnlawful Acts of AgentsGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesUnlawful Acts of AgentsFraud & MisrepresentationBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesUnlawful Acts of AgentsIntentional & Willful InjuriesBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsEstablishmentElementsRight to Control by PrincipalBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsRatificationLiabilitiesTortsVicarious LiabilityAgentsApparent AuthorityTortsVicarious LiabilityEmployersScope of EmploymentFactors

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.23

§ 427.23 Liability of Agent to Principal

[1] Breach of Fiduciary Duty

An agent is the principal's fiduciary (see discussion under § 427.12[3]). Therefore, the breach of any duty to the principal is tortious in nature, giving rise to a cause of action for the recovery of all the detriment proximately caused by the breach, whether or not it could have been anticipated. As far as possible, the court will place the principal in the position that he or she would have occupied had the fiduciary duties been performed [Michelson v. Hamada (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1566, 1579-1582, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 343 ; Pollack v. Lytle (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 931, 940-941, 175 Cal. Rptr. 81 ; see Civ. Code § 3333; see also § 427.100 and comments to that form].

All profits that come from the subject matter of the agency belong to the principal and may be recovered either in an action for breach of fiduciary duty or in a separate action as a common count for money had and received [Pollack v. Lytle (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 931, 940-941, 175 Cal. Rptr. 81 ; Store of Happiness v. Carmona & Allen (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 266, 272, 312 P.2d 1104 ; see § 427.100; see also Ch. 121, Common Counts]. The agent's undisclosed profits realized from an agency transaction are recoverable by the principal even if the price paid by the principal was fair [see Wade v. Diamond A Cattle Co. (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 453, 458, 118 Cal. Rptr. 695] . Similarly, any property acquired by an agent in violation of his or her duty of loyalty to the principal can subject the agent to liability for the failure to use the property for the benefit of the principal [Church of Scientology v. Armstrong (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1060, 1073 n.6, 283 Cal. Rptr. 917 ; see discussion § 427.23[2]].

[2] Accounting

All benefits and advantages received by the agent as an outgrowth of the agency are deemed to have been acquired for the benefit of the principal. The fiduciary nature of the agent's duties to the principal requires the agent to account, on demand of the principal, for all such benefits received [Savage v. Mayer (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 548, 551, 203 P.2d 9 ; Kennard v. Glick (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 246, 250-251, 7 Cal. Rptr. 88] . Once it is established that an agent has come into possession of money or some other thing for the principal, the agent has the burden of showing that the money or other thing was delivered to the principal or disposed of in accordance with the agent's authority. The failure to keep an accurate account will result in a heavy presumption in favor of the principal [Kennard v. Glick (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 246, 250-251, 7 Cal. Rptr. 88] . It is not necessary that the agent be found guilty of any deceit for the principal to recover; the duty to account is part of the general duty of all agents [Savage v. Mayer (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 548, 551, 203 P.2d 9 ; St. James Armenian Church v. Kurkjian (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 547, 553, 121 Cal. Rptr. 214 ; see Form 21 and comments to that form]. For additional discussion of accounting actions, see Ch. 7, Accounting, Action for.

[3] Negligence

When the principal is damaged by the agent's failure to use reasonable care, skill, and diligence in carrying out the duties of the agency, the principal may recover all damages from the agent in a negligence action [Timmsen v. Forest E. Olson, Inc. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 860, 871, 86 Cal. Rptr. 359 ; see discussion under § 427.23; § 427.100 and comments to that form; see also Ch. 380, Negligence].

[4] Breach of Contract

A principal may hold an agent liable for damages for breach of the agency agreement [Spitzer v. Pathe Exchange, Inc. (1933) 132 Cal. App. 612, 619, 23 P.2d 308 ; see Civ. Code § 3300; see also § 427.20[4][c]; § 427.103]. For additional discussion relating to breach of contract actions, see Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.50 et seq.].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsCauses of Action & RemediesGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsCauses of Action & RemediesBreach of ContractBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsCauses of Action & RemediesBreach of Fiduciary DutyGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsCauses of Action & RemediesCompensatory DamagesBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesCare, Good Faith & Reasonable SkillDuty of Care & Reasonable SkillBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesCare, Good Faith & Reasonable SkillDuty of Loyalty, Good Faith & Fair DealingBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesNegligent Acts of AgentsGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesNegligent Acts of AgentsLiability of Agents

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.24

§ 427.24 Liability of Agent to Third Party

[1] Breach of Warranty of Authority

One who assumes to act as an agent thereby warrants, to all who deal with him or her as an agent, that the authority to act as such actually exists [Civ. Code § 2342]. An action for breach of the warranty of authority by a third party against an agent depends on allegations that the agent acted in excess of his or her authority and that the third person was ignorant of the true limits of the agent's authority and acted on the basis of representations, either express or implied, that the agent was acting pursuant to his or her authority [Yoakum v. Tarver (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 202, 206-207, 64 Cal. Rptr. 7 ; Cheda v. Grandi (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 513, 518-519, 218 P.2d 97 ; see also § 427.120 and comments to that form]. The detriment caused by a breach of a warranty of an agent's authority is the amount that could have been recovered and collected from the agent's principal had the warranty been complied with, and the reasonable expenses of legal proceedings taken in good faith to enforce the act of the agent against his or her principal [Civ. Code § 3318].

[2] Wrongful Delivery of Third Party's Property

An agent who receives anything for the benefit of the principal, of which a third person is entitled to possession, must on demand surrender it to that person, or surrender so much of it as the agent has under his or her control at the time of the demand. The agent must be indemnified, however, for any advance the agent made to the principal in good faith on account of the thing possessed. The agent is responsible to the third person if, after notice from the owner, the agent delivers it to the principal [Civ. Code § 2344].

[3] As Principal

One who assumes to act as an agent is responsible to third persons as a principal for his or her acts in the course of his or her agency in any of the following cases, but in no others [Civ. Code § 2343]:

- If, with his or her consent, credit is given to him or her personally in a transaction;

- If the agent enters into a written contract in the principal's name without believing in good faith that he or she has authority to do so; or

- If the agent's acts are wrongful in their nature.

If, at the time a contract is made, the identity of the principal is disclosed, it is presumed that credit was given to the principal and not to the agent and that only the principal is bound under Civ. Code § 2343(1). However, disclosure does not establish the nonliability of the agent as a matter of law. It merely permits an inference to that effect, which may be overcome by proving other facts connected with the transaction, including custom and usage in an industry [Midwest Television, Inc. v. Scott, Lancaster, Mills & Atha, Inc. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 442, 449 n.4, 451, 252 Cal. Rptr. 573] . For discussion of liability if agency is not disclosed, see § 427.26.

An agent's responsibility under Civ. Code § 2343(3) for his or her wrongful acts in the course of the agency effectively precludes a tortfeasor from escaping liability because he or she was acting as an agent. The fact that a tortious act arises during the performance of a duty created by contract does not negate the agent's personal liability for the tort [Bayuk v. Edson (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 309, 320, 46 Cal. Rptr. 49 ; see § 427.121 and comments to that form; see also Otanez v. Blue Skies Mobile Home Park (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 1521, 1526, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 210 (viewing acts, made wrongful by statute only if committed by landlords, as not "wrongful in nature" when committed by agents of landlord)].

[4] For Principal's Fraud

Generally, an agent is not liable to a third party for the principal's fraud unless the agent knew of or participated in the fraudulent act. To be liable, the agent would have to have excercised some degree of control over the persons responsible for the fraud [Mars v. Wedbush Morgan Securities, Inc. (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1608, 1616, 283 Cal. Rptr. 238] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActContracts & ConveyancesLiability of AgentBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesAuthorized Acts of AgentsUnauthorized ActsBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesNegligent Acts of AgentsGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesNegligent Acts of AgentsLiability of AgentsBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesUnlawful Acts of AgentsFraud & MisrepresentationContracts LawDefensesFraud & MisrepresentationGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.25

§ 427.25 Rights of Indemnity Between Principal and Agent

A principal who becomes vicariously liable to a third party as a result of the unauthorized act of his or her agent (see discussion under § 427.22[5]) has a right to indemnity from the agent [see Bradley v. Rosenthal (1908) 154 Cal. 420, 423-425, 97 P. 875 ; Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Haslam (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1347, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 135 ; Herrero v. Atkinson (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 69, 77, 38 Cal. Rptr. 490] . Similarly, an agent who incurs personal liability to a third party in the course of carrying out the business of the agency may obtain indemnity from the principal [see Sunset-Sternau Food Co. v. Bonzi (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 834, 837, 36 Cal. Rptr. 741, 389 P.2d 133 ; Fidelity Mortgage Trustee Service, Inc. v. Ridgegate East Homeowners Assn. (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 503, 509-511, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 521 ; Rimington v. General Accident Group of Ins. Cos. (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 394, 397, 23 Cal. Rptr. 40] .

Many of the cases establishing indemnity rights in the principal-agent relationship were decided at a time when indemnity was an all-or-nothing proposition; if there was a right of indemnity, the entire liability was shifted from the indemnitee to the indemnitor. Under current law, all indemnity not arising from express contractual provisions is comparative; either a partial or a total shift of liability may be appropriate, depending on the circumstances of the case [see Far West Financial Corp. v. D & S Co. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 796, 808, 812-813, 251 Cal. Rptr. 202, 760 P.2d 399 ; see also Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Haslam (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1347, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 135 ; Fidelity Mortgage Trustee Service, Inc. v. Ridgegate East Homeowners Assn. (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 503, 509-511, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 521 (both reaffirming right to total indemnity under current law)].

For further discussion, see Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution , and N. Levy, M. Golden & L. Sacks, eds., California Torts, ch. 74 (Matthew Bender). For a form of complaint for indemnity by an agent from a principal, see § 427.83. For a form of complaint for indemnity by a principal from an agent, see § 427.102.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesIndemnityTortsVicarious LiabilityAgentsIndemnity

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.26

§ 427.26 Undisclosed Agency

[1] Liability of Undisclosed Principal

A contract made by an agent for an undisclosed principal is, for most purposes, the contract of the principal. Unless excluded by the terms of the agreement made by the agent, the undisclosed principal may claim the benefit of the contract [American Builder's Assn. v. Au-Yang (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 170, 176, 276 Cal. Rptr. 262] . Similarly, the undisclosed principal, when discovered, is liable for the agent's authorized contracts [Standard Oil Co. of Cal. v. Doneux (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 608, 611, 13 Cal. Rptr. 749 ; see § 427.126 and Comments thereto; see also discussion § 427.61[1]]. The undisclosed principal may sue and be sued on the contract in the agent's own name [American Builder's Assn. v. Au-Yang (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 170, 176, 276 Cal. Rptr. 262] .

An actual agency must have existed, in order for the undisclosed principal to be liable [Associated Creditors' Agency v. Davis (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 374, 385, 118 Cal. Rptr. 772, 530 P.2d 1084] . However, presumably a subsequent ratification that creates an actual agency suffices to permit the third party to hold the undisclosed principal liable on the ratified contract [see Civ. Code § 2307; see also discussion § 427.62[11]].

The third party must not have relied exclusively on the agent's credit. A showing that the third party intended to rely only on the agent's credit rather than the unknown principal's credit precludes liability on the part of an undisclosed principal who has satisfied the principal's obligations to the agent in good faith before receiving notice of the third party's election to seek recovery from the principal [see Civ. Code § 2335; Associated Creditors' Agency v. Davis (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 374, 385, 118 Cal. Rptr. 772, 530 P.2d 1084 ; Rigney v. De La Salle Institute (1935) 10 Cal. App. 2d 492, 499, 52 P.2d 579] .

Cases interpreting Civ. Code § 2335 have focused on the exclusivity of the credit extended to the agent and have required that intervening circumstances must exist to show that the third party intended to grant credit exclusively to the agent [compare Rigney v. De La Salle Institute (1935) 10 Cal. App. 2d 492, 498 (third party delivered final lien waivers to agent, showing intent to rely on agent's credit), with Wahyou v. Kiernan (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 443, 444, 302 P.2d 638 (third party's dealings with agent were insufficient to show exclusivity of credit)]. For example, if the principal relied on lien waivers that third parties had given to the agent as evidence that the agent had paid the third parties, and the principal paid the agent all that was due the third parties, then the principal's payment to the agent exonerates the principal from liability to the third parties under Civ. Code § 2335 [Rigney v. De La Salle Institute (1935) 10 Cal. App. 2d 492, 498, 52 P.2d 579] .

[2] Third Party's Election Against Parties Liable

[a] When Required

If a third party has contracted with an agent without knowledge of the principal's existence, and later learns of the agency relationship, the third party may recover from either the agent or the principal. However, the agent and undisclosed principal are liable alternatively, not jointly and severally. Once the third party knows of the existence of the undisclosed agency relationship, the third party may enforce a judgment against one or the other but not both, and must elect whether to proceed against the agent or the undisclosed principal [Standard Oil Co. of Cal. v. Doneux (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 608, 611-612, 13 Cal. Rptr. 749 ; Klinger v. Modesto Fruit Co., Inc. (1930) 107 Cal. App. 97, 100, 290 P. 127] . The election is not required until the third party has learned of the existence of the undisclosed principal [see Standard Oil Co. of Cal. v. Doneux (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 608, 613, 13 Cal. Rptr. 749 ; see discussion under § 427.26[2][c]].

An election is not required if the principal was in fact disclosed, at least partially, to the third party. In that situation, only a satisfied judgment against the agent will bar an action against the principal based on the same transaction [Clifton Cattle Co. v. Thompson (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 11, 16-17, 117 Cal. Rptr. 500 ; Zingheim v. Marshall (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 736, 747-748, 57 Cal. Rptr. 809 , cert. denied sub nom. Rogers v. Zingheim (1967) 389 U.S. 831] .

[b] Defendant's Demand

The doctrine of election is an extension of the general principles of equitable estoppel and, like estoppel, is an affirmative defense that the defendant must plead, otherwise it will be deemed waived [Roam v. Koop (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1044, 116 Cal. Rptr. 539 ; Klinger v. Modesto Fruit Co., Inc. (1930) 107 Cal. App. 97, 104, 290 P. 127] .

[c] Timing of Plaintiff's Election

The election is not required until the third party has learned of the existence of the undisclosed principal. When a demand for an election ismade by a defendant, no election need be made until the court has ruled on whether the principal can be bound by the agent's acts, as when the principal argues that the agent lacked authority to act for the principal. Only when the third party knows that the agent was indeed acting on behalf of the undisclosed principal must an election be made [Standard Oil Co. of Cal. v. Doneux (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 608, 614, 13 Cal. Rptr. 749] . Therefore, a judgment obtained against the agent without knowledge of the agency does not preclude a later action against the undisclosed principal [see Standard Oil Co. of Cal. v. Doneux (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 608, 613, 13 Cal. Rptr. 749] .

[3] Action Against Agent

A third party may sue the agent of an undisclosed principal either at the election of the third party once knowledge of the agency exists or as a codefendant in an action against both the agent and the principal pending election. The agent can escape liability on the ground of having been merely an agent by showing that the principal was disclosed at the time the contract was entered into and that the acts were done on the principal's behalf, enabling the third party to have recourse against the principal only [J & J Builders Supply v. Caffin (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 292, 295, 56 Cal. Rptr. 365] .

The disclosure requirement, for the agent to avoid personal liability to the third party, is not met when the agent merely discloses the trade name of the otherwise undisclosed principal [W.W. Leasing Unlimited v. Commercial Standard Title Ins. Co. (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 792, 796, 197 Cal. Rptr. 118] . For example, an agent may be held liable on a contract with a third party in which the agent discloses the existence of the agency and uses the principal's trade name but does not disclose the principal's true name or corporate status [G.W. Andersen Construction Co. v. Mars Sales (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 326, 330-333, 210 Cal. Rptr. 409] . It is not the third party's duty to ascertain the principal's identity; rather, it is the agent's duty to disclose the principal's identity [W.W. Leasing Unlimited v. Commercial Standard Title Ins. Co. (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 792, 796, 197 Cal. Rptr. 118] .

[4] Rights of Principal

An undisclosed principal is not limited to accepting the burdens of the agent's acts but has the rights of a contracting party [see Civ. Code § 2330]. Thus, an undisclosed principal may sue a third party for specific performance or damages in the event of breach of a contract entered into by an agent in the agent's name, and the suit constitutes a ratification of the agent's act [Schader v. White (1916) 173 Cal. 441, 445, 160 P. 557 ; Wood Bldg. Corp. v. Griffitts (1958) 164 Cal. App. 2d 559, 565, 330 P.2d 847 ; see § 427.18]. The principal also may take advantage of other rights created by the contract; for example, the principal may rely on a disclaimer of warranties in a contract for the sale of goods, despite the fact that the disclaimer nominally ran only to the agent who executed the contract [Buckley v. Shell Chemical Co. (1939) 32 Cal. App. 2d 209, 215, 89 P.2d 453] .

Conversely, a third party who deals with an agent, without knowing or having reason to believe that the agent acts as an agent in the transaction, may set off against any claim of the principal arising out of the transaction all claims that the third party might have set off against the agent before notice of the agency [Civ. Code § 2336].

If the third party gives exclusive credit to the agent, or relies on the agent's skill, solvency, or other personal attributes in entering into the contract, the principal is not a party to the contract and has no rights or liabilities under it [Walton v. Davis (1913) 22 Cal. App. 456, 459-460, 134 P. 795 ; see Civ. Code §§ 2330, 2335; see also § 427.26[1] and § 427.24[3]].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActContracts & ConveyancesLiability of PrincipalBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDisclosureGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDisclosurePartially Disclosed PrincipalBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDisclosureUndisclosed PrincipalBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsRatificationLiabilities

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.27

§ 427.27 Valid Power of Attorney

[1] Basic Requirements

A power of attorney is a written instrument, however denominated, that is executed by a natural person having the capacity to contract [Prob. Code § 4120] (who is called the principal) and that grants authority to an attorney in fact [Prob. Code §§ 4022, 4026; see Prob. Code § 4123 (authority that may be granted in power of attorney)], regardless of whether that person is known as an attorney in fact, or as an agent, or by some other term [Prob. Code § 4014(a)]. A power of attorney is legally sufficient if all of the following requirements are met [Prob. Code § 4121]:

- The power of attorney contains the date of execution.

- The power of attorney is signed either by the principal or in the principal's name by some other adult in the principal's presence and at the principal's direction.

- The power of attorney is either acknowledged before a notary public or signed by at least two qualified witnesses.

If the power of attorney is signed by witnesses, the witnesses must be adults, the attorney in fact may not act as a witness, and each witness signing the power of attorney must witness either the signing of the instrument by the principal or the principal's acknowledgment of the signature or the power of attorney [Prob. Code § 4122]. In the case of a durable power of attorney for health care, there are additional requirements regarding witnesses [see discussion under § 427.39[3][b]].

For discussion and forms of instruments sufficient to create powers of attorney, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 98, Powers of Attorney (Matthew Bender).

The Multiple-Party Accounts Law [see Prob. Code § 5100 et seq.] authorizes a special power of attorney for accounts at financial institutions [see Prob. Code § 5204]. For discussion of that law, see Ch. 95, Banks, Deposits, and Checks, § 95.180 et seq.

[2] Requirements for Springing Power of Attorney

A springing power of attorney is one that by its terms becomes effective at a specified future time or on the occurrence of a specified future event or contingency, including, but not limited to, the principal's subsequent incapacity [Prob. Code § 4030]. In a springing power of attorney, the principal may designate a person or persons who, by a written declaration under penalty of perjury, will have the power to determine conclusively that the specified event or contingency has occurred. The principal may designate the attorney in fact or another person to perform this function, either alone or jointly with other persons [Prob. Code § 4129(a)]. A springing power of attorney containing that designation becomes effective when the persons designated in the power of attorney execute a written declaration under penalty of perjury that the specified event or contingency has occurred. In that case, any person may act in reliance on the written declaration without liability to the principal or to any other person, regardless of whether the specified event or contingency has actually occurred [Prob. Code § 4129(b)]. However, this is not the exclusive method by which a power of attorney may be limited to take effect on the occurrence of a specified event or contingency [Prob. Code § 4129(d)].

A statutory form power of attorney can be a springing power [see Prob. Code § 4405; see also § 427.27[4]].

[3] Durable Power of Attorney

[a] Requirements

A power of attorney (including a springing power) may be durable or nondurable [Prob. Code §§ 4022, 4030]. A durable power of attorney is one that contains any words, similar to the examples below, showing the principal's intent that the authority conferred shall be exercisable notwithstanding the principal's subsequent incapacity. Either of the following examples is sufficient [Prob. Code § 4124]:

- "This power of attorney shall not be affected by subsequent incapacity of the principal."
- "This power of attorney shall become effective upon the incapacity of the principal."

A statutory form power of attorney that is otherwise legally sufficient [see discussion under § 427.27[4]] is durable to the extent that the power of attorney contains language, such as "This power of attorney will continue to be effective even though I become incapacitated," showing the principal's intent that the power granted may be exercised notwithstanding later incapacity [Prob. Code § 4404].

[b] Use of Commercial Printed Form

A printed form of durable power of attorney, other than a statutory form power of attorney [see Prob. Code § 4400 et seq.; see discussion under § 427.27[4]] or a durable power of attorney for health care [see Prob. Code § 4600 et seq.], that is sold or otherwise distributed in California for use by a person who does not have the advice of legal counsel must contain, in not less than 10-point boldface type or a reasonably equivalent type, a warning statement prescribed by statute [Prob. Code § 4128(a); see Prob. Code § 4102 (validity of printed form of durable power of attorney complying with former Civil Code provisions)]. However, noncompliance with the requirement does not invalidate any transaction in which a third person relied in good faith on the authority created by the durable power of attorney [Prob. Code § 4128(b), (c)].

[4] Use of Statutory Form

A power of attorney that conforms substantially to the prescribed statutory form power of attorney [see Prob. Code § 4402(a) (standard for substantial conformity)] is legally sufficient when the form is properly completed and the principal's signature is acknowledged [Prob. Code §§ 4401, 4402(b), (c)].

A statutory form power of attorney that limits the power to take effect upon the occurrence of a specified event or contingency, including, but not limited to, the principal's incapacity, may contain a provision designating a person or persons who, by a written declaration under penalty of perjury, shall have the power to determine conclusively that the specified event or contingency has occurred [Prob. Code § 4405(a), (c)]. A statutory form power of attorney that contains such a provision becomes effective when the persons designated in the power of attorney execute a written declaration under penalty of perjury that the specified event or contingency has occurred. In that case, any person may act in reliance on the written declaration without liability to the principal or to any other person, regardless whether the specified event or contingency has actually occurred [Prob. Code § 4405(b)]. However, this is not the exclusive method by which a statutory form power of attorney may be limited to take effect upon the occurrence of a specified event or contingency [Prob. Code § 4405(d)].

General provisions in the Power of Attorney Law regarding the authority of an attorney in fact [see Prob. Code § 4260 et seq.; see also discussion in § 427.33[1]] do not apply in the case of a statutory form power of attorney [Prob. Code § 4260]. The authority of the attorney in fact under a statutory form power of attorney is governed by provisions in the Uniform Statutory Form Power of Attorney Act [see Prob. Code § 4450 et seq.].

[5] Compliance With Other Law

A power of attorney embodied in the statutory form [see [4], above] but not conforming to requirements specified in the Uniform Statutory Form Power of Attorney Act [Prob. Code § 4400 et seq.] can be valid nevertheless if it meets general law requirements for a power of attorney [Torres v. Torres (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 870, 875-877, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 754]

A durable power of attorney that was executed in another state or country in compliance with the law of that state or country or the law ofCalifornia is valid and enforceable in California to the same extent as a durable power of attorney executed in California, regardless of whether the principal is a domiciliary of California [Prob. Code § 4053].

A power of attorney for health care (also known as an "advance health care directive" or "advance directive" effective July 1, 2000) or similar instrument that was executed in another state or country in compliance with the law of that state or country or the law of California is valid and enforceable in California to the same extent as a power of attorney for health care or advance health care directive executed in California [Prob. Code § 4676].

[6] Passage of Time

[a] Effect Generally

Unless a power of attorney states a time of termination, the authority of the attorney in fact is exercisable notwithstanding any passage of time since execution of the power of attorney [Prob. Code § 4127].

[b] Application of Power to After-Acquired Property

The powers of an attorney in fact under the statutory form power of attorney [see Prob. Code § 4450 et seq.; see discussion § 427.27[4]] are exercisable equally with respect to a property interest that the principal has when the statutory form power of attorney is executed or an interest that the principal acquires later [Prob. Code § 4464].

[c] Printed Form or Statutory Form Power of Attorney Under Former Law

A printed form or statutory form power of attorney that was executed in compliance with Civil Code provisions in effect on the date of execution is not rendered invalid solely by the subsequent amendment or repeal of those provisions [cf. Prob. Code §§ 4102, 4409].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActActual AuthorityGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActActual AuthorityOral & Written Authority

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.28

§ 427.28 Modification or Revocation of Power of Attorney

[1] Minimum Sufficient Acts

A principal may modify a power of attorney in accordance with the terms of the power of attorney or by an instrument executed in the same manner as a power of attorney may be executed [Prob. Code § 4150(a)].

A principal may revoke a power of attorney in accordance with the terms of the power of attorney or by any writing (notwithstanding any provision to the contrary in the power of attorney) [Prob. Code § 4151(a)].

An attorney in fact or third person who does not have notice of the modification or revocation is protected from liability [Prob. Code §§ 4150(b), 4151(b); see discussion under § 427.36[4]].

[2] Authorization for Fiduciary to Act

If a conservator of the principal's estate is appointed by a California court, the conservator may modify or revoke a durable power of attorney only if the court in which the conservatorship proceeding is pending has first made an order authorizing or requiring the conservator to modify or revoke the durable power of attorney, and the modification or revocation is in accord with the order [Prob. Code § 4206(b)]. If a court of another state (that is the principal's domicile) appoints a conservator of the estate, guardian of the estate, or other fiduciary charged with the management of all of the principal's property or all of the principal's property except specified exclusions, the attorney in fact under a durable power of attorney is accountable to the fiduciary as well as to the principal, and the fiduciary has the same power to modify or revoke the durable power of attorney that the principal would have had if not incapacitated, subject to any required court approval [Prob. Code § 4206(a)].

[3] Subsequent Execution of Power of Attorney

A valid durable power of attorney for health care or advance health care directive revokes any prior durable power of attorney for health care, unless the later power of attorney provides otherwise [Prob. Code § 4727(d)].

[4] Power to Execute Instruments Affecting Real Property

No power contained in an instrument to convey or execute instruments affecting real property that has been recorded is revoked by any act of the principal unless the instrument containing the revocation is also acknowledged or proved, certified, and recorded, in the same office in which the instrument containing the power was recorded [Civ. Code § 1216; see Gov. Code § 27238 (recorder as required to keep index of powers of attorney)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActActual AuthorityGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActActual AuthorityOral & Written Authority

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.29

§ 427.29 Cessation of Authority of Attorney in Fact

[1] Terminating Event

The authority of an attorney in fact under a power of attorney is terminated (but the power of attorney is not necessarily revoked) by any of the following events [Prob. Code § 4152(a)]:

- A terminating event in accordance with the terms of the power of attorney.
- Extinction of the subject or fulfillment of the purpose of the power of attorney.
- Revocation of the authority of the attorney in fact [see Prob. Code § 4153; see discussion § 427.29[3]].
- Death of the principal, except as to specific authority permitted by statute to be exercised after the principal's death [see, e.g., Prob. Code §§ 4236(b)(4), (c)(3), 4720(b)].
- Removal of the attorney in fact.
- Resignation of the attorney in fact.
- Incapacity of the attorney in fact, if the power of attorney is nondurable (and notwithstanding any provision to the contrary in the power of attorney) [Prob. Code § 4155], except that a temporary incapacity merely suspends the authority of the attorney in fact during the period of the incapacity.
- Dissolution or annulment of the marriage of the attorney in fact and principal, in some cases [see Prob. Code § 4154; discussion under § 427.29[2]].
- Death of the attorney in fact.

An attorney in fact or third person who does not have notice of an event that terminates the power of attorney or the authority of an attorney in fact is protected from liability [Prob. Code §§ 4152(b), 4155].

[2] Dissolution or Annulment of Marriage

If the principal's marriage is dissolved or annulled, the dissolution or annulment has the following effect on any designation of the former spouse as an attorney in fact:

- In the case of a durable power of attorney for health care, the designation of the former spouse to make health care decisions for the principal is revoked, unless the durable power of attorney for health care expressly provides otherwise [Prob. Code § 4727(e)].

- In the case of any other power of attorney, the designation of the former spouse as attorney in fact is revoked [Prob. Code § 4154(a)].

If spousal designation is revoked solely because the principal's marriage is dissolved or annulled, the designation is revived by the principal's remarriage to the former spouse [Prob. Code § 4154(b)].

When the principal is in missing status in federal military or civilian government service [see discussion under § 427.36[10]], if the principal's spouse who is the attorney in fact commences a proceeding for dissolution or annulment of the marriage or for legal separation, or if a legal separation is ordered, the authority of the spouse as attorney in fact is revoked [Prob. Code § 3722].

[3] Revocation

The authority of an attorney in fact under a power of attorney may be revoked as follows (but the power of attorney is not necessarily revoked) [Prob. Code § 4153(a)]:

- In accordance with the terms of the power of attorney.

- If the principal informs the attorney in fact orally or in writing that the authority of the attorney in fact is revoked or when and under what circumstances it is revoked (and notwithstanding any provision to the contrary in the power of attorney).

- If the principal's legal representative, with approval of the court [see Prob. Code § 4206; discussion under § 428.28[2]], informs the attorney in fact in writing that the authority of the attorney in fact is revoked or when and under what circumstances it is revoked (and notwithstanding any provision to the contrary in the power of attorney).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActActual AuthorityGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActActual AuthorityOral & Written AuthorityFamily LawMarital Termination & Spousal SupportAnnulmentProcedures

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.30

§ 427.30 Resignation of Attorney in Fact

An attorney in fact may resign by any of the following means (notwithstanding any provision to the contrary in the power of attorney) [Prob. Code § 4207]:

- If the principal is competent, by giving notice to the principal.
- If a conservator has been appointed, by giving notice to the conservator.
- On written agreement with a successor who is designated in the power of attorney or pursuant to the terms of the power of attorney to serve as attorney in fact.
- Pursuant to a court order [see § 427.145].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.31

§ 427.31 Succession of Attorney in Fact

A principal may designate a person or persons to act as successor attorney or attorneys in fact if the authority of a predecessor attorney in fact terminates [Prob. Code § 4203(a)].The principal may grant authority to another person, designated by name, by office, or by function, including the initial and any successor attorney in fact, to designate at any time a person or persons to act as successor attorney or attorneys in fact [Prob. Code § 4203(b)]. A successor attorney in fact is not liable for the actions of the predecessor attorney in fact [Prob. Code § 4203(c)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.32

§ 427.32 Duties of Attorney in Fact

[1] Duty to Exercise Authority

If an attorney in fact has expressly agreed in writing to act for the principal, the attorney in fact has a duty to act pursuant to the terms of the agreement. The agreement to act on the principal's behalf is enforceable against the attorney in fact as a fiduciary regardless of whether there is any consideration to support a contractual obligation [Prob. Code § 4230(c)]. For discussions and forms of complaints based on contractual obligations generally, see Ch. 140, Contracts , and Ch. 528, Specific Performance .

Acting for the principal in a particular transaction or series of transactions does not obligate an attorney in fact to act for the principal in a subsequent transaction, but the attorney in fact has a duty to complete a transaction that the attorney in fact has commenced [Prob. Code § 4230(b)].

Except when subject to these rules, a person who is designated as an attorney in fact has no duty to exercise the authority granted in the power of attorney and is not subject to the other duties of an attorney in fact, regardless of whether the principal has become incapacitated, is missing, or is otherwise unable to act [Prob. Code § 4230(a)].

An attorney in fact may revocably delegate authority to perform mechanical acts to any person or persons qualified to exercise the authority delegated [Prob. Code § 4205(a)]. The attorney in fact making a delegation remains responsible to the principal for the exercise or nonexercise of the delegated authority [Prob. Code § 4205(b)].

[2] Duty to Use Special Skills

An attorney in fact with special skills has a duty to apply the full extent of those skills [Prob. Code § 4237].

[3] Duty of Care Respecting Principal's Property

If an attorney in fact is not compensated, the attorney in fact is not liable for a loss to the principal's property unless the loss results from the bad faith, intentional wrongdoing, or gross negligence of the attorney in fact [Prob. Code § 4231(b); see Penal Code § 507 (attorney in fact as guilty of embezzlement for converting property subject to power of attorney)]. For discussions and forms of complaints based on wrongful conduct generally, with respect to property, see Ch. 150, Conversion , and Ch. 380, Negligence .

An attorney in fact who has special skills or expertise or was designated as an attorney in fact on the basis of representations of special skills or expertise (with respect to the principal's property) must observe the standard of care that would be observed by others with similar skills or expertise [Prob. Code § 4231(c)].

Except when subject to these rules, an attorney in fact dealing with the principal's property must observe the standard of care that would be observed by a prudent person dealing with property of another and is not limited by any statute restricting investments by fiduciaries [Prob. Code § 4231(a)].

[4] Duty to Keep Principal's Property Separate

An attorney in fact must keep the principal's property separate and distinct from other property in a manner adequate to identify the property clearly as belonging to the principal [Prob. Code § 4233(a)]. An attorney in fact holding property for a principal complies with this standard if the property is held in the principal's name or in the name of the attorney in fact as attorney in fact for the principal [Prob. Code § 4233(b)].

[5] Duty to Act in Principal's Interest

An attorney in fact has a duty to act solely in the principal's interest and to avoid conflicts of interest [Prob. Code § 4232(a)]. An attorney in fact is not in violation of that duty solely because the attorney in fact also benefits from acting for the principal, or has conflicting interests in relation to the principal's property or affairs or the care of the principal, or acts in an inconsistent manner regarding the respective interests of the principal and the attorney in fact [Prob. Code § 4232(b)].

[6] Duty to Communicate With Principal and Follow Instructions

An attorney in fact has a duty to keep in regular contact with the principal, to communicate with the principal, and to follow the principal's instructions, to the extent these are reasonably practicable in the circumstances [Prob. Code § 4234(a)]. With court approval, the attorney in fact may disobey the principal's instructions [Prob. Code § 4234(b)].

[7] Duty to Keep Records and Render Accounting

The attorney in fact must keep records of all transactions entered into by the attorney in fact on the principal's behalf [Prob. Code § 4236(a)]. The attorney in fact does not have a duty to make an account of transactions entered into on the principal's behalf, except in the following circumstances [Prob. Code § 4236(b)]:

- At any time as requested by the principal.
- The power of attorney requires the attorney in fact to account and specifies to whom the account is to be made.
- On request by the conservator of the principal's estate while the principal is living.
- On request by the principal's personal representative or successor in interest after the death of the principal.
- Pursuant to court order.

Termination of the authority of an attorney in fact does not relieve the attorney in fact of any duty to render an account of actions taken as attorney in fact [Prob. Code § 4238(c)].

[8] Duty to Disclose Records

The following persons are entitled to examine and copy the records kept by the attorney in fact [Prob. Code § 4236(c)]:

- The principal.
- The conservator of the principal's estate while the principal is living.
- The principal's personal representative or successor in interest after the death of the principal.
- Any other person, pursuant to court order.

[9] Duty to Deliver Property and Records on Termination

On termination of the authority of an attorney in fact, the attorney in fact must promptly deliver possession or control of the principal's property as follows [Prob. Code § 4238(a)]:

- If the principal is not incapacitated, to the principal or as directed by the principal.
- If the principal is incapacitated, to the following persons with the following priority:
  - To a qualified successor attorney in fact.
  - As to any community property, to the principal's spouse.
  - To the principal's conservator of the estate or guardian of the estate.
- In the case of the death of the principal, to the principal's personal representative, if any, or the principal's successors.

The attorney in fact also must deliver copies of any records relating to transactions undertaken on the principal's behalf that are requested by the person to whom possession or control of the property is delivered [Prob. Code § 4238(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesCare, Good Faith & Reasonable SkillDuty of Care & Reasonable SkillBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesCare, Good Faith & Reasonable SkillDuty of Loyalty, Good Faith & Fair Dealing

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.33

§ 427.33 Authority of Attorney in Fact

[1] Effect of Grant

The grant of authority to an attorney in fact, whether by the power of attorney, by statute, or by a court, does not in itself require or permit the exercise of the power. The exercise of authority by an attorney in fact is subject to the attorney in fact's fiduciary duties [Prob. Code § 4266; see discussion under § 427.32].

[2] Grant of General Authority

If a power of attorney grants general authority to an attorney in fact and is not limited to specific actions, subjects, or purposes for which general authority is conferred, the attorney in fact has all of the authority to act that a person having the capacity to contract may carry out through an attorney in fact specifically authorized to take the action [Prob. Code § 4261]. For further discussion,§ 427.34[5]; see also § 427.27[4].

[3] Grant of Limited Authority

If a power of attorney grants limited authority to an attorney in fact, the attorney in fact has (1) the authority granted in the power of attorney, as limited with respect to permissible actions, subjects, or purposes, and (2) the authority incidental, necessary, or proper to carry out the granted authority [Prob. Code § 4262]. For further discussion,§ 427.34[5]; see also § 427.27[4].

[4] Incorporation by Reference to Statute

A power of attorney may grant authority to the attorney in fact by incorporating powers by reference to another statute, including, but not limited to, the following [Prob. Code § 4263(a)]:

- Powers of attorneys in fact provided by the Uniform Statutory Form Power of Attorney Act [see Prob. Code § 4400 et seq.].

- Powers of guardians and conservators [see Prob. Code §§ 2350 et seq., 2400 et seq.].

- Powers of trustees [see Prob. Code § 16200 et seq.].

Incorporation by reference to another statute includes any amendments made to the incorporated provisions after the date of execution of the power of attorney [Prob. Code § 4263(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActTypes of Authority

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.34

§ 427.34 Duty to Honor Power of Attorney (Except Powers of Attorney for Health Care [Advance Health Care Directives])

[1] Scope and Limits of Duty

A third person must accord an attorney in fact acting pursuant to the provisions of a power of attorney the same rights and privileges that would be accorded the principal if the principal were personally present and seeking to act. However, a third person is not required to honor the authority of the attorney in fact or conduct business with the attorney in fact if the principal cannot require the third person to act or conduct business in the same circumstances [Prob. Code § 4300].

A third person may rely on, contract with, and deal with an attorney in fact with respect to the subjects and purposes encompassed or expressed in the power of attorney without regard to whether the power of attorney expressly authorizes the specific act, transaction, or decision by the attorney in fact [Prob. Code § 4301].

All acts done by an attorney in fact pursuant to a durable power of attorney during any period of the principal's incapacity have the same effect and inure to the benefit of and bind the principal and the principal's successors in interest as if the principal had capacity [Prob. Code § 4125].

[2] Right to Impose Conditions

A third person that is requested to engage in transactions with an attorney in fact may, as a condition of incurring any duty to comply withthe power of attorney, require the attorney in fact to provide identification, specimens of the signatures of the principal and the attorney in fact, and any other information reasonably necessary or appropriate to identify the principal and the attorney in fact and to facilitate the third person's actions in transacting business with the attorney in fact. A third person may require an attorney in fact to provide the principal's current and permanent residence addresses before agreeing to engage in a transaction with the attorney in fact [Prob. Code § 4302].

[3] Right to Refuse for Cause

Nothing in the Power of Attorney Law requires a third person to engage in any transaction with an attorney in fact if the attorney in fact has previously breached any agreement with the third person [Prob. Code § 4309].

[4] Financial Institution

[a] Right to Refuse

Nothing in the Power of Attorney Law requires a financial institution to open a deposit account for a principal at the request of an attorney in fact if the principal is not currently a depositor of the financial institution or to make a loan to the attorney in fact on the principal's behalf if the principal is not currently a borrower of the financial institution [Prob. Code § 4310].

[b] Right to Continue Dealing With Attorney in Fact

A savings and loan association has the right to continue to recognize the authority of an attorney in fact authorized in writing to manage, or to make withdrawals either in whole or in part from, the savings account of an account holder, whether the holder is a minor or an adult, until the association receives written notice or is on actual notice of the revocation of authority, whether the revocation is express or by operation of law [Fin. Code § 6725(a)]. Written notice of the account holder's death or an adjudication of the account holder's incompetency that is delivered to the office where the account is maintained constitutes written notice of revocation of the authority of the attorney in fact. Other means authorized in the Power of Attorney Law may be used to provide the required notice, however [Fin. Code § 6725(b)]. The association is not liable for damages, penalty, or tax by reason of any payment made in accordance with these rules [Fin. Code § 6725(c)].

[5] Acts Not Authorized

[a] Statutory Prohibitions

A power of attorney may not authorize an attorney in fact to make, publish, declare, amend, or revoke the principal's will, or to consent to any the following on the principal's behalf under a power of attorney for health care (advance health care directive): commitment to or placement in a mental health treatment facility, convulsive treatment or psychosurgery [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 5325 (definitions)], sterilization, or abortion [Prob. Code § 4265, 4652].

[b] Construction of Power of Attorney

A power of attorney may not be construed to grant authority to an attorney in fact to perform any of the following acts unless expressly authorized in the power of attorney [Prob. Code § 4264]:

- Create, modify, or revoke a trust [see Prob. Code § 15401(b) (same prohibition)].

- Fund with the principal's property a trust not created by the principal or a person authorized to create a trust on the principal's behalf.

- Make or revoke a gift of the principal's property in trust or otherwise [see Estate of Stephens v. Williams (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 665, 677-678, 678, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 358, 49 P.3d 1093 (amanuensis ["one who copies or writes from the dictation of another"] rule is exception to Prob. Code § 4264; signing of grantor's name by interested amanuensis must be presumed invalid; interested amanuensis then bears burden of showing that signature was mechanical act in that grantor intended to sign using instrumentality of amanuensis); Estate of Huston (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1721, 1726-1727, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 217 (gift of annuity, executed by attorney in fact, from decedent to attorney in fact was void as outside attorney in fact's authority under power of attorney, despite decedent's approval of annuity purchase)].

- Exercise the right to make a disclaimer on the principal's behalf (but without limiting the authority of the attorney in fact to disclaim a detrimental transfer to the principal with the approval of the court).

- Create or change survivorship interests in the principal's property or in property in which the principal may have an interest.

- Designate or change the designation of beneficiaries to receive any property, benefit, or contract right on the principal's death.

- Make a loan to the attorney in fact.

[6] Probate Court

A principal may nominate, by a durable power of attorney, a conservator of the person or estate or both, or a guardian of the person or estate orboth, for consideration by the court if protective proceedings for the principal's person or estate are thereafter commenced [Prob. Code § 4126(a)]. If the protective proceedings are conservatorship proceedings in California, the nomination has the effect provided in Prob. Code § 1810 (governing nomination by a proposed conservatee), and the court must give effect to the most recent writing executed in accordance with that code section, whether or not the writing is a durable power of attorney [Prob. Code § 4126(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActActual AuthorityOral & Written AuthorityEstate, Gift & Trust LawPowers of AttorneyRevocation & TerminationHealthcare LawTreatmentEnd-of-Life DecisionsAdvance Directives

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.35

§ 427.35 Duty of Third Person to Disclose Information

[1] Confidential Information Generally

If the principal becomes wholly or partially incapacitated, or if there is a question concerning the principal's capacity to give instructions to and supervise the attorney in fact, the attorney in fact may consult with a person previously designated by the principal for this purpose, and may also consult with and obtain information needed to carry out the duties of the attorney in fact, from the principal's spouse, physician, attorney, or accountant, or a member of the principal's family, or any other person, business entity, or government agency, with respect to matters to be undertaken on the principal's behalf and affecting the principal's personal affairs, welfare, family, property, and business interests. A person from whom information is requested must disclose relevant information to the attorney in fact. Disclosure under this requirement is not a waiver of any privilege that may apply to the information disclosed [Prob. Code § 4235].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesKnowledge & NoticeGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesKnowledge & NoticeDuty of Agent to Disclose

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.36

§ 427.36 Immunity From Liability

[1] Limitations in Power of Attorney

A power of attorney may not limit a statute concerning the protection of third persons from liability [Prob. Code § 4101(b)].

[2] Unqualified Attorney in Fact

Only a person having the capacity to contract is qualified to act as an attorney in fact [Prob. Code § 4200]. Designating an unqualified person as an attorney in fact does not affect the immunities of third persons or relieve the unqualified person of any applicable duties to the principal or the principal's successors [Prob. Code § 4201].

[3] Springing Power of Attorney

In a springing power of attorney [see Prob. Code § 4030 (definition)], the principal may designate a person or persons who, by a written declaration under penalty of perjury, shall have the power to determine conclusively that the specified event or contingency has occurred. The principal may designate the attorney in fact or another person to perform this function, either alone or jointly with other persons [Prob. Code § 4129(a)]. A springing power of attorney containing that designation becomes effective when the persons designated in the power of attorney execute a written declaration under penalty of perjury that the specified event or contingency has occurred. Any person may act in reliance on the written declaration without liability to the principal or to any other person, regardless of whether the specified event or contingency has actually occurred [Prob. Code § 4129(b)].

Under the Uniform Statutory Form Power of Attorney Act [Prob. Code § 4401 et seq.], rules like the foregoing rules also are applied in the case of the statutory form power of attorney [see Prob. Code § 4405(a), (b)].

[4] Modified or Revoked Power of Attorney

A principal may modify or revoke a power of attorney [Prob. Code §§ 4150(a), 4151(a); see discussion under § 427.28]. An attorney in fact or a third person who does not have notice of the modification or revocation is generally protected from liability [Prob. Code §§ 4150(b), 4151(b)].

[5] Revoked or Terminated Authority of Attorney in Fact

The authority of an attorney in fact may be terminated or revoked by various events (otherwise than by the principal's modifying or revoking the power of attorney) [Prob. Code §§ 4152(a), 4153(a); see discussion under § 427.29]. An attorney in fact or a third person who does not have notice of the termination or revocation of authority is generally protected from liability [Prob. Code §§ 4152(b), 4153(b)]. For further discussion, see § 427.36[11][b], [c].

[6] Termination of Authority by Principal's Incapacity

The authority of an attorney in fact under a nondurable power of attorney is terminated by the principal's incapacity to make a contract [Prob. Code § 4155(a)]. An attorney in fact or third person who does not have notice of the principal's incapacity is generally protected from liability [Prob. Code § 4155(b)]. For further discussion, see § 427.36[11][c].

[7] Two or More Attorneys in Fact or Powers of Attorney

A principal may designate more than one attorney in fact, in one or more than one power of attorney [Prob. Code § 4202(a)]. Authority granted to two or more attorneys in fact is exercisable only by their unanimous action [Prob. Code § 4202(b)]. If a vacancy occurs, the remaining attorneys in fact may exercise the authority conferred as if they are the only attorneys in fact [Prob. Code § 4202(c)]. If an attorney in fact is unavailable because of absence, illness, or other temporary incapacity, the other attorneys infact may exercise the authority under the power of attorney as if they are the only attorneys in fact, when that is necessary to accomplish the purposes of the power of attorney or to avoid irreparable injury to the principal's interests [Prob. Code § 4202(d)].

An attorney in fact is not liable for the actions of other attorneys in fact except when participating in, knowingly acquiescing in, or concealing a breach of fiduciary duty committed by another attorney in fact [Prob. Code § 4202(e)].

If a principal grants inconsistent authority to an attorney in fact or more than one attorney in fact in two or more powers of attorney, the authority granted last controls to the extent of the inconsistency [Prob. Code § 4130(a)], notwithstanding anything to the contrary in either power of attorney [Prob. Code § 4130(b)].

[8] Successor Attorney in Fact

A principal may designate successor attorneys in fact [Prob. Code § 4203(a)]. A successor attorney in fact is not liable for the actions of the predecessor attorney in fact [Prob. Code § 4203(c)].

[9] Uncompensated Attorney in Fact

If an attorney in fact is not compensated, the attorney in fact is not liable for a loss to the principal's property unless the loss results from the bad faith, intentional wrongdoing, or gross negligence of the attorney in fact [Prob. Code § 4231(b); see Prob. Code § 4204 (right of attorney in fact to be compensated)].

[10] Principal's Special Status

[a] Missing in Military or Civilian Government Service

A power of attorney does not expire, even though by its terms it would expire, during the period the principal is in missing status in federal military or civilian government service [Prob. Code §§ 1403, 3700(a)], and the power of attorney continues in effect for 30 days after the principal's missing status is terminated. Any person who acts in reliance on the power of attorney together with a copy of the certificate of missing status [see Prob. Code § 3700(b)] is not liable for relying or acting on the power of attorney [Prob. Code § 3720].

The attorney in fact or a third person is deemed to be without actual knowledge of (1) the principal's death or incapacity while the principal is in missing status and until the attorney in fact or third person receives official notice of the determination of the principal's death and (2) revocation of the power of attorney by the principal while the principal is in missing status [Prob. Code § 3721]. Regarding the possibility of revocation of the power of attorney by operation of law, see the discussion under § 427.29[2].

[b] Medi-Cal Patient Admitted to Nursing Facility

In the case of a nursing facility resident who is a Medi-Cal beneficiary and whose facility care is being paid for in whole or in part by Medi-Cal, a person who signs or cosigns the nursing facility's admission agreement by virtue of being an attorney in fact under a valid durable power of attorney executed by the potential resident does not assume personal responsibility or liability for payment of any charges incurred by the resident, except to the extent that the attorney in fact manages, uses, or controls the funds or assets that are legally required to be used to pay the resident's share of the costs and other charges not paid for by the Medi-Cal program [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 14110.8(a)(3), (4)].

[11] Third Person

[a] Reliance on Power of Attorney

A third person may rely on, contract with, and deal with an attorney in fact with respect to the subjects and purposes encompassed or expressed in the power of attorney without regard to whether the power of attorney expressly authorizes the specific act, transaction, or decision, by the attorney in fact [Prob. Code § 4301].

A third person who acts in good faith reliance on a power of attorney is not liable to the principal or to any other person for so acting if all of the following conditions are satisfied [Prob. Code § 4303(a)]:

- The power of attorney is presented to the third person by the attorney in fact is designated in the power of attorney.
- The power of attorney appears on its face to be valid.
- The power of attorney includes a notary public's certificate of acknowledgment or is signed by two witness.

However, this immunity rule is not intended to create an implication that a third person is liable for acting in reliance on a power of attorney if the three conditions are not satisfied. Nothing in this rule affects any immunity that may otherwise exist apart from this rule [Prob. Code § 4303(b)].

[b] Death of Principal

The death of a person who has executed a power of attorney, whether durable or nondurable, does not revoke or terminate the agency as to the attorney in fact or a third person who, without actual knowledge of the principal's death, acts in good faith under the power of attorney. Any action so taken, unless otherwise invalid or unenforceable, binds the principal's successors in interest [Prob. Code § 4304(a)].

[c] Incapacity of Principal

The incapacity of a person who has previously executed a nondurable power of attorney does not revoke or terminate the agency as to the attorney in fact or a third person who, without actual knowledge of the principal's incapacity, acts in good faith under the power of attorney. Any action so taken, unless otherwise invalid or unenforceable, binds the principal and the principal's successors in interest [Prob. Code § 4304(b)].

[d] Reliance on Attorney's Affidavit

An affidavit executed by the attorney in fact under a power of attorney, whether durable or nondurable, stating that, at the time of the exercise of the power, the attorney in fact did not have actual knowledge of the termination of the power of attorney or termination of the authority of the attorney in fact by revocation nor actual knowledge of the principal's death or incapacity is conclusive proof of the nonrevocation or nontermination of the power or nontermination of authority at that time, as to acts undertaken in good faith reliance on the affidavit. If the exercise of the power of attorney requires execution and delivery of any instrument that is recordable, the affidavit when authenticated for record is likewise recordable [Prob. Code § 4305(a)].

[e] Failure to Demand Affidavit

A third person may demand that an attorney in fact furnish an affidavit respecting authority to engage in a particular act or transaction [see Prob. Code §§ 4305, 4306(a); discussion under § 427.36[11][d]]. The failure of a third person to demand an affidavit from the attorney in fact does not affect the protection from liability provided to the third person by the Power of Attorney Law, and no inference as to whether a third person has acted in good faith may be drawn from the failure to demand an affidavit from the attorney in fact [Prob. Code § 4306(b)].

[f] Failure to Demand Certified Copy

The Power of Attorney Law allows the use of certified copies of a power of attorneys [see Prob. Code § 4307(a)-(c)]. The enabling provision is not intended to create an implication that a third person may be liable for acting in good faith reliance on a copy of a power of attorney that has not been duly certified [Prob. Code § 4307(d)].

[g] Imputation of Employee's Knowledge to Employer

A third person who conducts activities through employees is not chargeable with actual knowledge of any fact relating to a power of attorney, or of a change in the authority of an attorney in fact, unless both of the following requirements are met [Prob. Code § 4308(a)]:

(1) The information is received at a home office or a place where there is an employee with responsibility to act on the information.

(2) The employee has a reasonable time in which to act on the information using the procedure and facilities that are available to the third person in the regular course of operations.

The knowledge of an employee in one branch or office of an entity that conducts business through branches or multiple offices is not attributable to an employee in another branch or office [Prob. Code § 4308(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesCompensationBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsTerminationsGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsTerminationsOperation of Law

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.37

§ 427.37 Probate Code Proceedings

[1] Policy Against Judicial Intervention

A power of attorney is exercisable free of judicial intervention [Prob. Code § 4500], subject to Part 4 of the Power of Attorney Law, which authorizes certain judicial proceedings concerning power of attorney [see Prob. Code § 4500 et seq.; § 427.140 et seq.]. The remedies provided in Part 4 are cumulative and not exclusive of any other remedies provided by law [Prob. Code § 4501]. In many cases, an appropriate remedy would be a suit for injunctive relief. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[2] Procedural Rules

The general provisions in Division 3 of the Probate Code [Prob. Code § 1000 et seq.] apply to proceedings under the Power of Attorney Law, except as otherwise provided in the Power of Attorney Law [Prob. Code § 4755]. Generally, the rules of practice applicable to civil actions apply to, and constitute the rules of practice in, proceedings under the Probate Code, except to the extent that the Probate Code provides applicable rules [Prob. Code § 1000; see comments to § 427.140].

There is no right to a jury trial in proceedings under the Power of Attorney Law [Prob. Code § 4754].

[3] Grounds for Petitions

A petition may be filed under Part 4 of the Power of Attorney Law for any one or more of the following purposes [Prob. Code § 4541]:

- Determining whether the power of attorney is in effect or has terminated [see § 427.140].

- Passing on the acts or proposed acts of the attorney in fact, including approval of authority to disobey the principal's instructions [see Forms 51, 52; Prob. Code § 4234(b) (authority to disobey instructions)].

- Compelling the attorney in fact to submit the accounts or a report on acts as attorney in fact to the principal, the principal's spouse, the conservator of the person or the estate of the principal, or any otherperson as required by the court in its discretion, if the attorney in fact has failed to submit an accounting or report within 60 days after written request from the person filing the petition [see § 427.143].

- Declaring that the authority of the attorney in fact is revoked, on a determination by the court of all of the following [see § 427.144]:

  - The attorney in fact has violated or is unfit to perform the fiduciary duties under the power of attorney.

  - At the time of the determination by the court, the principal lacks the capacity to give or to revoke a power of attorney.

  - The revocation of the authority of the attorney in fact is in the best interest of the principal or the principal's estate.

- Approving the resignation of the attorney in fact [see § 427.146].

- Compelling a third person to honor the authority of an attorney in fact [see § 427.147].

For grounds for a petition under the Health Care Decisions Law,§ 427.39[3][d].

[4] Standing to File Petition

Generally, a petition may be filed under Part 4 of the Power of Attorney Law by any of the following persons [Prob. Code § 4540]:

- The attorney in fact.

- The principal.

- The principal's spouse.

- The principal's relative.

- The conservator of the person or estate of the principal.

- A court investigator [see Prob. Code § 1454] of the county where the power of attorney was executed or where the principal resides.

- The public guardian of the county where the power of attorney was executed or where the principal resides.

- The personal representative or trustee of the principal's estate.

- The principal's successor in interest.

- A person who is requested in writing by an attorney in fact to take action.

- Any other interested person or friend of the principal.

Whether one of these persons may appropriately be a petitioner depends on the purpose of the petition [see discussion under § 427.37[3]; see also comments to § 427.140 et seq.] and the circumstances. The right of a person to be a petitioner in a particular case also could be eliminated by the power of attorney [see Prob. Code §§ 4502, 4503; see also comments to § 427.140 et seq.].

[5] Dismissal of Petition

The court may dismiss a petition if it appears that the proceeding is not reasonably necessary for the protection of the interests of the principal or the principal's estate. The court must stay or dismiss the proceeding in whole or in part when required by Code Civ. Proc. § 410.30 (on the ground that a forum outside California would be more appropriate) [Prob. Code § 4543]. For discussion of dismissal on the that ground, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal .

An appeal may be taken from an order dismissing the petition or denying a motion to dismiss [Prob. Code § 1302(b)].

[6] Appeal From Final Order

An appeal may be taken from any final order in a proceeding under Part 4 of the Power of Attorney Law, except an order compelling the attorney in fact to submit an accounting or a report [Prob. Code § 1302(a); see Prob. Code §§ 4541(c), (ground for order compelling submission of accounting or report); discussion under § 427.37[3]].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActActual AuthorityOral & Written AuthorityEstate, Gift & Trust LawPowers of AttorneyGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawPowers of AttorneyRevocation & Termination

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.38

§ 427.38 Liability for Attorney's Fees

[1] Attorney in Fact

In a proceeding under Part 4 of the Power of Attorney Law commenced by a person other than the attorney in fact, the court may in its discretion award reasonable attorney's fees to the petitioner if the court determines that the attorney in fact has clearly violated the fiduciary duties under the power of attorney or has failed without any reasonable cause or justification to submit accounts or report acts to the principal or conservator of the estate or of the person, as the case may be, after written request from the principal or conservator [Prob. Code § 4545(b)].

[2] Third Person

[a] Groundless Action Against Attorney in Fact

In a proceeding under Part 4 of the Power of Attorney Law commenced by a person other than the attorney in fact, the court may in its discretion award reasonable attorney's fees to the attorney in fact if the court determines that the proceeding was commenced without any reasonable cause [Prob. Code § 4545(a)].

[b] Refusal to Accept Affidavit

In dealing with a third person, an attorney in fact may furnish a specific affidavit in support of the authority of the attorney in fact to engage in a particular act or transaction [see Prob. Code § 4305; discussion under§ 427.36[11][d]]. If an attorney in fact duly furnishes an affidavit, whether voluntarily or on demand, a third person dealing with the attorney in fact who refuses to accept the exercise of authority referred to in the affidavit is liable for attorney's fees incurred in an action or proceeding necessary to confirm the qualifications or authority of the attorney in fact, unless the court determines that the third person believed in good faith that the attorney in fact was not qualified or was attempting to exceed or improperly exercise the authority of the attorney in fact [Prob. Code § 4306(a)]. For further discussion, see the comments to § 427.146.

[c] Refusal to Honor Statutory Form Power of Attorney

If a third person refuses to honor the agent's authority under a properly executed statutory form power of attorney [see Prob. Code § 4400 et seq. (Uniform Statutory Form Power of Attorney Act)] within a reasonable time, the third person generally may be compelled to do so in an action brought against the third person for this purpose [Prob. Code § 4406(a)]. The court must award attorney's fees to the attorney in fact if the court finds that the third person acted unreasonably in refusing to accept the authority of the attorney in fact under the statutory form power of attorney [Prob. Code § 4406(b)]. For further discussion, see the comments to § 427.146.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActActual AuthorityOral & Written AuthorityCivil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesStatutory Awards

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.39

§ 427.39 Other Specific Agencies

[1] Auctioneers

The authority of auctioneers as agents of sellers and bidders is governed by Civ. Code § 2362 et seq. For discussion and forms relating to auctioneers, see Ch. 77, Auctions and Auctioneers .

[2] Factors

[a] Defined

A factor is an agent who, in the pursuit of an independent calling, is employed by another to sell property for the principal and is vested by the principal with the possession or control of the property or is authorized to receive payment from the purchaser [Civ. Code §§ 2026, 2367].

[b] Duties and Authority

A factor must obey the instructions of his or her principal to the same extent as any other employee, notwithstanding any advances the factor has made to the principal on the property consigned to the factor. However, if the principal forbids the factor to sell at the market price, the factor may nevertheless sell for his or her reimbursement after giving the principal reasonable notice of his or her intention to do so, and of the time and place of sale. In making such a sale, the factor must proceed in all respects as a pledgee [Civ. Code § 2027].

A factor may sell property that has been consigned to him or her on such credit as is usual. Once the factor has agreed with the purchaser on the term of credit, however, the factor may not extend it [Civ. Code § 2028].

A factor who receives property for sale, under a general agreement or usage to guarantee the sales or the remittance of the proceeds, cannot relieve himself or herself from responsibility therefor without the principal's consent [Civ. Code § 2030].

In addition to the authority of agents in general, a factor has the following actual authority from his or her principal, unless specially restricted [Civ. Code § 2368; see also discussion § 427.62[2][a]]:

- To insure property consigned to him or her uninsured;

- To sell on credit anything entrusted to him or her for sale, except those things that it is contrary to usage to sell on credit, but not to pledge, mortgage, or barter the same; and

- To delegate his or her authority to a partner or servant, but not to any person in an independent employment.

A factor has ostensible authority to deal with the property of the principal as the factor's own, in transactions with persons not having notice of the actual ownership [Civ. Code § 2369; see also discussion § 427.62[2][d]].

[c] Personal Liability

A factor who charges his or her principal with a guaranty commission on a sale thereby assumes absolutely to pay the price when it falls due, as if the factor were liable for the debt personally rather than as a guarantor for the purchaser. The factor does not, however, assume any additional responsibility for the safety of the remittance of the proceeds [Civ. Code § 2029].

[3] Health Care Decisions Law

[a] Purpose and Scope

The Health Care Decisions Law (Division 4.7 of the Probate Code), effective July 1, 2000, which includes the Uniform Health Care Decisions Act [Prob. Code § 4670 et seq.], applies to health care decisions for adults who lack the capacity to make those decisions for themselves [Prob. Code § 4651(a)]. The Law does not affect the right of an individual to make health care decisions while having the capacity to do so [Prob. Code § 4651(b)(1)].

Acknowledging a fundamental right of adults to control decisions relating to personal health care [see Prob. Code § 4650], a "health care decision" is defined as a decision regarding health care made either by an adult patient or by a patient's agent, conservator, or surrogate [Prob. Code§§ 4617, 4625]. Health care decisions include, for example, the following [Prob. Code § 4617; see Prob. Code § 4780 (requests to forgo resuscitative measures)]:

- Selection and discharge of health care providers or institutions.

- Approval or disapproval of diagnostic tests, surgical procedures, or programs of medication.

- Directions to provide, withhold, or withdraw artificial nutrition, hydration, and all other forms of health care including cardiopulmonary resuscitation.

Except for the withholding or withdrawing of health care so as to permit the natural process of dying, however, the Health Care Decisions Law does not permit any affirmative or deliberate act or omission to end life, nor does it condone, authorize, or approve mercy killing, assisted suicide, or euthanasia [Prob. Code § 4653]. The law does not authorize anyone to consent to commitment or placement in a mental-health treatment facility or to convulsive treatment, psychosurgery, sterilization, or abortion [Prob. Code § 4652]. Death resulting from withholding or withdrawing health care in accordance with the law does not, for any purpose, constitute a suicide or homicide or legally impair or invalidate a policy of insurance or an annuity providing a death benefit, notwithstanding any term of the policy or annuity to the contrary [Prob. Code § 4656].

The objectives of the Health Care Decisions Law are achieved through advance health care directives and the appointment of surrogates. An advance health care directive is either an individual health care instruction or a power of attorney for health care [Prob. Code § 4605]. An individual health care instruction is a patient's written or oral direction concerning a health care decision [Prob. Code § 4623]. A power of attorney for health care is a written instrument designating an agent to make health care decisions for the adult who executes the power of attorney for health care [Prob. Code §§ 4629, 4633]. Alternatively, an adult patient may designate a surrogate to make health care decisions for him or her [Prob. Code § 4711(a)], or disqualify others including family members from acting as his or her surrogate [Prob. Code § 4715], by personally informing a supervising health care provider of his or her selection or disqualification. Unless the patient specifies a shorter period, a surrogate designation is effective only during the course of treatment or illness or during the stay in the health care institution when the surrogate designation is made, or for 60 days, whichever period is shorter [Prob. Code § 4711(b)]. If the patient has designated an agent under a power of attorney for health care, then a designated surrogate has priority over the agent for the effective period, but the designation of the surrogate does not revoke the designation of the agent [Prob. Code § 4711(d)] unless the patient duly communicates the intention to revoke [see Prob. Code § 4695(a)].

Advance health care directives by a patient, as well as health care decisions by an agent or surrogate, are effective without judicial approval [Prob. Code § 4750]. Health care decisions by an agent or surrogate are supposed to be in accordance with the principal's instruction or wishes to the extent known, and if not known, by way of the agent's or surrogate's determining what is in the principal's best interest considered in light of the latter's personal values to the extent known [Prob. Code §§ 4684, 4714]. In making these decisions, no presumption arises concerning the intention of a patient who has not made or revoked an advance health care directive [Prob. Code § 4655(a)], and an attempted suicide is not to be construed to indicate a patient's desire that health care be restricted or inhibited [Prob. Code § 4655(b)].

The Health Care Decisions Law applies to all advance health care directives including durable powers of attorney for health care authorized under repealed provisions of the Power of Attorney Law [former Prob. Code § 4600 et seq.] and declarations under the repealed Natural Death Act [former Health & Safety Code § 7185 et seq.], whenever executed [Prob. Code § 4665(a)]. Enactment of this law does not affect any of the following:

- The validity of an advance health care directive executed before July 1, 2000, that was valid under prior law [Prob. Code § 4665(d)].

- The validity of a durable power of attorney for health care executed on a printed form valid under prior law, whenever executed [Prob. Code § 4665(e)].

- The right of an individual to make health care decisions while having the capacity to do so [Prob. Code § 4651(b)(1)].

- The law governing health care in an emergency [Prob. Code § 4651(b)(2)].

- The law governing health care for unemancipated minors [Prob. Code § 4651(b)(3)].

- Any right that a person designated as an agent under a power of attorney for health care may have apart from the appointing document to make or participate in making health care decisions for the principal [Prob. Code § 4687].

[b] Advance Health Care Directives

An adult having capacity may give individual health care instructions orally or in writing, and the instructions may be limited so as to take effect only if specified conditions arise [Prob. Code § 4670]. An adult having capacity may also execute a power of attorney for health care that authorizes a designated agent to make health care decisions or that specifies particular health care instructions or grants authority to make decisions about the personal care of the principal (for example, determining where the principal will live, who provides meals, transportation, and personal services, and arranging recreation and entertainment) [Prob. Code § 4671]. A written advance health care directive can also nominate a conservator or guardian of the person or estate or both, as the case may be, for courtconsideration if commencement of protective proceedings for the individual's person or estate is anticipated [Prob. Code § 4672].

Execution or revocation of an advance health care directive may not be required or prohibited as a condition for providing health care, admission to a facility, or furnishing insurance [Prob. Code § 4677]. Long-term health care facilities must encourage competent residents to execute advance health care directives [Health & Safety Code § 1599.73(b)].

A patient's capacity, in this context, is an ability to understand the nature and consequences of a decision and to make and communicate a decision, including, in the case of proposed health care, the ability to understand its significant benefits, risks, and alternatives [Prob. Code §§ 4609, 4617]. A patient is presumed to have the capacity to make a health care decision, give or revoke advance health care directives, and designate or disqualify a surrogate. This presumption affects the burden of proof [Prob. Code § 4657]. Unless provided otherwise, the authority of an agent under a power of attorney for health care becomes effective only on determining that the principal lacks capacity, and the authority ceases when the principal recovers capacity [Prob. Code § 4682]. A determination that a patient lacks or has recovered capacity, or that some condition exists affecting a health care instruction or the authority of an agent or surrogate, is made by the primary physician unless specified otherwise in a written advance health care directive [Prob. Code § 4658].

The Health Care Decision Law limits who may be designated to make health care decisions as an agent or a surrogate. These limitations include the following:

- The supervising health care provider of the health care institution where the patient is receiving care is disqualified [Prob. Code § 4659(a)(1)].

- Any other employee of the health care institution where the patient is receiving care is disqualified [Prob. Code § 4659(a)(1)], except for an employee who is related to the patient by blood, marriage, or adoption, or is a registered domestic partner of the patient [Prob. Code § 4659(b)(1)], or an employee who is employed by the same health care institution as the patient [Prob. Code § 4659(b)(2)].

- An operator or employee of a community care facility or residential care facility where the patient is receiving care is disqualified [Prob. Code § 4659(a)(2)], except for an employee who is related to the patient by blood, marriage, or adoption, or is a registered domestic partner of the patient [Prob. Code § 4659(b)(1)], or an employee who is employed by the same community care facility or residential care facility for the elderly as the patient [Prob. Code § 4659(b)(2)].

Furthermore, a conservator under the Lanterman-Petris-Short Act [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5000 et seq.] may not be designated as agent or surrogate unless several conditions are satisfied including certification that the principal received legal counseling regarding the advance directive [Prob. Code § 4659(c)].

Regarding formalities, a written advance health care directive, including a power of attorney for health care [Prob. Code § 4680], is legally sufficient if it contains the date of its execution, is signed either by the patient or in the patient's name by another adult in the patient's presence and at the patient's direction, and is either acknowledged before a notary public or signed by at least two witnesses who qualify and satisfy the statutory requirements [Prob. Code § 4673(a); see Prob. Code § 4673(b) (validity of electronic advance health care directive or power of attorney that bears digital signature); see also Prob. Code §§ 4674, 4675 (witness requirements)]. A statutory form may (but need not) be used to create a written advance health care directive [see Prob. Code §§ 4700, 4701].

The application of any provision of the Health Care Decisions Law may be limited by the terms of a power of attorney for health care or advance health care directive that sets forth an express statement or inconsistent rule to that effect [Prob. Code § 4681(a)]; however, the power of attorney for health care or advance directive cannot limit the application of a statute specifically providing that it is not subject to limitation in a power of attorney, or of a statute that concerns statements required to be included in a power of attorney, the operative dates of statutory enactments or amendments, the formalities for execution of a power of attorney for health care, the qualifications of witnesses or agents, or the protection of third persons from liability [Prob. Code § 4681(b)].

Subject to any valid limitations, a designated agent can make health care decisions for the principal to the same extent the principal could do if he or she had capacity [Prob. Code § 4683(a)]. A designated agent is also authorized to make certain decisions effective after the principal's death, such as authorizing an anatomical gift or autopsy or otherwise directing disposition of the remains [Prob. Code § 4683(b)].

A patient with capacity may revoke the designation of an agent by a signed writing or by personally informing the supervising health care provider [Prob. Code § 4695(a)]. An advance health care directive other than the designation of an agent can be revoked at any time and in any manner by a patient with capacity who communicates an intent to revoke [Prob. Code § 4695(b)].

[c] Duties, Immunities, and Liabilities

A health care provider or health care institution providing care to a patient is generally obligated to comply with a patient's health care instructions, reasonable interpretations of the instructions by the person then authorized to make health care decisions for a patient, and health care decisions for a patient, to the same extent as if made by the patient while having capacity [Prob. Code § 4733]. In theabsence of knowledge to the contrary, a physician or other health care provider may presume that a written advance health care directive is valid [Prob. Code § 4677]. Healthcare providers may decline to comply with individual instructions or decisions for reasons of conscience, however, as may health care institutions if certain conditions are met [Prob. Code § 4734]. Either may decline to comply with an instruction or decision that requires medically ineffective or substandard health care [Prob. Code §§ 4735, 4654]. Declining to comply with an individual instruction or decision, however, gives rise to certain notice, patient transfer, and continuing care obligations pending transfer [see Prob. Code § 4736].

A health care provider or health care institution acting in good faith and in accordance with generally accepted and applicable health care standards is not subject to civil or criminal liability or to discipline for unprofessional conduct for any actions in compliance with the Health Care Decisions Law, including but not limited to [Prob. Code § 4740]:

- Complying with a health care decision of a person who the health care provider or health care institution believes in good faith has the authority to make a health care decision for a patient, including a decision to withhold or withdraw health care;

- Declining to comply with a health care decision of a person based on a belief that the person then lacked authority;

- Complying with an advance health care directive and assuming that the directive was valid when made and has not been revoked or terminated; and

- Declining to comply with an individual health care instruction or decision for reasons of conscience.

A person who acts as an agent or surrogate is not subject to civil or criminal liability or to discipline for unprofessional conduct for health care decisions made in good faith [Prob. Code § 4741].

Civil remedies of a cumulative nature that include the recovery of attorney's fees are enforceable against health care providers and institutions that intentionally violate the Health Care Decisions Law [Prob. Code § 4742(a)] and persons who do certain intentional acts such as falsifying, concealing, coercing, or fraudulently inducing a health care directive or its revocation [Prob. Code § 4742(b)]. Homicide prosecution is explicitly allowed against persons who cause death by altering or forging written advance health care directives, or willfully concealing personal knowledge of a revocation of the same, with the intent to cause a withholding or withdrawal of needed health care contrary to the desires of the patient [Prob. Code § 4743].

[d] Limited Judicial Proceedings

A superior court proceeding by certain interested persons is authorized under Part 3 of the Health Care Decisions Law for the following purposes [Prob. Code § 4766]:

- Determining whether a patient has capacity to make health care decisions.
- Determining whether an advance health care directive is in effect or has terminated.
- Determining whether the acts or proposed acts of an agent or surrogate are consistent with the patient's desires as expressed in an advance health care directive or otherwise made known to the court or, when the patient's desires are unknown or unclear, whether the acts or proposed acts of the agent or surrogate are in the patient's best interest.
- Declaring the authority of an agent or surrogate terminated upon determining that the agent or surrogate made a health care decision for the patient that authorized anything illegal.
- Declaring the authority of an agent or surrogate terminated on determining that the agent or surrogate violated, failed to perform, or is unfit to perform the duty under an advance health care directive to act consistently with the patient's desires or, when the patient's desires are unknown or unclear, is by act or omission acting in a manner clearly contrary to the patient's best interest, and that at the time of the determination by the court, the patient lacks the capacity to execute or to revoke an advance health care directive or disqualify a surrogate.
- Compelling a third person to honor individual health care instructions or the authority of an agent or surrogate.

Potential petitioners include the following [Prob. Code § 4765]:

- The patient.
- A spouse.
- Relatives.
- An agent or surrogate.
- A conservator of the person of the patient.
- A court investigator or public guardian.

- The supervising health care provider or institution involved with the patient's care.
- An interested person or friend of the patient.

However, a duly executed advance health care directive may expressly eliminate the authority to petition for all these persons, excepting only, for limitedpurposes, a conservator of the person or an agent [see Prob. Code § 4753].

There is no right to a jury trial in judicial proceedings under the Health Care Decisions Law [Prob. Code § 4754]. General provisions of the Probate Code pertaining to procedural matters apply to these proceedings unless otherwise provided by the Health Care Decisions Law [Prob. Code § 4755]. In most cases, a proceeding is commenced by filing, and serving 15 days in advance of the time set for hearing [Prob. Code § 4769], a petition stating all of the following [Prob. Code § 4767]:

- Facts showing that the petition is authorized under Part 3 of the Health Care Decisions Law [Prob. Code § 4750 et seq.].
- The grounds of the petition.
- If known to the petitioner, the terms of any advance health care directive in question.

In the case of a petition to compel a third person to honor individual health care instructions or the authority of an agent or surrogate, notice of the time and place of the hearing, together with a copy of the petition, must be served on the third person in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 413.10 et seq. [Prob. Code § 4769(b)].

The court may dismiss a petition if it appears that the proceeding is not reasonably necessary for the protection of the interests of the patient [Prob. Code § 4768]. For good cause shown, the court may issue a temporary order prescribing the health care of the patient pending a final disposition [Prob. Code § 4770]. A discretionary award of attorney's fees is authorized under limited circumstances [see Prob. Code § 4771]. An appeal may be taken from a final order under Prob. Code § 4766 or an order dismissing the petition or denying a motion to dismiss [Prob. Code § 1302.5].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActActual AuthorityGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesCare, Good Faith & Reasonable SkillGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesCare, Good Faith & Reasonable SkillDuty of Care & Reasonable SkillEstate, Gift & Trust LawConservators & GuardiansGeneral OverviewHealthcare LawTreatmentEnd-of-Life DecisionsAdvance Directives

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 427.40-427.59

[Reserved]

§§ 427.40[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.60

§ 427.60 California Points and Authorities

For memoranda relating to forms in this chapter, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 12, Accounting (Matthew Bender)

For memoranda relating to forms in this chapter, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 31, Brokers and Salespersons (Matthew Bender)

For memoranda relating to forms in this chapter, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 43, Common Counts and Bills of Particulars (Matthew Bender)

For memoranda relating to forms in this chapter, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 50, Contracts (Matthew Bender)

For memoranda relating to forms in this chapter, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 65, Damages (Matthew Bender)

For memoranda relating to forms in this chapter, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 100, Employer and Employee (Matthew Bender)

For memoranda relating to forms in this chapter, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 115, Indemnity and Contribution (Matthew Bender)

For memoranda relating to forms in this chapter, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 182, Principal and Agent

(Matthew Bender)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.61

§ 427.61 State Statutes

[1] Authority of Agents

Acts delegable to agent. Civ. Code § 2304

Act that may be done by or to person under Civ. Code may be done by agent unless contrary intention clearly appears. Civ. Code § 2305

Agent does not have authority to defraud principal. Civ. Code § 2306

Authority is conferable by precedent authorization or subsequent ratification. Civ. Code § 2307

Authority is dependent on acts of principal. Civ. Code § 2315

Actual authority results from conduct of principal toward agent. Civ. Code § 2316

Ostensible authority results from conduct of principal toward third party. Civ. Code 2317

Agent has general statutory authority unless limited by principal. Civ. Code § 2318

Authority implied by law. Civ. Code § 2319

Agent's ability to disobey instructions when necessary. Civ. Code § 2320

Grant of specific authority limits simultaneous grant of general authority. Civ. Code § 2321

Limitations on authority expressed in general terms. Civ. Code § 2322

Authority of agents to sell property. Civ. Code §§ 2323-2324

Authority to receive price of agents to sell. Civ. Code §§ 2325-2326

[2] Creation of Agency

Consideration unnecessary to confer authority. Civ. Code § 2308

Equal dignities rule. Civ. Code § 2309

Sufficiency of oral authorization. Civ. Code § 2309

[3] Definitions

Agent, principal, and agency. Civ. Code § 2295

Capacity of principal and agent. Civ. Code § 2296

Special and general agents. Civ. Code § 2297

Kinds of agency. Civ. Code § 2298

Actual agency. Civ. Code § 2299

Ostensible agency. Civ. Code § 2300

[4] Delegation of Agency

Subagent of agent not responsible to principal of agent. Civ. Code § 2022

Powers delegable. Civ. Code § 2349

Effect of unauthorized delegation. Civ. Code § 2350

Effect of lawful appointment of subagent. Civ. Code § 2351

[5] Duties of Agent to Principal

Agent must adhere to authority defined by Civ. Code §§ 2295-2357. Civ. Code § 2019

Agent must inform principal of acts. Civ. Code § 2020

Duties of collection agent. Civ. Code § 2021

Fiduciary duties of agent. Civ. Code §§ 2322, 2228-2240

Criminal liability of agent for fraud on principal. Penal Code § 536

[6] Liability of Principal and Agent to Third Parties

Agent's liability for acts in restraint of trade. Bus. & Prof. Code § 16755

Agent's liability for unfair trade practices. Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17095, 17100, 17101

Rights and liabilities incurred by agent accrue to principal. Civ. Code § 2330

Principal's liability for agent's incomplete execution of authority. Civ. Code § 2331

As against principal, principal and agent charged with notice of what should be communicated between them. Civ. Code § 2332

Effect of agent's unauthorized acts on principal. Civ. Code § 2333

Principal's liability for acts under agent's ostensible authority. Civ. Code § 2334

Principal's liability when exclusive credit given to agent by third party. Civ. Code § 2335

Third party's right of offset against undisclosed principal's claims against agent. Civ. Code § 2336

Principal's liability for wrongful acts of agent. Civ. Code §§ 2338, 2339.

Agent's implied warranty of authority. Civ. Code § 2342

Agent's liability as principal. Civ. Code § 2343

Agent's duty toward property of third party. Civ. Code § 2344

Provisions governing agency are subject to Civ. Code § 38 et seq. regarding persons entirely without understanding. Civ. Code § 2345

Damages recoverable for agent's breach of warranty of authority. Civ. Code § 3318

[7] Ratification

Required manner of subsequent ratification. Civ. Code § 2310

Effect of partial ratification of indivisible transaction. Civ. Code § 2311

Power required for subsequent ratification. Civ. Code § 2312

Limitation on ratification of acts prejudicial to third party. Civ. Code § 2313

Requirements for rescission of ratification. Civ. Code § 2314

[8] Termination of Agency

Methods of termination. Civ. Code §§ 2355, 2356

Acts or events causing termination. Civ. Code § 2357

[9] Other Specific Agencies

Real estate brokers. Bus. & Prof. Code § 10130 et seq.

Factors. Civ. Code §§ 2026 et seq., 2367 et seq.

Auctioneers. Civ. Code § 2362 et seq.

[10] Powers of Attorney

[a] In General

Power of Attorney Law. Prob. Code § 4000 et seq.

Definitions. Prob. Code § 4010 et seq.

General provisions. Prob. Code §§ 4050 et seq., 4100 et seq.

Creation and effect of powers of attorney. Prob. Code § 4120 et seq.

Modification and revocation of powers of attorney. Prob. Code § 4150 et seq.

Uniform Durable Power of Attorney Act. Prob. Code §§ 4001, 4124-4127, 4206, 4304, 4305

Uniform Statutory Form Power of Attorney Act. Prob. Code § 4400 et seq.

Health Care Decisions Law. Prob. Code § 4600 et seq.

Uniform Health Care Decisions Act. Prob. Code § 4670 et seq.

[a] Attorneys in Fact

Qualifications and appointment of attorneys in fact. Prob. Code § 4200 et seq.

Duties of attorneys in fact. Prob. Code § 4230 et seq.

Authority of attorneys in fact. Prob. Code § 4260 et seq.

Relations with third persons. Prob. Code § 4300 et seq.

[b] Statutory Form Power of Attorney

Uniform statutory form power of attorney. Prob. Code § 4400 et seq.

Powers under statutory form power of attorney. Prob. Code § 4450 et seq.

[c] Power of Attorney for Health Care /Advance Health Care Directive

Definitions. Prob. Code § 4600 et seq.

General provisions. Prob. Code § 4650 et seq.

Creation and effect. Prob. Code § 4680 et seq.

Authority of attorney in fact. Prob. Code § 4680 et seq.

Protections and immunities. Prob. Code § 4740 et seq.

Statutory form for written advance health care directive. Prob. Code § 4701

Registration of written advance health care directive. Prob. Code § 4800 et seq.

[d] Judicial Proceedings

General provisions. Prob. Code § 4500 et seq.

Petitions, orders, and appeals. Prob. Code § 4540 et seq.

Judicial proceedings under Health Care Decisions Law. Prob. Code § 4750 et seq.

Jurisdiction and venue. Prob. Code § 4920 et seq.

[e] Medi-Cal Patients

Attorney in fact who signs nursing-facility admission agreement is not personally liable for costs of nursing-facility care for principal who is Medi-Cal beneficiary. Welf. & Inst. Code § 14110.8(a)(3), (4)

[f] Missing Military and Civilian Personnel

Effect on power of attorney and attorney in fact when principal who is in military or civilian government service is determined to be missing. Prob. Code § 3720 et seq.

[g] Special Power of Attorney Under Multiple-Party Accounts Law

Special power of attorney for accounts at financial institutions authorized under Multiple-Party Accounts Law [Prob. Code § 5100 et seq.]. Prob. Code § 5204

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAgents DistinguishedGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAgents DistinguishedGeneral AgentsBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActActual AuthorityGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActActual AuthorityImplied AuthorityConduct of PartiesBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActActual AuthorityOral & Written AuthorityBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsEstablishmentEstoppel, Ostensible Agency & NecessityGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawPowers of AttorneyGeneral OverviewHealthcare LawTreatmentEnd-of-Life DecisionsAdvance Directives

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.62

§ 427.62 Decisions

[1] Agent's Knowledge Imputed to Principal

Agent's knowledge imputed to principal even though knowledge is of agent's fraud perpetrated without actual knowledge of principal; principal not permitted to benefit from fraud of agent acting within scope of agency. Powell v. Goldsmith (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 746, 751, 199 Cal. Rptr. 554

Agent's knowledge not imputed to principal [Civ. Code § 2332] when source of knowledge knows agent will not communicate to principal. Wagner v. Benson (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 27, 35, 161 Cal. Rptr. 516

Principal chargeable with and bound by knowledge of or notice to agent [Civ. Code § 2332] received while agent acts within scope of authority and in reference to matter over which authority extends. Chaplis v. County of Monterey (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 249, 262, 158 Cal. Rptr. 395 ; Trane Co. v. Gilbert (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 720, 727, 73 Cal. Rptr. 279

Notice to agent of facts sufficient to put reasonable person on inquiry imputed to and binding on principal. Clark Equipment Co. v. Wheat (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 503, 527, 154 Cal. Rptr. 874

Agent's knowledge of falsity of representations imputable to principal [Civ. Code § 2332] when agent's representations made within scope of authority. Clark Equipment Co. v. Wheat (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 503, 521, 154 Cal. Rptr. 874

Agent's knowledge of facts outside scope of authority not imputed to principal. Redman v. Walters (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 448, 454, 152 Cal. Rptr. 42

Knowledge of agent imputed to principal [Civ. Code § 2332] only when matters within scope of agency are learned while acting in course of agency. Redman v. Walters (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 448, 454, 152 Cal. Rptr. 42

Imputation of knowledge of agent to principal [Civ. Code § 2332] assertable only by third party who has dealt with principal through agent. Redman v. Walters (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 448, 454, 152 Cal. Rptr. 42

Principal deemed to have knowledge of whatever agent has notice of [Civ. Code § 2332] even if agent has breached duty to inform principal. Northern Natural Gas Co. v. Superior Court (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 983, 992-993, 134 Cal. Rptr. 850

Principle of imputed knowledge [Civ. Code § 2332] applicable between principal and authorized subagent. Northern Natural Gas Co. v. Superior Court (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 983, 993, 134 Cal. Rptr. 850

Principal charged with knowledge only when communicated by agent, or when agent breaches duty of disclosure. Civil Service Employees Ins. Co. v. Blake (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 196, 199-200, 53 Cal. Rptr. 701 ; Kelley v. British Coml. Ins. Co. (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 554, 561, 34 Cal. Rptr. 564

Lapse of time reasonable for communication of knowledge allowed before principal charged with knowledge. Kelley v. British Coml. Ins. Co. (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 554, 561, 34 Cal. Rptr. 564

Scope of agency, and whether particular fact known to agent was within that scope, are issues of fact to be resolved in individual cases. Maron v. Swig (1952) 115 Cal. App. 2d 87, 90, 251 P.2d 770

Imputation of agent's knowledge to principal [Civ. Code § 2332] not presumption but rule of law; showing that principal did not learn of facts imparted to agent normally irrelevant. Columbia Pictures Corp. v. DeToth (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 620, 630-631, 197 P.2d 580

Knowledge acquired before creation of agency relationship imputable to principal [Civ. Code § 2332] if knowledge used by agent in acting for principal. Columbia Pictures Corp. v. DeToth (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 620, 631, 197 P.2d 580

[2] Authority of Agent

[a] Actual

Principal's conduct in allowing agent and third party to believe that agent had authority to alter terms of printed contract created both actual [Civ. Code § 2316] and ostensible [Civ. Code § 2317] authority to do so. Thompson v. Occidental Life Ins. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 904, 913-914, 109 Cal. Rptr. 473, 513 P.2d 353

Actual authority [Civ. Code § 2316] can be created by conduct of principal that causes agent reasonably to believe that authority exists. Tomerlin v. Canadian Indemnity Co. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 638, 643, 39 Cal. Rptr. 731, 394 P.2d 571

Agent's belief in authority is prerequisite to finding of implied actual authority [Civ. Code § 2316]. Columbia Outfitting Co. v. Freeman (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 216, 219, 223 P.2d 21

Facts that doctor billed for services separately from hospital, maintained staff privileges at other hospitals, and had no office at hospital, did not preclude conclusion that doctor acted as hospital's actual agent in course and scope of duties as director of adolescent psychiatric unit at hospital. Jacoves v. United Merchandising Corp. (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 88, 103-104, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 468

Scope of agent's authority determinable by conduct of principal and agent in business relationships. Trane Co. v. Gilbert (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 720, 726, 73 Cal. Rptr. 279

Express agreement unnecessary to create actual authority. Transport Clearings-Bay Area v. Simmonds (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 405, 425, 38 Cal. Rptr. 116

Fact of agent's belief in existence of authority insufficient to create actual authority [Civ. Code § 2316]; conduct of principal engendering belief is necessary. South Sacramento Drayage Co. v. Campbell Soup Co. (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 851, 856-857, 34 Cal. Rptr. 137

Principal's practice of requiring approval of hauling contracts negates reasonableness of agent's belief that authority existed to negotiate hauling contract. South Sacramento Drayage Co. v. Campbell Soup Co. (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 851, 856-857, 34 Cal. Rptr. 137

[b] Implied

Wife's conduct conferred on husband implied actual authority to sign wife's name and represent it as her signature. In re Nelson (9th Cir. 1985) 761 F.2d 1320, 1321-1323

General agent for purposes of negotiating group medical plan had implied authority [Civ. Code § 2319] to agree to arbitration provision. Madden v. Kaiser Foundation Hospitals (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 699, 706-709, 131 Cal. Rptr. 882, 552 P.2d 1178

Agent can acquire property from principal provided full disclosure of material facts is made. Donnellan v. Rocks (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 925, 929, 99 Cal. Rptr. 692

Agent acting within authority has implied authority to appoint subagent. Leno v. Young Men's Christian Assn. (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 651, 658, 95 Cal. Rptr. 96

Agent's implied authority permits any means incidental to and reasonably proper in performance of assigned task. Garber v. Prudential Ins. Co. (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 693, 701, 22 Cal. Rptr. 123

Agent strictly engaged in endeavor to bring about result for which agency created acts within implied authority. Garber v. Prudential Ins. Co. (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 693, 703, 22 Cal. Rptr. 123

[c] Limitations

Principal cannot to avoid contract entered into by agent in violation of secret agreement limiting powers of agent; authority of agent is that which principal allowed third party to believe [Civ. Code § 2317]. Leavens v. Pinkham & McKevitt (1912) 164 Cal. 242, 247-248, 128 P. 399 ; Case v. McConnell & Forrester (1935) 5 Cal. App. 2d 688, 692, 44 P.2d 414

[d] Ostensible

Ostensible agency requires showing sufficient to establish estoppel. Associated Creditors' Agency v. Davis (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 374, 403, 118 Cal. Rptr. 772, 530 P.2d 1084

Ostensible agency arises from reasonable belief of third party in agent's authority, engendered by conduct of principal [Civ. Code §§ 2300, 2317]. Tomerlin v. Canadian Indemnity Co. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 638, 643, 39 Cal. Rptr. 731, 394 P.2d 571 ; Mannion v. Campbell Soup Co. (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 317, 320, 52 Cal. Rptr. 246

Nonsuit on issue of ostensible agency was improper when injured patient sought treatment at hospital and there was no evidence she should have known that negligent physician was not agent of hospital. Mejia v. Community Hospital of San Bernardino (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1448, 1460, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 233

Nursing home's attempt to enforce arbitration agreement signed by daughters of deceased resident was unsuccessful when resident did not signarbitration agreement, was mentally incompetent when her daughters signed agreement, and had not signed power of attorney; fact that daughters may have represented themselves as having power to sign agreement for resident was irrelevant, as a person cannot become agent of another merely by representing himself or herself as such. Pagarigan v. Libby Care Center, Inc. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 298, 301-302, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 892

Hospital's designation of doctor as director of its adolescent psychiatric unit, and provision of releases for him on its admissions forms, created reasonable inference that hospital intentionally or unintentionally caused parents of patient to rely on its implied representations that doctor was hospital's agent; summary judgment for hospital on issue of ostensible agency was improper. Jacoves v. United Merchandising Corp. (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 88, 103-104, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 468

Lack of negligence by third party in relying on ostensible authority is prerequisite to recovery from principal for act of ostensible agent. People v. Surety Ins. Co. (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 556, 562, 186 Cal. Rptr. 385

Acts or declarations of principal relied on for creation of ostensible agency not required to have been made to third party directly. Meyer v. Ford Motor Co. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 90, 102, 79 Cal. Rptr. 816

Appointment of agent to particular position is sufficient conduct by principal to create ostensible agency in appointee. Meyer v. Ford Motor Co. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 90, 102, 79 Cal. Rptr. 816

Principal is liable for acts of ostensible agent only when elements of estoppel are present. Kelley v. R.F. Jones Co. (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 113, 120-121, 77 Cal. Rptr. 170

Elements of estoppel for purposes of ostensible agency are representation by principal, reliance by third party, and third party's change of position or injury resulting from reliance. Kelley v. R.F. Jones Co. (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 113, 121, 77 Cal. Rptr. 170

Truck drivers found to have ostensible authority to sign waivers of right to payment from shipper when drivers executed all contracts on behalf of carriers, shipper had no notice that drivers lacked authority, drivers were only representatives of carrier with whom shipper dealt, shipper did not even know which company would haul shipment until driver arrived, and truck drivers routinely bound principals to waiver agreements. C.A.R. Transp. Brokerage Co. v. Darden Restaurants, Inc. (9th Cir. 2000) 213 F.3d 474, 479-481

[e] Third Party's Duty of Inquiry

Third party has duty to inquire into authority of agent when no ostensible agency established. Ernst v. Searle (1933) 218 Cal. 233, 240, 22 P.2d 715

No additional duty on third party to investigate required once ostensible agency established. Beck v. Arthur Murray, Inc. (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 976, 981, 54 Cal. Rptr. 328 ; Myers v. Stephens (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 104, 115, 43 Cal. Rptr. 420

Failure to make inquiry into extent of authority when circumstances would lead reasonable person to do so permits action against principal only to the extent of agent's actual authority. United States Credit Bureau, Inc. v. Cheney (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 357, 361, 45 Cal. Rptr. 525

[3] Creation of Agency Relationship

Website sponsor and website operator did not have principal-agent relationship when sponsor had no right to control management of web site; sponsor thus could not be held vicariously liable for operator's posting of allegedly defamatory email authored by third party. Batzel v. Smith (9th Cir. 2003) 333 F.3d 1018, 1035-1036 .

Agency relationship is not created by favor or suggestion; lack of either legal duty or agent's assent to right of control by principal precludes finding that agency relationship existed. Edwards v. Freeman (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 589, 591-592, 212 P.2d 883 ; Violette v. Shoup (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 611, 620, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 358

Agent's authority to exercise discretion unnecessary to creation of agency relationship. Skopp v. Weaver (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 432, 439, 128 Cal. Rptr. 19, 546 P.2d 307

No principal-agent relationship existed between franchisor and franchisee; franchisee, not franchisor, was owner of business for purposes of eminent domain proceedings. Redevelopment Agency v. International House of Pancakes, Inc. (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 1343, 1350-1352, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 358

No principal-agent relationship existed between automobile dealer and customer taking test drive within meaning of Ins. Code § 11580.9(a), making insurer of dealer primary if motor vehicle was being operated by employee or agent of dealer. St. Paul Ins. Co. v. Industrial Underwriters Ins. Co. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 117, 122-125, 262 Cal. Rptr. 490

Customer's deposit of securities with bank for purchase and sale pursuant to letter of instructions created special deposit with aspects of both trust and agency relationships. Van de Kamp v. Bank of America (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 819, 859-861, 251 Cal. Rptr. 530

No principal-agent relationship was created between franchisor and franchisee as matter of law if franchisor did not have complete control over franchisee. Wickham v. Southland Corp. (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 49, 55-61, 213 Cal. Rptr. 825

Conduct of associate attorney in accepting engagement to try action and promising to keep original attorney advised of developments sufficient to establish contract of agency implied from conduct of parties. Pollack v. Lytle (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 931, 940, 175 Cal. Rptr. 81

Right of alleged principal to control behavior of alleged agent is essential element to proof of agency relationship. DeSuza v. Andersack (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 694, 699, 133 Cal. Rptr. 920

Significant test of agency relationship is right to control activities of agent; actual exercise of right to control is unnecessary. Stevens v. Roman Catholic Bishop of Fresno (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 877, 884, 123 Cal. Rptr. 171

Daughter using family car for family business of buying shoes for sister was agent of parents. Johnson v. Peterson (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 619, 623, 113 Cal. Rptr. 445

Neither particular words nor consideration necessary to establish agency; conduct by each party manifesting acceptance is sufficient. Frank Pisano & Associates v. Taggart (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 105 Cal. Rptr. 414

Agency relationship requires only that parties act in manner manifesting acceptance of relationship whereby one of them is to perform work for another under other's direction. Housewright v. Pacific Far East Line, Inc. (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 259, 265, 40 Cal. Rptr. 208

Agency finding not dependent on consideration; conduct of parties and action or inaction by principal is sufficient showing. Vargas v. Ruggiero (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 709, 715, 17 Cal. Rptr. 568

[4] Delegation of Agent's Authority

Agent of surety that had undertaken bail bond could not lawfully delegate authority to police detective to seek extension of time from court on bail forfeiture. Seneca Ins. Co. v. County of Orange (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 611, 619-620, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1

Unauthorized subagent [Civ. Code § 2350] cannot to look to original principal for compensation. Hasekian v. Krotz (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 311, 318, 74 Cal. Rptr. 410 ; Goodwin v. Glick (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 936, 939-940

Authority to appoint subagent [Civ. Code § 2349] inferrable from nature of agency relationship in area ordinarily allowing appointment. Trane Co. v. Gilbert (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 720, 726, 73 Cal. Rptr. 279

Delegated power subject to discretion or judgment of delegatee is not delegable further by delegatee. Schecter v. County of Los Angeles (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 391, 396-397, 65 Cal. Rptr. 739

Supervising employees liable to third parties for acts of subordinates only when supervising employees act wrongfully themselves. Towt v. Pope (1959) 168 Cal. App. 2d 520, 530, 336 P.2d 276

Subagent has no duty to disclose to original principal fraud perpetrated by agent [Civ. Code §§ 2022, 2350]. Kavanagh v. Wade (1940) 42 Cal. App. 2d 92, 97, 108 P.2d 475

Subagent retained by agent to assist agent is not in privity of contract with principal. Goodwin v. Glick (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 936, 939

[5] Equal Dignities Rule

Rule that ratification must be made in writing when writing would have been necessary to confer original authority [Civ. Code §§ 2309, 2310] not applicable as between principal and agent. Rakestraw v. Rodrigues (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 67, 76, 104 Cal. Rptr. 57, 63, 500 P.2d 1401

Equal dignities rule [Civ. Code § 2309] not applicable in agent's indemnity action against principal for damages paid by agent to third party because of principal's refusal to perform contract entered into by agent. Sunset-Sternau Food Co. v. Bonzi (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 834, 842-843, 36 Cal. Rptr. 741, 389 P.2d 133

Delegation of purely mechanical act, such as signing document, not subject to equal dignities rule. Ellis v. Mihelis (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 206, 214, 32 Cal. Rptr. 415, 384 P.2d 7

Authority of executive officer of corporation not required to be in writing under equal dignities rule. Jeppi v. Brockman Holding Co. (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 11, 17, 206 P.2d 847

Rule [Civ. Code § 2309] does not require written authorization to exercise right required by agreement, but not by law, to be in writing. Ripani v. Liberty Loan Corp. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 603, 610, 157 Cal. Rptr. 272

Written authorization unnecessary when agent is executive officer of principal corporation. Ripani v. Liberty Loan Corp. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 603, 609, 157 Cal. Rptr. 272

Principal estopped from asserting equal dignities rule [Civ. Code § 2309] when principal by own conduct has lulled third party into believing that agent had or did not need written authority. Kerner v. Hughes Tool Co. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 924, 934, 128 Cal. Rptr. 839 (estoppel found); McGirr v. Gulf Oil Corp. (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 246, 258, 115 Cal. Rptr. 902 (no estoppel found)

Principal's and agent's estoppel to assert defense of statute of frauds [Civ. Code § 1624] does not affect ability to assert equal dignities rule [Civ. Code § 2309]. McGirr v. Gulf Oil Corp. (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 246, 256, 115 Cal. Rptr. 902

Written authorization unnecessary when agent acts in presence of and at direction of principal. Lathrop v. Gauger (1954) 127 Cal. App. 2d 754, 764, 274 P.2d 730

[6] Liability of Principal

[a] To Agent

Principal obligated to indemnify agent for liability incurred in breach of contract executed for principal. Sunset-Sternau Food Co. v. Bonzi (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 834, 837, 36 Cal. Rptr. 741, 389 P.2d 133

Rules of contract interpretation generally applicable to construction of compensation provisions of agency agreement. Monroe v. Grolier Society (1929) 208 Cal. 447, 451, 281 P. 604

Principal's right to revoke agency subject to contractual limitation; revocation contrary to limitation still effective [Civ. Code § 2356(a)(1)] but constitutes breach of agency contract. Roth v. Moeller (1921) 185 Cal. 415, 418-419, 197 P. 62

Promise of compensation in reasonable amount implied from agreement to perform service for benefit of another. Toomy v. Dunphy (1890) 86 Cal. 639, 643, 25 P. 130 ; Spinelli v. Tallcott (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 589, 595, 77 Cal. Rptr. 481

Principal obligated to compensate agent for acquisitions resulting from agent's activities. Zalk v. General Exploration Co. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 786, 794, 164 Cal. Rptr. 647

Principal's interference with agent's exclusive sales contract, by selling to persons within agent's territory, gave agent cause of action for profits thatwould have been made had agent made sales. Hacker etc. Co. v. Chapman V. Mfg. Co. (1936) 17 Cal. App. 2d 265, 267-268, 61 P.2d 944

[b] To Third Party

Allegation of negligence of agent unnecessary when allegation that principal negligent. Golceff v. Sugarman (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 152, 154, 222 P.2d 665

Construction contract arbitration award was improperly imposed against agent of previously undisclosed principal, based on service of arbitration demand on principal only; arbitrator did not acquire personal jurisdiction over agent as result of agent's participation on behalf of principal at arbitration proceedings. Ikerd v. Warren T. Merrill & Sons (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 1833, 1842-1844, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 398

Civ. Code § 2338, providing in part that principal is responsible to third persons for negligence of agent in transaction of business of agency, including wrongful acts committed by agent in and as part of transaction of such business, reflects common law doctrine of respondeat superior. Spradlin v. Cox (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 799, 808-809, 247 Cal. Rptr. 347

Liability of principal for torts of agent or employee is not always based on doctrine of respondeat superior; in fraud cases, principal is liable when principal intentionally misinforms agent or withholds information from agent and agent as result innocently misrepresents. Barrett v. Bank of America (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1362, 1370, 229 Cal. Rptr. 16

Employee drinking in employer's parking lot after work was not acting within scope of employment for respondeat superior purposes. Harris v. Trojan Fireworks Co. (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 830, 835, 202 Cal. Rptr. 440

Principal liable for fraud of agent despite having received no benefit from fraud. Spahn v. Guild Industries Corp. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 143, 155-156, 156 Cal. Rptr. 375

Risk fairly regarded as typical of or broadly incident to principal's enterprise is reasonably foreseeable for purposes of making principal liable for acts of agent. Clark Equipment Co. v. Wheat (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 503, 522, 154 Cal. Rptr. 874

Principal liable without fault for act of agent (1) required or incident to agent's duties or (2) reasonably foreseeable by principal. Clark Equipment Co. v. Wheat (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 503, 520, 154 Cal. Rptr. 874

Principal not liable for injuries caused by negligent physical conduct of nonservant agent. Van Den Eikhof v. Hocker (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 900, 905, 151 Cal. Rptr. 456

Punitive damages for fraudulent acts of agent properly awarded against principal who ratified agent's acts. Walker v. Signal Companies, Inc. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 982, 999, 149 Cal. Rptr. 119

Principal liable to third parties for willful wrongs of unauthorized subagent committed in course of service to principal. Eye v. Kafer, Inc. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 449, 454, 20 Cal. Rptr. 841

Principal not liable for unauthorized act of agent unless ostensible agency shown or act ratified by principal. Grasslands etc. Assn. v. Lucky etc. Co. (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 776, 779, 247 P.2d 380

Principal liable for any wrongful act of agent specifically authorized by principal. Maberto v. Wolfe (1930) 106 Cal. App. 202, 206, 289 P. 218

[7] Liability of Agent

[a] To Principal

Agent must account to principal for all benefits and advantages received as outgrowth of agency. Savage v. Mayer (1949) 33 Cal2d 548, 551, 203 P.2d 9 ; Kennard v. Glick (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 246, 250-251, 7 Cal. Rptr. 88

Principal who had no active part in wrong of agent is entitled to indemnification from agent for payment to third party of damages based on vicarious liability. Bradley v. Rosenthal (1908) 154 Cal. 420, 423-425, 97 P. 875 ; Herrero v. Atkinson (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 69, 77, 38 Cal. Rptr. 490

Agent owes principal duties to (1) make fullest disclosure of material facts that might affect principal's decision-making, (2) use reasonable care, skill, and diligence in performing object of agency, and (3) refrain from competing with principal on matters connected with agency. Pollack v. Lytle (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 931, 940-941, 175 Cal. Rptr. 81

Breach of agent's fiduciary duty to principal is tortious. Pollack v. Lytle (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 931, 940-941, 175 Cal. Rptr. 81

Agent's acquisition of interest adverse to principal or misrepresentation or concealment regarding subject matter of agency and agent's interest therein breach of agent's fiduciary duty owed to principal. Wade v. Diamond A Cattle Co. (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 453, 458, 118 Cal. Rptr. 695

Undisclosed profits realized by agent from agency transaction are recoverable by principal despite fairness of price. Wade v. Diamond A Cattle Co. (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 453, 458, 118 Cal. Rptr. 695 ; Store of Happiness v. Carmona & Allen (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 266, 272, 312 P.2d 1104

Agent liable to principal for negligent failure to communicate material facts to principal. Cecka v. Beckman & Co., Inc. (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 5, 11, 104 Cal. Rptr. 374

Agent who violates duty to use reasonable care, skill, and diligence liable for any damages actually sustained by principal as result of negligence or breach of duty of agent. Timmsen v. Forest E. Olson, Inc. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 860, 871, 86 Cal. Rptr. 359

Principal entitled to damages suffered as result of agent's breach of agency contract. Spitzer v. Pathe Exchange, Inc. (1933) 132 Cal. App. 612, 619, 23 P.2d 308

[b] To Third Party

Action for breach of warranty of authority requires allegations that agent acted in excess of authority and that plaintiff was ignorant of true authority and relied on agent's representations of authority. Yoakum v. Tarver (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 202, 206-207, 64 Cal. Rptr. 7

Principal's liability for tort of agent does not exonerate agent for tort liability incurred while acting as agent. Bayuk v. Edson (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 309, 320, 46 Cal. Rptr. 49

[8] Nature of Principal and Agent Relationship

Agent of travelers potentially liable for failure to exercise duty to warn of dangers known to agent but not to principals. Rookard v. Mexicoach (9th Cir. 1982) 680 F.2d 1257, 1262-1263 (applying California law)

Agency relationship does not require discretion in agent's performance of task for principal. Skopp v. Weaver (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 432, 439, 128 Cal. Rptr. 19, 546 P.2d 307

Principal's questioning of agent's acts casts burden on agent to show utmost good faith and disclosure of all facts relating to questioned transaction. Batson v. Strehlow (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 662, 675, 68 Cal. Rptr. 589, 441 P.2d 101

Travel agent has duty to disclose reasonably obtainable material information to traveler unless information is so clearly obvious and apparent to traveler that, as matter of law, travel agent would not be negligent in failing to disclose it. McCollum v. Friendly Hills Travel Center (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 83, 94, 217 Cal. Rptr. 919

Agent status and employee status are not mutually exclusive. Lombardo v. Santa Monica Young Men's Christian Assn. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 529, 541, 215 Cal. Rptr. 224 ; Estate of Levinthal (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 691, 699, 164 Cal. Rptr. 628

Agent is fiduciary with same obligations of diligence and faithful service as trustee, including duty to make fullest disclosure of all material facts that might affect decision-making of principal. Pollack v. Lytle (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 931, 940, 175 Cal. Rptr. 81

Agent is fiduciary held to trustee's standard of loyalty and honesty [former Civ. Code §§ 2322(3), 2228-2240 (now see Civ. Code § 2322(c); Prob. Code §§ 16002, 16004, 16005, 16009)]; standard is same regardless of form of compensation, whether certain, contingent, or gratuitous. Zalk v. General Exploration Co. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 786, 793, 164 Cal. Rptr. 647 (also compares status of agent with middleperson)

Agent cannot act on behalf of person whose interests are adverse to, or in competition with, principal. Zalk v. General Exploration Co. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 786, 793, 164 Cal. Rptr. 647 ; Rezos v. Zahm & Nagel Co. (1926) 78 Cal. App. 728, 731, 246 P. 564

Agent status [Civ. Code § 2295] and independent contractor status not mutually exclusive. City of Los Angeles v. Meyers Bros. Parking System, Inc. (1975) 54 Cal. App. 3d 135, 138, 126 Cal. Rptr. 545

Agent must exercise ordinary care to communicate to principal knowledge acquired in course of agency with respect to material facts which might affect principal's decisions concerning transaction(s) entrusted to agent. Cecka v. Beckman & Co. (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 5, 11, 104 Cal. Rptr. 374

Characteristics of agency: (1) Agent has power to alter relationship between principal and third parties, and between self and principal; (2) agent is fiduciary with respect to matters within scope of agency; and (3) principal has right to control conduct of agent regarding matters entrusted to agent. Alvarez v. Felker Mfg. Co. (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 987, 999, 41 Cal. Rptr. 514

Agency is relationship resulting from act of principal authorizing agent to conduct one or more transactions with one or more third persons and to exercise a degree of discretion in effecting purpose of principal. Store of Happiness v. Carmona & Allen (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 266, 269, 312 P.2d 1104 ; Wallace v. Sinclair (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 220, 229, 250 P.2d 154

[9] Other Relationships Distinguished

Although attorney may be client's agent in business sense, with authority to make binding commitments or agreements, attorney in role of trial counsel is independent contractor and client is therefore not vicariously liable for tortious conduct of attorney in role as trial counsel. Lynn v. Superior Court (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 346, 349, 225 Cal. Rptr. 427

[10] Power of Attorney

Power of attorney under former Civ. Code § 2494 did not give attorney in fact power to appear in court or otherwise act as attorney at law for principal. Drake v. Superior Court (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 1826, 1830-1831, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 829

Agent's adjudicated incompetency did not necessarily terminate agency [Civ. Code § 2355] and acts performed after restoration of capacity were within authority of nondurable power of attorney granted before incompetency. Clay v. Saute (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 681, 685-686, 295 P.2d 914

[11] Ratification

Ratification is conduct of principal from which intention to consent to or adopt agent's act is inferrable, including conduct inconsistent with any other reasonable intention. Rakestraw v. Rodrigues (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 67, 73, 104 Cal. Rptr. 57, 500 P.2d 1401

Principal cannot ratify beneficial parts of unauthorized transaction while disavowing burdens of same transaction. Navrides v. Zurich Ins. Co. (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 698, 704, 97 Cal. Rptr. 309, 488 P.2d 637 ; Price v. McConnell (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 660, 666, 7 Cal. Rptr. 695

Ratification of part of transaction is ratification of entire transaction [Civ. Code § 2311]. Navrides v. Zurich Ins. Co. (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 698, 704, 97 Cal. Rptr. 309, 488 P.2d 637 ; Price v. McConnell (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 660, 666, 7 Cal. Rptr. 695

Principal's lawsuit seeking to enforce unauthorized contract entered into by agent is ratification of contract. Navrides v. Zurich Ins. Co. (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 698, 703, 97 Cal. Rptr. 309, 488 P.2d 637

Unauthorized act of agent ratifiable either expressly or by implication from principal's conduct. Union Trust and Realty Co. v. Best (1911) 160 Cal. 263, 267, 116 P. 737

Acts taken to minimize loss when rescission is impossible are not ratification. Pacific Vinegar etc. Works v. Smith (1907) 152 Cal. 507, 511-512, 93 P. 85

Jury's finding that movie production company ratified or authorized movie producer's wrongful conduct toward investors was supported by evidence;company did not repudiate producer's acts, and jury could determine that supposedly "special relationship" was created to give company deniability for producer's actions. Streetscenes LLC v. ITC Entertainment Group, Inc. (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 233, 242-243, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 754

Power of attorney (including power to ratify), executed after agent executed document on behalf of principal, was sufficient evidence to support conclusion that signing of power of attorney ratified agent's transaction. White v. Moriarty (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1290, 1295-1296, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 200

Punitive damages for fraudulent acts of agent properly awarded against principal who ratified agent's acts. Walker v. Signal Companies, Inc. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 982, 999, 149 Cal. Rptr. 119

Principal's retention of funds acquired by agent in unauthorized transaction is ratification of transaction. Reusche v. California Pac. Title Ins. Co. (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 731, 737, 42 Cal. Rptr. 262

Ratification is possible despite ignorance of facts of transaction when ignorance arises from principal's failure to investigate when reasonable person would do so. Reusche v. California Pac. Title Ins. Co. (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 731, 737, 42 Cal. Rptr. 262

Ratification made without knowledge of material facts involved in agent's acts, including the legal effect of the acts, is void. Bate v. Marsteller (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 573, 582-583, 346 P.2d 903 ; Estate of Fletcher (1940) 36 Cal. App. 2d 567, 573, 97 P.2d 1039

[12] Termination of Agency

Principal always possesses power to discharge agent, but right to discharge depends on circumstances such as parties' contractual relationship. Long Beach Drug Co. v. United Drug Co. (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 158, 174, 89 P.2d 386 ; Lynch v. Gagnon (1929) 96 Cal. App. 512, 518-519, 274 P. 584

Contract limiting termination does not prevent termination by principal, but allows agent remedy of breach of contract action. Stoll v. Stoll (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 687, 691-693, 56 P.2d 226

Principal's right to revoke agency [Civ. Code § 2356] subject to contractual limitation; revocation contrary to limitation is still effective but breach of agency contract. Roth v. Moeller (1921) 185 Cal. 415, 418-419, 197 P. 62

Absent instructions that cash proceeds be held in trust or as special deposit, agency relationship created by custodial securities account was terminated on sale of securities and collection of cash; once agency relationship terminated, and absent instructions regarding cash proceeds, cash proceeds could be used by agent for its own profit without requiring disclosure and without violating any duties of agent. Van de Kamp v. Bank of America (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 819, 860-862, 251 Cal. Rptr. 530

Agency is coupled with interest, and therefore is not terminated by death of principal, only when (1) agency is held for benefit of agent and not principal; (2) agency was created to secure performance of duty to agent or to protect title in him or her; and (3) agency was created at same time duty or title was created or agency was created for consideration. Lombardo v. Santa Monica Young Men's Christian Assn. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 529, 541, 215 Cal. Rptr. 224

Agency or power created for benefit of agent rather than for benefit of principal abrogates principal's power to terminate agency at will. Becket v. Welton Becket & Associates (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 815, 820, 114 Cal. Rptr. 531

Death of principal immediately terminates agency not coupled with interest. Charles B. Webster Real Estate v. Rickard (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 612, 617, 98 Cal. Rptr. 559

Agent must have specific, present, and coexisting interest or estate in subject of agency independently of power conferred for agency to be irrevocable as coupled with interest. Jay v. Dollarhide (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 1001, 1023, 84 Cal. Rptr. 538

Recital of irrevocability in grant of agency not controlling. Jay v. Dollarhide (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 1001, 1023, 84 Cal. Rptr. 538

Agency relationship usually depends on assent of both parties, permitting either party to terminate agency. Preszler v. Dudley (1957) 153 Cal. App. 2d 120, 123, 314 P.2d 138

Agency terminable by mutual abandonment even if not terminable by one party alone. Preszler v. Dudley (1957) 153 Cal. App. 2d 120, 123-124, 314 P.2d 138

Agent's adjudicated incompetency does not necessarily terminate agency [Civ. Code § 2355] and acts performed after restoration of capacity are within authority of nondurable power of attorney granted before incompetency. Clay v. Saute (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 681, 685-686, 295 P.2d 914

Sale or other disposal of subject of agency terminates relationship. E.A. Strout Western Realty v. Gregoire (1950) 101 Cal. App. 2d 512, 519, 225 P.2d 585

Power of sale contained in mortgage as power coupled with interest in mortgage lien, and power therefore is not revoked [Civ. Code § 2356(a)] by death of mortgagor. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Doane (1936) 13 Cal. App. 2d 233, 237-239, 56 P.2d 989

Company's agency to collect rents on building combined with 20-year lease in building creates irrevocable agency coupled with interest. Lane Mortgage Co. v. Crenshaw (1928) 93 Cal. App. 411, 428-429, 269 P. 672

[13] Undisclosed Agency

Agent contracting with third party deemed to be party to contract when third party has notice of agency but no notice of principal's identity. G. W. Andersen Construction Co. v. Mars Sales (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 326, 330-333, 210 Cal. Rptr. 409

Agent required to disclose principal's true identity to avoid personal liability; trade name of principal is insufficient. W. W. Leasing Unlimited v. Commercial Standard Title Ins. Co. (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 792, 796, 197 Cal. Rptr. 118

Liability of undisclosed principal for contract entered into by agent is dependent on finding of actual agency. Associated Creditors' Agency v. Davis (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 374, 385, 118 Cal. Rptr. 772, 530 P.2d 1084

Requirement that plaintiff elect whether to proceed against agent or principal is inapplicable when principal not undisclosed. Clifton Cattle Co. v. Thompson (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 11, 16-17, 117 Cal. Rptr. 500

Third party's election of whether to proceed against principal or against agent is unnecessary until existence of agency relationship established or refuted. Standard Oil Co. of Cal. v. Doneux (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 608, 612-613, 13 Cal. Rptr. 749

Default, but not judgment, entered against agent by third party who knew of agency relationship constitutes election to seek recovery from agent alone. Standard Oil Co. of Cal. v. Doneux (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 608, 613, 13 Cal. Rptr. 749

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAgents DistinguishedSpecial AgentsBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActContracts & ConveyancesLiability of AgentBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsCauses of Action & RemediesBreach of Fiduciary DutyGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesAuthorized Acts of AgentsLiability of PrincipalBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsDuties & LiabilitiesKnowledge & NoticeAgent KnowledgeBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsEstablishmentGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsRatificationIllegal ActsBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsRatificationLiabilitiesBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsTypesEmployee & Employer

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.63

§ 427.63 Law Reviews

Sykes, "The Economics of Vicarious Liability," 93 Yale L.J. 1231 (1984)

Review of Selected 1981 Legislation, "Uniform Durable Power of Attorney Act," 13 Pacific L.J. 561 (1982)

Note, "An Agent's Authority to Bind a Principal to Arbitration," 65 Cal. L. Rev. 355 (1977)

Comment, "Service Station Torts: Time for the Oil Companies to Assume Their Share of the Responsibility," 10 Cal. Western L. Rev. 382 (1974)

Comment, "The Liability of Labor Unions for Picket Line Assaults," 21 UCLA L. Rev. 600 (1973)

Comment, "Liability of a Franchisor for Acts of the Franchisee," 41 S. Cal. L. Rev. 143 (1967)

Comment, "The Power of an Agent to Bind His Principal--California and the Restatement," 22 Cal. L. Rev. 392 (1934)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActActual AuthorityGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActActual AuthorityOral & Written Authority

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.64

§ 427.64 Text References

Witkin, Summary of California Law, vol. 3, Agency and Employment, §§ 1-4, 6, 12, 13, 43-313; vol. 12, Real Property, §§ 465-471; vol. 14, Wills and Probate, §§ 835-900 (10th ed. 2005)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActActual AuthorityGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsAuthority to ActActual AuthorityOral & Written AuthorityEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART IV. FORMS
A. Actions by Agent Against Principal

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.80

§ 427.80 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3300]--Breach of Agency Contract--By Discharged Agent Against Principal

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3300]--Breach of Agency Contract--By Discharged Agent Against Principal

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____[name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES FOR BREACH OF
_____ [name], [and DOES I	)	CONTRACT
through _____,]	)	[Civ. Code § 3300]
Defendant(s).	)	[Amount demanded _____
	)	(exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]
		[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

_____

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant _____ [name of principal] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [state capacity and residence of defendant or other basis of venue, e.g., a resident of _____ County, California, or a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of California with its principal place of business in _____ (city), _____ County, California].

[2. Defendants DOES 1-_____, inclusive, are sued herein under fictitious names, their true names and capacities being unknown to plaintiff. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to allege their true names and capacities when ascertained. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged and that plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by those defendants.]

3. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff and defendant entered into _____ [a written or an oral or an implied by conduct] agreement in _____ [city], California, under which plaintiff agreed to serve as defendant's agent for the purpose of _____ [state purpose of agency, e.g., negotiating personal appearance contracts for defendant for the period of _____ (specify contract term, e.g., one year) at a fixed compensation of $_____ per _____ (specify, e.g., month) (plus commissions)]. [Atrue and correct copy of the agreement is attached as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference.]

4. On or about _____ [date], defendant terminated the contract with plaintiff by _____ [specify defendant's manner of termination, e.g., informing plaintiff that plaintiff's services would no longer be required].

5. Defendant breached the contract between plaintiff and defendant in that _____ [describe breach of contract, e.g., the agency agreement still had by its terms _____ (specify remaining duration, e.g., six months) to run at the time of defendant's termination, and defendant acted without cause and in violation of the agreement by terminating it before the term had expired].

[6. On the date of termination, there was due, owing, and unpaid the sum of $_____ as salary for plaintiff's services under the agreement for the period from _____ [date] to _____ [date], (together with the sum of $_____ as commissions earned by plaintiff under the terms of the agency agreement during that period).]

7. At all times mentioned herein, plaintiff was ready, willing, and able to perform all of his/her obligations under the agency agreement, and plaintiff was damaged by the breach of contract in that, had defendant not breached the contract, plaintiff was entitled to receive and would have received _____ [specify benefits plaintiff would have received had contract not been breached, e.g., the sum of $_____ as salary for the _____ (specify remaining time on contract at the time of termination, e.g., months of _____ [date] through _____ [date]), plus approximately $_____ in commissions during that time].

8. Plaintiff complied with all terms, covenants, and conditions of the agreement required to be performed on his/her part [except _____ (specify condition(s) not performed). Plaintiff did not perform these conditions because _____ (specify facts showing excuse for nonperformance)].

[9. Plaintiff has made demand on defendant for the sum of $_____, for salary and commissions due. Defendant has failed (and refused,) and continues to fail (and refuse), to pay to plaintiff all or any part of this sum.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For general damages in the sum of $_____;

[2. For special damages consisting of _____ (specify special damages, if any, e.g., damages for loss of earnings in the sum of $_____);]

3. For interest on the damages according to proof at the _____ [legal rate or rate of _____ percent per year as provided in the contract] [from _____, [date];

[4. For reasonable attorney's fees in the amount of $_____, as provided for in the agency agreement;]

5. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

6. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [signature]

Attorney for Plaintiff

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters that are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

This complaint may be used in a breach of contract action by an agent against a principal for wrongful termination of an agency agreement. This action does not challenge the power of the principal to terminate the agency, but rather seeks damages because defendant principal's termination of the agency prior to its expiration breached the agreement between the parties [Stoll v. Stoll (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 687, 691-693, 56 P.2d 226 ; see also discussion in § 427.21[2]]. For a complaint challenging the principal's power to terminate a specific agency because it is coupled with an interest, see § 427.84. For discussion and forms relating to wrongful termination of an employee, see Ch. 249, Employment Law: Termination and Discipline .

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- The residence and capacity of defendant (Paragraph 1) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395, 395.2, 395.5];

- The potential existence of additional defendants whose identities are unknown to plaintiff (Paragraph 2) [Code Civ. Proc. § 474];

- That the parties entered into a written, oral, or implied by conduct agency agreement for a specified period of time (Paragraph 3) [see Long Beach Drug Co. v. United Drug Co. (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 158, 174, 89 P.2d 386 ; Capital Nat. Bk. of Sacramento v. Stoll (1934) 220 Cal. 260, 266, 30 P.2d 411 ; Lynch v. Gagnon (1929) 96 Cal. App. 512, 518-519, 274 P. 584 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(g)];

- Defendant's breach of contract by terminating the agency (Paragraph 4) [see Reichert v. General

Ins. Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 830, 69 Cal. Rptr. 321, 442 P.2d 377] ;

- That defendants' termination of the agency before expiration of the parties' agreement and without cause breached the parties' contract (Paragraph 5) [see Long Beach Drug Co. v. United Drug Co. (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 158, 174, 89 P.2d 386 ; Capital Nat. Bk. of Sacramento v. Stoll (1934) 220 Cal. 260, 266, 30 P.2d 411 ; Lynch v. Gagnon (1929) 96 Cal. App. 512, 518-519, 274 P. 584] ;

- That defendant owed plaintiff compensation for services rendered before the termination (Paragraph 6) [see Monroe v. Grolier Society (1929) 208 Cal. 447, 451, 281 P. 604] ;

- That plaintiff was ready, willing, and able to perform under the agreement, the fact that plaintiff was damaged by the breach, and the approximate amount of benefit plaintiff would have received had the contract not been breached (Paragraph 7) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 457; Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 830, 69 Cal. Rptr. 321, 442 P.2d 377] ;

- That plaintiff performed all terms, conditions, and covenants required by the agreement, or was excused from performance because of specified facts, until the agreement was terminated by defendant (Paragraph 8) [Code Civ. Proc. § 457]; and

- An optional allegation that plaintiff demanded payment of the compensation that would have been due under the agreement but that the demand was refused by defendant, for use when prejudgment interest is sought on the ground that plaintiff was entitled to recover damages certain, or capable of being made certain by calculation, as of a particular day (Paragraph 9) [see Civ. Code § 3287; Sackett v. Spindler (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 220, 240, 56 Cal. Rptr. 435] .

[4] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)], and the first page of the paper must state whether or not the demand exceeds $10,000 [Gov. Code § 70613(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9) (statement regarding amount of demand must appear "below the character of the action or proceeding")].

[5] Venue

In a breach of contract action, the proper venue is either in the county where the defendant resides, where the contract was to be performed, or where the contract was entered into [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]. If the defendant is a corporation, the county where the corporation's principalplace of business is located is also a proper place to institute the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5]. An unincorporated association may similarly be sued in the county in which the association's principal office is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 395.2]. If a basis for venue other than the residence of the defendant is relied on for venue purposes, it is unnecessary to allege defendant's residence. The fact relied on to establish venue, such as the place where the contract was entered into, must be alleged, however, because the county in which defendant resides is the proper county for trial except as otherwise provided by law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a); see also Ch. 571, Venue].

[6] Damages

The measure of damages in an action for breach of an obligation arising from contract, unless otherwise expressly provided by the Civil Code, is the amount that will compensate for all detriment proximately caused or that, in the ordinary course of things, would be likely to result therefrom [Civ. Code § 3300]. The damages resulting from the breach must be alleged in the complaint [Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 830, 69 Cal. Rptr. 321, 442 P.2d 377] . The proper measure of damages for the wrongful termination of an agency agreement is the benefits that plaintiff would have received had the contract not been breached, less any amount shown by the defendant to have been reasonably mitigable [Stoll v. Stoll (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 687, 691-692, 56 P.2d 226 ; Alderson v. Houston (1908) 154 Cal. 1, 16, 96 P. 884] .

[7] Interest

Every person who is entitled to recover damages certain, or capable of being made certain by calculation, and the right to recover is vested in him or her on a particular day, is also entitled to recover interest thereon from that day, except during any time that the debtor is prevented by law, or by the act of the creditor, from paying the debt [Civ. Code § 3287(a); see Leff v. Gunter (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 508, 519, 189 Cal. Rptr. 377, 658 P.2d 740 ; see also Marine Terminals Corp. v. Paceco, Inc. (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 991, 997, 193 Cal. Rptr. 687 (fact that damages recoverable were inaccurately stated in complaint does not preclude interest award)].

Every person who is entitled under any judgment to receive damages based on a cause of action in contract when the claim was unliquidated may also recover interest on the award from a date prior to the entry of judgment as the court may, in its discretion, fix, but in no event earlier than the date the action was filed [Civ. Code § 3287(b); see A & M Produce Co. v. FMC Corp. (l982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 473, 496-497 (factors properly considered in exercise of discretion); see also Civ.Code § 3302 (detriment for breach of obligation to pay money only includes interest on amount due)]. Any legal rate of interest stipulated by a contract entered into before January 1, 1986, remains chargeable after a breachof that contract, until the contract is superseded by a verdict or other new obligation [Civ. Code § 3289(a)].

If a contract entered into after January 1, 1986, does not stipulate a legal rate of interest, the obligation must bear interest at a rate of 10 percent per annum after a breach [Civ. Code § 3289(b)]. For purposes of Civ. Code § 3289(b), the term contract does not include a note secured by a deed of trust on real property [Civ. Code § 3289(b)].

When requesting interest at the legal rate, counsel should include the words "legal rate" in Paragraph 2 of the Prayer in the foregoing form of complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 685.010(a) (specifying legal rate of interest)]. When the contract provides for a rate of interest on damages, counsel should include the words "rate of _____ per year as provided in the contract" and specify the contract rate in the blank space. When requesting prejudgment interest, counsel should include the appropriate date in the bracketed language at the end of Paragraph 2 of the Prayer in this complaint.

[8] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified also, if the action is in the superior court and is not a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial except in a limited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

[9] Cross References

For alternative fictitious name allegations and allegations of capacity and residence, see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used

For alternative forms for captions and introductions, see Ch. 108, Captions and Introductions

For alternative complaints for breach of contract actions, see Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.100 et seq.

For alternative allegations of damages, see Ch. 177, Damages

For alternative prayers and verification, see Ch. 420, Prayers , and Ch. 572, Verification , respectively

For alternative allegations of venue, see Ch. 571, Venue

[10] Statutes

Attorney's fees when provided for by contract. Civ. Code § 1717(a)

Methods of terminating agency. Civ. Code §§ 2355, 2356

Interest as damages. Civ. Code § 3287 et seq.

Damages in action based on breach of contract. Civ. Code §§ 3300-3318

Venue in action based on breach of contract. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395, 395.5

Complaint or cross complaint based on contract are objectionable if it cannot be ascertained from pleading whether contract is written, oral, or implied by conduct. Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(g)

Pleading performance of conditions precedent. Code Civ. Proc. § 457

[11] Decisions

Principal always possesses power to discharge agent, but right to discharge without liability depends on circumstances such as parties' contractual relationship. Long Beach Drug Co. v. United Drug Co. (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 158, 174, 89 P.2d 386 ; Lynch v. Gagnon (1929) 96 Cal. App. 512, 518-519, 274 P. 584

Contract limiting termination does not prevent termination by principal, but allows agent remedy of breach of contract action. Stoll v. Stoll (1936) 5 Cal. 2d 687, 691-693, 56 P.2d 226

Principal's right to revoke agency is subject to contractual limitation; revocation contrary to limitation is still effective but is breach of agency contract. Roth v. Moeller (1921) 185 Cal. 415, 418-419, 197 P. 62

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART IV. FORMS
A. Actions by Agent Against Principal

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.81

§ 427.81 Allegations--Principal's Breach of Exclusive Sales Contract--Action by Agent Against Principal

[1] FORM Allegations--Principal's Breach of Exclusive Sales Contract--Action by Agent Against Principal

1. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff and defendant entered into _____ [a written or an oral or an implied by conduct] agreement in _____ [city], California. The agreement provided that _____ [specify exclusive nature of contract, e.g., plaintiff would act as defendant's exclusive a t for the purpose of _____ (specify, e.g., selling defendant's manufactured goods) in the _____ (describe territory in which plaintiff was granted exclusive agency, e.g., state of California), and provided that plaintiff would be compensated by _____ (specify plaintiff's compensation, e.g., a five percent commission on all sales made for defendant in the specified territory)]. [A true and correct copy of the agreement is attached as Exhibit A and made a part hereof by reference.]

2. Notwithstanding the exclusive nature of plaintiff's right to act as defendant's agent under the agreement between the parties, defendant _____ [specify defendant's breach of contract, e.g., sold goods covered by plaintiff's exclusive sales contract to buyers within plaintiff's territory without compensating plaintiff].

3. Plaintiff has been damaged by the actions of defendant in the amount of $_____, representing the profits plaintiff would have made on sales made by defendant in plaintiff's territory.

[2] Use of Form

These allegations are for use in a complaint by an agent against a principal who breached an exclusive agency contract by competing with the agent. The principal's competition, which may arise for example when an agent is exclusively authorized to sell the principal's goods or services, gives rise to an agent's cause of action to recover the profits that the agent would have earned on sales made by the principal [Hacker etc. Co. v. Chapman V. Mfg. Co. (1936) 17 Cal. App. 2d 265, 267-268, 61 P.2d 944 ; see also discussion in § 427.21[2]]. These allegations may be inserted in § 427.80 in an appropriate case as an alternative cause of action, or in place of Paragraphs 3-7 of § 427.80 when the breach of the exclusivity provisions are the only actionable breach by the principal.

[3] Allegations

This form alleges [Hacker etc. Co. v. Chapman V. Mfg. Co. (1936) 17 Cal. App. 2d 265, 271, 61 P.2d 944] :

- The exclusive nature of the agency contract (Paragraph 1),
- Defendant's breach of the exclusivity provision of the contract (Paragraph 2), and
- Damages resulting from the principal's competition with the exclusive agent, shown by the amount of sales made by the principal (Paragraph 3).

[4] Decisions

Principal's interference with agent's exclusive sales contract, by selling to customers within agent's exclusive territory, gives agent cause of action for profits that would have been made had agent made the sales. Hacker etc. Co. v. Chapman V. Mfg. Co. (1936) 17 Cal. App. 2d 265, 267-268, 61 P.2d 944

[5] Cross Reference

For a related form, see § 427.80.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART IV. FORMS
A. Actions by Agent Against Principal

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.82

§ 427.82 Complaint for Money (Common Count)--For Compensation--By Agent Against Principal

[1] FORM Complaint for Money (Common Count)--For Compensation--By Agent Against Principal

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR MONEY
_____ [name], [and DOES I	)	(Common Count)
through _____,]	)	[Amount demanded _____
Defendant(s).	)	(exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]
	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

_____

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 427.80, Paragraph 1.]

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 427.80, Paragraph 2.]

3. _____ [Within the last _____ (two or four) years or About _____ (date)], at _____ [city], Calfornia, defendant became indebted to plaintiff for services rendered by plaintiff as agent for defendant in _____ [specify purpose of agency, e.g., negotiating personal appearance contracts for defendant].

[4. The _____ (agreed sum or reasonable value) of the services rendered by plaintiff for the benefit of, and at the request of, defendant is/was the sum of $_____.]

5. No part of the above sum has been paid[, except the sum of $_____] [, notwithstanding that plaintiff has demanded payment therefor], and there is now due, owing, and unpaid from defendant to plaintiff the sum of $_____.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For the sum of $_____;

2. For interest on the damages according to proof at the _____ [legal rate or rate of _____ percent per year as provided in the contract] [from _____ (date)];

3. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [signature]

Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification, if desired. See § 427.80.]

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint may be used in an action on a common count seeking the reasonable value of the agent's services if no express contract of agency exists, but plaintiff acted as agent at the request of, and for the benefit of, defendant [see Toomy v. Dunphy (1890) 86 Cal. 639, 643, 25 P. 130 ; Spinelli v. Tallcott (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 589, 595, 77 Cal. Rptr. 481] . This complaint may also be used on a common count for money had and received under an express contract if plaintiff has fully performed and nothing remains to be done except payment by the defendant [see Ferro v. Citizens Nat. Trust & Sav. Bank (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 401, 409, 282 P.2d 849 ; Rains v. Arnett (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 337, 344, 11 Cal. Rptr. 299] . The substantive allegations may also be included as an alternative cause of action in a complaint for damages for breach of an express agency contract [Haggerty v. Warner (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 468, 475, 252 P.2d 373 ; see also discussion in § 427.21].

For additional discussion and forms relating to common counts, see Ch. 121, Common Counts . For additional discussion and forms relating to contracts and employment, see Ch. 140, Contracts , and Ch. 249 Employment Law: Termination and Discipline .

[3] Allegations

This form of complaint alleges:

- The time within which defendant's indebtedness arose (Paragraph 3).

- That the services were rendered at the request of, and for the benefit of, defendant and the agreed sum or reasonable value of the services (Paragraph 4).

- The fact that no payment has been made (Paragraph 5) [see Haggerty v. Warner (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 468, 475, 252 P.2d 373] .

✱ A demand need not be made or pleaded, however, if plaintiff seeks recovery for the reasonable value of services rendered [see McDonald v. Filice (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 613, 623, 60 Cal. Rptr. 832 ; see also Ch. 121, Common Counts].

[4] Decisions

Rules of contract interpretation generally applicable to construction of compensation provisions of agency agreement. Monroe v. Grolier Society (1929) 208 Cal. 447, 451, 281 P. 604

Promise of compensation in reasonable amount is implied from agreement to perform service for benefit of another unless agreed to be gratuitous. Toomy v. Dunphy (1890) 86 Cal. 639, 643, 25 P. 130 ; Spinelli v. Tallcott (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 589, 595, 77 Cal. Rptr. 481

Principal obligated to compensate agent for acquisitions resulting from agent's activities. Zalk v. General Exploration Co. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 786, 794, 164 Cal. Rptr. 647

Complaint seeking alternative remedies of breach of express contract and common count for services rendered held properly pleaded. Haggerty v. Warner (1953) 115 Cal. App. 2d 468, 475, 252 P.2d 373

[5] Cross Reference

For a related form, see § 427.80.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART IV. FORMS
A. Actions by Agent Against Principal

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.83

§ 427.83 Complaint for Indemnity--Agent Held Liable on Contract Executed for Principal--By Agent Against Principal

[1] FORM Complaint for Indemnity--Agent Held Liable on Contract Executed for Principal--By Agent Against Principal

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR INDEMNITY
_____ [name], [and DOES I	)	[Amount demanded _____
through _____,]	)	(exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]
Defendant(s).	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]
	)

_____

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 427.80, Paragraph 1.]

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 427.80, Paragraph 2.]

3. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff and defendant entered into _____ [a written or an oral or an implied by conduct] agreement in _____ [city], California, under which plaintiff agreed to serve as defendant's agent for the purpose of _____ [state purpose of agency, e.g., negotiating contracts for personal appearances by defendant]. Under the agreement, plaintiff was authorized _____ [specify plaintiff's authority, e.g., to enter into contracts with third parties providing for public speaking appearances by defendant]. [A true and correct copy of the agreement is attached as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference.]

4. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff, in his/her capacity as agent for defendant [and under defendant's instructions], entered into a contract on behalf of defendant with _____ [name of third person] requiring _____ [specify contractual obligations, e.g., defendant to appear and speak at a banquet on _____ [date]. [A true and correct copy of the contract is attached hereto as Exhibit B and incorporated by reference.]

5. Defendant breached the contract between plaintiff and _____ [name of third person sustaining damages] by _____ [specify defendant's breach, e.g., failing to appear and speak on the date specified in the contract between plaintiff and _____ (name of third person)].

[EITHER]

6. On or about _____ [date], a judgment was entered in _____ vs. _____, Case No. _____ in the _____ [specify name of court] Court, adjudging plaintiff as individually liable to _____ [name of third person sustaining damages] on the contract alleged in Paragraph 4, above, because of defendant's failure to perform. Plaintiff has been damaged bythis imposition of personal liability in that _____ [specify damages sustained, e.g., plaintiff satisfied the judgment for $_____ entered in the above-referenced case]. [A true and correct copy of the judgment is attached hereto as Exhibit C and incorporated by reference.]

[OR]

6. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff was named as defendant in the action entitled _____ vs. _____, Case No. _____, in the _____ [specify name of court] Court. Plaintiff agreed to pay the reasonable sum of $_____ to _____ [name of third person sustaining damages] in settlement of this action once it became clear that plaintiff was liable to _____ [name of third person sustaining damages].

[CONTINUE]

7. In addition, plaintiff was required to pay the sum of $_____ in costs and the sum of $_____ as attorney's fees in the course of defending the above-referenced action.

8. The damages recovered by _____ [name of third party sustaining damages] against plaintiff, and the costs and attorney's fees incurred by plaintiff, were caused solely by defendant's breach of the contract entered into on defendant's behalf in that _____ [specify defendant's breach, e.g., defendant failed to appear as provided for in the contract negotiated by plaintiff]. Plaintiff's liability for these damages arose not because of any fault on his/her/its part, but because of plaintiff's capacity as defendant's agent and acts taken in that capacity, namely _____ [specify authorized acts that led to liability, e.g., negotiating and signing the contract breached by defendant].

[9. On or about _____ (date), plaintiff gave defendant written notice of the action for damages commenced by _____ (name of third person damaged by defendant's breach) against plaintiff, requesting a defense of the action, and indicating defendant's primary responsibility for the damages and resultant obligation to indemnify plaintiff for any loss that plaintiff might sustain as a result of the action. (A copy of this notice is attached hereto as Exhibit D and incorporated by reference.) (Nevertheless, defendant failed to undertake the defense of the action and refused to indemnify plaintiff for any loss resulting from the action.)]

10. By reason of the foregoing, plaintiff is entitled to indemnity from defendant in the total sum of $_____, which amount includes damages paid and costs and attorney's fees incurred as set forth above, but defendant has not paid any part of this sum to plaintiff.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For indemnification in the amount of $_____;

2. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

3. For interest on the damages according to proof at the _____ [legal rate or rate of _____ percent per year as provided in the contract] [from _____ (date)];

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [signature]

Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification, if desired. See § 427.80].

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by an agent seeking indemnity from his or her principal because of the agent's personal liability on a contract entered into by the agent for the principal. The cause of action in such a case rests on an implied promise of reimbursement and indemnity from a principal to an agent for liability incurred as a result of the performance of the agency agreement [Sunset-Sternau Food Co. v. Bonzi (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 834, 837, 843, 36 Cal. Rptr. 741, 389 P.2d 133] . The implied promise applies only to the actual loss, rather than to the liability incurred, so the cause of action does not arise until the agent has actually paid the obligation [Sunset-Sternau Food Co. v. Bonzi (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 834, 837, 843, 36 Cal. Rptr. 741, 389 P.2d 133 ; see Civ. Code §§ 2772 et seq. (indemnity generally) Civ. Code § 2778 (rules for construction of indemnity contracts); see also discussion in § 427.25].

For further discussion of indemnity actions and alternative forms of complaint for indemnity, see Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution .

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- The agency agreement between plaintiff and defendant, including the authority of plaintiff agent to contract on behalf of defendant principal (paragraph 3) [see Civ. Code §§ 2315-2326].

- That plaintiff contracted with the third party within plaintiff's authority as agent for defendant (paragraph 4)

- Defendant's breach of the contract between plaintiff and the third person sustaining damages

(Paragraph 5)

- Alternative allegations that plaintiff either was adjudged personally liable on the contract after a trial or settled with the third person once liability became apparent (Paragraph 6) [Rimington v. General Accident Group of Ins. Cos. (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 394, 397, 23 Cal. Rptr. 40 ; see also Sunset-Sternau Food Co. v. Bonzi (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 834, 837, 36 Cal. Rptr. 741, 389 P.2d 133] ; (5) that the plaintiff incurred costs and attorney's fees in the course of defending the third-party action (paragraph 7)

- That the loss suffered by plaintiff was caused by the defendant's breach of contract and not by the active fault of plaintiff (Paragraph 8)

- That plaintiff is entitled to indemnity in a specific amount (Paragraph 10).

Also included is an optional allegation that plaintiff notified defendant of the action brought by the third person and that defendant was given an opportunity to defend the action (Paragraph 8). An agent seeking indemnity from its principal for expenses incurred in defending a third-party action need not have tendered its defense of the action as an absolute prerequisite to indemnification. The agent's failure to notify the principal merely requires that the agent prove that she or he made a reasonable defense [Fidelity Mortgage Trustee Service, Inc. v. Ridgegate East Homeowners Assn. (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 503, 511, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 521 ; see Civ. Code § 2778(4)-(7); Sunset-Sternau Food Co. v. Bonzi (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 834, 844, 36 Cal. Rptr. 741, 389 P.2d 133 ; see also Restatement (Second) of Agency, § 438, comment e].

[4] State Statutes

Authority of agents generally. Civ. Code § 2315 et seq.

Rights and liabilities incurred by agent accrue to principal. Civ. Code § 2330

Indemnity actions generally. Civ. Code § 2772 et seq.

[5] Decisions

All rights of indemnity except those created by express contractual provisions are subject to comparative principles, under which total or partial indemnity may be awarded depending on facts and circumstances of case; indemnitee's indemnity rights are terminated under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 877(b) and 877.6(c) by good faith settlement between indemnitor and plaintiff in underlying action. Far West Financial Corp. v. D & S Co. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 796, 810-814, 251 Cal. Rptr. 202, 760 P.2d 399

Principal obligated to indemnify agent for liability incurred in contract executed for principal. Sunset-Sternau Food Co. v. Bonzi (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 834, 837, 36 Cal. Rptr. 741, 389 P.2d 133 ; Rimington v. General Accident Group of Ins. Cos. (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 394, 397, 23 Cal. Rptr. 40

[6] Cross Reference

For a related form, see § 427.80.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART IV. FORMS
A. Actions by Agent Against Principal

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.84

§ 427.84 Complaint for Declaratory Relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]--Agency Not Terminable by Principal Because Coupled With Interest--By Agent Against Principal

[1] FORM Complaint for Declaratory Relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]--Agency Not Terminable by Principal Because Coupled With Interest--By Agent Against Principal

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name], [and DOES I	)	COMPLAINT FOR DECLARATORY RELIEF through _____,]	)
Defendant(s).	)
	)

_____

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 427.80, Paragraph 1.]

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 427.80, Paragraph 2.]

3. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff and defendant entered into _____ [a written or an oral or an implied by conduct] agreement in _____ [city], California, under which plaintiff and defendant agreed to establish an agency for the benefit of plaintiff _____ [specify benefit to plaintiff agent protected by agreement, e.g., in order to provide security for a debt owed by defendant to plaintiff]. Under the agreement, plaintiff was to serve as agent for defendant for the purpose of _____ [specify purpose of agency, e.g., selling a parcel of real property owned by defendant]. [A true and correct copy of the agreement is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof by reference.]

4. To secure the debt owed to plaintiff, defendant created in favor of plaintiff an [interest or estate] in the subject of the agency by _____ [specify manner of creation, e.g., deeding to plaintiff an undivided one-eighth interest in the property to be sold by plaintiff as defendant's agent] _____ [at the same time that the agency was created or for the separate consideration of _____ (describe consideration)].

5. On or about _____ [date], _____ [specify facts showing dispute over termination of agency, e.g., defendant informed plaintiff that the agency created by the agreement alleged in Paragraph 3 above was terminated]. Plaintiff disputes this contention, believing that the agency is coupled with the interest he/she has in the property and is therefore irrevocable This dispute still exists and is an actual controversy over the respective rights and duties of the parties.

6. Plaintiff desires a judicial determination of his/her rights and duties, and a declaration as to whether or not the agency is irrevocable as coupled with an interest.

7. A judicial determination is necessary and appropriate at this time under the circumstances in order that plaintiff may ascertain his/her/its rights and duties under the agency agreement. [_____ (Allege any financial or other burden being caused plaintiff by the unsettled state of affairs, e.g., Plaintiff has not received any of the proceeds that were promised as repayment by defendant).]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For a declaration that the agency described above is coupled with an interest and therefore not terminable by act of the principal;

2. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [signature]

Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification, if desired. See § 427.80].

CAUTION:

If a temporary restraining order or an injunction issued before judgment is sought on the basis of facts alleged in the complaint, the complaint must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. However, the facts in support of the injunction or order may also be set forth in separate affidavits or declarations rather than in the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 527(a), 2015.5].

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use by an agent in an action seeking a declaration that the agency is coupled with an interest in the subject of the agency and therefore is not terminable by the principal [see Civ. Code § 2356; Code Civ. Proc. § 1060; see also discussion in § 427.20[8]].

An action for declaratory relief is appropriate when a person is interested under a deed, will, other written instrument, or contract, and desires a declaration of his or her rights or duties when an actual controversy relating to the legal rights and duties of the respective parties exists [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]. The use of a declaratory relief action to obtain a declaration that an agency is coupled with an interest has been sanctioned in California [see New York Life Ins. Co. v. Doane (1936) 13 Cal. App. 2d 233, 235, 56 P.2d 989] . The action need not be brought against the principal. Indeed, a common situation involves an agency to sell real property and the death of the principal, with the resulting claim that the principal's death has terminated the agency [see Charles B. Webster Real Estate v. Rickard (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 612, 617, 98 Cal. Rptr. 559 ; see also discussion in Ch. 103, Brokers]. For additional discussion and forms relating to declaratory relief, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief .

The allegations requesting declaratory relief in this form do not preclude a request for other relief. Thus, when a termination of the agency is alleged to have been wrongful and to have caused damage to the agent, counsel may wish to add the allegations of wrongful termination in § 427.80 as a separate count [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1062]. Additional pleading requirements may need to be satisfied, however, when requests for other types of relief are combined with a complaint for declaratory relief. For additional discussion of the requirements of and forms for use in declaratory relief actions, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief .

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- The agency agreement entered for the benefit of the plaintiff (Paragraph 3).

- That an interest in the subject of the agency was given to the agent, either at the same time that the agency was created or for a separate consideration, in order to secure the performance of a duty owed the agent or to protect a title in the agent (Paragraph 4) [Becket v. Welton Becket & Associates (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 815, 820, 114 Cal. Rptr. 531] .

- That an actual controversy exists over defendant's intended termination of the agency (Paragraph 5).

- That a judicial declaration of the rights and duties under the agency agreement is sought (Paragraph 6) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060].

- That a judicial determination is necessary and appropriate (Paragraph 7) [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1060, 1061].

The allegations must show that the agent's interest in the subject of the agency was obtained independently of the power conferred. The interest must be specific, present, and coexisting for the agency to be coupled with an interest; if the interest was obtained by the agent's exercise of the power, the agency is not coupled with an interest and is revocable by the principal [O'Connell v. Superior Court (1935) 2 Cal. 2d 418, 422, 41 P.2d 334 ; Jay v. Dollarhide (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 1001, 1023, 84 Cal. Rptr. 538 (disapproved on other grounds in Morris v. Thogmartin (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 922, 930, 105 Cal. Rptr. 919)].

[4] Jurisdiction

This action for declaratory relief must be brought in the superior court and is not a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 580(b)(4), 1060; see Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(7)(A) (restricted extent to which declaratory relief may bemaintained as limited civil case); for discussion, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief].

[5] Cross References

For alternative complaints and cross complaints for use in declaratory relief actions, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief .

[6] State Statutes

Terminability of agency coupled with interest. Civ. Code § 2356

Declaratory relief. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1060-1062.5

[7] Decisions

Management agreement between hotel owners and hotel operator did not operate to give operator agency coupled with an interest. Pacific Landmark Hotel, Ltd. v. Marriott Hotels, Inc. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 615, 628, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 555

Power and interest must be united in the same person. Pacific Landmark Hotel, Ltd. v. Marriott Hotels, Inc. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 615, 625-626, 628, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 555

For agency to be coupled with an interest, agent must have "specific, present and coexisting" beneficial interest in the subject matter of the agency (citing Jay v. Dollarhide, below). Woolley v. Embassy Suites, Inc. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 1520, 1532, 278 Cal. Rptr. 719 ; see also Pacific Landmark Hotel, Ltd. v. Marriott Hotels, Inc. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 615, 628, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 555

Monetary compensation, in whatever form it may take, does not create a power coupled with an interest so as to make the agency irrevocable; hotel operator's sole interest in management contract, consisting of a "management fee" of 5 percent of gross revenue from hotel, was therefore insufficient to create such a power. Woolley v. Embassy Suites, Inc. (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 1520, 1532, 278 Cal. Rptr. 719 ; see also Pacific Landmark Hotel, Ltd. v. Marriott Hotels, Inc. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 615, 628, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 555

Agency or power created for benefit of agent rather than for benefit of principal abrogates principal's power to terminate agency at will. Becket v. Welton Becket & Associates (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 815, 820, 114 Cal. Rptr. 531

Death of principal immediately terminates agency not coupled with interest. Charles B. Webster Real Estate v. Rickard (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 612, 617, 98 Cal. Rptr. 559

Agent required to have interest or estate in subject of agency independently of power conferred for agency to be irrevocable as coupled with interest. Jay v. Dollarhide (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 1001, 1023, 84 Cal. Rptr. 538 (disapproved on other grounds in Morris v. Thogmartin (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 922, 930, 105 Cal. Rptr. 919)

Recital of irrevocability in grant of agency not controlling. Jay v. Dollarhide (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 1001, 1023, 84 Cal. Rptr. 538 (disapproved on other grounds in Morris v. Thogmartin (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 922, 930, 105 Cal. Rptr. 919)

Power of sale contained in mortgage is power coupled with interest, with mortgage lien being the interest, and power therefore is not revoked by death of mortgagor. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Doane (1936) 13 Cal. App. 2d 233, 237-239, 56 P.2d 989

Declaratory relief action proper to establish that agency coupled with interest. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Doane (1936) 13 Cal. App. 2d 233, 235, 56 P.2d 989

Company's agency to collect rents on building combined with 20-year lease in building created irrevocable agency coupled with interest. Lane Mortgage Co. v. Crenshaw (1928) 93 Cal. App. 411, 428-429, 269 P. 672

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART IV. FORMS
A. Actions by Agent Against Principal

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 427.85-427.99

[Reserved]

§§ 427.85[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART IV. FORMS
B. Actions by Principal Against Agent

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.100

§ 427.100 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] and Secret Profits--Agent's Breach of Fiduciary Duty--By Principal Against Agent

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] and Secret Profits--Agent's Breach of Fiduciary Duty--By Principal Against Agent

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
	)	COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES FOR BREACH OF FIDUCIARY DUTY
vs.	)
_____ [name],	)	[Amount demanded _____
[and DOES I through _____,]	)	(exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]
Defendant(s).	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]
	)

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant _____ [name of agent] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [state capacity and residence of defendant or other basis of venue, e.g., a resident of _____ County, California, or a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of California with its principal place of business in _____ (city), _____ County, California].

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 427.80, Paragraph 2.]

3. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff and defendant _____ [name of agent] agreed _____ [orally or in writing] that defendant would act as plaintiff's agent for the purpose of _____ [specify business of agency, e.g., employing workers to build an addition to plaintiff's house]. [A true and correct copy of the agreement is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof by reference.]

4. Defendant agent breached his/her fiduciary duty to plaintiff by _____ [specify breach, e.g., obtaining workers to improve plaintiff's house without determining whether or not the workers were qualified for the work, falsely representing to plaintiff that all of the employees were highly skilled craft workers, and paying the workers less than what defendant charged plaintiff for their time and keeping the difference].

5. As the result of defendant's breach of fiduciary duty, plaintiff has been damaged in that _____ [specify nature of damages, e.g., the unqualified workers hired by defendant agent did not seal the addition to plaintiff's house, causing extensive water damage in the season's first rain on or about _____ (date)]. This damage amounted to the sum of $_____.

[6. Defendant _____ (name of agent) used his/her position as plaintiff's agent to obtain a secret profit by _____ (specify means by which defendant obtained secret profit, e.g., collecting from plaintiff $12.00 per hour per worker, but paying to the workers only $8.00 per hour each and keeping the difference). Defendant's retention of secret profits damaged plaintiff in the total sum of $ _____.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For damages in the sum of $_____;

[2. For recovery of defendant's secret profits in the sum of $ _____ or according to proof;]

3. For interest on the damages according to proof at the _____ [legal rate or rate of _____ percent per year as provided in the agency agreement] [from _____ (date)];

[4. For reasonable attorney's fees as provided for in the agency agreement, in the amount of $ _____ or according to proof;]

5. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

6. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification, if desired. See § 427.80.]

[2] Use of Form

This complaint may be used in an action for damages by a principal against his or her agent for breach of fiduciary duty. The complaint seeks both damages resulting from the breach and, if appropriate, recovery of the agent's secret profits obtained from the agency. Either remedy may be sought in an appropriate case; there is no requirement that both be present in a single action [see Pollack v. Lytle (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 931, 940-941, 175 Cal. Rptr. 81 ; Civ. Code § 2322(c); see also Prob. Code §§ 16002, 16004, 16005, 16009; discussion in § 427.23]. For additional discussion and forms relating to breach of fiduciary duty generally,see Ch. 560, Trusts: Express, Public, Charitable, and Totten Trusts .

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- The formation and purpose of the agency (Paragraph 3).
- The manner in which the agent breached his or her fiduciary duty toward the principal (Paragraph 4).
- Damages resulting from the breach (Paragraph 5).
- If appropriate, secret profits acquired by the agent from the agency (Paragraph 6) [see Civ. Code § 2322(c); Pollack v. Lytle (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 931, 940, 175 Cal. Rptr. 81 ; Wade v. Diamond A Cattle Co. (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 453, 458, 118 Cal. Rptr. 695] .

[4] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)], and the first page of the paper must state whether or not the demand exceeds $10,000 [Gov. Code § 70613(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9) (statement regarding amount of demand must appear "below the character of the action or proceeding")].

[5] Cross References

For additional discussion and forms relating to common counts, see Ch. 121, Common Counts

[6] State Statutes

Fiduciary duties of agent. Prob. Code §§ 16002, 16004, 16005, 16009

[7] Decisions

Agent who is sued by principal for breach of fiduciary duty may force dispute into arbitration pursuant to agreement between principal and third person providing for arbitration of any dispute between principal and agent if agent duly elects to pursue arbitration, even though agent was not a party to that agreement. Nguyen v. Tran (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 1032, 1038, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 906

Agent owes principal duties (1) to make fullest disclosure of material facts that might affect principal's decision-making, (2) to use reasonable care, skill, and diligence in performing object of agency, and (3) to refrain from competing with principal on matters connected with agency. Pollack v. Lytle (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 931, 940-941, 175 Cal. Rptr. 81

Breach of agent's fiduciary duty to principal is tortious. Pollack v. Lytle (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 931, 940-941, 175 Cal. Rptr. 81

Agent's acquisition of interest adverse to principal or misrepresentation or concealment regarding subject matter of agency and agent's interest therein is breach of agent's duty. Wade v. Diamond A Cattle Co. (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 453, 458, 118 Cal. Rptr. 695

Undisclosed profits realized by agent from agency transaction are recoverable by principal despite fairness of price. Wade v. Diamond A Cattle Co. (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 453, 458, 118 Cal. Rptr. 695 ; Store of Happiness v. Carmona & Allen (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 266, 272, 312 P.2d 1104

Agent who violates duty to use reasonable care, skill, and diligence is liable for any damages actually sustained by principal as result of negligence or breach of duty of agent. Timmsen v. Forest E. Olson, Inc. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 860, 871, 86 Cal. Rptr. 359

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART IV. FORMS
B. Actions by Principal Against Agent

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.101

§ 427.101 Complaint for Accounting From Agent--By Principal Against Agent

[1] FORM Complaint for Accounting From Agent--By Principal Against Agent

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR ACCOUNTING
_____ [name], [and DOES I	)	[Amount demanded _____
through _____,]	)	(exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]
Defendant(s).	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]
	)

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 427.100, Paragraph 1].

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 427.80, Paragraph 2.]

3. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff and defendant entered into _____ [a written or an oral or an implied by conduct] agreement providing that defendant would act as plaintiff's agent for the purpose of _____ [specify, e.g., managing plaintiff's rental properties]. [A true and correct copy of the agency agreement is attached as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference.]

4. _____ [Between _____ (date), and _____ (date) or Beginning on or about _____ (date)], defendant _____ [describe defendant's actions that necessitated accounting, e.g., collected rents from the tenants of plaintiff's rental property].

5. The _____ [specify property that is subject of accounting, e.g., amount collected as rentals by defendant] is unknown to plaintiff [, but plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that the amount exceeds the sum of $_____].

[6. On or about _____ (date), plaintiff demanded that defendant account for and deliver to plaintiff all _____ (specify property, e.g., rentals) held by defendant as agent for plaintiff, but defendant has failed and refused, and continues to fail and refuse, to render an accounting. (A true and correct copy of plaintiff's demand is attached as Exhibit B and incorporated by reference.)]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For an accounting of all _____ [specify property, e.g., rentals] held by defendant in his/her capacity as agent of plaintiff;

2. For payment over to plaintiff of the amount due from defendant as a result of the accounting [and interest on that amount from and after _____ [date];

[3. For reasonable attorneys' fees in the amount of $_____, as provided for in the agency agreement;]

4. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [signature]

Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification, if desired. See § 427.80]

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use in an action by a principal against an agent for an accounting of all money and/or property held by the agent for the principal. An accounting action is essentially based on the fiduciary relationship between principal and agent, and when appropriate, the action may be combined with an action for breach of fiduciary duty [see Kennard v. Glick (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 246, 251, 7 Cal. Rptr. 88 ; see also discussion in § 427.23[2]; § 427.100]. For additional discussion and alternative forms relating to accounting actions generally, see Ch. 7, Accounting, Action for.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges:

- The agency relationship (Paragraph 3).

- Defendant's possession of money or property belonging to plaintiff, acquired in the course of the agency (Paragraph 4) [Kritzer v Lancaster (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 1, 7-8, 214 P.2d 407] .

- The property held by the agent, and either that the amount is unknown or the approximate sum that the amount exceeds (Paragraph 5).

- When appropriate, that plaintiff demanded an accounting and defendant failed to account for the money or property (Paragraph 6) [see Burke v. Maguire (1908) 154 Cal. 456, 470, 98 P. 21 (action to follow specific property held by another)].

An accounting action invokes the equitable powers of the court and must allege facts showing the existence of the relationship requiring an accounting. The complaint must also state that some balance is due plaintiff [Kritzer v. Lancaster (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 1, 6-7, 214 P.2d 407] . The balance due plaintiff cannot be a certain amount; if plaintiff knows the amount he or she seeks to recover, there is no need for an accounting [Tostevin v. Douglas (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 321, 329-330, 325 P.2d 130] .

The requirement that a demand on the agent be alleged, to ensure that the agent has been given an opportunity to comply voluntarily with the duty to account before a lawsuit is instituted, has been applied in an action to follow specific property that came into the hands of the administrator of an estate, but was not required in a later case involving moneys paid to a stockbroker on behalf of the plaintiff principal [compare Burke v. Maguire (1908) 154 Cal. 456, 470, 98 P. 21 (action to recover property delivered to administrator; demand required) with Kritzer v. Lancaster (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 1, 6-7, 214 P.2d 407 (action for accounting against stockbroker; complaint held sufficient without allegation of demand)]. If a demand was made, it should be alleged, but it is unclear whether or not the lack of demand will preclude the action when otherwise appropriate.

[4] State Statutes

Agent as required to inform principal of conduct as agent. Civ. Code § 2020

Duties of agent as those of trustee. Civ. Code § 2322(c); see also Prob. Code §§ 16002, 16004, 16005, 16009

[5] Decisions

Agent required to account for all benefits and advantages received as outgrowth of agency. Savage v. Mayer (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 548, 551, 203 P.2d 9 ; Kennard v. Glick (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 246, 250-251, 7 Cal. Rptr. 88

Action for accounting sounds either in contract or tort. Arcturus Mfg. Corp. v. Rork (1961) 198 Cal. App. 2d 208, 210, 17 Cal. Rptr. 758

Burden of proof is on agent once agent's possession of property of principal is shown or admitted. Kennard v. Glick (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 246, 251, 7 Cal. Rptr. 88

[6] Cross Reference

For alternative forms for use in actions for accounting, see Ch. 7, Accounting, Actions for

For a related form, see § 427.80.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART IV. FORMS
B. Actions by Principal Against Agent

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.102

§ 427.102 Complaint for Implied Equitable Indemnity--Principal's Payment of Third Party's Judgment Against Principal for Agent's Tort--By Principal Against Agent

[1] FORM Complaint for Implied Equitable Indemnity--Principal's Payment of Third Party's Judgment Against Principal for Agent's Tort--By Principal Against Agent

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR IMPLIED EQUITABLE IN-
_____ [name], [and DOES I	)	DEMNITY
through _____,]	)	[Amount demanded _____
Defendant(s).	)	(exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]
	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

_____

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 427.100, Paragraph 1.]

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 427.80, Paragraph 2.]

3. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff and defendant entered into _____ [a written or an oral or an implied by conduct] agreement providing that defendant would act as plaintiff's agent for the purpose of _____ [specify purpose of agency, e.g., managing plaintiff's rental properties]. [A true and correct copy of the agreement is attached as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference.]

4. On or about _____ [date], a judgment was entered in the action entitled _____ vs. _____, Case No. _____, in the _____ Court against plaintiff requiring him/her to pay the sum of $_____ to _____ [name of third party obtaining judgment against plaintiff]. This judgment was not based on any wrongful act of plaintiff, but rather was based on plaintiff's [solely vicarious] liability for defendant's wrongful act in _____ [describe wrongful act of defendant that led to the prior judgment against plaintiff, e.g., negligently damaging a tenant's personal property]. Plaintiff was liable for this act only because of his/her status as principal of defendant.

5. By reason of the foregoing, plaintiff is entitled to indemnity from defendant in the sum of $_____, but defendant has not paid any part of this sum to plaintiff.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. Indemnity from defendant in the sum of $_____;

2. Costs of suit herein incurred; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [signature]

Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification, if desired. See § 427.80.]

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use in an action by a principal seeking indemnification from an agent whose wrongful act led to a tort judgment against the principal solely because of their agency relationship. The form may also be adapted for use as a cross complaint against the agent in the original action against the principal by the injured third party seeking damages for the action(s) of the agent [see Herrero v. Atkinson (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 69, 77, 38 Cal. Rptr. 490 ; see also discussion in § 427.25]. For additional discussion of the principles involved in implied indemnity actions generally, see Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution, § 300.60 et seq.

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- The agency relationship between plaintiff and defendant (Paragraph 3).

- Plaintiff's liability for the tortious acts of defendant only because of the agency relationship (Paragraph 4).

- That plaintiff is entitled to indemnity from defendant (Paragraph 5) [Herrero v. Atkinson (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 69, 77, 38 Cal. Rptr. 490] .

[4] Decisions

All rights of indemnity except those created by express contractual provisions are subject to comparative principles, under which total or partial indemnity may be awarded depending on facts and circumstances of case; indemnitee's indemnity rights are terminated under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 877(b) and 877.6(c) by good faith settlement between indemnitor and plaintiff in underlying action. Far West Financial Corp. v. D & S Co. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 796, 810-814, 251 Cal. Rptr. 202, 760 P.2d 399

Principal who has no active part in wrong of agent is entitled to indemnification from agent for payment to third party of damages based on vicarious liability. Bradley v. Rosenthal (1908) 154 Cal. 420, 423-425, 97 P. 875 ; Herrero v. Atkinson (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 69, 77, 38 Cal. Rptr. 490

Insurer is entitled to total indemnity from agent for liability to insured for breach of contract and bad-faith claims practices incurred solely on account of agent's negligent preparation of application and other documents. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Haslam (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1347, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 135

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART IV. FORMS
B. Actions by Principal Against Agent

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.103

§ 427.103 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3300]--Breach of Agency Agreement--By Principal Against Agent

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3300]--Breach of Agency Agreement--By Principal Against Agent

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES FOR BREACH OF
_____ [name], [and DOES I	)	CONTRACT
through _____,]	)	[Amount demanded _____
Defendant(s).	)	(exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]
	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

_____

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 427.100, Paragraph 1.]

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 427.80, Paragraph 2.]

3. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff and defendant entered into _____ [a written or an oral] contract providing that defendant would act as plaintiff's agent for the purpose of _____ [specify purpose of agency, e.g., managing plaintiff's rental properties]. [A true and correct copy of the agreement is attached as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference.]

4. Defendant breached the contract between the parties by _____ [specify breach, e.g., failing to collect rent from plaintiff's tenants].

5. Plaintiff has performed all conditions, covenants, and promises required to be performed by him/her in accordance with the terms and conditions of the agreement[, except _____ (specify condition(s) not performed). The reason that plaintiff did not perform this/these condition(s) is that _____ (specify facts showing excuse for nonperformance)].

6. Plaintiff was damaged by defendant's breach in that _____ [specify damages, e.g., plaintiff was unable to collect past due rents from plaintiff's tenants]. Plaintiff suffered damages in the sum of $_____ as a result of defendant's breach.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For general damages in the amount of $_____;

[2. For _____ (specify special damages, if any, e.g., damages for loss of earnings in the sum of $_____);]

3. For interest on the damages according to proof at the _____ [legal rate or rate of _____ percent per year as provided in the contract] [from _____ (date)];

[4. For reasonable attorney fees in the amount of $_____, as provided for in the agency agreement;]

5. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

6. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [signature]

Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification, if desired. See § 427.80.]

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use in an action for damages by a principal against an agent for breach of an agency agreement [see Spitzer v. Pathe Exchange, Inc. (1933) 132 Cal. App. 612, 619, 23 P.2d 308 ; see also discussion in § 427.23[4]]. For discussion and forms relating to actions for breach of contract generally, see Ch. 140, Contracts . For a complaint alleging an agent's breach of fiduciary duties, see § 427.100.

[3] Allegations

The form alleges:

- The existence of the agency agreement and its terms (Paragraph 3).
- Defendant's breach of the contract (Paragraph 4).
- The performance of all conditions precedent by plaintiff or plaintiff's excuse for nonperformance (Paragraph 5) [Code Civ. Proc. § 457].

- The resulting damage to plaintiff (Paragraph 6) [see Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 830, 69 Cal. Rptr. 321, 442 P.2d 377 ; Civ. Code § 3300 (damages in contract actions)].

[4] State Statutes

Damages for breach of contract. Civ. Code § 3300

[5] Decisions

Principal entitled to damages suffered as result of agent's breach of agency contract. Spitzer v. Pathe Exchange, Inc. (1933) 132 Cal. App. 612, 619, 23 P.2d 308

[6] Cross Reference

For a related form, see § 427.80.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART IV. FORMS
B. Actions by Principal Against Agent

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 427.104through 427.119

[Reserved]

§§ 427.104[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART IV. FORMS
C. Actions by Third Party

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.120

§ 427.120 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3318]--Agent's Breach of Warranty of Authority [Civ. Code § 2342]--By Third Party Against Agent

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3318]--Agent's Breach of Warranty of Authority [Civ. Code § 2342]--By Third Party Against Agent

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES FOR BREACH OF
_____ [name], [and DOES I	)	AGENT'S WARRANTY OF AUTHORITY
through _____,]	)	[Amount demanded _____
Defendant(s).	)	(exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]
	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

_____

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 427.100, Paragraph 1.]

[2. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 427.80, Paragraph 2.]

3. At all times mentioned herein, defendant assumed to act as the agent of _____ [name of principal].

4. On or about _____ [date], defendant, while assuming to act as agent for _____ [name of principal], entered into a contract with plaintiff providing that _____ [describe contract provisions, e.g., plaintiff would be employed by _____ (name of principal) for a period of six months].

[The contract is attached as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference.]

5. In executing the above contract with plaintiff, defendant agent _____ [expressly and/or impliedly] represented to plaintiff that no limitation existed on his/her authority to contract on behalf of the principal _____ [name].

6. Plaintiff had no knowledge of any limitation on defendant's authority as agent and acted in reliance on defendant's representations of his/her authority.

7. When plaintiff attempted to enforce the above-described contract, he/she discovered that defendant did not have actual authority to bind _____ [name of principal] for _____ [specify lack of authority, e.g., employment contracts of longer than one month]. [Plaintiff expended the sum of $_____ in legal proceedings, including attorney's fees, against _____ (name of principal) in an unsuccessful attempt to enforce the contract against _____ (name of principal) in the action entitled _____ vs. _____, Case No. _____, in the _____ (name of court) Court.]

8. Defendant breached his/her warranty of authority by assuming to act as agent for _____ [name of principal] and by _____ [expressly and/or impliedly] representing that he/she had authority to enter into the above-described contract with plaintiff on behalf of the principal _____ [name].

9. Plaintiff was damaged in the amount of $_____, which represents the amount plaintiff could have recovered and collected from _____ [name of principal] if defendant agent had complied with his/her warranty of authority.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For damages in the sum of $_____;

2. For interest on the damages according to proof at the _____ [legal rate or rate of _____ percent per year as provided in the contract] [from _____ (date)];

[3. For costs and attorney's fees incurred in the prior action herein referred to in the sum of $_____;]

4. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [signature]

Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification, if desired. See § 427.80.]

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use in an action by a third party against an agent who, without authority to do so, entered into a transaction with the third party on behalf of a principal. Such an action would usually be brought after the plaintiff has already attempted to enforce the contract against the principal based on the agent's actual or ostensible authority [see

Kohlberg v. Havens (1919) 41 Cal. App. 222, 223, 182 P. 467] . However, a prior action against the principal is not a prerequisite to a third party's action for breach of the warranty of authority [see, e.g., Cheda v. Grandi (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 513, 514, 218 P.2d 97] .

An action for the agent's breach of warranty of authority may be combined with an action against the principal if both the principal and the agent can be joined in the action on the contract [see, e.g., Cheda v. Grandi (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 513, 514-515, 218 P.2d 97 ; see also discussion in § 427.24].

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges:

- That defendant assumed to act as an agent in dealing with plaintiff on behalf of the principal (Paragraph 3) [see Civ. Code § 2342].

- The contract at issue was executed on behalf of a principal (Paragraph 4).

- That defendant executed the contract with a representation, express or implied, that he or she had the authority to do so (Paragraph 5).

- That plaintiff had no knowledge of any limitation on defendant's authority and entered into the contract based on defendant's representations (Paragraph 6) [see Yoakum v. Tarver (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 202, 206-207, 64 Cal. Rptr. 7] .

- That plaintiff discovered the agent's lack of authority and, if appropriate, that plaintiff expended reasonable expenses in legal proceedings taken in good faith to enforce the contract against the principal (Paragraph 7) [Civ. Code § 3318].

- That the agent's conduct constituted a breach of the warranty of authority (Paragraph 8) [Civ. Code § 2342; Owens v. Foundation for Ocean Research (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 179, 185, 165 Cal. Rptr. 571 (disapproved on other grounds in Applied Equipment Corp. v. Litton Saudi Arabia Ltd. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 503, 521, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475, 869 P.2d 454)].

- Damages resulting from the breach, defined as the amount that could have been recovered had the warranty of authority been complied with (Paragraph 9) [Civ. Code § 3318].

[4] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)], and the first page of the paper must state whether or not the demand exceeds $10,000 [Gov. Code § 70613(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9) (statement regarding amount of demand must appear "below the character of the action or proceeding")].

[5] State Statutes

Liability of agent for breach of implied warranty of authority. Civ. Code § 2342

Damages for breach. Civ. Code § 3318

[6] Decisions

Action for breach of warranty of authority requires allegations that agent acted in excess of authority and that plaintiff was ignorant of the true authority and relied on agent's express or implied representations of authority. Yoakum v. Tarver (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 202, 206-207, 64 Cal. Rptr. 7

Attorney's fees incurred in prior action to hold principal liable on contract of unauthorized agent are in damages for breach of warranty of agent's authority [Civ. Code § 3318]. Beraksa v. Stardust Records, Inc. (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 708, 716, 30 Cal. Rptr. 504

[7] Cross Reference

For a related form, see § 427.80.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART IV. FORMS
C. Actions by Third Party

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.121

§ 427.121 Allegations--Agent Liable to Third Party as Principal for Damages for Breach of Contract [Civ. Code § 3300] or for Tort [Civ. Code § 3333]--Action by Third Party Against Agent

[1] FORM Allegations--Agent Liable to Third Party as Principal for Damages for Breach of Contract [Civ. Code § 3300] or for Tort [Civ. Code § 3333]--Action by Third Party Against Agent

[EITHER]

1. Plaintiff, in entering into _____ [specify transaction between plaintiff third party and defendant agent, e.g., the contract referred to herein] with defendant _____ [name of agent], extended credit to defendant agent personally with the consent of defendant agent.

[OR]

1. [Plaintiff is informed and believes, and thereon alleges, that] [D]efendant _____ [name of agent], in entering into the written contract on behalf of and in the name of [defendant] _____ [name of principal], did not believe in good faith that he/she had the authority to do so.

[OR]

1. The acts of defendant _____ [name of agent] were wrongful in their nature, in that _____ [specify wrongful conduct, e.g., they were undertaken without the ordinary care due plaintiff].

2. Defendant _____ [name of agent] assumed to act as agent for [defendant] _____ [name of principal] and defendant agent acted in the course of his/her agency at all times mentioned herein.

[2] Use of Form

These allegations may be used in an action either on a contract or in tort by a third party against an agent if the agent is liable as a principal [Civ. Code § 2343; see 427.24[3]]. The allegations against an agent may also be included in an action against the principal for breach of contract if it appears that because credit was given to the agent or because the agent lacked authority, the principal will not be liable on the contract.

The first alternative allegation of Paragraph 1 is for use if the plaintiff third party gave credit to the agent personally, with the consent of the agent [Civ. Code § 2343(1); see also § 427.24[3]]. The second alternative form of Paragraph 1 is for use if a third party who has entered into a written contract with an agent who lacked a good faith belief in his or her authority to enter into the contract [Civ. Code § 2343(2); see also discussion in § 427.24[3]]. When alleging a principal's liability for an agent's tort, plaintiff third party may include the third alternative of Paragraph 1 of the foregoing allegation, which alleges the agent's tort liability [Civ. Code § 2343(3); see Bayuk v. Edson (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 309, 320, 46 Cal. Rptr. 49 ; see also the discussion in § 427.24[3]].

[3] Allegations

These allegations state that (1) plaintiff third party extended credit to defendant agent personally, with his or her consent (first alternative Paragraph 1) [Civ. Code § 2343(1)], (2) defendant agent entered into a written contract in the name of his or her principal without a good faith belief in his or her authority to do so (second alternative Paragraph 1) [Civ. Code § 2343(2)], or (3) the acts of defendant agent were wrongful in their nature (third alternative Paragraph 1) [Civ. Code § 2343(3)]. Paragraph 2 alleges that defendant assumed the role of agent and was acting in the course of the agency [Civ. Code § 2343].

The allegation in Paragraph 1 would be appropriate if the agent acted for a principal who was not disclosed to plaintiff third party, and plaintiff decides to seek a judgment against the agent alone. It should be noted that an action taken to judgment against the agent alone, with knowledge of the fact of the undisclosed agency, will constitute an election that precludes a later action against the undisclosed principal [see Standard Oil Co. of Cal. v. Doneux (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 608, 613, 13 Cal. Rptr. 749 ; see also discussion in § 427.26[3]].

[4] State Statutes

Agent liable as principal under specified circumstances. Civ. Code § 2343

[5] Decisions

Under Civ. Code § 2343(3), providing that one who assumes to act as agent is responsible to third persons as principal for acts in course of agency when acts are wrongful in nature, agent is subject to liability to third party for tort, such as fraud; as long as agency is disclosed and agent commits no intentional tort, independent claims adjuster of self-insured employer (workers' compensation) has same immunity as principal does under Lab. Code § 3602 (exclusivity of workers' compensation remedy). Mottola v. R. L. Kautz & Co. (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 98, 108, 244 Cal. Rptr. 737

Principal's liability for tort of agent does not exonerate agent for tort liability incurred while acting as agent. Bayuk v. Edson (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 309, 320, 46 Cal. Rptr. 49

55 of 70 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART IV. FORMS
C. Actions by Third Party

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.122

§ 427.122 Allegation--Imputing Liability for Torts of Agent to Principal [Civ. Code §§ 2338, 2339]--Action by Third Party

[1] FORM Allegation--Imputing Liability for Torts of Agent to Principal [Civ. Code §§ 2338, 2339]--Action by Third Party

1. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that] [A]t all times herein mentioned defendant _____ [name of agent] was the agent of defendant _____ [name of principal], and [in doing the things hereinafter alleged] was acting within the course and scope of that agency [and with the permission and consent of _____ (name of principal)].

[2] Use of Form

This allegation is for use in a complaint seeking to impute liability for compensatory damages for torts committed by an agent of defendant principal [Civ. Code §§ 2338, 2339, 3333; see discussion in § 427.22[5]].

[3] Allegations

The allegation in this form states generally that one or more defendants acted as agents for a specified principal or for each other. This broad allegation is routinely used by a plaintiff third party to ensure that liability will be imputed to the true principal for whose benefit the agent acted, once the true relationships among the defendants are determined in the course of trial. Such broad agency allegations have been held sufficient to withstand a general demurrer [Meyer v. Graphic Arts International Union (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 176, 178, 151 Cal. Rptr. 597 ; for alternative agency allegations, see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used].

[4] Cross References

For alternative forms for agency allegations, see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used

[5] State Statutes

Rights and liabilities incurred by agent as accruing to principal. Civ. Code § 2330

Principal's liability for agent's incomplete execution of authority. Civ. Code § 2331

Effect of agent's unauthorized acts on principal. Civ. Code § 2333

Requirements for liability of principal for agent's acts pursuant to ostensible authority. Civ. Code § 2334

Liability of principal for wrongful acts of agent. Civ. Code §§ 2338, 2339

Damages for torts or wrongs. Civ. Code §§ 3333-3344

[6] Decisions

In real estate investor's action for breach of contract and fraud, church held not liable on promissory notes signed by pastor, when plaintiff acquiesced in scheme to wrongfully use church's name to obtain financial benefit for himself and his partners; doctrines of respondeat superior, ostensible authority, and equitable estoppel did not provide ground for imposition of liability on church on fraud theory. Saks v. Charity Mission Baptist Church (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 1116, 1137-1140, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 45

Principal liable for fraud of agent despite having received no benefit from fraud. Spahn v. Guild Industries Corp. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 143, 155-156, 156 Cal. Rptr. 375

Principal liable without fault for act of agent (1) required or incidental to agent's duties or (2) reasonably foreseeable by principal. Clark Equipment Co. v. Wheat (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 503, 520-521, 154 Cal. Rptr. 874

Risk fairly regarded as typical of or broadly incident to principal's enterprise is reasonably foreseeable for purposes of imputing liability without fault for torts of agent. Clark Equipment Co. v. Wheat (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 503, 522, 154 Cal. Rptr. 874

Principal not liable for negligent physical conduct of nonservant agent. Van Den Eikhof v. Hocker (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 900, 905, 151 Cal. Rptr. 456

Punitive damages for fraudulent acts of agent as properly awarded against principal who ratified agent's acts. Walker v. Signal Companies, Inc. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 982, 999, 149 Cal. Rptr. 119

Principal not liable for unauthorized act of agent unless ostensible agency shown, or act ratified by principal. Grasslands etc. Assn. v. Lucky etc. Co. (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 776, 779, 247 P.2d 380

Principal liable for any wrongful act of agent specifically authorized by principal. Maberto v. Wolfe (1930) 106 Cal. App. 202, 206, 289 P. 218

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART IV. FORMS
C. Actions by Third Party

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.123

§ 427.123 Allegation--Punitive Damages [Civ. Code § 3294]--Principal Liable for Acts of Agent--Action By Third Party Against Principal

[1] FORM Allegation--Punitive Damages [Civ. Code § 3294]--Principal Liable for Acts of Agent--Action By Third Party Against Principal

[EITHER]

1. [Plaintiff is informed and believes, and thereon alleges, that] [T]he act of defendant _____ [name of agent] was authorized by defendant _____ [name of principal] in the doing and the manner of the act.

[OR]

1. [Plaintiff is informed and believes, and thereon alleges, that] [D]efendant _____ [name of agent] was unfit and defendant _____ [name of principal] was reckless in employing him/her.

[OR]

1. [Plaintiff is informed and believes, and thereon alleges, that] [D]efendant _____ [name of agent] was employed in a managerial capacity for defendant _____ [name of principal] and was acting in the scope of employment at all times alleged herein.

[OR]

1. [Plaintiff is informed and believes, and thereon alleges, that] [D]efendant _____ [name of principal] ratified or approved the act of defendant _____ [name of agent].

[2] Use of Form

These allegations are for use in a complaint for damages when plaintiff third party seeks to impute to a principal the acts of an agent that may be the basis for an award of punitive damages. Thus, these allegations may be appropriate in actions seeking damages when it is alleged that defendant agent acted with oppression, fraud, or malice [Civ. Code § 3294; see Egan v. Mutual of Omaha Ins. Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 809, 822, 157 Cal. Rptr. 482, 598 P.2d 452 ; see also discussion in Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq.].

[3] Allegations

This form includes alternative allegations containing the facts necessary to impute liability for punitive damages to a principal based on the acts of an agent [Egan v. Mutual of Omaha Ins. Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 809, 822, 157 Cal. Rptr. 482, 598 P.2d 452 ; see Civ. Code § 3294(a)]. The liability of an employer for punitive damages based on the act of an employee depends on a more rigid test set out in Civ. Code § 3294(b), which requires that the employer had advance knowledge of the employee's unfitness and employed him or her with a conscious disregard of the rights or safety of others, or authorized or ratified the acts for which the punitive damages are awarded. It seems likely that the specific statutory requirement of Civ. Code § 3294(b) applies to an agent who is also an employee, but cases decided since the enactment of Civ. Code § 3294(b) have not distinguished between the principal/agent situation and the employer/employee situation [see Diaz v. Oakland Tribune, Inc. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 118, 136, 188 Cal. Rptr. 762 (citing only Egan v. Mutual of Omaha Ins. Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 809, 822, 157 Cal. Rptr. 482, 598 P.2d 452 in permitting imputed punitive damage liability); see also Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq. for discussion of Civ. Code § 3294(b)].

[4] State Statutes

Principal's liability for wrongs of agent. Civ. Code §§ 2338, 2339

Exemplary damages. Civ. Code § 3294

[5] Decisions

Principal's liability for exemplary damages based on acts of agent. Egan v. Mutual of Omaha Ins. Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 809, 822, 157 Cal. Rptr. 482, 598 P.2d 452

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART IV. FORMS
C. Actions by Third Party

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.124

§ 427.124 Allegation--Principal Liable for Agent's Acts Under Ostensible Agency [Civ. Code § 2300] or Ostensible Authority [Civ. Code §§ 2317, 2334]--Action by Third Party Who Dealt With Agent

[1] FORM Allegation--Principal Liable for Agent's Acts Under Ostensible Agency [Civ. Code § 2300] or Ostensible Authority [Civ. Code §§ 2317, 2334]--Action by Third Party Who Dealt With Agent

1. Plaintiff was led to believe that [defendant] _____ [name of agent] was acting as agent for defendant _____ [name of principal] because _____ [specify acts of principal leading plaintiff to believe that agency existed, e.g., (defendant) _____ (name of agent) was appointed by defendant _____ (name of principal) to a position entitled "sales manager," and previous contracts negotiated and executed by (defendant) _____ (name of agent) were accepted as binding by defendant _____ (name of principal)].

2. In dealing with [defendant] _____ [name of agent], plaintiff was _____ [caused or allowed] by conduct of defendant _____ [name of principal] to believe that [defendant] _____ [name of agent] had the authority to _____ [specify acts ostensibly authorized, e.g., contract for rendition of services]. The conduct of defendant _____ [name of principal] that _____ [caused or allowed] plaintiff to believe that [defendant] _____ [name of agent] had the authority consisted of _____ [specify, e.g., previously performing contracts for the rendition of services entered into by (defendant) _____ (name of agent)]. Plaintiff _____ [incurred a liability, namely _____ (specify) or parted with value in the nature of _____ (specify)] in good faith and without negligence on the basis of the conduct of defendant _____ [name of principal].

[2] Use of Form

These allegations are for use in alleging the existence of an ostensible agency and/or an agent's specific ostensible authority [Civ. Code §§ 2300, 2317; see discussion in Introduction, under--Ostensible Agency and--Ostensible, above]. Such an allegation is appropriate when no actual agency relationship existed, but the principal acted in as manner that reasonably led plaintiff, a third party who dealt with the agent, to believe that an agency existed and that the agent had the authority that the principal's conduct led the third party to believe the agent had [Civ. Code §§ 2300, 2317]. A principal may be bound by the acts of an agent under an ostensible authority only to those persons who have, in good faith, and without want of ordinary care, incurred a liability or parted with value, on the faith of the ostensible authority [Civ. Code § 2334].

[3] Judicial Council Trial Forms

Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12(a) requires that the Judicial Council develop and approve official forms for use in California trial courts for any complaint, cross complaint, or answer in any action based on personal injury, property damage, wrongful death, unlawful detainer, breach of contract, or fraud. Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12(b) requires that the Judicial Council develop and approve an official form for use as a statement of damages pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 (request for statement of damages being sought) and Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 (statement preserving right to seek punitive damages). Use of these forms is optional [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12].

For general information relating to the use of Judicial Council answer forms, see Ch. 26, Answers . These forms are available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. Noninteractive versions in PDF format also are available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

If a judicial council form is used, this allegation may be used as a guide in filling out that form.

[4] Allegations

This allegation sets forth the conduct of the principal that was relied on by plaintiff third party, who dealt with the person believed to be the agent of the principal, to create an ostensible agency (Paragraph 1) [Civ. Code § 2300]. Also set forth is an allegation defining the agent's ostensible authority and alleging the prerequisites necessary for binding a principal based on an ostensible authority: (1) that the third party dealt with the agent with a reasonable belief in the agent's authority, (2) the belief was generated by some act or neglect of the person to be charged as principal, and (3) the reliance on the agent's apparent authority was not negligent, and (4) the third party incurred a liability or parted with value on the faith of the apparent authority [Civ. Code §§ 2317, 2334; Associated Creditors' Agency v. Davis (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 374, 399, 118 Cal. Rptr. 772, 530 P.2d 1084 ; Mejia v. Community Hospital of San Bernardino (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1448, 1456-1457, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 233 (injured patient argued there was sufficient evidence that negligent physician was ostensible agent of hospital to survive motion for nonsuit)].

While it is the conduct of the principal rather than the agent that must be relied on, there is no requirement of direct contact with the principal. It is sufficient if the agent is appointed to a position that appears to the community as a whole to have given the agent the authority to transact business on behalf of the principal. If so, an ostensible agency relationship will be held to have been created [Meyer v. Ford Motor Co. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 90, 102, 79 Cal. Rptr. 816] .

[5] State Statutes

Ostensible agency. Civ. Code § 2300

Authority of agents either actual or ostensible. Civ. Code § 2315

Ostensible authority. Civ. Code § 2317

Principal's liability for agent's acts under ostensible authority. Civ. Code § 2334

[6] Decisions

Truck drivers found to have ostensible authority to sign waivers of right to payment from shipper when drivers executed all contracts on behalf of carriers, shipper had no notice that drivers lacked authority, drivers were only representatives of carrier with whom shipper dealt, shipper did not know which company would haul shipment until driver arrived, and truck drivers routinely bound principals to waiver agreements. C.A.R. Transp. Brokerage Co. v. Darden Restaurants, Inc. (9th Cir. 2000) 213 F.3d 474, 479-481

Ostensible agency requires showing sufficient to establish estoppel. Associated Creditors' Agency v. Davis (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 374, 403, 118 Cal. Rptr. 772, 530 P.2d 1084

Ostensible agency arises from reasonable belief of third party in agent's authority, engendered by conduct of principal. Tomerlin v. Canadian Indemnity Co. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 638, 643, 39 Cal. Rptr. 731, 394 P.2d 571 ; Mannion v. Campbell Soup Co. (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 317, 320, 52 Cal. Rptr. 246

Nonsuit on issue of ostensible agency was improper when injured patient sought treatment at hospital and there was no evidence she should have known that negligent physician was not agent of hospital. Mejia v. Community Hospital of San Bernardino (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1448, 1460, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 233

In real estate investor's action for breach of contract and fraud, church held not liable on promissory notes signed by pastor, when plaintiff acquiesced in scheme to wrongfully use church's name to obtain financial benefit for himself and his partners; doctrines of respondeat superior, ostensible authority, and equitable estoppel did not provide ground for imposition of liability on church on fraud theory. Saks v. Charity Mission Baptist Church (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 1116, 1137-1140, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 45

Acts or declarations of principal relied on for creation of ostensible agency not required to have been made to third party directly. Meyer v. Ford Motor Co. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 90, 102, 79 Cal. Rptr. 816

Appointment to particular position sufficient conduct by principal to create ostensible authority in appointee. Meyer v. Ford Motor Co. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 90, 102, 79 Cal. Rptr. 816

Principal liable for acts of ostensible agent only when elements of estoppel are present. Kelley v. R.F. Jones Co. (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 113, 121, 77 Cal. Rptr. 170

Estoppel requirements for ostensible agency are representation by principal, reliance by third party, and third party's change of position or injury resulting from reliance. Kelley v. R.F. Jones Co. (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 113, 121, 77 Cal. Rptr. 170

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART IV. FORMS
C. Actions by Third Party

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.125

§ 427.125 Allegation--Principal and/or Agent Liable for Agent's Acts Under Actual Authority [Civ. Code § 2316]--Action by Third Party Who Dealt with Agent

[1] FORM Allegation--Principal and/or Agent Liable for Agent's Acts Under Actual Authority [Civ. Code § 2316]--Action by Third Party Who Dealt with Agent

[EITHER]

1. [Plaintiff is informed and believes, and thereon alleges, that] [D]efendant _____ [name of principal] intentionally conferred on [defendant] _____ [name of agent] the authority _____ [specify authority conferred, e.g., to enter into employment contracts on behalf of defendant _____ (name of principal)] by express _____ [oral or written] agreement [, a true copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof by reference]. Plaintiff is informed and believes, and thereon alleges, that [defendant] _____ [name of agent] at all times mentioned herein believed that he/she was authorized to act on behalf of defendant _____ [name of principal].

[OR]

1. [Plaintiff is informed and believes, and thereon alleges, that] [D]efendant _____ [name of principal] _____ [intentionally or by want of ordinary care] allowed [defendant] _____ [name of agent] to believe that he/she had the authority to _____ [specify, e.g., enter into employment contracts on behalf of defendant _____ (name of principal)]. The belief of [defendant] _____ [name of agent] in his/her authority was based on the conduct of defendant _____ [name of principal] in _____ [specify, e.g., previously accepting employment contracts executed by (defendant) _____ (name of agent) without comment as to authority].

[2] Use of Form

This form of allegation is for use in an action alleging that the defendant principal had conferred actual authority on the agent either expressly (first alternative Paragraph 1) or by allowing the agent to believe that he or she had the authority to act in a certain manner on behalf of the principal (second alternative Paragraph 1) [Civ. Code § 2316]. This allegation is appropriate in any action in which the authority of an agent is relevant to determining whether or not the principal is liable for the acts of the agent [see Civ. Code § 2330 (rights and liabilities that would accrue to agent if entered into by agent accrue to principal when agent acts within authority on behalf of principal); see also § 427.22]. The appropriate alternative of the foregoing allegation may also be used in conjunction with the allegations in Forms 32 or 33.

[3] Allegations

The first alternative allegation states that the defendant principal intentionally conferred a specific authority on the agent, and includes an optional allegation incorporating by reference the agreement between the principal and the agent (first alternative Paragraph 1) [Civ. Code § 2300]. The second alternative alleges that the principal created an actual authority by intentionally, or by want of ordinary care, allowing the agent to believe he or she possessed a specific authority (second alternative Paragraph 2) [Civ. Code § 2316]. Both alternatives contain the required allegation that the agent actually believed that the authority to act for the principal existed [see Columbia Outfitting Co. v. Freeman (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 216, 219, 223 P.2d 21 ; Ripani v. Liberty Loan Corp. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 603, 611-612, 157 Cal. Rptr. 272] .

[4] State Statutes

Agent as having authority conferred by principal either actually or ostensibly. Civ. Code § 2315

Definition of actual authority. Civ. Code § 2316

Statutory authority of agents. Civ. Code § 2318 et seq.

[5] Decisions

Principal's conduct in allowing agent and third party to believe that former had authority to alter terms of printed contract as creating both actual and ostensible authority to do so. Thompson v. Occidental Life Ins. Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 904, 913-914, 109 Cal. Rptr. 473, 513 P.2d 353

Actual authority as capable of creation by conduct of principal that causes agent reasonably to believe that authority exists. Tomerlin v. Canadian Indemnity Co. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 638, 643, 39 Cal. Rptr. 731, 394 P.2d 571

Agent's belief in authority as prerequisite to finding of implied actual authority. Columbia Outfitting Co. v. Freeman (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 216, 219, 223 P.2d 21

Scope of agent's authority as determinable by conduct of principal and agent in business relationships. Trane Co. v. Gilbert (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 720, 726, 73 Cal. Rptr. 279

Express agreement as unnecessary to create actual authority. Transport Clearings-Bay Area v. Simmonds (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 405, 425, 38 Cal. Rptr. 116

Fact of agent's belief alone as insufficient to create actual authority; conduct of principal engendering belief as necessary. South Sacramento Drayage Co. v. Campbell Soup Co. (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 851, 856-857, 34 Cal. Rptr. 137

Principal's practice of requiring approval of hauling contracts as negating reasonableness of agent's belief that authority existed to negotiate hauling contract. South Sacramento Drayage Co. v. Campbell Soup Co. (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 851, 856-857, 34 Cal. Rptr. 137

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART IV. FORMS
C. Actions by Third Party

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.126

§ 427.126 Allegation--Undisclosed Principal Liable for Transaction Entered Into by Agent--Action by Third Party Who Dealt With Agent Without Knowledge of Agency Relationship

[1] FORM Allegation--Undisclosed Principal Liable for Transaction Entered Into by Agent--Action by Third Party Who Dealt With Agent Without Knowledge of Agency Relationship

[1. Fictitious name allegation, if appropriate. See § 427.80, Paragraph 2.]

2. [Actual authority of agent. See § 427.125, Paragraph 1.]

3. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff entered into _____ [specify transaction with agent, e.g., a contract with (defendant) _____ (name of agent) for _____ (specify, e.g., the sale of goods to plaintiff)]. In dealing with [defendant] _____ [name of agent], plaintiff did not give exclusive credit to [defendant] _____ [name of agent].

4. Plaintiff discovered that [defendant] _____ [name of agent] was not acting on his/her own behalf but as agent for defendant _____ [name of principal] on or about _____ [date], when _____ [specify facts surrounding discovery of agency, e.g., defendant _____ (name of principal) sought to enforce the contract entered into by (defendant) _____ (name of agent)]. [If judgment was obtained against the agent based on the transaction at issue here, add: This knowledge was obtained after the judgment against _____ (name of agent) was rendered in _____ vs. _____, Case No. _____, in the _____ Court.]

5. The acts of [defendant] _____ [name of agent] were taken on behalf of defendant _____ [name of principal] and within the authority of [defendant] _____ [name of agent], although plaintiff did not know of the existence of the agency at the time the transaction was entered into.

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing allegations are for use in an action by a third person who has contracted with an agent representing an undisclosed principal if the third person seeks to hold the principal liable for the agent's transaction [Gardiner v. Gaither (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 607, 618, 329 P.2d 22 ; see also discussion in § 427.62[13]]. The allegation of an agent's actual authority in § 427.125 may be combined with the foregoing allegation in a complaint by a third person seeking to bind an undisclosed principal under a contract with the agent.

Ordinarily, there is no requirement that the third person elect in the complaint to seek recovery from the agent or undisclosed principal, because the doctrine of election is based on estoppel and, as such, is an affirmative defense to be raised by defendant or waived [Roam v. Koop (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1044, 116 Cal. Rptr. 539 ; Klinger v. Modesto Fruit Co., Inc. (1930) 107 Cal. App. 97, 104, 290 P. 127] . In fact, frequently plaintiff will not know of the agency or will not have sufficient knowledge at the complaint stage to decide intelligently whether to hold the agent orthe principal liable. However, if the plaintiff third person obtained a judgment against the agent before plaintiff knew of the undisclosed agency, an action against the principal may be maintained as long as any judgment is alternative only. In such a situation, the complaint may, although it need not, include an election that the third person proceed against the principal and will estop plaintiff from executing a judgment against the agent [see Roam v. Koop (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1044, 116 Cal. Rptr. 539] .

[3] Allegations

The foregoing allegations state that (1) the agent had actual authority to act for the principal in the manner that he or she acted (Paragraph 2) [Associated Creditors' Agency v. Davis (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 374, 385, 118 Cal. Rptr. 772, 530 P.2d 1084 ; Gardiner v. Gaither (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 607, 618, 329 P.2d 22] ; (2) plaintiff entered into a transaction with the agent without knowledge that the agent was acting on behalf of the principal, but did not give exclusive credit to the agent in entering into the transaction (Paragraph 3) [Associated Creditors' Agency v. Davis (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 374, 385, 118 Cal. Rptr. 772, 530 P.2d 1084 ; Rigney v. De La Salle Institute (1935) 10 Cal. App. 2d 492, 499, 52 P.2d 579 ; see Civ. Code § 2335]; (3) plaintiff discovered the agency relationship (Paragraph 4) [see Gardiner v. Gaither (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 607, 618, 329 P.2d 22] ; and (4) the transaction was made for the benefit of the principal within the agent's authority (Paragraph 5) [see Civ. Code § 2330].

Also included is an allegation making an election to proceed against the undisclosed principal only (Paragraph 4). Although such an election usually must be made only after a demand by defendant, it is included here for the situation in which counsel sees no tactical advantage in waiting for the defendant to demand election [see Roam v. Koop (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1044, 116 Cal. Rptr. 539] . The election should not be made in the complaint if counsel lacks sufficient knowledge of the transaction or the relationship between the principal and agent [see Standard Oil Co. of Cal. v. Doneux (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 608, 612-613, 13 Cal. Rptr. 749 ; discussion in § 427.26[2]].

[4] State Statutes

Principal as bound by authorized acts of agent. Civ. Code § 2330

Exoneration of principal by payment to agent who has been given exclusive credit by third person. Civ. Code § 2335

Right of person who dealt with undisclosed agent to setoff against principal's claim against agent. Civ. Code § 2336

[5] Decisions

Actual authority of agent as required for reliance on doctrine of undisclosed agency. Associated Creditors' Agency v. Davis (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 374, 385, 118 Cal. Rptr. 772, 530 P.2d 1084

Doctrine of election as not applicable if principal is disclosed. Clifton Cattle Co. v. Thompson (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 11, 16-17, 117 Cal. Rptr. 500

Party who dealt with undisclosed agent as not required to elect whether to hold principal or agent liable until existence of agency established or disproven. Standard Oil Co. of Cal. v. Doneux (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 608, 612-613, 13 Cal. Rptr. 749

Default, but not judgment, entered by third party who knew of agency, against agent, as not constituting election to seek recovery from agent alone. Standard Oil Co. of Cal. v. Doneux (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 608, 613, 13 Cal. Rptr. 749

Third party as able to hold undisclosed principal liable for contract entered into in agent's name alone. Gardiner v. Gaither (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 607, 618, 329 P.2d 22

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART IV. FORMS
C. Actions by Third Party

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.127

§ 427.127 Allegation--Knowledge of or Notice to Agent Imputed to Principal [Civ. Code § 2332]--Action by Third Party Against Principal and/or Agent

[1] FORM Allegation--Knowledge of or Notice to Agent Imputed to Principal [Civ. Code § 2332]--Action by Third Party Against Principal and/or Agent

1. On or about _____ [date], [defendant] _____ [name of agent] _____ [was given notice or acquired knowledge] that _____ [specify notice or knowledge sought to be imputed, e.g., the bannister on the outside stairwell of defendant's building at 123 Main Street had broken, creating a dangerous condition]. This _____ [notice or knowledge] was within the scope of the agency, in that _____ [describe, e.g., (defendant) _____ (name of agent) was the manager of the properties owned by defendant _____ (name of principal) and received all complaints regarding those properties]. [If relevant knowledge was acquired by agent before creation of agency, add: (Defendant) _____ (name of agent) acquired that knowledge before creation of the agency relationship, but that knowledge was in (defendant) _____ (name of agent)'s mind while (defendant) _____ (name of agent) was acting for _____ (name of principal).]

[2] Use of Form

This allegation is for use by a third party who has dealt with an agent if the third party seeks to impute to the principal some knowledge or notice given to the agent [Civ. Code § 2332; Wagner v. Benson (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 27, 35, 161 Cal. Rptr. 516 ; see also discussion in § 427.62[1]]. This allegation may be included in a complaint if a principal must be shown to have notice or knowledge of some fact, but the knowledge or notice was instead given to the principal's agent.

[3] Allegations

This form alleges that the agent acquired the knowledge or received the notice and that the knowledge or notice was within the scope of the agency [Maron v. Swig (1952) 115 Cal. App. 2d 87, 90, 251 P.2d 770] .

The principal is charged with knowledge acquired by the agent before the commencement of the agency relationship if that knowledge can reasonably be said to be present in the mind of the agent while acting for the principal [O'Riordan v. Federal Kemper Life Assur. Co. (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 281, 288-289, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 507, 114 P.3d 753 ; Columbia Pictures Corp. v. DeToth (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 620, 631, 197 P.2d 580] .

[4] State Statutes

Agent must inform principal of conduct as agent. Civ. Code § 2020

Both principal and agent deemed to have notice of what either has notice of, and should communicate to other. Civ. Code § 2332

[5] Decisions

Knowledge of 90-day limitation period for filing petition for review of local agency decisions [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6] was not imputed to principal (employee) when letter giving notice of employment termination and period for filing was sent to agent (attorney); express language of Section 1094.6, overall statutory context, legislative history, and lack of burden compel conclusion that principal must have actual knowledge. Herman v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 819, 828-830, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144

Rule that notice to agent constitutes notice to principal applicable only to third parties dealing with principal through agent. Lucas v. Pollock (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 668, 674-675, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 918 ; Redman v. Walters (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 448, 454, 152 Cal. Rptr. 42

Knowledge is not imputed [Civ. Code § 2332] if source of information knows that agent will not communicate knowledge to principal. Wagner v. Benson (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 27, 35, 161 Cal. Rptr. 516

Principal chargeable with and bound by knowledge of, or notice to, agent [Civ. Code § 2332] received while agent acts within scope of authority and that is in reference to matter over which authority extends [Civ. Code § 2332]. Chaplis v. County of Monterey (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 249, 262, 158 Cal. Rptr. 395 ; Trane Co. v. Gilbert (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 720, 727, 73 Cal. Rptr. 279

Notice to agent of facts sufficient to put reasonable person on inquiry imputed to and binding on principal. Clark Equipment Co. v. Wheat (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 503, 527, 154 Cal. Rptr. 874

Agent's knowledge of falsity of representations imputed to principal if agent's representations made within scope of authority. Clark Equipment Co. v. Wheat (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 503, 521, 154 Cal. Rptr. 874

Agent's knowledge of facts outside scope of authority not imputed to principal. Redman v. Walters (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 448, 454, 152 Cal. Rptr. 42

Knowledge of agent imputed to principal only if matters within scope of agency are learned while acting in course of agency. Redman v. Walters (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 448, 454, 152 Cal. Rptr. 42

Principal deemed to have knowledge of whatever agent has notice of [Civ. Code § 2332] even if agent has breached duty to inform principal. Northern Natural Gas Co. v. Superior Court (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 983, 992-993, 134 Cal. Rptr. 850

Doctrine of imputed knowledge [Civ. Code § 2332] applicable between principal and subagent if subagent's employment authorized or ratified. Northern Natural Gas Co. v. Superior Court (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 983, 993, 134 Cal. Rptr. 850

Principal charged with knowledge only if communicated by agent or if agent breaches duty of disclosure. Civil Service Employees Ins. Co. v. Blake (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 196, 199-200, 53 Cal. Rptr. 701 ; Kelley v. British Coml. Ins. Co. (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 554, 561, 34 Cal. Rptr. 564

Lapse of time reasonable for communication of knowledge is allowed before principal is charged with knowledge. Kelley v. British Coml. Ins. Co. (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 554, 561, 34 Cal. Rptr. 564

Scope of agency and whether or not particular fact known to agent was within that scope issues of fact to be resolved in individual cases. Maron v. Swig (1952) 115 Cal. App. 2d 87, 90, 251 P.2d 770

Imputation of agent's knowledge [Civ. Code § 2332] is not presumption but rule of law; showing that principal did not learn of facts imparted to agent is normally irrelevant. Columbia Pictures Corp. v. DeToth (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 620, 630-631, 197 P.2d 580

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART IV. FORMS
C. Actions by Third Party

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 427.128through 427.139

[Reserved]

§§ 427.128[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART IV. FORMS
D. Actions Concerning Powers of Attorney

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.140

§ 427.140 Petition for Determination of Whether Power of Attorney Is in Effect [Prob. Code § 4541(a)]

[1] FORM Petition for Determination of Whether Power of Attorney Is in Effect [Prob. Code § 4541(a)]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
	)	PETITION FOR
In the Matter of _____ [name],	)	DETERMINATION THAT Petitioner.	)	POWER OF ATTORNEY
	)	IS [NOT] IN EFFECT
	)

_____

Petitioner alleges:

1. _____ [Name of principal] is an individual and resides in _____ County, _____ [California or other state; or specify foreign country of residence].

2. There is in existence a document [purportedly] executed by _____ [name of principal] on _____ [date], _____ [add, if petitioner is court investigator or public guardian: in _____ County, California,] to create a power of attorney. _____ [Add, if appropriate: A copy of that document is attached to this petition.]

3. _____ [Petitioner or name of attorney in fact, if petitioner is not attorney in fact] is named as attorney in fact in that document _____ [add, if venue is based on this fact: and resides in _____ County, California].

[Add, if petitioner is not attorney in fact:]

4. Petitioner is _____ [the principal's spouse or a relative of the principal or the conservator of the person of the principal or the conservator of the principal's estate or a court investigator appointed in a proceeding entitled _____ [specify], numbered _____ [specify], that is pending in _____ County, California, or the public guardian of _____ County, California, or the personal representative of the principal's estate or the trustee of the principal's estate or the principal's successor in interest with respect to _____ [specify].

[OR]

4. Petitioner has been requested in writing by _____ [name of attorney in fact] to _____ [specify action that attorney in fact asks petitioner to take].

[OR]

4. _____ [State facts showing petitioner's standing as friend of principal or person having other sufficient interest].

[CONTINUE]

5. _____ [State facts showing that purported power of attorney is not effective, e.g., The purported power of attorney was not executed in accordance with requirements of the Power of Attorney Law, Probate Code Section 4000 et seq., in that _____ (specify)].

[OR]

5. The power of attorney provides, in pertinent part, that _____ [specify terms material to issue of whether power of attorney is currently in effect]. In fact, _____ [state relevant facts, within petitioner's knowledge, showing that power of attorney has not come into effect, or came into effect but subsequently became terminated, or is currently in effect].

[OR]

5. Petitioner does not know the terms of the power of attorney. Petitioner is informed and believes, and thereon alleges, that _____ [state relevant facts showing that power of attorney has not come into effect, or came into effect but subsequently became terminated, or is currently in effect].

[CONTINUE]

6. A judicial determination of whether the [purported] power of attorney is in effect is reasonably necessary for the protection of the _____ [principal or principal's estate] because _____ [specify].

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays for an order determining that the [purported] power of attorney _____ [is not in effect _____ (add, if appropriate: and cannot come into effect) or is no longer in effect because of having terminated or is in effect], and for such other orders as the court may deem proper.
Dated: _____.

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Petitioner

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the petitioner in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing petition and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____[date]

_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

This form of petition may be used, under Part 4 of the Power of Attorney Law [Prob. Code § 4500 et seq. (governing judicial proceedings concerning powers of attorney)], to obtain a judicial determination of whether a purported power of attorney is legally effective, or whether a power of attorney is currently in effect. The attorney in fact may appropriately file this petition if the attorney in fact is not certain about whether the purported power of attorney is legally effective or whether the power of attorney is currently in effect.

Because powers of attorney for health care (also known as advance health care directives) are governed by the Health Care Decisions Law set forth in Division 4.7 of the Probate Code (not the Power of Attorney Law), the provisions pertaining to judicial proceedings under Part 3 of the Health Care Decisions Law [Prob. Code § 4750 et seq.] should be checked before using this form as a model for a petition regarding a power of attorney for health care or advance directive.

This petition raises the issue of whether a power of attorney is in effect or terminated according to its terms. For a form of petition raising the issue of whether a power of attorney should be judicially terminated for cause, based on an act or omission by the attorney in fact, see § 427.144.

The remedies provided in Part 4 of the Power of Attorney Law are cumulative and not exclusive of any other remedies provided by law [Prob. Code § 4501].

[3] Allegations

A proceeding under Part 4 of the Power of Attorney Law is commenced by filing a petition stating facts showing that the petition is authorized under Part 5, the grounds of the petition, and, if known to the petitioner, the terms of the power of attorney [Prob. Code § 4543].

The petition alleges the following:

- The existence of a power of attorney or a purported power of attorney (Paragraphs 1-3).

- The petitioner's standing as a person authorized to file a petition under Part 4 of the Power of Attorney Law (Paragraphs 3 and 4) [see discussion under § 427.140[7]].

- Facts showing a statutory ground for the petition (Paragraph 5) [see discussion under § 427.146[3]].

- Either the terms of the power of attorney (Paragraph 2, through incorporating a copy of the instrument, and Paragraph 5), or the fact that the petitioner does not know the terms (Paragraph 5).

Facts on which venue may be based are included in two allegations (Paragraphs 1 and 3) [see discussion under § 427.140[5]].

Facts are alleged showing that a judicial determination of the issue raised in the petition is reasonably necessary to protect the interests of the principal or the principal's estate (Paragraph 6) because otherwise the petition may be dismissed [see discussion under § 427.140[11][c]].

[4] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction in proceedings under the Power of Attorney Law [Prob. Code § 4520(a)].

The court in proceedings under the Power of Attorney Law is a court of general jurisdiction, and the court, or a judge of the court, has the same power and authority with respect to the proceedings as otherwise provided by law for a superior court, or a judge of the superior court, including, but not limited to, the matters authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 128 (enumerating the statutory powers of courts) [Prob. Code § 4520(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 410.10 (basis of jurisdiction); Prob. Code § 4521 (same)].

[5] Venue

The proper county for commencement of a proceeding under the Power of Attorney Law is determined in the following order of priority [Prob. Code § 4523]:

- The county in which the principal resides.

- The county in which the attorney in fact resides.

- A county in which property subject to the power of attorney is located.

- Any other county that is in the principal's best interest.

When venue is based on residence, venue facts may be alleged in connection with identifying the principal and the attorney in fact. If venue is based on one of the other grounds, the petitioner's attorney should take care to allege the relevant facts.

[6] Ground for Petition

A petition may be filed under Part 4 of the Power of Attorney Law [Prob. Code § 4500 et seq.] for the purpose of determining whether a power of attorney is in effect or has terminated [Prob. Code §§ 4541(a), 4542(a)].

[7] Standing to File Petition

Generally a petition may be filed under Part 4 of the Power of Attorney Law by any of the following persons (not listed in any order of priority) [Prob. Code § 4540]:

- The attorney in fact.
- The principal.
- The principal's spouse.
- The principal's relative.
- The conservator of the person or estate of the principal.
- A court investigator [see Prob. Code § 1454] in the county where the power of attorney was executed or where the principal resides.
- The public guardian of the county where the power of attorney was executed or where the principal resides.
- The personal representative or trustee of the principal's estate.
- The principal's successor in interest.
- A person who is requested in writing by an attorney in fact to take action.
- Any other interested person or friend of the principal.

Whether one of these persons may appropriately be a petitioner depends on the purpose of the petition [see discussion under § 427.146[3]; see also comments to § 427.141 et seq.] and the circumstances. The right of a person to be a petitioner in a particular case could be eliminated by the power of attorney [see Prob. Code §§ 4502, 4503; comments to § 427.141 et seq.].

[8] Nonlimitable Right to Petition

A power of attorney may not limit the authority of the attorney in fact, the principal, the conservator of the person or estate of the principal, or the public guardian, to petition under Part 4 of the Power of Attorney Law [Prob. Code § 4503(b)].

[9] Elimination of Right to Petition

A power of attorney may expressly eliminate the statutory authority of any person, who may otherwise be a petitioner [see discussion under § 427.140[7]], except a person with a nonlimitable right [see discussion under § 427.146[4]], to file a petition under Part 4 of the Power of Attorney Law, if both of the following conditions are satisfied [Prob. Code § 4503(a)]:

- The principal executes the power of attorney at a time when the principal has the advice of a lawyer authorized to practice in the state where the power of attorney is executed.

- The principal's lawyer signs a certificate stating in substance: "I am a lawyer authorized to practice law in the state where this power of attorney was executed, and the principal was my client at the time this power of attorney was executed. I have advised my client concerning his or her rights in connection with this power of attorney and the applicable law and the consequences of signing or not signing this power of attorney, and my client, after being so advised, has executed this power of attorney."

[10] Signature and Verification

Normally the petitioner (and each of two or more petitioners) must sign the petition; however, a petitioner's attorney may sign for the petitioner if the petitioner is absent from the county or for some other reason is unable to sign the petition [Prob. Code §§ 1020, 1023, 4505].

Verification of the petition is required [Prob. Code §§ 1021(a)(1), 4505]. Normally the petitioner (or any of two or more petitioners) must verify it; however, a petitioner's attorney may verify for the petitioner if the petitioner is absent from the county or for some other reason is unable to verify the petition [Prob. Code §§ 1021(b)(1), 1023, 4505].

Verification of the petition constitutes signing it [Prob. Code § 1020].

[11] Procedure

[a] Governing Rules

Except as otherwise provided in the Power of Attorney Law, the provisions in Division 3 of the Probate Code [see Prob. Code § 1000 et seq.] (general provisions of a procedural nature) apply to judicial proceedings under the Power of Attorney Law [Prob. Code § 4505].

[b] Service of Petition and Notice of Hearing

At least 15 days before the time set for hearing, the petitioner must serve notice of the time and place of the hearing, together with a copy of the petition, on the attorney in fact (if not the petitioner) and the principal (if not the petitioner) [Prob. Code § 4544(a); see Prob. Code §§ 1040 et seq., 1200 et seq. (hearings; notices)].

[c] Dismissal of Petition

The court may dismiss a petition if it appears that the proceeding is not reasonably necessary for the protection of the interests of the principal or the principal's estate. The court must stay or dismiss the proceeding in whole or in part when required by Code Civ. Proc. § 410.30 (on the ground that a forum outside California would be more appropriate) [Prob. Code § 4543]. For discussion of dismissal on the that ground, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal .

An appeal may be taken from an order dismissing the petition or denying a motion to dismiss [Prob. Code § 1302(b)].

[d] Right to Jury Trial

There is no right to a jury trial in proceedings under the Power of Attorney Law [Prob. Code § 4504].

[e] Appeal

With respect to a power of attorney governed by the Power of Attorney Law [Prob. Code § 4000 et seq.], an appeal may be taken from any final order under Prob. Code § 4541 except an accounting or reporting order under Prob. Code § 4541(c), and from an order dismissing the petition or denying a motion to dismiss [Prob. Code § 1302]. With respect to an advance health care directive or power of attorney governed by the Health Care Decisions Law [Prob. Code § 4600 et seq.], an appeal may be taken from a final order under Prob. Code § 4766 or an order dismissing the petition or denying a motion to dismiss [Prob. Code § 1302.5].

[12] Cross References

For alternative allegations as to agency, capacity, and residence of parties, and fictitious name allegations, see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used

For alternative captions and introductions, see Ch. 108, Captions and Introductions

For discussion and forms relating to the format of complaints, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints

For discussion and forms relating to FAX service and filing of papers, see Ch. 264, Fax Service and Filing of Papers

For discussion of jurisdiction in California courts in general, see Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter ,

For alternative forms for prayers, see Ch. 420, Prayers

For discussion and forms relating to service of summons generally, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers

For allegations showing proper venue, see Ch. 571, Venue

For alternative verification forms, see Ch. 572, Verification

[13] State Statutes

Judicial proceedings concerning powers of attorney (Part 4 of Power of Attorney Law). Prob. Code § 4500 et seq.

Remedies under Part 4 of Power of Attorney Law are cumulative. Prob. Code § 4501

Judicial proceedings under Part 4 of Power of Attorney Law generally are not subject to limitation in power of attorney. Prob. Code § 4502

Limitations on authority to file petition. Prob. Code § 4503

Denial of right to jury trial. Prob. Code § 4504

Procedural provisions governing proceedings under Power of Attorney Law. Prob. Code §§ 1000 et seq., 4505

Jurisdiction. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 128, 410.10; Prob. Code §§ 4520, 4521

Venue. Prob. Code § 4523

Persons who may file petitions. Prob. Code § 4540

Purposes of petitions. Prob. Code § 4541

Contents and filing of petition. Prob. Code §§ 1020 et seq., 4542

Dismissal of petition. Code Civ. Proc. § 410.30; Prob. Code § 4543

Service of petition and notice of hearing. Prob. Code §§ 1040 et seq., 1200 et seq., 4544

Appeals. Prob. Code § 1300 et seq.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART IV. FORMS
D. Actions Concerning Powers of Attorney

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.141

§ 427.141 Petition for Determination of Whether Act of Attorney in Fact Is Proper [Prob. Code §§ 4541(b), 4766(c), 4770]--By Attorney in Fact

[1] FORM Petition for Determination of Whether Act of Attorney in Fact Is Proper [Prob. Code §§ 4541(b), 4766(c), 4770]--By Attorney in Fact

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
	)	PETITION FOR
In the Matter of _____ [name],	)	DETERMINATION OF Petitioner.	)	WHETHER ACT OF
	)	ATTORNEY IN FACT
	)	IS PROPER
	)

_____

Petitioner alleges:

1. _____ [Name of principal] is an individual and resides in _____ County, _____ [California or other state; or specify foreign country of residence].

2. _____ [Name of principal], on _____ [date], _____ [add, if petitioner is court investigator or public guardian: in _____ County, California,] duly executed an instrument to create a _____ [power of attorney or power of attorney for health care or advance health care directive]. _____ [Add, if appropriate: A copy of that instrument is attached to this petition.]

3. Petitioner is named as attorney in fact in that instrument _____ [add, if venue is based on this fact: and resides in _____ County, California].

4. The [power of attorney or advance health care directive] provides, in pertinent part, that _____ [specify terms material to issue of whether proposed act would be proper or completed act was proper].

5. _____ [State what attorney in fact proposes to do or has done, as to which judicial determination of propriety is needed].

6. A judicial determination of whether the act described in the preceding paragraph _____ [would be or was] proper is reasonably necessary for the protection of the _____ [principal or principal's estate] because _____ [specify].

7. _____ [If temporary order for health care is needed, add: A temporary order prescribing health care for the principal, for the period this petition is pending, is necessary because _____ (specify reason and allege supporting facts)].

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays for:

[EITHER, if not power for health care or advance health care directive]

1. An order determining that the act described above in this petition _____ [would be or was] in accord with the principal's instructions or proper even if not in accord with the principal's instructions.

2. Such other orders as the court deems proper.

[OR, if power for health care or advance health care directive]

1. _____ [If temporary order prescribing health care is needed: An order directed to any and all health care providers who may treat _____ (name of principal), requiring that, until further order of the court, the following measures must be taken: _____ (specify health care that principal must receive)].

2. An order determining that the act described above in this petition _____ [would be or was] consistent with the principal's desires; or, if the principal's desires cannot be clearly determined, an order determining that the act described above in this petition _____ [would be or was] in the principal's best interest.

2. Such other orders as the court deems proper.
Dated: _____.

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Petitioner

[Verification. See § 427.140.]

[2] Use of Form

This petition may be used, under Part 4 of the Power of Attorney Law [Prob. Code § 4500 et seq. (governing judicial proceedings concerning powers of attorney)], by the attorney in fact to obtain a judicial determination that a proposed act by the attorney in fact would be proper or that a completed act was proper. In the case of a power of attorney for health care or advance health care directive, the governing law is set forth in the Health Care Decisions Law [Prob. Code § 4600 et seq.] and the attorney in fact may include a request for a temporary order prescribing health care for the principal, for the period while this petition is pending [see Prob. Code § 4770].

For a petition that may be used by some other legitimately interested person to obtain the same determination in an adversary proceeding against the attorney in fact, see § 427.142.

[3] Ground for Petition

In the case of a power of attorney other than a power of attorney for health care, a petition may be filed under Part 4 of the Power of Attorney Law for the purpose of "[p]assing on the acts or proposed acts of the attorney in fact," that is, for a determination of whether a proposed act would be proper or a completed act was proper [Prob. Code § 4541(b)]. With court approval, the attorney in fact may disobey the principal's instructions [Prob. Code §§ 4234(b), 4541(b)]. In other words, a petition may be filed for a determination that a proposed act would be proper, or a completed act was proper, even if not in accord with the principal's instructions in the power of attorney.

In the case of a power of attorney for health care or an advance health care directive, a petition may be filed under Part 3 of the Health Care Decisions Law for the purpose of determining whether the acts or proposed acts of an agent or surrogate are consistent with a patient's desires as expressed in an advance health care directive or otherwise made known to the court or, when the patient's desires are unknown or unclear, whether the acts or proposed acts of the agent or surrogate are in the patient's best interest [Prob. Code § 4766(c)].

As a general rule, the attorney in fact may, with court approval, disobey the principal's instructions [Prob. Code § 4234(b)]. (While applicable to powers of attorney governed by the Powers of Attorney Law, this rule has no application to powers of attorney for health care or advance health care directives, which are governed by the Health Care Decisions Law.) The court's specific statutory authority, with respect to that kind of power of attorney, is to determine only (1) whether an act would be or was consistent with the patient's desires as expressed in the power of attorney and (2) whether an act would be or was in the patient's best interest, if the patient's desires are unknown or unclear [see Prob. Code § 4766(c)].

[4] Nonlimitable Right to Petition

A power of attorney may not limit the statutory authority of the following persons to petition for a determination of whether a proposed act of the attorney in fact would be proper, or a completed act was proper:

- The conservator of the person regarding a petition relating to an advance health care directive, or the agent regarding a petition relating to a power of attorney for health care or advance health care directive, for a purpose specified in Prob. Code § 4766(b) or (c) [Prob. Code § 4753(b)].

- The attorney in fact, the principal, the conservator of the principal's person or estate, or the public guardian, in the case of a power of attorney other than a power of attorney for health care or advance health care directive [Prob. Code §§ 4503(b), 4541(b)].

[5] Temporary Order Prescribing Health Care

With respect to a power of attorney for health care or advance health care directive, the court in its discretion, upon a showing of good cause, may issue a temporary order prescribing health care or advance health care directive for the patient until the disposition of the petition. If a power of attorney for health care is in effect and a conservator (including a temporary conservator) of the person is appointed for the patient, the court that appoints the conservator in its discretion, upon a showing of good cause, may issue a temporary order prescribing health care for the patient, that order to continue in effect for such time as is ordered by the court but in no case longer than the time necessary to permit the filing and determination of a petition under Part 3 of the Health Care Decisions Law [Prob. Code § 4770].

[6] Appeal

With respect to a power of attorney governed by the Power of Attorney Law [Prob. Code § 4000 et seq.], an appeal may be taken from any final order under Prob. Code § 4541 except an accounting or reporting order under Prob. Code § 4541(c), and from an order dismissing the petition or denying a motion to dismiss [Prob. Code § 1302]. With respect to an advance health care directive or power of attorney governed by the Health Care Decisions Law [Prob. Code § 4600 et seq.], an appeal may be taken from a final order under Prob. Code § 4766 or an order dismissing the petition or denying a motion to dismiss [Prob. Code § 1302.5].

[7] State Statutes

Court approval for attorney in fact to disobey principal's instructions. Prob. Code § 4234(b)

[8] Cross Reference

For a related form, see § 427.140.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART IV. FORMS
D. Actions Concerning Powers of Attorney

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.142

§ 427.142 Petition for Determination of Whether Attorney's Act Is Proper [Prob. Code §§ 4766(c), 4942(b)]--By Person Other Than Attorney in Fact

[1] FORM Petition for Determination of Whether Attorney's Act Is Proper [Prob. Code §§ 4766(c), 4942(b)]--By Person Other Than Attorney in Fact

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Petitioner,	)	PETITION FOR
vs.	)	DETERMINATION OF
_____ [name],	)	WHETHER ACT OF Respondent.	)	ATTORNEY IN FACT
	)	IS PROPER
	)

_____

Petitioner alleges:

1. [Identity of principal. See § 427.141, Paragraph 1.]

2. [Existence of power of attorney. See § 427.141, Paragraph 2.]

3. Respondent is named as attorney in fact in that instrument _____ [add, if venue is based on this fact: and resides in _____ County, California].

4. [Identity of petitioner. See § 427.140, Paragraph 4.]

[EITHER]

5. The power of attorney provides, in pertinent part, that _____ [specify terms material to issue of whether proposed act would be proper or completed act was proper].

[OR]

5. Petitioner does not know the terms of the power of attorney.

[CONTINUE]

6. _____ [State what attorney in fact proposes to do or has done, as to which judicial determination of propriety is needed].

7. A judicial determination of whether the act described in the preceding paragraph _____ [would be or was] proper is reasonably necessary for the protection of the _____ [principal or principal's estate] because _____ [specify].

8. _____ [Add, if act in question is completed and petitioner claims attorney's fees: Petitioner has incurred and will incur expenses for attorney's fees in connection with this proceeding.]

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays for:

[EITHER, if not power for health care or advance health care directive]

1. An order determining that the act described above in this petition _____ [would not be or was not] in accord with the principal's instructions and _____ [would not be or was not] proper.

[OR, if power of attorney for health care or advance health care directive]

1. An order determining that the act described above in this petition _____ [would be or was] inconsistent with the principal's desires; or, if the principal's desires cannot be clearly determined, an order determining that the act described above in this petition _____ [would not be or was not] in the principal's best interest.

[CONTINUE]

2. _____ [Add, if act in question is completed and petitioner claims attorney's fees: An order determining that the act described above in this petition constituted a clear violation of the fiduciary duties of the attorney in fact under the power of attorney, and awarding petitioner reasonable attorney's fees.]

3. Such other orders as the court deems proper.
Dated: _____.

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Petitioner

[Verification. See § 427.140.]

[2] Use of Form

This petition may be used by a person other than the attorney in fact to obtain a judicial determination, under Part 4 of the Power of Attorney Law [Prob. Code § 4500 et seq. (governing judicial proceedings concerning powers of attorney)], or under Part 3 of the Health Care Decisions Law [Prob. Code § 4750 et seq. (governing judicial proceedings concerning advance health care directives or powers of attorney for health care)], that a proposed act by the attorney in fact would be improper or that a completed act was improper. For additional discussion, see the comments to § 427.141.

In the case of a power of attorney for health care or advance health care directive, the petitioner may serve and file a notice of motion for a temporary order prescribing health care for the patient, for the period this petition is pending [see Prob. Code § 4770; see comments to Form 51]. For discussion and forms relating to notices of motion generally, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

[3] Attorney in Fact Subject to Personal Jurisdiction

A person who acts as an attorney in fact under a power of attorney governed by the Power of Attorney Law [see Prob. Code § 4000 et seq.] is subject to personal jurisdiction in California with respect to matters relating to acts and transactions of the attorney in fact performed in California or affecting property or a principal in California [Prob. Code § 4522]. A similar jurisdictional rule applies to a person who is an agent under a power of attorney for health care or advance health care directive, or is a surrogate, with respect to matters relating to acts and transactions performed in California or affecting a patient in California [Prob. Code § 4762].

[4] Attorney's Fees

In a proceeding under Part 4 of the Power of Attorney Law [Prob. Code § 4500 et seq.] commenced by the filing of a petition by a person other than the attorney in fact, the court may in its discretion award reasonable attorney's fees to the person commencing the proceeding, if the court determines that the attorney in fact has clearly violated the fiduciary duties under the power of attorney [Prob. Code § 4545(b)]. On the other hand, the court may award attorney's fees to the attorney in fact if the court determines that the proceeding was commenced without any reasonable cause [Prob. Code § 4545(a)].

In a proceeding under Part 3 of the Health Care Decisions Law commenced by the filing of a petition by a person other than the agent or surrogate, the court may in its discretion award reasonable attorney's fees to the agent or surrogate if the proceeding was commenced without reasonable cause, or to the person commencing the proceeding if the agent or surrogate clearly violated his or her duties under the advance health care directive or power of attorney for health care [Prob. Code § 4771].

[5] Appeal

With respect to a power of attorney governed by the Power of Attorney Law [Prob. Code § 4000 et seq.], an appeal may be taken from any final order under Prob. Code § 4541 except an accounting or reporting order under Prob. Code § 4541(c), and from an order dismissing the petition or denying a motion to dismiss [Prob. Code § 1302]. With respect to an advance health care directive or power of attorney for health care governed by the Health Care Decisions Law [Prob. Code § 4600 et seq.], an appeal may be taken from a final order under Prob. Code § 4766 or an order dismissing the petition or denying a motion to dismiss [Prob. Code § 1302.5].

[6] State Statutes

Attorney in fact subject to personal jurisdiction. Prob. Code §§ 4522, 4762

Award of attorney's fees. Prob. Code §§ 4545, 4771 (Power of Attorney Law and Health Care Decisions Law)

[7] Cross Reference

For a related form, see § 427.140.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART IV. FORMS
D. Actions Concerning Powers of Attorney

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.143

§ 427.143 Petition for Order Compelling Attorney in Fact to Submit Accounting or Report [Prob. Code §§ 4541(c)]

[1] FORM Petition for Order Compelling Attorney in Fact to Submit Accounting or Report [Prob. Code §§ 4541(c)]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Petitioner,	)	PETITION FOR ORDER
vs.	)	COMPELLING ATTORNEY
_____ [name],	)	IN FACT TO SUBMIT
Respondent.	)	_____ [ACCOUNTING
	)	OR REPORT]
	)

Petitioner alleges:

1. _____ [Petitioner or, if principal is not petitioner, name of principal] is an individual and resides in _____ County, _____ [California or other state; or specify foreign country of residence].

2. _____ [Petitioner or, if principal is not petitioner, name of principal], on _____ [date], _____ [add, if petitioner is court investigator or public guardian: in _____ County, California,] duly executed an instrument to create a [power of attorney.] [Add, if appropriate: A copy of that instrument is attached to this petition.]

3. Respondent is named as attorney in fact in that instrument _____ [add, if venue is based on this fact: and resides in _____ County, California].

4. _____ [Add, if appropriate: On _____ (date), the power of attorney _____ (terminated or was duly revoked).]

[Add, if petitioner is not principal:]

5. Petitioner is _____ [the principal's spouse or a relative of the principal or the conservator of the person of the principal or the conservator of the principal's estate or a court investigator appointed in a proceeding entitled _____ [specify], numbered _____ [specify], that is pending in _____ County, California, or the public guardian of _____ County, California, or the personal representative of the principal's person or estate or the trustee of the principal's estate or the principal's successor in interest with respect to _____ [specify].

[OR]

5. _____ [State facts showing petitioner's standing as friend of principal or person having other sufficient interest].

[CONTINUE]

6. The power of attorney provides, in pertinent part, that _____ [specify terms material to issue of whether attorney in fact should be compelled to submit accounting or report].

[OR]

6 Petitioner does not know the terms of the power of attorney.

[CONTINUE]

7. On _____ [date], petitioner made a written request for the attorney in fact to submit _____ [an accounting or a report] with respect to _____ [specify what items accounting should cover or what subjects report should cover]. The attorney in fact has failed and refuses _____ [add, if petitioner is principal or conservator and claims attorney's fees:, without any reasonable cause or justification,] to comply with that request.

8. An order compelling the attorney in fact to submit the _____ [accounting or report] described in the preceding paragraph is reasonably necessary for the protection of the _____ [principal or principal's estate] because _____ [specify].

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays for:

1. An order directing the attorney in fact to submit the requested _____ [accounting or report] to _____ [petitioner or specify other person who should receive accounting or report].

2. _____ [Add, if petitioner is principal or conservator and claims attorney's fees: An order determining that the attorney in fact failed without any reasonable cause or justification to submit the requested _____ [accounting or report], and awarding petitioner reasonable attorney's fees.]

3. Such other orders as the court deems proper.
Dated: _____.

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Petitioner

[Verification. See § 427.140.]

[2] Use of Form

This petition may be used, under Part 4 of the Power of Attorney Law [Prob. Code § 4500 et seq. (governing judicial proceedings concerning powers of attorney)], by a person other than the attorney in fact to obtain an order directing the attorney in fact to submit an accounting or a report.

[3] Ground for Petition

With respect to a power of attorney other than a power of attorney for health care or advance health care directive, a petition may be filed under Part 4 of the Power of Attorney Law for the purpose of compelling the attorney in fact to submit an accounting or a report on acts as attorney in fact, to the principal, the principal's spouse, the conservator of the person or the estate of the principal, or any other person as required by the court in its discretion, if the attorney in fact has failed to submit an accounting or report within 60 days after written request from the person filing the petition [Prob. Code § 4541(c)].

[4] Duty of Attorney in Fact to Submit Accounting or Report

The attorney in fact must keep records of all transactions entered into by the attorney in fact on the principal's behalf [Prob. Code § 4236(a)]. The attorney in fact does not have a duty to make an account of transactions entered into on the principal's behalf, except in the following circumstances [Prob. Code § 4236(b)]:

- At any time on the principal's request.
- When the power of attorney requires the attorney in fact to account and specifies to whom the account is to be made.
- On request by the conservator of the principal's estate while the principal is living.
- On request by the personal representative of the principal's estate or the principal's successor in interest after the death of the principal.

- Pursuant to court order.

These statutory rules are not subject to limitation in the power of attorney [Prob. Code § 4236(d)].

On termination of a power of attorney, the attorney in fact must deliver copies of any records relating to transactions undertaken on the principal's behalf that are requested by the person to whom the attorney in fact delivers possession or control of the principal's property [Prob. Code § 4238(b)]. Termination of a power of attorney does not relieve the attorney in fact of any duty to render an account of actions taken as attorney in fact [Prob. Code § 4238(c)].

[5] Nonlimitable Right to Petition

A power of attorney may not limit the statutory authority to petition for an order directing the attorney in fact to submit an accounting or a report to the principal, the conservator of the principal's estate, or the public guardian, in the case of a power of attorney other than a power of attorney for health care or advance health care directive [Prob. Code §§ 4503(b), 4541(c)].

[6] Attorney's Fees

In a proceeding under Part 4 of the Power of Attorney Law [Prob. Code § 4500 et seq.] commenced by the filing of a petition by a person other than the attorney in fact, the court may in its discretion award reasonable attorney's fees to the person commencing the proceeding, if the court determines that the attorney in fact has failed without any reasonable cause or justification to submit accounts or report acts to the principal or conservator of the estate or of the person, as the case may be, after written request from the principal or conservator [Prob. Code § 4545(b)].

On the other hand, the court may award attorney's fees to the attorney in fact if the court determines that the proceeding was commenced without any reasonable cause [Prob. Code § 4545(a)].

[7] Order Not Appealable

An appeal may not be taken from any final order compelling the attorney in fact to submit an accounting or a report [Prob. Code § 1302(a)].

[8] State Statutes

Duty of attorney in fact to keep records of transactions and render accountings. Prob. Code § 4236

Duty of attorney in fact to deliver property and records on termination of power of attorney. Prob. Code § 4238

[9] Cross Reference

For a related form, see § 427.140.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART IV. FORMS
D. Actions Concerning Powers of Attorney

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.144

§ 427.144 Petition for Order That Durable Power of Attorney Is Revoked or Terminated [Prob. Code §§ 4541(d), 4766(d)]

[1] FORM Petition for Order That Durable Power of Attorney Is Revoked or Terminated [Prob. Code §§ 4541(d), 4766(d)]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Petitioner,	)	PETITION FOR
vs.	)	ORDER THAT POWER
_____ [name],	)	OF ATTORNEY IS
Respondent.	)	_____ [REVOKED
	)	OR TERMINATED]
	)

Petitioner alleges:

1. [Identity of principal. See § 427.141, Paragraph 1.]

2. [Existence of power of attorney. See § 427.141, Paragraph 2.]

3. Respondent is named as attorney in fact in that instrument _____ [add, if venue is based on this fact: and resides in _____ County, California].

4. [Identity of petitioner. See § 427.140, Paragraph 4.]

[EITHER]

5. The power of attorney provides, in pertinent part, that _____ [specify terms material to issue of whether cause exists for judicial declaration that power of attorney in revoked or terminated; see Paragraph 6].

[OR]

5. Petitioner does not know the terms of the power of attorney.

[EITHER, if not power for health care or advance health care directive]

6. The attorney in fact _____ [has violated or is unfit to perform] the fiduciary duties under the power of attorney, in that _____ [specify].

[OR, if power for health care or advance health care directive]

6. The attorney in fact has made a health care decision for the principal that authorized _____ [specify illegal act].

[AND/OR]

6. The attorney in fact _____ [has violated or has failed to perform or is unfit to perform] the duty under the power of attorney to act consistently with the principal's desires. In particular, _____ [specify].

[AND/OR]

6. The attorney in fact _____ [specify acts and omissions]. This conduct is clearly contrary to the principal's best interests. The principal's desires in this regard are _____ [unknown or unclear].

[CONTINUE]

7. _____ [Add, unless Paragraph 6 solely alleges health care decision authorizing anything illegal: The principal lacks the capacity to revoke the power of attorney].

8. A judicial determination that the power of attorney is _____ [revoked or terminated] is reasonably necessary for the protection of the _____ [principal or principal's estate] because _____ [specify].

9. _____ [Add, if petitioner claims attorney's fees: Petitioner has incurred and will incur expenses for attorney's fees in connection with this proceeding.]

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays for:

1. An order declaring that the power of attorney is _____ [revoked or, if power of attorney is durable power for health care, terminated].

2. _____ [Add, if petitioner claims attorney's fees: An order determining that the conduct described above in this petition constituted a clear violation of the fiduciary duties of the attorney in fact under the power of attorney, and awarding petitioner reasonable attorney's fees.]

3. Such other orders as the court deems proper.
Dated: _____.

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Petitioner

[Verification. See § 427.140.]

[2] Use of Form

This petition may be used by a person other than the principal or the attorney in fact to obtain a judicial declaration, under Part 4 of the Power of Attorney Law [Prob. Code § 4900 et seq. (governing judicial proceedings concerning powers of attorney)], or under Part 3 of the Health Care Decisions Law [Prob. Code § 4750 et seq. (governing judicial proceedings concerning advance health care directives including powers of attorney for health care)], that a power of attorney is revoked or terminated for cause, based on malfeasance or misfeasance by the attorney in fact.

In the case of a power of attorney for health care or advance health care directive, the petitioner may move for a temporary order prescribing health care for the principal, for the period this petition is pending [see Prob. Code § 4770; comments to § 427.142.].

[3] Ground for Petition

With respect to a power of attorney other than a power of attorney for health care or advance health care directive, a petition may be filed under Part 4 of the Power of Attorney Law [Prob. Code § 4500 et seq.] for the purpose of declaring that the authority of the attorney in fact is revoked on a determination by the court of all of the following [Prob. Code § 4541(d)]:

- The attorney in fact has violated or is unfit to perform the fiduciary duties under the power of attorney [see Prob. Code § 4230 et seq. (duties of attorneys in fact)].

- At the time of the determination by the court, the principal lacks the capacity to give or to revoke a power of attorney.

- The revocation of the authority of the attorney in fact is in the best interest of the principal or the principal's estate.

With respect to a power of attorney for health care or advance health care directive, a petition may be filed under Part 3 of the Health Care Decisions Law for the purpose of declaring that the power of attorney is terminated upon a determination by the court that the attorney in fact has made a health care decision for the principal that authorized anything illegal or upon a determination by the court of both of both of the following [Prob. Code § 4766(d)]:

- The agent or surrogate has violated, has failed to perform, or is unfit to perform, the duty under an advance health care directive to act consistently with the patient's desires or, when the patient's desires are unknown or unclear, is acting (by action or inaction) in a manner that is clearly contrary to the patient's best interest.

- At the time of the determination by the court, the patient lacks the capacity to execute or to revoke an advance health care directive or disqualify a surrogate.

[4] Nonlimitable Right to Petition

A power of attorney may not limit the statutory authority of the following persons to petition for a declaration that the power of attorney is revoked or terminated:

- The conservator of the person in the case of an advance health care directive or power of attorney for health care [Prob. Code §§ 4753(b)(1), 4766(d)].

- The conservator of the principal's person or estate or the public guardian, in the case of a power of attorney other than a durable power of attorney for health care [Prob. Code §§ 4503(b)(1), 4541(d)].

[5] Appeal

An appeal may be taken from the court's final order disposing of the petition [Prob. Code § 1302(a)].

[6] Cross Reference

For a related form, see § 427.140.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART IV. FORMS
D. Actions Concerning Powers of Attorney

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.145

§ 427.145 Petition for Approval of Resignation by Attorney in Fact (Except Power of Attorney for Health Care [Advance Health Care Directive]) [Prob. Code §§ 4941(e)]

[1] FORM Petition for Approval of Resignation by Attorney in Fact (Except Power of Attorney for Health Care [Advance Health Care Directive]) [Prob. Code §§ 4941(e)]
SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
	)	PETITION FOR
In the Matter of _____ [name],	)	APPROVAL OF Petitioner.	)	RESIGNATION BY
	)	ATTORNEY IN FACT
	)

_____

Petitioner alleges:

1. _____ [Name of principal] is an individual and resides in _____ County, _____ [California or other state; or specify foreign country of residence].

2. _____ [Name of principal], on _____ [date], duly executed an instrument to create a [power of attorney.] _____ [Add, if appropriate: A copy of that instrument is attached to this petition.]

3. Petitioner is named as attorney in fact in that instrument _____ [add, if venue is based on this fact: and resides in _____ County, California].

[EITHER]

4. The power of attorney provides, in pertinent part, that _____ [specify terms material to resignation of attorney in fact].

[OR]

4. The power of attorney makes no provision regarding resignation by the attorney in fact.

[CONTINUE]

5. Petitioner intends to resign as attorney in fact.

[EITHER]

6. There are no pending transactions in which petitioner is acting for the principal.

[OR]

6. Petitioner is in the process of acting for the principal with respect to _____ [describe pending transactions].

[EITHER]

7. Petitioner is not bound any written agreement to act for the principal _____ [add, if appropriate: other than the agreement implied by petitioner's signature on the instrument by which the power of attorney was created, indicating petitioner's acceptance of the appointment as attorney in fact].

[OR]

7. Petitioner expressly agreed in writing to act for the principal. A copy of that agreement is attached to this petition.

[CONTINUE]

8. Judicial approval of petitioner's resignation as attorney in fact is reasonably necessary for the protection of the _____ [principal or principal's estate] because _____ [specify].

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays for an order approving petitioner's resignation as attorney in fact, and for such other orders as the court deems proper.

Dated: _____.

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Petitioner

[Verification. See § 427.140.]

[2] Use of Form

This petition may be used by the attorney in fact to obtain judicial approval of petitioner's resignation as attorney in fact under Part 4 of the Power of Attorney Law [Prob. Code § 4500 et seq. (governing judicial proceedings concerning powers of attorney)].

[3] Ground for Petition

With respect to a power of attorney other than a power of attorney for health care or advance health care directive, a petition may be filed under Part 4 of the Power of Attorney Law for the purpose of approving the resignation of the attorney in fact. If the attorney in fact is subject to a duty to act [see Prob. Code § 4230; discussion under § 427.145[5]], the court may approve the resignation, subject to any orders that the court determines are necessary to protect the principal's interests [Prob. Code § 4541(e)(1)]. Otherwise, the court must approve the resignation, subject to the court's discretion to require the attorney in fact to give notice to interested persons [Prob. Code § 4541(e)(2)].

[4] Nonlimitable Right to Petition

A power of attorney that is subject to the Power of Attorney Law may not limit the authority of the attorney in fact, the principal, the conservator of the person or estate of the principal, or the public guardian to petition for judicial approval of the resignation of the attorney in fact [Prob. Code § 4503(b)].

[5] Duty to Honor Commitments

Acting for the principal in any transaction does not obligate an attorney in fact to act for the principal in a subsequent transaction, but the attorney in fact has a duty to complete a transaction that the attorney in fact has commenced [Prob. Code § 4230(b)].

If an attorney in fact has expressly agreed in writing to act for the principal, the attorney in fact has a duty to act pursuant to the terms of the agreement. The agreement to act on the principal's behalf is enforceable against the attorney in fact as a fiduciary regardless of whether there is any consideration to support a contractual obligation [Prob. Code § 4230(c)].

[6] Appeal

An appeal may be taken from the court's final order disposing of the petition [Prob. Code § 1302(a)].

[7] State Statutes

Duty of attorney in fact to exercise authority. Prob. Code § 4230

[8] Cross Reference

For a related form, see § 427.140.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART IV. FORMS
D. Actions Concerning Powers of Attorney

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.146

§ 427.146 Petition for Order Compelling Third Person to Honor Power of Attorney or Advance Health Care Directive [Prob. Code §§ 4541(f), 4766(e)]

[1] FORM Petition for Order Compelling Third Person to Honor Power of Attorney or Advance Health Care Directive [Prob. Code §§ 4541(f), 4766(e)]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Petitioner,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	PETITION FOR
_____ [name],	)	ORDER TO HONOR
Respondent.	)	AUTHORITY OF
	)	ATTORNEY IN FACT
	)

_____

Petitioner alleges:

1. _____ [Name of principal] is an individual and resides in _____ County, _____ [California or other state; or specify foreign country of residence].

2. _____ [Name of principal], on _____ [date], duly executed an instrument to create a _____ [power of attorney or durable power of attorney for health care]. _____ [Add, if appropriate: A copy of that instrument is attached to this petition.]

3. Petitioner is named as attorney in fact in that instrument _____ [add, if venue is based on this fact: and resides in _____ County, California].

4. The power of attorney provides, in pertinent part, that _____ [specify terms material to purpose of petition].

5. Respondent is _____ [specify identity].

6. On _____ [date], petitioner presented _____ [add, if appropriate: a certified copy of] the power of attorney to respondent and requested respondent to _____ [specify act or business transaction]. _____ [Add, if appropriate: Petitioner also duly furnished an affidavit, as provided by law, a copy of which is attached to this petition.]

7. Respondent refuses to honor petitioner's authority under the power of attorney to act on the principal's behalf in requiring respondent to _____ [do the act or engage in the transaction or specify] described in the preceding paragraph.

8. The principal acting directly in the same circumstances would be entitled to require the respondent to _____ [do that act or engage in that transaction or specify]. _____ [Add, if respondent is financial institution that refuses to open account or make loan: The principal is currently one of respondent's _____ (depositors or borrowers).]

9. An order compelling respondent to honor petitioner's authority as attorney in fact is reasonably necessary for the protection of the _____ [principal or principal's estate] because _____ [specify].

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays for:

(1) An order directing respondent to honor petitioner's authority as attorney in fact according to the terms of the power of attorney, and specifically to _____ [specify].

(2) _____ [Add, if petitioner claims attorney's fees: An order finding that _____ (add, if appropriate: petitioner duly furnished an affidavit as provided by law, and that) respondent acted unreasonably and without good faith in refusing to honor petitioner's authority, and awarding petitioner reasonable attorney's fees.]

(3) Such other orders as the court deems proper.
Dated: _____.

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Petitioner

[Verification. See § 427.140.]

[2] Use of Form

This petition may be used by the attorney in fact to obtain an order, under Part 4 of the Power of Attorney Law [Prob. Code § 4500 et seq. (governing judicial proceedings concerning powers of attorney)], compelling a third person to honor the petitioner's authority as attorney in fact. Alternatively or additionally, the attorney in fact may sue for injunctive relief [see Prob. Code §§ 4406(e), 4501 (statutory remedies under Power of Attorney Law as cumulative and nonexclusive)]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

This petition may be adapted for use to obtain an order, under Part 3 of the Health Care Decisions Law [Prob. Code § 4750 et seq. (governing judicial proceedings concerning powers of attorney for health care and advance health care directives)], compelling a third person to honor individual health care instructions or the authority of an agent or surrogate [see Prob. Code § 4766(e)].

For discussion and a form for an affirmative defense, see § 427.147.

[3] Ground for Petition

[a] Powers of Attorney Generally

With respect to any power of attorney, except a power of attorney for health care or advance health care directive, a petition may be filed under Part 4 of the Power of Attorney Law for the purpose of compelling a third person to honor the authority of an attorney in fact [Prob. Code § 4541(f)].

[b] Statutory Form Power of Attorney

If a third person refuses to honor the authority of the attorney in fact under a properly executed statutory form power of attorney [see Prob. Code § 4400 et seq. (Uniform Statutory Form Power of Attorney Act)] within a reasonable time after the power of attorney is presented, the third person generally may be compelled to do so in an action brought against the third person for this purpose [Prob. Code § 4406(a)]. A petition under Part 4 of the Power of Attorney Law would be appropriate [see Prob. Code § 4407].

[c] Power of Attorney for Health Care or Advance Health Care Directive

To compel a third person to honor a power of attorney for health care or an advance health care directive, the petition must state facts showing that the petition is authorized under Part 3 of the Health Care Decisions Law [Prob. Code § 4750 et seq. (governing judicial proceedings concerning powers of attorney for health care and advance health care directives); see Prob. Code § 4766(e)], the grounds of the petition, and, if known to the petitioner, the terms of any advance health care directive in question [Prob. Code § 4767].

[4] Nonlimitable Right to Petition

A power of attorney subject to the Power of Attorney Law may not limit the authority of the attorney in fact, the principal, the conservator of the person or estate of the principal, or the public guardian to petition for an order compelling a third person to honor the authority of the attorney in fact [Prob. Code §§ 4503(b), 4541(f)].

[5] Essential Allegation

[a] Principal's Rights Against Third Person

The petition must allege that the principal could have required the third person to act or conduct business in the same circumstances. A third person is not required to honor the authority of an attorney in fact or conduct business with the attorney in fact if the principal could not require the third person to act or conduct business in the same circumstances [Prob. Code § 4300; see Prob. Code § 4406(a)].

[b] Principal as Depositor or Borrower at Financial Institution

A petition based on the refusal of a financial institution to open an account or make a loan must allege that the principal is a depositor or borrower at the financial institution. A financial institution is not required to open a deposit account for a principal at the request of an attorney in fact if the principal is not currently a depositor of the financial institution. A financial institution is not required to make a loan to the attorney in fact on the principal's behalf if the principal is not currently a borrower of the financial institution [Prob. Code § 4310].

[6] Attorney's Fees

[a] Respondent's Refusal to Accept Affidavit

In dealing with a third person, an attorney in fact may furnish a specific affidavit in support of the authority of the attorney in fact to engage in a particular act or transaction [see Prob. Code § 4305; discussion § 427.36[11][d]]. If an attorney in fact duly furnishes an affidavit, whether voluntarily or on demand, a third person dealing with the attorney in fact who refuses to accept the exercise of authority referred to in the affidavit is liable for attorney's fees incurred in an action or proceeding necessary to confirm the qualifications or authority of the attorney in fact, unless the court determines that the third person believed in good faith that the attorney in fact was not qualified or was attempting to exceed or improperly exercise the authority of the attorney in fact [Prob. Code § 4306(a)].

[b] Respondent's Refusal to Honor Statutory Form Power of Attorney

If a third person refuses to honor the authority of the attorney in fact under a properly executed statutory form power of attorney [see Prob. Code § 4400 et seq. (Uniform Statutory Form Power of Attorney Act)] within a reasonable time after being presented with the power of attorney, then in an action to compel the third person to honor the authority of the attorney in fact, the court must award attorney's fees to the attorney in fact if the court finds that the third person acted unreasonably in refusing to accept the authority of the attorney in fact under the statutory form power of attorney [Prob. Code § 4406(b)].

A third person will not be deemed to have acted unreasonably in refusing to accept the authority of the attorney in fact if the refusal is authorized or required by state or federal statute or regulation [Prob. Code § 4406(c)]. (This proviso does not preclude other grounds that may support a reasonable refusal to accept the authority of the attorney in fact.) On the other hand, a third person's refusal to accept the authority of the attorney in fact under a statutory form power of attorney must be deemed unreasonable if the only reason for the refusal is that the power of attorney is noton a form prescribed by the third person to whom the power of attorney is presented [Prob. Code § 4406(d)].

[7] Notice of Time and Place of Hearing

In the case of a petition to compel a third person to honor the authority of an attorney in fact, notice of the time and place of the hearing, together with a copy of the petition, must be served on the third person in the manner provided Code Civ. Proc. § 413.10 et seq. (governing service of process in civil actions) [Prob. Code § 4544(b)].

In the case of a petition to compel a third person to honor individual health care instructions or the authority of an agent or surrogate, notice of the time and place of the hearing, together with a copy of the petition, must be served on the third person in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 413.10 et seq. (governing service of process in civil actions) [Prob. Code § 4769(b)].

[8] Appeal

An appeal may be taken from the court's final order disposing of the petition [Prob. Code §§ 1302(a) (powers of attorney generally), 1302.5 (petition to compel third person to honor individual health care instructions or authority of an agent or surrogate)].

[9] Cross Reference

For a related form, see § 427.140.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 427 PRINCIPAL AND AGENT
PART IV. FORMS
D. Actions Concerning Powers of Attorney

37-427 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 427.147

§ 427.147 Affirmative Defense--Previous Breach of Agreement by Attorney in Fact [Prob. Code § 4309]

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense--Previous Breach of Agreement by Attorney in Fact [Prob. Code § 4309]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action is alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], respondent alleges that petitioner previously breached an agreement with respondent and that, consequently, respondent is entitled to refuse to _____ [specify what attorney in fact demands that respondent be ordered to do].

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense may be inserted in the response to a petition, under Part 4 of the Power of Attorney Law [Prob. Code § 4500 et seq. (governing judicial proceedings concerning powers of attorney)], by the attorney in fact to obtain an order compelling a third person to honor the petitioner's authority as attorney in fact [see § 427.146].

[3] Ground for Defense

A third person is not required, by any provision in the Power of Attorney Law, to engage in any transaction with the attorney in fact if the attorney in fact has previously breached any agreement with the third person [Prob. Code § 4309].

[4] Cross Reference

For a related form, see § 427.146.

70 of 70 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 428 [RESERVED]

37-428 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated Chapter 428

[RESERVED]

Chapter 428[RESERVED]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 429 PRIVACY

37-429 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated 429.syn

§ 429.syn Synopsis to Chapter 429: PRIVACY

§ 429.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 429.02 Cross References

§§ 429.03-429.09 [Reserved]

§ 429.10 Governing Law

§ 429.11 Torts

§ 429.12 Collection of and Access to Information

§ 429.13 Eavesdropping

§ 429.14 Federal Civil Rights Actions

§ 429.15 Federal Constitution

[1] Right of Privacy

[2] Personal Decisions

[3] Disclosure of Personal Information

§ 429.16 California Constitution

[1] Purpose and Scope

[2] Application to Minors

[3] Application to Private Conduct

[4] Essential Elements of Privacy Action

[5] Element of Specific, Legally Protected Privacy Interest

[6] Element of Reasonable Expectation of Privacy

[7] Element of Serious Intrusion

[8] Competing Interest Defense

[9] Compelling Interest Defense

[10] Consent Defense

[11] Workers' Compensation Exclusive Remedy Doctrine Inapplicable

[12] Application to Particular Activities

[a] Drug Testing

[b] Improper Use of Information

[c] Family, Marriage, Sexual Relations

[d] Breast Feeding

[e] Medical Treatment

[f] Housing

[g] Employment

[h] Association

[13] Activities Not Covered

[14] Privacy Right Inapplicable to Corporations

[15] Raising Right of Privacy: Cause of Action

[16] Challenging Requirement to Disclose Information

[17] Resisting Disclosure in Litigation: Civil Discovery

[18] Criminal Cases

[19] Applicability of Litigation Privilege

[20] Applicability of Government Tort Claims Act

[20] Applicability of Government Tort Claims Act

§§ 429.17-429.29 [Reserved]

§ 429.30 Governing Law

§ 429.31 Invasion of Right to Privacy

§ 429.32 Public Disclosure of Private Facts

§ 429.33 Publicity Placing Person in False Light

[1] Elements

[2] False Light Defined

[3] Actual Malice Requirement

[4] Demand for Retraction Requirement

[5] Special Damages Requirement

§ 429.34 Physical Intrusion

[1] Elements

[2] Intrusion Defined

[3] Unreasonably Intrusive Investigation

[4] Private Place Defined

§ 429.34A Statutory Action for Physical Invasion of Privacy

[1] Scope of Protection

[2] Damages Available

§ 429.35 Appropriation Under Case Law

[1] Elements

[2] Unauthorized Use

[3] Name or Likeness Defined

[4] User's Advantage Defined

§ 429.36 Appropriation Under Civ. Code § 3344

[1] Cause of Action

[2] Commercial Use Defined

[3] Photograph Defined

[4] Knowing Use Defined

[5] Preemption by Federal Copyright Law

[6] Enforcement of Right by Successors and Licensees

[7] Definitions

[a] "Deceased Personality"

[b] "Successor in Interest"

[c] "Photograph"

[8] Ownership of Rights

[9] Registration as Prerequisite to Action by Successor

[10] 70-Year Limitation on Right

[11] Permissible and Impermissible Uses

[12] Constitutional Freedom of Expression Defense

§ 429.37 Public Information Not Actionable

[1] In General

[2] Public Scenes

[3] Matters of Public Record

§ 429.38 Public Disclosure Requirement

[1] Defined

[2] Method of Disclosure

§ 429.39 Offensiveness to Reasonable Person

§ 429.40 Newsworthy Matters

[1] Constitutional Protection

[2] Criteria for Newsworthiness

[3] Passage of Time

[4] Facts Considered Newsworthy

[5] Offensiveness to Community

§ 429.41 Public Figures

[1] Loss of Right to Privacy

[2] Limited Public Figures

[3] Public Officials and Candidates

§ 429.42 Standing

[1] Privacy as Personal Right

[2] Business Entities

§ 429.43 Uniform Single Publication Act

§ 429.44 Statute of Limitations

§ 429.45 Remedies

§ 429.46 Damages

§ 429.47 Defenses

[1] In General

[2] Privilege of Creditor

[3] Privileges Under Civ. Code § 47

[4] Duty to Disclose

[5] Newsgathering Privilege

§§ 429.48-429.59 [Reserved]

§ 429.60 Governing Statutes

§ 429.61 Relationship Between State and Federal Law

§§ 429.62-429.99 [Reserved]

§ 429.100 Definitions Under Information Practices Act

[1] Agency

[2] Record

[3] Individual

[4] System of Records

[5] Maintain

[6] Regulatory Agency

§ 429.101 Definitions Under Public Records Act

[1] Agency

[2] Public Record

§ 429.102 Relationship Between Information Practices Act and Other State Law

§ 429.103 Office of Information Practices

[1] Providing Individual Assistance

[2] Investigations and Reporting by Office

[3] Mediation of Disputes

§§ 429.104-429.119 [Reserved]

§ 429.120 Collection of Personal Information by Government Agencies

[1] Public Notice Regarding Record Systems

[2] Collection Permitted Only When Necessary

[3] Collection to Be Directly From Subject When Possible

[4] Notices to Subject When Agency Requests Information

§ 429.121 Use of Information by Government Agency

[1] Requirement to State

[2] Duty to Assure Accuracy and Relevance Before Disseminating

[3] Exemption From Liability for Subjective Personnel Assessments

[4] Responsibility for Records Maintained in Storage

[5] Responsibility for Historical Records in Archives

§ 429.122 Individual's Right to Request Amendment of Personal Records

[1] In General

[2] Exemption for Record Evidencing Property Rights

[3] Correction of Record as Not Restoring Other Rights

[4] Administrative Appeal of Refusal to Amend Records

[5] Individual's Statement of Disagreement if Amendment Refused

§ 429.123 Remedies

[1] Civil Action for Improper Maintenance of Records

[2] Injunctive Relief Against State Agency

[3] Remedies Nonexclusive

[4] Venue

[5] Statute of Limitations

[6] Not Retroactive

§§ 429.124-429.139 [Reserved]

§ 429.140 Public Access to Government Records

§§ 429.141-429.159 [Reserved]

§ 429.160 Individual Access to Personal Records

§ 429.161 Right to Inquire as to Existence of Personal Records

§ 429.162 Exemptions From Personal Access Requirement

[1] Confidential Source

[2] Law Enforcement and Official Investigations

[3] Testing and Evaluation Material

[4] Personal Information Concerning Other Persons

[5] Withholding of Information Required by Statute

[6] Medical or Psychological Material

[7] Verification of Health Care Claims

[8] Access to Information Allowed by Other Law

[9] Deletion of Exempt Information From Disclosure

§ 429.163 Exemptions From Duty to Disclose Under Public Records Act Not Applicable to Individual's Access to Personal Records

§ 429.164 Limited to Natural Persons

§ 429.165 Duty to Establish Procedures for Obtaining Access to Records

§ 429.166 Remedies for Refusal of Access

§§ 429.167-429.179 [Reserved]

§ 429.180 Disclosure of Personal Information Contained in Government Records

[1] Qualified Prohibition

[2] Personal Information Defined

[3] Nonpersonal Information Defined

[4] Mailing Lists

[5] Duty to Maintain Confidentiality

[6] Records in Storage

[7] Prohibition of Disclosure as Subordinate to Public Disclosure Requirement

[8] Permissible Disclosure of Personal Information

[a] Pursuant to Subject's Request or Consent

[b] Intra-Agency or Other Routine Use

[c] Statistical Reports and Archives

[d] Law Enforcement, Licensing, Certification, and Regulation

[e] Health and Safety

[f] Emergency Medical Services

[g] To Legislative Bodies

[h] Verification and Payment of Health Care Service Claims

[i] Department of Motor Vehicles Records

[j] Disclosures Required by Law or Legal Process

[k] Disclosure to Adopted Persons

[l] Disclosure to Insurers

[9] Accounting of Disclosures

[10] Remedies for Improper Disclosure of Personal Information

[a] Actions Against Agency

[b] Civil Action Against Person Not Employed by State or Local Agency

§ 429.181 Disclosure of Breach of Data Security Regarding Personal Information

[1] Notification by Agency Owning or Licensing Data

[2] Definitions

[3] Methods of Providing Notice

[4] Remedies for Violation

§§ 429.182-429.199 [Reserved]

§ 429.200 Disclosure of Medical Information by Health Care Provider, Health Care Service Plan, or Contractor

[1] Authorization by Patient Generally Required

[2] Definitions

[3] Mandatory Disclosure

[4] Discretionary Disclosure

[5] Disclosure by Provider Who Is Employer

§ 429.201 Disclosure of General Information by Health Care Provider

§ 429.202 Disclosure of Medical Information by Employers

[1] Confidentiality Generally Required

[2] Authorization by Employee Generally Required

[3] Exceptions to Requirement for Authorization

[4] Employee's Refusal to Sign Authorization

[5] Disclosure by Employer-Health Care Provider or by Employer's Agent or Employee

[6] Inapplicability to Insurer-Employer Acting Pursuant to Insurance Code

§ 429.203 Authorization for Disclosure

[1] Format Requirements

[2] Signature

[3] Content With Respect to Disclosure by Health Care Providers

[4] Content With Respect to Disclosure by Employer

[5] Patient's or Representative's Right to Copy of Authorization

[6] Requirement of Authorization With Respect to Information Practices Act of 1977

§ 429.204 Confidentiality of Released Medical Information

§ 429.205 Nonliability of Provider for Unauthorized Use of Information

§ 429.206 Cancellation or Modification of Authorization

§ 429.207 Prohibition Against Disclosure by Third-Party Administrators

§ 429.208 Patient's Right of Access to Information

§ 429.209 Waivers Unenforceable

§ 429.210 Damages and Fees Recoverable for Unauthorized Disclosure or Use

§ 429.211 Misdemeanor Offense

§ 429.212 Inapplicability of Act to Certain Medical Information

§§ 429.213-429.229 [Reserved]

§ 429.230 Bookkeeping Services

[1] Limitations on Disclosure of Records

[2] Cause of Action for Violation of Disclosure Limitations

§ 429.231 Video Recording Sales or Rental Services

[1] Limitations on Disclosure of Personal Information

[2] Remedies for Unauthorized Disclosure

§ 429.232 Telephone or Telegraph Corporation

[1] Limitations on Disclosure of Information Concerning Residential Customer or Subscriber

[2] Disclosure Allowed Without Written Consent

[3] Disclosure to Subscriber of Identity of Party Receiving Information

[4] Civil Action for Unauthorized Disclosure

[5] Limitations Regarding Unlisted Access Number

[a] Prohibition Against Disclosure

[b] Exceptions to Disclosure Prohibition

[c] Civil Action for Unauthorized Disclosure of Unlisted Number

[6] Restrictions on Publishing Mobile Phone Number

[7] Restrictions on Publishing Facsimile Machine Number

[8] Notice of Disclosure of Use of 800 and 900 Telephone Numbers

§ 429.233 Credit Card Transactions--Prohibition Against Requiring Personal Identification Information

§ 429.234 Disposal of Customer Records

§ 429.235 Disclosure of Breach of Data Security Regarding Personal Information

[1] Notification by Business Owning or Licensing Data

[2] Definitions

[3] Methods of Providing Notice

[4] Remedies for Violation

§§ 429.236-429.249 [Reserved]

§ 429.250 Definitions

[1] "AIDS"

[2] "HIV" and "HIV Test"

§ 429.251 Prohibition Against Compelling Disclosure of Identifying Characteristics

§ 429.252 Unauthorized Disclosure of Blood Test Results to Third Party

[1] Definition of "Disclosed"

[2] Civil Penalty for Negligent Disclosure

[3] Civil Penalty for Willful or Malicious Disclosure

[4] Damages Recoverable for Wrongful Disclosure

[5] Misdemeanor Offense for Causing Economic, Bodily, or Psychological Harm

[6] Written Authorization

[7] Exclusions From Liability for Disclosures

§ 429.253 Prohibited Uses

[1] Determining Insurability or Suitability for Employment

[2] Including Identifying Information in Blood Bank Statistical Summary

§ 429.254 Recording Information and Disclosure to Health Care Provider by Physician

§ 429.255 Disclosure to Spouse, Sexual Partner, or Needle Sharer

[1] By Physician

[2] By Local Health Officer

[3] No Compelled Disclosure in Legal or Administrative Proceedings

§ 429.255A Disclosure to State and Local Health Officers

[1] Required Disclosure

[2] Confidentiality Protections

§ 429.256 Testing in General

[1] Informed Consent Required

[2] Consent Requirements for Incompetent Persons

[3] Exceptions to Consent Requirement

§ 429.257 Blood Transfusions

[1] Required Testing for HIV

[2] Required or Permitted Disclosures

[3] Prohibited Disclosure by Blood Bank

[4] Disclosure to Public Health Officer in Attempt to Locate Donor

[5] Unintentional Disclosure by Public Entity, Private Blood Bank, or Plasma Center

[6] Nonliability for Damages Resulting From Notification of Test Results

[7] Disclosures Allowed Without Written Consent

§ 429.258 Confidential Research Records

[1] Prohibition Against Disclosure, Discovery, and Production Generally

[2] Prior Written Consent for Disclosure Generally Required

[3] Disclosures Permitted Without Prior Written Consent

[4] Mandatory Disclosure to Subject or Subject's Representative

[5] Use for Employment or Insurability Purposes Prohibited

[6] Civil Penalty for Disclosure

[7] Misdemeanor Offense for Disclosure

[8] Recoverable Damages for Wrongful Disclosure

§ 429.259 Public Health Records

[1] Confidentiality

[2] Permitted Disclosure

[3] Use to Determine Employability or Insurability Prohibited

[4] Liability for Wrongful Disclosure to Third Party

[5] Information Regarding Mandated Blood Testing or AIDS Research

[6] Information Regarding Mortality Studies

§ 429.260 Protection of Persons Exposed to Criminal Defendants and Incarcerated Persons Who Pose Threat of Transmitting AIDS-Related Diseases

[1] Disclosure of AIDS Information

[2] Testing Persons Charged With Certain Sex Crimes

[3] Testing Arrestee Who Exposes Police Officer, Firefighter, or Emergency Medical Personnel to Bodily Fluids

[4] Disclosure of Test Results

[5] Confidentiality of Personal Identifying Data

[6] Immunity From Civil Liability

[7] Disclosures Regarding Exposure of Criminal Inmates to AIDS Virus or ARC

[8] Construction of Initiative Provisions

§ 429.261 Further Provisions Regarding Testing of Criminal Defendants and Inmates

[1] Criminal Inmates Generally

[2] Defendants Convicted of Certain Crimes Involving Sexual Intercourse

[3] Persons Subject to Department of Youth Authority

[4] Search Warrant Obtained at Request of Crime Victim

§§ 429.262-429.279 [Reserved]

§ 429.280 Governing Law

§ 429.281 Definitions

[1] Person

[2] Confidential Communication

[3] Cellular Radio Telephone

[4] Cordless Telephone

§ 429.282 Invasion of Privacy Act

§ 429.283 Invasions of Privacy

[1] Wiretapping of Telegraph or Telephone Communications

[2] Eavesdropping on or Recording Confidential Communications

[a] In General

[b] Privileged Communications of Persons in Custody of Public Officer or on Property of Public Agency

[3] Intercepting or Receiving Cellular Radio Telephone Communications

[4] Intercepting or Receiving Cordless Telephone Communications

[5] Recording Cellular Radio, Cordless, and Landline Telephone Communications, Including Faxes

[a] Criminal and Civil Liability

[b] Exemption for Correctional Facilities

[c] Public Utilities Exemption From Prohibition Against Eavesdropping and Wiretapping

[d] Law Enforcement Exemptions

[e] Hearing Aid Exemption

[6] Trespassing for Purposes of Committing Invasion of Privacy

§ 429.284 Presley-Felando-Eaves Wiretap Act of 1988

[1] Electronic Surveillance in Investigations of Specified Crimes

[2] Punishment and Civil Remedies for Violations

[3] Relationship to Invasion of Privacy Act

§ 429.285 Manufacture, Sale, and Possession of Eavesdropping Devices

[1] Prohibited

[2] Exemptions

§ 429.286 Wrongful Disclosure of Telegraphic or Telephonic Communication

§ 429.287 Wrongful Obtaining of Telegraphic or Telephonic Communication

§ 429.288 Use of Voice Prints or Voice Stress Analyzers

§ 429.289 Use of Polygraph Examination as Prerequisite to Accusatory Pleading

§ 429.290 Subscriber Intrusion by Cable Television

§ 429.291 Defenses

[1] No Reasonable Expectation of Privacy

[2] Litigation Privilege Inapplicable to Noncommunicative Conduct

§ 429.292 Civil Action for Invasion of Privacy

[1] Damages

[2] Injunctive Relief

[3] Statute of Limitations

§ 429.293 Right to Civil Action Under Omnibus Crime Control Act of 1968

§§ 429.294-429.309 [Reserved]

§ 429.310 Governing Law

§§ 429.311-429.329 [Reserved]

§ 429.330 Civil Rights

[1] Action for Invasion of Privacy Under Federal Law

[2] Federal Court Jurisdiction

[3] State Court Jurisdiction

[4] Declaratory and Injunctive Relief

§ 429.331 Defenses and Immunities

[1] In General

[2] Absolute Immunity

[3] Qualified Immunity

[4] Statute of Limitations

§§ 429.332-429.349 [Reserved]

§ 429.350 Definitions

[1] Documentary Materials

[2] Work Product Materials

[3] Any Other Government Unit

§ 429.351 Protection From Unlawful Searches and Seizures of Public Communication Materials

[1] Work Product Materials

[2] Other Materials

§ 429.352 Civil Action for Violation of Privacy Protection Act

[1] Right of Action

[2] Jurisdiction

[3] Settlement of Claim by Attorney General

§ 429.353 Defenses

§§ 429.354-429.369 [Reserved]

§ 429.370 Invasion of Privacy by Unreasonable Search and Seizure

§ 429.371 Employee Drug and Alcohol Testing

§§ 429.372-429.389 [Reserved]

§ 429.390 California Points and Authorities

§ 429.391 State Statutes

[1] In General

[2] Appropriation of Name or Likeness

[3] Damages

[4] Immunity

§ 429.392 Decisions

[1] In General

[2] Actual Malice Requirement

[3] Appropriation

[4] California Constitutional Right to Privacy

[5] Damages

[6] Defenses

[a] Creditor's Privilege

[b] Privileges Under Civ. Code § 47

[c] Public Information Not Actionable

[d] Statutory Duty to Disclose

[7] Demand for Retraction Requirement

[8] False Light Publicity

[9] Intrusive Investigation

[10] Method of Disclosure

[11] Name, Likeness, or Personality

[12] Reproductive Health Services Providers and Patients

[13] Newsgathering Privilege Under First Amendment Generally

[14] Newsworthy Matters

[a] Constitutional Protection

[b] Criteria for Newsworthiness

[c] Newsworthy Facts

[d] Passage of Time

[e] State's Interest

[f] Offensive to Community's Standards

[15] Physical Intrusion

[15] Public Disclosure of Private Facts Tort

[a] In General

[b] Elements of Cause of Action

[c] Sufficiency of Allegations

[16] Public Disclosure Requirement

[17] Public Figures

[a] In General

[b] Kinds of People Who Are

[c] Passage of Time

[d] Public Officials and Candidates

[18] Public Information

[a] In General

[b] Public Records

[c] Public Scenes

[19] Publicity Placing Person in False Light

[20] Reasonable Person Standard

[a] In General

[b] Public Disclosure of Private Facts Tort

[c] False Light Tort

[d] Physical Intrusion Tort

[21] Right of Publicity

[22] Statute of Limitations

[23] Standing

§ 429.393 Law Reviews

§ 429.394 Text References

§§ 429.395-429.409 [Reserved]

§ 429.410 State Statutes

[1] AIDS Testing and Research

[a] Blood Donation

[b] Criminal Defendants and Inmates

[c] Definitions

[d] Disclosure and Testing Generally

[e] Public Health Records

[f] Research

[2] Business Records

[3] Collection Agent License Information

[4] Criminal Records

[5] Election Registration Information

[6] Employee Personnel Records

[7] Health Records

[8] Information Privacy Act

[a] Access by Individual to Own Records

[b] Collection and Maintenance of Information by Agency

[c] Construction of Provisions

[d] Definitions

[e] Disclosure of Personal Information

[f] Office of Information Practices

[g] Penalties

[h] Remedies

[9] Insurance

[a] Disclosure of Information

[b] Penalties for Wrongful Disclosure

[c] Remedies for Wrongful Disclosure

[d] Underwriting of AIDS Risks

[10] Medical Information

[a] Confidentiality Generally

[b] Disclosure by Employers

[c] Disclosure by Health Care Providers

[d] Disclosure by Third Party Administrators

[e] Remedies

[11] Mental Health Records

[12] Reproductive Health Services Providers and Patients

[13] Student Personal Information

[14] Student Records

[a] Amendment of Records

[b] Disclosure

[c] Remedies

[15] Tax Records

§ 429.411 Decisions

[1] AIDS Testing and Research

[2] Court Records

[3] Criminal Records

[4] Employment

[5] Insurance Records

[6] Public Access to Information Under Information Practices Act

[7] Public Records Generally

[8] Review

[9] Tax Records

§ 429.412 Attorney General Opinions

§ 429.413 Law Reviews

§ 429.414 Text References

§§ 429.415-429.429 [Reserved]

§ 429.430 Federal Constitution

§ 429.431 State Constitution

§ 429.432 Federal Statutes

§ 429.433 State Statutes

[1] Invasion of Privacy Under Penal Code §§ 630-637.5

[a] In General

[b] Exemptions

[2] Prisoners' Civil Rights

[3] Telephone Calls Generally

[4] Wiretapping Authorization

§ 429.434 Decisions

[1] Civil Action for Damages

[2] Defenses and Exemptions

[a] In General

[a] No Reasonable Expectation of Privacy

[b] Statute of Limitations

[3] Eavesdropping on or Recording of Confidential Communications

[4] Wiretapping

[5] Wrongful Disclosure of Telegraphic or Telephonic Communication

§ 429.435 Attorney General Opinions

§ 429.436 Law Reviews

§ 429.437 Text References

§§ 429.438-429.449 [Reserved]

§ 429.450 California Points and Authorities

§ 429.451 Forms of Discovery

§ 429.452 Federal Constitution

§ 429.453 Federal Statutes

[1] Civil Rights Act

[2] First Amendment Privacy Protection Act

§ 429.454 State Statutes

§ 429.455 Decisions

[1] Civil Rights Actions

[a] Employee Drug and Alcohol Tests

[b] Federal Courts

[c] State Courts

[2] Exemplary and Punitive Damages

[3] Declaratory and Injunctive Relief

[4] Defenses and Immunities

[a] In General

[b] Absolute Immunity

[c] Qualified Immunity

[d] Statute of Limitations

[5] Parties

[6] Pleading

§ 429.456 Law Reviews

§ 429.457 Text References

§§ 429.458-429.469 [Reserved]

§ 429.470 Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10] for General Damages [Civ. Code § 3333], Punitive Damages [Civ. Code § 3294], and Injunctive Relief [Civ. Code § 3422; Code Civ. Proc. § 526] for Invasion of Privacy--Public Disclosure of Private Facts

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Verification

[5] Jurisdiction and Venue

[6] Uniform Single Publication Act

[7] Damages

[a] Compensatory Damages

[b] Punitive Damages

[c] Specification of Damages

[8] Injunctive Relief

[9] Cross References

§ 429.471 Complaint for General Damages [Civ. Code § 3333], Punitive Damages [Civ. Code § 3294], and Injunctive Relief [Civ. Code § 3422; Code Civ. Proc. § 526] for Invasion of Privacy--Publicity Placing Person in False Light in Public Eye

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Actual Malice Required

[5] Demand for Retraction Requirement

[6] Cross References

§ 429.472 Complaint for General Damages [Civ. Code § 3333], Punitive Damages [Civ. Code § 3294], and Injunctive Relief [Civ. Code § 3422; Code Civ. Proc. § 526] for Invasion of Privacy--Physical Intrusion on Solitude or Into Private Affairs

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

§ 429.473 Complaint for General Damages [Civ. Code § 3333], Punitive Damages [Civ. Code § 3294], and Injunctive Relief [Civ. Code § 3422; Code Civ. Proc. § 526] for Invasion of Privacy--Appropriation of Person's Name or Likeness Under Common Law

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

§ 429.474 Complaint for General Damages [Civ. Code § 3333], Punitive Damages [Civ. Code § 3294], and Injunctive Relief [Civ. Code § 3422; Code Civ. Proc. § 526] for Invasion of Privacy--Appropriation of Person's Name, Voice, Signature, Photograph, or Likeness for Commercial Purpose [Civ. Code § 3344]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Appropriation Under Civ. Code § 3344

§ 429.475 Complaint for General Damages [Civ. Code § 3333], Punitive Damages [Civ. Code § 3294], and Injunctive Relief [Civ. Code § 3422; Code Civ. Proc. § 526] for Invasion of Privacy--Unauthorized Use of Deceased Personality's Name, Voice, Signature, Photograph or Likeness in Violation of Rights of Successor in Interest [Civ. Code § 3344.1]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Plaintiff's Owning Less Than Entire Interest

[5] Damages and Attorney's Fees Under Civ. Code § 3344.1

§ 429.475A Complaint for General Damages [Civ. Code § 3333], Punitive Damages [Civ. Code § 3294], Disgorgement of Profits, and Injunctive Relief [Civ. Code § 3422; Code Civ. Proc. § 526] for Invasion of Privacy--Statutory Action for Invasion of Privacy Through Intrusion or Assault With Intent To Capture Image, Sound Recording, or Other Physical Impression of Plaintiff [Civ. Code § 1708.8]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

§ 429.476 Affirmative Defense Allegation [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Lack of Standing

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§ 429.477 Affirmative Defense Allegation [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Public Figure Status of Plaintiff

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 429.478 Affirmative Defense Allegation [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Newsworthiness of Publication

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 429.479 Affirmative Defense Allegation [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Statutory Duty to Disclose Information

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 429.480 Affirmative Defense Allegation [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Freedom of Expression

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§§ 429.481-429.499 [Reserved]

§ 429.500 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 1798.45(b), (c)]--Failure to Maintain Record Properly [Civ. Code § 1798.18]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Verification

[5] Disclosure of Improperly Maintained Information

[6] Refusal to Amend Information at Plaintiff's Request

[7] Jurisdiction and Venue

[8] Statute of Limitations

[9] Cross References

§ 429.501 Allegations--For Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code §§ 1798.45(b), (c), 1798.48]--Disclosure of Improperly Maintained Personal Information [Civ. Code § 1798.18]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

§ 429.502 Complaint for Permanent Injunction [Civ. Code §§ 1798.45(b), (c), 1798.47, 3422; Code Civ. Proc. § 526]--Refusal to Amend Record [Civ. Code §§ 1798.35, 1798.36]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

§ 429.503 Affirmative Defense Allegation [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--No Cause of Action for Subjective Opinion in Personnel Evaluation Contained in Records [Civ. Code § 1798.50]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§ 429.504 Complaint for Injunction [Civ. Code §§ 1798.45(a), (c), 1798.46, 1798.47; Code Civ. Proc. § 526]--Refusal to Permit Review of Personal Record [Civ. Code § 1798.34]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

§ 429.505 Complaint for Temporary Restraining Order, Preliminary Injunction [Civ. Code § 527], Permanent Injunction [Civ. Code §§ 1798.45(b), (c), 1798.47, 3422; Code Civ. Proc. § 526], and Damages [Civ. Code §§ 1798.45(b), (c), 1798.48]--Improper Disclosure of Personal Information From Record [Civ. Code § 1798.24]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

§ 429.506 Complaint for Damages Against Individual for Intentional Disclosure of Information Obtained From Personal Records Maintained by Government Agency [Civ. Code § 1798.53]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] State Action for Both State and Federal Disclosures

[5] Remedy Not Exclusive

[6] Exemplary Damages

[7] Attorney's Fees and Costs

§ 429.507 Affirmative Defense Allegation [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Exemption to Prohibition on Disclosure of Personal Information Applies [Civ. Code § 1798.24]--Law Enforcement Exemption [Civ. Code § 1798.24(o)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Other Exemptions From Disclosure Requirement

§ 429.508 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 56.35], Temporary Restraining Order, Preliminary Injunction [Civ. Code § 3422; Code Civ. Proc. § 527] and Permanent Injunction [Civ. Code § 3422; Code Civ. Proc. § 526]--For

Improper Disclosure of Medical Information by a Health Care Provider [Civ. Code § 56.10]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Punitive Damages and Attorney's Fees

[5] Cross References

§ 429.509 Complaint for Damages for Wrongful and Willful Disclosure of Results of HIV Test [Health & Safety Code § 120980]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Inapplicability of Disclosure Prohibition

[5] Amount of Damages

§ 429.510 Complaint for Damages for Wrongful and Willful Disclosure of Confidential AIDS Research Records [Health & Safety Code §§ 121075, 121110]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Remedies

§ 429.511 Consent to Disclosure of Confidential AIDS Research Records [Health & Safety Code § 121080]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§§ 429.512-429.529 [Reserved]

§ 429.530 Complaint for Preliminary [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)] and Permanent Injunction [Code Civ. Proc. § 526] and for Damages [Penal Code § 637.2]--Wiretapping of Telephonic or Telegraphic Communications [Penal Code § 631]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Damages

[5] Injunctive Relief

[6] Verification

[7] Jurisdiction

§ 429.531 Complaint for Preliminary [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)] and Permanent Injunction [Code Civ. Proc. § 526] and for Damages [Penal Code § 637.2]--Unlawful Eavesdropping on or Recording of Confidential Communications [Penal Code § 632(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Confidential Communication

[5] Participant Recording

§ 429.532 Complaint for Preliminary [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)] and Permanent Injunction [Code Civ. Proc. § 526] and for Damages [Penal Code § 637.2]--Unlawful Eavesdropping on or Recording of Privileged Communications of Person in Custody [Penal Code § 636]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Extent of Protection Under Penal Code § 636

[5] Alternative Remedy Challenging Monitoring Practices of Persons Not Covered by Penal Code § 636

§ 429.533 Allegations--Unlawful Invasion of Privacy Against Public Utility and Its Employees--By Telephone Customer

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§ 429.534 Allegations--Unlawful Invasion of Privacy Against Public Entity and Its Employees--By Telephone User

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§ 429.535 Allegation--Wrongful Disclosure of Telegraphic or Telephonic Communication [Penal Code § 637]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§ 429.536 Allegations--Wrongful Obtaining of Telegraphic or Telephonic Communication Addressed to Another [Penal Code § 637.1]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§ 429.537 Allegations--Unlawful Trespassing for Purpose of Committing Invasion of Privacy [Penal Code § 634]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 429.538 Complaint for Preliminary [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)] and Permanent Injunction [Code Civ. Proc. § 526] and for Damages [Penal Code § 637.2]--Unlawful Interception or Reception of Cellular Radio Telephone Communications [Penal Code § 632.5]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

§ 429.539 Complaint for Preliminary [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)] and Permanent Injunction [Code Civ. Proc. § 526] and for Damages [Penal Code § 637.2]--Unlawful Interception or Reception of Cordless Telephone Communications [Penal Code § 632.6]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

§§ 429.540-429.559 [Reserved]

§ 429.560 Complaint [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 7] in United States District Court for Damages and Injunction [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 65; 28 U.S.C.S. § 1343(4)] for Deprivation of Rights Under Color of State Law [42 U.S.C.S. § 1983] for Invasion of Privacy--Against State or Local Officials

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Punitive Damages Against Local Governments

[5] State Remedies

[6] Demand for Jury Trial

[7] Local Government Immunity

[8] Verification

[9] Cross References

§ 429.561 Affirmative Defense Allegation--Qualified Immunity for Acting in Good Faith

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 429.562 Complaint [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 7] in United States District Court for Damages for Unlawful Search and Seizure by Federal Officers Acting Under Color of Federal Authority [U.S. Const. Amend. IV]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

§ 429.563 Complaint [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 7] in United States District Court for Wrongful Search and Seizure of Public Communication Work Product Materials by Government Officials and Employees [42 U.S.C.S. § 2000aa(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[4] Work Product Materials Defined

§ 429.564 Allegation--Wrongful Search and Seizure of Public Communication Documentary Materials by Government Officials and Employees [42 U.S.C.S. § 2000aa(b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Documentary Materials Defined

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 429 PRIVACY
PART I. SCOPE

37-429 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 429.01

§ 429.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses and contains forms for use in actions involving the four traditional common law torts of privacy. Included are complaint forms for invasion of privacy by a public disclosure of private facts [see § 429.470], by publicity that places a person in a false light in the public eye [see § 429.471], by physical intrusion on a person's solitude or private affairs [see § 429.472], by appropriation of a person's name, voice, signature, photograph or likeness under the common law [see § 429.473], and appropriation of a person's name or likeness under Civ. Code § 3344 [see § 429.474]. Also included are forms of affirmative defenses based on the fact that plaintiff is not entitled to sue for the particular invasion alleged [see § 429.476], the public figure status of plaintiff [see § 429.477], the newsworthiness of the publication involved [see § 429.478], and the statutory duty of defendant to disclose the information [see § 429.479].

This chapter also includes discussion and forms for use in actions relating to the collection, maintenance, dissemination, confidentiality, and disclosure of information in government and private records. The discussion is broken into subparts as follows:

- § 429.120 et seq. relates to the collection, maintenance, and dissemination of information in records maintained by state and local governments, and the inspection of state and local records by individuals to whom the information pertains. For discussion of access to records by the general public, see Ch. 470C, Public Records Act .

- § 429.200 et seq. relates to disclosure of confidential medical information maintained by health care providers, employers, and third-party administrators.

- § 429.230 et seq. relates to disclosure of confidential information in business records, including records maintained by bookkeeping services, businesses that sell and rent video cassettes, and telephone corporations.

- § 429.250 et seq. relates to confidentiality and disclosure with regard to AIDS (acquired immune deficiency syndrome) testing and research, including general disclosure prohibitions regarding personal information in test results, confidentiality of research records, and testing and disclosure regarding certain criminal defendants and inmates.

This analysis contains the following forms:

- Complaint to seek damages for a government entity's failure properly to maintain records that contain information concerning the plaintiff [see § 429.500].

- Complaint for injunctive relief to seek amendment of defective information in a government agency's records [see § 429.502].

- Allegations that a government agency improperly disclosed defective information [see § 429.501].

- Affirmative defense on the ground that there is no cause of action for a subjective personnel evaluation contained in state and local records [see § 429.503],

- Complaint for injunctive relief by an individual to seek access to a personal record [see § 429.504].

- Complaint seeking injunctive relief and damages against a government agency regarding improper disclosure of personal information [see § 429.505].

- Complaint seeking damages against an individual defendant for intentional disclosure of information obtained from personal records maintained by a government agency [see § 429.506].

- Affirmative defense alleging that the disclosure was authorized for law enforcement purposes [see § 429.507].

- Complaint seeking damages and injunctive relief regarding improper disclosure of medical information by a health care provider [see § 429.508].

- Complaint seeking damages for wrongful and willful disclosure of the results of a blood test for AIDS [see § 429.509].

- Complaint seeking damages for wrongful and willful disclosure of confidential AIDS research records [see § 429.510].

- Form of consent for the disclosure of confidential AIDS research records [see § 429.511].

This chapter also discusses invasion of privacy under Penal Code §§ 630-637.5 concerning wiretapping, eavesdropping on and recording of, intercepting or receiving, and disclosure of information of private communications. Included in this chapter are forms setting forth a complaint for damages and for injunctive relief for the wrongful wiretapping and eavesdropping on or recording of private communications [see §§ 429.530 -429.532], for the wrongful interception or reception of cellular radio telephonic communications [see § 429.538], or for the wrongful interception or reception of cordless telephone communications [see § 429.539]; forms of allegations relating to the capacity of defendants, such as a public utility and its employees [see § 429.533] or a public entity and its employees [see § 429.534], and for the wrongful disclosure of a telegraphic or telephonic communication [see § 429.535]. This chapter also includes forms of allegations of wrongful obtaining of a telegraphic or telephonic communication [see § 429.536] and of trespassing for purpose of committing an invasion of privacy [see § 429.537].

This chapter also discusses and contains forms for use in actions against state officials for violations of the Civil Rights Act under 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 for wrongful invasion of privacy [see § 429.560], against federal officials for violations of the rights guaranteed by the Fourth Amendment to theUnited States Constitution [see § 429.562] and against either federal or state officials for violations of the Privacy Act under 42 U.S.C.S. §§ 2000aa-2000a-11 [see §§ 429.563 and 429.564]. The part also contains an affirmative defense allegation in 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 that the defendant government official acted in good faith [see § 429.561].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 429 PRIVACY
PART I. SCOPE

37-429 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 429.02

§ 429.02 Cross References

For forms and procedures of civil rights actions in state and federal courts, see Ch. 112, Civil Rights: Government-Funded Programs and Activities .

For jurisdictional allegations for general use in federal courts, see Ch. 265, Federal Courts: Jurisdiction and Removal .

For a discussion, forms, and procedures relating to preliminary and permanent injunctions, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

For a discussion and forms relating to the requirement of actual malice, see Ch. 340, Libel and Slander .

For a discussion and forms relating to the retraction requirements of Civ. Code § 48a, see Ch. 340, Libel and Slander

For a discussion and forms relating to libel and slander in general, see Ch. 340, Libel and Slander .

For discussion relating to disclosure of information regarding medical malpractice, see Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice

For discussion relating to public access to public records, see Ch. 470C, Public Records Act .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 429 PRIVACY
PART I. SCOPE

37-429 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 429.03-429.09

[Reserved]

§§ 429.03[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 429 PRIVACY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

37-429 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 429.10

§ 429.10 Governing Law

The right of privacy is protected by the penumbras of the Federal Constitution and by Cal. Const. art. I, § 1. The leading case interpreting the cause of action for invasion of privacy under the Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1, 16

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 429 PRIVACY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

37-429 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 429.11

§ 429.11 Torts

The leading case governing the traditional common law torts for violations of the right of privacy is Melvin v. Reid (1931) 112 Cal. App. 285, 297 P. 91 . Appropriation of a person's name, voice, signature, photograph, or likeness is governed in part by Civ. Code § 3344. Appropriation of the name, voice, signature, photograph or likeness of a deceased personality is governed by Civ. Code § 3344.1.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 429 PRIVACY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

37-429 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 429.12

§ 429.12 Collection of and Access to Information

The collection, dissemination, and inspection of information by the state government is governed generally by the Information Practices Act of 1977, Civ. Code §§ 1798-1798.78, and the Public Records Act, Gov. Code §§ 6250-6267. The privacy of medical records is governed by the Confidentiality of Medical Records Act, Civ. Code §§ 56-56.37. Disclosure of personal information in records maintained by a telephone or telegraph corporation is governed by Pub. Util. Code § 2891. Disclosure and confidentiality relating to AIDS testing generally are governed by Health & Safety Code §§ 199.20-199.27. Confidentiality of AIDS research records is governed by Health & Safety Code §§ 199.30-199.40. Confidentiality of AIDS public health records is governed by Health & Safety Code §§ 199.42-199.44. Testing for AIDS and disclosure requirements of test results relating to certain criminal defendants and inmates are governed by Health & Safety Code § 199.95 et seq. and by Penal Code § 7500 et seq. AIDS testing for certain convicted criminals is governed by Penal Code §§ 1201 (perpetrators of certain sex crimes) and 1202.6 (persons convicted of prostitution more than once). Testing for AIDS and disclosure requirements of test results relating to persons subject to the Department of the Youth Authority are governed by Welf. & Inst. Code § 1768.9.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 429 PRIVACY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

37-429 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 429.13

§ 429.13 Eavesdropping

Invasion of privacy by eavesdropping and wiretapping is governed by Penal Code §§ 630-637.5.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 429 PRIVACY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

37-429 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 429.14

§ 429.14 Federal Civil Rights Actions

Federal civil rights actions for violations based the right of privacy are governed by U.S. Const. amend. IV, and by 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 429 PRIVACY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

37-429 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 429.15

§ 429.15 Federal Constitution

[1] Right of Privacy

Protection for a constitutional right of privacy is found in the penumbras emanating from the fundamental constitutional guarantees [Griswold v. Connecticut (1965) 381 U.S. 479, 483-484, 85 S. Ct. 1678, 14 L. Ed. 2d 510] . The right of privacy encompasses two kinds of protections [Whalen v. Roe (1977) 429 U.S. 589, 598-600, 97 S. Ct. 869, 51 L. Ed. 2d 64] :

- The right to make personal decisions; and
- Protection against disclosure of private information.

[2] Personal Decisions

In the arena of personal decisions, the right of privacy extends to the following:

- Use of contraceptives [Griswold v. Connecticut (1965) 381 U.S. 479, 485-486, 85 S. Ct. 1678, 14 L. Ed. 2d 510 (married persons); Eisenstadt v. Baird (1972) 405 U.S. 438, 453, 92 S. Ct. 1029, 31 L. Ed. 2d 349 (unmarried persons)];
- Abortions [Planned Parenthood of Se. Pa. v. Casey (1992) 505 U.S. 833, 846-901 112 S. Ct. 2791, 120 L. Ed. 2d 674 ; Roe v. Wade (1973) 410 U.S. 113, 153-154, 93 S. Ct. 705, 35 L. Ed. 2d 147 ; People v. Belous (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 954, 963, 973, 80 Cal. Rptr. 354, 458 P.2d 194 ; see generally Ch. 4, Abortion and Birth Control Methods];
- Marriage [Loving v. Virginia (1967) 388 U.S. 1, 11, 87 S. Ct. 1817, 18 L. Ed. 2d 1010] ;
- Procreation [Skinner v. Oklahoma (1942) 316 U.S. 535, 541, 62 S. Ct. 1110, 86 L. Ed. 1655] ;

- Child rearing and education [Pierce v. Society of Sisters (1925) 268 U.S. 510, 535, 45 S. Ct. 571, 69 L. Ed. 1070] ; and

- Private sexual conduct between consenting adults [Lawrence v. Texas (2003) 539 U.S. 558, 578-579, 123 S. Ct. 2472, 156 L. Ed. 2d 508 , overruling Bowers v. Hardwick (1986) 478 U.S. 186, 106 S. Ct. 2841, 92 L. Ed. 2d 140 (state law criminalizing homosexual conduct between consenting adults violated U.S. Const. amend. XIV)].

In addition, the United States Supreme Court decided a case involving the "right to die," which, the Court noted, is a right that has been asserted in various jurisdictions, based solely on the common-law right to informed consent, or on both that common-law right and a constitutional privacyright [see Cruzan v. Director, Mo. Health Dep't (1990) 497 U.S. 261, 110 S. Ct. 2841, 111 L. Ed. 2d 224, 237] . In that case, the court assumed that the United States Constitution would grant a competent person a constitutionally protected right to refuse lifesaving hydration and nutrition, pursuant to the "liberty interest" under the Due Process Clause of the United States Constitution, U.S. Const. amend. XIV [see Cruzan v. Director, Mo. Health Dep't (1990) 497 U.S. 261, 110 S. Ct. 2841, 111 L. Ed. 2d 224, 242] . Proceeding on that assumption, the Court held that, based on a balancing of a person's liberty interest against relevant state interests, a state may apply a "clear and convincing" evidence standard in proceedings in which a guardian seeks to discontinue nutrition and hydration of a person diagnosed to be in a persistent vegetative state [Cruzan v. Director, Mo. Health Dep't (1990) 497 U.S. 261, 110 S. Ct. 2841, 111 L. Ed. 2d 224, 245-246] .

On the other hand, the federal constitutional protection for the right of privacy with regard to intimate decisions does not include a right for parents to control the upbringing of their children by introducing them to matters of and relating to sex in accordance with their personal and religious values and beliefs [Fields v. Palmdale Sch. Dist. (9th Cir. 2005) 427 F.3d 1197, 1207-1208] .

[3] Disclosure of Personal Information

In the area of protection against disclosure of private information, the right of privacy safeguards, for example, against overbroad disclosure of the personal financial affairs of public officers and candidates and their families [City of Carmel-by-the-Sea v. Young (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 259, 268, 85 Cal. Rptr. 1, 466 P.2d 225] . A right to privacy relating to the disclosure of private information, to the extent it exists at all, protects only personal information [Whalen v. Roe (1977) 429 U.S. 589, 599, 97 S. Ct. 869, 51 L. Ed. 2d 64 ; Russell v. Gregoire (9th Cir. 1997) 124 F.3d 1079 (information collected and disseminated by state statute subjecting sex offenders to community notification of conviction information including offender's photograph and approximate residential location is already fully available to public and is not constitutionally protected, with exception of general vicinity of offender's residence, which is published, and offender's employer, which is collected but not released to public, neither of which are generally considered private)]. In determining whether information is of such a highly personal nature that it demands constitutional protection, the party asserting the right must have a legitimate and reasonable expectation of privacy [Rosales v. City of Los Angeles (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 419, 431, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144] . For a discussion of statutory regulation of the disclosure of information, see § 429.60 et seq.

In addition, one of the interests protected by U.S. Const. amend. IV, regarding the right of freedom from unreasonable searches and seizures, is the right to privacy [see Skinner v. Railway Labor Executives' Ass'n (1989) 489 U.S. 602, 109 S. Ct. 1402, 103 L. Ed. 2d 639, 657] . Fourth Amendment protections apply in a nongovernmental context if governmental control of some nature predicates state action on private conduct. For example, federal regulations providing for mandatory and permissive drug and alcohol testing of private railroad employees fall within the purview of the Fourth Amendment because the government involvement in and controlover the implementation of those regulations predicate state action on the railroads [see Skinner v. Railway Labor Executives' Ass'n (1989) 489 U.S. 602, 109 S. Ct. 1402, 103 L. Ed. 2d 639, 659-660 (finding regulations allowing drug testing of railroad employees without warrant or individualized suspicion of impairment constitutional under Fourth Amendment "reasonableness" criteria)].

Moreover, the Fourth Amendment protects individuals from unreasonable searches conducted by the government when the government acts as an employer [see National Treasury Employees Union v. Von Raab, 489 U.S. 656, (1989) (mandatory drug testing of certain United States Customs employees with no warrant or individualized suspicion was constitutionally reasonable); Norman-Bloodsaw v. Lawrence Berkeley Lab. (9th Cir. 1998) 135 F.3d 1260 (employer's performance of unauthorized tests on employees involving retrieval of medical information unknown to employees may be viewed as searches in violation of Fourth Amendment privacy rights)]. However, a right to privacy relating to the disclosure of private information, to the extent it exists at all, protects only personal information [Whalen v. Roe (1977) 429 U.S. 589, 599, 97 S. Ct. 869, 51 L. Ed. 2d 64 ; Russell v. Gregoire (9th Cir. 1997) 124 F.3d 1079 (information collected and disseminated by state statute subjecting sex offenders to community notification of conviction information including offender's photograph and approximate residential location is already fully available to public and is not constitutionally protected, with exception of general vicinity of offender's residence, which is published, and offender's employer, which is collected but not released to public, neither of which are generally considered private)].

The California Supreme Court has evaluated whether a municipal employer's suspicionless drug testing of current employees and prospective applicants violated privacy rights contained in the United States and California constitutions. After reviewing Skinner and Von Raab, a majority of the court concluded that the Fourth Amendment prohibits a governmental employer from conducting suspicionless urinalysis drug testing of current public employees seeking promotion or transfer, without regard to the nature or duties of the position at issue [Loder v. City of Glendale (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 846, 878-881, 900, 918 n.1, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 696, 927 P.2d 1200 (George, C.J.; Mosk, J., and Kennard, J., concurring and dissenting)]. However, a majority of the Court also found that a drug screening program administered in a reasonable fashion as part of a lawful preemployment medical examination required of each job applicant is constitutionally permissible under both the Fourth Amendment and the California Constitution [Loder v. City of Glendale (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 846, 881-899, 922, 933 n.1, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 696, 927 P.2d 1200 (George, C.J.; Chin, J., and Brown, J., concurring and dissenting)]. For complete discussion of Fourth Amendment issues with regard to employee drug testing, see Wilcox, California Employment Law, Ch. 50 (Matthew Bender).

The Fourth Amendment also places limitations on a prison facility's right to search prison visitors. The government's interest in providing security and preventing criminal conduct is great in this context, however, and prison officials may subject visitors to the following administrative search procedures, within the dictates of the Fourth Amendment as well as Cal. Const. art. I, § 13, to prevent the flow of contraband such as drugs into the facility [Estes v. Rowland (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 508, 528-534, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 901] :

- A dog search limited to 30 minutes;

- A strip search, if based on a dog alert or if the officials find contraband that the visitor could secrete on his or her person; and

- Denial of visitation if contraband is found.

The government is required to provide visitors with adequate notice of the search procedure, and inform them of their right to refuse the search and choose not to visit the facility [Estes v. Rowland (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 508, 527-528, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 901] .

The United States Supreme Court has held that taxpayers have an obvious possessory interest in their tax records, and that taxpayers' privacy interest in those records is sufficiently important to merit constitutional protection under U.S. Const. amend. IV [Church of Scientology of Cal. v. United States (1992) 506 U.S. 9, 12-13 n.5, 113 S. Ct. 447, 121 L. Ed. 2d 313] . That decision concerned a church's privacy interest in tape-recordings of conversations between church officials and their attorneys, obtained by the IRS pursuant to an unlawful IRS summons for use in an investigation of the church's founder. Although the IRS had already examined and copied the documents, the Supreme Court held that the church's appeal of a district court order enforcing the disclosure was not moot, because the court was empowered to effectuate a partial remedy by ordering the IRS to destroy or return all the copies in its possession, despite the impossibility of returning the parties to the status quo ante [Church of Scientology of Cal. v. United States (1992) 506 U.S. 9, 15, 113 S. Ct. 447, 121 L. Ed. 2d 313 (declining to decide merits of dispute over documents)].

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 429 PRIVACY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

37-429 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 429.16

§ 429.16 California Constitution

[1] Purpose and Scope

In 1972, California voters amended Cal. Const. art. I, § 1, to include a right of privacy among the "inalienable rights" of the people. The analysis and arguments contained in the official ballot pamphlet are indicia of the voters' intent in enacting the provision [Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1, 20 ; see White v. Davis (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 757, 775 n.11, 120 Cal. Rptr. 94, 533 P.2d 222] . The courts have repeatedly construed Cal. Const. art. I, § 1 to provideCalifornia citizens with privacy protections broader than those recognized by the federal constitution [see, e.g., American Acad. of Pediatrics v. Lungren (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 307, 327-328, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 210, 940 P.2d 797] .

In Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Ass'n, the leading case interpreting the cause of action for invasion of privacy based on Cal. Const. art. I, § 1, the California Supreme Court limited the scope of the constitutional right to specific, legally protected privacy interests. The Court identified the core values furthered by the consitutional right as informational privacy and autonomy privacy [Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834, 865 P.2d 633].

[2] Application to Minors

There is no question that minors possess a constitutional right of privacy under the California Constitution [American Acad. of Pediatrics v. Lungren (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 307, 334, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 210, 940 P.2d 797 (citing Ballot Pamp., Proposed Amends. to Cal. Const. with arguments to voters, Gen. Elec. (Nov. 7, 1972), argument in favor of Prop. 11, pp. 26, 27)]. Specifically, minors are "persons" under the Constitution, and are entitled to its protections. Cal. Const. art. I, § 1 specifically declares that all people are by nature free and independent and have inalienable rights, including the right to privacy. The ballot argument accompanying the measure that added the privacy clause to article 1, § 1, expressly confirms that the constitutional right of privacy afforded by that provision was intended to apply to every Californian, including every man, woman, and child in the state.

However, though minors have privacy rights under Cal. Const. art. I, § 1, their privacy rights are not coextensive with those of adults. No case has suggested, for example, that the Legislature does not have greater latitude to regulate or to proscribe voluntary sexual activity by or with a minor than it does with regard to voluntary sexual activity engaged in by an adult [American Academy of Pediatrics v. Lungren (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 307, 335, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 210, 940 P.2d 797 ; In re T.A.J. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1350, 1359, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 331] . Thus, for instance, the court of appeal has held that minors do not have a constitutionally protected privacy interest in engaging in consensual sexual intercourse with another minor [In re T.A.J. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1350, 1360, 1362, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 331 (upholding Pen. Code § 261.5(b), which makes it a misdemeanor for "any person" to have sexual intercourse with minor no more than three years older or younger than perpetrator, as applied to defendant who was himself a minor at time of alleged offense)].

[3] Application to Private Conduct

The state constitutional right of privacy may be enforced against both governmental and private entities. References to business in the ballot arguments for the Privacy Initiative constitute evidence of drafter and voter intent to extend the right to the private sector generally [see Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1, 20

Although the California Supreme Court in Hill allowed the right of privacy to be enforced against private entities, it did not conclude that the relative strength and importance of the right was the same in cases of private, as opposed to government, action, because of the following [Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1, 38-39, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834, 865 P.2d 633 :

- The pervasive presence of coercive government power in basic areas of human life poses greater dangers to freedom than does private conduct;

- An individual generally has greater choice and alternatives when dealing with private entities, as opposed to the government; and

- Some private conduct, such as the activities of voluntary associations, carries its own mantle of constitutional protection in the form of freedom of association.

[4] Essential Elements of Privacy Action

In Hill, the California Supreme Court set forth the following three essential elements for a cause of action for invasion of the state constitutional right of privacy [Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1, 39-40, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834, 865 P.2d 633 :

- A legally protected privacy interest;

- A reasonable expectation of privacy under the circumstances; and

- Conduct by the defendant that amounts to a serious invasion of the protected privacy interest.

The plaintiff in an invasion of privacy case has the burden of establishing each element [Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1, 39, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834, 865 P.2d 633 . For a jury instruction related to the state constitutional right of privacy, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 1806 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender, Official Publisher), also available in LexisNexis Automated Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions.

A defendant may prevail in a state constitutional privacy case by negating any of the three elements, or by pleading and proving as an affirmative defense that the invasion of privacy is justified because it substantively furthers one or more countervailing interests [Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1, 40, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834, 865

P.2d 633 ; § 429.16[8] and [9]]. The plaintiff, in turn, may rebut a defendant's assertion of countervailing interests by showing that there are feasible and effective alternatives to defendant's conduct that have a lesser impact onprivacy interests [Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1, 40, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834, 865 P.2d 633 . For a related jury instruction, see Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions, CACI No. 1807 (LexisNexis Matthew Bender, Official Publisher), also available in LexisNexis Automated Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions.

In the lead opinion in Loder v. City of Glendale, two justices of the California Supreme Court asserted that the three elements articulated in Hill must be viewed "simply as 'threshold elements' " to be used to screen out claims not involving a significant intrusion on a privacy interest protected by the state constitutional privacy provision. The lead opinion further asserted that the Hill elements do not eliminate the necessity for weighing and balancing the justification for the conduct in question against the intrusion on privacy resulting from the conduct in any case that raises a genuine, nontrivial invasion of a protected privacy interest [Loder v. City of Glendale (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 846, 893-894, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 696, 927 P.2d 1200 ; but see Loder v. City of Glendale (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 846, 900, 916, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 696, 927 P.2d 1200 (Mosk, J., concurring and dissenting) (lead opinion's replacement of Hill test with balancing-of-interest test similar to that employed in Fourth Amendment analyses indicates there is no longer majority support for Hill test)].

In American Acad. of Pediatrics v. Lungren (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 307, 331, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 210, 940 P.2d 797 , the California Supreme Court had another opportunity to review and reaffirm the three elements articulated in Hill. In this 4-3 decision, the Supreme Court concluded that the state constitutional privacy claim advanced by plaintiffs, involving a statutory provision that required a pregnant minor to secure parental consent or judicial authorization before obtaining an abortion, clearly satisfied all three "threshold elements" set forth in Hill [American Acad. of Pediatrics v. Lungren (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 307, 331, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 210, 940 P.2d 797 (statute significantly intruded on fundamental autonomy privacy interest protected by state privacy clause)].

[5] Element of Specific, Legally Protected Privacy Interest

The first essential element of a state constitutional cause of action for invasion of privacy is the identification of a specific, legally protected privacy interest. This is a question of law that depends on social norms, common law developments, constitutional development, statutory enactment, and the ballot arguments for the Privacy Initiative [see Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1, 35-36, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834, 865 P.2d 633 (recognizing privacy interest in urination and medical information, but finding no constitutional violation); but compare Loder v. City of Glendale (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 846, 896-899, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 696, 927 P.2d 1200 (recognizing privacy interest in urination and medical information, and finding violation regarding current governmental employees seeking promotion, but no violation regarding prospective governmental employees)]. Legally recognized privacy interests are generally of two classes: (1) interests in precluding the dissemination or misuse of sensitive and confidential information ("informational privacy"), and (2) interests in making intimate personal decisions or conducting personal activities without observation, intrusion, or interference ("autonomy privacy") [Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1, 35, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834, 865 P.2d 633].

An employee, for example, has a legally cognizable interest in maintaining the privacy of sensitive personal information conveyed to a psychiatrist in an employer ordered disability evaluation [Pettus v. Cole (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 402, 440, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 46] . And in a 4-3 decision, the California Supreme Court ruled that a statute that restricts a pregnant minor's ability to decide on her own whether to continue or terminate her pregnancy unquestionably implicates a constitutionally protected privacy interest for purposes of the initial threshold element of Hill [American Acad. of Pediatrics v. Lungren (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 307, 331, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 210, 940 P.2d 797 (right to choose whether to continue or terminate pregnancy implicates woman's fundamental interest in preservation of her personal health, her interest in retaining personal control over integrity of her own body, and her interest in deciding for herself whether to parent child)].

The zones of privacy created by the state constitutional right of privacy extend to the details of one's medical history [Jeffrey H. v. Imai, Tadlock & Keeney (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 345, 353, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 916 , overruled in part, Jacob B. v. County of Shasta, 40 Cal. 4th 948 , overruled in part, Jacob B. v. County of Shasta, 40 Cal. 4th 948, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 477 ; Jones v. Superior Court (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 534, 548-550, 174 Cal. Rptr. 148] . Disclosure of HIV positive status may be entitled to protection under Cal. Const. art. I, § 1 under appropriate circumstances [Urbaniak v. Newton (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1128, 1140, 277 Cal. Rptr. 354] . A person's medical history falls within the legally recognized privacy interest, so that a sperm donor, whose identity is necessarily linked with his medical history, has a privacy interest in the disclosure of his identity [Johnson v. Superior Court (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1050, 1068-1069, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 864 (but holding that there was compelling state interest justifying invasion of privacy interest to mandate deposition of donor)].

California's constitutional privacy protection also embraces sexual relations [Vinson v. Superior Court (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 833, 841, 239 Cal. Rptr. 292, 740 P.2d 404] .

[6] Element of Reasonable Expectation of Privacy

The second essential element of a state constitutional cause of action for invasion of privacy is a reasonable expectation of privacy. The reasonableness of an expectation of privacy is a mixed question of law and fact. Factors affecting the extent of a privacy interest include advance notice of impending action, customs,societal norms and practices, physical settings surrounding particular activities, and the presence or absence of opportunities for voluntary consent [see Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1, 36-37, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834, 865 P.2d 633] (student athletes have diminished expectation interest in privacy during urination because, unlike the general population, they undergo frequent physical examinations, reveal bodily and medical condition to coaches and trainers, and often disrobe in same-sex locker rooms)]. This element contemplates an inquiry into whether there is something in the particular circumstances in which an alleged intrusion of privacy arises that demonstrates plaintiff has no reasonable expectation of privacy in that context, so that the alleged intrusion would not violate the state Constitution, even if there were no justification for the allegedly intrusive conduct [American Acad. of Pediatrics v. Lungren (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 307, 338, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 210, 940 P.2d 797] .

In a 4 to 3 decision after Hill, the California Supreme Court conducted such an inquiry into the context surrounding a parental consent requirement for pregnant minors seeking an abortion. The Court found that the challenged statutory requirements applied to all pregnant minors and, unlike the drug testing program in Hill, were not confined to a specific setting or limited context. Because the requirement impinged on a fundamental autonomy privacy interest of pregnant minors protected by the state constitutional privacy clause, and because the statute applied to all such minors, the Court determined that there was absolutely nothing in the circumstances of this case that would support a conclusion that the pregnant minors affected by this legislation did not have a reasonable expectation of privacy for purposes of the second element of the Hill test [American Acad. of Pediatrics v. Lungren (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 307, 338-339, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 210, 940 P.2d 797 (neither statutory provisions requiring parental consent for medical care nor the existence of numerous abortion/parental consent statutes in other states eliminated a minor's reasonable expectation of privacy in this context)].

A court relied on the likelihood that the information would eventually be disclosed in pending litigation brought by plaintiff has been relied on as a basis for the conclusion that no reasonable expectation of privacy existed, precluding a cause of action [Heller v. Norcal Mut. Ins. Co. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 30, 43-44, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 200, 876 P.2d 999 (discussions concerning plaintiff's medical condition between plaintiff's treating physician and defendant's insurer in medical malpractice action; because physician was expert witness in malpractice action, plaintiff could not reasonably expect that information would remain confidential)]. However, unlike the plaintiff in Heller, whose expectation of privacy in her medical records was substantially lowered by placing her medical condition in issue, a sexual assault victim does not place his or her mental health inissue, nor does he or she lose a right to privacy in his or her confidential mental health records, merely by charging the assailant with sexual battery. Thus, the trial court erred in dismissing a sexual assault victim's invasion of privacy action against the assailant's attorney, who read the victim's confidential mental health records and disseminated them to the defense psychiatrist without authorization [Susan S. v. Israels (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 1290, 1296-1298, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 42 (plaintiff had reasonable expectation of privacy in mental health records subject to court determination whether records should be disclosed to assailant and his attorney prior to disclosure)].

On the other hand, a person who commits sex offenses may have a diminished expectation of privacy in his or her psychological records and information revealed in examinations by mental health professionals in the course of evaluating whether the person is a sexually violent predator [see People v. Martinez (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 465, 475-478, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841) (criminal defendant had substantially diminished expectation of privacy given his consent to interviews with psychiatrists to which he consented, proper disclosure to all relevant information in his psychological records to them, their discussion of information in their written reports, availability of reports to Director of Corrections, Director of Mental Health, and prosecutor, and availability of underlying psychological records to prosecutor)].

Likewise, it is reasonable for employees to expect that details of their personal lives and thoughts will be shielded from scrutiny by their employers. Thus, except for disclosures regarding plaintiff's functional limitations, it is reasonable for an employee to expect that the psychiatrists conducting a disability evaluation would maintain the confidentiality of the contents of their discussions [Pettus v. Cole (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 402, 443, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 46] .

Conversely, an employee may not have a reasonable expectation of privacy in otherwise private parts of his or her life if those aspects of life create a conflict of interest at work. For example, a supervisor who was terminated for refusing to end an intimate relationship with a subordinate had no reasonable expectation of privacy in that relationship. Existing court decisions had already recognized the right of employers to restrict such relationships, and that particular employer had given advance notice to the supervisor that the employer believed that the relationship presented a conflict of interest [Barbee v. Household Auto. Fin. Corp. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 525, 532-533, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 406] .

[7] Element of Serious Intrusion

The third essential element of a state constitutional cause of action for invasion of privacy is that the intrusion must be serious. This issue is a mixed question of law and fact. An actionable invasion of privacy under Cal. Const. art. I, § 1, must be sufficiently serious in its nature, scope, and actual or potential impact to constitute an egregious breach of the social norms underlying the privacy right [see Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1, 37, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834, 865 P.2d 633 (direct visual observation of urination is seriousintrusion despite diminished privacy expectations of student athletes, but no violation of privacy right found due to justifying competing interests); see also Heller v. Norcal Mut. Ins. Co. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 30, 44, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 200, 876 P.2d 999 (likelihood that information communicated to insurance carrier would have been discovered during course of litigation established that intrusion on plaintiff's privacy was not "serious" and could not support constitutional cause of action)]. For example, the disclosure to an employer of information contained in psychiatrists' reports concerning an employee's past and present drinking habits, and strongly held views about racism among his coworkers and company management, is a serious intrusion into an employee's right of informational privacy [Pettus v. Cole (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 402, 445, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 46] .

As explained in Loder v. City of Glendale (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 846, 895, n.22, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 696, 927 P.2d 1200 , this third element is intended to screen out intrusions on privacy that are de minimis or insignificant. In a case decided after Loder, the California Supreme Court concluded in a 4-3 opinion that the effect of a statute requiring parental consent before a minor may obtain an abortion could not by any stretch of the imagination properly be characterized as de minimis or insignificant. Rather, the statute constituted a significant intrusion on a minor's protected privacy interest [American Acad. of Pediatrics v. Lungren (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 307, 338-339, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 210, 940 P.2d 797 (citing to the following consequences as significant intrusions: that the statute would deny a pregnant minor control over her own destiny, would increase the health risks posed by an abortion, and could result in a minor terminating the pregnancy herself, seeking a "back-alley" abortion or bearing an unwanted child)].

[8] Competing Interest Defense

The California Supreme Court has recognized a competing interest defense that allows defendants to justify an invasion of privacy by asserting legitimate, competing, or countervailing interests. This defense is less rigorous than the compelling interest defense, the application of which the Court limited to cases involving either "obvious government action impacting freedom of expression and association" or an "obvious invasion of aninterest fundamental to personal autonomy" [see Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1, 34, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834, 865 P.2d 633 ; see generally § 429.16[9]].

The competing interest defense involves the use of a balancing test that compares the specifically identified privacy interests of the plaintiff with legitimate, competing, and countervailing nonprivacy interests asserted by the defendant [Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1, 37-38, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834, 865 P.2d 633 (applying this test to NCAA drug testing program for student athletes and finding no violation)]. If the interests asserted by the defendant justify the invasion of privacy, the intrusion does not violate the California Constitution. The relative importance of an asserted interest depends on its proximity to the central functions of a particular public or private enterprise [Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1, 38, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834, 865 P.2d 633]. The disclosure to an employer of highly personal information contained in psychiatrists' reports is not justified by the employer's expectation to receive a full, detailed psychiatric report when retaining the psychiatrist to evaluate the employee for disability leave, or by the employer's need for a detailed report to formulate a plan for getting the employee back to work as soon as possible [Pettus v. Cole (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 402, 445, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 46] .

In Hill, the California Supreme Court applied the competing interest defense for the first time. The drug testing program required the student athletes to provide urine samples under direct visual observation and to disclose medical information that could have caused embarrassment to individual athletes. The Court held that the athletes' privacy interest in urination was outweighed by the following two competing interests that justified the NCAA's conduct [Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1, 43-44, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834, 865 P.2d 633]:

- Safeguarding the integrity of intercollegiate athletic competition; and
- Protecting the health and safety of student athletes.

The plaintiff may rebut the assertion of a competing interest by showing that there are feasible and effective alternatives to the defendant's conduct that would have a lesser impact on privacy interests [Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1, 40, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834, 865 P.2d 633].

In Loder v. City of Glendale, the California Supreme Court applied the competing interest test to a governmental employer's use of suspicionless drug testing of all applicants and all current employees seeking promotions. The Court concluded that an employer has a substantial interest in conducting urinalysis drug tests administered as part of an otherwise lawful preemployment medical examination. The Court reasoned that because an employer is deprived of a prehiring opportunity to observe an applicant over a period of time under circumstances that would signal drug or alcohol abuse problems, drug testing is a permissible means of minimizing the problems of absenteeism, increased safety concerns, tardiness, reduced productivity, and increased risk of turnover [Loder v. City of Glendale (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 846, 896-898, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 696, 927 P.2d 1200]. However, a majority of the Court in Loder rejected the propriety of drug testing all promotional candidates on the grounds that the defendant's policy was overbroad and that since its creation, the provisions of the defendant's policy had been circumscribed by the United States Supreme Court's decisions in Skinner and Von Raab [see § 429.15] and by the enactment of the Americans with Disabilities Act, 42 U.S.C.S. § 12112 et seq. [Loder v. City of Glendale (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 846, 898-899, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 696, 927 P.2d 1200 (George, C.J.; Mosk,J., and Kennard, J., concurring and dissenting)].

The court of appeal has also applied this balancing test to reject an invasion of privacy claim in a case in which an association that administered police officer employee benefits fired an employee who became engaged to marry an incarcerated felon. Recognizing the employee's fundamental privacy right to marry without interference from her employer, the court nonetheless balanced that right with the association's legitimate concern with protecting the confidentiality of police officer personnel records to which association employees had access. The court concluded that the association's policy, which required the employee to choose between her employment with the association and her marriage to the incarcerated felon, was a rational means of pursuing its interest in preventing the dissemination of confidential information to a convicted criminal [Ortiz v. Los Angeles Police Relief Assn. (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 1288, 1312-1313, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 670].

Private entities that present large public entertainment events necessarily retain primary responsibility for determining what security measures are appropriate to ensure the safety of patrons, subject to judicial review for reasonableness when those security measures substantially infringe on a privacy interest [Sheehan v. San Francisco 49ers, Ltd. (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 992, 1003, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 594, 201 P.3d 472]. In one case, the California Supreme Court reversed the sustaining of defendant's demurrer after plaintiffs had alleged in their complaint that having to submit to full-body pat down searches as a condition for entering the stadium to watch a professional football game infringed their privacy rights. Assuming that plaintiffs had alleged a serious invasion of their privacy rights, the Court noted that the case could not be decided on demurrer as defendant had not yet offered into the record any explanation or reasoned justification for the searches. Thus, further factual development was required before the alleged invasion of plaintiffs' privacy interests could be balanced against the defendant's as-yet-unstated interests [Sheehan v. San Francisco 49ers, Ltd. (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 992, 1000-1003, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 594, 201 P.3d 472]. The Court also stressed that defendant, on remand, would not be required to show that every measure implemented was absolutely necessary, merely that the measures implemented were reasonable under the circumstances [Sheehan v. San Francisco 49ers, Ltd. (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 992, 1002, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 594, 201 P.3d 472].

[9] Compelling Interest Defense

In Hill, the California Supreme Court rejected the blanket use of the compelling interest defense, which requires a defendant to justify an invasion of privacy by proving both a compelling interest and the absence of any alternative means of accomplishing that interest [see, e.g., White v. Davis (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 757, 776, 120 Cal. Rptr. 94, 533 P.2d 222]. The Court analyzed its decision in White v. Davis, as applying only to some aspects of the right of privacy under Cal. Const. art. I, § 1, such as those that implicate obvious government action impacting freedom of expression [Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1]. The Court also suggested that the compelling interest standard is applicable where cases involve an obvious invasion of an interest fundamental to personal autonomy, such as freedom from involuntary fertilization or the freedom to pursue consensual familial relationships [Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1, 34, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834, 865 P.2d 633]. If the privacy right is less central, then the "balancing test" standard applies, and this test is less stringent than the compelling interest standard [see § 429.16[8]].

Hill culminates a trend that makes it clear that "not every act which has some impact on personal privacy invokes the protections of the state's Constitution and requires such justification" [Wilkinson v. Times Mirror Corp. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1034, 1046-1048, 264 Cal. Rptr. 194 ; see also Schmidt v. Superior Court (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 370, 375-391, 256 Cal. Rptr. 750, 769 P.2d 932 ; Alarcon v. Murphy (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 1, 5, 248 Cal. Rptr. 26 (applying test of objectively reasonable expectation of privacy in finding no violation of privacy by city's disclosure of identity of murder suspect arrested by police)].

However, in American Academy of Pediatrics v. Lungren, the California Supreme Court concluded that a statute impinging on the fundamental autonomy privacy right of a minor or an adult must be evaluated under the compelling interest test. The Court made clear that statutory intrusion on an autonomy privacy interest of a fundamental nature may not be justified simply by showing that the statute serves a legitimate competing interest sufficient to justify an impingement on a less central privacy interest. Although a statute's relationship to minors is properly employed in the constitutional calculus in determining whether an asserted state purpose or interest is compelling, because the statute's impact on minors is taken into account in assessing the importance of the state interest ostensibly served by the infringement, it is inappropriate additionally to lower the applicable constitutional standard under which the statute is evaluated simply because the privacy interests at stake are those of minors [American Acad. of Pediatrics v. Lungren (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 307, 341-342, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 210, 940 P.2d 797 (declaring unconstitutional statute requiring pregnant minor to secure either parental consent or judicial authorization before obtaining an abortion)].

[10] Consent Defense

Consent is a viable defense even in cases of serious privacy invasions. Accordingly, the requirement that a health worker perform cervical self-examinations in the presence of other females is a reasonable condition of employment, and does not violate a health worker's right to privacy where the worker's written employment agreement evidences her knowledge of the condition and agreement to be bound by it [Feminist Women's Health Ctr. v. Superior Court (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1234, 1249, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 187] .

[11] Workers' Compensation Exclusive Remedy Doctrine Inapplicable

If the plaintiff is an employee suing his or her employer for invasion of the constitutional right to privacy based on actions taken at work, the employer may assert that the employee's only remedy is a recovery under workers' compensation because the injury arose out of and in the course of employment [see Lab. Code § 3600(a)]. However, the court of appeal has held that the exclusive remedy doctrine of the workers' compensation statute does not necessarily preclude an action against aplaintiff's employer for invasion of the constitutional right to privacy. Acknowledging that the emotional distress suffered from a violation of the right to privacy may be a personal injury sustained in the course of employment, the court held that conduct that constitutes an actionable invasion of privacy--that is, conduct that constitutes an egregious breach of the social norms underlying the privacy right--is by definition conduct that exceeds those risks reasonably encompassed within the employer-employee compensation bargain that underlies workers' compensation law. Therefore, this conduct is not subject to the exclusive remedy doctrine of workers' compensation law [Operating Eng'rs Local 3 v. Johnson (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 180, 187-191, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 552] .

The court also recognized, with dissatisfaction, that the determination of whether the exclusive remedy doctrine applies depends on the merits of the invasion of privacy claim. Therefore, conduct that does not meet the test for an actionable invasion of privacy may be preempted by the exclusive remedy doctrine because lesser "invasions" could be conduct falling within the employer-employee compensation bargain [Operating Eng'rs Local 3 v. Johnson (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 180, 191-192, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 552] .

[12] Application to Particular Activities

[a] Drug Testing

In Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Association, the California Supreme Court applied a "balancing test" standard to hold that the NCAA's drug testing program did not violate the privacy rights of student athletes [see § 429.16[8]]. The Court made clear that the same standard applies in determining under what circumstances using drug testing to maintain a workplace free of substance abuse is permissible. The result depends on the public interest, the employer's special interests, and the employee's reasonable expectations of privacy in a particular employment setting [see Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1, 55, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834, 865 P.2d 633].

The California Supreme Court later considered a facial challenge to a city employee drug testing program for job applicants and existing employees conditionally approved for promotion in Loder v. City of Glendale (1997) 14 Cal.

4th 846, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 696, 927 P.2d 1200] . The Court issued five separate opinions: a lead opinion written by Chief Justice George joined by Justice Werdegar, and four separate concurring and dissenting opinions. Nevertheless, a majority of the Court reaffirmed the Hill test while clarifying that the primary focus of a state constitutional privacy claim in the employee drug testing context is a reasonableness balancing test balancing the drug test's intrusion on the reasonable expectations of the employee against the drug test's promotion of the employer's legitimate interests [Loder v. City of Glendale (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 846, 891-898, 922, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 696, 927 P.2d 1200 (George, C.J.; Chin, J., concurring and dissenting); Kraslawsky v. Upper Deck Co. (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 179, 186-187, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 297 ; see § 429.411[4]].

Drug testing has been upheld in contexts other than the employment context. For example, the court of appeal has upheld a juvenile court order for the drug testing of a ward of the court who had a documented history of drug abuse. The drug testing order in that case was narrowly tailored to require testing only when the staff of the minor's group home believed the minor was under the influence [In re Carmen M. (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 478, 494, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 117] .

[b] Improper Use of Information

In the leading case interpreting the constitutional cause of action for invasion of privacy, Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Association, the California Supreme Court identified informational privacy as one of the core values furthered by the constitutional right of privacy [Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1, 35, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834, 865 P.2d 633 ; see also White v. Davis (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 757, 775, 120 Cal. Rptr. 94, 533 P.2d 222] . Pre-Hill cases resolving informational privacy claims must be reanalyzed to determine whether they are consistent with the elements and standards announced in Hill. The Supreme Court offered no analysis of the continuing vitality of these decisions [Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1, 255, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834, 865 P.2d 633].

However, in Johnson v. Superior Court, the court analyzed the competing interest balancing test articulated in Hill and found that because discovery orders in court proceedings involve state-compelled disclosure, the disclosure is treated as a product of state action, so that whenever the compelled disclosure treads on the constitutional right of privacy, there must be a compelling state interest [Johnson v. Superior Court (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1050, 1070-1071, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 864] . In Johnson, the court found the following three compelling state interests justifying invasion of a sperm donor's right of privacy in his identity to allow the purchasers of his sperm to take his deposition to discover facts relevantto the alleged negligence of the sperm bank in the transmission of kidney disease to their child, born as a result of insemination with his sperm [Johnson v. Superior Court (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1050, 1071, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 864] :

- The state's compelling interest in making certain that parties comply with properly served subpoenas and discovery orders to disclose relevant information to the fullest extent possible;

- The state's interest in seeking the truth in court proceedings; and

- The state's compelling interest in ensuring that those injured by the actionable conduct of others receive full redress of those injuries.

The right of privacy extends to one's confidential financial affairs as well as to the details of one's personal life. This right is not absolute and must be balanced against other considerations. However, the constitutional elevation of privacy to an inalienable right expressly protected by force of constitutional mandate compels a finding of relevancy before confidential financial information may be disclosed [Valley Bank of Nev. v. Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 652, 656, 125 Cal. Rptr. 553, 542 P. 2d 977 ; Gordon v. Superior Court (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 1546, 1557, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 53] . Thus, for example, a lawyer's clients have a right of privacy in their financial affairs requiring that records of those affairs not be disclosed to a state agency successfully obtaining a warrant to seize the records from the lawyer's office without notice to the lawyer and a showing of relevance and good cause to invade the privacy of uninvolved clients [Gordon v. Superior Court (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 1546, 1557-1558, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 53] .

Informational privacy is implicated by the unauthorized disclosure of school records to third parties and is a pre-Hill example of prohibited conduct involving the improper use of information properly obtained for a specific purpose [Porten v. University of S.F. (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 825, 830, 832, 134 Cal. Rptr. 839] . Release of arrest records or dissemination of information about arrests was found before Hill to implicate the right to privacy of the arrestees [Denari v. Superior Court (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1488, 1498, 264 Cal. Rptr. 261 (upholding denial of discovery request by plaintiff in civil action arising from alleged injuries incurred while incarcerated in county jail, requesting identifying information about other arrestees incarcerated at the same time, to establish percipient witnesses)]. In another case decided before Hill, an appellate court held that a law enforcement agency was prohibited from forwarding unexpunged arrest records of job applicants to public employers [Central Valley Chapter 7th Step Found. v. Younger (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 212, 237-238, 157 Cal. Rptr. 117 (under Lab. Code § 432.7, employer may obtain record of convictions of employee)].

[c] Family, Marriage, Sexual Relations

In the leading case interpreting the consitutional cause of action for invasion of privacy, Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Association, the California Supreme Court identified autonomy privacy as one of the core values furthered by the constitutional right of privacy [Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1, 35, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834, 865 P.2d 633 . Pre-Hill cases resolving autonomy privacy claims must be reanalyzed to determine whether they are consistent with the elements and standards announced in Hill. The Supreme Court offered no analysis of the continuing vitality of these decisions [Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1, 55, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834, 865 P.2d 633].

Pre-Hill cases interpret autonomy privacy as extending to all matters relating to family, marriage, and sexual relations [Barbara A. v. John G. (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 369, 380, 193 Cal. Rptr. 422] . Post-Hill cases make clear that the interest in autonomy privacy protected by the California constitutional privacy clause includes a pregnant woman's right to choose whether to continue her pregnancy [American Acad. of Pediatrics v. Lungren (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 307, 332-333, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 210, 940 P.2d 797] . In the area of sexual matters, the right is not limited to the marital relationship [Morales v. Superior Court (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 283, 290, 160 Cal. Rptr. 194 (pre-Hill case)]. Thus for example, in a post-Hill case, the California Supreme Court held that a minor who is pregnant has a fundamental autonomy privacy interest under the California Constitution in making the decision whether to continue or terminate her own pregnancy [American Acad. of Pediatrics v. Lungren (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 307, 337, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 210, 940 P.2d 797] . In another post-Hill case, the court held that under California's privacy protection embracing sexual relations, the mere fact that a plaintiff initiates an action seeking damages arising out of conduct of a sexual nature, does not ipse facto provide good cause for discovery of the plaintiff's sexual conduct other than incidents on which the legal action is based, and that the party seeking the information must show that the information is directly relevant to overcome the constitutional right of privacy by demonstrating a nexus between the incidents as to which the discovery is sought and the plaintiff's claimed injuries [Barrenda L. v. Superior Court (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 794, 800-803, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 727 (discovery denied if defendants unable to demonstrate direct relevance of information sought)].

In cases decided before Hill, the constitutional right of privacy has also functioned as a bar to certain tort actions arising from misrepresentations leading to an act of consensual sexual intercourse. In a case involving misrepresentation of birth-control practices, one court refused to attach tort liability to the results of consensual sexual intercourse. The court stated that to do so would encourage unwarranted governmental intrusion into matters affecting the individual's right to privacy, and rejected any role in defining standards of conduct in the highly intimate and private relationship [Stephen K. v. Roni L. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 640, 643, 645, 164 Cal. Rptr. 618 ; see also Perry v. Atkinson (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 14, 16-17, 240 Cal. Rptr. 402 (no liability for fraudulently inducing woman to have abortion)]. However, other courts have allowed actions arising from consensual sexual intercourse to proceed on traditional tort theories despite the right of privacy [see Kathleen K. v. Robert B. (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 992, 997, 198 Cal. Rptr. 273 (transmission of disease); Barbara A. v. John G. (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 369, 193 Cal. Rptr. 422 (misrepresentation of impotency)]. The scope of the right of privacy as a bar to a tort action involving consensual sexual intercourse is currently unresolved.

In In re Marriage Cases, the California Supreme Court noted that the "constitutional right to marry" constitutes one aspect of the right of privacy that is embodied in article I, section 1 of the California Constitution, as well as a component of the liberty protected by the due process clause of article I, section 7 of the California Constitution [In re Marriage Cases (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 757, 809-810, 818-819, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 683, 183 P.3d 384] . This constitutional right to marry encompasses the core set of basic substantive legal rights and attributes that are traditionally associated with marriage, including the opportunity of an individual to establish, with the person with whom the individual has chosen to share his or her life, an officially recognized and protected family possessing mutual rights and responsibilities and entitled to the same respect and dignity accorded a union that is traditionally designated as marriage [In re Marriage Cases (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 757, 809-810, 818-819, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 683, 183 P.3d 384] . The Court concluded that same-sex couples have a constitutional right to "choose one's life partner and enter with that person into a committed, officially recognized, and protected family relationship that enjoys all of the constitutionally based incidents of marriage" [In re Marriage Cases (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 757, 829, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 683, 183 P.3d 384] .

One year later, the Court held in Strauss v. Horton that Proposition 8, passed by the voters in November 2008, which added a new section [Cal. Const. art. I, § 7.5] to article I of the California Constitution, providing that "[o]nly marriage between a man and a woman is valid or recognized in California," did not entirely repeal or abrogate a same-sex couple's state constitutional rights of privacy, due process, and equal protection that the Court had previously recognized in In re Marriage Cases. Instead, the Court concluded that Proposition 8 carves out a narrow and limited exception to these state constitutional rights by reserving the official designation of the term "marriage" for the union of opposite-sex couples as a matter of state constitutional law, while leaving undisturbed all of the other extremely significant substantive aspects of a same-sex couple's state constitutional rights to establish an officially recognized and protected family relationship with the person of one's choice and to raise children within that family [Strauss v. Horton (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 364, 387-388, 390-391, 408-409, 411-412, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591, 207 P.3d 48]. Section 7.5 of article I that was added by Proposition 8 does not affect the continued validity of the provisions of the California Constitution that protect the familial rights of same-sex couples, except to the extent that those rights include access to the designation of "marriage" [Strauss v. Horton (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 364, 409, 411-412, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591, 207 P.3d 48] .

[d] Breast Feeding

Civ. Code § 43.3 expressly permits a mother to breast feed a child in any location, public or private, where the mother and child are otherwise authorized to be present, except in the private home or residence of another.

[e] Medical Treatment

Every adult of sound mind has a right to determine what will be done with his or her body [Thor v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 725, 734-738, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 357, 855 P.2d 375 ; Bouvia v. Superior Court (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 1127, 1139, 225 Cal. Rptr. 297] . Thus, a competent, informed adult, in the exercise of self- determination and control of bodily integrity, has the right to direct the withholding or withdrawal of life-sustaining medical treatment, even at the risk of death [Thor v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 725, 744, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 357, 855 P.2d 375 ; see also Bouvia v. Superior Court (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 1127, 1137, 225 Cal. Rptr. 297] . The right does not depend upon the nature of the treatment refused or withdrawn, nor is it reserved to those suffering from terminal conditions. Once a patient has declined further medical intervention, the physician's duty to provide such care ceases [Thor v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 725, 744, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 357, 855 P.2d 375] . The right to refuse medical treatment is basic and fundamental and is a part of the right of privacy protected by both the state (Cal. Const. art. I, § 1) and federal Constitutions [Bouvia v. Superior Court (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 1127, 1137, 225 Cal. Rptr. 297 ; Bartling v. Superior Court (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 186, 195, 209 Cal. Rptr. 220] .

The right to forgo medical treatment is not subject to approval by anyone, including a treating physician [Thor v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 725, 742-743, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 357, 855 P.2d 375 ; Bouvia v. Superior Court (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 1127, 1137, 225 Cal. Rptr. 297] . The patient's right to refuse medical treatment regardless of the doctor's judgment does not undermine the state's interest in medical ethics [Thor v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 725, 742-743, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 357, 855 P.2d 375] . Moreover, the right to forego medical treatment is not qualified by the state's interest in the prevention of suicide [Thor v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 725, 741-742, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 357, 855 P.2d 375 ; Bouvia v. Superior Court (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 1127, 1144-1145, 225 Cal. Rptr. 297] . In reaching this conclusion, the California Supreme Court distinguished between an individual suffering from a serious life-threatening disease or debilitating injury who rejects medical intervention that only prolongs but never cures the affliction and an individual who deliberately sets in motion a course of events aimed at his or her own demise who attempts to enlist the assistance of others [Thor v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 725, 742, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 357, 855 P.2d 375] .

A person alleging a violation of a civil right, such as the right to decide to refuse medical treatment, may bring an action under 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983. 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 prohibits conduct under color of state law that deprives an individual of a right secured by the Constitution or laws of the United States. However, thus far, the cases alleging a cause of action under 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 for violation of a patient's right to refuse medical treatment have not been successful. For example, one court found that a private hospital was not acting under color of state law in refusing to remove artificial life-sustaining equipment, because there was no showing of a sufficiently close nexus between the state and the hospital's action, particularly when the state Department of Health, which was consulted by the hospital, declined to offer any opinion on the permissibility of removing the equipment [McMahon v. Lopez (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 829, 835-837, 245 Cal. Rptr. 172] . Another case, involving a public hospital, held that there was no cause of action because there was no showing that the physicians or hospital were motivated by a government policy or custom which sought to deprive the patient of her civil rights. The court found there were differing medical views concerning the appropriate course of treatment for a patient suffering from chronic pain [Bouvia v. County of Los Angeles (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1075, 1086-1089, 241 Cal. Rptr. 239] . For discussion of 42 U.S.C.S. § 1983 actions, see Ch. 113, Civil Rights: The Post-Civil War Civil Rights Statutes .

For discussion of the physician's immunity from civil and criminal liability for acting on the patient's right to refuse treatment, see Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice .

[f] Housing

The right to live with whomever one chooses is guaranteed by the state constitutional right of privacy. A city ordinance that requires that persons living in an area zoned for single-family houses be related by blood, marriage, or legal adoption violates the right of privacy [City of Santa Barbara v. Adamson (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 123, 130-134, 164 Cal. Rptr. 539, 610 P.2d 436] , as does a zoning ordinance restricting residents of second units to the property owner, dependents of the owner, or a caregiver for either [Coalition Advocating Legal Hous. Options v. City of Santa Monica (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 451, 458-459, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 802] .

[g] Employment

The right of privacy protects the rights of employees and job applicants from intrusions by the employer. For example, an employer may be prohibited from posting on an open bulletin board the reasons for an employee's dismissal [Payton v. City of Santa Clara (1982) 132 Cal. App. 3d 152, 154, 183 Cal. Rptr. 17] . Similarly, an employer may not request and then misuse private information obtained in a report of a psychiatric examination of anemployee to force the employee to enroll in an inpatient alcohol rehabilitation program, and thereafter terminate his employment because he refused to waive those rights [Pettus v. Cole (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 402, 457, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 46] .

In Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Association, the California Supreme Court applied a balancing test to determine whether an athletic association violated the privacy rights of student athletes. The Court indicated that the same standard will apply to determine the scope of privacy protection in an employment context [see Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1, 55, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834, 865 P.2d 633 ; Hernandez v. Hillsides, Inc. (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 272, 288, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 274, 211 P.3d 1063 ;see also TBG Ins. Servs. Corp. v. Superior Court (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 443, 445, 453, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155 (given employee's consent to employer's monitoring of employer-provided work and home computers, employee had no reasonable expectation of privacy when he used home computer for personal matters); Semore v. Pool (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1087, 266 Cal. Rptr. 280 (pupillary eye test is intrusive); Wilkinson v. Times Mirror Corp. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1034, 264 Cal. Rptr. 194 (drug testing of job applicants is constitutional)].

The balancing test established in Hill was applied to the employment context in Loder v. City of Glendale, which considered the constitutionality of pre-employment drug testing of all applicants by the City of Glendale. The drug testing at issue was performed as a component of a physical examination required of all new applicants who had received a conditional offer of employment and of employees seeking promotions [Loder v. City of Glendale (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 846, 853-856, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 696, 927 P.2d 1200 (George, C.J.)] .

The court first rejected the statutory challenges to the testing program, finding that an employer's requirement that an applicant or employee take an otherwise lawful drug test does not trigger the "discrimination" provisions of Civil Code § 56.20 and does not run afoul of the Americans with Disabilities Act, 42 U.S.C.S. § 12101 et seq. [Loder v. City of Glendale (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 846, 859-865, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 696, 927 P.2d 1200 (George, C.J.)] .

However, the court held that suspicionless drug testing of current employees who apply for and are offered promotions, without regard to the nature of the position sought, violates the prohibition against unreasonable searches under the Fourth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution [Loder v. City of Glendale (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 846, 878-881, 900, 918 n.1, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 696, 927 P.2d 1200 (George, C.J.; Mosk, J., and Kennard, J., concurring and dissenting); see also Treasury Employees v. Von Raab (1989) 489 U.S. 656, 677, 109 S. Ct. 1384, 103 L. Ed. 2d 685] . The Court concluded that the reasonableness of testing current employees turns on the nature and duties of the position in question. The Court left open the possibility that an employer may constitutionally require a current employee to submit to a drug test as a condition to employment when testing is justified by the nature of the particular position to which promotion is sought [Loder v. City of Glendale (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 846, 880-881, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 696, 927 P.2d 1200 (George, C.J.)] .

The Court then considered the policy of drug testing new applicants. First, the court found that the testing easily overcame the threshold requirements set forth in Hill, reasoning that although the testing clearly intrudes on both autonomy privacy interests and informational privacy interests which are protected by the state Constitution, the actual intrusion was lessened by the fact that the drug testing was part of a pre-employment medical examination which a job applicant "reasonably must anticipate" [Loder v. City of Glendale (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 846, 889-897, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 696, 927 P.2d 1200 (George, C.J.)] . The court then stated that this intrusion was constitutionally permissible when balanced against the employer's interest in avoiding the financial burdens and morale problems caused by an employee's abuse of drugs or alcohol and the attendant absenteeism and tardiness, decreased productivity, increased turnover and greater safety issues [Loder v. City of Glendale (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 846, 897, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 696, 927 P.2d 1200 (George, C.J.)] .

Applying these principles developed in Loder, the court of appeal has held that a job applicant who requests and receives a delay in submitting to a preemployment drug test until after the start of employment may not evade the employer's testing requirement on the ground that the applicant became immune from testing by becoming an "employee." Under such circumstances, and for purposes of suspicionless drug testing, the applicant must submit to testing after the start of employment [Pilkington Barnes Hind v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 28, 34, 77

Cal. Rptr. 2d 596] .

Even though an employer maintains a constitutionally valid suspicion-based testing program for existing employees, the employer must still have reasonable cause for believing an employee is under the influence of drugs before it may subject the employee to a drug test. Courts evaluate the constitutionality of a drug test under the California Constitution by balancing the employee's reasonable expectation of privacy against the employer's legitimate interests in imposing the test. If a suspicion-based drug test is not triggered by a reasonable belief the employee is intoxicated, the employee may have a stronger reason to expect to maintain his or her privacy and the employer may have less need to demand the test [Kraslawsky v. Upper Deck Co. (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 179, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 297 (summary dismissal of former employee's privacy action improperly granted; although employer made showing employee acted in intoxicated manner, employee submitted contradicting evidence, including showing that employer may have created pretext for terminating her after she refused to work overtime without pay)].

For further discussion of the right of privacy under the California Constitution as it relates to drug and alcohol testing of employees and jobapplicants, see Wilcox, California Employment Law, Ch. 50 (Matthew Bender).

A public employer violated the privacy rights of state or local government employees who were not public safety officers under Gov. Code § 3301 by requiring them to submit to polygraph examinations as a condition of public employment. Because polygraph examinations inherently intrude on the constitutionally protected zone of individual privacy, state and local public employers may not compel their employees to undergo polygraph examinations as a condition of public employment, absent a showing of compelling government interest justifying this invasion of the employees' privacy [Long Beach City Employees Ass'n v. City of Long Beach (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 937, 948, 956, 227 Cal. Rptr. 90, 719 P.2d 660] . The use of the "compelling interest" standard in this setting may no longer be required now that the California Supreme Court has limited its use to certain obvious invasions of vital privacy interests [Hill v. National Collegiate Athletic Assn. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1, 34, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834, 865 P.2d 633 ; see § 429.16[9]].

Private and public employees who are public safety officers as defined in Gov. Code § 3301 are exempt from compulsory submission to lie detector tests as a condition of employment [Gov. Code § 3307(a); see Gov. Code § 3301 (defining public safety officer); Lab. Code § 432.2 (prohibiting non-government employers from requiring applicants or employees to take polygraph, lie detector, or similar tests as condition of employment); Long Beach City Employees Ass'n v. City of Long Beach (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 937, 941, 948-956, 227 Cal. Rptr. 90, 719 P.2d 660 (discussing equal protection implications of distinction between classes of public employees)]. For purposes of Gov. Code § 3307, lie detector means a polygraph, deceptograph, voice stress analyzer, psychological stress evaluator, or any other similar mechanical or electrical device used, or the results of which are used, to render a diagnostic opinion regarding an individual's honesty or dishonesty [Gov. Code § 3307(b)].

Likewise, employers are statutorily prohibited from making audio or video tape recordings of employees in restrooms, locker rooms, or other rooms designated by employers for changing clothes [Lab. Code § 435(a)]. This prohibition extends to all private and public employers except the federal government [Lab. Code § 435(b)]. A violation of this statute constitutes an infraction. [Lab. Code § 435(c)].

In 2009 the California Supreme Court has found that employees have a reasonable expectation under widely held social norms that their employer would not install video equipment capable of monitoring and recording their activities--personal and work-related--behind closed doors without their knowledge or consent. On the other hand, there was no triable issue as to whether that intrusion was highly offensive and sufficiently serious to constitute a privacy violation. Any actual surveillance was drastically limited in nature and scope (no audio, not operated during business hours), exempting plaintiffs from its reach, and defendants were motivated by strong countervailing concerns, which included providing a wholesome environment for the abused children in its care and avoiding legal liability [Hernandez v. Hillsides, Inc. (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 272, 286-300, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 274, 211 P.3d 1063]. However, the court did add the following language: "We appreciate plaintiffs' dismay over the discovery of video equipment--small, blinking, and hot to the touch--that their employer had hidden among their personal effects in an office that was reasonably secluded from public access and view. Nothing we say here is meant to encourage such surveillance measures, particularly in the absence of adequate notice to persons within camera range that their actions may be viewed and taped" [Hernandez v. Hillsides, Inc. (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 272, 300, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 274, 211 P.3d 1063].

[h] Association

The constitutional right of privacy also protects associational privacy. Private group affiliations and activities are presumptively immune from disclosure [Britt v. Superior Court of San Diego County (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 844, 852-856, 864-865, 143 Cal. Rptr. 695, 574 P.2d 766 . If, however, the need for disclosure outweighs the importance of the associational privacy rights, disclosure may be allowed with the privacy rights protected as fully as possible. For example, in a city's action against a private membership club, the city's need for a list of rejected applicants to show a pattern of racial discrimination outweighed the privacy interests of the rejected applicants, subject to protective measures to screen out disclosure of applicants who clearly were not excluded because of race [Olympic Club v. Superior Court (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 358, 364-365, 282 Cal. Rptr. 1] . For discussion of associations and associational rights generally, see Ch. 61, Associations and Clubs .

[13] Activities Not Covered

Certain activities and information are not protected by the constitutional right of privacy:

- The requirement of a photograph on a driver's license [Stackler v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 240, 247-248, 164 Cal. Rptr. 203] .

- The right of access to drugs of unproved efficacy [People v. Privitera (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 697, 709-710, 153 Cal. Rptr. 431, 591 P.2d 919 (laetrile)].

- The right to use certain drugs in one's own home [National Org. for Reform of Marijuana Laws v. Gain (1979) 100 Cal. App. 3d 586, 593, 161 Cal. Rptr. 181 (marijuana); People v. Davis (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 250, 260, 154 Cal. Rptr. 817 (cocaine)].

- The limited retention and dissemination of arrest records by the state for law-enforcement purposes [Loder v. Municipal Court (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 859, 877, 132 Cal. Rptr. 464, 553 P.2d 624] .

- The release of records of licenses to carry concealed weapons and applications for renewal of the licenses, because the information is voluntarily provided to officials and sworn to be true [CBS, Inc. v. Block (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 646, 656, 230 Cal. Rptr. 362, 725 P.2d 470] .

- Restriction of residence in a mobilehome park to older persons [Schmidt v. Superior Court (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 370, 388-389, 256 Cal. Rptr. 750, 769 P.2d 932 (interpreting Civ. Code § 798.76 permitting enforcement of age-based residency requirement in mobilehome parks limiting residency to older persons); see Ch. 369, Mobilehomes and Mobilehome Parks].

- The requirement that a person wear a helmet when riding a motorcycle on a public highway [Buhl v. Hannigan (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 1612, 1625-1626, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 740] .

[14] Privacy Right Inapplicable to Corporations

The right to privacy in Cal. Const. art. I, § 1, applies only to natural persons and does not apply to corporations. However, a corporation may still retain a general right to privacy under a combination of the Fourth, Fifth, and Fourteenth Amendments to the United States Constitution [Roberts v. Gulf Oil Corp. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 770, 791, 794, 195 Cal. Rptr. 393 .

[15] Raising Right of Privacy: Cause of Action

Cal. Const. art. I, § 1, is self-executing; that is, it creates a legal and enforceable right of privacy [White v. Davis (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 757, 775, 120 Cal. Rptr. 94, 533 P.2d 222 ; Jeffrey H. v. Imai, Tadlock & Keeney (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 345, 353, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 916 , overruled, Jacob B. v. County of Shasta, 40 Cal. 4th 948].

One court of appeal has opined in dictum that the California Supreme Court has not yet considered whether violation of the state constitution's privacy clause permits an action for damages [Richardson-Tunnell v. Schools Ins. Program for Employees (SIPE) (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 1056, 1066, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 176 , citing Katzberg v. Regents of University of California (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 300, 313 n.13, 315 n.16, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 482, 58 P.3d 339]. However, other courts of appeal have held that a plaintiff may bring a cause of action for money damages for a violation of his or her right of privacy [Payton v. City of Santa Clara (1982) 132 Cal. App. 3d 152, 153, 183 Cal. Rptr. 17 ; Porten v. University of S.F. (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 825, 827, 832, 134 Cal. Rptr. 839] . A plaintiff may apply for a declaratory judgment determining whether or not a violation of the right of privacy has occurred [Central Valley Chapter 7th Step Found. v. Younger (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 212, 222, 232-234, 240, 157 Cal. Rptr. 117] . A plaintiff may also seek an injunction to halt a claimed violation of privacy [White v. Davis (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 757, 762, 776, 120 Cal. Rptr. 94, 533 P.2d 222] . A class action may be brought on behalf of all persons whose right of privacy is being violated [Hooper v. Deukmejian (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 987, 993, 1015, 176 Cal. Rptr. 569 ; Central Valley Chapter 7th Step Found. v. Younger (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 212, 218, 227-230, 237, 157 Cal. Rptr. 117] .

The state constitutional right to privacy does not limit the scope of preexisting statutory immunity. Thus, for example, the immunity provided by Gov. Code § 821.6 may apply to preclude an action under Cal. Const. art. I, § 1 for violation of the right to privacy [Richardson-Tunnell v. Schools Ins. Program for Employees (SIPE) (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 1056, 1066, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 176].

[16] Challenging Requirement to Disclose Information

The right of privacy may be used as a ground to oppose a request or demand for protected information, or to challenge an adverse consequence of not providing protected information. For example, a person may bring a petition for writ of mandate to set aside an adverse administrative decision, based on his or her refusal to provide information protected by the privacy right. In one such case, a woman denied unemployment benefits obtained a favorable judgment holding that the Employment Development Department could inquire into the potential effect of her pregnancy on her health, but that her right to privacy precluded inquiry beyond the submission of her doctor's certificate of good health [Gunn v. Employment Dev. Dep't (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 658, 664-665, 156 Cal. Rptr. 584] .

[17] Resisting Disclosure in Litigation: Civil Discovery

Information not protected by statutory privilege may nonetheless be shielded from discovery, despite its relevance, when disclosure would invade an individual's right of privacy [Hooser v. Superior Court (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 997, 1003, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 341] . Thus, disclosure of information requested during the discovery stage of civil litigation may be resisted on the basis of the right to privacy under Cal. Const. art. I, § 1 [see Valley Bank of Nev. v. Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 652, 656-658, 125 Cal. Rptr. 553, 542 P.2d 977 ; see generally Ch. 191, Discovery: Privileges and Other Limitations, § 191.120].

However, the right of privacy does not provide absolute protection against disclosure of personal information. In determining whether disclosure is required, the court must balance the right of a civil litigant to discover relevant facts against the right of third parties to maintain reasonable privacy regarding their sensitive personal affairs [Hooser v.

Superior Court (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 997, 1004, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 341] . The court must consider each of the following [Valley Bank of Nevada v. Superior Court of San Joaquin County (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 652, 657-658, 125 Cal. Rptr. 553, 542 P.2d 977 ; Hooser v. Superior Court (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 997, 1004, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 341] :

- The purpose of the information sought;
- The effect disclosure will have on the affected persons and parties;
- The nature of the objections urged by the party resisting disclosure; and
- Availability of alternative, less-intrusive means for obtaining the requested information.

The more sensitive the nature of the personal information sought to be discovered, the more substantial the showing of the need for discovery required before the court will permit disclosure [Hooser v. Superior Court (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 997, 1004, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 341] .

[18] Criminal Cases

In criminal and disciplinary investigations, the state's legitimate interest in obtaining full and accurate information may take precedence over an individual's right of privacy [Reynaud v. Superior Court (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 1, 9, 187 Cal. Rptr. 660 ; McKirdy v. Superior Court (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 12, 21-22, 188 Cal. Rptr. 143] . For example, in a criminal action against a doctor for false Medi-Cal claims, protection of the patients' right of privacy did not require a prior noticed hearing before the state could obtain the relevant medical records [Reynaud v. Superior Court (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 1, 9, 187 Cal. Rptr. 660] .

However, a crime victim was held to have stated a cause of action for invasion of her constitutional right to privacy against a criminal defense attorney who, without authorization, read and disseminated the victim's confidential mental health records. Further, the litigation privilege did not shield the defense attorney from liability for reading and disseminating the victim's private mental health records for the purpose of gathering evidence to be used in the course of a criminal proceeding [Susan S. v. Israels(1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 1290, 1299, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 42 (attorney acquired information from mental health treatment facility pursuant to subpoena duces tecum for production of plaintiff's mental health records; facilitymistakenly sent records directly to attorney, instead of to trial court)]. The court of appeal held that the plaintiff had a legally protected privacy interest in her mental health records, and had a reasonable expectation of privacy. Under the circumstances, the defendant's entitlement to inspect the plaintiff's records required a showing of good cause for their discovery, as well as a balancing of the defendant's Sixth Amendment right of cross-examination against the plaintiff's right to privacy in her medical records, neither of which could be established. Finally, the court determined that a stranger's unauthorized reading and dissemination of the plaintiff's mental health records was a serious invasion of her privacy. The court rejected both of the defendant's arguments: (1) that the criminal defense attorney's mere reading of the plaintiff's medical records could not support her claim of serious invasion, and (2) that there was no serious invasion because when a hearing eventually was held in the underlying criminal proceeding, the trial court permitted the defense psychiatrist to testify based on what he read in the plaintiff's records. The court concluded that the plaintiff's complaint adequately alleged the serious invasion element, in that it alleged that the criminal defense attorney read and disseminated her mental health records knowing the information contained in them could be highly sensitive and embarrassing to her, that she in fact was intimidated, embarrassed and humiliated, suffered severe emotional distress, and that her mental condition was exacerbated as a result [Susan S. v. Israels (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 1290, 1299, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 42] .

[19] Applicability of Litigation Privilege

The litigation privilege of Civ. Code § 47(b), which generally protects from tort liability a publication made in connection with a judicial proceeding, protects against a cause of action based on California's constitutional right to privacy [Jacob B. v. County of Shasta (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 948, 960-962, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 477, 154 P.3d 1003 ; for discussion of the litigation privilege generally, see § 429.47, below, and see Ch. 340, Libel and Slander].

[20] Applicability of Government Tort Claims Act

Notwithstanding that the constitutional right to privacy was designed to protect against some forms of governmental intrusion, this right to privacy does not limit the scope of statutory immunities that existed when the right to privacy was added in 1972. For example, Gov. Code § 821.6, which is part of the California Government Tort Claims Act, immunizes a governmental employee for injury caused by instituting or prosecuting any judicial or administrative proceeding within the scope of his or her employment, regardless of malice or lack of probable cause [Gov. Code § 821.6]. Such immunity extends to investigatory activities and may be used to defeat a claim for violation of the constitutional right to privacy [Richardson-Tunnell v. Schools Ins. Program for Employees (SIPE) (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 1056, 1062, 1066, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 176 (no governmental liability for surreptitiously videotaping employee on wedding and honeymoon when taping was part of investigation into possible workers' compensation fraud)].

[20] Applicability of Government Tort Claims Act

Notwithstanding that the constitutional right to privacy was designed to protect against some forms of governmental intrusion, this right to privacy does not limit the scope of statutory immunities that existed when the right to privacy was added in 1972. For example, Government Code Section 821.6, which is part of the California Government Tort Claims Act, immunizes a governmental employee for injury caused by instituting or prosecuting any judicial or administrative proceeding within the scope of his or her employment, regardless of malice or lack of probable cause [Gov. Code § 821.6]. Such immunity extends to investigatory activities and may be used to defeat a claim for violation of the constitutional right to privacy [Richardson-Tunnell v. Schools Ins. Program for Employees (SIPE) (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 1056, 1062, 1066, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 176 (no governmental liability for surreptitiously videotaping employee on wedding and honeymoon when taping was part of investigation into possible workers' compensation fraud)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 429 PRIVACY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

37-429 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 429.17-429.29

[Reserved]

§§ 429.17[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 429 PRIVACY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Invasion Of Privacy

37-429 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 429.30

§ 429.30 Governing Law

The right of privacy is generally governed by case law. However, an invasion of the right to privacy by the appropriation of a person's name, voice, signature, photograph, or likeness is governed in part by Civ. Code § 3344, which authorizes a cause of action for the commercial appropriation of these personal attributes [see § 429.36[1]]. Appropriation of the name, voice, signature, photograph, or likeness of a deceased personality is governed by Civ. Code § 3344.1 [see § 429.36[11]]. The first case in California to recognize the right of privacy was Melvin v. Reid (1931) 112 Cal. App. 285, 297 P. 91 . The California Supreme Court followed suit in Gill v. Curtis Publishing Co. (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 273, 239 P.2d 630 .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 429 PRIVACY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Invasion Of Privacy

37-429 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 429.31

§ 429.31 Invasion of Right to Privacy

The right of privacy encompasses four distinct types of invasions of four different kinds of interests. The following torts represent these four intrusions:

- Public disclosure of embarrassing private facts;
- Publicity that places a person in a false light in the public eye;
- Physical intrusion on a person's solitude or seclusion, or into a person's private affairs; and
- Appropriation of a person's name or likeness, for defendant's advantage.

Although these four torts are diverse, they are bound together by the common element of intrusion on a person's "right to be let alone," which is the essence of the right of privacy [Lugosi v. Universal Pictures (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 813, 819].

The following discussion lists the elements of each of these torts under corresponding headings. Following that is a discussion of the elements and principles that are common to all of the torts comprising the right of privacy.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 429 PRIVACY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Invasion Of Privacy

37-429 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 429.32

§ 429.32 Public Disclosure of Private Facts

The first tort actionable under the right of privacy is the public disclosure of embarrassing private facts about a person [Lugosi v. Universal Pictures (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 813, 819]. This tort is generally deemed to consist of the following four elements [see Shulman v. Group W Prods., Inc. (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 200, 214, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 955 P.2d 469 ; Forsher v. Bugliosi (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 792, 808-809, 163 Cal. Rptr. 628, 608 P.2d 716 ; Times-Mirror Co. v. Superior Court (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 1420, 1426-1427, 244 Cal. Rptr. 556] :

- A public disclosure [see § 429.38];
- Of private facts [see § 429.37];
- That would be offensive and objectionable to a reasonable person [see § 429.39]; and
- That is not of legitimate public concern.

The terms "legitimate public concern" and "newsworthiness" are often used interchangeably by courts. [See, e.g., Shulman v. Group W Prods., Inc. (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 200, 215, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 955 P.2d 469 ; Diaz v. Oakland Tribune, Inc. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 118, 126, 188 Cal. Rptr. 762] . For discussion of newsworthiness, see § 429.40. Lack of newsworthiness is an element of the private facts tort, making newsworthiness a complete bar to common law liability [Shulman v. Group W Prods., Inc. (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 200, 215, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 955 P.2d 469] . Although lack of newsworthiness is an element of the private facts tort, newsworthiness is at the same time a constitutional defense to, or privilege against, liability for publication of truthful information [Shulman v. Group W Prods., Inc. (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 200, 216, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 955 P.2d 469] .

As the right of privacy is a personal right, in cases in which the disclosure involves the details of the life of a person who is deceased, the right of privacy protected by the cause of action for public disclosure of private facts dies along with that person [see, e.g., James v. Screen Gems, Inc. (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 650, 653-654, 344 P.2d 799 (movie about deceased husband); Hendrickson v. California Newspapers, Inc. (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 59, 62, 121 Cal. Rptr.

429 (obituary revealing criminal past)]. However, the relatives of a decedent may be able to state a cause of action based on revelations about a decedent family member when defendant's conduct invades the privacy of those surviving relatives. In one case, for example, the court of appeal held that the parents and siblings of an 18-year-old girl who died when she was decapitated in an automobile accident had stated a cause of action against California Highway Patrol officers who e-mailed nine gruesome photographs of the decedent taken at the accident scene to the officers' friends and family members as a Halloween prank. This initial dissemination by the officers, which served no official investigative or public interest purpose but was done from sheer morbidity or gossip, started a chain reaction that resulted in thousands of Internet sites picking up the images and some plaintiffs receiving personal e-mails from strangers taunting them with the gruesome photographs. The court concluded that these facts supported a privacy cause of action by the family members, who had their own privacy rights in the death images of their family member [Catsouras v. Department of California Highway Patrol (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 856, 870-874, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 352] .

The provisions of Civ. Code § 48a, relating to the demand for retraction requirement in actions against media defendants, do not apply to the public disclosure of private facts tort, although they do apply to the false light publicity tort [Kapellas v. Kofman (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 20, 35, 35 n. 17, 81 Cal. Rptr. 360, 459 P.2d 912 (disapproving any language in Werner v. Times-Mirror Co. (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 111, 14 Cal. Rptr. 208 , that Civ. Code § 48a applies to all privacy actions); for a discussion of Civ. Code § 48a, see § 429.471[5]].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 429 PRIVACY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Invasion Of Privacy

37-429 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 429.33

§ 429.33 Publicity Placing Person in False Light

[1] Elements

The second tort included within the right of privacy concerns publicity which places a person in a false light in the public eye [see Lugosi v. Universal Pictures (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 813, 819, 160 Cal. Rptr. 323, 603 P.2d 425] . This tort is comprised of the following elements:

- Publicity [Werner v. Times-Mirror Co. (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 111, 119-121, 14 Cal. Rptr. 208 ; see § 429.38];

- That places a person in a false light in the public eye [Werner v. Times-Mirror Co. (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 111, 119-121, 14 Cal. Rptr. 208 ; see §§ 429.33[2], 429.37]; and

- That would be objectionable to a reasonable person [Gill v. Curtis Publishing Co. (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 273, 280, 239 P.2d 630 ; see § 429.39];

In addition, plaintiff must meet the requirements of the First Amendment [see § 429.40[17]].

The plaintiff cannot recover more than special damages unless a retraction was demanded [see Briscoe v. Reader's Digest Ass'n, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 529, 543, 93 Cal. Rptr. 866, 483 P.2d 34 , overruled on other grounds, Gates v. Discovery Communications, Inc. (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 679, 696-697, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663, 101 P.3d 552 & n.9, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663, 101 P.3d 552 ; see generally § 429.471[5]].

[2] False Light Defined

The element of a false light in the public eye means a false but not necessarily defamatory position in the public's view [see O'Hilderbrandt v. Columbia Broad. Sys., Inc. (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 323, 331, 114 Cal. Rptr. 826 ; Werner v. Times-Mirror Co. (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 111, 119, 14 Cal. Rptr. 208] . The mere fact that there are minor errors in an otherwise accurate disclosure does not amount to a false light invasion of privacy [see Carlisle v. Fawcett Publ'ns, Inc.

(1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 733, 745, 748, 20 Cal. Rptr. 405] .

Examples of the false light element are:

- An article falsely imputing statements to the plaintiff, describing the plaintiff's appearance when she was not present, and misrepresentingthe condition of the plaintiff's home [Cantrell v. Forest City Publ'g Co. (1974) 419 U.S. 245, 248, 253, 95 S. Ct. 465, 42 L. Ed. 2d 419] .

- A letter that casts doubts on the plaintiff's moral character [Kerby v. Hal Roach Studios (1942) 53 Cal. App. 2d 207, 210, 127 P.2d 577] .

- Use of plaintiffs' photograph with accompanying text which depicts them as having only a sexual interest in each other [Gill v. Curtis Publishing Co. (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 273, 279-281 .

Compare the following, which were found not to be false light invasions of privacy:

- Recitation of plaintiff's relationship to a murder victim in a broadcast with stories of two other heinous murders [O'Hilderbrandt v. Columbia Broad. Sys., Inc. (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 323, 333-334, 114 Cal. Rptr. 826] .

- Publication of true details of plaintiff's early marriage with gaps filled in with fictionalized conversations and thoughts [Carlisle v. Fawcett Publ'ns, Inc. (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 733, 748, 20 Cal. Rptr. 405] .

[3] Actual Malice Requirement

A false light action is, in substance, equivalent to a defamation action [Briscoe v. Reader's Digest Ass'n (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 529, 543, 93 Cal. Rptr. 866, 483 P.2d 34 . Thus, plaintiffs must prove "actual malice" in any fact situation when it would be required under defamation law [Johnson v. Harcourt, Brace, Jovanovich, Inc. (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 880, 893, 118 Cal. Rptr. 370 ; see also Cantrell v. Forest City Publ'g Co. (1974) 419 U.S. 245, 250-251, 95 S. Ct. 465, 42 L. Ed. 2d 419 (leaving open issue of whether state may constitutionally apply less strict standard than actual malice in false light actions brought by private individuals)]. The actual malice required is that of the "New York Times Rule"--that is, proof that defendant published the material with knowledge of its falsity or with recklessdisregard for its truth [see Time, Inc. v. Hill 385 U.S. 374, 387-388, 87 S. Ct. 534, 17 L. Ed. 2d 456 (1967) . This actual malice is not the same as the malice required for punitive damages--that is, ill will toward plaintiff [Cantrell v. Forest City Publ'g Co. (1974) 419 U.S. 245, 251-252, 254, 95 S. Ct. 465, 42 L. Ed. 2d 419] . For a discussion of constitutional requirements in defamation actions, see the discussion in Ch. 340, Libel and Slander .

[4] Demand for Retraction Requirement

The false light tort for invasion of privacy is equivalent to an action for libel, and thus the requirements of Civ. Code § 48a apply [Briscoe v. Reader's Digest Ass'n, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 529, 543, 93 Cal. Rptr. 866, 483 P.2d 34 , overruled on other grounds, Gates v. Discovery Communications, Inc. (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 679, 696-697, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663, 101 P.3d 552 & n.9, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663, 101 P.3d 552] .

Civ. Code § 48a essentially requires the plaintiff to make a written demand for a retraction to newspaper or radio defendants within 20 days after knowledge of the offensive publication or broadcast [Civ. Code § 48a(1)]. The plaintiff shall recover no more than special damages unless the retraction is demanded and is not published or broadcast [Civ. Code § 48a(1)].

In addition, no exemplary damages may be recovered unless the plaintiff proves that the defendant made the publication or broadcast with "actual malice," as defined in the statute [Civ. Code § 48a(2)]. The statute defines "actual malice" as hatred or ill will toward the plaintiff, with the proviso that a good-faith belief by the defendant in the truth of the publication or broadcast shall not constitute actual malice [Civ. Code § 48a(4)(d)].

Civ. Code § 48a does not apply to the public disclosure of private facts tort [Kapellas v. Kofman (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 20, 35, 35 n.17, 81 Cal. Rptr. 360, 459 P.2d 912 (disapproving any language in Werner v. Times-Mirror Co. (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 111, 14 Cal. Rptr. 208 , intimating that Civ. Code § 48a applies to all privacy actions)]. Moreover, if a complaint is based on both the false light and the public disclosure torts, Civ. Code § 48a may still not apply [see Kinsey v. Macur (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 265, 275, 165 Cal. Rptr. 608] . If the complaint does not rest upon the inaccuracy of a statement but upon the unwanted publicity resulting from a publication, the injured party gains no relief from a subsequent retraction or correction but, on the contrary, suffers additional injury by the repeated exposure [Kinsey v. Macur (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 265, 275-276, 165 Cal. Rptr. 608 ; see also Kapellas v. Kofman (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 20, 35, 81 Cal. Rptr. 360, 459 P.2d 912] .

In the privacy field, the retraction requirement has been applied to a publication in a magazine, even though Civ. Code § 48a refers only to newspapers and radio broadcasts [see Briscoe v. Reader's Digest Ass'n, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 529, 543, 93 Cal. Rptr. 866, 483 P.2d 34 , overruled on other grounds, Gates v. Discovery Communications, Inc. (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 679, 696-697, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663, 101 P.3d 552 & n.9, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663, 101 P.3d 552] .

For a further discussion and forms relating to the requirements of Civ. Code § 48a, see Ch. 340, Libel and Slander .

[5] Special Damages Requirement

The requirement under Civ. Code § 45a that special damages be pleaded and proven in actions involving defamatory language that is not libelous on its face also applies to a false light action based on a publication that is defamatory within the meaning of that statute [Fellows v. National Enquirer, Inc. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 234, 247-251, 228 Cal. Rptr. 215, 721 P.2d 97] .

Language is libelous on its face if it is defamatory of the plaintiff without the necessity of explanatory matter, such as an inducement, innuendo,or other extrinsic fact. Defamation not libelous on its face is not actionable unless the plaintiff alleges and proves that he or she has suffered special damage as a proximate result thereof [Civ. Code § 45a].

Civ. Code § 45a adopts the definition of "special damages" set forth in Civ. Code § 48a, which limits such damages to all damages that the plaintiff alleges and proves that he or she has suffered in respect to his or her property, business, trade, profession or occupation, including money expended as a result of the alleged libel [Civ. Code § 48a].

For further discussion of damage requirements in actions involving defamatory language, see Ch. 340, Libel and Slander .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 429 PRIVACY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Invasion Of Privacy

37-429 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 429.34

§ 429.34 Physical Intrusion

[1] Elements

The third tort classified under the right of privacy is physical intrusion upon a person's solitude or seclusion, or into his or her private affairs [see Lugosi v. Universal Pictures (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 813, 819]. This tort consists of the following elements [see Shulman v. Group W Prods., Inc. (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 200, 231, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 955 P.2d 469] :

- A prying or intrusion [see § 429.34[2], [3]];
- That is offensive or objectionable to a reasonable person [see § 429.39];
- Into a place or into affairs that are private and entitled to be private [see §§ 429.34[4] (private place), 429.37 (private affairs)].

Publication or public disclosure is not an element of the physical intrusion tort[Dietemann v. Time, Inc. (9th Cir. 1971) 449 F.2d 245, 249] .

[2] Intrusion Defined

In an intrusion case, courts first ask whether a defendant has intentionally intruded, physically or otherwise, on the plaintiff's solitude or seclusion--that is, into a place or conversation private to the plaintiff [Shulman v. Group W Prods., Inc. (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 200, 231, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 955 P.2d 469 ; Miller v. National Broad. Co. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1463, 1482, 232 Cal. Rptr. 668] . To prove actionable intrusion, the plaintiff must show the defendant penetrated some zone of physical or sensory privacy surrounding, or obtained unwanted access to data about, the plaintiff. Furthermore, the plaintiff proves the tort only if he or she had an objectively reasonable expectation of seclusion or solitude in the place, conversation, or data source [Shulman v. Group W Prods., Inc. (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 200, 232, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 955 P.2d 469 ; see also Wilkins v. National Broad. Co. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1066, 1078-1079, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 329 (plaintiffs had no objectively reasonable expectation of seclusion or solitudein business discussions conducted with undercover journalists during lunch at crowded public restaurant)].

Thus, there is no liability for examining a public record concerning the plaintiff, or for observing the plaintiff or even taking his or her photograph while he or she is walking in a public place [Shulman v. Group W Prods., Inc. (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 200, 231, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 955 P.2d 469 ; see, e.g., Aisenson v. American Broad. Co. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 146, 162-163, 269 Cal. Rptr. 379 (any invasion of privacy was de minimis where judge who was subject of news story was filmed from public street as he walked from his home to his car)]. Nor is there a cause of action for invasion of privacy based on the placement of a video camera in the release office of a county jail [see Sacramento County Deputy Sheriffs' Assn. v. County of Sacramento (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1468, 1487, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834].

An expectation of privacy need not be an expectation of complete or absolute privacy to be an objectively reasonable expectation of privacy for purposes of the tort of intrusion. The reasonableness of a person's expectation of visual or aural privacy depends not only on who might have been able to observe the relevant interaction, but also on the identity of the alleged intruder and the means of intrusion [Sanders v. American Broadcasting Companies (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 907, 915, 923, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 909, 915, 923, 978 P.2d 67]. For example, the fact that a workplace interaction could have been heard or witnessed by other workers on the premises, but not by the general public, will not necessarily preclude a finding that a participant had an objectively reasonable expectation that the conversation or interaction would not be secretly videotaped by an undercover television reporter for broadcast on a television program, at least if the workplace did not provide unfettered access to the general public and the intruder was posing as a coworker [Sanders v. American Broadcasting Companies (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 907, 911, 922-923, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 909, 978 P.2d 67 (distinguishing interactions between business proprietor and customer, which may be characterized as public conversations between strangers)]. However, although a limited expectation of privacy might be found under these circumstances, the particular invasion must still be found to be highly offensive to the reasonable person to sustain an intrusion cause of action [Sanders v. American Broadcasting Companies (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 907, 911, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 909, 978 P.2d 67 (court expresses no opinion on offensiveness of reporter's conduct); see, e.g., Hernandez v. Hillsides, Inc. (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 272, 294-299, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 274, 211 P.3d 1063 (while employees had demonstrated intrusion into privacy at work by surreptitious placement of surveillance camera, employer's limited, after-hours use of camera, which was intended to find employee who was using computers for unauthorized viewing of pornography, was not highly offensive); see § 429.39]. In addition, the standard may be different if the alleged intruder is a government entity investigating criminal activity, because in that situation, constitutional rather than common law privacy concerns would frame the analysis [see Sanders v. American Broadcasting Companies (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 907, 919, 920, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 909, 978 P.2d 67 ; see generally §§ 429.310 et seq., 429.560 et seq.].

An actionable intrusion may include an encroachment by means of wiretapping [see Dietemann v. Time, Inc. (9th Cir. 1971) 449 F.2d 245, 248 ; for a discussion and forms, see § 429.280 et seq.]. An intrusion into privateaffairs may involve the gathering of information about a person. For a discussion and forms relating to statutory regulation of this topic, see § 429.120 et seq.

Although a mistake of fact, such as a mistaken belief as to what is being heard or recorded, may serve as a defense to an action for intrusion, it is an affirmative defense that the defendant must plead and prove [Marich v. MGM/UA Telecommunications, Inc. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 415, 424, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 60].

[3] Unreasonably Intrusive Investigation

An invasion into solitude or private affairs may take the form of an unreasonably intrusive investigation [see Noble v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 654, 659-660, 109 Cal. Rptr. 269] . This variation of the tort may involve the following types of conduct:

- Questioning by a private investigator [Noble v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 654, 657, 660, 109 Cal. Rptr. 269] ;

- Seeking information about the plaintiff, such as the plaintiff's occupation or credit report [Emerson v. J.F. Shea Co. (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 579, 586, 592, 143 Cal. Rptr. 170] ; or

- Surveillance by an insurance company adversary during litigation [see Cain v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 310, 312-313, 132 Cal. Rptr. 860] .

This type of claim depends on the reasonableness of the investigation [see Solis v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 382, 392-393, 164 Cal. Rptr. 343 ; Noble v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 654,659-660, 109 Cal. Rptr. 269] . For example, an investigation is unreasonably intrusive when a private investigator gains admittance to a person's hospital room and, by deception, secures relevant information regarding a legal action [Noble v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 654, 657, 660, 109 Cal. Rptr. 269] . On the other hand, when investigators secure the permission of the attending doctor and nurse to talk with a person in a hospital room, wear uniforms, identify themselves, and question the person very briefly, the investigation will not be considered unreasonably intrusive [see Solis v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 382, 392, 164 Cal. Rptr. 343].

In one case, the California Supreme Court denied a motion to strike a cause of action for intrusion against an academic researcher who allegedly used deception to obtain personal and private information from the plaintiff's former foster mother. The researcher allegedly deceived the foster mother into believing that the researcher was working with a psychiatrist who plaintiff had worked with and trusted, and the foster mother would not have shared plaintiff's personalinformation had she known the truth. Recognizing that not all misrepresentations by a reporter, investigator, or scholar to obtain information would be sufficient to support an action for intrusion, the Court concluded that under the facts of that case, a jury could properly find that the scholar engaged in conduct that was highly offensive. The Court stressed that intentionally misrepresenting that one is a professional associate of a psychiatrist who has a close relationship with a person in order to obtain private information about that person is a particularly serious type of misrepresentation, especially in light of the confidentiality generally provided for information shared between persons and mental health professionals [Taus v. Loftus (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 683, 735-740, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 775, 151 P.3d 1185] .

The media may invade a plaintiff's privacy by unreasonably intrusive newsgathering activity. In contrast to the broad privilege the press enjoys for publishing truthful, newsworthy information in its possession, the press has no recognized constitutional privilege to violate generally applicable laws such as California's intrusion tort, in pursuit of material [Shulman v. Group W Prods., Inc. (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 200, 242, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 955 P.2d 469] .

[4] Private Place Defined

A person's home is considered a legitimate private place [see Dietemann v. Time, Inc. (9th Cir. 1971) 449 F.2d 245, 248 (office in home); Vescovo v. New Way Enters., Ltd. (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 582, 587-588, 130 Cal. Rptr. 86] . A room in which a person has an exclusive right of occupancy may also be a protected private place [see Noble v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 654, 660, 109 Cal. Rptr. 269 (hospital room)].

Although an injured plaintiff may not have an objectively reasonable expectation of privacy at the scene of an accident, he or she may have one in the interior of a rescue helicopter, which serves as an ambulance [Shulman v. Group W Prods., Inc. (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 200, 232, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 955 P.2d 469] .

As noted in § 429.34[2], an expectation of privacy need not be an expectation of complete or absolute privacy to be objectively reasonable. The reasonableness of a person's expectation of privacy depends on who might have been able to hear or witness the particular interaction, the identity of the alleged intruder, and the means of intrusion [Sanders v. American Broadcasting Companies (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 907, 915, 923, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 909, 978 P.2d 67 .

In one case, for example, a breast cancer patient submitted to a breast examination by her oncologist, and the examination was attended by another man. Although the plaintiff knew of this other man's presence, she was not informed that he was a drug salesman. The court held that a jury could find, under the circumstances, that the plaintiff had a reasonable expectation that the examination would not be witnessed by non-medical personnel [Sanchez-Scott v. Alza Pharm. (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 365, 373-376, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 410] .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 429 PRIVACY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Invasion Of Privacy

37-429 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 429.34A

§ 429.34A Statutory Action for Physical Invasion of Privacy

[1] Scope of Protection

Civ. Code § 1708.8 provides a statutory action for the physical invasion of privacy that may supplement other legal remedies such as the common law tort for intrusion described under § 429.34 [Civ. Code § 1708.8(a), (i); see also Civ. Code § 1708.8(f)]. The statutory cause of action covers the knowing entering onto the land of another without permission, or otherwise committing a trespass, in order to physically invade, in a manner offensive to a reasonable person, the privacy of the plaintiff with the intent to capture any type of visual image, sound recording, or other physical impression of the plaintiff engaging in a personal or familial activity [Civ. Code § 1708.8(a)].

For these purposes, "personal and familial activity" includes, but is not limited to, intimate details of the plaintiff's personal life, interactions with the plaintiff's family or significant others, or other aspects of the plaintiff's private affairs or concerns, but excludes illegal or criminal activity [Civ. Code § 1708.8(l); see also Civ. Code § 1708.8(g)].

The statute also provides an action for constructive invasion of privacy if the defendant uses a visual or auditory enhancing device in attempting to capture, in a manner offensive to a reasonable person, a visual image, sound recording, or other physical impression of the plaintiff engaging in a personal or familial activity under circumstances in which the plaintiff had a reasonable expectation of privacy. This action for a constructive invasion of privacy exists regardless of whether there is a physical trespass, if the image, sound recording, or other physical impression could not have been achieved without a trespass unless the visual or auditory enhancing device was used [Civ. Code § 1708.8(b)].

Beginning in 2006, an assault committed with the intent to capture any type of visual image, sound recording, or other physical impression of the plaintiff is also actionable under Civ. Code § 1708.8 [Civ. Code § 1708.8(c)].

Regardless of whether there is an employer-employee relationship, a person who directs, solicits, actually induces, or actually causes another person to commit a physical invasion, constructive invasion, or assault under Civ. Code § 1708.8 may also be liable [Civ. Code § 1708.8(e)].

Beginning with images, recordings, or physical impressions captured or taken in California on or after January 1, 2010 [see Civ. Code § 1708.8(f)(5)], the transmission, publication, broadcast, sale, offer for sale, or other use of any visual image, sound recording, or other physical impression that was taken or captured in violation of Civ. Code § 1708.8(a), (b), or (c) does not constitute a violation of the statute unless the person, in the first transaction following the taking or capture of the image, recording, or physical impression, publicly transmitted, published, broadcast, sold or offered for sale the image, recording, or physical impression with actual knowledge that it was taken or captured in violation of Civ. Code § 1708.8(a), (b), or (c), and provide compensation, consideration, or remuneration, monetary or otherwise, for the rights to the unlawfully obtained image, recording, or physical impression [Civ. Code § 1708.8(f)(1)]. For these purposes, "actual knowledge" means actual awareness, understanding, and recognition, obtained prior to the time at which the person purchased or acquired the image, recording, or physical impression, that the image, recording, or physical impression was taken or captured in violation of Civ. Code § 1708.8(a), (b), or (c) [Civ. Code § 1708.8(f)(2)]. The plaintiff has the burden of establishing such actual knowledge by clear and convincing evidence [Civ. Code § 1708.8(f)(2)].

A person who publicly transmits, publishes, broadcasts, sells or offers for sale, in any form, medium, format or work, a visual image, sound recording, or other physical impression that was previously publicly transmitted, published, broadcast, sold or offered for sale, by another person, is exempt from liability under this statute [Civ. Code § 1708.8(f)(3)]. In addition, if a person's first public transmission, publication, broadcast, or sale or offer for sale, of a visual image, sound recording, or other physical impression that was taken or captured in violation of Civ. Code § 1708.8(a), (b), or (c), does not constitute a violation of this statute, that person's subsequent public transmission, publication, broadcast, sale or offer for sale, in any form, medium, format or work, of the image, recording, or physical impression also does not constitute a violation of the statute [Civ. Code § 1708.8(f)(4)].

It is not a defense to a claim under Civ. Code § 1708.8 that no image, recording, or physical impression was actually captured or sold [Civ. Code § 1708.8(j)].

Civ. Code § 1708.8 does not generally prohibit law enforcement personnel from obtaining evidence of illegal activities. Specifically, the statute does not impair or limit any otherwise lawful activities of law enforcement personnel or employees of government agencies or other entities, either public or private, who, in the course and scope of their employment and supported by an articulable suspicion, attempt to capture any type of visual image, sound recording, or other physical impression of a person during an investigation, surveillance, or monitoring of any conduct to obtain evidence of suspected illegal activity, or other misconduct, the suspected violation of any administrative rule or regulation, a suspected fraudulent conduct, or any activity involving the violation of law or business practices or conduct of public officials adversely affecting the public welfare, health, or safety [Civ. Code § 1708.8(g)].

Nothing in these statutory provisions imposes liability on a governmental entity, or employee acting within the scope of his or her employment with a governmental entity, when immunity is provided under Gov. Code § 821.6 [Richardson-Tunnell v. Schools Ins. Program for Employees (SIPE) (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 1056, 1064-1065, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 176]. That provision of the California Government Claims Act immunizes a governmental employee for injury caused by instituting or prosecuting any judicial or administrative proceeding within the scope of his or her employment, regardless of malice or lack of probable cause, and such immunity extends to investigatory activities [Gov. Code § 821.6; see Richardson-Tunnell v. Schools Ins. Program for Employees (SIPE) (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 1056, 1062, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 176].

[2] Damages Available

Damages under Civ. Code § 1708.8 for a physical invasion, constructive invasion, or assault include up to three times the amount of any generaland special damages that are proximately caused by the violation. Punitive damages may also be recovered, subject to proof according to Civ. Code § 3294 [Civ. Code § 1708.8(d)].

If the plaintiff proves that the invasion of privacy was committed for a commercial purpose, the defendant is also subject to disgorgement to the plaintiff of any proceeds or other consideration obtained as a result of the invasion [Civ. Code § 1708.8(d)]. For these purposes, "for a commercial purpose" means any act done with the expectation of a sale, financial gain, or other consideration. The image, recording, or physical impression must have been intended to be, or was in fact, sold, published, or transmitted [Civ. Code § 1708.8(k)].

A court may also grant equitable relief for a violation of Civ. Code § 1708.8, including but not limited to an injunction and restraining order against further violations [Civ. Code § 1708.8(h)].

If liability is imposed for directing, soliciting, actually inducing, or actually causing another person to commit a physical invasion, constructive invasion, or assault under Civ. Code § 1708.8, damages include any general, special, and consequential damages resulting from each violation, as well as punitive damages to the extent that an employer would be subject to punitive damages pursuant to Civ. Code § 3294(b) [Civ. Code § 1708.8(e); see Civ. Code § 3294(b)].

A county counsel or city attorney may also bring an action to recover a civil fine of between $5,000 and $50,000 for a violation of Civ. Code § 1708.8 [see Civ. Code § 1708.8(d), (e), (m).]

For a form of complaint for an action under Civ. Code § 1708.8, see § 429.475A.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 429 PRIVACY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Invasion Of Privacy

37-429 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 429.35

§ 429.35 Appropriation Under Case Law

[1] Elements

The fourth tort encompassed within the right of privacy involves the appropriation of a person's name or likeness, for the defendant's advantage [see Lugosi v. Universal Pictures (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 813, 819]. At common law, this tort consists of the following elements [Eastwood v. Superior Court (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 409, 417, 198 Cal. Rptr. 342 ; see Fairfield v. American Photocopy Equip. Co. (1955) 138 Cal. App. 2d 82, 86, 291 P.2d 194] :

- The defendant's use of the plaintiff's identity [see § 429.35[3]];
- The appropriation of plaintiff's name or likeness to defendant's advantage, commercially or otherwise [see § 429.35[4]];
- Unauthorized use or lack of consent [see § 429.35[2]]; and
- Resulting injury.

It is not necessary to show that the use of a person's name or likeness was for the purpose of endorsing defendant's product or service [Eastwood v. Superior Court (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 409, 198 Cal. Rptr. 342] .

The single-publication rule developed in the context of defamation actions and as codified in Civ. Code § 3425.3 applies to a cause of action for unauthorized commercial use of likeness [Christoff v. Nestle USA, Inc. (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 468, 476, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 798, 213 P.3d 132]. Under that rule, a person has only one cause of action for damages founded upon "any single publication or exhibition or utterance, such as any one issue of a newspaper or book or magazine or any one presentation to an audience or any one broadcast over radio or television or any one exhibition of a motion picture" [Civ. Code § 3425.3]. A cause of action governed by the single-publication rule accrues from the date of the first general distribution of the publication to the public, thus triggering the statute of limitations with respect to that publication, although to apply the rule, a court must first identify what constitutes a single integrated publication [

Christoff v. Nestle USA, Inc. (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 468, 477, 482, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 798, 213 P.3d 132 (faced with unauthorized use of plaintiff's photograph on coffee label and in related advertising, the court could not determine these issues under current factual record)]. In addition, as with the application of the single-publication rule in actions for libel, the delayed-discovery rule, under which a cause of action does not accrue until plaintiff knows or has reason to know of the actionable conduct, does not apply to publications widely disseminated to the general public, such as in books, magazines, and newspapers [Christoff v. Nestle USA, Inc. (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 468, 482483, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 798, 213 P.3d 132]. The single-publication rule is discussed more generally in the context of defamation actions in Ch. 340, Libel and Slander.

[2] Unauthorized Use

"Unauthorized" means without the person's consent. Using a person's name or likeness by mistake or inadvertence can still amount to an unauthorized appropriation [see Fairfield v. American Photocopy Equip. Co. (1955) 138 Cal. App. 2d 82, 87, 291 P.2d 194 ; see also Kerby v. Hal Roach Studios (1942) 53 Cal. App. 2d 207, 213, 127 P.2d 577] .

The prohibited use can involve the following kinds of conduct:

- Use of a person's photograph to accompany an unrelated story [see Gill v. Curtis Publishing Co. (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 273, 275, 282 ;

- Publication of a person's name in an advertisement falsely stating that they are a satisifed user of a product [Fairfield v. American Photocopy Equip. Co. (1955) 138 Cal. App. 2d 82, 86, 87, 291 P.2d 194] ;

- Use of a distinguishable characteristic of a person, implying his or her endorsement of a product [Motschenbacher v. R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. (9th Cir. 1974) 498 F.2d 821, 827 (use of race car driver's racing car with modifications, but distinguishable markings still visible)]; or

- Publication of the classroom notes of a professor's lectures without his or her consent, implying his or her cooperation in the publication [Williams v. Weisser (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 726, 742, 78 Cal. Rptr. 542] .

[3] Name or Likeness Defined

The prohibited conduct can involve the use of a person's name or likeness, or the exploitation of his or her personality [see Williams v. Weisser (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 726, 742, 78 Cal. Rptr. 542 (publication of classroom notes from plaintiff's lectures using plaintiff's name was appropriation of personality); Fairfield v. American Photocopy Equip. Co. (1955) 138 Cal. App. 2d 82, 86, 87, 291 P.2d 194 (use of name in advertisement falsely stating that plaintiff was satisifed user of photocopier was appropriation of name and personality)]. Note, however, that a mere similarity or even identity of names is insufficient as a matter of law to establish that a work of fiction, such as a film, is of or concerning a real person [Polydoros v. Twentieth Century Fox Film Corp. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 318, 322-323, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 207 (use of similar name and actor resembling plaintiff when he was a child were not actionable appropriations in context of film that was unarguably fiction)].

When a photograph is involved, the entire picture may be examined to determine if the person is identifiable and thus entitled to sue for the appropriation [see Motschenbacher v. R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. (9th Cir. 1974) 498 F.2d 821, 827 (race car driver's facial features not visible, but certain distinquishable markings peculiar to his car were visible, leading to inference that car was his and he was driving)].

Liability for appropriation is not limited strictly to situations in which a "likeness" is appropriated. It may extend to an appropriation of the"attributes of one's identity," including voice or signs or symbols associated with a person [Waits v. Frito-Lay, Inc., 978 F.2d 1093, 1098-1106 (1992) (voice; applying California law); Midler v. Ford Motor Co. (9th Cir. 1988) 849 F.2d 460, 463 (voice; applying California law); Motschenbacher v. R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. (9th Cir. 1974) 498 F.2d 821, 827 (signs or symbols; applying California law)]. For example, the deliberate imitation of the widely known distinctive voice of a professional singer without consent in order to sell a product constitutes an appropriation by the seller and its advertising agency of something that is not theirs [Midler v. Ford Motor Co. (9th Cir. 1988) 849 F.2d 460, 463 (applying California law)].

[4] User's Advantage Defined

The user's advantage usually consists of some pecuniary gain to defendant [see, e.g., Williams v. Weisser (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 726, 742, 78 Cal. Rptr. 542 (sale of classroom notes taken at plaintiff's lectures)]. However, the common law tort can encompass other kinds of advantages to defendant [see, e.g., Hinish v. Meier & Frank Co. (1941) 166 Ore. 482, 113 P.2d 438, 448 (signing plaintiff's name to telegram urging governor to veto bill)].

Business uses that do not constitute an advertisement or propose a commercial transaction may not be considered sufficiently "commercial" to support a cause of action for appropriation. For example, the use of the names, images, likenesses, and career statistics of former professional baseball players in League-sanctioned game programs, Web sites, and documentaries, served a public interest and was not a commercial use that could support an action for appropriation, even though this use may have provided some promotional benefit to the game of baseball [Gionfriddo v. Major League Baseball (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 400, 412-415, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 307] .

In a case involving a magazine feature, the court of appeal ordered that causes of action for commercial misappropriation brought under both Civ. Code § 3344 and the common law be struck under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16 on the grounds that the magazine feature at issue was noncommercial speech entitled to full First Amendment protection. In that particular case, plaintiffs were musical groups whose names had been included in a magazine feature spotlighting independent rock bands that was published inside of a double-gatefold page layout the outside pages of which contained a multi-page cigarette advertisement. Plaintiffs argued that the design of the feature used the names of the rock bands to sell the cigarettes in the advertisement and as such constituted commercial misappropriation of their names to sell a product. The court of appeal disagreed, concluding that, despite the location of the advertisement on the outside pages of the gatefold, the feature on independent artists was noncommercial speech and plaintiffs had failed to present evidence that the magazine published the feature with actual malice [Stewart v. Rolling Stone LLC (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 664, 683-689, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 98] . The court also held that the constitutional right guaranteeing freedom of the press also barred plaintiffs from pursuing their causes of action, as that right traditionally protected publishers for decisions as to the content and placement of advertisements [Stewart v. Rolling Stone LLC (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 664, 690-691, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 98] .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 429 PRIVACY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Invasion Of Privacy

37-429 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 429.36

§ 429.36 Appropriation Under Civ. Code § 3344

[1] Cause of Action

The appropriation of a person's name, voice, signature, photograph, or likeness for a commercial use gives rise to a statutory cause of action under Civ. Code § 3344, which provides that any person who knowingly and without prior consent uses another's name, voice, signature, photograph, or likeness, in any manner, for the purpose of either advertising or soliciting purchases of products, merchandise, goods, or services is liable for any damages sustained by the person injured as a result of the unauthorized use [Civ. Code § 3344(a); for discussion of statutory provisions relating to remedies and damages, see § 429.45, 429.46]. In the case of a minor, the prior consent required is that of his or her parent or legal guardian [Civ. Code § 3344(a)]. However, Civ. Code § 3344 will not provide relief to a person injured by another's use of an imitation of the person's voice, both because the voice used is not that of the injured person, and because the term "likeness" in Civ. Code § 3344(a) refers to a visual image and not to a vocal imitation [Midler v. Ford Motor Co. (9th Cir. 1988) 849 F.2d 460, 463] .

It is not necessary to show that the use of a person's name or likeness was for the purpose of endorsing defendant's product or service [Eastwood v. Superior Court (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 409, 418-420, 198 Cal. Rptr. 342] .

As noted in § 429.35[1], the single-publication rule developed in the context of defamation actions and as codified in Civ. Code § 3425.3 applies to a cause of action for unauthorized commercial use of likeness [Christoff v. Nestle USA, Inc. (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 468, 476, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 798, 213 P.3d 132].

[2] Commercial Use Defined

The statute sets forth two limitations on "a use for the purposes of advertising or solicitation." First, the statute provides that a use in a commercial medium does not constitute a proscribed use solely because the material using the name, voice, signature, photograph, or likeness is commercially sponsored or contains paid advertising. Rather, it is a question of fact whether or not the use was so directly connected with the commercial sponsorship or with the paid advertising as to constitute a use for the purposes of advertising or solicitation [Civ. Code § 3344(e)]. For example, it has been held that the reprint, in a textbook, of a magazine article about the plaintiff finding and returning a quarter of a million dollars was not so directly connected with the sale of the textbook as to constitute the commercial use prohibited by Civ. Code § 3344(a) [Johnson v. Harcourt, Brace, Jovanovich, Inc. (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 880, 895, 118 Cal. Rptr. 370] .

Secondly, Civ. Code § 3344 states that a use in connection with any news, public affairs, or sports broadcast or account, or any political campaign does not constitute a use for the purposes of advertising or solicitation [Civ. Code § 3344(d); see, e.g., Gionfriddo v. Major League Baseball (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 400, 415, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 307 (use of names, images, likenesses, and career statistics of former professional baseball players in League-sanctioned game programs, Web sites, and documentaries fell within exception to consent requirement); Dora v. Frontline Video, Inc. (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 536, 545, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 790 (summary judgment for defendant documentary filmmaker upheld in action by legendary surfer featured in movie, because surfing documentary within scope of "public affairs")]. The news account exemption of Civ. Code § 3344(d) does not, however, protect a publication made with actual malice, that is, with knowledge of its falsity or with reckless disregard for its truth [Eastwood v. Superior Court (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 409, 425, 198 Cal. Rptr. 342 ; see also Maheu v. CBS, Inc. (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 662, 676-677, 247 Cal. Rptr. 304 (no cause of action stated absent allegation that publication concerning matter of public interest was false and was published with knowledge or reckless disregard of its falsity)].

[3] Photograph Defined

As used in Civ. Code § 3344, "photograph" means any photograph or photographic reproduction, still or moving, or any videotape or live television transmission, of any person, such that the person is readily identifiable [Civ. Code § 3344(b)]. A person is deemed "readily identifiable" when another person viewing the photograph with the naked eye can reasonably determine that the person depicted is the same person as the one complaining of its unauthorized use [Civ. Code § 3344(b)(1)].

If the photograph includes more than one readily identifiable person, then the person or persons complaining of the use shall be represented as individuals rather than solely as members of a definable group represented in the photograph. A definable group includes, but is not limited to, a crowd at any sporting event, a crowd in any street or public building, the audience at any theatrical or stage production, a glee club, or a baseball team [Civ. Code § 3344(b)(2)]. A person or persons will be considered members of a definable group if they are represented in the photograph solely as a result of being present when the photograph was taken and have not been singled out as individuals in any manner [Civ. Code § 3344(b)(3)].

[4] Knowing Use Defined

Civ. Code § 3344 imposes two limitations on the "knowing use" requirement. First, the statute provides that when a photograph or likeness of an employee of a person using the photograph or likeness appearing in an advertisement or other publication prepared by or in behalf of the user is only incidental, and not essential, to the purpose of the publication in which it appears, there arises a rebuttable presumption affecting the burden of producing evidence that the failure to obtain the employee's consent was not a knowing use of the employee's photograph or likeness [Civ. Code § 3344(c)].

Secondly, Civ. Code § 3344 states that nothing in the statute applies to owners or employees of any medium used for advertising by whom any advertisement or solicitation in violation of the statute is published or disseminated, unless it is established that the owners or employees had knowledge of the unauthorized use of the persons' name, voice, signature, photograph, or likeness [Civ. Code § 3344(f)]. "Advertising medium" is defined as including, but is not limited to, newspapers, magazines, radio and televsion stations, billboards, and transit ads [Civ. Code § 3344(f)].

[5] Preemption by Federal Copyright Law

Some types of claims asserted under Civ. Code § 3344 may be preempted by federal copyright law, because federal law prohibits states from legislating in the area of copyright and the federal courts have exclusive jurisdiction over copyright infringement claims [see 17 U.S.C.S. § 301]. However, preemption does not apply unless the subject of the claim is a work fixed in a tangible medium of expression and comes within the subject matter or scope of copyright protection, and unless the right asserted under state law is equivalent to the exclusive rights contained in federal copyright law [KNB Enters. v. Matthews (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 362, 369, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 713 .

For example, a claim asserted under Civ. Code § 3344 that seeks only to prevent the reproduction, performance, distribution, or display of a dramatic performance captured on film is subsumed under federal copyright law and therefore preempted [Fleet v. CBS, Inc. (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1911, 1924, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 645 (preemption of statutory misappropriation claims made by actors against film's authorized distributor and exclusive copyright holder)]. However, a claim brought under Civ. Code § 3344 seeking to prevent the unauthorized reproduction of a plaintiff's likeness, such as through the unauthorized reproduction of a photograph, is not preempted. Even though the plaintiff's likeness may be embodied in a copyrightable work such as a photograph, the likeness itself is not copyrightable, and a right of publicity asserted under the statute does not fall within the subject matter of copyright protection [KNB Enters. v. Matthews (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 362, 374-375, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 713 .

[6] Enforcement of Right by Successors and Licensees

In general, the right of publicity protects against the unauthorized use of a person's name, likeness, or personality during his or her lifetime and, subject to the exceptions noted below, is not descendable [see Lugosi v. Universal Pictures (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 813, 821, 822]. In one case, heirs of actor Bela Lugosi were held not entitled to sue for the appropriation of Lugosi's likeness as Count Dracula for various licensing agreements [Lugosi v. Universal Pictures (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 813, 821, 822]. Likewise, in another case, the heir of actor Rudolph Valentino was held not entitled to sue for appropriation of Valentino's name, likeness and personality for television broadcasts [Guglielmi v. Spelling-Goldberg Prods. (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 860, 861, 160 Cal. Rptr. 352, 603 P.2d 454] .

Subsequent legislation, Civ. Code § 3344.1, the Astaire Celebrity Image Protection Act, however, confers a right of action against one who uses the name, voice, signature, photograph, or likeness of a deceased personality in any manner, on or in products, merchandise or goods, or who advertises, sells or solicits purchases of products, merchandise, goods or services without prior consent of the decedent's successor or successors in interest [Civ. Code § 3344.1(a)(1); see, e.g., Comedy III Prods., Inc. v. Gary Saderup, Inc. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 387, 395, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 126, 21 P.3d 797 (use of celebrity likenesses on lithographs and t-shirts without permission prohibited under predecessor statute)].

[7] Definitions

[a] "Deceased Personality"

A "deceased personality" is any natural person whose name, voice, signature, photograph, or likeness has commercial value at the time of his or her death, including, without limitation, one who has died within 70 years prior to January 1, 1985. It is immaterial whether or not these attributes (name, voice, etc.) were used by the decedent for such commercial purposes during his or her lifetime [Civ. Code § 3344.1(h)].

[b] "Successor in Interest"

A "successor in interest" is one who acquired the right to use the decedent's name, voice, signature, photograph or likeness by contract, trust (inter vivos or testamentary), will, or descent according to the distribution plan under Civ. Code § 3344.1(d) [see § 429.36[8]], whether by the decedent personally or his or her transferees--the right being freely transferable, in whole or in part, as a property right [Civ. Code § 3344.1(b), (c)].

[c] "Photograph"

As used in Civ. Code § 3344.1, "photograph" means any photograph or photographic reproduction, still or moving, or any video recording or live television transmisssion, of any person, such that the deceased personality is readily identifiable. A deceased personality is deemed to be readily identifiable from a photograph when one who views the photograph with the naked eye can reasonably determine who the person depicted in the photograph is [Civ. Code § 3344.1(i)].

[8] Ownership of Rights

If any deceased personality does not transfer his or her rights under Civ. Code § 3344.1 by contract, or by means of a trust or testamentary document, and there are no surviving persons as described by Civ. Code § 3344.1(d), then the rights under Civ. Code § 3344.1(a) shall terminate [Civ. Code § 3344.1(e)].

The rights provided by Civ. Code § 3344.1 are deemed to have existed at the time of death of any deceased personality who died prior to January 1, 1985, and except as noted in Civ. Code § 3344.1(o), described below, vest in the persons entitled to these property rights under the testamentary instrument of the deceased personality effective as of the date of death [Civ. Code § 3344.1(b)]. In the absence of an express transfer in a testamentary instrument of the deceased personality's rights, a provision in the testamentary instrument that provides for the disposition of the residue of the deceased personality's assets is effective to transfer the rights recognized under Civ. Code § 3344.1 in accordance with the terms of that provision. The rights established by this section are also freely transferable or descendible by contract, trust, or other testamentary instrument by any subsequent owner of the deceased personality's rights [Civ. Code § 3344.1(b)]. Civ. Code § 3344.1 does not affect any contract entered into by a deceased personality during his or her lifetime by which the deceased assigned the rights, in whole or in part, to use his or her name, voice, signature, photograph or likeness [Civ. Code § 3344.1(b)].

If the decedent made no inter vivos or testamentary transfer of the right and left one or more survivors, the latter take the right as follows [Civ. Code § 3344.1(d)]:

- The surviving spouse takes the entire interest if there are no children or grandchildren of the decedent, but takes only a one-half interest if children or grandchildren survive;

- The surviving children and any child of a deceased child of the decedent take the entire interest if there is no surviving spouse of the decedent, but take only a one-half interest if there is a surviving spouse;

- The surviving parent or parents of the decedent take the entire interest if there is no surviving spouse of the decedent and there are no surviving children or grandchildren of the decedent.

The rights of the decedent's children and grandchildren are in all cases divided among them and exercisable in the manner provided in Prob. Code § 240 according to the number of the decedent's children represented. The share of the children of a dead child of a deceased personality can be exercised only by the action of a majority of them [Civ. Code § 3344.1(d)(4)].

If an action was taken prior to May 1, 2007, to exercise rights recognized under Civ. Code § 3344.1 relating to a deceased personality who died prior to January 1, 1985, by a person who acquired the rights through the statutory provisions of Civ. Code § 3344.1(d), described above, other than a person who was disinherited by the deceased personality in a testamentary instrument, and the exercise of those rights was not challenged successfully in a court action by a person who acquired the rights through a testamentary transfer, that exercise of rights by the person who acquired the rights through the statutory provisions is unaffected by the testamentary transfer. In such a case, the rights that would otherwise vest in one or more persons through a testamentary transfer vest solely in the person or persons described in Civ. Code § 3344.1(d), other than a person disinherited by the deceased personality in a testamentary instrument, for all future purposes [Civ. Code § 3344.1(o)].

[9] Registration as Prerequisite to Action by Successor

Both successors in interest to the deceased personality and licensees thereof may bring an action for wrongful use (appropriation) of the former's name, voice, signature, photograph or likeness. However, no action may be brought against the wrongful user unless the person claiming to be the successor in interest or licensee thereof first registers that claim with the office of the California Secretary of State, on a prescribed form (which must be verified), including the name and date of death of the deceased personality, the name and address of the claimant, the basis of the claim and the rights claimed, and pays the required registration fee. In addition, damages may not be recovered for a use prohibited by Civ. Code § 3344.1 that occurred prior to the registration of the claim [Civ. Code § 3344.1(f)(1), (2)].

Claims so registered are considered public records. The Secretary of State posts such claims along with the entire registry of persons claiming to be a successor in interest to the rights of a deceased personality or a registered licensee on the WorldWide Web, also known as the Internet [Civ. Code § 3344.1(f)(3)]. The claims may be microfilmed or otherwise reproduced by the Secretary of State and the originals destroyed. The reproductions are admissible in any court of law, however, and will be kept by the Secretary of State for at least 70 years after the death of the personality named in them--after which they may be destroyed [Civ. Code § 3344.1(f)(3), (4)].

[10] 70-Year Limitation on Right

No action may be brought under Civ. Code § 3344.1 for wrongful uses occurring after the expiration of 70 years from the death of the deceased personality [Civ. Code § 3344.1(g)].

[11] Permissible and Impermissible Uses

Whether a particular use is prohibited under Civ. Code § 3344.1 is a question of fact. That a name, voice, signature, photograph, or other likeness of a person is used in material depicted in a commercial medium which is commercially sponsored or contains paid advertising, will not solely constitute a use for which consent is required. Rather, it is a question of fact whether the use of the deceased personality's name, voice, signature, photograph, or likeness was so directly connected with the commercial sponsorship or with the paid advertising as to constitute a use for which consent is required under Civ. Code § 3344.1(a) [Civ. Code § 3344.1(k)].

However, a play, book, magazine, newspaper, musical composition, audiovisual work, radio or television program, single and original work of art, work of political or newsworthy value, or an advertisement or commercial announcement for any of these works, is not considered a product, article of merchandise, good, or service if it is fictional or nonfictional entertainment, or a dramatic, literary, or musical work [Civ. Code § 3344.1(a)(2)]. If a work protected as such includes within it a use in connection with a product, article of merchandise, good, or service, this use shall not be exempt under Civil Code § 3344.1 if the claimant proves that this use is so directly connected with a product, article of merchandise, good, or service as to constitute an act of advertising, selling, or soliciting purchases of that product, article of merchandise, good, or service by the deceased personality without prior consent from the person or persons specified in Civil Code § 3344.1(c) [Civ. Code § 3344.1(a)(3)]. Similarly, a use of a name, voice, signature, photograph or likeness in connection with any news, public affairs, or sports broadcast or account, or any political campaign, shall not constitute a use for which consent is required under Civ. Code § 3344.1(a) [Civ. Code § 3344.1(j)].

Furthermore, the consent requirements of Civ. Code § 3344.1 do not apply to the owners or employees of any advertising medium including, but not limited to, newspapers, magazines, radio and television networks and stations, cable television systems, billboards, and transit ads, by whom any advertisement or solicitation in violation of Civ. Code § 3344.1 is published or disseminated, unless it is established that the owners or employees had knowledge of the unauthorized use of the deceased personality's name, voice, signature, photograph, or likeness [Civ. Code § 3344.1(l)].

Civil Code § 3344.1 applies to the adjudication of liability and the imposition of any damages or other remedies in cases in which the liability, damages, and other remedies arise from acts occurring directly in California. Acts giving rise to liability shall be limited to the use, on or in products, merchandise, goods, or services, or the advertising or selling, or soliciting purchases of, products, merchandise, goods, or services prohibited by Civil Code § 3344.1 [Civ. Code § 3344.1(n)].

[12] Constitutional Freedom of Expression Defense

In Comedy III Productions, Inc. v. Gary Saderup, Inc., the California Supreme Court articulated a test for balancing the right of publicity with the First Amendment right of free expression [Comedy III Prods., Inc. v. GarySaderup, Inc. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 387, 407, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 126, 21 P.3d 797] . In that particular case, the issue was whether, under the predecessor to Civ. Code § 3344.1, the First Amendment protected the use without permission of an illustration of the famous comedians the Three Stooges on lithographs and t-shirts sold for commercial gain. The Supreme Court concluded that if an artist is faced with a right of publicity challenge to his or her work, the artist may raise a First Amendment defense if the work contains significant transformative elements--that is, if the product containing the celebrity's likeness is so transformed that it has become primarily the artist's own expression rather than the celebrity's likeness--or if the market or economic value of the work does not derive primarily from the celebrity's fame [Comedy III Prods., Inc. v. Gary Saderup, Inc. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 387, 406-407, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 126, 21 P.3d 797] .

Applying that test to the case before it, the Court concluded that the likenesses at issue, although undeniably the work of a skilled artist, were so literal as to contain no significant transformative or creative contribution, and that the marketability and economic value of the work derived primarily from the fame of the comedians depicted. Therefore, the artist was not entitled to the First Amendment defense [Comedy III Prods., Inc. v. Gary Saderup, Inc. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 387, 409, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 126, 21 P.3d 797] .

By contrast, applying the same test in a subsequent suit brought by well-known musicians Johnny and Edgar Winter, the California Supreme Court held that the depiction of fictional half-human, half-worm characters named "Johnny and Edgar Autumn" in a comic book story set in the old West was entitled to First Amendment protection, despite the fact that the plaintiffs obviously served as the template for the two characters in the story. The Court concluded that because the depictions were distorted for purposes of lampoon, parody, or caricature, sufficient transformative elements were present to warrant constitutional protection [Winter v. DC Comics (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 881, 890, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 634, 69 P.3d 473] . The Court noted that for purposes of the test, it did not matter whether the work actually qualified as a parody rather than some other form of literary work, so long as the requisite transformative elements were present. In rejecting the plaintiffs' claim that the defendants could be liable because they used the plaintiffs' reputations to increase sales of the comic book, the Court held that the marketing for the comic book was irrelevant to application of the test [Winter v. DC Comics (2003) 30 Cal. 4th 881, 891, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 634, 69 P.3d 473] .

Applying this standard in a subsequent case, the court of appeal held that the First Amendment protected a video game maker from a suit for commercial appropriationof likeness brought by a singer with a distinctive stage persona. While the court agreed that there existed a triable issue of fact as to whether the use of a computer-generated character similar to plaintiff's stage persona in avideo game constituted a commercial appropriation, the court concluded that there were sufficient transformative elements in the character such that the character was not a mere likeness or literal depiction of plaintiff. The computer-generated character had an extremely tall, slender physique not shared by plaintiff, the character's typical hairstyle and primary costume were different from plaintiff's, the game in which the character appeared was set in the 25th century, unlike plaintiff's "act," and the character's dance moves were noticeably different from those of the plaintiff [Kirby v. Sega of America, Inc. (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 47, 59, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 607] . Because the requisite transformative elements were present, the defendant's use of plaintiff's likeness was entitled to First Amendment protection regardless of whether the work possessed any elements of caricature, lampoon, parody, social commentary, or other specific form of expression [Kirby v. Sega of America, Inc. (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 47, 60, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 607] .

In a case involving a magazine feature, the court of appeal ordered that causes of action for commercial misappropriation brought under both Civ. Code § 3344 and the common law be struck under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16 on the grounds that the magazine feature at issue was noncommercial speech entitled to full First Amendment protection. In that particular case, plaintiffs were musical groups whose names had been included in a magazine feature spotlighting independent rock bands that was published inside of a double-gatefold page layout the outside pages of which contained a multi-page cigarette advertisement. Plaintiffs argued that the design of the feature used the names of the rock bands to sell the cigarettes in the advertisement and as such constituted commercial misappropriation of their names to sell a product. The court of appeal disagreed, concluding that, despite the location of the advertisement on the outside pages of the gatefold, the feature on independent artists was noncommercial speech and plaintiffs had failed to present evidence that the magazine published the feature with actual malice [Stewart v. Rolling Stone LLC (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 664, 683-689, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 98] . The court also held that the constitutional right guaranteeing freedom of the press also barred plaintiffs from pursuing their causes of action, as that right traditionally protected publishers for decisions as to the content and placement of advertisements [Stewart v. Rolling Stone LLC (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 664, 690-691, 105 Cal. Rptr. 3d 98] .

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 429 PRIVACY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Invasion Of Privacy

37-429 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 429.37

§ 429.37 Public Information Not Actionable

[1] In General

The general principle that there is no right of privacy in that which is already public applies to all of the torts comprising the right of privacy [see Gill v. Hearst Pub. Co. (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 224, 230, 253 P.2d 441 . Thus, in the public disclosure of private facts tort, the disclosure must concern facts that are private and not already in the public domain. For example, a complaint based on a radio broadcast dramatizing the plaintiff's false report to the police that his dangerous animal was lost, which precipitated a citywide search, was held to concern information which was already known to the public [Smith v. National Broad. Co. (1956) 138 Cal. App. 2d 807, 811-812, 292 P.2d 600] .

In another case, the unauthorized republication in a newspaper of an article plaintiff had written and posted on the highly popular website MySpace.com was not an actionable public disclosure of private facts. As plaintiff herself made the information available to any person with a computer, the court concluded that no reasonable person would have maintained an expectation of privacy regarding the published material, regardless of the fact that plaintiff removed the article from the website after only six days [Moreno v. Hanford Sentinel, Inc. (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 1125, 1130, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 858] .

In the false light tort, however, the material may be public information and still amount to an actionable invasion of privacy because of the manner in which it is disclosed [see Gill v. Curtis Publishing Co. (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 273, 275, 279, 239 P.2d 630 ; but see Patton v. Royal Indus., Inc. (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 760, 767-768, 70 Cal. Rptr. 44] . For example, a photograph of plaintiffs taken in a public place that was published with a caption and text that cast aspersions on the plaintiffs' moral character was found to constitute an invasion of privacy [Gill v. Curtis Publishing Co. (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 273, 275, 279, 239 P.2d 630] .

[2] Public Scenes

Generally, there is no right of privacy in public scenes, and the publication of a photograph of a market place, parade, or street scene is usually not actionable [see Gill v. Hearst Pub. Co. (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 224, 230-231, 253 P.2d 441 . Thus, the mere publication of a photograph of a person taken in a public place, without more, does not constitute an invasion of privacy, provided the photograph is not offensive to a reasonable person [see Gill v. Hearst Pub. Co. (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 224, 230-231, 253 P.2d 441 (appropriation tort)].

[3] Matters of Public Record

There is no violation of the right of privacy for information contained in a public record [Carlisle v. Fawcett Publ'ns, Inc. (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 733, 747-748, 20 Cal. Rptr. 405] . Thus, as a matter of federal constitutional law, a state's common law or statutory law cannot allow a private civil action against a person for the accurate publication of information contained in a public record [Cox Broad. Corp. v. Cohn (1975) 420 U.S. 469, 491, 95 S. Ct. 1029, 43 L. Ed. 2d 328 (involving identity of deceased rape victim obtained from public judicial records)].

The following have been held to be matters of public record:

- A marriage and subsequent annulment [Carlisle v. Fawcett Publ'ns, Inc. (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 733, 747, 20 Cal. Rptr. 405] ;

- Information contained in the records of a trial [Melvin v. Reid (1931) 112 Cal. App. 285, 290-291, 297 P. 91] or obtained from public official court records of a criminal proceeding [Gates v. Discovery Communications, Inc. (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 679, 696, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663, 101 P.3d 552] ; and

- Incidents recorded on a police blotter [Kapellas v. Kofman (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 20, 38, 81 Cal. Rptr. 360, 459 P.2d 912] .

On the other hand, the following have been determined not to be matters of public record:

- The fact of a person's gender-corrective surgery; and

- A foreign country's birth certificate [Diaz v. Oakland Tribune, Inc. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 118, 132, 188 Cal. Rptr. 762] .

Moreover, even if information is required by law to be released as a public record, its earlier publication may nevertheless result in liability for invasion of privacy [Times-Mirror Co. v. Superior Court (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 1420, 1430, 244 Cal. Rptr. 556] .

The California Supreme Court has held that at least for past criminal behavior, it was possible for the passage of time to remove, if not the fact of the crime, at least the identity of the criminal from the public realm [Briscoe v. Reader's Digest Ass'n, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 529, 537-543, 93 Cal. Rptr. 866, 483 P.2d 34] . The Court concluded that individuals who by their action were vaulted into public view could, under most circumstances, retreat into the obscurity of the lawful and unexciting life of the bulk of the community with the passage of time [Briscoe v. Reader's Digest Ass'n, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 529, 538, 93 Cal. Rptr. 866, 483 P.2d 34] . Subsequently, however, the Court, relying on United States Supreme Court precedent, overruled that holding and concluded that the passage of time did not lessen the constitutional protection afforded to the media's right to publish facts obtained from public official court records of a criminal proceeding [Gates v. Discovery Communications, Inc. (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 679, 693-696, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663, 101 P.3d 552 ; see also Cox Broad. Corp. v. Cohn (1975) 420 U.S. 469, 95 S. Ct. 1029, 43 L. Ed. 2d 328] .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 429 PRIVACY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Invasion Of Privacy

37-429 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 429.38

§ 429.38 Public Disclosure Requirement

[1] Defined

The common element of public disclosure or publicity means that the communication which is the basis of the invasion of privacy must be made to the public in general or to a large number of people, rather than merely to a few individuals [Kinsey v. Macur (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 265, 270, 165 Cal. Rptr. 608 (false light publicity tort); Porten v. University of S.F. (1976) 64 Cal. App. 3d 825, 828, 134 Cal. Rptr. 839 (public disclosure tort)]. For example, sending a telegram is not considered a publication to the public in general [Mason v. Western Union Tel. Co. (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 429, 440, 125 Cal. Rptr. 53] . Also, a creditor writing a letter to a plaintiff's employer informing him or her of a debt owed by the plaintiff isnot a sufficient publication to the public in general [Timperley v. Chase Collection Serv. (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 697, 699-700, 77 Cal. Rptr. 782] .

A disclosure to a limited number of people, living in several states and unconnected either professionally or socially except that they are acquainted with the plaintiff, may be a sufficient "mass exposure" to meet the public disclosure requirement [see Kinsey v. Macur (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 265, 270, 165 Cal. Rptr. 608 (letters to 20 people living in several states and unconnected except for acquaintance with plaintiff sufficient public disclosure)].

[2] Method of Disclosure

The general rule is that the right of privacy can be violated only by printings, writings, pictures, or other permanent publications or reproductions, and not by word of mouth [Grimes v. Carter (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 694, 698, 50 Cal. Rptr. 808 ; Melvin v. Reid (1931) 112 Cal. App. 285, 290, 297 P. 91] . It has, however, been held that the right of privacy can be violated by an oral communication, on the ground that since oral statements may ultimately re ceive wider coverage than printed statements in this electronic age, the test should turn on the nature of the privacy invaded and not on the means of communication [H & M Assocs. v. City of El Centro (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 399, 412, 167 Cal. Rptr. 392] .

23 of 194 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 429 PRIVACY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Invasion Of Privacy

37-429 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 429.39

§ 429.39 Offensiveness to Reasonable Person

In all four of the torts for invasion of privacy, the conduct complained of will be actionable only if it is offensive and objectionable to a reasonable person of ordinary sensibilities [Gill v. Hearst Publ'g Co. (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 224, 229, 253 P.2d 441 ; Diaz v. Oakland Tribune, Inc. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 118, 126, 188 Cal. Rptr. 762] . If there is nothing uncomplimentary or discreditable in the disclosure, no cause of action will lie [Gill v. Hearst Publ'g Co. (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 224, 230-231, 253 P.2d 441 (photograph of plaintiffs, with husband's arm around wife, not offensive to ordinary sensibilities); see Miller v. National Broad. Co. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1463, 1483-1486, 232 Cal. Rptr. 668 (jury issue as to whether acts of film crew in entering plaintiff's home without her consent to film personal tragedy were sufficiently "highly offensive" to support recovery for tort of intrusion)].

For example, in the public disclosure tort, the mere mention of the plaintiff in a book was not found to be offensive because the clear import of the reference was to absolve the plaintiff of any responsibility for the murder being discussed [Forsher v. Bugliosi (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 792, 809, 163 Cal. Rptr. 628, 608 P.2d 716] .

In the false light tort, a fictionalization that fills in the gaps in an otherwise factual account is not considered objectionable [Carlisle v. Fawcett Publ'ns, Inc. (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 733, 748, 20 Cal. Rptr. 405 (article about plaintiff that included imaginary conversations and thoughts not objectionable)]. Also, a falsehood of a neutral nature is not sufficiently offensive [see Werner v. Times-Mirror Co. (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 111, 118-119, 14 Cal. Rptr. 208 (false statement that plaintiff's wife ran his campaign for public office not objectionable)]. On the other hand, a publication dealing with the intimate and private relationships between the opposite sexes may be offensive [see Gill v. Curtis Publishing Co. (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 273, 280, 239 P.2d 630] .

Concerning the physical intrusion tort, an inquiry into the plaintiff's occupation was not considered offensive because the plaintiff indicated that he would have divulged the information if asked directly [see Emerson v. J. F. Shea Co. (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 579, 592, 143 Cal. Rptr. 170]. And where there is no reasonable expectation of privacy, conduct is not sufficiently offensive to support an action for invasion of privacy. Thus, there is no cause of action for invasion of privacy based on the placement of a video camera in the release office of the county jail [see Sacramento County Deputy Sheriffs' Ass'n v. County of Sacramento (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1468, 1487, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 834] .

All the circumstances of an intrusion, including the motives or justification of the intruder, are pertinent to the offensiveness element [Shulman v. Group W Productions, Inc. (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 200, 236, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 955 P.3d 469]. In one case, for example, the director at a facility for neglected and abused children placed a hidden camera and motion sensor in an office shared by two female employees in order to capture video evidence of which employee had been using one of the computers in that office late at night to view Internet pornography, conduct that violated employer policy and posed potential risk for the children housed at the facility. Although the two female employees were not told of the camera, the evidence indicated that the director activated the camera and sensor only three times over a three-week period and only after the women had left work for the day. Although it was possible that someone during the day could sneak into a nearby locked storage room where the monitor was located and activate the camera, there was no evidence that the camera was ever activated when the female employees were present at work, nor that they were ever videotaped. When the camera was discovered by the women, the director was very forthright about why it was placed in their office and immediately showed the brief videotape that had been recorded during the nights it had been activated.

In affirming summary judgment in favor of the employer on plaintiffs' claims for intrusion, the California Supreme Court held that while the women had shown an intrusion into their shared office space, a place in which they had a reasonable expectation of privacy [Hernandez v. Hillsides, Inc. (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 272, 294, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 274, 211 P.3d 1063], they could not demonstrate under the circumstances that the intrusion would be considered utterly unjustified and highly offensive to a reasonable person. The Court noted that the undisputed evidence demonstrated that the camera equipment was installed in order to confirm a strong suspicion, triggered by the facility's computer network tracking measures, that an employee within the facility, specifically a program director or other staff person with keys and access to the administration building, was engaging in unauthorized and inappropriate after-hours computer use that could conceivably subject the facility to legal liability or, should some of the facility children be exposed, cause harm to the children in their vulnerable states. Moreover, the facility director repeatedly assured that the equipment was installed only to acquire evidence of who was using the computer in such unauthorized fashion, an assurance that was corroborated by his subsequent actions in limiting use of the camera [Hernandez v. Hillsides, Inc. (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 272, 298-299, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 274, 211 P.3d 1063]. The Court also noted that the office setting had been selected only after an attempt to monitor the computer lab had been fruitless, and the camera's rage of vision within the office was narrow, limited only to the desk and computer workstation that had been used to access the pornography [Hernandez v. Hillsides, Inc. (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 272, 296, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 274, 211 P.3d 1063].

Motivation or justification becomes particularly important when the intrusion is by a member of the print or broadcast press in the pursuit of news material. Thus, in deciding whether a reporter's alleged intrusion into private matters is offensive and hence actionable as an invasion of privacy, courts must consider the extent to which the intrusion was, under the circumstances, justified by the legitimate motive of gathering the news. However, the mere fact that the intruder was in pursuit of a story does not generally justify an otherwise offensive intrusion; offensiveness depends as well on the particular method of investigation used [Shulman v. Group W Prods., Inc. (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 200, 236-238, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 955 P.2d 469] .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 429 PRIVACY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Invasion Of Privacy

37-429 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 429.40

§ 429.40 Newsworthy Matters

[1] Constitutional Protection

The right of privacy is not absolute; it must be balanced against the public interest in the dissemination of news and information, consistent with the constitutional guaranties of freedom of speech and of the press [Gill v. Hearst Publ'g Co. (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 224, 228, 253 P.2d 441] . As a general rule, constitutional defenses concerning freedom of speech and freedom of the press apply to all types of privacy actions [Alim v. Superior Court (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 144, 149-150, 229 Cal. Rptr. 599 . The dividing line between the individual's right to privacy and the public's right to know is not easily drawn and must be determined by the facts of each case [Times-Mirror Co. v. Superior Court (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 1420, 1425, 244 Cal. Rptr. 556 ; Stryker v. Republic Pictures Corp. (1951) 108 Cal. App. 2d 191, 194, 238 P.2d 670] . The general rule is that a truthfulpublication will be constitutionally protected if (1) it is newsworthy, and (2) it does not reveal facts so offensive as to shock the community's notions of decency [Briscoe v. Reader's Digest Ass'n, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 529, 541, 93 Cal. Rptr. 866, 483 P.2d 34 , overruled on other grounds, Gates v. Discovery Communications, Inc. (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 679, 696-697, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663, 101 P.3d 552 & n.9, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663, 101 P.3d 552] . However, the publication of truthful information that is part of the public record as a matter of law, such as information obtained from official public court records of a criminal proceeding, is constitutionally protected regardless of any claim that the information is not newsworthy [see Gates v. Discovery Communications, Inc. (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 679, 692-697, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663, 101 P.3d 552 & n.9, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663, 101 P.3d 552] .

In an action for publication of private facts, the privilege may apply even when the private facts were declared confidential by statute [see Nicholson v. McClatchy Newspapers (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 509, 516-521, 223 Cal. Rptr. 58 . The burden of proving that a publication is not constitutionally protected--that is, that it is not newsworthy--is on the plaintiff [Diaz v. Oakland Tribune, Inc. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 118, 130, 188 Cal. Rptr. 762] .

If the facts disclosed about a limited involuntary public figure bear a logical relationship to the newsworthy subject of a news broadcast and are not intrusive in great disproportion to their relevance, the broadcast is newsworthy. For example, a television broadcast of an automobile accident and the rescue and medical treatment of one of the accident victim's did not constitute an invasion of privacy. The broadcast was newsworthy, and did not constitute a morbid and sensational prying into private lives for its own sake. Nor was the broadcast so lurid and sensational in emotional tone, or so intensely personal in content as to make its intrusiveness disproportionate to its relevance [Shulman v. Group W Prods., Inc. (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 200, 228, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 955 P.2d 469] .

[2] Criteria for Newsworthiness

Among the factors to consider in determining whether or not a publication is newsworthy are the following [Forsher v. Bugliosi (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 792, 810, 812, 163 Cal. Rptr. 628, 608 P.2d 716] :

- The social value of the facts published;
- The depth of the publication's intrusion into an individual's private affairs;
- The extent to which the individual voluntarily acceded to a position of public notoriety [see § 429.41];
- The exact nature of the state's interest in preventing disclosure;
- Whether or not the information is a matter of public record [see § 429.37]; and
- The lapse of time between the event and the publication [see § 429.478[4][d]].

[3] Passage of Time

The amount of time elapsing between the event which is the subject of the unwanted publication and the disclosure of it is a factor to consider in determining newsworthiness [Forsher v. Bugliosi (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 792, 810, 812, 163 Cal. Rptr. 628, 608 P.2d 716] . In most other cases, the passage of time does not per se establish that a disclosure is no longer newsworthy [Forsher v. Bugliosi (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 792, 812, 163 Cal. Rptr. 628, 608 P.2d 716 ; Carlisle v. Fawcett Publ'ns, Inc. (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 733, 746, 20 Cal. Rptr. 405] . For example, if there is still a continuing public interest in the matter, the individual's right to privacy may give way to the public's right to know [see Forsher v. Bugliosi (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 792, 812-813, 163 Cal. Rptr. 628, 608 P.2d 716 (disappearance and death of attorney in Manson Family trials still matter of public concern when subject book, Helter Skelter, was written)].

The California Supreme Court has held that, at least for past criminal behavior, it was possible for the passage of time to remove, if not the fact of the crime, at least the identity of the criminal from the public realm [Briscoe v. Reader's Digest Ass'n, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 529, 537-543, 93 Cal. Rptr. 866, 483 P.2d 34] . Subsequently, however, the Court, relying on United States Supreme Court precedent, overruled that holding and concluded that the passage of time did not lessen the constitutional protection afforded to the media's right to publish facts obtained from public official court records of a criminal proceeding [Gates v. Discovery Communications, Inc. (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 679, 693-696, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663, 101 P.3d 552 ; see also Cox Broad. Corp. v. Cohn (1975) 420 U.S. 469, 95 S. Ct. 1029, 43 L. Ed. 2d 328] .

[4] Facts Considered Newsworthy

In general, arrests and prosecutions of criminal suspects are matters of legitimate public concern [Cox Broad. Corp. v. Cohn (1975) 420 U.S. 469, 493, 95 S. Ct. 1029, 43 L. Ed. 2d 328 ; Gates v. Discovery Communications, Inc. (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 679, 692-693, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663, 101 P.3d 552] . The false accusation of the commission of a crime has been found to not be newsworthy [Kinsey v. Macur (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 265, 275, 165 Cal. Rptr. 608 (false accusation of murder and implication that plaintiff destroyed someone's life and was prone to raping children not newsworthy)]. Moreover, disclosure of a crime victim's name may subject the media to liability if the victim's safety is involved [Times-Mirror Co. v. Superior Court (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 1420, 1426, 244 Cal. Rptr. 556] .

Automobile accidents, as well as the rescue and medical treatment of accident victims, are newsworthy. In addition, the appearance and words of an accident victim as she was being extricated from an overturned car, placed in a helicopter and transported to a hospital are also newsworthy [Shulman v. Group W Prods., Inc. (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 200, 228, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 955 P.2d 469] .

Even though the general subject matter of a publication may be newsworthy, it does not necessarily follow that all information given in the account is newsworthy. If there is room for differing views whether a publication would be newsworthy, the question should be determined by the jury and not the court [Times-Mirror Co. v. Superior Court (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 1420, 1429, 244 Cal. Rptr. 556 ; see M. G. v. Time Warner, Inc. (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 623, 635-636, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 504 (trier of fact could find that photograph showing faces of Little League baseball team members was not newsworthy if used in stories about molestation that discussed team manager's sexual offenses)].

Otherwise private facts that have clear scholarly interest may be considered newsworthy. In one case, a scholar speaking at a conference dealing with repressed sexual abuse memories had made comments about an unidentified Jane Doe who was the subject of a published and widely debated case study. In those comments, the scholar had said merely that the subject had engaged in unspecified "destructive behavior" in her teen years and was currently serving in the Navy. The Supreme Court held that these comments, which were not of an intensely personal or intimate nature, were newsworthy within the debate about the reliability of repressed memory recovery. The Court noted that other commentators responding to the published case study had earlier remarked that it would be of interest from an academic standpoint to learn the effects of the events described in the case study on the subject's later development [Taus v. Loftus (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 683, 719, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 775, 151 P.3d 1185] .

[5] Offensiveness to Community

The constitutional protection for newsworthy matters does not extend to a publication of facts that are so offensive as to shock the community's notions of decency [Gates v. Discovery Communications, Inc. (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 679, 692-693, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663, 101 P.3d 552 ; Briscoe v. Reader's Digest Ass'n, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 529, 541, 93 Cal. Rptr. 866, 483 P.2d 34] . However, telling about a laudable deed done by a person is not offensive [see Johnson v. Harcourt, Brace, Jovanovich, Inc. (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 880, 892, 118 Cal. Rptr. 370 (telling about plaintiff's return of quarter of a million dollars which he found in street)]. In addition, reciting the plaintiff's relationship to a murder victim in a broadcast with the stories of two other heinous murders was not found to be offensive [O'Hilderbrandt v. Columbia Broad. Sys., Inc. (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 323, 334, 114 Cal. Rptr. 826] .

The plaintiff is required to prove that the information was published with reckless disregard for its offensiveness [see Briscoe v. Reader's Digest Ass'n, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 529, 543, 93 Cal. Rptr. 866, 483 P.2d 34 , overruled on other grounds, Gates v. Discovery Communications, Inc. (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 679, 696-697, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663, 101 P.3d 552 & n.9, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663, 101 P.3d 552 ; Johnson v. Harcourt, Brace, Jovanovich, Inc. (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 880, 891, 118 Cal. Rptr. 370] .

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 429 PRIVACY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Invasion Of Privacy

37-429 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 429.41

§ 429.41 Public Figures

[1] Loss of Right to Privacy

A person who is a "public figure" relinquishes a part of his or her right of privacy to the extent that the public has a legitimate interest in his or her activities [Johnson v. Harcourt, Brace, Jovanovich, Inc. (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 880, 892, 118 Cal. Rptr. 370] . A person may become a public figure either intentionally, by his or her own activities, or involuntarily, by the force of circumstances [Werner v. Times-Mirror Co. (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 111, 117, 14 Cal. Rptr. 208] . A person may attain public-figure status for all purposes, by achieving pervasive fame or notoriety; or he or she maybecome a public figure for a limited issue, relating only to the particular controversy which drew him or her into the public eye [Gertz v. Robert Welch, Inc. (74) 418 U.S. 323, 351, 94 S. Ct. 2997, 41 L. Ed. 2d 789] .

The passage of time may be a factor in determining whether or not a person is a public figure. For example, a political assassin will probably remain a permanent fixture in the public's memory for a long time [see Briscoe v. Reader's Digest Ass'n, Inc. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 529, 538, 541-542, 93 Cal. Rptr. 866, 483 P.2d 34 , overruled on other grounds, Gates v. Discovery Communications, Inc. (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 679, 696-697, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663, 101 P.3d 552 & n.9, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663, 101 P.3d 552] . In addition, one's own actions regarding an event of public interest may keep one in the public eye [see Wasser v. San Diego Union (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1455, 1463, 236 Cal. Rptr. 772 (person tried and acquitted of crime who over the years maintains series of legal actions concerning trial rekindles public interest)].

A necessary corollary to the rule that public figures lose their right of privacy is that people closely related to public figures may also lose their right of privacy to some extent [Johnson v. Harcourt, Brace, Jovanovich, Inc. (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 880, 891-892, 118 Cal. Rptr. 370 (family of person who returned quarter of a million dollars found on street); Carlisle v. Fawcett Publ'ns, Inc. (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 733, 747-748, 20 Cal. Rptr. 405 (husband of actress)].

For further discussion of public figures, see Ch. 340, Libel and Slander .

[2] Limited Public Figures

Limited public figures are private individuals involved in events of public interest. To protect the privacy of limited public figures, courts require a logical nexus between the complaining individual and the matter of legitimate public interest. The contents of a publication or broadcast are protected only if they havesome substantial relevance to a matter of legitimate public interest. Thus, courts balance the public's right to know against the plaintiff's privacy interest by drawing a protective line at the point the material revealed ceases to have any substantial connection to the subject matter of the newsworthy report [Shulman v. Group W Prods., Inc. (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 200, 224, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 955 P.2d 469 (upholding trial courts grant of summary judgment against plaintiffs in public disclosure of private facts case in which plaintiffs, victims of automobile accident, sued television producer that videotaped and broadcast documentary depicting their rescue and transport to hospital)].

[3] Public Officials and Candidates

Because of their public responsibilities, government officials and candidates for such offices are considered the paradigm case of public figures [Kapellas v. Kofman (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 20, 36, 81 Cal. Rptr. 360, 459 P.2d 912] . A thorough scrutiny will be permitted of any facet of their lives thatmay relate to their fitness for office [see Kapellas v. Kofman (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 20, 36-37, 81 Cal. Rptr. 360, 459 P.2d 912] . A charge of criminal conduct is deemed relevant to a candidate's qualifications for office [see Beruan v. French (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 825, 828, 128 Cal. Rptr. 869] . The criminal activity of a candidate's minor children may also be considered relevant [see Kapellas v. Kofman (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 20, 38-39, 81 Cal. Rptr. 360, 459 P.2d 912] . The fact of a person's transsexuality, however, is not pertinent to fitness for office [Diaz v. Oakland Tribune, Inc. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 118, 134, 188 Cal. Rptr. 762] .

The loss of privacy concomitant with candidacy for public office has been extended to candidacy for secretary-treasurer of a labor union [see Beruan v. French (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 825, 828-829, 128 Cal. Rptr. 869] . The loss of privacy has also been recognized in the case of a student body president of a college [Diaz v. Oakland Tribune, Inc. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 118, 134, 188 Cal. Rptr. 762] . The public arena entered by a public figure may be so small, however, that extensive exposure of that person's private life is not warranted [Diaz v. Oakland Tribune, Inc. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 118, 135, 188 Cal. Rptr. 762] .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 429 PRIVACY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Invasion Of Privacy

37-429 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 429.42

§ 429.42 Standing

[1] Privacy as Personal Right

The right of privacy is a purely personal right. It cannot be asserted by anyone other than the person whose privacy has been invaded. Only the person suffering the intrusion may maintain a cause of action [see Lugosi v. Universal Pictures (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 813, 821].

A person's relatives may not maintain an action for the invasion of that person's privacy. If the plaintiff's only relation to the asserted invasion of privacy is that he or she is a relative of the victim of the intrusion and was unwillingly brought into the limelight, no recovery is allowed [Coverstone v. Davies (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 315, 323-324, 239 P.2d 876 (parents of minor child)]. However, if a family member's own privacy is invaded along with the original person's privacy, the family member may maintain a cause of action for the invasion of his or her own privacy [Vescovo v. New Way Enters., Ltd. (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 582, 588, 130 Cal. Rptr. 86] .

The right of privacy does not survive but dies with a person. Thus, a person's heirs may not maintain a cause of action for invasion of that person's privacy [see Lugosi v. Universal Pictures (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 813, 821 (heirs); Hendrickson v. California Newspapers, Inc. (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 59, 62-63, 121 Cal. Rptr. 429 (family members); James v. Screen Gems, Inc. (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 650, 653-654, 344 P.2d 799 (spouse); Kelly v. Johnson Publ'g Co. (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 718, 721-722, 325 P.2d 659 (sisters)].

[2] Business Entities

There is a split of authority regarding whether or not a business entity may sue for an invasion of privacy [see H & M Assocs. v. City of El Centro (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 399, 409-411, 167 Cal. Rptr. 392 (4th District; partnership may sue); Ion Equip. Corp. v. Nelson (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 868, 878-879, 168 Cal. Rptr. 361 (1st District; corporation may not sue for common law tort)]. These cases may be reconciled on the basis that in Ion the plaintiff-corporation did not suffer any tangible loss, and the court held that since a business entity has no "feelings," it does not generally suffer the usual type of injury involved in an invasion of privacy action; while in H & M, in which the action was allowed, the invasion of privacy resulted in an economic loss to the plaintiff-partnership [see Ion Equip. Corp. v. Nelson (1980) 110

Cal. App. 3d 868, 878-879, 168 Cal. Rptr. 361 ; H & M Assocs. v. City of El Centro (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 399, 410, 167 Cal. Rptr. 392 (loss of real property through foreclosure)].

A business entity may bring an action for invasion of privacy under Penal Code §§ 632, 632.5, 637.2 (relating to actions for electronic eavesdropping) [see Ion Equipment Corp. v. Nelson (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 868, 168 Cal. Rptr. 361 (corporation); see also § 429.280 et seq.]. For discussion of the exclusion of corporations from protection of the right of privacy set out in Cal. Const. art. I, § 1, see § 429.16[4].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 429 PRIVACY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Invasion Of Privacy

37-429 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 429.43

§ 429.43 Uniform Single Publication Act

The Uniform Single Publication Act (Civ. Code §§ 3425.1-3425.5) provides that no person shall have more than one cause of action for damages for libel, slander, invasion of privacy, or any other tort founded upon any single publication or exhibition or utterance [Civ. Code § 3425.3]. The purpose of the Act is to abrogate the former rule un der which the sale of each copy of a newspaper or other publication containing objectionable matter was deemed to give rise to a separate cause of action [see Belli v. Roberts Bros. Furs (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 284, 288].

The Act gives the following examples of a single publication, exhibition, or utterance: any one issue of a newspaper, book, or magazine; any one presentation to an audience; any one broadcast over radio or television; or any one exhibition of a motion picture [Civ. Code § 3425.3]. As used in the statute, "issue" has been interpreted to mean all the printings of a newspaper for a single day, as opposed to each edition--that is, morning, afternoon, or evening paper--that is printed in any one day [see Belli v. Roberts Bros. Furs (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 284, 288-289]. A republication of a book in paperback form is considered a new "issue," and gives rise to a new cause of action [see Kanarek v. Bugliosi (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 327, 332, 166 Cal. Rptr. 526] .

Recovery in any action under the Act shall include all damages for any such tort suffered by the plaintiff in all jurisdictions [Civ. Code § 3425.3].In addition, a judgment in any jurisdiction for or against the plaintiff on the substantive merits of any action for damages founded upon a single publication, exhibition, or utterance, as described in Civ. Code § 3425.3, shall bar any other action for damages by the same plaintiff against the same defendant founded upon the same publication, exhibition, or utterance [Civ. Code § 3425.4]. For discussion and forms relating to res judicata in general, see Ch. 491, Res Judicata .

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 37: Pretrial Proceedings thru Privacy-Chs. 425-439
Chapter 429 PRIVACY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Invasion Of Privacy

37-429 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 429.44

§ 429.44 Statute of Limitations

The applicable statute of limitations for invasion of privacy actions is two years (one year, prior to January 1, 2003) after accrual of the cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 312, 335.1; Cain v. State Farm Mut. Auto Ins. Co. (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 310, 313, 132 Cal. Rptr. 860 ; Johnson v. Harcourt, Brace, Jovanovich, Inc. (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 880, 895-896, 118 Cal. Rptr. 370 ; see former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3); see generally Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions, § 345.14]. Generally, the limitations period runs from the date of the publication or utterance of the objectionable material [see Wiener v. Superior Court (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 525, 529, 130 Cal. Rptr. 61 . In the case of a single, integrated publication, the limitations period runs from the date of the first general distribution to the public, and not necessarily from the date printed on the publication [see Belli v. Roberts Bros. Furs (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 284, 289, 290]. For example, the several editions of a newspaper for one day comprise a single integrated publication, and the first general distribution of the paper may occur on the evening of the previous day [see Belli v. Roberts Bros. Furs (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 284].

